Local police departments don't feel that traffic altercations - which sometimes involve drivers stopping their cars and trading punches after a disagreement or an accident - are a problem.

That was the conclusion of acting lead commander Roger Wilkes of the Garden City police department and Officer Steve Frazer of the Westland department's traffic bureau.

In separate telephone interviews, each said he hasn't seen any evidence of a problem of traffic violence.

But neighboring departments are reporting an in-

The departments were surveyed Tuesday after an incident on the Hines Drive in which a motorist was run off the road and then attacked with a knife.

That incident occurred Sunday, when an apparently angry driver slashed a Livonia man with a knife on Hines Drive near Levan Knoll In Livonia.

The man's wounds required 70 stitches. The incidents usually begin, said Livonia Police Sgt.

Jesse Bartlett, "When one guy cuts another guy off." Next comes an obscene gesture. Then both drivers pull over to the side of the road, and one driver might try to open the other driver's door.

Schnarr named as acting chief for city police

Inspector Paul A. Schnarr, a 22year Westland pollee veteran, was named acting police chief Tuesday by Mayor Charles Griffin.

Schnarr temporarily replaces Fred Dansby, who announced his retirement last month to accept a job as public safety director in Romulus. Schnarr was the department's second highest ranking officer under Dansby.

Griffin said Tuesday he hopes to fill the chief's job by March, following the promotional testing procedure set by the city's civil service commission.

The commission administers written and oral exams to candidates and certifies results. The mayor is obligated to promote the candidate with the top score, unless he choses to leave the permanent job vacant.

Schnarr is expected to be a candidate, along with as many as four qualifying lieutenants currently serving the department. To qualify for a promotion, police officers must have served at least two years at their current grade. >

"There's no question that until we find a permanent replacement Inspector Schnarr is fully qualified to run the department," Griffin said.

"As second in command, he's had the experience of filling in for the chief on a day-to-day basis in the past."

be filled by March, after civil service testing by a city commission.

SCHNARR SERVED for eight years as a public safety officer in Oak Park before becoming a charter. member of the new Westland police force in the fall of 1966.

He finished a close second to Dansby in written and oral examinations for the chief's job two years ago.

Griffin said the city's next police chief would be someone who would "not only interact well with department personnel, but will also relate well to the public."

"He (the new chief) has got to be a communicator," Griffin said.

Griffin also said the ability to work within a budget would be a priority and that he would consider previous experience in that area a plus in any candidate.

Dansby, the third police chief in the department's 22-year history, surprised many with his retirement announcement. He had been the chief for less than two years after being named in February 1987 to replace William Rechlin.

Mother of murdered teenager files lawsuit

$10 million sought from 5 in case

By Peggy Aulino staff writer

The mother of a 13-year-old Stevenson Juntor High School girl murdered two years ago filed a lawsuit Wednesday seeking $10 million from the assailants, their families and a friend of the victim.

The lawsult was filed almost two years to the day after Mary Anne Hulbert was shot seven times in a Superior Township field. Christopher Machacek and Steven Stamper, both 18, were convicted last fall in connection with the killing.

"I know I'm not going to get any-thing out of it," said Debbie Hulbert, mother of the girl who attended the Westland school on Palmer west of Newburgh.

defendants, the sult names Tudie Braddam, Stamper's natural grandmother and adoptive mother; Diana McKenzie, Machacek's guardian with whom he lived at the time of the murder, and Machacek's mother, Mary Ann Schelm.

The suit also names Maria Karch, a neighbor and close friend of Mary Anne Hulbert's, "on a conspiracy charge," Taniellan said.

Karch testified at the trials, held separately in Washtenaw County Circuit Court in September, that on the day of the murder she drove Hulbert to the entrance of the mobile home park in which they lived. Ma-chacek and Stamper were waiting to pick her up there, testimony indicat-

JEFFREY STROUSS, the courtappointed attorney who defended Stamper at the trial, has been retained to defend Braddam and Stamper.

The suit "looks like a ploy for publicity," he said.

Braddam said she "figured" Hulbert would sue.

'There's nothing I can do about it. What can she get?" Braddam said.

The victim gave police the following account of the incident:

HE WAS westbound on Hines Drive near Levan Knoll when he saw a car coming toward him in the same westbound lane. He swerved to avoid hitting the car and crashed into some trees.

Because of the damage to his car, he couldn't get his car started, nor could he immediately open the door. 1. A. S. S. S.

In the meantime, the car that had forced him off the road turned around and pulled up behind him. Shouting obscenities, the passenger got out, pulled a knife and came toward him.

The victim finally got his car door open and started to run. But the driver of the Camaro pulled up in front of him and blocked his escape.

His assailant slashed him with the knife and then got back into the Camaro, which headed east on Hines Drive.

The victim walked 11/2 miles to a phzeria at Newburgh Road and Ann Arbor Trail, where he called police.

On Monday, police released a man picked up 10 minutes after the attack who was in a dark car near Hines Drive.

The man passed a polygraph exam and his photo was not identified by the victim, Bartlett said.

Winter in Wayne From skating to VCR hibernating, county has it all

By Tedd Bohneider and --Brian Lyeaght staff writers

ow is the winter of our discontent?. Sorry, Bill (Shakespeare). Not this year. Not in western Wayne County. With a dizzying array of wintertime recreation activities available to them, residents should be anything but morose during the next three months.

From traditional activities such as ice skating and skiing, to the offbeat like snowboarding and winter golf, there's enough to please even the most ardent outdoor types.

And when the thermometer drops below zero --- making it too cold for many outdoor activities, - there's always the bowling alley or (for couch potatoes) the good old videocassette recorder to turn to.

For local rink rats, there are winter hockey leagues and figure skating clubs in most communities.

HOCKEY PARENTS should this winter expect to pay $260-$350 to equip young players. The world's fastest sport never claimed to be the world's cheapest.

The equipment has improved greatly in recent years, said Bob Griffin, owner of Griffin's Sport Shop in Livonia, which features hockey equipment prominently among its wares each winter. The equipment gets lighter, more durable and more protective each year, he said.

Griffin, whose son played college hockey in Wisconsin, said the biggest growth may be among older players, in the 25-30 year old range. The hockey generation has grown up." Their are fewer kids playing, he said.

"Back in the early 1970s, it just exploded when they built all the rinks," Griffin said.

But, he said, the success in recent years of the Red Wings has contribamong locals.

The cost of a pair of figure skates is $55-$275, and a pair of hockey

Just because the traditional, outdoor winter sports aren't your forte doesn't mean you have to sit around and vegetate.

You can always go bowling. .

In fact, fail and winter are the height of the bowling season. Local lanes have leagues and tournaments by the score.

Even if you're a novice, there are programs designed just for YOU.

Take the "3-6-9 Tournament," held every other Sunday at the Super Bowl in Canton Township. Bowlers mark their score sheets with a strike in every third, sixth and ninth frame - even if they throw a gutter ball. THE SUNDAY night tourney, which begins at 8:30 p.m., is open to all bowlers. For $9 a person, bowlers get four games, a mystery game and shoe rental.

The Super Bowl also features league bowling on Monday, Thursday and Sunday nights, said manager Sandy Combs.

Bowlers can be in leagues that meet once a month, every third week or every other week. The $4.95 per session fee includes three games and shoe rental.

You can form a team with three friends, or just show up and you'll be placed on a team.

There is a bumper bowling league (the gutters are filled with rubber stoppers) for children age 2-8, weekly adult-youth tournaments and a Saturday Night no-tap mixed doubles league as well.

Cold cuts Area Ice Spectacular taking shape

By Doug Funke staff writer

Local residents are hoping for winter weather to enjoy the seventh annual Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular - plagued in past years by balmy spring temperatures.

The event opens today and runs through Jan. 15.

Here are some questions and answers on the event, which attracts hundreds of thousands of visitors. How did the extravaganza get started? As Scott Lorenz, co-chairman of the event and general manager of the Mayflower Hotel, tells it: "Seven years ago, I saw a story on

'60 Minutes' about the Sapporo (Japan) Ice Show. I got hold of Mr. (Henry) Graper (city manager) and my father (Ralph Lorenz) and said: 'If they can do it there, why can't we do it here?'

"We contacted Schoolcraft College and put it on in 45 days. It was modest, in Kellogg Park. It was received exceptionally well."

A couple hundred thousand are expected during the run of this year's extravaganza.

So when is the best time to show up to avoid the throngs?

-"Avoid Sunday afternoons at all cost," Lorenz said. "The best time . . . to not get caught up in traffic is mornings before 11 o'clock and after 9, 10 o'clock at night.

"The best photos are at night and the first thing in the morning at sunrise," he said.

Keep in mind that traffic will be rerouted around Kellogg Park Saturdays and Sundays. The Main-Ann Arbor, Trail and Main-Penniman intersections will be closed to motorists both weekends of the show.

What about other amenities? Portable toilets will be placed behind The Gathering on Penniman.

"I recommend people park in the central city lot parking deck," Lorenz said. "They can get in off Ann Arbor Trail. It's unbelievable. People never find it there."

Additional parking will be available at the CSX Railroad Yard at Starkweather and Pearl. Horsedrawn carriages and shuttles, arranged by the Old Village Association, will transport people downtown from there for a nominal fee.

Who carves the ice sculptures and what does it involve?

Professional and student chefs, mostly.

But see for yourself. Student chefs will compete in The Gathering at 9 a.m. Saturday. Professionals will compete at the same time, same place the following Saturday, Jan. 14.

A new three-person competition will take place at 7 p.m. Friday, Jan. 13, in Kellogg Park.

Most of the individual statues initially displayed were carved by Jim Nadeau and an associate from Chicago, plus local professional and student chefs at Midwest Ice Corp. in Detroit, Lorenz said.

--- How_long it_takes to develop-a statue from a 400-pound block of ice depends on the experience of the carver and attention to detail.

"You can spend a half hour or all day. Typically, it's two or three hours," Lorenz said.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Many ice carvings show great detail.

What's all this cost and who pays for lt?

Spectators pay nothing to meander along the public walks on Main. Ann Arbor Trail, Penniman and Forest and in Kellogg Park to view the displays.

Lorenz pegged the budget of the, non-profit corporation headed by himself and Graper at $50,000-$60,000.

"We raise it through individual contributions, merchants, businesses located in the community," he said. Lorenz identified major sponsors

areas.

Directors of area nursing homes with three or more violations recorded against them in the guidebook say their homes evaluations are no longer valid.

Problems, they said, have been corrected.

A combined 31 violations were found at the area's 15 nursing home facilities by federal Health Care Financing Administration inspectors.

Canton Care Center was judged in violation in eight of the 32 areas presented for public review in the HCFA report, "Medicare/Medicaid Nursing Homé Information.

Administrator Beverly Sciberras said home conditions were "100 percent improved," since the home's May 1987 evaluation.

The Canton Township-based home was also taken off the state of Michigan decertification list.

HEALTH PROFESSIONALS agree the process is difficult and often emotionally wrenching, no matter how a home is selected.

*5A

Professionals suggest home selection should be undertaken even before it is necessary.

"What's best is for people to begin looking around while they or their loved ones can still make those decisions themselves," Levay said. "Obvlously, there's a tremendous amount of guilt involved. But peopleneed to know they're doing what's best for their loved ones."

found to have five violations in its December 1987 evaluation.

The home was found deficient in providing daily personal hygiene, skin care, necessary bed sore care, and adequate bowel and bladder care for each resident as well as in administering drugs according to the written orders of the attending physlcian.

A spokeswoman for the home said she was unaware of any current problems.

Nightingale West Nursing Home, Westland and University Convalescent Mursing Home, Livonia were found to have three yiolations each.

"There's been another survey and it will show while corrected all problems," Livoria Convalescent Home administrator Kay Kermode said. "I think the public has a right to know, but you have to realize the person doing the survey is in the home for a day or two at most; it's, difficult to get a true picture. We're always open for people to see for themselves." The facility was evalu- ated in February 1988.

Problems at Nightingale have also been corrected, according to administrator Norman Burger.

"Everything has been corrected," he said. "We're glad to have the inspections but often the inspectors aren't uniform in making their evaluations. You could pass for 18 years and another inspector could come in and see something differently." The facility was evaluated in October 1987:>~~

Shock waves smash dog's kidney stones

By Jackle Klein staff writer -

Polly went home, just two days after going through surgery for kidney stones. The 5-year-old English bulldog is recovering nicely.

Kidney stones are very rare in dogs, said Dr. Eric Heitman of the Pearce Veterinary Hospital in Southfield, where Polly stayed after undergoing a procedure called lithotripsy at the Ohio Kidney Stone Center in Columbus late last month.

Lithotripsy is performed on Thumans to fragment the stones so the particles can pass through the urine. Polly is the first dog to have the procedure, though it has been performed on laboratory animals. In fact she is the first pet with kidney stones Dr. Richard Pearce has seen in his 35 years of veterinary practice Polly's owners, George Cramer and Julie Garcia of Southfield, brought Polly to the veterinary hospital this summer because the dog was getting urinary infections and had blood in her urine, Heitman said. 'ANTIBIOTICS weren't helping the chronic condition," Heitman said. "So we ran a series of tests and X-rays and the diagnosis was kidney stones. The two modes of therapy are diet modification or surgery to dissolve the stones.

We tried a prescription diet for Your months and met with little success. English bulldogs are a high risk '? for anesthetics in conventional surgery because they have inadequate respiratory systems. So we docided to search for a lithotripsy-procedure."

Four hospitals in Michigan use the ultrasound machine, which costs about $1.5 million, Heitman said. He talked to urologists in each hospital, and they were excited about the prospect of taking care of Polly. But hospital administrators wouldn't admit the four-legged patient.

Heitman called several other sources and was finally referred to the Ohio Kidney Stone Center, which has a lithotripsy unit owned by urologists and surgeons.

The center not only agreed to use the procedure on Polly but donated time and services, Heitman said.

"I went to the center with Polly and her owners so I could administer the anesthetic," Heitman said. "I brought our own anesthetics and

"The procedure took 45 minutes. Polly was-strapped to a chair and immersed in water because ultrasound waves don't travel in the air. Water transmits the beams, which hit the kidney stones."

ing particles from Polly's urine and analyzing them to determine how to prevent the stones from coming back.

Through it all, Polly was a real trooper, Heitman said. She's also quite a ham and seems to enjoy having her picture taken. And she's making quite a name for herself.

Kosteva's recycling bills are law

By Tim Richard staff writer

Two bills sponsored by state Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, are part of an eight-bill package promoting recycling that Gov. James J. Blanchard has signed into law.

The new laws and an executive order will make state government a leader in the effort to reduce the nearly 12 million tons of trash generated in Michigan every year, the governor said.

Kosteva's, House Bills 5805-5806 and a companion measure require the labeling of plastic containers to facilitate plastics recycling.

They establish a government-industry plastics recycling consortlum to do research on recycling technologies.

And they create a recycling target enterprise advisory committee within the state Department of Natural Resources to promote creation of jobs in the recycling industry.

A former township planner, Kosteva, 36, will start his third term in the Legislature this year.

"THE STATE can lead the way in promoting waste reduction and recycling as alternatives to landfills, in

A policy adopted by the state Natural Resources Commission last year sets a goal of reducing landfilling of trash from 85 percent to 15 percent over the next 15 years, he said.

Winter blues: hibernation for humans?

Some people call it the winter doldrums, but researchers who studied the behavior have termed the desire to slow down and burrow for the winter the hibernation response.

Furry creatures in the wild head for shelter to sleep out the winter, and the authors of a new book called "The Hibernation Response" said people feel the same need.

"Everyone thought that human beings might be different, that we're immune to all that," said Dr. Peter the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine.

But, he pointed out, "we are animals.'

In their book, Whybrow and co-author Robert Bahr included explanations of "Why You Feel Fat, Misera-" ble and Depressed from October through March" and offered tips on how to survive another nasty winter.

Whybrow said nearly everyone is affected to some degree by the coming of winter, physical and psy- -brought on by the dark days of winchological changes are triggered by ter are profound, marked by depresthe diminishing light and colder tem- sion, sadness, fatigue, social withperatures.

Donald Brown, director of coun-Whybrow, chairman of psychiatry at - seling at the University of Michigan-Dearborn, agreed with that analysis. "I think it's even more complex than that," Brown said. "There have been studies on the effect of sunlight that show people are more depressed in areas like Michigan, that don't get much sunlight in winter."

tion as a "seasonal affective disorder." or SAD.

In a 15-month study that began in 1983. Whybrow looked at the influence of the seasons on behavior. He had 100 people keep detailed daily records of their sleep, energy, appetite and mood.

"We discovered that just about everyone slept more in the winter, they all ate more, gained weight, they became more irritable and had less energy" - all classic symptoms of the hibernation responses, Whybrow said.

"They'd rather sit home and eat potato chips and watch TV," he said. The response would not be a problem, except that most people have said pèople could dramatically change their wintertime mood by starting the day in bright light such as beginning the day facing a panel of eight 36-inch fluorescent bulbs.

"WITHIN HALF an hour, you feel you've been up for three or four hours," he explained.

Getting outdoors into daylight as quickly as possible in the morning also boosts spirits, he said.

Whybrow also suggest acclimating by launching a walking program in the fall, dressing in as little clothing as possible. After a while, the body will become accustomed to the temperature change, said Whybrow, who wears a raincoat without a liner through Philadelphia winters.

He also recommended maintaining an exercise program throughout the winter and eating sensibly.

Whybrow said there is no sense in dieting during late fall and early winter because research has shown the body becomes more efficient in its use of calories as winter approaches, using fewer calories to do the same work.

Inheritance tax is '89 priority for lawmakers

By Tim Richard staff writer

State Senate Republicans vow cutting the inheritance tax will be a 1989 priority - whether the Blanchard administration likes it or not. We have a good commitment from the House leadership to give this fair consideration next year," said Sen. Nick Smith, R-Hillsdale, as the Michigan Legislature met fortwo hours before adjourning for the year.

"The inheritance tax jeopardizes the middle-income group," said Smith, author of a Senate-passed bill ($B 1) to cut that tax virtually to zero and halt the drain of retirees to Blorida. He noted many Democratic rislators support that reform, even if their leaders wouldn't let it come a vote.

bill (SB 279) after removing a Republican provision tying it to Smith's SB 1.

As passed and sent to the governor, the tax bill will:

• Extend the so-called "circuit" breaker" another two years. That provision gives many suburban homeowners an income tax rebate if property taxes exceed 3.5 percent of income. Average rebate payments are $480.

• Ease the "kiddle tax," by allowing young show shovelers and babysitters to avoid filing state income tex returns if they earned less than $1,600 a year, and then granting a $600 exemption above that...

> BOTH PARTIES in both chambers had agreed to most of the provisions, but the Senate GOP last month sought to "tie-bar" SB 1 to the general tax bill — the general bill couldn't become law unless SB 1 were passed, too.

Blanchard called it "game-playing."

"This chamber (Senate) said to do away with the inheritance tax," Smith said.

"The House had over 60 votes on + the board agreeing with us, but they C. Tax lottery winnings to pay for (House Democratic leaders) wiped the board clean. The leaders per-• Authorize low-income senior suaded some members to take a walk. There were 52 votes to pass SB 1 (with 56 needed) and 40 votes to break the tie-bar," he said.

Smith said that when retirees shift residences to Florida to Florida,

'You can't separate the

"they take their finances, with them." Smith said Michigan economic strength would be improved by giving them an inducement to stay here.

SEN. JACK Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, supported SB 1 when it passed in 1987 and said, "I don't think there's any question of making changes. But there is a question of what revenue sources we're going to use to replace it."

Estimates of the revenue loss due to repealing the inhertance tax range from $60 million to $80 million.

BUT TREASURER Bowman was cooler to inheritance tax repeal, although he insisted he is still "a fiscally conservative Democrat."

"You can't separate the inheritance tax from the gift tax issue," Bowman said. "Michigan has no gift tax. Any review of the inheritance tax should contain a look at a gift tax."

Many elderly parents before death give large, tax-free gifts to their heirs to avoid the inheritance tax.

Supporters of SB 1 had noted that the late industrialist Henry Ford II was a tax resident of Florida at the time of his death, thus beating Michigan's inheritance tax. That argument failed to impress Bowman

with health care costs

By Pat Murphy staff writer

If Joe Dokes, a typical K mart employee, goes to the hospital for an appendectomy next week, he will suffer twice. First from appendicitis, second from bad timing.

If Dokes had surgery before Jan. 1, he would have had to pay very little, if any, of the doctors' fees, hospital expenses or related costs. His health care insurance would have paid most necessary and customary procedures.

But after Dec. 31, Dokes has to pay a $200 deductible plus 20 percent of the remaining expenses.

The Troy-based corporation has gone from having what one executive termed the "Cadillac" of health care coverage to the "Pontiac." The changes were analyzed and provided employees with the option of traditional pay-for-service coverage or membership in a health maintenance organization, or HMO. But with either option, Dokes is now obligated for a deductible and co-pay.

'We still provide excellent benefits for employees and their dependents," said Donald L. Morford, K mart assistant director of benefits. "But we could no longer provide first dollar coverage.'

He said the high cost of providing health care benefits forced the corporation to take a hard look at its insurance program and to make adjustments.

K mart isn't alone. Faced with the prospect of premiums doubling over the next five years, companies are being forced to look for ways to provide good health insurance coverage while containing costs.

THE WORD "containing" is significant because employers no longer talk about cutting or maintaining costs. Health care expenses increase so rapidly, most would be happy to, as one company executive put it, "get our arms around costs."

Switching to some kind of deductible - along with a 4 co-pay for remaining costs - is the most common way companies try to contain costs. And probably the most effective, according to most analysts.

The Big Three automakers — Michigan's standard-setters for benefits and compensation — switched to a deductible and co-pay years ago. Even so, their expenses have increased dramatically.

The General Motors Corp.; Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. reported paying nearly $5 billion for employee health care in 1988. And costs are rising nearly three or four times the normal rate of inflation.

"We expect costs to increase between 13 and 20 percent per year," said Jack K. Shelton, manager of employee insurance at Ford. "That means existing costs (already staggering) could double within six years."

While this seems bothersome for workers at the auto companies, it is more ominous for those with less bountiful coverage. Trends are bothersome for employees with "Pontlac" health care benefits. But they are more worrisome for those with "Model T" coverage.

SPIRALING HEALTH care costs are even worse for the estimated 37 million Americans who have no health care benefits, either because they are unemployed or work at jobs that don't provide health care benefits.

Reasons for the increase in health care costs are as complicated as they are nebulous. Some experts blame overutilization; that is, employees seem to be using health benefits more frequently.

Sometimes physicians are involved in the overuse, ordering what some believe are unnecessary tests and diagnostic, procedures because they are unsure of their own capacities or feel obligated to protect themselves against malpractice litigation.

But good doctors don't do that, according to Laurence M. Gelman, principal with Mercer Meldinger Hansen, a Detroit management consulting firm. "Doctors who know what they are doing and have confidence in their own ability don't order needless tests," he said. "And they don't need extra procedures because they are jafraid somebody will sue them."

Others say overcapacity is the culprit - too many doctors, too many hospital beds, too many expensive diagnostic tests for demanding, health-conscious patients.

The United States had 40 percent more doctors in 1988 than in 1975, according John Marakas, chairman of the Health Insurance Association of America (HIAA), "all of whom need to make a living one way or another.

"In most areas and in most specialties physicians are able to increase both the demand for their services by encouraging return visits and their income by raising their fees," Marakas said in a speech on cost containment delivered Oct. 31.

"Since physician earnings account for about 20 percent of total health care costs and are responsible for about 70 percent of total health care outlays, close scrutiny is in order," Marakas said.

ONE STATISTIC the HIAA said seems suspicious is that U.S. women undergo three times as many hysterectomies as women in other parts of the world.

Many cancer patients will elect to undergo chemotherapy - despite debilitating side effects - even though the treatment is rarely successful.

But it's wrong to point to any single factor as the major cause of skyrocketing health care costs, said Jack Shelton, manager of employee insurance at Ford. "So many factors enter into it."

Society may, in fact, be the victim of its own success by prolonging life and life expectancy, he said. Illnesses or complications that were usually fatal years ago are now considered treatable, if not preventable.

Pollo is an example, but by no means the most dra-matic. A health scourge in the 1950s, pollo has been virtually wiped out by a vaccine.

"We are living longer and demanding more medical attention," Shelton noted. "It's a very complicated and perplexing problem."

While experts have varying opinions about the cause -of increasing health care, there seems to be a growing consensus about that companies will be forced to do as a consequence.

More and more companies, like K mart, are switching to "Pontiac" coverage with the deductible and copayments. If the company is employee-conscientious, however, the deductible and co-pay will be reasonable.

The new K mart coverage, for example, requires a $200 deductible with the employee also paying 20 percent of expenses thereafter. Some experts say deductibles and co-pays could range much higher as companies try to reduce their expenses."

"There is a direct relationship between the amount of the deductible and use of benefits," said Franklin J, Ellias, health care benefits consultant. "People think twice about going to the doctor when they have to pay part of the cost."

THE OPPOSITE occurs when the employer simply increases the workers' share of the premium, Ellias said. "When the employer increases the amount of money somebody must pay, the general reaction is to use the benefits more often to make sure they get their money's worth."

Perhaps more significant than deductibles and copays are the new buzswords, "medical case management," according to Ellias and other experts who say that will be the health care trend of the 1990s.

In its simplest form, medical case management bolls down to the patient getting approval before surgery, before going into the hospital or even before undergoing certain diagnostic tests, explained Gelman of consultants Mercer Meldinger Hanson,

Auto Show raises city's image — for some

Up to now, the Detroit Auto Show has been scheduled too late after New Year's Eve to let you wear your tux twice before you give it back to: the rental company, and was mainly a kind of cross between a midwinter tent sale and a casting call for a remake of "Chorus Line."

This year, however, Detroit hosts the North American International Auto Show, which might explain why I got one invitation to a press conference that offered a chance to see the "Famous Detroit River," - the sort of thing that might appeal to a visiting group of international motoring journalists.

Frankly, I've become a little sensitive to the image the old hometown world. Maybe it is time we did something about it,

I still remember having breakfast in a Japanese hotel when the Tigers won the World Series and having our host burst into the room, obviously panicked, saying, "There's a rlot in Detroit!"

"What do you mean, a riot?" I said, still struggling with the fish flakes on rice. "Everybody's going like this," he says, and starts doing a dance that resembled the Twist, while holding his index fingers in the air:

SOME OF THIS kind of thing might be our own fault, of course. conjures up in the far corners of the Like when they discovered the stolen squad cars pressed into service as taxis during the Republican National Convention. Or figured the Grand Prix cars ought to be able to take a couple of -potholes like everybody else.

On the other hand, sometimes I find the old hometown's civic image kind of handy, having chased off a potential mugger in London by, about taking a cab anywhere. snarling, "I'm from Detroit."

Mainly, though, I take this imagebuilding thing seriously. In the company of the international motoring press I'm careful to use the correct pronunclation of our local landmarks (da-twaa, bell eel, cad-joe, etc.). No more raised French eyebrows for me.

I also make up stories about the tire on the expressway and mention Greenfield Village as something you really should see sometime, which I've found is a nice safe thing to recommend to out-of-towners, since they can never find the place, and it grows in their imagination every year.

I try not to snicker when they talk

But I digress. The new, expanded, international auto show is getting off to a good start, even before the black-tie affair on Friday.

CHEVRQLET'S Bob Burger managed to get a little misty-eyed at Chevrolet's fete, while snarling a bit at Ford. Chrysler's Tom Gale brought out six new styling exercises, including a particularly weird rumble-seat pickup truck.

The international motoring press is being shown the launch of two new Japanese luxury carlines, a fourwheel drive Porsche and a new twoseat roadster. Toyota even managed to create something of a stir by losing a lawsuit and title to the name for its Lexus luxury-car division.

The new Detroit show thus sets some kind of record for new-car introductions and events of potential newsworthiness at a single auto show.

But will it do much for civic pride?

An old friend from Norway, in town for the show, shrugs aside the new auto news, and gets to the point. "Tell me," hè says. "Is Detroit safe?"

"Don't worry," I tell him. "If anybody looks at you the wrong way, just tell him you're from Oslo.'

Such pre-certification has a "sentinel effect," said Ellias. Pre-certification makes the physician aware that a knowledgeable party is overseeing the process and is not likely to allow payment for unnecessary procedures.

But medical case management is more than getting prior approval,

Ellias said. "In many cases, case management provides an advocate for the patient, somebody who will challenge the doctor. If necessary."

With case management, for example, the company health care benefits may require - and pay for the services of a visiting nurse rather than allowing longer stays in the hospital where average costs are approaching $700 per day.

WHILE SOME companies are looking for ways to cut costs, others hope to save money by encouraging healthy living. Those are the so-called "wellness"

There are many specifics to case plans under which employees are encouraged to-quit-smoking, lose weight, reduce stress or otherwise modify behavior so they lead healthler lifestyles, sald Gelman.

> "If a company can encourage employees to quit smoking," he said, they can save enormous medical bills later on."

> While people point to the possibility of AIDS causing financial difficul by for a health care system (the "average" AIDS case costs about $150,000, according to some experts), there are other preventable problems that can be equally expensive, Gelman'said.

The cost of treating a premature baby, for example - or one born with birth defects - can be very high, Gelman said. "Some wellness plans recognize that possibility by encouraging good prenatal care" among pregnant women," he said.

Such programs are worth well more than their costs if they per-g suade expectant mothers to curtail? drug or alcohol consumption during. pregnancy, Gelman said. "Not only; does that give their baby a better shot at a healthier life, such pro-, grams reduce the need for very ex-; pensive medical care," he said.

Climbs walls

Dancer's stunt lands in movies

By Mary Jane Doerr special writer

WENTY-FIVE-YEAR-OLD old tap dancer Bill Anagnos made a video of himself a few years ago. It shows him running up the side of the wall at his parents' home in Birmingham and doing a back flip dressed in a sult and tie.

Last April, Nick Castle, director and writer of a soon-to-be-released film, "Tap" with Sammy Davis Jr. and Gregory Hines, saw the video. He wanted that trick in his film. At midnight they called Anagnos at his Los Angeles home and told him to be at Universal Studios the next morning to start rehearsals.

"That stunt has taken me a long ways," Anagnos said with a smile, over dinner at a local restaurant while he was home for the holidays. "I remember the first time I ever did it was on the west wall of the old Will-O-Way Theatre. I was choreo-, graphing the production of 'West' Side Story' and dancing the part of Bernardo."

In the film "Tap," which is due to be released in early February, durbuilding.

ryline when you are making a film," explained Anagnos. "They film all out of sequence."

Basically the story takes place in New York City and centers around a tap dancer Max Washington (Gregory Hines) who is now in prison. Washington's father had been considered the greatest of all hoofers, a Bill "Bojangles" Robinson figure. Big Mo (Sammy Davis, Jr.) tries to get him interested in dancing again. Anagnos is one of 10 featured dancers throughout the film.

"You can spend your whole life come around," said Anagnos, who is dressed in a suit and staying in condition eating a salad. "I am writing my own vehicle for success. I have written a screenplay for myself which I am now in the process of marketing."

In the film "Tap," a famous tap dancer, the now 66-year-old Harold Nicholas, is featured doing the splits. Agnagos has become a personal friend of Nicholas' 74 year-old brother, Fayard, and it is for Fayard that Anagnos has written his first script, "Keep Dancing, Kid." A secondary role was written for himself.

"I HAVE ONE ambition - to bring back the finesse and class of the musical movies of the 1930s and '40s," Anagnos said. "I want to have the audience leave the theater happy. Perhaps I am a bit old-fashioned. but I don't think Gene Kelly needed a nude scene to make him sexy. You can achieve a greater effect leaving more to the imagination."

Anagnos has been dancing since he was 2 but while he was in school at Way Elementary and Lahser High he played sports. It was not masculine to tap dance, or so he and his friends waiting for the right opportunity to. thought. When he was 16, he began dancing with his sister Elaine at the Bouzouki Lounge in Greektown and at Greek festivals around Detroit. With his typical confidence and optimism, he made his way on to "PM Magazine" and "Kelly & Company" at 18 and 19. In his two years at Wayne State University, Anagnos was a theater arts major but dropped out to help his father run their Kelly's Cafe in Pontiac.

"Did I ever learn a lot during those two years," remarked Anag-DOS.

At 22, Anagnos wanted to pursue a career and school in Los Angeles.

· break in a national Michelob Lite commercial. In April, though, he quit his restaurant life and became a fulls time dancer and actor. Now during the day he trains to keep himself in shape and works on his writing. He spends his evenings reading literature and biographies that will be useful in his new career.

"LAUREN BACALL once said, 'I' owe my audience only one thing - a<sup>3</sup> good performance," " Anagnos said.5 "I don't believe that. I guess it was? the way I was raised, I am in the business of meeting people."

Anagnos' big dream is to see himself in a film at the Showcase Cinema where he used to go when he was in high school. He has to return to Los Angeles before "Tap" is scheduled for release.

Perhaps while there he will catch his next film, "The Purple People." Eater" with Ned Beatty and Shelley Winters. It is due to be released in April of 1989. He does a Fred Astaire dance routine.

Our loss

Jim Carli touched many lives

T WAS a sad holiday season this year in the Livonia school district community, which includes the northern section of Westland. The reason is that school Superintendent Jim Carli died of complications after surgery in St. Mary Hospital Dec. 20, his 48th birthday,

The school community mourns the loss of this kind and sensitive man who was so very dedicated to the schools and community in which he lived and which he served.

He touched the lives of many and he will be sorely missed.

Although superintendent for only 2½ years, he enjoyed a long and fruitful professional career in the schools — starting as a teacher at Whittler Junior High in Westland 25 years ago after earning his bachelor of science degree that year from Northern Michlgan University in Marquette. Twelve years later, he was promoted to principal of Churchill High School, which serves the northwest corner of Westland.

ALONG THE way he earned the respect and love of many students, his colleagues and parents.

Westland's community leaders appreciated the way Carli quietly and quickly made sure he and other administrators and board members were visible at local community events, such as the Mayor's Ball and Chamber of Commerce Junches. In past years, Livonia school officials were markedly absent from similar events.

The presence of Carli and other school administrators and board members improved substantially the relationships of the district and Westland city officials.

because he respected others. He led by example.

Jim Carli did a lot to improve relations between the Livonia school district and the Westland community.

for personal contact. His wide smile and friendly hello were trademarks of his tenure as school chief.

When he was appointed superintendent, he confided to a friend that his greatest fear was being cut off from students and teachers. Because of that, he worked harder than ever visiting schools, talking to teachers, students, other staff members and parents on an informal basis. And he listened — intently and sincerely.

Jim Carli's personal warmth and honesty played a big part in helping heal the wounds of the Bentley High School closing.

- HIS EFFECTIVENESS as a superintentendent was strengthened by the fact that he also was active at the parental level. His two children attended the Livonia schools, and he and his wife were involved at the local school level, giving him added insight into the problems that parents faced.

Although his job as superintendent was time consuming, Jim Carli took the time to be active in other community organizations.

The school community has lost a good man and Mr. Carli was a man who commanded respect fine educator. He took the time and spent the energy to make a difference. And for that we It was his personal credo. He was never too busy remember him and we mourn our loss

Ribbons remind us to save ourselves

AT FIRST they kind of annoyed me. I don't know why. They just did. I'm talking about the red ribbons you may have seen tied to door handies and car antennas.

Frivolous, I thought.

GTVDC NOSS

But I was wrong. People need symbols. They help make sense out of this slightly mad world.

The ribbons you've seen this holiday season were the idea of Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD), the group representing families who have had children killed in alcoholrelated accidents.

Those with ribbons committed themselves to not drive and drink during the holiday season.

Finally, we have become aware of this tragedy that has lingered in the shadows of this country's psyche for so many years.

And every year 50,000 people would be killed for no other reason than abuse and neglect.

Deposit law

Earmark funds for conservation

TICHIGAN RESIDENTS have been paying nickel and dime deposits on beverage bottles and cans for 10 years now. The successful practice contributes to cleaner roadways and also provides a major message: Despite big money attempts to deceive and distort, the public is willing to put up with minor costs and inconvenience in order to protect the environment.

Think back to the campaign to put a deposit on Michigan cans and bottles. From the reaction of some union and manufacturing spokesmen, you would have thought that environmentalists had, conspired to ruin the state's economy for all future generations.

Even though 400,000 voters in only six weeks signed a petition to put the question on the ballot, bottle bill opponents asked the courts to keep the portation estimates that roadside litter has deissue away from voters.

When that failed, bottle bill opponents swung into overdrive with an expensive, distorted and misleading campaign. Opponents said the deposits would cost jobs, increase the cost of beverages and limit the variety of beverages available to Michigan consumers.

They also said such a deposit would make life miserable for Michigan consumers who would have to drag cans and bottles back to the store and, finally, they concluded that a bottle deposit would have little effect on roadside litter.

THE ARGUMENTS were patently ridiculous. But there was some concern that the onslaught of publicity churned out by a $1.3 million campaign ing environmental problems," added Alex Sagamight carry the day. Supporters were spending bnly $130,000.

Not to worry. Michigan voters, many of whom had grown up in an era when all cans and bottles had deposits, easily recognized the fraudulent nature of the opposition arguments.

Groups such as the Michigan United Conservation Clubs say unclaimed deposits should be earmarked for conservation and environmental protection projects. We agree, and we support the petition drive to this effect planned for this summer.

On Nov. 2, 1976, voters approved the deposit -2.1 million in favor to 1.2 million against. The law went into effect two years later.

Since then the Michigan Department of Transcreased by 41 percent, largely due to more than 90 percent drops of cans and bottles.

"Problems caused by the random throwaway of these containers have virtually disappeared," said Al Almy, director of public affairs for the Michigan Farm Bureau.

Equally important is the fact that bottles and cans returned for deposits do not get thrown into trash bags destined for increasingly rare landfill space. It is estimated that each year the deposit bill is responsible for removing 600,000 tons of bottle and can litter from Michigan's waste stream.

"The Legislature shouldn't be so reluctant to ask Michigan citizens to do their part in addressdy, former executive director of the Michigan Student Environmental Coalition.

That's a lesson that lawmakers seem loathe to hear. It took another petition drive to browbeat Lansing lawmakers into requiring deposits for containers for wine coolers and so-called cocktails in a can. That goes into effect June 1 of this year because of alcohol abuse - as one person said the other day, enough to make up several passenger-loads of 747s.

For years now, America has been committing this act of terrorism against itself. And very honestly, before MADD came along, not many said anything about it.

The general attitude was flippant, even among those in authority who could do something about it - judges and police officials. Drunk drivers involved in fatal accidents were given light sentences, if sentenced at all.

from our readers Schools need celebration of Christmas

To the editor:

As a lifelong resident of Bloomfield Hills and alumna of the public school system, I was one of the inter-'ested residents who recently toured the elementary schools in our district.

I was surprised by the lack of observance of Christmas, a national holiday, in the classrooms as well as the lack of a Christmas program. I must say that I am personally efnbarrassed that I had not previously made it my business to find out what the policy of this board has been regarding the Christmas issue.

For this reason, I attended the board of education meeting, Tuesday, Dec. 20. It was very interesting that those who were called to speak first were all in favor of the current board policy. Many comments were made after the meeting that the order of speakers appeared to be planned, perhaps to discourage opposing opinions. In addition, the be-

It boggles the mind. The good-old-boy attitude scoffed at MADD initially. "After all," the thinking went, "the boy was just out-having some fun."

BUT MADD just wouldn't let up." Members monitored trials and judges' sentencing practices. They lobbled legislatures to see that stricter laws were put on the books.

Now MADD is a group for more than just families who have been victimized by alcohol-related deaths. ... Many people across the country support its goals:

Finally, we have become aware of spread recognition that alcohol abuse isn't a joke. It's a crime.

The ribbons on the sides of those: cars, they got me to thinking about all this. Hopefully, they've made you stop and think before climbing behind the wheel after socking down too many drinks.

It could save you a lot of misery and somebody else's life.

Have a happy, safe and sober New Year.

tone of the meeting was intimidating, so much so, that it was no wonwhen their turn came.

Lindsey was impressive. She spoke so eloquently about what Christmas meant to her and dared to request to read the story of Christmas to interested classmates at lunch."

The words of Vasile Cocariu, who had lived in a communist country where freedom of expression is forbidden, reminds us of our precious liberty as Americans. There were many other pro-Christmas speakers who called her for continuing the celebration of our American traditions in the classroom. I hope that their plea will not be forgotten by this board.

IN_CONTRAST, many of those who spoke in favor of the present. policy expressed the intolerance prevelant in our community. I am particularly disturbed by the young man who said Christmas offends him. I can only surmise that this attitude of prejudice and intolerance not only exists in many homes but is encouraged. This kind of attitude underscores the necessity for children to be exposed to many religions and cultures.

Environment needs support

To the editor:

It certainly is encouraging to see "the environment" getting the attention it deserves - with the passage of proposals "C" and "D" Nov. 8. Hopefully, the leaders you call upon in your Nov. 24 editorial ("Environment - voters want it clean and green") will step forward with innovative solutions. What disturbs me is the tone of your editorial. A "clean" environment, a .- "green" environment, is made out to be something like a rack

investment chance

BEFORE I left Nevada this week; hopefully for less wintry weather in southern California, I expanded my short term investment portfolio with two legal wagers on the Detroit Red Wings and Pistons to win the 1989 Stanley Cup and National Basketball Association championship respectively. Both are judgments of the heart rather than inside trader ma-. nipulations.

Documentation has been turned over to a blood relative who will act. as my designated agent to collect the winnings and forward them to me when the proper time comes. Now I am weighing the wisdom of a long term investment in another venture which this state's laws makes perfectly legal, a brothel. But more of that later.

Shortly after my own arrival in the Lake Tahoe/Reno area, another visitor dropped in for the holidays. It was what the U.S. Weather Service called "the largest storm to hit the area since 1971."

SAMPLE headlines in the North Lake Tahoe Bonanza and Reno Gazette-Journal carried messages such "Snow Blankets Area; Storm Blamed for 170 Traffic Accidents;" "Major Winter Storm Blasts the Sierra;" "High Winds, Heavy Snow Expected Today;" "Reno-Sparks Buried."

Then another headline said, "Big Snowfall Hits at Wrong Time for Ski Operators." The ski industry, headed by famed Squaw Valley, is a winter giant in northern-Nevada and California, and as you may know the boundary between those two states runs straight through Lake Tahoe. The biggest ski crowds of the season are expected during the Christmas and New Year's holidays.

"There's such a thing as too much through bifocals Fred DeLano snow," the Gazette-Journal quoted one resort marketing coordinator as saying, "when it gets tough to drive here and people would feel safer staying home, that scares people away.'

That's exactly what happened. At 7,000 feet winds were whistling at 50 to 70 miles an hour, temperatures fell to near zero, and tire chains were mandatory for driving. Some highways, including I-80 through Donner Pass, were closed for long periods. We even were snowed in on Christmas Eve. Only Santa got through.

But of course you're asking about that other financial possibility which I mentioned. It was given a big play in the Nevada press, and probably some back home, that the Securities and Exchange Commission has been petitioned for permission to sell $23.3 million in Mustang Ranch public stock. It is proposed that 1.165 million common shares be sold for $20 each, according to a 136-page prospectus.

QUOTING again from a Repo newspaper, "The Mustang is the nation's largest and most famous legal 'house of ill-fame,' as the local ordinance puts it."

Let me quote further, but briefly, and at random:

"Like any well-run company, it's business before pleasure at Mustang Ranch where prostitutes receive 'consideration' from customers, before services are rendered, according to the prospectus. Translation: Money before sex.

'Fifty to 90 'independent contractors' live at the two-building bordello 10 miles east of Reno, according to the SEC filing. The prostitutes rent a room at Mustang, usually for $10 a day and the promise to share with management 50-50 what they earn from customers.

"Upon settlement (on a price), the prostitute takes the man's money or credit card, gives it to a cashler who accepts payment and records in a book what the customer's money is buying. . . 'logging in,' according to the SEC filing. The book is not public record.

"The prostitutes generally work three weeks in a row, then get one week off. The women have their comforts, too, like a fully equipped kitchen and services for hair-dressing, manicures, pedicures, facials and other beauty treatments. The prospectus notes it's good for business to keep the women happy."

If the stock offering is allowed, it would be the first time a bordello has become a publicly traded corporation. I guarantee that ownership of a share would be a sure-fire conversational stimulant back in Michigan.

The Mustang currently is owned by Joe and Sally Conforte who have been trying to sell, so I read, since 1985 when Joe was released from prison after serving 18 months on charges involving $2 million in unpaid income taxes. He says he wants to retire because more than 30 years in the prostitution business is enough. I wonder if the girls think so, t00.

Cut inheritance tax

Thursday, January 5, 1989 O&E

JIM BLANCHARD is missing something when he dismisses the state Legislature's flap over the inheritance tax as "game playing." The governor used that term on the Senate's effort to the a general tax bill-to another-bill-repealing-thestate inheritance tax.

John Engler, the Senate Republican chief and Blanchard's probable -1990 rival, is a mile ahead of Blanchard in recognizing the need to reduce the inheritance tax. For that matter, a number of Democrats in the "graying suburbs" also grasp the issue.

The issue is more than merely reducing state taxes by $60 million and finding replacement revenue. It's part of the long-term planning for Michigan's reindustrialization and preserving our natural and human resources.

DURING THE 1985 year-end holiday break, Engler unveiled a visionary report he had commissioned from the Hudson Institute, an Indianapolis think tank. I saved my copy. Engler has used that report as a blueprint for many programs - including cutting the inheritance tax.

Besides attracting industry, a policy Blanchard has emphasized, Hudson Institute says Michigan should 'consciously seek to attract and hold those people with the greatest choice of where to live - college students, young professionals and retirees." Let's concentrate here on the retirees.

Between 1980 and 2000, the num-

Team planning good for middle school students

Q: Our child is in grade 7. On the front of the school it says middle school, yet when I look at my child's schedule it looks like a high school schedule, six periods, six different classes. How does one recognize a real middle school?

A: A classic middle school pro-gram is different than your child is experiencing. There are three or tour criteria to determine if it is a middle school. The first criteria is usually a sixth, seventh, eighth grade configuration as opposed to a seventh, eighth and ninth grade configuration. The "transition grade" from a K-5 elementary setting or the sixth age of 65 will increase by 23 percent," the institute found. In a chapter on Traverse City, it notes: ...

"Many of these older residents will pick Michigan's lakefront areas as the place for their retirement. They may be joined by large numbers of somewhat younger Michigan residents who will choose - or be forced — to retire in their mid or late 50s . . . "

The retirees' Social Security, pension and dividend checks help fuel Traverse City's boom in service, retailing and construction industries. That has already happened in Florida and Arizona.

TO KEEP retirees and attract tourists, Michigan should "bend all its policies to the task," the institute report said.

There are blistering comments on the high percentage of state income Michigan devotes to welfare. The institute says Michigan should promote its lake country areas with spending on highways, airports, parks, recreation and tourism advertising. In this key sentence, it suggests:

"Taxes that discourage visitors (e.g., levies on hotel rooms), or that ber of Michigan residents over the make it expensive to die in Michigan > in addition to the teacher's regular planning period.

In my opinion, the team planning, component where all the students' teachers meet together is a major criteria for implementing a successful middle school concept. Some dis tricts are innovative enough to being together many of the above elements without a team planning period, but that takes commitment by administration and staff.

(Inheritance taxes), could be reduced."

(R,W,G-17A) + 19A

Essentially the plan is to cut the Michigan inheritance tax to Florida's level - virtually nothing.

Now we have the inheritance tax question in context. Engler graspe that context. Blanchard doesn't yet.

LOTS OF people go to Florida for their health or other reasons and stay there. Nothing but a burricane, could induce two retirees near and dear to me to travel north of Sarasota voluntarily Others I know maintain two residences. They can choose between Michigan and Florida as their "tar" home."

The issue is complicated by Michigan's lack of a gift tax and other details, state treasurer Bob Bowman tells me.

But as the 1989 Legislature again takes up the inheritance tax-question, Blanchard needs to understand that it's more than "game playing."

Saving money is important to people who lived through the Great Depression and worked darn hard for their wages. They prefer to leave that money to their kids, even if the kids are rotten, instead of the state, treasury, even if Bowman is a loveable and clean cut guy.

The inheritance tax cut bill deserves a better hearing than it got in 1987-88.

Retailer caters to working women

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

Sure, a woman who works has all day to shop . . . just like a farmer has time to count every piece of straw in the barn.

Martin Welss knows quite well that is not the case....

The president and chief execu-tive officer of Hadley Arden, Inc., a Livonia-based women's clothing chain, realized that in the early 1980s. He could see with his own employees - most of whom were women - that shopping was done out of necessity and not as a pastlme.

With that in mind, Hadley Arden has made a nice dime because working women don't have time.

"I think they're successful in attracting a certain type of customer," said Mark Rosenfeld, president of Jacobson's. "I don't know how many stores they have now, but they have grown steadily through the years and have carved their own niché in the market."

The market Weiss caters to is quite clear in his mind. The working women of today has special needs.

"There were a lot of working women who didn't have time for a_shopping day," said Weiss, whose clothing chain has 20 locations in the area including Westland, Garden City, Farmington and Livonia. "Their day was Saturday or Sunday and they didn't want to spend it all day shop-

How does one cater to the working woman of today? A specialty store, Hadley Arden usually can be found in neighborhood shopping centers. They are the kind of place a woman can go on her lunch hour or on her way home from work. Walk in, buy what she wants, and walk out.

The stores tend to be small. The average Hadley Ardens runs about 4,000 square feet.

SINCE THERE, isn't an abundance of space, fashion merchandise is pre-edited for the best quality for the least expensive price. Hadley Arden buyers only buy clothing with the best value, so the customer doesn't have to spend time figuring that out what is best for the dollar herself, Welss said.

Judging by sales - $15 million in 1987 alone — Weiss has figured out a way to make being small; yet large in terms numbers of outlets, pay off. Along with 20 outlets in the Detroit area, plans include adding two or three new stores a year and eventually expanding to other states.

Success has followed Weiss since he merged his family business, Arden, with Hadley stores in-1982. He was indoctrinated into the clothing business at age 12 at the Arden clothing store his father owned in Port Huron.

Weiss would work after school in the « children's department, sorting coat hangers and cleaning

You don't have to tell Mary Killeen of Livonia about the negative aspects of nursing. She's heard them all. - Except the clinical nurse specialist at Sinal Hospital hasn't let those things drive her out. She will be the first to tell you nursing is tough. But in the same breath, she'll tell you how challenging and rewarding it can be. Killeen, herself, is a prime example. She was recently selected as "Nurse of the Year" by the March of Dimes. Each year the March of Dimes cites the nurse judged to be the outstanding maternal and child health nurse by a committee of peer nurses. This year the criteria in-cluded a focus on administrative nursing.

"I always got a real high taking care of patients," said Killeen, who was presented with a plaque and a check for $500 at the recent annual meeting of the Perinatal Association of Michigan. "I love meeting moms and dads and bringing babies into the world."

HER ENTHUSIASM for nursing is only matched by her accomplishments. She has had roles in promoting perinatal nursing as an administrator, educator and researcher along with her current position of clinical nurse specialist at Sinai Hospital

As-a-director of Providence Hospital's Maternity Nursing Department from 1974 to 1981, she saw the initiation of the Family Birthing Center through all stages of development.

She spent time as an instructor and lecturer at Wayne State University (she has both her bachelor's and master's degrees in nursing from there) and was a supervisor at Metropolitan Hospital in Westland.

She has been a clinical nurse specialist at Sinai Hospital since 1986.

Killeen has been involved in extensive research projects designed to bridge the gap between nurses and new technology. She's also been a moderator, a speaker and adviser in the field of nursing.

And she certainly has come a long way from the time when she was a student nurse at the old Providence Hospital in Detroit. She was in the delivery room with other young nurses when newborns were coming left and right.

A nervous Killeen was asked to help one mother who was delivering her baby. She remembers that night like it happened two minutes ago.

up at the end of business day. After graduating from Albion College, he worked 21/2 years in Jacobson's retail management program. He eventually took over the family business in Port Huron, which had grown to eight stores.

The retail business has changed considerably from when his father operated Arden. Today, computers. register every sale instantly, allowing for management to spot instanttrends in sales. In his father's time, they would simply take a pencil and put a check in a black book after every sale.

Some things haven't changed. Weiss learned that from his father. "It's still a people business," said Weiss, who makes the 1¼ commute from Port Huron to Livonia every day. "You have to be able to work at.

STEVE JONES/stall photographer Success has followed Martin Welss since he merged his family business, Arden, with Hadley stores in 1982.

it in order to be successful. I think my father was a people person."

THOSE WHO work closely with Weiss refer to him as a rather modest individual. Unlike some entrepreneurs of his ilk, he doesn't espouse any grand philosophies about life. Married and the father of two children, he is an avid boater and exercises regularly by walking.

Sharply dressed in a navy blue suit and standing erect with both hands tucked in his pockets, Weiss is more comfortable talking about the clientele he serves and knows rather well. Hadley Arden has done two professional customer surveys to find out if the store chain was in tune with those it serves.

The woman who shops at Hadley Arden usually doesn't go with avantgarde trends. She is practical and discriminating when it comes to buying clothes.

'She doesn't accept any dramatic changes in style," he said. "She's updating her wardrobe; she's constantly reworking her old wardrobe into a new wardrobe. We understand she can't afford to discard her wardrobe' every season."

Weiss understands that because he also serves as the firm's general merchandise manager and as a buyer of outerwear. He's often flying to New York, Dallas and Los Angeles to find the latest trends.

He is assisted in the day-to-day operations by Jim Thislethwaite, who is merchandise manager, and Dave Goldfarb, who is director of operations.

"The advantage in a specialty store is that we can move a lot faster," Welss said. "Hopefully, neither we nor our customers will be stuck with a trend going the opposite way. We normally spot it fast . . . it could be as simple as a color change."

"It was a girl," said Killeen,the memory bringing a smile.

That girl is a woman of 28 today. And likewise, nursing has changed considerably since then. Technology has revolutionized medicine, and as a result, nurses have had to keep up with the pace. That has helped contribute to the nursing shortage facing many hospitals today.

ALSO, WOMEN have more ca--reer options today. When Killeen started out in the early 1960s,nursing and teaching were the only professions filled by women. Pay and long hours are other factors.

"Also nursing has suffered through a poor image portrayed in the media," Killeen said. "It doesn't have the status that it once did."

Bahai Faith

Religion strives for oneness of mankind

By Larry O'Connor staff.writer_

People of the Bahai Faith believe that all religions come from the same God and mankind should strive to become one.

 Of course, Muslims and Christians fighting in Beirut might differ as would Protestants and Catholics in Northern Ireland.

But 4.5 million people worldwide subscribe to that theory, including 21 members in Canton and other areas. And the number is growing.

Haven't heard of the Bahai Faith? Chances are you're not alone. Members say the group doesn't proselytize or solicit money from outside sources. They meet regularly in member's homes.

The premise of the Bahai Faith is simple. They believe that their faith is the most recent stage in the evolution of one Divinely ordained process, including Hinduism, Buddhism, Judaism, Christianity, Islam along with others.

Like Allah, Buddha, Christ and Mohammad are to their respective followers, Bahaullah is considered the divine messenger of the Bahai Faith.

"So we have much in common with a lot of religions," said Barbara LaFerier, chairwoman of the Canton Bahai Faith group. "What is new about us is that we believe that Bahaullah has given us some new laws to live by in this age."

SOME BASIC priniciples of the Bahai Faith include:

- Independent search for truth. • Elimination of all forms of prejudice.
- Universal auxiliary language.
- Equality of men and women.

'We're in the spiritual business of breaking down barriers between people.'

> - Mary Olson Canton Bahai public relations chairwoman

• Agreement between science and religion.

• Elimination of extremes of wealth and poverty. • Universal peace upheld by a world government.

Obviously, those_are easier said than done. But in the process of striving for oneness with mankind, Bahais learn a great deal about religion and other cultures of the world.

"We're in the spiritual business of breaking down barriers between people," said Mary Olson, public relations chairwoman of the Canton Bahai group. "We're interested in bringing cultures together for better understanding of one another."

The Canton group is diverse and includes a woman from Iran. The Bahai Faith has a strong following in that country, despite reported persecution for their beliefs.

In Canton, the group has been around for 15 years. Members meet every 19 days for the 19 Day Feast. Except they don't bring forks. The feast is not of the food variety but of a spiritual one. Matters of devotional, social and administrative are dealt with as is the reading of spiritual materials. The Bahaullah had written more than 250 books, some have yet to be translated.

Thursday, January 5, 1989 O&E

"WE ENJOY reading those along with the Bible, the Koran and all the writings of great religions," Olson said. "They all have one source -God."

The group also is involved with a youth group for the greater Detroit area and sponsors a Bahai chapter at Eastern Michigan University.

The Bahai's also have public meetings at various places in Canton. Vsually, discussions center on issues of world peace or the elimination of prejudice racial, religious and otherwise. They're issues with difficult answers.

Unanswered questions, though, are what have led many people to the Bahai Faith. Olson was raised as a Catholic but remembers being intrigued by Buddhism, figuring all those people "couldn't be wrong."

Bob Smith, vice-chairman of the Canton Bahal's, echos similar reasons for joining the group in 1976 Raised a Christian, Smith had converted to Judism and then found the Bahai Faith.

"The principle thing that attracted me was the acceptance of other religions as valid," said Smith, who belongs to the Bahai Faith along withhis wife Gloria. "I thought, 'Here's someone who doesn't condemn other religions' . . . People didn't have to say, 'Gee, I was wrong.'"

The Baihl Faith has its roots tied to Persia. On May 23, 1644, a young. man known as The Bab is said to have appounced the coming of a messenger from God.

FOR HIS announcement, the Bab was arrested, beaten and executed, Some 20,000 of his people were killed in massacres that followed in Persia.

Bahaullah, a member of one of the great patrician families of Persia, later announced himself as the mes-. senger promised by Bab. He, too,was imprisoned and tortured. He died in 1892.

Bahaullah' addressed a series of letters to the rulers, proclaiming the coming unification of humanity and the emergence of world civilization.

Followers strive to make that message come true today. Except, they try to do it in a low-key manner. Preaching of any type is not allowed. The faith is also self-supporting, and refuses contributions from outside sources.

"We; do not proselytize," Olson said. "We believe in the independent search for truth. If you believe in that premise, you're not likely to try and get people to join your religion. through any means."

A nursing home visit gives a warm feeling

Nursing/convalescent home visits this year was spent in the convaleshave been a regular part of my life for more than three decades. During college and seminary years, the visits were more group activities, with singing, games, general conversation and worship.

My visits as a parish pastor have been with specific members and friends of the parish. Holiday visits in past years with uncles and aunts, family friends, et al, have added another dimension to my experiences. with nursing/convalescent homes.

Three weeks ago, my wife's father was transferred from the bospital to a nursing/convalescent home. The art of medical diagnosis had failed to identify the causes of his deterio-rating condition, and the hospital would no longer care for him. In less than four weeks, Grandpa V. had changed from a healthy and very active 88-year-old to a man unable to care for himself.

Nursing/convalescent homes come in all different sizes and shapes. Grandpa V's home is one level and less than three years old. Owned and operated by a religious institution, it presents the kind of care facility we consider representative of our regard and esteem for life. 🐄

MOST OF my nursing/convalescent home visits have been relatively brief. Seldom have they been more than an hour, and more frequently they are a half-hour or lans. Rarely did they include visits during the noon evening meals, and never at times when patients were being put to bed. My visits had basic agendas . to visit, read Scripture, pray, share moments of memory, laughter, sadness, insight, delight, hope cent home. We joined Grandma V in her daylong visits with Grandpa V. It unfolded features of care I had previously taken for granted.

Good nursing/convalencent home care is good, basic care for flesh and bone. It has to do with the way people are helped in going to bed at night and getting up in the morning. It has to do with the number of times they are taken to the bothroom. It has to do with the way they are set at breakfast, junch and dinner. It has to do with the way the call-light is answered and how the jocpie are dressed and bathed.

Good sursing/convalescent home care will also take seriously the primary care provider and courds For all that the warning/convolutcent home is doing for Grandpa V. and for all that his medical decker is expected to do, it is still Grandma V who is the primery care provide and coordinator for Grandpa V. Good nursing/convalescent care staff will work carwinly and deliber ately with the primary care provider and coordinator.

CURRENT statistics suggest increasing number of warding/en valencent homes in the years a Hopefally, there will also be an creasing number of per them. Visits of brief de bring moments of joy and de those who live and work in an convaluencent homes, but for a moment that one visits to a personal agenda, there should be paother moment that one munds to al low the one being visited that an tunity to unfold their personal a do. Shamrocks handle

Borgess with ease

By Brad Emons staff writer

The shiner over Scott Hauncher's eye proved that Redford Catholic Central's basketball team can dish out, as well as take punishment.

Meanwhile, Shawn Respert was back in the lineup Tuesday for Redford Bishop Borgess, but it didn't matter as the host Shamrocks opened the Central Division portion of their schedule with a convincing 67-54 basketball victory.

Respert, the Spartans' top scorer who sat two games last week (losses to Saginaw and Flint Central) due to facial injuries suffered in an auto accident, continued to take his lumps.

The 6-2 junior finished with only 11 points and spent the early stages of the fourth quarter wearing an icepack on his head after colliding with Hauncher.

It was that kind of night for the Spartans, and CC made it possible.

"Our guys are smaller, but they waged war," said CC coach Bernie Holowicki. "We really battled them on the boards.

"We were ready to play and we were attacking."

CC'S TRAPPING ZONE defense was effective, particularly in the first quarter. The Spartans fell behind 9-0 before they knew what had hit them.

But Borgess stayed relatively close at the half, trailing by only six, 32-26, thanks to the inside play of 6foot-4 junior Kareem Carpenter, sence, CC sprinkled in an effective doesn't play with the flow and he befour-corner delay game as Boykin, the 6-foot senior, directed traffic.

"TERRY'S JOB is to set the table,"-Holowicki-said. "He handledthe pressure, and they (Borgess) gave us a lot of pressure. He's developing into an excellent point guard." The CC coach expected Borgess would come out and press. "We knew we had to use the delay sometime," he said. "But we had hoped to get the lead."

Borgess coach Mike Fusco, whose team slipped to 2-4 overall, knew the Shamrocks would be ready to play.

"They came out with a world of confidence after the first quarter and they also got the first five points to start the second half, which really hurt us," said the Borgess coach.-"Our kids were not aggressive or attacking as much as we should have. Emotionally, I think were were ready to play, but we weren't mentally ready. I don't know if we have enough confidence yet because we're basically a young team."

Respert had taken part in three practice sessions (including a scrimmage) in preparation for the game, but he managed only two free throws in the first half.

comes tentative," Fusco said. "He may have been thinking a little bit too much instead of playing. Within the structure, he just needed to play."

The only player to score in double figures for Borgess, other than Carpenter and Respert, was senior guard Charles North, who added 14. (North hit four shots from threepoint range.)

Meanwhile, CC had a more balanced attack.

Schaner, the left-handed sharpshooter, contributed eight second-half points. Hauncher and sophomore Jon Barbara (off the bench) also added eight each.

"This is a good morale win for our school, we needed it badly," said Holowicki, whose team is a deceiving 2-4 overall. "I think this division is wide open now, but (Birmingham) Brother Rice is big and talented.

"And Borgess isn't to be taken lightly. You could see at the end of the game that they're a quality team."

But in Fusco's eyes, the quality was lacking, at least on this night.

"This is something where we've got to sit back and re-evaluate," he said. "Maybe it's time to try_some_ "SOMETIMES HE (Respert) other things."

The start of the second half was all CC as Jeff Schaner's basket made it 34-26. Senior point-guard Terry Boykin, who led everybody with 23 points, nailed a three-pointer as Shamrocks were off and running, eventually leading by 15 at the close of three quarters and by as many as 22 in the final quarter.

free throws coming into Tuesday's against Clarenceville, including six in a row to end the game.

The bowl games were boring any-Way.

MAYBE CLARENCEVILLE coach Paul Clough should have followed Gilliam's lead. The Trojans made only 11 of their 20 shots at the line.

"We've been losing games at the free throw line," said Gilliam, "Soevery kid had to shoot 125 free throws until we ran out of time Monday. If we beat anybody it's going to be close."

Not Tuesday.

The Class D Patriots (3-6 overall) jumped out to a commanding 14-4lead after one quarter and led 32-15 at halftime. Class B Clarenceville (1-3) missed 12 of its first 14 shots and for the game shot a paltry 25 percent (13-53).

"If we wouldn't have put ourselves game, converted 15 of 20 at the line in such a hole, we could have done something," said Clough, who was reminded of his team's futile shooting. "Every game we've had quarters where we've gone one-for-something or two-for-something at the max,

> "WE HAVEN'T been scoring that well. We've been somewhat inconsistent. And today we had bad passes, turnovers. We put ourselves in a hole we couldn't get out of."

Temple's balanced attack had five players in double figures, led by senior Maurice Little with 15 points and nine rebounds. Roy Neal scored 13 points, followed by Marlon Reed with 12. Brennden Figurski and Jeff Weiss finished with 10 points each.

Little dominated the second quarter, making all five of his shot attempts and scoring 10 points. As a team, Temple was 22-of-50 (44 percent) from the floor for the game.

Gilliam praised Little, but knows it takes a team effort for the Patri-. ots to win.

"Mo'is quick as a cat," Gilliam said. "I didn't even know he had that many in the second quarter until I looked at the clipboard at halftime. When he squares up to the basket he's tough.

WE HAVE NO stars. Everyone has to work hard. This is a hard working team with a lot of good people."

Clough said he had hoped to play some zone defense, but Clarenceville got so far behind so early, the Trojans couldn't afford to.

"If the game had been closer we would have gone to the zone to stop Little," he said. "The had five pretty good players and Little took our shorter guards down inside and he can really get up in the air."

Temple plays 10 teams above the Class D level, this year, and last weekend split games to Class A opponents at the Taylor Baptist Park-Holiday Tournament.

The Patriots defeated Wyandotte Roosevelt, 50-48, in the opening round before falling to Taylor Kennedy in the title game, 48-38.

The basketball game wasn't over yet. Time hadn't expired.

the first half, the host Rocks fought off a second-half comeback by the Braves to begin 1989 with a 58-46 victory.

Salem improved to 5-1 overall, with its only loss being to Plymouth Canton prior to the holiday break. Ypsilanti is going the other way at 1-5.

"You know they're going to make runs at you, and you have to be able to weather the storm," Salem coach Bob Brodie said, refering to the harried fourth quarter in which the Braves cut Salem's 33-15 halftime lead to seven.

WE SAT ON it a little bit - not on purpose. We played rather passively and let Ypsilanti have control of the tempo for eight minutes."

With the Rocks leading 36-19, the clock went on the fritz with less than two minutes gone in the second half.

Salem managed to keep its third quarter lead at 18, thanks to three late baskets by Jeff Elliott, the 6-After all but burying Ypsilanti in foot-2 senior who had another superb outing with a game-high 26 points.

But the wheels came off the Salem machine in the finale. The Braves were pressing - literally and figuratively - and took over with more aggressive defense.

Elliott's hook provided the only Salem points in the first 6:15 of the period, and the Rocks saw a 48-30 lead dwindle to 50-43 when Ivan Davis put back a rebound, capping a run of seven unanswered points.

Salem guards Craig Marshall and Jeff Gold, both of whom played solid, all-round games, made two free throws aplece to break Ypsilanti's momentum and give the Rocks some school right now," he said. "But I can't complain. My job is to go to school and study. And one of my favorite things is hockey. Each day I look forward to spending those two hours on the ice."

Walt Bartels doing his part

With that type of attitude, Bartels is willing to sacrifice in order for the Spartans to win a Central Collegiate Hockey Association crown and a trip to the NCAA Tournament.

wasn't quite the caliber of another walk-on, Livonian Mike Donnelly, who on eventually worked his way up the ladder to become an All-American with the Spartans, lead-The sophomore walk-on from ing MSU to the 1986 NCAA crown. Plymouth, who graduated from (He is now a member of the Buffalo Redford Catholic Central High, has ----Sabres.)----

But the Spartan coach liked what he saw in Bartels.

"We gave Mike Donnelly more of a chance because he led his Junior A League in scoring," recalls Mason, "The difference between Mike and Walt was that Walt was coming-right-out-of-high-school;-andthere's a big difference.

"But Walt worked hard and improved the physical aspects of his game, which helped him out a great deal."

Bartels, who has scored four goals and added two assists in the Spartans' first 22 games, admitted, "Ī just hung on."

"I GUESS YOU could say I got very lucky my first year," he said. "I went to Michigan State because of the school. I thought I was done playing hockey."

Bartels credits his high school coach at Redford CC, Jack Gumbleton, for establishing a work eth-

Spartan walk-on earns plaudits

"What he (Gumbleton) instilled In me was discipline," Bartels said. "And I also learned what hard work was all about."

Before his freshman year, Bartels lifted weights vigorously and skated throughout the summer.

"Going from high school to college is a big jump," Bartels said. "I learned from the older guys by just watching them. Many of those guys I'm in awe of and still am. A lot of those guys are now playing in the NHL.'

Bartels spent a majority of his freshman season on the sidelines, but avoided the ax.

AN HONORS STUDENT at MSU's James Madison College,

Bartels spent eight weeks studying. in Cambridge, England, focusing on international politics and economics.

But eight weeks in England set his off-season conditioning - program back.

"I ran-and-did-pushups every day, but I was off the ice eight weeks," he said. "I was skinny and I was afraid I wouldn't make the. team."

But Mason said Bartels had "right temperment and personality to do a good job."

"He's a plugger who doesn't make any mistakes," said the MSU coach. "And I'm not afraid to put him out there in crucial situations because he never makes mistakes. He also has a great sense of humor."

Bartels is doing his part and has gladly accepted his role.

"Mason has a system and I try to follow what he says," said the right winger. "Basically I'm a grinder. I don't have many skills, but all I can do is go out and try my best."

THE SPARTANS, minus one of their top scorers, Rod Brind'Amor, away playing in the World Junior Tournament, tried their best in the Great Lakes Tournament, but it wasn't enough to beat North Dakota and a bot goaltender named Norm Dickson,

After the stunning 7-3 loss to the Fighting Sioux, MSU rebounded in the consolation game to beat Michigan Tech, 7-1.

Not to make excuses, but we had just come off a long break and we hadn't played in awhile," Bartels said. "North Dakota had come off playing a Russian team and their tempo was faster than we expected. And their goalle (Dickson)played great.

"Against Tech we tried to show that we had a talented team and could play better. here was no vendetta. We just knew we could play better than the first night."

The MSU coaching staff hasn't talked yet with Bartels about putting him on scholarship, but the Plymouth native believes that will take care of itself.

"IT_WOULD BE nice because I'm paying a lot of money to go to Livonia teams are expected to finish 1-2-3 against in the Suburban Prep Hockey League this season.

January showdowns will determine league titles

All four Observerland prep hockey teams took breaks over the Christmas Holidays, but all will be back in action by next week. See standings.

Redford Catholic Central, with only a 6-5 loss to Trenton in the. Michigan Metro High School circuit, returns to league action Saturday at home against Ann Arbor Pioneer.

The Shamrocks have four big dates this month including games against state-ranked Southgate Anderson, Birmingham Brother Rice (home) and Trenton (home).

Meanwhile, Suburban Prep League leader Livonia Churchill, which has lost only once in 10 games, has a pair of pivotal games in a sixgame span, meeting rival Livonia Franklin (the only team to beat the Chargers) on Wednesday, Jan. 18, following a meeting Friday, Jan. 13, against Livonia Stevenson. Both games are scheduled for Livonia's Edgar Arena

FRANKLIN AND CC played each other in a scrimmage last week.

Stevenson, meanwhile, is off to the slowest start among area teams, but the Spartans have yet to lose in the SPHL.

Franklin and Stevenson tied last month in their first meeting, 2-2.

Stevenson and Redford CC will square off for the second time this season on Saturday, Jan. 28, at the Redford Ice Arena.

JERRY ZOLYNSKY/staff photographe Albert Scaglioni, professor of engineering turned art dealer, says all of his engineering skills have served him well as he built one of the largest art galleries in the country. Being born into a family of art collectors didn't hurt either.

20 years later

Engineer turns art into bigtime operation

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

S ALBERT SCAGLIONI, FOUNDER of Park West Gallery of Southfield, spoke of his 20 years of selling art, his thoughts moved quickly from past to future.

In two decades he made the leap from owner of a small gallery on Nine Mile near Telegraph to president of the corporation which operates one of the largest, if not the largest gallery in the country.

The current gallery, 29469 Northwestern, is 5,000 square feet of display space; counting warehouse and offices it hits a rather astounding 40,000 square feet.

"I've been around a lot, and I haven't seen anything remotely this size," said Scaglioni as he stood in the below with its 27 foot ceiling. Instead of the usual one or two works per wall, there were many on each wall by a variety of artists. It is a 20th anniversary show of works by artists whom the gallery regularly shows such as Andras Markos, Agam, Laszlo Dus, Picasso, Erte, Chagall, Rembrandt, Manuel Robbe and Harold Altman.

"It's incredible we ended up with 500 pictures plus sculpture and ancient documents," said Scaglioni, adding that he was skeptical at first of the mixture and using so much at one time.

that way all the time . . . people stay longer. People say this is the way it should be hung. Instead of 30 minutes, they may stay three hours. It was a surprise to me. It's a real change for Park West Gallery. I'm gonna go with it."

HE SAID THE eclectic taste level of the gallery's clients has been influential in the change as well. Clients enjoy seeing a contemporary abstract expressionist painting by Markos hanging beside a French impressionist work, a Chagall or a Rembrandt.

"This," he said, "also allows the client's own taste to dominate. They gravitate to things they like and are less inhibited and less intimidated."

Scaglioni, who has been pouring all of his efforts and extensive talents into this gallery business for two decmain floor gallery looking down to the huge gallery . ades and, in particular, whipping this larger than life gallery operation into shape, said he plans to turn the day-to-day operation over to his staff. He will continue to head the corporation and make the exhibition and acquisiton decisions.

> "It will be a slow withdrawal, but the image of the company will never change as long as I'm alive." he said.

He said, "This is a place for me to display and sell things that have taken me 30 years to collect. I was an avid collector for 10 years while I was teaching and he loves to swim in the ocean and go horse back riding.

cumstances of each piece of art I bought."

Before becoming a gallery owner, Scaglioni, who has a doctorate in mechanical engineering taught at Michigan State University and Wayne State. He grew up in New York City in the midst of a family who loved classical music, opera and especially art. Art collecting came as naturally as walking or talking.

And it didn't surprise him at all (possibly everybody else) that his engineering and mathematical skills translated immediately and well to the art business.

For instance, the gallery is now in the final stages on cataloguing everything about each work of art and each artist on an IBM AS 400 computer. Each work of art is marked with a bar code. Using this system, the gallery can produce a catalogue for a major exhibition in a few hours. The corporation has a printing business which will open soon a few doors from the gallery in Park West Plaza.

A COMPUTER THIS SIZE is an invaluable tool in a business which is so international in scope and so dependent upon the fine details about hundreds of thousands of different items.

Scaglioni said he and his wife will spend more time in their home near Puerta Vallarta, Mexico. When there very recently live come to grips with the enormity of Still, one of the major attractions, in addition to the

"It's gone over so well, we may keep several gallery our collections . . . I can give you the history and cir- setting, 700 feet on top of the mountain "with 500 miles of jungle at my back" and the climate, is the telescope which he has on the root of his home. Astronomy is another all-comsuming interest.

Between them they have two daughters and two sons and while the young women aren't interested in the gallery, Scaglioni's son Mark, 19, and his stepson, John, 24,are. Both work there parttime.

Scaglioni said he has had many lucrative offers for. alternative uses for the building, but he isn't interested. The location is highly desirable.

"If I wanted to pick a tougher place to build a big gallery (than metropolitan Detroit), I don't know where it would have been. New York would have been easier. Chicago would have been easier . . . . But, I couldn't have picked an easier place than Northwestern Highway."

TO ANALYZE HOW he went from a small gallery with a few employees to 5,000 square feet of display space and 40 employees is another story. But, as he looks back Scaglioni is certain about one thing, "People -began to buy when I started to talk about the art and the artist." And still today, he said, "We know a lot about the objects we offer."

And his personal collection? What does he have on the walls of his house? It looks a lot like the gallery, he sald, he buys what he likes for both.

Make progress by setting goals

IS THE season for resolutions, fa la la la la ..... la la la

Me? Well, I'm going to lose weight and get my cholesterol level down. I'm going to sculpt and paint more. I'm going to travel more. Take better photographs. I'm even going to brush Tiffany, my standard poodle, every week at least until February.

I believe in goals. I must always have a goal. Did you ever hear the saying, "If you aim at nothing, you'll hit it every time." I even need a deadline for artwork and writing. If I receive a commission and the customer says, "When you find the time," I interrupt and say, "No, I'm sorry, but I have to work on a deadline or pickup date." Why? Because I know me and "me" will never find the time.

So I know "me," but do you know "you?"

Are you the artist who has for 10 years only worked a black . and white or one-color medium? Are you one who sells paintings but lacks background in the drawing media? Are you secretly afraid that you will be asked to draw people? Do you fear the commercial commission? Have you ever, wondered about sculpture or anatomy but feared you weren't good enough?

Well, come on then, make some resolutions. Set some goals and them make the commitment. Remember the word commitment means "no alternatives" or otherwise stated: Go for it!

What if all you need is a start? Maybe just finding a spot of your own somewhere in the house to do your art. Perhaps your talent is apparent but you lack the technical know-how. Perhaps all you may need is some encouragement from your familyoor friends. Artists are usually sensitive and their art is dependent on the maintenance of that condition. So the push to begin or change subject/media often comes from loved ones.

By the way, I said "sensitive" and not touchy. Touchy artists may just as well hang a sign around their necks that reads: "Hi, I'm a touchy artist. I am insecure and will never improve in my ability or attitude." You see, you never know until you are exposed to a learning situation.

Honestly, I would be the most miserable of all men if I thought I had to pretend to myself or others that I knew it all. I learned early on the very good feelings of the phrase, "I don't know," and the challenge of the following phrase, "but I will find out."~

It is true that this year many of the circumstances and situations in which you will find yourself are out of your control. It is also true that many of this year's situations and circumstances are a result of your decisions and commitments. So make this the year you decide to expand your art.

In the meantime, from all of us at the Art Store & More, have a happy and healthy New Year.

David Messing has been an area art teacher for more than 10 years. He is also the owner of the Art Store & More in Livonia.

Art show coincides with ice-spectacular

Sculpture Spectacular, the Plymouth Community Arts Council invites the viewing public to look at another art form.

The exhibit, "Michigan Art '89" is open to the public during the two weeks of the ice show. There is no admission charge. The exhibit is housed at Growthworks, 271 S. Main.

Winners of the statewide competition were honored at a reception-yesterday. During the re-

In conjunction with the 1989 Plymouth Ice ception, cash awards by the contest sponsor Michigan National Bank were presented to nine artists selected by art show judge Carol Ann Carter, an associate professor at the University of Michigan.

Exhibit hours are 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday; and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. Many of the works will be available for purchase.

Nothing warms a room visually like the rich grain of a wood floor. If you are considering wood vis-a-vis carpet, the flooring will be a bit more. The wood, however, will pay back with lifelong service as well as beauty.

New polyurethane finishes and woods that are impregnated with plastic to ensure easy maintenance should dispel any concern for costly

At you are in a home with strip fooring, what you have is probably oak. If you should decide to show your floor, any number of finishes are available, from light to dark.

Area rugs are the most versatile and eye-catching of all floor coverings. Used atop wood or any hard surface, they can make your color statement. Area rugs should not be used over carpeting as they will ride. You can use a rug under a table where there is carpet.

AN AREA RUG CAN be more than an attention getter. It's also the easiest floor covering to use when part of your house from another. For example, if you have a living-dining room combination, the area rug used in the conversation grouping will separate it from the dining area.

If you are interested in purchasing cerned about your budget, area rugs give you an excellent way to invest in top-of-the-line floor covering.

Antique Orientals are the aristocrats_of_area_rugs_and_command prices in the tens of thousands of dollars. Why are they so expensive? Rarity and craftmanship command the price. An Oriental is a one-of-akind work of art. Buying one is a truly wise investment.

Orientals are by definition handmade lets you recognize the difference between an authentic Oriental rug or a machine-made rug with an. Nawara and Peter Williams. Oriental design. One good way to distinguish is to examine the fringe. In a genuine Oriental, it's an extension of the warp threads. In machinemade rugs, the fringe is sewn on and is not an integral part of the rug's body.

Your best source for Orientals is a reputable, established dealer. One of those is Azar's in Birmingham. They have a wonderful collection from Turkey, Iran, Pakistan and China. you want to visually separate one __ They will let you take a rug home for a trial period, and you should take advantage of this. In that way, you will be able to see how the rug looks in your room and have plenty of time to examine it.

ETROIT'S stature as host of North America's only truly international auto show was further underscored by the Society of Automotive Analysts (SAA), with the announcement that the group will hold an international conference in conjunction with the show.

But it will be the show itself that, will demonstrate to the world the global significance of the show, Here's a little of what show-goers can expect:

• Chevrolet and Pontiac will introduce their new line of allpurpose vehicles. Chevrolet will introduce its Lumina coupe and sedan, its new mid-size lineup for the 1990s. Pontiac will display for the first time a new concept car. Pictures can be found elsewhere in this special section.

 Mazda will introduce a new vehicle yet to be announced.

• Porsche will show for the first time in North America three new models — the 911 Carrera 4, the 911 Speedster and the 944 S2 Cabriolet.

Lincoln-Mercury Division of the Ford Motor Co. may introduce the 1990 version of its Lincoln Town Car.

• Nissan Motor Company's Infiniti Division will introduce its new line of luxury cars.

• Ford Division of Ford Motor Co._will_introduce a new concept car and show other concept vehicles.

• Buick Division of General Motors Cop. will introduce a new concept car and its new Ultra modél.

 Cadillac Division of General Motors Corp. will introduce a new concept car. GM's Oldsmobile Division also plans to introduce at least one new concept car.

An expanded and renovated Cobo Hall will be auto show headquarters.

Autos in spotlight, but charities shine

WO ADDITIONAL children's charities will benefit from this year's charity preview, the traditional black-tie party that opens the Detroit Auto Dealers Association's annual auto show. This year's preview also marks the grand opening of the expanded and renovated Cobo Hall.

The March of Dimes and the Detroit Institute for Children join four other children's charities as financial beneficiaries of Detroit's International Auto Show.

Last year's charity preview generated more than $200,000 for Boys' and Girls' Clubs of Metropolitan Detroit, The Children's Center, the Easter Seals societies of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties and the Assistance والمراجعة المراجعة المراجعة وترجر مراجعهم وبالموار ومعجر وردار والمراجع والمراجع المراجع المراجع المراجع المراجع المراجع

Powered to charge

The first supercharged engine to power a domestically built car in more than 30 years is standard equipment in the 1989 Ford Thunderbird Super Coupe. The 3.8-liter V-8 (inset) develops 210 horsepower. Ford last offered a supercharger in 1957 when a limited number of blown Thunderbirds were built. However, there is little resemblance between the supercharger technology on the 1989 models and that used three decades ago.

Infiniti, the luxury car division of Nissan Motor Corporation in USA, will be introduced at the Detroit Auto Show in Cobo Hall Jan. 7-15. Offered in the new line are a V-8 four-door luxury sedan, a V-6 sports coupe and a V-6 convertible based on the coupe. A four-door sedan will also be added to the Infiniti line in the second model year. Shown here is the Infiniti Q45 with a 4.5-liter, 32-valve, high-performance V-8 engine. Among the first new dealers will be Marvin Tamaroff of Southfield and Hoot McInerney of Bloomfield Hills.

Mid-size Hyundai rolling into U.S.

Thursday, January 5, 1989

The mid-size Hyundai Sonata, new for 1989, is being launched at Hyundai dealerships around the nation. Included in the Sonata's long list of standard features are a 2.4 liter four-cylinder engine with electronic fuel injection, power rack and pinion steering, power-assisted ventilated front disc brakes, a tilt steering column, tachometer, digital quarter clock and more. Suggested retail price is $9,695. The Sonata follows by nearly three years the introduction of the Excel subcompact.

Power boost for Allante

Cadillac Allante, the two-passenger flagship of one of America's luxury cars, receives a major power increase for 1989. A new 4.5-liter V-8 engine developing 200 horsepower propels Allante from 0-60 mph in less than 8.5 seconds and to a top speed of 135 mph. Additional refinements include softer leather seating and door panels, new standard interior trim color (charcoal) and a new exterior color (light blue metallic).

Olds making a bid for new generation

"It's the New Generation of Olds." With those words and a new advertising campaign to back them up, Oldsmobile will attack the 1989 model year. On display at the Detroit Auto Show will be some of its new weaponry: the Cutlass Supreme (above), Oldsmobile's freshest expression of automotive distinction. At the right, Cutlass Calais, the car that introduced Oldsmobile's Quad 4 engine to American buyers; and at right above, the International Series coupe.

Buick Presents The Great American Road Show.

1989 BUICK REATTA

1989 BUICK CENTURY

The Buick exhibit at the Auto Show this year is where the Great American Road begins. And it's a show you won't want to miss — because it offers Buick's best.

Experience Reatta.

Buick's premium American 2-seater is exhilarating in every way. One look and you'll see Reatta is a sporty car with all the luxury of a Buick. Reatta was born to perform.

Welcome to the next Century.

Imagine life in the next Century...the Buick Century. With a fresh new style and premium features you expect from the best-selling Buick on the American road. All at a price that will allow you to enter the next Century most comfortably.

See the 1989 Bulck Riviera.

It is noticeably longer and its styling is totally redesigned, yet you recognize it immediately. The new Riviera is as contemporary as a car can be, yet it recalls a grand tradition. Come and take a closer look. Riviera...it's a classic all over again.

See all the exciting new Buicks at the Auto Show this year. It'll be easy to understand why the Great American Road belongs to Buick.

Cobo's physical attributes now include:

• 84 meeting rooms ranging in size from 600 square feet to 33,000 square feet.

• A 27,000 square foot grand ballroom.

• A completely carpeted concourse area stretching the length of two city blocks.

"WE'RE DELIGHTED with the way our expansion has shaped up," said Cobo director June Roselle. "The convention and trade show industry is growing so fast that we were in danger of losing several long-time customers because we simply did not have enough room to accommodate their events.

"Within a few years, we expect to pump nearly $225 million annually in convention-related revenue into this region compared with about $100 million prior to the expansion. We expect the number of conventions and trade shows to double to 90 in the next five years, doubling our current annual attendance to nearly 800,000 people," Roselle said.

Originally opened in 1960, the Cobo expansion project began in October 1985.

'A very significant thing about this first North American International Auto Show is that products will be introduced here that might be exported to Japan or Europe.'

Ultra to debut

Buick Motor Division will be introducing its most luxurious sedan - the Park Avenue Ultra - at the Detroit Auto Show in Cobo-Hall. Also on exhibit will be the extensively restyled models of its luxurious Riviera and mid-size Century. Ultra's interior includes leather on all surfaces of the seats, on the door -- panels -- and -- steering wheel, plus padded leather on the glove-box door. Ultra's exterior is identified with two-tone paint, with a choice of six colors over a silver lower with accent stripes.

Three new Geo models that offer buyers a wide selection of imported vehicles under a single nameplate are being introduced during the 1989 model year. Geo Prizm (front) is a sophisticated family sedan; Geo

Metro is the most fuel-efficient vehicle sold in America; and Geo Tracker convertible (rear) is an all-new 4-wheel-drive sport utility vehicle.

Chevrolet's Lumina seden and Lumina APV are 1990 models that begin appearing in showrooms in fail 1969 as part of the lineup making its debut at the auto show in Detroit.

Geo — of the world makes that kind of an auto show entrance

S PART of the most massive product launch in its history, Chevrolet unveils six new vehicles at the North American International Auto Show. The six — the three-member Lumina family of vehicles, the Corvette ZR-1, a high-style Geo Prizm and a sporty Geo Storm — will reach dealer showrooms during 1989.

The Indy 500-winning Chevypowered Penske PC-17 will be on display along with the new Lumina NASCAR vehicle representing Chevrolet motorsports — the most successful in the industry — at the exhibit. Chevrolet's XT-2 experimental truck will be featured in the truck area.

The "Heartbeat Dancers," a magician, hoola hoop trickster and the "Rappers" dance group will entertain the auto show audience.

Lumina — the bright new name in transportation — has three members: a sedan that is sleek yet roomy, a sporty yet spacious coupe and a multipurpose passenger vehicle unlike anything before it.

Prizm, the Geo flagship family sedan, and Storm, the sporty 2' coupe, will round out the Geo lineup and are shown with the other Geo family members: the fuel-efficient "Metro," the economical "Spectrum," and "Tracker," a new four-wheel-drive sport utility vehicle.

Geo — signifying "of the world" gives an international flavor to this vehicle line and distinguishes it from the rest of Chevrolet, a move designed to increase sales to import buyers.
