City, police agree on chief

Paul Schnarr became Westland's fourth police chief Thursday, as Mayor Charles Griffin removed the "acting" designation from Schnarr's title and the threat of a costly legal battle with the union representing supervisory police employees at the same time.

A Livonia attorney representing the Westland Police Lieutenants and Sergeants Association said all legal actions regarding the chief's appointment would be dropped.

Schnarr said he was pleasantly surprised by the appointment. "It still hasn't sunk in yet," he said.

"The job is a great responsibility, and I can only say that I'm going to try and give this city the best police department in the area," Schnarr Schnarr had been serving as acting chief since Jan. 2 when Fred Dansby retired to accept the job of Romulus public safety director.

A DISPUTE over who would be named to the permanent position developed after the appointmentthough.

The union filed three separate legal actions against the city Jan. 12. The union charged the city with breach of contract, filed an unfair labor practice charge with the Michigan Employment Relations Commission and filed a lawsuit in Wayne County Circuit Court compelling the city to immediately promote Schnarr to the chief's job.

The actions were based on the union's stand that the current eligibility list, which was less than two years old at the time of Dansby's resignation, should have been used to fill the department's top job.

Schnarr was the only person on

Griffin said Thursday his decision to promote Schnarr was made after rethinking his original plan to ask the civil service commission for new testing of candidates.

"I've felt all along that competition for the job was important," the mayor said. "But after I saw the support for Paul Schnarr within the association and after I discussed the situation again with my advisers, I felt that this would be the best way to handle things."

But the mayor didn't completely back off from his original plan.

court over this, the city would have won," he said.

FRANK GUIDO, the attorney representing the association, said he thought the mayor "did the right thing" by naming Schnarr chief.

"All too often, when the battle lines are drawn, people just don't back down even if that's the best thing to do," Guido said.

"It would be easy for me to say the mayor saw the handwriting on the wall as far as winning the case, but I won't second guess his motiva-

SCHNARR SERVED for eight years as a public safety officer in Oak Park before becoming a charter member of the new Westland police force in the fall of 1966.

He finished second to Dansby in written and oral examinations for the chief's job in early 1987.

Schnarr said Thursday he would make the safety of local residents his top priority.

He said he would push for additional officers or a redistribution of manpower that would "put more officers on the streets and make them more visible, particularly in highcrime neighborhoods." The new chief said he would like a bigger role for the crime prevention bureau, put into place by Dansby in April 1987.

Schnarr said the dispute over the chief's job had "done some damage" within the department, but he didn't see that as a long-term problem.

"I think I have the full support of patrol officers and the commanding I feel strongly that if we went to officers," he said.

When area teachers talk about science proficiency, sooner or later the conversation turns to MEAP, or the Michigan Educational Assessment

In one form or another, MEAP has been in most public and some private schools for almost two decades, giving tests to more than a million elementary, middle and high school Thus, in September, when the national science report card concluded that students were not getting adequate training in science, administrators in Oakland and Wayne countles were not particularly surprised.

In Oakland County two years ago, 37 percent of 13,635 10th-grade students could not correctly answer half of the test's objectives. In Wayne County, more than 60 could not answer correctly on half the objectives. On a statewide basis, about 44 percent of 119,247-students_scored atcomparable levels.

The results were cause for concern, educators said, because MEAP tests are intended to measure "minimal" or "essential", science knowledge. The questions weren't as difficult nor as challenging as those on the SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test) or ACT (American College Test) re-

But MEAP did more than provide a statistical handle on a complex problem. MEAP tests - especially the relatively low science scores sent shock waves throughout much of the educational community.

IF THE 1986 MEAP science test had been an earthquake, it would have measured about 6.0 on the Richter scale - not potent enough to cause serious damage generally, but strong enough to shake things up.

"The MEAP tests got people up in arms," said M. Cherie Cornick, consultant to the Michigan Department of Education. "Before the tests came out, people seemed more concerned about the football team-or the marching band. But when the test results came out, they started thinking about science and math."

Not everybody had that reaction, of course. Some educators complained the test was inappropriate rote, or from lectures or books. and didn't accurately measure what students knew in science.

Private schools call MEAP too easy

By Tom Henderson staff writer

Only a small percentage of private schools choose to participate in the Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) tests. According to administrators of many private schools in western Wayne County, the tests are too easy for their students.

"That's absolutely true. That's one of the reasons a lot of schools contacted, just five took the MEAP stopped taking it. "They don't fit in with the testing program we've initiated here," sald Ross Stueber, principal of 260 students at Westland Lutheran High School. "MEAP only tests minimal objectives. We prefer to use higher standards here. And other tests give us more data."

"Kids here just sail right through that test. They just go right through it like it's nothing," said Phil Heyer, head of counseling at Catholic Central in Redford Township. "It has very little use for us. Our kids are mostly college prep and that test isn't geared for them."

"We did participate (in MEAP) once previously, but the results weren't particularly relevant to us," said principal Carol Heldt of Hosanna-Tabor Lutheran, which has 240

Private-school administrators say that part of the problem with MEAP is the way the test is scored. Questions are lumped into three-question categories known as objectives. On the science portion, for example, there are three questions on light as a form of energy, and three questions on the measurement of matter.

You are given credit for achieving an objective if you know two of the three answers. You don't get any more credit for three answers than you do for two.

Theoretically, you could score 100 on the MEAP test by answering correctly only two-thirds of the questions. "Is that really mastering somely five years ago to encourage future engineers and scientists by demonstrating practical science at the company Engineering and Research complex in Dearborn.

Since the fall of 1984, hundreds of students have been involved in demonstrations on cryogenics, lasers, vacuum science, computer programming, atmospheric chemistry and other topic areas, said program director John L. Bomback.

"The program has evolved gradually," he said. "In the first year (1984) there were 24 students attending the Saturday classes. Now we have more than 200."

THE PROGRAM ALSO includes a summer internship program for good students to get further involved in practical science, he said. Students are hired for six weeks to work with staff researchers involved in real projects.

"Ford hired 20 interns last summer paying them about $650 for four weeks work, or about what they

Starstruck: Kids wowed by astronomy wizard

Dr. Clyde Tombaugh was still in high school on when he began making sketches of planets he his family's Kansas wheat farm in the 1920s observed through a home-made telescope.

By Pat Murphy staff writer

About 700 students in Wayne County had a rare opportunity to meet with the man credited with discovering the planet Pluto.

Dr. Clyde W. Tombaugh, 82, was the main attraction at a one-day meeting in November at Bentley High School in Livonia. The meeting was put together by the Wayne County Math and Science Council, an informal group of teachers, with help from entities like the Livionia School District and the Michigan Department of Education.

-State officials cited Tombaugh's appearance as an excellent example of learning by doing.

"Teachers and students had the chance to meet with somebody of extreme stature," said M. Cherie Cornick, consultant to the Michigan Department of Education.

They got the chance to ask questions and hear what he had to offer. They followed up with small workshops where youngsters could do some hands-on experiments. Most had to do with astronomy, but some of the workshops dealt with other earth sciences.

Tombaugh was remarkable, said Richard B. Braun, science coordinator for Livonia schools.

SCIENCE TEXTBOOKS note that Tombaugh was still in high school on his family's wheat farm in Kansas in the 1920s when he began making sketches of planets he observed through a home-made telescope. Some of those sketches were detailed enough to include the polar caps of Mars and the moons of Jupiperturbations were caused by gravity of a large object nearby, possibly an undiscovered planet.

When Tombaugh sent some of his sketches to the Lowell Observatory for comment, officials responded by offering him a job.

Tombaugh estimated that he observed and photographed some 90 million stars using the calculations of Lowell before discovering the planet in February of 1930.

The discovery was heralded as a triumph for the process of discovery by prediction. It was announced in March 1930, in conjunction with the 75th anniversary of the birth of Percival Lowell and the discovery of the planet Uranus.

TOMBAUGH KNEW he was making history and reportedly told colleagues that he intentionally looked at his watch so he could later declare that Pluto was discovered at "a few minutes of 4 p.m." on Feb. 18,

The astronomer talked about the discovery to groups of youngsters, answering questions as young minds were stimulated. One group, fourth graders from Cass Elementary in . Livonia, made the following observations about meeting with Tombaugh and the accompanying workshops.

Tombaugh talked about building his first telescope (about six feet long), said Greg Hnatiuk. "His next telescope was about two stories

Nancy Staffend said Tombaugh discussed how the orbits of Pluto and Neptune would change. "He (Tombaugh) put a lot of time and effort into finding Pluto," she said. "That shows that hard work pays off."

Danielle Sockoloski sald she enjoyed Tombaugh's discussion about the composition of comets, and how comets are similar in makeup to a "dirty snowball."

Steve Snabb said he enjoyed Tom- . baugh and the discussions on astronomy. But he also enjoyed the work--shop he attended because he and oth

Summer interns are selected from those who participate in Saturday classes and are recommended by their teachers. "We're interested in those students motivated enough to roll out of bed on their day off," said Bomback. "We also require a 2,500ing the year.'

Some Ford staff personnel were initially skeptical about the students, Bomback said. "They were congerned about the added work and responsibility. But after seeing what the students could do, those same people were looking for ways to keep them on."

When is the Best Time to look for a Physician?

No matter how healthy you are, anyone can fall victim to an unexpected accident or sudden illness. When that happens, it's nice to have a personal physician you can turn to. Someone who knows your medical history and can promptly respond to your medical needs.

Finding the right physician isn't easy. That's why St. Mary Hospital established a no cost, no obligation, physiclan referral service. Our representatives can help you find the right physician specialist near your home or work, who has convenient officehours and accepts your insurance plan. If you desire, you can even be connected to the physician's office for an appointment. Best of all, the physician is affiliated with St. Mary Hospital of Livonia. St. Mary has been providing quality care to area residents for over a quarter-of-a-century.

So, before you look for a physician in the yellow pages, or compile a confusing list of names and telephone numbers from friends, call

When in doubt

For information, start at top

YOU NEVER have heard of Henry Hesling or Paul Wahl, but you are about to. For that matter, you may not have known that there is a city in California named Delano — all lower case, please - but there is. Hesting and Wahl both are employed there, Hesling as city manager and Wahl as managing editor of the city's twice-weekly newspaper, the Delano Record.

My curiosity about this town of some 20,000 has been growing for many years. For some reason I knew it's pronounced as we pronounce the family name in Michigan, De-LA-no, whether a capital "I" is used or not, disdaining the effete DEL-ano favored by FRD's Hyde Park-on-the-Hudson branch.

It's a dateline which has appeared many times in the nation's press, usually because of some pronouncement by the United Farm Workers' Caesar Chavez, who long has headquartered in this San Joaquin Valley community at the heart of one of the most agriculturally productive regions in the world.

I also wondered how it got its name. If you have a municipal namesake somewhere, perhaps you are equally curious. I wondered if some forgotten ancestor once owned all these rich acres, and I wondered if I could claim a couple of sections for myself. So last week I paid the town a visit.

ONE of the first editors I worked for many years ago always told his neophytes that when in quest of information, start at the top. Thus, city hall was my first port-of-call and when I asked to see the city manager I half expected to be told he was on a coffee break with the city clerk and DPW director. But not Henry Hesiing, a former law enforcement officer who looks the part and still is on the sunny side of 50.

The hospitality he extended was terrific. When I walked out later in the morning it was with an armful of materials extolling Delano's progress, including a 30-minute video tape and a 268-page hard cover book on the city's history since its founding in 1873. It was from this book that I learned the town was named for a man named Columbus Delano, who was secretary of the interior from 1870 to 1875 in the cabinet of President Ulysses S. Grant. Only those who have read my family's geneology know that Grant's name, as well as FDR's, is on one of the limbs of the family tree, so I sense that dear cousin Columbus knew of their patronage long before it popped into my own mind.

STATISTICS from Hesling on growth in population, housing and employment were impressive and of course I liked it when he said doubling the size of the present cityowned nine-hole golf course is being considered. But I also remembered something else I had been told as a cub reporter long ago: to wit, it you're new in town, after talking to the politicians, get verification from the local editor. That took me to Wahl's office.

He's another youngish guy. Both he and Hesling were new to Delano in the '80s and both see great opportunities ahead.

On the very day I was there, it was announced by the State of California that a $200 million construction project had been approved for Delano, bring smiles to the faces of civic leaders contemplating what that would mean in jobs and community payroll.

It's the sort of thing people in the background like city managers and editors don't always get credit for fostering, but I didn't have to be told where the incentive originated. And actually I didn't have to look for it in California. There have been many such instances at home in Michigan.

If, like me, you ever were a student (not necessarily scholar) at the University of Michigan, you know I had to ask Paul about the name Wahl, which for generations was connected with one of Ann Arbor's best known book stores. I asked if he were related.

He admitted he did not know, but added, "I do have relatives Tecumseh, Michigan, and have visited there; so maybe I am."

As salesmen for their town, Hesling and Wahl were tops. They wondered if I could get back for the annual Wine and Harvest Festival. I said maybe so, if I can work it in with such rivals as Farmington's Founder's Festival, the Livonia Spree and Plymouth Fall Festival. Whether it was a compliment or not, I don't know, but I also was told that mine is a name they can never for-

King Day should help 'rap' misperceptions

IT'S PERFECT. Rap music is everything essential to drive parents up the wall. It's loud, raucous, antimelodic, crude, vulgar and stupid when it isn't insidious.

My kids love nothing better than to pop a rap tape into the player and watch mom go into a tizzy or watch dad rip it out and insist on listening to his old "hippie" music.

My wife and I understand this, of course, but still react in the expected way. After all, your brain can only stand so many minutes of a rapper expounding on his sexual prowess and his skill with a razor. You can listen to the repetition of two popular four-letter words only so many times without becoming insensate. You can put up with the whir of sirens and the rat-a-tat of gunfire only so much.

I READ somewhere, a few years back, that rap music was the new people's music. Anybody could do it. Musical talent was irrelevant, if not counterproductive. The best rappers were "street poets" who told it like it is. After listening to rap over the years, I don't believe that rap is any kind of poetry or honesty.

Rap is the old talking blues with a slightly different beat. It does convey some of the ugliness of life but in an inane, blunt and inept way. It rarely has the humor of the blues. It rarely has the heart.

What all this is leading up to is a comment on Martin Luther King Day.

Dr. King was killed 20 years ago. The civil rights movement for which he was the cyclone roaring across a long neglectful nation was already gasping for breath when he was assassinated.

It was time to stop marching and take stock. Much was accomplished. Universities were integrated, public accommodations were opened to all, barriers to employment were eliminated. Actions were altered, but minds were harder to change.

MY KIDS live in a very white section of a mostly white suburb on the edge of a black city. Despite their liberal parents and the Cosby Show and their adulation of the Detroit Pistons, my kids have a very negative or at least wary view of blacks. We go into the city fairly often for suburbanites. They see once elegant houses run down and boarded up. They see pimps, drug pushers and prostitutes plying their trades in full view of the world. Drive down Michigan, Woodward, Warren, Grand Boulevard. The atmosphere becomes oppressive when you pass Wyoming.

They read the newspapers. It seems that every day someone is getting killed in the city, usually someone very young with a gun or a knife. Drugs are always involved.

We try to explain. It's poverty that grinds people down. It's generations of poverty that kill hope. It's Reaganomics that have left more people in poverty even while others gain in prosperity. The distance between rich and poor grows.

"What do you mean? They sell drugs and make thousands a week. They're only 15 years old and they got Mercedes."

You want to scream that they also end up dead. You want to say that real profits go to government officials, Mafia dons and drug compa-

BUT MY kids listen to rap music and watch the movies and TV. They aren't fooled by what I say. The city has winners and losers. The losers live in slums because that's what they want or they're too lazy to do anything else or they're strung out on drugs. The winners supply them with drugs, drive fancy automobiles, have women serving them and live in the high-rise apartments on the

Trying to explain how most black people try to struggle through the day, work hard jobs, try to hold their families together and work to keep up substandard or dilapidated houses on small incomes goes into deaf ears. Trying to explain redlining and racial steering by real estate companies gets blank looks. Trying to tell them that most victims of crime are innocent black people like the little girl caught in a crossfire makes them shrug.

Instead of giving people the day off and making a mockery of a great man, Martin Luther King Day should be used to tear up and rip down all these partial perceptions, these halftruths, these living rap songs that continue the core of racism. Every school in this area should be devoted to programs that challenge and destroy every lie.

WALKING WITH DIFFICULTY WHEN TO SEE A RHEUMATOLOGIST

If faced by vexing medical problems, you may decide to forgo an evaluation by your personal physician and on your own, seek out a specialist. If the matter involves difficulty walking, how can you decide if you should see a neurologist or a rheumatologist?

When the problem is weakness, or the impairment includes loss of coordination, such as placing one foot in front of the other, then neurology consultation is in order. The presence of numbness or of a pins-and-needles feeling when the leg is at rest also is indicative of a neurological problem.

If you note pain on walking which is relieved by rest, or a swollen knee occurs, or the pain is aching and sharp and radiates little or not at all, then a eumatologist is the appropriate specialist.

Certain problems, such as give-way collapse of the leg, pose a difficult decision. Is the cause weakness in the muscle, or anticipated pain in the joint? In these instances, you may find it best to call the specialist you are considering before arranging an appointment. Discuss with him if his specialty is the appropriate one to evaluate the matter.

Sheriff seeks more money for department

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Wayne County should seek help from Lansing, if necessary, to obtain more money for sheriff's department road patrols. Sheriff Robert Ficano said Thursday.

Saying department financing is reaching a crisis point, Ficano called on county commissioners to endorse a plan that would alter the way drunken driving court costs are distributed.

"RIGHT NOW, when a ticket is issued, officers have a choice: whether it should be issued under a state or local ordinance. Most often, they check local so the money goes locally," Ficano said. "We'd like money to come to the county."

Ficano said money was needed for new department cars and yans, as well as to add road patrol deputies.

The proposal would also include parking tickets issued at Metro Airport. It would only affect tickets issued by sheriff's deputies assigned to road and airport patrol duties. It wouldn't involve tickets issued by city or township departments.

Though sheriff's department road patrols generally aren't conducted in western Wayne County, deputies issue tickets along Hines Drive in Plymouth Township, Livonia and Westland.

Drunken driving is a mis-demeanor. Those found guilty, or who plead guilty, can face fines and court costs totaling as much as $500, court sources said.

Distribution of penalties, however, There are currently five road pais complex. Fines generally account trol deputies. Though county comfor half the total penalty. The rest involves court costs, including cost for processing cases. Additional $5 penalties may also be added. These penalties are used to provide police training and to bolster the state's general fund.

Ficano's proposal involves court costs. These costs are normally returned to the community in which the ticket was issued. Instead, this money would go to the county to, among other things, help finance sheriff's road and park patrols.

"WE'RE HELPING everybody, and yet we haven't been able to benefit financially," Ficano said.

The proposal could add as much as $500,000 to the sheriff's department missioners originally authorized as many as 22 deputies under the new county budget, they scaled that figure back in a compromise with county Executive Edward McNamara.

The road patrol provides back-up police duties in Ecorse, Hamtramck, Highland Park, Inkster and River Rouge.

The sheriff's department needs more than $300,000 to replace vans used to transport prisoners to state prisons, Ficano said.

The sheriff encouraged county commissioners to press legislators for changes in state law allowing the county to receive court costs.

He added, however, that the county may already be able to do so.

"There's some question over

'Right now, when a ticket is issued, officers have a choice: whether it should be issued under a state or local ordinance. Most often, they check local so the money goes locally. We'd like money to come to the county.'

whether Wayne County already has this right as a charter county," Ficano sald.

A spokesman for Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara's office said money would be found for the transport vans.

"We think there's a need; obviously safety of the deputies is the top priority," deputy county executive

Michael Duggan said. But the executive's office doesn't agree road patrols need to be expanded. ."The funding level was set by the commissioners," Duggan said.

Olive oil shining at the deli

Have you been in any good gourmet delis lately?

If you have, one look around and you will surely notice that there seems to be an abundance of shelf space given to something as plain and mundane as olive oil.

When I was growing up, momma always had a small jar of domestic olive oil hidden in the back of the cupboard. I honestly can't say I ever remember her using the oil in a specific recipe but I do remember watching her search out the jar whenever one of the Janes kids had an earache. Call it folklore medicine, but a warm teaspoonful of olive oil poured gently into an aching ear, accompanied with a cuddle and a fingernail backrub, always got rid of my earaches.

Today, however, olive oil is experiencing a resurgence in the kitchen as the oil. It has no cholesterol, and when used properly, can really bring out the flavor of many dishes.

But getting back to that deli, a recent trip to the deli-de-rigueur of the Janes gang found more than 15 different varieties, some with inexpensive price tags of around $6 per liter while others towered in the $30-per-liter range. At 30 bucks per crack, that works out to about 80 cents per tablespoon. Needless to say, you better know and be able to appreciate what this kind of money can

FIRST OFF, anyone will notice that there are three basic varietles of olive oil on the market today. The best are the extra virgins, defined by Italian laws as having an acidity content of less than one percent.

Common sense will dictate that the higher the acidity level, the lower the quality. The best extravirgin olive oils vary in color from a deep green to gold. As a rule of thumb, the greener the oil, the fuller the flavor, but beware of manufacturers bottling lesserquality oils in bottles with a green

The secret here is the key words extra virgin. Oils of this quality should never be greasy or oily, and upon opening will yield an aroma or boquet like a fine wine with a fragrance of fresh ol-

The next variety you will notice on the shelves is the first cold-pressed oils. These oils have been around for many years in health stores and are used in herbal body lotions as well as the kitchen. For first cold-pressed oils, the olives are pressed by stone mills using no additives, chemicals or heat. This is a very expensive and time-consuming operation.

All extra-virgin oils are first cold pressed. Again, the buyer should be aware of the key words here being first cold pressed. With today's market taking off faster than a jet at Metro, many large manufacturers are using steel pressed instead of stone, which creates friction when used. This friction causes heat which, in turn, lowers the general quality of the oll.

LAST BUT NOT least are the pure olive oil varieties on the market. While the name pure sounds tempting, beware of these products, as most have higher acidity levels accompanied by little or no flavor. Even though the oil says pure, these oils are pressed a second or third time, some enhanced with chemicals that, when heated, can extract all possible liquid from the olive.

All extra-virgin and first cold pressed olive oils should best be appreciated when at room temperature. Therefore, these olls should be stored in a cool, dark corner of your cupboard or pantry. Olive oils stored in tin will eventually pick up a "tinny" taste and are best stored in glass jars. Once a bottle of oil has been opened, it should be used within

It is recommended that you never cook with these oils but use them instead on salads, aprinkled over tomatoes, soft cheeses, fresh

Yo-yo a no-no

Why you eat is important to what you eat

By Louise Okrutsky special writer

7 ITH THE NEW YEAR still young, many holiday overeaters embark on weight programs with grand expectations of dumping extra pounds faster than you can order a triple fudge chocolate sundae. Many lose determination instead of weight.

Instead of switching to the next fad diet, they need to examine the reasons they eat too much, experts

Some find themselves caught in an unending circle of dieting, overeating and dieting again. After a sixweek regimen of low-calorie meals, dieters often fall back into the same poor eating habits that caused them to gain weight.

Stefano, founder of the Troy-based Think Trim program. The socialworker-turned-diet-counselor conducts classes in Birmingham, Farmington and Livonia.

"I WAS A CLASSIC yo-yo person," Stefano said. "I yo-yoed trying to lose the same 60 pounds.

"Statistics have shown that 95 percent of the people on diets regain their weight. If this is the same 10 adding to poundage (due) to stress," pounds you lost last year, maybe you ought to look at why you eat," Stefano said.

Many habitual dieters eat in response to stress, according to Ann Greer, a registered dietician at Crittenton Hospital, Rochester. Greer teaches a six-week weight-loss class sponsored by the hospital.

They need to identify stress and resolve it in another way instead of Greer said.

People associate food with different activities. Watching a football game on television might automatically mean munching on potato chips followed by a beer. Parties, especially holiday celebrations, serve as another excuse to eat for the sake of eating.

"SOMETIMES, THE TURKEY isn't the only thing that's stuffed," Stefano said.

Scientist on alert against pesticides

Please turn to Page 3

By Sherry Kehan special writer

Lawrie Mott believes that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration are doing a poor job protecting Americans from food containing pesticides.

In a recent talk in Ann Arbor's Rackham Bullding, she gave both agencies a tongue lashing. Senior scientist with the Natural Resources Defense Council, an environmental organization, Mott is co-author of the book "Pesticide Alert."

As she covered the pesticide picture, Mott also laid out specific haz- when California recalled its entire ards involved in eating foods containing residues of pesticides, an umbrella word used today to include insecticides, herbicides, fungicides and rodenticides. In addition, she warned that foreign produce can be more dangerous than domestic. Hersuggestions for solving the problem called for consumer pressure to turn the EPA and FDA into better watchdogs, and buying food grown without these chemicals.

It is ironic that just as consumers began to warm up to fresh produce for the sake of their health, word filtered out that they might be unsafe. To many the first news that pesticides could actually penetrate a fruit or vegetable came in 1985 watermelon crop. Some of the melons had been treated with the herbicide, Temik.

"WITHIN TWO to 12 hours after eating the contaminated watermelons, people experienced nausea, vomiting, blurred vision, muscle weakness and other symptoms," Mott told an audience of about 200. "Fortunately no one dled, though some of the victims were gravely ill. Reports included grand mal selzures, cardiac irregularities, a number of hospitalizations, and at least two stillbirths following maternal iliness." About 2.6 billion pounds of pesticides are used every year in this country, and not just on food products, the speaker continued. "They are sprayed on forests, lakes, lawns, city parks and playing fields, and th hospitals, schools, offices and homes. They are also used in shampoo, shower curtains, shelf paper and serious health problems. mattresses."

Some of the chemicals used on food are applied solely for cosmetic purposes. Mott mentioned a study indicating that from 60-80 percent of pesticides applied to citrus are used only to make the fruit look good. The risks in pesticides are considerable, according to Mott. She re-ferred to a National Academy of Sciences report in 1987 that noted the potential risks posed by cancer-causing pesticides in food may lead to more than one million additional cancer cases in the United States over the next 70 years. The EPA has identified 66 out of 300 chemicals as may still be used overseas. DDT, being carcinogenic, and a 1987 re- banned here in 1972 due to its carciport by the agency ranked pesticides in food as one of the nation's most

Mott added that pesticides can also cause birth defects, miscarriages, sterility, impaired fertility, nerve damage and changes in genetic material.

MOTT ALSO WANTED her listeners to be aware of the greater hazards in imported food. 'Imported fresh fruits account for 25 percent of the total U.S. supply, foreign vegetables for six percent," she said. "The use of pesticides on food; grown in other countries is not governed by U.S. regulations. Furthermore, pesticides banned for use here;

Eat vegetables plain and always avoid sauces, she said. Check with the waiter to see if a restaurant's soup is prepared with whole milk or salt. Both should be avoided, she Salads, with a wrongful reputation for automatically carrying low calories, pose a problem. Order salads with the dressing on the side. Always order diet dressing.

Salad bars serve temptation. Avoid bacon bits, garbonzo beans and those tasty-looking extras. Before filling the plate with fruit, ask if the restaurant serves fresh or canned goods. Canned fruit packed in syrup means extra calories.

Other foods popularly believed to be low in calories really pack unwanted calories. Count cottage cheese and tuna the same as a meat item, Greer said.

FOLLOW THE GUIDELINES, but don't expect miracles. "Most people make the mistake of overwhelming themselves. Resolutions are nice but for most people it's too much change all at once. They should make a resolution to be trim and healthy and take it step by step," Stefano said.

Avoiding certain foods must be followed by choosing the correct foods. Eat three meals a day without commends 1,200 calories per day for women, 1,500 a day for men. Weight Watchers comes in lower on its recommendations. It suggests a minimum 1,000 calories a day for women, 1,200 for men.

Plan every meal, even if it means writing out menus for the week before grocery shopping, Greer said.

Everyone recommends consulting a doctor before starting an exercise and/or weight-loss program. No matter what plan is used, it's important to be sensible. Don't skip breakfast and lunch and then stuff yourself at dinner. That usuallymeans you're eating more than 1,200 calories in one meal, Greer said. ,

Exercise should accompany a sensible eating program, most experts say. However, if the exercise program is meant to last only six weeks or until 10 pounds are shed, you may be wasting your time and effort.

'Weight loss doesn't happen automatically with exercise," said Dr. Fred Stransky, director of the Meadow Brook Health Enrichment Institute at Oakland University, Rochésany snacks, suggests Greer. She re-day, as a New Year's resolution, isn't unrealistic," Stransky said. "For a 130-pound woman, that can mean almost 11 pounds lost throughout the year (down to 119 pounds). But it's a way of life. Short term doesn't do it." Most weight-loss experts recommend walking as an exercise that's easy to do, requires little special equipment and can be easily integrated into a dieter's lifestyle. Malls open their doors early to walkers. Call ahead for information on time, access and registration.

Low-impact aerobics is also recommended by Greer. She cautions that participants make sure the instructor monitors students' target heart rates.

As in dieting, the key consideration in exercise is a person's ability to make the new practice a permanent part of his or her lifestyle. "Get away from the idea that you've got to go through a 11/2-hour routine. Know your lifestyle and be honest with yourself," Stefano said.

Try to keep a positive attitude while dieting. Weight Watchers suggests rewarding yourself for achieving a goal with a non-food item.

"Picture yourself in the spring in the body you want," Stefano said. "Focus on the positive aspects of your body. Don't wet-noodle your-

About the FDA, she said, "The FDA samples less than one percent of this country's food supply. Its enforcement against food with residues in excess of tolerance is ineffective."

ABOUT THE EPA she reported. "The lack of health effects data on pesticides means that the EPA is regulating pesticides on the basis of ignorance rather than knowledge."

She observed that between 1982-85 the FDA detected pesticide residues in 48 percent of the most frequently gard to the role of the EPA and FDA consumed fresh fruit and vegetables.

states the number of pesticides in food because half of the chemicals applied to food supplies cannot be routinely detected by FDA lab methods," she said. "Approximately 40 percent of pesticides identified by the FDA as posing moderate to high health bazards, including carcinogens like daminozide, benomyl, alachlor and EBDCs, cannot be identified in its lab tests."

A majority of pesticides now available were licensed before the EPA established requirements for health effects testing. "In 1972 Congress directed the EPA to re-evaluate all 600 older pesticides by modern testing, in recognition of the serious consequences posed to public health," noted Mott. "Through reregistration, the EPA would full the gaps in required toxicology tests and have better information on how to evaluate and regulate pesticides."

The speaker paused. "But by 1987 ty statement for only two of those 600 pesticides," she said.

About 400 pesticides are registered for use on food, she declared. "The EPA acknowledged that 390 are undergoing registration review. In other words for 390 of them, there is an inadequate toxicological data base with which EPA could register these pesticides," Mott explained.

"TO MAKE MATTERS worse, scientists are now uncovering new toxic adverse effects caused by chemicals. For example, a few pesticides have been found to damage components of the immune systemn, the body's defense network."

"Testing for this toxicity is not part of the routine safety eveluation for pesticides. Furthermore, the EPA now acknowledges its battery of tests to evaluate neurotoxicity is inadequate."

Consumers could have an important role in improving the pesticide situation, according to Mott, who offered a variety of suggestions on how to deal with them. • Wash all produce with water to decrease exposure to pesticides.

Some will be removed but not all. • Peel produce. Some residues cannot be removed by water. • Grow your own food without pesticides.

• Buy locally and in season. If food is shipped long distances, pesticides are often added to prevent spoiling.

→ Beware of perfect-looking produce. Many pesticides are used just to enhance its appearance. Brown spots do not reduce nutritional value or affect taste. A glossy appearance may signal produce that was waxed for cosmetic reasons. Wax can't be washed off, and it seals in residues in

• Buy organic food. (Mott favors farmers willing to make the transition from using pesticides to not using them.)

 Write to supermarket managers or meet with them to ask them to stock organically grown produce. If possible, help them locate sources of this food. Kroger's indicated to the Ann Arbor Ecology Center that it may soon stock orgainic food as an alternative.

• Write your congressional representatives stating your opposition to pesticides. In the next few months Congress will consider legislation to strengthen the EPA's regulation of pesticides in food. Attempts will be made to revise its tolerances based on new methods and safety data. Also urge Congress to consider children when tolerances are set. They consume more food per unit of body weight than adults and need lower cooked pasta, steaks or seafood. If you have a recipe that calls for cooking with olive oil, a simple, less expensive domestic brand will suffice.

Last but not least, if you are really into these types of oil or know someone who would appreciate them, shopping around the various markets will have you noticing vintage olive ducers with exceedingly high standards and, of course, with the territory comes exceedingly high pricetags. True gastronomes will surely appreciate the difference, but folks like you and me probably would have difficulty discerning it.

So if you are into olive oil, a trip to some neat delis and gourmet shops will entice your palate and pocketbook. Bon Appetit!

North winds blow Borgess' way

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

Monday, January 23, 1989 O&E

Charles North was standing in the Redford Bishop Borgess locker room Friday night, not far from Kareem Carpenter's old locker.

North, who scored 23 points in Borgess' 58-48 win over visiting Redford Catholic Central, talked about how much he'll miss Carpenter, a 6-foot-4 junior. Carpenter's family moved from Detroit to Ann Arbor last week and he has transferred to Ann Arbor Huron.

Carpenter was the Spartans' leading rebounder and best inside offensive player, but Friday they missed him more in the locker room.

"We'll miss him in the locker room, because he's real funny," North said. "He has everybody laughing. Sometimes it will be real intense and he'd always crack a

"We have to keep our heads up. Kareem got half our rebounds. We just have to put our minds to it."

THE SPARTANS' win means both teams are tied at the top of the Catholic League's Central Division at 5-1, with four games left. The Spartans are 7-4 overall and the Shamrocks fell to 6.5.

There's nothing funny about that, according to CC coach Bernie Holowicki.

"We've got some tough games ahead and anything can happen," Holowicki said. "I don't see them losing any more games so that means we have to win the rest of ours to keep pace with them."

Borgess coach Mike Fusco would like to have Carpenter for the final month of the season, but he'll have to do without him. Carpenter's name was still taped to his locker Friday. Maybe he expects him back?

want to admit it (that he's gone), because he kept track of things inside. We miss that. 'Three of our last four games are on the road. It'll be

"It's been a tough couple of days," he said. "I don't

a dogfight. It was Borgess's smaller players that gave CC trouble

CC WAS UNABLE to keep up with the quicker Spartans, especially during the second quarter when the Spartans outscored the Shamrocks 22-2. Borgess trailed 13.9 after the first quarter, but opened up a 31-15 lead at halftime. CC made only one of nine field goals in the second quarter, and its biggest threat, Ray Richards was scoreless in the first half.

Reshawn Sumler, a 6-4 sophomore, replaced Carpenter in the starting lineup and finished with a respectable six points and five rebounds.

The real difference came from the backcourt, where North and Shawn Respert combined to score 36 points and make seven 3-point shots. North made six 3pointers, including three in the decisive second quarter.

"I just told myself tonight's the night to win," North said. "I'm not going to hold anything back. Every time I got the ball I felt I had to put the team ahead."

CC made a run at Borgess in the second half and trailed by only four, 48-44 with 3:05 left in the game.

BORGESS SCORED the next five points on a 3pointer by North and two free throws by Dwayne Hayes, to open up a 53-44 lead with with 1:34 remaining.

Richards did his best to keep CC close, scoring all 16 of his points in the second half. Jeff Schaner added 11 for the Shamrocks and Terry Boykin, who spent most of the night in foul trouble, scored nine. Boykin fouled out with just more than a minute left.

"Terry was out of sync tonight," Holowicki said. "He didn't set the tone and show good leadership. Still, he's a young man and that happens sometimes."

Fusco praised Sumler, who had some awfully big shoes to fill.

"He's coming along," Fusco said. "He's going to be a fine player once he gets more strength. I talked to Rashawn and told him I wanted him to be our rebounder. And I told our whole team to be physical. The first time we played them they outhustled us, and I didn't want that to happen again.'

Monarchs overhaul Schoolcraft

By Brad Emons staff writer

Madonna won college basketball bragging rights Thursday in Livonia, seoring a -97-91 victory at Schoolcraft College.

It was the fourth victory in five games since the holiday break for the Monarchs (6-11), a four-year school embarking on its first intercollegiate schedule under coach Bob Whitlow.

Wayne Memorial High product Anthony Strickland, who recently became eligible, led Madonna with 22 points. He was coming off a schoolrecord 46-point performance earlier in the week against William Tyndale Strickland, who spent time at Michigan Christian, Concordia College and Orchard Lake St. Mary's, led a balanced Madonna attack.

Five others reached double figures including Shaun Hayward (17), Terance Bell (15), Ron Griffin (13), Bryan Daniel (12) and Eric Campbell (10). Marcus Lowe, a freshman from Westland John Glenn who started at point guard, added eight.

Campbell, a product from Redford Temple Christian High who recently became eligible after transferring to Madonna from Grand Rapids Bible, hit eight of 10 free throws, including some key foul shots down the stretch.

"WE'RE GETTING better, and we're working together a lot better," said Whitlow, a former center with the Detroit Lions (1961-65). "But Schoolcraft made it tough. They kept playing hard. Their defense gave us a lot of pressure, but we were able to get the ball inside when we had to."

Schoolcraft played an inspired first half, walking off the floor at intermission with a 51-47 lead.

But the Ocelots got careless with the basketball, a season-long problem that has contributed to their 5-15 overall record.

"Right at the start of the second half killed us," said SC coach Dave

Spartans crushed under Rocks, 82-68

By Brad Emons staff writer

Plymouth Salem stayed ahead of the posse Friday, outrunning visiting Livonia Stevenson in a Western Lakes Activities Association boys basketball encounter, 82-68:-

The Rocks, now 9-1 overall and leading the Lakes Division of the WLAA with a 5-0 record, got 29 points from senior forward Jeff Elliott and 18 from sophomore center Jake Baker.

"We knew it would be an up-anddown game and I think that was to our advantage because we have a good group of athletes," said Salem coach Bob Brodie. "We're a fastbreak team and early we were successful at doing that.'

Salem, behind Elliott's 14 firstquarter points, jumped out to a 27-17 advantage, but the Spartans fought back to take a 38-34 lead with 1:37 left in the half when senior center Chris Nazelli, who scored a teamhigh 22 points, converted a threepoint play.

BUT THE ROCKS got baskets from Tim Noonan and Jeff Gold just before intermission to knot things up at 38-all.

In the third quarter, Stevenson came out flat and the Rocks took advantage, outscoring the Spartans 8-0 at the outset.

That run helped Salem maintain a comfortable eight-point heading into the final quarter. The Rocks then put on another spurt, building an 18point cushion with 3:33 to play on Elliott's third 3-pointer of the night.

"In the second quarter we were not scoring in transition and Stevenson was able to come at us with their zone," Brodie said. "But in the third quarter we did a better job of recognizing it and we got the ball inside."

Baker scored 12 points in the second half and it's his inside play which has catapulted the Rocks to the top of the standings.

"Jake's the player we go to inside, he's a rebounder and a scorer," said the Salem coach. "He's really our only inside guy, but he can shoot the their natural positions."

15- to 16-footer, but we don't ask him that much. He can also run the floor."

THE SPARTANS, who have changed to an up-tempo game since losing their top scorer, 6-6 center Mike Vrooman to a broken foot, played well offensively. But their defense was nonexistent, according to coach Jim McIntrye.

"Salem was aggressive and did a nice job of attacking our press," said the Stevenson coach, whose team slipped to 6-4 overall and 2-3 in the Lakes. "But we did nothing at the other end as far as denying the ball.

"Our course, they often had a three-on-one and two-on-one advantage, but we didn't do anything when it was one-on-one. That's why we had to pull the press off."

McIntyre, however, was encouraged by the inside play of the 6-2 Nazelli, even though he made only 12 of 21 free throws.

"This was his best job as far as aggressiveness and being into it," said the Stevenson coach. "He took the shot when it was there. "Overall, I think we've done a good job preparing without Vrooman. We have more quickness, but then we're not able to go inside as much. We're kind of caught in between right now.'

Three other Spartans notched double figures, including three-point bomber Rick Laven and Scott Kosikowski, who added 12 each. Ron Baran chipped in with 11.

Meanwhile, Elliott has made a smooth adjustment from point-guard to forward for the Rocks, while Scott Hale (10 points) has also adapted to coming off the bench and playing up-

"Jeff's the guy we look to and he's been hot," said Brodie. "He likes to play inside. But we've got other people who can shoot it like (Craig) Marshall (10 points) and (Jeff) Gold. They've come on strong and that's allowed Hale and Elliott, who have been guards all their life, to play

Thurston hockey idea skating on thin ice

Redford Thurston? The idea sounds noble enough.

John and Cheryl Degroat, along with friend Joe Carlton, have started a grass roots drive to bring hockey to the South Redford Schools, either as a varsity or club sport.

Recently they've taken their case to both the school board and the Thurston Booster Club. But they've been put in the penalty box. Money is the obstacle. "I would love to have a team, but it would be a tremendous financial burden," said Thurston athletic director Jim Urick. "I play hockey four to five nights a week myself. I play on three teams. I love hockey, but it's hard to justify. If we had another $25,000, it would go to educational needs."

Part of the Degroats' motives for starting a program rests with their "Playing for his high school team would give my kid incentive to get his grades," said Cheryl Degroat. "It would help keep other klds off the street, too." `

WITH COOPERATION of the IGH SCHOOL hockey at Redford Parks and Recreation Department, specifically the Redford Arena, along with fund-raising efforts by the parents, the Degroats believe a varsity program could be launched without putting the district in financial hardship.

They presented their plan last October to the South Redford school board. On Wednesday, they met with members of the school's booster "Finances are still the big stumbler," John Degroat said. "We were told by Mr. Urick that they (the schools) would have to provide all the equipment because the state mandates that all students must adequately be protected. "But I told them most of the klds have been playing hockey for years would already own their own equipment. The parents would absorb many of the costs."

Urick agreed that the costs could be cut almost in half once a program is started.

"I've priced everything out, moderately, and it would cost $25,000 to start and then maybe $15,000 or so a year thereafter," said the Thurston AD.

Emons

GATE RECEIPTS often make high school hockey programs selfsupporting." We'll clear $1,500-2,000 for a game," said Roger Frayer, athletic director at Stevenson. How much does it cost to outfit a

(Livonia) Stevenson-Churchill

Frayer said the district provides Stevenson's 20 players these items: travel (carry-all) equipment bag ($20), three Jerseys ($25 each), three sticks ($10 each), socks ($7), pants ($25) and helmets ($30).

"Most kids like to buy their own skates, which run anywhere from $185 to $215," Frayer said. "I provide three sticks, but my son (who plays for Churchill) likes a special stick that runs about $18, so he buys it himself. Most kids provide their own shoulder pads ($40), elbow pads ($20), shin pads ($30)."

The cost of renting ice normally runs $65 an hour. It could run a team anywhere from $240 to $320 a week. Schools would also have to provide crowd control personnel and pay for police supervision. Hiring two coaches is another expense.

'We've had super cooperation with the Redford Hockey Association and the Redford Arena," said Cheryl Degroat. "They're more than willing to work with us. They said they'd only charge $55 an hour."

BUT DESPITE THE proposed cost-cutting measures. Urlck rightfully has concerns about who will continue fund-raising efforts once this group leaves, who will be responsible for fan behavior (crowd control) outside school boundaries, status of Thurstoh's other athletic and who will provide liability cover-or lack of it, according to Urick. 'We just don't have enough resources to go into a program like that," he said. "My total budget for 38 (athletic) teams is $25,000," he said. " I have to divide that up amongst 38 teams."

Thurston, a member of the Tri-River League, would have to go outside its conference for scheduling.

But some districts recently started prep hockey programs and joined leagues, such as Southgate Anderson, currently the state's No. 1-ranked team in Class A.

I'd hazard to guess that Thurston would be pretty competitive in high school hockey. Two Thurston grads have played in the NHL including Dave Feamster (ex-Chicago Blackhawks) and Gordle Roberts (St. Louis Blues).

South Redford is a hockey hotbed. It wouldn't surprise me that this Class B school could be highly competitive in a short period of time.

BUT WHAT I am concerned about before we introduce hockey is the programs, such as football, track. and girls basketball. What direction cles, the bottom line is still money, year Thurston could not come up are now.

with a ninth-grade football team. The school also launched a varsity soccer program two years ago, and the jury is still out on whether this... was a wise decision on the part of the South Redford Schools. Participation is low in many current varsity sports, but with a relatively new principal (Stewart Schauder) and AD (Urick), their ideas and direction need time to take shape.

But let's face it, Schauder and Urick can only make suggestions, present the facts and make recommendations.

"I HAVEN'T GIVEN up," said John Degroat, who had a meeting Friday with the principal. "We'll see what he has to say and go from there."

It's too bad Thurston couldn't have started a program back in the early 1970s when the sport became popular. That was about the time when the Livonia schools implemented hockey.

It's too bad somebody like the Degroats weren't around back then, But despite some of those obsia- are these programs headed? Last Their chances were better then they

Trojans, Blazers, Glenn gain loop wins

Livonia Clarenceville won two more Metro Conference volleyball matches last week, but coach Mary Hursley isn't satisfied about the total picture.

Clarenceville (4-1 overall) ran its Metro record Thursday to 3-1 with a hard-fought 15-13, 15-4 win over visiting Hamtramck. On Wednesday, the Trojans also struggled in the first game against Lutheran West, 15-10, before taking Game No. 2, 15-5.

Hursley would like to see better first-game performances from her players.

Debbie Owens helped save Clarenceville Thursday in Game No. 1 against Hamtramck, serving five points and clearing the net on all nine of her serves. The Trojans trailed 10-12 in the first game, when Hursley had seen enough and called a timeout.

"The first game we were real shaky, and I can't say anything good about it," Hursley said. "We finally came around in the end. We settled down and got more serious. We've got to jump on them right away. We can't afford to do what we've done the last few matches."

Clarenceville had an easy time in Game No. 2 behind the hitting of Joann Zeabari, Angle Ste-

Redford Union tames Cougars, 76-60

According to Redford Union basketball coach Tip Smathers, the Panthers "had two good quarters" against visiting Garden City Friday. Those two proved to be more than enough.

RU exploded to a 24-12 lead after one quarter and 50-26 at the half, handing the Cougars their ninth defeat in 10 games by a 76-60 score.

"We kind of coasted in the third quarter, and I played the substitutes the whole last quarter," said Smathers, whose team improved to 6-3 overall, 2-1 in the Northwest Suburban League. GC dipped to 0-3 in the NSL. "It wasn't that they were playing that bad, we just played well."

Particularly in the first half. Steve Nowak poured in 20 points for RU, including four threepointers. Chris Warzecha added 11, Joe Delfgauw netted 10, and Lee Tappy got nine points and eight rebounds.

The Cougars were paced by Joe Gorak with 12 points, Rick Morton with 11 and Steve Wallace with 10.

ST. AGATHA 72, MT. CARMEL 55; Redford St. Agath's pulled away in the second and third quarters, outscoring Wyandotte Mt. Carmel 16-10 in the second and 27-12 in the third, to turn a close game into a rout Friday at Mt. Carmel.

Senior guard Matt Haran poured in 18 points to lead the Aggies, who improved to 6-1 in the Catholic C-D League and 9-1 overall. Senior center Galen Walker added 13 points and 12 rebounds, and Mike Boyle had 13 points and 11 boards. Sophomore forward Brian Kutch sparked the third-quarter rally with eight points and five offensive rebounds.

Greg Kazmierski led Mt. Carmel with 26 points.

JOHN GLENN 61, W.L. CENTRAL 50: The final 11-point margin made what was actually a lopsided affair seem respectable. Westland John Glenn (5.6 overall, 3.2 in the Western Lakes' Lakes Division) led 18-9 after one quarter, 37-19 at the half and 51-27 after three quarters Friday against visiting Walled with 20 as Redford Thurston battled back in the second half to knock off Dearborn Heights Annapolis Friday at Annapolis. Thurston, which improved to 9-2 overall and 7-1 in the Tri-River League, was up 13-8 after one quarter.

But-Annapolis (6-5-overall, 5-3 in the TRL) surged ahead in the second, outscoring the Eagles 32-18 to take a 38-31 halftime lead. "In the second quarter, everything they threw up went into the basket," said Thurston coach Mike Schuette. "At halftime, we regrouped." It showed in the third quarter, which the Eagles owned by a 27-14 margin. The final period was more of the same: Thurston 18, Annapolis 12. One reason for the victory was an Eagle defensive adjustment against Kevin Barhoff, who hit five triples and scored 15 points. "We really got on his case with the entire defense in the second half," said Schuette. Mark Cifaldi added 14 points for Annapolis.

Joining Merida (who also had 13 rebounds) and Farris in double-figures in scoring for Thurston were Keith Wojkowski with 12 and Jason Muller with 11.

CANTON 67, CHURCHILL 50: Livonia Churchill couldn't keep pace with Plymouth Canton Friday at Churchill. The Chiefs (7-4 overall, 3-2 in the WLAA's Western Division) led 11-10 after one quarter, 30-22 at the half and 50-37 after three periods.

Brian, Paupore netted 18 points for Canton. Troy Waldron added 17 and nine rebounds. Nobody scored in double-figures for the Chargers (3-8 overall, 1-4 in the Western Division). Mike Picha and Ryan Polny had eight points apiece and Mike Juodawikis had six. Picha and Juodawikis each had six rebounds.

Canton hit 21-of-26 free throws to nine-of-16 for GREATER LIFE 65, G.C. UNITED 62: Garden City United Christian has lost twice in Metro Christian Conference play, both times in the last week, and both times to Pontiac Greater Life.

The second setback, Friday in Garden City, ended in frustration for GC United when two three-point shots in the final seven seconds both missed. Tim Blatter's 18 points led United, which slipped to 10-5 overall and 5-2 in the MCC. Chris Smith had 17 and Jason Cavin 12 and 13 rebounds. Ted Dillow added 16 rebounds and Chadd Presnell nabbed 13.

Roland Baker's 19 points paced Greater Life (11-2 overall, 7-0 in the MCC). Tom Reyes added 14.

W.L. WESTERN 52, FRANKLIN 50: Mark Kocsis sank a 15-foot jumper with 45 seconds left Friday to give host Walled Lake Western (4-7, 2-3) the WLAA Western Division win over Livonia Franklin (5-5, 2-3).

Mark Donehue scored a game-high 20 points in a losing cause. Teammate John Santi added nine. Chris Sobleck paced the Warriors with 11.

LUTHERAN EAST 58, CLARENCE-VILLE 50: Harper Woods Lutheran East overcame a 24-20 halftime delicit Friday to beat visiting-Livonia Clarenceville in a Metro Conference encounter.

Jason Larson and Derrick Herr scored 17 and 11, respectively, in a losing cause for the Trojans, now 3-6 overall and 2-3 in the Metro.

Brite Ware and Chris Williams paced the Eagles, now 8-5 overall and 4-1 in the Metro, with 12 points

Grazulis isn't scoring as much as last year, but the Hornets have a better record this winter and his ego isn't boosted by scoring averages, anyway. Grazulis' idol is NBA bruiser Kurt Rambis, which might explain his lack of interest in scoring.

"Most people don't associate Kurt Rambis with having a lot of talent," Grazulis said. "He's a hard-nosed type player and I associate myself with that type of player.

"I AVERAGE about one charge a game. That's my big thing."

Grazulis comes from an athletic family. Grazulis' younger brother, Andy, plays basketball at Siena College in New York and his sister, Laura, plays volleyball at Tulane. Older brother, Paul, played at Eastern Michigan.

Grazulis' other talents lie in music and academics. A 3.56 student in high school, Grazulis is studying political science at Kalamazoo and will graduate in June.

Grazulis studied music his first two years at Western, and he is an excellent cello player.

No one is immune.

"My kid using drugs? No way. . ." At Catherine McAuley Health Center's Chemical Dependency Program we've heard it over and over again. Alcohol and drug abuse only happens to someone else's kid. Well, it's time you heard the truth: no one is immune. 'We suggest you take the following test to help you see if your child may have a problem. While it isn't always easy to separate typical adolescent behavior from chemically induced behavior, most teenager alcoholics and drug abusers exhibit many of the following signs.

Check the symptoms you see in your child. Remember, these can develop over a period of many months. If you observe some of the following or if you know something isn't right with your child, we recommend you take action.

School

☐ Skips classes, whole days or drops out

Drop in grades

Behavior

Has money but no job.

☐ Extreme mood swings (euphoria, depression, hostility, oversensitivity) ☐ Talks about suicide, spirit world, devil

☐ Loses interest in hobbies or sports ☐ Drastic change of friends

Physical Evidence

☐ Displays obvious drunkenness or red eyes, drooping lids, "thick" voice

Paraphernalia among belongings such as pipes, roach clips, cigarette papers, glass vials, film containers or seeds.

☐ Increased or frequent use of eye drops

Family Impact

Writing a classified ad that gets results—whether it be for real estate, employment, the personals, transportation, or merchandise— is easy if you follow the guidelines below.

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

Getting 'real' about loops and twirls

By Sharon Dargay staff writer

Monday, January 23, 1989 O&E

The closest I ever got to joining the Ice Capades was a tap dancing recital in a neighbor's basement during the second grade.

In crepe paper costumes and paper plate tiaras, we shuffle-kick-shuffled before an audience of squirming siblings and applauding parents, a dozen Shirley Temples in synchronized step.

I was in a subterranean tap dancing class because the clicky patent leather shoes and linoleum were easier on weak ankles than steel blades and ice.

-My skating debut had ended in disaster a year earlier. While my classmates stroked effortlessly around the glassy surface of the playground, I had wobbled two blocks home in a friend's over-sized skates.

I quit tap dancing before my costume needs expanded from plain paper plate to flashy Chinet, still dreaming of skating stardom.

I outgrew my dance shoes, but grew into a pair of skates. Tightening my laces until I felt like a bound oriental princess, I learned to skate forward, backward and on one foot as a teen.

As I cut jaggedy figure threes into the ice at a neighborhood rink. I could hear the distant voices of ABC Olympic commentators . . .

"A half-tumble and spin out on the ice in the rump position! She is in rare form for this program tonight, Dick!"

"You know Jim, she may not jump or spin or turn or even stop like other professional skaters, but her choreography is unquestionably creative."

"I REALLY like the way the sparkles on her Chinet tiara catch the light."

"Watch this move — a toe pick stumble, into a flailing arm spin and stomach dive around the hockey players. Brilliant . . .

At 34, I have given up dreaming and enrolled in group lessons.

· After a dozen half-hour classes, I can do one of those ballerina-in-a-jewelry box spins without the need of Dramamine. I have mastered a wobbly one-foot spin, several graceful turns and a variety of jumps to almost-jumps to my-feet-never-leave-the-ice jumps.

It looks easy, but it's hard work, requiring four to six hours of practice a week. And sometimes it's a little scary. "Adults are cautious, but they can do it. I'm like the rest of them. I'm not ready to break a leg." said Beverly Griffin, a teacher at Livonia's ice arena.

"It takes a lot of determination. Adults are starting to come out of their shells and compete. It seems to be a desire some people have. They watch ice skating and say, 'gosh, I'd like to do that'.' Griffin was was no different.

She longed to figure skate, but didn't start lessons until she was 12. The opportunity came along to join a club, followed by private lessons, competition and a three-year stint with an ice revue.

But Griffin says most adults take up skating because they enjoy the exercise - "It's at the top of the list for burning calories." Or they want to learn a few dazzling moves on the ice. Some simply think skating

"IT DOESN'T take adults long to learn forward, backward and edges. For freestyle moves, it depends on their ability and whether they care if they fall

"A lot of people take private lessons to better their skills. I have some adults here at six in the morning before they go to work," she said. "Most adults will skate a lot during the week. If they work, they'll look for other arenas where they can get ice time."

Adults who have mastered some basic moves can join the Livonia arena's precision skating team.

No freestyle competitions are available for adults, although Joyce Herron, coordinator of adult classes at the Detroit Skating Club in Bloomfield Hills, said the concept is "beginning to take off."

"Once adults see that they can compete and not feel embarrassed, they'll participate," she said. "But you've go to offer them the opportunity."

The Ice Skating Institute of America, a group dedicated to recreational skating, held its first international competition this year. Herron hopes it will encourage more adult competitors.

That's what Clela Jarmon of Royal Oak is aiming Jarmon heads for the Birmingham Ice Arena during lunch breaks from her job as a physical therapist at William Beaumont Hospital.

At 29, she has tackled her first eight-week session of group classes, with an eye toward mastering a "routine with technicality."

"I want so badly to be able to skate elegantly, to be able to do all of this fun stuff," she admitted. "When there's a skating show on TV you can't pull me away."

AFTER A semester of classes, Jarmon is perfecting her one-foot spin and several jumps.

"I pick up on things quickly, but I don't get it down perfectly. I have to work on it. I have a fear of falling, so I don't get a lot of height to my jumps," she said. "But my advice to adults is don't be afraid. Get out there and try. You may fall down, but you can get back up and try again."

Karen Van Elslander, 19, of Warren, did just that. "I tried skating when I was a kid, but couldn't even stand up. I was 18 when I put on skates again. I was surprised. I could skate forward and backward," she

After about 15 sessions in the rink, she tried executing a few fancy moves, slipped on a crack in the ice and broke her leg. "I started skating again in July. I just love it. I can't believe I can do some of these moves." Van Elslander, a Wayne State University accounting

Griffin and Herron say good equipment can make the difference between a mediocre and good skater. "It has to fit well and be well-sharpened," Griffin said. "Skates should fit like a leather glove. You don't have to pay $500 for a pair, but you'll probably pay ADULTS TEND to buy oversized skates. But correctly fitted boots generally run one size or more smaller than street shoes. Boots should fit snuggly with tights or thin socks. Blades are purchased sepa-

The padded, stiff boots are a must for properly executing jumps with ease.

"Adults who are 30 to 40 years old can learn to jump," Herron stressed. "They wouldn't join an ice show - you have to have stamina coming out of your ears for that — but they can learn to jump."

I knew the U.S. Olympic Team was out, but I was hoping for a spot in some traveling ice extravaganza.

There's more to ice skating than lessons

Practice makes perfect.

That's especially true when it comes to figure skat-

Half-hour weekly lessons can give adults the howto's of spinning and jumping, but don't allow enough time for mastering the moves.

That's when open skating periods come in handy. Adult sessions are 11:45 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. Monday through Friday at the Eddie Edgar Arena, 33841 Lyndon, Livonia; 11 a.m. to 12:50 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday at the Redford Arena, 12400 Beech-Daly, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9:10-10:30 p.m. Sundays at the Birmingham Ice Arena, 2300 East Lincoln; and 8:30-10 p.m. Wednesdays at the Beech Woods Arena, 22200 Beech, Southfield.

Oak Park's Ice Arena, 13950 Oak Park Blvd., also offers a late-night adult session from 10:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Fridays.

Here's a schedule of half-hour adult classes:

• Birmingham — Classes cost $45 for eight weeks, beginning Jan. 23.

Detroit Skating Club — Sessions cost $35. Regis-

Chilly challenge: Outdoor skating Skate outdoors? In the cold? On a homemade rink or frozen pond? "It's great," said Beverly Griffin, a teacher at Livonia's ice arena. "I grew up on outdoor ice, and there are few of them left. Outdoor skating is absolutely marvelous."

But there are drawbacks to outdoor skating, too.

Skaters can take some pretty nasty falls, if they glide into cracks or icy bumps on a natural surface. And because rough ice can nick or dull blades, skate sharpening is a must after use on an outdoor rink.

Most figure skaters who enjoy the sport outdoors keep two pairs of skates, wearing the best equipment indoors.

"This generation doesn't know west of Southfield Road. much about outdoor skating. But

'Torch Song' looks at subject of homosexuality

RECENT RELEASES:

On the assumption that you haven't had time to screen last week's eight new movies, the distributors only released two films this week -"Torch Song Trilogy" and "Full Moon in Blue Water," starring the ever-popular Gene Hackman, currently appearing in "Mississippi" Burning."

Hackman shares with Michael Caine the distinction of "busiest actor in town." In recent years, each has appeared in six or more films. In an industry where they soon forget, your name on the marquee is the name of the game.

In addition to Hackman, the film stars Teri Garr, Burgess Meredith and Elias Koteas.

"Torch Song Trilogy," (B) (R) 112 minutes, has received wide coverage in the press. In case you haven't been reading the entertainment sections, this is Harvey Fierstein's sensitive discussion of homosexuality in our society.

Arnold does well as a female impersonator and the film's best Hamn, a singer of the blues, those torch songs of the title.

Marvelous faces people this show of female impersonators, particularly the fat face of the "mistress" of ceremonies. The complete naturalism of these scenes is compelling. and that genuine quality pervades the film's open attitude toward homosexuality.

With this unaffected naturalism, the club scenes reek of "Cabaret" and the decadence of German Expressionism in the '20s, save one thing. Smoke and dim lights notwithstanding, it's all too slick, too clean and neat, as are the back rooms where the boys go for a quickle.

Seldom do film characters look at the camera: that breaks the illusion of realism upon which film depends. always knew - plus a gratuitous

> "Torch Song Trilogy" presents itself as a plea for acceptance of homosexuals. It's done well enough — at least until the last half hour so that it stands as an appeal for tolerance for all outsiders. However, the film's basic premise breaks down under careful scrutiny and the last 30 minutes drag and begin to within the natural order of things. grate on the nerves.

The assumption of "Torch song Trilogy" is that homosexuality is natural and society is at fault for not accepting it. No generative force for Arnold's homosexuality is presented, just his several statements that he opening scene where Ma discovers the "Young Arnold" (Benji Schulman) in drag.

Her face quickly registers surprise, understanding and acceptance. That, taken with the film's refusal to present causation for Arnold's homosexuality — in fact, there's considerable testimony that the family scene couldn't have been better — and Arnold's constant plea for openness and acceptance, leaves the clear indication that society is wrong for discriminating against a natural inclination.

My clinical standing is even lower than my legal, but it seems to me that there's a problem with that assumption. While society has an obligation to guarantee the rights of all members — no matter how they chose to deviate from the norm, providing they don't harm others — that doesn't mean that everything is

Style reinforces concept and one way "Torch Song" proves that society is at fault for not accepting homosexuality is the curious way in which Anne Bancroft and Harvey Fierstein sound so much alike.

That similarity may be appropriate for mother and child, despite the gulf that separates them. But Bancroft's performance is forced and harsh, almost a caricature of the New York Jewish mother, despite testimony to a fine family life. The vocal similarity just doesn't work and becomes irritating. Hidden in Bancroft's performance is a split personality who either is or isn't responsible for her son. You can't have it both ways, and the film gets murky when Bancroft becomes the villain for not accepting Arnold

With the two of them yelling at each other with roughly the same vocal qualities, it rubs harshly on the sensibilities and approximates being forced to watch what goes on in other people's bathrooms.

The message we get from all this is mixed. The film makes a profound plea for tolerance of those who do not meet the norm. That and its fine music, fast-paced cutting, upbeat style and entertaining comedy are to its credit.

However, the premise that homosexuality is normal is a little hard to take. Given problems in the last 30 minutes, "Torch Song Trilogy" probably will only play well to sophisticated, big-city audiences and the coverage it's been receiving won't be matched at the box office. STILL PLAYING:

ALTERNATIVE VIEWING

August balances good, grim in 'Pelle'

By Ann Sharp special writer

"Pelle the Conqueror," a Danish film by director Billie August, is a quiet sort of masterplece. Nothing showy about it. All its exquisite, craftsmanlike elements of acting, scripting, cinematography blend unostentatiously into an engrossing piece of storytelling.

The story it tells is one that seems increasingly popular with filmmakera in recent years. Like "Pixote" and "Salaam Bombay," it's a comisn't permitted much of a childhood, because he is poor and must fend for himself in a cruel, unfeeling world.

"PELLE" IS taken from a series of novels, written by Danish author Martin Anderson Nexo at the turn of the century. It's about a young Swede who rises from humble beginnings to become a powerful labor leader. From what we learn of Pelle's boyhood in this film, it's no wonder he grew up to be a radical.

The film opens with Pelle, about 10 years old, arriving with his eldering-of-age drama about a child who ly father in Denmark. The father assures Pelle that they've come to a wonderful place where there's plenty of good things to eat and drink and fathers earn so much money their children can just play all day.

It soon becomes apparent that Pelle's father doesn't know what he's talking about. Within a few hours, these two hapless, hungry immlgrants have signed on at a Stone Farm, a horrid sort of slave labor camp where both children and parents work like dogs, and the only nice thing to eat is the fruit of the strawberry plant Pelle's father brought over from Sweden.

STONE FARM is presided over by the most vile, revolting agricultural capitalist ever dreamt up by a Marxist novelist. Kongstrup — what a monster's name! — is a creature so unrelievedly greedy and victous that his evil aura permeates every aspect of the farm.

Handsome, decent, gentle young Pelle is his antithesis. He will not be crushed by Stone Farm's brutality; equally, he refuses to use his strength to become an oppressor himself.

In Pelle's world, there is no room for innocence, only ignorance. Pelle is spared nothing. He is mentally and physically abused and forced to witness unspeakably ugly, violent events. Because his cowardly, weakwitted father isn't up the job, he must be his own parent.

IN LESS skillful hands, "Pelle" might have been an unbearably depressing film. But August finds the right balance between the grim aspects of Pelle's life and its happier, more hopeful ones.

There is much wisdom here and a quiet sort of humor. August presents the story's often tragic and horrific occurences in an admiringly low-key manner, making them comprehensible rather than shocking.

Max von Sydow is so often type: cast as a stoic pillar of Nordic machismo. It's delightful to see how convincing he is as Pelle's kindly, but sadly simple-minded father.

As von Sydow plays him, he makes you wonder how poor Pelle has survived so long under his care. Nevertheless, the genuine love he conveys for the boy, a role well acted by Pelle Hvenegaard, is evidently the very thing that enables Pelle not only to survive, but to conquer.

'Sunday Night' finds its musical niche

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

The set on "Sunday Night" doesn't include a rake or a garden hose. But: the spirit of the garage jam session is certainly there.

Since its debut in October on NBC, the hour-long music show (seen at 1 a.m. on Channel 4) has found a niche in terms of diversity: Tired of watching Billy Idol shadow box his way through a video or listening to an artist endlessly plug their album on: a talk show? "Sunday Night" might be the answer.

Musical acts — both established and new - are featured along with archive film clips of great artists. Also, there's a first-rate house band that includes Marcus Miller and Hiram Bullock on guitar, Omar Hakim on drums and Philippe Saisse on " keyboards.

But one of the most interesting parts of the show is when musicians from differing styles get together. Past segments have included Paul Simon producing Eddle Palmieri Band and James Taylor performing Latin American music with Milton Nasciememto.

Future possibilities are endless. Jools Holland of the British pop band Squeeze and co-host of the show thinks of the ultimate musical pair-

"I would like to get Ray Charles on with someone you wouldn't expect like, hmmmmm . . . Talking Heads," said Holland, in a telephone interview from New York. "Now that would be a good show."

EVEN HOLLAND and fellow host, David Sanborn, are from different musical perspectives. Sanborn is a highly acclaimed saxophonist, working with the likes of David Bowle, James Brown, The Eagles, Bruce Springsteen and Roger Waters of Pink Floyd.

Holland is keyboardist with the often-praised British pop band, Squeeze. The TV stage, though, is

The zany English popster is no stranger to television. In fact, he fronted a music show, "The Tube," in Great Britain.

"The Tube" offered quite an array of musical acts. Then again, that might be attributed to Holland's vast tastes that include jazz, boogle-woogie, ska and funk.

Both Holland and Sanborn have been involved in selecting guests for "Sunday Night." The philosophy is fairly basic — avoid the commercial flash-in-the-pans and stick with those who've had a profound impact Strange Bedfellows includes Jan Blaschak (bass), husband Jim Blaschak (guitar), Sean Scannel (keyboards) and Syndi Bauer (drums) along with singers Missy Gibson and Beth Yates.

BAND MEMBERS are busily polishing up a sixsong cassette that will be released within in the next couple of months. The tape is being recorded at Tempermill Studios in Livonia. Plans include to play live at least twice a month and concentrate on writing material.

For Jim and Jan Blaschuck, who live in Southfield, Strange Bedfellows is a dream come true. Both — they met while waiting for a SEMTA bus at Wayne State - had played in a number of cover bands before Of All Things came about.

Differences in direction split that group (Jan Blaschak said the break up was amicable), but she feels Strange Bedfellows has a better chance for

"Being in a band is like being married anyway," she said. "You either make it or you don't."

TRINITY SESSIONS Cowboy Junkies

This took me by surprise. Such an innocent looking album cover masking a powerhouse of emotion. This is the second LP from the Cowboy Junkies, a Canadian band. STREET SENSE

Got a question? Schiff has the answer

Starting this week, Street Scene has some good advice for you, thanks to psychotherapist Barbara Schiff. Schiff-"always wanted to write an advice column," and now she is.

Besides a desire to write, she brings to the task years of experience as a counselor and therapist in private practice and as a school psychologist in Utica and Detroit.

"I provide a lot of marital therapy in my private practice, but it's really very eclectic, and I expect the column will be, too," she said. "Street Scene seems to attract a lot of younger readers, and many of the problems the column deals with will probably reflect that - getting along on a new job, dating, getting started in marriage."

Newspaper advice columns are hardly a substitute for therapy, but Schiff sees her new forum as something substantial, something more than just human interest reading.

"There are people who have problems, but can't ask anybody about them," she said. "There is something cathartic about saying what you're thinking. The column is sort of an intermediary step. If they can write down a problem and mail it in, they might take some advice, might go see somebody."

AN ANCIENT piece of advice recommends a healthy mind in a healthy body, a prescription that describes Schiff's resume.

Besides her private psychotherapy practice in Birmingham, she is coowner of the Workout-Co., an aerobics and fitness salon, also in Birmingham.

"I started running when I was 27," Schiff said, "and I was teaching aerobics at the Y 17 years ago before it was popular."

Schiff, who holds a master's degree in psychology from the University of Michigan, appeared a number of times on Sonia Friedman's TV show when it originated from Channel 4 in Detroit, and also has appeared on Channel 7's "Kelly &

Dear Barbara,

I am a 38-year-old woman with a 6-year-old daughter. I was divorced five years ago and since then have developed a very close relationship with another woman. We are together all the time. She is wonderful with my daughter and helpful around the house.

My problem is that my mother doesn't like her. She, my mother, is nice enough to her when she is with me, but behind her back accuses her of trying to control me and "lead me around by the nose." None of this is true, but I am disturbed and confused because my mother said it.

My mother wants to leave her out of a party we are giving. What should I do?

Dear Joan,

Invite her. Your problem is that you are unsure of what to do. Someone is controlling you, if not your friend, then your mother. Why, otherwise, would a woman your age even consider listening to such a request from her mother or anyone Find a nice way, or a not so nice way, if you prefer, to tell her to mind her own business. If she can't, you would be better off to make your own party preparations without her.

While your question seems innocuous enough, delving into it opens a Pandora's box. You sound like an extremely dependent woman for whomthese conflicts must often arise.

There must be many situations in which you don't know what to do and question your instincts. That's what happens when our need for others' approval outweighs our need to find and develop ourselves.

You sound like just this sort of person and the older you get the more exaggerated this problem will become, because while others have taken some chances at being rejected to find out who they are and what they feel, you have stayed safe, but

This has a cumulative effect. Take a look at yourself - possibly you could take some disapproval, if you could feel stronger as a result.

Dear Barbara.

underdeveloped.

Even writing this down embarrasses me, but I must get an answer. The story is long, so bear with me.

My brother bought a large quantity of meat for our mother, but when it was delivered, either it had not been properly wrapped or had been frozen too long and was bad. I told my brother I would return it and I got a due bill for it. My mother reimbursed my brother, so now I really owed my mother the money.

A few months later, my father asked me to pick up an expensive belt for him in New York. I bought the belt - it was $200 - and gave it bara Schiff, send it to Street to my father. When my father called Sense, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia to ask how much he owed me, it 48150.

He caught me. He said didn't I have a due bill for $60 and was only owed $140. "Oh," I said, "I forgot."

The matter was dropped. I am so embarrassed that I tried to steal $60 from my father. Our relationship has never been a good one. but certainly, that doesn't justify stealing. It also makes me worry. Would I have ignored the whole incident, if I hadn't been caught, and am I stealing at other times and not

Do you think I need counseling? As I said at the beginning, I do need some advice.

Dear Justin

aware of it?

First, to answer your question -do-you need counseling - I don't know enough about you to make a recommendation. The problem you describe in your letter does not, by itself, indicate such a need. In fact, your self-awareness makes you the kind of person who could achieve self-growth without therapy.

The issue of lying and stealing and our society's attitude toward money in general is a complicated one that is often two-faced. While we say honesty is best, it is not the honest, but the rich that we adulate. Thus, one must have an independent spirit to live honorably rather than greedily.

The other question that you ask is about whether you are not sometimes unaware of this deviant streak in your behavior. Without more information, I cannot answer but again, that you're asking_it shows that you are motivated toward admirable goals.

I once read that there must be tension between who we are and who we want to become for growth to occur. I hope that the tension you feel will work positively for you.

Hemphill: Homing in on laughs

By Bob Sadler special writer

The Comedy Store of Hollywood. Class of '74.

People would probably pay good money to see the 15-year reunion of all the comics who grabbed their first limelight back then.

David Letterman could be the host of such an event, or he could share the chores with Jay Leno, who went on to some late night hosting chores of his own.

Marsha Warfield, better known as Rox from NBC's "Night Court," would be there. So would Robin Williams, probably the best improvisational comic in the business today.

And certainly not lost in the shuffle would be Shirley Hemphill. Her work at The Comedy Store that year would be noticed by producer Norman Lear and his partner Bud Yorkin, which led to her role as Shirley the waitress in the late '70s sit-com, "What's Happening."

She remembers those early days at The Comedy Store quite well.

time. Freddle Prinz (the late co-star or "Chico and the Man") and David Brenner were getting all the prime time back then," she said. "We were all after the big stars - just before the placed closed.

"When I started there, Jay Leno was at 1 a.m. David Letterman was behind him. I was behind him. Marsha (Warfield) was in there. And Robin Williams was always the last one - because he'd go on forever. Nobody would get behind Robin, or else they'd be backstage screaming 'get him off!'."

HEMPHILL FIRST made the trek to Hollywood from her hometown of Asheville, N.C., at the insistence of Flip Wilson, who was still riding high with a successful television show.

"I sent him some lokes on a tape," she recalled, "and they were the worst! He plays them back whenever I get a big head."

Once in Hollywood, Hemphill picked up some odd jobs to support herself. She had worked as a medical receptionist in North Carolina. "We were all struggling at the Eventually, Wilson intervened again and moved her in the direction of The Comedy Store.

"I just sat there for a couple of weeks," she said. "My money started running low. I found out if you went there on a certain night and made a fool of yourself, you could get in free. The manager said that if I did well, he'd give me a slot."

She did well and joined the list of , future comedy superstars on the roster. A couple of years later, a television opportunity knocked, but Hemphill almost didn't answer.

"I'd just come off and there was a man backstage asking me if I wanted to do television," she said. "At The Comedy Store then, it seemed like everybody had a card, was a producer and was doing a pilot. So I told him I wasn't interested.

"Later that night, Jimmy Walker (then starring in "Good Times") asked why I was telling Norman Lear I wasn't interested. I didn't even know who he was."

Hemphill went back to Lear and rectified the situation enough to get

"I'D NEVER seen a script before, but I lied because I wanted to get

She wasn't originally chosen for the role of Shirley, the waitress at the neighborhodd hangout of main characters Raj and Rerun of "What's Happening." An illness in the cast forced a reshuffling of female roles and, in Hemphill's words, "they panicked and called me."

"They asked if I could start Monday and who my agent was. Agent? I didn't have an agent! So I went to the phone book and called the first

"What's Happening" went on to a very successful three-season run on ABC, pegged nicely on Friday nights behind "Welcome Back, Kotter." Syndication followed for the show, and its unusual popularity led to a reunion of the cast for three more seasons in first-run syndication unstints on "What's Happening," she her to audiences across the country. starred in the short-lived sit-com, "One in a Million."

Hemphill, now 41, said she'd like I'm doing.

to get on television again in the future. However, in the interim, she's back out practicing her first love stand-up comedy.

On stage, she keeps it simple, with der the title "What's Happening a straight-forward observational Now" during the mid-'80s. Between , brand of humor that has endeared

> "It looks like I'm out of control on stage," she said, "but I know what "I use my observations of my family and relationships. Growing up, when all the little girls were out chasing boys, I was watching TV. Now that I'm an old lady, I'm saying 'where'd those little boys go?' "

HEMPHILL THINKS that audiences in the country's comedy clubs are much more sophisticated than they used to be, attributing it to the huge upsurge in the number of clubs and the influx of comedy programming on cable television. "It's not as easy now, and there's so much competition," she said. "Regardless of who you are, if you aren't any good after 10 minutes, they want you off. That's why you have to work hard and not take anything for granted."

When asked what inspires her, Hemphill unabashedly responded, "money. I'm greedy."

She was kidding and corrected herself: "Actually, I just love doing comedy."

Things are getting back to normal Jamaica, even for tree ducks, following Hurricane Gilbert in September.

Dunn's River Falls near Ocho Rios is popular with tourists, who pay the park admission, which is less than a dollar, and for another dollar hire a native guide to lead them on a 20-minute climb up the waterfall.

Come back to a paradise renewed

You can find everything, including hammocks, for sale in the open air craft markets, where bargaining can cut the price of the item in half.

Jamaica in mid-December with the Travel Journalists' Guild in order to get a first-hand view of post-hurricane conditions along the north coast.

By Micky Jones special writer

Four months after being devastated by Hurricane Gilbert, Jamaica's north coast resorts are back in business and better than ever.

Tourists are once again-climbing Dunn's River Falls, rafting rivers lined with exotic flowers, riding party trains through mountain valleys lined with banana plantations and coffee groves, visiting historic houses and botanical gardens, and relaxing on the golden beaches at Jamaica's famous couples hotels.

There is little evidence of the terrible storm that killed dozens of people Sept. 12, when Gilbert ravaged the entire 150-mile length of this lush tropical island, collapsing pool bars and flower-covered villas at resorts with names like Sandals, Couples, Eden II and Hedonism II.

Winds up to 135 miles an hour ripped sheet metal and shingled roofs from buildings in villages and north shore resort towns from Port Antonio to Negril, allowing torrential rains to pour in and add to the devastation. The capital city of Kingston and other south coast towns were also severely damaged.

Flying debris and uprooted trees smashed windows, telephone booths and 80 percent of the island's street lights. Electric power was out for a month. Salt water and sand poured through resort lobbles, bars, dining rooms and bedrooms, ruining carpets, furniture and plants. Telephones won't be completely restored for several more weeks.

GILBERT HAD a silver lining, however. It swept enough new sand ashore to enlarge some beaches. Most resorts took advantage of the two- or three-month forced closures to reline swimming pools, modernize dining rooms, renovate lobbles, and complete other projects that had been postponed so as not to inconvenience guests.

The hurricane's most devastating economic blow was the total destruction of Jamaica's agricultural crops. All banana, orange, grapefruit, sugar cane, pimento, mango and breadfruit plants were totally wiped out. While the loss cannot be recovered, the crops are making a comeback.

Three months after the storm, new banana plants were seven to eight feet high and will produce a crop in June. Orange Photographer Micky Jones toured trees that were totally stripped of leaves and fruit miraculously blossomed out of season and are now bearing fruit.

Those who have visited Jamaica before might notice that a few landmarks are missing, including the famous Evita's Restaurant that was totally destroyed in Montego Bay. Owner Eva Myers is looking for a new location.

Shopping areas, city craft markets and major tourist attractions are back to normal. Hotel occupancy was very low in December, but Jamaicans hope that the tourism volume will return to normal during the prime season months of January, February and March.

Unlike many Caribbean islands, where beaches and in-hotel activities are the principal tourist attractions, Jamaica has dozens of activities and attractions to keep you busy and broke, especially along the porth shore.

DUNN'S RIVER Falls near Ocho Rios is the most popular. Park admission is less than a dollar, and for another dollar a native guide leads young and old on the 20minute climb up the stair-like waterfall, telling jokes and taking your picture with your own camera.

Garden lovers stroll among the exotic tropical plants and flowers, birds and waterfalls, in botanical gardens, such as Shaw Park, Carinosa Gardens, Athenry Gardens, Fern Gulley and Somerset Falls. For about $35, a couple can ride long bamboo rafts down the fast-flowing Rio Grande River, near Port Antonio or the Martha Brae River near Montego Bay. This isn't the white water danger of the Grand Canyon, but a safe two-hours on a two-passenger raft, with a "captain" navigating with a long pole, Torch-lit cance rides on the Great River near Montego Bay culminate in dinner and floor show under the stars. You can do the same thing on the White River pear Ocho Rios, but only on Sundays.

Or try the Admiralty Club Resort on a small Island near Port Antonio; Errol Flynn owned the island during his wild tropical days. Tour Noel Coward's small house near Port Maria.

As you drive the winding pot-holed roads along the coast and up into cloud-shrouded mountains, you get a wonderful panorama of gally painted wooden shacks, stucco mansions, huge coconut palms, dogs, kids and women balancing bundles or baskets on their heads.

Town sidewalks are crowded with vegetable stands; soft drink carts, food wagons and souvenir stails. Neatly dressed children in school uniforms are everywhere. Native voices have an English lift. By late afternoon, shoppers and office workers iam the streets.

AND THEN there are the party trains, which run through the majestic mountains' south of Montego Bay. The seven-hour journey includes an open bar, buffet lunch, village stops and tours of limestone caves and the Appleton Rum distillery.

As you ride through spectacular views of valleys, tunnels, banana and coffee plantations, you will notice that each contented cow beside the track is escorted by a white

The adult fare, including transportation to and from your Montego Bay hotel, is $44, $35 after April 15. The passenger cars are clean, air-conditioned and comfortable; crew members make sure you have fun.

There are lots of other north shore attractions for the active vacationer - golf, tennis, horseback riding, sailing, deep sea fishing and scuba diving. History lovers can tour the great houses that once dominated vast sugar plantations.

Restored Rose Hall near Montego Bay is supposedly haunted by Annie Palmer, "the witch of Rose Hall." Annie murdered three husbands, many slaves and several friends, before being murdered by a servant.

For shoppers, craft markets are full of light clothling, batiks, straw products, paintings and wood carvings. Bargaining with the vendors will often cut your cost to half the original asking price.

In recent years, two trends have developed among Jamaica's north coast resorts - "couples" hotels and all-inclusive hotel rates that include room, meals, snacks, bar drinks, wine, recreation, fitness facilities and tips.

SOME ALSO include airport transfers, beauty treatments, golf green fees, sightseeing tours and room taxes. Winter rates are about $300 per day for two people, 10 percent less after April 15.

Couples resorts accept only traditional male/female couples and specialize in honcymoons. (For an extra $150 they will stage your wedding right on the premises and invite everyone in the hotel to attend.) Some offer nude beaches in small secluded

The better known couples resorts are the . three different Sandals resorts as well as Eden II, Carlyle on the Bay and Couples.

Conventional resorts offering all-inclusive packages include Negril Inn, Hedon-Ism II, Boscobel Beach, Jamaica Jamaica, Sans Souci, the Plantation Inn, Jack Tar Village, Sea Garden, Casa Blanca and Club Americana.

Cut inane details

Q. A relative I'm forced to see at family gatherings goes through long boring accounts of what he has done, explains details I don't care about and recites like, "And then he told . . . and then I said," etc. Help!

A. I refer to such time-wasters as "cluttered speech" in my time management classes. People tend to engage in this form of boring communications when horizons are limited and time isn't important. It is fine for two people who both enjoy talking that way, but for most, times have changed. The momentum of our society has increased so dramatically that time is now too valuable and interests too broad to wallow in useless details.

This is a lesson of particular import to people in the workplace. It is incumbent upon them to get to the point in business conversations. Few career people are interested in hearing verbatim the lecture you gave your kids last night or the technicalities of solving a problem.

Vibrant people are also irked by long lists of activities. When Jane recites, "First I went to the drug store to pick up some acne medicine for Brian and then I had to go by the cleaners to pick up Joe's suit because he spilt wine on it the night before and then I had to get gas because I had used it all up when . . ." No one cares but Jane. An important aspect of these recitals, however, is that the teller is often feeling pressured and looking for approval of how hard he or she has worked. A verbal pat on the back like, "I'll bet you were really tired" could make their day.

For readers who recognize themselves in this scenario and are not as popular as they wish, being "half safe" with the wrong under-arm deodorant may not be the problem. Perhaps they tell more inane details than others want to know.

Two minutes is the maxiumum time the average listener maintains interest without his own input. Thoughts should be organized by concentrating on the "bottom line." What is the point to be made? Ask, "Therefore , . ?" which helps sort out the pertinent facts. Jane could unclutter her speech and be more interesting by condensing: "I spent four hours running errands today, which really wore me out.

condo queries

Robert M. Melsner

Q. Our condominium association was taiking about levying a substantial assessment with six figures for renovations. They called a meeting and asked for comments from the homeowners. Supposedly, there was to be a ballot disseminated regarding the special assessment and I have not heard anything since. What should we do?

A. Look at your condominium bylaws to determine the procedure for levying a special assessment. It sounds like your association did not follow that procedure and/or has abandoned its attempt to levy an assessment for renovations. I would write the association president and inquire as to the status of the so-called special assessment so as to confirm whether it has been abandoned.

Carnegie Park: characteristics of private home

By Joan Boram special writer

ARY SHAPIRO beams like a new father when he discusses the Carnegie Park apartment complex.

"I worked on the plans for two years," says the young president of the Ivanhoe Cos. "The architect would send them to me, and I would think of improvements and send them back for revision. This was one of the best sites left in the Southfield-Farmington area, and I wanted not only the same quality that characterizes our custom homes and our condos, but I also wanted a design that was unique, not run-of-the-mill." Shapiro got what he wanted. On 11 Mile between Inkster and Franklin roads, Carnegle Park is beatifully landscaped both by nature and by design. Pebble Creek meanders through a wooded one-for reading or maybe just gazing out mile nature trail on the edge of the property, and eventually will merge into a 25-acre city park. Picnic tables are scattered along the nature ceiling, where "people love to do trail, as well as in other locations on laps." the grounds.

policy to save any trees that are on required by the city." For the holiday season, the trees were draped with tiny white lights that will remain through the winter for the festive look they lend. In the spring, Shapiro himself plants lavish quantities of annuals to give the appearance of a large private garden.

The design of the three-story brick buildings is indeed unique for apartment building developments. The first and second floors are stacked; each unit is accessed by its own royal blue door. The third-floor penthouses have a private express elevator, and no elevator is shared by more than 12 people.

ONE-BEDROOM UNITS average 950 square feet, two-bedroom units 1,100 square feet, and the penthouses are a whopping 1,208 square feet, with additional storage space on another floor.

There are eight 1,500-square feet units with two bedrooms, two baths and library. All eight are leased.

While each unit has a formal dining area, we realize that it's homier to have a place in the kitchen where you can grab a cup of coffee and a bagel in the morning, so we made sure that every kitchen could seat at least two people," says Shapiro.

The first three buildings, with 120 units, became available in June 1988. They were immediately filled with an eclectic mix of tenants: empty-nesters, single professionals, young couples with children.

All units have rented at the same rate - ho single size has proven more popular than the others. Rents start at $625 a month for a one-bedroom. A standard penthouse is $830. There are three main units, and 35 alternative, upscale units.

The second, final, phase of Carnegie Park is about to become available. To introduce this luxury apartment complex, there will be a grand opening Jan. 27, 28, and 29, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Anyone signing a one-year lease during the grand opening weekend will receive a free weekend for two in the Bahamas. Carnegie Park is at back door. All have a covered porch 26601 W. Carnegle Park Drive, or patio, and the penthouse has a 20- Southfield. For further information,

Superlative Rental Living In The Hills of West Bloomfield

NEW lavishly large 1, 2 and 3 bedroom terrace ranch dwellings of unsurpassed size that are utterly extraordinary - up to 2,800 square feet and every amenity: private entries, attached garages, fireplaces, cathedral ceilings, designer kitchens with separate breakfast areas, master bedroom suites with dressing area, double vanities, double closets and walk-in closets too, in-residence faundry and storage, full carpeting, central air conditioning, patio or balcony.

Truly resort-like recreational facilities include: oversized pool in a spectacular wooded setting, a manor-home like clubhouse — ideal for private parties - tennis courts and, of course, a 24-hour manned gatchouse with package reception services. There is even a private lending library. All on over 130 incomparable private acres for estate-

Unquestionably the standard for beauty and luxury. For their size, design and breathtaking setting, YOU MUST SEE the 1, 2 and 3 bedroom terrace homes of ALDINGBROOKE.

Travel Maple Road to Drake Road; turn north and drive through the woods, to the summit of the hill, and enter ALDINGBROOKB through the manned gatehouse on your left.

Note: Limited number of short term executive rentals available. I and 2 year lease Mon.-Fri. 10-6; Saturday 9-3; Sunday 12-3 661-0770
