Westland police credit alert neighbors with preventing a break-in of a home in the 32700 block of Parkwood and helping capture a suspect in a break-in at a gas station at Cherry Hill and Henry Ruff roads.

Stemplen, a convicted burglar and a resident of a Detroit halfway house, stood mute at his arraignment before 18th District Judge Thomas Smith on Sept. 30. The judge entered a plea of innocent on Stempien's behalf.

A neighbor told police she saw a blond man in a T-shirt ride a bicycle up and down the street in front of the house about 9:16 a.m. The residents were out. The man then rode up to the house, loudly knocked on the front door and resumed riding the bike up and down the street.

Project PAVE students earn grades, paychecks

By Dan Vecchioni staff writer

And while not many attain an "A," all receive thecks totalling as much as $75 per semester in the program designed to bring the reality of a real job into the classroom."

The program is titled Project PAVE (Preparation for Admission to Vocational Education) and was developed four years ago to expose 20 high schoolage special education students per semester to the rigors of the work envi-

The students punch in on a timeclock, are judged on their punctuality and productivity, among other factors, and participate in the management decisions of the firm.

In the process, Cooper and his aide, Jean Cassidy, determine the potential employability of each student and pass the information along to the student's teacher.

CENTRAL TO the program are the products the students manufacture and sell in the 21/2 hours per day, five days per week, they spend with Cooper. The attractive wood items range from weathervanes to ski racks and sell briskly, particularly around Christmas.

"Last year we had a record year. We sold $6,200 in merchandise," Cooper noted. "Our biggest selling item right now is a quilt rack. We had so many orders for them last year that we're still filling them and not taking any

The quality of the products (sold with guarantees for up to a year) and the reasonable prices have brought hundreds of customers to the Career Center classroom that serves as the manufacturing center and store for the Livonia Clock Co., the name Cooper has given to the business.

"We started by making schoolhouse clocks," Cooper said. "Another teacher and I developed the idea for the program which we copied after Junior Achievement (JA), but we couldn't think of a product to have the students make and sell.

"We had received suggestions to make tin cups or calendar blocks. But I was a woodworking hobbyist and had made some clocks at home, when I read in a magazine how a junior high class had made the clocks. We decided that the clocks would be our product."

manufactured and sold, Cooper said. In the ensuing years, Cooper has entertained suggestions for other products that could be made. Now more than a dozen different products are produced each semester:

DESPITE THEIR competence at making the wood items, the students are not in the program to learn woodworking, Cooper said.

"We expose them to everything, but they only learn what it takes them to do their particular job," he said. "There's a product for everybody, and we usually try to assign one or two students per product to see it through to completion, except for the finishing.

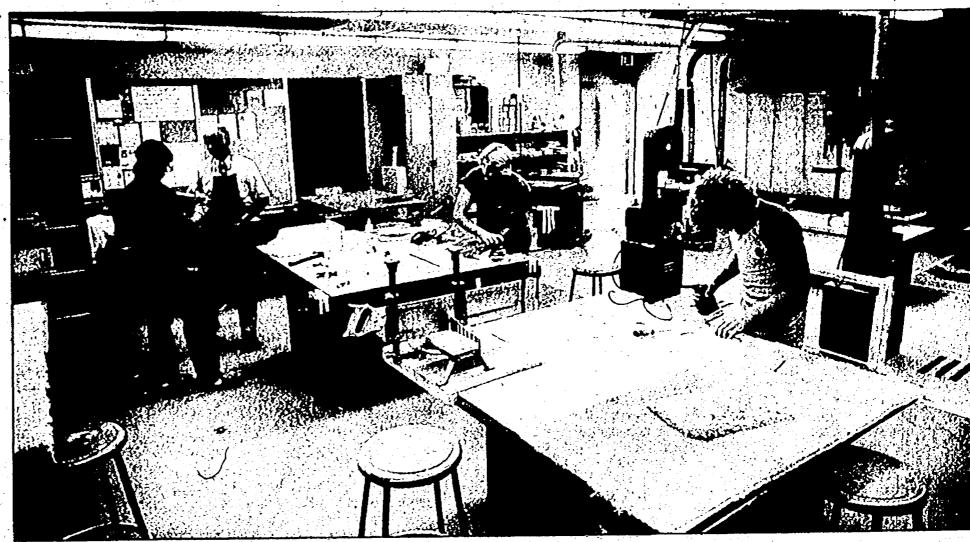

"We don't do mass production in here. Kids work on a steady pace, in a relaxed yet productive atmosphere. But a kid not producing gets pressure from the other kids, since their paychecks are based on what they make and sell."

The paychecks are important to the students, who set the prices for all the items they sell based on their costs and time, Cooper said. The money raised from sales is used to restock the enterprise, with the profit distributed to the students.

"Kids with poor work habits and who are undependable can lose money from their paychecks. Otherwise, everyone is paid the same," Cooper said.

1 Most of the students - ranging in classification from blind and learning disabled to emotionally and mentally impaired - complete the program, with grades averaging between "B" and "C," he said.

"I FEEL the program is successful judging from the reaction of the kids," Cooper said. "Most start with a low out where they are in terms of characteristics."

Parents of students in the program also take an interest, Cooper said. "We get a really good turnout from parents. at our open houses, considering the age of the students."

Many of the parents, he added, are pleasantly surprised to see what their children are doing. He said one student's father spent a few minutes admiring the product manufactured by his child, obviously proud and with a greater understanding of his child's po-

The program, the only one of its kind of which Cooper is aware, is funded through federal money available through Title VI. The school district wouldn't have pald for it in a million years," Cooper sald.

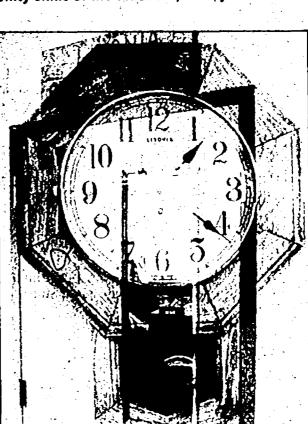

Despite the funding, the program is budget-conscious. The woodworking equipment is 25 years old and was last self-image, but I don't know of anyone used at Whittier Junior High School. Since the program's inception, more who didn't feel good about being in the And everything is made out of No. 2 class. The program is good at pointing pine, an inexpensive grade of wood.

Cooper developed the program after 19 years in the Livonia School District, including the first eight as a junior high school English/social studies teacher. He later became involved in special education at the junior high and high school level.

THE LIVONIA Clock Co. currently is selling and taking orders for most of the products it produces. Located in the Career Center, at 8589 Newburgh, and open 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., the enterprise is featuring the following items:

- Schoolhouse clocks, $68.
- Shaker clocks, $55.
- Quilt racks, from $12 to $25.
- Garden baskets, $13.50.
- Tool boxes, $7 to $10. • Tabletop bookracks, $6.
- Thread beds, $6.50.

This multi-image photo shows one the schoolhouse clocks built by Project PAVE students. More than 200 such clocks have been sold since the program's inception. Superimposed on the clock is the sign that hangs over the door to the Project PAVE classroom. It reads: Livonia Clock Company.

Detroit's history since the end of the 1920s has been one of constant retrenchment of services, particularly cultural.

For years, Detroit was the only local government in Michigan paying for and operating its own crime lab; everyone else relied on the State Police crime lab. For years, Detroit operated its own prison DeHoCo; everyone else sent offenders to state prisons. For years, Detroit operated its own TB hospital (now Maybury State Park) and its own city health department; other places used county health departments.

Every other jurisdiction in Michigan sends criminal cases to the circuit court in the county seat; Detroit has its own Recorder's Court.

No longer does Detroit contribute any significant amount to the Detroit Symphony Orchestra; the state supplies tax money.

No longer does Detroit contribute as much as 1 percent to the Detroit Institute of Arts budget; the state picks up two-thirds and the private Founders Society one-third.

IN SHORT. Detroit's response has been either 1) to discontinue the service or 2) to persuade Gov. William Milliken's administration in Lansing that the state should pay for it.

Thus, the state's contribution to DIA has swollen from $888,000 in the early 1970s to a current $16 million. The Founders Society chips in $9 million_ and has a heavy role in operation of the DIA. Detroit pays less than $100,000.

An expert witness last week shed light on the operation when he testified before a state Senate committee looking into the political flap. Gilbert Edelson, a New York attorney who represents arts museums and teaches a course on ethics, law and art, said:

• The combination of state, Founders Society and city money is "unique" and "uncommon" among major art museums — a marvelous bit of understatement.

• DIA itself is among the three best museums in the United States.

Today is

• DIA Director Fred Cummings is among the 10 best directors in the United States.

NOW, MIXING government money and semi-private operation can be a can of worms, as those who recall LBJ's "war on poverty" can attest. And rumors are circulating about irregularities, high living and cronyism on the part of Cummings.

So the city in August held up state aid to the DIA for an audit. But the audit isn't being conducted by the city auditor general, who reports to the council. Rather, it's being conducted by the finance department, which reports

Time to talk of cabbages

THE VIEW from the picture window in the little white house with the green shutters was

The squirrels and birds were busy preparingfor the long winter and it was interesting to see them battle for the things they would need.

The squirrels raced one another for the nuts that were hidden under, the golden autumn leaves that had already fallen while the birds. were busy picking up straws and twigs to use in. building a warm nest.

. And often as they raced for items that caught their eye the birds would fight each other for possession.

As The Stroller looked on this autumn scene on his own front lawn, he was reminded of similar scenes he watched as a boy in the foothills of the Blue Mountains in the Pennsylvania Dutch country.

THE MEMORIES came tumbling back through the years and the Stroller recalled the days when his widowed mother kept all of us children busy as she prepared for the winter.

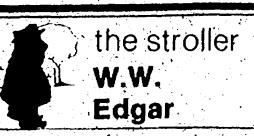

We had a small garden in which we raised tomatoes and cabbages and other vegetables. Once the harvest was in, mother put us all to work. The Stroller, being the only boy, drew the Job of cutting the cabbage which was to wind up in the earthen crock for sauerkraut. The girls helped slice tomatoes to prepare them for the making of ketchup.

There was one other job and mother took care of that. It was handling the beef tongue, or cow's tongue as we kids called it.

THERE WAS an earthen crock for the sauerkraut and another for tongue. Mother would watch as we filled the crock with the cut cabbage. Then she placed a board over it and placed a heavy stone on top of that to press down the cabbage. The cabbage settled during the winter months and made fine eating when the heavy snows came and we had sauerkraut and mashed potatoes for our meal.

With the tongue it was different. In those days the animal's tongue wasn't thought to be sight brings back many pleasant memories.

vaulable so the butcher used to save the best for mother. She would boil it, then slice it cross ways to make porions for sandwiches.

. Once this was done she placed the pleces in another earthen crock and started adding all kinds of spices. It was what she called "picklin". And how we youngsters used to enjoy a pickled tongue sandwich at noon when we came in from school.

The potatoes were another delicacy for us. Mother canned quite a few jars and placed them on a shelf in the cellar.

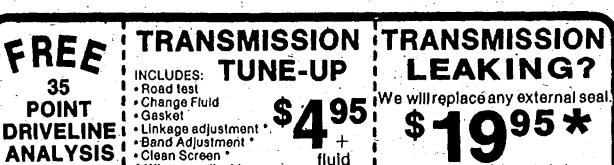

KETCHUP was another treat. The Stroller can't recall how she did it, but mother's final product was brown instead of the red that we see today. Because the tomatoes had to boil for quite a time, this portion of the winter preparation was done in a small building just off our

We youngsters had to keep a close watch so it wouldn't boil over.

These tasks never were a burden for us as we knew we would enjoy the fruits of our work during the long winter months and many a trip to the grocery store would be spared. And, with mother's Pennsylvania dutch technique, she made each job a lot of fun.

You don't see such preparation in homes today. There is little storing up and frequent trips to the grocery store are made through the winter. If any goods are stored for the winter, they come from the super market and not the labor of the family.

But in the old days it was fun getting ready. That's why the Stoller enjoys looking out of the picture window at the birds and squirrels. The

Shortway bus firm eyes SEMTA routes

By Kathy Parrich staff writer

Commuters stranded by Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA) may get picked up by a Toledo bus company.

Shortway Lines, which has a major service center in Southfield, is interested in taking over some of the routes SEMTA will eliminate next week.

"We're experienced in commuter service and feel there's a market for us to step in and offer that here," said Donald Zajac, vice president of marketing for Holland Industles, Shortway's parent company.

We think it could be done economically for the consumer and profitably for our company.

TO OFFSET A $16 million deficit, SEMTA will cut out its commuter rail and reducing bus routes serving Oakland, Macomb and western Wayne counties. Some staff members have already been laid off, but the bulk of the cuts take effect Oct. 17.

SEMTA has also been approached by Trailways, said a SEMTA spokesman. But it hasn't met yet with either transportation company.

If an agreement is reached, SEMTA

Biologist talks to fishing club

Ron Spitler, district fisheries biologist for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, will be a special guest speaker at the next meeting of the Four Seasons Fishing Club.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Daniel Lord Knights of Columbus Hall, 39050 Schoolcraft, Livonia Spitler sought the meeting to discuss pending state legislation and get public feedback, according to club spokesman Tony Brehler. The meeting is open to the public without charge.

probably would license a firm to use certain established routes.

Shortway representatives appeared before the SEMTA board of directors last week to show their interest in providing service to commuters. Zajac said his company would probably request a purchase of service agreement to take over established routes.

Shortway's silver buses would pick up and drop passengers in lots where SEMTA provided Park and Ride service.

Fares would be competitive, if Shortways doesn't have to pay too much to rent or maintain the lots, Zajac said. If agreement is reached with SEMTA, the company could start syrvice within 30 days, he said.

"It wouldn't be long." Shortways has buses available now, he said. "We are prepared to step in and offen the service."

STARTED IN 1926 in Tecumseh, Shortway originally ran buses between

Adrian and Detroit. The company moved to Toledo in 1926 and has been in the Detroit area since the 1930s.

Now in seven states, the transportation firm has 200 buses offering charter and tour service. In Pennsylvania, it runs 43-49 buses from suburban Washington, Pa., to Pittsburgh.

Southfield-based Shortway Airport Limousines provides service from Metro Airport to all cities within 50 miles. Zajac said preliminary studies showed "potential" in expanding the local operation to include former SEMTA riders.

CAPTURE THE FLAVOR OF ALASKA WITH Alaska Stafood

Alaska is soon to celebrate its silver anniversary: as our 49th state. Famed for its rugged wilderness and natural beauty, Alaska holds a certain mystique for most of us. While we may not be fortunate enough to travel to this heautiful frontier state, we can take advantage of its magnificent gift—the superb seafoods which come from the clear, icy waters off the 34,000 miles of coastline. From these waters some of the world's finest fish and shellfish are harvested each year. Now, with technological advancements in freezing and processing and rapid; controlled transportation, choice Alaska scafoods can be enjoyed year-

Scafoods fit beautifully into today's trend toward lighter foods. They are a valuable source of high-quality protein and provide other important nutrients. Alaska seafood dishes can also be prepared quickly whether cooked conventionally or in the microwave, which is also important with today's fast-paced lifestyles.

Featured here are several memorable Alaska seafood entrees, all of which are relatively light in calories and which can be prepared in double-quick time

Garden Salinon Salad features a wonderful combination of flavors and textures. Colorful clamks of canned salmon, crisp radishes, celery; hard-cooked egg, green onion, tomato and carrot are arranged in neat, colorful rows over torn spinach or lettinge in this attractive salad. Creamy Vinaigrette Dressing is served on the side.

In another delicious seafood salad, snowy white pouched Alaska halibut and Pink shrimp are combined with tiny peas, cucumber, green onion and a mayonnaise dressing flavored with tarragon, For an eyen lighter version of both salads, a sprinkling of lemon or lime juice can be substituted for the dressing.

Low in calories and delicately flavored. Alaska whitefish can be prepared in a variety of taste-tempting ways. Here, lean Alaska cod, pollock or rockfish fillets are filled with sauteed chopped onion and julienne strips of zucchini, then baked with a savory mushroom-tomalo sauce accented with basil.

A delicious entree for two features succulent Alaska salmon steaks complemented with broccoli and herbs. Whether cooked in the microwave or conventionally, this choice seafood is ready for delicious eating in just minutes. Salmon, once a delicacy on the West Coast, is now more readily available nationwide.

Another West Coast favorite that can now be enjoyed around the country is Alaska Dungeness crab. While it can be served in a variety of ways, one of the most popular is simply gracked with a favorite dip. Here, this moist, delectable shellfish is served in its natural state accompanied with a toruato salsa dip which is not only lasty, but low in calories

For delicious flavor and nourishing eating look to Alaska's precious gift of prime-quality-scalood.

Lamb and pita: Love at first bite father occasionally brought home ready-to-eat leg of lamb from a Greek place on Halsted Street. I devoured it. Like most youngsters, I only avoided most vegetables.

Except for the times we were invited across the street by neighbors to partake of black olives, feta cheese and lamb, I didn't eat much Greek food. My favorite diet was purely American: hot dogs and hamburgers, especially enjoyed at Wrigley Field watching the Cubs.

Many people never develop a taste for lamb. But I recall my wife's old Italian friend from New York who used to love lamb chops. My wife made them for Mary during each of her visits, but we ate something else.

Then Anita recently came in contact with that Greek sandwich of lamb, lettuce, tomatoes, special sauce, etc., stuffed into pity bread, and it was love at first bite.

So I decided to roast a leg of lamb, Greek style, and discovered what I had been missing.

THE LAMB tasted even better because of a tip from a friend: eating several spoonfuls of lime sherbet by tween mouthfuls of meat. It's the same principle as munching on cheese between slps of wine - the palate is cleansed.

The egg and lemon sauce isn't bad either. And it can double as a vegetable sauce, especially for asparagus, broccoli, cauliflower and spinach.

There are other ways to prepare leg of lamb, such as marinating it for 24 hours. Or fixing it French style: sprinkling on dried thyme and crumbled bay leaves instead of rosemary and making gravy from the pan drippings and one part water, three parts red wine.

But I prefer leg of lamb, Greek - sauce for future vegetable dishes.

Popular popcorn has a long history

What's poppin' in October?

Popcorn! It's national Popcorn Poppin' Month according to the Popcorn Institute, the Chicago-based association of United States popcorn processors.

Until the end of October, popcorn fans across the country can try out new popcorn recipes, sample flavored popcorn, hold popcorn fests, stage popcorn-eating contests and do 101 other things to salute this super snack food.

Popcorn poppin' and munchin' has been an on-going event in the Americas for thousands of years. Long before the Institute established a special popcorn month and even before Columbus set sall to the New World, American Indians were popping corn in hot sand, on hot stones, in shallow clay pots or right on the coob over an open fire. The original Americans knew a good thing when they tasted it.

Popcorn snackin' was not limited to North American tribes in those long ago days. There's proof that South American and Mexican Indians also munched on this food. A primitive popcorn cob about 4,445 years old was found in LaPerra Cave in the mountains of northeastern Mexico. In tombs on the east coast of Peru researchers discovered grains of popcorn believed to be over 1,000 years old that were so well preserved they still popped.

THE LONGTIME all-American favorite snack has a lot going for it. Besides being fun to eat and great tasting, popcorn is:

Le Versatile - from breakfast to midnight snack.

The early colonists served popcorn with sugar and cream for breakfast the first "puffed" breakfast cereal. The since then. Today popcorn is served as a before-dinner appetizer, kids love it envelope to: The Popcorn Institute, c/o as a substitute for croutons or crackers in soup; popcorn is a college student's late-night study snack and it makes a great dessert as well.

• Nutritious - the experts agree, popcorn is a wholesome snack food.

The American Dental Association recommends popcorn as a sugar-free snack. Furthermore, chewing popcorn creates a mild cleansing and massaging action that is beneficial to both teeth and gums.

The American Cancer Society lists high-fiber food as one of the 11 things that don't cause cancer. Popcorn is a high-fiber food.

Weight Watchers International Inc. recognizes popcorn's wholesomeness and includes it in its weight reduction program. Popcorn is a natural for nutritious eating. It's low in calories, high in bulk and fiber and is an important carbohydrate.

 Popular — kids and adults love its taste. In 1982, Americans consumed 9.7 billion quarts of popped popcorn, or 42 quarts per person.

POPCORN IS a $1-billion industry. Unpopped sales at the retail level amount to nearly $200 million. Popcorn sales at leisure establishments (excluding bars and restaurants) are around $700 million, with 30-35 percent of that coming from movie theater

Hallmark is dependability

I recently read a magazine article concerning the practice of a few companies hiring employees solely on the . coming to the graphologist. basis of handwriting analysis. The companles using this practice clain that certain applicants wouldn't have been hired otherwise, based on other criteria. However, it was mentioned that, once hired, these particular employees proved to be very beneficial assets.

I find it amazing that a graphologist could possibly be able to uncover information about a person's character, aptitude, etc. just from analyzing his or her handwriting. I must admist that I'm a little skeptical. To convince me that it can be done, I would appreciate your studying my writing and telling me something about it. I will be more than happy to supply you with feedback on the accuracy of your analysis.

For the record let me say that employers using graphology do not rely solely on the applicant's handwriting.

Family sex education classes help communication

By Diane Gale staff writer

Sex education is becoming a family affalr. 🦂

Group discussions between parents and their children are important for opening lines of communication and _sues." understanding each other, according to Gail Zettell, project director of adolescent family life with Catholic Social Services of Wayne County.

One of its offices is at 17332 Farmington. Livonia. The phone number is 421-3730.

Embarrassment surfaces during explicit descriptions of the anatomy, and physical functions, Zettel said. But, most of the time it's a matter of learning about each other's feelings.

"A lot of parents say 'I would like to know where my kid's at, but he won't talk to me," Zettell sald.

They find that group discussions on sex offer an atmosphere they couldn't create at home. The sessions, spon-sored by Catholic Social Services, are held periodically. They are titled "Communication Around Sexual Is-

Teen-agers who are involved in a lot of sexual activity are looking for self adulation, physical love and some kind of purpose in life, which they often don't receive from their families, Zettell sald.

In these cases building self-esteem is vitat, she said.

"We all know that adolescent pregnancy is epidemic and that sexually transmitted diseases pose an extremely serious health problem," Zettel sald. "Young people are faced each day with more and more overtly sexual material which offers slick, simplistic solutions to difficult problems."

The discussion sessions are especially important for single parent families. Sometimes a mother or father, who is the opposite sex of their child, doesn't understand the physical and social changes that occur during adolescence, Zettel said.

Parents are asked to look at their evaluate their relationships and put own sex education and to decide what they want to give to their children. The sessions are conducted by three instructors who emphasize that parents have the primary responsibility in teaching their children about sex. The young men who attend the course talk about how they feel about being perceived as the "villain," during sexual encounters, Zettel said. They often admit they are the aggressors, but they feel they're being teased or led on.

Parents shouldn't express their aggression toward their children. They should change that statement to, "It makes me very upset when you don't bring the car home by midnight,"

Keith Famie knows his fois gras and mousse

By Tom Henderson staff writer

Keith Famic, the head chef at Raphael's, the highly regarded French restaurant in the Sheraton Oaks Hotel in Novi, had them oohing and aahing at Schoolcraft College recently.

The standing-room-only about 100 culinary arts students oohed when he told them his age, 23, which made him younger than some of them. And it ashed when he showed slides of his delectable creations during a fastpaced two-hour guest lecture on

French cuisine. Who wouldn't ooh and aah? In slide after slide were such delicacies as rabbit and pheasant pate, periwinkle and poached salmon, poached pears in red wine, black truffles, duck liver mousse, scallop mousse, lobster mousse and fols

The fois gras (pronounced (wa-gra), made from the swollen liver of force-. fed fowl, is imported, at merely $45 a pound wholesale. The truffles, mushrooms rooted out of the ground by pigs or trained dogs is a steal at $120 a pound wholesale, thanks to Famle's connections in France. The periwinkle might look like escargot to the uninitiated, but the former is a sea snail and the latter a land snall, a crucial distinc-

Why is Famie explaining all these things? How, at the tender age of 23, without a minute of college education or cooking school experience, has Famio come to lecture a wide-eyed, awed gathering of culinary students? How did a kid out of Farmington High School, whose idea of a good kitchen job not so long ago was washing dishes in a Chinese restaurant, get to the point where he is saying cockily: "I want to have the first five-star restaurant ever in the state of Michigan and I want to be the youngest five-star chef ever"?

"A little b.s. and a little luck," he ex-

ACTUALLY, FAMIE'S meteoric rise in the world of cuisine was a matter of a lot of guts and a lot of talent.

He started in the business at 15 as a dishwasher at the Great Wall in Farmington. From there he moved on to a dishwashing job at a Holiday Inn and an egg-slinging tour at a Burger House.

The first break came when he was 16 and wrote a letter to Duglass Grezch. the flamboyant chef known as Duglass Duglass, one-time TV star and then chef at the Great Dane. Duglass took the eager kid under his wing and began his tutelage. "At 19," says Famle, "I flew into Brussels (Belgium). I didn't know anyone, nor did I know the language. But I wanted to learn European cooking."

A sympathetic American got him work in her husband's kitchen at the Hyatt Regency in Brussels, where "I was at the extreme bottom" chopping vegetables and washing lettuce."

When it was discovered he was working in Brussels illegally, the chef at the Regency found him a job at the Hotel Loews in Monte Carlo, where he cut more vegetables, washed more lettuce, and kept his eyes and ears open.

From there came the trip up the ladder, through a variety of elegant restaurants in Europe and New York City, from vegetables, to sauces, to main courses, to, a little more than a year ago, the head job at Raphael's.

FAMIE'S LECTURE is witty and interesting, the perfect mix of instruction and antecdote. His love of cooking and his energy are obvious. The students, in white jackets and with their paper chef hats on the tables in front of them, sit enchanted.

(Five former Schoolcraft culinary. students work for Famic at Raphael's Glen Gariepy, Nancy Branham, Chuck McDaniel, Tom O'Callaghan and Mark Kitchen.)

Famie describes for his audience his days of abuse at the hands of the masters, where a slightly inadequate pastry might be hurled to the floor, where he was expected to be in the restaurant at 7 a.m. and wouldn't get out till midnight, where credit was rare and critcism frequent. It is obvious Famile wouldn't have missed it for the world, though he advises these kids to get their schooling in school.

Though already a successful chef, -Famle is still learning. "I just returned from Switzerland and a 12-day tour of Europe," he said. "I ate at five of the 16 three-star restaurants in Europe." (In Europe, the rating system goes as high as three stars, the equivalent of five in the U.S.) The chefs at those restaurants are so very, very well known: And yet the red-carpet was rolled out for me. They were impressed to see someone young and eager, who doesn't know the language, knocking on their door and asking about their cooking."

The best meal there cost him $156, and that was for dinner. The cheapest? A couple of bucks at a McDonald's.

McDonald's? For a fan of haute cul-

"Usually, after work; I'll go out to a Denny's or a Burger King," laughs Famle. "Or I'll go home and make a peanut butter and Jelly sandwich."

A rose by any other name is still a rose, and, after all, an American kid, even after he's been to Paris, is still an American.

So, this year we increased the number of private rooms to 1,700 compared to 1,300 a year ago. Gagliano points out that MSU has one of the lowest room and board rates in the country but acknowledge that it still represents a major investment for students and their families.

"One of the things that makes this university attractive," he said, "is that even through we are big, we try very hard to treat our students as individuals. We concentrate on helping students adjust to college life so that they get as much out of it as they can."

2 new entries should appeal to pop-novice crowd

Noted in this column a year or so ago s the devoping battle between E. and I. Gallo and Coca-Cola, the latter via its Taylor of California Cellars issues. Taylor has since made gains, surpassing Almaden, and now the two giants have launched new wine labels with which to parry still further.

Both have announced wines aimed at the labrusca, pop-novice crowd. The wines will arrive here in the fall. Galjo's is Polo Brindisi, both a red and white, of low alcohol, priced at under $3 the bottle. Coke's thrust is called Vivante, and a huge promotional campaign is under way for this in several festricted markets.

Embassy takeover makes poor drama in 'Final Option'

There are several things a moviegoer should know about "The Final Option" (R). (1) It's a message movie. (2) The realism is in the violence, not in the twists and turns of plot which seriously test one's credulity. (3) The fortifying presence of Richard Widmark is absent for the first three-quarters of the movie.

The message of this movie is to distrust the peaceniks. The leaders of the English anti-nuclear movement are depicted as terrorists who would kill for peace. They would even detonate a nuclear bomb as a lesson to people. Those who are not wild eyed extremists are misguided dupes, pawns of an unnamed foreign power.

A mysterious foreigner is shown donating large sums of money to leftist causes — any group that has the word "people's" in its name. We never learn for whom he is working.

Key event in "The Final Option" is the takeover of the American Embassy In London by these anti-nuclear radicals funded by the

THEY HOLD the American ambassador and a party of important dinner guests hostage while they wait for the British to carry out their demands.

Among the terrorists is Scanlon (Lewis Collins), who is actually an undercover agent from a crack team of British special services. By prearrangement, he was drummed out of the service for sadistic treatment of his men. With this to recommend him, he quickly infiltrates the inner circle of the peace movement.

Although the movie asks to be taken seriously, it contradicts this intention by introducing a cool, suave hero cast in the mold of James Bond. Only the exotic vehicles are lacking.

Collins is a handsome hunk who fits the part perfectly. His role simply isn't believable. The same is true for Judy Davis (seen in "My Brilliant Career") who plays the daughter of a millionaire and the leader of the peace movement. She also is a dancer (shades of "Flashdance") at a leftist hangout, and she's a pushover.

Collins simply shows up at the cafe, introduces himself and says he wants to sleep with her. She, in the manner of Bonded females, immediately takes him into her home, her headquarters and her

MEANWHILE, WE note that Scanlon, the experienced superagent, visits his wife and child while undercover, is careless in meeting his contact and allows himself to be followed.

Widmark and Robert Webber fare much better with their brief roles. Widmark is the United States Secretary of State and Webber a top American general. They are among the hostages at the embasssy. They add a much needed steeliness to the movie, which is in danger of drowning in its own polemics. Widmark and Davis argue their differing points of view (Widmark calm and rational; Davis, the woman, emotional and irrational) in a lengthy dialogue that puts the action on hold.

It's been rumored that President Reagan and former Secretary of State Alexander Halg are enthusiastic about this movie. "The Final Option" makes a serious point about embassy takeovers, but does the point need to be made? All those in favor of embassy takeovers raise your hands.

When the movie tries to make a point about extremism, even in the cause of peace, it stumbles repeatedly and is ineffectual. It strains the limits of our belief with its far-fetched characters, irrational situations and obvious attempts to rabble-rouse. There is a serious question to be addressed on the extent and limits of political defiance within a democracy. This movie isn't the vehicle for doing it.

Szechuan-style restaurant opens

By Ethel Simmons staff writer

DIN HOW Szechuan Restaurant is Livonia's only restaurant serving Szechuan and Mandarin-style food, said David Chen, owner of the new family-run restaurant at 29195 Plymouth.

Chen formerly owned the 200-seat restaurant New Peking in Garden City. After selling the New Peking to another Chinese owner, he has opened the 70-seat Din How (which means "the best" in Chinese.

"American taste is changing. They want the real Chinese taste - traditional, hot and spicy Chinese food," Chen said.

Chen pointed out some of the specialties on the menu. The menu cover gives a hint of the work that goes into making Peking duck. "Preparations are as easy as 1-2-3 . . . 4-5-6-7 . . . Whew!" it reads.

"It has crusty skin outside and a juicy skin inside," Chen said, explaining the dish. "We use a pancake to wrap it." Because of the lengthy preparations, a one-day advance order is re-

"Something like a taco," Chen said, "We prepare the pancake by ourselves. The shape is not very beautiful, but it is homemade."

Din How also carries vegetarian food. Among desserts on the menu are spun sugar banana, "crusty outside and a banana inside, cold outside. and hot inside." A spun sugar apple is offered the

The restaurant's decor is simple, accented by two antique, three-dimensional Chinese pictures, each 12 feet by 6 feet.

The Din How had its grand opening Sept. 28. Restaurant hours are 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Mondays-Thusdays, 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Fridays-Saturdays and noon to 9 p.m. Sundays. Liquor is NICKY'S IS the elegant new restaurant, cocktail lounge and nightspot on the ground level of the Top of Troy building.

John Reaser of Milford, a lawyer with offices in Southfield, and Nicky Sorise of Troy are partners in the restaurant that opened Sept. 12. The location most recently housed Kogy's, previously Sidney's and before that the Bonaventure.

The partners spent more than $250,000 remodeling Nicky's, which has a striking, contemporary look. Its interior is designed by Ronnie Rea; who has done the decor for many top-flight Detroit-area restaurants.

Reaser said originally the partners were striving for an art-deco touch but were pleased to see it develop more into high-tech.

Soft lighting enhances the big room, with its "laser lights," even at lunchtime. A mirrored wall backdrops the area where Top 40 bands play for listening and dancing in the evening.

The food comes first, Reaser said, "but the entertainment will bring back people to enjoy ed butter and freshly grated romano cheese: Chicken breast is also featured in the mostordered luncheon selection, croque madame, a sandwich where the chicken and gruyere cheese is baked in cream sauce.

At-dinner, yeal picante is often chosen. The chef also offers veal tino, a dish he says is "pretty rich."

Nicky's, at 1-75 and Big Beaver Road, is open from 11 a.m. to midnight Mondays-Thursdays, until 1 a.m. Saturdays. Saturdays dinner is served from 8 p.m. Nicky's is closed Sundays but may host private partles.

A pink-canopled private room also is available for parties.

One or both partners is usually on the scene at Nicky's, "We work it day and night," Reaser said, "but we love it."

GIORGIO'S, which had its grand opening last week, is in the Great American Insurance Building at 280 N. Woodward, Birmingham.

Restaurauteur Giorgio Golematis takes over the location that formerly was Tweeny's run by Yvonne Gill. Greek-born Golematis has worked for a number of Detroit-area restaurants and formerly opened a 35-seat "gourmet" diner, which he opened in Oak Park in 1981.

The owner is doing much of the cooking in Giorgio's open kitchen.

Among the many entrees available at dinner are veal marsala, steak au polvre, ocean flounder, beef tenderloin and shrimp Dijon. Soup, salad and broccoli or baked potato accompanies the meal. At lunch the Giorgio-Burger is one of the features.

Hours are 11 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. Mondays-Thursdays, 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Fridays-Satur-

CHI-CHI'S, national restaurant chain of Mexican eateries, has just opened two more lecations in the northern and western suburbs.

Now there are Chi-Chi's at 29330 Schoolcraft, Livonia, opposite the Detroit Race Course; and at 32585 Concord Drive, Madison Heights, near Troy's Oakland Mall.

The restaurant's charm begins with its bright, informal decor, resembling a Mexican hacienda. Colorful wall hangings, pottery and baskets accent the setting.

Corn chips with hot or medium dip may begin the meal, and Mexican hors d'ouevres including a version of pizza are available. For cocktails, v the house specialty is a double marguerita, served in a huge saucer-champagne glass. Big portions are served for dinners or a la carte dishes. The chimichanga, a meat-filled burro, is Chi-Chi's specialty that may be ordered any of five different ways. Fried ice cream is a different dessert on the menu.

The Livonia restaurant is open from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Mondays-Thursdays, 11 a.m. to midnight Fridays-Saturdays and 11:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sundays. In Madison Heights, hours are 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Mondays-Thursdays, 11 a.m. to midnight Fridays-Saturdays and 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sundays.

NOPALITOS Restaurant and Cantina, with Mexican cuisine, opens Saturday at Somerset Mall in Troy. A Mexican interior of stucco and tile, with cactus plants for accent, replaces the formerly French setting of the Magic Pan creperie.

The restaurant offers gourmet Mexican food, with shrimp, red snapper, chicken, pork, beef and steak featured in entrees. Mexican beers and margueritas (a 17-ounce Rio Grande) are among drinks served.

Nopalitos has a 160-seat dining area and enlarged, 60-seat cantina:

U-M economists oppose constitutional amendment

University of Michigan economists oppose a possible constitutional amendment to require balanced federal budgets and limited federal tax re-

U-M-President Harold T. Shapiro and professor Gardner Ackley, in statements before a public hearing of the Michigan senate committees on administration and rules and elections, urged defeat of a Senate joint resolution urging a balanced federal budget.

They charged that the proposed constitutional amendment is unworkable for judicial and logistical reasons, will inhibit both economic development and trading policy, and "respresents an unjustified indictment of our particular process of representative government.

"I am opposed to a Constitutional amendment that would place any specific limitation on federal budget outcomes in a specific year," Sharpiro The letter specifies eight reasons why "such an amendment is not in the national interest." They are:

1. "Whether a given expediture badget and set of tax provisions will produce a deficit or a surplus depends to an important degree on the state of the economy over a period that will end considerably more than a year from the time when appropriations and tax laws are enacted. This future state of the economy will be significantly influenced by the budget itself; but it also depends on many other events and circurnstances that cannot be foreseen. Achieving the purpose of the proposed amendment, i.e., avoiding deficits thus implies an impossible accuracy in economic forecasting.

2. "Even if Congress were able accurately to forecast the state of the economy, and able accurately to predict the with any economic forecast and any set of tax laws and appropriations, it is bad public policy to enact a budget that would be balanced in a fiscal year foreseen to be characterized by excessive unemployment and deficient sales, prodcution and incomes. Such a balanced budget could, in those circumstances, itself markedly increase unemployment and further depress production and incomes.

"Similarly, if the fiscal year for which the budget and tax rates were being determined were expected to be a year of strong demand, high production and employment, and rising inflation, the percentage rise in tax revenues to the previous year's percentage increase in national income could require tax rate reductions that would further increase demand and further fuel inflation, leaving tight money and high interest rates as the principal weapons for attempting to stabilize demand and prices. . .

4. "Precise definitions of 'expenditures,' 'revenues,' 'deficit,' 'national income' and related concepts are not included in the present draft amendment. Thus, the amendment would need to contain (or the courts would need to supply) such definitions. The relevance of any particular set of precise defintions changes materially over time. The Constitution cannot be periodically amended or retinterpreted to keep up with changing fiscal concepts and prac-

5. "CONSTITUTIONAL limits on the use of budgetary policy for purposes of economic stabilization could in many cases be evaded by the use of regulatory policies or tax differentials designed to achieve the same ends. Regulatory provisions are normally far less efficient than economic incentives, and regulations of tax differentials seriously distort economic choices. Inventing new forms of 'off-budget' expenditures or financing would be another easy but undesirable means to frustratie the infention of the amendment.

6. Interpretation of the Constitution, including this amendment if approved, is a function of the judiclary. We believe it unwise to involve the courts in the interpretation of economic theory and economic policy. It often takes years to develop a judicial construction sufficiently thorough to comprehend the full range of issues, arguments, and conflicts inherent in a new legal situation. To be effective, economic policy must be flexible, and respond to changing economic conditions, institutions, and relationships, bringing the courts into the policy process would severly undermine the necessary flexibility.

7. "The proposed amendment demands a three-fifths vote of the full membership of each House of Congress in order to permit a Federal deficit under any circumstance other than a formal declaration of war. A special majority would also be needed to raise tax revenues by more than the previous year's increase in national income (which might be a decrease). In a national emergency other than war, a prohibition of deficits or tax increases might make it impossible adequately to protect the national interes.

8. "Most of us agree that Federal budget deficits can be and often have been incurred unwisely at the wrong times, or in the wrong amounts However, we do not believe that the quality of our economic policies will be improved by amending the Constitution. Rather, they will be improved only through better and wider public understanding of the economic elements in national policy, and responsive to the will of the electorate.'

Franklin falls to North

By Chris McCosky

staff writer

It was not pretty, but North Farmington will take it.

North, 3-0 in Northwest Suburban League action, met with a damp, ugly autumn afternoon, a muddy-wet field and a fired up Livonia Franklin football team Saturday, and escaped with a 14-6 victory.

Afterwards, Raider coach Jim O'Leary was not a happy man. He wasn't mad at his team - he was angry at himself.

"I called a lousy football game today," the first-year coach said. "I did not call good plays. I lost my cool. I tried to get fancy when I should have just kept the ball on the ground. I blew

FRANKLIN, PLAYING before a spirited homecoming day crowd, took advantage of its large interior line to out-muscle North in the first half. The Patriots gained 110 yards on the ground in the first half, but couldn't put the ball in the end zone.

"I was not at all unhappy with the way the offense played," said Franklin coach Armand Vigna. "We had our moments. We had several good opportunities to score." Neither team could score in the first half, though Franklin had the best chances. Three times the Patriots were inside Raider territory. A roughing the kicker penalty against North with 5:14 left in the half gave Franklin a first down inside the North 45, but two plays later Tom Spahn recovered a Patriot fumble. Then, with just over two minutes left, Patriot back Tim Walley ran 45 yards down to the North 27, but another fumble ended the threat. This time a crunching tackle by Rich Olson forced the ball loose and Pat Leavy fell on it for North.

The closest North came to scoring was the Patriot 40-yard line. The first of two Eric Engel pass interceptions, this one by David Demay, ended the NORTH TOOK the second half kick off and promptly drove 60 yards in eight plays for the game's first score. The Raiders' punishing tailback Ken Goss, who rushed for 91 yards on the day, scored from two yards out.

The score was set up by some fine running by Spahn. After an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty against Franklin put North at the Patriot 48, Spahn took two handoffs, one for 10 yards and the other for 18, to set the scene for Goss. Spahn rushed for 67 yards on the day. He also added the point after.

As it turned out, those seven points were all North would need.

Franklin stormed right back after the North score. The Pats took the ensuing kickoff and went 61 yards in four plays. Quarterback Rob Drabicki hit wide receiver John Lee with a 41-yard touchdown pass.

North maintained its lead, however, as Larry Patzsch's point after try went North blew several chances to put the game away in the third quarter. Mark Carrier recovered a Franklin fumble on the Pats' 10-yard line, but three plays later Drabicki stepped in front of an Engel pass in the end zone and ran it back 27 yards.

North's Brian Hood recovered still another Franklin fumble, this one on the Pat's 22 in the fourth quarter, but the Raiders were unable to move it in,

NORTH FINALLY did put the game away with about a minute left. Engel, after some hard running by Goss put the Raiders on the Pat's front porch. bootlegged around left end for a 3-yard

Franklin got the ball back in good field position following a poor kick by North, but with just seconds remaining, couldn't mount a threat.

"We just missed being in a position to win this game," Vigna said. "I think our kids improved a great deal over the past two weeks. We played with more heart and more emotion today than I have seen. We're going to have to regroup a bit now."

The Pat's (1-2 in league play) had more total yards than North, 224-193. Walley gained 52 yards in just three

"Their defense did a lot of stunts on the line that caused us problems. They are a fine football team. You've got to give them credit, but we might have been looking ahead a bit," O'Leary said.

The Raiders have a showdown next Saturday with undefeated Westland

RU makes the most of Cougar errors

By C.J. Risak staff writer

The difference between winning and losing: Winners take advantage of their breaks, Losers don't.

Redford Union capitalized on its breaks to score on three short drives, rulning Garden City's homecoming with a 21-6 victory Friday.

Kelth Manus scored on a pair of short runs and rambled for 86 of RU's 186 rushing yards: Manus' first score capped a 25-yard drive in the second quarter, set up by a poor Garden City punt. The RU back scampered the final nine yards, then kicked the first of his three extra points to give the Panthers a 7-0 lead.

In the third quarter, RU's Ken Atwood stepped in front of John Romano's pitchout, intercepting it at the Garden City 48 and returning it 45 yards to the three. Manus scored on the next play and it was 14-0, RU.

Don Angel's 13-yard run in the fourth quarter ended the Panthers' scoring. RU drove 43 yards for the TD, taking the ball over on downs. Garden City got on the board with just 1:09 left on a John Romano-to-

Dave Lee 30-yard pass play. THE COUGARS had other chances, however, in the second quarter, Jeff Bugilone got into the game and carried the ball three times for 44 yards, taking the ball to the RU three. But Bugilone, who has been injured much of the Rick Holme completed three of eight for 39 yards for RU. Bob Macek added 76 yards rushing for the Panthers, now 1-4 and 1-2 in the Northwest Suburban League (NSL). Garden City fell to 1-4 with the loss, 1-2 in the league.

JOHN GLENN 38, THURSTON 6:

Tony Boles streaked for two touchdowns and Cass Simpson returned an interception for another to lift Westland John Glenn to its fourth, win in five contests Friday at Glenn.

The Rockets got a pair of first-quarter TDs, Boles dashing four yards for the first and Tom Forchlone plunging two yards for the next.

But Redford Thurston rolled right back, moving the ball inside the 10 before the Glenn defense toughened. Thurston's failure to score proved costly, instead of cutting the lead to 14-7, they gave the ball back to Glenn and the Rockets promptly marched 94 yards on 14 plays.

Boles ended the drive with a threeyard TD run. Jeff Hawley, who connected on seven of 10 tosses for 109 yards in the game, hit John Mackolay with a 30-yard completion to ignite the Chris Piazza was perfect placekicking with five extra points and a 26-yard third-quarter field goal. Craig Thorton added an eight yard scoring run in the third period, and in the fourth Simpson plifered a Raffi Kostegian pass and returned it for the final Glenn TD.

Boles finished with 88 yards in 14 carries. Gerald Doran gained 72 yards in 10 tries to lead Thurston. Kostegian completed just four of 22 passes, throwing two intercepts.

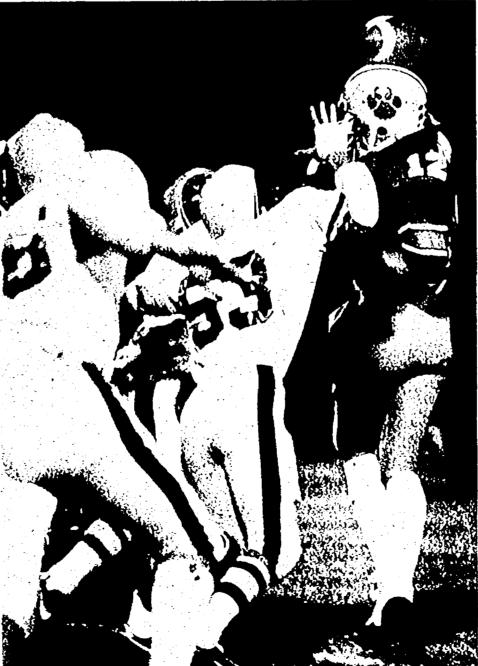

Thurston is 1-4 overall, 0-3 in the NSL. Glenn is 3-0 in the league.

CATHOLIC CENTRAL 21, GAL-LAGHER 0: Redford Catholic Central's relentless ground game wore out Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher Friday at South Lake High School.

CC collected 307 rushing yards and. limited Gallagher to 121 yards total. Tom Bridenstine led the ground assault with 172 yards on 28 attempts, scoring the game's first touchdown on a oneyard dive in the opening quarter.

In the third quarter the Shamrocks scored twice, the first on a 50-yard sprint by Mark Renklewicz. Renklewicz finished with 97 yards rushing on 11 carries. Quarterback Matt Wilczewski capped the CC scoring with a three yard run later in the quarter.

W.L. WESTERN 26, CHURCHILL 13: Mickey Folsom fired a pair of second-half scoring passes to Quent Scan--nell, boosting Western past Churchill Friday at Western.

Churchill had a 7-6 lead at the half thanks to three-yard run by Bob Foust in the second quarter and Steve Bond's placement. Western had scored in the opening quarter on Rob Adams' 83- overall, 1-2 in the WLAA.

Folsom's passing broke the contest open. He hit Scannell with a 23-yard pass in the third quarter and a 37-yard. er in the fourth. Mike Craig scored another Warrior TD on a 16-yard run in the fourth quarter to make it 26-7.

Churchill's last score came with a minute left, on John Stoitsladis' fouryard run. Stoltsladis completed just three of 19 passes, but they covered 117

STEVENSON 2, CHURCHILL 2: John Gelmisi's second goal of the contest and 20th of the season pulled Livonia Stevenson even with Livonia Churchill Thursday at Churchill.

Chris Rose and Phil Lussier each tallied for Churchill (4-3-3) in the first half as the Chargers took a 2-1 halftime lead. They couldn't hold it, howeyer, as Stevenson (9-2-1) got the equalizer in the second half.

CATHOLIC CENTRAL I, RICE 0: Tom Cotter broke up a scoreless duel midway through the second half, punching home a crossing pass from Andy Rama to boost Redford Catholic Central to a Catholic League victory over Birmingham Brother Rice Friday at Bell Creek Park.

The game was a defensive battle throughout, with Rice goalle Mike Nagy handling only eight shots and CC netminder Pat Stocker just six. Bob Tataglia and Don Guss sparked the Shamrock defensive effort.

CC is now 7-2-1. Rice is 7-6-1. On Wednesday, the Shamrocks bombed Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher, 6-1, behind Rama's three goals and one assist. Jim Moreau added two markers for CC and Jim Kowalski one. Both Moreau and Kowalskl earned assists.

Stocker and Bob Sinnaeve divided goaltending duties, facing 11 shots. The Shamrocks had 29 at the Gallagher net.

BENTLEY 2, NORTHVILLE 2: All the scoring was finished by halftime in this WLAA contest Thursday at Northville. -

Livonia Bentley's Tony Pulice tied the game at 1-all with a goal 10 minutes into the first half, with Dennis Patchett assisting. Jim Raderback gave the Bulldogs a short-lived lead a few-minutes later, scoring on an assist from Abe Yaffal.

But Northville's Steve Starcevich tied it at 2-apiece on a penalty kick 10 minutes later. It was Starcevich's 13th goal of the year.

Harrison's is now 2-5-2 for the sea-

FRANKLIN 2, N. FARMINGTON 1: Livonia Franklin's soccer fortunes took a roller coaster ride in this Western Lakes battle Thursday at Frank-

The Patriots (3-6) led 1-0 at half after Brian Terski's goal and clung to that advantage until just five minutes remained. That's when North tied it

But just when it seemed Franklin would have to settle for a tie, Bob Neuman popped in a goal with just 14 minutes left to earn the victory. Franklin outshot North, 28-9, to earn the win.

HAMTRAMCK 6, GARDEN CITY: 1: In-a rough and tumble contest, Hamtramck star Kanto Lulal netted three goals and assisted on two others as Garden City lost for the first time in 11 games.

Cougar coach Steve Vakratsis, upset with the rough style of play, pulled his players off the field with 10 minutes still remaining, fearing they might get injured. Garden City's Paul Pumill scored two minutes into the game, but that was all the Cougars could manage. On Wednesday, Pumill single-handedly knocked off Dearborn, scoring five goals and assisting on the team's sixth in Garden City's 6.0 rout. Ron Kaspeck got the team's other goal and picked up two assists.

CC posted a 318 to 319 for Athens and Northville. Host team Livonia Churchill finished fourth with 321.

"This should start us on our way," said CC team captain Tom Simoncic. "This field was tougher than what we'll face in the regional.

"Although the regional is more important, I hope this will be a stepping stone to bigger and better things (like the state championship)."

Scott Alexander topped CC with a 75. Rob Medonis carded a 78, Simoncic shot an 82 and Dan Sullivan an 83. John Fournier was low man'for Churchill with a 78.

CC golfers top Midwestern Invite Franklin bobbles let North cagers escape

Tough situation for any girls' bas-. ketball team. And North Farmington, the team in that pickle, wasn't just going against a run-of-the-mill club. Livonia Franklin was 2-0 in Northwest Suburban League play, sharing the top spot with North.

But North battled back, taking advantage of three Franklin turnovers in the final minute to score the game's last seven points in a 46-42 victory Thursday at North.

"They had pressure on us at the end," admitted North coach Greg Grodzicki before adding, "and we rose to the occasion."

AMY AUSTIN did most of the damage. Following the first Franklin turnover, Austin was fouled with 50 seconds left. She hit the first free throw, missed the second but Suzanne Howley grabbed the rebound and put it in to tie it up at 42-all.

The Patriots went to a slowdown, trying to work for a final shot, but they turned it over again. Once again Austin was fouled and this time she made both to put the Raiders on top, 44-42, with 18 seconds remaining. Lainna Shaw capped North's comeback, hitting two more free throws in Three points down and a minute to the final seconds following yet another Franklin miscue.

Austin had an outstanding individual game for the Ralders, scoring 18. points, six in the last quarter, grabblng 14 rebounds (eight offensive), and adding four assists, three blocked shots and five steals. Shaw contributed 16 points.

Borgess blasted by Mercy

Letdown? What letdown?

Not at Farmington Hills Mercy. The Marlins bounced back-from a frustrating setback Monday at the hands of Livonia Ladywood to trounce Redford Bishop Borgess, 55-29, Thursday at Borgess. The Marlins (7-2) exploded for a 20-6 lead after one quarter and coasted from there. Their lead was 17 at the half (29-12) and 25 after three quarters

"For an opponent like this, you have to set goals," said Mercy coach Larry Baker. "You have to get out of the blocks quickly.

"It was good to bounce back from that disappointing defeat."

Speaking of disappointing defeats, the Marlins will get a shot at revenge when they play Ladywood at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 20, at Birmingham Brother Rice. Tickets will be sold in advance.

A trio of Mercy players hit for double figures nette Rugglero and Mary Rosowski (10 each). Nancy Rzepka, just returning from a back injury, poured in 14 for Borgess (1-8). LADYWOOD 55. BISHOP GALLAGHER 47: Livonia Ladywood needed a boost from Tracy La-against Borgess: Amy DeMattia (12 points) and An-Douceur off the bench to thwart Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher Thursday at Gallagher. The Blazers (9-0) led by just one at the half (21-20) and five after three quarters (39-34). La-

Douceur, a 5-10 forward who finished with eight points, knocked in six in the final quarter to help Ladywood maintain its advantage.

Char Govan netted 19 points to pace the Blazers, with Emily Wagner chipping in 12 and Debbie Lapinski eight. Joan Rieger was high scorer for Gallagher (6-3) with 14 points.

CABRINI 44, ST. AGATHA 25: Allen Park Cabrini blew the game open with a big second half in handing Redford St. Agatha Its eighth loss in 10 games Thursday at St. Agatha.

Cabrini led by a pair (16-14) at the half before blowing out the outmanned Aggies with scoring advantages of 14-5 in the third quarter and 14-6 in the fourth. Melissa Barnes and Patsy Sugo each pumped in 11 points for the winners.
