Council deadline is near

Only four persons, two of them incumbents, have filed as candidates for four seats on the Westland City Council. Filing deadline is 4 p.m. Tuesday.

With the pitched battles that have occurred between the city council and Mayor Charles Pickering since he took office, there is expected to be keen interest in this year's council race. Council members hope that if they are returned to office, the election will signal to the mayor community reaction to the disputes.

The mayor, however, is expected to support a slate of four candidates who are more agreeable to his administration.

As of Wednesday morning, incumbents Thomas Artley and Ben DeHart and challengers Dorothy Smith and Henry Johnson have filed as candidates. Other incumbents also up for reelection — Kent Herbert and Robert Wagner — have said that they, too, will file.

Those who have declared their candidacy, although they have yet to file, include Dan Sabatini and Rick Grajek.

At least 13 people have taken out petitions. The minimum number of signatures required to file is 222; the maximum is 888. All signers must be registered voters.

Since there are four vacancies, more than eight persons will have to file in order for a primary election to be held Tuesday, Sept. 13. After the filing deadline, candidates will have until 4 p.m. Friday, July 29, to withdraw from the race.

FBI talks about role of Qaoud in case-fix

By Mary Klemic
staff writer

Dearborn Heights businessman Sam Qaoud was paid $500 for his help in fixing a Westland drunk driving ticket, with part of the money going to someone Qaoud referred to as "the judge," an FBI special agent testified.

The special agent gave his testimony in U.S. District Court Wednesday morning.

Special agent John Insogna described to the court how, posing as a fictitious real estate investment "wheeler dealer" named John Izzy, he paid Qaoud the money for allegedly fixing a drunk driving case involving a man named Karel Golob.

Charged with case-fixing in the 18th District Court are Qaoud, District Judge Evan Callanan Sr., Evan Callanan Jr., the judge's son, and Richard Debs, president of UAW Local 1776. Insogna was the second witness called by the prosecution in the case, which is in its third week of testimony before U.S. District Court Judge Horace Gilmore.

QAOD NEVER identified who "the judge" was, Insogna told the court. He testified that at one time he asked Qaoud if 18th District Court Judge Thomas Smith was Qaoud's "buddy" and was told that he wasn't.

Government witness Hanna Judeh introduced Izzy to Qaoud when the three met in a back family room at Qaoud's home Oct. 8, 1980, Insogna testified. Tapes of the meeting, which were recorded secretly, were played in court.

In the recording, Izzy told Qaoud that Golob was his brother-in-law who was hiding in Canada after he was issued the drunk driving ticket in Westland in March 1973. Qaoud asked Izzy for such information as Golob's address and driver's license number, when he got the ticket and his birth date. He said he would check Golob's file.

The work would cost "altogether about $500," including $200 for an attorney and some for "the judge," Qaoud said.

Izzy agreed to pay half of the $500 at first, and the remainder after Golob's record was cleared, Insogna testified.

IN ANOTHER recording, made the evening of Oct. 9, 1980, Qaoud told Izzy "another investigator in the city" said the case was "up to the judge. If he came up to the judge, it's no problem, we can take the name off," Qaoud said.

Izzy gave Qaoud an envelope containing the first $250 in an Oct. 16 meeting at Mitch Housey's Restaurant, Insogna testified. He said Qaoud was hesitant at first about taking the money but then took it.

Assistant U.S. attorney Sheldon Light introduced as evidence a sequence of photographs showing Qaoud and Insogna.

Barns, Faust targets of recall due to tax hike

By Sandra Armbruster
editor

Two Westland state legislators may soon become the targets of a recall drive.

On her third try, Phyllis Runion was successful last week in getting wording approved to attempt to recall Democrats William Faust and Justine Barns.

Runion, of 1610 S. Walton in Westland, said she got the idea of recalling the legislators while circulating petitions to recall Gov. James Blanchard for his part in a 38-percent income tax increase recently approved by the state Legislature.

"Everyone knows Blanchard didn't give us the tax increase alone. I didn't feel that he should take the heat alone. All politicians should have to give their answers to us," said Runion, who has been active in Wayne-Westland school district politics.

Last December she lost a bid for school board in a special election that followed a successful recall of four board members.

IN TWO OTHER attempts to get recall petitions approved by the Wayne County Election Commission, the wording on the petitions was rejected.

Runion said that in the first rejection, the commission said the tax increase couldn't be used as the reason for the recall. She said that the second time the commission rejected the petitions, saying that people wouldn't know what HB 4092 (income tax increase) bill was.

On her third attempt, Runion submitted four versions of recall petition wording for Faust and three for Barns. The new wording is nearly identical, Runion said, and contains a summary of the House bill.

While there has been "a lot of interest in carrying petitions," Runion said that no one has yet begun to do so. She said that an organizational meeting will be held within two weeks and that she is looking for a "cheap printer" to have petitions run off.

RUNION HAS taken on two strong political opponents. Faust is state Senate majority leader and was unopposed in last year's election. Barns, a popular former city councilwoman, beat Republican incumbent Sylvia Skrel in her bid for a newly redrawn state House district.

She did vote for Barns, Runion said, but was unsure whether she had voted for Faust since he was unopposed.

Barns said that given what the Legislature had to work on, there weren't other alternatives to the tax increase. "What options did we have?" she asked. "What is a counter option? Give us an option and let us analyze it."

Barns noted that schools would have had to shut down if the increase wasn't

Block is parks chief in compromise

By Mary Klemic
staff writer

Deborah Ann Block Tollison has been confirmed as Parks and Recreation director by the Westland City Council as the result of what Council President Thomas Artley termed a "compromise" between Mayor Charles Pickering and himself.

The council confirmed the mayor's nomination of Tollison with the understanding that former Parks and Recreation Director Ralph Tack receive $33,984 in back severance, sick time and vacation pay.

"Nobody on the council thinks Mr. Tack had any incompetency whatever," Artley said after the panel voted. "The majority felt that if Mr. Tack could get what was due him we could then consider Miss Tollison."

"If that check is not in Mr. Tack's hand tomorrow, there will be a special meeting of the council to reconsider this motion," the council president continued. "We kept our part of the bargain."

TACK WAS laid off by Pickering in January to cope with a budget deficit. After Tack sued for vacation, sick and compensatory pay, the mayor fired him and named a replacement. The council rejected confirmation of Tollison at its July 6 meeting. Last month it postponed the vote on the appointment.

The payment isn't a balance of any litigation, Budget Director/Controller Mark Knapp told the council.

Of the total $33,984, $16,917 is for severance, $11,712 for 720 accrued hours of sick time and $5,335 for 328 accrued hours of vacation, according to Knapp.

Members of the audience briefly applauded after Tollison was confirmed by a 4-2 vote at the regular council meeting Monday night. Councilmen Kenneth Mehl and Robert Wagner cast the two dissenting votes, while Councilman Charles Griffin was absent.

Mehl said the administration should have sought a replacement for Tack through the newspapers, Michigan Municipal League or some other channel. Wagner said that although Tollison has done "an adequate job" in the department, he didn't think she had the necessary qualifications or experience for the director's post.

TOLLISON, a former facility manager and supervisor for Wayne's parks and recreation department, expects to complete a master's degree in business administration at Eastern Michigan University next May. She has completed workshops on marketing and fund raising in the arts, accounting practices, and the administration of volunteers and federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) employees.

Pickering and Artley worked out the compromise two weeks ago, Artley said. Griffin, Wagner and Councilmen Ben DeHart and Kent Herbert asked that the issue be put on Monday's agenda in a memo to Artley.

"The request is being made so that we may close out Mr. Tack's record with the city as to his receiving severance, sick and vacation payoff as outlined in the director's fringe benefit package," Griffin wrote in the memo.

"I believe payment of these benefits will preclude any liability on the city's part so we are not faced with the possibility of the court having the city placed in the position of having two full-time recreation directors on staff," he wrote.

Gunman surrenders, releases baby

An escapee from Jackson Prison, armed with a sawed-off, .22-caliber rifle, was captured by Westland Police after he barricaded himself and a friend's 18-month-old baby in the friend's Deerfield Court home Tuesday morning.

No shots were fired and no one was injured in the incident. The 21-year-old suspect, Kevin Cummins, released the infant unharmed and then surrendered at about 11:44 a.m., police said. Police estimate that the man had barricaded himself in the home for at least one hour before he was taken into custody.

Police said Cummins would be charged with receiving and concealing stolen property over $100 and violation of the Federal Firearm Act.

Police said they had been looking for a burglary suspect for approximately one week when a stolen car was reported found in the driveway of a home located in the 2300 block of Deerfield Tuesday morning. After the car was confirmed as stolen, the suspect said he was armed and was with a baby, at which police cleared the area and surrounded the house. The suspect barricaded himself and the baby in an upstairs bedroom.

Police said it is not known how long the suspect had been at the home. The car and loaded rifle reportedly had been taken in a break-in at Carlton, Mich., that is now under investigation by the Michigan State Police.

The man had escaped June 6 from Jackson, where he was serving a three-to-10-year sentence for burglary, according to police.

Shuffle brings in new director for agency on aging

By Teri Banas
staff writer

The board of directors for the Out-Wayne County Area Agency on Aging (AAA) has hired a specialist in the area of mental health for the aged as the agency's administrative director.

Paul Brand, 28, was selected from among 50 applicants for the $27,300 post. He was previously employed with the state Office of Services to the Aged as a mental health specialist.

Brand, who was expected to begin in his new post today, replaces Paul Petro, who was fired last month because of a "lack of administrative ability," according to Livonia Mayor Edward H. McNamara.

McNamara was the driving force behind the formation of the agency and is a board member.

THE MAYOR said the decision to replace Petro was made reluctantly after almost a full year of discussions between Petro and board members.

"As a grants manager, he was excellent, but the state was constantly evaluating us, saying we had weaknesses that he should have taken care of," McNamara said.

According to McNamara, the agency was served with notices of several regulations violations in the past year. The violations, described as "procedural" errors, have been corrected, McNamara said.

The deficiencies included such things as failure to have an agency newsletter, failure to employ a full-time nutritionist, and inadequate budget auditing procedures. "We could have lost our status as an agency" if the violations were not corrected, McNamara said.

Petro was given the opportunity to resign but chose to be fired, McNamara said.

The Out-Wayne County AAA is the state's third largest agency for senior citizens and oversees more than $2 million worth of services. It allocates federal and state funds for such programs as the senior citizens nutrition program, which serves noon-time hot lunches in 34 suburban Wayne County communities.

THE AAA agency has been in operation for 1½ years and operates as a designated agency under the Older Americans Act of 1965.

Brand, who worked with the state's 14 area agencies on aging in his capacity as mental health specialist, said his first priority is to create a "very polished, efficient organization. If it's not one now, it soon will be," he said in an interview last week.

He said that he recognized that the agency "had been having some difficulties" but that he planned to assess the situations before considering any major changes.

"I've seen a lot of change by directors at the state level (making major overhauls of staff) and I don't intend to make the same mistakes," he said.

Upon his arrival, he said he would first "get to know the people" and would begin some active public relations work. "I intend to be very visible at the service sites," he said.

SINCE GRADUATING from Michigan State University with a bachelor of arts degree in urban studies in 1977, Brand has worked extensively in developing mental health services for nursing homes.

He has also worked as a consultant on that issue for the National Institute for Mental Health and the American Academy of Nursing Home Administrators.

Prior to his job with the state agency, Brand worked for the St. Lawrence County Mental Health Center in Lansing as a program coordinator. He was hired by the state agency in 1978 to be a liaison on aging issues in mental health. He has become the chief advocate on mental health issues for the aged in Michigan. He has a master's degree in community psychology.

A resident of Lansing for the past 11 years, Brand and his family now live in Livonia.

Recall effort is 'loaded gun,' says legislator approved, and she added that the Legislature rejected increases for the Department of Social Services.

FAUST DESCRIBED the recall movement as a "loaded gun" for legislators who live "under the fear that any decision they make could add people to the recall effort."

The majority leader said, however, that he would "never at all try to condemn anyone" for trying to recall an official because it is a right provided for under the state constitution.

Faust, however, said that the "procedure itself is a poor one." He noted that his district has had more recall attempts over the years than any other district in the state.

"What a recall is is a vote of confidence, which is a parliamentary procedure rather than representative government," Faust said.

"I don't think it was the intention of the framers of the constitution to allow legislators to be recalled for one vote. The intention was to recall when there was gross mismanagement."

Faust said part of the reason for a recall was a provision of the state constitution which prohibits a referendum on bills that contain appropriations. Since the tax increase can't be repealed, the other alternative is a recall, Faust said.

"I have opposed recalls in every community where they've ever existed," Faust continued. "I don't think public policy ought to be set in the voting booth."

EVENTUALLY, Faust would like to see an ad hoc committee of deans from state law schools to make recommendations on how the recall legislation could be changed. But Faust believes that will have to wait until the current recall effort is over.

"I think there would be a misinterpretation if changes were made today. People would say 'the politicians are trying to pull something over on us,'" he said.

One issue Faust would like to see addressed is the indefinite period of the recall effort.

Petitions must be signed by registered voters, and the signatures are valid only if they were collected within 90 days before the eventual filing date. So, Faust said, if recall leaders find they're short, they can collect more signatures and just eliminate those who signed petitions at the beginning of the drive.

STATISTICS IN a recall favor those behind the effort, Faust said. He used his district as an example.

Faust said that 50,000 people vote in a general election in his district, which means that 16,662 signatures must be obtained to force a recall election. (For Barns, there must be 5,385 valid signatures for a recall election in her district.)

"If general trends on recall and special election hold true, less than 10 percent will vote," he said. "So 5,000 people will vote. That's 10,000 fewer than signed petitions. The recall group's chances of getting the majority of votes appears greater than my chances."

"It's damn poor government when so few people control the destiny of government."

While Faust added that his argument was with the system rather than the challenge itself, he said that recall efforts could "eventually lead to the breakdown of the democratic system."

Noting that state representatives were up for re-election next year anyway, Faust said that holding a special recall election in January on just one issue was wasteful.

The income tax hike was the "absolute best and only alternative in Michigan," Faust said.

RUNION SAID her argument is with the size of the increase.

"I would have accepted a 0.25 percent increase. I would even have accepted 0.5 percent increase, but to go seven times what they needed is unreasonable," Runion said.

She said she arrived at the "seven times" figure by dividing 0.25 into the 1.75 percent tax increase that was approved.

na in the restaurant parking lot, with Qaoud holding an envelope.

Izzy gave Qaoud an envelope containing the remaining $250 at another restaurant Oct. 22, Insozna testified.

In a recording of that meeting, Qaoud gave Izzy a notice of failure to appear in court and told him to take the form and $2 to a Secretary of State's office to get Golob's license back.

"Everything is taken care of," Qaoud said. Insozna told the court that he observed Smith's signature on the form and asked Qaoud "if this was his buddy. He replied 'No, it was not,'" Insozna testified. The special agent said Smith and Callanan Sr. were the only two judges in the 18th District Court.

INSOGNA testified that he later talked to Qaoud about charges against a man named James Bernard Sires. Qaoud called Izzy March 13, 1981, and said he was "having a problem" with that case, Insozna said. He said the conversation wasn't recorded.

Couples wait longer to experience childbirth

Dr. Jacquelyn Roberson, a physician with the genetics and birth defects center at Detroit's Henry Ford Hospital, refers many pregnant women aged 35 and older for testing for early detection of birth defects. Being aware of a disorder in the unborn child can help eliminate stress and assist in the preparation for childbirth.

Photos by Bill Bresler

Test helps older expectant mothers

Most healthy women in their early 30s can expect to have a normal pregnancy and childbirth, experts say.

But women 35 and older carry a greater risk of giving birth to a child with Down's Syndrome, a chromosome disorder which causes mental retardation and some physical handicaps.

Physicians are increasingly referring their over-35 pregnant patients for testing to determine if the unborn child has Down's, said Dr. Jacquelyn Roberson, a physician with the genetics and birth defects center at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit.

"Most Down's (occurrences) have to do with the age of the mother," Roberson said. "Some people want to be prepared ahead of time. They don't want to be surprised. They don't want to go through the experience (childbirth) with a lot of stress."

ACCORDING TO Roberson, a woman aged 20 has one chance in 1,923 of giving birth to a baby with Down's Syndrome. At 35, the risk jumps to one in 365, and escalates as the mother's age rises.

Amniocentesis, which involves analyzing samples of amniotic fluid surrounding the fetus, can also detect disorders such as sickle cell anemia, Tay-Sachs (affects certain Jewish groups), or hydrocephalus (water on the brain).

For most patients, the news is good. Only about 1-2 percent of patients tested are found to have abnormalities, Roberson said.

If an abnormality is detected, the staff people will discuss the prognosis with the patient and the family physician.

The parents then may decide to either terminate the pregnancy or continue with it. The clinic offers additional counseling and can refer the family to a Down's Syndrome parent group.

AMNIOCENTESIS INVOLVES inserting a needle through a woman's abdomen into the uterus to obtain a sample of amniotic fluid, which surrounds the developing fetus. The test is done around the 13th week of pregnancy.

The sample is analyzed in a laboratory for about three weeks. According to Roberson, Down's Syndrome babies have an extra chromosome. Chromosomes carry information necessary to determine hereditary traits.

The test carries a small risk (one in 500) of infection, leakage of amniotic fluid or internal bleeding, according to a hospital pamphlet. An ultrasound test, using high frequency sound waves to produce an outline of the baby, is given before amniocentesis.

Total cost of the procedure is around $1,000.

"This test lets (parents) not have to worry," Roberson said. "For most people, it's a positive experience, even though it's a worrisome time for a few weeks."

Some 10-15 percent of the referred patients decline amniocentesis, Roberson said.

Judy Scheuher of Canton and Maria Kovalski both declined the procedure. Scheuher was afraid of an injury to the baby, saying the test was "not worth taking the risk."

"I know a lot of women who have had babies after 35," Scheuher said. "My mother was 43 when she had me."

Kovalski and her husband rejected amniocentesis because they are Catholics and would not consider abortion, even if the test showed an abnormality.

Kovalski, who recently gave birth to a healthy boy, said her physician advised her of the test "but didn't push it."

"He does routinely suggest it for somebody over 35," Kovalski added.

The Henry Ford Hospital genetics center operates a hotline to answer questions about risks from birth defects and genetics disorders. The number, in operation from 8-5 weekdays, is 876-3190.

Postponing parenthood

Parents-to-be look for the right time

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

Laura Harrington of Plymouth was determined to get her fill of traveling and career before settling down with a newborn baby.

Harrington and her husband David, in their early 30s, are expecting the birth of their first child next month after 12 years of marriage.

Bob and Judy Scheuher of Canton, aged 39 and 37 respectively, also are expecting their first child in August. Judy plans to be back on the job as a computer programmer around January.

These couples are part of a baby boom among energetic, active couples in their 30s. Because of careers, shifting priorities and social values, many couples are postponing parenthood until they are a little older.

"I've been a teacher for 10 years," said Laura Harrington, 32. "I never wanted kids. We enjoyed having two incomes, a larger house and travel. It takes two incomes to do all that."

HARRINGTON IS A special education teacher in the South Redford school district. Her husband is a supervisor with Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. Their combined annual income is about $60,000, Laura estimates.

The couple met in the marching band

'I think it's going to be an adjustment. It will probably be hardest on me because I have been independent for so long. But I haven't forgotten that much.'

— Maria Kovalski

at Thurston High School in Redford and for several years after their marriage, they lived in their hometown. Last year they fulfilled their dream for a larger home by moving to Plymouth Township.

"It all boils down to money," she said.

Laura enjoyed her good times, but her career had some rocky moments. Her first love was teaching French, but constant worries about layoffs prompted her to obtain certification in the more-stable special education field. She was reluctant to quit because "I never felt I was into my career yet."

Now, she's ready for her family, although she plans to take only one year off before returning to teaching. She "keeps fit by walking and swimming."

"I'll probably spoil my kid rotten," she said, with a laugh. "This is the only one we plan to have."

BOB AND JUDY Scheuher of Canton, married a little more than three years, expect their first child in August. Bob is a grinder at Detroit Diesel Div. of General Motors, Judy a computer programmer.

The couple recently moved from Garden City to Canton. Judy admits to being nervous about giving birth. Bob jokes and gives her encouragement during their childbirth preparation classes.

"Bob is very excited about the baby," Judy said. "It's kind of scary. I want to make sure we have everything ready for the baby."

At 37, Judy believes in setting goals. A former teacher, she switched to computer programming. And she postponed marriage until she was in her mid-30s, while concentrating on education and career development. She plans to combine career and motherhood.

SEVERAL MONTHS AGO, Walter and Maria Kovalski of Plymouth learned they were expecting a baby. The couple also have a 17-year-old daughter and a son, 16.

Walter, 40, is a dentist. Maria, 37, is a dental hygienist (they don't work together). Baby Steven Anthony, weighing a little more than eight pounds, was born July 5.

"I think it's going to be an adjustment," Maria said. "It will probably be hardest on me because I have been independent for so long. But I haven't forgotten that much."

In recent years, Maria has worked outside her home, been involved with her children's activities and participated in volunteer work.

Maria felt fine during her pregnancy, continuing with her aerobics fitness class until the first week of May. The couple took prepared childbirth classes to learn relaxation and breathing techniques.

The 5½ hour labor with Steven was much shorter and easier than Maria's previous births. Steven is a happy baby. Maria enjoyed the closeness and bonding with her husband and infant immediately following delivery.

"It was an excellent experience," she said. "I felt just great. I didn't have to take any pain pills."

Maria plans to work her outside activities around the needs of her family members.

At ages 40 and 37, respectively, Walter and Maria Kovalski of Plymouth can boast a new addition to their four-member family. Steven Anthony, weighing a little more than eight pounds, was born July 5.

Couples enrolled in Lamaze classes with the Plymouth Childbirth Education Association practice relaxation and breathing techniques, working as a team so both mother and father can share in the experience.

Parents-to-be teaming up, preparing for childbirth

The most deeply satisfying experience is a couple working together to bring their baby into the world.

That's the opinion of Barbara Schmitt — wife, mother, licensed practical nurse and an instructor-organizer with the Plymouth Childbirth Education Association (PCEA).

Since being formed in 1972, the nonprofit association has helped an average of 1,000 couples per year prepare for childbirth. Schmitt, 35, of Canton, has been with the organization about eight years.

"When I go there, it gives me such an emotional uplift," Schmitt said. "I get so much back from these couples."

Originally based in the Plymouth-Canton community, classes now are offered in several western Wayne County locations because "couples were coming from all over," Schmitt said.

THE ASSOCIATION, under the guidance of a medical advisory board, provides additional classes in Caesarean preparation, newborn care classes and related discussion groups. All instructors are trained.

Couples — using the Lamaze relaxation and breathing techniques — are taught to work as a team, helping to make childbirth satisfying for both mother and father.

Lamaze, or prepared childbirth, is not "painless" childbirth, said Marilyn Wojtowicz, 32, of Livonia, an instructor for the past five years. It also doesn't mean childbirth without medication or anesthetic.

Women who are relaxed and optimistic generally have an easier labor, according to Wojtowicz. Knowing the different stages of labor also helps, she added.

During the seven-week preparation course, couples learn about the physiological changes that occur in a woman's body. They practice the breathing and relaxation techniques.

A husband's rubbing his wife's tired back becomes a gesture of love and a shared moment of intimacy. All the techniques are geared to making pregnancy and labor more pleasant.

"You focus everything away from the contractions," Wojtowicz said. "It makes the discomfort secondary. No one is a failure if they have to have medication."

THE PREGNANT woman's partner, or coach, usually is her husband. But the coach also could be a family member, boyfriend or other person with whom the woman feels comfortable.

"The main benefit, especially for the husband or coach, is that he can really stand up and take charge and know he's helping her get through this," Schmitt said. "The excitement overshadows any fear they have."

Schmitt began to see the value of childbirth preparation a dozen years ago when she was working in the delivery room of an Ohio hospital.

"I saw very few prepared parents having children," Schmitt said. "It was frightening to me. When I had my children, the options were nothing compared to what they (couples) have today."

Schmitt and her husband, David, 37, have an 11-year-old son and a daughter, 8, both born with the full participation of both their parents. Like many husbands, David initially was squeamish about the idea. He later found the experience enjoyable, Schmitt said.

"There is apprehension because they don't know what is going to happen to them," Schmitt said. "That is normal."

Today, physicians routinely urge their patients to take Lamaze classes, Schmitt said.

Children keep busy on playgrounds

Youngsters are being kept busy as summer activities continue at Garden City's six elementary school playgrounds.

Here are highlights reported by the parks and recreation department:

MAPLEWOOD

Maplewood held its first bubble gum blowing contest last week. Winners were Mike Caldwell, Billy Morcom, Ken Hamilton and John Hamblin.

Chuck Bierbaum, Jeannie Evans, Sherry Hosking and Billy Morcom captured first place in the three legged race. The weekly water balloon toss was won by John Hamblin, Ken Hamilton and Nick Pritula.

Tracy Ward is still holding on to the jump rope title and Len Bierbaum is the box hockey champ. Big winners in bingo were Stacy Dechert and Sherry Hosking.

Some of the activities planned for future weeks are painting contests, peanut hunt, zimm-zamm tournaments, swinging contests and water days.

LATHERS

For the week of July 25-29, Lathers recreation will go swimming on Tuesday, have a candy and peanut hunt Wednesday, crown new champions on Thursday, and have a checkers tournament on Friday.

These events are in addition to everyday activities at Lathers.

HENRY RUFF

This week's box hockey winners were determined by a number of hotly contested games.

In the 10 and over category, Chris Rouland regained his first-place status with a 10-3 victory over Glenn Hess.

In the 10 and under age bracket, Benjy Loisselle defeated Eric Schmitter 10-2 thereby gaining the opportunity to take on Chris for the overall championship with Chris winning 10-3.

Box hockey tournaments are scheduled every Monday afternoon when possible. Upcoming events are posted on the calendar in the activities room at Henry Ruff.

MEMORIAL

Tim Dvovich and Darrell Sparks last week won the water balloon toss while Shelley Bradley won the bubble gum blowing contest.

There were two first-place winners in the miniature golf tournament. In class D boys, Wayne Krause took the trophy while in class C girls, Karen Caudle took home first prize.

Next week many activities are planned including the wave pool, roller skating party, metro youth fitness meet and the Detroit Tiger ball game on Saturday.

FARMINGTON

Farmington enjoyed success in the miniature golf tournament at Garden City Mini Golf Course last week. Scott Harvey and Michalene Gorak were class A division champions and lowest score trophy winners. The class C girls division was won by Nicole Loague.

During the week, many children went on a bike ride and picnic at Garden City Park. Hot dogs were on the menu and baseball was the recreation. A carrom's tournament was held with Danny Mathes winning all challenges.

The strat-o-matic baseball season is at the half-way point. Scott Harvey's Red Sox are in first place in one division and Joe Gorak's Angels in the other.

Next week's activities include a peanut hunt and a box hockey tournament.

DOUGLAS

Last week, Danny Liebar and Sharon Szczepanik tied for first place in the peanut hunt. In the balloon toss, Kurt Benz and Bobby Soma were the big winners while Steve Sledobnik and Jim Marszalek took second.

Next week there will be a bubble gum blowing contest on Monday at 10 a.m. At noon there will be a hot dog roast. There will be a watermelon eating contest at 11 a.m.

'Bottleneck' work to start in spring on Warren Road

A project to alleviate the Warren Road bottleneck between Venoy and Merriman will start next year.

The Wayne County federal aid to urban systems task force approved putting the project on its 1983-84 project list which is 75 percent federally funded.

The Wayne County Road Commission, Westland and Garden City will share the remaining cost on a 50-50 formula. Garden City's cost will be an estimated $122,000. The total project is estimated at $2.1 million.

"This is another result of our efforts to improve the major county roads in Garden City," Mayor Vincent Fordell said.

By the end of 1984, $6.3 million of road improvements will have been completed.

In addition to this project, the county has scheduled widening improvements to Warren from Inkster to Middlebelt to start next month, and Merriman from Cherry Hill to Ford.

The Michigan Department of Transportation is also financing intersection improvements at Ford and Henry Ruff and Ford Road and Harris which is now underway.

The state also plans to widen Ford Road to five lanes from Merriman to Venoy.

"In 1980, our new master plan placed high priority on this improvement," Fordell said.

"We're pleased the federal, state and county funds are now being made available to implement the projects."

Tennis tournament deadline

The Garden City Parks and Recreation Department will host its 1983 open tennis classic July 29-31 and Aug. 12-14.

Entry deadline for juniors and mixed doubles is Friday. For men's and women's open division, the deadline is Aug. 12.

Boys and girls, age 14-18 singles and doubles will start Friday, July 29 at 9 a.m. Mixed doubles will be July 30 starting at 9 a.m.

Men's and women's singles and doubles will start Friday, Aug. 12 at 6 p.m.

All matches will be played on courts at Garden City High School and the junior high, Moeller and Maplewood Parks. Entry fee is $4 for junior singles, $5 for adult singles, $6 for junior doubles and $7 for adult doubles.

Car owners can save on insurance

Many car owners feel they are paying more than they need to for auto insurance. Unfortunately, many consumers aren't aware of auto insurance discounts for which they may be eligible, says the Southfield Automotive Information Council (AIC).

AIC has compiled the following list of tips on how to keep auto insurance costs under control:

- If you own more than one car you can insure them for less under one policy with the same company.

- If you have a good driving record or are a driver-education graduate you may qualify for decreased premiums.

Derby winner

Katie Waldo, nearly 1 year old, is the Garden City baby who won a city of Wayne diaper derby held recently. She "beat out" others in her age division in a 50-yard race. Katie, daughter of James and Kathy Waldo, 33200 Rosslyn, won a crown, ribbon and case of diapers. Her brother, Jim, 7, was her coach. Another brother, Mike, 4, and a babysitter, Wendy Bennett, 16, were her co-managers, said Mrs. Waldo. Besides taking part in diaper derbies, Katie does modeling for J.L. Hudson's.

Horseshoe tourney

The annual horseshoe tournament, sponsored by the Garden City Parks and Recreation Department, will be Saturday and Sunday at City Park, Cherry Hill and Merriman.

Registration fee is $5 with competition open to all residents.

Qualifying round of the tournament will be from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday. The seven top qualifiers will compete Sunday with last year's champion in a round-robin tournament.

Trophies will be furnished by the recreation department.

Lucas dislikes new hospital plan

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Wayne County commissioners are moving to give County Executive William Lucas more authority over the hospital — but not too much more — in a new ordinance.

"As written, it is not likely to be accepted," warned David Plawecki, Lucas' liaison with the commission.

Commissioner Milton Mack, D-Wayne, the executive's point man with the commission, was blunter. "It amazes me that we just try to hang onto appointive powers we were never intended to have," said Mack, saying the plan would undercut the new county charter.

The plan is scheduled for a final vote today.

THE COUNTY commission, meeting last week as a committee of the whole, gave voice approval to a revised effort by Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Inkster, to keep Wayne County General Hospital in Westland operating as a county institution, with strings held by the 15-member commission.

The commission majority, particularly suburbanites, are fighting Lucas' efforts to sell or lease it to a private operator.

The commission July 7 barely defeated an earlier version of the Beard ordinance providing the commission would appoint all five members of a hospital board (called a Board of Institutions).

David Plawecki (left), the county executive's liaison to the county board of commissioners, warned against creating an 'almost autonomous' board to run the county hospital. He said such power could come back to haunt the commissioners.

The new version allows Lucas to appoint all five hospital board members, but requires four to be picked from a list of 10 nominations made by the County Commission. The executive could pick the fifth at his discretion.

The new version also requires that one member be a licensed physician, one an attorney, one a labor representative, one a health care professional other than a physician, and one citizen at-large.

PLAWECKI said Lucas likely would object to the section on power of appointment. The executive generally believes he should have freedom to make appointments, subject to commission confirmation, but not from a formal commission list of candidates.

Plawecki added the ordinance would take away the executive's budget authority because the hospital board could submit its proposed budget directly to the commission instead of to the executive's office. The county general fund budget provides a $14 million subsidy to the hospital's $64 million operating budget.

—Commissioner Milton Mack

Mack and Plawecki both had objections even to setting up the Board of Institutions.

Mack said it would be a policy-making body, adding it was "ridiculous" to specify the occupations of board members.

And Plawecki said the proposed ordinance made the Board of Institutions "almost autonomous. That may come back to haunt the county commission."

BEARD CONTINUED to scoff at Lucas' effort to derail the hospital ordinance.

"We've had three public hearings," she said. "They (Lucas and his staff) have had all kinds of time to bring up their objections."

Instead, she said, Lucas was waiting until the last minute to find fault with months of commission work.

What to do when heat illness strikes

Heat illness is actually a spectrum of illnesses that vary from minor to moderate to critical, according to Dr. Michael Tomlanovich.

The chairman of Henry Ford Hospital's department of emergency medicine said minor heat illness usually takes the form of muscular cramps brought on by over-exertion, such as too much exercise, athletic activity or outdoor work.

If stricken with muscular cramps, stop your activity, get inside or in the shade and drink fluids. A quarter-teaspoon of salt in a quart of water is suggested, since excessive salt loss through sweating causes the muscle spasms, he said.

HEAT EXHAUSTION is the next step up the ladder of severity. It is marked by headache, lightheadedness, decreased appetite, nausea and vomiting, weakness, thirst and muscle cramps.

If these symptoms occur, get inside to a cool place, rest and drink plenty of fluids. Most any fluid will do, except alcohol, which accelerates fluid loss, said Dr. Tomlanovich. Symptoms should start going away within 20-30 minutes, said Dr. Tomlanovich. If not, then seek emergency medical treatment.

HEADSTROKE IS the most severe type of heat illness.

Symptoms include: extremely elevated temperature (105 to 107-degrees F); red, flushed skin (which may be either sweaty or dry) and changes in mental status, such as confusion or disorientation.

Anyone with the symptoms of heat stroke should seek emergency medical treatment immediately, said Dr. Tomlanovich.

People who should be especially careful during heatwaves are the elderly, the obese and people with heart disease, said Dr. Tomlanovich.

For others, avoiding heat illness is as simple as avoiding over-exertion and prolonged exposure to the sun while wearing light clothes and drinking plenty of fluids.

Disgusted car buyer opens office for 'lemon' aid

By Tim Richard
staff writer

"There's no incentive for a car dealer to settle with you if you have a 'lemon' or a warranty problem," says former lemon owner Chris Andrews.

His new line of work is to help lemon owners give auto dealers that incentive. From his Southfield home, Andrews runs a non-profit group called Aid for Lemon Owners (ALO), teaching clients how to persuade dealers to give them satisfaction.

The client learns from Andrews' experience. It was bitter experience.

"TWO YEARS AGO I bought a new car and had problems from the day one," he said. "Three months out of the six I had it, it was in the shop — and I was making payments."

"I was with Century Insurance. When you're in sales and don't have a car, you lose sales, your productivity goes down, and you lose a job."

On one of his trips to the dealer, Andrews recalled, he asked for all the work orders on his car. "They inadvertently gave me the work orders done on the car before I bought it," he said. "Those work orders showed his lemon had had $600 worth of body work, two or three coats of paint on different parts of the body and different locks."

And yet it had been sold to him as a new car.

He went to the state attorney general, the secretary of state and other agencies without success before concluding: "There's no place to contact."

Andrews' lawsuit was settled out of court two months ago. He figures he's still $3,000 behind.

LAST JANUARY he formed ALO, essentially to give others what-to-do information which took him many months and several thousands of dollars to accumulate.

Four or five part-time persons field phone calls (552-8888) and mail out information (from Box 661 Southfield 48037 — they have no office).

ALO takes down the caller's complaints, then sends appropriate packets of information for $25 plus postage, COD.

The packet contains pamphlets from state government, consumer groups, federal agencies.

There is a similar agency in California and Ralph Nader's Center for Auto Safety but nothing in between, so ALO gets calls from other Midwestern states.

"It gets busier and busier," said Andrews, who has handled about 120 new car complaints plus uncounted numbers of warranty of used car complaints. "If I had had all that information two years ago, I would have got it (his money) back in two weeks."

He has no statistics on what percentage of his customers are ultimately successful because not all report back. But there are success stories.

WHAT DO YOU do once you have a packet?

"First, you write a letter to the dealer. There's a sample letter of complaint."

"If you don't get a response, there's a list of 33 agencies to which you can send copies. You might as well let the dealer know you're telling the whole world."

Andrews calculates that once the dealer sees the customer knows what to do and is willing to do it, the dealer will settle in order to avoid the hassle. That is the dealer's incentive. War stories:

• A man who bought a used car for $4,000 was told two weeks later it needed $1,000 worth of work. The mileage on the car hadn't been noted at the time of sale — a violation of state law by the dealer. Three telephone calls later, the man got his purchase price back.

• A mother and daughter purchased a new car late one afternoon, but a different car was delivered to them next day. The dealer made a correction.

• A man spent $20,000 on a new car and in 18 months took it back to the dealer 30 times for the same problem — oil leaks. The dealer offered him $10,000 to settle. The man painted a lemon sign on his car and parked it near the dealership. His final settlement was the purchase price minus depreciation — considerably better than the first $10,000 offer.

IF THESE methods don't work, Andrews advises taking the case to arbitration. All car companies have arbitration systems.

His information kit tells the lemon owner how to prepare the complaint. "You have to know what you want, you have to tell them why you want it, you have to prove it — so save all the work orders — and you have to know what you're asking for."

"You need to prepare your case. We find most people are successful at arbitration. The company says, 'These people are serious.'"

If arbitration fails, ALO will refer the customer to an attorney who specializes in lemon cases.

"We're not attorneys and don't profess to be," Andrews said. "It's knowing where to go and what to do."

IN THE FALL, Andrews will be stalking the corridors of Lansing to seek introduction and passage of a bill similar to a California "lemon law" protecting car owners. He will use 105 cases to demonstrate that people would have had their money refunded or a replacement car if Michigan had a similar law.

The gist: "If you brought your car in four separate times for a problem and it can't be fixed, or if your car is out of service a total of 30 calendar days during the first 12 months or 12,000 (miles), you're entitled to your money back."

Other states such as Connecticut, New Jersey and Florida have passed such laws, and Andrews expects still others to follow suit, but admits:

"It's going to be tougher here 'cause this is the car capital of the U.S.A."

A man spent $20,000 on a new car, and in 18 months took it back to the dealer 30 times for the same problem — oil leaks.

Edison record for electricity use

Just how hot was it?

According to the "thermometer" Detroit Edison Co. uses to measure customer use, the people of southeastern Michigan are using record amounts of electricity in air conditioners and fans.

Edison records indicate that at 3 p.m. Friday, its plants were producing 7,087,000 kilowatts of electricity to meet the needs of customers' homes, businesses and industry.

Demand usually tapers off as offices and industrial plants complete their week's work. Friday was the fourth day this summer that customer use topped the highest level reached last year.

Friday's production record is the highest reached on the Detroit Edison system since July 9, 1981, according to Robert V. Nicolson, assistant vice president and manager of the company's electrical system.

Station closing fires up indignation over politics

RESIDENTS AND business people in Westland have a right to be burned up about the current fight between the mayor and the council over staffing of the fire station. Observers could see the fight coming with the combustible issues of overtime, hiring, a new contract and political charges just waiting for a spark to explode the whole mess.

Apparently what provided that spark was the city's new budget, which took effect July 1. That budget was approved in early June. So Mayor Charles Pickering must have done a slow burn while he waited about three weeks to decide that a fire station would have to be closed when staff levels drop below 15.

His announcement came just three days before the new budget was to go into effect. By now you know it caused plenty of fireworks to explode before the festival's annual display.

Fitting a pattern established earlier, the mayor changed his mind and decided to keep all fire stations open over the July 4 weekend. That was to prove a prudent decision, with at least one major catastrophe averted when firemen dealt with real fireworks landing on the roof of an apartment complex.

CERTAINLY there can be no firefight over the job being done in that department. All firemen also are well-trained as EMS technicians, and arson investigations are producing results. Fire deaths have been reduced, possibly due to the significant impact of the city's fire education program which reaches everyone from children in school to senior citizens in high rise apartments.

The battle statistics are confusing. They vary according to who is using them and just don't add up. So we'll skip those details in this account, but there are a lot of areas that can't be overlooked.

One of the biggest is the firefighters' contract. That contract has expired, and the city has been in negotiations for some time. A tentative agreement was rejected by the council some months ago.

The problem with the contract is that it almost gives up the city's right to manage the department. Items:

- Overtime — The contract says firemen can be called in on overtime, at the discretion of the chief, when staff levels drop below 15. There's nothing magic about that number. That was the level set when the last contract was approved. No one has clearly said why there must be six firefighters at station one and three at each of the others.

The key word ought to be discretion. The chief used good judgment over the July 4 weekend with events like the festival fireworks and heavy traffic known in advance. But not every weekend is like that, and discretion ought to be used.

- Personal time — Provisions in the contract are shocking. Not all requests for personal time are due to true emergency situations. Yet supervisors have little control over when and whether a fireman takes personal time.

- Vacation time — The contract allows three firefighters at a time to be on vacation. Supervisors must be able to schedule so that numbers don't drop to drastically low levels.

THESE ARE issues that need to be addressed during the current negotiations. Westland residents do have respect for the city's firefighting contingent. That respect ought to be returned with consideration of the monetary demands being placed on residents.

The mayor said the cost of the firefighters' contract is proportional to the risks they have to take. He does a disservice to firefighters with such remarks, making them sound like a bunch of mercenaries.

Money could never compensate for loss of life or limb. There is, however, something called dedication that brings pride from performing a public service.

Since the city is negotiating with both the fire and police officer unions, this is an ideal time to do some long range planning.

IT'S TIME Westland has a central dispatch system for police and fire emergency calls. Modern technology makes it not only cost effective but efficient as well.

To facilitate that move, the city must work with area phone companies to get a 911 emergency number for all calls. The new union pacts must also allow civilian, trained dispatchers to be phased in, freeing police and fire officers for other duties.

City officials also ought to look at the feasibility of a public safety director. That would eliminate the need for assistants in both departments and relieve some of the present duties of police and fire chiefs.

Instead of everyone getting hot under the collar over the staffing of fire stations, the mayor and council ought to be turning that energy into looking for new solutions to deteriorating situations.

Chrysler turns corner, and we all feel relieved

HE'S A suburban father trying to support a family of seven on a weekly salary from Chrysler. It hasn't been an easy life.

Many times the children have gone without extras like vacations and have worn clothes purchased at the resale shop.

He had been transferred several times. At one point, he even had to work in a town 100 miles away from his family.

For all of the problems, he always knew there would be food on the table. All he would have to do is keep working for Chrysler.

In 1978-79 he began to change. His shoulders became a little stooped. The aging process accelerated. For the first time, he had fear on his face.

THIS SUBURBAN man was not alone in his worries during 1978-79. In terms of numbers, Chrysler employs 34,600 persons in the Detroit metropolitan area. In addition, it uses a network of 11,000 suppliers. Its collapse would have been devastating to many persons and businesses in this suburban area.

The difficulties faced by the families of Chrysler workers, such as the suburban father, would only be the beginning. What about those who make a living providing goods and services to Chrysler? What about those who earn a living by catering to the Chrysler employees? What about the economic loss to this entire area?

During 1979 Chrysler was on the brink. It had recorded a loss of $204.6 million for 1978, and the next year was worse. For the second quarter, it reported an astounding loss of $207.1 million.

That's why all of us who lived through those times had to smile last week. Chairman Lee Iacocca announced Chrysler would repay $800 million of its federally guaranteed loan by September, or seven years ahead of schedule.

It had been a long, hard struggle. But it looks as though Chrysler has been saved.

All this is not to say that the problems of Chrysler are over. Many critical issues still remain. It still is in debt to Michigan, Delaware, Illinois and Indiana for $205.5 million in state-secured loans. During cutbacks, it damaged its design and engineering staffs — which will hurt in the years ahead.

The United Auto Workers is now demanding pay raises for its members.

BUT AT LEAST the wolf is away from the door. If the nation's economy continues to improve, Chrysler should make it.

Are there lessons to be learned from Chrysler by this state as it struggles for its survival? I think so.

Chrysler originally asked the federal government for a direct grant. It argued that because of Chrysler's importance to the nation's economy, it should receive a handout.

But the government didn't buy. It required that sacrifices be made by the company, employees, bankers and suppliers before the government would help.

It was this mandated cooperation which restored Chrysler to life. All parties had to work together to make the loan agreement work.

Now, consider this state. It is racked by ever-increasing expenses and a shrinking economic base. Many groups are battling over a smaller revenue pie.

Michigan will not be bailed out by an outside source. It will take cooperation (yep, even sacrifice) on the part of government, labor, industry and the public at large to get the state moving again. So far, there's been much rhetoric about cooperation, but little action.

Chrysler couldn't have done it alone, just as our state government can't turn Michigan around by itself. If you're looking for a model for Michigan to follow, you don't have to go far.

discover Michigan
Bill Stockwell

DID YOU KNOW there is a portion of Michigan that is actually some 700 feet below sea level? This amazing fact is accounted for by the fact that the depth of Lake Superior reaches 1,300 feet. Geologists tell us that all of our Upper Peninsula was buried beneath a blanket of glacial ice 10,000 years ago. As this ice blanket made its way southward, it met a barrier of heat which caused a sag in the rocks and this deep depression.

DID YOU KNOW the Dodge brothers — John and Horace — received 10 percent of the original stock in the Ford Motor Co. for no money. They simply agreed to equip their Detroit machine shop to manufacture Ford engines and other Ford parts. It turned out to be one of the most profitable business agreements in the history of the world.

The odds are against SEMTA's tax appeal

SOUTHEASTERN MICHIGAN Transportation Authority officials are in the midst of public hearings on the proposed 1990 transportation network.

The hearings are getting some news coverage, as are General Manager Gary Krause's statements regarding the need for more funding for SEMTA.

Not coincidentally, they are being held at the same time that SEMTA is gearing up for a sales pitch aimed at winning public approval of a tax to finance SEMTA operations, probably a one-cent sales tax increase.

Whatever the value of public transit, SEMTA's chance of winning voter approval of a tax increase falls somewhere between the chance of the Detroit Lions winning the NFL football championship and Wayne County's employees throwing a testimonial dinner for County Executive William Lucas.

SEMTA HAS been in trouble ever since Ronald Reagan took over as president. Before Reagan, the federal government was willing to underwrite half the cost of operating public transit. With Reagan, the government switched emphasis — it will finance construction and equipment but will not subsidize operations. The fact is that no urban transit system can operate without subsidy, either federal, state or local.

Despite a number of cutbacks in employees and services, SEMTA is facing big trouble.

Even before going to the voters, SEMTA drumbeaters have to sell the Legislature on putting the issue on the ballot.

So far the Legislature has ignored the issue while waiting for the public to simmer down following the income tax increase.

OAKLAND COUNTY has taken advantage of SEMTA's precarious position to wring some concessions out of SEMTA regarding transportation in that area.

Many Oakland officials feel that the county should be getting quid pro quo — each dollar of taxpayer funds put into the SEMTA system should go back to Oakland County in the way of services.

It is much like people whose children have grown up refusing to approve funds for schools which will no longer serve their children. Public transportation, they say, is not their problem.

As one Oakland County resident said at a SEMTA hearing recently, every family she knows has at least two cars, so who needs a transportation system? Besides the commuters served during rush hour, the system serves mostly the elderly and poor people without cars.

AT THE HEART of the antipathy toward SEMTA is the plan for a light-rail rapid transit line from

Bob Wisler

Detroit to Pontiac with part of it underground, the "Coleman Young subway." Young didn't invent the subway idea, but the ensuing argumentation has made it seem like he plotted the route.

The truth is, according to Krause, that a light rail line makes transportation sense and is the kind of system favored in the cities which have good mass transportation systems.

But the thought of a subway causes shudders in the suburbs.

At the heart of the matter is the mistrust of doing any kind of traveling to Detroit or through Detroit, a xenophobic view of that city as a place to avoid.

Any public vote on a transit tax faces the problem of overcoming the who-needs-it attitude — the feeling that public transit is irrelevant to families with two cars and no desire to use public transportation, especially transportation that is viewed as being primarily to take people in and out of a city which is considered by many as unsafe at any speed.

Show spirit: file for council

There are a couple of ways to judge the breadth of community spirit. One is to look at the number of volunteers who participate in city events and community-based organizations.

Another is to count the number of candidates who file for office.

With the four openings available on the city council this year, hopefully Westlanders will show their spirit and file as candidates. So far only four candidates have filed. Two of them are incumbents. The other two incumbents also have said they will file.

Now is the time to make sure Westland has the kind of government you want. In a representative form of government, it's just as important to make certain that qualified candidates run as it is to vote your choices on election day from the pack available.

Filing deadline is 4 p.m. Tuesday. Those who file have until 4 p.m. Friday, July 29, to withdraw.

At least 13 people have taken out petitions. Since there are four vacancies, more than eight persons will have to file in order for a primary election to be held Tuesday, Sept. 13.

The minimum number of signatures required to file is 222; the maximum is 888. All signers must be registered voters.

The three candidates who receive the most votes will garner four-year terms. The candidate who places fourth will receive a two-year term.

There's still time for a show of community spirit in Westland.

U.S. House OKs public works bill for depressed areas

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes July 8-10.

HOUSE

PUBLIC WORKS: The House passed, 306-113, a bill to spend $1.5 billion over three years on public works projects carried out by communities hard hit by the recession and on loans to small businesses. About 60 percent of the nation's counties would get a share of the money.

The bill (HR 10) would preserve the Economic Development Administration and the Appalachian Regional Commission, which the Reagan Administration wants to terminate. It was sent to the Senate.

Supporter James Howard, D-N.J., said the bill recognized that many communities victimized by structural as well as cyclical changes in the economy "cannot solve their problems on their own."

Opponent Norman Shumway, R-Calif., said "the firms and regions that this legislation is intended to benefit may well be better off as a result of a healthy, sustained economic recovery."

Members voting yes supported the bill.

Voting yes: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, Dennis Hertel, D-Detroit, William Ford, D-Taylor, and Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

Voting no: William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

HOUSING: By a vote of 263-158, the House passed a bill (HR 1) that authorizes $15.6 billion in fiscal 1984 for federal housing and community development programs.

roll call report

It is the first federal housing program approved by the House during the Reagan Administration. Its backers said it renews the federal commitment to decent shelter for all.

In part, the bill calls for construction of an estimated 200,000 units for poor and moderate-income occupants, extends the Community Development Block Grant and Urban Development Action Grant programs, and funds rural housing, urban homesteading and rent-subsidy programs.

The Senate is working on a counterpart bill.

Supporter Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., said "the Reagan Administration record is one of devastation of lower income housing programs."

Opponent Chalmers Wylie, R-Ohio, called the bill too expensive and said "the prospect of a federal budget deficit of $200 billion constitutes our greatest threat to affordable housing."

Members voting yes supported the $15.6 billion housing bill.

Voting yes: Hertel, Ford and Levin.

Voting no: Pursell and Broomfield.

RENT CONTROL: The House rejected, 205-217; an attempt to deny federal aid for multi-family housing to communities that have rent-control ordinances. The vote occurred during debate on HR 1 (see preceding issue).

Supporter Toby Roth, R-Wis., said "there is nothing that is a greater impediment to adequate housing in this country today than are rent controls."

Opponent Fernand St. Germain, D-R.I., said the attempt to roll back rent control is "too much interference" in local affairs.

Members voting yes were opposed to municipal rent control laws.

Voting yes: Pursell and Broomfield.

Voting no: Hertel, Ford and Levin.

SENATE

NERVE GAS: The Senate approved, 50-49 against, a $130 million outlay to enable the United States to resume production of nerve gas weaponry after a 14-year moratorium.

The vote tabled (killed) an amendment to block the expenditure as part of the $200 billion defense authorization bill for fiscal 1984. After senators deadlocked at 49, Vice President Bush cast the deciding vote in favor of producing finary nerve gas.

Supporter Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., said a replenished nerve gas arsenal will encourage the Soviets to negotiate arms reductions and discourage their use of chemical weapons against NATO forces.

Opponent David Pryor, D-Ark., said renewed production would not enhance U.S. military prowess but "could mark the beginning of a new kind of arms race."

Senators voting yes wanted the U.S. arsenal to once again include nerve gas.

Michigan's Democratic senators, Carl Levin and Donald Riegle, both voted no.

SECURITY: By a vote of 44-53, the Senate failed to table (kill) an amendment prohibiting the military from using private firms for firefighting and security services at U.S. bases.

The Pentagon wants to contract privately for such services, but this vote blocked it from doing so for two years. The vote occurred during debate on the fiscal 1984 military authorization bill (S 675; see preceding issue).

Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., who voted to kill the amendment, said "the vitality and completion of the free market (can) bring greater efficiency to the military."

Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., said "contractor employees have the right to strike and should that happen it would quite seriously interfere" with the operation of a military base.

Senators voting yes wanted bases to be able to contract privately for firefighting and security services.

Levin and Riegle voted no.

B-1: By a vote of 68-30, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to delete from the 1984 defense authorization bill $6.2 billion for the first purchases of the B-1 bomber.

The B-1 is being developed as an interim weapon between the aged B-52's and the advanced technology Stealth bomber slated for deployment in the 1990s.

Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, who voted to kill the amendment, called the B-1 a "great deterrent" to enemies who would "make the mistake to underestimate what the underlying willpower of the American people is."

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said of the B-1: "We do not need to spend $20 billion to $40 billion on a temporary fix."

Senators voting no wanted to kill the B-1 bomber project.

Levin and Riegle voted no.

SEMTA's general manager Krause takes the heat from authority's critics

By Tim Richard
staff writer

"I wouldn't have that job for anything," said a friend of Gary Krause, general manager of the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority.

"It's like being a fire hydrant and having a million dogs around you."

And it's true that Krause had to be persuaded to take the SEMTA top operating post a year and a half ago. The 15-member SEMTA board deadlocked politically on a replacement for the popular Larry Salci and made Krause, then its chief of planning, acting general manager.

Krause refused to seek for the top job, and finally the board simply awarded him the hot seat. First, early in 1982 he went through an agonizing 20-percent budget cut when federal operating aid was cut and some state funds were tied up in court.

AND IN THE last two weeks, Krause has been fielding questions — not all friendly — during public hearings on SEMTA's revised 1990 public transit plan. But he always has a load of facts committed to memory.

Sometimes he finds himself in a "damned-if-you-do, damned-if-you-don't" position. Consider the question of Oakland County Commissioner Lillian Moffitt, R-Bloomfield Township, who complained there were inadequate cost figures.

"We are hesitant to develop cost data in great detail when the purpose (of a public hearing) is to get public comment on the concept," Krause replied. "If we provide too much detail, we are accused of having it all laid out and not listening to the public."

Krause declines to answer questions during the course of the hearing because the SEMTA board wants to take as much public comment as possible. So by the time the general manager gets to answer when the public has finished, it's so late in the day that most people — particularly critics — have gone home.

MOST CRITICS equate SEMTA's light-rail rapid transit plan with Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, the embodiment of evil in many suburban minds, and Krause catches the brunt of it.

Krause agrees with the Reagan administration — he describes his own SEMTA general manager Gary Krause; Federal funds are best spent on capital goods such as interstate freeways, airports and light-rail transit. The health of a public transit system should be up to the metropolitan area.

Houston just defeat a proposal?

A. No, Houston has a dedicated one-cent sales tax for operations and still has it. Defeated was a plan to pledge part of it for capital.

Q. Wouldn't small buses be cheaper to operate than those big monsters that carry only a handful of passengers?

A. "SEMTA has the largest small bus system in North America . . . Large buses are full during the morning and evening commute period. But after the commute is over, those large buses are not effectively used," he admitted.

The driver of a large bus, however, cannot be shifted to a small bus because there are federal and state laws prohibiting it. Drivers of large and small buses are represented by different unions.

Even if drivers could be shifted to small buses during midday hours, there wouldn't be enough small buses available.

Q. QUIT BEING stuck on tired old ideas and consider some fresh new ones. Rather than all these buses, why not subsidize taxi service for people who really need it?

A. SEMTA is allowed to turn over part of its money to communities for local services, and some see fit to subsidize taxis. Added Dewitt Henry, SEMTA board chairman: "We've looked at ridesharing, we've looked at monorail, we've looked at taxicabs."

Q. SEMTA charges senior citizens half fare, but I see people in some communities riding for nothing. Why these freebies?

A. Same answer — some cities use their funds to subsidize senior citizen fares.

political philosophy as "conservative" — that federal funds are best spent on capital goods such as interstate freeways, airports and light-rail transit — and that "the health of a public transit system should be up to the metropolitan area."

In that framework, he says, it makes sense to have a high-capital light-rail line for which the federal government pays 80 percent of the cost, but which costs relatively less to operate.

On the other hand, he added, a system totally dependent on buses — which many rail critics favor — would receive no federal operating money and require hefty local subsidies.

The house that Jane builds

She trades teaching grammar for swinging a hammer

Jim JAGDFELD/staff photographer

Jane Stipe will help lead a class in housebuilding for women

Building teacher is an 'inspiration'

What kind of a gal is this Dale McCormick who will be the head instructor at the special "Housebuilding for Women" program in September being sponsored by Cornerstones Energy Group Inc. of Brunswick, Me.?

Feisty and totally knowledgeable when it comes to anything to do with swinging a hammer or using any kind of tool — power tools included.

A mighty mite, you could say, considering the 35-year-old McCormick is only 5-foot-4 and weighs 115 pounds.

Her interest in working with wood coupled with dissatisfaction with her job as coordinator of the Action Studies Program at the University of Iowa prompted her to enter the apprenticeship program under auspices of the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners local back in 1971.

She was the only female among 12 applicants. Because she scored highest in the entrance test (identifying tools, demonstrating ability in math and spatial reasoning), the all-male organization reluctantly took her in.

BUT THEY DIDN'T make things easy for her.

During her four-year apprenticeship, she worked on several projects, mainly at the University of Iowa. Her first job was sawing floor joists (beams) for a residential contractor. For three months, she did 150 joists a day, she recalls. When she got up in the morning, she said, "I couldn't get my fingers uncurled."

For nine months, she put up tile ceiling in the university's dental school. It was good and bad, she said. "I got really competent at it, which was good for my ego, but I didn't like it. You're standing on a scaffold all day with your hands above your head, working with gritty tile." She pushed for a heavy construction assignment and finally the union assigned her to the university library where she built scaffolding and plywood forms for concrete.

Later, she hung doors on the new post office and worked the transit at the university hospital, marking grid lines to indicate where columns supporting each floor were to be built.

"YOU HAVE TO be very exact," she said.

All the while, her male colleagues never let her forget that she was a female, she said. If they spoke to her at all in the beginning, it was to pass sexist remarks. Three "gems" wrote graffiti about her on the outhouse walls for the first 2½ years, she said. Eventually she gave up eating lunch with them because she said she got sick of being ignored or being made fun of or listening to their views of the world.

She said she cried a lot. She became discouraged, but she never considered quitting. Occasionally, there were men who were nice, especially in the last year or two.

But Dale McCormick did more than survive her apprenticeship and become a journeyman carpenter.

She came in first in her local apprenticeship contest. "It tickled me to beat all those boys I'd been in class with. She then went on to write her carpentry manual "Against the Grain," originally intended for women but now used as a text in many high school shop classes around the country. She also formed McCormick Construction and Cabinetry Co. in Iowa. The company is not dormant because of her involvement as head of building services at Cornerstones.

But, according to Stipe and Klein, McCormick does more than teach the ins and outs of home building. "She's an inspiration to all of us," said Stipe.

By Marie McGee staff writer

JANE STIPE WAS in a doctor's office skimming a McCall's magazine when she spotted an ad describing a housebuilding class for women offered by a firm in Maine called Cornerstones.

That was a year ago. Stipe remembers it clearly because it was almost the end of the school year and it looked like she was going to be pink-slipped again in her job as a reading specialist with the Wayne-Westland school district.

She read the ad carefully, noting that the class in Brunswick was taught by women. "That's what really interested me," she recalls.

She jotted down the address and eventually decided to enroll in the class. Therein began a chain of incidents that have changed her life much less her career.

As soon as classes ended on that Friday in June 1982, Stipe of Livonia and another teaching friend, Celeste Klein of Saline, drove nonstop to Maine and arrived there early Monday morning, just in time for the first class session.

Looking back, she said, "those three weeks were probably the most totally educational experience I've had" in the 8½ years she spent pursuing an art-education degree from Michigan State University and a masters degree from Miami University in Oxford, Ohio.

WHAT-STIPE AND Klein participated in was an intensive three-week course that emphasized construction experience and development of the basic skills for building an energy-efficient home.

The course was taught by a woman, Dale McCormick, head instructor at Cornerstones and author of Against the Grain: A Carpentry Manual for Women. Under the guidance of other professional women carpenters, Stipe and Klein and the other students constructed an energy-efficient structure from the ground up.

Not only did Stipe and Klein participate in the three-week, 8½-hour-a-day class that drew several hundred women from across the country including California, they managed to convince Cornerstones to sponsor a class in the midwest so that women wouldn't have to go so far to take the class. It is scheduled for September.

Stipe and Klein will help teach the class, but the head instructor will be McCormick.

The class will be conducted in Good Hart, in the Petoskey area, where Stipe has property. The building project will be a 16-by-24-foot 1½-story solar

'I probably would never have been able to take the course if it had been taught by men. I would have been too intimidated.'

— Jane Stipe

tempered structure that Stipe designed and will use in connection with her new housebuilding career.

The class is open to all women — regardless of age. "In our class, the age of the women ranged from 21 to 58. The oldest woman came from Miami."

Cost for the class is $425 per person. Housebuilding for Women has been a successful course at Cornerstones School for several years now. The premise of all Cornerstones' courses is to learn by doing, Stipe said.

THE EMPHASIS is on structural and energy-efficient theory and technique through on-the-job training," she said. The same format will be followed at the Good Hart location, Stipe said.

Mornings will begin with crew formation and job assignments. Lectures/demonstrations, use of power tools, laying out studs and joists, sheathing, flooring, rafters, the theory of forces and loads, passive solar theory and energy efficiency are but a few of the topics covered during the day.

End of the day wrap-ups are held to keep everyone informed of each crew's activities and program and problems encountered.

The school is an offshoot of a company founded in 1976 by Dr. Charlie Wing and Susan Black Wing.

"Empowerment. That's what learning to use tools is all about," says McCormick, herself the first woman to complete the Iowa Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners Apprenticeship.

"For many women, our courses provide the first opportunity to hold power over the physical world — over the materials found in everyday life: wood, nails, glass, glue and chemicals. It's an empowering feeling that reaches into

Veri successful

Woman builder nails down enviable career

DEBORAH BOOKER/staff photographer

Lydia Veri talks business with carpenter Ken Summitt at her new building project, Bicentennial subdivision in Livonia.

By Marie McGee staff writer

A VERY NICE thing happened to Lydia Veri in her pursuit of the American dream. It's called success.

At 42, the Americanized Italian immigrant has hammered out an enviable career in the home construction field that has many of her male counterparts scratching their heads in wonderment. Her success has also sent them scrambling back to their drawing boards to review their techniques.

Veri is president of her own company, Livonia Building Co. She has two subdivisions in Livonia to her credit, plus several individual custom-built homes in other areas.

One of the subdivisions is Tiffany Square, a project of 25 luxury-built homes in the Wayne Road-Seven Mile area of Livonia. No two homes are alike. All are in the 3,000-square-foot area and were priced above $100,000.

HER NEWEST project is Bicentennial, on Seven Mile east of Livonia's largest park with the same name. With 110 homes, it will be her most ambitious project to date. Like those in Tiffany Square, the custom-built homes are in the $100,000-plus price range. Eleven have been sold and are under construction.

Veri is one of only a handful of women in the area who have moved into the male-dominated field of home construction. In her case, it called for strong personal determination and an unwavering belief that she could do the job.

It also meant overcoming obstacles that included a limited understanding of the English language and what amounted to a grade school education.

She certainly didn't do it with any real experience in the field — except as a teenager helping her father back in Italy build a house. It was a family project, she recalled. She, her mother and two sisters had to lug bricks and help mix mortar for the house in Abruzzi that "turned out beautiful."

Lydia and her husband, Donato, arrived in the U.S. in 1959. They could speak very little English. He was a bricklayer by trade. They settled first in Pennsylvania and later moved to Michigan and Redford Township.

Before their children were born, she worked at the Fisher Body plant on Plymouth Road.

BY THE TIME her third child arrived, Veri said she was the typical "bored" homemaker.

Her solution to the problem, she recalls, was to build a house. That was a ranch on Garfield Street in Redford.

She tired of that house in a few years, sold it and built another one — a much larger one. It was a colonial, this time on Bennett Street in Livonia.

By this time, she said she realized that she loved building houses and she didn't have any trouble selling them. In 1971, she began buying up lots and building houses on them one by one.

"I really started getting busy," she said.

Clyde and Beulah Smith

Smiths observe 60th

Pioneer Livonia residents Beulah (Ryder) and Clyde Everett Smith observed their 60th wedding anniversary at a family dinner Saturday, June 30, at the Plymouth Landing.

All four of their children were present plus most of their 10 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. That includes sons, David Ryder Smith and Clyde Everett Smith, both of Westland, and their families; and daughters, Marilyn Fay Gray of South Lyons and Joyce Margret Tomilson of Plymouth and their families.

The couple, who grew up on neighboring farms and started dating in high school, were married on June 30, 1923, at Beulah's parents' home on Plymouth Road, where the Ford Motor Co. transmission plant is now located.

Builder's success is a Veri nice achievement

Lydia Veri designs her kitchens for maximum efficiency for women — allowing for a good traffic pattern and lots of work area. Island cupboards are also something she favors. The sink area will always be in front of a window.

She attributes a large part of her success to the fact that she is a woman and "women trust my judgement. I know what women want. When I make suggestions, they know it is for their own good."

The kitchens, for instance, are designed to be efficient as far as placement of appliances and the designation of the work areas. She prefers laundry rooms on the first floor that are off to one side of the house and can be completely closed off.

She also favors the "great room" concept over that of separate living room and family rooms. Because they're hardly used, living rooms are an extravagance at today's building prices, she feels.

In the beginning, she designed most of the homes, but now she confers with an architect.

MOST OF THE homes will have Veri touches. If she has her way, the home will have a circular staircase and unusual hand-picked light fixtures. Italian marble and tile will prevail throughout. Wood windows and heavy doors are other trademarks.

Probably the biggest reason for her success is her reputation for building a quality house. Her reputation for quality stems from frequent inspections of the work done by the work crews she personally recruits.

"I check everything. I tell them, if they don't do a good job, I fire them," she said with a strength that belies her 5-foot-1 (in high heels) frame. "I'm there to see they do good work. I yell at them, if they don't."

She said many of the workmen are surprised when they first meet her. "They expect a big, tough woman. I surprise them," she smiled.

But building her good reputation was not without its problems.

Her limited English made reading directions and understanding the meaning of construction terminology difficult.

When she started out, she said, there was "no school, no books to read" to prepare her for the required examinations. She had to learn everything the hard way. She took the building examination three times before she finally passed it.

"I SAY TO THEM," I want to be a builder, not a lawyer," she recalls.

She has high praise for Livonia's building department officials who, she said, were very patient with her.

"If I don't know, they explain it to me," she said.

She also got a lot of support from her family — particularly her husband.

But while he was supportive, she said, he didn't help her.

"He told me in the beginning: you take care of your job and I'll take care of mine. If I needed someone, he

'I check everything. I tell them if they don't do a good job, I fire them. I'm there to see they do good work. I yell at them.'

— Lydia Veri

wouldn't make the phone call. I had to do it."

The Veris, their three daughters and a son, live in Tiffany Square in her two-story "dream home."

"Because of the roof variations, the architect say it can't be built," she recalls with a smile. "I say yes it can. And we work it out."

For her and her husband, her success embodies fulfillment of the American dream, she said. "It could never have happened in Italy. Especially for a woman."

"One thing I want to say. I made it by working hard, never giving up. But I also have to thank all the people who worked with me. Without their help, I wouldn't have made it."

The humbleness is Veri typical.

Housebuilding for women class offered their personal lives. They construct a building, and it's standing there. They never thought they could do it. But they did."

Stipe echoes those feelings.

ONE OF THE reasons for taking the class — other than eyeing a career change — Stipe said, came from a longtime desire to build her own home.

That's why she bought the 10 acres in Good Hart about five years ago. It's near the summer home she helped her brother build several years ago for their parents, retired Southgate school superintendent Robert Stipe and his wife Marian, a kindergarten teacher at the P. D. Graham Elementary School in Westland.

To prepare for the class, she will hand dig the trench for the cement slab for the workshop that the class will eventually build.

For Stipe, one of the best things to come out of the class was the self-confidence she now feels as the result of the class. It's also made her more assertive in other areas of her life.

She recalls one particular "meaningful" incident during the three-week course.

"Everyday we do a different job. This particular day it was my turn to work on the roof. I was hesitant because I have this fear of heights. But I knew I had to do it. I climbed up and I got very nervous. The other women were scurrying around. I said to them, 'I'm afraid to be up here. I have to sit down for a few minutes and acclimate myself.' They understood. No one said anything negative. Instead, they gave me encouragement and support. In a few minutes I made myself get up and within 10 minutes I was scurrying around just like they were.

"I DON'T THINK that would have happened if that had been a crew of men. In fact, I probably would never have been able to take the course if it had been taught by men. I would have been too intimidated," Stipe added.

Since completing the course, Stipe has been involved in several remodeling projects for friends. One included completely gutting a bathroom and installing all new fixtures. Another job was remodeling the dining room of a Victorian style house for a male teaching colleague.

"He came home one day and looked at what I had done, and said, 'Gosh, Jane, I'm really surprised.' I wondered what he thought it was going to be."

Stipe chuckles at the Cornerstones' brochure's description of the September class: Housework.

"I love it. How many other teachers do you know would give up teaching to do housework?" she laughs.

For more information on the course, write to Cornerstones Energy Group Inc., 21 Stanwood Street, Brunswick, Maine 04011. The phone number is (207) 729-6701. Stipe can be reached at 349-6267 — when she isn't in Good Hart digging in for September.

Celeste Klein measures for shingles in the house-building class she took from Cornerstones. The temperature was 114 degrees on the roof that day. Klein, of Saline, will assist in the class offered in Good Hart in the fall.

Rev. Lloyd Buss

Breakdown of family unit may be accelerated by the absence of community

Is the family in trouble? Is the family, the backbone of our society and nation, experiencing difficult times?

Many would say yes. Rising divorce statistics, increasing cases of spouse abuse and child abuse, a decline in the number of couples getting married and the increase of couples living together without marriage, and the new demands for female liberation all have been used to support the claim that the family is in serious trouble.

The statistics are irrefutable. The number of divorces and decline of marriages, and the increasing incidence of abuse cannot be denied. The statistics do not tell us the whole story of the family crisis, but surely we can agree that all is not well.

THE CAUSE for our family crisis, may however, lie outside the family. The breakdown of our family units may well have occurred because the pressure from outside the family became more than the family could withstand.

The family may not have collapsed from internal weaknesses or a flawed structure. The family may simply have been crushed by pressures outside and beyond its control.

Instead of being preoccupied primarily with the pathology of family breakdowns, we ought to recognize the declining strength and support of traditional forms and patterns of community life that once worked hand-in-glove with family life.

GROWING UP in a rural community in mid-state Illinois, there was virtually nothing I could do that would not be either noted or reported to my family.

This included those experiences of significant accomplishments as well as those actions stemming from a momentary lack of good judgement. I truly lived in a community, and my family was nurtured and supported in that community.

It's not likely today that people make it a practice to call parents to praise their offspring or to offer any support in a nurturing discipline. Commending people and taking time to correct and counsel them is at best infrequent.

OBVIOUSLY, the family crisis will not be resolved by only having people take their responsibility and care for one another more seriously. We have other patterns of life and institutions that need to be more care-full and sensitive to human needs as well.

Something as simple as the recognition of the women's contribution to the whole financial support of a family would be one small step for all non-females and a giant step for families.

The family is in trouble. We need to be grateful for its continued resiliency in the face of current pressures, and we need to take more seriously the failure of institutions and patterns of life that should aid and abet the family.

Noah's ark sails again

Children who attended the vacation church school held recently at St. Paul United Presbyterian Church in Livonia didn't have to get their feet wet when they portrayed the heroes of the Bible. Thanks to two cardboard cartons that once housed refrigerators, colored paper, crayons and imagination, the children were able to build an ark and animals for use in the dramatization of the story of Noah. The children who performed in the skit included Colleen Manseau (above left), Nicholas and Cassandra Johnson, Sue Stirling, David Stirling (behind the pig's mask), Chris Caruso (behind the dog), an unidentified boy and John Liebertz (kneeling). The children also acted out the stories of Moses, David and Joseph and learned a new song each day. Two unidentified 3-year-olds (left) clap their hands as they sing one of the songs they learned to a last-day audience composed of parents.

St. John's courses focus on morality and scripture

Four courses — one on moral theology, two on scripture and one on the Bishops' Pastoral Letter on War and Peace — will be offered July 25-29 at St. John's Provincial Seminary, at 44011 Five Mile, Plymouth. The courses include "Human Sexuality and Sexual Morality" to be taught by the Rev. George Gustafson of the St. John's staff. The course will investigate the theology of human sexuality in Catholic tradition and contemporary thought, and will consider the methodology and moral evaluation of specific sexual behavior. The Rev. John Castellet of the St. John's staff will teach "Book of Revelation — A Prophecy?" The course will look at the book as a pastoral letter to first century churches containing a prophetic interpretation of their situation, and will address the fallacy of popular interpretation of the book as a detailed prediction of 20th-century events. "The Prophetic Call and Ministry" will survey biblical texts revealing prophets reflecting on their own experiences. The course will be taught by the Rev. Jerome Walsh of the St. John's staff. The Rev. Richard Cassidy, director of the Office of Justice and Peace for the Archdiocese of Detroit, will coordinate the course, "The NCCB Pastoral Letter on War and Peace." Further information on the courses may be obtained by calling the seminary at 453-8200.

Utility stocks give you tax advantages

Public utility stocks used to be among the most popular low-risk investments. No one expected these stocks to substantially go up in price, but you could always depend on them for safe, consistent yields.

Then came the '70s — a decade of inflation, environmentalism and hostile government regulators.

These forces dimmed share prices — and the enthusiasm of prospective buyers for all utilities issues.

TO HELP THE power companies attract investors' capital, in 1981 Congress gave their stocks a novel appeal as a tax shelter. Now, when you buy shares in most of the large electric utilities, you can reinvest dividends automatically, often in stock the company offers at a 5-percent discount.

The IRS lets you exclude up to $1,500 a year for a married couple filing jointly of these reinvested dividends from your taxable income.

There is no tax on the dividends until you sell the stock. So long as you hold your shares for more than a year, the earnings are taxed at a long-term capital gains rate instead of the ordinary income rate that usually applies to dividends.

THERE IS MORE to recommending utility stocks than preferential tax treatment. In most states, the regulators have eased up a bit in recognition of the companies' need to earn more profit. The decline in oil prices and interest rates should help energize stocks further.

Utilities' dividends average 10 percent of their share price, a considerably better return than you can get now on taxable money market funds.

Tax-managed funds give you another way to invest in utilities' high dividends without increasing your tax burden. These funds, sold through brokers, are similar to mutual funds except that they reinvest all dividends and capital gains and make no distribution to shareholders.

INVESTORS TAKE THEIR profits in the form of an increase share price when they sell out. If they have held their stock for more than a year, the profits are taxed at the long-term gains rate.

A tax-managed fund shelters profits this way because it is a corporation. Like all corporations, it pays no tax on 85 percent of its income from stock holdings. Deductible business expenses offset the remaining 15 percent. An ordinary mutual fund is not a corporation and must distribute 90 percent of its profits or pay tax.

You should carefully analyze your own portfolio and investment needs before investing in utility stocks.

Bank, money market: Each has its place

Q. I have been using a money market mutual fund for a couple of years. Recently, I have been receiving a lot of information from my banker to persuade me to switch to a fund run by my bank. Would you tell me whether it is better to be in a money fund run by a bank or a mutual fund?

A. There are many differences in the funds, and I think you really have to consider individual funds and decide which gives you the features that you value most.

My friends in the mutual fund industry feel they will earn the biggest return over a period of time, but I think on that subject, you should look at the record of the funds you are considering, and let the record do the talking.

Some people will be attracted to the bank-managed funds because of their coverage by federal deposit insurance.

THAT CERTAINLY IS an important item, but at the same time, the excellent record of the mutual fund managed accounts, where no record of any loss has occurred to date, speaks very well for their safety.

To many people, the ease and speed with which withdrawals can be made from the fund is very important. You should check to see what limitation the fund puts on the size and frequency of withdrawals, and how long it takes to get your money.

Your local bank probably offers the best deal in this area, since in most cases, you can make a withdrawal just by going into the bank.

A NUMBER OF the mutual fund-managed accounts have a privilege that is difficult to find in the bank-managed funds, and that is the ability to move your money out of the money fund account into stock and bond funds of various characteristics if you wish to do so.

COME TO A FREE MERRILL LYNCH SEMINAR ENTITLED: DO MORE WITH YOUR MONEY IN CMA

If you need a productive, tax-free investment, let us tell you about our Cash Management Account. We created this financial service to let you invest idle funds automatically into tax-free investments. And earn daily compounded dividends at current money-market rates. So even if you only use your CMA to earn high, tax-free dividends, it's well worth looking into. But you can also write checks against your CMA service. Draw cash from 80,000 banks around the world with a special VISA card. Make loans against the securities in your account — invest in other money-market funds. And all this activity — earnings, withdrawals, loans, investments — is recorded on one simple monthly statement. If you can invest $20,000 in cash and/or securities, plus a few minutes time to attend our seminar, look into our CMA service. We'd love to give you the details and answer any questions. But please reserve soon. We expect quite a turnout.

State Senate to consider

Solar energy bill faces big battle

By Penny Wright
special writer

Solar energy supporters received a boost when the state House of Representatives recently passed an extension of the state's solar tax credit by a vote of 88-12.

House Bill 4622 survived a class struggle in the House, however, and faces an uncertain future in the state Senate during the fall session.

Its sponsor, Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, defended it by saying solar heating is not "a toy for the rich."

But Rep. Alma Stallworth, D-Detroit, called the $20 million to $30 million in lost income tax revenue excessive. "With multiple energy demands," she said in an interview, "the cost to subsidize solar energy is beyond our capability."

DAN SHARP, an aide to Bullard, said the conflict was between supporters of "renewables" (such as solar) and conservationists.

"The only resistance that has developed is the belief that if this money doesn't go into solar, it will go into conservation for the poor," Sharp said in an interview.

Due to expire this Dec. 31, the present solar tax credit allows taxpayers to de-

'The support for solar is a mile wide and an inch deep.'

duct from their state income taxes 10 percent of the first $2,000 of a system's costs and 5 percent of the next $8,000 — a maximum credit of $600.

Bullard's bill would raise the credit to 20 percent of the first $10,000 spent on a solar, wind or water energy conservation device — a maximum of $2,000. The credit may be claimed only once per device.

Owners of rental housing may claim 10 percent of the first $2,000 and 5 percent of the next $13,000 — a total of $850 — as a credit against their income tax bills.

Bullard's bill allows a flat 20-percent credit against the first $18,000 spent on such a device — a maximum of $3,600.

The bill also would make solar devices subject to the sales tax. Under the current law, they are exempt from sales taxes.

STALLWORTH PREFERS that the state concentrate on more traditional energy programs such as weatherization for low-income families and stopping gas shut-offs. The Detroit lawmaker contends that "the costs of solar probably elude most people." Not so, said Bullard, citing Michigan Energy Administration figures. In 1980, nearly 60 percent of all solar systems were installed by families with incomes of less than $30,000.

Bullard also noted a trend toward lower-cost solar systems over the past two years, a sign that tax credits are going to more affordable energy systems.

BOTH SIDES predict a struggle when the bill reaches the Senate floor. It goes first to the finance committee.

Stallworth, who heads the House public utilities committee and is working on energy legislation, said the bill will "probably experience a difficult time."

Sharp, Bullard's aide, believes passage is likely, but it will take work. "The support for solar is a mile wide and an inch deep," he said. "People know it works, but don't see that it will generate money for the state."

Sharp contends that job creation and economic activity generated by the solar industry actually will produce revenue for the state.

And if consumers spend less on energy imported from other states, he said, they will have more to spend here.

Higways get 'new' joint repairs

Concrete highways and human beings have something in common: As they grow older, problems can develop in their joints.

While doctors study the human problems, Michigan highway engineers have developed a new method of repairing joints on the state's 2,400 miles of highways and freeways. Since May 1982, joint repairs at nearly 10,000 locations have been placed under contract.

Well-constructed concrete highways have a "design life" or life expectancy of about 20 years. But trouble often begins around 10 years when the joints begin to deteriorate.

Pavement joints now are placed every 41 feet on concrete highways to provide for the expansion and contraction of pavement as weather changes from hot to cold. Joints formerly were placed every 99 feet. Without them, the pavement would crack randomly and be in total disrepair.

FOR YEARS, highway engineers tried to develop a way to make long-lasting, speedy and economical joint repairs.

Early methods involved filling them with asphalt material, but they did not last long and required frequent maintenance.

About 15 years ago, a new method was used involving removal of the old joint and replacement with a precast concrete slab. They were speedy to install and durable but began to tilt after several years. Motorists who have driven down a stretch of concrete highway and mistakenly think they have a flat tire are familiar with the feeling of tilted pavement joints.

Recently Michigan Department of Transportation engineers developed a system which eliminates tilting, appears to last and is installed quickly.

THE METHOD involves removal of the old joint and the pavement directly surrounding it. Holes are drilled around the edges, and steel dowels placed in them. Concrete then is poured into the area where the pavement has been removed. The dowels "tie" the old and new concrete together, preventing tilting of the new piece as vehicles move over it.

The dowel method costs about $50 per joint or $50-$60 per square yard. Dowels increase repair costs about 20 percent, but the repaired joints are expected to last twice as long.

The largest project using this method was completed last month on a 14.4-mile stretch of I-94 in Jackson County. The $2.1-million project involved repair of about 2,700 pavement joints.

Well-constructed concrete highways have a 'design life' or life expectancy of about 20 years. But trouble often begins after 10 years when the joints begin to deteriorate.

Suppliers are more cautious

Auto manufacturers are upbeat about the economy

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Auto manufacturers have a more enlightened approach to long-range market changes than their suppliers, according to one industry consultant.

"Manufacturers are planning to take more overt action than parts suppliers," said Peter Van Hull, Birmingham resident and director of the automotive industry management information consulting practice of Arthur Andersen & Co., accounting and consulting firm.

"Manufacturers are very serious about changes for the first time. Suppliers are not so sure. They are in a wait-and-see mode," Van Hull said.

Van Hull recently unveiled a survey of manufacturers and suppliers that was generally more upbeat about the U.S. auto industry's share of the market, prices and quality than 1979 and 1981 surveys. He said the industry expects even greater changes than past surveys indicated.

The new survey — called Delphi III after the ancient Greek oracle — is being sold by Arthur Andersen to industrial customers.

VAN HULL tried to avoid criticism of suppliers' attitudes but repeatedly noted differences in their outlooks. Sample findings from the survey:

- Suppliers see less benefit to them from "just-in-time" delivery of parts to manufacturers, in which manufacturers' stockpile no more than about one day's supply. Manufacturers predict a 12 percent potential reduction in the cost of a car by 1992 through "just-in-time" deliveries. But suppliers see the system as forcing them to be more competitive and a way for manufacturers to push inventory problems back on suppliers.

- "There is general understanding of robotics and factory automation by vehicle manufacturers, but little understanding in supplier companies."

- Manufacturers see inventories turning over 20 times a year by 1992, but suppliers see only eight turnovers a year. A higher turnover reduces the amount of working capital tied up in supplies.

- Two-thirds of manufacturers identify improved strategic planning as their highest priority to improve their competitiveness.

The survey was based on lengthy forms sent to 105 manufacturing executives and 190 supplier executives, according to Van Hull's associate, Warren Watkins. That was double the number answering the 1981 survey and "a good cross-section," he said.

OTHER FINDINGS from the survey:

"U.S. passenger car volume is forecast to increase to 8.9 million units in 1983 to 10 million by 1985 and 10.5 million in 1990," Van Hull said these projections are down two million from the 1981 survey, indicating one note of pessimism.

"General Motors' U.S. market share is forecast to remain roughly 45 percent for the next 10 years. Ford is expected to remain at approximately 16 percent, and Chrysler's share is forecast to be 10 percent.

"Ignoring inflation and raw material cost, a 2-4 percent annual cost reduction potential can be achieved by suppliers through quality and productivity improvement." Nevertheless, "most suppliers forecast price increases of 3 percent a year for parts they sell to manufacturers."

Fuel prices are expected to increase to $1.75 a gallon for unleaded by 1990. Suppliers generally predicted prices 5 cents a gallon lower than did manufacturers.

In addition, 82 percent of the respondents forecast another energy crisis between 1987 and 1992 — a finding Van Hull said was a gut feeling more than a factually-based prediction.

FUEL ECONOMY will continue to increase. Respondents predicted 35 miles per gallon for passenger cars by 1992 and 27 mpg for light trucks. These were generally lower than earlier surveys, Van Hull said.

A brighter future for large cars was forecast — 15 percent of the 1990 market in the 1983 survey versus only 10 percent in the 1981 survey.

Average life of new cars is expected to increase from eight years for 1981-models to 10 years for 1990 models.

Prices for U.S. produced passenger cars are forecast to increase 3 percent a year through 1992.

Manufacturers are very serious about changes for the first time. Suppliers are not so sure. They are in a wait-and-see mode. . . . Manufacturers see inventories turning over 20 times a year by 1992, but suppliers see only eight turnovers a year.

Ernie talks 'Tiger Town'

HIS VOICE, resonant, resounds throughout my most cherished memories. His is truly the voice of summer.

"Well, this big crowd here is ready to break loose. Three men on, two men out. Game tied 1-1 in the ninth inning. McDaniel checkin' his sign with Jake Gibbs. The tall right-hander ready to go to work again — wind up, and the pitch... He swings, line shot, base hit rightfield! The Tigers win it! Here comes Kalline to score and it's ALL OVER! Don Wert singles, the Tigers mob Don. Kalline has scored, the fans are streaming onto the field, and the Tigers have won their first pennant since Nineteen Hundred and Forty-Five. (Sounds of ecstasy audible in the background.) Let's listen to the bedlam at Tiger Stadium."

I was 10 years old when Ernie Harwell described the scene at Tiger Stadium that hot and glorious night in 1968. It was one of the happiest nights of my life. The memory of that night, and Harwell's description, are indelibly etched in my mind.

Who can't remember the joyous summer of 1968? Who of my age group can't remember listening to the radio during school? Why did the teachers let us get away with that?

REMEMBER WHEN Denny McLain won his 30th game? They were losing 4-3 in the ninth to Oakland. Reggie Jackson had hit two homers off him. Things looked bad, but 1968 was magic. The Tigers tied the score. And then...

"Man on first, man on third. One man down. Two-two the count on Willie Horton. Here's the set by Segui, the pitch — swung on, a drive to left! That'll be the ballgame! It's over the head of Gosger. McLain wins his 30th. Here comes Stanley into score... Denny McLain is one of the first out of the dugout racing out and Horton is mobbed as the Tigers come from behind..."

Great stuff. To this day, goose bumps don my arm and tingles race down my spine when I reread those memories.

I finally met the man who owns the voice in all my memories. It was last Wednesday at Tiger Stadium, the place where most of my memories are generated.

THE MAN IS a member of the baseball Hall of Fame. He resides in Farmington Hills. He's making a movie. Those were the professional reasons for doing the interview.

He is the voice of my memories. He has been an integral part of my summer routine for my entire life. I just flat-out wanted to sit and talk baseball with him. Those were the real reasons for doing the interview.

Ernie Harwell is the type of person who you want to count among your friends though you've never really met him. It seems like you've known him all your life because he's always been a part of your life.

And I think he's aware of this. I've not interviewed too many "celebrities." Of those I have interviewed, none have made me feel as relaxed and at ease as Harwell. He acted as if he had known me all his life.

We talked about the movie, "Tiger Town." It seems my fondness for 1968 is shared by movie writer and director Alan Shapiro. He has written a fictitious movie based on the thrills of 1968 and the life of Al Kalline. Shapiro, by the way, is a native of Bloomfield Hills and a graduate of Andover High School.

AND AS WELL they should, Harwell, along with his 1968 broadcasting partner Ray Lane, will do play-by-play and interview scenes in the movie.

"The hero is based on Kalline's baseball career. I'm the announcer," said Harwell. "Alan Shapiro was a fan back in 1968, and he knew I was the announcer back in those days."

So, he asked if he and Lane would take part in the movie. Harwell's play by play will serve to move the movie along from scene to scene. He will also be seen interviewing Billy Young, the Kalline-like hero portrayed by Roy Scheider.

"I've really enjoyed it. It's been fun. I've met actors before but I've never really done a scene with any," Harwell said.

The voice of Harwell is not a stranger to the cinema. It was Harwell's voice you heard announcing the 1963 World Series in the movie "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." Harwell's voice also played a major role in the made-for-television drama "Aunt Mary."

HE ADMITS that "Tiger Town" is a little special. "I feel gratified by the fact that they picked me (to be in the movie). It's nice to be included in something that celebrates the Tiger '68 team which it is, in a sense, though it's fictionalized. It's a tribute to the Tigers. It's a great thing to go back and remember," he said.

For many years, Harwell lived in Florida during the off-season. Two years ago he bought a house in Farmington Hills and lives there now year-round.

"I love it. I came back because my kids and grandchildren are here. We missed them. And I feel more a part of the community living here all year," he said.

Harwell, the voice of summer and Hall-of-Fame broadcaster, said he plans to live and work in Michigan as long as he's wanted.

"So far, nobody's asked me to quit," he said with a laugh.

It's not likely anyone ever will. Could you imagine listening to a Tiger game without hearing Harwell's voice?

No way. But, there will come a time when Harwell silences his golden throat. It's comforting to know that when that time comes, we'll have movies like "Tiger Town" around to keep the voice of summer alive forever.

United kickers nipped in shootout

Tom Montroy can't kick about the 1983 soccer season.

His Livonia United squad, comprised of under-12 boys, went all the way to the finals of the U.S. Soccer Federation Midwest District II Regional before losing to Scott-Gallagher of St. Louis, Mo., in a shootout, 1-0, at Dodge Park in Omaha, Neb.

The Livonia team finished the season with a 40-4-2 record, while capturing four tournaments and one league crown.

"It was very enjoyable even though we felt we didn't lose it," said Montroy. "We played even for 80 minutes and lost in a shootout (7-6) against the top team in the country."

Scott-Gallagher also won boys age division crowns at under-14, under-16 and under-19.

Livonia, meanwhile, opened Midwest play with a 7-1 triumph over the Indiana state champs as Mike Berens had two goals. Scott Finzel, Dave Dingile, Brian Truchan, Derek Montroy and Ryan Okerstrom added solo tallies.

IN THE SECOND round, United turned back Minnesota 7-1 behind two goals from Montroy and one each from Eric Schwedt, Alan Paterson, Craig Balough and Berens.

Livonia then advanced to the championship with a pair of shutouts turned in by goalie Dave Hebestriest.

Balough, Paterson, Dingile, Berens and Truchan scored in a 5-0 triumph over Kansas in a third round match.

Dingile scored the game's only goal in a 1-0 semifinal win over Ohio South. Anchoring the defense in the win were Erik Booker, Paterson, Brian Thiel, Joe Soper and Jason Larson.

United's leading scorer, Khaled Zeidan, missed the tournament with a broken ankle, according to Montroy.

"It would have been nice if he could have played," said the United coach. "But we played very well. We had a pretty good season. And I was informed today (Monday) that we won the Coca-Cola Sportsmanship trophy."

UNITED opened play this season in April and won an indoor tournament at Square Lake followed by invitational wins in Midland and Cincinnati. Livonia also won the Bonanza-Express Soccer League (BESL) title and went on to capture the State Cup, qualifying for the trip to Omaha.

Livonia Adray inches closer to baseball title

Livonia Adray moved closer to another Livonia Collegiate regular season baseball title Sunday with its eighth and ninth straight wins, a double-header sweep of Ann Arbor Wendy's at Ford Field.

A win yesterday over Redford-Westland Adray would virtually assure manager Ron Hellier's team of their third consecutive title. (Results of that game will appear in Monday's Observer.)

Solid pitching and timely hitting continued to buoy the league leaders.

Right-hander Dave Rodriguez scattered six hits and did not walk a batter in going the distance as Livonia scored a 5-1 triumph in the opening game over Wendy's.

Offensively, Mike MacDonald came through with a key two-run double in the third inning to pace Adray. Jim Lasota was the team's leader in hits with two.

Jamie Chilcoff, the losing pitcher, got little support defensively. His teammates committed five errors.

In the second game, MacDonald took his turn on the mound and fired a three-hitter as Livonia romped to an 8-1 victory.

MacDonald's control was also sharp. He walked just two and fanned five.

Greg Kuzia went 3-for-3 for the winners, including two doubles. Pete Rose added two hits and two RBI.

ON FRIDAY, Livonia blanked Walter's Appliance, 6-0, as outfielder John DePillo led the way with a two-run homer (in the fourth).

Jeff Gatt and Don Dombey each had two hits for the winners.

Kuzia pitched the first six innings to pick up the victory, while reliefer John Recker was impressive during his one-inning stint. Recker struck out four (one runner reached base on a dropped third strike).

Jim Stoltsiadis went the distance in a losing cause for Walter's.

Michigan National Bank (MNB) won on Friday, beating cellar dweller Garden City, 3-2. MNB then moved closer to clinching the fourth and final playoff spot with a 1-0 triumph in the opener of a double-header with Walter's on Sunday.

Jim Boucher went 2-for-3 in the MNB win over GC. John Nadratowski added a clutch two-run double.

Westland pitcher Dennis Kuritz was masterful as he led his team to a 6-1 victory over the North Redford National All-Stars in a Little League baseball district tournament game Monday in Redford. The championship game is slated for 3 p.m. Saturday at Lawson Field, 19250 Lexington, just north of Seven Mile between Inkster and Beech Daly roads. The winner advances to next week's Little League World Series international qualifier at Harper Woods Memorial Park.

Wolves, Express set date Monday

By Brad Emons staff writer

Let's do it again.

The Livonia Wolves, a top-notch amateur club, and the Detroit Express of the American Soccer League (ASL), square off at 7 p.m. Monday in an exhibition match at Bentley High School.

The two teams were originally scheduled to play on June 28, but heavy rains earlier in the day prompted officials from the Livonia Public Schools' Community Education Department to call a postponement.

Players and spectators complained that the 11 a.m. decision was made prematurely.

Wolves officials estimated they turned away almost 1,000 fans that night.

"Unless it rains heavy, it will not be called off," said Wolves assistant coach Tony Farrugia. "By the time they made the decision that day, the field had already started to drain."

Wolves players were equally disappointed.

"I NEVER saw so many guys who wanted to cry," said Pete Camilleri, the Wolves' center-forward. "It was tough explaining to the people. There was a letdown but after a day or two, we knew it was an act of God."

"The Express have been great about rescheduling the match. They've been very cooperative."

Camilleri, a 1978 Bentley graduate, led the Wolves to the Great Lakes

Soccer League's regular season crown with a 9-0-1 record. His 17 goals paced the league.

The Wolves, who began the playoffs yesterday, finished the regular season with a 6-4 win at Trenton (July 10), as Camilleri and Walt Kliza each scored twice. Dan Naurato and Mike Coppola completed the scoring.

Emilio Troiani, meanwhile, scored three times in a 12-0 Wolves' win over UM-Dearborn on July 6.

"IF WE play to our capabilities, we should win the championship," Camilleri said. "Against the Express we're going to try to keep it competitive and see how we compare to their level of play."

"I'm sure they (the Express) won't blow us out so we'll try to keep it close."

The Express, defending ASL champions, are led by Andy Chapman and newly acquired Keith Furphy. They currently sit in second place behind Dallas in the ASL's Western Division.

Tickets at the gate for the exhibition clash are $2 per person. Children 12 and under will be admitted free. A preliminary game featuring two area youth squads begins at 5:45 p.m.

Of course, Wolves officials also emphasized that tickets purchased for June 28 will again be honored at the gate Monday night.

Catcher goes to Missouri

By Brad Emons
staff writer

They fly for all of their trips. They make two big trips. Next year they're going to Hawaii."

A four-year starter, Slavin was highly instrumental in Salem's success. He led the Rocks to a Class A semifinal berth before losing to eventual state champion West Bloomfield, 4-1. Salem was 40-13 during the past two seasons.

SLAVIN was also an accomplished football player. He earned All-Observer honors this season as a linebacker and turned down a football scholarship to Eastern Michigan.

He was twice selected All-Area in baseball and was named to the Michigan High School Baseball Coaches Association (MHSBCA) Class A All-State squad.

The 6-foot-2, 215-pound catcher is the second player from the Plymouth-Canton area to receive a scholarship from Missouri. He follows ex-Canton infielder Scott Collins, a three-year starter for the Tigers, to Columbia.

Collins, in fact, showed Slavin around campus during his recruiting visit last week.

The Big Eight Conference, rich in baseball tradition, added another outstanding ballplayer last week when Plymouth Salem All-State catcher Dave Slavin signed a letter of intent with the University of Missouri.

"It was a tough decision," Slavin said. "I brought it down between U-D (University of Detroit) and Missouri.

"I liked the coaches at both schools and U-D will have a heck of a team, but I visited Missouri and I liked the weather and the atmosphere. And they said they're not afraid to use freshmen."

Slavin, who batted .519 and drove in 45 runs as a senior, also entertained offers from Eastern Michigan, Central Michigan and New Mexico.

"I talked it over with my mom and dad," said Slavin. "I heard that Missouri is a good baseball school. Everything they do is first class all the way.

Bunker hurls no-hit gem in MNB win

Tom Goralski, who relieved starter John Emmons, was the winning pitcher. Mark Gniewek took the loss.

MNB's TIM BUNKER, a right-hander from Novi, threw a no-hitter in the 1-0 win over Walter's in the opener.

He faced 25 batters while walking five and striking out two.

Joe Taraskavage, Walter's top pitcher, suffered the loss despite tossing a two-hitter.

MNB scored the game's lone run in the fourth inning when Dean Fracassi bunted safely and went to second on an overthrow. He came home when John Bolen's grounder was mishandled by the second baseman.

The umpires awarded Walter's a forfeit victory in the second game. The game was stopped with one-out in the top of the fifth and MNB leading 6-2.

MNB catcher Dale Vaquera was ejected from the game and officials later ruled that he had not adequately removed himself from the premises of the field.

MNB manager Rey Fracassi, however, is filing a protest.

Nadratowski's two-run single made the score 6-2.

After losing 7-2 on Friday to Wendy's, slumping Redford-Westland was awarded a double-header forfeit on Sunday when Garden City could not field enough players.

Oasis bid real in women's fast-pitch

Oasis Golf Center continued on course toward its second consecutive Livonia Women's Fast-pitch softball crown with a 9-0 triumph last week over the Plymouth Vikings.

It was seventh straight win in league play for Oasis.

The winners scored often and early, tallying at least one run in every inning with the exception of the fourth.

In the first inning, Oasis loaded the bases on singles by Joanne Pachiva and Allison Cole followed by a walk to Sherry Kiselica.

Kathy Morris then reached base on an error as two runs scored. Joni Sommerville, who led the Oasis attack with three hits and a walk, then scored Kiselica with a single to center field, making the count 3-0.

Oasis added another run in the second when pitcher Shelley Larned singled, moved to third on a hit by Cole and scored on a sacrifice fly by Linda Jimenez.

IN THE THIRD, Oasis made it 5-0 when Kiselica, Morris and Sommerville all singled to load the bases. That was followed by a Vickie Forest sacrifice fly.

Morris and Sommerville started the fifth with back-to-back singles. Forest then walked to load the bases.

Morris scored on an infield error and Sommerville crossed home on Cole's sacrifice fly to increase the lead to 7-0.

Oasis scored its final two runs in the sixth. Kiselica and Stafford both singled. Three straight walks to Sommerville, Forest and Cole completed the scoring.

Oasis batters collected 14 hits. Sommerville led with three. Cole, Pachiva, Kiselica and Morris added two each.

Larned notched her third shutout of the year on a two-hitter. She faced just 25 batters and fanned eight, a team-season high, in seven innings of work.

LIONS

Rudzinski aims to sack Green Bay roster

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

Just when Joe Rudzinski was ready to give up the game of football, just when the game had thoroughly disappointed and frustrated him, he got the phone call every college player dreams of.

Rudzinski, a native of Farmington and a 1979 Catholic Central graduate, completed four years of football at Notre Dame last fall. The four years could accurately be described as a rollercoaster ride for Rudzinski.

The 6-foot-3, 218-pound linebacker was a highly-touted prospect from Catholic Central in 1979. In his senior year at CC, Rudzinski was a Catholic Prep All-American and was named to All-State, All-Metro and All-Division teams.

His talents were actively pursued by the University of Michigan, Michigan State, Wisconsin and Notre Dame. The rollercoaster was, at that point, ascending.

"I CHOSE NOTRE Dame for a couple reasons," the muscular, curly-haired Rudzinski said. "They didn't beg me to come they just kind of said, 'Well, if you want to come, come, if not, that's fine too.' I liked what I saw when I visited there. It's a first-class operation. I was in awe, almost. I remember when they were showing me around they took me into the tunnel that leads to the field. That really took me. You could feel the magic of the place."

Michigan State was a close second. Rudzinski's older brother, Paul, was a standout for the Spartans and went on to play four years with the Green Bay Packers.

"I didn't choose State because my brother had gone there. I didn't want to follow in his footsteps, so to speak. I didn't want everyone calling me 'Little Rud,'" he said.

He saw limited action as a freshman, but in his sophomore year Rudzinski earned a starting job with Dan Devine's Irish.

"My goal as a sophomore was just to play. I ended up starting. I really learned a lot that year," he said.

THE ROLLERCOASTER hit its crest in Rudzinski's sophomore year. He started all 12 games for the Irish and was the team's third-leading tackler. He was lauded throughout South Bend for his aggressive style of play, his sticking tackles and his ability to defend against the pass.

The highlight of his sophomore year, Rudzinski said, was beating MSU at East Lansing. "I had always dreamed of running out of that tunnel like I had seen my brother do for four years. My family was there and I knew a lot of the guys... that was really neat," he said.

Things changed in a hurry for Rudzinski. The summer between his sophomore and junior year, Jerry Faust replaced Devine as head coach. The effects of that change were not immediately visible.

Rudzinski began his junior year as a starting linebacker. On Oct. 30, 1981, half way through a game against Michigan, Rudzinski injured his football

Joe Rudzinski (above) may follow in the footsteps of his brother Paul and earn a spot on the Green Bay Packers roster. The Redford Catholic Central and Notre Dame graduate plays linebacker.

shoulder. He finished the game, but during practice the next week the pain became unbearable.

"I DIDN'T EVEN know I was hurt. What happened was, I did some damage to my rotator cuff," he said.

The injury kept him out of the lineup for three games. He was replaced by Rick Naylor, who was coached in high school by Faust.

Rudzinski returned to the lineup in time for the game against traditional rival USC. He played the finest football game of his career that day in front of a national television audience. He made 10 solo tackles and frustrated USC's offense most of the day.

"That was a fun game," Rudzinski said. Unfortunately, it was the last bit of fun he would experience for a while. He and Naylor soon began sharing the strong-side linebacker spot. The question of Rudzinski's shoulder kept coming up. The coaches felt it was nagging him. The rollercoaster was descending.

"IT WAS A combination of things. There was a coaching change, there were questions about my shoulder and other nagging injuries. But, I always felt I could play," he said.

Rudzinski isn't the type of athlete who will bad-mouth a school or a coach once he has departed the scene. But, he's honest.

"Rick Naylor is a fine athlete. I wouldn't take anything away from him. I don't know if I got a bad deal, or what. It's hard to say. I'm a competitive person so, yes, I'd say that I was better and I deserved to play. But, it wasn't my decision to make," Rudzinski said.

After starting as a sophomore and junior, Rudzinski saw shared-time duty with Naylor. It cost him a chance at being drafted into the pros.

"I DON'T KNOW HOW high I would have gone, but I think if I played more I would've been drafted," he said. As it happened, the draft passed him by.

So, after a highly successful high school career, and what started off as being an equally successful college career, Rudzinski left Notre Dame figuring his football days were over. The rollercoaster hit bottom.

"I was getting out of football completely. I told people that I was through, that I was tired of it all. I've been playing since I was eight," he said.

He was all set to enter into a different line of work. He thought about sales, he interviewed with the FBI. His degree was in public relations. He thought about going into journalism. He even thought about coaching little league football.

Then the phone rang.

First, the Kansas City Chiefs called. Then Green Bay. Then Houston. He chose Green Bay and signed a three-year free-agent contract complete with front bonus money for signing. He was going to take a shot at pro football.

"I've taken the attitude that football is just a game. I'm not going to get real hung up on it. I am really nervous about it. I mean, it's a step up, a chance to play with the big boys. I would love to make it. It would help me out financially, and to know you played a year in the NFL would be great," Rudzinski said.

CAN HE MAKE it in the NFL? His ex-coach thinks so.

It won't be the end of the world if he doesn't make it. He'll be content in the knowledge that he had an opportunity that very few people get — he got to try out for a professional football team.

"I know that if I didn't try, I'd always wonder how I might have done. I look at it like, hey, I have nothing to lose and an awful lot to gain," Rudzinski said.

Redford bowlers ring up top scores

Mary Mohacs, the former Livonia school teacher who is reigning as the Detroit bowling queen for the seventh time, reached the high point of her bowling career last week in Milwaukee when she qualified for the United States team that will bowl for the world title in October in Venezuela.

Bowling in the qualifying round she posted a 6,536 count for the 20 games and but for a pulled muscle in her back during the final game that dropped her to a 180 she would have finished in third place. Instead she finished sixth, the last qualifying place and regards it as the high point of her career.

The other qualifiers included Cathy Almeida of Massachusetts with 6,795, Janine Ditch of California with 6,606, Yzovne Dowland of California with 6,594, Marion Brisk of New York with 6,544 and Dixie Kick of Illinois with 6,538.

On her return Sunday from Milwaukee, Mohacs bowled a practice game to test her back at Merri-Bowl, then rolled a four-game total of 881 to pace the trio league Monday night at. With that count she voiced the opinion that she was ready to make a real bid for the world team title in Venezuela.

"This will be the biggest thrill of my career," she said, "and it will top a great year for me."

DON DE MAROIS of Redford won the monthly Bonanza tournament and averaged 223 in winning nine of the 12 games in the finals. Behind him came two other area bowlers.

Mitch Jaczens landed second and Bob Goike took third place.

Westlander sets torrid race pace

Westland's Tobin Jones won his sixth road race of the year last weekend in a five-kilometer event sponsored by Briarwood of Ann Arbor and the TAC (Track Athletic Congress).

The 23-year-old Jones crossed the line in 16:01, just ahead of Racquets Unlimited teammate John Coram of Northville, who came in at 16:17.

"I wanted to run decently but I used it more as a training run," Jones said. "I ran eight miles afterward. It was pretty hot so I didn't want to push myself too much. I'm shooting for the Bobby Crim Run (Aug. 27 in Flint)."

Another Racquets Unlimited runner, Cindy Barber of Lincoln Park, cap-in the pocket by W.W. Edgar

ANOTHER REDFORD bowler, Joyce Kemp, was honored last weekend at the Michigan Women's Bowling Association (MWBA) banquet at the Jackson Holiday Inn.

Kemp recorded the highest single game score (with handicap) in the MWBA state tournament with a 267 (April 23 at the Summit in Jackson).

Over 24,000 bowlers from the state competed in the WMBA events, which ran from January until May.

Kemp bowls regularly for A&M Mart in the ladies classic at Merri-Bowl in Livonia.

TOM MIKTSCH showed the way in the Monday men's league when action resumed at Westland Bowl. He had a high game of 244 in 647 to beat Dan Tarbet by 30 pins. Steve Cotter took third with 603.

In the Tuesday morning women's league, Marion Coombs took scoring honors with 550. Next to her came Diana Kathan with 516.

MONTE ONZCA, the guiding light of the classic at Westland Bowl, is on the hunt for four more teams to start the fall season.

With 20 teams already signed, he hopes to expand to 24 and thus match some of the other classics in the area in membership.

running

tured her second straight TAC race with a first place finish in the 20K at Briarwood.

She was first at the Cherry Festival 15K race two weeks in Traverse City as the Racquets Unlimited team placed second to Michigan Team Tiger. On the men's side at Traverse City, ex-Garden City West standout Don Anderson was eighth overall.

Speed skater calls it quits

By Tom Henderson staff writer

Tim McGuire, one of the greatest performers in roller skating history, two-time world and national champion, fresh from the triumphant defense of his men's singles title at the National Sports Festival in Colorado Springs, has announced his retirement at the age of 18.

McGuire, a 1982 graduate of Rochester Adams High School, will compete for his third consecutive national title next weekend in Fort Worth, Texas, and will go for his third straight world crown in October, also in Fort Worth, before hanging up his skates. He already has three straight Sports Festival championships to his credit.

"I've had my fill of skating," said McGuire simply. "I've had no social life, no school activities. But skating's been worthwhile. There's been a lot of world travel and new friends. Good experiences. And it taught me how to set a goal and go after it. But I've gotten out of it what I wanted, so now I can leave it with a clear head."

"It's hard to leave if you haven't already reached your goals. But I have. I set high standards as far as men's figure skating goes. My techniques and jumps set high standards for the guys coming up to equal or break."

McGuire added that there are plenty of other reasons for retiring at a tender age. His knee is bothering him and won't stand much more of his four-hours-a-day, six-days-a-week practice regimen; he wants to go to Oakland University and major in pre-med after taking a year off from school to devote to his skating, which involves a series of jumps and spins set to music; and he'd like to develop a more well-rounded social life.

Then there was the matter of complacency. "It's hard to come back each year and put in the same effort," admitted McGuire, a personable, articulate young man who comes across, not as a prima donna, but as having his head screwed on extremely straight. "When you are on top, there's no one to go after, while the other guys are saying, 'I gotta get him.' This year I'm working hard, but not as hard (as before). I'm not picking up any new content; I'm just maintaining what I did."

"Basically, I've had enough. I don't have a lot of friends outside of skating. When I get into college and out of skating, I'm going to readjust, meet new friends and get back to the real world."

THOUGH MCGUIRE has dominated his sport, he was very late getting into skating compared to other world-class performers, 10 as opposed to 6 or 7. His dad, Fred, an electrical engineer, had once skated competitively and began taking his family to local rinks on family nights.

"My dad could still do some of the things he did when he was younger," said McGuire. "I tried to do them, too. Before long, I was doing things other kids couldn't do, and a teacher asked if I wanted private lessons."

The rest, as they say, is history.

"My parents hardly pushed me at all," says McGuire, rare behavior for the parents of world-class skaters. "They were supportive, but it wasn't like they were saying, 'Get back out on the floor and practice.' I wasn't supernatural as far as picking it up easily. I took a lot of falls and kept on going. I was very self-motivated."

McGuire's sister, Lisa, 16, is also an accomplished skater, having finished second nationally in pairs.

THOUGH ROLLER SKATING has world titles, it is not yet part of the Olympics, though inclusion in the National Sports Festival is an indication that Olympic status is not far off. According to McGuire, roller skating may be included in the '92 Games, nearly a decade too late as far as his plans go.

"Hey, even if they were in for '88, I wouldn't be able to hang around," adds McGuire. "My knee just wouldn't hold up that long."

So come October, win or lose, McGuire's through. The only rolling he'll be interested in is through his undergraduate work and then through medical school.

Tony Bennett: still the greatest

By James Windell
special writer

So maybe he hasn't recorded a new album in years. And maybe he hasn't changed in repertoire much over the last decade. But Frank Sinatra may well have been right a few years back when he called Tony Bennett "the world's greatest singer."

You might have gotten no argument about that on Friday night at Meadow Brook Music Festival. Bennett, the former singing waiter from Astoria, Queens, N.Y., showed why he sings to capacity crowds everywhere he goes.

Bennett has a knack for singing songs people love, touching them with his velvety voice and his always-grateful stage presence — all of which has been honed by 30 years in the entertainment business.

Despite those three decades in a tough business, Bennett knows how to treat a responsive audience and in a slightly longer than two-hour show gave every indication that he gets a big kick out of performing.

review

SINGING A Beatles' tune, he snaps his fingers, twirls around and seems to be thoroughly enjoying himself. When he sings "Fascinating Rhythm," he takes it at a crazy, dizzying clip until the whole thing breaks down and he himself dissolves into laughter.

But there's nothing self-indulgent about Bennett and his show. The emphasis is definitely on romantic songs which are standards because he sang them on records in the past. When the lyrics cooperate, he stresses the words that seem to reach out and say to each person in the audience, "I'm singing this song just for you."

In the first half of the generously long show, Bennett — with longtime associate Ralph Sharon on piano, bass and drums — sang a score of tunes that included some of the best pop songs of all time.

"My Funny Valentine" got the full Tony Bennett treatment as he romantically whispered phrases and ended with the booming saloon voice he uses for the big finish.

His recitation of the verse of the songs proved an appealing way to segue from one song into another. When he began "As Time Goes By" that way, he turned the song over to his excellent pianist Ralph Sharon with the request to, "Give us a little Humphrey Bogart, Ralph." Sharon, a fine jazz and cocktail pianist, responded in appropriate fashion.

SHARON'S PRESENCE emphasizes Bennett's feel for jazz. Bennett seats a chorus of "The Man I Love" and his voice for this jazz standard has a well-traveled and certainly lived-in sound to it.

The secret of Bennett's success is that he sings the songs associated with him — in this concert there were actually 40 of them — and he leaves no doubt that he was singing to each individual member of the audience. Even if he did slip during the second half of the concert and call the Detroit Symphony Pops the Dallas Symphony.

You can easily forgive him for such slips. After all, as one easy-going member of the audience noted, "It's probably as hot here tonight as it is in Dallas."

Bennett closed his show with "I Left My Heart in San Francisco" and "I Want to be Around to Pick up the Pieces." These warm fuzzies from a classic pop singer were enough to sustain an audience that could have taken another dozen songs.

Wowie, Bowie!

Rock star David Bowie's Serious Moonlight Tour '83 includes concert dates Saturday-Sunday, July 30-31, at the Joe Louis Arena in Detroit. His range of talents has brought him rave reviews on Broadway in the "Elephant Man" to a cinema presence in "The Hunger" to his No.-1-selling record album in the Detroit area, "Let's Dance." Concert tickets are available at the Joe Louis Arena box office, Hudson's and all CTC outlets.

Attic Theatre presents chapter two of 'WARP'

"WARP II: Unleashed! Unchained!" second chapter of the science-fiction trilogy "WARP," runs through Aug. 27 at the Attic Theatre, 525 E. Lafayette at Beaubien in Detroit's Greektown.

An additional performance will be held Sept. 8.

Continuing the "WARP" saga, Lord Cumulus, bank teller turned Cosmic Avenger, engages in combat, defending the universe against formidable foes.

A Michigan premiere, "WARP II" features actors Roosevelt Johnson, Catrina Ganey, Donna Stone, Glen Pruett, Bill Clyde, Wayne David Parker, Joey Golden, Loretta Higgins and Robert Williams.

It is co-directed by Richard Buzinski, an Attic Theatre company member, and William J. Norris, who has drawn upon previous experience with "WARP" in Chicago, Minneapolis and on Broadway.

"WARP," an epic adventure, incorporates exotic costume and multi-media technology into a stage adaptation of comic-book style. Surreal visual projections, shafts of light and synthesized sound aid in the projection of the audience into another dimension.

"WARP I: My Battlefield, My Body" is being performed throughout the run of "WARP II" on Tuesdays-Wednesdays, July 26 through Aug. 24. Sunday matinees began July 17 and continue July 24, Aug. 7 and 21.

Performances of "WARP" are at 8 p.m. Thursdays-Fridays, 6 and 9 p.m. Saturdays and 2 and 8:30 p.m. Sundays. Special Tuesday and Wednesday performances of "WARP I" are being held at 8 p.m. July 26 through Aug. 24. Call 963-7789 to reserve tickets.

Group rates, senior citizen and student discounts are available.

Fourth Street offers comedy

The Michigan premiere production of "Division Street" by Steve Tesich continues through Saturday, Sept. 10, at the Fourth Street Playhouse, 301 W. Fourth in downtown Royal Oak.

Performances are at 8:30 p.m. Thursdays-Fridays, 9 p.m. Saturdays and 7:30 p.m. Sundays. Tickets are $6 on Thursdays and Sundays, $8 on Fridays-Saturdays. Special group rates also are available. For reservations or further information, call the playhouse at 543-8666.

Set in Chicago in 1980, "Division Street" is a comedy about grown-up '60s radicals trying to get something, anything, going for the '80s.

Steve Tesich was born in Yugoslavia in 1942 and moved to the United States with his family when he was 14. He studied at Indiana University.

"Division Street" is directed by Darrell Zink and features Ron Turek, Sakunah DeLaney, William Elmore, Michael Kendrick, Van McKinna, Charles Greenia, Nancy Minckler and Fred Parnes in the cast.

"Division Street" is designed and produced by the staff and company of the Fourth Street Playhouse.

DIA screening 'The Virginian'

Gary Cooper will co-star with Walter Huston in the 1929 film "The Virginian" presented as part of the Detroit Institute of Arts Afternoon Film Theatre series "The Old West: Vintage American Horse Opera" at 1 p.m. Tuesday through July 31 in the Art Institute Recital Hall.

Tickets at $1 each may be purchased at the door only.

One of the first Western "talkies" to be released, "The Virginian" is noted for making famous the line "Smile when you say that."

Walt Disney's 1926 animated cartoon "Great Guns" will be included in the week-long showings.

For information and a detailed Afternoon Film Theatre "Horse Opera" schedule of films through mid-October, call the art institute ticket office at 832-2730.

Replica of '999' racer

A replica of the racing machine known as the "999," designed and built by Henry Ford in 1902, will be on display Friday through Friday, July 29, at Westland Center's Penney Court. Barney Oldfield won his first race on the Yoke-steered "999" and went on to lower the world's one-mile record with it on five different occasions. The "999" had one of the largest four-cylinder engines ever put into an automobile. It set a world's record of 92 miles per hour on ice on Lake St. Clair the winter of 1902.

Quintet travels abroad

The Contemporary Jazz Quintet departed Detroit last week via Northwest Airlines from Metro Airport, to perform at two prestigious European jazz festivals.

The ensemble, recognized by jazz critics as a major force in Detroit's modern jazz legacy, is reunited after an eight-year hiatus and is representing the city and the Montreux Detroit Kool Jazz Festival at the Pori International Jazz Festival in Finland and the Montreux International Jazz Festival in Switzerland.

The ensemble includes leader and pianist Kenn Cox, drummer Danny Spencer, trumpeter Charles Moore, sax player Leon Henderson and bassist Bob Hurst. All but Hurst were part of the original Contemporary Jazz Quintet, which gained national and international recognition in the '70s with its recordings on the Blue Note label.

CJQ gave three performances in Pori last week. The group is traveling to Switzerland for an appearance today at the Casino in Montreux on the same bill with James Blood Ulmer.

The ensemble was honored with a send-off testimonial resolution from Detroit's Common Council last week, and Cox responded with a promise to carry "a real sense of Detroit's jazz history and the 'Spirit of Detroit'" to the international audiences in Pori and Montreux.

what's at the movies

ATOR (PG). Epic adventure of myth, legend and magic starring Miles O'Keefe in the title role, with Sabrina Siani and Ritza Brown.

CLASS (R). Romantic comedy about a young man who has an affair with an older woman who turns out to be his best friend's mother. Jacqueline Bisset, Cliff Robertson and Rob Lowe star.

COUP DE TORCHON (A CLEAN SLATE). Academy-Award nominee for best foreign-language film. Bertrand Tavernier directed comedy starring Philippe Noiret and Isabell Huppert.

FLASHDANCE (R). A determined young woman works as a welder by day and a dancer by night. Movie doesn't make too much sense but the dancing makes a terrific impact.

OCTOPUSSY (PG). Roger Moore is again the dapper Agent 007 as he goes to India to crack an international jewel-smuggling operation in this 13th James Bond adventure. Also with Maud Adams.

PORKY'S - THE NEXT DAY (R). Raunchy gang members from Angel Beach High School tangle with school administrators, corrupt officials and their own active libidos.

PSYCHO II (R). After 22 years in a mental hospital, Norman Bates (Anthony Perkins) returns to re-open the Bates Motel. Vera Miles, of the original cast, also returns in this sequel to Hitchcock's chiller.

RETURN OF THE JEDI (PG). Third chapter in the middle section of George Lucas' "Star Wars" trilogy. With Luke Skywalker, Hans Solo, Princess Leia and other characters from the previous films as the Rebel Alliance battles Darth Vader and the forces of the Empire.

SNOW WHITE (G). Disney's classic animated feature about a princess, a magic mirror, seven dwarfs, a witch and a prince. The 1938 film still ranks as one of the best, perhaps the best, animated features ever made. Every child deserves to see this and adults should treat themselves to a repeat viewing.

Village offers picnic meals

Picnic lunches, based on 1915 recipes at the Covered Bridge Lunch Stand, are being introduced at Greenfield Village in Dearborn. The outdoor museum offers three picnic selections, each served in a small basket which can be kept.

The early-20th-century picnics will be available until Labor Day.

Akiyama, Kavafian enhance exotic festival program

By Avigdor Zaromp
special writer

There were several exotic elements in last week's program at the Meadow Brook Festival.

To begin with, there was the Japanese guest conductor, Kazuyoshi Akiyama. Among his famous teachers was another Japanese maestro, Seiji Ozawa. The program opened with a composition by Toru Takemitsu, "A Flock Descends into the Pentagonal Garden."

The work, which was commissioned for the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra in 1977, is based on the composer's dreams, which in turn were based on a photograph of the artist Marcel Duchamp.

The music, which is colorfully descriptive in nature, sounds very much like film music. While it does not match, in my opinion, the depth of the more established classical masters, it does have some pleasing effects.

One noteworthy phenomenon was the fact that a passing airplane, which usually proves to be quite disruptive, seemed to blend perfectly with the music in this instance.

NEXT ITEM on the program was the violin concerto No. 3 by Saint-Saens. Saint-Saens, of course, had his respectable share of his own exotic adventures, which included trips to Africa and the Orient, in addition to visits to more conventional countries, like our own.

His third violin concerto, while not ranked as high as the more popular Brahms concerto (to be performed this week), is nevertheless a charming and melodious composition, and I find it a refreshing diversion from the steady diet.

This work was performed by a young violinist with her own exotic background. Ida Kavafian was born in Turkey to an American family of Armenian descent and was raised in Detroit, which might be considered "exotic" — who knows.

review

Kavafian has proved to be a top-notch violinist, with some reservations, however. Her technique and tone quality were superb most of the time, but with some spots of discontinuity.

Some of the large leaps were overly impulsive and contained rough edges. The second movement was faster than I would prefer, preventing the listener from appreciating the unique aroma of its enchanting theme.

For most part, however, the performance was that of a seasoned violinist. It might take more years of experience to fill those extra gaps.

The program concluded with yet another composition that could rightfully be considered exotic. This was the tone poem "Also Sprach Zarathustra" by Richard Strauss.

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra members are by now well familiar with the music, and with good reason — it was performed under Antal Dorati during the two past regular seasons and also has been recorded. On both occasions I have bewailed the mispronunciation of the title by radio announcers, only to find it misprinted by the paper.

Thus goeth the title. But the music fared much better on all occasions, and this one was no exception. Akiyama has proved to have a thorough understanding of this music and was in full control. The work ended with the appropriate degree of mystery, after highlighting the various phases of the basic theme.

Hopefully, this work will not be scheduled again for the time being. Too much of a good thing is likely to ruin it.

Seasoned violinist Ida Kavafian was soloist with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra at the Meadow Brook Music Festival last week.

Activities Center presents understanding of artifacts

The Henry Ford Museum's Activities Center, which premiered in early 1983, was created to help provide a sense of understanding of how artifacts in the museum work, as well as promote further awareness of what the collections contain.

The results offer visitors a chance to experience facets of history by participating in activities as well as demonstrations.

While walking through the exhibit, visitors can visualize the thrill of getting up on a high-wheel bicycle or listen to ragtime on a player piano. One might want to further an understanding of mechanics by viewing a cutaway model of a 1926 Fordson tractor or observing miniature steam engines.

An interest in home arts or communications can be fostered by treading a Singer sewing machine, assembling a small rocking chair, or helping operate a Washington printing press.

THE ACTIVITIES Center is "designed to give the visitor another experience" and is a "reflection of the collections," said Jim Van Bochove, programs assistant for the museum's Education Department.

"We're trying to gear toward the family audience," Van Bochove said. "The Activities Center is one component of the museum experience. It allows visitors the opportunity to discover how various items operate."

Other items in the exhibit include hand-cranked microscopes of the 1690s (one of the forerunners of motion pictures), a cylinder music box, stereoscope, turn-of-the-century wall telephones, and a crystal radio popular in the 1920s.

Current theme of the Activities Center, "How Things Work," runs through Labor Day in Henry Ford Museum.

Beds to race at MD benefit

The beds will roll down West Grand Boulevard in the annual "Detroit Bed Races Against Muscular Dystrophy" on Aug. 12-13 in Detroit. The two-day event consists of a prerace party from 4:30-9 p.m. Aug. 12 and the races, beginning at 11 a.m. Saturday.

"A Touch of Class" (1973), 1 tonight on Ch. 7. Originally 105 minutes.

"A Touch of Class" really has little class, but it passes for sophisticated comedy because it stars Oscar-winning actress Glenda Jackson and George Segal in a story of marital infidelity. Incredibly, Jackson won another best-actress Oscar for the film. Put Doris Day and Rock Hudson in the same picture, and you'd not only have a more enjoyable film but one that the critics would call classless. You pick.
Rating: $2.

"Magnum Force" (1973), 11:45 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 7. Originally 124 minutes. Followed by: "The French Connection" (1971), 2:05 Saturday night on Ch. 7. Originally 104 minutes.

It's tough cop night on TV. In "Magnum Force," Clint Eastwood returns as Harry Callahan, the single-minded, iconoclastic San Francisco cop in a sequel to the 1971 film "Dirty Harry." Ted Post picks up the directorial reins from Don Siegel and does a commendable job, but "Magnum Force" is not nearly so caustic or intense as the earlier film was.
Rating: $2.70.

Gene Hackman and Roy Scheider star in William Friedken's "The French Connection," the story of tough cop Popeye Doyle, who's instrumental in the apprehension of international-heroin smugglers. The film leaves behind the cynicism of a "Dirty Harry" and runs full tilt in the direction of action and intensity. Oscars went to Friedken, Hackman, the film, script and editing.

Admission is $10. Food and entertainment by the Arts Centre Players, and jazz artist Ron Jackson are included.

Tickets will be available at the door by calling 393-1915 or by writing the MHPAA, 1939 Hyde Park Drive, Detroit 48207.

"The Conversation" (1974), 4 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 50. Originally 113 minutes.

Gene Hackman stars as a professional eavesdropper in this Francis Ford Coppola film that brilliantly captures the paranoia of a man trapped in his own world of sophisticated surveillance techniques. But the film also takes on themes of responsibility and commitment as opposed to non-involvement, which was the starting point for the Clint Eastwood and Charles Bronson revenge films of the same period. Allen Garfield, Frederick Forrest, Harrison Ford, Teri Garr and Cindy Williams co-star.
Rating: $3.40.

"There's a Girl in My Soup" (1970), 2 Wednesday night on Ch. 4. Originally 95 minutes.

Goldie Hawn, the "Laugh-In" girl, made her film debut in this insipid John Boulting film that stars Peter Sellers as one of those thrill-seeking, middle-aged men who think life has passed them by. Sellers is Sellers. Hawn is quite good but the film is quite bad.
Rating: $1.98.

Shuttle buses run 2 routes during fair

The Ann Arbor Transportation Authority again is running a shuttle bus system during the Ann Arbor Art Fair, which continues through Saturday.

This year, instead of just one route from Briarwood Mall to the Main Street Fair, there will be two routes.

Route One, called the Art Fair/Main Street, is the same as past shuttles, traveling from Briarwood to Pioneer High School to Main Street with the drop-off point at Main and William streets.

Route Two, called the Air Fair/State-S. University, also will leave from Briarwood, proceed down State Street to S. University, dropping people off at S. University and Tappan.

BOTH BUSES alternate routes. For example, when the Main Street bus returns to Briarwood after completing its route, it will become a State Street bus and vice versa. This will allow people to return to their automobiles by boarding any art-fair bus.

Hours of operation for the shuttles are 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. through Friday, and 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday.

An information booth is set up at Briarwood Mall's parking lot — its location is the southeast corner just off the Sears loading dock.

The fare is the normal 60 cents one way. Additional information can be obtained by calling the AATA Information Center at 998-0400.

In addition to the Art Fair Shuttle, the authority operates regular bus service from all major shopping centers all day long, with the last regular bus leaving downtown at 6:15 p.m.

Arborland Shopping Center, Maple Village, Plymouth Mall and the regular routing to Briarwood are all part of the regular bus routes. Arborland, for example, has offered its parking lot without charge for art-fair patrons. AATA's No. 6 route, the State/Ellsworth, services Arborland until 11:15 p.m.

Local artists delight in Ann Arbor Art Fair

Joel Durand of Livonia has been painting professionally for 18 years now, 10 years longer than Plymouth resident John Krieger. But both local artists feel "lucky" and "excited" about their participation in this year's four-day Ann Arbor Art Fair, Wednesday-Saturday, July 20-23.

"I've been rather lucky to be accepted this year," said Durand, who has a gallery in Southfield and a studio in his home. "It's a highly juried show and very difficult to get into the show. It's very popular."

"It's one of the better fairs in the country," Krieger added. "It's exciting."

Some 400,000 people are expected to attend what is really three distinct art fairs — the Ann Arbor Art Fair, the State Street Art Fair and the Summer Arts Festival.

The Ann Arbor Art Fair is the oldest and the "original juried fair."

The State Street Art Fair is a small, juried event of 150 artists sponsored by the State Street Area Association.

THE SUMMER Arts Festival, sponsored by the University of Michigan Artists and Craftsmen Guild, displays the work of 600 artists with all levels of experience.

Together, they make one of the biggest events of the year for both artists and visitors. Thousands of items in all media will be displayed.

Visitors this year may see Durand's acrylic paintings, which he describes as "contemporary." He attended the Society of Arts and Crafts in Detroit.

"I had some friends that were into it," Durand said, explaining how he became interested in art.

Since Durand began painting in 1965, he has had one-man shows in Miami and Milwaukee and gathered a number of awards. His paintings are in more than 2,000 private and institutional collections.

KRIEGER'S watercolors will also be on display in Ann Arbor. Krieger got into painting professionally eight years ago, after he worked as a car designer for the Ford Motor Company.

"I paint some automobiles now," he said. "I've been painting a few bridge structures that have been successful nationally."

Krieger received a degree with honors from the Center for Creative Studies School of Art and Design. He has participated in national exhibitions and art shows and received awards.

In addition at the fair, demonstrations of art techniques will be given, and visitors will be offered continuous entertainment.

Musical groups, theatrical groups, dance ensembles, even magic and tumbling acts will perform from opening to closing each day on the state on East University Avenue under the Graceful Arch, a fabric structure first introduced at the 1977 fair. All performances are open to the public free.

FAIR HOURS are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday. Fair visitors are encouraged to park in outlying shopping centers and other areas and take the shuttle buses to the fair.

Visitors entering Ann Arbor on the major expressways will see signs on the exit ramps directing them to Briarwood Mall and Pioneer High School where they will be able to park free.

Two shuttle buses will serve these parking areas and take visitors to the two major fair locations.

There will be an information booth set up at Briarwood Mall's parking lot — on the southeast corner, just off the Sears loading dock.

There will be a 60-cent fee for the shuttle service each way.

Art Lesson No. 7

Failures are forgotten with a few successes

This is the seventh in a series of art and drawing lessons by special columnist David Messing. Messing has taught for eight years and gives lessons at his art store, Art Store and More, 18774 Middlebelt, Livonia. He encourages readers to ask questions or comment. You may write him at his store or c/o Observer Newspapers, 23352 Farmington Road, Farmington MI 48024.

By David Messing
special writer

When I was in college I was introduced to many media basic to the arts. But what really fascinated me was the mixing of media. Taking the established ways of drawing and painting and changing them a bit. Usually my instructors enjoyed the variety, or the fact that I was experimenting on my own.

Once, in a charcoal drawing class, I airbrushed in black ink, one of our assignments. The teacher loved it, and gave me an A. On the other hand I tried experiment in a painting class and my teacher didn't like it at all, and didn't get an A.

The point is, however, that if you experiment, you should expect a few successes and many, many failures. But the spontaneity and excitement of those few successes dulls the memory of those many, many failures.

So now that you have done some pen and ink drawings, how about something new? Pen and ink on colored paper or colored mat board is very nice, especially if you color in your drawings with colored pencils. The only colored pencils that I recommend for this is Berol Prismacolor or Faber Castell Spectracolor. I like their rich opaque color and they go on dark colors well, especially on black mat board.

Colored mat board is my favorite, but if you can't afford, or don't want to buy big sheets of mat board, Strathmore packages the same paper that is glued to mat board in a wide range of colors for about $2.30-$3.50.

TRY A PEN and ink drawing on illustration board (hot press is smooth and cold press is rough) or you could also try water color paper. Erase your pencil lines, then wash in rich colors in water color. Mix your colors a little bright because when they dry, they "flatten out" or "dull down."

Also be very loose with your color. By that I mean let the colors flow together and don't be too concerned with staying in the lines of your drawing. So if you have a relatively "tight" pen and ink drawing with a "loose" water color washed over it you will probably have a very nice picture.

This type of picture in a show or on the wall brings out the psychoanalytical part of "art critics" who would probably say, "the pen and ink is so very tight and structured that I believe it speaks of his need for order and structure in life. The looseness and fluidity of the colors exemplify his desire to be free and to cross over established boundaries."

If they analyzed my artwork like that, I probably would say something intelligent like, "er... huh... yeah, that's exactly what I meant."

SCRATCHBOARD is especially made for pen and ink. The white scratch board has a clay coating, and you simply draw your main structure and details in pen and ink (or brush and ink). Then you take a scratch point and scratch off any mistakes or add texture, or lighten up any dark areas.

Familiar to most people, however is the scratchboard that is coated black and the scratchpoint produces a white line on a solid black background. I will cover this technique in more detail later.

Pen and ink on glass is always a treat. This technique offers the "cleanness" of pen and ink and the versatility of scratch board. Plus the transparency of glass is unique, to add a colored board for the background gives it a beautiful finished touch. The best ink for adhering to glass is Higgins Black Magic. When you use a scratchpoint this ink will not blister or "pop" off the glass. The best way to frame ink on glass is to reverse it. This protects the ink from damage.

Sometimes this is a problem, especially if there is lettering in your drawing, because you have to letter reversed. Other times your drawing just doesn't look good reversed. If you can't reverse it, then just add another piece of glass over the top of your original.

PEN AND INK on treated acetate is a favorite with many of my students. It is similar to ink on glass in that you first do a pencil sketch on white paper then lay acetate over your drawing and trace in ink. Acetate however receives water base paint where glass requires oil.

So your work can become rich with color.

Ex-Livonia dentist has own photo show

A one-man photography exhibit by George Slagon, who practiced dentistry in Livonia for 27 years, continues through the end of the month at the Henry Ford Hospital West Bloomfield Center on Maple.

The show features 20 color and black-and-white landscapes by the 59-year-old photographer. Many of the pictures reflect Slagon's interest in the photography of Ansel Adams.

"I'm into the Ansel Adams bit, the dreamy stuff, the pictures you can spend half an hour with," said Slagon, who is now retired and living in Orchard Lake.

His landscapes vary in locale from the West to Florida, "to Pontiac Trail and the Presbyterian Church down the street," Slagon said.

Slagon, a University of Michigan graduate, started in slide photography 30 years ago. But for the last five or six years he has photographed landscapes and still lifes with a 4-by-5 Linhoff camera, utilizing the zone photography approach popularized by Adams.

The oversized negatives from the 4-by-5 format, Slagon said, enhance the quality of the final print. Slagon develops, mounts and frames all his black-and-white work.

Slagon, who is negotiating with area galleries for future exhibitions of his work, lives with wife Helene in their home on Cass Lake.

Former Livonia dentist George Slagon took this photograph near Pontiac Trail with a 4-by-5 Linhoff camera, using Royal Pan sheet film. The print has been archival treated and Sellman toner applied.

Don't shudder, this contest is a real snap

Area amateur photographers are busy shooting color slides and submitting entries in the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers' color-photo contest.

Don't miss out on the action.

The theme of the contest is "Nature in the Suburbs." The idea is to capture the color of nature through your lens.

All you need to enter is a camera, color slide film and a "nature" subject that you believe properly typifies our theme. The photo may be taken in your own backyard, in a field, at a park or any place where you find nature.

Other rules include:

- Contestants must be amateur photographers. Observer & Eccentric employees and their immediate families are not eligible.
- Deadline for entry is Friday, July 29. Color slides must have been taken after July 29, 1982 and before July 29, 1983. Each contestant may enter one or two color slides.

as you paint on the reversed surface which makes your colors opaque and vivid. I recommend Gouache for this technique. I have heard this paint called "Designers colors," "Tube temperas," "Goowashee," "Gouchy," and "Opaque stuff." Well what ever you want to call it. It's really Gouache and it simply means opaque watercolor. It is pigment in a casien or milk base.

There is a special paper that cartoonists and commercial illustrators use called coquille board. This is very textured and when you shade with a black colored pencil all your shades are reduced to dots. Coquille receives ink very well and with the addition of gray areas in dots your artwork is automatically camera ready.

PEN AND ink on smooth finished wood is beautiful. Pen and ink on natural smooth leather has a nice effect. I even enjoy looking for smooth rounded stones and after doing a "tight" detailed drawing I varnish them to a nice gloss. So experiment. Don't just try the technique I have mentioned. My son Scott thought up something new at the age of 6. He did a felt tip pen drawing on the chest of his 4-year-old brother, Kevin.

Pen and ink is so versatile that it is fun to think up different ways of using it. Any time I or anyone mentions pen and ink it could also mean brush and ink. A pen tip limits your line width. So, if you need several line widths you need several pen tips or technical pens. The same round brush can range from a hairline to a 1/4 inch stroke.

For fine lines hold your brush perpendicular to the surface of your paper. Now press your fingers together slightly and lower the brush until the point touches the paper. Paint a quick fine line stroke, more with your hand than with your finger tips. To get a wider stroke simply lower the brush until more of the brush body is on the paper.

MY FAVORITE all-around brush is Beaux Arts by Grumbacher No. 0 to No. 4. These brushes are nicely tapered, they hold a lot of ink and best of all they are not very expensive. For a full range of grays put a drop or two of ink on a plate or palette and add water to the ink. This will give you any gray you desire according to your mixture.

So for an investment of about $5 you can get a bottle of ink, a pen holder and pen tip and a good brush. That small investment combined with your creativity can lead to an exciting future in art. Remember to experiment. An instructor can only lead ya few exciting side trips along the way.

Q. What does "camera-ready" mean? I am just beginning to get some free-lance art jobs and this is the term often used.

A. "Camera-ready" simply means that the art work is ready to be photographed. So the artwork must be in black and white with dots or shades of gray. Printers charge a "screen" or "half-tone" charge for reducing photographs or drawings into dots. Free-lance artists are usually asked to make their art work camera ready. This is a job I made camera ready. First I did a simple pen and ink drawing, then I added in "furry" textures with dots and short pen strokes. The shades of gray at the bottom of the seat are done with half-tone sheets of film that you can buy at whatever percent of black you require.

No film wasted here. Monte Nagler used careful composition and exposure to capture snowballs at Cranbrook.

Be prudent with film

In an unpredictable economy, we're all searching for bargain prices on cameras, lenses and other photographic equipment.

Our thrifty efforts should apply to film and prints, too. Where we shop for film, how we shoot it, and how and where we get our prints made can all produce noticeable savings.

Listed below are some ideas that will help you save money:

- For those of you who shoot color negative film, having a print made from each negative can be expensive. Next time, request that only a proof sheet be made when your film is processed. Then select just the ones that are your favorites and have enlargements made from these.

- Use the slowest speed film that lighting conditions will allow. In other words, don't always use fast film. Fast film not only costs more, but colors are not as vivid and grain is more pronounced.

- Consider using slide film as your color alternative. The cost of processing a roll of slide film is considerably less than that of a roll of color negative film.

- Even consider doing some work in black and white. Black and white film and processing is much less expensive than color. Black and white can enhance the aesthetics of many subjects and can possibly motivate you into doing your own darkroom work.

- Shop around for specials. There are some camera shops and discount stores that will save you money on film and prints. Some film even includes processing in the purchase price.

- Learn to "short load" film. Here's how it works: As soon as the film leader is attached to the take-up reel, close the camera back and take up the film tension by a couple turns on the rewind knob.

- Advance two more frames and you're ready to begin your roll. Doing this will always give you a couple extra shots on each roll.

- Conserve on film by not shooting as many pictures as you are used to. Concentrate on quality rather than quantity. Take your time. Compose more thoughtfully.

- Take note of the expiration dates on your film. If you think you won't use it all up before it expires, place your film in your freezer. This way, it will last almost indefinitely. Just allow a few hours for thawing before loading your camera.

- Make sure when using flash that you are at the correct synchronization speed. Make sure the rewind knob reverses as you advance the film to assure the film is properly moving through the camera. And with all the fine hot weather that has befriended us this summer, don't leave your loaded camera in a hot car where the heat will spoil those special shots.
