THE WAYNE-WESTLAND school board endorsed two proposals in the state Legislature calling for a constitutional amendment to change the way the state finances public schools. -

The resolution, which offers support for state House Joint Resolution "S" and Senate Joint Resolution "O," was approved unanimously by the school board Monday.

The amendment called for in both proposals would have to be approved by Michigan voters. It could be placed on the November ballot.

In the last year Wayne-Westland school officials have joined several efforts, including a statewide lawsult, to make school financing "more equitable" for in-formula districts.

Airing meetings gets low rating from officials

By Tedd Schneider staff writer

Westland's lack of televised city council meetings is the exception rather than the rule in the western Wayne-area, even in-communities where the local cable budget is dwarfed by Westland's nearly $550,000 in annual expenditures.

But Westland City Council members - including those who said last week they would support televised meetings - haven't made the issue a

The council has final approval over whether its meetings are televised.

Mayor Robert Thomas' monthly Town Hall meetings, which began in March, are taped and shown on the city's Channel 8. Thomas said he had no objections to televising the twicemonthly council meetings.

Reasons cited by council members for not proposing cable coverage ranged from the belief that televised meetings would create a "circus" atmosphere, to possible additional expense with no evidence of a demand for it by local residents.

THREE OF SIX council members surveyed by the Observer last week strongly endorsed the concept of televised meetings. One council member said she would lean toward approval if a proposal were made, one said the matter would need "a lot of study" and one was strongly against televising meetings on cable.

Councilman Kenneth Mehl couldn't be reached for comment.

The strongest support came from Charles Pickering and Thomas Art-ley, with Artley saying he would consider bringing it up at a future study session.

"I think it (televising meetings) is something we should do," Artley said. "I think we do have the facilities, the equipment, not that we didn't have nine or 10 months ago." "It would be an important way for ...

our citizens to see our government in action," Pickering said. "If it was upfor a vote I would go for it."

Sandra Cicirelli also said she would endorse a television proposal. if it came to a vote.

Terri Reighard Johnson said she didn't have "any problems" with the idea, but other programs, such as the city's bid to get money for Drug Abuse Resistance Education were her top priority.

Council President Thomas Brown said cable coverage would require a lot of study if proposed and also listed other priorities.

Ben DeHart didn't favor the idea. I think it would turn (council meetings) into the same circus it was: eight years ago," DeHart said, refer-

An offer making the rounds in several Westland neighborhoods for curb address painting violates a city ordinance and may be a scam, police said last week.

"Curbs are city property and anybody doing work on city property needs permission," said Detective Sgt. Mike Terry, who heads the Westland police crime prevention bureau.

"They are not authorized to do this work. In fact, city has never given permission for this kind of thing because of (its potential) liabili-

Terry said fliers advertising curb address painting were distributed earlier this month in neighborhoods in the Ann Arbor Trail-Inkster

They offer the service for $5-$8 and ask residents to leave the money in an envelope by 9 a.m. the next day for the service.

Police have received a few calls from people questioning the fliers, Terry said. Callers said the fliers were being distributed from a truck with Florida license plates and a sign advertising the Reflective Street Address Maintenance Co.

NOBODY HAS reported personal contact with people distributing the fliers, Terry said. They hit the neighborhoods early in the morning and ask people to leave the money early," Terry said. "That's what leads me to believe it's not a legitimate business.

Terry also said the fliers don't give any information about the company, such as an address or telephone number of someone to contact about the service.

He said other communities have reported similar business solicitations in which the addresses were either painted incorrectly or not painted at all.

He said traveling thieves and con artists have been known to use address painting service as a scam. "It doesn't sound like much," but you get 10 people to throw $8 in an envelope and you're looking at a fast $80," he said.

DeHart said it would be helpful to see a comprehensive breakdown of communities in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb countles and how they handle televised meetings if the council were to discuss such a proposal.

Dennis Fassett, who heads the city's CATV/community relations department, said televising council meetings would be an expensive proposition that would require buying additional equipment.

Nationally, Fassett said last week, a large majority of communities with cable TV don't televise local meetings. Those that do, he said, often use meetings as an easy way to fulfill local programming require-You do a three-hour council meeting and that generates three hours."

Fassett said a lower quality broadcast would turn viewers away and defeat the purpose of televising

Parks' future envisions boating, walkways

By Wayne Peal staff writer .

Boaters could return to Newburgh Lake this summer after an almost 50-year absence.

Canoe and paddleboat tentals are being considered for Newbrugh Lake, in Livonia, as well as for Wilcox Lake, in Plymouth Township.

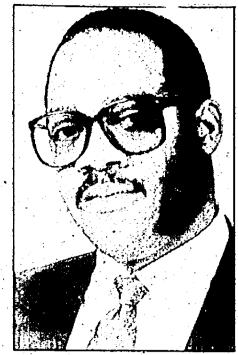

Wayne County Parks officials await word from the county health. department on water safety levels in the small, man-made waterways. If levels are deemed safe, boat rentals could soon begin.

Though part of the Rouge River system, the lakes are considered far less polluted than the Rouge itself.

Talks are underway with a private contractor to establish a boat rental service, county officials said. The boat rental is one of a number of improvements sought for the Newburgh Point area.

The county is planning $1 million in park improvements, using a mix of state bonds and matching county money.-The-three-phased-project is expected to be completed by 1992, if the state awards the bonds.

An additional $86,900 is sought for comfort station and other improvements in Elizabeth Park, Trenton.

Newburgh Lake is in southwest Livonia, between Newburgh Road and I-275. Wilcox Lake is in southeast Plymouth Township, roughly two miles northwest of Newburgh Lake. Both are on Edward Hines NEWBURGH LAKE was created by Ford Motor Company in the 1930s to generate hydroelectric power to a nearby Ford "village industry" plant. It was site of several nationally-recognized ice skating competitions after being turned over to the county park system in the 1940s.

According to county records, a boat rental service operated on Newburgh Lake in the 1940s, but ended when the man who operated it was drafted into military service during World War II.

Excessive vegetation has plagued both lakes in recent years. Talks are continuing with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers on plans to dredge the lakes. Because federal approval could take several years, the county is considering cutting the aquatic plants as a short-term solution.

All projects are part of a larger park master plan - calling for as much as $10 million in improve-

Jealousy

Emotion can bond or destroy

This is the last in a series by counselor Karyn Pasquel, based on material from a planned book. All rights reserved.

"For I am jealous over you with godly jealousy . . . " (2 Corinthlans 11:2). "For jealousy is the rage of a man: therefore he will not spare in the day of vengeance." (Proverbs

- How is it that one emotion can be both destructive and protective? Jealousy can be the most powerful bonding tool a relationship can have, although while channeled differently, it can also be the most destructive force in a partnership.

It is common to think of jealousy as "the green-eyed monster." To be called jealous is to be insulted. Yet, a person who truly believes in someone and loves that person should have a healthy sense of jealousy, or eagerness, toward the mate. But this type of jealousy is a far cry from that which is destructive.

Suspicious jealousy is both a natural trait and a nurtured one. Nurtured jealousy can find its way into a person's heart who normally would not! be jealous by nature. While it is very difficult to ever regain trust once it is lost, a jealousy strictly based on bad experience can, with open and frank communication and reciprocal understanding, be dispelled over time with continued positive reinforcement.

A JEALOUS nature, on the other hand, is almost impossible to truly change, as the very nature itself expects to find proof of disloyalty, and therefore sees "evidence" in experiences which may or may not demonstrate a valid basis for jealousy. In other words, a person who has a natural tendency to be jealous needs special understanding and a mate who is by nature continually reinforcing positive trust.

a jealous partner or associate and still may never gain their confidence. This outgoing person must be careful to avoid forming close working or intimate relationships with such people, or else he/she will always feel on edge and compelled to prove his/her integrity.

This will prevent the person from reaching his/her full potential, eventually leading to stagnation and reciprocal resentment within the rela-

Has the other person been terribly hurt in the past by someone he/she fully trusted and was fooled by? This jealous person would be crazy not to have developed a more scrutinizing, cautious attitude.

But, is it possible that this same jealous person can still dare to trust if properly reinforced? Oftentimes the answer to this is "yes." But it can only be accomplished by both parties understanding it and working toward inner healing together.

IT'S COMMON for a new mate to voice resentment at being compared with a past negative relationship. But persons should understand that we learn by our mistakes and hopefully will be more careful to examine warning flags when they go up. On the other hand, it is also common for people to try to manipulate the new relationship's responses by purposely hanging others' mistakes over their mate's head.

This is not honest jealousy and needs to be looked at differently. A jealous person who has been hurt is not a "nut." Rather, he/she is fragile A person who is attractive, asser- and vulnerable and knows it. You positive experience and new-information can help to change one's interpretative tendencies.

The person who is jealous by nature is another story. He/she was born with a certain personality makeup which predisposed him/her toward cautious tendencies. Then, experiences of "let down" throughout life were focused upon so that the nature was nurtured. This is a double-bind problem,

This person may never be able to change his trust pattern with a certain individual once he/she has reinforced that individual's actions. Then again. I wish to reiterate that the person who is jealous by nature, but moving-about-throughout the shopthat individual who can have a fierce loyalty and healthy jealousy, which is truly precious.

'JEALOUSY COMMUNICATES mistrust or fierce trust, malicious envy or protective admiration. At work, it can bring tremendous support in working through conflicts, or it can be like cancer, slowly draining the life from its victims and the entire work environment.

In social settings, jealousy canprevent people from seeing good in a person's positive qualities, or it can serve to knit social circles together

And finally, in an intimate relationship, jealousy can be a most wonderful protective bond between two people who always believe in the best and hope for the best in their mate. Orr it can be a powerful, destructive force leading two people toward tremendous resentment and dissatisfaction with a marriage and life in general.

Jealousy doesn't have to destroy a marriage, but it does have to be understood clearly.

Don't let jealousy destroy your friendships, working relationships, or intimate bonds, but try to understand it.

Mallwalkers: some findings

To the editor:

Subject: Identification and description of sub-species Homo sa-- piens mallwalker.-

The purpose of this report is to identify and describe a brand new human sub-species. To observe specimens in action in their natural habitat, you need only visit your local covered shopping mall. A sub-species does not necessarily have to exhibit significant differences from the parent stock and, in appearance, "mallwalker" appears to be typical H. sapiens: What is unique is its behavior.

The best time to observe "mallwalker" is in the morning, its most active time, and common behavior can be observed. They will be seen knows-it-and-works-with-it,-is-also-ping-mall,-following-in-particular, the perimeters. Movement, despite the pattern followed, seems aimless as there doesn't seem to be a particular destination. Directions of movement is the same for all without much deviation, they seem to be following one another.

What is different between individuals is the expression of this wandering behavior. Pace and performance vary videly among individuals. Pace varies from slow to faster to very fast; from a leisurely stroll to almost running. Interestingly, another possible sub-species, "jogger," is found only outdoors.

As biology has demonstrated many times, changelings are often blessed with "hybrid vigor." Such potentially new life forms often produce many individual variations, they compete and a recognizable common species emerges.

So, performance variations among "mallwalkers" are still as different. as the number of individuals observed. Bodily posture and extremity activity are widely variant. There are those who appear to be karatechopping the air and those who appear to be elbowing others out of their way. Some seem to have developed black growths on their ears. What significance they may have is its own resident population of "mall-walkers." Family groups, juveniles, young adults and "silvertops" can all be seen. As morning gives way to afternoon and evening, activity slows and finally ends for the day. Where "mallwalkers" go then is still a mystery. They are obviously diurnal and they just seem to disappear. Perhaps some day another we as a race start becoming responresearcher will solve this mystery. Another study soon to be released will discuss the relationship between Homo sapiens (the species you and I belong to) and the stores basically ignored by "mallwalker."

PROVIDING HELP

One troublesome problem facing a person helping the arthritic individual involves 'taking enough time.' Urging the arthritic individual to "hurry up" does not work; it is your responsibility to set aside sufficient time to get ready.

Otherwise you lose patience, and the individual who you are trying to assist becomes tense and distraught over being "late." Such episodes promote the feeling that arthritis is causing a burden on everyone, an attitude a helping person wants to avoid fostering.

This need to schedule sufficient time crops up when the person with arthritis has to attend a wedding, anniversary party, or a theatre performance. The event starts at a set time, and late arrival causes embarrassment to you and poses problems for your host. Late arrival risks losing the pleasure of the event and may convince the arthritic individual that the effort to get out of the home is greater than the gain.

Thus whenever possible, the two of you should work out, days in advance, the time required to get ready and arrive at your destination. Then add 30% to that estimate, Finally, you should have a plan to keep comfortable and entertained, if preparations go well and you arrive early.

He takes stand against waste

When Dennis Piper talks about saving the environment, he doesn't mention sparkling lakes and bright blue skies.

Instead, Piper talks money. That gets people's attention.

"Pollution is waste," said Piper, a 44-year-old Redford environmentalscience writer. "Waste is not economical. If it's bad for the environment it can't be good for the economy."

One is a composting of yard waste, led by the townships of Plymouth. Northville and Canton. The other involves curbside separation of trash in Redford.

"They are the only long-term solutions we have," Piper said. "But it has to be done correctly. There is a science to it."

It is estimated that existing landfills will be at capacity within five years. For the past year or so advisory groups, made up of officials and concerned residents, have been looking at alternatives to current waste disposal methods.

A letter about broccoli

An open letter to the President of the United States.

Dear Mr. President:

As a food writer and avid "foodie," it is with a very heavy heart that I write to you today regarding your recent banning of broccoli on Air Force One.

Are you aware, sir, that some children think that the edible parts of broccoli (the flowering heads and stalk) resemble miniature trees. Apparently, the ancient Romans throught similarly because the name broccoli is derived from the Latin word "Brachlum," which means arm or branch. I can only hope that when you were discussing arms reductions, you were not referring to the third most popular vegetable in the world.

I am sure our allies in Europe would be disappointed knowing your feelings toward this vegetable, especially because broccoli developed from wild cabbage that was native to coastal Europe and then spread faster than glastnost through the Near East and the Orient. In the 17th century, broccoli was labled Italian asparagus, and it was the Italian immigrants who began planting the seeds of this luscious vegetable in the United States and helped popularize it here. If the Italians can do this for broccoll, imagine the clout they can carry at election

Spurning the basis for Big Boy's best cream-based soup, by banning broccoli, you have relegated millions of American dieters to rely solely on celery and carrots on their-relish trays. Thatalone is bad enough, but what about the millions of raddichio-and-sushimi-eating Californians who grow and harvest more than 96 percent of the total U.S. production of broccoli?

DID YOU EVER stop to think that the planting of broccoli is a science in itself because its planting must be timed so that the vegetable will be ready for harvesting during cool weather? I would imagine—your—vegetable-headed chiefs-of-staff would have informed you that high temperatures are likely to spoil the crop by hastening the ripening and opening of the flowering heads.

This means that the early spring crop, which has already been planted for harvesting in mid-May, will probably end up as government surplus, frozen into rectangular-boxed shapes and buried in some underground deep-freeze till someone offers a pardon and lifts the ban on broccoli.

Although you have probably made millions of young children gloriously happy with the broccoll ban, I can only hope that the press corps will soon announce that you have replaced broccoll with something as nutritious, like spinach. I mean, do you think Mrs. Bush gets all that energy to swim laps in the White House pool by eating Twinkies?

Broccoli is loaded with calcium, phosphorus, potassium, Vitamins A and C. As a matter of fact, one cup of cooked broccoli offers more Vitamin C than two oranges. I hasten to think what our new surgeon general would say if he knew that broccoli is rich in bioflavonoids which act along with Vitamin C to strengthen small blood vessels (capillaries) against breaking.

So please, Mr. President, reconsider your recent ban on broccoll.

On behalf of all of the soups, casseroles and stir frys waiting to be adorned with the flowering vegetable, I wish you peace. For our sake, we can only hope you don't feel the same way about hot fudge sundaes.

Sincerely, Chef Larry Janes

Pastry expertise

By Geri Rinschier special writer

F THE NAME Nick Malgieri isn't familiar to you, just wait. It will be soon.

Formerly executive pastry chef at New York's Windows on the World restaurant, Malgieri is now pastry chef at Peter Kump's, New York Cooking School. This veteran New Yorker grew up in Newark, N.J. He is a graduate of the Culinary Institute of America, who also developed the baking curriculum for the New York Restaurant School.

He teaches classes across the country and has gained a reputation as the teacher's teacher. In the last two years, he authored two cookbooks, "Nick Malgieri's Perfect Pastry," Macmillian Publishing Co. 1989, and "Great Italian Desserts," to be published by Little, Brown & Co., autumn 1990.

He made a recent visit to Kitchen Glamor at Greak Oaks Mall in Rochester Hills, where 20 students were fortunate enough to spend three evenings watching this master pastry chef teach his art.

It's not an everyday occurrence that a pastry chef of this caliber comes to town. Consequently, the Kitchen Glamor demonstration kitchen was filled to capacity with professional bakers, cooks, pastry chefs and nonprofessional bakers from all around Detroit,

Students like Ann Malzberg of Southfield have attended all Malgieri's classes since he first began teaching at Kitchen Glamor a year and a half ago. She loves his classes because, "He explains well and teaches techniques that work well." Weber's Inn pastry chef Laurie Joranstad agrees. "His lectures are very clear, easy to understand and filled with lots of helpful hints," she said. Joranstad tried to enroll in his classes-last year, but they always booked up early.

DURING MALGIERI'S three-part lesson series, he demonstrated French pastry techniques the first two evenings, followed by Italian pastries the third night. For a bird's-eye view of his expertise, don't go away.

In just three hours, Chef Malgieri prepared six desserts, which were a combination of rustle and sophisticated delicacies from both Northern and Southern Italy. At the end of the class, he presented cannoli alla Siciliana - - pastry tubes filled with sweetened ricotta; tiramisu - a classic layered custard dessert made with spongecake and mascarpone cheese; zuccotto toscana - a Florentine chocolate, hazelnut dome cream-filled cake, two regional cookies - zaleti, a Venetian cornmeal biscuit filled with raisins and paste nouve, and large, almond biscuits filled with candied citron, cinnamon and chocolate - and, lastly, pizza rustica alla grottese - a savory cheese pie layered with Italian dried sausage.

As Maigleri began his demonstration, each recipe was prefaced with historical background on its origin. His charming anecdotes and comprehensive descriptions of the regional dishes are based on numerous gastronomic travels through Italy during the last three years. Over the last 16 years, he has been dedicated to discovering authentic Italian regional recipes.

While preparing the tiramisu, Malgieri told the class, "This is a dessert of fairly recent origin and is most often made in the home." All sorts of versions of this dish are made, but are generally found throughout Treviso near Venice. The filling is made from equal parts of zabalone, an egg custard, and mas-carpone, an Italian cream cheese, which can be found in Italian markets on Detroit's east side and on Erie Street in Windsor, Ontario, as well as in gourmet shops.

INCLUDED ALONG with the tiramisu recipe (see Page 2B) is a recipe for zaleti. These cornmeal biscuits have a most unusual texture and are very popular in Venice. Malgieri likes to add ½ cup of shelled pistachios or ½ cup of pine nuts to the dough for an even more unusual texture. This is a cookie like no other.

The pane di spagna is a typical Italian spongecake, which probably originated in Naples, Malgieri said. It's a very, fine-grained cake, due to the addition of cornstarch. He added that in Italy potato starch would be used, but cornstarch gives the same results. This recipe is quite versatile and also can be used to prepare lady fingers or to make a roulade.

When the demonstration was over, Malgieri and his assistants passed around samples of each of the desserts. As the ctudents tasted these luscious, mouth-watering treats, many of them commented they were Impressed with the diversity of Italy's dessert menu. Malgieri explained that Italians are parochial about their desserts and pastries such as sfogliatelle - flaky, clamshell-shaped delights filled with ricotta cheese and semolina - only found near Naples. Also many of them are traditional and only served as part of a holiday festival. Pizza rustica is only served at Easter and on Shrove Tuesday before Lent.

All the Italian desserts prepared in this demonstration class are included in his forthcoming book, "Great Italian Desserts."

Something different at Hogan's

John Malloy wasn't there. But seemingly everyone else who subscribes to his "dress for success" theory was. It was lunch at Hogan's restaurant in Troy. A mass of gray suits, white shirts, foulard print ties, impeccably styled hair.

But this sea of businessmen and women have more in common than style. They know Hogan's is a place where you can get relief from the mundane sandwich/ salad selections. A family-run operation, Hogan's injects a little life and variety into its menu.

The two Hogan's restaurants in Bloomfield Township and Troy are owned by Richard and Joan Bochenek of West Bloomfield. The executive chef and general manager for both is their son-in-law, Tom McGlone, who often can be seen scurrying around the restaurant with a set of keys jangling from his pocket as he helps seat customers and makes sure orders are taken and delivered promptly.

McGlone's previous experience in California is responsible for the menu's more contemporary influence. Hogan's has been serving sugoluso (sun dried tomato) sauce for several years before it became popular all over, McGlone says. Curently on the menu is a very good pasta sugoluso, where you can choose to have either shrimp or chicken sauteed with the vegetables and mushrooms.

WHILE WE'RE not prepared to concede that Hogan's is on the leading edge, we can see that it is striving to be so. The regular menu has several innovative items featured along with sandwiches and burgers. It is supplemented with two to three specials daily, including entrees of fish, lamb and/or game. The soups are out of this world — an indication that the restaurant takes care and pride in more than just the main entrees.

At lunch one day, we tried a chicken dish in which strips of chicken were stir fried with red and green peppers and served with a mango sauce. The entree was delicious. It was served with a good rice pilaf and an abundance of stir fried vegetables, mostly squashes and carrots that were a little too chunky and hard.

Fish dishes are among the specialties — a fact that is not-so-subtly advertised as you walk in the door and are confronted with a counter filled with huge fish and fish fillets. We were pleased with the orange roughy "orango," a regular item offered for lunch and dinner. The fish was very fresh, from New Zealand according to the menu, and was sauteed in orange juice and

An oriental quiche we tried on another visit wasn't as interesting. The quiche itself was appropriately light and filled with strips of vegetables and steak, but the crust was soggy and it was covered with an overpowering brown mushroom sauce. While some may enjoy this combination, we thought the sauce detracted from the quiche.

The business crowd seems to dominate at lunchtime, but evenings are more casual, particularly on the weekend when couples come for a good dinner or stop by after a movie for appetizers and drinks. Hogan's tasty nacho potato skins with a pitcher of margaritas' provide the perfect ending to a casual night out at the movies.

A bundle of energy likes Mexican meal

Whew, I survived. More specifically, my husband and I survived a four-day trip to Toronto by train with "the Boys."

It was a trip, all right, and although we did have fun, traveling with children can certainly tax one's patience to the limit. Because they are still of an age where punching, slugging and generally bugging each other is the fun thing to do, there were moments when my-husband and I felt like we were Wrestlemania referees.

We did shop, though, saw a lot of plays and took in the sights of the city. Sounds good, doesn't it? Let me give you a more in-depth explanation. As for "shopping," we hit every gag and trick shop in Toronto and checked out all the electronic equipment shops that we encountered as we walked along.

As for "great plays," the only ones the boys saw were the ones they experienced at a video arcade. We did see the "sights," though, and thoroughly enjoyed the Ontario Science Centre, the CN Tower and the pool in our hotel.

ALTHOUGH OUR boys' cultural awareness has yet to be fully awakened, I am grateful for people like this week's Winner Dinner Winner, Gayle Eubanks, who does spend time giving school-age children an opportunity to develop an interest in the

Dandelions are delicious new products

At last! It's spring again, and my , favorite flower is in bloom - the dandellon.

Because it spreads so easily, and is such a hardy plant, it often grows on lawns and in gardens where it is not wanted and is referred to as a weed.

If it weren't so hardy, we would all be cultivating it, not only for its beauty and its fragrance but also for its other virtues, which are many. '

Cheery, golden dandelions are part of our earliest memories. Remember how we used to hold the yellow blossoms under our-playmates'chins to see if they liked butter?

And is there anyone alive who has never wished on a dandelion?

We used to make a wish, and then hold up the feather-white head of a . ripe dandellon and blow hard, scattering hundreds of dandelion seeds in all directions, to make sure the wish came true. If any of the white tufts remained on the stem, then the wish would not come true that year.

The dandelion is not native to North America but was brought here by Europeans, who valued its medicinal qualities. It is believed to have originated in Greece and then spread across the European continent.

NUMEROUS FOLK remedies in the past called for different parts of the dandelion plant. It has been credited with being good for the heart, liver, gall bladder, spleen and kidneys and has been used in treating scurvy, eczema and rheumatism.

The white milky substance found in the stems is still used today to rid 1 clove garlic (crushed people of warts. (You rub this sticky stuff directly on the wart and let it dry. If this is done every day for nine days, it is said that the wart will dry up and fall off.)

The young leaves are delicious in salad or when cooked and served with butter, salt and pepper. They are best when picked before the plant blossoms since the older leaves tend to become tough and bitter.

dandelion leaves as a seasoning in lentils. You can also try them in omelets, soups, breads, jellies and sandwich spreads. Try bread with butter or cream cheese, sprinkled pat dry. Season with salt and pepper it. Good luck! with chopped dandelion leaves, salt. pepper and lemon juice.

The roots of the plant grow to as little as a few inches to as much as three feet long. They are an excellent source of natural protein, iron, calcium and phosphorous.

THESE ROOTS, dried, chopped and roasted, may be ground and used as a coffee substitute. They resemble coffee in taste and fragrance but contain none of the caffeine or acids which disturb many people.

You may dry and roast these yourself or you may purchase them prepared, in health food stores. They are often sold in blends combining them with rye, chicory or soy beans,

DANDELION SALAD

Gather, wash and trim young tender dandelion leaves. Mix together with an equal amount of lettuce, a few sliced mushrooms, and thinly sliced red radishes. Serve with your favorite dressing, or use the one given below, and garnish with chopped hard-boiled eggs.

Parboil the young dandelion greens in salted water. Drain, and tember, rack off the wine and bottle and either a pinch of nutmeg or a sprinkling of Adolph's Greek Seasoning (available at most supermarkets). Heat a little butter in a pan. Chop the tender young leaves, and cook in butter. Add fresh cream or liquid non-dairy creamer. (I prefer the latter.) Heat to-just under boiling. (Do not bring to a boil.) Season with salt and pepper and garnish with an early dandelion blossom floated on top.

Wonderful dry wines now come from Riesling

Johannisberg riesling is one of the world's noble grape varieties, ranking in stature with chardonnay, pinot noir and cabernet sauvignon.

It is responsible for the finest, dry white wines from Alsace, the great French wine region that borders Germany along the Rhine River.

Due, in part, to the fact that German quality levels are based on sweetness, riesling is the one wine ened grapes, and rich in fruit acidity masked by residual sweetness. variety that conjures up visions of "sweet" in the minds of most American wine consumers. This concept the 1980s.

Today's good news about riesling is that in 1988 and 1989 Germany not only experienced two great back-toback vintages but is now producing wonderfully fresh, balanced, dry that the dry German wines tasted wines from this variety.

Count Graf Matuschka, owner of Schloss Vollrads, a renowned Rheingau wine estate, has been the chief his point.

The count helped found the Rheingau Association of Charta Estates, nized by the distinctive, slim, brown bottle embossed with a double Roman arch.

> Until now, the problem has been too tart. Excessively high acidity put the majority of them out of balance.

The "sweeter" German wine styles developed to overcome the proponent of dry German wines with difficulty of producing wine from food. Some producers use a sweet reserve (unfermented grape juice) to add sugar to the finished wine. This practice allowed some growers to develop the bad habit of purposely harvesting underripe fruit, to avoid fall rains, and then balance the resulting acidity with sweet reserve, thus hiding the wine's flaws.

First, the Germans have improved their winemaking and grapegrowing skills. Second, they obtained the ripe fruit required to make a full-bodied wine, without retaining high levels of residual sugar.

Miller improves stock as Tartar

Brad Emons editor/591-2312

staff writer

Rodger George won't take much credit for luring Henry Miller to play college baseball for him, first at Henry Ford CC and now at Wayne State, where George currently

"I mildly recruited him out of Livonia Franklin to go to Henry Ford," George said. "He was a big kid coming out of high school, and he threw the ball pretty hard."

But George couldn't have known how much more Miller would grow, and how much harder he would hurl a baseball.

The junior from Westland has gone from the No. 3 pitcher on Franklin's staff — behind T.J. Kramer and Paco Chavez - to an overpowering force for the Tartars.

His stats bear it out: 3-1 entering last weekend's series with Ferris State, with a 3.00 earned run average, 23 hits, 16 walks and 24 strikeouts in 30 innings, and one shutout. Nine of the 10 earned runs he's surrendered came in a season-II power Troy State.

"It's amazing," said Miller. "Every year, coach George videotapes us in the fall and studies our motion, and he finds something that helps add velocity."

And it seems whatever George has suggested has worked. Last year, Miller's top speed was 87 mph. He's bumped that up five mph.

IT'S NOT just his speed that has attracted attention. "The scouts are impressed that I can throw as hard as I do and still hit my spots," said Miller. Still, his control isn't as good as he'd like. "There's room for im-provement," Miller said. "It's not as good as some, but it's better than

Miller's assortment of pitches isn't that impressive, either. He lacks confidence in his curve, usually throwing it when he has a pitch to waste. His slider is his second-best pitch, and last summer he started developing a change-up. But: "I don't have the confidence in it yet. It's hard for me to throw it consistently (for strikes)."

At this point, it may not matter that much. As Miller noticed, "In college, if you throw between 83 and 86 (mph), it's like batting practice for these guys. But since I've added three or four miles per hour, it's like I can overpower them."

If Miller continues to develop — if he hasn't yet reached his potential -then in the near future college players won't be the only guys he's over-

Schoolcraft's Speen among Oakland recruits

staff writer

There's little doubt which Michigan college consistently puts the best men's soccer team on the field; year after year: Oakland University.

But the Pioneers' success has rarely revolved around homegrown talent Most of coach Gary Parsons' past successes can be attributed to his recruiting efforts in

This year is different, though. There's a distinctly local flavor to Parsons' efforts.

"This year, I think, is probably the best year for recruiting in the state of Michigan," said Parsons. "It is a very good year. And it's not only the kids we're bringing in that are good. We lost out on some real good ones, Losing players the caliber of Jeff Gold (from Plymouth Salem), whom Parsons recruited but couldn't sign because Gold is searching for a school with a top pre-med program, and Joel Russell (from Detroit Country Day), who plans to go NCAA Division I, bothered the OU coach.

But the guys he got ease the pain.

THE THREE players inked Wednesday by Parsons were goalkeeper Mike Sheehy from Farmington, sweeper Chris Speen from Livonia Churchill and Schoolcraft College and sweeper Mali Walton from Flint Northern.

That trio is only a part of Parsons' recruiting campaign. Others are expected to sign when the OU coach returns from England, where he is currently coaching an under-16 age-group team from the midwestern Olympic Development program.

Of course, there's a lot to replace. OU reached the NCAA II tournament again last season, but five starters keeper Ralph Torre, midfielders Simon Mayo and Erik Enyedy and wingers Earl Parris and Alan Stewart one we're recruiting has a shot at starting." - have graduated. Each of the new recruits will have a shot at playing next year, according to Parsons.

"OUR GOALKEEPER (position) is going to be up for grabs," he said. "We're looking for a sweeper because I'd like to move Emmanuel Charles up front (from sweeper). Walton is a possibility there.'

And Speen could fill in as a marking defender. The former National Junior College Athletic Association All-American played sweeper most of last season at SC, but for the NJCAA Inter-regional tournament he was moved to forward.

"There's a lot of spots open," Parsons said. "Every-

Walton landed a spot on the all-state dream team, while Sheehy was honorable mention all-Class A. Sheehy compiled a 1.00 goals-against average, finishing with six shutouts and 137 saves - three of which came on penalty kicks. He also scored a goal.

Speen will have junior eligibility and, according to his former SC coach, he'll bring more than playing ability with him. "Chris is definitely a team leader," said Van Dimitriou. "He's also a 'doer.' He always has a positive

Parsons is still shopping for a center midfielder, and he hopes to sign a pair of forwards when he returns.

SOCCER NOTES: The 17-member team Parsons has taken to England Includes several local players: Mike Gentile, Travis Roy and Jeff Cassar of Livonia and Tom Baker of Plymouth. John Opubor of East Lansing is the other state player.

The midwestern section of the Olympic Development program consists of 12 states: Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Kentucky, Missourl, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and North Dakota. The U.S. team will play against several British district all-star teams during its 11-day trip.

Cunningham eyes tour

By Brad Emons staff writer

Carrie Cunningham has put a collegiate tennis career on hold, at least for the coming year.

The 17-year-old senior from Churchill High in Livonia, ranked among the top 100 players in the world, said Thursday she would remain an amateur and compete on the Women's International Tennis Association tour.

Cunningham said Stanford, which has won four NCAA titles and six of the last eight, was her first choice over UCLA and Florida.

"I need to take a year off and concentrate on tennis without school," said Cunningham. "Until this past week I was going to go to college, but after talking it over with my parents (John and Carol Tenerowicz), I've decided to try and be a full-time tennis player and see exactly where I stand."

The Livonian has had moderate success in pro-tournaments. She has played in all four Grand Slam events - the Australian Open, French Open, Wimbledon and the U.S. Open. Last year, Cunningham reached the semifinals of the Virginia Slims of Houston before losing to Monica Seles and won a USTA satellite event in Georgia. The former U.S. Open Junior champion also took seven games off No. 1-ranked West German Steffi Graf in the Australian Open back in January and won three qualifying matches and one main draw match at last month's pro stop at the Hardcourts in San Antonio, Texas.

"I'M NOT RANKED high enough where the money matters, but I want to have the option where in a year I could go back to school," Cunningham said, "No one has done this yet and I guess I'm a guinea pig. I just have to see how successful I can be.'

A member of the U.S. Junior National squad, Cunningham will likely be free of travel expenses when she embarks on the pro circuit, and any prize money she earns will be put aside in a trust fund.

One of her best friends, Midland's Meredith McGrath, a freshman at Stanford, currently plays No. 2 singles for the Cardinals, McGrath is also ranked No. 2 in the country behind teammate Sandra Birch, the reigning NCAA singles

"Meredith loves it (Stanford) and she said she would have done it again (going to college)," said Cunningham. "And I know I'd enjoy it, too. But I need to try and see if I can succeed."

But there has also been talk that McGrath might turn pro at the end of the season.

Stanford coach Frank Brennan, whose team owns a school-record 58 match victories dating back to April 15, 1988, said he understood Cunn-ingham's decision. "That's one of the several choices Carrie could have made," Brennan said. "Certainly a player of her caliber is going to weigh all the options, even if it's between Stanford and the pros."

BRENNAN, however, said "I can't be happy about it either.

"For selfish reasons you can't assume that I like the decision, but then again, she (Cunningham) is not a marginal player, she's a great player," he added. "She'd be an asset to any program. And don't forget she's been accepted in our school. She's a good student. She's very bright and alert for her age and she'll always have that in her back pocket, but I can also see her point."

Cunningham said she plans to write a letter to the dean of admissions at Stanford to request a

"That's fairly common when someone chooses not to come," Brennan said. "It's standard procedure with our school."

Because of Cunningham's deferment, Brennan has yet to sign a player for the 1990-91 season.

"Another player has been offered a scholarship," he said. "You lose one superstar, but you hope to get another."

Meanwhile, Cunningham is taking time off to finish up high school requirements at Churchill. Her next tournament will be Wimbledon, but not until she attends Churchill's prom and graduation efercises.

First of all, it won't be easy, winning the Great Lakes Intercollegiate_ Athletic Conference baseball title.

But it is a reachable goal for Wavne State, and considering where the Tartars ended up last year — in the GLIAC basement with a 6-12 record (18-26-3 overall) — such a position is a pleasant predicament.

WSU went into last weekend's slate of four games with defending league champ Ferris State with a 3-1 record.

Ferris was first after the opening round of CLIAC play at 4-0, thanks to its sweep of Hillsdale. WSU was a game behind because it took threeof-four from Grand Valley State,

The senior was a junior college all-conference selection when he played for George at Henry Ford CC in 1987-88, but he slumped and hit just .210 with eight RBI in 33 games last year at WSU.

"He's hitting the ball at people right now. But I'm happy with him. He's hitting the ball hard. If he gets in about 150 at-bats, I suspect he'll hit a lot higher (average)."

Jennings, another of the captains, hasn't fared as well. The senior catcher has seen limited playing time and has one hit in 14 at-bats, appearing in just nine games be-

However, there is good news: The injury, originally feared to be a damaged rotator cuff, has been re-diagnosed as a pulled muscle; Jennings could return this week.

RON CORTEZ, a junior second baseman from Livonia Franklin, is another transfer from Henry Ford CC who played there for George.

In his first season at WSU (an injury kept him sidelined in '89), Cortez has been a pleasant surprise, leading the team's regulars in hitting with a .326 average and in runs scored with ·seven. He has five RBI.

"He is the most intense competitor to ever live," George said, only half in jest. "He puts on his game face three days before and doesn't take it :

-Cortez's other attributes include his ability to use the entire field, his bunting prowess (three sacrifices) and a pretty good glove (three errors in 15 games).

TWO FRESHMEN pitchers, Darrin Clark, a lefthander from Garden City, and Rob Ognian, from Livonia Stevenson, are in the hunt for regular spots on the staff. However, the poor weather has not benefited el-Ognian has been "hot and cold. He's vying for the No. 4 starter slot, but right now he's No. 5."

Ognian is 0-1 in 815 innings, with a

Both will be needed in the weeks ahead, when the non-league rainouts are made up. And when the schedule gets crowded, a deep and talented pitching staff will be that much more valuable.

George knows it. He has one, and he's counting on it.

Crusaders divides twin bill

The results weren't completely satisfying, but you won't hear Mike George complaining too loudly. Even though his Madonna College baseball team split its double-header at NAIA District 23 rival Siena Heights Thursday - and the Fighting Crusaders had a chance to win both games — at least they played.

Which was a victory in itself. After all, these were the first games Madonna got in since March 17, so losing the opener 4-3 in eight innings wasn't quite so painful - especially since the Crusaders bounced back to win the nightcap 4-1.

"It felt nice just to be able to play," said George. "And we still haven't played at home yet."

That is scheduled to change today, when Madonna hosts district foe Aguinas at 2 p.m. at Ford Field.

In Thursday's first game, Madonna got all of its runs in the third inning. Sean Maloney and Ernie Bowling started it with walks. Mike Wozniak singled in one run, and with two out - Jeremy Krol doubled in two more to tie the game at

The second game's results were more pleasing to the Crusaders. Krol turned in a strong pitching performance to improve to 2-0. He gave up six hits, three walks and one unearned run, striking out four.

Maloney started a two-run rally in the second with a double. Kevin O'Connor delivered him with a single, with O'Connor advancing to second on the throw to the plate. Steve Coffell singled to score O'Connor.

OCC gets area boost

With the help of three former Observerland softball stars, the Oakland Community College women's fast-pitch team is enjoying a fine start this season.

The Lady Raiders are 5-1, with four wins coming in tournament play to win the Muskegon Jamboree for the third consecutive year. OCC enters the season as the fivetime defending champion in the Eastern Conference of the Michigan Community College Athletic Association.

The Lady Raiders are led by sophomore Kelly Koss, a former Farmington High standout, and former Catholic League pitchers Amy Edward of Farmington Hills Mercy and Shannon White of Livonia Ladywood. Edward and White are freshmen.

Koss, a sophomore and the cocaptain, led the team in hitting last year at .382. She is hitting .267 this year while leading OCC in stolen bases, RBI and walks.

Koss contributed a game-winagainst Southwestern Community had two hits and two RBI.

EDWARD HAS appeared in four of the six games, starting three. She has a team-leading two wins against one setback, a 1-0 loss to Lake Michigan, and she also has a 0.63 earned run average and one

Edward, who had the only hit in a 2-0 win over Kalamazoo Valley Community College in the Muskegon tourney, got her second win when the Lady Raiders supported her pitching with 14 hits leading to a 13-2 rout of Delta.

White picked up her first collegiate victory in the tournament with a 2-0 shutout of Muskegon. She worked the first 4% innings, giving up four hits while striking out two. Edward pitched the final 21/3 innings to record her first collegiate

"With 11 first-year players, it's important for us to learn how to win the close ones," OCC coach Steve Ogg said. "If we want to be one of the best teams in the country, which I think is possible, then games like these are the building blocks."

The Lady Raiders have finished second in Region XII the last six years and have had only one losing season since the program was ning hit in the tournament opener started in 1981, compiling a 244-106_record.-OCC was 37-11 last College, a 4-1 victory in which she year following two straight 40-win

HIS IS THE TIME of year when many teams are battling for championships in league competition. It is this so called "crunch time" which puts added pressure on bowlers to perform. The miss of an easy spare can cost a team first place.

Some of the leagues with shorter seasons have determined their first place winners, and trophies have been distributed accordingly.

In these last few weeks, teams are not only battling for first place, but for money as well. Many leagues reward position

Those leagues which use the split-season format are now conducting roll-offs between the first and second half winners' to determine an overall champion.

. This is also the time of year for banquets and award nights. The 1989-90 season has been nothing short of spectacular. There have been so many great performances in the Observer and Eccentric communities.

I would like to ask that all league secretaries let the management know the names of the championship teams in your league. They will get the information to me and I'll give the winners recognition in this column.

Everyone was so nice! And we can't say enough about the nurses. They really made us feel good. The LDR room was great! That's the only way to go if you're having a baby. The whole experience was fantastic."

News.

Bad news.

The good news? More and more people, businesses and industries are finding ways to recycle.

It takes more than 6,000 tons of newsprint each year to print The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers plus a number of other publications, so we're doing a number of things to help the solid waste situation:

- 1. For years we've sold our waste newsprint to a recycling firm.
- 2. 25% of the newsprint we print on is recycled and we're increasing this amount by another 25% this year.
- 3. Our employees have begun to routinely put office paper (memos, computer paper, waste copy paper) in recycle bins instead of waste baskets.

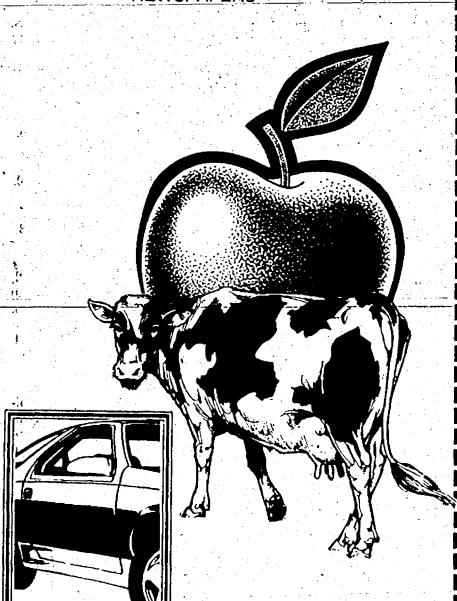

Of course, we still deliver thousands of newspapers twice each week. It's our business to bring you news of your local government, schools, sports scene and community events; the news you need to know.

And when you're finished reading your hometown newspaper there are places that will recycle them.

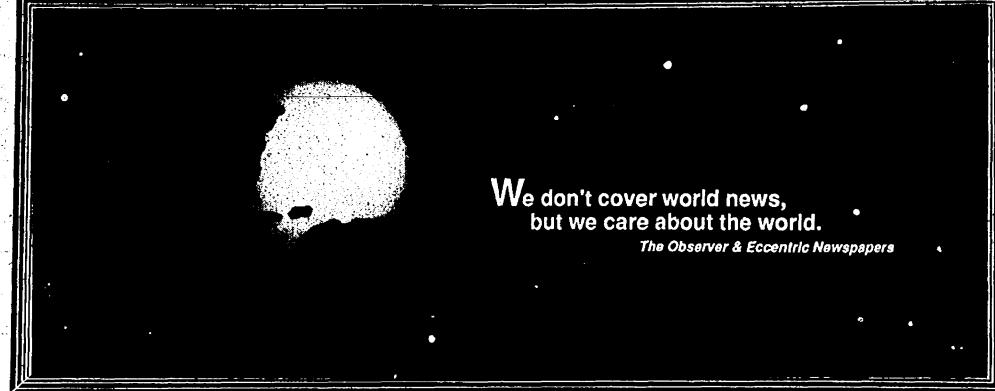

We've listed a few for you on this page because we think recycling is Good News.

An earthy topic

Sunday, April 22, will mark the 20th anniversary of Earth Day and it seems everyone is hopping on the "Give Earth a Chance" bandwagon. While some folks are cleaning up the environment, others are cleaning up, so to speak, marketing Earth Day. For more on the fashionable Earth Day celebration, see Page 6D.

It's a new decade and swimsults are finally being designed with individual preference in mind. From bare and bold to more conservative styles, swimwear is taking on a whole new dimension.

"in" thing for sun worshipers and those "in" thing for sun worshipers and those "forever on a diet," newer two-piece suits are noticeably different from what we've seen in the '80s. Bottoms are fuller, coming up to the navel or higher. Tops are boasting wider straps and fronts that hold up and shape the bust rather than revealing cleavage.

One-piece suits are borrowing looks from the '50s with detachable half skirts that help to conceal the upper thighs.

"I think it's great that the suits are now being

"I think it's great that the suits are now being designed for average bodies," said Southfield fashion press specialist Bluma Selgel. "With some of the suits they have for sale, no one over 30 would want to be seen in them!"

Retailers, too, are excited about the new choices that are available in this season's swimwear lines. Some point out that many shoppers who were ready to buy last year just couldn't find anything they liked.

Mail order swimsuits are gaining a bigger market share, at least three major manufacturers have color catalogs.

Buying a swimsuit through the mail may seem as quick as a phone call and reciting your credit card number, but there are a few things you may want to consider. Some companies will not give refunds or allow exchanges, sad news if you discover your suit doesn't fit.

WITH HIGH fashion photography, looks can be deceiving and it's difficult to tell the texture

'The Gods Must Be Crazy II:' Not so unusual, but still good

The trouble with sequels is that they are usually follow-ups to something unusual — and the second time around, it's not so unusual.

"The Gods Must Be Crazy II" (B., PG, 97 minutes) suffers from that generic problem but still manages tobe attractive.

This time out, Xixo (N!Xau), the Kalahari Desert Bushman starred in the first "Gods Must Be Crazy," is searching for his children, Xisa (Nadies) and Xiri (Eiros). They are exceptionally charming children who, out of curiosity, climbed aboard a ivory poacher's truck while it was parked. When it started up, they were trapped.

-Xixo was able to trace them and his devotion to fatherly duty is heart-warming. But his quest is constantly interrupted by various "civilized" forces intruding on the deserthe knows so well, an area in which he is more capable of survival than those hi-tech folks from civilized places.

'Among the intruders are the ivory poachers, George (Pierre Van Pletzen) and Brenner (Lourens Swanepoel), two gruff, unpleasant but incompetent types.

THEN THERE'S the Cuban Army in Angola, represented by one lost soldier, Mateo (Erick Bowen) and his advisary, African Unita Army trooper Timi (Treasure Tshabalala). Their alleged hostilities are in a worn, comic vein and not very funny but they do help keep the plot mov-

Of course, the star intruder in Xixo's world is Dr. Ann Taylor (Lena Farugia), a New York attorney and Ph.D in law whose presence, first in Africa and then in the Kalahari Desert, occurs from a string of fairly weak and unconvincing events. Her companion is a zoologist, Stephen Marshall (Hans Strydom).

All this is tied together with an uncredited voice-over narrator who nicely spells out the situation. He and the film clearly are noting that the natural life is far better than civ-

There's lots of nice scenery and plenty of typically attractive African animal shots to spice up the production but some of the technical work is lacking. In particular, the special effects work on one long sequence with the two children on the truck is so poorly done that fringing around the children is present and the rapidly passing scenery clearly is a rear screen projection.

As for "The Gods Must Be Crazy II" as a parable about the modern against the primitive, it's not all that successful - although if the "Spicand-Span" condition of Ms. Farugia's dress after several days in the desert is any indication, it looks like modern fabrics, if not civilization, are indestructible. Nonetheless, the film is pleasant enough and probably will attract wide audiences.

If you're eagerly awaiting a new twist on martial arts films, than "Angel Town" (*, R) is for you. A Los Angeles family troubled by a neighborhood gang gets help from a French expert. That doesn't sound like much but given all the hype and violence, it most likely will sell well.

Michael wants to wear a simple black tuxedo. Donna insists on gray with a pastel ruffled shirt to match the bridesmaid's dresses. The suggestion of blue mashed potatoes, however, causes the groom to counter in disbelief, "There's no such thing as blue food."

Decisions: Decisions. Behind the scenes at a massive Italian wedding, there are plenty of them. Ultimately, the strain of all these decisions makes the couple in "True Love" debate whether they want to get married at all.

Though scenes occur at a bachelor party and a male strip club, "True Love" doesn't try for cheap, exploitive jokes. Writer/director Nancy Savacca obviously loves the characters who populate the claustrophobic kitchens and corner bars of a typical Brooklyn neighborhood.

Despite the nightmare of preparation, the wedding is a fantasy only accentuated by the blue mashed potatoes, video cameras and tacky wedding band. For Donna's mother, who was forced to elope, it's a chance to enjoy the big wedding she never had.

By the time the band strikes up "Celebration," however, the couple is fighting again. He wants to go out with the guys after the wedding reception. It's as bizarrely "real" as the scene in "Diner" where the wedding hinges on the bride's ability to pass a football trivia test.

Other moments convince you that they were made for each other. Donna reads a compatibility test in "Cosmmopolitan." Michael doesn't like the stock choices and comes up with his own - which place him in the life he's in right now.

Not so innocent Mission attracts a following on tour

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

Suddenly, Don Peris wants to know about seats. An aspiring furniture salesman, perhaps?

Not quite, the guitarist with The Innocence Mission is interested in seats in terms of numbers, as in how many are in: the venue his band will play in tonight. The Innocence Mission opens for ex-Eagle Don Henley tonight at The Palace in Au-

By far, The Palace is the biggest venue the up-and-coming group from Lancaster, Pa., has played to date. As an opening act on Henley's tour, the group will also visit such-less-than-quaint places as the Nassau Coloseum on Long Island, the Meadowlands in New Jersey and The Arena in Orlando, Fla.

Peris sounds a bit taken back by it all. After all, this was a group that only a year. or so was-performing-in-venues where acrowd of 100 was a good night.

"It's really exciting," said Peris in a telephone interview from Milwaukee. "The opportunity to play in front of that many people (as many as 14,000 at The Palace) . . . it will be a challenge. It makes all four of us work that much harder to put it over."

Apprehension is understandable. Some rock'n'roll crowds have been unmercifully cruel to opening acts on big-name tours. Just ask Lone Justice, which was continually booed off the stage during U2's "Unforgettable Fire" Tour in 1985.

ON THE FLIP side, work as a support acts offers wider exposure and opens new avenues. Heck, AOR radio might be willing to give the band's self-titled debut album a spin. Some already are in The Innocence Mission's case.

Until now, though, The Innocence Mission has depended on the support of college radio. The debut LP has been likened to a cross between Kate Bush and the Cocteau Twins by critics.

Peris considers such associations flattering but not totally on the mark. Songs definitely have a new music feel, earmarked by the ethereal vocals of Karen Peris, wife of Don Peris.

The couple met back in high school. Bassist Mike Bitts and drummer Steve Brown are also from Lancaster. All four were involved in their high school production of "Godspell."

With Larry Klein at the helm, the band recorded "The Innocence Mission." Klein's involvement enhanced the group's mission, which has always been to be strong lyrically as well as musically.

THE MARRIAGE is conducive to songwriting. Karen Peris is the chief songwriter while Don Peris helps layer

"We have this little room in our apartment," Don Peris said. "Usually, the songs come out of playing things for each other. Hopefully, it will spark an idea.

"I think the lyrics are an important part of the song," he said. "It's up to the four musicians to create a sound to go around

Maybe this explains why Penn seemed a bit uncomfortable at his recent concert at Saint Andrew's Hall. His behavior was understandable though. I mean, the guy has a debut album that was on many critics' 1989 top-10 list but to most people he is known as the brother of Ma-

A VIEW FROM 3RD STREET

— Jude Cole

Funny, when we look out the window, we usually see the postman stuffing our mailbox or the neighbors' dog leaving its mark on our yard. Jude Cole looks out his window and sees relationships. Go figure.

His 10 songs on Reprise records are not that hard to decipher, though. Most of "A View from 3rd Street" is about love - some good and some gone bad - and friendships. Stop us if you've heard this one

Sorry, but Cole is no great lyricist. He sounds like a greeting card singing such precious lines like "I can still hear your voice falling down with the rain." Cole wrote most of these songs while holed up in a second-floor apartment overlooking a Los Angeles thoroughfare. What connection that has with the subject matter of these numbers is beyond us. But make no mistake, this stuff is radio ready, dressed up in the finest rock, rhythm & blues and pop. This album, if anything, is a guilty pleasure on its production quality alone. Cole's husky voice is wrenched what he sings. "Compared to Nothing" is bonafide hit in the making. Cole's guitar work on this album is skillful and diverse. The problem is that it sounds too much like everything else thrown down our throats by AOR radio in the last 10 years. Off the top, one can hear Richard Marx, Chris Rea, Corey Hart and John Cougar Mellencamp in his music to name a few. Can one blame him, though? This with emotion. At least he believes in is the kind of stuff the radio programmers go ga-ga over. It's a proven formula.

VERY Cuppa Joe

the playing is pretty decent (for a bunch of kids). "Very" by Cuppa Joe is an outstanding album, no matter what standards it is held up to. In other words, don't buy "Very" because it is done by a local band and it is patriot-ed in someone's garage studio) and ic to buy stuff by local groups, buy "Very" because it is a great album. The sound quality is as good as any national release you can find in your friendly neighborhood album mart and the songs are so likeable as to be almost addicting.

Cuppa Joe plays "Mugga Fugga"

music, which to the uninitiated generous dose of wild ska thrown in for good measure. Anyone who has seen the band play at a club around town knows that Cuppa Joe puts on a great show.

The energy and fun of their songs translate well onto vinyl.

Rick King and Kelly Collins share vocals on "Very," sometimes singing solo and sometimes singing harmonies for each other. King's voice sounds like a mixture of Elvis Costello and Ranking Roger back in the days of the English Beat, circa the album Special Beat Surface. Actually, the comparisons between Cuppa Joe and the English Beat aren't only with Ranking Roger and King. The general mood of the up-tempo songs on "Very" would seem quite at home on an English Beat album. These are fun songs good for partles, driving in the car, dancing for any occasion where a fun album would be appropriate.

Local music fanatics are already beginning to discover Cuppa Joe's fresh brew of cool tunes - "My Time" is getting airplay on WDTR's "Detroit Music Scene."But, don't be their first album. means upbeat, rhythmic tunes with a dislilusioned, the rest of the music on sounds like it is - cool, rhythmic sound is somewhat unmemorable. tunes that have a way of staying in your head and on your turntable.

DREAMING IN DETAIL

Shaking Family

Does anyone remember a band called Lone Justice, which featured the wonderful vocals of Maria Mckee? They opened for U2 on one of their U.S. tours, had one moderately successful LP and played a whoop-it-up brand of country-tinged rock, or rock-touched country, if you like. Well, they split up in favor of Maria Mckee's superi- Glory/Deliver me from the Pale' or solo career, and here we have a horse and rider Source of decaying band stepping in to claim their vacant sound spot. Shaking Family's LP on Elektra is steering down the Lone Justice road.

The Family's genre is a mishmash of aggressive, guitar driven songs with brash and sassy vocals from Barbara Carter, who is also one of the main songwriters, collaborating mainly with guitarist Vince Emmet. Carter's vocals are somewhat reminiscent of Nanci Wilson of Heart fame around the period of

Despite this general appeal, the ness of the sound, with the mundane "Very" is pretty much what it quality of songwriting and overall > Lyrically, the Family are fairly obtuse. For example: "Gathering the bones of the hanged, pandering to the chanting of the damned, staggering to a black scab of land, scattering the dust-blood of man/Streets of hot coals: will your feet not burn?/ Heart up in smoke: will your breast not burn?/Deliver me Power and desire."

What? Did I miss something? Maybe Ozxy Osbourne writes their lyrics. I just cannot picture anybody singing along in the shower!!!

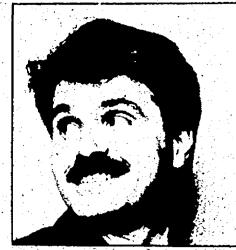

-To be fair, this is probably the worst example of their lyrics although the best extends to "No contemplation, no hesitation. I come to you in simple supplication, and I stand tall, Beside you in that hall, leading to that place where we share it all," Not exactly a broad range.

So despite the initial attractive songs and banal lyrics, "Dressdag in Detail" has to get a thumbs down, Gone. Until next time, save the aisle seats . . .

What you thought you saw isn't always what you'll get. And more often than not, mail order swimsuits are pretty generic, meaning they are manufactured in mass in countries like Korea and Taiwan where standards aren't always regulated and quality is inconsistent.

"I ordered a two-piece suit from a swimsuit catalog," said Adria Bircoll of West Bloomfield. "It looked so good in the picture, and I liked that you could order the tops and bottoms in different sizes, but when I got it, the fabric was flimsy.

Most women shop for their swimsuits when the mood hits them. It's. not something you can do in a hurry.

To make the process easier, it's a good_idea_to_wear_simple_clothing, such as pull-on sweatpant when shopping for a swimsuit. Forego the pantyhose for socks, if you actually wear it. (The control top style could trick you into thinking your pot belly doesn't show.)

Another important factor to consider when buying a suit is to decide what kind of suit it is. Is it an allpurpose, functional swimsuit for going into the water as well as laying in the sun, or is it the kind of suit that you need to keep dry and is more suitable for fancy pool parties where you do no more than wet your

FINALLY, WITH so many choices, it's best to go with your own instinct rather than relying on the advice of a salesperson who is likely to tell you look terrific in a swimsuit that makes you look like an ostrich.

If you really have a tough time finding a suit that fits your body and lifestyle, you might try a custom-made suit, like those available at Beach Bound in Farmington Hills. Their made-to-measure suits are no more expensive than most designer suits found in department stores and you can select you own fabric.

Men have never suffered the agony of swimsuit shopping. For most guys, last year's trunks will still be in style for years to come. But for fashionable men who want to update their poolside-wardrobe, bright colors and patterns are very in.

Longer trunks, commonly called Jams, are very popular as well as the Spandex biker shorts-style trunks. There also are a few his and hers coordinates which are a fun way to head for the beach, if you're young and in love.

With so many choices and all this advice, you should have no problem shopping for a swimsuit in 1990, so

Fashion conscious put style into Earth Day 20

By Debbie Sklar special writer

April 22, 1990, marks the 20th anniversary of Earth Day. The original challenge was to awaken the nation and world toenvironmental problems and prevent further destruction.

The ground swell of enthusiasm 20 years ago resulted in the passage of most of the major environmental legislation of the 1970s, such as the clean air act.

Even though progress has been made, Earth is not the happy healthy planet we'd all like it to be. The environmental problems we face today are more far-reaching than ever imagined . . . and getting worse. , And believe it or not, the fashion industry has found a niche helping "clean up" the environment by keeping the message in the forefront and the backside.

Remember when a group of the world's most famous rock stars got fogether to produce the mega hit "We Are the World?" Remember the white T-shirts and sweat shirts they wore on the video that pleaded us to "Feed the World?"

At It's the Ritz on Maple in downtown Birmingham, owners Frank and Debbie Caruso are marketing some hip T-shirts that exhort people to "Save Our Planet."

"Right now we just have T-shirts," Debbie said, "but eventually we want to carry a whole line of clothing to promote the conservation of our planet."

'We want people to know how vital it is that we start recognizing that we have to do something to save our planet before it's too late," said Frank. "We need and want to get the message out about world peace."

THE STORE has "Save Our Planet" T-Shirts ($18) in a variety of colors. The pictures on the front are painted by Royal Oak artist Dave Higgins. Higgins also has created and designed the store's 15th anniversary shopping bag, decorated with such symbols as the peace sign, the ankh which stands for life, the heart for love and the sun for light.

If it's items representing wild animals, birds or just the great outdoors, then the place you want to visit is around the block on South Bates. Wild Wings Gallery has everything from sweat shirts ($25) with loons plastered across the chest to T-shirts ($15) with wolves on them. Manager Jerome Meldrum said the "all of a sudden interest in saving the planet and the animals of the planet" has become more and more the "thing to do" for the past few years. Even celebrities are getting into the act of promoting certain causes and wildlife/conservation societies, he said. "When a celebrity promotes something whether it's a cereal or the Audubon Society, the general public listens," he said. "For some reason, they hold a magical spell over the generalpublic. Over the past few years, it's been geared toward saving our precious planet."

And only a hop, skip, and a jump away from Wild Wings is the '60s style shop, Changes, on East Maple, where piece signs and tie dye abound.

OWNER BOB Kosak said the peace sign symbol has evolved into a fashion statement for two reasons, "one because it's a great symbol and two because it's not just for kids to wear anymore."

Kosak has been carrying T-shirts with peace signs on them for more than five years, but only recently have they become

"People are into them," he said. "They want to make a statement and they feel that by sporting a T-shirt with a peace sign plastered on the front does it. With all this save the world and peace on earth, there's not a better symbol to express

... "When someone throws on a T-shirt that has a peace sign across the chest, they're are not only making a fashion statement but a political statement." Another T-shirt saying related to Earth Day available at Changes is "War is not healthy for children and other living things." Prices for T-shirts start at $15. And a couple of miles down North Woodward in the happening city of Royal Oak, special Earth Day fashion pins can be found at Dave's Comics and Collectibles.

Dave's on South Washington in the downtown area, has green and silver square buttons that sport the saying "Earth Day 1990" with a picture of a map of the earth for $5.

"I think items like this are great," said owner Dave Hutzley. "Personally, I think our planet needs a lot of help. People have goita wake up and smell the coffee before it's too late."

Radio daze: Tuning into today's (literary) sounds

By Tim Smith staff writer

FM car radio used to be a smorgasbord of tasty "food" served up just enough to keep the musical taste buds happy. But today's listening fare for commuters is akin to a plate of brown lettuce.

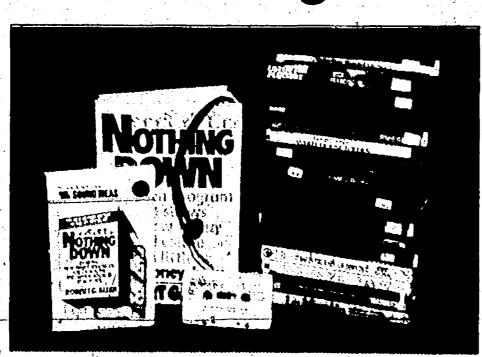

Don't choke. The proper antidote to blah radio is being swallowed by more newly energized folks each day — books on tape.

"It's something that, once people discover, they have a voracious appetite for," said Carol Benson, adult services librarian at Southfleld Public Library.

One of the discovering types is 40-year-old-Livonia-resident-Susan.-Krause, who decided that listening to books on tape beats the heck out.

"I'd rather listen to a book or tape than the radio," said Krause, who tunes in to self-improvement and spiritual cassette offerings during commutes to visit friends in Ann Arbor and Sterling Heights. "To get what I need to know from cassettes KO radio programming.

The tapes pump up, excite, entertain, motivate and instruct. They drive away the commuting boredom that radio fans regularly fight. As a result, some are quitting the. habit of punching the digital car radio dial to avoid the day's 32nd rendering of the Rolling Stones "Paint It Black" or Janet Jackson's dance-flavored "Escapade." West Bloomfield's Carol Fink, 41,

Wayne-Westland and Rochester. Libraries in Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills are independent of the federation, Benson said.

At Storytellers, customers can choose from racks of titles. On one wall are motivational tapes, such as Wayne Dyer's guide to positive thinking. Elsewhere are mystery thrillers, espionage ("Windmill of.) the Gods" by Sidney Sheldon) and comedy.

Start now to ease '90 tax time

Dear Readers: Congratulations. By midnight tonight you will once again have survived tax filing time. you can sleep well tonight knowing you have shed that terrible burden for another year. The question, haveyour learned your lesson, or will the same scenario repeat itself again next year - and the next . . . ?

Right now — today! — is the time to inventory what went wrong and to set up systems to assure the same mistakes don't happen again. What took you the most time this year finding receipts? Sorting your papers? Getting forms? Finding an accountant to do your taxes at the last minute? Whatever the problem, do vourself a favor and start now to make it easier next year.

THE FIRST STEP is to completely store away 1989 papers properly. Bankers storage boxes with hanging files work well for this purpose. Several of these identical boxes with proper labeling store neatly on rough storage shelves. Best of all, you can then find anything you want so they will already be done by year at a finger's touch.

If you do your own taxes, list the names, numbers and quantities of all the forms you needed for '89 taxes handbooks and get a head start on ments that list interest and finance easier.

copying forms at the library next

Next, make sure your 1990 papers are organized. If you haven't already done so, set up separate receipt files for every category you itemize on your tax forms. A manilla accordion 'home file" from the office supply store is handy for this purpose. For deductibles like contributions, keep a running tally in that file. ordering forms from the IRS or charges and either file them in the miscellaneous tax file or record them on a sheet held in that file, so you will have all the information at hand when you need it.

If record keeping is not your bag, an investment now in a bookkeeping or accounting service could shed drudgery from your life and make next year's tax time a snap.

If, God forbid, you filed for an extension, promise yourself that you's will never, ever do that again. Even if you are waiting for late figures, do everything else and don't wait until the Aug. 15 deadline to start your taxes. The sooner you get it done, the sooner you'll be free of the dreaded task hanging over your head.

Tocco concert to aid homeless

By Mary Jane Doerr special writer

Just as James Tocco went to sit down at the dinner table at the exclusive reception given by the Santa Fe Chamber Music Festival, someone stopped him.

'That seat's saved for the cellist's wife," said the public relations director of the Fort Worth Symphony. The rebuff spoiled my dinner interview with the famous planist who easily found a seat elsewhere. Tocco was in Santa Fe to perform with the festival.

A few days later we managed some raspberry tortes at the Palace Court Garden a few adobe buildings away from the Museum of New Mexico where he was rehearsing.

"I am not a publicity hound and I guess I don't enjoy being the center of attention," said Tocco rather shyly, "When I get on stage and the audience is responsive, the barriers come down."

Tocco loves to perform recitals when the piano is good, the hall has good acoustics, the audience is responsive and he likes the music. With that in mind, the benefit concert he is giving at St. Hugo of the Hills Church Sunday, April 29, will be one of his best.

HIS OLDER BROTHER, Father Tony, priest at St. Hugo, and their family will be in the audience-withmany friends. The piano is a newly purchased Bechstein. (Tocco-played the piano before he agreed to this concert.) The new sanctuary where the concert is being held has incredible acoustics.

"The piano is a fabulous instrument," said Tocco who usually performs only on Steinways.

He has been on the faculty of Indiana University for the last 12 years and maintains a residence in Bloomington to continue working with his 15 piano students. Though he is on the road much of the year, he is never away for more than two weeks at a time. This year he is taking up re-sidency in Hamburg, Germany, to teach at the conservatory in Schleswig-Holstein.

from," he said with a smile.

Italian family from East Detroit, he didn't inherit an Italian first name or learn to speak Italian.

"By the time I came along, all of my brothers and sisters had Anglicized their names and were speaking English. To make it easier for me at school, my mother did not speak Italian to me."

He was named after his father, but the name became James Vincent not the Italian form Vincenzo.

"When I am in Italy I am amazed how much Italian I do remember," said Tocco who is fluent-in-both -French and German.

He said he always wanted to be a pianist although his musical heritage consisted of Saturday opera broadcasts, a player piano, old 78 records and a few free Detroit Symphony Orchestra concerts at the State Fair Grounds. -

TION came from a local musician, Boris Maximovich and choral train-

"The strongest influence came from Claudio Arrau when I was living in New York City," he said.

His training may have been with the Romantics, but Tocco is known internationally for his versatility. He performs Handel's works regularly, but then he premiered Leonard Bernstein's piano music on one, recording and recorded Aaron Copland's music on a second.

Brotherly love

It was Father Tony Tocco's idea to feature his brother, James Tocco, in a solo piano recital at St. Hugo of the Hills Church of Bloomfield Hills as a fund-raiser for the church's principal charity, Pontiac Area Transitional Housing.

The money we raise will go to provide longterm housing for homeless women and children in Pontiac," said Father Tony, who is 4 years older than his brother.

The concert is scheduled for 7 p.m. Sunday, April 29, in the church's newly constructed sanctuary. General admission tickets are $15. Sponsor tickets are $50. Benefactor tickets are $75. Founder-PATH tickets are $200. Checks may be mailed to St. Hugo of the Hills,

P.O. 7622, Bloomfield Hills, 48302. The checks may be made out to St. Hugo of the Hills but they must have the word PATH written on the check. Information about the concert can be obtained by calling 644-5460.

"The money we raise from this concert will be used to renovate our newly purchased three story apartment building," said PATH's executive director Harold Davis. "We expect that the building will house between 55 to 60 people."

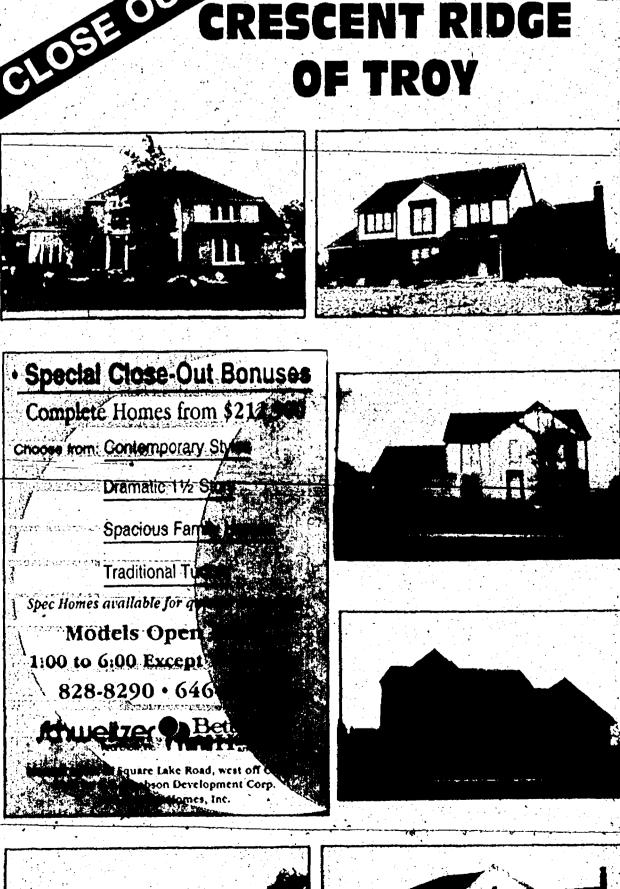

Davis, on leave from Xerox Corp. for nine months, explained that the 86 Cottage Street building in Pontiac will house homeless women for up to 24 months while they are involved in self-improvement projects and can re-establish themselves in the community.

Color, however, is still an important part of architecture:

AS IMPORTANT as shape and texture, color conveys feelings, portrays-images and sends messages. Just as a mistake in shape and texture can ruin a project; so can a mistake in color.

Can you imagine a maroon Renaissance Center?

SOME ACCENT colors are still popular, Ziegelman said. Deep greens and reds used as window framing and railings are popular because they give an old-fashioned feel to a building even though neither color was used much years ago.

I am trying to inspect the books and records of my condominium association. The association's attorney, who I think is playing games, said I could look at the books and records but that I could not have a copy of them without paying the cost of not only copying the records but also paying the management company to collate the records.

However, when I finally got a chance to inspect the records, it became clear that the board of directors had not followed its own attorney's advice regarding certain actions it took.

Now I find that I am baving a problem getting any records from the association since the "cat" seems to be out of the b suggest I do?

- I have empathy for your frustrations. The association has an obliga-

Concomitant with that obligation is the right to allow you to copy those books and records of the association that you wish to have. If the association refuses to let you do so and after having given them notice of your demand for the copies, if they do not do so, you should consult with an attorney as you have a right to begin legal proceedings to demand that it turn over the books and records to you.

If a move is in your future, here are some tips for planning and packing that can help you survive it with

Change the address on your bank and charge accounts or open new accounts if more convenient.

Make the move easier for your child by having a goodbye party for the child's special friends. Have the guests exchange addresses and telephone numbers with your child. When packing, load the child's things last so they will be the first things Packing:

Make a floor plan of your new home and label each room with a name and number. As you pack, label each box accordingly. Keep track of the number of boxes for each room and mark any items you will need as soon as you arrive. Move these and important documents yourself. Make an inventory of each box.

Clothing and linens can be packed in dresser drawers, but not too densely. Rent wardrobe boxes for hanging clothes.

Pack books and records in small oxes so they are light enough to lift.

To protect breakables, line the bottom of the box with wads of crumpled newspaper and wrap each items in the bottom and add crum-

Stand mirrors and pictures in cartons; protect them with layers of paper and separate them with corrugated cardboard.

Wrap lampshades in clean paper and pack them in cartons separate from the lamps.

After electric power has, been disconnected from major appliances in your new home to be sure your such as refrigerators, freezers and washing machines, drain off any water. Clean each appliance inside and out and leave it open to air dry for a day or two. Be careful no children play in or around these appliances; they can be very dangerous.

After they are dry, tape doors and lids shut with a strong tape such as filament tape, and tape the power cord to the back of the appliance. When moving, protect the appliance with blankets.

Hire a professional mover. If you are moving within your state, seek out a local mover with a good reputation. Their charges are generally lower than interstate movers.

If your move crosses state lines, check the moving company's performance record through the Interstate Commerce Commission. Written estimates are not binding; ask the ICC how often the company's estimates are within 10 percent of their final charges. The ICC maintains offices in most major cities. Look under "U.S. Government Offices" in the telephone book.

When everything has been unloaded, make sure it's all in good condition before signing the mover's inventory. Make any claims for missing or damaged property as soon as

A building's surroundings can also iffect the choice of color.

In urban areas, it is much more likely that buildings will be white and gray colored; in suburban areas, builders have more leeway.

Padded easy_chair replaced benches

From Country Home for AP Newsfeatures

Before the advent of the easy chair in Europe, most people were forced to find solace on a wooden bench or hard stool.

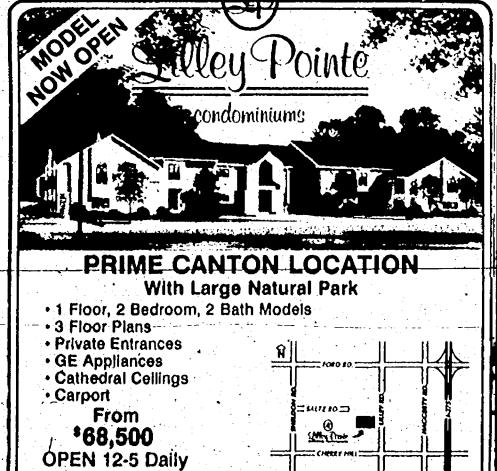

According to Country Home magazine, the answer was something completely padded and upholstered: the easy chair.

It was a strange contrivance: a wood carved frame with arms, webbed and padded and covered in fabric or needlework. Like a present-day recliner, its back often was adjustable. Because such a chair was considered to be informal furniture, it was relegated to the bedchamber or closet.

Eventually, some clever upholsterer added cheeks, or wings, to the chair to ward off

As the century turned and the 1800s entered, this comfy chair was considered outmoded and a bit stuffy. Not until America celebrated its centennial did the easy chair regain favor. Today the wing chair remains a mainstay of traditional decor.

Just for Brides

The Monthly Album is published the third Monday of each month for the announcements of engagements and weddings

Engagement announcements will be accepted no later than 45 days prior to the wedding. Wedding announcements must be submitted within 60 days after the wedding. All announcements are run on a space available, first come, first served basis.

Information sent must be legible and include a contact telephone number so if there is a question a staff member has a number to call.

Photos submitted should be black and white glossies, preferable 5 x 7 inches in size. Color photos can be submitted and will be accepted, but they do not reproduce as well.

Due to the volume of photographs handled, the newspaper will not be responsible for any that may get lost or damaged. Photos can be picked up after publication in the Farmington Observer office, or, if a self-addressed sufficiently stamped envelope is received with the photo, it will be returned.

Engagement and wedding announcements pertinent to Livonia, Redford, Garden City, Westland, Farmington and Farmington Hills are to be addressed to Loraine McClish, in care of The Farmington Observer, 21898 Farmington Road, Farmington 48024.
