Split council approves pension buyout for 2

By Tedd Schnelder staff writer

Controversial pension time purchases for two city officials were approved 5-2 by the Westland City Council Monday, two weeks after councilmen Thomas Artley and Charles Pickering walked out of a meeting to protest the measures. This time, Artley and Pickering voted against the proposals. The council Monday also approved a reciprocal retirement agreement that will reduce and possibly eliminate the need for voting on future pension time purchases.

With Monday's approval, the city will purchase retirement credit for labor relations director Al Gaiss and Sylvia Kozorosky-Włacek, director of the senior resources department. Both were appointed to their posts by Mayor Charles Griffin, who recommended the pension purchases.

Kozorosky-Waicek is being retained by Mayor-elect Robert Thomas, while Gaiss won't be reappointed and will leave his job Dec. 31.

THE CITY will pay about $90,000 into the Michigan Employee Retirement System over a 30-year period to buy accrued pension time by the two appointees during previous employment by area school districts.

"My problem continues to be buying service time for any employee when that employee has not worked (during that time) for the city of Westland," Artley said. "Public schools do not qualify, be it local or otherwise.

"The burden is going to be on the taxpayers for the next 30 years when the time hasn't been spent locally,' he said.

Councilmen apologize for walkout

Westland City Council members Thomas Artley and Charles Pickering offered public apologies Monday for walking out of the Dec. 4 council meeting.

The two walked out in the middle of that meeting moments before the council was to vote on a pair of controversial proposals._____

The walkout left the council without a quorum, meaning remaining items on the agenda — including the approval for payment of city bills were postponed.

"I apologize to any vendors I offended by walking out of the meeting," Artley said Monday. "But at the time I felt it was the only way to send a message to the administra-

The walkouts were criticized by other councilmen, including Council President Ken Mehl, who said Pickering and Artley could have accomplished their objectives by voting against the proposals while remaining at the council table.

Museum enjoys jolly yule

Westland volunteers stepped back in time Saturday morning to celebrate Christmas.

To the enjoyment of more than 100 people, volunteers staged an old-fashioned Christmas at the Westland Helen C. Brown Historical-Museum.

It was the second annual Memories of Christmas Past.

During the morning, Santa and Mrs. Claus posed for pictures in their cutter sleigh in front of the museum at 857 N. Wayne Road, while the interior of the building was decorated to have a turn-ofthe-century atmosphere.

Magician Chris Moss entertained youngsters during the morning in the program, sponsored by the Westland Historical Commission with help from the Friends of the Museum, a private organization that raises money for the museum.

Nancy Allded and Sandra Warren were chairwomen of the

Students, Edison copilot food drive

By Marie Chestney staff writer

Canned food drives at Christmastime are fairly common, but the one under way right now at the Northwest Wayne Skill Center in Westland has special significance.

The center's impaired students, who are used to having people do things for them, find themselves this holiday season on the opposite side of the fence - doing something for someone else.

The canned food drive is all part of a new partnership that has been forged between the center and Detroit Edison.

ONE OF the main reasons for the partnership is to show mentally and physically disabled students that they, too, can do the kinds of things most people take for granted.

It could be something as simple as donating a can of soup for a needy family. Or it can be something more complex, like holding down a job.

"They're bringing in the canned goods and will also go shopping for the food baskets," said William Martin, a vocational training teacher at the center on Ann Arbor Trail west of Merriman. "Then they'll deliver them. It's all a step toward more independence."

But the students, based in a building that was formerly the Nankin Mills School District's Ford Elementary and Livonia district Ford Junior High, can't learn independence alone, and that's where Detroit Edison comes in. Under the partnership, Edison employees from the Wayne-Monroe Division will do whatever they can to open up new opportunities, new possibilities for students at the center. "These students need help," said

Ken Prush of Detroit Edison. "They can only do so much in a classroom setting. They also need to learn to be comfortable in a social environ-

Suggestions help ease grief of losing loved one

By C.L. Rugenstein staff writer.

The December holidays are usually times of joy and celebration.

But the death of a loved one at holiday or Christmas time makes a difficult period even more difficult to deal with.

Family get togethers, special decorations, years of shared traditions serve to emphasize the loss.

It's an especially long, drawn out holiday; with activities from Halloween - when many people start holiday shopping - through the new year and the returning of gifts.

That represents "approximately 76 days of torment," said counselor Karyn Pasquel, director of the Westland-based Foundational Liv-

She offered several ways to help people who've recently lost a loved one ease grief and get through the holiday period as comfortably as possible.

One way is to change the envi-

"If you had dinner at 4 p.m. as a tradition, go somewhere else for a dinner at a different time,"said Pasquel.

Another way is to have a photo album laying out in an inconspicuous place with pictures of the deceased. "This allows others a freedom to talk about the person without fear," Pasquel said. "Your family needs permission to express feelings, too." Lighting a special memorial can-tile at home is also another way to help ease grief.

"Have a special candle lit before saying grace at dinner, and either go around the table one by one. telling some particular memory of the loved one," Pasquel said, "or simply make a mention of (the person) during grace."

Another suggestion is to "buy yourself the gift you know your

HELEN POPPENGER, community service representative for R.G. & G.R. Funeral Home in Garden City, mentioned the candle memorial as a service they provide for grieving families.

Both counselors stressed that grieving and crying are healthy responses to the loss of a loved one.

"Guilt is not appropriate for the griever," said Pasquel. "Trying to keep up with a business as usual attitude . . . will increase your feelings of depression and being overwhelmed."

"Realize, tears are not bad." Pasquel noted studies that indicate that repressing tears raises toxicity of the blood and body fluids, and a person's susceptibility to illnesses. A good, hard cry, on the other hand, washes the toxins out with the tears and gives a feeling of re-

One way to do that is to make a plan for the day, Poppenger said. But it has to be for the whole day, she stressed:

"There was one woman who made plans only up to four in the afternoon," Poppenger said

After that, with nothing to keep her going, she just "plummeted" into a depression, according to Poppenger.

The Harris funeral home's get together is also a support group, where group members can also offer suggestions for dealing with grief during the holidays.

ONE ESPECIALLY difficult situation involved the death of a child in a family of five children, Poppenger said.

The children wanted to put up the stocking of the deceased child anyway, but the parents feared what might happen if it was empty on Christmas morning.

"Another parent suggested putting flowers in the stocking, to be taken to the grave site later in the day," Poppenger said.

Other suggestions were to put a picture and notes to the child in the

There's a need to talk about the loved one, especially for adult children when both parents are deceased, Poppenger noted.

"Even when there are siblings. many adult children feel abandoned," in such instances, she said.

It's given rise to what counselors are-beginning to document as the "Orphan Syndrome," Poppenger said, because "adult children say quite frequently, 'I feel like an orphan, now.' "

Poppenger noted one member of a grief support group planned to avoid celebrating or decorating her home for the holiday after her father's death.

But she changed her mind and included her father in the holiday by putting his picture on her Christmas tree's star, Poppenger said.

"It seems the bottom line here is based on past practice," Pickering said. "I still have a problem with us continuing to make that a practice without further study on this issue."

"TWO, THREE or four wrongs don't make a right," added Artley.

During the study session that preceded the regular council meeting, Artley suggested seeking partial contributions from the school districts involved.

Councilman Kent Herbert, who questioned the value of such mea-

Also voting in favor were William Ziemba, Tom Brown, Ben Dellart and Ken Mehl.

Dear Santa Claus,

I watched the movie called miracle on 34th street and this Christmas means more to me than ever before because I really believe in you.

I've always gotten things from you every year that I asked for and this year there are a few thinks I would like but most importantly if a miracle could happen too.

For Christmas I would like a radio controlled car, Suzie Scribbles, powasacki drums, a big piano keyboard or symthasizer and most of all that my grandma could feel better for Christmas because she has cancer and my mom and dad didn't think she would live for Thanksgiving and now Christmas is coming. Also, if you have time can you talk to mydad's old boss? My dad gave him a lot and his old boss always takes. You need to teach him how to give and not take so everybody could be happy again.

Dear Santa,

The one thing I would like the most for Christmas is a Cabbage. Patch Kid with long red hair in braids and brown eyes. Also I would like a Duncan yo-yo. Here are the the Barbies I would like Beach Blast, Dance Club, Garden Party, Magic Moves, Tropical Island, Teen Time

Cosmo is a victim of the saddest kind of animal cruelty. An owner who just doesn't want him anymore.

Without your help, we can save only one of these animals. Which one should it be?

That's the decision we're faced with every single day at the Michigan Humane Society. Every day, homeless and abused animals like Boris and Buddy and Sarah are brought to us seeking care and shelter. We help them all. But the painful truth is, there continue to be more animals in need of homes than there are homes to give. Of the 47,000 animals we took in last year, only one out of five found homes.

That's why we need your help. We ask you, during this season of giving, to find room in your heart and your home for Boris or Patches or any one of the hundreds of animals at the MHS.

Or you can do the next best thing. You can make a generous holiday donation. Because the more you help, the more we can help. Your donation not only provides shelter, food and medicine. It buys these homeless animals what they so desperately need - time.

So now, which one should we save? One of them? Or all of them? You decide.

Plastics? Frozen yogurt? Videorentals?

No, this is the Alpena County Jail's new 40-bed addition, sort of a motel with no swimming pool or in-room phones but with a captive clientele.

Sheriff Tom Male said: "I wish I had 100 beds, but I didn't have the guts to ask for them."

SUCH IS the wild and crazy outstate business of housing excess prisoners from big-city lockups. It's a burgeoning industry, with maneuverings, spinoffs and economic ironies to spare.

A district judge in the Observer area is elated because he has found a jail - "within 100 miles!" - that. has cells for rent and is as yet undiscovered by other jurisdictions.

A western Wayne County law enforcement entrepreneur is thinking of launching a company solely devoted to transporting prisoners. Meanwhile, the Westland Police Department is ready to assign two officers mainly to transport duties.

The bus from Detroit still arrives in Alpena with a lonely passenger or two, but southbound business is booming. That's because prisoners them. When a reporter observed that go north in police vehicles but head south on buses as free men, having ing the jail's mortgage payments served their time.

ary," Male said, "there were more passengers on the bus than in the previous seven months.' Police department LEIN machines routinely flash messages that cells are available here or are in need there.

Perhaps a dozen outstate jails have entered the business. But Alpena, some 250 miles north of Detroit, has entered in the biggest way having built its jail addition specifically to earn a profit. Local officials have a history of recognizing a chance to make a buck, having once campaigned for a nuclear waste dump and having offered the Concorde a U.S. landing site. The Wayne County Alternative Work Force Program is Male's biggest client, with a contract for 32 beds and first call on eight more. "We try to keep in the neighborhood of 50" rented cells, Male said, leaving 18 for his own use.

Does he ever have to turn someone away from the inn? "Every week," Male said.

LOWER LABOR costs, lower construction costs, and not taking prisoners with medical problems or maximum-security classifications help keep costs down. The Wayne County program pays Male's department $41 a day per prisoner, and is happy to get the beds.

"We pay all medical costs, transportation, the cost of the arrest," she said. "A lot of them don't pass the medical screening, and we have to house them in Wayne County."

All court districts operate their own community service programs for misdemeanants, but unlike Livonia and Westland not all have their own arrangements for outstate jail cells. Judges often assign one defendant to a local work program and another defendant - whom the judge feels deserves jail time - to the county.

In Plymouth's 35th District Court, about 200 people will be sentenced to the county program this year and more than 800 will be sentenced to local programs.

Judge Richard Manning of 17th District Court in Redford Township thinks "the whole concept is a good one," and makes use of it. ## Tax limit plan aims to boost school spending

By Tim Richard staff writer

The state Legislature would have to give a bigger piece of the budget ple to public schools, and property owners would get a hefty tax cut if voters approve the Patterson-Anderson "Citizens Tax Limitation" amendment.

The combination - high taxes and poor public education - has frustrated our citizens," economist Patrick Anderson, one of the amendment's authors said recently.

Anderson, an assistant vice president of Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Co. of Farmington Hills, is a close associate of Richard Headlee, who led the 1978 tax limitation amendment drive.

Brooks Patterson is former Oakland County prosecutor and "deserves the credit for bringing people together," Anderson said. Petition forms are available from; Patterson-Anderson Proposal Committee, P.O. Box 4721, Troy 48099-9998.

MOST OF THE state's 563 school districts would see budget increases under their amendment, Anderson said. And property owners in 400 school districts would get tax cuts. Here is how it would work:

 In 1991, school operating taxes, which average 33 mills, would be cut to 30 mills and capped there. The gross property tax cut would be $600 million minus $75 million in lost "circuit breaker" income tax rebates. (Those rebates currently go to households whose property taxes exceed 3.5 percent of income.)

• The Legislature would be required to add $750 million into K-12 school aid, more than making up for the property tax cuts. That amount is about 10 percent of the entire estiof $7 billion.

• Every school would receive at least $4,190 per pupil — the equivalent of 28 mills in property taxes narrowing the gap between rich and poor districts. School districts levying less than 28 mills would receive a pro-rated share of $4,190 per pupil.

• Property assessments, rising in many suburban areas at 15 percent or more a year, would be capped at the rate of consumer price inflation about 5 percent a year.

TO ANDERSON, it would be easy for the Legislature to place 10 perbudget into schools.

"The state has cut its contribution to local schools from 45 to 32 percent of their budgets since 1978," he said, echoing the Michigan State

Chamber of Commerce's plea for

"new priorities, not new taxes." Some $75 million of the money would come from property tax, rebates that would no longer have to be sent out with income tax refunds, he said.

A major share could come from the so-called "supplemental" budget of $500 million, which Gov. James.

mated 1990-91 general fund budget cent more of the $7 billion state Blanchard customarily introduces in mid-year.

In an interview, Anderson conceded the Legislature may opt to end the entire $600 million program of property tax rebates, and it might not be a bad idea. "The circuit breaker has functioned as an incentive to raise property taxes," he said. Michigan politicians often ask tax increases for schools, than divert the money to social services.

"When's the last time you heard a legislator say 'we need a tax increase for welfare?" " Anderson said.

Area residents cheer U.S. action in Panama

Invasion of Panama by U.S. troops Wednesday drew swift, strong reaction from area residents.

From downtown Plymouth to area malls, holiday shoppers took time out to voice support for U.S. military action in the Central American coun-

Most expressed happiness Panamanian strongman Gen. Manuel Noreiga had apparently been driven from power, though as of deadline, U.S. troops hadn't captured the Panamanian dictator.

owns the country (of Panama). The whole country (of Panama) is afraid of him."

President George Bush went on nationwide television at 7 a.m. to formally tell Americans about the invasion of Panama City. In his address, Bush told the nation the objectives were to protect American citizens and to bring Panama's democratically elected government into

The second objective drew strong support from Carole Deane of West-

"Il's about time. Now maybe they can get back to a democratic government. Maybe it will control drugs a bit," she said.

Elections had been held in May, though Noriega - who has been linked to drug trafficking - remained in power. Noriega's alleged links to the international drug trade increased some residents' support for the invasion.

"They (U.S. troops) ought to go all the way down to Columbia, they need to clean up the cocaine," said Bob Rudzik of Plymouth. "You should stand up for what you be-.. lieve."

"I THINK it had to be done because of drugs and such," said Juanita Ollis of Westland.

Area congressmen were also swift to respond to news of the invasion,

Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, said the invasion had his "full sup-Pursell's district includes Livonia, Plymouth and Plymouth township. Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor, also expressed support for the invasion.

"The safety of Americans in Panama, the security of the Panama Canal and the removal of Manuel Noreiga from the international drugdealing scene - all made this intervention necessary," said Ford, whose district includes Westland, Garden City and Canton.

The loss of life, and Noriega's relative lack of power, caused concerns from some area residents. "I don't like it." said a Livonia man who refused to give his name. "If we have to worry about a man

Others were concerned the invasion could turn into a drawn out con-

"If they capture Noriega, it will be a good thing," said Lorraine Zaksek of Plymouth. "If not, there will be a lot of difficulty, they (troops) could be in Panama a long time.'

But at least one area resident saw Noreiga's downfall as the removal of yet another American adversary.

"I think it's fantastic. I never thought all the changes in 1989 would come about," said Camille Amen, Plymouth. "It's like peace, through the whole world." .

House GOP task force targeting drunk drivers

By Tim Richard staff writer

Young drinking drivers are the epresentatives who served on a drunk driving task force.

"Zero tolerance for those 20 or younger" is the phrase chairman Frank Fitzgerald, RiGrand Ledge, used as his panel unveiled a series of 24 recommendations, mostly dealing with "swifter and more certain punishment."

'We have cases of 13- and 14-yearolds in possession of alcohol," said Rep. Jan Dolan, R-Farmington Hills, one of seven panel members. "For those who drink under-age, there would be a mandatory delay in getting their first license." (See chart)

The report was issued Monday at a series of news conferences, including one in Farmington Hills, where the panel had a public hearing earlier in the year.

ALTHOUGH ONLY one in 3,000 drunk drivers ever is arrested, according to state estimates, those odds could be improved, Fitzgerald

"We're recommending the Oakland County model be followed," he

The Oakland sheriff has a special task force that targets particular roads, such as Telegraph and Woodward, on nights when much drunk for much stiffer punishments, both for those convicted and those accused.

"We're trying to change behavparticular target of Republican state ior," said Fitzgerald, citing a national study showing that drivers change their habits when impressed by news of tougher laws.

Several GOP recommendations were aimed at "encouraging" tougher action by police, prosecutors and judges rather than mandating it or funding it.

THE PANEL stopped short of recommending that bars be closed atmidnight, as in other countries, rather than Michigan's 2:30 a.m.

"We consciously decided to focus on the law enforcement aspect rather than on liquor laws," said Fitzgerald, a former Eaton County assistant prosecutor.

Police are cool to the earlier closing idea for fear it would only push drinkers into illegal "blind plgs."

Dolan and Fitzgerald also doubted the value in suburban society of the British system of neighborhood pubs, small and numerous establishments from which drinkers could walk

"Our zoning wouldn't permit it," said Dolan, a former city councilwoman and mayor.

DOLAN URGED police to videotape people in the police station when they are arrested for drunk Detroit, "does not sit on bills like driving because "when they come to some chairmen," Dolan said. "Stan In general, the task force called court they look like they've stepped off Wall Street."

Fitzgerald said higher enforcement costs could be met, at least in part, by charging convicted drivers for participating in community service and alternative detention programs. Those programs would allow the convicted driver to continue

Dolan said support for the GOP recommendations would be sought from majority Democrats.

Fitzgerald said Republicans set up their own task force to show people "this is what we would be doing if we were the majority party and had control of the House and its committee structure. As a minority, we don't set the agenda."

Dolan said the House Liquor Control Committee, of which she is a member, meets whenever bills are assigned to it.

"But our committee does not take initiatives," she said.

Partnership Joining to advance learning

ANNED FOOD drives are rather common this time of year. Other increasingly common activities year-round in the educational community are Partners in Education arrangements whereby businesses join hands with the schools, often to help career-minded students. A story in today's Observer combined both elements. The result, however, was not a more common story but a rather uncommon happening because of the nature of the needs involved. The story told about a partnership recently forged between Detroit Edison and the Northwest Wayne Skill Center, a vocational education facility in Westland run by the Livonia school district for special education students in western Wayne County.

TO INTRODUCE students to the Edison folks, a food drive is being conducted. Students are bringing in items to the center for needy families, and Edison will help students distribute the gifts of food. Students also will go shopping for food basket items.

After the seasonal activity is over, the partnership will continue, with Edison personnel working with Northwest Skill Center students to give suggestions on how to live alone safely, how to find jobs, and how to survive in the working

Students and a utility company combined talents to bring a real meaning to the Christmas spirit.

School personnel, including center principal Earl Dawson, have developed guidelines to seek maximum learning potential for the students at the center.

Edison-has demonstrated its willingness to become involved by allocating employees to participate and helping develop the framework of the program so students will benefit. What has resulted is a special partnership to benefit students who need special help to enter and remain in the job market. A good job by both parties. We wish both luck next year as the program shifts into gear.

Welcome

Posey brings new dimension

THE Wayne-Westland school board made a little bit of local history last week when it named Leonard D. Posey as its first black member.

But Posey has other credentials that the board liked as it continues its efforts to maintain educational programs in an era of limited dollars. -

He is a personnel vice president at a large Detroit bank, active in various school groups and his neighborhood PTAs.

Posey also brings another dimension to the board. A resident of the Inkster portion in the southeast corner of the district, he will see community educational problems from a different perspective and add an important degree of balance to the board's debates.

Posey was appointed to a board vacancy, succeeding Terri Reighard Johnson, who resigned to accept a Westland City Council seat. If the newest board member likes his experience in the next five months, he will decide if he wants to seek a full four-year term next June.

Holidays: a chance to share

LL OF US SEE those gut-wrenching ads around this time of the year. They're pictures of weathered, exhausted men and women - sometimes with children — standing in food lines, sitting at long tables, seemingly numb to their circumstances. The ads tell us these people need help.

We're a good people, basically. We send money. We drop off non-perishable food at area collection centers. We try to do our part. But sometimes, some of us wonder if it's enough.

Forget about Santa getting the heave-ho-hoho out of some area schools. Never mind that it seems criminal to force Salvation Army workers to stand outside malls, in sub-zero temperatures, because some nitwit said their bells are too loud and are a disturbance in the malls. That's politics - don't let those isolated acts stain the spirit of

If anything, the holidays we celebrate, enjoy and share symbolize a very human need to let the best in us/surface, even if just for a moment, and extend a kindness to someone else.

MANY PLACES around town could really take advantage of that moment of kindness.

• Offer your time. Several places in Wayne and Oakland counties are serving meals Christmas Day, according to the United Community Services Center for Volunteerism. They include the Hunger Action Coalition, 962-0348; The Gleaners Community Food Bank, 923-3535; The Capuchin Community Center, 579-1330; Focus: Hope, 883-7440; Mother Waddles Perpetual Misslon, 491-9452; The Salvation Army, 532-1500; Hare Krishna (they're offering a vegetarian meal), 824-7410; and the Pontiac Rescue Mission.

While many area food drives already have delivered baskets, Focus: Hope still needs people through tomorrow, until 6 p.m., to help sort, pack and deliver boxes of food. Head to their resource center, 1355 Oakman in Detroit.

• Extend a hand, or, actually, an arm. "This is a hard time of the year" for blood donations, an American Red Cross worker said. Main donor centers are in Livonia and Bloomfield Hills; check our listings for local blood drives in malls, schools and other community centers.

If you're squeamish about giving blood, do the next best thing: volunteer to work in a donor center or help transport blood products to area hospitals. Call Mike Corbin, director of volunteer services for the American Red Cross, 494-2866. Corbin said the Red Cross also needs volunteers for disaster relief workers, hospitals and nursing homes, school health programs, food service projects and youth services programs "Our youth services program is the most extensive in the country," Corbin said.

• Offer some comfort. The Haven helps victims of physical and sexual abuse, often by getting those victims out of the environment where they're getting hurt. They need everything from baby diapers and laundry detergent to cookies and children's videos. Haven's address, while not a state secret, is kept quiet so victims can have some security and privacy. But you can call them: 334-1284.

• Check your list twice. It's hard to find a community that isn't collecting food for baskets. That's half the battle. The other half is getting those baskets to their destinations - senior citizen homes, the homebound — you know who they are. We've been reporting on these efforts for weeks now. A little help loading a truck or delivering a meal means a lot to the people who organize these campaigns, not to mention the people receiving the baskets.

• Do hard duty, where a kind word really can make a difference. The hospice services connected with St. Mary Hospital in Livonia and the Southeast Michigan Hospice in Southfield do their best to provide for terminally ill people.

• Think ahead. Volunteer Connect is a .brand-new service (it just came on-line Nov. 17) of the United Community Services. It's a computer network that matches volunteers with more than 9,000 positions in 870 different areas through 125 different agencies, according to Janice Cross, skills bank coordinator. After completing an application that asks where and how you want to donate your time, volunteers receive the names of three agencies that match their desires and would welcome their help. This center pre-dates George Bush — it's been in the "thou-sand points of light" business since 1936 — and serves as a volunteer clearing house for Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. For further information, call Cross, 226-9430.

Mental illness still prompts scorn, fear

I WAS DEEPLY heartened to read a letter recently sent to us. It contains a message that must be shared. The writer was replying to a recent column by assistant managing editor Judy Berne, who wrote about a conference conducted by the Michigan Department of Mental Health.

In attempts to rid society of harmful stereotypes, the department is working with the media in reaching a better understanding of mental illness. A fascinating benefit of journalism is the continual opportunity to learn. And we learn so that you, from reading newspapers, can make better informed decisions about your role in society. Most importantly, we learn from readers who often have the most personal knowledge of a situation. That's why today I want to share this reader's thoughts. The author is a parent of a daughter who is mentally ill and a member of the Alliance for the Mentally Ill.

Although we normally don't run unsigned letters, this letter is special, special enough to waive the

Payments upset Artley

The Griffin Administration continues its "rape" of the city funds with the granting of over $6,500 in longevity payments to Deputy Mayor Andrew Spisak this week. At issue is the "continuous service" interpretation of myself and other councilmen and the administration/city attorney's interpretation. My contention is that when Spisak retired from his police department job to take an appointed position with Griffin, that his "continuous service" is ended because he receives the benefits of his prior service in his current pension which he has earned, and receives monthly. Further, his time as an appointee starts under a completely different pay plan than where his pension is derived from.

The administration/city attorney's opinion is that because the mayor's current pay plan for appointed officials doesn't specify that a retiree's prior service time doesn't count toward calculating the number of years upon which the longevity payment is made, that the full time, including retirement years from which Spisak receives benefits, can be counted. It does not matter to the city attorney that allowing this exorbitant payment was never the intent of the city council — at least in the 13 years that I have served the residents of Westland.

This controversy regarding the "continuous service" of an employee, versus retiree's prior service time, arose in February 1989. The council received the mayor's verbal agreement that the funds for Spisak's prior "retirement service" credits would not be paid, and there were no plans by the administration to pay the inflated amount. This may have continued to be the case if Griffin had been re-elected, but on their way out the door, they continue to stuff their pockets and pensions with as much as they can get away with - while a majority of the city council continues to "look the other way." You and I, the concerned Westland resident, continue to pay dearly for Griffin's administration - and we will continue to pay for them over the next 20 to 30 years. It is council's intent to close this loophole in the wording of the longevity payment at the Dec. 18 meeting - after the fact.

Thomas C. Artley, city councilman

MET critics 'surprised'

To the editor:

We were surprised to read Michi-

Other newspapers have published statements by Mr. Bowman act knowledging the accuracy of our present value analysis, which found that MET makes sense as an invest? ment at the University of Michigan and Michigan State University, but not at 13 other public universities.

Print media ignored ray of hope on drugs

DID YOU KNOW that the National Commission on Drug-Free Schools was in Detroit and our suburbs last week to find out what needs to be done here and in the nation?

Most likely you didn't. According to a commission spokesperson, the Detroit media gave less coverage to the event than either of the two other cities where the commission has convened: Portland, Ore., and

"Seven television stations covered the Portland visit and the daily paper ran a story with photographs every day we were there," said Annora Dorsey, a member of the commission's staff.

IN BOSTON, 10 articles appeared in the Globe, Herald and surrounding community papers and three TV stations covered it, according to another commission staffer.

Here, TV stations 4 and 50 gave some coverage. There was some radio. But where was the print media?

"I found that extremely interesting. Are we so jaded by the drug scene?," wondered West Bloomfield schools' Superintendent Seymour Gretchko, one of those asked to participate because of expertise, interest or exemplary drug/alcohol abuse

For Gretchko and other participants, the commission's visit opened up a glimmer of hope that our nation could win what is shaping up as its longest, toughest war.

The commission-took back to Washington information collected from visits to a Detroit middle school and a Southfield high school, a public hearing, talks with troubled teenagers and their parents and an all-day conference of concerned citizens. It will present a written report on its findings to Congress and the

Holiday's flip side

WRAPPING UP the holidays, so

If you're fed up with reading about holiday policies in area schools and stories about the lights at Domino's Farms turn you off, here are some seasonal tidbits from around the country and around the world.

Bethlehem, where it all began, has canceled Christmas celebrations for the third year in a row to support the Palestinian uprising. Same thing goes for Jerusalem and the rest of the Holy Land.

Meanwhile, a physics professor down at East Tennessee State University says that the so-called Christmas star was probably just a conjunction of Jupiter, Saturn and Mars. But he says the wise men were believed to have been educated in astronomy and should have recognized such a phenomenon for what it was.

He says there aren't enough facts in the Biblical accounts to be exactly sure what the wise men did see. "It could have been a really bright star," he added. I'm glad that issue's of Nativity scenes are being challenged from Arkansas to Georgia to Wisconsin to San Diego as violating the separation of church and state clause of the First Amendment, a Jewish organization has filed suit against Pittsburgh for its decision not to display a menorah on the steps of city hall.

Members of the group claim they deserve to use the city hall steps as a forum for public expression and the decision not to display the menorah is a violation of their First Amendment rights . . . of free speech.

ON THE GRINCH front, vandals stole all the lights off the community Christmas tree in Ririe, Idaho, the day after they were put up. In Little Rock a thief ransacked a house, unwrapped about 40 presents and stole some of them, then apparently had a change of heart and returned them the next day with a note of apology and $5 in nickels and dimes to help pay for the broken window. The homeowner said the money had been stolen along with the presents.

In San Diego a Nativity scene in Balboa Park was defaced by vandals who spray-painted the statues' faces and wrote slogans opposing such scenes in public.

And in Green Bay, Wis., a woman who withdrew her daughter from kindergarten, claiming the child's free speech rights had been violated when teachers told her not to discourage other students from believing in Santa Claus, says a New York television station wants to interview her as part of a show on children's rights.

SANTA'S BEEN busy. In a Los Angeles shopping mall he leaped out of his chair to resuscitate an 11year-old boy who was choking on a piece of bubble gum. He kept the beard and wig in place, explaining later that he was surrounded by dozens of children and "I didn't want to blow their illusion."

And in Virginia Beach, Va., in a similar setting, Santa helped a security guard wrestle a suspected shoplifter to the floor.

In Houston, Santa got embroiled in a controversy after he claimed that some homeless people, for whom he had been collecting donations of food, clothes and money, mugged him, ripped off his beard and took the goodie bag. The people involved said it wasn't that way. They said he just took off with the bag and headed for a crack house.

AND FINALLY, in the world of giving, a New York elementary school teacher has formed a toy consulting business for parents who can't figure out what to give their kids. For a fee of $300, she'll visit the home, interview the parents, inspect the child's room and then come up with an individually tailored list of toys for the parents to buy.

Out in Los Angeles, the owner of something called Revenge a la Carté will, for only $30, provide a gift that keeps on giving. He'll have the recipient's name placed on the mailing lists of 20 religious organizations For the same price, he'll deliver a voodoo doll, dead flowers or a rotting sea bass.

And some of you thought that Christmas has lost its meaning.

Alleviating acute testing anxiety

In the Thanksgiving edition of the Observer and Eccentric you spoke about things that you were thankful for. You said you would be thankful when testing of students is structured so that it is part of the total teaching situation; not a threatening ordeal. Frankly, I had a terrible time taking certain tests in high school, in college and now in graduate school. I presently feel tremendous pressure in a graduate class I need to complete my doctorate degree. Any suggestions?

What you have is called acute test taking anxiety.

It is absolutely true that taking a certain type of test for certain students is a very anxious ridden, emotional experience especially in the "timed (only so much time) test" sit-

The standard answer to avoid test anxiety is to be well prepared, study very single system that touches the on a daily basis, don't cram at the last minute and rest the night before the test (all the other good things that are appropriate for taking a test.) But this didn't fly with some students I taught in graduate school; students who almost had a breakdown at the thought of a major test.

> Now, here you are a teacher working toward a doctorate in educational administration with no background in math who must pass an upcoming advanced, required statisof study. Indeed, one of the graduatecourses I taught was educational statistics and I spent as much time on anxiety levels of teachers and administrators as I did in preparing the students for the test - and these students did study.

WHAT CAN be done to alleviate that situation?

First of all, caring teachers at all levels must realize their students are more than a receptacle for depositing their words of wisdom. They must know which students suffer from these founded and sometimes unfounded fears, and help them alleviate the psychological barriers. Coaches and school orchestra directors do this all the time when a major performance is facing their "kids."

You as a student have two factors impacting upon you; one is in the cognitive (thinking) area and the other is in the affective (the emotional/psychological) area.

The cognitive area; that is, the dressed. Student self-talk such as "I can't do this, I am going to fail" results into what is called negative cognition or negative thinking. This thinking has a direct impact on the studying a student does prior to the test. Students affected this way are unable to focus because of anxiety and fears; they foresee failure and even after having learned some necessary and important concepts can't seem to retain the information during the testing period:____

The affective or emotional/psychological area then enters in and expresses itself in sweating palms, blood pressure up, heart palpitation and lack of sleep.

IN YOUR case, since you have studied diligently for your upcoming exam, your situation is negative thinking and therefore positive selftalk is important to you to minimize your first priorities and a Dr. before your name or an Ed.D after your name is the third priority at this your health.

Christmases remembered

Alice Hosback Livonia

My most memorable recollection of a Christmas Past is the Depression year when everyone was poor and we pupils at Wilcox

School — a one-room country school at Six Mile and Middlebelt roads - performed a play called "The Birds' Christmas Carol."

It was chosen because it included a Christmas dinner scene, and Helen-Richter, our teacher, used it as a way toserve a complete Christmas dinner to all the pupils who she knew would not be having one at home.

My mother and Mrs. Bendelow helped her cook and serve it — in an old frame school building with no plumbing and no electrical appliances.

We were poor, but we were going tohave a Christmas dinner, so my sister aved narte that didn't have to eat

Sew be it Quilters love doing the 'ABCs'

By Sue Mason staff writer

Seventy-one children have a bright, colorful addition to their otherwise sterile world, thanks to the efforts of quilters from throughout southeast and central Michigan.

The additions are ABC quilts. The recipients are the young victims of the AIDS crisis and patients at Children's Hospital of Michigan in De-

Christmases

Linda Draper Garden City

I remember when Christmas trees were real, not artificial, and they had to be trimmed. Living in the inner-city, there were alleys where you could throw away trash and discarded tree tops and branches. I was the oldest of four children, ages 8, 6, 4 and 3. One year we had no money for a Christmas tree, but I had an idea.

My six-year-old brother and I took my mother's pole lamp and covered it with a bed sheet. We rummaged through the alley and collected branches. We popped popcorn and made colored paper chains. I took a needle and carefully sewed these items onto our make-believe tree.

We hid ourselves, when our younger brother and sister got up the next day. We may not have had lights on our tree, but the sparkle in their eyes was all the light that was needed. Note: A few days after this, an aunt and uncle saw our tree and took pity. They went out and bought us a silver artificial tree with the trimmings. You never saw two more disappointed children. My brother and I were very proud of our tree.

Lafern Porter Westland

Returning home from Grandma's about 5 a.m., we set about preserving the magic of Christmas for our five-year-old son.

Dad carried our 75-pound Collie up to the roof and I handed him the sled. While he made footprints and sled tracks, I ran around the house calling the dog, creating paw prints. Once the policemen determined we weren't burglers, they helped get the dog, sled and Dad back to earth, exclaiming to each other, "Only at Christ-

Hearing "Santa's real! I see his footprints! I'm glad those kids were wrong." makes this one of my favorite Christmas memories.

By Sue Mason staff writer

Just hearing the brief biography provide by her husband, Thomas, makes you wonder how Fleur Cowles has, and still does, find time to do the many things that she does.

She was a ferry pilot during World War II and later appointed director of famine relief in Europe by Harry Truman which landed her in Paris four days after its liberation.

She was Dwight D. Eisenhower's special representative to Brazil, Cyprus, Greece, Egypt and Persia and ambassador to the British coronation of Queen Elizabeth II.

She was associate editor of "Look" magazine and creator and editor of "Flair" magazine, not to mention the author of the authorized biography of Salvador Dali and of "Bloody Precedent," the account of the lives of Juan and Evita Peron.

She also has written about everything from Picasso, Amazon Indians and roses to her latest work, "An Artist's Journey" that contains 48 pages illustrated with some of her favorite paintings.

An accomplished artist, she has staged 39 one-woman shows. Her first was in London in 1959 and the list includes a 1974 show at the Cranbrook Musuem in Bloomfield Hills. Cats — jungle cats, that is — and flowers are her favorite subjects, although one painting of a unicorn graces the Imperial Palace in Japan.

"AS AN EDITOR, my office was full of other people's works," she said. "When I married Tom and moved to London (in 1955), I decided who needs vanity, I'll paint my own."

An American by birth, she is in the United States at east twice a year and her current visit coincides with her latest endeavor—bone china reproductions of her paintings.

Two years ago, she was approached by Border Fine Arts in Worchester, England, about reproducing her paintings in bone china, a radical departure from traditional collectibles. And after "looking at how competently the firm behaved and worked," Cowles realized Border could reproduce her two-dimensional art in a three-dimensional medium.

"They're able to do a realistic and fabulous reproduction of my work," she said. "I was afraid they would come out with something cute and coy."

In the last two years, the firm has produced 40 Fleur Cowles pieces. They range from the "Fleur Cowles Rose," a simple white, with a trace of pink rose, priced at $195, to the limited edition of "Fragrant Hideaway," a leopard surrounded by 70 flowers, priced at $950.

The reproductions are so popular that Borders "can't make enough of them," Cowles said, adding that "that's the absolute pure truth." Demand for the work is such that only 50 U.S. storefronts, including Jacobson's, carry the artwork.

Reproducing Cowles' paintings is not a simple task. Borders has one craftsman who is the flower maker. Each petal part is created separately. In the case of "Fragrant Hideaway," the craftsman had to make between eight and 10 petals for each of the 70 flowers.

ONCE THE reproduction is complete, Cowles goes to the studio and paints the first piece, teaching the six or so craftsmen responsible for the coloration how to do it.

The pieces reflect Cowles' love of flowers, but while she is sure to surround herself with them, none of the flowers serve as models for her paintings.

"I never look at anything," she said. "If you were to give me $1 million to copy some bouquet, I couldn't do it. I like to make it up. It's all in my mind."

And don't ever expect to find her seated at an easel. She paints on her lap while seated on a couch in her studio in Sussex, "always with

The newest works of Fleur Cowles include the "Lion and White Amarylis" bone china art and her book "An Artist's friends around me." But do expect to find her surrounded by flowers.

"Every home is designed with flowers in mind," she said. "My house is filled with flowers. They're grown in a greenhouse so my house in town is filled even when they're out of season."

As for her favorite flower, Cowles is partial to the rose. Her "Fleur Cowles Rose" is actually a copy of a rose named for her. And among her many books she has written is "The Life and Times of the Rose," a history of the flower. The book started out as the draft of a speech she was to deliver for a museum in California and came out as a book 10 days later.

"What a crazy accident," she said.

But then again, Cowles is "equally fond of the daisy." She just designed porcelain for the table with the daisy as its theme.

"BUT REALLY I can't have a favorite; it just has to be a flower," Cowles said.

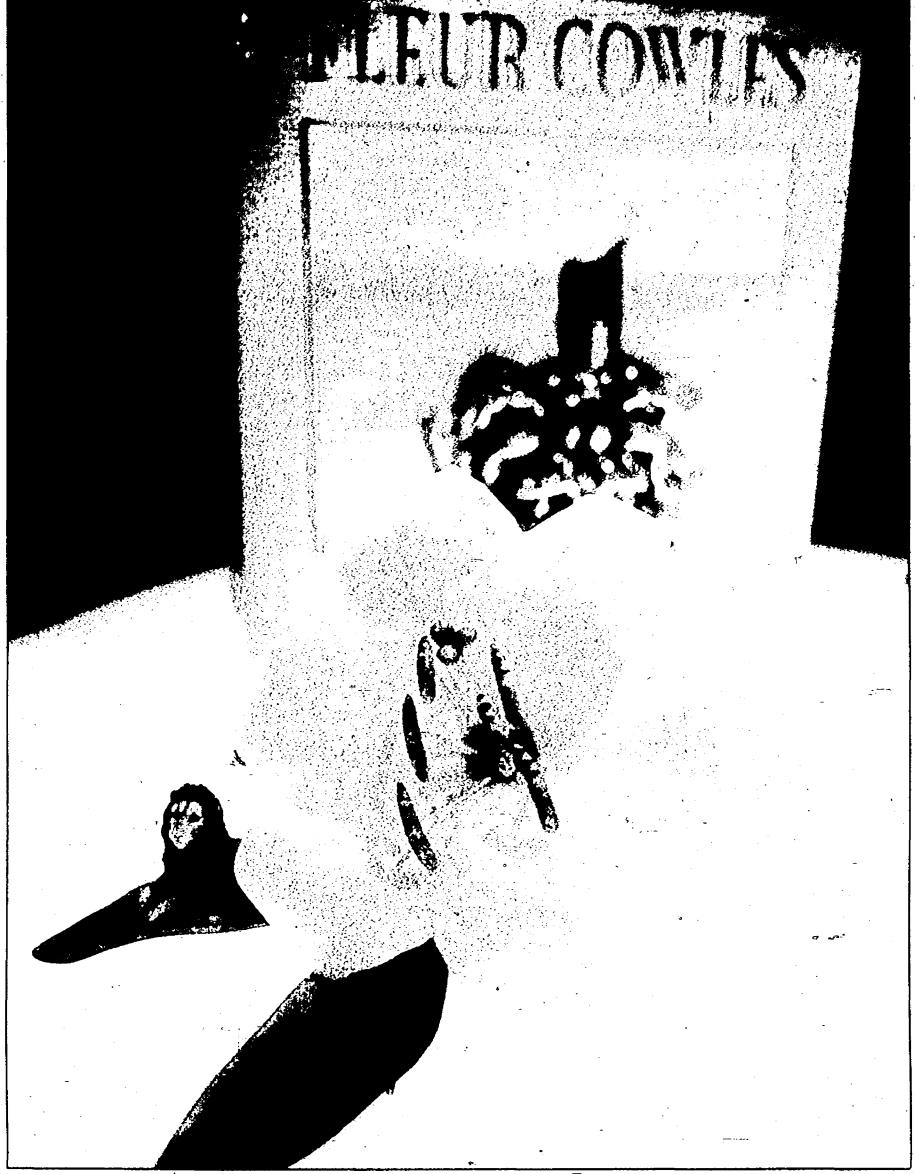

And what does the future hold for Cowles?

For her next bone china piece, she would like to do a bow wreath — an animal head surrounded by flowers — to hang on the wall.

On the publishing front, she quietly tells the owner of a copy of "Flair" to look for a book on "The Best of Flair" in the next 11/2

"No matter where I go, they never disappoint me," she said, gladly autographing his June 1950 copy of the magazine. "Someone always brings a copy for me to sign."

Journey," which includes 48 pages illustrated with some of her favorite paintings.

Fleur Cowles waits quietly to talk to customers about her bone china art during an appearance at Jacobson's Laurel Park store in Livonia.

Richard Churgay of Farmington Hills didn't disappoint Fleur Cowles when he showed up with a copy of "Flair" magazine. Cowles gladly autographed the copy of "Flair," which, in 1950, she created and edited.

Each quilt bears the name and state of its maker. Some even bear messages for the children like one quilt from Midland that reads, "The angels danced the day you were born."

There also are quilting specifications — stitching close together — to make then durable. The quilts most likely will be washed by the hospital and the tight stitching will ensure that the batting doesn't tear or shift during washing, Yatzeck said.

And while the response to the quilt project has been great, there was a time when it looked like the ABC quilts would be shipped out of state or the Michigan project might change its name to accommodate other ailing youngsters.

Handwriting shows possible talent for writing

Dear Lorene,

I often read your column and am often amazed at how much information you can gather about someone through their handwriting! Hopefully, you will be able to inform me of characteristics of myself that I am not aware of:

'Just to let you know, I am a 20year-old married college student who is left handed. For many years though (until I was 10), I was proficiently ambidextrous. Even my teachers never knew which hand I wrote with! This is because once one hand tired while writing, I would switch to the other hand to write

Now, however, although I can do many tasks with both hands well, my writing capabilities extend only to my left hand. Thank you so much for your time and effort. I sincerely appreciate it.

I would like to reiterate what I said last week about ambidextrous writers. They are usually people who are highly intelligent.

In addition to this, your facility with words is outstanding! Ideas as well as words flow rapidly from one thought to another. You may even have a talent for writing.

In your interaction with others, you can be charming and amusing. I also discern some sarcasm along with the humor. This combination often results in a sophisticated type of humor, more commonly known as wit. Seems you are able to show the true nature of a happening along with a funny twist.

I find you to be friendly and outgoing. You would be a helpful, generous friend. And you have difficulty concealing your inner feelings as your body language gives you away.

ANOTHER ingratiating trait is your enthusiasm. However, it does seem to wax and wane at times. You probably start out on a task or a goal with zest. Before completion the ento sound contradictory. You often vacillate between possible choices and experience difficulty making decisions. You may also jump from activity to activity. There is a little tension in your handwriting. The marginal spacing suggests you may be feeling somewhat apprehensive about something in the future. I get the feeling you ple.

It seems possible that money or investments may be on your mind at this particular time.

Ostensibly, you have not completely worked through certain phases of the formative years and are experiencing ambivalence regarding the parental influences in your life. Still you are a unique young woman and mature for your young age. You already have learned that what you do for others returns to you in greater méasure.

Day has special meaning

IERE'S MORE to Christsents.

Local youngsters were reminded of that last week during a Bible Club meeting held at the Lake Pointe Bible Chapel in Plymouth Township.

"Some of the children would never hear about the real meaning of Christmas," said Carol Young of Westland, Bible Club teacher.

The Bible Club - not affiliated with the Lake Pointe Bible Chapel meets weekly from October through Easter. Last week, 30 or so elementary-school age kids learned about the first Christmas.

Young used a flannel board and cut-out characters to present the story of Jesus' birth.

'We do feel it's important because they do not get it in school."

> — Carol Young Bible Club teacher

"It's a good way to present the stomas than receiving pre-ries," she said. "We try to make it so they can understand, we really do."

> YOUNGSTERS AT the meeting also took time to sing songs. Young's husband, Carl, serves as song leader for the club. Children reviewed a Bible verse with Pat Demerest, verse teacher.

Carol Young believes it's essential that children know the spiritual meaning of Christmas.

"We do feel it's important because they do not get it in school. Children need to get it somewhere, and they don't get it on television.'

She and her husband have four grown children and five grandsons. They've taught their children about the real meaning of Christmas.

"If you don't teach them while they're young, it sometimes slips by them," Young said.

Mary Martin of Plymouth Township, attendance secretary for the Bible Club, agrees it's important that children understand the true meaning of Christmas. Two of her four children participate in Bible Club activities.

"So many kids don't even know that there's any more to it than materialism."

This time of year, Martin enjoys reading the stories of Laura Ingalls Wilder. The children in those books were delighted to receive a peppermint candy stick and handmade red mittens for Christmas.

Martin knows today's children can't be expected to be thrilled with such modest gifts.

"But it's beautiful, too, that they were so content." She and her husband have taught emphasizing the importance of giving to others, and reading the Christmas story can help children understand.

"It's a beautiful story," she said. "I think they're drawn to it natural-

Our system also has some shortcomings

It would seem that many of the folks in Eastern Europe are in for a more pleasant holiday season than that part of the world has seen in

Those of us who are celebrating the birth of Jesus as the Christ recall that he came that we might have life to the full. The freedom which is struggling to birth in so many Eastern Bloc nations certainly goes well with the notion of a fuller life.

The process also seems to have some parallel to our Jewish sisters' and brothers' Hanukkah celebration in which they commemorate the rededication of their Temple in Jerusalem following a time of desecration some 2100 years ago.

As I read of the happenings in Poland and in Hungary and in East Germany, and in Czechoslovakia and even in Russia, I feel a twinge of envy. This is not an envy strong enough to motivate a change in citimoral perspectives zenship, but one that causes me to reflect.

THE BASIC reality that these nations have in common is standing up in front of the whole world and saving "Our system has not been working. We have not been doing things

Granted the perestroika that is taking place may have come out of self-interest. But unfortunately most worthwhile changes, be they personal, interpersonal or international, come only when our backs are to the wall. They are refreshing nonethe-

It would seem that there are a few things in our own closet that could stand a breath of fresh air. To allow that air in, we might take a lesson from these nations which not so long ago made up the Evil Empire.

There are a few things in our own system that do not work well. Butonly if we can become more committed to the fullness of life for everyone than to the systems we insist will bring it about can we make that awesome admission: "Even our system has some basic flaws."

Capitalism is the system in which the gap between the haves and the have-nots continues to grow. Homelessness, joblessness, illiteracy and. untreated illness have many trapped under more weight than all the little pieces of the Berlin Wall that are being sold in department stores.

OUR POLICIES in Central Ameri ca simply are not working. Some of what we insist upon in our churches throws a wall between the God of: Creation and the people who seek that God. Our use of the earth itself is destroying the very land we claim to love. Much of what we have consecrated has become the source and cause of life's diminishment. And aw that is desecration, not consecration.

If the peoples of Eastern Europe? can find the resources to bring themselves out of desecration to concos secrate the notion of life and freedom, then we who have talked of it was for so many years - we who celebrate the very notion of it in our national holidays and religious rituals - are certainly empowered to let goof what has not worked so that we might give substance to our creeds our anthems and our hymns.

our anthems and our hymns.

The Rev. Robert Schaden is with the Newman House campus ministries at Schoolcrast College

Museum's shop carries icons

Many icons, an ancient art form with religious significance, are available at the Detroit Institute of Arts' Museum Shop. The original paintings - depicting ancient works found in "Holy Image, Holy Space: Icons and Frescoes from Greece" - are on display at the DIA through Jan. 28. Paintings depict the lives of Christ, the Virgin Mary and many saints found in the Scriptures. In ancient times, icons were believed to provide a direct connection between Christians and the Trinity. Churches, devoted to specific saints, would house several icons with their subjects displaying Greek, Italian or other ethnic characteristics.

Icons remain symbolic in today's orthodox faiths, but have also become a popular interior decorating element. Among the pieces carried by the DIA Museum Shop are St. Nicholas, Christ the Redeemer, Virgin and Child, St. Demetrius, S.S. Constantine and Helena, Archangel Ga. briel and St. Nictarios.

Prices are $60 to $800. The shop, carries a specially-produced videotape ($25), a catalog ($25), a booklet ($10) and a poster ($10), all related to the "Holy Image, Holy Space" exhi-

Local financial planning experts reviewed the data of the person profiled here and made general recommendations based on the participant's resources and goals. "Income taxes frequently turn nest eggs into goose eggs.'

At least that is the fear of the individual interviewed for this month's financial profile. In this article we will focus on tax savings strategies, as well as on investment planning and shoring up some weaknesses in a financial foundation.

Larry Kabrick, 26, is a manufacturing engineer at Ford Motor Co. In 1988 he had just over $41,300 in income and paid more than $6,100 in federal income tax.

Kabrick lives alone in his own home in Livonia. His goals include home improvements (kitchen and basement), self-improvement (starting a graduate degree program), and financial improvement (tax reduction and investment planning).

Kabrick has a leg up on his peers for two reasons. First, he is interested enough in reaching his financial goals that he is willing to spend the time to become aware of the various financial alternatives available. He keeps excellent records and has them well organized. In fact, the information he provided us with was the most thorough of any correspondence during the 21/2 years we have been writing this column.

The second advantage is that Kabrick recently received the proceeds from a house he inherited in 1984. This amounted to a windfall of almost $40,000. He is concerned about the tax implications of the house sale and cash distribution. He spent about $6,000 of his own money on house repairs, and he fears that the remaining $34,000 in sales proceeds will be taxed, resulting in a whopping tax bill next April.

We can set his mind at ease on this score. He should be aware that the "tax basis" used to determine any taxable gain includes not only the value of his investment in repairs on the house, but it also includes the value of the house on the date of his mother's death in 1984. Because the house was valued at $30,000 at the time, he will face a taxable gain of only $4,000 for 1989.

A FEW AREAS of Kabrick's financial foundation need review. First, he has no will or estate plan in place. Should be meet a premature death, the state would take over the planning of his estate. Because these laws are inflexible and because Kabrick has amassed a substantial estate for his age, we suggest that he give serious thought to how he would like his estate distributed. An attorney should then draw up the documents to ensure that his wishes are

It took a lot for Sharon Brown to But mostly it took someone willing to give her the chance. Two years ago, Brown suffered severe head injuries in an automobile

"Everything reverted back to childhood, said her mother, Sarah Brown. "She even had to learn how to walk and talk again."

Through therapy, Brown regained much of her speech and motor skills, but she owes much of her renewed self-esteem to her housekeeping job at American House-Livonia.

There, Brown fluffs pillows and cleans rooms for the senior citizen

"She wanted to retain her independence and this helps her do so," her mother said.

Gillette and other business professionals, like Mack Dillon, a senior vice president of Michigan National Bank and fellow ARC Foundation Trustee, have embarked on a "get the word out" campaign.

"FIRST, WE want businesses to hire these workers," Gillette said. "Then, we want them to contribute to the foundation to help prevent mental retardation."

Though not directly affiliated with the Foundation, many local and regional agencies participate in the nationwide "supported employment" program, designed to give extra training to mentally impaired work-

Sabuda is a new employee at Alljack & Co., also of Plymouth. All told, Gruits said, 10 of their home's 16 residents hold jobs.

Mental retardation can, in many cases, be prevented, Gruits added. "We're finding one of the biggest causes is fetal alcohol

Japanese get distorted view

A California couple who rented a room to a Japanese student became suspicious when all he would say at breakfast was, "How you spell granola?" Now the couple is suing Nissan Motor Co., claiming that their boarder actually was a spy sent by Nissan to study American lifestyles.

It's understandable that a Japanese car company would want to learn more about the country that is buying all those cars they can't sell in Japan. It's roughly the same question ralsed when Manhattan was purchased. What are those guys doing with all those beads, anyway?

Unfortunately for Nissan - or perhaps fortunately for the U.S. industry, since U.S. sales of Nissan products have been doing a lot better than the cars built by natives their first spy headed straight for California.

He headed for California because California is where all trendwatchers go and because it is known as a warm place. A Japanese executive based in Detroit, plagued with falling car sales, told me in the middle of a Michigan winter, "I'm worried, if things get any worse, they will send me to

Unfortunately, Japanese spies watching American lifestyles in California have, over the years, developed a series of misconceptions about the country at large.

Californians tend to talk to themselves, for example, which was observed by a Japanese spy, and the result was the talking cars. Californians are convinced that punching away at a computer represents a high order of social development-and the result was the digital dashboard.

I'VE ALSO noticed that California's mild climate has inspired a whole series of Japanese cars that turn to slush when submerged in road salt. Road salt was ignored by a whole generation of Japanese spies that were stamping their feet to keep warm and worrying about getting sent to Canada.

Road salt is why many knowledgable Midwesterners won't touch a Japanese car today, but Nissan spies never noticed, since they were too busy clipping out pictures of Midwestern UAW types smashing Japanese cars with sledgehammers. Frozen spies turning in lousy reports also are the reason why Nissan defrosters only clear a peek-a-boo spot on the windshield, and Mazda heaters barely warm your right sock.

It's understandable that Nissan central is a little confused at this point. Aside from its cold spies, Nissan also hired an American design studio run by a guy who used to work for General Motors, that gives them advice on how to better please the American consumer. Mainly the advice is to make Nissan's car longer, lower and wider.

Meanwhile, California traffic, where most Nissans get sold, is getting worse and worse, while Nissans keep getting bigger and bigger. This seems to make Californians buy more and more cars, which they use to drive to the polls and vote for legislation that calls for smaller cars, or even no cars at all.

-Where all this is heading is anybody's guess. Frankly, I would have let the guy take notes, as long as he quit asking how to spell things. If the Japanese keep listening to the kind of advice they have been getting, pretty soon they won't be much of a threat to the domestic

Meanwhile, at least they learned that part of the American lifestyle is to sue at the drop of a hat.

. . . Kabrick has no will or estate plan

A will and durable power of attorney are two basic documents that he should put into place. We would also recommend that he write an informal "letter of instruction" that details the location of his financial documents, funeral arrangement wishes, and any other desired, though non-binding, instructions to his heirs.

. Although the liability coverage on his homeowners insurance is adequate, Kabrick needs to upgrade the liability coverage on his auto policy. He purchased only the minimum allowed by his insurance carrier -$20,000 for each person and $40,000 per occurrence. Should he be involved in a serious accident; his assets might be in jeopardy if he received a court judgment against him. He should raise this to at least $100,000/$200,000. The cost for this increase is minimal.

Kabrick should also review his coverage in case of a long-term disability, but subsequently he would receive only $832 per month in disability benefits through his Ford plan. This is substantially less than he would need to maintain his current standard of living. Also, in the case of a permanent disability, he would find all of his future financial goals unattainable.

We would suggest he purchase a personal disability insurance policy providing an additional income of $1,500 after the sixth month of disability. Benefits should be payable until age 65 and should have cost of living adjustments. The cost for such coverage would be approximately $330 per year.

Overall, Ford has an excellent benefits package. Besides the pension plan and the insurance coverages, he has access to a salary savings plan. He is currently putting 10 percent of his base salary into this plan. With Ford's matching contribution, this is an excellent method for him to accumulate assets over the long term.

BUT KABRICK is making his 10 percent contribution with after-tax dollars. He has the option to switch his contributions into a 401(k) plan. In this plan, pre-tax dollars are used. When searching for tax reduction strategies, this is the first area most. financial planners will recommend. If he ever decides to leave Ford, he will receive his account balance in a large sum, and any taxable distribution could be rolled over into an IRA. The money would therefore continue to grow tax deferred.

Other tax reduction strategies involve his investment portfolio. Currently, the bulk of his assets are held in the Ford Money Market Fund, which is an excellent place to keep funds for emergencies and shortterm expenditures.

But the interest he receives from this fund is fully taxable. It_only makes his tax problem worse. Instead, he should focus on investments that have both more growth potential and better tax treatment.

One alternative that would result in immediate tax benefits is a limited partnership in low-income housing. He should be aware that such an investment is illiquid and is not without pitfalls. But a well-structured the International Association for program can provide a tax credit Financial Plunning.

(which is a dollar-for-dollar reduction of taxes due) of approximately 15 percent each year for 10 years, Over the 10-year period, there is a direct tax "rebate" equaling 150 per? cent of the investment. Assuming the real estate performs well, there will be additional returns, but the tax benefits alone make it worth considering. Kabrick should recognize that this type of investment will complif cate his tax return. It should be made only after receiving counsel from his personal tax and invest? ment advisers.

Finally, Kabrick should review balancing his investments by investiing in a combination of municipal bonds (providing tax-free income) and growth stocks or mutual funds. Beyond an emergency fund of $10,000, we would suggest that he invest any funds not needed during the next three to five years in these assets that have historically higher returns. After all, he has many years for his assets to grow. With his determination to work diligently and plancarefully to meet his goals, Kabrick has a bright future in front of him.

To help you determine where you want your business to be in 1990 and devise a plan to get there, there are several key questions that must be answered. First, what business are you in? company and how each aspect of what you do has an impact on sales.

It isn't enough to say, "I sell customer service," or "we manufacture widgets." By defining the distinct business areas of your firm and their associated sales contribution, you will be in a position of knowing what you do and why customers do business with you on a regular basis.

For example, a residential builder might define the areas of his or her business as follows; "We sell prime residential locations offering minitial customers. We sell the highest quality construction materials and services available. We sell customer satisfaction and service after the sale guaranteeing all work for a period of three years."

Next, it is important to identify the positions of each distinct business within your operation in terms of their life cycles. In general, any product or service you offer progresses through four lifestyle stages: introduction, growth, maturation and sales decline. By identifying the stages, you will avoid the potential problem of focusing on sales mum one-acre wooded lots to poten- for products and services that may have reached market maturation or sales decline. Remember also that the fastest growing segment is not always the one that is currently producing the most sales.

Next week, this column will conclude this discussion of the steps to get your business where you want it to be in 1990.

What kind of a kid do you suppose Thomas Edison was?

Bet he looked at problems and saw solutions. Like Maurice Scales who invented Baby No-Mash to prevent doors from closing on little fingers.

Bet he saw how things were done, and imagined better ways to do them. Like Lillian Lukas who invented the Puddle Detecting Cane for the blind. program.

Bet he watched how things work and thought of ways to avoid wasting time or effort. Like Caitilin McCracken who invented the Orphan Kitten Feeder for Three.

Maurice, Lillian and Caitilin were three of the thousands of winners in the Invent Americal education

And you know that small genius can grow up to become big genius—with the capacity to make America number one again.

To participate, just write Invent America!, 510 King Street, Suite 420, Alexandria, VA 22314, or call 703/684-1836.

If you're wondering if it's all worthwhile, just imagine what Edison would have said.

Invent America! For now—as never before—our country needs an inventive spark.

Winter officially arrives on Thursday, Dec. 21, at 4:22 p.m. On this day the sun will be rising at its farthest point south of east, have its lowest altitude in the sky for the entire year, and set at its farthest point south of west.

The sun appears in different parts of the sky at different times of the year. Remember where the sun was its farthest north of east and setting north of west. The days were long and warm and we had summer. The difference in the sun's position is not due to any movement on the part of the sun. Instead it's due to the tilt of Earth's axis of rotation.

We orbit around the sun, but our axis is tilted 23 and one-half degrees. It just happens to be pointing toward a star named Polaris, the North Star. In summer, when the North Pole of the earth is pointed toward Polaris, it is tilted 23 and one-half degrees toward the sun as well. Six months later the earth is on the opposite side of the sun. The North Pole is still aimed toward Polaris, but now it tilts 23 and one-half degrees away from the sun. Therefore the sun appears in a different part of the sky.

THE MOMENT when the earth reaches the point in its orbit, where the North Pole is at the greatest tilt away from the sun, is the exact moment of winter. At least it is for the Northern Hemisphere. When the North Pole is tilted away from the sun, the South Pole is tilted toward it. We may be facing the start of winter, but for people south of the equator it's the start of summer.

That would be the best gift of all."

SHARING IS CARING

If it were not for the tilt of Earth there would be no change of seasons. If the earth's axis was straight up and down, everyone would have March-type weather year-round. That may not be bad if you live in the tropics, but it's awful in Michi-means 'rival of Mars' because that star has about the same color and brightness as Mars. (Mars is officially three-fifths of a magnitude fainter than Antares right now.) There are major differences between the two

MARS IS A planet, a member of our solar system. It orbits about 141.5 million miles from the sun and reflects sunlight. Antares is a supergiant star about 700 times the size of the sun. It produces its own light and is nowhere near our solar system. Antarés is around 520 light years away; the light we see tonight left Antares 520 years ago in 1469. That translates to about 3.12 quadrillion

Jupiter is at opposition on the 27th. It is opposite the sun, as seen from the earth. Jupiter will rise as the sun sets, be visible all night, and set as the sun rises. Jupiter is the 4th brightest object in the sky. Only the sun, the moon and Venus are brighter.

Also on the 27th, Venus is stationary. It has been moving slowly eastward from the constellation of Capricornus into Sagittarius, but has reached the point in its orbit where it will begin its swing between the earth and the sun. It will begin to move westward (retrograde) toward the sun. As Venus gets closer to the sun, it will set earlier each evening. New Moon is at 10:20 p.m. on Dec. 27. The moon is between the earth and the sun and is not visible. Two evenings after new moon, Mercury, Venus and the waxing crescent moon are grouped together in the southwest. The moon and Venus are easy to see; Mercury remains five degrees above the horizon, but not for long. On Dec. 30, the moon has moved above and to the south (left) of Venus. Mercury reaches its stationary point and will begin retrograde motion back toward the sun. Within a few days Mercury will be too close to the sun to be seen.

Mars will be five degrees above Antares on the morning of the 31st. This is a good time for you to check out the similar color and brightness of the two objects.

Tradition meets Technology

30 Years of Caring

Tradition. Compassion. Service. Qualities you expect when you come to a hospital. Qualities that have remained constant at St. Mary Hospital for 30 years.

Now Tradition meets Technology. High-tech services and equipment bring you the latest in healthcare services. Like computerized heart monitors for critically ill patients. A sophisticated trauma area for emergency situations. And the latest diagnostic equipment. All with the personal touch of highlytrained and caring physicians, nurses, support staff and volunteers.

St. Mary Hospital's commitment has been and always will be to blend together the stability of Tradition with the advancements of Technology. Assuring you of continuous quality improvement and convenience for your healthcare needs.

Please Help A Veighbor's Child In Need!

In Third World countries, hundreds of thousands of children are in desperate need of food. clothing, medical care – the basics of life. These girls and boys are even denied the opportunity to attend school

They are our neighbors in a world that grows smaller every day.

Through CCF, you can sponsor a neighbor's child. The cost is $18 a month—just 604 a day — to help a poor child in Asia, Africa or Latin America — a child who has virtually, nothing.

Please pick up your phone now and dial the toll-free number below. Be a good neighbor by helping an innocent child.

Fulks returning to roots at RU

By Ray Setlock staff writer

It took Redford Union High School less than two weeks to select a replacement for former girls basketball coach Terri Ann Anthony, who stepped down earlier this month after going 63-126 in nine seasons.

RU principal Dr. Robert Schramke announced Tuesday that Junior varsity coach Gary Fulks will take over the Panthers' program.

Fulks, an RU alumnus, will inherit a team which finished 9-12 overall and 2-6 (fourth place) in the Northwest Suburban League.

"I am real excited about taking over the program," Fulks said. "Since I went to Redford Union, I maintain a lot of pride for the school. It is a quality institution."

Fulks was a standout at RU in the early 1970's. His moves on the court earned him a scholarship to Henry Ford Community College following his graduation in 1973.

After two seasons at Henry Ford, Fulks ventured south, transferring to Columbus College in Georgia where He spent two seasons there as a starting guard.

girls basketball

FULKS THEN headed back to Michigan and earned a bachelor's degree in special education from Eastern Michigan University in

From 1978-80, Fulks coached the RU boys and girls JV squads, but after earning his degree, he moved to Flint where he led the boys and girls JV programs at Hamady High School.

At Hamady, Fulks was an assistant coach for the 1983 state Class C championship team.

The following season Fulks left Hamady to accept a job coaching the Lake Fenton High School boys basketball team. But after only one season, Eulks was back at Hamady. This time, Fulks returned as boys basketball coach.

From 1985-87, Fulks led the Hawks, but in 1988, he returned to RU as a teacher, not as coach.

"There weren't any coaching vacancies at the time," Fulks said. "But I wanted to teach there. So I figured I would just have to wait for a coaching job to open."

~FULKS COACHED the Panthers JV squad last season and finally got his wish Tuesday.

"Words cannot describe my excitement," said Fulks of his new appointment. "It is going to be a thrill Fulks says RU fans can expect to see a number of changes in the Panthers program.

"I want to make this a complete program," Fulks said. "I want 'o emphasize the program as a whole. Not just year to year. When you take things year to year, you run into rebuilding seasons. I don't want that. I don't believe in that."

Fulks says he'll pay more attention to the Redford Township youth' programs.

Those fifth and sixth graders will eventually be in our program,"

Zebras get early jump

Wayne Memorial proved to be the best amongst a 10-team field Saturday in the Henry Ford Community College Volleyball Invitational.

The Zebras, under third-year coach Ann Kolnitys, captured the title by defeating Dearborn Edsel Ford, 15-6, 16-14.

Edsel advanced to the championship with a 16-14, 15-10 win over Westland John Glenn, while Wayne ousted Grosse Pointe South in three games, 6-15, 15-8, 15-4.

Wayne, the defending Wolverine A League and district champs, won the tournament despite losing six starters to graduation.

"I'm pretty proud," Kolnitys said. "For a young team, they did a great Job. We started slow, but the tougher the tourney got, the stronger our players got."

Evette Sluder, a 5-foot-10 senior and only one of two holdovers from a year ago, led Wayne on the day with 53 kills and 13 service aces. "Sluder is our captain and she took charge like a captain," said the Wayne coach. "She showed her true colors."

BRANDY CAINCROSS, a 6-foot junior, contributed 34 kills, while sophomore Laura Fisher made only one error in 40 service attempts.

Meanwhile, sophomores Kattie Corwin and Mary Kay Mazurek were the defensive stand-

Corwin recorded 34 digs and made only four errors in 22 serve-reception chances. Mazurek added 32 digs and had only two mistakes in 40

Also making contributions on the day were juniors Denise Walsh and Gerri Ruffing, along with

In pool, play, Wayne split with Edsel (15-2, 9-(15-4, 15-3) and Troy Athens (15-4, 15-10).

Glenn, under first-year coach Linda Jimenez, won three of four matches in pool play to earn a berth in the final four..

THE ROCKETS opened with a 15-3, 15-4 triumph over Redford Union, as sophomore Nikki Wojcik had five kills and junior Jennifer Massey

Glenn then fell to Grosse Pointe South, 15-0, 15-10, despite five service aces from sophomore Karen Olack.

In a 17-15, 15-10 victory over Plymouth Salem, Wojcik and junior Kara Beeny combined for 10 kills, while senior Michelle Myers added six ser-

Glenn moved into the elimination round with a 16-14, 15-11 triumph over Allen Park behind Beeny's four kills and Olack's five service aces.

Against Edsel, Beeny recorded five blocks for points. Wojolk added five kills and Olack five serving aces.

WLAA sets stage

By Brad Emons staff writer

THAT WILL LIKELY be the key word this season for boys swimming in the Western Lakes Activitles Association? Parity.

Under a slightly different format, the WLAA held its annual all-relay meet Saturday at Plymouth Salem. It's normally a preview of things to come, but on this day only 25 points separated the top five Northville came out on top with a team-high 236 points, followed by Livonia Stevenson (224), host Salem (223), Plymouth Canton (219) and North Farmington (211). See statistical summary.

"Five teams had a legitimate shot at winning this meet and it looks like it will be an interesting year," said Salem's Chuck Olson, coach of the defending . WLAA (league meet) champions. "I can't ... ever remember the boys or the girls relays ever being this close. Nobody had an Idea until the final event."

North Farmington appeared to be the frontrunner with two events to go, but the Raiders, who loaded up in earlier events, suddenly found themselves in fifth place when the meet was concluded.

"THIS MEET is more or less a tuneup and usually not a true indicator in this league, but this year it's going to be close," said North coach Sue Gendron. "It's going to be a very interesting season. The dual meets are going to be very exciling."

Northville won the meet's final two events - the 200-yard medley (1:50.4) and the 200 freestyle (1:31.81) - to gain

"Northville is a powerful swim team, but I'm happy with our finish," said Stevenson coach Doug Buckler. "We're a very young team with 12 freshman, 17 sophomores and only four seniors. If we mature, we'll be a force to be reckoned

The Spartans' foursome of freshman Alex Goecke, sophomores Asron Rieder and Scott DeWolf, along with Mike Goecke, took the meet's opening event, the 400 medley in $:40.11.

North captured the next three events. Jerry Jehle, Jamie Greenslein, Chris-Knoche and Chuck Chuba took the 400 freestyle (3:36.16), while Danny Knipper, Steve Bocknek, Adam Kammer and Chris Knoche won the 200 breaststroke (2:05.9). The Raiders completed the hat trick by taking the 200 backstroke, as Mike Drelles, Jim Nicholas, David Gerts and Dave Adams were clocked in 1:52.97.

Northville came back to reel off a hat trick of its own, winning the 200 butterfly, diving and 400 individual medley re-Salem broke through in the crescendo

BUT NORTH'S RUN ended when relay, as Chris Calola, Joe Pawluszka, Craig Wilsher and the meet's top individual, Ron Orris, combined for a first place time of 4:26.13. "Orris was just awesome," said Gendron. "He was way above his class. He's an exceptionally talented swimmer." Orris also helped Salem to a second place finish behind Stevenson in the 400 medley, teaming up with burt Witthoff, Mark Ericson and Pawluszka.

Canton, the defending WLAA relays champion, also made a strong showing despite not taking a first. "Canton swam a beautiful meet and they're going to be a factor," said Buckler. "It's going to be a great league meet (Feb. 28-March 2)."

The Stevenson coach said there are three key ingredients to winning the WLAA relays. "First, it's the attitude you take," he said. "And secondly, it's where you put ... your strong and weak relays. You need a little hit of luck. "And third, you've got to have some

DEPTH, HOWEVER, wasn't on the Spartans' side this day. Northville prevalled by 12 points over Stevenson, 13

"We were in pretty good position. We didn't swim great. Things worked out great (on Saturday), but we might have to have more depth." Olson also reminded people that for the past two boys seasons, the WLAA Relays champ has been different than the WLAA season-ending champion. Stay tuned.

Stevenson outguns city rival Franklin

By Brad Emons staff writer

If they handed out tickets for speeding, the Livonia Stevenson boys basketball squad may never be cited. The Spartans proceeded through all caution and stop signs Tuesday, running away from host Livonia Franklin in the second half for 76-61 victory.

· The word yield is not in coach Jim McIntyre's vocabulary. Stevenson played at its usual frenzled pace, and the Spartans were not bashful about launching three-pointers on this night, connecting on seven, including four by senior guard Ron Baran, who led all scorers with 20 points.

"The green light is on as long as they're willing to work hard on defense," said the director of Mac's attack. "Our only rule is you have to pass to somebody closer if they have the better shot."

But even McIntyre bends the rules once in awhile. At one stage, during a sluggish first quarter in which the Spartans scored only nine points to the Patriots' four, the Stevenson coach was overheard telling guard Rick Laven, who was standing beyond the three-point line, "shoot the ball, don't pass it."

THINGS QUICKLY heated up in the second quarter.

A basket by Kevin Terry with 5:54 left in the left in the period gave the Spartans a 19-8 lead, but Franklin fought back.

Senior forward Matt Lawson came off the bench to score nine of his team-high 14 points, including seven of eight from the free throw line, to spark a Franklin run.

The Patriots tied it at 28-all on a hoop by Steve McCool with 1:19 to go, but Stevenson scored four straight points — baskets by Glenn Szeman and Matt Grodzicki (on a steal) in the final 32 seconds - to gain 32-28 halftime lead.

The third-period was all Steven-

The Spartans outscored Franklin 29-16 as Baran scored 11 consecu-'tive points, including three straight three-pointers.

He added another three-pointer, as did Laven, to give the Spartans a 61-44 advantage. The Patriots never got any closer than 11 the rest of the McINTYRE ELECTED not to start 6-foot-9 senior center Glenn Szeman, who had been plagued by foul trouble and had not been a factor in the Spartans' first three games.

But Szeman, who entered the game midway through the second quarter, made his presence known.

He finished with eight points, but more importantly was able to trigger the Spartans' fast-break by grabbing nine rebounds to go, along with five blocked shots.

"Without a doubt he can be a force," McIntyre said. "If he becomes smartly aggressive, he'll play. He was more in tune tonight than he has been. He also made a couple of nice passes that led to bas-

Steve Leonard, a 6-5 forward, added 14 points and Laven contributed 11 for the Spartans, now 3-1 overall.

"We had a great effort from the Leonard kid," McIntyre said. "He was very active on the boards and he's done an excellent job. He's playing varsity basketball without a whole lot of varsity experience."

LAWSON WAS one of four Patriots in double figures.

John Santi and McCool chipped in with 13 and 11, respectively, while Mark Little had 10.

Craig Overaltis, the Patriots' top scorer in two of the first three games, finished with only six. He did not start after missing Monday's practice with the flu.,

Overailis was the target of a gimmick box-and-one defense. He found himself shadowed all night long by Stevenson guard Phil Woods.

"We changed our defenses at halftime from a box-and-one to a triangle-and-one," said McIntyre, whose team was saddled by foul problems in the first half. "We said to our kids, 'don't let the diagonal pass into the box.' They were letting the ball into the post too easily."

While the Spartans adjusted nicely in the second half, the Patriots were unable to correct some of their mis-

"We could have boxed out on the boards better and in the second half we could have gotten back on defense better than we did," said Hanna, whose team is 2-2 overall at the holiday break. ### Unpredictable Ocelots on roller coaster ride

By C.J. Risak staff writer

The roller coaster ride continues for the Schoolcraft College men's basketball team. That makes giftbuying for coach Dave Bogataj rather easy.

How about something to settle his stomach? Or to ease his nerves? Or - best of all - how about some consistency?

The Ocelots have certainly lacked the latter. After a dominating performance against outclassed St. Clair County CC Wednesday (Dec. 13) — SC romped to a 121-89 homecourt triumph they looked flat and awful in bowing 92-85 to Henry Ford CC Saturday at SC.

How awful? If rebounding is a barometer, then consider this: The Ocelots grabbed 12 against HFCC.

That's not one player's total. That's the team total, according to Bogataj.

"I'm still ticked," said the SC coach Monday. "My blood pressure is probably 300 over 200 still. "We went out there and were horrendous. And it's not like they were awesome on the boards, ei-lot more than SC got. What made things more maddening to Bogataj was that the Ocelots led 51-44 at halftime. They blew first three minutes of the second half and ended up scoring just 34 points in the last 20 minutes.

"That's absolutely ridiculous," he said in evaluating his team's second half. "We looked like pilons on a driver's ed course - just standing around."

Offensively, there were some bright spots. Al Hudson hit 11-of-12 floor shots in scoring 26 points. And he grabbed five of SC's dozen rebounds. Randy Watters added 14 points, but he fouled out with six minutes left. Ed Hudson netted 12, but after hitting his first threepoint shot, he missed seven straight. Tony Rumple finished with 10 points.

Brian Miller led HFCC (3-5 overall, 1-2 in the Eastern Conference) with 26 points, 14 coming in the second half. Jeff Darwish had 14, Michael Link and Bill Anderson added 12 each and Chris Nazelli (from Livonia Stevenson) chipped

basketball

 St. Clair is 0-11 for the season, 0-3 in the conference - SC still looked impressive, zooming to a 51-36 halftime lead and then pouring in 70 second-half points.

The Ocelots outscored St. Clair , 39-6 in the first 9:30 of the second half. "I couldn't believe it," said , Bogataj. "In the second half, everything went in.

"I think we could have bounced it off the floor and it would have gone in."

Watters' 20 points was best for SC. Ed Hudson and Rumple contributed 15 each, Al Hudson had 14 and John Moran scored 13. Ken Fuster added seven points and seven assists. James Traylor topped St. Clair with 19 points.

The two games were an accurate reflection of SC's entire 6-8 (1-2 in the conference) season. "I told them that the only thing we can count on is your inconsistency. Every time we play it's something different," said Bogataj.

With the difficult part of the conference schedule still ahead, he knows his team's problems will have to be rectified — soon.

SC WOMEN'S BASKET-BALL: The Lady Ocelots remained unbeaten in Eastern Contheir seven-point advantage in the ference play with an 84-69 victory over St. Clair County CC last Wednesday (Dec. 13).

"It was a combination of our la shooting and tough defense," said SC coach Jack Grenan, as his team improved to 6-2 overall and to 2-0 in the conference.

The first half set the tone for the game. The Lady Ocelots connected on 22-of-30 floor shots (71 percent), with Lisa DePlanche: making seven-of-eight and scoring 16 points-as-SC owned a 49-37 halftlme advantage. She scored 20 for the game.

Several others were nearly as accurate. Barb Krug hit four-ofseven from the field, netting eight \ \ \ \ first-half points and grabbing 10 rebounds; Tricia Lucas connected on four-of-five from the floor, scoring eight points; and Ann Hardy had six points on three-of-five shooting.

Krug finished with 20 points and 18 boards. Hardy had 11 points and Lucas 10 and 14 rebounds. For the game, SC made 39-of-60 shots from the field (65 percent).

The loss dropped St. Clair to 5-3 overall, 2-1 in the conference.

Chief justices Canton rules All-Observer cage squad

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

LYMOUTH CANTON got within one game of the Class A final and a possible state championship in girls basketball.

'Eventual runner-up West Bloomfield sent the Chiefs to the sideline. but Canton's strong tournament run supported its ranking as the No. 1 team in Observerland.

The Chiefs obviously had talent, and two of those players, seniors.Susan Ferko and Stacey Thompson, Team. In addition, Canton's Bob Blohm was selected as the coach of were second-team picks a year ago. Future all-area teams are apt to feature familiar names, too. In additon to Warner and Claar, Livonia Ladywood junior Rebecca Willey rounds out this year's team.

Blohm, who had nearly 130 victories while coaching the Plymouth Salem girls from 1978 to 1983, guided the No. 9-rated Chiefs to a 22-4 season in his return to a head coaching role.

Canton also won its second straight Western Lakes Activities were named to the 1989 All-Area Association title and first regional championship, an upset of No. 3 Benton Harbor in the quarterfinals.

ALL-AREA FIRST TEAM

Susan Ferko, senior, Canton: The 5-foot-11 center was the driving force behind Canton's successful season. The Chiefs were 56-12 with Ferko in the starting lineup the last three years.

With an effective move the basket, which included a rare hook shot in girls basketball, Ferko averaged 21 points to go with 11 rebounds and three blocks.

Ferko, a first-team all-stater who aspires to become a teacher, will visit Ball State and Western Michigan and has made a visit to Ferris State. Miaml of Ohio and Eastern Michigan, as well as other Division II schools in the state, are interested in Ferko.

She became a really skilled player at the low post," Blohm said, "but she also became an outside threat as her career moved on. She was the kind of player who could help you in a lot of ways.

"She's the leading offensive rebounder in Canton history, and I can't think of anyone who even comes close to her.

'She was able to move outside and hit the 17- to 18-foot shot, and that really opened up a lot of things for her."

Rebecca Willey, junior, Ladywood: The 6-foot Willey averaged slightly less than 16 points a game for the Blazers, who were 12-8 and might have gone a ways in the state tournament had they not lost 45-42 to semifinalist Canton in the district opener. She also averaged nine rebounds and just over one blocked

"With her being an all-state high jumper, her tremendous leaping ability was a great plus for the team and made her that much better of an inside player," coach

"She really came around as a junior, and I think she can be one of the top five players in the state next year. But she needs to work on making a move with her back to the basket and finishing off that

"She finished the season strong, and that can be attributed to the fact she did a lot of working on her own."

Dawn Warner, Junior, Franklin: Warner, only a sophomore, is a two-year starter for the Patriots, who finished 19-4 and won a district championship.

She averaged 18 points and, being a well-rounded player, also had 51/2 rebounds, 31/2 assists and 41/2 steals and one block per game. She shot 36.5 percent from the floor, including 30 percent (25-of-83) from three-point range, and made 77 percent of her free throws.

"She's a rare talent," coach Dan Freeman said. "We're real fortunate to have her at Franklin. She helps you in so many different areas. A lot of people look at just her scoring, but she's pretty close to a complete player.

'Again, we're talking about just a sophomore. She's a team player. She didn't go out thinking 'How many points can I get tonight?' but 'What can I do to help the team win?"

Stacey Thompson, senior, Canton: Thompson was a solid complement to Ferko, contributing 1312 points and eight rebounds per game. The 5-7 forward, a two-year starter, also was second. in assists behind point-guard Jenny Rus-

"She had the versatility to play inside or outside," Blohm said, "but basically she was an outside player.

"When she was on the perimeter, she had the ability, if opponents didn't play her tight or were sagging off to help on Susan, to hit the outside shot, make the pass or drive to the basket. She was a triple threat out there.

"She enabled us to concentrate on Susan in the low post because (other teams) had to guard her on the perimeter. At tournament time, she became a real big factor in our success."

Jenny Clinton, senior, Mercy: Clinton, a 5-5 point guard, was a three-year starter. She averaged seven points but made her biggest contribution with her passing and defense.

Clinton, who has been offered a basketball scholarship to Marquette University, set school assist records for game (11), season (134) and career (313), breaking Annelle Ruggiero's mark with the latter total. She averaged nearly six assists and four steals this year.

"She did a good job shutting down players like Hazel Olden, Eve Claar and Holly Miller," coach Larry Baker said. "Anybody who played us had to be concerned about her defense.

"She stands out as a defensive player and gets through screens as well as any player I've coached. She doesn't play less than 100 percent when she's on the

"I think she'll do well in college, because she's a role player and won't go to college expecting to score a tot of

Maya Lewis, senior, Wayne: Lewis averaged 17 points for the Zebras, who were 14-7 and tied for second place in the Wolverine A League with Dearborn Ford-

Despite being a point guard, the 5-7 Lewis also averaged 10 rebounds. The All-Wolverine A player made 52 percent of her field goals and 75 percent of her

"She has great range and can shoot well from the three-point line," coach Jack Furlong said. "We asked a lot of her, and she came through in every area.

"She really played hard on the defensive end and was able to get a lot of rebounds that way. She's got a lot of skill asa passer and dribbler, and she's got great form on her shot.

"I think she has a great chance to play in college and do well."

Eve Claar, Junior, N. Farmington: Claar has started for two years and led the Raiders (15-6) in scoring with 201/2 points per game. The 5-6 junior also averaged five-plus rebounds, 31/2 assists and 21/2 steats. She shot 35 percent from the floor, averaging three triples per game, and 72 percent from the free throw line.

"She had to score for us," coach Greg Capling said, "and she was awful hard to stop one-on-one. She faced a lot of diamond-and-ones, triangle-and-twos and box-and-ones — and still got her points.

"She's a dynamic scorer. She's got one of the prettiest jump shots i've ever seen on any basketball player. She can pull up and shoot the jump shot or, if a team comes out high on her, take it to the bas-

Summit's first major remodeling since the restaurant opened in 1977. It updated the decor in the dining room, cocktail lounge and observation deck, put in new carpeting and brushed stainless steel railings.

Party Guide

Party hosts can create a Russian fantasy complete with non-alcoholic drinks and ethnic food by picking up a copy of AAA Michigan's, 1989 "Great Pretenders Party Guide." The guide, available free to the public at AAA Michigan offices statewide, provides alcohol-free alternatives to party hosts who want to ensure guests drive home safely. The 20 recipes in the guide were selected as finalists from more than 100 entries in the Ninth Annual "Great Pretenders" nonalcoholic drink contest. Drinks were judged on taste, appearance, originality and adherence to this year's theme, "The Nutcracker Ballet" by Peter Tchaikovsky. Local winners included Leslie Sellers of Southfield's Toy Soldier, Jackie Castine of Troy's Judge Drosselmeyer's delight, and Sue Yerger of Westland's "Pink Clara."

New movie houses part of the family

By Dan Greenberg special writer

"Our policy is that when we buy land and become part of a community, we don't sell it. It becomes part of the family." - Ira Korff

Family is the keynote of Ira Korff's approach to management. CEO of National Amusements in Dedham, Mass., he was in town recently to oversee the Dec. 8 opening of two major additions to his corporate family, the eight-screen Showcase Cinemas Westland and the 14screen Showcase Cinemas Auburn

There are not a lot of large, family-owned, private companies left, but National Amusements, proprietors of 68 Showcase Cinemas screens in metropolitan Detroit, is one of

With more than 600 screens in 14 states in the eastern half of the United States and in Great Britain, Nationa' ranks in the top 10 of U.S. theater operators. Its average gross per screen (in dollars) has been close to the top of the charts in recent years.

In addition, National Amusements is the parent company of Viacom International, which cans nine radio and five television stations, 18 cable TV systems, MTV Networks and Showtime/The Movie Channel. More recently the company has been involved in shopping center development.

IT'S RATHER clear from the appearance and comfort of Showcase Cinemas that National Amusements puts service to the family in the forefront of its planning, execution and style." BESIDES WESTLAND and Auburn Hills, there are metropolitan Detroit Showcase Cinemas in Pontiac, Sterling Heights, Harper Woods and Dearborn, as well as Grand Rapids, Ann Arbor, and Flint where "Roger & Me" premiered Tuesday.

National Amusements' extensive holdings may not sound like a typical family business but it is privately held, with Korff representing the third generation of family manage-

A Dickens of a holiday show

Performances of the Meadow Brook Theatre production of "A Christmas Carol" continue through Sunday, Dec. 31, on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills. For ticket information, call the box office at 377-

Back for its eighth crowd-pleasing season, "A Christmas Carol" at Meadow Brook Theatre reminds grouches and modern-day Scrooges to mend their skinflint ways.

Meadow Brook's version of Dickens' classic story is a warm-hearted, entertaining production that knows how to please a crowd and send folks home aglow with Christmas spirit.

Director Charles Nolte's "Christmas Carol" may be less psychological and thoughtful than other retellings of the tale, such as the madefor-television version a few years back starring George C. Scott, but Nolte, who wrote this dramatic stage adaptation, wrings every bit of humor and theatrical razzle dazzle out of Ebenezer Scrooge's midnight rendezvous with ghosts and spirits. Nolte delivers a feast of sights and sounds with the showmanship to please a generation atuned to Lucasstyle special effects.

Before the show even begins. carolers dressed in 1830s styles set the mood in the lobby, with songs about going wassailing and God resting merry gentlemen. On stage, weather takes over. Blustery winds whine around the street corners in Dickens London, fog rolls ominously about Ebenezer's tombstone, and snow falls on stage in the finale when the curtain rises on a two-story Christmas tree that magically appears in seconds.

ing set and the natural way crowd scenes camouflage set changes add to the sleight-of-hand magic of the entire production.

The masterful effects that set the dramatic mood are just the beginning. The real audience-gaspers arrive when the ghosts come and go. For starters, Jacob Marley's ghost (Glen Allen Pruett) emerges in a hellfire glow and billowing smoke from a trap door in the stage. History has it Will Shakespeare's Globe Theatre had such a trap door, but in his day words alone had to create the hellfire and brimstone. Not anymore. Meadow Brook's production weds the old Dickens' tale to modern, flamboyant effects.

Booth Colman returns for his eighth season to play the cantankerous Ebenezer as a man who quickly sees the error of his ways and becomes a cute convert to the joy of Christmas. Paul Hopper also returns to head the Cratchit household, a family whose touching goodness

PETER HICKS' flexible, revolv- stays just this side of cloying sentiment. Kathryn Nash plays a fine Mrs. Cratchit and Tiny Tim (Bryan Holmes) happily has a voice like a regular kid's rather than the piping soprano of a too, too angelic choir

> Most cast members play double and sometimes triple supporting roles. It adds to the magic of the play to see the same players show their acting versatility in multiple

Joseph Reed as the Spirit of Christmas Present opens the second act, laughing with such extroverted delight that his jolly good humor infects the whole audience. Geoffrey Beauchamp brings a good-hearted kindness to the role of Scrooge's nephew Fred. As Fred's wife, Anita Barone projects a coy charm quite different from the raucous earthiness she brings to the role of the Laundress, but as the Spirit of Christmas Past her stilted ballet gestures and affected speech seem woodenly stylized.

IN FACT, the characters Dickens created often bordered on caricatures. His inclination toward carlcature paired with Meadow Brook's fondness for the melodramatic lead to more than a few one-dimensional characters. But what memorable caricatures they are.

Phillip Locher shines as the exuberant, pot-bellied Mr. Fezziwig. Scrooge's sweet and frail sister Fan embodies pure feminine goodness, and Liz Zweifler plays her as the stereotype Dickens created. Meadow Brook regulars Thomas Mahard and: Thomas M. Suda turn in fine multiple preformances. And who could forget Wayne David Parker as the Turkey Boy who leaps in the air to clap his heels together in joy at being the agent (and beneficiary) of Mr. Scrooge's new-found generosity?

Ross Marino extensive collection

Antique cameras on exhibit

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

Mary Marino's visit to the exhibit, "From Science to Snapshot: Photography 1839-1989" at Detroit Historical Museum through next September, was bittersweet. She watched as a group of school children were introduced to photography through a collection of cameras which she and her husband, Eugene, gave to the museum. The 150 cameras were collected by their son, Ross, who drowned while vacationing in Mexico almost a year ago.

"They were so interested in the cameras," she said, "it just made you feel beautiful." She recalled polgnantly how excited her son was when he was introduced to photography by Clint Bond, his eighth grade teacher at St. Hugo of the Hills. "He just loved it," she said. When he went to Brother Rice High School, he immediately put his new skills to work as a yearbrook photographer. "He attended Center for Creative Studies and then Oakland University and had his own business going at the same time. He was a workaholic. He wanted to have his own business and be independent," she said.

HE POINTED his lens and ambitions toward the world of rock music. "He saw that was where you made the money," she said.

When he hit, he hit big. The break came when his photo of Prince was picked for a People Magazine cover in 1984. His mother said, "That really opened the door." He traveled with Jon Bon Jovi and his photographs of rock greats such as Bob Seger, Prince, Ted Nugent, Alice Cooper and David Lee Roth, were published in magazines all over the world.

And while he was on the road, he was collecting cameras and taking pictures of landscapes and flowers, which he loved. His mother said the landscape photographs which he took on a trip to Arizona are especially beautiful.

After he died, his parents were suprised to find such an extensive camera collection in his apartment in Troy, "We didn't know he had this many cameras... we tried to find a place to donate them. Eastman Kodak wanted to buy them, but we wanted the collection in this area... The only way we could figure out how we could share them was to give the collection to the Museum."

She said the collection includes Beau Brownles dating from the late 1920s, produced in five colors such as rose, blue and green. These fit well with the theme of the exhibition which traces the transformation of photography from an interest pursued by a few scientists and wealthy people to a hobby for the masses.

David Driscoll, Industrial History curator at the Detroit Historical Department, said, "The Beau Brownles are in a section of the exhibit with deals with industrial design . . . these were part of a marketing technique."

Brownie came into being. Driscoll sald Brownies were cartoon characters in the 1900s and they were used for paper dolls, on bottles and as decals (samples of all of these are included in the exhibit) as well as for the front of the camera to make it more appealing. Driscoll described the marketing with the Brownie image as "their version of the Smurfs."

Driscoll said that in trying to deduce Ross Marino's collecting philosophy, he discovered two truths, "It looks like what he was after was complete runs of a model. If there was a series, he'd collect each one of a particular kind. And — being a photographer, he had a very good eye for condition."

As an example, the Beau Brownles were made in two sizes, so Marino had collected one of each color and size.

"The Marino gift has been a very significant addition to our collection. It improves the quality and scope of the department's photographic holdings dramatically," Driscoll said.

matically," Driscoll said.

Morgan Wesson, of the International Museum of Photography at George Eastman House, said after evaluating the collection, that Ross Marino would probably have been one of the most important collectors in the country in 8-10 years if he had been able to

HE flip side of the advertising slogan — You Gotta Have Art — could be Artists Gotta Eat.

So if you're in the market for something other than painted portraits of Elvis on black velvet, if you're looking for good art, or if you just like to look — an artist gallery/artist advocacy and investment consulting firm that takes very seriously the survival of artists and their work — recently opened its doors in Livonia.

Livonia? you say. That's right — Livonia.

And when you find the alternative art space of the Yanover Creative Liaison Gallery that looks out over the I-96/Schoolcraft service drive in Livonia, don't let the inauspicious exterior trappings Tool you. It's what's on the inside that counts.

"PEOPLE ARE REALLY surprised when they find out what's happening here," said Jennifer Yanover, owner of the gallery. True, art gallerles don't open every day in Livonia. So why Livonia? "Our location here is pretty much 15 minutes of everything — that was very important to us," she said.

Two years ago, Yanover, along with co-owner and longtime friend Lisa Zevallos, both University of Michigan graduates, opened their first gallery in Ann Arbor — a very small studio. Their Livonia opening and the opening of a Los Angeles office signifies the success of the young businesswomen. They chose to get into the business end of the art world because they both have artists in their families. They know intimately the inherent struggles and problems of creating art and having to support oneself.

"We decided to make a career out of something we feel very passionately about. We're just applying some of the technical skills we learned in college to the more creative aspects of the art world," said Yanover. "So we're not just a gallery, we act as an artist's advocate. We strive to link the artist with galleries."

"For example," she continued "we recently sold some pieces to the University of Iowa Museum, our first museum acquisition. We get resumes together for the artist. We pay them and encourage them, sometimes push them. We get them back into the studio where they belong and basically help them to become full-time artists," she said.

Livonia artist Jeanne Poulet, whose work is exhibited in the gallery, stated: "They're truly representing the artist and helpingus get off bended knee. I've been able to concentrate on my art now for 11 months straight. Something I haven't been able to do for my entire life."

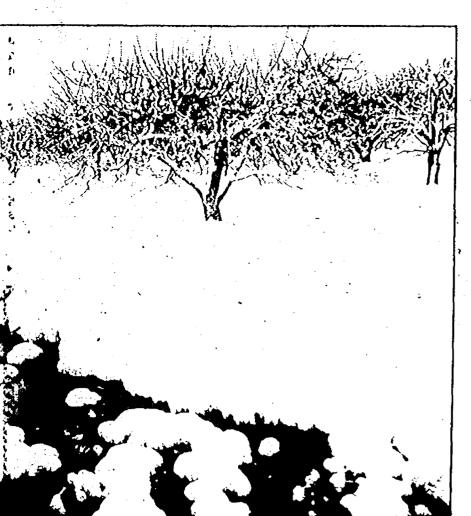

currently, the gallery's bread and butter comes from outfitting offices. Yanover explained that businesses come in, need 10 or 12 pieces of artwork, want someone to buy them, mount them, light them and insure them.

"We do a lot of educating when it comes to business," said Yanover.
"Businesses will spent a great deal of money to put framed posters in every office. But in five years, the frames are worth more than the posters and the posters have gone out of style. And more times than not, the frames will be thrown away. We say, you're in business — why not invest in something that will appreciate in value, that will truly make your office space unique?"

Creative Liaison is currently featuring a small works exhibition that run through Dec. 30. "We gave our artists a big challenge in designing this exhibit," said co-owner Zevallos.

Of all the times in the year to photograph family and friends, there's none better than the coming holidays. So try your hand at capturing the peace, joy, and good feelings of this season in your photographs.

Kids are such an important part of the holidays so let's begin with them. One important rule to remember is to move in close and get down on their level. Another is to frame (a telephoto may work best). This adds impact to your shot and getting low makes the kids appear more natural.

Don't forget candids, too. In all the excitement of unwrapping their presents, the children won't even know you're there and you'll be able to capture those spontaneous expressions of joy and glee.

Try to avoid the stiff, posed look in group shots of the other family members. Rather than have everyphotography Monte Nagler | one stand in a straight line, use the arm of a chair, the edge of a table or even the floor as informal places for your subjects.

Of course, don't forget to include yourself in some of the photos. A tripod or even a tabletop will steady your camera and the self-timer will give you plenty of time to run around and position yourself in the picture.

Be sure to check your backgrounds for distracting objects and watch out for reflections from windows, mirrors and glass in pictures on the wall. Remember, backgrounds can make or break a photograph. Often, a slight shift in camera angle is all it takes to eliminate this problem.

Add variety and Interest to your holiday pictures by photographing ornaments on the tree or details of an unusually wrapped gift. A star filter will make indoor and outdoor Christmas lights appear exciting and dramatic.

What's new in photographic equipment you may want to give to that special person or hint to receive for yourself? Scott Riggs of Dunn's Camera at Twelve Oaks Mall of ·Novi says all-weather and underwater cameras are hot this year. Minolta's Weathermatic Dual 35 will give you rewarding pictures up to 15 feet underwater. Riggs praises Olumpus's Infinity for it's ability to perform worry-free near water, dust and sand and Kodak's Explorer for its all-weather durability. He recommends Nikon's new Teletouch for its unique system that eliminates "red-eye" when using flash. To all my readers, students and friends - sincere wishes for a happy and photo-filled holiday season. 91989 Monte Nagler

Surrounded by the holiday feeling

As I have mentioned before, my wife calls me a living contradiction: I own a store, but never shop; I write a column and only read occasionally. So for me to go out Christmas shopping is, at best, an experience and at worst, a traumatic

Oh, the places I've been and the things I've seen and the times I've been and seen them. I have never fought in a war, but I've battled for a parking spot at Meijers at 1:30 a.m.! I have only once shot a gun, but next Christmas I'm mounting a gun turret to the top of my minivan just to clear a lane into Twelve Oaks parking lot. I've never traveled far but I've journeyed to Southland for some little toy that is "awesome" in my Finally I have never been honored as a hero, but at 2:15 a.m. last Christmas Eve Sandy and I realized we were short four batteries for one of Adam's toys. I, the green beret of after-hours shoppers, stood in line at Perry's drugs at 3 a.m. Yes, even at 3 a.m. there was a line of about 15 other heroes, most of whom were also buying batteries.

OF COURSE, THIS year has already offered me some wonderful moments. Sandy, my wife, loves to decorate. So for the holidays every nook and cranny turns into a perfect place for some little Christmas "something or other." Then there is the 153rd viewing of animated Christ-· mas specials that we all enjoy watching. We all sit and vocally or sub-vocally quote most of the lines from memory, but it's part of Christmas.

I love clocks that tick real loud. Sandy and I just bought a new clock for the family room. I hung it, wound it up, advanced the hands so we could all hear the neat chime, then everyone said "neat, wow, yah, good night Dad." It was one of those rare moments in a family of five . . . the TV was off. Everyone went to bed and I was about to make my rounds turning off Christmas lights and blowing out Christmas candles.

In the silence I could hear the woodstove sucking air, fueling its 600 degree fire. The heat causes the pine cones on the Christmas tree to pop. So laced in with the silence were the sounds of the cold wind outside, the "too hot" fire inside, the pine cones popping and the new sound; the tick, tick . . . of our new clock. (Our Christmas present to each other).

Then there's the sights of Christmas and Oh! The smells of Christmas. Sandy is just now making fudge in the kitchen and there is an army of little cookie Santas and snowmen waiting fortollhouse eyes. Cookie trees and wreaths waiting

Building Scene

Thursday, December 21, 1989 O&E

Michael Jarman, holding daughter Melissa, and wife Mary, holding daughter Lauren, have strong convictions about house design. They believe a house should be a home, not a work of art; that it should blend into the neighborhood; and that it should suit each other's sense of style. A self-employed architect, Michael works out of the house as does Mary, a market research consultant.

Architect's house blends country, contemporary By Louise Okrutsky proved tough to start a project that didn't include anyone else's suggesstaff writer amount of character. N THE OUTSIDE the clay-"This is me. It set my style," he said. "I like taking the old forms and colored farmhouse blends using them with modern technoloin with the traditional houses in the established Birmingham neighborhood.

Once visitors walk across the veranda and through the front door, they're presented with an open, contemporary living space filled with country accents.

Architect Michael Jarman and his wife, Mary, built their house to suit each other's sense of style and to blend into the neighborhood.

Michael Jarman's design for thehouse illustrates the sort of compromises made by the couple. She prefers country. He likes contempo-

THEY DO agree upon one point. A house should be a home, not a show-

"The house is not the main objective. In a lot of the houses my contemporaries do, the house is a piece of art," Michael said. "In houses I do, the house is a backdrop. People don't need to live in art." It's important to them that the house fits into the backdrop of its neighborhood.

We're trying to be non-obtru sive," Michael said.

"It's important to fit into the neighborhood. You have to work with your surroundings," Mary said.

IT TOOK two years for Jarman to design his own house. After years of designing to suit clients' needs, it

"Instead of five or six small rooms, people want more open spaces, more light. Windows are more energy efficient. New technology allows you to do open spaces in a house," he said.

"You're still using a traditional framework. There's a kitchen, living room, dining room," he said.

But the traditional framework was bent to fit the needs of the family and the flaws and assets of the property.

The house is angled on the lot to take full advantage of the tree line and avoid the sight, if not the sound, of the nearby railroad tracks.

INSIDE, ALL THE utility areas such as the laundry room and closets are next to the tracks and act as a buffer against train noise.

Eventually, when the unattached garage is built, it too will be placed between the house and the tracks. When the train passes, visitors notice it but the Jarmans take it in "We don't notice it anymore. The neighborhood gets used to it," Michael said. Most of the time the windows reveal only a tree-lined lot that hides neighboring houses. Windows are accented with balloon shades or by fabric draped around the frames.

the two-story house manages to exude a sense of space and a certalp

By some standards, 2,300 square feet doesn't make a spectacular home, but the Jarmans say, that In their house, every bit of space has a purpose. Throughout the house are 10-foot ceilings. In addition to giving the home an open, airy look, the high ceilings on the second story also accommodate the Jarmans' antique bed with its 8%-foot tall, carved wooden headboard.

FOR MARY, the heart of the house is the country kitchen with a breakfast area.

As in the rest of the downstates rooms, the walls are painted a light shade of salmon.

White custom kitchen cabinels echo the curved lines of two corner cabinets in the dining room and the built-in entertainment center in the living room. The cabinets are the result of a collaboration between Michael Jarman and the house's builder, Watson Custom Construction. _FLOWERED TILES with a white background soften the kitchen walls and give Mary versatility in change ing the room's color scheme. The tiles were handpainted Chris Hillburn at Beaver Tile to

Radio talk show host tries cable

By Doug Funke staff writer

> Mike Vittl and Gloria Gavle are trying to plow new ground as host and producer/director of a cable TV show about home construction and Improvements.

> The show, HouseTalk, debuted on Dearborn Cablevision in late November. Vitti and Gavle believe that their program is the only one of its kind locally produced for Detroitarea cable TV systems.

> HouseTalk has been picked up by Omnicom, which services Plymouth, Canton and Northville; Cablevision Wayne; and Greater Media, which services Walled Lake, Commerce and Wixom, Gavle said.

The pair are talking with Metrovision about getting the program aired in Livonia and Redford.

HouseTalk is an offshoot of a radio talk show of the same name hosted by Vitti 11 a.m. to noon Thursdays on WCAR (1090) in Garden City.

"WE TALK about what's here now. but take it further - what's coming in the next few years," said Vitti, 41, a Dearborn resident.

Vitti doesn't think of himself as an expert on building but figures that's a plus rather than a minus.

"What I'm asking is on the public's minds," he said. "I have a natural curiosity. I'm learning as I go." The radio and TV shows raise issues like what's new in technology, how to find a contractor, insurance, mortgages and decorating tips.

 "Window technology is incredible. It's more than just looking out of a pane of glass.

• "Pretty soon, our houses will be wired. You will communicate with the home and your home will communicate with you. • "More and more people are building their own homes. The reason owner-built is catching on is so much information is available." There's a lot of bantering and small talk with guests on the radio show.

"Being entertaining, we find we're attracting people who normally don't listen to this kind of show," Vitti said. "They were learning in spite of themselves." Vitti started the radio show about

WITH A RED CARPET LEASE

RANCER XLT

PER MONTH

Ford wrote the book on off-road roughness when they created the rugged Ranger and now with the Red Carpet Lease Plan from Ford Credit, Ranger is an especially good value.

We can arrange a 48 month lease for qualified lessees through Ford Credit. Lessee may have the option, but is not obligated, to purchase the car at lease end at a price to be negotiated with the dealer at lease inception. Lessee is responsible for excess wear and tear. 60,000 total mileage allowed with a $.06 per mile charge for mileage over 60,000.

Refundable security deposit/reconditioning reserve of $200, cash down payment of $975, first month's lease payment of $169.99, totaling $1344.99 are due at lease inception. Total amount of payments is $8159.52. Lease payment includes destination, title and license, fee. Lease payment does not include sales or use tax. Lease subject to approval and adequate insurance as determined by Ford Credit. See us for complete details.
