ANOTHER TENANT IS signed up for Wayne-Westland Community Schools' Cherry Hill Adult Center on Avondale in the city of Inkster.

The school board last week approved a lease agreement for 3-S Corp. of Bloomfield Hills, which uses computerized classroom simulators to train law enforcement officers, firefighters and truck drivers.

-Under the one-year agreement, 3-S will pay $946.40 per month to lease 1,352 square feet of classroom and office space. Standard custodial costs are included, but the company must pay extra for custodial overtime and use of telephones.

3-S is one of several private firms leasing space in the school district's adult/community education facility.

Board member Kathleen Chorbagian praised school officials for generating additional revenue through the building and said renting space at a school in a "tough to do."

STUDENTS at Monroe Elementary School found an unusual way to mark Michigan Humane Society's Mutt Day earlier this month.

A banner celebrating international helping hands for pets flew high over the festivities at the Michigan State Fairgrounds, Plans call for the Monroe banner to be sewn along with others from around the country in a giant quilt.

PEOPLE'S
COMMUNITY Baptist Church will hold its annual school festival and carnival Friday to Monday on the church grounds and in neighboring Annapolis Park.

Games, entertainment, refreshments and carniyal rides will be featured during the fourday festival, which opens noon Friday and runs through 10 p.m. Memorial Day.

WITH LAWN mowers out in full force in most neighborhoods, an abundance of grass clippings is sure to follow. But now there's a place where clippings can be discarded. The city transfer site (in the DPS yard off Marquette, east of Newburgh) will accept grass clippings and leaves every Friday and Saturday throughout the summer.

They are Judith Palkoski, president; Thomas Brown, internal vice president; Bill Grant, external vice president; Gary Stone, treasurer; Nancy Allred, secretary, and Donna Stout, Virginia Braun, Marie Busch and Russel Tuttle, directors.

Plans for homeless shelter expanded to the planned Wayne County shelter for homeless families to open in Westland this fall. Plans call for eight new dormitory-style rooms to be added to the original 20 at the facility on the second floor of the Eloise complex commissary building, said Joseph Benyo of the Wayne County Homeless Services Advisory Council.

The expansion was discussed by council members at a meeting last week, Benyo said.

Construction should start by late spring or early summer and the first phase of the shelter will be ready for occupancy by Nov. 1, Benyo said Thursday, "We're moving along rapidly, but we're moving cautiously," he said. The 22,000 square-foot shelter at Michigan Avenue and Merriman, believed to be the first suburban facility of its kind in the United States, was announced by county officials last February.

THE MAJORITY of the shelter is Benyo said Thursday the additional rooms will be used as "transitional housing" while officials search for federally subsidized housing for qualifying residents, Benyo said.

"Rather than turn these people out after 30-45 days we can let them stay a little longer until we can find HUD (federal department of Housing and Urban Development) housing,"

The advisory council also discussed the possibility of using school buses to transport children living at the shelter to their local schools. The buses would be provided by western Wayne and Downriver districts that transport students to the Ford Vocational/Technical Center, on Marquette near Carlson, Benyo said.

'That way, you won't have children missing classes because of a lack of transportation," Benyo said.

THE SHELTER will be operated by the private Wayne Metropolitan Community Services Agency under a one-year contract with the county. Suburban homelessness is a growing, but until now, unrecognized problem, according to CSA officials. Last winter, the agency estimated there were 2,300-3,700 county residents who had either lost their homes or were in danger of losing

State: Headgear for disabled teen is not inhumane

By C. L. Rugenstein staff writer

It's a first for Michigan and the United States.

A decision Wednesday by a Michigan Department of Education hearing officer will allow a Westland teen-ager whose disability causes him to hit his head as much as 100 times per minute to wear a controversial headgear to school if other treatments fail.

The headband-like SIBIS (self-injurious behavior inhibiting device) that Terry Phelan, 15, who is developmentally disabled, would wear dispenses an 85-volt shock for twotenths of a second to the skin where a companion band is worn when the head is struck.

Terry has cerebral palsy which causes him to strike his head repeatedly if unrestrained, as much as 100 times per minute.

Developed two years ago, the SIBIS headgear makes the wearer aware of his behavior, and enables him to change it in order to learn. It was prescribed last year by Terry's doctors and virtually eliminated Terry's self-injurious behavior, ac-

There will be themes and special events for each month of the year, said members of the anniversary committee at the group's first meeting last week.

"I am pleased with the plans and the committee's progress," said Tom Brown, committee co-chairman. He is also the city council president and served as the city's first mayor when voters approved a city charter in the spring of 1966.

The theme of the anniversary will be "1991 - Year of Pride." The actual anniversary will be May 16.

Brown, whose co-chairman is councilman Kenneth Mehl, suggested that one major event be planned for each month of next year, with smaller events held by civic and service groups.

Incumbent Leonard Posey and challengers Linda Pratt and Laurel Raisanen are seeking election to a single full-term on the board in the June 11 election.

Posey, who was appointed in December to fill Terri Reighard Johnson's seat following her election to the Westland City Council, said his short term on the board has paid dividends.

"I've learned a hell of a lot about the school district in that time," he said. "Things I really didn't understand about the way a public school district operates, I have a clear knowledge now. I have a clear knowledge of the issues (the district faces)," he said.

Posey, 36, said he enjoys taking on leadership roles and has always "taken an active role in problem solving with whatever group I was associated with."

McDonald's helps city mark 24th anniversary

By Leonard Poger editor

The city of Westland marked its 24th anniversary Wednesday with an unusual historical ceremony.

Westland historical commissioners accepted from the Ford-Radcliff McDonald's restaurant a replica of a plaque marking the city's anniver-

The presentation ceremony marked another historical event in the community.

The familiar high-rise McDonald's arches, threatened with demolition a year ago, will be retained. The arches will be part of a "Historical-Lane," which will include a blacksmith shop and barn, commissioner Joseph Benyo said. McDonald's has agreed to donate the yellow and red arches to the commission when the city group finds a location on property behind its historical museum on the westside of Wayne Road, south of Mar-

COMMISSION CHAIRMAN Tom Brown, the city's first mayor and now a city councilman, accepted the plaque for Westland. The landmark sign is definitely part of the city's history, Brown sald in accepting the donation of the arches.

"History is made each and every day," he said on stressing the importance of retaining the double arches.

"We should maintain the keepsakes when they are available. We are missing many items but it is my intent to save things which point up our history."

The replica will be on the base of the familiar double arches of the restaurant. The replica will be replaced in six to eight weeks when a permanent marker is delivered.

The Ford-Radcliff restaurant was the first McDonald's in the area and only the 43rd in the country, sald Bob Jedele, operations manager.

Brown recalled when two McDonaid's representatives come to him as then mayor to discuss their plans to build the fast-food restaurant on Ford and Radeliff.

There was a problem at the time McDonald's proposed the restaurant because some people said they felt too many businesses were being developed, Brown said during the brief ceremony Wednesday.

"I didn't make any promises. But I told them we would follow the process" of presenting the proposal to the planning commission and later the city council.

"WE ALSO followed the same process" when McDonald's tried to get Westland Zoning Board of Appeals permission to retain the double arches.

After months of delays last summer, the board refused permission in a move to improve the signage appearance along Ford Road.

The board did agree to allow the sign to remain until the historical commission finds an appropriate

Durand and Meyer theorize that Terry's behavior is a form of communication, according to Landau, and "their goal is to teach him how to communicate in another way."

"THEY TESTIFIED that they can reduce (Terry's) self-injurious behavior by 50 percent in two months, and by 90-95 percent in six months,' Landau said. But Beekwood's decision would allow the use of the SIBIS if that program failed.

"My position at the start of the hearing was that the education plan which had been proposed for Terry by the Northville public schools did not meet his pressing educational needs," Landau said. "A turning point in the hearing came when evidence showed that the school district had not been able to protect Terry from his self-injurious behavior under the current program."

The decision is a landmark for the use of SIBIS as an aid to education for the handicapped.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

The Board of Education of the School District of the City of Garden City, County of Wayne, Michigan, will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m., Eastern Daylight Time, on June 12, 1990, in the office of the Board-of-Education, 1333 Radcliff, Garden City, Michigan, on the proposed school tax levy for the 1990-91 fiscal year.

Due to anticipated operating costs and in order to fund the School District's proposed operating budget and maintain services, the School District finds it necessary to restore its operating millage levy reduction as permitted by law. Because of an estimated increase in the state equalized value of existing property in the School District, state law (Act 5 of 1982) provides that the base tax rate for 1990 school operating taxes be reduced by no more than 3.2213 mills ($3.2213 per $1,000 SEV) from the 1990-91 operating tax rate.

Within its authorized millage rate, and as allowed by state law (Act 5 of 1982), the School District proposes to levy an additional millage rate of not to exceed 3.2213 mills ($3.2213 per $1,000 SEV). This will provide an estimated 8.36% increase in School District operating tax revenues over the revenue which would have been permitted without the increase. The total number of mills to be levied, including the proposed additional millage rate, would remain within the voter approved and previously authorized millage rate and is the same as the operating millage levied for 1990-91. This proposed levy will not produce any additional revenues for school operating purposes because increased property tax revenues will be offset by a corresponding reduction in school aid payments. The proposed levy will, however, prevent a reduction in state aid payments. The School District has complete authority under state law to establish the number of mills to be levied within its authorized millage rate.

Public comments, oral or written, are welcome at the hearing on the proposed additional millage

Now that he's found himself, city man looks for his roots

By Tom Henderson staff writer

Westland's James Warner has finally found inner peace.

Next, he hopes he can find his biological mother. It is proof of how far he has come that finding himself and finding his mother no longer seem the same to

"I had to find out who I am before could find out who she is," said Warner, who grew up in Livonia.

THERE WAS no paved road to inner peace for Warner.

There were a few trails, but they led first through deep thickets and swamps, through ravines of depression, mountainous rages of anger, to a suicide attempt, and repeated commitments and hospitalizations for his manic depression.

"I used to say, 'How can I have a future when I don't have a past?' Now, I say, 'I may not have a past, but I sure have a future.'

And he's got a present. The one-time high school dropout, the former alcohol and drug abuser, the suicidal manic depressive is now active with the Northwest Detroit Lions Club, is public relations director for the Adoption Identity Movement, is on the advisory board of the Detroit Radio Information Service, is a public-access volunteer at MetroVision in Livonia and is an intern with WDET-FM, southeastern Michigan's public radio station. Warner was adopted by James and Margaret Warner in 1956 and given their last name when he-was - he said. just two-weeks-old. For as long as he can remember, he knew he was adopted. For as long as he can remember, though he loved his adopted parents, he had an unsatiated curiosity about who his real parents were, what they looked liked, where they might be.

What might have been a minor problem, a controllable problem, was compounded by a long history of alcohol and drug use and an undlagnosed case of manic depression.

In his senior year, he dropped out en, cleaned sewers for the city of Livonia, then got his GED and entered college.

Unfortunately, the terms at Schoolcraft and later at Eastern Michigan were longer than his cycles of mania and depression. He would start classes, hit a depression cycle, and drop out.

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

Margaret Warner shares a seat on her couch with her adopted son, James, who is active in a movement to help those who have been adopted find their biological parents.

WARNER WAS hospitalized during a manic, hyperactive fantasy cycle in Auburn Hills in 1984, was arrested for drunk driving later that year and committed to Northville, attempted suicide in 1986, and was hospitalized at Mt. Sinai in Detroit and at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia in 1987.

"I spent some hellaclous years,"

Throughout It all, his parents never gave up on him. "I wouldn't be here without them, without their support and understanding," says

One turning point came in 1985, when Warner came in contact with a state agency, Michigan Rehabilitation Services. One of the agency's counselors, Cecily Molyneaux, stuck by him and helped get him on track.

Another turning point came in 1988, when he got off street drugs and alcohol, which allowed his pre-Franklin High, worked at 7-Elev- scription drugs to get his manic depression under control.

Since then, Warner has graduated from the Specs Howard School of Broadcast Arts, served as an intern at Channel 2, produced a documentary on an adoption rights march in Washington, D.C., and worked with the W.B. Doner Agency in Southfield on state lottery commercials.

Warner says his biggest success came this month, following a rally he helped organize and promote by the Adoption Identity Movement at the Wayne County Probate Court.

Channel 7 did a piece on the May 1 rally, showing a woman who was looking for a son she put up for adoption. The man's adoptive mother saw the show, called her son to tell him his natural mother was looking for hlm, and the two were reunited the next day.

The story caught the ear of a California production company putting together a sydicated TV show for next fall titled "Reunions." The California folks flew in Friday to film the family and hired Warner to serve as a production assistant.

Now, if only another reunion can happen to him. He is one step ahead of most adopted children — at least he knows the name of his biological mother: Beverly Amerman. Even if he finds her, she will never replace his real mother. "Peggy Warner is my real mother. Peggy Warner is my natural mother," said Warner, stressing the words "real"

and "natural."
"Nothing will ever change that. But I'd still like to find my biological mother. There is a void that exists inside me that longs to be filled."

Frozen seafood is convenient. It can be stored in your freezer for instant access to a quick meal. It cooks quickly and can be prepared using almost any cooking method.

Frozen fish can be thawed in the refrigerator or cooked straight from the frozen state.

The National Fish and Seafood Promotional Council has created the following recipes.

FISH BOATS 2 large baking potatoes 4 frozen breaded (or batter-coated) fish fillets

Sauce: I lime Few drops hot red pepper sauce----Pepper to taste 1 very ripe avocado 1/4 cup sour cream 2 green onlons, chopped

Preheat oven to 450 degrees. Scrub potatoes and prick in several places with fork. Place on oven rack and bake for 45 minutes.

Put frozen coated fish fillets on baking sheet and place in oven, along with potatoes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake for 25 to 30 minutes, or until fillet coating is a deep golden brown. Check potatoes for doneness.

While potatoes and fish are baking, prepare sauce. Squeeze juice from the lime (there should be about 2 tablespoons) and pour into a bowl. Add hot sauce and pepper.

Cut avocado in half. Discard seed. Scoop out soft flesh and add it to bowl. Mash avocado into a puree with fork. When mixture is quite smooth, stir in sour cream and onions. There will be a generous cup of sauce.

Cut baked potatoes in half lengthwise and, with a fork, fluff soft interior by breaking up potato and pulling it up a little with fork. Then pushsome of potato toward edges, making a shallow cavity in center.

Spoon 1 tablespoon of avocado sauce into center of potato. Place a fish fillet on potato. Spoon over another tablespoon of sauce. Makes 4 servings. Pass extra sauce.

NRA criticizes Faust's weapon-storage bill

By Tim Richard staff writer

Sen. William Faust's bill requiring adults to lock up guns that children might find is being shot at by a key senator as well as sportsmen.

Senate Judiciary Chair Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford, says the "careless use of firearms" law may be sufficient to charge adults when children shoot them off...

"I do not like to stretch the law," replied a key witness, Wayne County child picks it up and fires it, usually Prosecutor John O'Hair, who favors at another child. Faust's Senate Bill 702. O'Hair wants clearer statutory authority,

A National Rifle Association lobbyists objected that the bill singles out firearms and "punishes grieving said his office can prosecute under parents after the fact."

NICHOLS CONDUCTED his pan- nor. at the urging of Faust, D-Westland. The bill would require adults (18 and over) to store firearms in locked containers or use a trigger lock if a minor (16 and under) could gain access without parental permission.

With only three of its five members attending, the Judiciary Commmittee took no vote Thursday. Nichols said the panel has a week vote by the summer break. The chair said he was cool toward it. A similar bill is stalled in a House committee. The measure's prosepcts appear dim.

"ONCE A MONTH," O'Hair said. "our office writes up a report from the Detroit Police Department (of children's use of firearms).

"If there is great remorse on the part of the parent, we forego prosecution, believing the death of a childis sufficient punishment."

But the county will prosecute the doorman of a crack house who puts down a gun to take a break and a punish the parent after the fact," Cunningham said.

He cited public service TV spots in which actors well known to kids say three times: "Guns aren't toys. If you find a gun, leave it alone. Don't touch it. Tell an adult."

The- 135,000-member NRA has a long list of other objections to the Faust bill, Cunningham said:

• It punishes one person for the act of another.

• It singles out firearms, ignoring poisons, alcohol, farm equipment and knives. Bicycle accidents kill more kids than gun accidents.

• Guns with trigger locks are worthless to adults for self defense.

• The bill exempts police and military personnel, who should be subject to it like everyone else.

• The bill punishes an act of mere negligence as a felony.

• The bill applies to homes with children of 16, although children are able to understand firearms at 15.

SPOKESMEN for the Michigan State Police, Michigan Sheriffs Association, Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police and Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce supported

The chiefs spokesman praised the NRA TV spots but said, "They're usually after the 11 o'clock news. They're not sandwiched in betweenthe cartoon programs."

Jim Church, a state-certified gun safety instructor from Bath, near Lansing, opposed part of the bill.

"I read about willful criminal activity by children in Detroit. I have a problem with an adult coming into criminal jeopardy for a willful criminal act of a youngster," Church said.

RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS IN THE BLOOD BUT NOT THE BONES

The rheumatoid factor test reveals whether you have an antibody in your blood associated with rheumatoid arthritis. Initially, investigators believed that this antibody indicated the presence of rheumatoid arthritis; subsequent experience showed that this belief was wrong. Many people are rheumatoid factor positive because of past infections, previous use of drugs to treat hypertension or depression, or because of past use of contraceptive agents. In people over age forty, rheumatoid factor may be present as a consequence of aging.

Furthermore, some people with obvious rheumatold arthritis have a negative test. A rheumatoid factor test is useful when a recent test is compared to a previous one; then the results help evaluate if therapy is successful. A decrease in the strength, called tht titer of the test, gives your doctor reason to continue present therapy. Afternatively, if you are not doing well, and the values of your rheumatoid factor test are worsening, your physician can feel justified in changing treatment.

Like many blood tests, the rheumatoid factor test finds its place only within the picture of how you look, act, and feel.

Local police seek driver in fatal hit-and-run

By Diane Gale staff writer

A 60-car funeral procession wound through Canton and Plymouth streets Friday as family and friends said good-bye to Melissa Chisholm, 14, who was killed in a hit-runaccident May 14.

Police continue to search for the driver of the car that struck the eighth grade Ploneer Middle School student at 9:45 p.m. on Ford Road west of Lilley.

Chisholm was crossing the street with her 11-year-old sister, a Pionèer sixth grader, while their mother, Deborah, waited in a nearby restaurant.

Pioneer principal Carl Taylor described Chisholm as an average student and "very well liked by a lot of students." She was a student council member and was on the school track team.

HER FAMILY once owned the Donut Scene, which is where witnesses called police to report the accident.

During the week-long investigation, police have changed the description of the car that struck Chisholm. Initially they thought it was an Escort and later learned that the dark metallic gray paint chips found at the accident had to be from a Ford, Lincoln orken, but they aren't sure if it was a windshield or rear window. The car trunk likely was damaged.

Witnesses said the driver had collarlength dark halr.

"Someone has to know where this car is," said Pat Nemecek, Canton police informa-

If the driver had stopped at the accident scene he possibility would not have been charged with a crime, because Chisholm had crossed against a light, police said.

Since he left the scene of a serious accident he now faces felony charges that carry up to two years in prison, a $2,000 fine or both.

"Not knowing the total circumstances, he probably would not have been found at fault," Nemecek said. "He was proceeding through a green light in the intersection.

"He should have stopped," Nemecek said. "There is no way he did not know that he had hit someone or something."

Police have received less than 10 tips.

THE DAY after the accident Pioneer students placed flowers and carried signs at the spot where Chisholm was struck and whispered among themselves, hoping to spot the driver of the car that killed their friend.

Their signs asked motorists to beep their horns if they cared.

School psychologists and social workers helped Pioneer students cope with losing a classmate. "Students began to express their grief in very dramatic ways, like outward bursts of crying," Taylor said. More than 100 Pioneer students Friday walked a couple of buildings away from the middle school they attend to the Lambert-Vermeulen Funeral Home to attend services. Canton police are asking anyone with information about the accident to call 397-

S'craft seeks to set taxes, budget, tuition

Schoolcraft College trustees are expected to lower taxes, but raise tuition, Wednesday during their annual meeting on the college budget. Schoolcraft's 1990 tax rate is expected to be set at 1.908 mills, a slight decrease from last year.

On its face, the tax rate would represent a decrease of $3.15 in taxes for area residents living in houses assessed at $100,000. Increased assessments, however, are expected to wipe out any tax savings.

Schoolcraft had a truth-in-taxation hearing on the proposed tax rate May 16. Schoolcraft taxes are levied in the Livonia, Garden City, Plymouth-Canton, Clarenceville and well as in a small section of the Novi Schools.

IN OTHER action, trustees are also expected to increase tuition $1.50 per credit hour for students living in districts that pay the the Schoolcraft tax, $6 for other Michigan students and $8.50 for out-ofstate students.

Tuition would rise to $35 per credit hour for in-district students, $53. for other Michigan students and $78 for out-of-state students.

The annual assessment of Schoolcraft president Richard McDowell will also occur at Wednesday's meet-

TRUSTEES MET in closed session Northville public school districts, as to discuss the evaluation May 16, and are expected to meet in closed. session again Wednesday before having a public discussion of the president's job performance and expected raise.

The session was closed at McDowell's request.

"I've found, even in evaluating my own staff, that you receive the most frank evaluation in a one-on-one session," McDowell said. "When there's a crowd around, you tend to hear only the nice things."

THOUGH REVISIONS are possible, trustees are expected to adopt a $27.2 million operating budget for the 1990-91 school year.

The figure represents a 7-percent increase over last year's budget.

Bill seeks to create 'drug free' school zones

By Tim Richard staff writer

The Michigan Senate last week passed bills to make schools safer from drugs and update school bus safety rules. For law-abidiing drivers, it means they will stop 20 feet from a school bus with flashing lights instead of 10.

'We're not going to tolerate drugtampering with our children," said the sponsor of the drug-free zone bill, Sen. Fred Dillingham, R-

"This started as a drug-free school bill, but it became a drug-free zone bill," he said. His Senate Bill 553 was amended to cover public parks, playgrounds, swimming pools, youth centers and even video arcades.

All Observer & Eccentric area senators supported the bills, which . go to the House.

THE DRUG bill increases penalties for dealers who invade the drugfree zones.

"It's a tiered approach. There are three times the normal penalties for drug distributors," said Dillingham. For this reason, he worries aloud crime."

-- THE SCHOOL bus code is contained in three bills sponsored by Dillingham and Richard Fessler, R-Commerce.

"It's a total, comprehensive compilation of bus safety rules - a onestop shopping center for people concerned about school bus safety," Dillingham told the Senate.

"Currently there are several laws, conflicting rules and attorney general opinions covering school buses?" Among the changes Dillingham

• Beginning drivers will have to complete a course, and all must take six hours of continuing education every two years. Currently, a new driver has a year to complete the course. The state will pay for training, estimated roughly at several million dollars.

• There is a uniform system of four red and four yellow flashing lights.

• A new mirror system will enable the driver to better see passengers they have discharged. Sponsors told of children being killed by buses when they stooped to pick up articles and couldn't be seen by drivers.

• State Police will inspect all school transportation vehicles, not just buses.

The bills passed 32-0. They are tiebarred-meaning-all-must-pass-forany one to take effect.

FESSLER INSERTED an amendment for the state to study the feasibility of a right-side discharge rule. If adopted, it would prohibit drivers from discharging passengers who had to cross the road to the left of the bus. The rule would raise transportation costs and lengthen children's bus rides. But proponents say it would save school districts millions.

Fessler's Transportation Committee received a late proposal that the state require "pusher" or rear engines on school buses. Such buses would have no hoods that would cause blind spots for drivers. The -proposal surfaced too late in deliberations for action.

Two state Senate challengers drop out

It's two down, one to go in terms of-challengers-for-William-Faust's. state Senate seat.

Incumbent state Rep. Gregory Pitoniak, D-Taylor, has withdrawn from the 12th District Senate race, leaving incumbent Sen. William Faust, D-Westland to face challenger James Stamps of Belleville in the Democratic primary.

GOP candidate Glen Kassel of Westland has also withdrawn, to pursue a Congressional race against incumbent Democrat William Ford of Taylor.

Pitoniak said he had no intention of running with Faust in the race.

"To be perfectly honest we'd heard rumors (Faust might not file and) there would be a hand-picked successor," Pitoniak said. "My person filed just to be safe."

Pitoniak said he endorsed Faust re-election.

The district includes Westland, among other communities.

No other area candidates for state and county office had withdrawn as of the 4 p.m. Friday deadline to have their names removed from the bal-

not gooey

Lately I've been on the proverbial bandwagon heralding the "lighter" side of food: Everyone talks about getting in shape for summer but I, for one, have no doubt that clothing manufacturers are designing waistbands different this year because, for some odd reason, mine seems to be somewhat lower than my navel. Now I could continue with what we should and, unfortunately, shouldn't eat but a) I've already mowed the lawn three times.

b) I've tilled and planted the garden.

c) I've already planted the flowers around my house.

d) I redid the bathroom (by myself). 🚁

I want some cheesecake. Ah, but before you get all fired up thinking that these pages will be filled with gooey, creamy, New York style varieties of cheesecakes, look again. Savory cheesecakes are a whole new variety of exclusive cheesecakes that seem to be gaining in popularity in the Detroit area. Perfect for lunch, brunch, casual suppers or buffets, these do-ahead treats combine a creamy taste with a smooth, velvety texture. They take the same form as their sweet counterparts, but the flavorings are a real

FROM THE EXTERIOR, they look like cheesecakes. Instead of a graham cracker or cookie crust, these crusts are formed by combining toasted breadcrumbs, grated cheese (which helps the crust brown and crisp) and melted butter. The essential filling remains the same - cheese. Soft and delicate cream cheese is the common denominator in these cases. Fresh cream cheese, which has a slightly tangy flavor and contains no preservatives, is preferred, but the packaged bricks available at the supermarket are acceptable. (Fresh cream cheese can be purchased at specialty food stores and cheese shops.) Cottage cheese and ricotta can be added to lighten the taste and calories.

Other than a melange of fresh herbs, filling and great cheese, the only other staple really necessary to prepare these delectable goodies is a good quality springform pan. If you have yet to invest in one, it can be purchased at all gourmet and kitchen shops, with the lesser-quality pan coming in at under $5, to non-stick all-aluminum varieties at wellover $30.

If you're thinking about taking the cheesecake to a function, you might also want to invest in the same-size cardboard-bottom insert. These are about 10 cents each, and you will never have to worry about leaving the bottom of your springform pan in someone's kitchen again.

To my friends; I think I have about eight different-sized bottoms in my cellar. Call me if you want them.

ALL THE RECIPES call for pretoasting the breadcrumbs. If you have never toasted breadcrumbs you can use fresh or prepacked varieties. Sprinkle them on a cookie sheet and toasting them in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 5-10 minutes, stirring occasionally.

NE SCHOOL DAY each week, nine students in Sharon Rivera's special class at Berkshire Middle in Beverly Hills prepare lunch and then share in the dining experience.

The meal, however, provides much more than mere noontime sustenance.

It is a journey into self-sufficiency, an odyssey of cuisine by a handful of special students whose potential for independent living is coaxed into fuller bloom through an experience in cooking.

Reading and math, health, science and language are a part of the experience. Teamwork and cooperation, etiquette and socializing are another.

Home economics and especially cooking, long included in curriculum for mentally impaired and autistic students, is elevated in importance by Rivera because of the basic survival skills it provides.

By preparing a meal and then eating it, "We learn we can do things for ourselves, take care of ourselves. It's a tremendous feeling of independence. It's very exciting," Rivera said. Most of these students, she added, are quite capable and many may one day live on their own.

KATHY, WITH HER mop of blond curls, labors over an apple. She; Darren, an autistic youth; and Marc, who favors the spicy food of his Mexican heritage, are peeling a pot of apples, preparing them for saucing. It is today's desert. Darren and Marc have each peeled several but Cathy is having trouble. She has yet to master the peeler.

Rivera glides by the table where the trio works, stopping long enough to again demonstrate the peeler for

"Does it matter if we make a mistake?" Rivera asks no one in particular. The question, one in a steady stream of queries meant to proyoke thought and motivate action, elicits brief comments.

Rivera then answers herself. "Mistakes are how we learn."

Erin, in spite of a withered arm, is crushing garlic for the salad dressing, laboriously reading a recipe for ingredients and amounts. After some confusion, she draws on former directives: "Do we have everything out? Are we doing this step by step?'

Sarah, a small wisp of a girl, carefully measures green salad into a dozen bowls. Her helpmate, a willowy beauty also named Sara, caps each salad with garbanzo beans, bacon bits and croutons.

Rivera's aide, Marilyn Price, cautions the girls, "You need enough for 12 bowls. "Count them out." Later, Sara confides that Price is her "very best friend."

Aaron, who proudly announces he is in eighth grade, and Gauri, of East Indian ancestry, measure water for Kool-Aid. Gauri whispers "I love you" to Rivera, who assists Aaron in basting a roast of pork smothered in rosemary and thyme. Potatoes and corn, peeled and shucked earlier, simmer atop the stove. Two pans of homemade rolls complete the meal.

THE PROJECT FLOWS smoothly, each person completing individually assigned tasks under the experienced tutelage of Rivera and Price. "Please" and "thank you" accompa-'ny every request.

The menu, planned by the students, is ambitious, a complete meal that meets dally health guidelines, individual taste and dietary limitations. Prepared entirely by the students, it is served alt-down style at a wers.

Eighth grader Sara Haeffner watches as Marilyn Price, teacher's aide, dishes out a portion for her.

Immediately after recess, lunch is Sara is briefly overcome, tearful at the excitement of a meal walting to be indulged. A word from Rivera and the tears quickly dry. "This is very good," Sara ultimately concludes.

once had to eat a bite of tuna, a food she detests.

Karl, very quiet and little more than an observer, joins the group at the table, speaking only once in answer to a question. The day before, his mother prepared pizza for the class, fashioning Karl's favorite treat, called elephant ears, with the leftover dough.

also cull recipe books and newspapers for additional variations.

"WE'VE FIXED EVERYTHING from hot dogs to vegetable soup from scratch," Rivera said, adding student preference is recipes that are more complicated. In an effort to meet all developmental levels, she also teaches how to prepare instant foods, reading instructions from a box. After one parent raised the question, low-calorie entrees also have been introduced.

Meal preparation takes place entirely in Rivera's classroom. Two years ago the room was outfitted with a stove, kitchen sink, refrigerator and cooking utensils. The room also sports traditional desks, an assortment of academic and learning tools and several computers.

"These kids are capable of so much," Rivera said. Dennis joins the group late, returning from a regular classroom where he is mainstreamed part of each school day. He digs into the mashed potatoes and apple sauce. "I like them best."

Then, rushing to empty his mouth, he tells whoever is interested, Rivera and Price rely on parents - "These are the best teachers we've

Dash of flavor can be healthy as well as tasty

With today's busy lifestyles, spreads, sauces and condiments are pepper on the upswing. But you should be aware of the sodium and fat content found in many prepared condiments.

In everyday eating, it's often a pinch or a dash of flavor that makes the difference between the ordinary and the extraordinary. With just the right seasonings and blend of healthy ingredients, your food can take on delicious, new flavor.

There's no need to sacrifice healthy eating for convenience. Lowsodium and "light" or "diet" versions of some products such as ketchup, mustard, Worcestershire sauce, soy sauce and mayonnaise are available. Horseradish and salsa are also tasty alternatives which are naturally low in fat.

. But go easy on the mayo -- mayonnaise is almost 100 percent fat (a mixture of oil, egg yolk and vinegar). If you can't handle eating your favorite sandwich without mayo, use a smaller amount or blend the mayo with plain low-fat yogurt. Try flavoring the yogurt with a touch of mustard, lemon juice and pepper for dressing tuna or chicken salad.

YOU CAN ALSO help lower your salt and fat consumption by becoming more familiar with all the wonderful, natural seasonings available. Substitute "ready-made" sauces and condiments with tangy spices that have a "bite," herbs and vegetable seasonings. Curnin, dill seeds and ginger add plenty of flavor. And basil, ground pepper, onion and garlic powder are great sauce spikers.

Instead of reaching for a bottled dressing to drizzle on top of fresh greens, choose a non-fat, salt-free salad dressing containing lemon juice, herbs, powdered mustard, garlic and olive oil. And don't forget to sample the new Havored Vinegats available on the supermarket shelf.

If you're looking for a reducedcalorie dip to enjoy with fresh vegetables, try the following creamy Blue Cheese Dip, or delight your taste buds with a quick and easy Guacamole recipe.

Get creative with your condiments, spices and sauces. Remember that healthy finishing touches really pay off - adding more to the flavor and less to your waistline.

Contrary to popular belief, you cannot toast breadcrumbs from crumbling toast. Of course, if you though that, you really have no reason to even try to attempt these recipes. -.

These cheesecakes can be made as much as two days in advance and then refrigerated. Before you start, be sure the springform pan has a tight lock and seaf to avoid water leaking into the cake. The finished cakes are at their peaks within 24-36 hours of baking. If you must refrigerate them, allow plenty of time to bring them to room temperature before serving.

Although my initial experiences at the sewing machine were less than stellar, I really enjoyed learning how to cook and to this day still occasionally-preparecinnamon toasties and eggs a la goldenrod, two of the first things I ever learned how to make.

Although putting a meal together can look easy, especially to a husband or other family members, it does take planning, coordination and effort to prepare a well-balanced meal and get everything to the tableat the same time.

This week's Winner Dinner Winners, all nine of them, have been actively participating in learning how to plan, prepare and serve the different meals they choose to make every Thursday. With the help of their teacher, Sharon Rivera, and her assistant, Marilyn Price, members of the Educably Mentally Impaired class at Berkshire Middle School in Beverly Hills have been doing this for two years. The days they make and eat lunch together have become very special and much Ranging in age from 11 to 15, the students take turns bringing in recipes they would like to make. Having successsfuly prepared several recipes from this column, the students thought it would be fun to submit their favorite Winner Dinner. After taking a class vote, they decided to send in recipes for herbed pork roast and apple sauce. Served with mashed potatoes, a tossed salad with a special sweet dressing, and quick rolls, this is one dinner that is sure to be a winner at your house as well.

A BIG THANK YOU and congratulations to all the members and teachers of the EMI class at Berkshire Middle School for being this week's Winner Dinner Winners. I am delighted this column has been of value to you, and I sincerely wish all of you continued success and happiness in the kitchen.

Readers: As a little reminder, please keep those recipes and menus coming. With warm weather fast approaching, it is going to be harder than ever to cook. If you have any favorite quick but cool recipes,

Tennyson once wrote: "In the spring, a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love."

And, of course, since young women are - as a rule - much quicker about such things, that is what they have been thinking about all winter.

But if the one you desire is not as young as he/she once was, or for some other reason needs more than just the lovely, lusty month of May to inspire him/her to love, then you may wish to use some of the following herbs and vegetables to put life in your spring menu, and spring in your love life, Tansy - This was one of the "better herbs" of the Bible that Jews were ordered to eat at Passover time. It is a symbol of immortality.

In the past, tansy pudding and cakes were traditionally eaten at Easter by Christians to celebrate the end of Lent. They used tansy to cleanse the body of "bad humors" after a long Lenten diet of fish.

Tansy was used as a spring tonic to rejuvenate the sluggish body and spirit after a long winter. But the tea is rather bitter, and I suggest that you serve the pudding instead, or perhaps a nice tansy dip for chips or crackers.

Hussop — This is another purging, or cleansing herb mentioned in the Bible. "Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean." Psalm 51:7.

It is good sprinkled in soups and salads, in fruit compotes or fruit pies, and is especially tasty mixed into cranberry sauce.

Hyssop cuts the grease of fatty meats and is often used in cooking duck, goose, lamb or wild game.

Rosemary - This herb is traditionally used to inspire sentimentality, remembrance and romantic love:

It is good for seasoning meats and vegetables and is especially good with citrus fruit. Cardamon — This herb is said to inspire passion. It is excellent used on curries, or with apples in ples and Woodruff (also called Sweet Woodruff, and Master-of-the-Woods) In Europe, this herb is the symbol of spring. It has a fresh clean smell and is a necessary ingredient in the traditional May Wine. It also can be used in non-alcoholic fruit drinks and punches.

used to be left in the ground all winter and dug up in the spring when the ground thawed. It has been touted as the best of all aphrodisiacs. The Irish swear by it.

My maternal grandmother used to say that parsnips eaten in April accounted for all the January birthdays in our family.

Wild Asparagus - According to Shaykh Nefzawi, in his 16th century love manual: "He who boils wild asparagus, then fries them in oil, and pours them over eggs and eats it, will grow strong . . . and find it a stimulant for his amorous desires."

However, if you believe in trying to cut down on cholesterol, wild asparagus tips steamed, parboiled or cooked any way at all, and served hot with salt, pepper and butter substitute will do just as well.

Olive vs. corn: Both oils good

AP - Fine-tuning a low-fat diet need not involve agonizing over olive oil vs. corn oil, say researchers who found that neither offered an advantage in maintaining levels of good cholesterol in the blood.

"When someone is eating a reduced fat diet that's low in saturated fats, it doesn't matter what kind of unsaturated fat they choose," said Darlene M. Dreon, a research scientist at Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory in Berkeley, Calif.

Previous research has indicated that monounsaturated fats, found in olive oil and peanut oil, beneficially lower LDL cholesterol, so-called "bad" cholesterol, without lowering HDL, so-called "good" cholesterol.

Polyunsaturates, such as in corn oil and safflower oil, also lower "bad" cholesterol, but they tend to lower "good" cholesterol as an unwanted additional effect, previous research has indicated.

"The studies have shown that monounsaturates and polyunsaturates are equal in lowering LDL (bad) cholesterol," said Dr. Abhimanyu Garg of the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas.

Excess total cholesterol in the blood is one of the three main modifiable traits that scientists have linked to an increased risk of developing heart disease. The other two are high blood pressure and smok-

HDL cholesterol is called good cholesterol because it is believed to protect against heart disease. LDL cholesterol is called bad cholesterol because it is believed to contribute to fatty deposits in the arteries that promote heart disease. Both are components of total cholesterol.

RESEARCHERS IN the new study analyzed data on 20 women and 19 men who were all put on a standard diet for two weeks, then divided into groups for 12-week diets alternately rich in monounsaturates and in polyunsaturates.

The standard diet was one recommended by the American Heart Association, which calls for 30 percent of total calories from fats, in contrast to the 40 percent of calories from fat that the average American

The test diets provided the same proportion of calories from fats overall, but restricted saturated fats - the kind found in meat and dairy products — to 10 percent. The other 20 percent were polyunsaturates or monounsaturates, depending on which test diet was being used.

Blood levels of LDL cholesterol and HDL cholesterol did not change significantly with changing fat types, the researchers reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"We find no advantage with respect to plasma HDL concentrations in using predominantly monounsaturated rather than polyunsaturated fats in subjects who consumed reduced-fat solid-food diets," the researchers wrote.

Different methods might explain the findings' seeming conflict with a 1985 study that indicated polyunsaturates lowered levels of "good" cholesterol in the blood, said the researchers.

THE FORMULA DIETS in the earlier study were cholesterol free and contained amounts of monounsaturated fats and polyunsaturated fats "markedly higher than those achievable through solid-food diets," said the researchers.

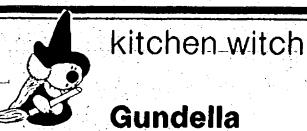

"I don't think you can call it conflicting data," agreed Garg, an assistant professor of internal medicine and clinical nutrition who is associated with the researcher group in the 1985 study.

The new study didn't reduce subjects' consumption of unsaturated fats by much, and couldn't be expected to alter HDL levels, he added in a recent telephone interview.

Said Dreon, "We tried to achieve levels that somebody could get with natural foods."

Dr. Linda Cashin-Hemphill, an assistant professor at the University of Southern California School of Medicine's Atherosclerosis Institute in Los Angeles, said the Americans should aim for overall fat reduction.

"There is no one magic bullet for lipids (fatty substances, including cholesterol, in the body). You have to control total fat," she said in a telephone interview.

Matching food to the wines of Burgundy

225 mile elongated stretch, begins with Chablis, southeast of Paris, and extends south through the Cote d'Or (divided into the northern Cote de Nuits and southern Cote de Beaune), the Cote Chalonnaise, the Maconnais and on to Beaujolais.

Cote d'Or and Cote Chalonnaise are made from Pinot Noir. Because of their limited production, Burgundy wines are expensive. Consequently, when you try to match them with foods, you don't want to make mistakes. Generalities for food complements can be made. Burgundy's red such as pheasant and venison, pork roasts and medium-flavored cheeses. White-Burgundles go well with escargots, seafoods such as shrimp and clams, and goat's milk cheeses. But such generalities are uninspiring when planning a meal.

A few weeks ago, the Cloverleaf Market in Southfield presented a France's Burgundy wine region, a Burgundy Dinner at the Golden Mushroom restaurant in Southfield. It was a stellar matching of food with the wines of Burgundy orchestrated by Chef Milos and Chef Steve Allen. With a little imagination and a few good French cookbooks, you could try your hand at some or all of these pairings.

adequate acidity, the wine finished clean and crisp. The dill sauce emphasized a touch of mint in the wine.

A seafood medley in filo cup with a beurre blanc sauce was presented with the 1987 Domaine Joseph Matrot Meursault-Blagny ($27). It showcased a sweet oak character in the nose and on the palate with good fruit depth and high acid balance. It did not work with the lobster in the medley but went very well with the whitefish, shrimp and mussels.

The richness of lobster requires a rich, generous wine like the 1987 Puligny Montrachet "Les Combettes" from Domaine Etienne Sauzet ($40). It features soft oak and vanilla flavors with bright fruit and a smooth, clean finish.

SEVERAL WINES were sampled with grilled barbarie duck breast with cognac and green peppercorn sauce, wild rice pilat and miniature vegetables. The more mature, less fruity wines matched best, such as the 1986 Louis Trapet Latricleres Chambertin ($36) sporting wonderfully developed aromas of cherries, dried rose petals and a handsome forest character. The multi-layered, complex flavors are a statement of breeding, it was a great match with peppercorns in the duck sauce.

This wine also served as a perfect complement to a roast rack of lamb with potato pancake and tomato Provencale as did the 1987 Albert Morot Beaune Tuerons ($28), an excellent young wine with fresh cherry-raspberry fruit. The lamb enhanced the background of toasty oak, muted by the exuberant fruit.

1987 Domaine Jobiot Givry, Clos du Cellier aux Moines ($15) is wellpriced and alive with ripe cherry fruit and the gentle mushroom, truffle character typical of a Givry. This fruity, lighter-style red Burgundy is a perfect accompaniment to grilled foods.

Burgundy wines discussed in this column are available at Cloverleaf Market.

WINE SELECTION OF THE WEEK verleaf Market will present a Domaine de la Romanee Conti wine dinner at the Golden Mushroom on Monday, June 4. A reception with appetizers begins at 5 p.m. followed by a tasting of six 1987 DRC wines at 5:30. A fivecourse dinner with accompanying DRC bottlings follows the tasting.

Reservations ($175 per person) by calling Cloverleaf Market at 357-0400 or the Golden Mushroom at 559.4230.

To duplicate the tasting and dinner wines at home, serving one bottle of each wine, will cost $3,200. Burgundy fans should not miss this dinner-tasting.

Another superior pairing was the for dessert wines. Consequently the matchup for an apple sorbet and langue de chat was the 1971 Chateau de Rayne Sauternes ($50). After nearly 19 years, the wine is still developing and shows a freshness that enhanced the clean, sorbet flavors. Only a Port wine such as the 1968 Boa Vista Late Bottled Vintage Porto ($30) could enhance the richness

Choose from some 150 kinds of fish products

For many people, fish begins and ends with canned tuna. The next time you're in the store, look around. There are more than 150 fish varieties, either fresh or processed, available. Good nutrition is the key to good health so be adventuresome. Try adding fish and seafood to your

Because fish products are easy to digest, they play a major role in the diets of young children and the elderly, where the ease of digestibility is critical. Fish products also can supply many of the nutrients that are required.

Fish or shellfish are excellent sources of high-quality protein. Most fish and shellfish fall into the low-fat high-protein group. These have less than five percent fat and 15 percent protein. Included are tuna, hallbut, cod, flounder, haddock, pollack, mullet, ocean perch, whiting, crabs, scalMost fish and shellfish fall into the low-fat high-protein group. lops, shrimp and lobster. Tuna and halibut are even better sources of protein. White meat albacore tuna is a good source for the now-famous oils known as Omega-3 fatty acids.

Medium-fat high-protein fish contain 5 to 15 percent fat and more than 15 percent protein. At 15 percent fat, they are still less than meat. Besides, the fat is the polyunsaturated type. Included are anchovies, herring, mackerel, salmon and sardines. These fish are also rich in vitamins A and D.

Shellfish are considered lean. Only shrimp remains relatively high in cholesterol. However, a 3-ounce serving is only one-third the cholesterol in one egg yolk.

GENERALLY, SEAFOOD is low. in calories and is a good source of complete protein. Besides supplying many minerals, including phosphorus, iodine and calcium, all seafood supplies B-complex vita-

Fish can be cooked in a variety of ways, poaching, steaming, baking, broiling, grilling, pan frying or microwaving. Almost any fish can be used in any recipe. Buy whatever type or species of fish is available, frozen or canned.

Do not overcook seafood. Finfish cook in 6-12 minutes per inch of thickness. Cook fish only until it is firm, still juicy and has turned from translucent to opaque (like cooked egg whites). Cooking fish until it flakes can make it tough and dried.

Seafood tastes great with many herbs. Basil, bay leaf, dill, oregano, paprika, pepper, tarragon, thyme, rosemary, sage, marjoram, chervil, chives, fennel, ginger or garlic are nice complements to fish. Marinades, sauces, condiments and flavored butters also complement fish but can add calories.

Seafood can be extremely helpful to dieters. Serve a seafood appetizer or soup before dinner to cut your appetite. Try boiled shrimp, spritzed with lemon juice or smoked salmon, with a tray of fresh vegetables.

Surimi products are an inexpensive addition to a diet plan. Surimi is made from white fish (probably pollack) and is low in calories. These products have been made to taste like imitation crabmeat. Surimi is a low-calorie addition to an appetizer or a hot or cold soup. If you buy a pre-cooked product such as crab, shrimp or surimi, plan to serve it

Do not overcook.

TO PURCHASE FISH, use this guideline per person: three-fourths to one pound whole or drawn fish; one-half to three-fourths of dressed or clean fish; one-third to one-half fillets or steaks; one-fourth to onethird pound of cooked crab meat, lobster meat and raw scallops. Figure one to two pounds of live lobster per person or 6-12 oysters, depending on size.

Keep fresh fish and shellfish loosely wrapped in the refrigerator and chilled or simply warmed through cook within one to two days. If it is frozen, keep in original wrapper, thaw in refrigerator and use immediately. Never thaw and refreeze fish since this will cause moisture loss, texture and flayor changes. It's not a good idea to thaw fish in the microwave because parts may start to cook.

Some studies suggest that as few as two fish meals a week may decrease the risk of developing heart disease. Don't limit yourself just to canned tuna, as good as that may be for you. Expand your horizons whenyou visit your local seafood counter.

Maier finishes off Churchill

By Brad Emons staff writer

Farmington High rode like the wind Thursday, winning the Western Lakes Activities Association girls soccer championship with a dramatic come-from-behind 2-1 victory over visiting Livonia Churchill.

The Falcons, now 11-1-1 overall, avenged their only loss of the season behind the clutch play of Carrie Maier, who scored two goals in the final 15 minutes to erase a 1-0 defi-

Maier, ironically, missed the first encounter earlier this season, a 2-1 Churchill win, because she was touring Europe with the U.S. Midwest Development team.

"When we've gotten behind Carrie's come up with some big goals for us," said Farmington coach Cathy Cole. "But she knows she has a team behind her to do that. She knows one person doesn't make a team, and no team is one person. She plays for the team always."

Maier's first goal came after Cole gambled offensively, moving Sue Gibson up as an attacking midfielder along with Maier.

"WE SENT OUR four best attackers up hoping to scrape something together and we did," said Cole. "We had to at least go for the tie with the extra player up."

Gale-force winds curtailed several offensive rushes, but Churchill, the WLAA's Western Division champs, seemed to play over the elements, controlling play up and down the field for the most part.

"We were able to get fast-breaks the entire game," said Churchill coach Nick O'Shea. "We had some great chances to score."

Meanwhile, it took awhile for Farmington to go on the offensive.

'We wanted to win our division and we wanted to win the league. That's two goals we've already accomplished, but there are others.'

> — Cathy Cole Farmington coach

"We wanted to defend against the wind in the first half, hoping to keep them from scoring," Cole said. "And then we wanted to attack in the second half with the wind."

But Churchill's Kristy Thurston disproved the wind theory, executing a two-on-one play with Lori Place to perfection, scoring for the Chargers at the 10-minute mark of the second half when she slid a shot past Farmington goalie Mandy

The Chargers continued to press the issue, but suddenly went into a shell with 20 minutes to play.

"They (Farmington) pushed up an extra midfielder and our forwards couldn't hold it up in their end," said O'Shea. "When you get a lead like that you should be able to hold it, but they pushed up and our forwards panicked a little bit. We kept turning it over and couldn't keep it in their end."

THE EXPLOSIVE Maier, who was shadowed by Mechelle Brazin throughout the match as she roamed the midfield, took advantage of an Amy Trunk feed in front of the net, drilling home a loose ball from just five feet out.

And it was only five minutes later when Maier struck again, blowing by the Chargers' last line of defense on the right wing and knocking in a shot past goalkeeper Dana

"We got beat on the play, it was a nice shot," said O'Shea. "The second goal was an excellent effort. The sweeper had to make a decision, and just got caught. All we can do next time is work on controlling the ball in our end when they push up."

Cole called Maier's goal "a great individual play" and a "nice push for next week (the state tourney)."

"It's nice to win this for the city of Farmington because these things, as you know, don't always come around for Farmington High," said the coach of the Lakes Division champs. "And to beat one of the Livonia teams, always known for their fine programs, is a positive thing as well.

"CHURCHILL strategically played well. They shut us down at midfield and we were not able to penetrate. It was a little scary after their goal. We had some butterflies, but we also knew we had a strong defense and there was a chance to come back."

Farmington, a state Class A semifinalist a year ago, is favored to win this week's Southfield district, but Cole is not taking anything for granted. If the favorites hold, the Falcons will meet unbeaten Farmington Hills Mercy Friday in the championship game.

"They know they have to earn everything, there are no guarantees," said the Farmington coach. "We wanted to win our division and we wanted to win the league. That's two goals we've already accomplished, but there are others."

Wayne runs 2nd at Ypsi regional

By Bob Stebbins staff writer

Wayne Memorial finished just two points out of first place Friday in the Michigan High School Athletic Association Class A Region No. 5 boys track meet at Ypsilanti High School.

The host Braves of Ypsi captured the team title with 66 points.

Wayne, led by first-year coach Bob Lynn, took second with 64. Ann Arbor Huron was a close third with 62 points, followed by Ann Arbor Pioneer (51), Pinckney (49), Westland John Glenn (48) and Redford Catholic Central (46). Livonia Churchill was 10th overall.

Fourteen of the 17 schools entered in the meet scored points. See final results.

The top two individual finishers in each event qualify for the state Class A meet on Saturday, June 2, in Midland. Another group of top regional placers can also qualify for the state meet if their time or distance exceeds certain standards.

Area athletes performed commendably in the running

Mike Sheridan of Redford CC was a double winner with firsts in both the 1,600-meter run (4:25.4) and the 3,200 (9:37.7). (Sheridan won a tight race in the 1,600, nipping Aaron Lawson of Ann Arbor Pioneer at the

Brian Beach of Plymouth Canton also qualified for state with a time of 9:45.1, good enough for fifth.

CARLO HORNE of Wayne was the winner of the 400 (50.4), while Carl Lowe of John Glenn, who outdueled Todd Snyder of Brighton at the finish line, took home top honors in the 800 (1:55.7).

Pierre Hixon of Wayne was the second-place finisher in a very tight 110 high hurdles race (14.8). Teammate Shawn Ma-Azza of Wayne qualified for a trip to Midland with a third-place finish in the 200 (22.6).

Local athletes also fared very well in the field events. Kurt Roth of Livonia Churchill took first place in the shot put with a personal best of 51 feet, 101/4 inches. He also gained second in the discus (152-1). Shawn Wallace of Wayne added second place in the shot (50-9).

Mike DeJarnett of Plymouth Canton (6-0) and Dave Baucus of Redford Catholic Central (6-0) placed first and second, respectively, in the high jump. DeJarnett won the event in a jump-off.

Avalanche Ladywood caves under, 11-1

By Ray Setlock staff writer

Livonia Ladywood could only watch, as Riverview Gabriel Richard scored six runs in the sixth inning, cruising to an 11-1 victory Friday in the semifinals of the Catholic League A-B Division softball tournament at King Boring Field in Dearborn.

The game was halted with one out in the top of the sixth inning due to a 10-run mercy rule. The win improves Gabriel Richard's record to 26-7. Ladywood is 13-14.

"If we were going to lose a game, this isn't how we wanted it to end," Ladywood coach Kim Linenger. "I didn't think it would be such a high scoring game considering the strong wind blowing. I was looking for a one or two run game."

Ladywood found itself battling from behind all afternoon, as the Ploneers took a 1-0 lead after one inning and a 5-0 advantage at the conclusion of three innings.

FRESHMAN HURLER Mary Jo Kelly surrendered 11 hits and four walks for the Blazers. In the sixth inning, Gabriel Richard chalked up six runs on five hits, including three doubles and two walks off Kelly. "Mary Jo did all she could in the sixth inning," Linenger said. "She threw the ball over the plate and they hit it. We didn't play good defense behind her and

Two-time All-Catholic performer Corrie Gizicki silenced the Ladywood bats, holding them to just three hits, while fanning 12 in six innings.

"Corrie pitched real well for us," Gabriel Richard coach Bob Wilkerson said. "The first inning was important for her. When she did well in that inning I knew she was going to have a solid game."

Linenger says it was surprising that her that her team couldn't get more hits off Gizicki.

This is a big win for our program," Wilkerson said. "Ladywood has been here before and I think the girls may have been nervous going into the game. It was akind of cautious, but optimistic attitude."

Bielenda said her team beat itself with a sloppy de fensive performance.

"Our defense did not play the way we would have liked it to," she said. "We didn't get to a lot of balls that we should have and that may have led to our downfall."

ALL-STARS

The NATA District 23, Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association have all chosen their season-ending all-star baseball teams, and all three have lots of Observerland talent.

First, the NAIA District 23, of which Madonna College is a member but is unrepresented on the team. The first team does include a brother act: Ed and Paul Dreslinski, both Redford Bishop Borgess grads now playing at Northwood Institute. Ed is a senior catcher; Paul's a sophomore outfielder. Both are repeaters, Ed from 1988 and Paul from last year. Edeset a school record with 50 runs batted in and tied another with 15 home runs. He hit .385. Paul also filled in at shortstop late in the season, scored a school-record 56 runs, batting .370 with 11 doubles, four triples, four homers and 30 RBI. He stole 18 bases in 21 tries. Also on the all-district team is Mike Heard, a sophomore catcher at Siena Heights from Westland (Wayne Memorial).

BIG CHANCE

Lolita Burgess got her big chance last weekend in the NCAA Division II softball regionals. Her Wayne State team tied with Saginaw Valley State for the GLIAC crown and advanced to the regional tournament in Lakeland, Fla.

Burgess, a sophomore from Westland (John Glenn), wasn't quite good enough to earn mention on the all-GLIAC softball squad - partially because of her outstanding teammates. But the utility player does deserve recognition. She batted .264 with four doubles and 11 RBI, appearing in 46 of 54 games.

WSU entered the regional with a 38-16 record. A win would put the Tartars into the Final Four Tournament in Midland.

• DOUBLE-WINNER

Brian Baldrica, a defenseman on Ohio State's hockey team from Canton, collected a lot of hardware at the team's awards banquet. Baldrica earned both the Joseph W. Smith Defensive Player Award and the Blueliners Scholar-Athlete Award.

Redford Union earns title share in NSL

Redford Union's baseball team claimed a share of the Northwest Suburban League champlonship with Woodhaven by defeating the host Warriors, 12-11, in eight innings Friday.

It is the second consecutive league championship for RU (9-5, 5-3).

The Panthers battled back from an 8-0 firstinning deficit to gain the win. RU committed all four of its errors in the first inning.

The Panthers came back with six runs in the second inning, added two more in the fifth and went ahead 11-9 by scoring three more in the sixth.

Woodhaven, however, came back with a pair of runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to send the game into extra innings. In the eighth, Dan Lezotte tripled and scored the game-winning run when Eric Quinn reached base on an outfield error. Winning pitcher Ernle Gerathy went all eight innings in relief of Quinn. Gerathy gave up five of the Warriors' eight hits.

Joe Bosio (three hits and four RBI), Brian Theis (2-for-4) and Lezotte (2-for-4) combined for seven of RU's 11 safeties. The Panthers kept their title hopes alive on Thursday with a 6.5 win over visiting Dearborn in NSL action. Gerathy again picked up the win in relief.

Sophomore Matt Manrique pitched six innings of three-hit ball before giving up three runs in the top of the seventh that tied the game at five. RU won the game in the bottom of the inning

Comfortable fit

Variety of bowling shoes available

OWLING SHOES, how much difference do they make? You can pay a little or you can pay a lot for bowling shoes. Let's take a look and see what a difference bowling shoes can make in your ability to score. In the sporting scene today, the buzzword is shoes. You see high-priced sophisticated sneakers for jogging, tennis, aeroblcs, basketball, etc.

Some of this might be just a lot of hype, but the fashion statement is first and foremost to a lot of consumers.

Bowling is different than a lot of sports when it comes to shoes. Nobody goes out into the street in their bowling shoes, so we'can eliminate the fashion element. Although, for some, it may be important to look good, on the lanes.

How about durability? Here again, bowling differs from most other activities. A few hours a week sliding on a smooth wooden surface will not wear down the bottoms that much. Therefore, any pair of bowling shoes could last for several years without wearing out.

THEN WE LOOK at function. This is why you could be selective about buying bowling shoes. The performance of the shoes could have a direct effect on how well you bowl.

The sole of the sliding foot should be leather or at least have a leather pad for the working surface. This leather usually has a "nap" or suede-like texture.

The fit is important. If the shoes are uncomfortable, it may not only hurt your score, but your feet as well. Occasionally, you might see a terrific buy on a close-out shoe available in only. a few sizes. They are not a bargain if they don't fit right. What to buy? Most of the classic and pro bowlers are using the Linds shoe or Dexter SST. These are about $90 and sold in pro shops only. Linds has one particular shoe, the PS model, with a perforated sliding sole. It looks like someone took a drill and put a bunch of holes in the bottom of the shoe. This is supposed to create a more con-

10-pin alley Harrison

Linds uses the best grades of leather, which accounts for the higher price. The shoes are very traditional in style and have long been considered the best.

THE DEXTER Shoe Co. provides a variety of models in the $40 to $90 range. The Dexter SST is the top model and considered to be a state of the art product. It styles more like an athletic shoe, with an extra-wide sole, to provide a steady platform for your feet.

This shoe is lighter in weight and features a buckskin sole for a smoother

For the average bowler, good shoes can be puchased in a range of $30 to $60. If someone is renting shoes everytime they bowl, one seasons rental could easily pay for a good pair of shoes.

Look for a shoe that will slide well and is comfortable to wear.

Endicott Johnson produces a variety of bowling shoes which can be found in sporting good stores, discount stores and

EJ is the worlds largest manufacturer of shoes. Other brand names available on the market include: Brunswick, AMF, Hush Pupples, Hyde and High Skore. The best selling ladies shoe is the Raquel by Dexter. It retails at about $39.

THE RAQUEL is styled like an athletic shoe and is very comfortable.

Expect to pay at least $50 for a good all-leather shoe. This is not expensive when you consider that bowling shoes last for many years under normal use.

To take good care of your bowling shoes, an occasional treatment with saddle soap wouldn't hurt. Also, don't let the shoes get crushed in your bowling bag. You will want to make sure not to step in spilled beer. It could not only ruin you score, but your shoes as well. • There is still time to enter the Pro-

Am competition of the Seagram Coolers Ladies Pro Bowling Tournament at Satellite Lanes in Dearborn Heights.

The Pro-Am runs Thursday and Friday, May 24-25. This is where the entrant is paired off with a different pro bowler as a partner in each game.

The Pro-Am'is a no-tap format and there is a handicapp determined from league averages. A $2,000 prize is awarded to the winners.

There is still admission tickets available for the qualifying rounds, elimination rounds and nationally televised (ESPN) Tinals.

Of the 240 women bowling in this event, 20 are from Michigan and several are ameteurs from the Observerland

• The 43rd annual Champion of Champions Tournament is now underway in various bowling centers throughout the area. This tournament has a first place prize of $15,000 and a trip to Las Vegas. Over 3,300 teams are registered to bowl and the results will be posted in this col-'umn at a later date.

 Summer leagues are starting up this week at Country Lanes in Farmington Hills. There are still some openings.

The Monday Trio League at 7 p.m. will be very competitive. They will be followed by the Monday Night Sweepers, starting with two game of qualifying. There's a stepladder elimination for the top eight positions for the pay off.

• Bel Aire Lanes in Farmington has openings in the Family Twosome League played Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. Any combination of father/son or mother/son, etc. can compete as a twosome. This is nice family fun for the summer.

• The bowling charities tournament at Merri Bowl in Livonia featured a 300 game from David Bazner.

Ocelots lag behind in Region 12 tournament

Schoolcraft College's golf team got its first taste of National Junior College Athletic Association regional tournament play last week, and it was not too savory. The Ocelots finished eighth out of nine teams in the Region 12 tourney, played Sunday and Monday at Bedford Valley Golf Club in Battle Creek, SC finished with a four-player team score of 1,002 strokes, far behind regional champion Lansing CC.

which shot 957. Lansing's score narrowly edged runner-up Kalamazoo Valley CC, which finished with 961, and Sinclair CC, which scored 962. Also in the hunt was Grand Rapids CC with a

Vincennes CC was fifth (988), followed by St. Clair County CC (991), Oakland CC (995), SC and Alpena

CHRIS McMAHON was battling for an individual berth at the NICAA final, which will be played in Scottsdale, Ariz., in June. McMahon fired a first-round 74, putting him in second place overall, and followed that with a 79 in Monday's first 18-hole round, keeping him in second position.

golf

The last 18 holes did McMahon in. however. "He just got tired," said SC coach Carolyn Steffen. McMahon slumped to 87 to finish with a three round total of 240, five strokes short of earning an NJCAA individual

"He's a freshman," added Steffen. "He'll be back next year. And he won't forget."

A few other Ocelots will remember this season's regional, too. Dewey Steffen carded his season low, firing a second-round 77; he finished as SC's second-best scorer at 252. And Jeff Vos got his season best in the final round, shooting an 81. He was SC's fourth scorer with a 262.

Andy Kurncz, who led the Ocelots at the state meet, was third on the team with a 259. Kevin Zaschak was fifth at 264.

Regional medalist honors went to Evan DeWulf of Kalamazoo Valley CC, who had a 229.

News.

Bad news.

The good news? More and more people, businesses and industries are finding-ways to-recycle.

It takes more than 6,000 tons of newsprint each year to print The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers plus a number of other publications, so we're doing a number of things to help the solid waste situation:

1. For years we've sold our waste newsprint to a recycling firm.

2. 25% of the newsprint we print on is recycled and we're increasing this amount by another 25% this year.

3. Our employees have begun to routinely put office paper (memos. computer paper, waste copy paper) in recycle bins instead of waste baskets.

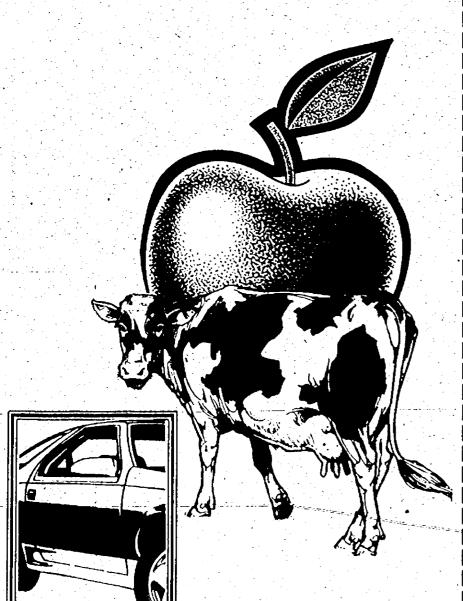

Of course, we still deliver thousands of newspapers twice each week. It's our business to bring you news of your local government, schools, sports scene and community events; the news you need to know.

And when you're finished reading your hometown newspaper there are places that will recycle them.

We've listed a few for you on this page because we think recycling is Good News.

If you place the wide-body racquet next to conventional tennis racquets, the vertical rise of the former will be almost twice that of the latter. In short, it's almost twice as thick.

'Wide-body': That's tennis for the 1990s

Ben Tasich

Monday, May 21, 1990 · O&E

Just when you thought that thin was "in," they're now saying that you need a "wide-body" to play the sport of tennis.

Most tennis players will know what you mean if you ask them, "Are you playing with a wide-body?" Understand, if your wooden tennis racquet has a curve in it or was last used to swat June bugs, wide-body is not a term used to poke fun at a person's mid-section.

Not since the Prince racquet (the over-sized one that looked like a snowshoe and revolutionized the tennis world 10 years ago) has an innovative racquet feature put the tennis world in such a tizzy.

Traditionalists scorn its existence, just like everything else new on the tennis market. Manufacturers and shop owners claim that it improves one's game so drastically, that it's definitely worth checking out.

What wide-body actually means (in layman's terms) is if you lay the racquet flat on the ground, the vertical rise of the racquet will be almost twice that of a conventional racquet - for example, it's almost twice as thick.

The wide-body racquet is supposed to do two things better than a conventional racquet - one, generate more power, and two, allow for more control. All with the same stroke, from an advanced beginner up to a tournament player. What more could you want?

WIDE-BODIES FIRST hit the court in 1987 when Wilson introduced its "Profile" line. Other companies watched and waited to see what would happen with the new racquet.

Within months they became so popular that tennis pro shops couldn't keep them on the shelves . . . kind of like the "Cabbage

Patch" doll craze several Christmases ago. "'It's got to be a joke,' I said when I first saw one; it looks like something Conan the Barbarian would play with," said Ben Tasich, owner of Racquets Unlimited in Livonia. "I really poo-pooed it, but . then again, I thought the oversized racquets were a joke when they first came out, and now look at them."

By 1989, Wilson passed up Prince in market share for the first time in the 1980s.

"This is strictly attributed to the wide-bodies," said Tasich. "Prince, Head, Dunlop and the rest of the major racquet producers all got caught with their pants down."

There seems to be some debate when it comes to players, especially advanced players, about the wide-bodies. Some feel that the added thickness makes ground strokes harder and the added power may hinder more than help.

TASICH SAID "60-70 percent of the top tour players are using wide-body racquets, mainly because that's what their sponsors give them to play with."

'Wide-bodies are extremely powerful, sometimes too powerful," said Kris Nichols of Nichols Ski & Sport in Dearborn. "An advanced tennis player, who is accustomed to his or her power range in a conventional racquet, may have a problem with the widebody. Wide-bodies are excellent for intermediate players, though."

Tasich suggests that lower string tensions have to be used for wide-bodies, due to the high power.

The manufacturers recommend that wide-bodies are strung around 11 pounds lighter than traditional racquets," he said.

Still, the increase in power and stiffness has led to what many believe to be the wide-body's biggest problem.

The fact remains that shock transmission in the wide-body racquet is considerably greater than that of a traditional racquet. This, coupled with today's popular racquet construction materials like graphite, Kevlar and boron (lightweight materials that don't have the vibration absorption qualities of traditional wood) can lead to arm problems like tennis elbow.

ACCORDING TO Tasich, "incorrect stroke production also causes problems associated with tennis elbow. But, by and large, the equipment usually gets the blame."

With a correct-stroke, developed from many years of playing, Tasich said that he "automatically noticed a difference" in comparing the wide-body to the conventional racquet.

"But, you don't have to be a sophisticated player to notice the difference right away," he said.

To park or not park the car

In the finest tradition of valet parking, Larry Wells is at the driver's door as soon as the car comes to a stop to open the door for the driver.

Angel Martin does whenever she has Larry Wells or Shannon Ferguson park her car at Northland Mall.

"They're great guys and they give excellent service," she said. "They are always a lot of fun, always smiling and very polite."

Wells doesn't mind. It's only natural for him. And Ferguson said the hugs come with the territory — at least a couple friendly hugs two or three times a day.

"That's-human-nature; we're all single - ber jumps to more than 1,000. boys," said Wells with a big grin.

But that's the fun part. Whether rain, sleet, snow or sunshine, the cars must be parked. Although many of people drive around and around to find an empty space in a crowded lot, a good number of people are dependent on the valet service as an often needed convenience. And some like it just for status.

Wells manages three lots at the Southfield mall. During a normal business day, each valet parks about 100 cars. Of course, that means another 100 cars have to be retrieved. Wells figures that 250-350 cars fill the lots each day except at Christmas when the num-

"We have the same customers on an ongoing basis," he said. "They are people we get to know because we park their cars several times a week. Some come every day.

"GENERALLY, WE see a lot of seniors. There are times when one would come to me and say, 'You've got to get my car in a hurry because I'm feeling faint and I've got to go home."

Although the valet service has its emergencies, it has its bizarre experiences as well.

Wells recalls a day when a guy went into his trunk before entering the car. "As he began pulling out (of his space), we saw that the trunk was still open, so I went to close it and saw a lot of money" Wells said. "Later, the man told me that he was glad I closed it because there was $30,000 back there."

Wells also enjoys chatting with his regular customers like Detroit Piston John Salley and Dennis Rodman and former "Bad Boy" Rick Mahorn. He also sees some of the local celebrities like WXYZ-TV's Diana Lewis.

Drew Zager, a valet at Detroit's Sinai Hospital, leads a double life. By day he deals with hospital visitors, directing them to the different departments and acting as an information officer. People even ask his for weather predictions and sports scores.

Zager, who is entering law school and has three other degrees, is employed by the Miller Parking Co. which owns and operates

Quirkiness saves, but sinks 'Rosalie'

By John Monaghan special writer

Rosalie (Marianne Sagebrecht), a chubby, German-born housewife, lives in a modern brick ranch house on the outskirts of Stuttgart, Ark. Her marathon shopping sprees provide seven adoring children with everything they desire.

One son, an aspiring chef, has a kitchen-crammed full-of-gourmetfoods and appliances. He tries his elaborate recipes out on the family. A daughter's selfish request for a $10,00 personal computer causes Rosalie to buy on the installment plan.

One small problem: It seems Rosalie has exceed the limit on all 35 of her credit cards. She has falsified checks and even cashed in her visitcomputer gets her into classified files and even hotter water,

The bills must have exceeded half a million dollars by now, but for Rosalie, debt is part of the American dream: "All za banks vont is zot I pay za interest."

AS A PREMISE, "Rosalie Goes Shopping" isn't bad — any stab at the credit system is welcome. But under the direction of Percy Adlon ("Sugarbaby" and "Bagdad Cafe," both of which starred Sagebrecht), quirky moments are everything and the comedy lacks focus and power.

During Rosalie's almost daily confession to her local priest (Judge Reinhold), gobbling turkey and clucking chickens serve as the bizarre background noise.

Family members, each sporting Bavarian nicknames like Liebling, Fritz and Shotzi, get all misty-eyed while viewing videotape of the homeland. The ultimate consumers, they mouth the words to favorite TV. commercials, ordering everything that flashes across the screen from miracle mixers and digital

Not all of the humor works. There are plenty of missed opportunities with Rosalie's German parents, especially when they visit a tacky wildlife museum. Adlon, at a loss in dealing with the comic possibilities, could learn a lot from similar scenes in "Mystery Train" and even "PeeWee's Big Adventure."

Sagebrecht, so-delightful in Adlon's other films, is the film's weakest link as Rosalie. She has trouble simply delivering her English lines with much interest. The store owners, even those who refuse her credit, treat her like an old friend, but she has absolutely no personality.

BRAD DAVIS, meanwhile, soars ing parents' return flight tickets. The in the role of the American cropdusting husband Liebling. He loves flying almost as much as he loves Rosalie, whom he met and married while stationed in Germany.

> Each morning, he flies down low over the house to greet her. Even on the ground, he views the world as if he's banking a plane. Ironically, where Rosalie refuses to look beyond tomorrow, her husband is far-sighted but refuses to get glasses.

> Aldon's visual style remains appropriately offbeat, though the candy-colored lighting grows gratuitous and even irritating after a while. Evening skies are tinted a burnt fall orange; rooms illuminate with bright pink and violet.

Still, something inexplicable keeps you hanging on with "Rosalie." You keep waiting for the movie to take off with some interesting twist. But it just sputters on and on and then abruptly crashes to a halt with no real conclusion.

"Rosalie Goes Shopping" currently screens at the AMC Abbey and Hampton theaters.

Audiences are in for a rollercoaster of thrills, screams, laughs and just plain fun in the fast paced, action comedy, "Bird on a Wire" (A., PG-13, 105 minutes)...___

Edge-of-the-seat excitement and rapt attention come easily watching Mel Gibson (as Rick Jarmin, Billy Ray Bowers and other aliases) as he hides out under the Federal Witness Protection Program.

It all starts in Detroit, where Jarmin is working as a mechanic and trying to stay out of the way of two thugs, Eugene Sorenson (David Carradine) and Albert Diggs (Bill Duke). The former has just been released. from prison and is out to get Rick, although his motivation for vengeance is unclear.

By a strange quirk of fate, a successful attorney, Marianne Graves (Goldie Hawn), stops at the gas station where Jarmin works and recognizes him as a former boyfriend who disappeared from her life 15 years earlier.

Meanwhile, Rick has noticed recently that all his covers are being blown, which, it turns out, is due to a crooked FBI agent, Joe Weyburn (Stephen Tobolowsky) who also wants Rick out of the way.

Everyone's out to get Rick in a cross-country run for his life with Marianne in tow, using every mode of transportation imaginable cars, airplanes, motorcycles.

IT'S EXCITING to be along for the ride and the final shoot-out in the 200 is breathtaking. Sticklers for reality may quibble as Rick gets shot in the side earlier on. He takes a licking, but keeps on ticking.

On the whole, however, this fastpaced, well-acted comedy should prove to be a major entertainment

Cadillac Man" (B., R, 94 minutes) is an easy film to like if you only remember the last half of it. That part is funny, has some nifty acting, tight direction and good writing as Robin Williams proves that his performance in "Dead Poets Society" wasn't a fluke. He is a genuinely gifted actor who is just beginning to tap into his talent, Joey O'Brien (Williams) is the ultimate high-pressure car salesman. He literally tries to sell a Cadillac to a woman at her husband's funeral.

Joey's a likeable guy with an exwife, Tina (Pamela Reed), a wild teenaged daughter, Lisa (Tristine Skyler), and his Ma (Mimi Cecchini) to support. That's expensive, particularly when Joey also has a girlfriend, Lila (Lori Petty), and a mistress, Joy (Fran Drescher).

That's a costly menage and Joey is about to lose his job at Turgeon Auto unless he sells a dozen units in the next 48 hours. Unfortunately, it takes fully the first half of the film to set up this situation.

THE FUN STARTS on a Sunday as Joey is sweating to make his quota. Suddenly, Larry (Tim Robbins), crashes the showroom with a gun, a bomb, a TV remote and no plan. Larry believes his pretty young wife, Donna (Annabella Sciorra), is having an affair with one of the auto sales-

STREET BEATS

In the two years since coming to the United States from-Ireland, Luka Bloom has made a name for himself, first in clubs then as a support act.

Bloom blossoms with 'Riverside'

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

Luka Bloom has never been one to wrap his music in trite metaphors, pastoral imagery or rambling political diatribes.

Bloom's acoustic guitar is his axe; his words the power that can cut through to the core. His debut album "Riverside" (Reprise) is an understated, yet surprisingly stunning piece of music. The Irish solo artist doesn't sugar coat his terms, not even in interviews.

Bloom from the hip:

The difficulty of Irish artists making it in their own country: "Ah, they're a bunch of . . . begrudgers. It's this 'He's from down the street, he's no good' attitude."

Playing larger venues: "Three hundred or 30,000 — it's all the same."

The success of "Riverside:" "I'd like to think it's a good album."

The length of this interview: "How are we doing here? I've got to run to a soundcheck. Do you have enough stuff?"

Any remaining questions can be answered in his music, which is as straight-forward as it is passionate.

There's an air of bewilderment and wide-eye discovery on "Riverside," which in itself provides a very uplifting tone to the album. Most of the songs on the LP were written after Bloom arrived in the United States from Ireland two years ago.

EACH NUMBER is a story, some written in the hurried fashion of a summer camper who can't wait to pen home to

"It just blew me away coming to America," said Bloom, who called Dublin home before arriving here. "It's not what I expected it to be. I thought it would be a very aggressive place... but it wasn't.

"I didn't come here with a hype machine behind me. I didn't have a manager. I didn't have an agent. I didn't have a record deal. I came here with nothing. People were so helpful, such as telling me what places to play and who to talk to."

Without any publicity preceding him, Bloom quickly garnered his own. Word of his live performances in clubs along the East Coast, using only his guitar and voice, filtered to record executives. As a result, he was able to latch on as a support act with Sinead O'Connor, The Proclaimers, Hothouse Flowers and the Violent Femmes.

In fact, a tour with Hothouse Flowers brought Bloom to The Ritz in Roseville two years ago.

"Riverside" is being gobbled up by many of those who've seen Bloom somewhere down the line. But the LP is also taking off in places where Bloom has never performed.

"More audiences are ripe for this type of album than they were a couple of years ago," Bloom said. "Some barriers have. been broken down. Audiences in America are thought to be conservative, but they're not. It's American radio that's conservative. More and more people are breaking the rules like (Irish new age singer) Enya, (Scottish folk duo) the Proclaimers and the Pogues, which is nice to see."

BLOOM HAS broke the rules by breaking with his past. Performing with little success in his native Ireland, he wanted a new start in America. He started by changing his name from Barry Moore to Many have thought it was an attempt to get out from under the shadow of his wellknown brother, Irish ballader Christy Moore. Not so, according to Bloom.

"There were two reasons (for the name change)," he said. "Number one, I had been performing in Ireland for some time. I wanted a fresh identity and a clean slate. Number two, I didn't want to be confused with Gary Moore of ('70s Irish rockers) Thin Lizzy. So I thought I'd give myself an Iggy or a Bono."

The One," a song off "Riverside," was believed to be a personal address to his brother, Christy.

Bloom said the song was originally intended for the Pogues' lead singer Shane MacGowan, whose drunken rages on stage have been well-chronicled.

"The song could have been about a number of people," Bloom said. "It's about the rock'n'roll industry and what it expects of you."

While "The One" is about self-destruction, "An Irishman in Chinatown" offers balance as a whimsical tale of falling for a Chinese girl only to realize it's a dream. Except for Bloom's solo career, the dream is only beginning to come true.

Luka Bloom performs at 8 p.m. Tuesday, May 22, at The Ark, 63714 S. Main, Ann Arbor. Tickets are $5 in advance. For information, call 99-MU-

American: Countrified with a twist

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

Souled American sounds like a band that has taken country music apart and left the pieces strewn across the floor.

At least, that's the first impression listening to the Chicago foursome's latest on Rough Trade "Around the Horn." The moody, dragged-through-the-muck record has an almosteerie feeling of being both depressing and serene at the same time. A slow dance with your partner is required.

'That (the country sound) goes back a long way with Chris (Grigoroff, vocalist and acoustic guitar) and Joe (Adducci. bass and vocals)," said drummer Jamey Barnard, whose band performs Wednesday, May 23, at Club Heidelberg in Ann Arbor. "Chris was a harmonica player and Joe's mom actually made country records."

Joe's mom has a slice of her country stylings on the latest LP, "Holding Back the Tears." This is not country in the Nashville/Opryland/Hee Haw sense of the word, although one would give up his rhinestone belt buckle to watch Buck Owen's face contort in confusion when listening to this LP.

SOULED AMERICAN takes some time to get to know. Apparently, American audiences have taken their time get-

With three albums already, the group is only beginning to make inroads in this country. The first-ever U.S. tour kicks off in Ann Arbor.

Souled American was recently well-received in Europe, opening for Camper Van Beethoven. English music magazine Melody Maker even asked the group to contribute a cut to its upcoming compilation compact disc. Such recognition has yet to come here at home, though. "It's different," Barnard said. "It's slow for people to pick up on who have never listened to country music before. "People in America take American music for granted. A lot of the stuff is traditional music. It's not unusual enough for them, I guess."

The band is traditional in the sense it uses an acoustic guitar, a bass and drums. Other than that, anything goes. The interesting aspect of Souled American is how each musician interacts on record.

The little nuances and subtleties are the beauty of a record that can evoke feelings of pain and melancholy.

"EVERYBODY PLAYS completely true to their personality," Barnard sald. "It's not like we say, 'Oh, this song should sound this way.'

"We use the instruments in different functions. Chris is definitely the person providing the rhythm on acoustic gui-

The fact not all members have country backgrounds is one of Souled American's strengths. Barnard, for example, has a jazz and reggae background as a drummer. Grigoroff and Adducci has been enlightening him to the music of Merle Haggard and George Jones.

Grigoroff and Adducci have a large say in the direction of the songs. But everyone works well together.

"They (Adducci and Grigoroff) play all the time," Barnard said. "It always helps when you have that good writing partnership. They always encourage Scott (Tuma, guitarist) and I to come up with ideas. It's a real creative environment."

Souled American performs on Wednesday, May 23, at Club Heidelberg, 215 N. Main, Ann Arbor.

Souled American's latest album "Around the Horn" is a moody, dragged-through-the-muck record with an almost eerie feeling of being both depressing and serene at the same time.

GOOBER & THE PEAS - 3-D, Royal Oak

If bands earned revenue on a smiles per customer basis instead of from admission charges, Goober and the Peas would top the Who's take from their latest farewell tour.

Mixing their peculiar blend of satirical showmanship, country comedy and gut-churning rock'n'roll, the hippest cowpokes this side of the Opry rocked a rollicking Royal Oak crowd recently at 3-D.

Underneath the cowboy hats and western ties, this band is about as country as Minnie Pearl is hip-hop.

As they take the stage and cut into Hank Williams Sr.'s "Hey Good Lookin'," a Goober neophyte may wonder if he's stumbled into a rawhide Suddenly, Goober, a tall, lean lad who could look Bill Laimbeer dead in the eye and say "Howdy," begins to flail his boneless limbs wildly and the band kicks into "Funky Cowboy." The guitars sing to the soulful beat, and hay flies off the stage as Goober goes into his "cowboy walk" - his dancing makes Paula Abdul look like a young Shirley Temple.

The next tune dispels any doubt as to what genre this band calls home.

The anthem "Hot Women (Cold Beer)" encapsulates their style deadpan humor and frentic rock'n'roll. As Goober leads-the raunchy guitars with arms whipping about like Arthur Fiedler on amphetamines. the mostly leather-clad crowd howls for more. And they get it - "The Walkin' Talkin' Johnny Cash Blues" and "Smoke 'Em If You Got 'Em 'are two more original rave-ups featuring Peas Junior and Shorty on the "gee-tars."

Amid frenzied cries of "GOO-BER!" from the happy crowd, the band drives off into the Royal Oak sunset. One of the great mysteries of Western culture is that four of your entertainment dollars can buy you an evening of frolic and fun with Goober and the Peas, while $5 gets you into "Back to the Future III." REVIEWS

OUT OF WATER - Peter Hammill

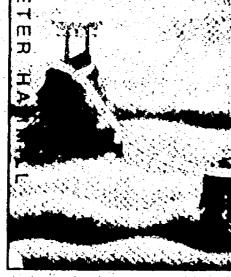

If you're looking for a quick, easyto-read, one word review of Peter Hammill's new release, "Out of Water," try this one — pretentious. Still curious? Read on.

Beginning with the first track, "Evidently Goldfish," you'll soon come to realize that what you're listening is supposed to be taken seriously. You see, Hammill is making art. Note the meaningful title. "Evidently Goldfish," how clever!

This first track pretty much foreshadows the overly serious tone of the whole album. In "Evidently Goldfish," Hammill adopts a mechanical, omnipotent voice, in his best imitation of Gary Numan of "Cars" fame. The only guy who can really get away with singing this way is David Bowie, and as you may have guessed by now, Hammill is no

Hammill's pretentious airs reach their sickening pinnacle on the song "Our Oyster" where Hammill actually begins the song by (choke!) talking over a backdrop of synthesizers and plano. "This one's authentic/son of a gun/soundtrack from China/in the universal tongue" he says grandly. Ecceeuuuh!

It slowly becomes apparent why Hammill is so fond of this talking/singing style of vocals upon hearing some of the other tracks on which Hammill makes a valiant attempt to actually sing.

Some people have voices that are so bad that they sound good - Nell Young, Bob Dylan and Gordon Gano of the Violent Femmes quickly come to mind. But, Hammill's voice lacks the distinction of these other men.

A more accurate comparison is with the annoyingly monotoned. voice of Tanita Tikaram. He sounds like he is singing in an unnaturally deep voice. Perhaps he isn't singing from his diaphragm or something.

If you're looking for advice on how to allocate your album buying dollars, here you are: Save your money. Perhaps it will encourage Hammill to get out of the music business.

HEARTS AND MINDS

- Hearts and Minds

You can (sometimes) judge an album by its cover. Don't believe it? Take a good look at the album cover to the immediate right of these words and try to guess what the record sounds like.

Let's see . . . it's a black and white photograph of an old, beat-up trailer, some barbed wire, a windmill and a water tower all set in a dusty, gritty landscape, probably out West. Well, we're pretty close so far -

Hearts and Minds is from Oklahoma and their music is as dusty and gritty as you'd expect. This is straight-forward rock'n'roll with a touch of twang thrown in here and there. One of the ways for a band to find success is to work under the tutelage of an established musician - Rick James had the Mary Jane Girls. Prince had Vanity 6 - now John Cougar Mellencamp has some, arguably less sexy, interns of his own,

The record was produced by Mellencamp's guitarist, Mike Wanchic, and his drummer, Kenny Aronoff, played on several of the cuts.

This works both for and against the band. Wanchic convinced Hearts and Minds to record most of their material live, giving the record a natural, unaffected sound.

That's the "for" part. The "against" part is that the band sounds overly influenced by "Big Daddy" Mellencamp. Lead vocalist Bruce Henderson sounds too much like he is trying to imitate his men-

In the final analysis, Hearts and Minds is an instantly forgettable LP. These boys would do well to head back to the old farm.

SOUNDCLASH

- Renegade Soundwave

From the first few staccato, synthesized notes of the song, "Blue Eyed Boy," on Renegade Soundwave's new release, "Soundclash," it's pretty apparent what the rest of the album will bring harshly and heavily rhythmic dance

What is not apparent is any additional information about this mysterious band other than their label is Enigma Records. (That's right, that's why they call it Enigma). There is no lyric sheet, no "thanks to" section, not even a listing of the names of the members of the band.

Either Enigma is going through severe budget cuts that necessitates saving money on printing costs or (and this is infinitely more intriguing, but probably highly unlikely) Renegade Soundwave is simply a pseudonym for a really famous band! Perhaps it's Depeche Mode's answer to the XTC alias, "The Dukes of Stratosphere." Well, maybe not.

Anyway, there's heavy rap music influence on this release, creating yet another sub-genre of dance music. It's sort of an industrial, technopop rap. The nameless singer talks through his vocals while the relentless percussion pounds away.

This usually works well, with one. annoying exception, "Biting My Nails." In this extendo-tune, Mr. Nameless singer repeats the parase, "I'm just biting my nails" over and over until the song becomes immensely irritating. But, these endless loops of repetition are what dance music is all about. Right? Renegade Soundwave is gifted at a bringing in odd sonic elements into a their techno-tunes. In "Pocket; Porn," they graft in a tape recording of a woman speaking, adding an eerie effect to the song.

Ultimately, the monotone spoken vocals, the repeating drum loops and the strange "found" sonic elements add up to an album with a cold, metallic feel. Renegade Soundwave comes from a place where emotions are mechanized and technology rules. Briti.

FEAR & LOAFING

Disco inferno

They're gone.

The disco records are finally gone. Today, at our annual garage sale, I sold my last surviving disco albums for a quarter each. Every spring for 12 years, I've lugged Donna Summer, Gloria Gaynor and The Village People out of the basement, hoping some troglodyte in a white suit with lapels wide enough to land a jet on would show up for them.

How did I come to own this collec-

Even now, over a decade later, it's hard to admit - I worked as a DJ at I CAREFULLY selected my outfit the local discotheque. (Don't laugh, you were there; too: I rememberyour zodiac medallion.)

Back in 1979, things were, well, a little slow in the advertising world. Executives found their desks out in the parking lot. Copywriters went from pushing pencils to selling pencils overnight.

To augment our incomes, lots of us ad guys took part-time jobs. I decided to make it show biz - the area of show biz that required no skills other than dodging flying bottles.

PART SOCIAL director and part psychologist, I matched the music and lights to the pulse of the crowd. My job was to make them dance until their kneecaps exploded and their tendons flew apart and they bought dozens of expensive drinks to ease the pain.

I hate to brag, but I worked in one of the classier clubs in town. Styled after Studio 54 in New York, we were very selective in our clientel. The doorman hand-picked the crowd according to a strict pecking order: Celebrities were admitted first. Then came international jetsetters and financial tycoons. Finally, a smattering of artists, models and fashion mavens were sprinkled about for atmosphere.

Fortunately, disco fizzled out before my lungs did.

Solve problem intelligently

To the readers:

This letter refers to a previous letter from worried parents pertaining to their daughter being scapegoated at school. The advice in this column was to look deeply into the problem before deciding further course of action.

Barbara

Dear Barbara Schiff,

Your sad and demented advice to G.A. about her tormented daughter reminded me of the exact same problem I had at 11. I was given the same kind of talk. I was so ashamed of myself that I had "let" this happen to me that I never told my parents until I literally couldn't take it

I was falling apart — not from punches and blows - but from being degraded day after day. Then my parents talked with my teacher and the principal — which got me more embarrassed.

The I get the idea that I was picked on because I was "withdrawn and quiet," as if I wasn't myself, none of it would have happened all of which is b.s.

My advice to G.A.'s daughter? Stand up for yourself. Get really mad at this girl and call her every name in the book. Most important do it in front of the whole class. She has no right to treat you like this. It will be really scary doing this, Iknow. It's a hard thing to do. But I'll bet all my money that once you show everyone that you're not going to stand up for you! And you're going to ment. feel a lot better. Just do it. You have nothing to lose and everything to gain.

In the words of the immortal David Lee Roth: "Stand up! The more you do it, the less you fall down.'

Dear No Name,

I don't know if you are a boy or a girl. Either way, the response is the

He loves his job and believes he makes a comfortable incomé, depending on the assignment. A reception for President Nixon is his most memorable event.

"HE SPOKE AT the Detroit Economic Club and a reception followed at Max Fisher's home," he said. "There were only 20 people talking with him and he was autographing his new book."

Besides the hourly wage, which is usually more than the minimum, there are the all important tips that is if he doesn't get "stiffed." Even though a dollar is most common, Zager's largest tip was $100. If he works a private party, he may walk away with a bottle of champagne or liquor as a gift from a pleased customer in addition to his tips, which can range between $15 and $80.

But valet parking like other occupations has its rough times. Once. while working a party where a chimney fire started and spread rapid through the house, Zager and the other attendants had to move quickly - the cars, that is.

"We had to move 50-100 cars in a few minutes so the firemen could get through," he said.

Zager added that it's "almost customary" for the host to come out and tell the valets if a guest has had too much to drink and an alternate way home is being provided. "Tom Schoenith is very sensitive about letting people drive home drunk," he said. "He always pays for the cab ride or finds someone to take that person home. "I've even taken a few people home. Sometimes, the person becomes violent because you have his car and it's his property."

Zager's boss, Brian Albertsen, said that working outside in the elements is the hardest part of the job.

"WHEN IT RAINS, you get a lot of people who normally don't use the valet service," said the Livonia resident. "That's not your, best tipping situation and you go home soaked at the end of the night.

Michigan State University student, is employed by Charley's Crab Restaurant in Troy. A forestry major, Starkey's only complaint is "frozen fingers." But she's still happy to be outside . . . Now, being a female valet, well, that's another matter.

Lynda Starkey, a 25-year-old

"Men ask me if I'm old enough to drive or make comments like 'Do you know how to drive a stick shift?" " she said. "They call me honey or dear; they don't treat men like that. But it's no big deal."

Starkey has found that tips are better, "if you're a female."

"I attend MSU and sometimes, if a customer went to MSU, he'll tip a little higher . . . that's if I get a chance tò tell him," she said.

IN THE LONG run, this occupation has its "attractive" moments despite the elements. As valet Luke Lukasik puts it, "It's a hell of a lot of fun; you meet people, make a lot of money and it's great exercise. I'm not going to do this all my life but I like meeting girls and staying in Lukasik, who works the night spots like Clubland, Taboo and the Landsdowne, said that one evening he went to open the door of a car full of young women. In the process of helping them out of the vehicle, they pulled him inside.

'They were kissing me and grabbing me," he said. "The other valets told me to go with them for awhile.

"It happens all the time. You just got to cope with it."

According to customers, Larry Wells deserves a hug because he's a "great guy" and "gives" excellent service at Northland's valet parking area.

Keeping in touch with comedy

He shares time with Hollywood

By Rebecca Haynes staff-writer-

Although he's making a name for himself as an actor, Kevin Pollack still keeps his hands in the arenawhere he got his start, stand-up com-

Born and raised in California, Pollack says he started in show business at age 10, lip syncing to Bill Cosby's "Noah" routine for local variety and talent shows.

"I started doing nightclubs at 18," he said. "I don't think I was really aware of it (performing) being hard until it became a way of making a living, but I don't think I ever looked at it as a hard business."

Pollack starred in the movie "Willow" and was thrilled with the opportunity to work closely with director Ron Howard and producer George Lucas.

"I played one of the Brownies so when we did our part the rest of the movie was already done," he said, explaining that because his character was so small, his part was filmed separately and then superimposed onto the finished film. "We did our filming on a sound stage with none of the usual trappings associated with movies. It was very intimate. and wonderful to work with people like Ron Howard and George Lucas."

POLLACK WILL star in the movie "Avalon" due for release in October and "LA Story" which is due out in December. He plays the agent to Steve Martin's weatherman character in the latter.

While Kevin Pollack has been making a name for himself in comedy, ha also has been scoring points in the movies, with parts in "Willow" and the soon-to-be-released "LA Story" and

In "Avalon," Pollack was directed by Barry Levinson of "Rain Man"

"'Avalon' isn't a comedy but mine is one of the more funny characters in the movie," he said. "It's a big century and in the 1940s.

"Working with Barry Levinson was such a tremendous experience. You don't know what to expect from people who have achieved such greatness, but I'd sit around with him (Levinson) and we'd joke about life. He used to do stand-up, too, so we hit it off pretty well."

Pollack said Steve Martin was the epic about America at the turn of the first performer he's met who didn't have a performer's ego, and their stand-up comedy background also gave them a common bond.

"The stand-up really happened organically," he said. "It's always been

"I WAITED to do the Tonight Show until they could introduce me as an actor and I could go and sit on the panel and be funny," he said. "I just finished a TV pilot for Fox. It's set in the corporate world and while fun with impressions. "Everywhere you look there is comedy, you just have to find your own voice - your own point of view," he said. "I've been doing this professionally now for 10 years. You develop your own persona and people either come along with you for the ride or they don't."

The 32-year-old LA comedian mixes cynicism and the every-day irony of life into his routine. He also ... gives a "clean" show.

"I pride myself on that," he said. "I do have some adult material and adult observations, but I don't use four-letter words."

Woody Allen, Albert Brooks, Steve Martin and George Carlin were just some of the comedians who influenced Pollack.

"Woody Allen really acted as an inspiration for a comedian to take his point of view and put it on film," he said. "You know, I really can't remember too many low points in my career. I've been really lucky to work with so many people who I ad-

Mutts make most of run for 'roses

By Joan Borum special writer

It's definitely not the sport of kings. Mutt Derby time at the Michigan State Fairgrounds Coliseum is a meet of a different breed.

Sponsored by as a fund-raiser by the Michigan Humane Society, the Derby is designed for mutts and their owners . . . and mutual love is the only pedigree required.

All dog lovers are welcome to attend . . . and coo... and admire... and trade stories of can-

After all, in this world, a doting grandparent may be boring, but is considered normal. A dog owner showing pictures of little Sunshine licking an ice cream cone, however, is often thought to be a bit, well, eccentric.

Don't think they're snobbish about pedigrees. Any mutt is welcome, as long as he or she is discreet about "pure" bloodlines and doesn't go around flaunting "papers."

The seventh annual Mutt Derby this year attracted 400 of the area's "finest," who raced to their owners to raise money for the MHS and to kick off Be Kind to Animals Week.

There's a rhyme and a reason to the Mutt Derby. Dogs race in five classes - mini, small, medium, large and maxi - on an oval "course" marked out in the arena.

THERE ARE 10 entrants in each heat, and MHS volunteers hold the eager entrants as their owners run to the opposite end of the track.

The idea is that the dogs are supposed to race to their masters and the first one to do so is the winner of the heat. Finally, the Grand Mutt Run is a race between the five class champions to determine the Grand Mutt champion.

That's the idea. Sometimes, the dogs have an idea of their own.

Sometimes, they forget about their owners before they make it to the end of the track. And then there are those dogs that just sit there looking around while the pack goes off howling.

"Aren't you embarrassed?" someone asked the owner of one such Doberman.

"No, he did the same thing last year." Sometimes signals get crossed.

A beautiful fawn-colored Afghan, desperate to be reunited with her owner, squirmed away from her volunteer and ran the course alone, the crowd cheering both her grace and her dedication.

Sheepishly, her owner led her back. When the flag dropped, the dog remained behind, not moving. She obviously thought that was what she was supposed to do. After all, she'd tried running and that didn't work.

And sometimes, blood will tell.

A Border Collie, starting from post position, spent the race trying to herd the other dogs into a

But the dogs who never forget, never digress, the dogs who run most frantically are the little dogs. They don't bark. They don't have "accidents." They watch with disbeller as their owners

THEY RUN in unremitting desperation, eyes fixed on their beloved, ears flying, deaf to the roar of the crowd. They run and jump straight into the arms of their hysterical owners, who carry them off in triumph, win or lose.

"It's a family event," said Ron Blauet, MHS director of education. "People come from Flint and GrRand Rapids. They pack a lunch and make a

"Last year, at the sixth annual Mutt Derby, we had more than 500 entries. We made $11,000 for our shelters from the $5 entry fee for dogs, the $2 general admission fee and sales of sweat shirts and other miscellaneous items."

"Micellaneous items" include clowns "Stembles," "Fumbles" and FluFlu," otherwise known as Peggy Vermander, Mary Vemander and Lynette Orr, who come in from the town of Leonard to volunteer their skills at painting funny faces on eager children. All fees for the art work goes to the MHS.

MHS employee/volunteer Verna Robinson of Detroit boasts that she gets a lot of winners as a

"You have to show them that you're not going to hurt them," she explained, wiping off her pant leg where an excited dog had had an "accident." (They spend a lot of time mopping up the starting

"I get their names from their owners and I talk to them to get them to run. I say things like 'Where's your Mama,' and 'Follow Mama; run to

ROBINSON HAS has two pit buils at home and she is especially proud of Star, a pit bull owned by Detroit Harold Mssop Jr.

Star has the distinction of being the only dog to become Grand Mutt Champion twice, once in 1986 and again this year. In 1989, she was the medium dog winner. Robinson has been Star's handler every year that she has entered.

"I only brought her in 1986 to give her the opportunity to see other dogs," Mossop said. "The MHS people urged me to race her, so I did. When she won that year, they announced only that the winner was a dog named Star.

"I guess they were afraid that if they said the words pit bull, people would evacuate the Coliseum. By now, she's a great favorite with the crowd.'

"It's a great day for those of us who work at the shelters," said Blauet. "It gives us a chance to see the bond between dogs and people. It's an unfortunate aspect of our work that we seldom see the positive aspects of the relationship between dogs

"We hope that events like the Mutt Derby and Be Kind to Animals Week will help people to real-Ize the joys and responsibilities of owning a pet."

Detroiter Harold Mossop Jr. has reason to be proud of his pit bull Star. She has the distinction of being the only dog to become Grand Mutt Champion twice, once in 1986 and again this year.

Keeping the kids busy during the Mutt Derby were volunteer clowns like Stumbles (Peggy Vermander of Leonard) who did face painting for the benefit of the Michigan Humane Society.

Card-mailing procrastination

Mother's Day card way ahead but then didn't mail it on time. Can you give me insights as to why a person would buy cards and not mail them?

A: Putting off mailing letters, thank-you notes, sympathy or greeting cards is a recurring problem for many people. Ideally you "should" buy greeting cards in groups (e.g. by the month) address them, sign them and write the mailing date where the stamp goes. Then just stamp and mail them on the appointed days.

Even an "ideal" system may not solve your problem, however. Of the six categories of procrastination I have identified, dealing with your inner feelings may be the most common cause of mailing delay and the most difficult to master. When you send cards or letters you are sharing your feelings, even if you only sign your name to a pre-printed card. In the back of your mind you may be mulling over questions like: Have I chosen the right words? Will the other person think this is corny? Appropriate? Funny? Is my handwriting too messy? Will this produce the intended comfort-joy-appreciation-

Insecure feelings get involved in as well. Perhaps an apology is in order hut difficult to deliver. Terminations, appraisals or evaluations of business people are often delayed because of the difficulty of telling others what they are doing wrong - or because it's hard to praise someone. Until handled, these delays can gen-

Anytime you realize you are delaying something because of feelings, face the problem head on. Identily specifically what is holding you back and why. If you still can't handle it, try creative alternatives such as calling instead of writing: sending a small gift or flowers with a card that simply says, "I'm sorry," for instance; or finding someone else to act as an intermediary. Sometimes you simply have to bite the bullet and schedule an appointment (to terminate an employee, for example) and then figure out how to handle it after that appointment is made. Using "pressure to produce" never fails.

An alternative to writing a personal note on a "mushy" greeting card is to simply sign your name to a more generic type of card. While less than ideal, it is also less threatening. Other reasons for card mailing procrastination: You may consider card mailing to be less important than other daily activities and need to raise that activity higher on your priority list. Finally, a number of people have told me choosing the right one is the hardest part of sending cards so, once purchased, they putting off more than just written consider the job done. After all, they messages. Relationships may suffer have acted on their thoughts of the other person — even if the other person'doesn't know it.

Import shop has French connection

By Arlene Funke special writer

T'S like visiting Old World, country-style

A new shop in downtown Northville, called La Belle Provence, specializes in pottery, furniture and accessories from Europe, particularly France.

The brick walls and hardwood floors of the store are a fitting backdrop for the antiques, stacks of snowy-white Belgian lace bed linens and distinctive, brightly hued pottery called Quimper (kam-PAIR).

Store owners, Jennifer Toblas-Turner of Birmingham, and Leslie Benser-Luciani of Ann Arbor, both are attorneys who decided to become shopkeepers.

"I love French literature and culture," said Tobias-Turner, 31, who speaks fluent French and Spanish. "It's just been an ongoing passion of mine."

For Tobias-Turner, opening an imports shop evoked memories of the period in her life when she lived with a family in the south of France. Benser-Luciani has enjoyed the buying trips to Europe where she sharpened her business skills.

LA BELLE PROVENCE has an extensive array of the popular, hand-painted French pottery, Quimper. The colorful pottery is characterized by its depiction of traditional peasant figures, dazzling florals and dramatic birds.

"No two pieces are exactly alike," said Benser-Luciani, who explained that scenes are painted free-hand by master painters. The artists use neither stencils nor decals.

La Belle Provence, which opened last November, is at 119 N. Center St., just off Main. The shop's neighbors are a mix of small boutiques, accessory and gift shops, an art gallery and neighborhood cafes.

The partners were attracted to Northville's small-town flavor, its growth and the affluence of the city and its nearby communities. 'Northville is like Birmingham used to be before it became booming," Benser-Luciani

BOTH WOMEN HAD been employed at law firms prior to opening the shop. Benser-Luciani had worked with Tobias-Turner's husband, Jack, a Birmingham native.

The name, La Belle Provence, was selected because of its distinctively French flavor. It means "beautiful Provence," referring to a region of southern France which both partners .

"The region epitomizes everything we love about the European style," Benser-Luciani

During buying trips to France and Belgium

the partners visited flea markets, antique fairs and met with dealers. According to Tobias-Turner, European country style is compatible with American traditional and country styles. "European antiques have a soft look to them," she said. "It's easy to segue from American to European country (style) without changing the whole house." MOST OF THE furniture pieces carried by La Belle Provence are antiques dating to the 1850s, Benser-Luciani said. The pieces originate in France, Belgium, Germany and Italy. Some reproductions also are sold. Price tags indicate whether a piece is original or repro-

"They are mostly original pieces," Benser-Luciani said. "We only carry reproductions to give a greater price range. Reproductions are typically made in Europe so (customers) are getting European pieces. The shop has several styles of farm tables and chairs, armoires and hutches. Many are made of scrubbed pine. Others are carved fruitwood and oak.

The Quimper pieces dominate one corner of the shop. The brightly colored pieces reflect a rich palette of blues, scarlets, daffodil-yellows and shades of green.

This pottery is produced at Faienceries de Quimper, a factory dating to the 1690s, in the French town of Quimper. Quimper is in the Brittany region, on a peninsula which juts 150 miles into the Atlantic Ocean between the English Channel on the north and the Bay of Biscay on the south. Brittany was isolated until World War II,"

Tobias-Turner said. "It was hard to reach. It has really developed and kept its own culture." The ceramic earthenware is painted, glazed and marked, a crucial guide to historians and collectors. The glaze is lead-free, so the pieces can be practical as well as decorative.

ONE OF THE MOST well-known Quimper patterns is Henriot, which depicts the traditional peasants of Brittany. The scenes show men wearing pantaloons and wide-brimmed hats. The women wear aprons and high, starched, lace coifs on their heads. The pieces are bordered in blue and yellow.

"The colors are so inviting," Tobias-Turner said, "It's hard not to fall in love with them."

Property management: Go it alone or hire it out

When rental markets are as soft as they are now, property managers have to scramble to earn their money.

It doesn't matter whether they look after their own holdings exclusively, a combination of their own and others' or work only as hired guns.

"The response of management companies has stepped up over the last several years due to an abundance of space in the 'marketplace," said Richard Roeser, president of a Beachum and Roeser Development Co. of Birmingham.

"It increases the level of competition, no question about Roeser also is president of the Building Owners and Managers Association. "My responsibility is to make damn sure we are doing everything possible to keep buildings in A-1 shape," he said. "We search out our tenants and inquire of them whether the level of service is satisfactory." Roeser manages 15 office buildings he owns, including Governor's Place in Bloomfield Hills, Coventry Place in Troy and Jamestown in Birmingham.

Harold Lawson, president of M.E. Arden Co. of Farmington Hills, manages and develops retail and office property.

"WE'RE CURRENTLY in a stale market . . . in retail, industrial, residential and office," Lawson said. "It becomes more important that they (property managers) are right on the job so they can see what problems are before problems develop. In our business, when there's a vacancy, you never recoup that month."

The properties owned and managed by Arden include Uptown Plaza in Farmington and Farmington Hills Office Cen-

Ron Slavik, founder and president of the Fourmidable Group in Farmington Hills, knows all about competition in the apartment management business.

"You've got to be creative, diligent and work hard," he said. "It all comes down to good maintenance, highly motivated, trained people on site, devising new marketing tools, constant monitoring of the marketplace, making sure the project is clean and well repaired."

PROPERTIES MANAGED by Fourmidable include Oaks at Hampton in Rochester, Buckingham Square in Troy and Walnut Woods in West Bloomfield.

What does a property manager do?

Listen to Thomas Garrity, who recently started a property management firm in Livonia after 22 years in the business.

"We would go in and literally take over the whole opera-tion," he said. "We set up bank accounts, staff, collect rents, take care of tenant complaints, forecast, implement energy cost programs, set up security if necessary.

For that, we would be paid a fee, a percentage of gross collections, 31/2 to 51/2 percent for commercial and industrial," Garrity said.

The range of compensation is comparable to residential property management, Slavik said.

Property managers are in demand for a couple of reasons.

'I see the pendulum swinging so that property managers handle more of the administràtive side, financial side, and the function of operations is given to another person.'

— Martha Jakubik Coldwell Banker

SOME LOCAL owners, professionals like doctors and lawyers, might want to build shopping centers or small offices as investments, but don't have the time or expertise to manage

Out-of-state owners, recognizing their distance from investments, call upon property managers who are aware of local nuances to handle details.

Some managers, like Roeser, concentrate on their own properties.

"No matter how conscientious that person is, he can't possiblv care . . . and see things I see as an owner," Roeser said. "He (outsider) has more constraints. I have a level of perception and authority (so) I can resolve that (problem) right away."

But Garrity believes that individuals who finance, develop, build and try to manage their own holdings may be biting off more than they can chew. "We specialize in management where they don't." Garrity said. "It's number one with us."

"IT'S MORE difficult managing someone else's property," Lawson said. "They hire you, pay a fee. They're supposed to listen to advice, but sometimes, when it gets costly, they Especially absentee owners, who might be reluctant to adjust to local economic situations and lower rents or make improvements to a property, if necessary, to compete.

Certified property managers must be licensed brokers, attend classes and pass an exam, Slavik said. "The level of pro-fessionalism is being raised due to competition."

Slavik and others in the field see the day approaching when property managers get more involved in asset management. That would include analysis as to when to sell and whether or when to refinance.

"The '90s level of property management will be taken to a new dimension - long-term investment opportunities, reporting to investors," Slavik said.

Martha Jakubik, a property manager for Coldwell Banker Commercial Real Estate Services, also believes that asset management will become important.

Thomas Garrity, who recently establish- lot of work goes into prospecting clients ed a property management firm after and doing the job properly. working 22 years in the business, said a

Rental market called stale

Office, retail and residential rental markets in Detroit and its suburbs are slumping, several property managers said recently when interviewed by Lawson, president of a development and managethe Observer & Eccentric.

Richard Roeser, owner and manager of more than a dozen office buildings, cited a study by Grubb & Ellis that projected an office vacancy rate at upwards of 20 percent here by the end of the

With supply exceeding demand due to overbuilding, office owners and managers have been offering financial incentives to retain tenants and attract newcomers, Roeser said.

But that's not the first thing he likes to do. When the market cools, Roeser said he redoubles efforts to make sure his buildings are in top-notch condition and tenants' whims are satisfied. "Planting flowers, making sure the office is clean — that it's a pleasant place to be," Roeser

"If you haven't taken care of the building or customers, they're going to move."

Stale was the word used to describe current retail and office markets in metro Detroit by Harold ment company.

"We need more growth from outside. That's our problem," he said of office space. "You're going to need some companies coming to the area with faith in the future.

"The office market is probably more overbuilt than any segment," Lawson added. "Everyone's competing. Tenants know that." And ask for concessions.

An influx of major retailers like Target, Kohl's and Mervyn's has contributed to an overabundance of shopping centers here. Lawson said.

"DEVELOPERS have to build a center for each one," he said. "There's not enough little guys (tenants) to go around. I think we have too many centers for total purchasing dollars available." Supply and demand and interest rates are the biggest variables impacting the residential rental market, said Ron Slavik, who founded a company 16 years ago to manage apartments.

Get it in writing

By Robert Meisner special writer

We are interviewing a prospective management company that promises that the principal of the management firm will be at the site to attend all of our meetings of the board. Is there anyway that I can guarantee that promise?

Provide a provision in the management agreement between the association and the agent to the effect that the principal of the management company must appear at the meetings of the board of directors as a condition precedent to the continuation of the management agreement, except in the case of emergencies and/or excusable circumstances. That will insure that the management company will have a legal incentive to comply with its obligations as promised to you. In fact, any extraordinary promises exacted from the management company should be confirmed in writing in the management agreement.
