Suspect sought in garage fires

By LeAnne Rogers
staff writer

Eight garage fires in residential neighborhoods just off Warren in Garden City and Westland, apparently arson, are being investigated by police and fire officials.

All the fires occurred within one block north or south of Warren and between Dearing and Central streets, according to Garden City police Det. Sgt. Michael Lindman.

Four fires were reported in Garden City and four were reported in Westland. Lindman said he was working on the case with arson investigators from the Westland fire department.

"We don't have any motive or anything. The geographic location seems to be the only link," he said. "There are definite boundaries."

Two garage fires were reported in the 28000 block of Rush, one in the 7000 block of Deering and one in the 28000 block of Deering.

Two of the Garden City fires were reported in the early morning on Sunday, June 3 and one early Monday, June 4. The third fire, which apparently burned itself out doing minor interior damage, was out when discovered by the homeowner on June 3.

Four garage fires were reported in the Westland neighborhoods along Warren Road during the same time frame as the Garden City fires, Westland fire Capt. Patrick Harder confirmed.

"I really can't discuss it. It's under investigation," he said.

The fires appear to have been started with paper or trash, Lindman said, rather than accelerants.

"Nothing has gone to the lab yet. Accelerants are so common in garages," he said.

Currently, there are no suspects in the case, Lindman said, with no person or vehicle identified from the scenes. He noted that the fires have occurred between midnight and 3 a.m.

One Garden City resident reported being awakened by a man who told him that the garage was on fire.

"I couldn't say if that was a suspect or passerby. It could be just a passerby," Lindman said. "It could be kids but it might not be. Nothing happened the last two nights."

Some of the garages were locked and others weren't, he said, in some instances the officers were unable to find any sign of forced entry.

Hundreds of Wayne-Westland school district students took part in a march Monday afternoon to urge voters to support a millage renewal and increase proposal on Monday's ballot.

Schools ask voters to OK tax increase

Wayne-Westland school district voters will decide the fate of a controversial tax proposal Monday.

The board of education and administration, supported by a parents' committee, are asking voters to approve a tax increase and millage renewal.

The proposal calls for $7.75 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation for two years, or nearly $194 a year for a home valued at $50,000.

Supporters of the proposal hope it will be approved, giving the district time for a new state school aid formula to come out of the state legislature.

But several members of the pro-millage committee voiced a concern in April that the increase of $5 per $1,000 and renewal of $2.75 per $1,000 should have been put on the ballot as separate proposals.

During the campaign, school officials and the citizens' committee have been emphasizing the problems the district faces because of the state school aid formula.

In numerous presentations, they have stressed the problem of declining state revenues when the local property tax base increases. At the same time, the state cuts its aid to the district when the local millage rate is reduced.

Another citizens' committee is actively opposing the tax proposal.

The district's elections clerk declined to forecast a voter turnout for Monday's election.

Voters in Livonia district to select board member

Westland voters in the Livonia school district will go to the polls Monday to select a board of education trustee in the annual school board election.

There are no proposals on the ballot.

In the board campaign, incumbent Joseph Laura, seeking a second four-year term, is being challenged by Dr. Nagi Musleh.

Musleh is a teacher for Detroit Public Schools. Laura is a product planner for Ford Motor Co.

The polls will open at 7 a.m. Monday and close at 8 p.m. Anyone still in line at 8 p.m. will be allowed to vote.

Musleh, who moved to Livonia five years ago, did not register for school elections until last December. Monday's election will mark the first time he is eligible to vote in a local school election.

Laura, who registered to vote in school elections in 1978, has voted in nine school elections since 1980.

The district includes the northern section of Westland.

Court hearing Friday in shooting at apartment

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A Van Buren Township man faces a district court preliminary hearing Friday on first-degree murder charges in the Sunday shooting death of Westland's Terry Serman at a Canton Township apartment complex.

William Corbin, 27, stood mute to the charges at his arraignment Monday before 35th District Judge John E. MacDonald. The judge entered a not-guilty plea.

A cash bond was set at $500,000. The defendant's family members who appeared in court Monday said Corbin was unable to post the money.

HE FACES THREE charges in the death. They are first-degree murder, first-degree felony murder while perpetrating a breaking and entering and using a firearm in the commission of a felony. First-degree murder carries a mandatory sentence of life in prison.

Corbin stood expressionless during the arraignment and waved to his family in court before he was led off by police.

Serman, 36, was shot in the abdomen at Canton Common Apartments and died at Annapolis Hospital, Wayne.

Serman was the guest of Kimberly Ann Boland, 24, when the shooting took place at 5 a.m., police said.

Someone kicked in the front door of the apartment complex, went to Boland's upstairs unit and found the couple, police said.

Two shots were fired. One struck the floor, the other struck the victim, police said. When officers arrived, the victim was conscious and complained of extreme pain.

BOLAND GAVE police Corbin's name and address, and police went to the man's home, where they were met by Corbin's brother.

Corbin's father, Ray Corbin, said his son lived with Boland for "a long time."

Boland and Corbin had an eight-year relationship before she broke it off last month, police said. Boland, wearing dark glasses, was in court for Corbin's arraignment.

"He's one of the best kids around," Ray Corbin said of his son.

Businesses pitch in to help teen

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

"Why?" is a question Jim Savage of Westland repeatedly asks himself.

"Why Bobby?" Savage ponders, referring to 13-year-old Bob Corbett, a boy Savage once coached in softball.

"Why my son?" Savage also ponders, referring to his 14-year-old son Brian.

Both boys, students at Adams Junior High School, suffer from life-threatening diseases — Bob from cancer and Brian from cystic fibrosis.

Bob, an eighth grader, has not attended school since February. He is extremely ill. The cancer is widespread and his blood counts are low.

Brian, a seventh grader, plays basketball and baseball. But he must use a breathing machine four times daily and ingest countless medicines to maintain even precarious health.

Whistle-blower, schools settle case out of court

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

The Wayne-Westland schools have reached an out-of-court settlement with a former bus mechanic who had sued the district, claiming he was fired for whistle-blowing about conflicts of interest and misconduct in his department.

Wayne County Circuit Judge James Mies confirmed Tuesday that the case, which was scheduled to go to trial Monday, was settled Friday. He said he ordered both parties not to divulge details of the settlement.

School officials had claimed before the settlement that mechanic Edward Sailer was terminated for bad attendance and not for whistle-blowing.

Sailer worked for the district from October of 1980 until January of 1989.

Mies said of his gag order: "It's not unusual. It depends on the nature of the case." When asked if he had ordered it on his own or at the request of one of the parties, he said:

Wayne County Circuit Judge James Mies confirmed Tuesday that the case, which was scheduled to go to trial Monday, was settled Friday. He said he ordered both parties not to divulge details of the settlement.

"That's something I can't get into."

Sailer and his attorney, Rebecca Roberts, were unavailable for comment.

One of the school district's attorneys, Russell Slatkin, said he was unable to discuss the case, even to confirm that a settlement had been reached.

"If Mr. Sailer chooses to talk to you about it, could you please let us know?" asked Slatkin.

Council OKs millage rate, new budget

By Leonard Poger
editor

Westland homeowners will see an increase of about $27 in their city property tax bills this summer.

But the increase could have been about $27 higher.

That was the bottom line of a Westland city council debate Monday after which the council approved the millage rate and a $28.2 million general operating fund budget which includes the hiring of six additional police officers and three new fire fighters.

The general fund millage rate will be $6.52 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, a drop from last summer's $7.31.

But the total city tax bill, which includes levies for drains, police and fire pension programs, and the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority, will be $12.53 per $1,000, virtually the same as last year's $12.63.

The summer tax bills will be mailed to property owners in early July because property values and assessments are going up nearly 10 percent.

Councilman Kenneth Mehl argued for a higher general fund millage rate to avoid losing money needed for the new employees.

He said he talked to many residents and they would rather pay another $27 to avoid jeopardizing the potential loss of new police officers and fire fighters.

state shared revenues, which is partly based on local tax rates, and have to use $213,500 from its budget surplus. That surplus is now projected at $1.8 million for the next budget year.

MEHL AND Mayor Robert Thomas engaged in a short, angry exchange over what the councilman feels is excessive overtime costs, particularly in the public services department.

Mehl tried to propose a 10 percent cut in all departmental overtime for the upcoming fiscal year but failed to gain any support.

The councilman said the current year's overtime is pegged at nearly $838,000 and projected to go up to nearly $700,000 in the new budget.

When he described those expenses at the equivalent of eight-tenths of a mill in property taxes, Mayor Thomas angrily responded that it is "irresponsible and ridiculous" for Mehl to suggest that the mayor spreading a higher millage rate to pay for the overtime.

"If the dollars are there, we should provide the services to the people," Thomas said in defending the use of overtime.

MEHL DID get the administration's promise to provide a report on overtime expenses for the fiscal year ending June 30.

Finance Director/Treasurer Michael Gorman reminded Mehl that the council regularly receives monthly overtime reports.

BUT HE was the only council member urging the higher rate. He was outvoted by Council members Tom Brown, Terri Reighard Johnson, Tom Artley, Charles Pickering, and Ben DeHart. Absent was Sandra Cicirelli.

Council President Brown said the city has a general fund surplus which came from the taxpayers and the millage rate should be cut and the money returned to those taxpayers.

Mehl responded that the council should plan for the next five years "and not just look at what's in the bank on June 4, 1990."

He stressed that the council isn't returning anything to the residents through the lowered millage rate.

All it means is that the city tax bills will increase $27 instead of $54.

Mehl stressed that the lowered millage rate has other financial effects on the upcoming budget.

The rate reduction means the city would receive a lowered amount of ELEANOR HERRINGTON did say Monday that 460 requests for absentee voter ballots is a little under the number issued during the Feb. 8 election at which voters overwhelmingly rejected a tax increase, millage rate increase and override of the Headlee Amendment which requires a rollback of the tax rate.

In the special vote four months ago, 8,103 people voted, or nearly 12 percent of the 68,000 registered voters in the district, a much larger turnout than other special elections in recent years.

In a side issue during the campaign, two officers of the committee opposing the millage proposal filed a complaint with the Michigan secretary of state, who oversees election laws, to claim that a school administrator is improperly listed as the treasurer of the pro-millage committee and using school district telephones and equipment to support the ballot issue.

Secretary of State Richard Austin turned the complaint over to the state education department, which replied to David Moranty and Melvin Straight of the Wayne-Westland Citizens for Education Committee that public tax funds can be used to objectively inform the community about the election issues and its impact on school programs.

But the district may have employees campaign for or against the ballot proposals as private citizens outside of normal working hours, said David Donovan, assistant superintendent for technical assistance and evaluation in the state department of education.

The millage proposal has overshadowed the campaign of three candidates seeking a four-year board of education term.

CAMPAIGNING ARE Leonard Posey, a bank vice president for personnel, named to fill a vacancy six months ago; Linda Pratt, businesswoman, longtime PTA volunteer and officer, who was one of the candidates for the vacancy, and Laurel Raisanen, Observer & Eccentric production department employee and also a veteran PTA volunteer.

In interviews last month, Posey said he supports the tax proposal of the ballot, Raisanen opposes any tax increase, while Pratt preferred the increase and renewal requests be separate issues instead of combined into one.

cop calls

A MAN with a crack cocaine pipe in one pocket and a pistol in the other was found by police as he hid curled up in a bedroom closet of a house on Hiveley early Sunday morning.

He was arrested for carrying a concealed weapon and breaking and entering despite protests that he was merely waiting for his aunt to come home.

A neighbor called police about 1:30 a.m. to say she had just seen a man break into the house through a sliding rear door. They arrived and found a 29-year-old Westland man after a short search. He refused to come out of the closet and had to be pulled out.

The man said the gun belonged to an aunt. Police found TVs unplugged and sitting by the door, as if they were about to be taken.

The woman, 47, who was not home at the time, later confirmed to police that the man was her nephew and that he had broken into her home before. She said the gun was not hers and requested he be prosecuted on the break-in.

A LOUD MUFFLER led to two drug arrests at Dorsey and Grand Traverse early Sunday.

Police pulled over the 1982 Chevy at 1 a.m. and ran computer checks on the driver, a 24-year-old Garden City man, and his passenger, a 21-year-old from Alpena. The 21-year-old was wanted in Ypsilanti for failing to appear for a drunk-driving charge and was arrested. A search revealed a bag of suspected marijuana and rolling papers in the glove box and a marijuana cigarette-holder in the pocket of the Alpena man.

Both men were charged with possession of a controlled substance and drug paraphernalia.

Post office weathers storm power outage

The sign says the Post Office delivers excellence — even if it means stringing up a row of temporary lights when the power goes out.

Westland avoided the brunt of Saturday's thunderstorm and Sunday's sustained winds of 50 mph, but the Post Office on Wayne north of Ford was a casualty.

When workers arrived Monday, they found themselves without power. Emergency generators were brought in and lights strung up, though computers remained off line. "We're doing it the old-fashioned way," said Postmaster Lloyd Wesley. "You know that neither rain nor sleet nor snow?" But they never said anything about no electricity.

LEROY KART, a Cherry Hill resident, had too much electricity. About 3:45 a.m. Sunday, a power line fell four houses down from him. The current ran along the cyclone fences in the back yards and up his side fence to where the fence is attached to the house. The power burned 50 to 60 small holes in his aluminum siding, surged into the house and blew out five televisions, three VCRs, two stereos and his phones.

"I'm lucky I wasn't electrocuted," said Kart. "By the time I went out the door to see what had happened, the current in the line had shut off. If it had still been on when I touched the door, I would have died."

"People ought to check their fences, make sure they don't touch their houses. I know I never thought about it before."

Damage in the rest of Westland was largely restricted to a few downed tree limbs, said Richard Dittmar, public services director. Only two city workers had to be called in Sunday to work overtime.

"I'm surprised it wasn't worse," he said.

Local students at Churchill High School, on Newburgh north of Joy, enjoyed an unscheduled day off Monday because the school didn't have power.

Detroit Edison reported that 116,000 customers in the metropolitan area lost power, many of them in hard-hit Oakland County. About 336,000 customers suffered outages statewide.

Some residents in Westland lost power, but Edison officials were unable to provide local figures.

Special graduates honored

The generation gap was bridged for local students last week when the Livonia school district, which serves the northern section of Westland, held its annual adult education graduation ceremony.

There were 91 adults receiving their high school diplomas and 114 receiving their General Education Development certificates in the ceremony held in the Churchill High School auditorium.

There were numerous human interest stories behind the caps and gowns.

Among those were the awarding of Schoolcraft College scholarships to Rebecca Lampi and Doris Priest and a Cleary College scholarship to Marnie Esper.

Another graduate of note was Ann Esson, 76, who attended Detroit Northern High School in the 1920s and Cass Evening School in the 1930s before getting her diploma on the Churchill High stage.

She also earned credits at Schoolcraft College and through the Livonia Adult Education Program to earn her diploma.

Honored for academic excellence were Rebecca Bader, Marnie Esper, Adrienne Harmon, Kevin Reiten, and Carrie Lucas for earning all A's both semesters, and Kristin Green for receiving all A's while at Bentley and placing in the top 3 percent in the GED testing.

Sharon Brown came back from a serious accident and rehabilitation to complete credits for a high school diploma. Tae Yi graduated with very high grades and is enrolled at Western Michigan University.

Tony Jiminez succeeded while working full time and attending part time for several years. Dawn Sage, a very sports-minded student as a serious fan of University of Michigan, the Detroit Pistons, and Red Wings, also graduated.

Diana Jones and Donna Humphreys, twins born 15 minutes apart, have completed their GED and graduated. They had dropped out of school at the same time, got married in a double ceremony, and now finished together as 1990 graduates. Their sister, Laura Robertson, graduated last year.

TUESDAY'S CEREMONY was held for the first adult graduating class of the Bentley Adult Education Center.

Entertainment was provided by the Lutheran High School-Westland, singers directed by Kurt Von Klampen, the "Young at Heart" senior chorus directed by Sharon Shreve, the Do Re Me singers of Japan, and the Creative and Performing Arts instrumental group directed by Pam Hill.

On hand to greet the graduates were state Rep. Justine Barns, D-Westland, Livonia Board of Education members Diane "Pat" Tancill, president, Richard McKnight, secretary, Carol Strom and Joseph Laura, and Superintendent Dr. Joseph Marinelli.

Also present were Jack Kirksey, director of community education services, and Ken Watson, director of secondary education.

A blue Honda motorcycle led the procession for Carol Shields and Daryl Hanchett after their wedding ceremony.

Motorcycle magic Couple steers on to new road together

By Leonard Poger
editor

Most newlyweds walk out of a church and into a rented limo or a relative's luxury car to be driven to the wedding reception.

But former Westland residents Carol Shields and Daryl Hanchett wanted something different and an atmosphere that fit their backgrounds and values.

So after exchanging vows early Saturday afternoon, they mounted Daryl's dark blue Honda Gold Wing motorcycle, put on their safety helmets, and led a procession of about 50 other motorcyclists to the reception in Livonia's Rotary Park.

The motorcycle environment was planned on the basis of the couple meeting at the Westland-based Northwest Alano Club, which meets regularly in the former Perrinville School, on the northwest corner of Ann Arbor Trail and Farmington Road.

The new Mrs. Hanchett said that the Alano Club is a non-alcoholic group in which people may be in a social environment without "having the drugs or alcohol to deal with."

The newlyweds met 2½ years ago at the club's Sober Riders group, made up of recovering substance abusers who enjoy motorcycles, said the new Mrs. Hanchett, 35.

Carol said she joined the Sober Riders because she had been riding a motorcycle since 1978 and wanted to continue her hobby, but didn't know anyone who didn't drink that she could ride with.

She met Daryl at the Alano Club in 1987 when her future husband was the group's president.

HANCHETT HELPED Carol get her bike back on the road and they started dated on and off for about a year before becoming engaged last October.

The idea for the wedding to be in the Greenmead Historical Village's Newburg Church was the groom's.

A self-employed plaster contractor, Hanchett, 49, was working on the interior of the church, built in 1848, and suggested to his bride-to-be that it was a neat place to be married.

The pair encountered a major problem Saturday when the minister scheduled to officiate at the ceremony failed to show up on time.

After waiting about 30 minutes, Livonia Police Officer Jim Fournier, who on hand to direct traffic, agreed to perform the service.

Fournier, who said he had friends attending the service, admitted that it was the first time he officiated at a wedding in his 26 years in the department.

Because of the absence of a minister at the ceremony, the newlyweds said they will contact an appropriate official to have a civil ceremony earlier this week.

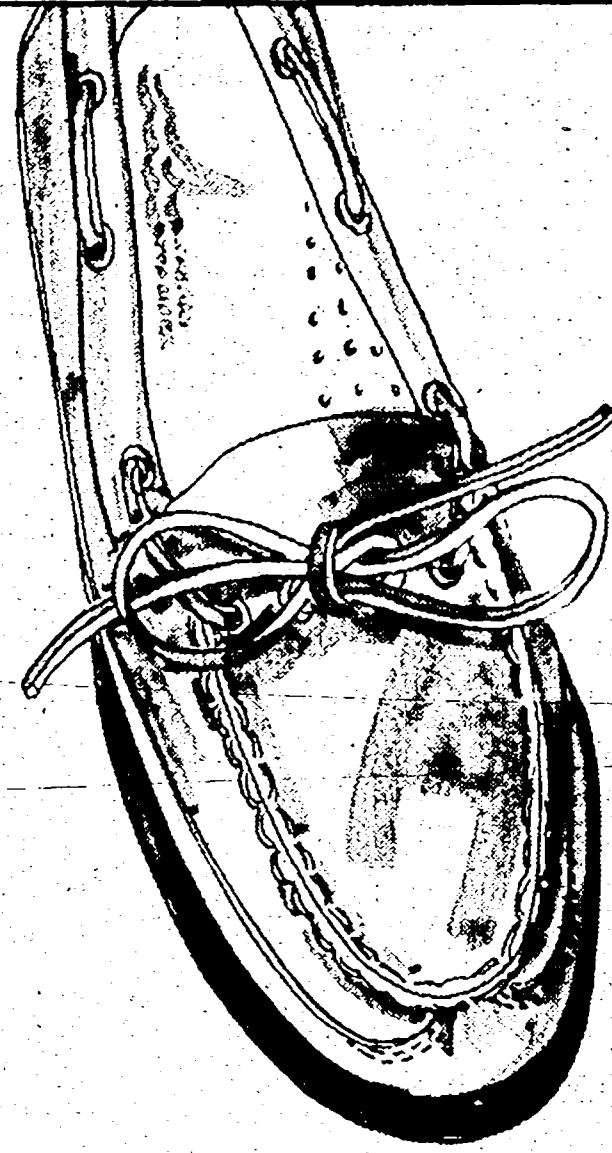

THE COUPLE left Wednesday for their honeymoon in the Grand Canyon, leaving their motorcycles at home.

"We will fly," Hanchett said. "And ride horses there," said Mrs. Hanchett.

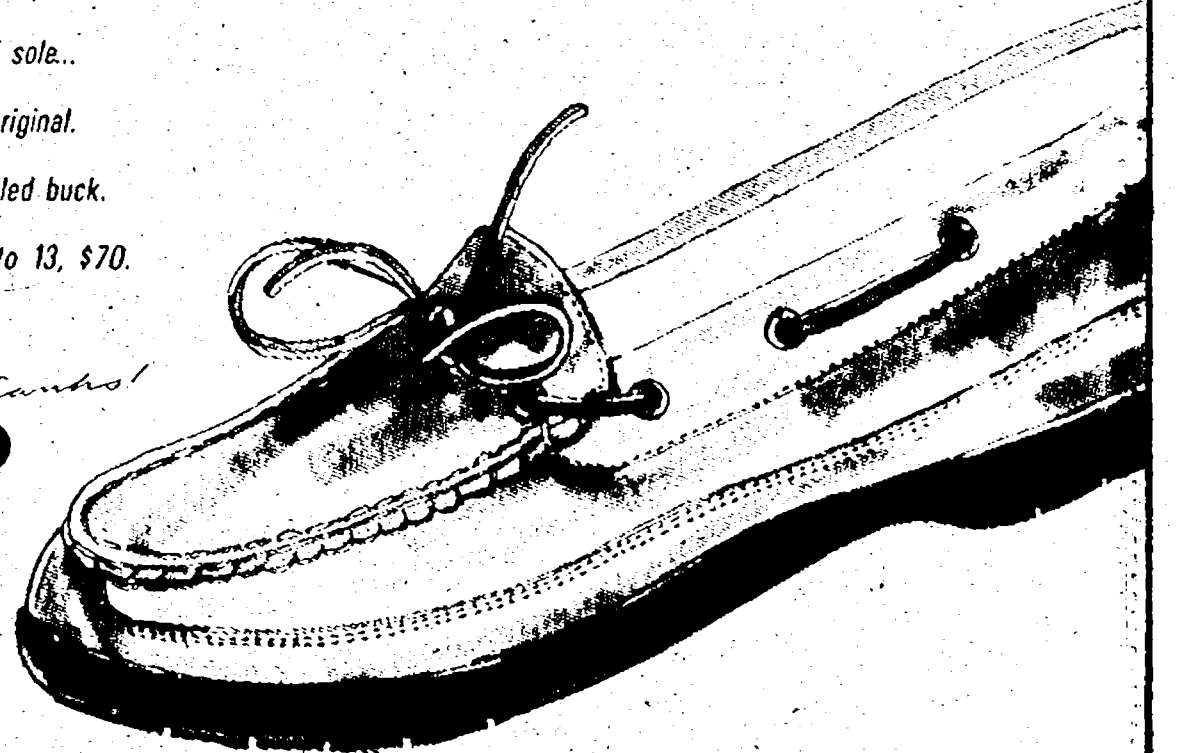

Sue Daniel, president of the Livonia Historical Commission, said the Saturday wedding was the 130th at the Newburg Church since it was opened for weddings in 1884. The commission charges $100 for weddings in the church.

Patrick and his band will perform Sunday in a benefit organized by Savage on behalf of young Corbett.

The youth's mother, Virginia Corbett, said the family has medical insurance but that it does not cover all medical treatments. Bills are mounting at an alarming rate.

The benefit performance is scheduled in the Oddfellow Temple in Warren. Use of the facility has been donated by members of the fraternal organization because "That's what we try to do, help people who need help," said member Bill Oaks.

"People in need" is what prompted businessman Larry Meyers of the In & Out Market on Merriman to donate soft drinks and mix. Jerry Smith, an attendant at Northville Psychiatric Hospital, is paying for the beer and Mario Bosso, owner of Marina's Pizza on Venoy, is contributing some $200 in pizza.

"Everybody has been great," Savage said of the response to this and other Corbett events he has organized. Last month, some 200 skaters attended a skate-a-thon at Skateland in Westland. In July, Savage is organizing a dinner and dance at Jamie's on Seven in Livonia.

Among the donors are the Westland Jaycees, which recently gave Bob Corbett a 19-inch color TV set so he can play his favorite Nintendo games.

Jamie Coe, noted for giving to causes that help such groups as battered children, the homeless and multiple sclerosis victims, is providing buffet supper at next month's benefit for 1,000 and supplying 10 bands, all at his own expense.

"We just do these things. We've been doing this all along," Coe said in explanation of his giving, adding, "I don't like getting attention for it."

Council OKs revised Benyo contract

Joseph Benyo is back in business as a Westland City Council legislative assistant.

In a surprise move Monday, the council approved in a 4-2 vote a revised contract for Benyo, who has been handling specific duties for the city council and mayor's office for most of the past four years.

The previous two-year contract, scheduled to start July 1, was approved by a 4-3 council vote a month ago, but the council failed to get the required five votes to override a veto by Mayor Robert Thomas.

In the new contract, Benyo's responsibilities to the council are generalized instead of being specified as in the contract approved a month ago.

Thomas said after Monday's council session that he doesn't intend to veto the new agreement, which he said is one "I can live with."

Thomas vetoed the previous agreement last month because it included performing some administrative duties, he said.

The new two-year agreement stipulates that Benyo will be paid no more than $25,000 a year as an independent contractor. He will be paid at the rate of $21 per hour and not receive any fringe benefits.

Councilman Tom Artley, who opposed the new agreement, said Benyo received about $39,000 last year.

ARTLEY AND councilman Charles Pickering opposed the new agreement. Supporting the contract were council members Tom Brown, Kenneth Mehl, Terri Reighard Johnson and Ben DeHart. Council member Sandra Cicirelli was absent.

In the new contract, Benyo's duties are to be in a "limited capacity of legislative assistant" to the council, performing duties not "regularly and customarily performed" by city departments.

"The professional services to be extended (by Benyo) shall be intended to assist the city council and be in addition to those services provided by the various city departments to the city council."

"In no event shall (Benyo) interfere with or infringe upon the functions and duties of the city when performing its services to the city council."

Under the administration of former mayor Charles Griffin, Benyo had a desk in the same office of then deputy mayor Andrew Spisak.

After Thomas was sworn into office in early January, the new mayor reassigned Benyo to the second floor council office and reduced his duties.

IN COMMENTS Monday night, Artley said that in his 13 years on the council, "I don't need someone at $21 an hour helping me."

He stressed that he was only opposed to the position, not to the person holding it.

Artley praised Benyo's performance, but said that in his tenure on the council, Benyo was supposed to be the council liaison during the past three years, but was located in the mayor's office.

Pickering said he is paid $9,000 a year as a councilman and doesn't need someone earning up to $25,000 to do his job.

But that prompted Mehl to respond that Pickering (a real estate salesman) has the type of private job that frees him up during the daytime to handle council work. Mehl is a General Motors transmission engineer.

The new agreement takes effect July 1, one day after the current one expires.

Applications sought for baby of the year contest

The annual "Baby of the Year" contest sponsored by the Westland Festival Committee is under way, with applications now available from the Westland Chamber of Commerce. Voting is scheduled Friday, June 29 through Tuesday, July 3.

The winner will be announced Wednesday, July 4, during the Westland Summer Festival.

Babies entered in competition must be Westland residents between the ages of one day and 12 months.

Voting, to be conducted at the summer festival stage behind city hall, consists of placing money in jars displaying photos of each contestant. Babies receiving the most money will be finalists.

Six girls and six boys will enter final competition on July 4. A "Boy of the Year" and "Girl of the Year" will be selected.

All proceeds from the event go to the Westland Therapeutic Association.

Applications are available from the chamber office at 36900 Ford, Westland 48185 and must be submitted to D. Norwood, 1342 S. Linville, Westland by June 23.

Civitan's to sell flag pins

The Westland Civitan Club will hold its annual flag pin sale Friday and Saturday at the Farmer Jack Supermarket, Ford and Wildwood; the K mart Store on Wayne Road and Cherry Hill, and the Great Scott Supermarket on Ann Arbor Trail at Merriman.

The sale will be 5-9 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Purpose of the sale is to promote patriotism and the national observance of Flag Day next Thursday, June 14.

Insurers win, lawyers lose in Senate vote

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Insurers won two, and the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association lost two, as the state Senate Tuesday narrowly passed bills to limit lawsuit recoveries.

Injured passengers who failed to wear auto safety belts may find their lawsuit damages reduced if Sen. Robert Geake's bill becomes law.

"There should be no windfall for a negligent individual who didn't wear a seatbelt," said Geake, R-Northville.

But opponents bitterly attacked the bill, which was passed 21-17 and sent to the House.

"This will buy the insurance companies a new yacht," said Sen. Virgil Smith, D-Detroit.

CURRENT LAW says failure to wear a seatbelt "may be considered evidence of negligence and may reduce the recovery for damages."

His supporters included Republicans Doug Cruce of Troy and Rudy Nichols of Waterford and Democrats William Faust of Westland and Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills.

Opposed were Richard Fessler, R-Commerce, and George Z. Hart, R-Dearborn. Hart said non-users of belts should be fined rather than have their lawsuit damages reduced.

The bill was fought by the trial lawyers and most Democrats. Its chances in the House are small.

SEN. DICK Posthumus, R-Alto, chair of the Senate Commerce Committee, said Geake's bill didn't remove no-fault insurance benefits, as critics charged.

"All health care would be taken care of," Posthumus said. "In 95 percent or more of cases, there's no lawsuit. This (bill) only pertains to lawsuits."

"A person who is suing who didn't wear a seatbelt wouldn't be able to collect a lot of non-economic damages," said Posthumus, the GOP point man on insurance issues.

Also supporting it was Nichols, chair of the Judiciary Committee. "A jury should be able to determine whether not wearing a seatbelt was part of the cause," he said.

CRITIC CHRIS Dingell, D-Trenton, called it a "windfall" bill for insurers.

"What would insurance companies do with the windfall? It would go into the profit column. I don't know if it would go to the premium payers or for wild parties on the West Coast, but I'd bet on the latter," Dingell said.

Detroit's Smith said the bill would allow attorneys for insurers "to line their pockets at the expense of children who suffered disfigurement."

IN RELATED business, the Senate gave 21-15 approval to a bill protecting hospital emergency room professionals from liability suits.

"This bill is to keep physicians in emergency rooms in this state," said sponsor John J.H. Schwarz, R-Battle Creek, the Senate's only physician.

Gubernatorial candidate John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant, agreed that Senate Bill 910 "invites physicians back to the emergency room."

The bill also was fought by trial lawyers and critics of insurance companies. It, too, faces a dim future in the House.

It protects all emergency room health professionals — including nurses, therapists, anesthesiologists and technologists — from liability except for gross negligence.

CRITIC JOHN Kelly, D-Detroit, said applying only the gross negligence standard means "the physician will no longer be required to do what is reasonable under the circumstances."

Replying to Schwarz's arguments that physicians are leaving the state, Kelly said their departure is related to population loss, and that liability insurance costs $7,000 to $20,000, not $35,000 to $50,000 a year.

Kelly blamed insurance company lawyers who settle cases out of court for raising insurance premiums. He advised physicians: "Don't settle out of court. Take it to the jury," promising the doctors "will be vindicated" by juries.

Parting company with most Republicans, Nichols of Waterford opposed the measure as "anti-safety and anti-consumer." Nichols criticized the use of the "gross negligence" standard as "encouraging incompetence."

SMITH SAID the bill discriminates against the one million poor Michiganders who have no health insurance and take their ailments to emergency rooms.

Supporter Joe Mack, D-Ironwood, said small towns like his ski resort area are particularly badly hurt when Chicago lawyers sue. Without Schwarz's bill, Mack said, "we'll have towns full of lawyers with no doctors."

Area senators supporting Schwarz's bill were Republicans Cruce of Troy and Geake of Northville and Democrat Faust of Westland.

Opposed were Republicans Fessler of Commerce and Nichols of Waterford and Democrats Faxon of Farmington Hills and Hart of Dearborn.

Gov. James Blanchard and his wife, Janet, greet students at Titus Elementary School, Inkster. Blanchard visited the Wayne-Westland school Tuesday just hours after formally announcing his re-election bid.

Gov pays a call on area students

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

On the first day of this third campaign, Michigan Gov. James Blanchard went back to school.

Titus School, in the Wayne-Westland District, received a Tuesday afternoon visit from the governor and Mrs. Blanchard, just hours after the governor officially announced his second re-election bid.

At the school, Blanchard told a group of fifth graders to follow their dreams and stay away from drugs.

But he had another message for their parents in a brief, handshake tour of the surrounding neighborhood — eight years is not enough.

"WE HAVE made much progress in turning Michigan around, but the job is far from over," Blanchard said outside the school.

Inside, however, politics was only one of the topics of discussion.

Though ostensibly there to discuss the school's DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) drug education program, the governor instead held a free-wheeling talk with his fifth-grade audience. Topics ranged from the Detroit Pistons — who began their own title defense that evening — to summer vacation spots. (Blanchard urged one Mackinac Island-bound youngster to be sure to visit the Island fort.)

Some students, however, had more serious topics on their minds.

"What are you going to do about poverty," one boy wanted to know.

The governor's answer: finds jobs for the unemployed and shelter for the homeless.

Despite speculation this would be his toughest campaign, with state Senate leader John Engler his likely GOP foe, Blanchard was upbeat at his western Wayne stop.

"They were all considered tough," Blanchard said. "Once again, we're going to run as hard as we can."

The school visit was the third stop of a two-day statewide campaign tour.

"We're thrilled to have him," said Westland official Joseph Benyo, who helped arrange the visit. "These kids are going to go home and talk about this," Benyo added, referring to the anti-drug program, though the statement was just as true in reference to the governor himself.

BEFORE ENTERING the school, a shirt-sleeved and smiling Blanchard shook hands for nearly 15 minutes with a crowd of students who — by the looks of their T-shirts — appeared more likely to cast their votes for Bart Stinson or any member of the New Kids on the Block singing group.

While almost all the youngsters were excited, some weren't quite aware of who their honored guest was.

Bill would help open space

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Communities would be able to make special assessments to preserve open space and natural areas under a package of bills on this week's state Senate calendar.

"Suburban areas are undergoing rapid development and want to preserve open space before it's all paved over," said the sponsor, Rep. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield.

Honigman last week told the Senate Local Government Committee his 11 bills don't expand the power of cities, villages and townships to take property. Rather, they expand the definition of "park" to include open space, natural areas, wildlife areas and bird sanctuaries.

The committee Thursday gave 3-1 approval to the package of House-passed bills. Among Observer & Eccentric area members, Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford, voted yes, and George Z. Hart, D-Dearborn, was absent.

THE BILLS took a lot of heat from the Southeastern Michigan Builders Association and Apartment Association of Michigan.

Jack Walker, lobbyist for the regional builders group, saw the bills as the product of the "slow-growth" and "stop growth" movement in West Bloomfield, Commerce and other popular areas for building.

Walker saw a scenario where a group of lakefront homeowners could gang up and persuade a township to exercise the right of eminent domain for a parcel on which they wished to stop development.

"Nothing in these bills mandates a willing seller," Walker said.

Sen. Virgil Smith, D-Detroit, came to Honigman's aid.

"All these (current reasons for special assessment) are for builders — sewers, drains, roads — all the profit stuff. They have what they want. They want to stop at public parks and open space," Smith said.

Nichols took issue with the builders' contention that the governmental right of eminent domain should be exercised only for reasons of "public health, safety and welfare." Said Nichols: "The constitution says 'just compensation,' not 'health, safety and welfare.'"

JACK SCHICK, lobbyist for the apartment owners, said his group objects to the special assessment mechanism.

"If all the community can enjoy it, all the community should pay. It shouldn't be a burden on just a few property owners," Schick said.

"I disagree," said Honigman. "It's more appropriate to tax those who benefit. It's like taxation by neighborhood democracy."

Lobbyists for the Michigan Municipal League, representing cities and villages, and the Michigan Townships Association supported the package, known as House Bills 4120-4130.

MML's William Davis said cities will welcome the power to levy special assessments for the operation and maintenance of parking structures, as well as for construction.

Roll Call Report

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending May 24.

HOUSE:

Clean Air Act — By a vote of 401 for and 21 against, the House sent to conference with the Senate a bill (HR 3030) giving the clean air Act its first upgrade since 1977. In part, the measure drastically cuts emissions from Midwest and Appalachian power plants that cause acid rain, imposes tailpipe controls on motor vehicles and introduces cleaner gasoline to cities with the dirtiest air.

It curbs the discharge of a wide range of toxic chemicals from factories such as petrochemical plants and harmful emissions from small businesses such as dry cleaners. Estimates are the bill will cost the private sector up to $20 billion over the next several years.

Supporter Norman Lent, R-N.Y., said the bill "will significantly improve the air we breathe without placing the American economy in jeopardy."

Opponent William Dannemeyer, R-Calif., said, "This should be renamed the Third World Redevelopment Act of 1990" because it exports many jobs.

A yes vote supported the bill. Local members were unanimous in support of the proposal: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth; Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods; William Ford, D-Taylor; Sander Levin, D-Southfield and William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

New Relief Program — By a vote of 274 for and 146 against, the House adopted an amendment establishing special relief for workers who lose their jobs or have their hours reduced by at least 20 percent as a result of the new clean air legislation (above). The maximum benefit would be an additional six months of unemployment payments and two years of retraining assistance, at a cost to the Treasury of up to $250 million over five years.

Supporter Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., said, "This is a vote for the little guys," such as coal miners who lose work because of the Clean Air Act.

Opponent Jack Fields, R-Texas, called the program "an open-ended liability for the federal government."

A yes vote supported special aid to workers hurt by new clean air required. Local members Pursell, Hertel, Ford, Levin and Broomfield all casted yes votes.

Longer warranties — The House adopted, 239 for and 180 against, an amendment toughening warranties on the catalytic converters and electronic control units needed to meet tailpipe emission standards set by the new clean air legislation (above). Automakers would have to provide eight-year, 80,000-mile protection on the equipment, compared to the five years and 50,000 miles required by current law.

Sponsor Gerry Sikorski, D-Minn., said, "It is not every day in this chamber you get to vote for small business and environmental groups and consumers."

Opponent Michael Oxley, R-Ohio, said, "The National Federation of Independent Business (and) the U.S. chamber of Commerce both are on record as opposed to this amendment."

A yes vote was to require longer warranties on devices to curb auto pollution. Hertel gave a yes vote. Pursell, Ford, Levin and Broomfield, voted no.

SENATE:

Gun Ban — By a vote of 48 for and 52 against, the Senate rejected an amendment to keep in legal use nine types of semiautomatic rifles and pistols slated to be outlawed by a pending anti-crime bill (S 1970). This preserved language making it illegal to import, manufacture or possess the so-called "assault weapons." The ban would last three years.

The amendment was supported by the National Rifle Association and the Administration and opposed by police organizations and the gun-control lobby.

Supporter John McCain, R-Ariz., said outlawing the weapons would not cut violent crime but "violate the Bill of Rights that so many Americans have fought to preserve."

George Mitchell, D-Maine, said, "The claim that this law would limit ownership or use of regular hunting rifles is entirely false."

A yes vote was for keeping the nine types of firearms legal. Michigan Sens. Donald Riegle-D and Carl Levin-D voted no.

Weapons Issue — By a vote of 83 for and 17 against, the Senate tabled (defeated) an amendment adding 13 American-made semiautomatic guns to the nine other assault weapons to be outlawed by S 1970 (above). The amendment also sought to ban the sale of magazines holding more than 10 rounds of ammunition.

Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, who voted to table, said, "It is inherently impossible to define an assault weapon... so as not to also ban many, if not virtually all, semiautomatic hunting rifles."

Amendment sponsor Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said, "None of these weapons have any sporting purpose. Hunters do not use them. Drug dealers do."

A yes vote was to kill the gun-control amendment. Both Riegle and Levin voted in the affirmative.

Club owner loses court fight

By Joe Bauman
staff writer

The Grande Music Cafe, which closed its doors in March as a teen nightclub on the Westland-Garden City limit, is now out of business in Livonia.

But the dispute between its owner and Livonia officials remains at the boiling point.

Wayne Circuit Court chief Judge Richard Kaufman issued a permanent injunction Monday barring Robert Cortis from operating his teenage dance hall from a restaurant he owns on Plymouth Road near Middlebelt.

The directed verdict, which meant the city did not have to present its case prior to Kaufman's ruling, upheld the city's contention that Cortis does not have the proper zoning to offer dancing at the site.

DESPITE THE ruling, Cortis' attorney, Leonard Kitchen, remained adamant that his client had done nothing wrong and is being unfairly persecuted by the city.

"My client followed all the steps in preparing his business for opening and then at the last minute was told he couldn't do so because the zoning was improper.

"What really bothers me is that Rob tried to do things correctly and they pulled the rug out. It remains very clear to us that Rob has been wronged and that certain people at the city are out to get Rob Cortis."

Kitchen said his client most likely will appeal Kaufman's decision.

TUESDAY, CORTIS said he would seek the necessary variance to allow dancing in his establishment.

"I guess I have to start over again but how do I know the same thing won't happen again and I will be thrown in jail for doing what I am told?"

Cortis was referring to an incident in late April when he was arrested and jailed for several hours for continuing to operate his business despite a court order to close his restaurant/club.

MONDAY'S COURT decision "spoke loud and clear" that the city's position was correct, Livonia city attorney Harry Tatigian said. He called allegations of harassment against Cortis "ludicrous."

"I am tired of Rob Cortis' statements that we are out to get him. All this city expects is that all businesses obey the laws and ordinances and he repeatedly has refused to do so.

"What he says in court doesn't carry a lot of credibility and the bottom line is no one has tried to stop him from operating a restaurant but we will not allow him to operate a dance hall without proper approval."

Tatigian said the city will continue to prosecute Cortis in Livonia's 16th District Court, where he faces 15 ordinance violations for holding dances without the proper zoning and opening his business without a certificate of occupancy.

Each of the counts carries a maximum sentence of 90 days in jail and a $500 fine.

CORTIS HAD operated the Grande Ballroom at Warren and Merriman in Westland for several years, providing an alcohol-free nightclub for teens on weekends while conducting ballroom dancing, a buffet restaurant and other programs during the week.

Last fall, he opened a buffet restaurant in Livonia, taking over the former Duff's Smorgasboard on Plymouth.

Ladywood notes graduation

Local students walked down the aisles Sunday to end their high school careers at Ladywood High School, which serves western Wayne County communities.

The school's 27th annual commencement exercises were June 3 in the auditorium of Churchill High, Newburgh at Joy. A graduation Mass was that morning.

Sunday's ceremony began with "Pomp and Circumstance," performed by the Ladywood High Chamber Orchestra, directed by Suzanne Authement.

MASTER OF ceremonies was Sister Mary Estelle, assistant principal. Diplomas were conferred by Sister Mary Alexander, principal.

Stephanie Mellon, senior class president, presented the invocation. Other senior class officers are Natalie Bakopoulos, vice president; Margaret Knittel, secretary; and Beth Felan, treasurer.

The commencement address was given by Sister Nancy Jamroz, dean of student development at Madonna College.

Jessica Normile was salutatorian and Carrie Isabell was valedictorian.

THE Ladywood Honors Choir sang "Like An Eagle," and the chamber orchestra played the "Coronation March" for the processional.

The class of 1990's colors are peach and ivory, its flower is peach rose. The class song is "Friends" by Michael Smith and Amy Grant and the class motto is: "We were here, but now are gone. We left our names to carry on. Those who knew us, knew us well. Those who didn't, time will tell."

Quayle stumps for GOP candidates on state tour

Vice President J. Danforth Quayle visited southeast Michigan Monday speaking of Republican politics in general, and in favor of John Engler for governor and Bill Schuette for congress in particular.

Quayle spoke for 20-minutes at Roma's of Bloomfield Monday afternoon and later received a Detroit Pistons t-shirt.

Quayle's appearance was part of a campaign tour that took him later that day to Grand Rapids.

Republican candidates for state senate, state representative, county commissioner and non-partisan judges races used the time before the official program to talk to friends and supporters.

The crowd of 300 rose to their feet as Quayle entered the banquet room at 1 p.m.

Ronna Romney of Bloomfield Hills, Republican national committee member, introduced Quayle, calling him a man of "quiet dignity."

AFTER BEING welcomed to the home of the "World Champion Pistons," Quayle, who hails from Indiana, reminded the crowd that the Detroit team started as the Fort Wayne Pistons.

Quayle called Michigan "a priority state" in this year's elections and said that there is a good chance of "a constructive change" with Republican victories outnumbering those of the Democrats.

He alluded to a Democratic fund raiser that evening for Gov. James Blanchard.

"They should enjoy partying tonight. In November, it will be the Republicans' time to celebrate our victory and their defeat," Quayle said.

He likened the Blanchard campaign to the now-defunct television show "Eight Is Enough," explaining that "it's time to send John Engler back to Lansing, only this time as your governor."

He laid down the gauntlet to Michigan Republicans in the race to elect members of their party to federal office.

"IN INDIANA we have two Republican senators. It's high time that Michigan has at least one," Quayle said.

He added that the Republican Party could pick up U.S. senate seats in a number of Midwest states, including Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois.

"It's possible to return to the majority party in the U.S. Senate, a position we have not enjoyed since 1986," the vice president said.

And should the Republicans make gains but not sufficient to become the majority party, Quayle is hoping the 100-member Senate is equally divided between Democrats and Republicans.

"It would give me great pleasure to break every tie vote for George Bush's agenda," Quayle said.

The vice president also touched on the recently concluded summit between Bush and Soviet Union president Mikhail Gorbachev, government spending, education and national security.

In closing, Quayle told those gathered that the ultimate condition of the country lies with them.

"YOU ARE THE ones who have made a difference in the past and will in the future," Quayle said.

As he returned to his seat at the head table, the crowd rose again for a standing ovation.

Those who came for the speech gave Quayle great praise.

Wilhelm Kast of Bloomfield Hills was pleased by the support Quayle gave to Michigan Republicans in his speech.

"It was a very good speech. He's really grown," Kast said.

Helen Lerner of Birmingham credited Quayle with "overcoming a lot" in the way of criticism and called his speech "a very fine one."

"I came today to see a vice president but I'm leaving with a real fondness for Dan Quayle," Lerner said.

Madonna task force studies university status

University status is under consideration at Madonna College.

Trustees at the four-year, private college have appointed a task force to determine the possibility of becoming a university.

"With an enrollment of over 4,300 students, a master's program now offered in Taiwan and students attending Madonna from 14 countries, the term university fits Madonna College," said trustee Richard White.

The 15-member task force will report to the Madonna Board of Trustees in January after completing its work in December.

Items to be considered include the college's mission and tradition, the qualities of a Catholic university, Madonna's liberal arts heritage, the college's financial resources, its role in teaching and research and its vision for the future.

Enrollment numbers are not expected to be a determining factor.

Madonna's liberal arts and career service education are expected to continue regardless of university status, trustees said.

SC piano workshop to mark anniversary of Mozart's death

A two-day piano workshop, featuring the works of Mozart, is being offered June 26-27 at Schoolcraft college.

Next year will mark the 200th anniversary of Mozart's death. The event is expected to renew interest in Mozart's life and work.

The workshop is designed for piano teachers, as well as students. Instructors will include Richard Cass, professor of music at the University of Missouri, Kansas City Conservatory; Paul Horn, professor of piano at the Wheaton (Ill.) College Conservatory of Music; and Donald Morelock, head of the Schoolcraft piano department.

Cost is $45. Registration must be received by Friday, June 22. Call 462-4448 to register.

Schoolcraft is at 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

Home built aircraft on display

A pancake breakfast and display of home built aircraft is scheduled for 7-11 a.m. Sunday, June 17, at Mettetal Airport, Joy and Lilley roads, Canton.

The event is sponsored by Chapter 113 of the Experimental Aircraft Association (EAA).

Breakfast is $3.50 for adults, $2.50 for children. The display is free.

Additional information is available by calling Frank Abar, 464-7343 or Doug Shumard, 446-4809 days and 453-8969 evenings.

Pursell proposes legislation to repeal JOA act

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Future newspaper joint operating agreements would be outlawed — though the Detroit JOA would continue — under legislation proposed Wednesday by U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth.

Pursell initially supported the JOA between the Detroit Free Press and Detroit News, though later opposed the arrangement as "a sweetheart relationship between the newspapers and the federal government." Pursell's proposed legislation would repeal the Newspaper Preservation Act, the 20-year-old law that guided roughly 20 JOAs nationwide. The Detroit agreement is the largest authorized under the old law.

A spokesman for the Congressman confirmed the new law wouldn't affect the Detroit newspaper agreement.

"IN TERMS of Detroit, no, it will not affect the JOA," said Gary Cates, congressional aide to Pursell.

The Detroit agreement was eventually settled by the U.S. Supreme Court, after a court challenge brought by area newspaper publisher W. Edward Wendover, among others.

Wendover, publisher of the Plymouth-based Community Crier newspaper, was in Washington on JOA matters and unavailable for comment, according to a spokeswoman.

Pursell held a news conference Wednesday to outline the bill.

Though co-sponsors will be sought, it is uncertain whether other Michigan congressmen will sign on.

"Right now, I can say we haven't been approached," said Cynthia Mann, a spokeswoman for U.S. Rep. Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

Under the Newspaper Preservation Act, the federal government must approve JOAs, which let competing newspapers merge circulation, advertising, production and other business operations while maintaining separate news and editorial operations. Under the act, one of the newspapers must be defined as falling.

The 20-year-old law allowed about 20 previous JOAs to stand, and six have been granted since, the most recent one in York, Pa. The Detroit JOA took effect in November.

The Associated Press contributed to this story.

Pursell's proposed legislation would repeal the Newspaper Preservation Act, the 20-year-old law that guided roughly 20 JOAs nationwide. The Detroit agreement is the largest authorized under the old law.

School millage Tax issue should be rejected

WAYNE-WESTLAND school district voters are urged to vote "no" on a combined tax increase and tax renewal proposal on Monday's school board election ballot.

There are numerous reasons for our position, one of the few times we have not supported a school finance proposal.

One is that the Board of Education this spring should have separated the tax increase and renewal into two proposals, giving voters a choice.

By combining them into a single issue, many voters who would have been supportive of at least the tax renewal now feel blackmailed or pressured into backing the tax increase.

Voters also feel that the tax increase, if approved next Monday, would be used mainly to finance pay raises for the teachers, not necessarily to improve the quality of the district's equipment or pay for maintenance and equipment needs.

Voters may feel blackmailed by the tax increase and renewal combined into one proposal.

The district, which already has one of the highest tax rates in the state, must look for better ways to allocate its money instead of going to the financial well every time there is a problem.

While we agree with the board and the administration that the state's school aid formula is a major culprit in the district's current money dilemma, we don't see the governor or state Legislature solving the problem in the near future.

That leaves the district and its voters with the basic responsibility of deciding what kind of education local students should have.

We recommend voters reject the millage increase and renewal proposal on Monday.

Board choices Posey, Laura top candidates

VOTERS IN the Wayne-Westland school district should elect Leonard Posey, named to a vacancy six months ago, to a four-year term in next Monday's election.

During his brief time on the board, and during interviews with the Observer, Posey has shown that he has the skills and potential to be an excellent board member for the district, which faces a number of in the near future.

A vice president for human resources at a Detroit bank, Posey has the ability and sensitivity to look at the issues of money, organization and curriculum and develop new ways of dealing with old issues.

Another advantage of his candidacy is that he represents the Cherry Hill-Inkster segment of the school community, which has had little voice at the board level.

The district covers most of the city of Westland.

In the Livonia district, which covers the northern section of the city, the best candidate is Joseph Laura, seeking a second four-year term. He has demonstrated that he is one of the most skilled board members to represent the district.

Cable TV Rate hikes pricing people out

IF WE HAD a dime for every cable TV rate hike, we could probably all afford the Playboy Channel.

Slowly but surely over the last decade, news and information (and, yes, entertainment) have been pushed further out of the reach of the viewing public.

Since its inception, the cost for basic cable service has nearly tripled in some areas, and rates for premium channels like HBO, Showtime and ESPN have doubled. And service doesn't seem to be getting any better.

How far will the rate hikes go? For six years, thanks to deregulation, cable companies have been allowed to charge what they want. Deregulation was supposed to have fostered competition, which would have led to competitive rates and better service.

OBVIOUSLY that has not happened, and something has to give.

According to cable companies, the main reason for rate hikes is the increased cost in providing premium channels to subscribers. For example, the expense to produce those made-for-HBO movies gets passed along to them and, therefore, passed along to us.

Fine. Then pass the buck where it belongs, to people who buy the premium channels. Reduce the price for basic cable — which is now running near $20 — or better yet, make it free. Then collect on the premium channels, which are now running near $10. If that's where the expense comes in, don't make the wrong people pay for it.

Not everyone needs to have five movie channels, but everyone should be allowed access to information and other services that only cable provides. People with lower and fixed incomes shouldn't be priced out of watching video-taped city council meetings, local police safety shows and meet the candidates night.

Everyone, regardless of income, has a right to such information. It's time cable companies realized that.

Negotiations Time to settle S'craft contract

SETTLE the contracts, folks.

After nearly one year of on-and-off negotiations Schoolcraft College support staff members, including secretaries, custodians and telephone operators, are still without new union contracts.

That's a disturbing sign. Keeping an eye on long range financial projections, Schoolcraft officials have fought to keep wage increases and benefits down.

With area homeowners already straining under the burden of rising property taxes — most of it for schools — that is a commendable position.

For too many years, in too many other school districts, concern for taxpayers was absent when school and union leaders sat down to draw up a new contract. By now, union leaders should have learned those days are gone.

But long, drawn out negotiations can't do much for the morale of the nearly 100 employees involved.

EVEN MORE disappointing, college and union negotiators had settled several previous contracts through "mutual gains" bargaining — a system which allowed both sides to negotiate more as partners than as adversaries.

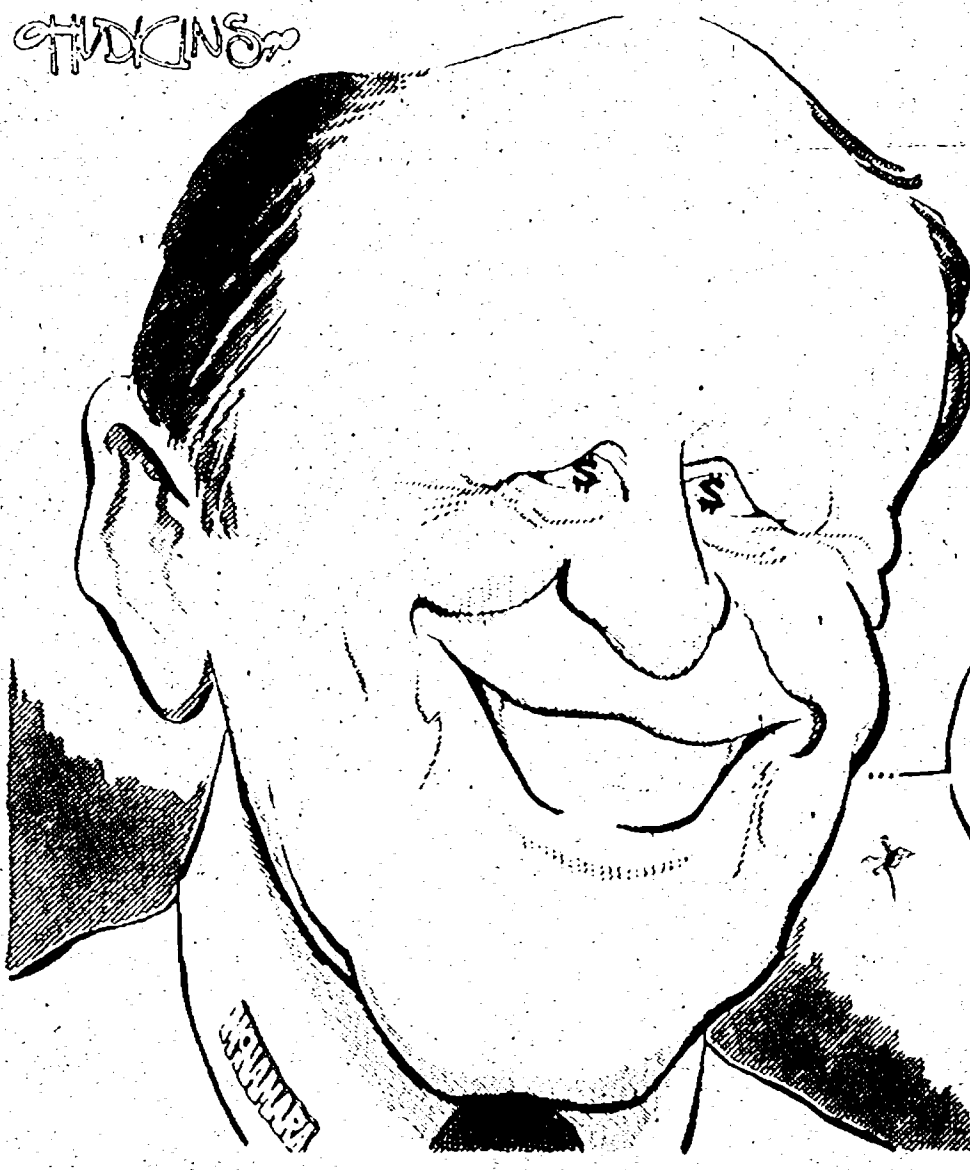

That concept seemed to work well. We wonder what happened to it.

As for the current negotiations, no end appears in site, even though the old contract expired last June 30.

Lately, it seems the dispute between the college and its support staff centers as much on getting the two sides to the bargaining table than on dollars and cents.

School officials say union representatives aren't readily available. Union representatives say they've been showing up on time, only to have college negotiators walk out on them.

Our advice to both sides: go back to the negotiating room, lock the doors and don't come out until the contracts are settled.

Public deserves say in development wars

THE OLD MAN smiled gently when I told him I had worked in Farmington for 10 years.

We were standing on the shores of Burt Lake, taking in the first glints of summer sun. The Saginaw area was his home now, had been for many years. But in 1935 he had worked in Farmington.

"I get back to that area once in a while to visit a friend. Sure has changed," he remarked, looking out over the sandy beach.

His eyes glistened, as he recalled the old golf course which once graced the west side of town just off Grand River and all the old farms north of 10 Mile.

Then he hesitated, looked around and said:

"You know, those malls out there in Novi are really something. I've just never really seen anything like that." There was a bit of gleeful mischief in his voice, referring to the mega-development around Novi Road and I-96.

After a moment, he became more somber.

"I guess I understand the big malls. It's just too bad that all the open land down there is disappearing," he said, shaking his head.

"Nobody minds development, but it looks like somebody down there wants to make sure that there isn't one piece of empty space left."

THIS CONVERSATION came back to me the other day when reading about the legislation our lawmakers are contemplating. It's a package that certainly deserves support from anyone who really cares about a more orderly development of this region.

For a decade now some developers have been having a field day seeing to it that wherever there was an empty space, a strip mall, bank, office building or house was covering it.

Local officials, for the most part, either went along with this laissez faire development orgy or just threw their hands up in frustration. The results were predictable — uncontrolled growth with little thought given to the impact on the community.

But State Rep. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, is sponsoring a package of legislation that he hopes will bring back some sanity to the development process. In part the package would give some clout to municipalities that wish to be something other than a series of strip malls.

Steve Barnaby

Nothing particularly radical about these bills. Basically the proposed laws expand the definition of "park" to include open space, natural areas, wildlife areas and bird sanctuaries. If passed the legislation would allow communities to make special assessments to preserve open space and natural areas.

Not surprisingly, the Southeastern Michigan Builders Association and the Apartment Association of Michigan are opposed to enactment. They fear the use of eminent domain to stop development.

Nothing to fear. It will be a relief to have control of development back in the hands of the public rather than the private sector, which has demonstrated that its greed in too many cases overcomes any sense of civic responsibility.

from our readers

Involvement is urged

To the editor:

I am amazed and saddened over the lack of parent involvement concerning our children's education. Our schools are in financial trouble and parents complain about the quality of their children's education but never show any positive action to make the situation any better. The last meeting at my son's junior high (Marshall) consisted of the principal and four parents.

A first step to helping our children is the millage vote June 11 to support the education of our children. I'm a taxpayer also and I know how expensive the taxes are getting, but $150 per year isn't too much to pay for quality education.

A second step to the school financial problem is to write letters to Lansing concerning new state funding programs for all schools. Legislators are working on this program now, but to get it approved also takes the support and voices of us parents. If you do not have information on the millage or state reform, please get some and find out what is going on.

Please don't hurt our children's education because of frustration of high taxes. Let's pass this millage for them, then let's work together to reform the state funding program.

Get involved in this process. It doesn't take that much time to be involved and it's certainly worth it. Show our children that we can make changes for a better future so when they are adults they will know it is possible to make positive changes in their education and government. After reading The Observer's recommendation for people to vote against our children's education, I will be buying the Westland Eagle.

Yvonne Foltz,

Vote 'yes' on school tax

To the editor:

The time is drawing near for the Wayne-Westland voters to decide what is going to happen to our schools. The critical date is June 11.

The following are some statistics:

- Michigan schools are funded by state and local revenues.
- They are supplemented by some federal funds.
- State support has declined 6.7 percent.
- Cost of school supplies and services has risen. The school district has no control over this.
- Even though property assessments have gone up, the school district gets less state aid because we are an "in-formula" district.
- The present per pupil revenue is still not adequate to provide a quality education.
- Property values are affected when a local district fails to offer a full range of programs and services. Prospective home buyers want to make sure the schools are good before buying.
- The state doesn't provide emergency funding to "bail us out."

By voting yes on June 11, we will ensure that our schools will be fully operational. If not, teachers will be laid off and proposed cuts will come into effect. Teachers who have taught art, physical education and wood shop will now be teaching regular academic classes. Some schools will also have part-time principals because they will be responsible for two schools.

This is not creating quality education for our children. We are responsible to maintain the high quality of education that this school district is noted for. This can happen if we vote yes on June 11.

Marsha Slenko,
Wayne

Student plugs millage hike

To the editor:

I am a junior at John Glenn High School and I will enter my senior year next fall. I believe it will be a fatal blow to the quality of education for our entire community if the June 11 millage does not pass.

We will be faced with several cuts for the next school year: cuts in the elementary school expressive arts program, a reduction of the junior high school day to five hours and the elimination of all extracurricular activities. We cannot allow this to happen to our district — this is Wayne-Westland, not Belleville or Taylor.

I encourage every voter in our district to vote YES June 11 because over 17,000 students are counting on you.

Return to past is fun for afternoon

"HI," SAID the voice on the other end of the telephone line. "This is Jan Weaver. I'm away from my desk right now, but if you'd like to leave a message..."

"Oh great," I thought. "Voice mail." I left a message accepting the invitation to the "first annual media day" at Crossroads Village and Huckleberry Railroad in Flint.

A couple of hours later, when I returned to my own desk, the message light on my telephone was blinking. It was Jan, acknowledging my message and telling me that she had reserved tickets for me and my family for the following Sunday.

Obviously, when she had returned my call, she had heard a voice saying, "Hi, this is Jack Gladden. I'm away from my desk right now, but

When we... my wife, myself, my daughter, the first grader, and one of her classmates... arrived at the village on Sunday, Jan was stationed at the main entrance to greet all of us media types.

"Oh, yes," I said, when she introduced herself, "we've talked on the phone." Then, after thinking about it for a few seconds, I added, "At least, our machines have talked."

Jack Gladden

We exchanged a couple of inane comments about the marvels of voice mail and then the family (and the classmate) and I walked through the gates and into the 19th Century.

ABOARD THE Huckleberry Railroad train, pulled by a genuine coal-burning steam engine, I raised the window and breathed deeply. The smell of the black, acrid coal smoke took me back. I was 6 years old again, and I was on a train, pulled by a coal burner, somewhere between Bergman, Ark., and Wichita Falls, Texas.

My daughter, the first grader, also took a breath. She gagged, coughed and scurried across the aisle to sit with her mother on the leeward side of the coach. She said something like "Yuch!"

Back in the village, the first stop was the Durant barn, a structure built around the turn of the century and one of the last buildings in Genesee County associated with William Crapo Durant, the founder of General Motors.

The first graders headed for the hand-hewn board on a fulcrum that served as a see-saw. I played with the barrel hoops and sticks, the spinning button on a string, the hand-carved convicts that pounded hammer against rocks when you moved two pieces of wood back and forth.

"You see," my wife explained to our daughter and her friend, "these are the kinds of toys children played with in the 1800s."

"They're what I played with when I was a kid in Arkansas," I muttered.

INSIDE THE Buzzell house, built in 1854, I saw the water pump in the kitchen.

"They had an indoor pump," I said. "They must have been well off."

"It was hooked up to the cistern," said a worker, dressed in the fashion of the period. "Do you know what a cistern is?"

"Yeah," I said. "We had one. But I'd never drink from it. Rain water. Yech."

Outside the house the 6-year-olds saw the doors that had once led to the root cellar. "What's that?" "That was the way into the cellar." My wife was explaining. "You know, like the one in The Wizard of Oz that Dorothy's family went into when the tornado was coming."

"Like the one I spent hours in as a kid in Arkansas when the tornadoes were coming."

And so it went.

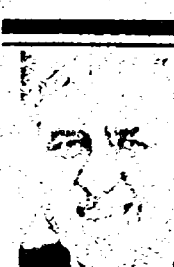

For five hours the kids and the wife — the native Detroit — visited a world they had read about in books. For me it was a return to the days when I was growing up in Arkansas in a world where steam engines still pulled trains and you could tell if someone was well-to-do if he had a water pump inside the house.

I wouldn't want to return to those days permanently. But it was fun for an afternoon.

What those teachers comments really mean

Q: My fifth grade son's report card had a written comment. It said, "He needs help in learning to express himself at the appropriate time." I have received similar comments on report cards about my three children over the years and sometimes I am not sure what the comments truly mean. Can you help?

Doc Doyle

Teachers care about their children and therefore use euphemisms so as not to destroy their relationship. However, I often wonder if parents were fully aware of the messages being given in softer language.

A: Elementary teachers often use euphemisms to keep from putting kids down and not offend parents in the hope the child will grow out of any inappropriate behavior.

Since you and I are friends and have discussed the teacher's comment, you know I am responding to the typical teacher type euphemism with tongue in cheek.

"He needs to express himself at appropriate times" probably means he blurts out in class and interrupts other students and the teacher and should keep his mouth shut when others are speaking.

Let's think of some others and what the teacher really means:

"Will accomplish a task when interested and frequently stimulated." This means he/she won't work until the teacher is pushing her every minute of the day.

"Is a nice boy but sometimes resorts to physical means to win his point with smaller children." He is probably a bully who will eventually get his "clock cleaned" when he pushes the wrong kid.

"Needs to develop a sense of independence, he only seems secure in group situations." He can't make a decision — a born follower.

"Needs some direction in improving table manners in the cafeteria." This could mean he/she has disgusting eating habits and everyone knows it.

"Sometimes shows a lack of maturity in relationships with others." Acts like a baby and should grow up.

"Needs guidance in developing good hygiene habits." Needs to take a bath.

Teachers care about their children and therefore use euphemisms so as not to destroy their relationship. However, I often wonder if parents were fully aware of the messages being given in softer language.

Idealism takes them far from home

GIVEN OUR level of prosperity and the southeastern Michigan quality of life, one would think this is the top of the heap.

Yet two educational leaders — C. Nelson Grote and R. Stephen Nicholson — have chosen to move on. And it appears they haven't changed their goals about educating the communities they serve.

Grote was president of Schoolcraft College in northwestern Wayne County for the better part of a decade, bringing on a lot of technology programs and surviving two recessions.

He left for what looked like an ideal two-campus job in Spokane, Wash., but about three years ago he went back to a four-year college to which he had strong ties.

IT'S MOREHEAD State University, and it's in the Appalachian foothills of eastern Kentucky. Grote sent me a local newspaper supplement shortly after his arrival. One had to read between the lines, but it looked as if he had walked into a hornet's nest.

"It was a hornet's nest all right," Grote agreed at a recent social gathering of the Schoolcraft Old Guard. "They had lost students. They came within an inch — within an inch — of being closed and converted to a prison."

Tim Richard

What a sad social commentary that would have been!

To make several years of work into a short-story, Grote has led a turnaround. The student body has grown from 5,000 to some 8,500. Most of the students come from nearby counties. It's not the kind of comfortable, middle-class existence of Livonia, Garden City and Plymouth-Canton. But Grote has a sense of accomplishment.

"At commencement, Nelson asks the graduates who are the first in their families to attend college to stand," said Wilma Grote, his excited wife of 41 years. A lot of them stand. A lot.

NICHOLSON, AT 64, could have retired as Oakland Community College's chief executive in a short spell. He chose instead to head for the United Arab Emirates, a hot but wealthy little nation whose inland border with Saudi Arabia is so sandy that it's not even defined on my globe.

"It's not an under-developed country. It's highly developed," Nicholson said at his going-away party last week. "They say they have 400,000 residents and 800,000 expatriates who do the work. They told me they'd have trouble fixing an elevator without outside help. They want to learn to operate their own country."

As of this week, Nicholson is vice chancellor in charge of the colleges of technology. He reports to a chancellor instead of a seven-member elected board.

In his earlier years, Nicholson was a missionary, and a strong streak of the Christian humanitarian shows through. I observed it last November on a trip with him and other community college leaders to that wretched stretch of the earth known as the Gaza Strip.

But Nicholson isn't going to the United Arab Emirates with missionary work in mind. He candidly admitted they got him by "flattery." They said they had the money to hire the best, and he was the best.

NICHOLSON IS a sociologist and cultural anthropologist. In his new job on the Persian Gulf, just a short job from Iran, he will help guide a Middle Eastern oil nation into the 21st century. Much as he loved Oakland County, it was an offer he couldn't refuse.

I only hope he doesn't melt in the 110-degree heat.

Idealism. Devotion to teaching. Who said the suburbs are loaded with jaded materialism?

When Jerry Pawloski was growing up, he played sports . . . a lot of sports . . . Catholic Youth Organization football; Little League through American Legion baseball; football, track, baseball and basketball in high school all four years.

And when it was time to go away to college, Pawloski was awarded with a football scholarship to the University of Buffalo in New York state.

Athletics are such a part of his life that he wanted to continue with them after college. You could kind of say that if Pawloski's life were a swimming pool, athletics would be the water.

"My dad was always a sports buff and he felt that as long as I was playing sports, I'd be off the streets," said Pawloski, 47, who teaches physical education at Westland John Glenn High School. "With all that athletics have given me over the years, I felt that with teaching athletics I could give something back to the kids that has been very special to me."

Pawloski has been instructing students on the finer points of physical education for some 25 years now, 21 of those years at Cherry Hill High School. Along with teaching, Pawloski has coached varsity football, swimming and junior varsity baseball at Cherry Hill.

Two years before the Cherry Hill School District merged with the Wayne-Westland Community Schools, Pawloski was named athletic director at Cherry Hill High.

"THE MERGER hurt," said Pawloski, who turned down an invitation to the Oakland-Balders training camp to take the physical education instructor position at Cherry Hill. "But I experienced enough success and failure at Cherry Hill to be satisfied with my stay there."

"And this has really helped me in my teaching career."

The "failures" Pawloski speaks of can't match the "success" he also mentions. While at Cherry Hill, Pawloski was voted swimming Coach of the Year four times and football Coach of the Year twice. He was also recognized at the Class B swimming Coach of the Year in 1978.

"I've coached 50 different teams in my 25 years of physical education instruction," said Pawloski, who has a team of his own with his two sons Jerry, 24, Jeff, 23, and daughter Krist, 21. "But the only coaching I do these days is pee-wee hockey in Allen Park."

at Cherry Hill to physical education instructor at John Glenn also allowed Pawloski to "chase other things," he said. These days, when not teaching, Pawloski can be found at the Southwest Athletic Club in Melvindale, where he's the athletic director. He also manages and plays on a softball team and runs a golf league.

"The change has definitely allowed me to get involved in many other things," he said.

THROUGHOUT ALL all of his years of instructing and coaching, Pawloski has seen many changes, mostly good and some bad.

"I'd have to say that after-school jobs have affected kids and their interest in physical education more than anything else," he said. "There is a lot more pressure on kids today than when I first began teaching. It's almost like they have to work to keep up with the clothes, fads, and to have a car to keep up with peer pressure. And this takes away from athletics."

"Kids don't have as much personal pride as they used to and they tend to use their jobs as an excuse not to push themselves."

So Pawloski and his colleagues at John Glenn have taken steps to make class times a bit more interesting for the students. Innovative techniques work well in holding the students' attention and make them want to get involved.

"Like the other day for instance, what started out as a basic swimming class, turned into a game of 'water baseball,'" said Pawloski. "A lot has to do with my attitude . . . I have to make them believe what they're doing is fun."

Pawloski believes that gym classes today should use activities that lend themselves more to the "personal involvement" of the student, like swimming, weightlifting, tennis and other health-oriented activities that promote constructive leisure time.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION teachers at John Glenn also coordinate their efforts to bring different classes together.

"Say on a rain day, we'll hold an 'open gym,' where students from several classes are allowed to mingle and choose between a number of activities," said Pawloski. "The kids enjoy the more social setting and the choice makes the class more interesting."

Teaching everything from basic classes to technical classes, Pawloski doesn't really have a favorite.

"The level of ability doesn't matter," he said. "The only thing that differs is the level of expectation . . . and the look on the kids face when he accomplishes something he's worked hard at is very rewarding for any teacher."

Pawloski, who grew up in Lincoln Park, hasn't really thought of retiring . . . it's too early. When the time comes, he'd like to travel a bit, maybe to Europe or Hawaii. Until then, he'll stick to the career that's rewarded him all of his life.

"Seeing an athlete attain a personal level of success, the confidence that they develop, and knowing that I had something to do with that is what keeps me going."

Fashion choices show off her taste in color, style

By Lynn Howard

People notice when Janice Fritz walks in a room.

The comely Westland aide for Wayne County Commissioner Kay Beard enjoys wearing form-fitting clothes that show off her taste in colors and style.

"I don't stick to basic suits like a lot of women," she said. "I think you can wear nice looking things that are still very professional."

Fritz looks for colors that enhance her shoulder-length auburn hair and blue eyes, and styles that flatter her size-7 figure.

"Today, I have on a black dress with a bright turquoise jacket," she said. "I really like that color. I also go for peaches, off-white, pinks and reds. Those colors really work for me."

Fritz favors a variety of dressy clothes for office wear—skirts, blouses, jackets, suits and dresses. Because she has a tight budget, she often shops sales and mid-range clothiers.

"I HAVE a few friends who say all they will shop is Liz Claiborne or Saks—or something like that, but I can't do that," she said. "I go to Casual Corner and to sales and I find a lot of really nice things. I tend to be careful when I shop."

"My feeling is if you look good and you know how to dress, you don't have to spend top dollar. It's all in how you carry yourself."

Fritz accents her clothes with carefully matched earrings, necklaces and bracelets.

"I HAVE fine jewelry, but I find you can do a lot more with costume jewelry," she said. "I also go for big, wide belts and try to match shoes, especially if they are colors I wear a lot."

To pull together her look for the day, Fritz tries to get her outfit ready the night before, "but that doesn't always work."

"I'm out of the house a lot," she said.

"I find more and more I take big lumps of clothes to the dry cleaners and then take them off the hangar from one day to the next," she laughed. "That's terrible, but it's true."

All in the family

It was truly all in the family when Garden City residents Linda Worden, her three daughters Kim, Kristin and Yvonne and two granddaughters Sara and Rachel appeared in Wonderland Mall's second annual mother/daughter fashion show. Worden and her daughters model black-and-white ensembles from Casual Corners, while six-year-old Sara was dressed by the Fashion Bug and two-year-old Rachel by Montgomery Ward.

MYTHS ABOUT CHRISTIANITY
THE MYTH OF THE MONTH
Jesus Christ was only a great moral teacher

What are we to make of this man? The joys and hardships of two thousand years of western history have been pinned on him. Controversy has constantly surrounded his claims. Religious life in the West has been dominated by allusions to his teachings. No self-aware, intelligent person dare avoid this intriguing individual and his impact on society.

No one doubts any more that Jesus actually existed. Most people also believe that he was a great moral teacher. Religious and political leaders throughout the world, including many of the great opponents of Christianity, hail the moral superiority of his life. Mohandas Gandhi aspired to the ideals of the Sermon on the Mount. The philosopher John Stuart Mill thought Jesus a genius and probably the greatest moral reformer who ever existed. Even Napoleon Bonaparte considered him a superior leader of men.

The New Testament documents record the radical servant-like attitude which lent power and credibility to Jesus' teachings. He has truly led humanity in the expression of compassion and humility, as well as in anger against evil and hypocrisy. Jesus combined a realistic understanding of human nature with an idealism for what human beings could become. His words have tested and challenged the minds and hearts of millions for centuries.

Of course, this is not the whole story. When we begin to consider Jesus' claims about his identity, the controversy begins. This is where people (including the world's religious leaders) have problems. This is where the label "moral teacher" is put to the test. It begins to seem inadequate, if not naive.

A thirty year old peasant carpenter turned itinerant teacher, Jesus laid claim both by word and action to be more than a mere man. He operated on the assumption that he was God himself. How do we know this? From his explicit statements and the very way he lived. His self-declarations are interwoven in the very fabric of the New Testament. He claimed equality with God. He said he had lived before Abraham. He assumed the right to forgive sins. He accepted worship. There seems to be no escaping it.

Jesus of Nazareth could not be simply a harmless moral teacher. He cuts too deep and steps out too far from the crowd of moral teachers and philosophers. We can call him a liar. We might even discuss his mental imbalance. But the tag of "only a great moral teacher" doesn't stick. It was never an option in his own day. Some of his contemporaries thought him mad, others loved him. He was regarded with disdain and sometimes even hatred, or alternately with amazement and adoration. But he never received mild approval.

Neither is it an option for today. We have to shut him up or hear him out. What are we to make of this man? What of his moral integrity? His fulfillment of centuries of aspirations? His prediction of death and resurrection? What are we to make of his claims to be the one and only God-man of history? What are we to do with this great moral teacher who makes such impossible claims?

Athletes and drug abuse: It's a losing game

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

DR. JOSEPH PURSCH CAN'T decide whether Roy plays football or baseball. But it doesn't matter. Roy's got a drug and alcohol problem. Pursch drew a complete picture of the athlete before a large gathering recently at the Southfield Civic Center. The program was sponsored by Friends of Brighton Hospital. Roy is not real. He is a composite of some 150 athletes Pursch has treated in his work as a noted substance abuse counselor. Pursch is medical director of the Addiction Institute in Costa Mesa, Calif. He's most known for his work with celebrities such as former First Lady Betty Ford, Billy Carter and astronaut Buzz Aldrin.

Rather than name dropping, though, Pursch spent a good portion of his discussion tracing the fictional life of Roy. "Your name is Roy," Pursch said, "except you don't play baseball." For that reason, Pursch goes to great lengths to help the audience understand Roy, his background and what led him to a path of drug and alcohol abuse.

In many cases, those who created Roy hinder him in his treatment. That is part of the reason the recovery rate for athletes is usually low, he said.

"NOBODY IS interested in getting him well," Pursch said. "Lawyers are interested in getting him off (drugs) instead of getting him well. The agent is interested in getting him to play again so he can get his commission. His team is interested in getting him to carry the ball. The ex-wife is interested in keeping the alimony coming."

Relapses into drugs and alcohol in sports have been well-documented. Detroit Red Wing player Bob Probert's battles with alcoholism and cocaine are well-known in this area. Such cases are all too familiar for Pursch, who's worked with athletes in every type of sport for 25 years. "Except for jockeys," he said. "I've never treated any jockeys." Pursch has treated other celebrities and those not in the spotlight. He's written a book on the subject, "Dear Doc . . ." and has a nationally syndicated column "Advice on Alcohol."

His visit to the area was a homecoming of sorts. Pursch came to Detroit in 1947 as a young man with only $2.73 in his pocket and who could barely speak English. He landed a job for 80 cents an hour hanging from buildings as a window washer.

Later Pursch decided to pursue medicine, enrolling in Wayne State University. He later received his medical degree from Indiana University School of Medicine and interned at Detroit Receiving Hospital.

He joined the military as a Navy flight surgeon and served aboard the carrier USS Forrestal. He later became Chief of Naval Operations Drug Abuse Team and established the Navy's first overseas alcohol/drug rehabilitation service in 1970. Pursch served on both President Carter's Commission of Alcoholism and President Reagan's Presidential Commission on Drunk Driving.

IN HIS presentation Pursch is straight-forward. He doesn't wrap himself with buzz words of the field. Pursch is also not a proponent of the genetic theory some people believe is the main cause of alcoholism. He cites his own statistics that say 28 percent of alcoholics don't have the gene.

"There is four major influences in alcohol addiction," he said, "only one is genetic."

"No matter what genetics will show, you still have to tell an alcoholic 'You're still going to have to stop drinking.'"

Malls focus on travel fashions and careers

There's plenty happening at Wonderland Mall and Laurel Park Place in Livonia during June.

Wonderland will be hosting the "Wonderful World of Women" today (June 7) through Sunday, June 10, and will jazz up the Eaton Station with jazz, fashions and fun Monday-Friday, June 11-15.

The women's expo will introduce women of all ages and at all levels of their lives to the newest and latest products and services available, as well as career and business opportunities.

The show will feature diet and weight control programs, computer institutes, travel and modeling schools and career opportunities in the financial and beauty fields.

"JAZZING IT UP" will be noon to 1 p.m. at the mall's food court. A jazz band will perform live each day and members of the mall's Fashion Board will model the latest in spring fashions.

Wonderland is at Plymouth and Middlebelt roads, Livonia.

Laurel Park Place, at Newburgh and Six Mile roads, will continue its lifestyles seminars with "How to Pack for a Trip" at 12:15 p.m. Wednesday, June 20.

The seminar is designed to show how to make your traveling wardrobe coordinate from day to evening styles. The seminar will be in the north wing of the mall near Olga's Restaurant.

Barnes knows about fear of having breast surgery

By Sue Mason
staff writer

Orthelia Barnes can understand the fear associated with the idea of having breast cancer. Three times she has been diagnosed as having tumors; three times they have been diagnosed as being benign.

"All have been frightening, but the most frightening and mysterious was the last one," Barnes said. "I knew it was there and I knew I was prone to fibroids (benign, non-ulcerative, painless tumors), but I ignored it."

Barnes was a guest speaker at the recent Reach for Recovery Mastectomy Update '90.

A singer, an actress and proprietress of Orthelia's Place in Detroit, Barnes is spokesperson for the American Cancer Society, addressing the concerns for the Detroit black community, which has a higher cancer rate than the white community.

Mastectomy Update is staged annually by Reach for Recovery volunteers through the Wayne County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

It provides women who have had breast surgery with information on prostheses, chemotherapy, the detection of breast cancer, reconstructive surgery and the psychological aspects of breast surgery and treatments.

BARNES' FIRST brush with breast surgery came at the age of 16, when one breast became larger than another. She was "scared to death,"

'I figured it shouldn't happen to me. I get a checkup every six months.'

— Orthelia Barnes

she said.

"I was really afraid being that young. It was a tumor as big as a grapefruit."

The tumor was removed and found to be benign, but 16 years later another developed.

"I didn't know what it had come from, since I didn't do all those (cancer causing) things you shouldn't do. I figured it shouldn't happen to me; I get a checkup every six months."

Again, the tumor was removed and because she "had one of the best surgeons in the world," Barnes didn't have to have a mastectomy.

Her last close call came at age 42, when she discovered a third lump. The telltale sign was there — her breast throbbled. But she chose to ignore it until she decided to be a volunteer for the Cancer Society.

BARNES' GOAL is to educate the black community on where they can get help for cancer and how to help. The best way to get the message across, she decided, was to set a good example. And that good example was to have breast surgery a third time.

"I've been lucky. All of my tumors have been where they can be removed."

Barnes understands the fear of breast surgery some women have. There are some parts of the body, she said, that are more meaningful to women.

"To say you're going to do something with the breast . . . that can be devastating to a woman. The breasts are a cosmetic thing that people notice. And to be honest with you, I'd rather have a scar than a total mastectomy."

BARNES IS glad that high-visibility people are being honest about breast surgery. Such actions by people like former first lady Betty Ford and actress Ann Jillian have done a lot to encourage women to be checked for breast cancer.

"Barnes had another brush with cancer recently, when it was thought her husband had thyroid cancer. The tumor, however, was found to be benign. Despite such close calls, she feels her life has been blessed.

"People must take the time to find out what the problem is when something flares up. Yes, the word cancer is such a devastating word to people that they don't do something until it's too late.

"I hope that some day we get to the point where you can say cancer and people will know something can be done about it."

New day dawns in Eastern Europe

By Louise Okrutky
special writer

Churches in Soviet bloc countries face new problems in the face of triumph. Mellowing of official government attitudes toward religion leaves churches struggling with the transition from survival tactics to expansion strategies.

"Most churches in the Soviet Union — Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria — were absolutely loyal to the Communist Party. They'd lost their identity and autonomy," said the Rev. Gjula Cseri.

He's been lecturing in the metropolitan area on the future of churches in Eastern Europe.

Before he escaped to West Germany, he was a pastor in the Hungarian Reformed Church. A pastor in the Evangelical Church of West Germany, he's active in aiding Eastern European churches adjust to their new status.

Cseri is a lecturer in ethics at the Justus Leibig University in Gießen, West Germany, and a professor of ethical and technical sociology at the Technical University of Gießen.

His local trip was arranged by the Rev. Harold Ellens of Farmington Hills.

Under the old regime, religious organizations became ad hoc government groups promoting and supporting the party line, Cseri said.

While a comparatively feisty Catholic Church in Poland resisted outright use as part of an instrument of government foreign and domestic policy goals, others didn't fare as well.

"In Hungary, the churches have to deal with the heritage of Communist rule," Cseri said. "Church leadership was compromised by collaborating with the state."

When the old Communist governments fell, it left church organizations stratified. Religious leaders who had been tied to the old government find themselves at odds with local congregations, he said.

"There's a tension between the membership and the compromised leadership. The membership is trying to hold the leadership accountable. It remains to be seen how the tension will be resolved," Cseri said.

That doesn't mean everyone in a leadership position is necessarily tainted, he said. "Young people influenced by the democracy movement, they must take over leadership."

FINANCIALLY STRAPPED churches in Eastern European countries are faced with a new opportunity to expand, but lack capital and sometimes the most basic materials, such as theological texts.

While Cseri would like church leaders in the U.S. to help their Eastern bloc counterparts rebuild, he said there's a thin line between granting aid and directing the entire effort.

"There is a 40-year lag in publishing theological books. Sometimes they are publishing books not helpful to this situation. We should discuss what would be important. Discussion is the first step."

Since churches in different Eastern bloc countries face different problems, the type of aid would need to be tailored to the situation.

Money and materials are needed to repair long-neglected church buildings. Religious education and schools suffered in most countries during the last regime.

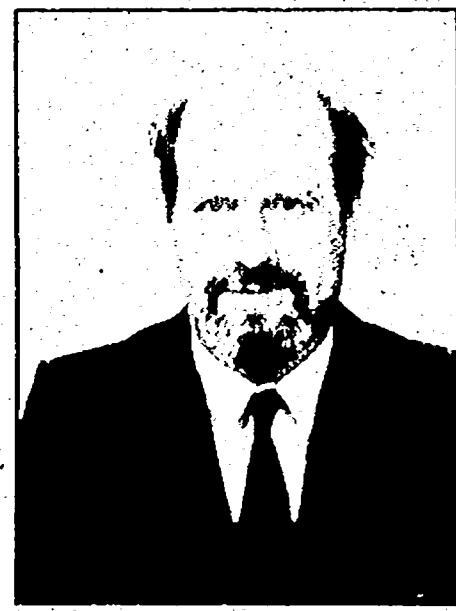

"Schools are important in Eastern Europe to church activities. In the West, some leaders don't have the task to help schools but in Eastern Europe where the state school system is paralyzed, there's a 400-year tradition of church schools. It'd be wise to support Christian schools."

In Hungary, the government nationalized church schools during the 1950s. Now the new government has returned some of the old buildings to the churches.

"In Budapest, the state gave back the Hungarian Reformed Church's high school building. It's in such a desolate condition that the church needs millions to repair and start the school," Cseri said.

Unlike other Eastern bloc countries in which materials are scarce even for buyers with American dollars, Hungary has building supplies available.

Rev. Gjula Cseri

Challenges await graduates

Dear Graduate,

You are many, but at the same time each of you is singularly special. So let me congratulate you for what you have worked so hard to make of yourself.

I am aware that your family and your wider environment have had much to do with who you are and with how you relate to your world. But make no doubt about it, your response to that environment makes all the difference. While there may be people justly proud of their role in what you are becoming, you have been and will continue to be the main contributor to what you become.

You have studied many topics, perused many authors, filled your head with many ideas and evaluated more theories than you knew existed. It is hoped you have not only learned a number of things but have learned how to keep learning.

SOME WILL tell you that you are entering a world that is exciting. Others will describe it to you as wonderful or challenging. There are also the doomsayers who suggest that the world into which you graduate is on its way down the tubes. I would prefer to say that much of that is up to you.

Some days will seem wonderful and exciting. Other days will offer up a more depressing aura. But the bottom line, the place where the tire hits the road, will be found in your own response to each one of those days.

The knowledge you have gained is rather awesome when you put it all together.

But remember that even all that knowledge put together is but a stepping stone to the kind of wisdom that will enable a fuller life for you and the many people you will affect. You see, the knowledge you have collected provides the pieces of the puzzle. Wisdom is how you put them together.

THERE WILL be advice aplenty on what the really wise life choices are to be. Some will suggest pleasure as the measure. Others will put it in terms of the bottom line on your tax return. Still others will suggest that your success be measured by the size moral perspectives

of your house or how much you have been able to collect into it. You, of course, will have to make the final choices.

Sometimes you will make the right ones the first time around, but if you are like most of us — and you probably are — then you will learn by trial and error.

The truly wise person is not the one who has never made a wrong choice or even a dumb choice. The truly wise person is one who reflects enough to learn from the choices made. May you continue to learn.

MAY YOU continue to learn of the connections that exist between you and the other people of this Earth. Indeed, may you grow in your awareness of how intimately connected you are with all the creatures of this planet and with the universe itself. May it all be better because you have walked here.

May you come to experience in your deepest self that relationship and intimacy with others, with your inner self and with the source of your life are the most rewarding experiences available to any of us.

May you know that you truly do deserve congratulations for what you have accomplished but that you deserve to be loved for who you are.

Bob Schaden, class of 1954

Walkers will share news of God's love

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Franciscan Brother Louis Canter of Duns Scotus School Evangelization in Southfield is going back to Ohio.

But he's taking the long way home.

Canter is leading a seven-week walk, "The Ohio Prayer Pilgrimage," which began Monday, June 4, at the Southfield school. The 700-mile trek started along Nine Mile Road and was routed west to Telegraph.

From there, the contingent of about 50 people is walking south through Ohio to Covington, Ky., which is near Cincinnati, Ohio. Canter is a native of Cincinnati.

Going home is only part of the reason for the walk, according to Canter.

"The purpose of the walk is for prayer and intercession, penance and evangelization," Canter said. "We're taking a passage from Mark 16:15 that says, 'You are to go into all the world and preach the Good News to everyone, everywhere.'"

The march will include prayer meetings, Masses and rallies. Walkers plan to carry a cross made of Ohio wood.

Canter said he got the idea for the pilgrimage after participating in a similar walk last year through Michigan. A group of Catholics traveled 1,000 miles by foot through Michigan, crossing into all seven dioceses in the state.

CANTER STARTED preparing for the Ohio Pilgrimage in August when he began calling cities along the route for permission to walk. Everyone was cooperative, he said.

"A couple of people thought it was strange at first, carrying a cross through the streets," Canter said. "Once I explained what we were doing, they were quite open to it."

Along the way, people on the walk will stay in homes, churches and, in the rural areas of Ohio, barns. Canter said there are a few gray areas that need to be worked out.

In preparation, Canter has been "walking and praying a lot." He also has sought the advice of Steve Neumann, who once walked around the world.

The game plan is to start out by walking 10 miles a day in the first week. Then they'll increase to 20 miles a day. Neumann also gave some tips on what clothing to wear and supplies to bring along.

"Granola bars isn't going to do it," Canter said.

The event is the first of its type. The walk couldn't come at a better time, according to Canter.

"This is kind of the beginning of evangelization of the church in this decade," he said. "In the 'Document of Evangelization in the Modern World' by Pope Paul VI it's real clear that evangelization is everyone's responsibility."

Livonia church welcomes pastor

The congregation of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in Livonia will welcome its new senior pastor next week.

The Rev. Dr. Thomas Eggebeen will begin his ministry Monday, June 11, and preach his first sermon at a 10 a.m. service Sunday, June 17. A welcoming reception will follow the worship service.

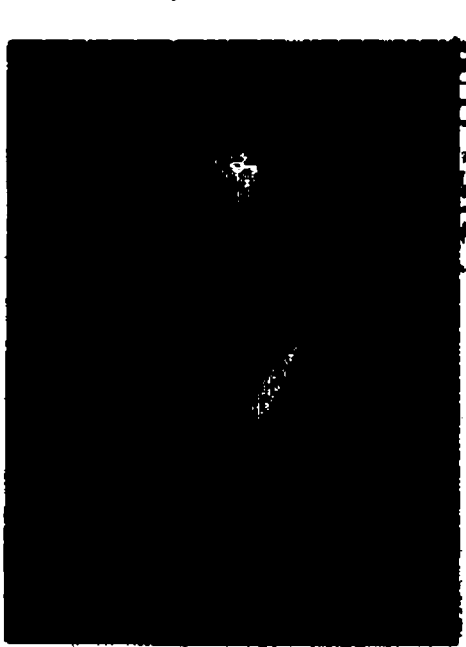

A native of Wisconsin, Eggebeen received his undergraduate education at Calvin College in Grand Rapids and his seminary training at Western Theological Seminary, where he earned both his bachelor of divinity and doctor of divinity degrees. He was ordained at the First Presbyterian Church in Holland, Mich., in 1970.

He has served at churches in West Virginia, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and Oklahoma.

Eggebeen believes that congregational life begins on Sunday morning with warmth and fellowship growing out of worship. He believes every church needs a strong educational program to involve every member from the youngest to the oldest. He enjoys teaching and often creates his own material.

The Rev. Thomas Eggebeen

Richard Montgomery started his own liquidating, auctioneering, appraisal business after first working for Norman Levy Associates, then Robert Williams.

Liquidators earn living in good times and bad

Business reversals are good for guys like Robert Levy and Richard Montgomery.

But so are good times, when business expansions call for loans and equipment no longer crucial to operations needs to be disposed.

Levy and Montgomery specialize in appraisal, liquidation and auctioneering work.

"Banks and bankruptcies are our bread and butter," said Montgomery, whose firm, RJM Auctioneers, is based in Plymouth. "You meet all kinds of different people, do something different every day and make a good living at it."

"We typically do industrial, any type of manufacturing facility either being liquidated or a tremendous amount of appraisal work for collateral-based lending," said Levy, president of Norman Levy Associates in Southfield.

"Most of it isn't bankruptcy," he added. "When a business finds itself phasing out a facility for a product change, it will have equipment to sell. An auction is one of the best ways to turn idle machinery into working capital."

APPRAISAL WORK generally brings a flat fee.

For liquidations, Levy and Montgomery might get a percentage of the sales at auction; they could buy the facilities themselves, then dispose of the assets; or they could guarantee minimum sale at auction and divide the excess.

Clients are referred by trustees in bankruptcy proceedings, repeat business from satisfied customers and general referrals.

And it's not just small, obscure businesses on the way out, either.

AT&T, Chrysler and Unisys have hired his firm, Levy said.

"We do work for small firms as well," Levy said. "We've pretty much got the system down to a science."

Montgomery, who got his start in the business working for Norman Levy, Robert's father, described the process.

"I STARTED working for Mr. Levy washing machines, preparing for auctions, inventorying equipment and tools. I ended up in the ad department.

"Then I went to work for Robert Williams for five years," Montgomery said. "I was one of the auctioneers and supervised field work."

"You can walk into a facility that looks like a pit . . . and we clean it up like a candy store," Montgomery said.

Promotional services like maintaining lists of dealers and individuals interested in liquidations is what brings companies to hire auctioneers.

"They don't maintain buyer's lists, we maintain. They're not professional auctioneers," Montgomery said.

Robert Levy elaborated.

"THAT'S THE main part of auctioning — marketing. We use direct first-class mail, brochures, newspapers, trade journals, fax, telex. All of this is specially created for each situation. We have a very good group of people who follow our sales."

Levy said he does more than 100 auctions or liquidations per year with an aggregate sales volume of more than $100 million.

"Occasionally you'll find a bargain," he said. "Then in other situations, a machine will go for a better price than new. It all depends on need."

For example, if there's a six-month wait for a new machine and a business needs an available older machine for an immediate job, it may pay more now for the old.

STRANGE THINGS sometimes happen at sales.

Levy recalled the case in England where a specialized machine he figured would fetch about $750 actually brought about $50,000. A competitor who lost a contract for a job in which the machine was needed bid up the price in anger.

Nostalgia sometimes will pit individuals against dealers at auctions. "You might find people who attended a club who want a chair," Montgomery said.

He's also experienced a situation which Levy described. "Someone will get mad at someone bidding against them and the price will go astronomical," Montgomery said.

Both men have been around the world as part of their work. Levy lived in England for a couple of years while running the firm's overseas operation.

"It's exciting. No two days are the same," he said. Montgomery has had jobs in London, Singapore and Toronto.

Speakers motivate, entertain

By R.J. King
special writer

To motivate a sluggish sales staff, nothing works quite like a speech from Clint Eastwood. Office unity need to be improved? Marlo Thomas is available. Perhaps the personnel staff needs a few laughs? Hire Jay Leno.

Whether it's a luncheon, dinner, special occasion or event, hiring a keynote speaker who is both celebrated and respected is a win-win situation. Not only is a large audience all but guaranteed, but the sponsor will benefit from the exposure.

But as a business, group or organization in western Wayne or Oakland County, making contact with a public figure from the relative solitude of suburban life is the first obstacle. And further, how does one negotiate a fee, site and topic, and with enough lead time to distribute brochures, biographies and photos?

"It's very difficult to make contact with a prominent speaker on your own, and God forbid they should ever cancel. Where does that leave you?" asks Randy Sher, president of Strategies Inc. in Farmington Hills. The company recently added a national speaker's bureau to its list of training and management services.

"For the novice, it's almost impossible to get ahold of someone like Marlo Thomas. And on the off chance that she cancels at the last minute, how many people would be able to bring in someone like Barbara Walters? It's very difficult.

AND SHER SHOULD know. A resident of Franklin and a mother of two, she began her business in 1980, producing what best can be described as training seminars, mostly geared toward area women's groups and businesses.

But even the best-laid plans can fizzle.

"Our first event was a Strategies for Success program for women at the Westin Hotel in Detroit," she recalled. "We brought in Jessica Savitch as our keynote speaker, but it was so successful the fire department had to close us down."

"We had 2,000 women already inside, and there were literally 1,000 women waiting in line to get in. They were just leaving their cars on Woodward, and we had no place to put them."

Such a nightmare, Sher said, could have been avoided by limiting the number of participants from the outset instead of promoting a come-one, come-all policy. "You really do learn by experience," she said.

Randy Sher

But while for the first nine years of her business, Sher provided training seminars on everything from time management to communication skills, arranging for high-profile speakers was different, and not always profitable.

"We were working with a national speaker's bureau out of New York to hire the big-name speakers for area events, and we slowly built up a reputation," she said. "Pretty soon, people were calling and asking how they could contact someone like Diahann Carroll."

"As time went on, I started looking at how much business I was sending to New York, and I decided to establish a national speaker's bureau here and really open up a whole other avenue of business."

THOSE EFFORTS led to what best can be described as a partnership between Strategies and the Fisher Ross Group in New York, one of the nation's largest speaker's bureaus.

"We've always seen great potential for a presence in Michigan, especially to fit the need for national figures who can address annual meetings, motivate sales staffs and assist with team building and service to customers," said Grada Fisher, president of Fisher Ross.

"We also see a number of universities and institutions hiring prominent speakers to address certain fields of expertise." She added that the topics most in demand today include the globalization of business, environmental issues, health care and the drug problem.

Locally, Kathleen Fink, vice president of programming for the Jewish Home for the Aged, which has centers in Southfield and West Bloomfield, said Strategies is arranging for Ilya Kozadavez, a Russian pianist, to perform at a June installation luncheon.

Teach kids about money

Your child has a much better chance of growing into a financially responsible adult if you begin teaching him or her how to handle money today. From the time your child first finds a dollar from the tooth fairy until they begin saving for college tuition, your role is helping them to understand the value and purpose of money, believes the Farmington Hills-based Michigan Association of CPAs.

But parents frequently forget that even the way they treat pennies in a piggy bank communicates a message about money to a child. If you want your children to learn how to handle money responsibly, you have to allow them a fair amount of control over how they use their money. At the same, you should let them know there are right and wrong ways of handling money.

One of the best vehicles for teaching money management is the weekly allowance, usually given to children from the time they are at least 6 or 7 years old. To make an allowance an effective learning device, follow these guidelines.

practically speaking

First, don't make an allowance contingent upon household chores. If you do link an allowance with chores, the child may very well start viewing the allowance strictly as payment for a job. Bob learned this the hard way when his son Peter began working as a paperboy and suddenly stopped doing his household chores. When Bob threatened the cut off his allowance, Peter shrugged. He had decided that he would rather be paid for delivering papers than for doing the dishes and cleaning his room.

AN ALLOWANCE tells the child he or she is part of the family. It represents the child's specified share of the family's income. Household chores, on the other hand, represent the child's duty as a family member. If you confuse the issue, so will your child.

Another way to make an allowance an effective part of a child's financial learning experience is by carefully outlining its purpose. Take time to explain what expenses you expect the allowance to cover. So if you expect half of the allowance to pay for school lunches while the remainder covers movies and other types of entertainment, let him or her know. This way, if your child carelessly spends the money on candy or other items and then cannot afford

Chrysler's Greenwald leaps into another frying pan

Chrysler Vice Chairman Gerald Greenwald quit the other day to go to work for my ex-brother-in-law, who is a pilot for United Air Lines. Which ought to make Dick happy, since he has been worried about his pension ever since the United Air Lines pilots union decided they wanted to run their own railroad, so to speak.

Greenwald's announcement that he is quitting Chrysler to head up the employee buy-out of UAL came as a shock to everyone who assumed that working for Chairman Lee had something of the same kind of job security as, say working for the Pope. People a little closer to the organization noticed that Mr. Iacocca had a habit of asking two guys to sit at the table with him at the same time, and only holding out one chair. Regardless, the announcement set off the usual round of stories about a "shakeup" at Chrysler and a secondary fallout of speculation about who will succeed Mr. Iacocca as chairman, when that time comes.

This line-of-succession stuff always fascinates me, since I never could figure out exactly why anybody gets to run a major auto company. Bailing out Chrysler seems to get you a leg up.

ANOTHER THING the movers and shakers have in common: Everybody at Chrysler came from Ford. This doesn't really count, however, since Chrysler hasn't hired any guys starting from scratch in about 15 years, and nobody leaves GM because the pensions are so good. Everybody at Ford first went to Princeton and then became a vice president in about three years, then they start looking for a job at another car company. Which is why, if you look around, nearly everybody everywhere in the auto business came from Ford. But I digress.

Mr. Greenwald and Chrysler Chief Financial Officer Robert S. Miller also were veterans of the first important, since two out of four of Chrysler's top executives were recruited from that country. Sperlich did, however, spend a lot of time in Europe, which is where current Chrysler President Bob Lutz worked his way up a couple of corporate ladders. There is some question as to whether working in Europe helps on the climb to the top, since if you stay there too long you get a good tailor and everybody in Detroit starts to view you with suspicion.

ACTUALLY, THE main thing the top guys at Chrysler have in common is a mentality something like the last guy to catch a Chris Craft at Dunkirk. They went through a war together, and sometimes it seems to have left top management in the same frame of mind as one of those World War II fighter pilots who had to go into snuggling in Africa to get some of the same sense of excitement.

Greenwald, in fact, put together a small consulting effort shortly after the Chrysler crisis seemed over to use his own and other Chrysler executives' expertise in getting other big corporations out of trouble. Nothing much came of that, but it seems obvious that the UAL situation is the corporate equivalent of answering an ad in Soldier of Fortune magazine.

Whether it works out or not, it's got to be an exciting time again for an executive whose best times were pulling order out of chaos.

Part I
During the last several months, I have received a large number of inquiries regarding pre-and-post retirement financial problems. Since many of these problems have similar solutions, this two-part article will discuss the two most attractive investments that serve the retirement-conscious individuals. In addition, I am offering two retirement seminars, details of which are presented below.

Annuity Income with a Twist (AIT)
Traditional annuity income investments work like a reverse home mortgage. The company guarantees you a monthly income for a fixed (say 15) number of years. The monthly income consists of both interest and a partial return of the principal. After 15 years your principal is exhausted and you stop receiving the income. Furthermore, once the annuity payments begin, you cannot stop the payments and get your remaining principal back. While this investment is popular among investors seeking current income, it also worries those who do not wish to deplete their principal. But now there is a new — albeit finances and you

complicated — investment that will guarantee a monthly income but will also preserve your principal. Even more important, 82.08% of this income is tax free, and the investment is (almost) completely liquid. Sound interesting? Here is how it works. Say you have worked $100,000. Now you need additional income but are afraid to buy bonds because of the market's volatility and the taxability of current income. Instead, you invest the money in an AIT (Annuity Income with a Twist). This is what you will receive from AIT:

- A monthly income of $877, which represents a compounded annual return of 8.43%. You will receive this guaranteed income for 15 years.
- Of this income, 82.08% or $555, will be completely tax-free. This means that, compared with fully taxable income, at 28% tax bracket you will have additional annual spendable income of $1,872, or $28,080 over a 15-year period — not an insignificant amount by any means.
- In addition to the guaranteed monthly income, the company plans to accumulate for you in an escrow account an amount at least equal to your original investment ($100,000). If the company decides otherwise, it must give you the option to liquidate your investment with no penalties or charges to you. This means that your original investment will remain intact at all times.

- After five years AIT becomes completely liquid — a feature almost unheard of in annuity circles. Thus, after five years you can cancel at will the investment and withdraw your money without paying any penalty or surrender charges.
- If you decide to keep the investment for 15 years, the company will return to you the original investment of $100,000. You can start the annuity process all over again, withdraw the lump sum, or choose one of the options available to you.

The AIT is a complex investment with unique features and tax ramifications, and you should not rush into it without fully understanding the pros and cons of investing in it. Next week: More on retirement investing.

Don't turn informative seminar into just another sales pitch

I'm interested in conducting seminars about my company and what we offer to our business customers. How do I get started?
Before anything else, keep in mind that the purpose of a seminar is to inform and educate participants on topics they know little or nothing about. If your proposed seminar does not attempt to do this, it will be perceived as nothing more than an obvious sales pitch among attending guests.

To help you decide on prospective seminar topics, consider the most common questions asked by potential customers about your business or industry. For example, I recently spoke with a management consultant who developed a seminar on legal forms of business for the would-be entrepreneur. You can also review the upcoming events section of business publications to get an idea of the seminars being offered by industry professionals. First-time seminar programs may initially be offered to local community groups (such as rotary clubs, business networking groups, and service organizations) as part of their monthly luncheon programs or annual membership focus: small business

meetings. Taking advantage of these speaking opportunities allows you to fine-tune your presentation skills before you offer them to industry associations and other professional groups on a fee-paid basis. Regarding compensation, you will find that most organizations offer honorarium (a standard fee ranging from $50 to $100) to guest speakers conducting short seminar sessions (two hours or less). Of course, you are free to sponsor your own seminar at local community centers, libraries or other facilities. In this type of situation, the per-person seminar fee may range up to $75, depending on session length, material preparation or distribution costs and room rental rates. What are some of the common mistakes first-time seminar leaders make? The laundry list is as follows: (1) not knowing enough on the seminar topic being presented; (2) not practicing the seminar presentation enough to be completely comfortable with the material; (3) trying to cover too much material in too short a time frame; (4) reading the seminar presentation from a script or note cards; (5) not having enough handouts or business cards for distribution; (6) not making a point to collect business cards from guests; (7) failing to follow up on leads generated as a result of the presentation. Mary DiPaolo is the owner of MarkeTrends, a Farmington Hills-based business consulting firm. She is also producer and host of the cable television series, "Chamber Perspectives."

Critter came here from prairie states

TO MOST people at the park who may have seen this animal it would have been called a gopher, or a striped gopher, or a striped ground squirrel. Officially, it is called a 13-lined ground squirrel.

Not only is its common name descriptive, but its scientific name is equally descriptive — Spermophilus tridecemlineatus. Spermophilus means "seed" in Greek and philus means "loving." Tridecem refers to thirteen and lineatus means "lines."

My children and I saw it at the YMCA in Livonia in a short grass field characteristic of its preferred habitat. Before the turn of the century, when Michigan was heavily forested, 13-lined ground squirrels were not common in our state. As nature

land was cleared, 13-lined ground squirrels moved in from the prairie states. Today they are found throughout the lower peninsula in scattered localities.

They prefer sandy soils, which makes digging their underground tunnels much easier. Sandy soil in combination with short grass is ideal for this 8 1/2- to 12-inch long squirrel. Even though they prefer short grass which would not hide them from potential predators as well as long grasses, their alternating dark brown and tan stripes camouflage them among the dried blades of grass.

THEIR TUNNELS are only 1-2 inches in diameter. The entrance tunnel goes down about 6 feet and then runs parallel to the surface about 15 feet with several passageways leading to different chambers. One chamber is used for nesting, another for hibernation and others for food storage.

Food of the 13-lined ground squirrel consists of seeds from various species of plants and grasses. Pouches inside their mouth enable them to carry large quantities to their underground storage rooms. In addition to seeds, they also eat a variety of animal matter. Various kinds of insects in both adult and larval forms are eaten, as well as bird eggs, young mice and small snakes.

By September some of the 13-lined ground squirrels will be underground in a state of hibernation. A few weeks later all of them will be curled up awaiting the thawing of the ground next spring in late March.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence-Oaks-County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia.

Most people who see this animal call it a gopher or a striped ground squirrel. Officially, it's a 13-lined ground squirrel.

Pets of the week

Buba, a male, German shepherd/Doberman mix puppy, and Minnie Mouse, a 2-year-old gray and cream tiger-striped cat, need homes. Buba (Control No. 300185), is described as very friendly. Minnie Mouse (Control No. 300245) has been spayed and declawed and is described as very loving. To adopt these pets or others, or to check for lost pets, call the Westland Kindness Center of the Michigan Humane Society, 721-7300. The center is at 37255 Marquette, Westland.

Mutt march will benefit humane society

Walking the dog, for charity, is the goal of the Michigan Humane Society's spring Mutt March Sunday, June 17 at the Edsel and Eleanor Ford House, 1100 Lakeshore Drive, north of Mack, Grosse Pointe Shores. Dog owners and their pets are encouraged raise pledged based on their participation in a five mile walk around the estate grounds. Participants are encouraged to seek at least $1 per mile from sponsors. There is a $1 entry fee to the estate grounds.

Those raising $400 or more in pledges will receive a MHS "paw print" sweat shirt. Other prizes include an MHS logo sweat shirt, for those raising $300 or more in pledges, an MHS mug, for those raising $200 or more, and a T-shirt, for those raising at least $100.

The participant raising the most in pledges will receive a portable compact disc player.

To register, call Laura Rutherford, 862-7420.

One of 'Them' First role is quite a switch

By Dan Greenberg
special writer

IT'S ALWAYS A pleasure to interview young people who have embarked on a voyage of self-discovery with clearly defined travel plans and their bags packed with intelligence and energy.

Eric Kingston of West Bloomfield, who recently completed filming "Them," is one such individual.

Unlike so many would-be performers who started out as three-year-old mice with pink ears in their nursery school plays, Kingston only recently decided that acting, writing and, someday, directing, is the way he wants to spend his life.

"Acting is a constant challenge physically and mentally. You can never learn enough about it" is typical of Kingston's attitude. "Knowledge is everything and I've always done a lot of self-education, reading on my own," he said.

BORN IN Detroit and graduated from West Bloomfield High School, Kingston took a business degree at Michigan State University in January 1989. For many years he watched old movies to learn writing techniques. But he also was good at improvising skits for family and friends. A friend of his sister suggested he audition for "Them," a recently completed Dolphin Production directed by Doug Schultze and starring John Saxon.

He was surprised but pleased to be cast as the evil Bobby Jones, the chief mutant and obedient servant of the evil Professor (John Saxon). Filmed at the Clinton Valley Center in Pontiac, with the assistance of Gov. James Blanchard and the State of Michigan, "Them" is a psycho thriller where mutants are created by drug injection.

Those injections cause strange physical changes. Kingston said, "I had no idea what was involved in full prosthetic makeup. They had to take a full mold of my face which was probably the worst experience of my life."

During such work, the actor breathes through a small hole in the mask leading to his nose. "It feels like you're being buried alive," Kingston said.

"That mask is eight pieces and it's custom-made. It took three, sometimes four hours, to get into makeup every day, depending if the pieces were pre-painted or not."

KINGSTON LOST about 10

Kingston, in the final stage, looks like this John Saxon as the evil Professor who creates mutants by drug injection.

pounds during filming of "Them." One day he was in makeup for 15 hours, and because of the lighting, they weren't able to shoot at all.

"Acting is a lot of hard work. People think it looks like fun but they don't realize when you get a script it's just words and you've got to make it live," he said.

That and spending 15 hours in prosthetic devices was a tough but exciting first role for Kingston. He is awaiting word on his audition for the local production, "Kill All the Lawyers," but is determined to pursue his acting career.

Prior to "Them," his acting was confined to studies at Michigan State University, Cranbrook and the Attic Theatre. The lead in "Hamlet" and Marc Anthony in "Julius Caesar" were his two major roles.

Kingston refers to Uta Hagen's "Respect for Acting" with considerable regard and discusses the importance of self-knowledge. "How can you put something original into the character if you don't know who you are?"

WHEN HE WAS cast as the evil Bobby Jones, he decided to make the character unique. He watched the original Frankenstein and decided the key was to make it clear to all viewers that "No way are you going to get away from Bobby Jones."

Although pleased to have the role — "I've made a unique monster, something totally new in a long legacy of screen monster" — he recognizes the problems of violence in our society and that the media contributes to those problems.

"We show so much violence and aggression on the screen and TV and in the papers that the world is desensitized. Some of the stuff they show on the news, people should be horrified from, and now they just put the news on and sit down to dinner. What's the news? Killings, rapes, drugs... People can't remain sensitive when you expose them to that so many thousands of times.

"So there's your two points of view. One, it was a challenge to create a unique character but, two, violence does desensitize people.

"You know, when you're making the movie, you don't see the violence because everything is fake. Blood is just dyed syrup, the skin is rubber and the bullets are blanks. But on the screen in the theater when it's dark, it's real. Hopefully no one will take it too far.

"Violence and sex are in movies because they sell but they distort what's really important — drama, comedy, human experience."

Eric Kingston, a young man with talent, energy, intelligence and his eye on an acting career.

● APPRECIATION NIGHT

Song stylist Marlena Shaw performs at the Lansdowne, accompanied by the Jimmy Wilkins 18-piece orchestra, Saturday night, June 23. This special night in appreciation for recording star Shaw is presented by the Jimmy Wilkins Cultural Foundation, in association with the Graystone International Jazz Museum and Radio Station WJZZ, with support from the Michigan Council for the Arts and the National Endowment for the Arts. There will be two shows. Tickets are $12.50. For ticket information call 341-7275 or 871-0234.

Carla Freshwater of Canton and Marcy Ribits of West Bloomfield are among 26 youngsters in the Marquis Theatre Children, a troupe performing in a revue of Broadway hits through Saturday, June 16, at the theater in Northville.

● FREEDOM FESTIVAL

The Detroit-Windsor International Freedom Festival, celebrating peace and friendship between the United States and Canada, will open Friday, June 22, and continue through Wednesday, July 4. Opening ceremonies

June 22 include a double parachute jump over the Detroit River, delivering American and Canadian flags to their respective countries. In addition, there will be U.S. Air Force flyovers, awards to honored guests, and the annual Tug-Across-the-River competition between Detroit and Windsor tug teams. Daily events, targeted toward the entire family, attract nearly four million Americans and Canadians to the two cities hosting the festival.

● BLUEGRASS, STRAWBERRIES

The second annual Wiard's Orchards/E&W Productions Bluegrass and Strawberry Festival will be held Friday-Sunday, June 8-10, at the orchards site in Ypsilanti. A one, two or three-day pass includes free camping and free electric (as long as electric lasts). Featured artists include the Lewis Family, Dana Cupp and the Detroit Bluegrass Band, the Doug Dillard Band, and Old Joe Clark and Son Terry. Tickets are available at Wiard's Orchards and all Ticketmaster outlets.

● STAR SEARCH

Paula Spaven of Plymouth out-sang seven competitors in the Novi Hilton's first Super Star Search challenge. Each vocalist used the new laser-Karaoke machine that displays song lyrics on a video screen and is able to match the key of the singer's voice to that of the music instantaneously. By overwhelming audience applause, Spaven was declared the winner recently. A videotape of Spaven's performance is being sent to Ed McMahon's "Star Search" TV program as an audition for the show. Additionally, Spaven received two roundtrip airline tickets to anywhere in the continental U.S.

● 'SHOW BOAT'

Michigan Opera Theatre has announced that veteran stage and film star Eddie Bracken will return to the Detroit stage, after a seven-year absence, as Cap'n Andy Hawkes, effervescent captain of the Mississippi riverboat Cotton Blossom, in Jerome Kern's "Show Boat," opening Friday, Nov. 16, at the Fisher Theatre in Detroit. Ten performances are scheduled through Nov. 25. Subscription ticket orders to "Show Boat" and MOT's 1990-91 season are being taken by dialing the MOT Credit Card Hotline: 874-SING. Single tickets go on sale in late September.

● NEW SEASON

The Birmingham Theatre's 1990-91 season will offer six productions, Sept. 11 through June 16. Featured will be four musicals and the Detroit premiere of two comedies. Musicals are "Singin' in the Rain," Sept. 11 through Oct. 14; "Bells Are Ringing," co-produced with the Goodspeed Theatre, Dec. 29 through Jan. 27; a return engagement of "Nunsense," Feb. 5 through March 10, and Rodgers and Hammerstein's "South Pacific," May 14 through June 16. Comedies include "Beau Jest," Nov. 13 through Dec. 16, and "Shirley Valentine," April 2 through May 6. Season's subscriptions offer six shows for the price of five. For more information call 644-9225 Monday-Friday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

● NEW MUSICAL

Birmingham Village Players will present a new musical, "Kip Synatra's Mobile Musical," for a special run to benefit the Players Building Fund. The musical by Michael C. Vigilante and Gerald V. Castle is a satirical look at contemporary lives and times. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. Friday-Saturday, June 22-23, 29-30. Adult tickets are $8 and student tickets, $6. For reservations call 644-2075 anytime. Tickets also may be purchased at the door.

● ART SEMINAR

Artists, filmmakers and the attorneys who represent them will speak at the annual Art in the Law Seminar from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, June 9, at the Birmingham-Bloomfield Art Association in Birmingham. Featured speakers include Nathan White, producer-director of the feature film "Carrier," and Sue Marx, producer of the Academy-Award-winning film "Young at Heart." The $20 registration fee includes lunch. For more information or reservations call Richard Herman at 647-4222.

● AUDITIONS OPEN

The Jewish Community Center, with Nancy Gurwin Productions, will hold auditions for "A Chorus Line" at 7 p.m. Monday-Tuesday, June 11-12, at the JCC in West Bloomfield. Singers and dancers are needed. The musical opens Saturday, Sept. 8. For more information call Nancy Gurwin at 354-0545 or 352-2797.

● FINAL PLAY

Jewish Ensemble Theatre completes its inaugural season with a production of "Slow Dance on the Killing Ground," William Handley's exploration of human guilt, rebellion and desperate search for love. Performances are at the Aaron DeRoy Theatre in the Jewish Community Center in West Bloomfield. Five preview performances began Wednesday, June 6. Opening night is Wednesday, June 13, with 15 performances scheduled through Sunday, July 1. Tickets are available through the JET by calling 788-2900 or through Ticketmaster at 645-6666. Tickets range from $8 to $17.50. Senior, student and group discounts are available.

Musical making good progress

The Plymouth Theatre Guild production of "Dooley's Deli" continues through Saturday at the Water Tower Theatre on the campus of Northville Regional Hospital. For ticket information call 420-2161.

By Bob Weibel
Special writer

Plymouth Theatre Guild is closing its season with an ambitious undertaking — an original musical comedy entitled "Dooley's Deli."

Normally, new shows have a tryout period. Conceptual ideas are refined. Dialogue is revised. Music and lyrics change. "Dooley's Deli" as presented by PTG appears to be near the first-draft stage, with cast members in the process of finding their characters. It's what's called a work in progress.

The show was originally created as a master's degree project at Eastern Michigan University. Book and lyrics are by Plymouth's Mike Davis and Marc Holland, with music by Marc Mainero. Holland also occupies the director's chair and plays Dooley.

Much of the music is quite good. The orchestra under the baton of Aaron Larson is splendid. There are funny jokes. And clever word play. Some thought needs to be given, however, to smoothing off the rough edges of plot and character development.

THE STORY revolves around the sale of Dooley's Deli to a big conglomerate, which plans to replace it with a new office building. In retaliation, the resident flim-flam man (Greg Lea, who certainly looks the part) pulls a scam on the representatives of the new owners. It's interesting but not enough to carry Act Two to a compelling finale. Perhaps a fight to save the deli in some devious way would provide more theatrical fireworks.

Much of the music is quite good. The orchestra under the baton of Aaron Larson is splendid.

As is, "Dooley's Deli" depends on characters to move the story along. Either because of the script or comedy, they prove an uneven lot. The best are in minor roles. Bobbie Judd captures the essence of a quirky Jewish widow. Co-author Mike Davis demonstrates exquisite comic timing as a bumbling executive. And Lisa Brandow sizzles as a loving but argumentative wife.

One wishes the three leads who work at the deli, Jeff Hammonds, Mike Hammonds and Nancy Keough, had taken more chances to develop equally distinctive characters. Though they do score musically, Hammonds and Keough are especially good with two ballads, "Destiny" and "Only Sincere Hearts" respectively. Hammonds has fun with a comedy number, "Drop Dead, Darling." Too bad their songs aren't more imaginatively staged — and the spotlight isn't used more subtly. Still, "Dooley's Deli" has possibilities. The basic premise is sound. And the music works. PTG is to be commended for providing a venue for new work, and for staging a rare treat for theatergoers — a show in the developmental stage.

'Caucus Hour'

The Caucus Club in Detroit has reinstated its "Caucus Hour" each weekday beginning at 4:30 p.m. Centered in the Caucus Club's Back Room, the Caucus Hour features daily drink specials and hors d'oeuvres. The Caucus Club is known for its baby back ribs and Dover sole and was the birthplace of the drink called the Bull Shot.

Dearborn Grill

Through the summer season, the Grill at the Ritz-Carlton, Dearborn, offers the Grill Buffet, designed for busy executives. The buffet features marinated salads and hearty soups, with a selection of several entrees based on the marketplace's freshest offerings. Entrees prepared by Executive Chef Max Weeks include traditional American specialties such as aged prime beef, grilled chicken and fresh fish, accompanied by steamed vegetables. Pastry Chef Jack Elias has prepared desserts, pastries and fresh berries. The Grill Buffet at $14.50 per person is available from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday-Friday. Reservations are recommended.

New ballroom

The Ritz-Carlton, Dearborn, recently dedicated its new ballroom as the Presidential Ballroom. A total of 850 people can be accommodated for a sit-down dinner and 1,200 for a cocktail reception. Thirteen leaded crystal chandeliers accent the room's oak millwork, silk wallcoverings and emerald green and cream decor. The ballroom features a collection of 18th and 19th century artworks and antiques.

At Tango's

Tango's European Bistro at the Radisson Plaza Hotel at Town Center in Southfield offers an extended "happy hour" from 5-8 p.m. Monday-Friday. Discounted drinks are available, as well as free snacks.

Sit-down dining

Good Food Company recently opened the Midwest's largest natural foods supermarket at 74 W. Maple at Livernois in Troy. The Good Foods Deli features sit-down dining, with healthy entrees made fresh daily, for lunch.

Mid-East Cafe

Virginia's Mid-East Cafe in Sylvan Lake offers dishes for the vegetarian, such as fatoush salad at $3.25 and falafil salad at $3.75, and for the meat lover, specialties including shish kabob at $5.75 and raw kibbee at $5.50. Desserts include Mideast pastry, rice pudding and chocolate mousse made at the cafe. Virginia's at 2456 Orchard Lake Road has been open several months.

Onion Roll

Father and son team Sam and Randy Rosen are now operating the Onion Roll Deli in Royal Oak. They are formerly of the Galleria Deli at Detroit Receiving Hospital and Sam's Delicatessen on Seven Mile Road in Detroit. The new deli features kosher-style deli favorites using Vienna brand, pure beef products. Breakfast, lunch and dinner items are available for carryout. All soups and salads are made fresh daily on the premises.

More than music lovers were attracted to the hotel last year for the jazz Wednesday and pop music at the Hot Summer Nights series Friday. A $30,000 permanent stage has been installed. Spyro Gyra, a six-member band headed by saxophonist Jay Beckenstein, is known for its blend of jazz, rock and a fusion between the two. Concerts continue through Aug. 29, except for July 4.

Other artists scheduled include the Chick Corea Electric Band, Tim Weisberg and Stanley Jordan. In addition, Angela Boffill, Richard Elliot, Tom Grant, Norma Jean Bell and the All Stars, Kirk Whalum with Alexander Zonjic, and Don Grusin with Gary Herbig will take the stage. The last show will feature Ricardo Silveira and Keiko Matsui with Greg Walker. Each concert begins at 7 p.m., with doors opening at 6:30 p.m. Doors open at 6 p.m. June 13.

Tickets are $10 general admission in advance or $12 at the door; $15 for reserved seating in advance and $17 at the door. Tickets may be purchased at the hotel from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday-Friday or at all Ticket-Master outlets.

JOHN DISCHER/staff photographer

1 victory away Late surge puts Stevenson in final

By C.J. Rieck
staff writer

Champions know how to finish. And Livonia Stevenson's soccer team has the look of champions. For the third time in its last four Class A state tournament games, the Spartans shifted into high gear when it counted most — with the clock ticking away — this time scoring three goals in the final 12:19 to dump Kalamazoo Central 4-1 in a state semifinal match Wednesday at Northville HS.

The victory puts Stevenson (now 14-4-1) into the state final against Rochester Adams (18-2) at 1 p.m. Saturday at Plymouth Canton.

The semifinal win did not come as easily as the score might indicate. Indeed, while the youthful Spartans (no seniors) have been impressive in the waning moments — winning two tough playoff games in overtime before beating Central — they had their problems finishing chances against the Maroon Giants.

CENTRAL STRUCK first, and it wasn't pretty. Sweeper Carrie Harris lined up a direct kick from 35 yards away and lined the ball toward the net. It should have been an easy save, but keeper Alicia Smith let it slip through her hands and into the net. 1-0 Central, and less than nine minutes had elapsed.

"We had a lot of nerves," said Boots afterward. "This is a very young team, and it's hard for them coming out in games like this."

"Once we tied it, we got our confidence back. At half-time, we just said that we're a good team, we just have to finish (our chances)."

Just like in the regional final win over Grand Blanc, Raegan Coyne provided the necessary lift — this time much earlier (she scored the game-winner against Grand Blanc :45 left in OT).

EMMY HEIBY got a free ball on the right side at center field and angled a pass into Coyne, 18 yards in front of the Central net. Coyne spun outside, around a Giant defender, and slipped the ball into the far side of the goal to tie it at 1-1 with 25:33 left in the half.

That got Stevenson going. The Spartans dominated play for the remainder of the half, but couldn't score; two shots clanged off the crossbar, and two others rolled just wide.

The second half was dead-even, until Boots made some late alignment changes. She had started Coyne at right wing, then shifted her to midfield, where she dominated. Unfortunately, even though the Spartans controlled the midfield, they had problems attacking.

With 15 minutes left, Boots put Coyne on one wing and Lori Godlewski on the other. The shift worked; Stevenson immediately began pressuring around the net. When Michele Brach was pulled down just outside the box with 12:35 left, Coyne lined up a direct kick, 17 yards away on the right side.

HER HARD, low shot looked like so many other Spartan chances. It rang off the left post — only this time, deflecting into the net for the go-ahead goal.

Trailing 2-1 with time running out, Central coach George VanLinder had no choice but to push everyone up on a desperate attack. The Giants never got a good chance to tie it; instead, Stevenson scored twice more.

Brach got the first with 5:36 remaining, gaining control of the ball inside the box, dribbling away from one defender and blasting a shot into the net.

The final score came with 1:21 to go, as Jean Barnas headed in a centering pass from the right wing.

VanLinder, whose team finished 18-2-1, gave a brief, but telling, summary of the game: "We knew, from our scouting reports, they would come back. And they had that No. 11, Coyne, and we didn't mark her as well as we should have."

Wayne-Westland athletics in danger zone

I'M SORRY I have to disagree with my colleagues in the newsroom.

We all know a lot is at stake when the voters go to the polls Monday to decide if they should say thumbs up or thumbs down to a combined 2.75 millage renewal and five-mill increase for the Wayne-Westland School District. (A similar issue is on the ballot in Garden City.)

A Yes vote will cost taxpayers, but a No vote may be more costly in the long run.

The situation is grave, particularly in Wayne-Westland where there's an organized effort to defeat the millage.

Major cuts are planned, and as usual, athletics is on the chopping block.

The issue plays on one's emotions. In reality, it's going to cost the average homeowner $150 per year, or broken down, 50 cents per day. My sentiment is to dig down a little deeper in your pocketbooks.

Teachers should also bite the bullet. If they're concerned about the future of their schools, they should ask for less at the bargaining table.

From my standpoint, I can't imagine coach Chuck Gordon's John Glenn football team going to war without its full artillery.

If you kill the millage, you're killing 4,000 fans and alumni turning out each year on Friday night for another big Glenn homecoming. You also won't be able to hear one of the best bands in the state play at half-time.

OR HOW ABOUT Chuck Henry's Wayne Memorial High basketball team, one of the perennial contenders in the state?

And while Henry's basketball

Brad Emons

team may never be the same, how about the success of some of the girls programs, namely Wayne High volleyball? All teams are affected.

We ask our children to compete in the real world, but if the millage goes down, we're making school a handicap.

And it's just not interscholastic sports that's on the line. It's also drama, music and expressive arts. It means five-hour days for junior high students, dilapidated textbooks, fewer teachers and administrators.

Say you don't care? I care about homecomings, football games, volleyball matches, school plays, school concerts and extracurricular activities.

A lot of us are strapped financially, but for the sake of sports and the well-being of the Wayne-Westland School district, we can sacrifice $150 worth of Nintendo, cable TV, alcohol, the Pumps and tobacco.

There are many low income families in Wayne-Westland. What do their children do without the tools necessary to go on in life?

SPORTS MAY not be more important than chemistry, but it's just as important.

Sports is one of the last disciplines in American society, despite all the negatives we hear and read about.

Athletics has benefits, teaching teamwork and sportsmanship for starters. School spirit gives our students an identity and it often becomes a rallying point for the community. It brings people together.

And don't let those who tell you that the solution is pay to play. That's right, pay $200 and you can join a JV or varsity team.

Don't let anybody fool you, just ask the people in Howell or Belleville. Pay to play isn't getting rave reviews.

Bo Schembechler, the newly appointed president of the Detroit Tigers, recently submitted a letter urging voters to say Yes.

You don't have to be a Schembechler fan to know the importance of an issue such as this.

ELIMINATION of some of the vital programs in Wayne-Westland is only going to cause a mass exodus out of the district. Many parents want the total package and athletic participation is very important.

It also gives our children a positive outlet. It's part of the educational process and a No vote on Monday is only going to make things more costly down the road.

It's time to think about the future and give these kids a chance. Where else can they turn? They need your vote — Yes — on Monday.

Thurston's Kellogg sets state record in hurdles

By Brad Emons
staff writer

D.J. Kellogg admitted he was nervous before the start. He also made a couple of mistakes.

But all that couldn't stop the Redford Thurston High senior from setting a state record Saturday in the 390-meter intermediate hurdles with a time of 39.1 in the Class B boys meet at Jackson Northwest.

Kellogg finished a full second ahead of second-place finisher Blake Novak of Milan.

"At one point I stutter-stepped the fourth hurdle and I thought he (Novak) would catch me," Kellogg said. "And I thought he would pass me when I knocked the sixth hurdle down, but once I hit the straightaway, I knew I had it."

Only three weeks ago, Kellogg was nursing a sprained ankle suffered while playing basketball (his first love) in his own backyard.

"He refused to stay off it, not even one day," said Thurston coach Glenn Davis. "He wouldn't miss a meet. He just has tremendous inner strength. He always comes to run and he's always competitive."

KELLOGG said his ankle was "somewhat tight" after placing fifth in the long jump earlier in the day with a leap of 21 feet, 5 inches. (Kellogg accounted for all 15 of Thurston's points.)

But that didn't prevent him breaking the old mark of 39.3 set by Scott Kowitz of Millington in 1988.

"The feeling was really great," said Kellogg, a 4.0 student who plans to study engineering at General Motors Institute. "My parents, Mr. Davis, our assistant coaches and Mr. (Bob) Lake (the girls coach) were all boys track

'The thing I like most about Darrell (Kellogg) is that he's so humble.'

waiting for me down at the finish line."

Davis said the title was very deserving for Kellogg, who transferred to Thurston two years ago from Birch Run.

"The thing I like most about Darrell is that he's so humble," said the Thurston coach. "He doesn't swear or do anything negative to hurt the team. He's so nice to have around. Just a tremendous young man."

The win also earned Kellogg a spot in the prestigious Midwest Invitational Meet of Champions, Saturday in Indianapolis, Ind.

"He's capable of going down in the 37s," Davis said.

"I'll be moving to the (300) low hurdles and that could be an advantage for me there," said Kellogg, who has run 22.6 at 200 meters and been clocked under 50 (in relay splits) for the 400.

STEVE JOHNSON was also moving fast for Redford Bishop Borgess at the state Class B meet.

He accounted for all nine of the Spartans' points by finishing fourth in the 100 dash (11.14) and fifth in the 200 dash (22.8).

Both events were won by Tyrone

Wheatley, who led Dearborn Heights Robichaud to the team championship.

Wheatley, who captured four events, also took the 110 hurdles and long jump.

And while Kellogg was the only Observerland boys champion, several others made strong showings at the Class A meet in Midland.

Carl Lowe of Westland John Glenn will also be going to Indy after taking third in the 800 run with a season best of 1:55.3.

Dearborn Fordson's Marcelo Ortiz ran first in 1:52.73, while Dean Rugh of Millford Lakeland finished just ahead of Lowe in second place with a time of 1:55.22.

"All three were right there," said Glenn coach Richard Gordon. "Second and third were decided by a lean. I thought he (Lowe) had second place."

"But he's been just super all year. He's been very steady and consistent."

LOWE ALSO was also a member of Glenn's 1,600 relay team, which did not score, but rated 10th overall in 3:25.2. David Ryan, Andrew Dobbins and Randy Seach rounded out the foursome.

The Rockets' 400 relay squad of Dobbins, Seach, Jason Pizzuti and Brian Schultz ranked 15th in 45.2.

Redford Catholic Central's Mike Sheridan put the Shamrocks on the score board with a fifth place finish in the 3,200 run (9:42.8). Teammate Dave Baucus did not score in the high jump, but cleared 6 feet.

Livonia Churchill's Kurt Roth did not score, but ranked 10th in the shot put (49-11½). He threw the discus 140 feet, but it was well below his season-best toss of 162-4.

Garden City, Patriots hope history repeats itself

By Brad Emons
staff writer

The state Class A softball semifinals and finals are still a week away, but only two wins separate both Livonia Franklin and Garden City — Observerland's lone survivors — from a trip to Battle Creek.

But the first order of business is Saturday in the four-team regional tournament at Wyandotte's Memorial Field.

The first game, starting at 10 a.m., pits Garden City (31-5) against Trenton (23-10).

The second game, set to begin at approximately noon, has Franklin (16-7) against Belleville (20-10). The winners will meet at 2 p.m. with the champion advancing to the final four on Friday, June 15, at Bailey Park.

Franklin will try to earn its third final-four berth in six years under coach Joe Epstein, whose Patriots finished runner-up to Mount Clemens L'Anse-Creus in 1985 before winning the coveted title in 1986 behind the pitching of Tracy Lectka in 1986.

Garden City is seeking its second final-four appearance under coach Barry Patterson. The Cougars, sparking by the pitching Shelly Malone, reached the semifinals in 1987 before falling to East Detroit. (Jenson went on to capture the title.)

PATTERSON'S HAS perhaps his strongest team ever.

The Cougars looked nearly invincible last week in smashing Lincoln Park, 7-0, in the district championship at Garden City Park.

Two players, according to Patterson, "set the tempo" for his club.

Senior catcher Stacy Felts, who led the team in RBI as a junior and sophomore, and senior second baseman Colleen Owsley, who carries the highest batting average, are the catalysts.

"Stacy has been our team captain and inspirationally she's our leader," Patterson said. "You could say she's our unsung player. She does the intangible things that don't go into the scorebook."

"She and Colleen are seniors. When they come to play, we're a very good team, but if they don't come to play, we're not a good team."

Patterson may start junior Tracy Thompson on the mound. She is also one of the team's top hitters. But the GC coach isn't afraid to go with another Malone on the hill, Doreen, who is a junior.

"We've used both on-and-off all season," Patterson said. "I like the idea of a pitcher being fresh for the second game, but you may see Tracy in both games."

softball

IF THOMPSON is penciled in by Patterson as the starting pitcher, then junior Krystal Matesic, the team's No. 3 hurler, will move to first base.

If Malone starts, Matesic will be used as a designated hitter. The left-hander provides a lot of the power for Garden City's offense.

Trenton, a 5-3 upset winner last week over Monroe in the districts, is led by veterans Katie Mans and Kim Hoppes.

"Both are good athletes and both can rip the ball," Patterson said. "But other than that I don't know much about Trenton. I know traditionally they have good teams."

Meanwhile, Belleville, Franklin's regional opponent, is coming off an upset 7-3 win Monday in the districts over Ann Arbor Pioneer.

The Tigers should not be taken lightly as long as coach Peggy Curtis is around. She led Belleville to state Class A titles in 1983 and '84.

"They beat Pioneer, whose pitcher can really be tough," said Patterson. "They have talent, and they're a strong team in that Wolverine A where there's four pretty strong teams in that league. Belleville always has a strong program."

THE KEY TO Franklin's success this season has been the pitching of junior Jenny Mayle, who mowed down Southfield and Farmington Hills Mercy last week.

"Jenny is a stronger overhead thrower than Tracy (Lectka) and is every bit as good of a fielder," said Epstein. "She made one heck of a play (against Mercy) on Saturday. She's an excellent fielder. Tracy, though, varied speeds and could move the ball better."

"But there's no question our pitcher will keep us in the game. She's around the plate all the time and the key is to play good defense behind her and hit the ball. And I think we're coming around in both of those areas."

Franklin's most productive hitter has been center fielder Karen Brown, an All-Western Lakes Activities Association choice.

"She's a dead-pull hitter and she's fast," Epstein said. "And she doesn't strike out at all."

Brown has also gone the entire season without making an error.

Junior designated hitter Beth Hare can also swing the bat along with junior Brenda Pierson, who has won a starting job at third.

Another player coming on is junior catcher Tracy Parenti, who according to Epstein, "is starting to make contact."

"If we hit the ball, we'll be right in there," said the Franklin coach. "And I think our defense is getting stronger each time out, although it hurt us early in the season."

THE PATRIOTS' coach seems to have settled on the middle of his infield. Sophomore Dawn Warner will probably open at second base, while Amporn Wagner will get the call at shortstop.

"Franklin always comes in loose and it seems they're there every year," said Patterson. "I'd say our regional is wide open."

Earlier this season, GC beat the Patriots in eight innings, 1-0.

"When she (Mayle) is not walking batters, she's tough," said the Garden City coach. "If they can get a couple of runs, Mayle is likely only to give up none or only one run. The last time we beat them was on a wild pitch in the eighth. Both teams missed chances to score when they had runners on base."

What may give the Cougars the edge on the other three teams is their non-league schedule.

GC, rated in the top 10 all season long, has beaten the likes of Pioneer (4-0) and lost by only a run to perennial power Waterford Kettering (1-0).

Aggies falter in district

Southfield Christian blanked Redford St. Agatha, 4-0, Saturday in the title game of a Class C girls softball district played at Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher.

Christian advances to Saturday's regional at Blissfield.

Southfield Christian was led by Wendi McCoy, who threw a two-hitter in the title game and improved her personal record to 7-0. The shutout was McCoy's fourth of the year.

Agatha finished the season with a 14-9 overall record.

Southfield Christian reached the final game by winning its opener, 18-11, over Lutheran East. McCoy also earned the win in that game, relieving starter Kim Main and scattering four hits and four runs over four innings.

"McCoy is throwing well," coach Ken Brown said. "She's No. 2 in the sense of speed but in terms of control she's doing a lot. She's always had control but she also is starting to throw harder."

In the title game against St. Agatha, Southfield Christian scored once in the first inning, twice in the second and once in the fourth inning. McCoy had a double and scored a run, as did Trina Bergman. Alana Conti knocked in one run with a ground out and Deborah Koch singled and scored a run.

Lutheran Westland's Locke rules 800 field

Stephanie Locke of Lutheran Westland High became the only girl from Observerland to bring home a state title when she captured the 800-meter run Saturday at the state Class C meet held in Wyoming Park.

Locke, undefeated all season, posted a first-place clocking of 2:22.5, a personal best, bettering her time of 2:23.4 set in the regional two weeks ago. Amy Hayes of Shelby was second in 2:23.34.

Locke also led the Warriors' 1,600 relay team, which also included Ellen Anderson, Lori Gentz and Jennifer Gerlach, to a third-place finish in 10:00.35.

Lutheran Westland finished 13th overall in the team standings with 16 points. Onsted captured the title with 52 points, while Buchanan was a distant second with 31.

JESSANN MARTIN of Livonia Stevenson finished third in the discus with a toss of 120 feet, 10 inches in the Class A meet Saturday in Midland.

Erin Wikaryasz of Milford took the crown with a throw of 125.3. Teresa Jeffries of Portage North was third (122.9).

Although not scoring, Martin ranked 10th in the shot put.

Teammate Lisa Christensen reached the semifinal heat of the 100 hurdles and was clocked in 48.2 in the 300 lows.

The Spartans had two other state qualifiers — Tracy Clark went 2:27.0 in the 800 run, and Debbie Wroblewski threw the discus (105-8).

"Having the senior prom the night before the state meet certainly didn't help our performances," said Stevenson coach Paul Holmberg.

In the high jump (Class A), Brandy Caincross of Wayne ranked 14th at 5-2. Redford Union's Sarah Percy cleared 5 feet and went 15.7 in the 100 hurdles.

Kellee Watkins, also of RU, threw the shot 34-9.

REDFORD BISHOP BORGES scored seven points in the Class B meet at Jackson Northwest.

The Spartans' 800 relay squad of Angie Hollis, Chaquese Sears, Florence Eugh and Erica Shepard took third in 1:46.43. Detroit DePorres, the team champion, and Dexter finished one-two in 1:42.72 and 1:45.45, respectively.

Hollis, Sears, Shepard and Stacie Prostell also scored in the 400 relay, taking eighth in 51.61. DePorres took first in 48.95.

Livonia Clarenceville's Roberta Wiggle did not score, but went a personal best of 2:25.6 in the 800 run, won by Vonda Meder of Corunna in 2:16.3.

Lally at crossroads in title matchup

By Bob Stebbins
staff writer

boxing

Brett Lally faces the most important challenge of his pro boxing career on June 25 at Harrods in Atlantic City, N.J.

The Plymouth native and Westland John Glenn grad will take on Robert Hines for the vacant 154-pound North American Boxing Federation title in a 12-round battle that will determine the fate of the rest of his career.

The fight will be televised by the USA Cable Network.

"If I lose this one, I probably will be fighting for piddley cash," said Lally. "But if I win this one and the next one, I probably won't fight for under $60,000 again."

His manager, Bradd Lally, echoes the statements of his younger brother.

"His whole career is riding on it," he said. "If we win and we get what they promised us, there will be a little shot or a big money fight coming up. It is bigger than life."

Winning this fight will not be an easy task as Hines has compiled a 28-2 record and is rated No. 4 in the world by the International Boxing Federation.

"He is a great opponent," said Brett.

HINES IS a past holder of the IBF 154-pound belt. He won the title from Matthew Hilton in 1988 in Las Vegas, and lost the belt to Darrin Van Horn last year.

Brett, a Westland native, is still rebounding from a first-round knockout he suffered at the hands of Donald Curry on Dec. 26, 1989, in Las Vegas.

His brother hopes he has learned from the experience.

"Donald Curry is a hell of a fighter and Brett has nothing to be ashamed of," said Bradd. "He was a little tight coming into the fight, and you either learn from your mistakes or you don't."

Lally has stepped into the ring one time since the loss to Curry. He knocked out Nate Stewart in the fourth round on Feb. 27 in Madison, Wisconsin.

Brett vividly recalls the fight.

"I stopped him cold," he said. "He didn't get up for about 10 minutes."

WISCONSIN was a much different fighting environment for Lally.

"It was good getting away from the limelight of Las Vegas, and good to come back quick and get back on the winning way," said the fighter.

His brother was also pleased with what he saw in Madison.

"I had to know if he wanted to fight," said Bradd. "We got little money, and he was the headliner on the card. He showed me pride and dignity. We had to start all over after the loss."

Looking to the future, Brett hopes to learn something from Donald Curry.

"I think Donald Curry trained harder for that one than for any other fight," he said. "He knew it was a do-or-die situation."

According to Bradd, that is now the situation that Brett is in.

"Brett is now in position that Curry was in before he fought Brett," said Bradd. "If he lost, he would have been hanging them up. Brett says that if he doesn't win, he doesn't think there is much reason to stick around."

Anyway you add it up, the fight will determine the future for Brett.

"If we win this one, we go on to another level," he said. "If we lose, we work on landscaping (the brothers run a landscaping business known as Lally Brothers.)"

AWARD WINNERS

Dave Owens was named the 41st recipient of the Father James Whelan Award, given annually to a senior athlete, scholar and gentleman at Redford Catholic Central High. The award is voted by the varsity letter winners.

Owens, an All-Catholic League and All-Observer football pick, rushed for 1,061 yards last season.

He is also a three-year varsity letter winner in track.

Owens is headed for the U.S. Naval Academy.

Redford's Lisa Bielenda of Livonia Ladywood High, received the Rev. John B. Zwiers Catholic League softball award at the 15th annual Operation-Friendship banquet, which salutes athletes for outstanding achievement in scholarship and leadership.

Bielenda, headed for Oakland University, was an All-Catholic League and All-Central Division softball player, as well as Team MVP.

Her sister Jane was also nominated for the Harvey Barcus tennis award after making All-Catholic and All-Central Division. She also captained the Ladywood golf squad, which finished sixth in the state Class A meet.

SOFTBALL PICKS

Joy Laho of Lutheran Westland, who carries a 4.0 grade-point average, was recently selected to the All-State (Class C) Academic Team by the Michigan High School Softball Coaches Association.

Lutheran Westland also picked up the Team Award, as 19 players combined for a 3.3 GPA.

The Warriors' Christy Pydyn and Sarah Love were also voted first-team All-Michigan Independent Athletic Conference. Teammates Christy Clark, Kristen Strang and Leslie Turgeon made the second team, while Tracy Lapum earned honorable mention.

PRO BASEBALL TRYOUT

The Major League Scouting Bureau, representing all 26 Major League clubs, will conduct a tryout camp for players ages 16-23 at 9:30 a.m. Thursday, June 14 at Eastern Michigan University.

Players must furnish their own uniform, glove and shoes. American Legion players must have written permission for their coach, manager or post commander in order to participate.

The camps will be conducted by Jim Martz and a staff of scouts from the Major League Bureau. Scouts representing individual clubs will also be in attendance.

DOWNRIVER TREADMILL

The Downriver Treadmill Team, a cardiac rehabilitation program, will stage its eighth annual Commitment to Health Heart Run beginning at 7:30 p.m. Friday, June 15 in downtown Trenton. The one- and five-mile events have a total of $7,000 in awards and prizes. (There are both individual and team events.)

The $10 entry fee includes t-shirt and post-race party (food and beverage). Entries are taken just prior to starting time.

Shamrocks take 7th at 'A' championships

By Bob Stebbins
staff writer

Redford Catholic Central scored points in six of the seven flights Saturday to tie for seventh place in the Class A Boys Tennis Championships at the Midland Community Tennis Center.

CC notched points in every flight except No. 1 singles. One point was given for each victory.

Ann Arbor Pioneer took the Class A title with 28 points. Grosse Pointe South (23), Birmingham Brother Rice (22), Okemos (19) and East Lansing (14) rounded out the top five.

Saginaw Heritage finished in sixth place with 12 points, followed by CC and Traverse City (10), Holland (9) and West Bloomfield (8).

"I expected we could have done a little better, and here and there we could have," said CC coach Frank Garlicki. "I thought 13 or 14 points would have been a reasonable number. We weren't far off track, but were a little bit."

The Shamrocks advanced people to the quarterfinals (the third round) in four different events.

MARKO HABEKOVIC defeated two opponents in No. 2 singles before losing. He bested Bloomfield Hills Lasher's Tauras Barauskas, 6-4, 6-2, and downed Saif Fatteh of Okemos, 6-1, 6-3, before falling to eventual finalist Lee Lorenzini of Grosse Pointe South, 6-3, 6-2.

In No. 3 singles, Paul Thleme lost in the third round to eventual runner-up Peter Pusztai of Pioneer, 6-4, 6-0. Earlier, he topped Aaron Zeigler of Portage Central, 7-6, 6-4, and got by Mark Morgan of Lasher, 6-2, 6-2.

The Shamrocks' Scott Hazlett also advanced to the third round at No. 4 singles. He overpowered Sharam Eshahani of Grand Blanc, 6-1, 6-0, in the opening round and beat Pat Noud of Okemos, 6-4, 6-3, in the second round, before losing to Mike Damson of Portage Central, 6-0, 7-5.

CC's No. 2 doubles pairing of Jason Torres and Chris Alonte used the assistance of a first-round bye to score two points for CC. The tandem ousted Steve Acho and Todd Morgan of Birmingham Groves, 6-0, 6-1, before falling to eventual champions Bill Higgins and Drew Pullen of Pioneer, 6-3, 6-4.

THE NO. 1 and No. 3 doubles teams also scored a point apiece for the Shamrocks.

Shawn Matthews and John Sheridan were eliminated in the second round of No. 1 doubles by Andrew Goodwillie and Tim Mairin of Grand Rapids Forest Hills Central, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4. The tandem reached that point by defeating Eric Popowicz and Brad Sietz of Trenton, 6-3, 6-2.

In No. 3 doubles, Chip Shade and Chris Matson ousted Brendan Glass and Andy Wise of Grand Blanc, 7-5, 6-4, before being eliminated by Matt Wilson and Joe Magee of Lasher, 6-4, 6-4.

The Shamrocks' Paul Bozyk in No. 1 singles was the only singles player or doubles tandem not to register a point for CC.

Garlicki hopes to play some new out-state opponents to prepare for future Class A tournaments.

"There were some people like the Grand Rapids people (Forest Hills Central) who caught us off guard," he said. "That's because we don't play them during the season. I've been trying to change that, but it is hard to get an invitation to play out there."

Michele Gossett fired a 92 Saturday to lead Livonia Ladywood to a sixth-place finish at the Class A Girls Golf Championships at Forest Akers in East Lansing.

Gossett, who scored 43 on the front nine and 49 on the back side, placed 11th overall.

Ladywood coach Sharon Laskowski was excited her team was able to place as high as it did.

"It was an excellent showing for us," she said. "We were hoping to get fifth or sixth coming in."

golf

Grand Blanc placed second (365), followed by East Lansing (388), Ann Arbor Pioneer (389), Grand Ledge (390) and Ladywood (403).

Rochester (408), Brighton (423), Birmingham Seaholm (438) and Grandville (441) rounded out the top 10.

Meghan Blake (97), Jane Bielenda (105) and Lauren Zimmerman (109) were the other top finishers for the Blazers.

Laskowski was pleased with the season as a whole.

"We met our goals," she said. "We're excited to go this far."

IS IT WORTHWHILE?

Applying such a question to this rather recent mania involving sports camps and a conservative answer would be: Depends whose view one takes.

An optimistic reply? How about: Everyone benefits. There are as many ways to describe the good — or bad — things involving sports camp as there are kinds of sports camps. One thing that can't be argued: Their popularity is growing, and growing, and GROWING.

"It's gone from between 300 and 400 to 1,700 in the last seven years," said Greg Kampe, Oakland University's men's basketball coach and director of summer camps.

"I had 90 (boys and girls) in my camps my first year," said Nick O'Shea, who is in the fifth year of sponsoring a summer soccer camp in Livonia. "I'll have between 300 and 350 this year."

SPORTS CAMPS have become so popular it seems everyone wants to get in on the act. OU added baseball and diving to its list of offerings this summer, bringing its total to 17 sports.

Every school, every coach has them. Indeed, a coach who doesn't run at least one summer camp just doesn't want to. And every camp coach will insist theirs is not just an elaborate babysitting service, with more fun than instruction.

Now, a suspicious guy — like yours truly — would figure some coaches have an ulterior motive. Like money; with such a demand, they've got to pulling in big bucks, right?

Or, where college coaches are concerned, perhaps the camps serve as a recruiting tool.

O'Shea, who coaches girls' soccer at both Livonia Churchill and Schoolcraft College, agreed with both — to an extent. "Oh yeah," he said. "You can definitely make money in it."

But O'Shea is an exception to that rule. Sort of. A standout at SC and OU and a former pro soccer player, O'Shea opened a soccer store in Livonia and started his camps before becoming a coach at either school. So unlike most of his contemporaries, coaching came after his camps were established.

AS FAR as recruiting is concerned, consider first that most camp participants are 14 and under. Hard to pick sure-fire collegiate stars at that age, then convince them to come to the school where you coach in another four years.

Not that it doesn't happen. Ask basketball star Chris Webber.

Of course he's an exception. Still, those running camps at SC and OU do some selling.

But as Kampe put it, in camps at smaller schools the only real recruiting is just making kids aware of the school and the programs it has to offer. "The camps bring Oakland University recognition," he said. A public relations gimmick, so to speak.

And the money? "This isn't like University of Michigan, where Bill Frieder might pull in a hundred thousand dollars with his camp," said Kampe, only half in jest. "I'll make a little bit of money, enough to make it worthwhile. But when I first started my camps, I didn't make anything."

Gary Parsons, the OU soccer coach, easily has the most popular, and successful, sports camp at the school. It's estimated that between 700 and 800 of the total campers this summer will be enrolled in soccer.

And yet, the payoff is minimal. The reason: The university gets over 50 percent of the profits, with the money going into the school's athletic budget.

THE PAYOFF isn't much, either. Kampe figured camp profits would make up about three percent of the athletic budget. "What we make in a year in our camps wouldn't cover the cost for athletic scholarships for my (college) team," he said.

At SC, the split is different. While no coach gets 50 percent of the money generated by his camp at OU — the division differs per sport, with an average of about 40 percent to the coaches, the rest to the school — at SC the split is 60 percent to the coach, 40 percent to the school.

But understand, while the recognition for the school is nice and the groundwork for recruiting a player sometime in the future is laid, the financial benefits are still there.

Van Dimitriou, the men's soccer coach at SC, has seen his boys' camp grow steadily through the last decade. And the money generated? "It helps," he admitted. "Not only myself, but the college."

"I HAVE a full-time job (as a high school counselor) and this helps supplement the income. I think I could still coach without camps, but it helps. With two kids in college, it helps."

Dimitriou will also run five other soccer camps this summer, and he termed these "the most profitable." Why? There's no split with a school involved.

Parents wondering which camp to send their youngsters off to should consider all these things — the motive of the coach running the camp, the size, what's offered, and, of course, the cost.

But most of all, parents should consider what good a camp does their prospective athlete. Because, unlike their predecessors — most summer camps of the '50s and '60s were generalized, with no single sport as a focal point — these camps should teach and should refine.

Do the camps mentioned meet this requirement? Checking the won-lost record of the coach running the camp may not be the best evaluation; instead, find out how school and/or club teams in the area have been affected.

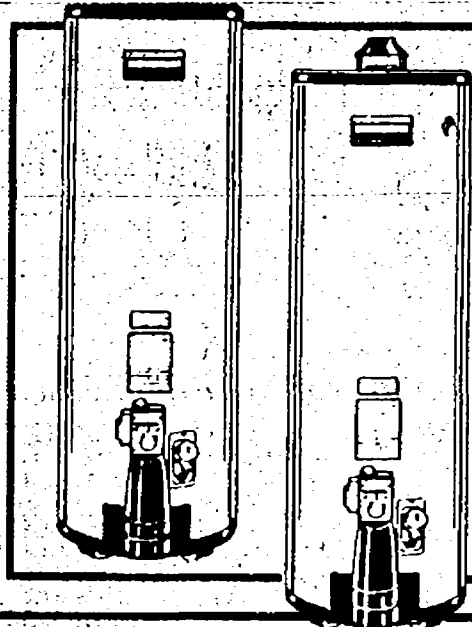

Success there — like soccer in Detroit's suburbs — would indicate someone is doing more than babysitting.

SOCCER CHAMPS

The Michigan Wolves '76, coached by Paul Scicluna, captured the boys under-14 National Indoor Soccer Championship May 19-20, in Cleveland, Ohio.

Sponsored by the Livonia Family Y and Total Soccer, the Wolves '76 downed East-West Club of Cleveland in the final, roaring back from a three-goal deficit to win 5-2. The victors outscored their opponents 36-5 in tournament play.

In qualifying action, the Little Caesars Premier League squad beat the Cleveland Internationals (8-1), the Florida Spirit (3-0), East-West (4-2) and the Dallas Flame (12-0).

Members of the squad include: Adam Borchert, Daniel Brody, David Garlick, Neale Grode, Jamie Heitert, Bill Hensley, Adam Hunter, Mike Kley, Matt Kopymer, Justin Marshall, Kenny Perlin, Alan Placek, Gerry Ranker, Seamus Rustin, Tino Scicluna, Rich Walos and Jamie Whitmore. The assistant coaches are Jack Hensley and Zlatko Rauker. The manager is Paul Garlick.

The Wolves '76 also won the Westland, D.C. Potomac Soccer Tournament over Memorial weekend, outscoring five opponents, 14-1, including the host Potomac Silver Streak in the championship match, 2-0. The Wolves beat the Toronto, Ontario Maple Leafs in the semifinals, 3-1.

The Vardar III '74 boys soccer team, coached by Mark Christensen, won the Buckeye Invitational Tournament over Memorial weekend in Cincinnati, Ohio with a 2-1 overtime win over Team Dayton.

Vardar III advanced to the quarterfinals with victories over Columbus, Ohio (3-2), Hanover, Ind. (8-1) and host Cincinnati (2-0).

In the quarterfinals, Vardar downed the 1990 Indoor National Champions, the Cleveland Internationals, 2-0, followed by a 1-0 victory over the Darien, Ill. Knights in the semifinals.

Dario Rauker (Westland), Dominic Vella (Livonia) and Erik Lawson were team's leading scorers.

The defense was led by Scott Lamphear and Jeff Cassar, both of Livonia, along with Dale Garrish. Plymouth's Tom Baker, a member of the Midwest Regional team, was outstanding in the title match.

Other members of the squad include: Chris Galea and Mike Gentile, both of Livonia; Mike Glese, Farmington Hills; Erik Stemmer and Mike Wdowiak, both of Canton; Brad Dennis, Brian Kallay, Jason Lipke, Matt Suckley, Matt Voight and goalie Mike Schroeder.

The '78 Vardar boys soccer team, coached by Morris Lupenec, won the Soccer Kick National Indoor Championship over Memorial Day weekend in Atlanta, Ga.

'78 Vardar went 6-0 in tourney play, defeating the K.Y. 102 Kickers of Wichita, Kan., 3-0, as Richie Keith took tourney MVP honors. Alti Curtis of Livonia was the team's top scorer, while Darin Thompson of Canton took the MVP goalkeeper award, combining with Todd Smith of Livonia.

'78 Vardar also beat the Rockdale, Ga. Rangers (7-0), the San Raphael, Calif. Stompers (9-0), the Oklahoma City, Okla. Der Bullen twice (6-0 and 5-0), and the Gastonbury, Conn. Oakwood Select (7-1). Other members of the team include Livonians Jeff Backus, Mike Minicilli, Jason Roy and Jeff Urbats; also Corey Woolfolk, Ryan Kyes, Sammy Piraino, Louie Gavriloski, Tim Guest, Marko Jovanovic, Tony Mouchoulis and Chris Wasen.

The Livonia Family Y boys team coached by Bruce Thomas, took the Kentucky Bluegrass Tournament with a 2-0 win over the Dayton, Ohio Dynamo in the finals. The Wolves '75 advanced to a 3-0 triumph over the Kensington Cobras.

Goalie Jason Emero allowed just three goals, two of those penalty shots, in five games.

Rounding out the Little Caesars Premier League squad is Adam Bichen, Clayton Campbell, Kurt Coulter, Ryan Maxey, Adam Schomer, Kevin Dehority, Mark Behr, Jon Herbst, Josh Prater, Tony Lazzari, Jeff Thomas, Anthony Varrino, and tri-captains Benji Cesa, Adam Pichler and Kai Kaliszewski. Assistant coaches include Brian Thomas and Dan O'Shea.

The Livonia Wings '78 boys premier Little Caesars soccer team took the Canton Invitational (May 27-28) by downing the Medina Rangers (2-0), Whitehouse Enforcers (7-0), Midland Strikers (5-1), Genesee (2-0) and Canton (2-0).

Pink Cadillac is city's star

Serendipity — it means nice things happen by accident. That's what happened to Lorraine and John Bergler of Rochester Hills when they got caught up in a family joke about pink Cadillacs.

Their 1959 pink Cadillac is the star, along with nationally known comic Thom Sharp, in a film called "Detroit — It's An American Classic."

The film had its world premiere last week at the Detroit Institute of Arts during the annual meeting of the Metropolitan Detroit Convention and Visitors Bureau.

All the players were there. Area tourism professionals like John Anhut of the Borsford Inn, Farmington and travel writers like Hal Butler of Southfield, production coordinator Len Radjewski of Milford, film editor Doreen Matthews of Birmingham and musician Joseph LoDuca of Birmingham, who wrote the original score.

John L. Bergler, partner in a Madison Heights tool and die company, has been a car buff since he was a young boy. Six years ago he bought a 1959 Ford Retractable, with a hardtop that folds into the trunk, and a 1963 Thunderbird, both red convertibles.

THAT'S WHEN the family joke started.

"What we need is a pink Cadillac," his wife, Lorraine, said.

They were enjoying a classic car auction in Las Vegas last spring, when four pink Cadillacs came up for sale. They started bidding for a car but assumed it would be too expensive for their budget. Next thing they knew, they owned a 1959 pink Cadillac.

In the meantime, back at the Metropolitan Detroit Convention and Visitors Bureau, Kathy Usitalo, vice president of communication, wrote the script for a new promotional film about the greater Detroit area and hired Thom Sharp as the star.

"WE HAD four days to film, only two days to work with Thom Sharp, and we didn't have the vehicle we wanted to tie the film together," Usitalo said.

"One night I saw a pink Cadillac, knew it was the car we needed, but didn't know where to get one. My husband Tom, who is also a car buff, assured me that we needed a 1959 model. That model had fins like rockets and of course it was made in Detroit."

It was one week before film time when serendipity again came into the picture. Kathy was at a party and heard herself say, "But where are we going to get a 1959 pink Cadillac?"

"My brother's got one," a voice beside her said. The brother is John Bergler of Rochester Hills.

"A week later we were filming," Lorraine Bergler said.

They filmed with producer Allison Kuhnlein, director Ed Gorczyk, cinematographer John Prusak (who produced "Roger & Me"), and editor Matthews.

Grill lovers go South for tangy smoked flavors

By Chef Larry Janes
staff writer

From the spicy smoked brisket of Texas and North Carolina's succulent chopped whole hog, to the tang and bit of Kansas City and Memphis ribs, there's nothing like the simple appeal of delicious smoked barbecue.

Up here in Metro Detroit, mention barbecue and you're likely to hear responses like gas, Weber, or kettle drum. Any true barbecue nut however, knows that barbecue means beef, pork, fresh ham, chicken or turkey slow smoked over a deep pit of flavorful hardwoods.

On a recent trip to visit ex-Plymouthites, Tim and Janet Matthews and their children who reside in Hickory, N.C., we discovered Sims Country Bar-B-Que.

Now, I've been to many barbecue joints all over this great country, but Sims in Granite Falls, N.C. will always have a spot near and dear to this barbecue-loving heart.

For $6.95 (kids, $3.95) you get an all-you-can-eat combination of beef, pork and chicken plus the best baked beans this side of momma's coleslaw. Add to that with some sliced packaged white bread that is used solely for soaking up the delicious juices. And lastly, for your thirst-quenching appetite, homemade ice tea served. That's Sims.

NO LIQUOR, no potatoes, no relish tray. These folks just do barbecue, plain and simple.

Sims' Country Bar-B-Que does beef and pork in a deep covered pit and allows the eater the option to squirt on lip-tingling barbecue sauce from one of those old-time ketchup squirt bottles. You've gotta taste it to believe it.

Not only does Sims do a great barbecue, you have got to check out the live bluegrass music, square dancing and clogging that accompanies their terrific dinners.

This is a full-fledged bluegrass band complete with fiddler, base guitar, piano and lead guitar. After about 15 minutes of warming up the audience, the cloggers can be seen strapping on their half inch clefted clogging shoes and before long, everyone is up and working off the plentiful buffet. They even do special songs for the kids. Since no alcohol is ever served (and Shirley Sims, owner, says it never will be) everyone has a hoot-roarin' time. Kids from one to 101 enjoy this place.

If you get there early (dinner starts at 5 p.m.), better bring along the old fishin' pole because on my last visit, I saw a catfish that was three foot long, swimming in the pond behind the big barn.

The Keith Sims family has owned and operated the Sims Country Bar-B-Que going on 11 years. Shirley Sims walks the wooden-floored country barn-dining room with scrap book in hand asking out-of-towners to "sign-in." Keith Sims himself, clickety-clacks through the same dining-room making sure "y'all get your fill" while daughter, Susan Baumgarder, manages the barbecue pits and kitchen staff.

WARNING — This is about as country as you can get. If you need cloth-covered tables and real china, don't be too surprised when you check out the heavy paper plates and family-style dining tables. On cool fall, winter and spring nights, a huge fieldstone fireplace warms the hearts and souls of all who dine there.

If you happen to be traveling to the North Carolina coast somewhere near Myrtle Beach and Wilmington, there's a Sims Country Bar-B-Que in Shallotte, N.C., managed by younger son, Mike Sims. Just like Mom and Dad's original; barbecue and bluegrass abound.

The original Sims is located on Route 1, Box 235 in Granite Falls, N.C., 28630. Unless you have a map or a local who knows their way, just stop and ask anyone in town. Shirley Sims says they'll send a map if you write.

So, if you're searching for an offbeat place with wonderful food and an atmosphere that just can't be beat, check out Sims Country Bar-B-Que. You won't be disappointed. Tell 'em Chef Larry from Detroit sent ya!

A Bluegrass dream for the weekend wanderer

By John Castle
special writer

The Mason-Dixon Line doesn't count. The South really begins where grits come with your eggs and the waitress draws "V" all come back.

Dixie is only 275 miles away. You enter it at the Ohio River.

The South begins in Kentucky. The Bluegrass State is no stranger to us. We've visited her for years and have grown to know her well. We've floated her rivers, climbed her hills, explored her caves, and hiked over her emerald grass.

When suburban life becomes dull, we pack up and head south. It's Lexington at Easter, Lake Cumberland in summer, Paducah in autumn, and Cumberland Falls for Christmas.

Kentucky embraces all seasons. She always offers a smorgasbord of things to do. But we've found it's better to nibble them a few days at a time rather than trying to gobble them up in one long visit.

Close and compact, Kentucky is ideal for the weekend wanderer.

THIS SPRING we left our Birmingham home at 6 a.m. on a Friday. We breakfasted off I-75 two exits below Toledo and crossed into Kentucky before noon. At 12:30 p.m. we rolled into the Winners Circle Motel in Georgetown.

We always spend our first night there. The family owned motel is clean, comfortable and economical ($27 for a double). Best of all, it tolerates the small poodle who travels with us.

Georgetown provides a good base of operations. It's within five miles of the famous Horse Park, even closer to the new Toyota Plant. Bustling Lexington is only 10 miles down the road. Sleepy Frankfort, the capital, lies 17 miles to the west.

You can visit all four in a couple of hours. And that's what we did that first afternoon. We made the circuit and got back in time for a nap before dinner.

JOHN CASTLE

Many of the Kentucky state resort parks offer colorful views of the rustic area. Carter Caves Resort Park is filled with caverns and gives visitors tours through many of the underground tunnels. Above is the National Bridge State Park located in the Daniel Boone National Forest. The park is only one-hour drive east of Lexington.

Our Golden Corral supper was super: sirloin tips with sauteed green peppers, and fried catfish with hush puppies.

After eating, we walked down to the Georgetown Flea Market. The market is a weekend institution. Hill folk hawk their wares from rusty vans and pickups. They sell everything from hand-bewn axe handles to rare whiskey bottles. I bought an ancient leather tool, my wife a homemade chess set.

That night we made plans to visit Natural Bridge State Resort Park the next day. Each time we go to Kentucky we target a new area. Eventually, we plan to see all of her hidden wonders a weekend at a time.

THE STATE RESORT parks are especially appealing. They are comfortable and colorful. Most are located in rustic areas. They usually have a central lodge circled by cabins or cottages. All provide spectacular views.

There are 15 parks and we have stayed in more than half of them. Each has its own personality. At Lake Cumberland, wildlife sets the tone. White-tailed deer abound there. And on one hike I saw a woodchuck that looked as big as a beaver. The lake teems with fish.

Pine Mountain features back-country vistas. It is ringed by misty

Kentucky tips

Kentucky publicizes the "uncommon wealth" of things to do. There are lots of attractions. The Bluegrass State offers everything from modern resort parks and horse museums to mountain views and country markets.

Resort Parks:

Fifteen state resort parks dot Kentucky. The closest to suburban Detroit is General Butler on the Ohio River at Carrollton; the farthest away is Kentucky Dam Village in the state's western waterlands.

You can't go wrong by starting off with Carter Caves, Natural Bridge or Lake Cumberland. These parks are only a day's drive away, and each has its own distinct personality.

For park information, call (800) 255-7275 or write to the Kentucky Department of Parks, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601.

Kentucky Horse Park:

If you like horses, the Horse Park is a must. It covers more than 1,000 acres and lies just off I-75 between Georgetown and Lexington.

The park offers a wide-screen film on horses, a museum tracing the history of the horse, a walk or wagon tour of barns and grounds and other horse-related attractions.

For more information on the Horse Park and other sites in the Lexington area, call (800) 848-1224.

Hotels:

Aside from the customary chains, you can find mom-and-pop motels that are clean, reasonably priced and homey. One of the best is the Winners Circle Motel at Georgetown.

Restaurants:

Wonder off the beaten path for "down home" restaurants. Most serve cornbread, grits, catfish, and other southern dishes. I recommend the Loudon Square Buffet in Lexington. It caters to native Kentuckians. Bring a big appetite and don't be ashamed to go back for seconds or thirds.

Kentucky crafts:

You'll find wood carvings, homemade furniture and other hand-crafted articles all over the state. The Georgetown Flea Market is a gold mine for antique hunters. Berea, home of Berea College and Boone Tavern is another good place.

When to go:

Kentucky never gets as cold as Michigan. Her seasons are a couple of weeks ahead of ours. Spring and fall are splendid. Trees leaf out much earlier than ours and fall colors last longer. Dress for hot weather in the summer.

hills that deepen the mystery of the brooding Cumberland Forest.

Carter Caves Resort Park offers exploration. The park is honey-combed with caverns, some not fully charted. I had my first taste of spelunking there.

Our guide led us along an underground corridor. Stopping at a two-foot-wide tunnel, he said, "Keep them flashlights shinin' and your heads down. Now, y'all follow me."

He squeezed into the hole, and we wiggled in behind. For the next two hours our group crawled through a maze of tunnels not much larger than roadway culverts.

We were so busy moving forward that claustrophobia never entered our minds. Then we stopped to rest.

"Let's turn off them lights and set here a spell," the guide said after leading us into a low cavern.

I GOT TIRED of resting on my elbows and tried to sit up. My hard hat hit the ceiling. I panicked. Luckily, I managed to fight off my fear without anyone knowing it.

Our visit to Natural Bridge was less adventurous. But it had its moments.

The park's centerpiece is a natural sandstone bridge. There is a great view from the top. But you have to be careful. There aren't many rails to hang on to, and a misstep could trigger a nasty fall.

We had lunch in the park's dining room, feasting on a "soul food" menu of sugar-cured ham, red beans, white gravy and pecan pie.

We decided to drive through Red River Gorge on our way back to Georgetown. The gorge is within five miles of the park exit.

You can enter it through a mountain tunnel once used to snake out logs. Inside, scenic turnouts overlook forested slopes and rocky spires. Foot paths wind across the faces of cliffs. The Red River below sparkles in the midday sun. The gorge is a modern Shangri-la that will live forever because the federal government has earmarked it a National Geological Area.

The four-lane super highway whisked us back to the motel in time to change and wash up for dinner.

THAT EVENING we had an early supper at Loudon Square Buffet in Lexington. We broke cornbread with native Kentuckians. Their tan cheeks and white foreheads made it obvious they were "country."

We meandered back to Georgetown along the Iron Works Pike. The two-lane blacktop stretches for several miles through horse country. On each side, lavish farmhouse and ornate stables dotted the landscape. Spring filled the air. Trees were leafing out over grass so green it looked blue.

The scene was spellbinding. Behind fences so white they glistened, foals frolicked awkwardly as brood mares munched contentedly on the lush pasture. A carpet of green swept as far as the eye could see. Crumbling rock walls built in Civil War days edged the roadway. We felt at ease with the world drifting along absorbing the southern ambience.

At the north end of the pike a gaggle of gray barns loomed over the farmland. They marked the Kentucky Horse Park. We didn't stop this time. But we usually go inside at least once a year to see if the museum still displays a sidesaddle we donated awhile back.

WE LEFT Kentucky for home early Sunday morning. Our stay had been brief but full; so busy it seemed like we had been gone a week, not two and a half days.

Our trip was not only short, it was inexpensive. Counting gas, lodging, meals and the flea market souvenirs, we had spent only $137. That's a small price to pay for recharging your batteries in a bucolic "down home" atmosphere steeped in southern tradition.

So when suburban living gets you down and you feel the need for rest and rehabilitation, take that waitress seriously; "Y'all" climb into your car and make a beeline for Kentucky.

Monster contributes

(AP) — The fabled Loch Ness monster is worth $42 million in annual tourist revenues to Scotland, a published report said Monday.

Half a million tourists visit the Highlands lake each year in hopes of seeing the creature, although there is no scientific proof it exists, said The Times of London.

It quoted Mackay Consultants of Inverness as saying the monster myth is also good for about 2,500 tourist-industry jobs.

"We were amazed by the results of our research, which certainly puts the monster forward as one of the main attractions of Scotland," said a director of the firm, Tony Mackay.

He said reports of monster sightings help keep up tourist interest. The latest was last month, when a visitor from Glasgow claimed to have caught a glimpse of the creature, affectionately known as "Nessie."

The legend of large creatures living in 750-foot-deep Loch Ness has been around since the sixth century.

Frankenmuth cheese

The Frankenmuth Cheese Manufacturing Co. is finally open. After an absence of nearly 50 years, the original Frankenmuth cheese is once again being produced in Frankenmuth.

The cheese company is phase one of an agricultural theme park planned for Frankenmuth.

Visitors can view the cheese-making process and browse in the showroom, which suits a variety of cheese tastes. An on-site bakery and a showroom for St. Julian Wine, Michigan's oldest and largest winery, combine to make the stop both educational and tasteful.

The Frankenmuth Cheese Manufacturing Co. is across from Bronner's Christmas Wonderland and next to the Frankenmuth RV park, south of the downtown area.

Color expert crosses art boundaries

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

WITH HIS NEW paintings, Harold Linton plays eye/mind games that are both humbling and exciting.

Humbling because this artist is a widely acknowledged authority on color and color relationships. As such, he works from both an intellectual and emotional point of view. They may actually be one and the same, but whatever the source, these paintings carry a tremendous impact.

Linton is professor of architecture at Lawrence Technological University and author of three books dealing with color and architectural illustration.

Yet these paintings, intellectual as they are with their references to cubism and futurism, embody an energy that translates into a stimulating, visual experience, not soon forgotten. They are being shown by I. Irving Feldmann, art dealer, by appointment only, through June.

A MASTERFUL understanding of color and its effect on the eye, the mind and the environment, and painstaking attention to detail, have long characterized Linton's work.

But with this current group of 17 shaped canvases, he has moved away from the wall and into a third dimension. He actually defines what before was only implied. He reverses grids, plays duets, makes references to his family and comments on 20th century art.

The paintings are done on canvas, stretched on handmade, kiln-dried poplar frames that he designs and has made by his students.

The canvas is so skillfully uphoisted on the intricately designed frames that the application itself is a work of art. Linton's wife takes care of that, he said. The canvas is stretched to 100 pounds of tension.

THE IMPRESSION is that of taking a cubist painting and turning it by some computer magic into 3-D.

There are the actual angles, and open spaces between the receding and advancing planes, that create the feelings of motion and movement and high degree of stimulation. Things are happening and the viewer is intimately involved in the action: This is more than illusion, this is reality. Things move, flow, change, dissolve and reappear.

And as this takes place, images begin to pop — a boy, a bird, a landscape. Thoughts of Cezanne, Picasso, Braque come to mind and the boundaries between painting and sculpture grow less pronounced.

THIS EXHIBIT represents 2½ years of work. Considering the rest of Linton's responsibilities and accomplishments during the same period, that is a substantial amount.

"I paint every day," he said, "and I do a lot of writing."

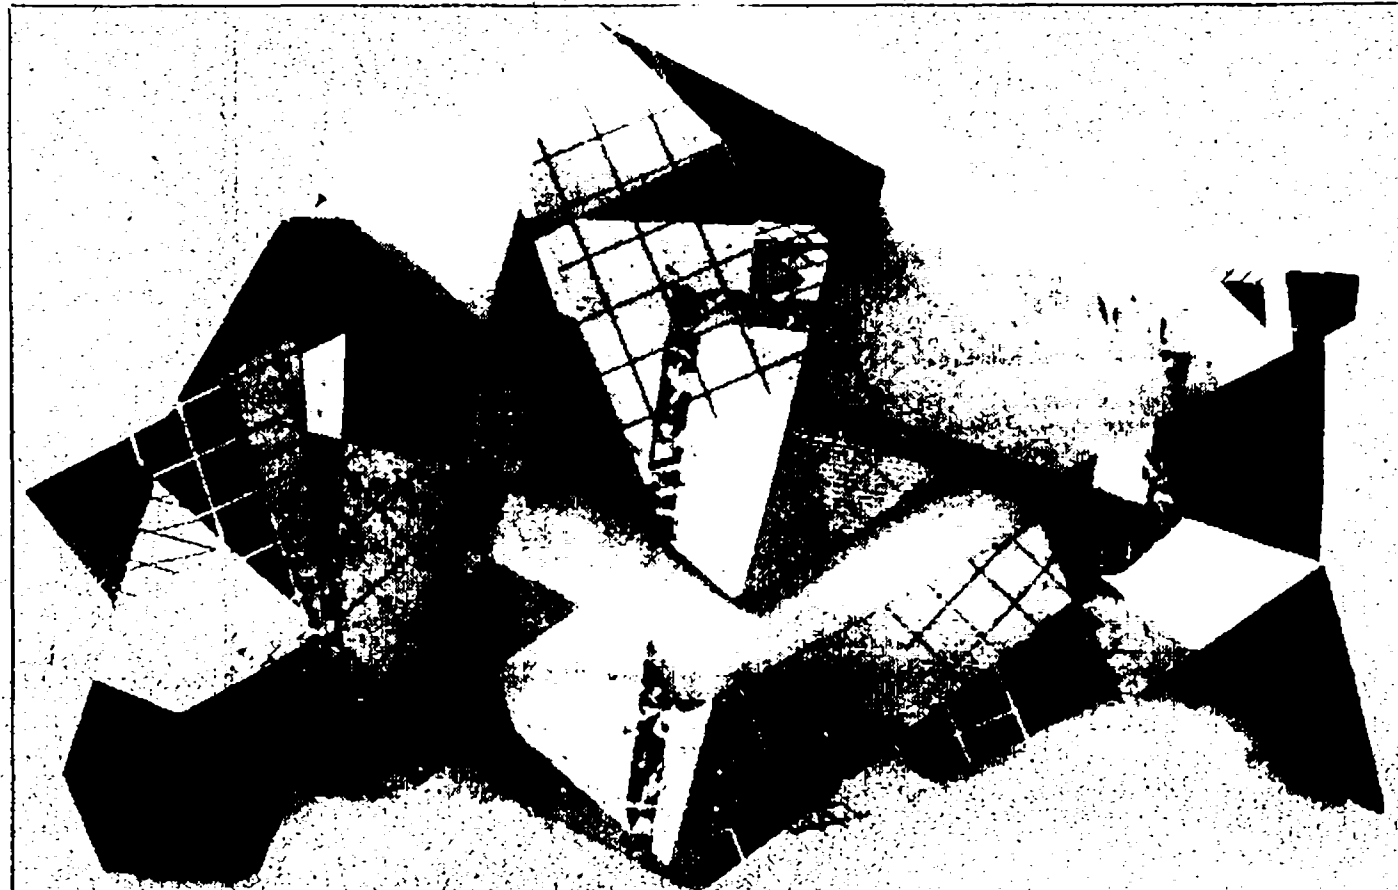

Considering those and his teaching, "I like the activity (of all three)," he said. "They all influence each other."

"Color in Architectural Illustration" by Harold Linton was published in 1987; "Architectural Sketching" will be published this fall; and "Color Consulting" is due out next year. All are published by Van Nostrand Reinhold of New York. To make an appointment to see Linton's paintings, call 353-0440.

Complementary talents Ceramicist, painter showcase new work at gallery

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

Both artists in the current show at Troy Art Gallery, Carol Lachlusa, watercolor paintings, and Elizabeth Lurie, porcelain vessels, stretched their mediums and their skills for the event.

And that, it turns out, makes an interesting, and surprisingly compatible show. Lurie, based in Farmington Hills, is widely recognized for her pristine, white porcelains. Yet in this exhibit, she is also showing her fine talent for color and pattern.

Lachlusa, a Grosse Pointe resident and art teacher who conducts a cable TV show on painting, is associated with impressionistic, magnified flower subjects. For the first time at the Troy Art Gallery, she has included a number of landscapes, a diptych and a triptych, which present a panorama that suggests places such as the coast of Italy, without simply reproducing it.

She does watercolor sketches on location and combines them into an impressionist work. In one lovely triptych, she incorporated scenes from Amalfi, Sorrento and Capri, but specific places that some travelers may remember fondly aren't there. "Nobody can walk up to it and say I know that spot, I was there," said Lachlusa, adding, "It's a very scary thing when you bring in something new that people haven't seen."

YET she wants the viewer to immediately begin to place himself in the scene. "I tell my students that when you look at a painting you should be able to tell what time of day it is and what kind of a day it is," she said.

Her concern with light and shadow and positive and negative space is particularly apparent in her paintings of Michigan nature trails.

Lurie mixes and tests all her own glazes and, like a good potter should, keeps meticulous records. She said she has close to 1,000 on file. But, from all that carefully recorded trial and error, some glorious glazes have surfaced. One white glaze she point-pure, white porcelain work, but in this show, she is showing more color and pattern than in previous ones.

ed out has "an incredibly, velvety texture." She has developed an exciting pink and a rich turquoise with a soft mat finish which she uses for the inside of her pedestal bowls with a deep gray/black for the outside.

To work exclusively in porcelain is to be a confirmed risk taker. In addition to large wall pieces which she has in this show, which took a long time to perfect, she will have some very large bowls and coffee and tea sets with trays.

The trays proved (in a great understatement) to be troublesome. Her ratio was two successful out of 20 tries. But, her determination is substantial. The tea sets are in pale aqua with patterns in the porcelain that are exquisite in their soft, subtle presence.

AS A REWARD for perseverance, one of her large bowls is included in the Monarch Tile competition in San Antonio, Texas. It was one of 90 pieces chosen from a field of 1,200.

"Each new form has its own technical problems," she said. But this is a challenge that she thrives on, "In my lifetime, I will never run out of problems to focus on." Nor would she want to.

Both artists have a strong abiding interest in nature and consider it a vital source for and influence upon their work. That's certainly one of the threads that holds this show together so well, along with the concerns for line, color and light.

Lurie said, "In my large wall pieces I'm really explaining the quality of light." Lachlusa does in a different, but equally enjoyable way in her paintings.

The exhibit continues through June 18. Hours are 11 a.m. 5:30 p.m. Tuesday-Friday, until 4 p.m. Saturday, 755 W. Big Beaver, Suite 131, Troy.

Herbig conducts Beethoven for final concert

By Avigdor Zoromp
special writer

In the final concert of his six-year tenure as music director of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Gunther Herbig was true to the repertoire he has favored from the beginning.

His emphasis on the traditional European, mostly German classical legacy, was illustrated in this final program which featured Beethoven's Eighth and Ninth symphonies. While the narrowness of Herbig's repertoire has been the target of much criticism, one could hardly argue with the masterful nature of such selections, even if some of them, such as Beethoven's Ninth, were performed here too often in the last six years.

That Beethoven's Eighth lies in the shadow of the Ninth comes as no surprise. Yet, this is no reason for an unconditional surrender. Indeed, the performance of the first movement suggested a great deal of vitality and sparkle with enthusiasm.

These elements diminished, however, as the performance progressed. The few wrong notes in the minuet were among the less insidious flaws — accidents happen even to the best performers.

THE OVERALL APPROACH suggested some gradual disenchantment with this charming work. There is always the danger of not taking Beethoven seriously enough, but another, less obvious danger, is in taking him too seriously and too literally.

That was the case with the final movement in the Eighth — which, in its coda, is full of humor and mischief, yet, it was presented so rigidly that even the extreme changes in rhythm didn't offer relief from a sense of strict metronomical tempo.

Humor and levity are less associated with the Ninth.

But, a Scherzo has some of these elements in it by definition and the one in the Ninth is no exception. Thus, when attempting to start the Trio a second time, Beethoven cuts it off abruptly with a contrived conclusion, saying, in effect, "No, not this again — I've had enough."

Concluding the movement at the regular tempo, as it was on this occasion, totally misses the point. This, however, was an exception to an otherwise excellent performance of this Beethoven masterpiece.

This performance benefited from the outstanding contributions of Faye Robinson, soprano; Susanne Mentzer, mezzo soprano; John Alsalon, tenor; and Gary Relyea, baritone. The Detroit Symphony Chorus and Gary Relyea, baritone, completed this excellent group. Relyea had a forceful, resonating tone with clarity that was marginally obscured by vibrato in the lower range. Robinson's intense voice soared above the rest of the singers, sometimes being overwhelming. Its passion wasn't a substitute for clarity and the high level of discipline required.

MENTZER and ABSALON provided fine balance between the two extremes. Above all, the voices of these four singers blended well harmonically, without some of the clashes of intonation that are often present.

The well-coordinated Detroit Symphony Chorus which shifted emphasis smoothly and naturally, kept this performance on a consistently high plateau.

The prolonged, applause and standing ovation by the sellout audience made us forget for a while the discouraging realities of the artistic world.

This was brought home by an insert in the program about the recent problems of the National Endowment for the Arts, NEA, which is under attack by critics who favor its elimination.

Reflecting on value of mirror lenses

Want the effects of a 500mm or 1,000mm telephoto lens but can't get turned on to the problems inherent in such a long lens — weight, size, cost?

Suppose I told you there's a hand-holdable 500mm lens, reasonable in price, weighing just over a pound and only 3 inches in length.

Furthermore, this lens could focus closer than a conventional telephoto and give your pictures special effects not obtainable with any other kind of lens.

Sound too good to be true? Think I've flipped my lens cap?

IT'S NO PUT-ON. Long in name, but short in length, it's called a "catadioptric" lens. More commonly, it's called a mirror lens.

How does it work? Essentially, it's the same principle as the reflecting telescope.

By using a reflective system that employs mirrored optics, a design that allows extreme focal lengths can be packaged in a very short lens barrel. The combination of a concave spherical mirror and conventional lens elements is what does the trick.

WHAT ARE the advantages of mirror lenses? I've touched on a few that I'll cover now in greater detail.

Monte Nagler

First, mirror lenses are light-weight and compact. There are fewer glass elements in the design, considerably reducing their weight. Also, because mirror lenses operate on a reflected light principle, the overall length is reduced.

Another major advantage is that mirror lenses enable you to focus to very close distances. Some mirror lenses can focus to an astoundingly close 8 feet, compared with about 40 feet for a conventional 500mm lens.

To the creative photographer, a major advantage of mirror lenses is their ability to turn out-of-focus light highlights into ring-shaped doughnuts.

This occurs because there is a reflecting central mirror in the lens rather than a diaphragm. These doughnuts can add an artistic touch to your photographs and give you very dramatic results. This is especially effective with sun sparkles on water.

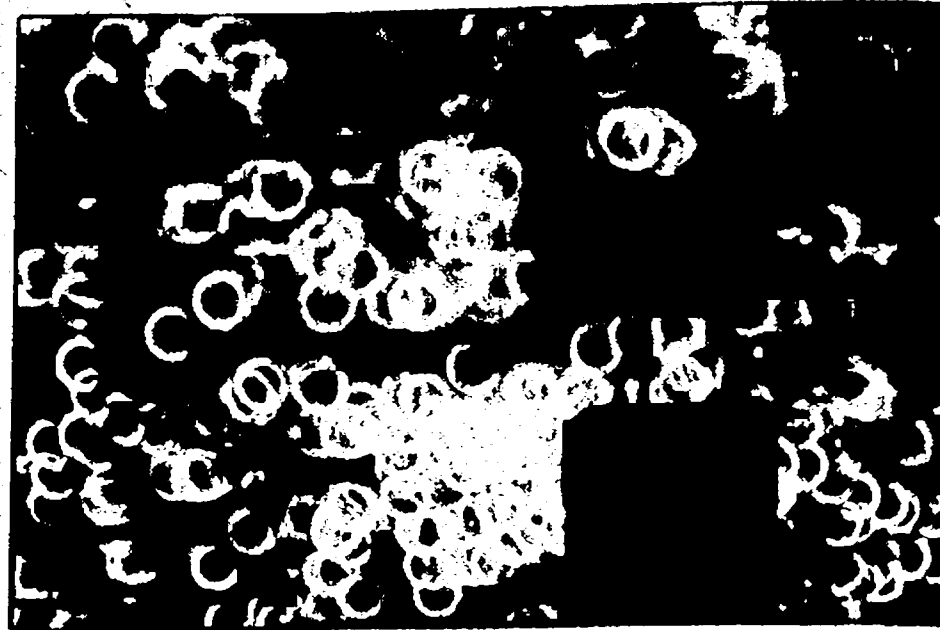

ANY DISADVANTAGES? There is one. Because it's impossible to incorporate a diaphragm into the design, mirror lenses must operate at a fixed f-stop, usually f-8 or f-11. This means exposure is manipulated only by varying the shutter speed control or by using neutral density filters (filters that block out light).

Overall, mirror lenses are fun and exciting and can give you results not possible with any other type of lens. So reflect for a moment on the value of mirror lenses. You'll be glad you did.

Notice the artistic donut effect produced by Monte Nagler's 500mm mirror lens in this late afternoon photo of a seagull. The donuts are actually out-of-focus sun sparkles shimmering in the water.

The Crossings At Canton.

Apartment living just got better. We're making The Crossings a better place to live and a better value. You'll feel it in the new hallways and newly refurbished clubhouse. You'll see it in the lush landscaping when you enter the grounds. And that's just the beginning. It's the new look and feel of The Crossings at Canton—and it's for you.

The Crossings at Canton offers 19 different floorplans with 1 to 4 bedrooms. And whether you choose a 2-level townhome or a luxury apartment, the renewed beauty of this charming rental community shines through in every one—the result of our recent "Capital Improvement & Upgrading" program. These apartments and townhomes are the largest in the area, yet are still incredibly affordable.

Discover these features at The Crossings at Canton:

- Dens & Fireplaces
- Fully-applianced Kitchens
- Patios or Balconies
- Central Air Conditioning
- A Clubhouse with sauna, indoor pool, exercise room, a new party room, and more!

Visit The Crossings at Canton today. We're just 20 minutes from Ann Arbor and downtown Detroit, yet comfortably away from it all. From I-275, just exit Arbor Rd. West to Haggerty Rd., follow south to Joy Rd. then east to The Crossings. Open Mon.-Fri., 10-6, Sat. 10-5, Sun. 12-5 Phone 455-2424 today.

Where would Her Majesty live in Birmingham? At Buckingham, naturally.

She'd love the royal park across the street. She'd dote on the spacious two-bedroom apartment with fresh new interiors from the most modern appliances to the best lighting fixtures to designer carpeting to contemporary verticals. She'd like the uncommon amount of room and royal way the service staff treats her. After all, a person's home ought to be their palace.

Zero in on building sites electronically

By Gerald Frawley
staff writer

The Information Age — It was only a matter of time before some sharp entrepreneurs would start specialized information services geared to the needs of land and building developers.

Land Data Inc. founded in December 1988 by Steven and Kathy Golden, and TOXICHECK Environmental Services Inc., founded in 1987 by Mark Bennett, cater to the needs to know about land.

Land Data, in West Bloomfield, offers an on-line computer database on vacant and developed property and a hardbound directory that includes plat maps of improved and vacant lands, according to Kathy Golden, vice president.

A commercial multi-list of properties for sale, a mortgage rate index and a mailing label service are also available.

"ANYONE WITH a computer, phone and modem can access information by zone and street (or other parameters) and get legal descriptions, ownership, assessed value, taxes, school districts and other information," Golden said.

The database is also valuable for keeping a general tab on a particular piece of property or the real estate market in general, she said.

Directories include plat, zoning, vacant land, water line and sewer line maps, as well as a vacant land directory sorted by zoning and location with sidwell numbers, owner information, school districts, assessed value and a property address if assigned, she said.

PREVIOUSLY, THOSE looking for similar information would spend hours in county clerk offices, Golden said.

"The time savings is incredible — we allow small companies to compete with the large and middle-sized companies.

"Now you can punch in a name, or a street, or a parcel and out pops all the property they own in the county."

A user can also learn who owns nearly property, how it's zoned, and how it's used.

And it is easy, she said. "We designed it so we it would be easy — our market is basically one with little or no computer experience."

Land Data's database, which already covers Oakland and Wayne counties, will expand into Livings-

Growth management bill readied

By Gerald Frawley
staff writer

As pressures for controlling growth in southeast Michigan and in boomtowns on the west side of the state mount, draft legislation designed to give local communities more authority over development is nearing completion.

In the works for nearly two years, the legislation according to its authors, strives to balance the interest of existing development against the need for new development.

But builders are concerned efforts to restrict or stop development could be disastrous to them, the local economy and the freedom of people to choose where they wish to live.

Neither side expects to see growth management legislation introduced until after the November general elections.

According to Mark Wyckoff, president of the Planning and Zoning Center, an Ann Arbor planning consultant firm, current planning and zoning regulations were adequate for the past, but they approach growth in a piecemeal fashion.

"They were designed for the problems of a different age," Wyckoff said.

Wyckoff and Gerald Fisher, an attorney with Kohl, Secrest, Wardle, Lynch, Clark and Hampton in Farmington Hills, presented an early draft of the new legislation at a growth management meeting in Southfield sponsored by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) and five communities.

The legislation, developed for Independence, Oakland, Waterford and West Bloomfield townships and the city of Rochester Hills, will not be introduced in the Legislature until next year.

Wyckoff stressed communities are cautious about controlling growth for fear of stifling it. "Despite what developers believe, these are not anti-growth efforts."

IRVIN YACKNESS, executive director of the Builders Association of Southeast Michigan (BASM), said he hasn't examined the proposed legislation, but regulations that inhibit development should be scrutinized closely.

The builders association is committed to growth management, but it is concerned the builders' and public sector's definition are widely different, he said.

Most growth management proposals appear to be no-growth based, which is why a continuing dialogue is needed, Yackness said.

Limiting or slowing development through any means restricts the right of property owners to develop their land, increases housing costs and prevents people from choosing where to live.

"It is wrong for people to stop development just because they have their house in the suburbs," he said. "They (the rights to choose) were certainly important to the citizen who earlier had the opportunity to move to the area."

Stopping growth will not stop traffic congestion, loss of wetlands and woodlands, rising property values or protect the environment," he said.

But building does have a direct effect on the local economy, Yackness said. Building not only adds to the tax base, but creates and sustains jobs as well as providing a continuing source of revenues for local businesses.

"If we want an ongoing economy, we must have ongoing construction," he said. "I think we can all recall what 1981

"If we want an ongoing economy, we must have ongoing construction. I think we can all recall what 1981 was like when we had only 1,200 building permits pulled."

was like when we had only 1,200 building permits pulled."

FISHER OF Kohl Secrest said an important tool would allow communities to transfer and purchase development rights. Transferring development rights from one property to another permits dense building in one area in exchange for light building in another regardless of current zoning.

To ensure a land owner is not deprived of property rights, new legislation would permit communities — through special assessments or other means — to compensate owners for lost profits, he said.

New legislation establishing urban and general service districts spelling out where water, sewer, paved roads and other infrastructure will be provided would enable developers to know well beforehand that a given parcel will not support dense development, according to Fisher.

Closely related, he said, is legislation requiring a "concurrency of services and facilities" that would tie the new development and infrastructure construction together. Currently, infrastructure construction — particularly roads — lags behind development, which results in traffic congestion and gridlock, he said.

To ensure a concurrency of services and facilities, the legislation would allow communities to establish impact fees — monies payable for improvements that are substantially related to and provide a material benefit to the new development, Fisher said.

NEW LEGISLATION would also require public agencies — including city, village, township, parks and recreation, county road agencies — to designate areas intended for public development.

When a developer makes a proposal conflicting with a master plan, the affected agency would be required to acquire the property itself or amend the plan to allow the development, Fisher said.

The legislation also proposes a regional impact coordination act that would require developers to present an impact analysis to surrounding communities.

"The difficulty," he said, "is in preserving a community's right to home rule." During site plan approval, the home community would hear testimony from other communities and determine if theirs is an "unreasonable impact." Fisher said if the home community discovers "an unreasonable impact," the project would not be approved until the impact was mitigated.

ton, Macomb, Washtenaw, Kent and Ottawa counties before the end of the year, Golden said.

THE IDEA was conceived when Golden's husband, a partner in the development firm of Universal Development Inc. in Bloomfield Hills, became frustrated trying to locate vacant land, she said.

"We found out there wasn't an easy way to do it so we decided to do it ourselves."

Now, almost a year after publishing its first directory, Land Data boasts 3,000 subscribers including developers, builders, real estate agents, survey companies, appraisers, title companies and banks.

Annual hookup fees start at $800 with unlimited use plans running from $85 to $110 depending on options.

Discounts are offered for customers who hook up more than one terminal. Other plans, per-call services and specialized services are available at less expensive rates.

TOXICHECK Environmental Information Services Inc., a Birmingham company that provides information on potential hazardous contamination of properties, has doubled its sales yearly since opening.

According to president Mark Bennett, concern about the environment and cleanup costs for contaminated sites fuels his business.

Developers dealing in land need to know if property they are considering is polluted.

"It goes back to the old adage information is knowledge and knowledge is power," he said.

TOXICHECK's database incorporates information on landfills, federal super fund sites, and properties designated as contaminated by state and county agencies.

The database covers more than 30 counties throughout Michigan, Illinois and Indiana, he said.

BENNETT'S COMPANY is not the solution for developers and builders who are considering property purchases, but only the first step, he said.

"It's one element in the process of a purchase."

After consulting his database, most developers undertake on-site testing and evaluation.

Some land buyers might use his service to make an initial decision on whether to buy land, but most do more extensive work through environmental engineers and consultants.

NEW LAWS have put the responsibility for environmental contamination on the owner, he said. A person who buys property also buys the responsibility for the cleanup.

A buyer's only defense is to practice "environmental due diligence," he said.

No one can afford to buy a parcel of property without checking into possible hazardous contamination, he said.

"WE GENERATE a custom map with a radius of two miles — any site that has been discovered to be contaminated is shown on the map."

real estate agents, developers, builders, attorneys and banks.

In addition to the custom maps, TOXICHECK also provides written executive summaries for clients explaining the maps.

Bennett got the idea for his company while working for a law firm with an emphasis on environmental policy for its developer and building clients.

He found that individual research on each property was time consuming and costly, and so he started his own company.

Customized, detailed maps range in cost from $95 to $295 depending on property zoning.

Legislation readied

The new legislation would also allow communities to enter into "development agreements" which would ensure builders that laws affecting their projects will not change during the project's construction.

In turn, communities negotiate for developer-financed infrastructure and project phasing to insure a concurrency of services and facilities.

Fisher also said new legislation is needed to reform special assessment laws because recent court cases have "over-limited" the ability to assess special taxes.

Current laws allow assessments only for work that directly effects or adjoins a parcel, he said.

Show debunks myths on contemporary look

The recent International Contemporary Furniture Fair demonstrated that contemporary furniture is far more varied and lively than retail stores reflect. Susan S. Szenasy, editor of Metropolis magazine, a co-sponsor of the event, calls the designers "America's best kept secret."

This year, its second, 235 exhibitors — mostly individual designers and manufacturers of avant-garde products — spread their wares over 48,000 square feet of New York's Jacob K. Javits Convention Center. American, Italian and English firms dominated.

A walk through the trade show offered proof that no one style or material dominates. Designers are adventurous. Prices are moderate to outrageous.

One trend is to redo traditional designs in new materials and to offer new treatments for traditional materials. One company translated the old pine farm table into marble and granite. In the hands of Godley-Schwan, a natural cherry triple dresser ($9,000) took on new interest with the unexpected color of the cherry and undulating lines on the drawer fronts and the top front edge.

Though many people think of modern furniture as angles and hard edges, the majority of forms in this show were rounded. Upholstered pieces, tables and cabinetry had soft edges. It was common for cold-rolled steel to be bent and twisted into undulating shapes for bed headboards, side chairs, tables and decorative screens.

AMONG SOME of the most imaginative offerings:

Bower Studios of Vergennes, Vt., showed 12 ready-to-assemble pieces of fiberboard decorated with silk-screened images of classical building elements such as columns and gargoyles. The least-expensive item, a frame for a picture or mirror, is about $54. There are also benches, desks, chairs, shelves and a storage box that looks ideal for toys ($352).

Yumi Kokubo, a Japanese woman who works in New York, combined white paper and silk gauze in freestanding screens that filter light. A screen can be placed in front of a window or elsewhere in a room as a decorative element ($4,500 to $8,600).

The Children's Museum Programme collection of chairs, play table and cupboard has a pegboard-like surface to accommodate a 20-piece building toy game for play or display. The furniture, available in the United States through Ligne Rosset of Los Angeles, is made in Austria. Prices range from about $140 for a chair to $650 for a cupboard. The game is $49. Designed by Makis Warlamis, a Greek architect, the furniture is based on Warlamis' design of the Children's Museum of Athens.

The indoor-outdoor "Picnic Chair" is a lightweight, all-weather folding butterfly chair of polyester mesh. It retails for about $120, and the Finnish designer, Ahti Taskinen of Proforma, is seeking an American outlet.

EXAMPLES of streamlined design and luxurious materials include Jasper Morrison's graceful sofa with two tailored pillows, one a cylinder and one a rectangle ($3,428) and Matthew Hilton's glass-topped table on metal flippers ($798). Both by English designers, they are available through Palazzetti in the United States and Canada.

The world of contemporary home furnishings is international. It is quite common for, say, an Italian or a German company to produce pieces by an English or Japanese designer. Morrison is a case in point. His furniture is manufactured by companies in England, France, Italy and Japan.

Americans are just beginning to cross borders in this way.

"We have a long way to go," says Lyn Godley, a Brooklyn, N.Y., designer who is organizing the first group showing of Americans for the Milan Furniture Fair next April. "There is no networking system here."

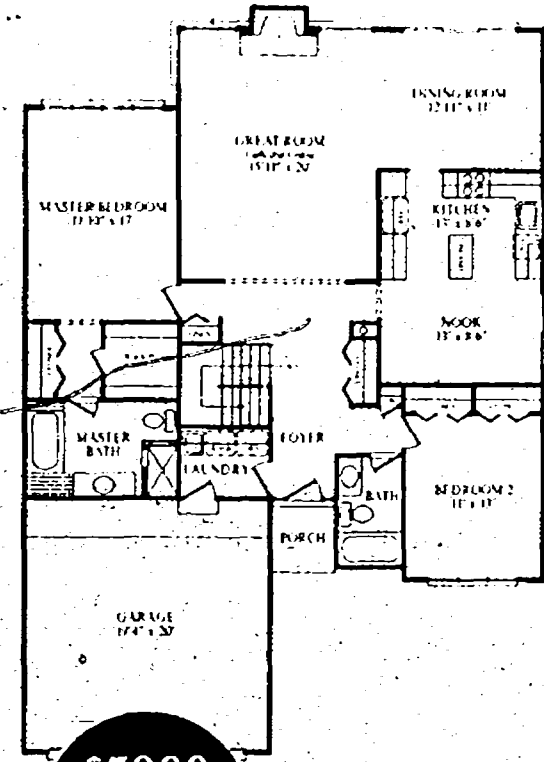

"We need manufacturers willing to work with 20 to 50 small companies instead of expecting to sell a huge quantity of the same mass-market product."
