O 1989 Suburban Communications Corporation; All Rights Reserved. Neighbor: Borrowed rifle used on couple

By Tedd Schnelder staff writer

A .22-caliber, single-shot rifle borrowed from a neighbor to kill "a stray dog," was allegedly used by a Westland man to kill his stepbrother and his stepbrother's Garden City girlfriend, according to court testimony Monday.

Christopher Demeter said he reluctantly loaned the rifle, which belonged to his stepfather, to Gary Joseph Galindo shortly after 7 p.m. March 10.

Galindo, 44, was bound over for trial Monday by 18th District Judge Gail McKnight. He is charged with two counts of first-degree murder and one count of possession of a firearm during the commission of a felony.

"He told me about a stray dog. He said he wanted it to shoot the animal," Demeter testified. "I refused at first. I said he would have to ask my stepfather."

"He mentioned it again (about 45 minutes later) and I refused again. But I finally gave it to him."

Demeter said the rifle wasn't loaded when he loaned it to Galindo. He also said he didn't give Galindo any ammunition.

Galindo, who pleaded innocent at his March 13 arraignment, is being held in the Wayne County Jail without bond. He is scheduled to be arraigned in circuit court 8:30 a.m. Monday, April 3.

He is charged with shooting to death Arthur Andrew Novack, 45, and Sharon June Sahaydak, 44, in a house on the 37100 block of Norene late March 10 or early March 11.

The house was shared by Galindo, his ing to court testimony.

GALINDO WAS arrested March 11 in Port Huron by St. Clair County sheriff's deputies, who also recovered the apparent murder weapon. Police found a .22-caliber shell casing in a car - registered to Novack - being driven by Galindo.

If convicted on either murder charge, Galindo could be sentenced to life in prison.

An autopsy report by the Wayne County Medical Examiner listed the cause of death for both Novack and Sahaydak as a single gunshot wound to the chest. Police testified 11. But witnesses acknowledged that al-Monday that they recovered two empty .22- though Galindo has had previous problems ship, if any, Galindo and Sahaydak had. caliber shell casings and one spent .22-caliber with alcohol, he appeared to be "sober" and bullet from the home.

Strong also asked witnesses repeatedly whether Galindo appeared to be under the insounded "normal" over the telephone.

City man gets probation for hitting boxer with car

By Bill Casper staff writer

A 22-year-old Westland man, who drove his car into retired Detroit boxing champion Milton McCrory, was sentenced March 9 by a Detroit Recorder's Court judge to two years probation.

Gary M. Kingins, who was convicted last month of felonious assault with a motor vehicle, also was orderedto pay a yet undetermined amount of money in restitution to McCrory, plus $330 in fines and court costs.

Judge Richard Hathaway, who found Kingins guilty of the charge after a one-day bench trial last month, handed down the sentence.

KINGINS, WHO had pleaded not guilty to the charge, was facing a maximum penalty of four years in prison and a $2,000 fine for the felony offense that stemmed from a Sept. 28, 1988 incident in which McCrory was hit by a car in front of a restaurant in Redford Township.

The assault on McCrory, 27, followed a rock-throwing incident behind Club Mayhem, a Redford bar on Telegraph north of Joy that was destroyed by fire on Dec. 11.

McCrory suffered cuts and bruises after he was hit by the car driven by Kingins but the former boxer was not seriously injured, Redford police said.

He was taken by ambulance to Redford Community Hospital, where he was treated and released, police said.

McCrory, who retired from professional boxing with a 31-4 record, fought as a welterweight out of Detroit's nationally prominent Kronk Gym. He was the World Boxing Council's welterweight champion in 1983.

MCCRORY WAS hit by Kingins' car in front of the McDonald's Mini-Mack restaurant on Telegraph north of Joy, police said.

advisor to retire

By C. L. Rugenstein staff writer

After 12 years of helping senior citizens enjoy their retirement, Polly Malaney will get some free time to enjoy her own.

Malaney, the Wayne-Westland school district's senior adult program director, will retire in November after 25 years as a school employee.

During an interview in her Dyer. Center office, it was a time to remember beginnings, review accomplishments and look to future plans.

Homemade dolls, ceramics, wooden plaques and wall decorations, and a carousel horse-coat rack she decorated herself, surrounded her. They were all items for the upcoming bazaar, an event Malaney started as a fund-raiser for the center.

The bazaar is only one of Malaney's accomplishments since she came on board as the program director in 1977.

In the first years in the job, the program operated out of an office in John Glenn High School. Several years later, the Dyer Center was sentence of 10 years in prison if convicted on the arson charge.

ROBERT SALWA of Detroit has also been charged in the pizzeria arson.-Salwa, -17, was a delivery boy for the pizzeria:

built and housed the program.

"We had about 200 people when the program started," Malaney said. There were a few classes, high school completion and what Malaney called "leisure," like the exercise classes.

"We kept adding classes, innovating to interest seniors," she said.

FINALLY, about four years later, the program's population had grown to around 1,000 seniors. "It doubled almost every year."

Malaney said. "Part of the reason is that so many seniors congregate in the area."

Thieves damaged walls and made off with bout $2,000 in cash when they broke into five hops in a mail on Newburgh and Cherry Hill toads Sunday night.

Police believe the thieves kicked in the glass oor of Guardian Medical Supplies at 982 Newurgh, then broke through the walls of each shop efore reaching a vacant store at the south end of he mail.

Police said they questioned suspects in the reak-in, but hadn't made any arrests as of Tuesstroyed every wall in our place."

Shafer believes the thieves were looking for cash from sales. "The places they tore out of here were places we used to keep money," he said.

A broom handle may have been used to batter the walls in Danilo's, police believe, but a fire extinguisher was used on the walls of the Trans Action Transmission shop.

"The fire extinguisher was in the front of the shop," said Shirley Wright, mother of Trans Action owner Sheila Picard.

Wright said the intruders knocked three holes in the south wall to get into the plaza shop.

"They tried in the bathroom," she said, "but the Police discovered the break-in early Sunday morning and called the shop owners said Frances Keyanchuk, owner of Francesca's Beauly Shop.

Part of Keyanchuk's ceiling also fell in, due to the beating her walls took when the thieves broke in, she said. She also lost a large, chair-type hairdryer.

retirees, is less than a mile away.) They also have a large number who come in from Wayne, Garden City, Plymouth, Canton and Livonia, she added.

She described the program as serving not only as an educational service but also a social one.

Leisure classes have been expanded to include arts and crafts, as well as exercises. Occasionally they'll have a speaker in for a special program of interest to all. And the money also went toward hiring buses for said. trips.

But funds for the program, secured by former school superintend- the Wednesday. Club for artsy-craft-ent Timothy Dyer (for whom the center is named) through U.S. Rep. William Ford, didn't cover other things like an occasional dinnerdance and speakers.

This was alter a year or two into the program, Malaney said.

"The people needed to do some fund-raising on their own for programs," she said. Malaney said her reasoning on the matter was that it wasn't fair to the taxpayers to depend entirely on them. "So we tried crafts," Malaney

THEY GOT a few people together and formed the Tuesday Club and sy fans.

They built up an inventory and had a bazaar. It's since grown into an annual event at Westland Mall.

"I didn't know much about fundraising," at the start, she said, "but in thinking about it the other day, how much we've made," it's been about $70,000 since she's been on the Job.

Malaney said she was probably more surprised than anybody that she got the job 12 years ago. She had worked off and on for the school district, first as a secretary at Wayne Memorial high school while her children were growing up.

She'd also attended Wayne State

University's College of Lifelong Learning and Madonna college studying gerontology because, she said, "I just always liked older people."

But while the appreciation of the seniors is one of the joys of the job, finding new sources of funds is a major frustration, she said.

The Dyer Center is funded by the school district, because of the high school completion classes they offer. It's separate from the city-run Friendship Center for seniors.

Fewer seniors are coming in to complete their high school education, thus' reducing school district support. There are a couple of reasons for this, Malaney said.

"When we first started we were. getting a lot of depression-era seniors," she said. "That group for the most part was non-high school graduates."

Growing up in the depression they'd had to drop out of school and get jobs to help their families.

Now, however, seniors growing up about the time of World War II have had the opportunity to graduate.

THAT IMPACTS funding because the only money allotted to the program is for the high school completion program, not for the special lelsure programs, Malaney said.

"Each semester seems just a little more desperate," she said. "What are all these people going to do if they close the program?"

The bazaar is one means, but Malaney said they're starting to explore other avenues for funding.

A 30-year resident of Westland, Malaney and her husband, Jack, are looking forward to their retirement.

They're having a house built in Florida, which will be ready "about the time we are" in November, she sald.

"I'm going to hate to leave, I'll miss it," Malaney said. But her three grown sons and grandchildren will still be here to visit. "It's just been happy years here."

The assault on McCrory stemmed from a rock-throwing incident around 2 a.m. behind Club Mayhem after Kingins and three other men at a few bar customers, including were denied entrance to the bar because they could not produce driver's licenses at the request of a bar employee checking for proof that they were of legal drinking ages, police said.

McCrory ran after one of the assailants but gave up the chase in front of the Mini-Mack, police said.

Shortly afterward, Kingins drove his car off Telegraph and onto the sidewalk in front of the restaurant, where he hit McCrory, police said. The former boxer was knocked into the air and landed on top of the car, then rolled off the back, witnesses told police.

Levin: Deficit hurting programs

By Diane Gale staff writer

Slashing the national deficit by raising taxes is the key to a healthler economy with better services, explained U.S. Sen, Carl Levin to a Levin. western Wayne County audience Tuesday.

Environment, education and a health care system that Levin called; the 10-year, congressional veteran. shameful are major concerns.

But the unwielding $2.8 trillion deficit puts all national programs in jeopardy, he said in his Canton Library talk.

"We're papering over the deficit," sald Levin, who was invited to Canton by state Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton.

"Something has to give somewhere," Levin said. "Basically we're ducking the issues. We're not addressing the issues that threaten the economy, which is the deficit."

THE TIDE will turn, he said, by increasing cigarette taxes, imposing fees on imported oil and applying a higher tax rate to wage earners with annual incomes of $150,000 or more. Someone earning $20,000 annually shouldn't pay the same tax rate as someone earning $1 million, said

"There's no painless way to reduce the deficit and no line item called waste in the budget," according to Levin attacked money spent on warheads.

"All you can use them for is to threaten," he said, "We have enough warheads 100 times over to blow up the Soviet Union."

Too much money is dumped into defending allies and bringing troops home will cut federal expenses, he added. "We're spending more money to defend Europe than Europe is to . defend Europe.'

But a deadlock between the president, who promised not to raise taxes, and Congress, which said it wouldn't take the lead in imposing taxes, paralyzes either from taking necessary action, Levin said.

. If the deficit is ignored, basic federal commitments, especially Social Security, will fail, he added.

"Social Security may not be there when we need it," he said.

The government has to build the money supply for the year 2003, when more money will be drawn out of the retirement payment system than what is deposited.

"We're pitting seniors against other programs," Levin said.

A NATIONAL crisis in solid waste disposal sites has been especially evident in Canton, one of a group of Wayne County communities considered for a landfill to handle much of Wayne County's solid waste.

"I'm not sure we're (Congress) doing a whole lot in solid waste," said Levin, adding that most solid waste regulations have been imposed by state and local governments.

"The federal government has not stepped in here," Levin said. "We're looking at possibly having the Pentagon use recyclable paper to get a bigger demand for recyclables."

The environment is one of many ~ pressing issues in Canton that are reflective of areas that have to be addressed nationwide during the next decade, said Kosteva.

SHIRLEY POLING said she was disappointed more residents failed to show for the open meeting.

"People want to say elected officials are out of touch," said Poling adding that few voters take advantage of open meetings to "get in touch."

Dale Smith said it's ironic the president claims there are no new taxes. But when he filled out his income tax forms this year he learned he had fewer deductions compared to last year.

"I just wanted to come out and hear what he had to say," said Bob Birch, of Canton. "Just to let him know we're allve."

"I'm an employee of the university, and I don't think it's appropriate for me to provide my students with questions."

STRUBLER, MANAGER of Employment and Staff Development at OU and an ardent pro-life supporter, would not comment on the charges.

"Abortion is a very controversial issue," he said. "For that reason, I think that accusations will be made on both sides."

Strubler admitted he was disappointed that only one side of the issue was represented at the forum.

Paul Franklin, chairperson of the student life lecture board which arranged the program, said he didn't think it was necessary to bring in a speaker with the opposing viewpoint.

"This is not an election issue," Franklin said. "We've had pro-life speakers before, and we've had both sides debating together.

"But she (Weddington) is one of a kind. She's the only person to win an

IT'S A relationship that goes back to Schoolcraft's beginnings, Raymond campaigned for the college's creation back in the early 1960s and was a candidate in the college's initial trustee election in 1961.

"It wasn't easy," she said of the campaign to create Northwest Wayne County Community College (Schoolcraft's pre-founding name).

That the Redford Union and South Redford schools failed to join the. Schoolcraft district is still a disappointment, she said.

"There was a newspaper out in Redford that was campaigning against us, saying all kinds of things," she said. "That's probably the primary reason why the two Redford school districts didn't join

Four seats available in SC election

IN 1965, she faced incumbent trustee Sam Hudson of Plymouth in a one-on-one campaign she said was her most exciting.

"Because there were just the two candidates, I think it focused attention on the race and on the college," she said. Hudson called the race a watermark for the fledgling community college in "Reaching Out," his 1983 Schoolcraft history.

AT THE time, Hudson wrote, the Schoolcraft board was dominated by Plymouth-area residents, most of whom were elected by district. Raymond's candidacy was seen as building Livonia interest in the college.

Though a subsequent court case opened the way for at-large representation for all seats, swinging the balance to Livonia, Raymond continued to press for greater representation from all five school districts included in the Schoolcraft district. Even though she narrowly lost the 1965 election, she and Hudson became friends. Among her prized possessions is a hand-signed copy of Hudson's college history. The late Hudson made several references to Raymond in the volume.

In one he recalls her determination in the light of the early election defeats.

"At that point, many a person would have given up trying," he wrote. "But Rosina didn't and her tenacity paid off."

TENACITY HAS marked Raymond's career on the board, whether it's fighting for liberal arts programs or women's rights.

"She's always been right in there fighting for the cause," board president Mary Breen said. "She's been a fine friend to Schoolcraft College." In the early, 1970s, Raymond participated in a Washington, D.C., "fly in" among nationwide Equal Rights Amendment supporters and was active in the creation of Schoolcraft's Women's Resources Center.

"That is one of the things of which I'm proudest," she said. "That center has helped many, many people over the years."

CREATION OF the Seven Mile Crossing office complex on collegeowned property was a major recent highlight, she said.

"That will allow us to get the Women's Resrouce Center and all the other offices out of those little houses along Haggerty and into a space on their own on campus," she said.

Though several former trustees used their Schoolcraft positions as a springboard to city or state office, Raymond said she never harbored

RAYMOND, HOWEVER, has been active in numerous community activities and is active in the city's library programs. In 1980, she was selected Livonia First Citizen in an annual community recognition program co-sponsored by the Observer Newspapers.

Fluent in German and Spanish, Raymond was also a part-time member of the Wayne State University speech department. At various times, she also taught community education classes in genealogy. That subject is a personal favorite.

An ad hoc committee is urging State Rep. David Honigman to re-inare also up for election this year. Candidates have until Tuesday, April 25, to file for the seats, said Schoolcraft director of institutional advancement Saundra Florek.

At this point, no incumbents have filed, though Florek said that wasn't unusual.

troduce a bill allowing students at all state colleges and universities to request roommates who don't drink alcoholic beverages or take illicit drugs.

The push for a new state law comes despite a voluntary pledge from 13 of the state's 15 public colleges and universities.

"I'm glad they're doing something positive, but I'm skeptical," said U.S. District Judge Bernard Friedman, leader of the ad hoc committee lobbying for the "chemical-free" option.

"The problem that I have not doing it by legislation is they (colleges and universities) can discontinue it any time they want," said Friedman, whose committee has backed the proposal for the past two years.

In a letter to Honigman last week, Friedman said legislation is needed to "ensure continuation of the chemical-free option."

"The only thing that will guarantee it year after year is legislation," agreed committee member Lorna McEwen, a publicist for the chemical dependency programs at Henry Ford Hospital-West Bloomfield.

Both Friedman and McEwen point to Western Michigan University's "experimental program" that offers students an option to live in nonsmoking, non-alcohol and limitedvisitation dorms beginning in the fall.

Both praised the WMU administration's efforts but noted that the program is experimental.

HONIGMAN'S proposed bill would also require the state's 44 private colleges to give students the choice of a non-drinking roommate, as they now offer the option of a nonsmoking roommate.

Honigman introduced the bill last year, but it never made it out of committee after the public and private educational institutions announced their opposition.

Dr. Glenn Stevens of the Council of College Presidents, representing the state's 15 public schools, has said previously that the issue is more complex than a mere check-off on a housing application.

"It's a complicated issue. The unlversity is entering into a contractual agreement with students," Stevens said in an earlier interview with the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. "What controls can the university reasonably implement to enforce such a contract?"

Council members oppose the legislation, he said, because compliance is best left up to the individual

'A student has a right to be in a chemicalfree environment.' — Bernard Friedman U.S. District Judge met with representatives from 13 of the state's 15 public institutions Feb. 24 at Oakland University. The representatives, vice presidents for student affairs, agreed to include the chemical-free housing option on their schools' applications forms, according to OU student affairs vice president Wilma Ray-Bledsoe.

REPRESENTATIVES of Michigan State University and Northern Michigan University were absent. Last month Northern officials said beginning this fall they plan to offer students an opportunity to select roommates who do not use alcohol by checking off that option on the housing application.

But Robert Underwood, the director of student housing at MSU, is unsure whether MSU housing applications will offer students the option.

"There are lots of problems con-nected with it," said Underwood. "Housing operators are totally at the mercy of the person filling out the form. Habits change. Conflicts arise. Then the university is held in low esteem. It's not an easy thing."

Robert Hughes, director of student housing at the University of Michigan, was unaware of state legislation to get the option placed on housing applications, but said U-M will begin offering students a choice come September.

"We will give students an opportunity to choose a chemical-free roommate," Hughes said. "It has nothing to do with legislation. This is just something we are going to do."

Schoolcraft's College Radcliff Center will register students for the spring term, which includes a new. course in allied health education and management.

Mail registration will be accepted. April 3-14 with a special walk-in signup scheduled for 1-7 p.m., Wednesday, April 26, at the center on Radcliff, just south of Ford and east of Wildwood.

The spring term opens May 8. The center had 3,000 students last semester enrolled with most coming from Garden City and Westland. A new class is a one-hour credit for allied health education, offered to high school students and older adults.

The course provides a wide prospective and overview of the college's allied health career programs to help students pick a specific major, sald Stuart Baker, assistant dean/college centers.

One goal for the class is to provide allied health professionals with a better understanding of related posttions in their organizations, said Baker.

Another goal is to give high school students a "preview of coming attractions" for the allied health field.

THE NEW class covers current trends and changes in health care facilities, including acute care hospitals, specialty hospitals, nursing homes, health maintenance organizations, hospices, and home health care.

The quality management course, begun a few months ago, was launched in response to "quality mandates from manufacturers and suppliers," Baker said. It's aimed at preparing quality management spe-cialists in manufacturing or service fields, and is designed for people in those fields.

Students learn to determine the quality and reliability of products using testing and inspecting techniques, evaluating statistical data, and interpreting engineering drawings, diagrams and formulas.

Students warned about stranger

By Dlane Gale staff writer

Officials at Fiegel Elementary School in Canton are warning students not to talk to strangers following reports of a man exposing himself to girls.

Elementary school girls in Canton say they were approached by an unidentified man naked from the waist down.

The man approached the two 9year-old girls and asked for directions as they were walking on Honey Lane in the Honeytree Apartment complex at Joy and I-275 in Canton.

The girls were on their way to Fiegel Elementary School on Joy Road in Plymouth Township at 8 a.m. on Monday, March 20, when the incident-occurred, according to Dave-Boljesic, Canton police spokesman.

"When they approached, they noticed he had no pants on and was masturbating," said Dave Boljesic, Canton police spokesman.

THE GIRLS fled.

The man was described as being in his late teens, with blond hair and clean cut. He was driving a gray Ford Fairmont with a black stripe.

An hour later at 9 a.m. two 11year-old girls were approached by a man with blond hair in the area of Bart and Holly, in Holiday Estate subdivision, which is the first subdivision east of the apartment complex and across the street from Fiegel Elementary School, Boljesic said.

He asked for directions to Deer Street.

As the girls walked toward the car they noticed he was wearing a white T-shirt and nothing else. When they saw he was masturbating they turned and ran away, Boljesic said. The man was driving a white car.

Police patrols were increased in the area, Boljesic said. Barbara Young, Fiegel principal, made announcements in school and sent letters home explaining what happened.

We told them not to talk to strangers and not to listen to anyone asking for directions," said Young, who applauded Canton and Plym-

School finance reform Why pols forge ahead with new plans

By Tim Richard staff writer

More sorting it out on school "finance reform."

Q. Well, your prediction was off base. The state Senate didn't put the school tax reform plan on the May 16 ballot. Any alibis?

A. None. As reported, the votes were there. Democrats didn't want to be saddled with the blame if yoters rejected the plan, so they wouldn't put up 13 votes unless the Republicans put up 13. So two or three Democrats withheld their votes, and the plan got 24, two votes short.

"no" for an answer and let this "reform," which is really a tax increase, die? Why are both Blanchard and lawmakers continuing to work on new proposals?

A. Outstate and rural school districts still perceive they're being drastically short-changed when they have $2,200 per kid to spend and the metropolitan suburbs have $6,000 or more.

They want either much more aid from the state or a piece of the metropolitan industrial tax base, or both. Conservative Republicans and the school lobby liberals are united on that.

Most people in the southeastern tually will sell it to voters. Business Michigan metropolitan area have no notion of how some parts of the state feel they're hurting. There's a lot of ferment going on we in the Detroit area don't appreciate.

The Oakland County Taxpayers' Association is holding a "tax revolt" . meeting at 7:30 tonight in the American Legion Post 108 Hall, Drahner Road east of M-24 in Oxford. Their flyer says their first priority is high property taxes. This issue isn't dead, even if HJR B is.

Q. What does Gov. Jim Blanchard figure he can do by convening leaders of the Municipal League, Town-Q. Why won't some people take ships Association, Asociation of Counties, Manufacturers Assolation, UAW, Chamber of Commerce and all those groups? Haven't we had enough meetings?

A. Blanchard is a total political animal - he keeps both eyes on the polls before advocating anything. His reasoning goes like this:

The 1987 Runkel Gommission recommendations were made by people trying to do good for schools; the late Nye-Oxender plan (House Joint Resolution B) was designed by the education lobby and two rural Republican representatives.

But Blanchard says the plan needs to be designed by the people who ac-managers do this when they invite marketing people's input into product design. Remember. Blanchard , got a master's in business degree before he got a law degree.

Q. We hear Senate Majority Leader John Engler of Mount Pleasant is passing around still another plan. What's in it?

A. Like HJR B, the Senate plan calls for cutting property taxes and raising the sales tax for a net increase of $239 million a year, then pumping $413 million in additional money for schools.

Q. That doesn't add up. How do they get $413 million more for schools from $239 million of new taxes?

A. The trick is to capture all new growth money.

Engler says this "compromise" will:

• Increase the sales tax to 6 percent from 4 parcent, raising-about----$1.6 billion a year.

• Provide about $1.5 billion in property tax relief by cutting assessments for school operations from 50 percent of cash value to 27.5 percent on residential and agricultural property and to 40 percent on businesses. In other words, cut the tax base. The by March 17. It failed to do so.

other plan called for cutting tax rates (millages).

• Guarantee each school district a minimum of $3,300 per pupil a year. No district would receive more than a 15 percent increase in any year. The aid increase would be linked with economic growth rather than with cutting other portions of the budget.

Q. The kids are going to be on spring vacation. Any point in taking them to Lansing to see the Legislature in session?

A. Sorry. The Legislature took off Wednesday for spring vacation. They'll be back April 4.

Q. Why such a cushy deal?

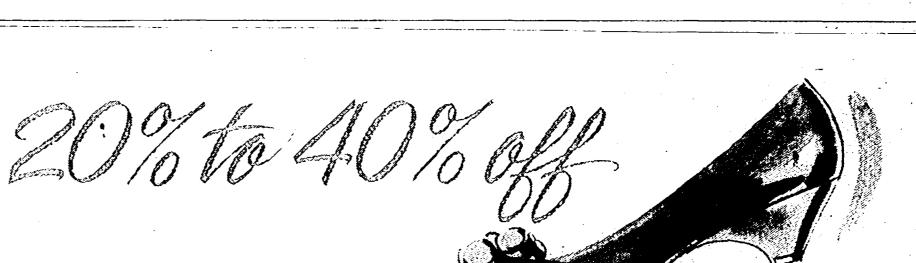

A. Don't complain. There's a sign in the Press Room with that old quotation: "No man's life and liberty are safe whenever the Legislature is in session."

Q. Got your point. Now why was May 16 such a magic date for a ballot proposal?_____

A. That was the last possible date for a special election for a constitutional amendment to take effect July 1, when school districts start their fiscal year. Elections officials need two months to prepare the ballots. Thus, the Legislature had to act

County applauds success of area youth programs

Throughout Wayne County, youth assistance programs offer young of-fenders in alternative to juvenile detention pmes.

Reconizing the success of youth assistance programs, county Execut tive Elward McNamara has declared this week Youth Assistance Week if the county.

"The program has a very high success rite, strong community involvement through volunteer counselors and srong support from the police departments," McNamara said.

An awards presentation at McNamara's downtown office launthed the week's activities. Some hongees were major contributors to the rogram, including the Skillman Foundation, Hudson-Webber Foundatpn and Kellogg Foundation.

Hogram directors receiving honors included Sue Jimenez, Livonia; Ton O'Connor, Redford Township; Joy Goodrid, Garden City and Sue Davis, Plymouth-Canton.

More than 250 people, including community leaders, parents, youths ard directors were were invited to tle program. Juvenile Judges Frances Pilts and Y. Gladys Barsamian were guest speakers.

Initiated seven years ago in Livonia, youth assistance now has programs operating in 19 Wayne County communities, including Livonia, Redford Township, Garden City and Plymouth/Canton.

Youth assistance moves delinquent youths through a series of aclivitles designed to alter their behavior and permanently divert them out of the juvenile justice system.

"That is the basic idea behind the Youth Assistance programs in Wayne County," said McNamara. "The objective is to identify the youth who is headed for trouble, get him and his parents into counseling and try to redirect his life."

Program activities include behavioral contracting, one-to-one counseling with a volunteer, life skills classes, work service and specialized services like tutorial assistance, job placement and court visitation.

Family members actively participate in the program through group sessions on parenting skills and drug and alcohol education.

'The program has a very high success rate, strong community involvement through volunteer counselors and strong support from the police departments.'

The state of Michigan, through the Department of Social Services, has provided funds to the Michigan Training and Resource Center to inltiate youth assistance in six additional Wayne County cities.

Program development is currently underway in Wayne, Wyandotte, Lincoln Park, Riverview, Southgate and Trenton.

Detroit programs are under the supervision of the Wayne County Juvenile Court. All other programs have local autonomy, local control and local funding. Community involvement and a high success rate are factors which result in longterm commitment and local financial support, according to program directors.

The Youth Assistance program directors and the Michigan Training and Resource Center staff recently established a coordinating council. Working together, this group has joined in a countywide effort to bring coordinated services to Wayne County's juveniles.

(P.C-10A)+9A

Long term plans include establishing Youth Assistance programs in every community in Wayne County, thus providing families throughout the county with access to this community based service.

Citizens with questions about the program, or who want information about initiating the service in their communities, should contact their local city hall or the Michigan Training and Resource Center.

Marshmallow drop planned for Friday

A blizzard of marshmallows will greet participants during Wayne County Parks' annual "Great Marshmallow Drop," Friday.

A county tradition since 1978, the annual Good Friday event will be held 11 a.m. in Hines Park. Children will gather at the Nankin Mills Picnic Area, Hines Drive and Farmington Road, Westland. Marshmallows will be dropped from a helicopter hovering over the park at an altitude of 200 feet.

Children are encouraged to gather marshmallows and exchange them for a prize-filled Easter egg. Children will be divided into age groups to give each child a fair chance at marshmallow gathering.

The event will also be held 9 a.m. in Elizabeth Park, Trenton. The rain date is Saturday, March 25.

The' marshmallow drop is the kick-off for spring activities in the parks.

SPRING PARK activities continue with the first "Saturday in the Park" event, May 6. From then through Sept. 23, six miles of the Hines Drive will be closed to motor traffic between 9 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. to provide greater park access for bicyclists, joggers and strollers. Hines Drive will be closed from the Warrendale Picnic Area, west of Outer Drive, Dearborn Heights, to the Nankin Mills Station, near Ann Arbor Trail, Westland. Parking will be available at the Helms Haven, Warrendale, Merriman Hollow and Nankin Mills picnic areas.

Other spring events include Mud Day and the Nursery School Olympics.

Mud Day allows youngsters the chance to play in a specially-created mud pool. The event is highlighted by the crowning of Mr. and Ms. Mud. The annual event will be held 11 a.m. Saturday, May 13 at the Nankin Mills Picnic Area. the event is cosponsored by Tubs and Tumbler Coin Laundry.

The Nursery School Olympics are designed for children age 3-4. Events include (very) miniature golf, marshmallow shot put, paper plate discus toss and Big Wheels grand prix. All children are awarded a commemorative ribbon for their participation. The event is co-sponsored by the Greater Detroit Cooperative Nursery Council.

The 4th R Let's limit graduation parties

IGH school graduations may seem a long way off with residents still battling winter weather. But it's never too early to start thinking about heading off the planned drinking parties,

Unfortunately, seniors want to graduate with a memorable experience — and we don't blame them for that,

Completing their high school education is a major milestone in the life of a teen-ager and it should be marked by more than just a dinner at a family restaurant with parents, siblings, and grandparents.

While many seniors take a nip or two at graduation parties, we feel there is a growing number of graduates who planned to get bombed just for the sake of it.

There are a lot of mixed messages from adults and society about teen drinking and many 18year-olds don't have the experiences to consider the consequences of living "for the moment" and . ing drinking by persons under 21 is a serious not thinking ahead.-- and save lives.

One is a local ordinance, commonly called the 'party host ordinance," which makes the adult occupants of a house or their teenage sons or daughters responsible for any illegal drinking in their homes.

We strongly urge the Westland City Council to adopt such an ordinance.

Current ordinances on the books in other communities address the problem by having adults prosecuted for contributing to the délinquency of a minor.

But city, school leaders, and police officers can always use another tool — the party host ordinance.

It was pioneered nearly four years in nearby Farmington Hills where Police Chief William Dwyer told the Observer that it has been very effective and a great deterrent.

Now is the time to push for a host party ordinance to control the drinking problem.

The serious of the problem can also be seen in the 1987 Michigan State Police reports, which show that drivers in the 24-and-younger age are_ involved in a disproportionate share of fatal car accidents.

The police said that 35.3 percent of drinking drivers in fatal crashes are 24 or younger, said a Wayne MADD spokesperson.

WHILE a host party ordinance may not be a solution to all liquor problems, it will go a long way to tell parents and young adults that allowproblem-that-can-cost persons convicted-money, There are a lot of ways to fight the problem a potential jail term, and potentially a large civil judgment.

> Under some party host ordinances, parents are held responsible for illegal drinking in their homes, whether the parents are home or not.

> We admit that teens face plenty of outside forces, such as peer pressure, the feeling that "everyone else is doing it," and the meed to fit in with classmates.

> But there are plenty of medical reasons to avoid liquor before it becomes a problem, either at graduation time or anytime.

> While parents can be more responsible with their own sons and daughters, graduates must also face up to their own actions and avoid taking risks.

One constant reminder to both groups could be widely-distributed photos of destroyed cars and mangled bodies found by police officers after an Lately we've been reading-a lotabout education, its financing and its effectiveness in educating our children. A while back, you may recall, a concerned teacher wrote to express disgruntlement with academia. Because of its importance, education is always a welcome subject in this column.

Now, a student has written in to express his concerns. I know you'll find the remarks by Hans Wild compelling. Hans, a student at Stevenson High School in Sterling Heights, saw a copy of the other column via teacher Marie Brown.

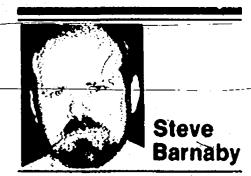

This is what Hans has to say. "The system is going downhill rap-

wrong attitude.

"I feel that the acquiring of this attitude should not be blamed solely on the student, but also on the student's parents. All parents should push their children to develop good homework and study habits. "There are also a few teachers who have the wrong school attitude. These are the teachers who hand their students a textbook, assign a few questions or problems each day, read off the answers the next day and give a test every other week. "This is not teaching. "A teacher must know more about a subject than just what is in the textbook. A teacher must teach. He should help students with problems, answer questions, and lecture, indepth on material that a student can not get out of a regular textbook. This, in turn, is teaching.

"Also to blame for the failing educational system are the administrators. Administrators are very naive when it comes to what goes on in the classroom. They do not see the bad attitudes of the teachers and the students. They do not know what real 'school life' is all about. They live in their own 'office' world.

"When it comes to disciplinary actions, the administrators are much too easy, and therefore, repetitious offenders are common. "It is time that the administrators come down to earth and find out what really goes on in their schools. And when they find out the problems, they must do something to correct them." It's nice to see a student with such deep concern. Thanks, Hans, for taking the time to write. Maybe the politicians in Lansing will stop messing around and get down to business once they learn what you already know.

His department has made from 15 to 20 arrests since the ordinance was adopted with the defendants ranging in age from 17 to the mid-40s. The penalties are a $500 fine and/or 90 days in jall.

Alcohol-free

Students must have a choice

T'S EXCITING that starting this fall nearly all of Michigan's public colleges and universities will give students the option of alcohol-free rooming.

It appears the only holdout is Michigan State University. MSU officials say they're still unsure whether to allow students to request non-drinking roommates. That's too bad, because MSU's dormitory system is by far the largest of any institution of higher learning in the state.

We urge MSU officials to join their public college and university counterparts before fall term housing applications start pouring in.

That issue aside, credit is due those other institutions of higher learning who have adopted the alcohol-free option and to people who urged them to do so.

It's a diverse lot, with members ranging from West Bloomfield High School senior Eric Worley, who testified before a state legislative committee that it was his right to have the choice of a roommate who didn't use alcohol, to federal Judge Bernard Friedman, who was disturbed at the number of young people who came before him for alcohol and drug-related offenses.

- Documentation that students recovering from substance abuse problems must have a safe place to live was provided by representatives of Maplegrove Youth Treatment Center in West Bloomfield.

In the end, it took two responsive legislators to put enough pressure on the colleges and universitles to get them to agree that students should have the same right to choose a non-drinking roommate, as they now have to choose a nonsmoking roommate.

STATE REP. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, drew up the proposed legislation, while state Rep. Burton Leland, D-Detroit, when he was chair of the House Committee on Colleges and Universities, agreed to delay action on the bill before the committee, giving the universities until this spring to respond and ward off the legislation.

Honigman previously had insisted on total compliance from public colleges and universities. He plans to meet with area members of an ad hoc committee to to discuss the next move. It's unfortunate that it took the threat of legislation to get public schools to make a commitment, Honigman has had no response from the association that represents private colleges.

Although initially aimed at providing a safe haven for college students recovering from substance abuse problems, the alcohol-free room option is now much broader. It's an acknowledgment that students. have made a lot of choices about their lives.

haven for college students recovering from substance abuse problems, the alcohol-free room option is now much broader.

It's an acknowledgment that students have made a lot of choices about their lives.

It will also aid students who come from homes where alcohol has been a problem, students whose religion doesn't allow them to drink and students who simply don't want alcohol-related parties in their rooms.

IT MAY even lead to an overall reduction in college-age drinking.

Rather than weakening their position on in loco parentis (charged with a parent's rights, duties and responsibilities), the schools have taken a further step toward increased student rights. Students have another opportunity to determine the kind of lifestyle they want.

We urge parents to take the first step in separating from their college-bound students and allow them to fill out their student housing applications for themselves.

That what's happening at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, which this fall will have a wing for students who chose not to drink or use drugs for any reason,

Making the decision to choose a roommate who doesn't smoke or who doesn't drink must be the student's choice, for it will be the student who must enforce it.

The state's public institutions of higher learning can take pride in the example they are setting for the rest of the nation in stepping up to the fact that drinking is a choice, not a necessary part of college life.

We hope that the public schools will live up to We hope that private colleges will follow the the spirit of their voluntary, verbal agreement, ldly, and several groups of people are to blame.

Store lacking good security

To the editor:

· My husband and I were shopping at a major discount/catalog store. I was standing near the exit door waiting for him when I noticed two women leaving the store with merchandise. I thought it was unusual, because every purchase had to be picked up at a desk.

A few minutes later, there was a male, with what appeared to me had a large item hidden in his jacket. He went to a van in the parking lot, where I thought the two women had also gone. As we were leaving the store, I said to my husband, "I think three people have just walked out of the store with stolen goods." We went to our car and watched the people in the van. A few minutes later, the same male got out of the van and went back into the store.

I told my husband, "I can't let this happen again." I followed him into the store and went to a store employee and told them of the incident. She did not seem alarmed. At that point, the male was coming out of the store with merchandise visibly showing in his coat. Much to my chagrin, she informed me that the store did not have security. She then called the police. They could not send a car at that time because they. were all busy. My husband gave her the license plate number and the description of the car and we all watched them drive away. Nothing was done.

First of all, I could not believe the

Watch capitol shell game

To the editor:

Livonia

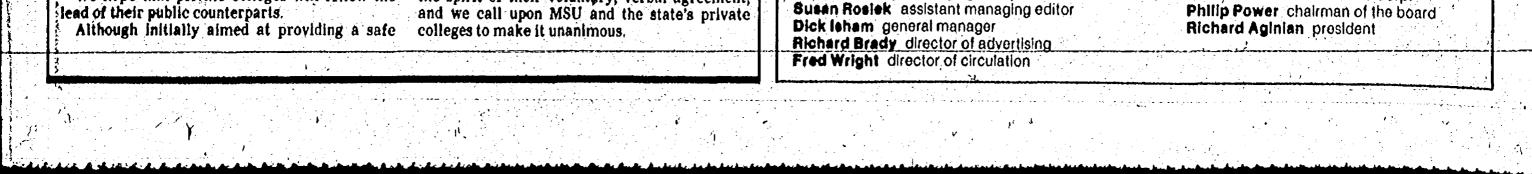

Here we go again with another Lansing shell game. We'll take care of your schools. It will only cost you 50 percent more in state sales tax. We will give you a 37 percent cut in school taxes on your property, Ľ When are the people in this state going to wake up? The recent increase in equalized value will still mean higher property taxes in spite of the 37 percent cut. State sales tax is no longer deductible on your federal income tax return; this is a tax cut? How much of the state-controlled tax increase will go to our suburban school systems?

I see this new tax as a cloaked at-! tempt to ball out the failing Detroit! school system. It is not a tax cut. # Baseball relieves stress

THERE ARE many important issues weighing heavy on your minds and those issues are very pressing. They are also depressing.

My mind for a day hasn't room for such thoughts. It's too busy drifting back to the stands behind first base at a stadium where paim trees cast shadows over the right field fence. Only a week ago that wandering mind was joined by a body. If you've ever seen spring training baseball. you'know why it's hard to leave it behind.

This game was played at the winter home of the New York Mets, which, according to spring training guides. is in Port St. Lucie, but according to promotional brochures and billboards is actually in West St. Lucle, or maybe it is West Port St. Lucie, I get confused.

PORT ST. LUCIE is not your household word. As I prepared for Florida, no one I talked with knew where it was. I told friends it was near Port St. Ricky Ricardo and genyou get when people think you really do need a vacation.

Port St. Lucie has been in Florida a long time. There is even a Club

Med there. But the area recently has taken off. The couple we traveled with could document the rapid growth of housing developments, shopping mails and commercial strlp developments.

There are now two Port St. Lucie dally newspapers. Can'a Port St. Lucie JOA be far behind?

But the Mets are not in Port St. Lucie. They are west of the river in West Port St. Lucie, which, near as I could tell, consists of a baseball park, a golf course and hundreds of acres of flat, grassy land with perlodic signs saying, "Site of New MegaMall."

ALL OF this is immaterial. I don't erally got in return that type of look care to talk today about the malling of America, the paving of pastures or even the use of government money to build baseball parks to lure major league baseball teams from one Florida city to another. That is what is happening in Florida, where a monument stands in front of the Mets' Florida stadium in appreciation to county taxpayers whose money built the park in 1988.

I don't care about these things, just as I don't care that I was watching the New York Mets, probably the only team I dislike more than the New York Yankees. I even wore a Mets cap.

You really cannot dislike anything at a spring training game. Even the hoots for pouting millionaire Darryl Strawberry were good-natured. In a world of oranges and grapefruits. there is little room for serious raspberrles.

BASEBALL IS a wonderful sport. There is not the aggression, the taking of turf that marks other sports. How many other sports do you know where the defense gets the ball?

In baseball you get the full measure of your opponent. There is no stalling in baseball. No holding the ball until the clock runs out. The other team always gets its last bats. It ain't over 'til it's over.

As good as the game gets during the season when lazy summer days turn into tension-packed, late-inning, rallies, there may be no better time and place for baseball than in Florida in March.

The grass is green, the sky is blue, the sound of the bat on the ball is loud and true. Young men are playing a child's game while children of all ages bask in both the sun and the dreamed-of glory.

Lawmakers quietly reach 'Potty parity'

VERY QUIETLY, Michigan has made progress toward achieving "potty parity" - somebody else's nickname for a 2-1 ratio of women's to men's toilets in public buildings.

I wouldn't have known about it except that state Sen, Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, walked over to the Capitol press box where I was valiantly trying to prop open my eyellds one morning last week, and briefed me.

"There will have to be a 60-40 ratio now," said Pollack. She had read my column about Virginia's new 2-1 potty parity law, local crusader Penny Wright and the difficulty of amending Michigan's plumbing code in a similarly progressive fashion.

IT HAPPENED very quietly because the change didn't occur in the usual legislative arena.

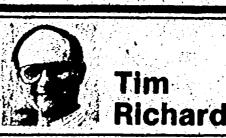

Pollack and Rep. Judith Miller, R-Birmingham, are the first two women in a long time to serve on an obscure body called JCAR (pronounced "jay car"), the Joint Committee on Administrative Rules. Unless you're a fan of the Michigan Constitution, you couldn't have known it existed.

On JCAR, five senators and five representatives review rules being hatched by various administrative agencies such as the Plumbing Board.

- As Pollack relates the late-1988series of JCAR meetings: "I asked the ratio of bathrooms. They said 'we have it equal.' I said this is not good enough.'

Her staunch ally was Sen. Ed Fredricks, R-Holland, one of the Senate's crustier conservatives. But allies are where you find them.

EFFECTIVE ALREADY, the new rules require in workplaces a 3-2 ratio of women's to men's water closets for smaller places, 4-3 for slightly larger and 5-4 and 6-5 ratios in still larger workplaces.

In theaters, sports arenas and stadiums, the ratios are 3-2, 4-3 and so forth; until the occupant load passes 300.

In nightclubs, bars, cocktail lounges and restaurants, the 3-2 ratio is a little solider.

The rule for exhibition halls, libraries, recreation centers and pas- For the dogs, they had fenced piles senger terminals also is improved.

It's not 2-1, like Virginia's law, or 2.5-to 1, as Penny Wright and I advocate, but the 1989 code is an improvement.

AT THE OUTSET. I said this was done "very quietly."

Pollack, who likes to be known as an environmentalist, confessed twice: "When I got up here, I said I wouldn't do potty press." (To "dopress" means to send out news releases.)

It seems women still avoid complaining, in mixed company, about the long lines they must stand in to use a restroom. It's not funny. It takes women twice as long to use the restroom. Men's and women's systems are different, and when women

"hold it" they are more susceptible to infections, cancers and other bad things than men are. That's the way God made us, and architects ought to have brains enough to recognize it even if the state Plumbing Board is slow.

(R-11A)*13A

MICHIGAN'S PLUMBING code still is inadequate. Moreover, it applies only to new construction, not to buildings already in place.

It is my sad duty to report that Detroit's new, expanded, modern+ ized, renovated, spruced up Cobd Hall is worse than the old one in this regard. Or so women tell me.

Take the March 12 Detroit Kennel Club show, There are no intermis; sions, so people can use the rest rooms at will. Yet there were line ups of 30 or so outside the door of the women's room.

of wood chips and sawdust. The dogs had shorter waits than the women did. It led at least one woman to contemplate invading the dogs' restroom.

Sen. Pollack reports women are invading the men's sanctuary when nature becomes unendurable. A 29year-old female relative confirms that report in the case of the dreadful Joe Louis Arena.

-That's all right in an emergency, but a kinder, gentler nation should double the water closets in women's restrooms.

Some women's group needs to grab this issue.

Q: I have been told my son should be placed in begindergarten. What isbegindergarten and is it good for my son? Is he stupid?

A: Begindergarten, developmental kindergarten or pre-kindergarten is for those students who are old enough to attend regular kindergarten but who need the luxury of another year of schooling before entering the mainstream.

It does not mean that your child is stupid. Assuming appropriate testing has been given, it could mean his fine motor development, hand-eye coordination, language and communications skills or social or emotional level requires some special attention prior to going into regular kindergarten.

Research has clearly indicated districts is cost and space. It requires additional teachers, space. materials, transportation and supervision.

Another problem is that the prekindergarten population usually continues to grow in numbers. In one school district, the percent went from 6 percent to 34 percent in three years. Some districts put a "cap" on the number to be admitted.

What is reatily needed is a revised that some 5-year-old children, especially boys, who enter kindergarten may not be ready and can have problems in school because of the lack of readiness.

Allowing trained teachers to work with such children in a developmental kindergarten setting can pay positive dividends.

The developmental kindergarten concept takes into consideration the fact that children are different some walk sooner than others or talk sooner than others, and some are not necessarily ready for kindergarten just because they are 5 years old.

A major problem to many school curriculum that is driven less by textbooks and dittos, and more by a developmental approach that allows students to progress in hands-on activities in a cooperative learning environment, which takes into consideration the social, emotional and academic readiness of the child.

The state Senate's vote to create an African American Affairs Commission left Sen. Jack Faxon shaking his head.

"It looks better on paper than in terms of actual functions. We should enforce the civil rights laws .... provide better social services . . use it on the African American Museum in Detroit," said Faxon, D-Farmington Hills.

He foined four Republicans in opposing two bills to create an African American Affairs Commission and an African American Interagency Council within the administration. Senate Bills 198 and 199 were passed 32-5.

All other Observer & Eccentric area senators voted yes but took no part in the debate.

i "I would like to remove my name as a co-sponsor," said Sen. Doug Carl, R-Utica, who voted no. Carl said his change of heart was due to "our impending fiscal problems and our inability to deliver on property tax reform."

FAXON WAS a member of the 1961 Constitutional Convention, which created a Civil Rights Commission to achieve compliance with anti-discrimination laws.

The 25-year legislative veteran said the CRC is underfunded, and the new African-American Commilssion will only drain off $250,000 to $300,000 for per diem, travel, staff and office expenses, according to a Senate staff analysis.

Freshman Sen. Virgil Smith, D-Detroit, saw the issue as one of achieving respect for people whose cultural roots are in Africa. "We've never had cultural recognition. We have never been compensated for

The sponsor, Sen. Phil Arthurhultz, R-Whitehall, said the AAAC would "review trends in our society . . review state public policy, existing actions, housing, employment, justice."

IF THE HOUSE also passes Arthurhultz's bills, a 15-member AAAC would, according to a staff analysis:

• Stimulate the study of the status of African Americans.

• Develop unified policies to serve their needs.

 Advise elected officials on state policies concerning African Americans, particularly in employment, civil rights and political rights.

Patients seek life after HPV By Barbara G. Cassani

special writer

All diseases take a physical and emotional toll on the patient, and that's especially true of Human Papillomavirus infection.

Depending on the type of virus, an HPV infection not only carries the threat of the possibility of cancer, it also carries, at least from the patient's viewpoint, the fligma of a sexually transmitted disease.

"I feel dirty" is a common statement patients make about themselves, according to Lisa Rutledge, a social worker at the Richard Reid Foundation for Cervical Cancer Research.

"They (female patients) have been raised with a 'not that kind of girl' idea about themselves and the infection makes them feel insecure," she said. "They can develop a poor selfimage because of it."

Rutledge serves as a patient educator. She explains what the HPV infection is, how it is transmitted, the high risk versus low risk types of HPV and in general, tries to allay a patient's fears about treatment as well as current and future sexual relationships.

"They're really concerned about who they got the infection from," Rutledge said. "They want to know how long they've had it, so they can trace it back to a certain partner. I can't tell them that.

"They're also insecure about whether they should tell a past or future partner about the infection. I

The silent epidemic

New diagnostic technique helps identify viral strains.

By Berbere G. Cassani special writer

In the shadow of the current AIDS crisis lurks an equally tenacious virus.

It's infecting the national population at epidemic levels, yet evading the limelight of public recognition.

Its name is Human Papillomavirus, or HPV. *

The National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Disease estimates that the virus afflicts 8 million Americans annually. However, three Seattle doctors put the infection rate at more than 12 million in a recent study published by Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health. Even that figure assumes current standard testing procedures detect only 50 percent of the infections caused by the virus.

Research began in the 1960s, when the virus was found in abnormal Pap smears, a cancer screening test for women. More recent research has produced even stronger evidencé linking the virus to cancers of both male and female reproductive systems. It also can cause respiratory and laryngeal problems in children whose mothers have passed the virus to them at birth.

Despite almost three decades of research, there is an alarming public ignorance about this quiet yet common virus.

A group of specialists in the suburban Detroit area are shedding some much needed light on HPV.

Working on HPV and its relationship to genital cancers are Richard Reid, a medical doctor and director of the Cervical and Vulvar Dysplasia Clinic of Sinai Hospital in Detroit; Samuel Rosemberg, a medical doctor with the departments of urology at Harper-Grace Hospitals, and Mitchell Greenberg, a medical doc-: tor and clinical coordinator of the Richard Reid Foundation for Cervical Cancer Research, and Histopathology Associates, P.C., a pathology laboratory dealing extensively in HPV cases.

There are 56 known strains of HPV; only six have been implicated in cancers of the male and female reproductive systems. The relationship of HPV to cervical cancer in women has recently become even don't like to say 'yes, you should do this, or no, you shouldn't do that.' I try to give them enough information about the infection itself. I help them analyze their own particular situation, to present the possibilities that pertain to their own cases and let them decide for themselves.'

AN HPV infection can strain even the strongest relationships, married or single. It isn't uncommon for couples to experience periods of abstinence while adjusting to the physical and emotional changes the infection can bring, Rutledge said.

Singles, especially, often experience a setback in their dating habits. "A lot of them break up with a partner because of the infection, or they stop having sexual relations with this partner," Rutledge said. "Others stop dating altogether, not wanting to place themselves in a situation where sex might occur.

"They also feel, somehow, that they should give up sex, although we don't tell them that they should."

Laura (not her real name), a 36year-old art broker, said she and her flance broke their engagement when both were diagnosed as having an HPV infection after a more than two-year monogamous relationship.

"It wasn't the virus itself - you can handle someone getting an illness - but I was told I had the infection long before my fiance was diagnosed with it," she said. "When I told him about my infection, he went to his family doctor who told him that

HPV: A few things you should know

By Barbara G. Gassanl special writer

• Who should be tested for Human Papillomavirus (HPV)?

Doctors say if you or your partner have no obvious signs of an HPV infection, and both of you have had only one sexual relationship in your lifetime, odds are that neither of you have been exposed to HPV.

But they also say if either of you have had multiple partners, the odds for HPV exposure increase significantly.

• What is HPV and why is it important to know if you're a carrier?

A lot of attention is focused on AIDS, but HPV is also a significant virus from the standpoint of cancer of the cervix - which is more likely to kill a woman than the AIDS virus.

• What are the symptoms of HPV? The infection at the obvious stage may appear as raised, genital warts. They can be pink, brown, white or gray. Left untreated, they may become cauliflower-like in appearance.

Oral and anal HPV warts can be spread during sexual contact. Oral warts can occur in the lower lip and cheek area, with bumps that can be seen and felt. Symptoms of hoarseness can be an indication of HPV warts and anal warts can be mistaken for hemorrholds.

• What type of examination is needed to determine the presence of HPV?"

Comprehensive screening and diagnostic techniques are important in the diagnosis, treatment and containment of HPV infections. In males, regular urological examinations to properly screen for HPV infections is crucial.

Many men who don't know they're carrying the virus can transmit it to a woman, according to Dr. Samuel Rosemberg.

During a urological exam, obvious genital warts may be tested to detect the presence of the inobvious HPV infection. It also may be necessary to perform a urethral smear to rule out HPV involvement of the urethra.

The urethral smear is similar to the Pap smear for females, although it's not done routinely.

"THE KNOWLEDGE about male HPV, infection is still in its infancy," said Mujtaba Husain, a medical doctor who studies the cellular changes in disease for Histopathology Assoclates Inc. In Southfield.

"In the male, the most likely reservoir for (HPV) infection is the urethra," Husain said.

Screening for HPV infections in women is equally stringent, if not more so. The National Cancer Foundation recommends a Pap smear, the first step in HPV detection, at least annually.

But with the high potential for false-negative results (between 30 percent and 50 percent) from a Pap smear, any woman with multiple sexual partners and/or a history of HPV exposure should have a Pap smear at least once every six months.

False negative Pap smears are, as the term implies, results which are deemed negative when, in fact, they may be positive.

Additionally, colposcopy - an examination which enables magnification of the cervix and vagina - should be performed along with ViraPap (see related story) testing and, possibly, additional viral typing.

more clear.

"HPV is found in 95 percent of cervical cancers and the other 5 percent most likely are HPV types we haven't discovered yet," Reid said.

Although cancers of the penis and scrotum are still relatively rare, in the cases that have occurred, two HPV types were present in 50 percent of the tumors biopsied. And even though the risk of HPV-related cancer is greater in women, the virus also poses a very real risk to men as well, Rosemberg said,

"We have seen cancer of the penis and one case of cancer of the scrotum in which we think HPV might be the cause, so it is a danger for a man to have an HPV infection, especially if they have a cancer-causing type of virus," said Rosemberg.

Although an HPV infection is presently incurable, not everyone who contracts an HPV infection will progress to cancer. In fact, few will.

Gilbert Herman, a medical doctor and director of Histopathology Assoclates, said HPV has become one of the prototypes in studying the relationship between viruses and cancer,

"THE MORE WE learn about HPV, the more we understand how cancers are initiated and promoted," he said:

"HPV seems to be an initiator. It gives a cell the potential to become cancerous.

"Whether it actually goes on to become cancer might take other fac-

Angela Hospice Home Care sets volunteer training class

Angela Hospice Home Care, which provides assistance to families caring for terminally ill relatives, is looking for volunteers.

The nonprofit, inter-denominational organization, based in Livonia, is dedicated to providing support and care for people in the final phases of a terminal illness so they can be alert and live as fully and comfortably as possible.

Angela Hospice believes that when a person is faced with death, the realities of life take on a new meaning, said administrative assistant Christine Millington. Each moment becomes precious and each day becomes a celebration of life.

Volunteers serve families in a variety of ways. They provide direct physical care, supportive counseling, friendly visits, health care education, light household chores and help with errands. Others volunteers assist in publicizing the organization.

The organization provides training for volunteers. New classes will begin April 3. They will be in threehour segments on Mondays through May 15. If there is enough interest in the volunteer work, an evening class - from 6:30-9:30 p.m. - may be offered.

"I'd heard about Mount Carmel's excellent reputation in pediatrics. So I wanted the doctor I chose for David to be affiliated with the hospital. But I also wanted someone with an office near my home in Livonia. I called the Mount Carmel referral number and the woman who answered the phone put me in touch with several doctors who offered what I was looking for. The one I selected for David is wonderful. I couldn't have found him without the help I got from the referral service."

Silent killer Researchers link virus to cancer

tors. Smoking, bacterial infections and herpes increases the carcinogenic risk of HPV," said Herman.

Physicians believe the immune system plays an important role in how an HPV infection will "take." People whose immune systems have been weakened from other treatment processes and/or diseases, such as AIDS, diabetes and chemotherapy, will be affected much more dramatically. Pregnant women also are at a much higher risk, according to Reld.

People have a certain amount of natural immunity toward the virus, according to Herman, who holds a doctorate in research. Biopsies have shown "a very strong host reaction" to the invading virus, he said.

"We see white blood cells and plasma cells there (in biopsies) which implies that antibodies are being made," Herman said. "In other words, the body is fighting off the virus."

But even with an immune system that is in good working condition, once you've contracted HPV, it's yours for life. The active stage of the virus - obvious, raised warts isn't constant.

'The more we learn about HPV, the more we understand how cancers are initiated and promoted. HPV seems to be an initiator. It gives a cell the potential to become cancerous.'

"WE DON'T know if we can make people non-infectious by treating them," Greenberg said. "We treat people because no one wants warts and because of their malignant potentlal. You can't cure it, if it persists for life, but we can drive it back into remission."

The specialists are using a new diagnostic tool, ViraPap, recently approved by the Food and Drug Administration. ViraPap is a nucleic acid probe that permits study of the virus' DNA (gentic makeup).

Use of the probe results in a more accurate diagnosis of the presence of HPV in patients who have an inobvious (not visible to the human eye in the form of a wart) infection. The Johns Hopkins' study reported that an additional 7 percent of HPV infections have been detected as a result of using such DNA probes. It is believed that the inobvious level of the HPV infection is most likely responsible for the epidemic spread of the virus. Since the infection can't be seen at that stage, people don't realize they or their partner have it and don't take precautions to prevent its transmission to others.

"On a typical day, we will render a diagnosis on about 30 people who have just walked into either their urologist or gynecologist and found they have the inobvious HPV infection," Herman said.

"This means these people have the potential to develop condylomas (the raised, obvious warts) or dysplasia (a precancerous condition)," he said

The ViraPap probe is used on patient blopsy specimens taken during urological or gynecological exams to determine if the HPV DNA is present.

THE PROBE was developed at Bethesda (Md.) Research Laboratories Life Technologies under the direction of Attila Lorincz, a chemist who holds a doctorate in research, worked exclusively with Reid. They were able to isolate the virus, then clone it by producing a mirror image of itself - the ViraPap probe.

Explaining how the probe works, Edna Elfont, a cell biologist for Histopathology, said the virus' genetic material is released from the tissue by using enzymes that digest the cells. If the HPV genetic material is present, the matching genetic material of the probe sticks to it. If no HPV is present, the probe washes away.

"The ViraPap procedure is another bit of information the clinician needs to know," Greenberg said. "It screens for the seven most common HPV types. If the ViraPap is positive, viral typing should then be done to specify exactly which HPV type is covered by most health insurances.

Depending on the level of infection, the chronic nature of the virus frequently requires treatments, such as weekly applications of a 5-FU (cream), laser surgery for advanced or stubborn warts, or Interferon injections.

With the ViraPap probe, better screening technology for HPV infections is now available. However, some HPV exposed individuals will slip through even this comprehensive screening by ignoring basic preventative measures (use of condoms, limiting sexual partners and exams at regular intervals).

For that group of people, the risk of developing cancer and/or other complications from an HPV infection is much greater.

The stork did a double drop at a Farmington Road duplex recently, with two boy babies delivered within days of each other.

The event prompted both fathers to order stork lawn ornaments to herald their proud arrivals.

Passers-by did a double take. Ryan James was welcomed to the world at 9906 Farmington Road and Nicholas Alan was greeted in at the other end of the duplex at 9910 Farmington Road.

BOTH ARE first babies.

Nicholas is the older of the babies. Born by Caesarean section Feb. 27 at Botsford Hospital in Farmington Hills, he weighed 7 pounds, 15 ounces and measured 19 inches. His parents are the Beyers - Kimberly, 28, and Barry, 29.

Ryan is the younger baby. Born by natural delivery March 2 at Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn, he weighed 7 pounds, 14 ounces and measured 22 inches. His parents are the Glasers - Bill, 26, and Judy, 28.

"WHEN WE moved into the duplex in September, we found out that Judy Glaser was pregnant, too, and due just about the time I was," Kimberly Beyer said.

Even their pet cats, who both resemble TV's Morris, got acquainted.

Bill Glaser took the idea of similarity still further. At birth, his son, Ryan, was exactly the same weight and length that he was.

"I'm 6 feet, 4 inches now and weigh 270 pounds," Bill Glaser said, laughing. "The way my mother complained about the food bill, I don't know if I want him to grow up."

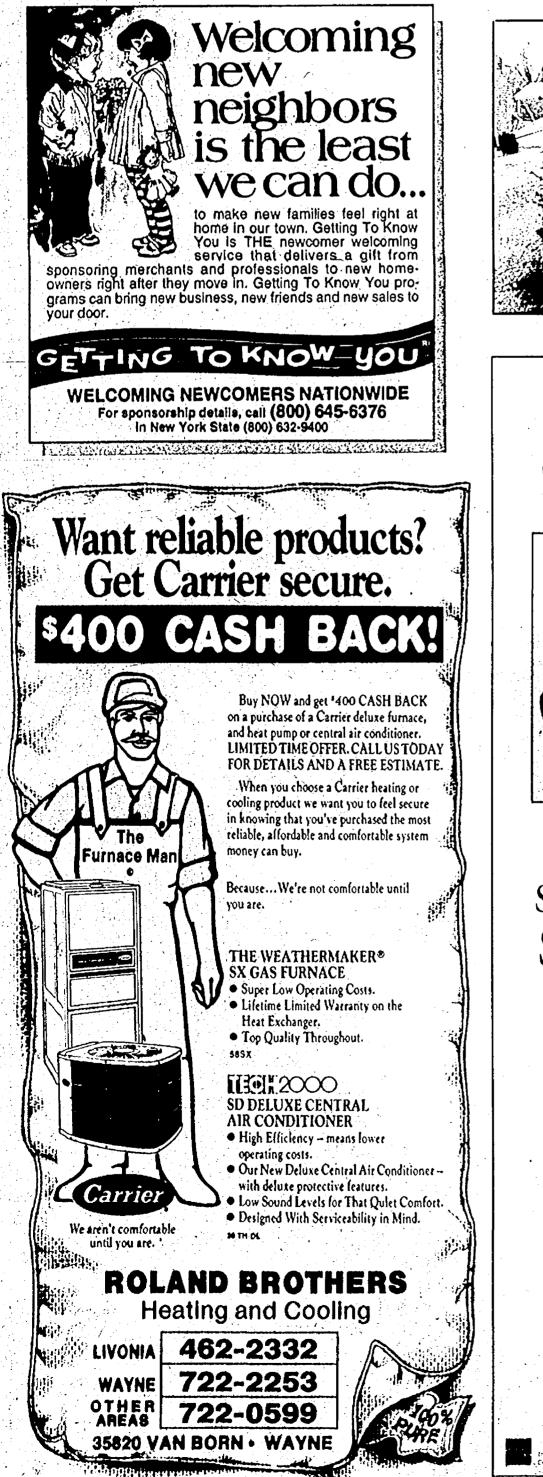

BOTH BABIES have bright yellow nurseries, but Nicholas' has Disney babies while Ryan has bears on his wall.

The Glaser baby has a full head of hair; the Beyer baby has peach fuzz. "They had to part Ryan's hair in the hospital to take his picture," Billsaid.

While both babies are sleeping through the night, the Beyers and the Glasers have noticed one thing when it is very quiet, especially at night, they can each hear the other's baby, Bill Glaser said.

And sure enough, when one starts crying, the other follows soon after.

Water use down in '80s

D ERIODICALLY, throughout the year, the Consumer Mailbag does an "Eco-Notes" column where topics of environmental interest are discussed. Recently, three reports have come into the Concern Office about water that I wanted to share with you:

WATER CONSUMPTION:

A five-year survey done by the U.S. Geological Survey shows a drop in water use in the U.S. 1980-85, the date of the last survey.

The report shows a 10 percent decline in both fresh and saline-water drawn from lakes, streams, wells and springs for use in homes, offices, farms, industry and thermoelectric power plants.

However, since the USGS began its survey, water use has more than doubled from less than 200 billion to almost 400 billion gallons per day.

One possible reason for the decline in water use may have been because water removal costs have increased as water levels dropped with increased use in the past.

Another reason may be that more water was being recycled for industry and irrigation while commodity production dropped.

Last summer's drought may show increased water use, especially in areas like Nebraska. It withdrew twice as much as usual from groundwater supplies and began irrigation of crops as month earlier than usual. In Washington, D.C., demand for water during the first half of July was 24 percent above average.

From a USGS news release
 WATER CONSERVATION:

Western California farmers are participating in a three-year irrigation management project to reduce water use. They are using gypsum blocks to help cut their use by up to 58 percent in some cases, according to INFORM, a non-profit, environmental research group.

These marshmallow-sized, plaster-of-paris blocks were systematically buried at different locations and depths in flood-irrigated fields.
Each block contains electrodes connected to insulated wires drawn to the surface.

Following care labels can save clothing

As a senior citizen there are some new things that I come across that I find terribly confusing. The latest is the new labeling in clothing that supposedly tells you how to care for the garment. Have you any idea what all those circles and squares mean? If so, could you pass the message on? Thanks.

> Mrs. S. E. Eastern Reader

Dear Mrs. E.: Once clarified, the care labels in clothing are worthwhile. They save time and, if followed, prolong the life of the garment. Labels for washable garments are maked with a "U" shaped symbol. Inside the symbol are further washing instructions. A hand is pictured ifhand washing is required, and, if necessary, the water temperature is given.

If the item can be dried in a dryer, the symbol is a square with a circle inside — it looks just like a miniature dryer. An item that cannot be put in the dryer is marked accordingly — a square with three vertical lines means it must be drip-dried and a square with a curved line that looks like a clothesline means the item should be line-dried.

Some other symbols are: a tiny

The AIRE-02 machines use an above-water motor to turn an underwater propeller at the end of a hollow shaft. The propeller pushes water outward away from the shaft, creating a vacuum that sucks air down the shaft.

The oxygen-enriched water get pushed out and distributed throughout the river. This constant motion keeps wastes in suspension and circulates, the bacteria that breaks down these wastes. The extra oxygen in the water causes the bacteria to proliferate on a large scale and speed up decomposition of the wastes.

Dear Jog

What is the best emergency treatment for burns? Mrs. K.L., Senior Homemaker

Dear Mrs. L.: The best emergency treatment for minor or first degree burns (defined as a burn involving only the outer layer of skin) is cold (not iced) water. For the best effect, the burned area should be immersed in the cold water immediately. The cold water eases the pain and acts as a cleanser.

One of the poorest emergency treatments for burns is the application of butter. Butter does not relieve pain and it may harbor bacteria which could eventually lead to an infection.

Resalers seek a little respect

By Peggy Aulino staff writer

Merchants who sell used clothing, furniture, jewelry and toys have a surprise for you: Their stores don't stink.

Resale shop owners are accustomed to being insulted. It's par for the course, they say. But resalers are working to change the notion that their stores smell funny and are only attractive to those who are too poor to shop elsewhere. Shoppers who venture into resale establishments are likely to have some stereotypes changed, said Vic-toria Haltom, owner of It Ain't Bloomingdales in Detroit.

just put these things in their store so people will think they have nice things," Haltom recalled.

"Eventually you have to get a sense of humor about these things," she said.

But Haltom and other area resale store owners are doing more than grinning and bearing it. They have formed the Metro Resale Association to offer each other support, share information and join forces for business purposes. "If you own a franchise, you have a lot of help, a lot of support. Resalers 'are by themselves," Hal-tom said. "People in resale business-es are hungry to talk to each other." THE METRO RESALE Association was formed last year and has 10 members. Another 12, including owners of suburban Wayne and Oakland county stores, are expected to join before the group's April meeting, Haltom said.

Besides just talking about the difficulties their businesses must face, the local association has done co-op advertising and is investigating the possibility of getting group llability and employee health insurance. Many resalers also belong to the National Association of Resale & Thrift Shops, which sends members a newsletter full of information on legal issues, taxes and other issues relevant to their businesses.

Haltom and others stress the fact that they are professionals who must work harder than their small business peers in order to overcome the negative image resale has had.

Bill Brester

Brenda Wallace, whose Born Again Resale Shop is in the Old Village section of Plymouth, blames the negative image on resalers of the past.

"I think resalers were guilty of not putting some earnings back into me shop and not being very careful of the kinds of clothes they sold," Wallace said.

The Michigan Boating Industries Association, based in Livonia, is launching an Alternate Dispute Resolution program designed to get the opposing parties to sit down and agree on a solution instead of filing a lawsuit. It will involve volunteers acting as mediators and arbitrators and will cost the parties a fraction of the price of litigation - in terms of $40,000 to cover start-up costs, both time and money.

"The whole premise behind the program is to take the disputes out of the courtroom and out of the highpriced attorney's hands, bringing it down to a level where two people can very easily mediate a dispute on this," Masterson said. and everybody's happy," said Anne The MBIA is seeking volunteers Masterson, MBIA administration ex- from the small business community ecutive.

Other industries use alternative dispute resolution programs, but this is the first of its kind involving recreational boating cases, Masterson said. She called Michigan, which has more registered boats than any other state, a leader in the recreational boating industry.

The parties can choose from among a group of arbitrators, but both sides would have to agree in advance to abide by that panel's decision.

The MBIA has budgeted about Masterson said. The cost to those who use the service has not been decided, but she estimated it will be $200 to $250. That charge is to cover administrative and processing fees.

It's all in the family when it comes to selling carpets

By Peggy Aulino staff writer

Some families pass down jewels or china. The heirloom of choice among the Kramers is a carpet store.

A.R. Kramer Flooring was established in 1925 by Archie R. Kramer, whose son, Alan, came aboard in the 1950s. Earlier this year the business was bought by Alan Kramer's sons, Art and Mike.

The family-owned store, on' Middlebelt between Five Mile and Six Mile in Livonia, is a holdout in this age of chain stores and subsidiaries. The Kramers say their continuing independence is based more on a desire to maintain quality control than on any grand scheme on the part of their ancestors.

"We don't have any great desires to get big," said Art. "There's really no value in it for us. You lose basic control over your business to a point."

The Kramer strategy is to be involved in day-to-day operations and stand behind their service. The store sells carpet and flooring that can be installed either by Kramer employees or subcontractors.

"It comes down to service and being able to meet the needs of people," Art said. "My grandfather was always very particular with that. That's really been the mainstay of the business."

THE KRAMERS SAID they have as much faith in their subcontractors as they have in their own employees.

Sometimes you even have a little better leverage over subcontractors, being that they would like to continue working," Art said.

Mike said chain stores try "to get the customer to think about price rather than quality." And he believes the Kramer sales force is more knowledgeable than the competitors and better able to "make sure the" customer's buying the right product.

"In some instances, they might pay a little more (at Kramer's), but they know the finished product is going to be exactly what they want," he said.

Kramer Flooring counts among its larger accounts much of Ford Motor Co.'s North American operations and the University of Michigan.

The store has customers whose grandparents bought carpets from Archie Kramer, Art said.

'Much like we are the third generation of Kramers here, we are on the third generation of their families," he sald.

And 89-year-old Manny Eisenberg, hired by the store's founder, is still selling carpets for Archie's grandsons. Eisenberg said he worked in carpet mills before going into the sales end, and Mike called him the best salesman in the business.

THE ORIGINAL Kramer store was on the West Side of Detroit, where as youngsters the current proprietors used to visit their grandfather. The store moved to its present location in 1971. Archie Kramer died two years ago, and Alan Kramer is retired and living in Florida.

"I wasn't really planning on coming into the business," said Art Kramer. "My grandfather felt otherwise. He would give me different things that I would find interesting . to do, and the next thing I knew I'm working on a regular basis."

The fact is 35-year-old Art Kramer is the president of the company. Mike, 29, is the vice president, but neither of them places much stock in titles.

Art, who lives in Green Oak Township, handles accounting and operations; Mike, a Farmington Hills resident, does marketing. But Mike summed up the division of duties this way: "I don't know how to do what he does, and he doesn't know how to do what I do."

Resalers seeking a bit more respect

BESIDES THEIR stores being saddled with negative connotations, those who shop at them are also misunderstood, resalers said.

"We have a lot of customers who are not poor people that can't go anywhere else," said Cookie Koblin, one of three owners of Bloomfield Keego Resale in Keego Harbor. "Most of them can afford to shop anywhere. They choose to shop this way."

Koblin's inventory, most of which is also accepted on consignment, includes designer clothing, fur coats, baby furniture and jewelry.

"Everything that we take is in really good condition. We won't take anything that's a year or a year-anda-half old," she said.

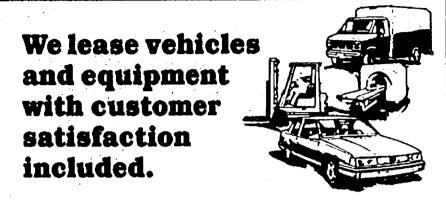

Koblin once rejected clothing brought in in garbage bags, and the person who wanted to sell the items complained, saying, "People who shop here shouldn't be so picky."

"That's an attitude that we would like to see done away with because that's not true," she said.

The manager of Designer's Den, which has been in existence in Farmington for 40 years, also credits her customers with being "astute."

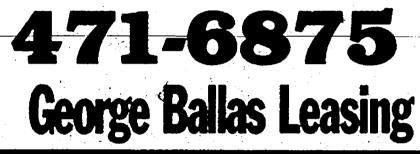

"I have women who come in here and throw down $300 without blinking an eye, but when they walk away, they walk away with half the store," said Monica Melton. "Everybody, even Donald Trump, wants a bargain."

At first glance, it might seem that both dollars are worth the same amount. Much like the interest earned from two time deposits with the same rates and terms. Well, don't be fooled by appearances. Because not all banks calculate interest the same way.

While some other banks offer you simple interest on your time deposit of one year or longer, Manufacturers Bank compounds your interest monthly. So, instead of just earning interest on your deposit, you earn interest on your interest, too. Month after month. So even though time deposit rates may look the same, you really can't

Maverick inspires gutsy car — for Japan

Among the legends of the auto business, there is the recurring mythology of the car-crazy street guy, a sort of James Dean type with gasoline in his veins, who comes to Detroit and sells the big guys his idea.

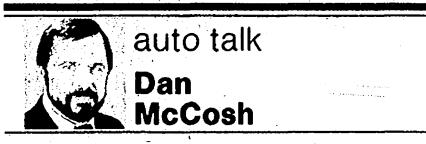

There is some substance to the myth, of course. Carrol Shelby, for one, ex-chicken farmer, ex-race driver in bib overalls ending up at Ford to do the Cobra. Or Big Daddy Roth, California street racer, alter ego to Wolfman Jack, influencing Harley Earl at GM styling in the 1960s.

But not any more in today's CAD CAM-ed, currency-conscious automobile business. The likes of Bob Hall haven't got-a chance. ACTUALLY, BOB Hall doesn't really exist. There is a guy named Hall of some sort, who works at Chevrolet and Mazda, a schizophrenic lifestyle that started the rumor he is actually identical twins. I first met the Bob half of the Hall brothers in Tokyo, where he was holding an aluminum suitcase in the lobby of the Tokyo Hilton. The suitcase was smoking, leaving a kind of fog floating around his (eet.

It turned out somebody had told him that the Japanese really like steaks, so he bought a dozen pounds or so, packed them in dry ice and brought them along. Hence the smoke.

LATER, HALF the Hall brothers was taking a picture of a car on a mountain road in California, stepped back to get the thing in focus and stepped right off the mountain. Which was his story for the cast on his arm at the time.

Hall kept showing up, whether in a fog or a cast, allegedly because he was an automotive journalist at the time. Not exactly James Dean, but enough of a car guy with questionable credentials to be ignored by GM's 14th floor. Or even the basement.

Like most automotive journalists, Hall was overbearing with his opinion on what kind of car these guys should make if they really knew what they were doing. It was something of zen transformation that Kenichi Yamamoto decided to listen to him. Or maybe he got one of Hall's steaks.

YAMAMOTO IS the legendary engineer who developed the rotary engine for Mazda before he was kicked upstairs to run the company as chairman. Hall was included in a team based in Irvine, Calif., that acts a listening post and development center for Mazda. Among others on the team is Mark Jordan, son of Chuck, currently running GM styling.

Now half of the Hall brothers is being credited for inspiring the new Mazda Miata, a two-seat roadster that brings tears to your eyes if you ever had the top fly off your old Triumph on I-96 halfway back to Michigan State.

#3C

Which is to say that sometimes somebody does listen to an oddball off the street, take at least some of his advice, and make the kind of car that would be made if anybody really knew what he was doing.

ALTHOUGH THE company that listened not only is Japanese, it's a quarter owned by Ford, GM hasn't lost its chance.

I think I saw the ghost of Bob Hall at Chevrolet the other day unless it really is his twin brother. Or maybe he just lost a little weight:

Business held liable for abuse of drugs

In their recently published book, "Drugs and Alcohol in the Workplace," Drusilla Campbell and Marilyn Graham state that for every 10 employees at least one is impaired by chemical dependency. The cost to business is in excess of $100 billion each year. These employees take home salaries for working at two-thirds the capacityof healthy workers, receive employee benefits while having four times as many accidents, and are a primary cause of employee-related discipline and morale problems. Regardless of the size or type of business, "polydrug" abuse has been described as "the most serious problem facing American business between now and the end of the century."

In recent years, the legal system has made it clear that employers cannot afford to ignore this problem any longer. A growing majority of companies have been held liable for failure to remove an employee whose substance abuse endangers co-workers. While most managers acknowledge these grim statistics, many are reluctant to provide sources of information and outside assistance to employees, let alone consider the possiblity of offering in-house treatment services. The reasons behind this form of "managerial denial" are numerous; many honestly don't know that their business is being negatively affected by employees. Business "losses" may be attributed to the economy, shoplifting, foreign competition, union hassles or seasonal downturns. Other employers deny the problem exists so as to "protect" the image and reputation of their company. This is especially true when the owners/managers are themselves chemically dependent. "Most everyone in upper management was an alcoholic," says one retired business executive from Grosse Pointe. "And since we were employed in the health-care industry, it's ludicrous to think that several major company decisions were made while management was intoxicated."

Breaking through the denial as business owners and managers is crucial if employers are to take responsibility in helping to control chemical abuse in the workplace. What businesses don't seem to realize is how much clout they have. When the boss says, "Get well or get out," the addict/alcoholic has no choice but to look for help. Next week, we will discuss how business owners and managers can identify a drug-impaired workplace and sources of available assistance.

401(k) thrives despite IRS limits

Anyone who has been pouring a lot of money into a 401(k) salary-deferral plan knows that the 1986 Tax Reform Act put a damper on the party. But the hangover may be worse than expected — mainly because of tough new rules that are aimed at making the plans more fair to lower-paid employees.

Reduced contribution

The original idea of 401(k)s, of course, was to let corporate employees build bigger retirement nest eggs by setting aside as much as 10 percent of their salaries in pretax dollars — up to $30,000 a year for an executive making $300,000. Then Congress stepped in and tightened the tax treatment of withdrawals as can-be seen from the accompanying table. It also cut the maximum salary deferral to $7,313 for 1988 and $7,627 for 1989.

Tougher restrictions

Since the 401(k)'s inception in 1978, participants have enjoyed taxdeferred growth of their contributions as well as the growth of the matching amounts put in by the employer. Participants would pay taxes when they withdraw money, but they are barred from taking money out until age 59½, quit the job or suffer a financial hardship. It is the last

Before reform	after reform
Contribute up to $30,000	Contribute up to $7,627
No penalty for early withdrawals	10-percent penalty
Ten-year averaging allowed	Five-year averaging (unless older than 50 before 1986) of a primary residence and post-secondary school tuition.

However, plan participants must demonstrate that they have made a "reasonable liquidation" of their assets as well as those of their spouse and their dependents before tapping 401(k) savings. A "reasonable liquidation" includes exercising any loan provisions of the 401(k) plan, as well as attempts to borrow from other sources.

Also, even after satisfying various hardship tests, the regulations indicate that plan participants can only withdraw amounts representing their own contributions; employer matching contributions are not eligible.

Finally, 401(k) participants who clear all the hurdles and make a hardship withdrawal face a corresponding reduction in the subsequent years contribution limit. For example, if the participant were limited to a $5,000 annual contribution and withdrew $4,000 this year, he could contribute just $1,000 next year.

Summing up

Proving hardship lets the participant withdraw money from a 401(k), but it does not excuse that person from paying taxes. The cash taken out is subject to income tax plus a 10-percent penalty for early withdrawal. Borrowing from a 401(k) is usually a better idea, since there is no tax or penalty on the loan.

Many plans let the participants borrow at least part of their balance, to a maximum of $50,000, which must be repaid over five years or longer if the loan is for buying a house. And the participants won't have to go through the trouble of proving a hardship.

T-bills offer safety and liquidity

What can you tell me about Tbills? Do you have a list of Federal Reserve Banks or can you tell me where I can find one?

Treasury bills, or T-bills as they are often called, are short-term obligations issued by the U.S. govern-ment and help set the trend for short-term interest rates. They have appeal among investors because of safety, liquidity and exemption from state and local taxes.

One of the problems for individuals is the minimum investment, which is $10,000. The maturities are three, six and 12 months, and the, treasury does not redeem them before maturity. However, T-bills can be sold before they mature through a broker or bank.

T-BILLS PAY no interest at regu-today's investor Thomas E. O'Hara of the National Association of Investors Corp.

lar intervals like most other interest-bearing obligations. Instead, they are sold at a discount from their redemption price, with the difference being the interest payment. The three- and six-month bills are sold at regular, weekly treasury auctions, usually on Mondays. The 12-month T-bills are offered at auction just once a month.

While T-bills can be bought through a broker or a bank, there is a fee. To avoid that fee, an individual can buy directly from Federal Reserve Banks or branches. All that is necessary is to complete a form, referred to as a tender and available from Federal Reserve Banks and send it with a check for $10,000.

A PART OF your $10,000 will be refunded to you, so it is as if you bought the T-bill at a discount and it will be worth $10,000 when it matures.

The minimum investment is $10,000, but larger investments can be made at $5,000 multiples.

The bid must be made in person or by mail and arrive in advance of the auction. When an investor buys the T-bills, no certificate is issued. The investor's name is simply recorded in the Treasury Department's books.

Most individuals make a non-competitive bid, meaning they will pay whatever the average market rate is at the auction. That rate will be determined by the competitive bids ### made by large institutional investors.

AN INDIVIDUAL can submit a competitive bid, but then he runs the risk of paying too much or being shut out if the bid is too low.

Since T-bills are issued by the U.S. government, they are considered as safe as any piece of paper can be.

If you want an application to order directly from the government, call the Detroit office at 961-6880 and tell them you want a tender. You must specify whether you want a tender for a three-month, six-month or 12-month T-bill.

Or you can write to the Bureau of the Public Debt, Department of the Treasury, Washington D.C. 20239 and give them the same information.

Thomas O'Hara welcomes your questions and comments but will answer them only through this column. Readers who send in questions on a general investment subject or on a corporation with broad investor interest and whose questions are used will receive a free one-year subscription to the investment magazine "Better Investing," For a sample copy of "Better Investing" or information about investment clubs, write Today's Investor, PO Box 220, Royal Oak, Mich., 48068.

Broadway lights They shine for star of 'Les Miz'

By Kevin Teevens special writer

OE KOLINSKI can look out his apartment window and see his name in lights -- on J Broadway.

"I live up the street from the Broadway Theatre, and there I am," said Kolinski, by phone from his New York apartment. Kolinski, a Detroit Catholic Central graduate and former student at the University of Detroit, is performing in the lead role of Enjoiras in the Broadway musical production of "Les Miserables."

The actor, 35, is well known to Detroit-area audiences. He found his calling in high school, when he appeared in numerous musicals at Mercy High School in Farmington Hills.

Although Broadway is quite a distance from where he started his career, the road trip has been worth it.

"We haven't played to an empty seat in the house since we opened in 1987," said Kolinski.

PRIOR TO APPEARING as Enjolras, Kolinski played the role of Feuilly, another lead in "Les Miz," as it has come to be called.

"It has been a busy time. Life is very concentrated here. You can accomplish a great deal in a short time," he said.

Kolinski has performed on Broadway in "Sunday in the Park with George," "The Three Musk-eteers," "The Human Comedy" and "Dance a Little Closer." In 1981, he sang the role of the celebrant in the 10th anniversary production of Bernstein's Mass at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

From 1974 to 1976 he was a student at the University of Detroit and performed in the Marygrove Theatre program. He had lead roles in many productions including "A Cry of Players," "The Me Nobody Knows" and "Godspell." In 1977 he sang the role of Leo in the Michigan Opera Theatre production of "Regina." His last metropolitan-Detroit appearance was in the 1985 production of "Kumi Leml" at the Birmingham Theatre, in the role of Max...

Growing up and performing in the Detroit area had a very strong impact on Kolinski's career. He said two major influences were Dominic Missimi of the University of Detroit and Larry Teevens, chairman of the music department at Mercy High School.

MISSIMI, WHO currently teaches at Northwestern University, was then acting chairman of the U-D Theatre Department. "I was working in O'Halloran's flower shop on McNichols, and Dominic came in and said he could get me into the program at U-D/ Marygrove. I jumped at it like a shot," Kolinski said.

Lack of action slows drama

Performances of the Meadow Brook Theatre production of Athol Fugard's "The Road to Mecca" continue through Sunday on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills. For ticket information call the box office at 377-9300.

By Cathle Breidenbach special writer

South African playwright Athol Fugard has few contemporary peers. The dramatist who wrote the acclaimed "Master Harold and the Boys" weaves together plot, character and language with acknowledged mastery, but in "The Road to Mecca" words - splendid though they may be - can't compensate for the poverty of action.

Terence Kilburn, who directs the Meadow Brook production, does what he can to instill action in the Diffi three-character, one-set play that, despite its profound ideas and admitted charm, almost runs aground on the old shoals of too much "tell" and too little "show."

This least political of Fugard's plays unravels a crisis in the life of Helen Martins, an aging Afrikaner woman who "didn't resign herself to being a meek, church-going little widow" when her husband died. Instead she became an artist who celebrates light and sculpts creations the townspeople call grotesque monstrostities.

With sensitivity and a refreshing lack of cliche, Fugard's play chaltistic freedom, religion, conformity ly forgotten.

and aging. The Meadow Brook Theatre's mixed production has moments that shine as brightly, as the theater's very best, but the play's minimal action and the production's sometimes-heavy-handed characterizations of Helen and her young schoolteacher friend, Elsa Barlow, dull the glow of those moments.

ARTISTIC DIRECTOR Kilburn has Barlow wander into the bedroom to change clothes four or five times in the course of an evening. The audience craves action, so why not have Elsa change clothes as often as a teenager? Watching the full-bodied Miss Barlow don and discard clothes offers a pleasing sight in lieu of real action.

Set designer Peter Hicks creates a magical room that blends the rosy colors of a dessert sunrise and sets them shimmering with shards of mirrors scattered on the walls like stars in a dawn sky. The room, which Helen the artist created, reflects her vision. Theatrical magic happens when she lights a few candles and the room that is her personal Mecca comes alive with light and a primitive, whimsical wonder. Then, character, theme and set converge for a

Anne Sheldon plays

Anne Sheldon plays Helen as a Grandma Moses kind of artist facing failing eyesight, arthritic hands and the encroaching frailty of age. Sheldon's Helen is innocent, sweet and kindly — but not nearly tough enough to have challenged the bigotry of righteous religion or to exercise artistic freedom amidst the provincial prejudices of a small South African town.

The minister, played by William Le Massena with assurance that his white, masculine, majority opinion prevails, tries to persuade Helen she is too old to live in her house among her idolatrous creations. He wants her to move to the town old folks home.

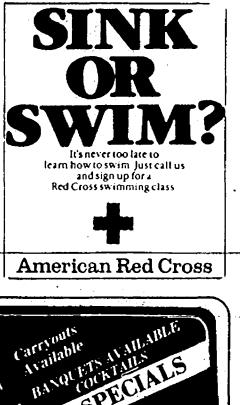

Under the pressure of age and unlenges conventional ideas about ar-magical moment of theater not casi-cortainty, Helen-becomes -awhimpering wretch who sits hunched in a chair like a helpless child with no control over her destiny, her feet suddenly pigeon-toed in an overdone picture of abject passivity.

WHICH ARE WE to believe? That Helen really is a heroine with the strength to defy the conventions of a provincial town and its religion? Or that she is the passive old woman thoroughly discombobulated by minor frailties of age? Sheldon creates an endearing and lovable Helen. If only she didn't make Helen a wimp as well.

Mary Walworth, as Helen's younger friend Elsa Barlow, projects a tough and angry stubbornness that belies the uncertainties and ambiguities festering beneath her surface.

Cathie Breidenbach of West Bloomfield teaches college writing classes and works as a freelance writer.

They check, they score, they skate and they're good.

That's the 1988-89 All-Observer hockey team. Some of the state's top players can be found right in our own backyard. Among the former All-Area players who have graduated, gone on and made their marks in the college and professional ranks is former Livonia Franklin ace Mike Donnelly (Michigan State and the Buffalo Sabres), ex-Redford Catholic Central standout Walt Bartels (MSU), ex-Livonia Stevenson stalwart Rob Tustlan (Michigan Tech); and another Stevenson product, Brian Cox (Army's captain).

The Observer sports staff selected the players (six each on the first and second teams) based primarily on who they believed played consistent hockey throughout the entire season. Area coaches also gave their imput before the selection process was concluded.

Introducing the 1988-89 All-Area hockey team:

FIRST TEAM

Paul Strauch, goalle, Stevenson: The senior formed one of the state's best one-two tandems along with Paul Rice. He played in a majority of the Spartans' tougher games, sporting a goals-against average of 3.46. He was a first-team All-Suburban Prep League pick and honorable mention All-Stater.

Mike Zaldel, defense, Franklin: The senior was voted the Patriots' top defenseman and his play impressed rival coaches. In 23 games he scored 11 goals and added 30 assists for 41 points.

Charlie Olschanski, forward, Franklin: The senior led the SPHL in scoring and finished the year topping all area teams with 48 goals and 29 assists for 77 points.

The swift skating left winger is a fouryear starter who was named team most valuable player.

His post-season awards include All-SPHL, All-State and a berth in the All-Stater Game (South Team)

Scott Lock, forward, Redford CC: The Shamrock senior played unselfishly and became one of Catholic Central's better defenders.

The center also has some impressive offensive totals with 29 goals and 28 assists for 55 points.

He made All-Michigan Metro, All-State and the All-Stater Game (South Team) despite playing part of the season with a bad knee.

Joe Ahmet, forward, Churchill: The senior led Churchill in scoring and finished fourth in the SPHL with 26 goals and 18 assists.

A flery player, he made All-SPHL, was honorable mention All-State and made the All-Stater Game (South Team). He is one of the reasons why Churchill finished the year with a 17-8 overall record.

SECOND TEAM

Jim Dietrich, goalle, Redford CC: A senior, Dietrich saved his best games for the state's best teams.

He made 43 saves in a regional final loss to Birmingham Brother Rice and held state champion Southgate Anderson to

Dick Vitale would have called it "Blowout City."

A.J. Baker called it a mistake. The South team routed the North. 13-1 Sunday in the sixth-annual All-Stater hockey game played before more than 1,000 fans at Redford's Ice Arena. Baker, the game's director, said it was a mistake because this was the first time he divided talent geographically.

In the five previous games, teams were selected regardless of region, meaning some players from Observerland had teammates from the Upper Penninsula.

This time, the South completely outclassed the North, and led 4-0 after one period and 7-1 heading into the third period Livonia Churchill spoke to us and thought they had enough talent to warrant a North-South game," Baker said. "Whatever they thought, they were slightly wrong."

Will it happen again?

"Absolutely not," Baker said. "It will never happen again. If it does upset them, it's tough luck. We can't afford to have blowouts like that. I knew when it was 7-1 it was the wrong way to go. I like to think this is a pretty neat showcase."

Pendell's performance might have earned him at least a partial scholarship to college. Western coach Tom Scanlon, Michigan State coach Ron Mason and Bowling Green coach Ron York were among the coaches who attended the game, Baker sald.

"I just wanted to play well, I guess," said Pendell, who scored 24 goals for Churchill. "I didn't do it all myself. I had a lot of help from my linemates (including Churchill teammate Mike Knelding)."

"I DIDN'T HAVE a real big goalscoring year and we don't get too much exposure, playing in our league (Suburban Prep). I'm not counting on a scholarship, but I think I helped my chances. I want to go to Western, but I haven't heard from them yet.

Southgate Anderson's Jeff Christiansen was the game's second star, scoring two goals for the winners. Sault Ste. Marle senior Todd Mapes was third star. Alpena's Wes Gentry tallied the North's only goal.

Scoring single goals for the South were Kneiding, Zac Fryer (Birmingham Brother Rice), Tony Thompson (Rice), Charlie Olschanski (Livonia Franklin), Joe Ahmet (Churchill), Scott Stewart (Anderson) and Brian Lindstrom (Anderson).

Baker said fine goaltending by the South contributed to the lopeided score. The three South goalles -Stevenson's Paul Strauch, Trenton's Derek Mento and Allen Park Cabrini's Joe Aho - kicked away 31 of the

Grazulis' true-to-life story far better than fiction

HE SCRIPT IS supposed to read something like this: High school basketball phenom is besieged by dorens of colleges wishing to cash in on his unique talents, finally chooses one but must overcome all sorts of prominent social problems - drugs, sleazy agents and Margo Adams ---to reach stardom, a short stint in the pros and a long run as star of a TV cop show.

That's the made-for-Entertainment Tonight version, anyway. The real-life story, as the adage insists, is often stranger than fiction.

It is in the case of Andy Grazulis, to be sure. His life since graduating from Westland John Glenn nearly two years ago would be better sulted for a full-length Tom Hanks comedy, considering all the twists of fate,

NOW, IF WE'RE going to do this factually, we should try to avoid embellishment. So it should be made clear that when Grazulis graduated from Glenn, he was not highly recruited. In fact, he and sharpshooting teammate Steve Hawley were hardly recruited at all, even though the Rockets lost but three games their entire senior season.

Both decided the heck with playing Division II, III or NAIA ball. We want the blg show; we want NCAA Division I.

So they signed with Schoolcraft College,

OK, maybe their compasses were a bit askew. Maybe they were going in the wrong direction when they decided to play at a junior college (both were excellent students). But sometimes you got to take a step backwards before straightening course and leaping forward. Or so they thought.

Then the coach who signed them at SC, Bob Wetzel, quit a month before the season started after a flap with the administration. Hawley stuck out the season, but Grazulis loyal to the coach who had signed him - refused to play for SC. He already had a Division I school lined up (Hawley didn't), so he figured why risk it?

town just outside of Albany. The Saints play in the East Coast Athletic Conference, but - of greatest importance to Grazulis - they play in the NCAA's top division. He quickly grabbed their offer.

Siena also plays very well. Coached by former Jud Heathcote assistant Mike Deane, the Saints won their regular-season league championship last year (they lost in the conference playoffs and did not make the NCAA tournament).

Grazulis hoped the team could repeat this season, with a notable exception — get into the NCAA show. He also hoped he could, somehow, play a part in all this.

"That year off really hurt me," he admitted. "I got into some bad habits, and I didn't accomplish some of Measles. A disease most of us endure as kids swept through Siena's campus in late January. Thirty-eight cases were recorded, including two basketball players.

No, not Grazulis. But the epidemic forced all ECAC games to be played without an audience, in an effort to contain the outbreak, Siena's last nine games were sans fans, including all three of its ECAC playoff games.

The Siena bench emptied, players piled in a heap at midcourt in revelry - and in silence. It was a role that basketball fans like Mick Jagger, George Washington, Moe Howard.

ball," said Grazulis. "I didn't like it : at all. It was so stupid. I felt dumb; really, cutting down the net."

But it did get Siena to where it wanted to go - the NCAA show. Last week, the Saints took their 24-4 record to Greensboro, N.C., and proved they belonged by upsetting Stanford, 80-78. Their tournament run ended Saturday with an 80-67 loss to Minnesota.

But their confidence was cemented. "I think we surprised a lot of people," he said of the Stanford upset. "I think it's a big thing for the school. That's the whole thing - get motivated and get back to where we were this year."

Grazulis' playing time was reduced in both tournaments. He plans to change that by next season -"Hopefully, this summer I-can improve my offensive skills, become more of a scorer, be more of an impact player" - and move into the starter's role now that Steve McCoy, the player he backed up, graduates.

Remember, Grazulis still has three seasons of college basketball left. Before the first one ended, he had endured a lack of recruiting interest

Hickman bumps, grinds way through frosh year

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

Parish Hickman's dunk as time expired in the first half Monday night brought 9,860 Michigan State fans to their feet at Jenison Field House.

Shortly after, Hickman returned to his seat like everyone else at Jenison. But his seat was next to coach Jud-Heathcote.

Hickman, a 6-foot-7 freshman forward from Redford Bishop Borgess, spent most of the second half on the bench for the Spartans, who whipped Wichita State, 79-67 in a secondround NIT game.

Hickman's dunk resulted in his only points of the game and gave MSU a 33-30 halftime lead. Hickman played 15 minutes and grabbed two rebounds.

MSU (17-13 overall) played last night at Villanova in a third-round NIT game.

"I THOUGHT I'D get a chance to get loose in the second half (after the dunk)," Hickman said. "My playing time usually depends on how I start off the game. If it takes me a little time to get in the groove, I might not play as much."

Hickman's first year at MSU has been a learning experience, an upand-down campaign that included a career-high 11 rebounds last Thursday in a first-round NIT win over Kent State.

Hickman's playing time Monday was limited because of outstanding play by others, including reserve guard/forward Todd Wolfe, who scored a game-high 18 points. MSU also got a strong performance from starting forward Ken Redfield, who scored 12 points in 29 minutes.

"We got a lot of basketball out of a lot of players tonight," Heathcote said. "They all seemed to play at a level higher than normal, guys like Redfield, (Jeff) Casler and Wolfe.

And we got a typical performance from (Steve) Smith (16 points)." Although Hickman said he has entertained thoughts this winter of transferring to another school, he knows he might not have gotten a chance to play immediately elsewhere. Five freshmen dot the Spartans' roster.

FIVE TIMES Hickman bas reached double figures in scoring for MSU, including a 10-point game in an upset at Iowa. Hickman averages 5.2 points and 3.2 rebounds per game.

"I've probably had a better first year than a lot of freshmen, because the team has needed a lot of players," Hickman said. "I've gotten to play and learn at the same time. I thought I could play after getting here, but I thought I was going to play a lot more.

"Basically my role is a rebounder. I'm not a player yet, just a rebounder. I'm a garbage man."

Hickman said he has remained in touch with his coach at Borgess, Mike Fusco. Hickman attended Bor-adjusts to role

gess' Operation Friendship consolation game at the University of Detroit's Calihan Hall last month and he had a chance to talk to Fusco.

Both Heathcote and Fusco have the tendency to yell on the sidelines, but Hickman said he has a different relationship with Fusco.

"It's a big difference," Hickman said. "Coach Fusco is like a friend. He helps me out a lot and talks to me. He told me to keep my head up and things would start coming my wav.

"For me, it's a lot of hollering (from Heathcote). I don't like it, but it's the type of thing you put up with in college.'

Stanford University has one of the best women's basketball programs in the nation. The Cardinal proved it last weekend by blasting Illinols State 105-77 in a second-round NCAA tournament game.

Emily Wagner, Michigan's Miss Basketball following her 1985 season at Livonia Ladywood, is part of the Stanford success story. But she isn't an integral part.

Injuries have ruined Wagner's chances for athletic glory. Entering the NCAA tournament, she had appeared in 19 of Stanford's 28 games (the Cardinal are now 27-2; they finished the PAC-10 season a perfect 18-0), averaging 1.4 points, 1.1 rebounds and 1.0 assists.

"Coming out of high school, you think all you have to do is work hard," she said. "Injury never comes into the picture."

Wagner's picture has since been altered.

SHE WAS, without doubt, a star. At Ladywood she averaged 15.3 points, four rebounds, three assists and 2.5 steals a game as a senior. Her team was 88-9 in her four seasons and won a Class B state title.

She signed with Stanford in March 1985. A month later, her athletic career started falling apart.

While trying out for a National Sports Festival team, Wagner tore ligaments in her right knee. The injury was severe enough to keep her from playing her freshman season.

Stanford honored her scholarship. Wagner went to school and, as soon as possible, started rehabilitating her knee. "I was bound and determined to come back and play as a sophomore," she said.

Maybe too determined. "I did a lot of running" the summer prior to her sophomore year, and that led to another problem — a stress fracture of the navicular bone in her left foot.

THE FRACTURE was slow in healing. It was the following August before Wagner could rejoin the team.

To say her athletic career has floundered in frustration would be only partially true. The setbacks certainly would test the dedication of any athlete, but Wagner persevered.

While recovering from her foot injury, she rode a stationary blke and lifted weights routinely to stay in condition. When the school purchased an attachment for bicycles, so they could be used in a stationary position, Wagner attached it to her own bike while watching team practices.

"With that injury, there was always the off-chance I could start playing," she said. She had her foot examined every six weeks to check " the healing progress.

By the time Wagner could return, the program had changed. Stanford had been below ,500 before Wagner's,"" arrival, but the long-time coach, Dotty McCrea, resigned. Tara Vanderveer, who was coaching Ohio State, was hired, and the administration put new emphasis on basketball.

LAST YEAR, the Cardinal surprised many by reaching the NCAA tournament. Unfortunately," they had to play No. 1-ranked Tennessee in their first game, and they were beaten.

Wagner played last season, but not much. "I was a bit rusty coming back," she admitted. "I felt I came back as best I could, but I didn't feel I was back on my game until the middle of last year.'

The injuries had taken a toll, but as Wagner said, "In some circumstances, you could say the program went beyond me."

Stanford boasts one of the nation's top backcourts in guards Jennifer Azzi, the PAC-10 player of the year, and Sonja Henning.

Wagner might have been a part of that, had fortune smiled on her. She refuses to give in to such thoughts, however. "At times, I think what would it have been like if all this hadn't happened," she said. "But I don't dwell on it. It doesn't do any good. I feel others have had bigger problems."

Stanford's location, outside San Francisco, has helped her withstand her frustrations. "I've liked it quite a bit here," she claimed. "School's been great, the area's nice . . . and basketball's been a great experience, t00.

Head steps in, does job for Vols

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

A year ago, Dena Head was named Michigan's Miss Basketball, and her showcase at Plymouth Salem High School.

"It's gorgeous," said Jill Estey, a former-teammate and a senior at Salem. "The plaque has a picture of Dena shooting a picture-perfect jump shot."

Head is now a freshman at the University of Tennessee, where last fall she met senior forward Bridgette Gordon, who owns a gold medal.

It was Head's turn to be impressed.

"We all got to see it when she got back (from the Olympics)," Head said. "It was heavy and it was hers. She has it in a bank vault now, and the whole city of Knoxville is proud of it.

"I think everyone here is either a ending knee injury to Flint native Tonya Edwards.

Head has made the most of her starting opportunity, scoring a career-high 14 points and making four award is prominently displayed in a steals in Tennessee's 66-51 win over Auburn in the SEC tournament championship game.

She was a member of the all-tournament team, making only one turnover in three tourney games. She brought an average of 6.0 points, 3.0 rebounds and 3.2 assists into NCAA play.

Tennessee coach Pat Summitt recruited Head as a shooting guard, so she's pleasantly surprised by Head's progress at the point. Because Salem coach Fred Thomann already had a fine ball handler in Estey, Head played nearly every position but point guard for the Rocks as a senior in 1987.

"DENA SAID that playing point guard wasn't exactly what she'd come to Tennessee to do," Summitt said. "I told her that one day she may have to play (point) for this team. She said she'd do what the team needed. As it turns out, she's done an incredible job.

"The five freshmen are trying to learn something this year to carry on for the next three years."

Tennessee won the 1987 national championship and finished third in -1988.—The-Volunteers have madethree straight trips to the Final Four, and Head's goal is to lead them to the same destination.

HEAD LED Salem to the semifinal round of the Class A playoffs her junior and senior years, and she compares Tennessee's title aspirations to those years.

"I consider it a similar challenge," Head said. "It's similar in that the state tournament is the biggest thing in high school and the NCAA is the big tournament for college."

Thomann, who has watched Tennessee play twice this winter, is impressed by Head but not surprised. Opposing teams know Head is a young player, so they have tried to press and trap Tennessee, hoping to cause turnovers. That hasn't happened much.

"She is really playing well," Thomann said. "Nothing that Dena has done in her career has surprised me-- after I figured out how good she was going to be. "Coach Summitt is defensive oriented and likes a very up-tempo offense, and that lends itself to Dena's style.

"Dena can do both those things, and she prepared herself very well to play," he added. "They had the foresight to groom her at two positions.

Miss Basketball or a high school All-America. I'm not the only one with credentials of that sort."

HEAD, ONE of five Tennessee freshmen, started at point guard Saturday when the No. 1-ranked Volunteers (30-2) played host to LaSalle in a second-round NCAA tournament game.

She might not be the main headline maker for the talent-laden Volunteers, but Head is one of the Southeast Conference's rising stars. Head, who scored more than 2,000 points in her high school career, recently was named the SEC's newcomer of the year.

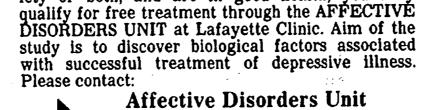

"It came unexpectedly but I was happy," said the modest Head of the prestigious honor.

One of four Tennessee players from Michigan, Head has started the last 12 games because of a season-

"Dena's handled the pressure well and is her own person. She's not Tonya and I'm not asking her to be."

Head is pleased by her play but gives most of the credit to her teammates, including Gordon and senior Sheila Frost, both of whom were named to the SEC's first-team honor roll.

"It's a big adjustment playing point guard, because when I was at Salem, Jill was the point guard and I was the off-guard," said Head, a pre-medicine major. "Right now I feel real comfortable, and the team is playing real well. We have great senior leadership, and when you're playing against great people every day it's a tremendous help.

Stromback on minor league hockey ride

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

The hills of Pennsylvania serve as the perfect setting for Doug Stromback's professional hockey career. The climb is never ending.

The six-month odyssey this season has taken the Redford Township native from the training camp of the Detroit Red Wings to the Adirondack (N.Y.) minor league training camp to the Flint Spirits of the International Hockey League. In each place, there were too many players, Stromback went home and waited three weeks to find a team. Then the Johnstown (Pa.) Chiefs of the East Coast Hockey League called. Finally, things were going to work out. Right?

Wrong.

Stromback was on the Pennsylvania Turnpike again. This time landing with the Erie Panthers of ECHL.

'I've been all over this year," he said. "Boy, oh boy."

But the miles on the odometer are being matched with points on the ice. Stromback is the fourth in ECHL scoring with 40 goals and 42 assists for 82 points.

hardly new to Stromback, who spent four years in such Ontario outposts as Kitchner, North Bay and Belleville.

WITH THE Belleville Bulls last season, Stromback scored 27 goals and added 35 assists for 62 points. He earned Molson Cup honors with

Then the National Hockey League Washington Capitals, who drafted Stromback, didn't sign him. Stromback was suddenly a free agent.

"Things never really worked out there," said Stromback, who attended training camps with the Caps. "Things never really materialized. I was never really happy there. I always wanted to play for the Wings."

Stromback still does. For the time being, though, he's winning games for the Panthers. Erie is perched atop the ECHL in first place.

The ECHL is in its inaugural sea-The rigors of minor hockey are son. Teams in the league have no direct affiliation with any NHL clubs, but several players have NHL contracts. Rosters are comprised with players from junior and college ranks.

> The circuit is a tough one. The movie "Slap Shot" was filmed in Johnstown, Pa. Apparently, there's not that much separation between cinema and real life.

'I'll take it day by day. I want to keep working and get better and better.'

> - Doug Stromback minor leaguer

STROMBACK had 19 penalty minutes with Belleville last season. Already he has 77 this season with Erie.

"I'll tell you, they like the fighting," he said. "If you're a fighter, you're the biggest celebrity in the whole city. I've been in a few fights myself this season."

More than punches, though, Stromback is getting a lot of ice time. He's playing a regular shift on right wing and is killing penalties. He's even seen spot duty as a defenseman.

Once Erie coach Ron Hansis put Stromback on the team's top line, he blossomed into an excellent player.

"I seen him play with Johnstown but I didn't really notice him," Hansis said. "Things weren't working out there. When he called I said, 'Sure, I'll give you a look.' He impressed me right away with his hustle."

Hansis believes Stromback was a victim of the numbers game. The try with the Wings next September.

Erie coach thinks the right winger certainly has the speed, toughness and hustle to play in the AHL or IHL, if not the NHL down the road.

HIS ONLY DRAWBACK is said that Stromback tends to be tentative on playmaking. But, as Hansis added, that will correct itself with more experience.

Most would grumble about playing in the lower rung of minor league hockey. Stromback's grateful. If anything, it fuels a dream that hasn't been doused.

His desire of playing for the Red Wings was fulfilled, if only for a few days. Training camp provided enough memories to fill his scrapbook.

"That was the best time I ever had in my life," Stromback said. "It was the dream I had since I was a kid."

What was it like talking to Jacques Demers?

"There were a lot of players and a lot stuff going on," Stromback said. "He has a lot of responsibility. He doesn't have time to talk to everyone."

Hanging with guys like Steve Yzerman?

"They pretty much stay to themself," he said. "I stayed with guys who are like myself."

As for next season, the possibilities would appear endless. He could be invited to an NHL training campwhere he might be re-assigned to an AHL or IHL club.

Or he could be back for another

AAU girls squad takes tourney title

The Western Wayne Wildcats, a first-year AAU girls basketball program, met with varied success in five age-group tournaments last weekend.

In the Seventh Annual Waterford St. Pat's Tournament, the Wildcats won the 11- and 18-year-old tournaments.

The older team included Birmingham Marlan's Jennifer Shasky, Plymouth Salem's Jill Estey and Teri King and Plymouth Canton's Michelle Fortier and Candi Jones.

Shasky, who will play college basketball at George Washington University in Washington, D.C., was named Miss Basketball after leading Marian to the Class A championship last December. Estey has signed to play at Illinois and Fortier at Western Michigan.

The 13-year-old team, led by Christi Parimucha, Yolaunda Jackson, Tracy Prybyski and Tracy

Mocon fought its way through the losers bracket to finish second.

At the AAU regional tournament in Sandusky, the 15-year-old Wildcats were beaten in overtime by Flint Northwestern. The Western Wayne roster included Sarah Ruete, Julianne Steslak, Patty Shea, Kelly Austin, Emily Guiliani, Mary Barna, Chris Ford and Nicki Glass.

The 16-year-olds lost in the semifinals and finished third. Area players included Susan Ferko and Stacey Thompson of Plymouth Canton and Kathleen Gerigk of Farmington Hills Mercy.

The Wildcats will be host for the 11- and 13-year-old regional tournaments April 21-23 at Salem High School.

The Western Wayne teams are coached by Fred Thomann, Bob Blohm, Larry Baker and Tom Williams.

Country Day rips Ishpeming

By Bill Parker staff writer

Detroit Country Day basketball coach Kurt Keener didn't want the 1988-89 boys basketball season to come to an end. After all, his team enjoyed a 25-3 season (including a 20-0 road record) and capped it off last weekend at Ann Arbor's Crisler Arena by winning the Class C state champlonship. But it wasn't so much the win/loss record that impressed Keener. It was the fact that the Yellow Jackets were playing at the top of their ability,

"You work all year to play up to your potential," explained Keener. "Some teams reach that plateau and some teams don't. At the end of the season we were playing as well as we could possibly play. All the parts were working to perfection. As a coach, I couldn't have been happier. I didn't want the season to end. Let's play another month."

ALTHOUGH KEENER wanted to play more basketball, DCD's opponents over the year were probably happy the season has ended. The Yellow Jackets finished the regular season with a 17-3 record. Country Day's only losses were to ranked Class A teams. They lost to Detroit Pershing, 49-46, Ferndale, 63-61, and Saginaw, 56-53.

"As an independent (school) we try to play top quality opponents," Keener said. "I think the Saginaw game was the critical turning point of our season. Although we lost, we knew after that game that we could play with a top Class A school. Coming into the state (Class C) tournament our level of confidence was unbelievable."

Country Day won eight straight games in the state tournament by an average of 24 points.

DCD's closest tournament victory was a 78-75 win over Morenci in the opening round of the regional. Their largest margin of victory in the tournament was a 39-point, 82-43, triumph over Ishpeming in the championship game.

COUNTRY DAY'S offense, led by sophomore Chris Webber, averaged 69 points per game throughout the season. Although Webber was the only Yellow Jacket to average double figures for the season - averaging 25.3 points, 12.3 rebounds and 5.1 blocks per game - the Jackets had balanced scoring in both games of the state finals.

In the semifinals, Webber finished with 25 points, 11 boards and two blocks leading DCD to a 75-53 victory over Cassopolis. Iyapo Montgomery (averaging 9.6 ppg) scored 16 and Myron Potter (averaging 6.4 ppg) scored 15. In the finals, Webber finished with 25 points 16 rebounds and four blocks, Potter scored 15 points, Kurt Bloomhuff scored 13 and Montgomery chipped in with 10

"They have a very nice supporting cast," admitted Ishpeming coach Tom Russo. "They shared the ball well. They spread it out and took the shots when they presented themselves."

BUT DON'T give all the credit to DCD's explosive offense. The defense also played exceptionally well, especially in the finals where they forced numerous turnovers and rarely gave up an uncontested shot.

Cassopolis entered the semifinals averaging 79.4 points per game. DCD held them to 53. Ishpeming entered the championship game averaging 79.5 points and were held to just 43, including 14 in the entire second half.

"A loh of people focus on offense, but we take great pride in our defense," Keener said. "Both Cassopolis and Ishpeming were averaging around 80 points all year and we held them both well below their averages."

Credit the defense with forcing Cassopolis into 23 turnovers and limiting the Rangers to just 17of 48 shooting from the floor. Ishpeming gave up 23 turnovers and shot just 16-of-46 from the floor.

KEENER WAS quick to point out that he had a lot of help over the year from assistant coaches Jay Schwartz and Kerry Keener.

"Both Jay and Kerry have great experience" and brought youthfull insight to the coachingstaff," Keener said. "The coaches and the kids related with each other real well. My coaches were a great asset to the team. It was really a super, fantastic season."

And the future looks great, too. The Yellowjackets only lose two seniors, Slovis and Paul Wasson, to graduation. Only Slovis was a starter. The top three scorers, Webber, Montgomery and Potter, along with the starting point guard, Kevin Colson (who missed the finals with an injury), are all sophomores and will be back for two more years.

Shasky headed to D.C.

By Marty Budner staff writer

Jennifer Shasky is going to Washington D.C. to play basketball. But politics may not be far behind.

Michigan's most recent 'Miss Basketball' award winner, Shasky announced at a press conference last week that she will attend George she based her decision solely on aca-Washington University on a basketball scholarship.

Shasky, a forward for the 1988 Class A state champion Birmingham Marian Mustangs, based her decision - the-state-title --- - the school's first not on George Washington's basketball program, but on her desire to get involved with international relations. Shasky also considered West Point, Missouri and Arizona.

"One of the main reasons why I chose George Washington was because I'm interested in international relations and they have one of the top programs in the United States there," said Shasky, who has a 3.9 grade point average. "And just the area in general. It will give me a good chance to work in the summer as an intern. I'd like to work in the state department some time, possibly in foreign service."

work hard, just like she did here because they demand a lot of your time. It's going to be a big effort, and I know Jennifer won't want to go there just to be mediocre. She'll want to start and she'll want to do real well and she'll have to go through all that pressure.

"But she'll get the education and demics and I have to give her a big pat on the back for that," she said.

Shasky had a sensational senior season, capped by Marian's march to ever in any sport. Shasky scored 61 points in the final two games of her high school career, including 30 in the state title game against Flint Powers Catholic Central.

A team co-captain, Shasky finished last season with a 20.7 scoring average, including an overall fieldgoal percentage of 55.1. She averaged 8.3 rebounds and 3.5 steals per game.

State 'C' champs expected to move up in class

By Bill Parker staff writer

HE Detroit Country Day Yellowjackets were in a league of their own this year. Playing as an independent Class C teams, three Class B teams and still managed to outscore their opponents by better than 500 points. DCD scored a total of 1,947 points while its opponents combined for 1,442. In the Class C state tournament the Jackets outscored their opponents 577-383, including a 39-point, 82-43, victory over Ishpeming in the championship game.

With such domination of the Class C schools, DCD is contemplating a move up to Class B next

"I'm 95-percent sure it's going to happen," said DCD coach and athletic director Kurt Keener. "All I need now is approval from my headmaster.

"The move would have two purposes. Number one, it would present a little better competition. It would present a good challenge for the program. Number two, it would be a good public relations move. It may offset some of the tension between the public and private schools. Maybe it would allow a better chance for someone else to win state."

Such a move wouldn't affect the other sport programs at DCD since the Michigan High School Athletic Association allows one sport at a school to move up in class while the other sports remain at the same level.

If the boys basketball program moves up to Class B, it would be committed to stay at that level of competition for two years before dropping back down to Class C.

And if things do go well at Class B would DCD consider moving up to Class A for the 1990-91 campaign or would they still be locked into Class B for another year?

"I really don't know what would happen," Keener said, when asked of such a move. "I don't think it's ever been done. They (MHSAA officials) would have to sit down and make a decision on that. I think moving up to Class B would be the natural progression for next year."

team, the Jackets met eight Class A

Even though George Washington's basketball program is not well known, Marian coach Mary Lillie-Cicerone applauded Shasky's decision.

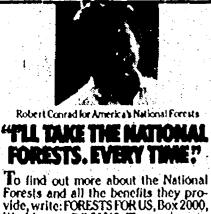

"WE'VE BEEN waiting for (Jennifer) to make her decision all year," sald Lillie-Ciccerone. "I mean who has heard of George Washington as far as basketball. I know I never had.

"But Jennifer based her decision mainly on academics, and I think, for girls basketball, that's the only way to go. I know that's been one of her goals . . . to go to school free, then to have a good career, hopeful-

Research sheds new light on behavior of black bear

Many of our fears of wildlife result from misinformation. The more we learn about animals and plants the more we come to respect and appreclate them.

A recent study of black bears in northern Minnesota shows that our long-held belief that they are "feroclous" is not entirely true. Different species of bear behave differently.

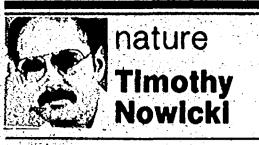

Grizzly bears will attack to defend their young. Female black bears with cubs neither attacked, nor made contact with, a researcher who followed them within a few feet for 24-hour periods during the summer.

OUR CONCEPTS about animals are often too generalized and should be reserved for only that species which was studied. These same researchers even took food from a black bear for examination and were not mauled or injured. The bear charged, in an effort to intimidate the researcher. But when the investigator held his ground, the bear eventually walked away.

Grizzly bears will, however, protect their food.

This kind of research is being done to learn more about what does pro- Following a bear around the woods at close range may sound crazy, but it has produced a tremendous amount of information regarding the behavior and requirements of wild animals.

Continued work on the Kirtland's warbler by dedicated people has probably kept this species from extinction. Years of research on its northern Michigan breeding range have yielded enough information to allow man to maintain the population at about 450 individuals for the past 20 years.

Without information on habitat requirements, interactions with the parasitic brown-headed cowbird, and wintering grounds survival, the Kirtland's warbler may have been added to the growing list of animal extinctions.

Despite the growing amount of information dealing with various specles, it will be a long time before we can confidently say we know all the answers. One thing learning about wildlife does, however, is to teach us how complex and interconnected life on Earth really is.

Architect becomes do-it-yourselfer

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

ICHAEL STERN, architect/builder had a speclal advantage when he renovated his Birming-He and his wife and two little daughters lived in it while he — he preserved the views they loved drew up his plans and did the actual work.

Living there through the planning and work stages tested everyone's patience, but the finished product made it all worth while. Stern came seldom saw the buildings he deto know his house and site intimately signed for overseas clients.

and designed windows to capitalize on the best flow of air and the best light at all times of day. He said when he was an architect working for a large New York based firm, he in the Mill Pond area of downtown Birmingham, was built in 1950 for concert planist and teacher, Dorothy Roosevelt, sister-in-law of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. It was one story, 1,000 square feet in size and avant-garde in design. The floor to

The home. located on a ravine site ceiling windows in the living room overlook the ravine. The room was designed to hold two grand planos and 75 listeners. It had a tiny kitchen at the back, an area off the living room with a folding door served as a bedroom.

Stern said, "They couldn't sell this house. It had been on the market for months, it didn't even qualify for a mortgage because there were no sleeping quarters."

STILL STERN remembers saying as soon as he walked for the first time, "I've got to have this house --it is just too special."

They put up temporary partions to divide the living room for more bedroom space and a family area, moved in and Stern set to work on his design.

"It took two years before I got the plans done - that I got a design we were happy with," he said.

The original house presented some special challenges. Certainly the pitch of the room had been a stumbling block for many who would buy it with the idea of adding to it. Another was how to integrate what in the 50s, was an avant garde design, into a contemporary style that would blend with the traditional character of the neighborhood. For Stern's "new house" would be far more visible than the original one which was partially hidden by trees.

He began construction a year ago and did much of the work himself, changing and adapting as he went. He enjoyed the do-it-yourselfer's built-in flexibility.

The house, completed several months ago, is tripled in size. A strong rectilinear form with gabled ends rises from the contemporary,

THERE ARE SKYLIGHTS, walls of windows, clean curved lines, white walls and open surfaces. The entire home is bathed in soft filtered light. Each element was carefully thought out for placement, quality and texture. The shaped, dropped ceiling in the black and white kitchen reflects the shaped center island directly beneath it. The black and white tiles behind the sink are textured to give depth and sculptural quality to the wall. The whitestained, pickled oak floor in the kitchen is functional as well as approplate to the contemporary look.

"I'm into very simple taste, " said Stern as he stood by one of two stained glass windows that are geometric in design and add only a discreet, tasteful bits of color to the interior.

This is true throughout the house-- color is introduced with discretion. The natural light and the flow of architectural line are strong elements.

Heating and cooling were other challenges that may have dissuaded potential buyers of the original house. There are now two types radiant heating on the first level (as in the original house) and forced air on the second. The combination works well, said Stern.

He said he always builds a model before he complètes a design - this one took several models before the solutions became clear. "The constraints pretty well told me what do — as an architect, I like that." And his original judgement holds true - it is a very special house.

But now there's a second floor with a master suite, two additional bed-rooms for the girls and a loft area playroom. On the first level in the addition is a elegant contemporary kitchen and family room toward the street side. No space is wasted.

Mirroring is smart

Q. We have converted a walk-in closet in the hall leading from our great room into a bar. With the plumbing from the kitchen backing up turne closet wall, we have been able to have a wet bar, This is a dark area. What can I do to give this room some glitz and be practical at the same time? We have installed ready made dark oak cabinets - one where the sink is and on the opposite wall which will serve as the bar itself. We face a blank wall as you enter the room. We just had a black and white mini pattern carpet put on the floor.

A. If cost isn't a big consideration, use Corian on the counter tops. Your white Corian will be uplifting. I suggest mirroring the wall you face as your enter your bar. Have the mirror supplier install eight-inch wide strips from floor to cell-Hing. Each strip should have a bevel on either i side. Abut them together and you will have a the much smarter look than just mirroring the wall. The cost is a consideration, I suggest you use a laminate. The brushed chrome for your counters will give the sparkle you need. I would use the mirrored wall here as well.
