Manslaughter suspect is a no-show at pretrial

A Westland man charged with manslaughter in a Canton traffic death failed to appear for preliminary examination in District Court Monday.

Judge James Garber, Matney's attorney, Kavanaugh, appeared, explained Canton police officer Davey LeBlanc.

eastbound onto Cherry Hill, and was struck on the passenger side by Matney's vehicle.

The impact of the collision spun Tharp's car into the path of a westbound car, resulting in another crash on the passenger side.

Mrs. Tharp was pronounced dead at Oakwood Hospital Canton Center immediately after the accident.

Investigation showed Mastney had been driving with his car headlights off, police said.

A Breathalyzer examination indicated Matney had a blood-alcohol level of 0.28, LeBlanc said.

Under state law, a reading of 0.10 is considered legally drunk. Manslaughter is a felony which carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison upon conviction.

Matney had pleaded not guilty at his arraignment. He was released Dec. 18, after posting $1,000 bail (10 percent of $10,000).

Judge Garber Monday revoked Matney's bond and issued a bench warrant for his arrest.

POLICE REPORTS indicate the traffic mishap occurred shortly after 5:30 p.m. Dec. 17. The following occurred, according to police:

Finding care for aging parents poses problems

communities, including Westland. The center used to be at Wayne County General Hospital but was moved to Dearborn when the building in which it was housed closed down.

Just opened this month are day care facilities run by American House at 1660 Venoy in Westland and at 1725 Chester Street in Royal Oak.

Most communities have centers where seniors meet to work on crafts, enjoy a hot lunch, play cards or shoot pool. In Westland, it's called the Senior Friendship Center.

But almost nonexistent are centers where personnel constantly check on the health of seniors and have registered nurses and occupational therapists on duty, in addition to offering recreational and social programs. In centers such as Out-Wayne, most of the clients are either in wheelchairs or walking via canes or walkers.

"Day care means working with seniors who cannot be left alone either because of mental or physical disabilities," said Marie Latuvnik, nurse coordinator for the Out-Wayne County Center. "Day care means constant checking on the condition of clients."

ONE BIG obstacle to using the center is finding a way to get there. The center, which serves 34 communities from Livonia to Canton to Flat Rock, does not provide transportation. Seniors living in communities close to Dearborn are more apt to use it than seniors who live a half-hour's drive away.

"That's our biggest problem in getting seniors here," Latuvnik said.

"Seniors are generally brought in by their children and in many cases, it's just too far for them to drive. If they have to travel more than 10-15 minutes, it becomes a burden."

"The whole theory (behind day care) is keeping people out of nursing homes," said Bob Jillette, owner of American House, which costs $18 a day for its care program. That includes meals and all programs that residents of its congregate housing program participate in.

"What the real problem of these people living at home is that they need security and supervision," he added.

American House offers its program from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Ray, of the day care center association, attributed the lack of senior day care centers to funding. "Funding is scarce and comes from many sources," she said. "There are people who would love to start a day care center, but the money has gotten tighter. The only ones that are surviving are the ones which got started years ago."

The Dearborn center is funded through the Area Agency on Aging, while many of the 14 other centers scattered throughout Michigan represented in the association have had to scramble for other federal or state funds or charge for their services, Ray said.

IN SPITE OF all the obstacles, there are rays of hope for seniors looking for day care. It's called home day care, and new companies, staffed by nurses and paraprofessionals, are climbing on the bandwagon constantly.

"I'm not sure that day care is the answer," said Jillette of American House. "People might be better served in their homes."

The thriving home day care field gets around transportation and bad weather hurdles by bringing help into the home of seniors. Most charge a fee for their services.

The Dearborn day care center, Latuvnik said, "draws the line" on seniors who can't control their bodily functions or seniors who "flatly refuse" to stay at the center once they are brought there.

Home day care personnel step in to help such seniors, as well as seniors who need someone to bath them, administer medicine to them, cook for them, clean for them, talk to them or take them somewhere.

The best place to start to get home day care information is to call Sylvia Kozorosky, deputy director of the Westland Department of Aging (722-7628). She has at her fingertips the names of organizations and businesses who do this and can match up what a senior needs to the group which can do it best. She can also match up a senior's ability to pay with an organization which will come to the home for that fee.

While Kozorosky feels strongly about the ability of seniors to get out of their home ("Social deprivation is insidious," she said. "When people go out, they become active again. They have a future and have something to talk about"), she also knows there are seniors who find going out an ordeal.

"These groups fill a great need," she said.

Senior adults at this day care facility in Dearborn enjoyed a holiday celebration among their activities, but area residents who work find it difficult to transport their loved ones that distance on a daily basis.

Mary Adamiotis of Westland travels to Dearborn for activities and meals offered at a day care facility there.

Meanwhile, Karl Arpigan takes advantage of a comfortable chair at this day care facility for a quick nap. A similar facility used to be housed in one of the unused buildings on the grounds of Wayne County General Hospital, Michigan and Merriman in Westland.

Staff photos
by Bill Bresler

TWO ORGANIZATIONS Kozorosky works closely with are Homemaker Service of Metropolitan Detroit, a non-profit, United-Fund supported service which helps seniors in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb Counties; and Medical Personnel Pool, the Southfield-based business already mentioned.

Homemaker, said executive director Danice Chisholm, has set priorities in determining which calls to respond to first.

"Seniors who are the most physically ill get our first priority," she said. "Seniors who need meals fixed are in the middle and seniors who need housework done are at the bottom. We are geared toward helping those who have some kind of physical problem where they need lots of intensive help. We help to stabilize the problem in the home and help keep families together."

Homemaker, which has a staff of 65 full-time paraprofessionals, sets its fee on the senior's ability to pay. Those who have insurance or have a middle income are charged a fee, while lower income seniors get the help free.

PERSONNEL Medical Pool, which is accredited by the National Home Caring Council, charges $6 an hour for the same services as Homemaker, but they set no priorities. There is a four-hour minimum in coming to a home.

"We have specially-trained personnel who will cook dinner, take a senior out shopping and give companionship," said nursing associate director Sherman.

The company sends out Ann Triemstra, a registered nurse, to interview each senior who asks for regular help, Sherman said.

"She evaluates each patient, goes through every single area so we can understand the (senior's) problems," Sherman said. "She finds seniors who have high-blood pressure and don't know it and seniors who are supposed to take medication but don't. She finds out all the kinds of things that need to be straightened out."

American House charges $5.75 an hour, with a two-hour minimum for its homemaking service. Jillette said that service includes housekeeping chores and meal preparation.

"These are things that could have been done by the government and were picked up by the Carter administration," said Jillette. "But with Reagan's emphasis on free enterprise, private groups are picking up on a very small part of the need."

City will be site for new 56-unit townhouse complex

By Maurie Walker
staff writer

At a period when new construction is in the doldrums, Westland, at least, can look forward to the construction of a new townhouse apartment complex.

To be located on the northwest corner of Hunter and Yale, the complex will have 56 one-story units with one and two bedrooms.

The Westland City Council at its last meeting unanimously approved the site plan that had been requested by Cardinal Industries of Columbus, Ohio.

Bill Martin, representing the firm, said the prefabricated units would rent starting at $280 per month.

"We plan to start construction next summer," he told the council.

Cardinal Industries was founded in 1954 and today manufactures and sells studio, one-, two- and three-bedroom apartments as well as all the units to make a complete motel at its two manufacturing facilities, one in Columbus, the other in Sanford, Fla.

The units leave the factory on specially designed and built trailers. When they arrive at the construction site, they are ready for quick, easy setting up, Martin said.

The units are placed on their foundations by the firm's own crews.

"An apartment or motel is quickly set, secured to its foundation in a manner meeting all local codes, tied into utilities and, with a minimum of exterior finishing, are ready for occupancy," he explained.

THE TYPE of apartments to be opened in Westland will have a private front entrance and a fenced-in patio.

The bedrooms have large closets, color-coordinated kitchen appliances and plenty of cupboard space. Sinks are stainless steel.

There is a special sound-controlling wall construction that prevents most normal sounds from filtering into the apartment of the one next door.

There is a floored, lighted attic that is accessible from fold-away stairs.

The two bedroom apartments provide utility space for extra shelves, sewing machine, or washer and dryer.

The company lists numerous energy-saving features in the units.

There is fiberglass insulation in the ceiling, double walls between apartments with seven inches of insulation, four layers of one-half inch drywall between apartments, insulating dead air space, and extra fiberglass insulation in the floors.

The units also have double paned insulating windows and a decorative steel door with insulating foam core and magnetic weather-stripping to eliminate drafts.

Martin said at most of the developments, the resident managers live on the premise.

"This is what we hope to have in the Westland complex," he said.

"Our company has a training center for recruiting and training resident managers to manage developments," he added.

Seminar helps smokers quit

Smokers who want to start the year out right by quitting smoking will have their chance next week under Dr. Arthur Weaver's popular stop-smoking seminar. Conducting the seminar along with Dr. Weaver is John Swanson, a health education specialist.

The seminar is scheduled to start at 7:30 p.m. Monday and continue through Friday at Franklin High School, 31000 Joy.

Dr. Weaver is a Wayne State University professor of surgery and is active in the Wayne County Council on Smoking and Health. He is best known for his long-standing fight against tobacco.

Swanson is program coordinator for Better Living Seminars, a non-profit corporation which offers educational sessions in the fields of nutrition, exercise and health.

Together Weaver and Swanson have helped more than 60,000 smokers quit in the Detroit area.

The coming seminar will consist of lectures, audio-visual aids and group therapy. Each participant will receive a personal control booklet with instructions and encouragement for each day of the withdrawal program. In five days, participants are free of the need to smoke, according to the seminar leaders.

There is no registration. A donation is taken to cover expenses. For information on other seminars, call 459-2028 or 459-0894.

Bare trees open up new, stark views for photos

Don't think for a minute, because fall leaves and colors are gone, that trees become boring photographic subjects.

On the contrary, trees are always fascinating and are a favorite subject for my camera no matter what the season.

In winter and early spring, trees offer a whole new appearance — one of starkness and boldness as bare branches reach outward and upward in dramatic, geometric, and sometimes romantic patterns.

MANY SCENES that perhaps were blocked by summer foliage will now be visible, and you can use curving twigs and branches to "frame" your subject just as you might have used foreground foliage in the summer.

Use a small enough aperture to get the depth of field you need to render both the foreground and background in sharp focus. The depth-of-field scale on the lens barrel, or your camera's depth preview button, will assure that everything will be sharp. Out-of-focus branches will spoil what may have been an exception shot.

Bare trees and branches can also be shot against the sky to obtain stark, graphic designs that often will display the beautiful flowing patterns of nature.

BEGIN BY studying the composition in the viewfinder carefully to make sure there's a balance and flow to the elements in your picture. Try to get a certain "rhythm" in your shot.

Then, take your exposure reading off the sky, and the branches will appear as a design of black silhouettes.

Tree silhouettes work especially well against a dramatic sunset or cloud pattern, too. If you desire to show some detail and texture in the gnarled branches, open up one or two f-stops and then take your shot.

GO OUTSIDE if it should snow. The contrast between fallen snow and dark branches is dramatic and will reward you with many exciting pictures.

Whether it's an overall scene of bare trees in a field of fallen snow or an intimate shot of a single branch laced delicately with a few frosty flakes, you'll be glad you braved the chill.

So let your photographic knowledge branch out by letting bare trees and branches add a new and challenging dimension to your photography.

A dramatic sunset was given more intensity when Monte Nagler shot it using a leafless tree in the foreground.

A frame of bare branches adds impact to Monte Nagler's picture of a barn.

Looking toward 1983

A new year is about to begin. Almost everyone looks to 1983 to bring new dreams, new experiences, fresh starts, heightened accomplishments.

But for some, there's certainty that 1983 will bring a new kind of life. Those marrying in the year that's ahead, those expecting a first baby, those beginning a new job or a new business — all await the new year with special anticipation.

Look ahead with these, your neighbors, as they dream their dreams for 1983. And then pull out and polish up your own dreams.

The new year is just around the corner.

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

Lorrie Hinken is getting a nursery ready for a new arrival late in January.

Their big event is a new baby

The room will be a happy yellow. Tiny clothes will be hanging in the closet. A crib will be set up. All will be in readiness when the first baby born to Randy and Lorrie Hinken of Westland comes home from the hospital very early in 1983.

Friends have advised Lorrie to anticipate a girl, but she is ready for a child of either sex. The non-committal color of the room announces that.

"I'm excited," announced Lorrie. "I will probably stay home with it if at all possible. I don't want to miss the first smile or the first steps."

Having looked after a small nephew in her younger days, she is not expecting a mom's life to be easy.

"That taught me children are a big responsibility," she commented. "I also learned that babies take a lot more time than I thought. But I think I'll love every minute."

Lorrie and Randy Hinken enrolled in Lamaze childbirth preparation classes taught by the Plymouth Childbirth Education Association.

"I wanted my husband to be with me during the birth," said Lorrie. "I've heard so much about it. My friends and relatives rave about it. I think it's great for a husband to be there and experience that closeness."

Phil Hargrave has big ideas about this big tire.

New firm saying yes to the Detroit economy

"People in the Detroit area are tough," said Phil Hargrave, branch manager of a tire firm that recently moved into Livonia. "They'll be fighting back, and we're going to be part of it."

The Brad Ragan Commercial Tire Center located on Schoolcraft, with access to the Jeffries expressway, was moved here from Brighton. The owners are optimistic about 1983 and believe that the Detroit area "is still alive."

According to the manager the company plans to use "all our capital investment to service the Detroit area." It intends to be very aggressive and increase its advertising and sales efforts, said Hargrave.

This national organization is not looking for business from the owners of automobiles.

"We're after the truck and heavy construction business," said Hargrave. He said that the biggest tire made by the company is 360x51. One of them costs $30,000. They have been purchased by the Ford Motor Co. for use on trucks transporting heavy steel slabs used in auto manufacturing.

"We repair tires," said Hargrave. "We pump a compound into them and cure them. Then you could put a nail or piece of steel into the tire and it doesn't go flat."

The company is readying its mobile equipment to service the tires of vehicles used in snow removal.

"We can pull up on the site, and repair it there," said the manager. "Or if there is a cut, we can pull off the tire and return it here to repair. If we can repair the tire for a couple of hundred bucks, we can help them, and they help us."

What's ahead? Some snow

We're really talking anticipation when thinking about the winter work of the Garden City Department of Public Services. Its graders, plows, dump trucks, front end loaders and salt trucks are ready to roll almost at the sign of the first snowflake.

Like everyone else, department personnel has been caught up with various dire theories pointing to a cold and snowy winter. They've heard stories about bears up north buying down jackets and fish holding their noses and diving deep.

They've listened to expectations that nature will respond furiously to pay us back for a mild fall.

"We have 100 miles of roads and we plow them all," said John Preston, DPS director, whose job it is to expect the worst. "I can't see any community not having a snow removal program. A public service department has an obligation to people to help them get out after snowfall. We've had a lot of compliments for our rapid progress in cleaning the streets."

"We spend a lot on overtime, and we use all the manpower available. But we usually have the streets completely cleaned within 48 hours after the snow. Within six to eight hours we have made one pass down the center of the streets so people can get out. We widen this later."

Preston sees no solution to the problem of plows that pile up snow in residents' driveways. However, residents in communities with little snow removal might welcome a problem like as this.

The city is tough about parked cars during a snow emergency. Residents would be wise to get them off the streets when the snow flies. A city ordinance states that whenever snow or ice has accumulated to a depth of three inches or more on any street, a parking prohibition automatically goes into effect.

Many Garden City residents never see the members of their DPS. The streets are often plowed when everyone is asleep. They may also not know that these men are often sent into muddy holes underground in the cold and wet to repair water mains that break this time of year.

Plenty of study brought Virginia Bixler to a bachelor degree and a new outlook for 1983.

Yes, Virginia, the future beckons

Virginia Bixler of Westland expects that she will work as a substitute teacher in 1983 instructing special education classes in the Wayne-Westland or Romulus school district.

She knows it will be challenging. But no matter how hard it is, "it won't be as demanding as the past five years when she was struggling to earn her bachelor's degree from Eastern Michigan University while rearing two small children.

This December she wound up her undergraduate career practice teaching emotionally impaired children aged 9-11 at Hawthorn Center.

She summed up her brief teaching experience in three words, "I love it."

For her husband Dennis and their two children Elizabeth, 2, and Dennis, 5, having their mother/wife at school was not always easy.

"It put a strain on family life," admitted Bixler. But she is convinced there is no way a family can make it today when there is house and children and only one income.

Her husband is proud of her. It was he who called this newspaper suggesting that a story be written about her.

"After all that time and work she is due some recognition," he said. "I don't see enough meaningful things in the newspapers. When someone puts four or five years into studying, works part time and takes care of a family, it should be more than one of those unheralded acts women go through every day."

Dennis is also a teacher, dividing his time between day classes in East Detroit and adult education in the Wayne-Westland district.

"We had to make sacrifices," said Virginia. "But in the long run I'll have a job that has me home when the children are. They won't suffer."

Lloyd Forbes and Pearl Campbell stride energetically down the halls of Presbyterian Village in Redford.

Theirs is a secure feeling for 1982

Pearl Campbell and Lloyd Forbes are two senior citizens who are strolling into 1983 with confidence. That is because they live in Presbyterian Village in Redford Township, a retirement facility.

They feel happy and secure there. "I like it here because I'm kept busy," said Campbell, a vigorous woman of 89. "I volunteer to help with the mail and bingo. During the holidays we've been busy with the mail, sometimes working until 3:30 p.m."

Campbell feels she has many friends in the village. "There are 40 people here from my own church, Redford Presbyterian," she smiled. "I've made many new friends because of my volunteer work."

Forbes, 77, feels he is in good health today following eye surgery. "I'm optimistic about my health," he said. "I enjoy life here. It's a fine place to be. I don't know what would have happened to me without it with my surgery. I wish there were a hundred more."

Forbes is worried about the economy. A former employe in the composing rooms of the Detroit Times and the Detroit News newspapers, he believes the auto industry will never again be "as we knew it."

However, the active septuagenarian could not talk long. His daughter Sheila Zeiner of Redford had dropped in for a visit and was waiting for him.

Campbell is more optimistic about the economy. "It goes in cycles," she said. "This can't last forever."

These invitations to the January wedding of Sarah of Union Lake have already been accepted by relatives and friends.

Starting a new year hand in hand

"We'd thought we'd start the year off right and get married," announced Sarah Ann Dell of Redford. She'll be wed in January to Michael Patrick Balbaugh of Union Lake.

To exchange vows in Redford's Our Lady of Loretto Catholic Church, she will wear a wedding dress made for her by her grandmother, Edna Miller-schln of Lapeer. She described it as plain satin with a high collar.

After the marriage ceremony there will be a wedding trip. She and her husband are looking forward to seeing Niagara Falls in a winter setting of ice and snow when they visit this traditional mecca of honeymooners.

Once they return home they will move their wedding gifts into their apartment in Utica.

Sarah, who is 22, has lived in Redford about 12 years, graduating in 1980 from Redford Union High School. She works as a nurse's aide at Presbyterian Village but will be looking for work closer to home once she sets her house in order.

Michael, 21, works as a computer programmer in Southfield.

Hopes for the future include possibly three children and a lot where they can build their own home.

The bride's parents are George and Joan Fredericks of Appleton Street, Redford. The bridegroom is the son of Esther LaBenne of Dearborn Heights. Samuel Tisson officiated for the ceremony. A reception followed in the

There were flower-filled parasols that complemented their rose-colored lace dresses and wide-brimmed hats. Donna Fredericks was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Sharon Merrill, Trudy LaBenne, Marie MacAuley and Martha LaBenne. Melissa McCarthy was junior bridesmaid, and Dawn LaBenne was flower girl. The bridegroom and his attendants wore ivory tuxedos. David LaBenne was best man, and Ben Gilardon, David Pett, James LaBenne, Daniel LaBenne were groomsmen. Tim LaBenne was junior groomsmen. After a wedding trip to the Upper Peninsula, the couple went to Atlanta to live. Margaret Miller

It's been a tremendous 16 years

How do you choose words when it comes to saying farewell to a big chunk of your life?

I've been mulling that question as I wind up my time as Suburban Life editor for these Observer newspapers. I realized recently I've spent more time being an Observer editor than I've spent doing anything else except going to school. It was nine years with the Associated Press and 13 with home and family the full-time occupation. But it's 16 on the job I'm leaving now.

In the first week of 1983, the man of our house and I will point our old car south and take on a different lifestyle in the Florida condominium we bought a few years ago. With our daughters making their own lives in areas as far flung as New England and Alaska, we've decided to make the dreamed-of retirement move while we're yet in position to put down some new roots among the palms and gulf sands.

But the choice of words as I leave is important. I want them to convey appreciation, to all the people I've written about, to all I've written for, to all I've written with.

I also want them to hold both the nostalgia over the people and scenes I leave and the excitement I feel over our new venture.

FOR STARTERS, I'll say I really think I've been in one of the best places, at the very best time for one of the top news stories of the century.

The women's movement and all its ramifications probably has changed more lives than any other event you could name. It's precisely in these 16 years that we have seen the new order, and the suburban scene is where a great deal of the action has been.

When I started by editing a section called "Women," I tended to refer to the woman I wrote about, Mrs. John Smith. It was a major story when she ran for office, went back to college or was successful in business.

Now my section is labeled "Suburban Life." It's Mary Smith, just plain Smith on second reference, and she's one of a great host of returning students and successful businesswomen and politicians.

Furthermore, I also have my share of stories about John Smith. What has happened in changing women's lives has a great effect on his world, too.

I SEE CHANGE with great clarity when I think of my own situation. When I first went to work, the newspaper world was pretty non-traditional and unwelcoming for a woman.

When our girls were past babyhood and I went back to work, I found far greater acceptance among colleagues. But I saw my work as something I made time for beyond my nurturing role at home.

Now I watch my daughter and her husband, both engineers, sharing more than we ever could the nurturing responsibilities with their small daughter while fully planning on a two-career household at some future date.

And I see our other daughters in the ministry, the military and the academic world and realize anew how different things are these days.

It's been exciting, both to live with the change and to write about it, and of course the story goes right on. Marie McGee, my successor, and Sherry Kahan, for years my very trusted reporter, are sure to have a lot more social change to report to these communities.

HAM THAT I am, I have to admit to having a lot of fun with filling this particular space as the years have gone along.

And there I must express special appreciation to my family for providing an endless supply of subject matter for columns and an endless supply of tolerance in reading them.

Only once, when writing about romance on the junior high level, did I consult with a daughter before going into print. And never once has any family member voiced objections to what appeared in the paper.

One colleague noted I keep a note of hope in these efforts. I guess that's true, not because there are no problems but because I thrive only in an atmosphere of optimism.

And a friend commented after our Alaska wedding adventure that people who don't know me might well think "she's making it all up." I don't think that's true. People know darn well I'm not fabricating, because the experiences are common and shared.

I know this because I hear, not only from readers who have had graduations and weddings and grandchildren, but also from the ones who let their car's gas tanks get down to fumes and those who present birthday gifts in paper bags.

THE GOOD part of this leavetaking is that it isn't complete. I'll continue to fill this space. It will be different, of course, because I'll be different.

I'll try to pass on how it feels to live in a different state for the very first time in 60 years. And how a super-busy person adjusts to more leisure. How a husband and wife get schedules properly meshed after years of different coming and goings. How we work out being long-distance parents and grandparents.

In short, it will be how I see the retirement picture. It's cloudy now, but it should get a lot clearer.

The retirement events are history now, and I can't leave without mentioning the surprise party of the century my colleagues threw for me. The temporary quarters are being emptied, the boxes are being stacked for one more moving van.

And I keep remembering when we were preparing for a long-ago vacation and one of the girls marched up to her room, announcing "It's time to pack up." It's time now, and I'm packing up, leaving behind many thanks and an "au revoir."

Try a zero-proof drink for accident-proof driving

It's a challenge to mix a great tasting holiday drink without adding some alcohol.

Several area bartenders, though, proved it can be done during "The Great Pretenders" competition sponsored by the Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Trying to get something together that has a good taste but no liquor wasn't easy," said contest winner Julie Piehl, a bartender at Troy's Eden restaurant. Her "Merry Berry Mint" mixture of cranberries, mint patties and ice cream was judged best overall.

"It took a couple weeks of trying." Part of the Auto Club's "First a Friend, Then a Host," holiday traffic-safety program, "The Great Pretenders" started three years ago when the organization collected non-alcoholic drink recipes and distributed them to the public.

The past two years, local bartenders competed for spots in the "The Great Pretenders Mixing Guide" which is available free in the Auto Club's 56 state offices.

The Auto Club started the "First a Friend, Then a Host" program to stress sensible use of alcohol and safe driving during the holiday season.

Most of the recipes in "The Great Pretenders" require ice cream, egg nog or fruit juices and are garnished with candies, nuts and fruits and served in fancy cocktail glasses.

"These drinks are a lot of fun to serve and help take attention away from the bar," explained Linda Lyles, Auto Club contributing editor.

AUTO CLUB'S ABC's of party giving are:

- Alcohol alertness — Make sure your guests' ability to drive is not impaired. As the hour becomes late, shut off all alcoholic beverages and continue to turn on a good supply of food. Don't encourage anyone to have "one for the road" unless it's a non-alcoholic beverage. Never press drinks on unwilling guests.

- Buffet — Serve mashed potatoes, beans and other starchy foods. Partygoers who start with full stomachs help retard the flow of alcohol into their blood.

- Car pool — Once guests have had too much to drink, only time can make them sober. It takes an hour for the body to burn off each ounce of alcohol consumed. So the best thing you can do for intoxicated guests is to have someone who hasn't been drinking drive them home.

"The Great Pretenders Mixing Guide" includes:

MERRY BERRY MINT — Julie Piehl, Eden Glen Restaurant, Troy

4 scoops Haagen-Dazs vanilla ice cream
2 oz. half-and-half
1 heaping tbsp cranberries
5 mint patties mint sprig candy cane
whipped cream

Blend until creamy. Pour in wine glass. Top with whipped cream. Garnish with mint sprig and candy cane.

TOFFEE VICTORIA — Ken Wiloughby, Victoria Station, Southfield

3 scoops vanilla ice cream
3 Heath candy bars
4 oz. half-and-half whipped cream
chocolate sprinkles
Put ice cream, Heath bars and half-and-half in a blender. Blend about 10 seconds to a thick liquid. Pour into two 5 oz. stemmed glasses, fill to ¾ inch from rim. Decorate with whipped cream topping, then chocolate sprinkles.

SKOL NOEL (Lo-Cal winner), Shella A. Sadowski of Livonia, Hotel Pontchartrain's Charley's Raw Bar, Detroit

¼ cup sugar
¼ tsp allspice
¼ tsp cinnamon
1/16 tsp nutmeg
1 pinch of cloves
apple cider
ginger beer or dry ginger ale orange, lime or lemon slice

Combine dry ingredients well. Use to rim 12 oz. glass or mug. Rim glass with citrus slice and sugar mixture. Combine two parts cider with one part chilled ginger beer. Serve cold over ice or serve hot by mixing heated cider with room-temperature ginger beer. Garnish with a slice of the fruit used on rim.

BUTTERFINGER SPECTACULAR — Mike Ziolkowski, Buggy works Restaurant's Horse-Feather Saloon, Farmington Hills

6 oz. coffee cream
2 large scoops butterbrickle ice cream

1 2.16 oz. Butterfinger candy bar
1 tsp whipped cream
1 tsp chocolate curls

Blend coffee cream and candy bar at high speed, just long enough to pulverize candy. Add ice cream and blend at high speed for about 30 seconds. Pour into glass, garnish with whipped cream and chocolate curls.

Growing antlers: buck's yearly job

By Lem Meese
Outdoors writer

Ever wonder why you don't see buck deer, elk or moose in late winter?

The bucks of these species grow antlers, not true horns, and shed them every year.

If you've been to Isle Royale National Park to see Michigan's only moose, or if you have spotted a bull elk in the Pigeon River country of the northeastern Lower Peninsula, you may have trouble swallowing that tale.

But it's true. Those magnificent racks are the products of a single summer's growth, according to state game biologists.

The common Virginia white-tailed deer, the elk and the moose are all members of the Cervidae family and have antlers. True horns are possessed by cows, sheep, goats and antelope. When they break a horn, it's gone for good.

Bucks use their antlers principally for fighting off rival bucks during mating season. Rarely is there a fight to the death.

Deer also change color in winter. They grow grey, rough coats in cold weather rather than the reddish, rust-colored coat of warm weather.

Deer like a diverse habitat — woods, swamps, glades. There are probably more deer in Michigan now than in the days when our peninsulas were entirely forested.

They are browsers rather than grazers. Deer don't limit their diet to grasses, like cattle and sheep, but can eat twigs, leaves, acorn and bark.

ANY BALD eagles on your favorite hiking trail?

The state Department of Natural Resources will conduct its annual mid-winter bald eagle survey Jan. 2-16. If you spot America's national bird during those two weeks, note the date, hour, and location by township and county.

Your contact: Tim Payne, DNR district wildlife supervisor, 2455 N. Williams Lake Road, Pontiac 48054; telephone 666-1500.

AT THE Huron-Clinton Metroparks this weekend:

• "Plants in Winter," 10 a.m. Sunday, Jan. 2 at Kensington Metropark nature center south of Milford. Naturalist Mark Szabo will discuss uses of winter plants during a 1.5 mile hike across woods and field. There's a vehicle admission to the park, but the program is free. To register, call the nature center at 685-1561.

• "Tracks — Stories in Snow," 2 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 2 at Kensington nature center. Mark Szabo will lead this 90-minute hike to identify animal tracks. (Hope you spot the side-hill wampus — the creature whose legs are shorter on one side of his body than on the other because it lives on the side of a hill.) To register, call the nature center.

• The third annual New Year's bird count will run from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 2 at Oakwoods Metropark, near Flat Rock in southern Wayne County. Park naturalists and bird watchers may spend as little or as much time as they wish in their assigned areas. Bring binoculars.

ICE CONDITIONS are still pretty treacherous across most of southern Michigan.

Prior to the Christmas weekend thaw, there had been a little fishing on bays on Pontiac, Cass and Kent lakes.

Most winters, we have a zero snap on New Year's Eve, and that gives us the first fishing ice of the season.

Watch this space next week for news of how to get beginning ice fishing lessons. Meanwhile, the best rule for judging the safeness of ice is this bit of doggerel any child can remember:

"One inch — stay off.
Two inches — one may.
Three inches — small groups
Four inches — OK."

To which we would add: "Five inches — safe for snowmobiles."

Now everything you've always wanted for less... is less.

Our Annual Sale—
December 26 to January 31
when almost everything is 10% to 40% off regular prices.

At Workbench, we don't have lots of storewide sales. Just one a year. But it's a dilly. Because we mark down all our best stuff. Not just a few things. Not even just a lot of things. But almost everything. And mark down is all we do. Because, unlike a lot of other places, we don't bring in so-called specials or things no one wants or that were over-priced in the first place. At Workbench we just go through the store with our red pencil and slash prices. Which means that right now you'll find Workbench's best at 10% to 40% less than you'd expect to pay.

That's right. 10% to 40% off on butcher block tables, upholstery, storage systems, bookcases, carts, music benches, desks and chair after chair after chair. Even the already reduced "Foreign Policy" prices on most of our imports have been further price cut for this sale.

Of course, there are a few things currently oversold that we can't put on sale. But, odds are, the great things you've been promising yourself to get are here.

Is there a catch? Only time.

Because we have only one storewide sale a year. And it lasts only until January 31. So hurry. Because if you wait too long, you'll have to wait a whole year for our sale to come around again. And that's more time than anyone should spend waiting to spend less.

Our solid oak 28" high butcher block cart opens from 18 x 33" to 18 x 48" include a lower storage shelf, extra sturdy legs and casters

roll call report

Brodhead, Broomfield buck cruise ship deduction

Here's how area members were recorded on major roll call votes in the closing days of the lame-duck session of the 97th Congress.

HOUSE

CRUISE SHIPS - The House passed, 227 for and 172 against, and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 3191) allowing persons attending a convention on a cruise ship to claim the voyage as a business tax deduction.

The bill applies to conventions on U.S. flag ships that stop only at "North American area" ports of call during the confab.

Sponsor Fortney Stark, D-Calif., said the bill would make U.S. cruise ships "competitive with U.S. hotel facilities and create jobs in the cruise ship industry" at a "negligible" cost to the Treasury.

Opponent Don Pèase, D-Ohio, called the bill "a tax loophole for well-off Americans" and said "try to tell the average citizen that a convention held aboard a cruise ship is not a vacation in disguise."

Members voting yes wanted cruise ship conventions to be tax deductible. Voting yes: Rep. Dennis Hertel, D-Detroit.

Voting no: Reps. William Brodhead, D-Detroit, and William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

Not voting: Reps. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, William Ford, D-Taylor, and James Blanchard, D-Pleasant Ridge.

CONTEMPT - The House voted, 259 for and 105 against, to cite Anne Gorsuch for contempt of Congress for the refusal to provide a House committee with Environmental Protection Agency

"Superfund" documents the panel had subpoenaed.

EPA Administrator Gorsuch said that with President Reagan's backing she would withhold the documents under the "executive privilege" doctrine. The criminal citation now rests with the U.S. attorney, although the Justice Department is seeking to change it to a civil proceeding.

Supporter James Howard, D-N.J., said the proceeding was necessary "to assure that this Congress may meet its responsibilities under the Constitution to the people we represent."

Opponent Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., said the contempt action "won't solve any real environmental problems" and that the House could have averted it through additional negotiations with the EPA.

Members voting yes wanted to cite Gorsuch for Contempt of Congress.

Voting yes: Reps. Hertel, Ford and Brodhead.

Not voting: Reps. Pursell, Blanchard and Broomfield.

CARIBBEAN BASIN - The House passed, 260 for and 142 against, and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 7397) to give Caribbean nations greater access to U.S. markets, stimulate U.S. investment in the Caribbean, and provide direct financial aid to non-Marxist governments of the region.

President Reagan backs the legislation as needed to assure political stability and economic growth in the Caribbean. But organized labor and other foes say the program will damage U.S. industries and take away U.S. jobs.

Supporter Clay Shaw, R-Fla., said "these countries right now are ripe for picking off by the Communists."

Opponent John Burton, D-Calif., said "we could do a lot more for the Caribbean Basin if we could do something for the economy of this country."

Members voting yes favored the president's Caribbean Basin initiative.

Voting yes: Reps. Pursell and Broomfield.

Voting no: Reps. Hertel, Ford and Brodhead.

Not voting Rep. Blanchard.

U.S. SENATE

GAS TAX - By a vote of 56 for and 34 against, the Senate passed and sent to conference with the House a bill (HR 6211) to raise the federal gasoline tax from four cents per gallon to nine cents, effective next April 1.

The bill, which is aimed mainly at raising money to repair highways and create jobs in the process, also permits larger trucks to use federal roads.

Despite this vote, conservatives later delayed adoption of the conference report on the bill - the final step before the measure went to the White House. The filibuster, which developed largely into a question of whether the GOP White House could continue its two-year-long control of the GOP Senate, eventually was broken on an 81-5 cloture vote.

Voting against cloture - to continue the talkathon, - were GOP Sens. Jesse Helms and John East of North Carolina, and Sens. J.J. Exon, D-Neb., Don Nickles, R-Okla., and William Proxmire, D-Wisc.

Supporting cloture, Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., said the bill was necessary to halt "the deterioration of the roads and bridges in this country."

Opponent Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., said "I will not give the citizens... a tax increase for Christmas."

Senators voting yes favored the higher federal gasoline tax. Carl Levin, D-Mich., voted yes.

Donald Riegle, D-Mich., voted no.

STOPGAP FUNDING - The Senate adopted, 55 for and 41 against, and sent to the president the conference report on HJ Res 631, which funds much of the government through next Sept. 30.

The measure is a "stopgap" substitute for eight regular appropriations bills Congress has been unable to pass. It funds a pay hike for House members, scores of "pork barrel" and special interest projects, and basic operating budgets of several departments and agencies.

Supporter Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., said "the sooner we adjourn and go home, the better off the republic will be."

Opponent Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., said his no vote was to protest "the slipshod, slapdash" condition of the appropriations process.

Senators voting yes supported the stopgap funding measure.

Levin and Riegle voted no.

DOCTORS - By a vote of 59 for and 37 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to virtually prohibit Federal Trade Commission regulation of state-licensed professions.

This was an attempt to go beyond pending language that banned FTC regulation of professional matters but allowed the FTC to regulate the business practices of doctors and other professionals. The vote occurred during debate on HJ Res 631 (see preceding vote).

Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., who voted to kill the amendment, said the FTC should not meddle in professional matters regulated by states but "let us regulate anti-competitive practices" by doctors, lawyers and others.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, who sponsored the amendment, said it would stop the FTC's notorious fishing expeditions and disruptions" into the professions.

Senators voting no wanted the strongest possible restraint on FTC regulation of state-licensed professions, including a ban on regulation of business practices. Levin and Riegle voted yes.

1982 Sports Review

State champions bask in end-of-year limelight

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

THRILLS AND CHILLS, upsets and comebacks, controversy and coming-of-age, blowouts and blow-ups. That covers just about everything that happened in Observerland sports in 1982. Everyone will have their various memories of '82, some spectacular, some graciously forgettable. A few are recounted here, including a handful of the more-bizarre-sports happenings of the last 12 months.

It may appear that there is no apparent order to this recollection, and that surmise is indeed true. As memory fades, order becomes jumbled and not easily separated. Each is labeled, though, but remember: What you recall could vary with what's written here. Sometimes, the events billed as most important are the least remembered (Super Bowls, for example).

BEST ATHLETES — On the local prep scene there were several: Westland John Glenn's Kelly Graham, winner of a pair of Class A state titles in girls' track; John Beaudoin, Plymouth Salem's state wrestling champion; Jennifer Rioux and Kelly Champagne, both from Livonia Ladywood and both among the state's best distance runners; Mary Schoenle, Livonia Stevenson's sophomore swimming sensation; Dan Smith, Plymouth Canton's pitching great; Carlos Briggs, scoring sensation, and Karen Kelley, volleyball All-American, at Schoolcraft College; and many others.

But my nominees for best all-around athletes are Kim Archer of Livonia Bentley and Gary Mexicotte of Stevenson.

Archer, now a senior, has been among the best athletes in the state for the past three years. She's rated the second-best girls basketball player in Michigan (17 points, 14 rebounds, six assists and five steals per game) and is near the top in softball (.600 batting average with 11 homers, 47 RBI and a .988 fielding percentage). She also excelled in volleyball.

Mexicotte, also a senior, led the Spartans to the Class A soccer title by setting a new state standard for goal scoring (48), bringing his three-year total to 107. He also had 16 assists and was named to the All-America squad. Mexicotte starts for a very good Stevenson basketball team and scores about 10 points per game.

WORST DECISION — This most dubious honor goes to the Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA), in regard to the Marty Piper affair last spring before the state wrestling regionals.

Piper was among the top four heavyweight wrestlers in the state and was awaiting his district final match at Temperence-Bedford Feb. 20 when he decided to go out to dinner with his mother. On the way back, his mother was involved in an auto accident and Marty missed his match.

Temperence-Bedford athletic director Joe Kennelly filed in his results that Piper finished second. But Lonnie Lowery of the MHSAA said Piper was disqualified because "A forfeit shall eliminate a contestant from further competition in a tournament except when the forfeit is because of an injury or illness that occurred in a previous round in the same tournament."

Salem coach Ron Kreuger protested, noting that any changes in results must be made within 48 hours according to state rules. None were made until four days had passed.

The MHSAA stuck to its strict interpretation of the rules and overruled Kreuger's seemingly valid objections. Lost in all the regulation-flinging was Piper, who never got a shot at a state title.

LONGEST BATTLE — Remember this one? Livonia Bentley boys' basketball fans do. The Bulldogs went four overtimes before downing Dearborn Edsel Ford, 61-53, in the Observer's longest game of the 1981-82 season. Included among the four extra periods were a pair (the first and third) in which neither team scored.

GOOD AND BAD — Plymouth Salem did a commendable job defending Detroit Southwestern superstar Antoine Joubert but still lost the first-round regional basketball game, 63-54. Joubert notched 33 points, but hit just eight of 27 floor shots.

Salem got beat by Eddie Benavides, who tallied 15 points, more than he had scored in the entire season.

STREAK-ENDING — How about John Glenn's boys' swimmers, who stopped North Farmington's reign as Northwest Suburban League champions by beating the Raiders in the league finals by 51 points? North had won the title the 10 previous years before the Rockets intervened.

STREAK-EXTENDING — There's a pair of teams that deserve this title. First, Detroit Catholic Central knocked Stevenson from the state baseball tournament "for the seventh straight year," according to Spartan coach Larry Ruzsas, with a 2-1 pre-district victory.

Salem's girls' basketball team continued its supremacy over rival Canton by sending the Chiefs to the sidelines for the fifth straight year in state district play.

VOIDED OUT — Winning is always nice, but people get involved in sports to play. Not many got that chance last January when Franklin wrestled Bentley in a match with nine voids. Bentley got 30 points without wrestling and won easily, 47-18. All 18 of Franklin's points came on voids in a match that included one double-void.

FAST AND FADE — Schoolcraft College's men's team looked like world-beaters at the outset of last season, winning nine of their first 11 games, with one loss coming against powerful Jackson CC. But the season took a nosedive when rebounding forward Pete Kennedy and point guard Kirk Croxton were lost to grades for the second semester.

The Ocelots tumbled to a 7-9 record the rest of the way to finish 16-11 for the season.

ON A ROLL — Trenton, a perennial state power in prep hockey, looked like it was in the midst of a bad year by last March. The Trojans were tied by Bentley on their own ice early in the season, lost to Stevenson and then were beaten by Catholic Central.

And guess who was in Trenton's state regional? All three teams. But no matter. Trenton went on to take the region title, one win in a come-from-behind contest against CC, and then swept to the state crown.

BEST TIMING — Canton's baseballers trailed Warren Cousino, 2-0, after two innings when, miraculously, the heavens opened and the rains came pouring down. Cleansed of their lethargy, the Chiefs returned to the diamond the next day and whipped Cousino, 10-2, in the Class A state semifinals last June.

WORST TIMING — Unfortunately, the Canton baseball team waited until their first appearance in the state finals to play their "worst game in nine years," according to coach Fred Crissey. The Chiefs got just one hit and lost by one run, 5-4, as Midland pitcher Rick Leppien made four different trips to the mound and slammed a two-run homer in between.

uate, fired a first-round record 64 at the Inverrary Classic on the pro golfers tour in March to take the lead. Unfortunately, Proben's record score didn't help much on the second round as he shot an 81 and missed the cut.

NO PUTTING AROUND — Matt Wiley of Canton holed a 60-foot birdie putt on the last hole, and it proved pivotal as the 25-year-old won the Observer & Eccentric Men's Golf Tournament in September at Whispering Willows Golf Course. Wiley carded a 74-73/147 in capturing the title.

POWERLESS — Bentley won 20 of its first 22 softball games, mainly due to its powerful bat attack. But the Bulldogs' potent offense couldn't handle the pitching of Grandville pitcher Kelly VanderMolen, who stopped Bentley on four hits in a 3-1 victory in the Class A semifinals.

UP AND DOWN — That's the kind of year Livonia's Craig Payne had. A super-heavyweight amateur boxer, Payne's year had more peaks and valleys than the Rocky Mountains. Payne lost to Warren Thompson in the national Golden Gloves finals, then bounced back to win at the National Sports Festival when Tyrell Biggs defaulted in the final match because of an injured hand.

The rollercoaster continued when Payne went international and beat Janosz Zarankiewicz of Poland and Werner Kohnert of East Germany. But then he lost to Angel Millan of Cuba and, in the U.S. Amateur Boxing Championships earlier this month, Thompson came away with a split decision victory.

And all year, Payne never got to fight the man he really wanted to — Biggs.

This year, I resolve to . . .

Here are some worthwhile resolutions for the New Year.

- High-school coaches will call in all their results (win or lose). If you can't do it, coach, assign a competent student and make it part of a work-study experience.
- Cover more soccer and less football. And hold the state soccer championships in the Detroit area, where most of the teams compete.
- Form a statewide high-school officials association.
- Make athletic directors hire competent officials, not ones who are available and friendly.
- Give young officials a chance at the varsity level. Experience is important, but judgment is paramount.
- Make officials call girls' basketball like they do boys'.
- No lawsuits against the MHSAA. If you don't like their style, form your own association.
- Hold district, regional and quarterfinals games in big, modern gyms, not crackerboxes. Cut out Jenison Fieldhouse as a site for the semifinals and finals in boys' basketball.
- MAKE WRESTLING coaches understand the importance of good eating habits. Dropping 30 pounds to wrestle at a certain weight is ridiculous.
- Have the press give Farmington Harrison football coach John Herrington the statewide credit he deserves. Why isn't he ever mentioned for college jobs?
- Set some guidelines for professional baseball scouts. Some youngsters are being hurt.

DOVER Sole, Almondine (boned at your table) or Roast Duckling, Sauce Bigarade (flamed at your table) and Rack of Lamb a la Diable (carved tableside) are included in the New Year menu prepared by Machus Red Fox master chef Leopold Schaeli. The cost of these gustatory delights is $35 per person for the first seating and $40 for the second seating. The second seating includes dancing to the Big Band sounds of Paul Pasfir and the Savoy Swing. Party favors will be available for gala midnight festivities. Both are served in the lower level facility in the Red Fox, Telegraph at Maple, Bloomfield. For reservations call 626-4200.

For those who prefer Chateaubriand for two or stuffed flounder with lobster sauce, the Machus Sly Fox features a special dining room menu for the New Year's Eve celebration. All entrees are served with Machus crock of cheese and crackers, salad and warm French bread. Favors, noisemakers and assorted New Year's Eve paraphernalia are included with dinner at the restaurant, 725 S. Hunter, Birmingham. For reservations, call 642-6900.

WHILE others play, some people must work on New Year's Eve. Charley's Crab in Troy proposes to give them a taste of the end-of-year festivities on Dec. 30. Champagne and noise makers are included, of course. For reservations call 879-2060 or 879-2061.

WHEN midnight arrives and 1982 departs, hosts may discover they need some non-alcoholic drinks to make sure their guests have a safe trip home. The Automobile Club of Michigan suggests serving "The Great Pretenders," drinks with razzmatazz and no alcohol content. Recipes for 33 non-alcoholic drinks have been assembled in a free mixing guide available at the Auto Club's 58 offices throughout the state. The recipes were created by professional bartenders for the Auto Club's Zero Proof Mix-Off, part of its "First a Friend, Then a Host" program.

The Golden Stirrer Award, given to the best overall entry in the mix-off was captured by Julie Piehl, a bartender at Troy's Eden Glen restaurant. Her creation, Merry Berry Mint is made as follows: 4 scoops HaagenDaaz ice cream 2 oz. half-and-half 1 heaping tbl. cranberries 5 mint patties mint sprig candy cane whipped cream Blend until creamy. Pour in wine glass. Top with whipped cream. Garnish with mint sprig and candy cane.

If starchy foods and non-alcoholic drinks fail to whip guests into proper shape for driving, the Auto Club recommends hosts arrange for another, sober guest to drive others home.

THE MICHIGAN Restaurant Association wants revelers to be in their cups this year — their coffee cups that is. Many association members are offering free coffee after midnight on New Year's Eve. Participation in the program is voluntary on the part of MRA members who are identified by the blue and white placemat sign in their establishments' windows.

"Although coffee itself may not have a sobering effect, the time it takes to drink it puts one farther, along the road to sobriety," Henry Montague, MRA president, said.

Montague passes along other tips for safe party-going:

- Drink slowly, since the body absorbs one ounce of alcohol per hour.
- Eat. End a party with food since it helps the body absorb alcohol.
- Use the buddy system in which at least one member of the party is assigned to keep a clear head and do the driving.
- Hosts should be able to find rides or call taxis for guests who shouldn't drive.

Detroit Concert Band records for Sousa film

Providing background music for Teddy Roosevelt is but one of the chores completed by the Detroit Concert Band.

The band, directed by Leonard B. Smith, provided 73 minutes of marches for the film "The Indomitable Teddy Roosevelt." Produced by Harrison Engle and Stoney Kirkpatrick, the television film is narrated by George C. Scott.

"You were marvelous," Engle told band members at the conclusion of five three-hour recording sessions.

He wasn't the first to admire the band's style. In 1970, the BBC flew its television crews to Detroit to film and record the band for its documentary on the life of John Philip Sousa. At that time, its producer, Kenneth Corden, said "the DCB had 'the true Sousa quality and sound'."

Corden spent one year searching for a concert band that could deliver that kind of sound for his project.

In response to requests for recordings after repeat telecasts of the film in the U.S. and abroad, the band produced a series of LPs containing the entire 116-work Sousa catalog. That record series is the Book of the Month Club's current record offering.

Another series of recording sessions this year will be added to the band's series "Gems of the Concert Band." They contain complete concerts recorded just as an audience would hear the band live in an auditorium.

The project follows the DCB's 1982 series of 17 concerts at the John Philip Sousa Memorial Band Shell at the Michigan State Fair Grounds, Detroit. Those performances were financed through private support.
