Middle schools get high marks

Sixth-graders are giving high marks to the middle schools they are attending this year in the Wayne-Westland school district. Pupils and administrators say the transition from junior highs to middle schools is succeeding.

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Sixth-grader Tia Barksdale wouldn't return to elementary school even if she could.

Like many students her age, she is excited about attending a middle school.

"I like the lockers," said the 11-year-old Adams Middle School student. "You get more freedom here, too. You get to walk around the halls by yourself."

Tia also likes having more choices in the food she eats for lunch.

"You can get pizza every day," she said, smiling.

Tia and others her age are making history by becoming the first sixth-grade class to attend middle schools in the Wayne-Westland school district.

Despite a few glitches, the district appears to be surviving the transition from junior highs to middle schools. The new structure also resulted in ninth-graders being moved to the high schools.

Adams Middle School is bigger than Tia had expected, and she has had a few problems trying to get her locker open.

But she said she would rather attend Adams than to have remained in elementary school for another year. She attended Fischer Elementary last school year.

Wayne-Westland officials say the new structure will improve the quality of education that students receive. The four middle schools are utilizing teaching techniques aimed at meeting the needs of students in grades six, seven and eight.

"I like gym," said Bobby Bailey, an 11-year-old Adams sixth-grader. "You get gym every other day here. And you get to have lockers next to

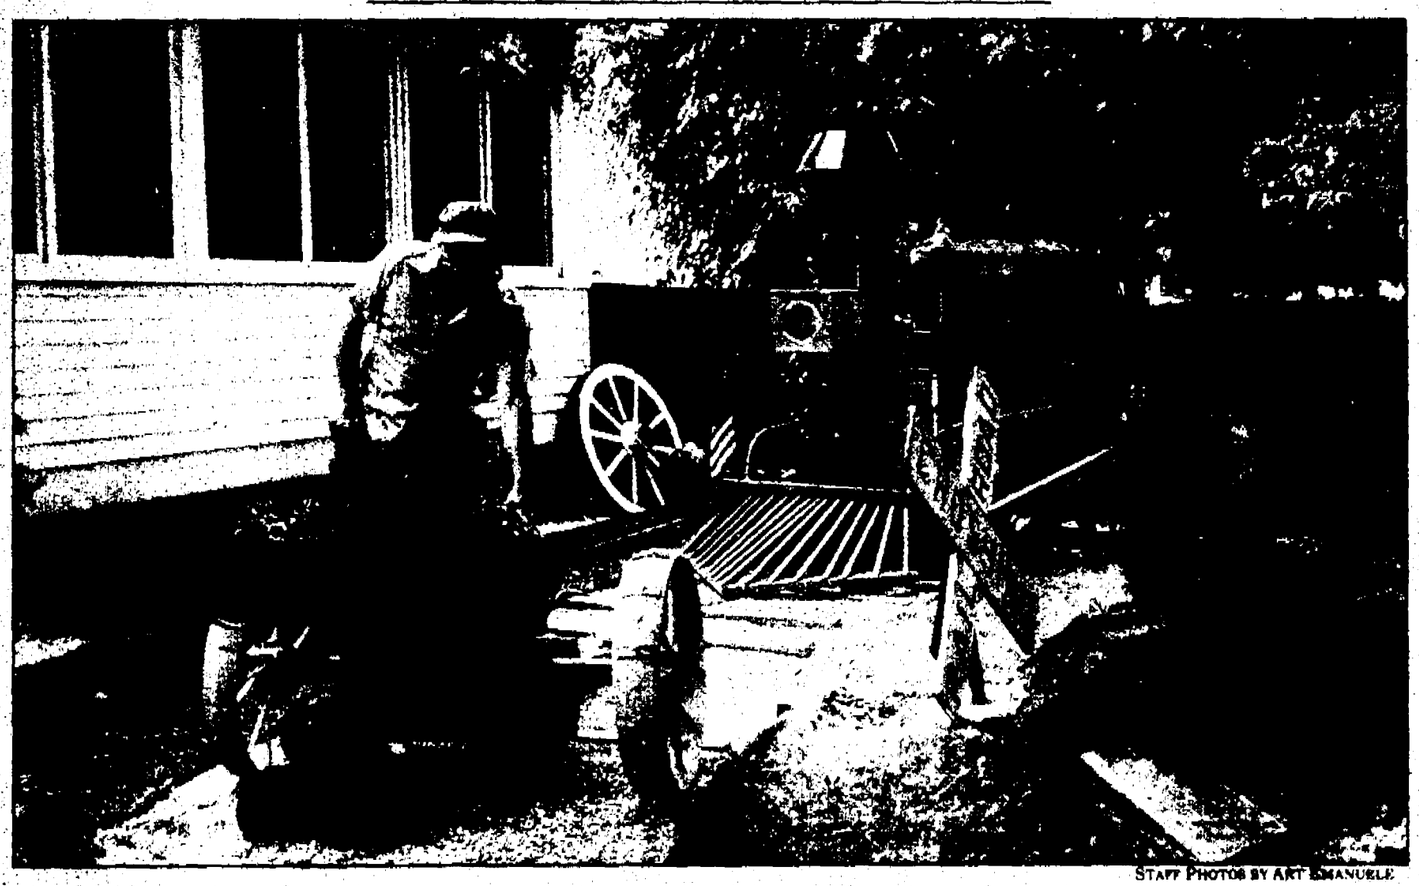
Civil War cannon, train mark front yard



STAFF PHOTOS BY ART EMANUELE

The Clemens Express: Westland resident Henry Clemens stands in his front yard, which is now decorated with replicas of a wartime train engine and a Civil War cannon. Clemens' house, which he calls his "mansion of memories," is filled with items from the past.

Yard decorated with 'mansion of memories'

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Henry Clemens has a war train engine and a cannon in his front yard.

No, he hasn't declared war on his neighbors. His self-built wartime replicas are merely the latest additions to what he calls his "mansion of memories" in Westland's southeast section.

Using barrels, farm implements, wood and various scrap materials, Clemens, 45, spent a month building a replica of an 1860s war train, known as The General. He built a replica of a Civil War cannon in a week.

The red, gray and black train sits on a railroad track of sorts, built with boards and gravel. Clemens even has a railroad crossing sign in his yard.

The train weighs an estimated 500 pounds, and Clemens and a friend rolled it into position after the project was completed. He put some lights on it to illuminate his work at night.

Why did Clemens build a train?

"I just felt like it," he said.

His new creations merely hint at the hundreds and hundreds of nostalgic items that he has in his two-story, 1930s farmhouse.

Clemens, an auto body technician, has collected old televisions, radios, posters, phonographs, a juke box and many other items that make his home seem lost in time.

He has added a turn-of-the-century sewing machine and a 1938, 16mm movie projector to his collection.

"That's the kind of thing you'd see at Henry Ford Museum," he said, proudly pointing the movie projector.

He also has found a children's 1952 pedal car. He got it from the original owners, and it looks virtually new.

In the back yard, Clemens has added "Outback Park," a tree-shrouded area that has a park bench.

"It's a place to come for seclusion when you want to think," he said.

The park is the latest addition to his nearly half-acre site. Elsewhere in the back yard is a 10-foot windmill, a hand-built pond, a mill house and a water wheel.

Murder shatters couple's wedding plans

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Dawn Marie Manier of Westland was supposed to marry her high school sweetheart, Dale Farr, on Sept. 23. Instead, she visited him at a cemetery on Wednesday, deeply saddened by his slaying in Inkster.

"I talked to him, and I talked to God," Manier, 21, said as she wiped tears from her eyes during an interview Wednesday. "I asked Dale and God to give me a sign if they could hear me. A bird flew right down and sat by Dale's grave."

Manier's mother, Sandy Chapo, said her daughter is drawn to Maple Grove Cemetery in Westland, where Farr, 23, was buried Aug. 29 with his wedding ring.

"We can't keep her away from the cemetery," Chapo said. "She's been writing letters telling Dale what she's doing. She told me she wished she could call 1-800-HEAVEN and talk to him."

Manier had to pause often during an interview to regain her composure. She talked fondly of the six years she knew Farr.

They met when they attended Wayne Memorial High School, and they lived together in Canton Township for 3½ years, until Farr was shot to death.

"Dale was the greatest guy you could ever meet," Manier said. "By law we weren't married, but in our hearts we were married a long time ago."

Farr was shot in the back Aug. 25 after he and his younger brother, James, were approached in their car on Middlebelt Road by three teens who wanted to sell drugs to them, Inkster Detective Greg Hill said.

The Farrs refused the offer and drove away, Hill said, but a stick was thrown at their car. They stopped and got out, only to face an altercation with the suspects and eight to 10 others who came to the scene.

Dale Farr was gunned down with a .38-caliber handgun as he was trying to flee. James Farr managed to escape.

A 15-year-old Inkster boy has been arrested and charged with first-degree murder, attempted murder and felony firearms possession, Hill said. He is being charged as an adult.

"For a kid to shoot Dale when he was running away, I can't understand that," Manier said. "That kid took everything away from me."

Residents tell of gang problems in neighborhoods

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A Westland man, pleading with city leaders Tuesday to address gang warfare in his neighborhood, gave a chilling account of how the problem has affected his family.

Robert Norlock, who lives on Ackley near Wildwood and Palmer, told the Westland City Council that his 12-year-old son was extremely frightened when two gangs recently engaged in three days of fighting in Westland's south end.

"My son sat on the floor shaking because they were shooting (near) the back of our house," he said.

"I am tired of being afraid of punks," Norlock said. "If I have to take up arms to defend myself, I will."

Norlock told the council that he is more fearful of being in his own neighborhood than when he goes to work in southwest Detroit. He works for a glass recycling company.

"It's time for us to take back the streets," he said.

Norlock also questioned the effectiveness of a new neighborhood watch program in which residents use city vehicles to patrol streets and report suspicious activity to police.

"You're going to end up with a citizen being killed," he said.

Police Chief Emery Price confirmed a flurry of gang problems that occurred about 2½ weeks ago in the south end. One man was beaten and hospitalized overnight, he said.

To combat the problem, a special team of police officers was assigned to the area. Since then, the situation has calmed down, Price said.

Some suspects who have been causing problems have moved away from Ackley, the chief said.

In response to Norlock's statements, Price said police officers "have not given up our streets to anyone, and we do not intend to."

Meanwhile, city resident Katherine Pare told the council that gangs are causing problems in the north end, too. One partially burned vacant home on Standish is being used as a party site for suspicious youngsters, she said.

Pare acknowledged that the city is having problems in the south end, but she said north end residents sometimes feel as though they aren't receiving the same level of protection.

your friends."

At Marshall Middle School, principal Larry Galbraith said most sixth-graders are adjusting easily to their new environment.

"They seem to do very well," he said. "We planned for it, but for it to go as planned is surprising."

There have been some glitches, Galbraith said, and some teachers have been frustrated by the different paper work and forms that accompany the middle school structure.

Marshall also is near its enrollment capacity, with some 900 students in the building, Galbraith said. School leaders have had to be creative in using the space that they have.

For example, a shop class has had to be used for in-school suspension.

To make the transition easier for students, core classes for all sixth-graders have been scheduled on the second floor of the building.

Although much planning preceded the middle school transition, students don't seem too concerned with such details.

"I like the lunch. You get pizza and pop and everything," Bobby Bailey, a former Schweitzer Elementary student, said.

Adams principal Celestine Sanders said the transition has been successful.

"It's even better than I expected," she said.

Teachers, too, are optimistic, she said.

"They smile coming in the building in the morning, and they smile when they leave in the afternoon," Sanders said.

Charlotte Sherman, executive director for secondary education, said district officials "are very pleased" with the way the transition has gone.

Many parents and students attended middle school orientations that helped them to feel more comfortable with their new schools, she said.

Teachers also prepared effectively for the changes, Sherman said.

"Everything is as smooth as we hoped for," she said.

Memories from page 1A

Clemens also has added a 1950s-era gasoline pump to his collection.

The things that Clemens collects don't cost him a lot of money. The train and the cannon, for example, were built with scrap materials.

Many items, such as radios dating back to the early 1900s, don't work when he gets them.

"I've rebuilt a lot of radios," he said.

Clemens is always looking for things from the past, particularly from his favorite decade, the 1950s. He chose not to have his address published, but he can be reached at 291-3075.

Couple to marry at local crafts store

The Michaels arts and crafts store, on Warren Road between Wayne Road and Central City Parkway, will again be the site of a wedding ceremony.

Tabitha Cross, a department manager and Scott Chrusciel, manager of the Ann Arbor Michaels' store, will exchange vows at 11 a.m. Sunday in the transformed center court of the Westland store in front of family, friends and interested customers.

In March, Michaels held a wedding fair promotion. Several stores had fashion shows and mock weddings to highlight the floral work and other options available to brides.

The Westland store was the only store however that actually married two of their employees in the store during the special activities, according to Stella Greene, one of the two floral designers for the ceremony.

Floral designers Larry Kralowski and Green transformed the center of the Westland store into a bridal chapel for the event.

Scott's mother, Nancy Chrusciel, is the store manager of the Westland Store. She encouraged Scott and Tabitha to come to the wedding fair at her store and to see firsthand the exceptional job Larry and Stella did in making the wedding there a memorable event.

Since Tabitha and Scott met working together at Michaels, they felt it was only right to be married in one of the stores also. Their first date was one year ago on Sept. 10.

Kralowski and Greene are excited about the opportunity to once again create unique floral pieces for the wedding day.

"One of a kind bouquets and church and reception floral arrangements are our specialty" said Greene. "No two weddings are ever the same," saying she and Kralowski try to have the arrangement reflect the couple.

An ongoing wedding rental program will be introduced with the event.

Several wedding related services will be provided to the couple. Ruth Ruth Olson Photography, on Ford and Wildwood, will handle the pictures for the day.

President Tuxedo of Westland Center will dress the men in the wedding party. Mary Denning's Cake Shoppe of Westland will provide the wedding cake.

Tabitha Cross and Scott Chrusciel

The couple will exchange rings provided by American Jewelry Setters. Gambino Limo Service will whisk the bride and groom to their private reception at the Crossings at Canton and then to their wedding night at the Ritz-Carleton in Dearborn.

Hill wouldn't disclose the name of the suspect, who is scheduled for a preliminary hearing Wednesday in Inkster 22nd District Court. No other suspects are expected to be charged, he said.

Manier last talked with Farr on the day he was slain. Farr was going to Inkster to pick up his brother so that they could play tennis.

Manier and Farr talked about picking up their wedding rings. Farr never saw his, but he was buried with it.

"I put his ring on him at the same time I put mine on me," Manier said.

Sandy Chapo said her daughter's wedding to Farr was perfectly planned.

"It was going to be a great wedding," she said. "Dawn's wedding dress and everything was paid for. Responses to the wedding invitations were coming in even as we were burying Dale."

Manier, a credit bureau employee, said she and Farr decided early in their relationship to wait several years to marry.

"We wanted to save some money and do everything right," she said.

Farr had worked several years at HLF Co., a furniture manufacturing plant in Belleville. He was popular among employees, Manier said, and the store was shut down on the day of his funeral.

"Dale was my whole world," Manier said. "We had our honeymoon planned out. We were going to go to Walt Disney World, where dreams come true."

Inventors develop stress relievers, dream machines

BY LEONARD POGER
EDITOR

Want equipment to relieve the stress of working long days (or years) at a computer keyboard?

Then call inventors Jack Shirlin and Bob Kaiser.

Need to adapt a roof-top platform for a four-wheel drive vehicle to travel seven miles up and down a mountain in Mexico?

Again, call Shirlin and Kaiser.

Do you want to change your Ford Ranger pick-up truck into a sporty convertible?

Call — guess who?— Shirlin and Kaiser.

Those creations are just a emall sampling of the work done by the inventive team of Garden City's Shirlin and Westland's Kaiser.

On a local level, the pair invented an air-operated tool for stripping roof shingles. The product is called the "Roof Razor."

That invention, Shirlin said, came simply.

"I removed my own roof shingles and thought that there must be a better way," he said in an interview in the basement of his Garden City home.

Observer readers may have seen the inventors' work in such movies of "Stick," "Sharkey's Machine" and "Sunset Limo," in which they designed special vehicles.

More recently, they designed special vehicles for "True Romance" with Dennis Hopper as well as MTV videos, the latest AMOCO commercial, and TV's "Unsolved Mysteries."

Outside of the movies and TV, Kaiser developed a convertible top mechanism for Chevy Suburban vehicles supplied to the King of Saudi Arabia and his palace guards as well as a "dream machine" for singer Bobby Darin.

Early starts

The creations and inventiveness are more amazing considering the two have worked for some of the largest corporations in the world, both locally and overseas, in the capacity of design, consulting, engineering and troubleshooting, and yet neither has a college degree.

Shirlin, 51, born in Detroit and raised in Livonia and Garden City, graduated Garden City High School in 1962. He worked as an applications engineer for Ford Motor Co.'s Tubine engine group and later with American Motors Corp and Perkins Engines Corp.

Shirlin spent a season overseas as a chief mechanic with a formula Grand Prix race team.

Kaiser, 69, was inducted into the Custom Car Hall of Fame in 1989, and most recently received the coveted, LifeTime Achievement Award for his pioneering and life time work with custom vehicles.

A graduate of Detroit's Mackenzie High School, Kaiser first joined the Merchant Marines during World War II. After his service stint, Kaisaer most most of his adult life creating and designing custom vehicles and components. Kaiser was part of the CLARKAISER custom shop, the first legitimate custom shop in Michigan, he said.

They combined their talents six years ago to form KLAI Enterprises, described on their business cards as a business which produces innovative products for home and business.

One of their most recent inventions — the Stress Reliever — was designed to relieve the stress and strain associated with computer keyboard operations and people with muscle control problems.

The product slips neatly udner the user's keyboard and is patented as a movable forearm and wrist support device allowing complete access to the keyboard and mouse pad.

In a brochure describing the equipment, they said that is the average cost per medical claim resulting from carpal tunnel syndrome alone is $29,000 — more than 100 times the $189-cost of the product.

Shirlin said the stress reliever is the invention he and his partner are most proud of.

"The idea (for the invention) came from a conversation" in which he heard about computer keyboard users experiencing numbness in their wrists and arms.

Changing lives

Since it was introduced in January, the response "has been phenomenal".

"It is changing the lives of people," he said, citing the example of the device being used to help a person with cerebral palsy use a computer.

The equipment was patented last year.

Dream machine: Inventors Bob Kaiser and Jack Shirlin created this "dream machine" for singer Bobby Darin.

In describing how the two inventors made connections in 1989 and decided to work together in their own business, he said:

"We met in a business situation to put several things together with our different talents," he said. The two wanted a one-stop auto work business for potential clients.

Since then, they have received patents for many other inventions.

One of their special vehicle adaptions was a "dream car" designed for singer Bobby Daron. The car is now displayed in the Museum of National Transportation in St. Louis.

Another car makeover was a Chrysler Imperial coupe which Kaiser and Shirlin converted into a four-door limo for Burt Reynolds' movies.

For the king of Saudi Arabia, a Chevy Suburban was changed into a convertible.

Not all the projects this team is involved in are for the weak of heart.

The king's gold-plated vehicle surpassed the $250,000 mark and the 43 additional for his guards averaged over $125,000 each.

Unfortunately, Kaiser and Shirlin weren't the recipients of all that money.

The pair doesn't limit their involvement in a project based on size, costs, or complexity and are willing to look at just about everything someone asks them to.

They are smart enough to know that they can't do it all, but do have a lot of resources to call on if they need some technical assistance. They said they try to surround themselves with other talented people.

Time, money and simplicity are the things the two based almost all their projects on. Because of their business size, they can build and complete any project faster, less expensive and make it simpler than almost any big company, they said.

Big business unfortunately gets bogged down in paper work, engineering and decision-making processes that never seem to end, they said.

As an example, not long ago they were commissioned to design and build a one-of-a-kind Grand Am convertible in 12 weeks. They did it — with three persons.

A large manufacturer couldn't accomplish that tak in that time-table for many reasons, they added.

Another invention they are proud of is a platform built for a customer who wanted it for better viewing and photo-taking from atop his Chevy Suburban while going up and down Mexico's "copper canyon" — a 7,000-foot drive which takes six hours to negotiate.

Kaiser and Shirlin built three two-person kits that Shirlin installed on site in Mexico last April.

"Have tools, will travel," commented Shirlin.

Persons interested in sending comments, questions or having an interest in the pair may contact them at Klai Enterprises, Inc., P.O. Box 43, Garden City 48136-0043,or call them at 425-1165.

Fund-raiser

'Weekend Committee' raises $15,500 for charity

The Charity Weekend Committee raised an estimated $15,500 during its 22nd annual Labor Day weekend fund-raiser.

The money will go to Garden City and Westland organizations which support disabled children or adults. Among them are the Garden City Mayor's Committee for Underprivileged Children, Special Olympics, Westland Civitan Club, Veterans for the Retarded, Muscular Dystrophy Association, and Penrickton Center for the Blind.

During the three-day benefit, there was free entertainment with money raised through food and beverage sales, donations and sale of souvenir items.

Train rides were enjoyed by children on the Wayne County Voiture 1002 "LeBleu Goose."

The benefit committee also publicly thanked the Knights of Columbus for donating use of their hall on Ford east of Merriman.

The entertainers, led by master of ceremonies Greg Price, also donated their time for the event as well as area merchants who provided various supplies.

On the Charity Weekend Committee are chairman Arnold Provo, secretary-treasurer Jeri Hunt, Michael Sheridan, Joan Harris, Rod Kris, Lynn Sayer, Mark Butler, Kathy Hamma, Greg Dowdy, Roseann Olivario, Joe and Marian Roberts and Jeannie Barnowski.

The committee also expressed its appreciation for all the volunteers who helped during the holiday weekend.

The benefit raised $18,300 last year.

Woman is ordered to trial on embezzlement charges

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A Westland woman has been ordered to stand trial on charges of embezzling nearly $1,600 from an 86-year-old neighbor.

Linda Mary Johnson, 38, is accused of embezzling the money last November and December, when she used to do housekeeping and run errands for the elderly woman, Westland police Sgt. Dan Harvey has said.

Johnson lived near the woman at Hampton Court Apartments, near Ford Road and Wildwood, but she has since moved, Harvey said.

Johnson was ordered to stand trial last Thursday after waiving her right to a preliminary hearing before 18th District Judge Gail McKnight. She will be tried in Detroit Recorder's Court.

If convicted, she could face a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison.

The victim told police that four checks totaling $1,583.15 were supposed to be deposited into her bank account. Instead, the suspect put the money in her own checking account, Harvey has said.

The 86-year-old woman didn't realize for several months that the money was missing from her account.

Johnson is free on a $5,000 personal bond as she awaits trial.

In a separate embezzling case, Robert Matthew Doyle was ordered to stand trial for accusations that he took $1,000 while working for Home Window Co. in Westland.

Doyle, 33, is accused of taking the money from a Ferndale man who never received windows that he ordered, Harvey has said.

Doyle, a Warren resident, also could face 10 years in prison if convicted.

Pending trial, he is free after posting $250 on a $2,500/10 percent bond.

'Hollywood Nights' benefits hospital

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

The star-studded cast is missing a bit of its glitter with the death of WJR radio personality J.P. McCarthy, but his commitment will be remembered when the curtain goes up on Project SMILE's "Hollywood Nights III" in October.

McCarthy, who died unexpectedly Aug. 16 at the Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York where he was being treated for myelodysplastic syndrome, was to have been a special guest at the third annual fund raiser for St. Mary Hospital.

"We share this loss with his family and with the whole community," said Sister Mary Modesta, president and chief executive officer of St. Mary Hospital. "And we are planning to honor him at 'Hollywood Nights' as a tribute to his commitment to St. Mary Hospital."

In its third year, "Hollywood Nights" has brought in more than $150,000 and has become the single largest fund raiser for the hospital. The money goes to the hospital's Miracle of Life Center to be completed in March 1997 and has helped finance the recent Women's Health Day and the purchase of electronic pediatric scales, children's ventilators and specialized infant warmers in the emergency room.

"Hollywood Nights III" will take over Laurel Manor on Thursday, Oct. 19. The evening, billed as the "premiere social event of the season" by organizers, will start with cocktails at 5:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 6:30 p.m.

Star-studded lineup

Returning for a third year as the the celebrity hostess is Marilyn Turner. Also back for a third time is Warner Bros. recording artist Alexander Zonjic and his award-winning jazz ensemble. They will share the stage with Johnny Trudell and his All Star Orchestra and vocalists Sandra Mandella and Sam Locricchio.

To accommodate the expanded musical entertainment, the banquet center is being transformed into a concert hall, so that every party-goer will have a clear view of the stage, said Carol Cassie, chairwoman of Project SMILE and founder of "Hollywood Nights."

There also be a dinner fashion show by Jacobson's Laurel Park store with models moving among eight stations, "so everyone will get a bird's-eye view," said Cassie.

Back by demand is the popular Star Look Alikes that saw the likes of Cary Grant, Marilyn Monroe and Hillary Clinton turn out for the first "Hollywood Nights" in 1992.

If there is one word that is key to this year's "Hollywood Nights" planning it has to be "community." The emphasis is on St. Mary as Livonia's "full service community hospital." A "community committee" was established to help with the benefit and extra effort has been made to keep ticket prices affordable so "the whole community" can attend.

"We want it to be affordable not to just a select group but the whole community," Cassie said. "When we started 'Hollywood Nights,' the idea was to keep it affordable for the community. This is for the community to enjoy."

Tickets, on sale now on a first-come first-served basis, are priced at $75 per person or $750 per table of 10 for VIP tickets (special seating, dinner, show and afterglow) and $35 per person or $350 per table of 10 for guest tickets (guest seating, dinner and the show).

"This is quality entertainment at an affordable price, quality entertainment that you would have to go to Detroit to appreciate," said Sharon Fletcher, director of volunteers and fund raising.

Organizers also have enlisted the aid of the Felician Sisters in getting sponsors for the event. The sponsorships range from $10,000 for a benefactor to $2,499 for a Friend of Project SMILE, with special recognition provided in the evening's program and from the podium for the larger donations.

Plenty of excitement

And the additions have provided a lot of excitement for those involved.

"You better believe it's exciting," said Sister Mary Renetta, the hospital's executive vice president. "How can you not be excited being with Carol."

"The sisters have really enjoyed being a part of the whole event this year," Fletcher said. "And their excitement has been contagious. This has been a lot of fun for them. Carol has orchestrated the event to be something the community can be proud of.

"'Hollywood Nights' has become such a fun thing that it's become something the community looks forward to."

Even Cassie, president of First Michigan Title, has found their excitement inspiring — "The selling they've been doing . . . they're really dynamic."

To help kick off the event, photographer Ron Reck of Ultimate Images in Livonia will display a collection of photographs from previous "Hollywood Nights" in the main corridor of the hospital. The display, opening later this month, while show visitors "how exciting it can be," Cassie said.

Reck also is donating his services to photograph physicians to be featured in the hospital's physicians directory that will be given out at the benefit and then distributed as resource material for the community.

"The reason he is doing this is because he supports what St. Mary is about and supports that we are a full service community hospital," said, Fletcher. "It's important that there is a real harmony between the community, the community committee and the internal hospital community, that we're all working for the success of Project SMILE."

People interested in ordering tickets for "Hollywood Nights III" can send a check, payable to St. Mary Hospital Foundation, to St. Mary Hospital Foundation — Project SMILE, 36475 Five Mile Road, Livonia 48154. Orders will be acknowledged in writing, with tickets mailed out at a later date, Cassie said.

Water use restrictions have been lifted

The mandatory odd/even outdoor water use restriction in effect for 123 metro Detroit communities served by the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department was lifted on Aug. 31. Residents may resume sprinkling, car washing and other outdoor water uses on an as-needed basis.

The restriction, in effect since June 19, was imposed as a preventive measure to avoid water distribution problems due to continued hot weather and below-average rainfall.

"We're happy to report that because of the cooperation of our customers in observing this restriction that we were able to get through the hottest summer months without service disruptions," said DWSD Director Stephen F. Gorden in a press release. "I'd like to thank everyone for complying with the odd/even schedule, and at the same time, adapting it to their lifestyles."

CC welcomes new principal

At the end of the 1995 school year, Catholic Central High School bid farewell to the Rev. Joseph J. Moffatt, the school's principal for the last six years.

CC has since welcomed its 16th principal, the Rev. Harold B. Gardner. A Basilian father, Gardner continues the tradition of the Basilian Order, leading CC since its founding in 1928.

Gardner has taught at CC before, so he is no stranger to the school.

"It is exciting to return and be a part of the CC family once again," Gardner said in a press release.

Before returning to CC, Gardner held a number of administrative positions, including the Office of Registrar at St. Michael's College, Toronto. Gardner also served as principal of The Aquinas Institute in Rochester, N.Y.

Gardner's experience is expected to help when the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools visits CC in March.

Gardner prepared Aquinas Institute for such a visit when he was principal there.

Catholic Central is a private, all-male college preparatory high school in Redford.

The trees are the American redbud, white pine, sugar maple, white flowering dogwood, pin oak, red maple, birch, silver maple, red oak and Colorado blue spruce.

The 6- to 12-inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge.

Members also receive a subscription to the foundation's colorful bimonthly publication, "Arbor Day"; a wall calendar; and "The Tree Book" with information about tree planting and care.

To become a member of the foundation and to receive the free trees, send a $10 membership contribution to Ten Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Ave, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by Sept. 30.

'Subacute care' leads rehab trend

BY JILL HALPIN
STAFF WRITER

It comes as no surprise that rising health care costs are forcing the medical field to reassess management of patient care. High costs of treatment and space limitations are just some of the dilemmas facing hospitals today.

Yet a new type of comprehensive care focusing on the patient is emerging and at least one local business is taking the lead in bringing it to the public.

"Subacute care" first entered the medical scene in the early 1980s as an option for treating and rehabilitating severely debilitated patients, according to Marty Grabijas, a program director with University Health Care Center in Livonia. A "step-down" program for those requiring sustained medical care, subacute care offers a cost-effective solution for overcrowded hospitals, Grabijas said.

Rather than receiving care in a hospital, patients in need of extensive skilled care are transferred to a subacute care center, such as University Health Care Center, where they are rehabilitated by a interdisciplinary team of health care professionals.

"A prime candidate for subacute care is a person involved in an automobile accident, suffering a variety of injuries. These patients require long-term rehabilitation. We offer a rehabilitation program similar to a hospital-based, inpatient program. Yet our overhead is so much lower that we are able to keep a patient here a little longer." Grabijas said.

■ 'We used to say that the Zarb family was on a 'roll' — we were both in wheelchairs at the same time. We had a lot of help from others, which we greatly appreciated. But these simple things really made a significant difference in our recovery.'

With the cost of inpatient care rising, hospitals face pressure to discharge patients. Pre-set diagnostic codes mandate that hospitals follow strict discharge schedules, leaving little room for flexibility in individual cases, Grabijas said. "This is a true rehabilitation center in the sense that we are with the person from start to finish. We only keep them as long as they need to be here, but those decisions are not based on pre-set codes. we are not constrained by the same regulations as hospitals."

Dr. Jim Richardson, an attending physician at University Health Care Center believes that much of the success of the subacute care program is based on the flexibility that subacute care offers.

"We consider each case individually. We sit down with the patient and develop a discharge plan. If it is not working, we can adjust it, and if a patient is discharged and later feels that they were not ready, they are able to readmit in 30 days. This type of flexibility in treating people is necessary for success," Richardson said.

For Edward and Linda Zarb of Livonia, the flexibility of the program was only one of the features that helped put their family on the road to recovery. Linda, who suffers from rheumatoid arthritis and fibromyligia, a muscle condition causing chronic pain, was planning a September 1994 stay at the center while she recuperated from hip-replacement surgery.

Rivers scores 100 percent in House

Baseball star Cal Ripken Jr., Baltimore Orioles shortstop, made history Wednesday when he played in his 2,131st consecutive game, breaking the record set in 1939 by Lou Gehrig.

On another level, U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers set an enviable record for making 100 percent of her roll call votes during her first six months in office.

The Ann Arbor Democrat, whose district includes Westland and Garden City, was one of a handful of Michigan members of Congress who recorded a 100 percent mark.

Actually, all but one of her colleagues from Michigan had an excellent record of 90 percent or higher.

What makes Rivers' attendance record remarkable is that voters are becoming more skeptical of their elected leaders. Frequently, they point to poor attendance records as a reason to "throw the bum out" and elect someone else.

Rivers didn't reach her 100-percent attendance record easily.

In Observer Newspaper interviews and other public appearances, Rivers made it clear that she takes her new position seriously.

A former Ann Arbor School Board member and president and then a state representative, Rivers was elected 10 months ago to replace William D. Ford, who represented the district for 30 years.

In her eight months in the U.S. House, Rivers has made it a point to fly home to her husband and family, which includes two daughters, every Friday; spend the weekend with them; and then return to the capital to get back to work by Monday morning.

In a period of voter skepticism, it's refreshing to see someone take a public position seriously and make sure that they make every roll call vote.

It's too early to tell if Rivers will have serious competition next fall when she seeks an expected second term, but at least she will have eliminated one issue for foes to criticize.

People make democracy work

Becoming involved in the democratic process isn't always a satisfying experience. You don't always accomplish your goal. By participating, however, people make our system of local, state and federal government better.

It's at the local level that the impact of one voice keeps politicians on notice that people can get things started and force change, even at times when their cause seems lost.

Those lost causes aren't always totally lost. Often groups form in opposition to a project, with the desire to totally stop it. They put together a grass-roots organization to accomplish that goal.

Group members attend public meetings, speak out, and at times file lawsuits. However, many times these groups run into what our government really is about, being a republic. It's not a pure democracy. That means the rights of individuals are maintained.

At public meetings in the suburbs, that concept is played out on an almost daily basis. There's that often-heard phrase: "Can't we vote on this and stop it?"

Mostly, the answer is yes and no. Yes, a public referendum can be conducted, but no, the project often can't be stopped. The reason is that the person or group putting together the project has rights too.

That has been evident in Plymouth Township, where residents have been fiercely opposed to the building of a new Temple Baptist Church on a 54-acre piece of property.

The church would have worship space for more than 2,000 members, a recreation building and an entertainment building, along with parking.

The initial project was rejected by the Plymouth Township Planning Commission. The church then filed suit against the township, claiming its right to freedom of religion was violated by the decision. The township has since offered a compromise plan, but the lawsuit continues.

Residents are still opposed and wondering why they can't vote to stop the project.

In Redford, to cut costs the township eliminated the Central Fire Station and shifted personnel and equipment to the south and north stations. Residents in the middle portion of the township became alarmed and started a campaign to restore the central station, including supporting candidates for the Township Board. The effort was successful and today the central station is open once again.

In Canton Township, a group organized to fight proposed runway extensions at Willow Run Airport, which is to be expanded and turned into an international tradeport. The group hasn't met with success, but it has forced government to give the project a full airing, alerting people to potential problems.

In Farmington Hills, a group of homeowners became enraged when the City Council approved a development called Timbercrest, a controversial residential and commercial project that would replace a wooded area near their homes.

The issue developed a bad case of the "uglies" when the residents decided to try to recall six of the seven Hills council members who supported the project.

The recall effort fell flat, of course. The concerns just weren't spread widely enough throughout the community, and they couldn't get nearly enough signatures on the petitions.

The recall try only added bile to an already bitter brew.

However, the residents were right to raise the issue. In raising the raucous, they accomplished several things:

- They participated in the process. There's a renewed interest in local politics thanks to Timbercrest.
- They focused the media spotlight on development problems faced by so many suburbanites, who feel deserted by their local government in the face of deep-pocket developers.
- They reminded the council that government serves the people, not the other way around.
- They showed government that some people will stand and fight for what they think is right — and not give up and just move to the outer limits of suburbia.

Democracy, the way we practice it, isn't always a pretty sight. But it's a system that serves us well. It's people standing up in public and voicing their concerns. They don't always win, but even when they lose, we're all winners because they have chosen to participate.

Future looks grim

Can anything be done to protect American labor from the sweatshops of Latin America and the slave labor camps of Asia? Or is cheap labor destined to be the very keystone of the new global economy?

Unfortunately, if we continue down the path of free trade, open markets and adversarial labor relations, the future of American working people looks pretty grim.

Our blind faith in the so-called efficiency of markets is dangerously misplaced. Markets are efficient, but often to the point of being brutal. And the equilibriums that markets settle into are often at low levels that are both socially and politically unacceptable.

I believe that we must return to some form of "enlightened protectionism." The minimum wage should be raised to $8 per hour. Tariffs should be imposed on imported goods manufactured under sweatshop conditions. Labor laws should be changed to encourage domestic production of goods. Unions should not be allowed to be "labor cartels" that can price wages "out of the market" in certain domestic industries. And, Americans should be allowed to compete freely with other Americans for jobs — so they don't have to compete with Asians and Latin Americans.

Labor must not be the slave of capital as it was in the days of "robber baron" capitalism. But likewise capital must not be made subservient to labor as was attempted under the failed Marxist experiments. Labor and capital must learn to trust each other if this is to be accomplished.

The only hope for American labor lies in renewed trust and enlightened protectionism within a framework of "managed capitalism."

Without labor-management trust and cooperation, the global economy will continue to be a destructive force in our economy — with it, the global economy can be an opportunity for unparalleled prosperity. This change of focus in our labor-management relations will not be easy — some egos will be bruised and old ways of thinking abandoned — but the current policy of pretending that nothing is wrong will only lead to even greater problems further down the road.

Walter Warren, Westland

Jobs are available

Republicans in Washington would like to reform welfare programs and put more people to work. Everybody likes a bandwagon and so some liberals have climbed aboard. Job programs continue to be important in reform considerations.

We can all hope that there will be legislation and programs put in place to help those who are not working and need our support.

But no legislation nor jobs program is necessary for people wanting work in Detroit, Wayne County, or the state of Michigan. There are hundreds of jobs available in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. They were available last week, last month, last year. For several years businesses have been seeking help and have had considerable difficulty in filling positions.

Most of us support the programs operated by government agencies which help people out of work, people in need. It is difficult to accept, however, supporting those who are able bodied who refuse to work on their own behalf.

Neil Goodbred, Livonia

A choice to die

Dr. Jack Kevorkian's 25th assisted suicide and the proliferation of legislative interest in assisted suicide in the state of Michigan point to a trend.

These actions underscore that many Americans have the disturbing impression that assisted suicide is the only answer to fears of losing control over one's death.

However, assisted dying is just one of many options available to people near the end of life.

Choice In Dying, a national nonprofit organization, is devoted to ensuring that dying persons are treated with dignity and respect: that their rights to appropriate palliative care, including adequate pain medications, are secure, and that they are able to participate fully in decisions about their medical treatment.

The "graying" of America and continual advancements in life-sustaining technologies will no doubt increase situations requiring end-of-life decisions to be made by families for patients who cannot speak for themselves. Anyone who would like information or counseling about end-of-life decision making, or one free copy of the Michigan medical advance directives (or, living wills and medical powers of attorney) can call 1-800-989-WILL (9455).

POINTS OF VIEW

Recorder's Court on trial

Abolish this unfair system

GUEST COLUMNIST

DEBORAH WHYMAN

Did you know that you can't vote for all of the judges who represent Wayne County? Did you know that only voters in the city of Detroit may vote for all of the judges who represent Wayne County?

Most suburban Wayne County residents are unaware that they are second-class citizens at the ballot box. In fact, the voters of suburban Wayne County are the only voters in the state of Michigan who cannot vote for all of the trial court judges who represent them. Only Wayne County has something known as Detroit Recorder's Court.

Detroit Recorder's Court was created to hear criminal cases arising from the City of Detroit. Only residents of Detroit may elect the 29 judges that sit on that court.

The Wayne County Circuit Court was established by the Michigan Constitution to hear both felony and major civil cases from all of Wayne County. All residents of the county of Wayne may vote for the 35 judges on the Circuit Court bench.

In 1981, the Detroit Recorder's Court and the Wayne County Circuit Court administratively merged. This merger gave Detroit Recorder's Court judges jurisdiction over all of Wayne County.

Recorder's Court judges are considered to be equal to Circuit Court judges in all aspects. This system allows the voters of the city of Detroit to elect all 64 "circuit level" judges.

Only Detroit residents may vote for the Detroit Recorder's Court judges and Circuit Court judges. If you live in any other Wayne County community, you may vote only for the 35 Circuit Court judges. This system amounts to a violation of the concept of "one man, one vote."

Assume that you are accused of a crime in the city of Livonia. If you are bound over for trial, you must stand before a Detroit Recorder's Court judge. Your case would be assigned to that court automatically. You could try to invoke a little-known policy that would allow you to have your case heard by a Circuit Court judge elected countywide. You could try that, but don't hold your breath. Most attorneys won't ask for the Circuit Court judge for fear of antagonizing the Recorder's Court judge.

The judges who sit on the Detroit Recorder's Court are not accountable to the victims of crime in Wayne County. If a murderer is given a very light sentence by a Recorder's Court judge, the family of the victim cannot vote against that judge in the next election unless that family lives in Detroit.

It is absolutely wrong that suburban Wayne County citizens must live under this system.

To right this wrong, I have introduced legislation to abolish Detroit Recorder's Court and combine it with Wayne County Circuit Court. House Bill 4952 would take all Recorder's Court judges and force them to run for office as every other circuit court judge in Michigan does, countywide.

This legislation will allow for "one man, one vote" for all voters in Wayne County.

Opponents of HB 4952 claim that making Detroit Recorder's Court judges run countywide is unfair to the city of Detroit. They should find some other argument that doesn't rely upon the concept of fairness.

The voters of suburban Wayne County have endured more than a decade of unfair treatment in judicial elections. What opponents of HB 4952 really want is continued preferential treatment for the city of Detroit.

Suburban Wayne County residents need to call their state senators and representatives today and urge a "yes" vote on this legislation and end unfair judicial elections in Wayne County.

Deborah Whyman is a state representative who represents Canton Township in the Michigan Legislature. She is currently serving her second two-year term.

The court is efficient, just

GUEST COLUMNIST

KAREN FORT HOOD

The Detroit Recorder's Court is under attack and in danger of being abolished if House Bill 4952, introduced by Deborah Whyman of Canton Township, passes.

The bill, which will be before the House Judiciary Committee this month, will destroy a Michigan institution and diversity in Wayne County. The court was established in 1857, just two decades after Michigan joined the union.

Through deliberate distortion of the facts our court has been unjustly maligned and criticized as unproductive and inefficient in the press and state Legislature.

It also seems that many critics of the court like to focus on one or two cases out of the hundreds of thousands where they may not have approved of a decision of a particular judge or a particular jury.

Recorder's Court handles thousands of criminal cases a year, fairly and efficiently. In 1989 the National Center for State Courts awarded the Court and ranked Recorder's Court as one of the three best courts in the country.

By contrast in 1986, the Wayne County Circuit Court was regarded as one of the slowest courts in the country. It suffered a five-year backlog on its civil docket. As a result, the Michigan Supreme Court merged the criminal dockets of the two courts so that Circuit Court could concentrate on its civil docket. With the assistance of the Recorder's Court, the Circuit Court time to trial has been reduced from 5 years to approximately 2.25 years.

Ms. Whyman cites disenfranchisement of out-county residents as the justification for abolishing Recorder's Court. But that is a non-issue since all over this state, cases are heard by visiting judges who were elected in other counties. Also, Court of Appeals judges are elected from one of five districts, yet hear cases from throughout the state. Clearly, the 1986 merger of the courts did not disenfranchise anybody since the victim and the defendant can demand a judge or jury of original jurisdiction.

Recorder's Court judges have also been unjustly criticized as being too lenient. However, the record indicates this is another deliberate distortion of the facts and a non-issue. In trials involving capital cases presided over by Recorder's Court judges, the conviction rate is 74.5 percent as compared to 71.6 percent found guilty in Circuit Court. On non-assaultive crimes, the rate of defendants sentenced to prison is 7.68 percent for Recorder's Court judges and 3.06 percent for Circuit Court judges.

Also, both courts place approximately the same percentage of defendants on probation.

As the Detroit Free Press so aptly noted in its editorial column on July 4, 1995, House Bill 4952 is "more about city-bashing than justice . . . today Recorder's Court reflects Detroit's demographics with a preponderance of African-American judges, lawyers, defendants, jurors and victims."

In her haste to abolish Recorder's Court, Ms. Whyman has misinformed her colleagues and her constituents. Her failure to properly research the issue or to consider less divisive, more practical solutions will in the long run exacerbate this situation. Perhaps the more obvious solution would be for the Michigan Supreme Court to de-merge the criminal dockets and allow the two courts to operate as they did before 1986.

Nevertheless, it seems that a court with a distinguished history of almost 150 years should respectfully be given more thoughtful consideration than Recorder's Court has received. Moreover, it is unconscionable that the sponsors of House Bill 4952 did not sit down and discuss it with the very people affected.

Judge Karen Fort Hood was elected to the Recorder's Court bench in 1992. She is a former Wayne County assistant prosecuting attorney and a graduate of Detroit College of Law.

Immunization rate must improve

PHILIP POWER

When I was a little boy, my mother wouldn't let me go in the swimming pool from time to time during the summer. "There's a polio outbreak," she'd explain. And she'd show me a picture from the local paper with a sad looking, paralyzed child trapped in an iron lung.

I remember the day long ago when the doctor told me to chew the sugar cube with the pink liquid on it. And I recall how proud and grateful I felt earlier this summer when I attended the ceremony at the University of Michigan honoring Dr. Salk and the successful field trials for his vaccine against poliomyelitis.

So it was with feelings of shock and dismay that I heard the news that Michigan ranks last — dead last! — among all the states in the percentage of preschool kids who are immunized against preventable childhood diseases.

According to the study just released by the U.S. Center for Disease Control, Michigan's 61 percent immunization rate for 2-year-olds is dwarfed by the national average of 75 percent. (Highest score was Vermont at 88 percent, followed by Hawaii and Connecticut at 86.)

Not surprisingly, the biggest problem in Michigan is in Detroit, where only 50 percent of preschoolers have received their immunizations. This number is up substantially, however, from the measly 29 percent immunized according to the 1990 study, according to Cynthia Taueg, chief health officer for the city.

So how come so many parents ignore their overwhelming responsibilities to their own kids? The public health experts I talked to at U-M offered a variety of explanations:

- It takes no less than five visits to the clinic to have immunized properly a 2-year-old against measles, rubella, mumps, diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, polio and hepatitis B. That's a hassle for any family, especially if both parents are working and don't have much insurance.

- A lot of parents put off immunizing their children, and they don't learn about the state law requiring immunization until their kid goes to school on the first day of kindergarten. Not surprisingly, the immunization percentage increases dramatically after age 5.

- There is a kind of Catch-22 at work here. Through past efforts at immunization, we have dramatically reduced — in some instances virtually eliminated — childhood diseases. An entire generation of protected parents has no idea how lethal these diseases can be and, hence, little recognition of how important it is to immunize their children.

Be this as it may, it's still hard for me to tolerate the idea that two out of five Michigan parents are so irresponsible — so lacking in family values — as to leave their preschool children unprotected against terrible disease.

There's a wider dimension to this issue as well. Immunization is one of those cases in which the welfare of society as a whole depends heavily on the willingness of individual members to act responsibly.

It's an idea in public health called "herd immunity." Essentially, it means that if a high enough percentage of the entire herd is immunized against a disease, that sickness cannot be transmitted through the total population. But if the herd immunity drops below a certain number, disease transmission increases dramatically.

The level of herd immunity required to protect society as a whole against measles, for instance, is nearly 90 percent. That's much higher than existing levels in many places in Michigan, which is why you keep hearing about periodic outbreaks of measles, especially in inner cities.

The herd immunity level required to interdict the transmission of polio, however, is much lower.

What a sad irony it would be if continued irresponsibility of individual parents would reduce Michigan's herd immunity level for polio to the point that I, in my turn, had to keep my son away from swimming pools in the summer, just the way my mother did for me.

However, husband Edward ended up taking her place in rehabilitation after suffering injuries from a work-related accident. Edward, an industrial mechanic, spent time in a local hospital recovering from multiple fractures before transferring to University Health Care Center.

Upon his recovery, Linda entered the center while recovering from the hip-replacement surgery and returned a few months later following knee replacements on both legs.

"You could say that we have had almost more experience with subacute care than we would have liked," laughed Linda. She believes that the quality care she and her husband received were important factors in both their physical and emotional recovery. "There are so many important things that the center does that helped us recover well. From meeting every two weeks with a representative from each department for a care planning session to the non-institutional setting . . . these are very important considerations when you are recovering over a long period of time," Linda said.

The welcoming atmosphere also made their illnesses and recoveries easier on the Zarbs' two daughters, Alicia and Elizabeth, who were able to ride their bikes to visit their parents.

"We used to say that the Zarb family was on a 'roll' — we were both in wheelchairs at the same time. We had a lot of help from others, which we greatly appreciated. But these simple things really made a significant difference in our recovery," Linda said.

Belle Isle Aquarium adds new fish

Saltwater fish have returned to the Bell Isle Aquarium.

For the first time in 11 years, coral reef fish are swimming in the only saltwater tank at the BIA.

There are palette surgeonfish, saddle anemonefish, pennant coralfish, Fiji damselfish, yellow tangs, emperor angelfish and queen angelfish.

Many of these fish will eventually find a home at the Detroit Zoo's Wildlife Interpretive Gallery.

"There will be eight to 10 species on display in the WIG's coral reef aquarium," said Douglas Sweet, curator of fishes for the Detroit Zoological Institute, in a press release.

The WIG will feature a wildlife art gallery; an auditorium that will show films, a butterfly and hummingbird garden and a 2,000-gallon coral reef aquarium.

Belle Isle Aquarium is open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Admission is $1.

The BIA, Belle Isle Zoo and Detroit Zoo are all part of the City of Detroit's Detroit Zoological Institute.

Lessons learned and little things

Life is full — full of all sorts of things. Big, momentous, and unmistakably important events like wars and hurricanes. And small, insignificant events like hangnails and slow drains.

And as long as there are hangnails and hurricanes, slow drains and wars, life will be full. You can't really have one sort of thing without the other. You can't have all big stuff and no little stuff, or vice versa.

I mean, if our days would be packed only with events of enormous consequence, our heads would surely fly off our shoulders. It'd be too much. Goodness, even the president of the United States balances his days with little things like Big Macs, golf and Socks the cat. And that's healthy. That's good.

The way I see it, since the little things of life don't demand that much thinking time, why not think about the big things while tending to the little things? I bet that the president, while he's eating a Big Mac or replacing a divot, doesn't think about buns and dirt clumps. I bet he thinks about big things, like balancing the budget and stuff like that.

And occasionally, the little things of life go beyond just providing time for thinking. Occasionally, the little things provide training and practice for the big things, the truly momentous events of life, that lie ahead. And along the way, during the training, ease and grace and wisdom are learned. And so, the little things, the "practice" things, are valuable and have their place in

Muscle disease limits her mobility

■ When Margaret Nelson was told she had IBM, she knew her doctor wasn't referring to the corporation. Instead, he was talking about a degenerative muscle disorder, so rare that there are only nine such cases in the state.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

JIM JAGDFELD/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Helping hand: Margaret Nelson of Livonia never realized the importance of support groups until she was diagnosed with Inclusion Body Myositis, an inflammatory muscle disease that causes slow progressive muscle weakness mostly in the shoulders, hands, thighs and feet.

Margaret Nelson admits she has an overactive imagination. So when she was having problems walking up and down the stairs of her Livonia home, she automatically assumed the worst.

"I actually thought I had Lou Gehrig's disease or muscular dystrophy," said Nelson. "My imagination was running wild and I have a good imagination anyway."

She never dreamed that she'd have "something that nobody's ever heard of."

After seeing a host of doctors, Nelson was diagnosed with inclusion body myositis (IBM), a degenerative muscle disorder that causes progressive muscle weakness and disability.

Instead of letting the disease get the best of her emotionally, Nelson hit the books and learned all she could about IBM. Now, she's sharing her information with fellow IBM patients as the contact for the Michigan chapter of the Virginia-based Inclusion Body Myositis Association.

The nonprofit organization was started by Virginian Betty Curry, who was diagnosed with the little-known disease in 1992.

"I know that when I talked to her and joined that organization that was the best thing that ever happened to me," Nelson said. "I was way out in left field. I didn't know anything about it. She keeps you so informed. You read all kinds of letters (in the newsletter) — and the letters are interesting — from people who write about their own experiences and shortcuts they found to do different things."

Important group

Jane Mohr, IBMA chapter coordinator, said groups like this are important.

"The purpose of the program is to let members with IBM know that they are not alone — that there are others in their state or even city who have IBM with whom they can connect," she said. "This really gives them the opportunity to give and receive support close to home."

Nelson's main concern as chapter contact is to let the public know about the disease, so those who are suffering can be correctly diagnosed. Right now there are only nine known cases of IBM in Michigan, she said.

"You can be sure that there are maybe 9,000 people at least who have it and don't know it and have been misdiagnosed. It's very often misdiagnosed," said Nelson, who's been married to Arthur for 45 years and is the mother of seven children.

Nelson was initially diagnosed

Women celebrate 75th anniversary of right to vote

Recent changes in Michigan's adoption law have significantly affected the rights of adult adoptees and their birth parents.

The new legislation, which took effect Jan. 1, allows greater opportunities for adoptees to find out more information about their past and facilitate searches and reunions with former family members.

Birth families also have additional avenues to search and reunite with children they either voluntarily placed for adoption or had parental rights involuntarily terminated by a court.

"Everything is a little new right now and private agencies, probate courts and the Michigan Department of Social Services are all scurrying around to make the necessary changes to comply with the law," said Sharon Vichcales, Child and Family Services of Michigan Inc. administrator. "Unfortunately, few adult adoptees or their birth families know that the change was implemented January 1."

The Central Adoption Registry, administered by the Michigan Department of Social Services, is the main vehicle that facilitates the sharing of identifying adoption information. Birth parents and adult siblings can submit a statement to the registry, consenting to or denying the release of identifying information.

The statements will be forwarded to adoption agencies and courts upon request so they can determine whether or not identifying information may be released to an adult adoptee or an adult adoptee's direct descendant.

Adoptees can make their wishes known by filing the appropriate form with the placing agency or probate court that finalized their adoption. When a match occurs, the placement agency or court will notify the consenting adults.

The new law allows an adult adoptee, an adoptive parent of a minor adoptee, an adult child of a deceased adoptee or a former family member, defined as a birth parent, birth grandparent or an adult sibling, to petition the court where the adoption was finalized for the appointment of a confidential intermediary.

The court-appointed intermediary serves as a go-between to search and locate birth family members, siblings or adoptees when there are no denials of consents on file for the individual.

In addition, the new legislation:

- Allows adult adoptees whose parents' rights were terminated prior to May 28, 1945, to obtain identifying information about their birth families, if there are no consents on file.
- Establishes a registry for birth siblings.
- Expands the definition of non-identifying information (date, time and place of birth of the adoptee, medical, psychological and genetic information, age and sex of siblings of the adoptee, and racial, ethnic and religious background).

Identifying information includes the name of the child before placement in adoption, the name of each biological parent at the time of termination of parental rights, the most recent name and addresses of each biological parent and the names of biological siblings at the time of termination.

Vichcales, whose agency houses more adoption records than any other private agency in Michigan, said few funds have been allocated in the past to either publicize the opportunities adoptees have to locate information about their biological families or protection available to family members who don't want to be contacted. Likewise, no money has been appropriated to notify adult adoptees or birth families about new changes in the law.

A 1993 report by the Michigan Federation of Private Child and Family Agencies states that while courts, private agencies and DSS have been more aggressive in recent years about informing current clients of the possibility of future searches, "it is believed that many adoptees and biological parents from earlier years are not aware of the registry."

Child and Family Services has a special toll-free number — (800) 878-6587 — to answer questions about accessing adoption records.

Changes in law make searches easier

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Liz Homer Giese of the Michigan Women's Historical Center & Hall of Fame remembers well the first time she voted in a presidential election. The year was 1964, and she voted for Lyndon B. Johnson.

"I think I took it for granted," she said. She hadn't seen much in her schoolbooks on women's voting or women's history.

Farmington Hills resident Sharon Hough remembers casting her first presidential ballot in 1968 for Hubert Humphrey. "It's been a long time," said Hough, an English as a second language teacher in the Avondale schools.

"I think everyone takes voting rights for granted," she said. "Unfortunately, too many people fail to vote."

They were among those at a Saturday, Aug. 26, celebration of women's voting and other rights at the Michigan Women's Historical Center & Hall of Fame in Lansing. Hough's daughter, Beth, 15, a ninth-grader at North Farmington High School, was also there. She's already off to a good start in understanding American government and politics, having worked on the Michael Dukakis campaign in 1988 and the Bill Clinton campaign in 1992.

The day included a panel discussion of speakers from labor unions and related organizations, held in honor of the opening of an exhibit on "Women at Work," which will continue through January 1996. The exhibit is on loan from the Walter P. Reuther Library at Wayne State University, represented by Leslie Hough, Ph.D., director, Archives of Labor and Urban Affairs. Hough is the husband of Sharon Hough.

He credited two women at Wayne State with inspiring the exhibit. Longtime UAW leader Mildred Jeffrey, who served on the WSU Board of Governors, was one. "It was really Millie's idea," Hough said, also crediting Joann Condino, head of marketing and communications at WSU.

The state of Michigan didn't fund the celebration, said Giese, education director at the Women's Historical Center & Hall of Fame. "Here at the Hall of Fame we tried to pick up some of the slack," the Lansing resident said.

A booklet on women's suffrage was produced by the Michigan Political History Society and the Michigan Women's Studies Association. There's a tent at the State Fair, set up just as suffragists did in the early days at state and county fairs to encourage support for women's voting rights.

"It wasn't just a phenomenon of Grand Rapids and Detroit. It was a statewide thing," Giese said.

Giese said some states had commissions in operation for over a year, and were able to increase awareness of the 75th anniversary of ratification of the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. The Michigan group has had several traveling exhibits on women's suffrage for use in state hospitality centers. There's one for schools, and an exhibit was done in cooperation with the League of Women Voters, which is also celebrating its 75th anniversary this year.

Each fall, women are inducted into the Hall of Fame in Lansing. This October's inductees will include the late Lucretia Grimes, a suffragist to be included among the historical honorees.

A book, "Michigan Women: First and Founders," vol. 2, is being published as well. Organizers are pushing for schools to do more on women's history, and are disappointed the State Board of Education hasn't included a standard requiring teaching of such history.

For more information, call the Michigan Women's Historical Center & Hall of Fame at (517) 372-3772.

life.

Wouldn't you say all that's true? Wouldn't you say that's how it is?

Boy, I hope so. I really hope so.

Otherwise what happened here the other day you'll think was rather atrocious. And probably inappropriate. And probably politically incorrect and environmentally unsound and theologically improper and altogether weird and awful.

You see, my children, along with several of their friends, memorialized, eulogized, and laid to rest a dead squirrel, a mere rodent, the other day. And I didn't stop them. Mostly because I didn't even know it was happening; I was absorbed in some really important tasks inside the house — folding sheets, unglopping the ketchup cap, and fixing the toilet paper holder. So what I know of this incident, this squirrel burial, I know only secondhand.

The squirrel, so goes the report, met with a gruesome demise, this according to Evan and Amy, good friends of my children and the only eyewitnesses to the death itself. The squirrel, they said, writhed on the sidewalk and switched its long tail back and forth and moved its legs in a herky-jerky way, kicking out at nothing at all before it actually passed on.

■ The squirrel, so goes the report, met with a gruesome demise, this according to Evan and Amy, good friends of my children and the only eyewitnesses to the death itself.

The cause of the squirrel's death is believed to be that it just up and fell, spontaneously, from a tree limb and upon landing on the sidewalk broke something important. This report made me grimace and shudder involuntarily.

I continued to shudder and grimace as more of the story unfolded. The children, it seems, learned about rigor mortis that day. They didn't come up with the Latin term, but the description that tumbled from their lips led me to believe they had learned plenty enough about it. They also learned a little about the circle of life and how other creatures, flies for instance, keep the circle going. And they learned, or rather most of them, reviewed the concept of death being final. That even though the squirrel didn't appear "dead" (no blood, gore or any other visible clues), it still wasn't waking up. Ever.

Then, on their own, the children turned from scientists to mourners. They buried the squirrel in the woods by the creek. They selected this grave site because they figured the woods had probably been his favorite place to play. And then the pallbearers, actually the shovel bearers, went to the front and carefully scooped the wild creature up and then led the funeral procession from the sidewalk back to the creekside burial place.

A total of seven attended this funeral. A song was sung by the seven and words were spoken and the squirrel was laid to rest. A medium-sized rock was used for the marker and a couple of end-of-the-season flowers were placed nearby. And that was that.

Had the children done wrong? Were their priorities all mixed up? Weren't there other much worthier and nobler tasks for them to do other than bury a squirrel? I don't know, but then who am I to say? All the while they were doing that, I was fixing the toilet paper holder and ungooping the ketchup bottle.

Like I said, life is full. And little things definitely have their place in that fullness. And the little things that teach grace and wisdom in a gentle, gradual, innocent sort of way, well, they too must certainly have their place in this life.

2 BPW programs focus on workplace

Making your way through the '90s and beyond takes skill and that's what speaker Mary Jane Mapes will provide when she addresses the Garden City Business and Professional Women Thursday, Sept. 21.

Mapes will speak on "Survival Skills for the '90s and Beyond" at the 6 p.m. dinner meeting at the New Peking Restaurant, Ford Road, east of Middlebelt Road, Garden City.

During her speech, she will focus on attitude, behavior and skills that are vital for team success and increased resilience. With increased competition, greater demand on available resources and a more highly educated workforce, it is essential that organizations maximize the efforts of their people.

Mapes has blended a master's degree in communication with her experience as a radio personality, goodwill ambassador for the national cherry industry and more than 20 years experience in education and business to become a proven professional speaker.

The cost is $15 per person for dinner and Mapes' speech and reservations can be made through Tuesday, Sept. 19, by calling (313) 422-7030.

The BPW also is joining with Jacobson's to present a career dressing seminar at 6 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 26, at the retailer's Laural Park Place store, Six Mile and Newburgh roads, Livonia.

With the changes taking place in the workplace, women need to dress themselves in a manner that enhances their productivity and yet reflects a professional attitude. The seminar will provide working women with ideas for dressing for the '90s.

Tickets for the seminar cost $15 each and are available by calling (313) 422-7030 before Tuesday, Oct. 24.

with a related disease called polymyositis, which is characterized by weakness in the proximal limb and neck flexor muscles, as well as difficulty swallowing.

Everything she read about the disease didn't relate to her, so she sought a second opinion at the University of Michigan Hospital where she was diagnosed with IBM. Although IBM is much more severe than polymyositis, the diagnosis was somewhat relieving.

"All the things that other people with it have, I related exactly," she said. "It's amazing. This is so rare that there's only one per million that have it."

IBM is one of the three major subtypes of inflammatory myopathies (or inflammation of diseased muscles), which also includes polymyositis and dermatomyositis, a related disease characterized by a rash and difficulty in swallowing.

In IBM, inflammatory cells surround, invade and destroy normal muscle fibers, causing muscle weakness, according to the IBMA.

"The thing that you notice the most is not being able to get up from the couch at all," Nelson said. "I haven't been down in the basement in two years. I know if I go down there I'll say, 'What a mess.' "

Patients also experience difficulty walking, standing, and climbing stairs. The use of canes and wheelchairs becomes a necessity, and eventually, many victims become bedridden.

Nelson relies on a walker to get around her house. She keeps the telephone, magazines, and medication in the basket attached to her walker.

Onset can be gradual or sudden, with the disease's progression differing widely between individuals. It is typically diagnosed during middle adulthood and occurs more frequently in men than women, according to Dr. Leonard Calabrese of the Cleveland Foundation.

Some patients, like Curry, inherit the disease. Nelson can not find any history of IBM in her family, so it's believed that her case is sporadic.

No cure

There is no cure for IBM, polymyositis or dermatomyositis. In an article entitled "Inclusion Body Myositis" in "Rheumatic Disease Clinics of North America," Calabrese wrote that research has shown that IBM most likely results from a disorder in the immune system. Therefore, therapies including corticosteroid and non-steroidal drugs are recommended.

However, that so far most therapies have not been very successful in treating IBM. In the authors' opinion, the goal of therapy at this time should be to stabilize the disease and prevent its progression instead of attempting to improve patients' muscle strength.

"The first thing they do is they try and suppress your autoimmune system," said Nelson. "There's about 80 autoimmune disorders, including lupus and arthritis. Your immune system is in high gear. It's overactive and it attacks your muscles as if they were the enemy. I called it friendly fire."

She and other members of the IBMA share their treatment experiences. She said some of the members' doctors told them that there is no medication that can help. Others told her of the experimental treatments they participated in. Being able to make that kind of connection with fellow patients is what makes the group worthwhile, she said.

"I always heard about support groups, but honest to God, I never knew how important they were."

Writer wants to please people and win their approval

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

I am a 20-year-old college student who recently discovered your column in the local paper. I would be very interested in seeing what my writing style says about me. I am right-handed and as a child my handwriting was horrible. I spent long hours each night practicing my cursive! I know my writing can still be a bit sloppy at times, but if I concentrate very hard, I can write almost perfectly! Please consider analyzing my writing in your column. I would greatly appreciate it. Thank you.

D.M.,
West Bloomfield

Possibly the most salient trait in this very legible, well-spaced handwriting is a strong need to get along amicably with others. She wants to please people and win their approval. If she doesn't, she tends to feel guilty.

In interpersonal relationships, she is somewhat reserved. Friendships need time to develop. Objectivity has developed at the expense of spontaneity. She practices discretion with regard to what and with whom she shares personal information.

The empathy here cannot be missed. Her caring heart often wants to help others. Some indecision, however, suggests she may be a tad unsure about actually doing it.

Her sphere of interest rests mainly in the present time. What is happening right now holds much appeal. She is traditionally oriented and does not wish to break her ties to the past.

Order and system are traits with which she has a good relationship. Her bailiwick is probably open for inspection most of the time. The hackneyed cliche, "A place for everything and everything in its place," is meaningful. I believe her appearance would also be neat and tidy.

Seemingly, our writer was raised in a home where the female influence was strong and much was expected of her. Some emotional energy is still not finding release.

This young woman is sensitive enough to know how it feels to be hurt. I doubt if she would deliberately hurt another person.

This is a very conscientious person. Her thinking type is methodical and careful. She dislikes being rushed or having to meet pressure deadlines. Her first choice would probably be to undertake those involvements she can readily complete. In her work, she strives for perfection and can see and act on the essentials.

People who know her best perceive her as disciplined and dependable. When she gives her word, she follows through on her promises.

Some of life's finer things appeal to her taste. Hand dexterity and music are areas of enjoyment for her.

I am a 20 year old college student who recently covered your column in the local paper. I would be very intrested in seeing what my writing says about me. I am right-handed and as a kid my handwriting was horrible. I spent lo

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please write a few paragraphs about yourself, using a full sheet of white, unlined paper and writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. And objective feedback is welcome.

ANNIVERSARIES

Jahn

Clarence and Dorthea Jahn recently celebrated their 66th wedding anniversary.

Fifty-three-year residents of Livonia, the couple exchanged vows on Aug. 10, 1929, in Napoleon, Ohio. They have two children, Gerald P. of Clarkston and Marianne Nelder of Northville; three grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

Retired 32 years, he started the Livonia National Bank and built the Livonia Hardware at Five Mile and Farmington roads. Active in the Livonia Chamber of Commerce, he is a 50-year charter member of the Livonia Rotary.

Counts

Jeffrey and Catherine Counts of Livonia will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary Sept. 12.

The couple were married in Detroit on Sept. 12, 1970, at Sts. Constantine and Helen Greek Orthodox Church. They moved to Bay City in 1973 and returned to the Detroit area in 1988.

They have two children, Christopher, 22, a 1995 graduate of Central Michigan University, and John, 17, a senior at Livonia Franklin High School.

To celebrate the event, the couple, with their English setter, Maggie, will tour the eastern Upper Peninsula.

He is the editor of the Plymouth Observer and former assistant metro editor at the Bay City Times. He also is a member of Trout Unlimited, the Western Wayne Conservation Club and the Plymouth Press Club.

She is a dental receptionist and a member of the Daughters of Penelope at Sts. Constantine and Helen Greek Orthodox Church in Westland.

Randall

Leonard and June Randall will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary with a trip to New Orleans.

Residents of Livonia for more than 40 years, the couple exchanged vows on Oct. 23, 1945, in Croydon, England. The former June Parma, she was a war bride and came to the United States at the end of World War II.

The Randalls have two children — Paul of Cary, N.C., the former principle trumpet of the New Orleans Symphony and currently principle of the North Carolina Symphony, and Celia of Harper Woods, a former Miss Livonia and singer/actress in the metro Detroit area. They also have two grandchildren.

He is a semi-retired musician/entertainer. She is a former member of the state board of the Michigan PTA, former library commissioner and retired information coordinator's music indexer for several national and international music magazines.

The Randalls are avid readers and enjoy traveling, including yearly trips to the Leelanau Peninsula, North Carolina and the Eastern Music Festival in Greensboro, N.C.

Warner

Robert and Mildred Warner of Ocala, Fla., renewed their vows during a 50th wedding anniversary celebration July 15 at the Hawthorne Valley Country Club in Westland.

In attendance were the couple's maid of honor, Theresa Martin, and best man, Joseph Muelrath.

The Warners were married on July 14, 1945, at the Chapel of the Passionist Fathers Seminary in Detroit. During World War II, food allotment stamps were used and families had monthly allowances, so aunts of the bride pooled their stamps and went to Eastern Market shopping. They then cooked and served the marriage dinner, held in the home of the bride's parents.

The Warners' seven children, their husbands and wives, 18 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren were among friends and relatives who came to the celebration.

The Warners lived in Livonia, Chelsea and New Hudson before retiring to Ocala.

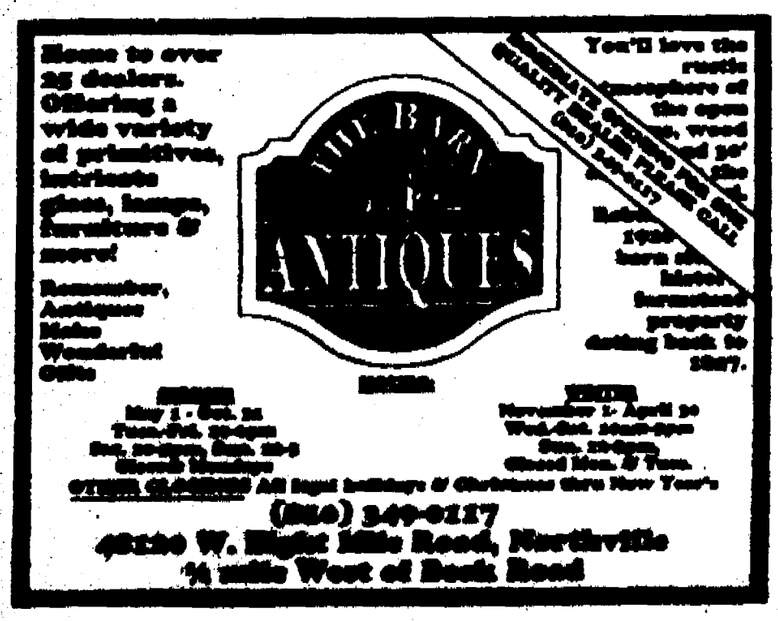
Family Emergencies.

No two emergencies are exactly alike. So all emergency care shouldn't be the same either.

That's why we designed and equipped our emergency department to handle everything from minor accidents to life-threatening injuries. If there are any questions about the seriousness of the emergency, a specially trained nurse is on hand to evaluate the situation and direct you to the appropriate level of treatment.

And whether you're a walk-in patient or require critical care, you'll receive the same quick and personalized medical attention from doctors who are specially trained in emergency medicine.

Our emergency care is backed by the resources of a full-service hospital, it's available 24 hours a day, every day, and it comes with the [illegible] that



Donations sought for rummage sale

Community Hospice Services is accepting donations of clean usable items for a rummage-bake sale it will hold on Friday, Sept. 15.

The sale will take place in the parking lot of CHS's Westland office at the northwest corner of Warren and Venoy roads 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Proceeds will help fund the agency's children's bereavement programs.

In addition, CHS will launch its new line of holiday and all occasion greeting cards at the sale.

CHS is accepting donations of children's items, clothing, furniture, housewares, arts and crafts and books in good condition up until Sept. 12. Donated items are tax deductible for their fair market value, and CHS will supply a receipt for tax purposes.

CHS has children's bereavement programs, including a twice yearly grief support series, a monthly grief support group called "Connections," and Camp Phoenix, a weekend camp experience for bereaved children.

"All of the children's bereavement services are offered free of charge to the general public and are not reimbursable by insurance companies, so we need to look to donations and fund-raisers, such as this rummage-bake sale to fund the program," said Maureen Butrico, CHS executive director.

A nonprofit organization, CHS provides services to incurably ill patients and their families in western Wayne, southern Oakland and eastern Washtenaw counties, with offices in Westland and Plymouth.

For more information, or to make a tax-deductible rummage sale contribution, call Mary Letters or Yvonne Strand at (313) 522-4244.

It took a team effort

In rally for kids: Gerald Fitzgerald (left), president and chief executive officer of Oakwood Healthcare System, and Jim Demmer, vice president of Jack Demmer Ford and a member of the Oakwood Hospital Annapolis Center Foundation Board, finished second in the equipped class of the 10th annual Michigan Association of Children's Alliances Grand Tour for Children. The twosome won $200 for completing the 800-mile rally and donated the money to Youth Living Centers, a MACA member.

DRIS will benefit from 'Walk with Art'

You can take a "Walk with Art" Saturday, Sept. 16, and help support services for the blind, disabled and disadvantaged.

The walk-athon will benefit the Detroit Radio Information Service, southeastern Mchigan's only radio reading service, and other Lions Club charities.

The day will begin at 9 a.m. by walking a leisurely 5K route that winds its way through the ninth annual Detroit Festival of the Arts site in Detroit's Cultural Center and New Center area.

Participants then will relax at a parking lot cookout and spend the day enjoying the area's largest multi-arts festival.

The walk-athon is open to walkers, wheelers and children in strollers (with parents), so organizers are urging people to bring the gang; groups are encouraged. Child and family registration fees are designed to make the walk-athon at family affair.

For "Walk with Art" registration materials, call Nadine Seely, DRIS volunteer coordinator, at (313) 577-4207, or the Lions at (313) 875-6464. Preregistration should be completed by Sept. 8.

Did you know . . .

When it comes to saying "I do," the number of single women is increasing.

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, the proportion of women ages 25-34 who have never been married nearly tripled between 1970 and 1983, from 9 percent in 1970 to 26 percent in 1993.

The bureau also found that the number of unmarried women in the childbearing years (ages 15-44) who had babies jumped by 50 percent between 1982 (30 out of every 1,000) and 1992 (45 out of every 1,000).

Community Hospice offers adult grief recovery series

Beginning in October, Community Hospice Services will offer a free adult grief recovery series for those people who have suffered a significant loss of a loved one.

The classes will meet 6:30-8 p.m for six consecutive weeks, beginning Wednesday, Oct. 4, at the CHS's Westland offices, 32932 Warren Road, Suite 100. They will conclude with a group memorial service in November.

"One of the most important factors that influences a person's grieving process is whether that person receives validation for their feelings," said Kelly Rhoades, director of bereavement and spiritual care for CHS. "The existing societal attitude, although changing, is one of wanting to make it better and move the person through the pain at an unrealistic pace.

"Instead of offering support, society inadvertently discounts the grieving person's feelings. We need to respect the individual grief process of every person, and at the same time recognize and learn about the common themes that we all experience."

The series is designed to assist individuals and families as they attempt to understand and work through the bereavement process. Learning to manage grief is one of the themes in the grief recovery series.

"We don't really 'recover' from a significant loss, because our lives don't return to 'normal,'" Rhoades said. "We aren't the same people we were before the loss. We define a new normal for ourselves, discover strengths we never knew we had and may even grow through the grief — over time with adequate supports and opportunities to release feelings."

Other themes of the series include what makes it difficult to grieve, problems in grief, the fight against normal reactions to grief, learning to be good to yourself, and building self-esteem after loss.

The facilitator assumes an informal, open, self-disclosing style while teaching the series, and encourages participants to stay connected with one another after the series ends. Since each session builds upon the next, Rhoades suggests participants attend all six for maximum benefit.

CHS provides compassionate, skilled home care to incurably ill patients and their families in western Wayne, southern Oakland and eastern Washtenaw counties. It maintains offices in Westland and Plymouth.

There is no charge for the series. To register or for more information, call Kelly Rhoades at (313) 522-4244.

Costume designer helps set scene

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

On a trip to Istanbul this summer, Turkey's whirling dervishes inspired costume designer Bernadine Vida to create long flowing tunics for multimedia performances of the Detroit Dance Collective Sept. 16-17 at the Michigan Gallery.

"Encounters: A Journey Through Space and Time" integrates Vida's hotly colored silk charmeuse leotards and tunics with the video images of Bill Harder.

Even the bell-shaped sleeves of the outfits play a part, influencing the movement and choreography of Farmington Hills dancer Barbara Selinger and her modern dance troupe based at Oakland Community College in Royal Oak.

"Dance is about music and movement. As they move to the music, their fabric moves with them. In the beginning of modern dance, choreographers wanted you to be able to see the dancer's body. Now they're exploring sets, music and costumes," said Vida.

"I like to work with costume like its sculpture so that the dancers look like pieces of sculpture."

Vida is no stranger to the world of art. She's had her hand in the creation of costumes worn by performers in national Broadway tours, Elton John's "All Over the World" video, and last weekend's Rock and Roll Hall of Fame concert featuring Martha Reeves and the Vandellas and John Cougar Mellencamp in Cleveland.

Redford Township seems such an unlikely place to have bred a costume designer whose creations have graced a variety of stages from summer revivals of "Hello Dolly" at the Birmingham Theatre and "The All Night Strut" at the Gem Theatre in Detroit to the Actors' Alliance production of "Taming of the Shrew," and this summer's performance of "Libation Bearers"

Dances explore humanity

"Encounters: A Journey Through Space and Time" is an abstract work, choreographed by Barbara Selinger, artistic director of Detroit Dance Collective. It will be performed with members of the collective Sept. 16-17 at the Michigan Gallery in Detroit.

Selinger's modern dance pieces ranging from the humorous to the powerfully dramatic, explore the deepest realm of her imagination and voice her thoughts and feelings relevant to the human condition.

"Encounters" probes into the distant past, confronts the immediate present and explores the unknown of the outlying future.

The dance uses video projections edited in such a way that they become a partner in the performance. Videographer Bill Harder collaborated with Selinger in the creation of this work. Sound is based on the music of Stephan Micus and Eric Satie and designed by Selinger. Dancers include Selinger with members of Detroit Dance Collective, David Guzman, Karen Leighton and Bruce Rabey. Audiene members will have the opportunity to select what they see by where they choose to sit, stand or rove during the performance.

Funding for "Encounters" was made possible by a 1995 Creative Artist Grant Awarded to Selinger by the Arts Foundation of Michigan in Conjunction with the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs.

Selinger will also present two other pieces from her repertory:

"Telltale," a solo based on the mysterious collages of visual artist, Claudia St. Peter is performed by Selinger to Early Renaissance music. Throughout the piece, slides of St. Peter's collages are projected on a screen as Selinger dances in and out of her costume, a skirt that stands on its own.

"Journey," is a sensuous dance utlitizing a film projection of ocean waves and birds as a backdrop. It will be performed by the ensemble.

"Encounters: A Journey Through Space and Time"

'Keep Me Ever Warm' embraces quilts

Quilts and dolls: Quilt expert Merry Silber (left) of Birmingham and doll artist Kathleen Bricker of Farmington pose by two examples of quilt and doll art to be featured in an upcoming benefit. Behind the women is a marriage quilt, circa 1840.

A quilt can warm the heart as well as the body.

Quilt expert Merry*ok* Silber of Birmingham displayed one such example: a quilt of bright colors and cheerful images, featuring innocent drawings of rainbows and flowers and happy scenes neatly arranged within orderly borders. In the center of the piece is a large, pure white square with two blue figures around a red heart that resembles a gentle smile.

It's a quilt full of meaning; a quilt that touches the viewer without actually enfolding him or her in a soft embrace. It's a quilt made by youngsters and families who were a part of Kaleidoscope Kids (TM), a hospice program for terminally and chronically ill children sponsored by the Henry Ford Health System.

Like a quilt, a doll is close to the heart, comforts and cheers in special ways and can be a work of art. Doll artist Kathleen Bricker of Farmington showed one such example: "Mother and Child," a work featuring two dolls draped in quilt-like fabric, a small one nestled in the cloth, a larger one extending welcoming arms.

Silber and Bricker are curators of "Keep Me Ever Warm: A Kaleidoscope of Quilts and Dolls," an exhibit and sale to benefit Kaleidoscope Kids (TM). The quilt described above will be shown at the event and become a permanent part of program at Henry Ford Health System.

"What could be more wonderful than dolls and quilts for children?" said Silber, who has presented quilt exhibits around the area.

"Keep Me Ever Warm" will take place Saturday-Wednesday, Sept. 16-20,

FINE ARTS

Designer from 1B

sponsored by the Athens Centre in Greece.

She currently is designing costumes for "Dial M for Murder" with Roddy McDowell opening at the Fisher Theater Sept. 29. But after all, she was voted "best dressed" at Redford Union High School.

One element remains the same in creating costumes whether it's for theater, dance or film-collaboration. Vida meets with the conceptual people of the production to find out what the director or choreographer wants to say. Then she researches the subject involved, ponders the psychology of the piece, and even dreams about it.

For the collective's performance of "Encounters," Vida dyed white knits, crepes and chiffons in plum, hot pink, turquoise and royal blue because the colors were unavailable in these fabrics.

"The colors depend on the music and choreography. Barbara likes to deal with going through tunnels and doors — mystery," said the 44-year-old Vida, whose mother taught her to sew and draft patterns.

"The costumes are going to be treated with professional stage lighting so I wanted primary and very hot colors. Dance is the one medium that's allowed me the opportunity a painter is allowed alone in his studio."

The brick walls of the Michigan Gallery create an intimate setting. Selinger's concept for "Encounters" is to have the audience interact with the dancers, to stand and move between the two spaces where the dance will be performed if they so choose. Harder's wide angle and close-up shots of dancers in rehearsal adds an ethereal element to the audience experience as Selinger reveals her feelings about the human condition.

"The dancers will be dancing with dancers, themselves and others, on the screen," said Selinger, who founded the collective in 1980 with co-artistic director Paula Kramer.

"The costumes are always important to every dance. In "Encounters," costume is used as a symbol of the ritual. The dance is very sculptural itself and at one point costumes are hung on the wall to become one of the pieces of art in the gallery."

Classes will satisfy your appetite for art

ARTISTIC EXPRESSIONS

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Japanese woodblock print, ancient Egyptian art, and parent and child pottery workshops are refreshing and intriguing appetizers in the standard fare of painting classes offered in Observerland this fall.

Arts council classes beginning Oct. 2 are structured for all ages from age 3 to senior citizens. Ancient Egyptian Art, where children learn to make their own hieroglyphics, build pyramids and wrap a mummy, is designed for ages 7-10.

"Ancient Egyptian art is humanities and art history in a fun way. We like to have the kids participate in culture through costume and dance, art and a little bit of song," said Mary Mack, director of art education for the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

The new PCAC building has enabled the arts council to expand its education program from six art classes last year to nearly 30 art, drama, and music offerings this fall.

The acquisition of the building also means classes will be held during all four seasons instead of just three.

Young Architects & Builders (ages 8-12) teaches students to design and build a small structure.

For the adults, there is pottery, painting, drawing, and sculpture studio. Sculptor Glen Allen, owner of the Cement Space gallery in Detroit, is heading up the design of the sculpture program.

Finally, there's even a class for the family. The Parent & Child Pottery Workshop for ages 4 and up provides a nurturing environment for parent and child to work and learn together to create works of pottery.

"It's a wonderful class for parents to have a wonderful time with their kids. Sometimes people bring two kids," Mack said.

Registration for PCAC classes began Sept. 1. Classes range in price from $45 to $75 and are offered days, nights and Saturdays.

■ Beginning Sept. 11, Schoolcraft College's continuing education services revives the ancient art of Japanese woodblock prints with an introductory class taught by Yoriko Cronin, a long-time resident of Livonia now living in Farmington Hills.

Students learn to carve images on plywood Cronin supplies from Japan. Then they will apply water soluble ink such as watercolor to create images on Japanese paper by rubbing with a baren. Along the way Cronin will relay her knowledge of Japanese culture, history and language.

"Japanese woodblock has over 200 years of tradition. It was started for math production but it eventually became a form of art where people started creating with emotion in the work," said Cronin whose prints can be seen at the Cary Gallery in Rochester.

Cronin has a master of fine arts degree from Wayne State University. Many of her own abstract prints are based on the water and river that runs by her parents home in Japan. But students can choose their own subject matter.

"For Japanese woodblock you don't use a printing press but a baren to get impression from the wood you carve on," said Cronin who was born in Japan.

"If you have a very simple form or idea you can do it in a day, and you can do it at home once you learn to do it."

Also, on the college's palette of classes are Portrait Painting, Ceramics, Calligraphy, Floral Design, Creative Framing, Watercolor, Chinese Brush Painting, Marketing Your Arts and Crafts, Interior Design, and Portrait Photography.

Walk-in registration continues through Sept. 7 at Schoolcraft College. Classes cost from $48 for the Basics of Quilting to $126 for Japanese Woodblock.

■ Among the usual, but always stimulating, classes scheduled at the Visual Arts Association of Livonia this fall are sketching with Linda Koons; watercolor, Bill Bordon; marbling, Susan Argiroff; monotypes, Lily Dudgeon; painting glass ornaments, Marge Masek; and collage, and creative approach to watercolor with Farmington Hills artist Edee Joppich.

To register for classes, or for more information, call VAAl (Marge Masek), (313) 464-6772, Plymouth Community Arts Council at (313) 416-4ART, Schoolcraft College continuing education services, (313) 462-4400.

Quilts from 1B

at the Henry Ford Village Retirement Community in Dearborn.

A fund-raising reception and quilt show preview Friday, Sept. 15 is the ninth annual Soiree of the Henry Ford Hospice Society.

On display

Sixty antique and contemporary quilts will be displayed at "Keep Me Ever Warm." Among them are works by famous quiltmakers; 25 quilts, all of which appeared on the cover of Quilter's Newsletter Magazine, now in its 25th year of publication; and winners of a Land's End ood Housekeeping contest. Also exhibited will be 36 fiber art dolls, including "The Figure in Cloth — A Celebration of the Doll," an invitational doll exhibit.

"We are most grateful to Bonnie Leman, editor-in-chief of Quilter's Newsletter Magazine, and to the generous makers of these selected cover quilts for graciously lending their works of art to this show."

The event will also feature Janet Myers' antique doll beds and quilts, demonstrations by the General Henry Dearborn Quilting Society and Stanley Dale of Florida, quilt sales, books, posters; tours of the facility, refreshments, and silent quilt auctions by area quilt guild members who made pieces especially for the benefit.

Myers and noted quilt historian Julie Silber will lecture. Merry Silber will give quilt appraisals and a walk-through of the quilt exhibit. Bricker will conduct a walk-through, "A Celebration of the Doll."

A raffle for an Irish chain quilt, circa 1850, donated by Merry Silber will take place at the close of "Keep Me Ever Warm" Sept. 20. Raffle tickets are $1 each, or six for $5. The quilt bears rows of colored squares that link to form a lively pattern.

Getting involved

Silber had just completed a show called "The Artist and the Quilt" when she was approached about "Keep Me Ever Warm."

"I thought 'I can never top this show. Maybe it's time to throw in the towel and play.'"

But "I couldn't say no. I just couldn't turn it down."

Everything fell into place as Silber gathered quilts from around the country for the event.

"I haven't had a single turndown," she said earlier.

"She's watching me — God wants this show."

Bricker called her about getting involved in the benefit. Two years ago in Farmington, Bricker and fellow artist Kath Lathers opened the Backdoor Gallery, which was devoted exclusively to non-traditional dolls.

"It's just been a wonderful partnership."

This competition will choose the two-dimensional art work to be used for promotional publications of the show. The winning artist will be awarded $700 for the use of the art work.

Subject matter is restricted to floral and garden themes and excludes photography. Paintings, watercolors and drawings are welcome. The deadline for entering is Friday, Sept. 15. Call Paul Little at (313) 998-7002 for a prospectus or more details.

Anyone wishing to exhibit or volunteer to work on this regional event should call the Matthaei Botanical Gardens at (313) 998-7002.

Jewish Ensemble Theatre opens its 1995-96 season with Norman Lessing's mystical comedy "36."

"The playwright suggests each of us needs to have faith in something. It has nothing to do with logic. We just need faith," said JET artistic director Evelyn Orbach who is directing the show.

In "36" three Chassids (very traditional ultra-Orthodox Jews), with very different personalities, journey from Brooklyn to Cincinnati searching for one of the 36 great, just men who are known to roam the earth.

■ PREVIEW

"God preserved the Earth because of these 36 righteous men," said Orbach. "When they find the guy who they believe is one of the 36, he turns out to be an electrician."

Broadway actor Sol Frieder portrays Nachman, the wise, old sage, and leader of the Chassidic trio. Robert Grossman, who most recently directed JET's production of "Golden Boy," is Mendel, hot-tempered, and bit of a curmudgeon. Daniel Kahn, who has appeared in four JET productions is Pitzik, unworldly, wide-eyed, trusting and very honest.

"It's fun," is how Orbach describes this play. Members in the cast agree.

"The play has a lot of contradictions and opposition — but it's all in good humor. I get the calling to search for one of the 36, and I bring along two sidekicks. It's a lot of fun. In the end, everyone is happy," said Frieder.

Grossman's character Mendel, could have been a veteran. He's had a rough time and is working hard to get a clearer vision of life.

"The story definitely parallels the Three Wise Men following the star," said Grossman. "But people need to know that this is a highly amusing play. There are a lot of laughs. It's quite whimsical. The specifics are meant to be taken light heartedly. The humor straddles Vaudeville and situation comedy."

For example, Kahn of Farmington Hills, who portays Pitzik, doesn't know what ping pong is. He doesn't know what a screwdriver is either.

"It is an interesting study of faith, Jewish culture and heritage," said Kahn. "It raises issues of faith, the Bible versus science, but there's a lot of good humor. I'm working with a terrific cast and director. Working with these people is a wonderful opportunity."

The cast also includes Robert Starko as Rabbi Manfred Dorfman, Jim Porterfield as Joe Walski and Cynthia Blaise as Mary.

Lessing has written over 300 TV dramas and a number of motion pictures, including "Bonanza."

DINING

Schoolcraft hosts 'feast of the season'

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

If you've always wondered what the food is like at the Golden Mushroom, Ristorante di Modesta, Water Club Seafood Grill, Joe Muer's Grill or the Michigan Star Clipper Train, you can find out Sunday, Sept. 17, at Schoolcraft College's "feast of the season," the fourth annual Culinary Extravaganza.

The event offers an opportunity to sample gourmet appetizers, entrees, desserts, and assorted beverages from more than 65 of metro Detroit's finest restaurants, including those listed above.

To wash it all down are assorted beverages provided by A.H.D. Vintners Ltd., Central Distributors of Beer, General Wine & Liquor Company, Good Time Party Store, Viviano Wine Importers and other distributors.

Area bakeries including Mary Denning's Cake Shoppe, Elite Sweets, Great Harvest Bread Company of Northville, and specialty food producers Proper English (Scone) Products and Mama Mucci's Pasta are also participating.

Tickets are $40 per person or $75 for two. Tickets may be purchased by calling the Schoolcraft College Institutional Advancement office at (313) 462-4417. Visa, MasterCard and personal checks will be accepted.

Try your luck and buy a raffle ticket to win two tickets to anywhere in the continental United States via Northwest Airlines (first prize); two Northwest Airlines tickets to Chicago and a weekend at the Whitehall (second prize); two tickets to a play at the Fisher Theatre (third prize); fine jewelry, valued at $500, from Orin Jewelers (fourth prize); or leather luggage (fifth prize). A $500 golf accessory package from Saturn of Plymouth will also be awarded at the event.

Raffle tickets are $5 each or three for $10, and will be available the day of the event. Every ticket is a winner because you can redeem it for $5 off any dinner entree at City Grill, Cozy Cafe, DePalma's, Joe Muer's Grill, Joe Muer Seafood, MacKinnon's, Old Mexico, Peacock Tandoori or Water Club Grill. The offer is valid Sunday through Thursday, and doesn't expire until Dec. 18.

Be sure to stop by the booths of these participating restaurants to sample their cuisine to decide at which restaurant you want to redeem your ticket. Or, you could buy nine raffle tickets, increase your odds of winning a prize, and get $5 off a dinner entree at all of the restaurants. If you're busy on Sept. 17, be sure to buy a raffle ticket so you don't miss out on the opportunity to win some great prizes and save money at popular metro Detroit restaurants.

Place a silent bid auction for the "Muer Dinner." Joe Muer, who is serving as honorary chairman of the event with Detroit Edison CEO John E. Lobbia, will bake a mouth-watering whole salmon in your kitchen. Accompanying side dishes are asparagus in mustard sauce and a mushroom creation. Schoolcraft's Master Chefs will prepare in advance a variety of hot and cold appetizers and a memorable dessert.

Retired television news reporter Jim Herrington of Farmington Hills will be your sommelier and butler for your dinner party for eight or 10 guests. Vintage wines have been selected and donated by Juliette and Ed Jonna, owners of the Merchant of Vino, to complement the meal. Channel 7's award-winning newscaster Cheryl Chodun will be your waitress.

Send bids in writing to Schoolcraft College along with your name, address and phone number. Bids should be marked to the attention of Ann King, Muer Dinner Silent Bid, Institutional Advancement Office, Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia, Mich. 48152-2696. All bids must be submitted by Sept. 13. Opening bid is $500. Call (313) 462-4417 for more information.

Win tickets to two sneak previews

Get out your pens and paper — enter our reader write-in movie contests. Send or fax entries to: Keely Wygonik, Entertainment Editor, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, Inc., 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150. To fax entries call, (313) 591-7279. Winners will be notified by phone.

■ Write and tell us about a relative who had a positive influence on your life (no names please), and share a funny story about that relative from the past to win two tickets to see "Unstrung Heroes" at the AMC Maple III Theatre in Bloomfield Hills 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 19. We will award tickets to the first 50 entries. Keep entries to 100 words or less. Deadline to enter is Monday, Sept. 11.

"Unstrung Heroes," opening at metro Detroit movie theaters on Friday, Sept. 22, is based on the memoirs of Franz Lidz. It is the story of Stephen (Nathan Watt), a young boy in New York during the 1960s who, in an effort to cope with an emotionally distant father (John Turturro) and his mother's (Andie MacDowell) illness, goes to live with his two wildy eccentric uncles (Michael Richards and Maury Chaykin). By moving into the funny, magical and sometimes painful world of this uncles, Stephen grows up and gains self-confidence.

■ Soccer players, coaches, and parents — write and tell us why your team needs a pick-me-up movie treat to win tickets to a 7 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 27 screening of "The Big Green" at the AMC Old Orchard Theatre in Farmington Hills. Two teams — first place and second place — will receive tickets for their team to the sneak preview of the film. The first prize team will also win additional prizes. Deadline to enter is Monday, Sept. 18.

Sports: Anna Montgomery uses soccer to encourage students in "The Big Green," Walt Disney Picture's comedy.

"The Big Green," opening at metro Detroit movie theaters on Friday, Sept. 29 is about a soccer team. With nothing to do, it's no wonder that the handful of kids in British school teacher Anna Montgomery's class in Elma, Texas, have given up on life before their lives have begun.

"Safe" (USA - 1995). 7, 9:30 p.m. Sept. 8-9; 4, 7 p.m. Sept. 10. "Newsweek" called it the "love-it-or-hate-it" movie of the Sundance Film Festival, the story of a upper-middle-class homemaker who begins to display strange symptoms of illness, though her doctors can find nothing wrong.

"Jupiter's Wife" (USA - 1995). 7 p.m. Sept. 11. A documentary look at Maggie Cogan, who is intelligent, articulate, and also homeless living in Central Park. The director does some detective work to discover the real story behind the fanciful life she describes in such detail.

■ MAGIC BAG THEATRE
22918 Woodward, Ferndale. Call (810) 544-3030 for information. ($4; $3 students/seniors)

"Bullet in the Head" (Hong Kong - 1990). 8 p.m. Sept. 7. Hong Kong action master John Woo calls this the favorite of all his films. It's easy to see why. Three Hong Kong friends embark for Vietnamto get their piece of the lucrative black market but end up battling gangsters, soldiers, and themselves.

"Beach Blanket Bingo" (USA - 1965). 8 p.m. Sept. 8. Perhaps the best-remembered of Frankie and Annette's odes to an endless summer, this one has parachuting, a young Linda Evans, and comedy bits by Buster Keaton.

"A Clockwork Orange" (USA - 1971). 8 p.m. Sept. 15. A newly struck print of Stanley Kubrick's futuristic tale about an oddly charismatic young thug (Malcolm McDowell) who has equal enthusiasm for violence as for the music of Beethoven. Controversial when released almost 25 years ago and still shocking today.

■ MAIN ART THEATRE

"Kids" (USA - 1995). An explosive first feature from director Larry Clark about a group of New York teenagers who indulge in every parent's nightmare: drinking, drugs, profanity, and unprotected sex. The year's most provocative movie, but also one of the toughest to watch.

"The Usual Suspects" (USA - 1995). Five guys who meet in a police lineup join for a simple heist. What happens next will keep you guessing in this cleverly scripted caper starring Gabriel Byrne, Kevin Spacey, and Chazz Palminteri.

"The Brothers McMullen" (USA - 1995). For what some people spend on a new car, Edward Burns made an engaging first feature about a young screenwriter and his two brothers in contemporary Long Island.

"Jeffrey" (USA - 1995). A gay actor/waiter living in New York vows celibacy in fear of contracting AIDS, but then meets the man of his dreams who just happens to be HIV-positive. "Star Trek's" Patrick Stewart recalls his stage actor origins in his turn as a flamboyant interior decorator. (Starts Friday).

Skinny Puppy keyboardist found dead of drug overdose

Dwayne Goettel, keyboardist of the industrial rock group Skinny Puppy, was found dead of an apparent heroin overdose Wednesday, Aug. 23, at his parents' home in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.

The 31-year-old Goettel and bandmate cEVIN Key had been in Canada since May 1994 working on the upcoming Skinny Puppy record tentatively titled "The Process." It will be the band's first album for American Recordings since signing with the label in October 1993. A spokeswoman for the label said the album, now in the mixing stage, is still scheduled for release in winter.

Skinny Puppy vocalist Ogre left the band several months ago due to "extreme internal band problems." In a statement released by American, Ogre related Goettel's death with the reality that sets in after kicking a drug problem.

"I am completely devastated with the loss and thoughts surrounding Dwayne at the time of his death. The loneliness and separation that comes when faced with the unbearable realization of addiction and the insurmountable pain from feeling after so much numbness can sometimes prove too much."

Ogre said he now wishes he could have stayed close with Goettel, who also performed in Hilt, The Tear Garden and the film score outfit Doubting Thomas.

"I left the band after internal problems eroded its core, and only wish I had been closer to this situation. I feel impotent now as Dwayne is gone. I had no chance to hold him and show him a different set of rules," said Ogre who went on to call him the "little-known genius behind the curtain of Skinny Puppy."

Ogre and Key formed Skinny Puppy in 1983 with Goettel joining the group three years later after a stint with the band Psyche. Skinny Puppy's first single "Dig It" (Nettwerk/Capitol) reached the top of the Rolling Stone/Rockpool charts. Known for their multi-media horror shows, Skinny Puppy went on to become an industrial/metal rock staple.

Gorgeous George — Edwyn Collins

Edwyn Collins' first U.S. release "Gorgeous George" (Bar None Records) could have been a wonderful album but his condescending statements about the current music scene cloud his talent.

The album kicks off with "The Campaign for Real Rock," an obvious slag on the European festival season. "Don't try so hard to be different/ The cracks are beginning to show/You drift like a cloud/Through the festival crowd," he sings about the audience. He later goes on to give his opinion on the acts: "The overrated hit the stage/Overpaid and over here/And their idea of counter-culture's/ Momma's charge account at Sears."

The acoustic "North of Heaven" begins as an ode to an estranged relationship then turns into a slam on Guns N' Roses (not to say that it's not well deserved): "Some mother's talking about Guns N' Roses/As if I give a . . . /At best I think they suck/I'm too preoccupied with my memories/ Not nonentities."

The words "Sold" "Out of This World" lay behind words to four of his songs. Doesn't submitting a song ("A Girl Like You") to a major motion picture soundtrack ("Empire Records") fall in that category? As for "repackaged, sold and sanitized," the single "A Girl Like You" sounds remarkably like a hybrid of Peter Murphy and David Bowie.

Many of the songs on "Gorgeous George" have potential ("Make Me Feel Again" and "If You Could Love Me") but they don't get a chance to shine amongst his complaints.

Edwyn Collins plays Industry, 15 S. Saginaw, Pontiac, on Wednesday, Sept. 13. For more information, call (810) 334-1999.

Opposite Day pokes fun at Texans

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Techno pop artist Kristi, who performs under the name Opposite Day, always wanted to make a career of music, and every day she's getting closer.

The University of Michigan graduate recently signed a demo deal with RCA Records, home to fellow Michiganders The Verve Pipe and Robert Bradley, and national acts such as Wanderlust and Hum.

"They're basically paying for me to do a new version of 'Billy Ray' and two other songs," she explained about her deal. After that, RCA will decide if they want to back the recording of a full-length CD.

The first version off her self-titled, self-produced debut CD didn't do too poorly. "Billy Ray" was a top request at WHYT (96.3 "The Planet") in the spring and is still spun at dance clubs like Club X and Lipstick's. The RCA artist and repertoire's knowledge of "Billy Ray" is what prompted Kristi to sign a deal with them.

"He was talking of 'Billy Ray,' and it was really cool. He caught this hidden thing. He's like, 'You're sitting here telling this story and everything is exactly the opposite of what you mean. You really hate it and think it's disgusting. It's Opposite Day.' I thought it was cool that he picked up on that," she said.

In the song, the Texas native pans Southern men with lines like "I love your boots/ and I love your truck/ and I love your cowboy hat/ and that Texas-shaped belt buckle/ I love when you smell like sweat, cow chips and hay/ so manly/ oh Billy Ray."

"I grew up in Texas, which is why I'm allowed to do things like 'Billy Ray,'" the frail, sandy-blonde haired musician said.

"It's a joke. It's basically just like making fun of this prototypical Southern man. . . . It's one of the few things left that you can make fun of still and still be correct. At the same time, it's like an ode to the Southern man."

On Opposite Day's debut album, Kristi shows her knack for writing hook-laden lyrics. Had she not signed a demo deal with RCA, "Sugar Assault" would have been the second single apparent. She sings "I must be such a freak/ I can swear at you in ancient Greek/ Or tell you all to die in cursive letters with a heart over the I" over a bed of staccato keyboard blips and pounding drum machines.

■ 'I have a couple of record companies talking to me. The upshot of it all is within the next few months I may be able to start working on a real album, as in like record company funded, instead of me taking the time and energy to do a second run of CD with my own money.'

Kristi
Opposite Day

Throughout the rest of the album, Kristi's little-girl voice takes the listener on a techno pop journey with "Cinderella at the disco ball" ("Starry Eyes"), an odd-paired couple ("Mr. Silence"), and through an oceanside vacation ("Beach Umbrella"). On "Don't Talk to Strangers" Kristi dabbles in rap while singing "Boys go to Jupiter/ Get more stupider/ Girls go to Mars/ To get more candy bars/ Then they go to Venus/ I won't say why but/ Everybody finds their own place in the sky."

Techno pop is a relatively new avenue for Kristi to follow. A classical music fan most of her life, Kristi entered the University of Michigan in 1991 to study oboe.

"Until college I really thought it was just classical all the way. Then in college it just started shifting. It became more interesting to do the pop songwriting as opposed to the classical composing." She cites among her influences Erasure, Depeche Mode, New Order, St. Etienne, Opus 3 and Kristy Thirsk of Delerium and the Rose Chronicles.

"I've been writing songs since I was 5, but I never made the connection between the keyboard and song. I was never really clued into what techno dance music was and what it could do until college."

Ironically it was her oboe professor who helped her get her music heard.

"My oboe professor had a kid who went to school with the daughter of one of the engineers at WHYT. He said, 'I can give this to (my son) and he can give it to his friend at school.' I thought, 'That's cool. If that works that'll be a great story to tell people.' He did and a few days later I got this call from the station and he said he was interested in playing my song on the 'Industrial Revolution,'" Kristi said.

The song took on momentum of its own and was soon added to regular rotation. She wasn't prepared for that.

"I kind of wish they had called me three weeks before and said, 'We're thinking about playing your song more.' It was out of the blue. It happened and I thought, 'Wait. I'm not prepared. I don't have the CD in stores,'" she said with a giggle.

After selling more than 400 copies of her album through mail orders, Kristi put off printing a second run of CDs and instead put the remainder of her CDs in stores like Harmony House and Tower Records. They sold out quickly.

When the RCA deal came along, she nixed releasing a second single and is instead concentrating on her current projects.

"I have a couple of record companies talking to me. The upshot of it all is within the next few months I may be able to start working on a real album, as in like record company funded, instead of me taking the time and energy to do a second run of CD with my own money," she said with her trademark giggle.

Is she excited about her musical future? With a squeal she said, "Yeah I am. But I feel like I'm really up in the air. I want all this settled. I've always wanted to be able to make a living just writing music. I'm getting closer every day."

Opposite Day can be reached by writing P.O. Box 130643, Ann Arbor, MI 48113.

British band hopes to break U.S. jinx

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

English bands like Blur, London Suede, Manic Street Preachers and Take That, while experiencing success in their home country, have had trouble replicating their good fortune in the United States. Supergrass, England's newest addition to the U.S. music scene, is baffled by the jinx but hopes to avoid it.

"Certainly, lots of American bands have made it in England. I don't know why it doesn't work the other way around. I don't know if they're not into the English sound, or they've got something against it or they're just nationalistic," said 25-year-old bassist Mickey Quinn.

"We just want to play our music to everybody. We listen to everybody. We don't make distinctions about where the bands come from. If it's good, then it's good."

So far, Supergrass's career looks promising here. The first single "Caught By The Fuzz" from their debut album "I Should Coco" (Capitol) is getting airplay across the dial — without the fashion angle that's played out in the infamously scandlous British tabloids.

"The papers," as Quinn calls them, have already lumped Supergrass's quirky, no-holds-barred musical style in with the glam, Brit pop, and new modern fashion categories pitting them against Blur, Menswear and London Suede.

"Me, personally, I've never gotten into music through fashions. . . . When fashions change, we won't change. We don't seem to fit in, really. We just happen to be one of the English bands."

The closest the band has come to making any kind of fashion statement is the rumor that circulated in the tabloids about 19-year-old singer Gaz Coombes and Calvin Klein.

"According to the tabloids, Gaz got offered loads of money to do underpants ads and he turned it down. I don't even know if he got offered that. That was supposedly a couple of months ago, but it's now being publicized in the tabloids. Why people are interested in that is just so stupid," Quinn explained.

Coombes and 21-year-old drummer Danny Goffey formed Supergrass after their shoegazer band The Jennifers hit the skids. Quinn joined on after catching their set at an Oxford, England, hall.

"The only lighting they had was two strobes, which were on throughout the show. They played stuff like Dinosaur Jr. covers, and Danny was doing all these crap drum rolls," Quinn said.

Producer Sam Williams saw the band and persuaded them to go into the studio with him. The result was a six-track demo featuring Supergrass's fuzzy guitar single "Caught By The Fuzz." The song made its way from a locally released "very-limited-edition" single to a mass marketed effort on Parlophone Records.

Cut to the recently released "I Should Coco," which Quinn calls a reflection of their live shows.

"It's better than being dead," Quinn said.

Apologetically, he adds, "That was a terrible one. I'm sorry. It won't happen again."

Seriously, he said, their album feeds on Supergrass's '70s-influenced rock with a little piano thrown in for good measure. (Although the happy "We're Not Supposed To" seems to be helium-influenced.) Quinn said live they take the music a step farther and rock out.

"People say that the album's really hard and really fast. Our live shows are a lot harder, faster and more sweaty basically. It blows the album up a bit."

In England, their shows have turned into a screamfest filled with teenage girls who dream of a life with one of the three.

"A third of the audience is 14-year-old kids, which is fair enough but they're not hugely discerning music fans. It's not bad for me because I'm the ugly one in the band. It's pretty odd walking down the street and getting recognized. I tend not to notice, especially when I'm walking around with my girlfriend. When we get home she tells me that loads of people recognized me but I didn't even notice. I'm in my own little world."

To Quinn, the temporary anonymity that Supergrass experiences in the United States is a good thing.

"They're like the old audiences before we made it quite big here," he said via telephone an English studio. "We had sort of serious people coming to gigs not the sort of teenage girls and stuff. We sort of got a bit of that in America playing small venues again. They just come to see live music. They're not going with fashion or anything. They think we're a good band."

Supergrass and Triple Fast Action perform Tuesday, Sept. 12, at St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit. Doors open at 7:30 p.m. for the all-ages show. Tickets are $6 in advance. For more information, call (313) 961-MELT.

Empty gig, good show: The last Detroit visit by English teen heart-throbs Supergrass — from left, drummer Mickey Quinn, drummer Danny Goffey and singer/guitarist/pianist Gaz Coombes — was in front of a sparse crowd at The Shelter. Before that show, they peaked in St. Andrew's Hall and "cursed" themselves for not being able to play upstairs. Now they will on Tuesday, Sept. 12.

Onced asked in an interview to give his impression of Detroit's 1950s jazz scene, Miles Davis simply responded, "It was a real hip city for music."

Much of Davis' experience in the Motor City was informed by his view from the Blue Bird's circular bandstand, the stage where Miles first landed in 1949 as a guest soloist in Billy Mitchell's band.

After logging many Blue Bird performances in the years between, Davis returned to the Blue Bird in 1957 to introduce Detroit audiences to the quintet featuring John Coltrane, Bill Evans, "Philly" Joe Jones and Paul Chambers who went on to astound jazz lovers worldwide.

Fortunately for many jazz fans, the same stage and pristinely kept and slightly elevated blue vinyl booths that once faced Davis, as well as such greats as Charlie Parker, Billie Holiday and Jimmy Smith, have survived at the Blue Bird Inn.

Thanks to some cajoling on the part of the Blue Bird's present musical director, Carl Hill, the self-described impresario who convinced Mary Eddins to carry on as the club's owner following the death of her husband and partner Clarence Eddins four years ago, the Blue Bird's resonating, airy room, along with its welcoming ambiance have survived.

For the last seven months, the Blue Bird has been presenting Detroit's Jerome Perry Quartet, enhanced by numerous area musicians who regularly sit in on the group's Saturday night and Sunday matinee performances. Hill also hopes to accelerate the club's comeback and eventually present live music throughout the week.

Jazz organist Jimmy Smith who is appearing there Sept. 15-17, last appeared at the Blue Bird 29 years ago. He will be performing with Jimmy Jackson (drums), and Terry Evans (guitar). Hill predicts his return and appeal to a vast audience will serve to spread the word that the club is open for business on a regular basis.

While Hill's role as the club's impresario is a relatively new one, the longtime jazz fan's association with the historic room, first established in 1926, according to Hill, is not. He remembers standing on a milk crate outside the window of the Blue Bird as a teenager, straining to witness one of Billie Holiday's Blue Bird performances. Throughout the early 1940s, his oldest brother Phil Hill played keyboards in the Blue Bird's house band.

When Clarence and Mary Eddins ended up with the club in 1953 and remodeled it into its present state, Hill still had to wait outside.

On a recent Sunday, the music began with the Jerome Perry Quartet, featuring Jerome Perry (sax), Glynn Oliver (bass), Ron Jackson (drums), and Alma Smith (keyboards), substituting for the band's regular keyboard player Dan David.

Jazzy: Richard Lozon, alto sax, sits in with the Jerome Perry Quartet at the Blue Bird Inn.

Increasingly augmented by vibes, additional horns and vocals as the afternoon wore on, the group's renditions of today's jazz standards, perhaps first performed in Detroit by their now legendary makers at the Blue Bird, became full-blown improvisational jazz orchestrations that instantly translated Davis' impression of Detroit's jazz past to its present.

Walking into the living room of Joshua Bergasse's family home in Oak Park it's easy to see how dancing is an integral part of the young man's life. Theatrical ceramic masks, dance posters, and movie stills from Hollywood musicals fill the walls along with family photos.

The 22-year-old is making his professional stage debut as Baby John, a member of the Jets, in "West Side Story," at the Fisher Theatre. The Fisher is the opening stop in a yearlong tour that will take the production throughout the United States, Canada and Japan. Broadway remains a possibility.

When the tour finishes, it will be just short of the 40th anniversary of "West Side Story," a modern re-telling of the Romeo and Juliet story. The show is considered a landmark musical for its gritty realism, which focuses on New York street gangs, and for its total integration of dancing into the story line through the Jerome Robbins choreography.

"This production will have everything exactly as it was in the original," said Bergasse, "right down to every chorus member standing in the same spot as 40 years ago."

He does not consider the show at all dated. "When it comes to prejudice, we haven't come very far in the last 400 years. Two people from very different cultures still can't love each other without family prejudices getting in the way."

For him, family was a positive force that helped shape his career. Bergasse began dance lessons at age four with his mother, Annette, owner and director of Annette & Co. dance studio in Farmington Hills. He has been an instructor at the school since he was 17, teaching tap, jazz, and "street funk" to students ages four to 50. Now his younger brother, Mark is teaching at the studio. "It is a real family business. We all take pride in the studio, and it has brought us all happiness."

The 1991 Berkley High grad won dance scholarships to Los Angeles and New York. While in Los Angeles he did some work as a movie extra and was chosen as a dancer for the film "I'll Do Anything." All four of the film's musical numbers landed on the cutting room floor, however.

Bergasse said he believes his dance training also taught him how to act, "because the movements express character." In addition, his mother has always dealt a lot with musical theater through the studio's recitals and anniversary shows. She is currently doing the choreography for a Michigan Opera Theatre Broadway-type review.

Though he plans to return to college himself some time, right now Joshua doesn't know what he will be doing in a year or two. "I'd like to continue in productions of this caliber," he said. "I know if I were in college now I wouldn't be as happy as with what I'm doing."

Athletic directors resurrect merger talks once again

It must be the business climate of the 1990s.

In this era of mega-mergers, Disney buys out Capital Cities, Chase Manhattan and Chemical banks join forces, and could Time Warner's bid for Turner Broadcasting be far behind?

As fast as you can say Kirk Kerkorian, even our little old Western Lakes Activities Association is under pressure.

Principals from the 12-school WLAA will meet Monday for their monthly meeting. The talk will again resort to a leveraged buyout.

It seems the Kensington Valley Conference athletic directors and the ADs from the WLAA had more than a three-martini lunch when they met last June.

Something strong must have been mixed in those drinks because the mega-merger talks between the KVC and WLAA, considered dead at this time a year ago, appear to be alive and well.

After the merger talks subsided last year, a few ADs from the KVC privately fumed, while others went to lengths to freeze out certain WLAA schools when it came to non-league scheduling.

Their aim was directed squarely at Kenneth Watson, superintendent of the Livonia Public Schools, I presume.

Lone holdout

Watson, and rightfully so, has reservations about the so-called Big Valley, a 19-school conglomeration which would stretch from Westland John Glenn to Howell.

Transportation costs appeared to be the biggest concern. Safety for spectators, especially high school-age students driving late at night in the dead of winter, on the icy back roads of Milford, was another concern.

And how many parents want to creep along I-96 during rush hour to make a 5:30 p.m. JV basketball start?

Watson stood his ground, but it didn't sit well with the KVC. It didn't even sit well one school in his own league (you've heard of Northville).

It appears the ADs from the WLAA pulled a Boris Yeltsin, kissing and making up with KVC guys.

Phrases such as "burying the hatchet" and "patching things up" have been tossed around like stock quotes.

It appears some WLAA ADs are in the sell mode right now, selling out their own principals for the sake of easier scheduling.

The evidence falls right into Judge Ito's lap after the WLAA ADs drafted a joint letter proposing that the merger talks resume.

We all know that the major reason that fuels these mega-league mergers is convenience for scheduling. Anyway, who cares about what the students and fans think? We all want it to be a better educational experience, right?

The other driving force is aligning schools by performance level. The athletic programs that excel would all get together, the mediocre ones fall into another category, while the third division is for the Class A underachievers.

Although Farmington Hills Harrison has the best performance record in football during the past 20 years, its enrollment ranks the lowest under a KVC-WLAA consortium. That means Northville could duck out of Harrison's division and play somebody else, perhaps against teams with one hand tied behind their back.

Exclusion problem

My advice to the WLAA principals on Monday is watch for the big yellow sign — proceed with caution.

The "exclusion factor" is the biggest concern.

All you have to do is take a look at the downriver Mega Conference, which had to call 1-800-SAM to fight a civil rights complaint when certain schools with higher minority enrollments were left watching from the sideline.

And when Ann Arbor Pioneer, Ann Arbor Huron and Ypsilanti come sniffing around, the KVC won't be able to rely on a good old country lawyer to solve its legal problems.

New WLAA president Mike Fenchel, Livonia Franklin's principal, may feel like he's at the UN instead of Wall Street. He has the task of overseeing and steering the discussion. And right now there are many opinions and agendas.

"We have to reach an understanding ourselves in the Western Lakes," Fenchel said of his fellow members. "There have been some hard feelings we've had to iron and smooth out with the KVC. We'll explore all possibilities about a new league, and continue to pursue cross-scheduling. Right now it's too early to tell. I'd say there's some hesitation about going ahead."

The WLAA constitution does not have language in its by-laws to vote on a merger. The WLAA must dissolve before reorganizing.

Sounds like stuff Kirk Kevorkian (?), or Jack Kerkorian (?), could sink his teeth into.

Whatever, this kind of business tactic should die a fast death.

1st meeting between Madonna, Schoolcraft ends in a tie

■ The new versus the old . . . or young against the old. However you want to measure it, whatever you want to call it, the bottom line is this: a game between rivals is always emotionally-packed, and usually more physical.

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

Outsiders could argue, quite convincingly among themselves, that there was no good reason to play this game.

What could Madonna University, a program in its infancy (translated, that means second season), gain by playing a community college soccer powerhouse? And why would a team like Schoolcraft College want to play a team searching for an identity?

The answer both coaches would have supplied prior to Wednesday's match was "competition." In other words, the only way to be the best is to play the best.

When the two in-town collegiate rivals collided yesterday, no answers were found but several questions were created. To satisfy the local sports historians, let us note the final score — a 2-2 draw, in a match originally scheduled to be played at Madonna's home field but instead hosted by SC.

The Ocelots (now 1-0-1) broke on top, scoring in the opening 10 minutes on a play that was typical of the way the game would go. A shot deflected off a Madonna defender to SC's Wojtek Radz (from Farmington), and he booted it in to give the Ocelots a 1-0 lead.

Madonna tied it 28 minutes into the opening half on a play just as dependent on the bounce of the ball. John Courval (Redford Thurston) lined a corner kick just past the near post; the ball hit an SC defender and bounded into the net.

Crusader coach Pete Alexander was not at all pleased with his team's first-half performance. "I thought we played flat," he said. "We didn't seem to have any intensity. They knew what kind of game this was, what was at stake. They should be playing this with a lot more pride.

"Instead, they came out lethargic. We talked about that at halftime and I think they came out stronger in the second half."

Still, it wasn't enough to give Madonna the victory — even after SC lost one of its better defenders, Eric Stoecklein (Plymouth Canton), with a second yellow card, forcing the Ocelots to play short one man.

Madonna did take the lead, on a penalty kick converted by Scott Emert after Mark Garrett was hauled down in the penalty area. But the Crusaders couldn't protect their lead; SC's Nasser Salame was fouled inside the Madonna penalty area, awarding the Ocelots a penalty kick. Mo Hijazi converted it, retying the game at 2-2.

"That was one of the ugliest games I've ever seen," said SC coach Van Dimitriou. "This turned out to be a grudge match, and I hate those kind of games. This is one I'm happy just to get a 2-2 tie."

Flint Northern denies Reese, Borgess, 58-46

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

It looks like there will be no mythical state championship for the Redford Bishop Borgess girls basketball team.

Flint Northern put a dent in Borgess' hopes, defeating the Spartans, 58-46, in a matchup of the state's top two teams Tuesday night in Flint.

Northern is the defending Class A champion and Borgess is the two-time defending Class C state champion. Since the two play in different classes, they can't meet in the state tournament.

With everyone back from last year's team, including 6-foot-4 sophomore center Tawana McDonald and 5-10 junior guard Deana Nolan, Northern is expected to repeat in Class A. The Spartans are overwhelming favorites in Class C and they were hoping to stake a claim as the top team, regardless of class, with a victory over Northern.

At least the Spartans didn't go down without a fight. The two teams played to a standoff after Northern jumped to a 16-3 lead in the first six minutes of the game.

"We talked about playing good, intense defense from beginning to end," Northern coach Leteia Hughley said. "I saw them (the Spartans) play in the state (Class C championship) game and to me they don't play like a Class C school. They're Class A caliber. They're a good team and deserve the publicity. I'm definitely encouraged and the girls feel good about the win."

Borgess senior guard Maxann Reese, the leading Miss Basketball candidate, went scoreless in the first and fourth quarters and was held to 12 points on five of 18 shooting.

Senior point guard Adriane Bryant helped the Spartans stay close, scoring 11 of her team-high 14 points in the second half.

"I'm just mad because I know I can play better," Reese said. "People in the crowd said I'm overrated, but I didn't get there by a fluke. Of all the games we play, I choose to play like crap in this one."

Northern used fresh players against Reese throughout the game, starting with sophomore guard Clarissa Elam. Senior Taleesha Hardy and Nolan also got cracks at Reese.

"We tried to wear her down, when someone got tired, we put someone else on her," Hughley said.

McDonald, who set a Class A state championship record with 11 blocks in the final, had several blocks and led the Vikings with 15 rebounds. She also was one of three Vikings in double figures in points with 12. Senior forward Sheree Bates, no slouch herself in the low post, had a game-high 16 points, Hardy added 10, junior LaShawn Grays nine and Nolan seven.

Borgess coach Dave Mann decided to give 5-8 junior Regina Respert the job of guarding McDonald to start the game in order to save some of the taller Spartans from early foul trouble.

Respert did a respectable job, but Bates hurt the Spartans early with eight first-quarter points, including six straight in a 10-0 run.

"The biggest problem with defending them is they're all good," Mann said. "We just got our butts kicked in the first quarter. I thought we were hyperactive, which has sometimes been our problem in big games."

The Spartans switched from a man-to-man defense to a 1-3-1 zone after the first quarter, a move which helped limit Northern's chances at second shots.

Northern had a 9-5 rebounding edge in the first quarter, but the two teams finished with 33 rebounds each. Junior center Candice Finley led the Spartans with 10.

Borgess shot a miserable percent (six-for-31) from the field in the first half as Northern jumped to a 26-15 halftime lead.

Northern led 36-21 midway through the third quarter before the Spartans went on an 11-1 run to cut the lead to 37-32 after three quarters. Koren Merchant started the spurt with a three-point play, Reese made a pair of three-point shots and Bryant had a driving layup to give the Spartans hope.

But Northern started the fourth quarter with an 8-0 run to build a 45-32 lead.

Hot-shot prognosticator jumps to early advantage over defending champion

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

The high school football season is only a week old, and already the champ is in trouble.

Brad Emons landed some quick, hard hits in the first round (of games), and the reigning king of picks, Dan O'Meara, was sent staggering into the ropes.

Emons picked the winners in 14 of 16 games; O'Meara, who went down along with Wayne, Howell, Ecorse and Harrison, opened with an 11-5 mark.

Can Danny O. come back as this heavyweight bout we call a prediction contest unfolds over the next eight weeks?

Will Emons deliver an early knockout after setting up his opponent for the coup de grace?

Can Danny O. emulate another champ and use the ropes effectively to stay in the game until the time is right for a counter move?

Stay tuned for future installments of this annual duel. Here's the scoop on Round 2:

FRIDAY GAMES
(all times 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Redford Union at Edsel Ford, 3:30: Both teams were blanked in their season debuts, RU losing to Livonia Stevenson 27-0 and Temperance Bedford routing Edsel 30-0. So it looks like this Mega White opener could be another close one. The T'birds were one of two teams the Panthers beat last year, 23-20. Both were 2-7 last year, with Edsel's wins coming near the end as opposed to early for RU. PICKS: The T'birds are no Edsels.

Borgess at Camden-Frontier, 7: The Spartans, following a winless '94 season, were a major surprise last week. Quarterback Richard Paige and running back Kevin Jordan had big games as Borgess opened with a 28-0 rout of Ecorse. Camden-Frontier lost 14-12 to Britton-Deerfield. St. Agatha beat the Redskins 34-7 last year. PICKS: Borgess made a believer of O'Meara, but Emons switches and takes Camden-Frontier.

Farmington at Liv. Churchill: The Falcons had high hopes for 1995 and still do, but they need to come back with a victory this week if they plan to reach their goals. Waterford Mott capitalized on a host of Farmington mistakes to take a 28-13 victory. Churchill's only victory in recent years was over the Falcons two years ago. PICKS: Farmington gets back on track.

GRID PICKS

Westland Glenn at W.L. Western: After an 0-2 start last year, the Rockets are back where they usually are (1-0) following a 24-6 win over Howell. But Glenn had to come from behind in the second half to erase a 7-3 deficit. The Warriors were surprise winners in their opener, beating favored Novi 17-7. PICKS: Glenn lost the '92 Western Lakes championship to Western but wins the rematch.

Ply. Salem at Northville: Ouch! Both teams gave up 42 points last week in a pair of tough openers against state-ranked opponents. Salem lost to Class AA power Belleville; South Lyon, the No. 1 team in Class A, saddled the Mustangs with a 42-14 defeat. This game should be a much more even contest. PICKS: Aneil Kersey keys a Northville victory.

W.L. Central at Ply. Canton: The Chiefs had the tougher first game, losing again (35-14) to perennial nemesis and Mega Red favorite Monroe. But the Vikings have the W after beating Milford 25-15. Skill players like quarterback Rob Johnson and end Ron Hunter could be the difference for Canton. PICKS: The Chiefs are on the warpath.

Dearborn at Garden City: Mega-Red favorite Dearborn opened with a 35-0 win over Churchill and could be headed for the playoffs with Kevin Kreger back at quarterback. The Cougars, who try to recover from a 29-7 loss to Mega-Blue contender Crestwood, gave the Pioneers a battle last year before falling 16-7. PICKS: Garden City won't find Dearborn endearing.

Red. Thurston at Crestwood: The Eagles faced last year's Class B runner-up (Country Day) and it doesn't necessarily get easier this week. Veteran tailback Mike Kaczmarczyk had a big game as Crestwood beat Garden City while Thurston absorbed a 42-8 shellacking from DCD. The Eagles took the Chargers to overtime last year, winning 19-16 during a 6-3 season. PICKS: Crestwood gets revenge.

Wayne at Lincoln Park: Warren Mott isn't Adrian, but Lincoln Park is 1-0 while the Zebras are 0-1 going into this Mega Red opener. The Railsplitters ripped Mott 33-0 while Class A power Adrian downed Wayne 28-18. The Zebras won this game 34-6 last year. PICKS: O'Meara maintains faith in the Zebras; Emons likes Lincoln Park.

Redford CC at A.A. Pioneer: The Shamrocks are highly ranked in Class AA, and this game will tell us if they belong there. CC beat Toledo Central Catholic in grind-it-out fashion Saturday, but Pioneer's victory might have been more impressive. The Pioneers beat perennial Class A power East Lansing 27-14. CC won 7-0 last year, but both went on to have below-standard seasons. PICKS: An upset? Sorta, as the Pioneers prevail, predicts O'Meara. Emons says he can see-see a victory from CC.

SATURDAY GAMES
(all times 1 p.m. unless noted)

Liv. Stevenson at Liv. Franklin: Once again, the Patriots face Stevenson on back-to-back weekends, although last week it was Sterling Heights Stevenson. The state-ranked Titans won 21-7, and it looks as if their Livonia namesake might be just as formidable as last year when the Spartans beat Franklin 36-15. PICKS: Adial gets the vote.

N. Farmington at F.H. Harrison: This will be the first meeting between these teams since the WLAA championship game of '91. Harrison was supposed to be unbeatable that year (and ultimately was, with a 13-0 record), but North gave the Hawks their toughest game. The Raiders took Harrison to overtime, but the Hawks eked out a win. North (1-0) defeated West Bloomfield 20-7 last week, and Harrison (0-1) played well but lost to Brother Rice, 16-14. PICKS: The Hawks start a new winning streak.

Clarenceville at B.H. Cranbrook: Cranbrook is picked to finish third in the Metro Conference but had an inauspicious start. The Cranes lost 29-0 in Detroit Renaissance's first football game in school history. The Trojans fared no better, although they lost to a good St. Agatha squad, 24-6. Cranbrook won 20-19 over Clarenceville last year, and it appears another close game is in order. PICKS: The Trojans turn things around.

Luth. Westland at Lutheran NW: Catholic League teams were hard on these Metro members. St. Alphonsus beat Lutheran Westland 35-12, and Royal Oak Shrine drilled Northwest 40-8. Northwest was a 20-15 winner over the Warriors a year ago, but the Crusaders finished 3-6 overall and Westland 4-5. PICKS: The Warriors are better Lutherans, on the football field.

St. Agatha at Pickford, 7:30: The Aggies (1-0) are going on the road, and they'll see a lot of it, too! St. Agatha is going all the way to the eastern U.P. to play the Pickford Panthers and plan to make it an overnight trip. The first week went well for state-ranked St. Agatha, beating Clarenceville. Class D Pickford was 2-6 last year and lost 32-0 to Rapid River last week. The Panthers are led by backs Ross Kennerly and Casey Blenkhorn. PICKS: The Aggies bring home a victory.

CC wins; Warriors falter

Redford Catholic Central took care of business in its season football opener Saturday at the Pontiac Silverdome.

The Shamrocks opened their 1995 campaign with a workmanlike 19-6 victory in the Kickoff Classic over Toledo Central Catholic.

Redford CC took advantage of four Toledo CC turnovers to earn the victory.

Eron Kosmowski got CC rolling with 4:03 left in the opening quarter on a 30-yard field goal.

With 8:07 left in the second period, sophomore Kevin Thomas returned a punt 55 yards for a touchdown.

Kosmowski's extra point attempt sailed wide, but he added his second field goal of the game, a 43-yarder, with only two seconds remaining in the half for a 12-0 Shamrocks' lead.

With 7:18 left in the third quarter, senior fullback John Spolsky capped a 65-yard, nine-play drive with a 1-yard TD run. Kosmowski's extra point made it 19-0.

Toledo CC averted the shutout in the final minute when Boe Washington connected with Phil Larkin on a 29-yard scoring pass.

ROUNDUP

Washington was six of 10 passing for 68 yards, but was picked off twice, one each by Judah May and Tom Valenti.

Spolsky, who plays nose tackle, and Chuck O'Connor, a defensive end, each recovered fumbles.

Junior linebacker Milam Brooks led Redford CC in tackles with five unassisted and four assists. O'Connor was in on eight tackles, while defensive tackle Nick Lachapelle added six.

Offensively, Redford CC held a slight edge in total yardage, 208-203.

The Shamrocks rushed for 190 yards, led by Greg Alcala's 87 yards in 13 carries. Spolsky added 66 yards in 11 attempts.

Junior quarterback Greg Call hit one of nine passes for 18 yards, but was not intercepted.

■ ST. ALPHONSUS 35, LUTH. WESTLAND 12: Scott Wiemer's debut at Lutheran High Westland was spoiled by the running of Dearborn St. Alphonsus' Gino Williams.

The senior tailback, who came into the season with just over 3,000 career yards, gained 220 yards on 14 carries Saturday, propelling the host Arrows to the season-opening triumph in a nonleaguer played at Detroit Lutheran West.

Williams scored on runs of 74 and 53 yards.

"He (Williams) was fast and was able to cut back against the grain well," Wiemer said. "We did not tackle well and our linebackers did not step up and make the plays on him. You give him a seam, and he takes off."

Quarterback Joe Wichowski also threw a pair of touchdown passes to Mike Hull, covering 35 and 32 yards.

Lutheran Westland trailed 14-12 midway through third quarter after Kris Skov hit Scott Lee with an 18-yard TD pass.

But Alphonsus, which racked up 350 total yards to the Warriors' 172, scored 21 unanswered points to gain the victory.

Mat Baltz scored Lutheran Westland's other TD in the opening quarter on a 4-yard run.

Albert Cook rushed for 70 of the Warriors' 118 yards. He carried 18 times. Lee had three receptions for 54 yards.

Defensively, Baltz recovered two fumbles, while Cook had one.

Junior safety Kevin Wade led Lutheran Westland in tackles with two solos and five assists.

"Give St. Alphonsus credit; they outhit us and outplayed us," Wiemer said. "We looked good and we were competitive in our preseason scrimmage, but this game we were in a daze."

The Warriors return to action Saturday at home against rival Rochester Hills Lutheran Northwest. Game time is 1 p.m.

Other area schools scheduled to compete include Livonia Churchill, Livonia Franklin, Walled Lake Central, Redford Union and Northville.

Dimitriou encouraged after Ocelots' 1-0 triumph

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

■ COLLEGES

Three scrimmages and a match. Two wins (one coming in the one that counted) and two losses.

This may not be a season packed with victories for Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team over competition of a lesser caliber. But coach Van Dimitriou figures his team will get its share of wins, and should retain its stranglehold over the NJCAA Region 12 competition it has crushed for most of the last decade.

Still, the Ocelots' stay at the top of the region standings will be challenged more aggressively, if not this year then in the very near future. Chris Corteg, the former coach of Eastern Michigan University's men's team, has succeeded Mick Lakatos as Macomb CC's coach. Lakatos resigned after 29 years.

Corteg may not be able to field a team this season capable of upsetting SC. But in the years to come . . .

The additional competition should be welcomed by the Ocelots, who throughout Van Dimitriou's 13-year tenure as coach have ruled the region only to fail to get past the NJCAA's Inter-regional Tournament. The four-team Inter-regional, pitting regional champions against one another (the winner qualifying for the NJCAA Tournament), has been captured by SC just once.

A tougher non-region schedule should help rectify that this season. How much tougher?

The first real match, against NJCAA competition, was played Saturday when Forest Park (St. Louis) CC visited — and suffered a 1-0 loss to SC.

The only goal was scored in the game's 30th minute, when Mo Hijazi took a pass from Victor Rodopolous, a Livonia Franklin graduate who transferred from Central Michigan. Hijazi beat two defenders and the Forest Park keeper before tucking the ball into the corner.

"I was very pleased with the result," said Dimitriou. "The guys are finally starting to mold, to take shape."

Getting into playing shape is what the early-season schedule was designed for. The Ocelots realized it when they faced Michigan State in a scrimmage in East Lansing Aug. 26 — and got trounced, 6-1.

"Well," said Dimitriou, searching for a bright spot, "they helped get us into shape."

Which may have been a bit more important than one might think. As Dimitriou explained further, "It was the first time we had all 11 starters on the field at the same time."

Another question was answered in that scrimmage and one played two days later at home, when SC hosted Calvin College. The Ocelots pounded the Saints, 4-1.

Hijazi, the team's leading returning scorer from last season, answered the question Who will replace Fadi Bazzi, last year's scoring machine? by netting all four goals. Hijazi also scored the goal against MSU — which means he has accounted for all five Ocelot goals. Rodopolous had an assist.

"He's more of a thinker, more of a creator (than Bazzi)," said Dimitriou of Hijazi.

The team's final scrimmage, a 1-0 loss played two days later (Aug. 30) at Spring Arbor, was a poor performance Dimitriou attributed to sore muscles and a team still trying to work its way into condition. By Saturday's match with Forest Park, those early-season wounds were nearly healed.

Dimitriou was pleased with the defensive play of sweeper Dave Binkiewicz (Franklin), stopper Eric Stoecklein and marking defender Joe Sisco (both from Plymouth Canton).

CC captures 3rd in row

■ PREPS

Goalkeeper Travis Miller kept his scoreless streak intact Tuesday, posting the shutout as Redford Catholic Central turned back University of Detroit-Jesuit in a boys soccer match, 2-0.

CC, which improved its overall season record to 3-0, tallied both goals in the opening half.

Mike Martin broke through at the 33-minute mark with Tom Derhake getting the assist.

Three minutes later, Shawn Kahenec scored from Martin.

"We played well and U-D is a good team, they tied both (Birmingham) Brother Rice and (Warren) DeLaSalle," CC coach Phil LaJoy said. "It was a good team effort, we moved the ball well."

Madonna 1-1 in tourney; Hazinski defensive star

In a topsy-turvy weekend, Madonna University's soccer team learned a valuable lesson Saturday, losing 3-1 to Aquinas College at the Cornerstone Tournament in Grand Rapids.

"We outplayed them," insisted Madonna coach Pete Alexander. "We just didn't come out with the win. It was unlucky."

As proof, Alexander pointed to the shots on goal: 12 for Madonna to three for Aquinas. "And they scored on all three," noted Alexander.

Scott Emert scored the Crusaders' only goal.

In Madonna's first match of the tournament Friday against Cornerstone, the Crusaders dominated again — but this time won, 3-0.

Charlie Bell, Christian Emert and Jason Stempien accounted for the Madonna goals. Dan McEvilly (from Livonia Churchill) was in goal.

The Crusaders' efforts did earn them something: Jason Hazinski (Redford Thurston) was named the defensive player of the tournament.

"Our defense played extremely well," said Alexander. "That's what got Jason that award."

But that second game . . .

"We played very much like we did in the first game," noted Alexander. "We missed a lot of our shots, a lot of our chances — and their defenders played extremely well.

"And they capitalized on all three of their chances."

Hopefully, Madonna's luck will change.

Note: A problem with construction of the Livonia Ladywood soccer field has forced Madonna's team to seek new accommodations, until at least October. Where the Crusaders will play their home matches is uncertain.

Lady Ocelots fall flat vs. NJCAA weekend foes

The results were not pleasing. Hardly.

But Schoolcraft College women's soccer coach Nikki Johnson would rather deal with them now than later.

Twice last weekend the second-year coach felt her team was in position to win in matches against visiting College of DuPage (Glen Elyn, Ill.) and Monroe CC (Rochester, N.Y.).

Twice, SC came up on the short end. The Lady Ocelots lost 3-2 to DuPage Saturday and 1-0 to Monroe in overtime Monday.

In Monday's OT loss, the game's only goal came six minutes into the second of two 15-minute mandatory extra periods. Tricia Diquattro scored it.

The Ocelot offensive efforts were crippled by the loss of forwards/midfielders Stephanie Surma and Melissa Crain to muscle pulls. With previous injuries to Nicole Gentry (from Westland John Glenn) and Amy Marcoe (Livonia Stevenson) already weakening the team's depth, SC had to struggle to stay in the match against Monroe, with its 24-player roster.

The loss to DuPage was even more frustrating. The offense controlled play, but failed to finish several ideal scoring chances. DuPage, meanwhile, took advantage of speedy forward Debbie Markovich on counterattacks; she scored twice.

Still, SC had a 2-1 lead on goals by Holly Kimble (Stevenson) and Surma. Assists went to Susan O'Neill (Plymouth Canton), on Kimble's goal, and Erin Stacherski (Livonia Churchill), on Surma's goal.

Unfortunately, both Surma and Marcoe went out with injuries, fueling DuPage's comeback.

Earlier last week, SC ripped Siena Heights 4-0 in Adrian. Surma and Staci Muysenberg each scored two goals (all in the second half); Kimble and Misty Heath (Stevenson) added two assists apiece. Jennifer Audritsh (Garden City) was in goal for the shutout.

"We picked up our game in the second half and just took it to them," said Johnson, her team now 1-2.

Late Barge basket lifts Wayne; Eagles swoop by Glenn

Junior Rica Barge scored a game-high 20 points, including the game-winning hoop with 10 seconds left, propelling Wayne Memorial to a season-opening 42-41 girls basketball win at Ypsilanti.

Barge tallied 11 of her 20 in the final quarter as Wayne outscored the Braves, 18-10.

Down 41-40, Barge followed her own miss and scored on a rebound basket.

Junior Yolanda Holt added nine points for the Zebras, who shot a miserable 11 of 31 from the free throw line (35.4 percent).

Sophomore Teretha Gibson scored 21 for Ypsi, which shot only 28 percent from the stripe (seven of 25).

■ THURSTON 53, JOHN GLENN 45: Westland John Glenn put up a battle Tuesday, but visiting Redford Thurston held on for the non-league victory.

Three players scored in double figures for Thurston, now 2-1 on the season.

Kim Lucas and Heather Wohlfeil each notched 11 points, while Jennifer Medina added 10.

Anja Protz, a 6-foot German exchange student, led Glenn with 14 points and 15 rebounds. Jami Grigal added 13 points.

A 15-6 run by Thurston in the second quarter was the difference.

"We played well until there was two minutes left in the first half," said Glenn first-year coach Andy Denison, whose team is 0-2 overall. "Nykiya Lee and (Jami) Grigal got into foul trouble and they applied some pressure.

"It was a smart move on coach (Mike) Schuette's part."

■ LADYWOOD 48, FLINT N'WESTERN 32: After trailing 16-15 at intermission, Livonia Ladywood (1-1 overall) picked up the defensive intensity in the third quarter en route to a non-league victory over Flint Northwestern (0-2).

The Blazers made a 16-3 run in the third stand up for the victory.

Senior forward Erin LeSage was Ladywood's top scorer with 12 points. Senior guard Katie Law added 10 points, while senior forward Kara Walter grabbed 13 rebounds and contributed five points.

Northwestern did not have anybody in double figures.

■ LUTH. WESTLAND 51, PLY. CHRISTIAN 19: Jenny Twietmeyer buried a pair of 3-pointers to break a 6-6 tie in the opening quarter Tuesday, and the Warriors from Lutheran High Westland never looked back in beating visiting Plymouth Christian Academy.

Twietmeyer, a junior guard, finished with a game-high 12 points. She spearheaded a 27-3 Lutheran Westland run as the Warriors enjoyed a 33-9 halftime lead.

Freshman center Janell Twietmeyer and senior guard Katie Ollinger chipped in with nine and eight points, respectively.

Senior guard Lisa Erickson finished with eight for PCA.

Both teams are 2-1 on the season.

"It's probably the best defense we've played all year," Lutheran Westland coach Ron Gentz said. "I didn't expect it to be this lopsided."

■ HURON VALLEY 39, HARPER WOODS 8: Westland Huron Valley Lutheran outscored the Pioneers 12-0 in the second period to earn the easy non-league win at Marshall Middle School.

Nikki Kightlinger paced the Hawks (2-2 overall) with 10 points. Michelle Ruth and Sara Tacia chipped in with nine and eight, respectively.

"Our girls worked hard defensively and that caused some problems for Harper Woods," Huron Valley coach Tod Bartholomew said. "We took our time on offense and waited for things to develop."

■ DEARBORN 60, CHURCHILL 30: On Tuesday, junior point-guard Chrissy Katchaturoff scored a game-high 22 points and teammate Mary Fournier added 11 as the Pioneers (1-1) doubled-up host Livonia Churchill.

Junior forward Jessie Jenkins led the Chargers with 11 points and 12 rebounds. Alicia December contributed seven points for Churchill, which couldn't overcome a 21-4 first-quarter deficit.

"The first quarter was too much nerves on our part and too much Chrissy Katchaturoff," Churchill coach Dave Balog said. "She scored 10 in the first quarter and didn't seem to miss.

"We played better after that."

■ LAKELAND 44, STEVENSON 41: Livonia Stevenson rallied in the second half, but couldn't hold a two-point lead with 1:30 left in a non-league defeat at White Lake Lakeland.

Stevenson is now 2-1 on the season, while the Eagles are 1-2.

Senior center Stephanie Uballe led the winners with 20 points.

Stacey Nichols, a senior center, paced Stevenson with 19 points, five rebounds and four assists. Senior forward Jenny Dulz added eight points and six assists.

"We fought back from not having a good start," said Stevenson coach Wayne Henry, whose team trailed 15-7 after one period. "But we made turnovers at critical times. We got careless and made some unforced errors. We also lost our focus defensively."

Stevenson made three of four free throws, while Lakeland was eight of 14.

■ ST. AGATHA 41, CLARENCEVILLE 21: Redford St. Agatha broke away from a 14-10 halftime advantage by outscoring visiting Livonia Clarenceville 27-11 in the during the final 16 minutes to post the non-league rout.

The Aggies (1-2) were led by sophomore JoAnn Tischler's 14 ponts and sophomore Chris Woods' seven points and 11 rebounds. Katie Miller added seven points.

The Trojans (0-2) had four players score four points apiece: Melissa Cairns, Melissa Respondek, Melissa Berry and Agnieszka Palarz.

Lady Crusaders search for right mix

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

Hey, Madonna University's volleyball season just started. So let's dwell on the positives, at least for a little while.

Like the result Tuesday: a come-from-behind 13-15, 15-4, 11-15, 15-11, 15-11 victory over Hillsdale College in the Lady Crusaders' home opener.

"We played in spurts," said Madonna coach Jerry Abraham, his team running its record to 2-3. "But I'm pleased . . . I'm happy with it. They stuck in there, and a win's a win."

Several players contributed to the victory, in particular Kelly McCausland (from Redford Union), with a team-best 13 kills to go with 15 digs. Both Julie Martin (Livonia Stevenson) and Karen Sisung contributed nine kills each, Martin adding two solo blocks and 10 block assists.

Erin Comment chipped in with seven kills and 16 digs, Erin Gregoire had 16 digs, and Meg Paris had 29 assists to kills and 10 digs.

"We don't have it in sync yet," Abraham told one onlooker. "We should be better than this."

Later, he added, "We're not fluent. Our defensive reads were weak. And we're still working on our lineup."

The Crusaders' erratic play was evident by the midpoint of the third game. After losing the opening game of the match, they took command in the second and won easily. But in the third, Madonna allowed the Chargers to bolt out in front, 8-1; although the gap was closed to 11-10, it was never completely overcome.

The Crusaders fell behind in the fourth game, too, trailing 4-0. But this time they regained their composure, pulling out to a 12-8 lead. Hillsdale got to within 12-11, but no closer.

The fifth game was the Crusaders' to control. They led 3-0; Hillsdale tied it at 3-all, but then Madonna rattled off nine straight points to take a commanding 12-3 lead. The Chargers never got closer than the final four-point margin.

Last weekend, Madonna didn't fare too well on its trip west to Mesa State (Grand Junction, Colo.) for the Coca Cola Classic. Going against all NCAA Division II teams, the Crusaders managed just one win out of four matches.

Last Friday, they played host Mesa State and fell 15-9, 15-11, 15-10; they also were beaten by University of Alaska-Anchorage, 7-15, 15-0, 15-4, 15-9. On Saturday, Madonna rallied to defeat Western State College (Gunnisson, Colo.) 6-15, 15-5, 13-15, 17-15, 15-9, before tumbling against Seattle-Pacific, 15-11, 15-5, 15-4.

Part of the problem, of course, is the team's youth (one senior); also, they've had little real practice time to work on problems since before heading to Mesa State.

These are concerns Abraham hopes to address, at least in part, before this weekend's Madonna University Invitational.

The round-robin format begins at 4 p.m. Friday, with the next rounds starting at 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. On Saturday, play begins at 9 a.m.

Georgia on my mind after bout with bass

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

When the lunker largemouth broke through the surface of the lake with the authority of a erupting volcano and tail-hopped across the surface, Adrenalin shot through my veins sending a chill through my body like I'd been hit by an icy northern wind.

"Oh boy Don! You got cha a huge un," exclaimed our host Scott Clower in his deep southern drawl.

Upon seeing the fish, I immediately dropped my rod and reel on the grassy bank and raced to the truck to retrieve my video camera.

"Keep yer tip up. Man, that's a nice un. You got ya a seven-'er eight-pounder there bud!," exclaimed Scott.

Up to this point, our family vacation had been rather uneventful, but extremely relaxing. My wife, two daughters and I drove down to Georgia to spend a week with my in-laws. We endured a ravaging Georgia storm — the same storm that ripped three holes in the roof of the Georgia Dome — on the way down and only had to pull off the road four times. But even driving through the worst storm I had even encountered paled in comparison to the excitement of the ensuing battle between my father-in-law, Don Wrathell, and this boadcious Georgia bass.

"You got a net, Scott," questioned Don, with eager anticipation.

Boxing a bass

"Dang! No I don't. But I'll git something," he answered, then dashed back to the truck only to return with a square cardboard box he had used to store crickets in the day before.

Now I knew we were in trouble. Here was my father-in-law battling, by far, the biggest largemouth I had ever laid eyes on and this accomodating southern gentleman was going to try to net him with an undersized cardboard box?

His shoes and sox went flying up the bank as Scott dashed back to the shore. Then, without the slightest bit of hesitation, he wadded into the warm, murky water with box in hand.

"Bring 'em in, Don. That's it. Bring 'em over here," directed Scott. Then with one steady, calculated scoop of the cricket box, the fish was in the 'net'. (I know this sounds like a big fish story, but I have it on tape.)

"Wheeew! Oh Man! I can't believe it! Will you look at that! Look at that Fish," said Don, the excitement culminating in his voice.

After a couple minutes of back-slapping and high-fiving it was time to examine the fish a little more closely. He checked in at 7-pounds, 6-ounces on my digital fish scale and measured a tad short of 25-inches.

The south is known for producing big bass and this adventure underlined that fact. If you ever have the opportunity to fish in the south take the time and wet a line. Don't forget a video camera, and of course, a net . . . or a box if you're so inclined.

When we say we screen our doctors, it's not a slogan and it's not just some routine examination, either. This is a procedure we take very seriously. After all, your health is at stake here. So, before any doctors become Blue Care Network doctors, before they ever examine one single patient, they must first survive a very detailed examination themselves.

Here's what it takes. First, all doctors (personal care physicians and specialists) are reviewed against very specific written criteria. (Quality of care is what we're measuring here.) In addition, an on-site inspection is conducted by specially trained staff and results are reviewed by Blue Care Network doctors in the area.

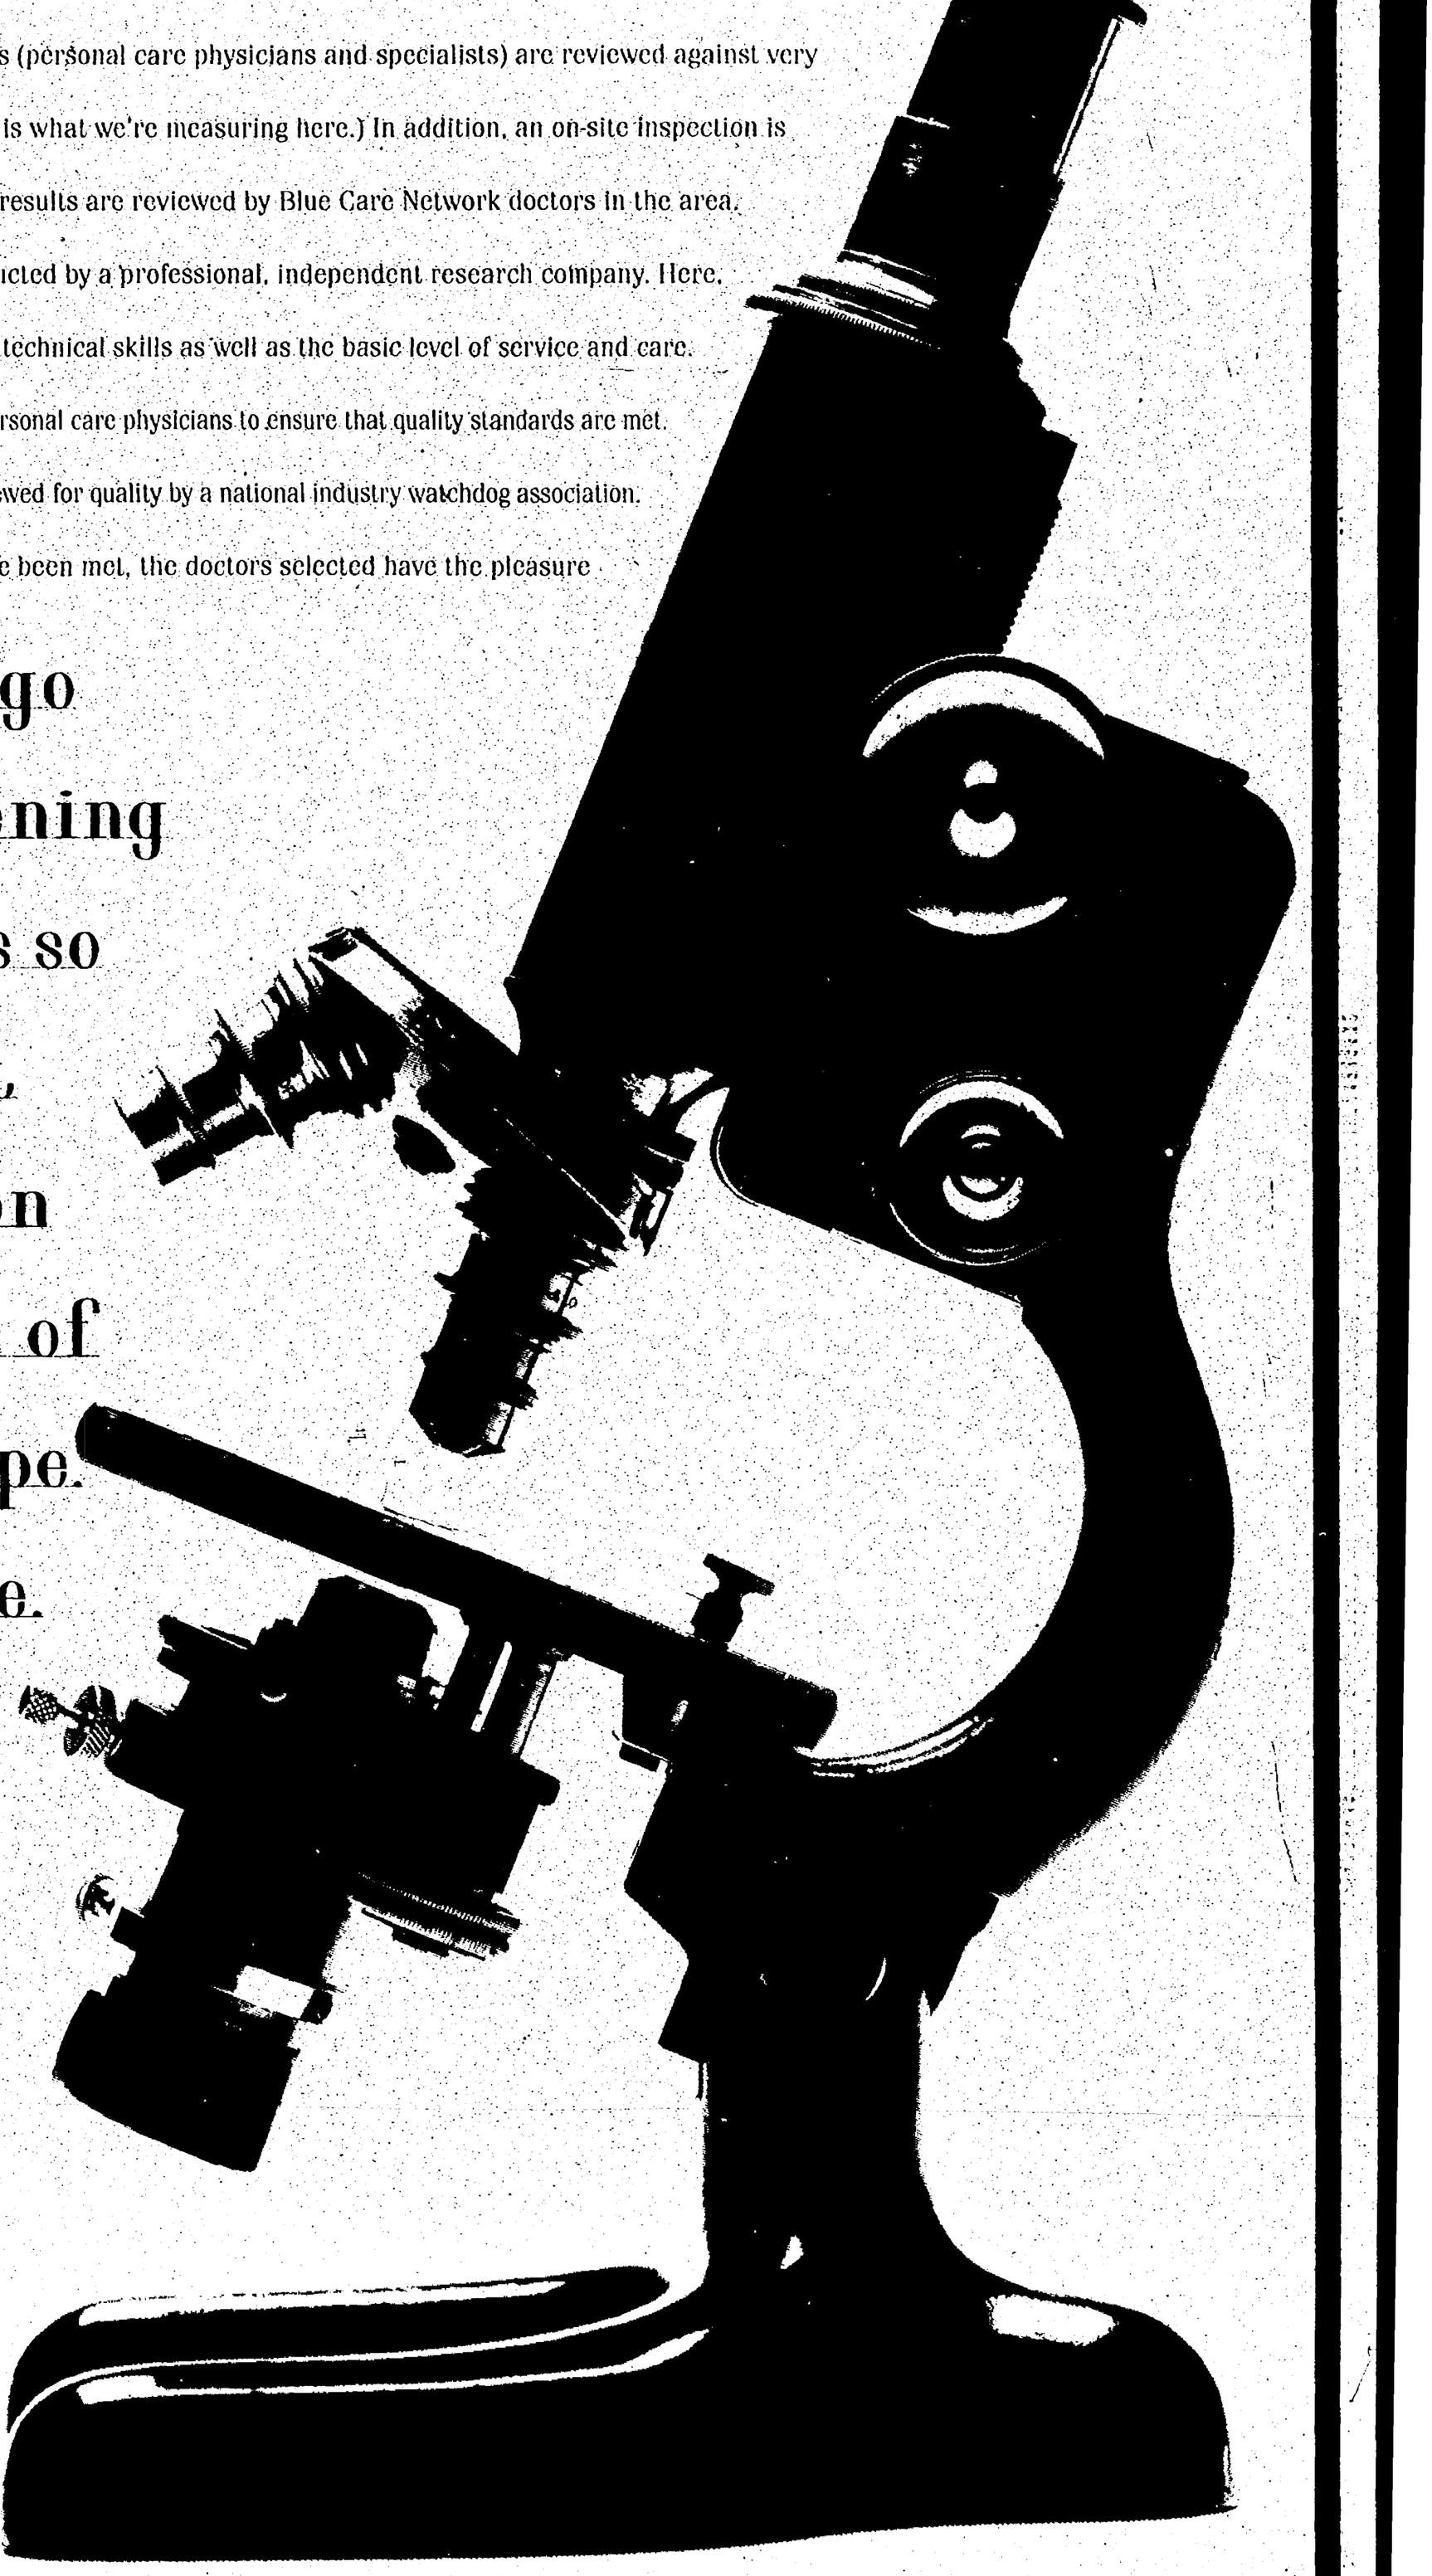
Patient satisfaction surveys are conducted by a professional, independent research company. Here, we ask patients to evaluate their doctor's technical skills as well as the basic level of service and care.

And, Blue Care Network works with its personal care physicians to ensure that quality standards are met.

Finally, Blue Care Network itself is reviewed for quality by a national industry watchdog association.

Oh, and after all these standards have been met, the doctors selected have the pleasure

Our doctors go through a screening process that's so detailed, it puts them on the other end of the microscope. For a change.



of going through this process all over again every two years for as long as they're with us.

Now, that is a tall order to fill. But if we're going to take the guesswork out of selecting a doctor, we should try our hardest to provide you with a sizable list of quality personal care physicians and specialists. It's as simple as that.

Gilda's Club looking for headquarters

As plans progress for the Sept. 17 second annual "Family Walk and Block Party" of Gilda's Club at Cobo Center, the nonprofit organization is looking for suburban office space.

Once open, Gilda's Club of Metro Detroit will offer free emotional and social support services to men, women and children with all types of cancer as well as their families and friends.

Area building owners or Realtors who have a 5,000- to 7,000-square-foot facility available may call Gilda's Club at (810) 851-6557.

The building should be easily accessible from major expressways with at least 50 parking spaces for evening and weekend activities.

Gilda's Club will need space for offices, a community room, kitchen and small meeting rooms.

The "Family Walk and Block Party" is dedicated this year to the memory of one of the Gilda's Club founders, Ina Kadish.

The three-mile walk begins at 1 p.m.

The one-mile walk begins at 1:10 p.m., and the indoor block party begins at 1:30 p.m.

Registration for the walk is $20. To register, call (810) 540-9099.

The organization is named in memory of comedian and former Detroiter Gilda Radner.

Ladbroke horse track planing fewer races

Ladbroke Detroit Race Course will apply to the Michigan Office of the Racing Commissioner for 100 racing dates for the 1996 season, according to Ladbroke president John Long.

"Michigan's thoroughbred racing industry has continued to erode in 1995 as a result of horse supply, purse levels and increased competition," Long said in a press release. "This request for only 100 dates is consistent with that erosion.

"We believe that full-card simulcasting and tax relief could be a temporary shot in the arm. Certainly purses would be increased which would benefit the horsemen and the ability to receive thoroughbred signals from around the country would excite our fans."

DRC was not able to run the dates it was awarded for 1995 due to a horse shortage.

"We'll be feeling the effects of 1995 for some time to come," Long said. "Many horse owners lost confidence in Michigan's racing industry and left the state. We've got to try and win them back if we're going to survive."

Ladbroke DRC, located in Livonia, conducts Michigan's largest thoroughbred meet.

Oakwood offers flu shots

Oakwood Hospital Annapolis Center-Wayne offers flu shots for $5.

Additional dates will be announced later.

Moving day doesn't have to be scary

BY JILL HOCKMAN
SPECIAL WRITER

Don't pack your dishes in garbage bags. Don't forget to pick up your dry cleaning.

And before the loaded truck leaves your home on moving day, check every room, closet and cupboard for possessions that were left behind.

These are just a few of the moving tips offered by professionals who work every day with families moving to new homes.

Everybody who's moved from one house to another has a humorous – or tragic – moving story. But professional movers and moving truck renters have hundreds of them.

There was the man who paid $900 to rent a heated van to move his plants cross-country.

Then there's the story about the moving company whose truck had to negotiate the length of a muddy, unpaved driveway to deliver a load to a recently constructed house (the customer was charged extra).

And one family that was running behind actually dumped dishes into a garbage bag. (The moving company refused to move it).

Most families move during the summer months between Memorial and Labor Day, moving companies say. And by following some simple tips from professionals in the moving business, families can help make those moves — or any move — more efficient and less painful.

More than 29,000 houses were sold in Oakland and Wayne counties last year, according to Realcomp II Limited, a service that lists houses for six boards of Realtors.

U-Haul's calculations show that the Detroit area was the sixth-most-popular destination among its truck renters during the first quarter of 1995.

If you were one of those families, you may have some stories of your own. But if you're planning a move, take some advice from the experts.

Most moving companies offer free guides packed with tips on moving. And most moving professionals are happy to share moving stories and hints.

The first step to moving: sell, give or throw away the things you don't need.

"Start tossing out right away," said Marlene Olson, relocation coordinator for Reliable Moving/Allied Van Lines in Canton. "Get rid of things you're never going to use again, because you're wasting your money to move it."

If you've planned to give something away, do it before the movers show up. Items can be inadvertently packed, and it's time-consuming and expensive for a moving crew to partially unload a truck to uncover a bureau that was supposed to go to a neighbor.

Next, decide whether to hire a moving company or do it yourself. Professional movers can charge from $100 to $5,000 — or even more — depending on the load and move distance, said Bill Phelps, general manager of Palmer Moving and Storage.

Families who move themselves spend about 50 percent less than those who hire professional movers, according to Janet Cooper, public relations manager for U-Haul.

Marc Brouillard, who rents Ryder trucks in Farmington Hills, said some families can save that much even if they hire someone to load and unload their rental truck.

But some do-it-yourselfers cite other reasons for their decisions and are "not necessarily 100 percent economy-driven," said Cooper of U-Haul. Some people want to take a drive across the country. Others don't trust someone else with their belongings.

In addition to comparing rental truck prices, self-movers should consider whether that truck will be comfortable to drive and ride in, said John Brouillard, who owns Camp-R-Cruise Inc. with his brother, Marc.

It's also smart to compare deck heights, as a truck with a lower deck is often easier to load, said Cooper.

Once they decide on a rental truck, do-it-yourself movers should reserve it at least three weeks in advance, especially if moving at the end of the month, the Brouillards said.

Renters should check if the truck is covered under their insurance and buy more coverage if needed. In most cases, truck rental is not covered by existing insurance.

The photographs of dinged, dented and torn-apart rental trucks that are posted on the wall at Camp-R-Cruise prove that accidents do happen. That's why the Brouillards display the photographs.

Families who want someone else to do most of the work should ask for price estimates from several professional movers. Most large moving companies set their prices the same way but offer different discount rates.

For local moves, customers are charged by the hour. For other moves, the rates, which are set by the federal government, are based on the weight of the shipment and the distance of the move. Companies can then offer a discount of that rate.

Special services such as packing and extra stair flights are also factored into the moving price. Price estimates are usually calculated at the house by a moving company representative.

When comparing moving companies, customers should ask about the company's insurance, said Tony Lanzilotti, the manager at Two Men And A Truck moving company in Southfield.

Some companies offer low rates because they're not insured, and if a mover drops a television set down the stairs, the customer is responsible for replacing it.

"Everybody knows accidents happen," Lanzilotti said.

Customers should also check on their moving crew's experience and accident claim ratios, said Phelps.

"If I were moving, knowing what I know, I would want to know about who's coming out," he said.

Moving companies keep statistical accident records on their drivers, and rate them 1 through 6. Customers should ask for a driver with a 1, 2 or 3 accident rating, he said.

Phelps said customers can book professional moves on relatively short notice during the winter, but summer moves should be booked three weeks to one month in advance.

A little common sense can eliminate most moving-day mishaps.

Families should be around the house to answer any questions that the movers may have while packing, loading or unloading, Phelps said. "We have an expectation that you're going to be there to assist," he said.

Another tip: Keep your schedule open and flexible on moving and packing days. If you're having professionals pack your belongings, don't plan a going-away party at your house on the night before you leave — the movers may still be packing.

And don't schedule a 3 p.m. flight to your new hometown on moving day — the truck may not yet be loaded.

"Prepare for it to be longer than you expected. Build some leeway into your schedule," Phelps said.

Satellite dish antenna has to go, court rules

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q: Do you have any recent cases around the country in regard to satellite dishes in terms of the authority of the association to enforce a prohibition on them?

A: In a recent Florida Court of Appeals decision decided in May 1995, the court ordered a homeowner to remove his backyard satellite dish.

The homeowner's dish antenna was approved by a master association before he bought his property.

However, once he moved into his expensive house, the subdivision association of which he was a member ordered him to remove the dish.

He argued that the backyard dish was covered with patio-umbrella fabric and hidden behind a 12-foot-high hedge. He also claimed that the master association had greater authority.

The court in Florida rejected his arguments and required him to remove the dish and pay the association $30,000 in legal fees.

Q: A year ago I bought a detached condominium and have been leasing it out. The association decided to build a big pool in the back of the condominiums so that they could pump water for grass sprinkling, instead of paying high water bills. There was a vote, and the people agreed to do so.

However, after that, without notice, they built a small building as a power house, etc. They built it at the end of my lot, and it turned out to be an eyesore. The association has told me that I have nothing to say about the matter and built it anyway. Apparently they did not like the fact that I was leasing my unit. I am wondering if I have any legal say as to this matter, especially since I think that there was no need for this building.

A: It appears that the condominium made a structural capital improvement to the condominium project.

To the extent that the structural capital improvement interferes with your use and enjoyment of your unit, you may have recourse against the association.

The association may have had a responsibility to seek the approval of the co-owners on the construction of the building, particularly if they needed to specially assess for its construction. Moreover, to the extent that the construction of the building materially alters the architectural integrity of the condominium, you may also have had a say so in the building, assuming it was justified in the first instance to be constructed.

Your best recourse, of course, was before the building was constructed when you should have sought legal counsel to apprise you of your legal rights.

It may be extremely difficult now to get rid of the building, but you may have a claim for damages, depending upon the circumstances, as well as what your documents provide for in this situation.

The Driftwood's overall dimensions are 56-feet wide by 36 feet deep. The house has 1,033 square feet of living space. The garage adds 400 square feet.

House designed for young family

In today's economy, when every cent counts, a young family shopping for their first house would like to make an economical purchase that presents the most for each building dollar. If you happen to fit that profile, you need look no further than the 1,033-square-foot Driftwood. This three-bedroom, two-bath house wastes none of the allotted space. Retired couples wishing to downsize, should also consider the Driftwood.

In addition to the attractive wood exterior, this innovative floor design offers more than many plans boasting a lot more square footage and a higher price tag. A classic covered porch takes you through the entry and into the spacious family room. A vaulted ceiling accents the feeling of openness that marks the Driftwood. There is plenty of room here for a full complement of furniture. An optional entertainment center will add to your enjoyment of this main family gathering spot.

The two secondary bedrooms are nice-sized, and each has a generous closet and a view window facing front. They share a full bathroom located in the connecting hallway, which also features built-in shelves and convenient guest closet.

The master suite is quite a surprise for a house this size. A big sleeping area, huge walk-in closet and private bathroom grace the main bedroom. Linen storage and a small utility closet are nearby.

The garage, stylishly attached at the side of the house, offers you the safety and benefit of being able to unload groceries directly from your car into the kitchen. No need to worry about the weather while performing this chore.

Remodeling show opens Sept. 28

Remodeling is booming in metro Detroit and around the country.

To help homeowners get a handle on what's hot and new, the Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan sponsors its third annual Fall Remodeling Show Sept. 28 through Oct. 1 at Novi Expo Center.

"The average American home is turning 28 years old, and Americans' taste in homes have changed considerably over the years," said Janet L. Compo, BIA president and a Farmington Hills residential builder.

"Kitchen and bath concepts are just the tip of the iceberg at this show where homeowners can find everything from major remodeling ideas to simple home decorating notions," she added.

Show hours are 2-10 p.m. Thursday and Friday; 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday.

Admission is $6 for adults, $4 for senior citizens and $3 for children 6-12. Family tickets for two adults and accompanying children are available at Farmer Jack for $9.

Parking is available at Novi Expo Center, I-96 at Novi Road, for a fee.

More than 200 exhibitors will show their most interesting and up-to-date products and services for kitchens, baths, doors, windows, yards and gardens, remodeling, interior design, heating and cooling, appliances, pet accessories and arts and crafts.

Special highlights include secrets of wallpaper, painting and faux finishes.

Consultations and clinics will be put on by members of the American Society of Interior Designers. Gardens will be created by members of the Metropolitan Detroit Landscape Association. The builders association will sponsor a pictorial display, Showcase of Distinctive Homes.
