Candidates exchange barbs at heated forum

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

Westland mayoral and city council candidates alternated verbal jabs with support for their colleagues Tuesday night during a sometimes raucous "Candidates Night" at the Wayne-Ford Civic League hall.

The personal barbs came out early and often during the 2 1/2-hour program, despite a format change from previous debates designed to eliminate such animosity. Instead of candidates answering questions from the floor, written questions were screened by a randomly selected four-member panel.

The two mayoral candidates and six of the eight council candidates on the Nov. 7 ballot appeared at the program. Council candidates Michael Bradley and Dorothy Smith were invited, but didn't attend, said Civic League president John Franklin, who acted as moderator.

The program drew about 175 people and was videotaped by Continental Cablevision for broadcast on a yet to be determined date.

WHILE SOME questions focused on the major campaign issues — commercial/industrial development and public safety — side issues such as the mayor's salary, candidates' work ethics and education and disputed comments in campaign literature constituted most of the discussion.

At times, the program sounded like a rally for mayoral challenger Robert Thomas, who was cheered on by a large and vocal contingent of city union employees.

Mayor Charles Griffin and city council incumbents Kenneth Mehl, Ben DeHart and William Ziembra also had a large number of supporters.

At one point, Thomas backers managed to shout down a rebuttal from Mehl to their candidate's just-completed remarks about overdevelopment of strip malls.

"You don't have to believe our numbers (of vacant storefronts), you don't have to believe (Griffin's)," Thomas told the audience. "Just take a look around town and count them yourself."

Mehl responded to the question later on in the program, pointing out that vacancies are "a (shopping center) management problem, not a city government problem."

Griffin though, managed to turn the tables on Thomas, who has advocated a moratorium on rezonings of residentially classified properties in an effort to slow commercial development.

IN RESPONSE to a question on TIFA (Tax Increment Financing Authority) funds, Thomas pointed out that Central City Parkway — the road built with TIFA money in 1988 and touted by the administration as a gateway to the city's downtown retail district — "hasn't seen a stick of development."

"Now you're for development," Griffin responded sarcastically. "Well, how about that?"

Council challengers Ethel Bollinger, Sandra Cicirelli and Terri Reighard Johnson also fielded questions and talked about their backgrounds.

Bollinger spoke about preserving some of the city's rural environment and proposed the creation of an environmental park where trees displaced by commercial or residential development could be replanted.

Johnson said she favored taking a second look at the city's master zoning plan and, on another topic, defended her involvement in the 15th

Make-up wizard creates Dracula

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

It's 7 p.m. and the Indiana Summer sun has just disappeared behind a strip of businesses on Ford Road. Time to head out to the hearse, er uh, car and cruise for nourishment. Let's see, the nearest Red Cross blood bank is . . .

Lauri Cuppetilli was right. The resident make-up artist at LaPointe's Formal Wear and Costumes in Garden City said this would happen. About halfway through a typical makeover, according to Cuppetilli, most clients go through a personality transition. "I can see it in their eyes," Cuppetilli said. "They start to become the character we're doing for them."

For me, it was Count Dracula. You know the guy. Tall, stately eastern European type, dresses in basic black, loves the nightlife.

When it comes to Halloween, I'm a traditionalist. You can have Batman, the Joker, or whatever trendy costume is this year's big seller. Just give me a cape and some fangs and I'm happy.

SO IT WAS that I found myself at Cuppetilli's makeup table inside the cramped, costume-filled store on Ford near Venoy.

As I went through the 45-minute transformation — from mild-mannered reporter and all around fun-loving person to evil, night-stalking vampire — Cuppetilli, store manager Barb Patterson and owner Chuck La Pointe filled me in on how the process works.

"People often have an idea of what they want to be or how they want to look when they walk in the door," Patterson said.

The more popular movie monsters (Jason from "Friday the 13th," Freddy from "Nightmare on Elm Street" and Michael Meyers from "Halloween") all are prefabricated. Other characters, like the Grim Reaper or werewolves, require makeovers.

If a client needs help making a selection, he or she can thumb through a thick book of gory photographs for inspiration.

La Pointe singles out a photo of a "gunshot victim" as one of the more unusual requests the store has handled. The victim supplied his own shotgun shell, which was attached as a prosthesis just below his eye.

Makeovers range from $12-$100, depending on which character is chosen, and require anywhere from 30 minutes to an hour to complete, La Pointe said. Clothing and props used by the character cost extra.

ONCE A MAKEOVER persona is selected, the client makes an appointment for the day of the party. This year, because Halloween falls on a Tuesday, the preceding Friday and Saturday are expected to be the busiest nights, Patterson said.

"We'll be here until 9 or 10 o'clock doing makeovers," she said. That's where Cuppetilli comes in.

The freelance make-up artist and licensed hairdresser has spent the last seven years in the Detroit area working in commercial films and videos. A Novi native, she trained at a private school in Los Angeles.

"I came back from Hollywood and found that there's actually a lot of work — mostly auto stuff — in this town," she said.

Doing Halloween makeovers is "a lot of fun" compared to the often-tedious task of making up fashion models or working on the set of an industrial film, Cuppetilli said.

"People want to look really gory," she said. "The gorier you make them, the better they like it."

CUPPETILLI'S craft is part science, part art. She works from an industrial-sized tool box filled with jars, plastic makeup holders, brushes and cloths.

For my Dracula look, a change in hair color was the first step. Out with the old brown and on with a coat of Transylvania Black.

Next, Cuppetilli applies base makeup to my face. The color she chooses is Frankenstein Gray, leading me to hope that I won't be facing a monster identity crisis before we're finished.

She uses a variety of shadows and liners to enhance my already bushy eyebrows and to create bags under my eyes.

Cuppetilli said men, who generally don't have quite as much experience at the makeup table, are sometimes visibly nervous about having someone work at such close proximity.

The second half of the Dracula makeover begins with white, clown-style makeup and blush, added to give my face a more gaunt look. Cuppetilli darkens my mustache using the hairspray, this time applied with a brush.

Fangs attached with dental adhesive, a bit of fake blood dribbling down my chin and a cape provide the finishing touches.

Now, where was that blood bank again?

City eyes new drug program

By Leonard Poger
editor

Westland City Council members want to enact a new drug abuse prevention program but first want to know how to pay for it.

After an informal study session Monday, the council and Mayor Charles Griffin agreed to have top city officials meet with their counterparts in the Wayne-Westland school district to discuss school financial support.

The program is called D.A.R.E., an acronym for Drug Abuse Resistance Education, which provides an officer in an elementary school for 17 weeks. The program is already used by the Livonia and Wayne police in the Livonia and Wayne-Westland school districts, as well as Inkster.

In the Livonia district, the school board is financing the portion of the program which has officers in the three Westland elementaries in the district.

Executive Lt. Michael Frayer of the Westland police department told the council that the program, if implemented, must be continued on a long-range basis, not just held for one year and then dropped.

Frayer, accompanied by Police Chief Paul Schnarr, said D.A.R.E. is more than a "just say no" to drugs program.

There are 17 specific lessons, one for each week, with the police officer handling the program becoming

Brandon O'Grady young scrapper

Cystic fibrosis defeats 'a scrapper'

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

When Brandon O'Grady's lifelong battle against cystic fibrosis ended last weekend, it marked the first time his son had ever given in to the genetic respiratory disease, said his father, Brian O'Grady.

"He fought it all the way to the end, he was such a scrapper," O'Grady, of Westland, said Tuesday. "But at least now he won't have to suffer any longer."

Brandon, 15, died Sunday night at Mott Children's Hospital, Ann Arbor.

He had been hospitalized since Wednesday.

Services for Brandon were scheduled for 11 a.m. today at Lentz Funeral Home, Wayne. Entombment was to be at Cadillac Memorial Gardens, Westland.

A sixth grader at Cooper Elementary School, the illness had slowly crippled Brandon's respiratory system and attacked other vital organs since he was diagnosed shortly before his first birthday. The disease has no known cure.

Brandon, whose devotion to the Detroit Red Wings hockey team was surpassed only by his love for outdoor sports and activities, had been tethered to portable oxygen tanks since March.

IN JUNE, friends and family members arranged for telephone calls to Brandon from Red Wings players Steve Yzerman, Gerard Gallant and Lee Norwood. The calls from his hockey heroes helped cheer the mostly homebound Brandon, said his mother, Diane O'Grady.

The Make A Wish Foundation, which specializes in granting requests for children with serious illnesses, helped arrange the telephone calls.

"He knew the calls were coming so it really wasn't a surprise," Diane O'Grady said at the time. "But still, each time the phone rang, it really picked up his spirits."

A benefit to help defray Brandon's medical expenses was also held at a Westland restaurant/lavern.

Brian O'Grady works for the Wayne County Road Commission, but Diane O'Grady was forced to leave her job two years ago in order

Award deadline extended

The deadline for First Citizen of Westland community service award nominations has been extended until Monday, Oct. 30.

The extension is made to allow groups and individuals more time to submit nominees for the fourth annual award.

The award was initiated in 1986 under the co-sponsorship of the Westland Observer and the Westland Chamber of Commerce.

Any group or individual can nominate someone for the award, which will be given at the chamber's membership luncheon Tuesday, Nov. 14.

Nominees must be someone active in a community, civic or service organization that has a direct impact on the community.

Residency is not a requirement for nomination.

Judges for the fourth annual award will be Sam Corrado, automatically named to the judging committee for winning last year's award; Janet Lockman, Wayne-Westland Family YMCA executive director; Joyce Wheeler, chamber office manager and Thomas Svitkovich, Wayne-Westland School District associate superintendent for communication and finance, and the Westland Rotary Club president.

Nominations should include information about the candidate's community service activities and how those activities have affected the community.

Nominees will be considered for being involved in a variety of activities or for specializing in just one.

The judging committee will meet in early November to review the nominations and select the 1989 First Citizen, who will be announced the week before the luncheon.

Judges and full-time employees of the chamber and the Observer are not eligible for the award.

Send nominations to the Westland Observer editorial department, First Citizen Award, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150, by Wednesday.

BESIDES Corrado, other First Citizens were Joseph Benyo, honored in 1986, and Thomas Brown, recognized the next year.

Westland carpenter hurt in 20-foot fall

A Westland carpenter was injured after falling 20 feet from the second floor of a house under construction in Farmington Hills on Monday.

David Michael Holt, who worked for a Union Lake subcontractor, was listed in guarded condition with multiple injuries Tuesday at St. Mary Hospital, Livonia, authorities said.

Farmington Hills firefighters found Holt, 24, lying on his back beneath construction material when the two-story house on Birchcrest Way collapsed at 12:20 p.m., Farmington Hills police said.

Four workers were on the second floor but no one else was hurt.

The house apparently collapsed after roof trusses had been placed by crane and secured on the second floor.

AS PLYWOOD sheets were delivered by crane to the second floor, the roof began to rock back and forth. The trusses then fell, many to the first floor.

Holt was in the center of the second floor when he fell, Farmington Hills police officer James Kase said.

Thomas Swindlehurst, a Flint-based safety officer for the Michigan Occupational Safety and Health Administration Construction Safety Division's Bureau of Safety and Regulation, was called in to determine the cause of the accident.

Swindlehurst also will determine if any Michigan Department of Labor safety rules and regulations were violated, said Michael Flasky, MOSHA regional supervisor in Lansing.

"Every employer is required to provide a safe workplace for employees," Flasky said.

Swindlehurst's report is expected next week.

PETER BALDWIN
Police officer James Kase guards the scene of the collapsed house, while the injured carpenter is treated. The scene was restricted, with people not necessary in extricating or treating the injured worker kept out.

Local motorists weary of bottlenecks on a two-lane stretch of Merriman between Joy and Plymouth won't have to suffer much longer.

The road will be widened to five lanes by the county.

The county plans to start and finish the $2.1 million project during the 1990 construction season.

The federal share of the project will be about $1.6 million, with the county paying about $531,000.

The road surface for the one-mile stretch will be concrete, said Galindo.

TIPS ON PACKING

Treating light and efficiently can make trips easier and more fun. For example:

Save up the free samples you get of toiletries, grooming aids, suntan lotion, shoe polish, perfume and the like. Take as many as you might reasonably need, and discard samples as you go along.

DelBroquet, CTC

Pack a collapsible lightweight bag. Then, when you begin packing, you'll have a place to put your goodies, without adding weight or straining the seams of your regular luggage. Try to find a tote with a shoulder strap—they're more versatile when you're carrying several pieces.

Lay any piece of clothing that's bigger than your suitcase across the bottom; let the ends stick out. Then fill the suitcase with smaller things and fold the long ends over the top. This way your longer clothing won't get creased or wrinkled.

Hang garments promptly and shake out wrinkles. Remember that skirts and woollens can be smoothed by hanging in a steamy bathroom while you shower. If you're going to stay in one place for a few days, hotel valet service is a worthwhile luxury.

Picking a destination is easier, too, when you see the travel experts at

Adult ed center to save energy

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

Winter heating bills at the Cherry Hill Adult/Community Education Center will be substantially lower following the installation of an energy management system, a school official said Monday.

"We can now promote the same kinds of energy savings for Cherry Hill that we've had at John Glenn and Wayne Memorial (High Schools)," said Thomas Svitkovich, associate superintendent for communications and finance.

Installation of the computerized system from Honeywell was approved unanimously by the Wayne-Westland school board Monday night. Honeywell, one of four companies bidding on the project, turned in a low bid of $111,545.

The system is expected to be operational by Feb. 1, Svitkovich said.

The district will use a $63,055 grant from the U.S. Department of Energy and $48,490 in bond issue funds to pay for the system. A $12.9 million bond issue for building repair and equipment purchases was approved by school district voters in January 1988.

The district qualified for the federal grant because the system is expected to conserve energy, Svitkovich said.

SVITKOVICH SAID the district anticipates gas bill savings of 12 percent once the system is up and running.

During the three coldest months of 1988-89 — January, February and March — heating costs for the building totalled $54,895, Svitkovich said. Svitkovich said the system would automatically adjust the building temperature to suit the needs of those inside. For example, it could turn the heat down after 4:30 p.m. as people leave for the day, and turn it back up again at 7:30 a.m. before classes begin.

The district has also changed the way it buys natural gas to save money, according to Svitkovich. Gas is now purchased directly from the producer, instead of through a distributor acting as "middle man," he said.

Group helps calm speech jitters

David Brown isn't looking to become a smooth-talking, cigar-chomping huckster a la Lee Iacocca.

All the Westland man wants is to be comfortable when he addresses his co-workers at a company meeting. A quality control specialist for AAA, Brown wants to get through a presentation without the sweaty palms and nervous "ums" that seem to punctuate his speech any time he's talking to more than three or four people in the same room.

Brown, 26, is hoping that Toastmasters can show him how.

"It was either this (Toastmasters) or Dale Carnegie, and this just seemed a little more laid back, a little more my style," Brown said one recent evening as he returned from the podium in a small banquet room of a Ram's Horn restaurant in Redford Township.

BROWN, WHO belongs to the Dearborn-based Gabby AAA's Toastmasters group, joined 35 other members from a half-dozen local chapters for the organization's Area Table Topics and Humorous Speech Contest.

The regional contests are held once or twice each year, said Susan Rock, a member of the host Dearborn Dynamics Toastmasters.

Brown, who has been attending meetings since August, entered the impromptu Table Topics portion of the competition. Speakers had 15 seconds to prepare a 1-2 1/2-minute speech on a topic chosen by the moderator — last week's was "If I could change anything in my life during the last 20 years it would be

A series of green and yellow warning lights go off on the podium, reminding speakers they are approaching the time limit.

After starting off with a humorous remark about being a newlywed (he's been married less than a month), Brown spoke about being more serious about his education.

Brown didn't win, but he rated his own performance as "OK."

"I was a little nervous, but it wasn't anything like I was before I joined," he said. "Anyway, nobody's in this thing for the prize money."

Brown, a Ferris State University and John Glenn High School graduate, said he had always been terrified to speak in front of large groups of people. His hobbies — hunting, fishing, skiing — offer clues that Brown prefers solitary experiences to being part of a crowd.

BUT BROWN SAID he's going to be required to do a lot of public speaking after his recent promotion at AAA.

"(Toastmasters) has shown me that my fears about public speaking really weren't necessary," Brown said.

He said he finds it easier to speak on a blind topic than come up with prepared remarks. "This way I can just wing it, and it's easier to stay loose," he said.

He got into the area competition after winning the Table Topics contest held by his home chapter, which meets once a week during lunch hour at AAA headquarters.

Rock said the Table Topics competition is designed to "teach people how to speak on their feet."

"It's a tough thing to do, speak on something that you haven't prepared for," she acknowledged. "That's why we don't give it the same kind of evaluation like we do for humorous (prepared) speeches."

"But (being good at Table Topics) is going to help you when you have to handle something that comes up all of a sudden at a meeting," she said.

LOCAL CHAPTERS are generally a mix of men and women of varying ages, she said. While some, like Brown, join for professional reasons, others join "primarily for social reasons," she said.

People completing 10 speeches are given a certificate of accomplishment, she said. Some people drop out after receiving their certificate, and others remain active for 10 or more years. Rock said.

Board hires contractor to raze Whitman Center

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

By the end of March, the Whitman Center, which housed the Livonia school district's first junior high school, should be demolished and an open field in its place.

Starting this week, school maintenance workers wearing special suits and masks will remove asbestos from pipes and joints in the building on W. Chicago at Hubbard.

It was last used as an adult education center.

Once the building is gone, students at nearby Grant Elementary School will have a much bigger playground, as Grant is immediately south of the building. Because the building also is next to Whitman Park, demolition will increase dramatically the amount of open land in the area.

AT ONE time, the district was considering saving the gym and cafeteria wing for community activities.

Activities that once took place at Whitman Center have been moved to the Bentley Center at Five Mile and Hubbard.

week approved paying a Detroit company $120,000 to wreck the former one-story junior high school.

Before the building can be torn down, all asbestos in it must be removed. The EPA has linked asbestos to gastrointestinal cancers, lung cancer and other lung disorders, and has ordered it removed from schools.

It will take the seven members of the schools' special environmental team up to four months to remove all the asbestos, said Arthur Howell, director of operations for Livonia Public Schools.

"By law, we have to remove it," Howell said. "Otherwise it will be in the air."

THE DISTRICT will save up to $90,000 having its own specially trained employees remove the asbestos. Estimates from removal companies ranged from a high of $438,000 to a low of $138,000.

"It's extremely expensive to have this done," Howell said.

By using its own employees to remove the asbestos, the district is paying a lot less to demolish Whitman than it first anticipated.

Originally, Howell estimated it might cost as much as $600,000 to tear down the building, but that included the cost of removing the asbestos.

DEMOLITION, WHICH will take approximately a month, will start as soon as the asbestos is removed.

The wrecking company will level the ground; the district will then plant grass in the spring.

The asbestos will be put in special bags and trucked by a waste removal company to a landfill near Milford, Howell said.

Once Whitman Center is demolished, the site will be used for public purposes. Grant Elementary School, located behind Whitman, will have its playground enlarged and the adjacent Whitman Park will be expanded.

a part of the school's faculty. He added that there are no communities without a drug problem.

"We must educate kids and educate them young," he stressed, noting that drug abuse programs must start with elementary school students.

The abuse problem in high schools is leveling off, he said, with the problem moving down into the junior highs.

DEHART SAID the public may be unaware of how early the drug problem starts and that any program started by the city must be a lifelong commitment.

Griffin reminded that the council there are already two drug prevention programs in the community but there can always be improvements in the city's effort to curb the problem.

During the 35-minute discussion, council members and Mayor Griffin discussed the possibility of using federal community development block grant funds to pay for the program, but some members said they feared that the federal monies may not be available in future years.

Council members felt that the best chance for paying for the program is to ask the Wayne-Westland school district for support.

"If we're going to do it, let's do it right," said council president Kenneth Mehl.

HE SUGGESTED that colleagues Ben DeHart and Charles Pickering, along with Griffin and Frayer, meet with school Superintendent Dennis O'Neill and school board members Nov. 13 to discuss how to pay for the prevention program. The board has a scheduled business meeting that night.

A related issue was a suggestion to seek a cable-TV grant to pay for the program, but Dennis Fassett, a consultant who provides the city's community relations and cable-TV programming, pointed out that federal law prohibits use of cable revenues for non-cable related expenses.

Halloween parties set for youngsters Tuesday

An evening of worry-free trick or treating will be the highlight of a specially designed party for Westland children at the Bailey Recreation Center Tuesday.

The party is being sponsored by the city's parks and recreation department as an alternative to door-to-door trick or treating in local neighborhoods.

There will be two sessions: 6-7 p.m. for children up to 6 years old and 7:15-8:15 p.m. for children 7-12. Registration is open to the first 75 who sign up for each party.

Admission is $3 per child. A parent or guardian must accompany each child to the party and a special parents reception room will be available.

Children will be given a picture of themselves in costume, refreshments, games and will go trick or treating throughout the building. Each child will go home with a small bag filled with Halloween treats.

Space is limited and advance registration is required by 9 p.m. Friday. Tickets may be purchased at the Bailey's front desk of the center, Ford east of Newburgh.

Call the parks and recreation department, 722-7620, for more information.

cop calls

POLICE arrested two Romulus men Sunday night in connection with the armed robbery and assault of a Norway woman outside her house.

The woman wasn't seriously injured, police said.

The victim, 26, told police the men pulled up next to her car on the 2600 block of Caledonia at 11:28 p.m.

after she returned from an errand at a nearby 7-Eleven store.

She said one of the men got out of their car and asked her for directions. The man then grabbed her around the neck and grabbed her purse from the front seat of the car, the woman said.

During the struggle, the man struck her with a hard object in the chest, the woman said.

The woman told police the man ran off down the street with her purse before getting into the car with his accomplice.

The purse contained $3 cash, credit cards, a checkbook and personal identification, the woman said.

A short time later, officers at Annapolis and Harrison stopped a car matching the description given by the victim. They arrested the two men, 24 and 26.

A HOMEOWNER on the 1100 block of S. Carlson told police his pickup truck was stolen from in front of his home early Sunday.

The 1978 Ford pickup had more than $1,700 worth of business equipment and power tools inside, including a car phone, the man said.

The locked truck was stolen between midnight and 8 a.m., the man told police.

Transfer station to close for winter

Saturday is the final day Westland residents will be able to use the city's transfer site for rubbish disposal.

The site, in the public services department's yard on Marquette, east of Newburgh, will close for the winter beginning Sunday.

Residents wishing to dispose of items not picked up by the city's contractor should contact a private landfill. Household furniture and appliances will be picked up by the city contractor if the city is notified in advance. Garbage trucks will also pick up tree branches trimmed to a length of 3 feet in bundles of no more than 40 pounds.

For more information call the department of public services, 728-1770.

In hot water?

League, city at odds over water survey

By Tim Richard
staff writer

A group of mostly suburban women have incurred the city of Detroit's wrath for suggesting there may be "problems" with future water quality.

Charlie J. Williams, director of the city department which sells water to 118 outlying communities, said a metro area League of Women Voters (LWV) study "barely mentions" corrective actions Detroit is taking to rehabilitate the aging system.

"It is an insult to suggest that the director is not spending enough time overseeing the DWSD," Williams wrote, referring to himself in the third person.

THE LWV USED two grants to produce a 39-page outline of the system's problems after saying, "Detroit's water is in compliance with all current drinking water standards." But it added that "our current knowledge is too scanty to establish with confidence the safety of any drinking water."

The report and Williams' rebuttal were unveiled last week at a meeting of the Areawide Water Quality Board (AWQB), a seven-county agency related to the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

LWV co-chairs were Verona Morse of the Southfield-Lathrup-Oak Park league and Adele Pleatman of the West Bloomfield-Farmington Hills league.

Panel members were Florence Adamson and Ann Ramroth of Livonia; Katherine Cushman of Dearborn; Corothy Conrad and Nancy Johnson of Birmingham-Bloomfield; Elizabeth Kuhlman of Grosse Pointe; Marilyn Willson of Downriver Wayne County; and Loma Pointer of Detroit.

The argument started with the report's preface, which said, "The day before the committee's tour (of the Water Works Park water treatment plant), a 200-pound roof tile had fallen in the filtration building."

HERE ARE THE LWV's findings and Williams' rebuttals:

• In 1987 there were 384 oil and chemical spills in the Great Lakes and 492 in 1988. Detroit and federal emergency contingency plans need to be expanded and strengthened. No comment from Williams.

• Much capital investment has been delayed. The state estimates it will take $500 million to correct existing deficiencies.

Williams blamed suburban customer lawsuits over rates for "a great deal of delay" which prevented sale of bonds.

• The city budgeted $40 million in 1979-80 to rebuild the Water Works Park plant, and costs are now estimated at more than $100 million, "but as yet the rebuilding has not begun."

Williams: "Contracts are now in place."
• Some 60 filters at Springwells need rebuilding, and some filters at Water Works Park and the Southwest plants are inoperable.

Williams: The Southwest plant filters are out of service for maintenance. Work is under way for rehabilitating the Springwells and Water Works Park filters.

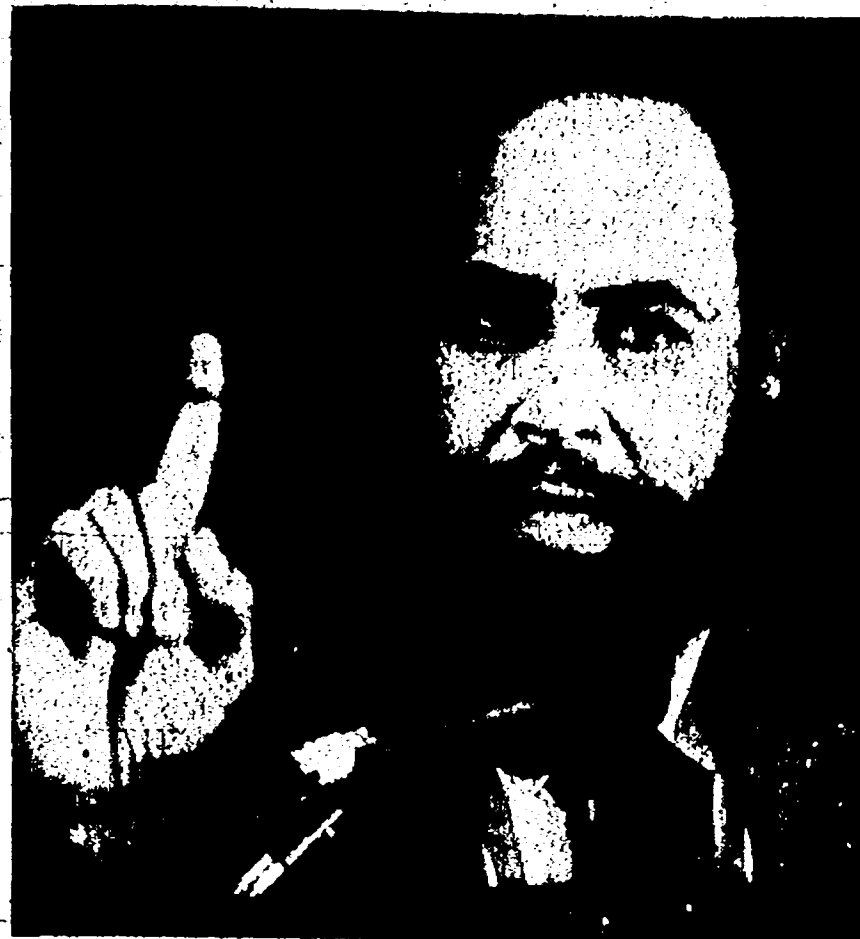

• The Lake Huron intake, which brings in 15 percent of the system's water, needs to be expanded. No comment from Williams.

• Water storage reservoirs have major cracks and pitting.

Williams: "Inspections will be completed by December 1989."

• Inefficient pumps need to be

Students told to take charge against drugs

By Keith Postler
staff writer

Creigs Beverly's solution to fighting substance abuse is simple but powerful — if you want to win, you have to take charge.

More than 800 students and advisers from 106 metropolitan area high schools gathered at Roma's of Livonia Tuesday to exchange ideas on preventing drug and alcohol abuse among teens and listen to Beverly's message.

The daylong program, "Change Agents: Making a Better World in Your School," was part of Project Graduation's 5th Annual student leadership conference.

Beverly, a Wayne State University professor noted for his work with at-risk youth, delivered the morning keynote address in which he stressed the importance of leadership and unity in fighting drug and alcohol abuse.

"It becomes clear that if you are going to assume a leadership role in fighting this troubling disease in our society, in our schools and among your peers, you will need to use all of your special gifts, talents and energies in this struggle," Beverly said.

Beverly said student leaders need direction, vision, knowledge, strategy, planning and organization, and humility to wage a successful fight against drugs and alcohol.

"A GOOD LEADER is one who knows that the agenda is not what is important, but it is the program that is important and knows that the difference between success and failure in whatever you choose to do... comes from the person who stands up one more time than he has been knocked down," he told the audience.

During the conference, Beverly led students through a number of sessions to get them thinking about effective policies, programs and activities for their schools to use against drug and alcohol abuse.

Road rallies, dances, assemblies, support groups, parent involvement and communication between schools were some of the ideas that student leaders posed as solutions for substance abuse.

Those attending were energized by Beverly's message.

— Creigs Beverly
— WSU professor

Matt Langdon, 17, a senior at Farmington High School, said, "I think programs like this are what we really need — confronting the problem. A lot of people out there who have the same ideas as others need to get everybody together and stress what's important."

"The ideas are out there, you just have to give people a chance to hear them. I was really impressed by what went on today," he said.

Like others, Langdon had a simple message for teenagers bombarded by peer pressure: "Love yourself, be yourself, have enough confidence in yourself to be the person you really want to be."

Joan Wang, a senior at Andover High School in Bloomfield Hills, said she would like more students to become aware of Project Graduation and Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD).

SHE WAS impressed to see so many student leaders gather to exchange ideas on substance abuse. "It's just great to see that so many kids got together voluntarily for such a good cause, to say they're against drugs and alcohol," she said.

Alena McBee, a 17-year-old senior at Bishop Borgess in Redford Township, expressed a similar sentiment.

"I think that the idea is good because it gives kids a chance to see

Ham operators tune in to drill

Garden City members of the Amateur Radio Emergency Service (ARES) of Wayne County, joined with thousands of other ham radio operators last weekend in a national test of their abilities to operate in a disaster situation.

ARES is an organization of licensed amateur radio operators who have voluntarily registered their qualifications and equipment for radio communications duty in public service when a disaster strikes, said Garden City's Joseph Dulbs.

Their activity is coordinated with and directly supervised by local government emergency management agencies.

The annual simulated emergency test (SET) exercise was designed to test the preparedness and efficiency of the hams to mobilize and operate under the duress of a disaster situation, Dulbs said.

The theme of this year's test was an unspecified natural disaster affecting an extended area, knocking out communications and posing a threat to the health and welfare of residents in the disaster area, Dulbs said.

The Emergency Operating Center (EDC) at the Wayne County Sheriff's Post in Romulus was activated by the emergency management director, senior captain Mark Sparks, about 9 a.m. Saturday.

LEE ONKKA, amateur radio emergency coordinator for Wayne County, initiated a call up of ARES members and began assignments to key locations throughout the county, police and fire departments, hospitals, and other emergency service agencies.

An emergency amateur radio communications network was soon operating, linking these agencies through the command post at the EDC.

The activities allowed these agencies to coordinate their work in providing aid in an efficient and timely manner, Dulbs said.

"This network was connected to the state emergency management division in Lansing, and ultimately to Federal Emergency Management Agency," he said.

The Garden City Amateur Radio Club set up an emergency amateur radio station in the Garden City police headquarters which was outside the disaster area.

Requests for help and supplies were transmitted by amateur radio to and from the command post in the sheriff's office.

You may request agendas

Under provisions of Michigan's Open Meetings Act, you're entitled to receive notices of government meetings. A public body must mail notices to people who, on an annual basis, request such notification. Under the act, payment of a reasonable fee may be required before notices are mailed. This provision applies to all local, county and state governments. At the local level this includes city councils, school boards and various boards and commissions.

$1,100 raised for Nankin Mill restoration

Friends of Nankin Mill raised about $1,100 last week in its first benefit for restoring the 125-year-old building.

Members of the private, fund-raising group were pleased with the amount raised at the wine and cheese reception held in the former mill, now used by the county as its parks and recreation offices on Ann Arbor Trail just east of Farmington Road.

Beverly Melasi, president of the friends group, said eight businesses and one veterans' group provided support for the benefit.

They are Norman's Market, China Star Palace restaurant, Clyde Smith produce, Farmer Jack Supermarket, Hardee's fast-food restaurant, La-Pointe's Formal Wear, Uht Funeral Home, Westland Bakery and VFW Post 3323 of Westland.

DURING the benefit, county historian John Stewart donned a suit that was in style a century ago and led tours of the three-story building.

Adding a touch of class to the benefit was harpist Carolyn Verble.

The existing building was built in 1863 and was the second mill on the site. The mill became the center of a community called Pike's Peak during the mid-1850s.

Tradition has it that the neighborhood got its name because miller Martin Shephard had been in the Pike's Peak gold rush.

The building was later acquired by Henry Ford in 1920 and used in the automaker's "cottage industry" network in which car parts were made by employees who lived on nearby farms.

The Wayne County park trustees acquired the mill in 1948 and later converted it to a nature center, which was visited by thousands of school children over the next 33 years. The county closed the center in 1980 because of money problems.

Andre Dawson's most devoted fan couldn't remember his name.

"My grandmother was like a mother to me. I turned to her for motivation and inspiration. But with Alzheimer's Disease, she gradually forgot the people around her. She couldn't even recognize me. All I could do was witness a very long, slow death...and suffer watching."

Andre Dawson knows first-hand the isolation and loneliness of caring for a loved one with Alzheimer's Disease. Now for the millions of family members who stand by a loved one with Alzheimer's Disease... there's someone to stand by you. The Alzheimer's Association.

At the Alzheimer's Association, we have support groups where you can get in touch with your feelings. And community services that can put you in touch with the facts. And, we are leading the way in funding medical research that hopefully, one day, will put us all in touch with the cure.

To reach the Alzheimer's Association chapter in your neighborhood, call the number below. Someone is there now. To stand by you.

Center provides a haven for abuse victims

By Sue Mason
Staff writer

The first page of a book, created by a child and about living in an abusive home, starts out with a simple "Help Me."

Another child, a product of an abusive environment, tries to envision a happy life, but she sees her future revolving around the words sad, mad and...

These are the children that the staff and volunteers of First Step see at the organization's shelter. The shelter has room for 30 people and on the average, two-thirds of the occupants are children, the children of mothers who have been abused by their husbands or boyfriends, or children who themselves are victims of abuse.

"Spouse abuse is a serious problem in our community," said Judy Ellis, executive director of First Step. "Often victims cover up their plight out of fear and embarrassment."

In an effort to introduce the community to the wide range of problems associated with domestic violence and the services available to families caught up in domestic violence, First Step is holding an open house 1:30-4:30 p.m. today (Oct. 26) at its administrative office in Westland.

The open house marks National Domestic Awareness Month this month. First Step staff and counselors will be on hand to talk to visitors, and a 15-minute video, "Domestic Dilemma," will be shown.

THE ORGANIZATION also is using money provided by the Hands Across America program to offer a four-part enrichment program for women next month. The sessions will be on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The series will focus on assertive-

'Many times I hear people ask why women stay in abusive homes. I think the more accurate question is how do they get the courage to leave.'

— Judy Ellis
First Step

ness, the resources available to abused families, the child-related issues of abuse and housing. First Step will provide child care and transportation, if necessary, to help women who might not otherwise be able to attend, Ellis said.

"It's to help these women look at how they can be self-sufficient,"

Ellis said. "Many times I hear people ask why women stay in abusive homes. I think the more accurate question is how do they get the courage to leave."

"Maybe with this series and all the other supports that are available they'll get that courage to leave."

First Step offers a 24-hour crisis line (459-5900), temporary emergency shelter, individual and family counseling, support groups and assistance with legal, financial, housing and educational information and referrals.

Since its inception in 1979, the organization has helped more than 12,500 families and receives an average of 175 calls a month and that number is increasing.

"The phone's been ringing off the hook, and we haven't really promoted it because we haven't hired a counselor yet," she said. "The numbers (of sexual assaults) are far greater than we thought. The first two to four days we got 1,600 calls."

As a non-profit organization, First Step relies heavily on donations to continue its work, and Ellis estimates an additional $100,000 is needed for the sexual assault program.

THAT'S ONE reason why First Step is participating in Shelter Aid, a fund-raising effort involving Johnson & Johnson feminine protection products — Sure & Natural, Stayfree, Serenity, o.b., and Carefree.

Use of coupons that were in Sunday, Oct. 15, newspaper inserts will raise $525,000 for the national domestic violence hot line — (800) 333-SAFE — and money for 1,200 shelters throughout the country through the collection of proofs-of-purchase from the sponsoring brands. Ten cents will be donated for every proof-of-purchase mailed in through April 1990.

"A lot of the women who come to us have more problems than just being battered," Ellis said. "Things like where are they going to live on $500 a month or not being able to afford legal counsel. Usually, they come to us with the clothes on their backs, no money and no car."

"Many times women need to leave four or five times before they recognize the options available to them, especially women who spiral into poverty from an affluent setting."

For more information about First Step, call the administrative office at 525-2230. Office hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. The office is at 5381 Farmington Road, with access off Hines Drive just north of Joy Road, Westland.

replaced because they prevent the system from getting available water to where it is needed.

Williams: An "inefficient" pump uses too much electricity. "It has nothing to do with any inefficiency in supplying water throughout the system."

"Maintenance needs to be performed on a more routine and timely basis. The lack of preventive maintenance and timely repairs has resulted in expensive capital improvement projects." No comment from Williams.

More supervisors, more backup employees, more training are needed; professional salaries need improvement. No comment from Williams.

"The Detroit Waste Water Treatment Plant is the greatest source of pollution to the Detroit River... a dry weather flow of approximately 800 million gallons a day."

Williams: The plant "is in compliance with its discharge permit and has been since the permit was issued in 1983." The correct flow is 630 million gallons.

TO THE CITIZENS OF THE GARDEN CITY SCHOOL DISTRICT

Michigan law requires that each school district publish a financial statement which is a composite of their annual audit. In compliance with the law, Garden City Public Schools offers this information to residents so that they might keep fully informed of the fiscal operations of Garden City Public Schools and the use of our public's resources. During the past year, we have been able to continue providing our students with a wide-range of curriculum offerings and programs. We have continued to stress basic skills at all levels. We feel that mastery of these skills is an essential "building block" for our students as they prepare for their respective futures. Math and reading are taught daily to students through junior high school. Our high school students may take 6 hours of class work per day and they must satisfy the requirements of our more demanding high school graduation requirements. All of this is possible because of your interest and support. Although this report focuses on the financial activities of the district, please keep in mind that these dollars translate into educational opportunities for our students. This report covers the fiscal operations of the Garden City School District for the 1988-1989 school year. If you have any questions about this report, please contact us at 425-4900.

Respectfully submitted, MICHAEL WILMOT Superintendent

what students from other schools are doing, and take those ideas back to their schools to help their peers put together prevention programs," she said.

Chris Berry, 16, a junior at Walled Lake Western High School, said substance abuse is a trap that many teenagers fall into because they believe they are immune to it.

"I think the ideas we heard today are good ideas, but they should be made available to more than just SADD students," he said.

"It was very positive. I think we're taking the right steps, but we have a long way to go," added Scott Westover, 17, a senior at Livonia Churchill.

The fight against substance abuse in schools has to spread, Beverly said.

"It has to go beyond the school system itself, it has to involve the parents in the community, civic and church organizations — all of the elements in our community must be involved in the program," he said. "Sometimes you find in many ways that the adults don't solve problems

"The Furrer for Honesty, Reliability, and Value"

Americans won't buy good cars made in the U.S.A.

There is no sign yet that collectors are rushing to buy the last of the Merkurs in Lincoln-Mercury showrooms, adding to the ignominy of the demise of what certainly was one of the better cars for sale in any domestic dealership.

The Merkur was one of those things that seemed like a good idea at the time, which was about five years ago when its startling, futuristic styling and roadholding allowed Ford to push the likes of BMW pretty hard on its home market in Germany.

A FEW Ford executives, not the least of whom was young Edsel the Deuce (who is entitled to make more mistakes than some other Ford marketing types), got to thinking that the kind of engineering Ford was doing for Europeans might sell as well to the folks back home.

Enter the Merkur XR4i — a weird coupe with a couple of oversized Venetian blinds on the rear window, which not only obscured the rear view, they managed to blind the handful of car shoppers interested in the car to its terrific handling and efficiency.

THE FOLLOWUP was the Scorpio sedan — one of the most comfortable four-place touring sedans ever to ease up the Autobahn at 120 mph, in many ways comparable to the new round of Japanese luxury cars, which should have been equally at home on the U.S. interstates.

auto talk

When Ford announced last week that it was dropping the Merkur line, the average Lincoln-Mercury dealership was selling about one every two months, winter was coming on, and something had to pay the heating bill.

WHICH LEADS to the question: Why can't an American car company sell its best-designed cars in America? Ford, in particular, has been challenged on this one before, particularly when it designed a sleek, solid-handling, high-performance Escort for (again) Germany, and turned around and sold a frumpy, underpowered version of the same car here.

Chrysler did likewise with the original Horizon, through its French affiliate, and even today GM is knocking over the Europeans at the Frankfurt show with new Opels that will get their tires kicked in the United States.

THE FAILURE of the Merkur line once again emphasizes that cars are bought with about as much logic as an 18-year-old's marriage. The image built up by a company imposes itself over the perception of the car like a halo or a shroud — as the case may be.

Car buyers shopping for imports don't expect to see a competitive German car in a domestic showroom; and look elsewhere.

GRANTED, AN unpronounceable car line sold in a Lincoln franchise doesn't have the immediate panache to get a valet parker's attention. That was a big part of the problem with the Merkur from the beginning.

But what is more disturbing is that even after the major strides in basic engineering the domestics have made in the last couple of years, they still don't seem to have the credibility to sell against offshore competitors, even when the cars are well-designed products that rank with the best in the world.

Joint ownership isn't necessarily the best way

Most of us own property jointly because we believe that's the thing to do. However, that's not always the best strategy, as revealed by today's column.

The gross estate consists of those assets to which a person has title or legal rights of ownership. These rights depend not only on the method by which the property was acquired but also on state status governing marital property. Some states consider marital property to be community property while others do not.

Community property states
In the nine community-property states (Arizona, California, Idaho, Louisiana, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas, Washington and Wisconsin), both spouses own a separate, undivided, equal interest in the property. Furthermore, even if only one of the spouses initially acquires property or earns income that is used to benefit the couple, community property states emphasize the efforts of both spouses that lead to the acquisition of property. Also, not only do both spouses have equal rights of ownership in this property and its earnings, but they also share such equal ownership rights in the income derived from salaries, wages, or other compensation for services.

Non-community states

In the non-community states, the nature of distribution of assets held jointly depends on the form of joint ownership. Of the three types of joint ownership permitted in these states, one is designed specifically to put all assets through probate, whereas the other two completely bypass probate. Each of the three types of joint-ownership has its own distinct characteristics and is discussed below.

Joint tenancy with right of survivorship

This type of ownership can be set up by any two or more persons. Each owner is known as a joint tenant and owns an equal share of the property.

finances and you
Sid Mittra

Co-owners may not sell or give away their interests without the partners' permission. When death occurs, the share of the deceased passes to the surviving partners. Upon death the property is divided in accordance with the vested interest of each party, although the property could be equally divided by prior consent. This type of ownership completely bypasses the probate process, but is includable in the gross estate for estate tax purposes at either the proven portion of ownership or at 100 percent of the market value if it is not possible to prove the percentage of ownership. Generally, it is not a recommended form of ownership except under certain circumstances.

Tenancy by the entirety

This form of joint tenancy differs from the joint tenancy with the right of survivorship in two respects. First, in those states that permit it, tenancy by the entirety can be established only by married couples. Second, neither spouse can sell or give away any property without the consent of the other spouse. When death occurs, the deceased's share passes to the survivor. This form, too, bypasses the probate.

Tenancy in common

This type of ownership directs all property not to the co-owners but rather to the heirs named in the will. Consequently, its major objective is to insure that all assets pass through the probate court. Obviously, tenancy in common is not used to save on probate costs and delays by bypassing the probate.

Mid-size models find a place on some area police patrols

By Mary Rodrigue
staff writer

This is not your father's Oldsmobile, or your patrol officer's sturdy Dodge Diplomat.

The Michigan State Police trooper you notice on the highway may be driving a Ford Mustang.

Likewise, the Wayne County Sheriff's patrol is evaluating the Ford Taurus — which will offer a police package on the popular mid-sized model for the first time in early 1990.

In the face of the once full sized automotive police car industry changing? Yes and no.

"I can make an argument for both (full- and mid-sized) cars," said Richard Myers, Plymouth chief of police.

"As the cars are downsized, so are the specialized police equipment. The radio and siren unit takes up half the space as earlier models. Shotgun racks are more flexible for mounting."

THE DOWN side of downsizing, according to Myers, is that the nature of police work makes ample interior space crucial. "The addition of mobile data terminal space in the front-passenger section takes up a lot of space. The rear interior space, after the protective barrier is installed, leaves no leg room for the prisoner."

While Myers presides over a half dozen full-sized Chevrolet Caprices, he said he will consider mid-sized vehicles for his fleet.

"Price that meets our standards is the number one factor. And we have found with the Chevrolet package that maintenance costs are down considerably," he said.

Myers relies on Michigan State Police vehicle test results to choose the right car for his department.

"As police departments across the country look for more economical police vehicles, the Ford Taurus will give them an attractive option," said Emil W. Loeffler, technical liaison for Ford Division's fleet operations.

"The Taurus package is designed to provide a patrol vehicle which offers excellent maneuverability and fuel economy, driver comfort and convenience — plus all the inherent advantages of front wheel drive."

Ten Taurus police vehicles are currently being evaluated by the San Diego Police Department and Utah Highway Patrol in addition to the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

SGT. BILL McFall, in the executive division of the Michigan State Police office in Lansing, said the Mustangs are being used on freeways during daylight hours only.

"We are a full service police agency, different than a highway patrol. For our type of work, we need full-sized cars."

The Northville post of the state police includes 28 Chevrolet Impalas.

"We carry a lot of equipment in the back, and sometimes prisoners," said Sgt. Richard Mills. "The weight (of a full-sized model) is better on slippery roads."

Livonia police also favor Chevy Impalas.

"We're always interested in what the car manufacturers have out there," said William Hoff, Livonia deputy police chief. "I'd be interested in looking at the Taurus." Livonia replaces half of its 30 marked patrol units each year.

Livonia has the in-car computer terminals which take up considerable room on the passenger side. Although most patrol officers drive solo, officers in training ride on the passenger side on occasion.

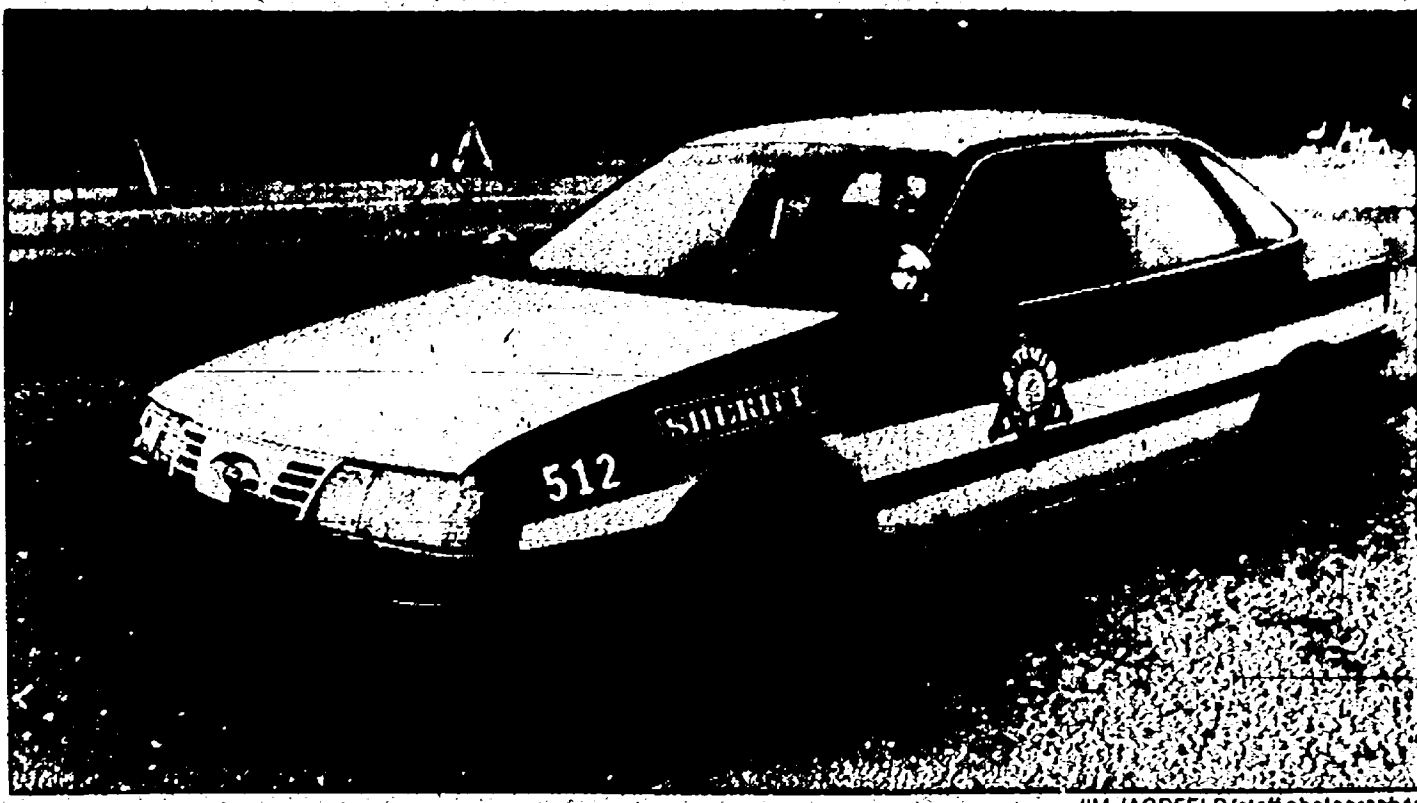

Redford police Sgt. John Buck said the mid-sized police vehicles could "fill needs for special uses. The Mustang is used (by state police) for pursuit and interception. I just talked to a deputy from Wayne County who feels the Taurus would be a good patrol car."

"The road handling on mid-sized cars might be superior, but for prisoner transportation and to make room for all our electronic equipment, it's best to stay with the full-sized cars."

Canton Township also uses full-sized Chevrolets.

"We have 17 cars and two Harley Davidsons," said John Santomauro, director of public safety.

"There are two reasons we use full-sized cars — the room because of the amount of equipment being used for regular patrol and the durability. Canton is 36 square miles, 18 miles are rural. It's a question of how well other vehicles could handle the dirt roads and rough terrain."

JIM JAGDFELD/staff photographer

routine patrol. You can't put a six foot, 200-pound prisoner in the back of a mid-sized or small car. Also we want the full-sized car protection for our officers."

Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano said his officers are giving high marks to the Taurus and also Ford Motor Co.'s Lincoln Town Car, which just arrived for evaluation.

"We're very pleased with the Ford products," Ficano said.

But the newest shipment to the county patrol fleet was six full-sized Chevrolet Caprices.

EMU approves new dorm policy

A revised policy limiting alcohol use and offering an alcohol-free dorm room option has been approved by Eastern Michigan University trustees.

The policy continues provisions against consumption and possession of alcohol by people under-21, prohibits its sale to people under 21 and prohibits alcohol use unless specified under university policy or regulation.

The policy also allows students to choose an alcohol-free residence hall room.

It also restricts alcohol from dominating the advertising or being the primary focus of college events.

Dramas open dinner-theater

Schoolcraft College's fall theater season is scheduled to open with a double bill: Edward J. Moore's romantic drama, "The Sea Horse," and Lucille Fletcher's mystery, "Sorry, Wrong Number."

"The Sea Horse" is a romantic drama about a seaman who when on shore usually heads for the Sea Horse, a bar run by Gertrude Blum, the unsentimental proprietor. "Sorry, Wrong Number" is a mystery thriller about a neurotic invalid whose only contact with the outside world is her telephone. One night, because of a crossed wire, she overhears plans for a murder, which turns out to be her own.

The college will present four evenings of dinner theater. Patrons will be served a fresh melon salad, orange roughly, au gratin potatoes, broccoll with lemon butter and chocolate cream pie.

The dinner theater is set for Oct. 27-28 and Nov. 3-4. Dinner is served at 6:30 p.m. and the performances begin at 8 p.m. Tickets are $14.50 for all dinner theater shows.

Theatergoers may also choose to attend only the play. Theater-only tickets are available for Nov. 10, 11, 12, 17 and 18. These shows begin at 8 p.m. except Sunday, Nov. 12 which begins at 7 p.m. Theater tickets only are $5.50.

Schoolcraft College is at 18600 Haggerty Road, between Six and Seven Mile, in Livonia. For more information, call Schoolcraft College at 462-4409.

Candy lady collects treats for boys home

Parents looking to unload some of the sweet treats their little goblins will collect Halloween night can take the excess goodies to the Candy Lady of Oak Park.

The candy lady, also known as Joy Landau, again this year will collect candy for distribution at the Maxey Boys Home where about 750 kids who otherwise would receive no treats will be the recipients.

"This project helps mom and dad by getting unwanted candy out of your house," Landau said. "And it comes into the hands of kids who get very little in the way of sweet treats."

"Most importantly we give our kids a chance to learn to share.

Sharing candy is just about the hardest thing a child can do."

Landau will receive the candy at her house until Nov. 20. She lives at 24231 Gardner, Oak Park, between Coolidge and Greenfield, a block south of 10 Mile.

"Talk with your PTA, clubs, neighbors, and see if they too can send candy for the kids," she said.

Agency marks service to elderly

The Senior Alliance Board of Directors awarded $3.9 million in contracts for fiscal year 1990 to 28 organizations for the provision of services and programs on behalf of older adults in Out-Wayne County.

Oct. 1 marked the agency's 10th year of service as the Area Agency on Aging for this region.

This will also be the 10th year of service for a number of organizations working with the Senior Alliance, including: The Information Center, Romulus Help Center, the city of Livonia, Downriver Community Conference, Senior Citizens Legal Aid Project, Deaf, Hearing and Speech Center, Greater Detroit Society for the Blind and Citizens for Better Care.

The Senior Alliance is the designated Area Agency on Aging for southern and western Wayne County. It is one of 660 similar organizations nationwide that has been authorized by the state government to fund in-home, community, and access services for individuals 60 years of age or older.

There are no fees for service and priority is given to those individuals who are in the greatest economic or social need. Area Agencies on Aging help seniors keep their two most valued possessions: dignity and independence.

For more information on the programs and service available in your community, contact the Senior Alliance at 722-2830.

SC choir performs Ukrainian cantata

The premier performance of the Ukrainian cantata "The Hand of John Damascene" will be performed by the Schoolcraft College Community Choir at 4 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 5, in St. Mary's Church, Greektown, in Detroit.

The choir, directed by David Jorjett, will be accompanied by the Scandinavian Symphony Orchestra. Based on a poem about the 8th century Christian poet John Damascene, the cantata was written by world renowned Ukrainian composer Andriy Hnatyshyn. Hnatyshyn is well known in European and Ukrainian circles for his orchestral and chamber music and for his vast number of religious and secular compositions. He composed the cantata in 1988 in preparation for the Ukrainian millennium celebration of Christianity.

Hnatyshyn will attend the premier. Soloists include his daughter, Liuba Hnatyshyn, alto; Liuba Kozak of Toronto, soprano; Victor Shewill of Hamilton, Ontario, tenor; Jerome Cisaruk, baritone; and Myroslaw Hnatiuk, bass.

Tickets are $15 each and are available by calling St. John's Catholic Church at 897-7300 or Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church at 278-0470. Free bus transportation will be provided between these two parishes and St. Mary's Church.

Program aids handicapped children

October has been declared Project Find Month" by the Michigan State Board of Education.

As such, the state seeks to find handicapped children between 1 month and 5 years old and match them with local special education programs.

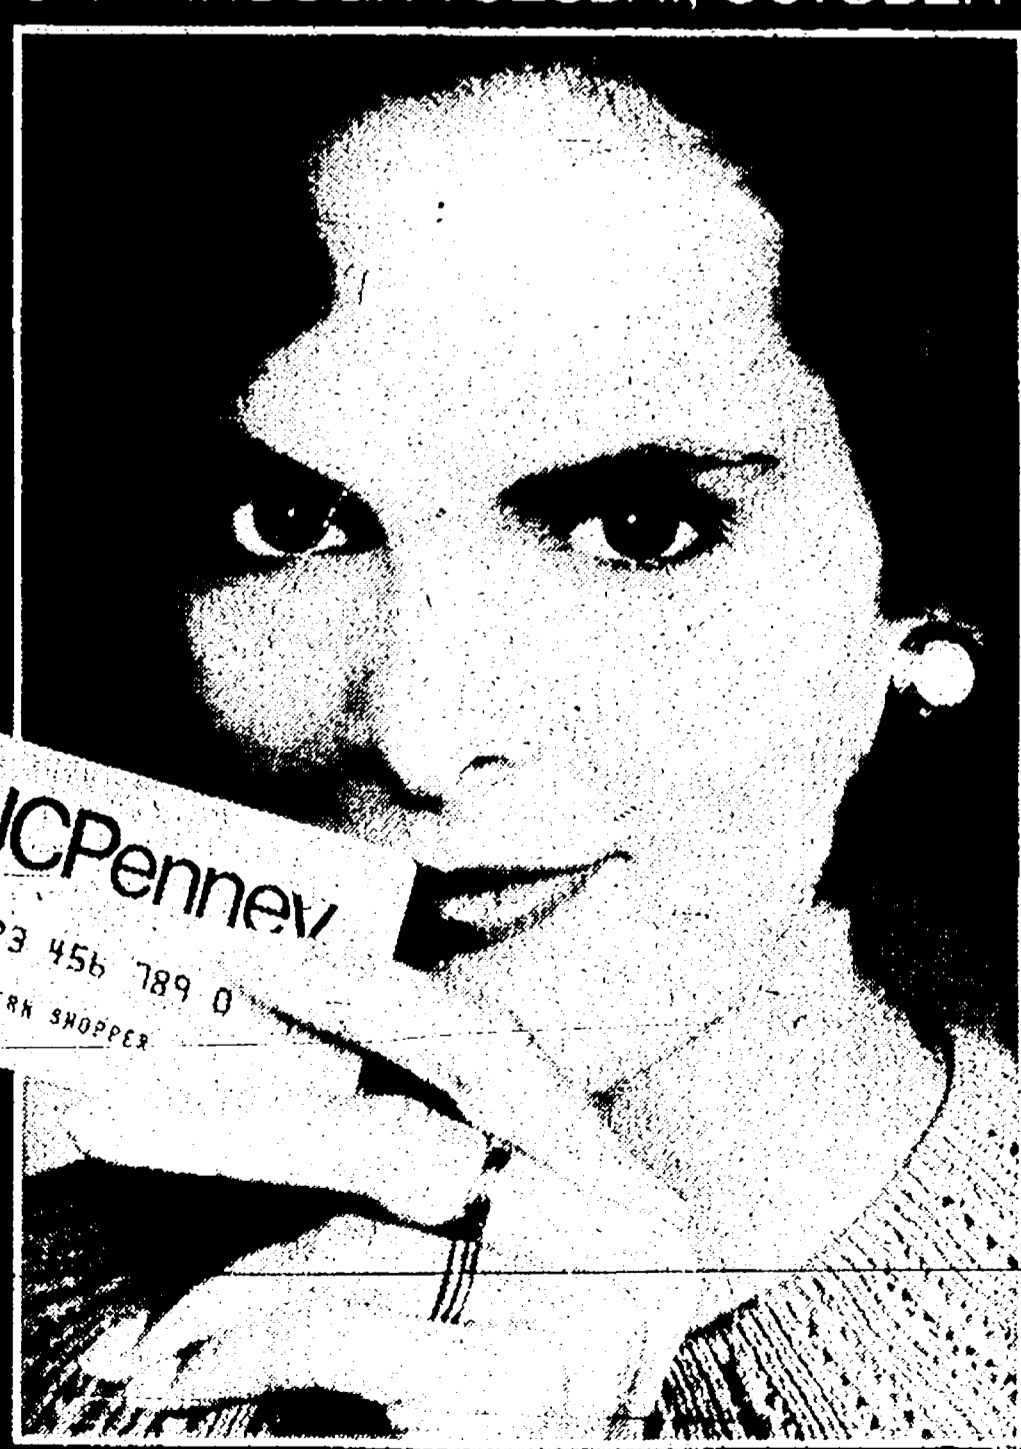

Project Find, a national effort, provides parents with information on available services and arranges free testing for children suspected of having difficulty in walking, talking, hearing or speaking, as well as those whose physical, emotional or mental handicaps keep them from developing as rapidly as other children their age.

The regional Project Find coordinator for Wayne County is Nancy Godell-Mitchell, Wayne County Intermediate Schools, 33500 Van Born, Wayne. Her telephone number is 467-1363.

Center tackles eating disorders

By Sue Mason
staff writer

The password for the '80s has to be thin.

Thin is in so much so that dieting has become a $15 billion industry in the United States. And that doesn't take into account the millions of dollars spent at health spas to shake and sweat off unwanted pounds.

Americans are trying to fit the image Madison Avenue has picked for them, many are shedding more pounds than necessary.

Thin may be in, but for one group of people, eating can be a sometimes deadly way of controlling their lives. Such was the case of pop star Karen Carpenter.

Carpenter, half of the 1970s pop group The Carpenters, died in 1983 from complications as the result of anorexia, an eating disorder in which she literally starved herself to death rather than eat.

Anorexia is just one of three disorders treated at the Eating Disorders Recovery Center at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia. The others are bulimia nervosa, a condition in which one binges then purges, to keep from gaining weight, and compulsive overeating.

"A lot of time, people with eating disorders feel they're in a very overpowering family and don't have control of their lives," said Suzanne Cullen, professional services coordinator at the clinic. "But when it comes to eating, that's one area they can control."

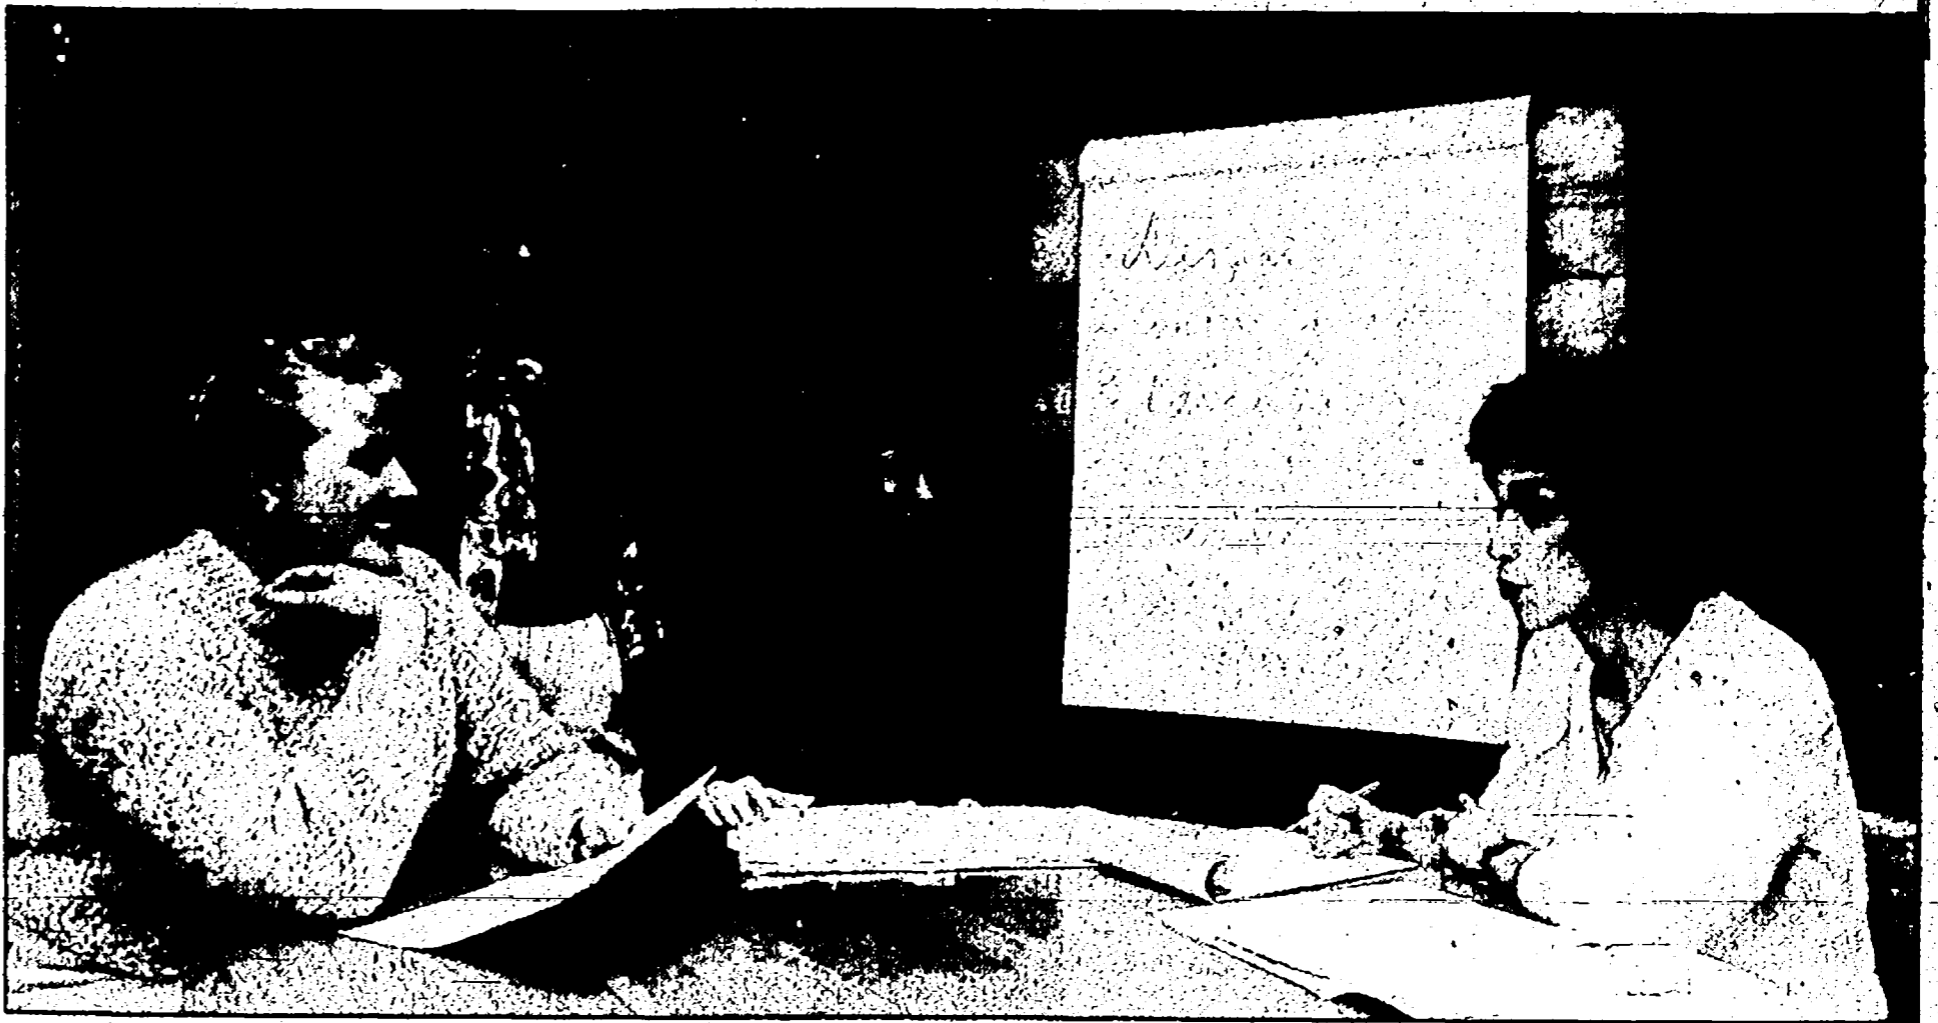

With the anorectic, the compulsive behavior is to not eat. Because of a distorted body image, the anorectic thinks of herself as fat even though she may be emaciated. A large portion of anorectic patients tend to be in their teens.

"CHILDREN IN western societies tend to diet more than kids from Europe," Cullen said. "There's a lot of peer pressure to look a certain way, and a lot of the emphasis comes from society."

"Pick up a teen magazine and you're sure to find a diet in it. The expectation for teens is that they can have things quickly and they don't tend to see the boundary of areas where they can't have it now."

The bulimic has a pattern of binge eating, but follows it up by purging—self-induced vomiting, extreme exercise or the use of diuretics.

"The bulimic thinks he or she has found a new weight loss program,"

sional services coordinator Suzanne Cullen and nutritionist Marcia Stawarz.

Cullen said. And compulsive overeaters have a variety of patterns. Some may binge all the time, "just graze all day" or eat three meals then binge all night. Overeaters eat not necessarily in response to hunger and some say they don't even feel like they get filled up when they eat.

Opened in April 1986, the St. Mary center works with patients to help them correct their eating problems, using a combination of education and behavioral change, generally in group sessions although individual sessions are available.

The center's program focuses on the physical, psychological/emotional and family aspects of the disorder. Patients also work with a dietician from St. Mary Hospital to learn how to take a more common sense approach to food.

"We don't teach diets," Cullen said. "What we do is set very small goals for the patients. You can't tell an anorectic to gain 10 pounds. That would blow their mind."

"WE SEE PEOPLE as being different. Everyone that comes in the door doesn't receive the same treatment."

Bulimics and compulsive overeaters who turn to the center for help tend to realize "they're out of control," but treatment of anorexia tends to be because of concerned family members. Denial is big with anorectics, therapist Helen Heaton said.

"We encourage patients to recognize that they didn't wake up one day and have an eating disorder, so they won't wake up one morning and find it gone," Heaton said. "People with eating disorders focus on parts of their bodies they don't like. That can be very disturbing for people like the compulsive overeater who has never looked in a mirror or have only a small mirror so they don't see the whole body."

The incidence of eating disorders, specifically anorexia and bulimia, has been increasing and to help promote public awareness of eating disorders, the clinic is among many throughout the United States, Canada and Europe which are observing International Eating Disorders Awareness Week this week.

One activity was a conference held Wednesday at the Ford World Headquarters in Dearborn, that attracted treatment providers, support groups and recovering individuals.

A hotline number — 474-1144 — also has been set up for the week and can provide interested people with more information on EDAAW activities, professional speakers or treatment referrals.

"For those suffering the torment of an eating disorder, will power isn't enough," Cullen said. "An eating disorder is an addiction."

Conyers, Simon oppose, condone legalized drugs

By Judith Doner Berne
staff writer

The idea of legalizing drugs came out of the closet and into the open for maybe the first time in Michigan as friends John Conyers and Howard Simon squared off before a full house at Birmingham Temple Monday night.

"This is the first dialogue on the subject in the state of Michigan that I am aware of," Michigan American Civil Liberties Union director Simon told the largely pro-legalization audience at the Farmington Hills temple. "It often falls to the ACLU to raise what is often thought of as the unthinkable."

Conyers, the longtime U.S. Democratic representative from Detroit, said this was "not just a debate, but a question of the most fundamental social problem facing us and the world. This is the beginning of a series of discussions on this subject. But we haven't had one discussion on what is right short of legalization."

Both agree that the Bush administration's approach to stemming the tide of drugs can't work — that there is no way to make a significant dent in the illegal drugs coming into the country — and those produced here.

'There are more drugs in the joint than out on the street. We have to provide more treatment — that is the incredible crime that the government commits.'

— U.S. Rep. John Conyers
D-Detroit

'Even if marginal use and addiction increased, it might be worth it if it reduced crime. We're not going to arrest, prosecute and imprison our way out of this. It is a war that should be fought by the surgeon general, not the attorney general.'

— Howard Simon
Michigan ACLU director prison, Conyers said. "There are more drugs in the joint than out on the street. We have to provide more treatment — that is the incredible crime that the government commits."

WHETHER ANY MINDS were changed by the debate was unclear. But at least two in the audience found some argumentative holes.

Birmingham-Temple rabbi, Sherwin Wine, thought Simon got the best of the debate, but said he continues to oppose legalization.

Simon's point that tobacco and alcohol are unregulated isn't relevant, Wine said. "Drugs aren't the same as other addictive substances — they're totally disorienting."

West Bloomfield High School senior Matt Berman also picked up on that. "I came in favor of Congressman Conyers. Drugs are addicting. That's the one thing they seemed to be missing."

"My mind is open to an alternative along the lines of decriminalization," said Shirley Sklar of Southfield at the evening's end.

"I don't know," said Glisele Feldman of Farmington Hills. "I believe in the family and more education and more jobs."

But to Conyers, legalization is a morality issue. He said that he can't tell young people "Don't do drugs" and then go ahead and make them legal.

HE ALSO BELIEVES legalizing drugs would be ineffective because "wherever the line is between legality and illegality, the dealers will meet you there." If the drugs are cheap, for example, he suggested, then they'll charge you for mixing them.

Simon said he isn't actually calling for all-out legalization. But he doesn't want it dismissed out of hand. "I'm not advocating we should do it, but we need research and experimentation. Would it increase use? Would it increase addiction? "Even if marginal use and addiction increased, it might be worth it if it reduced crime. We're not going to arrest, prosecute and imprison our way out of this."

"It is a war that should be fought by the surgeon general, not the attorney general. Smoking used to be sexy. We've made drinking and driving a more serious matter." Public attitudes can be affected toward drugs too.

Simon and Conyers agreed that education, better schools, giving everyone a stake in society, more treatment centers and effective law enforcement are the way to go. And that more and more prisons are not. It's ridiculous to send addicts to

City election

Voters: Focus on major issues

THE WESTLAND mayoral election campaign has generated lots of heat and light since the Sept. 12 primary at which Mayor Charles Griffin and challenger Robert Thomas emerged as the nominees for the Nov. 7 general election.

If you compare an election to a circus, voters will be in the stands keeping track of the parade of animals and performers, clowns, acts in the center ring and other activities going on on the sidelines.

Our advice to those trying to keep track of the mayoral activities is to watch the center ring and forget the side events.

In a political sense, the center ring is where the candidates are discussing the major issues of the campaign: their qualifications, their vision for the community, long-range financial planning, and what they intend to do on the specific issues of the pace of commercial and apartment developments and how to handle the rotating closing of one or two fire stations, started a year ago to meet minimum staffing requirements in the fire department.

While the center ring has its share of attention, there has been a little time spent by candidates on some of the side issues.

One is the length of time challenger Thomas lived in the city. The records show he has been in the community for 19 of his 39 years. Mayor Griffin is counting only the most recent consecutive years. Big deal.

Thomas has worked for the city for nearly 20 years and we don't care if his residency doesn't consist of 19 consecutive years. That certainly doesn't diminish his skills or qualifications for leading the city.

Griffin also tried to make a big deal at Westland Chamber of Commerce candidates' forum on who has the best work record as an employee. Wisely, Thomas refused to bite and avoided joining the argument over a non-issue.

ON THE other side of the campaign, three city council members supporting Thomas are trying to make a point that Griffin took off too much time from work in his first two years in office.

We hope voters will not be distracted by the non-issues of the campaign. Voters should have a sense of priorities and perspective and look for candidates whose views and positions on issues match their own. The real issues are qualifications, policies on economic development and public safety, and long-range financial planning.

But since there is no specific requirement on how much time should be spent, what standard did Griffin allegedly violate? If the mayor isn't in his office, voters shouldn't interpret that as being out of town or away from the business of running the city. In many cases, he is still conducting city business while still in the community. In addition, the mayoral staff is always available for handling other than emergency situations.

We hope voters will not be distracted by the non-issues of the campaign.

Voters should have a sense of priorities and perspective and look for candidates whose views and positions on issues match their own.

The real issues are qualifications, policies on economic development and public safety, and long-range financial planning.

The winner of the secondary debates on length of residency, who has the best work record, or the best on-the-job attendance may be effective at deflecting the community's attention from the real problems it faces.

We hope the Nov. 7 election winner is picked on the basis of what he can do for the community.

Proposal A

It will improve school funding

PROPOSAL A, on the Nov. 7 ballot, will not itself solve the terrible problems in Michigan's K-12 schools. But in fixing some of the financing problems that have affected our schools for years, it sets the stage for the wholesale restructuring that must come.

For this reason we urge a yes vote. Essentially, Proposal A would raise the state sales tax by half-a-cent, to 4.5 percent, and pump the resulting $390 million per year into K-12 schools.

This shifts school financing away from taxes on property values and toward sales taxes. That makes sense. Taxing property is a poor way of equalizing the burden of taxes, as the retired person on a fixed income who owns a nice house knows all too well.

FOR TAXPAYERS, this very well could reduce the need for future millage increases.

The plan would also create a constitutionally protected fund devoted to school financing, secure from raids by the Department of Education bureaucracy. It would also siphon a quarter of the old 4 percent sales tax off into this fund.

All of this will smooth out the funding basis for our schools, which has ridden a roller coaster from pre-recession 1980 high ($845 million in state aid) to mid-recession 1983 low ($360 million) to current semi-recovery ($600 million). Predictability of funding is an important precondition for sensible, businesslike management of our schools.

It is certainly true that Proposal A itself will do little to improve school quality. A package of legislation, now bottled up in the state Senate, is supposedly going to address quality.

We shall see. More importantly, by clearing up the financing problems that have plagued our schools for years, Proposal A lays the groundwork for the real task: reforming our schools so our children are actually taught something and made ready to face the competitive world of the next century.

HERE IS HOW Proposal A can improve the situation:

- All of the new tax revenue is dedicated to a constitutionally protected school fund.
- Not only are lottery proceeds earmarked constitutionally for schools, but Proposal A dedicates even the interest of $7 million-plus that the lottery fund earns to schools.
- Higher education retirement costs are moved out of the school aid fund, making another $7 million-$10 million available for the K-12 level.

Proposal A

A proposal to increase the sales/use tax from 4 cents to 4.5 cents per dollar and constitutionally dedicate funds for local schools.

Proposal B

A proposal to increase the sales/use tax from 4 cents to 6 cents per dollar, reduce school property taxes, and set permanent school operating millages not subject to voter renewal, and constitutionally dedicate funds for local schools.

NO

• Twenty-five percent of the existing 4 percent sales tax is dedicated to the protected school fund.

• Portions of the existing use, industrial facilities, commercial facilities and tech park facilities taxes are dedicated to the protected school fund.

• The state Department of Education would be unable to siphon off any big portion of the new money because its share is capped at 5 percent.

WE ALSO recommend that voters reject Proposal B.

In this election, voters will be able to vote on both proposals. The one garnering the highest vote total will win.

Proposal B would raise sales and use tax to 6 percent. It would redistribute the industrial tax base by collecting it statewide. It would be patently unfair to communities that have made sacrifices to attract industry and put up with the inconvenience that malls and high-tech plants bring.

The complex Proposal B would result in two tiers of property tax rates, one for business, one for homes; Proposal B would violate Michigan's principles of uniform tax rates and local control.

Mask bigotry makes for a grim Halloween

BIGOTRY HAS reared its ugly head over, of all places, my favorite holiday, Halloween.

As usual the bigotry was hiding behind a mask. Now that's enough to make any Halloween-lover angry. I'd trade you Halloween for Christmas, Thanksgiving and Easter, all wrapped into one.

That's why, when hearing about the Southfield store selling masks that made fun of Arabs, I became angry.

My favorite holiday doesn't deserve to be mistreated by stupidity.

Ethnic and racial disharmony come in a multitude of versions. All are very difficult to understand, all very trying to endure. Some are dangerous by their subtleties. Other forms are just silly.

RECENTLY A group of Arab-Americans called for the boycott of a Southfield store because it was selling Halloween masks that portray Arabs as shifty and vicious.

Some people will do anything to make money.

In this country, it is beginning to feel like most people will. How silly, how cruel. But we've seen it happen before. In past years targets have been Indians, made to look brutal and blood-thirsty; Africans, made to look savage and uncivilized.

The targets are those who are viewed as unpopular at the time and usually defenseless to do anything about the smear.

Blacks used to have to put up with this kind of stuff all the time. But they organized, fought back, and today a mask-seeker would be hard pressed to see a Halloween mask that distorts their racial heritage.

Arab-Americans, an industrious lot, are getting the idea, too. After years of minding their own lives and working to build successful businesses, they realize that sometimes you have to go public and fight back.

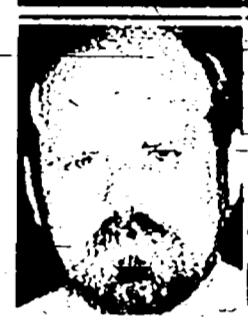

Arab-Americans are getting sick and tired of the indignities and are fighting back. Good for them. Every American with a conscience should join them.

THIS TIME the merchants were foiled.

Masks, somehow, are emblematic of the problem. History shows that those who are ignorant and afraid often hide behind masks to proudly demonstrate their ignorance. We have brought the problems of the Middle East to our shores, unwashed and unexplained.

The Arabic view of the Middle East is little regarded in America. The Arabic culture is even less understood. For years, Arabs have been either dismissed as uncivilized or forgotten as irrelevant.

But just a cursory reading of Arab history shows the people to be rich in culture, deserving in recognition for their contributions to society.

Instead of reading and learning, we are a society which markets denigrating masks.

It's the way America copes — with easy-to-explain answers, tidy, clean and neat, no matter how hate-filled.

Our children see us and imitate. We must teach our children the truth if we really care about their future.

But instead, we've tricked them, we've sold them a lie.

America was built on the strength of its ethnic differences. We should know better than to fall into the traps that have divided so much of the rest of the world.

Mayor cited for days off

To the editor:

Two years ago, when I left Westland for the Tampa Bay area, I wanted to leave behind the bad taste of city politics, the administration of Mayor Charles Griffin, and move quietly to the warm, sunny south. However, I was recently made aware of Griffin's ridiculous attack on his mayoral opponent, Bob Thomas, at the Oct. 10 Chamber of Commerce luncheon, and I thought I would set the record straight.

As Griffin's appointed executive assistant from Jan. 1, 1986 through September, 1987, one of my responsibilities was to keep track of his calendar and schedule. When I joined the administration, I believed Trav would be an aggressive and interested mayor. I was appalled when, at the end of his first year in office, I calculated that he was either on vacation or taking days off 26 percent of the time — time that the taxpayers paid for.

And that 26 percent did not include his golfing days, half-days off, or consistent noon arrivals. For example, Trav had a five-day excursion to Las Vegas after only 3 1/2 months on the job; a 10-day trip to Nashville at Easter; a 10-day fishing trip to northern Canada in June; a two-week vacation in August to his cottage in the Alpena area, and numerous four-day weekends throughout the year. One particularly amusing note was at the first staff meeting in September, he welcomed everyone back from summer vacation only because he had missed so many days because of his golf outings and vacations.

Westland residents should put part-time Mayor Griffin on permanent vacation from Westland government. Westland residents deserve a full-time mayor who is interested in serving the citizens and not wasting time and money by dwelling on where he can go on his next vacation or who's in the golf foursome.

Catherine A. Shivers, Temple Terrace, Fla.

Editorial is criticized

To the editor:

I am deeply disturbed by the endorsement of Mayor Charles Griffin by your newspaper. To quote: "Mayor Griffin is the best choice to lead the Westland administration for another four years." How asinine. This quote should win the puffoon award of the year.

After reading city council person Thomas Artley's letter on the same page, I hope all the city taxpayers would read it. This letter contains all the facts and figures that happened in the last four years.

We the taxpayers had been ripped off by this administration — wage hike of 45 percent and very poor attendance.

He attempted to build an 18-hole golf course on the Holiday Nature Park Preserve. As a member of the Holiday Nature Park Preserve Association, we stopped "hishonor" in his tracks from proceeding any further on his brainstorm idea.

Never in the history of this city did any mayor have two assistants in his personal office, who are receiving both a city pension and a pay check.

I believe councilman's Artley's letter should have made the front page of your newspaper because it concerns all the citizens of this community.

Joseph J. Dolline, Westland

Independent vote needed

To the editor:

Just when we the citizens figure that it can't get worse in City Hall — it does.

The nay-sayers successfully stonewalled the Pickering administration then the nay-sayers allowed Griffin's administration to give jobs, hefty raises, variances and contracts to themselves and pals.

Well, here's another chance for astute and knowledgeable voters to elect into office people who might just might end their reign of the power elite. The elite whose alliances and allegiances influence every decision made in the city.

We truly need independent people in office and not members, directly or indirectly connected to the power establishment.

Beatrice Scalfé, Westland

points of view

The media often fails to ask key question

THE METROPOLITAN daily papers are good — alert, comprehensive, relatively fair. But there is one key story they keep turning their backs on.

• "A mother of six, Sonja Nalls, had left five of her children, ages 2 to 5, alone at home and was at a suspected crack house when two of the children died in a fire late Wednesday afternoon, according to police." Free Press, Oct. 22, 1989.

Missing fact: "Where was the kids' father?"

• "Denise Evans doesn't know what will happen when she faces one of the alleged killers of her 9-year-old son when she testifies this morning at his preliminary examination in Oak Park District Court. 'I just want to choke them,' she said." Free Press, Oct. 20, 1989.

Unasked question: "Where was her son's father?"

• "A 4-year-old boy was killed Tuesday in a fire that fire officials said had been set in his home on Detroit's east side. Anotonlo's mother, Diane Byrd, and neighbors had tried to rescue him from the smoke-filled room. . . . Neighbors said Byrd has an older daughter who was in school at the time of the fire." News, Oct. 19, 1988.

Where was the 4-year-old's father?

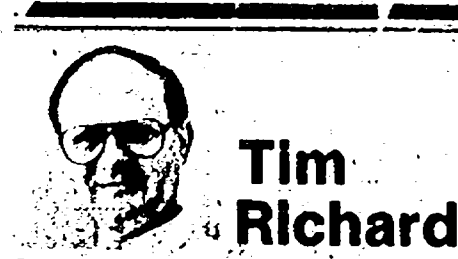

• "Panic gripped Yvette Jamison early Saturday as she saw an unidentified man zoom off in the 1987 Mercury Sable she had parked in her northwest Detroit driveway. 'I started screaming, 'My daughter's in the car. Stop!' Jamison, 35, recalled. . . . Jamison said she ran into the house for a moment to fetch her 23-year-old nephew, who was to come along on the trip." News, Oct. 16, 1988.

No mention of the father.

• "Hours after they had moved into a new home, a 16-year-old Detroit girl and her 18-month-old son died and four others were injured in a fire early Thursday on Detroit's west side that authorities believe was arson. Felicia 'Lisa' Owens and her son, Fitchard, nicknamed 'Buster,' died of smoke and soot inhalation and burns. . . ." News, Oct. 8, 1988.

Friends and an uncle are named, but no one inquired about the Buster's father.

• "Momma! The anguished call for help from a dying 4-year-old named Sharmel still echoes in her mother's ears. . . . The bullets apparently were meant for the owner of the northwest Detroit home that Sheree Williams, 23, and her daughter were visiting. Police described the home as a suspected crack house." News, Sept. 18, 1988.

And what echoes in Sharmel's father's ears?

FOR FIVE years, I have been monitoring disaster stories involving children — shootings, fires, rapes, drownings, beatings — in the papers and on television.

About 99.9 percent of the time, a tearful mother or grandmother is quoted. Reporters never mention a father and apparently don't ask if one is in the house.

I have a hunch that our severest social problem is not crack cocaine, handguns, arson, booze or underfunded schools but what is euphemistically called teen pregnancy, the never-married mother and the single-parent family.

Their kids start the game of life with 2.95 strikes. Those who aren't killed die more often at birth, have more learning problems, drop out of school more often and have an immensely greater chance of going to prison.

THREE SOCIAL researchers produced a 1988 book called "What's Happening to the American Family?" (Johns Hopkins University Press).

"Social dynamite" is the term economist Richard Belous, one of the authors, used to describe what is happening to families.

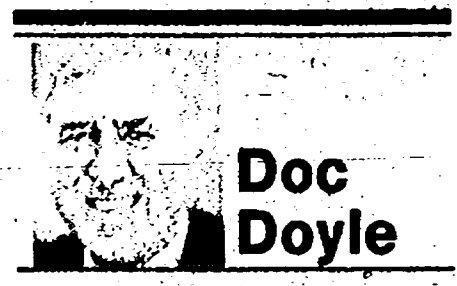

The authors said that eight years of President Reagan's preaching about "family-values" failed to turn the tide.

Well, at least Reagan pointed a finger at the problem, however gingerly. The media could help by asking survivors one pertinent question.

Bridging cultural chasm

Q: I am a fourth grade teacher and experiencing an influx of children from other nations. There are some children who come to the class unable to speak English. It really makes it difficult although most of the children amazingly pick up our language in a short time. What does bother me is that I do not have a very strong background in understanding the customs of other countries and sometimes wonder if I am saying or doing the wrong thing. Is this my imagination or is this an issue teachers need to address?

Doc Doyle

I created a situation of confusion and probably hostility.

SIMILARLY the Japanese, as a sign of respect, turn their eyes away when corrected.

Other situations are even more profound. Calling a Cambodian child to you with your hand moving toward your chest is what they do with dogs in Cambodia. Consider a situation where a teacher gently pats a newly arrived third grade Vietnamese child on the head as a sign of affection. To many Vietnamese, a pat on the head is for animals not children.

Not only educators, but doctors, lawyer and others are tragically behind in their understanding of different cultures, beliefs and traditions. As an example, there are Vietnamese who believe when a woman has a baby, her spirit leaves her body for three days. Her spirit moves into the baby and her body is not to be touched for three days until her spirit returns. Student nurses coming in to help bathe a Vietnamese mother could have a battle on their hands. In the Arab culture, the male is the dominant figure. Women run the house. All discipline is done by the male. Women teachers in heavily populated Arab communities often have more trouble correcting an Arab youth than male teachers do.

SOME GLOBAL education projects have identified this problem for several years — it is time we listened to those who have been leaders in this area. Some school districts, universities and intermediate school districts have recognized this problem and are developing programs for greater multicultural understanding.

What is needed is a massive in-service for all administrators and teachers — especially in districts where the influx of Japanese, Chinese, Vietnamese, Cambodians, other Asian Americans, Arabs and East Indians is evident.

Educators and children also need a greater understanding and appreciation of the world's major religions — Hinduism, Islam, Christianity, Judaism and Buddhism.

Speed limits, if enforced, can save lives

By Judith Doner Berna
staff writer

DON'T SPEED in Pennsylvania, Mom.

Those were my daughter's parting words as last weekend I prepared to fly to Washington, D.C., to drive with my mother from there to her birthplace of Cleveland.

My daughter knew of what she spoke. She had been stopped over the Labor Day weekend on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, where the officer only gave her a warning — which obviously worked — and let her drive on.

But Pennsylvania isn't the only state where police enforce and motorists adhere to the speed limit. Driving through Maryland and Ohio, there was no one going more than 8 miles over the limit — generally considered to be within the non-ticketable limits.

In both Maryland and Pennsylvania, posted speeds were 55 mph. Only in Ohio, did the limit go up to 65. And signs were posted all along, YOU, SLOW DOWN! or WE TICKET FOR EXCESSIVE SPEED.

Both by reputation and by those postings, they scare the dickens out of you. And you simply obey.

BY CONTRAST, Michigan has no such reputation for being tough on speeders, although individual communities may on the roads within their towns.

When was the last time you drove within 8 miles of the speed limit on our state's highways — except in jammed traffic?

It's a paradox that Michigan, the home of America's auto industry, generally doesn't enforce its freeway speed limits. It would seem to go hand-in-hand with the crackdown on drunk driving, but it doesn't.

If you aren't going 70 on the newly-reconstructed 55 mph I-696 through Farmington Hills, forget it. And don't dare to take up space in the fast lane of I-275 as you drive the stretch from Novi to Livonia or you will be honked over or passed on the right.

Police failure to enforce the speed limits has further repercussions. It signals our residents, that other traffic laws can be broken too. A yellow light, for instance, at one time meant stop because it's going to turn red. Now, it seems to mean to many people — try and get through before it turns red.

WE'VE HAD three recent fatal accidents in the suburbs we cover in which five of our residents were killed:

• On Oct. 2, Eileen Brown, 16, of Rochester Hills, was killed when the car in which she was riding was hit by another on a five-lane Rochester Road at Avon.

• On Oct. 6, Karl Hoeksema, 19, and Bruce Brogan, 20, both of Beverly Hills were killed crossing Telegraph and 14 Mile Road by a car driven by a 22-year-old Bloomfield Township man, whom Franklin police still have not identified.

• On Oct. 10 in Livonia, Frank DiTrapant, 66, and his wife, Helene, 59, were hit broadside and killed as they attempted to make a left hand turn onto from Plymouth Road onto Jughandle Road. Bad weather may have contributed.

In all three cases, police are still investigating the causes and no charges have been filed.

BUT WHATEVER the causes, five people unnecessarily died.

Some accidents will happen. But failure to enforce our freeway speed limits sets a tone for careless driving. And we, as citizens, should demand stepped up enforcement from the state police, who are charged with it.

Bankes on child panel

One suburban lawmaker and five area business leaders will meet with Gov. James Blanchard and his wife, Janet, to study child care alternatives for Michigan workers.

The 25-member group will meet over the next 90 days. Blanchard is looking for a plan the state, as an employer, can adopt and that private employers can use voluntarily—not a government-mandated system.

One vice-chair is Robert Naffaly of West Bloomfield, Blanchard's former budget director and now a vice president and chief financial officer of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan Inc.

State Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, is one of two lawmakers on the panel. Bankes has been active in promoting employer interest in providing child care alternatives.

Others are Denise Hlitch-Lites, a corporate executive from Little Caesar Pizza, headquartered in Farmington Hills; Pearl Lipner, chief financial officer of Image Express, Southfield; Walter J. McCarthy Jr., of Birmingham, board chairman of Detroit Edison Co.; and Leslie A. Murphy, partner in Plante Moran, Southfield.

Another member is Elizabeth Howe, former Rochester area resident and now director of the state Department of Labor.

"Between now and the year 2000," Mrs. Blanchard said, "65 percent of new entrants into the work force will be women in every type of profession and career. Mothers with young children are the single fastest growing segment of the work force. Increasingly, these parents will place child care, parental leave and maternal leave high on their list of employment benefits and priorities."

The state already has a program allowing 60,000 employees to set aside up to $5,000 in wages each year to pay for child care. That sum would not be subject to income tax.

Summer sun's benefits carry over to fall

Following the warm sunny days of summer are the shorter cooler days of autumn. Bright summer sunshine painting the green leaves create packets of energy that the world could not live without.

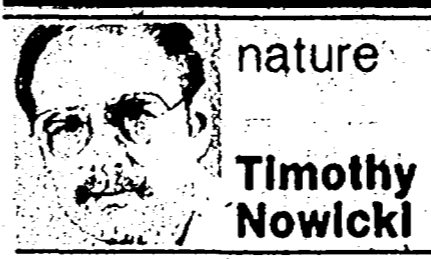

During the warm summer months when water is available, trees and plants produce sugars that are used by both the plant and by other animals. Sugars are grouped together to eventually form new growth in some plants, or wood found in trees.

Wood is a remarkable material and has been servicing man for thousands of years. It was probably the source of fuel for the first fire that man every made. When man began to construct shelters, it was one of the most widely used materials. Wood is strong, it could be worked with simple tools, and it was readily available.

Before the development of special steel alloys, wood was used to serve the same function as various steels and plastics used today. Just as different alloys serve different purposes, so do different woods.

Early craftsmen knew the differ-nature

Timothy Nowicki

ent qualities of wood and used the proper wood for the job. Wooden chairs could be made from any kind of wood, but subtle differences in their constructions separated a good chair from an average chair.

A traditional rocking chair was made from at least four different woods. Elm was used for the seat because it did not split under the weight of the individual. It was also used in the naiv or center of wooden wheels. Oak was used for pegs to attach various parts of the chair. Wood from oak trees is very hard and durable. Stress at attachment points would not break the strong oak pegs. Spokes from wagon wheels were made of oak also.

Chair backs were made from hickory, which could be split into narrow pieces and which also had a springy quality. Walnut was used for the legs of a chair because of its strength and durability.

Take some time to examine the different qualities of wood for yourself and enjoy the age old craft of woodworking. Creating wood and creations from wood are incredible products that have been in existence for many years.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence-Oaks in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia.

For them the bell tolls every day

Tinnitus sufferers cope with ringing in the ear

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

AFTER AN explosion, the pieces of destruction are easy to see. Bill Haskin of Westland can only hear them.

Haskin is one of 12 million Americans who have a severe form of tinnitus, a subjective illness where a person has a constant ringing in his ear. At least 50 million adults have some form of the disorder.

"The only way to describe it is something like on TV when they use one of those one-minute test patterns," said Haskin, 46. "It's kind of like that. It's a dull ring."

The gnawing sound is said to cause a loss of concentration, sleep loss and psychological distress. Though rare, some cases have even caused people to commit suicide.

Several medical ailments can cause tinnitus (pronounced either "tin-nit-us" or "tin-nitus"). But one of the most common causes is over-exposure to loud noises.

Such was the case with Haskin, who was employed as a supervisor at McLouth Steel.

ONE DAY on the job, another worker set off a small explosion as a prank. The bang set off a ringing noise in Haskin's ears. The sound grew so intense, Haskin eventually had to leave his job.

"It will probably get worse as you grow older," Haskin said. "That's what makes me nervous. I don't know when it will end."

That feeling of uncertainty is something Haskin can share with others who have the same problem. He is a member of a tinnitus support group that meets the first Tuesday of the month at Botsford Hospital in Farmington.

The plight of those with tinnitus has only recently come to the forefront. That is due in part to the notoriety given to the condition by rock stars such as Pete Townshend of the Who, who also suffers from tinnitus.

"The thing about tinnitus is that it's a subjective complaint," said Dr. Warren Brandes, an ear, nose and throat specialist at Botsford Hospital. "There's no way to have another person measure the degree of ringing in the ear. . . . Most people can deal with it. It's an individual thing."

NO KNOWN cure for tinnitus exists. Doctors recommend certain things such as avoiding caffeine, alcohol, tobacco and stress that can aggravate the condition.

Hearing aids, bio-feedback, electrical stimulation and dental treatment all have been used in the treatment of tinnitus. Those only help to alleviate the condition.

The typical tinnitus sufferer is either male or female and tends to be age 58, according to a survey conducted by the American Tinnitus Association based in Portland, Ore. People from age 8 to 91 reported having the condition.

'It will probably get worse as you get older. That's what makes me nervous. I don't know when it will end.'

— Bill Haskin
Westland

More than 84 percent of tinnitus sufferers in the survey reported themselves to be either in good or excellent health. Concerns about their health are what usually brings people to Dr. Brandes seeking help.

"You have to diagnose what it is and what it is not," Brandes said. "Many patients come in frightened because they think they have a brain tumor."

Once diagnosed, it's a matter of coping. For people like Haskin, that hasn't been easy.

Haskin receives disability insurance from Social Security.

The strain of leaving his job has been difficult on his family. So, too, are the little things that a father does with his children we often take for granted.

"IT'S BEEN a problem," he said. "I can't take them anywhere. They want to go places like a baseball game or a hockey game and I can't take them because the crowd-noise would be too much."

One of the most disturbing things he sees is other children, those kids who have their ears pressed against boom boxes and Walkmans listening to loud music. Those could be the future candidates for tinnitus.

Experts advise people to use common sense when listening to music, turning the volume to a comfortable level and not sitting in front of the speakers at concerts. Manufacturers are also warning people about the dangers of listening to music too loud.

Hearing damage can result only after 15 minutes of exposure to 90 to 100 decibels. The noise from a high-speed power-drill is said to reach that level.

Brandes said studies to indicate people in the 30-40 age range are experiencing a higher incidence of hearing loss compared to their parents and grandparents. Exposure to loud music is one of the reasons often cited.

"People in my generation are paying the price," Brandes said.

For information on the tinnitus support group, call 595-4927.

Tinnitus has forced Bill Haskin of Westland to leave his job at McLouth Steel. He spends part of idle time working on automobiles. ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

He searches for hearing loss

By Sue Mason
staff writer

When you talk, Dr. Allan Bruckheim listens. He listens with his ears and listens with his eyes. Even though it isn't necessary, he hasn't been able to break a lifetime habit of watching lips when people speak.

Bruckheim is one of 20 million Americans who are hard of hearing, and one of 4 million Americans who own a hearing aid.

A nationally syndicated columnist — he is "The Family Doctor" — Bruckheim has been on the road lately, promoting a cause near and dear to his heart — hearing tests for people of all ages.

"HEARING LOSS is sneaky because when it disappears you can't tell," he said. "You don't realize it unless you look for clues. My personal clue was what I said at least 20 times a day."

Bruckheim's experience with hearing loss goes back to his childhood. He grew up a "screamer" because his father and grandmother, and later his mother, were hearing impaired.

But it wasn't until well after his wife and three daughters began suggesting he had a hearing loss that he decided to do something about it.

"When my wife and daughters first suggested I might have a hearing loss . . . well, I flatly denied it," he said. "After all, a four-way conversation among young women and their mother did not frequently require my expertise, but the simple fact was I couldn't follow the discussion."

"It wasn't a question of not listening, it was a problem of not hearing."

BRUCKHEIM HAD double or mixed hearing loss, both conductive and sensorineural.

His conductive loss (involving the outer or middle ear) was due to otosclerosis, a condition in which the spongy bone formation in the middle ear glues down the stapes bone, preventing it from vibrating to transmit sound into the inner ear.

In 1975, Bruckheim underwent pioneer microsurgery to remove and replace the stapes. The stapes is the smallest bone in the human body. In the operation, a metal and plastic device the size of a grain of rice replaced Bruckheim's stapes.

The sensorineural hearing loss caused by problems in the inner ear or the auditory nerve, which sends signals to the brain. The sufferer may not hear high-pitched sounds and may have trouble distinguishing consonants.

That problem was corrected when Bruckheim was fitted with a micro canal hearing aid 18 months ago. Not only has the hearing aid helped Bruckheim hear better, it also has reduced the tinnitus (ringing in the ears) from which he also suffers.

"I can hear forks against plates, the women's heels on the floor," Bruckheim said. "When I put it on in the morning, that's when I hear what kind of day it's going to be."

"Before it was the sun and snow; it was the visual thing. Now I can find the woodpecker in the tree."

BRUCKHEIM'S TOUR is being sponsored by Bellone, a hearing aid manufacturer, but his conversation isn't punctuated with promotional blurbs for the company. The only mention is the availability of free tests at Bellone offices in the metropolitan area.

What Bruckheim does is encourage people to have their hearing tested. Hearing loss isn't a disease of old age, it can happen at any time. For most people, hearing begins deteriorating around age 30.

Bruckheim also takes time to tout the wonders of modern technology. Gone are the large boxes people wore on their chests or tucked in a shirt pocket. Today's hearing aids are small and hardly noticeable. And they show off—the technology garnered from sending things into space, he said.

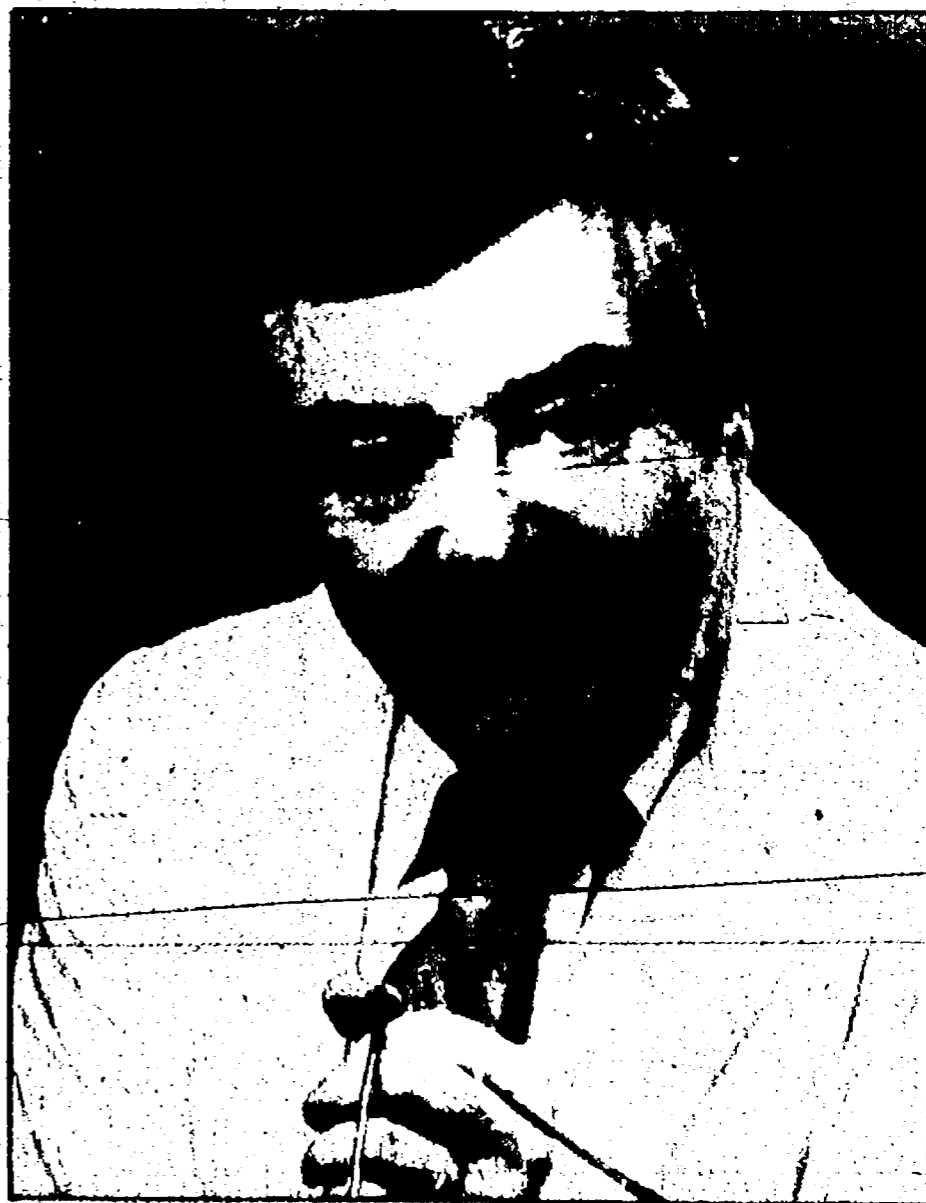

"It took me 10 years to admit there was a problem," he said. "That's a long time and that's wasted time. Once I got my hearing aid and once I started living in a hearing world, I couldn't understand why I didn't do it sooner."

Bruckheim would like to see more than just the sporadic hearing test given in school. He would like to see hearing tests done as part of a regular physical examination. People shouldn't wait until they're 65 to have such a test.

He also encourages people to listen to their families.

Free hearing tests are available by calling the Bellone Hearing Aid Service at Wonderland Mall in Livonia, 261-2630; at 865 S. Main St. in Plymouth, 439-3544; or at Metro Place Mall in Wayne, 728-3690.

"Hearing Again" by Dr. Allan Bruckheim is available by writing to Hearing Again, P.O. Box 5498, Chicago, Ill. 60680.

Dr. Allan Bruckheim is a nationally-syndicated columnist who promotes hearing tests as an early detector of hearing loss.

*Dear Ms. Green -
Here's a challenge - I sent out a sample of my hand-writing for one of those computer print outs and do not agree with the results. Of course I'm disappointed and since I have read your column for a long time and have been impressed*

Dear B.S.,

I enjoyed your letter and accept your challenge. First, however, I would like to impress upon you and all my other readers that the signature is the image the writer wishes to portray to the world and should never be considered alone for a true picture of the writer. A signature can be the same as the text of the handwriting or it can be very different. It is the differences that are significant for capturing the total personality.

In your case, the signature is marked with large showy capital letters, which is congruous with the capital letters used in your letter. This tells me you enjoy a stellar role in all areas of life. You do not shun the limelight. Adulation and applause are music to your ears.

Now let us take a look into your gregarious personality. You are a colorful woman. People are an important part of your happiness. You enjoy an active social life. At times you become involved in more than you can comfortably handle.

It does not take you long to make your presence felt in any group. You are intelligent and witty. You dislike friction and can often avoid it with a humorous retort.

Change and a variety of activities are necessary to ward off boredom. Some restlessness is noted here. Travel should hold an attractive place on your priority list.

Your flair for the dramatic cannot be missed. A well-developed imagination probably makes you an interesting conversationalist. Some tendency toward over-embellishment, possibly without realizing it, seems possible. So the next statement may seem contradictory, but I also see a facility for straight forward speech when the occasion calls for this.

A high degree of self-approval is suggested by this handwriting. You are an independent young woman. And you seem to feel that you can do things as well as or possibly better than others.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this column write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper writing in the first person singular. Signature, age and handedness are all helpful. And feedback is welcome.

Life with Jack: No Daddy Dearest

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

NO, JACK BENNY wasn't a skin'lint. And no, he wasn't the greatest violin player.

That's about as controversial as it gets with the confessions from this child of a Hollywood star. Joan Benny, adopted daughter of the late Jack Benny, is up front.

"I should, note," said Benny, addressing the Livonia Town Hall audience Wednesday at Roma Hall, "this is not a Daddy Dearest story. I had a wonderful childhood."

It was a childhood where she lived in the same neighborhood with the families of Jimmy Stewart, George Burns, and Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz. . . . A childhood where William Fairbanks Jr. sat next to her at her 18th birthday party. . . . A childhood where she sang while Cary Grant played the piano on an airplane trip.

Those memories provide warm breezes on a chilly fall morning. Benny doesn't apologize for them.

And the National Enquirer, People magazine and Inside Edition are not exactly standing in line for them either. They are not the typical juicy tidbits that the Hollywood celebrity press feeds on today.

Still, Joan Benny has just completed a book on her life, "Sunday Nights At 7" will be out on Warner Books. Benny asks to make sure to mention the book. Benny admits she needs all the publicity she can get.

"It's a difficult book to sell," she said. "People want gossip. His career went steadily up the ladder."

NONETHELESS, a child of a star had to be good because whatever you did would, you reflect on your father," she said. "It was no longer what Joan Benny did. It was what the daughter of Jack Benny did. Your father comes over the airwaves every Sunday evening and he could be canceled. It was driven into me."

BUT THAT comes as almost a minor annoyance compared to the life of constantly being around the Hollywood crowd. Her family used to throw extravagant New Year's Eve parties.

Joan Benny and Sandy Burns, daughter of George Burns, used to peer out over the landing to watch the guests come in. One time actress Joan Crawford came to one of Benny's parties and wasn't getting enough attention, so she jumped in the pool, Benny said.

"Nobody paid any attention to her," Benny said. "She got out of the pool with wet hair and looked around and went home. Nobody cared."

Her mother would bring celebrities up for her and Sandy to meet on such occasions.

Then she tells the story of meeting Clark Gable at 14 in front of a restaurant.

"Clark Gable looked down at me, held out his hand and said, 'Joan, it's so nice to meet you,'" she said. "I thought to myself, 'This man has been waiting to meet me all my life.' I never met anyone that charming in my whole life."

Joan Benny, adopted daughter of the late Jack Benny, is up front about her life. There's no gossip, no titillating topics about her late father, just "a childhood."

Porky Pig and his pet, Sylvester, are on the way to Albuquerque in this re-creation of the opening scene from the 1954 "Claws for Alarm," a Chuck Jones ink drawing.

Gallery sells cartoon cels; Helps Children's Hospital

Bugs Bunny will be there. So will Daffy Duck, Porky Pig, Sylvester the Cat, Bullwinkle the Moose, Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck.

And don't forget the Flintstones — Fred and Wilma — and the Jetsons — George and Jane.

Yep, the most famous "toons" of cartoondom will be at the Danielle Peleg Gallery, 4301 Orchard Lake Road, West Bloomfield, Friday, Nov. 10, for a benefit for Children's Hospital of Michigan.

But don't expect these stars to be walking around, shaking hands. They'll be gracing the walls of the gallery in the animation cels (original paintings on acetate) used to produce the famous cartoons.

"THE ART of Animation," an exhibition of original hand-painted cels by legends in the art of animation, will be at the gallery Nov. 10-Dec. 3. Highlighting the fund-raiser opening will be an appearance by Valerie Jones, granddaughter of legendary animator/director Chuck Jones.

Jones animated many of Warner Bros.' most beloved characters, including Bugs Bunny, the Roadrunner and Porky Pig, and directed many of the "Looney Toons" features.

Valerie Jones is director of public relations for Linda Jones Enterprises, the corporation that supervises the release of cels by Chuck Jones. Her mother, Linda, is president of the firm.

In the past decade, a growing number of collectors have transformed the animation cels, once considered pop art, into an increasingly valuable art form. Last year a cel of Mickey Mouse from "The Mad Doctor" sold for $58,000, while a cel of the Evil Queen from "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" sold for $48,000.

THROUGHOUT THE show's run, the gallery will donate a portion of its profits from each cel sold to Children's Hospital. The benefit will raise money to buy a Cemax computer system.

Cemax uses information from magnetic resonance imaging and CAT scans to provide physicians with three-dimensional pictures of bones, tissues and fluids to help them plan surgeries and assist in diagnostic procedures.

Tickets for the opening cost $25. Sponsor tickets are $75 and patron tickets $150. For more information about the fund-raiser, call Jan Loveland at Children's Hospital, 745-5375.

Children's Hospital is the fourth largest pediatric institution in the country. Founded in 1886, the 290-bed hospital treated more than 13,000 children as patients and 90,000 as outpatients during 1988.

Not all wear Sunday best

By Julie Brown
staff writer

THERE WAS a time when going to church meant putting on your Sunday best. For many worshippers these days, that style of dress has gone the way of the Edsel.

"For the most part today, people wear normal, everyday clothes to church," said the Rev. George Charnley, pastor at St. John Neumann Catholic Church in Canton.

Some older members at St. John Neumann Church dress more formally for Mass.

"I think both are acceptable," Charnley said.

Other area ministers and priests have noticed a change as well.

"I think it's just what happened with styles," said the Rev. David Strong, pastor at St. Matthew's United Methodist Church in Livonia. "People feel more comfortable dressing in different ways."

CHARNLEY, STRONG and other pastors aren't all that concerned about what people wear to church.

"It doesn't bother me," Charnley said. "I'm just happy that they're here to pray as a community of believers. A lot of people who get dressed up aren't Christian."

Charnley hopes parishioners take with them what they've learned from the scriptures and use it in their daily lives.

A couple of casual Sundays are held at Strong's church each year. Members enjoy a picnic and can wear jeans to church on those days.

"You don't see blue jeans, let's say, in church normally."

Some young adults at Strong's church have worn unusual hairstyles associated with the counterculture.

"That doesn't concern me," he said. "I don't see that as a problem at all."

Charnley has found that 99 percent of worshippers use good judgment when choosing clothes to wear to church.

"Well, bathing suits I guess aren't appropriate." Other than that, Charnley's not concerned about what people wear to church.

Most people at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth wear businesslike attire, according to the Rev. John Grenfell Jr., pastor at the church. Some choose more casual attire.

GRENPELL WOULD find extremes in dress — such as a bathing suit or a see-through blouse — objectionable in church. People have been known to come to church in risque clothing.

"I'd have to say it's very rare," Grenfell said. He has several thoughts on what people should wear to church.

"I do think that people tend to behave as they dress." At the same time, Grenfell doesn't like to see too much focus on the external at the expense of the internal.

"It's the inner life of a person that I think is important." That inner life isn't divorced from outer life, Grenfell said.

At Geneva Presbyterian Church in Canton, there's a history of encouraging people to be comfortable in worship. The church's welcoming brochure tells worshippers they don't need to get dressed up for services.

"We personally feel it's more important what's in a person's heart," said the Rev. Kenneth Gruebel, pastor at Geneva Presbyterian Church.

Some members at Geneva wear business suits or dresses. An equal if not greater number choose more casual attire.

Some men at Gruebel's church have jobs where they must wear suits five days a week. They prefer to dress more casually on Sunday.

PLYMOUTH'S GRENPELL hasn't seen a great distinction between attire worn to weddings and funerals and that worn for regular Sunday services. It's uncommon for people to dress inappropriately for weddings and funerals, the clergyman said.

"I do a lot of funerals," Gruebel said. "Usually, the family is well-dressed."

Many others at funerals are equally well-dressed, but Gruebel is sometimes surprised by the casual attire he sees at funerals.

"There's certainly been a relaxing in the standard of dress. I think we're always in the process of changing as a society." That's more a sociological phenomenon than a religious one, Gruebel said.

Gruebel would consider any attire disruptive to other people's worship inappropriate for church. Cut-off shorts, for example, wouldn't be the thing to wear.

The pastors have noticed some worshippers get more dressed up for Christmas and Easter. Priests and ministers generally dress more formally for worship services throughout the year.

"That I think is typical of the clergy," said Strong, of St. Matthew's United Methodist Church. He wears a robe during Sunday services.

GRUEBEL WEARS a clerical collar for services, along with a multicolored vest. Most of his clergy colleagues wear either a business suit or a robe with a stole for services.

Formal and more casual dress styles can be seen in area churches these days. For many modern-day worshippers, going to church no longer means putting on their Sunday best. (Dress shoes provided courtesy of Orlandi's Shoes of Plymouth.)

"I've always felt a little bit awkward in a robe," Gruebel does wear a robe for some weddings.

Most worshippers probably expect their pastor to dress up a bit, Gruebel said, although that varies from congregation to congregation.

Grenfell, of the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth, wears a robe for worship services. During the week, he wears business suits. Grenfell doesn't even own a clerical collar.

Laypeople may tend to put the clergy on a pedestal, he said, and that's not the best thing for clergy or congregation.

"We need to be real people." It's more important to be a person than to be a professional, Grenfell said.

Center will host music workshop

Miracle offers a message

What would it be like to be trapped under fallen concrete in a subcompact automobile for 90 hours? Buck Helm has had a few things to say about that in the past few days. Buck went from being an unknown to being a national celebrity all because he was driving down the wrong highway at the wrong time.

Then again, "Lucky Bucky," as he has come to be called, may owe his celebrity status to the power of our imagination. Most of us can imagine the horror of being trapped in such a claustrophobic-producing cage of steel and concrete. We imagine and we relate.

People cheered when he was lifted to the daylight. Others noticed tears in their eyes as they sat in front of television sets far from Highway 880 and listened to the tale told by rescuers. To these people who risked their own lives, he was not simply a job. He was another human being.

To his ex-wife, he was more than an "ex," he was a person in need. To those of us who saw the TV coverage, he was not just a story, he was someone who could have been us.

CATASTROPHES ARE never pleasant. As a matter of fact, they are brutal. But they do have a way of bringing out the best in people. Perhaps that is because when the floods come or the earth caves in, we begin to realize how vulnerable we all are. We become far more aware of our connections with one another than the distances that divide us.

These kinds of events have a way of becoming the great leveler. They let us know in no uncertain terms that where the tire hits the road, status doesn't matter. Political persuasions, lifestyle preferences, religious affiliations and all the other dividers of people really don't hold up. There is a thread of relationship that reaches beyond all of these sad and silly boundaries.

Perhaps that is why so many people became instantly interested in a man by the name of Buck Helm. They were sucked into an awareness of relationship as surely as an earthquake can suck cars and homes into the bowels of the planet.

There are so many Buck Helms out there! There are those who have been and still are trapped and often hopeless. But their would-be tomb is not made of steel or concrete. Rather, their boundaries are set by systems, sometimes political, sometimes religious, often foreign but just as likely domestic.

THESE ARE the children as well as the men and women who work in sub-human conditions picking the lettuce for our salads in the same state whose soil supports Highway 880. They are the homeless who have fallen between the cracks of our systems that all too often come crashing down on unsuspecting lives.

They are the ones whose pain is compounded by shame as they succumb to the modern-day leprosy known as AIDS. They are often the senior citizens who live trapped in their loneliness or the single mom who are forced to sell houses to finance medical services for their uninsured children.

As I write this article, Buck's condition is still guarded. I do pray that he makes it. In the meantime, perhaps some reflection on how we have related to him can open us to relate to these many other trapped human beings. That may even invite us to confront the systems that keep them that way. Then we would have a miracle at least as great and certainly as wonderful as the one on Highway 880.

The Rev. Robert Schaden is with the Newman House campus ministry at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

Larry Meyer: "I want to avoid the traditional bunker mentality where business, labor and government dig ditches and start throwing grenades at one another."

Commerce chief's goal: stimulate state economy

By Gerald Frawley
staff writer

Unemployment compensation, product liability, the U.S.-Canada free trade agreement and education top the fall agenda of Michigan's department of commerce director designee Larry Meyer.

Meyer told the Livonia Chamber of Commerce Wednesday that he is meeting with business people to present his direction for the commerce department. Meyer was the president of the Michigan Retailers Association prior to his selection by Gov. James Blanchard this summer.

Meyer said his main goal is to stimulate the Michigan economy and continue the economic boom that began in the mid 1980s. "I want to avoid the traditional bunker mentality where business, labor and government dig ditches and start throwing grenades at one another."

Unemployment compensation, he said, is one of the first priorities he set for himself. For the past several months, labor, business and government leaders have been putting together a proposal that will significantly rework Michigan's unemployment system.

"They worked together, put aside their differences — or decided the differences weren't important — and put together a 14-bill package," Meyer said. The state legislature should begin addressing the issue this fall.

THERE ARE GENERALLY two basic complaints about the system that the proposed bills will address, he said. One, people aren't getting their checks, and two, individual businesses are paying the wrong tax rate for their size. "In the past, we haven't had a reliable administrative structure."

Meyer said the key obstruction to implementing a better unemployment system has always been a lack of a clear line of accountability and responsibility.

Another big issue on his fall agenda, Meyer said, is product liability. Although still in the early planning stages, reworking product liability laws to cope with a litigious society will require "immense give and take" in the legislature.

Meyer said he also intends to begin work on refining Michigan education and preparing the state for the U.S.-Canada free trade agreement. Both will be ongoing issues and aren't likely to be resolved this year.

Perhaps most important of all, however, is education in Michigan, he said. "To qualify for a job, a youngster has to be better prepared — the days when someone can drop out of high school and work at General Motors are long gone."

MEYER SAID there is no quick fix for solving the state's education dilemma, but the workforce must be more competitive if Michigan is going to continue attracting jobs.

Proposal A, the half-cent sales tax increase for education, is a step in the right direction, Meyer said, adding the proposal promises increased emphasis on computers and math, but also calls for more accountability in the education process.

Business people should support education improvements because they need more qualified workers, Meyer said, but as parents and grandparents, Michigan residents have a moral responsibility to support education.

Livonia Chamber president John Landis said he is confident that Meyer will be a good replacement for Doug Ross. "He's been in business so he's coming from the right direction," he said.

"We as a chamber may not agree with everything he tries to do (in the future), but the key thing is that we will be able to maintain communication," Landis said.

Landis said he was initially surprised at Meyer's appointment because Blanchard is a Democrat and Meyer is a Republican. It was a non-political decision.

Meyer also spoke at the opening of the Southfield Marriott. He is expected to officially assume his position on Monday.

Consulting breaks offered

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Small businesses which have advanced beyond the embryo stage and now need help dealing with the problems of growth can get it through the state of Michigan.

The department of commerce is ready to expand Growth Margin, a demonstration program in which young companies can take advantage of reduced consulting fees.

The program started about a year and a half ago with a survey of small-business owners.

"We saw plenty of examples of companies that grew fast, then exploded," said Jeffrey Padden, a former state legislator and now an administrator with the commerce department.

"Growth got ahead of the business owner's ability to manage," he said. "One of the differences we found between companies that grew successfully and those that didn't was outside expertise."

So, the state recruited several consultants — firms like Rehmann Robson & Co. of Farmington Hills and Arthur Andersen of Detroit — who were willing to offer their services at a reduced rate in exchange for a guaranteed volume of business.

THE CONSULTANT reviews a company's current situation, then develops a plan to expedite growth, Padden said.

Companies can buy up to 40 hours of consulting services. The state, in addition to getting consultants to reduce their fees, pays 20 percent of the bill.

Unlike many state and federal programs, there are no eligibility criteria for businesses to participate. Padden projected that a small business owner could acquire consulting services worth $2,000-$3,500 for an actual out-of-pocket outlay of $800-$1,400.

"What we wanted to do was stimulate the private market, not take over services," Padden said. "We are a quality control manager. Actual delivery of services is out in the field."

INDIVIDUAL COMPANIES wanting in on the program can contact the Oakland County Economic Development Group (858-0732) or the Pontiac Growth Group (333-2990) for referrals.

Padden said he suspects that an economic or chamber of commerce group in Wayne County will express an interest in trying to match clients with consultants when the program expands Jan. 1.

The typical target company is one that has been around two or three years, has 10 to 100 employees and a management committed to growth, Padden said.

It can be either service or manufacturing oriented.

"What we're trying to do is improve the odds that companies will grow and add jobs," Padden said. "This isn't a training ground. It's for consultants with experience."

"IF WE get only one job per company that we otherwise would not get, our service will more than pay for itself," he said. "It's job growth that wouldn't have happened otherwise. That's what the public gets in return for its investment (of state dollars)."

The state expects to make approximately $450,000 available for the program between January and September, said Jean Johnson, project director. "Another value for the consultant is we're doing marketing for them," Padden said.

"It's obvious what a business gets — consulting services at a reduced price."

Upward of 60 companies will have participated in pilot and demonstration programs by the end of the year, Padden said.

Mike Carr, general manager and vice president for Barroncast of Oxford, said his company wasn't at all happy with a more expensive consultant it hired on its own before getting involved with Growth Margin.

Carr said he wouldn't hesitate to recommend the state program.

"AS FAR AS preliminary data we've received, we thought it was helpful in an economical way to develop a plan for growth potential."

Diana Ipsen, a principal with Shulman Ipsen Associates, said her firm has completed four evaluations as part of the Growth Margin program.

Two of those clients have already contracted with the firm for further services and the other two are expected to do so, she said.

"We're delighted," Ipsen said. "I think it's good for the companies and good for the state of Michigan economy."

"It was our thought for the last couple of years the state could assist with management help for these small companies. The state could very well serve to fill in the gap."

Padden fully expects that business owners, often distrustful of government help, will accept Growth Margin.

"We have a money-back guarantee," he said. "Nobody has claimed on it yet."

Alternate highways to wealth

Second of two parts.

In our column last week, we looked at the most common means people use to build their long-term wealth — through systematic saving and investing. Payroll deduction plans and dollar-cost-averaging programs were two examples of strategies that many people use effectively to accomplish their goals.

This week, we will examine two alternate methods of building assets. We term the groups using these two methods the achievers and the investors.

The achievers are those who build up their assets in a long-term, illiquid enterprise. These include business owners and real estate property owners. For their activities to be profitable, they must put in a great deal of hard work and effort into these enterprises — thus the name achievers.

Building and operating a new business is a high-risk method of building assets. Many businesses fail due to a variety of internal or external factors. But in the right set of circumstances, this can be an excellent method of building net worth and financial security.

Other successful achievers we have interviewed have the time, the inclination and the temperament to operate successfully in the real estate arena. Typically, they will, over time, buy and rent several investment properties, actively managing the properties to increase their value. Often, such properties need significant repairs and renovations. If the buildings are in attractive areas, and the owner has the time and skills to make these repairs, significant value can be rapidly added to the properties.

Contrary to the books and advertisements, this method of wealth building is not a get-rich-quick scheme. It takes time, patience, persistence and a commitment to hard work in this area over a long period of time.

Ultimately, the properties can be sold and the profits used to provide income at retirement. Alternatively, the properties might continue to be held. The rents provide the owner with needed retirement income, and periodic increases in the rent provide protection against inflation.

After the savers and the achievers, the third category of financially successful individual is the investor. These people have received a substantial sum of money at some point and have learned to invest the money wisely. The windfall may be in the form of one lump sum or it may be in the form of a series of smaller windfalls.

MOST PEOPLE think it would be easy to manage a large sum of money. From a practical standpoint, this is not necessarily true. For example, a study of Michigan lottery winners concluded that, in many cases, the winning of the lottery caused more problems than it solved. Those who were generally the most successful in handling it were those who made few changes in their lifestyle.

The most common windfall received is an inheritance. If it is a substantial amount, and if the majority is put aside for future needs rather than for current consumption, it can be an important nest egg providing long-term security. If current income is needed from the inheritance, keeping the principal intact becomes critical. Only the interest and dividends should be used for income. It is all too easy to dip into the principal to enhance lifestyle. This can start the slow but inexorable depletion of this windfall.

Some people have irregular incomes. Working in sales on a commission basis, or working in jobs where a periodic bonus is a major part of one's compensation, or working as a consultant may result in dramatic fluctuations in income. In this situation, proper management of this irregular income is vital.

Smoothing out the highs and lows often can be accomplished by establishing a reserve account. Placing a portion of the bonus or large commission check into a long-term investment plan should be a priority item. If, as frequently happens, it is either mentally spent or actually spent before it is received, little is ever put aside for the long term.

There are a number of other ways in which wind-

VARIABLE RATE*	FIXED RATE
9.75% APR up to 18 years	11.95% APR up to ten years

*This is our October 1989 starting A.P.R. A 14.75% A.P.R. Cap applies. The starting A.P.R. is a special introductory rate for the first six months of your loan, at which time the regular A.P.R. (10.87% in October 1989) goes into effect. For example, based on the current index, the regular monthly payment for each $1,000, borrowed on an 18-year loan would be $9.94 for the first six payments (based on a 9.75% A.P.R.), and $10.56 for the remaining 210 payments (based on a 10.87% A.P.R.). The overall A.P.R. for the entire loan term in the example would be 10.84%. Of course, A.P.R. and payment changes after the introductory period may occur if the index varies at the time rate changes are determined.

**If you choose a fixed rate ten-year loan, your monthly payment would be $14.32 for each $1,000, borrowed.

falls might take place. A one-time large gift may be received from a parent or a grandparent; the lottery may be one, or you might own a block of stock in a start-up company that becomes highly successful. All of these financial inflows do not guarantee a worry-free financial future. But by taking good care of these assets, they will help take care of you.

FINANCIAL SUCCESS does not necessarily follow from increased income. It is the effective management of that income that results in success or failure.

One common trait found in most financially successful savers, achievers and investors is that they use debt wisely. Some avoid it entirely, but most see debt as a tool to use prudently in their financial lives. They generally don't buy items when the means of repayment is unclear.

The exception to this might be the business owner, where frequently large risks are taken to achieve potential gains in the future. But even then, the risk of using borrowed money is a calculated one.

Once you become obligated to too many monthly debt payments, your financial options can be severely limited. A high percentage of income is needed to make the monthly payments, and no real progress can be made.

The object is to control your financial destiny rather than let your finances control you. Avoid small debts for consumer purchases. An old saying runs: "Debts are like children. The smaller they are, the more noise they make."

Also, financially independent people have established a system of controlling their expenditures. The size of your income does not determine financial success; it is determined by the relationship between income and expenses.

The system used for controlling expenditures can be either formal, as in a detailed budget, or informal for those with highly disciplined spending habits. But having some sort of system for planning and monitoring progress is crucial. We have found through experience that the person who doesn't know where his next dollar is coming from usually doesn't know where his last dollar went.

Through proper allocation of income and management of your assets, financial success is attainable by almost everyone. The definition of success will vary from person to person, as should be expected.

The objective of accumulating assets is to attain the peace of mind that comes from knowing you are on a solid financial footing, both now and in the future. This frees you to focus your time and energies on other areas of your life that are ultimately more important than day-to-day financial worries. We hope this column has provided you with the tools and motivation to begin the process of providing the money for a secure financial future.

Family Finances appears the third Thursday of the month. We will resume our monthly financial profiles in November. ## IT'S SOLID AND LIQUID AT THE SAME TIME.

Most things are pretty much black and white. Oil and water don't mix. East is East. West is West. Something can't be solid and liquid at the same time. Well, not so with The FirstRate Fund. Because it earns you a great rate, without tying up your principal.

Earn 9 Percent For Up To 60 Days.

From October 2 until November 30, The FirstRate Fund earns interest at an annual rate of 9 percent.

After that, it's tied to the 91-day Treasury Bill, guaranteeing a highly competitive rate. All it takes is a $10,000 deposit to start. And you can add to it, whenever you like.

Make a withdrawal and you won't have to pay a penalty.

So, by all means, open your FirstRate Fund now, and earn an annual rate of 9 percent for as long as possible.

Solid. And Liquid, Too.

Unlike some other investments with a high return like the FirstRate Fund, you can get to your money, whenever you need to.

All you have to do is drop us a line. Seven days later, you'll have your money.

We'll even call to tell you when you can pick up your check.

Insurance For Your Money.

Most investments like this require some risk taking. Not so with The FirstRate Fund.

Your bank deposits are FDIC insured for up to $100,000. Meaning your principal's safe to the maximum amount allowed by law.

In short, you have nothing to lose. But an awful lot to gain.

Where's The Fine Print?
You Just Read It.

If you're going to name something FirstRate, it ought to be just that.

So there are no funny restrictions or conditions. Just a straightforward investment that, unlike a lot of competitive investments, is unquestionably attractive. Which leaves us with one last question. What are you waiting for? The FirstRate Fund. Only from First of America.

Stop by any one of our First of America offices to invest in one, or call 1-800-544-6155.

Remember, this offer may not last forever, is available to individuals only, and may change without notice.

WRITE IT AND REAP!

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

District final matches Stevenson, Chargers

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Todd Krzysnik doesn't usually score goals for Livonia Stevenson, but he always makes them count.

Krzysnik's first-half goal Wednesday — his second of the year — got Stevenson started, and the Spartans didn't let up in posting a 3-0 win over host Farmington in a second-round Class A district game.

Krzysnik's only other goal came earlier this month when Stevenson defeated Plymouth 2-0 for the Lakes Division title.

He must like the attention. "JUST AS LONG as the team wins," said Krzysnik, a sophomore. "I usually play defense, but the coaches converted me to a forward against Salem and they've kept me there."

Stevenson, 12-2-2, plays Livonia Churchill at 2 p.m. Saturday in the district final at Northville High. Churchill beat Northville 3-1 in the other second-round district matchup Wednesday.

The No. 1-rated Chargers, 15-0-1, led 2-1 at halftime on goals by Brady Ericson and Mike Gentile, and Eric Shamberger added a second-half tally. Paul Kaliszewski and Phil Tedino assisted on the latter goals.

"It's always fun playing one of the better teams around," said Churchill coach John Neff of defending state champion Stevenson. "It's a game you never have to worry about getting your team up for."

If Millner can't play at 100 percent, coach Pete Scerri will need more help from Millner's supporting cast, including Krzysnik.

Millner, who has scored 17 goals, assisted on Krzysnik's goal.

"I DON'T think Millner's going to be 100 percent, but we're going to work on him," Scerri said. "The others have to pull the flag and put more effort in there."

"(Churchill) has the pressure on them. They're No. 1 and this week they put me down to No. 6. I'm the underdog but they are a good team, no doubt about it."

Three yellow cards were issued Wednesday, two to Stevenson (John Labadie and Travis Roy) and one to Farmington's Mike Kemmerath. Stevenson lost a lot of scoring punch without Millner, but Farmington coach Cathy Cole believes the Falcons suffered as much when Waker also had to exit after the collision.

Farmington trailed 1-0 at halftime, but second-half goals by Doug Morrill and Rob Haar put the Falcons away. Farmington finished the season at 7-4-4.

"It hurt us having our sweeper (Waker) out," Cole said. "He's one of our captains, and he's a dominant factor. I really think it might have been a different second half if he'd been able to play."

"Having a large group of seniors like we did, who played with a lot of heart will carry over to our younger players next year."

STEVENSON'S Jerry Smolenski earned the shutout, and he was the busiest goalkeeper, recording 14 saves. Only one shot on goal got behind him — a blast by Jason Emerich that caromed off the crossbar in the second half.

Mike Sheehy, the Farmington starting keeper, gave up all three goals before being replaced late in the game by senior Greg Bjedov.

Stevenson assistant Wally Barrett said the Spartans had an easier time in the second half against Farmington.

"We couldn't play with them in the first half because they kept the ball in the air," Barrett said. "Their best offensive weapon was Sheehy's punts. It was like a tennis match at midfield."

Churchill, Shamrocks win openers

Livonia Churchill easily defeated North Farmington, 7-0, in the state Class A district boys soccer tournament opener on Monday.

John Gentile led visiting Churchill with four goals and one assist. "Gentile really played well," Churchill coach John Neff said. "He is just coming off an injury and this is his first game back at full strength."

Brady Ericson, Paul Kaliszewski and Dominic Vella also scored goals for the Chargers (14-0-1).

North coach Henry Killmes wasn't pleased with the game's outcome, but said he was impressed with the play of the top-ranked Chargers.

"Churchill played nice possession soccer and got the ball nicely to the wings," Killmes said. "We didn't really get in on their goalies."

The North coach singled out the play of senior sweeper Todd Menko (co-captain), senior Roger Johnson (co-captain) and freshman fullback Jared Lawrence.

Jovan Trpovski got the victory in goal for the Chargers. He and his teammates handed North their 12th loss of the season. They have just one win and a tie.

REDFORD CC 4, FRANKLIN 0: In a Class A district opener Monday, Redford Catholic Central (14-3-1) scored three second-half goals to pull away from host Livonia Franklin (7-7-2).

Chris Williams of CC scored what proved to be the winning goal in the first half. Joe Nora, Bill Tarnacki and Brendan Sullivan added second-half goals.

J.P. Angell posted the shutout in the nets for CC, while Franklin's Tim Dlugos was heroic in defeat.

DEARBORN 5, THURSTON 1: Redford Thurston had plenty of trouble handling the Dearborn's attack in a Class B district matchup Tuesday at home.

Pal Kaaleen tallied Thurston's lone goal, while Roy Neal suffered the loss in the Eagles' nets.

Thurston's record drops to 5-8-2, while Dearborn improves to 10-6.

DETROIT-JESUIT 4, GARDEN CITY 0: University of Detroit-Jesuit traveled Monday to GC and gave the host Cougars more than they could handle in another Class A district opener.

The Cubs led 2-0 at the half, thanks to goals from Donald Orlandoni and John Petermark.

The loss drops Garden City's record to 2-10-4. "They controlled the first half," Garden City coach Scott Steiner said. "The second half was played pretty evenly, but we couldn't score."

Steiner added: "This is my first season here. I saw a lot of improvement from the beginning of the year. We are now competitive with most teams."

Red-hot topic Controversial fumble remains on the minds of Glenn followers

Points to ponder as the prep football season enters its final week of play before the playoffs.

The controversial fumble in the Farmington-Harrison-Westland John Glenn championship game: WHAT IF the official had ruled that Roy Granger of Harrison indeed fumbled just inside his own 20-yard line on the kickoff with less than four minutes left in the game.

A Glenn recovery would have made the finish a lot more interesting. (Harrison prevailed in the battle of unbeaten, 23-15.)

Head referee Burt Hurshe was the target of ire from both Glenn coach Chuck Gordon and the Rocks' followers after the game.

Granger was quoted in the Detroit Free Press as saying he fumbled. Harrison coach John Herrington told me afterwards "he probably did."

Since there is no recourse like the "instant relay," which we have the luxury of today in the NFL, the controversial call stands and we'll never know if Glenn could have forced an overtime.

Hurshe's judgment is in question, but he should not be totally at fault.

Where were the other officials? I can't believe they were in total agreement. Somebody should have been strong enough to demand further discussion on the play.

It seems to be popular these days among high school, college and pro officials to call fumbles "down" instead of "live."

Fumbles we saw 20 years ago aren't fumbles today.

The difference in the outcome wasn't the fumble, it was Harrison's quarterback Millard Coleman. Glenn's Tony Boles was the best high school running back I've ever witnessed and Coleman is the best QB I've ever seen.

His play, in my estimation, tipped the scales in Harrison's favor.

Of course, he's surrounded by good players, which makes Harrison a great team. Without Coleman, the Hawks are still very good.

For a little guy he makes a big impact, defensively as well as offensively.

Brad Emons

He was under a lot of heat Friday night, but showed an uncanny knack for coming up with the big first down or the elusive run.

I don't know how many times Glenn lineman appeared to have him hemmed in, only to see Coleman escape.

Because of his size (5 feet, 9 inches, 165 pounds) some big-time college programs aren't drooling over him, like Michigan I am told: Some people project him as a defensive back instead of a quarterback in college.

But ask yourself this question: Isn't Coleman as good, if not better coming out of high school than Michigan State's Dan Enos?

There are a lot of similarities between the two.

Enos, no bigger than 6 feet, came out of Dearborn Edsel Ford and is now a pretty good starting quarterback on a Big Ten team: Coleman is at least on a par with Enos.

Western Lakes Activities Association scheduling could cost Plymouth Salem a state-playoff berth: It seems Salem (7-1 record) needs more than a victory over rival Plymouth Canton (7-1) to make the state playoffs.

The Rocks' opponents are doing horrible this season, thus the loss of valuable bonus points. (This week they're running behind Ann Arbor Pioneer, which has two losses, in the rankings.)

Five of Salem's opponents are under .500. Trenton is 2-6, Northville is 2-6, Walled Lake Central is 1-7, Farmington is 1-7, and Livonia Stevenson is 3-5 (with a forfeit win over Redford Union). Many of those teams are expected to lose again this week, costing Salem valuable bonus points.

Salem's only tough opponents have been Glenn (7-1), which they gain no points from because of a loss, North

Farmington (5-3) and Canton. Because of the quirky crossover scheduling in the WLAA in the eighth week, Salem was paired again with Northville.

With the advent of the 12-school, two-divisional WLAA conglomerate, which engineered a hostile takeover five years ago of three schools from the Northwest Suburban League, schools like Salem can schedule only one non-WLAA opponent per season.

Instead of playing Northville twice as the Rocks did in the second and eighth weeks, the crossover game should have been Salem against Livonia Franklin (3-5) a team which has a "slightly" better record than Northville, but more importantly should win its final game against Garden City. Or it could have helped the Rocks' cause if they had played Canton, a 7-1 team, on successive weeks.

Traditional games are important, but the WLAA should possibly look at scheduling their six league games during the final six weeks of the season, instead of leaving the ninth date open for crossovers and non-leaguers.

Make the championship game the ninth week.

That would mean the Canton-Salem game, which has no bearing on the WLAA standings anyway unless it's for the league title, should be moved back for the second or third week of the season.

A lot of traditional rivals meet in the final week, but in the WLAA's case, those games should come earlier because of its bearing on the state playoffs.

Michigan plays Notre Dame and MSU early, why can't the WLAA do the same?

Of course, the WLAA has always stood for What a Lousy Athletic Arrangement.

It's not the first time this has happened, nor will it be the last.

GC'S ARMSTRONG HAILED

Wayne State University freshman free safety Brad Armstrong of Garden City was named Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Defensive Player of the Week.

This is the second time a WSU football player has been honored this season. Senior defensive end Tony Beane of Livonia Stevenson was also honored for his play Sept. 18.

In Wayne's 34-32 victory last Saturday over visiting Northwood, Armstrong picked off three passes, his first collegiate interceptions. Overall he finished with four solo tackles, two assists and one pass breakup.

WSU is 2-5 overall and 0-3 in the GLIAC. The Tartars travel Saturday to play Saginaw Valley State.

CC GOLFERS 9TH

Redford Catholic Central finished ninth in the team standings at the state Class A boys golf tournament held Saturday at Forest Akers in East Lansing.

Muskegon Mona Shores captured the team title with 311 followed by Birmingham Brother Rice, a close second at 312.

NACE MAKES TRADE

Struggling in the basement of the North American Junior Hockey League with a 2-5-1 record, Redford's North American Computer Equipment (NACE) made a three-for-one trade this week.

Going to Compuware along with a 1990 first-round Midget League pick is defenseman Dave McLennaghan, a product of Redford Catholic Central High.

Sent to NACE is forward Howard Petocsky, a first-round Midget choice this season, along with Pat Rodgers of St. Michaels in Toronto, Ontario and Dan Howe.

On Saturday, NACE fell to the Niagara Falls Scenics, 4-1, in a game played at the Redford Arena.

In another NAJHL game played Thursday at Redford, NACE upended the Bloomfield Hills Jets, 6-3, behind J.J. Bamberger's two goals.

NACE returns to action at 8 tonight to face the Melvindale Blades in a game at the Redford Arena. NACE travels Saturday to Kalamazoo to take on the Junior Wings before returning Tuesday to face the Jets in an 8 p.m. start at Cranbrook Arena.

WANTED: SQUIRT GOALIE

The Livonia Squirrt 'A' travel team is looking for a first-year goalie (Tuesday night games).

Those interested should call either Rony Tyranski (261-4926) or Ken Beal (464-2523) for more information.

SCHOLAR FINALISTS

Among the 16 finalists for the Michigan High School Athletic Association's Scholar-Athlete awards are Leo Kowalyk, a football and track performer at Redford Catholic Central High; and Jenny Rettig, a basketball and soccer player at Livonia Franklin.

They were selected among 161 applicants for the $1,000 award, which will go to the top male and female winners. They will both represent Region VII.

Kowalyk a two-way starter on the Shamrocks' football squad, plans to major in liberal arts at the University of Michigan. He has been involved in a French exchange program and the school's chess club. The guitar is one of his hobbies.

Rettig, also a senior, has served as the school's yearbook editor. She has also been active in student government and Girls State, is a Special Olympics volunteer and is a licensed youth soccer referee. She plans to attend either U-M or Kalamazoo College and study either international business or journalism.

Announcement of the award will come Saturday, Nov. 25 at the Pontiac Silverdome in ceremonies held in conjunction with the state football finals.

LIVONIA BASKETBALL

Registration for LJFL/Parks and Recreation basketball (boys and girls ages 9-14) will be from 7 to 8 p.m. Monday, Oct. 30, at the Stevenson High School cafeteria. The cost is $20 (a copy of a birth certificate is required).

All registrants must reside in either the Livonia or Clarenceville school districts.

For more information, call Mick Mongeau at 525-3721.

WOLVES WINS CAESARS

Behind Anthony Vetraino's hat trick in the first half, the '77 Wolves boys soccer team wrapped up the Little Caesars Division I (fall season) championship Saturday with a 3-1 victory over the state cup champion Livonia Wings.

The '77 Wolves, coached by Kevin Argue and Gordon Wells, are 8-0-1 in division play with one regular season game remaining. The team's two-year record (including tournaments) is 71-6-4.

Lady Ocelots find success on soccer trip to east coast

The Schoolcraft College women's soccer team did nothing to hurt their chances of earning a spot in next month's eight-team National Junior College Athletic Association tournament.

The Lady Ocelots (9-3-2) came away with a win and a tie over the weekend in a pair of games in Long Island, N.Y.

On Saturday, No. 7-ranked SC defeated host Nassau (N.Y.) CC, 1-0, on a second-half goal by Garden City's Lori Hodges. The goal was set up by Joah Arndt (Livonia Ladywood) and assisted by Robin Lawson (Ann Arbor Huron).

Goalie Tisha Guido (Garden City) earned the shutout.

The Lady Ocelots made the trip without one of their top defenders, Rosemary Hally of Livonia Churchill. She was out because of illness. Picking up the slack in her absence was Bev DeJohn (Dearborn Edsel Ford).

On Sunday, SC battled No. 4-ranked Farmingdale (N.Y.) to a scoreless draw.

NICK O'SHEA, the Lady Ocelots coach was pleased with his team's showing.

"We had pressure on them most of the game and had loads of chances," he said. "But we couldn't get the ball past one of the best keepers in the NJCAA. She (the Farmingdale goalie) did not give us any rebounds."

SC's defense — paced by DeJohn, sweeper Kellie Davis (Churchill), stopper Angee Stiglmaler (Livonia Franklin) and Gina Carozzo (Ladywood) — did not allow Farmingdale to mount any significant pressure, enabling Guido to record her second straight shutout.

The game also marked the return of midfielder Dawn Gabriel, who was back in the lineup after sitting out the last two weeks because of injury.

"I was happy with the way we played considering Rosemary didn't make the trip," O'Shea said. "Shannon Meath (Plymouth Canton) had an outstanding weekend. We moved her around a little bit. She played some midfield and some forward."

The Lady Ocelots return to action at 4 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 1 against the University of Michigan club team.

The NJCAA tourney begins Thursday, Nov. 16 at Mercer CC in Trenton, N.J.

Schoolcraft men boot Lakeland, 4-0

Four first-half goals allowed the Schoolcraft College men's soccer team to breeze to an easy 4-0 victory Saturday over Lakeland (Ohio) Community College.

The win increases SC's overall record to 10-1-2. The Ocelots are 5-0-2 in Region 12 of the National Junior College Athletic Association.

Brendan O'Reilly (Redford Union) scored breakaway from Brian Thomas (Livonia Churchill) to give Schoolcraft a 1-0 lead at the 10-minute mark.

Jeff Saylor (Ann Arbor Pioneer)

found the net five minutes later on an assist from Rick Menary (Plymouth Canton). The play was set up by a Thomas corner kick.

Menary then made it 3-0 on a penalty shot when O'Reilly was taken down on a breakaway (25 minutes).

Chris Moore (Redford Catholic Central) then tapped in a rebound from Menary and O'Reilly to close out the scoring at 30 minutes.

GOALIE JEFF SHUK (Reno, Nev.) turned in a sparkling second-half effort to preserve the shutout.

SC coach Van Dimitriou substituted freely, using all 15 players.

He held out Khaled Zeldan (Churchill) and Dave Hebestreit (Churchill) because of injuries.

Meanwhile, Chris Speen (Churchill), out since the first week of the season with an injury, is expected to return to action for Saturday's big Region 12 matchup against Cuyahoga (Ohio) CC. (Game time is 1 p.m.)

SC must win or at least tie to earn a berth in the Region 12 playoffs.

Lansing ends SC's tourney reign

Schoolcraft College's four-year strangle-hold on SC Women's Volleyball Invitational ended Saturday when Lansing CC defeated the host Lady Ocelots in the championship final, 15-10, 15-4.

The Lady Ocelots, defending National Junior College Athletic Association champions, suffered their first home defeat in two years.

Despite three ace serves by Cathy Coak (Wayne Memorial High) and eight kills from JoAnn Kolnitys (Wayne), Schoolcraft could not overcome Lansing.

"It was a good matchup for us," said SC's Tom Teeters. "They're tall and they block very high, whereas we're small and tend to hit up. It's something we'll have to figure out and study more on the films."

In pool play, SC routed Kellogg CC (15-4, 15-3) and Delta CC (15-3, 15-3) before splitting with Lansing (16-18, 17-15). (Alisha Love of Detroit Henry Ford served 10 points, including eight aces against Kellogg.)

In the semifinals of the six-team tournament, SC blasted Kellogg again, 15-4, 15-3, to set up a rematch with Lansing.

But despite strong middle hitting and jump-setting by Kolnitys and Jenny Sprout (Churchill), SC was unable to crack Lansing.

On Tuesday, Schoolcraft bounced back to beat host Henry Ford CC, 15-10, 15-7, 15-5, as Angelle Love (Henry Ford) registered 12 kills and Kolnitys added seven. Coak added six digs.

SC, 28-11 overall, returns to action tonight at Macomb in an Eastern Conference match before traveling Saturday to Huntington (Ind.) College for a four-team invitational, which also includes Hillsdale and Wooster of Ohio.

MADONNA COLLEGE ran its overall record to 25-12 Tuesday with a 15-8, 8-15, 15-11, 11-15, 15-4 triumph over host Alma College.

Recording seven kills each for the Fighting Crusaders were: Tonia Smith (Walled Lake Central), Melissa Mars (Redford Bishop Borgess), Stacey Girard (Livonia Ladywood) and Maria Wordhouse (Plymouth Salem).

Ann DiMambro and Lisa Dreske, both of Borgess, recorded six and five digs, respectively.

In Monday's 15-1, 15-8, 15-5 triumph over visiting St. Clair College of Windsor, Ontario, registering eight kill shots each were Smith, Girard and DiMambro.

Val Perrone (Borgess), Dreske and Wendy Wesala each contributed five digs.

The deadline for entries is Nov. 17. If the bowling forms are not available at your bowling center then you can write: John Chmelko, 25530 Van Dyke, Centerline, MI 48015. He can also be reached by telephone at 756-3240 or 755-3838.

Mighty Mississippi defeats bass angler

SOMETIMES YOU have to take the good with the bad. Just ask Pat Kleppert.

After fishing in six Michigan Division qualifying tournaments of the Operation Bass Redman Tournament Trail, Kleppert finished eighth in the division and earned the chance to compete in the $50,000 Red Man Regional, last weekend on the Mississippi River.

But Kleppert's good luck turned sour in Mississippi as the Rochester resident came up empty handed in the scoring of the regional competition.

The top 24 anglers in the Michigan Division (based on a system using points and pounds of fish) competed against the top 24 anglers from three other divisions in the regional tournament. The top 10 at each of four regionals advance to the $150,000 Red Man All American.

Kleppert entered the regional with aspirations of advancing to the All American. But those hopes slipped away during the first day of competition as Kleppert's boat broke down 20-miles upstream from the start of the competition and he had to be towed back to the landing ramp.

"I guess that's the way it goes," Kleppert said. "You have to take the good with the bad and I sure had a lot of good (in the Michigan Division tournaments). I'll have to regroup and give them hell next time."

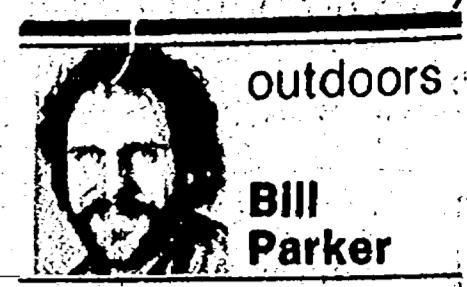

ACTUALLY, KLEPPERT'S luck began changing when he fell out of his boat during the first day of practice.

"It was my fault," said Kleppert, who works at Jerry's Gun Shop in Rochester. "I was a little off balance and I hit a stump while drifting over some flats."

On the first day of competition, Kleppert spun a hub on the propeller, limiting his access to the river. He tried to fish a little, while idling the engine, but to no avail. He wound up fishless after the first day of competition.

On the second day of the two-day event, Kleppert had the engine repaired and was back in action. But by then, it was all but too late.

"I had to go for broke on the second day. I caught two, but I needed about 20-pounds to qualify (for the All American)," said Kleppert, who released the fish before returning to shore. "I guess I could have saved face a little and weighed them in, but I was just a little disappointed." TWO OTHER local anglers also participated in the regional: Rochester's Art Ferguson III, who finished 22nd in the Michigan Division, placed 54th at the regional with 10-pounds of fish. Jim Clauser of Leonard (north of Rochester), finished 83rd at the regional with 3 1/2-pounds of bass after placing 15th in the Michigan Division. Andrew Scott of Arkansas won the regional with 23-pounds 10-ounces of fish.

Kleppert, 22, can gain a little redemption this weekend when he, and fishing partner Jerry Doucette of Drayton Plains, compete in the American Scholarship Regional Bass Tournament.

"We're going to Arkansas this week for the American Scholarship Regional and we hope to do a little better," Kleppert said. But he admitted the Red Man Classic was the tournament he had his sights set on. "I really haven't thought too much about the American Scholarship till now, since the Red Man is over for me."

Kleppert and Doucette head into the American Scholarship Regional after finishing fifth in the Michigan Division competition.

FISHING HAS reopened at the south end of Manistee Lake.

Fishing was closed on Sept. 6 to insure passage of enough fish to allow the Department of Natural Resources biologists to collect the number of eggs needed for the state's fish rearing program. The Manistee weir is the primary source of Chinook salmon eggs for the entire Great Lakes stocking effort.

(Bill Parker is happy to answer questions readers have regarding the outdoors. Deer hunters are also urged to report their success. Send questions or comments to: Outdoors, 805 E Maple, Birmingham 48009.)

Davidson wins 'B' crown

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Kori Davidson is the best tennis player in the state among high school girls, according to her coach, Bernie Goldstein.

There's no doubt the Farmington Hills Harrison junior is the best in Class B after winning claim to that title Saturday at Henry Ford Community College.

Davidson, who was runner-up the last two years, won the championship by beating Mattawan's Katie Schlukebr 7-5, 6-1 in the final.

But Goldstein believes Davidson is the best regardless of class based on her victories last summer over Class A winner Tiffany Gates of Grandville and Nicole Transou of Farmington Hills Mercy, the No. 2-seeded player in Class A.

"She's a super player; she can play with anybody," Goldstein said. "I'd put her in a match with anybody. There are others who might beat her, but nobody is going to totally dominate her."

Davidson winning the state championship after two near-miss performances meant as much to her coach as it did her.

"I'VE NEVER had a state champion before, and it's a big thrill," Goldstein said. "It shows that Harrison plays other sports besides football."

Harrison finished fifth in the Class B team tournament. In their only previous trip to the finals, the Hawks were seventh in 1983 when Davidson's older sister, Kelly, played No. 1 singles.

tennis

Mercy's Transou, who was runner-up in Class A last year, was upset in the semifinals Saturday by Marjia Neubauer of Rochester Adams (7-5, 7-5). The Marlins tied with three others for 12th place in the Class A team competition at Midland.

Davidson breezed through her first three matches, defeating Grand Rapids' South Christian's Chris Koster (6-1, 6-0), Battle Creek Harper Creek's Tina Parmelee (6-2, 6-3) and Bloomfield Hills Kingswood's Monee Vollmer (6-0, 6-1).

She had a tough time with Schlukebr, ranked fifth in the country in Girls 14s, in the first set of their championship match. But Davidson came back strong in the second and won easily.

"It was 5-5 in the first set, and Kori won eight of the next nine games and played as good a tennis match as she can play," Goldstein said.

"SHE HIT SOME unbelievable shots. She hit power, drop shots and was lobbing her. She just played a very smart game."

Davidson finished the year 25-0 and never lost a set all season. The six games Schlukebr won in the final were the most by an opponent. Davidson also has been named to the Prince Racquet Company All-America team for the second time.

Davidson, who grew four inches in the last year, has developed into a strong tennis player who is able to dominate opponents but can employ a finesse game, too, Goldstein said.

"She hits, hits, hits and beats them on a lob," he said. "You can't hit against her, because the ball comes back so fast and hard. You can play with her for a couple games, but she wears you out because she hits so much harder."

Davidson's first-place finish was worth five team points, and everyone else on the Harrison team from No. 2 singles through No. 2 doubles advanced to the quarterfinals and contributed two points apiece.

"That's a team effort, and that's what got us into a high finish," Goldstein said. "You can't do it with one person."

Freshman Lisa Tomle played No. 2 singles, junior Marilyn Onisko No. 3 and freshman Julie Heist No. 4.

THE DOUBLES combinations were Jill Barringer (freshman) and Jodi Whitehead (sophomore) at No. 1, freshmen Kristi Cornwell and Melissa Prendergast at No. 2 and juniors Julie Gibbs and Jill Rosenthal at No. 3.

The Hawks didn't have a senior on the team, and Goldstein will have all of his players back next season.

"I'm excited," he said. "We had five ninth graders, and if everyone improves we could finish higher. It could be dynasty time — as long as we have Kori."

Kingswood won the Class B championship, and East Grand Rapids, Sturgis, Forest Hills Central and Harrison rounded out the top five.

Transou also coasted through three matches to reach the Class A semifinals. She defeated Ypsilanti's Patti Quisovoni (6-1, 6-0), Grosse Pointe North's Jennifer Freidline (6-1, 6-2) and Fraser's Scarlett Chorvat (6-2, 6-0) before facing Neubauer.

"I think the other young lady played exceptionally well," Mercy coach Jim Kerwin said. "Nicole, in my estimation, couldn't quite get into the match and be comfortable."

"There's a feel for a match and an individual, and she wasn't able to get into her rhythm, which made it difficult for her."

Playoff scenario

Glenn on fence; Salem chances slim

By Brad Emons and Dan O'Meara staff writers

grid predictions

IT'S NAIL-BITING time for area high school football teams and their prognosticators.

The end of the regular season is this weekend with state playoff berths on the line. Also on the line is the overall championship between the prognosticators.

Last week, the friendly Irishman (Dan O'Meara) hit a considerable stroke of luck by picking 13 of 14 games correctly.

Meanwhile, the frowning Welshman (Brad Emons) suffered through a 10-4 week.

That means only two games separate the two in the season standings: Emons is 88-26 overall, while O'Meara is 86-28.

The games on tap this weekend will be under close scrutiny, not to mention these playoff ramifications:

CLASS A — Region II: Unbeaten. Lansing Sexton (8-0) and Portage Central (8-0) are virtual "locks" for two of the top four spots if both prevail this weekend. The third place spot should go to Plymouth Canton (7-1) if it can beat Plymouth Salem (7-1), but the No. 9 Rocks would still be in jeopardy even if they beat Canton. Also in the hunt are Novi (7-1), which meets Northville (2-6) this week, and Brighton (7-1), which takes on Taylor Center (2-6).

Region III: The picture is somewhat cloudy.

Birmingham Brother Rice (8-0) should be in regardless of the outcome Sunday in the Catholic League Prep Bowl against Southgate Aquinas (5-3).

Dearborn Fordson (8-0) and Dearborn Edsel Ford (8-0), each competing for berths in Region III, collide this weekend. Fordson can afford a loss and still make it but Edsel cannot.

Detroit Mackenzie (8-0) should make it, even with a loss to Detroit King (8-0) in Public School League championship.

Westland John Glenn (7-1) must defeat Wayne Memorial (6-2) to gain any type of shot at one of the top four berths. The Rockets, however, hold the edge over Birmingham Seaholm (7-1), which should win Friday against rival Groves (1-7). West Bloomfield (7-1) is another longshot. Because the playoff system is based on strength of schedule, the Lakers don't help themselves by finishing their season against Millford (2-6).

The pivotal matchup is the Fordson-Edsel game. An Edsel-Ford victory could make it tough for Glenn to get in.

CLASS B — Region IV: Top-ranked Farmington Hills Harrison (8-0) can lose to Farmington (1-7) this weekend and still be the No. 1-ranked team in this region.

Jockeying for the other spots are: Allen Park (7-1), Milan (7-1), Riverview (7-1) and Warren (7-1). Mount Clemens Clintondale (6-2) and Aquinas (5-3) are longshots.

CLASS C — Region II: Detroit St. Martin DePorres (8-0) is running away with the No. 1 slot. DePorres meets U-D Jesuit (7-1) in the wildcard game Sunday at the Pontiac Silverdome.

Unbeaten Onsted (7-0) and Harbor Beach (7-0) can each secure berths this weekend with victories. The fight is for fourth place between

New Haven (7-1), Flat Rock (6-2), Detroit Country Day (6-2) and Redford St. Agatha (7-1).

The Aggies must beat Detroit East Catholic (7-0) on Sunday at the Silverdome and have almost half of their playoff competitors lose this weekend to have any kind of hope.

FRIDAY'S GAMES

(all 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Lutheran-Westland at Det. Luth. West (7 p.m.): Lutheran Westland (4-4) has had two weeks rest after gaining a forfeit win last week over North Branch Wesleyan. Detroit Lutheran West (6-2) is a good team, smarting from a 21-12 loss last week to Mount Clemens Lutheran North. West is still in the hunt for a playoff berth in Class D (Region II). PICKS: Lutheran Westland's Dennis Tuomi, who was the longtime coach at Lutheran West, wishes he was on the other side. Go West young men.

Liv. Stevenson at Liv. Churchill: The Livonia city championship is at stake for these 3-5 teams. Another interesting side-light is that young Brian Osterland, a sophomore guard for Stevenson, will try to pin a loss on his dad, Herb, the head coach at Churchill. "We've had some quiet dinners lately," said Herb. "Not much has been said." PICKS: Churchill is the city champion.

Westland Glenn at Wayne Memorial: City bragging rights (get there early) are also on the line in this one. Wayne (6-2) could well be undefeated having lost a pair of close games to Wyandotte and Dearborn Fordson. The Zebras, playing at home two years ago, played the spoiler role by upsetting Glenn and knocking the Rockets out of the playoffs. It's the same scenario all over again. Glenn's defense must contain the scrambling of Wayne quarterback Brent Tapp and the pass catching of Larry Johnson. PICKS: Glenn wins a squeaker, predicts Emons. The Zebras do a repeat of two years ago, says O'Meara.

Plymouth-Genton vs. Plymouth Salem (at CEP): Last year the Chiefs took out the Rocks. With a playoff berth at stake, it could come down to the final few minutes. Canton proved it is no fluke by beating North Farmington last week. Defense will be the key. Can Salem control the passing of Karl Wukie? Can Canton contain the inside power of Ryan Johnson and the wishbone attack? PICKS: Salem wins the grudge match and ponders the playoff possibilities, says Emons. O'Meara thinks the Chiefs will do it again.

Walled Lk. Western at Walled Lk. Central: The battle of Walled Lake could be another close one, despite records of 2-6 and 1-7, respectively. Central is due for a win. Western is coming off a 21-7 victory over Livonia Stevenson. A coin flip may be needed. PICKS: Take Western.

SATURDAY'S GAMES

(all at 1 p.m. unless noted)

Liv. Clarenceville at Red. Thurston: Two contrasting styles. Thurston (3-5) is conservative offensively and relies on the running of Jesse Welker. Clarenceville (6-2) comes at you with an assortment of weapons led by quarterback Chris "The Boss" Foss, tailback Andy Weighill and receiver Kendrick Harrington. Thurston has played a tougher schedule, but Clarenceville won last year's meeting. PICKS: Emons says Thurston pulls the upset win. O'Meara believes the Trojans will rebound from their loss to Avondale.

Garden City at Liv. Franklin: Could be another tight battle. Garden City's schedule has been murderous against the likes of unbeaten Dearborn Edsel Ford and Bay City John Glenn, not to mention Wayne Franklin (3-5) is coming off a narrow 13-12 win over Walled Lake Central. The Cougars were blasted last week by Bay City (49-14). PICKS: Emons says Franklin wins. O'Meara says Garden City wins.

Redford Union at N. Farmington: Could be the mismatch of the weekend. RU (0-8) should be playing Farmington instead, while North (5-3) should be playing against Harrison. The Panthers, who had to forfeit their only victory, do not have the horses to stay with North. PICKS: North in a romp.

Farmington at Farm. Harrison: The Falcons (1-7) will go down throwing, but they won't have enough in their arsenal to beat the Hawks, who are gunning for their 22nd consecutive victory. PICKS: Harrison names the score.

Bishop Borgess at Orchard Lk. St. Mary's: A little bit of deja vu? Remember these two teams met in the season opener at the Pontiac Silverdome. St. Mary's rolled to a 37-8 victory. Borgess (1-7) should make it a little closer, but St. Mary's (6-2), led by quarterback Vaughn Bryant, is loaded with talent. PICKS: Take the Eaglets again.

Redford CC vs. Dbn. Divine Child (1:30 p.m. at Crestwood): The Shamrocks' state playoff hopes went down the drain last weekend after falling to Warren DeLaSalle in the final seconds, 19-14. Pride is on the line in this one. Can CC (6-2) bounce back? Divine Child (5-3) is a formidable opponent. PICKS: The Shamrocks rebound to finish 7-2.

SUNDAY'S GAME

St. Agatha vs. Det. East Catholic (4 p.m. at Silverdome): The Aggies are making their second straight appearance in this C-D Division championship game at the Pontiac Silverdome. Detroit East Catholic is 8-0, but had to forfeit a season-opening win over St. Clement because of an illegal transfer. Speedy East Catholic, led by junior quarterback Irest Gray and sophomore tailback Leonard Holmes, can put points on the scoreboard. The Aggies' defense is tough, led by Pat Wagner and Brian Rich. The offensive attack will control the ball, led by quarterback Brian Kutch and fullback Ken Prokes. PICKS: The Aggies make up for last year's 17-0 defeat to Flint Holy Rosary. Coach John Goodard takes a victory dip in Cass Lake. But O'Meara takes East Catholic.

Pilots ground CC's hopes

Redford Catholic Central's 19-14 football loss Saturday to Warren DeLaSalle was costly in more ways than one. (The game was played at Livonia Clarenceville High.)

The Shamrocks, beaten in the final 13 seconds on a 7-yard pass from quarterback Jason Ahee to flanker R.J. Parker, all but killed their chances to make the state Class A playoffs in Region III. The defeat also denied CC a chance to play Sunday in the wildcard game Sunday at the Pontiac Silverdome against unbeaten Detroit DePorres.

CC finished second in the Catholic League's Central Division with a 3-2 record. The Shamrocks, 6-2 overall, will take on Dearborn Divine Child (5-3) in the regular season finale, beginning at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Dearborn Heights Crestwood.

DeLaSalle came on strong in the second half after trailing 14-7.

But CC struck first, going 58 yards in 15 plays, capped by fullback Terry Licht's 1-yard run with 3:47 left in the first quarter. (Brent Jenkins added the extra point.)

In the second quarter, the Pilots mounted an 82-yard, 16-play drive. Ahee scored from 2 yards out and Don Collier added the PAT to make it 7-7.

CC took the next possession and drove 70 yards in nine plays. Licht scored again on a 1-yard run and Jenkins booted the extra point with 3:09 left in the half to make it 14-7.

In the third quarter, the Pilots marched 80 yards in 13 plays, capped by Ahee's 17-yard run. But a bad snap on the extra point cost DeLaSalle a tie as CC held onto a one-point advantage, 14-13.

The Pilots missed a pair of 37-yard field goals in the final quarter, but jumped on a CC miscue (bad snap on a punt) with just over a minute to play.

With the ball on the CC 19, the Pilots took it in for the winning score. CC, which ran only 13 plays in the second half, was outgained 281-162 in total yardage. DeLaSalle also racked up 16 first downs to CC's nine.

Gabe Fahres led the Pilots with 114 yards rushing in 27 carries. Ahee added 63 yards in 12 attempts. Dave Owens rushed for 57 of CC's 67 yards, raising his season total to 868.

Quarterback Jack Davidson completed eight of 12 passes for 95 yards.

CHURCHILL 28, FARMINGTON 14: In a Western Lakes Activities Association crossover on Saturday, Livonia Churchill's ground game chewed up the host Falcons. Churchill is now 3-5 overall, while Farmington dropped to 1-7.

The Chargers did not complete a pass, throwing only twice, but rolled up 289 yards on the ground led by senior fullback Andy Saplenza (27 carries for 126 yards), tailback Mike Spaccarotella (14 for 94) and quarterback Mike Brooks (11 for 60).

Churchill led 7-6 at the half on a 60-yard run by Saplenza. Farmington scored its six on field goals of 27 and 21 yards by Eric Meyer.

The Chargers scored twice in the third period — Saplenza on a 4-yard run and Spaccarotella on a 10-yard run. Farmington came back in the fourth quarter when Chris Schmid, who completed 17 of 40 passes for 178 yards, buried a 10-yard TD pass to Chad Haney. (Schmid also converted the two-pointer on a pass to Eric Miller.) Saplenza then closed out the scoring on a 1-yard run by the 6-foot-2, 210-pound Saplenza.

football

Another standout on offense was 250-pound tackle Pat Knittel. Defensively, linebacker Trent Naumcheff stood out with 10 first hits. He now holds the school record with a season-high 81.

ST. AGATHA 26, ST. ALPHONSUS 6: Redford St. Agatha (7-1) won its seventh straight, clinching the C-Section crown outright for the second consecutive year with a victory Saturday over Dearborn St. Alphonsus (8-8). (The game was played at Redford Union's Kraft Field.)

Junior quarterback Brian Kutch completed only four of eight passes, but three went for TDs. He connected with senior Ken Kroll on scoring tosses of 8 and 23 yards. He also completed a 12-yard scoring strike to senior Kevin Smith.

Brian Wilson added a 4-yard TD run in the final period. Agatha had 247 yards in total offense to the Arrows' 74. Ken Prokes paced the Aggies with 81 yards rushing in 17 attempts. Wilson added 74 yards in 14 carries.

Defensively, Agatha standouts included Kroll, a linebacker; Pat Wagner at tackle; Joe Boards at end; Kutch and Smith in the secondary (each picked off passes).

KENNEDY 28, THURSTON 0: It was no contest Saturday in a Tri-River League encounter, as Taylor Kennedy (6-2, 6-1) breezed past host Redford Thurston (3-5, 2-5). "I was extremely disappointed, but not from an effort standpoint," said Thurston coach Bob Snell. "We had people try to play on their own. We had breakdowns that I haven't seen all year. They put too much pressure on themselves and it turned out to be a disaster."

"We got pounded. We didn't block. Assignment-wise, we didn't pick anything up. But give Kennedy credit. That's a big, strong football team."

Thurston had only 63 total yards to Kennedy's 240. Tony Garrett led Kennedy with 111 yards rushing in 10 carries. He scored a pair of TDs.

Senior tailback Jesse Welker paced Thurston with 55 yards on the ground in 17 carries. Welker moved closer to the 1,000-yard mark. He now has 968 yards rushing on the season with one game yet to play.

With 67 yards he could surpass Craig Mulch's 1968 single-season school rushing mark of 1,034 yards.

BROTHER RICE 21, BORGESS 6: In a Catholic League-Central Division finale Saturday at Garden City Junior High, top-ranked and unbeaten Birmingham Brother Rice (8-0) eased past Redford Bishop Borgess (1-7).

Rice finished Central Division play at 5-0, while Borgess fell to 0-6.

Paesano added a 27-yard scoring pass to sophomore tight end Bob George in the final quarter.

Borgess avoided the shutout when Delwin Sears broke loose on a 55-yard run. Rice had 235 total yards to 107 for Borgess.

Quality varies in Trinity's one acts

Performances of "Four One Acts" continue through Saturday, Dec. 2, at Trinity House Theatre in Livonia. For ticket information, call 464-6302.

Bob Weibel

By Bob Weibel
special writer

Trinity House Theatre has designed a rather effective setting for its current production, simply entitled "Four One Acts." The walls of broken concrete embedded with links of chain symbolize the fractured relationships and conflicted personalities in each story.

The plays, however, are an uneven lot.

The first, "Breakfast, Lunch and Dinner," is an original piece by Paul Patton. The concept is interesting, the dialogue witty and clever. It wants to be a domestic comedy about a young couple learning to communicate with each other after the honeymoon glow is over. David Denis gives us some nice comedic moments as the husband. Unfortunately, Renee Denis appears to be a less experienced performer and plays the wife as if in a heavy drama.

"Dispatches from Hell," on the other hand, is uniformly good. It takes place in a German railway office during World War II. Paul Patton, after a shaky opening, is very effective as a trainmaster who changes from being an apolitical civil servant concerned with keeping the trains on time — to assisting the SS in transporting people to the concentration camps — and rationalizing his actions. Sarah Hedeon is splendid as his secretary and mistress. She cannot live with his decision and comes up with an appropriate final solution of her own.

R. Edward Anderson in his black leather coat is an imposing presence as an SS security officer. A little harder edge to his voice and mannerisms would make his character outstanding.

THE EVENING'S third selection, "The Cure," opens with nice lighting but is more like a scene than a fully developed one act.

Beth Temple displays a fine range of character as a daughter recovering from acute depression in a rest home — and learning that her father, played rather mechanically by James C. Ball, has married a younger woman.

"The Vallant" is something of a melodramatic potboiler about a young man convicted of murder who refuses to reveal anything about his past. The script is a bit far-fetched at times, but nevertheless Rago manages a moving portrayal in the lead role. Julie Cullen is appealing as an innocent young woman who claims to be his sister. Rounding out the cast are William Garfield as Father Daly, Mattie Wolf as the Warden and Art McCoy as a Policeman.

Bob Weibel of Westland is a freelance writer, who has spent more than 25 years in community theater as a director, designer and performer.

Renee Denis is "Mrs." and Dave Denis is "Mr." in the one act "Breakfast, Lunch and Dinner."

Christine Elliott is Mary in the musical "Oil City," running Tuesday, Oct. 31, through Sunday, Dec. 3, at the Birmingham Theatre.

attendance records since it opened in New York City in 1987, and in cities across the country including Syracuse and Rochester, N.Y. and Chicago. "Oil City" is the brainchild of four musician-writers from the Midwest who suggest, with tongue firmly in cheek, that it's based on their memories. Two of them, Mark Hardwick and Mike Craver starred in the smash hit New York City production and will be directed by the New York director Larry Forde in the Birmingham production. The two other cast members, Christine Elliott and Mary Ehlinger were the stars of the Syracuse production — together this group makes a powerful combination.

Show relies on slapstick

Thursday, October 26, 1989 O&E

Performances of "Bullshot Crummond" continue through Saturday, Oct. 28, at Smith Theatre at Oakland Community College in Farmington Hills. For ticket information, call 471-7700.

review

By Richard Marsh
special writer

While looked down upon by some, slapstick comedy is one of the most difficult forms of theater to successfully stage.

Oakland Community College makes an attempt at slapstick with its current production, "Bullshot Crummond." One problem with slapstick is you have to be in the right frame of mind for this type of humor. The cast tries hard to make the jokes work and many times is successful.

Nick Tomasin, a North Farmington High School senior, although a bit young-looking for the role, does well as Bullshot.

The most effective bit is Khaled Hanna's dual role as Otto Von Bruno and a mobster. Using a curtailed archway to continuously switch between the two personas, Hanna almost makes the audience think he is twins with his near-flawless performance.

The show is slow in building momentum, but Hanna's double-personality bit puts the show into high gear, making the end of the first act seem to come all too soon.

The play involves Capt. Hugh "Bullshot" Crummond, an English detective. Bullshot is a cross between Sherlock Holmes and Don Knotts. He is an astute sleuth who picks up on the smallest details, but he is also a bumbling wimp who has a high opinion of himself.

NICK TOMASIN, a North Farmington High School senior, although a bit young-looking for the role, does well as Bullshot.

Bullshot is asked by Rosemary Fenton (Kate Bernard) to rescue her father (Tom Williams-Young), a professor kidnapped by Von Bruno trying to get his secret formula.

Except for the role of Von Bruno's wife, Lenya (Devona Eubanks), Williams-Young plays the remaining roles in the play, including Algy Longworth, a country policeman, a waiter, Inspector Scabbard, Wolfgang Schmidt and Marovitch. Williams-Young does an excellent job of filling the seven roles, often having only seconds to change characters.

Part of Williams-Young's success comes from the costumes and make-up. Though not extravagant, these technical areas help Williams-Young keep the different characters distinct from each other.

The technical areas are nothing spectacular, but they do fill the needs of the show, providing the basics of what is needed and sometimes offering a bit of humor themselves.

BIGGEST WEAKNESSES of the show are with the accents and the timing. Occasionally, the accents make it difficult to understand the characters' lines. Meanwhile, Eubanks sounds like she got her German accent from watching "Hogan's Heroes."

In slapstick, timing is everything. For the most part, the cast has the timing down, but there are several instances where things need to be tightened up. The most noticeable bit is the scene where the Von Brunnos are in one car and Bullshot and Rosemary are in the automobile behind them.

They use the same car for their lines, with quick blackouts hiding the change of performers. As long as the actors wait for total darkness to change cars, the comedy works. Friday night, trying to keep the pace as fast as possible, the performers started leaving the car before the complete blackout, taking away from the effect.

The play runs about an hour and a half and is best enjoyed when already in a bit of a silly mood.

As with many of the shows at the Smith Theatre, a dinner-theater package was available Friday. The dinner was arranged through the culinary arts program of OCC.

Not to take away from the performance, the elegance and great-tasting food of the dinner could be termed the best part of the evening, no matter how good the play is.

Trick-or-treat Council offers safety guidelines

Halloween, one of the most festive holidays, will soon be here. While many parents' trick-or-treat worries concern child abductions and candy tampering, such easily overlooked dangers as pedestrian accidents and falls are much more commonplace, according to the National Safety Council.

To help ensure a safe Halloween for parents and children, the council offers these safety guidelines:

- Children's costumes should be large enough so that warm clothing can be worn underneath, yet short enough so the child won't trip. Avoid shoes that make walking difficult.
- For visibility, use light colors in costumes and attach retro-reflective tape to them. Have trick-or-treaters use retro-reflective treat bags.

- Attach a small child's name, address and phone number inside his sleeve, in case he gets lost. Do not, however, openly display this personal information on the child's costume.
- Masks can obscure a child's vision. Use non-toxic makeup instead.
- Be sure kids travel only in familiar neighborhoods and that they don't enter strange homes or apartments. They should follow a designated travel route with a definite return time, and not trick-or-treat past dark. Give them coins to call home if problems arise.

- Remind kids not to eat any treat before you have inspected. Give trick-or-treaters a snack before they start to curb their appetites.
- Teach kids pedestrian safety: walk on sidewalks, not in the streets. In areas with no sidewalks, walk on the left side, facing traffic, as far off the roadway as possible. When crossing, stop at the curb or corner, and look left, right, then left again. Keep looking until you have crossed the street safely.
- Motorists should slow down in residential areas and watch for children.

Guidebooks can answer nursing home questions

Q. My father is going to have to go to a nursing home. Are there any books that can tell us how to handle the move and what to expect?

Renee Mahler

A. There are many fine publications concerned with nursing home placement that address the questions and concerns of the potential resident and their families. I am partial to a book entitled "Choosing a Nursing Home, A Guidebook for Families." Published by the University of Washington Press and edited by six health care professionals, the book covers a wide range of topics concerning potential nursing home residents and their families, including financial considerations. Acknowledging the need for nursing home care is discussed as is caring for a relative at home. The book explores common feelings such as sadness, anger, helplessness, resentment, and guilt. It talks about losses suffered by the older adult. There is a chapter on helping the elderly person ease into their new situation, how to leave their home, what to take to their new residence, legal arrangements, a checklist of what has to be done prior to admissions, and what information to give the nursing home staff. The book discusses how to help the older adult adjust to their new home and the adjustments the families must also make. This includes rebuilding of your own interests and taking care of yourself. Making visiting enjoyable and easier and the special problems of communication with the nursing home resident are covered. There is a section devoted to how to work with the nursing home, understanding nursing home constraints, dealing with difficult issues, who and what support services are, joint care planning and volunteer participation.

There are questions to ask yourself about your relative who is living alone and questions about caring for your relative in your own home. The questions are concerned with safety, nutrition, hygiene, medical and social needs, family constraints, and the caregiver's time and energies. There is a list of additional suggested readings.

The book, a paperback priced at $8.95, should be available on the shelves or by order from your local bookstore. Also check with your local library.

Q. Where can I get information concerning senior services in the Plymouth area?

A. The Information Center Inc., located in Southgate, can provide information for and about older adults in Plymouth, Canton, Redford, Livonia and Garden City. This is a referral agency that can assist people 60 years or older to find the services they need. The Information Center can inform seniors where to obtain help with health care, emergency assistance, in-home help, sliding scale legal services, nutritional services, tax assistance and care management. The Center can also provide lists of available senior housing. Administered through The Senior Alliance (Area Agency on Aging 1-C) through the Older Americans Act, the service is available at no cost.

For information on older adult services in Western Wayne County call the Information Center, Inc. at 422-1052, Monday-Friday, 9-5; or visit the office, located at 15100 Northline Road, Suite 159, Southgate. The office is open Monday-Friday, 9-5.

Q. Is the Health Department giving flu shots again?

A. The Oakland County and the Oakland County Health Departments offer flu shots for older adults 65 years of age or older. The shots can be taken at many local senior centers or at the Health Department offices. There is a $2 charge for those able to pay. For information call your local senior center or the Wayne County Health Department, 467-3300, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays or the Oakland County Health Department, 424-7000, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Marking 10 years of photo exhibitions

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

When Marcia Boxman, Elaine Yaker and Nanette Carnick opened Pierce Street Gallery of Birmingham 10 years ago, a lot of people gave them a year at the outside. A few thought maybe they'd last two or three, but few if any thought they'd beat the odds and be flourishing after a decade.

As they talked about their early years, they recalled the uphill battle to convince the public that photography was a collectible item. Boxman remembered hearing a friend comment after one of their early shows, "People will buy anything, won't they?"

"I'm very proud of where we began," Yaker said of their first show in October 1980 of works by Mario Giacomelli. "He is a very fine printer. There was great beauty in his work, but this was not a simple show."

Boxman said Lisette Model's visit was memorable.

"Our greatest regret was that we didn't tape record Lisette Model when she was here," Boxman said. "We took her to see Cranbrook and she said it was an authentic American beauty."

Model, a tiny woman who loved to portray anything large, died several years ago in her mid '70s. Boxman said she laughs every time she thinks of Model and the biting comments she made about many of her peers.

Lazlo Willinger, who photographed the great movie stars of the 30s and 40s, is another whom Boxman remembers.

"I just loved this man," she said. "He did a memorable photograph of Joan Crawford and after the book, 'Mommy Dearest,' came out, I asked him about her and he said, 'she was a professional' and he didn't want to be involved in that."

The women began to list the names of photographers who showed their works for the first time in this area in their gallery — Robert Adams, John Pfahl, Deborah Tuber-

All expressed regret that they didn't buy more for their personal collections.

"You find too in the art market that photography is the last collectible although prices have gone up," Boxman said.

Yaker nodded in agreement.

"They've doubled and tripled in many cases," she said. "We hear the 'I wish I had, I should have, if only I had known' comments all the time. Ruth Bernhard came in at $600, she's $1,500 today."

"Lotte Jacobi was $450, now she's $1,500 and you can't get them," Carnick added.

Boxman said that photographs by O. Winston Link have gone from $700 in 1983 to $1,500 today.

All three expressed admiration for many of their artists. Yaker remembered how Denny Moers wrote and said he wanted them to change the labels in his show to Dennis because Denny wasn't dignified enough. Soon after he wrote again that he had changed his mind — go with Denny Moers.

THEY AGREED that the photographs by Moers represent the greatest range of work.

"They're like outgrowths of each stage," Carnick added.

The gallery took shape originally because Boxman, Carnick and Yaker shared an interest in photography. They had been in photography classes together at Wayne State University and the Center for Creative Studies. They had attended photography workshops together — the most recent of which was in Colorado where they ended up doing a lot of darkroom work, something they had not done for a long time.

"The darkroom is still exciting," Carnick said.

"It's still magical, even after 10 years of not doing it, it came back awfully fast," Yaker said.

Out of this, a second business, Pierce Street Portraits, Fine Art Photographs of Children, was born.

"The work is done here," Yaker said. "A lot of time is given to just chatting and making the children comfortable. We're not focusing on a proper sitting, we're focusing on these children."

She said parents call and ask what the children should wear, should they buy a new outfit. The answer is to bring the child in some favorite piece of clothing, something that is typical of the way the child looks now.

Portraits are done in black and white, which Boxman called "the most honest of all art mediums."

"There is a new acceptance of black and white because we have been so inundated with color," Yaker said.

Before the gallery opened these three women were photographers first and gallery owners second. Then the priorities were reversed. Now, finally the two are in balance or almost.

Exhibit documents decade

"Looking Back, 10 Years of Photography at the Pierce Street Gallery" continues through Saturday, Nov. 25.

Many of the photographers the gallery has shown over the last decade are represented — Bill Rauhauser, Lazlo Willinger, Disfarmer, O. Winston Link, Jay Desard, David Lubbers, Tomaz Tomaszewski and hundreds more.

Hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday-Saturday, 217 Pierce, Birmingham.

Portraits of children, such as this one, are done in black and white, which Marcia Boxman calls "the most honest of all art mediums." Black and white is gaining a new acceptance because people are inundated with color photography, Elaine Yaker said.

In 1981, Pierce Street Gallery exhibited the works of John Gruen. Included in that show was this photo, "Spools and Bottles," taken in 1975.

Antiques show the simple grace of the East

Edith Briskin poses near one of the 19th century Oriental tables in Briskin Antiques, the Birmingham shop she owns with her husband, Barry.

By Louise Okrutsky
staff writer

After 24 years of collecting antiques, Edith and Barry Briskin began to search for a different challenge.

It came in the shape of a shop filled with mostly 19th century Oriental antiques. When the couple bought the antique store nearly four years ago, they were relatively unfamiliar with Oriental furnishings.

"We've always loved antiques and we've always collected a lot," said Edith Briskin. "But what do you collect next?"

Briskin Antiques in Birmingham seems to have answered that question for the couple. Most of the furnishings are of the kind used in wealthy Chinese homes. In some cases, the furniture's spare lines insulate it from the ebb and flow of changing styles.

"It hasn't changed in style dramatically since the establishment of the Ming Dynasty," she said. "Period Chinese furniture is Ming furniture."

Briskin's husband will be on hand with several pieces from the show Nov. 17-19 at the Junior Group 1989 Goodwill Antiques Show at the Michigan State Fairgrounds.

Furniture didn't hold the same importance as traditional artwork so there wasn't a demand for styles to change, Briskin said.

"It's very difficult to date the furniture," she said. "Sometimes you can do it by the wood."

Furniture makers used all hardwoods with a preference for rosewood.

THOSE INTERESTED in buying Ming Dynasty furniture can still find it, if they're prepared to pay the price. Chairs or tables can fetch between $20,000-$30,000 according to Briskin.

For the most part she carries 19th century pieces with a few 18th century. Most of the pieces are Chinese, which are more affordable. The most expensive items in the shop are a set of 19th century lacquered chests for $8,000.

In the 19th century, when China opened up to trade with the West, porcelain and furniture slated for export didn't emulate the domestic styles. Instead these pieces were designed to resemble styles popular in a specific market. Late 19th century Chinese export items were made to reflect Victorian taste. They have the ornate touches that many associate with Chinese style.

The simpler styles of furniture made for the domestic market were built to be durable. Much of it was made to withstand the rigors of travel. Chests can be taken apart and stacked up again. Poles were slid through handles on each side of the chests to make the containers easier to carry.

"Furniture had to be easy to carry, easy to transport and very functional," she said. "It would have to be simple."

"We haven't been able to find nice quality furniture at affordable prices from Japan and Korea," Briskin said.

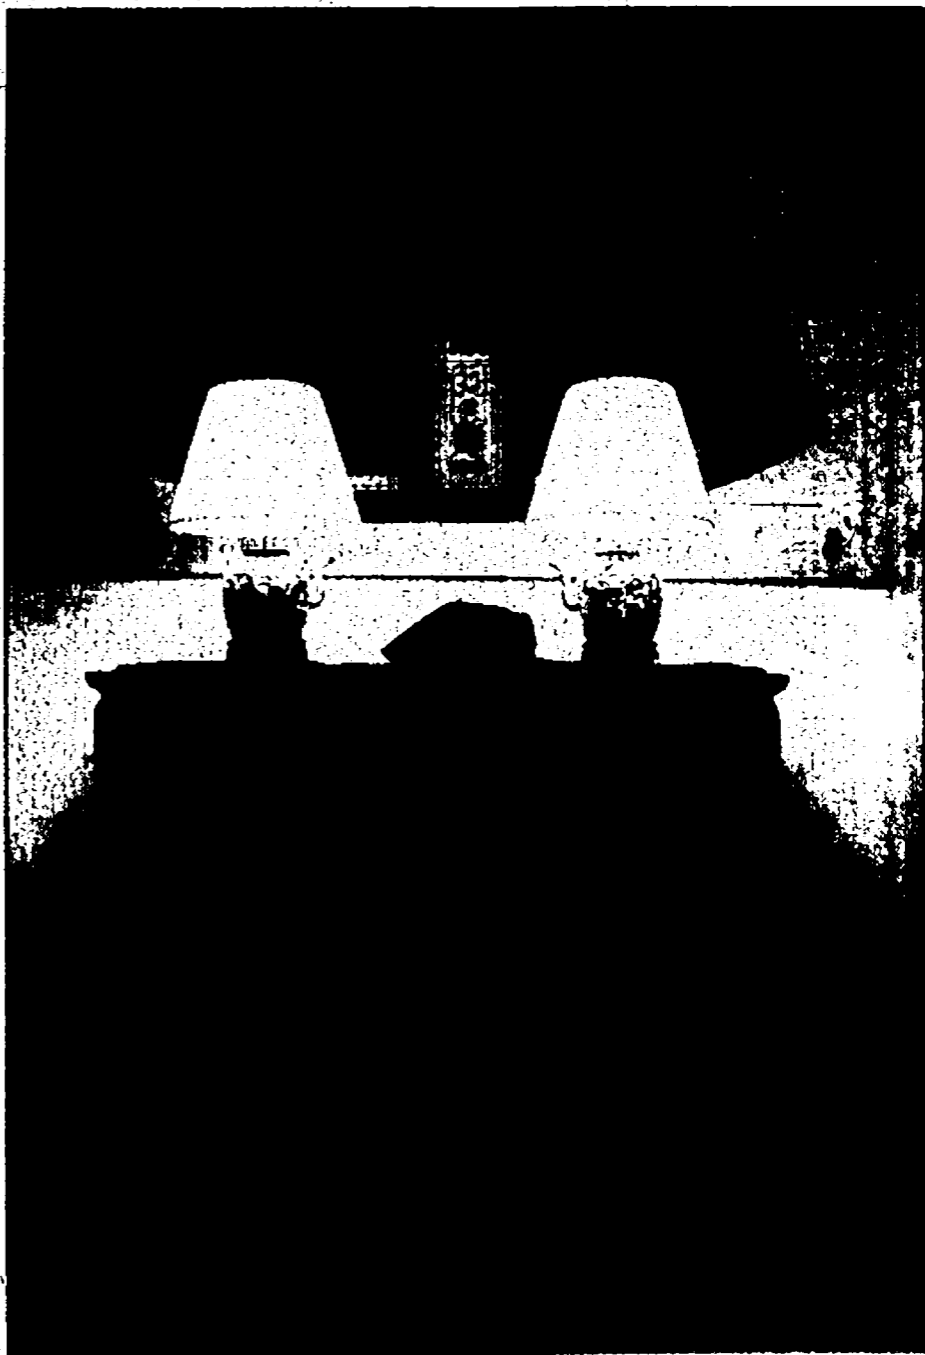

The exchange rate, unfavorable to the U.S. dollar, has helped to raise prices for Japanese and Korean antiques bought overseas.

Prosperity has changed the way Koreans and Japanese view their antiques. After centuries of watching invading nations cart off the best of their past, the Koreans are buying back their country's antiques. The Japanese have done this for years, according to Briskin.

Most Chinese pieces in the U.S. market have been out of that country for many years. The only antiques trickling out of China are generally of inferior quality. Dealers who do buy from the mainland must buy a large container of goods without really knowing their quality.

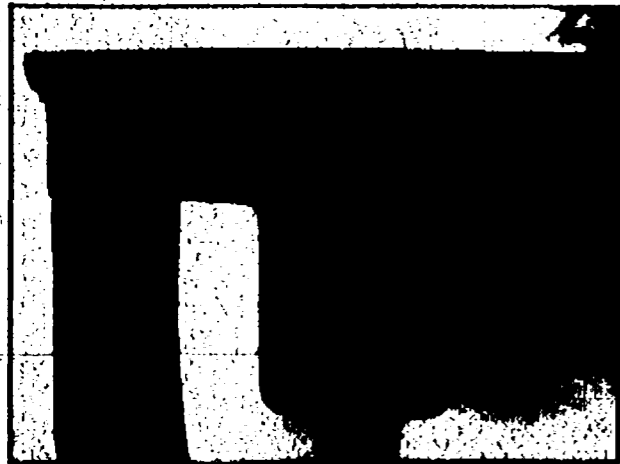

Meanwhile, a book published within the last few years in China has spurred an interest in making antique reproductions. The book detailing the dimensions of classic Ming furniture is a veritable primer on producing the pieces. Perhaps a reproduction market will open up, Briskin said.

THAT MIGHT enlarge the market

GUY WARREN/staff photographer

Furniture such as this 19th century table will be among the items Briskin Antiques will have on hand during the Junior Group 1989 Goodwill Antiques Show set for Nov. 18-19.

Detailed yet uncluttered carvings such as these show the craftsmanship of 19th century Oriental furniture made of hardwoods, usually rosewood.

for the real thing. The antiques market represents a small portion of the household goods buying public and Briskin appeals to a small subset within that group. To widen her share of the audience, she said that many of the pieces in her shop have such simple lines they blend well with other popular styles, such as early American or country.

Liquid latex offers fun dimension to sculpting

I LOVE clay. You can hit it, cut it, gouge it, pinch it, smack it and even texture it. With clay you can position it, reposition it and even re-reposition it. It has no structure and easily takes on whatever shapes you require.

I was just telling some of my sculpture students that perhaps sculpture is a little more frustrating than drawing. When they asked why, I said, "Because a three-dimensional mistake is one dimension worse than a two-dimensional mistake." So go easy on yourself, start simple and by all means have fun. But what do you do when you're done sculpting? And what if more than one person wants a copy?

The liquid latex rubber technique is fast, easy and the only way to produce many copies or castings from one original. The original can be soft clay, baked ceramic, wood, metal or just about anything you want to copy.

Another good feature about liquid rubber is that it will not harm your original piece. For a mold of a simple piece imagine a detailed clay sculpture of a dog's head and neck.

DON'T WORRY ABOUT the rubber's ability to cast details as it will clearly cast even a thumbprint left on the clay. First of all, with a throwaway brush, lightly apply a thin coating of rubber forcefully allowing out any air bubbles.

The first coat will dry in about 20 minutes. Then apply the second coat a little thicker allowing an hour or two drying time. Continue until rubber is about 1/4-inch thick.

Best of all, you can repeat this casting over and over, creating dozens of perfect copies of one original from only one rubber mold.

Now before you pull the mold from off the original, mix up some moulding plaster and make a two- or three-piece mold around the rubber mold. Without this support mold, the rubber mold will balloon out when you pour casting plaster into it.

The support mold only takes about an hour to make and is well worth the effort. On a simple shape, as our example, can merely stick the empty rubber mold in sand for support if the support mold step seems to involve.

Now with your support mold finished, separate the halves and peel the rubber from off the original.

LET THE MOLD TURN inside out as you pull it from off of the original (kind of like pulling off a sock). Next return the rubber mold so that it is a perfect negative of the original. Place the support mold around it and turn it upside down, so that the base of the mold is facing up.

artifacts

Now mix your hydrostone to a heavy cream consistency and slowly pour the mixture into the negative space of the rubber mold. Hit, shake or vibrate the mold to loosen any air bubbles that might form against the rubber mold surface. Hydrostone will not stick to the rubber mold and in only 18 minutes, it is almost at a ceramic hardness.

Here's the fun part: When the hydrostone is hard, separate the support mold and peel the rubber from off of the now perfect copy of the original. Best of all, you can repeat this casting over and over, creating dozens of perfect copies of one original from only one rubber mold.

You'll love making molds with liquid rubber. You may even catch yourself walking around the house looking for things to duplicate three dimensionally.

Dramatic effect with sparse furnishings

Q. We are normally a two-income family, but I unexpectedly lost my job just as we moved into a new and much larger house than we had before. In time we expect to get our financial affairs in order, but for now we have to make do with our old furnishings. The problem is there isn't enough furniture to go around and the rooms look so empty. Do you have any suggestions to help us in this situation?

A. You and your husband can create an elegant and dramatic effect even with sparse furnishings if you approach the situation with bravado. Think of your walls and ceilings — even the floor — as if they were giant canvases. Also think of defining space with color, not filling it.

After selecting at least two favorite colors in the warm and cool families, further separate each color into dark, bright and pale tone variations.

For example, if you had selected apricot and blue-green as your favorite colors, you would now have an additional dark cinnamon, a dark teal, a pale apricot and a pale blue-green for your palette.

Then, taking size and lighting conditions into consideration, use these colors in various combinations for the walls and ceilings.

Don't hesitate to color one wall in a bright or a dark color, while painting all the others light. Create a dado, or paneling effect, by painting the lower third of your dining room also in a deep shade, and the upper part in a medium of light.

Use contrasting color for the trim throughout the house, and look into the possibility of stippling, or texturing the walls with two tones of each of the colors.

Once you have painted the rooms to your satisfaction, group your furniture in functional arrangements. Don't try to spread out pieces of furniture through the house.

Take advantage of current trends by draping fabric over hardware poles at the windows, and covering some of your upholstered pieces in solid or patterned sheets to coordinate with the walls.

For the rooms and spaces left empty, focus a light fixture on the wall to dramatize the color, or position one decorative plant with the light so that its shadow is cast on the wall.

What is now your dilemma will turn out for the best in the long run, because it will give you the opportunity to experiment with color in ways you might not have otherwise done.

Q. We all hear of the man in his mid-life crisis driving a bright red car in order to give the distinct impression of dominance and virility. But I'm a retired grade school teacher who has suddenly been attracted to bright red in a new car I'm about to buy. It's so unlike me. I've had conservative taste in color all of my life. Can you explain this attraction?

A. Two elements are probably coming together in your life right now. First, your sudden attraction to bright red could very well be a belated rebellion against the conventions you have adhered to for so many years. It is a small signal for the larger urge for fulfilling greater potential and a need for expression.

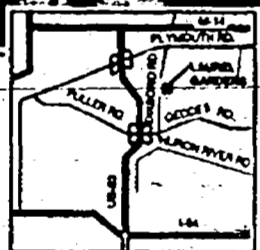

But don't discount the seductive power of advertising as well. It has raised the image of the bright red car, especially in a racy model, up to a level of a cultural icon, conveying power and strength. It's hard to ignore, particularly if that side of you has been neglected.

Traditional downtowns, with little parking, suffered as the popularity of the automobile grew. But some see a backlash against cookie-cutter malls, which bodes well for downtowns such as Plymouth.

Development:

Looking back to the future to determine a course of action

By R.J. King
special writer

As more subdivisions, strip malls and miles of highways spring up around us, it's not difficult to predict what our suburbs will look like in the year 2000.

But if suburban sprawl continues to a point where every available inch is developed, it would signal defeat, say area architects, planners and scholars. Every suburb would look the same, traffic would be horrendous, quality of life would diminish and developers would start looking elsewhere.

Still, that appears to be where we're headed. While many suburbs went through a period of rapid growth following World War II, fueled in large part by the enormous impact of the automobile, many of the characteristics that drew people to suburbia — privacy, open space and mobility — are disappearing.

"Let's face it, nobody paid any attention to what was going up in the suburbs," said Roger Marz, a professor of political science at Oakland University and a former manager with the Oakland County Planning Division. "And if something's not done to cope with the problem, urban sprawl will continue unabated and sadly, the population won't be dense enough to warrant rapid transit."

"Traffic will continue to get worse," Marz continued. "And if you think we have problems now, wait five years and we'll be in the same boat as Washington, D.C., where there are no rush hours, but rush days, and things are tied up until 9 p.m."

'Those same tenants who pooh-poohed downtowns because there wasn't the traffic of malls are now taking a chance on Main Street again.'

— Sheldon Pont

suburbs has also taken its toll on a community's sense of character and place. Yet for the future, nothing could be more of a mistake than to allow new and existing suburbs to look the same, said Ron Rea, vice president of Peterhansra, an architectural firm in downtown Birmingham.

"The development market is not real creative today when it comes to looking at things differently," Rea said. "The new buildings, especially strip malls, are void of any endearing detail or design, which is really a mistake."

"There hasn't been a traditional downtown built in Oakland County since World War II," said Ed Hustoles, executive director of planning for the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) in Detroit.

"Part of the reason is such downtowns as Detroit, Birmingham, Rochester and Plymouth were never created with the automobile in mind. It used to be you'd go downtown to shop and have to circle round and round or park some distance away."

"Then came the malls like Northland which offered parking, a close cluster of stores available under one roof and you didn't have to worry about the kids running out in the street. But now we've had a reaction to that. The regional malls are too crowded, parking is getting worse and you kinda hate to go there."

The next generation of development in the western and northern suburbs, Hustoles said, would involve a step forward and a step back. The future may include a proposed $300 million megamall in Auburn Hills, which will offer shoppers a series of small, street-lined courts devoted to retail shops, entertainment and even a hotel, allowing visitors to stay overnight.

But the mammoth 2.3 million-square-foot project — Auburn Mills, planned for I-75 and Baldwin Road — has run into bitter opposition from such communities as Southfield, Rochester Hills and Lake Angelus. Officials have charged the megamall will isolate jobs and money in one region, instead of spreading it more evenly across the suburbs.

The developer for Auburn Mills, Western Development, said the mall would create 2,000 temporary construction jobs and 5,000 permanent jobs. But the company is based in Washington, D.C., meaning the development's profits will travel out of state.

Office market stays healthy

By Gerald Frawley
staff writer

Despite continued office construction and fears that developers will overbuild, metropolitan Detroit's major office market continues to thrive.

Concern that construction would eventually dwarf demand, resulting in high vacancy rates, has yet to materialize, according to a third quarter report on major office markets compiled by Cushman & Wakefield of Michigan.

Overall, vacancy rates in the southeast Michigan suburbs fell 1 percent from the same period last year, according to Lewis "Bud" Kasselman, vice president of Cushman & Wakefield, Southfield.

Suburban vacancy rates range from 6.4 percent in Dearborn to 45.6 percent in Novi. The average vacancy rate for major suburban office markets is 19.3 percent. (See accompanying chart.)

A suburban vacancy rate of 20 percent is generally considered to be the national average, Kasselman said.

During the third quarter of 1989, the Birmingham/Bloomfield Hills area, Livonia and Southfield all showed increased office leasing, according to the report.

SOFT MARKET fears are unfounded because office construction has been so strong in recent years, Kasselman said.

Novi and Auburn Hills, which has a vacancy rate of 32.7 percent, could probably be called soft — they are examples of communities where office space has clearly outstripped demand — but a 20.4-percent vacancy rate in Southfield or 20.7-percent vacancy rate in Troy is less alarming, Kasselman said.

Most major office markets continue to show substantial growth, according to Cushman and Wakefield's report.

For example, Southfield has almost 500,000 square feet of office space currently under construction. More than 209,000 square feet of space is under construction in the Birmingham/Bloomfield area — one of the hottest office markets, according to the report.

DESPITE HIGHER vacancy rates than in previous years in Troy, developers are building an additional 120,000 square feet, the report said. Farmington Hills, with 120,000 square feet under construction, also has a growing office market.

Even Novi, with the highest vacancy rate of all the major markets, has almost 102,000 square feet of office space under construction.

In West Bloomfield, developers are building 33,000 square feet. No office construction was in Livonia and Auburn Hills as of Oct. 1. Since then Livonia has seen ground broken on an office building in its Victor Corporate Park.

Both Southfield, which has nearly 15 million square feet of available office space, and Troy, which has more than 11 million square feet, still have substantial markets, Kasselman said.

"(Leasing activity) may be slower than in previous years, but that is an indication of how strong those years were — not an indication of a weak market."

BUT OFFICE building is falling off, Kasselman said. During the first quarter of 1989, approximately 6.3 million square feet of office space was under construction. By the start of the third quarter, that number had fallen to slightly more than 3 million square feet.

Some of this decline can be attributed to the perception that there is a softening market, Kasselman said.

"Some people are publishing stories that the market is soft and the developers and investors get nervous."

Composting reduces material sent to landfills

(AP) — Just about every homeowner is faced with leaf disposal in the fall. One alternative for dealing with fallen leaves is backyard composting.

By keeping the leaves on your property, you also reduce the amount of material sent to rapidly filling disposal facilities around the state.

Composting, the microbial decomposition of organic matter, is not a new idea or process. If it were not for composting, the planet would be knee-deep in dead organic matter.

Backyard leaf composting is a semi-controlled system in which you manage the moisture and air to complete the decomposition. Compost — the end product — is a dark, friable, partially decomposed substance similar to organic matter found in the soil.

LEAVES CAN be composted by piling them in heaps near the garden or similar spot that is out of sight. For the most efficient use of space, however, it is better to contain the leaves in a bin or other enclosure that is loose enough to allow some air circulation. One side should be open, or easily opened, to turn the pile and remove the finished product.

Woven wire or wooden fencing or concrete blocks on their sides can be used to contain the material. Since wood decomposes and wire rusts, these items will need to be replaced from time to time. Treat wooden posts with a preservative for longer life or use metal posts.

THE LEAF PILE or bin should be at least four feet in diameter and three feet high. If it is too small, it is difficult to maintain adequate temperatures for rapid decomposition. A maximum size is 10 feet in diameter and five feet high.

If your pile is too large, the interior will not obtain the oxygen it needs for adequate, odor-free decomposition. If you have large quantities of leaves and similar organic matter that can be composted, consider a rectangular bin four-five-feet wide, five feet high and long enough to handle all the fallen leaves and material on hand.

MOST COMPOSTING instructions suggest layering the material as the pile is built. This is not necessary if you are adding only leaves; you can add them as they are raked. If you add grass clippings, you might want to mix them with the leaves to prevent compacting the clippings.

Moisture is an important part of successful composting. Unless leaves are collected in a very wet condition, you should add water while placing them in the pile. Without moisture, the microorganisms will not function.

Molsten the leaves to the point where it is possible to squeeze droplets of water from a hand-held mass of leaves. A note of caution: Don't add this much water to a compost pile constructed mostly of clippings and other organic waste.

DEAD LEAVES will lack enough nitrogen for rapid decomposition. Nitrogen is the "food" microorganisms use as they convert the leaves into humus. Five ounces (about a half cup) of 10-percent nitrogen fertilizer mixed into each 20-gallon can of hand-compacted leaves will speed the process and produce a compost with a higher nutrient content. If you are in no hurry to use the compost, allow Mother Nature to carry on.

It is generally not necessary to add limestone to leaf compost piles because they seldom become too acidic. If fertilizer had been added, an equivalent amount of limestone will counteract the acidity produced by the nitrogen. Little or no limestone should be added if you plan to use the compost on acid-tolerant plants such as rhododendron.

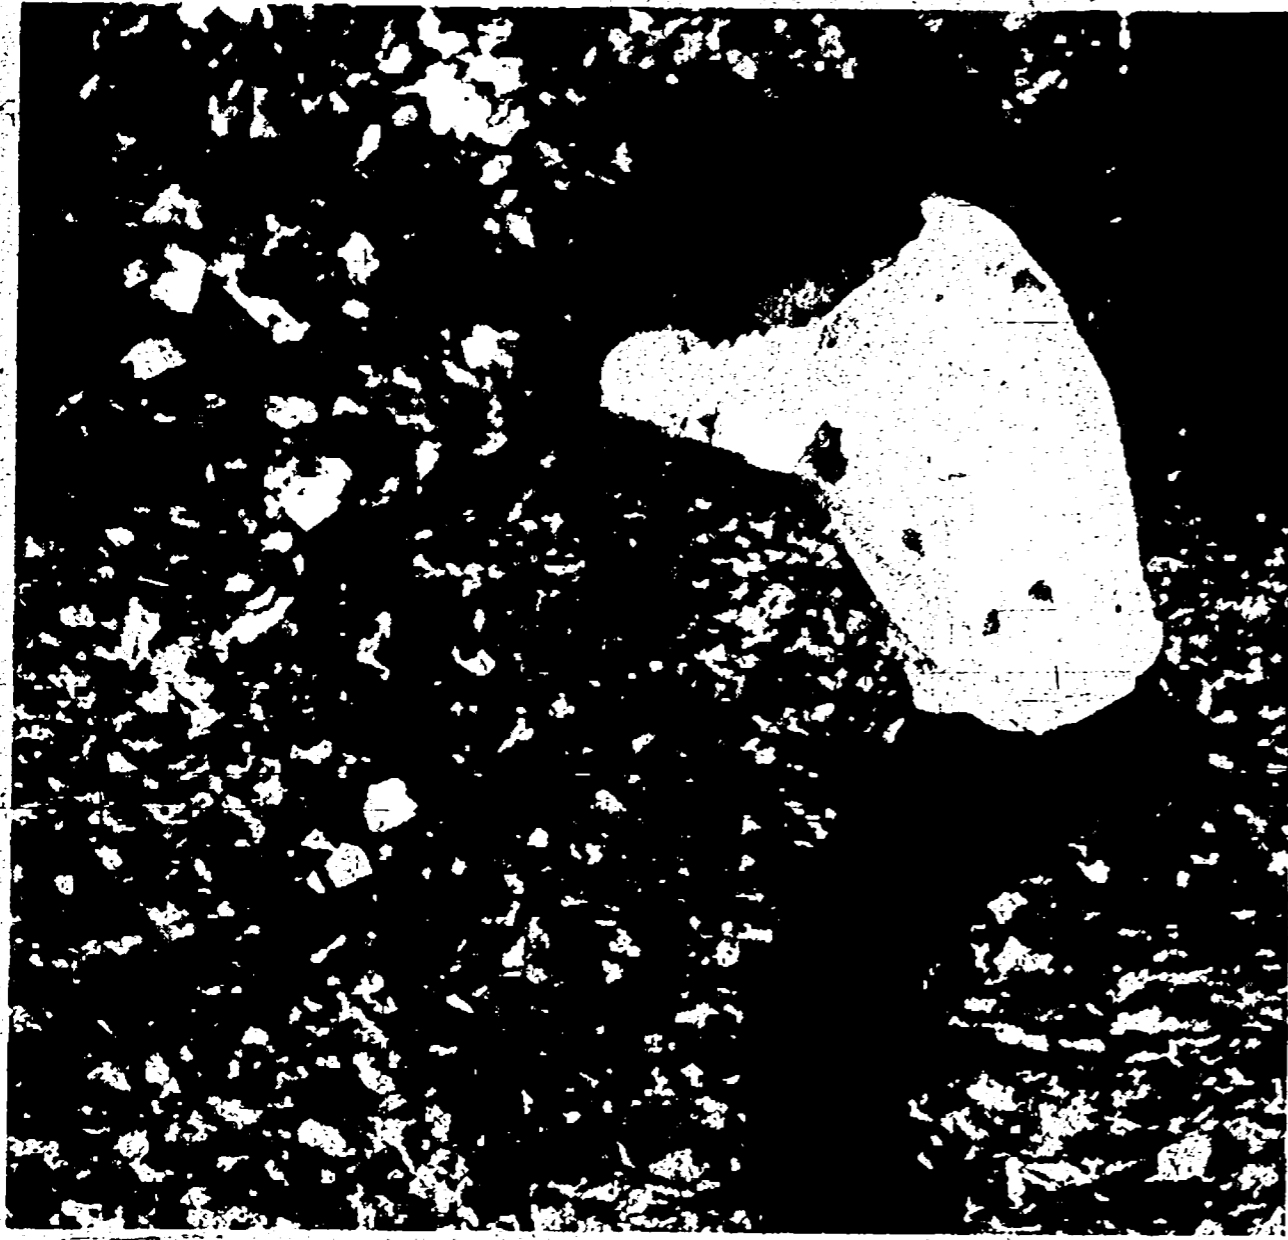

IT IS generally not necessary to add soil to the leaves because there are enough microorganisms on the leaves to enhance decomposition. Some soil will be raked into the leaves as they are collected, and a few pulled weeds can be tossed in as you build the pile. Commercial ac-tivators or starters definitely are not needed to have a successful composting operation.

Avoid packing the leaves too tightly. Too much compaction will limit air movement through the pile and hamper decomposition. If you shred the leaves, they will break more quickly.

THE PILE must be kept moist but not soggy for best decomposition. Low moisture levels reduce microbial activity, while excess water may cause anaerobic conditions and unwanted odors. A thin layer of dry leaves is unavoidable.

For the most efficient operation periodically mix the pile. The main objectives of turning are to shift leaves from the outer edges of the pile closer to the center for better decomposition and to incorporate oxygen.

After your garden helpers have their fun with leaf fights, get them to help you build a compost pile.

'Come the gridlock, comes the revolution'

By Nora Richter-Greer
special writer

Visit one suburb and you've probably seen them all, critics will tell you. Life revolves around subdivisions, strip shopping centers and miles of endless highways. The scenario repeats itself over and over like a broken record.

But if a group of architects has its way, these wastelands would be transformed into suburban havens, each with its own character. All development would revolve around one major point: the village center.

Generally, a suburb is born when high-density development is situated at a highway interchange, built around the foundations of an old town or located near a regional airport.

Suburban life is ruled by the automobile. Pedestrian traffic and public transit are virtually nonexistent. Terrible traffic congestion is the norm, as many suburbs adopt growth restrictions to ease the snarl-ups.

Recently two formulas to improve suburbs have emerged — the traditional neighborhood development and the pedestrian pocket. The first is the brainchild of architects Andres Duany and Elizabeth Plater-Zyberk of Coconut Grove, Fla.

"It all comes down to the fact that if suburbs were built in concentrated towns instead of sprawl, we wouldn't have growth problems," Plater-Zyberk said.

The real issue, she added, is directing where the growth occurs.

THE ARCHITECTS' solution consists of creating traditional neighborhoods where different types of people live in close proximity, workplaces are nearby, and major streets lead to the center of town. To remold suburbs under the TND method, teams of architects, planners, developers and engineers actually go to the site and prescribe what kind of buildings should go where.

The pedestrian pocket approach puts much more emphasis on the involvement of local government in reshaping of suburbs. Developed on the West Coast by architects Peter Calthorpe, Daniel Solomon and Doug Kelbaugh, this method calls for local government to choose the site and size of the town or pocket, using a light-rail system to link one to another.

A pedestrian pocket is a town for walkers. Its boundaries are set at a quarter-mile radius with a maximum 10-minute walk from the central transit system to any part of the town. Retail residential and office developments exist side by side. The goal, according to Calthorpe, is not to "urbanize the suburbs, but to salvage those characteristics of suburbia that draw people there in the first place: privacy, open space and mobility."

Some may think these notions are far-fetched, but village center advocates believe their ideas will become increasingly desirable as suburban congestion reaches crisis proportions. As one observer put it, "Come the gridlock, comes the revolution."

Downtowns on a comeback?

suburbs developing traditional downtowns may be a new trend in development. In Novi, the city administration is looking at plans to offer a mixed-use project of commercial, residential and office space at the intersection of Novi Road and Grand River.

"Right now we're looking at various types of downtowns in an attempt to concentrate development in one area, instead of across the city's landscape," said Jim Wahl, Novi's planning and community development director. "Our goal is to cut down on traffic and enhance the quality of life here by being proactive."

Wahl said the project would be built by private developers, with the city establishing a framework as far as types of architecture, amenities and design.

"I don't think you can change Novi Road or Grand River into Main Street," he said. "But we can establish one or reroute traffic."

Meanwhile, existing suburban downtowns are finding retailers who once abandoned central business districts for malls are now returning. Faced with higher rents, additional labor and maintenance fees, former mall retailers are rediscovering downtown districts.

"Those same tenants who pooh-poohed downtowns because there wasn't the traffic of malls are now taking a chance on Main Street again," said Sheldon Pont, president of Bieri, Pont & Rassler Associates, a retail consulting firm in Farmington Hills. "And the downtowns have a leg up on malls because they have authenticity."

"DOWNTOWNS HAVE charm built right into the brick and mortar, where if you take a walk through a mall, you find merchants are trying to create the downtown feel with elaborate facades. That's tough to do when you're starting in a cornfield."

But will revitalization of suburban downtowns continue?

"In this day and age, the consumer is far more discriminating," said Leonard Siegal of Siegal/Tuomaala Associates, an architectural and planning firm in Farmington Hills. "People are very sensitive to improving the environment, whether it be wetlands or historic buildings, and I think the preservation and revitalization of downtowns will continue so long as the economy is healthy."

To protect the suburbs against the downfalls of too much sprawl, namely congested traffic, indistinct design, diminished quality of life and loss of development, growth must be controlled at some point. The best tools, say city officials, come from zoning laws and effective land-use planning, but there are pitfalls.

"The direction a community takes really depends on what the residents want," said Kim Yamasaki, CEO of Minoru Yamasaki & Associates, an architectural firm in Troy. "Today individual communities have a great deal of autonomy and here in Troy, there isn't much chance for a true downtown because the city has decided to create strong neighborhoods with diversified retail and office development."

Much of Troy's office development has been localized, along the Golden Corridor, just north and south of Big Beaver Road. But in looking at future development in Oakland County as a whole, Marz said a pattern has emerged where communities that try to control growth find themselves passed over.

"Where people make a buck is where shopping centers will be located," he said. "You can't really control growth in Oakland County and then displace it somewhere else."

Lifestyle determines decor

By Marie Doty
special writer

The home magazines make it look so easy. A new sofa here, some charming curtains there, and voilà — that cold-looking empty house you just bought is transformed into something comfortable but stylish.

So how does it happen that the pink-and-white sofa, so delightful in Nifty Homes and so adorable in the store, looks like an overstuffed pink elephant when you bring it home?

And, by now, there is the ominous feeling that perhaps — with three kids under 5, two cats and a St. Bernard who thinks he's a lap dog — pink-and-white chintz was not the best choice of fabric.

But who wants to live with industrial-strength brown tweed until the kids grow up and the dog is too old to sneak up on the sofa?

This is why most home furnishing stores offer decorating services: to steer customers on a happier course — to help them choose something they'll love as much in their homes as they did in the store.

Mistakes can be too costly to change but too painful to live with.

"Many people only buy two or three living rooms in their lifetime," said Bob Hubbard, a furniture store owner. "It's one of the largest, most important purchases they will make."

"Many feel that the way they decorate their home is one of the ways they're judged by their peers, so it's very traumatic for many people. Yet, because they buy furniture so seldom, it's difficult for the average person to become experienced."

"So we put them in contact with people who do it every day."

ALL DECORATORS say they begin by asking questions.

"It's important that we get some idea of taste, color scheme, the way they're going to use the room and — of course, their price range," said Dolores Youngblood.

Among the questions asked are: how many children and whether there are pets.

This gives the decorator an indication of the fabric needed, Youngblood said. "The furniture in some family rooms gets very little use. In other family rooms, it's used like a trampoline."

"When I walk into a room (to be decorated), I say, 'Tell me what you want to keep,'" said decorator Mary Ellen Grieve, who works for Hubbard.

Both Youngblood and Mimi Katz echo Grieve's words. "It's important to find out what they have already that they want to keep," said Katz, a decorator and furniture store owner.

Sometimes the clients will want to save only a family heirloom, such as a clock, an old rocking chair or a bureau.

"If it's something sentimental, a client should keep it. You never want to get rid of sentimental things. You just find things to go with it," said Gene Cross, a furniture store owner and interior decorator.

"Other clients may be seeking just one piece to fit in with the rest of the room."

It is this — fitting in a single upholstered piece — that provides the greatest challenge to any decorator. Sometimes just one new piece can make a positive change in a room tying together other elements that didn't quite make it before. But obviously, finding the piece that will do this can be difficult.

Another factor the decorators keep in mind is comfort.

"A family room with a TV — no matter how beautiful it may be — is not working if it doesn't have comfortable chairs in which to watch TV," Grieve said.

"And a client's lifestyle is important. A couple may fall in love with a very formal room here in the store. But if their lifestyle is very relaxed and casual and this is a room in which they'll spend a lot of time, they will not find the formal furniture comfortable for the long run."

Many people now have worked out a compromise. Great-grandmother's parlor is back.

"Two-career couples often have a living room as a showplace," Cross said. "They live in the family room, but they decorate their living room more for looks, for style. They often stop in the hall and look at the living room on their way to the family room."

"Once people put cheap furniture in the family room. Now this is the room they use — even for much of their entertainment — so they're much more concerned about what goes in the family room."

Family room sofas and chairs, as much as possible, should fit the size of the people who buy them. For someone who is very short, a sofa should not be too deep," Katz said. "If customers are tall, we must be conscious of that."

"Sometimes we have a couple with one person tall and the other very short, and that's another problem. We have to find something that's a compromise, something which both can live with."

DECORATING DILEMMAS

Finding a good interior designer:

■ Rely on personal recommendations.

■ Visit a decorator's showroom where you can see the work of a number of professionals.

■ Once you have several names, schedule appointments to see the work of each designer and to discuss your requirements and budget.

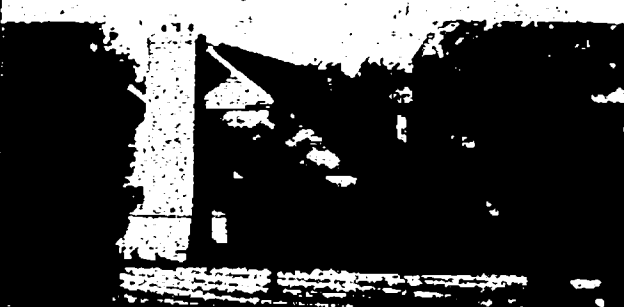

Katz advises her clients to look through magazines and catalogs for a better feel of their preferences before beginning to work with her.

"You can't tell what they want their home to look like by the way they dress. I've had women who dress flamboyantly who still prefer very traditional homes."

Mistakes can be too costly to change but too painful to live with.

Polystyrene walls 'suck up cold'

(AP) — Knock on the wall of a building constructed with Don Grieb's macrotherm system and you'll hear a hollow sound that will make you think the residents are easy prey for a big bad wolf.

When you learn that the house is made from polystyrene, a material similar to that used in plastic foam coffee cups, you'll think the inhabitants are silly little pigs indeed.

But don't be fooled. Although the house is built with lightweight, energy-efficient materials, it is strong enough to withstand forces far more powerful than the huff and puff of a wolf.

Despite its hollow sound, "you can run a bulldozer into it and it won't break," Grieb said.

Mary Ullrich and Mark Nissen, who own the first polystyrene house Grieb built, know that from experience. An elderly neighbor ran her car into their suburban Glendale house one morning while they were having breakfast.

"She hit it darn good," Nissen said. "We thought she had ended up in one of the bedrooms."

BUT DESPITE the noise, the only damage to the house was a black mark from the woman's bumper, Nissen said, adding "that says something for the structure of the house."

Grieb, a Milwaukee architect, has much more to say about the structure of the house and about the two other houses he's built using his patented system.

"It's a wonder-like material," he said. "I'm frustrated to say that I can't use it in all instances that it can be used."

In addition to the Glendale house, Grieb has also used the macrotherm system to build houses in Marco Island, Fla., and Scottsdale Ariz., and a church in Milwaukee. He also has plans for a fourth house in West Bend, Wis.

The Glendale house — a three-bedroom ranch — is far different from the showplace house built in Florida. The Florida house is a three-story, four-bedroom house featuring spiral columns, a fiberglass circular stairway and a screened 5,000-square-foot spa area that looks out onto Caxambas Bay.

THE ARIZONA house was designed by another architect to be built with traditional building materials, but the owner heard about the house in Florida and decided to use the macrotherm system, Grieb said.

Grieb has a patent on his system, and contractors must be trained by representatives of his company to use it. But building with lightweight expanded polystyrene blocks is easier than building with "sticks and stones," he said.

The system is so easy to use, he said, three people can build a house in three to five days. More women would also be able to use the system, he said.

"Why shouldn't we let women be construction people as well? This would lighten the labor."

Not only is labor lighter with Grieb's technique, the material insulates better than regular building materials, thereby making houses made from polystyrene more energy efficient, he said. Traditional houses are extremely inefficient.

"Our houses are just like sponges sucking up water — only they're walls sucking up cold."

The energy efficiency was a factor that prompted Nissen and Ullrich to buy their house. When the house was tested by students from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, the heating bill for an entire year was $149.

"We did think there was some risk involved in buying it," Nissen says, "but we liked the economy involved."

Nissen and Ullrich say the highest monthly heating bill they've had was $55. In their previous house, their heating bills often ran as high as $180 per month during the winter.

As energy requirements for new houses become more and more strict, builders may explore materials — such as expanded polystyrene — that provide more insulation than traditional materials. By using traditional materials, Grieb says, builders are forced to reduce the number and size of windows in new houses in order to meet energy requirements.

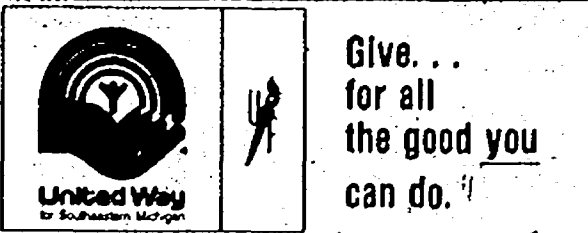

"Soon, you'll have to have nothing but walls and peepholes for windows."

Despite the savings homeowners can expect with one of Grieb's houses, the price of building one is about $38 per square foot — a cost that's comparable to most traditional houses, Grieb said.

"Our conventional builders are building with two-by-fours, bricks and lumber. It's foolishness to build in that manner when you have materials that can withstand 190 mile-per-hour winds and yet are so much easier to build with."

Mass producing houses with his system could bring the cost down to $30 per square foot, he said. Such well-insulated and durable housing could protect against weather extremes including hurricanes, he said.

"I'd like more than anything to build low-cost housing for other countries."

Stagger counter heights

(AP) — The kitchen used to be Mom's domain, but now each member of the family is likely to take a turn at cooking and cleaning up.

A recent survey by Maytag Co. found that almost 40 percent of today's teenagers cook at least once a week, and 25 percent of the preteens help in the kitchen daily. Slightly over 3 percent of American husbands cook on a daily basis, a significant number, said James W. Kregel, head of Maytag's Kitchen Idea Center.

Now that the family has discovered the kitchen, the kitchen needs to be adapted to accommodate the family. One of the best ways, said Kregel, is to install counters of varying heights. While the 36-inch-high counter is ideal for the average woman, 30 to 32 inches would better suit children and short women, and a 42-inch counter works best for tall people, Kregel said.

One way to meet the need for varied heights is to install a large, center island. The back portion might be raised to 42 inches, the front set at 36 inches and one end at 32 inches.

"We have found that this works in practice, looks interesting and the function is terrific. Another advantage is that the entire family can work together at the island, facing one another."

IF AN ISLAND isn't practical, vary the counter heights along the sink wall. Next to the sink, install several feet of counter space at 36 inches. Then step-up the counter to 42 inches and place the dishwasher beneath.

Install a pull-out table at 30 or 32 inches at the end of the counter. It can be pushed out of the way when not in use.

With the dishwasher higher than usual under the 42-inch counter, you'll have to bend less — a real boon to older family members. According to a University of Minnesota survey, 42 inches off the floor is an ideal height for a microwave oven, so put the microwave on this counter top.

Varied-height counters can serve other functions as well. For example, a 42-inch-high counter is ideal for serving buffet meals. The 30- or 32-inch is a good height for an average size adult to roll out dough or use for other baking preparations.

It pays to rearrange storage from time to time, Kregel said. Where there are young children, put everyday dishes and glassware on below-counter shelves so it is easier and safer for kids to set the table and empty the dishwasher. When the children are grown, return the dishes to the upper cabinets.

Just because major appliances are traditionally placed in the work triangle doesn't mean they have to be.

"One of my favorite ideas is to store dishes and have a dishwasher right near the dining table. You don't have to prewash with the newer dishwashers, so you can easily scrape the dishes at the table and then load them into the dishwasher.

"HAVING AN EXTRA sink near a second dishwasher would be ideal, if feasible. The second sink doesn't have to be big, and an excellent place for it is in the center work island."

By the same token, an under-counter refrigerator within reach of the table could save many steps. Kregel also advocates a small refrigerator in or near the family room and one in the master bedroom.

Meanwhile, Kregel would like to see the clothes washer and dryer moved into the kitchen.
