Car, motorcycles collide, several hurt

Local man, woman are seriously injured

By Tom Henderson staff writer

A beautiful day for a ride in the country turned into a nightmare in Monroe Sunday afternoon when a car driven by a 16-year-old girl swerved across the center line and plowed into a caravan of 26 motor-

A Garden City man and a Westland woman were seriously hurt and remain in Toledo hospitals after having been flown there by helicopters.

"We were just doing the thing we loved," said Richard Eideh, 38, of Detroit, one of seven motorcycle riders hospitalized after the accident. The next thing he knew, "It was like a war zone. Bodies were all over. It took me back 20 years (to Suffering serious injuries were Charles Robert Graham, 36, of Garden City and his passenger, Carol Green, 39, of Westland; and Leo Cova, 55, and his passenger and wife, Beverly, 57, both of Taylor.

Donald Robertson, 49, of Garden City, remains hospitalized in stable condition at Mercy-Memorial Hospital in Monroe with trauma injuries to the head and body.

Green is in serious condition and Beverly Cova is in critical condition at St. Vincent Hospital in Toledo, Ben Cova is in serious condition at University Hospital in Ann Arbor, and Graham is in serious but stable condition at the Medical College of Ohio in Toledo where hospital officials declined to describe their inju-

ACCORDING TO Eideh, the motorcycle drivers and their passengers were out for what they call a "poker run," a rally-type event where they would follow directions on a map to a new destination and then return.

"Every Sunday, we'd pick out a place, go there, eat and go home," said Eideh. "We're not a club, we don't have any rules. We're older people, just a bunch of fun-loving people who've been riding together for over a year."

'It was about 2:30 p.m. Sunday, and the group was about three-fourths of the way through an 80-mile ride. "We had gotten lost in Ypsilanti," said Eideh. They were back on track and traveling northbound on Telegraph in Monroe, in a 55 mph zone.

According to police, the girl, traveling southbound, swerved across the center line and hit two of the bikes, driven by Cova and Graham. Robertson's bike and Eideh's blke were not hit by the car, but went down in the ensuing accident.

"I saw the car go by. The bike in front of me to the left went up in the air, and the other bike went down,' said Eideh. "I knew we were going down, too, and I tried to bring it down as gentle as I could without running anybody over.

"We got done sliding and I looked up and my wife was standing up. I asked her if she was OK and she said .'fine.' The bike next to me was on fire, but the guy wasn't pinned, so he got up OK.

"Then I saw Charlie Graham, with his leg gone," said Eldeh. "I put a tourniquet on Charlie. From the knee up, there was some meat and skin and bone. But from the knee down, it looked gone. He knew his leg was gone and he asked me to kill him. I told him he was out of his mind, but he said he didn't want to live with just one leg.

"Turned out he came out the best of all of 'em."

New tenants will build on Kroger site

By Tom Henderson

Tenants have been found and construction will resume on what was to have been the new and improved Kroger supermarket that was started and never finished at the WestRidge Plaza.

Construction is scheduled to begin in 30-60 days on the building on Warren Road west of Wayne Road, with occupancy planned for October or

'We'll definitely be open for the Christmas season," said Jodi Grennbaum, a leasing agent for Weatherford Walker Developments Inc., which will build and lease the building.

The two major tenants will be a F&M health and beauty aids discount store and a Sound Warehouse, which will sell records, tapes and compact discs.

The F&M store will be about 25,000 square feet and the Sound Warehouse about 12,000, said Greenbaum. Other retail tenants will fill the remainder of the 55,000-square-

CONSTRUCTION began last summer on what was to be a Kroger supermarket. It was to replace a

33,000-square-foot store across the Exterior walls went up, but the project was put on hold. One wall has since blown down in a storm, Speculation was that the stoppage might have been a result of a new 212,000-square-foot Meijer's at Warren and Newburgh, or because of a company restructuring last October, which trimmed the budget for expansion and remodeling.

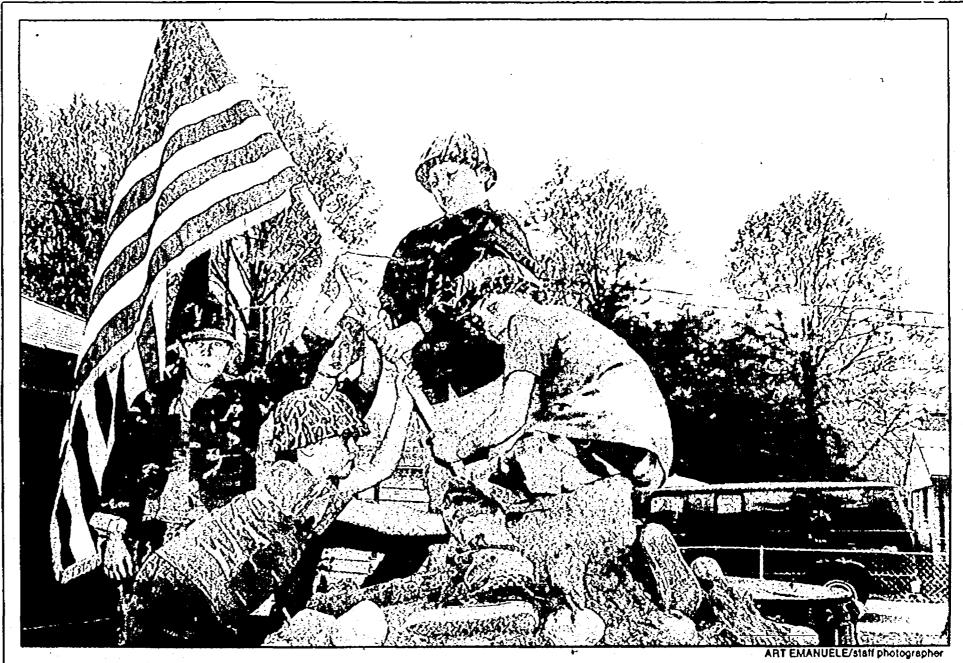

Both projects began construction about the same time last spring, but David Prueter, Michigan real estate manager for Kroger, said plans for the new Kroger store were adopted before the Meijer project was "a sure thing.

"We had heard rumors like everybody else, but you don't make decisions based on rumors." Greenbaum said it was likely that only the back wall would be used for the new building.

"THAT'S GOOD NEWS," said Tim Schroeder, Westland's director of economic development, of new project. "It (an unfinished building) is not something we like to see.

New condo plan

Developer backs off original housing idea

By Leonard Poger editor

The developer of planned condominiums on Cowan east of Wildwood has backed off in the face of neighborhood and planning commission opposition.

A scheduled public hearing and Westland City Council action on a requested special approval was called off Monday night when council president Kenneth Mehl said the developer called him earlier in the day to disclose he will submit a new site The developer, Kime Brothers

Inc., will revise the plan for the 14.3 acre site just west of Huron Valley Lutheran High School.

Mehl noted that the revised plan, which must resubmitted to the city's planning commission, will have detached, single-family homes instead of apartments.

The developer's withdrawal of the condominium plan came two weeks after the planning commission voted

8-1 on May 2 to deny special approv-

THERE WAS also a petition drive mounted by neighboring homeowners who opposed the original plan. They sent numerous letters and made phone calls to council members to express their opposition.

Initially, the developer wanted to build up to 80 units, or 5.7 units per

An estimated 220 area residents signed petitions opposing the Kime development.

Spearheading the petition campaign is Michelle Reese, who lives across the street from the proposed development.

She told the Observer that she is opposed to condominiums and cluster-homes because nearly all the lots in that area are half-acre or larger.

"We want a mixture of housing" in the city, she added, noting that there are 900 condominiums now built and another 800 under construction.

Mehl said the developer hopes to get a revised plan to the planning commission for its early June meet-

Rowe House gets $10,000

Commissioners and other volunteers have been working on the Rowe House, built in Canton Township nearly 140 years ago, to have It occupied by volunteer groups and open to the public.

The building, famed for its 18th century federal gothic architecture, is on Marquette just east of Newburgh.

Council member Charles Pickering indicated he would oppose the budget transfer, but changed his mind and supported it.

Pickering said the Rowe House renovations in past years were paid for with about $250,000 of grants and private donations and that public funds shouldn't be used.

BUT BROWN argued the $10,000 will be used only to buy supplies, needed by volunteers who want to finish the restoration.

In past years, some persons reacted to the Rowe House restoration plans by saying, "burn it down."

But the $250,000 spent in past years was done before he was on the council, Brown said. He added that the second floor of the building could be used for offices by the historical commission, Friends of the Nankin Mills and possibly the Westland Cultural League. Council member Thomas Artley commented that "for the first time in 12 years that I see something going on there," referring to the restorations and Brown's leadership as historical commission chairman in initiating the improvements.

Brown concluded that the building may get a new name with the city "starting to make it something that people can use."

The historic Rowe House will get $10,000 for supplies and a promise of volunteer help to spruce up the 150year-old structure.

Golf classic to benefit Alzheimer's disease

By Kelth Postler

Jerry Lewis won't be there. Neither will Ed McMahon or any other well-known national celebrity, but the 1989 5th Annual Grace & Wild/ AT&T 'Alzheimer's Golf Classic 'promises to be a success nonetheless. "It's going to be an exciting tournament this year because we have quite a few celebrities playing," said Dian Wilkins, executive director of 'zheimer's Association.

Headlining this year's links classic will be a number of Detroit media and sports celebrities, including sportscasters Ell Zaret and Bernie Smilovitz, former Detroit Tiger's pitcher Earl Wilson, former Detroit Lion's quarterback Dick "Night Train" Lane, meteorologist Jerry Hodak, Bob Allison, and Detroit Free Press columnist Mike Duffy.

The event, sponsored by Grace & Wild Studios and AT&T, will be held the Detroit area chapter of the Al- at the Pinewood Golf Course in Commerce Township on June 20 and benefit the Detroit area chapter of the Alzheimer's Association.

LAST YEAR'S event raised approximately $23,000 and the Alzheimer's Association's goal for 1989 is $25,000, said Wilkins. The tournament has raised nearly $60,000 since

The full day of activities includes continental breakfast, 18 holes of golf, buffet lunch, contests, a videotaped golf clinic, open bar with refreshments on the course, cocktails and dinner and a first prize of four days and three nights at the Marriott Palm Desert Resort.

The fee for tournament reservations is $150 per individual, $300 per twosome, $450 per threesome and $600 per foursome. As in previous tournaments, each foursome will be placed with a celebrity golfer.

Alzheimer's, a degenerative brain disease, strikes adults 55 and older and is always fatal. There are approximately four million American adults afflicted with Alzheimer's, including 60,000 in Metropolitan Detroit, Wilkins said. The Detroit area chapter of the Alzheimer's Association serves Wayne, Oakland and Macomb Counties through its Southfield offices.

"ALZHEIMER'S is the fourth leading killer of adults in the United States, and I don't think people realize that," Wilkins said. "This tournament helps provide the resources we need to fight this devastating disease. The tournament is a fun way to battle Alzheimer's."

In addition to receiving financial support through a variety of fund-raisers, the Detroit area chapter of the Alzheimer's Association also receives money through the Michigan Department of Mental Health and the United Way.

. The county would still require almost all communities to substantially cut their waste output by the year 2000 through its proposed solid waste management plan. Communities that did not enact cuts would be prevented from using county landfills. Exemptions would be given to be built within their borders.

The proposal came during the committee's monthly meeting Monday at Wayne County Intermeidate Schools offices. Though committee members were expected to give their final approval to the county waste reduction plan at that time, Mack's proposal delayed approval at least until their July 19 meeting. At that time, committee members will decide whether to adopt Mack's proposal or maintain the 75 percent re-The proposal was popular with the Conference of Western Wayne.

"WE'RE VERY supportive," said Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen, speaking on the group's behalf.

The CWW had long criticized the 75 percent level as unattainable. The group represents the interests of Garden City, Livonia, Plymouth, Westland and Canton, Plymouth and Redford townships, among other communities

Though the waste reduction plan is required under state law, 29 of Wayne County's 43 communities would have to give their approval before it could be enacted.

Members of area recycling groups also supported the proposal.

"This is what the public wanted," said Joan Lintelman of Livonia, a member of a city panel investigating recycling and other waste disposal options.

Garden City and Westland currently send trash to an incinerator and would continue to be allowed to do so under the county plan. Livonia, Plymouth and Canton, Plymouth and Redford townships currently do not burn their waste.

It isn't certain whether even a 50 percent reduction could be approached, let alone achieved, within the next decade. Mack, however, sald recycling and composting could-'substantially reduce waste.

Holiday starts boating season warm weather every Michigan boater anxiously awaits.

Traditionally, the holiday weekend is the time to drop that boat back into the water and the incredible popularity of the May launch date has caused some facilities to resort to appointment books.

CAN THERE really be that many boats ready to hit Michigan waters?

The latest statistics show that, still No. 1 in the U.S., Michigan has more than 795,000 registered boats using its vast supply of recreational water resources.

Along with the multitudes of boaters launching their vessels, the Michigan Boating Industries Association is launching its spring ad campaign, "Celebrate Michigan Boating." The MBIA is based in Livonia.

This statewide program offers a toll-free number (1-800-482-8604) to call for a limited number of free boating information kits and the 1989 Boat and Travel Books.

As the fourth-largest leisure industry in the country, recreational boating is very instrumental in tourism being Michigan's No. 1 industry. Thriving in the "Water Wonderland," recreational boating brings about $2.5 billion annually to Michigan's economy and shows no signs of slowing down.

Michigan's boating industry has such a dynamic growth record because it borders on four of the five Great Lakes, has more than 11,000 inland lakes and 36,000 miles of rivers and streams. But what is even more dynamic is the fact that as boating activity has increased dramatically (57 percent since 1980) boating — related accidents have decreased substantially.

Preliminary statistics from the 1988 boating season show that the 365 reported boating-related accidents are down 15 percent from 1987, 23 fatalities down 60 percent, 186 injuries down 17 percent, and 156 reports of property damage down 31 percent.

To keep boating a safe and fun sport for all, the MBIA urges state boaters to take advantage of boating safety courses given by the U.S. vided could save a life.

CITY OF GARDEN CITY NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING TAXES

We Accept Most Insurances

JUNE 5, 1989

The Mayor and Council of the City of Garden City will hold a hearing on the proposal to increase property taxes by levying the same 16.8 mills even though State Equalized Values have increased more rapidly than the Consumer Price Index. The public hearing will be conducted at 700 P.M. on June 5, 1989, in the City Council Chambers of the City Hall, 6000 Middle-belt Road, Garden City, Michigan.

Without this increase the millage rate for general operations of the City would be a maximum of 15.77 mills. The proposed increase of 1.03 mills will produce $393,605, and amounts to an increase of 6.53 percent. The total number of mills to be levied, including the proposed additional millage rate, would be within the voter approved and previously authorized millage rate and is the same as the millage levied in 1988.

The City Council has complete authority under State law to establish the number of mills to be levied within its authorized millage rate.

Public comments, oral or written, are welcome at the hearing on the proposed additional Millage rate.

Returnable wine coolers join beer, pop on store shelves

By Tom Henderson staff writer

Though the statewide deposit on wine coolers doesn't go into effect until June 1, most area stores are already selling the new deposit bottles.

Store managers say problems caused by the deposit have been mincool spring, it is hard to tell if the deposit is affecting sales, as coolerindustry officials predict.

"When the weather gets hot, then we'll know if it's going to hurt," said Joseph Patros, manager of the Mid-Warren Party Store on Middlebelt in Garden City.

Patros said that while collecting and storing bottles in general is a problem, it hasn't been worsened noticeably by adding wine coolers to the beer and pop bottles already covered by the state law.

"What are you going to do?" said Patros. 'We have to do it, right? There's nothing you can do. Why bother complaining? So we store

JIM SHAY, manager of the Danny's supermarket on Main Sreet in Plymouth, said all the Danny's stores switched over to deposit bottles two weeks ago. "The only problem is at the register," he said. "Our girls have to check to make sure someone isn't bringing in the old bottles."

Gilbert Borman, director of public relations for the 130 area Farmer Jack stores, said the chaln is in the process of switching to the deposit bottles. He said that the unique shape of the wine coolers makes it impossible to stack with other bottles, which causes space problems for the stores.

'We may decide on fewer brands to make storage easier," he said."As an industry, we don't argue with the effectiveness of the law. But we argue that it has enormous impact on us. It cost Farmer Jack $3.5 million last year to handle bottles.

"There's no argument our roads are clean in Michigan, but our back rooms are pretty dirty," said Borman, who said the problem of storage is compounded for supermarkets, who traditionally take in far imal. They say that because of the . more bottles than they sell. "We accept back more than we sell by a factor of 175 percent."

Great Scott and Meijer stores also have switched to deposit wine

MICHIGAN FIGURES are unavailable, but nationally, sales of the fruity concoctions are down 16 to 20 percent compared to a year ago, said Michael Lashbrook, of the Michigan Beer and Wine Wholesalers Associa-

"They may very well be a passing phenomena, a fad. They will still be around but they won't be as hot," said Pat Laughlin, lobbyist for the association.

The deposit law, which takes effect June 1, will push up prices and reduce the selection of wine coolers on grocers' and party stores' shelves, hurting sales even more, he said.

"There's no question" prices will increase, he said. "When you'get into the garbage business, yes, it's going to cost more. Of course it is."

When sales were bubbling, deposit law supporters like the Michigan United Conservation Club warned that the 10 million wine coolers being sold in Michigan annually were enough to cover ever inch of Michigan shoreline from Monroe to the Straits of Mackinac with throwaway containers.

Fearing the drinks would continue to grow in popularity, conservation groups persuaded lawmakers in 1986 to add wine coolers to the list of those beverages that no longer could be sold in throwaway containers:"

'We may decide on fewer brands to make storage easier. As an industry, we don't argue with the effectiveness of the law. But we argue that it has enormous impact on us. It cost Farmer Jack $3.5 million last year to handle bottles.

- Gilbert Borman. Farmer Jack stores

The law, approved by voters in a referendum, already covered beer and soft drinks.

"The projected increases that got, them covered under the bottle law haven't materialized," said Borman. "But there's a market for it and there's going to be a market for a long time."

Borman, spokesman for the Farmer Jack stores in southeast Michigan, said there was no question to have little impact on the amount of litter on roadsides, a study shows. A 1986 study by the Michigan Department of Transportation found just one out of every 10 bottles and one out of every 100 cans dropped along state highways were wine cooler containers. Thomas Washington, executive director of the Michigan United Conservation, said the legislation still will make Michigan cleaner.

"It'll help, particularly in public places like beaches and things like that, where people take them in fairly large numbers. I think their consumption is probably down somewhat since we got them added to the list, but they're still there," he said.

If wine cooler prices do go up, he said, it can be blamed on reduced competition resulting from the exclusive franchises awarded to distributors, rather than the bottle bill.

The exclusive franchises were part of the legislative compromise that cleared the way for bringing;

wine coolers under the deposit law. The law defines wine coolers as any beverage with 8 percent alcohol or less and includes canned cocktails made with spirits, as well as the wine and fruit juice concoctions. Earlier this year, Gov. James Blanchard proposed adding individual-sized juice containers to the deposit law, but aide Peter Dewan sald legislation to accomplish that has yet to be introduced.

"That just makes me shiver," Borman said, adding problems with the wine cooler provision would pale in comparison to one covering julces.

K mart opens first rural store in White Lake

(AP) - K mart, which opened its first store in Garden City in 1962, is breaking away from its strategy of building only in urban centers or densely populated suburbs.

For example, rural, White Lake was considered too thinly settled for a new K mart as recently as' 10. years ago.

Now, the prospect of future growth has prompted the nation's second-largest retailer to open a store in the area, surrounded by meadows that developers plan to cover with homes.

"This store will definitely be a store of the future with the growth · that's coming in here," said manager Gary Cook! "We've got a big development coming in behind here with townhouses and apartments."

The promise of developing neighborhoods like White Lake - plus-competitive pressure on from No. 1 Sears Roebuck & Co. and No. 3 Wal-Mart Stores Inc. - keeps K mart Corp. scrambling to scout new sites and re-scout old ones as it attempts to place stores in every untapped

THERE AREN'T many surprises in the search; K mart says it already is in nearly every county in the nation.

. But the store chain keeps a squad of real estate experts, store designers and demographers busy looking for ways to squeeze ahead, including placing stores in suburban fringes where homes are still going up.

K mart has more than 2,200 stores in 48 states and Puerto Rico. It plans to open 70 more this year.

A standard K mart takes up 86,000 square feet, while a free-standing store generally requires eight acres, to provide for the building and parking lot.

In contrast, Chicago-based Sears' large stores, with displays of spacefilling furniture and appliance lines, typically take up 150,000 square feet, with some using more than 200,000 square feet.

K mart's construction and real estate manager Mike Skiles has property experts scouting several hundred potential locations at any given time from K mart's five regional offices as well as its Troy headquarters, he said.

LEADS COME from their efforts and from shopping center developers who want a K mart store to anchor a new mall. Final decisions follow demographic studies and site visits. Skiles said.

"Other retailers, the state of the economy in that particular area, the amount of housing growth that's occurring and the quality of the particular plece of real estate would all be factors," Skiles said.

Although K mart's major target is the 25- to 45-year-old middle-income consumer, the demographic profile of the K mart shopper is much broader.

For example:

- Forty-two percent are high school graduates, 23 percent didn't finish high school, 19 percent have some college, 16 percent are college graduates.

 Forty-five percent are aged 25-44, 26 percent are 45-64, 16 percent are 18-24, 13 percent are older than Forty-three percent live in households of three or four, 30 percent in two-member households, 18 percent live in households of five or more, 9 percent live alone.

- Thirty-nine percent have household incomes of $25,000-$49,999, 25 percent have less than $15,000, 22 percent have $15,000-$24,999, 13 percent earn more than $50,000.

"We're everywhere, so the demographics of our shopper are more or less like the demographics of the country as a whole," said Ron Gellish, manager of an operations and research department that employs two full-time demographers.

Some new K marts represent "back filling" in areas where sites couldn't be found before, Skiles said, such as a store that opened last year in Detroit's long-established Oak Park neighborhood. K MART HAD looked at the area over the years but never was able to find a suitable building, or a new site with enough space to meet its needs. Skiles said. However, a mall developer now wants a K mart to anchor his Oak Park project and the plan fits K mart's needs as well. Most new K marts are in growing areas like White Lake, where the expanding Pontiac, White Lake, Union Lake and Highland communities are beginning to converge about 35 miles northwest of Detroit.

The new White Lake store stands amid grassy fields, although builders' signboards tout development on the way.

"We're opening to service the new housing out there," Skiles said.

The 86,000-square-foot store also is in sight of the slopes and lifts of Alpine Ski Valley. In a departure from traditional discount decor, beams in the facade around the store entrance suggest a chalet motif.

That kind of planning is K mart's best hope for a competitive edge, rather than any dramatic attempt to surprise Sears or Wal-Mart, Gellish

"We know where their stores are. They know where ours are. Our moves are pretty well publicized in the trade journals," he said. "There's no secrets. We just have to operate as efficiently as possible.'

Ex-Livonian logs hours as forester

By Marie Chestney staff writer

Imagine spending four years tolling in college and then one day being told by your teachers that you may have just wasted four years of your life.

That's exactly what happened to Dale Stewart in 1978, his senior year at Michigan Technological Universi-

"They gathered all us foresters together and gave us the bad news," said Stewart, a 1974 graduate of Livonia Bentley High and former resident of Roycroft Street.

"They told us times were bad, that the market was flooded with foresters, and the economy was at an alltime low. Then they told us to do landscaping, anything, just to hang in there until times got better."

SO THE new college graduate backtracked to Livonia.

Instead of working in wide open spaces at a job his forestry degree had prepared him for, he found himself installing car air conditioners in cramped quarters in Westland.

But those days of working outside his field didn't last long.

By 1981, Stewart had earned a master's degree in biological science, also from Michigan Tech. And, luckily, he also had snagged a sumimer job in forestry in Oregon.

"One of the alumni of Michigan Tech was living in Oregon and he needed six to eight guys for the sumof those lucky enough to be picked to tire.

TODAY, STEWART works as a forester for the Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management (BLM) in Coos Bay, Ore. He spends his days driving a truck in Douglas fir country, acting as a go-between for giant logging companies that buy trees and the government that sells

Stewart recently returned to Michigan to teach a course on water management at Wayne County Community College in Detroit. The new pilot course, taught by professionals in the BLM, is designed to show minorities the types of jobs available - ecologists, geologists, park managers, foresters - in natural resources management. Because he'll be teaching the course again in upcoming semesters, Stewart will get used to flying in and out of Metro Airport and staying in a skyscraper apartment building the college provides in downtown Detroit. But it won't be easy. "It's been so long since I've been in a big city, it took me a while to get comfortable," Stewart said. "I like coming home but if I lived here permanently, it would drive me nuts. I went into forestry because I like wide open spaces. I can do this because I know I'm going back."

STEWART'S LOVE for the outdoors grew from blke trips he took as a teenager through Michigan and Wisconsin.

But the environmental movement of the '60s sent so many like-minded teens into the field of natural resources that it created a glut.

For every job in either the BLM (Interior Department) or the Forest Service (Agriculture Department), there were dozens, even hundreds, of applicants.

But Stewart sees the pendulum shifting in the 1990s, as those who mer. Every senior applied. I was one were hired in the 1960s begin to re-

"The people who live here see cutting and road building as necessary to the economy. But the environmentalists want it all preserved. Some sell their house in California for $250,000, buy land here, build a fancy house, settle in and want a scenic view for the rest of their life. This causes utter frustration for me."

While Stewart's job is in the Northwest, his heart still lies in the Midwest where his parents, brothers and sisters all still live. He hopes eventually to get a job either with the BLM or the Forest Service in one of Michigan's national forests.

"But there's an awful lot of competition for these jobs: Everyone I run into either has a degree from U of M or State. They all want to come back here, too."

Domino's offers aid to runaways

By Tom Henderson staff writer

Seven area Domino's pizza stores will join nearly 200 in Michigan in opening their doors to runaways and youths in trouble.

Called Project Safe Place, the effort involves referring the youths to shelters or hotlines and giving them a piece of pizza and a Coke if they're hungry, said a spokesman for Domi-

Large diamond-shaped yellow and black signs, with an abstract rendering of an adult with its arms around a child, will appear in the windows of the 199 participating Domino's stores in the state.

According to Christine Wallerstedt, project co-ordinator for Domino's, employees of the stores should be trained in the program and the signs should be up in the local stores within four weeks.

The local participating stores are at: 540 Main in Plymouth; 37625 Five Mile and 29102 Five Mile in , panies to join.

Local stores in Plymouth, Livonia, Canton, Westland and Redford are participating.

PROJECT SAFE PLACE was started in 1983 in Louisville, Ky., by the YMCA's Shelter House for Runaways. Other participating companies nationally include McDonald's, White Castle and Wendy's, though Domino's is the only participating Wallerstedt said the involvement by Domino's began when a corporate official visited a Domino's In Montgomery, Ala., and asked about a sign in the window.

That store was participating in the local Project Safe Place.

The Domino's official was impressed and took word back to headquarters in Ann Arbor.

The company's official involvement began in Louisville a year ago April. The company says it has between 800-900 stores participating in 26 states.

"It's not just for runaways. It's for people being chased by strangers, or kids on drugs, or any kind of problem a youth might have," said Maria Pavelich, another Domino's spokes-

It is estimated that 50,000 children run away in Michigan each year.

Domino's officials say they won't call parents, and will only call police in unusual circumstances. The point, they say, is to get youths who want help in touch with the appropriate local agency or shelter.

Domino's owner, Tom Monaghan, a former orphan, said his own experiences helped him decide to join Project Safe Place.

"I really didn't have a home to run away from. It was certainly a period when I floundered a lot," said Monaghan. "Just a few key pivotal points in my life could have gone one way or the other, and I believe this is probably a very pivotal point in these kids' lives — when they walk into a safe place and get some professional attention."

Area Chinese excited, wary about uprising

By Janice Brunson staff writer

With the world an astonished witness, Chinese students and others are writing history by taking to the streets and calling for new freedoms in a country noted, until recently, for extreme repressiveness.

Area Chinese and China scholars are both excited and cautious about what so far has been a peaceful up - About his fellow students and the

"I'm excited. We're seeing history in the making," said Professor Richard Stamps of Rochester Hills, a Chinese specialist from Oakland University.

In demonstrations staged in nearly very major city, students have . been joined by countless others representing every aspect of Chinese life - government agencies, labor unions, the elderly, nursery school students and even the military, ordered to quell the demonstrators but preferring to join them instead.

The hoardes in the streets are calling for marked social and political reform.

STAMPS SAYS there are now three key dates in recent Chinese history: the end of the empire in 1911, the Communist takeover in 1949 and the freedom movement of Stamps is also anxious, worried about the political standoff between hard-line traditionalists and younger reformists. "We'll know soon," he said of the power struggle. "But even if the conservatives win this battle, they'll eventually loose the

"In the beginning, I was shocked," said Li Ledong of the demonstrations. A student of education at Oakland University, Ledong will return to his home in southwestern China this summer after three years ofstudy in the U.S.

At first, Ledong was "nervous" & other demonstrators in China. "I am. Chinese. I know what can happen to them." But earlier this week, "my fears faded. I feel the students are winning the struggle," he said. Now, "I have my hopes."

HONGBIN KANG, a Chinese student from Pianiin who is majoring in engineering at Wayne State University, also senses success. "I believe they will succeed. I am very excit-

Kang was emotionally moved when, during a U.S. televised news account of the demonstrations, he spotted a group of students brandishing a pennant from Pianjin University. Kang graduated from the university in 1983.

"They have my full support. I hope they keep on demonstrating," he Chinese students studying here quite likely know more of what is happening than do many of their American counterparts in China, according to Stamps, especially since Voice of America broadcasting was interrupted earlier this week.

For example, "one of Stamps' American students majoring in Chinese, Michaela Ludwick, currently studying at Nanjing University in China, learned more about what is happening by talking to her parents in Troy by telephone than she was able to glean from the Chinese press, Stamps said.

DR. ALBERT KING and his wife Elizabeth, of Bloomfield Hills, were both born in Shanghai, prior to the Communist revolution in 1949, when Chairman Mao Zedong proclaimed the Peoples Republic of China. Both were youths when their respective families fled to Hong Kong and then immigrated to the U.S., where they

In recent years, the couple has visited Shanghai on three occasions.

Herbert

Councilman will be missed

WESTLAND CITY Councilman Kent Herbert will be missed when he retires from local politics at the end of

He announced last week that he won't seek another term in the fall election.

In looking back on his six-year tenure on the council, Herbert gained a reputation for being a' "numbers man" or "bean counter."

Herbert, who is the chief financial officer for the city of St. Clair Shores in Macomb County, was the budget authority on the council at a time when the city was struggling with major problems in the mid-1980s.

He didn't always bring a sense of finesse to his positions on the council, but everyone knew where he stood.

Part of the problem may be that his initial appearance on the council in early 1983 was marked by controversy.

in HE WAS appointed by the council to fill a vacancy. That action was immediately vetoed by then-Mayor Charles Pickering.

The appointment eventually stood, and Pickering was later defeated in a re-election bid by. Kent Herbert provided financial expertise to reviews of administrative proposals.

council president Charles Griffin in late 1985.

Herbert was no newcomer to the city government when named to the council more than six years ago. He has served 17 years in the city government.

Herbert's career began when he was appointed the city's first budget director in the Eugene McKinney administration in 1971, and then later promoted to finance director in 1982.

Herbert will not be forgotten in the last seven months of his term, promising to introduce changes to the civil service ordinance to assure an affirmative recruitment program and make sure that persons on the civil service list get adequate notice of job openings.

While he may have gotten under some people's political skins, his financial expertise and political background will be missed.

Let's keep a touch of history

Under the potential settlement, McDonald's will donate the sign and the land under it to the historical commission and a small sign installed to signify the sign's history.

We hope the settlement is negotiated as quickly as it takes to say hamburger, french fries and

Gas tax increase

Part of our road repair solution

HERE'S SOMETHING blooming this spring along with your back yard rose bushes. That is the critical need for road repair and expansion.

Some favored examples come to mind, like anywhere along Southfield Road; Joy and Warren roads in Canton Township; Haggerty Road hurdles in Farmington Hills; to the airport on twolane Merriman Road through Livonia, Garden City and Westland; and the critical mass created on southbound Telegraph when the Bingham office plaza gets out.

These are thorny problems not easily solved by past calls for more financing.

VOTERS WERE loud and clear last year in pulling out by the roots a plan that would have levied a $25 vehicle registration fee in Oakland County for road work.

There is another alternative — a 2-cent gasoline tax — that will plant the seeds for road repair, which in the next 10 years will total $940 million in Oakland County alone. Each cent will provide approximately $45 million. A statewide 2-cent tax is tolerable, despite the recent unfair increases at the pump, because it targets those who use the roads regardless of where they live.

A statewide 2-cent tax is tolerable, despite the recent unfair increases at the pump, because it targets those who use the roads regardless of where they live.

But it's going to take drastic action to resolve our road problems. Also needed is a revised, more equitable formula for returning money to the communities, according to how much tax revenue they generate.

FERTILIZING THE growing problem is the spurt in office, industrial and residential growth to the west and northwest. Developers, who seem to sprout ideas without thinking of the consequences, ought to be made to pay some kind of user fee for road widening.

Local officials must ask themselves how long property values will remain high with escalating traffic volumes.

Communities have to learn to work together. Either our officials start providing leadership, or we prune those who are ineffective.

Graduation parties earn praise

lassy, activity packed, all-night graduation parties have replaced dozens of booze-filled house parties, long associated with high school graduation.

Hosted by parents, the all-night parties eliminate peer pressure for booze and foolishness. Students don't have to drink to have fun at the organized parties that feature something for every graduating senior.

-But the lifesaving shindigs have become more than a means of preventing the fatal combination. of alcohol and driving.

They have become a better way to cap the memories and the friendships that have marked the memorable years of high school.

They are a place for all students — to whichever group or clique they belong - to share laughs and memories, dance, socialize, and say goodbye. Organizing the all-night parties has been no easy task. Convincing teens that parents have a better way of celebrating was difficult at first.

But the proof has been in the parties' successful

And there's little doubt the all-night organized festivities have been a blessing for parents, who can feel at ease about their impressionable sons and daughters sharing the thrill of graduation and the anticipation of the future. Among the high schools in Wayne County we recognize for their efforts are: Stevenson, Churchill and Ladywood in Livonia; Thurston in Redford and Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Sa-

We commend parents in these districts who care enough about their sons and daughters to take the time, the patience and imagination to provide graduating seniors with a memorable and safe evening.

We urge schools without all-night parties to consider the worthy effort. Parents should support the ingenious all-night parties to ensure that graduating seniors move on with good memories instead of becoming traffic statistics.

Schools can bridge gap between city, suburbs

KNOCKING DOWN the fences between suburbs and city, in many cases between whites and blacks, isn't an easy task.

It has to start at home - and since many of our homes are citadels of prejudice themselves, part of the solution has to lie in the class-

A West Bloomfield elementary school recently chose to focus on the importance of Detroit to its suburbs by taking busloads of students to its landmarks, then replicating them in its halls. The project - "Hello Detroit" took its name from the Berry Gordy song.

• Fish shimmered on the windows and walls of the school kindergarten as it was turned into the Belle Isle Aquarium.

• Fourth and fifth graders turned their corridor into the Eastern Market, where one day they offered a "Taste of Detroit" sampling of fruits and vegetables. • Music teacher Gordon Bleich's personalities as Detroit police Commander Gil (Beverly Hills Cops) Hill; Attic Theatre players and Sparky. And Detroit's economic impact on them - spelled CAR - was highlighted through a display of antique and new cars on the school lawn and a speaker from GM.

The message wasn't a pedantic: Prejudice is wrong. Rather, suburban Detroit students were shown the vital links between the city and suburbs.

Students also learned about the needy in Detroit. "We blitzed them, with who they would be helping," Barget said. At the "Jump for Detroit" high jump fund-raiser, "We hoped to raise $1,000 — and exceeded what we thought."

Feels column was exploitive

To the editor:

Regarding "Stifling Free Expression" by Jack Gladden on May 11, I'm writing to be proof of the "Illlogic" of your point.

I have, by word and action, aligned myself with the "chain-rattling, crusading, devil hunting, fundamentalist" persons who are finally standing up for decency in America (and Redford). Mr. Gladden, you and I both have the freedom to express our opinions and viewpoints, and we both do (probably on a regular basis). Are you then also including yourself as an "offended reformer" simply because you don't agree with me?

· And have you neglected to point out the statistics surrounding the erosion of decency in America? Or can it be that you haven't heard about alcoholism, drug use, teen killings and suicides, child abuse, the murder of the unborn and the newly born handicapped and the elderly?

These are the reasons that people like me are acting to bring a return to decency to America. And what is decency? I call it "good manners," "respecting and caring for our neighbors" or better yet "Do unto others as you would have them do unto

Rule by philosophy, not interests

A BEARDED man with a pug nose visiting the Michigan Senate gallery looked like part of the Senior Power Day delegation. But that event had occurred a week earlier.

His eyes were so twinkling and curious that at first I didn't notice his robe and sandals. "Socrates!" I said, and the venerable Greek philosopher of antiquity looked up, noticed my red press badge and smiled.

"I'm inquiring," he said, "how your institutions function 2,300 years after my teachings. Maybe you remember., 1

I assured him I had read Plato's "The Republic.'

BELIEVE IT or not, there occurred a Senate debate right out of one of the Socratic dialogs. The issue was the governor's nomination of William S. Hoffman, 45, of Southfield, to the state Certificate of Need (CON) Commission. Hoffman is director of the Social Security Department for the United Auto Workers union.

Sen. John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant, sald Hoffman, with a Ph.D. in sociology from Wayne State University, is "very talented, knows his stuff and is conversant on the issues." Socrates smiled.

But then Engler went on to say

Richard

Hoffman has a conflict of interest. The candidate serves on the board of directors of Blue Cross/Blue Shield and on its committee which negotiates contracts with hospitals. Since CON is to regulate capital acquisitions of hospitals, Engler said, Hoffman should resign from the Blues' board before serving on the state Engler and Sen. Vern Ehlers, R-Grand Rapids, expressed shock that Hoffman wouldn't even acknowledge a conflict of interest.

Sen. William Sederburg, R-East Lansing, called the appointments of Democrat Hoffman, another Democrat and a Republican "an outrage. The Senate wanted the public at large represented. The governor wanted special interest groups." He pointed toward the Blues' lobbyists in the Senate lobby.

He hunched over, then looked up and asked: "You will pen an essay on this, won't you?"

"I WILL, Socrates," I said, "but I am uncertain whether my readers will benefit. Many discuss public affairs in terms of polls and 'images' rather than in philosophical ideals.

"Our politics is a game of representing social classes. Your kind of philosopher will have trouble raising campaign money from the interest groups.'

Socrates understood but seemed saddened. He left the Senate gallery. I don't think he went over to the House side, fearing further disappointment. I have a hunch he went to the nearest college campus to start over - or so I hope.

Dollars, not ideals, matter to leaders

Item one: Sunday night Kentucky Fried Chicken informs us that the Chinese people have learned to "cross the road" for the Colonel's famous herbs and spices. A KFC franchise now graces Tiananmen Square. Meanwhile, students were holding a hunger strike in the same square.

Item two: Secretary of State James Baker says that social instability in China is not in the best interest of the United States. Later he and President George Bush allowed that they certainly support the move toward democracy but wish the people would be a little more cautious about it. Hmm!

IT IS painfully obvious that the President does not care about demonstrations for democracy if they disrupt trade agreements. It is not hunger strikers in Tiananmen Square but hungry chicken lovers that matter. It is dollars not ideals.

You must understand something. The leaders of the United States, China and the Soviet Union are basically the same kind of people. They are pragmatists, technicians, politicians who are most interested in maintaining their power and serving the needs of those who put them in power, those who control the econo-

Oddly enough in the current swirl of political activity, Mikhail Gorbachev has been the leader in idealistic causes - disarmament, expanding democracy, concern for the economically afflicted. He has co-opted the United States at its own game and the State Department is scrambling to figure out what he's really up to. You see, nobody really believes any of that ideals stuff.

A LITTLE history lesson. The United States, China and the Soviet Union were forged in revolution. In the American Revolution that set forth the ideals of democracy and the outline for revolution for every unheaval since, the revolutionaries were moderately prosperous land owners concerned about controlling their own economic destiny. The ideals that fueled their break from Britain were also actively changing British politics as well.

The great difference was that the United States was not baggaged by centuries of encrusted class arrangements. But eventually the practical need of all governments to govern and to maintain power created a bureaucratic structure. The American economy created a dollar class system to control the democracy from

In China, 70 years ago the students crowded Tiahanmen Square demanding "Science and Democracy." That was the beginning of the struggle against long-encrusted social stagnation and the rule of warlords. Sun Yat-sen moved the nation forward, Chaing Kai-shek nervously held it back and then came Mao. For the last 40 years, China has struggled to find an identity, at many times strangled by socialist rhetoric and brutality. Unlike the United States, the revolution was never translated into an effective bureaucracy until the early '70s and the reaction to the Cultural Revolution.

In the Soviet Union, as in China, the revolution did not bring what the revolutionaries envisioned. As in China, millions died to preserve the power of dictators who had no idea how to forge socialist ideals into effective policy. If Lenin was a visionary, Stalin was a brutal, bumbling government bureaucrat who never understood the ideals to begin with. But what happened in the Soviet Union had nothing to do with socialism and everything to do with Russian history and the character of the Russian people, a people that have known intellectual greatness but have never known democracy.

WHAT IS happening in China is a movement from below, a true, honest-to-God grass roots movement for change. It is similar to the American civil rights movement and anti-war movement but has an even greater i significance and broader support. If the Chinese government is smart enough to co-opt the movement and embrace it, it will begin to satisfy the political and economic desires of its people and keep alive its trade agreements as well.

But the most interesting thing ere is that the United States refuses to support the movement that champions our ideal - democracy - because it disrupts our real and only true ideal - profit. Thank you Mr. Bush for proving at last what really matters to leaders everywhere.

Families shop together, save together

By Peggy Aulino staff wilter

For those who find going to the grocery store about as appealing as soggy potato chips, there is an alternative short of starving to death. It requires a commitment of time, and you might have to buy your fruit juice by the case. But members of area food buying clubs say if you want wholesome foods at reduced prices, there's nothing like a co-op.

Michigan food cooperatives — groups of interested parties who buy their edibles in bulk at discounted prices — were born in the mid-1970s.

"That's when people became interested in what they were eating," said Theresa Falzone, who helps organize food co-ops in the Detroit area. "The people who came of age in the '60s started to get older, I guess, and were more concerned about their health."

But if you think all co-op members are vegetarian hippies, think again. Members of the handful of clubs in the Livonia/

Redford area range from young mothers who want to start their children off with proper nutrition to septuagenarians on restricted diets.

Falzone volunteers her services through the Michigan Federation of Food Co-ops. The group owns and runs the People's Wherehouse, an Ann Arbor-based wholesaler of natural foods. Area clubs join the federation in order to receive discount prices.

"They are buying food at wholesale cost. They are missing the retail mark-up totally," said Mike Bowering, general manager of the 28,000-square-foot

While, as Bowering said, "everyone likes to save money on their food," most club members said it is the line of products, not the prices, that attracted them to the food co-op.

"I WAS primarily interested in good nutrition before anything else. When I found out I could buy it at a terrific savings, that was a bonus," said Lynn Miles, a Southfield resident who belongs to the Southfield Food Co-op. "I know what I'm getting, not some processed things with words in the ingredients I can't pronounce." The People's Wherehouse carries about 1,900 items, including some commercially available things. such as Progresso canned soups and salad dressings from actor Paul Newman's company.

Many of the products are things one can't find at the local supermarket. Members said the co-op products are available at health food stores; but the cost could be 20 to 30 percent higher at such retail

The Wherehouse catalog includes fruit-juice sweetened cookies, organic flours, dried fruits, brown rice and whole-wheat pasta. Non-food items include eucalyptus-sage soap, fennel toothpaste and biodegradable laundry detergent.

Some of the more commonly found items include honey, brown sugar, nuts, cooking oils and yogurt.

Paper products, meat and most diary items are not available through the Wherehouse, but those are about the only items that send club members to their neighborhood market.

"I don't have to go and spend two hours in a grocery store anymore," said Wendy Wagner, a Livonia resident who coordinates Nature's Best. That food club has about two dozen members, who live in the Livonia/Redford/Plymouth area.

THE 54-MEMBER Southfield Food Co-op, which has been in existence since the 1970s, operates in a manner typical of other area clubs. Members meet once a month to place orders and return the following week to pick up the products. Members share the

The coordinators are a bit more involved. Livonia resident Dolores West, whose husband Gene is the Southfield club's coordinator, sets up shop in the VFW Hall the group uses as a meeting place. She and Ardyce Rogers, of Redford, use their vans to drive to Ann Arbor and pick up the orders.

Rogers has also taken it upon herself to the club's unofficial nutrition consultant. She brings in healthand natural food-related articles to share with the club members and occasionally provides samples of dishes she's made from co-op products. That's so members who don't know how to cook with an item, such as bulgar, can get an idea of what to do with it.

Rogers' motives, she admits, are partly self-serving. Since the club must order things in bulk to get the maximum discount, the more people interested in, say, oat bran, the better the chance there will be to get enough orders to meet the minimum.

In other words, if only one person wants oat bran and the minimum order is 50 pounds, that person probably won't order it. But if five people want oat bran, it's more likely they'll each agree to take 10 pounds.

"If I make sure this is a success, then I can get things for me," Rogers explained.

Harry Thompson of Livonia is a member of the Newburg Staff of Life co-op, which was begun nearly a decade ago. Thompson, 72, said he must restrict his salt, sugar and fat intake, and the co-op is the only place he can find many of the foods he needs.

THOMPSON SAID he watched the club's membership go from a high of around 70 to its current roster of about 30.

"People that left the co-op told me 'Our day is so full we haven't got time to spend the extra time at the co-op," "Thompson said.

When club memberships dwindle, the remaining participants usually merge with another group,

"Now that more women are working, several buying clubs have died. But the committed people will find a way to work around that," said Falzone. The coordinator of the Newburg group, which has members from Livonia, Garden City, Westland and Plymouth, said she quit the co-op at one point because of the time commitment. But Nanette Mrazik, a Garden City mother of five, rejoined after deciding her membership would save time in the long run. The foods she'd purchased through the co-op were just too difficult to obtain elsewhere. "It might take me 10 grocery stores to find each of the different brands that I like," she said. Wherehouse manager Bowering said between 25,000 and 30,000 families — in Michigan, and parts of Indiana and Ohio - are members of the federation, which started in 1975.

"Our growth is all basically through word of mouth," Bowering said. "We really don't need to ad-

"There really isn't a lot to it," said Judy Siegel, president of a Plymouth-based club. "You get a group of interested people together, go to the Wherehouse in Ann Arbor and have them help you."

The Michigan Federation of Food Co-ops, which runs the People's Wherehouse, has certain ground rules for food-buying clubs, but it is up to each club to decide how they want to go about the task of submitting and distributing orders.

Clubs can order food from the Wherehouse without being a member of the Federation. But a membership entitles them to discounts on orders and a vote at Board of Directors meetings. The membership costs 10 percent of the club's annual order, up to $500. It is payable in installments.

Individual clubs determine how they pass that fee onto members. Most have membership fees of $10 to $25 per family, which is refundable if someone elects to quit the club. A club's monthly order to the Wherehouse must total at least $250. A club's first two orders may be less than that amount, so people can get an idea of what is offered. There are extra discounts for highvolume orders and for paying upon delivery. Federation members also have access to a home economist on the staff at the Ann Arbor facility. The Wherehouse will deliver orders to a club, but if members opt to pick up orders, they get a 2 percent discount. Clubs reimburse members for the gas they use to make the trip to Ann Arbor.

Area coordinators said the average co-op member—start a club, call the Wherchouse at 761-4642.

Unlike most area clubs, which meet monthly, Nature's Best meets every eight weeks. The co-op meets on a Thursday night in the home of a club member to place the order. The following Friday, their order arrives via a Wherehouse truck, which members must unload. Everyone who placed an order must participate in the process.

"That's the whole idea behind the co-op, to work together," said Livonia resident Wendy Wagner, the Nature's Best coordinator.

Wagner said potential members who are intimidated by the prospect of unloading trucks shouldn't be deterred — they can busy themselves with clerical work or child care.

Seigel said her group mails in their orders. They still have to meet once before picking up the order, but meetings are much shorter since the inception of the mail-in system.

"Now we use the extra time to talk and share recipes," sald Slegel. "It's not just a job but also a so-

Theresa Falzone, a Federation volunteer who offers guidance to area clubs, said there's more to coops than saving money and eating healthful foods. Club members — most of whom are women — learn marketable skills, Falzone said. "They are learning how to operate a small business," she said. The skills include bookkeeping and personnel management.

Children find support through in-school groups

By Sue Mason staff writer

Tracy Tandy has learned a lot since joining the staff of the YWCA of Western Wayne County.

A graduate of Ohio State University, where she majored in education and communications, what Tandy has learned deals with children and working with them in a mutlitude of support groups.

At age 25, Tandy spends much of In the Wayne-Westland Community elementary and junior high school

Labeled student assistance programs, they help students deal with everything from divorce and sub-abuse and study skills,

"The YWCA has been doing this since the '60s, but the problems we deal with weren't really as prevelant until five years ago," Tandy said. "The school districts were able to deal with them then, but now they have counselors that do administrative work and don't have enough time to do this kind of work." The work is rewarding, more so her going from one school to another than what Tandy was doing when she first joined the YWCA staff. She and Plymouth-Canton school dis-tricts to facilitate support groups for the different Y support groups for adults, but last year decided to "test the market" for student assistance programs in elemntary schools. She had to keep at it and pushed appointments, but eventually the stance abuse to self-concept, sexual idea caught on "like wild fire."

"WE'VE FOUND that these programs can be very successful if we start working with the students as early as possible," Tandy said. "Statistics show that 80 percent of children will experience divorce while in elementary school."

The programs are offered free of charge to the school districts and even though they orginate through the YWCA, Tandy stressed that she goes in as a school representative and follows the guldelines set down

Most of the programs are offered during school hours, with a classroom set aside for the meetings. Some are held after school.

Space is one thing that has limited the expansion of the student assistance programs. A case in point is the Plymouth-Canton, where programs die Schools. Other schools are interested, but have delayed offering the programs until the fall because "they don't have the room right now," Tandy said.

The most popular program is the divorce support group for children. At one school, 100 students signed up for the program which could only accommodate 10 students, she said.

The programs aren't all talk. Tanprovides activities that help the children learn how to do such things. as listen, set goals and understand their emotions.

One activity is a "feel" chart. Each student has a chart and before to 2 p.m. and will help the teens dethe start of each session record their feelings at the time on it. The charts let the students see the highs and are offered at Pioneer and East Mid--lows they're experiencing and develop ways of stabilizing those emo-

> "IT'S WORKED out really well," Tandy said. "And it's really wonderful how the kids go through it every week. I've had teachers approach me and say they can see a difference in the student."

An offshoot of the school-based programs will be a summer YWCA teen program. It will be for youths 12 through 15 years of age. Twelves free lunches will be provided. There's sessions will be offered Tuesday through Friday, Aug. 1-18. The sessions will be from 9:30 a.m.

velop skills through art, outdoor activities and group therapy. The participants will also take a field trip to the YWCA Camp Cabo. on Lake Huron where they will be introduced to cooperative learning. through the camp's outreach program. Students will work out on an obstacle course that can't be done

The camp was selected for the . field trip because "we decided a , field trip should be fun, but the kids' should learn somothing from it," Tandy said.

The program is free of charge and; will be a modest charge for the field; trip and advanced registration is.

Young and old attracted to gentle ways of writer

Dear Lorene,

Your column has always fascinated me, but I keep putting off writing to you and for the most ridiculous reason! So, today, I decided to live dangerously and let you divulge some of the characteristics of the "real me" that I perhaps don't really want to know about. Please don't take me too seriously, Lorene, I know myself quite well.

Dear B.C.;

This handwriting tells me you're a very active person. A friendly, caring manner has you interacting with all types of people. And I suspect both children and older folks are attracted to your gentle ways.

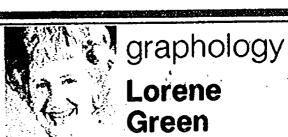

You are impulsive by nature andhave a strong need to please, so you find it difficult to say no when other people make demands on your time. Currently, you may be experiencing problems establishing your priori-

Emotional, you often wear your heart on your sleeve. A sensitivity to the needs of others cannot be missed, neither can your spiritual qualities.

Fun and laughter appeal to you. You also enjoy attention. Your active imagination and dramatic instincts have a way of propelling you right into center stage often.

Criticism of your personal side is not easy for you to accept. Still, you conceal it well and few people are aware when you are hurt. Some inner unrest seems apparent in this handwriting and there is emotional energy that is not finding release. Although you do have quite a resilient nature, I am concerned Your signature suggests you may

Breast cancer: It can be 'cured'

staff writer

More than 140,000 women in the United States will be diagnosed as having it in 1989. In fact, one out of 11 women will develop it and a majority of them will be cured.

The "It" is breast cancer, the most common form of cancer found in women today.

At one time, the diagnosis of breast cancer was "tantamount to a sentence of death," said one physician who specializes in treating breast cancer. As quickly as it was diagnosed, a mastectomy - surgical removal of the diseased breast was performed.

But as medical technology has changed, so has treatment of breast. cancer. Today, treatment can range from a mastectomy to a lumpectomy (removal of the cancerous tumor), radiation treatment, chemotherapy and hormonal therapy.

"There have been no great break-throughs; in fact, we've taken tiny steps," said Dr. Jerry C. Rosenberg, chief of staff at Hutzel Hospital in Detroit. "We try to emphasize that it is a disease that can be cured. It's very amenable to treatment, and when we can't cure it, we can control it and give women many more productive years."

Rosenberg, who spoke about breast cancer treatment during a

Reach for Recovery seminar, held last week in Livonia, maintains that women are "their own best doctors" in the case of breast cancer. Self-examinations and yearly mammograms can go a long way in discovering breast cancer at an early stage.

IN EXAMINING their breast, women should look for a lump that stands out from the rest of the breast. That lump will have clearly demarked margins, unlike a lumpiness women may feel that is an indication of fibrocystic change in the breasts, common in women over 30 who have never been pregnant, Rosenberg said.

If such a lump is found, a woman should see a doctor immediately. While many women will need a mastectomy, such surgery isn't used indiscriminantly, Rosenberg said.

"Treatment is patterned to the woman's wishes," he said. "There are options today that weren't there 10 years ago."

One of the most depressing aspects of his work, Rosenberg said, is having a patient refuse any form of treatment.

"It's almost like a personal blow," he said. "Many of us (doctors) have an intense desire to cure cancer. You fight with a passion when you're up against odds you can beat and when you see a woman walk away . . . it's one of the most depressing things to happen to me."

Rosenberg has had patients who have decide to seek nutritional treatment or go to cancer clinics in Mexico. He had one young patient who. turned to prayer to cure the disease. She returned latter with an advanced stage of breast cancer for surgery because the tumor had eroded through the skin and was giving off a foul odor.

"We couldn't cure it, but we were able to convert it to a chronic disease," he said.

The loss of a breast is a traumatic experience, but that's where plastic surgeons like Dr. Andres G. Resto comes in. Resto, whose practice is based in Port Huron, shared the podium with Rosenberg and discussed reconstructive surgery.

WHILE A prosthesis can be worn to camouflage the missing breast, plastic surgeons, working with implants and existing muscle and tissue, can create a reasonable facsimi-

"Reconstruction isn't here to give back what God gave you," Resto

Reconstructive surgery can begin as soon as the breast is removed, but that depends on the patient, Resto sald. The simplest procedure is tissue expansion.

Using the patient's skin, tissue and muscle, the surgeon creates a form of a breast and implants a small balloon that is slowly inflated after the wound has healed. After a period of two to three months, the balloon is replaced with a silicon implant.

An implant also is used when muscles and skin from the patient's back and belly - their "swimmer's muscles" - are used to construct a breast, but for those women opposed to implants, the surgeon can rotate the lower abdominal skin and fatty tissue to sculpt a breast, Resto said.

The latter procedure can take up to six hours to perform, but the patient gets the side benefit of having a tummy tuck, Resto explained. It also produces the nicest results.

Resto admitted that there is a problem with the silcon implants.

Resto estimates that five years ago, when he was doing his residency, 15 percent of woman who had mastectomies also had reconstructive surgery. If Dr. Syed Razvi had his druthers. he would want a mosque, a community hall and a school built in western Wayne County to serve the 250 families who are part of the Muslim Community of the Western Detroit Suburbs.

That may take awhile, since such plans have been stymled by a lack of cohesive leadership in the organization. But it hasn't prevented the group from meeting weekly at Bryant School in Livonia to continue the traditions of its Islamic faith.

Started in 1979, when a few families would gather at homes to pray and discuss the teachings of the Koran, word of mouth and a few newspaper stories swelled the ranks of the community. The families live throughout the western suburbs, including Canton Township, Westland, Farmington Hills, Novi, Northville and West Bloomfield, Razvi said.

"A few of us began meeting in basements because there was no mosque or community center where we could go," Razvi said. "The closest was at Joy and Greenfield."

But registered membership has dropped off in recent years - today, there are only 49 registered families - because of the lack of a permanent home.

"In the beginning, membership built up because of hopes of building a community center," Razvi said. "It has dropped because of a delay in achieving that goal."

Even though there is no permanent location for the community, large numbers of families still gather on Friday evenings at Bryant School. For three hours, they perform their prayers, educate the children and learn about the Koran.

'In the beginning, membership built up because of hopes of building a community center. It has dropped because of a delay in achieving that goal." - Dr. Syed Razvi

WHILE NOT the best of meeting places, since the building isn't available during the summer months, the group is able to continue in one of the world's oldest religions.

The religion was founded between 632 and 610 B.C. in Arabia by Mohammed, who is revered as the prophet of Allah (God). Today one in five people in the world are of the Islamic faith, or Muslim.

The Five Pillars or primary duties of Islam are: witness and confessing the oneness of God and of Mohammed, prayer performed five times a day, almsgiving to the poor and the mosque, fasting during the daylight hours in the month of Ramadan and a pilgrimage to Mecca at least once in a lifetime.

RELIGIOUS HOLIDAYS are based on a lunar calendar.

The observance of Ramadan concluded earlier this month. The Muslim Community of the Western Detroit Suburbs marked the occasion with Eid, a celebration comparable to a combination of Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Eid is an occasion of thankfulness, happiness and the exchange of gifts for Muslims, Razvi said. More than 600 people gathered at the Novi Community Center for the celebration, many sporting new clothes for the occasion, he said. Following the practices of Islam can be difficult in a non-Islamic country, Razvi said. Muslims must pray five times a day - before sunrise, at noon, mid-afternoon, after sunset and again before 3 a.m. They must face Mecca when they

THE PRAYERS "are to get in touch with God" and can last from five to 15 minutes, Razvi said. Some Muslims adapt their prayers to their environment, saying the mandatory prayers and foregoing optional prayers and prayers of thanksgiving.

"The Islamic religion is a very flexible religion," Razvi said.

Friday afternoon prayers, comparable to the Jewish Sabbath or the Christian Sunday services, "are very important, but we don't get Friday afternoon off because this is a non-Islamic country," Razvi said.

As a result, the group meets on Friday evenings. When Bryant School isn't available during the summer months, the meetings are held in family homes.

RAZVI WOULD like to see Christians become more knowledgeable of the Islamic faith. The community invites "open dialogues" with non-Muslims. But, Razvi said, the group hasn't been that successful because "of a lack of effort on our part.

"We fail to invite people of other faiths to come in and have an open dialogue with us," he said.

But that hasn't stopped Razvi from speaking before groups and churches about the Islamic faith through his Monotheistic Congregation. He also holds meetings on Sundays in his Farmington Hills home, bringing together people of the Jewish, Jehovah Witness and Christlan faiths 'to talk.'

Razvi believes some of the difficulties faced by Muslims is fostered by negative images of the religion projected by the news media. Those difficulties ease as people begin to know about and understand the Islamic faith, he said.

"We are not a violent people and yet when people say the word terrorist, they think a Muslim terrorist," Razvi said. "But there are Irish terrorists, German terrorists, Israeli terrorists. All the textbooks written by non-Muslims project us as wild, naked men riding on horses and swing a sword.

We are not like that at all. We don't force our religion on people."

Grocery store competition heats up

Lon Makanoff, president and chief operating officer of Meadowdale Foods, parent company of Great Scottl, announced a summer price freeze of some food items. "A lot of consumers are under the impression that we are a high-priced supermarket. We're not," he said.

Great Scott! freezes prices

By Susan Buck staff writer

Customer reaction was mixed Monday among those polled following an announcement by Great Scott! supermarkets that prices on 300 selected items would be frozen through

Lon Makanoff, president and CEO of parent company Meadowdale Foods, announced that 300 items from the top-selling commodities in all of its 31 stores will be frozen.

An average supermarket carries 20,000 to 30,000 items. No fresh fruits, vegetables or meats are on the Great Scott! list.

"We want to be better recognized for what we worked long and hard to achieve," Makanoff said in his announcement, made near the frozen foods section of the Great Scott! store at 11 Mile and Middlebelt in Farmington Hills. "Everyday shelf" prices are low, if not lower, than our competitors." This does not represent a supermarket war, but rather "good, healthy competition," said Maka-

But shoppers will have the final

"I don't shop here as often as I like because I think they are a little bit too over-priced, but I like the store," said Linda Delavy, a Southfield resident, who was shopping with daughter, Michelle, 6, and Cheryl Nawrocki, 4, whom she was baby-sit-

LOOKING AT the Great Scott! list, Delavy saw some items she bought but not the brands that she liked. "It would depend on what other sales were going on," said Delavy. "I spend the most money on meats. I stock up on the meats, let it go down and then it's a blow when I have to do it again."

Eldon Dillon, a Earmington Hills resident, said that he shopped at the store because it was conveniently located. "Prices don't make any differences to me," he said.

Anne Sievert of Southfield; who is retired and on a fixed income, said that she is a real "cheapo" when it comes to supermarket shopping.

"I go for house brands," she said, holding two paper towels and a loaf of bread. "You need to be shrewd to shop today. I look for the specials. I have to watch my cholesterol. I don't buy too many veggies here because they are too expensive. I go to the fruit market."

Sievert came to Great Scott! to "see what looks good today," she

According to Makanoff, Great Scott! was the first to introduce salad bars, fresh seafood, high-speed checkout scanning and FAX machines to its stores. "A lot of consumers are under the impression that we are a high-priced supermarket. We're not. We're every bit as competitive as the other chains. If you look at what they've done over the last couple of years, you'll find that they always copy what we've MAKANOFF SAID that Great Scott! tried to select items that every consumer would buy throughout the summer. They include selected brands and sizes of margarine, cheese, iced-tea mix, paper plates and cups, salad dressing, charcoal starter, as well as cat litter, dog food and detergent. The demand for many of these items increases during the summer, he said.

"Depending on weather conditions, which say this summer will probably be more dry, we're looking at a couple percent inflation," he

K mart sees sales slump

Retail giant looks to specialty niches

By Tim Richard staff writer

Despite signs of a softening economy, K mart Corp. is moving ahead in the Oakland and Wayne county suburbs with part of its new generation of specialty shops, Sports Giant.

One store opened today in Livonia, and another opened April 6 in Madison Heights.

"We're tapping into this country's zest for the active life, good health and good fitness," board chairman Joseph Antonini of Bloomfield Hills told a crowd of 300 at the No. 2 retailer's annual shareholder's meeting in its Troy headquarters. Antonini said the firm — best known for its discount department stores but increasingly adding specialty stores - intends to expand its 4 percent share of the market, despite rival Wal-Mart's threat to overtake both

Departing from his text, Antonini said, "We're seeing trends that are a little disturbing," adding in a news conference that store traffic is off this quarter among rivals, too. "Business is bad all over the country in retailing. We were a little surprised when things fell off."

Nevertheless, he predicted a 7 percent sales like during 1989. ---

FIRST-QUARTER earnings fell 22 percent to 47 cents a share from 60 cents in the first quarter of 1988, but Antonini said the drop "does not alter our annual plan

The company's second Sports Glant is at the Woodland Square on Plymouth Road west of Middlebelt in Livonia. At 50,000 square feet, Sports Giant will be about twothirds the size of the average K mart store.

Larry M. Parkin, an executive vice president, said it will stock 35,000 items in 12 departments such as footwear, exercise, skiing, hunting, fishing, camping, water sports, golf and team sports equipment.

For a family membership fee, shoppers can get 5 to 10 percent price reductions. It will employ 90 people.

THE MEETING was relatively tame, despite market pundits' predictions of tough questions because of the earnings drop and leveling of per-store sales.

Except for a few shopper complaints (see related story), Antonini received accolades for progress in using minority vendors (a 46 percent increase to $374 million

An employee complained about lack of a cost-of-living pay hike, adding, "I can no longer afford to eat in the cafeterla," She received much applause.

- A Presbyterian minister, the Rev. William Somplatski-Jarman, asked Antonini to put pressure on a Georgia curtain supplier, S. Lictenberg Co., which is facing charges of racial bias and union problems.

This (union ratification) is tied up in court," Antonini replied. "We've talked. They're committed to resolving this. I said we wanted them to get this behind us."

For 1988, K mart reported sales of $27.3 billion, up 6.5 percent; income of $803 million, up 16 percent; and cash dividends of $1.32 a share, up 13.8 percent.

BIGGER BASIC stores, as well as specialty stores, are in the company's $1.3 billion five-year capital plan, the chairman said. Plans callfor:

 • 75 to 100 new stores each year for five years — 30 of them replacements for smaller stores.

• 100 to 150 existing stores to be expanded each year. Average store will be more than 85,000 square feet.

• Completion, by the end of 1990, of the price scanner program, increasing checkout lane speed by 23 percent and allowing better inventory control. By the end of 1988, about half of the 2,200 K marts had price scanners. A second goal is to improve inventory turnover.

• Continued expansion for Builder's Square, now at 137 stores for do-it-yourself homeowners and small contractors.

• Experimentation with Makro stores, which have a warehouse club format. A joint venture with SHV Holdings, a Dutch firm, Makro outlets are in Cincinnati, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, D.C. • An experiment with Office Square, an office supply warehouse. • The first American Fare, a food and general merchandise "hypermarket," in Atlanta.

Stockholders air shopping gripes

K Mart's shareholders are also shoppers, and they didn't hestitate to take their complaints to the top at Tuesday's annual meeting in Troy.

"Give him a case of Eureka bags free," chairman Joseph Antonini ordered after a shareholder, shopper and reliree, Michael Turok, complained he was unable to find replacement bags for the vacuum cleaner at three company stores. He had purchased the appliance at K mart. "No excuse," Antonini commented. "We make more money on the bags.' "See that Joey gets a free Nintendo," Antonini ordered after mother Pat Glionma reported her son found the game's price $5-$25 cheaper at competitors.

She said her son saved his own money to buy three shares (current price: $39.25). To a shareholder who asked for a dividend reinvestment plan, Antonini said it's "something we're working on. The problem is that 60 percent of shareholders own under 1 percent of the stock. We'll look at it."

The company has 201 million shares.

SEERING TO instill "missionary zeal" for customer service in its 350,000 employees, Antonini said favorable comments were one in 10 when it began a monitoring. system 18 months ago.

"Today I am pleased to report over 50 percent of letters from our customers are complimentary. We have received over 9,000 complimentary calls and letters this year alone, which exceeds the number received

Despite the new emphasis on service, Antonini said the firm's orientation will continue to be on merchandise

Places to save: 6 guidelines to consider

Part I

In recent weeks I have received many inquiries regarding the best place to save. While safety is a basic concern, it should not be the only concern. In a two-part article I will discuss this topic in detail.

There are six major criteria for determining where money should be saved. These are safety, liquidity, simplicity and minimum balance requirements, special service features. tax considerations, and return on savings.

safety At the present time, all national banks and many state banks are members of the Pederal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC). This means that the checking, savings, and certificate of deposit accounts at these banks are insured against bank failure for up to $100,000 on each account maintained at these banks.

Similarly, savings and loan associations are insured for the same amount by Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC).

finances and you Sid Mittra

Finally, credit unions are insured by National Credit Union Administration (NCUA).

In addition to the deposits insured by various government agencies, savings put into various types of government bonds are as safe as paper investments come. However, money market accounts at various simplicity and minimum balance rebrokerage firms and other financial institutions are neither insured nor completely safe.

Insofar as being able to convert savings into cash quickly without losing the principal is concerned, checking and savings accounts in banks and credit unions as well as money market accounts provide a high degree of liquidity. In contrast, certificates of deposit provide higher interest rates but restrict withdrawal privileges.

Similarly, the variolus types of U.S. government bonds lack complete liquidity in that an early conversion results in a partial loss of requirements

It is simple to deal with all of the various types of accounts under consideration. In most instances, in order to transact business with them, the depositor need only present the passbook or call the broker to deal in government bonds.

Insofar as the minimum-balance requirement is concerned, banks and credit unions do not require any minimum balance to open an account and a negligible balance to maintain it. Savings bonds and U.S. bonds can be bought for amounts ranging from the low of $18.75 (series E bonds) to $10,000 (treasury bills and bonds). special services

For providing special services, no other institution can match those offered by commercial banks, or what are frequently called full-service

In addition to the traditional banking services, most banks offer special services that add to their quality. These services include twentyfour hour banking through automatic teller machines, good deal on loans. travelers checks, income tax preparation services, investment management services, and even travel advice and airline tickets. tax considerations

Of all the savings alternatives discussed above, only interest income received on a tax-exempt money market fund is exempt from federal income taxes. The simplest way to decide the relative attractiveness of a tax-exempt money market fund is to convert it into a fully taxable equivalent. This can be easily done by using the following equation:

Equivalent Fully Taxable Yield-Tax-Exempt Yield/1-Marginal Fed. Tax Rate

Thus, if the yeld on a tax-exempt money market fund is 5 percent and the investor is in the 28-percent tax bracket, the equivalent fully taxable yield is 6.9 percent:

Equivalent fully taxable yield=.05/1-.28=.069=6.9%

Great Scott! freezes

In a question-and-answer session that followed Makanoff's statement, he said that the company was hoping to solidify its current customer base. "We'd like to see a 10- to 15-percent increase in sales," he said.

The 4-year-old Farmington Hills store was chosen as the site of the announcement because it was "convenient for a lot of the press," said Makanoff later. The idea for this marketing effort was his own, he said. "We went through the items and said. 'Which items can we freeze that make economic sense for us and still do something for the consumer?' Many of these were top items."

He declined comment on how much the campaign would cost.

Gilbert Borman, director of communications for Borman Inc., which runs the Farmer Jack chain, said that his company does not issue a comment on another company's advertising or sales efforts. "This is all that this is," he said.

A merger between A&P and Farmer Jack in January increased the number of Farmer Jack stores to 133. Previously, Farmer Jack had 78 stores, Borman sald.

All of which makes a fine view to hold until you hit the streets of Tokyo and things get weird.

Take for example, a visit to a Japanese car dealership.

A car dealership might not seem like such a big deal, but cars in Japan are sold door-to-door, rather than by salesmen hanging around in plaid sports coats while everybody is at work, then slamming the doors on weekends, as they do in Detroit.

Greater Nagoya is so sparsely populated that people can park their cars — a luxury in itself that leads to a relatively high rate of car ownership. Hence the great experiment.

Then I noticed the art gallery, and the enameled white grand piano. And then the boutique - selling a variety of automotive fashions.

> And over in the corner, some cars. The theory behind all this is that Japanese car salesmen can't quite picture anyone coming in with his money in his hand simply to buy an automobile, so they set up these other attractions to kind of lure

Product idea must be developed

Product ideas that have survived the screening and idea evaluation steps of the new product development process still have a long way to go before final acceptance or rejec-

The development step is next and refers to the creation of a physical product, or prototype model. As such, this step may involve one or more cycles of building, testing and revising the product model before pilot production occurs.

With actual models, it becomes possible to show potential customers how the product concept has been transformed into a tangible product. Research is very useful here because it allows customers to react to specific product features as well as the entire product idea in physical form. The research process may involve months or years before it is completed. This is especially true in large organizations. For example, it took focus: small business Mary

DiPaolo Proctor & Gamble more than 10 years and $80 million to develop

Pringles potato chips. After the product has been tested, a pilot production program is implemented to see if the desired product can be produced economically. Many small businesses choose to skip this aspect of the new product development process because pilot production testing may be considered impractical or too risky. In the case of durable goods, which have high fixed production costs and long production lead times, the products are usually manufactured without additional testing taking place.

Non-durable goods that are not tested may be justified when the product can be easily copied by competitors. Presumably a company would test specific factors that impact on productions rather than just vaguely testing whether the product idea will sell in certain markets. This may include testing alternate brands, prices or promotional tech-

Commercialization represents the final step of the new product development process. This is the time when the surviving product idea must finally be placed on the market. Because of the size of the job, some companies introduce their products city by city or region by region, implementing a gradual rollout strategy.

This also permits more market testing although it is not the purpose of a rollout. Success here will depend more so on the enthysiastic support of company management and staff. Without a coordinated and cooperative effort among company employees, no new product can be expected to make it for very long.

Next week, we will review the eight steps used to develop positive listening skills that can improve

At first glance, it might seem that both dollars are worth the same amount. Much like the interest earned from two time deposits with the same rates and terms. Well, don't be fooled by appearances. Because not all banks calculate interest the same way.

While some other banks offer you simple interest on your time deposit of one year or longer, Manufacturers Bank compounds your interest monthly. So, instead of just earning interest on your deposit, you earn interest on your interest, too. Month after month. .

The U.S. automobile stocks have always been known as being very cyclical, and I don't think that has changed. But that is the nature of the business. It is possible to have a very good investment experience in a cyclical industry; you just must be careful when you buy and not paytoo much for them.

TV star ends season by doing stage play

The personable young star of "Jake and the Fatman" explains his work addiction as the reason he is appearing in the Birmingham Theatre production of "The Nerd," even though he just finished filming a season of episodes for his popular CBS-TV series, in Ha-

Big, blond and baby-faced (with dimples), he is a handsome contrast to his slim, pretty, dark-haired wife, Nova, who is with him in Birmingham during the run of the comedy by playwright Larry Shue.

"We were apart when I was in Hawaii for five months," Campbell said in a backstage interview. "She came about every three weeks." When the season ended, he spent three weeks at home with his wife in Santa Monica, Calif. After Birmingham, he will have just a couple more weeks at home before going back to work on "Jake and the Fatman." The series has been renewed for its third season and 22 new episodes.

ON THE TV SHOW, he plays assistant P.A. (prosecuting attorney) Derek Mitchell, who works with the P.A., J.L. McCabe (the Fatman), played by William Conrad. Of his character, Mitchell, "He is very bright and book-learned," Campbell

This portrayal seems a far cry from another character, E.Z. Taylor, whom he previously played, in the TV sitcom "Three's a Crowd" starring John Ritter. Campbell calls E.Z. "a zonked-out surfer."

He was doing a play in Washington, D.C., when the director of Ritter's series asked him to audition for the part of E.Z. "They couldn't find anyone in California to play a surfer, which I think is kind of bizarre," Campbell said. He was enjoying the theater but, "TV loomed up as this great big carrot," with lots

Nerdy guy brings audience laughs

Performances of the Birmingham Theatre production of "The Nerd" continue through Sunday, June 18. For ticket information call the box office at 644-3533.

Though the improbable plot of 'The Nerd' carries absurdity to the nth degree, the Larry Shue comedy at the Birmingham Theatre is riotously funny.

Supposedly people laugh at slapstick because it makes them feel superior to the poor goof on stage. With "The Nerd" there is also the recognition factor. We've all gone to school or worked with one, dated one, or even been related to one.

Hopefully, though, we've been spared what happens to Shue's hapless hero Willum (Alan Campbell), who has a nerd descend on him for an unlimited stay, disrupting his life and career.

As the nerdy Rick Steadman, P.J. Benjamin so perfectly embodies the concept that one can almost predict he will exit the bathroom with tollet paper stuck to his shoe, leave his fly unzipped, or eat the centers out of all the deviled

BENJAMIN'S inflections and mannerisms are as supremely nerdy as his appearance — taped-together eyeglasses, ill-fitting suspendered trousers and the requisite pen-filled plastic pouch in the pocket of his white shortsleeved shirt. (For some strange reason he doesn't wear white socks until Act Two.)

Some years back Rick saved Willum's life in Vietnam, and though Willum has never actually met Rick he sent him an open-ended invitation. Rick's churlish behavior, however, pushes Willum's gratitude and commitment to friendship to the limits of human endurance.

Campbell as Willum and Tudi Roche as his girlfriend Tansy are both very likeable but bland, a fault that is not the actors' since they are not given much character to work with. Both are unbelievably mild-mannered and forbearing with Rick, though they have been unable to make a commitment to each other.

All the best one-liners go to Willum's chum Axel, the cynical, waggish drama critic smoothly portrayed by Harley Venton. (Playwrights delight in presenting drama critics as eccentrics who always threaten to write their reviews before seeing the play. It's often difficult enough when one has seen the play.)

Seemingly dependent on alchohol for his inspiration, Axel injects humorous observations on Rick's antics and finally concocts his own screwball solution to getting rid of the nerd.

AS WALDGRAVE, Willum's domineering, demanding employer, James Doerr retains credibility by not over-exaggerating his straightlaced reactions to the indignitles Rick heaps upon him.

Mary Stout as Mrs. Waldgrave matches Benjamin in perfect comic timing and delivery. Overwrought from coping with her husband and her bratty son Thor, as well as the ever-obnoxious Rick,

Stout escapes into nirvana by smashing dishes with the small hammer she carries in her hand-

As Thor, young Ian Reed Kesler (who alternates in the role with Sean Patrick Jonaitis) is delightfully impudent, though a bit slow in his timing. Axel pronounces him an ideal "poster child for Planned Parenthood.'

Director David Bell achieves maximum laughs-per-minute right up to the conclusion's surprise twist, which somehow, falls to achieve the impact it should.

Compared to "The Foreigner," Shue's other very successful comedy, "The Nerd" is not as inherently clever and its characters are not as interesting or unique. Logically, then, it shouldn't be as funny, but it is. With "The Foreigner" having just ended a run down the road at the Birmingham Village Players. for the one weekend these plays overlapped Birmingham sported a great "pair of Shues."

The actor is delighted to be working in Hawaii, "It's fabulous. It's just great," he said. His work schedule leaves him plenty of leisure time. which the craziness revolves," he said. "It works on several levels" one of these about people who can't commit to each other (Willum and his girlfriend):

"I am this character," Campbell said of Willum. "I have had trouble committing. I am arnice guy who goes past the point you should. Some people mistake kindness for weakness in me."

Campbell praised the efforts made ! by the Birmingham Theatre, for the actors coming to town. He spoke highly of everything from the theater's dressing rooms to housing facilities provided for the cast.

He also pointed out that the Birmingham Theatre is a treat for the public. "I hope people realize what a jewel they have here and hope they support it.'

Campbell said the show won its time slot almost every week except recently when, 'We got run over by "War and Remembrance."

Stevenson makes final

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

It doesn't figure.

Karen Carney, a 4.0 student, suffered a memory lapse - of all things - Wednesday after host Livonia Stevenson nipped Churchill 1-0 in a Class A soccer district semifinal

Carney, headed to Kalamazoo College on an academic scholarship. can't remember how she scored the game's only goal with just more than 33 minutes left.

All that mattered to Carney is the ball got past Churchill goalkeeper Monia Cervi after a wild scramble in front of the net.

"I don't remember it," she said. "I just kind of worked for the ball and it ended up in the net. I must have been inside the 18 (yard line)."

STEVENSON, 11-3-3, plays Northville in the district final at noon Saturday at Northville. Stevenson and Northville have met twice in the last week, with Stevenson winning one game and the other ending in a tie.

Churchill coach Nick O'Shea would like to forget Carney's goal as well, and he can't help but wonder how the Chargers failed to capitalize on several scoring chances late in the game.

The Chargers (6-5-3), Class A runners-up last year, had a goal by Nikki Johnson nullified with about 5:30 left because of offsides, "or that's what they called, anyway," as O'Shea lamented.

Also in the closing minutes, Lori Place's direct kick from about 25 yards sailed wide of the Stevenson net. With less than two minutes left, Kristy Thurston had a wide-open net to shoot at from about 10 yards out, but she sailed it through the football

In football, that's worth three

"FROM WHERE I was standing it looked like it was easier to make than miss," O'Shea said. "And she missed. Our rushes only came because we pushed them up in the last 10 minutes. It was a pretty good game through and through. They had their chances, we had our chances. Their shot went in, ours didn't."

Stevenson lost to Churchill in the district final last year, so senior midfielder Sharlene Sudek was pleased to return the favor.

"It feels good - for once," said Sudek, who picked up an assist on Carney's goal.

Mary Kay Hussey, the first-year Stevenson coach, praised keeper Alicia Smith and lauded her team's defensive effort in the late-going.

"IT SHOWS we can win some close games - it shows we can win some big games," Hussey said. "I just said to them, 'Work the clock down, and kick it as far as you can.' It got sloppy, but they did a great job of keeping it out."

The loss ends the high school careers of Churchill seniors Andrea Szymanski, Mandy Mase and Kerry Strauch, and also halted the Chargers' streak of three consecutive final-round appearances. Churchill won the title in 1986.

"It's tough on the seniors," O'Shea said. "They've been to the state final three years straight and their senior year they won't be there. They did their best. They all played well."

Bob Foust remembered: 'Gave an honest effort'

O BORROW a thought from Ken Kaestner, the former Livonia Churchill High football coach, "Why do they say the good die young?

"I guess it's not for us to know." Kaestner and many of Bob Foust's family and friends will continue to ask that question. Even a popular song produced a few years back by Billy Joel doesn't seem to shed much

It made no sense that a guy only 23 years old, loved by his peers and highly respected by his coactes and former teammates, was the victim of a drowning accident on May 10 while fishing with a friend on Lake LeAnn near Hillsdale.

Foust may be gone, but he is not forgotten.

Many athletes have come and gone desk during my 11 years at the Observer, but Bob Foust, a Westland firefighter and newlywed, was somebody who will always stick out in my

HE WAS A three-sport athlete at Churchill - football, baseball and basketball — and a good one.

But baseball was his game and I'll always flash back to the time when he cracked a hanging curveball and parked it in the upper deck for a homer during an Adray League All-Star game at Tiger Stadium. It occurred in July of 1986.

Naturally, Foust couldn't hide his excitement during our interview outside the visitors dugout, but first he made sure he gave his mother Katherine a kiss.

His family was just as important That's the type of person he was.

"He was an all-around athlete and an outdoorsman, but in a nutshell, his idol was Bill Gavin (former Michigan State standout) and he wanted to be like him - baseball is what he loved the most," said

Churchill football and baseball coach Herb Osterland.

Osterland recalls that Foust "was the driving force on our '84 championship baseball team."

"BOB WAS THE anchorman, the. spirit of our team," Osterland re-; calls. "He was tough on himself. He never let things get in the way of our. championship run."

Foust fielded his shortstop position adequately at Churchill, but hitting was his forte. He still maintains the highest three-year batting average in school history.

'You don't appreciate what he did' until you look back," said Osterland.

Foust's sandlot manager, Mike-Keller of Walter's Appliance, also. appreciated Foust's loyalty during his time in Adray ball. "He worked hard for what he, achieved and he always reached down to give more," said Keller, who is dedicating his summer season to Foust in the Livonia Collegiate; League. "He was pretty consistentand you could always count on him to be there. He was one of the most' dependable I had in summer baseball. He gave it his best shot, day-in . . . and day-out.

"He was a people person, a fearless competitor who was all busi-

Haeger strives for perfection at U-M

By C.J. Risak staff writer

One reason Greg Haeger is so successful is his attitude. He's just plain hard to please.

Forget that he batted .308 this year, as a sophomore, for the Big Ten's regular-season baseball champ, the University of Michigan. Forget that he played in 57 of 60 games, tled for the team lead in doubles (13) and game-winning runs batted in (seven), and tied for second in homers (five).

Even the Wolverines' landing a berth in the NCAA tournament isn't enough. Haeger just isn't satisfied.

"I started the season great, and I ended (the regular season) pretty well, but I wasn't happy with the middle," said Haeger, a Livonia native and Redford Catholic Central graduate.

HE IS HIS own toughest critic. He blamed no one but himself for his mid-season slump.

"I think it was complacency," he said, caused by his fast start. "Maybe I didn't work hard enough."

ment, the Wolverines knew a victory in their opening game would just about wrap up an NCAA berth. A loss and they might finish fourth in the double-elimination tourney, and that could bump them from the NCAA field.

HAEGER MADE sure U-M would make the NCAAs by blasting a tworun homer for his team's first runs in a 7-1 rout of Ohlo State last Thursday. The Wolverines reached the final round of the tournament but lost

U-M is in Fresno, Calif., in the West II Region and will face Pepperdine in their opener at 3:30 p.m. (PDT) Friday. Wichita State is the region's No. 1 seed; host Fresno State is second, and U.M is third. Pepperdine is fourth, Notre Dame is fifth and Portland is sixth.

"I think we have a good chance," This coming from a guy who put said Haeger. "We're not in the most difficult region. There are two teams with outstanding power in Wichita State and Fresno State, but neither has great pitching. If we play to our potential we can win this thing."

Although the Wolverines, who out quickly enough to provide U-M have a 46-14 record, don't have outstanding sluggers, they do have balwith the game-winning RBI in probance. The pitching is solid, the deably the team's most important fense good and the hitting more than Haeger is an example in all three categories. A first baseman, he is outstanding defensively. He set the Big Ten record for putouts in a season last year, and has committed just two errors this season for a .996 fielding average.

HIS 34 RBI was fourth best on the team, and he scored 41 runs. His performance was good enough for him to make third team All-Big Ten. All this from a guy who was signed out of CC as a pitcher. There's no doubt he has the ability to throw - he pitched for U-M's entry in the Adray League last summer. U-M coach Bud Middaugh considered using him on the mound this year, but a solid group of freshmen made the move unnecessary.

"Overall, I just don't have the control to pitch in college," said Haeger. "I can throw hard, I just don't have good control."

Once again, the critic. There's

"I would have liked to bat over .350 this year and hit double figures in home runs. My slump killed that."

And this, on his Big Ten tournament performance (.231, one homer, two RBI): "I was upset with that. I had a couple of good pitches to hit. but I'm basically a first-ball, fastball hitter. Both Ohio State and Iowa threw me sliders or breaking balls Haeger is already a success at one of the top baseball schools in the country - even if he doesn't see it that way.

Panthers grab NSL crown; CC's Hutchinson wins 11th

Redford Union has "threepeated" as Northwest Suburban League baseball champions.

The Panthers clinched their third consecutive NSL crown Tuesday with a wild 8.7 win over visiting Woodhaven in eight innings.

RU's win coupled with Garden City's 4-0 loss Tuesday to Dearborn Edsel Ford gave the Panthers (11-6 overall) the title at 5-3. GC finished the NSL race tied with Woodhaven and Edsel Ford for second at 4-4. Joe Delfgauw, the NSL's most valuable player, drove in the winning run in the last of the eighth on a 423-foot RBI double, scoring Dan Lezotte, who singled. Delfgauw's smash would have been labeled a homer because it cleared the RU fence, but it didn't count as such because his run didn't matter.

"It's the farthest ball I've seen hit," coach Chris Van-

Shane Sennett picked up the win for the Panthers in going the distance, allowing five hits and striking out

The Cougars finished the NSL season at 4.4, one game behind league-champion Redford Union (5-3). Garden City's final regular-season record was 6-12 overall. Jason Cardinal three-hit Garden City in going the distance for the winning team. Nate Hines suffered the loss. In six innings he allowed seven hits and all four Ford runs. Jason Acevedo was 2-for-2 with two RBI for Edsel. No Garden City runner advanced as far as third base.

Garden City now has the unenviable task of playing the state's No. 1-ranked team, Taylor Center, and its star pitcher, Bill Kostich beginning at 1 p.m. Friday in a Class A predistrict game at Center.

REDFORD CC 6, CARLSON 3: Gibralter Carlson pitcher Mike Jordan earned the nickname "Air Jordan" Tuesday - because of Redford Catholic Central's ability to rocket a baseball through the air against him.

CC knocked Jordan out of the game after only three innings, en route to 6-3 non-league triumph over host Carlson. CC left-hander Leo Hutchinson raised his personal record to 11-2, scattering three hits and striking out 12 batters. The Shamrocks are 20-9 overall.

Hutchinson left after five innings with CC ahead 3-0. Keith Bozyk pitched 1% innings of relief before leaving in favor of Hutchinson, who came in to get the game's final out.

CC added two runs in the top of the seventh to take a 5-0 lead, but Carlson scored three off Bozyk in the bottom of the inning before Hutchinson returned.

Paul Pirronello, Pete Elezovic and Hutchinson each collected two hits, with four RBI belonging to Hutchinson.

T.J. Orman and Mike Collins had two hits each for the Raiders and Collins collected two RBI. Jerry Hakala's two-run double highlighted North's fifth-inning rally.

Mike Thomas, who started and gave up eight runs and eight runs in four innings, suffered the loss. Bill Morris and Jim Stoitsiades had two hits apiece for Churchill.

JOHN GLENN 8, NORTHVILLE 4: Jeff Elkins had three hits, including a pair of two-run homers in consecutive innings, leading Westland John Glenn to the 8-4 win Monday at

The win raised Glenn's overall record to 16-5 overall and 11-5 in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Glenn trailed 4-1 after three innings, but Elkins helped tie the score after the four innings with the first of his two homers. His homer in the next frame gave the Rockets a 6-4 lead. Bob Lawrence, the second of three Glenn earned the win in only 11/4 innings of work. Lawrence Schelfer was 2-for-4 at the plate and scored a pair of runs for Glenn.

FRANKLIN 4, FARMINGTON 3: Joe Ransley's two-out, two-run homer in the bottom of the seventh ended things dramatically Monday for host Livonia Franklin. Tad Dennis went the distance and allowed five hits to pick up the win for Franklin, 6-12 overall. HARRISON 13, STEVENSON 0: Craig Murray continued to impress Monday, blanking visiting Livonia Stevenson, 13.0 on a three-hitter. The game, halted after six innings because of the mercy rule, gave Murray his seventh win in eight decisions. Harrison is 17-5 overall, 12.4 in the WLAA. Mike Dalimonte didn't last long in a starting role for Stevenson, leaving after allowing seven runs and six hits in four innings of work. Jason Lichtman had two RBI for Harrison, and Mill Coleman scored three times to lead the Hawks' charge.

Lewis hurls Zebras to league meet crown

Maya Lewis heaved the discus a season-best 123 feet, 5 inches to power the Wayne Memorial girls to their first Wolverine A League meet title in 13 years in competition Tuesday at Wyandotte Roose-

Wayne scored 114 points, finishing ahead of second-place Monroe (101). Rounding out the eight-team field was Wyandotte, third; Trenton, fourth, Belleville, fifth; Lincoln Park, sixth; Southgate, seventh; and Dearborn Fordson, eighth.

But since the Zebras went 5-2 in dual meets, losing to Monroe and Belleville, they had to settle for second place overall for the season.

Lewis, a junior, took one of five firsts garnered by the Zebras. She also took third in the shot put with a toss of 31-11.

"I think we surprised a lot of people, especially Monroe," said Wayne first-year coach Floyd Carter. "It was a great team victory. The field events set the tone."

Other Wayne individual firsts were recorded by Akua Hammons in the 100-yard dash (no time available) and Quinday Cooper in 220 dash (27.0).

The 440 relay team of Cooper, Antoinette Hixon, Shelli Hunstman and Brandy Caincross won in 51.5; while the foursome of Cooper, Hixon, Angie Neumann and Hammons took the 880 relay in 1:51.0.

Bob Foust: 'Gave an honest effort'

"I remember we were losing a doubleheader and Bob had struck out six of eight times," said the sandlot manager. "The last time he struck out, Bob just handed his bat to the umpire. He wasn't trying to show the ump up. It was more out of his own frustration."

But Foust had many more ups than downs as an athlete at Churchill and at Henry Ford Community Col-

As a football player he was a member of the 1983 Churchill football team which upset Farmington Harrison, 13-12. At the time, Harrison was ranked the No. 1 team in the country by USA Today.

Foust, who played defensive back, tailback and flanker, capped his career by rushing for nearly 180 yards in a season-ending victory over city rival Stevenson.

"Bob's mom and dad (Wally) were super people and super supportive," recalls Kaestner. "And Bob was a reflection of that. He was always consistent and did a workmanlike job. He came to practice and did his job.

"He was all boy who became a man. He gave an honest effort and he was well-liked by his teammates."

I remember whispering in Foust's ear, "Does that mean reporters, Without cracking a smile, Foust

It is the fourth straight season the Zebras have gained a piece of the boys crown.

Monroe prevailed in the eightteam field at Wyandotte Roosevelt by scoring 1921/2 points, including 82 out of a possible 84 points in three events - the individual 880 (yards), mile and two mile runs.

With one of Wayne's top sprinters (Carlos Horne) removed from the team by coach Joe Grasley for disciplinary reasons, the shorthanded Zebras settled for second place in the point standings with 1451/2 points.

But Wendell Smith more than picked up the slack for Wayne, capturing the high jump (6-5) and 330yard intermediate hurdles (40.1). He also finished second in the long jump (21-8).

Shawn Wallace added a first in the discus (146-10) and finished second in the shot put (46-10).

CC, Spartans net spots in state meet

By Brad Emons staff writer

Redford Catholic Central repeated Saturday as Class A regional boys tennis champs and did it in convincing style.

The young Shamrocks could not repeat their total domination of last year's meet when they worrall seven flights, but they still won six championships, scoring 26 out of a possible 28 points to earn a return trip to the state finals, June 2-3 in Joining CC at the state meet will be second place finisher Livonia Stevenson, which scored 18 points. North Farmington and Farmington High settled for third and fourth, respectively. See statistical sum-

Although ranked in the top 10 all season long, CC coach Frank Garlicki knows his team is a longshot for the 'A' team crown.

"It's going to be between Okemos and (Birmingham) Brother Rice, but I tend to favor Okemos because they have the top doubles team in the state and they have depth," said Garlicki, whose team is making its ninth straight appearance. "I changed our lineup twice this season, and I feel good about our top three singles and the top two doubles teams. They've been coming along.

"WE'RE RANKED SIXTH right now, and I think we'll end up higher. My guess is fourth."

The Shamrocks miss No. 1 singles champion Steve Campbell, who graduated and now plays for Rice University, but Tony Mikulec has come on and been a force of late.

Mikulec, a senior, had a couple of battles on his hands in both the semifinals and finals. He was also coming off a bout of bronchitis.

He handed Livonia Stevenson's Roland Wolff, the Hungarian native, only his second loss of the season, 7-6, 7-6. Mikulec won the firstset tiebreaker, 9.7 and the secondset tiebreaker, 11-9.

In the finals, Mikulec lost the first set to the speedy left-hander LaMarr Gray of Southfield, 6-7, but rallied to win the final two sets, 7-5

"I played him (Gray) a year or two ago and I just tried to move him from corner to corner, hitting mostly to his backand," said Mikulec, who is considering Yale and Stanford. "In my semifinal match, he (Wolff) was tough. But I went to the prom the night before and it's tough play under those conditions. I had only 45 minutes of sleep."

MIKULEC HAS WON his last five matches, including a victory in the Catholic League finals over Scott Micus of Rice.

"I'd say Tony will be seeded in the top six at the state (meet)," Garlicki said. "He started off this season slowly and had some bad losses, but he's beaten some good players including Sean Bryne (of Okemos) twice. He's also split with Gus Giltner of East Lansing."

The Shamrocks also won Nos. 2 and 3 singles.

CC's Marko Haberkovic handed North Farmington's Tim McMinn only his second loss in 18 matches, 6-0, 6-0, for the No. 2 crown; while sophomore Scott Hazlett took out

Stevenson senior Joel Soper in straight sets at No. 3. But the meet's big upset occurred at No. 4 singles where Farmington's Ed MacDonald took the tile with a three-set victory over Joel Emrich of Stevenson. In the semifinals, MacDonald ousted CC's William Shade, the top seed, 6-4, 6-4. Stevenson coach George Croll, whose team will be making their third trip to the state meet in eight years, was pleased with his team's performance, particularly the play of Emrich, who is 17-6 overall.

"MacDONALD IS A tough kid, he had a good match with Joel," said Croll. "Joel's record is not as impressive as some of the other. kids because he played up most of the year, but his record at No. 4 is not bad."

In doubles, CC's Shawn Matthews and Paul Bozyk breezed past Stevenson's Alan Paterson and Jeff Wiegel in the No. 1 flight.

The No. 2 title went to CC's John Sheridan and Paul Thieme, who ousted Farmington's Mark Vellucci and Mark Mazey.

At No. 3, freshman substitute Chris Mattson teamed up with Jason Tores to give CC a 7-5, 8-2 triumph over Stevenson's Bob Holycross and Scott Ceru.

Livonia Ladywood didn't get a hit off Harper Woods Regina pitcher Denise Nicker until the seventh inning of Monday's Catholic League A-B division softball final, and by then Nicker already had struck out 13 Blazer batters.

In other words, Ladywood was merely delaying the inevitable.

Nicker was in total command, tossing a two-hitter and leading state-ranked Regina to a 4-0 victory over the upstart Blazers at Dearborn's King Boring Field. Senior shortstop Jenny Littlefield had two hits and drove in two runs for the winners.

The win improved Nicker's personal record to 18-2 and it raised Regina's overall mark to 33.7. Ladywood (19-13 overall) played four regular-season games against the Saddlelites, but the Blazers were never outmatched against Nicker until Monday.

THE WIN was the third straight Catholic League crown for Regina, a Class A semifinalist last year.

"This one feels good," Regina coach Diane Laffey said. "It's hard to do three times in a row. Denise threw a no-hitter Friday night (in an

softball

A-B semifinal win over Southgate Aquinas), and I almost thought she was going to come up with another one tonight.

"She's throwing a better rise and curveball. She's worked hard."

Ladywood reached the final by beating Dearborn Divine Child, 6-5 in nine innings Saturday in the semifinal at Boring Field.

After being no-hit for six innings Monday, Ladywood third baseman Jenny Kennedy led off the seventh with a single but was forced out at second on a ground ball hit by Lisa Bielenda. With two outs and Bielenda on first, Kim Supron got the Blazers second hit, sending Bielenda to second with a single, but Nicker got Jomarie Skurtovich to pop out and end the Blazers' agony. Nicker set the side down in order in the second, third and fourth innings, and at one point fanned 10 of 11 batters in the middle innings.

"SHE THREW hard today, the best I've seen her throw all year," Ladywood coach Kim Linenger said. Field.

She was on. When we finally started hitting it was too late. She is a Divislon I pitcher."

Ladywood pitcher Shannon White probably deserved a better fate, as she surrendered only six hits, and gave up single runs in the second, third, fifth and sixth innings,

White retired the side in order in the bottom of the first but got in trouble in the second when Regina opened the scoring on a walk, stolen base and two force outs.

Littlefield, the leadoff batter, gave Regina a 2-0 lead in the third when Ladywood right fielder Julie Wilson misplayed Littlefield's fly ball into a solo home run. Mary Campana tripled with one out in the fourth and scored on a ground out for Regina's third run and Littlefield added an RBI single in the sixth with

"DEFENSIVELY, we broke down and we can't do that against a team like this," Linenger said. "All in all, I'm very pleased to come this far with this group."

The Saddlelites will meet the Public School League champion, yet to be determined, in the Operation Friendship Championship game, at 5 p.m. Tuesday, June 6, at Boring

Northville's Freimund blanks Rockets in league finale, 3-0

Northville, the Western Lakes Activities Association softball runner-up last year, clinched this season's coveted crown Monday by blanking host Westland John Glenn, 3-0.

The Rockets were trying to defend the WLAA title, but fell behind 2-0 after three innings and couldn't get a runner in scoring position against Northville pitching star Amy Freimund.

Glenn, the Lakes Division champion, finished in a four-way tie for second in the WLAA with Plymouth Canton, Livonia Franklin and Walled Lake Central at 12-4, 18-6 overall.

Freimund scattered three hits, walked none and struck out four. Jenny Massey (14-5 overall) pitched in hard luck for Glenn, also allowing three hits, but she walked four and the Rockets committed two errors be-

Northville scored twice in the third on a single, four straight walks. Karen Baird tripled in the sixth for Northville and scored on a Glenn error.

Glenn split a double-header Saturday at Dearborn, winning the nightcap, 13-2. Dearborn won the first game, 7-2.

Tracy Martin, Michelle Myers and Sherrie Kowtko had two hits each to lead Glenn's nine-hit attack in Game 2. Kowtko's two-run homer in the fifth ended the scoring.

Sara Morey pushed her record to 4-0 with the complete game victory. Morey allowed three hits, but

Massey was the losing pitcher in the opener, as Dearborn scored four times in the fourth and added three more in the sixth. Kowtko and Tracy Sylvester collected two hits ech. Massey's RBI single in the third scored Myers, who also had singled, to give Glenn a brief 1-0

FRANKLIN 14, FARMINGTON 2: Livonia Franklin had no trouble beating Farmington Monday, rapping out 15 hits in a 14-2 rout on the road. The game was called after five

Linda Kulesza led the hitting parade with three hits and two RBI. Sandy Hertel, Trish Vasseliou and Leslie Szaflarski had a pair of hits each. Szaflarski and Vasseliou scored three runs each and Hertel crossed the plate twice.

Jenny Mayle earned the win, striking out five, and allowing only one hit - an RBI triple by Farmington's Melissa Tisdale. Lisa Rockafellow, who went four innings, and Lisa Gale,

N. FARMINGTON 14, CHURCHILL 2: Courtney Knapp and Marni Aaronson each hit grand slam homers to lead North Farmington to the convincing win Monday over visiting Livonia Churchill. The mercy rule decided this game after six the WLAA, 9-11 overall.

SC's Bogataj adds class from military

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

Dave Bogataj, the Schoolcraft College men's basketball coach, said Charles Sabra is the kind of guy who "says 'Yes sir, no sir,' all the time, and that's pretty catchy."

No wonder.

Sabra, 24, is a four-year veteran of the U.S. Army, who has signed a national letter-of-intent to attend Schoolcraft.

The 5-foot-10 point guard, a 1982 graduate of Detroit Cody, headlines the latest list of recruits signed by Bogataj. Also joining the Ocelots are 6-6 center Eric Enderle, Jeff Elliott, a 6-3 swingman from Plymouth Salem; and Randy Watters, a 6-4, 205pound forward from Milford Lakeland. Enderle graduated in 1986 from Trenton High and he also is a two-year Army veteran.

IT'S NO surprise Bogataj welcomes Sabra and Enderle into his program, considering the kind of discipline the two are used to following. Last winter the Ocelots weren't disciplined enough in the classroom, losing four players to academic trouble, and finishing with an unimpressive 6-24 record.

Elliott is a 2.8 student who scored an 18 on his ACT test, Bogataj said.

A call Monday to the Sabra residence in Detroit confirmed Bogataj's thoughts about Sabra.

"I listen very well — even when I don't want to," said Sabra, who most recently was stationed in Fort Gordon in Augusta, Ga. "It's (the Army) done quite a bit for my disciplinary action. The more you listen, the better you'll be. If you go out there and do whatever you want instead of what you're told to, you won't be out there too long."

Sabra, and Enderle, who was stationed at Fort Hood in Texas, each have four years of college eligibility remaining.

THE TWO practiced their trade while in the Army, playing against other battalions.

basketball

"There's always that degree of maturity (in an Army veteran) you can see it and it's really going to help us," Bogataj said. "They've seen the world away from home and now they're back and ready to go to school. They know the world out there is rough. That 'Prepare-yourself attitude' is going to help us.

"Charlie just came in one day and said 'Gee, I'd like to try out.' As it turns out, he's quicker than a cat."

Bogataj also is excited about adding Elliott, a first-team All-Observer performer who averaged 20 points, six rebounds and five assists for Salem, the Western Lakes Activities Association champion.

ELLIOTT SHOT 34 percent from 3-point range, 47 percent from the field and 70 percent from the freethrow line.

"He'll be a super ballplayer for us," Bogataj said. "I know he had a couple out-of-state schools, like Wisconsin-Stout talking to him with nothing firm. He wants to come in and prove something. He'll play offguard, small forward for us. I like the idea he's a hard-nosed, tough kid who can shoot the three and bang the boards."

Said Elliott: "Coach Bogataj's one of the main reasons I chose Schoolcraft. Other colleges didn't seem to care much about me and and what I plan to do in the future. I figure I needed some time to work on ball handling (while I'm at Schoolcraft), so I can play point in college."

Meanwhile, Watters was one of the top rebounders in Oakland County, averaging 15 per game.

"He's a good inside man, a No. 4 man with average speed, but a good post-up player," Bogataj said. "We're going to have the cleanest glass in the league. We got hurt so bad on the glass last year."

ICKEREL, Marbel Eye, them what you want, but walleye are still one of the tastiest fish lucking in Michigan waters.

The walleye fishery in Michigan has been up and down over the past 30 years, but is currently on a huge upswing, due mostly to stocking and management programs and better water quality on the southern portions of the Great Lakes.

Last year, the walleye harvest in Michigan exceeded 2 million fish. Walleye moved up to the number two position on the list of the most sought after sport fish in Michigan, second only to perch.

A creel census, conducted annually by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources of more than 70,000 anglers, revealed that anglers caught 9 million fish in Michigan waters last year. Perch were the top catch with 5 million taken, followed by walleye at 2.2 million and trout/ salmon at 700,000. And the news gets even better for walleye anglers.

"WE ESTIMATE that the walleye catch will double over the next three to four years," said John Robertson, Inland lakes in the area that produce walleye' include Belleville Lake in Wayne County and Cass and Kent lakes in Oakland County. Stony-Creek Lake, at Stony Creek Metropark, is also starting to produce results from a five-year walleye stocking program. Park superintendent "Bing" Eberhart stated that walleye catches this past winter were much improved over previous years and expects to see improved results this spring and summer as well.

THE MICHIGAN United Conservation Clubs is asking concerned citizens to contact their state senators over the next several days and urge them to support Legislation (House Bill 4296) to regulate commercial. and residential development of the state's unique coastal sand dunes located along the shorelines of Lake Michigan and Lake Superior.

Under the proposed legislation, the DNR would have two years to design permanent land use standards governing development projects on approximately 60,000 acres of dunes.

In the last three years, MUCC has gathered more than 80,000 voter signatures and more than 8,000 letters to legislators in support of the sand dunes protection bill. In addition, a recent statewide survey of MUCC members revealed that 93-percent supported legislative efforts to enact a measure protecting coastal sand dunes from overdevelopment.

Head by Gordon Newton still has recognizable features. Later in the chronology of the heads, the features become more distorted or disappear altogether.

Heads show Newton's skill

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

Detroiter Gordon Newton's portraits, "Love, Life, Geometric Heritage," at Susanne Hilberry Gallery through June 10, leave strange after-

They may resurface and come clearly into view in a restless moment in the middle of the night, over coffee the next morning or while talking to a friend on a street

The staying power of these works is something to be reckoned with and certainly not anticipated when one walks into the gallery and sees 67 heads, each about 17-by-14 inches, in a single row along the gallery walls.

Hilberry put these works on paper in chronological order and that adds interest as well. The faces go from more to less complex works of art as the artist refines and simplifies his approach. Newton works with two fundamental geometric shapes circle/oval for face and cylinder for the neck. He has used a variety of media, from oil, pastel, car paint to collage, and covered his completed work with many layers of polyurethane varnish and resin to achieve a glossy, well-sealed finish suggesting that of an old oil painting. Because of the finish, these works can be treated almost like oil paintings, but Hilberry said the perfect style of frame has yet to be found.

Newton's quick, bold strokes of black and colors, his suggestions of features, rather than careful delineation, and his slashing style, give the works a compelling immediacy - as if each had just been done a moment before in a fit of anger, excitement or wild inspiration.

In the progression, one eye and eventually the other fall away, an ear grows larger and necks more cylindrical. To his credit, Newton has an appreciation for a lot of great artists Braque, Roualt and Dubuffet come to mind. But, upon study, and these definitely call for that, the works and their creator steadily take on a stronger and stronger individual spirit.

Newton studied at the then-Detroit Society of Arts and Crafts and Wayne State University. He was born in Detroit in 1948 and still lives

His Marine Light Studies are on display at Joy Emery Gallery of Grosse Pointe through Saturday. This kind of joint showing between two widely respected commercial galleries may not be unique, but it is a bit unusual and is done in a warm spirit of cooperation.

Susanne Hilberry Gallery, 555 S. Woodward, Birmingham is open 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday.

Focusing on faces

By James Radebaugh staff writer

Royal Oak-bred photographer Nicholas Nixon issued a challenge of intimacy to an audience that came to hear him speak at the Detroit Institute of Arts last week.

"I'm not the kind of artist who gives speeches." the 42-year-old photographer said during a slide show of his work, his arms wrapped around the lectern in a near bear hug. "So if you want to know anything, you'll have to ask questions."

Fortunately, the audience wasn't shy, and Nixon, a youthful man with a neatly trimmed beard and wire-framed glasses, was able to address inquiries about almost all aspects, from the technical to the ethical, of a career that began in 1969 when he left the University of Michigan with a degree in English literature.

What emerged was an improvised explanation of an evolving career.

Parting ways with most other photographers in the early 1970s, Nixon adopted a bulky large-view camera that allowed him to shoot 8- by 10-inch film. Such film, huge compared to conventional 36 millimeter film, allows for greater clarity in printing. For his subjects, Nixon chose buildings and landscapes.

Over the years, Nixon remained loyal to the bulky camera and to black and white film, which he insists is more engaging than color. What has changed is his subjects. His later photographs are almost exclusively of people, and more recently, of people's faces.

"The work took me there," said Nixon, who now teaches at the Massachusetts College of Art in Boston.

The shift began in the late 1970s with a series of photographs he took of people on their front porches. He found his subjects in both rural and urban settings and captured them in the act of living, unposed.

'I'm a recognizer, not an inventor," he said as he operated the slide projector.

His approach to human subjects became more intimate with a later series of photographs he took in a Massachusetts nursing home where he has done volunteer work. In one photograph, an elderly man casts a woeful look at the camera.

Nixon said the man was telling him "with his eyes" that he would

The photographer continued his exploration of people facing imminent death with a series on people with AIDS. He photographed several AIDS patients from shortly after their diagnosis right up to within hours of their deaths.

In the process he came to know his subjects well and he easily recounted details of each one's circumstances. The only information he didn't volunteer was how each who was also a liar."

Weary of such emotional work, Nixon said his next project will involve attaching a camera to a bicycle that he will ride everywhere he goes for a couple of weeks. He said he doesn't know what will come of it, but that he thinks it will be fun.

Nixon's photographs will be on display at the Detroit Institute of Arts through July 2. The museum is open from 9:30 a.m to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday.

Artists interpret the urban experience

"Urbanology" is the theme of a multiple site, multi-media exhibit of juried works by artists from across the country taking place this month and next in the Detroit area. All of the 98 artists from the Midwest, California, New York and Canada address urban issues and experiences.

The exhibition will be documented in a 112-page catalog with 43 color and 40 black-and-white Illustrations, essays and exhibitor's data. Urbanology will be the subject of a symposium scheduled for June 15-17. For information, call Rose E. DeSloover or Doug Aikenhead, co-directors, 862-

As historical fairs go, it's hard to beat the one the Livonia Historical Society has every year.

For one thing, the location is hard to match - 100 or so acres of trees. flowers and historic buildings that recall a bygone era at every turn.

Then there's the lineup of events itself. The society prides itself on the fact that it has never swerved from the historic theme for which the fair was organized a decade or two ago. In those days it was held at what was once the city of Livonia's historically designated site, a small parcel of land called Quaker Acres, on Seven Mile Road.

But since 1976, when the city acquired Greenmead, the 100-acre farm at Newburgh and Eight Mile, the fair has flourished and expanded.

ALL THIS AND more is scheduled to happen once again at the Heritage Fair scheduled from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Greenmead. With the same historic flavor that has prevailed in the past, the events will be highlighted with an old-fashioned baseball game played according to mid-1850 rules. The game will feature the Ohio Village Muffins from Columbus pitted against the Greenmead Gophers.

The game will start at 1 p.m. Other events will include traditional crafts, plant sale, country sale, bake sale, flea market, favorite fair foods and a quilt raffle. The traditional Civil War encampment also will take on the grounds, and visitors will be able to visit the camp inhabitants.

A new addition will be Dominio's petting farm and special games for youngsters.

Hill House Museum also will be open for tours. Parking is in the meadow parking lot accessible from Newburgh. Shuttle bus service will be provided to and from the parking location.

And one more old-fashioned touch - the whole thing is free.

Scallop edge shadows form a dramatic pattern on the stone floor of Belver Castle in Spain. Monte Nagler waited for the sun to move into the exact position to provide the effect he want-

Make shadows work for you

Shadows can be so pronounced that they can be the main subject in your viewfinder and reward you with many exciting and different

Where can you look for shadows? Begin with people. Shadows cast by people can be light and playful such as a child playing on a sunlit sidewalk or ominous and threatening such as a figure in a forbidding doorway.

People's shadows are anonymous and, when captured on film, can lend a feeling of mystery to your photo. Try using your imagination, too, by shooting some self-portraits using only your

Nature is another area to look for shadow subjects. Early morning or late afternoon sunlight will cause large, bold shadows in a stand of trees or delicate shadow patterns in a flower bed.

Architectural subjects have shadow possibilities. Sunlight streaming through an opened beamed celling will produce an exciting pattern on the floor. Much of the new construction on major office complexes in the area provides opportunities for shadow pictures.

Light whispering through a slatted fence or paned window will give you dramatic shadow designs to shoot.

Look closely at things such as a sandy beach, a textured log or a bed of rocks for intimate shadow detail. Make sure the time of day is right in order to maximize the shadow detail.

You can even make your own shadows indoors. With a photoflood lamp and props such as a vase, figurine or a household utensil, you can photograph your own shadow creations.

Shadow pictures are most effective when the shadow is contrasted against a light background. If you underexpose your shot slightly (about 1/2 stop), the shadows will deepen.

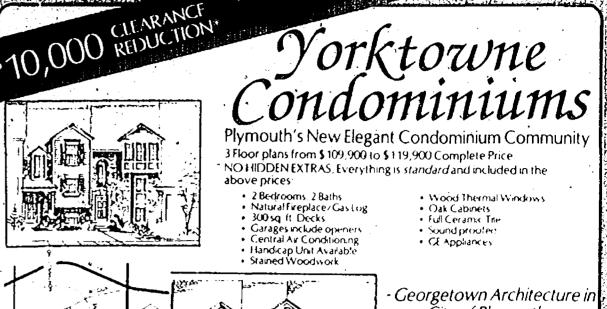

Further, for black and white shooters, if you overdevelop the negatives a little, you'll increase shadow to background contrast, giving greater impact in your picture.

Shadows will add a new dimension to your photography.

Allow for change to achieve goal

ONE side of the fan I carefully placed a stack of folded towels. Against the other side, I leaned a storm window. Building a wall with whatever's handy (junk in the basement), Adam and I labored for hours.

"Here, Dad," Adam chirped, as he hauled some suitcases over to me. Our wall of sundries stretched from the furnace, around the water heater and chimney, over to the laundry tubs. What was all this for? To catch Adam's gerbils.

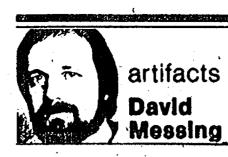

Every once in a while the little hairballs would break out of their habitrail. Much to our surprise, they would always return within an hour or two. But this time they just turned rogue. The two-ounce rebels laid claim to the laundry room and my work room.

After chasing "Thumper" for approximately an hour, he finally came out with his paws up and surrendered; we threw him in the slammer. But "Bumper," now there's one tough gerbil "dude." Our makeshift walls were no problem to this spring-loaded rodent. He even landed on my shoe and then bounded away before I could grab him. We still haven't caught him. But Adam and I are flexible. We're trying new plans every day.

SOMETIMES IN art, our plans for excellence go awry just like the wall Adam and I built. But flexibility is really just creativity. When things don't go right, an experienced artist usually, with little hesitation, just tries something else.

Often that altered route turns out to be a successful journey that will someday be part of a future calculated procedure. One way to allow for a change is to work on a large piece of paper. Many times students are frustrated as their picture drifts too close to one side, top or bottom.

If you're working on just a layout, then simply tape on another piece of paper. There is something threatening, however, about the edge of a piece of paper. We artists tend to distort whatever we are drawing just to keep the whole image on the paper. Always work on large paper so your drawing can grow or so (if you need to) you can add more to the picture later.

ANOTHER WAY to stay flexible is not to limit yourself to the model.

If your rendering varies from the model, ask yourself, "But does it really matter?" If it varies in color, size or detail, it may not be as important as if it varies in structure, proportion or perspective. Of course, certain subjects are much more critical than others. Landscape and still life are usually less restrictive and more open to creative expression.

When rendering animals, you enter a more critical stage as you are restricted by the physical requirements of the animal. At the top of the critical list is rendering people. If your model has eyes that slant downward and you (the artist) slant the eyes upward, then a features likeness has been sacrificed. And everyone's subvocal critique will be. "Something in the eyes is just not

So be especially careful in the subject that you pick. One less restrictive way to draw humans is not to try for likeness, just try for human proportions. Then as an occasional likeness happens, you will gain confidence in your ability.

David Messing has been an art teacher in the area for more than 10 years. He is also the owner of the Art Store & More in Livonia.
