Measles outbreak spreads to Westland

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

The Wayne County measles outbreak spread to Westland this week, disrupting graduation and other year-end activities at John Glenn High School.

Some 400-500 John Glenn students could be excluded from school by the end of the week, after a check of health records, district officials said Wednesday. Students who were immunized for measles before the age of 15 months will require new vaccinations.

As of Wednesday morning, one John Glenn student had been diagnosed with a probable case of Rubeola, or "hard" measles, said Dr. Donald Lawrenchuk, Wayne County Health Department medical director.

There were no confirmed cases, but Lawrenchuk said the probable case was "epidemiologically linked" to a previously confirmed case.

John Glenn was the only district school affected as of Wednesday.

Superintendent Dennis O'Neill said Wednesday the diagnosis was made when the student went to the hospital late last week to be treated for bronchitis.

SCHOOL NURSES were to begin checking medical records Wednesday morning, determining which John Glenn students would need treatment before being allowed to return to class or participate in school activities. The exclusion of students susceptible to the virus is "strongly recommended" by the health department, Lawrenchuk said.

However, John Glenn seniors won't be excluded from Saturday's commencement activities at Crisler Arena, Ann Arbor, O'Neill said.

"We're going to send a letter to parents cautioning them to be aware of their (senior) child's medical history and take proper steps if necessary," O'Neill said. "But because this has happened so late in the school year, there's really nothing else we can do."

Sophomores and juniors who require a second vaccination will be excluded from school for 2-14 days, according to school officials. Their parents will also be notified by letter.

"It's probably going to end up depleting the band (at commencement) and having an effect on other activities," O'Neill said.

The letter will ask parents to consult their physicians and suggest students take either a Titer test or a standard immunization shot.

THE TITER test determines if there are a sufficient number of anti bodies present to resist the Rubeola virus. Results are obtained 24-48 hours after it has been adminis-

Virus can be serious

Rubeola measles is a serious virus that is highly contagious, especially among teenagers.

Symptoms include coughing, a runny nose, a skin rash and a fever. The virus may also bring on other illnesses, such as bronchitis.

The Rubeola virus can cause serious complications, birth defects and even death, although these complications develop in only about 1 percent of Rubeola cases.

The strain is spread by a cough or other viruses in the air.

High school age children are among the most susceptible to Rubeola measles because they were born before vaccines were refined and vaccination practices for children varied, according to Dr. Donald Lawrenchuk, Wayne County Health Department medical director.

New school chiefs sought

Five new principals are being sought to fill vacancies in the Livonia Public Schools.

The district includes northern Westland.

The job vacancies, at two high and three elementary schools, have been sparked by retirements and promotions.

Promotions include the advancement of Robert Laundroche, director of secondary education, to assistant superintendent for business, announced by the board of education last week.

The position had been vacant for three years, since James Carlil was promoted from that post to superintendent, said John Rennels, personnel director.

After Carlil was named superintendent, he continued to perform

9-1-1 system starts Friday

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

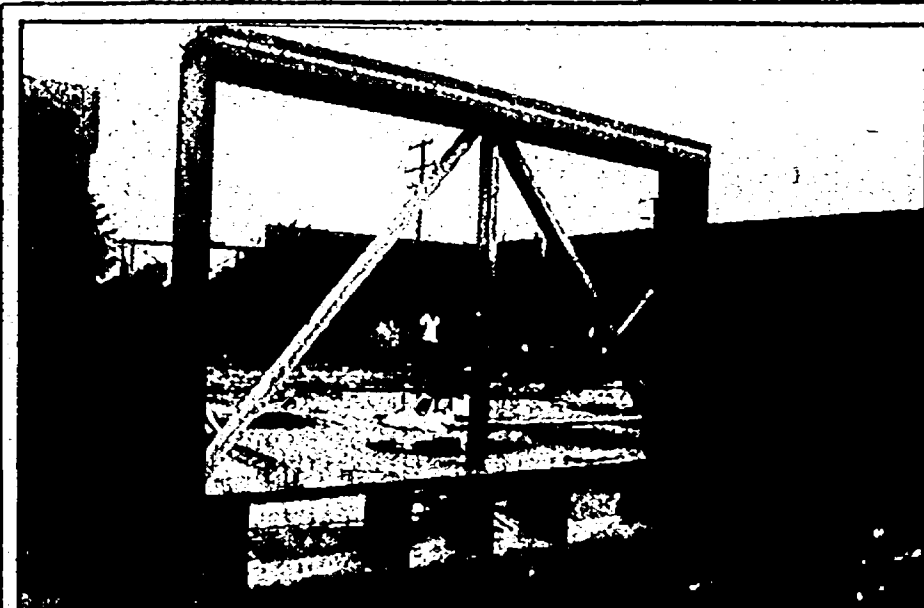

The three-digit call for help — Enhanced 9-1-1 telephone service — goes on line in Westland and throughout western Wayne County Friday.

Westland officials have spent the last 2½ years cooperating with Michigan Bell to develop the high-tech emergency system that will be accessible from more than 30,000 telephone lines in the city.

Some 17 communities in western Wayne County will also have the system.

Equipment will be activated by the phone company at 3 a.m. Mayor Charles Griffin, Dearborn Heights Mayor Lyle Van Houton

More police anchor new budget

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

Expanded police and fire departments are the cornerstone of the city's budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1, approved 8-1 by the Westland City Council Monday.

The council supported Mayor Charles Griffin's request for six additional police/fire dispatchers and its own proposal — made during April budget hearings — to hire two police patrol officers.

The budget also calls for hiring an additional building inspector and using about $500,000 in surplus general fund money to pay the entire bill for the city hall renovation and buy 23 mobile computer units for police patrol cars.

Originally, the $400,000 city hall renovation was to be paid for over several years.

The total city tax rate — including police and fire pensions, debt retirement and water/sewer funding — is 12.63 mills, or $12.63 per $1,000 in state equalized valuation. The general fund operating millage rate, recommended by the mayor and set by the city council, is $7.31 per $1,000.

The total millage rate is nearly $1.50 lower than last year's rate.

While the rates are lower than last year, local property tax bills will increase because of rising assessments.

THE NEW BUDGET calls for $24.8 million in general fund revenues and expenditures, 4.6 percent more than the $23.7 million budgeted for the fiscal year ending June 30.

The new public safety positions will be phased in beginning next month. By Sept. 1 there will be 66 patrol officers and nine police/fire dispatchers on duty.

"We're significantly beefing up the public safety in this city and that's what we set out to do with this budget," Griffin said Monday.

"We've made good strides in increasing the health, safety and welfare of residents with the dollars we have available."

The only opposition to the budget came from councilman Charles Pickering, who said the city failed to address the "public safety manpower issue."

"Spending $500,000 on computers and city hall could have waited," Pickering said. "The money should have been used to create additional manpower first, so we wouldn't have to deal with things like closing fire stations."

The city has regularly closed for 24-hour periods one of four fire stations, on a rotating basis, since April 1988 to meet a contract requirement with the Westland Firefighters Association.

The budget includes one new program, a pilot summer recreation program at four city parks.

THE SEVEN-WEEK program, proposed by Griffin, will be run by the city's parks and recreation department at a cost of $15,140.

The program will run July 10-Aug. 18 in Central City, Stottlemeyer, Corrado and Jaycee Parks. It will offer six hours of recreational activities for school-aged children Monday through Friday and will include special field trips and arts and crafts projects.

One supervisor will be hired on a part-time basis and two play leaders will run activities in each park.

Griffin said earlier that the recreation program will add to the "quality of life" for residents.

Light election turnout expected

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

A light turnout is expected Monday when Wayne-Westland Community Schools voters will fill two school board seats.

Eleanor Harrington, district elections clerk, said Monday she expected 3-5 percent of the district's 78,000 registered voters will cast ballots. "It looks like the same as last year, no big changes," she said.

A record low turnout of less than 3 percent made it to the polls in June 1988.

Harrington said the district had mailed 325 absentee ballots as of Monday, about the same as last year, she said.

Absentee voters have until 4 p.m.

election day to turn in their ballots.

Precincts, housed in 24 elementary schools, will be open to voters from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Persons in line at 8 p.m. will be allowed to vote.

Voters will choose two candidates from a field of five.

CHALLENGERS ARE Jesse Barkett, the Rev. Larry Hines and John Schannault.

Barkett, of Inkster, is a social worker with Youth Living and mother of two. She has a bachelor's degree from Madonna College and is working on a master's degree in social work at Wayne State University.

Barnhill lives in Westland and is president of Mini-Kool Inc., a regional rental company that specializes in small refrigerators for college students. He was elected to a four-year school board term in 1985. Hines is an air cargo service agent for Northwest Airlines and assistant pastor at the People's Community Baptist Church. The Westland resident has a bachelor's degree from Morehouse College in Atlanta, Ga., and a master's degree from Garrett Evangelical Seminary. He was an unsuccessful school board candidate in 1987.

Schannault is employed as a mechanic for Leaseaway Transportation and a sales representative for Real Estate One. He was a school and Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara will throw a ceremonial switch 9:11 a.m. at the Dearborn Heights city hall.

"An accomplishment like this is something you can put your hands on and touch and say we really have been able to do something that matters in people's lives," Griffin said Monday during a demonstration of the system in the police department's dispatch center.

IN WESTLAND, police and fire officials expect to field between 50 and 250 calls each day on the 9-1-1 lines, said Joseph Benyo, project coordinator.

The Enhanced 9-1-1 telephone system is designed to improve emergency response time and eliminate confusion over which department should respond to an emergency call.

Under the system, the address and telephone number from which a 9-1-1 call is placed is automatically displayed on dispatchers' computer terminals.

That information will solve a major problem faced by emergency teams — getting an accurate location of the call from distressed or incapacitated residents.

The system also helps communities cut down on the number of trunk calls, since the location of the call is displayed on the dispatch console.

The 9-1-1 number is strictly an emergency line, said Police Chief Paul Schnarr. Schnarr said the business numbers for police department (722-9600) and fire department (721-2000) will remain unchanged and should be used for all other calls.

"I'M SURE we'll get some non-emergency calls in the beginning," Schnarr said. "People will be told immediately to use the other number."

Schnarr said the dispatcher has the capability of automatically switching a non-emergency call to another line.

Westland will eventually have nine dispatchers to field 9-1-1 calls, Benyo said.

The dispatchers will go through an intensive training period of six to eight weeks that will include classes on the system itself, departmental procedure and monitored, hands-on experience.

Patrol officers will act as supervisors.

"It takes a special kind of person to handle the dispatcher's job," said officer David Rozenbaum, one of the trainers. "You have to be able to do many things at once."

Rozenbaum said "experience and common sense" were the two major assets needed for the job.

THE CITY SPENT $47,851 on computer equipment for the system, Benyo said. The city will also buy a number of new telephones with speed-dialing capability and some additional electrical equipment to bring the total to about $60,000.

A 21-member volunteer 9-1-1 education committee has been distributing information about the system through local schools, businesses and other organizations since April.

The committee will continue its informational programs into the summer, Benyo said.

those duties, Rennels said. "There was some discussion of doing that (filling the post) about a year ago," Rennels said. The board acted last week to name Laundroche to the position.

Filling Laundroche's post as director of secondary education is Kenneth Watson Jr., Franklin High principal, a promotion also announced by the board last week.

Last month, the board of education announced Churchill High principal William MacFarland has been promoted to director of curriculum for the school district, another position left open in recent years following budget cuts.

Laundroche has been a teacher and principal in the Livonia Public Schools, and has served in several administrative positions including director of secondary education from 1986-89.

Watson served as a classroom teacher in the Livonia Public Schools from 1964-71, and as assistant principal at Churchill and Franklin high schools. Before he named principal of Franklin High in 1986, he served as the last Bentley High principal from 1981-85.

board candidate last year and had run for mayor in 1985 and the city council in 1987.

Spisak is the city's deputy mayor. A Westland resident, he was elected to the school board in 1985.

RESIDENTS IN the city's north end will choose two candidates for the Livonia Public Schools board. Incumbents Patricia Sari and Diane "Pat" Tancill are facing challengers Andrew Lendrum and David Cameron, a former board member.

Livonia district voters will also elect four trustees for Schoolcraft Community College.

Candidates for three, six-year terms are Mary Breen, Harry Greenleaf, Jack Kirksey, David Tatman and Lawrence Whitmarsh.

District sued in enrollment case

The Wayne-Westland school district's adult education enrollment dispute won't go away.

In a new development, a Wayne Memorial High School counselor is suing the district for allegedly failing to provide documents related to the defendants in the enrollment case having their legal expenses covered by the district's insurance carrier.

Melvin Straight filed the suit as a private citizen, demanding that the school administration comply with his requests for information under the Michigan Freedom of Information Act.

He is also asking Wayne County Circuit Court that the district pay him $500 in damages and reimburse him for costs incurred in starting the civil suit.

No hearing date has been assigned for the case.

Among the information sought by Straight are copies of union contracts providing for legal defense fees for the defendants in fraud case, cancelled checks and/or bills for their legal fees, and copies of insurance policies which cover the defendants' legal fees.

In answering one of Straight's claims, school board attorney Stewart Slatkin denied that the district received any letter related to the fraud case from the National Union Fire Insurance Co. of Pittsburgh, other than one dated Dec. 9, 1988, which refers to a "correspondence" with Thomas Blacklock, deputy school superintendent.

BUT Dennis O'Neill, school superintendent, insisted there is no letter involving Blacklock and the insurance firm concerning coverage of school district employees.

"If there is a letter, I want to see it," O'Neill said.

Three of four defendants initially charged with falsifying school enrollment records to qualify for more state aid ultimately pleaded no contest to a reduced charge.

A secondary dispute in that case is whether the defendants' legal fees should have been paid for by the district's insurance carrier.

Slatkin is asking the circuit court to enter a judgment of no cause for action and that the case be dismissed and that the district's legal fees and other costs be reimbursed by the plaintiff.

Straight also asked the administration earlier this year for copies of the district's 1988 reimbursement report for the driver education program.

Science center has right formula

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

The former Whittier Junior High library has traded its rows of books for beakers, Bunsen burners, mineral samples and microscopes.

Now the Livonia Public Schools science center, it eventually will house rooms given over to astronomy, geology, and even a room stocked with live tropical birds.

THE SCIENCE center, where elementary students can perform science experiments and get their hands on materials normally unavailable in their traditional classrooms, opened April 11.

Braun — in his characteristic white lab coat — surveyed Brian Dunn's Adams Elementary sixth graders visiting the center on Ann Arbor Trail last week as they performed an experiment to extract and weigh sawdust, salt and other materials pressed together.

Science center teacher Gary Cienluch helped guide two students through the project, conducted with several groups of elementary students since the center opened.

"They like boiling off the water to get the salt," he explained, adding some students were surprised to learn they can determine the weight of the salt by subtracting the weight of the empty beaker from the weight of the beaker containing salt.

"A normal classroom teacher just can't do this," Braun explained, because it takes time away from the teaching of other subjects — up to two hours — just to set up such experiments.

ALONG THE east wall of the main room is a donated collection of stuffed birds including a Baltimore Oriole, eagle, hawk and owls of various sizes.

"This is not going to be a museum, this is a do-it place," Braun explained.

In an opposite corner, different species of dinosaurs are displayed in drawings. Nearby, various combinations of molecules mounted on construction paper also are displayed.

One storage area is nearly filled with boxes of rock and mineral samples to be used in future projects. In another room, small microscopes sit on desk tops, to be used by students examining water samples.

Braun said one benefit of having the science center — unique among area school districts — is it provides free training for elementary classroom teachers who accompany students to half-day sessions at the center.

Traditional teachers, Braun said, learn more about conducting science projects in their own classrooms.

PROJECTS PERFORMED at the center, said Cienluch, tie in to science curriculum goals set by school district planners.

Both Cienluch and Braun stress that activities at the center also boost students' learning in other subject areas, including reading, math and social studies.

Braun is also asking the public for more donated materials — including a stuffed bear and other animals and large aquariums. Interested donors can call Braun at 523-9194, or Cienluch at 523-1684.

A LIVONIA man was injured early Saturday during a fight in the parking lot of Paddy's Pub, 1609 N. Wayne, police reported.

A witness told police he and the victim, 29, were walking toward their car shortly after midnight when they were approached by a group of three or four unidentified men in the parking lot.

One of the men "sucker punched" his friend in the face and knocked him to the ground, the witness said.

The witness said he helped his friend to his feet and started to chase the other men, but they fled in an unidentified vehicle.

The victim received bruises on his face, lips and eyes, police said.

POLICE arrested a 27-year-old Ypsilanti man Friday afternoon when he allegedly tried to have a forged prescription filled at Richardson's Pharmacy, 37376 Glenwood.

Officers were called to the store at 2:26 p.m. by a pharmacist.

The pharmacist said the man came in with a prescription for Vicodin, a pain-killing narcotic.

The pharmacist told police he called a doctor in Maybee, Mich., to verify the prescription, but a doctor's office employee told him the doctor had been out of town for nearly a month.

Police questioned the customer, who first said the prescription was for his sister, then said it was for a sister-in-law.

Retiring council member Wagner grew with his city

By LeAnne Rogers
staff writer

It was garbage that first got Robert Wagner involved in Westland city government, beginning a 22-year relationship that will end this month.

"There were a lot of complaints about the garbage collection," said Wagner, Westland purchasing agent and a former city councilman. The problem was so bad, he said, that he and residents took their complaints to the city council.

Later that year, 1967, Wagner decided to run for council and was elected to his first term, defeating long-time councilman Bill Anderson. Wagner eventually served 16 years on the council, including two years as council president.

"I ran as a Republican and it was the first time a Republican had been elected (in the community) since 1954," Wagner said. He was defeated in a re-election bid but returned to council in 1971 after a non-partisan ballot was established.

On reflecting on his council career, Wagner said:

"There are some votes I wish I had back. We all have that but its water over the bridge. My biggest disappointment is that we didn't get the city paved in 1971-72."

At that time, Wagner said the city would have been able to get paving, curbs and gutters for half what a simple asphalt covering costs today.

AMONG HIS best memories are obtaining rear yard trash collection for handicapped and senior citizens and the opening of the Friendship Center for retirees.

"I wouldn't trade my years on council for anything," he said. "They were the most rewarding of my life. It was helping people help themselves."

Being able to assist citizens always gave him a good feeling, Wagner said.

After retiring as a Ford Motor Co. design coordinator in 1983, Wagner became director of the city's department on aging. He has served as city purchasing agent since April 1988.

"I really didn't want to leave the seniors but I've enjoyed it," he said. "Its something different every day."

A 43-year area resident, Wagner said he Nankin Township was a "sleepy" farm community when he first arrived.

"I used to hunt squirrels at Ann Arbor Trail and Merriman," he said. "I've really seen the city grow and prosper."

While he believes Westland should treat business and industry fairly, Wagner said the city needs to be careful about preserving open spaces and its wooded areas.

Over the years, Wagner has been active in organizations such as the Jaycees, Rotary, Kiwanis, Wayne-Westland Civic Theatre and the Civil Air Patrol. With impending retirement and relocation to Arizona, he said he would miss local friends and co-workers.

"I'm going to miss Westland but I'm sure they will get along without me," Wagner said. "I hope that I added to it and made it a better place than when I came."

A retirement party in Wagner's honor has been scheduled for 6-10 p.m., Tuesday, June 27, at the Friendship Center. Tickets are $15, including dinner, beer, wine and a gift. Tickets are available by calling the mayor's office at 487-3200.

Ploughing through paperwork, Westland purchasing agent Robert Wagner is preparing for his retirement later this month. He and his wife Bobbie plan to move to Arizona in September.

Man faces life term in student shooting

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

A 19-year-old Redford Township man faces up to life in prison for the Feb. 18 shooting of a Livonia Churchill High student.

Clint Allen Smith of Winston Street will be sentenced at 11:30 a.m. today by Judge Robert Evans in Detroit Recorder's Court.

On April 11, Smith, a former student at Lawrence Technological University in Southfield, pleaded guilty to shooting Shannon James, 16. James was shot in the head as she stood near a bedroom window inside her home on Grennada Street, Livonia.

A .22-caliber bullet still is lodged in her brain.

ALONG WITH two other teenagers implicated in the shooting, Smith had been charged with assault with intent to commit murder and possession of a firearm in the commission of a felony.

After the shooting, Smith confessed to police that he shot James after drinking five beers and smoking marijuana.

The confessions of the two other teens, Lawrence Dennis Kapp, 17, of West Bloomfield Township and a cousin to Smith, and Christopher Robert Burow, 18, of Plymouth Township, also said Smith fired the gun.

Livonia Police Sgt. Larry Tilford said that, at a hearing held to determine the validity of Smith's confession, his confession to police was found to be valid.

Kapp, a student at Plymouth Canton High, and Burow, a former student at the same school, face a hearing June 14 in Recorder's Court. At the hearing, a trial date will be set for the two.

On May 31 in a court appearance before Judge Leonard Townsend, both pleaded not guilty to the two charges.

Neither have posted a $500,000 cash or surety bond set in Livonia's 16th District Court; both are in the Wayne County Jail.

TILFORD SAID James, the daughter of Lt. Dennis James of the Livonia Fire Department, still is cooperating on the bullet wound.

"She was in school for a time but is not now. The wound hasn't affected her mental faculties but she is fearful at times."

In their signed confessions to police, Kapp and Burow also implicated themselves in the shooting.

Burow, who is being tried as an adult under a new state law, said he drove the car to the James' house. Kapp said he lit some firecrackers after the shooting to hide the sound of gunfire.

In their confessions, made to police after their arrests, the three said they decided to shoot James because they believed she wanted to kill Kapp and Burow.

"Larry, Clint and I decided to shoot her," Burow reportedly said.

In his confession, Smith said he volunteered to shoot James.

In his confession, Kapp said he was "messed up on pot."

Doctors said that removing the bullet, buried 2½ inches in James' brain, would be too risky and that she might always have to live with it.

David Clevinger of Redford takes a ride along Hines Drive in preparation for a 150-mile bike tour, which officials hope will raise $260,000 for the Michigan Chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society.

Hit the road MS bike tour is read to roll

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

About 1,000 bicyclists, including many from Wayne and Oakland counties, will ride for those who can't next weekend in the Michigan MS 150 bike tour.

Though the tour is just in its fourth year, officials for the Michigan chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society are hoping to raise $260,000, which will make it the group's most successful fund-raiser ever.

"I heard about the tour last year through the bike shop where I bought my bike," said David Clevinger of Redford Township, who got the word from Bob's Cycle Shop in Redford. And a good word it was.

"I enjoyed it so much, as long as I'm capable I'll probably do it every year from now on," said Clevinger, 25, a real estate salesman for Century 21 Nada Inc. in Farmington Hills.

Clevinger raised nearly $1,000 in pledges last year and is shooting for $2,000 this year, including a commitment of $1,000 from one pledger, alone.

THE MS TOUR, which involves 150 miles of riding split over two days (June 17, and 18), works this way: Riders pay an entry fee of $28 and must raise a minimum of $150 in pledges. Some riders leave from Schoolcraft College in Livonia and head west via scenic, low-traveled secondary roads; others start in Grand Rapids and head east, with a rendezvous Saturday in Lansing.

The next day, the combined group heads down to Jackson.

In return for their fees and pledges, the tourists are treated in a manner befitting kings of the road. Food is abundant, with water, juices, fruit and other snacks every 12-15 miles. A smorgasbord dinner and dormitory accommodations are provided in East Lansing.

Sunday, a party awaits finishers in Ella Sharp Park in Jackson, with buses and trucks provided to return participants home. For information on entering or pledging, call 350-0020.

"The thing you have to realize is it isn't a race," said Clevinger, who this year will be accompanied by his wife, Pam. "You have to do it at your own pace and enjoy yourself. The thing that amazes you are the kids out there on the BMXes. That's a long way to go on a BMX."

THE TOUR RAISED $55,000 its first year. Last year, 475 riders raised $185,000; with 1,000 riders this year, the goal of $260,000 should be met easily.

Pledgers are rewarded by more than just a sense of satisfaction — a generous prize structure for participants includes a trip for two to Hawaii for the top fund-raiser, and a cellular phone for the runner-up.

Last year, Dick McQuade of Plymouth, was the top fund-raiser with $8,900 in pledges. Other prizes, depending on amounts raised, include telephones, clock radios, luggage, disc players, 10-speed bikes and VCRs.

Voters to elect 4 SC trustees

Two challengers seek to upset incumbent Schoolcraft College trustees in the race for three six-year seats on the college board while six candidates are vying for a single four-year term on the board.

Voters in the Livonia, Clarenceville, Plymouth-Canton and Garden City school districts will have an opportunity to cast ballots for Schoolcraft trustees at Monday's annual school election.

Challengers David Tatman and Lawrence Whitmarsh seek six-year terms. To get one, however, they will have to unseat board chairwoman Mary Breen or incumbents Harry Greenleaf or Jack Kirksey.

Ronaele Bowman, Thomas Davis, Richard Hayward, Thaddeus McCotter, Patricia Sacha, and M. Andrea Taylor are running for a four-year term. The name of Jeffrey Theodore, a Canton Township resident and an assistant prosecuting attorney with the Wayne County Prosecutor's office, will also appear on the ballot but he has withdrawn from the race.

CANDIDATES RUNNING for the three six-year terms are:

• Mary Breen, 55, lives in Plymouth Township. A retiree, she taught in the Wayne-Westland and Dearborn schools and was assistant principal of Livonia Stevenson High School. She was first elected to the board in 1983 and was leading vote-getter in that year's race. Breen holds a bachelor's degree in business education from Wayne State University and a master's degree in administration from Eastern Michigan.

• Harry Greenleaf, 52, is a Livonia resident. He was first elected to the board in 1977 and is currently board vice chairman. He is a management supervisor with Ford Motor Co., Dearborn. A member of Michigan Republican state committee, he is also active in local party activities. He is also active in Newburg United Methodist Church and has taught at Henry Ford Community College, Dearborn. Greenleaf holds a bachelor's in engineering and management from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N.Y.

• Jack Kirksey, 60, lives in Livonia. He was appointed to the board in January 1988. He is director of community education for Livonia Public Schools. A state House member from 1977-84, he was also a 1987 Livonia mayoral candidate. He serves on the board of directors of Livonia Chamber of Commerce, Livonia Family Y, Michigan Human Services and Schoolcraft College Foundation and is a lieutenant colonel in the U.S. Air Force reserves. Kirksey holds bachelor's, master's and education specialist degrees from Wayne State University.

• David Tatman, 31, is a Plymouth resident. He is a superintendent with GM Hydra-Matic, Ypsilanti. He is active with Washtenaw United Way, the Boy Scouts of America, Washtenaw Council, and First United Methodist Church of Plymouth. Tatman holds a master's in business administration from the University of Michigan and a bachelor's in industrial and systems engineering from Ohio State University.

• Lawrence Whitmarsh, 42, lives in Livonia. He is an engineering manager with GM Hydra-Matic, Ypsilanti. He is a member of Schoolcraft's quality management advisory committee and is active with PTA, Boy Scout activities and is a past deacon at Ward Presbyterian Church, Livonia. Whitmarsh holds a bachelor's in business from Madonna College, Livonia and earned 62 credit hours at Schoolcraft. He is enrolled in the master's of business administration program at Central Michigan University.

CANDIDATES SEEKING a four-year term are:

• Ronaele Bowman — Bowman, 47, is a Livonia resident. She trains youth assistance volunteers for the Michigan Training and Resource Center, Northville. Her community activities include Livonia Youth Assistance, Friends of the Homeless and Homes for Black Children, where she serves on the board of directors. She holds a bachelor's in liberal arts, with a major in sociology, from Marquette University, Milwaukee. Bowman's unusual first name is Eleanor, spelled backward.

• Thomas Davis — Davis, 50, lives in Northville Township. He is a Ford Motor Co. finance supervisor and was a member of the Livonia Schools board of education from 1974-78. He holds a bachelor's in finance from the University of Detroit. Davis has coordinated several area campaigns, including Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara's last two Livonia mayoral campaigns.

• Richard Hayward — Hayward, 60, is a Livonia resident. A self-employed steel industry consultant, he served on the Schoolcraft board from 1978-81. He is a member of the Livonia Economic Development Corporation, Madonna College Business Advisory Council and has

Medical group opposes 2 incinerator ash bills

The American Lung Association of Michigan is urging Gov. James J. Blanchard to veto the recently passed incinerator ash legislation, House Bills 4304 and 4311.

"With a veto you can make the landmark decision signaling a commitment that public policy regulating incineration must protect health and environment," said Merrill Clark, chairwoman of the association's environmental and occupational health committee.

The state Senate passed the bills last Thursday and House concurrence came the same day. Blanchard has until about June 12 to either sign the bills or veto them.

In a letter to Blanchard on May 30, the lung association expressed concern about the legislation's effect of terminating the applicability of certain occupational health regulations for exposed workers and its failure to require effective toxic fugitive dust controls on ash landfills.

"Michigan's current dust controls on gravel roads and non-toxic material piles in certain urban areas are much more strict than toxic dust controls for ash landfills under HB 4311," said Clark.

"HB 4304 eliminates the designation of incinerator ash as a hazardous waste and terminates the applicability of waste-related occupational health regulations," said Clark.

Sober thoughts

New attitudes curbing party rowdyism

By LeAnne Rogers
 staff writer
 A few years ago, high school graduations would have police officers gearing up to deal with out-of-control parties and open houses.
 But local police departments report that the large parties, which caused some communities to pass regulating ordinances, are becoming less of a problem.
 "Over the last three or four years it's not been so bad," said Westland Executive Lt. Michael Frayer.
 "Attitudes about drinking have changed," he said. "The liability and penalties for drunk driving have increased."
 In Garden City, graduation parties have been "relatively well maintained," according to Lead Commander Roger Wilkes.

PARTY-RELATED PROBLEMS can range from loud noise or music to rowdiness and drinking, according to police.
 "We definitely don't recommend supplying alcohol to underage kids," Frayer said. "If they do drink, the homeowner needs to control it so the kids aren't driving and going off into the neighborhoods. They need to get them home safely."
 Open houses have been particular problems in the past, Frayer said, by their very nature since invitations aren't controlled.
 "Kids stop in at a fast food place and hear someone is having a party," he said. "Word gets out and you can 200-300 kids showing up, invited and uninvited."
 That kind of crowd can't be controlled, he said, with party hosts sometimes calling police to disperse the guests.
 "If they are having a party, they definitely need to control the number of people," Frayer said.
 Sometimes teenagers hold the parties when the parents are gone, Frayer said, but usually parents are aware of the party and are often present.

A PROBLEM related to house parties has been alcohol consumption and driving by teenagers. State law holds homeowners responsible for minors who consume alcohol on their property, according to Wilkes.
 "The homeowner could be held responsible (in a civil complaint) if a kid leaves their house drunk and something happens," he said.
 "Depending on what happens, the homeowner might also face criminal charges."

DRUG- AND alcohol-free all-night graduation parties held at the high schools cut down on party-related problems, Frayer and Wilkes agreed.
 "I think the sponsored all-night parties help. They are contained and controlled," Wilkes said. "It keeps kids off the street and keeps them occupied."

Police offer tips for parties

Knowing your limitations and using some common sense are among the suggestions to parents holding parties for teenagers, according to local law enforcement officials.

Police recommend parties with a guest list controlled by invitation, not an open house.
 "An open house creates so many problems for homeowners, it just isn't worth it," said Garden City Police Lead Commander Roger Wilkes. "They don't know how many kids are coming and maybe they are exaggerating how many kids they can control."
 With all the problems attendant to open houses or other large parties such as noise, litter, disturbing neighbors, Westland police Lt. Michael Frayer says the events "just aren't worth it."

BOTH OFFICERS urged party hosts not to permit alcohol or drug consumption by teenagers.
 "If the kids are drinking, the host needs to be in control so that there aren't problems with them driving and going off into the neighborhood," Frayer said.
 The Police Officers Association of Michigan (POAM) has published a brochure with tips for parents including:
 • Limit attendance and hours.
 • Parents should be visible and aware at the party.
 • Party crashing should not be allowed.
 • Discourage guests from leaving

Garden City parents are planning an all-night party for graduates Tuesday night, June 13, following commencement.

FOR TEENAGERS who drink alcohol to celebrate graduation, Frayer said programs to provide rides, such as the one sponsored by Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD) are beneficial.
 "We also have Project Graduation where the officers talk to students about the possibilities when you drink and drive," Frayer said. "I think that has had some impact."

 Despite active efforts to keep students from drinking and driving, Frayer said accidents like a double fatality two years ago in Westland continue to occur.
 "We had two young people killed and something like this happens in some community every year," he said. "There is always somebody who just doesn't get the message."

and returning, since they may use drugs or alcohol while they are gone.
 POAM also offers guidelines for parents of teenagers who are attending parties:
 • Know where your teen is, including an address and telephone number.
 • Make sure a parent will be present at the party and offer to chaperone.
 • Make sure alcohol and other drugs will be prohibited.
 • Know how your teenager will get to and from the party.
 • Teenagers should be urged not to drive with someone who has been drinking, and to call home for a ride if necessary.

Bennett wants to ban cow growth hormones

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

State Rep. John Bennett, D-Redford, is afraid that the use by the dairy industry of growth hormone in cattle will bring new meaning to the slogan that milk helps build strong bodies.

Afraid that such hormones may work their way into cows' milk and pose a danger to children, Bennett, whose district includes Redford and part of Livonia, said he will introduce a bill in the state legislature banning such hormones in Michigan cattle.

The use of the hormone in dairy cattle — which the drug companies that produce the hormone say increases a cow's milk production by as much as 40 percent — is expected to be approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration late this year or early next year. The FDA already has approved the sale of milk from cows being tested with the hormone, whose scientific name is bovine somatotropin.

BENNETT SAID if one of the state representatives from a farming community doesn't introduce legislation by next fall banning the hormones in Michigan, he will.

"We have the most chemically polluted food chain in the world. It'll take Congress 25 years to clean up the mess," said Bennett. "European countries won't accept our meat because of hormones and antibiotics."

In a letter he wrote to fellow legislators, Bennett said: "What will milk laced with growth hormones do to our children and grandchildren?"

Bennett said he will also introduce legislation requiring fruit and produce growers to label their crops with a list of pesticides, sprays and waxes they treat them with.

DRUG COMPANIES, who spent $100 million to develop the hormone and who predict $500 million in annual sales, say the hormone does not get into the cows' milk. They say that the trace levels of growth hormone that are found in milk are naturally produced by cows and appear in the same levels in cows whether or not they have been injected with additional levels of hormone.

Both the FDA and the U.S. Department of Agriculture have said the use of the hormone is safe for humans. The testing underway by drug companies is to determine if there are any side effects to the cows injected with hormones.

— State Rep. John Bennett

Sweden has banned the use of bovine growth hormone and Wisconsin, the nation's largest dairy state, has introduced two bills — one to ban the hormone and the other to require labeling on milk produced by cows injected with it.

The hormone is being marketed by U.S. drug companies in the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia and has been approved though is not yet available in South Africa.

The Upjohn Co. in Kalamazoo is one of the drug companies making the hormone. Upjohn is so confident of the hormone's approval that it broke ground more than a year ago on a $21 million production facility in Kalamazoo, which it will complete late next year.

"From a public relations standpoint, we're real comfortable with it. It's a safe product," said Upjohn spokesman Phil Sheridan. He said that although the generic term of growth hormone is used even in the industry, the description is something of a misnomer. Unlike anabolic steroids, bovine somatotropin does not cause growth, he said, but aids the cow's digestive process, which speeds milk production.

The other drug companies testing the hormone are Eli Lilly and Co., Monsanto Co. and American Cyanamid Co.

CRITICS SAY that not only do they fear the growth hormone will make its way into the cow's milk, but that it is economically unnecessary, too.

They point out that the federal government already pays billions of dollars a year to keep dairy farmers afloat in a market swimming with surplus milk.

The market, say the critics, simply doesn't need cows that produce 40 percent more milk.

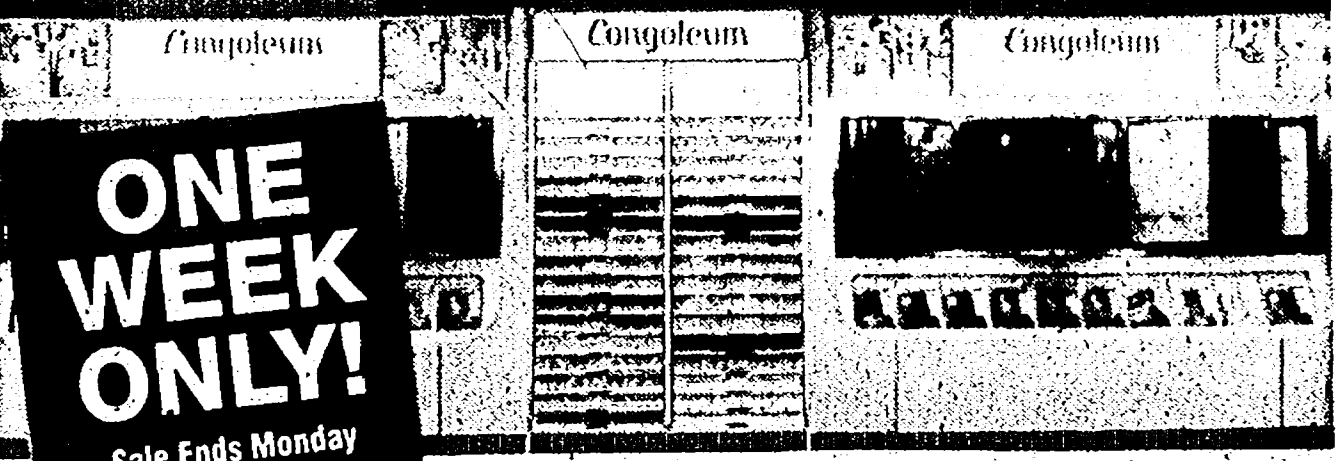

Officials from the drug companies, as well as spokesmen for such industry lobbyists as the Michigan Milk Producers Association, said the use of growth hormone won't result in more milk on the market, but that it will make it more efficient to produce the same amount of milk.

"The bottom line is it doesn't make any difference in production. It's a matter of efficiency," said Gary Trimmer, director of member services for the MMPA. Though he also said such things about the growth hormone as "it has no harmful side effects," and "the composition of the milk is unaffected," Trimmer said his association's position regarding its use "is absolutely neutral."

A study by the University of Wisconsin said that the use of the hormone will have a dramatic effect on supply and demand. The study said that most farmers would benefit initially as output rose, but that Wisconsin dairy farmers would ultimately lose $100 million a year as federal price supports dropped in relation to output.

Trimmer said he fears a consumer backlash similar to what happened with apples over the use of Alar. "Anytime you don't have a natural product, you're going to have an adverse reaction to it," he said.

School finance issue may extend legislative session

By Tim Richard
staff writer

House Speaker Lewis Dodak hasn't given up hope, but things look grim for the so-called "Harden plan" of state school finance reform.

Dodak is threatening to keep the House of Representatives in session all summer, despite extensive renovations that are planned for the State Capitol in Lansing.

The plan, endorsed by Gov. James Blanchard and many business and labor groups, asks voters to raise the state sales tax a penny to 5 percent. In return, they would get $300 million more for public schools, residential property tax relief of $380 million and business property tax relief of $88 million.

"It does not limit future school millage rates or property assessments in any new manner," said freshman Rep. Jan Dolan, R-Farmington Hills, summing up the opposition's view.

THE HARDEN plan fell four votes short of a simple majority, 57 yes and 56 no, last week. Except for a few crossovers, it was supported mainly by majority Democrats.

A two-thirds majority, 73 yes votes, is required in both chambers to put a constitutional amendment before voters.

If that's difficult in the House, it will be even more difficult in the Senate, controlled by Republicans and offering its own $266 million in new school money with no tax hike.

Area lawmakers voted along party lines except for Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, who voted no.

OFFICIALLY, the plan is known as House Joint Resolution I. Chief sponsor is Rep. Willfred Webb, D-Hazel Park, a former school superintendent whose district includes part of Troy.

Cosponsors, all Democrats, are Michael Griffin of Jackson, Ted Wallace of Detroit, Perry Bullard of Ann Arbor and Charlie Harrison of Pontiac.

Here, according to the House Taxation Committee, are the main changes affecting taxpayers:

- A constitutional amendment would be submitted to voters in a special election Sept. 12.

- The sales and use taxes would increase from 4 percent to 5, about halfway through the school fiscal year and one-fourth of the way through the state fiscal year. Electricity and heating fuel would be taxed.

- Homeowners would have the first $5,000 of homestead state equalized valuation ($10,000 market value) exempted from school operating taxes. For an average millage rate of 33.5 mills, the relief would be $168 a year, or about 14 percent. Relief would start with the July 1990 bills.

- Beginning in 1991, the homestead exemption would be indexed to the growth in the school aid fund.

- For business, 16 percent of personal property would be exempt from school operating taxes, leading to a reduction of 5.6 percent business taxes for school operations. The 16 percent would be indexed for growth of the school aid fund.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS would see these changes:

- They would be fully reimbursed for lost revenue. But all existing rate limitations and caps would remain in effect.

- Future reimbursements are indexed to the growth in property valuations.

- Richer districts — those in the upper 10 percent of property values per pupil — will have their state payments for Social Security and pensions reduced by up to 10 percent. This will affect most out-of-formula suburban districts.

- New school money from Lansing will amount to $300 million the first (partial) year and $400 million thereafter.

- They will get $265 million of that in the state aid formula and $135 million in quality-related categorical aid.

THE PLAN is named for Edgar Harden, retired president of North Michigan and Michigan State universities, now a Lansing businessman.

It was put together by a group of business, education, labor and governmental interests — the groups which Blanchard said will be depended on to sell the plan.

Besides Republicans, the plan is opposed by the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce.

Firms vie for county land development

A real-estate firm owned by famed golfer Jack Nicklaus is expected to make a bid Thursday to develop 550 acres of Wayne County-owned land in Northville Township as a golf course community.

The county has set Thursday as the deadline for bids on developing part of the 1,000 acres it owns between Five Mile and Six Mile, east of Beck at the site of the former Child Development Center.

The site, which has not generated tax revenue for years, has been the subject of several proposed projects over the years that never got off the ground, including a state prison and senior-citizen apartments.

The county has set today as the deadline for bids on developing part of the 1,000 acres it owns between Five Mile and Six Mile, east of Beck Road in Northville Township.

Another bid to develop the land as a golf course is expected to be made by a consortium that includes another famous golfer, Lee Trevino.

Nicklaus' firm, Nicklaus/Sierra Development Corp., was founded six years ago and designs exclusive golf communities around the country, with one-acre lots typically selling for up to $800,000.

Nicklaus/Sierra reportedly will propose developing the property with the Farmington-based development firm of Holtzman and Silverman, Southfield-based LoPatin and Co. and Duke Associates, which recently built two office buildings known as Seven Mile Crossing at I-275 and Seven Mile in Livonia.

Trevino's partners reportedly include R.A. DeMattia Co. of Plymouth Township, Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Co. of Farmington Hills and the Selective Group Inc. of Farmington Hills.

According to Dewitt Henry, Wayne County's director of economic and job development, other groups are expected to make proposals to develop the site.

Commission won't argue veto of cash to jail site runner-up

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners decided last Thursday not to try to override County Executive Edward McNamara's veto of a $30,000 consolation prize to the city of Highland Park.

The payment had been voted on by the commission after Hamtramck was chosen, instead of Highland Park, as the site for a new county jail.

A veto requires 10 votes from the 15-member commission. Eleven commissioners were in attendance Thursday.

Commissioner Arthur Blackwell, D-Highland Park, who proposed the consolation payment, moved that McNamara's letter of veto be accepted and filed without further action.

Commission observers speculated that since Blackwell both sought the consolation prize and moved to accept the veto without a fight, his original proposal may have been made knowing it would not come to pass.

"That's very astute," said one commissioner when it was suggested that the proposed consolation prize was never intended to become reality.

In his letter to the board, McNamara said: "The bulk of Wayne County's purchasing is through the bid process and our resources are too limited to allow expenditures to losing bidders, especially when we would receive no tangible goods or services in exchange."

The commission had voted for the consolation prize in April after Ham-tramck was chosen as the site of the new jail.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, the commission voted to adopt an ordinance requiring county jail prisoners or their insurers to pay for medical and dental treatment while in jail.

A similar ordinance is in effect in Oakland County.

Commissioner Milton Mack, D-Wayne, whose district includes Canton Township, said that up to 95 percent of jail inmates are indigent and uncollectible.

But commissioner Bernard Kilpatrick, D-Detroit, responded: "We're going after the other five percent."

Money for care could be deducted from an inmate's in-jail account, if the inmate has one, or billed to the inmate.

School race Spisak, Barnhill top board field

THE WAYNE-Westland school district and board of education have gone through a number of crises in recent years.

They include the ongoing financial crunch, voter approval of a millage increase and a $12.9 million building program, continued student enrollment drop, and fight for more state aid.

As if the board didn't have enough to do, it was forced deal with the community relations and legal issues involving four persons charged with inflating adult education enrollments and the expulsion of junior high school students who had handguns in school.

Many of those problems — finances, upgrading of the buildings and equipment, and student discipline — will continue to plague the school board in years to come.

Because of the need for insight and experience, we urge Wayne-Westland school district voters to re-elect Andrew Spisak and Kenneth Barnhill in next Monday's annual board elections.

They are two of five candidates on the ballot. Voters will fill two four-year terms Monday.

OVER THE years, Spisak and Barnhill have played an active role in providing leadership and insights on the major issues facing the district as an organization and its students and parents.

The two incumbents also provide independent thinking on key issues and shrewd insights on the variety of problems facing the school board in the near future.

On potential budget cuts — the existing surplus will be exhausted next year — Spisak believes that any reductions should be made in non-academic areas to make sure the district maintains a well-rounded curriculum to prepare students for the real world after graduation.

Spisak is also proud of the district's special education program, which provides help for a student population with unique problems.

Barnhill provides a balance in priorities, commenting in an Observer interview that all programs, academic and non-academic, are important to students.

He wants to provide the best all-around education the district can afford. If the money isn't available, then the board will have to make a number of tough decisions.

Two major challengers have also raised issues which we feel the winners in Monday's election should seriously consider in looking at problems in the future.

ONE IS that the minority population, particularly in the district's southeast corner, should have a voice on the board.

While voters shouldn't elect candidates solely on the basis of geography, the incumbents should make an extra effort to increase their contacts with all segments of the school community and make sure their opinions are considered.

In conclusion, Spisak and Barnhill have represented the community and its varied interests well in the past.

They are the best choices for continuing the future fight for school aid and solving problems of finance, student discipline, and community relations.

If re-elected Monday, the two will continue to capably serve the Wayne-Westland School District.

Westland residents who live in the Livonia School District will also elect candidates to the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees.

Six candidates are seeking one four-year term while five are vying for three six-year seats.

We find Ronaele Bowman stands out from among the half dozen candidates running for a four-year term on the Schoolcraft board.

We also recommend retaining incumbents Mary Breen, Harry Greenleaf and Jack Kirksey in the race for a trio of six-year board seats.

The Observer urges all its readers to vote Monday in the annual school election. Every vote counts, but yours will be counted only if you cast it.

Flag day

Observe it with pride, patriotism

WHEN DID IT become uncool to be patriotic?

Why is turning toward the flag and singing the Star Spangled Banner at a ceremonial or sporting event uncomfortable for many of us?

The Vietnam War was damaging in many ways. And one was that it shook the faith in our government so profoundly that it has never been completely restored.

Flag Day is a legal holiday only in Pennsylvania. And for most of us, when it rolls around next Wednesday, June 14, it will go relatively unnoticed.

Yet the flag stands for the land, the people, the government and the ideals of the United States. Its colors and pattern mean something. Red: hardness and courage; white: purity and innocence; blue: vigilance, perseverance and justice. The stripes represent the 13 original colonies; the stars, our 50 states.

This Flag Day when the Stars and Stripes flies in front of public buildings in our suburban communities, take a minute to remember back when patriotism was cool — or to think about what it would be like if it were.

WHAT ABOUT UNLEASHING the feeling that comes when you hear Pomp and Circumstance at your child's graduation, the fight song from your alma mater, the Wedding March.

The United States isn't perfect. But people in many other places have and would trade places with any of us in a minute. The brave Chinese students, for example, who set such an example of non-violent revolution — only to be gunned down in the end.

They only want a piece of liberty. We have it all. We have the most diverse, free society anywhere. We are a tapestry of colors, races, creeds. As a result we have the ability, ingenuity and resources to deal with the problems within our country — and without.

It's time we got over Vietnam. Send a message this Flag Day. When you pass the flag at town or city hall, your child's school, your neighbors' home, salute it with pride. And sing, if not aloud, then in your heart: "It's a grand old flag. It's a high-flying flag. And forever in peace may it wave."

Pepper's legacy

Seniors stay active, involved

TRIBUTES POURED IN last week with the passing of Rep. Claude Pepper, leader in the House of the rights movement for senior adults.

Some tributes were from politicians out to please their constituencies, but the most eloquent came from seniors themselves who are living testaments to what Pepper tried to teach: That seniors have rights and those include the right to be as active as they want to be.

Take Westland for example. Seniors in that city used to be aided by something called the Department on Aging. It did a fine job, but the name placed emphasis on age instead of ability.

Now it is known as the Senior Resources Department, a location for seniors to gather for enrichment classes, help with special needs like tax preparation, counseling and special holiday parties.

THE STORY OF seniors today is much the same in other communities.

Southfield has the city-owned McDonnell Towers and a satellite site for seniors at John Grace Community Center. A variety of trips, classes and club meetings are held every year.

Lunch and breakfast are served at special prices. A "Friendly Visitor" program keeps in touch with homebound seniors.

The Birmingham Area Senior Coordinating Council, sponsored by the school district and the city, is known for its successful inter-generational programs meshing youths with seniors.

BASCC also provides Meals on Wheels to homebound seniors and home visitation. The separate Senior Foundation obtains loans or home repairs for seniors.

Extensive programs also are run in Livonia with two centers by the Community Resources Department and in West Bloomfield and Bloomfield Hills by Mature Minglers.

ALL OF THEM are benefitting from Pepper's fight for Social Security, minimum wage, medical assistance, prohibition of forced retirement.

Our area seniors, like Pepper, don't need to be patronized. But now they have another mission added on to their roles as court watchers and political party volunteers — demand that your local legislators protect the rights that Claude Pepper fought so hard for.

SLAM

Though truth hurts, students must know

Every so often someone comes along who sorts through all the cobwebs and makes some sense out of our eternally confused planet.

The other day, Michigan Supreme Court Justice Dennis Archer did just that.

Hopefully, his message will get around. Today's column is an attempt to aid the endeavor.

Archer's audience was Birmingham Seaholm students who live in a district which of late has been singled out for its incidents of racial intolerance. Archer was frank and pointed in his remarks.

THE SUBSTANCE of his remarks — we have been lying to ourselves and our children about the history of this country and it's about time we stop. Oh, the justice wasn't quite that harsh. He is a politician. Columnists aren't.

"Unless there is a change in the direction this country is taking, the lifestyle that many of you take for granted will not be the same. Unless you, beginning today, invest in your future, many of you, as professionals, will face a bleak future," he warned.

The change, he notes, must be based on a school system that teaches the history of all peoples in our country. Without that, racial, ethnic and class intolerance will continue and, so too, will the growth of the underclass — black and white — which provides the majority of labor in our country.

"The principal reason for racial problems," he said, "is a lack of education." And the majority in this country must learn about the history and heritage of minorities.

BUT WE rarely do. The other day, I gazed through my daughter's eighth grade history book to see what she was learning — or should I say what she was missing out on.

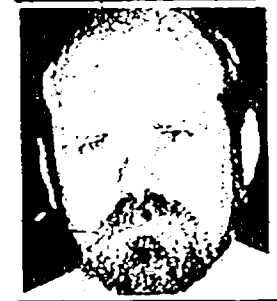

The text did deal rather frankly with some of the very major social problems we have experienced in the U.S. But in other areas I was saddened.

Check out your child's history book to see what they're learning.

For instance:

• We, too smugly, gaze at the turmoil in China. But too few of us remember the fate of the bonus marchers who camped on the lawns of Washington, D.C. When President Herbert Hoover had enough of the World War I veterans, he called in the troops, led by General Douglas MacArthur and assisted by Dwight D. Eisenhower, who brutally evicted them.

• Thousands of American citizens were forced into concentration camps during World War II by order of President Franklin Roosevelt. The internees lost houses, businesses and bank accounts. The only reason for their internment was because they were Japanese. German-Americans weren't imprisoned.

• Every history book has a photograph of beautiful Mount Vernon. But few, if any, show the massive slave quarters behind it where blacks were forced to live in cramped quarters at night after laboring in the fields during the day so George Washington could live like a king.

• Not satisfied with decimating the American Indian population in the 19th century, the federal government, through the FBI, led a concerted effort to destroy the Indian political movement of the 1960s, even though the federal law forbids the FBI from meddling in politics.

The stories are endless. But the point is obvious. Sometimes the truth hurts. But it needs to be told.

Let's move voting site

To the editor:
I have just read a legal opinion from Westland's city attorney concerning Precinct 28's voting booths being installed in the Westland Meadows trailer park and the rights of the owner of this trailer park to deny access to any political candidate to distribute literature within the park, or to hand out literature to voters going in to cast their vote on election day. Is this the beginning of Noriega-style politics? Let me paint you a possible scenario.

City council members and the mayor both work closely with owners of private developments such as trailer parks and apartment complexes. The administration grants them building permits, rezones properties, grants zoning variances, etc., for these owner/developers.

Of course, the owner can allow the incumbent mayor and council members to distribute their literature and to greet voters as they come to the polls to vote. Now, what you have is an unfair election advantage for the incumbents, and with a little more fine tuning, a controlled, Noriega-style election. Sound scary? It could happen!

I would strongly urge council to immediately move Precinct 28's voting booths to a public facility where all candidates will have free and equal access to the voters. After all, if we can't have a fair election process, what's next?

Robert J. Thomas,

New approach is needed to fund education

To the editor:

The May 18 issue of the Observer has forced me to write and express my views. What can citizens possibly do to stimulate public educational institutions to devise plans which will not constantly revert back to the tax-paying public for support?

Several years ago a front page request appeared in the Westland Observer for suggestions on how the Wayne-Westland Community Schools could cut $2.5 million. Ignorance forced me to offer suggestions to the school administration for which no recognition was given nor courtesy of response exercised. I am led to believe that the pleas for financial or supportive assistance are merely words used in an attempt to appear caring and considerate of the individuals being educated and their parents.

Strikes have been a threat to the educational process for years. Shortage of funds to meet expenses is always the reason. Millage increases have always been supported by parents in our city. However, teachers are still being eliminated, as with the recent 63-teacher cutback plan. Something is drastically wrong with the method of operation which allows a constant lack of necessary funding to meet expenses for an efficient education program. Governing bodies are hired to administer and direct functions for promoting quality education, but appear only to hold positions implying to do so. It is regrettable that we have become victims of a system that is now obsolete.

Let us now commence solving problems which are more than a decade old with innovative solutions.

Time is now ripe to promote a method of financing so successfully used by institutions of higher education in order to finance our K-12 programs and to gear efforts toward that of philanthropy. There is a growing segment of society affluent and prospering who are willing to share their success with others. These Americans wish to return a portion of their wealth for the benefit of mankind and consist of a group of society interested in the education and welfare of youngsters.

If public education is to succeed today, a development program must be implemented for the purpose of financing the system. We must not separate our schools into "haves" and "have nots" and can no longer rely on government to subsidize education because it has not proven fair. The administration must further extend its concern by reconsidering present financing methods.

We have an obligation to develop more successful avenues for promoting elementary and secondary education. Blame for current problems rests with us. Surely we can offer more efficient programs and, in turn, produce future generations of individuals responding with a better way of life for all Americans.

Media: history's eyewitnesses

THE LAWN is a battlefield. The clover is beating the grass and showing no mercy.

A mother raccoon and her eager cub have taken residence in the garage. No doubt she heard we have a good school system.

I have two teenagers with new driving permits and an unsettling tendency to rush up on yellow lights.

At work the managerial and administrative side of the job has been steadily pushing everything else to a back burner.

At home the typewriter is collecting thick layers of dust.

I wish I was in China.

This is not a suicidal wish but a journalist's Walter Mitty dream of being where the action is. When you become a journalist you want to be an eyewitness to history.

And what history this is. Democracy and freedom in a life-and-death struggle with entrenched and corrupt power.

Hearing CBS' Richard Roth describe the advancing troops even to the point when his cameraman was attacked and he was clubbed gave me chills. I can only imagine having that much courage, presence of mind and dedication to duty.

Roth and others are there as witnesses to the struggle for freedom. They have shown by example what a free press is and what it does. Chinese dissidents have over the last few weeks wrested brief control of radio and television studios and actually practiced the methods of a free media. They will not forget the euphoria of freedom.

IT SEEMS like the most important thing a journalist could do. A former colleague went on to get a doctorate in Chinese studies. I would like to think that he is there. I am certain that as a scholar and journalist he would want to be.

When the dream of standing in Tiananmen Square in my trench coat fades away, I come back to my reality.

In addition to the ragged lawn and the pesky raccoons, life in the suburbs is also about the struggle for freedom and democracy and social justice.

In the United States we haven't had the high drama that is going on in China since the civil rights demonstrations of the '60s. We take our democracy for granted. It's there and we're PROUD TO BE AMERICANS.

But most of us don't work at it. For most elections, Americans stay home. It's even a struggle to get a majority out for a presidential election. And fewer people still participate in the public debate over issues.

We have to fight constantly to preserve the liberty we have. It is not the government that poses the greatest threat in this country, though it has often been an agent for special interests. It is small groups whose members live in fear of freedom and ideas and who want others to conform to their narrow view of life that pose the greatest threat to our liberty.

It is constant debate, an open press, a free flow of conflicting ideas that allow people and civilizations to grow.

AS JOURNALISTS we have a responsibility to be eyewitnesses to history at all levels and be guardians of freedom and democracy.

Covering city hall and the school board isn't as thrilling or deadly as watching a battle between tanks and stones, but it is as important in preserving the democratic process.

I remember in 1968 when the Chicago Police advanced with clubs on the demonstrators outside the Democratic Convention, the students began to chant "The whole world is watching." As long as a free press survives, the world will continue to watch the never-ending struggle for freedom at every level.

Let's restudy class honors

Q: My son, who is graduating this month, is going to receive his second B grade in the four years of his high school education. He will not be valedictorian or salutatorian. One of his Bs was in a one semester class. He will get no recognition. It doesn't make sense.

Doc Doyle

Many school districts are revisiting the valedictorian/salutatorian issue; some are hanging onto tradition. The question: Is there any major difference in a 4.0 average, all As for a valedictorian and a 3.958 average or all As one B for the student who didn't make valedictorian?

Consider further a hypothetical situation in which a student took all semester courses and received all As except one B in a one semester course; over four years his/her point average would be 3.979 (which rounds off to 4.0); this student probably would not be a valedictorian. Compounding the issue is that many students take honors or accelerated courses, competing against strong academically disciplined students, while others — have taken an easier curriculum route through school.

Following is an example of how ridiculous this can be. One student with a 4.0 becomes valedictorian in a school district. One student is salutatorian with a 3.960, all As with one B in a one semester course. One student with all As but with one B in one year long course ends up with a 3.958. The later student with the 3.958 average (which can be rounded off to 3.96) doesn't make salutatorian because some districts do not round off at the thousands spot, 3.958 and therefore the 3.960 becomes the standard cut off point for salutatorian and 3.958 which rounds off to 3.96 doesn't cut the mustard. Give me a break — no teacher ever grades that precisely.

Several school districts are taking a chapter from some of our state universities. Michigan State University grants summa cum laude (Latin for — with highest distinction) to those with a grade point average of 3.7 to 4.0 and cum laude (with distinction) for those with a 3.4 to 3.69 grade point average.

University of Michigan grants summa cum laude to the top three percent of the class, magna cum laude (with great distinction) to the top 10 percent of the class and cum laude (with distinction) to those above 3.5. Obviously, many more students are recognized for their achievement under this system.

However, if local school districts should decide to consider a "cum laude" procedure, it may be wise to phase out the present system to protect the integrity of the present system and the students who entered high school in that system. A dual system is somewhat more logical. A valedictorian and salutatorian system alone, to me, does not consider factors beyond some students' control.

The pressure and stress placed on some students to achieve valedictorian is healthy in some cases but devastating for many. Indeed, years ago when I was a high school counselor, a counselee of mine had a nervous breakdown over a B that resulted in her not making valedictorian. Incidentally, the teacher was known to be a "tough" grader, giving few if any A's; yet this student knew the teacher was excellent and believed she could get an A. This teacher's grading system was 98 percent to 100 percent for an A; other teachers teaching the same course used 90 percent to 100 percent for an A.

Some would argue that world records are set in tenths of a second and there is only one winner. Yet, this is an athlete competing against the clock and other athletes. The variables in the grading styles of teachers and relative difficulty of honors vs general education courses negates this argument. We should and must recognize academic excellence. The question is: should we recognize scholarly students who may have been tripped-up by the system and make them a part of a larger "cum laude" group in which 1/100 of a decimal point doesn't negate recognition for four years of disciplined study.

Legislature: schools top priority

YOU ALWAYS have more questions than Jim Blanchard has time to answer, which is too bad because I have a great new catch phrase for him.

Tim Skubick was able to squeeze in, "Do you think legislators are spending like drunken sailors?"

"No," replied the governor, trying to sound conciliatory, compassionate and conservative. He wasn't looking to offend the remaining 147 lawmakers.

Blanchard said 28 states and the feds are having budget overrun problems.

"The good news is that we (his administration) are on top of it. The bad news is that we can't meet all constituent needs."

THE NEXT LOGICAL question should have been, "Do you think legislators are spending like Novi Yuppies?"

Novi Yuppies don't spend money on booze, tattoos and floozies. They spend it on big houses, landscaping, their kids, designer jeans, stereos, VCRs and, of course, on education.

Tim Richard

Those are good things, not the things drunken sailors spend on. And Novi Yuppies spend big.

That is the point Blanchard was trying to get across: The Legislature has over-appropriated his $6.99 billion budget by $600 million on the Senate side and $350 million on the House side. It didn't spend wildly on pork barrel projects, but it did spend too much, in his view.

And after announcing he would apply his veto to one of liberalism's sacred cows, social services, the governor departed.

THE SHORT TERM question is: Whose revenue figures do you believe?

Treasurer Bob Bowman, Blanchard's appointee and economics guru, says the Senate is wrong in estimating a surplus. With a straight face, Bowman said his estimates are honest and objective while economist Gary Wolfram, who works for Senate Majority Leader John Engler, concocts what he's told to concoct.

A couple of us newshounds couldn't keep straight faces at that rationalization.

The latest unemployment figures tend, however, to support the Blanchard-Bowman prognosis — continued growth but slower. Our conservative governor doesn't want to repeat the optimistic notoriety of Gerald Miller, budget director in his predecessor's administration.

POLITICS HAS a major role in this debate — substantive politics, major issues, not mere posing.

Engler, Blanchard's probable 1990 rival, is joined by Senate Republicans and a big gob of suburban Democrats in wanting to allocate more of the budget to education.

They took what they perceived to be the surplus and shoved every penny into K-12 education. Their argument: For 20 years the state has been bleeding its education budget to pay for other services, first social services and more recently prisons.

The Democratic-led House rejected those bills. The matter will be compromised in conference committees, backed up by Blanchard's announced readiness to use his veto.

BUT ENGLER and the suburbanites are making their point: Education is the priority. Everything else is in second place.

And they're saying the first line of attack should be reallocating present revenues before looking for new taxes.

Are they spending like drunken sailors? Nope — more like Novi Yuppies, and now you know what the chief 1990 issue will be.

A Christian way Agency helps people settle disagreements

By Julie Brown
staff writer

PUTTING CHRISTIAN beliefs into practice isn't easy. When disputes arise, those beliefs are put to the test.

"As Christians we are told to love one another," said Judy Darlington, executive director of the Christian Conciliation Service of Southeast Michigan.

CCS is an interdenominational peacemaking ministry. Its purpose is to promote a biblically faithful approach to resolving disputes.

"It's a way of helping people to get their needs met as well as resolve the issues," Darlington said.

The service is for people, churches and organizations throughout the metropolitan area. It has been operating for approximately five years locally and approximately 10 years nationally.

The service was started by a group of California attorneys who realized the adversarial way of resolving disputes didn't help relationships.

"The court is not equipped to handle relationships, and that's what it's all about," Darlington said.

CCS HELPS people in "any arena in which disputes arise in all of life," Darlington said.

It isn't limited to Christians, though participants are told that it has a Christian framework.

Marital disputes are the most common ones seen at CCS, housed at Trinity Church of the Brethren in Redford Township.

"We tell them if they're willing to look at their marriage in another way, we can help them," Darlington said. "We call it marriage mediation and conciliation counseling, learning how to bring some harmony into the relationship."

SPOUSES LEARN to respect each other's differences, understand their own needs and anticipate the other person's needs.

"That seems to be the key and that isn't easy," Darlington said.

For some couples, that may involve a separation. In one situation, CCS volunteers weren't able to help a couple involved in a divorce. That case had a resolution but not a reconciliation.

"When you're dealing with people, it's never going to be perfect," Darlington said.

People with substance abuse problems use the service. Darlington, who earned a master's degree in social work from the University of Michigan, has training in that field.

She was with the Plymouth Family Service in 1986-87 as a substance abuse specialist and was with Family Service of Detroit and Wayne County for two years before that. While at Plymouth Family Service, Darlington received post-graduate training in family therapy.

BUSINESS DISPUTES are handled at CCS. Those may include a disagreement between two business partners or a landlord-tenant dispute.

Resolving disputes takes time. In one case, two business partners met for eight months before coming to any kind of conciliation. They then continued to meet to keep the communication lines open, Darlington said.

Dispute resolution starts with conciliation counseling. If the parties aren't able to resolve the dispute on their own, they may submit it for mediation.

A panel of volunteer peacemakers is appointed. Each of the parties fills out a workbook, which is given to the panelists. Each then tells his or her story in a way that doesn't hurt.

"Then you can go to solving the problem after that, or problems," Darlington said.

CCS ALSO does arbitration.

"We use that rarely if people are not able to come to a reconciliation," Darlington said. "Child custody issues sometimes have to come to that."

In the process, peacemakers hear testimony from people with pertinent information. They then render a decision that is legally binding.

VOLUNTEERS AREN'T required to have any specific professional background. They need the gift of understanding and must be able to listen to and respect people. Efforts are made to include a person that each party respects, but that person isn't necessarily trained as a peacemaker.

"Then they can feel safe that their needs will be addressed," Darlington said. "If possible, each party's pastor is involved as well."

CCS is governed by a 14-member board of directors. Darlington served on that board for three years before becoming executive director in summer 1987.

As a volunteer organization, its staff is minimal, including Darlington and a part-time secretary. Office space is donated by the Trinity Church of the Brethren at 27350 W. Chicago. An answering service is provided by Restoration Christian Fellowship Church in Farmington Hills. CCS is financed by individual and church donations.

"We would never turn anybody away because of fees," Darlington said.

Those using the service are asked to make a donation, based on their ability to give. People who have gone through counseling or made use of the legal system are more likely to contribute, Darlington said.

CCS is a member of the Association of Christian Conciliation Services, a national association of peacemaking ministries. ACCS is associated with the Christian Legal Society, a national group of Christian attorneys based in Merrifield, Va.

DARLINGTON TRIES to practice what she preaches with her own family. She and her husband have two daughters, ages 22 and 25.

The hardest part is "learning to apply it on a consistent basis at home," she said. "That's where you're real. It's a very humbling experience."

CCS is among 50 such organizations in the United States. Services are starting up in other countries.

Some people are surprised to find such a service available; they're not accustomed to thinking of the church as a place to resolve disputes.

"It's a fairly new field, dispute resolution," Darlington said. "Dealing with it in this manner is fairly new in our culture. I just see tremendous room for growth."

The Christian Conciliation Service of Southeastern Michigan helps people resolve a variety of disputes. "It's a way of helping people to get their needs met as well as resolve the issues," said Judy Darlington, executive director. "Sometimes it takes a long time."

Spring is here . . . and so is allergy season

By Sue Mason
staff writer

'Tis the season . . .

Your nose itches. Sneezes come in nothing less than sextets. Your breathing sounds like wheezes from a broken accordion.

Yep, 'tis the season. Spring has sprung and so has allergy season.

You won't find more than 40 million Americans celebrating. They're grabbing for tissues, rushing to the store for over-the-counter medications or making a bee line to their allergist.

"People tend to undertreat themselves; they don't realize the helpful things that are available and they don't seek treatment for their allergies," said Dr. Michael Rowe, an allergist in private practice in Farmington Hills-Novi area. "They think they should be miserable."

Allergies are an inherited disease. They can occur on a regular basis or infrequently and can get better in time. But they never go away.

The symptoms of allergies can often be mistaken as those of a common cold — nasal stuffiness and sneezing — but if those symptoms continue beyond the normal duration of a cold, it's a good indication the misery is caused by an allergy, Rowe said.

Allergens — those things that prompt a reaction from the body's immune system — can range from pollens, molds and house dust to animal dander, feathers, industrial chemicals, cosmetics, some food and medicine and insect stings.

WHATEVER the allergen the body is responding to, once absorbed, it stimulates the immune system, which produces antibodies. Unlike an illness caused by an infection in which the antibodies protect an individual, the antibodies produced by a reaction with an allergen are what ultimately cause the allergic reaction.

The allergen-induced antibodies react with certain cells, which in turn produce powerful chemicals, like histamine, in the body. Once released, the chemicals produce inflammation and irritation, be it itchy eyes or mouth, hives, sneezing, asthma and the like, in particularly sensitive parts of the body, such as the nose, eyes and lungs.

In the case of an allergy, before any treatment can be started, an allergist has to determine what the patient is allergic to. After taking the patient's history and completing and examination, specific tests are done to pinpoint the culprit.

The best-accepted test is skin testing. A few droplets of the potential allergen is placed on the skin which is then scratched or pricked. The doctor will wait 15 minutes to see if there is a reaction — a raised bump that itches, much like a mosquito bite.

Once the allergen is identified, treatment can begin.

The first rule of thumb in treating allergies is avoiding those things that cause them. In the case of people allergic to pollen or house dust, it may mean sticking to clean environment, Rowe said.

That environment may call for cleaning a house more frequently, keeping windows closed and using air conditioning, which can filter of 90 to 95 percent of pollen spores in the air, Rowe said.

GRANTED SUCH measures may not always be successful or practical, that's where medications come in. Decongestants can relieve the stuffiness while antihistamines can reduce the itching.

While over-the-counter products can minimize the symptoms, they aren't as effective as prescription drugs because of side effects like drowsiness. Prescription drugs on the other hand, can give better relief with less side effects and products like Seldane and Hismanal don't cause drowsiness, Rowe said.

"There are very simple things we can do to help people who don't understand allergies," Rowe said. "Allergies are very misunderstood and very mismanaged by people for the most part."

"A lot of people who don't recognize that they have allergies, say they have sinus problems and most people don't understand what they can do about the problems."

For some people, avoidance measures and prescription drugs may not provide enough relief from the symptoms. Their treatment includes regular allergy shots.

The prime cause of allergies in Michigan is ragweed, or what is better known as hay fever, a description the dates back to the pioneering days when fever was a term for an illness. The malady usually occurred about the time people were out harvesting hay.

The second most common allergen is grass pollen. That malady shows up between early May to early June.

"I've had patients with symptoms who've come in claiming they're allergic to the fuzzies you see from cottonwood trees," Rowe said. "Those won't hurt you because they're too large to inhale, it's the grass pollens."

Writer shows she has an artistic, creative flair

Hello!

My name is Laura. I am 17 and left-handed. I have an identical twin sister. We are very close and have similar feelings and similar opinions.

It's kind of difficult to judge what to write because I know my qualities and what I like.

I'm curious to know what you have predicted from my handwriting.

Dear L.D.,

Before we begin our analysis for today's column, I would like to state for the record that graphology does not predict anything. It does, however, reveal the writer's personality as he/she is on the day of writing. I would find it most interesting to

A young woman to whom appearances are important quickly comes to mind as I study this handwriting. Your selection of clothing would be for eye-catching styles, with vivid colors more appealing than pastels. Seemingly, you have an innate eye for aesthetics and are artistic and creative, too.

YOU ARE rather self-involved. Your capital letters, often bold and flourished, suggest a dramatic and theatrical approach to life. However, this may be an inner fantasy life, as several other signs point to a young woman who is reserved, cautious and controlled.

Although you are quite dependent in many areas, it does appear that you have moved away from certain past experiences. Still, an element of caution about reaching for new vistas is here also. You are, however, willing to accept responsibility that will enhance your self-esteem.

For both happy and sad experiences you harbor deep and long-lasting feelings. You have good vitality available for the things you wish to accomplish.

There is a tension in this handwriting. At the emotional level you may be having difficulty keeping your feelings sorted out.

Ever aware of the "proper behavior" of those who mean most to you, you often monitor yours to conform to the accepted standard.

Thought processes move methodically and slowly. Once in command of information, you retain it. This is helpful in arriving at concise conclusions. Some intuition comes into play also.

Maternal instincts are noted in this handwriting. Are you, perhaps,

Book looks at effects of AIDS on more than just its victims

AN ADOLESCENT girl surveys her classmates and writes a chapter on what the fear of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome means to her generation.

An AIDS patient shares his hopes and fears.

These unusual perspectives come from two of the authors of a comprehensive new book on AIDS, in which each writer assesses the disease from his or her own medical and emotional frame of reference.

The editors are Penny Case of Livonia and Rita Munley Gallagher, both of Oakland University's School of Nursing.

They set out to provide a work that was accurate, readable and understandable to the general public because previous books on the disease are "either too limited or too technical to be useful."

THE BOOK was prepared and edited to meet the needs of a wide group of people, ranging from health care providers to people who are involved with AIDS patients in other settings, like church, community, home care or the work place, they said.

It is patterned after "The 36-Hour Day," a book about living with Alzheimer's disease.

"The AIDS Reader" was published by Kendall Hunt Publishing Co. in Dubuque. Cass and Gallagher are discussing a local distribution

'This has happened so fast, it is so complex, and people have so many emotional feelings tied to it that there are probably inconsistencies. We think that adds to the richness of the book.'

— Penny Case, Rita Munley Gallagher

through area bookstores.

In addition to its readability, Cass and Gallagher said the book differs from other works because of its variety of contributing authors. One chapter was written by a person who has AIDS.

"HE HAS spoken to our students and he writes from the perspective of a person who really has AIDS rather than somebody writing about what it must be like to have AIDS," they said. "So, he's direct. He says 'This is it, this is how I feel, this is what it's about, this is what I want from you.'"

One chapter was written by an adolescent girl who talked about what AIDS means for her generation from her perspective. She even did a small survey of people in her school.

"Each generation has been affected in a different way," they said.

The authors are also proud of an overview chapter by Lucille Arking, nurse epidemiologist at Henry Ford Hospital, who is widely respected in the state for her work.

THE TWOSOME emphasized that editing of the book was done only for correctness and readability and not to change, censor or develop a homogenous theme.

"The way persons are referred to varies from group to group, so we needed to respect that, so that's why the conventions may change from chapter to chapter," they said.

"We wanted this book to represent multiple voices. We tried to say in the beginning, in the preface, that there might be inconsistencies, there might be differences of opinion, but that is the state of the art right now."

"This has happened so fast, it is so complex, and people have so many emotional feelings tied to it that there are probably inconsistencies. We think that adds to the richness of the book."

BOTH CASS and Gallagher stressed that the facts are consistent. The differences come from the feelings and the recommendations of each author and that author's view of the world.

Both women have done numerous professional publications and have written chapters for books by other authors. This, however, is their first effort as editors of their own book.

They aimed for a comprehensive overview of AIDS and its impact throughout society, from the spiritual implications to the economic consequences. They even went so far as to have a teenage boy do the cover design. Both feel they have accomplished that goal.

"When you approach a communicable disease, you try to break as many links as you can in order to not transmit the disease," they said. "Our cover is his interpretation. He made the chain of people. Each link in the chain is made up of people, so you see, people can stop AIDS."

Cass and Gallagher believe a logical place for their book would be in doctor's offices and other waiting rooms where the general public could pick up the book and learn something about AIDS in a non-threatening way.

Moving up

She's a familiar face around First Step, the Western Wayne County Project on Domestic Violence, but what she does has changed. Karen Collins Proter, program coordinator, has been promoted to assistant director of First Step. The organization, based in Westland, provides shelter and counseling for the victims of sexual assault and domestic violence.

Center has answers to travel questions

From questions about relief of mountain sickness to inquiries about how to find a competent doctor in an underdeveloped country, medical experts at the University of Michigan Medical Center International and Overseas Travel Consultation Service have heard — and answered — them all.

"There are a host of different questions people ask when they're planning on traveling," said Dr. F. Robert Fekety, chief of the Infectious Diseases Service in the department of internal medicine. "We provide advice and allay anxieties about their trips."

Springtime is one of the peak travel periods during the year, with many people heading to Europe, Africa, South America and the Pacific islands. Not surprisingly, demand for the consultation service picks up about that time, Fekety said.

The service offers up-to-date information, specific advice and preventive intervention for such diseases as hepatitis, malaria, cholera, tetanus, typhoid and traveler's diarrhea.

"Our recommendations are tailored to the specific place a person is going, the age of the person, any underlying diseases he or she may have, previous medical history, previous immunizations and allergies," Fekety said.

EUROPEAN TRAVELERS often come in to receive booster shots, such as tetanus, in case they suffer minor injuries overseas and want to protect themselves from infection, he said.

Fekety said some immunizations require a series of two or more injections given one to four weeks apart, so travelers should plan accordingly.

Simple but urgent needs can be handled on a walk-in basis. Detailed advice and treatment of infections acquired while traveling require an appointment.

The Infectious Diseases Service is in Room 3326, Reception Area A of the Alfred Tabman Health Care Center. It is open from 8 a.m. to noon Tuesdays and Thursdays.

For more information, call 936-5495 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Give yourself a hand against breast cancer

Breast self-examination is easy, takes only a few minutes and can be performed in the privacy of your own home. It's an important way you can detect early and highly curable breast cancer. Through monthly breast self-examinations, you will learn how your normal breast tissue feels and will be able to recognize a change if one occurs. In fact, most breast lumps are found by women themselves.

Take control of your body and your life.

Make breast self-examination a part of your monthly routine. And see your doctor regularly for clinical exams and advice on mammography.

For a free pamphlet about breast self-examination, call your local American Cancer Society.

We're here to help.

The Rev. Michelle Gentile of Denton Faith United Methodist Church and her husband, the Rev. Randy Whitcomb of Cherry Hill United Methodist Church, have found being a clergy couple has its benefits and drawbacks.

The Revs.

Couple shares a love for the clergy

By Julie Brown
staff writer

The Rev. Randy J. Whitcomb and the Rev. Michelle A. Gentile have a pretty good idea of what each other's workdays involve.

Gentile, 35, is pastor at the Denton Faith United Methodist Church, on Michigan Avenue just outside of Canton. Whitcomb, 33, is pastor at the Cherry Hill United Methodist Church, on Ridge south of Cherry Hill in Canton.

They'll celebrate their fifth wedding anniversary this September. The two met as graduate students at the Methodist Theological School in Ohio, where both graduated in 1985 with master's degrees in divinity.

They've found that being a clergy couple has its benefits and drawbacks.

They moved to their current churches about a year ago, and had served previously as associate pastors, Whitcomb at Aldersgate United Methodist Church in Redford and Gentile at the First United Methodist Church of Dearborn.

WHEN THE pastor at Aldersgate became ill, Gentile was able to help her husband with church work.

"And Randy was able to do the same thing at my church a couple times, so that was helpful."

A drawback is that they can't worship together on Sundays. They try to attend functions at each other's churches and have participated in pulpit exchanges between the churches.

Both live by their calendars; scheduling vacations was difficult when they worked as associate pastors. They now have more control over their schedules, but still face the unexpected at times.

"That's just a part of being in the ministry," Whitcomb said.

Both Gentile and Whitcomb have an interest in theater and other performing arts and have incorporated that into their ministry; that interest also helped bring them together. Gentile had been cast in the lead for a one-act play at the Methodist Theological School in Ohio.

She recruited other cast members, and asked Whitcomb's roommate if he would participate. That young man said no, but Whitcomb agreed to be in the play.

"It just grew out of friendship," she said of their relationship.

WHITCOMB LATER returned to his home state, Minnesota, and worked in the chaplain program at Rochester Methodist Hospital. Gentile was doing volunteer church work in Maine; they decided to get married.

They were married on Labor Day weekend 1984 in Ohio at a church where Whitcomb had served. About a year later, they moved to their churches in Dearborn and Redford.

The backgrounds they bring to their work are varied.

"I grew up on a dairy farm in Minnesota," Whitcomb said. That farm was in Eyota, in the southeastern part of Minnesota.

After high school, Whitcomb started at Minnesota Bible College, planning to go into the ministry. A new minister came to his home church and had some difficulties there; Whitcomb was discouraged by that experience and dropped out of school.

He and his brother bought a dairy farm in Minnesota. Whitcomb worked there about five years, and became active in the church as a certified lay speaker. A young woman he dated at that time encouraged him to return to school.

Whitcomb returned to Minnesota Bible College and earned a two-year degree. He went to Westminster College in LeMars, Iowa, completing his bachelor's degree, and then went to graduate school.

HE'S FOUND his ministry enjoyable.

"For me, I find that the things I enjoy far outweigh the things I'm not all that thrilled about."

Gentile grew up in the Detroit area. She earned a bachelor's degree in elementary education and theater from Central Michigan University, where she concentrated in special education.

She did graduate work in children's theater at Penn State, and has worked for about 10 years as a professional puppeteer and as a clown.

Gentile taught preschool and elementary school for 5½ years, including time in the Rochester and Oxford schools in Michigan and in the Ozark Mountains of Missouri. She has worked on teaching programs for gifted students and on recreational programs for youngsters.

When she was 17, Gentile became seriously ill. She was able to graduate from high school, but her deteriorating health prevented her from starting at CMU right away. She stayed home to work and took classes at Oakland Community College.

Gentile prayed; she was ready to go with God if that was his plan. If not, she would work to share God's love with others.

SHE WENT into the hospital and had major surgery. A family friend with the same illness was in that hospital at the same time. Both were released from the hospital on Good Friday.

Her doctor told her she was well enough to go to school. The family friend's health deteriorated, and he knew he would soon die.

"He told me to live each day of my life to the fullest and to share the gift of God's love," Gentile said.

She started teaching, and became active in the Methodist Church. She knew that teaching wasn't her final place; soon after her father died, she decided to go into the ministry.

"It's a gift to be part of people's lives," she said. They're able to share critical times, both happy and sad, with others.

Whitcomb and Gentile meet regularly with six to eight other clergy couples in their conference, the Detroit Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church. They find that support tremendously helpful.

They don't consider their circumstances all that unusual.

"I think there's going to be more and more clergy couples," Whitcomb said. "They're out there. We're not all that rare."

Women have been ordained as pastors in the United Methodist Church for many years, and many women are enrolled in seminaries.

Whitcomb and Gentile would like to have a family at some point. They'd like to stay in the area and continue with their ministry.

"It's just a wonderful place to live and we have two wonderful congregations," Gentile said. "I think people are really super about it."

moral perspectives

Rev. Robert Schaden

The beauty of nature should be preserved

Having trekked the trails of the north woods on numerous occasions, I have become accustomed to noticing the ever-changing face of the wilds. A tree that stood last year has been felled by lightning. The water line on the grass along the bank gives notice that the river is lower this year. A stand of birches has given way to the sharp teeth of some busy beavers.

But this year I encountered another change, a quite unexpected one. Among the last things I expected to see in the north woods was a string of no-parking signs. But there they were, looking like intruders from a suburban street.

Somehow these metal poles with their slashed-out letter "P's" seemed inexplicably out of place. Only the notice tacked to a nearby stake shed light on the invasion. It warned the eagle was not to be harassed. No one was to go beyond this point. What was this all about?

The naser sat approximately 100 feet in the air on one of the biggest bird nests I ever did see, and what a bird! For some time I stood enchanted at the majesty portrayed in her brilliant white head offset by a golden beak and an eye that left no doubt she watched my every move. When she finally flew off her nest, her eight-foot wing span proved far more awesome than her pictures.

Needless to say, I have not seen many eagles, and never so close up. Unfortunately, they are only one of a number of species of life that are seen by fewer and fewer people every year. The rate of extinction of one species after another would even leave Darwin aghast.

days either) can become infertile through the consumption of so much as one contaminated duck.

Imagine, if you will, a world council. Each species on the planet is allowed one representative to the council and each representative is allowed one vote.

In dealing with the problems of the environment, it is decided that a vote be taken as to which species should be allowed to continue on the planet. Considerations include contributions to the welfare of the environment as well as responsibility for its demise.

With one vote per species, our chances of retaining our right to be here may be slim indeed.

As little children we were supposed to have learned that what brings instant gratification is not always best in the long run. We were also taught that in considering the right or wisdom of an behavior we must look to its effect on other people.

PERHAPS THOSE two lessons need relearning. That which is immediately convenient can spell eventual doom. And that which is pleasing to the few can in the long run cause more than eagles to disappear.

As wonderful as our technology may be, its unbridled use today narrows the options of people who will inhabit the planet tomorrow. The rain forests that fall to grazing land for North American burgers deprive us of more than a jungle to read about. They produce the very oxygen the burger eaters need to breathe.

Can we longer afford to consider concern for the environment a cause for a few to dabble in? Or is it possible that it is the ultimate life issue? I wonder what endangered species the no parking signs will seek to protect when our grandchildren go to the woods.

The Rev. Robert Schaden is with Newman House campus ministry at Schoolcraft Community College in Livonia.

1st jobs serve as career launch pads

CEOs' advice: 'Work hard'

By Peggy Aullno
staff writer

Some of them inherited the companies they now run. Others started in the stockroom and now they hobnob with stockholders.

Area company presidents and CEOs all went through the school of hard knocks to some degree. Some attained academic degrees along the way; some did not.

They were asked recently where they started out, what they learned and what sort of advice they would offer those who are just now entering the work force.

Carol Quigley
Quigley Cos.

Carol Quigley was a special education teacher before her father died and left the Quigley Cos. to her and her sisters. Quigley, the Southfield company's president, said her classroom background helped her when it was time to take the reins of manufacturing truck and auto parts.

"Teaching helps you understand people. Basically people are people, whether they're kids or not," she said. "A lot of running a business is the people aspect of it — the people you work with, your customers."

Quigley's advice to up-and-coming top executives: "Just work as hard as you can and always remember that the customer is the person that you're there for."

James Eckl
Gray & Kilgore

That's the same sort of advice offered by James Eckl, president of Gray & Kilgore Advertising in Troy. But Eckl calls it being aggressive.

"I don't mean cutthroat, just a willingness to learn and take on a little bit more than the job definition requires," he said.

Eckl's first job after he got his degree was as an auditor.

"Probably what I found out most was I didn't want to be an auditor," he said.

But understanding the "internal workings" of a business helped him succeed.

"I truly believe... if you don't understand the numbers game you're lost. I think that's true in most businesses," Eckl said.

Besides being aggressive, Eckl thinks people trying to break into advertising should be unique. That's because on a typical week, his company receives 20 to 30 resumes. Being unique will help get someone a job interview, he said, and being aggressive could land them the job.

Brian Connolly
Providence Hospital

Brian Connolly, president of Southfield's Providence Hospital, agreed that the first job is important, but he thinks some people waste time by looking for the perfect first job.

"What's important is that they get the first job. Once you're in, if you work hard, a lot of doors will open," Connolly said. "Their first job isn't going to be perfect. It's just a learning opportunity, a chance to grow."

Connolly started out as a management engineer, visiting hospitals throughout the state to conduct studies on productivity and long-range planning. That put him in touch with several hospital presidents.

"It really helped me kind of pick and choose a (management) style I thought was most effective and the one I was most comfortable with," Connolly said.

directly to the career into which she has since settled.

"I went in and applied and they could tell I liked doughnuts. I was very much overweight," said Mark, who is president and chairwoman of the Farmington Hills company that operates Weight Watchers franchises in nine states, Ontario and Mexico.

"I think that added to my career," Mark said.

"Everything you do in life is a learning experience if you open your eyes and learn," she said in a more serious vein. "You have to be receptive. A lot of people go through life learning nothing."

Mark had a long list of advice for job seekers.

"They should believe in themselves and have a good sense of humor," she said. "Know what you want and decide what you're willing to give up to get what you want. Be enthusiastic about what you do, and if you're not enthusiastic find something else that gets you excited about what you're doing. Don't expect perfection from yourself. Allow yourself to make mistakes. I make dozens of them. That's how I learn and grow."

And finally: "Always take time to smell the roses."

from that position was: "Listen and observe; don't just talk. Good public relations can not work without the listening component."

His advice to those seeking their first job was "take it at any cost."

"Getting the first job in the Detroit area is very tough," he said. "I would urge people to take internships." That way, "you have demonstrated that you've not only studied the field but you've worked in it."

Area company presidents and CEOs all went through the school of hard knocks to some degree.

Steven Jackson
Hungry Howie's

"There's really no school you can go to to learn how to be the president of the company. You've just got to make decisions and hopefully you make more right ones than you do wrong ones," said Steven Jackson, president of the Livonia-based Hungry Howie's Pizza and Subs.

Jackson, like some other executives, changed career tracks since entering the work force. He was studying elementary education during college in the mid-1970s, but looked around and saw that lots of teachers were getting pink slips, he said. He quit school and opened a Hungry Howie's, the second in what is now a chain of at least 40 outlets in the Detroit area alone.

As a newcomer to the business world, Jackson had a lot to learn. But at that stage in the game, ignorance was bliss, he said.

"When you open a business without much experience you really don't realize when you're making mistakes. I think it's sheer basic energy and willpower," he said. "I guess I didn't realize what the numbers meant. I just kept trying to do better than the last week."

Jackson didn't have any advice for recent graduates.

"It's hard for me to answer that question. I was never in the job market," he said.

Robert Awrey
Awrey Bakeries

Robert Awrey has been there for his customers since he was 15.

"I've never really worked anywhere else but here," said the president of Awrey Bakeries of Livonia.

He started out mopping floors and doing other chores in a downtown Detroit retail outlet that was part of the business begun by his grandparents.

"I learned to relate with and get along with people. That's the biggest lesson in life and business," Awrey said. And, he said, "I learned to work hard. I learned a pretty good work ethic."

Awrey suggested young people in the market for a job follow "the old saw — work hard and keep your nose clean."

"You get ahead by doing whatever job is assigned to you — excellently," he said. "Work a little harder, do a little more than the next guy."

Donald Blue
Mutual of Detroit

Donald Blue, president of Mutual of Detroit Insurance in Plymouth, agreed that choosing work that is personally suitable leads to job satisfaction.

"I think it has to do primarily with their aptitude and interest," he said of young people seeking jobs in which they'll prosper. "They should try to do something they like to do. Go that direction, as opposed to simply taking a job here and there."

Blue worked in Mutual's legal department after earning his law degree but "became more and more involved in management" over the years, he said.

"Many years ago I made a decision to do this as opposed to practicing law," he said.

Blue suggested young people "try to get into something they enjoy doing because they will do well if they have the interest."

Florine Mark
Weight Watchers

Florine Mark said her first job — selling doughnuts at age 11 — led in-

Jack Casey
Casey Communications

Jack Casey, president of Casey Communications Management in Southfield, was interested in journalism at the beginning of his career. Though he has worked for newspapers and politicians and now is in public relations, "I still think of myself very much as a reporter," he said.

"I figure my several careers have really been an evolution of the first one," Casey said. "It's all communications."

His first job, as a copy boy at a Toledo newspaper, was secured because a friend's mother was the publisher's secretary. The lesson he took

Pat Gray
Uniforce

Pat Gray makes her living helping people get jobs, albeit temporary ones. She is president of Uniforce Temporary Services of Birmingham, Livonia and Southfield. But she started in the field as a permanent placement counselor.

"I acquired a knowledge of people by dealing with individuals who had many and varied skills," Gray said.

That helped her when it was time to hire people to staff her offices, and it gave her an understanding of the personnel needs of large corporations.

People just getting out of school are not at the end of their education, Gray said.

"I would remind them that the world of academia is part of their education and the next step in their education is becoming acquainted with the real world, where they apply what knowledge they have and then, at the same time, continue to grow," Gray said.

She also suggested that young people "recognize that each opportunity is a learning experience and extract from that experience the most knowledge that they can."

"They will find in later years that everything they have learned will be applicable in some situation," Gray said.

Walsh College conference aimed at business couples

By Marilyn Fitchett
staff writer

Frank and Sharan Barnett are capitalizing on helping others like themselves: partners in life and partners in business.

The Barnetts are looking to spread the "copreneurial" gospel when they lead a weekend conference June 16-18 at the Guest Quarters Suite Hotel in Troy, presented by Walsh College.

Frank and Sharan Barnett

They define "copreneuring" as "not only a commitment to a particular enterprise but also a lifestyle that incorporates both work and personal worlds" that is based on "trust, equality, sharing and intimacy between partners."

The conference, called "Working Together: Entrepreneurial Couples" hopes to attract couples who now own their own business and those thinking about it; or the "doers and the dreamers," according to Sharan Barnett.

Statistics from the Small Business Administration indicate the list of doers is growing. From 1980 to 1985, the number of sole proprietorships, excluding farms, that were jointly owned by a husband and wife rose 82 percent to 442,993.

Authors of "Working Together: Entrepreneurial Couples," the Barnetts believe that sharing a business with a person with whom you share the rest of your life results in a "synergy" that does not evolve between partners solely in business. Their book is based on their experiences running their advertising agency and on interviews with 24 couples operating their own businesses. Last year they dissolved the ad agency to concentrate on developing the National Association of Entrepreneurial Couples, which they founded in 1988.

"There is a difference between partners (who are not part of a couple relationship)," Frank Barnett said. "What we find (with partners who are couples) is a high degree of communication, a very clear shared vision for where their enterprise is going, a lack of competition between them because they have learned to merge their respective egos into what we call a 'wego.'"

Conference will focus on couples in business

The "wego" focuses on the couple, "placing the emphasis on the relationship and the enterprise rather than on the individual."

FRANK BARNETT traced the movement back to agrarian America.

"For people to take a serious look at their life's partner (as a business partner) is quite logical. It wasn't that many years ago that we were more an agrarian nation that necessitated that the family be viewed as an economic unit," he said.

"(Since then) this is something that has been discouraged in this country. We are fiercely individual as a nation. It's very isolating. We go off and live our separate lives with separate agendas. We're now predominantly made up households of two income-producers who live very separate lives. And this is really a movement that is rediscovering the strength and values of viewing the family as an economic unit."

The conference fee is $295 per couple. Registration deadline is Friday. For more information, call 689-8282, Ext. 260.

Those interested in receiving more information about the National Association for Entrepreneurial Couples can contact the Barnetts in Oregon at 503-341-6444 or by writing P.O. Box 3238, Eugene, Ore. 97403.

Section 89 rules govern employee benefit plans

It is no longer possible for me to pick up a financial planning publication and not be exposed to the new Section 89 rules. Here is a reproduction of these rules by Couzens, Lansky, Fealk, Ellis, Roeder & Lazar.

Qualification rules

Under the qualification rules, each covered benefit plan must meet the following requirements:

1. The plan must be in writing by the first day of the plan year, beginning in 1990.
2. The plan must be enforceable by employees.
3. The employer must disclose the essential features of the plan to employees by Oct. 1, 1989, or the first day of the plan year beginning in 1989, whichever comes later.
4. The plan must be for the exclusive benefit of employees.

5. The plan must be established with the intent to be maintained for an indefinite period of time.

If a plan fails to meet any of these five requirements, a portion of the value of each employee's employer-provided benefit received (rather than the coverage provided or insurance premium) is included in his or her gross income, subject to certain limitations based on each employee's compensation.

If the sanction applies, all employees, regardless of their pay level, must include in their gross income a portion of the value of the benefits received.

Anti-discrimination rules

The second set of rules deal with the anti-discrimination testing requirements.

A discriminatory employee benefit plan is one that does not meet the finances and you

complex eligibility and benefits tests set forth in Section 89. These tests are detailed and will require significant effort to analyze and to apply.

To the extent a plan does not pass the eligibility and benefits tests, a "highly compensated employee" must include in his or her gross income the so-called "excess benefit."

This excess benefit is based upon the value of the employer-provided coverage, not on the benefits received. The penalty also applies only to "highly compensated employees."

The term "highly compensated employee" generally means any employee who, during the year in question or the preceding year:

1. Was at any time a 5-percent owner;
2. Received compensation from the employer in excess of $75,000;
3. Received compensation from the employer in excess of $50,000 and was in top-paid 20 percent of employees for such year; or
4. Was at any time an officer and received compensation greater than 50 percent of the defined benefit pension plan limitation (currently 50 percent of $98,084 or $49,032).

To determine whether a plan discriminates, the following employees are generally excluded from consideration when performing the eligibility and benefits tests:

1. Employees who have not completed one year of service (or in the case of benefits under a core health plan, six months of service);
2. Employees who normally work less than 17½ hours per week (for employers with fewer than 10 employees, this number is 35 for 1989 and 25 for 1990);
3. Employees who normally work during not more than six months during any year;
4. Employees who are not yet 21;
5. Certain union employees; and
6. Certain non-resident aliens.

Clearly, Section 89 rules are highly complex. Consult your personal financial planner or attorney to guide you.

Seminar: "Lump Sum Distribution — Five Choices," "Medicare Tax — Myth vs. Facts," "Mutual Funds — Taxable vs. Tax-deferred" and "High Returns — Must You Sacrifice Safety?"

The seminar, sponsored by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and Coordinated Financial Planning, will be 7-9 p.m. Tuesday, June 13, in the offices of Coordinated Financial Planning, Sheffield Office Park, 3250 W. Big Beaver, Suite 540, Troy. For reservations, call 643-8888.

Sid Mitra is a professor of finance, school of business at Oakland University and owner of Coordinated Financial Planning.

Be a good listener if you want to be a good salesman

It has been said that successfully selling a product or service can be best summarized by the phrase, "selling is telling." If this were true, sales training would not have to involve much more than building presentation skills.

But the truth is that more than 50 percent of selling involves the ability to listen.

According to Kerry L. Johnson, author of "Salespeople: Are You Listening? . . .", eight steps should be followed to improve both individual listening skills and sales performance.

"Many salespeople are never adequately trained to listen," Johnson said. "Most people view listening as the passive side of the conversation. To a majority, being in control means being the speaker."

THE FIRST step in becoming a good listener is developing the ability to repeat, clarify and summarize information. "A great deal of information is lost through one-way communication," Johnson said.

As a result, achieving "congruency" through the communication process becomes important.

"Congruency provides two-way communication through the interaction between the speaker and the listener because the listener learns to listen to emotions to reach a point of trust with the speaker."

To achieve congruency, Johnson said that repeating, clarifying and summarizing information is crucial.

"It lets the client know that you are paying attention and have reached the same level of understanding in the conversation."

NEXT, A good listener listens to a client at the optimal tension level.

Stress can be measured, with 0 being a very relaxed state and 100 an anxiety state where some people experience difficulty in thinking logically. The optimal listening tension is in the 30 to 40 range where enthusiasm thrives.

By keeping attentive and alert, a person will be able to be a better listener and retain more information. Johnson suggests some simple techniques, including standing up when possible and periodically tensing the muscles in the arms or legs while sitting.

KNOWING WHAT questions to ask represents the third step in developing good listening skills. Successful salespeople know they can't sell unless they find a need or a group of needs they can best attempt to satisfy. By asking the right questions, the chances of getting the right information will be greatly enhanced.

Next week, we will cover the remaining steps used to develop positive listening skills for improved sales performance.

New investor has built solid stock portfolio

I started investing when the market had its big sell-off in October of 1987. I guess I was lucky in waiting to start when I did. I don't have a big profit, but I am ahead. I wish you would comment on the stocks I have bought.

For a beginning investor, you have done an excellent job as far as I can see. Your portfolio would be a good starter for just about anybody.

Baxter has been showing good earnings gains, but investors have been reducing the multiple that they will pay for it. The company is well-managed and growing. I would not worry about the loss you are showing at the present time. It is my guess the stock will recover and then some.

ConAgra is a leading producer of branded frozen foods and meats. It is expected to recover from the adverse chicken cycle and show a good increase in earnings per share this year to as much as $2.50. That would be 2½ times earnings just four years ago. The stock price also has doubled in the last four years.

McDonald's has the best figures of all the fast-food companies. Its profit margins and earnings on invested capital mark it as a well-managed company where the investors' money is likely to be well rewarded.

Merck is often called the best-managed drug company and usually sells at a premium price. Your purchase was well timed and should continue to be profitable.

Nordstrom is a Seattle-based retailer now expanding into a national chain. Its growth rate is excellent. Precision Casparts recently has experienced a slowdown in its growth rate, but orders for planes suggest its future will continue to hold much promise.

Walt Disney continues to grow and looks good to me. As a beginning investor, you have done an excellent job selecting top quality companies with good growth possibilities. My guess is that your portfolio will attain the goal that we set for investment clubs of doubling in value every five years.

Thomas O'Hara welcomes your questions and comments but will answer them only through this column. Readers who send in questions on a general invest-

Birmingham man turns best-seller into movie

By Kevin Teevens
special writer

IT'S LATE MORNING and the President has just addressed the nation. Nuclear war is imminent.

What would you do? An all-out nuclear war — WW III, or just a limited nuclear conflict — an atomic argument, would change life as we know it, forever. Could we initially survive and rebuild in the aftermath? This is the premise of "Jenny," a feature film being produced by Birmingham writer Charles Berk.

Based on the widely acclaimed British best seller, "Jenny — My Diary," a short, haunting novel about life in a fallout shelter and on the outside after nuclear war, "Jenny" is different from other nuclear apocalypse dramas.

"There is hope," said Berk, 42, in an interview at the Birmingham office of Omni Pictures, his production company. "The screenplay, which I co-wrote with the author, Yorick Blumenfeld, ultimately reveals there is hope. That you can survive if you're willing to start over. Research indicates this is possible, but obviously the theory hasn't been tested."

BERK DOESN'T OWN a bomb shelter and isn't a survivalist. He just knew a good story when he read "Jenny — My Diary" back in 1983. "It's a real story, certainly contemporary, concerning real issues about the world, people and relationships. It has universal appeal, which is important in today's global movie market. It's not about basketball in Indiana."

Academy-Award-winning actress Julie Christie ("Darling," "Dr. Zhivago," "Heaven Can Wait") is slated for the lead role of Jenny Downing. "Yorick, who lives in England, visited Christie at her home in Wales. She read the story, which takes about an hour to read, and she said she was definitely interested in the role of Jenny," Berk said.

Director Donna Deitch, who recently was behind the camera of the number-one-rated mini-series "Women of Brewster Place," is committed to the film also. And producer Rene Dupont ("Turk 182," "From the Hip," "A Christmas Story") is interested in co-producing with Berk. Credits aren't contractual, yet.

Berk began screenwriting in 1980. His involvement in film has been primarily as a writer and associate producer. Currently, he's moving cerned about the nuclear question. Twenty years as an Eastern European correspondent for Newsweek made him intimately aware of the political workings, on both sides of the Iron Curtain, that could lead to a nuclear confrontation. Blumenfeld is a distant relative of Anne Frank, whose legacy also was in diary form. Although originally the story takes place in England, in the screenplay the events occur in Arizona.

Holding a copy of the novel "Jenny — My Diary," Charles Berk of Birmingham works on his project of bringing the book to the screen. Berk is producing the film and also co-wrote the screenplay with the book's British author, Yorick Blumenfeld.

Berk said that filming in the United States is more of a marketing move than anything else. "People overseas don't want to see a U.S. version of a story about them, filmed in their country. But they have a great curiosity about the U.S. Films made in the U.S. always do well abroad because people go to see these films to learn about life here."

Berk meets this week with the former head of Warner Bros. Acquisitions, to discuss distribution of "Jenny." The cameras will be rolling soon on a picture whose message shouldn't be ignored.

into producing with "Two Hot to Handle" — a screenplay he rewrote — starring Peter Fonda, Isabella Rossellini and Jimmy Buffet. Two other films, "Prodigy" and "Scorpion Lady" are in pre-production. And of course, "Jenny," which has become for Berk somewhat of a pet project.

"Jenny" is a story that reaches out and grabs you, makes you think. We want to preserve this quality in the film," Berk said. Berk had a difficult time reading the original novel again before he wrote the screenplay. "IT WAS TOUGH because I knew where it was going. It's difficult because of the subject matter. A lot of people couldn't read this. But the fact the book is a diary — hand-written, so short and to the point — makes it easier to read," he added. Tocco brings new insight

In the right hands, even music of the lighter variety can become noteworthy. This happened recently with the Detroit Chamber Winds and guest pianist James Tocco.

Detroit Chamber Winds, created in 1982 by Detroit Symphony Orchestra musicians, programs seldom performed works that are too small for full orchestra and too large for small chamber groups.

Many such have high entertainment value but may be lacking substance when compared to the heavy stuff. It takes artists of the highest capability to make a case for including such works on a program catering to discriminating audiences.

This program was virtually sold out. There were long lines outside Orchestra Hall hours before the performance. It was necessary to delay the start of the program until most of those in line could be accommodated. It would be far better to open the box office earlier in anticipation for such a response.

TOCCO, BORN in Detroit, is one of the formidable talents from this area who is leaving his imprint on the world at large. He has appeared with many of the world's great major orchestras, including the DSO and is one of a few artists capable of giving a profound touch to music that is seldom taken seriously.

The program consisted of music by American composers, with the exception of the Sextour by Poulenc. This opening work for piano and winds is full of Poulenc's satirical, cheeky style, augmented by shades of flavor that are hard to resist.

The rest of the program was works by Copland, Joplin and Gershwin. The Four Piano Blues by Copland, dedicated to various personalities, are among his lesser known pieces. Under Tocco they became living, breathing entities. The Bernstein arrangement of "El Salon Mexico" provided a fresh experience of the familiar music.

The three rags by Joplin, with Craig Rifel at the piano, proved to be entertaining and of short duration. Small doses are best for this music, whose sparkling and nostalgic style tends to become overly predictable in a short while.

Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" is, of course, one of the most popular works of American music. On this occasion, it became much more than a cute piece of popular entertainment. The orchestra, under conductor Robert Reynolds, presented this work in a manner that commanded respect, with Tocco mixing his virtuosity with sparks of genuine, convincing art.

Gershwin may not win a contest against the three B's, at least not in my mind, but this performance offered a view of Gershwin that was more complex and less frivolous than usual. Behind the syncopated rhythms and the crafty blues harmonies, one could detect a creation of a most thoughtful human mind. Only seldom can something so popular become something so special as well.

has learned from it. Sauvage's new feature-length film grapples with the Holocaust and its legacy. It tells the story of Le Chambon, a small mountain community in Nazi-occupied France, where 5,000 Christians took in and saved 5,000 Jews during the Holocaust. This event is being funded by a grant from the Stein Family Fund.

COMMUNITY CENTER

will offer 20 concerts this summer at its recently renovated amphitheater. Among the attractions are Broadway show tunes by the Michigan Opera Theatre on Sunday, July 23; the String Puppet Theatre with "All Baba and the 40 Thieves," Tuesday, June 27; the Orchard Ridge Arts Camp performance of "West Side Story," Tuesday, July 18; Marcus Belgrave and Phase Two on Sunday, July 30; Ron Coden and the Magicomedian on Wednesday, Aug. 9; Phil Marcus Esser on Sunday, Aug. 13, and Gemini with folk music for the family Tuesday, Aug. 15. Tickets at $10 per person are available at the door. Guests should bring blankets or lawn chairs. For more information call 477-8404.

Kirsten Agresta is only 18, but for 13 years, she has been capturing the public's eye as a harpist.

Her technical skill has impressed judges and musicians. In those 13 years she has won first place in the American Harp Society National Competition in 1984 and the National Foundation for the Arts Award in 1987. She has studied with this country's greatest harpists, Nancy Allen of Juilliard School of Music and Susan McDonald of Indiana University.

Her next challenge is to compete in July against a field of 35 harpists from all over the world, including professionals such as Maria Casals, in the World Harp Competitions at Indiana University.

To prepare for the July competition, she performed music she will play during the competition's four stages last Thursday evening at Oakland University.

SINCE AGRESTA toured the British Isles with the Michigan Festival Choral in 1985, her playing has matured. She elicits the audience's attention now, not as a little girl who plays the harp, an oddity in itself, but for her romantic and exciting approach.

Mary Jane Doerr

Unfortunately she has been plagued with the tendonitis in both arms, a problem with many musicians. She was forced to drop Alvars' Introduction, Cadenza and Rondo from the Thursday evening recital and shorten the first half of her concert.

Despite this, her program was awesome. Rarely do we hear harp recitals. Seldom are we treated to this literature other than on recordings.

The "Variations sur un theme dans le style ancien" by the French-born harpist Carlos Salzedo, who taught at Curtis Institute, was the selection she played to win the Concerto Competition in February at Indiana University. It is sensational, especially the way Agresta performed it. She wove the countless number of two handed trills into the melody and tempo to make the work exciting.

The other major piece was the 1985 Israeli work by Juan Orrego-Salas, Variations on a Chant. In this, she attacked the sudden changes in volume and shocking harshness with a vibrant interpretation. The piece even demands that the performer tap the sounding board for further dynamics.

Other works on the program were the classical Francisque "Pavane et branles." With its stately melody and flowing chords, this piece is always appealing on the harp. Agresta always seems to bring out the strong melodies in her selections. She was even doing that at 14 in the Wales concerts.

Gabriel Faure's "Une chatelaine en sa tour" was given a particularly sensitive treatment, an indication of the developing romantic style in her approach. It was most appealing as was Etude No. 7 by Wilhelm Posse.

Nature rewards keen observers

The reproductive cycle of animals in southeastern Michigan is timed so that young animals are born in spring or early summer. Young born at the beginning of the warm season when food is abundant, will have several months to grow and mature before winter. Cold temperatures and a lack of food make winter a very trying time for all animals, especially young of the year.

nature
Timothy Nowlcki

Though great horned owls, which begin nesting in late January and early February, may seem like an exception to the rule, their young leave the nest in May just in time for the mild temperatures and abundant food of summer.

White-tailed deer drop their fawns in late spring and early summer so they too will grow strong on mothers milk and lush vegetation. Rut activities in fall allow time for the 200 day gestation period to be complete when food is more available. Winter can be hard on pregnant females, but it would be devastating on fawns.

Animals such as snakes, squirrels, and frogs seen in spring, that appear smaller than usual, or expected, are often thought to be baby animals. But many people are not aware of the diversity of species that can be found in our area, and thus mistake new species for the babies of others.

Many people that see a red squirrel for the first time think it is a baby squirrel. Red squirrels are only 12 inches long, compared to the familiar fox squirrel that is 20 inches long. There are several features that help separate one species from another, but size is the most striking first clue.

Those who walk along shallow pools of water in spring and are observant enough to see a small chorus frog or spring peeper, will often call them baby frogs. This is a reasonable deduction because they are only about one and a half inches long, far smaller than the commonly seen 5-inch long leopard frog.

Small species are never seen, or so infrequently seen that they are not readily recognized. A small brown snake that is not much bigger than a large earthworm is often mistaken for a baby snake. Little brown snakes have a black collar line behind the head, are generally no more than 12 inches long, and are about 3/4-inch in diameter. Since garter snakes are much larger and are most commonly seen, people do not associate an adult snake being so thin and short.

There is a great deal of diversity in the natural world, and walking through the fields and forests with a watchful eye will reward you with the seldom seen, but do not become confused because of its size.

'Living will' bill appears dead

By Tim Richard
staff writer

State representatives recently rejected "living will" legislation. But senators Tuesday wouldn't let a similar measure come to a vote.

"How many years does this have to sit in committee?" complained the sponsor, Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills.

He called his SB 135 "more conservative" than a so-called "right to die" bill, which has also failed to pass.

And he blamed Right to Life of Michigan for squelching debate on his bill, which would allow a person to execute a declaration to withhold life-sustaining procedures in the event of incurable injury, disease or imminent death.

IN A QUICK procedural move, the Senate voted 25-9 to ship Faxon's bill back to the Senate Judiciary Committee. All Observer & Eccentric area senators supported the move except two absentees — William Faust, D-Westland, and Richard Fessler, R-West Bloomfield.

Judiciary Chairman Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford, said it was the right move because Faxon had announced plans to amend his own bill. Faxon wanted to lift a requirement that a family member must make a decision about life support when a patient is dying.

"Why should the attending physician have more authority than the immediate family?" Nichols asked.

He said Faxon had accepted the committee substitute prior to offering his amendment. Nichols said the amendment deserved committee discussion before coming to the full Senate.

FAXON ASKED for the floor and proceeded to denounce Right to Life, the anti-abortion group, for pressuring senators to hold up his "right to natural death" bill.

"Right to Life wants to go to war with the seniors. Right to Life wants old people to have a painful, suffering death for weeks and months," he said.

In a shorter and less heated speech, Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, agreed, calling it a "political fact" that Right to Life is "holding hostage" such measures as the living will and durable power of attorney until it can win anti-abortion measures.

"I don't understand why people in the last weeks of life are subjected to pain because others have a view on when life begins," she said.

But Sen. Fred Dillingham, R-Fowlerville, called their speeches "totally abusive and totally political." Dillingham said the "very technical and involved subject" in Faxon's amendment should be returned to committee.

RIGHT TO DIE is a major topic among senior citizens because medical advances allow the vestiges of life to be preserved when patient recovery is apparently impossible.

Faxon's bill would permit such procedures to be withdrawn under terms of the patient's "living will" if two physicians certify death is imminent.

It also would give civil and criminal immunity to medical personnel who withdrew life-sustaining procedures.

Schoolcraft candidates tackle election issues

On Monday, June 12, voters in the Livonia, Clarenceville, Garden City, Plymouth-Canton and Northville public school districts will elect four candidates to the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees.

In an effort to inform the electorate, the League of Women Voters, Livonia chapter, asked each candidate to submit a questionnaire answering several issue-related questions. The responses of candidates seeking the one four-year term are presented here.

The LWV is a non-profit, non-partisan organization. It does not endorse candidates.

Ronalee Bowman

Ronalee Bowman, 46, 27550 Terrence Drive, Livonia, is a trainer for the Michigan Training and Resource Center. She writes and conducts trainings for youth assistance programs.

She holds a bachelor's degree from Marquette University. She is a graduate student in public administration at Eastern Michigan University.

Bowman has been a member of the Livonia 2000 Task Force, a group planning for the city's future, and a Livonia Youth Assistance Program volunteer. She has served on the boards of churches and social service agencies.

1. What changes do you anticipate for Schoolcraft College in the next 10 years, and what would you propose in planning for them?

- Raising standards through faculty and student involvement.

- More remedial studies and advanced liberal arts courses.

- Sharing of power between faculty and administration.

- Move toward specialized computer services.

- Additional contracting with industry for technical retraining of their staff.

- More workshops for community and industry.

2. List three things you would like to accomplish for Schoolcraft College as a trustee.

- Retention of Women's Resource Center and further expansion of its programs.

- Maintenance of free tuition for senior citizens in Schoolcraft district and more programs for the seniors.

- Stabilization of tuition without raising taxes.

3. Schoolcraft College now has a single satellite campus, Radcliff Center in Garden City. Do you favor increasing the number of satellite campuses and, if so, where would you locate them?

At present time, Schoolcraft's two campuses are located within close proximity by freeway to all of the district. I would like to see feasibility study to see whether a satellite may be necessary in western Canton area due to tremendous population growth in that area.

4. What is your position on the current ratio of part-time to full-time faculty at Schoolcraft College? If you could hire, say, 100 more teachers under ideal circumstances, what number would you prefer to be full time and what number part time? Give your reasoning.

Out of 100, I would hire 75 full-time. A full-time teacher is more dedicated to the school and can serve the needs of the students and college better. Part-time teachers serve the school well in experimental programs or in those with small enrollment.

5. Under what circumstances would you ever favor a tuition increase at Schoolcraft College, or a millage increase?

Tuition increase only in the state's share of revenues dropped severely and there was no other recourse. Same with millage. Other revenues can be raised through land lease and additional contracting with private industry to retrain and re-educate their personnel, and by conducting seminars and workshops for industry.

6. What is your position on the current ratio of liberal arts to technical/vocational courses? If you could add more courses to Schoolcraft College's curriculum, what would they be and what percentage would be liberal arts and what percentage technical/vocational?

Add more advanced liberal arts courses and more advanced and specialized technical courses, particularly in automotive and computer sciences. Many students go on to four-year program, while many are in job market and seek retraining to further careers.

Thomas E. Davis

Thomas E. Davis, 50, 47125 W. Seven Mile, Northville Township.

Davis is a supervisor on the finance staff at Ford Motor Co. World Headquarters. He has a bachelor's in business administration from the University of Detroit.

He is a former member of the Livonia Board of Education. He has worked for Ford Motor Co. for 30 years and has been a plant controller in Mexico and the United States.

1. What changes do you anticipate for Schoolcraft College in the next 10 years, and what would you propose in planning for them?

1. Expanded role of Schoolcraft in preparing students for life experiences and employment.

2. Increased dependency on Schoolcraft by the community for educational opportunities for personal enrichment, level of quality and content required to achieve success in life.

Work with the community to understand the educational needs and desires. Assure that Schoolcraft has the goal and resources to meet the changing needs of the community.

2. List three things you would like to accomplish for Schoolcraft College as a trustee.

1. Assist the college in expanding and achieving success outlined in number one above.

2. Establish policy that will result in an improved educational level of the graduates.

3. Establish policy that will result in increased cooperative spirit in the community and within the college.

3. Schoolcraft College now has a single satellite campus, Radcliff Center in Garden City. Do you favor increasing the number of satellite campuses and, if so, where would you locate them?

The issue of satellite campuses would have to be addressed on a need basis and as a result their increased number or location could not be addressed at this time.

4. What is your position on the current ratio of part-time to full-time faculty at Schoolcraft College? If you could hire, say, 100 more teachers under ideal circumstances, what number would you prefer to be full time and what number part time? Give your reasoning.

The question of ratios of part-time to full-time is no something that can be arbitrarily set. The ratio has to depend on the programs that are being offered. As stated earlier, the average person will change their careers five times in their lifetime, so we must have the flexibility in staffing to meet these needs.

5. Under what circumstances would you ever favor a tuition increase at Schoolcraft College, or a millage increase?

As anyone who works, runs a company or maintains a household already knows, it takes a certain amount of finance to do this. It is the same with a college. The only time I would favor tuition increases would be when it is needed to maintain quality programming.

6. What is your position on the current ratio of liberal arts to technical/vocational courses? If you could add more courses to Schoolcraft College's curriculum, what would they be and what percentage would be liberal arts and what percentage technical/vocational?

I do not have a position on this issue at this time. The ratio of liberal arts to technical/vocational courses will have to be determined on a need basis.

The ratio should be determined by the needs of the community and the current ratio appears to be reasonable at this time. More courses should be added after determining that here is need and the ratio should not be predetermined.

Richard J. Hayward

Richard J. Hayward, 17159 Loveland, Livonia, is self-employed as a consultant in structural steel fabrication and erection for industrial, commercial and public buildings.

He holds a bachelor of science degree from Madonna College.

Hayward is a former member of the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees. He served from 1978 to 1981. He also served as a trustee at Madonna from 1980 to 1986. He is a member of the Economic Development Corp. of Livonia and the Business Advisory Council at Madonna College.

1. What changes do you anticipate for Schoolcraft College in the next 10 years, and what would you propose in planning for them?

I do not anticipate too many major changes for the college in this period. The latest studies show that the average person will change careers five times in their lifetime. I see Schoolcraft College changing to meet these needs with regard to retraining and upgrading skills.

2. List three things you would like to accomplish for Schoolcraft College as a trustee.

With no specific goals in mind, my main objective through my background and experience an contribution in the past, I hope to be a productive trustee who will help Schoolcraft College maintain the high standards and goals it has already achieved.

3. Schoolcraft College now has a single satellite campus, Radcliff Center in Garden City. Do you favor increasing the number of satellite campuses and, if so, where would you locate them?

The issue of satellite campuses would have to be addressed on a need basis and as a result their increased number or location could not be addressed at this time.

4. What is your position on the current ratio of part-time to full-time faculty at Schoolcraft College? If you could hire, say, 100 more teachers under ideal circumstances, what number would you prefer to be full time and what number part time? Give your reasoning.

Thaddeus McCotter

Thaddeus G. McCotter, 23, 16237 Southampton, Livonia, is a law clerk with the Livonia firm of Brashear, Tangor and Spence.

A student at the University of Detroit School of Law, McCotter holds a bachelor's degree from U-D where he graduated first in his class through a honors program.

He is a member of the Livonia Youth Commission, Schoolcraft College Foundation, Livonia Symphony League, Livonia Cultural League and Livonia Jaycees. He is a member of Pi Sigma Alpha National Political Honor Society and is the recipient of the Jerome P. Cavanaugh Scholarship at U-D.

1. What changes do you anticipate for Schoolcraft College in the next 10 years, and what would you propose in planning for them?

With state aid falling and tuition and millage assessments increasing, new revenue sources are needed to maintain Schoolcraft's economic foundation before tuition becomes prohibitive and millage increase come impossible. Schoolcraft must work closely with local leaders to acquire more state aid, and expand joint educational undertakings with businesses to secure new revenues and spread fixed costs.

2. List three things you would like to accomplish for Schoolcraft College as a trustee.

I will work with students, teachers, administrators, community leaders and other trustees to maintain a quality, affordable and accessible education without increasing tuition and millage assessments.

3. Schoolcraft College now has a single satellite campus, Radcliff Center in Garden City. Do you favor increasing the number of satellite campuses and, if so, where would you locate them?

The satellite program held in Plymouth-Canton should be increased to provide day-time continuing education classes in accordance with the needs of prospective students and the availability of space and identified revenues.

4. What is your position on the current ratio of part-time to full-time faculty at Schoolcraft College? If you could hire, say, 100 more teachers under ideal circumstances, what number would you prefer to be full time and what number part time? Give your reasoning.

The current ratio 2 to 1 ration of part-time to full-time teachers is as high as it should get. Vacated full-time positions should be filled by full-time teachers whenever possible. When students, faculty and administrators agree that a program is suffering from a lack of full-time teachers, revenues should be sought out and allocated to hire full-time teachers to meet the need.

5. Under what circumstances would you ever favor a tuition increase at Schoolcraft College, or a millage increase?

Tuition or millage increases should only be considered if revenue shortages endangered Schoolcraft's ability to provide a quality, affordable, and accessible education for students. The threat should be measured by students, faculty, administrators, community leaders and the board of trustees. Schoolcraft's mission must be preserved.

6. What is your position on the current ratio of liberal arts to technical/vocational courses? If you could add more courses to Schoolcraft College's curriculum, what would they be and what percentage would be liberal arts and what percentage technical/vocational?

Everyone should read page 8 of the Schoolcraft College catalog. This states extremely well and much more intelligently the fine goals of the college than any simplistic reference to liberal arts versus technical/vocational ration could.

1. What changes do you anticipate for Schoolcraft College in the next 10 years, and what would you propose in planning for them?

Enrollment growth because of burgeoning area population. More realization of the values of a college education. Changing market place necessitating skill updating. Worthwhile leisure activity. Keep in touch with high schools and community. Use surveys and questionnaires. Enlist newspaper's aid.

2. List three things you would like to accomplish for Schoolcraft College as a trustee.

Maintain the community involvement that I see surrounding Schoolcraft. Broaden the widely respected appreciated continuing education program. Expand and encourage fine programs as the outstanding culinary arts. Maintain quality for transfer for four-year colleges.

3. Schoolcraft College now has a single satellite campus, Radcliff Center in Garden City. Do you favor increasing the number of satellite campuses and, if so, where would you locate them?

There is also an extension in Canton-Plymouth. I am not aware of any existing needs, but I would hope to keep an open mind in the future. One must always remember that new campuses are an extremely expensive proposition in terms of plant, administration, maintenance and staffing.

4. What is your position on the current ratio of part-time to full-time faculty at Schoolcraft College? If you could hire, say, 100 more teachers under ideal circumstances, what number would you prefer to be full time and what number part time? Give your reasoning.

I would like to be more aware of the rationale behind the present ratio before I take a firm position. Always been in favor of hiring the best teacher available. Part-time specialists may be best. Full time might be 100 percent committed. Hire on individual basis.

5. Under what circumstances would you ever favor a tuition increase at Schoolcraft College, or a millage increase?

Schoolcraft millage rate is 2.11 mills versus .75 for Wayne County Community College. Tuition rates are the same, out of district tuition is $11-$20 less. Might reluctantly raise these. Main thrust should be to receive equitable amount from state, whose support has declined from 40 percent to 29 percent.

6. What is your position on the current ratio of liberal arts to technical/vocational courses? If you could add more courses to Schoolcraft College's curriculum, what would they be and what percentage would be liberal arts and what percentage technical/vocational?

Allen hurls Patriots past Mercy for title

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Even when the Patriots struggled early in the season, Livonia Franklin coach Joe Epstein thought his softball team had the talent to win a district championship.

And since the Patriots were eliminated by Farmington Hills Mercy last year, senior Lisa Allen wanted to be the winning pitcher when Franklin won that district title.

Both got what they wanted Monday as Franklin defeated the Marlins 4-1 in eight innings at Claude Allison Park in Redford. The game was postponed from Saturday when rain washed out the tournament finale.

"At the beginning of the year, I sat down with my coaches and said, 'We can win a district,' and that's why I'm so happy today," said Epstein, whose team has won 10 straight games and takes a 19-8 record into the regional Saturday at King Boring Field in Dearborn.

The Patriots, who won the Class A title in 1986, play Detroit Cass Tech at 10 a.m. and No. 1-rated Taylor Center faces Westland John Glenn at noon. The final is scheduled for 2 p.m.

Allen, who pitched in the late innings last year when Franklin lost in the district semifinals to Mercy, tossed a two-hitter Monday and had possibly the best performance of her career.

"SINCE THE beginning of the year, our goal was to beat Mercy and win the district," Allen said. "We had to play good defense, and I couldn't have done it without the infield and outfield behind me."

"The coaches have been real supportive and have helped me work on my pitches," she added.

Allen also struck out six and, with a history of walking batters, limited that number to five. After watching her dominate the Marlins, Epstein couldn't say enough good things about the way Allen pitched.

"She was on today," he said, emphatically. "She said she was going to do it and she did."

"Lisa was a controlled pitcher today. She had maybe one wild pitch, and she's averaged eight or nine throughout the year."

"The second thing is we played real good defense behind her, and it takes those two things to win in fast pitch," he added.

Mercy pitcher Amy Edward was just as tough for seven innings during which time Franklin had only two hits, also. But the Patriots got to her in the eighth, deciding the game with three straight hits to start the inning.

SHERRY WEISS led off with a single, and Leslie Szaflarski's double put runners at second and third. A fly ball off the bat of Emily Skura fell in short right field, scoring Weiss with the winning run. Szaflarski and Skura later scored when Mercy made two errors on a ground ball hit by Jenny Mayle.

"We felt we could hit (Edward)," Epstein said. "We did it last year, and we put it into their heads 'She's good but she puts the ball over the plate, and if she does that she's hittable."

"In fairness to Amy, when they play that 3-2 ball (in the Catholic League), the first pitch has to be a strike. I tell the girls, 'When you go up there against a parochial team, you have to swing at the first pitch.' I thought it was just a matter of time."

Spartan duo creates havoc at state meet

Livonia Stevenson's No. 3 doubles team of Scott Ceru and Bob Holycross played spoiler in last weekend's state Class A boys tennis championships at the Midland Community Center.

Unseeded, Ceru and Holycross toppled No. 5 seeds Pete Bourke and Chris Schilling of Grosse Pointe South in an opening-round match, 3-6, 6-0, 6-1.

They upended Scott Dykstra and Rich Samdal in the next round, 7-6, 6-2, before upsetting the No. 4 seeds from Birmingham Brother Rice, Tony Kostello and Jim Miller, 0-6, 6-3, 7-6.

Reaching the semifinals, Ceru, a junior, and Holycross, a senior, lost to East Lansing's top-seeded duo of Dave Helfer and Dan Meara, 7-6, 6-0.

Okemos' Mike Noud and Nick Tsai went on to take the No. 3 doubles crown, one of four flights captured on the day by the newly crowned state champions, who piled up 29 points in the team standings.

Ann Arbor Pioneer was second with 21 and Rice third with 20. East Lansing and Grosse Pointe South finished tied for fourth with 15 each.

REDFORD CATHOLIC CENTRAL was the top area team finisher, tied for eighth with Bloomfield Hills Lahser with 9 each.

Stevenson tied five other schools for 14th with five points. Ceru and Holycross tallied four of the Spartans' five. The Spartans tandem played their best tennis of the year after falling to this year's Western Lakes Conference finals.

The two, however, rebounded in the regional to finish second.

"The kids played well and we're very proud of them," said Stevenson coach George Croll. "It's the first time that had a chair umpire and they had people from Okemos and Pioneer cheering for them. It showed our team had some depth."

Stevenson's other point came from its No. 1 doubles team, Jeff Wiegel and Alan Paterson, who defeated University of Detroit-Jesuit's Henry Chole and John Monnich, 6-3, 6-2, in the opening round before losing to Monroe's Matt LaJune and Jeff Rayce, 6-4, 6-4.

Among those losing opening-round matches for the Spartans were: Roland Wolff (No. 1 singles), Mike Berens (No. 2), Joel Soper (No. 3) and Bob Dimitriou and Matt Downer (No. 2 doubles).

CC's NO. 1 doubles team of Shawn Matthews and Paul Bozyk also reached the semifinals before losing to East Lansing's No. 2 seeded team of Rob Black and Troy Close, 6-4, 6-3.

No. 1 singles player Tony Mikulec won by a first-round default, while No. 2 player Marko Haberko, No. 3 Scott Hazlett and No. 4 William Shade each won their openers before falling in the second round.

CC's John Sheridan and Paul Thieme (No. 2 doubles) advanced two rounds before falling to Pioneer's Bill Higgins and Oliver Medzhradsky, 6-3, 6-4.

The Shamrocks' No. 3 team of Kevin Kennedy and Jason Torres also captured their opener before being eliminated by Traverse City's Brent Mattland and Jeff Tang, 6-2, 6-2.

The area was well represented in the state Class A track championships last weekend at Eastern Michigan University's Rynearson Stadium.

North Farmington's Zalm-Cunmulla headed the list of area performers, winning the boys discus with a throw of 163 feet, 11 inches.

Redford Union's Eric Sheppard finished sixth in the same event with a toss of 154-1.

Other top area boys finishers included Roger Parry (Plymouth Salem) in the high jump at 6-6, and Jason Belaire (Livonia Churchill), who finished sixth in the 300-meter

Intermediate hurdles at 39.4.

Southfield ran away with the team title, scoring 65½ points. Monroe was second with 44 and Ann Arbor Pioneer third with 35½.

PIONEER CAPTURED the girls' team title with 70½ points followed by Detroit Cass Tech (58) and Flint Central (33½).

Wentland of Grand Blanc won the event at 5-7.

In the Class D girls meet Saturday at Hillsdale College, Lutheran-High Westland finished 11th out of 47 schools with 17 points.

The Warriors' 3,200 relay squad of Ellen Anderson, Lori Gentz, Jennifer Gerlach and Stephanie Locke took second with a time of 10:07.3. (Lawton finished first in 9:52.5.)

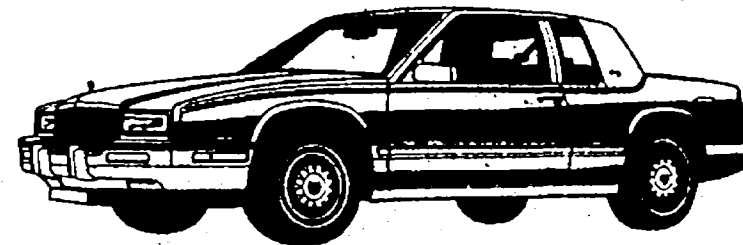

Lori Lapum, Anderson, Gerlach and Locke added a fourth in the 1,600 relay (4:18.6).

Individually, Locke took fifth with a time of 2:24.0 in the 800 run.

At the Class B meet Saturday at Jackson, Steve Johnson of Redford Bishop Borgess finished seventh in the 200 dash.

Stevenson eliminated by Canton in district

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Between now and the state finals in baseball, the greatest obstacle a team may face is itself.

Plymouth Canton overcame such a test when it captured the Class A Northville district championship Monday with a come-from-behind 5-3 triumph over upset-minded Livonia Stevenson.

The Spartans reached the finals of the district with a rain-delayed 5-3 victory over Livonia Churchill Monday. Canton defeated Farmington 8-2 Saturday before the rains came, stopping the Stevenson-Churchill game in the second inning with Churchill up 2-0.

By almost any standard, the Chiefs should have won Monday's final with ease. After all, Stevenson had a meager 9-14 record and had to concentrate on beating Churchill before considering Canton, while the Chiefs entered the game well-rested, boasting a 20-8 mark.

IT DIDN'T turn out that way, however. "I was just disappointed with the way we played," said Canton coach Fred Crissey, who guided the Chiefs to their sixth Class A district title in 15 years. "But the key was we came back and hit the ball when we had to. That and Tanaka's bunt."

Mikio Tanaka delivered his tide-turning bunt with one out and the bases loaded in the fifth. Stevenson was clinging to a 3-2 lead entering the inning, but when pitcher Doug Wasserman walked Canton lead-off man Derek Humphries, Spartan coach Dick DeVries summoned lefthander Phil Woods to relieve.

Woods got off shakily, walking Jeff Kugelman and giving up a bunt single to Jason Demby to load the bases. Woods then hit Mike Culver with a pitch, but the umpire, ruling Culver made no effort to dodge the pitch, refused to award him first base — which would have forced in a run. Woods followed by striking out Culver.

That brought Tanaka to the plate, with one out and the game-tying run at third. Tanaka bunted the first pitch down the first base line and Humphries scored. "He got it right where he wanted it," said Crissey of Tanaka's bunt.

FROM THAT point on, the game belonged to Kugelman. The all-Western Lakes Activities Association star dominated the final innings, both in the field and at the plate.

Lefthander Brian Paupore started for Canton, but departed after four innings trailing 3-2, victimized by three errors and two mental mistakes. Paupore walked Dan Piergentilli to start the second. Errors by Humphries and Geoff Allen — Paupore picked Piergentilli off at second base in between — and a ground out by Rob Chanko left runners at second and third with two out.

Jim Baumblick lofted a short fly ball into left, but Humphries made no effort to retreat and catch it. The ball dropped and both runners scored, putting Stevenson up 2-1.

Allen drilled a Wasserman pitch over the leftfield fence for a game-tying solo home run for Canton in the third, but Stevenson recaptured the lead on some poor field play by Paupore in the fourth. With Paul Namel at first and one out, Paupore's pickoff attempt ended up in right field and Namel sped to third.

Paupore struck out Jason Cotton, but Piergentilli's two-out tap down the third base line froze the Canton pitcher. Paupore could have tried to get Namel at home or Piergentilli at the plate; he did neither, and Stevenson led 3-2 on the infield single.

KUGELMAN TOOK over on the mound in the fifth, a move Crissey insisted was planned whatever the score was. He responded by setting down nine Spartans in order, striking out five — including all three batters in the sixth.

Kugelman was too effective at the plate, but that's hardly surprising. On Saturday against Farmington, he belted two homers. On Monday, his first-inning double delivered Canton's first run.

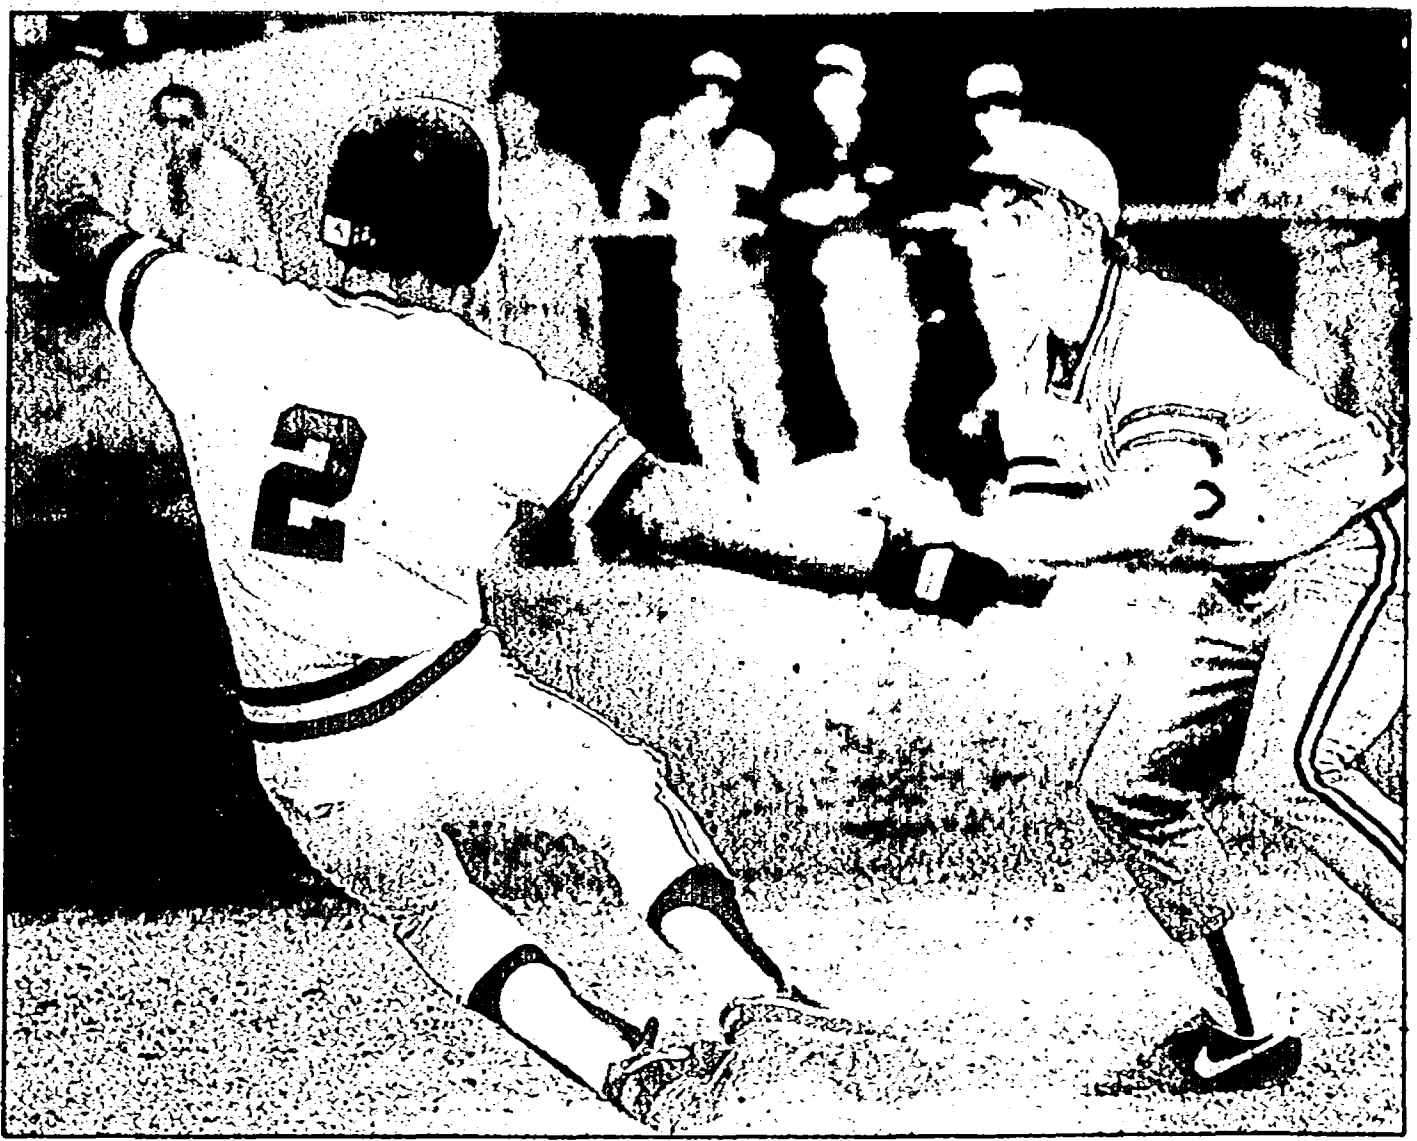

With the game tied in the sixth, the Chiefs — who had managed just five hits in the first five innings — got their attack in gear. Jamie Sisler and pinch-hitter Chris James singled to start the inning and DeVries brought in ace pitcher Mike Dallmonte. He got Ron Groh to fly out, but Humphries singled to load the bases for Kugelman.

"We were trying to be careful with (Kugelman), but with the bases loaded you have to go after him," said DeVries. The result was predictable: a ground single to right, scoring two runs — which Kugelman made stand up as game-winners when he went to the mound.

It was not an easy victory, by any means. But as Crissey said, "We got a little shook, but we came back and when we had to have it, we had it."

"Hey, we're only four (wins) away from the whole thing."

The next step towards "the whole thing" — the Class A championship — is 11 a.m. Saturday at Salem, where Canton meets Redford Catholic Central in a first-round regional game. The winner faces the survivor of the Trenton-Taylor Center game at Canton at approximately 1:30 p.m. Taylor Center is ranked No. 1 in the state.

STEVENSON'S WIN over Churchill was sparked by Dallmonte's pitching and big mistakes at bad times by the Chargers.

"He had an outstanding game," said DeVries of Dallmonte's pitching. "He's the guts of the pitching staff."

The rain-prompted layoff, according to the Stevenson skipper, benefitted his team. "Our guys' concentration was much better today. We didn't take Churchill for granted at all. That was the game we wanted to get — then we played Canton even, until the sixth inning."

Stevenson tied Churchill in the second on Scott Kosikowski's two-out, bases-loaded infield single. The Spartans took the lead for good in the third, scoring twice on Churchill mistakes.

Scott Kenny walked Dan Piergentilli to start the inning. Piergentilli went to second on a passed ball, to third on a fly out to right field, and scored on Kenny's balk. Kenny then walked Cotton and wild-pitched him to second; a ground out let Cotton take third and another Kenny wild pitch brought him home.

Churchill pulled to within one on Jason Gabel's run-scoring single in the fourth, but the Chargers ran themselves out of a potential rally when Kenny was out trying to take third on Gabel's hit. Jim Stoitsades' double play ended the inning.

The Spartans got an insurance run in the sixth on Piergentilli's run-producing single. Churchill showed out at 9-12; Stevenson's final mark is 9-15.

Mercy's Kathleen Berrigan drew a leadoff walk in the eighth and worked her way over to third but was left stranded there as the Marlins saw their season end at 24-12.

"If we could have put the second batter on, that would have brought Amy Edward up, and maybe she could've put one out there," Mercy coach Suzanne Brown said. "If she could have gotten herself to second, we would've had a ballgame."

While the Patriots made three errors, Mercy made six in the last two innings. In the seventh, the Marlins committed four on one play that allowed Franklin to take a 1-0 lead.

Edward, who struck out five and walked four, bobbled Trish Vasselou's grounder and threw wildly to first. Vasselou raced to third, and the throw to that bag went into left field. The run scored when the ball rolled between the outfielder's legs.

THE MARLINS answered with the tying run in the bottom of the seventh, however. Moe Paulin was at third when Amy Miller put down a squeeze bunt. Wells, the third baseman, checked the runner and threw to first, but Paulin raced home before Franklin could get the double play at the plate.

"I felt once we scored the tying run we had momentum going our way," Brown said, "but we just couldn't bring (runners) around. We had second and third (in the third), which was especially frustrating."

"I don't feel teams beat us as much with their hitting as they do by us throwing the ball around and giving them runs."

"And it seems teams have had a day with us all year," she added. "They play the best they ever have. That's how it's been all year long; we never get the breaks."

Epstein, however, was confident, if Allen had a good day and held the Marlins in check, Franklin would fare well.

"My main concern was how little was Lisa going to give up," he said.

Hoffman's double sends Rockets toward regional

By Ray Setlock
staff writer

Christina Hoffman's double in the bottom of the seventh inning proved to be the difference, as Westland John Glenn defeated Garden City, 5-4, in the Class A district softball final Monday at Garden City Park.

Hoffman's two-bagger scored Tracy Martin from first and provided the Rockets with the victory.

"It was an alert play by Tracy that enabled her to score from first base," said John Glenn coach Linda Jimenez. "She watched the ball during the entire play and judged the play well."

The victory improves the Rockets record to 21-6, while the Cougars conclude the campaign with a 20-8 mark.

John Glenn held a commanding 4-1 lead until the sixth inning when softball

Garden City scored a pair of runs, thanks to a single by Cindy White, which scored Kim Falkowski and Krystal Matesic.

Kim Reith added another in the seventh, when she stole home, deadlocking the game at 4-4.

JENNIFER MASSEY pitched 6½ innings for John Glenn, but Sara Morey got the last two outs in the seventh inning to earn the victory.

"Both Sara and Jennifer pitched well," said Jimenez. "They did a terrific job."

Masey struck out three Cougars and gave up nine hits, while Morey was perfect in her third of an inning. Tracy Thompson pitched the entire game for the Cougars, as she gave up nine hits and struck out four. Garden City coach Barry Patterson felt there were no excuses for his team's loss. It was just a well-played game and the team that got the key hits won.

"John Glenn just flat out hit the ball," said Patterson. "They got the big hits when they needed them and they won."

THE ROCKETS' nine hits included three doubles, two of which scored runs.

"We hit the ball well today," said Jimenez. "It was a team effort. We took batting practice before the game and I guess it just paid off."

Martin, Hoffman and Kowitz all had two hits apiece for John Glenn.

With the victory, the Rockets will advance to Saturday's regionals at Dearborn's King Boring Field. They will play at noon against the winner of the Romulus district.

Shamrocks paste Southfield with convincing 9-3 triumph

By Ray Setlock
staff writer

Despite threatening early in the game, Southfield proved to be little trouble Monday for Redford Catholic Central, as the Shamrocks whipped the Blue Jays, 9-3, in the Class A baseball district finals at Southfield High School.

Southfield scored two runs in the first inning and one in the third, but that's the best they could do off the Shamrock pitching staff, as Keith Bozyk, Paul Pirronello and Leo Hutchinson combined for the CC victory.

Bozyk, hampered by arm trouble, started for the Shamrocks, but was relieved following a first inning which saw the Blue Jays tag Bozyk for three hits, a walk and two runs.

"Keith's arm has really been bothering him," said Catholic Central coach John Salter. "We wanted to try and see if he could give us a few innings, but it just didn't work out."

With Southfield leading 3-0 in the top of the fourth inning, the Shamrocks began to rattle Southfield starter David Held. CC scored two in the fourth, when Tom Hill's double scored Pete Elezovic and Hill scored on Kevin Wheeler's two out single to left field.

baseball

THE SHAMROCKS took the lead in the fifth inning, as they sent 10 batters to the plate and managed to score four runs on five hits, thanks to Elezovic's triple which scored Chris Johnston from second.

CC added three more runs in the sixth inning to add a cushion and preserve the 9-3 victory.

Hutchinson shut down the Blue Jays in his 3½ innings of relief. He struck out seven of the 11 batters he faced, including the side in the fourth.

"Leo pitched real well," said Salter. "He throws strikes and that's the key to his success. Last year, Leo had trouble throwing the ball over the plate and any time that happens your not going to do well. He pitched real well for us today."

Held suffered the loss for the Blue Jays. He pitched 4½ innings, giving up four hits and striking out two. Sean Allen, Orlando Austin and Jason Bridges combined on the final 2½ innings. They gave up eight hits and allowed five runs.

"David Held is the only good pitcher we have and a lot was riding on his performance," said Southfield coach Cliff Dubowski. "I knew once he got knocked out of the game we were in trouble."

SALTER KNEW if his team could knock Held out of the game, they would be in prime position.

"I was aware that Held was their only good pitcher," said Salter. "When we started hitting the ball off him, I knew we were in good shape."

The CC offensive attack was sparked by Elezovic's three-hit performance.

"Pete has really been hitting the ball well lately," said Salter. "That's why he's been batting cleanup."

The victory improves the Shamrocks' record to 23-9, as they head to regionals Saturday at Plymouth Salem. They will face the Plymouth Canton Chiefs.

Seattle draftee blanks John Glenn, 1-0

By Bob Stebbins
staff writer

As the Los Angeles Dodgers will attest, a little luck and a lot of pitching will carry a baseball team a long way.

A few breaks and the strong left arm of Bill Kostich — drafted in the ninth round earlier in the day by the Seattle Mariners in the amateur draft — carried undefeated and top-ranked Taylor Center (28-0) past gutsy Westland John Glenn 1-0 in a well-played Class A district final game Monday at Glenn.

Kostich, a pro prospect, shut down the high-scoring Rockets, allowing only five hits and striking out seven. He impressed Glenn coach Norm

Hoenes with his performance. "He throws real well," he said. "He shut us out and we were averaging eight runs a game."

But a few breaks that went against the Rockets helped preserve the shutout.

Jerry Koester led off the Glenn first inning with a walk and was attempting to steal second when controversy erupted.

KOESTER BROKE for second as Kostich came home with a pitch to Eric Stover, who swung and missed. Catcher Rocky Alazazi then collided with Stover while attempting to throw out Koester, and the ball ended up in center field. The home plate umpire called batter interference on the play, and Koester, who had reached third, was ordered back to first and Stover was called out.

The call was made all the more important one out later when Lawrence Scheffer slammed a single.

Hoenes did not argue the call, but wishes it had been made sooner.

"The upsetting thing was that he should have called him out right away. He waited until he was at third base and then told Koester he would have to go back to first."

IN THE SIXTH inning, another twist of fate went against the Rockets.

With one out, Scheffer singled to center and Tom Luxton was inserted to run for him. Brian Stephenson then bunted Luxton to second and left the rally up to Jerry Shippe.

With two outs and Kostich on the mound, the Rams' middle infielders, shortstop Russ May and second baseman Mike Cosby, appeared to dare Luxton to steal third by not even bothering to hold him near the bag.

Luxton did not attempt to steal and, as fate would have it, Shippe then rolled an infield single to May that advanced Luxton to third. He would advance no farther, as Dan Croft flied out to right to end the threat.

Hoenes thought about having Luxton try to steal, but was understandably worried about running the Rockets out of the inning.

"I WAS THINKING about it," said the Glenn coach, "but I didn't want to take a chance. I figured a base hit would have scored him anyway."

The bad breaks spoiled a masterful pitching performance by Koester. He went the distance, allowing only six hits and walking one.

The only run against him came in the fifth inning and was unearned.

Byron Keatley reached second on shortstop Paul Hayes' throwing error, advanced to third on a bunt single, and scored on a sacrifice fly by Mike Cosby.

Hayes' error was Glenn's only miscue of the game and was the lone sour moment in an otherwise sparkling fielding effort.

It's finally final; Falcons take title

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Athletic directors from the Western Lakes Activities Association schools did what Farmington coach Bruce Brown believed was only the thing they could do.

That was to recognize the Falcons as the WLAA champions in girls track and field.

The athletic directors met Monday to discuss the outcome of last Wednesday's league meet, which was suspended because of threatening weather with two events remaining. Farmington was ahead at that point and was awarded the title when the 12 coaches and referee Ed Gabrys voted to let the results stand.

Livonia Stevenson, which was second after the 200-meter dash, questioned the right of coaches and the meet official to make WLAA policy and requested the special ADs' meeting.

PAUL CUMMINGS, the athletic director for the Plymouth-Canton School District, which was host for the meet, said the ADs voted to accept the decision made at the site, thereby making Farmington the winner.

Cummings cited two factors in the decision:

- The Michigan High School Athletic Association rule that says a season cannot be extended beyond the state meet. The state finals were Saturday.

- The games committee, consisting of all the head coaches and the referee, voted to terminate the meet and let the results stand.

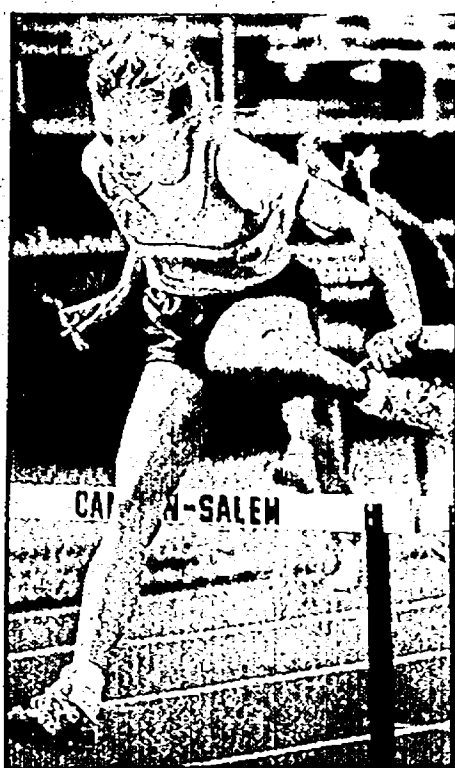

"I thought we had done that the other night, and the ADs substantiated that," Brown said. "I felt good the ADs went along with it. We were the ones who had to stand out there in the rain."

"People say it's a tainted championship, but 10 years from now they'll come down to the trophy case and it will be in there. I certainly don't feel ashamed to have won it, that's for sure."

The Falcons finished with 108 points, Stevenson 103, Plymouth Salem was third and Walled Lake Central a distant fourth. Defending champion Plymouth Canton got fifth place.

The runner-up Spartans led 103-98 following the 800 run, but Farmington pulled ahead after Angie Forge scored 10 points by finishing second in the 200.

"I'd like to think if you're ahead by five going into the two-mile you've got a shot at winning it," Brown said.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Lisa Christensen of Stevenson wins her preliminary heat in the 100-meter hurdles. She finished fourth overall.

"Jennifer Kiel is pretty good money to have in the bank."

FORGE, BY virtue of her high finish in the 200 dash, had in the game-winning hit, and she also was third in the 100 and anchored Farmington's winning 800 and 400 relay units.

"Anyone who has watched her get the baton on the anchor leg of a relay knows they're in trouble," Brown said. "She's one tough competitor. She has a hip problem that hurts her when she comes out of the blocks," he added, "so we don't usually run her in open events."

The Falcons have enjoyed continued success despite the loss of three outstanding sprinters in Amy Trunk, Carrie Maier and Sue Gibson. They are members of Farmington's top-rated soccer team, which had conflicts with the track schedule as the Falcons chased a possible state championship in soccer.

In their absence, Mariko Usuba filled in and helped keep the sprint relays strong. Jennifer Reed, who took first in the 100, Usuba, Nicole Tocco and Forge won the 800, and it was Reed, Shelll Gaul, Usuba and Forge taking first in the 400.

"We used her against Stevenson in the dual meet and got away with it, and I thought we could do it again in the conference meet," Brown said.

FARMINGTON'S other victories came from Julie Lawton in the high jump and Gaul in the 100 hurdles.

Gaul's victory was gratifying because it proved her first place at the regional was not a fluke, Brown said.

"She went head-to-head with all of them and beat them, and there were some pretty good hurdlers there," he said.

"There's always that question. (The regional time) was the fastest time she had ever run. In the dual, she screwed up her steps, and Stevenson's Lisa Christensen beat her. There had to be a question in her mind, but she put the hammer down and beat them."

Stevenson's 3,200 relay team of Suzanne Moore, Jennifer Knapp, Jennifer Pfander and Tracey Clark supported coach Paul Holmberg's faith in them by winning that event with the only sub 10-minute time of the race, 9:52.4.

"If there was anything you could bet on, it was the two-mile relay, and they went out and got the best time in the area," Holmberg said. "They wanted to be the number one team in the area, and they did it that night."

Jessann Martin gave the Spartans first place in the shot put and second in the discus, and Christensen rebounded from a disappointment in the 100 hurdles to win the 300 contest.

CHRISTENSEN had a slim lead in the 100 hurdles, according to Holmberg, when she hit a hurdle late in the race and stumbled, dropping to third and ending up fourth.

"Lisa has won other races when someone else stumbled," Holmberg said. "Maybe it was her time. Coming back and win the 300 helped her go away from that meet feeling positive."

Clark also finished second in the 800, and Holmberg said he was glad he decided to put Pat Bagley in the 1,600. She usually runs the 3,200, but that and the 1,600 relay were the events that were not contested when the meet was stopped.

"It was one of the few times she was doubling," Holmberg said. "As it turned out, we didn't run the two-mile, and that would have meant, as a senior, she wouldn't have run in the league meet."

"I'm awfully glad I did put her in the mile. Otherwise, she wouldn't have had a chance to compete."

Salem had two individual winners in Tracey Livermore and Nikki Wygonik, who won the long jump and 200-meter dash, respectively. Livonia Churchill's Alyssa Belaire captured first place in the 400-meter run.

We Need Volunteers Who Love Happy Campers!

Sun Deer® campers are happy campers and it's no wonder because most severely asthmatic kids are forced to spend their summers indoors. At Camp Sun Deer® asthmatic kids ages 9-12 participate in a variety of outdoor activities, but they can't do it without your help. The limitations and doubts they face can be diminished by a volunteer who cares. Your participation at Camp Sun Deer® can make all the difference in an asthmatic child's summer.

Athens' rally stuns Farmington

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

The desire to win was about all that Troy Athens had left. Time and hope were nearly gone. With less than a minute left in the semifinal game of the Class A girls soccer tournament Wednesday, the Red Hawks appeared to be headed for defeat and Farmington the state final.

But the opposite was true when the game ended as Athens stunned the top-rated Falcons with a 2-1, overtime victory at Fraser High School.

The Red Hawks take a 21-2-1 record into the championship game at 1 p.m. Saturday at North Farmington against Northville, which edged Kalamazoo Central 1-0 in a shootout. Farmington suffered its first loss during a 16-1-4 season.

"I've been to six other state finals and won three," Athens coach Tim Storch said, "but I don't remember feeling as much emotion at a point when things seemed so hopeless."

IT LOOKED as if Farmington would hang on for a 1-0 victory, but that changed quickly and dramatically when Christie Stevens scored the tying goal with only 45 seconds left in regulation time. Beth Huck got the winning goal in the first 10-minute overtime period.

"She turned and looked left, and I was wide open," Stevens said. "It was the perfect angle to shoot, and it was a good looking on Jacque's part.

"I think that made us come out pumped up (for the overtime) and ready to go again. We knew we had to score again. We couldn't let it go that long."

The Red Hawks didn't as Huck scored the go-ahead goal midway in the first overtime.

She rolled off a defender as the two made contact in front of the Farmington goal and, as the defender went down, took a centering pass from Michelle Koby. Huck had a free shot at the goal and knocked it past Falcon keeper Deb Westerkamp.

"MICHELLE PASSED it through, and I was running to it, turned and shot," Huck said, adding she was surprised to get such an open shot against a physical team like Farmington.

The Falcons dominated the first half and kept the pressure on the Athens defense, but the Red Hawks surrendered only one goal to Carrie Maier.

As the half neared the midway point, it began to rain hard, making the ground slick. Maier had an uncontested shot from point-blank range when the Athens goalie appeared to slip and was unable to recover in time.

The Falcons didn't have as many chances in the second half, and the Red Hawks did a commendable job throughout of keeping track of Maier and teammate Amy Trunk, a pair of speedsters at the forward positions.

Athens frequently sent the ball into Farmington territory with long kicks out of its end, trying to catch the defense off guard and let its forwards, especially Lisa Grace, go 1-on-1 with Westerkamp.

The Falcons countered by shooting the ball, deep to their goalie and thwarting the attempted charges, but it also had the effect of wearing down the opposition, according to Storch.

AT THE 20-MINUTE mark, the Red Hawks went with three forwards and, as a last-ditch, desperation move, put four into the game with 10 minutes left, he said.

"Because of our speed up front, we're quick and tenacious, and I thought we could force our own breaks," Storch said. "I was really confident when we tied it because our conditioning is superior, and we substituted a lot. They didn't substitute."

"I was confident if we got them in a situation where it would be decided late in the game we'd win. But when you're down one with 45 seconds to go, that's cutting it awful close."

Storch added he has been encouraging Stevens, a freshman, to take more shots. He was quite pleased with the one she attempted Wednesday.

"She couldn't have scored a bigger goal — unless, of course, she scores the winning goal Saturday," he said.

Abraham, Resmer resign at Borgess

By Brad Emmons
staff writer

Buckingham Palace's changing of the guard has some competition over at Redford Bishop Borgess High.

In an unrelated series of coaching resignations, new athletic director Mike Fusco is searching for a new volleyball coach, new girls basketball coach, new baseball coach and new softball coach.

After 10 seasons, Jerry Abraham, one of the school's most successful coaches, has stepped down as volleyball coach.

Also gone is Mike Resmer, who leaves after five seasons as girls basketball coach.

Baseball coach Norm Brusseau has also stepped down after one season, as well as softball coaches Marilyn Wallenmaier and Linda Ferenzi.

Fusco has filled one vacancy, hiring Kris Galczwyk, a former pro player from Poland, as the new boys soccer coach.

Fusco is also new, having taken over for Fred Mushinski as AD in March. One of Fusco's first moves occurred earlier this year when he hired Walt Bazylewicz as the head football coach, replacing Dan Henry, who had resigned last November.

ABRAHAM'S DEPARTURE may be the school's biggest loss.

He led the Spartans to five district and two regional titles, three Catholic League crowns and two Operation-Friendship titles. Seventeen of his players have gone on and played collegiately.

"I decided earlier this year that this would be my last year," Abraham said. "Coaching three sports had become too much."

Abraham, a middle school teacher in Taylor, also coaches the Madonna College women's squad and the Taylor Center High softball team, ranked No. 1 recently in Class A with a 28-1 record heading into the regionals.

"I've had to devote more to Madonna than previously expected," he said. "It's been a great 10 years at Borgess, probably my most enjoyable. The school has been very good to me and the principal (Sister Joan Charnley) has done a good job. But right now coaching three sports is not in my best interests."

Abraham took two volleyball teams to the state finals — 1986 in Class A and 1988 in Class B.

RESMER'S LOSS will also be felt.

Inheriting a losing program and being saddled with three consecutive losing seasons, Resmer brought the program back to respectability, going 21-20 his final two seasons including a Class A district crown in 1987 followed by a Class B district championship in 1988.

Fusco is taking applications for the volleyball, girls basketball, baseball and softball coaching vacancies. Those interested should call Fusco at 255-1103, or send their resume to: Mike Fusco, Athletic Director, Bishop Borgess High School, 11685 Appleton, Redford 48239.

Resmer, who had been laid off as a Borgess physical education teacher, spent the past school year substitute teaching at the school.

"I was committed to coach this year, but I'm looking for permanent employment," Resmer said. "I'd like to have a permanent coaching and teaching job at the same place, but there were more layoffs at Borgess this year and there's nothing available next year."

"I thought it was only fair to Mike Fusco and the school that I go now. There's no bitterness. I'm sorry this had to happen, but to be fair to the program, it's time to leave so somebody else can come in and get things going this summer."

BRUSSEAU, unlike Abraham and Resmer, may not have left under the best of terms.

He will join former Borgess baseball coach Mike George at Madonna College as an infield instructor.

In his only season as coach, Brusseau went 4-18 with the Spartans. The team often suited up with only 10 players in the Catholic League's tough Central Division.

He complained about the availability of the school gym for indoor practice.

"I had to go to the principal because the gym was being used for open basketball," Brusseau said. "I was not going to come back under any circumstance. I understand that Mike has to look out for his program (Fusco is also the head basketball coach), but as AD he should look out for the other teams, too. It's just not fair to baseball."

"I'm not mad at the guy because I have a chance at Madonna to make probably more money with less aggravation. My leaving is not related to the other resignations. I just wanted a good baseball program."

FUSCO WOULD only say about the Brusseau departure: "He (Norm) took the job under a one-year situation. I was not here when he was hired. Otherwise, I have no comment. It's too bad he feels that way."

Fusco said Galczwyk, his new boys soccer coach, is a certified teacher who graduated from the University of Warsaw.

Under Fusco, Borgess is reinstating its boys program after a year's absence.

"We have the kids who want to play," said the Borgess AD. "I hope Kris will also take the girls job next spring as well."

HER EYES opened wide and the sweet little grin turned into a full-fledged smile. "A fishy, daddy! A fishy!"

It was her first. Daddy's little girl was hooked.

We were enjoying a barbecue at my brother's house last week when I decided to take my 3-year-old daughter, Jenelle, for her first boat ride in our 14-foot flat-bottom fishing boat.

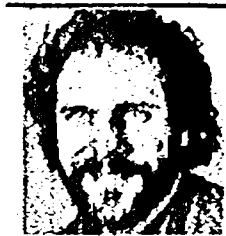

After a couple trips around the bay, which she totally enjoyed, we anchored the boat so dad could take a few casts. (It would have been a sin not to take a cast or two since we were out on the lake, wouldn't it?)

Anyway, it only took about a minute for our first bite. I set the hook and handed the rod to Jenelle. Now obviously, this task was a bit confusing for a 3-year-old (actually she won't be 3 until July). So with mom bracing the rod, Jenelle began cranking the handle, which in itself was confusing for her since clockwise and counter-clockwise are not yet in her vocabulary. We finally got everything (and everyone) working correctly and Jenelle reeled in a big, healthy crappie.

MOMENTS LATER, another fish hit and after dad set the hook she hauled in a nice 14-inch largemouth bass.

"Can I touch it," she asked, eagerly reaching out with her little hand. I attempted to show her how to hold a bass by reaching in and grasping the lower lip, but she'd have no part of that. "He'll bite me if I put my finger in his mouth, daddy," she exclaimed. How could I argue with logic like that? She settled for touching the fish's back.

We released the fish, since I really didn't think she was ready for a lesson on cleaning, and headed back to shore.

I don't think I'll ever forget the thrill and excitement that little girl experienced when she reeled in that first fish. Now I have a hard time getting out the door when I go fishing because she wants to go with me.

IF YOU'VE NEVER gone out fishing, or never taken your kids fishing, this weekend is the best time of the year. On June 10-11, in conjunction with National Fishing Week, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources is offering Free Fishing Days. On these two days, Michigan residents and non-residents can fish the state's waters without a fishing license or a trout/salmon stamp. The DNR will also waive the $2 car and $4 car/trailer entry fees at the 44 public access boat launching sites (not state parks).

Fishing clinics, workshops, tournaments and derbies are being held over the weekend throughout the state, including some right here close to home.

Lakeside Fishing Shops in Farmington and St. Clair are holding a state-wide walleye and perch tournament (473-2030); Stony Creek Metropark is holding a Beginners Family Fishing Clinic (781-4242); the Oakland County 4-H Club is holding a Take A Kid Fishing Workshop at the Nature Center in Drayton Plains (858-0894); a bass tournament is being held in Rochester Hills (656-4673); the City of Wyandotte is holding a fishing derby (246-4505); there is a walleye tournament in Grosse Ile (676-7157); and there is a fishing derby in Riverview (283-2660).

For a complete statewide list of Free Fishing Days events contact the DNR at (517) 373-1280 or (517) 373-1214. For an update on fishing conditions and fishing hotspots, call the DNR's fishing hotline at (517) 373-0908.

WOLMAN'S EXTRA WEATHER-RESISTANT LUMBER

It really weathers the elements!

Water beads right off Wolmanized EXTRA Weather-Resistant Lumber because it's got something "extra" — it's pressure treated with a special water repellent to prevent moisture penetration from rain and snow. All wood swells and expands when it absorbs moisture. As it dries, it releases moisture and shrinks. Constant expansion and contraction causes grain raising, checking, splintering and warping. Spray or brush-on water sealers just can't repel water like Wolmanized EXTRA Lumber — in laboratory tests Wolmanized EXTRA Lumber shows almost two-thirds more moisture resistance than pressure-treated lumber protected with a leading water sealer. Of course, this fantastic lumber is also pressure treated with chemicals for lifelong protection against termites, rot and decay. Don't settle for ordinary treated lumber. Insist on Wolmanized EXTRA for your deck, 2x6 & 5/4x8 decking.

Designed for family living

By Corinne Abalt
staff writer

While Herman Frankel says his new single-family homes in Woodcliff, West Bloomfield are "definitely designed for families with children," he's introducing a new level of sophistication into his designs.

They are among his largest and most lavish, from approximately 3,500-4,200 square feet, with a base price of $359,900. Interior designer for the model, Richard Daniels of Birmingham-based Brian Killian & Company, brought a fresh, dynamic approach to the model and worked with the Frankel Organization on the planning.

Frankel has built extensively in West Bloomfield, and his style in both condos and single-family homes is well-known. Woodcliff, like many of his other developments, has winding roads, scenic lots, trees and rolling terrain.

THE EXTERIOR of the houses is a combination of brick, cedar siding and fieldstone. In the model, the Meridian II, the interior space is clearly defined, but an open feeling is created by the two-story great room and foyer, the many palladium windows, the curved edges of the archways, the soaring marble detailing of the great room fireplace and the pleasant, efficient, traffic pattern.

On the second floor of the model are four bedrooms, counting the spacious master suite, and a total of three baths.

Daniels chose to showcase the furnishings in wonderful shades of teal, blue and muted green in combination with black against warm cream walls and carpeting.

The floors are partly carpeted and partly hardwood with a light pickled oak finish. A large alcove in the family room with a large closet/storage space on one wall is left uncarpeted. This would make a nice play area for small children that could double as a dance floor for teens and adults.

THE COLORS and appointments in the kitchen and adjacent nook with the studio ceiling are a refreshing change from the prevailing sterile, white, high-tech look.

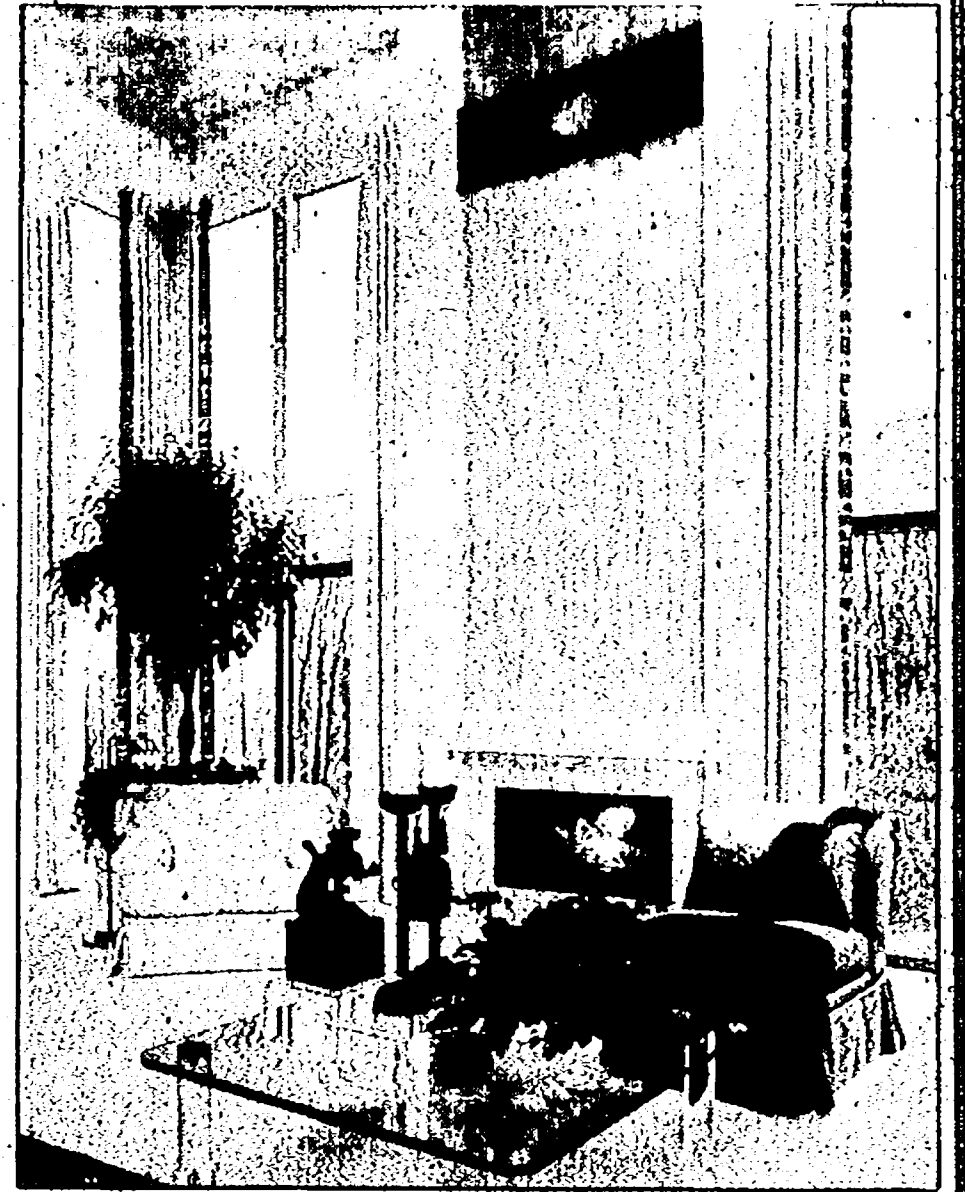

Eating area adjacent to the kitchen continues the urban/rural blend. It is a chic, sophisticated interior with a lovely view of the woods beyond.

Daniels chose a soft pastel shade called lindenwood for the countertops and used black as an accent color. The wallpaper in the nook is a gray background with a small contemporary print.

The frame of an old screen door is mounted as a wall sculpture, and two classic fruit prints add touches of interest. The lighting fixture over the table is totally contemporary. It's a provocative mix of colors and styles that works well.

The flow of color and style, from the sleek contemporary approach in the dining room, to the ultimately comfortable master bedroom is natural, not too tightly structured and pleasing to the eye.

In both design and look, the house is impressive without being ostentatious. It is well planned with many details that should contribute to a comfortable family life.

The model is open from noon to 6 p.m. every day but Thursday. To reach the model, stop at the Woodcliff on the Lake models on West Bloomfield Lake Road, north of Walnut Lake Road, 1 1/4 miles west of Orchard Lake Road. For information, call 683-3500.

Corner of the family room shows the beautifully detailed tile fireplace. The room includes an alcove and storage area.

Designer Richard Daniels heightened the drama of the first floor powder room with a sculpted marble splash in front of the mirror and a provocative work of art.

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

Paper artistry celebrates life

By Arlene Funke
special writer

LIVONIA ARTIST Gloria Valentic calls her stark, paper-relief art a tribute to the "beauty of the survivor."

Valentic creates unusual, intricately layered abstract works of art that look weathered and time-tested. She feels excitement — and discovery — as she shapes her paper into an image.

"I have to be surprised," said Valentic, a 55-year-old self-trained artist. "That's what art is — searching. It goes into your unconsciousness."

Valentic, who has been working with paper for around five years, soon will have her first public exhibit. Approximately a dozen of her pieces will be on exhibit in the Livonia City Hall from June 12-30 as part of public art shows sponsored by the Livonia Arts Commission. (An interview with the artist will be aired at 8 p.m. Monday on Metrovision's Channel 8.)

Valentic finds inspiration in nature, classical music and poetry. Her work salutes the power of hope in the face of hardship, illness or deprivation. One of her heroes is writer

Elie Wiesel, champion of peace and a spokesman for the millions of victims of the Nazi Holocaust.

"EVERY MOMENT is precious," Valentic said. "people are worth everything. We are part of something very big. We shouldn't waste it."

Valentic's technique is to take thin, oriental paper and paint it with gouache, an opaque water-based paint. Valentic then entwines the paper into layers, folds and fronds.

It's no coincidence that the pieces look weathered.

"It was all unconscious," Valentic said. "They are survivors. They are a celebration of life."

Valentic likes to hike and collect rocks. She especially enjoys sitting in her yard watching birds and looking at trees.

"Nature humanizes us," she said. "It makes us feel we are part of something big."

Valentic is aware people interpret her work in many ways.

For example, her "Creature with One Horn" was named because it appears to have a shaft, or horn, jutting upward. Another person may look at the delicate layers of sandy colored paper and see an image of gnarled, brittle leaves lying in a dimly lit forest.

THAT, IN TURN, may trigger a deeper response, and "that's the whole idea," said Valentic.

Her "Cocoon in Burgundy, No. 2," is similarly muted in color and subtly shaped. Valentic's paper relief pieces, mounted on black mat and enclosed in a black frame, are priced from $800-$1,000.

"I'm very optimistic, but the human tragedy — illness and grief — is there," Valentic said. "It's what you do with that tragedy (that counts). People who run from the emotion of human tragedy won't grow."

Valentic's current work is the culmination of a longtime search for artistic expression.

In the early 1980s, after her three children were grown, Valentic enrolled at Henry Ford Community College. She originally had hoped to teach English at the college level. But after transferring first to Eastern Michigan University and later to the University of Michigan-Dearborn, she concluded she wasn't "compatible" with classroom life.

"It is a free spirit that propels my work," Valentic said.

She began working in clay, but became dissatisfied.

"I loved it, but I couldn't take it far enough," she said. "I wanted more."

She finds paper "maddening," but exciting. Many of the thoughts and feelings which she enters into her journal eventually find their way into paper relief.

"I CAN EXPRESS myself totally in this medium," Valentic said. "Oriental paper is thin. It's difficult to work with. You can't be afraid of it."

Valentic waves away questions about brushes and paints. The key, she said, is to go into the personal "cave" and search for feelings.

"It is something that takes place between you and your creation," she said. "You have to concentrate and do what (the art) is telling you."

Currently Valentic is looking for a gallery to exhibit and sell her unusual pieces. She has made peace with the reality that some people reject her style.

"It will always pinch a little," she said. "As long as I have my mind and soul, I'm alive. I thank God all the time for what he has given me and to be able to share it with other people."

Pastels: blocking and stroking

FRUSTRATION can happen in any medium, but only in pastel is the frustration of mind and hand so graphically displayed on face and body. In other words, it gets all over you.

In order of my lesson plans, pastels are usually the first stumbling block.

First of all, what are pastels? Color is often referred to as pigment. Pigment in an oil base is known as oil paint. Pigment in a resin or plastic base is known as acrylic. Pigment in a caslen or tempura base is known as watercolor. Pigment in a glue base is known as pastel.

The quality ranges according to the amount of pigment in the glue. Less-expensive pastels have an addition of chalk to the glue base. These are most common (even though they are dusty) because they are economical. A set of 48 colors costs less than $15.

PURE PIGMENT pastels are my favorite, and they are a pleasant step up after you have used the lesser-quality pastels. A 30 half-stick assortment of pure pastels costs around $18.95.

It is still best to start with a lower-quality set because when you begin artwork in color, it is best to have a wide range of colors.

Start with a paper that has some tooth to it. Now you can make background colors with pastels or use colored paper.

First, line draw the basic shapes of your subject in vine charcoal and make correction with a kneaded eraser. Vine charcoal is merely a charred piece of wood, and it makes a warm, gray line.

A KNEADED eraser is an artist's best friend — and my dog's favorite treat. It is soft and pliable and when it gets dirty, you stretch or "knead" it until it becomes clean.

After your line drawing looks complete, begin "blocking" in the main colors. Blocking means putting in large areas of color with a mini-artifacts

David Messing

num of care or accuracy. Then mix your colors by stroking one over the other. The back of bluebird, for example, is a rich blue to make a base color of a similar blue.

To lighten the area, simply strike a lighter blue over the base color. This is similar to painting.

Dark colors shade the base color, and light colors tint or lighten the base color. All in all, the most difficult stage in a pastel drawing is not the beginning structure or the finishing details, but the middle. This stage looks messy, is somewhat confusing and most often arouses fear of failure.

I TELL my students that this stage should look like a "paint-by-number" picture. Don't try to blend colors, just place them where they should be. Blending will come with the finishing.

Entertainment a plus at arts festival

A highlight of area art events occurs this weekend when the annual Arts and Crafts Festival is presented

Saturday and Sunday by the Livonia Arts Commission. The two-day event will again be held at Greenmead, Livonia's historical site at the corner of Eight Mile and Newburgh. There is no admission charge or parking fee. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days.

Approximately 200 exhibitors will be featured in all areas of art work, including fine arts, textiles, pottery, wood, metal and glass. Country arts will also be represented in the festival that awards cash prizes to winners selected in the various categories by a panel of judges.

Judges include Jean Gralley, a former member of the arts commission and an illustrator/writer for Cricket magazine for children; Roger Cseresznye, art instructor for the Wayne-Westland Community Schools and a past president of the Michigan Art Education Association; and Sue Price, also a past president of the Michigan Art Education Association and a past board member of the Michigan Art Train.

FAMILY-TYPE ENTERTAINMENT will be expanded at this year's festival, according to chairman Betty Ward. Some of the performers scheduled include Gemini, a popular duo who will be in the spotlight from 3-4 p.m. Saturday. Sammy's Clown Band will precede them at 1-3 p.m.

Other entertainment includes a dulcimer group, 2:30-5 p.m. Saturday and folk singer Neil Woodward.

Several community groups who will sponsor refreshment booths with proceeds benefitting their respective organizations. Participating will be the Livonia Cultural League, with pizza and ice cream booths; Metropolitan Youth Symphony, with cookies, honey-glazed nuts, soft drinks and other hot food items; and the Rosalyn Bryant Memorial Fund with a food concession.

As in previous years, prizes, donated by the exhibitors, will be given away hourly to fair-goers.

Shuttle service will be available from the parking lot, on Newburgh Road, to the main festival grounds.

Learn from photographs of others

There's a lot to read in this photograph by Monte Nagler and many questions to ask yourself about it. Study it closely and see what answers you come up with. It was taken at Emerald Pool Falls in Zion National Park.

Did you know that one of the best ways to improve your photography is by closely looking at the photographs of others?

Whether it's browsing through a gallery or leisurely thumbing through a good photography book, many benefits can be yours from a good, hard, critical look and analysis of the photographs. It doesn't matter whether you prefer landscapes, street scenes, abstracts, people pictures, color or black and white.

The important thing is to start looking at pictures and to begin to understand not only what the photographer is trying to communicate but, more importantly, how he or she is doing it and what the picture is doing to you.

By tuning into your own emotions and asking yourself some important questions as you "read" a photograph, you'll gain insight and technical skills that will certainly help you in making your own photographs.

Begin by asking what the subject or main theme of the photograph is. Does it move you and how do you respond to it? How do you suppose the photographer felt about it?

Study the lighting. Is it harsh or soft? What direction is it coming from and what time of day do you think it was? Ask yourself what might happen to the picture if the lighting were different.

What camera position was used — near or far, low angle or high? Why do you think the photographer used a particular camera position and what does it do for the picture? How might another camera location affect the photograph?

What lens do you think was used and why? Was it a wide angle, normal or perhaps a telephoto?

As you know, a lens' focal length and aperture greatly affect depth-of-field. Is there a lot of depth-of-field or little in the picture? How would a change in depth-of-field alter the final image?

What about shutter speed — slow or fast? Is the subject blurred in motion or caught at the peak of the action? Look for use of filters or any other special effects, too. Of course, you should study the composition carefully. How are the elements of the picture arranged and does it all make sense to you? If so, tune into your feelings about it. Try to interpret what the photographer is saying and what your responses are.

Stirring message

Livonia Historical Society member Harriet Larson will be cooking up something special from noon to 3 p.m. Saturday in Jacobson's Livonia store cook's galley to help promote the society's Heritage Cookbook. Larson will prepare three salad recipes she has in the cookbook — one using the unusual combination of spinach and strawberries. Larson edited the book, the proceeds of which are earmarked for the restoration of the Alexander Blue House in the historical village at Greenmead. The cookbook is $12.95 and is available at Jacobson's, Greenmead and Civic Center Library.

'Dramatic Sounds' is Friends' offering

The Friends of the Opera will hold a special spring concert, "Dramatic Sounds" at 8 p.m. Saturday in Kresge Hall of Madonna College, Livonia. The concert will feature dramatic arias and duets performed by local professional singers accompanied by piano, harp, flute and violin.

The dramatic voice is characterized by a large, resonant sound, often dark in timbre, as opposed to the lyric or coloratura voice which is light and leggy. Typical of this repertoire are pieces such as, "Vissi D'Arte" from "Tosca," which will be performed by dramatic soprano Julie Rose; and the "Sequedilla" from "Carmen," to be sung by mezzo-soprano Claritha Buggs. Tenor Phillip Hawk will perform the beloved aria "Una Furtiva Lagrima," and baritone Quinto Milito will offer "Nullo, Silenzio" from Puccini's powerful one-act opera, "Il Tabarro."

Other highlights include the beautiful duet from Bizet's "Pearl Fishers" and "Spirito Adorator" with Phillip Hawk accompanied by his daughter Erin Hawk on the violin.

Also featured are instrumental numbers specially arranged for this concert and some lighter fare such as "O Mio Babbino Caro" and "If You Believe" from "The Wiz."

MEZZO-SOPRANO BUGGS is a guest artist who joins Friends of the Opera for this concert. She made her professional debut in 1983 with Michigan Opera Theater as Siebel in Gounod's "Faust." She received her bachelor's in music and master's in voice performance from the University of Michigan and has won several competitions, including the 1983 Metropolitan Opera District Competition. She received third prize in the 1984 Great Lakes Regional Met competition, and first prize in the Leontyne Price vocal competition of 1984. Her roles include Suzuki in "Madame Butterfly," the title role in Monteverdi's "The Coronation of Poppea," and the Third Lady in Mozart's "Magic Flute."

Also in her first appearance with the Friends of the Opera will be dramatic soprano Julie Rose of Redford. She has appeared as a soloist with many local orchestras, including the Warren Symphony ("Messiah"), the Macomb Symphony (Bach "Magnificat"), the Oakway and Scandinavian symphonies (opera selections), and the Dearborn Chamber Orchestra (Mozart's "Exultate Jubilate").

She is also a regular soloist with Detroit's World Class Chorale, Cantata Academy, and will tour Germany, Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland this summer in that capacity. She is a leading soprano with the Michigan Lyric Opera and has sung with the Piccolo Opera Company, the International Opera Theater, the Dearborn Choral Art Society, the German Masters Chorus, and many others as a featured soloist and chorus member. She is currently soloist at Christ Church Cranbrook and teaches out of her own studio.

AS A POWERFUL dramatic tenor, Phillip Hawk, also of Redford, is blessed with a rare voice type. He is soloist at Central Woodward Christian Church in Troy and has performed with the Dearborn Civic Opera, the Italian Opera Theater and the Michigan Lyric Opera, the Cranbrook Summer Chorale, the Colonial Bank of Williamsburg, Va., Cantata Academy and Northville's Marquis Theater.

He has been recitalist at Lansing and Oakland Community Colleges and has appeared on television and made several recordings.

Baritone Quinto Milito is familiar to the Italian community, having appeared in numerous concerts both here and abroad. He received his training at the G. Rossini Conservatory in Italy, which boasted such well-known alumni as Mario Del Monaco, Franco Corelli and Renata Tebaldi. He has twice won the Metropolitan Opera Regional Competitions and was also awarded a special prize by conductor Martin Rich of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

He has performed under the baton of the internationally known conductor Thomas Schippers, in the lead role of Mercadante's "Il Giuramento" at the Spoleto Festival in Italy.

Admission is $5. Tickets will be available at the door. For more information, call 582-0997 or 845-9634.

Now Renting: A landmark address.

Since its completion, the elegant Shore Club Apartment Tower has been a landmark for ships and boats cruising Lake St. Clair. But it's also been a landmark in luxury living.

You can choose from highrise, garden apartment or townhouse lifestyles. All provide the same convenient, luxurious, environment.

Shore Club is situated in a park-like atmosphere. Here we combine the peacefulness of the lake with stately old shade trees. Our community-by-the-lake is conveniently located near major expressways and surface routes, leading to most every part of the Metropolitan area. As well as close to Grosse Pointe Shopping districts.

What's more, because Shore Club is on the water, renters have first priority on our available boat wells.

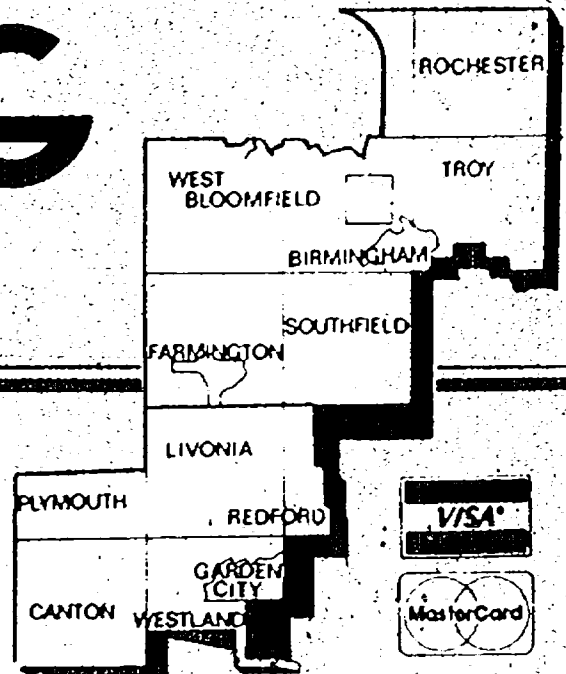

We're now renting apartments. So come and see why Shore Club is the most prestigious address on the waterway. We're sure you'll find everything about it is of landmark quality.

WRITE IT AND REAP!

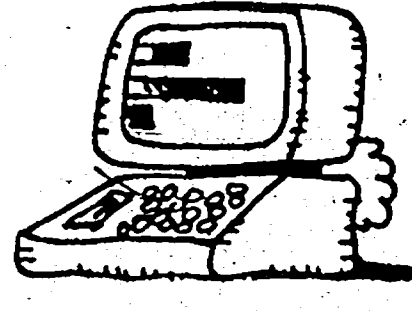

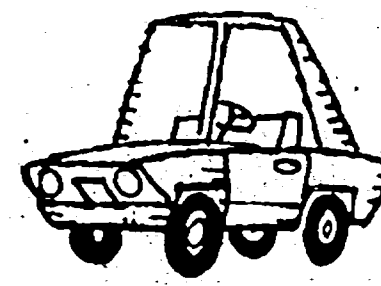

Writing a classified ad that gets results—whether it be for real estate, employment, the personals, transportation, or merchandise— is easy if you follow the guidelines below.

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

Detroit Grand Prix History

The origin of the Detroit Grand Prix dates back to November of 1980, when the directors of Detroit Renaissance, a non-profit urban development organization, voted to study the feasibility of a world-class motorsport event in downtown Detroit.

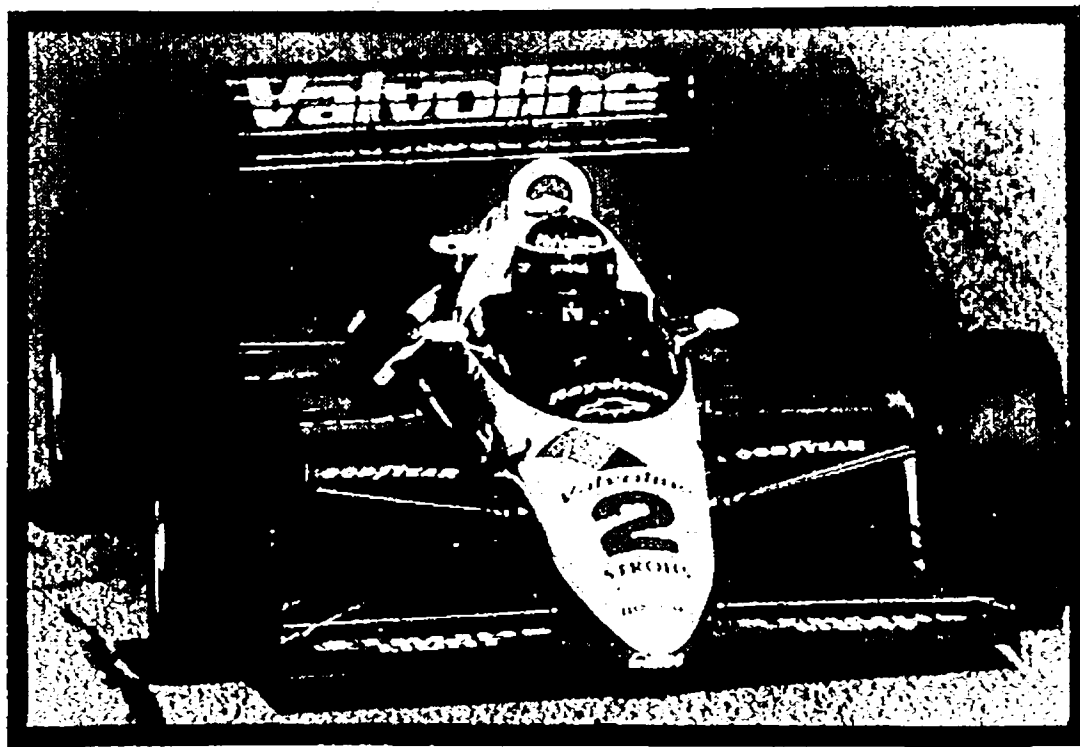

The study assessed the logistical and financial impact such an event would have on the City of Detroit and its people. The study sought the interest of international Grand Prix sanctioning bodies and meetings were held with state and local officials to determine what legal hurdles had to be cleared.

A welcome was found in London and Paris, capitals of Formula One World Championship racing. The hurdles in the Michigan State Capitol, however, were more formidable.

Fortunately, the Detroit Grand Prix idea quickly found an advocate in Lansing, David Callanan, special assistant to William Faust, majority leader of the Michigan State Senate.

The legislation was drafted to permit the street race to be held, but not before hard questions of spectator safety and sufficient economic benefit to the city and state were answered.

The safety question was foremost in legislators' minds. Extensive engineering studies, however, demonstrated the Formula One Grand Prix race for Detroit could be accomplished without incident. The Detroit Grand Prix was "on the road."

With the support of Detroit's Mayor Coleman A. Young, no fewer than 11 City departments and offices played important roles in planning the race and construction of the street circuit. The result was a 20-turn, 2.5 mile downtown race course, which provided spectators with a superb view of the high-tech racing machines at full speed.

At the end of the 1988 race, the City of Detroit, Detroit Renaissance and Formula One organizers agreed in principle to relocate the Detroit event to Belle Isle, due to development projects slated to take place on the downtown course. Detroit Renaissance was also authorized to proceed with contract negotiations, as the current contract had expired with the conclusion of the 1988 event. In the ensuing months, downtown development plans shifted, which allowed the 1989 race to continue on the streets of downtown Detroit. However, facility changes demanded by the Formula One governing bodies for 1989 were not physically possible.

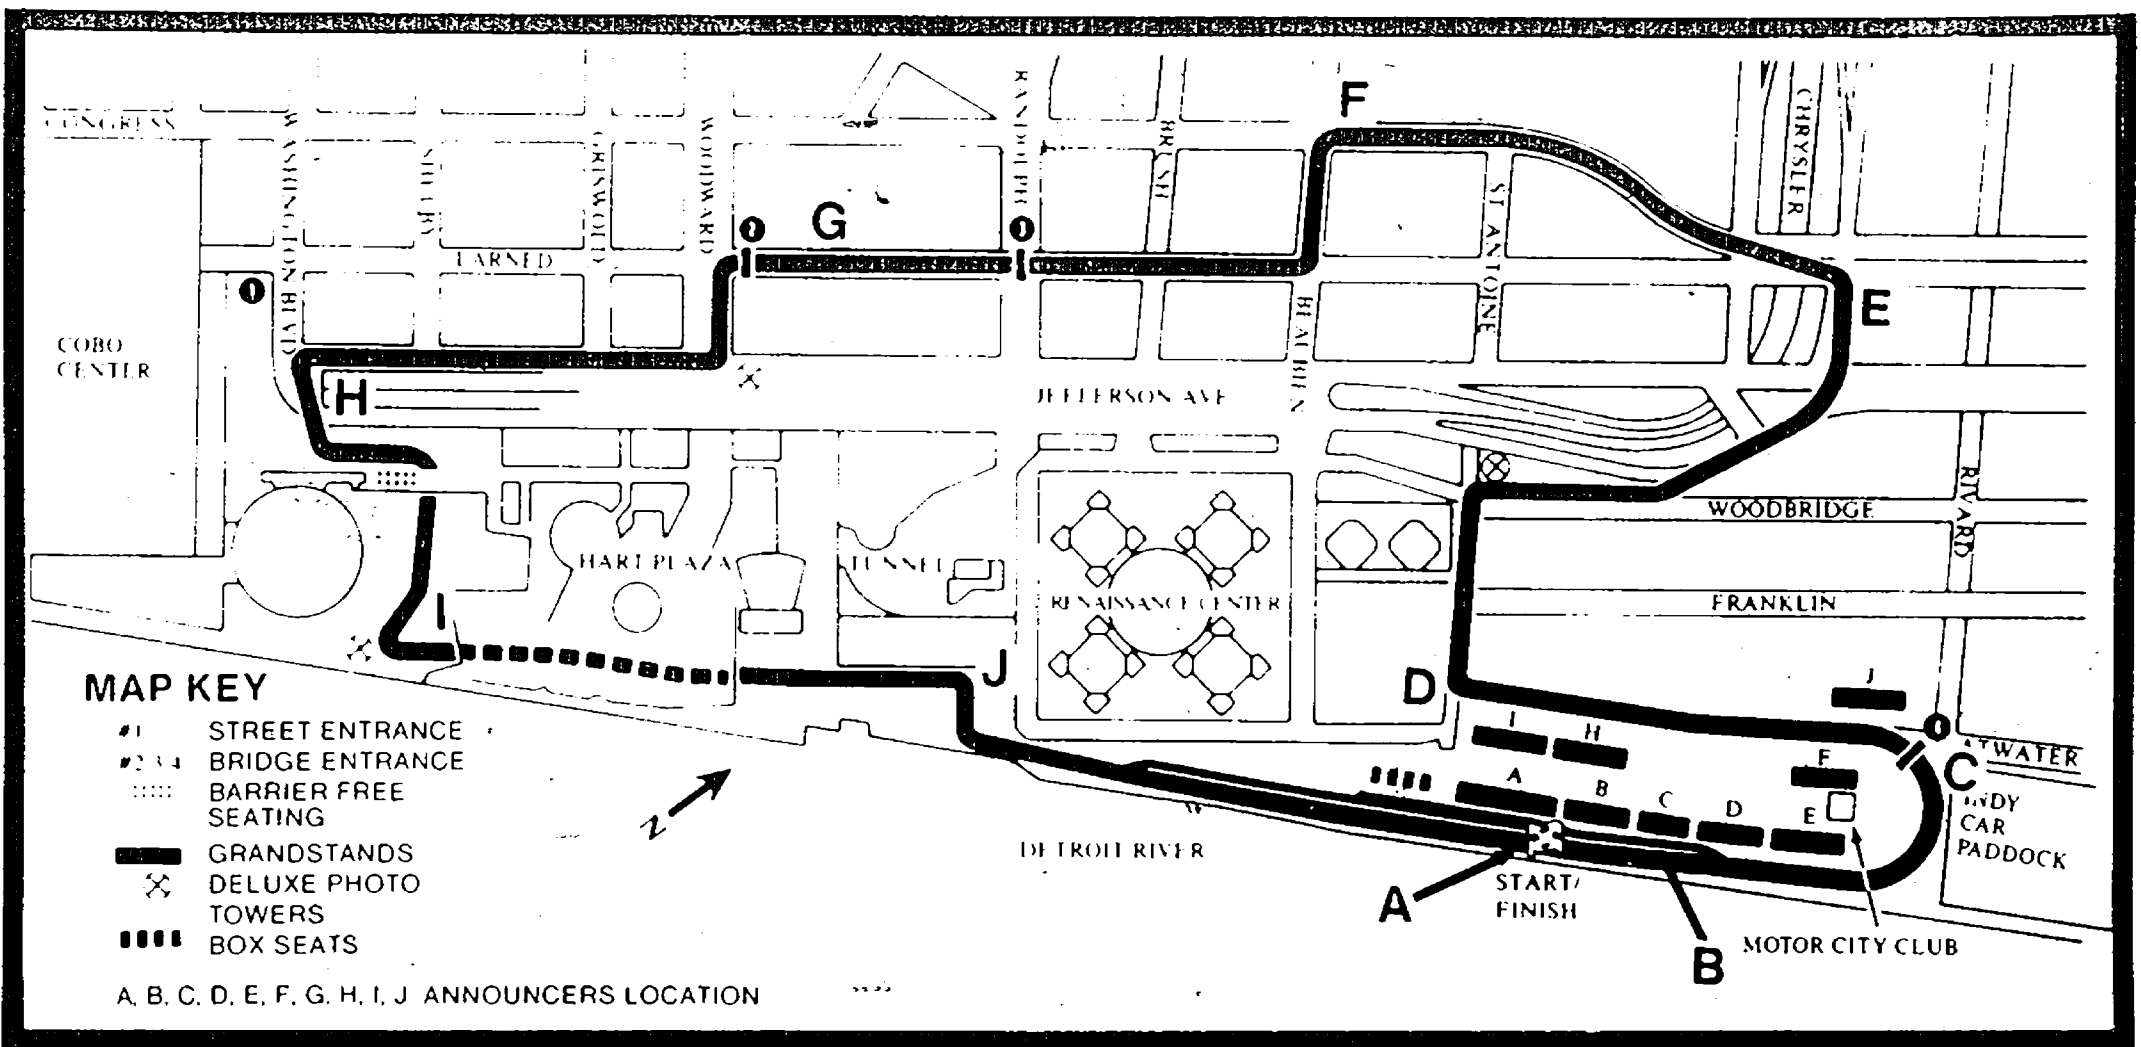

At that point, Detroit Renaissance broke off negotiations with Formula One officials and contacted CART (Championship Auto Racing Teams, Inc.) to discuss the possibility of an Indy Car race in Detroit. In less than a week, the announcement was made: Detroit would host a CART Indy Car race on the downtown course in 1989.

The 1989 Valvoline Detroit Grand Prix will hit the streets of Detroit on June 16, 17 and 18. Friday, June 16 is Free Prix Day.
