Thomas squeaks past Griffin in close race

By Tedd Schneider staff writer

Call it an upset or call it Westland politics as usual, there will be a new. face in the mayor's office come January.

Upstart challenger Robert Thomas edged incumbent Charles Griffin Tuesday in a tightly contested election that wasn't decided until the final absentee ballots were totaled by the city clerk's office.

Griffin, elected in 1985, was seeking a second term.

Thomas, whose confidence seemed to increase measurably following his surprising second-place finish in the Sept. 12 primary, said-the result wasn't all that shocking.

"It was an upset only in the sense that they (Griffin and his supporters) never expected we were going to win," Thomas said.

Thomas, a longtime public services department employee, attributed the victory to "the mood of the people."

"Smokey" Gunther began posting early results on the tote board at the front of the hall. At one point, Gunther turned around and kissed Thomas on the cheek. The roar reached its crescendo about 9:30 p.m., when it became apparent that Thomas' 200-vote margin was going to hold up.

The atmosphere at Griffin's party at Leright's banquet hall was decidely more low-key. The early anticipatory buzz from 300 supporters of Griffin and city council incumbents Ken Mehl, Ben DeHart and William Ziemba dissipated into fingerscrossed signals and finally stunned expressions by the time the final precincts were posted.

IN HIS concession speech to supporters, Griffin, 49, said the election was the closest race he had been in since his first city council race in the mid-1970s, which he won by 125. votes.

About an hour later he appeared at Thomas' party and spoke briefly "Voters decided it was time for a to the mayor-elect and his support-

Council race winners yow to end squabbling

Council calls for review of election guidelines, Page 3A

By Leonard Poger staff writer

Winners in the Westland City Council election Tuesday said they are positive that there will be political peace in City Hall when they take office Jan. 1.

They made it clear that they don't want a return to the squabbling that marked the mayoral-council relations during the Charles Pickering administration from 1982 through 1985.

They commented about the upcoming political atmosphere afterlearning that challenger Robert Thomas narrowly defeated Mayor Charles Griffin.

Ben DeHart, both winners, and William Ziemba.

Thomas Artley and Kent Herbert supported Thomas. Pickering and Artley are in the middle of four-year terms. Herbert 'didn't seek a new term this fall.

Finishing a strong one-two in the Tuesday election were two people making their first try for city office. They will join two incumbents who were also winners.

The newcomers are Sandra Cicirelli, with 9,210 votes, followed by Terri Reighard Johnson, with 7,832. Councilmen Mehl, with 6,717, and DeHart, with 6,375, finished third and fourth respectively.

With Mehl saying he would not seek another term as council president, Cicirelli said she was approached to be the next council leader, but replied that she hasn't considered it yet. Under the charter, the council members select their president for a two-year term.

She admitted that changes may not be able to be made immediately.

But the councilwoman-elect said she wants to do something about the drug problem, perhaps getting a drug education prevention program started and improving enforcement.

JOHNSON also stressed her independence, noting that she didn't support either mayoral candidate in the election.

"The city suffers" when there is political bickering, she said.

"We are not here for our egos," Johnson added. "We must do the things we said we would do.'

Johnson, currently a Wayne-Westland school board member, reiterated a past promise that she would re-sign from the board before the end of the year.

When told of her victory, Reighard told Terri that he expects her to continue to be an honest person and listen to the people, she said.

The councilwoman-elect also said she was "surprised and amazed" she finished a strong second, ahead of three incumbents.

First Citizen repays kindness, organizes PTA clothing center

Linda Pratt was thankful for help she received from teachers and others while attending high school in suburban Cleveland.

They provided educational opportunities her family couldn't afford, Pratt said.

'My mother told me that what's given to me should be returned to the person (directly involved) orsomeone else (in a related activity)," she added.

Armed with that philosophy, Pratt later became involved in school groups, working with PTA chapters, the school superintendent's parent advisory committee, and a teen health assessment project in the Wayne-Westland school district.

Because of nearly 20 years of volunteer efforts, Pratt was picked tho First Citizen of Westland for 1989, given annually to recognize outstanding community service. Previous winners were Joseph Benyo, Thomas Brown, and Samuel Corrado.

State not told of missing man

By Tedd Schneider staff writer

A state official said an incident involving a 71-year-old man found dead a week after he walked away from a local nursing home would constitute neglect.

"But that could be open to interpretation," said Calvin Wilcox, administrative assistant for 'the patient's rights section of the Michigan Health Department.

Wilcox said the state won't launch . an investigation into the death of Edward Jarembo, 71, unless a written complaint is filed.

Qn Oct. 27, a Nightingale West Convalescent Center employee told police Jarembo walked away from the center, on Newburgh south of Joy, between 7:30 and 8:30 a.m.

A search of the area made shortly after his reported disappearance failed to turn up the man, police said.

Police found Jarembo's body Nov. 3 with the help of a tracking dog in a wooded field adjacent to the partially completed Warris Farms apartment complex, across the street from the center, Wilcox said Tuesday that the health department was not notified of Jarembo's disappearance or death, apparently in violation of the public health code.

According to Section 217771 of Public Act 368 of 1978, also known as the Michigan public health code, a nursing home administrator who becomes aware of any act of physical, mental or emotional abuse or situation of neglect regarding a patient must report the matter to the health department "immediately" by telephone.

If found in violation of that section of the code, the home could be hit with a civil fine of up to $1,500, Wilcox said.

WILCOX SAID a written followup report after the telephone notification would be requested in such a. case.

The case is then turned over to the state Department of Social Services for possible investigation, Wilcox said.

Norman Berger, Nightingale 'administrator, said Tuesday he had not notified the state of the disappearance. "We notified the police and the family," he said,

Berger said his understanding was that state notification was required only in cases of physical or mental abuse of a resident.

Jarcmbo died of ateril sclerotic coronary vascular disease, or hard. ening of the arteries of the heart, according to an autopsy performed Saturday by the Wayne county Medical Examiner's office.

The doctor who performed the autopsy said Tuesday it was difficult to determine an exact time of death. but estimated that Jarentho died about a day before his body was discovered.

'It didn't look as though he had been there (in the field) that long," said Dr. Laning Davidson.

Council wants to cool hot campaign tactics

By Tedd Schneider staff writer

In the wake of a bifterly fought campaign that pitted groups of city employces against each other and raised questions about tactics, three Westland City Council members Monday called for a review of city and state election guidelines.

"We need to take a good look at what happened so that two years from now we'll know exactly what we can and can't do - including me, should I decide to be a candidate for office again," Councilman Charles Pickering said on the eve of Tuesday's mayoral and city council elections.

Challenger Robert Thomas, a longtime municipal public services employees, narrowly defeated Mayor Charles Griffin, who was seeking a second four-year term.

COUNCIL PRESIDENT Kenneth Mehl, who won re-election Tuesday, and councilman Thomas Brown also supported the concept of a review of local election ordinances.

Pickering suggested possible changes in the city's sign ordinance and enacting legislation designed to address solicitation by city employ= ees. Some city departments drew criticism for taking part in alleged campaign-related activities during regular working hours:

He also suggested placing restrictions on donations to various campaigns by people who do business with the city, an apparent reference to the huge campaign chest build up by Griffin. Such contributions are regulated by state law.

Pickering called for a review of the Westland Eagle as the city's official newspaper for required legal hnnouncements;

"That (the contract with the Eagle, part of the Wayne-based Associated Newspapers chain) is something that it seems like we do automatically," Pickering said. "There should be a review of the requirements and specifications to see if they are meeting-the circulation and readership (that the city requires)."

Mehl suggested a possible change in the policy of a paid holiday forcity employees on election day as a way to cut down on possible abuses of employee politicking.

THE COUNCIL president also ad dressed the sign ordinance, albeit in a lighter vein.

The last time (the council) talked about (reducing the permitted) size of political signs, nobody could agree on anything," Mehl said. "And every-body squealed like a little rabbit at my suggestion to cut them, because I

Vietnam War still rages for family of missing vet

By Tedd Schneider staff writer

Anna Teran is still waiting for the · U.S. government to make good on its promise -- nearly 20 years after her son, Refugio "Tom" Teran, disappeared from a battlefield in Quangtri Province, South Vietnam.

"President (Richard) Nixon promised us," Teran of Westland said Monday. "No matter if my son is dead or alive, we'd find out what happened to him."

And so she waits, thinking about her son's fate for at least a few minutes every single day. Time may have dulled the pain, but it hasn't stunted her curiosity.

That's the way it is for many relatives of the 2,334 Americans, 74 from Michigan, still listed as Missing in Action in Vietnam.

On Saturday, Veteran's Day, famiily members and friends will once again turn their thoughts, and , prayers to the war that ended 15 years ago for everyone else but stillrages on for them.

"The hope (that her son is alive) is always there, until they can show us some evidence that he's not," Teran said.

MedStop is proud to announce the appointment of Rosalind Cohen, M.D. to the post of Medical Director.

Dr. Cohen comes to MedStop with nearly 10 years of urgent care experience. Before accepting the position at MedStop, Dr. Cohen served as a staff physician at Livonia's Metro Medical Group for the past three years. Prior to that, she was the medical director of Westland's Family First clinic for two years.

Dr. Cohen prescribes to a holistic approach to medical care, where the patient is viewed a functioning whole. Even in an urgent care setting, she stresses the necessity of commitment to individual follow-up and total health care. Dr. Cohen further added that it is very important for the physician to establish an on-going relationship with the patient.

The new medical director is also interested in developing MedStop's practice to include women's care and women's screening services as well as the continuance and expansion of those services already available at Livonia's MedStop clinic.

Garden City Hospital is pleased to have Rosalind Cohen, M.D. assume the position of Medical Director and the MedStop staff wishes to

County library serves the ears, not the eyes

By Mary Rodrigue staff writer

The Wayne County Library for the Blind is misunderstood. A couple of years ago, the library was beset with requests from the news media for its reaction to proposed cuts.

The cuts never materialized; but librarians are still chuckling over the reaction of the news media.

"A Detroit News reporter called and said "We're sending a photographer to the library. Have some blind people sitting around reading Braille," recalled regional librarian Pat Klemans.

THAT IS typical of the misconception people have of the Wayne County Library for the Blind - if they even know about it.

"It looks more like a warehouse than a library because of the mailing aspect," Klemans said.

"If we could afford $400 suits, we wouldn't wear them to work. It looks like a major warehouse operation, but a book is a book."

Most of the 120,000 books available are on record and tape cassette. They are available to patrons who receive updated catalogs periodically by mail.

"Most scholarly works are in Braille. But (Braille) is very cumbersome. A mid-sized mystery novel would take up five or six large volumes of Braille.

"Braille is alive and well, Butsome people who come upon blindness later in life are not Braille literate. Also, the fingertips must be totally sensitive for Braille. If circulation in the hands is poor, they would not be able to read Braille."

WAYNE COUNTY has a long history of serving the blind and physically handicapped. Books for the blind have been available for loan in the county since 1932. The present library was established during the 1950s, Klemans said.

Housed in the Wayne-Oakland Library Federation building on Van Born at Venoy in the city of Wayne, the library serves 2,500 residents of Wayne County. About two thirds of those patrons are blind or visually impaired. The remainder are -physically handicapped and unable to read conven-

Then Klemans will share the figures with groups such as the Lions Club, which helps raise money for blind and visually impaired people.

"We have patrons using the service-temporarily as they recover from stroke or an auto accident or any disability that makes conventional reading impossible."

To qualify for the free service, a person needs a certified letter from a doctor, health professional or educator testifying to his disability.

Budget could be revised without veto By Wayne Peal

staff writer

Wayne County Commission chairman Arthur Blackwell II said changes may be made to the newly approved county budget - but not because of pressure from county Executive Edward McNamara.

McNamara has threatened to veto the $1.3 billion budget approved last week by commissioners. The county executive said he was upset by changes commissioners made 'to his original budget proposal, especially in cutting off $37.8 million in funding for the new county jail.

Blackwell, however, minimized the changes.

"Really, except for four items, it is his budget," Blackwell said.

But the newly elected commission chairman said commissioners approved the budget as quickly as they did to provide time for adjustments before the budget goes into effect Dec. 1.

"WE GAVE ourselves 30 days to make changes and I know some commissioners feel they want more information," he said. "So we may review our action, but not because of the executive."

Commissioner Kevin Kelley, D-Redford Township, was among three commissioners who voted against the budget, requesting more explanation of budget projections.

The dispute with McNamara centers, in part, on cuts to his proposed jail construction budget. Commissioners eliminated more than three quarters of the amount McNamara had specified, saying they needed more details on proposed jail bonds.

Changes due?

Blackwell said the executive should have made it clearer that bonds would be necessary during last year's jail millage campaign.

What if we have 20-year bonds and a 10-year millage (to pay for - them)," Blackwell said.-"What happens if the millage isn't renewed? We aren't going to shut the jail."

Blackwell said many commissioners favored a greater jail tax, 1.5-mills, during debate over last year's proposal.

Another dispute centers on across-the-board increases for county fees. McNamara calls the increases a tax increase in disguise. Commissioners said increases are necessary to provide computer equipment for the county clerk's office.

An additional $1.3 million added to the county's $272.8 million budget for day-to-day operations is an-other sore point for the executive. McNamara has said commissioners were spending money the county didn't have in increasing the operating budget; commissioners said the money was available because McNamara's original revenue projections were too conservative:

The $1.3 million in "new" money. would go for drug enforcement activities and personnel.

McNanmara would have to gain the support of at least three com-missiohers to make his veto stick. Commissioners approved the budget 12-3. Ten votes would be necessary to override the veto.

Though the executive has a lineitem veto, something even the president lacks. McNamara has said he would veto the entire budget

Supreme Court finds 'harmless error' in trial

By Tim Richard staff writer

Edward D. Hall will stay in prison for the armed robbery of a Southfield store following the Michigan Supreme Court's 4-3 decision upholding his conviction.

Tuesday's decision was a victory for Graham Crabtree of the Oakland County prosecutor's staff, who argued the case before the high court a year ago.

"I didn't think there was any error at all," said Crabtree, noting that some justices felt there had been "harmless" error at Hall's tri-charge. In his possession were the shotgun, the same car and a Video Bin business card.¹

HALL'S ATTORNEY, Charles T. Burke, argued that O'Brien shouldn't have admitted the shotgun and some testimony because it was "extrinsic" evidence to the Video Bin robbery.

The /Court of Appeals agreed with Hall, reversing the conviction in an unpublished 2-1 decision." Crabtree, of Royal Oak, appealed for the prosecutor's office.

JUSTICE PATRICIA Boyle, writing for the majority, said extrinsic evidence "generally is inadmissible in a criminal prosecution" because it gives the defendant a bad character.

But the rule isn't universal, said Boyle, and the shotgun evidence met four tests for admissibility... "Evidence of a defendant's possession of a weapon of the kind used in the offense with which he is charged is routinely determined by courts to be direct, relevant evidence of his commission of that of. fense," said Boyle.

"In this case, the prosecutor presented several witnesses whose tes: timony served to link the shotgun a to the defendant and thus to establish his identity as the armed robber at the Video Bin," she wrote.

Agreeing with her were Chief. Justice Dorothy Comstock Riley, Robert Griffin and (in large part) James Brickley.

Disagreeing were Justices Charles Levin, Dennis Archer and Michael Cavanagh, who wanted to send the case back to the Court of Appeals.

Geake: Budget cuts are wrong Unemployment

By Wayne Peal staff writer

An area lawmaker is among those charging Gov. James Blanchard with overstepping his bounds in ordering $46 million in cuts to the state welfare budget.

State Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, whose district includes Livonia, Redford Township, Plymouth Township, Plymouth and Canton Township, said the governor had no authority to issue cuts to the social service budget in the manner he đìd.

At issue is a little-used provision of a 1974 state law.

State budget director Shelby Solomon recently announced portions of the $2.2 billion social services budget won't be fully funded. In doing so, Solomon said he was complying with the law's requirement of 15 days' notice to legislators.

GEAKE, HOWEVER, said the law was incorrectly interpreted and that the cuts needed to be preceded by an executive order - subject to approval by the Senate Appropriations have little or no say over the budget. Committee which Geake heads.

"The issue is whether the executive branch has the ability to make changes without issuing an executive order," Geake said. If that were the case, - he- added, - legislators would Solomon has said he doesn't expect to use the budget-cutting law again this year but would do so if necessary.

The dispute is now before state attorney general Frank Kelley. A spokeswoman for the attorney general's office said an opinion was expected sometime this week. Proposed cuts include:

• $11.8 million from Medicaid programs, including drug programs.

• $1.6 million taken from the Office of Children and Youth Services, including spending for programs assisting juvenile delinquents and preserving troubled families.

• $32.5 million in administrative reductions, including delaying hiring for replacements for departed staff members.

"These cuts would affect reimbursement for hospitals and pharmacists," Geake said.

Though adopted 15 years ago, the budget-cutting provision cited by Solomon had never been used before.

Regardless of the attorney general's ruling, state Rep. Joseph Young Sr., D-Detroit, has introduced legislation that would repeal the budgetcutting provision.

State House panel debates advanced degrees in divorce

By Tim Richard staff writer

A panel of state legislators is cool to a bill to give one spouse a vested right in the other's advanced college degree.

Senate Bill 255, sponsored by Gilbert DiNello, D-East Detroit, is designed to aid (say) a divorcing wife who had worked while her husband studied for a dental degree.

"The chair," said Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, "is inclined to look at anything that increases earnings from day one of the marriage." Nichols thought DiNello's bill too, den of the woman." narrow.

Pointe Farms, thought the bill unnecessary because courts already can take note of the value of one spouse's advanced degrees.

"There was a woman who got a law degree with help from her family and government loans. They filed for divorce," Kelly said. "The husband asked $250,000 of her earnings," falsely claiming he supported her while she attended law school.

Kelly said, "She had to go back through 11 years of receipts to disprove his claim.

"This (DiNello's) bill puts into the statute what's already in case law. It's cumbersome. It adds to the bur-

The bill was endorsed, however, SEN. JOHN Kelly, D-Grosse by the Michigan Women's Commission. But only DiNello testified during a short hearing of the Judiciary Committee.

NICHOLS HAMMERED at the Idea of taking account of all degrees and even real estate licenses a spouse had acquired during the marrlage.

Replied DiNello: "I wanted to zero in on advanced degrees, professional degrees, for their potential earnings."

DiNello said his own commercial real estate 'license' shouldn't be placed in the same category because it had taken 40 hours to earn.

The discussion ended without a vote by the five-member committee.

Foundation funds youth program

Troubled western Wayne County youths are among the beneficiaries of a $75,000 grant recently awarded to the Michigan Traning and Resource Center.

The grant, provided through the Hudson-Webber Foundation, provides work opportunities and counseling for youths referred through Wayne County Juvenile Court.

The Alternative Intervention Method (AIM) offers intensive family counseling. Working closely with local Youth Assistance Programs, it also provides youths with jobs and classes in life skills, parenting and behavlor.

Wanted: anti-racketeering law to combat 'Outlaws'

By Tim Richard 🤞 staff writer

A state police investigator told lawmakers that a motorcycle gang called Outlaws is one reason Michigan needs an anti-racketeering law.

The Detroit chapter has 15 members, 14 of which are convicted felons," said Chris Hogan of the state police regional investigating unit in Livonia:

Follow these tips to reduce noise level at home

In addition to causing permanent both awake and asleep, and the noise health problems.

Noise leads to stress. The results can cause sleeplessness, depression, irritability and/or aggressive or hosfile behavior. High noise levels can also elevate blood pressure, increase heart and breathing rates and cause muscle tension. These changes occur hearing loss, noise can produce other does not have to be loud to produce these changes.

Noise can also reduce a child's ability to learn. Concentration is easily interrupted and a young student's ability to read and pronounce words correctly can be hampered by continuous exposure to high noise levels. To reduce noise levels:

• Use appliances one at a time. • Keep motors and mufflers in good repair.

• Use lined drapes and insulation to reduce outdoor noise.

• When replacing wornout appliances, select quieter models.

• Keep telephone bells, stereos and TVs at the lowest level at which they can be heard. Headphones should only be used at very low volume.

• Upholstered furniture and padded carpet help absorb loud noises. Carpeting is particularly effective in upstairs rooms and hallways.

• Make sure large appliances don't rest against a wall. The wall acts as a sounding board and amplifies the noise.

• Roll up car windows when traveling.

• Wear ear protectors when working with noisy tools or machinery.

Contest open to high school photographers

Student photographers in junior and senior high can win prizes through a scholastic art awards program, sponsored by Ricoh Corp.

The contest is open to students in the U.S. and Canada. Students can enter in categories for black-andwhite, color or experimental photographs.

There is a portfolio category for high school seniors who seek a career in photography. Last year, 30 scholarships were awarded in this category.

Entries must be submitted through the school.

The contest ends Dec. 30. Awards will be presented in spring 1990. There will be 48 gold medals awarded. In addition, 12 students will win a Ricoh camera for themselves and their schools.

Winning photographs will be included in a national exhibit.

Entry information is available by writing The Scholastic Art Awards Program, photographic division, 730 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10003, or by calling 212-505-3566.

First Citizen

Volunteers reflect city spirit

Westland Observer

TEARLY 20 years ago, Mayor Gene McKinney of Westland said he was trying to make the community different from the myriad of other Detroit suburbs,

18A(W)

One of his strategies was to create a strong sense of identity through the creation of the Westland Spring Festival, later changed to the Summer Festival. Scores of volunteers put in untold hours on the festival.

While the festival is one of the more visible volunteer activities in Westland, hundreds of other people toil in scores of activities without seeing the rewards of their efforts.

An example is Linda Pratt, who was named this week as First Citizen of Westland for 1989. She is the winner of the fourth annual community service award co-sponsored by the Westland Observer and the Westland Chamber of Commerce.

PRATT DECIDED years ago to get involved in the local school system. It was her way of repaying people who in her teen years created educational opportunities that her family couldn't afford at the time.

She and her family moved to Westland 19 years ago after hearing of the quality of educational programming in the Wayne-Westland school district and the openness with which the administration welcomed parent involvement.

Since then, she has been actively involved in the Wayne-Westland district through numerous citizen committees and the PTA organization.

IT WASN'T surprising that Pratt was busy most of Monday, working at the PTA Council's clothing bank, when notified she won the First Citizen award.

Besides raising a family and buying her own ousiness eight years ago, the First Citizen of 1989 __spirit of community cohesiveness places a high priority on community service and support of the school system.

She serves now as interim supervisor of the clothing bank and is treasurer of the Funding Effective Schools Committee.

² Over the years, she has been in a leadership role for numerous PTA and school organizations, winning many honors.

BUT WHILE she won the First Citizen award for this year, we should also point out that three other excellent nominees were considered by a committee of judges for the honor.

While Pratt was picked this year, the quality of the services performed by the other nominees, Marlene Dean, Sharon Scott and Jack Vincenti, also reflect that Westland is fortunate in having a large number of volunteer superstars in the community.

While many of the city's adults have many activities and priorities pulling them in different directions, the community should be aware it takes a special type of person to volunteer those few spare moments of time for the balance of the city.

_A strong school system, PTA chapter, recreation program or activities for handicapped people just don't happen - people make them happen through planning, dedication and followthrough.

The First Citizen nominees clearly reflect that

Establishment stung by electorate at polls

THE ESTABLISHMENT took it on the chin this week.

STINDLINS-

Incumbents and their proposals crumbled under the wrath and/or discontent of the electorate which. spoke out loud and clear. The big punch, of course, went to the two statewide proposals A and B which were touted by various establishment groups. State leaders have been struggling with one another for years on how to deal with the school financing discontent.

The Legislature has been particularly impotent in coming up with any kind of solution. So with all the courage of a cornered varmint, they threw the hot potato to the electorate in a "you-figure-it-out" move.

But voters refused to take the bait them to do their jobs.

LOCAL leaders also found out that voters may not be as content as they originally thought. Just ask Westland's incumbent Charles Griffin who is licking his wounds and pack-_

'No knock' Search law would go too far

'No-knock" is no good.

A bill that would allow police officers with search warrants to enter homes without announcing their presence and intent -- "no knock" - has already passed the state Senate by a wide margin and is in Perry Bullard's House Judiciary Committee. -

The committee should deeply ponder the ramifications of compromising a citizen's constitutional right to privacy, and then it should take note of the design flaws in the bill. Careful scrutiny will support the contention that no-knock should not be reported out of committee.

No knock came about as a tool to use primarily against drug dealers. It's designed to give police holding search warrants the authority which, in practice, they already have -- to enter homes without knocking, identifying themselves, stating they have a search warrant or waiting for some kind of response from the person inside the home.

The purpose of this proposed law, Senate Bill 23, is twofold: let police recover evidence that might be destroyed if they announce themselves, and make sure police don't get killed once they do identify themselves.

Barging into a home, unannounced, is no guarantee of living through a drug raid. Quite the contrary — barging into anyone's home, without warning, is an invitation for the resident to protect him. or herself. Whether one is pro or con, remember: there is a constitutional right to bear arms, and millions take advantage of it.

Public Act 189 of 1966 and subsequent case decisions already have given officers with warrants the right to immediately enter a home, at their discretion. That fact alone should make Barging into anyone's home, without warning, is an invitation for the resident to protect him- or herself. Whether one is pro or con, remember: there is a ____ constitutional right to bear arms, and millions take advantage of it.

consideration of this new no-knock bill a moot point.

There are many other reasons.

The bill says at the time a search war, int is requested, an officer also must ask a magistrate specifically for a no-knock clause on the warrant and cite reasons why it seems to be necessary. It could be argued that every circumstance warrants no-knock authority, and judicial generosity in empowering law enforcement officials with this opportunity could be abused.

Further, the magistrate will not be along on the raid, so the decision to implement the noknock clause, if granted, falls to individuals who already have that authority - the officers on the scene. Remote control justice will not work.

These are all technicalities, and trivial when seen in the same light as our right to privacy. Don't confuse the issues, though — the life of an officer-is anything but trivial. But we won't save' any more lives by giving them powers they already have.

The concern that evidence will be destroyed part two of the argument for this bill — is simply not a good enough reason to usurp our constitutional right of privacy. Miranda laws, advising a suspect of his or her rights, already have been weakened by the Supreme Court.

Further dilution, this time on the privacy front, means one conceivably could be sitting in a living room, have the police break down a door and, depending on the circumstances, maybe or maybe not advise that person of his rights. Our Constitution was intended to be amended - not bent out of shape.

It's important to look ahead, past the current drug war crisis, at the way these laws could be applied once the purpose for which they were created has ceased to exist. Many laws get put on the books; comparatively few are removed.

No one today should question an officer's right to kick in a drug dealer's door or return fire if threatened or fired upon. The solution is not to warp the Constitution. It's to get Lansing and Washington to provide more dollars for more resources to fight the drug war.

Let's worry about that, instead of trying to and threw it'right back. Suburban. Detroit voters led the way in rejecting both proposals.

Oakland County residents were particularly adamant. Proposal A, a half cent initiative went down 3-1. Proposal B was knocked out in a 7-1 decision in the state's fastest-growing area.

Maybe now that the people have _ spoken, state leaders will get serious about dealing with a troubled and inequitable educational system. And maybe they'll learn to listen a little closer to the voters who simply want

2 cities share costs

To the editor:

On behalf of the Wayne-Westland Library Board, I'd like to thank you for Judith Doner Berne's fine piece about libraries in the Oct. 11 Observer. Librarles are indeed more active, dynamic and involved in serving their communities than ever before.

I would, however, like to correct one error in the article: Westland does not contract with Wayne for library services. By virture of an agreement entered into many years ago, the two cities share the same library; in fact, the building that houses the Wayne-Westland Library on Sims near Wayne Road in Wayne is owned on a 50-50 basis by both Wayne and Westland, and operating expenses are shared based on a variable percentage rate determined by use — currently 60 percent West-land, 40 percent Wayne.

While it is true, as Ms. Berne points out, that Westland residents have twice rejected millages for a separate municipal library in their city, the Board (which represents both cities) has placed the highest priority on and is actively engaged In pursuing ways to provide the very best library facilities and services possible to all of the 100,000 restdents of the Wayne-Westland community which it serves,

The Sept. 25 Westland Observer carried a very comprehensive article on a disaster drill held in Wayne County on Sept. 20.

I was dismayed to see that the only acute care hospital (Westland Medical Center) operating in the city of Westland was not even mentioned in your article.

Our staff not only participated in the disaster drill but also on a dayto-day basis serves the City of Westland by being available to handle "real" emergencies occurring within the city.

The oversight on your part does not do justice to those who day-today serve the Westland community.

Refereering is criticized

To the editor: I am writing regarding the Western Lake Activities Association playoff game between John Glens High School and Farmington Harry son High School (Saturday, Oct. 21) We have never seen such an unfail and poorly refereed game in all the years we have watched organized sports.

We thought that a game of such importance was supposed to be refereed by qualified and fair referees Instead of making the number on ranked Class B team in the stat look like real winners, they in tur placed doubt in all the fans that watched the game. If I did not know better, I would truthfully believ that the game was fixed.

If I were a Harrison coach I would demand to replay the game to prove they in fact are number one, instea of letting inexperienced referee give them the game. As it not stands, John Glenn High is the rea winner in the eyes of the fans.

Before the playoff game we had respect for Harrison as winners and a great football team, but now w wonder if the officials have give them Class B No. 1 ranking.

In closing I would like to say if yo don't believe this look at the vide tapes. Even though this letter is o little satisfaction, my family and feel better letting our opinions b known.

You remember the day you picked Im out at the breeders: You wanted is brother, but your wife ... no, the had to have this one - the runt of the litter.

"He's cute," she said. "He's got a lice personality."

IT DIDN'T really matter They were all discount dogs. "Pet quality," the ad had read. That, the breeder explained when we met her in person, meant that for one reason or another they weren't "show quality." We didn't care about that. We wanted a Scottie for a pet, not a show dog. The kids ... he was 13 at the time, she was 3 . . . Just wanted a dog.

So we took him home. The runt. The one that almost croaked right after he was born and had to be hand-fed by the breeder. She even took him to work with her and nursed him through his infancy.

. That, I think, was his problem. He never knew he was a dog.

We had a terrible time agreeing on a name until mother and son came up with "Wicket." I suggested modifying it to "Sticky Wicket" ---he'd been a problem since birth.

And that's who he became... this son of "Braeburn's Main Event" and "Lady Towsie Macbeth:" He didn't care about his heritage. He thought he was human.

He' had another identity crisis about a year ago when we went to an orchard_to_pick apples and came home with a kitten - the last of a litter that had been abandoned in a ditch near the orchard.

THERE WERE a few crises along the way. Wookie would dart out the door when he got the chance and start chomping on whatever greenery was in sight, but the family father, mother, son and daughter would manage to trap him in a corner somewhere and drag him back inside.

Wicket, damn-fool dog, wouldsometimes dart out an open gate and cavort around the neighborhood when he was a pup, but he always got caught.

As he grew older he became less inclined to take off when the gate was open and the family figured he

Cold weather signals drop in bug population

Shortened daylight hours is the cue used by plants and animals that foretells the approach of cold winter temperatures.

· Cold-blooded animals such as insects, reptiles and amphibians, whose body temperature is basically controlled by the amblent temperature, are unable to function during this time. They must survive the winter in a form that can tolerate the freezing temperatures.

Because the number of visible insects decreases dramatically now, it is unusual to see any insects at all, let alone large ones. While walking the fields and meadows lately, I have seen some butterflies and some true bugs.

Beautiful yellow sulfur butterflies had survived the early October snow we had and were spending their last days looking for scant sources of Assassin bugs can be recognized by their long narrow head, and as their name implies, they are predators on other insects. This assassin hug is particularly fond of bees. Long muscular legs enable this insect to subdue large prey. One day at the Cranbrook Institute of Science nature center I noticed a bee assassin perched on the window sill next to the hive entrance, 1 -

4C workers scramble to fill need for family day care

By Sue Mason . Staff writer

The career of the 1980s was related to computers. But the career of the 1990s probably won't be as high tech. Considering current statistics, the economic growth area of the '90s will be in day care services for working parents.

As of March 1988, 65 percent of all American women with children under 18 years of age worked outside the home. It's estimated that by the year 2000, 80 percent of women in their prime childbearing years (between 25 and 44) will be in the labor force.

Someone will need to care for the children of those women, just as someone is needed now to care for the 60 percent of all American children who have working mothers.

One way of addressing the need is through family orhome-based day care, but in several Wayne and Oakland communities, the need far exceeds what is available.

"It's safe to say that the slots available versus the slots needed are in short supply all over Wayne County," said Georgiana Cien, a corporate child care consultant with the Child Care Coordinating Council of Detroit/ Wayne County Inc. (4C) and Work/Family Directions Inc.

Cien and Eartha DeYampert, family day care specialist/consultant, are recruiting people interested in providing child care in their homes in Redford, Livonia, Westland, Canton Township, Southfield, Farmington and Farmington Hills, areas with a critical need for family day care.

THEY AREN'T looking for baby sitters, but rather people interested in being professionals, people interested in becoming licensed day care providers. They're looking for people who want a career and as such will be dependable and make a commitment to their profession.

In return, they'll help with the necessary training and provide on-site technical assistance.

Theirs Isn't an easy task. There's a tremendous turnover in family day care, partly because of the stress and partly because of the way it is viewed by outsiders. Family day care as a profession is plagued by the perception of it as baby-sitting, DeYampert said. "Family day care is no longer just custodial care," she said. "Parents don't want their kids just fed and cleaned up and sat in front of a TV all day. They want structure, planned activities; they want to see some sort of education going on "

Cien does enhanced child care resource and referrals for 35 companies in the metropolitan area, but she can't provide referrals, if the supply isn't there, so part of her job, with the help of DeYampert, is to recruit and train day care professionals.

There are two types of licensed home-based day care. Family day care is limited to one adult and three to six children, including any children the provider has under age 7. A group home can accommodate seven to 12 youngsters with at least two adults present.

room is used to care for infants and toddlers while the basement has been set aside for older youngsters. Even her children are involved, helping to plan activities for the youngsters.

"If you want to be treated as a professional, you have to be ready for the kids when they arrive at 6 a.m.," she said. "You can't go to the door in a bathrobe and rollers in your hair. You have to be dressed for work._____

ferent forms that need to be filled out as well as provide information on what to expect as a day care profession-

The licensing process takes two to four months to complete and during that time DeYampert suggests potential providers get some training.

She conducts such training programs, including one being offered at Schoolcraft Community College's Radcliffe Center in Garden City, beginning Saturday, Nov. 11.

The training covers such things as professionalism, the business aspects of family day care, safety, nutrition and health, developmental toys and activities and parent/provider relationships.

"PART OF THE training is to teach these people that they are performing a viable service to the community," DeYampert said. "They have a lot to offer, but they have to get parents to look on them as professionals."

Participants can qualify for continuing education credits that can be used to become an accredited child care provider. In addition, day care providers can also qualify for a child development associate certificate, both of which add to the aura of being a professional, DeYampert said.

But Cien and DeYampert stress that family day care isn't a career for just anyone. The person who opts for it has to be able to deal with children 11-12 hours a day.

"We get calls from parents looking for baby sitters," Cien said. "I tell them we don't deal with people who sit on bables, we deal with licensed day care professionals."

The cost of family day care depends on the geographical area, according to Cien. Downriver, the charge may be $40-50 per week, while in West Bloomfield one provider is asking — "and getting" — $150 a week, she said.

AND PRICES aside, child care is so important to to day's economy that if all providers — family, group and center settings — decided to go on strike, there would be a major breakdown in American business and economy, Cien said.

"People are starting to recognize that this is import-

WHEN DEYAMPERT talks about being a professional day care provider she talks from experience. She and her husband. John. operate a group home. Their living "You have to have a planned schedule. You have to be organized. If you're consistent, people realize you're serious about what you do."

According to DeYampert, one way to get started is to send for the Department of Social Service's family day care licensing information. The packet contains the difant," she said. "The number one requested child care in the nation is for infants to 3-year-olds. That's requested for 72 percent of all children in child care."

A child's dream becomes reality for doll designer

By Sue Mason staff writer-

When Robin Woods was a child." one of her dreams was to have a doll factory. She settled for hanging around a doll store in Colorado Springs, Colo., and making doll clothing with her sister.

"I had just turned 37, and it was like a gong went off in my head (telling me) it was time to do something different," said Woods. "I told my -husband-Steve-I wanted to open a doll factory and he just said OK."

It was quite an endeavor for Woods, who is the mother of six children and has a doctoral degree in and life experiences in coming up child psychology. She wanted to create the dolls she treasured as a child, but had no formal design training. What she did know she had learned from her grandmother, who had studied home economics at Texas Women's College. The rest took research, and plenty of it.

Woods wasn't interested in creating porcelain-headed collectibles. The dolls she planned on creating, despite their fancy clothes, were meant to be "primped, cuddled and loved." Her dolls were to be "a playmate today and a treasure tomorrow," she said.

"My dolls are made the way dolls ... Woods has gone from one factory used to be made, like the Madame Alexander dolls," Woods said. "When I was a child, if you received a Madame Alexander doll it was like giving a child a Rolls Royce.

"One of the doll collector groups Today, Carol Kay, a doll she bugged me about doing a Scarlet doll much to my chagrin, it's the best doll we've ever done.'

> FOURTEEN-inch dolls range in price from $80 to $185, while the toddler dolls go from $150 to $175. Woods also has produced dolls with trunks filled with clothing and accessories. This year's Cinderella play set ($250) is featured in the Nieman-Marcus Christmas catalog and is the winner of the Parents' Choice Gold Award.

Woods draws on literature, poetry with her designs. One popular doll is Plain Jane. The doll is simply dressed and comes with a wardrobe of 25 items.

The popularity of Woods' dolls did cause problems for the fledgling company. The rapid growth left Woods with a need for more capital. Eventually, she raised $1 million in venture capital and hired a management staff, which got the company on even ground.

"I didn't realize how much money it took," she said. "No matter how much money I raised, it wasn't enough."

Parents come out in support of homosexual children

By Noreen Flack staff writer

THILE LESBIAN and gay groups continue to rectify a tarnished stereotype, local parents of homosexual children are "coming out" to offer advice and share experiences to the public.

In a 30-minute documentary entitled, "Listening, Learning, Loving: Parents of Lesbians and Gays," parents unite to eliminate descrimination and promote acceptance of their homosexual children.

The program originally aired on MetroVision cable systems in Livonia and Redford Township on Nov. 8. It will be aired a second time at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 13 in Livonia and at 7 p.m. on Channel 12 in Redford, both on Wednesday, Nov. 15.

The documentary includes historical incidents, medical facts and diverse experiences that producer Fred Shaheen of Detroit hopes will 'open doors'' for understanding and oush away the myths and stigma of nomosexuality.

The parents interviewed throughout the program are members of Farmington Hills based Parents FLAG (Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays). They reveal their experiences from suspecting their child is gay to overcoming emotions of guilt, anger, denial and shame that blocked acceptance and com-munication in their relationship.

"EVEN IF YOU do not have a homosexual child, it will not only move you, but make you keenly aware of some of the issues felt by so many in all walks of life," said Harriet Dart, president of PFLAG and a Farmington Hills resident.

PFLAG is an international organization with 90 active chapters where parents help other parents of lesbian and gay children with support and factual information on the subject of homosexuality.

"When you first hear the news, you feel like you are the only person in the world to have this revelation brought to you," said Bill Dart.""To know there are other people out there is reassuring that we aren't freaks."

Every four families (10 percent of the population) has a gay family member, Bill Dart said, Most people will eventually encounter a gay friend or relative and they should be more open about it, he added.

"I'm just sorry. That was three years that I wasted because Jon needed me and I wasn't there to be a father to him when I should have been," said Mickey Arnowitz of Oak Park, who appears in the program with his gay son, Jonathon, and his wife, Harriet.

"There was something wrong and I never really knew what it was. I just couldn't put my finger on it," said Merry, whose daughter is a lesbian. "That's when we were anguished. When she came out, I was freed. And I'm sure she was too."

Shaheen, who is also gay, designed the program as a public awareness video and hopes the show will reach out to all people not only parents of gay children.

"When I was coming out, I had to, confront all of my prejudices, whether it be blacks or Jews or whatever," Shaheen said. "It's an issue of total acceptance of people for who they are."

A copy of the documentary may be purchased for $17. Mail your check to, P.C. Productions Video Tape, 4767 Commonwealth, Detroit 48208.

Churches enter the computer age

illustration by BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

By Julie Brown staff writer

Software can't save souls, but technological advances have nevertheless had an impact on churches. Computers are increasingly common these days, particularly at larger churches with greater resources.

"The computer is used basically to. enhance and to supplement all of the ministries of the church," said Barry McKenna, director of administration at Ward Presbyterian Church in Livonia. That church has nearly 5,000 members, and many others who aren't members participate in activities at Ward.

Computers have been a tremendous help to the pastors and staff, said McKenna, who has worked at the church since 1980.

"Obviously, the use and the implementation of it is a growing, ongoing process."

Computers are used for bookkeeping, keeping track of membership information and scheduling use of facilities and church vehicles.

WORD PROCESSING - for reports, correspondence, mailing labels and other items - is part of the work at Ward. A central data base provides some information for all departments, while some specialized functions are used by individual departments only.

It's difficult for McKenna to imagine what life would be like at Ward without computers. "Anything is possible, but no, we Entering the computer age has been an ongoing process at Newburg United Methodist Church in Livonia. 'We're not into it totally yet, but we're moving in that direction," said the Rev. David Church, the pastor.

That process hasn't been effortless, and deciding how to put the computer to good use has been a challenge.

"And we've learned some of those" things by hard knocks," Church said. His denomination has designed a computer program that works well for most United Methodist congregations.

Giving records are stored on computer at Newburg United Methodist Church. The computer prints out contributions for members quarter-such basics as names, phone numbers, addresses, and areas of interest

"It's so much more efficient to do that with a computer," Church said. If church staffers need the names of people who'd like to serve as ushers, all they have to do is push a button.

Newburg United Methodist Church has about 1,100 members. It's been about three years since the church began to use the United Methodist computer program.

Attendance at Newburg is still kept by use of a card file system. Church officials hope to use the computer for that soon. Church said.

The church's treasurer uses his home computer to keep track of financial records. The staff secretary at Newburg uses a word processor for correspondence and for parts of the church newsletter. Church writes his sermons on a typewriter.

"That's more a matter of personal choice," he said. "I'm still sort of new to the computer myself."

He could start to write sermons on a word processor at some point, as many of his colleagues do.

St. John's Episcopal Church in Plymouth Township is also in the computer age.

"We're sold on it," said Tammy Brand, parish administrator. "I don't think in this point of the ministry at St. John's they could function without it."

THE CHURCH includes 378 families.

"A lot of membership information is on the computer," Brand said. She's in the process of adding such things as baptism and confirmation dates, wedding dates and birth dates. It's been more challenging to get that information from church members than it has been to enter it into the computer.

"We have all of our bookkeeping on the computer too," she said. "That's been fabulous. It just gives you a lot of good reference information. It's so much more efficient, just

"I was very resistant to it. I didn't know how to use it, first of all.",

Brand took a couple of classes and gradually learned to work on the computer. It's used for correspondence, bulletins, the church newsletter and other items.

"My job relies totally on the computer today. It's just such an integral part of everything."

Staffers at St. John's never boughta church computer package, Brand said.

"Everything we looked at was, so expensive."

Instead, they received help from a couple of parishioners in designing their own program.

COMPUTERS DO an increasing amount of work for the Archdiocese of Detroit, according to Jay Berman, archdiocese spokesman.

"They're present in every office." The archdiocese's central services are linked together by computer, allowing use of electronic mail.

"We started about five years ago," Berman said.

Before that, the archdiocese used some individual computers in the areas of finance and administration.

Computers make communication , between parishes and between various administrative levels of the church easier. The church hopes at some point to deliver all mail to parishes electronically, he said.

Some 135 parishes out of 300 in the Archdiocese of Detroit use computers at some level. The archdiocese takes in six counties in southeastern Michigan, including Wayne and Oakland counties.

One concern of the Catholic church is privacy as it relates to computer use, Berman said. Access to information stored in computer files must be limited.

'So we have built-in safeguards all along.

Computers can't do everything, but can help churches operate more effectively, Berman-said. A priest who used to write a homily on a yel-quickly on a word processor .-----"Now he's got a half hour he can

Our past should beremembered

Eighteen years ago this week, the first Moral Perspectives column was printed in this newspaper. Is it the number of years the column has appeared that makes this week a special moment of recall for us who write it? Would it be less important if the years were fewer in number, or more important if they were greater?

Ten years ago this week, the United States Embassy in Iran was att tacked and 55 citizens of the United States were held hostage by Iran for 444 days. The passage of time does not diminish the anguish nor relieve the anger.

This week marks the dedication of____ the Civil Rights Memorial in Montgomery, Ala. — a black granite table carved with the names and stories of the martyrs and key events from 1954, when the U.S. Supreme Court outlawed school segregation, to 1968, when Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated.

remembrance of events and experiences past? Why do we remember some things and forget others?

Very few people will have remembered this week as the 18th anniversary of this column, and even this reference to it will not increase that number significantly.

___The-Iranian-attack on the U.S. Embassy in Iran and the taking of hostages has been a continuing issue in international affairs. It is used by both sides in differing ways, but remembering the event is important for both nations.

YOU WON'T offend us if you didn't remember the 18th anniversary of this column, but forgetting or ignoring the features of international relationships that unfolded, the attack on our embassy in Iran and the 40 people who died in the struggle for civil rights in our country is to set in motion the very features that created the events we are to remember today.

Forgetting or ignoring our past is to imply that it never happened. There are some things that we would never want to forget or pretend never happened.

Get out the plastic

Charge those movie ducats

By Gerald Frawley

staff writer

For months you've been wanting to ask that man or woman at the office for a date and tonight - the day before payday - he or she mentions an interest in the new Woody Allen movie. Unfortunately, you're broke.

Don't sweat it, put it on plastic.

Credit card purchases and advanced ticket sales are coming to a theater near you, according to James Merck, American Multi Cinema (AMC) director of marketing and public relations. Other theaters are looking at placing automatic teller machines in their lobbies to help solve their customers' cash flow problems.

AMC LAUREL Park 10 in Livonia is the first general run cinema in southeast Michigan to use a computerized automatic ticket sales (CATS) system that allows purchase of tickets with credit cards. Movie fans can also buy tickets up to three days in advance at the box office or over the phone.

CATS will also be available at the Wonderland 6 theater in Livonia when it opens Friday. AMC will evaluate the system and is considering installing it in other theaters, Merck said.

AMC, the largest theater operator in southeast Michigan, has 19 theaters in the area.

The AMC Maple 3 Theatres - which generally show limited distribution and art films - began using the CATS system in September, and Merck called it successful. In other areas of the country where the system is in use, approximately 12 percent of movie tickets are bought with credit cards, he said.

PHONE PURCHASES are picked up the night of the show at a designated window, Merck said. Custo movie - but the number seems to be growing, he said.

"There are a lot of advanced sales and we're certain we will sell more."

The system will accepts Visa, MasterCard, American Express and Discover.

BUT ROBERT KLEINHANS found using credit cards more trouble than it was worth. He is the local general manager for Star Theatres, which has three theaters in metropolitan Detroit - Star Rochester Hills, Star Taylor and the Winchester Mall Cinema. Tickets can still be bought in advance, but the cinema requires they be bought with cash. "We used to (sell tickets with credit cards over the phone), but then people wouldn't show," Kleinhans said.

coupon books

By R.J. King special writer is the providence

¹ Despite the many trade barriers, currency and languages, .Entertainment Publications in Troy expanded in Europe five years ago. But the world's leading publisher of leisure discount programs soon ran into problems unrelated to government restrictions and individual cultures.

The Europeans, as the company soon found out, were not as savvy as Americans when it came to savings. Planning to mimic its success in the Unites States, Entertainment Publications wanted to introduce its discount books in 8-10 cities per year.

But since 1985, just four cities -London, Copenhagen, Glasgow and Stockholm - have booklets circulating, and only on a limited basis.

In a tale of how two can often fare better than one, Entertainment Publications recently signed a joint venture agreement with Rikskuponger AB of Stockholm, the world's secondlargest distributor of luncheon vouchers.

European subsidiarles - a move the more movement between countries

AN AFFILIATE OF the Wallenberg Group, which owns Saab and accounts for more than 40 percent of Sweden's national income, Rikskuponger developed as a result of the employer's desire to eliminate cafeteria service to employees, which is a typical benefit in Sweden.

The Swedish company distributed luncheon vouchers that workers could use to buy meals at local restaurants, Potiker said.

"With Rikskuponger's background in coupons, we thought it was algood idea to establish a strong link in Eu- service organizations as the the rope before the trade barriers come American Red Cross, Easter Seals down in '92. The companies include American Express, Procter & Gamble, Sears Roebuck and Troy-based Kelly Services.

> In fiscal 1989, which ended in June, Entertainment Publications sold more than 2.5 million books in 87 market areas. Revenues were up 20 percent from the previous year, at $74.4 million. But despite the success, Eurpoe still looms as an uncharted market.

"ANOTHER PROBLEM we ran into was that Europe does not have the non-profit and charity network that the United States has," said John McBrearty, senior vice president of finance. Seventy percent of the books sold by the company last year were through community and tomers can also put a $10 charge on their credit card to use at the concessions stand, he said.

"You get a little slip of paper, when you get your tickets and use it like funny money."

Over-the-phone credit card purchases are assessed a 50-cent surcharge per ticket, but tickets bought in house with credit cards are sold at face value, he said. المرجار المرجان المح

CREDIT CARD purchases are just as fast as money purchases, Merck said. A window teller takes a card, runs it through a scanner and hands over the tickets and a receipt. Credit card purchases do not require signatures so the line should move as fast as cash lines, he said.

"What people really like is when you have a blockbuster movie like 'Batman,' you can call ahead and get tickets without standing in line. It's also of benefit to us because we know what we need for crowd control."

Merck is not certain how many credit card purchases are made in advance — it varies from movie

NO-SHOWS - ESPECIALLY for blockbuster movies - are aggravating to both theater management and the movie customer who can't get in to see a show. No-shows can also cancel credit card purchases, so the theater loses both the pre-purchased ticket sale and money that could have been made if the vacant seat had been filled.

And credit purchases cost theaters more to process, Kleinhans said. With the cost of film rental and operating overhead, Star Theatres decided to stay away from credit cards because of extra costs, he said.

Take risks, exec says

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

Without entrepreneurs, the U.S. economy cannot prosper.

Former General Motors chairman and chief executive officer Thomas A. Murphy told Madonna College business students Monday that they, the entrepreneurs of the future, are faced with the arduous task of keeping the American economy strong. "Entrepreneurship is what made this country great," he said, adding that risk-taking, the foundation of entrepreneurship, is essential for growth Murphy was the first speaker in the Madonna College Michael F. McManus distinguished business lecture series at the Livonia campus.

But a willingness to take risks is not a guarantee of success, he said. Hard work and knowing how long to follow an idea of drop it are also critical. "Don't get so hard-headed that you refuse to acknowledge an idea is not going to work.

"Anytime you try something, you gain from it. The reward may not be success," he added, but no effort is without some benefit - even if it is only experience and knowledge.

Murphy said that while the spirit of entrepreneurship is alive in this country, other countries have taken great steps in establishing similar - and perhaps even greater - entrepreneur-based economies.

There's just not a great deal of fund-raising done in Europe, as it is here in the United States."

EUROPE WAS perhaps 10 years behind America in acceptance of promotions and discounting, Pottiker sald. "Even credit cards are just now creeping in. Where we'll probably find success, and we're doing it now in the Scandinavian countries, is developing relationships with small clubs and encourage them to give us a try."

This is our October 1989 starting A.P.R. A 14.75% A.P.R. Cap applies. The starting A.P.R. is a special introductory rate for the first six months of your loan, at which time the rigidar A.P.R. (10.87% in October 1989) goes into effect. For example, based on the current index, the regular monthly payment for each $1,000, borrowed on an 18-year loan would be $9.94 for the first six payments (based on a 9.75% A.P.R.), and $10.56 for the remaining 210 payments (based on a 10.87% A.P.R.). The overall A.P.R. for the entire loan term in the example would be 10.84%. A study of work methods or a program to improve them often creates a nervous working environment until employees understand what is going .00.

People often resent being questioned about how and why they do specific tasks. Employees often fear that a study of work methods will result in criticism. More important, most workers resist changes they don't understand.

Therefore, it is essential to explain why work methods are being studied, how the process will be implemented, and then solicit suggestions from those responsible for doing the job. The best ideas for improvement almost always come from those who are involved directly in the job or activity on a day-to-day basis.

Before initiating any program for improving work methods, it is important that obvious bottlenecks in the operation are identified. These would be the areas of the business that create continuing problems.

Laughs are her labor of love

By Shiriee Rose Iden staff writer

For Rosie O'Donnell, it's as much laugh as an audience of thousands.

"Comedy comes from love, and I love tickling people's funny bones." said the stand up (and coming) comedienne

Originally from Long Island, N.Y., O'Donnell concedes that "I sound like a New Yorker these days only when I lose my cool." Other times, her New York accent dissolves into native Tenneseean, sultry southern belle, Irish brogue, by which she comes naturally, via her father, or others.

O'Donnell, while no one-of-a-kind in show business recalls that "When I started 10 years ago, there were hardly any female comics and that was an important asset."

"I've been in every single state fun making the grocery checker and I don't like being on the road at all," she said.

> O'DONNELL, despite her widespread experience nationally is just 27 years old:

> 'I give audiences my perception of things," she said.

"I focus on families, relationships, and embarrassing situations, and entertain general audiences," she said: "I portray a very relatable character."

Just 22 years old, she was a finalist on Ed McMahon's "Star Search." appearing six times. Her career really started on "Star Search," she concedes; although she didn't get the $100,000 prize.

'Gimme A Break." She played Mag-"gie O'Brien an Irish "Rhoda" character for 12 episodes.

"It was an invaluable experience," she said.

O'Donnell still enjoys comedy. She has produced a number of scripts for television and would like to do children's shows and produce Hollywood movies.

"I'd really like to do a musical comedy." she added.

Living in Manhattan for now, she has tried Los Angeles. She admits she doesn't really enjoy either the Big Apple or L.A.

"What I do like is Colorado," she said. "Three years ago, I went to a ski event for Cystic Fibrosis and I COMEDY COMES easy to O'Don- fell in love. My dream is to live in Colorado."

You can help Alzheimer's patients get over some mejor obstacles.

In 1988 over 200,000 people in Michigan suffered from Alzheimer's disease. By next year that number is expected to be over 332,000.

Feel fortunate that you're able to remember these statistics, because an Alzheimer's victim would be lucky to remember your name. For them, remembering how to do even the most simple tasks can be next to impossible. And as their mind deteriorates, their family's state of mind does, too.

Your contribution to the United Way Torch Drive supports 153 agencies in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties, like the Alzheimer's Association and Caregivers-two organizations which counsel families of Alzheimer's victims and provide in-home care. Plus, you'll be helping agencies which feed the hungry, prevent child abuse and offer services to the mentally disabled.

Please, think about how much your contribution does and how much more there is to be done. And this year give even more to the United Way Torch Drive. And help make the problems of those affected by Alzheimer's a little easier to manage.

United Way

Give, for all the good you can do.

Lady Ocelots seek tournament repeat ave to play as well as we did tonight with fewer errors to beat them."

Glenn's defense meets challenge

By Brad Emons staff writer

The Observer Newspapers-

-Even-in-their-only-defeat-of-the season, a 23-15 setback to state nower Farmington Harrison, the Westland John Glenn football team made a lasting impression.

Harrison had paid the price for victory. Several of the Hawks admitted afterwards that they had been hit like they've never been hit before.

"The basic idea with our defense is bend, but don't break," said thirdyear defensive coordinator Mike Henry, "But when things shorten up and they're inside the 20, it's time not to break-

Last week, in the first round of the state Class A playoffs, the Rockets put the hurt on Dearborn Fordson, coming away with a 20-7 victory. "One of the things we try and establish is the reputation of being a good hitting team," said Henry.

This week Glenn faces another challenge, the top-ranked and unbeaten Warriors from Birmingham Brother Rice.-(Game time is 1:30 p.m. at Glenn.)

According to Henry, Rice presents another stiff challenge for his defense.

QUARTERBACK BOB UTTER often uses play-action before rolling out of the pocket. And if he's not handing the ball off to fullback Steve Morrison (453 yards) or tailback Sean Johnson (415), he's hitting a slew of receivers led by tight end Pète Mitchell.

The Glenn defense has been stingy all year as this Dearborn Fordson can attest in last week's state playoff game.

anyone familiar with this perfectionist who coaches Schoolcraft College's volleyball team knows that's saying alot,

The Lady Ocelots had just played one of their best matches of the season, beating the University of Windsor 15-12, 11-15, 15-3, 15-11 Tuesday at SC. The match meant nothing; it was a non-conference tune-up for the National Junior College Athletic Association Region 12 Tournament, which starts today at SC.

But this tune-up could not have come at a more opportune time. SC lost last Saturday to NCAA Division II power Oakland University (ranked 17th nationally) 20-18, 4-15, 15-9, 15-4. Teeters felt his team needed a spark if it were to make it to the NJCAA Tournament to defend the title it won last year.

The Lady Occlots may have gotten it against Windsor. Indeed, Teeters thought this year's team may be in better position than last year's.

"ACTUALLY, WE'RE going in (to the regional) on a better note," he said, as his team improved to 33-9. "Last year, we lost to Windsor in" four games (before the regional). This year we beat them in four, and Windsor has basically the same team."

It may seem like Teeters is confident of SC's chances this weekend, but don't believe it. "Lansing is the No. 1 team in the region," he said, 'even though SC is the tournament's top seed. "They've beaten us, in the finals of our tournament. I feel we've got to take it from them." And, although either SC or Lansing are considered odds-on favorites to capture the regional crown, Teeters said this tournament could be the most competitive in years.

"There're more teams going for dominant teams: Lansing, Southwestern CC and ourselves. Then there are three other contenders (Mott, Macomb and Lake Michigan), darkhorses who could win it."

volleyball

ELEVEN TEAMS will start the double-elimination tourney at 10 a.m. today. Play will continue at SC through Saturday, with the start of the championship round slated for 4 p.m. If two matches are required, the second will begin at 6 p.m. Satur-

The winner advances to the NJCAA finals in Miami.

As the top seed, SC gets a firstround bye. The Lady Ocelots won't play until 10 a.m. Friday; their opponent will be the winner of the Mott-Kalamazoo Valley match, which will be played at 6 p.m. today.

Other first-round matches today are Vincennes (Ind.) vs. Kellogg CC at 6 p.m. and Muskegon vs. Lake Michigan at 7:30 p.m.

In the second round, Lansing, which also got a first-round bye, meets the Muskegon-Lake Michigan winner; Macomb-goes-against the Vincennes-Kellogg victor; and Lakeland (Ohio) plays Southwestern. All second-round matches in the winner's bracket start at 10 a.m. Friday.

"The key for us;" said Teeters, "will be playing consistently as a team and getting a lot out of our serves. We have to serve tough with very few errors.'

SC, WHICH lost at home to Lansing 15-4, 15-10, will have to perform even better than it did against Windsor to beat the region's other, top team. "(Lansing's) very tall, a great (the title)," he said. "There are three " blocking team," said Teeters. "We'll of which were aces "She's going to L ve to have a really good tournameat," said Teeters. "When the game's on the line, I want her back there serving.'

Others who could be important factors for SC are sophomore cocaptain JoAnn Kolnitys ("She has to have strong blocking games. She has to be a dominant force up there for us"): setter Jenny Sproul ("She's been consistent all year. She's shown me a lot for someone who never played setter in high school"); and Kirsten Stelzer/("She has to stay aggressive. We've been getting good hitting out of her since mid-season")....

Teeters does think his team can repeat. "I don't know if we have the consistency we had last year," he said. "But our serving is tougher, and we're not as short. Also we have a much stronger bench than last year."

So the components are there. If they mesh, the Lady Ocelots will be taking aim at a second-straight-NJCAA championship.

SC NOTES In Tuesday's win over Windsor, the Lady Ocelots got nine kills from both Elena Oparka and Stelzer and seven kills and 12 block assists from Kolnitys. Hotlie Brachel led the defense with 12 digs. Love's serving turned the match in SC's favor. The two teams split the first two games, and Windsor led 3-0 in the third until Love stepped to the line. Her eightstraight points put SC in command the rest of the way, she finished with six service aces.

In the loss at OU Saturday. Stelzer had 18 kills and Oparka had 17. Kolnitys linished with four solo blocks and 11 block assists, and added 12 digs. Love linished with 12 digs, and Brachel had 10.

Frysinger's return puts Northwood back in hunt

Last week, Glenn held Fordson to 51 yards passing, but gave up 121 yards rushing.

"Basically our front-seven must stop the run first and then control the pass," Henry said. "We've worked hard this week at stopping the run first, but we want to control Utter, too. He's a good quarterback. He has good feet and good quicknessand can throw on the run."

Morrison's running also concerns Henry.

'He's just outstanding," said the Glenn coach, who spent 13 years as an assistant at Wayne Memorial before coming to Glenn. "He's got good speed and size. We're going to have to stop him."

Glenn's defensive attack is led by inside linebacker Mark Johnston, a 6-foot-2, 230-pound senior, and defensive end Kraig Kuban (6-1, 182).

"Mark's the quarterback, he'll make adjustments based on the formations that are thrown at us," Henry said. "He has a lot of responsibili-

"And Kraig's one of our captains, another one of our leaders out there."

SAM WEDDINGTON, a 5-8, 170-3 bound senior, is small by nose guard standards, but has been effective because of his quickness.

The tackles are junior Alex Kaye (6-2, 206) and senior John Hodor (6-2, -175), both whom have provided steady interior play this season. Kuban and Ken Oliver, a 6-1, 178-pound senior, are the defensive ends. Johnston and senior Todd Horseman (5-11, 219) will be at inside linebacker.

Horseman, also a center, has been moved into the defensive starting lineup this week. He is only one of two Glenn players who will go both ways. (The other is Johnston, an offensive tackle.)

Some of Glenn's best defensive play this season has come from the secondary, led by senior free safety Tom Luxton (5-10, 162), whose hit in the end zone last week against Fordson prevented a touchdown.

He is joined in the secondary by senior Tommy Lawrence (5-11, 162), senior Brian Stephenson (6-0, 168) and senior Chris Madish (6-1, 186).

"It (the secondary) is a good group," said Henry, a defensive back himself in high school. "They react well to the ball."

Glenn, which has given up only 8.1 points per game, will be the underdog again this week.

But if the defense continues its elastic approach, another upset could be in the making.

Salem bounces Franklin

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Plymouth Salem had reason to be motivated for its semifinal game with Livonia Franklin in the Western Lakes Activities Association girls basketball tournament Tuesday.

The Rocks were beaten by 35 points when they played Franklin during the regular season, but revenge wasn't what they had in mind.

"We wanted to get to the championship real bad, and that was the motivating factor for us," said Salem junior Sarah Ruete, who scored a career-high 22 points to lead the Rocks (12-7).

Until last year, that was an annual tradition at Salem. After a one-year absence, the Rocks return to the WLAA championship game for their fourth appearance in five years.

Their opponent for the 8 p.m. final at Salem will be defending champion Plymouth Canton, which advanced with a 61-34 victory over North Farmington in the other semifinal Tuesday. The Chiefs were runners-up to Salem from 1985-87.

The 58-23 loss Franklin (16-3) inflicted in early October was a low point for the Rocks, but Salem, which owns a six-game winning streak, is following in the footsteps of previous teams and making a go of it late in the year.

"WE WERE struggling at that point in the season," Ruete said. "We were winning some and losing some, and now we're starting to make our run.

"(Coach Fred Thomann) is the kind of coach who gets you ready for that. We take care of business during the year and give it our all in the tournament."

A big difference Tuesday as opposed to the first Salem-Franklin meeting was better execution on offense, according to Ruete and Thomann.

"We played the same style of basketball," Thomann said. "We just did a better job of executing, and we made some big shots early that gave us some confidence."

The real key, however, was the Rocks continuing to believe they could win despite being down by eight points, 28-20, at halftime, Thomann said.

The game turned in the third quarter when Salem railied from a 10-point deficit to lead 37-35 at the end. That made for a close fourth period with the Rocks never losing their edge in momen-, tum.

"This was one we wanted real bad," Franklin coach Dan Freeman said, "but we went cold in the third quarter. Dawn' (Warner, who scored a game-high 26 points) had some bounce around the rim and out, and we had some defensive lapses.

"FRED'S TEAM, come tournament time 'and I don't care what they're like at the beginning of the season - is always going to be ready."

Freeman and the Patriots had more serious matters on their minds Tuesday. Freeman, who will enter the University of Michigan Hospital today to receive -a second opinion regardingtreatment for a pancreatic tumor, was coaching his last game for Franklin this year.

Freeman said he didn't know if he'd be able to coach his team this week and told his players of his situation last Thursday.

"It was an emotional time, a tough time," Freeman said. "I held it back from the kids as long as I could, because I wanted them to concentrate on basketball.

"I don't know if it was a distraction tonight or not. We just got outplayed in the third quarter.

"The story should really be the ballgame," he added. "Both teams played hard;-we came-up-blittle short."

Juliann Stesiak scored the first basket of the third quarter to extend Franklin's lead to 10 points, but the Patriots didn't score another field goal in the period.

SALEM, MEANWHILE, ralled to the (31-31) on Emily Giuliani's hook shot. Wendy Balley and Ruete baskets forced two more ties before the Rocks took their first lead, 37-35, since midway in the second quarter on Betsy McAllister's basket with :08 remaining.

Warner, after going scoreless in the first period, scored 15 points, which included three triples. in the second quarter to lift Franklin into a 28-20 halftime lead.

She was 4-of-4 shooting free throws in the third period and had three field goals in the finale, including a triple at the buzzer to account for the final margin.

"We adjusted at halftime to get better pressure on their perimeter players," Thomann said. "Even though we didn't get much off our pressure, it didn't allow them to come down and get into a rhythm."

Ruete hit a triple to break a 39-39 tie early in the fourth quarter, and the Rocks held the lead for the duration.

Warner's baseline layup with 1;27 to play made it 45-43. On the try' for a three-point play, she missed the free throw, but there was no Franklin rebound.

-SALEM'S KELLY Austin, who scored 11 points, made three free throws, and Ruete and Giullani, who added nine points, hit two each to give the Rocks a 52-45 lead with 15 seconds left. Shannon Eberly also had nine points for the Patriots.

Thomann admitted to being a little surprised at his team, given the youth and inexperience with which it began the year, having the chance to play for the league title.

"I thought we would get better as the season went on," he said, "but to get to the championship game with the really tough teams in our league I knew would be a tough task.

"It's just a really neat feeling to watch young players grow and step out to make some shots under pressure. Lord knows you have to have defense, but you have to be able to make some shots; too."

Westland's Burt at peace with himself

By Ray Setlock staff writer

Back where it all began.

That's where Hartford Whaler and Westland native Adam Burt was when he stepped on the Joe Louis Arena ice Friday to square off against the Red Wings.

Burt was making his first appearance here since June of 1987, when the Whalers selected him in the second round of the National Hockey League Draft. Ironically, that draft took place on the floor of Joe Louis Arena. 🖉 🔒

Family and friends showed up to cheer Burt on Friday, some of whom hadn't seen him since draft day.

• A chorus of cheers shook portions of the arena when Burt stepped on the ice for warm-ups, with many of them coming from former teammates and coaches who have and some of the team's post-game watched Burt develop over the gatherings, but Burt doesn't mind. years.

"I left some tickets at the gate for my parents," Burt said. "But it was nice to see a lot of people who I've come in contact with over the course of my career come out to see me." Burt gave them their money's worth, playing a regular shift on defense and even getting involved in a little rough activity with Red Wing enforcer Joe Kocur.

"I'M LIVING my dream," Burt said. "But this wouldn't be possible without the strength of The Lord."

Two years ago, Burt decided to become a born-again Christian. This, he says, changed his life.

"It gave me a new perspective on the way-I perceive people and life," Burt said. "Let's just say I got my priorities.straight.'

Burt's new-found relationship with The Lord abstains him from alcohol

Peterson, also born again, suggested that Burt still go out with his teammates, but drink orange juice: But no matter what Burt does after the game, during the game he remains a fixture on the Whalers' defense.

Although he is still considered a rookie, Burt had a brief stint with the Whalers last season, playing in Whalers' assistant coach Brent five games. He split the rest of the season between North Bay of the Ontario Hockey League and Binghamton of the American Hockey League. "I played in five games, but only got about six shifts," Burt said. "It wasn't a taste of the NHL, but rather a small snack."

THIS SEASON, the plot to Burd's story has been much different, as the 6-foot, 190-pound defenseman has played in 14 of the first 16 games for "I've met a lot of super people the Whalers. He has an assist and 17, there." minutes in penalties.

"There's definitely a future in Hariford for Adam Burt," said Whalers General Manager Ed Johnstone. "He gets better and better with each game,"

Burt said the key to his success is his confidence level, something which comes from plenty of playing time,

"The more I play, the more confident I am." he said. "They realize that I am going to make some rookie mistakes, but they keep sticking me out there."

Off, the ice, the former Redford Catholic Central student enjoys weightlifting and spending time with his wife Susan,

Although Burt remains a resident of Westland, he and Susan are looking for a home in the Hartford area since it appears he has a definite career in the works.

"I really like Hartford," Burt said.

Whether it was "The Lord's doing" or just something Burt did on his own, the Whalers are reaping his talents and hoping his steady play on defense can prevent the puck from getting past goalle Mike Liut.

"HE'S A QUALITY defenseman," Johnstone said. "He excels at so many phases of the game. Once he gets the over the pressures of playing in the NHL, he'll be a hot commodity."

For Burt, much of the pressure extends from the traveling involved with professional sports.

"You can get exhausted from the travel," Burt said. "Especially when you are playing a regular shift."

Tired or not, Burt was back home Friday. Back in Joe Louis Arena, where it all began. Back where he watched games as a youngster and where his dreams were just a stone's throw away.

Schoolcraft's season ends in Illinois, 1-0

By C.J. Risak staff writer

Van Dimitriou looked at the scoreboard moments after the mens soccer team from Lewis and Clark Community College had scored. There was just 2:46 left in the match; as the time started ticking away, Dimitriou could not suppress a feeling of numbness.

"I started thinking, 'Doggone it, when's it going to happen?'" the Schoolcraft College coach said. "I remember thinking on the way to the match, 'We're going to need some breaks to win this thing.'

"When it was over, Lewis and Clark had gotten the breaks and prevailed, 1-0, leaving Dimitriou and the SC players again with hopes for better luck next time.

Saturday's first-round game in the National Junior College Athletic Association Inter-regional Tournament at DuPage College in Glen Ellyn, Ill., was a hopeful one for SC. The Ocelots have not advanced to the NJCAA finals in 10 years; this year, after after second-ranked Triton CC was eliminated for using ineligible players, seemed to be their chance.

·Chris Speen, who returned from a knee injury and started at midfield, had apparently scored when L&C keeper Brad Schiller dropped the ball in his own goal five minutes into the game. However, none of the officials were in position to make the call, said Dimitriou. The goal was not allowed.

It just got worse after that for SC. Midfielder Rick Menary was given a yellow card midway through the first half and went to the bench. Then stopper Dave Dinglie — who was dominating during the first 30 minutes - got kicked in the shin he had injured previously and was lost for rest of the game.

the best player in the game." said Dimitriou - the Ocelots kept pressuring. But momentum reversed when Menary received his second yellow, which means an automatic red card and ejection, with 18 minutes left.

SC was forced to play the rest of the match short one player. Still, with five minutes to go, Jerry Staszel came close to putting the Ocelots ahead, but his shot was deflected by Schiller just enough; it banged off the crossbar.

L&C got the game's only goal when the ball was centered into the SC box. A defender attempted to clear it, but L&C's John Scorfina got possession and squeezed a shot into the corner of the net with just 2:46 left. ---

"We played the-best we've ever played down there," said Dimitriou, who singled out the defensive efforts of keeper Jeff Shuk and back T.J. Flowers, as well as Sobolak, Saylor and Dinglie. "They were a good team, a well-balanced team. But a break here or there and we could have won."

tune turned; Frysinger went to Ann Arbor seeking a second opinion, and was told arthoscopic surgery could determine how severe her injury was.

"The doctor went into my shoulder not knowing what he would find." she said. "If it was a torn rotator cuff, I could not have come back."

What he found was torn cartilage and a badly weakened rotator cuff. He removed the cartilage and said Frysinger would be sidelined four weeks.

The operation was Tuesday, Sept. 26. The following Sunday, Frysinger started once-a-day rehabilitation sessions with the NI trainer.

Three days later, Frysinger said she was "full of energy" and wanted to increase her rehab sessions. "We figured if we had two sessions a day. 'L'd recover twice as fast," she said.

SUCH LOGIC may seem silly, but it worked. Frysinger returned to action two weeks after surgery. "I think it's a credit to Joan and our training staff," said Fegan, whose team rallied behind Frysinger. With her, the Northwomen are 19-4; without her, they are 4-3. "Not only is she physically gifted, but she's mentally gifted as well," Fegan added. "(Her quick return)

Which is one more element that separates Frysinger from other topnotch athletes. "You see a lot of great athletes who don't reach-their potential because they don't have the 18. maturity," said Fegan.

Frysinger does. "Her maturity and mental capabilities on the floor (are her greatest attributes)," the NI coach said. "When Joan leaves the floor after a match, she's left everything she's had to give behind."

Frysinger's abilities have again been recognized. She was named the NAIA District 23 player of the year, was a first-team all-district selection and was one of six NAIA national players of the week. She leads NI

Team of the '80s

Shamrocks put it all together in finals

By Brad Emons staff writer

4D(L,F,W,G)

When it comes to boys cross country, the decade belongs to Redford Catholic Central High. The Shamrocks captured their third state championship of the '80s, winning the Class Atitle with 124 points in a meet held Saturday at Flint's IMA-Brookwood Golf Course.

Ann Arbor Pioneer was second with 145 and Milford third with 147.

Plymouth Salem, which defeated rival Plym-, outh Canton for the first time this season, took sixth in the 27-team field with 230. Canton was seventh with 243 and defending state champion Monroe finished eighth with 253,

It was only a week earlier when Canton surprised CC in the regional.

"We could have quit after the regional, but our spirits were up and we had a good week of practice," said CC coach Tony Magni. "In a way it helped us a little because going into the regional we were a little overconfident. All five guys didn't run well. But Saturday we felt going in that if we all ran well, we could take it.'

CC'S TOP MAN all season, senior Mike Sheridan, stayed close to the leaders before finishing third with a time of 15:48.77 over the 5,000-meter course.

Bill Cowan of Birmingham Brother Rice.took the crown in 15:33.4. Bill Stricklen of Sterling Heights Ford finished second in 15:42.15.

"Mike would have loved to have won it, he's lost only once all year," Magni said. "After Gowan took off at the two-mile mark, Mike could have burned himself out trying to keep up, but he wanted to make sure he made a good finish.

'He said this (the state title) is better than winning the individual."

The Shamrocks needed more than just Sheridan, however, to earn the title.

Jay Schemanske was 16th in 16:11.86; Chris Antczak, 19th, 16:19.27; Dave Galvin, 23rd, , 16:24.58; and junior Jon Borke, 63rd, 16:53.6.

Galvin came on strong during the final three weeks of the season, bouncing back when he was

boys cross country

stabbed in an attack over the summer.

Schemanske, meanwhile, ran his best race of the season, while Antezak stayed right behind him.

Borke, in his first year of varsity cross country after coming over from the school band, put on a spurt in the last 200 meters, passing 15 to 20 runners, according to Magni.

"I THOUGHT 140 (points) would win it," Magni said. "I knew we'd be in the hunt. As long as we stayed healthy, I knew we'd be there. We won it in '83 and '84, but this is more satisfying than the first two because it was kind of unexpected." Salem,' meanwhile, recorded its best state meet finish ever. (The Rocks were 15th in 1987.) Leading the way for Salem was junior John Thomas, who finished 28th in 16:29.25. Rounding out the Rocks' contingent was senior Brian Uryga, another first-year runner, who took 30th, 16:30.43; senior Brendan Masterson, 40th, 16:39.4; senior Dave Hamway, 62nd, 16:52.97; and Samir Bhavsar, 16:58.74.

"We save our best for last," said coach Geoff Baker. "They (Canton) beat us in every race, but we felt we could beat them. We just didn't prove it on those days that we ran them."

Masterson, Salem's top runner all season, was still feeling the effects from a virus that he been suffering from over the past few weeks.

"After the regional, we felt Brendan would be back to his formal self," Baker said. "He still felt weak, but if he hadn't finished strong for us, we wouldn't have beaten Canton.

"We felt we could have a 25-point swing there, and we would be right in there with Canton and CC. We felt we could beat both after the regional. CC must have been a little off at the regional because they came back and ran a tremendous race Saturday."

CANTON'S Brian Beach turned in a sparkling performance, leading the Chiefs with a 10thplace finish (16:04.71).

He was followed by teammates Mike Ream, 40th (16:39.72); Matt Boland, 51st (16:44.86); Matt Hall, 59th (16:50.97); Jason Napolitano, 82nd (17:04.87).

"We ran our best times of the year, but not competitive times," said Canton coach Jim-Hayes. "We got a/little excited. We were in fast company.

"But I can't complain about being seventh in the state. If somebody would have told me we won at Schoolcraft (Invitational), RU (Redford Union Invitational), the regional and the league (Western Lakes Activities Association), I'd say that's a heck of a season.

"They did a good job. I'm proud of all of them."

-In the state Class A individual race, several area runners earned high marks including Farmington High junior Ben Goba, who was fourth in 15:58.05. (Brian Hyde of East Kentwood won the race in 15:41.51.)

Other top area finishers included junior Jeff Grosso of Walled Lake Western, ninth, 16:17.35; sophomore Bill Crosby of Western, 19th, 16:36.1; senior Mark Kwiatkowski of Walled Lake Central, 20th, 16:36.6; Scott Freeborn of Livonia Stevenson, 23rd,-16:41.96; junior Eric Curnow of Livonia Franklin, 43rd, 17:02.11; junior Rodney Westlake of Stevenson, 48th, 17:08.33; senior Eric Oswandel of Stevenson, 68th, 17:33.01; and Scott Westover of Livonia Churchill, 94th, 19:03.54.

IN THE CLASS D state meet Saturday at Frankenmuth, Lutheran High Westland finished sixth with 194 points.

Fowler won the championship with 47 followed by Pentwater (80) and Potterville (109).

Steve Watkins of Lutheran Westland was seventh overall in 17:42. Rounding out the Warriors' contingent was Kirk Stueber, 38th, 18:33; Steve Quinkert, 40th, 18:34; Doug Johnson, 45th, 18:40; and Todd Gibson, 64th, 19:23.

The Western duo of Jennifer Ray and Wendy Proos captured second and ninth, respectively, in the Class A individual event, and junior Jennifer Gerlach, runner-up in the Class D team race, led Lutheran Westland to a second-place finish.

Rives had the second-best time among all Class A runners. Her time of 18:45.31 was second only to Ann Arbor Pioneer's Bridget Mann, a freshman who won the team race in 18:12.17.

Senior Jennifer Kiel paced the Farmington girls in the team race, taking third place at 19:03.75 and finishing behind Tera Furst, a teammate of Mann who ran 18:55.99.

"LISA RAN to her potential today," North coach Bill Pinnell said. "I told her at the beginning of the Martin (64th), 20:37. year she could run under 19 minutes.

gunning for all year. I had been talking to her all week about her high this was an excellent way to finish logically up for it."

"She knew she had to stay focused on the race and open up a lead, because the last 200 yards were uphill and into the wind.

"She had a 20- to 30-yard lead, so it would have been hard for anybody to run her down," Pinnell added. Farmington had its best finish in the state meet, having been sixth in 1986 and 12th in 1987. West Bloomfield won the girls race and defending champ Pioneer was second.

KIEL TURNED in a school-record time, and all of the Falcons had personal bests. Scoring for Farmington were sophomore Allison Davis (39th), 20:17; junior Cheryl Casaroll (54th), 20:29; junior Jennifer Derwinski (57th), 20:30; and senior Margaret

"Everybody was up for the race," "This is one meet she had been Farmington coach John Barrett said. "They wanted to beat that 1986 record. We went up Friday night, school career coming to an end, and and I think everybody was psycho-

Barrett added Kiel had hoped to break 19 minutes, too, but was "satwell. They were elated. The whole team was on Cloud Nine."

Western's Ray, only a freshman, came very close to breaking 19 minutes, finishing second to Rives in 19:00.86.

The Warriors didn't have enough runners to have a team this year, but they had one of the best combinations around, as evidenced by sophomore Proos' ninth-place time of 19:39.82. -----

Lutheran Westland was runner-up to Fowler in the Class D team race, finishing 10 points behind the (Eagles), 42-52.

Gerlach completed the race at Frankenmuth High School in 20:53. Mary Latinga of Battle Creek St. Philip was first in 19:32. Others placing among the top 15 from the Westland school were Ellen Anderson, fifth, 21:07; Renee Ruth, 11th, 22:43; Lisa Afer, 12th, 22:48.

BORGESS FRESHMAN Erica Shepard, the Catholic League champion, was 14th in the Class B individin Fenton, running 20:02. Tecumseh's Przygodski said.

"It's a credit to our team that we came back to the state meet with five new kids (of the seven who ran Saturday) and were able to finish let alone be in the top half."

The Chiefs were led by sophomore Amy Smith, who was 17th in 19:49.62. Sophomore Kim Gudeth was 51st (20:28.10), senior Adrienne Garrow 93rd (20:57.57), senior Missy Jasnowski 153rd (21:08.91) and senior Kim Rice 109th (21:16.95).

"Kim Gudeth started the year as a basketball player and kept getting better all year long," Przygodski said. "Kim Rice was one of the kids who plugged along the last two years, and as a senior she blossomed and had a great year for us."

REDFORD UNION sophomore Tracey James and Farmington Hills Mercy senior Brigitte Dery also fared well in the Class A individual race. James was 36th (20:32.36) and Dery 41st (20:40.14).

Other area runners who placed among the 89 in the individual event were Livonia Stevenson sentor Tracy ual race at Tyrone Hills Golf Course-Clark (52nd, 20:54.27) and junior Carrie Creehan (57th, 20:59.74), Plym-

Theater is alive and well in suburbia Musical numbers hilarious in 'Oil City'

Performances of "Oil City" continue through Sunday, Dec. 3, at the Birmingham Theatre. For ticket information call the box office at 644-3533.

"Oil City" at the Birmingham Theatre is a highly entertaining, very funny bit of musical fluff adroitly performed by a quartet of immensely talented actors-musicians.

Ostensibly, the four-piece symphony of fictitious Oil City, Ohio, is performing for its 20-year high school reunion, and the audience becomes their classmates in the crepe-paperfestooned high school gym.

Actually the plot is non-existent, though the cast manages to deftly create characterizations from the brief dialogue between the musical numbers.

Mike Craver and Mark Hardwick are two of the show's four creators and appeared-in the original off-Broadway production, as well. Craver's character, also named Mike, is a former flower child of the '60s, who both looks and sounds like the more dim-witted of the Smothers Brothers. His slow, soft-spoken delivery is an amusing contrast to the strident tones of the female cast members.

EACH MEMBER of the musical quartet specializes in one instrument but changes off to an impressive array of others. Craver's specialty is > the synthesizer. which he comically suggests will make the other symphony members obsolete. Mark, Hardwick's nerdy character, lives with his mother and looks very much at home with his accordian, though he actually spends more time at the piano keyboard. Hardwick has a wonderfully expressive face that speak volumes. Christine Elliott's Mary specializes in the violin. She is as intensely uptight as her tightly curled hair, and the exaggerated exactness and volume of her voice suggests a cross between an elementary teacher and Vermont" but with all the romance missing, Audience participation is encouraged for the "Hokey Pokey." Director Larry Forde, another veteran of the original production, keeps the pace snappy. There's really no common thread holding the musical numbers together, but most of the time the audience is laughing too hard to notice.

Guys upstage gals in 'Odd Couple'

Weibel

Performances of the Plumouth Theatre Guild production of "The Odd Couple" continue through Saturday, Nov. 18. For ticket information call 420-2161.

"The Odd Couple" featuring that improbable pair Oscar and Felix is perhaps the best of Neil Simon's early work.

It's so good, in fact, that Simon later switched genders around, modified some dialogue and - voila! - he had a female version with almost as much comedic snap, crackle and pop as the original.

The Plymouth Theatre Guild production doesn't explode with hilarity, although its female characters manage their share of laughs. What's really funny (literally and figuratively) is how two men in minor roles upstage the whole cast.

Gregory Lee and Jeff Hammonds have great fun as two Spanish men-about-town who don't understand American women, the language or customs. Like "two wild and crazy guys" from "Satur- ture and pictures. It would have vivid characterizations and fast pacing required in comedy. By comparison, the women seem ticularly good among the friends to be coasting. Granted, the two who come over weekly to goesip men are more bizarre. But director and play Trivial Pursuit. Other Janice Anderson has cast an excellent variety of women.

though a little old compared to ber companions and with clothes a little too coordinated, her comedic reactions more than make up for these shortcomings.

Linda Bodnar gives us a consistently fastidious Florence. One might wish, however, that she moderate the complaining and whining qualities and accentuate lint-picking and the rearranging of furnia marine sergeant.

Mary Ehlinger's Debbie, a wife, mother and community pillar, takes out all her frustrations through vigorous assaults on her drums. Ehlinger's stage patter allows for many nuances of character, and she makes the most of it.

The show's music is as diverse as the characters. It includes classical, rock, big band, gospel and ragtime. Some of it is familiar, and some of the numbers are very clever original spoofs. For a Michigan audience, surely the funniest is "Ohio Afternoon," reminiscent of "Moonlight in

Eric Hissom plays Barry, the schizophrenic who uses golf as armor against a dangerous world. The only catastrophe in this otherwise gentle play comes at the hands of Barry's visiting father (Bradford Wallace), a supposedly normal man with a mean, selfish streak unequaled by anyone else in the play. Fourth in this group of apartment mates is Norman (Perry B. Stewart), a roly-poly glutton with a passion for doughnuts. Norman meets Shiela (Mary Lee Richey) at a dance for mentally impaired people and the two carry on a coy, gee-whiz courtship, sticky as honey.

Thanks to Mary Lee Richey's bubbly eagerness and Parry Stewart's boyish innocence, their scenes together cut through the sweetness in the play. The two characters' clumfalls away at the dance. Performances of the Troy Players production of "The Mousetrap" continue through Saturday, Nov. 18. For ticket information call 879-1285.

The world's longest continuously running play has come to Troy.

"The Agatha Christie's Mousefrap" is the Troy Players' opening gambit of the season. Cleanly directed by Stephen Kiersey, the cast of eight who find themselves stranded in Monkswell Manor are a fair match for each other.

It's an even production, all of the actors doing their best to frighten each other - and the audience - and succeeding. The troupe builds to a nice pitch. The suspense mounts with each scene.

Laurie Smith as Mollie Ralston, the young wife who has decided to run Monkswell Manor as a guest house, is a cut above the rest of the cast. Smith has the most demanding role and she seems to be running on raw talent.

By Richard Marsh special writer-

First Theater Gulld is undertaking a massive job with its current production, Rodgers and Hammerstein's 'Carousel.'

For its limited resources, the guild does a respectable job with the show. although much of the grandeur of Rodgers and Hammerstein's style is lost in the small Knox Auditorium of the First Presbyterian Church.

Downsizing big shows like "Carousel" always has inherent problems, such as trying to retain the grand feeling of the show. Musically, the guild provides an excellent show for the resources available. The small orchestra has a good sound to it and balances well with the singers, something many larger groups are unable to achieve.

Lead performers are good overall and have fine voices. Leading the cast is David Sikkelee as Billy Bigelow, Kelli Malisch as Julie Jordan. John Picha as Enoch Snow and Laura Loud as Carrie Pipperidge.

THE BARE-BONES set and props hamper the show somewhat, as it is hard to get into the right mood. For example, using just a simple park bench as a setting for a tree-lined path along the shore does not transmit the appropriate feeling. Granted, facilities limit what can be done, but this is what happens when shows like "Carousel" are downsized.

Costumes are well done and add to the show. Some of the performers' makeup is overdone, however. When the makeup stands out from the back of the auditorium, there is way too much on.

"Carousel" does work well for the group in at least one other respect. It gives a large number of people, including lots of children, a chance to be on stage, the main reason for a Betsy Evans as Nettie Fowler has small group attempting a show like

Edna is a good scout until the day she loses her job and comes home to no water. Having coped with late hours, garbage strikes, hospital strikes, bus strikes and Mel's relatives, not being able to take a bath is the turning point for Edna. It acts on her the way the burglary acts on Mel, and Mel, who is growing healthier, soothes Edna.

Jerry Brader, as Harry, the older brother, looks every inch the solid, lonely man who had no time to be a boy. Brader is touching when he turns up with a $25,000 check to help

Mel buy a summer camp, and shakes his head when Mel, having regained" his playfulness, offers to kiss him and returns the check.

Just before the warehouse on Second closed for the last time, Marguerite Hague was out in front talking to customers, setting prices and stirring up enthusiasm for the Campus Treasure Shop.

Treasure sources dry up

But pickings have grown thinner, permission to salvage is harder to get and even the brave don't want to go into abandoned houses.

The other problem is financial. When she moved from her former warehouse to the tune of $50,000 in 1980 to the one she just closed on Second, she made an agreement with the building owner, Roxie Yaldoo of Southfield. He would give her the space rent-free and she would fix it up and make the outside look attrac- quick smile and said, "I still keep files on things 'He has really been a gentleman, but he has other plans for the building now. Plus, the presence of these two projects has been significant, "We've tried to be involved in every community thing - whenever anything special is going on we're there. It isn't the money, it's the concept of a presence and a concept of a people-to-people thing."

HAGUE ISN'T SHEDDING tears over the demise of the warehouse. She's already turned her attention to improving the Campus Treasure Shop, 5704 Cass, Detroit. She'll probably open it a second day a week. Currently it's open 2:30 p.m. to midnight on Wednesdays.

Local novelist takes success in his stride

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

Tom Sullivan, 48, of Lathrup Village is currently enjoying what all writers dream of - success.

He has two hot novels in the bookstores: "The Phases of Harry Moon," which came out last year, and this year's "Born Burning," both published by E.P. Dutton.

He will be the leading figure in "An Evening with Novelist Tom Sullivan" at 8 p.m. Monday at Cranbrook House, 380 Lone Pine, Bloomfield Hills, sponsored by the Cranbrook Writers Guild. Fee for nonmembers is $5.

Sullivan came on the national scene like a thunderbolt. But he had previously published what he calls a "paperback potboller" and sold a lot of short stories.

WHILE "Harry Moon" was nominated for a Pulitzer, and phone calls from movie people are not that unusual anymore, Sullivan is modest and boyishly friendly. Right now he plans to continue teaching school, he said.

"I'm there by choice," he said of his teaching position, ninth grade English at Fordson High in Dearborn.

Sullivan has been a gambler, "Rube Goldberg" innovator, coach, city commissioner and born-again athlete. He and his wife, Pris, have

He likes to have the history of the development of the work in front of him, "filled with all kinds of declensions and brackets," he said. But, "I can't edit it until it's in print?"

"I WRITE about families,"-Sullivan said:

He classifies his stories as "mainstream," even though some unsettling elements can raise the hairs on the back of the neck.

To scroungers, the warehouse was the mine where they occasionally uncovered buried treasures among the hundreds of doors lined up along the walls, in the bins of broken molding, in corners filled with parts of fireplaces, bannisters tive. and newel posts and in the boxes of hardware, casters, knobs, tiles and hunks of marble.

The scroungers experienced the thrill of discovering a choice piece of hand-carved molding, an oak door with beveled glass panes or a black walnut railing in a heap of rubble. 'Clay babies' give birth to new career

By Linda Lee Sparkman special writer

LOT of us dream of being able to make a living doing something we love to do. Debble Garrity, a 36-yearold Garden City artist/homemaker, is living that dream.

• Ever since she stumbled onto her creative talent of forming bits of dough into appealing little characters 12 years ago, she has progressed from the craft tables of local bazaars to being a supplier to more dough art for sale at a craft fair, and than -30 specialty shops throughout remembers her first thought - "Oh, Michigan.

Formerly known only as Debbie's clay things, Garrity recently gave her pieces an official name. She calls memory of her grandmother, who first used that description.

Considering the affection Garrity has for her little creations, the name is perfect. Gently holding a 2-inch teddy bear dressed in a ruffled tutu, Garrity says "I put a piece of my soul into each one of these."

The 1¹/₄-inch to 3-inch characters are completly handmade of a dura-ble colored clay, which is baked to a ceramic-like finish. Popular figures include teddy bears, bunny rabbits, little girls and boys, Amish people and whimsical animal figures, dressed in a wide variety of colorful outfits. In addition to the assortment of original designs, Garrity also does custom orders.

CUSTOM ORDERS have included things like pregnant teddy bears, or a bunny in a nursing uniform. She also supplies a number of Michigan high schools with cheerleader teddy bears colored to the school's specifications.

This all started with a trip to friend and a batch of this dough, the pair set to work. Two hours later. Garrity's friend was finished. "Then, she took her fist and went like this," said Garrity, smashing her fist into the table. "By that time I had about-10 or-11 made — and that was it."

"I sat home on Thursday nights," while my husband went bowling, and I made teddy bears. I didn't know what I was going to do with all of them," she said with a laugh.

ABOUT THAT TIME, Garrity saw my goodness! People actually buy these things." Needless to say, she soon had her own booth.

When Garrity learned the Camthem "Debbie's Clay Bables," in bridge Center (an adult education program in Garden City) was looking for crafters to teach in their evening program, she became the center's dough art instructor.

Because of the delicate nature of dough art, and the amount of time it took to make, Garrity was delighted to find another compound was available for her craft. When a fellow craftsperson introduced Garrity to the clay she now uses, she became one of the product's best customers.

"The company told me their business has quadrupled in this area," Garrity said. "They say it's because of Quaint and Country in Garden City," a reference to a shop she once owned.

Through teaching Garrity had gained access to wholesale houses, which led to her desire to open her own shop. "I couldn't even sleep at night - I was a nut case," Garrity said about her craving for a shop. "The whole idea was to open up a little clay store," she said. "But that's not a real big market, so I declded to open up a store and sell my -Frank's-Nursery,-almost-18-years-clay bables along with country ware,ago, where the then newlywed Garri- which is what I did," she said referty picked up a 25 cent pamphlet con- ring to the country gift shop, she taining a recipe for modified bread opened in Garden City in September at her shop. A sales representative came in to show Garrity miniatures made in Talwan. But when she saw Garrity's clay bables, the sales rep offered to try and sell them to other store owners.

About two weeks later, the ordersstarted coming in. "I didn't take it seriously at first," remembers Garrity.

"I thought, 'Oh, I'll wait to the last minute to do this.' But I've been trying to catch up ever since."

Garrity soon found herself having a hard time finding enough time to satisfy her clay customers and keep the shop going at the same time. "I'd be up till 2 or 3 a.m.," she said. "I even had to close the store periodically for two or three days, just so I could catch up on my clay orders."

So in September of this year, Garrity sold the shop and began working full time from her home, filling orders which average 400 characters each week.

"I LIKE THE freedom, and I like being home with my children," she said of her new arrangement. And she loves working with the clay. "I'm just like a little kid who likes to play with playdough," Garrity said. The only drawback for the artist now is the pressure of getting her orders out on time.

Garrity's husband lends not only his support, but also "his great; blg hands," to help mix the clay into colors. The three Garrity children, ages 10, 9 and 7 also do their part, collecting cash from mom for each color they mix.

Garrity considers herself "really, fortunate. There's a lot of people who haven't found what they're good at," she explained. "Or, they have to work at something they hate - I'm pretty spolled really."

Garrity's current plan is to "fill my orders and keep my customer's happy," But one day she hopes to en-joy the status of an artist of collectiGarden City resident Debbie Garrity sits among members of her "clay bables' family.

Successful artist thrives on versatility

TOW THAT my boys are older, the morning work of getting them off to school is, pretty much over,

Scott, the oldest, is in college. Kevin is in his senior year of high school. And Adam is in the fifth grade.

But just a few years ago, getting them all ready for school was quite an ordeal for my wife. She had to be a psychologist and a minister to get Adam to even think about going to school. By 9:15 a.m., Sandy had been a cook, laundry maid, counselor, treasure hunter, cheerleader and sometimes chauffeur. So versatility is the key element for the successful wife and mother of this day and age.

VERSATILITY IS, likewise, a key element for the successful artist. Of course "success" is a very relative term.

So let me clarify that by assuming that you wish to earn money doing artwork. If that is what you want, ask yourself, "What do I do that. people would be willing to pay for?"

If you cannot come up with a selection of commercial applications of your abilities, then. you need to become more versatile.

Without versatility, you are like a store that sells only one item. Artwork is much like a retail store. You are the store front, your abilities are your services and your artwork is your stock in trade.

FOR EXAMPLE, last week I received a lastminute request for a master sculpture of a new toy to come on the market.

My original piece was sent immediately to Tokyo for tooling and I thought I was all done. Two days later, I received an even more frantic call saying, "They were shooting the commerclal in three days in California, and I need the full color package design tomorrow."

Of course; I didn't like the last-minute order, * but the job was fun and rewarding. Then I painted some signs, started some sketches for an office plaza logo and entered a few pleces in an art show:

On my "board" for next week is a caricature, a rubber mold for a customer's sculpture, promotional cartoons for a hospital and an airbrush retonching of a photograph. My point, of course, is to show you how open the field of art can be . . if you are versatile.

HERE IS a checklist of some of the stock in trade you should carry in your art "store."

Product illustrations in pen and ink and color. Airbrushing, both paintings and photo retouching. Cartooning and caricatures are always in demand.

Sculpturing is wonderful, and often you are the inventor's first approach to a three-dimensional product. Not to mention the purely aesthetic qualities of sculpture.

Sign painting is a must, and the financial benefits are immediate. Fashion design or the ability to draw people will always bring you plenty. of work as in catalogs, manuals and pamphlets.

Wall graphics are always fun and usually pay well.

SO DON'T be discouraged if very few of these areas of art seem familiar. You can learn to do anything and even earn as you learn.

Don't hesitate to ask questions. Most artists are happy to share their knowledge. Remember, your worth is not what you are, but what you can beçome, David Messing has been an art teacher in the area for many years. He is also the owner of the Art Store & More in Livonia.

Architecture has been viewed as a form of advertising. Just as the style of house we live in confers sicio-economic identification, so too does commercial architecture confer business success.

Today's office buildings are conscious of corporate identification, particularly when the corporation builds them. Such is the case with Michigan National Bank's headquarters in Farmington Hills, designed by Luckenback/ Ziegelman of Birningham, and Standard Federal Bank in Troy by the WBDC Groups of Grand Rapids.

The years 1972-82 saw a tremendous growth of Michigan National. The building of a headquarters served to unite the administrative activities that had been scattered in eight suburban locations.

STANDARD FEDERAL rises six stories above Big Beaver Road, each floor set back and suggesting the appearance of a streamline Egyptian step-pyramid clad in polished granite. The horizontal spans are cantilevered out over the ribbons of windows affording an outside view from within the largely unobstructed office areas. The Although both nevly opened headquarters were built to house banking operations, the contrast in architectural styles a unmistakable.

Michigan Nationals complex consists of four, 234-story buildings comprising 283,000 square feet at a cost of $31 millich. Set on 25 acres, it all has the ambiance of Amelican architectural vernacular: colonial Villiamsburg and Thomas Jefferson's Monticello The architects, however, were confronted with haking traditional architecture satisfy thendeds of a contemporary banking operation.

Within one of the builtings is an atrium light well below which is the 9,000 square-foot trading floor, a necessary part of any anking operation. On the wall is a commodities soden that flashes the Dow-Jones news. The screen oprises the bank's brokers structures and prototypes for American business of the current market when they're not looking at their computers, contemplating the next transaction on the programmed domestic and interational market screens.

450,000-square-foot, $80 million structure sits on five acres of the 27-acre site. Some of the additional acreage is given over to the open-air parking, a parking structure and retention ponds. The interior consists of a six-story atrium space with projecting convex glass parapets reminiscent of New York's Guggenheim Museum. The space greatly facilitates an expansive feeling to employees at their work stations. The overall plan allows for a balance of artificial and natural light and an ease of intra- and inter-office comunication.

The office arrangement is based on product distribution; first floor - banking, brokerage and consumer lending; second floor — mortgage lending. A centralized computer facility serves the headquarter's personnel and entire branch system.

Despite the differences in architecture, Michigan National's and Standard Federal's headquarter buildings can be viewed as state-of-the-art projecting into the 21st century.

Landscaping a 'sound investment'

By Andy Lang special writer

Building a home 'like baking cake'

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

Mote than ever before, people of average means are acting as contractors to build their own homes, according to Michigan Home Builder School president Fred Arnold,

The prospect of contracting a home can be intimidating, Arnold said, but it is not as difficult as people might think.

"There's a recipe to building a home - like in baking a cake. You add all the ingredients in the right quantities and in the right order until it's done.'

Contracting means acting as your own building manager and hiring subcontractors to do various tasks, Arnold said. "It doesn't mean picking up a hammer and going to work."

The Michigan School of Home Builders, based in Ann Arbor, offers intensive one-day seminars to individuals on how to act as a contractor. Seminars resume next spring.

Some of the topics covered at the seminars include buying a lot, affordability, pre-made plans versus hiring an architect, hiring and dealing with trades people and developing an efficient construction schedule.

The Michigan School of Home Builders, Arnold said, is an offshoot of Home Builders Financé Inc. a lender specializing in construction loans for "do-it-" yourself" home builders. While working as a construction loan officer, Arnold said he saw many people who wanted to build, but who really had no idea how to start.

The most critical detail, he said, is an efficient construction schedule. Homes are built in phases, so an inefficient schedule results in workers waiting for one phase to be completed before starting on the next - that means additional cost to the final price of the home, Arnold said:

"People interested in self contracting are typically seeking three things - saving money, ensuring a consistent quality of construction and building a home specifically suited for them, he said.

"Being your own contractor can save you as much as 25 percent on the cost of a home," Arnold said. "People are walking through homes and seeing what they get for $175,000 and they're saying, 'Wait, I can do better.'

Arnold said it is impossible to easily define the average self contractor. Ten years ago, he said, the typical self contractor was 28- to 40 years old and looking for a second home, but today they range from those in the low 20s to empty nesters, and include first-time home buyers and people looking for vacation homes. In 1988, between 14,000 and 15,000 single-family homes were built in the Detroit metropolitan area, Arnold said: Of those, almost 20 percent were either self contracted or custom built.

costs associated with home building and also to familiarity with the concept. "It's not unusual to see someone building a home these days - it's like a song on the radio, the more you hear it the more comfortable you get with it."

Ingrid Baker feels comfortable enough with the idea and intends to self-contract a home on a parcel of property near Dryden in Lapeer County. She said she will hire subcontractors for basic foundation and rough carpentry work and then complete much of the interior herself.

An attendee of the most recent contracting seminar on Saturday at the Novi Sheraton Oaks, Baker said she has been thinking about building a home for more than a year, but now she is starting to get more serious, Saving money is her prime motivation for self contracting, she said, but she also wants=to-ensure she gets an individual home.

Another seminar attendee, John Stolla, said he isn't certain yet if he will contract his own home, but he is definitely leaning in that direction.

Custom home builders and contractors have quoted him prices ranging from $85 to $95 per square foot - far more than he cares to spend." "They figure that if you have property on a lake you've got a lot of money - well, they're wrong."

Stolla said he was fortunate enough to buy his lot before lakefront property values skyrocketed, but now building prices are driving up the cost of owning a home on a lake.

Brothers Matt, 24, and Rob Sprader, 19, are also considering self-contracting a home, but their motivation is to build a home and then sell it.

Matt Sprader said that under state law, he and his brother can build one a home a year without obtaining a contractor's license. In the past, the two have renovated other homes, he said, and now they've decided to take it one step further.

The brothers originally started out by looking for homes they could fix, Rob Sprader said, but it is becoming more difficult to find them. "There just aren't any handyman specials around anymore."

After buying some property in Walled Lake, the two began investigating several alternatives, including prefabricated homes, but none of the ones they were able to find seemed to suitable.

Insurance agency owner Richard LaFlamme said he has been thinking of building a home for about a year and has recently bought a lot in Michigan's thumb area near Caseville.

LaFlamme said he isn't certain yet whether he will actually contract for the home's construction. "I'm still looking for information right now."

The benefits of acting as a contractor seem obvious, he said, but there is one substantial drawback - time. It may be difficult to manage the project and run his business from the Detroit area, he said. The second floor houses three large bedrooms and two full baths. A hidden stair to the attic leads to an additional storage

woodpeckers

You've made the move to the "country" - at least to a subdivision where the trees have not all fallen to the bulldozer.

You like the dirt roads that keep the traffic down even as they keep the dust level up. And you congratulate yourself for building a home that blends in with the natural setting.

But one day as you walk around your house, you spot a row of dime-sized holes running horizontally along your wood siding, revealing you have bugs in the siding.

But the holes are not from the insects; they're from woodpeckers. Woodpeckers can do a great deal of damage to houses in the fall, according to Glenn Dudderar, extension wildlife specialist at Michigan State University.

When holes follow a discernible pattern, they mean the woodpeckers are pecking for insects they can hear inside or under the siding or trim.

Any of three kinds of woodpeckers may be involved. The downy woodpecker is a black and white, sparrow-sized bird.

The hairy woodpecker looks identical to the downy but is more the size of a robin. The flicker has a brown back, a spotted breast and a white rump and is slightly larger than a robin.

"The houses most often damaged are those that have plywood siding with grooves cut in it to make It look like rough-sawn planks," Dudderar says. The grooves intersect the core gaps between the interior plies of the panels and provide entry for insects."

THE INSECTS go into the siding or under the corner trim over traditional clapboard siding. The pecking occurs when warm days following cold nights cause the insects to move around a little. Woodpeckers fly up to vertical surfaces and listen for insect movement. When they hear it, they peck through to where the insects are.

"As long as that vertical surface is a tree or a fence post, the pecking generally causes no problems," Dudderar says. "When it's the side of someone's house, the homeowner sees significant damage occurring and wants a quick solution."

Dudderar recommends spraying insecticide into the spaces where insects are hiding. But don't use a high-pressure sprayer.

"That kind of spraying is futile," he says. "You must spray directly in the openings to kill the insects. Then you need to seal all the openings in and around slding so that more insects don't move in." - If you don't want to use an insecticide, you can just seal the openings, but woodpeckers will continue to feed until the insects you sealed are dead.

Replacing the siding because it has insects is not only expensive, but it won't solve the problem if you replace it with siding that also provides hiding placs for insects.

"Spraying the spaces and sealing the openings may be laborious, but it is effective," Dudderar says. "And it's a permanent solution to woodpeckers pecking on houses to find food."

WOODPECKERS PECKING out winter, roosting cavitles is another problem without a surefire solution.

Winter roosting cavities (or nesting cavities in spring) are considerably larger than the holes made in serach of food. Depending on the woodpecker, they may range in size from the diameter of a 50cent piece to that of a baseball. The bird may make several holes although it uses just one.

"The homeowner's first impulse is to plug the hole but that will just about guarantee the woodpecker will peck new ones," Dudderar says. "Seal the holes only after you've gotten rid of the woodpecker."

Sometimes starlings drive the woodpecker away from the cavity. The woodpecker then starts a new cavity.

Because woodpeckers are a valuable part of the environment, Dudderar urges homeowners to try frightening them away before trying anything else. Hang strips-of crumpled aluminum foil over the hole. Or hang an aluminum pie pan on a string so that it covers the hole. The flash of the foll or pan my repel the woodpecker.

ANOTHER TRICK is to put up a silhouette of an owl or a hawk. Bird repellent tape is also available. Contact your county extension office for information.

Or place masking tape around the hole and smear a thin coating of a sticky repellent on the tape. When the woodpecker is repelled, remove the tape and repair the hole. Be prepared to treat any new holes as soon as they are started.

You must change and vary your scare tactics every couple of days or the bird will get used to them. Be prepared to move your noisemakers to another section of the house if the woodpecker moves to another side.

If woodpeckers are after insects in the siding, frightening or killing the birds would give you only temporary relief - until another woodpecker came along and rediscovered the food source.

But if a woodpecker is making roosting cavities and frightening it doesn't work, the only course of action is to eliminate the problem bird or replace the siding with a non-wood type.

If you discover the only alternative is to kill the woodpecker, you must get a permit for your local conservation officer who will probably make sure you have tried a variety of scare tactics before issuing one.

The graceful No. 376 spindle chair is consistent with the craftsman doctrine of usefulness, durability and comfort. An original of this chair, made by Gustav Stickley in 1905, sold recently for $20,000. Seat cushions are available in leather or fabric.

The contemporary styles in wood surface. In place of shiny chrome, softer bronze and pewter finishes characterize metal pieces. Rather than glass, natural and faux unpolished stone materials are used.

Solas and chairs are clearly made for lounging. Both contemporary and traditional upholstered pieces are overstuffed and oversized with sausage-like arms, and they are slathered with deep cushions and extra throw pillows.

The American love affair with a romanticized representation of our past continues unabated. New American country pieces that borrow from the past but don't reproduce it were among the most popular at the market. Copies of styles from the last three centuries of English and American design are a close second. French themes and neoclassical styles such as Biedermeier are minor themes.

INDICATIVE OF the pragmatic nature of design today, two of the major new furniture groups combine several English periods (Century and Drexel). Another is "contemporary with many references to the past" in designer Charles Pfister's words (Baker). The Lexington group "combines French, English and Italian influences in every piece," according to designer Lynn Hollyn.

Henredon copied about 35 antiques from the plantations for its licensed Historic Natchez (Miss.) Foundation Collection. This group, like Lynn Hollyn's, includes a variety of coordinating fabrics and acces-

-The-new-furniture-is-designed-to go with what most people already own. Manufacturers have finally learned that the majority of consumers buy furniture a piece at a time. So there's less stress on large "suites" meant to furnish an entire room. A new cedar chest by Lane is a good example of this trend. The chest, decorated with a silkscreen version of a mid-19th-century primitive painting, is part of the 200-piece America Collection licensed by the Museum of American Folk Art. But it is interesting enough to stand on its own.

Another example is the Turkish chair introduced by Century. The opulently upholstered overstuffed chair, a close copy of the original owned by the Smithsonian, looks as if it came from a banker's parlor. It's also an example of the trend toward reproducing 19th-century rather than 18th-century antiques.

Those not up to buying even one new piece can update a room with accents in faux leopard skin. Mark Hampton selected leopard for an entire room display of his collection for Hickory Chair Co. to which seyeral new pieces were added. But the fabric showed up as an accent in pillows or chair covers in virtually every stylish showroom from Drexel to Thayer Coggin. An oversize, fully upholstered ottoman was another common accent piece.

Upholstery fabrics moved in two main color directions: Jewel-like emerald, brilliant blue, red and eggplant; and clear bright florals in sunny yellow and blue or other flower-like colors used with white.

It's quick. It's easy.

And it's the law.
