McDonald's plans worry homeowners

Blockbuster Video is out, McDonald's is on the way in and residents of a northeast Westland neigh: borhood are concerned - again.

A three-year battle over commercial development at the southeast corner of Joy and Merriman that appeared to end last September when the Westland City Council approved site plans for a convenience store and strip mall has reignited.

Construction of the 7-Eleven store is scheduled to begin this spring. But the Blockbuster store, which was to have been the major tenant of the mall, backed out of the deal and developer Glenn Shaw sold his portion of the property to McDonald's in

They are worried about increased noise, traffic, trash and vandalism and decreasing property values.

'THIS IS worse than what was previously approved," one resident said this week in a phone call to the Observer. "With a convenience store we wouldn't be hearing (drivethrough) orders on the speaker late at night or early in the morning."

Also concerned are Livonia Public Schools officials, who agree in part with residents that the proposed restaurant would present "a nuisance

A 4-year-old boy picked up a shoe polisher at a neighbor's home and started polishing the wall.

When the boy's mother found out about her son's black wall smudge, she found herself in a quandary. Should she punish her son? After all, in her home, those kind of devices are kept hidden away, so a similar incident most likely would not have happened. But in the neighbor's house, the shoe polisher was left lying in the same room where children played, a tempting object for a young, in-

McDonald's will need special use approval and site plan approval for the proposed restaurant from the Westland City Council.

No public hearings have been scheduled yet and a McDonald's spokesman estimated Tuesday that the earliest possible construction start would be next fall, but spring 1991 would be more likely, he said.

SHAW SAID Tuesday he reluctantdy sold to McDonald's when it looked like the mall wouldn't materialize. He said he rebuffed the fast-food franchiser when it first approached him last October and agreed to the deal "only because they concurred to continue to meet with homeowners and abutting property owners." He declined to disclose the selling price for the property.

A preliminary site plan presented to residents. Tuesday showed a restaurant that would seat 100-110 people, 74 parking spaces and landscaping over 20 percent of the site, more than a typical fast-food operation, according to McDonald's officials.

The traffic flow will be in a horseshoe pattern through the parking lot, entering and exiting on Joy, said Bernie Whitman, a McDonald's spokesman. Some traffic, including employees, will also enter from Merriman, he said.

"We set out to design a facility that architecturally is very pleasing, with perennial flowers and as many trees as possible," Whitman said.

"We hope we will be able to enhance that property and hopefully

You should understand that people who do not feel comfortable watching you hurt will necessarily avoid lengthy contact with you.

They do not know how to help and are afraid they may make things worse if they cannot respond in a "right" way and may not be able to bear the memory of their own past pains of loss.

Knowing this will help you to avoid becoming bitter and to later welcome these people back into your new life when the hurting period is over.

THE REFERENCES and reminders will eventually diminish. Some will never cease totally, but will no longer dominate thoughts or threaten conversations. As they do, your special protective social world will gradually and comfortably expand to include new, caring relationships.

Grief changes you. Life after death - even with all its many never be the same. It will definitely be different and new. May your new life be one of rich fulfillment and hope as you grow through grief.

Pasquel, director of Foundational Living Inc., may be contacted at 326-0354 about upcoming therapy classes.

Speakers nix charter change

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Wayne County Commissioners said they wanted public comment on their-plans to change the county executive's line of succession.

What they got from speakers at Tuesday's hearing at the Westland Freindship Center was a resounding Roughly 25 of the 30 people who spoke criticized commission plans to change the eight-year-old county charter. A group of commissioners is proposing a new requirement that would temporarily fill a vacancy in the executive's post by commission appointment, rather than letting the appointed deputy executive automatically advance to the post — as is now specified under the charter.

But many speakers criticized the estimated $2 million cost for a special election to amend the charter.

"WHEN WE talk about improvements to our quality of life, those numbers aren't there," said Joseph Benyo of Westland, liaison to the Westland City Council.

Others called the proposed change unnecessary.

"Any charter is an almost sacred document, it shouldn't be changed unless there's a compelling reason," said longtime League of Women Voters member Christine Sullivan of Dearborn Heights. "In short, if it isn't broke, don't fix it."

Deputies union president Don Cox, speaking on behalf of all county unions, also said he opposed the amendment.

"Let's face it, we're competing for that $2 million," Cox said.

Those who support the amendment include the 15th District and Metro Wayne Democratic clubs and state Rep. William Kelth, D-Garden Commissioners Kay Beard, D-Inkster, Arthur Blackwell and Bernard Kilpatrick, both Democrats of Detroit, conducted hearings on the proposed charter amendment, which they support. A second hearing was held Wednesday in Detroit.

sioner Milton Mack, D-Wayne.

Under Mack's proposal, the executive and deputy would run as a team - as do the governor and lieutenant

"I think this proposal is simpler, costs less and is more democratic," said Mack, whose district includes Canton.

A spokesman for County Executive Edward McNamara said after the meeting that the executive favors the statis quo - and is willing. to spend his own campaign money to preserve it.

"Our feeling is that it should remain as it is," sald assistant county executive Bryan Amann. "As for the Mack proposal, I suppose we could live with that, but we'd make defeating the Beard-Blackwell proposal a priority."

Though criticized in some quarters as a move springing from political ambition, veteran commissioner Beard said the proposal came about as a result of long standing concerns,

"Many of us were unhappy with this part of the charter when it was drafted," said Beard, whose district includes Westland and Garden City.

The commissioners said the change would allow the new executive to be someone who had met approval with at least a portion of county voters before advancing to

MORE THAN 100 people attended the hearing, with the audience spilling over into a hallway. Most speakers were from downriver and western Wayne communities.

Several speakers criticized the hearing format - in which panelists Beard, Blackwell and Kilpatrick questioned speakers after their comments - calling the questioning of speakers intimidating and combat-

"I'm very disappointed with the way this hearing has been conducted," said Ronaele Bowman of Livonia, a former candidate for Schoolcraft College trustee.

Beard, however, said the hearing was conducted as a meeting of the While speakers generally opposed special committee investigating the any change, several expressed a ballot question. "This is the way slight preference for a competing committee meetings are conducted,"

REDUCE YOUR HANCES OF GETTING HEART DISEASE, KIDNEY DISEAS DR GOING

Obesity can start a chain reaction to poor health that can be devastating.

To begin with, most physicians and researchers consider obesity to be the major cause of diabetes in adults. Up to 90% of adults diagnosed as having diabetes, in fact, are overweight.

Of course, once you have diabetes your chances of developing heart disease, kidney disease, or going blind increase dramatically.

As a person with diabetes you'll be twice as prone to heart disease. 17 times as prone to kidney disease. And 25 times as prone to blindness, if you are insulin-dependent.

Diabetes, in fact, can shorten your life expectancy by one-third.

Fortunately, diabetes in adults, in most cases, can be prevented with careful weight control, healthy eating habits, and regular exercise.

So if you're overweight, doesn't it make sense to take off the extra weight? Instead of years off your life?

SOME residents still have American elms on their property, most of them destined to die of DED. But their lives may be extended if their owners take care of them. Like AIDS patients kept alive as long as possiwell. This at least gives replacement trees time to grow.

Prevention or treatment of DED, however, is expensive. "You're almost working like in veterinary medicine," Hart said. "The tree has to have some sort of pet value (to its owner)."

Mike Barger, owner of Mike's Tree Surgeons, said the best way to protect elms from DED is to keep them healthy through watering and pruning. Healthy elms, he said, are more resistant to DED.

- If a particular tree contracts the disease, Barger said, "It's almost like how cancer spreads." His company works to save elm trees from DED, but once a tree gets the disease, the treatment with drugs and surgery is similar to that for cancer in humans.

New law gives state board more power over schools

By Tim Richard staff writer

The State Board of Education.has new powers to oversee local school districts under a law signed by Gov. James J. Blanchard.

In an extreme case, the state may send in a special administrator to run a school that fails to meet the. State 'Board's accreditation standards for three years — or even close

The State Board also is empowered to draw up a "model core curriculum" that must be used by a kindergarten-through-12th-grade

'Tough new standards are needed if our children are to receive the education they need to succeed in the work place of tomorrow," Blanchard said as he signed House Bill 4009

"It also requires schools to develop improvement plans and issue annual education report cards."

THE LAW, amending the state school code, stops short of requiring particular courses. But it does require schools to set knowledge goals or lose state aid.

The House voted 74-3 in favor on final passage. Voting no were Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, and two outstate members.

High schools will be allowed to hire non-certified teachers for such specialized courses as computer science, a foreign language, biology, chemistry, engineering, physics and robotics where certified teachers are unavailable.

The non-certified teacher would need a college degree and work experience in the subject area.

dle and high school.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS could forfeit a portion of their state aid if they fail to make annual reports.

Districts receiving no state aid (out of formula) would be eligible for incentive grants if they do well.

"School board members, school building administrators, teachers and other school employees, pupils; parents of pupils attending that school, and other residents of the school district shall participate" in drawing up the improvement plan, the law says.

The new act combines features of many bills sponsored by Democrats and Republicans in the Legislature.

The final measure was sponsored by Rep. James O'Neill, D-Saginaw. Among co-sponsors were area Reps. Justine Barns, D-Westland, William Keith, D-Garden City; and James Kosteva, D-Canton.

Dems face utility tax decisions

By Tim Richard staff writer

House Democrats in Lansing must decide what price they want to pay for Senate Republican passage of a 5 percent utility tax for the city of De-

"Some sort of package has to be worked out if this bill is going anywhere," Sen. Norm Shinkle, R-Monroe, chair of the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee, warned recent-

Meanwhile, Sen. Doug Cruce, R. Troy, held the GOP line by arguing there was "no urgency" to pass the utility tax, which is earmarked for 1 000 police salaries Cruce said Detroit Mayor Coleman Young "prefers to pay for Uzi machine guns and bulletproof shields on his patio," and Detroit councilmembers prefer new cars for themselves, over keeping police on the payroll.

In the middle of it, Sen. Richard Fessler, R-Commerce, incurred the wrath of his caucus by siding with Democrats in an unsuccessful bid to force the Detroit tax out of Shinkle's committee.

THE PRICES the GOP will demand could be either passage by the Democrat-controlled House of a Senate-passed bill to repeal the inheritance tax (SB 1) or support of a GOP property tax relief measure.

Wayne Circuit Judge Marvin Stempien last month declared that Detroit's 5 percent tax on local telephone, natural gas, electricity and steam bills had expired in mid-1988. If his ruling stands, Detroit would have to refund $100 million of past collections and lose $60 million a year in future collections.

As lawmakers argued Tuesday, Stempien extended into April his deadline for legislative re-enactment of the tax.

IN FARMINGTON Hills, Richard Headlee, the insurance executive whose name is on the Headlee tax limitation amendment, declared the Legislature lacks power to reinstate

· "Only the people of Detroit can decide with a majority vote whether the 5 percent utility users tax will be legally reinstated," he said through a publicist. "The state constitution is not negotiable."

. Headlee contends that because the tax expired, the restoration bill is a new tax, hence subject to a popular vote under the Headlee amendment... Detroit's attorneys, however, say It's an extension of a tax passed eight years before the Headlee amendment.

On the Senate floor, Cruce said the lax isn't needed because Detroit's leadership could find the lost $60 million somewhere in its $1.3 billion general fund budget -- The administration plays a shell game by taking money out of the general fund and supplanting it with this utility tax," Cruce said. >$\infty

SENATE DEMOCRATS failed on an 18-17 vote to force Shinkle's panel to discharge House Bill 5495, authorlzing the utility tax.

All Republicans but Fessler voted no. All Democrats but maverick Gil DiNello of East Detroit voted yes. Three members were absent.

"I made a commitment six or seven weeks ago I would support getting It on the floor," Fessler said in a cloakroom interview. "It would have a severe impact on law enforcement in Detroit (if not passed)."

He said he took heat in the GOP caucus, which met behind closed doors for more than three hours, for his position.

SENATE MAJORITY leader John Engler, the probable GOP gubernatorial candidate, told reporters 'other members are unhappy" that Fessler introduced two property tax relief bills Tuesday and, with Democratic support, won immediate consideration of them without going through the Finance Committee.

"He (Fessler) did it on his own today,'' Engler said. In the cloakroom, Fessler denied he supported the Democrats' utility tax in return for immediate consideration of his property tax bills. Fesslers SB 895 and 896 would give homeowners and farmers, regardless of income, income tax relief for future school property tax increases greater than the rate of consumer price inflation. The state freasury estimates the cost at $50

Money issue

Limit ballot to tax renewal

HE WAYNE-Westland school board, employees and community have some difficult decisions to make in the next few

The school board, stung by an overwhelming rejection of three tax proposals on Feb. 8, will decide soon if any of the proposals should be put back on the scheduled June 11 board election ballot.

We hope only that the 2.75-mill renewal is put before the voters. While-it was defeated two months ago, it was by a smaller margin than the tax increase and Headlee override proposal.

In addition, the renewal constitutes an extension of an existing tax levy approved by voters two years ago.

If approved, the tax rehewal would generate $4 million, which would allow the board and administration to put off a large part of the staff and program cuts announced last month.

If there are no other tax issues on the ballot, school employees will have to realize that they may not get the pay raises enjoyed by their counterparts in other districts.

The number of co-workers laid off will depend on the size of the pay raises gained through collective bargaining this summer and fall.

ON A RELATED issue, students — mostly from Wayne Memorial High School - should be commended for Thursday's protest of cuts in extracurricular activities. While the students may not understand the complexities of school finance, they did understand that their typicalschool day may be substantially changed.

Those students do care about the type of education they receive, including the extracurricular programs, which are important to junior and senior high schools.

The voters' message in the past two elections is clear: no more tax increases. _ - ---

However, students must also realize that when cuts have to be made, it is extracurricular programs that have to go first rather than mathematics, science, English and other core subjects.

If parents and other taxpayers say they don't want to pay more property taxes for any reason, then public officials must follow that policy and decide how to implement it.

The state Legislature won't come to the school district's rescue, as it has promised in past years. While local legislators are supportive of revamping the school aid formula to help districts such as Wayne-Westland, they are in the minori-

While we and school officials can complain about the unfairness of the state-aid formula, the noise won't solve anything.

IN RECENT years, federal judges have ruled that some state school financing systems may not be fair, but schools don't have a constitutional right to equal financing.

In the meantime, it will be up to local voters to decide what kind of a school system they want. Last November and again in early February, local residents voted overwhelmingly against any tax increases, even rejecting a modest state sales tax increase.

Those were clear messages that the community wants public officials to hold the line on taxes and that enough is enough.

If voters do support a local property tax increase for schools, then they should make sure the school board knows that and be prepared to support it during the upcoming campaign.

FOIA assault

Bill would create caste system

FICHIGAN LEGISLATORS are about to compound an error they made last year in tinkering with one of the sunshine laws, the Freedom of Infor-

A single company bullied lawmakers into passing an exemption to the FOIA that would make secret the records any company submitted to the Workers Compensation Bureau in support of its application for self-insured status. Its unsupported alibi was that the information was "sensitive." Certain injury forms also were exempted in PA 104 of 1989.

BUT WAIT! Now the state Senate has decided it went too far and is rewriting the exemption. But instead of repealing the bad law, Senate Bill 240 would allow only Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan to have access to the injury forms.

It's like a page out of George Orwell's satirical novel "Animal Farm" in which the pigs declare: "All animals are created equal, but some are more equal than others." Until now, a guiding principle of our open Hiding public records was bad enough, but piggishly opening them up to one caste is even worse.

records law has been that public information is available to the public, period. Senate Bill 240, however, sets up a caste system. The "Blues" are in the favored caste. The rest of us are left out.

Sponsor Fred Dillingham, R-Fowlerville, guided this bill through his Senate Human Resources. Committee. The proper forum would have been the Judiciary Committee, whose members are better attuned to assaults on the sunshine law. It passed the Senate.

In the House, SB 240 went through the Labor Committee, not Judiciary. At this writing, SB 240 is on the House calendar. It should be junked, and so should PA 104 which it would amend.

Hiding public records was bad enough, but piggishly opening them up to one caste is even

School materials

Screen them but don't censor

THE TRAGIC hanging death of an 8-yearold Canton Township boy March 24 has touched off a nerve among parents all over southeastern Michigan and caused reverberations in public schools as well.

The question on everybody's mind? Did the film "Nobody's Useless" — which has two fairly graphic scenes depicting unsuccessful suicide attempts and which Stephen Nalepa and his second grade classmates at Gallimore Elementary School viewed the day before his death - play a role in the incident?

The boys' parents feel it did. School officials and the film's distributor, Encyclopedia Britannica Educational Corp., say it didn't. They point out that the movie, which focuses on positive terials and exclude their children to anything ways to deal with physical disabilities, has been—they find morally objectionable. shown to hundreds of thousands of children without incident since it was made in 1980. Nonetheless, the distributor took the movie off the market last week.

What, if anything, the film's showing had to to with Stephen's actions is a difficult question to answer, if it can be answered at all.

WE SUGGEST instead the community adopt a broader approach to the situation in its effort to prevent similar tragedies. Specifically, local schools and parents need to find ways to keep lines of communication as open as possible.

No, parents shouldn't have veto power over which materials are used in the classroom. Under the Michigan public education system, that's a job that residents delegate to school board members and professional educators.

But parents should (and in many local districts they do) have the right to review classroom ma-

That means that school officials have an obligation to screen all classroom materials and inform parents of questionable material, something that Plymouth-Canton school officials admit wasn't done in this ease.

A quick incident tells a society's sad story

THE WORLD is getting uncomfortably small.

This week fresh back from a stay at my favorite hideaway on Florida's Sanibel Island, I was shocked back to reality.

As a colleague and I pulled into the parking lot of a local hotel we heard the shouts, "you're under arrest, this is a drug raid, get down on the ground."

Looking up we saw four men, armed with M-16s and other assorted weapons running in our direction. It only took a few seconds to realize that an individual a few vehicles down the row was the target of their displeasure.

My colleague and I stood frozen, the safety of the hotel lobby seeming far, far away and our vehicles feebly substituting as armor from the potential of ricocheting bullets from high-powered assault weapons. A distant yet familiar feeling, not experienced since my combat days in Vietnam, swept over-me.

""THIS COULD be trouble," I joked with myself. For me relieving the tension of combat was always through humor. It was nothing intentional, purely instinctive. I remember how shocked I was after the first time it happened more than 20 years ago. After all, nobody in the movies ever joked during combat.

It was only after the combat situation was completed that the more 'normal" emotions came back, the ones you and I as regular folks imagine we would feel under the circumstances - fright, anger, regret and resentment. After the federal drug enforcement officials had apprehended their man, I nervously laughed (another strange habit). The agents glared our way, not appreciating the humor. "Guess this isn't the place to be," I said to my colleague with a smile. They glared again. ("C'mon Barnaby, shut up," I told myself, "let's get . out of here.")

WE DID get out, to the hotel. I looked back, through the window, once again feeling all the emotions we imagine we should feel under those circumstances.

Anger, more than anything else, predominated. I felt assaulted. Once again, some slime bag drug dealer, interested in only making a lot of money had invaded my space, my society, violated my image of what the world should be like.

I wanted to go back out in the parking lot and punch the big creep in the chops. Naturally, I didn't.

The entire incident reminded me once again how much the greed involved in drug peddling has screwed. up our society.

I watched the agents doing their job, catching this one drug pusher who today is probably back out on the street destroying lives, including his own. And I realized that while they were arresting this one guy, dozens of other pushers were plying their trade within miles, unnoticed and unapprehended.

My humor was gone. The anger flagged.

Resentment set in as I remembered that just miles away the President of the United States was in town, blindly campaigning for his party, unaware of the invasion that had just happened in my community.

Students get bad message

To the editor:

Recently, some Wayne-Westland Community School students staged a walk out in protest to some of the "cuts" made by our school board. Although noble in gesture, the good realized from such a demonstration to their parents and teachers - I apserved little to the cause.

It did, however, succeed in disrupting the educational process. For several days prior to the incident a great deal of classroom time was spent dissuading our young adults from this course of action: assemblies were called, announcements were made, discussions were held and numerous redresses were debat-

I'm sure many parents, along with myself, discussed this situation with their children, before the walk out occurred. I am as equally convinced that parents and teachers alike attempt to instill into their children certain "values" like accepting responsibility for their actions, or being prepared to pay the price when they do wrong.

The students were informed that a walk out was in violation of the Student Code of Conduct — and that those who participated would receive the appropriate suspension.

When the walk out was over, not only were the students bused back to the appropriate buildings — but were then granted "amnesty" if they would only return to the classrooms. - What message was sent to those who listened to their parents and teachers; those who did not walk out? Did we just tell them that it's OK to disrupt the educational process? Did we just tell them that it's OK to demonstrate whenever and wherever they please? Did we just tell them that it's OK to break the rules — that they won't be punished? For those young adults who listen-

Bonus smart?

Buy out offer makes a lot of cents

Q: Our school district is going to give an $18,000 bonus to teachers who are eligible to retire this year. As a teacher, I don't begrudge those who have served children for 30 or more years this benefit. However, many of my teacher peers who have many more years to work before refirement are upset. We are a district just barely getting by and to pay a one time bonus for up to 20 teachers just doesn't make sense. We need new textbooks and materials. We also admit some selfishness because the money the retirees get is money that won't be available for a new contract next year. I know many taxpayers that are also upset. Why do school boards and administration enter into these agreements?

A: To save money. In your particular district the cost of 20 teachers receiving an $18,000 retirement bonus will cost $360,000. The board and administration plan to hire 15 new teachers at starting salaries of $23,000 to replace the retirees. Three positions will not be replaced. Therefore, the cost of the 15 new teachers is $345,000.

In your case, the savings grow each year until the new teachers reach the maximum salary level. Look at the second year. The new teachers in your district will be paid about $25,000. The cost of those 15 teachers will be $375,000 in the sec-

Had the 20 teachers not retired the cost to the district would be approximately $920,000. The district will 1981. save $545,000 the second year.

Even assuming five of the 20 teachers who were eligible for retirement do not retire the district would still save $315,000 in the second year alone. So, in most cases, the bonus is not a benevolent gesture by a school district but a sound business decision — one in which both the district and retiring teacher benefits.

plans that were line for teachers put cost the district lots of money.

For instance, one district many years ago, gave a pay out from age 35 to 62 for about $4,000 a year. Declining enrollment set in and no new teachers were hired. Lay offs went back to 10 years of seniority. Now you have a situation where money was going out to the retirees yet no

Fallout from Ratgate

THE SPECTER of ethics has raised its ugly head again - this time in Rochester Hills.

Hills Council President Betty Adamo, who first started talking about the subject during the election campaign last year, wants to study the possibility of an ethics ordinance covering city officials.

So far that's all it is — a proposal to study the feasibility of such a law.

And Adamo says it's only coincidental that she brought the subject councilman, Ed Baron, is at the center of a controversy that has been dubbed "Ratgate."

Whether Adamo's timing has anything to do with the Baron affair doesn't really matter. But what the councilman is accused of doing is clearly unethical behavior. The question is: If the accusation against him is true, did he do anything illegal?.

The Oakland County Prosecutor's office is conducting its own investigation to try do determine that. Presumably if the prosecutor decides that Baron broke any laws, some kind of action will be taken. If not, the matter likely will be dropped, at least as far as the prosecutor is con-cerned. *

Meanwhile, Adamo's proposal is already getting mixed reaction. Hills Mayor Billie Ireland likes the idea,

Should ballot fill county executive vacancy?

By Kay Beard special writer

WAYNE COUNTY citizens may soon be able to vote on a ballot question to amend - and improve their County Home Rule Charter for the third time since its adoption in

This new ballot question would ask whether or not a special election. should be held, if there is ever a vacancy during a county executive's regular four-year term, as a result of resignation, recall, permanent incapacity, or death.

I do not really expect there to be a mid-term vacancy in the office of county executive in the foreseeable However, I have also known some future. But it is possible at some schooldistricts drawn into retirement point in the years ahead, so a responplace.

> At present, the charter does not allow the voters to elect a successor in a timely manner if this office is vacated. Instead an appointee, the dep uty county executive, would automatically assume the office and hold it for up to two years, until the next regularly scheduled county election.

I BELIEVE that the office of county executive is too important to fill it by just shuffling an appointee upstairs. Furthermore, letting a county executive hand-pick an automatic successor would present a serious conflict, if the voters ever recalled whomever had been elected to

Therefore, citizens ought to be able to consider all the candidates. and directly choose the one they consider best for Wayne County. The goal of the proposed ballot question is, very simply, to let the voters themselves decide whether or not they want this opportunity.

In 1981, when the County Home Rule Charter was drafted, a process was included to make it a living document, by allowing the people to vote on proposed changes. This has already happened twice, when citi- regarding the 90-day transition perizens adopted charter amendments to eliminate the separate drain commission and the road commission.

Both amendments made governwho felt their independent power threatened.

Similarly, there is opposition to the current ballot question.

Unfortunately, its opponents have tried to mislead the public about its consequences and divert attention from its goal - to let the voters elect a new county executive, if necessary. Much of their criticism has focused on a minor provision of the bailot question, which states that the commission would appoint a temporary county executive to keep ongothan 90 days — until a new county executive is elected by the people.

If indicated by testimony at the public hearings, we may modify or even eliminate — the provision od. to ensure that attention is not diverted from our fundamental goal a special election.

Ironically, the procedure initially ment more accountable - and both proposed for transition was quite were resisted by special interests similar to current state law, which provides that the Commission makes a temporary appointment, to fill a vacancy which occurs in the first year of a Commissioner's two-year term. This appointee can only serve until voters choose a successor at a special election,

OPPONENTS of the ballot question have also complained that a special election is too costly. However, Michigan voters have traditionally favored direct participation in important decisions - even if it does cancy in the county executive's offing projects on course for no more mean paying for a special election. School and municipal millages, as well as candidates for school and city offices, are often voted on at times other than the regular August and November elections. Moreover, special elections are required by state law if a mid-term vacancy occurs in certain state offices.

The manufactured objections to the proposed ballot question, along with efforts to misconstrue its intent, lead me to suspect that those who hope to benefit by the status quo are very uncomfortable about an open, competitive election.

Nevertheless, I strongly believe that the electoral process strength. ens government - and keeps public officials responsive to the citizens they have an obligation to serve.

There's no shortage of springtime activities planned for children.

Visiting a science camp, seeing a theatrical performance at the DIA or exploring at the Detroit Historical Museum are among the options available to kids and their families. Some activities are designed for students on spring break. What follows is just a sampling.

Living Science

Thursday, April 5, 1990 O&E

The Living Science Foundation has several spring break activities planned. A "Discovery Camp" for children ages 5-11 will be held Monday through Friday, April 16-20, at the foundation's headquarters in Novi. Sessions are 9 a.m. to noon or 1-4 p.m. Price is $25 per session or $115 for all five days. For more . information, call 478-1999.

A "Science Sampler Camp" for children ages 5-11 will be offered through Bloomfield Hills Recreation Monday through Friday, April 16-20, at the E.L. Johnson Nature Center in Bloomfield Hills. Sessions will be held 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Price is $44 per day. For more information, call Bloomfield Hills Recreation, 433-

An "Animal Safari Camp" for children ages 5-11 will be offered Wednesday through Friday, April 18-20, at the Academy of the Sacred Heart in Bloomfield Hills. Sessions will be 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Price is $40 per day or $100 for all three days. Extended day care will be available 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. For more information, call the Academy of the Sacred Heart, 646-8900.

Each day at camp will have a different theme with related activities planned.

Detroit Youtheatre

In April, Detroit Youtheatre performances at the Detroit Institute of Arts will include a look at space exploration. Saturday, April 7, Kevin Reese of the Calisornia Theatre Center will relive the exhibitation of events leading to America's first moon launch.

In his "Apollo to the Moon" show, Reese portrays a young astronomer who dreams of becoming an astronaut. The multi-media production will include more than 100 photos, original downlink broadcasts from space, and music of the 1960s. The show, held on Boy Scout Salute Day, is recommended for children ages 8

April 14-21 Detroit Youtheatre will present 13 performances of "Snow White." Performances by Atlanta's Center for Puppetry Arts will combine life-sized rod puppets with an appearance by live actors. The Wiggle Club show is for children ages 3 and older.

Saturday, April 28, will include a presentation of "Two Weeks, Twice a Year," a play about a child who must adjust to divorce: The play's designed to help children articulate questions and feelings about divorce. The production is recommended for families or groups with children ages 7 and older.

All performances will be at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the DIA Auditorium, 5200 Woodward, Detroit. Other than for Wiggle Club shows, no one younger than 5 will be admitted. Ticket prices are $4, $3 for groups of 10 or more. Mastercard and Visa phone charges are available weekdays. For ticket information, call 833-2323.

The Jewish Community Center of Metropolitan Detroit will hold "Spring Days" Wednesday through Friday, April 18-20, at the center, 6600 W. Maple, at Drake in West Bloomfield. Each day, kids in kindergarten through sixth grade will go on a different funfilled adventure. Activities will include bowling, roller skating and a day with a magician. Children are to be dropped off at 9:30 a.m. and picked up at 3:30 p.m. Price is $25 a day for members, $30 for non-members. For more information, call 661-1000.

Spring Farm Days

"Spring Farm Days" will be held Friday through Sunday, April 27-29, at the Firestone Farm at Greenfield Village in Dearborn. Activities re-creating rural life of more than a century ago are planned.

Percheron draft horses Tim and Tom will be put to work plowing and harrowing to prepare the fields for planting. Seeds will be planted in the kitchen vegetable garden. In the village, visitors will encounter a citylady unaccustomed to the charms of country life.

At the farmhouse, visitors will learn how farm familles dealt with such problems as an empty larder at winter's end. Visitors will learn about what life was like without indoor plumbing and other modern-day comforts. Barnyard activities and demonstrations are also planned.

Henry Ford Museum features acres of exhibits telling the story of America's industrial growth. Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village are at Oakwood * Boulevard and Village Road in Dearborn, just west of the Southfield Freeway (M-39) and south of Michigan Avenue.

Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Admission charges (separate for the museum and the village) are $10.50 for adults, $5.25 for children ages 5-12, free for children younger than 5, $9.50 for senior citizens. Group rates are available. For more information, call 271-

Meadow Brook

Younger visitors may want to stop by the Knole Cottage at Meadow Brook Hall, off Adams Road south of University Drive on the Oakland University campus, Rochester. The Dodge heiress playhouse was built to mini-mansion scale and includes fine furnishings, a fireplace, a bathroom and a complete kitchen. The cotBrook Hall tour hours, Monday through Saturday by appointment and 1-4 p.m. Sunday.

Tours of Meadow Brook Hall, a Tudor manor house built by the late Matilda Dodge Wilson, are offered year-round in all kinds of weather. Group tours are offered daily year-round by appointment. For more information, call 370-3140.

Detroit History

An "Early American Easter Egg Dying" workshop will be held 1-3:30 p.m. Saturday, April 14, at the Detroit Historical Museum, 5401 Woodward at Kirby, Detroit. The workshop is for those ages 6 and older. Participants will dye Easter eggs just as early Detroiters did, using everyday foods. Price is $2. Advance regis tration is required. Your handwriting suggests a caring woman who likes to be active and involved. However, ambivalence

While you enjoy being involved in interpersonal relationships and daily activities, it is not to the exclusion of security and practicality.

Before becoming too involved, you may call on past experience or stop to consider whether your actions will threaten your security. In other words, you need to feel secure that there is a good chance for a successful outcome before attempting those things that are familiar.

It may also take you a little while to warm up to new acquaintances. You seem most at ease with those who share interests similar to your own. At times, you seem to feel divided between extending a helping hand to another or taking care of the home front.

ALTHOUGH YOU begin a task or project with interest, your initial effort is not always sustained. You may have second thoughts or regrets about your decision.

Cassini gets a quick start for his 'soft power'

By Sue Mason staff writer

It sounds more like strategy for a horse race than the market place, but then it's to be expected of a man who recently earned his professional harness racing license.

And while it's perfume, not horses, he's talking about, Oleg Cassini has landed smack dab in the middle of the winner's circle with "Cassini."

"I wanted to get out of the gate Cassini, who was in town last week ried by Saks Fifth Avenue. "I hoped pour for a miracle and it happened. It's been a fabulous introduction."

This is Cassini's first venture into the perfume business, which explains his pleasure with its quick acceptance internationally. His original plan was to introduce the perfume in the United States and go worldwide with it a year later.

However, its reputation preceded it. It now is being marketed at Harrod's in London, as well as in stores in Italy, Spain, France, Canada, Mexico, Venezuela, Ireland and Scotland.

"Cassini" brings the designer's idea of a total look for women full circle. The fragrance took two years to develop. Its inspiration was "the fantastic women I had the opportunity to work for and with," Cassini said.

It took 75 trial runs and tests to come up with the "Cassini" fragrance. Three thousand women 17 to 71 years of age tested the perfume. In blind tests, it came in first ahead of other well known products.

But Cassini feels he reached "thepinnacle of success" when it was selected by Saks for its fragrance department.

"It's very difficult (for) a fragrance or cosmetic company to come into Saks because of the limited space,"-said Nichole Perk, director of fashion, special events and publicity for the Saks Fairlane Town Center store. "It's very expensive space and Saks had to be very confident about the product because it's doing some moving around," been called to be a priest, but eventually realized he had to be "a free thinker." He took up painting and helped his mother with her dress shop. He would travel to Paris to sketch the designers' collections, which she would use to create her own fashions.

- But painting wasn't for him, so he went into fashlon designing, apprenticing with Patou in Paris before opening his own boutique in Rome. Eventually, he made "the big jump," coming to the United States in 1936.

If Cassini has a knack, it's one forbeing in the right place at the right time. Credited with designing the sheath, the little white collar dress, the A-line, the knit and military look for women, he achieved international-acclaim with his designs for former first lady Jacqueline Kennedy.

When asked which woman he has most enjoyed working with, it is Jacqueline Kennedy he names. Cassini designed 300 outfits for her.

According to Cassini, Halston worked in the custom hat department at Bergdorf Goodman and made the pillbox hats for the first lady, following the former's design. More than once Cassini challenged Halston legally for spreading such "misinformation," the designer said.

"It's a total untruth about the pillbox being designed by Halston," Cassini said. "It is one of the most remarkable pieces of misinformation that shows that if you tell people something long enough, they believe.

"Why would a designer design a coat and not complete the outfit with the hat?"

TODAY, CASSINI'S time is divided between his country home on Long Island and his townhouse in New York City. He spends four days in "country" with his menagerie of animals. Active in animal protection, his country home has become a "symbolic retreat for animals," he

For Cassini, the adage of "you're only as old as you feel" is a fact. He maintains a 10 handicap in golf, and is an avid runner, top ranked celebrity tennis player, skier and accomplished equestrian.

Pastor teaches Lions lessons for life

By Julie Brown staff writer

Dave Wilson doesn't play as much football as he used to, but he still has a good idea of what the game

Wilson, 32, played football at Ball State University in Muncie, Ind., where he received a full scholarship.

After college, Wilson was drafted by the Cincinnati Bengals, but didn't go to camp. Instead, he joined the staff of Athletes in Action, a branch of Campus, Crusade for Christ. Wilson now works as a pastor for that organization and is the chaplain for the Detroit

He spends his time at home games in the press box. "Being an old quarterback, I love to see the stuffopen up." He was pleased with the team's seven wins and nine losses this past season and with the fact that the Lions won their last five games in a row.

Wilson, a Rochester Hills resident, came to a fatherson banquet at the Lake Pointe Bible Chapel in Plymouth Township. He shared stories about football and about his ministry with the more than 100 men and boys who attended the Friday, March 30, program.

WILSON'S USED to hearing jokes about the Lions. but that's starting to change.

"Guess what, boys, they're not that bad anymore," he said: "Half the league is now copying our offense." He's optimistic about the team's chances for the 1990 season.

"I'm venturing we could win nine or 10 games."

Wilson's work with the team includes conducting Sunday morning chapel services for the players and staff. He's among the few chaplains in the National Football League who travel to conduct services on the Wilson and his wife, Ann, also lead Bible study sessions for players and their wives.

Typically, 15 to 20 players come to each chapel service, Wilson said. Attendance is voluntary, and some athletes who attend are Christians,

"The most import at thing in their life is Jesus Christ." Others who at and aren't Christians but still opt to show up. Coach Wayne Fontes is a relative newcomer to the services. He showed up one Sunday morning when the team had a rather lackluster 1-and-8 record. Wilson's message that morning was that those who want to win in Christian life must get in the race to win. That calls for self-discipline.

"So you set a goal and go for it. That is the essence of the Christian life."

THE TEAM won that day, and Fontes has since attended chapel services more regularly. . "He's a pretty fired-up guy," Wilson said "He's this close to becoming a Christian."

This is Wilson's sixth year working with the Detroit Lions. He earned a bachelor's degree in marketing from Ball State and a master of divinity degree from the International School of Theology in California. He and his wife have two sons, ages 2 and 4.

Wilson, an Ohio native, didn't become a Christian until his junior year in college. , "I actually pretty much stayed away from the church." That year, he heard Archie Griffin, a Heisman Trophy winner from Ohio State who played for Cincinnati, speak about his faith. Wilson's older brother also talked with him about the importance of being a Chris-

His work with the Lions includes trying to win athletes to Christ.

"A lot of these guys are sorry characters," he said of professional athletes. "You read about them in the pa-

Often, athletes haven't had to deal with the consequences of their actions, he said. The divorce rate among professional athletes is 85 percent, and nearly all of those marriages end within five years after the player's career ends. The life of a pro athlete is unsta-"It's all dependent on how well they do. It could be over tomorrow."

WILSON, WHO also does some work with the Detroit Tigers, has seen a lot of openness to Christ's message among athleses. That doesn't, however, always translate into faith.

He encourages athletes to serve as role models for young people. Wilson and Paul Hansen of Ward Presbyterian Church in Livonia were involved in founding Pro Challenge Inc.

In that program, pro athletes speak at school assemblies held during the off season. They compete in several events against top athletes at each school, and remind students not to abuse drugs or alcohol.

In some cases, they share Christ's message, although that's not always allowed at public schools.

"Many times, we struggle with that," Wilson said. He keeps busy during the off season with speaking engagements and with Bible study. The Wilsons are involved in Family Life Conferences, seminars for engaged and married couples.

Spending time with children is important, Wilson told the fathers and sons at the banquet. Children need to know they're loved.

"It's easy to say, but it's another thing to do. They want time, period, and we live in a day and age in America that's so fast-paced." Fathers and sons at the church banquet spent time together, eating dinner and watching a "Football Fol-. lles" film. The group enjoyed hearing football stories, said church member John Jakesy of Dearborn.

You grow closer to the players and their successes if you know a little more about them;" said Jakesy, who attended the banquet with his wife, Cathy, and their 104month-old son, Joey. Jakesy was impressed with Wilson's message.

"He's a real example for the men and boys in our church to see that our Christian faith is relevant not only to athletes but to common people like ourselves.

"I think he's very-effective in his ministry," said Jakesy, who served as master of ceremonies for the evening. He said, Wilson's able to help meet the human needs of people who are often seen as being superhuheritage of denial

the reunification of Germany has found such great support and has won such widespread endorsement that few voices have been raised in challenge or criticism.

We rejoiced in the collapse of Soviet totalitarianism in Eastern and Central Europe, we were uplifted by the hundreds of thousands of people demonstrating for freedom in major European cities, we were stirred by the dismantling of the Berlin Wall.

But many of us have deep concerns about the reunification of West and East Germany, the creation of a state with great economic power and potentially great military power, that could be a major force in influencing the course of events in Eu-

The destruction that was visited upon the Jews, and the horror upon the world by the Third Reich, have been extensively documented. And now, 40 years later, a rather brief time for democracy to take root in West Germany, and after but a few months of elementary human freedom in East Germany, these two states are to be united.

WE SHOULD ask the question: Will there now be unleashed a German Nationalism which neither the common market nor the western alliance, nor the superpowers, can possibly contain in the long run?

A national columnist who recently asked this question was challenged by young Germans. They addressed their response to him in biblical discourse: "Should the sins of the fathers be visited upon the children?" Indeed, we face a profound and urgent moral question. If a great sin is committed by a nation, does the sin pass from one generation to the

The answer has to be carefully considered. The guilt is not transmitted, but something painful is indeed handed down. Germans living today under the age of 45 are too young to have been part of the sins of the German people unless they approve, endorse or defend what their parents did. But on the assumption, and it is generally correct, that the younger German generation disavows and rejects the sins of their parents and grandparents, they are not to be charged with their guilt.

But there is a bitter heritage that has been transmitted to today's German - a heritage of denial, distrust and fear.

The dismantling of the Berlin Wall began Nov. 9, 1989, in a mood of jubilation, excitement and triumph as young Germans began to tear apart this symbol of division.

IT WAS Elic Wiesel who reminded us that Nov. 9, 1938, has a special place in the history of the German nation and the Jewish people. That was "Kristalinacht" when all of Germany's synagogues were attacked,

In recent weeks, the proposal for vandalized and burned by the Nazis, and the millennium of German-Jewish history came to an end. We would have been comforted if included in the jubilant announcement of what was occurring in November 1989, some German writer, political leader or spokesman would have also remembered 1938. A shadow of doubt comes over us. In this euphoria of "Ein Volk Ein Reich," will 1938 be completely forgot-

It's not that we are concerned about a new wave of anti-Semitism in Germany. The dangers of this are much greater in Eastern Europe, for there are so few Jews left in Germa-

Our concern arises out of a different source. We are deeply troubled by the denial of the Nazi past. We saw, in recent years, how Germans insisted that President Ronald Reagan conduct ceremonies at Bitburg, honoring the S.S. dead. We note how some German historians reinterpret the role of Germany in World War II and find ways to alter the record of monstrous evils that the country perpetrated upon the world. In recent years, we have witnessed how political leaders and literary figures have sought to deny or forget the Holocaust. Have German children been required to study anti-Semitism and the history of the Holocaust as a required course? Has Germany completely and unconditionally disavowed neo-Nazism?

THE ISSUES are complex. West Germany provided reparations for the State of Israel and for many Jews around the world. There are many caring, thoughtful and morally responsible leaders in West Germany who have denounced Nazism and who have called upon their countrymen to reject it in all its diverse, sometimes hidden, yet no less malignant forms in German society.

But there was never a serious campaign against anti-Semitism in East Germany. That country never confronted the crimes of Germany against Jews and the world.

The reunification process is continuing with great speed. The Western powers should have prepared and should now be preparing measures to deal with the problems, fears and concerns that unification creates. Saleguards should be provided. International accountability should be established for this emerging German nation of 80 million.

without dealing with its past, we will be presenting to history a very unfortunate lesson. People can participate in the most unspeakable crimes the murder of millions — and in a

President's metro visit raises cash, protests

By Janice Brunson staff writer

While President George Bush addressed the Republican elite Tuesday at a $1,000 a plate dinner in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Dearborn, a raging band of demonstrators standing across the street braved the late afternoon chill to promote individual political agendas.

"The War on Drugs is a War on the People," proclaimed a banner dominating the gathering of Libertarians, environmentalists, Communists and others who, bedecked in embroidery; memories of yesteryear's flower tion, education and rehabilitation."

In contrast, Bruce Cain, a 35-yearold information specialist and founden of the Wayne County-based New overcoat. The Patriot, founded last August, advocates the decriminalization of mind altering drugs that are now illegal.

In a passionate speech, Cain said: "Up until now George Bush has insisted that only intellectuals endorse various forms of drug legalization or decriminalization. This rally will time George Bush understands in no uncertain terms that there is a growing number of us who want to end this mindless war.

Consumers need to shop 'smart' to save money

EARLY 32 CENTS of every dollar spent by American families is for groceries and household items. The average is two trips a week to the grocery store and one or more stops at a drug or discount store.

People are spending money they could otherwise be saving for the fu-store. Using a list will help plan for ture because they fail to compare, your needs in advance, so take adshop smart and get the best value.

Stores are cleverly set up and well merchandised. Manufacturers and food producers fight for eye level space on retailers' shelves. They set up elaborate, eye-catching displays, all designed to one specific end. Get the shoppers to spend.

place merchandise in stores specifically to induce impulse spending.

"We aren't defenseless as consumers," said Paul Richard, director of education for the National Center for Financial Education. "Many of our shopping techniques are habitual. For instance, going to the same _same_products,_not_using a shopping list or comparison shopping.

NCFE is a San Diego-based, nonprofit educational organization that helps people do a better job of spending, saving, investing, insuring and planning for their future so they aren't totally dependent on Social Security, Medicare, welfare or family members when they retire.

Economizing on grocery and household items takes imagination, requires some financial-self-discipline, practice and a little time to develop new habits," said Richard, who was once bankrupt. "Having one spouse a saver and the other a

Richard offers the following spending tips to employ before your next trip to the store:

(1) USE A LIST when shopping. Put anything you want on the list, but don't add to it once you get to the vantage of sale prices and avoid impulse purchases.

Also go alone after a meal. If you go shopping hungry or with another person, you're shopping for more than one appetite and the result is always increased spending, he said.

(2) Watch for store ads in the There also are companies that newspaper, your mail box and flyers distributed at stores. Check for sale, prices on items you regularly purchase. Compare the prices with other stores, especially those you don't normally visit.

Pay attention to the days of the week the sale prices are in effect. For example, some stores have no stores on the same days, buying the sale prices in effect on Mondays, traditionally a busy shopping day. Plan your purchases, noting on the list which items are sale priced and where a coupon can be used.

> (3) Always use money. Take time to get cash before going to the store. Nothing has an impact on the mind like taking cash from a wallet or purse. Many people who use credit cards rarely know how much was actually spent - until the statement comes. Many people who write checks simply don't take the time to calculate the balance and have no idea what is left over.

(4) Take advantage of coupons and rebates. Richard, who is single, calculates that he saved more than $500 or about $40 a month — in 1989 using coupons and rebates. He regularly shops at stores that offer double coupons and takes the time to (7) CLEANING AIDS, cleansers, watch the papers for grocery

"It only takes 20 minutes a week to review grocery ads, clip the coupons and plan a weekly or biweekly spending trip," he said.

(5) Always shop by unit price at a store. In most states, it's the law that retailers post the unit cost on the shelves. It used to be the larger the pack the better the price, but not always so these days. For example a 50-cent store coupon, doubled on any size laundry soap could make the smallest size the most economical in terms of least cash spent.

EVEN IN SUMMER. Alaska's ter: rain demands respect and has no mercy on the careless. Warm weather offers a special danger in the upper arms of Cook Inlet at low tide when the mud flats are exposed People often use low tide as a time to walk out into the infel.

Alaskans seem to take it in stride. but flatlanders may be taken by rock slide warning signs and permanently installed gates used to close the highway during avalanches.

When the inlet tide is out, exposing the gray mudflats, eagles can be seen swooping in low, looking for dinner. When the tide is high, schools of white Beluga whales can be spotted arching through the icy waters.

Resorts and tourist stops along the inlet have posted warnings about the danger presented by the mud-flats since July 1988, when an 18-year-old woman became stuck in the mud, and after rescue attempts failed, drowned when the tide came back in.

Girdwood for the past five years, Mike Opalka, reports an average of three mud rescues annually.

The mud is an estimated 900 feet deep, made of silt that locks around feet and pulls the person deeper the more they struggle. The settling mudhardens and water or air must be pumped around the victim to break the suction.

Rescue efforts can further be hampered by the extremely cold water temperature, a tide which can flow in at as much as 10 feet per second and long units emergency rescue units must travel to reach the NORTH OF ANCHORAGE, towns like Wasilla and Palmer are in Alaska's farm belt, settled by homesteaders during the 1930s and 1940s. Palmer is host to the annual Alaskan State Fair.

The summer months, with their almost total daylight, result in tremendous produce growth, a highlight of the fair. Cabbages or pumpkins exceeding 160 pounds are common, with vegetables growing as much as a pound per day.

Other attractions seemed to be the standard state fair attractions carnival rides, midway games and junk food.

Mr. Travel gets his due

They gave out several tourism awards, all deserved, but nobody else got a standing ovation. When Gov. James Blanchard announced that the 1989 Tourism Lifetime Achievement Award would go to Len Barnes, we all automatically stood up and cheered.

The place was the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Dearborn on Monday. The occasion was the Seventh Annual Governor's Conference on Tourism, which attracted city, regional and state tourism professionals, as well as private entrepreneurs.

Barnes is the founding editor of AAA's Michigan Living Magazine, and Mr. Travel in Michigan.

"It was as if God was approaching the stage,'

I said to Barnes later. He got all flustered and gave me an "awe shucks, don't say that!" look. Wally Bronner of Bronners Christmas Decorations in Frankenmuth went as far as genuflecting when Barnes went by, which seemed to confirm the diagnosis.

Jones

CHUCK DALY, head coach of the Detroit Pistons, gave a rousing luncheon speech about teamwork, but the heroes of the day were Barnes, and the man he credits with upgrading the Michigan tourism industry, John Savich, Michigan Travel Bureau director.

The Gov described him as "the only man in the world whose job J.P. McCarthy envies."

"Barnes has been everywhere," Blanchard added. "He can write about Bali or salmon fishing in Scotland. He was president of the Society of American Travel Writers and Midwest Travel Writers, he knew Lowell Thomas and George Pierrot, and he's done more to draw attention to this state than anyone else."

Barnes didn't tell any of his jokes, or quote any off-color George Pierrot-limericks. He gave... a brief graceful reply.

"People think travel is just fun," he told me later. "But it's the second largest industry in Michigan, after the auto industry. Brings in more worldwide dollars than any company other that GM, Ford, Chrysler or Dow Chemical."

THAT'S ABOUT the time that Wally Bronner came by on bended knee, but it didn't stop

"Tourism brings in $1855 a year per capita in taxes, and that's money that you and I don't have to pay," Barnes said.

Savich was hurrying to a workshop when I asked for some inside stories about Barnes. "Ask Harold Skramstad about China," he replied.

Jack Avignone of West Bloomfield is chairman of the Michigan Travel Commission; president and CEO of AAA Michigan and has been Barnes' boss for the last 11 years.

When I asked Avignone for some inside stories about Barnes, he said "I've got them, but I can't tell them. Ask Harold Skramstad about China.".

By LeAnne Rogers staff writer

Alaska's license plates call the state "The Last Frontier" and to a large extent, they aren't kidding.

The expansive size and hollowness of the landscape, even in southern Alaska, must be seen to be appreciated. It's a place where outdoor activity — hiking, fishing, hunting, skiing or white water rafting - is mandatory. 1

When not covered with snow, much of southern Alaska is green and bright due to its heavy amounts of precipitation, both rain and snow. On sunny days, the sky and atmosphere is sparkling clean.

Outside of the lights of Anchorage, you discover what darkness truly is. On clear nights, the Northern Lights create patterns across the sky and you can almost read under the. brightness of the North Star. It's impressive to visitors, but Alaskans say you have to travel much farther north to get the full effect of the aurora bourealis.

SOUTH OF ANCHORAGE, the state's largest city with a population of more than 200,000, is the town of Girdwood with approximately 900 residents.

On the way to Girdwood, in a valley of the Chugach Mountains and surrounded by the Chugach National Forest, you'll see both the attractions and the drawbacks to living on the frontier during winters with 100inch snowfalls.

Spectacular views of the inlet and the Girdwood Valley can be enjoyed by hiking more than 2,000 feet up Mount Alyeska. Or you can take the easier route and ride the Alyeska resort ski lift to the top.

Jewelry and other gift items made from jade, Alaskan ivory and other semiprecious native stones are offered at many shops including the Kobuk Valley Jade Company, adjoining the Alyeska resort.

The resort is used heavily for skiing during the winter months and as a regular stop by bus tour groups during the summer.

Girdwood also features a four-star restaurant, the Double Musky Inn, which has Cajun style culsine. The decor is rough wooden with Mardi Gras bead decorations and prime Further south along Seward Highway is Portage Glacier with its adjoining lake and the Begich, Boggs Visitor Center. Icebergs float in the lake and during summer months, there are cruises on the lake for close-up views of the glacler.

The lake was formed in 1914 when the glacier started to retreat. Portage takes its name from its use, - moves about 8 inches a day, creating along with Burns Glacier, as a portage by Tanaina Indians, Chugach Eskimos and Russian fur traders traveling between Cook Inlet and Prince William Sound.

EXTENSIVE glaciers are found further south on the Kenai Penninsula near Seward. The most accessible is Exit Glacier which you can walk up to by following roughly a milelong paved path and hilly trails.

Most of the forests and parks have restrictions and rules for where you can walk or what activities are permitted. Since rangers are nowhere to be seen, it's sort of the honor system and most people refrain from littering and other offenses.

You can hear torrents of water rushing from the glacier, which a shallow white water stream. Moose can be seen crossing the access road into the woods.

Marathon markets cleaner

gasoline

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

Gasoline, Petrol. Fuel. Gas. Go Juice. A rose by any name is still a rose, but not according to Marathon Oil. Marathon Oil introduced a new "formulated gasoline" on March 26 that it claims will reduce automobile emissions and improve southeast Michigan air

Ed Lodico, Marathon manager of technical services, said the reformulated gasoline — dubbed Amaraclean - will be available in 161 gasoline stations throughout southeastern Michigan. Marathon controls approximately 10 percent of the area's gasoline market.

Available in three grades, Lodico said the gasoline will reduce unburned hydrocarbons by 20 percent and carbon monoxide emissions by 14 percent. The formula changes will not reduce power or harm the engine.

Vapor pressure, a measure of a gasoline's evaporation rate, will be reduced to 9.5 pounds per square inch (PSI) during the summer and 13 psi during the winter - one psi lower than EPA standards, he said.

Aromatics, which increase a gasoline's octane, will be reduced to less than 25 percent - industry standards range from 32 to 41 percent, Lodico said.

Finally, the reformulated gasoline will have an average oxygen content of 1.8 percent achieved through the addition of methyl tertiary butyl ether (MTBE), Lodico said. Actual MTBE and oxygen content will vary, but all grades will exceed 1 percent oxygen.

Decreased vapor pressure will reduce the amount of gasoline evaporation into the atmosphere; reduced aromatics and increased oxygen will result in a more complete combustion, he said.

DESPITE THE changes, the Marathon gasoline would not meet the standards proposed in the amendments to the Clean Air Act currently being debated by federal legislators.

A similar, but more complex amendment, was defeated by the senate on March 20.

Edwin Rothschild, environment/policy director for Citizen Action, a public interest group pushing for improved clean air legislation, said Marathon's introduc-

> "I DON'T think anyone can argue this isn't a step in the right direction." he added. "This is a first generation cleaner gasoline."

Lodico said Marathon's decision to test the gasoline in the southeastern Michigan was based on several factors. "First, we're in a unique situation-here -- we have a new facility at our Detroit area refinery that is capable of producing MTBE."

The Detroit-area refinery is Marathon's only plant capable of producing MTBE. Marathon invested more than $7 million in the MTBE plant.

Another factor, Lodico said, is southeastern Michigan has been designated by U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) as an ozone non-attainment area. Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Monroe, Washtenaw,

Utility offers cash rebates for upgrades

By Doug Funke staff writer .

Consumers Power Co., natural gas supplier to about half the households in Oakland and Wayne counties, has received the go-ahead from the Public Service Commission to implement a comprehensive energy conservation program for its customers.

The program includes free energy audits, free installation of low-cost, energy-saving conservation devices and cash incentives to upgrade insulation, furnaces and air conditioning systems. Customers can take advantage of the services on a voluntary basis. However, all customers will fund the program through a surcharge on their monthly bills - the typical residential gas customer 17 cents, electric customers 11 cents. The program will begin over the next several months and last three years.

"UNLIKE PREVIOUS energy-audit programs thatsimply offered advice, these plans include actual installation of energy saving equipment at no cost in homes," said Michael G. Morris, executive vice president for natural gas and marketing for Consumers

The crux of the program is a home energy audit, said Dan Bishop, spokesman for the utility.

Two-person teams will respond and, if necessary, install a showerhead water resticter, an insulation wrap around the water heater and provide two longlife flourescent lightbulbs.

-There will be no charge for any of that to customers. Homeowners serviced by Consumers Power can also receive $50 cash bonuses for buying refigerators, freezers and ovens that exceed federal energy guidelines by at least 15 percent.

ALSO, THE UTILITY will reimburse 25 percent of the cost, not to exceed $1,000, to customers who add insulation or install energy-efficient heating and cooling systems.

Investment firm stable, executive VP maintains

Shearson Lehman Hutton's recent internal problems shouldn't impact southeast Michigan investors.

Or to paraphrase Mark Twain, the reports of an ailing Shearson Lehman Hutton have been greatly exaggerated. Recent job layoffs, office closings, cash infusions and a $350 million swap of Shearson Lehman stock for American Express stock will stabilize America's second largest brokerage firm and set it on the path to financial health, Shearson executive vice president Robert Michelotti The credit card giant previously owned 68 percent of the brokerage firm, but offered to exchange 0.426 shares for each Shearson common share in early March. American Express now owns 100 percent of Shearson common stock.

The stock swap took place after a week of "intensive rescue efforts and takeover talks" according to Wall Street watchers, that saw American Express pledge a total of $750 million to buck up the brokerage firms capital, the announcement of 2,000 employee layoffs, and an attempt to merge with Smith Barney, owned by Primerica.

Michelotti, who keeps offices in Birmingham, said investors with Shearson needn't worry about the past few tumultuous weeks.

"The total picture for Shearson in southeast Michigan is bright," he. said. In fact, he added, investors who use Shearson should be reassured American Express is making the commitment.

Michelotti said that Shearson's Great Lakes division has even less to worry about than other parts of the country. The region (which includes part of Ohio) is the third most profitable office behind two New York area offices, he said.

Robert Michelloti

troit area. The Great Lakes region controls $10.8 billion total assets on deposit and generated $40 million in income last year, Michelotti continued, thanks mainly to an exceptional sales force and control of 27 percent of the investment market here.

By comparison, Michigan National Bank controls $11.5 billion in total assets on deposit.

While Michigan and north Ohlo are not typically regarded as financial centers, Michelotti pointed out that Oakland County has the fifth highest per capita income in the country. "It's surprising when you think about how much money is invested here.

For us in the retail side (manage ing client investments)-it's-a-very positive move," he said.

The stock swap infuses Shearson with operating capital which adds to the company's stability, he said.

The capital infusion also takes the which can have a damaging effect on trating on what we do best." the public perception of a company's health, Michelotti said.

said.

That's not to say that there hasn't been concern on the part of Shearson clients, he said.

"We know as employees what we're doing is still good, but we do read the papers. We've spent a lot of time answering questions and concerns about account insurance and financial integrity," Michelotti said. "Taken time to answer questions we shouldn't have to answer.

"It's worth mentioning that Shearson as a company and Shearson as a broker are separate," he said.

THE RECENT internal problems at Shearson have no effect on investors because all investments are insured just as they would be in a bank, Michelotti said.

"Even when Drexel (Burnham Lambert) went under (filed for bankruptcy), not one investor lost a dime," he said.

The Securitles and Exchange Commission transferred Drexel Burnham's accounts to Shearson which can certainly be construed as a vote of confidence in the company's health, Michelotti noted.

Which Isn't to say Shearson was without problems - only that the company has put its problems behind them.

Michelotti said Shearson went through phenomenal growth in the past decade adding several services - including real estate management, limited partnerships and credit resources — to its core investment business.

"Attention wandered from the core of the company - the crown jewel retail division," he said.

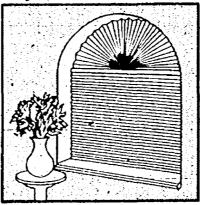

Shearson wasn't experienced in real estate purchasing and managing and those areas are already dragging the company down. "We got carried away with making money firm off the newspaper front pages, anyway we could, instead of concen-

It's also curious how the criticisms Smith first raised himself - that GM was hidebound-slow to adapt, slow to bring technology to market and top-heavy with uninvolved management — ended up the problems he was most closely identified with. The numbers were part of it particularly the declining market share, an almost-daily thermometer of cooling public opinion about GM cars. But most prominent was the

THE THOUGHT that GM could become a happy family of entrepreneurial companies foundered mainly because of the style of the entrepreneurs themselves — a style deeply at odds with Smith's theory of laid-back financial control.

In short order, the new breed of joint partners, first at IBH Holding, raider instead of becoming the fiesty partner Smith had hoped for.

Last week we demonstrated that you can save a bundle by making 13 (instead of 12) payments a year. You must indicate on your 13th payment that it is to be used to reduce the that could be saved by making (1) 13 principal. Otherwise, the savings institution might just consider it a payment made a month early and put most of the money toward interest.

But what if you couldn't afford to pay more than $703 per month. Then are you out of luck? Not really.

Twice-monthly payments - Suppose you can't pay more than $703 per month, but you could pay $351.50 $62,387. Incidentally, it would be understandable if you look at these huge savings figures with skeptr* cism. However, these are true savings figures.

Reduction of the term of mortgage - If you are one of the few fortunate homeowners who could make a higher monthly payment, you may wish to convert your 30year mortgage into a 15-year mortgage. Naturally, your monthly payments would increas from $703 to $860 per month. But by doing so you will pay off your mortgage in 15 years and will save $97,449 in interest charges.

For example, if you took out a of your mortgage from 30 to 22½ 30-year mortgage on which 10 years finance, school of business at years and your interest savings are still remaining, you can still would amount to a whopping save on interest charges by adopting any one of the three strategies we have discussed. Of course, savings on your mortgage won't be as much as would be the case if you convert a newly approved 30-year mortgage into a 15-year mortgage.

Summing up - In conclusion, there are ways of reducing your interest charges on a conventional mortgage. However, you would be well advised to consult your financial planner before making a move.

Steps small businesses can take to solve problem

In most cases, identifying the real down your problem in specific tern that leave no doubt in your mind as to what you are trying to resolve. If your definition is too broad, the guidelines to solving the problem will not be specific enough to lead

After you have written down your problem, make sure it is not a conclusion rather than a definition. For Step-one of the process involves cessful problem solving is to write example, a business owner who has problems with salespeople productivity and writes "I need to motivate my sales staff to call 10 more prospects each day" has written down a conclusion rather than the definition of the problem.

Instead, the problem should be stated as "Three of my salespeople are not producing sales to budget, therefore, our sales are 10 percent below minimum requirements to reach our needed profit."

Remember that if you cannot write down your problem in simple and realistic terms, go back to step one. Do not attempt to solve a problem until you can define it clearly in writing.

STEP THREE of the problem. solving process is to gather information about your situation. The key is to collect timely, relevant and accurate data that can help you to identify and subsequently evaluate alternative solutions.

It also is important to determine if the information is an established fact, an expert observation or a personal, uniformed opinion.

Also try to avoid the mistake of stacking evidence by confining your information search only to the facts that support your own preconceived ideas. The best gut feelings for solving problems always come after the facts are gathered, not before. Next week we will present the remaining steps of the problem solving process for business owners and managers.

Interest rates measure the demand for money.

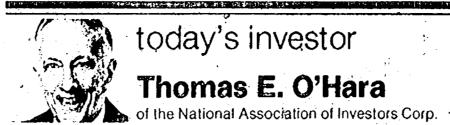

Q. Please explain the difference between the discount rate, prime rate, federal funds rate and treasury bill, note and bond rates.

A. The discount rate as an interests rate is what the Federal Reserve charges member banks for loans, using government securitles or eligible paper as collateral.

This provides a floor on interest rates since banks set their loan rates above the discount rate.

Borrowing from the Fed at the discount rate is not something banks do every day. They only go to the Fed when they are short of reserves.

WHILE THE discount rate only applies to banks, the prime rate is one that affects us more as individuto its most preferred customers.

While the individual bank sets its prime rate, the market is very competitive and when a major bank makes a change, most others quickly follow suit: If a lead bank makes an change and others do not follow, it, it will probably be forced by competition to get back in line with the majority of banks.

Cobo hosts science fair

Work by 2,600 metro area high school students will be on display , through Saturday at the 33rd Science , and Engineering Fair in the Michi-, gan Hall of the Cobo Conference and Exhibition Center on Detroit's riverfront.

Viewing of exhibits will be open to the public today and Friday 9 a.m. to

Students in grades 7-12, representing more than 160 schools in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties, are expected to participate, making it one of the largest science fairs in the United States.

Their exhibits will deal with advanced research and study in robotics, cryogenics and biology.

Eight grand award winners will represent Detroit May 6-12 at the International Science and Engineering Fair in Tulsa, Okla. Grand award winners will be saluted at a noon luncheon Friday in room W153 of Cobo Center.

SC sponsors safety class

Classes in motorcycle safety for riders of various skill levels will be held this spring and summer at Schoolcraft College.

A beginning course in motorcyclesafety, including braking, obstacle. avoidance and turning, will be offered for riders under 18 and for those who have twice failed the state licensing test. The course fee is $25.

A course is also being offered for experienced riders, who wish to sharpen their skills. Participants must provide their own motorcycles... and gear. The course includes the state skills test.

A new course will also be offered in advanced turning, braking and obstacle avoidance.

A fourth course is being offered in instructor training. Skilled motorcyclists can earn $8-$18 per hour as in-

College plans nature walks

Wildflower walks on the nature trails of Livonia Bicentennial Park will be April 16 through May 25.

The 13th annual event is free and open to the public. Walks are sponsored by the Schoolcraft College Biology Department. The 45-minute walks, covering one-half mile of the park, are conducted by Schoolcraft College faculty members and stu-

Bicentennial Park features more than 35 different species of wildflowers, expected to be at their peak beauty and color.

Individual and group tours can be arranged by calling biology professor Roger Sutherland, 462-4400, Ext. 5244. Bicentennial Park is on Seven Mile road, between Newburgh and Farmington roads.

This flower's so hot it melts snow

Birds arriving from their southern wintering grounds and flowers emerging from the soil are two events that herald the advent of

One flower that is "anxious" to greet the new season of growth is the skunk cabbage. It is our earliest spring wildflower. So early, in fact, that it can be seen appearing through snow.

A blanket of snow does not stop this flower from blooming. Though the temperatures may be cold, skunk cabbage can produce its own heat. New flowers protruding through the snow produce enough heat to melt the snow immediately. around it.

grees warmer than the surrounding air. Warm temperatures provide a couple of advantages for the plant. First, of course, is that it will not freeze when temperatures are cold, which allows it to get a jump on the growing season.

Secondly, the warm temperatures intensify the odor of the plant. Like its name sake the skunk, skunk cabbage has a skunky odor. Actually, if you mix a little skunk and a clove of garlic with a pinch of oregano you would have a more accurate description of the odor. This odor attracts some of the early emerging flies that feed for something to eat, it is pollinating the flower.

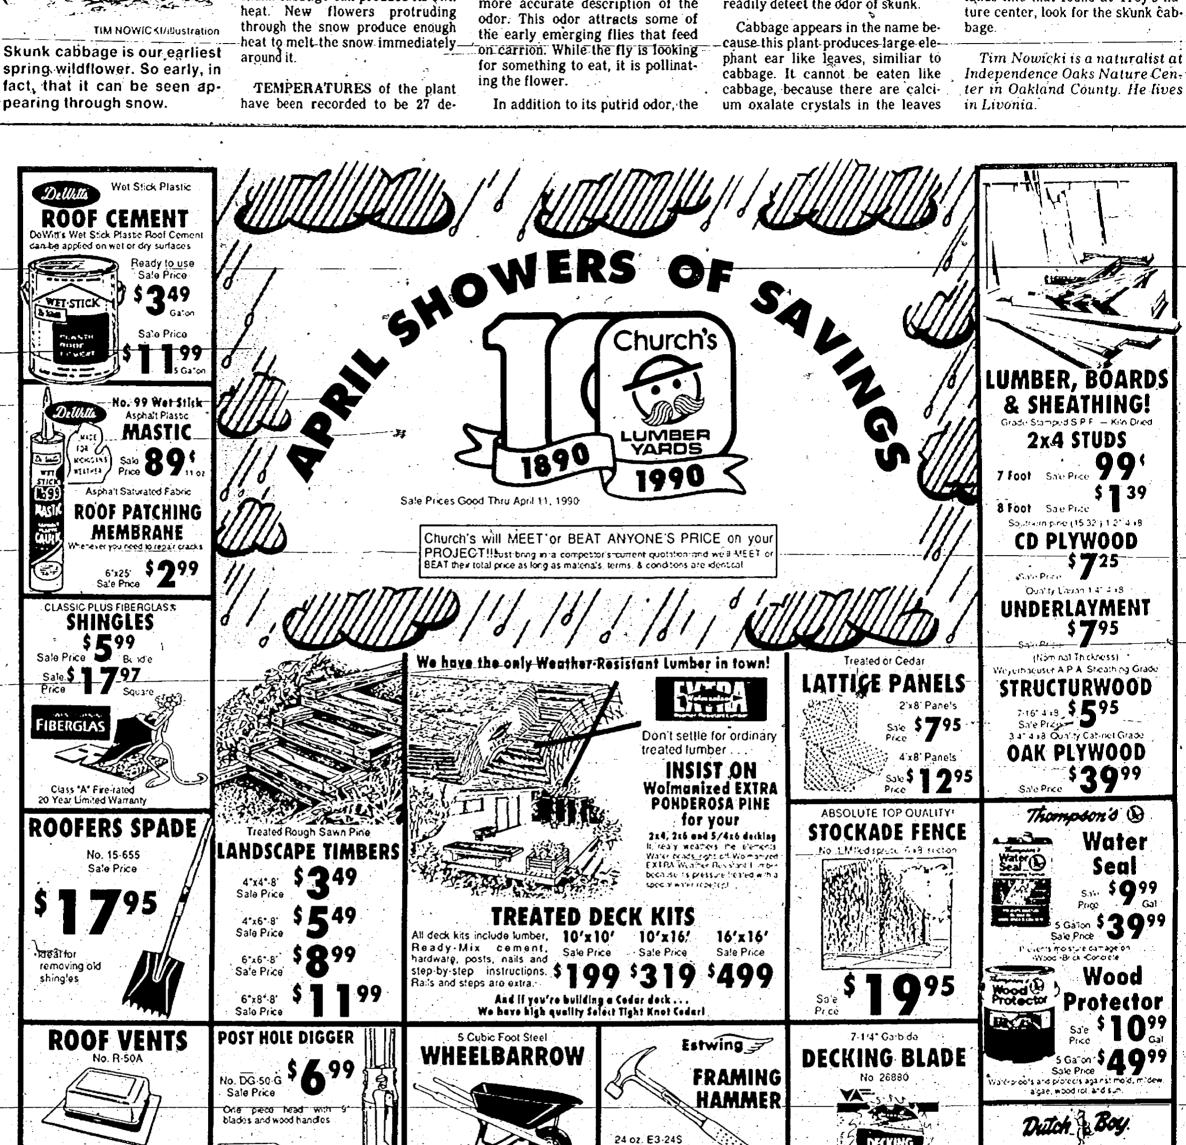

cover enclosing the actual flower is reddish and resembles decaying meat. If a portion of the stem, leaf, or flower cover is broken, one can readily detect the odor of skunk.

which would cause the mucus membranes of animals to "burn."

Though it is very distastful, skunk cabbage was listed in the United States Pharmacopea for over 60 years. It was used to relieve cramps and spasms, bad coughs, asthma, lóckjaw, epilepsy and rheumatism. There was even a time when it was used for a contraceptive to cause sterility in humans.

Next time you reross over a stream or walk in a moist woodlands like that found at Troy's nature center, look for the skunk cab-

REDUCE YOUR CHANCES OF GETTING HEART DISEASE, KIDNEY DISEASE RGOING B

Obesity can start a chain reaction to poor health that can be devastating.

To begin with, most physicians and researchers consider obesity to be the major cause of diabetes in adults. Up to 90% of adults diagnosed as having diabetes, in fact, are overweight.

Of course, once you have diabetes your chances of developing heart disease, kidney disease, or going blind increase dramatically.

As a person with diabetes you'll be twice

as prone to heart disease. 17 times as prone to kidney disease. And 25 times as prone to blindness, if you are insulin-dependent.

-- Diabetes, in fact, can shorten your life expectancy by one-third.

Fortunately, diabetes in adults, in most cases, can be prevented with careful weight control, healthy eating habits, and regular exercise.

So if you're overweight, doesn't it make sense to take off the extra weight?

Instead of years off your life?

FIGHT SOME OF THE WORST DISEASES OF OUR TIME. Support the American Diabetes Association.

Stevenson outruns Franklin, Borgess in season opener

Redford Bishop Borgess had Angie Hollis, but Livonia Stevenson had all the depth — and it showed in a trimeet Tuesday hosted by Stevenson.

Stevenson scored 771/2 points to win the girls track season opener and spoil the three-victory performance by Hollis. Stevenson easily outdistanced second-place Livonia Franklin, which finished with 521/2 points, and third-place Borgess, which scored 33.

Stevenson won three relays' and Lisa Christensen was a doublewinner to lead the Spartans' charge. Christensen's wins came in the 100meter-hurdles (17.64) and 300 hurdles (52.33).

OTHER STEVENSON winners included Debbie Wroblewski, who took the discus crown (99 feet, 10 inches); Tracy Clark, 800 run (2:44:03); Jessann Martin, shot put (35-5); and Julie Martin, 400 run (1:07:47).

The Spartans' 3,200 relay team took first (11:06.58), and so did the 8). Spartans' 800 (1:59.38) and 1,600 (4:45.8) relay teams.

AMONG THE COUGARS' opponents are John Glenn, 21-7 in '89; Taylor Center, top-ranked in Class A during '89 and featuring Wendy Jamula on the mound; Livonia Stevenson; Livonia Franklin; and three formidable tournaments - the Pieper, the Richmond, and the Ann Arbor Invitational.

"If we have a .600 winning percentage, I'll be happy," Patterson said. Not exactly what the Cougars have been doing over the past few seasons, but it should get them ready for that second season.

"The key to our success this season is, can last year's sophomores and juniors make the transition and help replace what we've lost three of our top four hitters?" was Patterson's evaluation.

It was an appropriate question, considering Patterson figures hitting to be a decisive factor for GC, "So goes our hitting, so goes our team," he said. "We have solid defense and the type of pitching that will keep us in every game, if we can score some Scoring runs is always the question in fastpitch softball, a sport in which a strong pitcher can dominate.

OTHER AREA TEAMS that expect to be impressive this season are Glenn and Franklin in the Western Lakes Activities Association, even though both must rebuild; Redford Thurston in the Tri-River League, a Class B district champ in '89; and Livonia Ladywood, runners-up in the Catholic League in '89.

New coaches are featured at Stevenson (Chuck Hebestreit), Redford Bishop Borgess (Bob Denstedt) and Wayne Memorial (Shelly Combs). Combs has an interesting task: She must replace last year's centerfielder - herself. Combs graduated a year ago from Wayne and is currently a freshman at Eastern Michigan.

Rocks plan to challenge in WLAA

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Only two teams were better than Plymouth Salem in Western Lakes Activities Association girls track and field last year.

But it so happens those two, defending champ. Farmington and Livonia Stevenson, are Lakes Division rivals of the Rocks and also are expected to produce strong teams once again.

Salem coach Mark Gregor believes his team is improved and will continue to challenge the WLAA's: other powers for the title.

"This year we've really added talent and, if things progress, we should be in the hunt at the end," he said. "We're getting better; it's a matter of putting it together."

The Rocks, 3-2 in division duals and 6-2 overall, return one of the area's top athletes in senior tri-captain Jennifer Harris, who excels in the high jump and hurdles. She enters the season with a career best of 5-2 in the high jump.

"I THINK she's a little stronger and a little better on technique," Gregor said. "I think she could go another two inches this year.

"She's in much better condition and did a lot of work in the off season. She's taken a more aggressive approach to conditioning."

Harris will have a good supporting cast in the high jump. Freshman Yolanda Jackson can jump 5 feet, and sophomores Martha Bol and Darcie Miller add depth. Freshman Cindi Platter isn't far behind those three, according to Gregor.

In the long jump, Salem can boast of having the last two WLAA champions - juniors Tracy Livermore and Kim Ploucha. Livermore jumped 15-11 to win the title last year, and Ploucha won it two years ago. Freshman Dana Driscoll is around 15 feet, also.

Senior Christina Simpson didn't compete last year after suffering a knee injury in basketball, but she will lead the Rocks in the weight events. She threw the discus more than 100 feet two years ago and can exceed 30 feet in the shot put, according to Gregor. Junior Krista Frece and sophomores Kelly Austin and Nikki Santilli will support Simpson in those events.

100-meter hurdles and 47.6 in the and sophomore Cheryl Ann Para-300, the latter being a school record. vantes are good hurdlers, too

Jennifer Harris is one of Observerland's top female track and also is a fine high jumper. Salem expects to contend for the field athletes. She hopes to qualify for state in the hurdles and WLAA championship again.

"SHE HAS the goal of making it to state in one of those events," Gregor. said. "I think the 300 hurdles is her best chance."

Sophomore Theresa Giacherio is only a stride behind Harris in the 100 hurdles and a couple in the 300, according to Gregor, who adds "I think she'll be a good one down the road." Harris has best times of 15.7 in the Senior Michelle Dobransky, Platter

'(The distance runners) could make us a bonafide contender in the conference, because we're pretty solid the rest of the way around the track and in the field.'

The sprints should be one of Salem's stronger areas, Gregor said. Livermore, another tri-captain, was second in the WLAA in the 100 dash, and Ploucha and junior Andrea Kinnelly also are veteran sprinters.

nya Wheeler are the newcomers for whom Gregor has such high expectations. Sophomore Alison Fyke and first-year junior Sarah Ruete run the 200 and 400, and sophomore Carla Kehrier specializes in the 400.

The distance events could hold the key to how successful a season the Rocks eventually have. Salem girls cross country coach Mike Krafchak coaches the distance runners and has split his charges into middle- and long-distance competitors.

SENIOR JENNY Marshke heads the list of 800 runners. She has run 2:30 and Gregor hopes she can duplicate or exceed that. Marshke also is part of the 3200 relay.

Other half milers include junior Trisha Bansel, sophomores Jill Czaplicki and Beth Turomsha and freshmen Sharon Bansel, Cory Gulkiewicz and Stacy Witthoff.

Senior tri-captain Tammy Hickey is the top distance runner. She missed going to state by less than a second last year, Gregor said.

"She's anxious to get going, and · I'm sure she'll have a great season if she stays healthy," Gregor said.

Hickey will be supported by seniors Alison Rybski, Kerri Slider and Cathy Boyd and juniors Holly Sody, Payal Parekh and Debbie Chamberlain in the open 1600 and 3200 runs.

"If they stay healthy and contine to be determined about their conditioning," Gregor said, "we could be right there. They could make us a bonafide contender in the conference, because we're pretty solid the rest of the way around the track and in the field. If we can put that part of it together, we could have a real good team."

LIVERMORE WILL be a key figure in the relay combinations, running the 400 and 800 and possibly even the 1600. Jackson, Wheeler, Kinnelly and Ploucha are other sprint relay possibilities.

"I think we'll try to put all of our speed on the track for the relays let them take off and see what happens," Gregor said. "They're as fast as anybody without a baton. As the "And we have some freshman weather warms, I think we could

The zebra mussel has been a resident of most European lakes for the last 200 years, but more recently has found a new home in the Great

In 1985, the zebra mussel landed in-Lake St. Clair, transported there in the ballast of international cargo ships.

One theory about why we haven't seen the zebra mussel any sooner is that Europe has been on a clean water kick for the past several years. Prior to this time, the commercial ports would have been simply too polluted for the mussel to survive.

Now the question that arises is: What effect will the zebra mussel have on our freshwater lakes?

ADULT ZEBRA MUSSELS, which can live up to six years and grow up to two inches in length, are generally about the size of a fingernail. They'll attach themselves to any non-toxic hard surface such as reefs, rocks, boats, outdrives, outboard motor lower units, docks, intake pipes and other mussels.

In many instances, the mussels attach to other zebra mussels, which rapidly produces a thick beds of mussels. These beds in some parts of single-cell algae and consume this hatching fry.

The eggs are fertilized outside the shell of the adults and develop into free-swimming larvae within a few days. These larvae can keep themselves floating in the water for up to eight days which allows the current to scatter them throughout a lake.

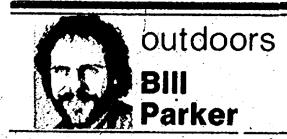

The potential for the zebra mussel to infest other bodies of fresh water is another concern.

The zebra mussel larvae can surand may hitch a ride to another body of fresh water through an angler's wet fur or feathers of wildlife or waterfowl.

ZEBRA MUSSELS feed mostly on food by filtering water through their bodies.

Each adult mussel can filter up to one liter of water a day. The zebramussel sucks water over a mucous membrane and catches micro organisms including algae and plankton.

All these organisms are filtered tential for rapid reproduction is from the water, but instead of passing the unused particles — including plankton — back into the water, the zebra mussel covers its waste with a lets called pseudofeces. These pseudofeces are released back into the water and often end up sticking to the outer shells of one of the mussels in a colony.

Because of this method of discharging unused matter, plankton which is the base of the Great Lakes vive overnight with very little water—food chain — is removed from the water and unavailable for microscopic crustaceans, which feed many live well or minnow bucket or on the larval and juvenile fish, and plankton-feeding forage fish, which sup-

• Head coach: Joe Epstein.

• League affiliation: Western Lakes Activities Association, Western Division. • Last year's record: 19-9 overall, second in Western Division.

Notable player losses: Lisa Allen, pitcher, Sherri Weiss, third base, Linda Kulesza, first base; Leslie Szaflarski.

• Top returnees: Jenny Mayle, junior, pitcher (nine wins in 189); Emily Skura, junior, shortstop, Karen Brown, senior, outlielder, Shannon Eberly, senior, third • Promising newcomers: Jenny Mascarello, Junior, first base; Jenny Murray. jurior, centerfield.

• Epsteln's outlook; "Our biggest fortes other than pitching, which will keep 'us in games, is speed — we probably have the fastest running team I've had at Franklin - and experience. I think we'll get better and better as the year goes on. A problem could be pitching, which is only one (player) deep."

· Season opener: At Walled Lake Crintral Thursday.

Chargers gain tie

Livonia Churchill and Farmington Hills Mercy squared off Monday in a battle between two top Class A girls' soccer powers, and nothing was decided in the 0.0 tie.

Mercy goalkeeper Renee Larabell fought off 15 Churchill shots, 13 in the first half.

"It was a windy day and Churchill had the wind in its favor in the first half," Mercy coach Henry Klimessaid: "We had the wind in the second half and took 12 shots on them."

LADYWOOD 8, BELLEVILLE 0:Junior Maddie Verrino scored two goals and six other Livonia Ladywood players scored once apiece, leading the Blazers to an easy win Monday over host Belleville.

The game improved Ladywood's record to 1-0-1. It marked the season-opener for Belleville, which has only 10 players on Val Adzema, who started, and Kelly Burger shared the shutout in net for Ladywood.

REDFORD UNION 1. SOUTHFIELD 1: Red ford Union led early, but a comeback by Southfield ended the Panthers' hopes for a win in their season opener Tuesday.

Beth Trout's goal at the five-minute mark of the first half gave RU a 1-0 lead, but it didn't hold up. Kristin Rogers gave RU coach Al Burnham a solid effort in the nets, kicking away seven of the eight Southfield shots Southfield is a Class A team and it was a good test for the Class B Panthers, who play state-ranked Farmington Friday...

Govan among league's best

Char Govan made her final campaign a successful one for Illinois State's women's basketball team.

Govan, a senior from Livonia Ladywood, was named to the all-Gateway Conference first team after finishing third in the league in scoring, second in rebounding and second in field goal percentage.

Govan averaged 19.9 points and 8.1 rebounds per game overall. In the Gateway, her averages-were 21-6points and 8.9 boards. She made 56.3 percent of her floor shots during the season (57.3 percent in league play).

Illinois State finished 20-9 overall, 14-4 in the Gateway, finishing second to_Southern_Illinois_in_the_final standings.

REDFORD BISHOR BORGESS

• Head coach: Dave Young, first year. 20-8 as junior varsity coach at Novi last . League affiliation: Catholic League.

Sears, senior, righthanded pitcher-outfield; Casey Snyder, senior, righthanded pitcher-third base; Scott Doyle, senior, first base.

· Young's outlook: "We have five pitchers who are pretty good, but none that are really dominant. All five can throw strikes, but pitching won't be the strongest part of our team. I think we'll be pretty good defensively. It looks like we'll be pretty strong in the infield. I think the dominant part of our offense will be our speed. We have great speed."

We have a wide-open race for pitching. Who's No. 1? No one at present. We were picked to finish sixth by the WAL coaches. Belleville is the top pick; they have five pitchers back and won (the league) last year. So we're calling this season a pocketful of miracles, and we're going to need them."

In fact, we have a warrant out for his arrest Because no one should be able to do things like this to an animal and get away with it.

He had been locked inside that bathroom for over a month. Without food. Without heat. And with only the water from a rusty toilet to keep him alive. MHS investigators called it the closest to death they'd ever seen an animal. Yet Ike was fortunate. A kitten found in another-part of the house was already dead.

This kind of willful neglect and cruelty is more than an outrage. It's a crime.

By Cathie Breidenbach special writer

REG HALL AND Robin Brant describe the comedy revues they put together for their ensemble, the Early Monday Morning Show, as good, hopes to introduce someday when he discovered his aptitude for comedy. The assignment called for partners. "I didn't have a partner," he says, "so I brought my sister's hideous, ratty-haired baby doll to be my coanchor. I became kind of popular after that. Everybody said, 'Hey, you're a funny guy.'

From his grade school smash debut as a rookie comedian, he honed his talents by watching the masters. "I grew up in the 'Saturday Night Live' generation," he says, and explains he can watch Bill Murray movies over and over and over. "Jonathan Winters is a master of improvisation, he adds, but says his own style "leans toward the witty dialogue of Groucho Marx."

DURING HIGH SCHOOL he started a comedy group called none other than the Early Monday Morning Show because its first steady booking was Sunday nights and the group's members used to joke that they performed early Monday mornings. He brought the offbeat name with him nearly five years ago when his family moved to Troy, where his father still lives.

Hall says of himself, "I'm just a mutant, the lunatic son in a family of very conservative nine to five types" - except for his grandmother. The HALL AND BRANT went home gene with the devilish sense of humor must skip generations because Hall says, "Some of my best stuff comes from my grandmother."

Brant, on the other hand, describes cable TV show "Spotlight on Come- Brant also play a pair of loutish his whole family as "a tad left of center. A commercial artist by day, Brant designed the Bad Boys logo and creates all the Pistons Tshirt art. He often wears sweatshirts blazing with his own designs.

> Brant says of his initiation into comedy, "I remember joking my way out of a lot of fights, like a Spiderman character, so I wouldn't get my face beat in." His sense of humor got him into as much trouble as it got him out of.

"I got into trouble doing improvisations of the high school teachers," he says of his years at Notre Dame having fun making people laugh.

During high school he took every art class available and performed in "Grease," "Pirates of Penzance" and "South Pacific." Where will this talent for making people laugh lead? All the way to the top, the partners predict. Hall and Brant hope their show will kick open doors. Eying family problems in 'Morning's at Seven'

Performances of the Plymouth Theatre Guild production of 'Morning's at Seven" continue through Saturday, April 7, at the Water Tower Theater on the campus of Northville Regional Hospital, 41001 W, Seven Mile Road, west of I-275 (between Haggerty and Northville roads). Tickets at $6 for adults; $5 for students and seniors are available at the door.

By Jeffrey Kahan special writer

The Plymouth Theater Guild's production of Paul Osborn's "Morning's at Seven" is an interesting and occasionally painful look at the family dynamics of three American households.

Set in a small Midwestern town after World War II, the play examines the lives of four elderly sisters who live within one block of each other. The sisters are all part of dysfunctional families and are simultaneously faced with interrelated family_crises.

Sister Esther (Connie Fox) is married to David (Dr. Ford Sutherland), a retired professor who refuses to allow her to visit her sisters and threatens to separate when she does. Sister Ida (Geneieve Terry) is married to emotionally unstable Carl Bolton (Robert Weibel), who feels dissatisfied with his path in life and is in the process of moving in with

The two other sisters, Cora (Janice Anderson) and Aaronetta (Clemie Cyburt), live together with Cora's husband, Theodore Swanson (Robert

THE SITUATION is complicated by the presence of Ida and Carl's son Homer (Steven Katz), who is emotionally immature and continues living at home after the age of 40. He is engaged to Myrtle Brown (Linda Bastien) and brings her home to meet the family after being engaged for seven years.

back yards of the Swanson's and Bolton's homes, which are next door to each other. "Morning's at Seven" examines the process that the sisters go through in addressing their personal problems. They rely on each other for support, confront each other's shortcomings and find interpersonal strength while attempting to resolve their crises.

The most poignant aspect of the. play is the presentation of the older people's lust, anger, fear, humor and other passions Osborn examines these issues with humor and insight in one of the rare plays about older lives. junior high or high school:

It's the fourth time, but musical is still fresh

Performances of the Trinity House Theatre production of "Junior High" by Paul Patton continue through Saturday, April 28, in Livonia. Tickets are $6. For reservations call 464-6302.

By Richard Marsh special writer

Staging the musical "Junior High" is becoming a regular occurrence at the Trinity House Theatre. The Livonia group is putting on the show for the fourth time since it was written

In spite of the numerous times the musical has been done by Trinity House, it continues to wear well, and played to a sell-out house Saturday evening.

Written by Livonia resident Paul Patton, the musical is a nostalgic look at life, as a 13-year-old at a Detroit junior high school in 1965.

The combination of lively music, strong acting and execllent staging by director Timma Peterman make the show a truly enjoyable night out.

Thanks to good makeup and costumes, most of the cast are able to present the proper visual imagery of junior high students. Ronald Evans as greaser Jon Harris is the hardest to visualize in the role of a junior high student because of his large body size and mature facial features.

DAN GRAJEK as Benny Hopkins, through whose eyes we see the story, gives a fine portrayal of the wimpy Benny. The only thing detracting from his performance Saturday was ing his next line.

JIM JAGDFELD/staff photographer

Dan Grajek as Benny Hopkins (center) gets and Dan Rimer as Ken Coffee in the musical roughed up by Ron Evans as Jon Harris (left) "Junior High."

Grajek is backed up by a fine supporting cast, all of whom deserve acclaim for their work.

The four-piece orchestra — Cathea few seeming lapses in remember- rine Krenek on piano, Terry Birkett on guitar, Neal Krenek on bass and Eric Fass on drums - is up to the task of providing lively accompaniment and is one of the keys to the success of the show.

Most of the weaknesses in the production come from the script itself. After a rousing start, the play drags needlessly long in the first act. There also are some scenes which do not flow with the rest of the show.

One example is the pajama party scene where the mother of one of the girls crashes the party because she does not want to be home alone. This bit seems like it was borrowed from another play and stuck in.

The resolution of Harris' beating up Benny because Benny is a "weasel" seems a bit too tidy as well.

The Meadow Brook production is wonderfully acted by David Breitbarth as Haskell, Pauline Lepor as traveling alone and nearly penniless to a backwater Texas town. Imagine him selling bananas door to door from a rickety cart when he could speak only a few broken words of English. Imagine being the first Jew in a town filled with born-again Southern Baptists. Life wasn't easy.

When Haskell first arrives, the Perrys take him in. Milton, the stiff suspicious town banker, overcomes his natural reserve and sets Haskell up in business. Through the years, as the three Harelik sons are born, the wives develop a friendship despite their different roots and religious beliefs.

Jayne Houdyshell's performance as the buxom housewife with a kind heart rings true with every line, and Pauline Lepor as Leah evolves convincingly from a frightened foreigner to a woman at home in her new world. As Haskell's family and his business thrive, the friendship between the two couples does also. The story of their friendship with its differences and its misunderstandings provides the core of the drama within the larger story of Haskell's life.

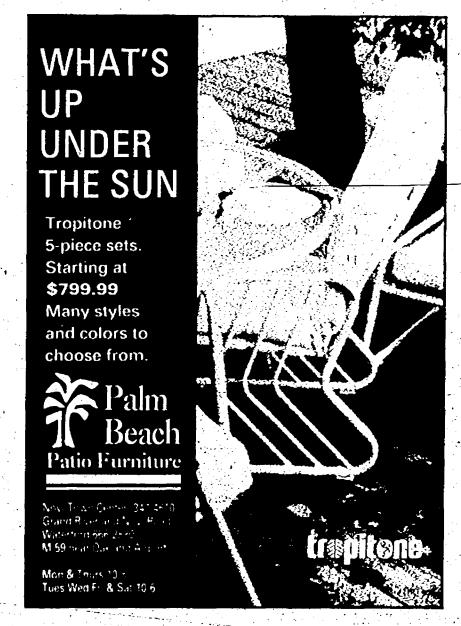

about good-hearted folk makes for warm entertainment but not for wonderful theater.

For starters, director Howard J. Millman sets a leisurely pace that lingers over every event like a Texas drawl lingers over vowels. Theoretically the slow-moving pace ought to suit a play set in the South early in the century, but the pace subtly undermines movement of the story, especially in the second act which has additional dramatic difficulties.

PART OF THE problem is that the tale is true, a multi-generational family saga written by Mark Harelik, grandson of the real immigrant Haskell Harelik. Fact shouldn't dictate the shape of the drama, but author Harelik lets them when he feels obliged to carry the story of his grandfather's life through to the end when the old man dies just short of his 100th birthday.

Core of the play's dramatic action revolves around the friendship between two couples. The climax and resolution of that story, however, happens long before old Haskell dies. The playwright should have stopped while he was ahead. Instead, he drags out his grandfather's remain-Fine acting and an engaging story sing years with a couple of pseudo endings that bog down an otherwise warm and engaging story brought to life by an outstanding cast.

Ed Levine stands between "Buffalo Dancer on 7th Ave." on the left and "Trinity." He said he still wants to do more paintings Whose town is this anyhow?

By Louise Okrutsky special writer

Edward Levine juxtaposes the incient-with-the-modern-the-joy-ous with the bleak in his series of oils on canvas, "Without Reserva-tion." His work is handled by Xochipilli Gallery, Birmingham.

Native American figures in colorful tribal dress are seen as surprising parts of urban landscapes in New York City and Los Angeles street. In New York, another rides regally on an I-beam hoisted over a busy street.

'I've always been interested in American Indian art from the turn of the century," Levine said.

"The whole idea of a culture being able to survive 500 years of European domination is extraordinary. In spite of this immense army of occupation, tribal and clan roots still survive."

Through the years, he's taken photos of native American social and ceremonial dances whenever permission was granted.

Those photographs weren't on his mind when he began the series a couple of years ago with the Los Angeles street scene. After trying several more conventional figures in the scene, he painted in the native American in full dress talking on the phone.

"Nothing else worked," he said.

FROM THEN ON, the Royal Oak-based artist used his collection of photographs of different tribal dancers for what turned out to be a series of paintings.

Some figures are whimsically incongruous with their scenes while others take part in small dramas. On a freeway ramp in Los Angeles, a dancer stands with his back to the viewer and in the path of an oncoming truck.

Although it calls to mind the scene in Tienanmen Square in which one man stands in front of a tank, Levine says he started the painting before that incident happened. "It took me a long time.-Istarted this picture and then Tienanmen Square happened. It was too much. There was something about that image. I stopped working for two months on this painting."

He was afraid that the image would be repeated by others so many times it would lose its impact. In a more whimsical scene on a New York street a young native American boy dances as a taxl passes him. His movements echo the stamp of frustration made by anyone who's had a tough time flagging a cab. At the same time the boy dancer looks joyful in his brightly colored costume.

Even the bleak streets of New York are painted in colors that seem to be brightened by an unseen sun. His intense colors are inspired by the time he spent in Los Ange-

New Kienzle mystery follows true to form

"Masquerade" by William X. Kienzle (267 pp., Andrews & McMeel, $15,95)

William Kienzle once said something to the effect that his books, like bedbugs, always come out in the

Well, it's spring and, sure enough, there's a new Father Koesler mystery at your bookstore. Believe it or not, this is Klenzle's 12th mystery tale. "The Rosary Murders," his first, was published way back in tremely deep, especially since he's

In the lively new whodunit, "Masquerade," faithful readers will find such familiar figures as the inimitable Inspector Walter Koznicki, along with Detroit's crack detective, Alonzo "Zoo" Tully, and, of course, that lovable amateur sleuth, Father Robert Koesler.

"Masquerade" takes place on the secluded campus of Detroit's Marygrove College, where a Trappist monk, an Episcopal priest, a rabbi \ will be ahead of the game here (as is and a nun have gathered to speak at a writers' conference.

All, in addition to their religious vocation, are mystery novelists. In addition, all have shadowy pasts.

ROUNDING OUT THE cast of "Masquerade" are the Episcopal priest's wife, the director of the conference, and Klaus Krieg, a televangelist and founder of the P.G. (Praise God) Press, who specializes in publishing super-sleaze, often set against a "religious" background.

Brought together at Marygrove, the group soon is faced with a strange, confusing murder - and the whodunit game is afoot.

Koesler, with his seemingly infinite knowledge of church matters and his insight into the human soul is, of course, at the forefront of the ensuing investigation.

In this tale, which is a bit reminiscent of Agatha Christie's "Ten Litthe Indians," the star of the story is Klaus Krieg, who, though he's riding high as a popular televangelist and publisher of sleaze, is anything but popular among the panel of authors at the Marygrove seminar.

IN FACT. AS IS evident early on. each one of them would like to see the loud-mouthed, conniving Krieg dead.

Rather 'strange, Koesler thinks, that their hatred of Krieg runs so exeager to publish each one of them and provide a hefty financial reward in the bargain.

(Also rather strange, thinks the reader, that a fundamentalist Christian evangelist, no matter how dastardly, would carry around with him the astonishing supply of liquor that Krieg does, and often openly partake points of the teachings of the Church with one color in common between them. always the case in Koesler's myster-

While the pace of "Masquerade" is occasionally slowed by lengthy flashbacks, and Kienzle's propensity to launch into churchy tales and anecdotes that seem to have little to do with the story at hand, things never really bog down.

His vividly fleshed out characters are delightful, and his effective evocation of the rather eerie background against which this darkest of deeds takes place makes the adventure even more fun.

IF YOU'RE LIKE me, you may think you have this one solved fairly early on. But chances are - if you're like me - you'll be wrong. Ultimately, "Masquerade" is a bit more complex than you may think.

No such thing as too much color

Q. There's nothing I like better than indulging myself with as many colors around me as possible. I particularly like the deep, rich colors currently popular in fashion, such as magenta, violet, teal, persimmon red and blue. Could you tell me how I could tastefully use these colors in my apartment? I don't want to fall back on using them as accents with white.

A. You can have an elegant apartment using as many colors as you like if you understand and apply four key design techniques: Arrange color by its tone, or dark or light value, as much as w you do by the quality of color itself; introduce textural variations of each color; incorporate a pattern that combines at least three of the colors used throughout the room; and pay a lot more attention to detail such as borders, welting, and accessories than you would if you were dealing with more conventional, soft colors.

Start by designing which color will become the key background color. In this instance, a slightly greyed, middle-toned violet would be suitable because it is a color that bridges the warm persimmon reds and cool teals and blues. All other colors should be either a match to this color's value, or distinctively lighter or darker. If the walls are a smooth finish, then the carpet whould be slightly ribbed or patterned.

Then determine what will be your secondary colors. Blue and blue-green (teal) would make an excellent choice in solid and patterned variations. Here, a bright magenta could be added in a weave or print pattern. These colors also combine to make elegant iridescent effects.

Despite the popularity of decorating with many patterns, I would recommend using no Readers familiar with the finer more than two patterns of different scales and

Then complete the color harmony with warm accents of persimmon reds and magentas in decorative pillows, braiding, and silk flower arrangements. Cap off everything with discreet touches of burnished gold in candle sticks and picture frames. The entire look will also achieve a sense of elegance if wood finishes are included in armoires or other furniture pieces. Avoid anything too plastic or metallic with such an intense color harmony.

Q. Many spring and summer fashions are using a strong yellow-green color that I've heard described as "chartrouse." It's very dramatic; especially when combined with other strong colors. Since I like keeping up with fashion, I was wondering whether I should wear this color, or avoid it? I'm quite tall, with an in-between shade of brown blondish bair, hazel eyes, and balanced skin tones that don't seem to fit in to any "seasonal" category.

A. Since the 1920s, the yellow-green color you are referring to as "chartreuse" has been surveyed by various color researchers and found to be consistently and deeply disliked — more than any other color. Yet this most-hated color makes its periodic appearances, particularly in fashion.

Helen Diane Vincent

Don't hesitate to use very small amounts of this color when it adds sparkle to deep, rich colors. But avoid it in any larger amounts or in a solid color garment. It's perhaps the most unflattering color for most skin tones, and for anyone with pale or even medium balanced coloring. I would suggest exploring other fashion colors you can use to your advantage, such as the new oranges and rusts making their periodic comeback.

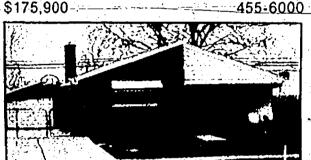

Helen Vincent will be teaching a class on "Updating Ideas About Good Taste" 7-9 p.m. Wednesday, May 2 through the Bloomfield Schools Adult Education Program. For information/registration, call 433-0885.

Flower show judging calls for special training and healthy and your hanging hoya so lush that you're sure they could win a ribbon or trophy in a major flower show - like the Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show to be presented this weekend by the University of Michigan's Matthaei Botanical Gardens in Yost Field House, Ann

But you're a bit intimidated by the rules for exhibitors, by the stiff competition and perhaps by the judges. Just how qualified are these judges- and exhibit-design. Then they take to deem one primrose more perfect than another, one garden's design concept more original than its competitor?

Nancy Passfield, an accredited master judge, offers some answer to these questions and insights into the complexities of gardening competition. A resident of Farmington Hills, she has attained the highest rank possible for judges accredited by the National Council of State Garden Clubs.

The following are some questions posed to Passfield and her answers: Q. The show you will be judging at U-M ls a standard flower show. What does that mean?

'A. A standard flower show is one that follows the standard federated guidelines established by the National Council of State Garden Clubs. All of those requirements, including categories of entries, awards offered and awards criteria, are basically the same for shows nationwide. The rules are unbendable and must be followed to the letter for the show to qualify as a standard flower show.

For example, each standard show must have an least as many horticulture entries — cut specimens or potted plants — as artistic design entries — the floral arrangements. Each division must have at least five classes, or categories, with a minimum of four entries in each. And, of course, all exhibits must be judged require all dried plants for a combiby accredited judges.

Here's how to get there

Your African violets are so vivid selves must have met some requirements.

> A. Yes, rigorous ones. Prospective: judges must first take three courses in artistic design and horticulture and pass a preliminary exam just to become student judges. During this period, they also must compete in accredited shows and acquire three blue ribbons for artistic design and . two in horticulture classes or vice.

This show diversity in growing two more courses and pass a final exam to gain judge accreditation. The whole process take most people about two years.

.To remain accredited, they must attend a symposium at least once every two years. After attending three sets of those, they earn the title of life judge. If they continue exhibiting and attending symposiums for still another two years, they become master judges.

Q. What about the requirements for exhibitors? Are their entries heavily screened?

A. No. Just the major garden environments, which comprise a small portion of the exhibits, are screened by a panel

Standard flower flows must open all design and horticulture competition to the general public, amateurs only. Many flower shows offer the free services of consultants for each class to help exhibitors understand what is expected of them.

Some general rules must be followed for eligibility in any class. For instance, no taxidermy is permitted, spray painting in any exhibition is not allowed and the United States flag must not be used in a design.

Exhibitors also must meet the requirements of whatever classes they enter. One class may ask the designer to incorporate white pine into all fresh plant material; another might nation of fresh and dried. Some of Q. These accredited judges them- the requirements for design classes are so specific they state the exact dimensions of tables and pedestals.

The planning of a vignette for a design entry, depending on its complexity, could take months. The exhibitor might need to coordinate colors and corner furniture arrangements, even table settings. A design entry should convey certain feelings as well as visual impressions.

Q. With all these requirements to den environments and design classconsider, along with your subjective opinions, how does a judge determine the award-winners in just a few hours?

A. We use the same elements and principles of design that judges of any art competition would use in clean and well-groomed for the octheir decision-making. For the gar-es, we consider motion, contrast, rhythm, balance of scale. In the horticulture classes, the goal is horticultural perfection. The flowers must be very fresh and at just the right stage of bloom - not too tight, not too open. House plants should be casion.

Since we use a 100-point scale for scoring, we can point score if we're faced with two very similar entries.

The Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show will be at Yost Field House. Tickets are $6 per person, $3 for childen 12 and under, and 35 are available at all Ticketmaster outlets and J. L. Hudson stores.

WE'RE CELEBRATING EARLY

FOR A BLESSED EVENT. I.C.U. OPEN HOUSE AT HENRY FORD HOSPITAL

A brand new I.C.U. is coming into the world at Henry Ford Hospital. We're hiring a complete team of nurses now and training them on our current I.C.U. That way, they'll know exactly what to do when the SATURDAY, APRIL 7th, 1:00-5:00 p.m.

At our Open House, nurses can come celebrate with us. And you can talk to our doctors and nurses about what it's really like to work on one of these very exciting units. You can also tour our facilities, and if you need a place to leave your own "blessed events" while learning about ours, our Gerber Child Care Center will be at your disposal. And of course, we'll be serving refreshments.

Free valet parking is available at the main entrance of the Hospital. Henry Ford Hospital, 2799 W. Grand Blvd., Detroit, MI 48202, (313) 972-1828. An Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer.

A family tradition Area builders are 'chips off the old block'

By Doug Funke staff writer

Careers in building and development are a family tradition in a number of major contracting firms, with the company serving as a unique heirloom that is not a guaranteed treasure.

Some children entered the family business because it was something they had planned to do since toddlers while others tried other fields and then came "homé" to construction. Still others had to prove they deserved a spot in the family firm.

Peter Burton, '36, and Robert Katzman, 44, are co-owners of a Birmingham development/building cash for "adventures."

Burton said his career in development was accidental and that he would find work in the construction field when he was running low on

"By some accident about 15 years knew I would do it." ago, I was in Los Angeles after a trip Burton's father, Lester, 76, built overseas. I needed some money, so I would do anything, being a handyman. The business grew into a large, thriving, general construction busi-

Lester also was persuaded by his wife that he couldn't order his son into the business like his father had directed him to law a generation earlier.

Inter-generation rivalry here? Nope. "Peter is 10 times a better de--veloper than-I-was," Lester said.

Paul Levine, president of the Irvine Group of Farmington Hills, started working for his father, Irving, at about 15 years of age.

"I don't think I was encouraged or discouraged," Paul said.

THE OPPORTUNITY to learn the business was made available, but not on a silver platter. Paul, 42, cleaned houses and worked with superintendents in the field.

"I learned everything from the outside in," he said.

But the first order of business of young adulthood was getting a college degree. Paul pursued business and psychology, interrupting studies for a four-year Navy hitch. There wasn't one single-incident that drew him to the construction industry.

"It was a business to go into that than one specific thing," Paul said. "What I like is so many challenges, so many things to do. I'm working onthree or four different projects."

The New American Home is an 'ideal'-home-that-is-built each year at the National Association of Home Builders convention, said James Bonadeo, president of the Michigan

"The house built in an Atlanta suburb for the 46th annual NAHB convention was designed for the 'thirtysomething' market," Bonadeo said.

"THESE PEOPLE are raising young children, have a taste for luxury but are fundamentally budgetconscious. This market generally consists of the first or second time move-up buyer."

The architectural firm of Claude Miquelle Associates of Wakefield, Mass, designed the award winning home, which featured a blend of old and new architectural features.

The firm began at the top with ceilings that are coffered, opened up or angled to follow the roofline. For example, the center entry has a traditional hipped roofline, balcony and vented pediment, hinting at classical Georgian motifs.

"THE NEW American Home '90 features an innovative floor plan that breaks some conventional rules," Bonadeo said. "The stairwell is located directly off the kitchen and family room, rather than the more public and formal foyer. Another architectural twist is a loft atop the stairwell, adding volume and dimension to the family's 'common ground' kitchen area."

The fover, dining room and parlor can be maintained as a private area simply by closing the doors to the family and breakfast rooms. But simply swinging the doors open allows the rooms to flow together.

"As families increasingly use the dining room as an every day gathering place, as well as for formal entertaining, its design was balanced to accommodate both functions. The family room acts as the focus of the family's entertainment and therefore opens directly into the kitchen," Bonadeo said.

Higher interest rates, lack of faith depress home sales

(AP) - High interest rates and declining consumer confidence somewhat depressed new home sales in February although they bounced back slightly from steep declines the previous two months, according to Commerce Department figures released last week.

The department said new singlefamily homes were sold at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 607,000 units in February after plummeting 6.8 percent in January and a revised 8.0 percent in December.

But the February rate still was below the 649,000 homes sold in 1989 and, except for January, the lowest since 556,000 homes were sold on an annual basis last March. Sales totaled 589,000 in January.

will go higher in the second half of the year.

David Seiders, chief economist for the National Association of Home Builders, also pointed to weakness in the economy, including slower job growth, as contributing to a decline in consumer confidence and thus softer sales.

The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. said interest on fixed-rate mortgages rose from 10.17 percent at the beginning of February to 10.31 percent before falling to 10.23 percent at month's end.

Mark Obrinsky, an economist with the Federal National Mortgage Association, described the 10 percent level a "psychological barrier" that was keeping the housing market a little weaker than at the end of 1989 when rates dropped into single di-

The management company is attempting to keep the costs down for the association, even though there are no lawyers on the staff of the management company. Do you think this is a good policy?

The management company can play a key role in any of the association's collection policies. That role should be played, however, primarily when the delinquency is first created by way of the agent following the collection policy, sending late notices and reminder letters to the delinquent co-owner.

However, once the matter has been turned over to the association's counsel for the filing of a lien and other legal action, the management company, while in a position to assist the attorney in gathering information, should not interject itself into the negotiations and/or prosecution of the delinquent co-owner without the advice and consent of the at-one of the interesting ideas which I have had an opportunity to look at recently not only was a marina condominium with boat slips but with the dry dock facilities. In short, the marina and the condominium provided a dry dock area among a bumper crop of home prodeducational and more fun for kids.

There's even a house on the market geared to child safety. The Orleans Co., a home builder in Huntingdon Valley, Pa., has what it claims is the first home designed specifically to protect a child.

An optional package of 25 safety features would add $2,495 to the price of a house in the Stonegate development in Mount Laurel, N.J. The homes sell for between $159,000 and $189,000.

Besides a monitoring intercom, the package includes light switches and stair railing set at child height, spring-loaded locks on electrical ucts meant to make life safer, more water pipes leading to faucets, screwed-to-the-floor heat register covers, countertops and window sills with rounded corners, stair gates, smoke detectors in closets where children are apt to play, high density carpet padding, a low-profile hearth and door sills, and landscaping with non-toxic plants.

The company consulted child safety experts in designing the home. said Gary Stefanoni, sales manager. The model, which also is furnished with widely available safety features, is open to the public.

PRODUCT CHOICES for children have expanded enormously, said Antonio F. Torrice, co-author of "In My outlets, locks on cabinets and utility Room: Designing for and with Chil-room doors, anti-scald devices on hot dren," (Fawcett Columbine, hard- are overcrowded." cover, $22.95)...

> In the book, Torrice, a designer from San Francisco, advised parents to encourage even very young children to help select their room decor.

He considers the floodtide of new products for kids to be part of the upwardly mobile, two-career household. It also reflects concerns busy parents have that society's institutions are not meeting their children's needs, he said.

"There is more of an emphasis on products that teach and protect or nurture children because parents want their kids to have that extra edge." says Torrice. "And they sense the child may not be getting individualized attention at schools, which rolls.

A child's bedroom walls are becoming a focus of the educational process with wide, decorative borders that have a learning or a play component. The Essex Kids line by GenCorp of Hackensack, N.J. features three border motifs - a farm scene, city street and dollhouse which are applied like regular wallcovering.

INCLUDED WITH each 5-yard roll of border is a set of moveable stick-on vinyl figures manufactured by the Colorforms toy company. The border costs about $24 per roll. An average room, allowing for windows and doors, would take about three

Ventilation ease effects of formaldehyde

By Popular Mechanics For AP Newsfeatures

I've been hearing a lot about the dangers of formaldehyde pollution in the air inside my home. What is the source of this pollution and what can be done about it?

Formaldehyde is a resin used in home products such as hardwood plywood used in wall paneling, particle board used in underlayment and medium-density fiberboard used in furniture, countertops and cabinets.

Formaldehyde risk from conventional housing using conventional construction techniques is minimal.

Many builders have shifted away from particle board in favor of exterior grade plywood which contains a different resin. And the National Particle Board Association and the Hardwood Plywood Manufacturers Association have developed voluntary standards to reduce the substance in their products.

The amount of formaldehode released depends on the surface area containing formaldehyde and the volume of the house. Smaller houses and mobile homes, which contain a lot of these boards, have a likelihood of higher emission rates. Formal-

This, coupled with the fact that many products adhere to some guidelines, means even recently built houses should not have a problem.

But if someone in your family is sensitive, you can ventilate the area and paint the surface of the formaldehyde-containing product with any paint that acts as a vapor retarder. This is especially important in the case of medium-density fiber board. This product is the highest emitter of formaldehyde and is not governed by voluntary standards.

Oriental rugs regain center stage in home decorating

By Barbara Mayer AP Newsfeatures

Oriental rugs have long been a decorating favorite, but as part of the current emphasis on traditional decor they're particularly au

With museum cooperation, new copies are being made of rare old originals. An educational series on Oriental rugs, "Art Under Foot," is airing on many public TV stations. And five lectures on antique Orientals are set for Christie's auction house in New York in the spring.

The wide disparity in price and patterns and confusing marketing methods make choosing an Oriental difficult, according to John Kurtz, host of the PBS series. Adding to the dilemma are dealers with perennial "going out of business" sales and fictitious price reductions of 40 to 60 percent, he said.

every Oriental should be evaluated on the quality of wool and workmanship and the appeal of color and design. While the latter two characteristles are more subjective than the first two, experts usually agree on which rugs are more desirable and which are less so.

Even a novice, said Kurtz, can soon distinguish between good wool, which resembles the hand of a fine wool suit, and one of lesser quality, which may feel harsh and scratchy. Beware, however, the too soft rug. It won't wear well.

Both natural vegetable dyes, which give a softer color, and the more common chrome dyes are excellent. Aniline synthetic dyes, which -you may find in some older rugs, are not reliably durable, Kurtz said:

While there are plenty of old Orientals around, many new rugs are being woven. An interesting venture begun in 1984 is the partnership No matter the type, said Kurtz, between the rug-weaving city of Ti-

THE RUGS are sold mainly through high end home furnishings stores.

Cooperating museums are Independence Hall, the National Trust for Historic Preservation; The Preservation Society of Newport, R. I.; Winterthur Museum in Wilmlington, Del.; Museum of Fine Arts in Boston; Historic Charleston Foundation, Historic Natchez Foundation and the British National Trust.

Copies from the Museum of Decorative Arts in Paris and the Brooklyn Museum will scon be available, according to Roy Maloumian, president of the Philadelphia company.

Each collection includes just a few rug designs in several sizes from 4 by 6 to 11 by 18 feet. Prices range from $800 to about $8,000. There are runners from 10 to 20 feet long. Custom sizes in any length and as wide. as 20 feet are available. Delivery for a custom rug is about one year.

The five seminars at Christie's organized by Keith-Wayne, head of therug and carpet department in New York, are designed to focus on what Imported Orientals generally come from one of four sources: a cottage industry, small or large factory or from nomadic tribes who weave as they go. Appearance differs with each source.

Some areas provide all sources. In Turkey, for example, there are factories, cottage industries and some tribal rug production.

Besides where they are made and how they are made, rugs can also be classified according to pattern. But traditional patterns of one area may be copied by another. As an investment, Wayne says it is better to buy a rug in the area where the pattern originated.

OLD RUG or new? Pampered rugs that have mellowed and developed patina are favored by those who believe older rugs are usually more finely woven.

But, said Wayne, "at the high end new rugs are very, very good.'

A workbench is the heart of a workshop. A sturdy 2 by 4 frame topped by a double layer of 4-inch. plywood will serve as an excellent, easy-to-make workbench.

space than you have, you can build a fold down unit. Use a solid core door for the bench top, fasten it to a wall, using a piano hinge. Support the front edge with 2 by 4 legs attached with hinges and folding leg brackets that lock open.

Because concrete is hard on the feet and damages tools that are dropped accidentally, cushion the workshop-floor with-plywood-or-anold carpet.

Storing Tools Here are some tips for expanding storage space:

• A back of the door tool rack is great for storing small tools and sup-

• You can store tools on wall hooks or on a peg board. Paint the outline of each tool on the surface to remind you and others where to replace it.

To make a handy rack for screwdrivers and other small tools, drill a series of ½ to 2 inch holes through a 1 by 3. Mount the rack on the wall with L brackets:

A good way to organize washers and nuts is to hang them according to size on large safety pins or on wire coat hangers whose necks have been untwisted, urn regular glass into stained glass with overlay system

THAT DO a medieval cathedral, a storm door in Rhode Island, a shower stall in Arizona and a light fixture in Missouri share in common? The answer: stained glass.

The ancient craft of making colored glass, cutting it into pieces to make intricate designs, then framing the pieces with heated lead began in Europe in the Middle Ages.

Today, there are few practitioners of this medieval craft. But a modern version of stained glass is available to homeowners through a patented overlay system that uses everyday or tempered glass already in place.

"It's bringing new light, color, attractive custom-design patterns and even a substantial boost in resale value to homeowners around the nation and in 21 other countries," says William Slippy Jr., executive vice president of Stained Glass Overlay of Ir. vine, Calif.

THE PROCESS STARTS by positioning the desired design, on paper, on one side of a glass section, then cementing slexible lead strips into place by hand on the other, following the design lines.

· Colored coverings - translucently thin but durable - are razored to fit. then cemented into place. This material can be textured or smooth.

The new system, Slippy says, has led to an international franchise network of artisans who can create andinstall a customized stained glass overlay in a few days rather than weeks.

One of the artisan entrepreneurs — Don Mitchell of St. Charles, Mo. points out that an in-home light fixture made by the original stained glass method would weigh about 80 pounds.

'We can create the same decorative fixture with the same design, and it weighs eight pounds," Mitchell says.

HERE'S always a big emphasis on kitchens
when thoughts of spring and remodeling first crop up Inside this special section we cover a couple of aspects. One is on kitchen remodeling itself with some very valuable planning helps from the National Kitchen and Bath
Association. See story on Pages 6-7.

Incidentally, the kitchen shown with the story is featured in Woman's Day Home Ideas & Baths. The cooking center features the flexibility of a combination wall oven, white glass cooktop with solid cast iron cooking elements, and a downdraft vent system, all from KitchenAid.

The low wall of the cooking peninsula is brightened by mosaic tiles from American Olean Tile, and serves to shield cooking clutter from guests.

firms will be among the major exhibitors in the Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show. One of them is Goldner Walsh Nursery in Pontiac who will create an English garden setting. A Japanese spring garden, called a "Harven," will be created by Alexander Nursery of Mt. Clemens. For a complete details on the show; see the story on Pages 8-9.

Color creative

A palette for every design imagined

F YOU have fond memories of days spent coloring with crayons and building with blocks, take heart

Today's home fashion trends encourage very similar creative play, and there are fewer rules and directives than ever before.

But with the furnishings, accessories and sophisticated colors you have to play with, the results are far from childlike. You can translate your imagination and fantasies into lovely interiors.

Four categories are pre-eminent in home decor this spring: vibrant and clear, relaxed and rustic, ethnic, contemporary. And you can "color in" these styles with shades from any row in the crayon box.

Instead of fitting into neat categories, the colors this spring comfortably cross from one category to another. You can mix and match them to capture whatever feeling you want.

Traditionalism is the strongest trend for spring, and it takes two different forms.

Victoriana features florals and other prints, silk fabrics and plenty of tassels.

RELAXED AND RUSTIC traditional continues the strong country feeling but with a whimisical flair.

The Southwest influence remains central not just the crisp loveliness of the Santa Fe scene, but also the dynamism of cowboys and Indians. Buckskin with fringes, deer hides, colored suedes and leathers. Navajo rugs and Indian artifacts round out the Southwest look. As throws for a sofa or table, or fringed pillows, these pieces create a warm, casual air.

Want to relive the fun of building with blocks? Instead of buying a coffee table, put one together yourself. Capture the traditional neo-classic look: use a Greco-Roman pilaster as a base, and cover it with a piece of glass. For added visual intrigue, set if off by placing a Chinese stool nearby. Design your own lamps the same way.

The contemporary look continues to win favor, and white and black appear often to create that sleek, spare atmosphere. Vibrant and clear accents of color lend a special stylish presence to this category.

Ethnic touches also are popular, often mixed and matched with folkloric splashes. Eclecticism is everywhere: an African mask next to an Oriental screen is terrific.

The ethnic look attests to the importance of accessories, which have gained a place of prominence in defining a room's style. Chinese is one of the strongest ethnics, played out with ceramic lamps and ginger jars — sometimes used as table bases when topped with glass

The beauty of accessories is in their mobility. They're so inexpensive and flexible that you can change them without raiding your bank account. When you tire of them, move them into the den or attic, and bring in something fresh.

COLORS THEMSELVES are being freshened this spring. The Santa Fe mauve and sea foam shades are deeper than they had been. They're refreshing if you're decorating anew. But if you find the light pastels you already have are nurturing and airy, don't fret. They remain very much in vogue.

Color contrast is the key this spring. Use light colors on your walls, and accent them with dark pieces around the room. Play vivid colors against neutral ones. Be open to new color contrasts; if you used to cling to brown and beige, try placing copper with purple for a fabulous look.

Purple and green also are dramatic together, but the purple need not be intense. Try a deep eggplant with absinthe green, or wisteria with milky green. Consider, too blending greens with spicy shades that have a golden undertone, such as yellow greens or blue greens. There are abundant variations to these colors.

And don't forget the neutrals, which you can bring in as a contrast with any

'Lino Look' lives

HE Linoleum Look is back.

No. not linoleum itself—that type of flooring hasn't been made in this country for nearly two decades—but the Linoleum Look.

Armstrong the last American linoleum maker, is bringing out a line of vinyl floors inspired by the best linoleum patterns of the 1930s and '40s when Art Deco was all the rage. But since these floors are vinyl, they require less upkeep than linoleum and can be used anywhere in the home.

Despite economic depression and war, the 30s and 40s were an era that defined elegance. Top hats and tails, nightclubs and gossip columns, Bogey and Bacall, big bands, Hollywood opening night, crack express trains hurtling across the continent toward gleaming metropolises — everything swift, sleek and streamlined.

That era has been magically restored to us now in "Dinner at Eight," "Cafe Society" and "Black Tie," the three flooring patterns that make what Armstrong calls its Encore Collection. The patterns come in a variety of colors. And, if anything, these vinyl floors are even more stylish than the linoleum floors that inspired them.

Many people still think linoleum and vinyl floors are the same, They're not. Not only are they produced differently but their composition is quite different. And it's those differences that make vinyl floors, quite simply, better performers than the linoleum floors they obsoleted.

When Armstrong decided to revive the Linoleum Look of the '30s' '40s, the designers knew better than to slavishly copy the old patterns. Instead they updated them in important ways to make them more acceptable to today's consumers and compatible with their current preferences in home decor.

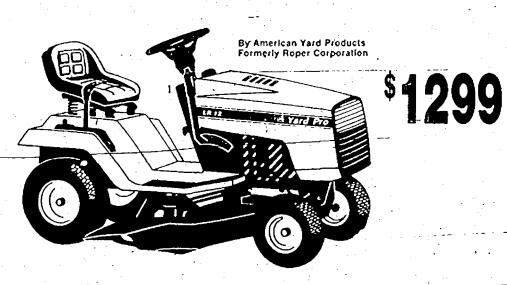

"Cafe Society" is one of three vinyl floors in Armstrong's new Encore Collection, inspired by classic linoleum patterns of the 1930s and '40s. The revival of the Linoleum Look can be traced to renewed interest in the streamlined Art Deco styling of that era.

Gardeners' art ready to bloom

REAT yourself to a garden paradise by attending the Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show April 6-8 at the Yost Ice Areña.

as you enter through the Secret Garden Gate. Inside: you will discover thousands of blooming tulips, daffodils and azaleas, fragrant hyacinths and colorful rhododendrons. Your senses will come alive with lush floral perfumest running brooks and picture perfect gardens you would love to call your own.

The "Secret Garden" title was chosen for the show to underscore the fact that the University of Michigan's Matthaei Botanical Gardens is one of the area's best kept secrets. Almost three years of planning have gone into organizing Michigan's largest indoor flower and garden show.

THE SHOW'S HIGHLIGHTS will be special exhibits by local chapters of more than a dozen plant societies, including ikebana, rose, bonsai, herb and orchid groups. Major landscape designers and mursery firms, both traditional and contemporary schools of design, will create dramatic garden environments such as English, Japanese and native Michigan plant landscape.

Michigan garden club members and novice designers will exhibit floral arrangements, while area residents will enter their finest plant(s) into horticultural compatition. Educational and environmental groups will have pictorial displays to illustrate their mis-

Be sure to browse through the Marketplace, which will offer unusual plant and gardening materials for the home or garden. After you have toured the entire show, rest and refreshments will be available in a special area set aside for that purpose.

The flower show, which will be at the ice area at 1600 S. State Street, will run from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday, April 6-7 and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, April 8. Tickets are available now at the Matthaei Botanical Gardens, U-M Michigan Union tickets office, all Ticketmaster outlets, at J. L. Hudson stores or at the door of the arena. Tickets are $6 for adults and $3 for children 12 years and under.

Proceeds from the event will fund the Matthaei Gardens' educational and public programs. Guidelines for the show have been established by the National Council of State Garden Clubs for a standard flower show.

For more information, contact the gardens at 998-7061 or 998-7343.

Here's where you can park

For garden show visitors' convenience, free parking is available at the Briarwood Mall on State Street and at Pioneer High School on 601 W. Stadium Boulevard.

Shuttle buses will run regularly to and from both lots to the flower show. Shuttle fare will cost $1 each way.

For out-of-towners, State Street in Ann Arbor is easily accessible from I-94. Simply get off at State Street (Exit 177) heading north. Park in the Briarwood Mall lot, which will appear on the left side of State Street almost immediately after exiting 94. The shuttles will board passengers in the east end of the lot by Sears Department Store.

If you choose to park at Pioneer High School, get off I-94 at the Ann Arbor-Saline Road exit heading northeast toward Ann Arbor. Take Ann Arbor-Saline Road until it ends at Main Street. Veer onto Main Street. Head north on Main Street and turn left into the Pioneer High School parking lot. Pioneer High School is on the corner of Main Street and West Stadium. Boulevard.

About the cover: Welcome news

An artistic setting of a welcome design graces the cover of this special Home and Garden section.

The welcome design is one of four competitive classications to be on display at the Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show featuring the work of amateur floral designers.

The arrangement on the cover, however, is only an example of work that could appear. This setting was created by the Matthaei staff.

Matthaei horticulturalist Adrienne O'Brien and Mike Hommel. gardens superintendent, trim some flowers from topiary figures that the gardens will have on display at the flower show. All the plant material for Matthaei's part of the show has been grown under O'Brien's watchful eve. Hommel is flower show designer, stage designer and production coordinator.

Tips on creating more space in your home

OU could make more work and storage space in your present home by thinking twice: Can the area serve more than one purpose, and is there available vertical 'air'' space? ...

Even a small kitchen usually can accommodate a multi-purpose spot for household paperwork and meal planning, according to Better Homes & Gardens' Remodeling Ideas magazine.

And consider wallspace and doorspace in addition to floorspace, advises Judith Miley, spokeswoman for Clairson International, makers of closet and storage systems. You may have more cubic footage available than you real-

The key to working out a multi-purpose work space is to figure out which tasks are done regularly and base the design on those needs.

If you cook and entertain frequently, then you probably can use a desk for meal planning and shelves deep enough for cookbooks. The same area can double as a family message, study and computer center, complete with wall-mounted cabinets, shelving, bins, wall phone, stationery and books.

--- You might choose a flat display rack similar to those in stores if many of the cookbooks are in large formats. A stacked desk and shelf combination for the personal computer might be the best choice if you manage household accounts on a PC. Keep in mind that reading and writing by hand require a desk height of about 30 inches, while a a computer or typewriter keyboard should be on a surface about 26 inches

ALSO PROVIDE A stable power source for the computer, which can lose its memory or scramble your work during power surges caused by use of other appliances or temporary electrical outages. Power strips or boxes with fused protection against electrical surges and spikes, available in hardware and electronics stores, can be mounted easily to existing outlets.

Use overhead shelves to store small equipment and other items you need frequently but want out of the way. A cork bulletin board mounted next to the wall phone will cut down desktop clutter.

Miley suggests you analyzé each room for inventive ways to make better use of the space you have.

Your bathroom linen closet could be turned into a miniature laundry with a compact, stackable washer-dryer (since it's often right on plumbing mains), then linens can be accommodated on wall-running shelves in the bathroom or with tiered shelves in part of a nearby closet outside the room. If you are replacing the tub, consider putting the new-one on a platform, with storage drawers in the platform step.

While you can maximize cubic footage for storage as part of a renovation project, there still are ways to reorganize your existing space without rebuilding, Miley says. She suggests using stacking shelves, double-hanging shelf-and-rod combinations, vertical dividers, wall-to-wall shelving, or even automated revolving retrieval systems, which her company markets under the Closet Maid and Keiji trademarks. Most of these pieces are based on coated metal wire, with wood and laminates.

YOU ALSO CAN find useable kitchen space by suspending cookware and lightweight plants from ceilings where there isn't traffic, or hanging shallow, coated-wire bins in existing shelving. Put tiered shelves in previously unused corners.

You can make space by mounting shoe shelves on closet walls or on the interior sides of the closet doors. Shallow shelves and coat hooks also can be mounted on doors.

Remember safety and convenience: Plan storage of heavy items between knee and shoulder height, glide-out cabinet organizers for better visibility and access, mobile storage pieces for use as carts to transport appliances, food or tableware to other rooms, and adéquate lighting throughout.
