Band director delays return

The flap over the band director's job at Wayne Memorial High School has been settled - for now.

Richard Grzesik, the former band director who won his old job back through arbitration last November, has agreed to delay his return until next fall, a school official said this week.

"The situation has been temporarily resolved," Tom Svitkovich, assoclate superintendent of communications and finance, said Tuesday.

"We didn't want to disrupt the program in the middle of the year and (Grzesik) has agreed to remain at Adams (Junior High School) for the remainder of the year," Svitkovich said.

That means Grzesik's replacement and current band director Michael Tassel will remain at Wayne

Thomas vows to work with city council

Pledging to work with the Westland City Council "as a team" and asking for a chance to prove his abilities, Robert J. Thomas was sworn in as the city's sixth mayor Wednesday night.

"I hope to work with the council as a team. Not two forces pulling in two directions, but as a team,' Thomas said in a brief speech during formal inauguration ceremonies at the Melvin Bailey Recreation Center.

But possible early differences between the new administration and the council were hinted at moments later in a speech by Ken Mehl, the former council president who was sworn in for a third term on the legislative body.

In addressing police and fire staffing, Mehl said the city "must not depend totally on personnel, but look for better technology to

A longtime employee in the city's public services department, Thomas, 39, said his election presented "a new challenge in my life - to be the best mayor Westland has ever had.'

"I hope everyone will give me a chance to show what I can do," he said.

Gail McKnight, 18th District Court judge, administered the oath to Thomas and then Cicirelli.

Thomas' remarks were followed by brief speeches from each of the seven city council members. The council convened its first meeting of the term following the ceremony.

THE THOUGHT of a second change at the school in 11/2 years had angered some students and parents.

Band and orchestra members and parents showed up en masse at a November school board meeting to protest the proposed change.

Several students threatened to drop out of the music program if Grzesik returned.

Students also protested Grzeslk's forced departure 18 months ago.

Grzesik, transferred from the high school job to Adams in the spring of 1988, won his old job back through arbitration. Originally, the arbitrator ruled Grzesik could return to the high school immediately.

But after negotiations with school administrators he agreed first to delay his return until the start of the second semester on Jan. 22 and finally to postpone it until next fall, Svitkovich said.

THOMAS, WHO defeated incumbent Mayor Charles Griffin by 200 votes Nov. 7 in an upset, pledged during the campaign to seek additional police and fire department manpower if elected.

New city council members Sandra Ciclrelli and Terri Reighard Johnson, and incumbent Ben DeHart also took oaths of office during the 30-minute public ceremony that drew a crowd of about 100.

Thomas also took the oath of office in late December in an informal ceremony.

Dave Wiacek, district court administrator, did the honors for Johnson, whose campaign he managed. Councilman Tom Brown served as the master of ceremonies.

Brown, a former Westland mayor, acknowledged the presence of several dignitaries, including state Rep. Justine Barns, D-Westland, and former mayors Thomas Taylor and Charles Pickering.

Griffin chose not to attend the ceremonies. Reached at home Wednesday night, the outgoing mayor said he didn't want to detract from Thomas' moment in the spotlight. 1 2

Schools honor 'Kids On The Block' volunteer

If they could, Melody James and Renaldo Rodriguez would be fighting back tears today.

The tears would be for one of their favorite humans, Bonnie Cupples, who is moving to Naperville, Ill.

But Melody and Renaldo can't cry because they're only child-sized puppets, two of the 21 puppets in the "Kids On The Block" program used in the Livonia school district, which serves the northern section of Westland.

"I stayed in the program because it's something you don't want to give up," Cupples said. "It's a rewarding, fascinating thing to do."

School board president Pat Tancill gave Cupples the district's highest award for professional service, the Golden Apple Award.

"Her quick wit and sense of humor delights her audiences," Tancill said.

The luncheon was the group's way of saying "thank you" to Cupples for her dedication to the "Kids On the Block" program since it started eight years ago.

"I must admlt, eight years ago I was skeptical as to whether the program was a good investment," said Robert Dietiker, the district's director of special education.

"People burn out and you can't get volunteers. But eight years later, it's still going strong. That's a testimony to the commitment of Bonnie and the other volunteers. There are thousands of kids who can say thank you to them."

EVERY WEEK, the volunteers take the puppets ("The Kids") to schools to tell youngsters about the stereotypes that surround both disabled children and adults.

To get their point across, the volunteers use scripts provided by the Washington, D.C.-based "Kids On The Block" program.

Some of "The Kids" are disabled; some are net. Cupples'two favorites are Melody James, a girl who wears Created by Barbara Alello, a former teacher of disabled children, the Buppets are three feet tall and wear real kids' clothes and shoes. Their size and clothing help youngsters readily identify with the puppets and speak to them more freely.

"The children don't really see us, they talk to the puppels," said Cupples, referring to the question-and-answer session which follows the acting out of the script.

The puppets' main goal is to help kids understand different disabilities and show them what it's like to be disabled. Disabilities portrayed by the puppets include learning and emotionally. disabled, cerebral palsy, asthma, deafness, blindness, diabetes, epilepsy, the wearing of prosthetics, spina bifida and cancer.

There also are puppets who talk about adjusting to divorce and being the sibling of a disabled child.

"Kids see through the puppets that differences are not scary," Cupples said.

KENT GAGE, director of elementary education, praised Cupples for her "caring, compassion and sense of humor."

"There's been many positive benefits in the elementary schools because of this program," Gage said.

In her eight years of doing the skits, Cupples said she "never had a disappointing show."

'Every show has been rewarding, either because one kid or the whole audience reacts. I have received more than I have given."

A Livonia resident, Cupples is moving to Illinois because of husband Ray's job transfer.

fatty tissue without conventional di-eting or exercise. Scientists made the discovery while searching for a formula to lower cholesterol. In a controlled study of a test group of people, cholesterol levels remained unchanged but the doctors were astounded to find that every patient who used the formula lost weight. Plante, ranked among the top 20 pistol shooters in the nation, is on his way to the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs to train with other athletes.

His passion for this sport is so strong that he has pulled up his roots and moved away from friends and family to fulfill his dream.

Plante began pistol shooting with his father at the age of 15.

Now, he is training to go to the World Cup in San Bernadino, Calif. in April, make the Olympic team and then possibly, the 1992 World Championships in Moscow.

Plante left his job as a foreman at Redford Detail in Southfield to go to Colorado and train. He earned his spot at the center by winning a bronzo medal at the 1989 Texas State International Shooting Champlonships in October.

THERE ARE many sacrifices that they all have been worth it. "I'm giving up everything," he sald.

"At first I was saying yes, but inside I was saying no," Plante said. "It helped that my boss supported what I was doing."

Plante said some of the athletes have run into financial trouble. It is hard for them to get the funds to train, he said.

"A lot of people in the United States are running into this problem."

The Westland resident has been shooting in pistol competitions since 1983. In 1984, he won the national sharpshooter title.

Plante reached top certification as a pistol shooter in 1986 - and was the 1987 Michigan Outdoor three-gun champlon.

Plante said he plans to take a metallurgy or electronics course.

Plante will be a permanent resident at the training center for one year. He will provided with free housing, free ammunition, and access to the nation's top indoor shooting facility.

"I'll enjoy being with all the other athletes at the training center," Plante said. "It's going to remind me of being in high school."

Plante said he will miss his family in Westland, but he will have a family in Colorado.

"I'm going to have a family out there," he said. "It's going to be my shooting family."

Plante said the first thing he'll do at the center is get into shape. "My first goal is to get get into physical and mental condition. I want to be able to peak in April."

People don't know what goes into training for his sport, Plante said. The athlete said a large percentage of pistol shooting is based on mental. toughness and concentration.

"It's a very difficult sport," said Plante, who shows his pride by wearing his Olympic Training Centersweater.

THE FACT that Plante uses a gun, creates a problem for many people.

"There's so much bad publicity. No one ever gets to see the other side," he said.

Plante went on to explain that competitive shooters use guns which are air pistols. They do not shoot at animals or targets which resemble humans, Plante sald.

---- People were so concerned about , how the targets look, he said, adding that they have been modified to plain squares. -

"Tell me in the last 10 years, what have you heard good about guns?," Plante said. "That's the key thing. People never hear about the good things."

As a child, Plante said he learned what guns were all about. And he said it is up to parents to explain the proper use of guns, and that they aren't the reason why there are so many people hurt.

"A gun will not kill a person unless they pull the trigger," he said. Lones Wigger, director of the United States Shooting Team said Planto's potential is unlimited.

Banks stand pat on ATM security

By Pat Murphy staff writer

Don't look for drastic changes to improve security at automatic teller banking machines, according to bank executives contacted in the wake of the killings of Wanda and Glenn Tarr.

Numerous ideas - like so-called "panic" buttons or 9-1-1 emergen. cy phone systems - have been BAI which is based in the Chicago considered, evaluated and rejected / as impractical, say the bankers who are acutely aware that public confidence in automatic teller machines (ATMs) may have been shaken by the Tarr killings last mohtn.

"Anytime there's an incident involving an ATM, we again check our security measures to see if we should make some changes," said J. Richard Johnson, director of corporate communication for National Bank of Detroit (NBD). "But there are no-immediate plans for any changes.'

The Tarrs were abducted separately on Nov. 9 from Rochester Hills and subsequently shot to death in Pontiac. Before he was killed, Glenn Tarr was forced to withdraw money from an ATM at Walton Boulevard and Adams Road in Rochester Hills.

"THE ATM was incidental," said Lt. Gerard Carlin, commander of the Rochester Hill's contingent of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department. Glenn Tarr was abducted at his home and killed elsewhere, he noted.

"The fact that he (Glenn Tarr) was forced to withdraw money from the ATM had nothing to do with his abduction or death," Carlin said.

-- Nevertheless, people began asking about security at ATMs and the safety of people using them. A resolution introduced to the Oakland County Board of Commissioners called for the county's Emergency Management Division to contact the banking community and Michigan Bell Telephone Co. to discuss methods of improving security at ATMs by installing electronic security devices.

area. "But incidents of crime associated with ATMs are very rare.

"In 1987, there were 3.5 million ATM transactions for every single incident of crime involving an ATM. In 1988, there were 11.7 million transactions for every incident of crime."

Van der Velde said BAI tracks crime statistics because of increased concern about ATM security within the industry. She said she is aware of the Tarr murders and the fact that an ATM machine was incidentially involved.

LAST SUMMER Chicago experienced another murder involving an ATM. In June, Dana Fietler, a 24year-old University of Chicago student was abducted from her apartment complex, forced to withdraw $400 from an ATM and then murdered.

Although the ATM_was considered incidental to the robbery and murder, the Chicago City Council commissioned a task force to review security at the ATMs throughout the city and suburbs.

"We did exhaustive research," said Paul R. Feaser, manager of product management for Diebold Inc., the largest manufacturer of ATMs. He is also chairman of the task force's subcommittee on technology.

"We looked at all kinds of mechanical things, including 'panic buttons,' " said Feaser, referring to an often-suggest alarm button an ATM customer could push in an emergency.

"The bad guys would become aware of any alarm button too," said Feaser. "And if someone has a gun at your head, you certainly wouldn't set off any alarm. The police would respond just in time to pick up your body." Even if someone could set off some kind of alarm, Feaser noted, police would not likely be able to respond in time to thwart any rob-Bankers ask themselves that bery or kidnapping. County to take up health care

By Wayne Peal staff wilter

Health and environmental issues could dominate Wayne County's legislative agenda for 1990.

Health care for Wayne County's. working poor, care for the homeless and improvements in child care programs will be among the new year's key proposals, county officials predicted.

At the same time, local cities and townships are expected to consider a new. trash disposal plan that is expected to boost recycling.

Though the county's solid waste proposal was urafted last year, the health care proposal will be new.

"I think this is going to be a social" services year," deputy county executive Michael Duggan said.

Social spending represents a shift from Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara's initial tight budgeting, but executive's staffers sald previous county debt helped no one.

'WE'RE IN the position now where we can do what we wanted to do - use government to help make people's lives better," Duggan said. "But we had to get our finances in order first."

Help for the working poor couldn't come soon - enough, according to Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Inkster.

"We've got to find some way to provide health care to these people," said Beard, whose district includes Westland and Garden City. "Sadly, many people choose to stay on welfare, instead of getting a job, be-cause, with welfare they receive some health benefits."

Though dictated by the state, child care costs are a concern for many county officials.

"This has the danger of spiraling" out of control as did indigent health, care," said 'Commissioner -Kevin Kelley, D-Redford. "We're going to have to look at the delivery mechanism. We're going to have to go into foster homes to look at costs."

The solid waste plan could be the first of several environmental issues facing the county, said Commissioner Milton Mack, D Wayne, also chairman of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

"WHEN I took over as SEMCOG chairman I told all our communities' that the 1990s would be the decade for the environment," Mack said. "We're not only going to have to lookas waste, but at water quality and, perhaps, at air quality, too."

The solid waste plan will be presented to local governments in the next two months, though Mack-saidfinal Michigan Department of Natu-, ral Resources approval might have, to wait until all 84 counties have submitted plans.

If adopted, the plan would restirct communities from dumping in county landfills without cutting their waste output or adopting communitywide recycling.

"I don't know what, if anything, can be done," said commissioner Marilynn E. Gosling, R-Bloomfield Hills. "But it certainly won't hurt to find out."

A good use of trainers

HE LIVONIA Board of Education has approved an interesting pilot program aimed at reducing student injuries and liability risks to the district.

At a meeting earlier this month, the school board, which represents the northern section of Westland, approved a contract for $10,800 to Sports and Preventative Medicine Corp. to pro-

The current practice is that coaches provide first aid, when needed, at practice sessions and games. However, when the injury is serious enough to require more than a taping or bandage, the athlete must be seen by a doctor, and takento a clinic or hospital.

THE IDEA of having certified athletic trainers available at games and/or practices has merit because athletes do risk injuries, especially in contact sports like football and basketball.

A trainer can treat most ankle, wrist, finger and minor knee and hip injuries on the spot, reducing further risk and pain to the athlete. When the injury is more serious, a trainer can use wrapping or braces to minimize further damage until a doctor can offer treatment. In case of possible head injury, a trainer should be able to diagnose to determine whether emergency response is needed.

Some coaches can wrap for minor injuries until the athlete can see a doctor but this is a responsibility better handled by a trainer. Coaches aren't paid that much to begin with and what remuneration they do receive should be for coaching skills. We should not burden them with medical responsibilities, no matter how minor.

The main functions of the trainers in the pilot program will be to help get players ready for games, to offer first aid if they are injured while play again. This is especially important at a time when national studies indicate that today's students are less physically fit than in years past. We suspect this weakened condition might also apply to student athletes.

THE EMPHASIS will be on injury prevention. For that reason, much of the trainer's time vide athletic trainers from now to the end of the will be spent at practice sessions directing school year in June. stretching exercises and other routines designed to maximize physical fitness. The trainers will attend some games, such as basketball, where muscle strains and bone injuries are more prevalent. They will not handle medical emergencies, though, that take place on the court or field. In these instances, they will only monitor and assist until a doctor arrives or the athlete is transported.

> The trend across the nation is to relieve coaches of the responsibility for first aid but to turn that duty over to certified athletic trainers. Livonia now is moving in that direction, also, with its pilot program.

> While the Observer supports the pilot program, we do wonder about the timing. Maybe from January to June the value of the program can be adequately analyzed and a valid determination of merit made. We feel, though, that the program would really be put to the test if it was ran during the fall season the pilot would include the football teams.

Maybe the program will prove its own merit in a January-June test. If questions remain after June, though, the board may want to run an additional trial test for 90 days starting with the opening-football-practice sessions in the fall.

In any event, the practice of using trainers instead of coaches for first aid is worthy of consideration. We congratulate the board for approving

System forces politicians to trade access for dollars

BEFORE THIS season of peace and joy is gone, take a moment to shed a tear for poor Don Riegle, Michigan's senior U.S. senator.

Riegle is in trouble for having taken big campaign contributions from corrupt savings and loan operators and then setting up meetings with federal regulators who were trying to shut them down. Riegle has asked the Senate Ethics Committee to investigate and determine whether he did any wrong.

In the meantime, there have been calls for him to step down as chair of the Senate Banking Committee. This is no laughing matter for Michigan because Riegle's clout can be used to help us folks at home.

politics functions in America today: Sally Jones, ambitious and bright. is-elected to the state legislature or U.S. Congress and decides it's exciting, rewarding work.

As Sally works up a campaign budget for re-election, she discovers it costs a lot of money to stay in office. Media advertising is key, and it's very expensive.

Public access All judges must go by new rules

HE LEGAL SYSTEM, including our courts, is perhaps the most obscure, remote and removed from the public eye institution that the average citizen will ever encounter.

The average person rarely has any contact with the courts, other than Judge-Wapner and_ occasional jury duty.

The courtroom itself is intimidating — the judge sits on a raised dais, the jury is off to one side. In some courts, protective glass separates legal personnel from the audience.

So it was a welcome relief when the Michigan State Supreme Court approved in January 1989 a recommendation from its Cameras in the Courtroom Committee that cameras and tape recor-/ ders be allowed in all state courts.-

THE CHANGE WAS a long time in coming/It began in 1987 when the Citizens' Commission to Improve Michigan Courts urged that a pilot program be conducted. The State Bar Representalive Assembly recommended a one-year trial period.

; The experiment began in February 1988, but at that time, either party in a case could file an objection with the judge and get the cameras removed. In June 1988, Oakland was among five counties in which the experiment was changed, giving only the judge permission to ban cameras and tape recorders in the courtroom.

Now the permanent order granting permission for tape recorders and cameras is nearly a year old. It's time for a review.

Access to the courtroom by the news media has provided many benefits, leading to an informed and well educated public. It also has led to courtrooms losing their mystery.

EXPOSURE TO the public is also good for judges. A judge who is firm, but fair, demonstrates his/her effectiveness to the public for all to see. And let's face it, that can only help come election time.

Unfortunately, not all of the judges this newspaper encounters are aware of the newest court ruling giving them sole discretion over whether coverage is permitted. And problems still have to be worked out with pool coverage and giving advance notice of wanting to cover a judicial proceeding. Meanwhile a committee of the U.S. Judicial Conference recently recommended continuing the ban on cameras in federal courtrooms.

Having said all this, it's important to remember that the judge still is in control of the courtroom. Decorum is still called for. Only two still photographers, videotapes and television cameras are allowed in the courtroom.

But the important thing is that access is assured. We do live under the promise of "liberty and justice for all."

strengthening UI act needs

MAGINE if newspapers could no longer print crime news.

It almost seems ludicrous - no Ameri--can legislature would ever propose such a law, no court would ever uphold it.

Yet that is precisely what is occurring in somearea communities. - -

Several area police departments have begun restricting newspaper access to crime reports; especially those dealing with major crimes. When reports are available, key details are often blacked out.

The departments in question say they are following the state's Freedom of Information Act, specifically when it comes to protecting crime witnesses.

But the loser in all this isn't the press. It's the public.

Police compile reports and newspapers print crime news for the same reason. They do so because the public has a right to know whether it's safe from crime and, if not, what steps are being taken to make it safe.

- Observer & Eccentric Newspapers Even if police departments misinterpret the their feet on releasing crime details would also Freedom of Information Act - and they frebe helpful, The current $500 fine was a pittance in 1976, quently do - it takes time to prove them wrong Suburban Communications Corp. and get the information released. Fred Wright director of circulation

There is a delicate balance between the public's right to know and the police's right to conduct its business in swift; orderly fashion.

Michigan's Freedom of Information Act and subsequent court rulings have made it clear the the burden is on the police to show why information shouldn't be released, not on the press to show why it should.

What is now needed is further clarification from the state Legislature, preventing police departments from releasing all information not already restricted under the Freeedom of Information Act and providing swift penalties for those who fail to follow its guidelines. A clear definition of "unwarranted invasion of privacy," consistent with the body of state court rulings, would be especially welcome.

The Freedom of Information Act already protects the identities of confidential sources whose lives would be in jeopardy if their-names were revealed. That protection, however, need not extend to all police sources.

To the editor:

Are we being backed into a corner or aren't we? That is the question the voters in Wayne-Westland are faced with in the upcoming millage election, Thursday, Feb. 8,

The other question is: Who is doing the backing? Is it the state or is it the school administrators?

We are being asked to yote for a 2.75 mill renewal, an override of the Headlee Amdendment and an addltional 4.9 mill increase. These are tough questions for the votors.

I, myself will vote no on all three. Why? I want to see more accountability from the administrators of Wayne-Westland, Community Schools.

Meanwhile, the cost in spending per pupil on school supplies was decreased from $25 a year to, $22.50 a year in order to help make ends meet for the current budget.

Our MEAP results are always low, the salaries are always high and the parents are always stuck in the middle (or in this case, backed into a corner).

Many need our help all year

To the editor:

During the holiday season, it was a pleasure to pick up a paper and read about warm hearted, charitable people reaching out to help those less fortunate.; Church groups, unlons, schools, business, neighbors, and our staff here at the Social Security office, were all busy helping to make those in need.

However, it seems that once the holidays are over, we often forget that the disadvantaged still need our help.

The homeless, the mentally ill, battered women and children, the unemployed, the disabled, the elderly, may have special needs for assistance all year. I hope the Observer & Eccentric readers now will think about how we can help the needy year 'round.

Social Security benefits are paid on the work records of wage earners who are retired, disabled, or deceased. The family of the worker can also be entitled to monthly cash benefits. The dependents include (but are not limited to) spouses, children under age 18, disabled "children" over age 18, divorced spouses, and even disabled survivors.

In the spirit of giving this season, let us extend a hand up, rather than merely a hand out. Be aware of post sible sources of assistance. Refer someone who may be eligible for benefits to Social Security. Call tollfree, 24 hours a day, seven days a week for additional information about Social Security benefit programs. The phone number is: 1-800-234-5772.

Help us meet our goal, that everyone who is eligible for benefits is receiving them. We look forward to recelving those referrals. Thank you for your cooperation.

tion is making noises that in 1990 it will get active on the issue of adoption, an honorable activity that is drying up.

Director C. Patrick Babcock said his state Department of Social Services will hold public hearings in March on changes in licensing rules.

IN MID-YEAR, look for a model adoption law" to be presented to Michigan and other states by the National Conference of Commissions on Uniform State Laws.

Reason Adoptions are governed by state laws (except for such matters as immigration), and state laws vary. Apparently many childless Michigan couples go shopping in other states for children to adopt.

GOV. JAMES Blanchard has a great incentive to get active on the adoption issue.

He is wrestling with some dreadful budget problems. Groups want more money for schools, more for university research, more for prisons, more for toxic cleanups. And we still fund child abuse through volun-___ tary contributions.

 But the welfare budget drains the treasury, even in the seventh year of economic recovery.

Reduce the welfare caseload, and Blanchard can redistribute the -state's largesse in politically more popular ways.

MICHIGAN RECORDED far more than 40,000 abortions in 1986 but only 4,000 adoptions, of which only 2,000 were "unrelated" adoptions, the real key to the problem.

These numbers, incidentally, come from the National Committee for Adoption, which is neither "pro--choice" nor "pro-ine," just pro-good homes for kids.

In the 1960s and '70s, the states recorded a ballpark figure of 90,000 adoptions a year. Currently there

Meanwhile, we're getting a glut of abortions - 1.6 million a year. -That's 64.5-abortions for every one adoption.

And we're getting an explosion of births to unmarried mothers - 5.3 percent of 1960's total, 10.7 of -1970's, 19.4 percent in 1982 and 23.4 percent in 1986. Most require welfare.

AFTER WADING through a ton of numbers, NCFA draws these two profiles:

• "The factors, which predict teenagers at risk of nonmarital parenthood are disciplinary problems in school, lower educational aspirations, depression and propensity to consider teenage parenthood before it actually occurs.'

• "Unmarried birth mothers who place their children for adoption are less likely to subsequently live in poverty, need public assistance, become pregnant again soon, or resolve subsequent pregnancies by abortion. They are more likely to complete high school and be employed . . ."

This is not to say all single mothers are bad and all adopting parents good. But the mathematical odds point in those directions.

. Encouraging adoption would be good public policy for Michigan and good politics for Jim Blanchard.

The new Michigan Education Assessment Test (MEAP) in reading resulted in some lower scores than school districts expected. I understand that it's a different type of reading test. However, when only 47 percent of our seventh grade children pass the reading test, it leaves a lot to be desired. What is the problem and what impact do these low MEAP reading scores have on high school teachers who are trying to do their job?

A: Using the social studies areas as an example, some teachers have been taking a bad rap for many years because we have not focused strongly enough on reading for understanding - the teaching skill necessary for success in the social studies area.

Not only social studies but all subject areas that require a-textbook with information to be mastered has _ contrast as they master the higher been impacted over the years. We now know reading for understanding and comprehension according to the new MEAP test results are a deficiency in our present system. We appear to have allowed reading for pleasure, i.e. fiction, to dominate our approach in the development of competent readers. We need to start early in a child's education teaching the children to manipulate the language for better understanding. We need to bring totening and speaking into what is called the whole language approach as opposed to teaching each area in an isolated manner.

It is also known that reading li-j teracy has to emerge from within the child rather than being imposed by the mastering of minor sub-skills found in the present day elementary reading books called Basal Readers. In the new approach, children will be encouraged to modify, to reject, come to conclusions to compare and level thinking skills necessary for comprehension of textbook material. This approach includes teaching young children comprehension strategies that start with "prior knowledge," that is, eliciting from students all the information they know about a topic before they begin to read. Through this process teachers will know exactly where the children are at opposed to blindly starting an as-ry into the most important areas a child needs to understand, such as the plot, the setting of the story, who the main characters are, what the the major events.

A third step is called "semantic mapping," that is, brainstorming relationships between ideas in a particular reading section so the student can compare and contrast and think and internalize what they are reading.

The last step, "reciprocal reading," is when the teacher reads out loud and asks him/herself questions to teach the children how to ask themselves questions as they read.

These reading strategies make much more sense than just exposing students to a constant menu of isolated sub-skills, such as identifying prefixes and suffixes hoping that by for several years, but this has not been the case for far too many school districts in Michigan.

What is unfortunate or fortunate is that it takes the state department of education - oftentimes heavily criticized by local school districts for mandating curriculum - to put together a MEAP reading test which hits us in the head and tells us we must change our thinking and our strategies in the teaching of reading.

We must have students who can read for understanding so that they will be more successful in science, social studies, math, language arts, foreign language, science, social studies, math, language arts, industrial arts/vocational education and other major content areas.

Congress earns high marks for attendance

While members of Congress incurred criticism for many of their official actions and personal escapades during 1989, one thing they did very well was attend roll calls on the House and Senate floors.

¥A8

Truants, at + taxpayer's expense were hard to find in either body during the first year of the 101st Congress.

The average House member took part in 94 percent of the 368 roll calls conducted during the 11-month legislative session, and senators on average voted on 98 percent of their champer 3 312 record votes.

Just 33 House members and one senator scored below 90 percent.

The high turnout was no surprise, given the priority that image-minded members put on good attendance and the fact that most roll calls are scheduled to avoid conflict with lawmakers' travel plans.

House and Senate percentages have hovered in the low to mid-90s throughout this decade, and only in 1982, when the House registered 89 percent, did either chamber fail to reach 90 percent.

Members believe high absenteeism from roll calls is politically harmful, particularly when an aggressive challenger converts the truancy into a campaign issue easily comprehended by voters back home. But there is no widely held view that high attendance translates automatically into excellence in other congressional tasks.

Roll Call Report

REPRESENTATIVES LIKE WIIliam Natcher, D-Ky., who has never missed a floor vote in 35 years in the House, and Charles Bennett, D-Fla., who has missed just one quorum call since 1951, are rated by colleagues as effective legislators, as are many other members with snarkling attendance.

But the fact that many unexceptional lawmakers also have high attendance bolsters the view that merely showing up to vote has little bearing on overall competence.

"Voting-participation is not a good indicator of anything other than someone's determination not to miss votes," said Thomas Mann, a Congress-watcher for the Brookings Institution.

"Standing alone, it doesn't mean that much," said Heritage Founation congressional specialist Mark Liedl, "because it is not that difficult to show up for all the votes. What is more interesting is looking at votes members miss and why they miss them."

TAURUS (April 21-May 28) - Educational pursuits may increase your professional ambitions. Set your insecurities aside and reach out to new experiences, Adopt-new health habits. This is the time to lay the framework for success. The universe is paving a road of opportunity. Use it to improve your creative skills. Avoid the urge for conflict, both infimate and casual. Any litigations involving insurance, publications or inheritance, are best resolved before the end of August. If you find you are a candidate for surgery this year, be reassured with the knowledge that you have much protection around you. Friends or relatives leaving your circle will be replaced with new people who will stimulate and comfort you.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21) — Some of you have been living in the shadows of your past insecurities. Be it understood, it is the adjustments to the new conditions of your life that is creating the "dis-ease." New friends and opportunities are on the horizon, all of which open new doors. Some are already in the new job or relation-2 ship. Give it time. Rome wasn't built in a day! This is easier said then done since patience is not one of your virtues. Continue with your effort to develop tact and diplomacy. The eclipses this year will activate your sectors of communication and travel - looks like you're going to be on the move. Send postcards.

The choices are yours: The discouragement you feel is a drain on your vitality, as you're being forced to take greater responsibility for your life. There is a brighter side to this picture. Benefits may come through joint finances, tax rebates or inheritance. A word of warning: avoid extravagant spending or unwise speculation.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23) - Your strong sense of individuality may run into some challenges, either in the work area or the health department. Compromise may be necessary in order to achieve your goals. Your light should shine in the fall of the years as the gift giver "Jupiter" will be traveling your sign. Formal occasions, material benefit and possible travel may be on the agenda. Weight may be of some concern. Exercise, diet and a medical check-up are in order! Do I hear wedding bells, the pitter patter of little feet? This is not your year to be alone as the universe has other plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) - The magic arrived for the early Virgos-last year and continues bringing degrees of satisfaction for the next six years. LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) - The cardinal signs of which you are one continues to force challenges. If everyou had a legitimate reason to procrastinate, this is the year. The focus is in the home environment. Watch for pitfalls. Test the waters or you may squander valuable resources. If you play your cards right, this may be the year for real growth. Career matters are highlighted through August. Possible added responsibilities, such as a promotion, may be in the stars. Your key word for the next six years is "compromise." The fall of the year should ease up the log jam, allowing your life to flow with greater ease. As the winds of change dances the minuet, the cue card reads, "Get ready for a new beat."

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov, 22) - Careers matters will prevail until late August. Take advantage of this period to enhance the opportunities surrounding you. This is especially true for those born Oct. 25-Nov. 7. Pluto, the planet of transformation, remains in your sign for six more years. During this period, look for major changes. Depending on your personal chart, this may denote either joy or strife. Handle these energies skillfully. Many-of the early Scorpios have already experienced changes. Those born Nov. 7-Nov. 14 may be leaving excess baggage behind as they forge ahead to uncharted waters. It can be said with confidence that on the whole, Scorpios in general are in a very productive cycle.

for unwise speculations as you are predisposed to wool gathering during this period. Record your dreams they are telling you something.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19) - You have been in a very creative cycle in this last year. Now it is time to reap some of the rewards for your efforts. The sectors of both work and career maintains a positive profile, indicating recognition for a job well done. Many of you have already changed jobs. The next group to considersuch a move are the Feb. 4-Feb. 10 birthdays. Delaying your physical check-up may not be wise. Remember, "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Starting in late August, Jupiter, the benefic glanet, travels to your house, favoring partnerships of all kinds, including marriage. Caution! Never take the good things in life for granted. Important you remain focused in all your endeavors, thus avoiding pitfalls and insuring success.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) - Creative and gentle sensitivity circles your Zodiac sign this year. What you see as reality, most people throw away. Your cycle is offering your opportunities - go for it. The time is right for you to expand in relationships and achieve goal-oriented objectives. Late August-will send a signal of caution. Difficulties resulting from overconfidence combined with a lack of attention to detail may set you back. Health issues, yours or a member of your family, may be highlighted. You may be the last sign of the Zodiac, but once more your hugging the top rung of the ladder. The best news of all - your cycle continues for a few more years, with only a glitch here and there. We should all be so lucky!

Joanne Verbanic: Learning to say the 'S' word

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

MID THE DIN of the dinner time rush of the restaurant, the word is spoken.

Whisper it or scream it. There is no easy-way to communicate the term.

But Joanne Verbanic has learned + to say schizophrenia.

And the grandmother and employee of Ford Motor Co. talks about the form of mental illness without hesitation or a hint of shame. Verbanic, 45, of Farmington, admits as easily. as she sips coffee that she is a recovering schizophrenic.

Not everyone can be as open. Verbanic understands that better than anyone.

Verbanic perhaps can see one day when the mental illness can be discussed openly by other people who suffer from it.

"Maybe in 10 years," said Verbanic, perking up to the thought. "Maybe in 10 years, we'll be able to say, I have diabetes' and 'I have schizophrenia.""

Verbanic is already doing herfounder of Schizophrenics Anonymous, a confidential self-help group

BUT THERE was a time when she couldn't even write "recovering schizophrenic" on her insurance forms. She was afraid of being fired from her job, if her employers found

"I have nothing to hide anymore," Verbanic said. "I hold my head up high. The stigma sometimes is harder to deal with than the illness it-'self."

The illness is caused by a chemical imbatance in the brain. People who suffer from schizophrenia hear voices or other delusional experiences. In many cases, proper medication can control the imbalance.

Myths, though, often cloud the facts. The mental illness is not inherited from a schlzophrenic mother. Nor is everyone with schlzophrenla violent, dangerous or unpredictable, Verbanic said. Many, in fact, lead otherwise very normal lives.

Writer is versatile, experiences changing moods

Dear Ms. Green,

I am a 29-year-old, right-handed woman. I have been interested in graphology for quite awhile, so I read your column regularly. I am also quite a do-it-yourselfer, and that's why I wish yoq'd give a little more information about the elements you look for in making your. analysis. For example, "the stems of your P's and Q's indicate that you we currently under a lot of stress." I know that graphology is much more complex than that would indicate and that you must also look at combinations of elements, but a little more information would help us compare our writing and traits when you analyze other people's writing.

Thank you!

Finding a Dentist In a new

Dear D.M.,

D.M.,

Redford

Thank you for your long and interesting letter which I have edited to save space. I am excited about your interest in graphology. You might like to know that graphology books have been removed from the occult section and are now classified under psychology in the Dewey Decimal-system. Graphology is part of the expressive movement of psychology.

Frequently, I am asked to explain how I arrive at certain traits in the handwriting. As you know from your own interest in graphology, it is somewhat dicey to single out a particular trait. "No trait stands alone?" is a guiding principle used by all competent graphologists.

Each trait must be considered with the total picture (Gestalt as we say in the field). However, since 1have had so many requests for this information, starting with this column, I will attempt to select and explain one trait each week.

-I am grateful that you have included samples of two of your handwriting styles. I think the reason you prefer sample number two is because it expresses more of your individuality and creativity. These are hallmarks of your personality.

Whenever one's handwriting is legible and deviates this much from the copybook model taught in school, the graphologist is safe in assuming she is working with a unique person.

ONE OF THE first things a graphologist does in analyzing ahandwriting is to consider how the writer has deviated from copybook. Each and every change has a meaning. (This is our, graphology tip-fortoday.)

Now let's look more closely at your personality. A young woman who is versatile and often experiences changing moods and interests comes to mind. Ambivalent feelings often surface.

You like to fill your days with many things. Potential talent appears in the areas of art and music. Seemingly, you have an innate eye for good taste.

I see literary symbols which tell me you probably enjoy reading and also could have a flair for writing. Have you ever tried this? And do you realize how well you express yourself?

Both samples of your handwriting reflect good organization. High level intelligence is also noted. Your mind is creative, analytical, fluent and curious about many things. The positive qualities are helpful in the problem solving. I suspect you may be a tad impatient with those whose mind doesn't function as yours does.

A NEED TO be independent and do your own thinking and acting developed early in life. Some may have considered you a tad rebellious. Strong female in uence from this period appears in your handwriting. There is a private side of your personality. You can also be self-protective and there is a little tendency to rationalize when things don't work out as you might like them to can be noted.

You see beauty in the wonders of nature. To you, a beautiful snowfall represents more than just hazardous driving conditions.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this

One day, someone from the Alliance for the Mentally III asked Verbanic to speak in a television interview about schizophrenia. That would be a major troping point in her life.

"I contacted the public affairs department at Ford Motor Company and I couldn't say 'schizophrenic,' " she said. "I said, 'They need a recovering mentally ill person to speak.' They said, 'If you want to do it. We support it 100 percent.'" supportive. But Verbanic readily admits her case is unusual. She's heard of many schizophrenic sufferers who have lost jobs and friends because of the mental illness.

For that reason, Verbanic doesn't recommend people with schizophrenia go public. Instead, she suggests they follow the advice of professional help.

The biggest thing with schizophrenia sufferers is denial, she said. As a result, many do not take their medication properly.

One of the first of six steps of recovery provided by Schizophrenic Anonymous is "I Surrender 7. ... I admit I need help. I can't-do-it alone." The group is designed to be a supplemental part of professional_ jobs. Others are not as fortunate. "They can come to the group and share their voices, delusions and symptoms," she said. "We've known what they're going through. We've all been there. "The biggest thing is acceptance.

I don't think they're crazy when. they say they've heard voices."

Voices Verbanic first heard told her to kill herself. At the time, she was married and had two children. Once in the hospital, she believed they were going to kill her.

AFTER LISTENING to others with schizophrenia, Verbanic realizes she was fortunate.

'The saddest case that ever came to our group was a man from --- one. Otherwise, they would see me up north. He was hearing voices and many members who have schizophrenia have delusions of grandeur and are into religion. He took a quote from the Bible "where it says if you're a sinner, cut off your hand. Greetings

Congregations welcome the occasional worshiper

By Julia Brown staff writer

Churches were a bit crowded this Christmas.

For some regular church-goers, finding a place to sit was a challenge. The presence of occasional worshipers led to overflow crowds in many churches.

"It's just a special time of the year when people understand what our faith is all about," said the Rev. George Charnley, pastor at St. John Neumann Catholic Church in Canton

At his church, a total 6,000 to 6,500 worshipers attended one of the seven liturgies on Christmas Eve or Christmas.

CHARNLEY'S NOT particularly bothered by the presence of occasional worshipers who show up at Christmas or Easter.

"Oh, I would never scold them. My personal feeling is I'm glad they're there.'

The Rev. David Church, pastor of Newburg United Methodist Church in Livonia, had some occasional worshipers visit his church at Christmas.

"I'm delighted to see them," Church said. "I recognize that there are many who come for different reasons. I see it as an opportunity."

Church isn't sold on the benefits of scolding or lecturing occasional worshipers.

"I just don't think that's productive at all. You never scold anybody into the Kingdom. You've got to love them into the Kingdom. That's the way Jesus did it."

Not all regular worshipers at his church attend services each Sun- 7 Eve candlelight service at his day. Most of the regulars make a ____ church: He hopes those worshipers special effort to attend at Christmas and Easter, Church said, and that boosts attendance. Many regular worshipers bring along friends and family for holiday services, filling the pews even more.

- CLERGY MEN and women interviewed agreed Christmas and Easter services provide opportunities to reach people who don't attend church regularly. Ministers and priests hope occasional worshipers will return on ordinary Sundays.

Some visitors attended Christmas services at the Plymouth Church of the Nazarene.

"We had a lot of guests who were with family members or returning from out of town," said the Rev. J. Mark Barnes, senior pastor at that church.

Not many worshipers without a church affiliation attended those services. Those people are more likely to be at the children's Christmas program or at Christmas and Easter choir presentations.

THERE WAS a time when Barnes probably resented the presence of the occasional worshipers.

"I've changed my thinking," he said. "Any time they can make it 🔔 I'm glad they can make it." He's not sure just what led to his change of heart. "Maybe it's just maturing a little bit " Barnes said. "Maybe I've grown a little wiser." The Rev. Randy Whitcomb, pastor at Cherry Hill United Methodist. Church in Canton, saw a few occasional worshipers at the Christmas will return to church sometime before Easter.

"It doesn't bother me;" he said. "The more the merrier, in some ways;"

Whitcomb doesn't remember hearing of Jesus chewing anyone out for not attending worship services regularly. He has found that pushing too hard means occasional worshipers will push back or simply leave and never return.

"So why condemn them for being where you want them to be?"

WHITCOMB'S WIFE, the Rev. Michelle Gentile, is pastor of the Denton Faith United Methodist Church. Some occasional worshipers attended Christmas services at her church. Some regular worshipers were out of town for the holidays and unable to attend.

"I'm glad to have people there on Christmas Eve," she said.

Services provide an opportunity to share the message of God's love. "That is something beyond any of our human understanding."

Gentile doesn't resent the presence of the occasional worshipers, but does wish they'd come to church more often.

MANY FROM the ""baby Boomer" generation weren't raisedin a church and have no religious affiliation, she said.

"They haven't had that experience, so that has not become a priority in their lives." Families aren't as cohesive as they once were, and many don't attend church together. Gentile, 35, has seen some older occasional worshipers who attend church at Christmas and Easter, and they refrain from scolding those worshipers. "You never scold anybody into the Kingdom," said the Rev.

baby boomers with children start to attend church. Those people may come to church at Christmas and Easter, and perhaps during Lent.

Clergy men and women find it, difficult to reach people who don't attend church. Some people find their way to a church at different junctions in their lives, Charnley said. Weddings, baptisms and funerals bring some people back.

THERE ARE many reasons why people don't go to church, Barnes said.

"I tend to think we have an apathetic attitude.' That apathy relates to church attendance and to relationships with God. "It's almost impossible to do anything about it.'

He has found that lay people have opportunities to reach out to non-worshipers at home, at work, in neighborhoods and elsewhere. Those worshipers can provide living examples of the joy of Christian fellowship.

"I think that's probably the best tool," Barnes said.

Positive or negative associations influence people's church attendance, Church said.

"People come to church because they have friends and people who are meaningful to them."

Becoming established-in-a new church holds a certain amount of fear and trepidation, he said.

Those who have attended church in the past may return at Christmas and Easter. They may realize something's missing in their lives, Church said, and decide to become involved again.

Self-indulgence all too often leads to disaster

Listening to the car radio these days can be dangerous to life and limb. Hearing the update of news from Europe broke my attention to road signs, and consequently I had to 'squeeze'' onto a "through lane."

Later explanations of the executions emphasized their calming ef- many ways far more frightening, is fect. Having assured the Romanian people that their chief oppressors * highway in the United States. There had been captured, tried and executed, it was believed that the time of terror would end.

Surely less consequential, but in the response of the young man on the was ample space for me to move into the line of traffic, but he was using the right lane to pass a line of cars, and my entering the lane slowed him down. His response would cause me to believe that he was livid. Generic wisdom has always insisted that more will be expected from those who have more. Righteous anger is no threat to public well-being. Self-indulgence is a disaster waiting to happen.

We can regret the loss

You can imagine the response from the person I "squeezed over." He did everything but stop suddenly in front of me.

I was hearing the news from Romania. The Romanian dictator and his wife had been executed. A military tribunal had charged them with crimes against the nation, determined them guilty and executed them . . . all within several hours of their capture.

The span of time that the Romanians have suffered covers an entire generation. But generations do not mark themselves as neatly as we can arrange our numbers.

THREE GENERATIONS of people have lived in the oppression and deprivation that was forced on Romania after World War II. Grandparents could remember better times. Parents were forced to endure, and children will not forget.

It's difficult to contain emotions that have been awakened by outside forces. We can regret the loss of a public trial that could have brought details of tyranny before the judgment of justice, but the outcome would have been the same. The application of justice may have been accelerated, but it was not misplaced.

With M-CARE, the sky is not the limit.

There's a serious accident. Time is crucial. A helicopter is dispatched to speed the victim to the University of Michigan Burn Center... a service you, hopefully, will never have to call on. But it's there if you need it, and much, much more through M-CARE.

-M-CARE is the only HMO that links all the resources of the U of M Medical Center to thepersonal care of your family doctor and your nearby hospital. M-CARE covers you for office visits, checkups, hospitalizationeven emergency helicopter transport.

Of course, with the M-CARE network of hospitals in cities like Royal Oak, Dearborn and Rochester, you don't always have to go to the U of M Medical Center. But isn't it good to know it's there whenever you need it? To find out more, ask your employer. Or call M-CARE at 747-8700.

That idea, launched two years ago, was to offer a discount car shopping experience through a retall warehouse facility.

"The basic reason we instituted this is people have a fear of going into a dealership," said Doyle, president of Club Cars Inc. of Plymouth. "Our basic premise was it's like having an uncle in the car business."

Doyle has an informational booth in each of the 47 PACE warehouses around the country, two in the Observer & Eccentric circulation area (Westland and Farmington Hills).

PACE members interested in buying a car are asked to designate that information on a form that is turned in to a dealer. The customer, in return, gets a referral card to the dealer and usually is directed to the fleet sales manager.

THE THEORY is that individual PACE members collectively should be considered a fleet buyer and receive a discount on cars like traditional fleet purchasers.

No cars are sold on the PACE premises, although one or two usually are displayed. Customers aren't steered to specific models.

"We tell them, 'If you're not sure, go out, take a look and narrow it down. When you narrow it down, we'll send you down to one of our dealers,' " Doyle said.

AUTO DEALERS sell cars theymight otherwise not. The buyer gets a better deal than he or she may have otherwise negotiated as a nonfleet buyer.

"All dealers pay the same for cars," Doyle said. "We never claim we get the absolute lowest price. Across the board, customers tell us they save about $1,500 over the best deal they could get by themselves." Doyle, 50, knows the auto industry. He's worked in marketing for Ford, owned a Porsche/Audi dealership and run his own promotion companies.

His expertise makes the program work, Doyle said.

"The dealers know I know the business," he said. "You might stick But Chuck Martin, sales manager it to one of our customers, but you'll at Hammond Chevrolet, said his never get a chance at another."

The Detroit Better Business Bureau and the state. attorney general's office confirmed Doyle's assertion that no complaints have been filed against his business. But a spokesman for the secretary of state said that department intends to investigate whether Doyle or PACE is acting as a broker and should be licensed.

Doyle maintains no.

"We're an advertising company," he said. "We do not get paid on the sale of a car. We don't sell cars," Doyle emphasized. "We're not a buying service. We're a buyer's service." - Most people buying a new car are no match for professional sales people, Doyle said.

"A LOT of people are apprehensive, afraid," he said. "We're saying, we're sending an amateur to them, but he has a pro in his corner so don't mess with him. The system really, really works."

Doyle estimates that the PACE discount program generates about 4,000 car sales per month nationally. Participating dealers generally give the plan good reviews.

'We're quite pleased," said Frank Buban, sales manager at Dean Sellers Ford.

"We thought it would be a good way to get some prospects," said Myles Kearney, sales manager at Autobahn Motors.

Members of the Madonna College faculty and an area business person had a chance to survey the European deregulatory movement when the college organized a recent trade mission to Europe.

Under the director of Dr. Charlotte Neuhauser of Madonna's division of business and computer systems, four members of the business department and a consultant for the accounting firm of BDO Seldman in Troy made stops in Germany, Belgium and England to establish contacts with overseas business owners and attend several trade shows.

Neuhauser believes there are many reasons why Europe offers a host of business opportunities.

"Europe is our closest business partner," she said. "We (Americans) have all been very excited about the Japanese, but in fact, Japan does not own as many companies or control American dollars as the European countries do.

Gary Fisher, assistant professor of human resources at Madonna, spoke of exporting in terms of it being countercyclical.

We have answers for owners of small businesses

Since this column began in January 1987, our office has consistently received telephone calls and letters from readers with questions regarding their new or existing small business.

Because it is the goal of this column to provide information that benefits the small business community, a monthly reader's forum willappear on the first Thursday of each month. The forum will address your questions or present information you would like to share with other small business owners and managers.

Please call 474-1149 with any questions or announcements. Written requests should be addressed to Focus: Small Business, Reader's Forum, 33411 Grand River, Farmington 48024. For a personal reply, please include a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

business, but I can't afford to quit my present job. How would your advise a person in my position?

There is no doubt that making the transition from employee to entrepreneur involves risk. Rather than leaving your position prematurely, it is crucial to determine if yours is a business that can be developed and cultivated during your spare time. If this is the case, you will be able to generate a solid base of on-going customer business before resigning from your present job.

Be sure to have set aside at least one half of your present annual salary (including health^o and insurance benefits) once employment has been. terminated. Ths money will be used for personal expenses until your business begins generating a profit. Depending on your current sources of collateral, this money may take I know I want to start my own anywhere from three months to one year to obtain. Although there will always be some level of risk associated with the decision to become your own boss, it can be minimized through proper planning.

What is your opinion regarding telephone directory advertising?

As with any form of paid advertising, the best media sources to consider are those that best reach the types of customers you want to attract and serve as a business. Although everyone has easy access to telephone directory advertising, the question is whether your company's key customer market(s) will refer to this source when identifying, evaluating or selecting a company like your own to do business with. Next, it is important to know if the level of new business generated is at least equal to the amount paid for your ad on a monthly, semi-annual or annual basis. If not, you may want to choose from the more specialized telephone directories when placing future ads - or consider alternative advertising sources altogether.

Explain the importance of networking and how it can benefit me as a small business owner who already has a well-established image and reputation in the metropolitan area.

Networking benefits everyone regardless if you've been in business for one month or 20 years. Networking is important because it allows you to meet, make contact and develop mutually satisfying relationships with others - given your specific personal or professional goals. For established business owners, there are several opportunities you may want to pursue through networking.

Some examples include taking professional speaking opportunities directed at industry groups and associations, becoming a small business industry advocate or lobbyist at the local, state or national levels, and advising new business owners within your industry. Through networking, you will find that accomplishing specific short- and long-term goals is ~. not only possible but enjoyable as well.

Borgess wins battle of Spartans

Stevenson goes down, 78-60

By Brad Emons staff writer

Livonia Stevenson went looking for basketball competition outside the Western Lakes Activities Association and got more than it bargained for Tuesday at Redford Bishop Borgess.

The host Spartans, hitting 77 percent from the floor (24 of 31) in the first half, ran away from the visiting Spartans to post a convincing 78-60 victory.

"I'm not pleased with the way we played, but I'm sure the kids will draw from the experience," said Stevenson coach Jim McIntyre, whose team is 4-2 overall. "If a game like, this helps us in the long run, then we'll be happy. We needed a game like this to get ready for our division (Lakes) because it's going to be tough.'

Borgess coach Mike Fusco had to be pleased with the way his team bounced back from its first defeat of the season, an 81-52 thrashing at the hands of unbeaten Saginaw in the Big Michigan Shoot-Out, Dec. 28 at the Palace of Auburn Hills.

"WE WORKED on our rebounding (in practice) since the Saginaw game along with our mental preparation," said the Borgess coach. "We talked about focusing on playing hard for 32 minutes."

Borgess came out smoking in the opening quarter, outscoring the Livonians 30-11 behind Shawn Respert's 13 points. The 6-foot-3 senior, headed for Michigan State, finished with 17 to lead all scorers.

Good times U-M frosh learning the ropes

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

Patrick Neaton's face was bleeding in a couple spots Friday after the University of Michigan's 7-1 hockey win over Northern Michigan at Joe Louis Arena.

Neaton, a freshman defenseman for U-M, didn't get roughed up during the first-round Great Lakes Invitational game against Northern. The trouble began afterward when he cut himself shaving in the dressing room.

"Pat's going to take a class in "shaving next year," said Rob Brown, a senior center from Williamston. "He'll have to start using an electric razor."

Neaton, who attended Redford Catholic Central from 1985-88, has grown accustomed to hearing such good-natured kidding from his teammates. The Wolverines were in a joking mood this weekend as they went on to beat rival Michigan State, 6-3 Saturday, to win their secondstraight GLI title.

Neaton has scored three goals and added 12 assists for the Wolverines, who are 14-7-1 overall and 10-7-1 in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association.

The two have combined for 19 points in 20 games.

"I wanted to try them together to see how they complemented each other," said Berenson, who played in the National Hockey League with Detroit and St. Louis. "After training "The guys aro fun," said Neater camp, it appeared both were ready one of six freshmen. "They oke and not experiencing freshmen around. They'll tell us freshmen to jitters. "I always ran into him," Harlock said. "Most definitely, it's nice to have a person of his callber on your side. It's a pleasure playing next to him."

"It's been real fun," Neaton said. "We're both adjusting together. There's been good times and bad times - it's mostly a learning experience and we're improving as we go along.

"(Berenson's) a good coach. He really explains things and it's amazing what he knows. When you make a mistake, he shows what it is and is real constructive with the young guys."

Neaton comes from a sports-oriented family. His cousin, Natalle, was a starting guard for Detroit

By halftime the host Spartans had opened up a 55-26 advantage.

"We never got untracked," McIntyre said. "Basically they (Borgess) were up on us more in terms of pressure than maybe we're used to seeing. There were things open out there if we had been more patient, but there was too much dribble and too much solo (play) at times.

"And-our defense never got aggressive enough with all five kids to prove a point.'

Fusco was looking for a better defensive effort after the Saginaw loss and he got it in the first half, limiting the long-range bombers of Stevenson to 26 points.

MEANWHILE, Borgess was having a field day on the offensive end, converting Stevenson turnovers into layups.

Steve Leonard (right) of Stevenson works inside against ReShawn Sumler of Redford Bishop Borgess. Sumler scored 12 in the win, while Leonard tallied 10 in a losing cause.

"A few things came easy to us because we were able to get out on the break and stretch our legs," said Fusco, whose team is 4-1. "Livonia Stevenson plays a style that allows -us to do that. They like to run and so do we."

Fusco substituted freely in the second half and by the fourth quarter both benches had been emptied.

Three other Borgess players scored in double figures. Senior forward Randy White added 14 points. while junior center ReShawn Sumler contributed 12 and Artie Brown chipped in with 11.

Brown actually tallied 14 points, but one of his three-point shots in the 1 second quarter was entered in the offieial scorer's book as only two.

The senior guard also inadvertently scored two points for Stevenson.

After being inserted back_into the game with 6:27 left, Brown got a bit mixed up. Stevenson's Matt Grodzicki missed a free throw, Brown grabbed the loose ball and put up a short 10-foot turn-around jumper that hit nothing but net.

AFTER REALIZING he had made, the error. Brown showed he was only human, smiling sheepishly.

Schoolcraft finds another way to lose

By Bred Emons staff writer

The Schoolcraft College men's basketball team apparently has developed a new patent.

The Ocelots invented another way to lose Friday in the consolation game of the Kellogg Community College Holiday Tournament in Battle Creek, squandering a'slx-point lead in the final minute against Henry Ford CC, which pulled out a 76-75 victory on Ed Volbert's desperation three-point hook shot from the corner as time expired.

The loss drops Schoolcraft to 6-11 overall.

Henry Ford, led by a team-high 19 points from Livonia Stevenson product Chris Nazelli, upped its record to 4-8;

On a clear-out play in the final seconds, Volbert got off the shot despite heavy pressure from Schoolcraft's Rob Harmon (Redford Bishop Borgess).

"The ball rolled off his (Volbert's) leg and rolled to the corner," explained SC coach Dave Bogataj. "Then he just picked it up and threw it over his right shoulder."

_IRONICALLY; it_was_the_only__ three-point shot Henry Ford connected on in 13 attempts.

"We let them back into the ball game with terriple shot selection," said Bogataj. "We also had 22 turnovers (to Henry Ford's seven) and my bench hurt me. We got stupid with the ball in the last minute."

Although Schoolcraft did not score a field goal in the final five minutes; the Ocelots still were in position to put the game away before freshman guard Jeff Elliott (Plymouth Salem) put up an ill-advised 19-footer that missed, followed by a five-second count against Ed Hudson.

Henry Ford took advantage of the mistakes by scoring four straight points to pull within two.

But with 13 seconds left and a 75-73 lead, Schoolcraft's Randy Waters, a 92 percent free throw shooter. missed the front end of a one-andone, setting up Volbert's game-winning heave.

Schoolcraft's Ken Fuster, a 6-foot-2 sophomore guard from River Rouge, was named to the all-tourney team. He finished with 20 points and six assists.

"KENNY WAS outstanding the entire-tourney," Bogataj said. "He had 23 the first game, but he had to handle the ball all the time and that's -not good. He needs some help."

Al Hudson, a 6-6 sophomore, added 13 points and eight rebounds. Waters contributed 12 points, while the 6-4 Ed Hudson grabbed nine rebounds.

Despite the loss, SC outrebounded the Hawks, 33-15.

The Ocelots led by as many as 18 points in the first half before getting into foul trouble.

Henry Ford sliced the lead to '41-31 at the half before rallying to outscore SC 45-34 in the final 20 minutes.

SC shot 22 of 45 (48 percent) from the floor and 25 of 30 (83 percent) from the free throw line.,

Henry Ford was 28 of 56 (50 percent) from the field and 17 of 27 (62 percent) from the free throw stripe. It was the Hawks' second victory over Schoolcraft this season.

The next Magic? Expectations much too high for Country Day's Webber

First. the truth.

• Chris Webber isn't the next Magic Johnson.

• Webber, a 6-foot-10 junior basketball player at Detroit Country Day, is considering about 30 colleges and he'll wait until next year to decide which one to attend.

• Webber isn't a sure bet for the National Basketball Association, although he's already a fine prospect. *..-. , • Webber won't turn 17 until March 1 and he lives at home with his parents, three brothers and one sister.

The last point is the most important of all. We must remember that Webber is still a teenager and he doesn't deserve any added pressure or further distractions.

"I'm a kid, ya know," said Webber, considered one of the nation's finest junior basketball players. "I do what all other kids do. I'm no different than anyone else."

Thanks for the reminder, Chris. Some people are inclined to think otherwise when they see his 6-10, 230-pound frame.

UNFORTUNATELY, those people have made Webber out to be some bigger-than-life figure, able to conquer anything.

It all climaxed last Thursday, when Country Day met Detroit Pershing in the 1989 Big Michigan Shoot-Out at The Palace of Auburn Hills. He was promoted as the matquee figure in that Shoot-Out, along with Detroit Pershing's Lorenzo Orr.

Webber is a shy, polite guy, who doesn't really like all this attention.

"My teammates joked with me about it - but it did bother me," Webber said. "I play on a team and we win as a team and lose as a team. I'm not playing my best right now and I'd just like to get back to the basics when no one knew who I was. The publicity is fine but things get out of hand and overexaggerated."

and the second construction and a second sec

Webber is an extraordinary talent and a good ambassador for high school basketball.

However, what upset me was reading a profile of Webber in the Shoot-Out program. The headline read: "Chris Webber - Michigan's Next 'Magic?' (Johnson)"

'WHOEVER WROTE the piece called Webber "a sure bet for the NBA." The author also said Webber has narrowed his college choices to Duke, North Carolina and the University of Michigan.

Tuesday night, Webber told me all that is false.

Even Webber, who takes pride in his game, said there'll never be another Magic. With 11/2 years of high school left, plus a collegiate career ahead of him, Webber hasn't begun to think about pro ball. As for college, he is considering schools around the country, including Michigan and Michigan State.

Country Day coach Kurt Keener, who helped promote the Shoot-Out, had nothing to do-with the program.

"Personally, I don't know if the person who wrote that knows anything about basketball, because there'll_never be another Magic," said Webber. "If you read what the world thinks about you, you'll go crazy. All that matters is that you know what you are."

The last player in Michigan who had so much written and said about him was Antoine Joubert, who played at Detroit Southwestern and U-M. Joubert had a good career at U-M, yet he never could live up to his billing out of high school.

Joubert, who played for U-M from 1983-87, was cut by the Detroit Pistons in '87 after being a late-round draft pick. He has spent the last couple years playing overseas.

Does he have any advice for Webber?

"THE MOST important thing for him is to stay away from the wrong people and go to class," Joubert said. "Stay close to God. In his situ ation a lot of people like to lean on him because he's a great athlete. The thing they tend to forget is he's 16 or 17, and you want to stay close to your family and have the proper guidance.

"There's a lot of things your friends can do that you can't do because everyone's watching you. They're waiting for you to make a mistake so you have to be careful."

Webber has some impressive role models. They include Rex Chapman, Larry Bird, Magic Johnson, Michael Jordan, Charles Barkley and Kevin Colson. 3"

You might not recognize Colson's name. He's a 6-foot junior guard who plays at Country Day and has been an AAU teammate of Webber's. Webber thinks so highly of Colson that his New Year's Resolution was "to work as hard as Kevin Colson.

"We'd be up many times by 30 points with three seconds left in an AAU game and Kevin would be diving for the ball," Webber said. "If I had his work ethic, I'd be satisfied with my play. I've known Kevin three years and he helps me not to get a big head."

They're both doing a good job.

"I didn't see too many of our shots go swish like that," cracked McIntyre. "We certainly could have used that kind of shooter tonight. He can shoot the ball. Maybe Grodzicki should thank him (Brown) for giving him two more points."

Rick Laven, a senior guard, led Stevenson with 14 points.

Senior guard Ron Baran, the team's top scorer, never got into sync. He finished with 12. Senior center Steve Leonard added 10.

been a bit rusty going into the game. They weren't able to practice either Monday or Sunday because the Livonia Public Schools had locked them out of their gym for the holidays.

"I don't know if that was a factor or not because we had a hard practice on Saturday," McIntyre said. "We disciplined 'Z' (6-foot-9 Glenn Szeman) for missing a practice (on Saturday). Normally we don't start a kid if he hasn't been at practice the day before. Maybe we shouldn't have started any of them because everybody missed two days of practice."

MEANWHILE, Borgess can point to two days of intense practice in preparation for Friday's Catholic League (Central Division) home opener against Redford Catholic Central (1-4).

"I think they (CC) are a very good team, they're ready to explode." Fusco said. "I'm very concerned. This is like the tournament. Everybody is 0-0. This win (against Stevenson) has to carry on to the next 10 games. We can't rest on our laurels."

MITE BRUINS FIRST

The Livonia Bruins, a mite division (ages 5-9) squad, posted a 4-0-1 record en route to victory in the Eddie Edgar Arena Christmas Tournament (Dec. 26-30).

Despite a ninth place finish during the first half of the league season (4-6-2 record), the Bruins won the championship with a 3-1 triumph over the North Stars. They also defeated the Canucks (4-2), the Flames (4-0), the Blues (4-3) before tying the Wings (1-1).

Goalie Eric Williams allowed just seven goals in five games, including a shutout.

Walter Dietz and Stacey Allen tallied eight goals apiece to lead the Bruins offensive attack.

Keating brothers teaming up to teach

By Katie McBride special writer

He strolls toward the net, all four feet of him, T-shirt tail trailing from his crisp white shorts and tennis racquet clutched in a wrist-band-edged hand. A grin of victory dominates his face.

The opponent shrugs his shoulders and meets him at the net. He stands / on tip-toe, reaches forward and shakes his hand.

That's how the game ends at the Birmingham Raquet Club (BRC) whether you're 7, 17 or 70. That is, as long as the Keating brothers have a say in the program.

"Tennis is a gentleman's sport," Brian Keating said.

THAT PHILOSOPHY and the motto "where all things are possible to all who believe" underlie everything pertaining to the Keating quartet.

With more than 60 years of combined teaching experience, the brothers bring more than talent to the game.

"What we do here mainly is encourage," Lee Keating said. "We're just big encouragers of what we see in players."

Lee, 35, Tighe, 34, Brian, 30, and Blase, 28, coordinate tennis lessons, leagues and tournaments at the BRC, and are expanding their service to other clubs.

The BRC programs have more than doubled since the Keatings teamed up in 1979 - a success they credit to a shared commitment and just plain growing up together.

Throughout their childhood, the Keating brothers and their four siblings "practically lived" at the Birmingham Athletic Club, a facility their family founded.

SWIMMING AND squash were favorite sports at the club, but it was stilleir desire to have fun. tennis that ultimately set the four oldest Keatings apart, and at the same time, kept them together.

Since 1967, the Keating Brothers have been perennial players on the local tennis circuit. In succession, each served as captain of the Birmingham Brother Rice High School tennis team, as professionals at various tennis clubs and as top-ranked players at regional levels. Tighe and Blase went on to achieve local, western U.S. and world rankings.

"Our dad was always an entrepreneurial thinker and he said. 'Why don't you guys hook up with the tennis coach, send out some fliers, and start your own business?'" Tighe said.

Lee then talked to coach Don McKercher and the two older Keating brothers filled the courts in June, July and August that year, as well as the next two summers.

THEY ENLISTED the help of Brian and Blase to promote the program by placing fliers in doors and on cars. This early business venture taught them that working together was fun and profitable -- and set a vision for the future.

"I remember folding fliers for the business when I was only nine years old," Blase said. "My dream was always to someday work with my older brothers."

From the time they were in grade school, the Keatings practiced together and taught each other. Competition is keen among the four brothers, but sibling rivalry seems a foreign phrase in their family.

"We expected everyone under us to be better, because we would learn more as we went along and they would have the advantage of that knowledge," Lee said.

By learning from Lee and Tighe, Brian and Blase were better players at an earlier age.

"THERE WAS always a camaraderie among the brothers - a fellowship and sense of humor," said their father, Lee Sr. "Each one always helped the other."

Brian said their parents fostered their supportive spirit. "Sticktuitiveness," self-discipline, respect and the ability to keep the game in perspective are family values built into all Keating Brothers' programs. But the most important element, Brian said, Tighe agreed. "We realized that the fun we had when we were kids, we could bring that anywhere with us," he said.

They took it with them to college, where each of them competed in a variety of sports. Lee and Tighe attended Michigan State University, while Brian opted for the University of Southern California and Blase for the University of Maryland. Tennis scholarships supported Tighe and Blase through school. Graduation led them down different paths: Lee now works for Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company; Tighe manages full-time the Keating-Brothers; Brian works at Prudential Insurance and Financial Services: and Blase assists Tighe in the day-to-day business and serves as tennis coach at Brother Rice.

LEADING THEIR own lives is important, they said, but joining forces at the BRC allows them to put their broadened experience to work.

"We're combining our talents, knowledge and skills to make what is now the Keating Brothers a better business with a larger vision," Blase said. "Our ideas are fresh and not stagnant because we all went to the same school and learned the same things."

What is now the Keating Brothers is a business owned and operated by the four siblings.

Tighe manages the day-to-day operations, serving as head pro with Blase, who assists with the administrative duties, develops new teaching techniques and runs the BRC proshop. Brian handles marketing and promotions and Lee assists with the Keating Brothers expansion plan.

To succeed in the tennis business, "the bottom line is that the people have fun and get what they came for - whether it was a good workout, a nice social play, or to learn something," Brian said. "The four of us have split up our talents to achieve that goal."

TIGHE AND BLASE work closely with BRC manager Sally Saunders, buying court time from the club. The brothers look at the number of hours available each day and develop programs to fill them. "Keating Brothers is a service," Tighe said.

Being service oriented is necessary to compete in today's market. The racquet clubs that shot up during the tennis boom in the 1970s had no need for teaching pros - their courts were filled to capacity with people who paid for private court 4 time. But as the industry started to fade, the clubs needed pros and services to stimulate activity,

The Keating Brothers has its market. The challenge was to listen to the players, learn their needs, and provide the programs to fulfill them.

"People think, 'that little club on the corner, what can it offer me?"" Lee said.

Offering more than just standard lessons, leagues and tournaments is key to the Keating Brothers success. They say they want people to feel good about themselves.

"WE TRY TO use the disciplines of the sport to not only prepare people for success in tennis, but in life," Tighe said. "Tennis can be a very" good character-builder. It requires self-control, discipline, diligence and perseverance."

To ensure that these qualities are modeled on and off the court, Blase said they are careful to choose teaching professionals that will represent them well. A natural choice was their sister, 18-year-old Deirdre, who has taught with them for the past two summers. The Keating - -Brothers employs 10 pros that serve the BRC-and the Academy of the Sacred Heart in Bloomfield Hills.

"One of our immediate goals at the Birmingham Racquet Club is to expand the programs here, and then potentially move to other sites like Sacred Heart that would not directly take away any business from this particular club," Tighe said. 🕠

HUNTING ACCIDENTS DECLINE

A decline in hunting accidents during the 1989 firearm deer season indicates the continuance of a downward trend in deer hunting mishaps in Michigan since the late 1970s, according to preliminary figures from the Department of Natural Resources.

Four fatalities and 225 injuries were reported during the Nov. 15-30 season; compared to 39 injuries and four fatalities during the 1988 season.

Careless handling of firearms remained the major cause of accidents.

Overall, 13 of the 29 shootings were self-inflicted; another seven were the fault of hunters in the victim's hunting party.

Since the implementation of two hunter safety laws in the 1970s the hunter orange law of 1977, re-

With 725,000 hunters afield, these figures are remarkably low and speak well of increased safety awareness among hunters," said David Hales, director of the Michigan DNR.

• EAGLE SURVEY BEGINS

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources will be conducting the 1990 mid-winter bald eagle survey Jan. 4-18. Residents are urged to become directly involved with this annual count by reporting all sightings of bald eagles during this twoweek period.

Anyone sighting a baid eagle during this period should send a postcard containing the date, time, specific location and number of eagles observed to: Winter Eagles, DNR Natural Heritage Program, P.O. Box 30028, Lansing 48909.

During the 1989 winter count, 217 eagles were observed in 47 of Michigan's 83 countles. A high portion of the 165 eagle pairs that nest in Michigan are believed to spend the winter here in the state.

'Past surveys' have shown that during mild winters the eagles tend to nest further north. During last years's relatively mild winter, nearly half of the eagles observed were sighted in the Upper Penninsula.

NEW SNOWMOBILE TRAIL With the opening of a new snowmobile trail from Alanson to Mackinaw City and a new program offered by the Mackinaw Bridge Authority, snowmobile enthusiasts can travel from Alanson to Ironwood without interruption, according to Michigan DNR officials.

The program at the bridge-provides transportation across the bridge for snowmobilers and passengers.

"The DNR, along with hundreds of private contractors/groomers and snowmobile organizations, is proud to offer the finest recreational opportunity for snowmobilers in the Midwest," said David Hales, director of the Michigan DNR. "Next year, when three final connections are made in the Lower Penninsula, enthusiasts will be able to ride from Houghton Lake to Wisconson on uninterrupted trails."

The-Mackinaw Bridge_Authority will transport snowmobilers and passengers across the bridge at a cost of $1 per machine. An additional 50 cents will be charged for passengers. Snowmobilers will be expected to load and unload their own machines. Snowmobilers wishing to be transported across the bridge should call the Bridge Authority (906) 643-7600 to schedule a transport. Large groups should call one day in advance.

The 47-year-old Sutter, a Livonia esident, coached the JV football team from 1970 to 1972 and joined Herrington on the varsity the next year, taking responsibility for the defense in 1977. "It's something everybody is going to get eventually if they've been in the coaches association long enough," said Sutter, not one to seek out the spotlight, "but nevertheless" I'm still excited about it."

SUTTER HAS carved out his own reputation in coaching circles for his work with the Harrison defense, which has created a tradition for excellence and has been outstanding the last two years. Sutter's 5-2 defense, with all of its stunts and variations, was instrumental in the Hawks winning consecutive Class B championships.

"It's a great year for him to go in - after we won the state championship," Herrington said. "Bob is known all over the state for what he does, and we get a lot of requests from coaches who want to come to Harrison and talk about the defense we play,

"The offense has gotten a lot of publicity the last few years, but it was the defense that kept us in the big games."

Herrington cited the 1981 state final in which the Hawks shut out (7-0) favored Muskegon Catholic Central, a team averaging 40 points a game, to win their first state title.

Sutter ranks that game as a career highlight, as well as the double-overtime win over Dearborn Fordson in the '82 Class A title game and the last two championship seasons.

In his day-to-day duties, Sutter, like a true assistant who labors in anonymity, thoroughly enjoys coaching the linemen, the "faceless entities" of every football team.

"WE CALL them the grubbers, because they're down in the dirt, digging in the trenches," he said. "They're the non-heroes. I enjoy having them work hard and develop."

Despite his coaching ability, Sutter has chosen to stay at Harrison rather than become a head coach somewhere else. Many point to the Herrington, Sutter and another longtime assistant; Bob Sallow - for the team's repeated success. Herrington is 166-40-1 in 20 years as the school's only head coach, and the Hawks were 106-9 in the 1980s.

"I'm not that good at organizational detail and all the other things that go along with being a head coach," Sutter said. "I had a couple opportunitles but decided to stay at Harrison. We were having too much fun over there."

Another reason for the Harrison program's ability to stay on top for so long is the mesh of personalities among the coaches. Herrington, according to Sutter, is the organizer

Monkey business

Being a cutup helps kids have fun while learning

By Bridgette M. Daniels special writer

EW PEOPLE HAVE get a job for their ability to walk and make noises like a monkey, but Maureen Schiffman of Novi made her transition from teaching junior high to becoming a children's entertainer by doing just that.

Schiffman was applying for a pre-school teacher's job and the interviewer told her to mingle with the children.

She went over to some of the boys and girls who were not participating in any of the activities and asked them if they could walk like a monkey. When they said no, she demonstrated.

The youngsters were delighted, and the interviewer told her she was hired.

Working with the children during the lunch hour at Akiva Hebrew Day School, she began to develop a movement and puppet program -- impairments to play instruments. that bloomed into her entertainment business.

SCHIFFMAN GIVES puppet and music shows for children of all ages. The shows, ranging in length from 45 minutes to an hour, are written around such themes as "The Animal Fair," "African Safari," "Travel Through Time" and "This Must Be Mexico." In each show Schiffman tries to address issues such as self-esteem, racism and child abuse. Her monkey puppet, Coco, is very hesitant when first brought out, Schiffman said. When the children say he is shy, she tells them there is nothing wrong with being quiet and not wanting to participate.

"I try to cut through the labels. When you're given a label, you conform to it," Schiffman said. "You get into a niche and you have to be able to break out of the shell."

When she asks which children want to help her in a song or puppet show, she picks the ones who are not raising their hands.

IN GETTING THEM to participate, she tries to boost their selfesteem and let their classmates and friends see worth in the "shy" child.

"I choose kids with physical handicaps, or who don't have nice clothes," she said. "I choose kids that might be embarrassed, (because) once you're on stage you're a star Other kids see something in them they didn't see before."

Doing a show at a special education camp, she picked children with visual impairments to do the puppet show and children with hearing

For a child in a wheelchair, she put her portable puppet theater on the chair so he could participate.

In one of her shows, Schiffman uses the story of Noah's Ark to try to teach racial acceptance to the children.

THE DOVE PUPPET becomes lonely when her partner is sent out to search for land. Noah tells the cats to be friends with her, and that if she is missing, he will know who is responsible. When land is found, the cats and doves continue to live together because they have become friends. "When they're forced to be together, enemies become friends," Schiffman recently released a video cassette of a live performance at the Farmington-Farmington Hills Community Center and an audio cassette of her songs.

Schiffman said. "It's the same with blacks, whites, Jews and non-Jews,' Feelings accompanying child abuse also are explored indirectly through the use of well-known stories or songs.

Schiffman will tell the story of the Three Bears, mixing up words and facts throughout the tale. Instead of saying Goldilocks saw three beds, she will say she saw three bathtubs and continue until one of the children stops her.

WHEN A CHILD-tries to correct her, she becomes intimidating and insists she said beds and not bathtubs.

'It stresses getting along with people, being assertive." she said. 'The kid may be intimidated they have to be strong enough to say no to an adult."

If the child accepts her bullying, she will turn to another child and ask, "I said beds, didn't I?"

them with a feeling of intimidation," she said.

PUPPETS ARE only one of the props Schiffman uses to entertain. She also includes instruments for children to play. Her primary instrument is the mandolin, but she also plays guitar, piano and several string instruments.

Coco has his own house where the windows change according to the show's theme and season. She uses large umbrellas to add color and hide her props.

When she sings the song "I'm Being Swallowed by a Boa Constrictor," she has a metallic snake that swallows her up.

"There is no break in the show. I 'keep it going all the time," Schiffman said. "When a song is done, I pick up a puppet. Two- and 3-yearolds sit for 45 minutes and I keep their attention."

Sometimes the most simple things are overlooked and taken for granted. For instance, people in the civilized world eat food with utensils. Those utensils vary depanding on the culture. Chopsticks are used by oriental countries and knives and forks. by western countries. But even those people that use knives and forks use them in different ways. Europeans often hold their forks in their left hands and retain the knife in their right for cutting. Americans, on the other hand, switch their forks back to their right hand . after they have finished cutting with racing through your yard, are their knife...

So it should not be a great surprise to know that animals eat their food in different ways, and that they must learn how to eat.

Squirrels that we see in our backyards must learn how to open a nut in an efficient manner. They automatically gnaw at it and eventuallyextract the meat from the inside, but after practicing, they learn how to extract the nut meat more effectively. Close examination reveals that not all squirrels open their nuts in the same way. Large squirrels, such as gray squirrels, have jaws strong , enough to snap off chunks of shell with their lower incisors after they gnawed a hold in the shell.

Red squirrels, or the "fur-rari" smaller, and open acorns in a different-manner.-Disgarded shells from the red squirrel have gnawed openings from opposite sides of the acorn. They look as though a person took a single large bite from opposite sides of an apple.

Smaller squirrels, like the chipmunk and the flying squirrel, clean out the meat like we clean a pump-. kin. They remove the top third of the. shell in order to get inside.

Examining the shell remains of feeding areas along fence rows, or on favorite logs, may reveal who had come to dinner.

His artistry in furniture melds form and function

By Joan Boram special writer

If you haven't seen the Wendell Castle show yet, don't read this article.

Right now, put on your hat-and galoshes and make tracks for the Detroit Institute of Arts. Delight in the wonderful, witty creations of sculptor/furniture-maker Wendell Castle. Probably the only furniture you'll ever see that you want to hug or at least stroke.

But keep in mind that Castle is to furniture what a Daimler is to transportation or Fred Astaire to hoofing.

Not that it isn't functional. Castle insists that every piece in the show has been in use right up until the day it entered the current retrospective (his first). Indicating an oak, walnut and birch chest of drawers, made in 1962 as a graduate school project, he said: "A man has kept his underwear in that for years.'

There are 41 pieces in the show, arranged in chronological order. The show begins with an Eamesian chair that Castle made for himself because he needed furniture. The "rooted" chest of drawers came from the same period, before he knew he was seriously interested in furniture-making.

CASTLE, WHO HAS a background industrial design and sculpture, was one of the first artists to create a whole body of work using stack-lamination. This means he glued layers of wood together and then carved out the design. These earlier pieces don't have traditional joinery, partly because the lamination made it unnecessary, but also because just he didn't know how.

The articulate Castle lectured and wrote frequently about his lamination techniques. Other craftsmen began to emulate him, with the result that lamination became practically synonymous with American handcrafted furniture in the 1970s.

As a child growing up in Holton, Kan., Wendell Castle was particularly interested in drawing and model making.

lift out to reveal hollowed-out storage areas. The piece illustrates Castle's basic philosophy - that furniture and sculpture can be the same thing.

Castle's wry sense of humor is evident in many of his pieces. One that he is particularly proud of is titled "Ghost (1985)." It looks like a grandfather clock covered with a sheet, but it's a solid block of wood. Castle borrowed an 18th century grandfather clock from an antique store, covered it with a sheet and duplicated every fold and line exactly. A carved "string" gives the piece a waistline. "It fools 100 people out of 100," he said.

Castle's own dining room table (1985) wears gold "earrings" underneath and rests on leather-covered cones. Cones, he explains, are his version of columns, but they are delicate where they support the table and grow enormous at the floor the reverse of traditional table legs. "The earrings. . . are are extra dots to throw you off if yoù should decide to connect them. Castle has obviously been told once too often of the connection between Henry Ford II and this particular aphorism. (After all, this is Detroit.) He is quick to point out that The Deuce didn't invent the words, they've been around a long time. In fact, they're his own mot-

You must understand that Castle's work is sensuous, tactile, emotional. Pictures can't convey any of this. No matter how many pictures you've seen, you haven't experienced the real thing. (Think of a still photo of Astaire.) So what are you waiting for?

Furniture by Wendell Castle is open to the public without charge from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday (closed Monday and holidays).

There's a famous photograph by Arnold Newman of Piet Mondrian standing in front of a Mondrian painting. Mondrian was a Mondri-

It's just that, in an age where 'eclectic" is the rallying cry of interior design, Castle's furniture demands its own space. It has presence. These are not ensemble pieces. If you put a Castle piece in a room full of furniture, it won't get up and walk out, the other furniture will just disappear.

One of the most sensuous pieces in the show, a graceful desk and chair made from vermillion wood, dates (1985) from this period. The desk has no drawers. Rather, the hinged side pieces on either side

THE TOP OF THE TABLE is holly veneer with inalid purplewood triangles. Inset plastic dots, if connected, would spell out "Never complain, never explain." There an - all angles, and kind of starklooking.

In the same way, Wendell Castle is like Castle furniture - wilty, spare, elegant. See for yourself. He will return to Detroit to conduct a walk-through discussion of the exhibition at 3 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 4, - the closing day of the show.

Historic/modern instrument debate continues

By Thomas M. Kuras special writer

There is an ongoing controversy about the use of historical instruments (or copies) to perform music of the past.

Some critics immediately dismiss such performances as sterile and arid, unmusical and unexpressive. Others hall any such programs as more accurate and satisfying than performances using modern instruments. The truth, as usual, lies somewhere in between.

The emergence of the long-playing record in the 1950s coincided with the first wave of "historical performance" awareness. The ploneering work of the Dolmetsch Ensemble and especlally the revolutionary recordings by the

A return to simpler, less complex music -(and the rise in popularity of that most basic of instruments, the recorder) must not be isolated from the world of the '50s and '60s. Think of the years of hippies, "flower power," and return to nature that have born fruit today in our consciousness about our environment and food additives

MERELY PERFORMING on a historical instrument doesn't ensure any closer understanding of the music. But feeling how the instrument responds when playing music dating from the time the instrument was created can yield insights otherwise kept secret to performers,

Often the problem is that the listener is uncomfortable with the unknown. Expectations hang heavily in the problem of performance practice. If one goes to a barbecue, formal wear and chicken cordon bleu are out of place. To criticize the serving of hot dogs and hamburgers at such an outdoor event because one was hoping to have yeat Parmesan is unfair to the hosts.

Many concert goers hope to hear something other than what is being offered. To compare a Vivaldi concerto with the Beethoven or Brahms concertos is not germane to any musical appreciation.

Flashy autoshow poster revs up interest

By Keith Postier staff writer

The 1990 North American International Autoshow will hold special intemories for Ross Roy graphics designer Ken Michalik.

Michalik, whose talent has been put to use for the Detroit Symphony Orchestral Michigan Bell and the State of Michigan, was recently named winner of the 1990 NAIA poster contest.

"It's real nice. It was a real. surprise when it happened," he said bf the award. "I consider myself real fortunate. The timing was right and people were looking for certain things.'

THE "CERTAIN things" people were looking for - the panel of Judges who chose between dozens of entries - turned out to be Michalik's eye-catching design that features an . auto show logo in flat black, layered

- on a gloss black background with a series of eight colorful futuristic car outlines silhouetted against a repeating pattern of the logo.

One of the logos is superimposed on a pink marble background to make it stand out and give it'a clas? sic touch, he said.

Michalik, who says he has always wanted to design an auto poster, wanted his creation to be different. from others in the past.

"I really didn't compare it to any of the others, but what I ended updoing was comparing it to others of that stature - like the Grand Prix posters," he said. "I was trying to create an international flavor, and I think it needed something. I think it needed to have dramatics - to catch your eye with the bright colors. It kind of makes you stop and look at it."

THE COLORS, INDEED, catch the eye, as do each of the eight car silhouettes. If you use your imagingtion and look closely enough, Fou will see North American and European influences in the silhouettes present and future.

There, a 21st century-era Chevrolet Corvette. How about a heart thumping Ferrari? Perhaps a brut-Ish Jaguar? Or maybe - well, you get the picture.

Designing the poster presented many challenges, he said. He had to create auto silhouettes that were non-descript enough to attract upscale buyers, but conservative enough to draw the tradional sect.

To meet the challenge, Michalik used flowing, aerodynamic lines for the bodies and traditional box designs for the windows and bumpers. Then, of course, there are the colors - pink, white, green, off-yellow, blue, bright yellow, red and brown.

Detroit figures prominently in the design. Each of the 30 autoshow logos have "Detroit" spelled out across the bottom and are replicas of the Cobo Center facade.

Michalik said he worked on the poster for about a month, and it has received favorable response so far. But what about public perception?

"I HOPE THE public will like it, you never know," he said. "You never know what the magic formula is, but when I sat down to design the poster I said. 'Let's do something to make Detroit proud.'."

He is a native of Garfield, Ohio, and lives in Ypsilanti. He earned a bachelor's degree in fine arts from Bowling Green State University and a master of arts degree in design from Eastern Michigan University.

The award brings with it tremendous recognition and a $5,000 first prize. In addition to gracing the cover of a special Detroit Free Press NAIA section this month, it will also be on display at an auto show that could attract more whan one-half million spectators, many of whom will stop, look at the poster and say, "Hey, I saw that car in my neighborhood.'

MY FIRST CHOICE" And for so many reasons!

"I needed the location, Grand River and Drake is perfect. I had to be close to the expressways and convenient to downtown Farmington Hills. Plus, I love jogging along the nature trails."

And then there is the clubhouse and all those scheduled activities, the resort-like pool and spa and the most beautiful grounds believable.

The old South comes to life in new house

By Louise Okrutsky staff writer

THE REPORT OF THE PARTY OF THE

When clients asked Cambridge Builders and architect Walter Melonio to reproduce a historic home, the challenge lay in providing modern amenities in an unobtrusive fashion.

The owners, husband and wife history buffs, settled on reproducing Dean Hall, built in 1827 by a cotton and rice plantation owner in South Carolina. It was chosen after Melonio and the couple looked over their snapshots of various historic homes from different eras.

"They had taken pictures of Victorians, Georgians. They really did the whole eastern seaboard," Melonio said.

Victorian homes were dropped from consideration because the cost of replicating the ornate details found in those homes was too high for the couples' budget.

Instead they settled on the brick raised cottage style house built by Yale-educated planter William A. Carson.

They chose the house at the same time they found a lot for it in Pheasant Hills subdivision, Northville. Bordered on two sides by wetlands which can't be disturbed, the lot suits a home originally built in the rural South.

Dean Hall was located originally on the site of what became Cypress Gardens. The house has since been moved to Huspah Creek in Beaufort County, near Hilton Head, S.C. With the lot, the reproduction cost approximately $400,000. As in the original, the upper floor rests on 20 arches. The arcaded basement is used for storage and the upper floors are devoted to living space. In deference to late 20th century amenities, an attached garage was added to the reproduction. Attached to the main house by a small breezeway that contains an extra bath, the garage echoes the shape and lines of the house without the brick arches under it. A curved window in the house's second story front is repeated on a smaller scale in the garage. Although the original includes a piazza, a covered porch on four sides of the house, the reproduction features it on three sides to accommodate the garage wing. Melonio based his design on a photograph-of the original house. He counted bricks to estimate the proportions of the house. "You have to almost think what the architect was thinking," Melonio said,

Judging from the photograph, he estimated the columns running along the porch measured 10 inches around at the top and tapered to eight inches. The wooden columns were specially made for the house at about $800 aplece.

When it came to reproducing the brick accents on the lower arches, Cambridge commissioned bricke without the series of holes the modern types contain. But the brick used throughout the house is a modern standard design that approximates the original.

Builders group hires go-between

By Gerald Frawley staff writer.

Local government and planning agencies are seeing a new face at many of their meetings: the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan has hired a go-between.

Marlin Rubin, former assistant planner at the Oakland County community and economic development. department, was hired at the end of October to act as a liaison between the association and township and city planning agencies.

Part of Rubin's job is to attend area planning commission meetings and keep the BASM abreast of new developments that might affect developers. But he will also act as an advocate for the group representing builders in what has become an unfriendly arena in recent years as nogrowth and slow-growth pressures escalate.

"I believe in balance. Whether it's a healthy diet or a healthy community, you've got to have balance," Rubin said. Helping to provide balance, he said, is what he hopes to accomplish.

In addition to meeting regularly with building department officials in communities with significant development, Rubin also intends to become active in local chambers of commerce and the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments planning committees.

"IT'S NIGHT and day, night and day," Rubin said of his recent switch per floors are devoted to living space. In deference to late 20th century amenities, an attached garage was added to the reproduction. Although the original includes a plazza, a covered porch on four sides of the house, the reproduction features it on three sides to accommodate the garage wing.

At the front entrance, the house features a small foyer common to the early 19th century. Instead of opening into the foyer, the stairway leads into the kitchen at the back of the house.

'We knew nothing about the interior," Melonio said. The back of the home contains a 30-by-18 foot kitchen with a fireplace and family room. The simple mantle of the fireplace is similar to those found in 19th century kitchens. It features fireplace cupboards on one side which hide a television and VCR. Modern kitchen cabinets and a cook top take up the work side of the room. French doors lead to a rear porch.

The front parlor features a fivefoot-tall hand-crafted oak mantle over the fireplace.

Upstairs over the garage, the master bedroom's sloping ceiling gives it an antique feel. Connected with the bedroom by a dressing room with a walk-in closet, the bath contains a whirlpool tub and a walk-in shower.

(AP) - Sears, Roebuck and Co. vision show starring home repair expert Bob Vila, who was forced to leave his long-running program on the Public Broadcasting Service earlier this year, Kathy Gucfa, a spokeswoman for Sears, said the new television show, tentatively named Home Again with Bob Vila," will be co-sponsored by Sears and syndicated nationally. Vila also has been signed as the exclusive spokesman for all Sears home improvements products, Gucfa said.

The new weekly half-hour show plans to finance and syndicate a tele-it will feature do-it-yourself remodeling jobs the average consumer can afford. It's scheduled to air in the spring.

Vila was host of the Emmy Award-winning "This Old House" on PBS from its national debut in 1979 -until early last spring, when his annual contract was not renewed. --

Vila had been doing commercials for a competitor of a major local underwriter of the show, which is produced by WGBH-TV in Boston, said Daphne Noyes, publicist for "This Old House."

from the public to the private sector. Although the jobs seem similar - at the county Rubin gathered information and helped attract development to the county - his position as environmental and community relations for BASM takes on more of an advocacy position, he said.

"I'm not just gathering and disseminating, but speaking out as well. Basically, what I'm doing is creating a gaison position - to improve comminication between association members and communities in which development is happening.

(There are certain proposals being put forward that impact association members - especially those that revolve around no growth." A those that restrict development gare becoming increasingly com-

CLUSTER HOME and planned unit development ordinances are two examples of ordinances that provide a sophisticated measure of protection, he said. ____

When a developer proposes a project, it's not uncommon for vocal minorities to oppose it and intimidate governing bodies to deny zoning or site plan approvals. "No one is there to counter their arguments."

"Much of what they're proposing is unfair." No-growth restrictions limit the land owner's right to control his own property, the developer's right to build, and a resident's

1. Cive the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or Job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is verý interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.
