Group home family loses a member

By Tedd Schneider staff writer

For six weeks Sydney Bright's housemates had been hoping that the Westland resident would somehow return to his group home unharmed.

Those hopes won't be realized. A body identified as Bright was recovered by Wayne County Sheriff's deputies from the Lower Huron River in Taylor late Monday or early Tuesday, a spokeswoman for the sheriff's department said

The body, which was badly decomposed, was identified through dental records Wedhesday, said Harry Hamilton, an investigator with the county medical examiner's office.

Cause of death was listed as drowning. Hamilton said the death would likely be classified accidental, although no determination was made as of 1 p.m. Wednesday.

Reports from police were sketchy, but sheriff's department spokeswoman Kathleen Micallef said information from Sgt. Larry Shmokel of the department's marine division indicated that the body was seen last weekend by a passerby, who then called police.

Bright, who would have been 23 this month, disappeared April 15 from the Oakwoods Metropark near Flat Rock during an Easter Sunday outing with housemates and staff

Neighbors care for park area

By Tedd Schneider staff writer

A group of northeast Westland residents has succeeded this spring in putting the "park" back into a previously neglected portion of Edward Hines Park, according to Sandra Egan.

"We're seeing much more use of the park for what it was meant for," said Egan, who helped organize the cleanup effort among her neighbors. "There are a lot of people walking, families strolling with their pets, bicycle riders using the area now."

In previous years, the portion of the 2,200-acre Wayne Countyowned park that backs up to Hartel street has served more as an overgrown dumping ground than a recreational area, Egan said.

The area was littered with bottles, broken glass, carpeting and other garbage. Overgrown brush served as cover for illegal dumping, vandals and drug dealers, Egan said.

BUT EGAN and a rotating corps of volunteers has spent the last two months collecting trash, pruning trees and bushes and watching for

They spend a few hours two days each week - usually Wednesday nights and one weekend afternoon - working in the park, Egan said. The crew usually numbers about 20 or 25 individuals and includes a number of neighborhood children.

Singers hit chord for fine arts

Wayne Memorial High School singers Thursday went out with a bang, not a whimper, at the spring vocal music concert, hoping that the fine arts program won't be buried in a tax election on June 11.

The choral music students wore specially-designed T-shirts with the message, "R.I.P., W-W Fine Arts, 1870-1990."

Along with faculty members, they were telling the audience that they hope voters will approve a June 11 tax rate renewal and increase proposal to save the program.

The idea for the T-shirts was initiated by Wayne Memorial art teacher Carl Staber.

HE SAID that the concept began when retiring vocal music teacher Dorothea Schuler-Gleason wanted to spray paint a Christmas wreath used in past holiday concerts black with a condolence ribbon across its front.

Mother of 20 offers advice on parenting

By Mary Washko staff writer

Raising 20 children cannot be easy, but Dorothy and Robert DeBolt almost make it seem that way. They spoke Thursday to nearly 500 people, mostly parents, on "Love is Learning to Be a Better Parent."

The DeBolts and their 19 children were the topic of an Academy Award-winning documentary in 1977 entitled, "Who Are the DeBolts and Where Did They Get 19 Kids?"

The program was held in Churchill High School, part of the Livonia school district which serves the northern section of Westland.

Shortly after the film was released the couple adopted another child, making it a grand total of 20.

DETROIT LIONS linebacker Jimmy Williams introduced the couple by saying: "I have one child and one on the way. I thought that was going to be tough until I heard about the Williams was on hand to attract more fathers to the seminar and it apparently worked, said Elaine Koons, Parent Outreach coordinator for the district. The DeBolts appearance was sponsored by the Independent Order of Foresters and held in the high school which serves the northwest section of Westland.

Robert DeBolt, 59, said in some ways having 20 children is easier than the typical three. With 20, he said, the children tend to help each other and parents don't have time to worry about the smaller anxietles that torment parents with fewer

In their presentation, the DeBolts focused on communication and selfesteem of the children. While raising their large family, they stressed making the children independent.

All their children are now out of their own in apartments and most have families of their own. In all, the DeBolts have 15 grandchildren.

City to get funds for DARE

In all, 26 county and local law enforcement departments will receive DARE grants. Funding is provided for one DARE officer/ instructor from each agency to bring the 17-week DARE program to elementary students in the area.

In addition to the 17-week program aimed at fifth- and sixthgraders, DARE instructors also conduct visitation lessons in K-4 classrooms and help with parent education efforts.

DARE builds upon the Michigan Model for Comprehensive Health Education said Blanchard, which gives 94 percent of the state's K-8 students a strong health and anti-substance abuse education. This year the program will be expanded to K-12.

Also important, the governor added, is the Student Assistance Program which trains school teachers to identify students in need of counseling before they resort to drug abuse.

Through SAP, parents, teachers, young students and counselors work together to resolve family and personal problems and keep children in school.

Candidate says 110 signs lost

By Marie Chestney staff writer

Joseph Laura, Livonia board of education member who is seeking re-election June 11, claims-that 110 of his campaign signs have disappeared throughout the district.

"This is disturbing to me because it's not the way the game is supposed to be played," said Kevln Clinton, Laura's campaign manager.

"We expected we'd lose about 10" percent, perhaps some taken by girls named Laura who wanted a souvenir for their bedroom. But 90 percent of the signs? That's very disturbing."

LAURA, WHO is seeking a second four-year term, said he spent nearly $1,000 for the 135 signs he recently placed throughout the city to advertise his candidacy in the June 11 school board election. He is opposed by Dr. Nagi Musleh, a teacher at Nolan Middle Schools in the Detroit Public Schools. Musleh said he has not put up any campaign signs.

Laura said many of the signs apparently disappeared the night of May 24.

A resident in the district's northwest section told Laura he heard a noise around 1:30 p.m., looked out a window and saw two men removing the signs from nearby lawns.

LAURA SAID the resident got the license plate number and description of the car in which the two men were riding.

"The resident heard a car stopping and starting, which is unusual because it's a residential area. The car would stop, a man would get out, pick up the sign, get back in the car again and drive off."

Even if he could afford to buy more signs, Laura said he wouldn't be able to get them up until the weekend before the election.

Clinton, who also managed Laura's first campaign for a school board seat, said Laura lost far fewer signs four years ago.

"There was a loss but nothing close to what we have today."

Memorial Day events stir emotions

Memorial Day, marked by hundreds of Westland veterans and parade marchers Monday morning, isn't the same as in previous generations.

That was the opinion of one veterans' group leader who talked about the holiday as the annual Westland-Wayne Memorial Day parade was to start and ceremonies held at Westland City Hall.

But the opinion of Ernest (Gene) Brown, a Garden City man who is national commander of the Military Order of the Purple Heart, isn't shared by a younger veteran who lost both legs when a land mine exploded near him while serving in the Vietnam War 21 years ago.

Brown said the federal government is "taking out patriotism out of America" because of its constant cuts in veterans' benefits whenever there is a budget problem.

Brown also criticized TV networks for giving Memorial Day only 20 to 30 seconds on holiday coverage while spending much longer time on other topics.

Bob Calderon, who is a double-amputee and taking part in his first Memorial Day parade, said "there is some patriotic feeling which keeps the (holiday) spirit going."

The veterans' council also presented trophies to the best units in the annual parade.

Everyone pitches in during Rouge Rescue

By Janice Brunson staff writer

Come Saturday, June 2, three generations of the Hicks family in Redford Township will have a unique family gathering along the shores of the River Rouge.

Lenore Hicks, 64, son Don and his wife Karen, daughter Joyce Caudill and grandchildren Carla and Rob Caudill, 19 and 16, have volunteered for Rouge Rescue '90, a massive oneday effort aimed at cleaning key sites of a river noted for its metropolitan pollution.

Lenore will again register participants, many of them motivated into action by Karen who for two years has organized township volunteers. Don, Joyce, Carla and Rob are among those who will haul away debris.

"We don't like seeing the river looking so bad," said Lenore of the family effort, an endeavor she believes is paying off. On daily walks in Bell Creek and Lola Valley parks that abut the river, "there are ducks and pheasants," wild fowl that for the first time in years are attracted to a cleaner river.

The annual cleanup project, founded in 1986 and targeting 14 areas this year, is expected to attract 2,700 volunteers, including Scouts, students and senior citizens, members of church, social and recreational clubs, environmentalists, housewives and civic and business leaders.

"IT CULTIVATES the notion we must do something and that by working together on one small part of the river, we can do something," said Bill Gretzinger of the high school students he encourages to participate annually in the Rouge Rescue.

The conference begins at 9 a.m. in the Music Room of the Fair Lane mansion.

Equal education amendment eyed for ballot

By Tim Richard staff writer

A House panel is advancing a state constitutional amendment requiring "equal opportunity for education" amid fears it will hurt affluent suburbs in the name of helping the poor.

The measure also would raise the proportion of the state budget spent on all education - kindergarten through the doctorate level - from the current 45.6 percent to 52 percent in five years.

"Educational opportunity has been determined by property wealth," the sponsor, Rep. Kirk Profit, D-Ypsilanti, told the Education Committee Tuesday.

But an opponent, Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, said, "There's no guarantee this will help my school district. I'm elected to represent my district."

CHAIRMAN William Keith, D-Garden City, won passage of the plan, known as House Joint Resolulion Q, and sent it to the House floor. The vote was 13-4 with two absent. Area members voting yes were Keith and Justine Barns, D-West-

Voting no were Bankes and James Kosteva, D-Canton. Their major school districts get no state aid and are fighting Keith's efforts to elimihate their categorical aids. The measure requires a two-thirds vote of both chambers to go on the

Nov. 6 ballot and majority approval by voters to become part of the state constitution.

HJRQ would:

• Require the Legislature to provide "equal opportunity for education for each public elementary and secondary school pupil." (Currently, the constitution requires only "free" K-12 schooling without racial or religious bias.)

• Dedicate all lottery profits and interest to the school aid fund.

• Mandate the Legislature to raise spending for elementary, secondary, community college and higher education to at least 47.5 percent of available state revenue in fiscal 1991-2, then to 49, 50.5 and 52 percent by 1994.5.

"Available revenue" is defined as the general fund budget plus the dedicated school aid fund.

First year improvement would be $179 million, a co-sponsor said.

PROFIT SAID his proposal would provide "a constitutional foundation" for equal opportunity — "not dollar for dollar; it would allow local school districts to enhance their programs."

Bankes said poor school districts which want to sue the state for more aid found their case was badly harmed because the state constitution currently fails to require equal opportunity.

"This would allow-a-judicial op--- portunity to override the Legislature and local control," said Bankes, pointing to court rulings in Kentucky and Texas.

"These 100 poor, in-formula school districts need 'equal opportunity' for their lawsuit to be successful," Bankes said after the meeting.

KEITH SAID said it's wise to lump all education funding into one budget category because "if you have a bulge (population boom) running through the system, you need the flexibility between higher education and K-12."

Another supporter, Rep. Joe Young Jr., D-Detroit, agreed, calling the measure a "holistic" system. "I'd want heavy emphasis on K-12," Young added.

will be dispersed too broadly.

"It can be dispersed without paying for social security, retirement or categoricals," she said.

"If there's a recession," Bankes said, "maintaining 52 percent for education could mean cuts in social services and mental health.

"It was a philosophical vote and not a practical vote. Philosophically, I'm for it - but this is the real

A BUSINESS group opposed the measure, but three education groups supported it.

Steve Young, lobbyist for the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce, objected to the "trigger language of equal opportunity . . . We don't need the buzzword language of Bankes, however, fears the money equal opportunity." But he liked the section raising the state budget's percentage for all education.

Lobbyist Al Short said the Michigan Education Association, the state's largest teachers' union, "fully supports it. Public education has to . be priority number one for state government."

Ellen Hoekstra, representing the Michigan Federation Teachers, said that union "strongly supports" the measure. "If we look at other states' court rulings, we see 'equal opportunity' is more than an educational buzzword, as the State Chamber says." Tom White, lobbyist for the Michigan Association of School Boards, said local elected officials "support the general concepts. 'Equal opportunity' provides a useful constitutional policy statement."

A proposed state constitutional amendment requiring "equal opportunity for education" would raise the proportion of the state budget spent on all education kindergarten through the doctorate level from the current 45.6 percent to 52 percent in five years.

While it's possible Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara's hefty campaign fund may be spent on a re-election campaign this fall, it is as likely much of the money will be spent on other matters, according to his chief fund-raiser David Katz.

· Options include a full or scaleddown campaign aimed at maintaining McNamara's public image, an August campaign in support of renewed millage for the Wayne County jail, financing items in the county budget now frozen or entirely deleted and supporting other Democrats running for election.

"It's a moving decision, not one cast in concrete. We meet frequently and discuss the options," said Katz. an assistant Wayne County executive in charge of lobbying who also serves as chief fund-raiser for the Friends of McNamara election com-

McNamara's campaign chest, reported to be nearly $400,000 in February, was boosted considerably May 4. An annual breakfast raised $500,000, Katz said. Another five to 10 events, expected to raise $5,000 to $10,000 each, are scheduled in upcoming months and campaign cards soliciting funds have been mailed to McNamara supporters.

Re-election fund-raising activities were planned prior to May 15, the filing deadline for opposing candidates, Katz said.

McNamara may also opt to use a portion of the money in mounting a campaign in support of renewing the jail millage, according to Katz. Such expenditures are legal if the money is first transferred to McNamara's office holder expense fund.

Transferred funds are now used to support other candidates for office by purchasing tickets to fund-raising affairs. Five such tickets were purchased at $200 each for a "shish-kebash" in honor of Gov. James Blanc-

"WE ARE PUTTING effort into getting good Democrats elected. During 20 years in public life, (McNamara) has always been a loyal patron to other Democrats, his friends," Katz said.

WCCC to seek tax increase

The Wayne County Community College Board of Trustees, seeking increased county funding of the school, will ask voters for a 1-mill increase in tax funding during primary elections on Aug. 7. The tax rate for participating school districts, including South Redford, Redford Union and Wayne-Westland, is currently one-quarter mill.

The request, expected to generate an estimated $15 million, would significantly increase income. In a total operating budget this school year of $36 million, $3.9 million came from district participation. Another $24.7 was provided by the state, with student tuition providing the remainder.

If the new millage is approved,

$14.3 million income from state funds would be eliminated, according to trustee president Charles Morton.

"Since we are not asking for new or increased funding, we will be looking at ways to reduce our expenditures while at the same time holding down tuition costs," Mor-

Fest highlights Irish song, dance

The Detroit International Feis, with support from the Detroit Council for the Arts and Michigan Council for the Arts, will present a program of competition in Irish cultural events Saturday, June 2, beginning at 9 a.m. at the Eddie Edgar Arena off Farmington Road at Livonia.

Admission is $5 per adult. Children will be admitted free.

Included will be Irish step and figure dancing, original choreography, recitation, singing and competition in traditional instruments.

The 28th annual Feis is a continuation of an ancient heritage going back to the second millenium B.C. It has survived despite centuries of oppression.

The Feis provides a forum for young Americans to demonstrate the cultural heritage of Ireland. Through competition, young people try to perfect their skills in the disciplines of Irish dancing, music and song.

Entrants from Michigan, Ohio,

Illinois, Missouri and Canada are entered in the Livonia competition.

Michigan's competitors come from Plymouth, Canton, Northville, Livonia, Warren, Jackson, Brighton and Saginaw.

Timothy O'Hare, who teaches at Dance Unlimited in Plymouth; Michael O'Hare, who teaches in Warren and Jackson; and Patricia O'Neill, a teacher in Brighton are helping students prepare for the event.

More than 75 of the 300 competitors will be representing Michigan

"Irish music and dance is delightful to hear and see, especially when it is performed by children wearing traditional costumes and keeping alive the traditions of their heritage," said Noreen Cusick, whose son Paul is an accomplished Irish step dancer.

For trustee: Laura best for Livonia board

ZESTLAND VOTERS IN the Livonia school district will cast ballots in the annual school election on Monday,

The best choice for the single four-year term is trustee Joseph Laura, seeking a second term against one challenger.

During his four years on the board, Laura has demonstrated his excellent skills in helping set policy for a large school system and should be re-elected to a second term.

The challenger has minimal involvement in the school district, has not attended board meetings with any regularity and has never voted in school elections, having lived in the district almost five years before bothering to register last Joseph Laura is the best qualified to help lead the Livonia school district into the '90s.

Laura is an independent member of the school board, feeling comfortable to vote against the majority when he differs on issues of importance. His independence is accented by a personal, articulate manner which is effective in persuading fellow trustees and informing students, parents or taxpayers. He brings to the board an understanding of and background in finance.

The Westland Observer endorses Joseph Laura because he is most qualified and urges our readers to re-elect him June 11.

Campaign Johnson may test memories

AN SHE hold a political position for the That's the major question being raised in political circles when Westland City Councilwoman Terri Reighard Johnson decided to challenge county Commissioner Kay Beard in the Aug. 7 Democratic Party primary. Beard's district includes Garden City, Westland, and Ink-

Johnson was named to a Wayne-Westland Board of Education vacancy in the fall of 1986, won the balance of the term the following year and then resigned seven months before the term expired last December after winning a four-year city council term.

Now, only four-and-a-half months into her be greener on the other side of the fence.

The reason there are not more challengers may be that informed school board followers see Joseph Laura as unbeatable because he is one of the board's strongest members.

The trouble with Johnson's county commission candidacy is that most voters will probably remember her fast-track political resume and prefer someone with more stability.

The Johnson campaign may focus more on council term, Johnson decided that the grass may - whether voters have long or short memories than on the issues facing the county government.

Time for board to address how to assess school plan

THE BIG city papers and TV news shows missed it, of course, because it's hard to sensationalize. But a revolution is brewing in the schools.

Last month the State Board of Education adopted a plan to develop a core curriculum for all schools. It is a fundamental change in direction for our kindergarten-through-12th grade system - away from specifying hours of study and years of attendance and toward defining subjects and testing students for what they actually learn.

Here's how it's supposed to work:

THE STATE board has set out five broad subject areas - arts (such as music and painting), health and physical education, language, math and science, and world studies (histo-

Next, "Measurement of student attainment of the desired educational outcomes at the state, district and building levels is an integral part of . a good core curriculum model." I think this means: "Students will be tested to verify they have learned what they are supposed to."

Local school boards also are supposed to comment on the proposal to the state board during summer.

In September, the state board is scheduled to approve the model core curriculum and distribute it to every public and non-public school. By July 1991 all districts are to start working to the new standard.

UNTIL NOW, a high school diploma has been one of our society's greatest rip-offs.

To parents and prospective employers, a diploma has been marketed as a proof of education. In fact, a diploma proves nothing except that a kid sat in class 12 years without being expelled.

While the state board is preparing its new core curriculum, it might well think how it will assess success. We shouldn't make old mistakes while starting in new directions.

The state board says it will require that Michigan children learn, and be examined in, specified subjects. I didn't see anything in the handout from the state Department of Education about denying diplomas to kids who fail the exam, but it seems silly to test and do nothing about those who didn't measure up.

Just maybe we are developing an education system interested in outcomes and not process - i.e., one concerned about what kids actually: learn instead of the process by which they are supposed to learn.

GOOD. NOW we should focus on the way we test in America.

American school kids take more tests than kids in any other country. But those tests are almost always about small bits of fact or answers to little problems. They don't assess a student's ability to think or put facts together into a pattern.

Worse, few Americans are ever subjected to an external exam - by someone other than their own teacher. Until recently, achievement tests prepared—and—administered—by- a body independent of the local school were rare. The Michigan Education Achievement Test is now routinely? administered to children in out schools. The results (or lack) aredriving the state to introduce a core

Even worse: The tests with signifiant cant effect on a kid's career — like the SAT college entrance test — are deliberately decoupled from the school curriculum. There is no syllabus to be followed in preparing for them, on the theory that students aren't supposed to "cram" for them:

Result: Our education system doesn't clearly reward academic efforts of either students or teachers. Unlike athletic coaches, who know what kind of contest their teams face and can both coach and motivate their squads, academic teachers are cut off from effort, achievement and reward.

While the state board is preparing its new core currefulum, it might well think out how it will assess such cess. We shouldn't make old in the takes while starting in new direc-

To the editor:

Wayne-Westland teachers and support staff deserve special recognition for their positive influence and productive impact on my life.

Without their input, guldance and belief in me, I am truly uncertain as to whether my life would have stayed on such a rewarding path. Yes, of course I worked hard. But these people gave me consistent and unending encouragement.

Use head, not emotions

To the editor: I don't claim to know all the facts about the school finances or how well the administration is handling the finances. People have complained that the administration and elected officals have not handled our taxes or school finances properly. I can't disagree. I don't like the idea of an increase in taxes anymore than anyone else. But we need to remember who elected those officals.

We need to look at this millare proposal with our heads and not our emotions. Voting against the millage won't hurt the administration or the; elected officals. The students and laid-off teachers stand to lose more than anyone. We also need to look at! the effect this will have on our property values. Who will want to move into a school district that is in financial trouble?

We need to vote for this millage and then put pressure on our elected officals to make the necessary changes at the state level. If our administrators are overstaffed or overpaid, we need to take these problems to the school board that we elected. I don't know how to solve the problems of school financing. But forcing our kids to pay the price for the lack of action by our local and state officals is not the answer.

A legacy of kindness school finance equity left by friend to many

SAYING GOODBYE to a special friend is never easy, especially when that friend has died.

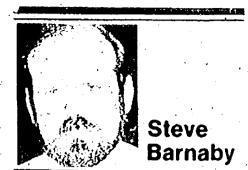

But this past week, hundreds of us found comfort in the sheer numbers of those saying goodbye to Marie McGee. From congressmen, county executive and mayor, from friends of decades past, from colleagues and corporate executives, the communily mourned.

Marie's death was a surprise to everyone. She just wasn't the sickly type. Just the opposite. She was always there, always working and doing it with a vigor unparalleled by

WHEN THINKING of Marie you thought of energy and laughing. You thought of a person who cared more than most, whether it be for her children, her co-workers, her company or her community. She was just that

For those of us in the newspaper business, she was the essence of what a journalist should be - diligent in the quest for truth, but compassionate in the pursuit.

She set a high standard, a very high standard. And the one thing that irritated her more than anything else were those who were willing to settle for less than perfection, no matter the excuse.

Those lacking perception often missed that very important quality about Marie. Unlike a lot of the power brokers lounging around our society, Marie was devoid of a large ego.

She concentrated on more important things, like listening and doing. She was a very wise listener and a great doer.

And as many of you realize, Marie wore many hats, often on the same

We at the Observer & Eccentric knew her as a journalist who touched all segments of the community through her work on the multitude of special sections, from fashion, to weddings, to home furnishings, to the arts. She could do it all.

HER children knew her as a mother who for the past 12 years raised her five children on her own after her husband died. Many in the Livonia community knew her as a civic activist, serving at one time or another on the Livonia Arts Commission, Historical Commission, the advisory committee of the Women's Resource Center at Schoolcraft College and, of course there was Greenmead.

My, how she loved Greenmead, the historical village on Eight Mile Road. And just last week she was elected to the board of directors of the local Zonta chapter, a woman's professional organization.

And although her depth of participation represented how much she cared for her community, just knowing Marie was the real bonus. She added to everyone's life who allowed themselves to be touched by her quiet wisdom and kindness.

I'll always feel sorry for those who didn't avail themselves of the opportunity to know Marie. They missed out on knowing a very important person.

But then, as John Donne tells us, death "comes equally to us all." Being the democrat that Marie was, big "D" and small "d", alike, she would understand that better than many.

BILL KEITH and James O'Neill Jr. are two state representatives whose names aren't exactly household words outside their home towns of Garden City and Saginaw, respectively. Better learn those names. Now that voters have rejected higher taxes for schools, these two lawmakers are pushing for the goal of equity in state school funding. Keith, 60, a banker and former school board member, chairs the House Education Committee. He has 17 years seniority. O'Neill, 61, a former school administrator, chairs the House Appropriations school aid sub-

KEITH AND O'Neill came up with a revolutionary plan to take what few categorical grants the high tech belt gets and pump as much as possible into the general state aid bill. The categoricals are mainly Social Security, pensions and grants for specialized programs.

Naturally, the reps from Troy, Birmingham, Southfield, Livonia, Redford and Plymouth either ganged up to vote no or else didn't vote, the equivalent of voting no. In the O&E circulation area, only Keith and Justine Barns of Westland voted yes on Senate Bill 830 (House substitute 3), the Keith sponsored version of the school-aid bill.

In the high tech belt's eyes, it was a Soviet version of Robin Hood take from the rich so that everybody will be mediocre. It added no new money to the overall state aid bill.

Few people in these parts realize that many school districts in the state are genuinely hurting financially. An increasing number are bumping up against the absolute constitutional limit of 50 mills as a property tax rate. Most people around the metro suburbs don't know there is such a thing.

Eaton and Clinton and Livingston, they loved SB 830 (H-3), giving it 56 votes, a bare majority. It goes to a House Senate conference committee to iron out the differences.

Keith argues it's false to say, as many editorials do, that out of formula school districts in the high tech belt get no state aid. They get millions for the retirement benefits.

To his mind, "equity" is not robbing the rich to make everybody mediocre. Equity became a necessity in Kentucky, where the courts declared the whole funding system unconstitutional. Kentucky's repair bill is running to $1.2 billion, the equivalent of nearly $3 billion in Michigan.

Keith's goal isn't just taking fromthe rich but making more districts eligible for general state aid - 90 percent instead of the current 70

Frankly, I am cool to the Keith plan. I'd rather raise everybody up to an adequate level than knock down a few rich districts for the sake of equity.

But the political realities are that many outstate districts are hurting. So we need to know those two names: Keith and O'Neill.

Barbara Treloar (left) of The London Room and stylist Elaine Raschke help style the wig of Mary Jane Carol, a cancer patient.

Hair to wear Wigs work wonders for baldness

By Sue Mason staff writer

Mary Jane Carrol didn't think much about hair loss. She had something bigger to focus on — beating breast cancer with "hard core" (intranvenous and oral) chemotherapy.

She maintained a positive attitude, thinking of the chemotherapy as "little soldiers going right to the cancer and fighting it."

She didn't lose that attitude when she developed intestinal problems and had to have colon surgery.

And she didn't lose that attitude when her hair loss went from "shedding like a dog would" to "coming out in chunks" when she washed it. She just wore a wig.

Carol's story is a common one — a loss of hair as the result of cancer treatment. It's not so common because she didn't wait until she was bald to get a wig. She listened to what a fellow cancer patient had to say while sitting in the doctor's waiting room.

Carol took the talk to heart - "It kind of frightened me," she said. She decided to be prepared and "let her fingers do the walking" to find a place that specialized in wigs.

That's how she met Barbara Treloar of the London Room styling salon in Livonia. For six years, Treloar has been working with wigs and focusing her efforts on working with cancer patients.

"THE WIG WAS fantastic," said Carol, a Farmington resident. "I'd be out to dinner and be complimented for my beautiful hair. It's important to get a wig ahead of time so you look good. If you look good, then you feel

By word of mouth and by working with oncology departments at hospitals, Treloar is trying to educate cancer patients and other people suffering hair loss that it's best to get a wig before the day you wake up and find your hair on the pillow not on your head.

"There's so much associated with hair and to lose it . It's traumatic and it's worse for women then it is for men," said Treloar. "Some clients come in when it's almost too late, when they have very little hair so we can't see the color or how they wear it."

Treloar sells synthetic wigs in a variety of styles and colors, ranging in price from $145-185. If you're into Cher styles, the cost will be more like $190.

Short hair? No problem. A snip here and a snip there, and the wig is custom styled to suit you. Interested in the spiral perm or spikey Tina Turner style? Treloar has it.

For at-home wear, Treloar carries cloth turbans with or without detachable bangs for $20 and $12 respectively. The turbans are popular with cancer patients because they are cool to wear at a time when the head becomes hot because of chemotherapy.

Treloar has an understanding of the needs of her clients. She provides a fitting room, so they can try on wigs in private. She also works with the client to ensure a proper fit.

"THERE A LOT of tricks to putting on and fitting wigs so that they feel more like a part of the person and not like they're wearing a hat," she said.

Treloar also shows clients how to care for the wigs so that they "don't become a slave to the salon."

And she also helps cancer patients get help with the cost of the wigs. If the doctor provides a prescription for a wig prosthesis, most medical insurers will pick up 80 percent of the cost of the wig. And the Michigan Cancer Society will pay up to $50 for women and $100 for men towards the cost of the wig.

medical companies tend to look at things in different ways," said Treloar. "If you say wig prosthesis, it means you have a medical problem."

A 34-year-old Canton Township nurse, who declined to give her name, discovered Treloar when she went out to buy a ham. She saw the sign in the London Room's front window that simply said "wigs."

"I did it on a fluke," she said. "Up until them, I had been all over the place looking for a wig and even got the Yellow Pages out. I walked in, she fitted me for a wig and I walked out with it an hour later." The young woman Isn't a cancer patient. She has been diagnosed as having alopesia, or baldness. She was at the beach with friends three years ago, when one noticed she had a bald spot. The young woman's long hair masked the area and other spots that came and went.

But there was no masking her bald head when all her hair fell out after she became pregnant.

"SHE WAS A life saver; she's so good at what she does," the young woman said. "I was to the point where I couldn't cover it up anymore. And when I wore the wig, the people I work with thought I had gotten a hair

-Eventually, her hair grew back — the same color and same texture - but she still has several bald spots. Armed with a pair of scissors, Treloar used the wig to create a small hairpiece, the young woman said.

Carol wasn't quite as lucky. When her hair grew back, it was white in color. She did a quick switch to being blonde and now has Treloar take care of it.

And while she has been free of cancer for several years, she has yet to win the war. A large tumor near her neck has been diagnosed as cancer and following surgery to remove a portion of the tumor, she is again taking chemotherapy. The side effects of the medication, however, don't include hair loss.

"I preferred to have a wig," she said. "I felt more feminine."

Persons interested in a wig prosthesis can contact the London Room at 427-4264 for an appointment. There is a fee for the consultation, applicable to the purchase of a wig. The London Room is at 31219 Five Mile Road, just of Merriman Road,

Parents discover the PTA

By Lynn Howard staff writer

Parent-Teacher Associations are making a comeback as concerns about education and children's development spark adult participation in school programs.

Ten years ago, National PTA membership wallowed at a low of 5,893,047 members in 1980-81, less than half of its peak in 1962-63 of 12,131,318 members.

Yet, the numbers have inched their way up over the past few years to 6,466,350, according to National

"A lot of people for a long time thought we just baked cookies and had parties for children, but now they are realizing we are very active in education issues politically," said Beverly Wesner of Livonia, president of the Michigan PTA. "Parents are coming back because they are concerned about what's happening with their children and they want to have a hand in their child's educa-

Michigan's membership has increased 11.8 percent, up to 74,392 in 1988. Area councils report their rolls are showing slight increases over previous years.

Parents are coming back to PTAs because "when you take a look at the world your kids are growing up in, it's scary," said Kathy Kalousek, area council president of the Livonia PTAs, the largest council in the state with 8,800 members. "In most families, both parents have to work, and as hard as it is to find time to volunteer for the PTA, these parents want to do a good job with their kids.

"THIS WAY, they can be a part of what's going on in the school, get to know the kids their children are seeing and develop a relationship with the teacher."

There is a greater need for organizations that support the children, the parents and the family, said Kalousek.

"The family structure has changed," she said. "When I was growing up, I not only had my parents, but I had my grandparents nearby, aunts, uncles, relatives. Nowadays, there don't seem to be close family ties. Your relatives aren't right there, and a lot of relationships are complicated with divorce. It's harder to be a parent."

Linda Pratt is president of the Area Council of PTAs for the Wayne-Westland Community Schools, which has been holding steady at 2,000 members for the past three or four years despite a drop in the number of students enrolled at the schools.

'Our parents get involved because they want to know what's going on in our schools," she said. There are 15 PTAs in the district's 21 elementary schools, and more fathers are participating in the PTAs, Pratt noted.

"They are becoming what we used to call 'room mothers,' parents who helped with extra classroom activities and parties," she said. "In fact, you can see fathers in almost every kind of activity we do.

"WE ARE SEEING the result of changes in what used to be the traditional household where the father worked outside the home and the mother stayed with the children. Now, mothers are in the workforce and fathers are taking a bigger part in the children's lives. Also, many fathers are leading single-parent households.

"In some PTAs you will see only one, two or three fathers, but in others, you will find almost half are fathers."

PTA volunteers are a diverse lot, according to Pratt - "You'll find everything from single parents to parents from a three-generation household." Because of that diversity, the council tries to offer a full range of programs for both children and parents.

We were the first council to offer an AIDS education program for parents three years ago, and we have programs for parents of children of different ages, covering behavior and development, discipline and what standardized testing means to children," she said.

For students, the PTA council coordinates the Wayne-Westland Student Assistance Task Force, a group that addresses such problems as substance abuse and dysfunctional homes, a teen health program and

Dear Lorene,

I read your column often and have always wondered what you would have to say about my handwriting. I am 20 years old and am right handed. I'd greatly appreciate a response.

I would say you are a unique and special young woman.

While you need and enjoy people, there is a reticence here which does not allow you to freely share your personal life with many. The reserve and caution are traits which may seem contradictory to your strong need for people, but are a part of your personality picture.

Your behavior is often that which is socially acceptable to those who mean most to you. At the age of 20, I suspect this is mainly your peer Hallmarks' Regi Early shows off some of the stuffed toys, keepsake books and baby items available in the company's new "Baby Celebrations" display.

A 'shower' for babies: 'Boomers' celebrate

By Sue Mason staff writer

So you say you're having a baby,

Well, guess it's time for some serious voice training. After all, you want to be able to sing "Rock-a-bybaby" in tune.

You may want to sign up for some exercise classes, so you can handle the multitude of bounces you'll provide to quiet your little bundle of joy.

And on your off-nights, there'll be childbirth classes and painting and decorating the nursery. And if you feel tired because of all this activity consider yourself in training for all those 4 a.m. feedings.

And . . . don't feel alone. Experts predict a "boomlet" for 1990. Yep, the baby boomers are having babies of their own and the magic number for this year is 3.8 million babies. That's enough babies to fill the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif., almost 38

While celebrating births at such things as showers was something new for their parents, baby boomers are doing it in a big way. So big, in fact, baby-related products generated $37.2 billion in retail sales in

Maybe that explains why Hallmark Cards Inc. has come up with a new line of products for what else but "Baby Celebrations." "People have started realizing that family is important," said Regi Early, spokesman for Hallmark's "Baby Celebrations." "Hallmark developed this because a newborn is more infrequent to a family today. In 1990, there will 1.9 children while in the '50s, it was 3.1 children."

Children are nothing new for Early. A mother herself, she also is fulltime director of Hallmark's Kalidescope, a public service program that teaches grade school children about art in an art studio.

"BABY CELEBRATIONS" includes 222 items that literally takes a person from planning a baby shower to the decorations, the gift, wrapping paper and card. Some of the products are designed to be keepsakes to continue or begin a family tradition. And because of its size it takes up more than 50 feet of display space - "Baby Celebrations" is at select Hallmark stores.

The gift selection includes three different styles of baby cutlery, baby books, bibs, stuffed animals, pacifiers and clothing. There's appropriately colored pink and blue pencils, "a fresh way to replace the traditional cigars," coffee mugs that proudly announce that "I'm a new Dad," and yard signs, balloon and a giant bow to announce the new arrival.

But the collection's best seller is a set of three mugs, decorated with surprised me, but I think it's a testimonial to the family unit," said Ear-

Playing on the keepsake idea, Hallmark has come up with baby's first Christmas ornaments and a baby bonnet that when untied, opens to a handkerchief that can be carried by a bride on her wedding day.

Building on the idea of tradition, the company has produced a cassette tape, "Hush-a-by Lullabys," that comes complete with the lyrics to the songs so parents can sing along and the child can learn the songs and in turn pass them on to his or her children, Early said.

"It's important to humans to have a sense of roots," said Early. "When you keep something for a child it's special; it tells them that you 'cared' about me because you went to all this trouble to save things for me.' It ; gives self-esteem to a person."

THE COMPANY also has gone n one step further in helping plan baby ; showers. Its party planner offers theme ideas for showers - "bear necessities," alphabet, tickled pink or out of the blue parties - menu suggestions, gift ideas and even decorations.

The planner can be ordered, free of charge, by sending your name and address to Hallmark Baby Celebra- .. tions, P.O. Box 413708, Kansas City, & Mo. 64141.

And taking a hint from bridal celebrations, Hallmark's "Baby Celebrations" has a baby registry, so parents can list what they need and what ? will fit in with their nursery theme, Early said.

Hallmark took several years to 15 develop the "Baby Celebrations" & line, with the most intensive testing and development coming last year. The products are in line with Hallmark's quality statement of in when you care . . ." and in reponse to customers "who need to get ev- ! "That (the three bear mugs) erything in one stop," she said.

MYTHS ABOUT CHRISTIANITY THE MYTH OF THE MONTH Jesus Christ was only a great moral teacher

What are we to make of this man? The joys and hardships of two thousand years of western history have been pinned on him. Controversy has constantly surrounded his claims. Religious life in the West has been dominated by allusions to his teachings. No self-aware, intelligent person dare avoid this intriguing individual and his impact on society.

No one doubts any more that Jesus actually existed. Most people also believe that he was a great moral teacher. Religious and political leaders throughout the world, including many of the great opponents of Christianity, hall the moral superiority of his life. Mohandas Gandhi aspired to the ideals of the Sermon on the Mount. The philosopher John Stuart Mill thought Jesus a genius

The New Testament documents record the radical servant-like attitude which lent power and credibility to Jesus' teachings. He has truly led humanity in the expression of compassion and humility, as well as in anger against evil and hypocrisy. Jesus combined a realistic understanding and challenged the minds and hearts of millions for centuries.

Of course, this is not the whole story. When we begin to consider Jesus' claims about his identry, the controversy begins. This is where people (including the world's religious leaders) have problems. This is where the label "moral teacher" is put to the test. It begins to seem inadequate, A thirty year old peasant carpenter turned tinerant teacher, Jesus laid claim both by word and action to be more than a mere man. He operated on the assumption that he was God himself. How do we know this? From his explicit statements and the very way he lived. His selfdisclosures are interwoven in the very fabric of the New Testament. He daimed equality with God. He said he had lived before Abraham. He assumed the right to forgive sins. He accepted wor-Jesus of Nazareth could not be simply a harmless moral teacher. He cuts too deep and steps out too far from the crowd of moral teachers and philosophers. We can call him a fiar. We might even discuss his mental imbatance. But the tag of "only a great moral teacher" doesn't stick.

It was never an option in his own day. Some of his contemporaries thought him mad, others loved him. He was regarded with disdain and sometimes even hatred, or alternately with amazement and adoration. But he never received mild approval. Neither is it an option for today. We have to shut him up or hear him out. What are we to make of this man? What of his moral integrity? His fulfillment of centuries of aspirations? His prediction of death and resurrection? What are we to make of his

Rabbi takes on a role of leadership

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

The man who has officiated at bar mitzvahs for children whose parents he married, now talks of stemming the tide of growing anti-Semitism in Eastern Europe and reforming the Israeli political system.

Rabbi Irwin Groner certainly has a job ahead of him.

The spiritual leader of Congregation Shaarey Zedek in Southfield was recently elected president of the Rabbinical Assembly.

Founded in 1900, the international association oversees 1,300 Conservative Rabbis in North America, Israel, Latin America and Europe. There are 1.5 million Convervative Jews in North America alone.

Groner was officially installed as president recently at the Concord Hotel in Kiamesha Lake, N.Y. More than 80 people made the difficult trek from Congregation Shaarey Zedek, where Groner has been since 1959, to attend the installation.

"It lifted me; it honored me," said Groner in his study at Shaarey

Any euphoria will be short lived, though. Groner has already gotten down to business. His new position will take him away from his duties at Congregation Shaarey Zedek at least four to five days a month.

GRONER IS the voice of 1,300

As president of the Rabbinical Assembly, Rabbi Irwin Groner will be the voice for 1,300 Conservative rabbis worldwide. Groner is a Moral Perspectives columnist for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

Conservative rabbis and will be instrumental in setting policies for the Rabbinical Assembly.

He chooses his words carefully discussing the upcoming tasks. One pressing issue is what many Jewish people believe is rekindling of hatred toward them in Eastern Europe.

Already, Groner and the Rabbinical Assembly have discussed the issue with Catholic leaders on the East Coast. He said leaders of both religious bodies agree'it's a special opportunity for the church to help moderate and overcome the "passions that have been unleashed.

"The Rabbinical Assembly and the leadership needs to — as it has in the past - encourage Catholics in dialogue that helps to focus attention, not on the issues that divide us, but of values shared," Groner said.

The Rabbinical Assembly also encourages political reform in Israel. With the present system, Groner believes small parties are able to manipulate issues that "are injurious to the welfare of Israeli society."

The Assembly encourages the leaders of both major parties, Likud and Labor, to discuss the situation.

Overall, Groner added, his group would like to see the growth of Conservative Judaism in Israel. Between 30-40 congregations are in the country. A school system also exists along with a seminary training Israeli Conservative rabbis.

"IN ISRAEL at the present time, people have two alternatives," he said. "They are either secular in their outlook, or they join the extreme orthodox community. We believe they should be given an alternative, which is Conservative Judaism."

The tasks would seem immense. Groner is not exactly new to this.

Prior to the presidency, Groner has served as secretary and treasurer in the Rabbinical Assembly during the past eight years. He has also served as vice president of the Synagogue Council of America; co-chairman of the National Youth Commission of the United Synagogue from 1972-76; vice chairman of the Jewish Community Council of Detroit from 1974-76.

In 1984, Gov. James Blanchard appointed Groner as the first clergyman to serve on the Judicial Tenure Commission of Michigan. He later was named vice chairman.

"That was a special kind of experience for me," he said. "I could apply the ethical and moral teachings. of my tradition."

His tradition started on the westside of Chicago where Groner grew up. He was a graduate student studying clinical psychology when he decided to join the rabbinate.

GRONER HAS degrees from the University of Chicago and the Hebrew Theological College of Chicago, where he was ordained.

In 1959, Groner came to Congregation Shaarey Zedek as an assistant rabbi. He arrived from Congregation Agudath Achim in Little Rock, Ark.

Groner became rabbi in 1967 following the death of Rabbi Morris Adler. He was elected rabbi of the Congregation for life in 1978.

-"I have been privileged to help them bear the burden of their sorrows and add to their joys through the years," he said. "I have literally seen generations mature."

Every day we need to take time to think, to dream, to imagine, to contemplate, a time to be ourselves.

We all have the need to socialize and interact with others. We need to share ourselves with others, to engage in social activities. But in the crowded schedules of our daily lives, the "social experience" tends to become too pervasive. Many are afraid to be alone.

Rabbi Irwin Groner

A doctor once pointed out that " 'Be still and know that I am God' is not an arbitrary command; it is a psychological necessity."

EACH OF US assumes certain roles in the course of a day; husband, father, wife, mother, student, employee. We are expected to fulfill our responsibilities to our work and our family, to complete our assignments; and to carry out our obligations.

How often we find the days produce too many unforeseen burdens, too many unanticipated demands.

If we are to live significant lives, then we must cultivate our private world. There must be times in every day when we hang up a sign "Please do not disturb." We require time for contemplation, meditation and evaluation.

Snakeman immune to temple viper bites

Hussian bin Mat has been at the snake temple in Penang, Malaysia, for 40 years. He has been bitten by the snake vipers at least fifty times, but "they are gentle in the temple. They don't bite hard."

I did not see Hussian when I walked up the stairs, between the market stalls, to Sungai Ara, but I knew the story of the snake temple. An Englishman named David Brown had a mysterious ailment, incurable until he visited a Chinese doctor and was treated with herbs. In thanks, Brown gave land to build a temple, but as construction progressed the pit vipers from adjoining jungle began to fill the temple site.

The construction crew tried to chase them away but the snakes kept coming back, so the crew decided that the gods had sent them. The snakes were meant to be there.

The temple, like all Taoist temples I have seen in southeast Asia, is a vision in red and gold. You enter it to the smell of joss sticks and you may be so mesmerized that you do not see the snakes coiled on two dried tree branches at the back of the altar.

Hussian and a woman were standing beside a book of names. I like to check for midwestern American names when I travel, so I signed up, gave a small donation and heard a man's voice

"Would you like to see the maternity ward?" Hussian bin Mat pointed to a space behind the altar where a very large and lumpy pregant snake reposed on a branch, with a chicken egg nearby as food. I followed Hussian into another room, where tiny snakes were the color of a young green branch, and to another room, where a photogra-show they were harmless. You are supposed to wrap these snakes around your neck while the photographer takes your picture. I declined. It was in the temple garden, where a 15-yearold boy was dragging snakes out of a bush with a long pole, that I asked Hussian if he had ever pher had marked defanged snakes with red to

"Very gentle," he said. "Only soft mouth."

"But poisonous?" "Kill in ten minutes," he said.

That's also when I learned that Hussian, who was born Malay and therefore a Moslem, had come to the snake temple with Chinese friends as a young man, and had been there ever since. "Nobody pay me," he said. "You don't get paid?"

"Tourists pay me."

Aha. "You've been bitten?" He showed me his index finger, permanently bent out of shape. "A snake did that?"

"He was a fresh snake and nobody told me," Hussian said. "A lady found it in a tree and brought it in, but nobody told me it was fresh from a tree! The snakes in the temple, they are very gentle, they brush by you or if you put your finger in their mouth, they don't really bite."

"How many times have you been bitten?"

"At least 50 times." "Why aren't you dead?"

"I'm immune!"

If you can believe what is told, no worshipper has ever been bitten by the temple snakes. The Taoists don't worship the snakes, of course. They worship Chor Soo Kong.

The nearby jungle is gone now, so there are pnly about 30 snakes in the temple, plus those in Hussian's "maternity ward." On special days, such as the day of the Goddess of Mercy, they must bring snakes in from the "fresh trees."

Clean shavers fill Freak Street

(AP) - Twenty years have changed the Eden Hotel, which called itself the "oldest and favorite shop in town serving the best Nepalese hash." Now it caters to clean-shaven trekkers.

The ready availability of hashish at the Eden and nearby establishments, and the bearded, long-maired Westerners who bought it; earned Jhochhen Road the nickname Freak Street.

Although the hashish and flower children are gone a generation later, along with the Eden posters saying "Let us take you higher," Jhowhhen Road is still known as Freak Street.

Nepal has outlawed the sale of drugs and the Eden now serves a credible approximation of European culsine to Western tourists who happen by. About 150,000 visit Nepal each year. Hippies have given way to tripples, says the Insight Guide to Nepal, and there is "rarely a whiff of illicit smoke, and not a bare breast to be seen in public."

Many trekkers prefer Thamel, a district for budget travelers about a mile to the north, where such amenities as private baths and hot water are easier to find than on Freak Street.

TIMES HAVE changed, but the old ones linger in many minds. Chaitanya Lal Srestha, a doctor who uses the initials W.F. (for World Famous) before his hame, remembers the visitors of the late 1960s and early 1970s. "So many of them came to me for cures." he said in an interview at his clinic, a tiny, ill-ventilated alcove lined with herbs in glass bottles. "I

From a bus in Tiananmen Square, students are seen storming the the largest public square in the world and is reported to hold one million square, demonstrating their plight against communism. Tiananmen is people. The square was filled in May and June 1989.

IN MEMORY OF TIANANMEN SQUARE

June 4 marks the anniversary of the Tiananmen Square massacre in Beijing. This story serves to remind us of the 600 students who were killed by military troops who were ordered by Chinese government officials to end the two month-long demonstrations in which students rallied for democracy in Chi-

By Gorry Forster special writer

Last spring, I traveled to China with 39 other students to see what it is like on the other side of the world. Since we were members of a Chinese/ American Educational Exchange program, we stayed mainly on college campuses in small towns where we could take classes and talk with students and professors. The primary goal of our trip was to learn more about Chinese history and

During the time I was in China the student demonstrations were taking place in Tiananmen Square. In class, our professors discussed political events freely. They told us the students were asking for two things:

First, they wanted better paying jobs when they graduated. A doctor, for example, makes the same money as a peddler. While the peasants are better off than ever before, the professional class feels it is not being treated fairly.

The second demand was for political reform. Throughout its history, China has never had a tradition of government elected by the people. Now, in the wake of modernization, many are calling for a new system which will allow the people to have a say in who runs their govern-

Last May, as the situation heated up and martial law was declared, we returned to Beijing. A week earlier the city had been calm, but now as we pulled into the trian station the air was electric. Hundreds of young men were scrambling in and out of train windows and pushing through doorways. The streets were jammed with thousands of students converging on Tiananmen Square from all directions, carrying red cloth banners and shouting slogans. The streets were so mobbed that our bus couldn't move, so there was nothing we could do but sit there for several hours right in the middle of it all. Mr. Soong cautioned us, as foreigners, to stay completely

It was now the fourth day since the students had begun their hunger strike in the square and many were beginning to pass out from dehydration. All night long we heard the ambulances going by our hotel carrying students to the hospital. As one group of students collapsed, a new group would march in to take their place.

THE NEXT night, seven of us decided to go down to the Square and see for ourselves what was going on. Tiananmen is the largest public square in the world and reputed to hold one million people. Surely, there were a million people in the square that night and thousands more spilling over into the adjoining side streets. Those moving bodies were packed so densely there wasn't a crack we could squeeze through to try to inch our way closer to the action. From somewhere ahead in the milling shadows, I could faintly make out the sound of a loudspeaker and intermittent cheers. I could also make

China: another world through a deep hole

By Gerry Forster special writer

"If you could dig straight through the center of the earth," my mother once said, "you would come out in

As a child, we used to try to do that. A smile of recognition crossed the face of Mr. Liu, one of our Chinese hosts, when I told him this. "The children in China try to dig through the earth to America." he said. During my trip to China with the Chinese/American Educational Exchange program, we were determined to learn more about Chinese history and culture. We joined our professors for Tal Chi before breakfast every morning, took classes until noon and then were taken on excursions in the afternoons. We ate our meals with chop sticks in the school dining rooms and noted the guesthouse rules posted in our rooms: "No spitting in the corners," "No putting dirty things on the floor," and

"No committing adultry." I took some used college textbooks as gifts for the universities where we stayed and our hosts were touchingly grateful. They told us most of their books had been burned during the "cultural revolution."

We visited the Forbidden City, once the home of China's emperors, and we climbed the Great Wall, which according to the guidebook is the only man-made object. that can be seen from the moon. We floated down the silent, fog-enshrouded Li River and took a boat up the, bustling Grand Canal. We marveled at the terra cotta; warriors of Xian and visited a Buddhist temple high up? in the moutains where we heard the monks chanting to the accompaniment of strange, clanging bells. But my most enduring memory of China is the people.

CHINA, A country about the size of the United States, contains one-fourth of all the earth's people, yet only one-seventh of its land is suitable for growing food. In the south where the climate is good, the soil is not fertile and in the north the soil is fertile but there isn't.

For centuries the Chinese have lived with the spectoris of starvation. Food is still so important that people. greet one another with "Have you caten?" rather than; "How are you?"

But the China I saw was well fed and well clothed. It is a land determined to rise off its knees and as their! slogan goes, "Walk on two legs."

Tackling the housing problem is the biggest priority now and in every city, we saw huge cranes erecting new high rise apartment buildings so that the centuries old hovels can be torn down. "The crane is the national bird!" of China," Mr. Liu joked.

Few tourists visit Srestha now. He spends much of his time visiting friends on Freak Street, a stooping man in his 50s who shambles from restaurants to shops, reflecting with their owners on more affluent days.

Dipendra Purush Dhakal, Nepal's director of tourism, said today's tourist spends more money and stays in Katmandu three days during a trip to Nepal that averages 12 days.

That means "most visitors go to other places," he said. "The hippies didn't go anywhere outside Katmandu and didn't spend much money."

Two reasons the hippies have disappeared are the 1972 ban on the sale of narcotics and the requirement that a Western visitor who stays in Nepal more than 30 days buy $10 worth of the local currency for each of those days.

Only two shops still have address boards proclaiming Freak Street. The scores of others have reverted to the original Jhochhen, which means a "line of houses."

out the chant which we had come to recognize as, "Long live democracy!"

It was a warm evening, but dark. The only light was from the bare electric light bulbs strung overhead that served as Beijing street flights. Our group hung onto each other's hands with all our strength, knowing that if we ever let go we would never find each other again in the crowd. People often ask me if I was afraid. I tell them that I was never at any time in fear of the crowds, but I was terrifled of getting lost from the others and with my poor sense of direction, not being able to find my way back to the hotel.

Once the crowds did part to make way for a little band of about. 15 students, marching toward thecenter of the Square and carrying a large flag held aloft. As they passed the light, I could see the kerchiefs around their heads, their shirt sleeves rolled up and the deadly determination on their faces. These were the young men preparing to join the fast.

Our group spent the next two weeks traveling in the south of China, where I saw no evidence of student unrest except on TV. In my opinion, the people from the south seemed to be more sophisticated, more Westernized and less friend-

I heard one shopkeeper grumble, "Those students have always had full bellies. When you have a full belly, you can worry about things like democracy."

Nobody was prepared for the massacre that occurred on June 4 in Tianenmen Square. The embassies called the hotels and told their citizens to leave China. A plane carrying a group of tourists landed in Beijing, only to turn right around and take off.again. Nobody had any idea what might happen next.

We all felt great sadness for the many friends we left on the other side of the world.

Art and antiques come to Midland

The 80-acre fairground at the edge of Midland is poised to come alive again soon with the season's first Michigan Antique Festival, slated for June 2-3.

And come alive it does.

More than 1,000 dealers from all over the country sell antiques, collectibles, crafts, folk art, and just about anything else — including special-interest vehicles of every description. More than 30,000 folks stream through the gates during the two-day show to browse and buy. Together, they make up what is now one of the largest events of its kind in the Midwest,

Those browsers and buyers will find every sort of treasure, from baseball cards to birdcages, from sideboards to salt shakers, displayed in miles of colorful outdoor booths and in five large buildings on the grounds. And they won't go hungry while they search; the selection of carnival atmosphere.

Now in its 22nd year, the festival premiered as an antique car show and swap meet. Thanks to plenty of bored spouses, who yearned for something to do other than "talk cars," the event soon grew into the multi-faceted extravaganza it is to-

SIMULTANEOUSLY, IT became an annual tradition, enjoyed equally by serious collectors and by those seeking nothing more than an entertaining day in the sun.

What's more, it now takes place three times each summer. In addition to the June 2-3 event, Michigan Antique Festivals will also be held July 28-29 and Sept. 22-23, rain or

In addition to the regular car show, each event will include a special "Featured" display. June's focus will be Trucks and Vans, in July, Volkswagen "Bugs" will take center stage; and in September, the Street Machines will strut their stuff.

ALL IN ALL, there's something for everyone, and the $3-per-person per day entry fee makes the Michigan Antique Festival one of the least expensive forms of family entertainment around — particularly since kids under 11 enter free. Weekend campsites are available, too, right at the fairgrounds.

The Michigan Antique Festival will be open from 8 a.m. until dark on Saturday, June 2, and from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday, June 3. The Midland Fairgrounds are located at U.S.10 and Eastman Road, Midland. For information or to reserve a campsite, call the Festival Hotline, (517),793-8393, between 7 p.m. and 9

There are few cars and trucks, but most people get where they're going on sturdy bicycles: Refrigerators, washing machines and TV's are shared by groups of neighbors who pool their money in order to buy them. Nothing is wasted.

I saw none of the drabness usually associated with European Communist countries. The people seem to exude energy, always smiling, chattering, gesturing. Parents love to hold up their colorfully dressed toddlers for us to admire.

Everywhere we went, people were friendly and wanted to practice their English. Over and over again we heard such phrases as "our American friends," and "Our two countries are growing closer and closer." We were able to wander where ever we liked and always felt safe and surrounded by wellwishers.

south of Beijing, where the mayor came out to greet us that first evening. When we disembarked from the train, we caused quite a stir. Several hundred blue-clad peasants jumped out of their train to line the platform and stare dumfounded at us as though they could not believe we were human beings. On the other hand, in the market place in Shijiazhuang, I was very moved when a woman with tears in her eyes, hugged me and kissed me on both cheeks for no other apparent reason than that I was American.

One evening, our group attended a performance at the Heibei Theatre of Performing Arts. As we entered the theatre, the entire audience rose to their feet and gave us a 10 minute standing ovation. It occurred to me that perhaps we had unwittingly paid all their admission fees and they were thanking us, but when I asked Mr. Soong, our leader, what the season was, he told me that they were applauding us because we were honoring them by traveling so far to visit their

Science with sports

Flint's Sloan Museum in the Cultural Center is displaying Science of Sports, a hands-on exhibit that uses sports as a springboard into science discovery.

The idea behind the exhibit is to illustrate and teach scientific principles through the use of sports.

Visitors participate in most displays and are given a score card for tests, trivia quizzes and computer games. The gallery is divided into six areas: locker room gymnasium, training room, arena, dugout and science decathlon.

The most graphic presentation occurs in the arena. Kids stand, strapped for safety, in the middle of a spinning platform. As they extend their limbs and then tuck them closer to their bodies, they learn how twirling skaters speed up and slow

Smoking: Years puffing increase chance of disease

A new study of cigarette smokers finds that it's not the number of puffs but the number of years spent puffing that determines a person's risk of getting carotid atherosclerosis, a disease that plugs up the arteries supplying blood to the brain and can lead to a stroke.

This is the first time that the duration of smoking has been found to be more important in influencing the risk of carotid atherosclerosis than the number of cigarettes smoked over a lifetime, said the report's coauthor, Dr. Jack Whisnant, a neurologist at the Mayo Clinic in Roches-

The study, published in the May issue of Stroke, an American Heart Association journal, found that a 60year-old man or woman who smoked for 40 years is 3.5 times more likely to have carotid atherosclerosis than a non-smoker. The level of risk was unaffected by the number of cigarettes smoked.

THE ANALYSIS by Mayo researchers included several different measurements of smoking -- ever or never smoked, pack-years (the number of packs a day multiplied by the number of years smoked), number of cigarettes smoked per day and duration of smoking.

The scientists also looked at factors not associated with smoking that can contribute to carotid atherosclerosis risk, including age, current blood pressure, history of high blood pressure and diabetes melsmoking Duration "overwhelmed" the effect of packyears or cigarettes per day, the study found.

Furthermore, "years smoked was also the most important risk factor for severe carotid atherosclerosis, even surpassing age, diabetes mellitus and high blood pressure," the investigators said.

WHISNANT ALSO concluded that the major benefit of smoking cessation comes from limiting the accumulation of smoking years.

"The length of time a person smokes has a greater impact on the arteries than the actual number of cigarettes smoked," Whisnant said. "People who smoke lightly may get a false sense of security and not realize the dangers from the long-term effects of smoking."

Most earlier studies of smoking and blood vessel disease - such as the Framingham Heart Study, which found that smokers had a 20-30 percent increased stroke risk compared to non-smokers - measured smoking only in terms of the number of cigarettes smoked per day or packyears, he said.

This is the first study to look at duration of smoking as a separate risk factor for carotid atherosclerosis.

Carotid atherosclerosis is caused by fatty deposits from the walls of the carotid artery, the major blood vessel in the neck that supplies blood to the brain.

Symptoms may include temporary loss of vision or paralysis. If the condition becomes severe and the carotid is completely blocked by the deposits or by a blood clot, a stroke may occur.

THE NEW study included 752 men and women who had undergone carotid arteriography, a diagnostic technique that allows visualization of the inside of the arteries in the neck. The patients were asked questions regarding smoking, alcohol and exercise habits. They were tested for high blood pressure, diabetes mellitus and blood sugar levels.

The men and women taking part in the study came to the Mayo Clinic with various symptoms of brain disease, including transient ishemic attacks, which are temporary interruptions of blood flow to the brain and stroke. Of the 752 subjects, 315 had normal arteries. The remaining 437 had carotid atherosclerosis.

In another study, reported last July in the journal, Circulation, Finnish scientists found that among 49 sets of identical twins, the ones who smoked had more fatty deposits in their carotids than their nonsmoking siblings, suggesting a casual role of smoking in carotid atheros-

Advertising buyer finds success attainable here By Gerald Frawley staff writer

Media buying in a male-dominated automobile area like southeastern Michigan can be tough - especially for a home town woman.

Karen Ritchie, senior vice president, director of media services at McCann-Erickson Detroit in Troy, is the exception to the rule. Ritchie was chosen as the advertising woman of the year by the Women's Advertising Club of Detroit because she has made great strides in an advertising market, which even as late as the 1970s, was dominated by the automotive com-

Not bad for a young Mount Clemens woman who was encouraged to leave southeast Michigan to pursue a media career in a city more friendly to women, Ritchie said. "I've done a lot of things in my life, and later, I'll probably do more, but right now I'm having a lot of fun doing what I'm doing."

Her ascent to the top of her field as a local person may be a significant factor in her being chosen advertising woman of the year.

"I'm not the first woman media director, nor am I the first one on a big automotive account, but I may be the first woman to make it this far in her own

"I think there's some of that in it," Ritchie continued. "My appointment may be considered a victory for the home town woman."

Regardless, it is a personal victory in which she takes great pride, she said.

RITCHIE BEGAN her media career in 1975 at Campbell Ewald as a secretary and literally worked 70 hours a week until her supervisor noted her devotion and made her a media buyer.

Ritchie continued to take on added responsibilities with the firm until 1980, when Ritchle was promoted to media supervisor, which culminated in her taking part in the introductions of the 1982 Camaro and Celebrity automobiles.

Later that year, Ritchle moved to the firm Batten Barton Durstine & Osborne Inc. in Southfield, as vice president, media director, Dodge cars and trucks. While there, she was involved with the launch of the Dodge Caravan.

Ritchie returned to Campbell-Ewald (now Lintas:Campbell-Ewald) in 1984 as senior vice president, manager, media planning for Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks. She was promoted to group media director in 1988. In 1989, she joined McCann-Erickson Detroit as kets, trade associations and a consultant in the industry are split on what impact the acquisition of Great Scott supermarkets by Kroger will have on independents.

Some speculated that a portion of Great Scott's customers, who account for an 8-percent Detroit area market share, could take a closer look at independents, especially if those stores are convenient to the home or work place.

Others, citing the neighborhood niche carved by many independents, projected little or no gain in their customer base.

Still others suggested that as fewer big players get in the game and competition heats up, independents will have to work hard to keep the customers they now have.

"As long as independents have competitive prices and good service, they may do better," said Jerry McVety, a West Bloomfield consultant in the hospitality industry.

"SOME CONSUMERS loyal to part of the community." Great Scott, when the flag goes down, they may go somewhere else," he said.

JERRY ZAJDEL, owner of Your Better Market in Redford, isn't as optimistic as Coleman or Welch.

"I don't think there will be any change," he said. "They'll stay right there, unless they close the store."

Linda Gobler, president of the Michigan Grocers Association, doesn't expect that independents will reap a windfall as a result of the Kroger/Great Scott marriage. "I'm not sure a merger or buyout: impacts on smaller stores," she said. "Most independents really create a niche for themselves. You get into different neighborhoods, and retailers are accepted and become

Robotics conference coming

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

And some people thought all the Detroit area has to offer was the automobile.

The largest robotics show and conference in North America is coming to the Motor City June 5-7 at Cobo Hall with three days of seminars and nearly 200 manufacturers and service suppliers.

Jest Bernstein, spokesman for the Robotics Industry Association (RIA), which is located in Ann Arbor, said Michigan has strived for. years to become more than just an automotive-dependent state and the growing robotics manufacturing is evidence of that.

"This is an important issue -one of the things Michigan has wanted to do is to attract high-tech businesses and the fact that we're here is a reflection that (to some degree) the state has succeeded.

"That's one of the reasons we're (holding the show and conference) it here," he said. Another, paradoxically, is that the largest customers of robotics manufacturers and service providers is still the automotive industry. Unlike the North American Auto show, the Robotics & Visions Automation conference show is more of a marketing than entertainment event, he said. The show is being cosponsored by the RIA, the National Service Robot Association.

the Automated Imaging Association, and the Engineering Society of Detroit.

THERE MAY be some things of interest to the general public, but for the most part the exhibits and presentations are geared to the corporate executives, engineers, research and development people and plant managers who will use the products.

Sales of robotic grew steadily from their introduction almost three decades ago until 1985, when sales fell sharply. After a two year slump, sales have grown consistently and industry watchers heralded the booming years as an incredible comeback.

Advertising buyer finds success attainable here

Buying media time is becoming an increasingly more complicated job because the once obvious options of newspaper and network television are declining in attractiveness.

DAILY NEWSPAPERS, once the backbone of national promotions, are seeing less of the advertising budget, Ritchie said. In addition to a decade-long decline in readership, national advertisers resent the treatment they've received at the newspapers hands.

Because newspapers were the only game in town for such a long time, they exacted (in the national advertiser's mind) exorbitant advertising rates and forced them into poor placements, she said. "They were unkind to the advertisers."

The same applies, to some degree to national television networks. "Networks were a good answer when 9.5 of 10 households were tuned into one of the networks - now it's almost half of that."

Both newspapers and television now face increased competition from other areas. Cable and independent stations, video rentals, home video games, computers, and sporting events are taking up an incrasingly large part of the consumer's leisure time that was once devoted to watching network televi-

The media buyer must be far more sophisticated. today than in the past, she continued.

Magazines have a very specialized target audience, certain shows relate only to certain people, and some people rarely watch network television. "People relate to the media in a very personalized way."

As director of media services, Ritchie is not confined to merely buying time and advertising space.

On a given day, she may be acting as a consultant with magazine publishers trying to establish themselves, or working with universities like the Massachusetts Institute of Technology on new ways of reaching people.

The future of advertising will be a far cry from network television and newspapers, she said. "We've raise a whole generation of people who look to the electronic medium as a source for entertainment, news and information and now their children are turning to computers."

"The future will probably be a (synthesis) of the two," she said. Finding ways to reach that group will be the big challenge of the coming decades.

Yet another drive-in service caters to our needs,

Drive-in funeral parlors were one from street vendors, to panhandlers of those ideas that never quite caught on, despite the success of drive-in movies, drive-in restaurants, drive-in beer stores, drive-in dry cleaners, drive-in oil changers and drive-in banks.

All this has led to a growing subculture of people who, for one reason or another, take their case, literally, to the streets.

The annual Goodfellows paper drive is generally credited to be among the first recorded instance of achieving stoplight guilt for a local charity. The sight of a middle-aged man cringing in the snow and sleet with a bagful of newspapers is bad enough, but the Goodfellows also are credited with developing the techwere walking down a city street, nique of standing right in the center of the intersection, holding their ground like running with the bulls at Pamplona, and fixing you with The Stare when you had to stop for the light. This leaves you with the option of either paying up, and getting a paper (of course you would have done it anyway) or trying to offset The Stare with the feeble counter of looking straight ahead, sort of like you are looking at TV, with your arms locked until the light changes.

The Goodfellows were quickly followed by the Rotary, the VFW and probably the worst of all, the police and firement selling field day tickets, who add to the intimidation, leaving the impression that you are going to get a ticket if you don't buy

This was also the begining of some sinister undertones, particularly after the rumor started that the rose people were turning over the money to followers of Rev. Sun Moon. I tended to discredit this one, until a rose guy showed up downtown at the on-ramp to I-75 with a sign 'I am not a Mooney." Yeah, sure.

Now comes the beginning of a trend I first noticed in Manhattan, which is a guy with a windshield you at a stoplight, gives a few quick wipes and then fixes you with The Stare.

In the Big Apple, this sort of thing is best done by a tough-looking black kid who is leaning on the window of a naive suburbanite, who has heard stories about how if you don't pay these guys they will snap your windshield wipers off, so they pay up even if it's raining. Seasoned urbanites adopt the basic Goodfellow TV stare, and wait for the light to change. Smart guys turn their windshield wipers on, and then the washer guy usually snaps the wiper blade off.

Now that I think about it, maybe the drive-in funeral parlor might be an idea whose time has come.

Understand your own skills before hiring a PR specialist

Although imitation is the highest form of flattery, it by no means guarantees success when attempting to make news as part of your company's publicity and public relations program.

Rather than finding out what other similar businesses have done in the past, take time to initially identify your existing skills, talents and experience. Do you like to write? If so, you may take advantage of the opportunity to contribute articles about your business or industry to relevant trade publications, newspapers and magazines.

Do you have teaching or training skills? Use them to pursue public speaking opportunities as a seminar leader, luncheon speaker, guest lecturer or workshop instructor. Even an ability to entertain can lead to successful publicity and public relations opportunities.

I am reminded of one suburban mayor, who, as a city council candidate, publicized his political intentions while playing trumpet at various social functions.

THERE ARE several important concerns that must also be addressed prior to the planning and implementation of a company's publicity and public relations program. First someone must be selected to oversee the program. This person would need to maintain full control of the program, be organized but flexible enough to successfully manage last-minute changes when they occur.

Because any good publicity and public relations program is driven by a steady stream of meetings and deadlines involving outside organizations and individuals, the person in charge must be well prepared and, at the same time, very flexible. This person may be the company community relations director, public relations liaison or marketing manager. You may also obtain this type of support from an outside marketing consultant or public relations professional on a perproject or program basis.

In terms of program timing, keep in mind that the publicity and public relations activities associated with a single event may take as much time to plan and execute as several programs. A year ahead is not too soon to begin work; six months ahead is possible, and six weeks ahead is foolish.

From a budgeting perspective, the cost of any given project may range anywhere from zero to several hundred dollars considering the costs of postage, telephone, paper, printing and graphics. Lastly, staffing requirements will depend entirely on the nature of the program you are working on. If you need the assistance of volunteers, excellent sources include local community service groups, senior citizen clubs and student organiza-

Gifting via a trust: Gifting to minors via trusts constitutes the third gift planning strategy. Trusts permit the grantor to postpone the donee's receipt of the trust property at a prespecified age.

Under the terms of a trust, a trustee can by given broad investment powers and through the use of a trust, the donor is able to designate ly strapped after retirement. the distributions of trust property to the minors at the ages considered most desirable by the donor.

Gifts to charity: Gifts to qualified charities offer another important estate planning strategy. As a general rule, gifts to qualified charitles are charitable gifts. deducted from the gross estate before estate taxes are calculated.

Gifts to charities can be made elther outright or through the use of a trust. Depending upon the type of nor, the trust property can assure an among all of the grandchildren a income stream to the donor, the surviving spouse, or other beneficiaries.

remainder trust provides a current income tax deduction equal to the present value of the remainder interest left to the charity. In this case, the donor's estate is reduced by the value of the property transferred, and future income from the asset is taxed to the income beneficiary rather than the donor.

Disadvantage of Gifts: While gift giving has great potential to reduce the donor's income tax and future estate taxes, it has several drawbacks.

A. It is difficult to tell what will happen to Pfizer as a result of the heart valve produce problem. It hasn't sold near as many of its products as Robins did, but the cost per person could be very large.

Pfizer has stated that it believes its reserves and insurance are enough to handle any liability. It is difficult to judge whether that will prove to be the case or not.

IT WOULD seem that is very likely that this matter will take a great deal of management's time and very likely disrupt the business for some period of time. However, the company has some excellent products in the pipeline and is likely to continue to grow.

Pfizer has been a well-managed company, and if I had the stock personally, I would be included to draw out about 125 percent to 150 perent of my original investment and continue the program of holding the balance and reinvesting dividends as you have in the past.

You mention that you have held the stock for 15 years, and that suggest to me that you have tripled or quadrupled your original investing companies. For instance, you might consider Sigma Aldrice. It is in a different business supplying thousands of chemical compounds to businesses for research and testing. It has a record of growing about 15 percent a year for the past two decades and seems capable of continuing that performance.

A very different type of company, but one where growth is excellent, is Safety-Kleen Corp. This company is engaged in the business of disposing of hazardous materials from businesses that produce them as a part of their operation. There seems to be plenty of room for growth and management has been producing good margins.

IF YOU like banks, you also might consider Hibernia Corp. A or NBD Bancorp. Banks are out of favor with investors currently, but this makes them cheaper and these two have excellent mangements and records. Their growth has been at above-average rates.

The month of June ushers in the official start of summer, the days with the maximum hours of sunlight, and the full moon with the lowest altitude of the year.

Two planets, the gas giants Jupiter and Saturn, will be visible in the evening sky this month. Mercury, Venus and Mars will be in the pre-

The amount of sunlight we receive. increases by a mere ten minutes in June. On June 1, sunrise is at 5:58 A.M. and sunset is at 9:02 P.M., allowing for a possible 15 hours and four minutes of sunlight. On June 30 these times are 5:59 A.M. and 9:13 P.M., for a possible 15 hours and 18 minutes of sunlight.

Look toward the eastern horizon on June 1, 45 minutes before sunrise, and you will see brilliant Venus. Above and to the south (right) of Venus is the red planet Mars.

If you draw a line from Mars through Venus and continue in the same direction toward the horizon, you will come to Mercury. Mercury will be a VERY difficult object to see; it is located only one degree above the horizon.

Jupiter is easy to see on the evening of the 1st. The giant planet is located 32 degrees east (left) of the sun, and stands twelve degrees above the horizon 45 minutes after sunset. Twelve degrees above Jupiter is the star Pollux. This is one "head" of the Gemini twins. The other, Castor, is five degrees to the north (right).

JUPITER IS MOVING eastward through the constellation of Gemini. In two week's time Jupiter will be two degrees closer to Pollux, and both will be closer to the horizon.

Twenty degrees to the south (left) of Jupiter, and two degrees closer to the horizon, is a star named Procyon (PRO cee on). Procyon is the eighth brightest star in the sky and, of the naked-eye stars, the fifth closest to us. Its distance is estimated to be eleven light years; the light we see tonight left. Procyon in 1979, the star is approaching us with a velocity of about two miles per second. The name Procyon means "Before the dog" because this star rises shortly before the "dog star" Sirius.

Look for the moon in the the evening of the 2nd. The bright star to the east (left) of the moon is Spica (SPY ka) in Virgo. The moon will be passing near this same spot four weeks from tonight. On the night of the 3rd, the moon will be four degrees directly below Spica. While these two objects may look like they are side by side, they are really trillions of miles apart.

The moon is the nearest object in space to us. It's a mere 240,000 miles away, the distance to Spica, on the other hand, is so great it is difficult to grasp. To make the distance more meaningful, astronomers use a term called a light year. Light travels at the speed of 186,000 miles per SEC-OND. In one year (31,536,000 seconds) light will travel a distance of nearly six trillion miles. Six trillion multiplied by 275 (the estimated number of years it takes light to reach us from Spica) equals 165 trillion miles. And Spica is one of the CLOSER stars to us!

From June 3 through the 6th, the moon moves from Virgo, through Libra, and into Scorpius. The orangered star to the east (left) of the moon, on the evening of the 6th, is Antares (an TAR ees). Antares is about the same brightness and color of Mars. On the following night, the moon will be below and to the east of Antares.

FULL MOON OCCURS at 7:01 A.M. on June 8. The moon is opposite the sun (as seen from the earth) and fully lighted. It will rise in the east as the sun sets in the west, be visible 'all night, and set as the sun rises.

A full moon is always located opposite the sun. Since the sun is at its HIGHEST altitude of the year in June (on the 22nd), the June full moon is always at its LOWEST altitude. Indeed, at midnight when the moon is due south and at its highest point of the night, it will be only 21 degrees above the horizon.

Three hours after sunset on the 10th, Saturn and the moon will be rising in the southwest. The moon will be about three degrees to the south (right) of Saturn. A patient observer, spending the night keeping close watch on the moon, will find it one degree closer to Saturn by the morning of the 11th. Both objects are high in the west southwest.

Eighteen degrees to the north (left) of Venus, on the morning of the 13th, is the Pleiades (PLEE a dees) star cluster. This star cluster marks the shoulder of Taurus and is a beautiful sight in binoculars. Watch as Venus drifts past the Pleiades during the next three weeks.

Last Quarter Moon is a 12:48 A.M. on June 16. The moon is entering the last quarter of its orbit around the earth. It will rise at 1:27 A.M. and be due south at sunrise.

A day in the life of a water molecule

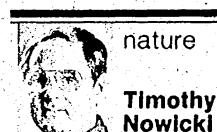

A long time ago I remember being pushed aside as a gigantic long-necked creature came sloshing by. As its four legs whooshed . me into a whirlpool, I began spinning for a time only to be splashed into the air by its tail.

On a hot sunny day not long after that episode, I felt a vibrating sensation and the next thing I knew I began floating up into the sky. It was the first time I ever recallhaving so much space around me.

This would not be the last time I felt this sensation of floating, but the first encounter of any experience is often the most memorable.

As I continued upward I could see the landscape around where I had been for several years.

As I floated higher I could see more but nothing could see me. By now the wind had begun to move me, and several of my kind, toward the horizon. It seemed like I would never reach it. All of a sudden I bumped into a tiny dust particle that had been floating around from some of the volcanic eruptions that had been going on.

The wind had taken me to a much colder area and I began to feel stiff. Not long after I felt that way, I began to have that floating sensation again. I seemed to tumble and drift and glide and swirl for a long time. Finally it stopped.

My location and this confined feeling were new to me. But just when I was getting comfortable with that feeling, the sun began to shine and I began to loosen up.

I noticed several of my kind being shunted in different directions. Some would remain at their stations for years. On the other hand, I kept moving upward. There were some twists and turns and eventually my surroundings be came brighter. I could almost distinguish trees that were close by.

Those were the days long ago. Today I am doing the same things as I did back then, but the scenery and the company is different. As a I reminisce, I often wonder if I will ever meet up with those other water molecules that made up that first snowflake with me.

Mary Frances McCatty likes the challenge of the dances in "Jesus Christ Superstar."

the Birmingham Theatre.
"Dance may not be a sport, but dancers are athletes," she says. McCatty, explains both dancers and athletes require flexibility, precision timing, strength and a high level of fitness. She sees the overlap between dance and sports because she came to dancing by way of gymnastics.

McCatty also comes from a family immersed in sports and involved in music. Her sister, Peggy Hursley, is coordinator for the Birmingham Ice Arena and teaches ice skating there. Brother Steve played for the Oakland A's and as a hobby. Her parents stil live in the run of "Superstar."

When she was young, McCatty remembers being "bat girl for my dad when he coached Class A hardball in Pontiac." Her mother danced "tap and point" as a girl, and McCatty boasts that her mother "was doing cartwheels in the living room until she was in her late 50s." On opening night, 11 enthusiastic relatives came to see McCatty perform her multiple, high-energy dances in "Superstar."

ANYONE INCLINED to dismiss chorus dancing as non-demanding should see the show-stopper routines McCatty does in "Superstar." McCatty admits to getting weary of the undemanding, look-Mary Frances McCatty, who pretty routines often relegated to grew up in Troy, is in town to women dancers in some shows. Not

The challenging dancing is one reason McCatty is delighted to work the show, plus the fact that she gets to sing while dancing. "But dancing's my first love. I love the physicalness of it," she says.

Her dance as a "tormentor"-in the Birmingham Theatre production is decidedly demanding and reminiscent of the style of the late Bob Fosse. In the Tormentor dance, she wears a sult and "dancbrother Don plays banjo and guitar es with the boys in the androgynous number." Before they even get on Troy where McCatty is staying stage, the group must "worm fast through Sunday, June 17, during underneath the raked (tilted toward the audience) stage" to emerge from a trap door amid furling

"We can't see a thing," she says of the danger of leaping smokeblind through the trap door. Add to that the difficulty of dancing on the raked stage. "You feel like you're going to roll right down it," she says, adding they have changed some of the choreography to minimize the danger. McCatty points to the tormentor number as the kind of dancing that keeps her in the business, and she applauds the dy-

'Jesus Christ Superstar' was a role that beckoned

By Ethel Simmons staff writer

APPY TO HAVE his first day off in three weeks, Adrian Zmed was relaxed and enthused as he talked about his starring role in "Jesus Christ Superstar."

Interviewed in the lobby of the Birmingham Theatre, he sprawled comfortably in one of the highbacked chairs there. "It's tough for me to do a show where all you do is sing. It's my first show doing an opera, where I don't speak," he said.

The darkly handsome young performer said he was a kid in 1969 when the rock opera "Jesus Christ Superstar" first came out as a London album - before the Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice musical was ever staged. "I always wanted to do 'J.C.' I flipped over the music

"Playing Christ is a scary thing," he declared. "You have to be up on cross, getting flogged (in Act II), but I got past that. He's a human being, who got to live on this earth."

During the flogging, "I'm five feet from the front row," he said, explaining how he has to make the physical suffering seem real. "It's very physically and emotionally draining for me." After the show is over, "I don't even want to come out for the curtain call."

to the Act I. "The first half is a blast. I'm on top of the world and everyone loves me," he said. In the updated version of the show, Jesus Christ is presented in a rock star image.

ZMED, WHO WAS raised in Chicago, got his Broadway break starring as Danny Zuko in the smash hit "Grease." He had traveled with the second national tour of the show for a year, and played Detroit, before taking over the role in the New York

Son of a Romanian Orthodox minister, Zmed got his theatrical training at the Goodman School of Drama in Chicago. "I just naturally sing and dance very well," he said of his abilities to perform in musical theater and movies. He said he did not study singing or dancing formally but learned to how to sing and do folk dancing in the church. "It was like a little Romania."

At the Goodman Theatre, "They have a wonderful children's theater," Zmed said. Appearing in "The Emperor's New Clothes" and other shows for youngsters, "I was the king of song and dance.'

Back in high school, he had wanted to be a football player but got injured during foodball practice. He was in a body cast for four months and after the cast was removed, when he was still walking with a cane, wandered into a play rehearsal at school. His English teacher cast him in a student production of "Guys

The second act is in sharp contrast and Dolls," and he was on his way to

"I wanted to go to professional acting school and work in regional theater," he said. Instead, he found himself on Broadway, then in television and the movies. As a TV star, he played Officer Vince Romano for five years on "T.J. Hooker." In a change of pace, he took over as host of "Dance Fever" for the last two years of the show that ran 10 years.

He was attracted to "Dance Fever," because, "How often do you get to sing and dance in Hollywood?" The problem was that after "Dance Fever," everyone forgot about his acting skills. "The only offers I got were to be hosts of TV variety shows." Zmed said.

THERE WAS a lull. "I got a chance to get reacquainted with my children," he said. (Zmed and his wife, Barbara, met in Chicago and were married there by his minister father. The couple lives in Los Angeles with their sons, ages 7 and 3.)

In his last year at Goodman, Zmed had struggled unsuccessfully to get his Actors Equity Card. He was already enrolled in college to switch to architecture when the chance came up to go with the national tour of "Grease." "It's one of the greatest parts a guy can do if you can act, sing and dance," he said.

Later, he got to do his form of Danny Zucco, as Johnny in "Grease 2," an original movie musical and sequel to the blockbuster film

"Grease." The plot was about the Tat the high school two years later. can Indian in the military. Although the sequel wasn't the sensation that the original was, "We did $75-80 million in business. It was not a flop." Zmed said that "Grease 2" outdistances "Grease" 10 to 1 in VCR rentals.

Zmed also appeared in the movies in the offbeat comedy "Bachelor Party," with Tom Hanks, and slasher film "The Final Terror," with Daryl Hannah and Rachel Ward. He said, "There's talk of doing a 'Bachelor Party II,' where I get married and Tom throws a party for

The actor's latest film is "Eyewitness to Murder," which is about to be released. He and co-star Andrew Stevens play policemen. Zmed recently completed a sci-fi thriller, cast as a detective. His next movie project is

> THEN, HE WILL go back to the theater, playing Seymour in "The Little Shop of Horrors" at the Muny Opera House in St. Louis. The role of Seymour seems an unlikely one for Zmed, but he has played it before, at the Santa Barbara Theater Festival, and claims, "I can be a nerd with the best of them."

Last fall he appeared off-Broadway as the title character in "Eating Raoul," a movie turned into a musical. "It's a combination of The Little Shop of Horrors' and 'The Rocky Horror Show," he said. Dancer is back in town appearing in 'Superstar'

Valentine has brought the show into the high-tech, media-mad age of televised religion and persecution by publicity. In the updated version, the traditionally male priests, Caiaphas and Annas, have been transformed into a manipulative, TV evangelist couple and the traditional money changers in the temple become Wall Street stockbrokers.

WITH VIDEO MONITORS posted high on both sides of the stage and an on-stage camera to zoom in for close-ups of the action, Valentine's version of "Superstar" expands the controversial rock opera into a multi-media statement about the way technology has tranformed how we treat those we call messiahs, heroes and superstars.

During her years in New York, McCatty has become savvy about auditioning for shows. She says, "I know which shows have a lot of dancing and I know which choreographers I like." She has danced with some of the best and laments, "A lot of wonderful choreographers have died in recent years."

One never-to-be-fulfilled wish is to have danced with Bob Fosse, but she counts herself lucky to have danced with Gregg Burge on German telelvision and with Tommy Tune in "My One and Only." She liked the way Tune treats his casts.

"He hires you because he thinks you can do it, so he gives you a lot of freedom, but he cares about every little thing." McCatty says. "Tommy loves women. He wants all his women to look beautiful. That's nice bewith a really ugly wig or costume."

She admits to enjoying the moments of glamor in "dressing up in sequins and glitter and being 'somebody else or being outrageous." An added pleasure is going back in time. "I feel truly more at home in the '20s, '30s and '40s," she says. As a flapper in "My One and Only," she loved being "peppy and crazy" and believes she physically fit the '20s image. "I'm thin, have little lips, round eyes and thin oval face."

SINCE MCCATTY moved permanently to New York, she has danced in "Guys and Dolls" and "Animal Crackers," in "Sophisticated Ladies" at the Kennedy Center and on a tour of Japan, and in "My One and Only" - big name shows. She has performed in the films "Family Business," "A Shock to the System" and in Spike Lee's "Love Supreme."

How did the gymnast from Troy end up living the life of a Broadway dancer? When McCatty was in high school, her mother suggested she take ballet to enhance her gymnastic skills. That began the circuitous journey to find her niche in dance.

From ballet, she discovered she loved dancing, and after graduating from high school, McCatty enrolled in the Joffrey Ballet School in New York. At five feet eight and 124 pounds, she is trim and leggy, but she didn't look the part of the classic ballerina. "I was taller and bigger than any girl there," she says. "And I didn't like the stuffy attitude. It was too serious." So she left the school and came home to Troy - knowing she wanted to dance but not knowing where she fit in.

Then she auditioned to be a De-cause you know you won't get stuck troit Pistons Cheerleader and got the job — a radical shift from classic ballet. Even though the Pistons only * won 16 games during the 1979-80 season, she enjoyed being a cheerleader for the season. But she & wanted to dance, so she returned to the New York to study jazz and tap under Phil Blade. "I had the technique ? from ballet and the strength from 6 gymnastics and I found fun people 5 and freedom in movement.

> Her first dance job was at the Atlantic City Playboy Club where she 🗓 danced for a year in "a million dol- " lar Vegas-type show with clothes." 4 Meanwhile she realized she needed & to develop her talents. She began i taking voice and acting lessions in 5 addition to dance classes. "It's a mistake for performers not to take class," she says, and studies both : jazz and tap.

WHEN IN A SHOW, she loves the 1 life of a dancer. Between shows she does occasional modeling jobs and o performs at parties through an en- 2 tertainment company. The reality is, v "You're either doing a show, on un- o employment, or looking for work."

When she is looking for work, "Auditions can be brutal about 50 percent of the time." As she describes it, "You walk out on stage all by yourself and see only shadows of people ! in the dark audience. Then you sing ? eight or so bars of a song until they cut you off. You might hear a 'Thank ' you.'

Recently she began auditioning through an agent for principal parts in shows. That ups the ante, but McCatty's a veteran now of the business and says, "I usually don't take auditions personally.

Spartans grab 1st WLAA crown

Lisa Christensen (middle) of Livonia Stevenson has leg up on the competition during a heat Tuesday in 100-meter hurdles at the Western Lakes Activities Association meet at Centennial Educational Park in Canton. Christensen and her Stevenson teammates captured the team title, their first-ever WLAA crown.

By Brad Emons staff writer

Last year a thunderstorm cut short Livonia Stevenson's bid to win the Western Lakes Activities Association girls track championship.

But lightning wouldn't strike twice as the Spartans won their first-ever WLAA crown Tuesday under clear skies, holding off a stern challenges from hosts Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton.

Stevenson, which had to settle for second in last year's storm-shortlowed by Salem (146.20) and Canton (111.5). Farmington was a distant fourth with 71.20. See statistical

"It's been a long time," said Stevenson coach Paul Holmberg. "We won the Inter-Lakes, the old league we used to be in 10 years in a row, but never in this league.

"What makes this nice is that this team works extremely hard. They're very coachable."

Stevenson trailed much of the night until the 200-meter dash - the 13th of 16 events — when Lisa Christensen, Debbie Walsh and Nicole Todd combined for 13 points, finishing fourth, fifth and sixth, respectively. That offset the 10 points Salem's Andrea Kinnelly picked up by finishing second.

AND BY THE time the meet's final event, the 1,600 relay, had rolled around, all the Spartans needed was to finish one place ahead of Salem.

Stevenson's foursome of Christensen, Julie Martin, Tracy Clark and won the 100 in 12.31 and anchored Becky Adamczyk made sure the team trophy was in their possession, nosing out Farmington Harrison for first place with a time of 4:14.31.

"I was crying before the race," said Christensen, the lead-off leg. "I just wanted to win. I had a pretty good day, but for our team to win, that's what we really wanted."

Tears flowed among the Stevenson contingent after Adamczyk held off Harrison's Audra Cockerham at the wire. Farmington wound up third in the race and Salem was fourth.

"It was exciting, nerve-wracking," ened meet, came back strong to said Stevenson's Jessann Martin, score a team-high 154.5 points, fol- who won the shot put (35 feet, 31/4 inches) and discus (125-5). "I told my sister (Julie Martin) to just do your best, we got to win it."

> 'WE GOT SOME points where we. didn't expect to get points, and we didn't score where I thought we'd score some points," said Holmberg. "We got a second (Todd) in the 100 (dash) where we had just hoped to score, and we placed three girls in

> "And we just had fantastic senior leadership with Nicole Todd, Tracy (Clark), Jessann (Martin) and Lisa (Christensen). That was important."

Christensen was nosed out by Salem's Jennifer Harris in the 100 hurdles, but came back to beat Harris in the 300 hurdles.

Clark, a regional champion in the 800, was not at her best, but picked up eight valuable points by finishing fifth in both the 800 and 1,600 runs. Salem, meanwhile, made a serious challenge thanks to a strong showing by freshman Yolanda Jackson, who the victorious 400 and 800 relays. Another standout for the Rocks was Tracey Livermore, who won the long jump (16-7). She was also a member of both winning relay teams as was Tonya Wheeler. (Kim Ploucha was the fourth member of the 400 team.)

"We did just about everything we expected," said Salem coach Mark Gregor. "They (Stevenson) scored some points in the 200 that we didn't expect, and we didn't score in the 400, which hurt us a little bit.

"WE DIDN'T expect to score in the throwing events, but we offset that with our jumpers. Our girls gave it their best shot, unfortunately we were 10 points short."

The Rocks excelled in long jump as Livermore took first. In the high jump. Harris garnered first and tied a league record.

The only WLAA record broken was the 3,200 run, where Farmington senior Jennifer Kiel posted a time of 11:29.78, shattering the mark of 11:39:4, set by Livonia Churchill's Julie Recla in 1984.

Kiel also won the 1,600 run (5:29.1), staving off a late bid by Canton's Amy Smith.

Canton, the Western Division dual meet champs, stayed close throughout the meet, but fell off when two competitors were disqualified for false starts in the 100 hurdles.

"Our two best kids were DQ'd and you hate to see that happen," said Canton coach George Przygodski. "But that's part of track and field. I'm not disputing that part of the meet. I just think we finished where we thought. We gave it our best Patriots, Mercy on collision course again?

By Bob Stebbins staff writer

Is it in the cards again? Farmington Hills Mercy and Livonia Franklin have met in the state softball playoffs four straight years, and another possible Mercy-Franklin showdown looms Saturday in the finals of the Southfield Civic Center district tournament.

"It would be nice to beat Franklin," said Mercy coach Suzanne Brown, "We are tied 2-2 with them." (Franklin and Mercy have split their last four meetings in tournament play.)

The Marlins, however, first have to get past a strong Northville team in the first round.

Even though Mercy beat the Mustangs earlier this season, 6-5, in the Plymouth Invitational, Brown considers her team to be the underdogs in the district opener.

"I don't think we are (the district favorite)," said Brown. "Out of Franklin, Northville and us, I would rate us third right now."

BROWN respects the Mustangs. but said her team could very well get to the finals.

"They (Northville) do have a good team, but I think they are beatable," said the Mercy coach.

Brown is looking for the Marlins' bats to carry her club. Mercy's top hitter is Kathleen Berrigan, who batted .547 and stole 26 bases. Maureen Paulin hit .430 and led the Marlins in RBI.

"I have a hitting ball club this year," she said. "On any given night, it can be spread out."

Mercy will play Northville at noon on Saturday at the Southfield Civic Center. (See tournament pairings on page 6D.)

Meanwhile, Franklin (14-7) should have an easier game in the district opener. The Patriots meet the Blue Jays of Southfield at 9:30 a.m. Satur-

"From what I understand, Southfield, other than the pre-district, has not won a game all year," said Franklin coach Joe Epstein. Epstein considers his club and Northville to be the favorites in the distict.

"FROM WHAT I see, Northville and our team will be co-favorites to win it," he said. "We and Northville split earlier this year, and we have beaten Mercy."

Franklin beat the Mustangs at home, 5-4, earlier in the year, while Northville returned the favor, 1-0, late last month. The Patriots defeated Mercy, 8-2, earlier this season in a game called because of rain after 41/2 innings.

Epstein sald Northville should defeat Mercy, but he doesn't rule out the Marlins.

"It is not out of the realm of possibility that they could beat Northville, but I noticed that Northville's young pitcher (Rozann Staknis) is getting stronger and stronger," saidthe Franklin coach. "She has really been coming on."

The Franklin mentor points to fielding as the leading factor in his

"The key for us is that we have to play much better defensively," said Epstein. "Our pitcher (Jenny Mayle) has been good all year and proven herself. I'm not concerned about her in the least."

THE MERCY COACH pegged the Patriots as the team to beat.

"Franklin's the favorite", said Brown. "Their pitcher throws pretty hard, but I don't think they have the exceptional fielders and hitters they have had in the past."

The Patriots' leading hitter heading into the districts will be Karen Brown, who hit .417 for the season. "She is very fast and gets a lot of infield hits," said Epstein. On the mound, Mayle ended up with a 0.76 earned run average and gave up 44 runs for the season, with 27 of those being unearned. She struck out 130 and walked 44. The winner of the Southfield-Franklin clash will advance to the championship game at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday. The district winner will move on to the Wyandotte Roosevelt Regional to play the winner of the Westland John Glenn district on Saturday, June 9.

Angler snags monster bass

EMORIAL DAY 1990 will be a very memorable day for Rochester angler Steve Rock.

Fishing with a brand new ultralight rod and reel and some thin four-pound test line, Rock already had a half dozen nice 8- and 9-inch blue gill when something big hit his

"I felt a tap, leaned back and stung him," Rock said. "He started moving off like a freight train. I knew it was something big. I thought it was a pike, because I knew there were some pretty big pike in the lake.

"He kept moving away and buzzing line off my reel. I hollered at the wife to pull up the anchor so we could start moving toward him before I ran out of line."

The fish stayed deep in the water, but after a strenuous 10-minute battle he finally surfaced and Rock was face-to-face with a monster largemouth bass. "It's definitely the biggest bass I've ever caught," admitted Rock.

The fish was 23-inches long and tipped the scale at 5.75-pounds, just a quarter-pound short of Master Angler honors. Rock caught the fish on a No. 10 hook tipped with a leaf worm.

"We were fishing for meat," explained Rock, who admitted he has a penchant for blue gill. "I usually don't fish for bass because they aren't that great eating, but I'll take one like this anytime."

The bass hit around 2:30 in the afternoon.

"The fish were in a feeding frenzy," added Rock. "I don't follow the solunar charts, but if I could look it up, I'd bet we were in a high solunar period at that time because everything was hitting.'

come the cornerstone of this special weekend," explained Director David Hales of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. "Last year, fishing instruction and fishing values were passed along to nearly 10,000 new anglers at 45 free fishing events. That's a great investment in the future of Michigan's fishing."

During Free Fishing Weekend, Michigan's fifth such event, residents and non-residents can fish in the state's waters without purchasing a fishing license or trout stamp.

DNR statistics indicate that better than two million anglers fish Michigan waters annually.

More than 50 game fish varities are available to anglers ranging in size from tiny sun fish that average five-inches in length to the giant lake sturgeon that tops out at a state record 193-pounds.

Michigan features 38,000 miles of Great Lake waters, 12,000 inland lakes and 36,000 miles of rivers including 12,600 miles of trout

For the first time since 1981, Redford Catholic Central has captured the Catholic League A-B Division baseball title.

The Shamrocks, thanks to 17 hits Wednesday, defeated Harper Woods

Notre Dame, 19-2, at Tiger Stadium. The game was completed in five innings due to the 10-run mercy rule.

CC jumped on the Irish early, scoring three runs in the first inning on just one hit.

Junior Joe Vondracek's basesloaded single to left field scored Keith Bozyk and Paul Pirronello. Matt Fennelly scored on a Notre Dame error later in the inning.

The Shamrocks (21-9, 15-6) added to their lead by scoring seven runs in the second, two in the third, four in the fourth and three in the fifth.

JOHN DISCHER/staff photographer

"I REALLY didn't think the game would go like this," CC coach John Salter said. "I was more concerned that it wouldn't be the other way

Notre Dame starter Matt Ziolkowski lasted just 11/3 Innings. He faced 15 CC hitters and gave up eight runs, four hits and five walks.

Marc Gunn and Ryan Braathen pitched the remainder of the game for the Irish. They combined to allow 11 runs, 13 hits and six walks.

"We didn't play well," Notre Dame coach Tony Mardirosian said. "This is a tough loss and not something I feel much like talking about."

The Irish didn't help their cause in the field, as they committed three

KEITH BOZYK earned the victory for CC, hurling five innings and giving up just two runs and three hits. The senior righthander collected five strikeouts.

"Keith did a good job on the mound," Salter said, "He threw strikes and that is what you have to do in a game like this."

Bozyk was also pleased with his performance, as well as the win.

"It's not tough getting up for a championship game like this," he said. "I felt good and was comfortable out there."

Notre Dame (22-6, 16-5) scored its runs in the second and fifth innings. Gunn scored in the second, while Jeff Mertz crossed the plate in the Bozyk, Pirronello, Fennelly, Vondracek and Mark Clary each had two hits to lead the Shamrocks. Fennelly pounded a ground-rule double in the second innings that bounced into the rightfield seats. Brett Welling also doubled for the Shamrocks.

"THIS IS the best hitting team we've had at CC in about eight or > nine years," Salter said. "Even our : substitutes at the end of the game hit; the ball." Dennis Pirronello, Corbin Elliottic and Scott Kapla all came off the s bench and singled in the fifth inning a for CC.

The Shamrocks begin the state v playoffs Saturday when they take on 3 Livonia Churchill at Southfield.

"This game gives us plenty of momentum heading into Saturday's game," Bozyk said. "We are riding

With the Class A Tennis Championships slated for Friday and Saturday at the Midland Tennis Center, it appears that Redford Catholic Central will make some noise.

According to coach Frank Garlicki, the Shamrocks will put plenty of stock in their Nos. 2 and 3 doubles teams. The No. 2 team of Jayson Torres and Chris Alonte are 10-1 this season, while the No. 3 team of Chip-Shade and Chris Matson is 9-2.

"Our greatest strength comes from our doubles players," he said. "They should give us a boost."

The No. 2 doubles team is seeded third and will get a bye in the first round. The No. 3 team is seeded sixth and will play Grand Blanc in the opening round.

CC IS ALSO expected to get contributions from No. 1 singles player Paul Bozyk and No. 2 singles player gional, therefore they won't be seeded," Hayes said. "Much of our hope lies in the first round. If the seedings work in our favor, we can maybe get tennis through the opening round and get to the better players." Marko Habekovic.

ACCORDING TO Hayes, No. 3 singles player Scott Jones may surprise a few people.

"Lane has a 12-1 record," the coach said. "He's a scrappy player and you just never know what can

Defending champs win league opener

Defending regular-season champ Hines Park Lincoln-Mercury and reigning post-season champ Walter's Home Appliance opened the Livohia Collegiate Baseball League season with victories Friday.

Derek Darkowski and David Houghtby were the winning pitchers as Hines Park defeated Duffy's Plumbing and Walter's blasted Tom Holzer Ford 8-1.

The other scheduled game resulted in a forfeit victory for Little Caesars over Wendy's of Ann Arbor, which didn't have enough players at game time.

pitcher, scattered Duffy's five hits over five innings and walked only one. He struck out eight.

Todd Marion, who set a singleseason save record for the University of Michigan this year, pitched two innings of no-hit ball as the closer for Hines Park. He fanned three and walked none.

DEREK HUMPHRIES and Mike Culver, both former teammates at Plymouth Canton, had two hits and one RBI for the winners. Kevin Learned and Mike Gray chipped in RBI sacrifice flies.

baseball

Steve Michelz drove in a run for Duffy's with a double, and Mike Siwajek hit an RBI single.

Doug McGregor worked five innings and suffered the loss, allowing four of Hines Park's five hits and three walks. John Schefka finished Houghtby checked Holzer Ford Darkowski, the Michigan State on two hits over four innings for Walter's. Holzer took a 1-0 lead in the second inning, but Walter's got two in the top of the second for Houghtby, who walked two and struck out one.

Chad Wrona pitched the last two innings in relief of Houghtby, striking out four against just one walk. Ken Dropiewski had two hits, including a triple, scored three runs and knocked in a run for Walter's: John Gotts' two-run single keyed a five-run sixth inning that sealed the victory.

Holzer Ford's run was unearned, coming on an error.

CC, Falcons favored in Southfield District

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

The prospect of a Redford Catholic Central-Farmington showdown for a district baseball championship would also be a battle for Observerland supremacy.

The two powers have emerged as the area's top teams this year, but they might not get to the final of the Southfield tournament if they look too far ahead Saturday.

A pair of Livonia schools would like a district title just as much. In the first game, Franklin opposes Farmington at 9:30 a.m., and Churchill tackles CC at noon. The final is scheduled for 2:30 p.m.

"People are going to take an objective look and say it's a probability," said Farmington coach Kevin Kansman of seeing the Shamrocks in the final. "But, when it's one game and it's over, you can never do that. We're going there to play two, but we're not playing the second game before the first one."

The Falcons won the Western Lakes Activities Association crown and own a 19-2 record. CC, which played for the Catholic League title Wednesday, was 21-9 going into that

BUT CHURCHILL has won its last five games to improve its record to 7-10 and counts a victory over Farmington among its successes. Franklin is 8-12 but lost a number of one-run games.

"We're just happy we're there," Churchill coach Herb Osterland said. "We were 0-7 at the start of the year. but our ballclub has gotten stronger as we've gone along.

"If the kids continue to play the way they have the last few games, we'll hold our own. There's more pressure on them than on us."

CC is expected to throw Keith Bozyk against the Chargers, but coach John Salter was waiting to see how the pitching situation played out Wednesday. Bozyk is 5-2 with 83 strikeouts and 38 walks in 53 innings.

"I might think about saving him for the second game, but that's always a gamble," Salter said. "I'll think about it a few days before deciding."

The Shamrocks, who were Class A champs three years ago and semifinalists last year, are led offensively by the Pirronello brothers. Paul, a senior, is hitting .457 and leads the team with 28 RBI, and Dennis, a junior, carries a .372 average.

CC HAS SIX others hitting between .270 and .330, and the Shamrocks, with a .298 team average, are the most potent club CC has fielded in several yéars, Salter said.

"From what I've heard, (the Chargers) have a good left-hander," he said. "Left-handers are usually tough because you don't see that many of them, especially if they have a good breaking ball.' The pitcher is junior Mike Thomas, who is 4-2 after starting 0-2. He's walked only two in his last two outings while striking out 12. Osterland isn't afraid to use Dan Ackerman on the mound, and freshman Mark.

Rutherford is 2-0. Salter also knows about Churchill first baseman Jason Gabel, a senior hitting .475 and leading the Chargers with 27 RBI and seven doubles. Third baseman Russ McQuaid has less at-bats than Gabel (60-38) but is hitting .474. "Jason has one of the liveliest bats

I've ever seen," Osterland said. Farmington's ace is senior Chris Schmid, who is 7-0, Kansman might throw Kevin Young (5-0 with one save) against Franklin and hold Schmid for the final.

"Even though people might say you're not pitching Chris because you're looking past the first game, someone has to pitch the second game if you win the first," he said. You have to have some strategy."

YOUNG AND Schmid have been; the team leaders at the plate besides the mound. Young is batting .540 and leads in runs scored, RBI and stolen : bases. Schmid, who also plays first base, is the second-leading hitter at Kansman said the loss to Churchill late in the season taught the Falcons "

"We have a good team and we're having a good year, but we're not looking at the (total) year," he said. "We have to treat each game as it comes. We'll celebrate when it's over. Right now we have to go out on any given day and play."

Tad Dennis is the likely starter for Franklin. He's 3-2 and has ptiched well against good teams, coach Gerry Cullin. Steve McCool has a 3-1 record.

M.S. research Marathoners aid

By M.B. Dillon staff writer

Under the French system of socialized medicine, handicapped people are placed in convalescent centers or homes for the disabled in sparsely populated areas. Public buildings aren't accessible to the handicapped, and curb cuts are unheard of. People in wheelchairs are a rare sight.

So imagine the amazement of spectators at the Paris Marathon earlier this month when they realized a wheelchair entrant with multiple sclerosis was among the thousands of competitors in the 26.2-mile

For the second straight year, Jim Keskeny completed the marathon with the help of more than a dozen semi-pro football players. Members of "Les Dogues de Suresnes" took turns pushing the 45-year-old Pinckney resident along the fabled boulevards of Paris. They did it in 3:35, knocking 20 minutes off last year's time.

It also marked the second time Keskeny assembled an "M.S. Squad" of marathoners and raised money for multiple sclerosis research.

M.S. is the most common handicapping disease of the central neryous system among young adults in the United States. Nearly 200 new cases are diagnosed each week.

Keskeny and runners John Peters of Plymouth Township, Larry Van Horn of Troy, and Ed and Donna Goettl of Lake Orion raised more than $13,000 in pledges from supporters across the United States, Canada and France.

This year's squad was sponsored by Siemens Automotive, a global automotive electronics systems supplier based in Troy, and British Air-Keskeny, an investment manager and counselor, took a disability retirement from Ford Motor Co. in 1977. The University of Michigan graduate was diagnosed with M.S. in 1966.

The home he shares with wife Nancy is equipped with an elaborate ramp system that enables him to wheel from floor to floor. Keskeny_ also uses the ramps for workouts.

MARATHONERS BEGAN the May 6 race in the shadows of the Arc de Triomphe.

While the temperature climbed into the mid-80's, they ran along the Champs d' Elysees, past the mayor's palace, along the Right Bank of the River Seine, The Tour Eiffel and the French kings' old hunting preserve before reaching the finish line on the Avenue de Foch, Paris' answer to Park Avenue.

"Cobblestones were everywhere, intermittently along the whole course," said Keskeny, who's still sore from the experience.

"There were a good 10 miles of real nasty ones. I seriously believe the French found a way to inject their cobblestones with steroids.

"The Dogues were intent on beating their times from last year, so we were flying," he said.

"My front wheels were vibrating. Those suckers were rattling like they were going to fly off. If the cobblestones were doing that to my chair, imagine what they did to my body. I was a little bloody, but they didn't dump me."

Keskeny describes the finish line. "on a wide boulevard that just reeks of money," as "a dream you might have had sometime. It was like a movie. It was too good to be true. Somehow the Dogues worked it out so that everyone who pushed me took the Metro or subway from whatever point they were along the course to the finish line.

"As we came the last 100 or 200 yards, they were jumping up and down in the air, cheering and yelling. They were happier than I was, really enthused about what we'd done."

Keskeny and the Dogues beat the rest of the M.S. Squad, all able-bodied runners. Peters crossed the finish line in 4:10. Van Horn and the Goettls finished together in 4:50.

MOST GRATIFYING for Keskeny was the realization that in just a year's time, awareness of the handicapped has increased in France.

"At our hotel, the Meridien Paris Etoile, our host Jean-Pierre Waldbauer told me he remembered something I'd said last year. He said. 'I remember you said you're not disabled, you're differently abled.' It really pleased me, naturally," said Keskeny, who was asked by hotel management to advise them on ways to make their rooms and facilities handicapped accessible.

"They're starting to employ handicapped people, including a few with M.S., on the switchboard and behind the scenes," Keskeny added.

What's more, the Dogues and the French Multiple Sclerosis Society have staged benefit football games during the past year to raise money for research.

'Something like that is surprising, because from everything I've heard, if you had multiple sclerosis, you were shoved off into the back room and forgotten about," said Keskeny. "Now, almost every weekend there are high society benefit dinners. movie premieres and concerts. That was unheard of a few years ago."

Keskeny said he was treated like a star by government, marathon and M.S. officials, the Dogues and fellow runners.

"To have all the different people touched by it respond as favorably to the idea was really an unbelievably satisfying feeling," Keskeny said. "It amazed me that we could create such interest and enthusiasm."

The London-based International Federation of Multiple Sclerosis Societies is among those caught up in the excitement. In commemoration of the organization's 25th anniversary in 1992, it plans to send Keskeny and an M.S. Squad to marathons in Paris, Berlin, Sydney, Rio de Janeiro, London and New

As for Siemens, sponsoring the squad was a pleasure, said Tim Leuliette, company president.

"As corporate sponsors of the M.S. Paris Marathon, it has been extremely satisfying to be able to help raise the consciousness of the public regarding this debilitating disease on a worldwide basis. And it has been particularly moving to watch M.S. marathoners like Jim Keskeny take such a positive approach to life."

Roll Call Report

WASHINGTON - Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending May 18. HOUSE:

TRANSMITTABLE DISEASES -By a vote of 199 for and 187 against, the House adopted an amendment permitting employers to switch workers with transmittable diseases such as AIDS from food-handling positions to other jobs at no loss of pay.

This occurred as the House debated legislation (HR 2273) to protect the estimated 43 million disabled Americans against discrimination in public accommodations, on the job and in receiving basic services. The Americans With Disabilities Act remained in debate.

A yes vote supported the amendment. Area Michigan members voting yes were Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods; William Broomfield, R-Birmingham; William Ford, D-Taylor and Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

Voting against the amendment was Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth.

TO TAP COSTS — By a vote of 187 for and 213 against, the House rejected an amendment to limit the cost to businesses of accommodating disabled worker under the Americans with Disabilities Act (above). The cost of providing for a handicapped employee was to have been capped at 10 percent of the pay for the job in question.

A yes vote was to cap the bill's cost to employers.

Broomfield voted yes while Hertel, Ford and Levin voted no. Pursell did not vote.

SENATE:

DEALING WITH AIDS — By a vote of 47 for and 52 against, the Senate rejected an amendment making it a federal crime for individuals to donate blood if they know they have AIDS or its virus, take drugs by needle or are prostitutes.

The Senate then approved language inducing states to ensure the purity of blood and organ donations. This occurred as the Senate passed.

by a near-unanimous vote, a bill (S 2240) authorizing $1.2 billion over two years to help states and cities cope with AIDS. Sponsor Jesse Helms, R-N.C., sald a federal solution is needed to protect the nations blood supply.

Opponent Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said the amendment extends federal authority "into an area best left to state regulation."

Aye votes supported federal criminal penalties for certain blood donors. Both Michigan Senators Donald ' Riegle-D, and Carl Levin-D voted no.

DRUG USERS — By a vote of 28 for and 70 against, the Senate rejected an amendment to S 2240 (above) to prevent state and local governments from providing intravenous drug users with sterile needles or bleach for cleaning needles. Governments doing that were to have been denied the bill's funding for AIDS

This amendment went beyond the bill's ban on using any of its $1.2 billion-plus for distributing clean needles to addicts. The bill does not address the practice of providing bleach to needle users.

A yes vote supported the amendment. Both Riegle and Levin voted TREATY COMPLIANCE - By a vote of 56 for and 39 against, the Senate tabled a measure condemning the Soviet Union for apparently violating the U.S.-Soviet INF (intermediate-range nuclear force) arms reduction treaty. U.S. inspectors reportedly were barred from checking missiles shipped from the Votkinsk factory March 9-10. The vote occurred as the Senate debated and approved without dissent a bill (HR 3033) to slow the global spread of chemical and biological weapons.

Senators voting to kill the measure said it could undercut arms talks at the upcoming superpower summit, while supporters argued the Votkinsk incident casts doubt on Soviet compliance with any new trea-

A yes vote was against condemning the Soviet Union. Both Levin and Riegle voted yes.

Lake Luxury

Updating Turner's design, Wright's influence

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

EFORE HE SET ABOUT building beautiful houses in the metropolitan Detroit area some 30 years ago, Harold Turner worked for and with Frank Lloyd Wright for about 15 years.

In fact, Turner was the builder of the house that Wright designed for the Affleck family in Bloomfield Hills, which now belongs to Lawrence Technological Universi-

So, it's natural that houses designed and built by Turner have a Wright feeling. While Turner put something of himself into these houses and modified the master's designs, the Wright influence is

A CASE IN point is Alan Forrester's house on Lower Long Lake. Almost two years' worth of refurbishment, enhancement and several outstanding additions have been completed.

Birmingham-based architect Frank Carnovale, AIA, sighed a bit as he thought back on all the study and the challenges this project demanded, then said quickly, "It was a tremendous amount of fun."

The intent from the beginning for Forrester, Carnovale and interior designer Shirley Maddalena was to maintain the integrity of the house, which is on a rise about 50 above the shoreline.

"It is built on an octagonal grid - everything is a hexagon," Carnovale said.

Most of the angles are either 60 or 120 degrees. The exterior and some interior walls are coal-fired brick. This firing process gives it a multi-color look, ranging from deep terra cotta to pale lavender, beige and gray green.

Pecky cypress, a favorite Wright material, is used lavishly inside and on the underside of the roof's 4foot overhang. In true Wright style, the house almost seems to fold itself into the rolling terrain.

more garage spaces and a hobby room on the far side in the same style as the original.

"One thing Turner did was put a rush mat on the ceiling," Forrester said. "I didn't feel bad about taking that out and putting up dry wall."

The mat was impractical, he used that very successfully throughout the house.

THE INTERIOR RENOVA-TION included every room but the kitchen. Walls were moved, the pecky cypress replaced and stained in many areas. It's not an easy commodity to find. They finally had it milled and kiln dried in Arkansas and shipped here, Carnovale said.

Carnovale said that as he and Maddalena worked together, "We used Wright's vocabulary and brought it into this century.'

Q. i

The new master bathroom is an example of that. It has the odd angles expected in a Wright room, but it is larger and far more gracious than its oredecessor.

"We took every single thing out and redid it completely," Maddalena said.

The walls and floor are a buff marble, a match to the bleached pecky cypress. The counter tops are rosaco marble, which looks like warm apricot, and the sinks are a jade marble with gold fitt-

The open shower, 6 by 6 feet with two shower heads, has a half marble wall and a recessed step into it. A Wright-like block design is inlaid in the marble on the back shower wall and repeated on the half-wall. A large recessed skylight gives the master bath a soft, luminous look.

BECAUSE FORRESTER so admires Wright's famous house in Pennsylvania, Falling Water, he has created what he calls "Falling Water II."

In addition to all new decking and improved and enlarged terraces down to the lake, two hydro spas have been added, an indoor one off the master bedroom and an outdoor one off the lower level family room.

have been built on both sides of the house. They are maintained by two pumps on a recirculating system, so no water goes into the lake. "The water comes up against the house in a number of different places," Carnovale said. "That's what Wright did at Falling Water and that's what we tried to do here," Forrester said.

Forrester has commissioned works for his house. One marble sculpture in the living room by David Sabaroff is titled "Falling Wa ter." Another imposing marble sculpture by Jay Lefkowitz, a local artist, stands like a graceful sentinel near the front door.

New indoor hydro spa has a private view of "falling water."

The newly created waterfall is in a picturesque setting.

3 Michigan authors on Sunday programs

Authors Tom Sullivan of Lathrup Village, Ann duMais McCormick of Grosse Pointe and Beaufort Cranford of Birmingham will read from their latest novels at 6:15 p.m. Sunday at Borders Book Shop of Novi. A reception for authors and audience will follow the readings. To register to attend, call 347-0789.

Though they all live in Michigan, these authors have widely different writing styles. McCormick, who lives with her husband and two teenage sons, looks at women's friendships in her new novel, "Northern Exposure." It's about two best friends," she said, "and how their relationship changes through husbands, bables and the losses of adult westerns to social satire. "My writing is diverse," he said, "I don't fit into any particular category. Paradoxically, this seems also to have meant that I fit into all of them." "Born Burning" is about a family torn apart by their fears and suspicious about a bizarre family heirloom. Sullivan describes the story as "incidious and psychological." Sullivan first book, "The Phases of Harry Moon," has been very successful.

Though he has been living and working in Michigan for many years, Cranford returned to his native Georgia for the setting of his first novel, "The Rattlesnake Master."

"The South is what I know, most of the time in a first novel, a writer will draw heavily on what he knows best," Cranford said. "The Rattlesnake Master" has the people, idioms and surroundings I'm most familiar with."

Like T.R. Pearson's "A Short History of a Small Place," Cranford's book focuses on small town life in the South. "It's really several stories, that, by the end of the book, become one story," he said.

Dybek remembers adolescence

"The Coast of Chicago" by Stuart Dybek (173 pp., Alfred A. Knopf, $17.95).

Although the lazy, hazy days are almost upon us, I am not, repeat not, going to recommend that you add Stuart Dybek's "The Coast of Chicago" to your summer reading list.

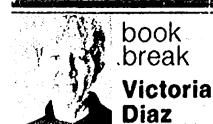

Rather, I am going to strongly advise that you run-don't walk to your nearest library or bookstore and grab a copy of this short story collection now. Should you pass it up, you will have missed so very much.

In these 14 stories and vignettes, Dybek (who, when not writing, teaches Engtish at Western Michigan University) takes the reader to the dream-like nevernever land of a remembered adolescence in the Windy City during the 50s and 60s.

Dybek's work differs from much contemporary fiction in one important respect: he writes almost always of people who, though existing in a large urban milieu, remain essentially ethnic neighborhood people. His characters here, as in his first collection, "Childhood and Other Neighborhoods," are not the usual jaded urban souls, or the troubled spirits of modern day Academe, as are seen in so much of today's literary short fiction.

In "The Coast of Chicago," his characters seem to be poised somewhere between then and now, between adolescence and adulthood, between innocence and knowledge. And, though these are certainly not ghost stories in the usual sense, his characters have about them a ghostly quality. But they are ordinary at the same time that they are bizarre, charmingly mundane at the same time that they are surreal.

Begin with "Chopin in Winter," set "in Mrs. Kubiac's building on Eighteenth Street" during a winter in which Mrs. Kubiac's unmarried daughter, Marcy, comes home, pregnant and disgraced, from a New York college where she has been studying music. The narrator, as a young boy, spends the winter evenings listening to her play Chopin's preludes, polonaises, mazurkas, waltzes, nocturnes, ballades in the apartment above the one in which he lives with his mother and his unspeaking grandfather. When winter is over and Marcy moves away, the music seems to remain in the airshafts, the walls and ceilings, the pipes, the flues, the dark hallways of the old building. And, after the echoes of the music finally fade away, "a pure silence beyond daydream and memory" remains. "Even after I no longer missed her," the narrator relates, "I could still hear the silence . . .

In "Blight" (which won Dybek the 1985 Nelson Algren Award for fiction), four young friends are perplexed to discover that their neighborhood/world has been proclaimed an Official Blight Area by Chicago's Mayor Daley.

"They call this blight?" says one of them, "Hey, man, there's weeds and trees and everything . . . "

Perhaps more than any other story in the collection, "Blight" reveals Dybek's great gift for dialogue, plus his fine ability to create characters that seem to walk right off the page. One of the most memorable of these is Ziggy Zilinsl.y.

Even though Zig is just one of the boys, he wasn't really "reliable" even in the days before Pepper Rosado accidentally beaned him with a baseball bat. Zig sees Nikita Khrushchev on the streets of Chicago fairly often, along with Bo Diddley and Dwight Eisenhower, and Mayor Daley rummaging around in alleyway garbage cans. Plaster saints in the neighborhood churches often wink at him, too. But his biggest problem is a recurrent nightmare: on the night the Sox win the pennant, Chicago is nuked, and Comiskey Park is at ground zero.

The story, vivid and dream-like at once, is one of Dybek's personal favorites, he has said, because it manages to "defeat time, and capture the past."

Other stories in the collection include: "Hot Ice," a winner in "Prize Stories: The O. Henry Awards" for 1985, which has at its center a drowned neighborhood girl whose body is rumored to be sequestered away in an abandoned, neighborhood ice house.

"Death of a Right Fielder," an offbeat, tragic comic tale with a special appeal for anyone who has ever played right field in a neighborhood baseball game.

"Pet Milk," the concluding story in the collection, was included in the O. Henry collection for 1986. The story focuses on a young man who appears to be on the brink of leaving "the old neighborhood" to make his way in the "real" world.

"Today I've been drinking instant coffee and Pet milk, and watching it snow," it begins.

Irresistible opening lines. Irresistible story, too.

25% CA5H REBATE ON REAL ESTATE COMMISSIONS

By J. R. Paine Realtor and Broker

Imagine getting 25% of the commission you paid your broker rebated back to you at closing! While there are no fixed commission rates, most Brokers charge six percent of the sale price of your home as commission at the time of closing. There are few homeowners who do not experience a pang of remorse as they watch a big piece of the gain from the sale of their home spent on real estate commissions. For instance, on a $200,000 home, the homeowner has to pay $12,000 in commission. Wouldn't it be wonderful to have the Broker hand you a cash rebate of $3,000 at closing?! Most homeowners will say yes, I want it.

Move over GM, Ford and Chrysler. HMS is ushering in its exclusive real estate commission rebate program. It is known as the "HMS Cashback Listing" in and all homes visted under this exclusive program are guaranteed a 25% cash rebate at closing out of the full commission paid for complete real estate services. The "HMS Cashback Listing" guarantees each homeowner full real estate multilisting services plus the full-time services of efficient, experienced, and professional Realtors, attorneys, agents, as well as mortgage and title experts. With HMS, you list, sell, close and movel The HMS staff works around the clock when necessary to consumate the sale of the home.

The "HMS Cashback Listing" program starts on May 21, 1990 and ends on July 21, 1990. It is a special program designed to add some excitement to the 1990 homeselling season. Homes are selling well despite interest rates and despite gloom and doom predictions by some self-serving groups.

- HMS, Home Marketing Specialists Inc. is leading America toward lowering the high cost of selling homes. HMS sells homes priced from $70,000 to $2,000,000 everywhere in Michigan, At HMS, homeowners can choose from several home marketing programs that best fit their requirements. At HMS, each home receives customized services because each home is special in its own way.

HMS has offices throughout the tri-county area. HMS' national office is located at 26222 Telegraph Road in Southfield. You can call (313) 353-7170 to reach HMS. In North Oakland County, you can call (313) 656-3030. In Macomb County, call (313) 228-2090 and in Wayne County, call (313) 592-0929.

The HMS commission rebate program is the first of its kind in the history of real estate sales. Who but HMS would have thought of it!

all about color Helen Diane Vincent

QUALITY AND HONESTY...

Q: We're renovating our vacation cottage near Traverse City. By all accounts it is very ordinary, but we would like to make something more out of it without a major investment in renovations. The two-story, woodframe building is surrounded by tall pine trees and is open to a view of Lake Michigan. What are your recommendations using color to achieve a fresh, more elegant look?

A: When no particular architectural style or traditional setting prevails, it's highly advisable to take color clues from the natural environment. For most people, the environmental, or biogeographical approach is usually overlooked in favor of traditionally acceptable colors or trendy colors. Only by chance are environmentally colors used when they happen to be incorporated within these other categories.

In more recent years, an evergrowing body of research and experimental projects on the relationship between the individual and the environment has been conducted by a select group of architects, color consultants, and environmental psychologists. Perhaps without coincidence, al public is becoming more aware of the importance of the environment to their own survival.

We can all learn from some of the techniques these professionals use. One of these techniques is the semantic scale. All this means is that you psychologically classify your response to the environment under consideration. You end up with an inventory, or profile which helps you decide how to approach your color — and design — problem. For example, you ask, to what extent do you percejve your cottage setting as warm, or cool? Is it spacious, or closed-in? Is it dramatic or cheerful?

Once you objectively describe what you are dealing with, you then ask, to what extent do you need to exaggerate or minimize the dominant feature. After all, you must include your response, or attitude toward the environment to make a suitable yet livable color harmony. From your brief description and from what I know about this area, your cottage setting can be described as "cool," fairly "hard" and "spacious," among other attributes. For all its beauty, there's an imperall of this is happening as the gener- . sonal and distant sense about this location, quite typical of many naturally rugged places.

My recommendation, therefore, would be to paint your cottage exterior in a warm, slightly grayed sage green. This is a middle-value, somewhat yellow-cast color that would blend in with the landscape. I would then paint all of the trim, shutters, and any columns in an ivory white to both accent and lend a sense of structure to the building. Don't try to match the actual color of pine green or any other natural element. What you will invariably achieve is an overly bright, harsh effect. You have to see nature's colors influenced by light, mist, and other climate and seasonal conditions.

For the interior of the cottage, I would compensate, or minimize the cool greens and blues of the surroundings with a palette of soft corals complemented by natural wood tones. Reserve small touches of blues and greens only for a few decoratrive accessories.

Q: I really love wearing white for summer. But because I'm very light complected, I've always used bright accents to liven up the overall look. Now, I'm looking for something more subtle to combine with white without looking too washed-out myself. I thought you might have some new ideas on how to combine subtle colors with white.

A: When your coloring is quite delicate, white can overwhelm you just as much as an overly bright or dark color does. Adding bright accents to white has been the conventional way of compensating for the depleting effects of white. You can use another option by combining two or three softer colors that themselves are complementary opposites. An example would be to add a scarf in a soft pink, green, and yellow pattern, and coordinate your shoes and belt, and any other accessory in any one of these colors. The optical contrast among the soft, but contrasting colors will provide a sparkling, but subtle impression. The conventional brights, such as red and blue, actually do not achieve the quality of these softer colors because brights actually look darker when set off against white. Also these softer colors will complement your coloring better than brights.

If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

610 Card of Thanks PRAYER TO The Holy Spirit- Holy and show me the way to reach my ideals. You give me the Divine Gift to forgive & forget the wrongs that are done to me and You are in all instances of my life with me. I in this short dialogue, want to thank You for everything & confirm once more that I never want to be separated from You no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with you & my loved Ones, in your Perpetual Glory, Amen. Thank you for your love towards me & my loved ones. Persons must pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish. After 3 days your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then, promise to publish this dialogue as soon as the favor has been granted. Thanks. J.P. School daze

High-tech surroundings aid in teaching of 3Rs

If it's been a while since you've set foot in a new school, you could get the idea - erroneous, educators and architects say — that the little red school house has evolved into a pal-

Carpeted classrooms and corridors. Separate outside entrances to each classroom. Theaters. Child development centers. Auxiliary rooms for counseling and individual tutor-

Computer centers. Lavatories in every classroom. Audio-visual communication capabilities between the office and classrooms. Air condition-

Not necessarily all in the same building, mind you, but representative of what's going into new schools. Palaces?

Get real, said William Pearson, principal at Plymouth-Canton's Hoben Elementary School, which opened in 1988.

"An analogy to me is the medical profession. Forty years ago, we didn't know anything about polio. We didn't stop doing research.

"WE HAVE learned through research and experience that kids need hands-on manipulatives to learn. Some do well pushing pencil pencil across paper. Some need more visual, some need tactile manipulatives to learn." That requires more storage space, more work stations and building areas with multiple uses such as a music room behind the stage at one end of a lunch room. Listen to Alfred Goebel. His architectural firm, Hastings & Chivett, designed the new South Lyon High School now under construction. "It (a palace mentality) is ridiculous. It's a knee-jerk reaction. That's just an emotional statement. If people just understand what's provided, they would understand it's not a palace or Taj Mahal," Goebel said.

TEACHING METHODS have changed from line-'em-up-and-tell-' em-how-it-is to small group, handson instruction. So if form follows function, it's reasonable to expect that school buildings would change,

"You have 4- and 5-year-olds who have had a couple of years on a computer," said Kathryn Wilson, next year's principal at Deerfield Elementary under construction in the Avondale School District. "We just have a lot of high-tech parts to our lives."

Working in small groups, developing thinking skills, asking questions are key elements to cooperative learning, she said.

'You have 4- and 5vear-olds who have had a couple of years on a computer. We just have a lot of high-tech parts to our lives.

rooms within individual classrooms for directed activities.

THE DAYS when a school board gives an architect carte blance on a school project are over.

"You're just not allowed to go through and selectively design a building and hope everyone likes it," said Thomas Kowalski, a project manager for TMP Associates, whose firm designed the new Deerfield Ele-

Nowadays, committees of staff, administration and parents work with architects. Four hundred participated in the design and promotion of South Lyon High, Goebel said.

Some school administrators hire a construction manager even before an architect to get a better handle on costs and to smooth communications between themselves, architects and parents.

"IT'S NOT that architects are failing in their task or duty. It's just lay people haven't had exposure and opportunity to work with graphic lools," said Charles Opferman, director of design phase services for Barton Malow, a construction management/general contracting firm.

'We're trying to put together the best set of minds so we can anticipate problems down the road and solve them now rather than waiting to pop up later."

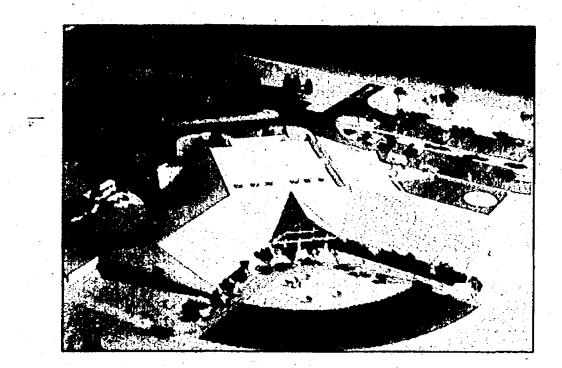

Perhaps the biggest change in school architecture in recent years is the realization that buildings are used beyond 3 p.m. by other than traditional students.

"I like the idea of a school being used day and night," said William Brubaker, vice chairman of Perkins & Will, which designed the new Troy High School.

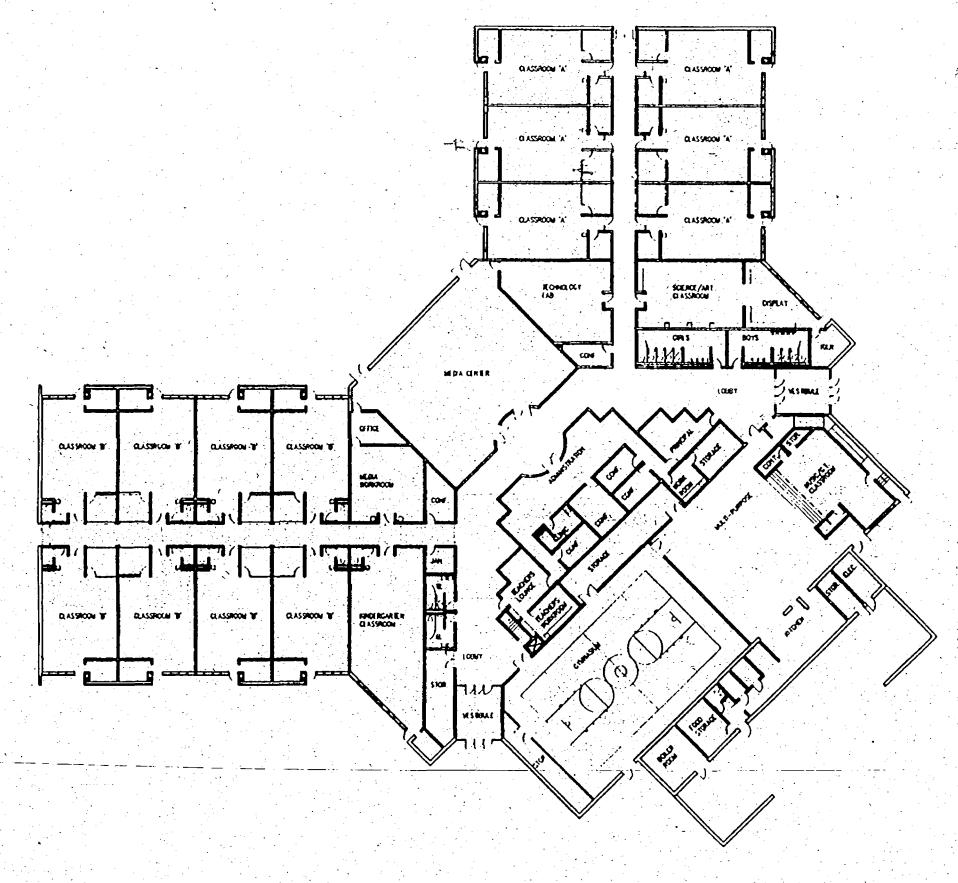

That's why high schools have pools, theaters and gyms that can be used by community groups and students, he said.

The new South Lyon High School will have a lounge and activity room specifically for senior citizens, plus a child-development center as part of the home economics wing.

"It (school design) acknowledges that not everyone in high school is between 16 and 18," Goebel said. That leads to computer rooms "We're trying to make this building built into media centers and smaller - have a real-world feel to it."

The floor plan and model of Deerfield Elementary School in Rochester Hills reflect architectural features that promote current philosophies in education.

Today's schools designed for all ages, all activities

Hoben Elementary School, built at a cost of $4.4 million, consists of 22 classrooms, a gym, a separate cafeteria/stage with a music room behind the stage, an art/activity room, several small conference rooms and a media center with a connecting computer room.

Two pairs of classrooms in the Canton Township-school have dividing walls that can be removed for team teaching. The hallways and classrooms are carpeted. Each classroom has its own lavatory, drinking fountain and exterior extrance.

Blackboards extend all the way to the floor to allow for more participation. Walls are magnetized for easier display of Everything was included for an educational reason, said William Pearson, principal.

Conference rooms? "We use them for social workers, psychologists, if they're working with kids, speech teachers," Pearson said. "They're very helpful because there's so much specialization."

Carpeting? "It's cheaper, looks nicer, it's softer, quieter," Pearson added.

LAVATORIES, drinking fountains and separate exterior entrances cut down on foot traffic in the corridors. Also, there's some sentiment that classrooms should reflect a friendlier, homelike environment to facilitate learning.

Kathryn Wilson will be principal of Deerfield Elementary when it opens in Rochester Hills next fall.

"We would never presume to replace the home," she said. "We try to make our environment relate to children . . . a responsiveness to the need for light, color, comfort."

Unique features of Deerfield, to be built and equipped at an estimated cost of $5.1 million, include:

• A multipurpose room which can be divided by a movable wall into a gym and lunchroom. An area behind the stage of the lunchroom will be used as a music room and classroom for talented and gifted classes.

• A combination art/science room. • A separate enclosed room within each classroom for small group projects or instruction.

DIVERSITY, shared uses, storage space all have become important when designing new schools.

Projected cost of a new Troy High School now under construction is $33.5 million.

"Troy High School has been given a lot of attention to classrooms and labs," said William Brubaker, whose architectural firm designed the facility.

"Science labs will be state of the art. It will have a better music facility - more functional, more flexible, better acoustics," Brubaker said. Then there's building use after regular class hours regardless of the size of the school.

"You keep finding greater expectations on the educational system," said Charles Opferman, who oversees school projects for a contracting/construction management company.

"Schools roles in society are continuing to change," he said. "We find demands on the building in that it's no longer a sixhour day building. "WHAT IS forcing change is outside the curriculum itself, things like latchkey programs, community use for athletics, meetings. Some Troy (elementary) schools operate as branches of the (city) library," Opferman said.

Taxpayers are getting better value for their dollars today with advances in building technology and energy conservation, architects say. Involving many segments of the community in the planning process also assures consensus on value.

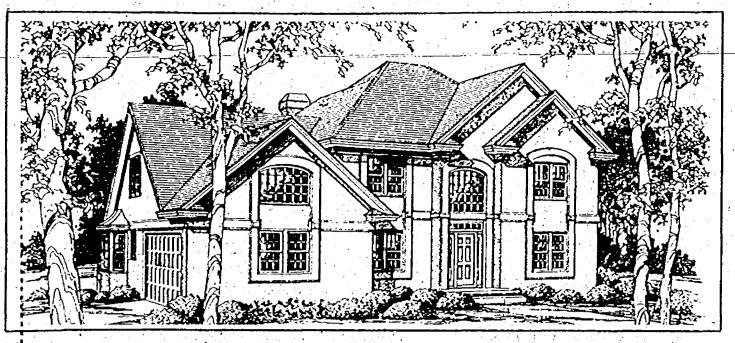

"I'm a great believer in schools ought to respond to the unique nature of the community," Brubaker said.

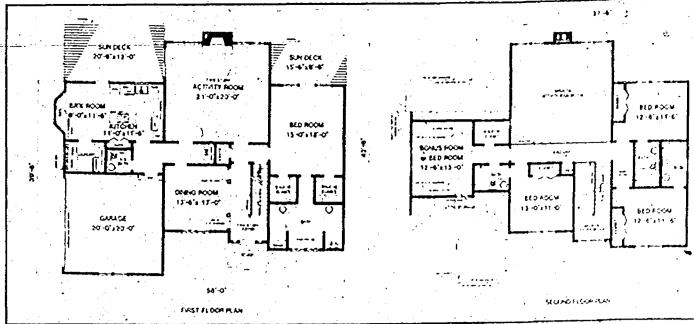

"A high school is like a flagship," said Alfred Goebel, principal in an architectural firm, "It's a symbol of a community's highest aspirations."

"That's what education is all about - preparing for the next generation, the future," said Opferman. "Someone paid for us and it's our responsibility to care for the next generatlon."

Features make the house

Hardly an amenity was missed when this residence was designed. It features a two-story great room, first-floor master bedroom suite, a daytime bath and a private master bath on the first floor, deck access from the master bedroom, great room and breakfast room, a formal dining room and three bedrooms, three baths and an upstairs bonus room.

An open fover forms the entrance to the house. The kitchen, breakfast room, great room and master bedroom are arranged to take advantage of the outdoor deck area. The mastel bedroom has two walk-in closet and a compartment bath with garden tub and shower stall and well as two separate vanities.

The European exterior is embellished with ornately trimmed multi-panel windows, multiple roof breaks, stucco finish and a side entrance to double garage.

Builders fight 'credit crunch'

(AP) - House builders and some congressmen are mounting a campaign against a "credit crunch" they say is crippling the construction industry and threatening the loss of 200,000 jobs.

Coinciding with a recent Commerce Department report about the smallest number of housing starts since the last recession, the National Association of Home Builders called a news conference to announce the details of its latest industry survey.

Association President Martin Perlman said the survey showed that "builders are being indiscriminately cut off from the credit markets. Production is dropping. People are losing their jobs and businesses. The disruptions in the housing delivery system are far more severe than anyone anticipated."

The Commerce report said housing starts had dropped 5.8 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.25 million units, the lowest level since 1.17 million units were started at an annual rate in October 1982.

At issue, the house builders said, is the new savings and loan bailout law that limits the amount of loans to an individual and tightens requirements for loans by commercial banks.

BUT OTHER housing industry observers say steep mortgage rates, overbuilding and the high cost of new houses also contribute to the downturn in construction.

The S&L reform law limits to 15 percent the amount of capital that a thrift institution can lend to one borrower. Before the law was enacted last August, thrifts could lend all their money to a single builder. U.S. Rep. Peter Hoagland, a Democrat from Nebraska, told the news conference that 68 congressmen have joined him in sponsoring a bill that would remedy the problem by permitting a transition period during which builders could find alternative sources of money for construction.

Hoagland said he believes the bill will reach the House floor within two weeks. A similar bill has been introduced in the Senate by Sen. Richard Shelby, D-Ala.

"Further complicating the situation is the fact that commercial banks have not been able to pick-up the slack and are tightening their lending requirements due to a February bulletin from the Comptroller of the Currency warning commercial banks about the dangers of real estate lending and urging bank examiners to look closely at all of the real estate loans in the banks under their jurisdiction," Perlman sald.

"This is having an inhibiting effect on housing finance that is clearly reflected in our survey results," he said. He welcomed a statement last week by bank regulators saying that banks should keep making loans to qualified customers.

'Hopefully that message will get out to the bank examiners," Perlman said.

The credit crunch has caused the builders group to revise its 1990 housing starts forecast downward from 1.42 million units to 1.28 mil-

This decrease of 140,000 housing starts translates into the loss of 200,000-jobs for an entire year, $6 billion in wages and $2 billion in taxes at all levels," Perlman said.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

Window of opportunity opens for home buyers

(AP) — The time may be approaching when younger couples can stop grousing and take action to buy a house.

Why?

Prices, for one reason. While those prices may still look high in relation to the prospective buyer's income. conceivably they could look like bargains when matched against prices five years or 10 years from now.

Interest rates are another reason. The investment climate may be changing for the better. Rate increases are unlikely, and some decline is even possible, a situation that experience shows may be temporary.

There is little question that younger buyers have had difficulties in recent years.

decline was a consequence solely of bad times in the younger age groups.

In the age group 25-29 years, for example, the 1979 ownership rate was 44 percent but just over 35 percent in mid-1989. In that time the cent to less than 54 percent.

Meanwhile, in every five-year age grouping from 60 years or more, the ownership rate rose. Since 1980, the rate for ages 60-64 has been more than 80 percent.

in those statistics lie opportunity. They call attention to the likelihood that many older homeowners are not just eager to sell but may be in a position to help with financing.

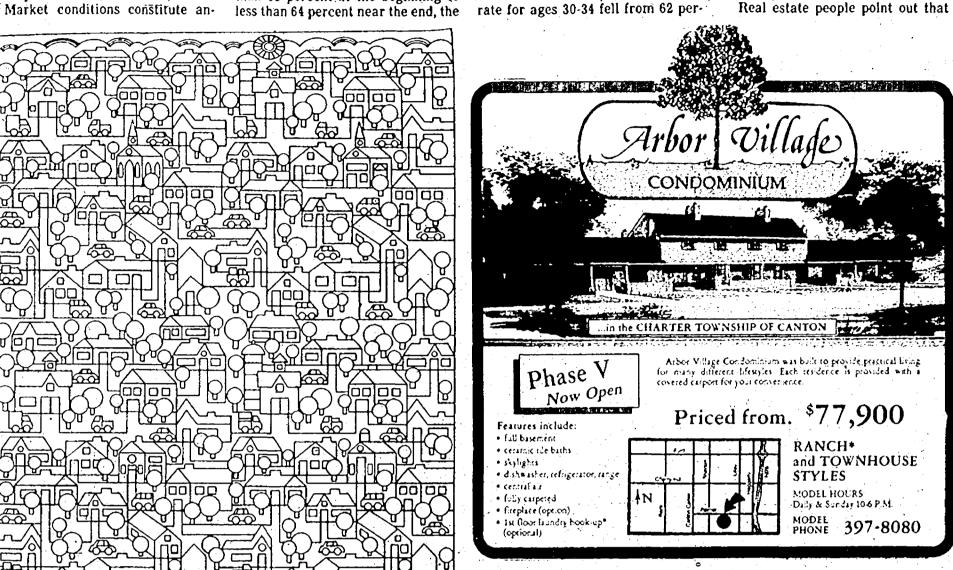

Why should a seller want to help with financing? First, of course, to sell the house but then to obtain a double-digit rate of return backed by solid collateral.

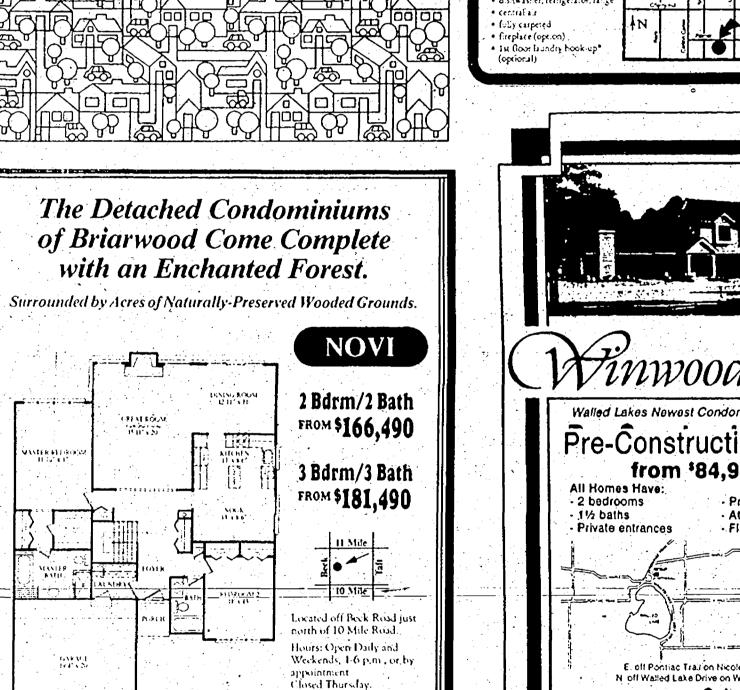

The financing picture is everchanging, usually for the better. While it is true that many banks have been burned, and therefore are increasingly strict in appraising properties and potential buyers, most still want to lend.

Finding the best lender isn't nearly as difficult as it once was, either.

WITH THE multiplication of mortgage products, mortgage specialists have become institutions in many communities and are thoroughly knowledgeable about what individual banks offer. They can choose the right one - and for no
