3 arrested in heroin bust at mall

By Diane Gate staff writer

A drug bust in which undercover officers nabbed three men trying to sell them five ounces of heroin at the Westland Center mall Thursday is making a comeback.

"Five ounces is not a street dealer," said Det. Lt. Jack Gruska of the Western Wayne Drug Enforcement undercover team, which includes officers from the city of Westland.

"It would be considered a supplier," Gruska said. "This is one of our biggest heroin busts."

Arrested were a 22-year-old Livonia man, a 22-year-old Dearborn man and a 19-year-old Dearborn Heights man.

They were charged with possesmore proof to police that the drug is sion with intent to deliver more than 50 grams of heroin, which carries a term of between five and 20 years in

A Westland Center security officer said she isn't allowed to comment on the arrest, saying that all comments must come from the management office, which was closed when the Observer tried to call it at 5:30 p.m Friday.

The investigation began in a Canton apartment where an arrest was made involving four ounces of cocaine valued at $3,000. Through that arrest, introductions were made to the men dealing heroin, Gruska said.

UNDERCOVER OFFICERS initially met the suspects inside the mall at Warren and Wayne roads. Two were arrested in the parking lot and the other was arrested inside the mall.

At first, the undercover team planned to pay $32,000 for eight ounces of heroin, Gruska said. Police thought that price was a very cheap buy, considering heroin

The rain, falling to a slow but steady beat outside the classroom window at the Cherry Hill Center, is almost drowning out Don Halley's introduction to "All Quiet on the Western Front."

Nearly all of Halley's American history students are paying attention as their teacher tells them that the pacifist views expressed in the 1930 film classic about World War I shown here on videotape - won't be repeated on American screens until long after Vietnam.

MOST LIKELY, though, for Wood and other students, it's because they had trouble showing up, according to Wayne-Westland summer school supervisor Roger Cromwell.

During the compacted summer term - 30 days for ninth-12th graders, 24 for seventh and eighth graders - pushing students to develop better attendance patterns carries the same educational weight as teaching the material.

The district uses an elaborate "check-in, check-out" system to make sure students are where they are supposed to be.

Ziemba to seek 2nd term

William Ziemba will run for reelection to the Westland City Coun-

Ziemba, who has been council president pro-tem since 1987, formally announced his re-election campaign and filed nominating petl-1 tions last week.

He was first elected in 1985.

If re-elected, Ziemba said he plans to continue his "efforts to enhance the quality of life in Westland and to balance the needs of our residents along with the necessity to develop the community."

THE COUNCILMAN said he tried to foster "a spirit of cooperation" with Mayor Charles Griffin's administration.

He also said he worked for stronger ordinance enforcement and singled out the city's strengthened junk car ordinance, passed by the council

In the past five years, Gruska said, the popularity of heroin seems to have made a resurgence.

"Heroin disappeared in the late '70s and early '80s and cocaine took its place," he said, adding that heroin was still available, but it wasn't as popular.

Cocaine became the drug of choice, because it was believed to be non-addictive and it was considered a jet-setter's high.

Council OKs condo site plan

Development in Westland's downtown district continued last week as the Westland City Council unanimously approved the site plan for a second phase of the Castle Woods condominiums at Hunter. west of Yale.

Phase II will be adjacent to Phase I and will consist of 90 twobedroom ranch and townhousestyle units each 1,120-1,220 square feet.

The project, to be built on 9.55 acres, is one of several residential complexes that complement the expanded retail development and opening of Central City Parkway. Other recent projects include the Liberty Park senior citizens development.

Several council members expressed concern about growing traffic congestion in the area however and an amendment calling for the developer to add deceleration and acceleration lanes in front of the entrance on Hunter was added to the plan.

Council members Kent Herbert and Charles Pickering agreed with Artley.

But Mayor Charles Griffin said the additional work may not be necessary. He cited the width of Hunter — which at 37 feet is 9 feet wider than most residential streets.

cials, and other reviewing agencies. Following completion of its review, the City Council shall approve, approve with conditions, or deny a Special Use proposal in accordance with the guidelines described previously in sub-section (BX9).

(13) Recording of Planning Commission and City Council Action. Each action taken with respect to a Special Use shall be duly recorded in the minutes of the Planning Commission or City Council, as appropriate. The minutes shall record the findings of fact relative to each Special Use proposal, the grounds for the action taken, and any conditions imposed in conjunction with approval.

(14) Effect of Approval. Upon approval, a Special Use shall be deemed a conforming use permitted in the district in which it is proposed, subject to any conditions imposed and final approval of the site plan. Such approval shall affect only the lot or portion thereof on which the proposed use is located. (15) Application for a Building Permit. Prior to issuance of a building permit, the applicant shall submit proof of the following:

(a) Final approval of the Special Use application.

(b) Final approval of the site plan.
(c) Final approval of the engineering plans.

(d) Acquisition of all other applicable City, County, or State permits.

(18) Expiration of Special Use Approval. If construction has not commenced within twenty-four (24) months of final approval, the approval becomes null and void and a new application for Special Use shall be required. Upon written request from the applicant, a twelve (12) month extension may be granted by the body which made the final decision on the initial request, if it finds that the approved Special Use application and site plan adequately represent current conditions on and surrounding the site. The written request for extension must be received prior to the site plan expiration date or a new application for Special Use review will be required.

(17) Revocation of Special Use Approval. Approval of a Special Use proposal and site plan may be revoked by the body which made the final decision on the requst if construction is not in confor-mance with the approved plans. In such a case, the Building Official shall ask that the Special Use proposal be placed on the agenda of the Planning Commission or City Council, as appropriate. proposal be placed on the agenda of the Planning Commission or City Council, as appropriate. Written notice shall be provided to the applicant at least five (3) days prior to the meeting at which the case will be considered. The applicant shall be given the opportunity to present information and to answer questions. The Planning Commission or City Council, as appropriate, may revoke approval if it finds that a violation exists and has not been remedied prior to the hearing.

(a) Form. The performance guarantee shall be in the form of a cash bond, irrevocable letter of credit, certified check, or similar instrument acceptable to the Building Official, which names the property owner as the obligor and the City as the obliges.

(b) Time when Required. The performance guarantee shall be submitted at the time of issuance of the permit authorizing the activity of the project. If appropriate based on the type of performance guarantee submitted, the City shall deposit the funds in an interest-bering account in a financial institution with which the City regularly conducts business.

(c) Amount. The amount of the performance guarantee shall be sufficient to cover the estimated cost of the sidemath testallation or inversements.

cost of the sidewalk installation or improvements. (d) Return of Performance Guarantee. The entire performance guarantee shall be returned to the applicant upon satisfactory completion of the required improvements.

Completion of Improvements. If required improvements are not installed or maintained within the time stipulated or in accordance with the standards set forth in this Ordinance, the City may complete the necessary improvements itself or by contract to an independent developer, and assess all costs of completing the improvements against the performance guarantee, including any interest accrued on said guarantee.

(C) Standards for Granting Special Use Approval. Approval of a Special Use proposal shall be based on the determination that the proposed use will comply with all applicable requirements of this Ordinance, including site plan review criteria set forth in Section 161.020, applicable site development standards for specific uses set forth elsewhere in this Ordinance, and the following standards:

(I) Compatability with Adjacent Uses. The proposed Special Use shall be designed, constructed, operated and maintained to be compatible with uses on surrounding land. The site design shall minimize the impact of site activity on surrounding properties. In determining whether this requirement has been met consideration shall be give to:

161.022-SPECIAL USE REGULATIONS (A) Intent. The procedures and standards in this Section are intended to provide a consistent and uniform method for review of Special Use proposals Special Uses are uses, either public or private, which possess unique characteristics and therefore cannot be properly classified as permitted uses in a particular zoning district.

CITY OF GARDEN CITY
PROPOSED SPECIAL USE REGULATIONS

These review procedures and standards are intended to accomplish the following purposes (1) Ensure full compliance with the standards contained in this Ordinance and other applicable local ordinances, and state and Federal laws.

(2) Achieve efficient use of the land. Prevent adverse impact on adjoining or nearby properties. (4) Protect natural resources.
(5) Facilitate development in accordance with the City's 1 ind use objectives

(B) Procedures and Requirements. Special Use applications shall be submitted in accordance with the following procedures and requirements, which provide for review and action by the Planning Commis-sion, followed by optional review by the City Council. Although a site plan must be submitted with a Special Use application, approval of the Special Use is required prior to site plan approval. (1) Applicant Eligibility. The application shall be submitted by the owner of an interest in land for which Special Use approval is sought, or by the owner's designated agent. The applicant or a designated representative shall be present at all scheduled review meetings or consideration of the proposal may be tabled.

(2) Application Forms and Documentation. The application for Special Use shall be made on the forms and according to the guldelines provided by the Building Department. (3) Application Data Regularements. A site plan shall be submitted with the Special Use application. In addition, the applicant shall complete any forms and supply any other data that may be required by the Planning Commission, City Council, or City staff to make the determination required, herein. The applicant shall provide all necessary written or graphic materials to document compliance with the standards set forth in Section 161.022, sub-section (C), and other regulatory guidelines specified for particular Special Uses elsewhere in this Ordinance. (4) Site Plan Preparation. The site plan shall be prepared in the manner specified in Section 181.020 and on the Special Use application form. A site plan which does not meet the stipulated requirements shall be considered incomplete and shall therefore not be subject to formal review. At any time during the course of preparation of a site plan, the City staff shall upon request provide information concerning the Zoning Ordinance procedures and standards.

(5) Submission of a Completed Plan. The Special Use application materials, required fees, and sufficient copies of the completed site plan shall be submitted to the Building Department for review.

(6) Review by the Boilding Official. The Building Official shall review the site plan and application materials, and prepare a written review, which shall specify any deficiencies in the site plan and application and make recommendations as appropriate. (7) Submission of a Revised Plan and Special Use Application. The applicant shall revise the site plan and application materials, based on the recommendations set forth in the Building Official's review. The applicant shall then submit sufficient copies of the revised plan for further review by the

(8) Planning Commission Consideration. After all application materials have been received and review fees paid, the application shall be reviewed in accordance with following procedures:

(a) Acceptance for Processing. The application shall be placed on the agenda of the next scheduled Planning Commission meeting. Upon accepting the application for processing, the Planning Commission shall schedule a public hearing.

(b) Public Hearing. Notice of the public bearing shall be published in a newspaper which circulates in the City, and sent by mail or personal delivery to the owners of property for which approval is being considered, to all persons to whom real property is assessed within 300 feet of the boundary of the property in question, and to the occupants of all structures within 300 feet, Such notification shall be made in accordance with the provisions in Section 4a(3) of the City or Village Zoning Act, Michigan Public Act 207 of 1921, as amended. (c) Planning Commission Review. Following the public hearing, the Special Use proposal and plan shall be reviewed by the Planning Commission in relation to applicable standards and regulations and consistency with the intent of the Special Use regulations.

 (d) Plan Review. If the Planning Commission determines that revisions are necessary to bring the

(a) Plan Review, it the Planning Commission determines that revisions are becessary to bring the Special Use proposal into compliance with applicable standards and regulations, the applicant shall be given the opportunity to submit a revised application and site plan. Following submission of revised application materials, the Special Use proposal shall be placed on the ageoda of the next scheduled meeting of the Planning Commission for further review and possible action.

(9) Planning Commission Determination. The Planning Commission shall review the application for Special Use, together with the public hearing findings and reports and recommendations from the Building Official, City Planner, City Engineer, Public Safety Officials, and other reviewing agencies. The Planning Commission shall then make a determination on the Special Use application. cies. The Planning Commission shall then make a determination on the Special Use application, based on the requirements and standards of this Ordinance. The Planning Commission may approve, approve with cooditions, or deny a Special Use request as follows:

(a) Approval. Upon determination by the Planning Commission that the final plan for Special Use is in compliance with the standards and requirements of this Ordinance and other applicable ordinances and laws, approval shall be granted. (b) Approval with Conditions. The Planning Commission may impose reasonable conditions with the approval of a Special Use proposal, to the extent authorized by law. Conditions imposed shall meet all of the following requirements:

- Conditions shall be designed to protect natural resources, the health, safety, and welfare and the social and economic well-being of those who will use the land use or activity under consideration, residents and landowners immediately adjacent to the proposed land use or activity, and the community as a whole.

Conditions shall be related to the valid exercise of the police power and purposes which are affected by the proposed use or activity.

Conditions shall be necessary to meet the intent and purpose of the Zoning Ordinance, related to the standards established in the Ordinance for the land use or activity under consideration, and necessary to insure compliance with those standards. (c) Donlal. Upon determination by the Planning Commission that a Special Use proposal does not comply with the standards and regulations set forth in this Ordinance, or otherwise would be injurious to the public health, safety, welfare, and orderly development of the City, the Special

And that means they're selling fewer Livonia-made Ball Park Franks.

"We've sold 505,644 Ball Park Franks" to Tiger Stadium as of Monday, said Chris Haller, brand manager for the Hygrade Food Products

That's down about 15 percent from this point in the 1988 season."

THE PLANT, on Plymouth Road west of Newburgh, makes the Ball Park Franks sold at Tiger Stadium. "Obviously it's a function of attendance," Haller said.

Greg Shea, Tigers assistant public relations director, said attendance through 45 home dates (Sunday) is down from just over 1 million last year to 890,041 this year - about 11 percent.

BUT Carl Gylfe, vice president of marketing for the company, said slower stadium sales doesn't have much impact on overall sales.

"The volume is not excessive compared to the amount of hot dogs we make and sell nationally."

That's because the company sells more than 140 million pounds of hot dogs each year.

Hygrade makes eight hot dogs to the pound, or package, for regular customers. Ball Park Franks sold at Tiger Stadium are slightly bigger, at six to the pound.

"We sold a little over 300,000 pounds in the championship year, 1984," Gylfe said.

IF HOT dogs keep selling at the current pace, they'll sell only half that amount at Tiger Stadium in 1989.

"Obviously, this is a weird year," Gylfe said.

While ballpark sales make up only a small part of total sales, Gylfe said the company values its association with the Tigers.

Ball Park Franks have been the only vendor at Tiger Stadium since

"That's a long-distance record,"

Gylfe said. "I don't know of any other vendor who's been with a team that long." Hygrade estimated that on the average, each fan attending a game eats eight-tenths of a hot dog.

While sales are greater in colder months than warmer months at the ballpark, the opposite is true of general sales during the year, company officials said.

Kaz Zocjac of Detroit feeds the hot dogs into a machine that removes the wrapping.

The Planning Commission and City Council may bold a joint public bearing on a Planned Development application if they so desire.

(c) Planning Commission Review. Following the public hearing, the Planned Development proposal and plan shall be reviewed by the Planning Commission in relation to applicable standards and regulations and consistency with the intent and spirit of the Planned Development concept. (d) Plan Revision. If the Planning Commission determines that revisions are necessary to bring the Planned Development proposal into compliance with applicable standards and regulations, the applicant shall be given the opportunity to submit a revised plan. Following submission of a revised plan, the Planned Development proposal shall be placed on the agenda of the next scheduled meeting of the Planning Commission for further review and possible action. (8) Planning Commission Determination. The Planning Commission shall review the application for Planned Development, together with the public bearing findings and reports and recommendations from the Building Official, City Planner, City Engineer, Public Safety Officials, and other reviewing agencies. The Planning Commission shall then make a recommendation to the City Council, based on the requirements and standards of this Ordinance. The Planning Commission may recommend approval, approval with conditions, or denial as follows:

(a) Approval. Upon determination by the Planning Commission that the final plan for Planned Development is in compliance with the standards and requirements of this Ordinance and other applicable ordinances and laws, the Planning Commission shall recommend approval.

(b) Approval with Conditions. The Planning Commission may recommend that the City Council impose reasonable cooditions with the approval of a Planned Development proposal, to the extent authorized by law, for the following purposes:

to insure that public services and facilities affected by the proposed development will be capable of accommodating increased public service loads caused by the development to protect the natural environment and conserve natural resources and energy. to insure compatibility with adjacent uses of land. - to promote the use of land in a socially and economically desireable manner. - to protect the public health, safety, and welfare of the individuals in the development and those immediately adjacent, and the community as a whole, to achieve the intent and purpose of this Ordinance.

In the event that the Planned Development is approved subject to conditions, such conditions shall become a part of the record of approval, and shall be modified only as provided in Section 161.172. (c) Dealal. Upon determination by the Planning Commission that a Planned Development proposal does not comply with the standards and regulations set forth in this Ordinance, or otherwise would be injurious to the public health, safety, welfare, and orderly development of the City, the Planning Commission shall recommend deplat. The Planning Commission shall prepare and transmit a report to the Qty Council stating its cooclusions and recommendation, the basis for its recommendation, and any recommended coods-(9) Submission of Plans for City Comeil Review, After the Planning Commission makes its recommendation, the applicant shall make any required revisious and submit sufficient copies of the revised site plan and supporting materials for City Council review. (10) Pablic Hearing. A more accurate look at the data suggests that, while the 1986 reforms treated a few of the symtoms, they did little to effect a cure.

Not only is the report overly optiistic, but, at times it is inaccurate

Take for example, the finding that hospitals' liability premiums have dropped. In 1988, the MHA Mutural Insurace Co. (MHAMIC) changed its method of calculating insurance costs for its client hospital by moving high risk, newborn care beds into their own, more expensive category, which shifted some of the cost from general purpose beds.

stopped writing new medical liability policies in Michigan. Hospital and doctors aren't going to gouge themselves. Rates stay high to keep up with claims.

ENOUGH symptoms are present to make our diagnosis clear: Michigan's medical liability crisis remains

The 1986 reforms offer a good basis for the thorough, systematic changes needed to create a tort system that is just for all. Hospital and physicians are improving the liability environment by emphasizing quality assurance and risk preven-

Our groups have also released a joint report offering an agenda of needed state initiatives. These include improved litigation and court procedures, development of fair compensation funds, a limit on lawyer's fees and further research on solving the liability problem.

Curing the ailments of our system is not just a concern for doctors, hospitals, lawyers and insurers. When doctors find it too expensive to practice in Michigan, and when high-risk or low-income areas like our inner cities and rural areas lost access to health care, every person in the state is in danger.

Our medical liability system is in poor health, and enough time has passed to know that the care given in 1986 was not enough. Isn't it time we stop treating the symptoms, and start curing the disease?

Flag burners spit on graves

To the editor:

The Supreme Court ruling regarding the right to burn the American Flag as a protected right of free speech and free expression probably. touches the heart of what is happening in our courts today as the courts interpret accountability and responsibility in a free society.

This touches us all when we find that through the courts the drunk can blame someone else and get away with it; those in the state and national legislative branches whom we call "The Honorable" can steal us blind and get away with it; the cruds in our society can spit and burn and desecrate all that we hold dear and get away with it. All in the name of freedom, free speech and free expression with the condiment mixtures of no accountability and no responsibility.

The highest court in the land is not above being somewhat confused. It has not come to grips yet with the fact that the First Amendment does not exist in a vacuum. That no amendment to our Constitution is an entity unto itself. That all the amendments were laced and intertwined into the strong fabric which embodied all the moral, ethical and social values which we have cherished and which fashioned the foundation of the greatest and strongest democracy ever known since the beginning of recorded human history.

To carry the ruling of the Supreme Court to its ultimate idiocy is to say that to keep a person from running a red light is imposing upon his freedom of action. To keep a person from driving on the other side of the road is to stilt his freedom of self expression. To quiet the loud one in a movie theater is an imposition to his basic First Amendment rights. To yell fire at a crowded gathering is the essence of a fun-filled life.

Thus, when you peer in depth to the contents of all the amendments to our Constitution you will note that alone they are meaningless but together they form the fabric which comprises the high standards of a nation to which people from every section of the globe seek entrance.

To burn without retribution this proud symbol, the American Flag, is to spit upon the graves of all those in our history who gave their lives that it may forever be the gulding light to the hopeless and the helpless

Magazine doesn't favor advertisers

In his July 6, 1989, "Auto Talk' column, your Mr. Dan McCosh made a statement about "Car and Driver" magazine that is not only unsupportable, but also is absolutely unacceptable to us. He wrote:

"There are just three domestic auto companies buying magazine ads compared to (sic) 20 import automakers, which is one reason why auto enthuasist magazines traditionally favor foreign cars."

Mr. McCosh's implication that auto enthusiast magazines tailor their editorial commentary to the size of an automaker's advertising budget may be true of some magazines. It is not true of this one.

Mr. McCosh has lied in print. Whether from ignorance or malice, I don't know. Nor would I care if I did not respect your readership as much as I respect our own. We tell our readers the truth about cars. Thank you for this opportunity to tell your readers the truth about our maga-

'Sacred flag' repulsive term

Let's keep the flag flying over the Capitol, but please, let's not let the politicians wrap themselves in it for too long, lest we lose sight of their hands and our wallets. I have heard a lot in the last weeks about the "sacred flag." What's this? What happened to separation of church and state? To be against the "sacred flag" is to be against God? Talk about totalitarianism! Is our flag worthy of honor and respect? I say yes! But sacred? No. If you insist, then to whose God? Desecrate is an emotionally loaded, inappropri-

To take a symbol that, to me, is the embodiment of freedom and honor and make it a symbol of "divineright" is as repugnant to its meaning as burning it. It's simply the other extreme.

I am reminded of the late president Theodore Roosevelt's comment that the difference between a boss and a leader is that you follow a leader freely, but you follow a boss out of fear. These days there are too many who want to boss with laws, or clubs, or fountain pens. But when was the last time a leader has inspired you?

Let's not spend a lot of national time or effort on this.

Could we all pledge our allegiance; even pick a time, say July 4, 1990, or Flag Day at noon, from "sea-to-shining sea" and do it in unison with the President? Now that would be a worthy answer to a million flag-burners. It would renew our allegiance and cost nothing except a presidential proclamation and a bit of leadership inspiration.

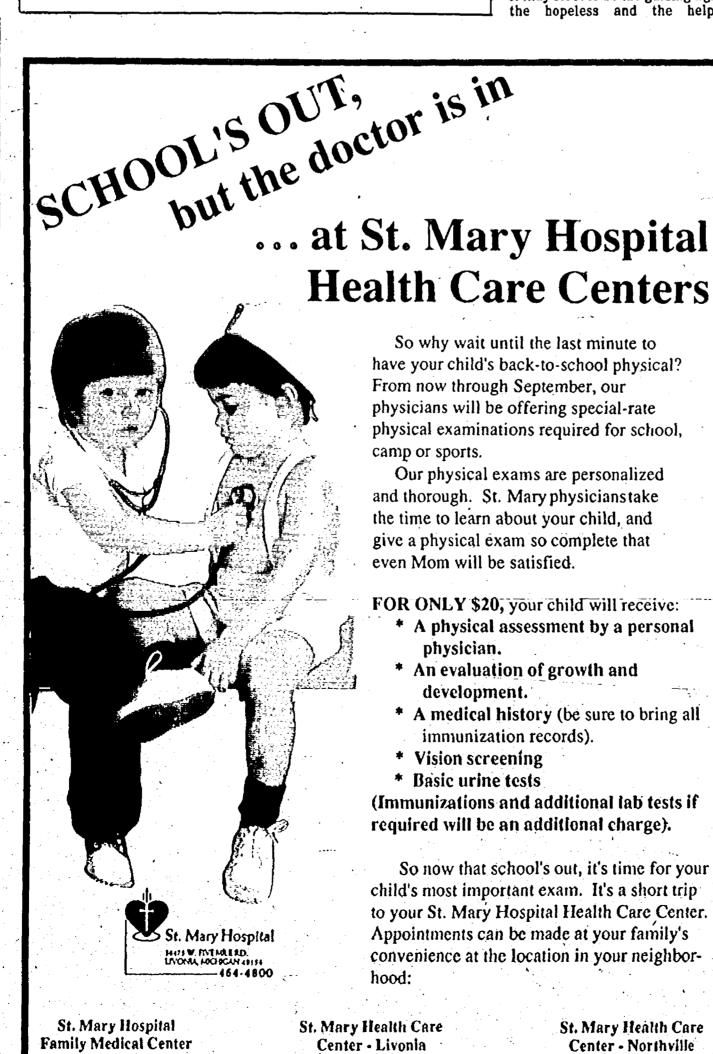

Then, let's continue to demonstrate leadership in freedom and tolerance, yes, even for dissent that's ' stupid, naive, and boorishly tasteless. We can shake our heads, walk on, and leave the flag-burners alone with their pathetic ashes.

New consortium director is off to enthusiastic start

By Janice Brunson staff writer

Twenty-three-year-old Daniel P. Gilmartin, the new executive director of the Conference of Western Wayne, said he may be "short" in years and experience for the new job, but not in commitment.

"I am very committed to the public sector and government work," he said during a recent interview in spartan offices decorated with a pair of plants and a solitary map of projected county road improvements.

The CWW, a consortium of 17 communities in western Wayne County that tackles municipal issues and assists in seeking common solutions, has maintained offices since its founding in 1980.

And now Gilmartin, in his first professional job since graduating from college last May, is responsible for "setting the tone" for conference members. Gilmartin replaced Anne Bollin, who resigned after the birth of her child.

Gilmartin sald his feet are already

In mid-July, the Livonia resident. attended his first monthly conference meeting of representatives from each of the 17 member communitles. Action included an ambitious resolution calling for a 50 percent reduction in the county's waste stream within the next five years.

SOLID WASTE management is the issue of the moment for the conference, according to Gilmartin, who said a standing committee of community experts and concerned citi-'zens has been formed and a new coordinator, Sanford Altschul, has been hired.

"We have been in the researchand information-gathering stage. Now we're moving into the doing stage," including designing new recycling and composting programs and expanding public education.

"There's an answer out there (for disposal). We don't have it yet, but 'I'm asked daily, "What direction am I headed? When am I going to run for something?" I chuckle and tell them what I want to do now is this job to the best of my ability." - Daniel P. Gilmartin

The conference, with 17 members, carries significant weight five-year solid waste plan, attending a regular meeting of the county-apin the approval process.

"Committee members showed signs of coming around to our point of view," Gilmartin said of conference input to members on the implementation committee.

Other issues of concern include emergency medical telephone service, accurate community counts during the 1990 census, personnel issues and economic development:

"The thing we do best is provide intra-local resources. We do the leg work. Then it's up to the community," he said.

"I'M ASKED daily, 'What direction am I headed? When am I going to run for something?' I chuckle and tell-them what I want to do now is this job to the best of my ability."

The questions are reasonable. Susan Heintz once directed the conference. She is now a Wayne County commissioner, representing the cities of Plymouth, Livonia and Northville and the townships of Plymouth and Northville.

A college student less than two months ago, Gilmartin graduated from the University of Michigan-Dearborn with a degree in economics and political science. During his junior year he served as an intern for Republican State Sen. R. Robert Geake. He now serves on the publicity committee for the Republican 2nd Congressional District Committee.

Gilmartin also has been involved in nonpartisan politics, volunteering for Robert Bennett and Joan McCotter in successful bids for the Livonia City Council.

The youngest of three children and an only son, Gilmartin said he was raised in a community-minded family. Father Dan, now retired, once served as the state's racing commissioner, is a former editor of the Livonia Observer newspaper and for 14 years was the community's industrial coordinator.

Young Gilmartin said, "I really wanted this job and I let them know it. I think I came across as very sincere."

Gilmartin is paid $12 per hour. His salary is paid by member communities that are assessed dues based on population. The conference also receives funds from public and private

Salt seeps into diet many ways

ON'T procrastinate when the doctor gives the ultimatum "Cut out the salt." Just stop using it. Sounds easier said than done, eh? Reducing or even eliminating salt from our daily routine can be as traumatic for some as quitting smoking is for others. We've all heard many times that the desire for salt is a learned one and luckily, can be unlearned, but not without a major change in culinary habits.

While flying to Chicago last month to visit the National Restaurant Show, I sat next to a nutritionist who was commenting on the three-packets of salt she received with her luncheon tray consisting of a miniscule sandwich and about two tablespoons of potato salad. She commented on the three packets, served in addition to the salted peanuts and the high sodium tomato julce that accompanied her Bloody Mary.

I commented that she was beginning to sound like Euell Gibbons' daughter when she asked "How much salt do you use in one day?" I slid under the seat, somewhere between my briefcase and duffle bag, trying to pretend that I didn't hear the question. She repeated it. I sank a little further.

While the trays were being collected and I felt the landing gear being lowered, she suggested that the next time I spend a day in the kitchen, I cover everything first with a small sheet of waxed paper, then sait the dish as I would if it contained food. OK, we shook on it, I forgot about it (as usual) and went on with my life.

Until yesterday. Now you have to understand that I seldom indulge in a big breakfast, mainly because in the past I have indulged too much on other things. It was a cool morning and I decided to make a small omelette. As I added the butter (salted) to the frypan and beat the eggs, my conscience resurfaced with the remembrance of that handshake and promise. It just so happened that I would be spending a great part of the day in the kitchen so, "let's experiment" was my response to my con-

Out came the waxed paper and an empty small yogurt container to hold the forbidden substance.

By the time breakfast was over, I tallied not only the table salt that was shook on but decided to go one step further and include the individual serving amounts from the food I ate during the course of the day.

Add another 45 milligrams of sodium from the butter.

After doing the breakfast dishes, I made a batch of muffins from the blueberries that were beginning to soften in the fridge. And while the muffins were baking, I started a batch of tabouli. Oh, oh, better get out the old calculator. Heck, it wasn't even lunch yet and I had accumulated 16 teaspoon, not to mention the additional 125 milligrams in the processed food I use, already totalling more than 250 milligrams, more than what the USDA recommends that most adults need in ONE DAY!

What really surprised this writer was the amount of salt that I used to use while cooking pasta, (for my tuna noodle lunch salad) and the salt contained in the tortilla chips, cheese, salsa and condiments used for my dinner "Grande Nachos." Then I made some homemade noodles and sauce for this weekend's lasagne and by the time I had my usual bowl of unsweetened cereal before bed, tallied a whopping 4,300 milligrams of salt that I alone had consumed in just ONE DAY!

This total is from someone who also uses fresh (and dried) herbs and spices and thought he used less salt, including the salt-free substitutes available on the market. By the way, the Janes Gang does not have a salt shaker on the

Fine music, cuisine on DSO menu

A Midsummmer Night's Feast is amid a setting of bountiful woods in an architectural wonder, complete with a royal throne from Africa and other works of art, all maintained under the benevolent gaze of a ferocious Bali mask meant to ward off evil spirits;

The event, billed as an evening of "un diner memorable" by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's League, promises a tasteful blend of fine music'and fine cuisine hosted by Mary Jane and William "Bill" Bostick of Bingham Farms.

The evening is one in a series of Musical Feasts II, the League's annual fund-raising festival of dining and musical entertainment from early spring to late summer in which area League members host select guests who have paid $35 to $200 each for the memorable experience. The events for the current season are sold out.

The Bosticks will host 28 guests in their house which, according to a League teaser, is "a one-of-a-kind architectural gem," complete with collections of art, heirlooms and exotic souvenirs.

The brochure also describes Mary Jane as a lifelong gourmand.

"I WOULD RATHER say I have always enjoyed good cooking. The word gourmet is so broad," she said. Husband Bill said he also "enjoys good cooking," the result of "being married to her."

To plan the sumptuous meal, the couple is drawing on professional experience and world travels. Mary Jane is a retired professor of food science from Wayne State University. Bill, also retired, served 30 years as administrator and secretary to the Detroit Institute of Arts, a posi-

Fresh greens for the salad, with a dressing of chevre goat cheese and yogurt, will also be bought the day of the meal, unless Bill Bostwick is able to sow and harvest a new crop between now and then.

"It's a sad thing, our (present) garden greens will be gone" by the scheduled date of Aug. 5.

THE EVENING'S fare is formally announced in menus designed by Bill Bostwick, depicting festive scenes from woodblock prints of dining from antiquity to the early 20th century. A quote from Escoffier, "Good cuisine is the basis of true happiness," adorns each menu.

The musical theme is also carrie out in floral arrangements, contributed by Parmenter Florist in Birmingham, and table decor, each named after a musical term or a great musician or composer.

Guests will be seated in the livingdining room and studio of the architecturally unusual home. The two areas flow one into the other, broken only by an open, second-story library that overlooks both the living and studio areas.

THE SYMPHONY'S brass trio will be positioned here while performing after dinner and before dessert is served.

The home, a wonder of woods. glass, textures and objets d'art, was designed and built by son Christopher Bostick.

To complement the meal, a champagne from Domaine Chandon, a white Burgundy called La Foret, a muscadet from Sevre-Et-Maine, a red Burgundy from Chateau Loudenne and a dessert chardonnay from Chateau St. Jean will be served. The spirits are compliments of Viviano olate torte, lemon yogurt cheesecake Winc Importers in Royal Oak.

You won't find Mary Ann's Kitchen in Troy by the sign out front. There isn't one.

But if you're partial to fresh and "different" salads, homemade soups, and baked-from-scratch desserts, you'll find it. Especially if you're tired of the same old sandwiches for

The Troy breakfast-and-lunch restaurant is tucked quietly into the imposing Liberty Center ("glass wall of Troy") building at Big Beaver and Livernois. A nice little cafeteriastyle restaurant reminiscent of the little cafes once familiar in downtown Detroit office buildings. It's actually the second of Mary Ann Pereny's ventures. Her first Kitchen is two years old on Woodward south of Square Lake Road in Bloomfield Hills. The Bloomfield menu extends through dinnertime with a limited but innovative selection of meals. Both sites offer carryout and catering.

And both offer a sparkling clean, airy environment with an art-decoish black, grey and pink interiors designed by Pereny herself. Great spots for quick, refreshingly good meals.

The lunch menu is diverse enough to keep you coming back - which is probably why Mary Ann Pereny doesn't need a sign out front to keep her Troy operation bustling.

sandwich - or buy it by the pound

Other refreshingly different salads include the potato salad nicoise, made with marinaded redskins, tuna, tomatoes, green beans, olives and eggs; the shrimp seashell salad, with artichoke hearts and a wonderful dill dressing; and the pasta primayera, with fresh vegics and an herb vinaigrette.

. If you tire of salads, there's always a selection of specials, including a quiche. A recent special of shrimp fettucine was a bargain at $4.25, lots of little shrimp, fresh noodles and a nice white sauce.

For those who prefer sandwiches, there is the popular "citrus honeymarinated" grilled chicken breast ($4.50) which is served on a toasted sesame bun and is accompanied by a deliciously - tangy dijon mustard The chicken tarragon salad is our sauce. This sandwich is terrific, and day. we mean.

enough to stop in. The carrot cake is wonderfully moist and topped with a creamier-than-thou cream cheese icing, and can be purchased by the slice ($2) or the cake ($22.50). As with everything else, the desserts are free of preservatives - though not of calories.

The breakfast menu is spare, but has basic egg dishes, including "big bad wolf" omelettes in which you can choose to have egg whites only. The real breakfast treats are the baked goods, like the sinfully delicious caramel pecan rolls or the fruit muffins. The Bloomfield restaurant switches from cafeteria to a service format at 5 p.m. The evening menu has seven entres, including a fresh fish or seafood of the day. A popular Item is Mary Ann's fried chicken ($5.95), served with macaroni and cheese and braised cabbage.

Whatever you do, don't miss out. This is one place you can return to time and again for a good, inexpensive meal - complete with friendly service and light, cheery atmosphere.

Mary Jane Bostick, a retired professor of food service at Wayne State University, has a lifelong interest in good cooking.

Separate facts from fiction in dietary habits have wanted to believe that certain foods hold special curative properties and powers. At one time, it was believed that garlic would give you added strength and that eating chocolate would prolong life. Wouldn't it be great if that were the truth? No more steroids for athletes, and we'd all livé forever! More and more scientific studies show there is a relationship between the diet people consume and the incidence of the leading diseases. Take care about products with health claims when choosing a particular breakfast cereal to avoid cancer; or eating a certain oat bran to lower cholesterol; or fish-oil capsules to protect you against heart disease

Since the ancient days, people and on and on. Be wise enough to distinguish between popular, current hype and reality.

> Oat bran therapy just may be a low cost way of lowering cholesterol levels. If you add oats to your daily diet but continue to follow a high fat, high cholesterol diet your cholesterol level will probably increase. To the degree that low fat oat products replace fatty items in a healthy diet the value increases. Oat bran is only as good as your entire dietary pattern. Eating quantities of oat muffins will add to the fiber in your diet, fat. Also eating complex carbohyhowever it also will add lots of unwanted calories.

Having a "fiber fest" everyday by eating a high fiber breakfast cereal

home economist, Cooperative Extension Service

will prevent cancer. If it were only that simple! Increase consumption of breads, cereals, fruits, vegetables and legumes, these complex carbohydrates tend to decrease consumption of foods that contain lots of drates automatically increases your intake of fiber. Look for the words, whole wheat or whole grain on ingredient lists for breads, and cereals.

Fiber is beneficial for diabetics. The maintenance of normal blood glucose levels is of primary concern to diabetics. Recent research attention has been placed on the role of fiber in this process. Soluble fiber absorbs water and forms gels in the stomach. This gel formation slows the rate at which food is emptied from the stomach. In the small intestine, gel formation leads to slower digestion and absorption rate.

Preliminary research has shown that eating two carrots a day will also lower cholesterol levels significantly. Just as with the oat products, it's the soluble fiber in carrots that is believed to be responsible for the benefits. Here again, two carrots a day is not helpful if you have eggs and croissants for breakfast, a fatty luncheon meat sandwich for lunch

Chances are that by increasing fiber you'll also increase consumption of beta-carotene. Broccoli, carrots,

apricots, cantaloupe, pumpkin, squash (butternut especially), sweet potatoes and spinach are all excellent sources of beta-carotene. The best way to ensure you're getting available of which foods may truly beta-carotene daily is to eat an orange or yellow colored fruit or vegetable or a dark green vegetable. Adding fish to the diet can also be beneficial to one's health. Fish are lower in fat than foods that come from animals and they contain a wide variety of nutrients. Inexpensive fish that contain the now famous Omega-3 fatty acids include canned mackeral, sardines and herring. Canned salmon and white meat albacore tuna are also good sources. Some studies have suggested that two fish meals a week may decrease the risk of developing heart disease. However don't binge on fish to the exclusion of other healthful foods.

While not all the answers are protect us against or contribute to the development of various kinds of diseases, there is sufficient evidence to make some personal food habit changes. Make sure you "glean" fact from fiction in balancing nutrients to maintain good health. We keep our cars in good running order but sometimes neglect the preventive maintenance that can keep our bodies running smoothly.

"People are always looking for new, trendy drinks, especially in the summer," said Stephen Boyd, bartender at Bay Street in the Hamptons, a summer hot spot for New Yorkers. "There's a constant demand for bartender creativity."

This summer, bartenders are mixing fruit juices, liqueurs and liquors, ri Wines, importer of Stolichnaya. - with winning results.

Conference races tighten up

The Spartans could boast the Metro Summer Hockey League's best record entering Tuesday's game with the Falcons at the Plymouth Ice Arena. And after two periods of play, it looked as if their lead would be extended.

But things got tough for the Spartans from that point on. First, the Falcons - who entered the third-period goals and nip the Spartans 8-7.

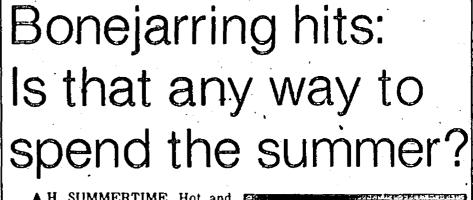

Then in Thursday's game at the Wayne Ice Arena with the Bulldogs, it was the Spartans who were forced to rally in the third period to escape mark. The split still left them comfortably atop the Bakes Conference with a 6-2 mark; the Lakers are second at 3-2-2, while the Bulldogs lost twice. The Wildcats occupy the basement.

IN THE EAGLE Conference, the Falcons game with a 3-2 mark - rallied to score five surged into first place by following Tuesday's comeback win over the Spartans with a 12-5 thumping of the Wildcats Wednesday in Plymouth. The victories improved the Falcons' record to 5-2 and pushed them past the idle Broncos (4-2).

The Spartans had entered the week with a 5-1 day in Plymouth to tie the Broncos at 4-2. And the Wolverines got their second win of the season, knocking off the winless Wildcats 9-7 Thursday in

> In the Falcons' win over the Spartans Tuesday, Vic Decina helped spark the third-period rally with two goals. Aaron Pietila, who had two goals and two assists in the game, got the game-winning score with just 38 seconds left. Ron Storm and Ron Pietila also netted goals for the Falcons inthe third period.

H, SUMMERTIME. Hot and lazy and relaxed. No worries, no cares, no problems. Just fun in the sun.

That's how I remember summer. The rest of the year was always work, work, work. But summer ... that was vacation.

Who planted those thoughts in my mind? Summer's half gone and I'm working just like I do the rest of the year. (Really, I am.)

What makes us think of summer as described above is our youth, of course. In fall, winter and spring, we were forced to labor over books and learn such important things as the square root of 64 (I still know the answer to that one, ma).

But in summer we didn't have to learn anything, except how to absorb as much sun as possible, play as much baseball as possible, swim as much as possible, party as much as possible - and all on the same day. Every day. .

When senior year in high school ended, it marked the end of such trouble-free times. Decisions had to be made, and none of the alternatives - go to college, go to work, or go to the army - were attractive. But in that final summer after high school, before being forcedfed adulthood, there was still time to enjoy. One last time.

forms, of course. Movies, malls, for anything." mayhem . . . I can accept those as enjoyable pursuits. Sweating, straining, socking . . . those I have trouble with.

And yet, 80 just-graduated athletes plan on spending 10 days of their precious last summer of total freedom in just such a manner. They are not doing it for money; they are not doing it for fame and recognition, they are not doing it because they were threatened.

They are doing it by choice. For

"I'm really looking forward to it," said Eric Ruth, a 6-foot-2, 223pounder from Livonia Stevenson who will line up with 79 others at 1:20 p.m. Saturday at Michigan State's Spartan Stadium for the ninth annual Michigan High School East-West All-Star Football Game. "This is the biggest thing in my life so far."

I know what you're thinking: This kid must not have had much of a life so far, if working his tail off for 10 days to play a meaningless football game is the highlight.

THINK AGAIN. And listen to what a few of his teammates have

Houghtby's shutout ruins Marauders' title hopes

By Steve Kowaiski staff writer

Every time Hines Park Lincoln Mercury met Walter's Appliance this summer on the baseball diamond, the coaches placed a gentlemen's bet on the outcome.

"(Walter's coach) Mike Keller and I play for beers," said Hines Park coach Dave Racer. "We beat him four or five times during the season, so he bought most of the time. But I told Mike tonight 'If you beat (Livonia Little) Caesars, start the tab, I'm buying."

David Houghtby (Livonla Stevenson) responded by pitching a three-hitter, leading Walter's to a 1-0 win over Caesars at Livonia's Ford Field.

Less than three hours later, the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League title belonged to Hines Park (22-5-1) after it edged a pesky Duffy's Plumbing team, 3-2.

Racer might have gone home broke Friday, but he

The win, combined with the Caesars loss gave Hines Park the first seed in the four-team LCBL playoffs that began Sunday. Hines Park met Duffy's, the fourth-place team in the first round, and defending champion Caesars, the second-place team with a 20-6-1 record, played third-place Walter's.

"WALTER'S HELPED our confidence," said pitcher Brett Loomis, who earned the save in Hines Park's titleclinching game. "We were real psyched to prove we're the best in the league, because Caesars was the reigning champion the last couple years."

The double-header action was highlighted by superb pitching, so maybe it was fitting that Loomls ended the long evening with a clutch performance on the mound.

Leading 3-2 in the top of the seventh, Racer called on Loomis after starter Bob Files walked Duffy's first two batters, Chris Mussat and Mike Kaczmarek.

Steve Michelz, the first batter to face Loomis, attempted to sacrifice bunt the runners up a base, but Loomis raced off the mound and threw out Mussat, the lead runner, leaving men on first and second with one

With two outs, Loomis walked cleanup hitter Mike Siwajek to load the bases, but he got Lee Tappy to end the threat, bouncing a slow grounder to shortstop on a 3and I pitch.

"I WAS just happy to get the chance," said Loomis, who pitched a no-hitter against Walter's in his previous start. "It was real tense. They were trying to rattle me, but I was just trying to do my best.

"I was warming up three different times in the game, so I didn't even need to get loose before he called me in. I was waiting in the dugout."

Hines Park only picked up four hits off Duffy's starter Jason liicks and reliever Joe Jentzer, but Hicks was his own enemy in the third when lead-off man Joel Riggs scored the go-shead run.

Riggs, who had two bits, led off the third with a single he went to third base on a wild pick-off attempt at first base by Hicks. With one out and Chris Sisler, the LCBL's hottest hitter, at the plate, Riggs stole home, surprising a lot of people, even Racer. "He said 'Race, I can do it because he's going from the windup," Racer said. "So I said 'Pick your pitch."

baseball

(The only thing) is we had the left-handed stick (Sisler) up, leaving the third-base line open."

DUFFY'S TOOK the game's first lead, scoring on an RBI single by Siwajek in the first. Sister's one-out double drove in Riggs to tie the score at 1-1 in the first, and Sister later scored in the inning on a passed ball to give Hines Park a 2-1 lead.

Four of Duffy's first five batters in the third reached base, but an RBI single by Siwajek produced the inning's only run to tie the score at 2-2. Mussat led off the inning with a single and Files walked Kaczmarek to put runners on first and second with no outs.

Files struck out Michelz and was fortunate when Kaczmarek was thrown out rounding third base for the second out after Todd Fracassi's short fly ball fell in for a hit to right field.

Siwajek followed with his RBI single, but Files got Tappy to fan to end the inning.

"I think we got enough pitching to do the job," Duffy's coach Ray Fracassi said. "We're just a very young team. We'll be all right. We have a lot of 18-year-olds, and they have a lot to learn."

IN THE day's first game, Houghtby baifled Caesars' hitters, who couldn't remember the last time they had such a rough time of it at the plate.

An RBI single by Randy Buchler which scored Joe Sturtz from second base in the second is all Houghtby needed to win his first game of the year against four

"Finally," sald a relieved Houghtby, when asked about the win. "I wasn't nervous until the middle of the sixth. I wanted to keep them under two runs, because whenever I pitch we don't score runs. I threw a lot of junk to their first four or five hitters. They're good fastball hitters, but they were getting in front of it and hitting it on the ground."

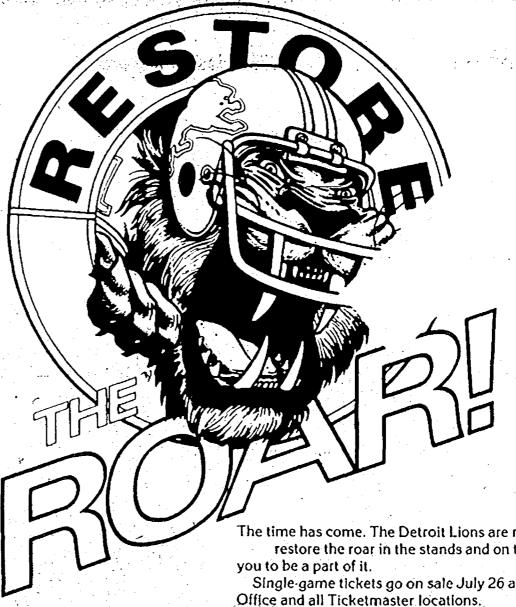

Keller wasn't counting on a shutout until "after the seventh inning was complete. I just told David to throw every pitch like it's your last. 'Don't think about seven innings, think about each batter."

CAESARS HAD a player reach third base in the fifth inning and again in the seventh, but both times Houghtby settled down and retired the next batter to end the Caesars right-hander Jim Miller suffered the loss, although he allowed only four hits and fanned three. On most nights, Miller would have gone home victorious.

"We beat them up all year, and we lose at the most opportune time," Caesars coach John Moraitis said. We've had two or three games this year where we didn't hit, but I didn't think this kid (Houghtby) would shut us down. Houghthy pitched good today.

"He got his curve over; that's why we hit grounders. I can't believe we didn't get one by third base. Their third basemen (John Gotts and Eric Opalach) were playing in the whole game."

Summer is fix-up time

Each season takes its toll on the wood surfaces of bowling lanes.

Every ball rolled causes a little more wear and tear, which adds up to either a total resurfacing job every two or three years, or a "Screening and re-coating" in the years between refinishing jobs. All this, of course, takes place during the summer when there is much less bowling going on and the establishment can close for a few days if necessary. There are specialists who send their crews out to perform this critical task, as the lane conditions we love to bowl on depend heavily upon the skills of the refinishing companies.

The summertime, almost without exception, means fix-up, paint-up and reconditioning of the lane surfaces at the local bowling center. Some houses add new equipment and replace worn-out or out-dated items, while some, like Country Lanes in Farmington Hills have added new ceiling smoke eliminators to filter out cigarette smoke and its odor.

The importance of proper lane conditioning cannot be over-emphasized at any of the centers, and they go to considerable expense to see the job is done right. Total resurfacing is a complex process, usually done every two or three years. The first step is to remove all the old oil and residue with a strong detergent. This is followed by the first sanding steps, which involve using a "Drum" with coarse sanding to take the maple surfaces at the "heads" or first 15 feet or so down to a smooth surface.

The approaches, the first boards, the heads and the pin deck are constructed of Rock Maple and the rest of the lane is made of pine. At this point, the lanes are inspected for loose boards or fibre inserts at the dots and arrows and replacements are made as necessary. If the lanes are in bad shape, it is necessary to drill holes and inject epoxy under high pressure in order to re-seal and firm up the foundation of the wood right, and the pay-off is those nice itself. The entire lane surface is big scores we see throughout the seasanded with a special screen with a fine grit which smooths out the wood. This operation is done by a special machine which is driven down the lanes by an expert who is constantly monitoring the process assuring a precisely level job.

After the sanding is complete, the lanes are ready for the new finish. The most popular finish in use today is a two-coat system in which an inflammable water-based solution used to seal the base. This stays pliable so it can compensate for the changes in temperature and humidity. The second coat is applied after the first coat has again been screened. The topcoat is usually urethane, very heavy-duty stuff. It sets to an extremely hard finish and this is the critical application for your shot, as how the topcoat is applied can affect the hooking characteristics of your ball.

A second coat assures the durability to last through the season. The approaches are surfaced with a water based coating which set up hard to give you the proper slide and avoid 'sticky" approaches.

All this work is performed by a three or four man crew who can do the resurfacing job in three or four days or the screen and coating in just a few hours. Bowlers might take the lanes for granted, but there is a lot of work and expense involved in getting the bowling conditions just

Changing sports proves fortunate

By Bill Parker staff writer

What started out as a tough break turned into a lucky break for

The son of Troy High School boys basketball coach Jim Clary and brother to former Troy Athens boys basketball coach Monty Clary, Marty Clary received a full scholearning All-State honors in basketball during his junior and senior seasons at Clawson High School. But disaster apparently struck early in his freshman season at Northwestern when Clary fractured a bone in his foot.

"It was a big disappointment," explained the 1980 Clawson grad. "I missed the whole first season and it put me way behind. There were two other freshman guards that year and (after falling behind) I basically played behind them for the next two years."

But Clary is a tough competitor. He knew he needed extra work to get back in top shape so he went out for the Wildcats baseball team. "IT WAS SOMETHING to do to help me get back in shape," explained Clary. "It turned out to be my best avenue." Clary pitched on Clawson's baseball team during his freshman, sophomore and junior seasons (he gave up his senior eligibility to sign a basketball scholarship). "I had pretty poor seasons during my freshman and sophomore years (at Northwestern) since I had only played a little summer ball prior to that," Clary said. "But I had a pretty strong arm so they let me throw.' In his junior season, Clary compiled a 10-1 won-loss mark and earned instant notoriety. He was drafted by the Atlanta Braves of the National League as the first selection in the third round of the 1983 amateur baseball draft.

Clary has been with the Braves' minor league teams ever since and was recently called up to Atlanta from its Class AAA International League affiliate in Richmond.

"IT'S A REAL thrill. I'm really excited," said the 27-year-old right hander, after being called up to the major leagues. "Sometimes you start to wonder if it's just a dream. It's really a neat experience."

Some of the opposing batters probably wish Clary was dreaming. As of July 20, Clary was 3-0 for the Braves with an impressive 2.89 ERA. In 28 innings of work, Clary has allowed 24 hits, struck out sevarship to play basketball at en and walked six. Before being Northwestern University after called up from Richmond, Clary was 7-5 and led the AAA Interna tional League with a 2.04 ERA.

This is Clary's second glimpse of the major leagues. He was called up late in the 1987 season on Atlanta's expanded roster. He went 0-1 that time and finished with a 6.14

"They were just giving me a look (in 1987). I had a pretty good year and it was kind of a reward," explained Clary. "I had one start and a few relief appearances. The stats are kind of deceiving. I had one bad outing (against San Francisco) and gave up all the runs, then I did pretty well in several relief appearances.

"I wasn't really in awe or shock (when I was called up) this time," Clary continued. "I think the last time I was up was a plus for me. Now, I'm a little more concentrated on what I have to do."

ALTHOUGH CLARY is certainly off to a good start with Atlanta, his future with the Braves remains uncertain.

"They've got a lot of young talent here, pitching-wise," Clary explained. "I've showed them I can pitch here, I just don't know if they have plans for me in their future with all of the young talent.

"I hope I can stay with Atlanta. They gave me my first chance and I feel comfortable with the organization," Clary added. "I think, most likely, I'll be involved in a trade. But I'll just leave that in the Lord's hands."

So, does a major league bàseball player still miss the basketball court?

"Sure," said Clary. "I still miss basketball. I wonder, sometimes, if I wouldn't have gotten hurt what would have happened, but I figure God had his reasons."

Squash vet forges national rep must be taken.

Squash is still a more familiar name to vegetarians than to sports fans. But for Jess Berline, squash is a competitive game of speed, finesse and strategy.

Introduced to the game approximately five years ago by his father, Jim, a longtime squash enthusiast, and friend Graham Shullman, Berline took to the sport far more quickly than most pre-teens will take to a vegetable.

Squash is similar to racquetball. It's played on a four-walled court. Players hit the ball over a tin strip on the bottom of the front wall. Like other racquet sports, the ball is allowed to bounce in the court once. Squash racquets are longer, the balls smaller and less active than those used in racquetball. That, Berline said, makes movement and strategy more important to a squash match than raw power. Berline enjoys the game because it is "real active," and "you've got to be fast."

people in sports

Berline became a nationally ranked junior at age 12. He was ranked again at age 14 and expects to achieve another high ranking as a 16-year-old this season, playing in the 16-and-under age group.

AS A 15-YEAR-OLD in the 15-16 squash game. division last season, Berline did not win on the junior circuit, although he he said. "It's the exact opposite placed second in a tournament in stroke." Cincinnati.

Berline did win the Michigan state men's "C" championship, becoming the youngest ever to do so. The win qualified him for the national men's Class C championships, played in Chicago. Berline was the only junior among the 32 state champs at the quarterfinal, he trailed the best-offive series, two games to none, and was down 8-1 in the third game. He came back to win the game and the match, but lost a close final, 3-1 in games of 14-15, 14-15, 15-12, 13-15.

Berline plays squash daily during the season, which runs from mid-fall until spring. He plays two or three times a week in the summer.

BERLINE, A sophomore, also plays on the Birmingham Seaholm junior varsity tennis team, although he says tennis does not help his "It's supposed to make it worse,"

But Berline enjoys tennis, so he'll-keep playing. "I can pick up any racquet sport and not be too bad at it."

Still, squash remains his best and favorite sport.

"You've got to be real quick and you've got to keep wanting to play a lot." he said, so that the moves become automatic - reactions rather BERLINE IS looking forward to his season at the top of the 15-16 age group. Beyond that his squash future is less certain. Berline will go to the U.S. squash training center next month at Princeton University, along with 20 other junior players. Squash is "really big in college in the Ivy League," he said. Attending an Ivy League school and playing collegiate squash is on Berline's mind. No matter what, Berline said he will play the game for life "for fun." Berline's other possibilities, if his game continues to improve, may include the North American professional squash circuit or the Olympics. Squash will be a demonstration sport at the 1992 Games and a medal sport in 1996.

"I want to maybe be a pro at a club, a racquets pro," said Berline, who works at the Birmingham Athletic Club, stringing racquets for members.

Local fans interested in watching Berline in action can see him at the Athletic Club's annual junior tournament in January.

DRUMMOND

Nature's northwoods gem

Close to Domino's Lodge, visitors can now watch the antics of Chip, Champ and Crusty, the three wild black bear cubs Tom Monaghan adopted after a poacher killed their mother near Grayling.

By Marie Chestney staff writer

Monday, July 17, 1989 0&E

RUMMOND ISLANDERS are smack in the middle of an identity crisis, a crisis that began in 1985 when megamillionaire Tom Monaghan bought a rundown estate on Potagannissing Bay and began rebuilding it into a 1,800acre corporate retreat.

The retreat occupies only a tiny part of the 72,000acre island in Lake Huron; it sits well beyond the string of resorts lining Tourist Road and the bay.

But in the notoriety that followed Monaghan's island extravaganzas - from a lavish weekend party for the well-heeled to a controversial 168-schooner called the Domino Effect to the building of special cabins for some of Michigan's top sports figures — it began to sound like the owner of the Detroit Tigers had taken over the whole island as well. "We're Drummond Island, not Domino Island," is the new cry of beleagured islanders who fear they are losing their 175-year-old identity to a pizza king.

Yet how do the islanders, who depend on the dollars tourists bring, fight the misinformation and misconceptions that flow in Monaghan's wake?

For example, how can they correct a story printed in June in a national publication that said Monaghan's holdings include Drummond Island, a 72,000-acre private island off Michigan's Upper Peninsula?

Monaghan neither owns the island, nor is it private. In fact, more than half of Drummond Island is spruce and cedar forest owned by the state. And what can they say to those sportsmen who think Monaghan has changed the face of the island so much he has ruined it for hunting and fishing?

THE CURRENT flap about Monaghan's plan to dredge 40,000 cubic yards from a bay popular for its perch fishing and spawning doesn't help the islanders' cause at all. The Drummond Island Chamber of Commerce now works overtime to soft pedal the Monaghan hype.

"The notoriety that the island has suddenly gained because of Monaghan's influence should not be misinterpreted," said chamber president Charles Krahank. "Mr. Monaghan has no great desire to change the atmosphere, nor could he undo what nature has done."

Most islanders agree that what nature has done on Drummond Island is not for everyone.-

"People either hate it or love it," said Steve Gilbert, who runs Four Seasons Resort and also works as director of wildlife, land management and operations for Domino's Lodge, Monaghan's retreat. "You can walk 50 yards into the woods and get lost."

Visitors who expect the manicured stylishness of Mackinaw Island won't like it. With its abundance of road signs (4 miles to Josie's place) and it's rustic, rural setting, the view does get tacky at times from the car window.

Those who like their Saturday nights wild won't like it. Bill Burton, owner of Streamline Sporting Goods, said that "bear watching at the dump at dusk" is popular any night of the week, including Saturday.

Folks who like to bounce from one tourist attraction to another won't like it. In fact, with the coming of Monaghan, the island now has its first bona fide, Irish Hills-type tourist attraction - a small zoo where Monaghan keeps the three wild black bear cubs he adopted after a poacher killed their mother near

CLOSE TO DOMINO'S Lodge, visitors can now watch the antics of no-longer-cub-size Chip, Champ and Crusty from behind the safety of a high chain link

Folks who like their activities planned and programmed won't like Drummond Island.

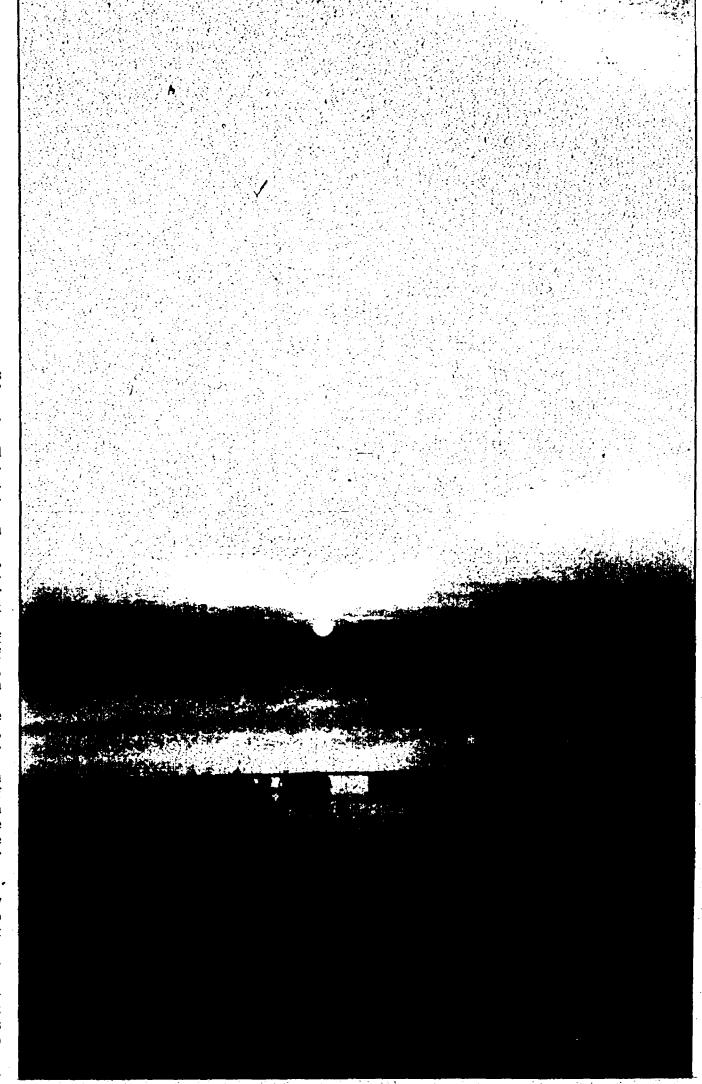

"This is a great place to come if you're into something quiet," Burton said. "People who want constant excitement would get bored here. But there's always something to do, if you like to do the things they do

What nature did on Drummond Island was create a northwoods and water paradise for hunting, fishing, boating, sailing, rockhounding, birdwatching, hiking, canoeing and water skiing, as well as cross-country skiing and snowmobiling in the wintertime.

The islanders have added the extras — tennis courts, bike rentals, golf, historical museum, airport, marinas, churches, medical facilities, restaurants, stores and a library.

Visitors generally rent a cabin at any one of the 20 or so small resorts that line Tourist Road and overlook Potagannissing or Sturgeon bays. A typical rate for a two-bedroom cabin or cottage for four is $230 a week. Fishing boats can be rented for an extra $50 a week. There also are campgrounds for campers.

Visitors can spend their time exploring the land and waters of an island once called "Potagannipy" by the Indians, "High Island" by the British and now called "Gem of the Huron" by those who love its forests, inlets, lakes and island-studded bays.

Visitors who generally rent cabins at any of the small resorts that line Tourist Road and overlook Potagannissing or Sturgeon bays are treated to spectacular summer sunsets.

TUCKED BETWEEN Canada's North Channel, the hubbub of city life and moved here when our kids were mouth of the St. Mary's River and the waters of Lake Huron, Drummond Island also sits in the middle of one of the busiest waterways in the world, with ships coming to and from Lake Superior.

Its high limestone cliffs, its sky blue bays, its primeval forests and the bounty of its woods and waters are so stunning that some who visit America's largest freshwater Island on vacation come back to stay. Twenty years ago, that's what happened to Tom and Ellen Mossing, who then lived in Livonia. "Tom was exhausted, working overtime as a commercial artist," Mossing said. "We'came here on vacations and loved the area. Finally, we had our fill of the

The Mossings run a nine-cottage resort on Tourist "The scenery is beautiful. We have some of the most gorgeous sunsets in the world," Mossing sald.

Karen Kemppainen returned to her family's roots when she moved from Southfield to Drummond Island in 1969. Both sets of her grandparents had once lived

Pleasure Island: Pleasure to visit

By Irls Sanderson Jones contributing travel editor

Q: Three of us are going to Walt Disney World in August. My girlfriend and I graduated from college this year, and my brother graduated from high school, so we're all celebrating. We've all been to the Magic Kingdom and EPPCOT as kids, so we know our way around. We've heard about the new MGM Studio park. But what do we do at night. And how do we avoid the summer

Westland

A: Two new attractions opened at the World this summer. Pleasure Island has seven nightelubs plus street parties, restaurants, shops and lots of music but very few young kids. There are families at Typhoon Lagoon, but not nearly as many as in the Magic Kingdom. Both the Island and the Lagoon were open, but not finished, when I saw them this spring. They're both booming now. I filled in the gap by interviewing Chris Carradine, vice president of design development for Walt Disney Imagineering and the guy who helped design Pleasure Island. (Yes, he's the son of the famous John Carradine and the brother of the infamous Keith Carradine.)

. For overall tips on the best times to go where in Walt Disney World (WDW), buy Stephen Birnbaum's official, guide (under $10) at a bookstore or borrow it from a library. Hard to believe but Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday are the busiest days at WDW. Saturdays are fairly busy; Sundays, Thursdays and Fridays least busy. Hit the theme parks early, take a midday break and go back early evening when the kids are

The main tips are: Reserve for on-property meals early in the day, and tour in the opposite direction from the main crowds. For example, morning hordes get off the monorall in EPCOT and stand in line at nearby Future World pavilions. You should walk around the lagoon to World Showcase and go back to Future World in the after-

Reiner, Crystal, Ryan make 'Harry' a winner

When he's good, he's very, very good and at his best Rob Reiner is excellent. His latest, "When Harry Met Sally , . . " (A+, R, 90 minutes), is without doubt his best, an excellent comic look at marriage and urban singles life in the '80s."

After college graduation, the open, out-spoken, earthy but pessimistic Harry (Billy Crystal) shares a Chicago-New York ride with conservative, over-organized, rigid Sally (Meg Ryan). He's so relaxed, if he didn't have style and intelligence, he'd be a slob while she clearly is the queen of fussbudgetry with a surface coating of false optimism.

An unlikely couple, true, but this saga of their lengthy courtship carefully develops those two personalities, for all their foibles, as warm, loving folks troubled by life and by the pressures of the contemporary urban scene.

Reiner directed Nora Ephron's witty and literate script with fine touch, while keeping the entire production firmly in hand. Taken with superb performances by Crystal and Ryan — plus Carrie Fisher and Bruno Kirby as their best friends — the result is a densely packed 90 minutes. There are no dull spots, no slow-moving moments, just a constantly engaging play of wit, comedy and romance, images flowing swiftly so that the film's experience is intense. There's a lot more than 90 minutes in this 90 minutes.

Relner's episodic structure - bits character while doing his familiar and pieces of Harry and Sally's relationship spread over 12 years - are tied neatly together with vignettes of various, unrelated couples posing for golden wedding anniversary pormarital experience.

You guessed it, a great movie. Which is not the case with "Shag"

(F, PG, 98 minutes), an infantile, poorly-paced, boring exercise in dis-tilling the worst of "Beach Party" and "Spring Break" movies.

Scenarists Robin Swicord, Lanier Laney and Terry Sweeney, with the connivance of Director Zelda Barron, would have us believe that there were, even among the most conservative elements of the South in 1963, four such silly, naive and cliched characters as the girls who star in "Shag:" Maybe there were, but they sure aren't entertaining. Neither is this film.

Carson (Phoebe Cates), Melaina (Bridget Fonda), Pudge (Annabeth Gish) and Luanne (Page Hannah) lie to their parents about a trip to Fort Sumpter in order to sneak off to the Myrtle Beach Sun Festival for their last high school fling.

This alleged satire of social mores and talent contests is heavy-handed and totally unfunny, while the "Shag" dance contest sequences supposedly the spark to excite audiences — are pretty lame, too.

WEAK CHOREOGRAPHY and weaker still camera work detracts by constantly cutting away from full-shots of the dancers to relatively meaningless close-ups of faces and feet. Of course, their dancing isn't all that terrific either so maybe it's just very clever idea and they relied heavily on crude and infantile material supposedly to comment on the idle rich on the lower west coast. All they accomplished was filming 100 minutes of embarrassingly slowpaced, ridiculous meanderings of a group of unappealing people.

The story-line has two houseboys betting that they can seduce each other's employers, the recent divorcee (Mary Woronov) and the recent widow (Jacqueline Bisset). The seductions have all the grace and appeal of baseball bats and take place on a weekend filled with various family crises, strange family members and adolescent, uncredible dialogue. There may very well be people like these in the world, but let's not advertise it.

Satire should be funny and deal with important and engaging human characteristics. It also helps if it is entertaining. "Scenes from the Class Struggle . . ." is none of those.

"WARM NIGHTS on a Slow Moving Train" (B-, R, 90 minutes) is about the choices we make in the face of the choices that are made for us. It's also about hope in spite of hopelessness, despair in the light of loneliness and the sexual manipulations inherent in human nature.

Band has hand in success

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

A simple equation in the music business: Simple lyrics plus idealism equals snickers from critics.

Show of Hands, a California based three-person acoustical outfit, is no exception. Their self-titled debut album on I.R.S. Records has been on the receiving end of both positive and negative reviews.

The reasons for liking the LP are many, including nice harmonies and skillful musicianship. On the other side, the rose-colored views presented on the album might be considered somewhat naive.

"I think one of the reasons it sparks cynicism is that some of the lyrics are so direct," said Randell Kirsch, whose group will perform Tuesday at The Ark in Ann Arbor. "They're easy to make fun of because they are so idealistic. Some of the reviewers said it sounded like we are trying to save the world.

"We're a band that believes anything you do changes the world."

"I think cynicism is part of the problem," added band member Lu-Ann Olson. "It's something to hide behind. I know because I was cynical at one time."

Oh really? There isn't a cynical syllable uttered on the Show of Hands LP. Songs directly address things like love ("Real Love"), war ("Another War") and God ("God Made the World").

Like the song titles suggest, there is no underlying message or surreal imagery. What we have here, folks, is a band that tells like it really is.

AND THAT has its pluses and minuses. Some people already know war is bad, love is good. People usually don't a need a musical group to tell them as such.

Also, there is always the drawback of being automatically labelled

REVIEWS

THE IRON MAN - Pete Townshend

One of the best things to come out of the demise of The Who has been Pete Townshend's solo career.

Other members of the band have not exactly set the recording world on fire with their own work. Yet we've seen Mr. Townshend evolve from a guitar smashing hero of mods to one of the most thoughtful and accomplished artists of our time.

Even from the self-destructive nature presented on his second solo LP, "Empty Glass" (ATCO), Townshend has grown as he's come to grips with himself as an artist, and as a person. Pete Townshend doesn't need music (despite this out-for-the-money tour), music needs Pete Townshend.

This latest LP, "The Iron Man," (Atlantic) is certainly his most amble tious to date along the lines of "Tommy" and "Quadraphenia."

"The Iron Man" is the musical adaptation of a children's book by Poet Laureate Ted Hughes. Townshend takes on the role of the main character, "Hogarth," who is a 10-year-old boy. Other performers on the album include blues great John Lee Hooker as "The Iron Man" and Who vocalist Roger Daltrey "Hogarth's Father." It's Daltrey who provides the most aggressive moment on the album, doing a remake of Arthur Brown's "Fire." Otherwise, this is a very show, they were sharp, "professionmusically serene album.

Part of the reason lies in that Townshend did most of the writing for "The Iron Man" on an acoustic gultar. He disdains the use of an electric one due to his well-publicized hearing loss.

This conceptual work definitely has an easy feel to it, which makes it endearing and enjoyable. No longer is Townshend compelled to write anthems or conform to the pop world. In a children's book, he's found inner-peace and, as a result, we've found a great plece of music. - Larry O'Connor

BoDeans

This is the BoDeans first LP since their 1987 release, "Outside Looking In," and a lot has happened to the band in the interim. It shows on many levels. BoDeans are a very hard working band and they have been touring quite extensively since 1987, which explains the large gap between LPs. The difference between this LP, "Home" (Slash Records), and "Outside Looking In" is akin to the difference in their live shows in Traxx in 1986 and Ann Arbor in 1988. At the earlier show, the BoDeans were fresh, exciting, just good guys having a good time playing what they liked most. At the Ann Arbor al," impersonal, going through the

The things that have happened to them have obviously affected them, sometimes not to their advantage. They toured six weeks with U2, and while that is a major step for exposure, I think guitarist Kurt Neumann (Beau BoDean), spent too many nights checking out The Edge's equipment. This is most evident on Much" when even the drums are U2-

They also performed on the Robble Robertson LP and his influence to overcome the "glossy" feel of the is notable lytically, especially on new BoDeans. "Red River," which coincidentally was written between shows with Robertson (according to the sleeve notes). Their lyrics betray the fact that they've been touring for awhile. From "When the Love is Good" -"And I get so tired of leve on the phone/I'm standing here when I should be at home." - or, as offered. 'In "Far Far Away From My Heart" - "I'm so tired of fighting with myself, as I curse the telephone along these lines." Musically, they range from the melancholy Springsteen-esque "No One," "Don't Get Much" and "Far Far Away From My Heart" to the sanitized good time rock'n'roll of "Good Work." The latter is dedicated to Jerry Lee Lewis and is also mentioned on the sleeve notes as having "Brand New" and "You Don't Get been performed in Hampton, Va., with members of U2!!! This prompts

Since then, I have found work but still consider my main job to be raising my children. As the cost of living goes up, I will need to work more.

The problem is that I feel envious of my husband and his new wife's ability to apparently raise their standard of living while I struggle to make ends meet.

They have recently bought a new larger house that my kids are excited about and I feel terrible about. I can't seem to find a way to work through these feelings.

The adult in me says "grow up, worry about your own life." Nevertheless, I feel left behind. That was supposed to be me in that new house. Can you offer any suggestions on how I might stop feeling such anguish?

Dear L.L., Your letter has pertinence for an ever growing segment of our society. I thank you for the opportunity to discuss how divorce feels to those who have been "left behind."

You ask for suggestions on how because he had found another wom- you might stop feeling "such anguish." Research shows that women, after divorce, go through a period of bereavement typical to all serious losses. So how you feel can be expected and is normal. The problem is the length of time it takes to complete the mourning process. If extended for too long, it then becomes abnormal.

From the reading I have done, I would place two years as the upper limit of normal.

Do you have family and/or friends who could serve as support systems during this painful period? Change happens to everyone and we are responsible to adapt.

Barabra

Dear Barbara,

I'm writing after reading your column for the first time: I was very impressed. It seems you are providing a very much needed forum for you readers.

I feel lost in trying to come up with a solution as to where I can find the kind of man accepting of my particular circumstances. I'm an attractive, intelligent, successfully career-oriented woman of 33 years. I've been married 10 years, now divorced with two children. So what is my problem, right?

It seems many men in my age group seem to be suffering from a "Biological Clock Syndrome" more than any women I've known. I've had my children already, so the Issue of bables in my future is out of the question. I would like to find someone who can appreciate this.

I have the ability because of my unique position to wait for a very, very long time to find the right companion in my life; it's just I'd rather not if it can be avoided. Do I have to keep looking for an eight plus-year spread to have common ground?

Mature Beyond My Years

Dear M.B.M.Y.,

Thank you for your kind words and interesting letter. You very clearly present the problem of your age group, even if they don't have children.

In our current culture, women of your age group are at a disadvantage. There are not enough men to go around for female "baby boomers." Many older men are dating and marrying younger women in their early 20s.

It would seem clear that maturity is not what they are looking for. In a letter that I recently received, one of the women in your age group described the search for an adequate man as a "crap shoot." She was one of the rare ones who got lucky and found what she wanted. Many others settle for safety in a marriage without getting what they want. Others are often willing to overlook an eight plus-year spread, if they find common ground otherwise.

I wish I were wise enough to tell you what to do. Fortunately, you sound mature enough to work it out for yourself.

"When we bought the resort, we had no idea what we were getting into," she said. "But it turned out to be a great life."

THE ISLAND, 18 miles long and nine miles wide, has 150 miles of rugged scenic shoreline, 30 sheltered bays and coves and 34 inland lakes.

Much of its southern shore is lined with privately owned cottages. Most of the forested state-owned land is without roads and cannot be toured by car. But hikers can walk the land's rutted dirt roads - if they're not afraid of meeting up with a bear.

Last year, the Department of Nat-ural Resources allowed bear hunting on the island for the first time since

"Thousands sought a permit," said

Burton of Stream Line Sports. "Twenty-three bears were killed."

The most hectic time on Drummond Island is "when the ice goes out" in the spring. That's when the ice melts and perch, walleye and smelt all begin their annual runs. Resort owners scurry to get their cottages ready for the hordes of fishermen who descend on Potagannissing Bay. Most of the resorts offer places to clean and freeze the fish.

In the fall, fishermen return once again for the fish runs. And hunting for deer, ruffed grouse, woodcock, rabbits, fox, coyote, bobcat, bear, geese and ducks also begins.

a European production with portions of the sound track dubbed. There is a certain distance and awkwardness in such productions.

The main problem, however, is the script which is so badly structured that Weller and Seymour stare at one another for long periods with nothing to say. This is love? Obsession? How about bad filming?

Then, after these dull moments, with apparent embarrassment, they recite surrealistic, disconnected lines that presumably have philosophical meaning. Most of Weller and Seymour's delivery has the im-pact of a first reading. Rey has personality and character although he's on screen for a very short time.

VISUALLY, the film has some attractive moments but, for the most part, it is a sophomoric exercise, "Symbolism 101." However he did it, Ernesto Sabato managed to adapt what is billed as his "best-selling novel" into one of the most leaden, unentertaining films available in a

Another part of the problem is the gigantic VCR market. There is so much money to be made selling and renting videotapes for home use that none of the players in the video business need to worry about market acceptance. Apparently, anything and everything breaks even or makes money so anything and everything is acquired, packaged and distributed. If you're just whistling in the dark, then "The Tunnel" may be all right. If you want some dramatic excitement and entertainment, move quickly along the shelves of your favorite video store.

"Dead Aim" is another Vestron offering this month, although I didn't have time to screen it. It's billed as an exciting detective thriller with exotic dancers, drugs, the FBI and the KGB.

It also got a name cast — Ed Marinaro, Corbin Bernsen, William Sanderson, Darrell Larson, Isaac Hayes and William Windom — but dramatic quality is not the question press agents deal with.

Gottfried became philosophical when discussing the state of comedy in 1989, however. With the phenomenal growth of the comedy club circuit and the number of comics fighting for breaks in the '80s, he wonders what the next decade will bring.

"I think comedy will become the McDonald's of the '90s, with all the chains of clubs," he said. "I kind of wonder if the audiences will ever get tired of it. They could be tired of me already.

Michael Webster got hooked on triathalons when he and his college roommate decided to train for a local triathlon in Kankakee, III.

What makes Mike run?

By Brad Emons staff writer

It started innocently and gradually became a passion for triathlete Michael Webster.

"I was into a variety of sports," recalls the 29-year-old product design engineer from Plymouth. "I was a bike racer, mediocre at best, but I tried hard. I had done some running and I knew how to swim when I was in grade school and high school. I played basketball, tennis, and was a golfer, too."

While altending the University of Illinois, Webster and his roommate decided to train for a local triathlon — a half-mile swim at an outdoor community pool, followed by a 20-mile bike ride and 10-kilom-

"It was in Kankakee, Illinois - the two of us trained the whole summer and had one heck of a time," he said. Webster was hooked.

By 1987 he was in triathlon heaven. With over 4,000 applicants, Webster's name was one of 1,200 drawn to compete in the Ironman Triathlon World Championship in Kona, an island in Hawaii.

THE TASK was an arduous one. Within 17 hourse he would be required to complete a grueling 2.4-mile open-ocean swim, a 112-mile blke race, and a 26.2mile marathon through the vast lava fields and sun-drenched coastline of the largest of the Hawaiian Islands.

A well-prepared Webster was up to the challenge, finishing the event in 10 hours and 24 minutes.

"He participated in a master's swim program in Ann Arbor and it really helped," said Webster's wife, Vickie, an avid runner who competed in this year's Boston Marathon. "Michael took a month off (from his job) before the race. We were dating at the time and he didn't see me much, but I was happy for him because he said the experience was fantastic. He said he enjoyed it. It never bothered him one

Some may view his Ironman endeavor as masochistic, but for Webster it was like a walk in the park.

"I always dreamed of the Ironman. It was always one of my goals," he said. "I was able to get in good shape and when I got done, I felt good.

'But before that I had visions of stumbling around. There were horrible visions . . . I was real tired as I crossed the finish line and I was beat up."

BUT WITH THE beautiful surroundings and proper training, Webster was able to come away with an even greater yearning to compete another Ironman someday. (His name has been passed over in the lottery now for two straight years.)

"You train in relative isolation, but once you get over there (Kona), the environment is so great because there are so many people just like you. You talk to each other about training techniques and it's exciting. It's real upbeat atmosphere."

Webster's advice to any first-time triathlete is simple.

"Try not to get caught up in the competition right away," he said. "Enjoy your first triathlon. Don't try to squeeze out every last second.

"One of my goals at the Ironman was just to finish. I didn't push myself to the edge. I wasn't racing. I held back a little and stayed within my abilities."

Naturally, Webster idolizes the king of triathletes, Dave Scott of Davis, California, who completed the 1986 Ironman course in a record eight hours, 28 minutes and 37 seconds.

"HE'S THE GUY I look up to, he's truly remarkable," Webster said. "He's not only gifted and talented, but he's often an underdog who always comes from behind. And he's humble, something I think we should all strive to be."

While Webster awaits another chance to compete in Hawaii, he spends his leisure hours running with the Redford Roadrunners Club or competing in local triathlons. In April he ran his third Boston Marathon, finishing in an impressive two hours and 49 minutes.

"When I was single, I could get away with staying out until 10 p.m. training, but now it's more difficult," he said. "I have added demands to my wife and it takes away from training, but my wife is very encouraging and supportive.'

Vickie Webster said she wouldn't mind another trip to Hawaii.

"He's dying to do it again, I'd be glad to go," she laughed. "It wouldn't take much to get him motivated. All he needs more time to train.

But ever with the demands of his marriage, a full-time job with Ford Motor Co. and night school (Wayne State's master's program), Webster is itching for another opportunity at the Ironman.

"I FOUND MYSELF often dreaming about it," he said. "After a challenge like that, you feel you've reached the ultimate. But there's also quite a letdown. That's why my ambition is to go back and maybe go a little faster.

"The people who work the Ironman take every precaution and they make it enjoyable and safe. You come away feeling

'Angel' flies way to fame

So you want to be Naval jet pilot, eh?

Well, like in the films "An Officer and a Gentlemen" and "Top Gun," first you have to go to flight school. Nothing strenuous, mind

First, let's take a dip. You have to swim a mile — in 25 pounds full flight gear. But before you dry off, you have to dive off a platform and swim another 25 yards underwater wearing the same outfit.

We aren't even talking about the obstacle course or the loads of work in the classroom or trying to land a jet at night on an aircraft carrier in the middle of the ocean.

Indeed, to be jet fighter pilot, a person has to want it. Lt. Cmdr. Doug McClain dld. As a result, he flles as No. 3 pilot, left wing for the U.S. Navy's prestigious Blue Angels flight team. 'It's pretty similar (to the movies)," said McClain, 32, whose Blue Angels will fly this weekend at the Wayne County Air Show. "It's Hollywood, so they dramatize things a bit. But as a far as the physical demands and the flight footage, it's very realistic."

Except in the movies, the ride is only two hours long. In the Blue Angels, there's some 80 shows a year with 300 days on the road. For an aour of performing in an air show, there is at least four hours of practice.

FOR THAT reason, Blue Angel pilots usually only serve two or three years on the team. This is McClain's second year, performing as a narrator last season.

. As the No. 3 pilot, McClain's job is to balance the flight formation. The No. 2 pilot on the right wing sets the formation, McClain fol-

That takes practice. McClain has had plenty.

His debut in the Blue Angels has been preceded by an honored career in the U.S. Navy. He served aboard the aircraft carrier USS Midway as a member of the VA-115 Eagles. As a member of the Eagles, he was awarded "Top Tall-1984. He was also honored with the tration. Navy Achievement Medal for over-

Navy Lt. Cmdr. Doug McClain said Hollywood isn't offbase when it comes to being a top-notch pilot. He flies as No. 3 pilot, left

"EACH SHOW is different," McClain said. "The accomplishment you feel by performing a sale and enjoyable show makes it worthwhile. Obviously, we don't hear the fans clapping on the ground.

"The only thing is you can't get too excited. It's a lot like a football player playing 60 minutes of football. Both are physically and mentally demanding."

Before a show, members of the Blue Angels sit down to map out each detail. They can spend up to two hours debriefing after a performance.

"Each time we go out - we call It a show - but It's really a practice," he said.

The winter months are spent preparing for the upcoming air show season. The Blue Angels spend January through March, flying twice a day six times a week.

Each maneuver is carefully gauged and practiced. For that reason, the Blue Angels have performed for 43 years before more than 2 million spectators without incident. The air show disaster in West Germany last summer has brought closer scrutiny to such ex-

Usually, the heads the Blue Angels turn at air shows look upon the pilot's life as a glamorous one. But it can be grueling.

The amount of time spent away from home is difficult, especially for a guy like McClain who has a wife and three children. McClain said he lifts weights and exercises during down time.

"We're depicted as being glamorous and stuff," he sald. "What people don't understand is the work that goes into each show."

DO THE 11 p.m. instead of the 9 p.m. Electrical Parade at the Kingdom. Watch daytime parades from the back of the Kingdom (for example, Frontierland or Liberty Square). Get to the Disney-MGM Studios Theme Park early and go straight to the Backstage Tour while others are finding their way down Hollywood Boulevard. You won't beat the crowds but it helps.

You will probably want to spend some of your night time doing the fireworks and electrical parade at the Kingdom and the new Laserphonic Fantasy show at EPCOT. Spend a night in Orlando at the clubs and cafes of Church St. Sta-

And definitely plan a night or two at Pleasure Island, which connects by three footbridges to the WDW Village Marketplace on the opposite side of the property from the theme parks. If you remember the Empress Lilly, a riverboatcum-restaurant, it anchors one end of the island.

This entertainment complex is quite different from other Disney attractions. It's designed for adults and older teens. You can eat, shop, enjoy the ongoing street parties and wandering musicians free, but a $14.95 flat fee gives you admission to any and all of the seven themed nightclubs.

You must be 21 to go to Mannequins Dance Palace. You should probably have a teen-aged escort, if you're over 21 at Videopolis East. Each place is unique -XZFR Rockin' RollerDrome, Adventurers Club, Neon Armadillo, Comedy Warehouse, and the more traditional Empress Lilly.

"It's like one big night club with seven different rooms," Carradine sald. "Pleasure Island is a new form of entertainment with its roots going back before the days of sound films.

"DISNEYLAND and the Magle Kingdom were based on the movies, but Pleasure Island is based on the ideas that led to Disneyland in the first place. The whole island has the texture of a night-time arena. It's not like a cinema, its more like a theater, only the visitors are the actors and the script changes every night."

Carradine gets really excited when he talks about designing XZFR or Mannequins, both of which are entered from the top and light. Crowds are dancing on the street. The building is an atrium, a vessel of light. The live band is in a futuristic vehicle above the dance floor. Roller skaters circle on a mezzanine bove it.

Mannequins is more like a live dance theater. You listen to intercom conversations between show technicians as you ride the elevator to the third floor. From a catwalk you look down on a revolving dance floor and a crowd of real and live mannequins dancing in a world that never stands still. Sets move. Lights change; the floor

The Adventurers Club, "once a retreat for Pleasure's yachting clientele," is where you join live performers on a mystery tour, following the great explorers into the unknown, or breaking off at the bar, as you wish.

Videopolis East was designed for your brother, but you will love it if you can stand 125 decibels. You walk into a huge video arcade, which is illuminated by 169 video monitors. It looks like the inside of a spacecraft, with the latest music videos and two cameras shooting images of the dancers onto some of the screens. You even dance on video monitors.

"Each of the clubs express their entertainment form by conventional means, but Videopollis East is quite different from the others," Carradine said. "Its all light. Imagine 169 30-inch monitors controlled by a computer system. Six locations have monitors that ask you to play games, difficult games, but if you win you can take over the whole club temporarily."

Q. I work for a software company, doing direct marketing as well as many sales seminars. I enjoy my work but get frustrated when I see companies looking at specific needs, such as one new program, rather than seeing their bigger picture. They often need to learn how their departments can work together better, etc. but I'm not paid to help them in that way. What can I do?

A. In our phone conversation, we agreed that you could begin teaching team-building seminars on your own, and that joining the National Speakers Association would be an excellent way to network and learn to market yourself.

Like you, all too many people have burning messages in them, but don't know how to go about spreading their word. Others have had different goals in the backs of their heads for years, but haven't acted upon them because they don't know how to go about implementing their ideas. Perhaps they want to hire a bookkeeper, be more fashionable, make friends easier, be a better decision maker, write a book or overcome shyness. Still others suffer miserable relationships because of poor communications skills but don't know where to turn for Lack of information and support is their greatest problem. People often procrastinate because locating exactly the right resource is extremely difficult. Finding the precise support needed could change your life, so don't be afraid to ask for information. People are usually wonderful about helping.

The key is to get started looking. Ask friends, relatives, business associates, consultants or college counselors. Check out associations in the reference section of the library. Look in the pho ne book and start calling anyone even vaguely related to what you want. If you face a blind alley, just back out and start in another direction. Don't get discouraged.

Outlays of money can also impede pet projects. It may seem that $500 or $1,000 is too much to spend for help. As you point out, look at the bigger picture. If your plan won't reimburse you either financially or emotionally, or if it will continue to bleed you, then it is too much to spend. If you are convinced your project will repay you many times over financially, change your life dramatically or give you great personal satisfaction, then it could be the best investment of your life.

You obviously have what it takes to do what you want, you just have to do what it takes to get what you want.

condo queries Robert M. Meisner

Q. Our management company has recently gotten involved in our condo project and suggested that we terminate the contract with our landscaping contractor. The management company has suggested that we come up with someone else because he doesn't like our landscaping contractor. There are some on the board that are concerned because we are in the middle of a two or three year contract with the landscaping contractor. We just hired the management company over the last year or so and are wondering what to do. There is a difference of opinion on the board as to whether or not we can terminate the landscaping contractor. What do we do?

A. You are best advised to check out why the management company wants to terminate the landscaping contractor, particularly if you are satisfied with his work. Find out who the management company has in mind to replace it and find out whether that replacement is an affiliated company of the management company. If so, you may be getting an indication of how your management company is. Find out from your law-yer, in writing, whether or not you can even terminate your landscaping contractor before you go any further. If you are satisfied with your landscaping contractor presumably even if you're paying a little more, you are well advised to stay with him. The management company, if it is not acting properly, may be subjecting itself to a suit by the landscaping contractor for wrongful interference with the contractual relations between the association and the landscaping contractor. In short, a personality dispute or self-aggrandizement by the management company may be leading the association into hot water. Check your legal rights.

Shredded paper good garden mulch

By Earl Aronson special writer

LD newspapers create a problem when they fill up landfills and clutter basements and garages. But there is a good use for old newspapers that helps bring about a more productive, weed-free garden.

A mulch of shredded newspapers conserves moisture, moderates temperatures and discourages weed growth. It can also shelter seedlings on exposed soil from sun, wind and rain. The paper generally decomposes gradually into soil-enriching humus by the end of the season.

Newspaper strips mixed with grass clippings soak up excess moisture to encourage an airy, open texture in compost piles. The high-carbon newsprint rots readily in combination with the high-nitrogen clippings, and household wastes such as fruit and vegetable peelings, egg shells, coffee grounds and tea leaves.

Newspapers generally contain 75 percent ground wood pulp and 25 percent purified fiber or cellulose. Wood pulp contains the nutrients and trace elements that were in the trees originally. Newsprint ink is made from carbon black and mineral oil and is not harmful to plants or microbial soil life. Newspapers are said to be rich in carbohydrate energy and have been successfully fed to cattle by agricultural researchers at several university experiment sta-

NEW EMPRESS APPLE: A new apple, dsscribed as "semi-firm and snappy, with good color, texture and size," has been named Empress by Cornell University's New York Agricultural Experiment Station at Ge-

The apple, with a pedigree dating back two and a half centuries, is reported similar in appearance and some characteristics to Empire, named in 1966. However, Empress ripens a month earlier, which is "a real plus," says Dr. Roger D. Way, professor emeritus. "It means that quality New York State apples will be available to consumers well before many other varieties."

The parents of Empress are Jonamac and the New Jersey-bred Vista Bella. Jonamac is a cross of McIntosh and Jonathan.

Way said: "Unlike many varieties that produce well every other year. Empress is an annual cropper with consistently good yield. And the aping color newspaper inserts and, ple is the product of a relatively small tree, enabling growers to plant more trees per acre, thus increasing

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

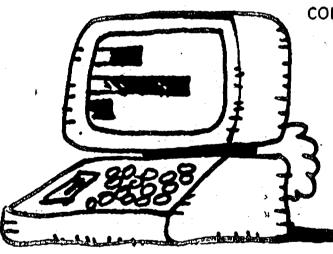

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genulnely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a salel

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.
