KETTERING School's Tommy Smith, a sixth-grade student, has raised $320 for the St. Jude mathathon by collecting pledges for completing a book of math problems. Placing second in the school fund-raiser was third grader David May who raised $302. So far the total school effort has amounted to $4,200. Donations by the public are still being accepted. If the school's fund-raising total reaches $5,000, it qualifies for a Texas Instruments computer.

JOHN MULCRONE of Westland portrays Amiens in the Alma College Players' production of William Shakespeare's comedy, "As You Like It," which continues on Nov. 12 and 13 in Dow Auditorium. Mulcrone, the son of Helen Mulcrone of August, is a 1982 graduate of Franklin High School and is majoring in music at Alma.

PUTTING THEIR seal of approval on a special fund-raiser to benefit the Easter Seal Society are WOMC radio personalities Nick Arama, Jennifer Morgan and Kurt Kelly who will be on hand from 6-8 p.m. Monday at the Chuck E. Cheese Pizzatime Theatre, 208 Wayne Road south of Cherry Hill.

All money raised from three game machines at each Chuck E. Cheese restaurant in the metropolitan area will be turned over to the Easter Seal Society.

HOW WOULD you like to take a week-long trip to Switzerland, Italy and France? That's the trip that Mr. and Mrs. Herbert A. Woods of Westland Camping Center earned as a result of marketing and service programs for folding camping trailers. Despite the poor economy, sales of all recreation vehicles through the latest reporting period are up 8.6 percent over 1981 with 22,600 folding camping trailers shipped to dealers.

RUSSELL VAN VOORHIS, 8623 Wayne Road, recently completed six months of field and classroom study to become a certified representative of Profesco, a national financial service organization for professionals and business people. Services include equipment financing and leasing, estate planning, accounting and billing, insurance, and office design.

IF YOU SEE a new, pink Buick Regal on the streets of Westland, chances are it's the one recently awarded to Frances Zimmerman in recognition of her leadership and sales achievements with Mary Kay Cosmetics Inc. As an independent sales director, she qualified for use of the car by leading her sales unit to exceed specified sales levels during a six-month period. Zimmerman first joined the organization in August 1975 and became sales director in December 1981. This is her first time to win the pink car.

Game of 'death' hunts down fun

Kevin Galbraith, kneeling and Homer Stone show off some of the costumes used in the Death Quest game, which is played by some 80 persons during the summer along the Sassafras Trails near Wilson School.

By Maurie Walker

Dungeons and Dragons has come to life in Westland.

Each Saturday evening during the warm weather, some 80 persons, ranging in age from 16-38, invade the Sassafras Trails Nature Center in the woods near Wilson Elementary School dressed in costumes that include armor, foam-filled swords, beards and long robes.

They gather to play a game called "Death Quest," the brain child of Homer Stone Jr., 19, of 35174 Glen, and Kevin Galbraith, 19, of 1730 Regene.

The idea of the game came from Dungeons and Dragons which Stone and Galbraith played while students at Wayne Memorial High School.

"We decided to make some home movies of the game," Stone said. "There were about 10 of us in high school who played Dungeons and Dragons who helped make the movies."

They have won some awards for their films, one while at high school, and show them at various science fairs in the area.

From making films, the group decided to expand its activity into a live game.

Stone has the game registered with Dragon Slayers Unlimited, an organization he has formed. He said there is a group in Ann Arbor that also plays his game.

"We started two years ago and the game's popularity has mushroomed," Stone said.

"We have people not only from Westland and Garden City, but from Livonia, Wayne, Inkster and Redford who join us in the game," he added.

IN THE GAME, "Death Quest," there are two main parties: the humans and the elves, each with their own starting point or kingdom.

Both parties scour the countryside looking for their hidden spells. After finding them, they try to return their spell to their kingdom, fighting wandering monsters they encounter, or in some cases, the other party.

Any opposing party member, who still lives and has an opponent party's spell, must make his mark on the ground or the tree of their kingdom. Then he can go back to "kill" others who live or claim the Great Sword of

Here's how a game is played

Here are the basic rules of the Death Quest game:

• There are two parties, humans and elves.

• In searching for their spells hidden in the woods, they will face and fight wandering monsters or, in some cases, each other. Once the spell is found, they try to return it to their kingdom.

• The last remaining party or party member "alive" wins the game.

• If any opponent still "lives" and has his party's spell, he marks the ground or the tree of his kingdom. He then goes back to "kill" any that live or claim the Great Sword of the dragon allowing him to win the game.

• A wandering monster has 10 minutes to hide the spells. Each spell is hidden by a different wandering monster, and neither monster knows the location of another spell.

• Monsters can stay near the area but cannot touch or re-position the spell. If they do, they "die" and are out of the game.

• Game rules also advise that "You are not to kill anyone. This is only a game. If someone is hurt, you must stop the game and get them some help or just let them sit it out."

• A weapon must strike the head or the body directly. Hitting armor, shield or helmets does only half the damage.

• "After a player is 'dead,' the slayer should not continue to brutalize his victim for the purpose of this game is not to take your anger out on others," advises the rules.

• "If you are fighting a monster, you may just 'kill' it outright and not subdue it or give it quarter. Of course it's up to the player. Then again, you can try to 'kill' whatever you encounter."

Players must also sign a "Death Quest Waiver," acknowledging "the dangers to my person and property."

"Remember," says the rules, "the game is for fun, not for real killing. Don't go out with the intentions of hurting anyone and you probably won't get hurt yourself."

New leader may alter state funding

By Leonard Poger
staff writer

A political upset in Dearborn may mean more state money for local school districts.

That's the potential bottom line of last week's defeat of state Rep. Lucille McCollough, 28-year member of the Michigan legislature.

Her defeat opens the way for state Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, to ask for the chairmanship of the House Education Committee, considered the second most important committee in the House after appropriations.

Keith, in the House for 10 years, is a former Garden City school board member and officer who has been the education committee's vice-chairman since he entered the legislature.

If Keith gets the committee chairmanship, all school districts, particularly low-valuation districts, will benefit, said a school lobbyist.

Keith, re-elected to an easy sixth two-year term last week without Republican opposition, is being urged to actively seek the education committee chairmanship, said Gerald Dunn, executive director of a school lobbying group whose members include Garden City, Wayne-Westland, Plymouth-Canton, Redford Union, and Livonia.

Dunn said he is "extremely happy" with the possibility of a former Garden City school board member moving up to the education committee chairmanship.

HE POINTED out that there will be a new state school-aid formula written in the next year or two and the education committee chairman will "have an imprint" on it.

In recent years, the lobbying group, formally known as the Michigan Association for Improved School Legislation (MAISE) has been fighting for more state money, particularly for those "in-formula" school districts.

The current school-aid formula provides funds for districts based on a combination of factors, including student enrollment, property tax base and millage rates.

Those districts with relatively small property-tax wealth behind each pupil still get state funds. Those with a large tax base behind each student, like Dearborn and Livonia, get no state funds.

Dunn and other school leaders feel that the "in-formula" districts like Garden City and Wayne-Westland will benefit from a new school-aid formula coming out of Keith's committee.

A SPOKESWOMAN for the representative stressed that the committee chairmanships will be decided by the new House speaker.

State legislators will be asked which committees or chairmanships they prefer and Keith wants to move up to the education chairmanship, the spokeswoman said.

Keith is among the top 15 representatives in seniority.

The legislator is also the most experienced in public education among House members because of his own school board background, she added.

"He would be pleased to be able to do what he came to Lansing to do," the spokeswoman quoted Keith.

In previous election campaigns, Keith's political support came mainly from school officials, employees and PTA leaders.

The possibility of Keith's committee chairmanship was also hailed by Michael Washburn, Garden City school superintendent, who has been critical of the state reducing its financial support of public schools while local homeowners pick up a larger share.

"I hope Keith considers the chairmanship and gets it," Washburn said.

The superintendent cited Keith's 10 years of experience on the education committee.

"In my dealings with Keith, he has been well-informed and positive in getting legislation through," he said.

Schools dial down to save energy

Within the next 10 days, Taft-Galloway Elementary School in the Wayne-Westland school district will have a new roof. All preliminary work has been done on the emergency job.

The school board recently approved the expenditure of $63,700 for the job, and learned that roofing work also is needed at four other schools in the district this year. Those schools are Hoover, McKee, Jefferson and Kettering.

The roof repairs are part of a five-year plan for maintenance developed by the administration after it discovered severe roofing problems in the late 1970s.

A bond issue was approved by the voters to take care of the repairs and will fund the Taft/Galloway job.

While the other four jobs will be done in the spring, depending on funding availability, an emergency arose at Taft/Galloway when deterioration became so rapid that 10 large waste barrels were placed throughout the building to catch the leaks.

Thomas Blacklock, deputy superintendent for operations, explained that the school was enclosed as part of repair work done under the bond issue. That enclosure caused a "certain amount of movement resulting in (roof) fractures," he said.

Blacklock added that the reason schools seem to need repairs in groups is that that was how they were built, and "subsequently they all come due at the same time."

Roof repairs at the other four schools will be done as preventive maintenance, according to Blacklock. Current bids for the work range from $107,876 to $137,531 at Hoover, $3,416 to $6,900 at McKee, $20,547 to $52,800 at Jefferson, and $87,450 to $110,710 at Kettering.

ALSO BEING considered by the administration are energy savings measures in the face of predictions of a cold winter ahead. The district plans to continue its practice of keeping thermostats within the 68-72 degree range for daytime use. Depending on the building and the speed of its recovery time, some schools will have a nighttime temperature setting of 55 degrees. Blacklock said the procedures result in "significant savings."

Dialing down the thermostat has saved the district from $50,000-$60,000 during periods such as the mid-winter break when school isn't in session, according to Blacklock.

He said that the district maintains close contact with Consumers Power and Detroit Edison, both of which monitor its fuel consumption and make recommendations.

the Dragon which allows them to win the game.

The last remaining party or party member "alive" is the winner.

Every participant must have a costume to fit the part.

The swords are made of plastic tubes stuffed with foam rubber or balsa wood. Armor, shields and helmets may be made of almost anything. Clubs are made of sponge rubber.

A "kill" or a wound is made by a certain number of hits on the head or body of the "enemy."

RULES OF stress that the game is for fun.

"Don't go out with the intentions of hurting anyone and you probably won't get hurt yourself," the rules read.

"In two years of playing the game, no one has been injured," Galbraith said.

"People just enjoy playing a different type of game. They like wearing costumes, the mystery of the woods at night and not knowing who or what they will come across along the trail."

Stone said they had received permission this year from the Wayne-Westland School District to use the woods after dark.

"We didn't ask for permission the first year because we didn't know we needed it. Early this year, the police, seeing all the cars parked in the area, told us we had to get school district permission, which we did," Stone said.

John Baracy, assistant superintendent for business of the Wayne-Westland School District, said permission had been given for the game to be played in the area for the summer but that the game won't be played there again until next spring.

Stone and Galbraith said they both had attended Wilson School and "it seems like our own back yard."

There is a $5 fee for joining the Dragon Slayers Unlimited Club, formed to help promote the game. Stone is president.

By joining the club, members are allowed use of costumes, weapons, etc.; receive a monthly Death Quest newsletter, a membership card, a free set of rules and can attend weapons workshops, which cover usage, repair, crafting and building of the game's materials.

Non-members must pay $1 per game and members 25 cents. Non-members must also supply their own weapons and costumes and are charged $1 per copy of the rule book.

Stone said persons interested in joining the club may call him at 729-1276, or Galbraith at 721-5289 or 994-1200, extension 606.

HOW DO THE neighbors surrounding the area feel about the woods being used for the game?

Despite reports that some residents were ready to sell their homes because of the game activity, a random survey of houses close to the area found that none of the neighbors were concerned, in fact most of them were unaware that game was being played there.

A resident on Melton near Wildwood, who wished to remain anonymous, said she hadn't seen any disturbance in the area this summer.

"The only thing I've seen are some youngsters with BB guns going into the woods. This concerns me because that area is a nature center," she said.

Donna Downey, 33718 Barrington, said she didn't know anything was going on while Lola King, 1461 Radcliff, on the edge of the woods, said she hadn't seen anyone playing the game.

Dick Covault, 34024 Avondale said he hadn't seen any disturbance or had any problems.

Lt. Dewey Combs of the Westland Police Department, who is also a member of the Wayne-Westland School Board, said the police haven't received any complaints about the game being played.

"And as far as I know, the school board hasn't either," he said. "There was a resident at a recent school board meeting who said she had heard rumors about complaints from someone, but that is all."

OVERCOMING ANXIETY

There are a lot of people who will not fly because they have an extreme anxiety or fear of flying. Let's face it, a lot of people do not get needed dental care because they too, have anxiety about the dental chair. It is estimated that 10 to 12 million people won't go to the dentist for necessary dental work strictly because of this anxiety.

When you think about it, the concept is ludicrous. Dental care in today's modern dental office is virtually without real pain. If you want some REAL pain, experience a toothache from a root abscess and DON'T go to a dentist for relief. That's not anxiety. That's pain.

Regular dental care will PREVENT pain by keeping your mouth healthy. NOT going to the dentist will set you up — not for anxiety — but for a possible tooth loss accompanied by the pain you could have avoided in the first place. If you have any anxiety, talk to your dentist about it and everything will be done to make sure you're comfortable. Don't neglect needed dental care because of unwarranted anxiety.

Cats — the purrrfect pets

Curious cats play tag to the amusement of Kindness Center director Kathy Blauet in The Cat Room.

Center offers chance of a new home

By Sandra Armbruster
editor

Melissa blinked her green eyes and inched a little closer to the door. Her neighbor literally turned somersaults in his efforts to get attention, but Salem, looking a sleek black, stared coolly out the window.

The three are among 12 residents, ages six weeks through adult, of The Cat Room at the Michigan Humane Society's Westland Kindness Center.

All 12 vied for the attention of visitors who were there to inquire about International Cat Week Nov. 7-13.

One fellow with butterscotch fur and a disposition just as sweet wanted O-U-T in no uncertain terms.

Through the open door of one cage, the visitors could see his pile of shredded newspapers.

"That paper has been changed twice already today," said Kathy Blauet, director of the Kindness Center. And it was just 10 a.m.

"He tears up the paper all the time. So we let him out. I think he knows that," she added.

BUT GETTING out to a permanent home is more difficult for the felines. Usually the center has about 20 caged in the special room, with kittens coming in bunches.

"Those are sad statistics," Blauet said.

During the month of September alone, the center received 600 cats from owners or brought in as strays. Three were returned to their owners, and 50 were adopted.

"The rest were put to sleep. That about an average month," she continued.

Dogs fair somewhat better. In September, the center received 698 dogs. Of that number, 85 were adopted and 77 were returned.

"A larger number of dogs are returned because people don't miss a cat if its gone for a couple of days," she said. "We urge people to keep cats in the house all the time because of what can happen to them."

"At this time of year they'll crawl up in car engines and get caught in the fan belt. That can be quite serious."

At the center, cats are kept in the adoption area for about 10 days, unless the center is too crowded.

"If we have too many, we have to put them to sleep when they come in, but we let the owner know when they come in if we are overcrowded and give them the option of bringing the cat back another time," she explained. "We're always real honest with people."

AFTER 10 DAYS in the adoption area, the cats are put to sleep to make room for others.

"Also its really stressful for them to be caged for long periods of time. So we don't think that's fair," she said.

Another problem for the center is with kittens brought in which are younger than eight weeks old, but "some people won't keep them that long," said Blauet.

The Kindness Center usually receives domestic mixed breeds of cats. Scratching posts and perches of differing heights allow the cats a chance to exercise during their stay in The Cat Room.

Now in the planning stages is a new project planned for the center in response to all the calls received asking personnel to pick up stray or injured animals.

"We're asking for donations to help us pay for a rescue service from this shelter. We do get a lot of calls from people. A lot of cats have been just dumped out there," Blauet said. "Most communities don't have an ordinance on cats, so they aren't picked up by animal wardens."

Westland's ordinance requires that cats be licensed, confined or on a leash.

BLAUET ALSO hopes that the rescue service will be able to pick up injured animals and respond to the wildlife calls it receives, such as the chicken found recently in Livonia and now awaiting adoption at the center.

Tentative plans call for the purchase of a Dodge Rampage.

"We'll put a cap on the back of it. It will have cages and will be heated," she said, estimating the cost at between $8,000-9,000.

A sign in the lobby of the center explains the concern of the 14-member staff for the animals:

"The right to freedom from fear, pain and suffering is the inalienable right of all animals."

Life behind bars is no fun for a frisky cat like this character. Cats are kept in the adoption area for a period of 10 days before being put to sleep.

This cool cat has a disposition as sweet as his butterscotch color. This fellow has the purrrfect perch for watching activity in The Cat Room.

This cat is literally climbing the walls of its cage, waiting for a family to adopt. Cats are put to sleep if no one claims or adopts them. Keeping them in cages is cruel, believes the staff at the Humane Society's Kindness Center.

Work, gifts aid SC soccer field

By Tim Richard
staff writer

How does a college develop a soccer field with electronic scoreboard, sound system, concession building and storage shed during a depression when budgets are being cut?

"Use of existing resources," smiles Dr. Marvin Gans, Schoolcraft College athletic director, adding, "People had fun doing it."

The project might have cost $50,000 if the community college had had to pick up the tab itself. But between student efforts, a benefit banquet, cash donations, gifts of materials and talents, the soccer project was completed without college funds.

College trustees recently formally accepted the gifts, with warm praise for the several dozen donors.

"THIS IS a strong soccer community," said Gans of northwestern Wayne County's high schools and the college itself.

"We had 3,100 players from all over southeastern Michigan on Memorial Day weekend. Any Sunday there will be six or seven games going on here," he added.

Down the road, he said, is a collective dream of having a soccer facility that is unexcelled in the state. And if that dream takes shape, well, the water lines and electrical equipment are in place.

No fewer than 37 firms made gifts of flagpole materials, cement blocks, concrete, lumber, shingles, electrical equipment, dry walls, audio equipment, paint and windows. Some firms donated services, such as installation of equipment.

"Some of them would rather not be listed," said Gans. "Many didn't even want to bother giving an estimated value of the services." Such an estimate is necessary for income tax deduction purposes. It means those firms aren't planning to take such tax deductions.

STUDENTS OF architectural drafting instructor John McMahon did survey work and designed overall plans for underground, mechanical, electrical, concession and locker areas.

Civil technology students of Ron Simmons and Ray Anderson staked building and sewer lines.

Students Stu Galbraith and Fred Ellocott welded the scoreboard and college identification signs. The husband of another student installed 160 feet of sanitary sewer and graded the site.

Private citizens did carpentry, painting and electrical work.

Soccer teams from the community painted poles, raked, graded and seeded.

The athletic department benefit banquet raised $6,300. Another such banquet is scheduled for Dec. 11, Gans said.

"SCHOOLCRAFT athletes operate the concession," said Gans, reporting the first two events raised $3,000. Proceeds help the college athletic program.

"We have water and sewer for future building. We also have power for night lighting.

"When you think of the University of Michigan, you think of football. One day it will be that when you think of soccer, you'll think of Schoolcraft College."

THE BOARD of trustees recently also accepted other gifts and grants:

- $18,000 from the state, combined with $23,000 from the college's unexpended plant fund, to purchase data processing laboratory equipment.

- 18,270 square feet of aluminum worth $2,100 from Charles A. Strand Co. of Detroit for use in the welding and industrial fabrication programs.

- 260 pounds of stainless steel and 6,500 pounds of scrap steel worth $758 from Industrial Metal Fabricators Co. of Detroit for use in the welding and industrial fabrication programs.

- $400 from Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Heeg of Livonia to be divided equally between the Widowed In Service program and the Women's Resource Center.

IN OTHER business, the board:

- Appointed trustee Paul Kadish to the board of the Michigan Community College Association, replacing trustee Michael Burley, who resigned because of time obligations.

- Congratulated Vera Spooner, a secretary in various departments since 1970, upon her Oct. 15 retirement.

Lucas asks, gets $188,000 switch

Wayne County commissioners voted $188,000 for County Executive-elect William Lucas to start work on the transition to home-rule government.

Commissioner Richard Manning, D-Redford, was the lone dissenter as the 45-day appropriation received 23-1 approval by the lame-duck board.

The new board which takes office Jan. 1 will be reduced to 15 members, with Manning still among them. But the board will no longer supervise many county departments because the home-rule charter puts them under Lucas, a 3-1 winner in the Nov. 2 election.

"IF THIS ISN'T Nixon all over again — the imperial presidency!" scoffed

Manning of the county executive's appropriation. He said Lucas didn't appear in person but sent Jamie Akhtar, a campaign assistant, to make the request, which was approved in 10 minutes.

Lucas' interim budget included:

- $50,000 for eight accountants — a director of finance and seven assistant directors.
- $18,000 to fly in and house county executives from Florida and Missouri to advise Lucas.
- $62,500 for professional services, mainly attorneys to review the status of lawsuits against the county.
- $7,000 for rental of office equipment.

Robotics seminar to be televised from S'craft

Schoolcraft College will be the Michigan site for a seminar on robotics to be televised live nationwide Dec. 7.

Offered by the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE), the seminar will provide an overview of robotics research as well as current and future applications.

Instruction will be provided through one-way video and two-way audio hookups.

Seminar instructors will be carried by satellite from the studios of South Carolina Educational Television in Columbia. They are Dr. James Albus of the National Bureau of Standards, Maurice Dunne of Ultimatum Inc., Michael Radeke of Cincinnati Milacron, and Dr. Thomas Sheridan of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The seminar is designed especially for electrical and electronics engineers, computing engineers, engineering managers and long-range planners.

Registrations must be received by Nov. 15. For materials or further information, telephone Schoolcraft Community Services at 591-8400, ext. 409.

In addition to Schoolcraft and various university and company locations, the seminar will be offered in 15 major cities across the country. Registration for IEEE members is $125. For non-members it is $175. Special group fees are also available for IEEE Sections, Chapters, and for presentation by universities.

THE SEMINAR will be held in Schoolcraft's Liberal Arts Conference Room, which is being wired especially for the television drop and telephone hookups to allow participants to interact with the instructors.

Grote and the Rasputin job

Tim Richard

Nelson Grote and I shared a good laugh the other day — not because Schoolcraft College was naming a building for him but because his unofficial replacement had been named.

We had our laugh prior to the ceremony in which the Administration Building officially was renamed the C. Nelson Grote Administration Building for the man who was Schoolcraft's second president (1971-81). When the board of trustees voted to name the building for him, I had written a column calling it an appropriate honor, even if the Faculty Forum considered him a Rasputin.

Rasputin, for those who appreciate intrigue and history, was the evil genius who influenced the last czarina of Russia. And there was no question that, in contract negotiations and labor relations, the faculty union thought of Grote that way.

GROTE'S SUCCESSOR as president of Schoolcraft is Richard McDowell, but his successor as Rasputin is poor Mike Petrack, director of labor relations and chief negotiator for the college.

Recently the Forum wrote a public letter to the board complaining, "Unfortunately, at the bargaining table we were met with the same adversarial approach that has been in use since the first days of unionism here at the college."

Forum President Del Sipes pictured the faculty bargaining team as looking forward, under McDowell, to an era of participatory governance, even going so far as to attend "a negotiations conference specifically to learn the techniques of cooperative negotiations. . . Perhaps naively, we were honest in our efforts. . ." and so on.

The thrust of Sipes' letter was to point the finger of blame for lack of progress in negotiations at one man: "No significant movement has been made since May. If it is the strategy of the Chief Negotiator to stall until we are angry, this he has achieved."

And the student paper produced a cartoon saying Petrack ought to be laid off.

THIS IS NOT to make light of the Faculty Forum's nervousness. It is working under an extension of its old contract because it has been so difficult for Schoolcraft, like any agency dependent in part on state aid, to predict how big the next cut will be.

The contract is due to expire at the end of 1982, and December, with exams and pre-holiday activities, is a tough time to try to bargain a contract. It is an extremely bad idea for an outsider, such as a newspaper or a Dick Headlee, to take sides in somebody else's labor negotiations, and I won't do so here.

According to educators' literature, there is such a thing as a "class brat" function. If you remove the class brat and put him elsewhere, another kid will step into his shoes.

And in labor relations, there is a "Rasputin" function — a management person who draws the lightning bolts of the union, who is pictured as the personification of all that is malevolent in management, whether he likes it or not.

A union needs a Rasputin. It's a necessary role. But we on the outside shouldn't take the label too seriously except to hope that the Rasputin in question can take the heat. Grote was able to take it during his years at Schoolcraft. Let us hope Petrack can, too.

THERE IS an hysterically funny footnote to all of this.

Grote is now president of a multi-campus community college system headquartered in Spokane, Wash., a lovely region of our North American continent. The state has gone through several rounds of budget cuts, just like Michigan. Otherwise, he is healthy, he is enjoying the job, his wife, Wilma, looks great, and his family is pleased.

And one of his strengths in Spokane, he tells me, is the great support he gets from the faculty.

Being Rasputin is a job, not a permanent character trait.

Place politics in perspective

To the editor:

I was greatly distressed to read the Westland Observer's coverage of Gov. Milliken's recent appointments to the Wayne-Westland Board of Education. It was not your reporting that made me grimace, but Fred Warmbler's comments, for they seem to be immature and self-serving at best.

I know one of the appointees personally, and I am inclined to trust the Governor's office as an impartial arbiter in this matter.

From the comments which appeared in the companion piece, it is clear that the new board members are seeking a time of helping to bring peace to the district. Mr. Warmbler, on the other hand, seems inclined to keep open those painfully divisive wounds created, in part, by the recent recall election.

The board of education should not be choosing sides, but rather working toward the highest quality, cost-effective education for students in the Wayne-Westland Community Schools. In order to accomplish this important goal, one must be able to work with diversity yet not be overcome by it. We need to have open and sensitive people on the board who have the educational needs of children, youth and adults as their number one priority.

As a candidate for the special board election on Dec. 7, I am working hard to restore a sense of balance to the district. I believe there are many opinions which need to be heard and responded to with sensitivity and care.

Neither the pro nor anti-recall forces have an absolute corner on the truth.

Let's put all this in perspective and put aside any narrow, self-serving interests. We need to rediscover the positive strength of our community which can provide high-quality, cost-effective educational programs for Wayne-Westland's children.

Don't be afraid to get involved

To the editor:

Your article titled "Norwayne Area Safety Plan," which appeared on Thursday, Oct. 14, I found very encouraging. I agree with this article, which describes the Neighborhood Watch programs being started in the Norwayne area.

It is about time that we as people and neighbors stand up for our rights and help to defend what belongs to us.

This neighborhood participation needs to start with all of us being alert to what is happening around us. We must promptly report all crimes, being as helpful as possible in assisting the police department.

We should never let ourselves be afraid of getting involved, especially when we may need the same cooperation from others someday. People need to join together in an effort to make their homes and neighborhoods a safer, more enjoyable place to live. There is no reason why any of us should be afraid to go for a walk or allow our kids to play in the neighborhood parks.

I think it is important for local newspapers to keep the people informed about such helpful programs.

Wayne roads need repair

To the editor:

The City of Westland has been doing a very fine job in repairing adverse road conditions throughout the city. As often is the case in road repairs, the drivers must be inconvenienced. However, the choice for alternate routes is many and these areas can be avoided.

Most drivers are willing to contend with repair situations because they know as an end result they will benefit substantially.

My concern is the area on Wayne Road between Cowan and Cherry Hill. Within the past two years, Wayne Road has been repaired and improved north and south of this area. Driving between these two streets, however, has become quite treacherous and maintaining control of an automobile is becoming very difficult.

This type of road condition also has a very negative effect on the automobile itself. With the rising costs in purchasing and repairing automobiles, I am certain other drivers share my concern.

When is this stretch of Wayne Road scheduled to be repaired to complete the total improvement of Wayne Road from Plymouth Road to Michigan Avenue?

Resident wants cable installed

To the editor:

In the past two or three years, cable television has become popular in the home entertainment especially with the high cost of going to the movies.

I would like to know what the delay is on getting cable installed here in Westland. I don't think it is fair that whatever or whomever is behind this delay should keep the residents, who pay more than their share in taxes, from enjoying a small but important "luxury."

I think more investigation and action should be taken in this matter, and the facts behind the delay should be exposed. The residents should have something to say in the decision making.

GRAPEFRUIT FANTASIAS!

For cooks who just love to cook. Other cooks love the chorus of 'oohs and ahs' especially an especially artful dish to their admiring dinner guests.

Festive dinners provide the perfect ambience for impressive-looking dishes. The dessert category especially offers plenty of latitude for culinary showoffs who like to add spectacle to delicious taste.

Here we present Grapefruit Fantasias, three dessert recipes to take advantage of the luscious Florida grapefruit coming into the markets. These yellow or pink thin-skinned beauties, heavy with juice and lots of vitamin C, add just the light, fresh and zippy ending to a big meal.

A special beauty of the grapefruit is in its versatility. Adventurous cooks usually make the happy discovery that grapefruit sections or juice are wonderful used in sauces, drinks, main dishes and desserts to impart a lively flavor.

As festive desserts, however, the delectable Grapefruit Fantasias (which use all of the grapefruit, both pulp and shell) are creations that please the eye as well as the palate.

Our star is Grapefruit Meringue-Swirls, an exciting, zesty dessert. The round, scooped-out and filled shells of pink Florida grapefruit are topped with a witty, removable hat of sugar-sprinkled meringue, with more meringue used to collar and line the shells. The rich filling, lightened with folded-in whipped cream, sparkles with the fresh taste of grapefruit juice. You can use yellow grapefruit too, if you wish.

Easy to make are the appealing Amaretti Grapefruit Cups. Shells are lined with almond-flavored cookie crumbs, then filled with a delightful mixture of grapefruit pieces, chocolate morsels and fresh ricotta cheese. Toasted almond slivers add crunch and flavor.

Velvety Fruit-Filled Grapefruit offers raspberry jam swirled through a mixture of bananas, grapefruit pieces and vanilla pudding, the whole puffed with whipped cream and piled into grapefruit shells. More jam drizzled over all gives this delicious dessert a true party personality.

Here's your eye-filling, taste-pleasing proof that grapefruit are not just for breakfast!

GRAPEFRUIT MERINGUE-SWIRLS

4 pink grapefruit
3 egg whites
1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar

1/4 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup sugar
Colored crystal sugar

Slice each grapefruit one-third off top. Using grapefruit knife, section bottom portion of grapefruit; reserve sections for Meringue-Swirl Filling*. Remove all membrane from grapefruit cups. In small bowl of an electric mixer, beat egg whites, cream of tartar and salt until foamy. Gradually beat in sugar until stiff peaks form. Using pastry bag fitted with star tip, pipe meringue into four circles 2 1/2 inches in diameter on foil lined cookie sheets. Fill in center of circles. Build up layer of meringue to form cone-shaped hats. Sprinkle with colored sugar. Pipe remaining meringue in bottom, sides and along top edge of grapefruit cups. Bake meringue-lined cups and hats in a 250°F. oven 1 hour. Turn oven off and leave meringue to dry four hours. Do not open oven door. Using metal spatula, carefully remove meringue hats from foil. Spoon Meringue-Swirl Filling* evenly into grapefruit cups. Top each cup with a hat. Chill until ready to serve. YIELD: 4 servings.

*Meringue-Swirl Filling

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
1/4 cup sugar
3 egg yolks

1 cup grapefruit juice
1 tablespoon grenadine syrup
1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped

In medium saucepan mix gelatine with sugar. Add egg yolks beaten with grapefruit juice. Let stand 1 minute. Stir over low heat until gelatine is completely dissolved, about 5 minutes. Stir in reserved grapefruit sections and grenadine. Chill until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from spoon, stirring occasionally. Gently fold in whipped cream.

AMARETTI GRAPEFRUIT CUPS

3 grapefruit, divided
2 cups ricotta cheese
1/4 cup chocolate morsels, chopped
3 tablespoons confectioners' sugar

1/2 teaspoon almond extract
2/3 cup Amaretti cookie crumbs, divided
1/4 cup sliced, toasted almonds

Peel and section grapefruit. Set aside 8 or 10 sections for garnish; cut remaining sections into pieces. In large bowl combine grapefruit, ricotta cheese, chocolate, sugar and almond extract. Sprinkle 1/3 cup cookie crumbs in the bottom of a 6-cup serving bowl. Spoon half the cheese mixture into bowl; repeat with remaining crumbs and cheese mixture. Garnish with reserved grapefruit sections and toasted almonds. YIELD: 4 to 6 servings.

VELVETY FRUIT-FILLED GRAPEFRUIT

2 grapefruit
4 tablespoons strained or seedless raspberry jam, divided
1 cup milk
3/4 cup fresh Florida grapefruit juice

1 package (4 ounces) vanilla pudding mix
1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped
1 banana, sliced

Cut grapefruit in half. With grapefruit knife remove sections into a small bowl. Stir in 2 tablespoons raspberry jam; let stand. Remove membrane from grapefruit; discard. In small saucepot combine milk, grapefruit juice and vanilla pudding. (Mixture may look curdled at this point). Cook according to package directions. Remove from heat. Cover with wax paper so that paper rests on pudding surface. Chill in refrigerator until mixture mounds when dropped from a spoon. Fold in heavy cream. Add sliced banana to grapefruit sections. Divide fruit into grapefruit halves. Spoon pudding mixture over fruit. Thin remaining 2 tablespoons jam with 1 teaspoon water. Drizzle jam over pudding. YIELD: 4 servings.

Chinese: tasty, cheap, good

East meets West at the dinner table — as a growing appreciation of Chinese food takes hold across the United States. Chinese cookery stresses contrasts and complements in flavors and textures. Using a high proportion of vegetables to meat, Chinese dishes are less expensive than traditional Western fare.

Easy preparation and appetite appeal of Oriental cuisine makes for delightful dining at a dinner party or family gathering. It's especially appropriate for the autumn season when the Chinese celebrate their Harvest Moon Festival, a time of thanksgiving for bountiful crops. Chicken with Bamboo Shoots is the featured dish. Festival Fried Rice and tender, crisp pea pods, available frozen, are delicious accompaniments.

CHICKEN WITH BAMBOO SHOOTS (4 servings)

- 1 tbsp. cornstarch
 2 tsp. soy sauce
 1 large whole chicken breast, skinned, boned and cut into 2-inch squares
 2 tsp. cooking oil
 ½ lb. leeks, washed and sliced into 1-inch sections (or substitute one medium sweet onion, chunked)
 1 cup water
 1 tsp. sherry
 1 tsp. soy sauce
 1 can (8 oz.) bamboo shoots, rinsed and drained
 1 tsp. cornstarch
 2 tsp. cold water
 2 tsp. ham, chopped, for garnish, if desired

Combine 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 2 tablespoons soy sauce. Place chicken in Chinese foods play up contrasts in flavor, texture and color.

small bowl and pour soy sauce mixture over, stirring to coat each piece well.

Heat oil in wok or large skillet placed over medium high heat. Add leeks; cook and stir until lightly browned. Remove leeks with slotted spoon and set aside. Add chicken to same pan and cook and stir until it turns white and opaque.

Return leeks to pan. Add 1 cup water and bring to boil. Stir in sherry and remaining soy sauce. Reduce heat; simmer, covered, 10 minutes. Add bamboo shoots and simmer, covered 20 minutes more.

Using slotted spoon, remove chicken and vegetables to service platter; keep warm. Blend remaining cornstarch and cold water; add, stirring, to liquid remaining in pan. Cook and stir until thickened. Pour sauce over chicken and vegetables; garnish with minced ham.

FESTIVAL FRIED RICE (six servings)

- 1 cup vegetable oil
 2 eggs, lightly beaten
 2 tsp. vegetable oil
 1 cup diced cooked pork
 1 cup diced cooked shrimp
 1 cup diced cooked chicken
 1 can (14 oz.) bean sprouts, rinsed and drained
 ¼ cup diced celery
 2 green onions, chopped
 3 cups hot cooked rice
 ¼ cup soy sauce
 ¼ tsp. ground black pepper
 1 cup shredded lettuce

Heat 2 tablespoons oil in large frying pan or wok placed over medium low heat; add eggs and scramble lightly. Remove from pan; set aside.

Increase heat to medium high, add remaining 2 tablespoons oil and stir in pork, shrimp, chicken, bean sprouts, green onions and celery; cook and stir 2 minutes. Add rice, soy sauce and pepper, mixing thoroughly; continue to cook and stir until heated through. Stir in reserved eggs and lettuce; place in serving dish. Serve immediately.

When a substitute mother carries baby

By Margaret Miller
staff writer

Annette Ames of Livonia is working to bring surrogate mothers and childless couples together.

At this point she has several potential surrogates — women who would carry a baby for an infertile wife, using the husband's sperm. The potential surrogates all are trying to become pregnant. There was one conception, but the surrogate miscarried.

The fees charged range from $6,000 to $10,000. Ames' project is beset with problems, not the least of which is that what she is trying to do is outside Michigan law.

But Ames, who began her program by trying unsuccessfully to become a surrogate mother herself, is working to establish a new business, the Ames Center for Surrogate Parenting, because "in my heart I feel I'm doing something to help people."

The response she has received from advertisements in this newspaper and a column written about her in a Detroit daily convince her the need is there, largely because adoption is so difficult in Michigan.

"I can't believe how this has grown," she said. "I had no idea there are so many people in need of children."

IN HER enterprise, the 30-year-old Livonian is working with a Farmington attorney, William Foren, and a medical clinic in Franklin.

"My feelings are there's a definite demand for this — we like to call it a service," said Foren.

"But I keep playing the devil's advocate with any couples we talk to," he emphasized.

"I point out that any agreement made with a surrogate is strictly in good faith. No court procedures in Michigan have ever indicated the rights of the surrogate would be abridged if she changed her mind and decided she wanted to keep the baby. There are no guarantees."

Foren said there was an attempt early this year to introduce legislation regarding surrogate parenting similar to what has been passed in three other states, California, Kentucky and Hawaii.

"It's still in committee," he said. "But I can't see how the present system (of adoption in Michigan) can continue. I can understand the reasons for the laws. There have been black-market baby sales when it was all in the hands of the attorneys, and that was not in the best interest of anyone."

But he thinks change will come "because of the demand."

"There just are not enough young white babies, and childless couples get desperate," he added.

THE WAY the Ames Center has begun operations involves contacts, mostly through advertisements, with both mothers interested in becoming surrogates and couples seeking children.

Ames interviews both potential surrogates and those interested in adopting a baby.

In about two months, she has compiled a list of about 30 couples and a larger number of surrogates.

"I insist on physical and psychological testing of surrogates," she said. "The age limit is 20 or over. I talk to the women, and try to learn why they are interested in doing this."

"I understand, I can't condemn, when the main motive is money. But I try to talk to them about other reasons for doing it."

When a potential surrogate is accepted, Ames completes a file on her, noting physical characteristics, education, I.Q., and health and including photographs. These files then are shown parents interested in adopting.

The next step is a conference involving the surrogate, the couple, Ames and Foren. If accord is reached, a contract is drawn up.

Bill Foren, attorney, sees the need for surrogate parenting and believes Michigan law eventually will change to provide for it.

THE CONTRACT includes the matters of fees and how long attempts at artificial insemination will go on.

Ames' fee for bringing the parties together is $500. "I was doing it for $250, but I've been spending 10 and 12 hours a day on the program," she said.

The legal fee is $1,500. "That's all consultation, drawing up contract, serving as attorney in custody proceedings," Foren said. He pointed out that custody and adoption should not be confused.

"Custody involves whether the child should be in the care of the mother or father," he said. "In the case of adoption, the court would have to rule against the natural mother. In Michigan there is no indication that would happen."

Surrogate fees vary. "I let them choose their own fee between $6,000 and $10,000," said Ames. "I do ask them to keep in mind the heavy expense to the couples. That can be such a great problem."

The couples seeking a child also pay medical expenses, and these vary according to hospitalization insurance the parties may have.

Artificial insemination is done in the area clinic. A time limit for the surrogate's becoming pregnant may be set by contract.

A doctor at the clinic, who asked not to be identified, said only one of the surrogates Ames' firm had referred to him had conceived, and she had miscarried.

"But this program has been going on only a short time," he said. "We have used artificial insemination many times in cases where the male is infertile, and a donor sperm is used. The rate of pregnancy happening and a normal baby being born is good."

AMES' BEGAN her project after first deciding to be a surrogate herself.

She and her husband, Jerry, had been married 10 years. "We had an miscarriage early in our marriage," she said, "and then after that decided we did not want to have children."

But Annette Ames started hearing about surrogate parenthood. After about three years of research, she decided she wanted to bear a baby for another couple, and she gained her husband's support.

She said she contacted an attorney who brought together surrogates and couples in this area, but was "unhappy with the reception I received" and decided not to work with him. "For one thing, the $10,000 fee seemed so high," she said. "I could use that money, but it seemed so much for parents who could not have a baby."

After deciding not to work with the attorney, she sought a lawyer and made contact with Foren.

The next step was to place an ad, and she found she could do that only by in the attorney's name.

The advertisements run early this year brought responses from several couples. She picked two of them and talked to both.

"I wanted to know what kind of people the baby would be going to, what kind of home it would have."

When one couple was selected and a contract signed, Ames located — after some difficulty — the clinic which accepted her for artificial insemination.

"Since surrogate parenting isn't legal in Michigan, we studied and followed the laws of Kentucky and California," she said. "They call for a gynecological examination of the surrogate, plus VD tests for both the surrogate and the husband and psychological testing of the couple and the surrogate."

Although convinced what she is doing is needed, Ames battles an assortment of problems. A large number of would-be surrogates call, and she finds she has to screen them with great care. She finds a lack of acceptance on the part of attorneys in other states with whom there are occasional dealings.

Annette Ames talks in her Livonia home surrogate mothers and parents who want to adopt babies.

'I keep playing the devil's advocate. I point out that any agreement made with a surrogate is strictly in good faith. No court procedures in Michigan have ever indicated the rights of the surrogate would be abridged if she changed her mind and decided she wanted to keep the baby.'

— Attorney Bill Foren

Surrogate motherhood is topic at WSU

The first program aimed at bringing together medical and legal thinking on the subject of surrogate parenting is planned as an all-day symposium, Nov. 20, in the McGregor Memorial Conference Center, Wayne State University.

It is sponsored by the WSU schools of medicine, law and psychiatry; the Michigan Psychiatric Society and the family law section of the State Bar of Michigan, the meetings will run 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The symposium, said the university, will address medical, legal and ethical issues of surrogate motherhood and is designed for doctors, lawyers, counselors, clergy, educators and others concerned with fertility, adoption and family counseling.

Speakers for the legal portion of the program will include Noel Keane, Dearborn attorney who has gained national attention for activity with the surrogate mother process and State Rep. Richard Fitzpatrick, D-Battle Creek, co-sponsor of H.B.5184, proposed legislation dealing with the issue.

Discussing medical issues will be Dr. S.J. Behrman and Warren Ringold and Nancy Reaume, Ph.D., a consulting nurse who is preparing research on the matter of surrogating.

The moral and religious implications will be discussed by Dr. Vaughn Adams, who will present a Catholic viewpoint, and by Carol Parks, a Northville Residential Training Center staff member with a master's degree in divinity, who will offer contrasting ideas.

For other information on the symposium, call the WSU school of medicine, division of continuing education, 577-1180.

Deer outlook: good season, easy traffic

Few traffic problems and a near-record season await deer hunters who will participate in the 16-day firearm season which starts Nov. 15, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Since the season opens on Monday, travel will be spaced over the preceding Weekend (Nov. 12-14), and traffic congestion should be minimal," said Auto Club Travel Operations Manager

James Drury. More than 720,000 hunters should travel to deer camps by the Nov. 30 conclusion and spend an estimated $250 million in Michigan for everything from fuel and lodging to hunting leases.

"Last year's season was the best ever, with 734,000 hunters taking 172,000 deer, including a record 123,000 bucks," Drury said. "While 1982 is not expected to be as good because of last winter's severe weather that lowered the fawn survival rate, it still could be the second best season on record."

To help reduce losses over the upcoming winter, more antlerless deer permits will be issued. As a result, the Department of Natural Resources estimates firearm hunters should take between 150,000 and 160,000 deer over the season, down 7 to 11 percent from last year.

"AN INCREASING number of deer are being taken from farmland areas of the southern Lower Peninsula, but two-thirds of the state's hunters will still travel into northern Lower and Upper Michigan," Drury said.

The only problem area for motorists may be along I-75 near the Zilwaukee Bridge near Saginaw. A combination of three lanes of traffic merging into two and motorists slowing to look at damage to the new Zilwaukee high bridge could cause slowdowns.

To help ease possible jams, shippers using the Saginaw River have been asked to restrict traffic during peak travel times Nov. 12-14 and Nov. 6-17.

The State Department of Transportation expects expects northbound traffic to be heaviest 4 to 9 p.m. (Nov. 12), 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Nov. 13 and 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Nov. 14.

Many hunters are expected to prolong stays in the north because of the weekday opener, but southbound traffic should be heavier than normal between 2 and 5 p.m. Nov. 16 and Nov. 17.

Utilities top UF

During the third United Foundation Report luncheon last week, Torch Drive volunteers announced they have raised $22.9 million to date, or 53.3 percent of this year's $43 million goal. The announcement was made by Torch Drive Labor Chairman Tom Turner, president of the metropolitan Detroit AFL-CIO Council.

Contributions from the paid union officers and support staff of the 22 major union councils in metropolitan Detroit brought the UF's Schools, Government and Professions Unit's total to $1.9 million, or 48.8 percent of quota.

UTILITIES GROUP received $5.4 million from employee and corporate gifts from the the major utilities, which brought the Service Units total to 86 percent of quota, said group chairman Ernest L. Grove Jr., vice chairman of the Detroit Edison Co.

Thank you for bearing with us.

We at Hygrade Food Products Corporation, along with the United States Department of Agriculture, have just completed an exhaustive investigation and inspection of Hygrade's Livonia, Michigan plant, and over 600,000 pounds of our product. The results: All facilities are operating according to the highest standards, and all product leaving our plant has been verified 100% safe...just as it's always been.

Our withdrawal of Ball Park Franks from the marketplace was entirely voluntary. U.S.D.A. inspectors have agreed that such action is no longer necessary, and normal distribution is now being resumed in all areas.

There is no evidence that any individual was ever in any danger. Nonetheless, we have taken the precaution of installing permanent ultra-sensitive metal detection systems in our plant. We want to maintain your trust in us and provide every possible measure of protection and safety.

We wish to thank our many employees who so willingly volunteered their own time to assist in this inspection. And we thank you, our customers, for your support and understanding.

"It took great patience and a bit of 'photographer's luck' to get this work of art," said seminar instructor Gerald Gazda. Honorable mentions went to Julie Berci, Randy Olmack and Judy Hedin.

Catholic Central makes it two straight over Rice

By C.J. Risak
staff writer
Detroit Catholic Central bucked the trend Sunday night at the Pontiac Silverdome.
In the botched-up Catholic A-B League playoffs, the Shamrocks were the only team to win two straight from an opponent, hammering out a 10-0 victory over Birmingham Brother Rice. The overall attendance for the four Catholic League games was 30,762.
The game was dominated by the defenses. Catholic Central managed only five first downs and 86 yards total offense, and Rice had just seven first downs and 129 yards offensively.
But as often happens with pressure games, the team that commits fewer mistakes and makes the big play wins.
That team was Catholic Central.
The Warriors fumbled twice early in the game, and the second one cost them three points as CC's Jeff Gatt fell on Mike Boroski's bobble at the 24. On the first play, Shamrock quarterback Matt Wilczewski scrambled 16 yards to the eight. The Rice defense pushed the Shamrocks back from there, but Rick Paler booted a 30-yard field goal to make it 3-0 CC.
Neither team mounted much of a threat until, with 5:24 left in the half, CC's Paul Sullivan grabbed a Mike Baughman punt and raced 86 yards up the sideline for the touchdown.

"He showed more speed than I thought he had," CC coach Tom Mach said. It was Sullivan's second punt return for a touchdown in the last three games.
Rice's best scoring opportunities of the second half ended in failure. The Warriors got the ball on Dave Joyce's interception at CC's 26 in the third quarter. But on fourth down, Ed Ewald, Matt Burns and Paler sacked Baughman to end the threat.
In the fourth quarter, Rice drove to the Shamrock 24, but Baughman fumbled, and the again the Warriors were thwarted.
"When the opportunity is there, you have to take it," said Rice coach Al Fracassa. "I think our kids played as well as they can."
Mach credited his defense and some good breaks in helping the Shamrocks to beat Rice for the second time this season.
"Things were going our way," the CC coach said. "We don't mind playing anyone twice. Beating Brother Rice twice in one season is a great accomplishment."
"It's believing in yourself, and that's a great tribute to these kids."
Gatt led CC with 55 yards rushing on 16 carries. Top ground gainer for Rice was Matt Chiodo with 31 yards on nine attempts.

Livonia boxer battles for win

By Brad Emons
staff writer
Craig Payne had never experienced such a victory.
The super-heavyweight from Livonia took a pair of standing eight-counts in the second round, but rallied to score a 2-1 split decision victory Wednesday night against East German boxer Werner Kohnert.
Payne's victory gave Team USA a 7-5 triumph over East Germany before a crowd of 2,000 in international competition held at the Biloxi (Miss.) Convention Center.
"He (Kohnert) is the toughest opponent I ever fought," said the battered Payne. "He caught me with the right hand."
"He was a southpaw, but that really didn't give me much problem. I was trying something new and I moved right into it."
It was Payne's second straight international win. Kohnert, who has been boxing internationally for 12 years, won a bronze medal in the 1980 Olympics.
"The few blows he landed hurt me," said Payne. "It was the first time I had a feeling like I was in 'never-never land.' I never knew where I was at."
"It was a matter of heart and I was determined because I didn't want to let my teammates down, or the people back home."
"People wondered how I survived the second round."
ALTHOUGH PAYNE was hurting, he landed more scoring blows to pull out the victory. The win, however, may have some ramifications. Payne is waiting for x-ray results on a suspected broken right hand.

He flew back this weekend to the U.S. Olympic training camp in Colorado Springs to have the hand injury diagnosed.
"I've never been hit like I was hit before," Payne said. "The whole side of my face is swollen. He hit me with everything he had, but I proved I can take a punch. I respect this guy because I've been hit by the best."
"It hurt, but I survived and came through it."
Calling himself a "fast healer," Payne expects to be ready for another international bout against the Cuban National Team on Nov. 17 in Rapid City, S.D.
But Payne, the No. 2 ranked U.S. amateur, is really aiming for a rematch with Tyrell Biggs of Philadelphia, Pa. in the U.S. championships next month in Indianapolis.
Biggs, rated No. 1, won a controversial decision over Payne in last spring's U.S. Championships.
THE TWO were expected to meet in July at the National Sports Festival, but Biggs broke his hand in a semifinal match and Payne took the gold medal.
"I'm proud to represent the country and I hope to be back home soon," Payne said. "I want to thank the people of Livonia and Chillicothe, Ohio for their support."
Two other Detroit area fighters, Rickey Womack and Steve McCrory, also won their bouts Wednesday night.

Churchill falls in 'A' final

By Brad Emons
staff writer
The boys from Livonia Stevenson have no peers in Michigan prep soccer.
Striker Gary Mexicotte scored two goals and midfielder Dave Wiegel added three assists as the Spartans completed a perfect season Saturday with a 4-1 victory over crosstown rival Livonia Churchill in the Class A state championship game at Flint's Atwood Stadium.
Stevenson went unbeaten and untied in 22 matches this season. Churchill, meanwhile, bowed out with an impressive 17-3 record.
"What can I say," said Stevenson coach Pete Scerri. "It was because of a lot of hard work. I'm very happy for them."
"I'm especially happy for the seniors. We have 15 going out."
The Chargers, routed 7-1 by Stevenson in a regular season game earlier this year, put up a good fight in the rematch. The Spartans, though, were up to the challenge.
Mike Aulicino got Stevenson on the board first at 7:15 of the first half, scoring a goal on a throw-in pass from Wiegel which deflected off a Churchill defender.
THREE MINUTES LATER, Churchill's Eric Hansen rifled in his 34th goal of the year to make it 1-1.
It stayed that way until 29:20 when Mexicotte scored his 47th goal of the year, beating goalie Sam Matovski on the lower-left corner. The play was set up when Wiegel took the ball up the middle.
Wiegel then set up Stevenson's third goal when he booted a free kick from 32 yards out to a streaking Mexicotte down the right side. The score came with three minutes to go, making the count 3-1.

"I wanted to chip it to the far post and hopefully somebody would be there to hit it," explained Wiegel. "I thought we were in control of the game, but they were playing well."
"They were beating us to the ball in the first half, especially."
Scerri was particularly pleased with his midfield play.
"He (Wiegel) is what you call the sparkplug of the team," said the Spartan coach. "Of course the other guys do it, too. It's a team game."
"But without both Wiegels (Dave and Chris) and Aulicino, we would be nothing."
STEVENSON CONTROLLED the play in second half and wrapped up the championship when sophomore John Gelmisi scored from Mexicotte.
"The first half we stayed with them and played real well," said Churchill coach John Neff. "Those two quick goals (by Mexicotte) were the back breaker."
"They played an excellent game and deserved it."
Stevenson had the advantage in shots, 19-11, with goalie Ken Burt making nine on-goal saves.
"They (Churchill) are a very good team," said Scerri. "They've been coming along the last three or four games. They're a much better team and it was one of the hardest games we played all year. The score doesn't indicate it."
Stevenson, the Michigan High School Athletic Association's first Class A champs, racked up some impressive numbers this season.
MEXICOTTE ended his stellar career with 107 goals. The Spartans racked up 137 goals this season with 32 of those coming in the playoffs. It was also Scerri's 108th coaching win at Stevenson.
"But the humble Scerri said it was the work of many which made it such as banner season.
"I owe most of my success to Ralph Aulicino (the Spartans' assistant coach)," he said. "He takes over my kids in the summer."
"The best thing, though, was two Livonia teams playing for the championship."

Love junk movies? You'll reminisce with these scenes

We are under attack and facing invasion — from the Bee People, the Bat People, the Puppet People, the Mushroom People, the Slime People and even the Killer Tomatoes. Where did they all come from? From Hollywood, of course.

"It Came from Hollywood" (PG) is a zoology of all those schlocky, low-budget B movies of the '50s and '60s. B movies? Try D movies. At least those movies "written, directed and produced" by Edward D. Wood are D movies, and they make the others look almost respectable by comparison (more about Wood later).

Dan Ackroyd, Gilda Radner, Cheech and Chong and John Candy introduce the various segments dealing with monster movies, teenage terror movies, sci-fi movies and even a jungle musical.

All those elements which contribute toward making these films such terrible turkeys get singled out. There is the bad acting: when you don't know how to express an emotion, just put your hands up to your face, the trite dialogue. "One thing we know for sure, someone's responsible for this," (said while looking at a murdered person), the special effects which are only special by virtue of their inferiority, hubcaps for spaceships, the string visible on a flying saucer, and there are the absolutely awful plots.

Heading the list of all-time clunkers are Wood's "Plan Nine from Outer Space" and "Glen and Glenda." In the latter, Glen, a transvestite, confesses his problem to his girlfriend while admiring the angora sweater she is wearing. The girlfriend takes the news bravely, calmly. She tells him that together they can work things out, and then takes off her angora sweater and hands it to him.

My own favorites are the monster movies with all those gigantic locusts, gorillas and spiders. I particularly have a weakness for the Japanese contributions. Some of these are included in "It Came From Hollywood," even though they didn't. A touching family scene is among them. We see big Godzilla teaching baby Godzilla how to belch fire. What a tender moment in movie history.

Another favorite, although I am now moving from the animal to the vegetable kingdom, is "Attack of the Killer Tomatoes." A sequence from this movie shows an older couple sitting and watching television while a giant tomato rolls through the house and gobbles up someone. The man comments, "It got Timmy," while they both continue to sit there watching their screen.

The irony of "It Came from Hollywood" is that these clips, from films which were not intended to be funny, are funny, but the introductions to these movies — by Radner, Cheech and Chong, Ackroyd and Candy — which are intended to be funny, aren't. These scenes from terrible movies speak very obviously for themselves. They don't need introductions.

"It Came from Hollywood" compiles some of Hollywood's worst and most hilarious moments, but be forewarned, "It" is strictly a movie for junk-movie junkies.

It's really creepy.

"Creepshow," patterned after the plots in horror comic books, opens Friday at metropolitan-Detroit theaters. Above: Adrienne Barbeau as Wilma Northrup is surprised by a monstrous creature. Below: E.G. Marshall as billionaire Upson Pratt is bugged by roaches that invade his life. Other stars who appear in the film are Hal Holbrook, Fritz Weaver, Leslie Nielsen, Carrie Nye, and Viveca Lindfors as Aunt Bedelia.

A PARTY FOR TWO. $18.95

When the best beef and the best seafood restaurants in town offer dinner for two at just $18.95, it's time to bring a friend and celebrate. Do it right now. Because right now, Mountain Jack's and J. Ross Browne's will let you and your guest choose two of your favorites from our tantalizing menus, for just what we said: $18.95.

At Mountain Jack's, you can enjoy delicious selection like Prime Rib, Mushroom Stuffed Filet Mignon, our new Strawberry Duck, Crab Stuffed New York Strip or 10 cuts of steak.

And at J. Ross Browne's, it's festive entrees like Gourmet Stuffed Shrimp, Deep Fried Seafood Platter, Lobster Stir Fry, Prime Rib or Shrimp Crowned Halibut. The choice is yours. The price is only $18.95.

That's for two complete dinners, mind you. The preliminaries, like salad with all kinds of toppings. Plus hot bread and baked potato. Surrounded with so much attention, you'll feel like the two most important people around. So, get your party together. You don't need an excuse to celebrate. The price is reason enough.

backgammon

of the Cavendish North backgammon club

I know a very competent and experienced backgammon player who was the brunt of an occasional barb for his assertion that, "Every game of backgammon is a race."

Strictly speaking, the game doesn't become a pure race until one side gets all his men past the opponent's most backward man. If the opponent holds your one point and you are bearing your men off, he might retain the hope of hitting a shot right up to the very end of the game.

But from your point of view, the game is a race even though you may have opposition every step of the way.

In the position diagrammed above, white has a five-four to play. There are only two viable options: moving both men from the black seven point or moving both men from the black 12 point. The latter play has the advantage of not leaving black a chance to hit on his next roll, plus the dubious advantage of maintaining pressure on black and impeding his forward progress.

BY BREAKING the black seven point, white is hoping to get away and reduce the game to a race.

In order to know whether white is better off trying to run or trying to stay back and fight, the overriding consideration is the status of the race. This is determined by making what is called a "pip count," where each man counts for the minimum number necessary to bear that man off.

Each man on the white one-point counts one, each man on the white five-point counts five and so on.

White's home table counts to a total of 40. The men in black's outer table are counted by the same method with the men on black's 12-point counting 13 pips each and the men on the black seven-point valued at 18 apiece.

White's total pip count is 102. By using the same technique from the other side, we will find that black has a pip count of 113.

WE NOW KNOW that white is up 11 pips in the race before he plays his five-four. After his play he will be up 20. Being so far ahead, white should realize that he will be forced to get his back men moving long before black will. This is especially true when your opponent's back men are more advanced than your own.

To see why this is so, let's assume that white makes the inferior play of bringing the men from black's 12-point into his outer board. Within two or three rolls white will have brought those men into his home table and be in a position where he will be forced to break the black seven-point with any number including a six.

Black, on the other hand, will be able to use the builders in his outer table to make a better home board and still retain either his eight- or nine-point as well as the white 12-point. At the critical juncture, when white is compelled to break his back point, black will have a double shot at white's last man and be a strong favorite to hit and win the game.

If white breaks his back point now and leaves his opponent the two shot, now he is better than a two to one favorite to escape unscathed. As a general rule, if you have a substantial lead in the race, it is in your best interest to simplify the game and attempt to reduce the game to a straight race where you will enjoy an edge.

In a certain sense every game of backgammon is a race. The race is most often a marathon through an obstacle course. But if you were a world-class sprinter with a clear advantage in speed, wouldn't it be nice to reduce that grueling marathon to a 100-yard dash?
