Suburbs win appeal of rate in water case

The Michigan Court of Appeals has unanimously upheld the challenge of 77 suburban communities to water rates charged by the city of Detroit during

The state's second highest court thus reversed an earlier Circuit Court ruling that the return on investment exacted by those rates was "not unreasonable."

"I think it's a good thing," said Henry Lundquist, Westland public services di rector. "We've been waiting a long time for a favorable decision. With this decision, we're getting justice for Westland residents."

"This is a landmark decision for the suburban customers of the water system," said Edward H. McNamara, chairman of the Suburban Association of Detroit Water Customers, which in 1976 challenged a 39 percent water rate increase.

This is the first time water customers ever won an action against the water department. You could say we have been successful.

'Detroit's liability to these commun itles under this ruling could be in exmayor of Livonia, "There is also a 12 percent per year interest on the total." McNamara said the water department now had three options. It could appeal the court of appeals decision. It could let the case go back to circuit court and let the court decide the amount of damages. Or it could negotiate an amount to be returned to the suburban communities.

"I think they might negotiate because that liability keeps climbing at 12 percent," McNamara said.

THE CASE has been sent back to Circuit Court to determine the amount of the credit that should be granted to the suburban communities against their future water bills.

No date has been set for further trial court proceedings. The appeals court ruled that Wexford County Circuit Judge William Peterson erred in accepting the rate formula set by Detroit, The case was shifted to the Wexford judge in a change of venue.

Arthur Wiltala, superintendent of water and sewer for Westland, said the sult was filed after Detroit increased water rates for suburbs in December

"The rates were increased from 29.4" cents per 1,000 gallons in Westland to 49.1 cents per 1,000 gallons, almost a

67 percent increase," Wiitala said. "So Westland, with neighboring communities, challenged the rate formula (used by Detroit). We felt as though we were actually subsidizing the Detroit users

George E. Ward, attorney for the suburban communities, explained how Detroit was found to have overcharged suburban customers $7.4 million a year and $37.1 million over five years.

"The trial court was held to have misapplied the 'cost of capital' method In finding 'not unreasonable' Detroit's practice of making a charge for return on investment amounting to 9 percent of the value of all capital plant and equipment used in serving the suburbs," Ward sald.

"ONLY 35 percent of the suburbanused plant is owned by Detroit free and clear. The remaining 65 percent is financed by existing mortgages bearing an average interest of only 4.5 percent. the state of the stars to Detroit on the state of the person of the star of th

"If 9 percent is deemed to be a annual return, then the approximate 17.6 percent actually charged each year on Detroit's equity in the suburban-used plant includes an overcharge of 8.6 percent per year. The dollar value of Detroit's equity in the suburbanused plant is approximately $86.4 million, taken from Detroit's own financial

"In collecting an excessive 8.6 per-, cent of that value. Detroit overcharged the suburbs $7.4 million each year, a total of $37.1 million over five years."

MEANWHILE, Oakland County Drain Commissioner George Kuhn announced a new package of bills would be introduced in the Michigan Senate giving suburbs a voice on a regional water board.

All seven members of the Detroit Water Board — four city residents and three suburbanites - are selected by Mayor Coleman Young and can be dismissed at any time.

Kuhn cited the Vista Disposal Co. bribery charges, currently being tried in federal court, as "a major scandal which demands a restructuring of the Detroit water and sewer system to provide for suburban representation in the management of the system. The Vista trial is a disgrace for the city of Detroit," Kuhn said.

Korean trip arouses patriotism

By Sandra Armbruster

The "Land of Morning Calm" was anything but when Rosemary and Mike Miller landed in Korea four days after an airliner carrying 269 people was shot down while enroute to that coun-

Buoying the Millers during their rocky journey was the thought of seeing daughter Dawn Perreault and her husband, Mark, who have been stationed in Korea for two years.

The Millers, who have been active in the Wayne-Westland school district and founders of a group called Taxpayers United Together, were two from a group of 600 parents of military personnel selected through a drawing for a "Reunion in Korea" program. The program, sponsored by Korea's National Tourism Corporation, provides travel at a reduced cost.

"EVERYTHING is go," Perreault told her mother during a trans-Pacific phone call following the airliner tragedy. Perreault and her husband planned to join the Millers on the 11-day tour of Korea.

The kids were more apprehensive than we were," Rosemary Miller said, noting that four of their six children still live at home. "My mother had a hard time with our going, but we weren't shook up.

Dawn and Mark." Still, the Millers bought insurance

We knew that we would be seeing and "left all information" with relatives - just in case.

They were scheduled to fly on Northwest Orient while other members of the group were to fly out of Seattle on Korean Air. At the last minute, the Korean Air flights were cancelled, and everyone packed into the Northwest

Nearly 24 hours later and after being rerouted in mid-flight, the passengers landed in Seoul. They ran out of food on the plane, experienced turbulence and ran into 125-mile-per-hour head winds.

THE DAY AFTER the Millers arrived, an altar was set up in the airport for a memorial service.

"It was upsetting to them. Everyone" there was upset, including the Americans," she said.

Some of the bodies and wreckage were found while the Millers were in Korea. At the same time, she said, tour guldes tried to keep spirits high. It was in the jokes from the Korçan tour guides that tones of bitterness crept

She said one riddle asked, "What would happen if a Russian pilot was shot down?"

"Who cares?" was the cryptic reply. But it was at the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) separating north from south Korea that Miller said she realized what life was like in that country.

"I came back feeling very patriotic,"

"After hearing and seeing war in pictures, there you see the real thing. There is a constant threat. I think every American should go there."

BEFORE ENTERING the DMZ, the Millers were required to sign papers acknowledging the risk they were taking and stating that they wouldn't hold the U.S. or Korean governments responsible for anything that may hap-

"We weren't allowed to make facial or other gestures of any kind," she said. "We had to stay as calm as possible.

"So we kept our hands folded because .Americans talk with their hands."

While in the DMZ, the Millers climbed the "Freedom Tower" on the South Korean side to view a building called "Propaganda City." The multistory-structure in northern Korea has an impressive facade, but actually is only 18 feet wide and houses only one office, according to Miller.

"Near the DMZ there is a heavy sense of tension. We had to show our passports all over again," she said. "The Koreans know what war is, and they're trying to rebuild their country."

THERE WERE other things the Millers noticed: The bazaars, men and women using their heads to carry large parcels, women beating their clothes clean by the side of a stream. Also notable to the Millers, who visited an industrial complex, temples and a folk village on their tour, was the Korean determination not to waste anything from every available bit of farmland to their own time.

"Traffic is unbelievable," Miller noted, adding that the streets are beautiful with flowers everywhere.

Miller said she came home "glad to be an American."

"I got used to the military check points. I got used to the body searches. But I couldn't get used to the guys with guns," she said. "You see trenches and blockades throughout all of Korea."

The Koreans throw Americans kisses, she added.

"They know they need us there."

Councilman blasts call for state probe

By Mary Klemic staff writer

Mayor Charles Pickering's call for a county and state investigation into the use of some $900,000 by Mayor Thomas Taylor's administration for a private industrial development project is just an attempt by Pickering to "sling mud all over this city," a Westland council

Pickering said Tuesday that he has asked for an investigation by the state Department of Treasury, the attorney general's office and the Wayne County prosecutor's office.

The mayor said Taylor's administration spent funds for road and sewer development for a planned Edward Industrial Park even though the project was aborted.

The park was to be located on a 148acre site west of the C&O Railroad tracks between Ford and Cherry Hill Roads. The funds were spent between April 1980 and May 1981 as the city's share for road and sewer development.

Money was taken from Westland's state Department of Transportation funds, from a Hunter-Leng drain fund and from the city general operations

"It appears that monies were advanced for the benefit of the developer without proper security or basic protection for the city," Pickering said. "All I know is $900,000 was spent on a project we had no control over."

But Councilman A. Kent Herbert called the investigation an attack

"I think that's pretty funny," said Herbert, who is a council candidate this year. "It's pretty obvious to me, with his timing on this thing. He's slinging mud all over this city and everybody associated with it."

UNDER AGREEMENTS with the original developer, Westland resident Edward Spisak (no relation to Taylor's former administrative, assistant, Andrew Spisak), the city would assist in the development of the property by installing a road and sanitary and storm sewers from Ford Road to Cherry Hill Road. The total estimated cost of the project was $2 million. This was divided into two phases, according to City Attorney Jeffrey Jahr. Spisak was to be responsible for the entire cost of Phase I (for the first 1,000 feet south of Ford Road) and was to share the cost of Phase II (the remainder) equally with the city. Jahr said that, according to cost estimates, Spinak would have been responsible for about $1,150,000 and the city would have been responsible for some

Some $331,000 of Westland's share was intended to be paid from the Hunter-Leng drain funds, with the remainder from department of transportation funds. Spisak's share was to be financed by the creation of a special assessment district and the sale of bonds,

The project was aborted when it was discovered that Spisak didn't have full ownership of the property and the owners refused to agree to the establishment of the special assessment district, Pickering said.

TAYLOR, HERBERT, Glenn Shaw and Charles Bokas were named by Pickering as the "main people involved" in the issue.

Herbert, Shaw and Bokas were Westland finance director, city assessor and city attorney, respectively, at the time of the transactions, according to Pickering. But Herbert said the project was already set up by the time he became finance director in late May 1980.

"All the plans and things had already been laid out," the councilman said.

"He (Pickering) doesn't seem to really know too much about the entire situation. I came in midway through this thing."

Herbert'sald that when he became finance director, he recommended to Taylor that Bokas give a clear recommendation that the city would be protected in the matter. Bokas gave the recommendation. Herbert said. The councilman said he also served a letter of credit "to make sure the city's interest was protected.

There's no basis for this kind of thing," Herbert continued. "He (Pickering) is really bungling around in the dark. That's all he's doing. If he wants to investigate, that's fine. This is no big story.

This is just an attempt to get me." PICKERING SAID "it just happens to be at this time," less than one month before the general election, that he called for the state and county probe into the matter.

"We didn't want to seek an investigation until we knew clearly what the recommendations were," the mayor think I should hold back on asking for an investigation.

"It's my responsibility to ask for the investigation," he continued. "If I sat on it, I would be remiss in my responsibilitles."

In his letter asking for the investigation, Pickering asked that the following questions be examined:

• Were there any violations of state law in the use of transportation department highway funds for the development of property not owned by the City of Westland?

• Is there any evidence of impropriety in the advancing of public funds for the benefit of a private development without adequate security?

• Were the amounts expended for engineering costs excessive in comparison to similar developments, both public and private? Pickering could have conducted his own investigation without contacting the county and state, Herbert said.

"Each person involved in this thing said. Now that we've done that, I don't will respond, and every one will have stacks of evidence showing that he (Pickering) is just running around in the dark," Herbert said. Splaak furnished a required $250,000 letter of credit, but filed sult to enjoin payment when Westland attempted to draw on the letter. Bokos is now representing the city in the lawsuit, which is pending in Wayne County Circuit Court.

IN THE MEANTIME, Westland has secured a new developer for the project, The Forbes Group of Detroit. which has submitted a proposal. Under the proposal, the city immediately will receive $225,000 cash.

"While we have secured a new developer and are taking necessary steps as detailed by our city attorney and city auditor to recoup some of the city's money, I am convinced that there's more to this entire matter than is readily apparent," Pickering said. "The only way we are going to get to the bottom of this is to have an outside investigation."

· 'Clean audit' shows a small fund balance left

By Sandra Armbruster editor

Wayne-Westland schools ended the last fiscal year with a balance of $96,520 in the bank, according to the district's auditing firm of Plante & Moran. Board members heard the results of what Superintendent Dr. Tintothy Dyer called a "clean audit" at Monday night's meeting.

Balancing this year's budget was like "landing a 747 on a coffee table," said John Baracy, assistant superintendent for business and finance in the district.

Pearl Holforty, a partner in the accounting firm, and district administra-tors noted that this is the earliest the board has received a report on expenditures and revenue from the previous year. Holforty credited the condition of the district's financial reports for the early accounting.

The audit report shows that the district spent more money than it received during the 1982-83 school year. Saving the district from a nearly $2 million deficit was its ending fund balance from the previous year of $2.04 million. Money from that fund was used to balance the budget, leaving a fund balance this year of $96,520. ACTUALLY, THAT represents good news, according to Baracy. He said that the administration had projected a balanced budget with $60,537 in expenditures — a figure that would have completely wiped out the fund balance. Holforty recommended that the fund balance be increased, and Baracy agreed with her recommendation to the

"The fund balance can vary from district to district. This time the budget was balanced on zero (fund balance), but we came in a tad higher," Baracy explained. "I'd like to see it at five percent of our total budget or about $3

Baracy said that he realized some people argue that the fund balance should be at zero, but he said that having a fund balance to fall back on has allowed the district to "have reserves to tide us through times like these." He added that the fund balance allowed the district to maintain its programs and alded in its cash flow at a time when there were pemerous cuts in

Efforts to increase the size of the that Dyer has called for district-wide employee participation in cost cutting maneuvers. Those ideas are being evalnated now. Baracy added.

EXPENDITURES for last year were nearly $400,000 under budget. Revenues also came in under budget by about $301,000,

One significant area to come in under budget was that of employee benefits, by about $215,000. Baracy said that reduced unemployment compensation and a downgrading of employees; medical insurance accounted for the reduced spending.

But making negative impacts on the district's revenue picture were property tax levies - nearly $148,000; county special education tax — by $160,000;

Although part of the drop in investment income was due to declining interest rates, Baracy said that the real reason for the decline was $10 million in state aid that was withheld by the

"We didn't have it to invest," Baracy said.

He added that the shortfall in county special education tax revenue could be resolved in two years, once the total cost of the program and the state funding pald have been determined according to a formula.

In presenting the audit, Holforty said that an analysis of the district's revenue shows that the money it received in '83 had the same buying power that it did in 1979. She added that a one mill levy in Dearborn "produces a lot more (revenue) for one student than it does in Wayne-Westland."

THE DISTRICT reaped praise from auditors and board members for its milk and lunch fund operations. The general fund contributed $155,000 to operate the program, less than half the cost to the general fund than in previous years. Baracy said that level is expected to be maintained this year.

Dyer noted that management of the program has been "tightened" while prices were not increased. He said the administration doesn't believe there are many more improvements that can

Other suggestions included better coordination of federal project budgets with the business department and handling of cash receipts.

Baracy said that this will continue to be "a pretty tough year, but we hope this is the last of the really tough years. We again need employee concessions. Last year we balanced the budget on a ràzor's edge:"

Livonia school administrators win 2 percent salary increase

By Dan Vecchioni ataff writer

A 2-percent, across-the-board salary increase for the Livonia school district's 24 non-union supervisors and administrators was approved unanimously Monday by the Board of Education.

The raises, amounting to $19,623, bring the total expenditure for administrative staff salaries for 1983-84 to $952,673. This amount does not include Superintendent George Garver's salary, which will be considered separately by the board.

According to Garver, who recommended the raises to the board, the 2-percent increase conforms with that received by other employee groups in the district and is "in keeping with the prevailing pattern."

Other employee groups include teachers represented by the Livonia Education Association, who earlier this year accepted a wage freeze in exchange for the creation of additional teaching positions; and workers represented by the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, who earlier received a 2-percent raise, according to James Carlson, assistant executive director of the LEA.

The 2 percent is well within the range of what we think is appropriate," Garver told the board in recommending the raises. He added that the supervisors and administrators, though a non-union group, traditionally are handled in "a package salary arrangement."

THE RAISES, retroactive to July 1, average $944 for the 14 administrators and $641 for the 10 supervisors. The average adthe average supervisor's salary is $27,852. (A complete listing of the new salaries may be found at the end of this story.)

The increases were approved two weeks after the board received a completed management study that proposed a salary system that conceivably could lead to salary reductions for most administrators.

According to Nell Meltler of Anderson-Roethle Inc., the Milwaukee-based firm which conducted the study for the district, salary ranges were proposed based upon an Internal equity process (which ranked post-

'The two percent is well within the range of what we think is appropriate.'

- Supt. George Garver

tions) and an external equity process (which compared salaries paid by other districts). "We did juggle positions in the ranges,"

Meltler, said. "In some cases, there was movement up or down in the case was it a severe move." The proposed changes would place 14 administrators into salary ranges that are between 1 and 14 percent lower than their 1982-83 ranges.

Meltler said the study also recommended. that up to four administrative positions be eliminated over the next five years if the district's student enrollment continues to decline.

The positions proposed for elimination include the assistant director of elementary and secondary education (between 1986 and ministrator's salary is now $48,154 while 1988), the assistant director of special services (between 1985 and 1987), the assistant director of personnel (between 1987 and 1988) and, perhaps, one of the assistant directors of operations.

> THE MANAGEMENT report is being reviewed by the finance and personnel committees of the board. The board eventually will have the opportunity to adopt, reject or adopt in part the recommendations made in the report. If adopted in whole or in part, the report would not be implemented before the 1984-85 school year.

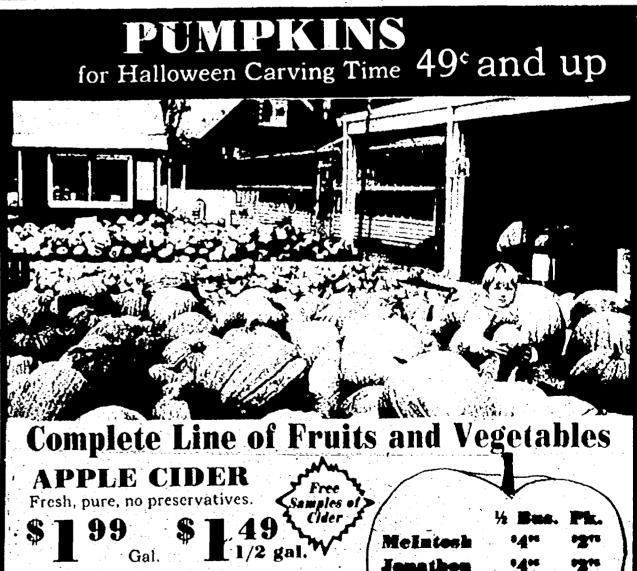

As approved by the board Monday, the new salaries are:

• Assistant superintendents (operations) $58,344, (instruction) $54,085 and (personnel) $53,692.

• Directors (elementary education) $50,859, (secondary education) $49,980, (special services) $46,002, (community education services) $49.872 and (employee relations and benefits) $48,719.

Assistant directors (elementary and secondary education) $44,319, (special services) $42,524, (personnel strvices) $44,945, (operations - two positions) $14,945 and $44,064 and (comptroller) $42,106.

• Supervisors ((ood services) $38,341, (community relations) $31,157, (buildings and grounds) $30,338, (operations) $29,358, (transportation) $$28,307, (purchasing) $26,484, (assistant, buildings and grounds) $27,128, (warehouse) $25,572, $22,053 and (chief payroll bookkeeper) $19,781.

Retreat violates intent of open meetings act

OULD YOU BE willing to drive about 80 miles to East Lansing for discussions on summer tax collections and union con-

That's what the Wayne-Westland school board and eight to 10 administrators had planned to do this weekend. The event was billed as a "board/ cabinet retreat." scheduled for Friday through Sunday at the Kellogg Center of Michigan State Uni-

"It's not fun and games," said John Baracy, as-sistant superintendent for business and finance in the district, which includes a portion of Canton

He said the retreat was planned for an intensive study that "wouldn't be interrupted by phone calls." Under discussion would be all union contracts, summer tax collections, and the district's building and site reserve account.

THOSE ISSUES have been the subject of much controversy. Four school board members were recalled in 1982 because of teacher contracts. An uproar from district residents convinced administrators to abandon a summer tax collection in a pilot project several years ago. And some board members have long urged that more money be funneled into building maintenance and repairs,

So taxpayers in the district as well as members of the news media could have been expected to show an interest in attending the meeting.

By law, they must be allowed to do so, but the decision to hold the meeting so far from the district boundaries thwarts the intent of the state's Open Meetings Act.

According to the act, "All meetings of a public body shall be held in a place available to the general public. All persons shall be permitted to attend any meeting except as otherwise provided in this

It is unreasonable to expect residents to drive to East Lansing to attend the retreat. If they did not want to pay for a hotel, they would face a roundtrip drive of about 160 miles three days in a row.

Jerry Tobias, the youth officer for Southfield Township, said he has received several inquiries

"Ours (intention) was not to deter people from attending, although a substantial portion of the meeting would be closed because of negotiations," said the Rev. W. James LeDuc, president of the LeDuc and Baracy cited problems that had occurred in the past with board members being interrupted during Saturday workshops within the dis-

"(East Lansing) was just far enough away that board members wouldn't be commuting," LeDuc added. "We considered Eastern Michigan University, but we felt that would be defeating the purpose."

WE AGREE THAT there was no malicious intent-in calling the meeting or that the board was up to "fun and games." We know that other boards of education have sometimes held similar meetings, but that doesn't make it right. The education of children is a serious matter, and taxpayers and parents have a right to know what's going on in the

Access to that information is the critical concern here. Because of that concern, the Westland Observer is filing a complaint with the Wayne County prosecuting attorney that the retreat would have violated the Open Meetings Act.

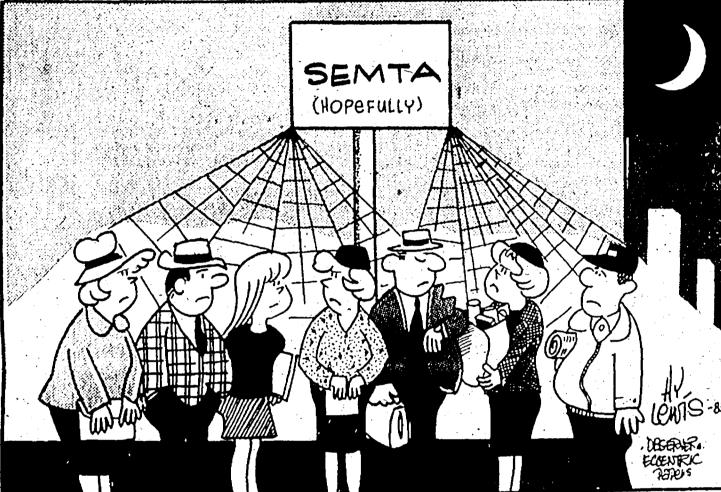

Richard Padzleski, chief of the criminal division of the prosecutor's office, said Wednesday morning that the case would be looked at to determine whether his office would take action.

Later Wednesday morning, the Observer was informed by Dr. Dennis O'Neill, deputy superintendent, that the meeting had been canceled because of the emergency hospitalization of board member, Mat McCusker Tuesday night. O'Neill said that the meeting would be rescheduled if possible for Feb. 10 at the Kellogg Center.

Our concern and sympathy goes out to the McCusker family, but postponing the meeting won't resolve the issue.

Hopefully, the intervening months will give the . board time to reconsider, time to find a location accessible to the people of Wayne-Westland.

Power at Schoolcraft

Phys ed fans come on strong

THE REACTION of the physical education fans was excessive, almost shrill.

Even before the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees had scheduled a special meeting on the campus master plan, 922 people were signing petitions saying "Keep your hands off the auxiliary gym in the Physical Education Building."

Even before the board could hear a presentation on the master plan from two vice presidents, athletic director Maryin Gans was making his pitch for keeping the gym. Prudence suggests you let the VPs present the overall plan before attacking one part

Gans and his supporters came on so strong that, at one point, trustee Paul Y. Kadish glared directly at him and said, "What I hear, from you, Mary, is Look at all alternatives except the auxiliary gym.' Well I'm going to look at all the alternatives." Mery Gens Wow. It's strong stuff when a trustee who has made an 10-year avocation of serving the college, publicly rebukes an administrator like that. GOOD OL' DICK McDowell, Schoolcraft's president for the last two years, put the matter in con-

The community college, which serves northwestern Wayne County, is almost a victim of its own success. The college in the 1960s and '70s added programs even before it had adequate space to house them all.

Then the tax revolt struck in about 1971, and voters began shooting down any building proposal. Folks liked the things Schoolcraft was doing, a survey showed — they just didn't care to pay more money to house them properly. Said the master

'The college is in desperate need for a large data lab space . . . . The college has need of auditorium-sized facilities in order to support some of our Liberal Arts programming and the cultural development of our students. We are in need of adequate studio space . . . . We also note the inadequacies of these houses (along Haggerty south of campus) for such important programs as Women's Resource Center and the Child Care Center."

Tim Richard

INSTEAD, THE ISSUE degenerated into a question of whether the auxiliary gym, which is allegedly receiving less use as phys ed credit hours decline. should be converted into a data processing lab and business offices.

Actually, Gans and his fans have a pretty good case. Phys ed strikes me as one of the properly housed programs on campus. To take over the auxiliary gym for a much-needed data lab is like robbing Peter to pay Paul.

The ideal answer is new construction — either a brand new building or an addition to something like Applied Sciences.

That would likely require a public vote, to which two trustees say nay --- Kadish, because he chaired three other such campaigns and is tired of getting his very useful brains beat in, and Rosina Raymond, who cites 13 percent unemployment out there.

Well, if the other five board members decide to go to the voters, no one would be better to run the millage campaign than Marv Gans. Seriously, the AD is one heckuva fund-raiser, has wide community contacts, has demonstrated he can play hardball politics and whip up the sports writers.

His committee should be the 922 persons who signed the petition to save the auxiliary gym, along with anyone in the community who thinks it's important to have adequate facilities for computer

The property tax bite would be minor — but that will be the subject of another column.

DID YOU KNOW that Lake Superior - the deepest, largest, clearest and, many believe, the most beautiful of all the Great Lakes - has been a "trapped" lake? Geological shifting and upheavals caused by early glaciers held it back behind the St. Mary's River rapids at the Soo, and it has remained static, cold and isolated to this day.

on the child's hands. "Why do I have to do this?"

The slightly flustered woman responded, "Because if you get lost, we will need your fingerprints.'

Left unsaid was that if the little girl were ever abducted and murdered, her fingerprints may be the only means to identify her body.

School districts in suburban Detroit have been fingerprinting children throughout this year. For example, Livonia schools will take part in the project through December.

It's a simple procedure. Parents must sign permission slips before a child is fingerprinted.

After the fingerprinting is completed, the only set of prints is given to the parent or guardian. No copies are made for any governmental agency. The fingerprinting takes a few minutes and is accomplished with a minimum of inconvenience.

A MISSING child is perhaps a parent's greatest fear. The statistics are grim. An estimated 50,000 children disappear in the United States every year. About 5,000 children are found murdered. Of those,

2,000 are never identified. "The child fingerprint identification program is an attempt to change those statistics," said Carol Strom, president of the Livonia Board of Education.

Anyone who lived in the metropolitan Detroit area in 1976-77 needs no reminder of what can happen to missing children. During a 13-month period, four Oakland County children were abducted

Those murders focused national attention on this area. The killer or killers were never found.

What the subsequent investigation uncovered was almost more disturbing than the murders. During that time, school officials in six Oakland communities asked children if a man had tried to pick them up during the previous year. Elementary and junior high children reported 700 abduction attempts.

give them credit for. "Parents must keep the doors to communication open so they can freely discuss this subject with their children."

Old-time dances — country style and ballroom

EVERY YEAR about this time, when the frost is on the pumpkin and the corn is in the shock, The Stroller contracts a spell of homesickness.

He'd like to turn back the pages and live again in the era when hayrides out to the country hotels for a good chicken dinner and an evening of all sorts of dancing were the vogue.

There was nothing like the old-fashioned square dances for an evening of fun. And as he sits in front of his television these evenings and watches some of the outlandish performances of what they call modern dancing, he can almost hear the "caller" bellow out, "Swing your partner . . . turn to the left . . . turn to the right," concluding with "All hands

They were evenings of great fun, but they have become only memories. Now, in some places, there is a move to bring those days back by teaching square dancing at some of the municipal recreation

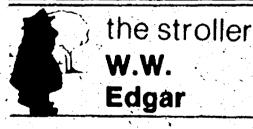

WHILE SQUARE dancing was the thing a halfcentury ago, there also was some of the most beautiful ballroom dancing one ever would want to see.

There was the old-fashioned waltz, one of the nicest of all dances. And when they promoted such things as prize waltzes, it was a treat to watch young couples glide across the floor.

Dance contests adhered strictly to rules. When one entered the contest, he had to have the heels of his shoes covered with chalk and then checked at the finish to see if at any time his heels touched the Back in the days when dancing — the real dancing — was the height of an evening out, the cities had all manner of dance halls. When The Stroller reached Detroit more than a half-century back, there were some outstanding ballrooms.

Who could forget the Graystone, the Grande, Ori-ole Terrace or Webster Hall — the latter now one of the main buildings of Wayne State University?

The major hotels sponsored dancing with the country's leading bands — Guy Lombardo, Ted Lewis, Henry Mancini, Bob Chester, Gene Goldkette and Lawrence Welk.

These dances always were treats, and even when the Huck family owned Westwood Gardens on Michigan Avenue, it was a real treat just to sit and watch the two-steppers and waltzers dance to the strains of big name bands.

THERE WERE other outstanding dances besides the waltz.

The two-step was the favorite of the younger folks because it was faster. Another favorite was the schottische, where you took three steps and then

The real fun was to attend Hungarian weddings. At these functions, the bride always returned to the hall wearing an apron and accepted gifts of money. when you danced with her. It was the rule in those days that the dancers helped set up the young couples in housekeeping.

These dances were typically called "hoe-downs" and were real fun. They are gone, possibly never to

There are others that are only memories. There are the tap dancing in singles and soft shoe dancing, still a treat when you watch Gene Kelly dancing to the strains of "Singin' in the Rain."

What a pleasure it would be to have those days

High tech magazines give latest information

Regular readers of this column have asked me where I get my information on high technology, Basically I use the three R's - research, reading

Research includes library references as well as interviews with key informants. Reading is probably my greatest resource because I always seem to have my nose in a book or magazine which address-, es some aspect of high technology. Lastly, reflection is what I do when I am preparing myself to write the column.

NUMEROUS SCIENCE and tech oriented magarines are on the newsstand. I have found several to be invaluable with up to date information. These nclude: High Technology, Technology Illustrated, cience 83 and Discover.

Changes in science and technology are coming aster and faster these days. Science news is outdated almost as soon as it is reported. If you want to keep up with newest developments, you may want to subscribe to one or more of these magatines. In most cases, local libraries also subscribe o these periodicals.

All four magazines are less than three years old. They were published during a boom in the magazine industry when many new periodicals hit the newsstand in an attempt to offer science and technical information to the general public. Not all sur-

ONE OF THE first to appear was Discover. This Time-Life publication is billed as "America's leading science magazine." The writing is down-to-earth and jargon-free, similar to Time

Discover has regular departments on personallles, news items, essays and profiles of science people. In addition, each issue has reviews of books and exhibitions.

Recent articles include a feature on acid rain, super antibodies, the computer as scientist and Igh-tech wine making. Subscription price for 12 saves is $22 per year, or $2 per issue at the newsfund. Send subscriptions to: Discover, Time-Life Bldg., 541 N. Fairbanks Ct., Chicago, IL. 60611.

SCIENCE 83, also first appearing in 1980, is pubished by the American Association for the Adancement of Science.

A general interest magazine geared toward a colige-educated lay audience, Science 83 includes naterial on developments in science and their im-their work, as well as reviews of books, movies and television programs.

Recent feature articles appeared on such widely diverse topics as Margaret Mead, "friendly robots" and a special report on the Pentagon's next super weapon.

For a subscription, write: Science 83, Subscription Dept., PO Box 10778, Des Moines, IA. 50347, Subscription price for 10 issues is $15, or $2 per issue at the newsstand.

ARTICLES ON technology for educated but scientifically untrained readers appear in Technology Illustrated. Articles explore the how of innovation and interventions without scientific largon.

Recent issues included articles on the process to change classic black and white films to color, bringing sunlight to underground living and working spaces, a profile of Atari's chief scientist of video games, and robots with a sense of touch.

Subscription price for 12 issues is $18 per year, or $2 per issue at the newsstand. Subscriptions should be sent to: Technology Illustrated, P.O. Box 2804, Boulder, CO. 80321.

THE PREMIER magazine, High Technology, has taken the lead as the most sophisticated among the four leading science and technology journals.

On occasion, articles are somewhat overly technical, but the magazine is liberally sprinkled with vivid grapics which assist the reader in comprehending the article's main points.

High Technology appeals to a wide readership made up of businesspeople, scientists, industrialists, educators and consumers. Regular departments include business, microcomputers, book reviews, resources, stocks and investments.

Recent feature articles have appeared on optical computing, commercial enterprises in space, genetic engineering and earth-scanning satellites.

Subscription price for 12 issues is $21 per year, or $2 per issue at the news stand. Send subscriptions to: High Technology, P.O. Box 2808, Boulder,

Enrollment count jumps at Madonna

Fall enrollment is up 12 percent at Madonna College, Livonia - "way over our projections," according to a college official.

"It is due, no doubt, to low tultion, our location, pight classes and the academic programs," said Dr. Edward D. Meyer, doan for administrative ser-

The college board last spring froze tuition at $65 per credit, the lowest of any independent four-year liberal arts college in Michigan, the dean said.

"Our predictions last July were for an approximate 3 percent increase," Meyer said. Madonna will accommodate students through careful schedu-

American Cruise and Pershing II missiles scheduled to be deployed in Europe in a few weeks are part of a first strike policy that makes nuclear war not just thinkable, but likely. These Cruise and Pershing II missiles are a dangerous escalation of the arms race. The Soviet Union will have these same new weapons in a few years unless there is a Freeze now. We oppose these weapons because we want our children to grow up in a world free from the threat of annihilation. We support a mutual verifiable Freeze on the testing, production and deployment of all nuclear weapons. We call for an Immediate halt to the deployment of any new missiles in Europe by either the United States or the Soviet Union. The people of Europe do not want these new weapons. On October 22 with a ratly at Clark Park, we will join them and others throughout the world in telling governments that these new weapons are a threat to our very survival. Please join us. The third featured speaker will be David E. Smith, president of the metro Detroit chapter of the World Future Society. He will speak at 11 a.m. Saturday.

THE IDEA of a futures exposition belongs to organizing chairwoman Sylvia Vukmirovich, a Schoolcraft counselor and bereer planning and placement counselor.

Toffler was chosen as headliner, according to Student Activities coordinator Patrick Newman, because of his knowledge of the entire range of future's speculation.

Bill Heise, another counselor at Schoolcraft, has organized more than 30 exhibits in such areas as industry, education, health. leisure time, communications, robotics. computers, transportation and alternate energies. Exhibits are free and open to the public.

1976 as the Student Activities Department main speaker during the winter semester.

Speaking before a full house in the Physical Ed main gym, he stressed the plight of modern industrial society, predicting a rapid change in the industrial system.

Experiences working on an auto assembly line, as a truck driver, a punch press operator and a foundry millwright profoundly affected Toffler. He went on to work for several industry-oriented publications, and after his move to Washington, D.C., in 1957 supported himself as a free lance writer for periodicals such as New Republic, Fortune and Horizon.

His work at Fortune, as associate editor, led him into the world of speculative research about the future state of the working world as well as the world of ever changing cultural mores.

"Future Shock" has been published in more than 50 countries and sold an estimated six million copies. Toffler recalled, "I coined the term to describe the shattering stress and disorienation that we induce In individuals by subjecting them to too much change in too short a time.'

Toffler's second best seller, "The Third Wave," published in mid-1980, expands on his premise of change introducing a third wave (unlike the second, which started with the industrial revolution) in which heavy industry is increasingly replaced by less centralized but more sophisticated high-technology industrial products such as computers, lasers, high-tech optics.

He speaks of the future of "electronic cottages" in which more and more work is done at home on computers and related

He envisions a "prosumption" economy in which workers produce more and more goods for their own consumption as opposed to consumption by others.

LT. COL. SPRINGER, who is due to be a part of one of the next Space Shuttle misslon, was selected as an astronaut candidate by NASA in May 1980.

What do you have in common with Clara Barton, Alexander Graham Bell, Susan B. Anthony and 'Thomas Jefferson? All these people were independent thinkers who happened to share a common faith. A faith that today is practiced by 1000 congregations across the continent. A faith that doesn't separate religion from daily life; that provides a community which encourages freedom of thought and room to grow. A faith that welcomes people from diverse religious backgrounds. And offers a spiritual tradition of hope that celebrates our individuality. Maybe this faith of Dr. Albert Schweitzer, Whitney Young, Louisa May Alcott, Joseph Priestley and people down the street from where you live is something you'd like to explore.

Maybe not. Think about it. If. you'd like to visit a Unitarian Universalist congrega-

Petitioners want Pursell to fight MX

About 10,000 signatures on petitions asking for his opposition to the MX missile were delivered last week to the Plymouth office of U.S. Congressman Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth.

About 35 people from communities in the 2nd Congressional District were on hand when the petitions were handed to office personnel. They came from Adrian, Hillsdale, and Ann Arbor as well as Plymouth and Livonia.

The group had a model MX missile on display in front of Pursell's office. Seventy hellum balloons were released.

symbolized one million of the $70.2 million in taxes that would be taken from the 2nd District if the $27 billion missile system is approve by Congress, sald Johanne Fechter. She served as a representative of the Peace Center in Livonia on the Second District Emergency Campaign to stop the MX;

The group wanted Pursell to go back to his earlier position against the first strike missile.

The House Appropriations Committee, of which Pursell is a member, is expected to vote on the 1984 Defense from the mock missile. Each balloon Appropriations bill this week. Pursell has indicated he will vote for the controversial MX in committee to give President Reagan the bargaining chip he wants in his negotiations with the Soviet Union.

Cheerleader coach 'disappointed'

Livonian sues Panthers

By Sherry Kehan staff writer

When Susan Topolewski of Livonia signed a contract last year to choreograph and direct a cheerleading squad for the Michigan Panthers, she was delighted and excited.

The Bentley High School graduate announced that her squad would do dances that would be different and more interesting than those done by other cheerleading groups.

But delight turned to disillusionment. Topolewski, 25, recently filed suit in Wayne County Circult Court seeking damages in excess of $10,000 from the Panthers and two of its employees. While the lawsuit uses the mandatory language requesting relief at an amount in excess of $10,000, to be determined by the court, Topolowski is seeking Panthers attorney Larry Winokur stated that "we haven't been served a copy of the complaint." He added: "We don't want to comment until we have a chance to review the complaint and talk to everyone involved."

Topolowski is also asking for a temporary restraining order to prevent the 1983 U.S. Football League Champions from using her dance routines without her permission.

The case, filed Oct. 17, will go before Judge Sharon Finch. A hearing on a motion for a preliminary injunction regarding the dance routines will be heard Friday, Oct. 28.

The suit alleges the Panthers breached Topolewski's contract in at least nine different ways, that the organization subjected her to sexual harassment, and generally discriminated against her and the 40 cheerleaders on the basis of their

Her complaints range from being frequently called "Madam" by Panthers publicity director Jerry Risell, and once being told by him she looked like something out of "The Biggest Little Whorehouse in Texas," to being left in a Chicago hospital with no provision to come home after she collapsed from heat exhaustion and stress at a game with the Chicago Blitz.

Kisell is no longer with the Panther organization. She also claims that the Panthers failed to provide her squad with rehearsal places, forcing the women to practice in an alley behind a K mart store and in a bar that had gone out of business.

IN ADDITION, she believes the Panthers treated her and the cheerleaders consistently with disrespect. In a press release she stated, "the failure to take the cheerleaders to the championship game was one very obvious example of their attitude that the cheerleaders were second class citizens."

Topolewski said in an interview that "I am more disappointed than angry." She added that the Panthers didn't appreciate the cheerleaders, who

"They were just there," she said. "They didn't push to provide security at games. Several of the girls had money stolen while they were on the field. I had my wallet stolen. They had guards all over, but not at our dressing room door.

They didn't provide a building for practice. ulte a few of the squad were very disappointed. I think it's just a shame.

"I think they wanted cheerleaders, but the women were not treated as women should be treated. They didn't get much in return, not even respect. Between the halves, they sent down to the 40 of us a plate of sliced oranges. The press got dinner.

We were not allowed to perform at half time.

'I think they wanted cheerleaders, but the women were not treated as women should be treated. They didn't get much in return, not even respect.'

——Susan Topolewski

They brought in paid performers. We were unpaid." "If you get something for free, you don't think much of them," said Topolewski's lawyer, Anita McIntyre. "The girls practiced three days a week, but they didn't let them do a whole number at halftime. I doubt that Dallas treats the Cowgirls that

She said that Topolewski was in a small room off the field in Chicago with the temperature at 124 degrees when she collapsed and was taken to go to an emergency room at a local hospital.

TOPOLEWSKI is a nurse, teacher and dance exercise instructor. She works as a pediatric nurse at Children's Hospital, and teaches a nursing assistant and a home health care course at the Livonia Career Center. She also does an exercise show on Cable TV, and teaches dance exercise at Nitro before the nightclub opens.

She has been a finalist in the Miss Michigan World USA contest and was in the court of Miss Michigan Peach Queen.

Topolewski said she received no salary for her work with the cheerleaders. "The payment was supposed to be in other things, like a trip to away games," she said. Mostly the experience was "to forward me in my career as a choreographer."

come an inner ache. Questions about society, values, and our threatened world can turn into a gnawing helplessness. Day after day it chips at us. What can be done? Is there any antidote for anxiety? Life isn't always easy or pleasant. No one told us it would be. When Jesus sald, "I'll never leave you or forsake you," He's recognizing the presence of anxiety. But he helps us face squarely, deal with itgs causes, and move beyond its power. He offers Himself and His resources to sustain ue, and help us grow in every situation of Life.

Anxiety has been called "the disease of our age." No wonder! The desire for success, popularity, and status can be-

The Plymouth church was organized in 1933 at the conclusion of a nine-week tent crusade at the corner of Starkweather and Spring streets. Starting with a nucleus of 20 people, the membership now stands at 435. After several temporary sites, a lot at the corner of Holbrook Avenue and Pearl streets was given to the church in 1936 and a new building was erected. Additions over the years include a basement unit, parsonage and educational facilities known as New Horizons. Total acreage is now 15.9 acres.

Nation needs a peace academy

Conflict is inevitable. It arises despite mutual interest, unity of purpose or shared goals. It is most intense and desructive when aims are the most

Many of us ignore tension or run away from conflict in a deisre for peace at any price. Just as often we turn conflict into a fight we hope to win. Everyone needs skills for coping with conflict. With methods of coping comes confidence the parties and the situation will be improved by honestly facing facts. Several colleges and universities have programs in conflict resolution and, management. Wisdom has accumlated in response to industrial tensions, international problems, and more ordinary human relations in family life. In addition to academic centers there are programs such as training people for diplomatic service.

Yes. A national peace academy was proposed 28 years ago and stands a good chance of actually being born this year. Both Michigan senators and sevamong 153 co-sponsors.

A peace academy can become a finding out what really worked to end, hightly repsected center for scholarship and training. People invovled in peace learning can be both a symbol and national purpose and a practical asset all through society. Imagine the visibility of peace if the academy had the finest facilities of any educational enterprise in the country.

IMAGINE alumni holding important positions all through government and business of those from the war college for high ranking military officers? Teachers in all the social sciences could study at the center for wisdom about human relations.

Dreams diminish during the legislative process. Amendments reflect shortsighted concerns of current fears. In the long perspective, the peace academy could lead us beyond mere hand wringing when conventional weapons result in downing a civilian airliner and beyond standoffs regarding chemical and nuclear weaponry.

Legislators need to know our feelings when it comes to crucial funding decisions. More than that, we need to converse with each other to create a national climate giving prestige to people and programs pursuing peace, Conflict resolution and management deserves the highest priority for the sake of all aspects of our society. A national peace academy can help us live productively with inevitable conflict.

How a lady alone does it

At the Fontainebleau (sigh!) and dining alone (gasp!)

t's 8 p.m. at the Fontainebleau Hotel, a glamorous hotel on Miami Beach, but it could be any hotel anywhere in the world. If you are a vacationer or a business traveler who travels alone, you will recognize this moment, especially if you are a woman. It is time for dinner, but the dining rooms of the world don't seem to be set up for people travelling alone.

There are several eating areas in this beautiful renovated hotel - on the terrace, around the pool, in the lower lobby, discos, lobby bars, coffee shops, dining rooms. The outdoor eating places are closed now, so I really have four choices: the dining room, the disco-cum-steak house, the coffee shop, or my room.

Many single women eat alone in their room because they feel uncomfortable dining out alone, but in most cases that is a mistake — an expensive lonely mistake. The coffee shop is al-. ways safe, of course, but what if you want a nice dinner with the wine and ambience that only comes with an elegant dining room?

Most of us are experienced enough when it comes to visiting an expensive restaurant with a man or with a group of people. A thousand small fears interfere when we think of going to such a place alone. Will I feel out of place? Will I be lonely? Am I dressed right? Is it too expensive? Will I know how to order from the wine list, how to tip. . . , how to handle the maitre d'? . . . etc.

1-of-a-kind traveler Iris Jones contributing travel editor

Most of these are small surface details, meaningless fears. Get over them and you will be able to enjoy the food, music, ambience, wine, service - all the things that you deserve as much as any couple or group enjoying a dining

HERE ARE A few tips. Dress up a little, in something simple enough to make you feel comfortable and dressy enough to make you feel part of the ambience of the room. A skirt and blouse, or a simple dress, with high

Don't say, "Oh well, it doesn't matter," and go in your slacks. Your goal should be to make yourself as comfortable psychologically as possible. This probably doesn't mean "dressing up to the nines." It is only a dinner, after all not a wedding. Check out all the choices. The Fountainebleu has a steak-cum-bar room with booths and mirrored walls. Later in the night it will be a disco. I look in there, but I decide that I will feel more -alone in that intimate, dark aimosphere than somewhere else. I can always come back if there is nothing bet-

The lobby has an open bar area where you can drink, and order small fast-food meals or appelizers while looking out the window at the view. Very tempting, but I don't really want to be alone in a lobby bar. It feels too lonely. The Dining Galleries, visible through a glass wall, tempt me, but will I be comfortable in there?

I can see the room through the glass in a flicker of lights. One step takes me to the door, where a menu is posted so I know what I am in for financially. Two steps take me to the reservation desk. I ask if I can take another four steps and see the dining room itself.

THE MAIN GALLERY Is a gallery of lights, crystal chandeliers, candles, gleaming glasses and mirrors, flowers and fruit plied high on a table, lighted busts of marble and fake bronze, soft music and the quiet rumble of voices over the sound of forks and china.

Many single women eat alone in their room because they feel uncomfortable dining out alone, but in most cases that is an expensive lonely mistake.

What's really involved at this moment for most women is this: if I go in there alone, will I feel like a fool? One thing I learned long ago is that feeling like a fool, like any other minor fallure, is the most painful but at least important thing that can ever happen to you in your life.

I ask for a table. One will not be available for half an hour. I sit down and order a glass of wine. That is a good idea, because suddenly I feel very comfortable and at home in this elegant dining room.

Life has so many times when you don't feel good about yourself, and a few well-deserved moments when you feel just fine. For all those moments when we are too old or too young, too fat, too unfashionable, there is another moment on the edge of a beautiful dining room, waiting to be seated.

I FEEL perfectly at home and comfortable, knowing that I am dressed appropriately in my simple dress and high-heeled shoes, that I know how to order from both the menu and the wine list and that I can enjoy and be amused by the ambience created to impress me, as well as by the black tie maitres d'hotel pacing pompously with their hands behind their backs.

I sign for the wine and leave a dollar tip as the maltre'd leads me to a table up a few stairs behind the plane and violin. At that moment, the almost predictable feeling of deflation arrives.

I am alone, a woman, and I am seated at a table for two on the narrow raised gallery next to the service table. I try not to look at the crumbs on the floor, to look instead at the violins, but I am a little angry, the glorious moment of self-esteem dulled even as I look around and realize that in this dining room there is really no other place for me.

SINGLES are a minority. Dining rooms are set up for couples and groups. Maitre'd's and waiters are trained to be courteous and obliging, but they are also used to couples, groups, and men. Should I ask for another table? I decide that I am being paranoid and that I will enjoy my din-order two appetizers, a dessert and half a bottle of wine. A good dining room is a sensory experience, not just the taste, but the dull roar of diners' voices, the sound of music and laughter. I was given a single rose as I entered the room, and I enjoy the texture of the rose between my fingers.

When dinner is over. I pause briefly at the lounge which is now a disco. Once again, uncertainty overcomes me. I am older than the other people in the room. Will I be out of place, uncomfortable? Being socially brave is something that grows on you, however, so I sit at the bar and order a drink, just to get the feel of it.

There may still be times when I will settle for the coffee shop or room service, but my general philosophy is this: why hide in your room and let the couples have all the fun. A hotel is your home, and you can get up and go back to your bed-book-and-television set anytime you feel like it.

Popular: bill to cut unemployment tax

By Tim Richard staff writer

The senators held a public hearing, and everyone supported the bill.

"We readily admit there were conflicts among employers," K mart's Robert Stevenson told two members of the State Senate Labor Committee Monday in Southfield.

But now both camps of employers, along with organized labor, are supporting a bill which will reduce unemployment compensation taxes $111 million over the next two years.

"It is my devout hope most of those dollars will be invested in Michigan," sald Labor Committee Chairman Philip O. Mastin, D-Pontiac. He said his Senate Bill 499 "will move expeditiously through the Legislature," predicting Senate action next week.

. The bill has bipartisan support. A prime co-sponsor of the House version, for example, is Rep. Jack Kirksey, R-

THE "TWO CAMPS" which Stevenson referred to are 1) employers with a 'negative balance' in the unemployment compensation fund, such as the auto companies with heavy layoffs, and 2) those with a "positive balance" such as K mart, Kellogg, Sears and Amway. Working through the Economic Alliance of Michigan, a group of 85 corporate executives and labor leaders, they compromised their differences, presenting Mastin's committee with a united front and no opposition during a one-hour hearing.

That satisfied Mastin, who has all the controversy he can handle because he faces a Nov. 22 recall election over his vote in favor of the state personal inrome tax increase.

As sponsor of SB 499, Mastin will. have his name on legislation that will reduce taxes for 45 percent of the Michigan, payrolls hardest hit by the hree-year recession.

"HISTORICALLY," said David C. Collier, a vice president and group executive of General Motors Corp., 'states used to borrow money interestfree to meet unemployment comp claims during a recession.

"But Congress in 1982 made the states' debts subject to interest at 10 percent," Collier said. Michigan found itself with a $2.2 billion debt, about $640 million of it subject to interest.

Last December, following the 1982 election, the Michigan Legislature levled a "solvency tax" to pay off the interest. It fell on "negative balance" employers. and said 'here's how we're going to pay it off.' Congress (in spring of 1983) reacted affirmatively and said we will reward you with a 1 percent reduction in the interest rate and a lengthening of the time period you have to pay it off." Of the $111 million in savings over two years. Mastin said, $32 million will be in interest charges. The other $79 million will be in deferring payments for 1983-4 to 1985-6.

Others supporting SB 499 were Thomas E. Metevier for Chrysler Corp., David Zurvalec of the Michigan Manufacturers Association and John Farnham of the Detroit chapter of Associated General Contractors.

THE ECONOMIC Alliance resolved differences between "negative balance" employers, who wanted the tax levied as lightly as possible, and "positive balance" employers, who wanted the debt paid off as quickly as possible.

"Labor was reassured that this proposal will not be utilized to secure any other changes in the unemployment compensation system," according to the Alliance's summary.

The solvency tax rate will be 0.5 percent for 1983 and 1 percent for 1984. Thereafter, the rate will be set by the Michigan Employment Security Commission according to a formula. The debt is expected to be paid off by the end of 1986.

"We never really recovered from the 1974-5 oil crisis," said Ken Morris, region 1B director of the United Auto Workers union. "The real cruncher was the 10 percent interest penalty imposed by Congress. Everyone is affected not just industry."

The UAW leader from Oakland County praised the Economic Alliance as "a very good, sound thing. Within that structure, there is discussing not just blarney."

NEVERTHELESS, management and labor found a chance to cross swords softly over the side issue of whether Michigan's costs of doing business are too high.

Questioned by Sen. Doug Cruce, R-Troy, GM's Collier complained that the No. 1 auto maker's uneployment comp costs per worker will rise from $560 in 1983 to $981 in 1985.

"Michigan's costs are significantly higher than other states. It has an inhibiting impact on employers who consider investing in Michigan. The burden of unemployment comp and workers' comp is a tremendous hindrance to increasing economic activity," Collier added.

Morris replied that southern states, which have lower costs, have a different problem. "I was on a trip to Mississippl and read newspaper stories in different locations about their education systems," he said. "Their education system is a negative factor in drawing industry."

Robert Queller, vice president and executive director of Citizens Research Council, added that a Purdue University study done for Indiana showed Michigan ranked "relatively favorably to 14 other locations". in business taxes, though Michigan's unemployment and workers comp costs are high. IN A POST-HEARING interview, Mastin said Michigan has taken steps to hold down business costs in three

One is the single business tax, which lowered business taxes as a percentage of total state revenue from more than 40 percent to somewhere in the 20s.

Sportsmen resigned to license fee hikes

By Lem Mesee outdoors writer

Michigan sportsmen are resigned to seeing their hunting and fishing licenses fees rise. But they are resisting other changes being considered by the state Department of Natural Resources as it seeks to raise revenue.

Of 20 changes being proposed in "trial balloon" meetings around the state, four are being opposed in surveys of outoors persons, according to Art Dittmar, a regional leader in the Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

Sportsmen are divided 50-50 on whether the state should end the husband-wife fishing license. All other 49 states in the Union sell individual fish-

'Don't look at it as an extra cost," sald Dittmar last week at a meeting of the Four Seasons Fishing Club in western Wayne County. "Look at it as Michigan's getting $475,000 in federal aid because federal aid is based on the nubmers of licenses sold."

His prediction: The Legislature will require separate fishing licenses for spouses.

FOUR PROPOSALS are running into still opposition, Dittmar reported: • Eliminating of the senior citizen reduced fee fishing license. DNR estimates this change would raise $8.7 million in revenue over six years. .

• Lowering the firearm deer license age from 14 to 12, raising $1.8 million over six years. "A kid of 12 is too young to wander around with a 30.06 rifle," he said.

• Eliminating junior archery deer and small game licenses, raising $1.5

• Raising licenses generally, increasing revenue by $29 million over

A few eyes are also being raised at

Legislature, authority to raise license

Outdoors persons are generally cool to the proposal to create an interestearning game and fish trust fund, using oll revenues from Pigeon River State Forest lands. "Most people don't trust the Legislature," said Dittmar, recalling how the Kammer Land Trust Fund and Veterans Trust Fund were raided when the state ran into a fiscal crunch.

THE NEED for more revenue is being outlined to MUCC and other clubs by DNR personnel, who are also polling audience reactions.

Ron Spitler, district fisheries blologist for DNR's Pontiac office, said the game and fish - general purpose budget was set at $33 million but cut $2 million last year and $1.5 million in the current year because license revenues have failed to keep pace with costs:

"It's kind of a 'user pay' world these days," Spltler said.

The G&F fund supports DNR's wildlife, fisheries and law enforcement divisions. Layoffs of law enforcement officers, he said, have meant "more poaching and snagging" of game and.

II Dittmar and MUCC members were cool to a trust fund, Spitler was more enthusiastic. "The trust fund can be a biggle down the road. I think it's the best idea of the bunch," Spitler

The big mess at Glenn High

HILE WESTLAND JOHN GLENN marches toward a Northwest Suburban League football title tomorrow night, its boys' basketball program continues to be mired in turmoil.

A labor grievance was filed last week with the Wayne-Westland School District on behalf of Dan Henry, who was dismissed from his coaching position earlier this month.

Henry, despite a 40-19 record during the past three years, was recommended not to be retained by a committee of four Wayne-Westland administrators.

The committee, which interviewed three candidates including Henry, consisted of Glenn principal Tom Svitkovich, assistant principal Jim Myers, athletic director Jerry Szukaitis and Dan Siee, executive director of student relations for the Wayne-Westland schools.

A new twist to the situation cropped up Tuesday when Svitkovich, despite a pending arbitration case, said that "Mr. Gordon Davis announced to the students he will take the basketball position."

DAVIS coached Glenn for 11 seasons before retiring in 1980. Henry, who served under Davis as JV coach, was hired for the varsity coaching job by then Glenn principal John Harrison, now executive director of Adult/Community Education.

Henry, who was termed "not the best man qualified for the job," has been in the news frequently during the past few years.

He was fired in 1980 for what was termed 'personality differences" at the time. He appealed the decision to arbitration and won, giving him immediate reinstatement. A physical education teacher at Stevenson Junior High School, the 30-year-old Henry was acquitted in August of criminal sexual misconduct charges involving a 14-year-old student. A Wayne County Circuit Court jury took only 15 minutes to return a

The charges were filed against Henry in April, but he was suspended with pay. The school board lifted his suspension after he was found innocent.

HENRY was hired as Redford Thurston's head football coach in 1980, but shortly after reneged because of "personal reasons." He served last year as an assistant coach at Garden City.

The committee decided to review Henry's contract and conduct interviews for the varsity basketball job after the 1982-83 school term.

"I had to interview for my job, which is against past practice," Henry said. "I told the union (Wayne-Westland Education Association) that it

"I went through it and I shouldn't have." Although the WWEA recommended that Henry be interviewed, without representation, union president Bill Reece said, "It's our belief that the interview committee is not standard practice."

"The issue here is reasonable just-cause of not giving Dan the Job," Reece added.

SVITKOVICH contends that "all decisions on coaching contracts are handled a little bit different "We hired a swim coach with a similar committee," he said. "The coaching positions are open each year and Mr. Henry is aware of it. "This is not a personal issue with me - It's not a grudge under any circumstances. I categorically deny that it's a personal thing." But Henry cannot accept Syltkovich's explanation "that he's not the best qualified man "Apparently they don't know what the word acquittal means," Henry said. "If it wasn't for the trial this wouldn't have happened. "He tried once, and he's trying it again."

"Obviously I get tired of all the battles. If you're right, you better stand up and be counted. "I'm right for the job."

SVITKOVICH said he didn't want to get into the specific reasons for Henry's firing because of the pending arbitration case.

"It was a unanimous decision," Svitkovich said. There were no dissenters. It was a committee decision."

Svitkovich said he has discussed the situation with Superintendent Dr. Tim Dyer.

But why hasn't Dyer stepped forward to clear the Until we know the reasons behind Henry's dismissal, whether personal or professional, then I have to assume that Henry is still the right man for the job.

The community and faculty remain tight-lipped about the case.

What I know about Henry from my dealings is that he knows the game of basketball and appears to get the most out of his players. He's an intense competitor and wins.

You have to wonder why he's been reinstated as a teacher and not as a coach.

AND ALTHOUGH Davis is a proven and qualified coach, his hiring seems to be ill-timed ending an arbitrator's decision Reece said this case is somewhat different than

"In 1980 Dan had already signed a contract rider and was removed after," he said. "Dan did not sign anything this time."

But that appears to be only a technicality. There have to be reasons for his firing. Is the situation any different than 1980? I doubt

I've got to believe Henry has another good case and deserves his job back.

Blazers take fall at Regina

with three losses in the Catholic League Central Division, up and bit league-leading Livonia Ladywood Tuesday night.

The result: a 77-72 Regina victory and a tie for first between Our Lady of Mercy and Ladywood. The two league leaders have their rematch Thursday at Brother Rice High School.

Regina took advantage of some hot shooting and a lackluster performance by the Blazers to jump ahead 42-31 at the half.

"This was the worst half of basketball we played all season," said Ladywood coach Ed Kavanaugh, of that? first half. "We're a young team and this will happen. We played a great second half. We never quit. I'm proud of the

Down by as many as 15 in the second half, the Blazers pulled within three several times in the final quarter, but could get no closer.

Emily Wagner led all scorers with 26' points for Ladywood. She was eight of nine from the free throw line. Char Govan, who was in foul trouble throughout the game, tallied 23. Tracy Ladoucer added 11.

Jolynn Schneider led Regina with 21.

Harper Woods Regina, struggling Janice Scherer and Julie Georgan had 16 and 15 respectively.

> The players we keyed on, we stopped," said Kavanaugh. "But the others that we didn't figure would hurt us, produced."

Ladywood is 6-1 in league play, 11-1 overall.

MARIAN 44, BORGESS 31: Bishop Borgess built up an eight-point lead early in the game, only to see Birmingham Marian come racing back to outscore them by 15 points through the middle quarters.

It was Marian's tenacious press that did the Spartans in. Using the press exclusively in the third quarter, Marian outscored Borgess 16.6.

Borgess, 1-11, was led by Carol Klotz's 11 points and Lisa Boucher's 10. Renee Ambrose had 14 for the winners.

BENEDICTINE 42, ST. AGATHA 30: Playing without the services of Beth Reicha who suffered a fractured ankle in the 53-37 loss to Detroit DePorres last week, the Aggies could offer little resistance to St. Benedictine's attack.

Beth's sister, Sue Reicha, led Agatha with 10 points. The Aggies are 2-10 on

Rockets edge Franklin in ugly cage ending

It won't get any wilder than this.

Westland John Glenn, the home team, held off Livonia Franklin in a hotly disputed Northwest Suburban League girls' basketball game, 40-38.

It wasn't pretty. With Glenn ahead 39-34 late in the game, Franklin forced several turnovers to pull within one point. With 24 seconds left, the Patriots stole an inbounds pass and scored whatappeared to be the go-ahead basket. Glenn coach George Sommerman, who ventured onto the court, protested loud and hard that the referee had blown his whistle prior to the basket. The official agreed that he had inadvertently made the call, and the basket was ter the smoke cleared, Patriot coach Tim Cougars. Newman was slapped with a technical foul, and Glenn hung on for the win. Glenn had five League by two games, led 16-7 at halftime free throw attempts (three technical foul and held on. shots) in the last seven seconds, but could make only one.

Michele McCullen scored 16 points and grabbed eight rebounds for Glenn. Carolyn Smith had 10 for Franklin.

Glenn is 9-3 overall, 3-2 in the league. Franklin falls to 8-5, 3-2 in the league.

Ocelot spikes OU in finale

Close margin or wide, to come from behind or lead all the way, a win is a win. And winning was all that really mattered for Schoolcraft College Saturday in the six-team volleyball tournament it

Schoolcraft battled from behind constantly but emerged a winner, toppling Oakland University in the finals, 15-12, 5-15, 15-12.

"We played the last half of all the games very well," said Schoolcraft coach Joe Jandasek. "We started slow all day long. I really can't totally explain it. We evidently don't play well until the adrenalin gets going.

"I told them they don't play well until someone has them by the throat. Maybe that's what I should try - grabbing them by the throat."

THE OCELOTS struggled through pool play, winning four games by two point margins and losing to OU, 15-7. OU was unbeaten in five games in pool competition.

The Ocelots qualified for the semifinals opposite the University of Windsor. Schoolcraft dropped the opening game, 15-12, but won the next two by 15-10

OU faced Kalamazoo Valley Community College (HVCC) in the other semifinal. It took the Pioneers three games but they emerged as winners, 15-7, 11-15, 15-12. Jandasek was pleased with Livonia Chorchill grad Beth Wesman's all around play throughout the tournament, Tina Boll's solld setting, Plymouth Canton grad Missy McMurray's defense and hittingand Karen Lamb's strong blocking at the net. 🥕

LAST THURSDAY, OU won its third straight match by defeating Spring Arbor, 15-5, 10-15, 15-10, 15.9, at OU. The Ploneers have two key Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference matches this week, both at OU. They host Grand Valley Friday at 7 p.m. and Ferris State Saturday at 1 p.m.

Chiefs upset Churchill; Stevenson takes Lakes

By Paul King special writer:

Plymouth Canton's soccer team is on a roll:

It started Monday as the Chiefs advanced in the Class A preregional with a 4-1 victory over visiting Dearborn

Edsel got the first goal, but Canton countered with the final four as Tom Wright scored in each half.

Steve Morell and Brian Whiteley had the other Canton goals. And on Tuesday, Canton evened its overall record at 6-6 with an upset 4-3 triumph over visiting Churchill. It was Canton's first win over the Chargers in two years.

Morell led the way with two goals and an assist. Brad Neville and Tim Mueller rounded out the scoring.

Ray Galasso scored twice for Churchill (7-4-2), and Phil Lussier made it close with a penalty kick with four minutes to play.

But the Chiefs held on behind the goaltending of Dave Hawkins, who made nine saves.

STEVENSON I, BENTLEY 0: The Spartans' defense proved strong Tuesday as backers Dan Divens and Chris Gembls were outstanding, giving goalie Terry Harshfield his eighth shutout.

Stevenson (14-2-1) got its lone goal in the first half on a Dave Wiegel penalty kick from 12 yards out.

Goalie Jeff Wilkinson was the hardluck loser, making 10 saves.

Bentley (8-3-4), however, is still in the state tournament picture. The Bulldogs beat Edsel last week 8-0 as Dennis. Patchett (two), Bill Rowan, Jeff McLeod, Tony Pulice, Abe Yaffal, Brad Mahalak and Rich Gregor scored for the winner's.

The win gives Stevenson the Lakes Division crown.

CHURCHILL 5, HURON 3: The Chargers advanced in state tourney play Monday in Ann Arbor with a pair of goals in each five-minute overtime

Dave Gluth's goal broke a 3-3 tie and Lussier cemented things with a penalty kick in the second OT.

Lussier finished with three goals on the day, while Gluth had two.

CATHOLIC CENTRAL 8, BISHOP BORGESS 0: The Sharrocks (10-3-3) romped to an easy victory in the preregional Tuesday at Bell Creek Park behind Andy Rama's two goals and two

GARDEN CITY 4. DEARBORN 1: Ron Kasperek's two goals Tuesday gave GC its 13th victory in 14 starts.

The Cougars, who led 3-0 at halftime, also got goals from Paul Pummill, his 28th, and Bill Hyde, who also contributed three assists.

SALEM 4, FARMINGTON 4: Chris Hackman scored three times to give underdog Farmington (6-6-3) a tie Tuesday in a Western Lakes encounter.

Hackman tallied the first goal of the game and scored with four minutes remaining to tie it. Dave Fravenheim had the other Faicon goal.

Matt Crook, Ebon Nash, Kevin Sultana and Jeff Neschich scored for Salem, now 9-4-2 overall. Randy Johnson added two assists...

FRANKLIN 3, HARRISON 2: The Patriots upped their season record to 4-8-0 Tuesday with the Western Lakes

Tom Wagnitz drilled home the gamewinner with 3:46 to go in the match on a direct free kick from Graham Crock-Jéff Hayes and Don Hamblin scored the other Franklin goals. Wasim Bahoura and John Sepety scored for Harrison, now 2-9-2 overall.

NORTHVILLE 4, N. FARMINGTON 0: The Mustangs (12-3-3), because of Churchill's loss to Canton, clinched the Western Division Tuesday behind Jeff Metz's sixth shutout of the season. North remains winless at 0-11-2.

Rice fills Boys Bowl with overtime recipe

By Marty Budner staff writer

Brother Rice used its "heavyweight" to deliver the knockout punch to archrival Catholic Central in the 39th annual Boys' Bowl yesterday at Rynearson Stadium in Ypsilanti.

Mel Fart Jr. scored from one yard out on a fourth down play in overtime to give the gambling Warriors a scintillating 13-10 victory.

Catholic Gentral's Tom Rice, whose team had possession of the ball first in the overtime, booted the Shamrocks into a 10-7 lead with a field goal. On its first three overtime plays, CC ran twice for 4 yards and had a pass blocked by Rice linebacker Bob Wozniak.

Rice began its series of downs with two incomplete passes. On third down, tri-captain Matt Dingens - used strictly as a linebacker for most of the season - was inserted into the game as a tight end. The 6-6, 232-pound senior leaped to make a clutch reception near the end zone on a pass from quarterback Allen Szydlowski. The ball was spotted inside the one-yard line.

AFTER A BRIEF moment of sideline contemplation, Rice coach Al Fracassa decided to forego a field goal, which would have tied the game, for a touchdown. The winning play was a pitch right, and Farr took it cleanly over the goal line to keep Rice undefeated thorugh six games.

Farr, who rushed for 104 on 23 carries, was mobbed by jubilant teammates at the goal line, while Catholic Central's stunned defensemen kneeled in silence as the Warriors whooped it

"Our players really wanted to go for the touchdown," said Fracassa, whose team has won three of the past four Boys' Bowls.

"They were bunched up in the middle, and I decided to give it to the best back (Farr) I have. He's a heavyweight. I thought about the field goal, but you have to go for it."

Catholic Central coach Tom, Mach, whose team's record fell to 3-3 overall. knew Farr would get the call on the game's final play. "We were in a goal-line defense, and we should have stopped that play," Mach sald. "We knew he (Farr) was going to get it, but they did it when they had to." Rice had taken a 7.0 lead late in the second quarter. Farr capped the nineplay, 66-yard drive with a one-yard run. The senior halfback carried the ball six times in the drive.

THE GAME remained that way until the fourth quarter when CC finally penetrated the steady Rice defense. After taking over on its own 48-yard line, the Shamrocks tied the score on just three plays. The touchdown was scored by Ron Wandzel, who outleaped Rice defender Mike Flynn at the goal line. The pass play from quarterback Matt Wilczewski covered 35 yards. Rice booted the extra point that ultimately sent the game into overtime. "I thought we came back well, espe-

Teen is first to convert 7-10 split

She is only 13 years old, but already Tammie Harshbarder has written her name in the history of. junior bowling in the state. .

Bowling in the Saturday morning junior league at Woodland Lanes, she converted the "impossible". 7-10 split and became the envy of every other member of the league.

When the pins fell, she didn't realize how she had done it, but her name will live, as she is the first junior to accomplish what is considered the most difficult shot bowling.

THE 700 LIST GROWS - The 700 club inducted one of the largest classes of the season, when 11 bowlers broke the barrier in the area during the week.

Five of them earned their way at Bel-Aire where Fred Vitali posted a 726, Tom Leonard a 725, Freeman Wilson a 703, Dick Bond a 703 and John Chamberlain a 702.

Three were inducted at Westland. Terry Smith paced the classic with 747, and was followed by Mike Kane with 715 and Tim Gardella with 703.

The last two were honored at Plaza Lanes where John Shandilli had a 229 in 741 and John Waraanauckas had a 258 in 709 in the pin busters league. And among the latecomers in the guys and dolls league at Westland is Tim Whalen who joined the club with a 709 that included games of 253 and 234.

BEL-AIRE — Dick Capaldi's Oak Lanes team set a high mark for the season when it fashioned a 3443 series. It is one of the highest ever rolled in the classic.

WESTLAND BOWL - Leandra Micholac showed the way in the ladies classic with a 615 that included. a 233 game.

. COUNTRY LANES - Linda Murray couldn't stand prosperity in the Ladies league. After posting seven strikes in a row, she left a wide open split and had to settle for a 238 in 573. Meanwhile, Sonny Bettes registered a 268 the Eagles league.

MERRI-BOWL - Stave Kaszoski was top man of the week with a 269 in 679 in the St. Genevieve league. John Engebretsen paced the handicappers with 269 in 679, Jerry Rutkowski had a 636 in the newcomers circuit, and Linda Dodd paced the Belles with a 224 in WOODLAND LANES - Teri Cousins missed her goal of a 600 series by a single pin, but her 599 was good enough to pace the ladles league. Debbie Edwards, with a 156 average, turned a 267.

GARDEN LANES - Mitch McTrohan, who carries a 172 average, had a 200 game a 641 series. While Gordy Cantwell aced the St. John's Boscoe league with 630.

SUPER BOWL - Ed Mack who proudly admits to being 74 years old showed the way with a closing 232 game in a 615 series. The next highest was Clarence Sierkowski with

Livonia goalie spurs CMU soccer surge

By C.J. Risak staff writer 5

The goal is within sight, but like the carrot dangling from a string on a stick, it stays just out of Ken McDonald's reach.

McDonald, a 1982 Livonia Stevenson graduate, is Central Michigan University's starting soccer goalkeeper. Together with the 10 other players on the CMU roster from the Observer & Eccentric coverage area, he has helped the Chippewas reach new heights.

But it Isn't enough. There are other obstacles ahead for this team to conquer, McDonald believes.

THE ULTIMATE GOAL? Not to set new school marks in wins. The Chips have done that already, posting 12 victories in their first 13 games this season. That bested the record set last year when McDonald was a freshman.

Shutouts, too, are nice for a goalkeeper, but McDonald has three solos to his credit so far this season and the six the team has rung up are also a school record. McDonald has a sparkling 0.58 goals-against average.

the program.

"What's holding us back," the sopho- the mideast." more said, "is that we have a great that great. What I'm hoping is that we sophomore.

can get some games against the Akrons and Indianas." Those are the two top teams in the Midwest Region. CMU is ranked seventh, but it will take more impressive opponents for the Chips to qualify for the NCAA tournament.

WHICH IS WHAT every team aims for, especially since the Mid-American Conference does not include soccer as a league sport.

Still, the accomplishments of both McDonald and CMU's team over the past two seasons are impressive. The Chips knocked off Ohio State early this season, 2-1, and their only loss came to nationally ranked Bowling Green by a 1-0 margin.

"We lost to Bowling Green on an 'own goal,' " McDonald said, explaining that a CMU player headed the ball into his own net as he attempted to clear it.

The team is still relatively young. Leading the offense is Dave Daugherty, Birmingham Seaholm alumnus. One of four senior starters, Daugherty has nine goals and five assists on the sea-

The defense is sparked by Brian Guerin, a senior sweeperback from Livonia McDonald's aim is to help improve Churchill, who McDonald called "probably one of the best at his position in

Guerin has started all four years for record, but the competition hasn't been CMU and was the team's MVP as a

OTHER CHIP STARTERS from the O&E area include Paul Newstead, a freshman midfielder from Livonia Churchill who has two goals and an assist; Walt Kliza, a junior midfielder from Livonia Bentley who has four goals and two assists; and senior cocaptain Jerry Haggarty, a defender from Troy Athens who has two goals and five assists. Marty Caves, another Bentley grad, and Joe Moreau, from Redford Catholic Central, are top subs, Caves filling in at several positions and Moreau a forward who has scored once and earned an assist.

Two freshmen from Troy, Terry Chow and John Rizzo, and a sophomore from Plymouth Salem, Keith Reynolds, add depth to the Chip squad.

While the offense has scored 33 goals, the defense has been the team's strongest element.

"That's definitely been the key here really, especially in the later going," said McDonald. "We've really been playing good defense. The offense is getting enough goals to get by, but it isn't overpowering anybody.'

McDONALD'S OWN development in goal has played an important part in the team's overall improvement.

"My own kicking game has improved alot," McDonald said. "The bardest part I think is getting used to the collegiate-type game and developing anticipation. You learn what kind of attack certain teams throw at you.

"It gets to be a real thinking game. Last year as a freshman I was relying on my reflexes more. This year I'm a lot wiser."

It will be difficult for CMU to qualify for the current NCAA tourney. The two top teams in each of eight regions qualify, and seven at-large berths are awarded, with no one region getting more than two.

Garden City junior flanker Mike Roffi caught two touchdown passes and kicked three extra points Saturday as the Cougars edged Redford Thurston in overtime, 27-26, in a Northwest Suburban League game.

The hard-luck Eagles outplayed Garden City, running up 290 yards in total offense, but the Cougars came up with the big plays when they needed them.

Garden City opened the scoring in the second quarter on a 20-yard romp by senior fullback Kevin Harkness. The Cougars fumbled the snap on the extra point.

Thurston came right back, scoring on a four-yard run by wingback Brian McGrath, but the Eagles also missed

Garden City came back and scored on a one-yard pass from Romano to Roffi, and when Roffi connected on the extra point, the game was over. "It was the first game we were able

Larry Christoff admits his Schoolcraft Collège men's soccer team has him baffled. For example: Last Wednesday, the Ocelots hosted the only team in the region to beat them, Lakeland (Ohio) Community College. "We had revenge in mind," Christoff said, but the team responded with a slow start and some missed opportunities.

Still, Schoolcraft emerged with the win, 2-0, getting a first-half goal from Dan O'Shea, Jim King assisting, and a second-half score from Doug Mar-

"It took us 25 minutes to get on track, but they weren't coming after us at all," Christoff said. "We played basically in their half all the time." Evidenced by a 26-7 shot advantage for Schoolcraft. But the Ocelots missed a penalty kick and failed to capitalize on 10 corner kicks.

THE NEXT DAY, Schoolcraft faced Detroit Business College in a non-league contest. A letdown might have been expected, but the Ocelots turned in one of their strongest performances of the season in a 4-1 triumph.

"We came storming at them," Christoff said. "We moved the ball like never before. It was absolutely superb. The score could well have been 10-1.

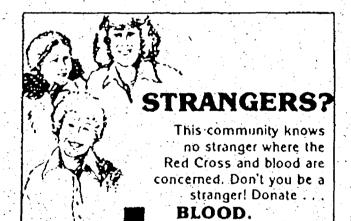

"It was one of the better performances we've had all year."

Marshall, Mike Madis, John Gray and King all found the net for Schoolcraft. The victory improved

But it was the win over Lakeland that meant the most to Schoolcraft. It put the Ocelots a half game ahead of Macomb Community College, which had played a scoreless tie against Cuyahoga (Ohio) Community College last week. Top honors in the region guarantee Schoolcraft a berth in the national tournament.

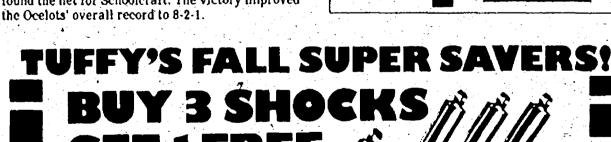

"If we can win the region," Christoff said, "I think we can go a long way in the nationals."

But he quickly added: "That's a big 'If'."

Selectors learn from mistakes

By Brad Emons and Chris McCosky staff writers

Two valuable lessons were learned last weekend.

One prep football prognosticator knows better. He'll never bet against Farmington Harrison again. Was the score really 31-0? The other guy, meanwhile, must go with his head instead of his heart. Emons, despite the Harrison debacle, went 10-2 to increase his season record to 52-22. McCosky was 7-5 and now trails by six games with a 46-28 mark.

This week there are several key games, including the Redford Bishop Borgess-Warren DeLaSalle and Plymouth Salem-Walled Lake Central clashes.

We promise to learn our lessons well this week

FARMINGTON at LIVONIA BENT-LEY (7:30 p.m. Friday). Both teams, beaten soundly last week, are trying to keep out of the basement of the Lakes Division.

Is the home field an advantage? PICKS — It's a unanimous choice here - Bentley wins."

LIVONIA FRANKLIN at WEST-LAND JOHN GLENN (7:30 p.m. Friday). Glenn's defense saved the day in a 6-0 win last week over North Farming-

Franklin, meanwhile, is struggling both offensively and defensively.

The Rockets can win the league outright. PICKS - Congratulations

LIVONIA STEVENSON at PLYM-OUTH CANTON (7:30 p.m. Friday). The Spartans' Dan Gilmartin is closing in on the 1,000-yard passing mark. His receiver, Rick Rozman, is close to breaking the school record for receptions.

grid predictions

What can Canton do? PICKS - Stevenson goes to 5-2. NORTH FARMINGTON at GAR-DEN CITY (7:30 p.m. Friday). The Raiders are better than their 3-3 record indicates.

Garden City, meanwhile, is taking its pulse after beating Thurston in overtime last week PICKS - North beats GC and the .500 mark.

PLYMOUTH SALEM at WALLED LAKE CENTRAL (7:30 p.m. Friday). Who gets to meet Farmington Harrison for the Western Lakes championship?

Salem seems to be getting stronger, while Central could still be in shock after losing for the first time, a 31-0 drubbing at the hands of the Hawks. PICKS — It's unanimous, Salem gets the bouquet.

DETROIT COUNTRY DAY at CLARENCEVILLE (7:30 p.m. Friday). The Trojans have a chance to gain a share of the Metro Conference title with a victory.

But Country Day is 5-1, coming off a 71-0 victory over Grosse Pointe Liggett as Brian Stevenson scored three TDs, rushing only four times for 74 yards.

The competition, however, should be stronger this week. PICKS - Country Day gets the nod twice.

REDFORD UNION at REDFORD THURSTON (2 p.m. Saturday). RU seems to be getting untracked finally, while Thurston continues to amaze the skeptics.

This backyard rivalry could be closer than expected. RU likes only to run and that should give Thurston's second. ary a break. PICKS - RU makes it three straight.

LIVONIA CHURCHELL at FARM. INGTON HARRISON (2 p.m. Saturday). The Hawks are hurting with John Miller (knee) and Bob Wasczenski (ribs) nursing injuries. Coach John Herrington said Wasczenski is likely to play, but Miller's status will be determined on game

Can Churchill come up with another performance like it did against Salem? Junior quarterback John Stoltsiadis is the key. PICKS - Harrison makes it 30 straight, both agree.

CATHOLIC CENTRAL AT HARPER WOODS NOTRE DAME (2 p.m. Saturday). The Shamrocks lost a heartbreaker last week to Rice, but should raise its record to 4-3 this week. PICKS — CC takes a joy ride.

BISHOP BORGESS vs. WARREN DeLaSALLE (2 p.m. Saturday at Roseville Memorial). Another acid test for the unbeaten Spartans, who came up flat last week despite a 16-10 victory over Gallagher.

Borgess must eliminate the mistakes, keep its opponent honest by passing and move the ball. DeLaSalle, 5-1, is long on defense, but short on offense. PICKS - Emons likes Borgess in overtime, while McCosky takes DeLaSalle.

ST. AGATHA vs. ORCHARD LAKE ST. MARY'S (7:30 p.m. Saturday at RU's Kraft Field). The young Aggies. play in one of the toughest C-D leagues in the state.

Orchard Lake is hot and going for the Catholic League's C Bracket title after scoring a victory two weeks ago over Pontiac Catholic. PICKS - OLSM takes another step toward the playoffs.

The topic of warrants became popularints at around $17 when the warrants were issued in September, it would appear to make little difference whether an investor bought the stock or paid $17 for the warrants. But the consequences could be quite different because the warrants offer leverage.

If an investor thought Chrysler shares would go up, he or she might In the case of Chrysler, each warrant speculate by buying the warrants. Because of the conversion feature, the warrants will go up more or less dollar for dollar with the stock prices, but the warrants, on average, would cost $13

Thus, if Chrysler stock were to rise again to its 1983 high of 35%, the war-SINCE CHRYSLER common stock rants likely would go up to their high of 231/2. In this case, stock acquired at 30

For example, if Chrysler stock were to go down, the leverage would work the other way. If the stock declined from 30 to 25, shareholders would have a paper loss of 17 percent.

However, the owners of the warrants likely would see their investment go down by at least 5 points from the price of $17, giving owners a paper loss of 29 percent. And the decline might be even greater, since warrants usually sell at a discount from conversion value in falling markets.

There are other speculative elements in owning warrants. They pay no dividends. Furthermore, they usually come into being when a firm is in some kind of financial trouble.

Typically, a company in disfavor, and selling stock or bonds to raise capital might give prospective buyers warrants as a sweetner on the deal.

So the main thing to remember about warrants is that they are more speculative than stocks, which, in these days of

Selling short can be risky

I have never sold a stock short, but a friend of mine has been advising me to sell Deta General short. He points out that the company, while a good one, isselling at 70 times earnings and thatwith the slighest problem, people will. start selling it, and the price will go

He feels that the computer market is in temporary chaos, and that a sell-off is sure to take place sometime soon.

The thinking of your friend sounds good enough, but I would always hesitate to sell a stock short. Selling a stock short, to me, is just about the biggest gamble you can take.

There, theoretically, is no limit to the amount you can lose, and I have seen a number of individuals caught inwhat they thought were sure bets that went the other way, and cost them tens of thousands of dollars.

The fact that Data General is selling at 70 times earnings certainly would suggest that it might be considered for a short sale, as your friend reasons. You make money on a short sale by borrowing a stock and selling it with the hope its price will fall quite a bit, and you can buy it back at a lower price and replace the stock you have borrowed.

ings, there is a good likelihood that if the company experiences any problems, its price will fall.

I'm not so sure the current problems in the computer market will be very hard on Data General. The problems seem to be in the smaller personal computer end of the market. Data General has some very large capacity ma-

In fact, just a few days ago, there was more speculation in the company's stock, and it went up several dollars. The speculation occurred as the result of a story one security analyst put out that the company would soon announce a new model that would have twice the capacity of one of IBM's bigger models and sell for a fraction of the price.

THE COMPANY SEEMS to have denied that story, but if it should prove to ANY TIME A STOCK is selling at 70 be true, there would be a fresh burst of speculation in Data General, and its short sale, your ulcers would give you a lot of trouble.

Short sales are stictly for the very experienced and well informed speculator.

Mealtime bargain is Sunday brunch

By Ethel Simmons staff writer

NE OF THE BEST bargains around when it comes to restaurant meals is Sunday brunch, that big, glorious east often combining breakfast favorites with luncheon specialties, drinks and desserts.

Thursday, October 20, 1983 O&E

Most restaurants offer brunch buflet-style, where you can serve yourself and go back for more. Usually the plates you fill with fresh fruit, breads, salad and side dishes, cold and hot entrees amply satisfy your appetite the first time round.

But If there's something you especially like, you can always take seconds. People generally manage to save room for a dessert or two - perhaps three, if the sweets are small.

A leisurely brunch starts out with Fruit juice, or a cocktail - perhaps a champagne cocktail, a champagne split, a cold duck that blends champagne with sparkling burgundy, a imosa (champagne with orange ilce), or bloody mary.

table talk

BRUNCH DEVOTEES rate the spread according to its complexity, as well as taste. A brunch leaning heavily on sausage, scrambled eggs, hashbrowns, mulfins and toast can best be described as basic. A chef making omelets to order, or pancakes as youlike them (with or without blueberries) upgrades the brunch, as does a chef carving a ham or roast beef.

Dishes in delicate cream sauces can make a scrumptious difference. People who love bagels, cream cheese and lox don't consider it a real brunch or even Sunday without these partners.

Smoked fish should be on the menu, and eggs benedict and blintzes topped with berries are a must for a goodly

There are the real gourmet dishes, too - things like little chops that you eat with your fingers, for example.

Besides the food, other touches are important. An extra attraction like entertainment turns the brunch into a party.

Here are just a few of the places where Sunday brunch is served. Most require reservations.

• MICHIGAN INN, 16400 J.L. Hudson Drive, Southfield. Phone 559-6500. The hotel's new "1920's Big City Brunch" features Doug Jacobs and the Red Garter Band. At a bandstand, complete with a cardboard cutout of an oldtime automobile, Jacobs and his gang plays nostalgic tunes. The hotel's Coffee Garden, plus the lobby area, is used for the brunch setting, which includes a lavish buffet. Baskets of fruits and vegetables surround the buffet table, to resemble a city-street market. Soup, marinated salad, cold shrimp, bagels and lox, pate, blintzes, crepes, eggs, carved ham and roast beef are among the multitude of dishes. Hours 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Prices $9.95 for adults, $7.95 for senior citizens and $5.25 for children under 12.

• HOTEL ST. REGIS, 3071 W. Grand Blvd., Detroit. Phone 873-3000. New "English Hunt Club Sunday Brunch" in European hotel atmosphere offers omelettes to order, a rotating menu of egg dishes including Eggs Sardou and Eggs Florentine, Steamship Round of Beef and English breakfast. specialties. The latter includes kedgeree (rice with seafood), Scot's porridge (oatmeal with cinnamon, brown sugar and butter), and kippered herring. Music by George Nichols at the plano drifts into the intimate rooms where diners are seated. Following brunch, complimentary stirrup cups of mulled wine are served after noon. Hours 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Prices $8.95 for adults, children under 12 free.

• WESTWORLD, 7300 N. Merriman, Westland. Phone 422-3440. Upstairs banquet rooms at family recreation center (formerly Hawthorn Valley Country Club) are where the brunch is centered. One buffet table has 18 hot entrees, and there's also a salad and soup table and a dessert table. Dishes include carved beef and ham, seafood, Western eggs (omelet with green pepper and onion), scrambled eggs, bacon, fried potatoes, mashed potatoes, vegetables and gravy. The menu varies weekly with such selections as spinach ple. Westworld has been offering brunch since April and serves about' 12. 200 persons each Sunday. Hours 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Prices $6.95 for adults, $4.95 for children 12 and under.

• THE RHINOCEROS, 265 Ricepelle at Franklin, Detroit. Phone 259-2208. Restaurant with New York elegance backdrops this brunch, which offers one of six entrees, served from the menu. Oeufs Banville (poached eggs in artichokes and hollandaise), smoked salmon omelet with sour cream and potatoes lyonalse, and pecan crepes with banana and lemon cream and maple sugar are some choices. Other selections feature chicken ka-bobs, American steak and lemon sole. Hours 11:30 a.m. to 3:45 p.m. Fresh fruit and breads and one cocktail are included for $8.95. with unlimited cocktails $12.95.

• THE INCREDIBLE EDIBLES Food and Spirits, 31231 Southfield north of 13 Mile, Beverly Hills. Informal shopping-center restaurant has 40foot-long buffet table for Sunday brunch. Chef makes omelets. Diners also may nibble on wing dings, riblets (barbecue ribs), sausage, bacon, ham, scrambled eggs, bagels, toast, English muffins and pastry. Fresh fruit juices are served from a watermelon. Hours 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Prices $4.95 for adults, $3 for children under 12.

• HOLIDAY INN - Livonia West, Six Mile and 1-275. Phone 464-1300. Free champagne is served from noon to 2 p.m. along with brunch at this striking contemporary-exterior inn. The buffet is set in the Holidome area and diners bring their filled platters to the French Colony or Plantation Cafe dining rooms for seating. The elaborate buffet is emphasized with an ice sculp-

Polish sausage, sauerkraut, corn bread, ture. Among dishes are eggs benedict, seafood newburg, beef tips, a side of beef and sliced ham. Hours 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Prices $9.25 for adults, $8.25 for senior citizens, $3.95 for children under > • ALDEN'S ALLEY, 312 S. Main, Royal Oak. Phone 545-5000. Salmon, shrimp, herring, mussels, oysters and clams are some of the delights at the seafood bar. A chef cuts roast rib eye of beef and cooks omelets to order, at the buffet table. Belgian waffles and cheese blintzes are more bufffet-table offerings. There's a separate fruit and dessert table. Diners may be seated in a semi-outdoor setting when cold weather eliminates tables outside the restaurant. Hours 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Prices $8.95 for adults, $4.95 for children under 12.

• KINGSLEY INN, 1475 Woodward, Bloomfield Hills. Phone 644. 1400. Brunch served in the inn's elegant dining rooms has been around a long time. Crepes, salads, bagels and cream cheese, chicken, cabbage rolls, beef stroganoff and fish dishes are on the menu. The Kingsley has its own bake shop and the buffet may include homemade peach cobbler and French pastries. Because the Kingsley runs chartered buses to all Lions and Michigan Panthers home games at the Silverdome, many sports fans turn out for brunch. Hours 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Prices $7.35 for adults, $4.95 for ages

• TOPINKA'S COUNTRY HOUSE. 24010 W. 7 Mile Road at Telegraph Road, Detroit. Phone 531-9000. The champagne brunch includes a free glass of champagne. A full table of fresh fruits is available. Salads, grapes and juices are served. Cold fish featured are four kinds of herring and three kinds of sardines. There are

Children's musical staged next month

David Wood's "The Plotters of Cabbage Patch Corner," a musical play written especially for children's audiences, will be presented at 10:15 a.m. Wednesday-Friday, Nov. 2-4, and 1 and 4 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 6, at the Lydia Mendelssohn Theatre, Michigan League Building, at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Tickets at $1 may be obtained by calling the Professional Theatre Program Ticket Office in the Michigan League Building at 764-0450.

"Plotters" is directed by Jamie McDowell, a doctoral candidate at the U.M. It is the story of a conflict within the garden, both sides having a legitimate point of view.

The insects' lives are threatened when their home has been sprayed with insecticide by humans, and conflict arises as the insects try to find a solution to the problem. After quite a bit of squirming, plotting, singing and dancing, the crisis is solved.

The Spotlight Players production of You Can't Take It With You" is enchanting. The players pooled all resources to present an evening of wondeful entertainment. You'll leave the theater feeling warm all over.

The Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman comedy is, in Itself, an American classic. It's the story of the lovably crary Sycamore family and its equally lovable and zany tenants.

The family's philosophy is that, above all else in life, one should be happy. These non-conformists believe that pothing as dreary as financial obligations should waylay anyone from purpulog that which interests him or her most. The Sycamores' interests, bowver, range from snake collecting to ballet to the manufacture of fireworks. The play offers a hilarious array of losyncratic characters to challenge the acting talents of any theater group. The Spotlight Players rises to this challarge with enthusiasm. Its final prodoct is really first rate.

BETTY GODDARD is simply excelat in her portrayal of Penny Sycamore, the cheerful mother who tites off-the-wall plays. Goddard's comedic timing is exceptional. Besides her talent, she has a laugh so delightful that by itself it's worth the price of a

Rik Kureth is another outstanding member of the cast. He portrays Grandpa, the family patriarch and originator of the family philosophy to purshe happiness. Despite his own wacky bobbies (snake collecting and attending high school commencements), he is the family's stablizing force.

Kureth is wonderful in this role. He is an experienced actor with a commanding stage presence. Rik is a pleasure to watch.

OTHER' OUTSTANDING performances are given by Bob Walker and Helen DiJiulio. They portray stuffy, affluent conservatives who come on the wrong night to meet the family of their son's 'potential bride. Hilarious reactions are given by Walker and DiJiulio to the extraordinary Sycamores. Their performances are spontaneous and convincing.

The entire cast is really top drawer. Everyone emits an enthusiasm that is contagious. It's great fun seeing a cast enjoy itself as much as this one does.

And believe it or not, this production is just as sound technically as it is artistically. The set is exceptional. Congratulations to Bob Walker for designing a convincing living room of the

The special effects needed for firecrackers are believable and dependable. And lastly the house music is upbeat, representative of the era and a fine finishing touch.

COSTUMES DO have to be mentloned. They are the weakest aspect of the entire production. Some costumes clearly indicate the 1930s as the time in which the action is taking place. Other costumes are obviously pulled from the closets of the '80s. The inconsistency is unfortunate. It detracts from the overall quality of the play.

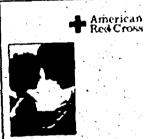

What Carla Lenhoff has accomplished in her first effort at directing a full-length production is remarkable. She has coordinated and directed some fine talent and has created magic.

Her interpretation of the playwrights' intent is exact. Her casting is near perfect. There are moments when blocking is weak. Important dialogue is occasionally upstaged. But experience is the best teacher. With this production, Lenhoff demonstrates tremendous . potential.

Folks, this production is a gem. It's warm, funny and downright charming. 'Haynes' portrayal is great. He is Go see for yourselves. It's a great night

A recent progam of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra featured Hungarianborn conductor Ivan Fischer and German-born planist Heldrun Holtmann. Both of them made their debut in this country last Thursday. At least, this is true if one doesn't count Fischer's unscheduled and unexpected role n the opening concert of the Renaissance Concerts series (see separate review). Maestro Fischer, 32, is having an active conducting career in England and is currently one of the joint directors of the Northern Sinfonia Orchestra.

Holtmann, 22, won the Geza Anda competition in Zurich last year. One of the judges on the panel was Maestro Antal Derati.

The talent exhibited by both artists was very impressive, and not without some controversial elements, at least on the part of the conductor. The program consisted of works by Webern, Mozart and Mendelssohn. The short opening selection was Webern's composition, Six Pieces for Orchestra. Webern, who was a disciple of Schoenberg, was one of the ploneers of atonality and the twelve-tone system.

THESE SHORT pieces are characterized by tone-color sequences, rather than melodic lines. Here, Fischer demonstrated great skill and ability in mastering the complicated combinations of sound and involved rhythms. This composition was composed in 1909, when Mahler was still alive, but is considered very modern even by today's standards. It is still beyond my understanding and acceptance, howev-

Holtmann rendered a remarkable performance of Mozart's Plano Concerto No. 22, K. 482 in E Flat Major. Her passages were elegant and clear for the most part. One of the few exceptions was the first movement in which the bars tended to run into one, another,

The one aspect which I found disturbing, however, was the use of the full orchestra. That, in my view, was tantamount to letting a bull loose in a china shop. Authenticity, of course, is a

The type of plano known to Mozart was a rather weak instrument and would be inadequate in a modern concert hall. However, even without reading Mozart's mind, orchestral dimensions of the type used in this performance were unknown during his time.

While the K. 482 is one of Mozart's more forceful works, it shouldn't sound like Beethoven's Emperor Concerto. The orchestral forces were managed with skill and expertise, but the net effect still undermined severely the fine structure of this composition. In particular, the ending of the second movement, which is one of Mozart's most intimate passages, evoked the feeling of gross intrusion.

THE MOST satisfying performance was that of Mendelssohn's Italian Symphony (No. 4). Some reduction of the orchestra was definitely a step in the right direction. While I still found the first movement somewhat overblown, the rest was a good reflecton of Mendelssohn's style, in particular the last two movements.

The lyric third movement portrayed the rare singing quality, and the fanfares in the Trio were superb. The final movement was sparkling and shining, without compromising its cheerful characteristic.

In this evening's performance, Maes-tro Fischer, displayed an impressive ability for mastering the orchestral forces and molding them according to his will, even though the ends might not be always agreeable.

Fischer is scheduled to be the guest conductor this week as well. The program consists of works by Schubert, Gliere, Stravinsky and Kodaly. The rarely performed horn concerto by Gliere will have its premier with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra on this pro-

The stage is set for theater workshops

By Mary Klemic staff writer

With the pulling of a curtain or the switching on of a light, Robert Orls can put you on a busy city street in the United States, or in a professor's library in England.

Oris isn't a magician but an instructor of technical theater at Dearborn's Henry Ford Community College. And he has helped many a community theater group with their productions of almost anything from "West: Side Story" to "Chicago."

Theater groups often think their sets have to be realistic in every detail, said Oris, a Dearborn Heights resident.

*People too often tend to take a very literal approach to it," Oris said. "They think they have to have an actual window or actual doors on stage. Our approach is how much you can fake on stage."

ORIS WILL teach at a free set construction workshop, to be presented by the Theater Gulld of Livonia-Redford, starting Monday through Saturday, Nov. 12. The workshop will include set construction Oct. 24-29, and set painting and decorating Nov. 10-12. It will feature basic techniques in cutting corners in scenery construction, such as measuring, cutting and fitting.

Theater sets can be constructed to resemble real life, or they can suggest a different time and place, according to Oris.

For a local production of the play "Chicago," set in that city some 60 years ago, Oris is preparing a backdrop that consists of enlargements of photos from the 1920s that were given an antique, sepla tint.

It will be a collage of photographs across the back," Oris said. "It will give the atmosphere of Chicago in the '20s."

The Broadway musical "Evita" used a similar technique, he explained. In "Evita," a collage of pictures from Evita Peron's life served as a backdrop.

SCENERY CHANGES can be made quickly through the use of "revolves," in which wagons bring the scenes on stage. While the actors perform on the set facing the audience, stagehands prepare the next that productions of "The Sound of Music" have turned a ballroom into a bedroom just by bringing a bed on stage.

"You can go toward the symbolic," he said. "If you have something that gives you the feeling of a kitchen, you don't need the whole kitchen."

The amount of money a local theater group spends on its sets can vary according to the theater and the budget, Orls said. "You can do shows on very, very small budgets," he said. "It depends on what you're doing with the sets. The average show usually spends $150 on materials for the set. There have been shows that spent as much as $5,000 on the set."

ORIS HAS noticed changes in theater sets in the 28 years he has been teaching and the 30 years he has been directing pro-used to have four, six, seven big sets for a play. Now you might have a curtain thrown "There have been big musicals that had a single set," he said. "For 'Pippin' there was almost a bare stage throughout. More and more, they're using actors to decorate the set and are keeping away from walls."

A PLAY may not need elaborate scenery if the story itself is strong enough to carry the audience. Oris said. He cites the recent play "Agnes of God," which took place in the antercom of a convent, as an example, The set for this play consisted of a plain wooden desk chair, a metal ashtray, a table

"That's all you needed," Oris said. "There were no walls or windows, and it didn't can't skimp on the others." he said. Local productions have to watch costs and deadlines.

"With professionals, it's no problem." Oris sald. "You say, 'I need that set at this time' and it's there. But here (locally), you're dealing with people who work days or nights. They might be able to make a meeting one day but not another."

Participants in Oris' upcoming workshop won't have to attend every session. The classes will be held at the Theater Guild Playhouse, 15138 Beech Daly, just south of Five Mile in Redford. For registration information call 522-0718.

Airbrush spits, clogs and fascinates

This is another in a series of lessons on art and drawing by special columnist David Messing. He has taught for eight years 🖧 and operates an art store, Art Store and More, 18774 Middle-belt, Livonia, Messing ecourages questions and comments from readers. You may write him at his store or c/o Observer Newspapers, 23352 Farmington Road, Farmington MI

By David Messing special writer

My left hand is over my heart and I promise to end my coverage of airbrushing this week.

There is much you can say about any media, but with airbrush there is a certain fascination. Plus many people are interested in airbrushing even if they couldn't tell an airbrush from a ratchet screwdriver.

Fascinating is a good word. Did you ever enjoy standing at a state fair or mail show and watch an artist draw another person's portrait? Well, it is just about the same with the airbrush.

You rarely touch the board or canvas you are working on and it deems as if you are merely watching as you, the artist, airbrush in subtle shades, colors and tints. Nothing can compare to the effects and shear pleasure one can gain from a good airbrush in competent

You can't enjoy winning unless you occasionally fall, and you can't enjoy an airbrush unless it occasionally backs up on you. When your airbrush is working well and everything seems to be going along fine, you are probably singing to yourself "Stranger in Paradise."

But when it spits and glogs, quits and salvos out a gush of paint all over, then you might be singing "What Kind of Fool Am I."

Painting is an outward expression of your inner most feelings and when that expression is interrupted, it is truely upsetting. I think I am paranold about inanimate objects. If I try to touch an extension cord. I know that it will coll like a snake, and interweave like a bird's nest.

I also project feelings into things. I might say to my clogged airbrush, "You knew Thad to do this job today, so now you decide to break down!" I'm too frugal (boarderline cheap) to throw my airbrush down. But apparently cost hasn't stopped some more violent than myself. I have repaired some that were supposedly "dropped." But if they truely were dropped, it must have been from a 10-story building. Let me share my most violent moment with you.

ALL I WANTED to do was spray a little black paint on a piece of plexiglas. So instead of thinning black paint for my airbrush I figured I would just use a can of black spray paint. Sounds easy, huh? Well, first the tip clogged (of course) so I patiently sprayed the can upside down to clear the tip of the spray head as not recommended on the label. Upon pulling the pin out, a long squirt of paint shot across my shirt and unto our new washer, dryer and white tile floor.

In frustration I threw the can on the back porch and would you believe it hit down on the spray head and shot black on our then-yellow siding on the house. I then picked up that can of paint ant threw it in the garage to get rid of it and it came to rest on my sister-inlaw's pecan table that was in storage. There it silently cozed paint. So much for violence.

A clogged airbrush tip should be cleared instantly with a reamer. A

Artifacts

reamer is a needle which is ground flat on one side. This flat side produces two sharp cutting edges. With any dual action airbrush, simply remove the needle from the airbrush and insert the Lightly push it forward as you spin the reamer between your finger tips. Be careful to keep your airbrush rightside up or the finger button will fall out, Usually this one-minute cleaning will return your airbrush to working order. But be sure to give it'a good cleaning before it's next use.

Here are some basic tips I have learned over the past few years. Remember there are two ways to learn lessons. The hard way is to make mistakes yourself, and the easy way is to learn from the mistakes of others.

ALWAYS REMEMBER to use a hanger to hold your airbrush. This will prevent damage from the airbrush hitting the floor. Also be sure to check the stipple adjusting screw - often it works it's way loose. Located under the finger button, it's purpose is to restrict you from fully depressing the button which reduces the air pressure.

The loss in air pressure causes the paint to spray out in large and irregular dot patterns. When turned down (so that it will not touch the finger button) you should have a full air pressure, which is about 30 psi. If your spray still has large dot patterns, then your paint. needs to be thinned.

If you still have large dot patterns then your tip is dirty and needs a reamer or a good cleaning. One very common problem with dual action airbrushes is when you have paint spraying without pulling the button back.

First you should check the adjusting wheel (or screw) in front of the finger

Often this has worked its way around a few times in handling and has forced the finger button back. This-in turn allows paint to come out even when you are not pulling the button back. This little wheel (or screw) can however be your best friend.

If you are trying to paint a small restricted area or a straight line and have a fear of pulling the button back too much, simply adjust for the line width with this adjustment and merely depress the button. The other reason for paint without pulling the button bake is the compression nut, which is inside the handle has loosened.

With all the backward and forward motion, it is understandable that this nut could loosen slightly enough to allow the needle to back up which, in turn, allows the flow of paint. To fix this merely loosen the compression nut, then push the neelde forward till it fits snuggly into the tip.

ANOTHER PROBLEM is the tip can become out of the round so much so that it does not seal properly around the needle. This allows paint to seep out and form on the tip. Then when you 'depress the button you are surprised to see paint spitting off the tip of your airbrush.

Another big problem is that people forget to check the color cup, which often works it's way loose and falls off the airbrush. This messy accident can be remedled by simply twisting a rubberband around the tip and around the boltom of the cup.

A few weeks ago, I had my new jeans and my new, white glow-in-the-dark canvas shoes on, all ready to go teach my class. Then I said to one of my students, "Here, Mike, let me show you how to airbrush that," and as soon as the brush was in my hand, the color cup, full of black ink, fell off the airbrush and onto me.

Mike insisted it was my fault and I insisted it was his. But since I am the one writing this column, I would like to officially state that without a doubt . . it was Mike's fault. So there.

Just as I promised I will end this brief rundown on airbrushing but there is so much to cover that I will continue this in some future Artifacts installa-

Remember also that my recommendation os Paasche was based on performance, availability and economy. All "slow feed" fine airburshes are great, as are multipurpose and bottom line models. It is my opinion, however, that the same quality is sweeter if it is at an affordable price. With the money I saved, I can buy another pair of Jeans " and white canvas shoes.

ARTFULL HINT: For the best results always airbrush at a perpendicular to your artwork. This reduces over spray and shows less of the tooth of the Q: How do you cut smooth friskets? Mine look like I cut them out with scissors.

A: Their are very affordable swivel razor knives by Xacto which reduce the angular/look to the cut edge. But I am used to merely rotating the knife between the thumb and fingers. Simply rotate the knife in the direction you would like to cut and you will be surprised how smooth your edge will become. It takes practice, like anything else.

Planting seeds of horticulture early

A person doesn't have to be a hortlculturist to enjoy a landscape job well done, especially when young people are involved with fine direction from an ecologist on the facility.

I visited at Detroit Country Day School on about 40 acres at the southwest corner of 13 Mile Road and Lahser, Beverly Hills.

The school has celebrated its 50th anniversary and its fine pattern of education was directed for many years by F. Alden Shaw, who took an active interest in the school into his 90s. The athletic field was named for him. The field was dug out in 1984.

The excellent condition of the grounds and the countless areas of beauty could be due in part to the dedication of Randy Raymond. He is about to get his doctorate in plant ecology from the University of Michi-

THIS FINE teacher said that while he is team working with his students toward an appreciation of nature, he gets to know them and understand their attitudes about life.

An important part of this educational approach has been the making and development of a Fitness and Nature Center. It is an area of closely knit wild growth. The students made bridges over streams and generous paths over rolling land, covered with wood chips to absorb the moisture after a rain or snow. There are many designated study spots where they have watched the birds try to control their individual territories.

There are deer and other animals to observe. The prime goal has been to study the character of a woods and learn how to respect it. The site has been used for meets to emphasize fit-

As you stroll around the grounds you admire the many, many flower beds which surround the buildings. A great deal of the work has been done by the students. Red burning bushes are prominent in the landscaping. There are 7,000 spring bulbs to be planted by the students. In his classes, Raymond plans to teach the students how to hybridize roses.

UPON completion of the walk the suggestion was accepted that Country Day would welcome program-tours by garden clubs with inquiry made to Connie Bearden.

It is amazing how many young people find gardening enjoyable after they've had academic instruction in their school-years. Your columnist can attest to the benefits as seen in many young people.

On Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 29-30, the Michigan Regional Lily Society will have its annual bulb sale at Tel-Twelve Mall. This is a good opportunity for fanciers to order the best for their 1984 gardens at this time. The costs are reasonable,

Some gardens have a collection of gourds. They are ready to harvest when the shell is so hard that you can't easily dent it with your fingernail. Harvest before a frost.

Rose fanciers are indebted to the All American Rose Selections for supervising the development of outstanding roses and their introduction each year. At least 5,000 years ago in China there were roses. Plant genetics is responsible for the fine specimens we see on the market today.

INTEREST RATES GO DOWN
Still waiting for interest rates to go down before buying a home? Do you still think that waiting will save you money? Two years from now the home your looking at will cost ou more in monthly payments even if the laterest estes drop TWO percent. Por sa example, take a home that cost $70,000. With 20% down payment and financed with a 30 year, fixed rate, 14% morigage, the monthly payments would be $663.53. Buy two years from now, if the price rose at a low 8% per year, the present $70,000 home now costs $81,648. If interest rates decrease to 12%, your down payment would be $2530 more and your monthly payment would be up to $671.87. It's obvious that the biggest impact, on your monthly payments is not the interest rates but rather the overall home. Since the indicators are aboving property values increasing, the point being made here is Buy Now or Pay

Capture the golden days of autumn on film

We all had a terrific summer full of hot days, warm evenings, plenty_of beach and sun. And we kind of hate to see it go.

But there is something exciting to look forward to - the fall season. For seldom is there a better time of year for photography. Fall is truly a color spectacle, a painter's palette and you with your camera become the artist.

- Pall offers an abundance of picturetaking opportunities. And you don't have to venture far from home either. Fall colors can be found everywhere as they creep gently southward. Close to southeastern Michigan are miles of lovely roads and trails that display rainbows of vibrant hues.

Here are some tips on how you can get better fall pictures:

Time of day to shoot? Morning or afternoon. These times will produce maintum shadows and texture and will make your shots look more "alive."

Try to position yourself to get back or side lighting.

• Lens to use? Whatever suits you best, keeping in mind that a wide angle lens gives you a greater expanse in your shot, whereas a telephoto will "move you in close" to isolate one particular tree or capture a splash of color in a cluster of fallen leaves. With your macro lens or close-up filters, you can highlight the veins in an individual leaf or detail any other intimate subject.

• Film to use? Slide film will produce the most vivid colors. Use the film of your choice setting the ASA about 1/4 to 1/2 stop higher than recommended by the film manufacturer. Doing this will increase color saturation.
