DEVELOPMENT EFFORTS are under way once again in the Michitech Industrial Park along the Westland-Canton Township boundary.

The Westland City Council this month re-approved preliminary platting for the city's portion of: the park, bounded by Ford,_ Cherry Hill, John Hix and Lotz. The re-approval was requiredsince the original platting was more than a year old.

City officials expect to begin filling the park once a north-south road is built. However, road construction has been slowed due to a portion of the park being declared a wetland by the Michigan Department of Natural

The city of Westland is preparing to toot its own horn starting today in a series of magazine ads aimed at attracting industrial developments. The ads will start today in Crain's Detroit Business and continue through March. Other ads will appear in Michigan Business magazine.

The city hopes the promotion campaign, which will cost $13,000, will generate new industrial developments and bring in more tax money and create jobs, said Scott Veldhuis, the city's economic development di-

Officers observed seven bullet holes in the wall.

Police confiscated five spent shells, 27 live rounds of ammunition and two guns, a 12-gauge shotgun and a rifle, from the home.

A WOMAN in the 30800 block of Mackenzie told police someone broke into her house early Wednesday and stole a purse from the kitchen table.

The purse contained $45 cash, a credit card, a checkbook and . personal identification, the woman told police.

The woman said she was awakened at 4:30 a.m. by the sound of dishes clanking in the kitchen.

When her husband went to investigate, he found a window over the kitchen sink open and the purse missing, the woman said.

THE OWNER of the Celebration party supply store told police a thief made off with $150 during a break-in late Tuesday or southeast Michigan, Veldhuis sald. There are some things that companies aren't aware that are going on in Westland." His comments were echoed by DeDeckere, who said that the city is a "desirable place to live." This is shown by the community's leading the seven-county region in two-farhily and multi-family housing permits in the past year. Westland was also first in Wayne County in the number of all residential unit permits issued last year.

Westland officials are doing some things that are in sharp contrast with other cities, DeDeckere said.

FOR EXAMPLE, she said, the city has a process for quick review and approval of developments. In one case she knows of, a developer in an eastern Wayne County suburb has been waiting six months for a decision from the city.

She also praised the large number of residential developments in Westland, while "some citles haven't picked up a shovel (for that type of work) in a long time."

Residential growth is an important factor for attracting new industrial companies, she said, because the companies know that their employees like to live in or near the citles they work.

Computer in check?

Eerie overtones for human race

HUMAN 2, COMPUTER 0.

That was the score Sunday when Gary Kasparov, the world human chess champion, took on Deep Thought, the world computer chess champion, in a two-game match.

Kasparov won easily enough, as was expected. But the fact that the match even took place has, to me, certain eerle overtones.

I keep hearing the voice of "HAL," the soft-spoken but inflexible computer in "2001: A Space Odyssey," Stanley Kubrick's big-screen version of Arthur C. Clarke's novel about men-pitted against machines of their own making.

Deep Thought lost this match. But last Thanksgiving, at a competition that mixed human players with computers, it (he?) defeated a grandmaster and tied for first place in the competition. It was the first time a computer had shared the top prize in a chess match.

Many chess experts, including Kasparov, doubt that a computer can ever play chess with the imagination of a human.

But Deep Thought's creators figure that with more power and more efficient chips (Deep Thought's brain, if you will), their silicon-headed competitor can perform even bet-ter at some point in the future,

Even Kasparov acknowledges that the next generation of computer competitors might have some surprises.

Some computer owners did report problems that day, but, so far as I know, no massive attacks occurred.

Several months earlier, however, a virus had caused considerable problems when it showed up in university and military computer systems across the country.

And the New York Post reported Monday that a sex game has been entered in the computer controlling that city's fleet of EMS ambulances.

Officials would neither confirm nor deny that the game was in the system, but some people worried that if the report were true, ambulance response time could be affected by dispatchers who might be involved in other activities.

The fact is that computers have become an integral part of our society. School and university officials worry that students will graduate without being "computer literate." That concern, while quite legitimate today, smacks of the "missile gap" that we heard so much about in the

Our nation's economy is going to change - perhaps radically - by the year 2000.

NEA chief blasts 'assembly line' schools

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Newly-elected NEA president Kelth Gelger admitted a room full of lawyers and school board members was an unusual place to find a union leader - especially one making his first official visit to his home state.

union said there should be no difference between faculty, administration and community goals.

"We all want the same thing," said Geiger, a former teacher in the Livonia district and past Michigan Education Association president.

New, decentralized decision-making is needed, Geiger said, if Amerifor the 1990s and beyond.

"OUR NATION long ago entered the information age - but many of our schools remain trapped in the industrial age, or, even worse, the agi ricultural age," Geiger sald Thurs-Council of School Attorneys.

Ford Motor Co. was chartered, the National Education Association chief said school districts need to change their "assembly line approach."

"The assembly line keeps churning students toward graduation," Geiger said. Teachers have little or no voice in curriculum and precious But, contract talks aside, the head. little say in educational materials. of the nation's largest teacher's Students, whether round, square, or triangular, are all forced into the same mold."

Site-based decision making, giving greater authority to principals and teachers, is the best solution to America's education, crisis Geiger

He's clear as to what that should . Parents, he added, must be included in school decisions.

"I taught high school in the 1960s," he said "And one of the worst things ca's schools are to prepare students to come out of that era was that teachers and parents drifted very far apart. We need to correct that."

Geiger received polite, if not overwhelming applause from his audience, apparently winning their re-

Later, in an interview, Gelger said Michigan was on the right track in attacking inequality in school spending via next week's ballot issues, though he stopped short of issuing a personal endorsement.

"I KNOW the MEA is endorsing A," he said. "Though, as a Virginia resident, I haven't spent too much time studying either."-

Schools of choice - currently a not issue in Michigan and other

Merely eliminating district boundaries is no solution, he said. "It's absolutely foolish to just throw open the doors as (Minnesota Gov. Rudy) Perpich has suggested," Geiger said. "What is needed are magnet schools. But I've never seen a magnet school that didn't cost more (than a standard school)."

Geiger will bring his beliefs to a presidential education advisory committee. He was recently appointed by President George Bush.

Schools aren't immune to prob lems in the family or in the local economy, he said, adding he will stress that point to government lead-

"The federal government must take on increased responsibility forgetting children to school at age 5, ready to learn," he said.

Real kids like to eat real cakes

Remember when you were a kid and whenever a cake was being prepared in the family kitchen, you would beg to lick the beaters and if (and only if) you ate all the peas and carrots on your plate at dinner, you might also get to finger-lick the bowl?

Even with the addition of box cake mix and with moisture-laden pud him and black ano-dized cake pans that ensure picture perfect cakes, there's something about the groma of a freshbaked cake

I can remeate Momma getting down on he said and knees while she sea the the back of the cupboard is the back of the cupboard is the back of the cupboard is the back of the call vividly be sound of the clanking beat way by inacve that way by inacve that alipped through Momma thro

On a way with the kids one couldn't help but notice the tome that has been on the New York Times best seller list for the last few months, Ruth Levy-Bernbaum's "Cake Bible." While the kids were busy searching out the Berenstein Bears and Dr. Seuss, I was literally parked at the cookbook section checking out the flood of collection periods

Anyone inter cates will certainly appreciate this addition to his or her cooking library. The book is filled with pre-tested works of wonder that will surely melt in your mouth. But watch out Mrs. Bernbaum, you're sure to be bumped from the top slot now the white Child's 10-pound

So what if you have to pound out a few humps with the back of a spatula after a previous life as a snare drum?

One of the neatest kitchen contraptions that every great cake baker should not be without is the "cake ring." The strip of clothcovered velcro absorbs water, and wrapped around a cake pan during the baking process emits a humidifying effect. Supposedly, this keeps cakes from mounding in the center during baking, making a camera-perfect layer that can't be beat for filling with EMEMBER fondue? Oh, did you sell your fondue set at the church rummage sale? Weep no more. I know just the place to get you a new one. And not just any fondue pot but the finest, top-grade stainless steel fondue pot avail-

Is fondue trendy again? One might think so after a visit to the Williams-Sononma kitchen shop in Troy's Somerset Mall_One of the first displays designed to catch the shopper's eye is stacked with white stoneware fondue plates, fondue forks, a Chantal fondue pot and other accessories.

Are they selling lots of fondue pots these days? Well that's difficult to say. But everyone on the Williams-Sonoma staff agrees, fondue pots are fast becoming a hot item for holiday gift giving.

For those of you who passionately monitor food trends, successful-kitchen shops such as Williams-Sonoma are great barometers for indicating what's hot and what's not. So, is fondue making a comeback? Will we soon be giving away our hot-air popcorn poppers this year? And which exotic coffee maker should you give to great-aunt Mary for the holidays? For the answers to all these questions and more, stick around.

WHEN HOME cooking became fashionable in the '70s and early '80s, suburban Detroit could boast of at least a dozen distinctive kitchen shops. As the trend waned, we were left with half as many. Kitchen Port in Ann Arbor, Pointe Peddlar, Grosse Pointe, and Sauces and Tosses in Bloomfield Township, to name a few, all survived the downturn.

Cafe Bon Homme is close to perfect

With the same kind of determined patience and planning that it takes to make a good sauce, chef Greg Goodman has developed the Cafe Bon Homme into one of the finest restaurants in this area.

It was all by design. A few years ago, Goodman recognized that the charming small town of Plymouth was missing an important ingredient - an elegant restaurant. He scouted out the "perfect" location, bought out a previous restaurant and opened his own French cafe.

Although he had lofty aspirations for his restaurant when it opened in 1986, he started out with moderately priced meals and slowly upgraded his menu to the point where you now can enjoy entrees served with demiglaces, sauces and soups that have been labored over for days.

Today, when you walk through the niman, you enter a restaurant where everything from the atmosphere to, you've crossed the Atlantic. the meal preparation and presentation is of the utmost quality. After just a slp of the cream of celery soup, we knew this was no ordinary member where you are. restaurant.

A FORMER OWNER of Mackinnon's in Northville and a former ex-Bon Homme, where the food is absoecutive chef at the Clarkston Cafe. Goodman loves both small towns and good food. His small cafe in Plymouth (which he named for himself) commands all his attention

While the meal preparation uses classic French techniques, Goodman prefers to describe his menu as European, reserving the opportunity to add dishes with Spanish, Portuguese, Belgian and other European influences. At his right hand is his talented sous chef, Greg Murphy.

The restaurant is decorated tastefully with the look and feel of a French cafe, flowered wallpaper here, a white-painted brick wall there, gracefully draped bay windows overlooking a sleepy little oneblack wrought-iron gates at 844 Pen-way street-with-little traffic. It's enough to lull you into thinking

If you happened to be served by the French-speaking waiter, you may have to pinch yourself to re-

No amount of atmosphere or ambience can make up for mediocre food. That isn't a concern at Cafe lutely exquisite. It's clear that the same kind of careful planning that went into establishing the restaurant is guiding the efforts in the kitchen.

THE LITTLE TOUCHES, like the golden raisins and walnuts on our house salad or the warm English stillton cheese placed on top of the grilled beef medallions, make the meal special.

The sauces and demi glaces make the entrees extraordinary. Indeed, Goodman said he has stock pots on the stove literally around the clock, being boiled and strained, boiled and strained. A'demi glace can take two to three days, he said.

The Tournedos au Buerre' Rouge, beef tenderloins, were very tender and very good - glazed with a demiglace and prepared with shallots, garlic and Burgundy wine.

This, as well as the other entrees served at our table, was picture perfect in presentation, with fingers of glazed carrots and pea pods adding color and interest to the plate.

Meals are served on lovely, oversized white china, simple yet ele-

The entree that drew the most praise at our table was Grilled Lamb Chops Francais, a dish in which lamb chops have been cut away from the bone. They were grilled and baked, garnished with chevre cheese and glazed with a natural lamb demiglace - and tasted absolutely won-

WE ALSO TRIED a special that consisted of veal medalliens and a grilled lamb chop served in a sundried tomato demi glace. It, too, was delicious, with the meat very tender and juicy.

Throughout our meal, the walt staff kept offering more French rolls. We could have made a meal of the delicious soup and the crusty bread alone....

A popular entree that we didn't try, regretfully, is "comparisons of game," in which Goodman prepares an entree featuring two to three items depending on what's available in the market — pheasant, quall, duck, boar or venison.

A GOOD introduction to this restaurant would be on Tuesday nights when the chef prepares special entrees tableside and answers questions from his guests. At $22.95 the meal includes everything from appetizer to dessert - to a short course in European cooking.

Although he admits it gets a little tricky fielding questions and cooking, Goodman said he loves interacting with his guests.

Even with its somewhat expensive and select menu, this restaurant remains friendly and comfortable, neither stuffy nor arrogant. It seats a little more than 80 people in three

And Kitchen Glamor with stores in Redford, Rochester and West Bloomfield is considered to be the grandfather of them all. This familyowned operation has always maintained a full line of quality cookware, cookbooks and kitchen accessories. Throughout the '70s, It brought the greats of the American kitchen, such as Julia Child, James. Beard and Richard Olney, to their demonstration kitchen. They shared with us their expertise in a way that has never been duplicated. Today, Kitchen Glamor is probably Willlams-Sonoma's strongest competitor in Michigan.

Founded in the wine country of California in 1956, Williams-Sonoma is now the largest retail distributor of kitchenware today.

The Somerset store was the 60th store, just a year ago when it opened. By now, the chain has grown to 75 stores. Although there have been rumors of other Williams-Sonoma shops opening in Michigan, the Somerset store is the only one in the Founder Chuck Williams has been involved with cooking and shopping for cooking equipment throughout Europe for much of his life. When he opened his first store in Sonoma, it was stocked with wares from Spain. Portugal, France, Denmark, Germany and Italy.

By the early '60s his reputation as a purveyor of fine European cookware was known to all the great American cooks. James Beard, Helen Evans-Brown and Julia Child would stop by his store every time they came to San Francisco. In 1973, the catalog business was started with the help of Ed Marcus of Neiman-Marcus. Within a few years, Williams was regarded as a master. in the kitchen-shop business.

FOR THOSE of us who were addicted to collecting gourmet kitchen gadgets then, the Williams-Sonoma catalog was an oasis filled with specialized kitchen items and gourmet foods unavailable in the Detroit

Gadgets such as fresh truffle slicers, French banneton bread molds and Italian balsamic vinegar could be discovered by reading the "Catalog for Cooks," long before these items could be found in the re-

In 1978, Williams sold the company to Howard Lester for $100,000. Although Williams is no longer the owner, he is very much involved with the day-to-day operations as di-rector and vice chairman-of the board.

What's the secret for such success? When I posed that question to David Smith, manager of the Somerset store, he replied, "The thing which the company stresses is that we give legendary customer service. We will do whatever is necessary to please the customer. Our customers expect quality. Everything we sell Chuck Williams approves. He still goes on buying trips all over the world, and that's what made it the store it is today."

So what's hot for the holidays? According to Smith, what Williams-Sonoma, Somerset, is expecting to be hot are espresso-makers, collee grinders, coffee beans and all the accessories to go with them. The traditional Christmas imported foods such as panettone (an egg bread with raisins, orange and citron from Milan), Italian panforte (a rich confection made with almonds, hazelnuts, candled fruit and spices) or Christmas plum pudding are consistently popular year after year.

Three years ago, Chuck Williams published, what else - the Williams -Sonoma Cookbook and Guide to Kitchenware (1986, Random House, New York). Many of the recipes that have been printed in the company's catalog over the years can be found

Spooky Stew is great for goblins

Halloween was my favorite day of the year when I was growing up except for Christmas day, of course. Even now as an adult, I look forward to it almost as much as my boys do.

I still take great delight in coming up with wonderful, creative ideas for their costumes, even though they are usually summarily rejected with cries of, "Oh, Mom, get real!" We muddle through and eventually compromise so that they are happy with their costumes and I'm not totally mortified by their appearance.

For me, Halloween is the turning point of the autumn season, signaled by the pungent smell of burning leaves and the sight of carved pumpkins on doorsteps. The changing color of the leaves against a deep blue October sky and a nip in the air make me look forward to being warm and cozy.

With the change in temperature comes the desire to have heartier meals that fill the house with fragrant aromas.

Thus, when I received a recipe for Hockey Stew, submitted by Tsch Hunter, shortly before she moved from Bloomfield-Township to Lake-Forest, Ill., I was most excited to try

Dish has apricot stuffing

The tenderloin is the leanest pork cut; start with it for this elegant stuffed entree. Each serving contains only 5 grams of fat out of the 67 that's the recommended maximum for most of us. Tenderloin costs more per pound than some cuts, but there's no waste and you can plan on 6 servings from a pound.

> PORK PINWHEELS WITH APRICOT STUFFING ::

one 1-pound pork tenderloin 1 teaspoon instant chicken bouillon granules

3/2 cup hot water

3 cup snipped dried apricots 2 tablespoons chopped onion 2 tablespoons chopped celery

1 tablespoon margarine or butter

1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon dash pepper ----

2 cups whole-wheat bread cubes 11/2 teaspoons cornstarch dash ground nutmeg 1 cup apricot nectar

Split tenderloin lengthwise, cutting to, but not through, opposite side; open out flat. Pound tenderloin lightly with meat mallet to a 10-by-6-inch rectangle.

For filling, dissolve bouillon granules in hot water, pour over apricots. Let stand 5 minutes. In a small skillet cook onion and celery in margarine until tender but not brown. Remove from heat; stir in cinnamon and pepper. In a large mixing bowl combine bread cubes, onion mixture and apricot mixture; toss lightly to moisten.

Spread filling evenly over tenderloin. Roll up jelly-roll style, starting from short side. Secure meat roll with wooden toothpicks or tie with string at 1-inch intervals beginning 14 inch from end. Cut meat roll into six 1-inch slices.

Place meat slices on rack of unheated broiler pan, cut side down. Broil 4 inches from heat 12 minutes. Turn, broil 11-13 minutes more or until done. Remove toothpicks or string; transfer meat to a serving platter. Meanwhile, for sauce, combine cornstarch and nutmeg. Stir in apricot nectar. Cook and stir until mixture is bubbly. Cook and stir 2 minutes more. Serve with meat slices. Makes 6 servings.

Arthritis Today

Joseph J. Weiss, M.D. Rheumatology 18829 Farmington Road Livonia Michigan 48152

Phone: 478-7860 CHANGING ARTHRITIS MEDICATIONS

If a medicine for arthritis isn't working, why not drop it and try another? That advise seems sensible, but your doctor may be reluctant to follow such a course. The reasons are two-fold.

First, arthritis medications have side effects, and you incur-a-risk with each change you make. Such unloward reactions include stomach ulcers, damage to liver cells, and possible loss of the kidney's ability to function. There is no guarantee that having used one anti-inflammatory medication with no ill effects, that you can start another with impunity. In addition, if you have other medical problems, you run the risk of possible interaction between your new arthritis medication and your other drugs.

Second, your conclusion that the present medication is ineffective may be incorrect. Cases abound where an Individual stops a medicine because of its supposed lack of effect, only to develop pain far beyond what was imagined

Arthritis can flare so that no change in medication suffices. Rather than starting a new regimen with its risks of failure and side effects, such times most often call for heat, rest, joint injections and reliance on current medication.

Spartans stun Churchill in district

Smolenski blocks Chargers; Stevenson's Scerri to resign-

By Brad Emons staff writer

Thanks to a spectacular effort from goalie Jerry Smolenski, defending Class A boys soccer champion Livonia Stevenson is still alive in the state tournament.

The Spartans defeated top-ranked and unbeaten city rival Livonia Churchill, 3-2, in a shootout to claim an unprecedented eighth straight district title Saturday at Northville.

But lost in all the euphoria of the thrilling come-from-behind victory was word that Stevenson's Pete Scerri, the state's all-time winningest coach (with four state crowns), will step down after the season ends.

Reportedly tired of confrontations and pressures put on him by parents, Scerri has informed Stevenson athletic director Roger-Frayer of his intentions, but has not formally submitted a letter of resignation.

"I thought this was my last game," Scerri said. "But I don't know, I guess in believe in miracles. I'm really: proud of these guys: They're all heart. I think this is going to put stars in our eyes."

"My God, didn't he (Smolenski) prove something out there today by saving those two?" said Scerri. "I best goalkeeper-around."

The loss may haunt Churchill, which bowed out with a 15-1-1 overall record, for quite some time.

BUT CHURCHILL COACH John Neff, who had no comment after the heartbreaking defeat, made a curious strategical move after the second goal.

He moved Erieson to the backline as a stopper. The Chargers suddenly went into a defensive shell. "We had to push up, we had to gamble with a man up, we needed a goal to get back in the game," Scerri said.

And led by the tireless play of setup man Brian Mitchell, the Spartans began to apply the pressure, scoring a pair of goals to the it at 2-2. The first came on a header by Shane Millner at 28:05; the other, on a Flynn penalty kick with 14:26 left in regulation play.

But, the momentum quickly swayed back to Churchill in the final minutes of regulation.

Millner, Stevenson's top scoring don't care what they say, he's the threat, was banished with a red-card with 2:17 to go, leaving the Spartans a man chort.

"You just have to have two men in front, not leave any gaps in the mid-field, and just play kickball," Scerri said. "To beat a team like that with only 10 men is really something."

"If they had scored (on Gentile's OT penalty kick) I don't think we could have come back and won," Smolenski added. "It's total confusion when you have people playing one short. You just have to keep talking and make sure somebody is always marked on a man." The two quick Churchill first-half goals, however, coming at 38:38 and 20:47, couldn't stand up. "We came out flat and I don't

John Glenn finishes off Zebras, 30-6

By Brad Emons staff writer

Wayne Memorial literally heard the sound of Tapps from the opening kickoff Friday.

Westland John Glenn's Shannon Layne handed the ball-to-teammate Mark Wetmore on a nifty reverse play, sprinting 53 yards before being caught by kicker Brent Tapp, who paid the price for his touchdown-sav-

Tapp, who also happens to be Wayne's starting quarterback, was lost for the night with a separated right shoulder and the Zebras were never the same in his absence, absorbing a 30-6 drubbing at the hands of the state-playoff bound Rockets.

Glenn intercepted Tapp's replacement, Todd Florn, five times. The Rockets, who finished the season at 8-1, converted two of those turnovers into early touchdowns.

"We've had that reverse play in for about six weeks," explained Glenn coach Chuck Gordon, whose team led 30-0 at the half. "We got out out on them fast, but that injury really hurt them. Wayne's a different team with Tapp in there."

GLENN WASTED little time in capitalizing on Wayne's misfortune. The Rockets took the opening pos- Wayne pass and returned it to the

At the 5:02 mark, fullback Alonzo Jackson busted through the Zebras' line and crashed into the end zone from 12 yards out. Wes Taylor added the extra point to make it 14-0.

On Wayne's next possession, nose guard Sam Weddington of Glenn gobbled up a deflected pass and raced in from 13 yards out for another Rockets' TD with 3:10 left in the period.

"We got field position and the breaks early," Gordon said, "and we were able to take advantage of them."

Leading 21-0 after one quarter, Glenn continued its assault, scoring with 7:44 left before intermission when Eric Stover hurled a 31-yard strike to Wetmore, who made a sprawling catch between two Wayne defenders.

"THE KIDS were reeling and kind of shocked when Tapp went down," said Wayne coach Chuck Howton. "Our level of intensity dropped. They got the ball a number of times inside our 20 and took advantage. Glenn is too good a team to let that happen to you."

The Rockets, who have excelled this season at running the "hurryup" offense, marched down 92 yards in less than four minutes, resulting in a 20-yard field goal by Taylor, who made up for missing an extra point and a 44-yard field goal attempt. "Eric (Stover) is very smart and we have a lot of confidence in him as our quarterback," Gordon said. "He can read coverages and he puts us in good position a lot of times because of the way he thinks out there." With a 30-0 Glenn halftime lead,

Gården City stalls Edsel in NSL race

By Brad Emons staff writer

The Garden City Cougars proved to be the 'Ready for Prime Time Players" Thursday They turned in a masterful performance in handing visiting Dearborn Edsel Ford its first Northwest Suburban League basketball loss of the year, 50-43: Junior point-guard Carolyn Shanks, who has been on a tear of late, poured in a game-high 20 points to pull the Cougars even with the Thunderbirds in the loss column for first place in the Garden City is now 10-7 overall and 5-1 in the league, while Edsel, which had a 14-game winning streak snapped, fell to 14-2 overall and 6-1 in the NSL. "It's always a war with Edsel Ford and I'm just tickled pink because this is a big win for us," said GC coach Marshall Henry, "We've beaten our brains out with some tough non-league opponents and lost some close games, but it helps us

The win couldn't have come at a better time for the Cougars, who got the royal treatment from their backers. They played before a boisterous pep band and cable TV cameras, not to mention a performance at halftime by the school's flag girls. The pre-game introductions were blared to the tune of "Eye of the Tiger."

"IT'S THE KIND of atmosphere we wanted," Henry said. "It's kind of been our tradition here over the years at Garden City." Ironically, the Cougars got off to one of their traditional slow starts.

Edsel led 14.9 after the first period and as many as eight in the second quarter before GC rallied to within one at intermission, 26-25, thanks to a free throw by Michele Tyree with only tick of the clock left.

In the third quarter the Cougars slowed the fast-breaking T-Birds down to a walk, befuddling the league leaders with a 2-1-2 zone defense.

Shanks, who is quick as a cat, scored eight points as the Cougars stunned Edsel with a 14-0 run, taking a 38-26 advantage after three quar-

"We wanted to slow it down and play halfcourt basketball because when Edsel starts running, they're tough to beat," Henry said.

Edsel, which had gone scoreless for 10 minutes and 49 seconds, broke the drought on a free throw by Janet Lewandowski with 7:11 remaining the final quarter.

And before the Cougars knew it, their 13-point four-quarter lead had diminished to just two, 41-39, on a free throw by Jenny Hopp with 3:30 to points for the Cougars. Dawn Woods led Edsel with 18 points and 5-foot-11 center Nicole Dapprich added 12. But Julie Sawicki, who blistered the nets for 24 points in Edsel's 64-38 victory over the Cougars earlier this season, was held scoreless. "After we jumped out on them, they (Edsel)" made a run at us, but then we held tough that's what I'm proud of," Henry said. "We didn't let Sawicki go wild like she did the last time. We shut her down. That was one of the keys." Shanks, who scored a school-record 31 points in an double overtime loss Oct. 19 to Temperance-Bedford, has emerged as force for the After being knocked flat to the floor on a takedown move by Edsel's Hopp with only 20 seconds remaining in the game (it was called an intentional foul), Shanks calmly dusted her self off, drilling her second free throw. "THE LAST six or eight games Carolyn has. really come into her own," Henry said. "She's maturing and keeping her head. When she gets it going, because she's so fast, nobody is the league is going to catch her." Nobody thought over a month ago that Educal. Ford was catchable, especially after GC suffered its worst NSL defeat ever But the Cougars are now in position to claim at least a share of the league title. All they need is a victory Thursday at home over Redford Union and a win Tuesday, Nov. 7, at Dearborn.

By Brad Emons staff writer

Redford St. Agatha knocked on the door of a Catholic League C-D Division football title Sunday at the Pontiac Silverdome, but the Aggles couldn't kick it in, falling to Detroit East Catholic, 14-12.

Agatha, denied the coveted title for the second consecutive year, finished the season at 7-2.

The Aggies then took the ball with 8:50 to go and mounted a 70-yard, 18-play scoring drive.

Behind the running and passing of Kutch, Agatha converted a pair of key fourth-down plays, the final one going 7 yards via the air from the junior QB to Kevin Smith. That occurred with 1:44 left in the game.

Sometimes the defense was overplaying, so I just turned it up field," said Kutch of his running exploits. "I was very nervous in the first half, but everybody felt more comfortable in the second half and we were able to put it together."

Holmes, an impressive 6-foot-2, 185-pound sophomore, led all rushers with 96 yards in 13 carries. He also happens to be the son of the East Catholic coach (also named Leonard).

"Our defensive coach, Louis Allison, told us to watch the quarterback (Kutch) on the snap to see if he was dropping his foot back," said the senior Holmes, the East Catholic coach. "It was kind of a tip-off to what he was going to do. We picked it up right off the ball."

THE AGGIES, however, had the sparse Silverdome crowd buzzing when Kutch popped his ensuing onside kick into the arms of East Catholic tackle Corey Andrews.

Churchill coach Herb Osterland thinks highly of Brooks' talents. "He is an outstanding football player," he said. "Whenever he

On Stevenson's first possession, alback Brian Piergentili fumbled after catching a screen pass, and the ball was recovered by Churchill's Andy Sapienza at the Spartans' 49

Churchill completed a pair of big conversions to keep the march alive.

On third and 11 from the Chargers' 40, Brooks hit Dennis Leahy for 22 yards on an in-pattern to move Brooks-played quarterback; tail- the ball down to the Spartans' 38.

Four plays later, Brooks picked up goal. 8 yards on fourth and 2 from the Spartans' 30. A facemask penalty on the run moved the ball down to the 12, and Sapenzia scored three plays later.

The seven points were all the Chargers would need, as their defense never allowed the Spartans to penetrate the Churchill 40. However, a gutsy Stevenson defense and a bunch of ill-timed Churchill penalties (the Chargers had 120 yards in penalties) combined to keep the visitors in the ball game until late in the final quarter.

THE CHARGERS watched numerous good scoring opportunities wasted.

Early in the second quarter, the second and 9 situation. On second down, Brooks picked up 12 yards on a sweep play, but a clipping penalty on the run moved the ball back to the 33-yard line to stymie the drive.

In the opening minutes of the fourth period, the Spartans' defense made its best stand yet.

From the Stevenson 38, Saplenza rambled for 28 yards on a fourthand-inches play to put the Chargers on the doorstep again.

THREE PLAYS LATER, Churchill was faced with fourth and goal from the 2. Brooks attempted to sneak the ball across, but he was stopped at the 1, giving the Spartans new life with 6:50 left to play.

Alas, Stevenson was unable to move the football and was forced to punt it back to the Chargers.

After a 56-yard punt by Paul Rockwood put the ball at Churchill 29, the Chargers put the game away with a 71-yard scoring march.

Trent Naumcheff had two big third-down conversions to help keep the drive alive. He caught a halfback-option pass from Brooks for 9 yards on a third-and-8 play before boiting 11 yards on a reverse on a

IN ADDITION to his offensive heroics. Naumcheff also had a recordsetting game on defense from his linebacker position. He had 94 first hits, breaking Andy Fabian's school record by five. Stevenson coach Jack Reardon was impressed by the skilled players on the Churchill team, calling them "a very good backfield."

But the Stevenson mentor also had kind words for his own team.

THE CHARGERS' offense picked up 246 rushing yards on 23 attempts. Brooks gained his 123 yards on 23 carries (putting him over 700 yards for the season), while Sapienzia added 74 more on 15 attempts.

Through the air, Churchill gained 56 yards, with Brooks picking up all of it on four completions.

With their fourth straight victory, the Chargers finish at 4.5 overall. All five of Churchill's losses came against teams with winning records.

Observerland striking chords for popularity

It's no secret the Metropolitan Detroit area is the bowling capital of the world. The 1989 yearbook, which is produced by the Greater Detroit Bowling Association, supports this statement with some interesting figures.

There were 126,195 male bowlers last season and 93,177 women. If you were to go a step further into the wizardry of computers and factor in the population figures, you would see there are about a quarter of a million bowlers in this area. This includes the 16,000 youth bowlers and numerous unsanctioned bowlers.

Judging by the demographic density of bowling centers, Observerland accounts for one fourth of all area houses. Based on these figures - and this is only a guess — one third of this newspaper's readers are bowlers.

According to the computers, 10,564 of all men bowlers pitch from their left side. The average for righties was 161.21, for lefties 165.50.

The women reflected the same characteristics, as southpaws averaged 137.97 and rightles carried a mean average of 135.47.

Of the males, 1,728 managed to average 200 or better, while for the women.

just 26 bowlers were in the 200 class. The everlasting controversy of lefthanders continues. Are the conditions better for southpaws?

The yearbook is a masterpiece for bowling information. It is available to all league secretaries. It tells you everything you need to know about a sanctioned bowler, including average and number of games bowled. The book is also available at your local bowling center.

Favorites hold true lin WLAA gathering

By Dan O'Mears

Farmington and Plymouth Canton are accustomed to winning Western-Lakes Activities Association cross ntry championships.

Until last week, it was the Farmington boys and Canton girls-who won in recent years. But that was turned around Wednesday when the opposite gender at each school took its turn winning.

The transfer of power saw the Chiefs end Farmington's streak of five consecutive WLAA boys titles, and the Falcons reclaimed the girls trophy after Canton held it for two Farmington's Jennifer Kiel, who was third last year, led the Falcons, to the championship, winning the girls race with a personal-best time of 19:28 for the Cass Benton course. That was three seconds better than her previous best.

KIEL SAID she was pleased Farmington could win the title for coach John Barrett, who has coached the girls team for seven years but may relinquish those duties after this season. "He's a very busy man; he's gone back to school to get a higher degree," Kiel said. "He's been coaching me since I've been running, and I was happy we could do it for him. If this is his last year, this would be very nice for him."

Kiel won her duel with city rival Lisa Rives of North Farmington, who finished 18 seconds behind in second place.

Walled Lake Western didn't have enough runners to compete as a team, but the duo of Jennifer Ray and Wendy Proos represented their school well, taking third and fourth places.

The top seven runners in each race are recognized as all-league performers, and the Nos. 8-21 finishers are considered all-division athletes.

Farmington put a lock on the girls crown when its Nos. 2-5 runners placed among the top 16. Jenny Detwinski was 10th, Allison Davis 18th, Margaret Martin 13th and Cheryl Casaroll 16th.

The girls were determined to do it from the start of the season," Bar-ret said. "They were very singlem-inced in their attention to the team and individual goals.

THEY WERE constantly readjesting individual goals, and that's why the team got as far as it did."

"We attempted to break up their second, third and fourth runners, but we just couldn't get there. (The Falcons) ran an outstanding race, and they're a great team."

Coaches were saying the same about, Canton's boys team. Four schools had a runner in front of its No. 1, but no other team ran in as tight a pack as the Chiefs, who were third a year ago.

Farmington junior Ben Goba, who was fourth last year, captured individual honors with a 16:27 time. Brian Beach paced the Chiefs with a fifth-place finish, and 30 seconds was all that separated Canton's top five. "Our kids ran a good race," Canton coach Jim Hayes said. "The times were slow, but the places were very good. We competed very well.

We always say our fifth, sixth and seventh guys are the most important. It's nice to have a Brian Beach, but you also need a Mike Ream (seventh), Matt Boland (12th), Matt Hall (14th) and Jason Napolitano (16th)."

Hayes added Chris Nelson and Jim Carnes, who rounded out the Canton contingent, didn't contribute to the scoring directly but pushed back runners from other teams.

"OUR MAIN goal is to be together at the mile mark," Beach said, "and whoever is going the strongest takes over. He keeps the guys together and gets some talk going out there. That's how we won the (Schoolcraft and Redford Union) invitationals."

Western, runner-up to Farmington last year and Canton in the Western Division this year, made a fine showing with a second-place finish.

The Warriors had a great start behind the efforts of Bill Crosby (third) and Jeff Grosso (sixth), and freshman Brandon Keeney (13th) ran his best race. The next two fared wellbut were six places behind Canton's

"We were going for first," Western coach Dennis Keeney said, "but we knew it would take a lot because Canton has run so well all year. We had our fingers crossed that maybe they would come out flat. "It was nice to catch (Plymouth)

CC could see a state title this 'C'-son

By C.J. Risak staff writer

Confident and competent. That best describes Redford Catholic Central's soccer team.

On Saturday, the Shamrocks added control in blitzing University of Detroit Jesuit 6-0 in a Class A district final at Redford's Pearson Junior High. And by now, CC's players know if they continue to play with the same confidence, competence and control, they could soon "C" a state title.

But don't start getting carried away. Not yet. The Shamrocks aren't.

"When you get to the top level, every-game-gets-tough,"-said-CCassistant coach Dan O'Shea. "Now you've got to play well every time

THERE'S A LOT to what O'Shea says. The talent CC coach John Boots has to work with has been acknowledged by several coaches as perhaps the best in the state. But, as O'Shea pointed out, the Shamrocks still must prove it.

"A lot of teams have great players. But this team has no weak spots," said O'Shea. "Not even on the bench.

"When we keep it simple . . . " There was no need to finish the thought. Let other teams beat you; don't beat yourself.

CC didn't make any mistakes against U.D. From the outset, the Shamrocks controlled play, and it didn't take fong for them to control the scoreboard, too. Even Boots' absence - he was out of town on business, a problem he knew about at the start of the season - had soccer

'A lot of teams have great players. But this team has no weak spots. Not even on the bench.'

> — Dan O'Shea CC assistant coach

JOE NORA scored the first two goals. The opener came before the game was 10 minutes old as Nora took a pass, eluded U-D's stopper and put it past keeper Steve McFee.

Nora made it 2-0 a few minutes later as CC dominated the center part of the field, in front of U-D's goal. A Jim Bernthal header following a chip pass increased the Shamrock advantage to 3-0 at the to play the remainder of the game

"We knew if we played our game we could win," said O'Shea, who is now 3-0 as a coach (he subbed twice early this season when Boots was on his honeymoon, guiding CC, to a 2.0 win over Northville and a 3-1 victory over Harper Woods Notre Dame). "And it helped that their best player was out."

U-D's best player is junior midfielder Don Orlandoni. He was redcarded in the Cubs' 2-0 shutout of Redford Union Wednesday in the district semifinal, which meant he was forced to miss the next game - Saturday's district final, ...

Whether Orlandoni's presence could have made a difference in the outcome is doubtful. Once the second half was 10 minutes old, his absence was academic. U-D midfielder Andrew Beaman and CC's Bernthal tangled just outside the Cubs' penalty area, and Beaman threw a punch - resulting in an automatic ejection for "striking."

AT THE TIME CC was ahead 4-0, thanks to Jon Petoskey's pinball goal. His shot bounced straight down off the crossbar and ricocheted off a defender's back, just crossing over the goal line.

By this time, O'Shea's main concern was making sure none of his players were red-carded. Sean Gibbons got a gift of a goal to make it 5-0 when McFee let a bouncing shot get behind him to Gibbons for the tap-in.

U-D's Scott Leadbetter was redcarded for a take-down in the penalty area with 10 minutes remaining, giving Bill Tarnacki a penalty shot - which he converted to make it 6-0 — and forcing the Cubs short two men.

The win improved CC's record to 16-2-1 and put them into Wednesday's regional opener against Dearborn Edsel Ford at Schoolcraft College, at 3:30 p.m.

Last Wednesday, the Shamrocks crushed Ferndale 8-2 at Schoolcraft in the district semifinal. Petoskey and Dana Orsucci each scored twice and Dominie Scieluna had a goal and three assists to lead

Ocelots survive U-M-loss; SC spikers still atop league

It wasn't a win, but it was satisfying to Van Dimitriou nonetheless.

Dimitriou's Schoolcraft College mens soccer team lost 1-0 to University of Michigan's club team Wednesday, with U-M scoring the game's only goal with 15 minutes left. By that time, many of SC's starters were on the sidelines watching.

"We tried to play real hard without getting anyone burt," said Dimitriou. "We got what we wanted out of it, a little conditioning and a lot of pride."

Starters Dave Dinglie and Rick Menary both played sparingly because of slight injuries. Dimitriou wanted to be certain both would be ready for last Saturday's match with Cuyahoga CC. A victory over Cuyahoga would clinch the Region 12 title for SC and propel the balance most of the match.

SC'S VOLLEYBALL team also experienced success last week, defeating Eastern Conference rival Macomb CC 15-6, 15-7, 15-5 Thursday.

Lion players take role seriously

RIC WILLIAMS IS serious about his role as an analysis cate of drug and alcohol abuse prevention.

How do we know? The test is what the individual does and not merely Williams, a huge defensive lineman for the Detroit Lions, likes to get involved in the nitty-gritty details of combating illegal substances.

Instead of living the easy life we imagine professional athletes do in the off season, Williams not only works on behalf of the police department's anti-drug program in his native Stockton, Calif., but participates in drug raids with officers, also.

That's-what you call being in-

Williams, of course, was along for the ride as an observer, officially. But you have to think the 6-foot-5, 280-pound Williams would relish the chance to sack a drug dealer, and I'm sure the police appreciate the intimidation factor his size provides.

Williams downplayed the danger but did wear a bullet-proof vest as a precaution and "had to sign a release in case I got shot," he said.

By the way, if you're wondering as I was, what the Lions thought of his off-the-field; adventures, Williams said: "I didn't tell them." He said: "They'd be more worried about me riding a motorcycle around town."

The danger was not of the immeand Lions teammate John Miller returned to Miller's old stomping grounds, Harrison High School, to caution students about the danger of doing drugs and drinking alcohol to

---- Unfortunately, less than 50 people turned out to hear them. The majority in attendance were female high school students, but many were adults who didn't need to be convinced as to the truth of their message. Farmington Familles in Action and the Harrison chapter of Students Against Driving Drunk sponsored the Williams, however, enjoyed and even preferred the smaller group. The night produced a relaxed atmostake discussion.

"If we had 100 people here, I don't think I'd like that as much," Williams said. "I like an intimate group, ple. I could see it in their eyes. If we had 500 to 1,000, it would be like talking into space."

O'Meara

The 27-year-old Williams emphasized he was old enough to discuss the matter from a position of knowledge and authority but close enough in age to the students to relate to their circumstances.

The heart of his message, and that of Miller, urged students to learn Don't wait until you make the same mistake to learn, they said. At that point, it could be too late.

"The ultimate way to learn is from your own mistakes," Miller said, "but you don't want to do that because it's much too serious."

Williams used the sad cases of Len Bias and brothers Don and Reggle Rogers to illustrate his point. Bias and Don Rogers died of cocaine overdoses within a month of each other several years ago, and Reggie, a former No. 1 draft pick of the Lions and teammate of Williams, is awaiting trial for allegedly killing diate sort Wednesday when Williams three teenagers while driving drunk.

Many will learn that lesson with minimal hurt to themselves. An unfortunate few won't.

But that is only half the tragedy people like Williams, Miller and members of SADD are trying to avold. The real heartache occurs when impaired persons injure and kill others.

"When Reggle walked on the field, I almost cried," said Williams, recalling how Rogers, who suffered a broken neck in the accident, looked with the large brace called a halo attached to his upper body.

-'But Reggie is alive! What about the people who died?"

Nelther Williams nor Miller suggest the country return to prohibiphere and a meaningful give-and. tion, however. Both said they like to true among high school athletes, who socialize and have a drink, but doing things legally and intelligently is what matters. liams said. "I like an intimate group, "I have a couple beers; that's not high school athletes than the one because I know I reached some peothe problem," Williams said. "The used by the NFL, problem is abuse and drinking when it's not legal for you to drink. And, in football, drinking too much hurts your performance on the field."

Some other points covered by Williams and Miller:

 Good grades are important. Williams said he was "one of those who always figured Till get by, I'll get by." While on a recruiting trip in high school, a college assistant coach asked to see his transcript and was not impressed.

"When I flew home that afternoon I cried," he said. "I never had a grown man laugh at me."

Miller, the former All-Big Ten defensive back from Michigan State, said a high school sophomore told him he wanted to play football at from the mistakes of other people. . MSU but-was afraid he didn't have the grades.

"'It's not too late," Miller told the aspiring athlete, "but if you want to go to college you'd better start doing

 The temptation for pro athletes to abuse drugs and alcohol stems from "a combination of a young kid coming into a lot of money and being in a new town where he doesn't know anybody," Williams said. "The only thing he owns is the bar at night."

Williams said the high-profile life of pro athletes contributes to the problem, because the inherent media exposure draws attention to their failures, too. Because of the adulation they receive, they often end up disappointing their youthful admir-

"I think there's too much empha? sis on being a superstar and not being a human," Williams said. "I don't know if it's the media's responsibility or the parents to tell (kids) these are just humans doing a differ-

Williams, however, added: "As a pro athlete with a public image, I have a responsibility, and that is to act responsibly."

 Both said use of steroids is on the decline in the National Football League but believe the opposite is are very impressionable, Miller said, Both advocate drug testing and a stronger' drug/sterolds policy for

Baby boomer chic

There's no need to be out of sorts because you look frumpy. Forget those stretch panels on pants and skirts and voluminous tops. Today's mother-to-be feels chic and looks chic whether at work, at play or out for the evening. We like to call it Baby Boomer Chic, and it's on Page 6D.

Curling: A cut above the average sport

Peggy Hawke of West Bloomfield shows her curling style as she sends the stone sliding down the key lane.

By Janice Brunson staff writer

Members of the Detroit Curling Club are gearing up for a new season beginning Nov. 1 and, based on last year's activity, the arena in West Bloomfield is expected to hum.

Not ho-hum, as in a sport that purportedly puts observers to sleep with its exacting precision and slow, methodical play.

But hum, as in more members than ever before who enjoy the fitness and finesse of curling and the comaradery it affords.

"We got more new members last season than in the entire history of the club," said arena manager Pam Bonfoey of the 30 new members who joined in 1988-89, upping club rhembership to some 230.

Founded in 1885, membership in the Detroit Curling

Founded in 1885, membership in the Detroit Curling Club remained exclusive and by invitation only for many years. But when the club moved into its new suburban arena in 1979, one of the first goals was an expanded membership. Efforts received a substantial boost during the 1988 winter Olympics when curling received worldwide attention as a demonstration sport.

New members are also younger than in years past, according to Bonfoey.

"I needed a new winter sport," said Mike Psarouthakis, 28, in explaining why he took up curling at the West Bloomfield arena last winter.

Psarouthakis, a proficient luge sledder, was headed for Olympic competition in the 1988 winter games when an injury prematurely ended his sledding career.

NOW HE'S AN avid curler.

Like the Scots who are credited with inventing the game during the 1500s, Psarouthakis wanted a physical activity during the long months of winter.

Craig Koss and wife Autumn, both in their 20s, also enjoy the sport of curling. In addition, they enjoy the socializing it provides.

"Curlers are unbelievably friendly and cordial; they take strangers in," said Craig who, after watching curling for years on WBET-Channel 9, broadcast by Canadian TV, decided three years ago to try it himself.

Autumn, a dance instructor at the American Dance Academy in Garden City, joined him, acquiring game technique more easily than Craig. Dancing requires similar agility, balance and endurance necessary in curling, according to Autumn, who said the sport requires "tremendous physical flexibility."

Curling is played by shooting a granite stone over a 146-foot ice field into a round target. The shot is delivered by a graceful, elongated stretch that demands a partial leg split of the player.

Sweepers, balanced precariously on a single foot encased in a special "slide" shoe, guide the stone along its lcy course. A game typically lasts 2-14 hours, a "bonspiel" or tournament anywhere from 1 to 3 days.

"This joint serves the best grub in town."

Christmas shopping on the road

By By Iris Sanderson Jones contributing travel editor

Q: I will be traveling a lot for the next two months, either on business or on vacation. I won't have much time to buy Christmas gifts at home, very little time to do it on the road and no inclination at all to drag big boxes home on the plane. What's the best way to shop for gifts when you travel?

A: I have a laundry basket full of gifts I have collected on various trips during the year — a tea coxy from Ireland, several charms, a bottle of special mustard from an inn in Ontario, a few hand-made Christmas tree ornaments, a small, soft toy.

All of these gifts are small and lightweight, so they pack easily in my suitcase. Occasionally, I buy an awkward piece of cut glass, but it has to be very good to be worth the trouble.

My rules are:

• I buy only what I can carry in my purse or sultcase.

my purse or sultcase.

• I buy something I can't buy at home.

MICKY JOHES

Gift shops like the one in the Wayside inn in Middletown, Va., can offer a selection of quality items perfect for Christmas giving and portable enough to fit into a traveler's suitcase.

• I never stoop to buying souve nir ash trays, except for one specific friend — we compete for the for a drink and mak ugliest trash gifts available.

The first step in your shopping spree is to ask the flight attendant for a drink and make a list of your victims. Beside each name list hobbies and special interests. If you can't be specific, close your eyes and think of your friend or relative in a home setting, so that you can add words like art, books, cooking, liquor.

I ONCE carried dozens of trinkets home from India, put them in a basket and invited friends for Sunday lunch. I asked them to choose one trinket they liked. Almost every hand went past the small carved elephant to the first-edition Ghandi stamp. I should have remembered that stamp lovers would rather have a first-edition stamp than a live Tahitian dancing girl. Every country has special stamps and they are very easy to carry.

Apply this logic to other tiny gifts — coins, small bottles of local liquor, recipe books. Don't forget rocks. I have a relative, a rock collector, who would walk, head down past, Mount Fuji, if she thought there was a collectible rock at her feet. Kids love shells. Not expensive enough? Wrap it in a 45 bill.

'The Bear' pleasant, but lacks continuity

"The Bear" (B, PG, 93 minutes) may very well be the major motion picture achievement its press materials claim it to be. In general, it is a pleasant story of an orphaned grizzly bear cub in late 19th century British Columbia. However, the film often lacks continuity and sometimes gets Exceptional cinematography by Philipe Rousselot ("Diva," "Dangerous Liaisons" and "Hop and Glory") is the saving grace of "The Bear" and its best feature, although pretty scenery and excellent, natural images only go só far.

Among the problems with "The Bear" are human voices gurgling to represent baby bear's emotional crises. Up to a point that's cute, but the heavy breathing when momma and poppa bear are messing around in the bushes - well, that gets rather Continuity suffers because different bears were used in the filming. While necessary, the net result is that Kaar and Youk (Bart and Douce

- them's bears, folks) grow, shrink and change their coloration as the film progresses. It is not at all smooth nor is the shifting relationship between the two hunters, Bill (Jack Wallace) and Tom (Tcheky

-Least credible is the moment-of truth .when Tom; the hunter, and poppa grizzly, Kaar, reject their inherent aggressive natures and neither bite nor shoot. While it may be touching and beautiful, it just doesn't strike a credible note.

Despite all these complaints, "The Bear" is a nice movie and many will enjoy its photography and cute ani-AMC's LAUREL Park Theaters opened in Livonia Wednesday with a pretty slick press preview, attended by numerous civic dignitaries. After the delightful refreshments, five films were screened.

One of the better ones, "Immediate Family" (B+, PG-13, 95 minutes) is well worth your time and money.

Whereas years ago the only solution to childless couples was adoption, today's newspapers carry stories of other answers: surrogate parenting, in vitro fertilization and artificial insemination.

When none of these modern strategies are successful, Linda (Glen Close) and Michael Spector (James Woods) revert to old-fashloned adoption procedures, with a modern twist-- they meet the natural mother, Lucy Moore (Mary Stuart Masterson), through their adoption lawyer.

"Immediate Family" is a poignant comedy about the trials and tribulations a midlife couple face when they are unable to conceive a child. Their dilemma is a bittersweet counterpoint to the young couple who conceive a child they cannot support.

The instant rapport between the two couples creates the dramatic tension that is at the core of the appeal of "Immediate Family." In particular, Close develops a warm, maternal relationship with Masterson that goes far beyond what one might expect of a woman who is adopting another woman's child. That relationship is the real family in this "Immediate Family."

BY NOW YOU'VE heard the rumblings about "Dad" (B, PG, 119 minutes) - how Jack Lemmon will get an Academy Award nomination, how he endured three hours of makeup daily, how he had his head shaved for this role so he looks 20 years older than his actual sixty-something. Rest assured that the nomination will be deserved and that the makeup people will win.

Lemmon may also win. His characterization is the cornerstone of this emotional portrait of contemporary familial values. Olympia Dukakis is wonderful as Bette Tremont, Dad's well-meaning, overly controlled and controlling spouse. In fact, all the acting is first-rate and Ted Danson projects an unexpected emotional depth and a gently moving portraval of a son's internal life. Zakes Mokae is particularly effective as the medical specialist who helps Dad in his final days. There is a lot about this movie that is wonderful, but it loses its edge and focus just when it has the opportunity to say something new about the nature of aging and its effect on the interrelationships between children, and parents. Gary David Goldberg who adapted William Wharton's book and film was written by two women. And despite some witty moments, it is incredibly predictable.

Taylor'woos all three successfully and, in the process, falls in love withthe most prickly and accomplished of them, Veronica (Madeline Stowe). Of course, Eleanore (Leslie Ann Warren) and Veronica discover they share the same Taylor with Erin (Maria Holvoe).

Naturally, the three women then get together to plot revenge. Yawn, yawn, yawn. Yet, one keeps hoping that "Worth Winning" will offer some surprises because so many of the characters are likeable in spite of themselves. The saving grace is that in spite of poor writing and meandering direction, the performances are interesting.

All in all, "Worth Winning" is kind of like Rock Hudson with three Doris Days and a yuppie Tony Randall in 1989. That means they get to do more than just talk about sex and have incredibly glamorous careers. Welcome to the '90s. (Reviewed by Susan Fincham. STILL PLAYING:

ALTERNATIVE VIEWING

'Petting': Not too heavy

By John Monaghan special writer

Whether the subject is sex, drugs or communism, vintage "educational" films have long appealed to fans of camp and kitsch.

"Heavy Petting" edits archival footage and recently recorded interviews into a hilarious look at acceptable behavior with the opposite sex. The entertaining new documentary plays for the full weekend at the Detroit Film Theatre.

Filmmakers Obie Benz and Josh Walelzky have worked on other documentaries, including the similarly goofy "Atomic Cafe" (1982) and the deadly serious "Partisans of Vilna" (1988). They get big laughs from the material combined in "Heavy Petting," most of it dating from the 1940s and '50s.

A 1951 epic, called "What to Do on a Date," shows teeneagers engaged in weenie roasts and taffy pulls. In another, a stern narrator warns: "Controlled, the sexual impulse, like a horse, may be a source of power and service.'

IN "THE DO'S and Don'ts of Dating," a young teenager named Woody embarks on his first date. The film sets up situations - from asking a girl out to saying good night and gives you choices of the right and wrong ways to handle those situ-

At the conclusion, our young Beaver Cleaver-type hero escorts his. date to her door. You guess the acceptable behavior - lunging, simply walking away without a word or saying what a nice time you had and how you'd like to do it again.

Even the filmmakers were surprised that beyond the bad actingand corny messages, there's poignancy and sincerity. Most of the films were produced on extremely low budgets. They employed non-actors - faces that kids could relate to more than Hollywood products (though this was probably more for financial than artistic reasons).

Interviews, interspersed throughout, discuss people's first experiences with the mysteries of sex. An occasional mechanic is interviewed. but most of the insights come from hip, out-of-the-mainstream actors. musicians, authors and political.

PERFORMANCE artist Spalding Grav talks about messing around with his girlfriend and drinking vanilla Cokes. David Byrne shares his early fear of French kissing. The late Abbie Hoffman discusses-groupmasturbation. William Burroughs, seated next to Allen Ginsberg, stays characteristically evasive.

Meanwhile, we also see footage from '50s drive-in movies like "Invasion of the Saucer Men" and "High School Hellcats." Even Elvis appears, defending the controversial movement of his pelvis.

"This isn't the story of actually having sex," the filmmakers summarize. "It's the story of getting " there through adolescence and all :: " the images associated with it."

BoDeans are a band at the crossroads. A group that will be either heard from in the future or become merely an asterisk in the record collection.

Lead singer Sammy Llanas is the first to acknowledge it.

-"I know the record company was expecting more sales," said Ilanas, whose band performs Wednesday at the Royal Oak Music Theatre. "I know they're behind us. They say we're a top priority right now, but I don't know how long that will last, if this album doesn't sell well.

"If any pressure comes, it will be after this tour."

The BoDean's latest effort. "Home" (Slash) has sold roughly 175,000 copies, the group's best start yet. Llanas said the record company was hoping for 400,000.

Those expectations were hardly unrealistic. The band was voted as the "Best New American Band" in Rolling Stone, garnered rave reviews on a six-week tour with U2 and had a guest shot on "Late Night With David Letterman." ____

All of the above would be considered enough to put a band firm footing. Yet, it is all the more reason a slip at this point could prove costly.

Album sales apparently already have band members checking the drought of 1988. Llanas voice is as soles of their shoes.

Then again, records have always been a source of frustration for a group whose accolades have been generated mainly by live performances.

FOR THAT reason, the BoDeans forsake the sterile studio setting on 'Home" and recorded the LP in a Milwaukee warehouse. The sparse location served the band well. Some of the tracks contain the rawness the group has had difficulty capturing on previous albums, ... Most noticeable on "Home" is 'Beautiful Rain," a song about the graveled and dry as the dusty cornfields he sings about, but his vocals pour with emotion.

tionally affecting everybody. People were getting ornery and short with one another. I was happy to be able to document it." Jim Scott produced "Home." Originally, the BoDeans sought the technical wizardry of Daniel Lanois (Bob Dylan, U2, the Neville Brothers). Although Lanois reportedly liked the spirit of BoDean's music, he didn't have a vision for it.

Dotto performed on the recording

Robbie Robertson's LP. The three immediately hit it off.

For the first time though, the band was able to make the creative decisions . . . before the shots were called by producers. Scott served as a mediator of ideas.

One idea the BoDeans have sought to get away from as being a voice from the heartland. "Love & Hope &. Sex & Dreams" was released in 1986, right in the middle of the roots rock movement.

SOME MISTOOK the band's hometown and raw rock and labeled them as such.

'We feel we're much more than that," Llanas said. "We don't deny we do come from the heartland and it is heard in our music. We've never been out to wave a banner."

Another banner the group has had to avoid is the Too U2 tag. "You Don't Get Much" draws comparisons to the Irish supergroup, mainly due to the guitar playing of Neumann.

"All I know is Kurt used those type of delays on his gultar for as long as I've known him," said Lianas, who's known Neumann since high school. "So in my mind, he's been doing it longer than the Edge. That's where we're coming from.

"The Edge was in awe in Kurt's guitar setup and his sound... think the Edge learned from Kurt in that instance.'

But much like U2 and other bands like R.E.M. the BoDeans have displayed a willingness to be patient. "We're willing to wait for radio to

CHANGE - The Alarm

The Alarm have always had a difficult time of it. Their sound has always been somewhat of a surrogate Clash sound, but without the strength of the songwriting. They're not pretty or "show-businessy" enough to be major MTV stars, with only one of their videos, "The Stand," receiving any regular airtime.

But they do try. God, they are very trying.

They write anthemic songs with calls to "the people" to bond together and right the world's wrongs. They are "very serious people." Their latest LP, "Change" (IRS). doesn't do anything to change this impression.

The album starts off with "Sold Me Down the River," a straightforward gultar rock'n'roll song, the type that takes them from being ane-cally sung, of course, about life on mic Clash imitators to being anemic-Georgia Satellites imitators. Side one continues with further rabblerousing, anthem-type songs with singer Mike Peters giving his best Bonoesque dramatic yocals.

THE STONE ROSES - The Stone Roses

lege Music Journal's annual seminar in New

All hall the latest guitar heroes of British psychedelic pop.

The Stone Roses' self-titled debut LP topped the U.K. independent charts for months, and is currently the target of praise from U.S. new music moguls. College radio is spinning the record, and MTV is rolling the video for the single, "She Bangs the Drum."

The band is a brash quartet of Brits with Beatlecuts and all the psychedella staples - cryptic, colorful designs on the album sleeve, flowery print attire, aloof expressions.

"The Stone Roses" is an album full of overtly paistey sounds with dreamy, droning images and happilyreverberating guitars. A decided Liverpudlian influence is heard, from both sets of Liverpool's favorite songs, Echo & the Bunnymen and the Fab Four themselves - a few of the tracks, particularly "Waterfall" and "Don't Stop," could have been taken right from "Revoler." Hints of the Cureand Jesus and Mary Chain also pepper the record.

The driving force behind the upbeat music is John Squire's forthright guitar playing. His gitbox is turned up loud, and he is obviously not afraid to make seemingly unnatural sounds while his strong rhythm section hammers away. Gary Mounfield's bass is exceptionally active.

Vocalist Ian Brown excels throughout, sounding ominous even on the acoustic "Elizabeth, My Dear," a brief one-verse number set to the traditional tune of "Scarborough Fair/Canticle."

Other highlights include "(Song for My) Sugar Spun Sister," the whimsical "Shoot You Down," and the anthemic "This is the One." Although it's a little too pop for its own good in a few spots, the record is a strong debut effort.

The warning sticker on this record reads "X-rated . . . Parents Strongly Cautioned ... some material may be X-tra hype and inappropriate for squares and suckers."

They say, war is hell. But you can't possibly know the full meaning of that statement unless you've worked at a fast food pizzeria

It all started with a few clever ads and cute slogans. Soon, the once peaceful suburbs were caught up in the spicy crossfire of an all out feud.

The good-natured rivalry for your discretionary food budget began innocently enough with a simple promise: "We deliver to your home within 15 minutes or the pizza's free." Going one better, the competition countered with "Home delivery within 15 minutes or your next two pizzas free."-

As the see-saw battle heated up, so did the advertising claims. "We deliver within 15 minutes or you get free pizza for the rest of your life." Each month, more perks were added: "If we're late, you get unlimited free pizza plus a free trip to Ha-

Marketing incentives escalated to new heights "Free pizza served on the beach of your very own Polyne-Islan island kingdom, named after you by the U.S. State Department and populated by fun-loving natives who worship you as a god."

Consumers love the free vacations and special offers. What the didn't know was the awful toll it was taking on the troops. At first, the delivery boys were slapped with a financial penalty for late deliveries. Later, they were slapped with a stale ed. breadstick .- _ -

As the stakes went up, so did the punishment. A first offense meant slamming your fingers in the pizza oven. A second offense meant strapping a dumpster on your back hands and knees, shouting "unclean, "unclean." A third offense meant eating anchovies.

AS CUSTOMERS grew bored with frips around the world, different incentives were tried. "If we don't deliver within 15 minutes, the pizza's deal. free, the car's yours and the delivery boy is your slave for life."

With the increased pressure for afaster delivery times, frightened pizza drivers careened through neighborhood streets. Soon, race fans and bookies lined the curbs to bet on the action. Block clubs set up grandstands and began charging admis-

"To join the family, he had to: curl," said Kathy Frankowiak, 26, of husband Bob, 28. Kathy learned to curl as a child, taught by her father and grandfather who were lifelong curlers.

When the Rochester couple wed four years ago, Bob took up the sport. Like many curlers, they golf in the summer.

THE TWO sports are similar. During play, each requires intense concentration and absolute stillness. Inthe 18 or so countries where there are clubs, curling and golfing are often combined into rangle club, like the Roseland Golf and Curling Club in Windsor. Curling is the national sport of Canada.

In addition to the Detroit club. there are four other curling clubs in Michigan, including Lewiston and Sault Ste. Marie. The Jackson Cascade Club has an outdoor arena and the Midland Granité Club has the only other indoor arena.

Competition between clubs is intense, according to Lon Lowen, a West Bloomfield fireman who has been curling four years. The trophy his team won during a Canadian bonspiel for firefighters last winter is proudly displayed in the dining hall of the West Bloomfield arena.

Also in the hall are tables set for eight, room enough for two teams of four players each.

Following each game, "The winners always treat the losers. You always come back and sit with opponents. That's real important," Lowen

Baby chic: Looking your best

By Rebecca Haynes staff writer

Being pregnant no longer means you have to look frumpy And if you've got money to spend, the selection of high-fashion maternity wear is large enough to keep you looking like you just stepped off of the fashion pages the whole nine months.

The fabric market kind of dictates what will be shown, but generally whatever the regular lines are showing appears in maternity as well," said Lisa Joseph of Birmingham's Lady Madonna maternity boutique. "There's nothing really unique with maternity anymore, except for the fact that the clothes are made to accommodate a growing tummy.

"We have short skirts, long skirts and we use belts and sashes to Joseph recalled one couple who came into the store.

"I remember that the husband was looking around and he said to his wife the only thing she had to show off was her legs, so she might as well," she said. "Then they bought a couple of mini

Most of the smaller boutiques, such as Lady Madonna, 325 S. Woodward, and West Bloomfield's Expecting the Best, 6907 Orchard Lake Road, operate on a philosophy of personal service.

"WE TRY TO build a good rapport with our customers, and our company really believes that you should dress them from the inside out," said Linda Tucker of Expecting the Best. "We're all trained to be knowledgeable about our products and to know what's out there.

"We have to be teachers, not just sales people."

Joseph said the Lady Madonna philosophy is to always let the customer know they're there and ready and willing to help, if need-

"We love to work with our customers and find out what types of things they do so we can help them pick the clothes they'll need," Joseph said. "Our customers really run the gamut — from people who have very conservative tastes to people who like things that "After a while you get to know the customer and you can lead them right to the things you know they're going to like."

Tucker said she likes to look at her store as one-stop shopping. "All of our salespeople take classes on how to fit bras, which is really sort of a lost art, and we stock a large selection of undergarments and lingerie," she said. "We also have a community dressing room that the women seem to like. I think it helps them expand their ideas of what they might wear because they see more things on other pregnant women."

Large, oversize tops and skinny skirts are the most flattering for a ballooning tummy, both Joseph and Tucker agreed.

"Shoulder pads are an absolute must," Joseph said. "They help to put everything in proportion." The amount of money you need to spend depends on your life-

"DRESSES CAN be more economical because you can dress them up or down and get more wear out of them," Joseph said, "If you need to get evening clothes it can get expensive and the same with a lot of career wear.

"We do have some hard-line suits but we always try to soften" them up because the corporate women seem to be wearing more

Both Expecting the Best and Lady Madonna also operate outlet stores in the area. Each carries some of the same items the smaller boutique features, as well as a large variety of maternity wear at moderate and lower prices. Maternity Ltd., associated with Expecting the Best, is in Westland's West Ridge Shopping Center on Warren. The Lady Madonna outlet is at 30919 Orchard Lake Road in the Orchard Place Plaza, Farmington Hills.

Although some maternity styles still feature panels, more and more the clothes are being made the same way as regular fash-

We have Jeans with zippers and buttons," Joseph said: "We usually recommend that a woman buys two pairs of jeans, one pair smaller and one pair a little larger. It's virtually impossible to buy one thing that's going to fit you the whole pregnancy.

Knit pants are still popular and Joseph said Lady Madonna has ordered a lot of corduroy since it's been coming back for regular. year, Slip dresses are also popular because women don't always. line to wear a lot of material around the walst."

THE JAPANESE Weekend line takes off on this philosophy. Designed by a dancer, all of the waistbands go underneath the fummy, lending support.

"We sell a lot of that line," Tucker said. "We also have a large selection of very dressy dresses and we have some silk tie-dyes that are all hand done and one-of-a-kind. All of our acid-washed denim sell very well too."

Lady Madonna calls it the taxi cab group + 100 percent cotton knits. On the left, it's a polka dot slim skirt ($48) paired up with a reversible sweatshirt ($74) and striped jacket ($90). On the right, it's a gray jumpsuit ($120) with a gold turtleneck ($46).

Urban profile

Recently installed in the main lobby of the Manufacturers National Bank Operations Center at Six Mile and Haggerty roads in Livonia is a wall relief, "Industrial Landscape," by noted area sculptor Morris Brose (below, left). Brose was selected for the bas-relief commission from three sculptors invited by the architectural firm Louis Redstone and Associates of Livonia to compete for the commission. The sculpture was made by hand-forging metals: bronze, copper and nickel silver. Its dimensions are 12-feet-high-by-11 feet-wide-by-1-foot in depth. "Industrial Landscape" is comprised of forms associated with Detroit's urban profile. Brose said. The rhythms of the linear elements express the vitality, activity of working. Q: I have stacks and stacks of work on my desk and don't have time to get it all done. Help!

A: Nothing causes more pressure than leaving your work laying out to nag you! The more you have to do the more important it is to (yep, you guessed it) get organized.

Set aside a specific time when you will have few interruptions to sort through all the papers on your desk.

If it's a really big job use the basic time management technique: Break it into units. Perhaps you can devote 21/2 hours to cleaning up your act by arriving at your office 30 minutes early each day for a week. As you sort, concentrate on these

1. Priority. What's the payoff? Will it produce dramatic or substantial results? Can it be delayed without penalty? Would nothing happen if you threw it away?-

2. Decisions. Force yourself to make decisions as you come to them; don't simply rotate your papers from one stack-into another with the excuse you'll decide "later."

3. Homelessness. Don't let your papers "sleep in the street." Establish a vertical home for every paper you keep. Create appropriate files for "hot" action items, lower priority to do's, followup, pending, filing, etc.

Avoid numerous interruptions by consolidating repetitive tasks into one-time actions with folders such as "Copies to make," "Dictation," etc. Establish a home in the wastebasket for as much

DO NOT leave your desk during your organizing periods. Once sorting is complete, delegate or deliver elsewhere everything possible, schedule your reading and filing, and then go back through your "hot" action file.

Be especially aware of any information you lack that may be impeding your progress on a given task. Make a cursory evaluation of what is needed to do each task, estimate how long it will take and schedule everything on your calendar (the most important first, of course). Actually work on your action items only after sorting and scheduling is complete.

A man in my business seminar recently reported that, after using this technique, he had filed some incomplete forms that had been nagging him in a low-priority action file and scheduled them for later.

He now felt in control without guilt because he realized his other work was more important. On a clear desk, he was clicking off his big jobs and starting to get the little ones done, too.

You, too, can relieve pressure and be in control. if you get your papers out of sight and onto a prioritized schedule.

You can order "Organizing - Vol. 1," a collection of Dorothy Lehmkuhl's first 52 columns, by sending a long, self-addressed envelope with 65 cents postage and a $5 check payable to: Organizing Techniques, 6165 Worlington, Birmingham 48010.

Introducing The Crossings At Canton.

Apartment living just got better.

We're making The Crossings a better place to live and a better value. You'll feel it in the new hallways and newly refurbished clubhouse. You'll see it in the plush landscaping when you enter the grounds. And that's just the beginning. It's the new look and feel of The Crossings at Canton—and it's for you.

The Crossings at Canton offers 19 different floorplans with 1 to 4 bedrooms. And whether you choose a 2-level townhome or a luxury apartment, the renewed beauty of this charming rental community shines through in every one—the result of our recent "Capital Improvements & Upgrading" program. These apartments and townhomes are the largest in the area, yet are still incredibly affordable.

business traveler

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

Since the days of the Fuller brush men, traveling salesmen have been looking for someplace to hide from the rain and lay their heads at night.

Today, the businessman no longer relies on a Ford Edsel and gully-like roads - airplanes and modern freeways have since solved the problem of getting from one place to another - but finding a place to sleep for several weeks can still pose a problem. Jonathan Holtzman, co-chairman of Holtzman and Silverman Companies in Farmington Hills, thinks he has the answer. Holtzman and Silverman Companies, in addition to developing residential houses, builds and manages 18 Village Green apartments in southeast Michigan.

"What we've done with our company is find a niche that hasn't been addressed," he said. "We guess there are 500 people on any given day looking for some place to stay for 30 days or more."
To meet this market, Village

Green began offering short-term, furnished apartments in January of

Offered in two packages, rental rates start at $38 a day, but lower rates are available for visits extending beyond 90 days.

Holtzman said he has approximately 100 furnished apartments "I don't see it getting any easier, but I also don't available for short-term leasing throughout southeast Michigan with a 90-95 percent occupancy rate.

"I should have 200 by next year,"

Automotive companies, foreign businesses, athletes, computer firms and theater people in town for several weeks or months are the most likely candidates for short-term lease, furnished apartments, he said. "We're here for people that need a place to stay for 30, 60 or 90 days while they're in town for a job or relocating and haven't had a chance to look for a home," Holtzman said. We're not going after the less than 30 day market.

"About 20 percent of Americans move every five years - that's astounding when you think about it," Holtzman said. "Until a few years ago, the rental people said, 'sorry,' and the hotel people said, sure, we've got a place for $70 or $80 a night that's a 2,500-square-foot

"Now we're saying wait a minute," Holtzman said. "We can charge 50 percent less than a hotel, offer furniture, short-term leasing and more space."

...-Village Green and others like it can provide all the services of a hotel plus the social atmosphere and the amenities associated with upscale apartment living, he said.

Holtzman said the renting price of $38 a day is still costly — more costly than renting an apartment and furnishing it would be - but most companies that transfer or train new employees pick up part or all of the Individuals typically stay shorter lengths of times, while looking for a -more permanent place, he said.

Many companies that frequently transfer employees or trainees, rent a long-term apartment, furnish it themselves, and then rotate transferees, Holtzman said.

"But some companies don't want to take the time," he said. "That's where we come in."

In the future, short-term apartment operators like Village Green will eventually take more of the market - even though there are relatively few in business now.

Paula Butler, spokeswoman for Marriott Residence inn, which also serves the business traveler and temporarily homeless, said the company has noticed a trend toward short-term apartment leasing, but it has not affected Marriott's business

Most short-term apartment operators, she said, are going after the more than 30-day-stay visitors, so most of the Residence Inn's customers are safe. The average Residence Inn customer's stay is 10 days, But-

Some residents do stay for longer; periods, and those numbers have not decreased in recent years, Butler: said. In fact, the number of custom-; ers served by Residence Inn continues to grow. "There's no question there is business out there," she said, but added that the regular hotels are still getting the lion's share of the market. "It's just that people aren't aware; there-are (short-term renting) alter-

'In a way, the competition (between extended stay hotels and apartments) is good for us," Butler

Consumers to pay price for clean sites

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

Developers will continue to build despite a growing body of laws holding them responsible for contamination on property they buy, and in the long run, the consumer will pay the price.

Real estate attorney Sheldon Winkelman of Honigman, Miller, Schwartz and Cohn, Detroit, told developers from the Building Owners and Managers Association of Southeastern Michigan (BOMA) that buying property before a thorough investigation is not only foolish, it is also becoming more complicated.

Land buyers regularly add clauses in sales contracts holding the previous owner responsible for contamination found on the site, Winkelman said.

"Ten years ago, no one would have expected something like that and they would laugh if it were included."

Sellers, naturally, resist those requirements, he said.

BANKS, WINKELMAN said, place increasingemphasis on environmental issues and often insert lending agreement clauses holding borrowers responsible for site contamination in the event of foreclosures.

Some agreements hold borrowers responsible. There are ways for developers to protect themfor contamination even after a bank transfers the selves, Roeser said, but it's obvious building in the property to someone else.

Environmental attorney Philip A. Grasshoff Jr., also of Honigman, Miller, Schwartz and Cohn, said environmental audits are essential for every project, regardless of whether the property to be bought is vacant land or has been previously de-

Audits are a developer's best protection should contamination be discovered on the site, Grasshoff said. Audits may be costly, and a court still may find a developer liable for cleanup costs regardless of what the audit finds, but they are the developer's only defense.

"Innocence (from causing the contamination) is no defense," he sald.

DESPITE ENVIRONMENTAL Impediments to land development, it is unlikely developers will stop building, BOMA president Richard Roeser

"People still need houses, still need shops, and they still need offices." In the past, all builders and land speculators had to worry about was whether the location and price were right, he said.

"Perhaps that's an oversimplification, but it's no longer that easy."

next century is going to be very different.

think the world will stop.' THE IMPACT of environmental issues on building is a sign of the times, said Steven Fisher, a developer with the Selective Group in Farmington Because laws require that landowners clean up contamination on property they own, the developer can avoid buying a parcel of property or make a decision based on the information, Fisher said. "As a buyer of land, I send out the environmental consultants to survey the land - if it's dirty, I walk away, if it's clean I decide if I want to buy

As long as developers practice due diligence by thoroughly investigating sites, they should be protected as an innocent third party to the pollution, Fisher said.

THE LAWS are still new, so it may take time before all the nuances become apparent, Fisher said. For example, should a developer with contaminated property be held liable for contamination missed by the environmental consultant?

"It doesn't paint a rosy picture," said developer Robert Schwartz of United Homes Inc., Farmington Hills.

laws will be passed on to the consumer.

In the long run, the cost of complying with new

I am having a problem with my real estate agent, who won't allow me to inspect the unit-prior to closing. I retained the right to inspect the unit prior to the deal becoming binding, and I am wondering whether I can insist upon an inspection before closing. Can you help

A. More than likely there is a provision in your contract that indicates is not for a few remaining units that that the seller should keep the premithe developer was anxious to sell but ises in the same manner as at the for units that are still under contime of purchase, reasonably wear struction. Do we have any redress as and tear excepted, and that you have the right to inspection to insure that that has been the case prior to closing. Even if that inspection provision is not in the purchase agreement, a reasonable construction of that provision would allow you, in this writer's opinion, to such an inspection. You should contract an attorney to assist you in protecting your rights, particularly if you suspect that there have been problems with respect to the maintenance of the condominium unit after your initial purchase. A good lesson to learn from this is that there should be an inspection provision in your agreement allowing you to both inspect the premises before and after the agreement becomes binding, but before closing, with an adequate provision for holding, monles at closing in escrow pending a completion of any defects and deficiencies found in the unit that were covered under the purchase agreement to be the responsi-

and paid $159,000. In June the price was reduced to $149,000. This price to this devaluation in price in just a six-month period?

The practical problem is that the purchase price for any unit is based on what the marker will bear. The developer's position will no doubt be that he was asking too much for the units and is reducing the price to market them more readily. On the other hand, to the extent that the developer represented to prospective purchasers, expressly or implicitly, that this was a fair price for the unit and that the price wouldn't be reduced at some subsequent time, you may have a claim against the developer_for_misrepresentation, You should check the sales brochures and review your notes and recollections concerning what you were told at the time of purchase to ascertain whether you have any recourse.
