Judge sends dad, daughter to prison

By Tedd Schneider staff writer

A Detroit Recorder's Court judge Monday did what a desperate Westland family failed to do by them--selves for years — break them up for the sake of their own health and Judge John P. O'Brien sentenced Valentine Kwiatkowski, 78, and his 43-year-old daughter, Carol, to prison for the attempted murder last August of daughter Anna Kwiatkowski, 34.

Valentine, who suffers from leukemia and an irregular heart beat, was handed a mandatory twoyear sentence for use of a firearm during the commission of a felony and 1-10 years for assault with intent to commit murder. He will be eligible for parole in about 33 months, his attorney Marc Laikin

WHAT WE HAVE here is a family that was too close," O'Brien said in handing down the sentences, "Although I still don't know who concocted this terrible crime, the finger points at Carol."

Lalkin and Benson said they thought the sentences were fair. But Benson said she had hoped for "a little less (prison time)" for Carol.

The sentences came at the end of an unusual, hour-long hearing in which attorneys for the defendants and assistant Wayne County 'prosecutor Kym Worthy presented evidence and questioned witnesses regarding the physical and mental. health of family members.

Anna Kwiatkowski, who has since moved from the family home and is living temporarily with a friend in western Wayne County, attended the hearing and submitted a letter to the court that was read by Worthy.

In the letter, Anna said although Carol received a 5-15 year prison she loved her father and sister, she sentence on the attempted murder felt "anger and rejection along with charge and could be released in two bullets inside me" and asked

Appeals court OKs nativity scene

Westland's Nativity scene will remain in front of city hall.

The U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals last week upheld a lower court ruling allowing placement of the city-owned creche on government property.

The Nov. 16 decision by a threejudge panel in Cincinnati reaffirms last December's decision by U.S. District Judge Philip Pratt which said that Westland's display, which included a number of secular symbols in addition to the traditional depiction of the birth of Jesus Christ, wasn't an edorsement of any one religion by the city.

Last week's decision also affects display of a similar creche by the Macomb County suburb of Warren.

THE ACLU, in a statement issued

Lawyers for the civil rights organization were reviewing the ruling Tuesday and haven't decided yet whether they will appeal the case to the U.S. Supreme Court, sald Carolynn Tujaka, ACLU spokeswoman.

In their opinion, appeals court Judges Damon Keith, Alan E. Norris and H. Ted Milburn said, in part, "In nelther instance (Westland or Warren) were the (religious) objects displayed by themselves; numerous secular objects were placed near them and detracted from any religious message associated with the objects in question."

Joint project helps firms find workers

Board seeks special what's inside school tax election

Wayne-Westland school district voters may be asked to approve a series of tax proposals at a Feb. 8 special election.

The school board Monday agreed at an informal study meeting to ask the county clerk's permission for the special vote after discussing the financial problems facing the district.

The school administration will provide specific ballot proposals for the board at a Monday, Dec. 4, study

The financial talk came just two weeks after Michigan voters overwhelmingly rejected two proposals which would have increased the state hies tax rate to provide more money for K-12 schools,

In planning for the upcoming millage election, Superintendent Dennis

O'Neill appointed two committees. One, to review the school district's curriculum, will be headed by William Harvey, associate superintenndent for instruction and plan-

Another committee, created to plan strategy for the election; will be led by Thomas Svitkovich, associate superintendent for finances and communications.

The administration is suggesting that the ballot include a proposed millage increase with the size to be determined later, a renewal of 2.75 mill levy, and a requested override of the Headlee rollback to allow the district to retain a half-mill of property taxes now levied.

BOARD MEMBERS were upset about the state legislature and governor putting prisons ahead of public education and the "sham" of allocating Michigan Lottery funds to K-12 schools and then reducing its general al fund spending on education.

Board trustee Kathleen Chorbagian was visiblly angry at the financial situation the district faces.

Local residents have been "very giving" in approving past millage increases and questioned, "Where's the end of all this?"

She also added that she will be "one tough cookle at the (negotiating) table" next year when it comes to settling employees' union con-

Court upholds ruling to allow nativity scene

Attorneys representing the city and the ACLU presented oral arguments in the case Oct. 12. Briefs were filed last summer.

The court ordered an expedited decision in the case so that the matter could be cleared up before the winter holidays, when the creche is traditionally displayed.

IN THE WESTLAND case, the ACLU sued the city, claiming display of the creche on city property violates the constitutional requirement for separation of church and

The ACLU had requested a summary judgment barring display of the creche on government property, basing its appeal in part on a U.S. Supreme Court ruling last spring that barred the display of Jewish and Christian symbols in two separate Pennsylvania dis-

The civil rights organization claimed Westland's display was primarily religious in nature and therefore also in violation of the Supreme Court's 1984 decision regarding a Nativity scene in Pawtucket, R.I.

Using that ruling as a precedent, the ACLU has successfully sued Birmingham and Dearborn over Nativity scenes in those cities.

"The ACLU attack (against the Westland creche) was clearly unwarranted and without merit," Bokos said Monday.

He predicted the Supreme Court would, refuse to hear any further appeal of the case.

LIVONIA'S MIDDLE RANKING raised a second question for Marinelli because the district's students consistently rank high in academic achievement on state tests.

"Livonia always is in the top 10 percent statewide. Now we're in the middle. When a district is at or near the top in academic achievement, it's much more difficult to make gains than if schools are average or below average.

"A gain at the lower level is easier. When you're at the top, it's very difficult to make statistically important gains."

Marinelli questioned why other, "more affluent" districts, which also consistently score high on statewide tests, also ranked at the bottom in the suburban category. These include Birmingham, West Bloomfield and Southfield. sweden-Medical researchers at the University of Kuopio, in Finland, have discovered (accidentally) a new weight-loss formula. The new discovery appears to enable an overweight individual to lose pounds and fatty tissue without conventional dieting or exercise. Scientists made the discovery while searching for a formula to lower cholesterol. In a controlled study of a test group of people, cholesterol levels remained unchanged but the doctors were astounded to find that every patient who used the formula lost weight. The published report of this study stated, "A highly significant decrease in body weight was seen" in patients who received the formula. The formula was then tested at another prestigious European university hospital. Again, all patients lost weight even though they did not change their eating habits. The report detailing this study, published in the British Journal of Nutrition, stated: "Body weight was significantly reduced eyen though the patients were specifically asked not to alter their dictary habits". Based on projected millage rates, the tax rate would provide for a 21/2 percent raise.

In the administration's report to the board, a potential rate increase of 4.9 mills is being projected, although the board members made it clear that they are not 'locked in' to the 6 percent salary hikes projected in the recommendation.

The current operational millage rate is $42.89 per $1,000, one of the highest in the state.

The last tax rate for operations was raised in the spring of 1987.

City sues state over courts

By C.L. Rugenstein staff writer

The city of Westland has joined a class action lawsuit, filed by more than 130 Michigan municipalities, that wants to have the state of Michigan finance district courts.

Currently, Westland and the state split the cost of the district judges' $91,080 salary, which will increase to $93,821 in January, court administrator Dave Wiacek said. The state contributes approximately $50,000, and the city pays approximately

The state returns approximately $5,000 to Westland each month for the two district judges, Wiacek said.

BUT MONEY to operate the 18th District Court and pay salaries for employees comes from the city, Wiacek said. The state even takes some of the revenues from the city's court costs and fines, he said.

libraries for the judges or jury and witness fees, the local government has to finance them.

"In our mind, if (the state) mandates a service, they should pay for it," Wiacek said.

THE COURT budget was $1.1 million for fiscal 1990, Wiacek said. Next year's budget will be approximately the same.

A couple of years ago, it was figured Westland would save $200,000 to $250,000 if the state paid for mandatory services, Wlacek said. "We take in revenues pretty close to (the $1.1 million budgefed for operations)," Wiacek said. THE STATE also gets a cut from revenues collected from tickets and "Take a $35 traffic ticket, for exthe court administrator and court ample," Wiacek said, "The state says that before the city can keep any money it has to give the state $15." Of that, $5 goes to a judgment fund and $5 to a training fund for Whenever the state requires that law enforcement personnel. The recourts provide special services, such maining $5 is used to pay for more

"For every civil case filed we give 45 percent of the filing fee off the top (to the state)," Wiacek said. "We give roughly $15-30,000 per month from all fees collected (to the state)."

All misdemeanors have a $5 jud ment charge. As of Oct. 30, however, judges must assess another $20 fee. for misdemeanors like assault and battery, drunk driving or aiming a weapon, Wiacek said. That money will go to a new state fund for crime victim reimbursements.

A DECISION is expected by the end of January on the lawsuit, filed in the Court of Claims at Mason.

Under Public Act 438 of 1980, the state is required to finance district, circuit, municipal and probate courts, the lawsuit claims. The act requires the state to pay 20 percent of the courts' costs in 1983, increasing to 80 percent by 1987 and 100 percent by October 1988, the suit also says.

Madonna adjusts to needs

By Tom Ferguson staff writer

Isolating a "typical" Madonna College student is an exercise even more fulle than trying to define Joe Schoolcraft.

Madonna was founded by, and is administered by, Felician sisters. But the student body is barely 50 percent Catholic, a ratio that has held true for more than a decade.

The college stands firmly on abedrock of liberal arts education. But career preparation is emphasized, and applied science courses

Humanistic and Christian principles are at the core of the school's mission; no matter what their major, for example, all bachelor-degree students must complete six class hours in religious studies. Yet the 210 students in the criminal justice program are pursuing one of Madonna's most popular and most successful programs.

WHEN PRESSED for a common denominator among Madonna studehls, admissions director Lou Brohl - who interviews many of them as gatekeeper - offered one of his favorite phrases: "mature students of

Two implications of that phrase are that most Madonna students hold down jobs, and that this is not your

Price, proximity Schoolcraft lure

By Tom Ferguson staff writer

When money talks about college, more and more often it is saying:

"Stay home." "When you look at the cost of most four-year schools," said Conway Jeffress, vice president for instruction at Schoolcraft College, "$6,000, $9,000 or $12,000 in after-tax income to send junior off to school - that's 'a lot of cash."

That's also one reason for a very homey profile at Schoolcraft. Low tuition ($33.50 per credit hour for district residents) and a bunk at the parents' house will cut the cost of higher learning dramatically.

Even among the younger half of Schoolcraft's student body, however, it is impossible to zero in on a 'typical' student. The pattern is not simply a tide of 18-year-olds rolling in on high-school graduation day. The community college magnet remains strong five years after high school.

-- At Churchill High School in Livonia, for example, an average of 24percent of the classes of 1983, 1984 and 1985 enrolled at Schoolcraft the year they graduated. By five years after graduation the number had nearly doubled — to 45 percent.

THROUGHOUT THE Schoolcraft taxation district (the Garden City, Plymouth-Canton, Livonia, Clarenceville and Northville K-12 public school districts) the percentages vary, but the five-year pattern is the same.

Jeffress doesn't see these numbers! as remarkable, more like par for an community college. And low tuition isn't the only explanation. "We have tracked that pattern for " quite a while," he said, "and one of the things we have found is that peo-2 ple go to four-year institutions and get a degree; then if they find out x. perhaps it is not useful, they decide to get something with a little more; utitility to it."

And, he said, "there is a strong, tendency to return to home base." 360

The legion of young adults attended ing college while sleeping in rooms; they once papered with photos of baseball players and rock stars is also swelled by students who tried the workplace before trying school, to and by casualties of modern society.

-"Talk to any parent," Jeffress? said, "and you'll find that having" kids leave home at 18 or 21 is getting h passe. They just seem to keep drop 13 ping in - because of a layoff, per-67 haps, or because of a change in their it marital situation. And when these things happen, there's always a tremendous encouragement to make a new start.

WITH THEIR preponderance of part-time, working students, and a their closeness to the workplace, or community colleges are positioned to respond quickly to new demands by employers. This has tremendous importance in answering "Who goes ... to Schoolcraft" - whether young or middle-aged.

Disposal plan moving forward

By Tom Ferguson staff writer

With their misgivings answered by revisions in the county's Solid Waste Management Plan, members of the Western Wayne Conference on Friday accepted the 208-page docu-

The plan is an important step-toward solving the landfill crisis. And it heralds the first radical change in garbage pickup since the advent of curb service.

If each of the 17 CWW communities individually approves the document, the solid waste plan will be well on its way to adoption.

All 43 county communities will be asked to approve the plan sometime early next year, two-thirds must approve for it to be adopted. The CWW includes Canton, Garden City, Livonia, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Redford and Westland.

Protests from CWW communities was seen as a key to plan revisions.

IN A MAJOR revision, communities are given the option of recycling, with homeowners sorting the trash they set out for removal to rapidly disappearing landfills. Communities that manage successful programs of recycling and composting can avoid the alternative: incin-

James Murray, Wayne County DPW director, presented the plan to representatives of the 14 cities and townships that are conference mem-

Murray described the squeeze that is forcing action. "By the year 2000 we will generate 159 million_cubic yards of solid waste" in Wayne County, he said. "And 10.8 million cubic yards of landfill space is currently available."

. The lack of room for our growing stream of solid waste is not quite that grim. Murray said the proposed Sauk Trail landfill in Canton Township and expansion of the Riverview landfill would add another 26 million cuble feet. And Murray said he expects two or three additional landfills to be created - whether agreeable host communities can be found to reducing the amount of garbage review.

'By the year 2000 we will generate 159 million cubic yards of solid waste and 10.8 million cubic yards of landfill space is currently available.'

- James Murray county DPW director

The original county plan called for each community to make a 75 percent reduction in the amount of solid waste it generates - something achievable only through incineration, which raises its own environmental concerns. Conference members, led by County Commissioner Milton Mack, D-Wayne, successfully pressed for the recycling and composting alternative, with a goal of reducing waste flow by 40 percent.

We are much happier with this plan than we were with the previous version," said Daniel Gilmartin, executive director of the conference.

The final version of the plan, in fact, does not even require an actual 40 percent reduction, only that a well-managed recycling and composting program be submitted by fall of 1992 and implemented by Jan. 1, 1994. Otherwise, the 75 percent trash reduction requirement will be imposed.

Communities that choose the incineration alternative have until-1994 to contract for an incineration facility. Otherwise, they must implement a mandatory recycling/composting program.

The county plan will have a public hearing at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 5, in the Wayne County Intermediate Schools Auditorium, 33500 Van Born,

It still requires approval by the county board of commissioners and, probably in March or April, by local governments.

The report cited current prices paid for waste paper ($65 a ton for white, $80 a ton for computer paper) and suggested that money raised could be used for tree-planting project ects or other environmental pro-

A second phase of the plan would unite participating communities in buying recycled paper products.

Several member communities have expressed eagerness to launch the program. A more complete feasibility study will be presented at the

Schoolcraft attracting homegrown students

People once were in careers for a lifetime," Jeffress said, "but now almost nobody fits that category. People are changing jobs, and their jobs change - without their permission,"

Two-thirds of Schoolcraft students are enrolled in "career" programs, The rest are in "transfer" curricula aimed at moving them on to fouryear schools. That picture is muddied by the fact that many "career" students themselves go on to earn four-year degrees. And Jeffress agreed that "career" and "transfer" are terms that perhaps have outlived and classroom are illustrated by the fact that nearly a third of Schoolcraft students are free guests of their employers' tuition reimbursement plans.

WITH 44 percent of its students more than 25 years old, there is a strong inclination to draw a nightand-day picture of "typical" students. Recent high-school grads predominate until evening, when older, strongly motivated adults show up to pursue their specialty.

"A lot of employers are learning the hard way that education is a tough business that only looks easy

But the close ties of workplace from the outside," Jeffress said. "At one point everybody was getting into the business of doing their own training. Now they're going to an educational system, which they already support with their tax dollars, and taking the reimbursement route instead of running a little college of their own."

This shows up in strong enrollment for courses such as computer aided design and business computer information systems, while traditional trade classes shrink or disap-

"We are out of the auto repair business," Jeffress'said.

He sees the trend continuing in the

"The technical class in our area is being graduated from the community colleges," he said.

"We will be concentrating on skills which allow people to change occupations easily."

At the same time, he said, "we will be concentrating a great deal on verbal skills, written skills - the ability of people to understand concepts so that they're not trained in a narrow sense on some specific machine."

This ties in with a traditional junior college characteristic that has gained even greater importance factory jobs. High-school grads who underachleved or came late to understanding the connecton between books and paychecks need a place where they can catch up.

"We're in a fairly affluent suburban area?" Jeffress said. "And we have lots of students come to us with reading ability less than 10th grade. We don't spend time pointing fingers at who is responsible for that; we just try to fix it.".

The experts say that in the next decade there will not be enough young people to fill new jobs. But, as Jeffress said: "When people at balle party school. The campus is dry, and in prime-time party hours classrooms are at their busiest. Our parking lots are full from 7-10 p.m.," Brohl said.

That's because, like community-based two-year colleges, the fouryear Livonia school is dominated by partitime students. Unlike two-year schools, even Madonna's part-timers overwhelmingly are seeking bachelor degrees - or beyond.

diverse as the campus personally may be, it is closely tied to the personality of the Felician order that founded Presentation College in 1937. The founders probably would be surprised but pleased at what has evelved as the modern Madonna Col-

The Felician sisters are deeply service-oriented. When Presentation enrolled its first students, all were nuns who needed training to serve as nurses or teachers.

Non-religious women were admitted soon after. In 1947 the two-year school became the four-year Madonna. In 1972 men were admitted for the first time. "That's when the portfolio of majors began expanding," Brohl said.

Criminal justice was the first, and one of its first grads - Alan Eichman - now heads the program. Business administration was introduced as a minor in the mid-'70s and is now a major, with subspecialties such as international business.

'This is responding to needs," Brohl said. "And the sisters are dedicated to serving people, so this is part of the order's tradition."

Responding to needs means career-oriented classes. But it also means innovative efforts such as the hearing-impaired program, in which more than 100 students are now studying with the support of notetakers and classroom sign language.

THE EMPHASIS on Christian/ humanistic values and liberal education is no turnoff to prospective studenis with specific worldly pursuits in mind, Brohl said.

"Somehow, the value of a liberal education is more acceptable now than it used to be," Brohl said. There is no resistance to taking an art appreciation class, for example."

One of the most popular choices for the humanities requirement is the Life/Death Issues course. What may seem at first to be so much philosophy turns out to be highly meaningful among students who will-be dealing daily with life-and-death issues, such as nurses and police officers.

Brohl, who wears a second hat as marketing director, cites some less philosophical but equally important reasons that Madonna has broken the 4,000 mark in enrollment.

"If I surveyed 100 students in the hallway, I'm not sure how much they'd know about the Felician sisters," Brohl said. "But they say,-'Ican get classes at a time I can go, and I can get hold of my instructors to talk with them.' It's the quality and convenience. And our reputation for quality education is validated largely by word of mouth. Students cheek us out with other students or with employers before coming

Streamlined admissions proceduris, relatively small class sizes and a willingness to spend time one-on-one with students are among the reasons Brohl gives for one of his favorite statistics; More than half of Madonna's students are the first in their family to attend college.

And he thinks that the Felician sisters' approach to life, ironically, is a major reason so many non-Catholics attend a school dedicated to the Blowed Mother.

've always been impressed by the Felician sisters' practicality, Brohl said. 'They don't have a headin-the clouds, don't-get-your-handsdirty approach. They have a tremendoor work ethic. They'll have an' apron on and be working next to

With a four-year program and a graduate school, and with far more students coming from outside Wayne County, Madonna is a much different animal than its Livonia neighbor, Schoolcraft Cellege. But there is a close rélationship.

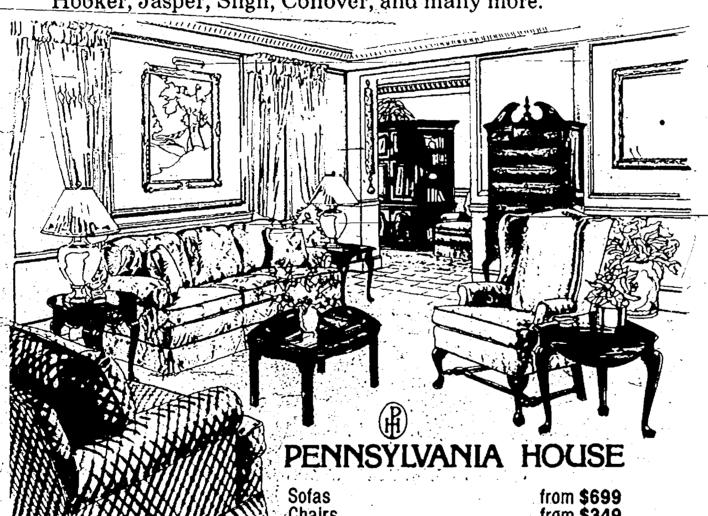

Behooleraft is our largest feeder ichiel," Brohl said.

Sacrifices Full program review needed

TEM: CHRYSLER CORP., faced with a downturn in automobile sales and not wanting to repeat its 1979 government bailout, last May implements a $1 billion cost-cutting program.

Item: The Wayne-Westland Community Schools district, using up most of its $4.1 million fund balance (more commonly known as a sav-(ings account) to counter a shortfall in the 1989-90 budget, establishes a committee of district einployees and parents to work for the passage of state ballot proposals A and B, sales tax indreases that will provide additional education funding. When both proposals are stomped-by voters, the committee is re-directed to work for passage of a district millage increase in a special election tentatively planned for Feb. 8.-

Item: Chrysler's cuts are carried out across the board. Yes, the company decides to end production of the Omni and Horizon at the Jefferson Avenue assembly plant earlier than originally scheduled, idling 2,000 workers. But executive ranks are also thinned, with the early retirement of a vice president for marketing and a suggested plan to drop or combine other top manage-

Item: Last spring, Wayne-Westland school officials announce 63 teacher layoffs and only one, small administrative cutback in the wake of declining enrollment, (Somé teachers are called back in time for the start of classes last August.) Next spring, should the millage request fail, a similar number of teachers will probably be pink-slipped.

stricts, or other government entities, should pattern themselves exactly after private industry. After all, each has radically different goals.

What we are suggesting is that Wayne-Westland school administrators ought to be able to

Thanks, PBS

Parade gives region a boost tire country.

Wayne-Westland voters are giving a strong message to school officials that some sacrifices will have to be made to cut expenses.

pick up a few pointers from the private sector on the kinds of things they should be doing if they hope to convince voters to once again dig into their pockets in order to bail out local schools.

Like it or not, credibility on the part of Wayne-Westland officials is still an issue to many district residents. The recall election of the early 1980s may be fading from memory, but narrow margins of victory for a recent millage election and a $12.9 million bond issue for building repairs and equipment purchases, plus the adulteducation enrollment fraud case, are still fresh in voters' minds.

The district's total millage rate of $52.86 per _$1,000_of_state equalized valuation (which includes an operating rate of $43.40) is the highest in western Wayne County.

We agree that severe internal cutbacks in K-12 programs or personnel could be detrimental to the district's 16,000 students. But it's now time to look at the entire operations, including administrative functions, as well as programs that don't directly affect elementary and secondary students, to determine what is needed.

A good place to start might be the district's senior citizens program at the Dyer Center, which replicates many functions of Westland's city-run program at the Friendship Center, only a few blocks away.....

Wayne-Westland officials need to show voters that they are willing to make sacrifices too.

Both reactions are based on fear and the stereotypes about mental retardation and mental illness. And the state has not always done a good job in providing details and answering questions about the group home, its residents and supervision, perpetuating the fear and stereotypes.

MEANTIME, THE Michigan premiere of a play about mentally handicapped people and their place in society, "The Boys Next Door," is the current fare at the Meadow Brook Theatre on the campus of Oakland University in Rochester.

The recent off-Broadway hit by Tom Griffin tells with sympathy and humor the story of four men who live together in an apartment in a New England city.

Good-natured Norman works in a doughnut shop, compulsively eats doughnuts and is strongly attached to a bunch of keys. Arnold has a job cleaning a movie theater, likes to use big words and assess people's behavior patterns.

Barry is a schizophrenic, convinced he is a golf pro. Lucien, the most retarded of the group, is also the most loving.

Judith Doner:

Supervised by a social worker, the roommates cope with varying degrees of success with the distribution of household tasks, jobs, social life; relationships — the same issues with which we are all involved.

What comes across, through comedy and pathos, is the humanity of four people who through heredity or circumstance came into this world a little less prepared than many of us. Their pride in their own apartment is evident as they unfailingly, and proudly say to each person who enters, "Welcome to our home."

"THE BOYS Next Door" is about to be made into a film, produced and directed by "Moonstruck's" Norman Jewison. But you have a chance to experience it here and now. It runs through Sunday, Nov. 26, at Meadow

Editorial reads MSU policy wrong

This letter is in response to your editorial regarding the alcohol control policy and the recent rowdiness at Michigan State University.

You must be more accurate when reporting the events taking place in East Lansing. The recent rowdiness following the University of Michigan football game was not on the MSU campus as your editorial states. It was at an apartment complex near the campus. And as has been reported previously, many taking part in this action were not MSU students. One cannot hold the school responsible for what happened on the city streets. Think back to what happened on the streets in Ann Arbor following the NCAA basketball champlonship.

There is really no difference between the objectives and the effectiveness of the alcohol control policles at the U-M or MSU football stadiums. The facts are that U-M had a much more serious problem to address in that numerous fans openly carried six packs or coolers of beer, etc. . . . into the stands. U-M banned all food and beverage containers as well as umbrellas, etc., because the seating and spacing is so restrictive there just is not sufficient room. The MSU stadium is not as restrictive in

Their approach is to inspect all containers and anyone attempting to bring alcohol into the stadium is ejected and given a police citation. Civilian attired security personnel are in the stands observing if anyone did succeed in getting alcohol past the inspections. Anyone so observed is immediately ejected and receives a citation. But under the MSU policy on a rainy day Spartans can use an umbrella to stay dry.

The editorial is guilty of some "fuzzy thinking" when it attempts to link stadium alcohol control policies, which have been successful at both schools, with off-campus rowdiness following a game.

I hope the editorial writer is not guilty of a little MSU bashing in an attempt to please Mr. Philip Power, the chairman of your newspaper and a U-M regent.

Oat-bran pilgrim makes progress

What I wanted to do was provide the traditional Thanksgiving dinner for my family and keep them healthy at the same time.

With all of the concerns over cholesterol and everything else that is bad for you today, I felt guilty about subjecting them to mashed potatoes and gravy and pumpkin pie with whipped cream.

Then, while strolling through my neighborhood supermarket, I got inspired.

I found at least a dozen brands of oat bran dry cereal and an even wider selection of hot cereal made from the magic flake.

I found oat bran bread in all shapes, including oat bran hamburger buns and oat bran hot dog buns.

I found oat bran crackers and oat bran granola bars. There were oat bran cookies and, everywhere I turned, oat bran muffins.

Oat bran waffles shared the supermarket freezer chest with oat bran bagels. I even found oat bran doughnuts and oat bran tortillas.

But nowhere could I find what I was looking for - an oat bran tur-

NOW DON'T laugh. That's not as ridiculous as it sounds.

A few years back, when soybeans were all the rage - those barely edible legumes that were going to save is from our carnivorous ways and restore us to health — you could get soybean sausage, soybean burgers, even soybean "meatloaf."

More recently the beans have given way to the bird in popularity. Today it's turkey sausage, turkey burgers, turkey loaf, turkey salami. There's even turkey ham and turkey bacon - although the latter is billed as "turkey breakfast strips."

Turkey, of course, is supposed to be lower in cholesterol than all those things it's imitating, and that's believed to be good. But oat bran, the magic munchie, is actually believed to lower cholesterol inside your body. And that's even better.

Look at all those manufacturers who are obviously so concerned with our health that they are making bacon out of turkey and putting oat bran in potato chips, in rice cakes, in Shredded Wheat and something already called 100% Bran.

Why not an oat bran turkey? It would sure make for a healthy Thanksgiving.

But the technology hasn't advanced that far apparently. So how can I have the traditional Thanksgiving feast and still keep everybody healthy? I think I've figured it out.

ACCORDING TO the theory and mind you, as near as I can tell it's only a theory at this point — the soluble fiber in oat bran is believed somehow to bond with the cholesterol that the liver releases into the intestine and actually remove some of it from the body.

If that's true you should be able to think I've discovered something now. eat anything you want, as long as you supplement it with oat bran.

So we'll have our traditional turkey, basted with butter and served with plenty of giblet gravy. But first, we'll pack it with oat bran stuffing.

For appetizers we'll have real cheese with oat bran crackers and a sour cream dip with potato chips fortified with the bran, Sweet potatoes covered with melted marshmallows? No problem. Just mix a little oat bran cereal with melted butter and sprinkle it over the top .

We'll have oat bran rolls and oat bran mulfins to counteract the mashed potatoes.

Pumpkin pie? Slather as much whipped cream on it as you want; it'll be baked in an oat bran crust. '

And for the kids a double dose of health for dessert - hot fudge sundaes made with frozen yogurt and sprinkled with crumbled oat bran

I admit I've never been one to watch my diet the way I should, and I've always been a little bit skeptical of most of the health food fads. But I

Pollsters taking a dive in public opinion

POLLSTERS have reached an alltime low in public esteem, lower perhaps than the "Dewey Defeats Truman" call of 1948.

In Michigan, both Proposals A and B went down to defeat Nov. 7 by margins of nearly 3-1. A poll, however, showed A with 47 percent of the vote and B with 40 percent. The poll-was taken for the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce. Since the chamber opposed both propsals, it's unlikely the source was biased in favor of them.

Unfortunately, reporting exit poll results is an absolute necessity on election night. Michigan's Secretary of State Richard Austin and his elections director, Chris Thomas, are slow as molasses at producing statewide figures, and getting worse.

Recently I dug up a 1954 clipping of a four-candidate gubernatorial primary where the outcome wasn't known in Lansing until 2 a.m. Wednesday. Nowadays, it takes Lansing until late Wednesday afternoon to produce those numbers. Without exit polling, good citizens would go nuts waiting for Austin's sloth-like machine-to produce-hard

Q. I saw the article in our Observer & Eccentric newspaper that. you are retiring from education after 35 years. You said you were thankful for the many enriching experiences you have had. My question is, "What are some of the main concepts you would be thankful to see in an ideal classroom situation?"

In the spirit of Thanksgiving, your question is quite appropriate. I'm thankful when:

• Studying is not used as punishment. That is, if a child does or says something wrong they are not assigned school work as punishment. I'm thankful when educators, develop an intrinsic motivation in students for learning as opposed to using education to punish children. • An entire class is not punished because of the actions of one or two students. I am thankful mass punishment is not dealt out to a whole class for the misbehavior of one or two students to maintain control by using other students as pawns. • Grades are not used to control, inhibit or coerce students. It's good when a teenager who is acting out in a class has his inappropriate behavior addressed but not by lowering his/her academic grade: (Something I did once in my earlier days.)

• Students are not graded on the curve. I soon discovered in one of my accelerated chemistry classes that the students were all A and B students and the curve (so many A's, B's, C's, D's, F's) didn't fit.

• The learning competencies and expectations of a course or class are clearly understood by the student and agreed to by both the instructor and the learner.

Humane Society seeks time to repay debt

By Wayne Peal staff writer

The Michigan Humane Society is "nowhere near" closing its doors, officials said.

But they admit the society is in serious financial trouble, with debt topping $1 million.

"What we're trying to do is work with our creditors," said society spokesman Chuck Korotko. "To say we're going out of business is nowhere near accurate."

A group representing humane solety creditors is expected to recommend a 90 day moratorium — suggesting suppliers hold off on their demand for payment while the humane society drafts a pay back

Humane society officials met with creditors at the society's Rochester Hills shelter Nov. 16 to discuss more than $1 million in unpaid debt owed by the society for goods and services in the past year.

The society is awaiting word on whether creditors will adhere to the moratorium, though an attorney for an ad hoc creditors board said the mend a 90 day moratorium — suggrace period would be recommend-

"WE ARE telling the other suppliers to give them time," said Deborah Fish, a member of the Detroitbased firm that is advising creditors.

Bills are owed for animal supplies, offices supplies, construction work, printing, insurance and other business-related expenses, Fish said.

While no animal-care services have been curtailed, the society has already laid off 10 office workers, Korotko said. Layoffs affected roughly 10 percent of MHS staff.

Maintaining services at the Rochester Hills shelter, as well as at other shelters in Detroit and Westland, is the society's primary goal, Korotko said.

"We want to continue uninterrupted services to the animals," he said.

"The people who were laid off didn't directly serve the animals."

Restoring contributors' confidence is another goal. Most of the estimated $5 million generated for society activities each year is raised through private contributions and the holiday season is the biggest fund-raising period.

"The timing is a concern, but we really had no control over that," Korotko said.

The revelation that the society was more than $1 million in debt comes on the heels of embezzlement charges filed 'against the society's former accounting manager.

Humane Society officials aren't commenting on whether the course case is linked to its financial woes.

"REALLY, NO reason was given (to creditors) for the cash flow problem;" said attorney Joseph Fischer who is representing the humane society in its talks with creditors.

Fischer's Birmingham-based firm' is representing the humane society at no charge.

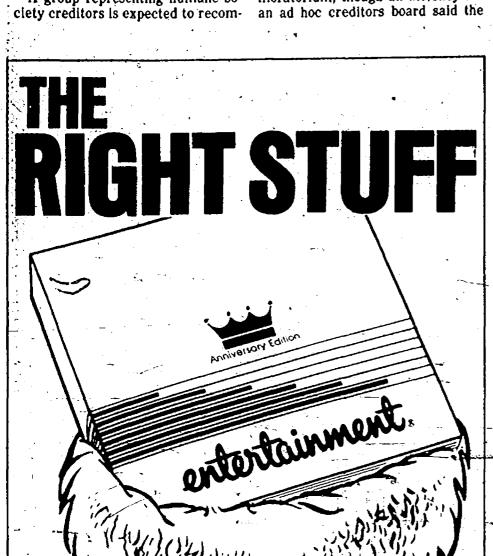

It has been a troubled year for the animal-care agency.

In June, MHS director David Willis handed in a highly-publicized resignation in an apparent dispute with trustees over a proposed animal care center. John Kelly and Marilyn Turner, high profile local television personalities and MHS boosters, also resigned from the humane society board at that time.

Interim executive director Gary Tiscornia announced the society was at least $500,000 in debt when he took office in late June.

The humane society takes in stray animals, operates pet adoption services and supervises humane destruction of rabid or unwanted animals

Despite debts, humane society officials said those services will continue.

Designers try to capture spirit of Christmas Past

By Sue Mason staff writer

Bruce Weber has a dream — to re-create the fantasyland that was synonymous with the Ford Rotunda in Dearborn, a holiday fantasyland that left children awe-struck. He thinks he can accomplish that with the Festival of Trees' Santaland, now on display at Cobo Hall.

The owner of Weber's Floral

Gifts in Livonia, he has been involved with the Children's Hospital of Michigan holiday benefit for five years. This is the second year that he has devoted his time and energy to the festival's Santaland.

"I feel that ever since the Rotunda burned down (in November: 1962), there hasn't been anything like it for Christmas," said Weber, 39. "You were awe-struck by what they had created. It was like having Disneyland, but better."

Weber decorated Christmas trees the first three years of the festival. With a flair for the unusual, his creations included a bonsal-style Christmas tree and one with a base that was an underground view of a rabbit's home reminiscent of "Peter Rabbit." Not wanting to devote a fourth year to tree decorating, Weber last year took the initiative and suggested to the chairman of the festival. who happened to be a customer, that he design the Santaland.

"IN THE PREVIOUS years, the festival would find someone to sponsor Santaland," he said. "Those sponsors would set it up, and afterwards cart off the prope or give it them to the festival, which ended up with a mish-mash of stuff."

'Open wide'

She promotes dental care to the 'baby teeth' crowd

By Sye Mason staff writer

Andrew Hinkle opened wide and received an "atta boy." Oh, not because he opened his mouth, but because a quick check of his teeth turned up some fillings, an indication that at age 3 he's already seen a dentist.

Andrew was the model patient for Dr. Terri Tadaro. Tadaro gave the preschoolers at Kids Stop in Livonia a short course on visiting the dentist.

"A lot of times parents say they couldn't get their kids into the dentist, then after this, it's 'Come on, I got to go,' " Tadaro said. "That's a switch." Tadaro 30, has been in practice in Livonia for four years. A graduate of the University of Michigan Medical School, she started taking her message about good teeth to preschools three years ago.

TADARO USES the visits to introduce the youngsters to the idea of going to the dentist, to get them over any fears they may have. Her props include sketches of a "good tooth" that comes complete with a smile, and a "bad" tooth with gauze wrapped around its damaged

From a box, she pulls out an oversized set of teeth and a tooth brush of similar proportions and uses it to show youngsters how to brush.

"Little circles," she says as she works the brush around and behind the teeth. From that same box, she pulls out a pink mask and pouch containing a tooth mirror, tooth counter and surgical gloves. Using a youngster such as Andrew, she gets her audience to count the number of teeth (20) in a 3-year-old's mouth. (An adult can have up to 32 teeth.)

"I'VE NOTICED a big change in the children in how they accept the dentist. I think parents are beginning to realize that the primary teeth are important."

Baby teeth important? You bet, said-Tadaro.-Those primary teeth maintain spacing for the permanent teeth. And cavities in primary teeth can make permanent teeth prone to such problems, she said.

While Tadaro tries to prepare preschoolers for their first visit to the dentist, she stresses that there are things parents can do to make that first visit a good experience. With the changes that have taken place in dentistry, Tadaro wants children see a visit to the dentist as nonthreatening.

"Parents do play a big role in the attitude children have about dentists. If they're fearful, their children will pick up on that.

"THE IMPORTANT thing is to familiarize them with the dentist and not mislead them about what the dentist will and will not do."

Tadaro visits 10 to 15 preschools a year to spread the word about taking care of teeth. The youngsters at Kids Stop were prepared for her visit, since it culminated dental health week at the preschool.

As part of the activities, the youngsters cut out pictures of good foods from magazines and newspapers and pasted them on their "plates," taste tested brands of toothpaste and did role playing about visiting the dentist. Her visit also helped them show off some of the things they had learned.

Doctor's talks smooth first trip to the dentist

What do you need your teeth for?" Tadaro asked. The answers ranged from "to chew" and "to speak" to "for a big smile."

"HOW DO YOU keep your teeth?" she asked. This time the youngsters volunteered answers such as "by eating good foods" and "brushing your teeth." Candy, one student added, was a bad food because it "makes teeth rotten."

"I'm surprised with how knowledgeable some of the children are," Tadaro sald. "They know sweets are bad. When I asked a group of 31/2 year olds how many teeth they have, one said 20. That just about floored me."

Tadaro doesn't recall ever having a bad experience with the dentist, alher decision to become a dentist.

'I was always interested in health and was aware of how important my teeth were. I think that's what led me in that direction."

And it's been everything she expected and more.

"There is a lot of satisfaction with this. You get to help a person with tooth pain, and changes you do canmake a difference in a person's appearance."

TADARO HAS some suggestions for parents to help their children have good teeth. To get youngsters to brush, she suggests tooth brushes, decorated with their favorite cartoon characters, with soft bristles and a head small enough for a child's Parents shouldn't count on a young child doing a good job of brushing. They should back up the child and also brush their teeth at least to age 6, Tadaro said. Flossing though that didn't really influence should be done once all the child's primary teeth are in, usually around age 3, she said.

She recommends three books parents and children can read together to help overcome fears - "Taryn Goes to the Dentist" by Jill Krementz "Mickey Visits the Den-tist" by Ronsie Kraus and "The Berenstain Bears Visit the Dentist" by Stan and Jan Berenstain. WITHIN 20 minutes, Tadaro had primed the youngsters on having good teeth. But to make sure the message had staying power, she provided bags, filled with a good tooth coloring book and tooth brushes, for the youngsters.

After that, the children headed off to play. But one little boy came back. Oh, not to talk about good teeth; this youngster was fascinated with the pink mask Tadaro had worn. It took two trles, but he eventually headed off to play, the mask held tightly in his hand. Tadaro smiled.

"You know 50 percent of children between 5 and 17 are cavity free. And for many kids, it's really fun to go to the dentist:"

branches. Dangling large sequins and prism tape added the sparkle for the illusion of fresh fallen snow.

The trees were cut from cardboard panels and by following a number system, the entire set can be easily assembled, Weber said.

"It looks complicated, but each tree is only a 4- by 8-foot panel that you pack in sequence," Weber said.

While interested in doing more for Santaland this year but not wanting to spend 40-60 hours making props, Weber teamed up with Dominic Silvio of Exhibit Works in Livonia. Weber came up with designs, while Exhibit Works provided the materials and the manpower.

THE 45-YEAR-OLD Troy resident was glad to be involved in the effort, although much of the planning was done by general manager Mike Joly after he was sidelined with angioplasty surgery and art director Don Fee suffered a heart attack.

"When I was asked to help, I said yes because I-love children and this is a good cause,"Silvio said. "And that was the same thing that happened here when we asked for vol-tions, he had many an opportunity to be involved in the decoarting of the facility. In fact, he was among many who stood and watched as the building burned to the ground.

Silvio is pleased to have the opportunity to work with Weber and had praise for his designs.

This year, Weber is continuing the North Pole theme with the remaining portions of Santaland.

For the face painting area, there's penguins painting each other faces. Likewise the penguins and poles announcing the activity decorate the ornament making area and fishing hole where youngsters can buy tickets and fish for festival memorabilia.

And to introduce visitors to Children's Hospital of Michigan, there's an 8-foot-tall penguin with a TV in its belly that plays a PeeWee Herman-style video about the medical

"What I'm trying to do is keep to a theme, but one where the non-descript elements can be changed," Weber said. "It should be changed every year so it doesn't become boring for the kids."

And while Weber is trying to capture the holiday spirit of past Christmases, he admits the idea wasn't spur of the moment. The first year, he saw the display, he thought "it would be nice to do Sanatland and do it right."

The work comes naturally to Weber. A graduate of the Center for Creative Studies, where he studied advertising design, he got into floral design out of necessity - "I graduated during a recession." It "pays the bills and allows me to play with all the little opportunities that come along, too," he said.

While Weber was in awe of the holiday decorations at the Rotunda, he admits he never really saw the creativity that went into the Hudson's downtown store at Christmas until he visited it while a CCS stu-

"The art element was incredible," he said. "We don't have that here anymore."

It was the loss of such displays that drew Weber to Festival of Trees. He saw it as "an opportunity to create something like Hudson's or the Rotunda."

Weber realizes that all fund-raisers have life expectancies, but hopes Festival of the Trees doesn't succumb to that.

"I hope Festival of Trees becomes a tradition like Hudson's and the Rotunda was," Weber said. "After the Rotunda burned down, we fell back on Hudson's, but now there is no where kids can go and be put in a fantasyland that isn't commer-Christmas" in the film "Holiday Inn," few realized that the song would become as much a part of the holiday tradition as decking the halls, buying presents and picking out the perfect tree.

L-have-read-your-column-manytimes. Your remarks and opinions intrigue me. I would sincerely appreclate, your expertise regarding my handwriting. I am 68 years of age and right handed. Recently, I have acquired a new hobby, writing letters.

Livonia

I admire your hobby. I'm an avid letter writer myself.

This handwriting tells me you are a people-oriented male. You are both friendly and spontaneous. Your feelings are revealed through your speech as well as your body language. And I detect a dash of flamboyance in your actions!

You respond with compassion to the needs of those you meet along life's way. I suspect you find it difficult to say no to those who need your time and/or talents. And your feelings often influence your decisions.

There is a basic optimism to your thinking. And the combination of enthusiasm and determination I see here tend to make you a dynamic person. There is no stopping you once you embark on a project or goal! However, your moods do vacillate rather quickly at times.

Your upbeat attitude, enthusiasm and caring nature should go a long way toward "winning-friends and influencing people."

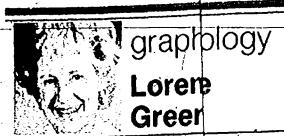

This handwriting further suggests that you possess some intuition, However, you seem disinclined to trust it, for whatever reason.

There is a pervasive restlessness in your handwriting. It seems that you may be trying to escape some situation or person.

You are physical minded and seek diversity in your activities. Nervous energy keeps you on the go.

At the time you wrote to me, it seems you were emotionally involved in more than you can comfortably handle. This in turn suggests a need to stop and sort out your priorities.-

Center stage holds more appeal than backstage. However, behind all the panache do I detect some inferior feelings? It is important to consider that no one can make you feel inferior unless you allow them to.

Writer is people-oriented

If-you-would like to have you handwriting analyzed in the newspaper, write to Lorene Green, a certified graphologist, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 4818 Please use a full sheet of white unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handednessand full signature are all helpful And feedback is always welcome.

He's guiding Rosedale church into 1990s

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

At his first sermon at Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), the Rev. Rick Peters made a promise.

"I told them . . ., "I'll be there for you, " Peters said.

Sounds simple, but in the reality of today's ministry such pledges are more than a mouthful.

The nature of the clergy asks a pastor to do the traditional things, such as conduct services, visit people in the hospital and lend an ear of comfort and support.

But then there's also the social work and counseling skills required.

Not to mention, the financial aspects it doesn't, it's lopsided." of the church that need to be tended. In essence, the pastor is asked to be sociologist and CEO.

PETERS APPEARS to be able to master such tasks. His handshake is firm, his manner direct, reinforcing such observations. He knows what being in the ministry is all about.

That won't change, he said, even moving from a 100-member church in Commerce Township, Crossroads Presbyterian, to 700-plus-member Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian in

"The church has to have a balanced outlook," Peters said. "It has to look inward and outward If

At Crossroads Presbyterian, where he served for 15 years, the church provided emergency psychological services for low-income familles in conjunction with Oakland County Mental Health Services. The church also provided emergency shelter for the homeless.

Peters himself was involved as a chaplain with the Walled Lake Police Department.

"You can learn a lot spending 20 minutes in a squad car," he said. "Those guys can show you areas you never knew existed in your commu-

dens Presbyterian. The church is actively involved in several mission projects both at home and abroad.

Peters is most impressed with the people who sit in the pews, who have gone out of their way to be warm and welcome him, he said.

"In a larger scale this is similar to the church I'm leaving in Walled Lake, which is one of the reasons I considered before coming here," he said. "I think they pride themselves in being a family of faith, an extended family."

Peters' family is his two daughters, Jill, 16, and Kellie, 13. Hecoaches his younger daughter in softball, striking a balance in ministry and family life.

PRIOR TO joining Crossroads Presbyterian, he was pastor for five years at Congruity Presbyterian in New Alexandria, Pa. He received his post-graduate degree at Pittsburgh Theological Seminary and worked one year as a mission assistant in Brazil.

He'll undoubtedly call on those experiences, along with his direct, personable manner, to help guide Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian into the

"The church needs to take a good look at itself through new eyes, it needs to take a good look at the community it exists in through new eyes," he said, "and determine what it means to be a church of God in this time and place."

taking down the walls that bind people, even if only a chip at a time. Becoming aware of Almena comes at a good time. It was the same week that a number of nameless Germans were chipping away at a wall which many thought could never come

This is a week to reflect in gratitude on the good things that have come to us and through us in the past vear. It is a week to know how wonderful it is that somewhere our ancestors were lifted or carried over the walls that held them and were given a chance to start a nation known as America. Who among their parents would ever have believed it could happen?

This is the week that we thank the God of creation_for_the_wonderful_ world of air and water and see-bearing plants and fruit-bearing trees, and for the technology to clean up whatever mess we may have made of it all.

This is the week when we can feel good about the fact that there have been people who have helped us over our own personal walls and hurdles so that we could find life beyond the pains we have known.

This list is by no means complete. But then this kind of list can only be completed with everyone's input, columnist and readers alike. A lady bythe name of Almeda who was able to see that her young riders were what VIP really means helped me to start my list. And maybe this start can get. you going on yours. Happy Thanksgiving.

Good economy seen

By Tim Richard staff writer

A ninth straight year of non-inflationary economic growth is in store for Americans, according to three University of Michigan forecasters with proven crystal balls.

Michigan's share will be spurred by two more years of growth in business and professional services - including data processing, legal, engineering and architectural services rather than low-paid

"A number of factors" account for the apparent breaking of the old three-year boom/bust cycle, said Saul D. Hymans, director of the Research Seminar in Quantitive Economics, at a two-day meeting in the U-M Business School last week.

First, no international shocks like the OPEC oil cartel's 1973 price explosions have occurred since 1983, Hymans told a news conference.

- Second, the Federal Reserve Board hasn't made any mistakes in tightening the money supply as it did in the 1920s and after World War II. (Other speakers gave Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan spec-. tacular grades for fine-tuning the economy after the October 1987 stock market tumble.

Third, "the private economy can miscalculate too much production, inventory pileup. That's something we're less vulnerable to now.

"There is better inventory control. The auto industry hasn't quite learned it yet, but the rest of the economy has."

Economists have blamed several recessions of the past generation on the "buy now" psychology. Overbuying fueled more price increases, overstocking of inventories and the inevitable "bust."

SEVERAL FORECASTERS said that psychology seems to have been broken.

"Complaints about high prices are at their lowest point since the early 1960s," said Richard T. Curtin. director of U-M's survey of consumers at the Survey Research Center. "The 1970s rationale - 'buy now because prices will go up in the future' - never came back.'

He said the index of consumer confidence-since-1983 has remained steadily near the 93.9 average compared to below 70 in the last recession year. "They see economic growth as slowing, but they don't see bad times," Curtin said. Hymans forecast "upbeat" national economic growth rates of 2.7 and 3 percent for 1990 and '91. He saw auto sales dipping a bit to 9.7 and 9.9 million, a mid-1990 growth in exports as the value of the dollar weakens and more than 1.5 million housing starts a year.

MICHIGAN will see a decline of 0.8 percent in the number of manufacturing jobs in the next two years, but it will be offset by growth rates of 2 percent and 2.9 percent in those two years, said Hymans' two associates.

The state unemployment will drop from the current 8 percent to 7.8 percent the next-two years, said researchers Joan P. Crary and George P. Fulton.

"Over the past four years, the service industry has accounted for approximately one out of every two jobs created in the state. And by 1991, according to our current forecast, it will have more jobs than the entire manufacturing sector," Crary said.

Auto sales could stay fairly high

At first blush, it looks as if the auto market will weaken in the next two years. It's better than it looks, said Saul Hymans, director of the University of Michigan's Research Seminar in Quantitive Economics.

A lot of the pent-up demand from the recession of the early 1980s was satisfied in the early years of the recovery, when sales consistently topped 10 million cars a year, he said. Hymans predicted 9.7 million units in 1990 and 9.9 million in '91 — not records, but still healthy numbers.

Most of his business is referrals from lawyers, Lefko said. An attorney opposing a client in one case may later hire him for another due to his expertise, Lefko said.

"I don't care if he's the plaintiff or defendant," Lefko said. "They know they will get an answer that stands up in court. Once we come up with an opinion, we're strong for our opinion.'

"I find him very thorough, honest and professional," Kutinsky said. 'His opinion is respected."

LEFKO, 67, went into the evaluation business for himself in 1968 after working as a sales forecaster for General Electric and an auditor associated with Coopers & Lybrand.

He also served as general manager of Americoffee Corp., an office coffee supplier, while getting his feet wet in the evaluation business.

"I liked the first (valuation) job I did for NBD, a little tool and die shop for an estate," Lefko said.

Upstart Miata fails to match MGB's charm

Maybe one shouldn't go back and look up old loves anyway, particularly after a couple of decades have burnished their memory and erased their flaws.

Anyone who ever owned a British sports car (the rest of you can quit reading now) has been left with enough good old car stories to push any former good old Yolvo or good old VW or good old whatever owner into the corner of any cocktail party 'I've ever seen."

Yeah, they leaked oil, and were drafty (leading to good old blanket stories) and the electrics...

And yet. And yet. Enough of this already. Now we have the Mazda Miata, a Japanese

has been a lot of uneducated driveling about how this blatant effort at automotive nostalgia is somehow channeling the substance of a real sports car through this reincarnation which not only doesn't leak, but the lights work and it has door handles, with real locks.

effort to imitate - I say imitate

Ever since the Miata's introduction a couple of months ago there

ALL OF WHICH led me, once I got my hands on one, to drive a Miata over to Aardvark Signs on North Woodward, where proprieter James Gonyeau houses his inestimable collection of Real British Sports Cars.

That is, a slightly used MGB.....

The chance to drive this Japanese upstart-imitation roadster back-toback against a RBSC may not have been the kind of thing that would make Wide World of Sports, but It seemed like a good idea at the time. We ambled off on a back-road tour of south Oakland County, switching cars a couple of times, ending up side by side at an A&W stand near Walled lake, where we had to hold the trays in our laps.

The result of this scientific approach to automotive evaluationproved surprisingly favorable to the setting-sun folks; rather than the rising sun. The MGB, after 18 years, was noticably slower, with its stateof the art SU carburetors putting out about 92 hp. against the Miata's 116

But the MG also was a more solld car, tighter on rough roads, and a trifle better handling. Details of anodized, cast aluminum and chromeplated brass contrasted with the Miata's plastic touches. Real wire wheels with knockoff hubs against placid forgings.

It was kind of welrd. The MG was a bit more than I ever remembered it, distracted as I was at the time by long moonlit drives with the top down in early October. There was a bit of sadness, too, as I began to remember how the money-starved guys from England strug. gled to tack on safety equipment. choked those wonderfully weird carburetors with emission controls, and spent their last years turning out ghastly cars, instead of ending it gracefully.

Hymans also predicted sales of imports would hold at 28.3 percent of the market as the American dollar weakens and imports become more expensive.

Asked about Lee Iacocca's bearish outlook for American firms, Hymans said the Chrysler chairman was looking only at the Big Three. Foreign-owned plants — called "transplants" — count as domestic production, Hymans said.

"PRICE DISCOUNTS and rebates have had a positive effect," added Richard T. Curtin, director of U-M's Survey of Consumers.

"We've had a string of 15 million vehicle years," said Curtin, adding auto and truck sales. "The average age of the fleet is coming down."

Reward best work, not mere longevity

By Mary DiPaolo special writer

In almost any business, it is easy to get caught up in the process of paying or rewarding people based on length of service and level of membership on the team.

Many salary increases are based on annual or semi-annual reviews that result in employees with longevity being paid more than newer staff members. Similarly, there are employment grades or categories that dictate pay scales and raises for many industries.

In terms of reward systems, many companies are locked into programs such as Christmas bonus plans that ultimately create confusion, distress and inappropriate expectations among employee staff.

In my consulting practice, I have found-that a majority of employers are more concerned with keeping wages_ "relative" than analyzing staff performance objectively and making pay increase decisions based on merit.

VERY OFTEN, when I recommend a merit-increase, the owner or manager will say: "I can't do that. What will Carol say when she finds out I am paying Tom more than her?" Or, "If Bob finds out that Joe is getting more money for the same job, he'll quit."

In the same sense, Christmas bonuses are perceived as a reward, rather than a gift. In reality, offering a bonus of any type to employees really has nothing to do with the value of the employee-or their productivity. In fact, I've been to several meetings where the whole Christmas bonus system was out of control because employees kept expecting more and more each year."

If you find yourself caught in the Christmas bonus or the annual increase based on longevity syndrome, you need to call an immediate halt to the counterproductive system for compensating employees. There should be only one method to use in establishing both wages and wage increases. An effective pay system is not developed around length of service, seasonal bonuses or "member-___ ship level" on the team. Instead, performance can be the only criteria.

ANY JOB IN an organization has two factors that determine pay. First, each job has a worth factor. This worth factor is based on responsibility. The more responsible the job, the higher the pay base.

The second factor is value. Value is based on performance. As the performance of an individual improves, regardless of his or her area of responsibility, the wages or rewards paid should increase in a proportional manner. This is the same as the the value added concept in marketing. The more measurable value (results) an employee adds to an organization, the higher his or her merit increases should be. Remember, too, that results must be measurable, or they have no merit.

Questions about pay can upset employers and employees faster and longer than almost any other aspect of employment. Next week, we will present some thoughts to help manage your company's employee compensation system.

Business interest costs you less on tax bill than any other type

An individual's deduction for investment interest expense is limited to the amount of new investment income. However, interest on loans to pay for tax-exempt income; such as municipal bonds, is not deductible since the income generated is nontaxable.

If an investor has a margin account with a stockbroker, in order to deduct the interest incurred by buying on margin, the investor must have credits in the margin account sufficient to evidence payment of that interest.

Put differently, the investor must have enough dividends, interest income, cash payments or proceeds from security sales credited to the account during the year to cover the amount of interest charged to the

If need be, the investor should make a cash deposit to the margin account on or before Dec. 31 to cover the interest payment.

Another type of expense, namely the business interest expense, incurred as a result of loans taken to operate a business, is fully deductible. -

However, passive activity interest, generated in carrying out passive activity in which the taxpayer materially participates, is deductible only to the extent of the taxpay-

'Roger & Me'

Cameraman recalls making surprise visits for filming

By Dan Greenberg special writer

ESTLAND TEACHER John Prusak, who worked as cameraman on the controversial film hit "Roger & Me," describes the experience as "guerrilla filmmaking at its best.'

In "Roger & Me," Michael Moore takes a satirfc look at the impact Roger Smith and the General Motors Corp. have had on the city of Flint, which is hometown to both Moore and GM.

Prusak was cameraman for about a fourth to a third of the original footage of "Roger & Me." No previous film he worked on garnered so much public notice, but Prusak's work is extensive and influential, with more than 50 items in his filmography, dating back to 1973.

Since 1981, Prusak has been department head, media production, at the William D. Ford Vocational/ Technical Center.

"ROGER & ME," as Prusak recalls it "had about 40 shooting days over a two-year period, and we shot a lot of film. It was what I call guerrilla filmmaking. We would go to locations unannounced

'We filmed in plants like Fisher Body and others around Flint, like the truck plant before it closed. We went down there with the news media and disguised ourselves as a news crew from Cleveland."

Prusak said, "'Roger & Me' is a completely grassroots effort on the part of Michael Moore. All the money was raised through donations and through the now-famous bingo games on Tuesday nights, which they still have. I'm probably going to be best-known for the Bob Eubanks footage and Bob's terrible Joke." (Eubanks, host of "The Newlywed Game," is a Flint native and gave an interview to Moore, during which Eubanks made an off-color ethnic

One of Prusak's most emotional experiences, film or otherwise, came this October on a trip to Poland. Working as cameraman for Gloria Josephs' film, "Boundarles," a visual poem about the lines that rim our lives, Prusak visited the Auschwitz concentration/death camp.

"That picture of me at Auschwitz is very accurate. That's how I felt," he said. "When we were driving there early Sunday morning, it was foggy, and I had this feeling that I was on a roller-coaster ride to hell. I knew I was going to Auschwitz. -- "It's something you hear about Prusak and wife Barbara were on location recently in Poland, where he was cameraman for Gloria Joseph's film "Boundarries." Here the Prusaks are at a castle in Krakow.

from your earliest years, but no matter what pictures you see, they can't describe being there."

EVEN WEEKS LATER, it was evident how deeply Prusak was touched by the experience and how he needed some touch of contemporary reality to balance the impact of those moments at Auschwitz.

"If I didn't have my camera with me," Prusak said, "I don't think I could have made it through the day. I was lucky to have Gloria Josephs there to tell me what shots she wanted so I could just concentrate on fstops and framing, and that's what got me through that day. I can't im-though I know it did." Prusak described "Boundaries" as "on the cutting edge of technology, taking the images we shot, 16mm footage, plus still photos, color transparencles and 8mm video, and Gloria is going to enter it all into a highend computer as digital information. Then she will combine those images in a variety of ways."

Despite the mass appeal of film and the wide publicity movies receive. Prusak is quiet, a thoughtful personality, an artist who appreciates, and prefers, the interior, reflective facet of the movies. "Film to me," he said, "is a very personal statement."

"godfather of independent filmmaking in the Detroit market," Prusak is one of the area's finest cameramen, an excellent film teacher and an artist. He is also the inspiration and allaround advocate and supporter for more local filmmakers than anyone knows....

Cameraman John Prusak and director Michael

Moore worked together on Moore's full-length

THERE IS a network of local filmmakers, and Prusak is very much at the center of it, always willing to help anyone and everyone learn about film. He glows with paternal pride when talking about his many students now working in the film industry.

"We (the local film network) are very socially conscious about things in our lives and we want to react to those events," he said. "I'm not in film for commercial reasons. It's an expensive means of expression, but a very powerful one, and it is a marriage of the arts."

Prusak and his wife Barbara live in Detroit's Corktown. He has two sons, Robert and Keith. He also has a stepdaughter and a stepson, Barbara and Rick Anderson. "When I'm not filming or spending time with my family, I'm out riding my motorcy-Referred to by one critic as the cle, something I've always loved," Prusak said.

A graduate of Northern Michigan University, Prusak received a bachelor of science in visual arts (1970) and did his graduate work in Ann Arbor, receiving a master of arts from the University of Michigan's Radio-TV Film Department in 1978.

Before heading the Media Production Department at Ford Vocational/Technical Center, Prusak was an art and film instructor for 10 years in the Wayne-Westland Community Schools. He initiated the first elementary film program for that school district. In 1973 he was a founding partner in Farmington's held in conjunction with the Detroit Focal Point Studio of Photography.

HE ALSO HAS been resident artist in 19 communities throughout Michigan since 1976. Through his membership in numerous film and art organizations Prusak has been a strong, influential advocate of the motion picture as art, as expression and as communication between peo-

Prusak summarized his philosophy, "I think of myself as a filmmaker who teaches, and that's quite different form a teacher who makes documentary "Roger & Me." Shooting was done on locations around Flint.

He is particularly well-known for his service on the board of trustees and as president (1978-83) of Detroit Area Film Teachers (DAFT), an or ganization devoted to improving education and opportunities in filin and, more recently, in television.

Prusak advocates "media education. I'm a strong believer in that, There needs to be more of it. People have to be more discriminating and cut through all the advertising and media information."

DAFT's annual Update - recently Producers Association, is another, area in which Prusak has served with distinction. Update is a well₁at. tended cinema event which, early each year, gathers films, filmmakers and aficionados for a day-long festival of film.

FOR MANY YEARS, Prusak and the Ford Vocational Center hosted the event. Last year the featured speaker was Moore, who screened a rough cut of "Roger & Me." The 1990

Pizza delivery

Cottage Inn Pizza — a favorite with University of Michigan students and other Ann Arbor residents — has come to Livonia. Steve Miller of Ann Arbor, one of the three Livonia territory partners, said Cottage Inn specializes in two kinds of pizza: deepdish Silician and the round, regularthin-crust. The Livonia pick up and delivery operation opened Nov. 1 at 16349 Middlebelt Road, south of Six Mile Road. Two more Cottage Inn Pizza locations are scheduled to open in Livonia by the end of 1990. Also opening this month is another location in Westland. Garden City and Dearborn will have Cottage Inn. Pizza pick up and delivery locations in 1990. The chain has four locations in Ann Arbor - four deliveries and one sit-down.

Eleven million people in the U.S. have diabetes. But almost half of them don't know it.

Untreated, diabetes can lead to heart disease, kidney disease, blindness and gangrene.

And for 150,000 people each year, it leads to death.

That's why you should be aware of the symptoms of diabetes: blurred vision, excessive thirst and frequent urination are just some of the warning signs. Because the sooner you find out if you have diabetes, the more likely you are to get it under control, before complications set in.

Finding out you have diabetes can be scary. But not finding out can be fatal.

The one person we can think of whose generosity equals yours.

By making your contribution to this year's United Way Torch Drive, you've put yourself in a very special category. At least, that's the way it seems to us.

Your generosity has made this our most successful year ever, enabling us to support 153 different agencies in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. And in turn, enabling them to offer year-round help to the homeless. The hungry.

The abused. And so many others who are truly in need.

That's a wonderful and unselfish thing to do. So from all of us at the United Way, our most sincere thanks. Like somebody else who comes to mind, you've given us exactly the gift we were hoping for.

Thank you for caring.

Patriots outgun Farmington, 61-50

Franklin vs. Taylor Center for regional championship

By Brad Emons staff writer

Farmington brought out the Cannon sisters for battle Monday, but Livonia Franklin had some effective artillery of its own, surviving a first-round Class A regional girls basketball game at Dearborn Edsel Ford, 61-50.

The Patriots, now 19-3 overall, move into tonight's championship game against Taylor Center (23-1). Game time is 7 p.m.

Franklin was a heavy favorite going into its matchup against Farmington, having beaten the Falcons in an earlier meeting without top scorer Dawn Warner, 38-23.

But the Patriots encountered a much different and vastly improved Falcon team, led by lightning-quick guards Rachael and Mandy Cannon, transfers from Redford Temple Christian.

Zipping past the Franklin zone press, Farmington led by as many as nine points in the second period.

Rachael, who scored 14 of her game-high 21 points during the first half, canned a pair of free throws with 3:25 left to give Farmington its biggest lead of the night, 22-13.

BUT FRANKLIN stormed back to take a 25-24 advantage at intermission, outscoring the Falcons 11-2 in the final three minutes, capped by Warner's three-pointer from the corner with only three seconds left.

In the decisive third quarter,

Franklin outscored the Falcons, 21-12. Cheryl Hintz's rebound basket at the buzzer-gave the Patriots a 46-36 advantage.

Franklin, however, really couldn't shake the Falcons in the final quarter.

Erika Hatcher's hoop with 6:15 to play cut the deficit to seven, 48-41, but the Falcons could not get any closer. Warner, who led Franklin with 20

Warner, who led Franklin with 20 points, put the game away with a steal and a layup with 2:30 to play, putting the Patriots up by 10 again, 56-46.

Shannon Eberly, who came up with several key baskets, contributed 17 points for the Patriots, while teammates Juliann Steslak and Hintz added 13 and 10, respectively.

"In the first half we weren't taking advantage of what they were giving us," said Franklin coach Dan Freeman. "There were spots open against their 1-3-1 zone. They were giving us the gaps, but we just passed it around the perimeter."

RACHAEL CANNON, a 5-foot-5 junior, was the only Falcon to score in double figures.

Hatcher added nine, while Bonnie Wheelis contributed eight, all in the third quarter, and Mandy Cannon, a sophomore, had seven.

"Mandy has really come into her own," Freeman said. "We tried to keep it out of her hands. We keyed on her with Patty Shea, who did a pretty good job. But those two (sisters) are probably the only players Patty will face this season who are quicker than she is.

"When we'd clamp down on Mandy, she dished off to her sister, who didn't miss in the first half. In the second half we tightened up on her (Rachael) and changed some things around."

Farmington, coming off its first district championship in the school's history, had a six-game winning streak snapped. The Falcons finished the season at 9-14.

"Defensively we've improved, although we may not have shown it tonight," said Farmington coach Diana Fair. "We gave up a lot in the third quarter. We let down defensively and there were things they took advantage of.

"AND FRANKLIN was storming our girl who would get the rebound. There was a stretch where we gave up three outlet passes right in a row. We like to push the ball up the floor, but we gave it away because we were a little out of control. We weren't patient enough. We played well the first quarter, but it would have made me feel better if we had done it for four quarters."

Eberly, a 5-foot-8 senior center for the Patriots, scored nine of her 17 in the third quarter.

"She just killed us on the boards," Fair said. "I'd say that was the weakest part of our game — rebounding."

Freeman also had praise for his center.

"Eberly was giving up three to four inches, but she stepped in and did a nice job," said the Franklin coach. "I told her to get in there and make things happen for us, and thank goodness she did."

Franklin shot an uncharacteristic 16 of 27 (59 percent) from the free throw line. Warner, an 80 percent foul shooter, was nine of 16.

"That's the worst we've ever shot from free throw line the all year," Freeman said. "Tonight we hit—a poor percentage, period."

Farmington, meanwhile, was a respectable 13 of 19 (68 percent).

Borgess bows out in foul-filled contest

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

It's metal, worn around the neck, and goes "tweet."

The referee's whistle, which helped close the season Monday for Tayna Tounsel and her Redford Bishop Borgess teammates, screeched like metal scraping against cement. The gnawing sound will live on with the Spartans who were whipped 69-39 by Detroit Benedictine in a foul-filled regional Class B girls basketball game at Warren Woods Tower High School.

Toursel, the Spartans top scorer, received her fifth personal foul with 2:51 left in the third quarter, closing out her career at Borgess. Her exit also signaled an early end for the Spartans (11-12), who fought back to take a one-point lead at the half.

When the referee blew his whistle, Toursel stood at the sidelines dazed for a moment and then sat down and shook her head in disbelief. Four points and a seat on the bench is all she would have to show in her last game.

The Ravens then went in for the kill, reeling off 10 unanswered points in the third quarter.

RISHA KELLEY led the assault for Benedictine (19-2). The 5-foot11 center scored a game-high 31 points, 22 of those in the second half.

"I feel very bad for her (Tounsel) not to finish up a game like this where she could show people what 'I feel very bad for her (Tounsel) not to finish up a game like this where she could show what kind of player she is.'

— Dave Mann Borgess coach

kind of player she is," said Borgess coach Dave Mann, wrapping up his first season at the helm. "Once the ball goes up in the air, no one works harder than Tanya Tounsel."

Borgess worked hard to stay inthe game. The Spartans fell quickly behind as the Ravens ran off a flurry of baskets, taking a 16-8 lead.

When the second quarter opened, so did Borgess. The team displayed the spark shown throughout its seven-game winning streak in the final weeks of the season, drawing light on defense and holding Benedictine to only five points in the eight-minute span.

But a nasty trend developed. It was called a foul — and Borgess was called for plenty of them in the second quarter. Benedictine could only convert 3-of-14 shots from the free-throw line.

The damage was done. When the first half ended, both Wendy Smith and Tounsel had three personal fouls hanging around their necks like anchors.

THE RAVENS also tried a different defensive setup in the second half. Benedictine coach Dawn Indish went with a zone triangle, leaving two players free to guard Kyra Woodard and Tounsel. The strategy worked. Woodard was held to five points in the second half, finishing with a team-high 13.

"In the first half, Shetelle (Clifford) would lose No. 14 (Woodard) and she would open the floor on us," Indish said.

Clifford also opened the scoring for the Ravens with 17 points. Andrea Caldwell added 15 for Benedictine, which continued to roll up the score in the latter part of the game. Kelley helped close out the festivities with a three-point basket.

The flow of the game was disrupted by several whistles from the officials. Borgess had 24 personal fouls, Benedictine had 13. Mann, though, didn't place any blame.

Instead, he was content to assess a season where Borgess rebounded from an early-season slump, found its offensive niche and ran off a seven-game winning streak that ended Monday.

THE SPARTANS return seven players next season, including Angela Kendrick, Woodard and Smith.

"One of the things I liked is that they were able to turn things around," he said. "They were able to keep their poise in games. If we hadn't developed like we have, we would've been out of this game in the first quarter."

HE CORNER HAS been reached. And soon within a year I expect it will be rounded.

There's no cause for over-anticipation. Not yet. Because there's still a long way to go before Team USA can be considered anything but a pitifully minor player among the world's soccer powers.

Yes, I was every bit as thrilled as almost every soccer nut - and, as has been proven over and over and over in the last few months, there are quite a few in the O&E: area -- when our national teamwhipped Trinidad and Tobago 1-0 Sunday, on Trinidad's home field, to earn a spot in the World Cup.

I really didn't expect it. Not after the debacle a couple of weeks before in St. Louis, when all the U.S. team had to do was knock off a weak El Salvador team to qualify for the Cup. El Salvador was already out of the competition for a 1990 berth, but our guys still couldn't beat 'em.

I-PERSONALLY found it disgusting. By that I mean, I was there; in St. Louis, at the park, trying to cheer our team to a clinching victory over those Salvadorans. When they failed - and believe me, they had enough chances, including some they never even took — I gave up hope.

Winning on the road in World Cup competition would be like our Lions posting a winning record damn near impossible. Remember, you may think the Super Bowl is a big deal, but on Trinidad Sunday there were 35,000 people crammed into their stadium, and the rest of the islanders were waiting for the Cup-clinching win or tie that would mean a national holiday Monday.

Such long odds, and the U.S. team still without its brightest star, midfielder Hugo Perez, who was hampered by an injured groin.

BUT THEY came through, thanks to Paul Caligiuri's magnificently placed, left-footed shot. And carry one; now Team USA is one of 24 final- Oakland University plays its

But don't expect it to hold up next year in Italy.

All the problems the U.S. had in qualifying for the Cup, in what became the weakest zone in the world once Mexico was disqualified, does not bode well for our guys. After all, you can't expect the competition to get easier next year.

Then there's all this stuff about our "best" player, Perez. I have absolutely no problem with him holding such status, particularly since he deserves it. After all, he can score goals, and few other Americans have proven they can.

WHAT DOES perturb me is Perez's international status. He plays in France's second division.

Now it's true, European teams can have only a few foreign players on their rosters. But you'd think our "best" guy could land a spot on a first division team somewhere.

When your team only has a couple of players who good enough to compete in second division European soccer, and the teams you will face consist entirely of first division players, well, don't expect too

At least not this year. Of course, the U.S. is hosting the World Cup in 1994. By then, who knows? With all the Eastern European borders opening, maybe we can recruit a few stars.

Don't misunderstand me. I'm hoping we get a couple of ties next year. If we can actually win a game, I'll be ecstatic.

BUT I'M NOT expecting the U.S. team to accomplish anything internationally until the turn of the century — about 2002. By then, I really think we'll be up to challenging the top teams in the world.

How far soccer's come in the last few years in this country cements my confidence. Here's just a couple of local examples, both from this

Mercy leads formidable area contingent

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Farmington Hills Mercy's timing was perfect for swimming season-best times in the Class A girls champlonships Saturday.

Out of 20 swims at the state meet - 12 individual and eight on relays — the Marlins had 18 lifetimes bests and finished third in the team standings at Eastern Michigan University.

Mercy's best effort was in the 200-yard medley relay in which Katie Westhoff, Katle Knipper, Liz DeMattia and Karen Neyer won the state championship in 1:49.49, dropping more than four seconds off their previous best.

"So many kids add time," Mercy coach Chuck McClune said. "I never thought any of my kids would add time: I thought they would all drop. -

"People are always saying Catholic League teams do badly, because they're keyed in on the Catholic League, I think it's the opposite. Our league is one of the easiest, and it's real easy for our kids to key in on the state meet."

THE MARLINS also were third in the freestyle relay, knocking nearly seven seconds off their time while dropping from 3:44.20 to 3:37.92.

In Individual events, DeMattia was third in the butterfly at 58.56, Knipper third in the breaststroke at 1:06.94 and Neyer fifth in the 50 freestyle at 24.39.

McClune was especially pleased by Neyer's swim, which saw her slash 1.1 seconds off her time. Never was seeded 25th at the start of the off their times, and Becky Wyquist reduced her 200 freestyle time by almost four seconds. She was eighth in the 100 and 200 freestyles at 53.94 and 1:58.08, and Westhoff also scored in the backstroke, taking 11th place in 1:03.33.

Both relay teams and Neyer and Knipper in their individual events earned automatic All-American honors and set varsity records, too.

WESTERN LAKES Activities Association champ North Farmington tied with Lansing Waverly for eighth place. Kerry Doran led the Raiders, taking second in the IM (2:08.25) and fifth in the butterfly (58.93).

The top six swimmers in each event are recognized as all-staters, and Observerland had another in Livonia Stevenson's Jennifer Knapp, who placed fifth in the breaststroke (1:07.36).

Mercy, which was 10th last year and cracked the top five for the first time in 10 years, scored in every event but the IM, 500 freestyle and diving. The Marlins didn't enter the IM, and diving isn't a team strong point.

IN ADDITION to Doran, North's medley relay of Julianne Markey, Anna Palmer, Christie Duthie and Karrie Kranz was seventh in 1:52,5. The Raiders had the third fastest time overall, but they did it in the finals instead of the preliminaries and were shut out of the championship heat.

North's freestyle relay was disqualified when a swimmer left early on an exchange, but with the points that would have been earned the Raiders would have fared better. "Otherwise, we were no worse than fifth." North coach Pat Duthie said. "We were a legitimate top-six team. Top three was a little high. but fourth or fifth was within our grasp.

"I do not remember a state meet when we had this many DQs," he added. "I don't think the officiating was bad; it was good. We just made a mistake. We weren't trying to be cagy. That's ?.

Kranz also was ninth in the IM (2:14.73), and Duthie was especially pleased by freshmen Palmer and Carrie Worthen who finished 10th and 12th, respectively, in the breaststroke at 1:09.14 and 1:10.76.

Also scoring in the state meet were Plymouth Salem's Cheri Vincent, Plymouth Canton's Nicole Drake and Stevenson's medley relay.

Vincent was seventh in the backstroke (1:00.98), and Drake was eighth in the 500 free style (5:15.23). The Spartans went 1:55.29 and finished 11th in the relay.

Salem coach defends new format

By Brad Emons staff writer

Plymouth Salem coach Chuck Olson said criticism about the way the 12-team Western Lakes Activities Association girls swim meet was run on Nov. 10 is unfounded.

Olson, whose school hosted the meet, defended the new format, which allowed 18 places to be scored Instead of 12.

Northville coach Bill Dicks, who could not be reached on Monday, reportedly is upset about the new format, which tends to favor schools with larger-sized teams. "A majority of the coaches wanted to go 18 places because of the size of the conference," Olson said. "The whole idea was to get more kids to participate. With 12 teams it makes sense to go to 18 (per event). "Doug Buckler (the Livonia Stevenson boys coach) came up with the idea and I have to admit I was one who really liked it. It was in effect for the boys meet last year and it worked well. "If just he (Dicks) would worry more about his own team than wor-

Olson, however, said all schools have been notified about the corrections, which moves Northville intosecond place with 357 points behind league champion Nórth Farmington with 438. Fifth-place finisher Livonia Stevenson was also shorted 24 points.

Original totals for the top five teams, as reported in the Nov. 13 Observer, read: North (438), Plymouth Canton (355), Plymouth Salem (348), Northville (340) and Livonia Stevenson (293).

"We wanted to run double-check on scores for each team, but we didn't do that. That's our fault, but we'll try to avoid that happening in the future. But without question we have the best (scoring) table -around."_

"The whole idea was not to cheat anybody out of anything," said the Salem coach. "You can still enter only four (individuals) per event, but you're only really only talking about 20 minutes longer to accomodate 54 more kids.

With Michigan Lottery prizes averaging more than $12 million a week, recent reader questions have asked for more details. How Much Was Won In The Past Year?

During the Lottery fiscal year which ended on September 30, winnings totaled more than $643 million. Included is the full value of prizes being awarded over the next 20 years to 58 Super Lotto iackpot winners.

Q. How Many Prizes Were Awarded? A. There were more than 24 million, or the equivalent of nearly three for every resident in the state. Do Dally Games Have A Lot Of Winners? During the year, the Daily 3 had nearly 1.5 million winners with prizes up to $500 totaling more than $166 million. With prizes up to $5,000, the Daily 4 added some $80 million more shared by 214,863 winners.

Q. How Many Have Won Zinger

Prizes? A. In just over six months of Zinger drawings, there were 397,287 winners sharing prizes worth more than $18 million. Top prizes of $100,000 went to 39 players who had perfect matches of the six-digit Zinger number.

Q. How Much Was The Average Jackpot Award?

A. The average for fackpot winners in the last fiscal year was $3,289,534 with the highest individual award $11,297,308.

Q. Why Are These Paid Over 20 Years? A. To offer larger jackpots and provide more money to winners. A share of Lotto sales dollars is assigned to a jackpot! prize pool and the total amount invested. Vinners receive all of this plus all the interest it earns over the 20 years. Without this payment system, jackpot prizes would be a great deal smaller.

Q. With All Those Small Prizes, How Much Was Won Playing Instant Games? A. Those small prizes, plus the larger ones, added up to more than $91 million in instant game prizes during the fiscal year. Q. How Many New Cars Have Been Won On The Weekly Televised Game Show? A. In the 36 "Fame & Fortune" game shows conducted during the fiscal year, 37 cars worth a total of $549,893 were won. The number continues to grow with four more won in the first four weeks of the new fiscal year. Por submitting the first question lead-

Canton trounces Southgate Anderson

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Susan Ferko scored 32 points nearly half of her team's total - to lead Plymouth Canton to a historic basketball, victory Monday night in the Class A girls regional tournament at Trenton.

So why did the 5-foot-11 center think she had failed her teammates? "I missed so many easy shots," said Ferko after the Chiefs polished off Southgate Anderson 69-36 in the first game of a double-header.

Regardless, it was the kind of night when Canton, 20-3, could afford to miss some shots. Nonetheless, the Chiefs seemed to score at will as Southgate, 13-10, offered little opposition.

CANTON, WHICH won its first girls regional game in school history, will play host Trenton for the championship at 7 tonight. The Trojans knocked off once-beaten Adrian 43-41 in the second game Monday.

"Trenton worries me, because of their size and their two players -(Kim) Hoppes and (Katle) Mans," said Canton coach Bob Blohm of the 6-foot post players.

"One thing that concerns me is long rebounding," Blohm said... "We're covering the ones near the hoop pretty well, but the ones away from the basket we're not covering very well right now."

That had little effect on the game, either, as the Chiefs sped to a 30-13 halftime lead behind Ferko's 16 points and Thompson's 11. The latter finished with 18.

Nicole Wolfe tossed in 14 points and Andrea Tonkin 12 for the Titans, but most of that (16 of their 26) came in the second half after the game had heen decided.

With the Chiefs outmaneuvering Southgate in the half-court game and scoring at the end of the break, Canton outscored the Titans 16-2 to begin the second half and coasted after

THE CHIEFS lost Jennie Clark with five fouls late in the third period, Ferko got her fourth in the finalquarter and Thompson played that last eight minutes with three. But an otherwise bad foul situation was of little consequence in this game, too.

"The kids are intent enough on that they're going to be ready Wednesday," Blohm sald, "because they know they're going to play a good team here.

"Obviously, there's no guarantee. All you can do is get get ready to play, and this group has done that."

Canton's reserve players also performed well late in the game. Southgate scored the first six points of the fourth quarter and trimmed the margin to 53-34, but Canton juniors Shannon Murphy and Julie Toma and sophomore Julie Nicastri were key players during a 14-0 run that followed.

After Ferko and Thompson, Toma and Nicastri were the next highest scorers with six and four points, respectively.

"I was real pigased with that group," Blohm said. "They moved the ball and got a lot of scoring op-

SC had an 11 point lead in the second half and lost it, scoring just 29 second-half points and committing several costly turnovers down the stretch. Still, Elliott had a shot at winning it with six seconds left but missed. Typically, Mike Mercer rebounded for the Ocelots but held the ball and never got off a

"We just didn't play very smart basketball," said Dimitriou. Waters finished with 16 points and 11 boards, Harmon had 14 points and Mercer scored 10. Derrick Kent netted 15 for St. Clair.

SC'S WOMEN'S TEAM also suffered a setback last week. The Lady Ocelots managed just 19 first-half points and never recovered, losing 8.57 to Southwestern Michigan Co Friday at SC.

"The difference was offense," said coach Jack Grenan, whose loss I've had at Schoolcraft because I thought we had more talent than they did."

The Lady Ocelots nearly pulled it out. With 15 seconds left, Ann Hardy scored what would have been the go-ahead basket. But a foul had been called prior to the shot and the field goal was disallowed. Hardy then missed the first of her one-and-one free throws.

"We played poor, but we put ourselves in a position to win at-the end with hard work," said Grenan.

Cass Tech reels in Marlins

By C.J. Risak staff writer

There was a lesson to be learned by Farmington Hills Mercy's girls basketball team after Monday's disappointing defeat to Detroit Cass Tech in the Class A regional semifinal at Berkley High School.

The value of experience is incalcu-

The Marlins shot poorly. They were outrebounded. And they had trouble holding onto the ball.

Two factors kept them in the game: Their defense, which was excellent; and Tech's own poor play.

A SPURT at the end of the first quarter, led by Carrie Walton's two last-minute baskets, allowed Mercy to take a 10-9 advantage. The second quarter was sloppily played - nelther team scored until the period was nearly half over - but did contain the key development of the

With six minutes left in the period, senior point guard Jenny Clinton charged after a loose ball. She ran into Tech's Sharletta Rogan and flipped over her, tumbling to the floor. Clinton suffered a deep gash over her eye; she sat out the remainder of the game on the bench before going to the hospital for stitches. With their floor leader and one of only three seniors on the team out, Mercy's problems were compounded. "To begin with, she was already off to a good start," said Baker of Clinton, "She had already scored twice and was hustling on defense when she got hurt.

BUT THE MARLINS fared no better against Tech's defense. A pass inside to Lee Albrecht was knocked away and the Technicians regained possession. A quick pass upcourt to Rogan resulted in a layup and a three-point differential with 39 seconds left.

Mercy still had chances. But Stephens missed and, after Rogan misfired on the first of a one-and-one free throw, Mercy rebounded. Kathleen Gerigk's pass was picked off at midcourt, however, and Rogin was fouled again. This time she made one

Hawks opponent beats the odds by moving up to Class B

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

DeWitt's plan is to copy a page from the Farmington Hills Harrison football annals Saturday night in the Class B championship game.

The Panthers, who fell a game shy of the Class C final in 1988, hope to attain that ultimate goal this November but in the higher classifica-

DeWitt, a 20-9 loser to eventual winner Detroit DePorres a year ago, has beaten three straight Class B playoff foes to reach the final.

Ironically, the Panthers will be playing Harrison, which performed the more impressive feat of winning a Class A crown in 1982 following a championship season in Class B, at 8 p.m. in the Pontlac Silverdome.

Both teams are 12-0. The Hawks DeWitt finished the year in the No. 10 position.

"It's incredible they could be so successful moving up a class." Harrison coach John Herrington said,

"but we don't want them to be too defensive game and won 7-0. successful.

"WE'D LIKE to end the decade championship."

The David-and-Goliath anology can be used to describe the DeWitt-Harrison matchup.

The Hawks, who are the only Class B school in the Western Lakes Activities Association and are accustomedto being the little guy in that respect, look like a glant - in size and tradition - to DeWitt, the smallest school in Class B.

"If we had one less student, we'd still be Class C," said DeWitt coach Gail Thornton, who was an assistant. when the Panthers made their first of four playoff appearances in 1978 and is 57-40 in .10 years as head coach.

"For us to beat (Harrison), it will were ranked No. 1-all season, and take a real effort on our part. On the other hand, anything is possible."

Herrington knows that, too. In 1981, the Hawks were heavy underdogs to No. 1-ranked Muskegon Catholic Central but played a great

> DeWitt, however, is a surprise participant in the final. Most people expected a Grand Rapids-area team to be there Saturday, but the Panthers, who opened the year against three Class C teams and played all B teams after that, beat an excellent Zeeland team, which had beaten Grand Rapids West Catholic.

> But even Thornton admits to being a little surprised at the way things have turned out for his team.

> "I knew we had a good bunch of klds in Class C, but the step up is really hard," he said. "There's a lot more intensity in Class B. In Class C, you're looking at seven or eight good players on each team. In Class B, you're looking at 15 to 16 real good people."

Thornton told his players, who

County League championships since it was reorganized two years ago, they would have to go undefeated if they were to qualify for the Class B playoffs.

DeWitt, a bedroom community of about 3,500 north of Lansing, is buzzing with excitement now, but the move to Class B tempered the locals' enthusiasm early in the season.

"IF WE CAME back and won another league title, I thought' that would be a legitimate goal," Thornfon said. "Had we stayed in Class C, there would have been more excitement when August came around." DeWitt's first playoff victory, an said. "We were fortunate to beat "Our scouts came back and said 'If we can beat Ludington, we've got a shot,' and it turned out we had to have won back-to-back Ingham play them first. So fal the scouts were right; it seems to have gotten easler.'

Thornton isn't conceding anything to the state's No. 1-rate team, but he doesn't expect hat fend to continue against Harrion.

DeWitt beat Zelan in a 38-26 shootout, and Thorstonwould like to see that kind of gime Saturday, if only for the sake if a exciting finale.

BUT THE Pantlers have a highscoring offense, averaging 35 points per game, which it led by halfback Mike Cowdrey, whi han't played in the fourth quarter if the team's last 21 games because of the one-sided 8-6 win over Ludington, was a harb-

King sacks Warriors

By Marty Budner staff writer

As the afternoon grew bitterly colder and the snow began swirlingaround Flint's Atwood Stadium with more gusto, the Brother Rice foot-ball players could for a numbing sense of urgency.

Their team trailed Detroit Martin Luther King, 6-0, in Saturday's Class A state semifinal playoff game, and the seconds were ticking off the clock faster the field was being covered with snow.

The Rice offense, minus senior quarterback Bob Utter, who did not play the second half after suffering a second-quarter knee injury, simply froze against the tenacious King defense. Rice's final desperation pass by substitute Tony Paesano fluttered through the air and was intercepted by King cornerback Timothy Banks as time expired. The Crusaders, with their historic 6-0 victory safely vaulted by Banks' interception, rushed onto the field in a joyous celebration. The jubilant The Warriors had two early champions of the Detroit Public chances to go ahead, but missed on School League were overcome with emotion after their stirring triumph over a very talented Rice team rich with tradition.

On the other side of the field, Utter, shivering in the sub-freezing temperatures, hobbled slowly off the field. His fine career at Rice had come to a staggering halt.

WHILE KING - the first PSL team to qualify for a Class A state championship game — moves on to Muskegon, Utter and his Rice team-Muskegon, Utter and his Rice team-right sidelines for the game's only mates could only take solace in a touchdown. Harrison making 5th trip to finals

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

DeWitt will be in the familiar role of underdog Saturday night when it plays defending champion Farmington Hills Harrison for the Class B football title,

But the Panthers have thrived on that status throughout the playoffs.

Competing in Class B for the first time, DeWitt was overlooked during the regular season and underrated entering post-season play - a combination of having been a Class C school previously and its schedule.

. The Panthers, however, are the Ginderella team in this year's tournament, beating three ballclubs -Ludington, Cheboygan and Zeeland - that nobody figured they would.

"It kind of bugged the kids, because they couldn't break into the ratings and they had a great year," DeWitt coach Gall Thornton said.

"IN THE playoffs, maybe it did help us. I think it was an extra shot in the arm to prove we did belong

DeWitt (12-0) now faces its greatest challenge when it meets the Hawks, also 12-0 and the No. 1-rated team, at 8 p.m. in the Pontlac Silverdome. Thornton said his players are looking forward to it.

"They've been up to the challenge to DePorres.

all year," he said, "and their feeling is 'Let's go play and see how we do compare.' We won't have a problem with people bailing out on Saturday.'

Harrison will be making its third straight trip to the Dome and its fifth appearance in the state finals in the last nine years. The Hawks will attempt to win their fourth championship since 1981, and that would make them the team of the decade in Classes A and B.

Only Class C Detroit DePorres has won more state titles (5) since 1980 than Harrison. Birmingham Brother Rice, Ann Arbor Pioneer, Traverse" class outfit, and if anybody belongs City and Muskegon Catholic Central have won two each.

"That would be great for our school and tradition." Harrison coach John Herrington said. "These kids have been ranked No. 1 in every poll for two seasons, and they've held up well.

"I DON'T think they feel any great pressure going into the game, but when you step out in the Dome there's always that nervousness."

But playing in the Dome is something the Harrison players are accustomed to; whereas, it will be a new experience for the Panthers, who were knocked out of the Class C football

Harrison owns a 25-game winning streak and was ranked as one of the nation's top 25 teams by USA Today this week.

"If we're going to play for a state championship, I guess there's nobody we'd rather play than Harrison," Thornton sald.

"We've seen them a couple times down there (in the Dome). They're a there they certainly do. We hope we can hold up our end of the bargain."

If the Panthers can establish their offense and win the game, it will be done on the ground. DeWitt has a potent rushing game, led by senior halfback Mike Cowdrey, who rushed for more than 1,500 yards in the regular season and has 1,937 after three playoff games.

"WE KEPT thinking for two years somebody was going to shut us ,down," Thornton said. "DePorres did a pretty good job and we had a couple turnovers, but we were able to move the ball."

DeWitt runs from the wishbone, playoffs last year in a semifinal loss and Cowdrey, who ran for 219 yards and three TDs against Zeeland, usually gets the call. Halfback John Telford is rated a good blocker but is nearing 1,000 yards rushing himself.

Chris Berkimer doesn't carry much but is a good option quarterback, Thornton said, and fullback Gibby Hicks has a 12-yard average, scoring four TDs on runs of 50 yards or longer.

"We use him to keep everybody honest," Thornton said, "Cowdrey is the horse of the offense. Everything seems to center around him, and Telford helps to keep people from laying on Cowdrey.'

While Cowdrey has rushed for 25touchdowns (and caught two TD passes), Telford 10 and Hicks seven. Harrison has been stubborn defensively, especially against the run.

That was to have been the key Friday when the Hawks played run-oriented East Grand Rapids in a semifinal game at Flint Atwood Stadium, but an ice-covered field reduced the offenses to an elementary level.

"THAT WILL be a real factor in how that game ends." Thornton said. "because I know we're going to have trouble with their offense.'

"Cowdrey runs a 4.5 in the 40," Herrington said. "If he gets loose, you don't catch him."

Herrington said he's thrilled by the progress the defense has made during the course of the season.

Linebacker Blazo Sarcevich had 14

It was a record-setting season for Grand Valley State's football team, so it should come as no surprise that a record 10 Lakers were named to the all-Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference team, including a couple of local stars.

tackles against EGR, ends Joe dictable will aid Harrison's wide-George and Matt Sperry eight Harrison edged the Pioneers 3-2 when Steve Hill booted a 32-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter, and the trip to the Dome is good news for two reasons.

First, it was thought Hill suffered a broken right leg after he was roughed up on that decisive play, but the injury was a deep thigh bruise, meaning Hill could be ready to play Saturday.

"We'll wait and see, but we're happy we even have a chance to play him," Herrington said." "With him out, we'd have to replace him with three kids. But I really think we're. going to have him."

If Hill, who contributes mightily in all phases of the game, can't play, Jon Schaeffer and Mike Gloetzner will rotate at linebacker, Chris Sarsfield will play swingback, Andy Smith will handle kickoffs and Schaeffer will kick extra points.

SECONDLY, being on an indoor carpet where the conditions are pre-open offense. On the ice at Atwood, the Hawks ran from the power-I and threw only from shotgun formation. In the Dome, the Hawks intend to pull out the stops.

"It's like taking a tremendous load off your shoulders, to know what you can prepare for," Herrington said. "We'll run sprintout, motion, bootleg. We'll be able to throw the ball and have some fun."

And leading that charge will be quarterback Mill Coleman, who will conclude a brilliant high school career Saturday. He has completed 110 of 187 passes this year for 1,760 yards and 16 touchdowns. He has thrown six interceptions.

George, the fullback, remains the leading receiver with 25 catches for 316 yards, and end Mike Saputo has 21 receptions for a team-high 431 yards.

Tailback Matt Conley leads the rushing attack with 924 yards and 16 touchdowns on 205 carries, and the swift and speedy Coleman has added 622 yards and five TDs.

Sloppy Eagles falter

It was ripe for the pickin', this championship of the more times this season. Grand Valley State Tip-Off Basketball Tournament. But

St. Mary's College couldn't pluck it. The Eagles had the title within their grasp, but they had trouble holding on to anything; they lost in Satur-

- St. Mary's stayed within striking distance and did regain the advantage again, with two minutes to play. Garth Howard knocked in a three-point shot to put the Eagles back on top, but their stay there was brief; Northwood's Jeff Williams also sank a three-pointer to put his team back in front.

St. Mary's never again led. Howard and James Lakes each netted 15 points and all-tournament honors for the Eagles. Freshmen Marvin Morris and Rayvlon Croon added 12 and 10 points, respectively.

Northwood's Mike Urbanus paced all scorers with 20 points. The win improved the Northmen's record to 2-0; St. Mary's slipped to 4-2. The two teams will meet three

Despite the balanced scoring, the win was not assured until deep into the second half. St. Mary's trailed 9-2 to start the game before battling back to tie it at 16-all.

Lakes' jumper with 7:03 to play in the first half gave the Eagles the lead for good. Their advantage was 55-46 at the half, and they increased it to as many as 15 points in the second half, but Central State stayed within strik ing distance.

MIDFIELDERS

Kerry Zavagnin, Redford CC: Only a sophomore, Zavagnin, a transfer from Plymouth Canton, scored: 13 goals and added 25 assists.

He was voted the Catholic League's Most Valuable Player and was an All-Sectional pick.

"He has tremendous skill level, vision and work rate," sald Boots. "Kerry is the best pure midfielder in the state, and if he progresses at the same rate, I think he'll be the best midfielder this state has ever produced."

Phil Todino, Livonia Churchill: The senior scored 10 goals and added seven assists en route to All-WLAA and All-Sectional honors.

His career totals are 18 goals and 16

"Phil is the original Mr. Hustle," said Neff. "He gives you 100 percent all the time. He's an excellent defender who has the knack to shut down his opponent, but also takes the ball away from him.

"He's very good at the transition game and moved into the offense very smoothly. He was also the person who took all our long throw-ins."

Greg Christensen, Plymouth Salem: A two-year starter, Christensen scored 15 goals and added 10 assists from his mid-

The senior was voted first-team All-WLAA and All-Sectional.

"Greg had terrific ball skills," said Johnson. "He was part of a great midfield for Salem this season." Greg Smith, Livonia Stevenson: The senior helped the Spartans grab a share of the WLAA title and win the district this Smith played on last year's state Class A championship team as a junior after transferring from Burnsville, Minn, where he played for state-champion St. Paul Academy. "He's small, but he intimidates," said outgoing Stevenson coach Pete Scerri.

"He's not scared of anything. The first three steps he explodes." He was also a first-team All-WLAA and All-Sectional choice.

DEFENDERS

Ryan Fitzpatrick, Plymouth Salem: Led a stout Rocks' defense which allowed only 14 goals in 23 games.

"Ryan is strong and fast, great at winning the ball and also taking it upfield," Johnson said.

Fitzpatrick, an All-Lakes Division pick in the WLAA, scored one goal and added four assists this season. He is a junior.

Brian Mitchell, Livopla Stevenson: The hard-nosed junior was one of the Spartans leaders on delense.

He was an All-Lakes Division pick. "Brian was the one in there that kept usin the game along with Jason Flynn," said Scerri. "He's going to be something else next year. "He's like a cat. If he gets hurt, he just shrugs it off. He's a tough cookle."

Chris Muzo, Livonia Churchill: An All-WLAA and All-Sectional choice, Muzo was one of the quickest defenders in the "Chris is blessed with great speed," said Neff. "This enabled him to play very aggressively. He was also outstanding at intercepting passes. "He usually took the fastest forward on the opposing team and shut him down. - He was one of the main defenders on a team that allowed only live goals this season to go along with 14 shutouts."

Chris Williams, Redford CC: The senfor fullback had five goals and three assists en route to second-team All-Catholic League honors.

'Chris had great ability to mark a-player and still find space and attack," Boots said. "He's one of the top high school hockey players in the state and carries his desire to win into every match he played

GOALIE --

Mike Sheehy, Farmington: The senior captain had six shutouts, 137 saves for a 1.00 goals against average.

The first-fearn All-Sectional and All-WLAA choice save three penalty kicks." He was also voted team MVP. "Mike is extremely quick, distributes very well and is stifling-on breakaways," said Farmington coach Cathy Cole. "From his position, he presents leadership, polse and agility that is necessary to guide a team. "He is definitely a student of the game.

He plays year-around, while also managing to play premier hockey, and post a grade-point average of 3.6."

'School of choice' bill given fair chance of passing

staff writer

A "schools of choice" bill squeaked though committee but stands a fair chance on the floor of the state House of Represenentatives next month.

"It has a fairly good chance," said Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, who joined the 10-member majority of the House Education Committee in voling yes.

The bill would allow parents to choose which school within a district their children will attend. It also will require school boards by the first of 1993 to make a decision about whether to set up a "schools of choice" program and report it to the State Board of Education.

"I see House Bill 4615 as establishing a deliberative process," said

"GROSSLY EXPENSIVE," said Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, who was among the four voting no. "We have schools of choice in Livonia right now with two rules: You cannot displace a child in his or her own neighborhood, and the parents must provide their own transportation.

HB 4615 would require districts to... cover transportation costs. "Livonia gets only 30 percent of its transportation costs reimbursed by the state. It's supposed to be 100 percent."

Among the five with excused absences was Rep. Justine Barns, D-Westland.

ODDS AGAINST the bill are for-

Opposed are the major education groups - Michigan Education Association, Michigan Association of School Administrators, Michigan Association of School Boards and Michigan PTA Council — along with the Michigan Association for Improved School Legislation, a group of northwestern Wayne suburban districts.

In favor are Gov. James Blanchard, House Education chairman -William Kelth; D-Garden City; the-Michigan Manufacturers Association; Sen. Richard Posthumus, R-Lowell, who sponsored a similar Senate measure and is a close associate of John Engler, the probable 1990 GOP gubernatorial candidate; and President George Bush, who favors the concept.

"The governor is a potent force."

"The governor needs an education victory," agreed Rep. Susan Munsell, R-Howell, a yes vote in committee.

Chief advocate of "schools of choice" is Metropolitan Affairs Corp., a research and education agency in southeastern Michigan. It sponsored showings of a news film on the Bronx's choice program and a speech by Gov. Rudy Perpich, Minnesota's champion of the idea.

CHAIRMAN KEITH-took-up-HB-4615, sponsored by Rep. Claude Trim, R-Waterford, rather than Posthumus' SB 51, which the Senate passed 30-4 last May. A Keith aide said Trim had asked consideration for his bill long before the Senate moved its version.

Chief difference: The House bill requires action only by the school last school election to sign petitions for a ballot question on the process.

In the House bill, once a board decides to move ahead, it must establish a planning committee of "onethird parents and pupils, one-third teachers and one-third school board members and aministrators," The this. committee would plan for transportation, building capacity and special needs.

The district would inform parents on the philosophy, staffing of each building, counseling access, and information on testing and learning

KOSTEVA CALLED the bill a good companion measure to the annual report bill passed by lawmakers. "It requires districts to file a percent of those who voted in the corporate annual report - whe you've been, where you're going and how you expect to get there."

He called arguments against the bill "pretty hollow. They say it's predisposed to failure. And they say the existing code and magnet schools already enable school districts to do

"What's their opposition? Are they?" fearful of opening it up to parental -involvement?"-----

Bankes said that transportation 55 costs will be so high that any district considering a "choice" plan probably will reject it.

Bankes said she was amazed at, the support of the manufacturers, "They are fiscally conservative, but they're asking the schools not to be."

Artist uses light, color for outstanding effects

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

Thursday, November 23, 1989 O&E

It's easy to like Robert Wilbert's art — the colors are wonderfully rich, the imagery easily recognizeable and the technique outstanding. A peony looks like a peony and a mime like a mime. His one-man show at Donald Morris Gallery of Birmingham continuing through Saturday lights up the whole space.

Wilbert, who teaches art at Wayne State University, has signature items that show up in his paintings again and again over the years mimes, a light bulb, a drum, a trumpet and chairs of various kinds

His highly sophisticated arrangements of favorite items have always provided the artist. with a variety of challenges which he obviously relishes such as spacial, light and color relationships and the gentle fracturing and reuniting of the picture plane. Paintings of these subjects are scholarly in their acute attention to these challenges; in this sense, they have little relationship to realism.

This time, as in the past, he has included a live model in mime white face in these groupings of elements. And while such have long brought him wide admiration, the portraits of the model or models, or of the artist himself, where the elements are integrated more subtly into the painting create more excitment.

WILBERT CARRIES on a love affair with color relationships that brings great beauty in his work. He is a true pro who understands the effects of color on the mind as well as the eye.

In a masterful still life of a vase of peonles, the pink flowers in a red vase are on a carnelian cloth against an apricot background. In his painting of a vase of brilliant red zinnias, he works the green/red aspect of the color spectrum, placing them in front of dark taupe, charcoal and a bit of olive green in a corner section. It's hazardous to put names on his color mixtures, the shades are far more interesting than simple names suggest.

In the portrait of a woman dressed in a rather elaborate sea green and cream outfit, with a lavender/mauve background, the colors define the mood and leave a lasting impression of quiet, elegant beauty. There is a timelesness about this portrait that is particularly intriguing.

In Robert Wilbert's large painting, the mime holds one of the artist's signiture

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

When Bradbury Thompson, a foremost graphics designer, talks and shows slides of his work covering some 50 years, graphics and art become a single entity. In essence, type faces and letters are his symbols, as circles and wiggley lines were for Miro, geometric figures for LeCorbusier and squares for Joseph Albers. Thompson, however, has always been concerned with mass communication and the others were involved in a much more personal statement.

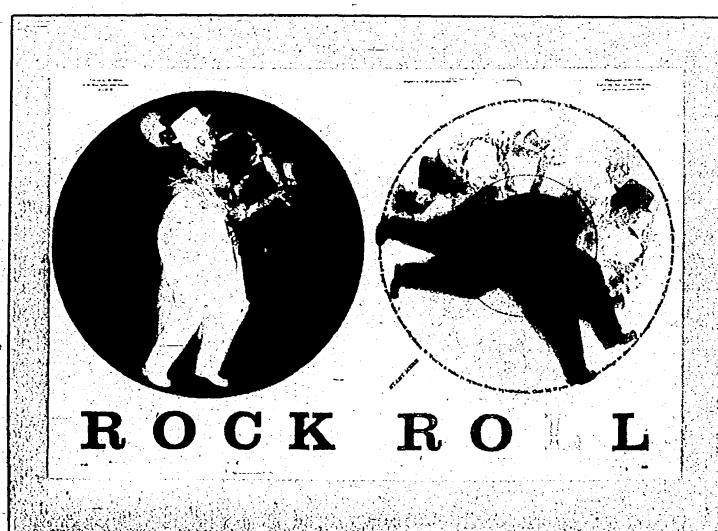

Thompson, a soft spoken person, who teaches at Yale, was at Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum for the opening of his retrospective, "Bradbury Thompson Design." It, will continue there through Sunday, Dec. 3. It coincides with the publication of his new book, "Bradbury Thompson: The Art of Graphic Design," Yale University Press, $65.

The exhibit, which opened in New York City and has been in Boston and Pittsburgh before coming here, is sponsored by Westvaco, where Thompson has been design consultant for more than 50 years.

He was art director for Mademoiselle. Art News, Art News Annual and designed the format for more than three dozen other magazines including Smithsonian. Among his many credits are more than 90 stamps for the United States Postal

HIS RESPECT and use of historical references and elements in his work - paintings, drawings, type faces - he credited to long association with Art News and its knowledgeable staff. He said he did every layout for Art News for 27 years and that while he didn't make a great amount of money, the experience was invaluable.

After he moved from New York City to rural Connecticut, he did an outstanding graphic design using a croquet wicket, balls and mallet.

Winter trees make good subjects

Don't think for a moment that when fall leaves and colors are gone, trees become boring photographic subjects. On the contrary, trees are always fascinating and are a favorite subject for my camera no matter what the season.

As winter approaches, trees take on a whole new appearance — one of starkness and boldness as bare branches reach outward and upward in dramatic, geometric and somelimes romantic patterns.

Many scenes that perhaps were. blocked by summer foliage will be visible and you can use curving twigs and branches to frame your Subject just as you might have used foreground follage in the summer. Use a small enough aperture to get the depth-of-field you need to fender both the foreground and background in sharp focus. The depth-of-field scale on the lens barfel or the camera's depth preview button will assure that everything will be sharp. Out-of-focus branches will spoil what may have been an exceptional shot.

BARE TREES and branches can also be shot against the sky to obtain stark, graphic designs that often will display the beautiful, flowing patterns of hature.

Begin by carefully studying the composition in the view-finder to Tree silhouettes work especially well against a dramatic sunset or cloud pattern, too. Try including the sun in the picture for a starburst of excitement.

Be sure to take some bare tree photographs after a snowfall. The contrast between fallen snow and dark branches is dramatic and will give you many rewarding pictures.

BOUAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITY

'Country Suite' moves city listeners

James Hartway's creativity and Fedora Horowitz's versatility always excite audiences.

Last weekend, for the Livonia Symphony's "Salute to American Music" concert, Hartway brought along his jazz quartet and Horowitz turned her classical Rachmaninov style into all-American jazz with a rousing version of "I Got Rhythm."

A few years ago, Hartway composed "Cityscapes," commissioned by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. This newest work, "Country Suite for .. Jazz Quartet and Strings," is similar but with more pleasing and equal balance between orchestra and solo instruments

Like "Cityscapes," this suite is classical jazz utilizing a classical orchestra with this popular American form of music.

HARTWAY HIMSELF took the keyboard while his Wayne State colleague Christopher Collins played a sensational sax. Dan Pliskow backed up on bass and Jewrry McKenzie on hartway composed a work for the visit of the Pope two years and a wonderful opera for Michigan Opera Theater "Ke Nu and the Magic Coals," both varied from this style but each distinctive with that quality that holds the attention of his listeners. "Ke-Nu" has particular appeal.

"Country Suite" utilized the string section of the Livonia Symphony in more of a solo role equaling that of saxophonist Collins, a performer that would be hard to overpower. The result is more of a perfection of his style.

For the first note of the Aaron Copland's "Fanfare for the Common Man," the message of the concert is clear. The Livonia Symphony Orchesta has balanced its sections and now has a strong brass segment, which is only fitting considering the expertise of conductor/music-director Francesco DiBlasi as a trumpeter. The difficult fanfare depends solely on the purity of the sound in the brass section and in this case showed good to good advantage.

Stravinsky was Russian-born, but composed the "Suite No. 2 for Orchestra" after he become an American citizen. Ernest Jones, who always gravitates toward the band and rhythmic works, guest-conducted this piece. Stravinksy's aptitude for dance and ballet styles was clearly a mark of his interpretation. If Stravinsky qualifies for a concert of American music, Detroiter Horowitz, well known as the director of the Lyric Chamber Ensemble, can scholarships.

"Country Suite for Jazz Quartet and Strings" utilized the string section of the Livonia Symphony in more of a solo role equaling that of saxophonist Collins, a performer that would be hard to overpower.

play George Gershwin. The Romanfan-born planist played to advantage, capturing the syncopated rhythms and jazz reliefs with distinctive clarity and movement.

The community symphony orchestras are capturing their audiences' attention by turning toward familiar music and varied programming. Livonia Symphony Orchestra has recently reorganized from the Oakway Symphony Orchestra and now appears quite frequently in musically proficient Churchill High School auditorium using a friendly and informative David Wassenaar as commentator.

THE LOCATION, Grand River and Drake is perfect. I had to be close to the expressways and convenient to downtown Farmington Hills. Plus, I love jogging along the private nature trails!

THE 24-HOUR manned gates, my own washer and dryer and the attached carport are terrific! So are the windows and eating space in the kitchen."

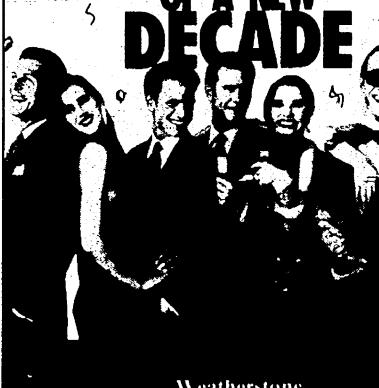

ALL ON ONE FLOOR with really big rooms and lots of storage, like the home we just sold. It even has it's own private entryl

"It's the best kept secret in Livonia.

It's called Woodridge Apartments: It's the most perfect combination of luxury and comfort I've found. And I love being just a couple of minutes from the great malls in Livonia, and I-696. (Of course I love to shop-who doesn't?!) I also love the tennis and pool right here, and the fact that I have covered parking for my car. the rent makes sense to me too. Since I have so many other things I want to spend my vast (?) resources on. Call 477-6448...and see for yourself today.

Tests prompt new radon warnings

Latest radon test results have prombted EPA Adminstrator William/K. Reilly to repeat his agency's call for every homeowner to test for Tests in New Mexico and seven other states by the Environmental Protection Agency show surprisingly widespread concentrations of cancet-causing radon gas, the agency said.

The latest tests covered New Mexico, Iowa, Georgia, Maine, Ohio, West Virginia, Vermont and Alaska as well as three Indian Health Service regions: Aberdeen, covering parts of North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska; Bemidji, parts of Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin; and Albuquerque, parts of Colorado and New Mexico. .

Radon is colorless, odorless and radioactive gas produced by the decay of uranium in all soil and rocks.

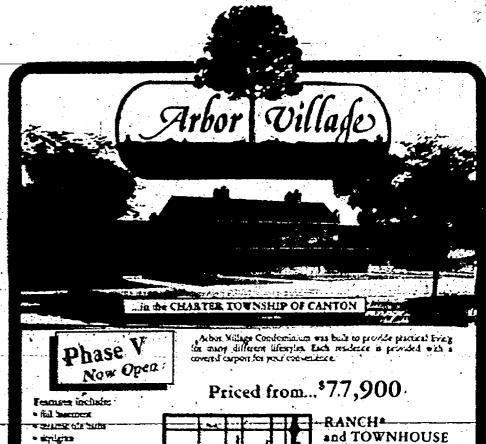

Seeping from the ground and concentrating in houses, radon has been blamed for up to 20,000 of the nation's more than 130,000 annual lung cancer deaths.

"RADON 18 one of the most serious environmental health problems today. It is the second leading cause of lung cancer (after smoking) in this country," Rellly said.

Radon tests have been conducted in 17,000 houses in 25 states during the past two years. About one-fourth showed unhealthy levels of radon, Reilly said.

SEMCOG's role in mall impact study debated

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

The recently released regional impact study on the proposed Auburn Mills mall in Auburn Hills may not effect the project itself, but it underscores a growing awareness of how regions can be affected by largescale projects.

Auburn Mills, a 2-million-squarefoot, $300 million manufacturer's outlet and family entertainment center planned by Washington D.C. developer Western Development Corp., could dramatically alter the traffic patterns, environment, economy and public safety demands in the region, according to the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) impact study.

The study was undertaken by SEMCOG at the request of Lake Angelus, Rochester Hills and Southfield officials who claim the mall will impact many communities and warrants a thorough investigation on its potential regional effects. The study concludes the mall will have regional implications, affecting traffic, water quality and economic development in several communities. Although Auburn Hills has already addressed many problems associated with large-scale developments, more thorough investigation is needed on gling out Auburn Hills for scrutiny is traffic congestion created by the mall and nearby traffic generators, the automotive and truck traffic mix, infrastructure costs, the environmental impacts of lost wetlands and vacant land on wildlife and stormwater management, and impacts associated with construction.

Patience O'Conner, senior vice president of management and marketing for the firm, said Western Development will continue discussions with SEMCOG and incorporate its advice into the project."We are sensitive to local and regional concernsand seek to develop a project beneficial to the entire community."

Edward Hustoles said the impact COG, Hendricks said. As for bridge study may have limited influence on cost estimates, federal funds have Auburn Mills. "Since the study is already been allocated for the strictly advisory, there's no way to tell what will happen next." Hustoles said the study has been sent to interested parties involved in the decision-making process, including the Federal Highway Administration, the Michigan departments of transportation, natural resources and commerce, and Oakland County and local governments.

"If they're going to do regional. studies for one project, they should do them for all,"he said.

Hendricks said he disagrees with some findings, the most obvious disagreement being the city and developer failed to account for traffic impact on I-75 and the cost of a bridge on Lake Angelus Road.

One would be hard pressed to find any place suitable for development SEMCOG DIRECTOR of planning using traffic standards used by SEM-

SEMCOG's Hustoles said his agency's intention is not to infringe on Auburn Hills' rights, but to give the decision makers the facts.

SEMCOG's Hustoles said Western Development used only-favorable data when it did its traffic study. "It's not a case of (Western Development's) study being wrong, but a situation where two people with good intentions examining the same thing came up with different answers."

WESTERN DEVELOPMENT used data based on their experience with their Potomic Mills Mall in Virginla, instead of national traffic standards, he said. In Western Development's defense, Hustoles said Auburn Mills is a different type of development and national standards for major commercial developments may not apply. According to Southfield city manager Robert Block, the city's objection to Auburn Mill is based not on its far-reaching retailing impact as some have suggested - but because the malf will contribute to urban sprawl.

"We don't object to the mall; we object to spending public dollars to improve new areas when there are urbanized areas that need the money to improve what exists," Block said.

"If the private sector wants to doit. God bless them, but public funds should be used with a broader outlook," Block said.

hours. High visibility locations with great walk-in traffic means more money in your pocket. We pay 100%

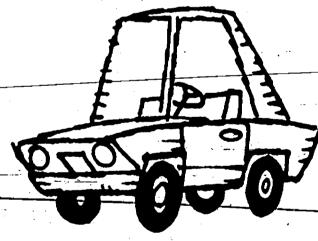

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

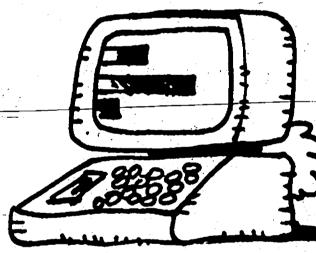

!. Include the price. Don't vaste your time or a potential uyer's time. If you advertise the rice of the Item or service you offer, the people who respond o your ad will be those who are ienuinely interested. Surveys how that readers are more nterested in those items and ervices they know are within heir price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A-confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days.
Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

Female

Picking clothing,

oes she linger over certain pages in fashion magazines, or spontaneously volunteer how much she likes or needs this or that? Start keeping tabs in November for December ideas.

Likewise, you yourself should be paying more attention to newspaper and magazine ads.

If you haven't accumulated several ideas by the second week in December, put Plan B into effect.

Write her a romantic note requesting suggestions and include a stamped envelope addressed to your office. If this doesn't produce appreciable results, make a date to shop together a special day with just the two of you. punctuated with lunch or cocktails in some enchanted setting.

Clothing is an always popular gifting option, but it can be tricky to buy. Some tips on clothing selection follow. but for now, consider that non-fashion niceties available around town include a silverplated mirror, brush and comb set, à down comforter or an oversize boudoir pillow with linen case.

It may be impossible to buy makeup, but beauty accessories make thoughtful gifts. A makeup organizer like the kind the models use, a set of sable makeup brushes or multicolor makeup sponges are alternatives.

SASSOON NOW has a line of programmable hairsetters with from five to 25 rollers. Dr. Scholl's electric foot bath and massager is another idea. Or think about treating her to a series of.... pedicurés, manicures or massages at a fancy local salon.

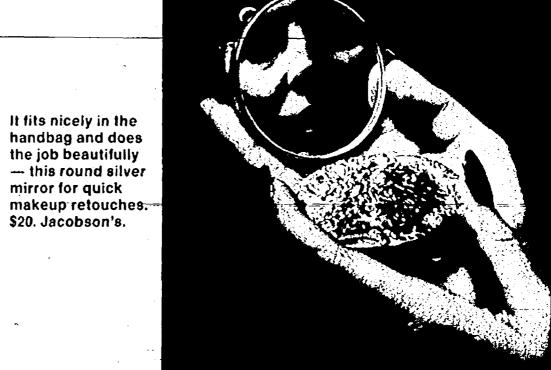

For the household, how about a distinguished pair of candelabra with an accompanying assortment of colored tapers? A personalized letter opener in tortoiseshell, ivory, crystal or monogrammed silver could make a special

Try to confine your culinary gifts to the exotic rather than the exclusively useful. A set of liqueur glasses or brandy snifters, an embroidered, tablecloth or some specialty cooking oils, winestor vinegars would be appropriate.

For women who have more interest in learning than in objects, look into Tessons. Whether it's lessons in paragliding, piano, or karate, your confidence in her ability to acquire new skills will be meaningful.

Gifts of clothing can be tricky to select without having seen the apparel on. Fortunately, women's styles are now easier - less constructed and less fitted. There is more mix and match.

You will be able to buy anything from entire outfits to separates and accessories, as your budget allows.

finds accessories for 'her'

Whatever you buy, look for quality, not a quick consumer fix.

SOME OF THE softer, sweepier looks might have been perceived as resort wear in the past, but now this casual clothing can be adapted to office and evening apparel just by changing accessories.

You will find this versatility in the more elegant "romping" outfits such as Donna Karan-style jumpsuits and jumpers or the drapey ensembles from Anné Klein II.

Pull on clothes with cardigans to match are very popular.

Washed silks fall into this "easy" category as well. Look for billowy shirts and sarong pants and skirts.

If you and yours prefer a slinkier silhouette, dip into slim pants and skirts made of neutral knits or gray flannel. These kinds of separates can be effortlessly incorporated into any wardrobe.

We're experiencing fashion folklorico in a big way this season. She may not have anything in these mixed patterns and ethnic fabric combinations. So, don't shy away from colliding textures and colors.

-CHRISTMAS-IS the perfect time to indulge a lady in small extravagances. items that may not seem practical but will nevertheless make a bright difference. A jewel-studded bustier or jacket, an embroidered black blouse or brocade vest - these accent pieces will light up her face and evenings.

The anti-fur crusade continues, so you can put the "deep pockets" aside. Furs this season are minimal. Often fake fur accents suffice, with an emphasis on bits of shearling at the cuff and collar on coats, suits and sweaters.

Counterpoint to this save the animals" mentality is the ever-exploding profusion of jungle prints. Nowhere are they in such abundance as in accessories. So prowl around for chiffon ocelot-print scarves. Janskin's leopard workout togs and all manner of ferocious faux pumps and belts.

Other sparkling accessories can bring last season's wardrobes suddenly up to date. Big scarves and shawls will be appreciated, but don't settle for a silly little square. Go, instead, for long, extravagant-yardage. Exaggerated florals, huge paisley challis and Hermesderived motifs are of the moment.

Almost every woman can use a sensual and elegant robe. Kimonos from The Natori Co., available at most department stores, are splendidly printed and packable for overnights. Accompany it with kid or satin at-home slippers, either with small open-back heels or the ballerina variety like those from Isotoner.

Toy parade

What's new, from games to high tech

VERY NOW and then a game or toy becomes so much in demand, that shoppers plot and scheme to obtain it.

If you're old enough, you may recall the coonskin cap craze of the '50s. More recently, a frenzy was over Cabbage Patch dolls and Trivial Pursuit games.

Many toys this season sizzle with newness and ingenuity. Most of them, happily, are fairly easy to come by.

WAIT UNTIL you see the new Disney toys from Mattel. There are mobiles, playmats and musical mirrors, each decorated with baby versions of Pluto. Donald Duck and Mickey Mouse, bright-colored playsets of railroads, a circus, a fire station and more sand toys and lunch boxes.

But perhaps the best, from the standpoint of encouraging creativity, are the block sets.

Made of plastic in vivid primary colors, these have towers, flags, awnings; shop window displays, oh-so-cute figures of famous Disney characters—and they're all compatible with Duplo and Lego.

Just when you thought you had exhausted the possibilities of Play Dohe the manufacturer comes out with a great idea: Flingles, linger-puppets your children can make using the famous colored clay. The molds are easy to use, and the results can be dried and painted.

FROM PLAYSKOOL are Go-Go Gears, see-through motorized vehicles. Push the driver into his seat, and watch the gears go round as the train, dump truck, helicopter or airplane moves along.

For children who have been digging into Mom's kitchen drawers for plastic to play with. Tupperware has a new line of Tuppertoys. These colorful, durable, washable toys are designed to encourage toddler color recognition and creativity.

The turtle tidal wave continues.

Teenage Mutant Ninja-Turtles have a cartoon miniseries, appear as comic book heroes and have spawned dozens of licensed products — including an electronic talking toothbrush. From Random House comes a wild-colored, wild-designed Turtles Pizza Power Board Game.

Tonka's Hyper Driver superfast, susperwild battery-powered model race cars do jumps, stunts and flips. They're expected to catch on quickly here, following unprecedented popularity in Japan.

Joe is still strong. The battle scarred warrior is considered a classic.

New from Matchbox is the Pooch .-- Troop, an outfit of "rough and ready military canines" designed for boys ages 3 to 7.

Miniature trucks and cars make a status statement. Power Wheels has a nifty Safari Jeep that can seat two little ones. NSG Marketiffs offers a shiny, red BMW convertible for 2- to-5-year-olds.

SWEET AND PRETTY are the catchwords for little girls' toys.

New from Hasbro, makers of My Little Pony, is a stable of ponies that capitalize on the popularity of the original. Among these are perfumed ponies, including one that has a berry scent.

Not to be left out of the corral.

Matchbox introduces an assortment of nine collectible carousel horse to the with its own stand and "genuine nair

Matchbox also makes a new Shopping Mall playset with seven merchandise-stocked shops and boutiques. Also for little shoppers-in-training. Fisher-Price has a new Magic Scan Checkout Counter, complete with a motorized conveyor belt.

BOARD GAMES FOR children and adults are always popular because they can be played by family and friends.

For younger children, try Dr. Fangle (an updated version of Twister), Cootie, Hands Down and Scruples for Kids.

For teens and adults, perennial favorites are Yahtzee, Risk and Monopoly. Newer favorites include Scruples, AdLiners and Clay to Win (think Pictionary with clay).

Games inspired by popular television shows are MTV's Remote Control, Win, Lose or Draw, Wheel of Fortune and Jeopardy.

YOU MIGHT AS well get used to the high-tech chirping of video games. They're here to stay.

Lighten up holiday sauces

AP - One way to keep calorie and fat down to a minimum during the holidays is to garnish traditional side dishes with light sauces or glazes made with spices and a touch of sugar, instead of thick, buttery sauces. As an example, these cinnamon apple sweet potatoes are accented with cinnamon apple topping instead of a heavy caramel glaze.

CINNAMON APPLE SWEET POTATOES

4 medium sweet potatoes The cups finely chopped apple 1/2 cup orange juice Li cup sugar

1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon 1/2 teaspoon grated prange peel

11/2 teaspoons cornstarch

Wash sweet potatoes; prick with a fork. Place on paper towels and cook on high (100-percent power) in the microwave 10-13 minutes, or until tender, turning halfway through cooking. Set aside.

Combine remaining ingredients. Cover and cook on high for 3 minutes. Stir mixture, then cook uncovered on high 11/2 to 2 minutes or until the sauce is thickened. Slit sweet potatoes and spoon sauce over each one. Makes 4 servings.

Note: Sauce can be made ahead and reheated at serving time.

What's new on toy parade

Nintendo reads the toy market in demand for video-game hardware and software, and new from this Japanese manufacturer is Game Boy.

Like the larger home system, this pocket-size replica takes cartridges that turn one box into numerous forms of entertainment. It uses a liquid crystal display and can be accessorized with headphones.

Mattel's Power Glove is an amazing new joystick; with it, a player controls the screen with a wave of the hand.

Broderbund Software, one of Nintendo's game licensees, also is expected to introduce a control device that can "read" hand movements.

Milton Bradley has joined forces with Nintendo to create system-compatible action-packed games. Some of these involve players in surfing, skateboarding and BMX biking.

TOY RETAILERS anticipate that a video game based on the "Batman" movie will be a hot seller. It's manufactured by Sunsoft.

Ohio Art, makers of Etch-A-Sketch.

has introduced a DynaMike Electronic Voice Changing Microphone that promises to be a hit. With the click of a switch, you can choose one of 16 voice settings. Speak into the microphone, and you'll sound like Darth Vader - or (click) Mickey Mouse.

The younger set is not exempt from tech toys; a clever one is the Footnotes Floor Keyboard: It's a colorful floor mat that resembles a keyboard, with 17 pressure-sensitive keys that youngsters play by stepping (or dancing) from note to note.

Stocking stuffers

Small (but innovative) gifts for less than $10

By Steve Hurtado special writer

DON'T know about you, but when I was a child, I hung my 3-foot-long Christmas stocking on one of the knobs of the TV set.

Now that I'm an adult, my perspective has changed. It's not easy filling forgear Goliath could have worn — not to mention finding a nice bunch of itty-bitty, inexpensive items.

But it doesn't have to be so hard. Variety and specialty stores are full of innovative gifts that don't cost a fortune. With a little ingenuity, you'll discover — as I did — that it's as much fun to stuff as it is to receive.

Here's a hint: In your hunt for stocking stuffers, don't overlook import, hardware and office supply stores and museum or art gallery gift shops.

NO MATTER WHAT the age of the child, you'll be able to stuff several stockings just by paying a visit to a toy or department store. Think of the possibilities: tiny plush animals, wind-up toys, miniature cars, sacks of marbles, yo-yos, finger puppets, action figures and more.

Want something different? Consider these:

Any small-size book, particularly a set of them — such as the Beatrix Potter series or cassette tapes of stores, complete with read-along books.

Name plates for bedroom doors or engraved name plates for bicycles or scooters.

An assortment of small, holidaytheme tin boxes filled with pieces of a jigsaw puzzle.

Crayons are always acceptable (did you know that the scent of crayons is one of the most widely recognized in America?). For an update on this old favorite, give crayons in the new fluorescent colors or a box of soap crayons for bath time fun.

IT'S TRUE. The older the child, the harder it is to please him or her with small, economical gifts. But it's not impossible: Try these:

Thanks-to-contemporary technology, accurate watches can be had for a few dollars. Look for fun and different ones — for example, a musical piano watch. It resembles a mini-piand and has a 12-button keyboard; an LCD display shows the time and date.

Disposable cameras take excellent pictures: new versions come with a flash or a wide-angle lens. They cost little more than a role of film—in fact, they're basically a roll of quality color film in a sturdy package complete with a lens. When the roll is used up, you turn the film into the developer—camera and all.

If your teen is at an age where a phone receiver seems to be part of his anatomy, give him a kicky cord to attach to the beloved device (this is the spiral cord we're talking about; designs range from striped to spotted neon). Ask for these in shops that specialize in high-tech gadgets and or cialize in high-tech gadgets and or phone accessories.

Solar-powered pocket calculators are items that once were expensive and can now be found in many drug stores for less than $10. Even if your teen already has a pocket calculator, he or she might like a cute new one to keep at school.

Your son or nephew will feel grownup with a multipurpose camper's knife that includes a blade, fork, spoon and bottle/can opener.

YOUR DAUGHTER will go all giggly when you give her a fancy package of herbal bath salts or a small bottle of exotic bubble bath.

The best gift keeps the recipient busy after it is opened. Check a craft or hobby store for an easy-to-assemble project or an art store for an assortment of fabric paints: (to go with a plain white T-shirt or two).

Here's your chance to do something special for your spouse or a friend. It doesn't have to be a stocking; you can fill a basket or bowl with great little gifts that also are conversation starters.

You might want to pick a theme: unusual-kitchen gadgets, flavored coffees, assorted nuts, exotic jams and jellies, beautiful seashells, hardware items, soaps, scented candles, hair accessories, more:

Many gift shops stock unusual refrigerator magnets; pick an amusing assortment, such as those that resemble real food in miniature (tacos, hamburgers, slices of pizza).

For your seamstress friend, visit a yardage store for small necessities. Include a quality pair of scissors and a small chain-stitch sewing machine. These work like and resemble staplers; they're good for hemming clothing and drapery, installing zippers and doing on-the-spot repairs.

Banish stale gift ideas — think 'spring' day season upon us. it is once again time to brainstorm for the perfect gift for that special someone who "has everything." You told yourself last holiday season that this year would be different, that you would plan ahead and not resort to-giving a pair of socks or a loaf of fruiteake.

You may now banish those tired old gift ideas because the University of Michigan Matthaei Botanical Gardens has an unusual yet inexpensive gift for you to give: the gift of Spring' Give tickets to the 1990 Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show.

The show will take place on the weekend of April 6-8 of 1990 and will adhere to the flower show guidelines—established by the National Council of State Garden Clubs for a standard flower show. It is designed to appeal equally to the gardening expert as well as to folks who simply wish to day-dream about the summer months ahead.

A breathtaking preview to spring will fill the Yost Field House. Flowers bursting with color and fragrance will unfold before your eyes: major land-scape designers and nursery firms will create dramatic garden environments: Michigan garden societies will create displays featuring their respective flora: garden clubs will compete for blue ribbons with their original displays; commercial florists will create unusual floral arrangements; and area residents will enter their finest plants into horticultural competition.

PLANNING FOR THE show has been going on for more than two years. Each of the seven major landscape exhibits were carefully selected for their design and unusual theme. Alexander Nursery will create a Japanese garden with a theme reflecting inner peace, serenity and timelessness. Included in the design is an authentic Japanese teahouse, rice screens, a 12-feet-tall golden bamboo tree, several varieties—of Japanese maples, 100-year-old-bonesai specimens and a kiku-bachi water spout spilling water into a stone basin.

Inspired by the show's "Secret Garden" theme, Goldner-Walsh Nursery will create an English garden setting. Visitors will enter the exhibit through a U-shaped arbor to behold daffodils, begonias, snapdragons, espaliers, statuary and benches for resting. Once inside, visitors are encouraged to observe color, textures and plant selection.

Terrafirma will create an impressionistic painting garden design that will integrate colorful annuals, perennials, azalea, rhododendron and evergreens. These colorful plants will create a rainbow canvas similar to a Monet painting. The viewer may walk across a deck and pass beneath a cedar pergola to observe upper anti-lower-level ponds connected by a waterfall.

Several horticultural garden socicties will exhibit and have members on hand to answer questions. The Michigan Hosta Societý's display will demonstrate how hostas and companion plants can transform shady areas into beautiful vistas throughout the gardening season. The Southern Michigan Herb Society of America will feature a variation on Beatrix Potter's "Peter Rabbit" with their exhibit "Peter's Secret Garden." This enchanted garden will have a potting shed constructed from aged Jumber and shin, gles. Attached to the shed will be a cold-frame or submerged greenhouse filled with herbs and vegetables. "Backyard Roses" is the title of the Huron Valley Rose Society exhibit. They emphasize how any small backyard can be a thing of beauty and fragrance using hanging baskets of roses

Calendars, books and videos for adults

ORGET THE plaid ties and over-priced colognes that often end up in the back of a drawer a few weeks after the holidays.

This year give the people on your list the gift of information — books to read, videos to watch and beautiful calendars on which you record their appointments for the year to come.

You already know that the bookworms on your list would like the latest best seller or a gift certificate from a bookstore so they can choose titles for themselves. But if you would like to be a little offbeat this year, consider these alternatives.

EVERYBODY IS trying to get organized and eliminate clutter from his life. Prentice Hall has come up with loose-leaf planning systems for students, households, oenophiles and photographers. Pick up the one on Christmas preparations for yourself.

From Fawcett Columbine come books of artistic postcards. Choose from such titles as "The Impressionists." "Renaissance Artists." "Flower Paintings" and "Cats in Art" for your friends to collect or send.

Books that combine art and beauty with informative text come from Collins Publishers. "The Beautiful Cookbook" series includes photos and recipes from France and Italy. "The Art of Adventure" collects 20 years of photographs of adventurer-photographer Galen Rowell.

FOR MORE TRAVEL and adventure captured in photos, there are "Bush Pilots of Alaska" by Fred Hirschmann and "Skiing the Rockies" (Graphic Arts Center). This publishing company also offers picture books of most of the states and several other countries, along with "The Collectors" by Bob Rau for antique buffs.

For music lovers, what about "Jazz From A to Z: A Graphic Dictionary" by Stephen Longstreet (Catbird Press), for collectors "Understanding Jewelry" by David Bennett and Daniela Mascetti (Antique Collectors' Club) and for those who appreciate architecture "The Architecture of Gunnar Birkerts" by Kay Kaiser (American Institute of Architects).

AN UNUSUAL and spectacular volume is "A Victorian Scrapbook" by Cynthia Hart. John Grossman and Priscilla Dunhill (Workman), a lush collection of Victoriana as authentic as if it had been assembled in the 19th century.

For a truly thoughtful pre-Christmas treat, surprise a friend with "The Spirit of Christmas" edited by Anne Van Wagner Young (Leisure Arts). This book offers decorating ideas, menus, recipes and instructions for making handmade gifts — enough to put anyone in the holiday spirit.

FOR FRIENDS and family with VCRs, the sky is the limit. Start their holiday season off with Christmas classics from Vestron Video, such as "A Christmas Carol." "Pinocchio's Christmas" and Henry Winkler's "An American Christmas Carol."

Other still-popular releases from Vestron are "Mr. Mom." "Mad Max" and "Dirty Dancing," available this year at bargain prices.

Rhino Video has come out with an interesting concept: "Minute Movie Masterpieces." This 30-minute video shows minute-long clips from famous movies so that the viewer can make cocktail-party small talk without actually having seen the film.

FOR LOVERS of old favorites. Republic Pictures offers Peter Lorre in "The Man Who Knew Too Much." "The Third Man" with Orson Welles and "High Noon" with Gary Cooper and Grace Kelly. Or such treasured westerns as "Rio Grande" and "Naked Sun." MGM/UA has brought out the chilling and unforgettable "The Manchurian Candidate."

The "Huron" was always on the Corsica Shoal in Lake Huron, and the ship in this picture is Light Vessel 103 which was decommissioned in August 1970. At that time, it was the oldest lightship in the Coast Guard. It is now a museum in Port Huron's Pine Grove Park. Pen-and-ink drawings of this lighthouse along with 11 other Great Lakes lights are featured in the "Great Lakes Lights" 1990 calendar available directly from the Historical Society of Michigan.

Lighthouse calendars salute lonely sentinels

Great Lakes' maritime history, legend and lore. The excite curiosity and imagination by their lonely perch at land's end. In the Great Lakes, with 11 percent of the fresh water in the world, lighthouses continue their important role as beacons for ships and sailors. And those structures retired from this service have found renewed life as museums, restaurants and hotels, even though some languish and deteriorate.

The Historical Society of Michigan recently announced its seventh annual lighthouse calendar. Featuring the pen and ink drawings by artist Leo Kuschel of Taylor, "Great Lakes Lights" draws attention to the colorful maritime history of the Great Lakes and those sentinels that have marked the Lakes' routes for sailors since the early 18th century.

According to Thomas L. Jones, the executive director of the Historical Society of Michigan, this calendar series has drawn attention to lighthouse history and prompted concerned citizens to support their preservation. The society is Michigan's statewide, membership-supported organization for the promotion and publication of Michigan's history.

THE "GREAT Lakes Lights" 1990 calendar includes lights on all the Great Lakes and in the states of Illinois, Wisconsin, Ohio. Minnesota and New York, the province of Ontario and the state of Michigan. From Two Harbors, Minn, in the western reaches of the Great Lakes to Oswego in the east in Lake Ontario, the 1990 "Great Lakes Lights" calendar covers the full breadth of the waters that have been the key element in the region's history and development.

The calendar is available directly from the Historical Society of Michigan, 2117 Washtenaw Avenue. Ann Arbor 48104, at $9.25 (includes postage and handling, plus Michigan state sales tax).

Chocolate treats sweet way to please friends

ANYONE who knows me shares the knowledge of my weakness for indulging in chocolate.

I love it baked into cakes, chipped into cookies, glazed into frostings and melted into molds. There is, however, one type of chocolate that just sends me into chocoholic oblivion: gift chocolate

I'm not talking cakes, cookies, pies or candies here. I'm talking about about homemade taste treats such as divinity fudge, chocolate sauce, truffles and the ever-popular turtles — the things made with so much chocolate they bring pimples just thinking about them.

This holiday season. I'll be spending a few days in my kitchen preparing gifts for the many family and friends that can be appreciated and swooned over. Let's face it. Godiva is great, but something from the home and heart — no matter what — made with love is always more appreciated.

Of course, my problem deals with the "One for you, one for me" adage that is sure to have me visiting my local gym for yet another month. Ah, but along with the good

chef Larry Janes

A FEW TIPS I would like to share before starting on the fun road to homemade chocolate-making are simple and easy to follow. If you plan to be preparing some tricky eye-appearing arrangement of chocolate that will be treasured as much as a 12-year-old bottle of Scotch, start with some tempered chocolate.

Tempering of chocolate consists of heating and cooling the chocolate through continuous mixing to ensure the development of stable cocoa butter crystals distributed evenly throughout the mass of chocolate. This assures a chocolate with great texture and a uniform glossy texture.

You can buy chocolate already tempered, but any simple candy making book can show you the procedure to do it yourself. Tempered chocolate should always be used for dipping.

I have found it very helpful to have on hand a good (and I stress good) chocolate or candy-making thermometer. Went through the checkout at my local grocery and picked up a candy thermometer for $3.49 and ruined a batch of peanut brittle. You get what you pay for.

A good all-purpose candy thermometer will cost about $10 but will give you a lifetime of accuracy:

When the recipe calls for an addition of butter, use only unsalted butter. Period. Trust me on this one, the lightly salted variety, can easy mask—the taste of delicate chocolate.—

If the recipe calls for butter at room temperature, and you forgot to take it out of the fridge, simply grate the butter on a grater or with the shredder blade of a good processor. Your butter will be at room temperature in about five minutes.

If you try to melt butter in your microwave, remember that it is very hot unless given a chance to cool down. The addition of hot, melted butter into a delicate chocolate recipe can result in grainy chocolate, so be careful.

MAMA ALWAYS taught me to attempt chocolate-making only a cold. dry day. Seems that the added humidity in the air will cause your chocolate to set differently. Talk to any professional chocolate maker, and he will agree.

For safety's sake, and for financial reasons, it's best never to double or divide recipes. Chocolate is a bit finicky and when doubled can scorch easily and when divided can become grainy.

Gifts of homemade chocolate are doubly appreciated because the recipient of the gift recognized the effort of the giver in each taste of the gift. Chocolate making can be as rewarding as the enjoyment of family and friends

Try these great chocolate recipes and let me know you enjoyed them.
