Board feuds over promotion, raise

By Tedd Schneider staff writer!

Wayne-Westland school board president Andrew Spisak and several board members were openly critical and reacted angrily to remarks by colleagues at a special meeting Mon-

The rare display of emotion by members of the usually low-key board came during discussion of an administrative proposal to give assistant superintendent Woody London a promotion and raise as part of 'the district's cabinet reorganization.

London was elevated to associate superintendent and given a raise of. "about $1,000" in his $74,788 annual salary as part of the package approved 5-2 by the board.

The reorganization was approved in concept by the board last spring as part of $5 million in administralive and program cuts to head off a district deficit in 1990-91.

SPISAK, DURING remarks by Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek, threw up his hands, forcefully removed his eyeglasses and shouted a profanity. The board president later engaged in a shouting match with Ken Barnhill over his actions.

Festival queen crowning Saturday

The first 1990 Westland Summer Festival will get under way Saturday with its first event.

The festival committee will hold its Westland Summer Festival pageant at 7 p.m. Saturday night and crown a festival queen.

The pageant, free and open to the public, will start at 7 p.m. in the Bailey Recreation Center, on Ford between Wayne Road and Newburgh, directly behind Westland City Hall.

The queen and her court will receive prizes and take part in various festival events scheduled for June 29 - July 4.

The festival, to be held on Civic Center grounds behind City Hall, will include carnival rides and attrac--tions, arts and craft displays, bingo, casino games, free entertainment, food booths, games, and contests. The annual festival parade will start at 10 a.m. Saturday, June 30, at Ford and Wildwood and proceed west to the Civic Center area.

A PANCAKE breakfast will be held from 8 - 11 a.m. Saturday and Donna Raines is returning as festival chairwoman this year, assisted by scores of volunteer helpers.

Festival hours will be 4 p.m. midnight Friday, June 29; 10 a.m. to midnight, Saturday, June 30, and Sunday, July 1; 4 p.m. - midnight, Monday and Tuesday, July 2-3, and 10 a.m. to midnight, Wednesday, July 4.

The festival will conclude Wednesday night with a fireworks display at Central City Park, behind Bailey Recreation Center.

Throughout the festival, shuttle bus service will be available between the festival site and the John Glenn High School parking lot, on Marquette at Carlson.

McDonald's will build a restaurant at the southeast corner of Joy and Merriman, ending a three-year battle waged by neighborhood residents and developers over the fate of the property.

The fast-food giant won special approval for the restaurant from the Westland City Council Monday. Construction is expected to begin late this year or early in 1991, according to company officials.

A 7-Eleven store has already been approved for the adjacent property.

Residents who have fought previous projects expressed some nagging concerns but said overall they are satisfied with changes in the site plan worked out after a series of meetings with McDonald's representatives.

Councilman Thomas Artley cast the only dissenting vote, citing problems with additional noise, traffic and "perhaps even fumes."

"McDonald's would certainly be a better citizen there than what (was previously) proposed and what is going (directly) on the corner (the 7-Eleven)," Artley said. "But I still don't think (the site plan) addresses homeowners' needs.'

of the property from six to seven feet and add a gate to the wall so residents will be able to maintain their yards. Other barriers have been moved further away from residents' property lines, to create a greenbelt and prevent access for vandals, said Alan Helmkamp, an attorney representing McDonald's. A corporate spokesman said last week the restaurant would probably be open 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. during the week and until midnight on Fridays and Saturdays. But, he said, if the hours "do become a nuisance to neighbors, certainly we can talk about it and adjust them." McDonald's will also pay to have a sidewalk installed in front of several homes and has agreed to a "No Left Turn" sign in front of the Merriman entrance for safety reasons.

Wilhelmina Lawson, who has acted as spokeswoman for local residents, said Monday she was pleased "in general" with the changes.

have resulted in years of "assaults on residents and the integrity of this neighborhood."

She was critical of the adjacent convenience store and said it's latenight patrons would be tempted to "sit and visit" in the McDonald's parking lot when the restaurant was closed.

The 7-Eleven property is owned by Glenn Shaw, who sold a portion of the site to McDonald's for an undisclosed price last January. His efforts to build a strip mall failed when Blockbuster video backed out as the major tenant.

Area residents have been fighting commercial development of the property since 1987 when Burger King announced plans to build a restaurant on the site. That fast-food chain refused to accommodate residents' and city council requests limiting hours of operation.

Helping literacy

Scott Olson of Westland is shown adult literarcy materials by Nancy Browning of the community education department at the Livonia school district's Bentley Center, Livonia. Michigan National Corp., Scott's employer, honors 12 employees annually who do volunteer work in the community by giving each volunteer $1,000 to give to their favorite cause. Olson was honored this year for his outstanding work with the Southfield Senior Center, such as arranging theater outings, working in a dunk tank, and donating time for other activities. The $1,000 he received Oleon donated to the Bentley Center for its literacy program. Olson also received the award in 1968 for this work with the Westland Goodfellows and is the only person who has received the honor twice.

A DETROIT man was assaulted by a gang of 10-15 people Saturday night during an altercation on the 29000 block of Eton in which shots were fired, witnesses told police.

The victim, 19, was treated and released from Westland Medical Center for cuts to his head and bruises, police said.

Witnesses told police a gray Chevrolet made two passes in front of a house about 10:30 p.m. with passengers in the car firing shots. Following the second pass, a group of youths got out of the car and began a fight with others standing outside the house, witnesses said.

Officers said they found bullet holes in several windows of a nearby parked car during their investigation.

A REDFORD Township -youth told police he was assaulted and robbed by two teens Friday night while he was delivering piz-zas on the 29000 block of Manchester.

The youth said the two approached him at 7:30 p.m.while he was walking back to his car.

He said one teen hit him on the back of his head with a tennis racket and knocked him down. The two stole $65 from his wallet and took his glasses, he said.

The youth said he recognized one of his assailants as someone he had an altercation with following a recent car accident in Livonia.

They also kicked in the fender and bent the antenna of his 1984 Ford Escort before fleeling.

Board urges caution in use of scary books

By Marie Chestney sfaff writer .

Teachers can still use two scary books to teach reading and writing skills to first graders in the Livonia school district, which serves the northern section of Westland. .

But teachers will also get extra training in picking books for classroom use that are appropriate to the age of the students being taught and that are sensitive to the students' emotional needs.

"It's a step in the right direction," sald Lynn Gumas, who fought to keep two books which she feels are ghoulish from being used by teachers in classroom instruction in which youngsters had to participate.

Gumas, a teacher for the Farmington Public Schools, said her daughter became frightened and had nightmares after a poem from one of the books repeatedly was used by a teacher in a Garfield Elementary. School first-grade class. The school is near W. Chicago and Arthur.

Two other parents came before the board Monday and told the same

"My daughter read these books as a first grader and had unexplained nightmares," said parent Pam Wyer.

'My daughter spent one year sleeping in a sleeping bag in the doorway of her bedroom. She told me she was scared," said parent Michelle Dolan.

THE POEM, "The Body," from "Scary Poems for Rotten Kids," tells of a boneless beast slithering under doors late at night, sucking up everything it meets because it needs the flesh of children to survive.

The Livonia Board of Education Monday voted against restricting the use of either book in elementary classrooms:

"If we restrict, it will take away the teacher's ability to use it at all,' said trustee Patricla Sari. "To remove it is unfair to the kids who want it. If these books are not includthen there will be other books which will offend someone else."

Superintendent Joseph Marinelli said it is inappropriate for the trustees to sit in judgment of a book.

However, the trustees told Marisitive to the "emotional effects" some books may have on very young struction," the trustees said. "Material used should . . . take into account the possibility of potentially frightening very young children."

Marinelli said he had compassion for the Gumas family and the nightmares Jennifer Gumas apparently suffered.

"The whole language program requires a great deal of professional judgment on the part of the teacher," Marinelli said.

PARENTAL CONCERNS over "Scary Poems for Rotten Kids" and "Scary Stories To Tell in the Dark" came in the first year of the district's newly launched whole-language reading program.

To foster reading, the program encourages students to select the books they wish to read. Under the old reading program, most books were selected by teachers and staff.

The Garfield parents said they did not want either book removed from school libraries, nor did they want to keep students in kindergarten through the third grade from reading either book in the classroom if they chose to do so on their own.

What they did object to, they said, was using either book to teach to what they called a "captive audience" of students, some of whom might not have chosen either book to read and who might not be mature enough to handle the gory fantasy world contained in the poems and room curriculum? Making a joke of death, the grave and the decomposing of the human body is fatalistic teaching."

Carole Samples, assistant superintendent for instruction, said the Garfield parents are neither "book banners" or "irrational."

"They are just concerned parents," Samples said.

Trustee Carol Strom agreed that teachers need to be sensitive to the needs of their students but questioned whether a resolution from the board is the best way to accomplish

"Is it necessary for the board to pass a resolution directing the staff to do something they should be doing? I'm concerned about the precedent we're setting here."

Trustee Marjorie Roach said the call for more teacher training is necessary because the community needs to know "we're doing something" about the questions raised by the Garfield parents.

"We cannot undo what has been done but we can try to prevent that from happening again," said Sari, Trustee Joseph Laura voted to restrict the two books for students in kindergarten through the third grade. However, Laura said his support for restriction is tempered by his reluctance to censor books used in the classroom.

"I checked with another school district, Walled Lake, and they (the two books) are not used in K-3, and the parents had concerns in grade 4," Laura said. "When reading to a class as a whole, when the teacher reads it, it's like God speaking. If I was the parent and my kid's teacher did this, I would have had a conversation with her.

"But if I vote (for restricting) then I'm leaving the door open to censorship."

BOTH BOOKS were screened by a book selection committee before they entered the schools' libraries "Stories To Tell in the Dark" was screened in 1982. "Scary Poems for Rotten Kids" was screened in 1984.

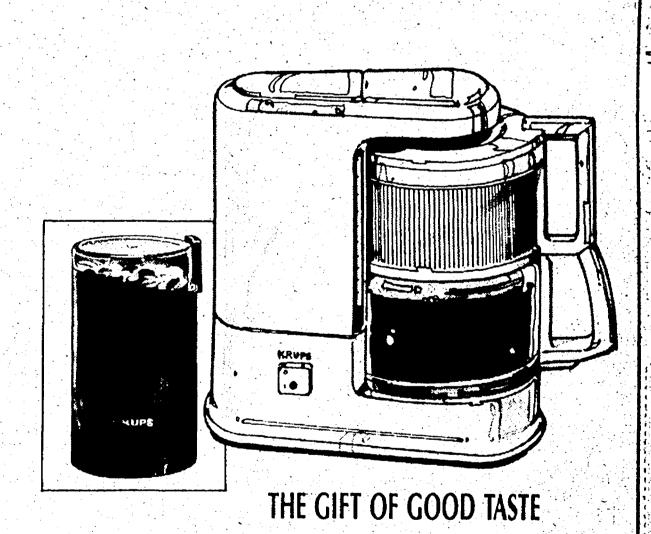

James Gumas, Jennifer's father, told the trustees the parents shouldn't have had to go to the board to get their concerns heard.

Lynn Gumas sald beither the firstgrade teacher nor the Garfield principal agreed to stop using the books after told of the problems Jennifer was having.

CENTRAL WAYNE COUNTY

NOTICE TO ELECTORS OF THE CITIES OF DEARBORN HEIGHTS, GARDEN CITY, INKSTER, WAYNE AND WEST-LAND OF CENTRAL WAYNE COUNTY SANITATION AU-THORITY'S INTENT TO ISSUE BONDS AND RIGHT OF RE-FERENDUM THEREON

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority, Wayne County, Michigan, intends to issue and sell Incinerator Revenue Bonds, Series IV, pursuant to Act 179, Public Acts of Michigan, 1947, as amended, and Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended, in an amount not to exceed Three Million Dollars ($3,000,000) for the purpose of paying the cost of acquiring improvements to the Authority's existing landfill and other facilities.

BONDS

THE PRINCIPAL OF AND INTEREST ON SAID BONDS SHALL BE PAYABLE solely from the revenues received by the Authority from the operation of the Incinerator Plant. Said revenues consist primarily of charges billed to the above five cities for disposal of refuse through the Authority, and a schedule of such charges is presently available at the office of the Authority and from each City Clerk. Said charges may from time to time be revised to provide sufficient revenues to pay the expenses of operating and maintaining the Plant, the principal of and interest on all bonds of the Authority and other obligations of the Authority. Each City is authorized to levy ad valorem taxes to pay all or a part of such charges.

BOND DETAILS

SAID BONDS will be payable in annual installments through 2000 and will bear interest at the rate or rates to be determined at public sale, but in no event to exceed eighteen percent (18%) per annum on the balance of the bonds from time to time remaining unpaid.

RIGHT OF REFERENDUM

THE BONDS WILL BE ISSUED WITHOUT A VOTE OF ELECTORS, AS PERMITTED BY LAW, UNLESS A PETITION REQUESTING SUCH A VOTE SIGNED BY THE LESSER OF 15,000 OR 10% OF THE TOTAL NUMBER OF REGISTERED ELECTORS OF THE ABOVE FIVE CITIES COMBINED IS FILED WITH THE SECRETARY OF THE AUTHORITY WITHIN FORTY-FIVE (45) DAYS AFTER PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE. IF SUCH PETITION IS FILED, THE BONDS MAY NOT BE ISSUED WITHOUT AN APPROVING VOTE OF A MAJORITY OF THE TOTAL NUMBER OF QUALIFIED ELECTORS OF THE ABOVE FIVE CITIES COMBINED VOTING ON THE QUESTION.

THIS NOTICE is given pursuant to the requirements of Section 33, Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended.

Use of drug fund sparks county controversy

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Members of the Wayne County Commission audit committee are investigating what they believe could be a potential misuse of money and material set aside for new offices for the sheriff's Drug Enforcement Unit.

But a county executive's spokesman said the issue involves little more than a borrowed air condition-

The situation arises from an auditor's report on construction work at a county building on 640 Temple, De-

County Auditor General Ramona Henderson said her April 23 inspection of the site produced evidence material — including a cooling unit - was being diverted from the asyet unfinished fifth floor Drug Enforcement Unit office to a seventh floor office being built for the county Air Pollution Control Division and possibly to other, unnamed county projects.

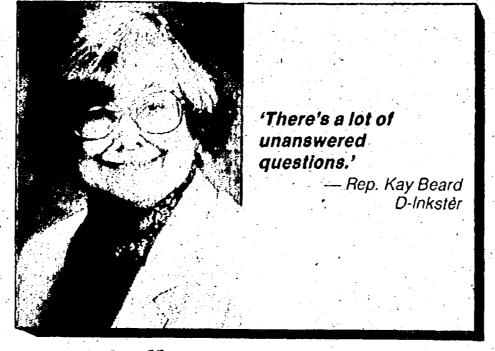

THE MATTER was an issue, Henderson wrote, because the material was bought with seized drug dealer assets, transferred from the federal government, and is required by federal guidelines to be spent only for drug-related activites.

Use for any other projects, warned Henderson in her report, could cause the federal government to revoke future contributions of selzed drug assets earmarked for Wayne County.

Audit committee chairwoman Kay Beard, D-Inkster, said she called for a meeting with Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and heads of the county building, management and budget, purchasing and air pollution departments and divisions to discuss the situation.

"I don't want to accuse anybody," sald Beard. "I'm not sure whether it was incompetence, poor judgment or bad management. We're trying to get to the bottom of the issue."

The committee has also requested county records involved in both construction projects and hoped to receive them by today. Audit committee members first discussed the report at a meeting Tuesday.

"There's a lot of unanswered questions," Beard said.

Deputy county executive Michael Duggan, however, said the situation was a non-issue.

"The issue is we borrowed an air conditioner for a couple of days and we returned it," he said.

Duggan said county workers moved an air conditioning unit from the county-owned building's fifth floor because finishing the air pollution offices took priority.

"We're trying to get them (air pollution control) in new offices by August," Duggan sald. "What happened was the air pollution offices are being evicted from their current building on Jefferson," Duggan said.

"We will provide the Drug Enforcement Unit with very nice offices, but right now the other project takes pri-

Eviction wasn't unusual, Duggan added, because the county no longer has any interest in widespread space leasing.

"We're trying to move offices into buildings we already own to save money," he said. "When we took over, only one floor of the Temple building was being used."

Drug Enforcement offices would receive all the material promised them, Duggan said.

But a department spokesman said he wasn't sure how much material had already been shipped to other $ departments.

"The problem is, we don't know how much has been used and what its dollar value is," said unit Commander Melvin Turner.

In addition to the cooling system, the audit report indicated more sheet metal had been bought than was apparently needed by the Drug Enforcement Unit offices. The material was being stored on the fifth floor and all material stored in the building was inadequately protected.

Delay in construction of Drug Unit offices was apparently a concern for both the auditor and Beard. Henderson reported that material bought as long ago as October 1988 had not been installed.

Beard said a drug lab promised with the new offices was "badly needed."

Duggan, though, called the issue

"election year politics." "It's an election year. We resigned ourselves to that," he said.

Plastics recycling gains momentum

By Wayne Peal staff writer

The future, according to the famous line from "The Graduate," could once be summed up in one word: plastics.

Today, the future could lie in plastics recycling.

From Washington to local city halls, elected officials are grappling with ways to reduce America's prodigious solid waste output. And plastics recycling ranks high on everyone's list.

"It's definitely an important issue," said Daniel Gilmartin of the Conference of Western Wayne, a multi-government group considering a recycling plan for western Wayne

Plastics recycling also weighs heavily in a state plan to reduce the waste going into Michgian landfills by 80 percent within the next 15 years. The state has created a $3 million Plastics Recycling Fund from the $800 million Quality of Life Bond issue approved by voters in Recycling plastic goods — even those involving such made from scarcely recycled polystyrene - is an achieveable goal, said a spokeswoman for the Council for Solid Waste Solutions, a Washington-based group affiliated with the plastics industry.

"WE HATE to quote figures, but information we've seen indicates recycling plastic bottles could increase from 20 percent to 50 percent by 1993," said council spokeswoman Susan Vadney. "We've even seen figures indicating polystyrene (the material commonly used for coffee cups and fast food packaging) which was at zero last year could grow to 25 percent by 1995."

Nationally, plastics recycling is like the morning sun: rising in the East, streaming slowly into the Midwest but not yet visable in the West.

"New Jersey and Rhode Island are leading the pack in recycling generally, not just for plastics," Vadney said. "At the same time we haven't seen too much being done in Western

Because of its 12-year-old beverage container recycling law, Vadney added, Michgian is already ahead of many other Midwestern states.

Michigan's ability to remain in the forefront could lie in its ability to attract plastic recycling plants.

One plant, operated by Clean Tech, a division of Plymouth-based Plastipak Packaging Inc., began recycling operations March 1. The Dundee plant, south of western Wayne, near Monroe, has been accepting milk jugs and clear plastic containers. Its goal is to recycle them into new bottles.

Company officials said the plant could recycle 24 million pounds of plastic goods a year. Clean Tech has qualified for $900,000 in state grant money to buy equipment.

That figure has caught the attention of governmental officials. Gil-martin sald. "We've talked a great deal with them," he said. Recycling's success, Gilmartin added, could depend as much on trash haulers as on communities themselves.

"I hear a lot of the haulers that serve our communities are taking it out of state," Gilmartin said.

Plastics currently account for about 13 percent of the material now stored in landfills, said Wayne Koser, environmental quality analyst for the Michgian Department of Natural Resources.

"A lot of this stuff can be used three and four times, so why create new (plastic) resins?"Koser said. Gilmartin appeared to agree.

"There's a lot of plastic out there, what we need are ways of managing it," he said.

Plea bargain ends dance hall dispute

By Joe Bauman staff writer.

A legal dispute between the city of Livonia and the owner of the Grande Music Cafe has been settled after plea bargaining in 16th District Court.

Rob Cortis, who had fought to resurrect his defunct Westlandbased Grande Ballroom by relocating in Livonia, has pleaded guilty to nine ordinance violations.

Cortis tried - and failed - to transform his Gourmet Buffet restaurant on Plymouth Road and Middlebelt into the Grande Music Cafe and Club X-S.

CORTIS FAILED to comply with the city's demand in March that he close the establishment until he apply for and receive the necessary waiver permits to operate a dance hall on property zoned for restau-

The city slapped Cortis with 15 ordinance violations during the ensuing weeks for keeping his business open. Each violation carried a maximum sentence of 90 days in jail and a $500 fine.

Cortis eventually sued the city in Wayne Circuit Court in an effort to keep his business open, but lost the

The city then countersued, and earlier this month received a permanent injunction, barring Cortis from opening his business until he complied with the city ordinances.

IT WAS the city's victory in circuit court that led to last week's plea agreement in district court.

Livonia city attorney Harry Tatigian said.

"The two court cases were separate but things fell into place after we were clearly the winner in circuit court," Tatigian sald.

"Mr. Cortis agreed to plead guilty on a number of the violations, and the city in turn agreed to drop some of the remaining complaints." Cortis is scheduled to be sentenced next month on five of the nine counts before District Judge Robert Brzezinski, and on the remaining four counts before District Judge James McCann.

THE CITY will recommend as part of the plea agreement that Cortis avoid jail and instead be placed in a voluntary community work program, Tatigian sald.

"The final decision is up to the judge, as is the amount of fine he must pay," Tatigian said.

Attempts to reach Cortis for comment were unsuccessful. The telephone at his Livonia business had been disconnected.

In earlier comments, both Cortis and his attorneys were highly critical of how he had been treated by the city, claiming he was the target of personal and professional harassment, and likened Livonia to a Communist state.

On Tuesday, Tatigian said he was satisfied how the situation was resolved.

"Our ordinances have been upheld in court, and I am confident that they will be respected and followed in the future. We won every round."

Former principal active in district

Services for Walter Boehme, 78, a long-time Wayne-Westland school district principal, were Wednesday, June 20, from the Lents Funeral Home, Wayne. Burial will be Friday, June 22, in Kentucky.

Boehme died June 18 in St. Joseph Hospital. Superior Township, after a long illness.

Born in Georgetown, Ohio, Boehme received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Western Kentucky State College and completed six years of doctoral studies, most at Columbia University.

CENTRAL WAYNE COUNTY SANITATION AUTHORITY

ORDINANCE NO. 4

AN ORDINANCE AUTHORIZING THE MAKING OF IM-PROVEMENTS TO THE FACILITIES OF THE CENTRAL. WAYNE COUNTY SANITATION AUTHORITY; PROVIDING FOR THE ISSUANCE OF REVENUE BONDS OF EQUAL STANDING WITH THE OUTSTANDING REVENUE BONDS TO PAY THE COST THEREOF; AND PROVIDING FOR OTHER MATTERS RELATIVE TO SAID BONDS AND THE SECURITY THEREFOR.

WHEREAS, the Central Wayne County Sanitation authority (the "Authority") has been incorporated pursuant to Act 179, Public Acis of Michigan, 1947, as amended, by the cities of Garden City and Wayne, the townships of Dearborn and Nankin (now Cities of Dearborn Heights and Westland, respectively), and the Village of Inkster (now City of Inkster) (the "Members"), all in Wayne County, Michigan, for the purpose of collecting and/or disposing of garbage and rubbish; and

WHEREAS, it is now deemed necessary by the Board of Directors of the Authority, for the public health, safety and welfare of all of the inhabitants of the Members, to make improvements to the Authority's landfill, together with various other miscellaneous Plant improvements and all appurtenances, attachments, land and rights-of-way necessary therefor (the "Project"); and

WHEREAS, the total cost of the Project has been estimated by Braithwaite Consultants, Inc., engineers of Ann Arbor, Michigan, to be Three Million Dollars ($3,000,000); and

WHEREAS, the Authority has, pursuant to agreements with all of its Members, authorized and issued Incinerator Revenue Bonds in the original principal sum of $3,620,000, dated October 1, 1962, Incinerator Revenue Bonds, Series II, in the original principal amount of $3,100,000, dated June 1, 1970, and Incinerator Revenue Bonds, Series III, in the original principal amount of $11,200,000, dated March 1, 1986, all for the purpose of paying the costs of acquiring and constructing various improvements to the facilities of the Authority; and

WHEREAS, Section 19(d) of Ordinance No. 1 authorizing the original bonds, as added by Ordinance No. 2 authorizing the Series II bonds, authorizes the issuance of additional bonds payable from revenues of the Authority of equal standing with outstanding bonds, for the following purposes and upon the following conditions:

"To improve and enlarge the existing Plant or to construct or acquire such additional facilities within the scope of the powers of the Authority as may be necessary to service the constituent municipalities or other contracting municipalities; provided that no bonds of equal standing and priority of lien for such purposes shall be issued unless all of the bonds authorized by the 1962 Ordinance have either been retired in full as to both principal and interest or such retirement has been provided for, and unless the anticipated net revenues of the Authority, including such revenues as may be derived from unconditional pledges of constituent members to meet debt service requirements of the Authority from the levy of taxes, shall be sufficient to satisfy the principal and interest requirements on all bonds of equal standing and priority of lien on the net revenues then outstanding and on the additional bonds then being issued. Permission of the Municipal Finance Commission (or such other State commission or agency as shall have jurisdiction over the issuance of municipal bonds) to issue additional bonds, shall constitute a conclusive presumption of the existence of conditions permitting the issuance thereof."

WHEREAS, retirement of all of the series II Bonds authorized by the 1982 Ordinance has been provided for by deposit in escrow with the paying agent of sufficient funds to pay such bonds in full at maturity or call; and

WHEREAS, all Members have entered into agreements with the Authority whereby the rates charged to such Members for the continued disposal of garbage and rubbish shall be increased to provide to the Authority sufficient net revenues to pay all costs of the Authority, to keep all facilities of the Authority in good repair and working order and to pay all debt service on all bonds of the Authority; and

WHEREAS, all things necessary to the authorization and Issuance of additional revenue Bonds to finance the cost of the aforesaid improvements under the Constitution and Laws of the State of Michigan and Ordinances of the Authority, and particularly Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended, the aforesaid Act 179 and the aforesaid Ordinances, have been done, and the Board of Directors of the Authority is now empowered and desires to authorize the issuance of said additional bonds.

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CENTRAL WAYNE COUNTY SANITATION. AUTHORITY, COUNTY OF WAYNE, MICHIGAN, ORDAINS:

Section 1. Whenever used in this Ordinance or in the bonds to be issued hereunder, except where otherwise indicated by the context:

(a) The term "Act 94" shall mean Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended.

(b) The term "Authority" shall mean the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority, Wayne County, Michigan.

(c) The term "Project" shall mean the improvements to the landfill and other facilities of the Authority to be made pursuant to this Ordinance, as described in the preamble hereto.

(d) The term "Plant" shall mean the complete incinerator plant of the Authority and all facilities and appurtenances thereof, as defined in Section 1 of the aforesaid Ordinances No. 1 and as improved.

(e) The term "1962 Ordinance" shall mean Ordinance No. 1 pursuant to which the 1962 Bonds were issued, referred to above.

(f) The term "1970 Bonds" shall mean the Incinerator Revenue Bonds, Series II, dated June 1, 1970, and issued pursuant to Ordinance No. 2 as described in the preamble hereto.

(g) The term "1986 Bonds" shall mean the Incinerator Revenue Bonds, Series III, dated March 1, 1986, and issued pursuant to Ordinance No. 3, as described in the preamble hereto.

(h) The terms "Revenues" and "Net Revenues" shall be construed as defined in Section 3 of Act 94, including with respect to "Revenues" earnings derived from investment and all other revenues associated with the Plant.

(i) The term "Board" shall be construed to mean the Board of Directors of the Authority, the legislative and governing body thereof.

(j) The term "Members" shall mean the constituent municipalities who are incorporators and members of the Authority as palities who are incorporators and members of the Authority as referred to in the preamble hereto.

(k) The terms "Chairman", "Secretary" and "Treasurer" shall mean the chairman, Secretary and Treasurer, respectively, of the

(1) The term "Transfer Agent" shall mean the bank or trust company designated by the Authority from time to time to act as bond registrar, paying agent and transfer agent, as provided in this Ordinance and any resolution of the Board.

Section 2. The Board hereby determines it to be necessary, for the public health, safety and welfare of the Members and their inhabitants, to acquire the Project, all in accordance with proposals and specifications therefor prepared by the aforesaid engineers.

Section 3. The cost of the Project as estimated by said engineers, in the amount of Three Million Dollars ($3,000,000), including engineering, legal and financing expenses, bond discount and other costs incidental or related to acquisition of the Project, is hereby approved and confirmed. The period of usefulness of the Project has been estimated by said engineers to be not less than ten (10) years, which estimate is hereby approved and confirmed.

Section 4. To pay the aforesaid cost it is hereby determined that there be borrowed upon the credit of the Net Revenues of the Plant the additional sum of Three Million Dollars ($3,000,000), and that revenue bonds (the "1990 Bonds" or the "Bonds") be issued therefor under the provisions of the aforesaid Act 179 and of Act 94, the 1990 Bonds to be of equal standing and priority of lien and equally or Act 94, the 1970 Bonds to be of equal standing and placeured with the 1970 Bonds and the 1986 Bonds.

Section 5. 1990 Bonds are hereby authorized to be issued, to be designated INCINERATOR REVENUE BONDS, SERIES IV, payable solely out of the Net Revenues, as set forth hereafter, consisting of bonds of the denomination of $5,000, or multiples of $5,000 not exceeding for each maturity the aggregate principal amount of that maturity, dated as of September 1, 1990, numbered in order of authentication from 1 upwards, and maturing on July 1st in the years and amounts as follows:

Year	Amount	Year	Amount
1992	$225,000	1997	$350,000
1903	250,000	1998	375,000
1994	275,000	1999	400,000
1995	300,000	2000	500,000
1996	325,000

The Bonds shall bear interest at a rate or rates to be determined on public sale thereof, but in any event not exceeding 10% per annum, payable on January 1st and July 1st of each year, commencing January 1, 1991, to the registered owner of record as of the fifteenth day of the month preceding the interest payment date as shown on the registration books of the Authority maintained by the Transfer Agent, by check or draft drawn on the Transfer Agent and mailed to the registered owner at the registered address. The date of determination of registered owner for purposes of payment of interest as provided in this paragraph may be changed in the future by the Authority to conform to market practice. The principal of the Bonds shall be payable at NBD Bank, N.A., Detroit, Michigan, which is hereby designated by the Authority as Transfer Agent for this issue.

The Bonds shall be sold at not less than 98% of their par value.

Section 6. The Bonds shall be executed in the name of the Authority with the facsimile signatures of the Chairman and the Secretary and shall have a facsimile of the Authority seal printed thereon. No Bond shall be valid until authenticated by an authorized representative of the Transfer Agent. The Bonds shall be delivered to the Transfer Agent for authentication, and upon authentication the Bonds shall be delivered by the Transfer Agent either (i) to the Treasurer for delivery to the purchaser, or (ii) to the purchaser in accordance with the instructions of the Treasurer. The Bonds shall be delivered to the purchaser upon payment of the purchase price for the Bonds in accordance with the bid therefor when accepted. Executed blank bonds for registration and issuance to transferces shall simultaneously, and from time to time thereafter as necessary, be delivered to the Transfer Agent for safekeeping.

Section 7. Any Bond may be transferred upon the books required to be kept pursuant to this Ordinance by the person in whose name it is registered, in person or by his duly authorized attorney, upon surrender of such Bond for cancellation, accompanied by delivery of a duly executed written instrument of transfer in a form approved by the Transfer Agent. Whenever any Bond shall be surrendered for transfer, the Authority shall execute and the Transfer Agent shall authenticate and deliver a new Bond in the same principal amount, of the same maturity and bearing the same rate of interest. The Transfer Agent shall require payment by the bondholder requesting the transfer of any tax or other governmental charge required to be paid with respect to the transfer.

The Transfer Agent shall keep or cause to be kept, at its principal office, sufficient books for the registration and transfer of the Bonds, which shall at all times be open to inspection by the Authority, and, upon presentation for such purpose, the Transfer Agent shall, under such reasonable regulations as it may prescribe, transfer or cause to be transferred, on said books, Bonds as hereinbe-

If any Bond shall become mutilated, the Authority, at the expense of the holder of such Bond, shall execute, and the Transfer Agent shall authenticate and deliver, a new Bond of like tenor in exchange and substitution for the mutilated Bond, upon surrender to the Transfer Agent of the mutilated Bond. If any Bond issued under this Ordinance shall be lost, destroyed or stolen, evidence of the loss, destruction or thest may be submitted to the Transfer Agent and, if this evidence is satisfactory to both and indemnity satisfactory to the Transfer Agent shall be given, the Authority, at the expense of the owner, shall execute, and the Transfer Agent shall thereupon authenticate and deliver, a new Bond of like tenor and bearing the statement required by Act 354, Public Acts of Michigan, 1972, as amended, being sections 129.131 to 129.135, inclusive, of the Michigan Compiled Laws, or any applicable law hereaster enacted, in lieu of and in substitution for the Bond so lost, destroyed or stolen. If any such Bond shall have matured or shall be about to mature, instead of issuing a substitute Bond the Transfer Agent may pay the same without surrender thereof.

Section 8. The Bonds and the interest thereon shall be payable solely from the Net Revenues of the Plant, which Net Revenues are hereby pledged for the payment thereof, and to secure such payment, there is hereby continued the statutory lien upon the whole of said Net Revenues created by the 1982 Ordinance and continued by subsequent Ordinances No. 2 and No. 3 of the Authority, to continue until payment in full of the principal of and interest on all of the 1970 Bonds, the 1986 Bonds and the 1990 Bonds payable from the Net Revenues, or until sufficient funds have been deposited in trust for payment in full of the principal of and interest on all of the 1970 Bonds, the 1986 Bonds or the 1990 Bonds then outstanding, either to maturity or to the date fixed for redemption, together with the amount of redemption premiums, if any. Upon deposit of such funds, the statutory lien shall be terminated with respect to that series of bonds, the holders of that series shall have no further rights under this Ordinance except for payment from the deposited funds, and the bonds of that series shall no longer be considered to be outstanding under this Ordinance.

Section 9. The rates charged for the use of the Plant, billing and enforcement of collection thereof, and the general management of the Plant shall be the same as are presently employed.

Section 10. Money in the several funds of the Authority, except money in the Bond and Interest Redemption Fund and money derived from the proceeds of sale of the Bonds, may be kept in one bank account. In that case the money in the single bank account shall be allocated on the books and records of the Authority to the funds in the manner provided in Ordinance No. 1. Money in the several funds of the Authority may be invested in United States government obligations, obligations the principal and interest on which is fully guaranteed by the United States, or certificates of deposit of a bank, or otherwise as provided by law. Investment of money in the Bond and Interest Redemption Fund being accumulated for payment of the next maturing principal or interest on the Bonds shall be limited to United States government obligations bearing maturity dates before the date of the next maturing principal or interest. The security representing the investment shall be kept on deposit with the bank or trust company having the deposit of the funds from which the purchase was made. Investment earnings of the Authority shall be considered to be Revenues of the Plant.

Section 11. Except as otherwise provided in this Ordinance, all provisions and covenants of the 1962 Ordinance and Subsequent Ordinances No. 2 and No. 3 of the Authority shall apply to the 1990 Bonds the same as though each of said provisions and covenants was repeated in this Ordinance in detail, the purpose of this Ordinance being to authorize the issuance of additional revenue bonds of equal standing with outstanding 1970 Bonds and 1986 Bonds to pay the cost of acquiring and constructing improvements to the Plant, bonds for such purpose being authorized by the provisions of Section 19(d) of the 1962 Ordinance, as added by Ordinance No. 2, upon compliance with the conditions precedent to their issue as therein specified.

Section 12. The proceeds of sale of the Bonds shall be deposited in NBD Bank, N.A., of Detroit, Michigan, a bank insured with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. Any premium or accrued interest paid by the purchaser of the Bonds shall be transferred to the Bond and Interest Redemption Fund. The balance of the proceeds of sale shall be used only to pay costs of the Project. Any unexpended balance of the proceeds of sale, after completion of the Project, may be used for further additions, extensions and improvements to the Plant, provided that at the time of such expenditure the approval of the Michigan Department of Treasury to such use be obtained. Any balance remaining after such expenditure, or in the event of no such expenditure the entire unexpended balance, shall be paid into the Bond and Interest Redemption Fund and shall be used for the payment of interest on and principal of the Bonds.

used for the payment of interest on and principal of the Bonds.

Section 13. The Bonds shall be in substantialy the following term:

Vote keeps Amtrak rolling

Here's how Observer & Eccentric area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending June 8.

HOUSE

AMTRAK VETO By a vote of 294 for and 123 against, the House achieved the two-thirds majority required to override President George Bush's veto of a bill (HR 2364) giving Amtrak the federal subsidy it needs to stay in business. The Senate also must reject the veto if the bill is to prevail. A Sen- sal in that "trade and economic ate vote was upcoming.

The bill authorized an annual average subsidy of $684 million through fiscal 1992, and tightened ICC review of railroad takeovers by non-railroad companies. Taxpayers last year covered about 30 percent of the rail passenger agency's budget. Though Bush has long opposed the federal payment, he based his veto on the ICC provision.

Override supporter Edward Madigan, R-Ill., said "the taxpayers ought to be allowed to put a little money into a rail transportation system," considering how much federal money subsidizes air trav-

Veto supporter Dana Rohrabacher, R-Calif., said passengers in areas unprofitable to Amtrak "should take the bus rather than look to the rest of America to subsidize their ride."

A yes vote was to fund Amtrak. Michigan voting yes: Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin, D-

Southfield. Michigan voting no: William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

TO EASE EXPORT CONTROLS By a vote of 312 for and 86 against, the House sent to the Senate a bill (HR4653) making it easier for American companies to get U.S. government clearance to sell certain computers, telecommunications systems and other high technology to countries in Eastern Europe and the Societ Union.

Poland, Czechoslovakia and Hungary would be major beneficiaries of this bill to relax Cold War-era restraints on exports. The bill eases controls based on national security and does not deal with those based on foreign policy.

Roll Call Report

Supporter Toby Roth, R.Wis., said "maintaining superpower status in the 1990's means being able to compete economically" for new markets with forces such as Japan and a reunified Germany.

Opponent William Dickinson, R-Ala., said the bill is a policy reverconsiderations, not national securi-'ty, will drive our export controls" on sensitive technology.

A yes vote supported the bill. Michigan voting yes: Hertel, D-Harper Woods and Levin, D-South-

Michigan voting no: Pursell, D-Plymouth, Ford, D-Taylor, and Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS EX-PORTS By a vote of 348 for and 45 against, the House broadened the range of telecommunications products that can be sold under a bill to liberalize the Export Act of 1949 (above). The amendment enables American manufacturers to sell entire systems including service, latitude they say they need to compete with Germany and Japan for customers in emerging democra-

Sponsor Ron Wyden, D-Ore., said "communications is exactly the area we should be moving into. That is how you promote democra-

Opponent Duncan Hunter, R-Calif., said amendment supporters "are determined to drive a Mack truck" through the newly-loosened export rules.

A yes vote was to broaden the export of telecommunications products to certain countries now shedding communist rule.

Voting yes: Pursell, D-Plymouth, Hertel, D-Harper Woods, Levin, D-Southfield, and Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

SENATE

CRIME BILL DEBATE By a vote of 57 for and 37 against, the Senate fell short of the 60 votes needed to limit debate on a massive anti-crime bill that had been on the floor since May 21.

This failure to invoke cloture threatened the bill. It was attributed mainly to lobbying by the National Rifle Association, which opposes a provision outlawing certain semi-automatic assault weapons. But a few votes against ending debate were from liberals concerned that the bill world expand the federal death penalty. Senate leaders were trying to salvage the bill.

Nothing that most votes against cloture were cast by Republicans, Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Main., said "let there be no mistake or misunderstanding as to where the cause lies for no crime

Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kans., said a crime bill "is within their grasp" if Democrats show more flexibility on acception amendments.

A yes vote was to move to final passage of the crime bill.

Voting yes: Carl Levin, D-Southfield and Donald Riegle.

AIDS AND FOOD HANDLING By a vote of 40 for and 53 against, the Senate failed to table language aimed keeping AIDS-infected persons out of food-handling position.

The vote endorsed a Housepassed proposal making it legal for employers to transfer workers infected with a communicable disease from food-handling jobs at no loss of pay. It instructed Senate conferees on disability rights legislation (HG 2273) to accept the House proposal.

David Durenberger, R-Minn., said the House provision runs contrary to "all medical knowledge about the spread of AIDS.'

William Armstrong, R-Colo., said "people who have communicable diseases should not be working at the salad bar.

A yes vote opposed the House position on food handling by those with communicable diseases.

Voting yes: Carl Levin, D-Southfield and Donald Riegle.

Plan to ease jail overcrowding gets mixed reviews

By Darrell Pressley staff writer

Legislation passed earlier this year by the state House to help alleviate prison crowding has received mixed reviews from local officials.

The four bills supported by Gov. James Blanchard would allow the state to reimburse building costs to local or county governments that construct minimum security additions to Jalls, security camps and community corrections centers.

The countles that accommodate prisoners who would go to state prison, would be reimbursed for the cost of housing those prisoners.

THE COST, which varies among counties, would be determined annually based on a method set up by the Department of Corrections.

"There's always been support of the concept by Partners Against Crime (PAC)," said Judge Gail McKnight of 18th District court in Westland.

McKnight, who is a member of PAC, said most of the people she sentences go up north where the prisoners can be accommodated.

"They all go north, because there is no space," said McKnight. Because of the lack of beds locally for minimum security risk and short term prisoners, the northern communities see this as almost a business, the judge said.

"A lot of the out-state counties have become entrepeneurs," said McKnight.

About one-fourth of the people who have sentences of less than two years in jail, are not the people who were thought to need the beds. McKnight said.

"They are not the worst people in the world. They aren't the crimi-

IT WOULD be good to have local beds for minor offenders to give them a "taste of fail," said the Westland judge.

'I think it's a waste of time . . . All of this should have been done a long time ago. Everything is running along smoothly.'

> — Judge Robert Brzezinski 16th District Court

In 1987, 45.6 percent of the new admissions to the state prison system were sentenced to two years or less. They made up 49 percent in 1988, and 53.6 percent through July 1988, according to an Associated Press report.

Not all judges feel there is a need for new legislation.

"I think it's a waste of time," said Judge Robert Brzezinski of the 16th

District court in Livonia. Brzezinski said area communities send their prisoners to other facilities and there are work programs available.

"Three to five years ago, when jail problems first came into being, the state shrugged their shoulders," Brzezinski said, adding that many of the communities have solved their problems locally.

"All of this should have been done a long time ago. Everything is running along smoothly," Brzezinski

The $11.3 million package would permit courts to sentence offenders to up to 24 months in a local jail or could not serve longer than 12 security camp. To date, any convict sentenced to more than a year has to serve the time in a state prison.

A county commission would have to vote in order to participate in a state-local partnership.

The Livonia judge said he doesn't know where the funding for this project will come from.

"How they're going to fund this, I have no idea," said Brzezinski.

Dale Davis, executive director of the Michigan Sheriffs Association, said he opposed a change in the bill allowing an inmate sentenced to up to two years to serve all the time in

The bill originally states that inmates could not serve longer than 12 months in a jail. The rest of the sentence would be served in an alternative security camp.

"That's almost double the capacity in jails that are overcrowded now." Davis said.

We need it because 90 percent of the prisoners at the local level are housed in fail for above minimum security classification, even though in less than 10 percent require more than a minimum security incarceration," said Rep. Greg Pitoniak, D-

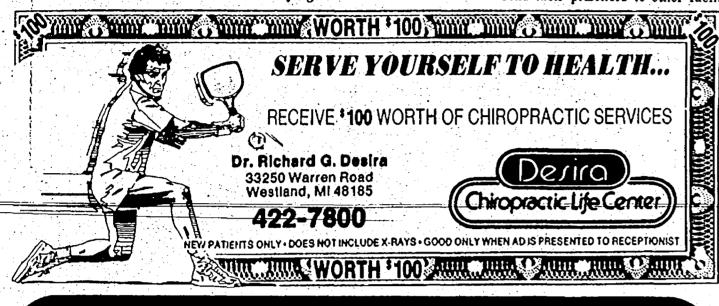

"The judge could sentence the same person to a state prison," said Pitoniak sponsor of the bills. "The ..., discretion remains with the judge."

Wayne County Sheriff William Ficano, who hasn't reviewed the legislation completely, believes it will at help the jail overcrowding situation ...

"There's so much overcrowding, you need every tool in your arsenal," Ficano sald.

"I'm hoping this will eventually give us more space," said Ficano.

"This is something for the future." ...

New state aid fight emerges

By Tim Richard staff writer

Not a shot is being fired in the biggest state school aid battle in years in Lansing.

The issue is whether the state will stop making $600 million in payments for Social Security, pensions and other "categorical" aids to wellneeled districts which get not general state old.

"The House is being tough, and the Senate's being tough," said lobbyist Jerry Dunn, who represents many su out-of-formula districts in the western Wayne County suburbs.

THE ISSUE is before a so-called conference committee - three senators and three representatives whose job is to work out a settlement.

"We're in a stalemate. Everybody is digging in," said Rep. William Reith, D-Garden City, a member of the conference panel.

Keith was sponsor of the House version which seeks to reduce categoricals and use the money in the general state aid formula.

Gilmer, R-Augusta; and Sens. Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron, William Sederburg, R-East Lansing, and Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills.

REP. MAXINE Berman, D-Southfield, represents an out-of-formula district and formerly taught in another, Oak Park.

have out-of-formula school districts in their legislative districts," said Berman. "A few have all out-of-formula districts," she said, pointing to the Observer & Eccentric suburbs.

House for the problems of out-of-formula districts.

"But the majority of senators have at least one out-of-formula district; they have a more balanced perspective," she said.

If they lose categorical aid, out-offormula districts either must dip into working capital to balance their budgets or seek property tax increases from voters.

committee on the state aid measure, Senate Bill 830, have been called. That could change at any moment, because the chair can call one at a moment's notice.

The stalemate over school aid is having an impact on another conference committee handling Senate Bill 827, public employees school retirement. That panel is chaired by Sen.

Doug Cruce, R-Troy. "When you add the two bills to-school finance expert, and Don gether," said Cruce, "there's a $44 million shortfall. It can come out of their bill (830) or this one," he said after a 40-minute meeting Tuesday.

> GOV. JAMES J. Blanchard has joined Keith's team opposing categorical aids to out-of-formula districts, which generally have large property tax bases.

'Given the resources," a budget "Only one-third of House members staffer told lawmakers, "we felt the most responsible use of the money ws to put as much as possible in the school aid formula."

The budget aide said the $44 million shortfall was due to school dis-"So there's not much feeling in the tricts' hiring many new service personnel in recent years.

> The out-of-formula districts are waging a battle to keep their categorical aids, but some lawmakers concede privately the end of the road

> Keith says only 70 percent of school districts currently receive general state aid.

"If we took every dollar on the state level that we have available for K-12 schools and put it in the for-NO MEETINGS of the conference mula," he said at a recent rally on the Capitol steps, "we would equalize close to 90 percent of the children in this state and bring 80 districts tht are out of formula back into formula."

CRUCE, MEANWHILE, has another budget battle on his hands over the so-called "regulatory" budget.

It covers the departments of Commerce, Labor and Licensing & Regulation, and it includes one of the governor's pet projects - the Youth Corps.

The Democratic-controlled House version gives Blanchard $24 million. The Republican Senate version whacked it to $7 million. The underlying GOP complaint is that the recession-born program doesn'tneed to be the largest in the country, and that Blanchard uses too much Commerce money for political promo-

Cruce said he almost had a deal Tuesday morning with Rep. Morris Hood, D-Detroit, chair of the conference panel on the regulatory bill. "I told him I'd compromise at $18 million," Cruce said. "He agreed, then came later and said he couldn't agree. The wheels came off the cart."

Hood called a sudden meeting of the conference committe at 1 p.m. Tuesday, precisely the same time Cruce was holding a previously scheduled meeting on the pension bill. Hood said he would keep calling meetings twice a day until the matter is settled.

"I've got other meetings." Cruce said. "This is a lousy use of my time."

THE SENATE isn't meeting at all this week, and the House is holding only brief morning sessions, as the conference process moves on.

Overall, the state general fund budget will be about $7.3 billion, with $3 billion going to schools.

The new fiscal year starts Oct. 1.

OU increases summer tuition

If summer school tuition is going for the 1990-91 budget. up, can fall tuition increases Le far behind?

Oakland University is raising summer tuition about 6.5 percent, in anticipation of less state aid this

The OU Board of Trustees last week authorized a $4.75 per credit hour increase for freshmen and sophomores and a $4.25 per credit hour hike for juniors and seniors. Graduate students will pay $9.25 per credit hour more.

Raising summer tuition was a bitter pill for QU officials, but one that was "absolutely necessary, if we are to continue providing quality education," said Jim Llewellyn, OU spokesman.

"Nobody wants to raise tuition," he said. "But you can only cut so far before quality starts to suffer."

Ken Morris, the only trustee to vote against the increase, called warned that OU is close to putting the price of an education beyond the means of many students.

Llewellyn said the tuition hike is necessary if, as expected, the State OU - to again be "pleasantly of Michigan cuts its appropriation surprised" at the cost.

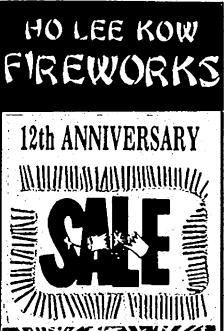

Gov. Blanchard has recommend. ed a 5 percent increase over the $37 million in state aid it received in 1989-90. But OU officials are concerned it will be cut when the appropriations are announced later this summer.

OU is in the middle of summer registration. Thus, the total number of students affected is not

Last year, however, 3,398 students enrolled in summer classes, according to Anne Sandoval, assoclate director of admissions.

UNDER THE NEW rates, freshmen and sophomores taking three hours — the equivalent of one course — will pay $197.25 this summer, instead of $183; juniors and seniors will pay $225, instead of $209.25 and graduate students will pay $363.75, instead of $336.

While the recently approved tuithe tuition hike "indecent." He tion hike will be noticed, Sandoval said she expects most students particularly "guests," or students attending other schools during the year who take summer classes at the New Levisities documents record the radical servant-like and upon term power and credibility to Jesus' teachings. He has truly led humanity in the expression of compassion and humility, as well as in anger against evit and hypocrisy. Jesus combined a realistic understanding of human nature with an idealism for what human beings could become. His words have tested and challenged the minds and hearts of millions for centuries. and character and mands and mands for confidence.

Of course, this is not the whole story. When we begin to consider Jesus' claims about his identity, the controversy begins. This is where people (including the world's religious leaders) have problems. This is where the label "moral teacher" is put to the test. It begins to seem inadequate,

A thirty year old pessant carpenter turned itinerant teacher, Jesus Isid claim both by word and action to be more than a mere man. He operated on the assumption that he was God himself.

How do we know this? From his explicit statements and the very way he lived. His self-disclosures are interwoven in the very fabric of the New Testament. He claimed equality with God.

He said he had fived before Abraham. He assumed the right to lorgive ains. He accepted worship. There seems to be no secaping it. Jesus of Hazareth could not be simply a harmless moral teacher. He cuts too deep and steps out too far from the crowd of moral teachers and philosophers. We can call him a flar. We might even discuss his mental imbelance. But the tag of "only a great moral teacher" doesn't stick. It was never an option in his own day. Some of his contemporaries thought him mad, others loved him. He was regarded with disdein and sometimes even hatred, or alternately with amazement and adoration. But he never received mild approval.

Neither is it an option for today. We have to shut him up or hear him out. What are we to make this man? What of his moral integrity? His fulfillment of centuries of aspirations? His prediction deeth and resurrection? What are we to make of his claims to be the one and only God-man of history? What are we to do with this great moral teacher who makes such impossible claims?

Bill outlines plan to insure adopted children

By Tim Richard staff writer

Adopted children could be covered by health insurance the day they enter their new homes under a bill in a state Senate committee.

"Basically, if you adopt a child in Michigan, you can't get health insurance for a year," said Rep. Maxine. Berman, D-Southfield, sponsor of the corrective House-passed measures. "That's a hindrance to adopting

The situation puts parents in the difficult position of telling adopted children whom they are treating as a member of their familles, "You can't go to our doctor; you have to go to another doctor," she said.

Marengere said there are about 2,000 adoptions a year in Michigan (of 100,00 live births).

It's possible, said Marengere, for a young woman living with her parents to keep the child and have it

THE BILLS would apply to insurers but not to companies like General Motors which self-insure, he said.

Berman said the HMOs and the Blues had no problem agreeing to the bills, but independent insurers objected. "They believe the bills are harmful, but they made no case," she said.

The bills are in the Senate Commerce Committee where independent insurers are continuing to object.

Hollen is perhaps typical of American House residents.

Active and alert, she recently celebrated her 90th birthday with an only son who is retired from the automotive industry, two grandchildren who are in their 40s and a pair of great-grandchildren.

Like the majority of American House residents, Holien's family lives near enough to maintain ongoing contact. But now that the great-grandchildren are grown, there are no youngsters in the fami-

Control of the Contro

Problem solving

Residents' issues to be met

■ 00 many times, developers come before dalism, and discarded trash. city officials, promising a palace, bundles of property taxes, and oodles of

But what they leave behind is the franchise owner or property manager who has to deal with the problems the development creates for neighboring residents.

That's why it's refreshing to see a company like McDonald's Restaurants promising to listen to the problems cited by area homeowners and city officials who have to live with the decisions rezoning and site plan decisions for years after the developer leaves town.

. We hope the same consideration is shown by developers of the proposed senior citizens' network of buildings planned for the north side of Marquette between Wayne Road and Carlson:

The McDonald's development on the south side of Joy, east of Merriman, is a good example of the city council and planning commission working together to make sure residents are heard and problems are solved.

The restaurant site plan was endorsed by the commission last week and approved by the council Monday night.

The seniors' campus development has been several years in the making but was delayed again for another three months because of a snag in the property title search.

THE MCDONALD'S development shows that a company can show sensitivity to the needs of homeowners who live nearby and have to put up with the discarded bags and food containers on their front lawns.

The company realizes that it has a responsibility to those who live near their businesses and that their responsibilities don't end with their property lines.

At the planning commission meeting last week, homeowners on both sides of Joy said they were worried about noise, traffic problems, van-

Hearing the residents' problems, McDonald's agreed to increase the height of a wall on the south end of its property and add a gate so area residents have access to the restaurant.

Actually, McDonald's has had a long history of being more community minded that its competi-

EVEN THE proposed hours are adjustable,

Normally, the restaurant has hours of 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. weekdays and closing at midnight on Fridays and Saturdays.

But if the hours are a nuisance to neighbors. the company and those residents can talk about it and make changes, said a McDonald's representative at last week's planning commission

The McDonald's proposal is the latest of three plans for the Joy-Merriman property and provides a welcome relief for area residents.

With a 7-Eleven store already built next to the planned McDonald's, homeowners have a good reason to fear the noise and trash problems.

ON THE same level, we hope that the developers of the seniors' complex will demonstrate the same sensitivity to area residents.

The developers, hoping to complete the purchase of 50-acres from the city, must realize that their network of buildings represents a major change in that area of the city.

There will be more traffic and additional highrise structures, drastically changing the character of that area.

While there are relatively few single-family homeowners in the immediate area of the seniors' complex compared to the Joy-Merriman area, city officials and developers must realize that their actions have a lifetime impact on the land in that neighborhood after those officials and developers are long gone.

Trend of intolerance dangerous

FEW WEEKS ago the recording industry announced, with little fanfare, the creation of a uniform label that will be used to warn parents of "explicit lyrics" on Little outcry accompanied the announcement, probably in part because the decision to use the labels is, on its face, a voluntary one.

But it should be protested in the strongest terms possible.

First, there is little that is voluntary about the industry's adoption of the labels. Record companies have been pressured strongly for at least two years by groups such as the Parents Music Resource Center (of Tipper Gore fame) to censor lyrics that these groups find offensive. And with 21 state legislatures considering bills to require record labeling, it's clear the industry's action was meant to pre-empt outside meddling.

THIS ATTACK on song lyrics, which has occurred nationwide, goes hand-in-hand with efforts by other groups, local ones among them, to stamp out thoughts and ideas they don't like. In Plymouth a Christian group called Citizens for Better Education has decided it will purge the schools of books that convey "satanic" ideas. A crusade against a high school play recently hit

There seems to be a mood of intolerance out there that tells some people they do good when they impose their values on others. Nothing could be further from the truth, however, and our Founding Fathers knew that so very well. Tampering with other people's rights to read, write, say or hear what they please is an affront to our nation's most fundamental principles.

The arrest in Florida June 10 of members of the 2-Live Crew rap group that performed songs a federal judge has ruled are obscene shows just where this intolerance can lead. The image on the evening news of two young men being led into a police, van, not for what they did but for what they said, was a sad commentary on the current mood of America. This country was meant to be bigger than that. Even "voluntary" actions such as the labels the record industry has adopted are more than a symbolic affront to our freedoms. The ratings given to movies, after all, are voluntary, but just try releasing a movie without first submitting it for a rating. Very few theaters will touch it, and the diminished exposure means diminished profits. Moviemakers, in effect, are punished monetarily for not "voluntarily" submitting their work to be rated. If the moviemaker makes a film that his audience believes is credible as an artistic work but the raters believes deserves an X, he's in trouble. Only pornographic theaters will show it. If he wants his audience to see his film, he has to make it conform to the prescribed tastes.

There seems to be a mood of intolerance out there that tells some people they do good when they impose their values on others. Nothing could be further from the truth.

THIS HAPPENED to two very worthwhile films, "The Cook, the Thief, his Wife and her Lover," and "Tie Me Up, Tie Me Down," which showed recently at the Maple Theatre in Birmingham. Although they are well-made thoughtful movies, and hardly pornographic, each faced an X rating. The film makers were forced to release them without ratings, and to a necessarily smaller audience.

Lucky for us we have the Maple. Others aren't so lucky.

How long will it be before record stores give in to more pressure and promise to restrict the sale of records that bear warning labels? Or quit selling them altogether? When that happens, the labels won't seem so "voluntary."

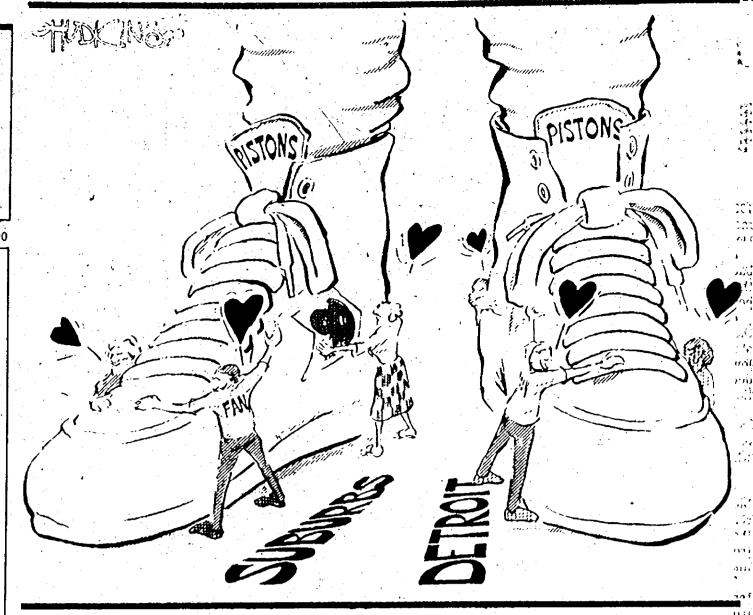

And just what makes a lyric explicit? Whose values will determine when a child's parents need to be warned? The censors' values may not be our values, and ours may not be theirs. The reason freedom of expression is so important is that what one person considers obscene, another may consider very valuable.

A point that is seldom raised in the debate over song lyrics is that the range of ideas and emotions explored and expressed in recorded music, in the past 10 years at least, has grown complex. It could be argued quite credibly that makers of recorded music today are dealing with issues every bit as imporant, and probably more divergent, as those that are dealt with in many respected newspapers and magazines (which, we concede, in many cases is a sad commentary on the state of the press).

If a sexually explicit lyric warrants warning parents, will politically explicit lyrics be far behind? Will musicians who advocate socialism or anarchy, or other ideologies outside the mainstream, be labeled?

IF PARENTS are doing their jobs, children will withstand exposure to even the most obnoxious ideas. But if children don't receive sound moral instruction at home by their parents, all the warning labels in the world won't provide it for them.

The warning labels and the trend of intolerance that inspired them are two bad ideas. Let's hope neither takes hold.

Don't look to Washington for solutions to problems

A SMALL dinner party. Candles sparkled off wine glasses. Dessert had just been served.

"The country's stuck in the mud. We need some leadership, some vision, an agenda. I just hope the president and Congress can come up with it," said a senior business executive whose company employs tens of thousands.

Heads nodded gravely. Conventional wisdom. Rubbish, 1 thought.

To think the solution to our nation's problems will come out of Washington is both naive and ma-

Naive because Washington, whether ruled by Republicans or Democrats, is concerned solely with what goes on in Washington, not the rest of the country. Visit DC. People ask, "What's going on out there in the real world?"

Masochistic because Washington, whether run by libérals or conservatives, is at bottom nothing more than a vast monument to enduring bureaucracies. The vast changes sweeping our economics and government mean an end to the central role of bureaucracies.

HISTORICALLY, bureaucracies evolved to coordinate and control many individual transactions - Social Security claims, tax payments, property tax payments to the bank, ordering a car at the dealer, children's report cards from school.

But today, when the personal computer, phone modem and voice mail are becoming common, the need for bureaucracies - ravenous, centralized, inflexible - is fast disappear-

The vast changes sweeping our economics and government mean an end to the central role of bureaucracies.

While Washington remains captive to its bureaucracies, the real action is in the real world. Examples:

• In Minnesota, a new law lets parents choose their child's school anywhere in the state, eliminating residence requirements and forcing schools to compete.

 Near Miami. ment in "school-basing autonomy" lets 32 schools be managed by teachers and parents, not central school bureaucrats. A similar test is under way in Rochester, N.Y.

• Michigan's State Board of Education is developing a core curriculum - setting out what kids should learn in our schools. But the plan is that school districts will be free to choose how to achieve the defined educational outcomes. (Indeed, Gov. James Blanchard recently called for abolition of the State Board of Education, in part on the ground it is excessively centralized and bureau-_cratic and unresponsive_to-parents== and teachers.)

• In New York, a company called America Works is paid $5,000 by the state for each welfare recipient placed in a job (average salary: $14,000), but only after the employee has stayed seven months. Taxpayers win: The fee is less than half the $12,000 per year to keep a family of Philip three on welfare. Everywhere, experiments in decentralizing are cropping up.

I THINK this issue will come to !! the fore in politics, too. The start is that the workings of government - especially the federald al - have become less and less effica? cient. Next came the Republican charge that Democrats were apologists for taxing and spending, regardless of results.

Michiganians from both parties are working on new models of how governments might work. Communication ty self-help groups, funded by diversion of local property taxes and managed by networks of personal computers, are being designed.

Certificates of minimum skill attainment are being talked about as a precondition of jobs for youth. Not far off is a rule requiring that those who collect unemployment checks also be enrolled in training pro-

'No knock' missed point

To the editor:

I just read your editorial in the May 24 issue. I think your editorial writer missed the point when he or she wrote about the proposed "No Knock" legislation allowing police to execute search warrants without the courtesy of knocking on the front door of a suspected dope house.

You seem to be suggesting that the purpose of this statute is to fight the "drug war" and confiscate drugs while arresting drug dealers.

I think that even a casual observation of this proposed bill would show that the purpose is to protect the lives of the police officers when they enter these drug houses. It is common knowledge that, where you find drugs and drug sellers, you also find firearms (often semi-automatic or automatic weapons) and you also find people who do not want to be arrested and are more than willing to use these weapons to shoot the police and escape arrest.

Perhaps your editor would like to go along as the point person on a search warrant team. He or she could stand in front of the door and knock, announcing the purpose of the visit and wait for the homeowner to open the door and invite entry. A few times doing this and your future editorials might take a different opinion on "No Knock" legislation.

Liked Emons' soccer column

To the editor:

Just a few lines to tell you how much I enjoyed the article "No Mas!" by Brad Emons.

I've had occasion to watch some of the "professionals to be," soccer players in action and although I find no fault with the players, it's difficult to believe the spectators can be so ruthless. I have to believe the majority of the spectators are parents of the young people on the field and this makes it even worse. If it were possible for them to stand outside themselves during a game, I'm sure many would be shocked to listen to the garbage that comes out of their mouths.

I'm curious as to why they think soccer is so special anyway. Is it because they've finally found a sport which doesn't require the courage that football, baseball, hockey, and al. basketball takes?

Brad Emons is certainly going to get some hate letters from the parent/spectators who have found one more person to lash out at. Their hands will probably shake from anger as they write their nasty notes. But then again what else can we ex people who are on the sidelines dur ing the games.

Congratulations, Brad Emons for & a story well written. You have many people like me who are in your cor;

Although I've lived in Southfield for more than 25 years, I still consider Detroit the mother city from where we migrated.

HOW CAN we ignore our roots? Motown is still our town, although some leaders believe in cutting off the umbilical cord and leaving Detroit and its problems to whom it. may concern.

That brief, shining moment of victory faded as quickly as it came. Detroit once more attracted national media attention.

Yes, Detroit was on the top of the mountain in the NBA. But once more, the headlines screamed of violence and death even as the city celebrated the Pistons phenomenon. I talked to my friend George Maskin, who was public relations man for the Pistons in the early days, when they weren't a winning team.

"It wasn't the fans who caused all the disturbances," George said. "It was a few hoodlums looking for an excuse to act out. The celebration turned into scattered explosions of violence."

ANOTHER FRIEND said, "What happened almost makes you afraid that a Detroit team is going to win. It sure put a damper on an exciting

It's ironic that the trigger for all the mayhem was a positive happening rather than a negative one. It makes no sense.

Thousands of people in Detroit and other communities partied after that last, nail-biting game. That night, we were all Detroiters at heart, the invisible line between us swept away in a moment of glory.

What a shame that once again the mother city got bad publicity, and that many suburbanites are saying, "We told you so. Detroit is a lost

And once again, we are turning our backs on Detroit's problems. Suburban leaders don't want to be painted with the same brush. It's all about "image." The suburbs have an image to defend and Detroit has an image to live down.

MEDIA COVERAGE of Detroit's problems has been condemned as negative sensationalism. New Detroit Inc. has asked for a moratorium on stories about the negative as-

A PSYCHOLOGIST who spoke in Southfield about drug abuse said the same thing about Detroit youths who use and sell dope to make them feel powerful among the haves rather than the have-nots.

I don't know if all these explanations for lawlessness are valid or if they're excuses to take some of the onus off of the celebration that turned into tragedy.

I only know that the spirit of Deoit, its very heart, is sorely damaged. And those of us in the suburbs will have another reason not to go downtown.

Once again, Detroit has lost respect - respect for itself and the respect of others. The city evidently has failed to deal with its own prob-

Family ties span distance in divorce

By Janice Brunson staff writer

Since one year of age, Angela Crooks, now 17, has boarded a commercial jet three times a year and traveled from New Hampshire to Michigan for holiday and summer vacations with her father, David Crooks of Livonia.

Aside from weekly phone calls, the visits are their only contact, a father-daughter relationship forged by miles of separation when Angela's mother moved her to New Hampshire shortly after a divorce 16

"It's the only fathering I've ever had; I've had no control or involvement in her life other than when she was here," Crooks said of his only child.

The visits have meant personal sacrifice for Crooks, something his daughter may never realize. In 16 years, he has never made vacation plans of his own. They always center on Angela's visits.

Air fare and other costs have been enormous, especially in the beginning when she was too young to fly alone and Crooks had to both collect and return her to New Hampshire.

"It left me no personal time, but I accepted that, and in my opinion, I'm luckier than most," he said. Throughout the years, his support payments have remained low, allowing him to more easily assume huge travel expenses.

In spite of the effort and expense, Crooks said he has made no lasting impression in his daughter's life.

"I'VE HAD NO INFLUENCE, other than maybe in personality or something like that," he said. "There just has not been enough time spent with her."

More frustrating, now that Angela is afteen, she is increasingly reluctant to leave friends, a social life and summer employment in New Hampshire for dutiful visits with a father she knows only slightly.

Based on an 11-year study of disrupted families, done by the University of Pennsylvania, the problem of maintaining contact with an absent father affects millions of children. (Mothers are absent less than 10 percent of the time.) And the problem of on-going paternal contact is compounded when fathers no longer live nearby.

In Crooks' case, his ex-wife decided to move away. Had he legally protested the move under Michigan court rules of 1963, the relationship with his daughter might be decidedly different today. Children of divorce may not be moved out-of-state without judicial permission.

Crooks consented to the move at the advice of legal counsel.

Such advice is not uncommon, according to Birmingham attorney Richard Victor who specializes in family law. Too often, Victor said, attorneys involved in divorce action are poorly informed about domicile rules and once invoked, it is nearly impossible to repeal a ruling once a paternal relationship will be irrevocably impaired" by such a move. The child now lives one week in three with his father.

"Divorce is volatile; there are no courses on how to behave," Victor said. To assist in making sound decisions in issues of importance, like residency, Victor co-founded SMILE, a new support group for families in the process of divorce.

During a decade of visits to his father in Virginia, Indiana, Missouri and Texas, Eric Reynolds of Birmingham recalls a single trip, the time his father had remarried. Reynolds' parents divorced when he was 6 years old and his father moved away shortly after.

"I don't remember my feelings but suddenly, I had a second mother," said Reynolds, now a 20-year-old senior at the University of Michigan,

Visits to his father continued until age 16, when Reynolds decided to "even things out" between his natural parents and live with his father. The arrangement lasted one year. The two have had only occasional contact since.

IN RECALLING the many trips back and forth, Reynolds said it was emotionally draining, years of anxiety and apprehension over impending visits, sadness at leaving either parent and overall, "pretty difficult. I basically felt torn apart."

During the earlier years, "I didn't exactly know what was going on." In later years, his father, short on cash and wanting to see the boy, asked Reynolds to help with the cost of air

"It was very uncomfortable," Reynolds said.

Still, Reynolds is luckler than many. Based on the University of 30 percent.

"It's a real nice Father's Day gift for me," said a West Bloomfield businessman, anticipating the arrival of two sons from California the following day.

Divorced five years ago, his wife was awarded custody of the boys, now 12 and 15 years old. The following year, she requested judicial approval for a move west with her boyfriend.

The businessman, who asked his name not be used since "the boys have friends and family here," agreed, stipulating certain condi-friend by a certain date or return to Michigan, a requirement she accepted and met.

Now facing an age when his 15year-old might well be reluctant to leave friends and activities in California, the boy "is really charged up about coming home for the summer," according to his father.

During his last visit at Easter, he obtained the promise of summer employment, his first job ever.

"At this age, he needs to spend more time with me," the father said. "There are things he needs to know. Let him mature a little with me."

The relationship contrasts with results of the University of Pennsyvania report

"When the marriage ends," the report noted, "the paternal bond usually withers within a few years, too."

Airlines pamper children

By Janice Brunson staff writer

One commercial airline pilot refers to it as "mailing children." A flight attendant said it signals a change in seasons, from spring to summer and then to fall.

Northwest Airlines has given it a name - WorldKid.

They are children ages 5 through 11 years who travel alone, almost always to visit an absent parent who lives far away. (Children under 5 years must be accompanied.)

Beginning this month through August, the airline will transport some 1,000 youngsters daily, unaccompanied minors who last year accounted for 1 percent of Northwest's Total passenger load. In 1989, 100,000 children traveled alone.

For some, it will be their first solo voyage. Many others are seasoned travelers. At least half will shed tears, both coming and going.

"I've seen it many times, klds getting mailed back and forth between (disrupted) families," said Steve Cramer of Birmingham, a veteran pilot for an airline that services Detroit's Metropolitan Airport. "For a lot of them, it's not a real happy

In both instances, they leave behind a parent, Cramer added.

ELAINE WARREN of Westland, a flight attendant with a major carrier for 13 years, predicts the change in season by the increase in young children traveling alone. June signals summer vacation has arrived.

Warren said she and others who fly for a living attempt to make the journey as pleasant as possible, consoling children who are upset and occasionally providing babysitting chores when family or guardians are late in meeting the flight.

Northwest WorldKid policy caters to the young set. Children traveling alone are seated first, normally placed forward in the cabin. Parents may board and help them settle in. Flight attendants provide individual briefings on flight procedures.

Northwest also implements chainof-custody control. At each point of transfer, from parent to gate agent to flight crew and back again, signatures are required of adults-incharge. The procedure is also available for youngsters 12 years and older at an additional cost of $25.

"I'm never afraid or worry about their safety; the airlines are great," said Toni Masterson of Westland, whose children are experienced fly-

She tunes into cassettes, turns off her fears

By Sue Mason staff writer

At age 33, Lynn is learning to live again. She has overcome her addictions to drugs and alcohol and mastered her panicky feelings. She admits she has to work at it every day, but it's a small price to pay after 14 years of confusion. Lynn, who chose not to give her last name, is like more than 20 million Americans who suffer from agoraphobia (a fear of fears and fear of body symptoms and fearful feelings) and chronic panic attacks. Her story starts 14 years ago, when as a freshman at Michigan State University, she suffered her first panic attack. She was sitting in class when "out of the blue, my heart started racing and I felt I couldn't breathe." "I had this feeling of impending doom come over me." she said. "I felt I needed to run. I was sure I was having a heart attack." She did run that day to her dormitory room, where her friends calmed her down, but couldn't quell her fear that she had a heart condition. She left school the next day and went to see the family doctor. He found nothing wrong medically, but hinted that she may have been "burning the candle at both ends." His treatment was "anti-anxiety pills," a treatment that would be repeated time and time again while she quickly became addicted to tranquilizers. Lynn's attacks didn't subside; they began occurring in non-stressful situations such as driving a car, going to shopping malls and restaurants. Like many agoraphobiacs, she began to distance herself from those things that brought on the attacks.

SHE SAW psychologists, psychiatrist and therapist to try to find out what was wrong. The psychiatrists told her she was having panic attacks, but didn't give her any coping skills, "just medication," she said.

Lynn went so far as to go to a clinic that specialized in agoraphobia and panic attacks. Like the doctors she had seen before, they prescribe pills to help her condi-

The tranquilizers helped at first, but she started to abuse the medication, taking the pills when she would do something that might bring on an attack. Her tolerance for the pills "went way up." She thought she "could take the medication and live a half way normal

When her doctors began restricting her access to the Vallum, she found a substitute — beer. For six years, she used it as a tranquillizer and got to a level where she didn't act drunk but drank enough to control her panic attacks.

"I quit (drinking beer) when I couldn't control it," she said. "I think I had crossed the line of alcoholism. I went back to the Vallum and my tolerance went way

Lynn decided to get help for her addictions and agoraphobia and checked herself into a treatment center. She completed the program, but the phobia was never addressed. Two days after leaving the center, she had a severe panic attack and had neither "boose nor pills to take," she sald.

-Her-solution was to stay around the house and avoid -situations that could bring on attacks. It was the beginning of the end for Lynn. Her mother spotted an ad in a newspaper for a workshop on agoraphobia and panic disorders. Lynn went and it changed her life complete-

The program helps people understanding what is happening to them and how to get through the attacks "The only person you can run to is yourself; you learn to rely on yourself," Lynn said.

Lynn has learned to talk herself through a panic attack, relaxation and breathing techniques and how to express anger and deal with it. She also has learned not to be a negative thinker.

I never felt I was a capable person," she said. "I never felt that I could deal with life. Now, I talk differently to myself. I'm easier on myself, more accepting, more kind and compassionate to myself."

The home study program includes 16 cassette tapes, dealing with such topics as negative/positive dialogue, guilt and worry, expectations, diet/nutrition/exercise, anger, resisting change and obsecsive thinking/scary thoughts.

The 11/2-hour group sessions are designed to provide emotional support while making significant changes in life, ask questions and individualized the material. The sessions are conducted by counseling therapist Div Buegeleisen of Southfield. Lynn is a co-facilitator for

The program doesn't come cheaply. The home study portion costs $320 and there is a charge for the group sessions although those costs may be covered by medical insurance, Lynn said.

AND WHILE some people may shake their heads at the thought of self-treatment, the home study program has a 80-90 percent success rate, according to Lyni.

"The program isn't meant to take the place of professional help when and if it is needed," Buegeleisen said. "We strongly advise that a person seek the help of the family physician at the onset of any physical or psychological problems to rule out any other problems or concerns."

"It's turned my life around; I haven't had a panic attack for seven months which is miraculous for me," Lynn added. 'On a scale of one to 10 for anxiety, I use to run around at 10 plus. Now, I'm down to three or

"Everyday I practice the techniques I feel better. I feel more at peace in life and I believe in my ability to cope with life."

For people interested in the program, Buegeleisen and Lynn will be conducting a free workshop at 7:30 p.m. Monday, June 25 at Unity of Livonia, 28660 Five Mile Road. An Buegeleisen will be starting a new 15-week group session on Tuesday, July 10.

MAN A MAN CONTRACTOR

Vicky Tiel makes perfume with men in mind

staff writer

In today's throw-away society. Vicky Tiel has come up with a novel Idea — a perfume bottle that women will want to keep.

Tiel, known more for her figureflattering women's fashlons, has parlayed her skills as a designer, her interest in art glass and a definite idea about the feminine mystique into her latest creation, Parfums Vicky Tiel.

"My fragrance is part of the armature of my dresses," said Tiel, who was at the Fairlane Saks Fifth Avenue recently to promote her perfume and the re-presentation of three of her most famous dresses. "It makes women more attractive to men."

Tiel is a designer who doesn't believe in following trends but rather in flattering a woman's figure and enhancing her overall appearance. That belief spills over in her new en-

Unlike the late Halston who for a price let a perfume manufacturer create a fragrance bearing his name, Tiel spent seven years creating her fragrance, "a heady and very traffic stopping, man-trapping perfume," she said.

"It's not what I'd recommend to wear everyday to work," she said. "It's more for an evening or for a sensual night."

Tiel's "warm, long lasting scent" has the "alluring fruity top notes" of

'It's not what I'd recommend to wear every day to work. It's more for an evening or for a sensual night.'

- Vicky Tiel

Italian Bergamont and oriental mandarin, "a voluptuous middle note" of four rare and expensive aphrodisiacs mixed with the white flowers -Narcisse, Jonquille, Jasmine and Muguet — and is rounded out with "a bottom note of aromatic woods" - sandalwood from India and oak moss enhanced with Camelie and Tuberose.

SINCE TIEL created a perfume meant to radiate a woman's sexuality, she sought out men's reaction to the scent rather than women. For its test marketing, she selected only women who "were coupled" - either married or in a serious relationship with a man.

The testing, done in France and the United States, took five years to complete. She found the men's reactions "interesting."

"This kind of testing is very unusual and we found that men have incredible points of view on what they like and don't like," she said.

Tiel also designed the bottles. The Parsum bottle is patterned after a rare hand-cut Czechoslovakian bottle that used a sculpted lady as its stopper. The eau de parlum spray bottle - of a blue turquoise glass found in ancient Egypt - is an urn style silhoutte with multiple figures of Venus encircling it in bas-relief.

The parfum flacon is a nude Venus, draped in the classical manner who holds a shell in her uplifted hands. The perfume is applied by lightly touching the toes of the sculpture to the skin. The shell, reminiscent of a scallop, serves as the bottle stopper.

"It (Venus) has a colossal look in the bottle, but when you pull it out, it's quite dainty," Tiel said. "I'm very proud of it.'

Tiel designed the bottles seven years ago, but the machinery to mass produce the bottle didn't become available until two years later. Once the machinery was in place, she began working with Pierre Dinand, a world-reknown bottle designer, on the molds for the five-panel eau de parfum spray bottle.

EACH OF THE bas-reliefs is different. As the bottle is slowly rotated, Venus turns, going from a frontal pose to a posterior pose.

'It's like having seven or eight children," Tiel said of the process. "It took four years to make the fivepanel mold. Each one was carved over and over."

With everything in place, Tiel presold her perfume a year ago and booked time with glass maker Verrerie Brosse to manufacture her bot-

The manufacturing of perfume is a slow process. For Parfum Vicky Tiel, it takes three months for the perfume to be organized and three weeks for it to settle or blend. It is then sent to a bottler who adds the alcohol and lets it "expand" for another three weeks before placing it in bottles.

Tiel's hope is that the persume will "be accepted by people" and initial indications are that it will be. It is available at Saks Fifth Avenue, I. Magnin and Nieman Marcus, it has sold out at all of the Saks stores, she

Such success isn't new for Tiel. Born in Maryland and a graduate of Parsons School of Design in New York, Tiel headed for Parls at the age of 19. It was the 1960s and clothing designs were breaking new

It was Tiel who introduced Paris to the first mini skirts, hot pants and midriff-baring styles that were the start of the fashion revolution. Tiel's success includes designing for the movie industry. Her fans included such stars as Elizabeth Taylor, Goldie Hawn, Faye Dunaway, Raquel Welch and Jacqueline Bisset. And Melanie Griffiths was among several actresses sporting a Vicky Tiel creation at this year's Oscars

"I've dressed almost every actress and singer," Tiel said. "Everyone in Hollywood has something of mine in their closet."

TIEL'S DESIGNS are all about making a woman more beautiful and focus specifically on the body. Rather than following trends, Tiel believes in flattering a woman's figure and enhancing her overall appearance.

Her fashions are handmade in the couture tradition at her boutique on Rue Bonparte on Paris' Left Bank. Many of her clothes repeatedly reappear in her seasonal collections at the demand of her clients.

Her three most famous dress designs - Notorious, Torrid and Domptee - are being re-presented as part of the introduction of her perfume. In fact, Torrid has been worn by every actress on both the "Dynasty" and "Dallas" TV shows, she said.

"I am dedicated to creating clothes that do not necessarily follow fashion but are created for a woman who appreciates the quality of my work as she is a connoisseur of the best the world has to offer," she said. "The uniqueness of my work is found in the dressing room. It's not every dress you put on that makes you look like Aphrodite."

Vicky Tiel, known for her figure flattering fashions, has dressed some of the world's most famous women, including

Elizabeth Taylor, Raquel Welch and Jacqueline Bisset.

PRESBYTERIAN "Pioneer Bible Days" will be the theme of the Garden City Presbyterian Church's vacation Bible school 9 a.m. to noon Monday-Friday, June 25-29. The theme is in keeping with the church's sesquicentennial and program will feature pioneer crafts, Bible stories, recreation and music. On the closing day, there will be an outside "revival" worship service, with the Rev. Gareth Baker. The school is for children age four through those who have completed the sixth grade. The church is at 1841 Middlebelt, south of Ford Road, Garden City. For more information, call 421-7620.

• CHURCH OF CHRIST, LIVONIA

The Livonia Church of Christ will have a vacation Bible experience 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday, July 14, at the church, 15431 Merriman Road, Livonia. For children age 3 through those who have completed the sixth grade, the program will teach children about Jesus through village life and the life of Christ. For more information, call 427-8743.

Church, cottage: Times to meditate doing too much. I look forward to the time when I can stop running and just sit. I call it the switch from "doing" to just "being." But it is a most difficult switch to make.

can leave the business behind. We can stare out upon nature, hopefully, and just be ourselves. The place that we go has no television and no telephone. We have resisted getting

I remember the day that my young son ran home to this cottage to proclaim the fact that it was possible to receive television. He had always thought that we were too far north to get the signal.

We need relief from the pressures of the world, a time for just being instead of doing. Religion plays an important part in this ability to phase in and out of activity. The current word that stands for this quiet, reflective time is meditation.

THIS IS A time of retreat. This is a time for listening to nature and to God. This is a time for presenting ourselves before the creator of all that is. At this moment, we can forget all our roles, our titles, our responsibilities and soak in life.

The Grubb Institute in London, England, tells us that religion has this function of helping us switch from the active to the receptive. This is their theory of oscillation. Religion helps us to make the switch Summer has begun, but I am still from active to receptive. The traditional name of this is the Sabbath; "and God rested on the seventh day."

During this receptive time, we can just be ourselves. We no longer have to control life. We have left the pres-Maybe this is why so many of us sures to organize-behind. But, bego to a cottage up north. There we lieve me, it is a very difficult switch for most of us to make. The old need to plan and control seems to creep

> Perhaps we can remind ourselves that vacation time is a particularly good time to soak up love as well as life. Are we not loved for who we are, not because we can produce anything?

> THIS MOST important quality in life, love, is only possible when we let down the controls and open ourselves to another. This is essentially true also of life itself, and certainly of God.

> Even when we find difficulty in the generations, there may be nothing we can do for parents or children than to love them. Just be there and tell them we love them. This is the essence of life. Summer may well be the time to learn about our need to do nothing, just be present and receptive. It is a time to receive the gifts that are freely given. There are rare moments when we are open to the gift that may come. This is part of what religion is all about.

The Rev. David T. Strong is pastor of St. Matthew's United Methodist Church in Livonia.

The Rev. David Stewart rememers being called to the ministry at ge 16.

"The Lord called me to be a pasir. At that time, I didn't want anyting to do with it and ran from it." It wasn't until he was in his mid-9s that Stewart realized the ministy was where he belonged. Stewrt, 41, recently became the associte pastor at the First United Iethodist Church of Plymouth.

He previously served as pastor o three small churches in Peck, juel and Melvin in Michigan's 'humb area. He took that job fol-)wing his May 1986 graduation com Asbury Theological Seminary 1 Wilmore, Ky., where he earned a paster of divinity degree.

Serving as pastor at three United lethodist churches took some efort. Stewart traveled from church o church, preaching at Sunday serices at each one.

1"By the third time, I was really ood and really hoarse," he said rith a smile.

STEWART'S RESPONSIBILI-IES at the Plymouth church will do some preaching, handle some pastoral care duties, and officiate at funerals and weddings.

His predecessor, the Rev. Douglas McMunn, left to serve at two Methodist churches in the Iron Mountain, Mich., area in the Upper Stewart brings extensive government experience to his work at the Plymouth church. He worked for 61/2 years in regional planning at an agency in the Upper Peninsula's Houghton-Hancock area. He then served for about 61/2, years as the controller for Iron County, also in the Upper Peninsula.

Stewart attended Adrian College and earned a bachelor's degree in geography from Eastern Michigan University. He earned a master's degree in urban planning from Wayne State University.

While in his 30s, Stewart began to give serious thought to entering the ministry. He'd recommitted his life to Christ, and found himself in positions of leadership within his

"I just began to seek God's will. God called me to it."

RETURNING TO school took some getting used to for Stewart, e primarily in youth programs, who grew up in northwest Detroit vangelization and visitation. He'll and graduated from Cooley High School. He was accustomed to a technical writing format he'd acquired working in government, and had to learn to write in an academic style again. Studying Greek and other subjects took time and effort, and his first semester was particularly tough.

"I really relished the experience." His graduate work at Asbury Theological Seminary was demanding yet rewarding.

Stewart and his wife, Ellen, are now making their home in Canton. They have two children, Kirk, 151/2, a Centennial Educational Park student, and Elizabeth, 13, a Central Middle School student. Ellen Stewart has taught adult education classes and is currently job-hunt-

"Receiving this appointment's like coming back home," Stewart said. "My mother's prayers were answered.

His parents, John and Esther Stewart, live in Redford Township. His wife also grew up in northwest Detroit and graduated from Cooley High School.

Stewart is just about all settled in at the Plymouth church, having started work June 1. He's enjoying his new home and new responsibili-

MOVING TO a more urban area

The Rev. David Stewart is the new associate pastor at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth. He worked in government for a has taken a little getting used to for Stewart. He preached his first sermon at the Plymouth church on June 3, talking about Abraham being called to the promised land, "not knowing where he was going yet having faith in God." Modernday Christians too are challenged to be doing what God wants and to go where God wants them to go.

Stewart's found his work in government helped prepare him for the ministry. He has administrative training and experience working with people. His goals include "just basically expansion of the youth and evangelization programs in the church."

He finds working with young people rewarding. He's found the church is able to help meet their spiritual needs.

"Teens are exceptionally open and searching, especially during the junior high years. Our job is to meet those needs."

Stewart, who's called Dave by most people, enjoys seeing the physical and spiritual healing the church is able to provide. Seeing worshipers grow in their faith is rewarding.

He's hoping to be at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth for at least five years.

"I'm really looking forward to the friendships we'll be making. It seems like a very friendly, loving church."

Many shadows engulf cities

teconsider the effects of shadows in thir design of cities.

so writes George Kennan in his ecompassing description of St. Peterburg, or Petrograd or Leningrad. H calls it "one of the strangest, loeliest, most terrible and most dematic of the world's great urban ceters."

is a member of the United States Freign Service, stationed in Russia to most of his career, George Kenna was particularly qualified to abut the shadows in his "Sketches Fom a Life."

'It would behoove the architects ifar-northern cities to bear in mind tht all the effects of their handiwrk, beautiful or ugly, hopeful or decouraging, are destined to be ingthened, like the shadows, in a wrld where the sun, if visible at all, Lalways at a somewhat lower angle tan elsewhere."

SHADOWS CAUSED by the lowling sun are not the only shadows ne experiences in cities.

Architects would be well-advised Psalm was not thinking about cities when he wrote about "the valley of the shadow of death," but the shadow of death is ever present in cities, as well as in all life. Cities live and cities die. Cities are alive and cities are dying. The shadow of death is always there.

> There are other shadows that engulf a city. Like the shadow of illiteracy falling from school systems graduating students who can barely read and write.

In a country that requires students wite about Leningrad, but it is on to remain in school until they are 16, hi return visit in 1974 that he wrote and prides itself on its post-secondary educational opportunities, the United States still fails to graduate one of every four students starting high school. The shadows of illiteracy hide menacing powers.

> THE SHADOWS of poverty are equally devastating.

Per capita income in Detroit, Flint and Pontiac was never higher when the automobile companies were operating at full strength, and the cities showed it. City centers were alive and robust, streets in good repair, housing intact.

THE SHADOWS of pollution continue to lengthen. One of the gifts of life is potable drinking water, and more than 90 percent of the people in the United States have clean water readily available.

But our pollution of earth, water and air makes it increasing difficult to provide. We, who live in metro Detroit, pipe in our water from Lake Huron. We worry more and more about the contamination of our wa-

Racism and sexism are shadows that we had hoped to eliminate, but they grow ever longer.

AND THE shadows of crime and fear . . . no one escapes their reach. Even the presence of police and security guards cannot calm the innermost fears generated by the violence that crimes create. The rate of crimes can decrease, but the fear remains. Children who fear for life become adults who fear for life.

Architects, obviously, are not responsible for these shadows. It is the cityscape that shapes and forms the shadows of life. And the cityscape is what you and I create with the lives

The downtown area of Katmandu is filled with bustling markets, palaces and temples. Local Nepalese make good use of the day, knowing they must beat the home-by-dark curlew.

By Saily Davis special writer

Shangri-La is a fictional Eden where people never age unless they leave. It's somewhere in the Himalayan Mountains. We were headed for Nepal, atthe foot of the Himalayas, perhaps to find eternal

The morning of our departure from Varanasi. India, to Katmandu, Nepal, began with a 6 a.m. visit to the river Ganges. To witness the spiritually uplifting process of prayer and immersion into the holy river at sunrise was rejuvenating for us as well as the devout.

Our boat paddled slowly and silently past people bathing, holy men at prayer along the banks and ! others who were washing clothes. The cremation ghats (steps) reminded us of our own mortality.

Returning to our hotel, we had a quick breakfast before leaving for our flight to Katmandu. Goodbye to India until our return to Bombay for our flight to the United States.

WHEN WE arrived in Katmandu, we enjoyed the cooler temperatures and the clean and modern airport. Our hotel, in the far suburbs, was luxurious, with lovely grounds, gardens and fountains.

Our tour started with a hasty excursion to the downtown area and the old city, with its market, palaces, temples and Durbar (government) Square.

Trying to beat the home-by-dark curfew, people were stepping at a lively pace throughout down-Returning to the hotel, we had dinner and anticipated the next morning's flight over Mount Everest. This is why we had come: to see the beauty and enormity of the highest mountain in the world.

HOWEVER, OUR anticipation turned to frustration as our tour escort told us the plane might not be flying. He would let us know later in the evening.

"Later in the evening" came, with an ominous message that the flight had been canceled due to a strike by the Royal Nepal Airlines. We were flexible, quoth he, and could take the flight at a later time. A murmur of hope passed among my group.

A new day dawned with the same old message. We were not going to see Mount Everest. Not this trip anyway. Oh well, on to Tiger Tops in Chitwan National Park, for a safari on elephant-back to photograph elusive tigers and other wildlife. The group brightened.

Our escort had arranged for a bus to drive us there and to wait two days while we explored the jungle and nearby historical sites.

Royal Nepal Airlines was still having difficulties.

ACTUALLY, THE whole Katmandu valley was having difficulties. Political unrest and civil disturbances were escalating to dangerous proportions. Within a short period of time, we were confined to the hotel grounds.

The next day, escorted by a museum guide, we were able to visit the Archeological Museum of Nepal, a 15-minute hike from the hotel. He led us through back alleys and terraced levels to reach the museum.

It wasn't particularly interesting, but it was something to do, since there was no transportation and nowhere else to go, except a Monkey Temple atop a steep hill, an hour's hike in the hot sun.

LATER IN the afternoon, we learned we would not be going to Tiger Tops either. Our dream trip to Nepal had rapidly turned into a nightmare.

We decided that if we had to be stuck, what better place to be stuck in than our hotel? It had everything, including Nepal's only casino. Not to wor-

AT LEAST 25,000 people stormed the palace. The military, who were armed with rifles and tear gas, took control. They battled the citizens, who had only sticks and stones for weapons. Roadblocks were set up and the fighting continued. We were advised the next morning that a daylong curfew was in effect. The curfew would end at 4 p.m. and resume at 6 p.m until 7 a.m. the next morning. Our bags were packed in case a plane got through during the two-hour "window" in the cur-

No luck. The two-hour window was slammed shut by the government.

THE U.S. EMBASSY'S request for emergency phone numbers and next-of-kin forms from our tour escort was enough to add a few gray hairs.

We heard that planes might get in the next day if the Royal Nepal Airlines didn't go on strike again.

Off-season in the Caribbean

It was August in the Caribbean. Day one of a weeklong trip aboard one of those boats where the passengers help to hoist the sails before breakfast and after Pina Colada time.

Two young women from western Canada were stretched out on the deck, broiling in the summer sun. Micky and I wore loose long-sleeved shirts, floppy hats and a quart of sunscreening lotion.

Was it too hot to vacation in the Caribbean? It was our first time in emerald seas, and we didn't know the answer to that one yet.

Scene Two:

Day Three, The young bikini-clad pair were still in their skin but they too were wearing hats, sunglasses and lotion. When we snorkeled in the warm waters off a sand beach, we kept our bodies completely underwater so we wouldn't sizzle. Air India had ceased service due to the unrest. Planes can't fly in or out without ground crews, which are controlled by Royal Nepal Airlines.

About 10 a.m. the next day, two nine-passenger vans arrived. Our entire group of 16, plus our escort, three people from another group, the driver and luggage, squeezed into our groaning vehicle. We were getting out of Nepal.

The following day was Constitution Day, the day celebrated when the present king's father had installed the Nepalese Constitution. The dissenters were promising to destroy it and all other legal documents pertaining to the government.

IF WE didn't get out when we did. I don't know when we would have. It was imperative that we and all other foreigners leave the country. Both vans left under police escort. The curfew was in effect, but permits had been issued to vehicles transporting to the airport.

As we drove through, the city was deathly quiet. A few incautious Caucasian young people who opted to stay dared to come out. From vantage points inside of their homes, locals watched our vans pass.

Broken glass all over the streets glittered like polished diamonds. Our driver dodged piles of broken bricks. Remnants of fires blackened the curbsides and gutters.

It seemed to be a ghost town. We couldn't see Durbar Square, where

WHEN WE arrived at the airport, we quickly sent two from our group to stand in line for boarding passes. Two planes were supposed to be there, one from Delhi and the other from Bangkok. Neither had arrived. We were to be on the second one. Royal Nepal Airlines has five larger transport planes in its fleet.

We took turns standing in line. A couple of hours later, we were issued boarding passes, which allowed us to go upstairs to the departure lounge.

There was no food or water or pop to quench our thirst. We bought up whatever candy was left from the candy stand, so we would have something to keep us going.

floating tub of rum punch. Soon the sands a few hundred yards away were alive with barely covered flesh. We sank lower and lower into the sea as the beautiful bodies began to dance and sing. By the time they spotted us we were a patch of floating cloth, with only our hats and sun glasses visible above the water line.

"Come on in! Join the party!" You've heard about people who dream they are walking naked down the street. None of the semi-naked fun-lovers on the beach were the least bit self-conscious. We, on the other hand, were too embarassed to get out of the water with our clothes dripping around us.

There was a happy ending. They cajoled; we swam closer. Sooner or later we had to stand up, like shipwrecked ghosts, and join them.

After drinking some Club Med rum punch we didn't care what we wore or whether it was too hot to vacation off-season in the Caribbean.

The truth is that the Caribbean is hot year-round and not much hotter in July than it is in January. The reason we go to the Caribbean in winter has nothing to do with the Caribbean. We go because its too cold to stay home, because we want to get away from the snow. We stay home in summer because it's wonderful here in Michigan, why go somewhere hotter? But that is changing.

Joan Brooks of Cruises Only tells me that more and more families are cruising in the summer, that the numbers are getting larger every year. Book now if you want to cruise through the emerald seas in July or August.

Drug tests in use

By Raiph R. Echtinaw staff writer

Many Oakland County-based companies have turned to drug-testing and treatment programs to combat drug abuse that affects job perform-

"However, their methods and degree of intrusiveness vary. Some companies require everyone they hire to test negative for drugs, while others only test employees who seem to have a problem.

Some companies offer counseling of treatment programs for employees with drug-abuse problems, while others simply fire employees who test positive for illegal drugs.

Electronic Data Systems, an information handling company, requires all new hires to submit to a urinalysis test. However, in general, once an employee is hired, he won't be asked to take another drug test unless there is reason to be suspicious, according to company spokesman Tony Good.

"We're selling expertise," he said. "It's unfair to our customers if anyone working for them is not 100 per-

SOME EDS EMPLOYEES, however, are subject to unannounced random drug tests. Company officers, security personnel, pilots and airplane mechanics are among the few EDS employees who are tested several times a year, Good said.

"To be doing the kind of things they've got to be doing for EDS, they've got to be sharp."

While he couldn't supply figures, Good said few potential new hires have been disqualified for drugs and few randomly tested employees turn up positive.

Nevertheless, EDS initiated an experimental employee assistance program last August to "help our employees with depression, marital conflicts, alcohol and drug abuse." EDS insurance picks up between 80 and 100 percent of the cost.

Troy-based K mart Corporation tests only employees hired to work at its distribution centers. These people must pass a urinalysis test before they're hired. Further testing can be required if an employee is suspected of illegal drug use.

"There is a greater risk of accident with the heavy equipment used in the distribution centers," said Janet Potter, public communications coordinator. K mart headquarters staff and store employees are not tested.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON Life Insurance Co. of Farmington Hills has a program similar to that at EDS. Since last June, all new hires are tested for illegal drugs. If they fail the test they aren't hired. In addition, current employees who "definitely have impaired performance" can be forced to submit to a urinalysis and sent to a counseling program, according to company spokesman Jeff Kulesus.

"We don't want to fire people," he said. "We want them to be productive employees. (If we don't help them) they'll just take their problem to the next location." Still, employees who don't submit to the counseling are fired.

Another local company, Charley's Restaurant Group, began a drug testing program in January. Like EDS, the company uses the most accûrate, i.e. expensive, urinalysis test available: $90 each.

Little by little, it is important to build a solid financial foundation. Our financial profile this month provides Rob and Shirley Bell of Canton with directions on how to begin building their financial future step by step.

Rob and Shirley are the youngest couple to be profiled in our monthly column. He is 23 and has just completed his first year as a physical education teacher. Shirley is 22 and just graduated from college last month. She will be starting a job soon as an assistant store manager. Their incomes are $21,000 and $15,000 respectively.

living in an apartment and would like to buy a house within two years and start a family in four to five years. Rob will begin work toward a master's degree in educational administration by taking summer classes.

We applaud and encourage their interest in financial planning at the beginning of their careers. A comment we frequently hear from pre-retirees is that they wish they had started planning years earlier. Shirley's father encouraged them to write to us and pursue the possibility of receiving advice in this column. To their credit; they followed through on his advice.

ONE OF THEIR major strengths is the fact that they will shortly have two incomes. They project they will be able to save almost one-half of Shirley's income when she begins work next month. This will allow them to strengthen their current financial situation.

Right now, they have nothing to fall back on if a major expense unexpectedly materializes. Not only do they have no emergency reserves, but they have not worked at establishing their credit history. This limits their options should a financial emergency arise.

Shirley's extra income should first be directed toward establishing an emergency fund of approximately $3,000 to $5,000 in a bank or money market fund. They also want to pay off a $700 personal loan. This can be easily accomplished when the reserve is in

Once those two goals have been achieved, they can start a fund to establish the down payment for a house. They should be able to accumulate that down payment within two to three years.

THEY SHOULD also take steps to establish their credit-worthiness. This could be important when they apply for a mortgage. Also, it gives them an emergency outlet to fall back on if they truly need it.

Actually, although they do not realize it, they do have a short credit history. By virtue that they are paying back their auto loan on a timely basis, they have begun to establish a positive credit record. But they should take steps to broaden their credit history.

For example, at some point during the next year, they may want to buy some relatively small items on credit even though they may have the cash in hand. Paying back this loan on time will strengthen their credit history.

THEY MAY also want to apply for a major credit card. Although Rob has been offered credit cards in the past, they have avoided them for fear they might be taking too many financial obligations.

It is true that credit cards can be abused. By using them improperly, some people become financially strapped or worse. Used prudently, a credit card can be convenient and can help to reinforce a good credit record.

In a way, credit can be compared to alcohol - some people can handle it well in moderation. Others avoid it entirely as a matter of principle, and still others get hooked on it and abuse it until it ruins their lives. Rob and Shirley need to do some self-assessment to decide if they can successfully handle this responsibility.

A MAJOR GAP in their financial situation is their lack of any insurance for their possessions.

They were under the mistaken impression that they had to own a house to obtain such coverage. But there is a form of homeowners insurance specifically designed for

They should contact their insurance agent with whom they have their auto insurance to find outabout such coverage. It is relatively inexpensive and would stand them in good stead if they ever need it.

As an additional part of their financial foundation, we would recommend that they create written wills. It is the most important document they need in their current estate planning. When they have children or when their circumstances change, they should review and update their estate plan with an attorney.

Although they both have modest group term life insurance at their places of work, they might want to consider buying some insurance that is personally held. Certainly this should be done when they buy a house. Due to their ages and good health, the premiums would be relatively low.

ALTHOUGH RETIREMENT IS far into the future, Rob should give some thought to contributing $75 per pay period into a tax-sheltered annuity (TSA) - this type of retirement plan available to employees of non-profit organizations, such as schools, hospitals and churches. Contributions to this plan are tax-deductible, and they grow on a tax-deferred basis.

With the magic of compounding over the next 40 years, a TSA started now and added to regularly will grow to a significant sum in the future. If necessary, most TSA plans allow the participant to borrow against the plan to pay for a major purchase such as the down payment on a house. Thus the participant has access to this money if

By starting early, Rob and Shirley have a major financial advantage over their peers. If they continue to show the foresight that prompted them to write us, we have no question they they will be successful, both financially and in other aspects of their lives.

Banks notify of big cash moves

By Dave Varga staff writer

Drug dealers and other scofflaws are giving bank tellers more to do than count money.

Tellers are regularly called upon to keep tabs on suspicious customers, including when they come in, what they look like and what they And it isn't often as obvious as the recent incident at Manufacturer's National Bank in Southfield. There, $65,000 in cash brought in by a law firm from a client to pay his taxes was coated with cocaine.

Federal law requires some basic precautions to keep track of cashonly transactions — all banks must file a Currency Transaction Report describing every cash activity over $10,000, unless a business obtains an exemption.

Most drug dealers, and for that matter anyone trying to "launder"

"WITH OUR institution, any cash transaction in or out of over $5,000. we have to report to our loss prevention department," Sonnenberg said.

Another local bank manager who requested anonymity noted that bank tellers are told to fill out the CTRs whenever they're suspicious.

"Our obligation falls, where we suspect anything out of the ordinary, we fill out the report," she sald. Tellers are also told to write memos to alert the corporate office about their suspicions.

Randy Boileau, a spokesman for Comerica, said their tellers "do what's necessary to be in compliance with the spirit of the law."

Last year, Comerica tellers filled out around 27,000 CTRs, with transactions numbering "well into the Charley's policy, however, varies from that of EDS in that employees are tested only if they seem to have a problem. As yet, the company has not found reason to test anyone, according to Ken Walter, vice presi-

"We will not ask an employee to be tested unless that person has been acting strange," he said. "We're not attempting to invade one's privacy."

Should a Charley's employee test positive for illegal drugs, Walter sald, he would be fired immediately.

cording to company spokeswoman Jennifer Hurshell.

Like Charley's, Volkswagen only

ests employees who are suspected of illegal drug use. New hires are not tested. Only if there is "repeated suspicion of a problem" will an employee be tested, Hurshell said.

."Of course, that happens in very, very rare instances."

Volkswagen employees who need help with drug-abuse problems can take advantage of the company's deal with its insurance providers for counseling or treatment.

Michigan National Bank, based in Farmington Hills, began testing all new hires for illegal drugs two years ago. Eschewing the urinalysis, Michigan National tests employees' hair to see if they're high.

"We feel this method of testing is far better than urine," said human resources director Wayne Carey. "It's a simple, cost-effective method that is quantitative, gives you historical information, is non-intrusive and convenient."

Carey said 2.6 percent of potential new hires have been disqualified by the hair analysis over the last two years. ---

Michigan National Bank, however, does not test employees once hired. For them there is an employee assistance program with which they can get confidential counseling and/ or treatment.

SIEMENS BENDIX Auto Electronics of Troy has a similar assistance program and, of course, a drug testing policy. Since October 1988, Slemens has tested all new hires for drugs. If you don't pass, you aren't hired.

"My interest is how we can control the industrial accident rate," said Sam Seabright, Siemens safety manager, who estimated that 60 percent of employees involved in industrial accidents are high. Siemens does not test employees once they are hired, though.

"We have not experienced any substance abuse problems, Seabright said.

Perhaps he's just in the wrong business. Steve Jar, a contractor who did some work for a Farmington Hills restaurant, said experience has taught him that construction workers are some of the most avid drug users in the area.

He tells his employees they might be asked to give a urine sample at . any time. But Jar doesn't test for marijuana, which he doesn't consider a problem drug. Although he stays, away from illegal drugs now, Jar said he used to smoke marijuana in college and doesn't see anything radically wrong with it.

Jar and his partner have had their personal urinalysis results posted in the office. He said that employees have a right to know their boss is clean if they're also required to submit to a drug test.

Workers staying free of drugs — for the most part

By Ralph R. Echtinaw staff writer

Many county small business owners and managers say they haven't been plagued with employees high on drugs.

"To be honest, I haven't (had a problem)," said Larry Reynolds, assistant manager of Foland's in Rochester. "If there has been, it hasn't been at the surface. I think I'd be able to tell. 'We've got a good bunch of kids here. As a manager you kind of keep an eye out for it. Unless we've got a bunch of people really pulling the wool over our eyes, I don't think (there's a problem)." Damman Hardware of Troy manager Paul Amoroso concurred.

"I've been with Dammons for eight years and can't remember one incident of drug related problems," he said. "That would be cause for immediate dismissal."

However, not all local business people are so lucky. Cindie Gade, owner of Aunt Clara's, a Rochester bakery, said she had to fire a female employee last year for suspected drug abuse and theft.

'We had a suspicion (that she was using illegal drugs) because we had money problems," Gade said. "Her behavior patterns were bad. Sometimes in the mornings she looked like. Township, hasn't had a problem with but they just had to work it out she crawled out from under a rock."

'I'm a little more skeptical of people. I'm a little more selective (about who I hire).'

> — Cindie Gade owner of Aunt Clara's bakery was in debt for drugs because some people came into the bakery and said she owed them money. Then cash began to disappear from the register, although no one could prove who took it.

"Nobody saw her do anything," Gade said. Altogether, about $450 was missing.

"I'm a little more skeptical of people," Gade said. "I'm a little more selective (about who I hire)."

Some employers said they're confident they could tell if one of their charges was working high.

"With a smaller business, you're pretty much closer in touch with your people," said Dave Daenzer, who has managed Radio Shack stores for eight years. "If there are any changes (in employee behavior),

I think I'd pick them up here." Joanne Spreitzer, manager of Bloomfield Market in Bloomfield drugged employees recently, but

GADE SUSPECTED the employee past experience has taught her to screen applicants carefully. Three times since the early 1970s Spreitzer has dealt with employees on illegal drugs. An employee whose parents Spreitzer knew collapsed in front of a pizza oven, apparently overcome by the effect of the drug he was using.

Spreitzer said the young man's parents told her to take him directly to a treatment center. "He didn't know what was happening until he got there," she said. As it turned out, the fellow ultimately recovered.

SPREITZER SAID she commiserates with drug-abusing employees, but can't see an alternative to dismissal.

"It's so unfair to have a substance abuser take advantage of those who' are giving their employer a good effort," she said. "They had a problem, themselves."

Spreitzer's employees have to work around some potentially dangerous equipment like meat slicers, knives and ovens.

"You could literally lose a hand (if you work high)," Spreitzer said. "I suppose down deep in my heart I was thinking of their safety (when I fired them). Experience, it is said, is the best teacher, and Spreitzer is a good ex-

"I try to screen them as best I can," she said. "I try to look for things that they would cart back and forth (to work) themselves. If it's 90 degrees; why is he wearing a longsleeve shirt?"

Spreitzer recently noticed a roach clip hanging from a job applicant's rear-view mirror. "I knew right away that wasn't the kid I wanted to hire," she said. Julie Williamson, manager of the Orchard 14 Soft Cloth Car Wash in Farmington Hills, said "from time to time I've had an employee who had a (drug) problem." But she doesn't consider that sort of thing a firing offense unless they do drugs on the job. One employee in particular was "so strung out and not thinking clearly," Williamson said, that she offered him a leave of absence if he would get help. The employee quit, but got into a treatment program and returned to the car wash six months later.

ONE SOMEWHAT flippant Bloomfield Township pharmacist who declined to give her name seemed unconcerned that her employees might be using illegal drugs. "We do have people who abuse drugs here," she said. "Several people come in here that have smoked marijuana and take diet pills." On the other side of the spectrum, you might find Delores Dabrowski, owner of Video Junction of Rochester. With a chiropractor husband, Dabrowski takes a holistic approach to drugs. She doesn't tolerate them, legal or otherwise.

"This is a pure workplace," she said. "We do not take drugs whether pushed or prescribed. We encourage our employees to take vitamin

A fervent non-smoker, Dabrowski also maintains a nicotine-free staff. "A smoker wouldn't come here to work because of the attitudes (of my employees)," she said.

While some Oakland County small-business people admit having had an employee with a drug problem, most replied to questioning like Joanne Huston did.

The manager of Thingz of Rochester, an unusual-gift shop, sald, "I have never had anybody that's worked for me that had a (drug) problem. We've had a couple that didn't want to come to work now and then, but it wasn't because of drugs."

Banks tell when lots of money is moved

"We are not a law enforcement; agency and we can't do law enforcement work," Boileau said.

Talking about internal security measures, such as keeping tabs on customers, would be "counterproductive," Boileau said.

As for the amount of drug money coming into local banks, Sonnenberg noted that at his Southfield branch, "It is difficult to spot because you get a lot of party store money.

"I would have to say, as an opinion, yes we do get more than our fair share (of drug money,)" Sonnenberg said.

On the other hand, the female bank official noted, "You never know for sure. All you can do is speculate. Nobody says, 'This is my drug money."

Building hot cars can be fun, even for executives

Probably one of the more romantic notions in the auto business is building a hot car in the back of your garage, putting it into production in some small shop and then filling the orders coming from people pounding on your door after you take the world championship at LeMans.

Even boardroom types at the mafor auto companies aren't immune to the notion. Even before someone borrowed the words "skunk works" from the cartoon Lil Abner to describe in house projects presumably unfettered by corporate egos and bottom lines, there were substantial numbers of neat cars put out by people who' weren't exactly, aiming to make a mint for the stockholders.

Ford's GT-40 program that led to the world championship, for example. Or the original Corvette program, or even the original Continen-

More recently, there was the Ficro and the SVO Mustang, which had their brief day in the sun after emerging from so-called skunk-

THEN THERE was the Toyota MR2 and the Mazda Miata, both successful sports cars done in corporate-sponsored back-alley opera-

Lessee . . . you might argue Ferrari, Lamborghini, Maserati and maybe even Poische fall in the category as well.

Now comes Chrysler's Bob Lutz, who has been teasing the press for a half-dozen years or more, even before he got to Chrysler, with backalley projects that seemed like a great idea at the time.

Lutz' interest goes a bit beyond automobiles. He, is, for instance, a former Marine Corps fighter pilot who recently held up a flight of the corporate jet while he was wandering around in an airplane junkyard full'of neat stuff like a defunct B 47

I noticed this because I was looking at the neat old airplanes, too, and figured the plane wasn't going to leave as long as Lutz hadn't re-

Lutz is one of those auto executives who has a passion for fast machinery, which is something you would expect all auto executives would share. Not really, since a genuine interest in the product seems to have the same effect on boards of directors deciding who the next chairman will be as finding large Trump holdings in your portfolio has on people reviewing your Visa application.

But I digress

It's as the father figure for a new auto skunkworks program where Lutz may yet find his identity

THE PROGRAM will produce the Viper sports car, a 400 hp. two seator that has a spiritual resemblance to Carroll Shelby's old Cobras. The resemblance is not strictly coincidental, since Shelby was trying to sell a similar concept to Chrysler a few years ago, which was to have resurrected the Cobra mystique and performance. (A well-tuned Cobra could do 0-100 inph in under 10 sec-

The Viper is the brainchild of Chrysler styling as much as anything being blessed with the kind of looks that provide a visual statement of speed, cather than the esoteric aerodynamic nonsense that plagues most cars today.

The plan is to do a more or less handmade frame, have the engine built up of scrap parts from a truck engine and some work done by an Italian casting firm and then bolt it together at a supplier.

If this seems a little crude, it also seems cheap and do-able. The result a is a factory-sponsored car built in, someone's garage, which ought to do good things for the company, like fitting neatly into Chrysler's image: machine, which is getting a little; rusty these days, and lure more dreamers into the showrooms.

Ironically, it is the rough-andready approach to getting the car built that makes it likely it will survive more or less as shown to the, public on the last round of autoshows, where it stunned the design world while touring as a concept car.

Now Lutz is saying the Viper is harbinger of a new way of building niche cars, hitting a target market in a hurry and all that. It's a good thing to say to make the project sound se-, rious to the board.

Otherwise he seems to be having too much fun.

Long-term care insurance protects you from disaster

The recent death of an Alzhelmer's patient by using a do-ityourself suicide kit raises an extremely important question: If I am sick for a long time, who in the world will care for me? I will discuss this issue in detail at a retirement seminar (see details below). Here are some random thoughts on this subject.

Medicare - Not Hardly

Even after Medicare pays its share of health costs, you may still owe large debts to hospitals, physicians and other service providers. For instance, Medicare does not cover the biggest catastrophic cost of all - long term nursing home care - which averages about $25,000 a year. Nor does it cover the following: (1) private-duty nursing: (2) skilled nursing care beyond 150 days; (3) treatments outside the United States; (4) dental work; (5) most immunizations; (6) cosmetic surgery; (7) routine foot care; (8) eye and hearing exams; and (9) prescription glasses and hearing aids.

The Answer: LTC

The gaps in Medicare can be covered by a long-term care (LTC) insurance. But selecting the right policy can be very complicated. There can be confusing words, exclusions, and differing costs for various coverages to understand. Even more important, long-term care does not refer only to nursing home care. It can be provided in your own home if you need help with activities such as bathing, walking or doing chores.

finances and you

Sid

Here are some grave statistics to demonstrate the need for long-term care insurance. By 2000, more than 8 million Americans aged 65 or older will need some long-term care due to disability or chronic illness. Those aged 85 or older are the most at risk for needing long term care.

It is also estimated that two out of five people aged 65 or more risk entering a nursing home. Half of them will need to stay about six months or less; and half will need to stay an average of 2.5 years.

A Confusing World

More than 100 companies offer rivate long term care insurance toay. No policy provides full coverge for all expenses. In addition, any policies do not increase the inemnity amount as the cost of care icreases over time. Several newer olicies do offer increased benefits ver time to allow for increased

LTC coverage also is offered as part of individual life insurance poliiles. Under this arrangement, a certain percentage of the policy's death benefit is paid for each month the policyholder requires long term

Each policy is priced differently. Today, individual policy annual premiums range anywhere from $250 to $2,500, depending upon several factors.

Some Key Questions

Here are some of the questions you must ask before deciding which policy is the best for you:

- What services are covered? • How much does the policy pay, and for what?
- Does the policy offer a means for increasing benefits to account for expected future costs? If so, how?
- Is Alzheimer's disease covered?
- How many days is the elimination or deductible period before benefits begin?

Dissatisfied pregnant woman now leases maternity clothing

Two years ago, Yvette Kotlarczyk was pregnant and dissatisfied with the choices of maternity clothing available to the professional working woman

"I felt lost in a sea of tent dresses and casual clothes whenever I went shopping," Kotlarczyk said, "And on the rare occasion when I found a suit that was appropriate for work, it was either much too expensive or looked awful on me.",

An executive secretary at a Detroit actuarial firm, Kotlarczyk began creating her own designs during her free time.

"I used to enjoy sewing as a hobby, but it quickly lost its appeal With two teenage daughters and a baby on the way, all I could think about was the time I was forced to spend behind my sewing machine every week."

After the birth of her daughter. Kotlarczyk came across an article in Income Opportunities magazine that changed her life. She read about the owner of a company in Portland, Ore., who was making it big in the maternity leasewear business. Six months and several phone calls later, she made the transition from employee to employer by investing $10,000 to become the exclusive Michigan distributor for ProCreations Maternity Leasewear.

Mary DiPaolo

As a distributor, Kotlarczyk days she received all the support and benefits typical of a franchise relationship without any of its limitations. "When customers have suggested new design ideas or service, I've been free to act without needing to call Portland for approval."

In business since November, Kotlarczyk projects sales will be in the high five-figure range by the end of the year.

Targeting a core market of pregnant women between 26 and 40 who earn between $25,000 and $75,000 a year, Kotlarczyk's company leases maternity clothing designed for individual clients on a custom basis. Available in sizes 2 to 24, the clothes have weekly rental fees ranging from $2.75 for blouses to $8.95 for business suits.

Each rented garment may also be replaced, free of charge, if a client grows out of it during the minimum nine-week contract period. Recently, Kotlarczyk added resort clothing, outerwear and formal dresses to the line based on increased demand.

"It takes three weeks to fill custom orders," she said, "but we've had many situations where customers see finished garments that they like and have altered to fit immediately."

Future plans include giving customers the opportunity to buy custom garments or rent formal dresses and resort wear on a shortterm basis. "We've also been approached about carrying after-5 accessory items on a rental basis, which we're now working on."

Q. I would like to invest in a mutual fund, but I am confused by the number and variety of funds available. Have' you any suggestions about how to go about choosing the best fund?

A. I think you really have to start with yourself and decide what you are looking for as an investor.

The latest Mutual Fund Fact Book issued by the Investment Company Institute, which is the trade association for the mutual fund industry, says there are 2,918 funds available to the investor. And new ones are being started almost every day.

The first thing you should decide is whether you are a long-term investor or a trader.

Mutual funds are basically longterm investments, and if you aren't planning on holding the fund for a number of years, there is a big question as to whether you should buy it in the first place.

There are funds that allow you to switch from one kind of fund to another as you believe opportunities in the market are shifting. It's hard to find evidence that individuals are any more successful shifting from mutual fund to mutual fund than

Most individuals who are making a long-term investment in a mutual fund are likely to decide that they want a fund that emphasizes growth to a considerable extent, That, after all, is the reason why most of us invest in stock rather than bonds.

There are a lot of listings where growth funds are separated as a group and their particular objectives are briefly described. You should be able to find some of these in your nearest public library. The Lipper Analytical Services is widely avail-

The record is something that you want to give special attention to. The record for the past years is not very important. Often the top-performing funds in one year are far from that position a year later. But the fiveyear and 10-year record is important.

In short, I would suggest a fund that emphasizes growth. This will give greater value and income as the years go on. Then I would pick from among the five with the best fiveyear or 1-year record.

In the case of a new fund without a long record. I would be hesitant unless it is being managed by someone with a long-term record.

How to qualify for emergency subsidized housing

Q. I need subsidized housing. I know there is a waiting list for most government housing but I have also heard that there is a separate list for people in emergency situations.

A. There is a serious need for publicly subsidized housing for older adults. Most waiting lists are up to an average of five years waiting

There is, however, a Federal Preference Standard and a special list for those who qualify. The qualifications are:

• Your rent is more than 50 percent of your income,

• You now live in sub-standard

• You have been involuntarily displaced by government action.

• You live in an unsafe or unhealthy environment.

You must be able to prove that you fulfill the above requirements. If you meet the above standards, you should inform the rental personnel in the subsidized apartments to which you are applying. The amount of your subsidy will be based on your income and may vary from building to building.

Q. I've recently heard of a computer that will read. I am losing my evesight and would be very interested in learning more about this ma-

A. I believe the piece of equipment you are referring to is the Xerox/ Kurzweil Personal Reader. This reading device converts the printed page into an easily understood synthetic voice. It is excellent for books, magazines and personal documents, but there is a problem with newspapers as the paper is so thin.

The Personal Reader is expensive, selling for $8,000 to $12,000 per unit. It would seem to me, however, that it would be a worthwhile investment for libraries. Low interest financing is available through the American Foundation for the Blind.

For additional information, call, toll free, 800-343-0311, Ext. 231, Monday-Friday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Q. How do I nominate someone for the Senior Citizen of the Year Award? My next door neighbor, who is 83, helps me almost daily, he takes care of my lawn and keeps my sick husband company when I have to go out. I really think he deserves a prize.

A. Presented each year on Senior Citizens Day at the Michigan State Fair, the Senior Citizen of the Year award recognizes older adults for their commitment, dedication and work for the benefit of their community in either a leadership or service role.

To compete for this award, people must be nominated by an organizaon aging Renee Mahler tion, such as a local senior citizen center or Area Agency on Aging, and the nomination must be endorsed by the organization's presiding officer.

Nominations must be submitted on official Senior Citizen of the Year applications. Applications are available from the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging or your nearest Area Agency on Aging.

The deadline to submit applications is July 23. Applications may be requested by calling (517) 373-8230 or (517) 373-4096 (TDD). Completed forms should be sent to the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging, P.O. Box 30026, Lansing 48909. All nominees will receive a certificate.

The award is sponsored by the Commission and Office of Services to the Aging and the Michigan State Fair. It is a good way to recognize older adults who go out of their way to serve the aging community.

For further information, contact Wendi Middleton at (517) 373-4070. Monday-Friday 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Q. I have heard that there is someone who will make daily telephone calls to homebound elderly. My 87year-old mother lives in Westland, Is there anyone there who would call to check on her every day?

A. The Wayne County Office on Aging offers Telephone Reassurance to older adults living in Westland, Belleville, Canton Township, Garden City, Inkster, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Romulus, Sumpter Township and Van Buren Township. Daily in-home telephone contact is made. A specific time is arranged for the phone call. If the person cannot be reached at the designated time, a family member or friend is called.

To arrange for the telephone contact, call 467-3450 before noon. This service is limited to homebound seniors only.

Incumbent won't seek board term

AP - A Detroit man who was one of the subjects of a failed recall effort said he won't seek another eightyear term on Michigan State University's board of trustees.

Malcolm Dade, 59, was appointed by Gov. James Blanchard in 1982. His term expires Dec. 31.

"That will take me past my normal retirement," Dade said. "Maybe I ought to give someone else a chance."

The Democratic incumbent was one of five Michigan State trustees targeted by a recall drive after a board decision in January to appoint football Coach George Perles as athletic director.

Dade voted in favor of the move, despite opposition from President John DiBiaggio. The recall drive ended in May and was unsuccessful. Dade said the recall played a small part in his decision to retire. "There's never been an issue in 7 11/4 years on the board that has demanded so much attention," he said.

"It's an added stress, but you have to be responsible for the decisions you make.'

Dade, vice president of human resources for Detroit Edison Co., said he hopes another black trustee will News.

Bad news.

The good news? More and more people, businesses and industries are finding ways to recycle.

It takes more than 6,000 tons of newsprint each year to print The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers plus a number of other publications, so we're doing a number of things to help the solid waste situation:

1. For years we've sold our waste newsprint to a recycling firm.

2.25% of the newsprint we print on is recycled and we're increasing this amount by another 25% this year.

3. Our employees have begun to routinely put officer paper (memos, computer paper, waste copy paper) in recycle bins instead of waste baskets.

Of course, we still deliver thousands of newspapers twice each week. It's our business to bring you news of your local government, schools, sports scene and community events; the news you need to know.

And when you're finished reading your hometown newspaper there are places that will recycle them.

We've listed a few for you on this page because we think recycling is Good News.

According to a Native American legend, butterflies got their colors after the Great Spirit had created the beautiful mountains, valleys, and streams for people to see.

Color helps nature survive

To a scientist, the colors of animals are adaptive, that is they help the animal to survive. Many animals, such as female birds are brown or grey so that they do not attract predators to the nest. Camouflage coloration is also very effective in insects such as moths.

Coloration other than camouflage is also adaptive in animals. Distinct colors and patterns help individuals distinguish one species from another. Some areas of bright color are only exposed during aggressive en-counters. Exposing them all the time would nullify their effect.

There is also some evidence that brighter colors may be an indication of fitness, or health, or the ability to defend a territory. Females that must choose a mate will choose the one with the brightest colors.

Colors of animals are also produced in different ways. Pigments in feathers, fur or skin can produce various hues. Many colors are created by the configuration of the structure. Iridescent colors are formed in this manner.

Though we can give reasons for the many shades of an animal, legends and stories passed down through the ages to explain this phenomenon are just as colorful.

Though we can give reasons for the many shades of an animal, legends and stories passed down through the ages to explain this phenomenon are just as colorful.

According to a Native American legend, butterflies got their colors after the Great Spirit had created the beautiful mountains, valleys, and streams for people to see. The Great Spirit wanted his people to enjoy nature and to seek it out often, so he created piles of colorful pebbles and hid them in the streambeds so people would have to intentionally look for These pebbles were all the colors of the rainbow, and when he saw how beautiful they were, he decided that they were too beautiful to hide. So he summoned the South Wind to breath life into the brightly colored pebbles. As the South Wind blew, the pebbles began to rise from the stream on colorful wings. These were the first butterflies and moths.

It seems that through the years, men seeking to explain the unknown have developed many explanations to answer the same question.

Please Help A leighbor's Need!

In Third World countries, hundreds of thousands of children are in desperate need of food, clothing, medical care—the basics of life. These girls and boys are even denied the opportunity to attend school.

They are our neighbors in a world that grows smaller every day.

Through CCF, you can sponsor a neighbor's child. The cost is $18 a month—just 60° a day—to help a poor child in Asia, Africa or Latin America —a child who has virtually nothing.

Please pick up your phone now and dial the toll-free number below. Be a good neighbor by helping an innocent child.

Shock Absorbers Receive Punishment From Vacation Loads, Potholes, Bumps

Spring is traditionally a time to perform routine maintenance and get the family car ready for summer driving. especially vacation travel. It's also a good time to carefully examine the ef-. fects of winter's potholes on your vehicle's suspension.

Many vacations involve loading the car with the family luggage, sports equipment and perhaps towing a boat or trailer. Good suspension performance is vital to a smooth comfortable ride and an enjoyable trip. Not to mention sale handling better control, and less tire wear.

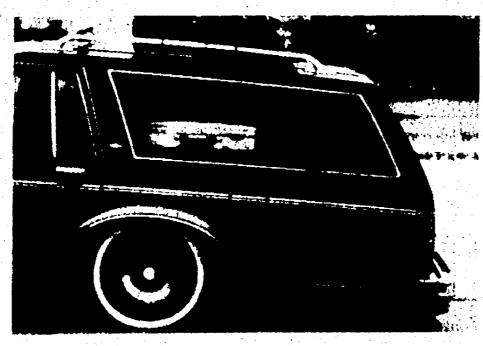

It's a common belief that shock absorbers do the most to improve a car's ride quality. While they do make a difference, the primary suspension part affecting ride quality actually is the springs. The springs carry the vehicle's weight, support it when making turns or stopping, and absorb bumps and

The function of the spring becomes more critical as you add more weight to your vehicle. Some shocks, such as air shocks, may help, but they put stress on the shock mounting bolts, which aren't designed to carry weight.

The best place to compensate for the effects of additional loads is the coil springs. There are two options to consider with coil springs: install heavy duty models, or ones with a variablerate design. Heavy-duty springs will help with the loads, but leave the vehicle with a harsh ride when empty. The variable-rate coil spring design offers the advantage of increasing its resistance as weight is increased, auresult: a smooth, comfortable ride when loaded or empty.

the ride height of the vehicle. This affects many other steering and suspension parts and can lead to poor handling, alignment problems and shortened tire life.

To check for sag, have a professional mechanic check your car for proper height. The procedure isn't difficult, but requires a trained expert to accurately measure and determine the condition of your springs.

time they can sag-actually lowering mitted to other suspension parts. A variable-rate spring in the front will seldom bottom out.

Alignment angles are also affected by bottoming out, and accelerated tire wear is the result.

Front-wheel-drive vehicles with severely sagged coil springs can also suffer damage to what are known as CV (constant velocity) joints. These joints deliver power from the transmission to the front wheels and are usually very expensive to replace. Replacing sagged springs by installing variable-rate springs can help prevent

Whether on the front or rear, they'll resist sagging and bottoming out, and reduce sway and dipping. You'll enjoy better handling and a smoother ride.

FLOODED OUT-Splashing through flooded streets is not in the best interest of any automobile. Avoid such streets, if possible, but if you must drive through them, do so slowly, with patience and

Save Your Fun On Water For Ride In Boat

Cars were not intended to be water-bome vehicles, and perhaps leave you stranded. encounters with flooded streets can only increase the chance of a car malfunction.

During the rainy season, avoid standing water at intersections or elsewhere if possible, particularly if it is above the bottom of the wheel rims. However, if you have no alternative but to drive through, here are some tips to help you safely navigate these water hazards:

Drive through the water very slowly. Rapid movement might cause the water to 'swamp' or stall the engine, and

If you do stall as you cross a deep puddle, try to coast toward the side of the road and wait for the engine to dry out before trying to start it. Wiping oil the spark plugs, wires, and other parts of the ignition system with a dry cloth can help you get moving faster.

Remember that the car's brakes may be affected by driving through standing water, and you should check their stopping ability before an emergency demands their

Selecting Correct Summer Sunglasss Can Be Difficult

Sunglasses are an important daytime driving aid yet. Drivers should avoid medium and dark blue tinted lenses. with so many types available, it is difficult for drivers to know what to choose.

According to the American Optometric Association, the * choice is highly individual. It depends largely on a person's eyes, lifestyle and preferences. There are, however, for driving:

Look for sun lenses that screen out 75 to 90 percent of light; are prefectly matched in color and absorption; and

TIVONIA STEVENSON'S 2-1 victory over Rochester Adams in the Class A championship girls soccer game returned the title to where most Observerland fans believe it belongs: In the Western Lakes Activities Associ-

Last year, Troy Athens clipped Northville 1-0 in the title game and upset a six-year streak in which a WLAA team had won the state championship. But thanks to Stevenson's victory, the coveted crown is back where it belongs in the center of the hottest soccer area of the state.

With the abundance of talent in Observeland, selecting an All-Area team is no easy task. But a panel of area coaches finally agreed on an all-star cast that would make a concrete winner out of even the losingest coach.

The players on the 1990 All-Area team combined for 132 goals and 90 assists this season, led by Farmington's Carrie Maier, recipient of the Miss Soccer Award. Five other members of the team earned All-State recognition and three received All-State honorable mention.

The following teams are represented on the All-Area squad:

• Stevenson, which survived possibly the state's most competitive district tournament and eventually won the Class A title despite finishing fifth in the WLAA.

• Farmington Hills Mercy, which won district and regional championships and advanced to the state semifinals.

• Farmington, which won the WLAA title and was ranked No. 1 in Class A most of the year before falling to Mercy (1-0) in the district final via a sudden-death shootout.

· Livonia Churchill, which was ranked No. 1 at the start of the season and finished second to Farmington in the WLAA.

• Livonia Franklin, which was defeated by Livonia Churchill in the district tournament at Northville, which Stevenson won.

Six of the 11 members of the All-Area first team are underclassmen and will return to action next spring. Michele Minton, Jenny Russell, Amy Trunk, Carrie Maler, Ragen Coyne, Margaret Martin and Sue Gibson are first-team repeaters.

Henry Klimes, in his second year at the helm of the Mercy program, .. guided the Marlins to the state semis and was selected Coach of the Year.

The Marlins were Catholic League runners-up to Birmingham Marian and finished the season with a 13-2-4 overall record. But they caught fire in the state tournament, beating then top-ranked Farmington in the district final, and avenging their loss to Marian in the regional final.

ALL-AREA FIRST TEAM

Renee Larabell, Junior, Mercy, goalkeeper: In just her second year of varsity competition, Larabell compiled an Impressive 14-2-4 personal record which included seven shutouts - one each in the district and regional finals. She owns a career .924 save percentage and a career, 1.21 goals-against average. Larabell earned All-State honorable mention and was selected to the All-Catholic first

"Renee had an outstanding season," Mercy coach Henry Kilmes said. "Without Renee playing her best in the district and regional finals, we wouldn't have advanced to the semifinals. She has great hands and the talent to be one of the best keepers in the state."

-Michele Minton, senior, Salem, forward: With 17 goals and 17 assists this season, Minton pushed her career totals to 78 goals and 35 assists.

Minton is a two-time, first-team, All-State selection. She earned all-conference honors in the WLAA. "She was a co-MVP this year and one of our tri-captains," Salem coach Ken Johnson said. "She was a team leader on the field. She is very fast and has developed into a terrific scorer."

Jenny Russell, senior, Canton, forward: A four-year starter for the Chiefs, Russell compiled 57 goals and 33 assists during her high school career at Canton Including 19 goals and 10 assists She received Class A first team All-

State honors in both her junior and senior years. Russell, an All-American last year, will attend Kalamazoo College in the fall. She was also an all-conference selection 'Jenny Russell is a true team leader and not only on game day," Canton coach Don Smith sald. "She's the first to practice and the last to leave. Jenny gives 147 percent of herself not only in sports, but in her school work as well, where she holds a 3.8 grade-point-average."

Amy Trunk, senior, Farmington, forward: Trunk totaled 73 goals and 53 assists during her four-year career, finishing this season with 13 goals and 13 assists. She earned all-conference, all-county and all-state honorable mention hon-

"Amy has an extremely high work ethic and has dedicated a lot of her time to her high school soccer career," Farmington coach Cathy Cole said. "Because of her hard work she has developed into one of the state's best team players."

Carrie Maler, senior, Farmington, halfback: Maler finished her career with a flair, scoring 21 goals and assisting on seven this season. She improved her career totals to 87 goals and 36 assists. Maler was Farmington's co-MVP, earned all-conference, all-county and all-state

"Carrie is a very skilled soccer player," Cole said. "She has the ability to deny a player the ball, then generate a highly offensive attack. She will be a fine asset to (the University of) Wisconsin's pro-

Ragen Coyne, sophomore, Stevenson, halfback: Coyne was instrumental in leading the Spartans to the Class A title by scoring 18 goals and passing for 13 assists. He two-year totals are 20 goals and 38 assists.

Coyne is a two-time, all-state, first-team representative, a member of the Junior Olympic Development national team and the under-17 All-America team. She has been playing soccer for 10 years and has been a member of the state and region champion Michigan Hawks.

"Ragen has excellent ball skills and is at an excellent fitness level." Stevenson coach Mary Kay Boots said. "She is able to run the center of the field the entire game and turn it up a notch near the end of the game.

"Ragen was one of our co-captains and she displays a tremendous desire to win. She has extreme quickness with the ball, which enhances her ability to take on players and threaten opponent's de-

Patty Shea, sophomore, Franklin, halfback: Shea scored 12 goals and finished with eight assists for the Patriots this spring and earned an All-State honorable mention. Shea earned all-conference honors in the WLAA and graces the All-Area first team for the first time.

"Patty was a co-captain for Franklin this year," Franklin coach Joe Galea said. "She is very aggressive on the field and is a very hard worker. She doesn't back down from anyone, has good ball control and a tremendous shot."

Margaret Martin, senior, Farm-Ington, defender: The captain of the Farmington team, Martin capped her high school career with 17 goals and 13 assists this season, giving her career totals of 68 goals and a school record 63 as-

She earned all-county and all-conference honors and was selected to the Class A second team. Martin plans to continue her career at Michigan State.

"Margaret is one of the state's best play makers," Cole said. "She has the ability to win the ball, then set up a teammate for a quality shot. She is also a very good field general because she has the ability to see and anticipate play."

Stephanie Speen, Junior, Church-III, defender: With one year of varsity eligibility remaining, Speen should be a leader for the Chargers next year after winning the team MVP award this season. She earned all-WLAA honors and was selected to the Class A second team.

"Stephanle has great speed and reads the play well," Churchill coach Nick O'Shea sald.

Lori Godlewski, junior, Stevenson, defender: The junior sweeper

She earned All-Lakes Division (WLAA): honors and is featured on the All-Area squad for the first time.

"We moved Lon to the sweeper position at the start of the playoffs to strengthen our defense," Boots sald. "Although she loves to play forward, she accepted the move to benefit the team. Lori's play on defense added another dimension to our team, which was a major factor in us moving through the playoffs.

"Lori handles pressure well and remains composed in the defensive third of the field. She is able to carry the ball out and initiate our offensive attack. She has tremendous speed and vision and also holds a 3.4 grade-point average."

Sue Gibson, sophomore, Farm-Ington, defender: Gibson scored nine goals and had eight assists as a defender this year, increasing her two-year varsity totals to 16 goals and 18 assists.

She returns to the All-Area first team for the second straight year, earned allcounty honors and all-Lakes Division honors in the WLAA. "Sue is a talented athlete," Cole sald. "She is powerful, quick and can carry the ball well. She is an intelligent player in her sweeper position. Youth holds Mantle in Westland battle

By Brad Emons staff writer

Coach Jerry Pitcher's older and more experienced Westland Federation I club may have left their best baseball in Cincinnati last weekend.

But for Chet Kapla's upstart Westland Federation II team, their day to shine was Tuesday at Westland John Glenn High as his 15-year-olds knocked off the 16-year-olds, 11-8, in a battle of Mickey Mantle-age teams in the Little Caesars circuit.

The game, which ran an agonizing three hours, was halted with one-out in the bottom of the seventh because of darkness.

Good thing for Westland II, because their older counterparts were rallying, having already scored three times with only one out and the tying run scheduled at the plate.

"Our pitching staff was a little worn out," said Pitcher, whose team finished with a 5-1 record, good enough for third place finish (Westland Federation's highest finish ever) last weekend in the 14-team Midland Invitational in Ohio.

"We were actually down to one pitcher, but we also left a ton a runners on base," Pitcher added. "We were also missing our lead-off hitter, but that's not the reason why we lost. I don't know how you can put it, but they (Westland II) just kicked the living . . . "

KAPLA FILLED IN the rest of third.

the blanks, acknowledging the fact that Westland I was caught a bit off-

"That's a good ball club," he said of the older rivals. "Our team was 'up' coming in, very spirited going against the older boys. I also realize they just got back from a big tourney in Cincinnati where they used a lot of pitchers."

Kapla went to the well with three pitchers - his son, Scott (Redford Catholic Central High), who started, followed by Sam DePrima (CC) and Mark Rutherford (Livonia Church-

Westland II pitchers gave up a total of 15 hits, but worked out of serious trouble for the most part.

"Our rotation went the way we wanted," Kapla said. "Scott throws fairly hard and he gave us two decent innings; then we went with Sam, who is more of an off-speed pitcher. and then we went back to Mark, whose another hard thrower. We went in with the idea of using three pitchers."

Westland I struck first in the bottom of the first when Andy Gagne and Gary Pierce both walked, Dan Taylor singled and Joe Couglin got credit for an RBI on a groundout to WESTLAND II answered with a run in the top of the second off lefty Charles Winters (Detroit DePorres) when Kapla doubled and later scored on a wild pitch.

Westland I forged ahead 3-1 in the third successive RBI singles by Gagne and Pierce.

Dan Gusoff, who led Westland I offensively, going 3-for-4, knocked in CC teammate Joe Vondracek with a single to make it 4-1 after three inn-

In the top of the fourth, Westland II exploded for six runs as Winters was sent to the bench.

Jeff Tapp (Wayne High) knocked in the tying and go-ahead runs with a single. Brett Walter (CC) walked to force in another, while Matt Roney (CC) added an RBI single. Roney then scored on a balk.

Westland II padded its lead, going up 7-4 on Tapp's RBI single in the sixth, but Joe Coughlin (Wayne) trimmed the deficit to 7-5 with a homer off Rutherford in the bottom of the sixth.

In the seventh, lefty Mike Thomas (Churchill) had trouble finding the plate and Westland II responded with four runs without the benefit of a hit. And with darkness approaching, scored three quick runs. DWIGHT REESE'S two-run triple in the made it 11-7. He later scored on a passed ball, cutting the deficit to three.

With nobody out, Gagne walked, but Thomas, caught batting out of order in the No. 2 position, was sent to the bench, his replacement making the first out.

Taylor followed with a single, but it was just too dark to continue as the umpires, conferring for the third time in the inning, decided to halt

"Batting out of order brought about a mess, otherwise we may have had more time," said Pitcher. "But the game had to stop, I had no objections."

It was Westland I's first league defeat in four games, while Westland If upped its record to 5-1.

"We hold tryouts together and then we split off and play on our own," Kapla explained. "This the first time we've played them. Last year, the schedule didn't have us meeting."

If there's any consolation for Westland I, it's that they'll have a rematch later in the summer.

And despite a loss to their younger counterparts, Pitcher, who gained notoriety leading Westland Mickey Mantle to a national title a few years ago, isn't about to push the panic button.

"This ranks as one of our best based on what we did last week in Cincinnati," he said. "I'm not wor-

Westland's Whitfield vaults onto scene

By Brad Emons staff writer

It's been a "Rocky Mountain High" for Westland's Jason Whitfield ever since his return from the U.S. Gymnastics Federation's Championships, June 7-10, in Denver, Colo.

The 16-year-old Whitfield, who will be a senior this fall at Franklin High, has been on "Cloud Nine" after finishing fifth in the all-around in the Junior Elite (under 18) division.

"My dreams are starting to come true," said Whitfield, who is eyeing a spot in the 1992 Olympics in Barcelona, Spain. "I can see '92 more clearly. I feel it's coming. My goal (at Denver) was to make the top eight. I'm real pleased."

By virtue of his fifth-place finish, Whitfield has also earned a spot, July 6-15, in the U.S. Olympic Festival in Minneapolis, Minn.

He'll be the youngest competitor among the nation's top 24 male gymnasts, which will include Lance Ringnold, considered America's best bet in 1992, and Kurt Thomas, who is making a comeback.

"I know Lance because I stayed with him a couple of years ago," said Whitfield. "It will be neat to compete against some of the people who have been hanging up on my walls."

WHITFIELD, who will travel abroad with the U.S. Junior National Team for the coming year, has made remarkable progress during the past 12 months, skipping the Class I and II junior lev-

gymnastics

In Denver, the 5-foot-4 Whitfield finished first in his best event among the six disciplines, the still rings. It's an event where he figures he could possibly earn a medal at the Minneapolis meet.

"I've doubled what I can do in the past year," he said. "It's strength, maturity and goal-setting. It's setting goals the right way, looking for a certain score at certain meets. It's learning new

Following the Olympic Festival, Whitfield will spent two weeks at an Olympic training camp in Indianapolis before traveling overseas as a member of the U.S. Junior squad.

"I'm excited about that," he said. "It will be my first time to compete against other countries. Hopefully will build confidence and I'll be able to make a name for myself. That's important in this Whitfield believes all the hard work is coming to fruition, the ardurous trips back-and-forth four times a week to the Genessee Valley Gymnastics Center near Flint where he trains under the watchful eve of coach Kurt Golder.

He also spends two days per week at the O's Gymnastics Center in Taylor where he trains and coaches younger competitors.

'SOMETIMES it's a hassle to drive up there (to Flint), sometimes you're tired or you don't want to study, but overall it's been real fun," Whitfield said. "It has to be fun to keep me in it. You have to have a lot of patience. You can't let things get you down."

And what does Whitfield do in his spare time? "I watch videos on the sport, a lot of the Europeon stuff," he said.

Whitfield, who will turn 17 on Oct. 2, will be making visits in the fall to some of the NCAA's top men's gymnastics programs. High on his list are Nebraska, Iowa, Ohio State and Oklahoma.

He carries a 2.9 grade-point average at Franklin and must score an 18 on the ACT to gain admittance to a Division I program.

And because of his improvement, Whitfield hopes to relieve some of the financial burdens gymnastics places on he and his family.

"They (the Federation) will be paying for all my trips, and that should help," he said.

WHITFIELD, who was enrolled in a summer recreation gymnastics program at age 4, played soccer for seven years before taking up the rings. vault, floor excercise, pommel horse ("My weakest event"), high bar and parallel bars seriously at age 12.

"My parents (Jim and Cathy) gave me my choice," said Jason. "My sister (Jenny) chose

Redford defenseman is Penguins pick

By C.J. Risak staff writer

There's no denying Pat Neaton his place, at least for the next three years — a place which happens to be cold and slick, full of bumps and bruises and hard work.

Neaton, from Redford, is currently a member of the University of Michigan hockey team. He was a big reason the Wolverines enjoyed one of their finest seasons ever in 1989-90; a freshman defenseman, Neaton collected three goals and 23 assists in 42 games, the secondbest scoring totals among U-M blueliners.

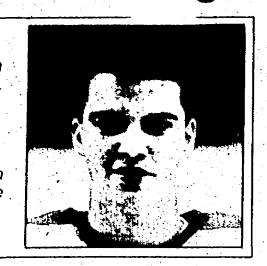

The Wolverines' 24-12-6 record attracted some attention. So did their players in last Saturday's Nafional Hockey League draft. Six were drafted: five freshmen and one freshman-to-be.

Neaton was one of the draftees. He was picked by the Pittsburgh Penguins in the seventh round. His teammate and roommate, freshman defenseman Chris Tamer from Dearborn Heights (Crestwood), was also chosen by Pittsburgh, in the fourth round.

NEITHER WILL be playing pro soon, however. That's not the way the NHL operates. Pittsburgh will retain both players' pro rights. The Penguins could sign them now, but why? The thinking is to let them

'Making a college team and getting draft. those are all goals. everyone has when they're young.'

> — Patrick Neaton Pittsburgh draftee

develop at the collegiate level, then sign them after they graduate.

Which suits Neaton fine. The former Redford Catholic Central student (he left CC after his junior year and graduated from Toronto's DeLaSalle prep school) has plenty of plans between now and then.

For instance: Neaton is currently at St. Cloud (Minn.) University attending a hockey camp that will help determine which U.S.-born players go where, as part of national teams.

"Making a college team and making the Olympic team and getting drafted, those are all goals everyone has when they're young," said Neaton, recalling his childhood ambitions. "They're always out there."

BUT. IN Neaton's mind. first things first. He has work to do between now and his pro debut. "My size and stuff (6-foot, 180 pounds). I have to work out hard. Plus, my education has always been a goal I

"I definitely want to get my degree, and I'll work hard at hockey. Then, whatever happens with hockey, I'll have my degree."

His selection in the seventh round neither surprised nor disappointed him. "It was expected," Neaton said. "I figured I'd go in the middle rounds somewhere.

"If you're picked in the middle rounds, you have to work like crazy to make it."

But, as Neaton added: "If you can play, it doesn't matter what round you're drafted in."

While his size may be a drawback, his talent is not. An offensive-minded defenseman, one of Neaton's strong points is his ability to move the puck quickly up the ice. He was the quarterback on U-M's power play much of last season, quite a responsibility for a freshman.

"The coach (Red Berenson) showed a lot of confidence in me, putting me in there," said Neaton. 'That helped a lot.".

NEATON WAS teamed with David Harlock, another freshman, on defense. The twosome were U-M's second defensive unit, which meant the freshmen were often on the ice in pressure situations. Harlock was also drafted, by the New Jersey Devils in the second round.

When the camp at St. Cloud University ends this week, Neaton will be on his way back to Ann Arbor, where he and Tamer will continue to work out as Neaton tries to bulk up. On July 5, it will be back on the road, this time to the 10-day Olympic Festival training camp.

Hockey has become a year-round activity for Neaton. But he doesn't mind. "It's fun. It's something I enjoy, but it does fill my time. My freshman year, everything just flew by. It was over before I knew

The Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference has named its all-league academic at-large team, and a pair of Observerland studentathletes were honored.

Jefferson Gray may not be big, but he hopes to make a big impact on the football field for Beloit College, in Beloit, Wis.

Gray, from Livonia, was a standout defensive lineman at Dearborn Divine Child - but at 5-foot-11, 180pounds, he was a diminutive one as well. Gray earned all-city, all-division and was honorable mention all-Catholic League as a senior.

"Jest is a terrific football player, and we are very pleased that he has decided to join us at Beloit College," said Buccaneer coach Ed DeGeorge. "We expect that he will make a major contribution to our program in his very first year with us."

Beloit, an NCAA Division III school, was 6-3 last fall and returns 19 of 24 starters (including the place kicker and punter). The Bucs set 14 offensive records. The upcoming season will be the 100th in the college's history.

For Doug Copley, a trip to the NCAA Division III track and field championships May 23-26 ended with a good, but not quite good enough, effort.

Copley, a junior at Albion College from Livonia Churchill, placed ninth in the discus semifinal — one position away from qualifying for the final and earning All-American status.

Prep drug testing remote

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

The Melvindale School District will begin drug testing itsathletes randomly this fall. But doc expect any area high schools to forw suit.

Athletic directors interlewed by The Eccentric say the be approach right now to solving problems among their athletes is rug education. When the Melvidale School Board unanimously agroved (7-0) random street-drug teding in April. area A.D.s were intigued by the idea but weren't readyo support it.

Five area A.D.s avilable for comment said they oppde drug testing, and they believe dug use among their athletes is isolted.

"I'm sure we'll a watch (Melvindale's drug-testin/program) closely," said Bob Akins, the Walled Lake schools athlic director. "The thing that concens me is what I read and what ive heard has not convinced me tht tests are always 100 percent acorate.

"It (drug tes/ng) would be a deterrent, but I'd hie to see someone innocent be harned. I'm not a liberal by any streth of the imagination, but I would be just devastated if someone indeent was caught."

SAID DCK ULRICH, athletic director of fe Rochester schools: "I'm an Amerian history teacher and I'm very muh a flag waver, but I think that peole's rights need to be guaranteed that's what makes us great. I have difficult time in authorizing tests o someone else. That's why I feel edcation is a much better avenue. We had a horrible time in the '60s and early '70s, when all we thought we had to do was scare children — that doesn't work."

The Michigan High School Athletic Association also opposes drug testing at the high school level, according to the MHSAA's assistant director Warren, McKenzie, There are several questions to be answered before considering drug testing, one of which is civil rights.

McKenzie outlined several reasons for the MHSAA's stance on the issue.

"Our basic position is not towards drug testing," McKenzie said. "For one reason, you can get testing, but you have to pay through the nose to test and test accurately.

"Also, there are many avenues that are needed to be utilized before testing - and the primary one is education among students, coaches, parents and the community.

"Third, if you're going to test in high school, is it fair to just test athletes? If you're going to test athletes. you should test randomly all students and that goes back again to expenses. Many schools have trouble enough — with millages not passing - just keeping their doors open on a day-to-day basis, without having drug testing."

GERALD WOLF, superintendent of Melvindale schools, defends the school district's decision to go to a drug testing program and says on the contrary, it won't cost much at all. Wolf said only 5 percent of Melvindale High School's athletes will be randomly tested during each of the three seasons of the school year.

Each individual test — which can detect only street drugs like marijuana and cocaine - will cost about

He said the school district will not test for sterold use, because that would cost between $100 and $200 per Individual.

"The cost of (street drug) testing is going to be minimal and 99 percent of it will be paid for by the district or by federal and state grant," Wolf

If an athlete tests positive for drug use, he or she can remain eligible by enrolling in a drug education program in the community, Wolf said.

Wolf said Melvindale's randomtesting program will be copied after one which began in Tippecanoe, Ind., this past school year. More than 600 athletes in the two high schools in the Tippecanoe School Corp. were tested and none tested positive, said a spokesman for Tippecanoe schools superintendent Richard Wood.

The American Civil Liberties Union appealed the Tippecanoe drug-testing program in court for two years before the decision was upheld last summer. Wolf doesn't foresee Melvindale having trouble in court.

Melvindale voters recently approved a 7.5 mill renewal by nearly 2-1, showing the community's behind the school board, Wolf said.

"We are a problem-solving unit, not a tax-collecting agency," he said. "I'm glad to see a (school) board that will quit giving parents excuses and that has the guts to solve and attack the problem. Rather than turn their backs and say, 'Yes, we have a drug problem but it's society's problem, not ours.' "

Steroid effects brought to light

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

Since January 1989 Dick Ulrich has studied the side effects of steroids with a committee set up by the Michlgan Interscholastic Athletic Administrators Association.

Now, Ulrich, the Rochester schools athletic director, is ready to share that information.

Ulrich and four other members in the MIAAA will conduct their third inservice program later this summer for high school coaches and administrators throughout the state.

The message they want to parlay might go something like this: sterolds might not sound like a "hard-core drug," but they can be just as damaging as cocaine and marijuana.

"OUR OBJECTIVE is to provide information that the coaches can use for their kids," said Ulrich, who opposes drug testing. "Steroids are real bad for kids. They want to use it cosmetically - to look good on the beach - just as much as they want to improve physically for athletics. They want instant gratification of looking stronger but there's a lot of physical and psychological dangers."

Even if area school districts were in favor of drug testing, they might never be able to test for steroids. It costs about $185-200 to test individually for steroids, Ulrich said. On a districtwide basis, the cost could diminish to a little more than $100, he said. There are only three steroid-testing laboratories in North America that the NCAA considers "reliable and valid," according to Ulrich, adding to the trouble of testing for the drug.

Family Night

New series for kids, grown-ups

By Carolyn Barnett-Goldstein special writer

HIS IS A FAMILY music alert! Finally, there's an evening concert series for the entire family.

The Meadow Brook Music Festival will present the first of three Family Night series concerts, "Serious Fun with the DSO," with David Daniels conducting the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 11, at Baldwin Pavilion on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills.

Second concert in the series is the "New Vaudeville Night," starring Fred Garbo and the Wright Bros., with juggling, acrobatics and clowning, Wednesday, July 25. The family series concludes with "Santa's Summertime Stage," on Thursday, Aug. 16. It features Thanksgiving Parade floats four months early, plus marching bands and drum and bugle corps. As promised, Santa will make an early appearance.

Gregg Bloomfield, managing director of the music festival, places so much importance on instituting the family series he decided to open it by engaging the DSO and "giving up one of its pops concert series to

HE EXPLAINS the festival also is recognizing and considering the existence of single-parent families. "What we are attempting to do with this whole family night series is to make it possible for single parents, as well as other parents, to come together with children of all ages," he

The series is not to be confused with the (daytime) children's series concerts. It differs in its evening performance, in its age recommendation of 7 and up, and in its musical

The opening family concert also is billed as a behind-the-scenes look at classical music. Bloomfield says, "The audience will see what goes into preparing one of these pieces, and what went on with the composers when they were working. It will see how different parts (of a piece) came together. It didn't just always exist. Somebody had to put it together." This applies to the performance

MAESTRO DANIELS, a professor of conducting in the graduate school at Oakland University, programmed the concert with this in mind. "We tried to put together pieces that are fun to play and to listen to. I will speak to the audience directly, and there will be musical excerpts played by the orchestra, along with the discussion," he says. Daniels also previews the selections.

cussion). Written for orchestra and narrator, it is to be presented in its entirety.

Next is an excerpt called "Hungarian March" from "The Damnation of Faust" by Fresh composer Hector Berlioz. It is the first of eight sketches in which Berlioz locates Faust in Hungary. He is observing the Hungarian army marching across the plain while he is in deep

The piece was written in one night in Vienna. Berlioz based the march - originally a composition unto itself - on a Hungarian air, the Rakoczy theme, later including it in "Faust." Listen for the soft trumpet fanfare as it opens. Like Britten's piece, it uses a fugue form as it builds to a climax, or crescendo. At its debut in Hungary in 1846, the audience went wild.

THE WILLIAM TELL Overture by the Italian composer Rossini will immediately be recognized as the "Lone Ranger" theme. Daniels says, "It's a great overture with imaginative orchestration." He reveals this is one of the first orchestral pieces he heard.

The theme of Russian composer Mussorgsky's opera "Khovanshchina," from which the next piece "Persian Dances" is excerpted, remains of current interest today. It is one of an epic tragedy of a country fighting to render itself free from its past. While it is a medieval past from which it is wrenching itself, and the main characters fight between themselves, challenging the young Czar Peter, the people of Russia suf-

Prince Khovansky signals his Persian slave girls to dance. "It starts out slow and languorous and then becomes kind of wild toward the end." Daniels says.

This opera was left uncompleted. Rimsky-Korsakov, a contemporary of Mussorgsky, finished and orechestrated it. Korsakov also taught Stravinsky, the Russian composer whose "Infernal Dance" from "The Firebird" follows. Consequently, Daniels says, "There are two Russian dances representing two generations of Russian composers."

Similarly, the "Grand March" from Verdi's opera "Aida" demonstrates Berlioz's influence on Verdi in its expansive orchestration. "Alda" is considered as having something for everyone.

NEXT IS BIZET'S "Carillon" from his piece "L'Arlesienne," written for a stage work. Listen for the horns as the piece begins. They sound like bells. Then the flutes come in with the strings. The horns' theme returns as the end of the piece recapitulates its opening. Moviegoers may know this French composer's opera "Carmen."

Next piece is from Hungarian composer Bela Bartok's "Hungarian Sketches." The sketch to be performed depicts a "slightly tipsy" peasant.

The concert concludes with a 60second piece. While cute and clever are not usually coupled to describe a musical composition, these words do illustrate American composer Paul White's "Mosquito Dance" from his "Five Miniatures." The instruments of the orchestra imitate the sound of around and around until a slapstick is heard, and the music ends.

Daniels hopes "there will be something to capture everybody's imagination. When I was a kid, I grew up in this little town, and I never saw a real orchestra until I was in my teens. It's great to be in a place where there is a great symphony orchestra like the Detroit Symphony right here and, for that matter, community orchestras, and on TV. I envy kids today, I must say."

His first introduction to symphony orchestras was the old 78 RPM record. "I was a teenager with a disposable income when LP's were coming in," he says. "And when they came in, the 78 records went on sale. I remember saving my allowance and buying the 'Rite of Spring' (by Stravinsky). Outdoor cafe

Swanees' Outdoor Cafe opens to the public at 5:30 p.m. Friday at the Novi Hilton. The cafe, next to the hotel's steak and seafood Swan restaurant, operates Monday-Saturday. Cocktails, tropical drinks and other beverages are available. Live entertainment is featured each Thursday, along with Chef Silvia's revolving grilled appetizer menu including Cajun-style barbecue shrimp, marinated breast of chicken and baby-back ribs. Other appetizers also are offered. All week long, desserts and cordials from the Swan may be ordered at Swanees.'

Fox Centre

Tres Vite, modern cafe that is the joint endeavor of Chef Jimmy Schmidt and Little Caesars President Michael Ilitch, has opened in the Fox Centre Building in downtown Detroit. The interior design combines custom woodwork, Italian lighting and an exposed kitchen. Photo blow-ups from the Paris restaurant scene of the '50s are hung on the walls. There is furniture crafted by Michigan artisans and Memphis Collection chairs. Menu at the casual, moderately priced eatery (average $6 for lunch, $14 for dinners) features grilled entrees, homemade breads, pasta and desserts, with an emphasis on seasonal ingredients.

Shore dinner

A shore dinner will be presented at the special monthly dinner at 7 p.m. Monday-Tuesday at the Lark in West Bloomfield. The menu includes codfish beignets, clams casino, oysters provencal, soft-shelled crab with sherry cream sauce (or a choice of clam and leek soup), champagne and cranberry sorbet cocktail, roast Maine lobster, lemon mousse in a pecan shell, coffee or tea and a bonbon, for $67.50 per person. Reservations are required.

Wine selections

A winemaker dinner will be at 6:30 p.m. Monday in the Restaurant at the Ritz-Carlton, Dearborn. The dinner is co-sponsored by the hotel ad Rombauer Vineyards of Napa Valley, Calif. A four-course gourmet meal will complement the fine wines of Rombauer. Cost is $52 a person. Reservations are required. Also, for wine-lovers, to celebrate the grand opening of the Ritz-Carlton in Sydney, the Dearborn hotel has two Australian wines on its regular menu during June. A 1987 Saltram Mamre Brook Chardonnay and a 1984 Saltram Mamre Brook Cabernet Sauvignon/Shiraz are each $28 per bot~ tle, or $6 by the glass.

New steakhouse

The Grill has been transformed into an authentic steakhouse at the Ritz-Carlton, Dearborn, Beef steaks, chops and seafood are on the dinner menu of the 70-seat restaurant. Servers in white dinner jackets and long white aprons present the new menu, which is highlighted by 11 grill selections and eight house specialtles. The grill's club-like setting includes mahogany woodwork, 18th and 19th century artworks and a marble fireplace. The Grill Luncheon Buffet, for executives on the go, continues this summer.

Summer menu

Executive Chef Max Weeks has introduced a summer menu at the Ritz-Cariton, Dearborn. Dinner choices include Atlantic Red Snapper with Fennel in a Saffron Broth, Beef Tenderloin Medallions with Corn and Asparagus Relish with a Port Wine Sauce and Baked Cornish Hen with a Bean and Spinach Cassoulet in a Rosemary and Thyme Glaze. The luncheon menu also has a lighter flair for summer. Several low-sodium, low-fat and low-cholesterol sections, labeled Fitness Cuisine, are offered for both lunch and dinner.

Drama powerfully interpreted

Performances of the Jewish Ensemble Theatre production of "Slow Dance on the Killing Ground" continue through Sunday, July 1, at the Jewish Community Center in West Bloomfield. For ticket information call the box office at 788-2900.

As its title suggests, "Slow Dance on the Killing Ground" is not the most conventional of dramas. As skillfully presented by the Jewish Ensemble Theatre, this little-known play by William Hanley is powerful, puzzling and thought-provoking.

Set in a small Brooklyn candy store in 1962, on the same day that Adolf Eichmann was hung for war crimes, the drama explores guilt and the universal need for love and acceptance. Circumstances bring three very disparate characters together for some soul-searching.

Glas (David Fox), a non-Jewish German who purports to have been a political prisoner in a concentration camp, now leads a quiet existence as the owner of the store. Randall (Roosevelt T. Johnson) is a very strange black teen who comes bounding into the store late at night, clearly hiding from the law. In Act I the pair does a slow dance, circling each other with accusations and hostility.

The first act ends with the sudden arrival of Rosie (Stacle Passon), a young woman who got lost on her way to an abortionist and faints as soon as she reaches the store. In the remainder of the play, Rosie will serve as the catalyst that brings Glas and Randall to confess their truths and reach new understanding while both try to convince her to forget the abortion.

ALL THREE performers are excellent, but Johnson's role is clearly the most demanding. Super-charged with energy most of the time, Randall is a manic-depressive who occasionally runs out of gas and changes times as staccato as machine-gun his whole persona, Incongruously dressd in dark glasses, top hat and short flowing cape, Randall all but swings from the light fixtures as he nervously hops around the small store. He mixes mispronounced big words with an exaggerated streethip style of speech, his delivery at

Polio changed conductor's musical focus

By Carolyn Barnett-Goldstein special writer

James De Preist, guest conductor with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra at Meadow Brook Festival this evening and Sunday, works from a sitting position for a valid reason.

In 1962 when he was 26 years old, he went to Bangkok as conductor on a State Department tour and returned a changed person. "I had met (Leonard) Bernstein before I left and he said the tour would be good because in the course of the tour I would be able to do all the things I could do and find the one thing I couldn't do without. And that was

"I contracted polio on the tour, but I had no frame of reference of doing any serious conducting before I had polio. So the career with polio began at the same time. The polio was irrelevant as far as I was concerned. It helped me focus, certainly, during the time when I was in the rehabilitation center."

Both of this week's guest soloists, planist Garrick Ohlsson (Thursday) and violinist Itzak Perlman (Sunday) are two of his "oldest friends."

De Preist said, "Itzak is important to me for a variety of reasons. He was one of the first artists I worked with and I was standing up conducting in Stockholm and he (also afflicted with pollo) said, 'What are you standing up for?' and I had no real answer. So from that point I sat Because when I was standing I had to worry if a gesture I would make would throw me off balance. So, I owe Itzak that.

"Garrick and I are just sort of like hand and glove. I know what he's going to do. He knows what I am going to do."

WHAT STOOD OUT in conversation with De Preist is his enthusiasm for life and for his music. A Phildelphia native, he came from a home where music was "just a natural part. There was singing, plano lessons . . . and we listened to the Metropolitan Opera and Toncanini broadcasts. "

He said his family were all musical, but only his aunt, internationally known contralto, Marian Anderson, pursued a musical career. Once he was a teenager, she gave him scores and recordings of symphonies, which gave him "a daily opportunity" to

He remembered receiving Schubert's C Major Symphony ("The Great") and the "Unfinished" Symphony." "Schubert was obviously important to her," he said. Then she presented him with the scores of Beethoven's Second, Fourth and Sixth symphonies which he still carries around with him. He described

He said while his aunt, at 93, no longer performs, "We just have fun together . . . and share experiences of places and people." He had just been to a meeting at WETA-TV about a documentary on his aunt whom he visited before coming here.

LIKE THE DETROIT Symphony Orchestra and its audiences, the late Antal Dorati, conductor of the DSO in the late 70s, has a special place in De Preist's life. They met when Dorati judged the Metropoulos International Conducting Competition in 1964 in which De Preist took first placé.

down to conduct and it was freeing. and dinner at 21," Dorati pulled me aside and said, 'You know, I want you to realize there will be careers that will go along faster and careers that will be flashier . . . you must keep focused on the music-making and let the career take care of itself'."

> De Preist served as assistant conductor under Dorati at the National Symphopny Orchestra. He said Dorati didn't "bury" him. "I had the opportunity to do real repertoire, and do it in New York. Yeah, I owed him a great deal. I owe a lot of people a lot," he said.

> De Preist is carrying on that tradition in Oregon where he is principal conductor of the Oregon Symphony through his orchestra's program for assistant conductors. He said,"... let the people conduct and, if you can be helpful, help them say what they want to say, not what you would do if you were there."

> De Preist said he had originally planned to be a lawyer and he graduated with a degree in economics from the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce. While he was studying composition with Vincent Persichetti at Phildelphia Conservatory of Music he majored in film at the Annenberg School of Communica-

Aviva Robinson talks about how the paper-making process is a new and exciting form of art for her.

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

Think of Aviva Robinson's art and you think painstaking precision made more accessible by a fine, often subtle, sense of color. Control, above

Well, a funny thing happened on the way to the studio. From all the paper cutting she did to create those precise sculptural forms, all that careful, exacting work, she developed the modern bugaboo of wrist muscle repetition, carpel tunnel syndrome.

One operation later, doubtless followed by warnings about never picking up a pair of scissors again, she's still making excellent art. Instead of cutting paper, she's making it and for what some viewers might think she loses in precision, she gains in emotion.

In truth, it's quite amazing how Robinson has taken to paper making, turning this, like her paper cutting, into a sculptural form and adopted her eye and skill with color to the new medium.

"I took two-paper making workshops a year and a half ago . . . but, it was six months before I got something I liked," she said as she stood by some of the pieces in her first show of this new work at Robert Kidd Gallery of Birmingham.

SHE TAKES OVER at the point where she buys the pulp. She speaks with great enthusiasm about pouring the pulp, the vacuuming process and watching it take shape over the forms she places underneath and on top to get the dimensional forms in the paper.

"I've never had so much fun before," she said. "I'd been working so technically for so many years, this quick result is a high. It takes about 20 minutes." That of course, doesn't include the coloring, the drawing, painting and sometimes incising which she does on these works.

She is elated with the results she has gotten and her satisfactions with her art at this moment. Like any fine artist in any field, she has been a professional long enough to know immediately what she wants it to do and how it should look. The fun of paper making is the surprise and delight of pulling off the covering after it has formed and seeing what happened.

THE LOOSENESS WHICH COMES with this medium is also a welcome change for her. There is a level of happenstance in it that was never there previously and that makes for a freer style and looser approach that suits her well. It's a more laid back kind of art. She still does the geometric fans and bands of graded color, but these are a part of the work rather than the sum total.

After she told her story about the problem, the operation and the challenge of a new medium, she said, "It's fun to come out of it with something like this.

Robert Kidd Gallery, 107 Townsend, Birmingham, is open 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday-

Garden walk to benefit renovation project

By Peggy Aulino staff writer

If you're going to tiptoe through the tulips with the Friends for the Development of Greenmead next week, they have just one request — be a pal and don't wear high heels.

The organization, which raises money for the Livonia city-owned historical park, is sponsoring a Garden Walk on Saturday, June 30. It has lined up seven private homes for public strolling, and the various gardens at Greenmead will also be part of the tour.

The show will go on rain or shine, said Theresa Jaye, chairperson of the walk. So she has been telling people to dress in accordance with the day's weather. And the tender ground can act like quicksand when poked by high heels, especially after it "Wear comfortable, flat walking shoes," she suggested. Besides protecting the volunteers' gardens, it will serve well the feet of the garden walkers, who have a lot ground available to cover. Maps of the garden locations will available at Greenmead the day of the walk. The homes will be numbered, but there is no order in which they must be visited. "Instead of everybody going from number one to number two, with all congestion at one house, we are letting them go at their own pace, whereever they want to go," Jaye said. Some of the gardens on the tour are professionally landscaped; others are done by the homeowner, Jave said. And some of the homeowners will be on hand to give guided tours.

One home features a rock garden and more than 100 varieties of dwarf trees. It also has 40 varieties of lilies and nearly that many types of

A garden in Rosedale features a backyard hot tub with a privacy wall surrounded by pyramid junipers and globular yews. There are rare shades of impatiens in the yard, and all the flowers and shrubs are watered by a computerized sprinkling

One of the backyards has a creek over which there is a rustic bridge. The flowers include several varieties of lilles, veronica, margurites, evening primrose, oriental popples and lavender.

The gardens at Greenmead are maintained by volunteers. They are near the Hill House, which was built in 1841 and is on the National Register of Historic Places. The Hill House Museum will also be open during the garden tour. Tickets for the event are $4 in advance or $5 on the day of the walk. Proceeds will go toward the renovation of the Alexander Blue House. The Italianate-style farmhouse, which is more than 130 years old, was moved to Greenmead from another Livonia location about three years ago. Jaye said it will cost almost $200,000 to restore the Tickets can be purchased at Greenmead, in all Livonia libraries and on the fifth floor of Livonia City Hall. Greenmead is at Eight Mile and Newburg roads.

The home owner who tends the garden shown at right is especially interested in perennials and this year lilles are the focus. Two years ago a deck was added to the yard and it provides a summer location for indoor plants as well as for many container plantings of colorful annuals.

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

Now, we're talkin' ugh-ly

By Peggy Aulino 'staff writer

Take it from a person who looked at hundreds of pictures of ugly bathrooms on a recent afternoon. One person's pit is an-

A couple from Birmingham, who own an otherwise gorgeous English stone colonial, complained about what was indeed a horrible color scheme in the bath off their master bedroom.

But a visit to their fully functional facilities would probably seem like a weekend at the Hyatt to the West Bloomfield woman whose bathroom sink is a plastic foam tub with its handle hooked onto a faucet.

These were but two of more than 400 entries in an Ugly Bath contest, sponsored by Herald Wholesale Inc. and other companies that deal in home and bath accessories.

The rules were simple: Send in a picture and, in 100 words or less, a description of the pitiful privy.

THE FIRST prize, worth at least $7,000, was a remodeled bathroom. That went to the McGaffey family, whose six members share a single bathroom in a home near the University of Detroit campus. 'Hoping for hot water from the bathroom sink is a pipe dream," their entry said. "When my 3-year-old runs out yelling the sky is falling, I know it is true." Their peeling ceiling hangs above cracked walls and loose

THE McGAFFEY family got an architect friend to certify their bathroom is deserving of preferential treatment. "I can honestly say that in all of my 20 years as an architect, I haven't seen a bathroom more in need of renovation than the McGaffey's," their neighbor, Ted Berlinghof, wrote in a letter attached to the contest entry. "You really have to be in it to realize what those photos mean," said McGaffey, who still couldn't believe her good fortune a few days after being notified that she was the grand prize winner. "The bathroom will outdazzle the rest of the house and will be a real incentive to get the rest of the house in order."

THE IDEA for the contest was hatched by Janice Katz, whose husband, Gerald, owns Herald Wholesale, on Coolidge near Eight Mile in Oak Park.

Though she had nothing to do with choosing the winner, she said she was pleased the McGaffeys were chosen. Mary Lou McGaffey is a divorced mother of eight, five of whom still live

"We just thought it was fun, but now I can see it was more than fun. We are really going to impact a family's life here," Janice Katz said.

A few weeks after an advertisement for the contest ran in area publications, the store had received less than a dozen entries, and Katz thought maybe the idea was a bust.

"All of a sudden — I think people were getting their pictures developed — we started to get 40 a day," she said.

She was still getting entries the day after the winner was picked by a panel of judges, made up of journalists who write about interior design. The co-sponsors were Perspectives in Laminate and Virginia Tile.

IF THE contest participants were as handy with a toolbox as they are with the written word, they wouldn't need help with their lavatories.

Janice St. Pierre of Royal Oak wrote a four-stanza limerick that began:

"There once was a lady named Jan. She tried to fix up her can. She worked night and day on such little pay. She really could use a hand."

One family said it got 10 phone calls from people urging them to enter. Several said of their baths, "Must see to appreciate." And others simply cried, "Help."

One photo showed a leopard toilet seat. Another seat had red and white stripes. A contestant said of his tub, "Would you feel clean after you bathed in here?" And another said his medicine cabinet "needs a cure."

JOE AND TONI Grinnan, the Birmingham, couple with the English colonial, also have a sense of humor about their bath, which they referred to as the 'torture chamber."

"A previous owner, with a serious dungeon fetish, did the place up in his favorite shades of navy, purple, black, dark brown and red," they wrote.

And they included a warning about the photos in their entry materials. "If your constitution is strong, peruse the pictures."

The bath features a free standing sink, above which there is a mirror suspended by gold chains. A closeup of the blue, purple and black tiles was captioned, "This may be the ugliest ceramic tile ever produced."

The title of the Grinnan entry, by the way, was "Why we should win your contest or rent a port-a-john."

THEY WEREN'T alone in their belief that outdoor plumbing would be an improvement over what their house has to offer.

'My mother-in-law walks to the corner gas station to use their clean restroom," said the entry by Jerry and Judy Olli of

And their in-laws aren't the only ones who prefer to meet their bodily needs elsewhere.

Here are several books that should please the youngsters. Workman Publishing has recently released "The Garden Book and The Greenhouse" (a real, small plastic one) by Wes Porter, a just-the-rightsize book and 'house' for children 10 and under. It tells how to plant seeds, transplant, and care for more than over 20 plants. Included are understandable lessons in botany. What a wonderful way to introduce a child to gardening at any time of the year. A Book-of-the-Month-Club selection, it is one in a series of Workman's "Hand in Hand with Nature" series. den Way $10.95 soft) should inspire The complete kit is $9.95, paper covbegins with a chapter on equipment and takes the photographer through steps to be successful in this undertaking. How to compose the shots, take closeups and tips from professionals will help the amateur to take quality photographs and thus derive more enjoyment from the hobby. I'll study this one.

"Gardening for Fragrance" No. 121 suggests how to place fragrant plants indoors and out so that they can be a source of pleasure. It details how insects are attracted and/ or repelled by specific ones. For instance beetles and butterflies and moths are pollinaters. Fragrance, more often associated with something from the past than sound, has played an important part in civilization since the beginning of man. "Herbs & Cooking" (No. 122), a subject dear to my heart, is a help to the cook who wants to use herbs with fresh foods to enhance the flavors, without becoming overwhelmed with the idea. Scattered among the chapters are recipes of the authors using favorite herbs with something about their experiences growing them. The reader will find ideas for using herbs in the garden and various ways in which they can be enjoyed. This handbook is $6.95, plus $1.50 postage and handling. All of the above can be ordered from Brooklyn Botanic Garden, Order Dept., 1000 Washington Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y. 11225.

Organize those prints and negs

How many times have you searched for a box of slides or set of prints from that special occasion years ago only to be stymled as to where you put them?

Do you have boxes of loose slides and drawers full of loose prints that are totally disorganized? You're not alone. Many photographers regard the filing and storage of negatives, slides and prints as a disheartening task to be avoided. Imagine how convenient it would be to have an organized filling system, to have your prints and negatives orderly, neat and readily available. It's easier than you think.

Over the years cardboard boxes will emit discernable amounts of gases and peroxides that will tarnish the silver in films and prints and cause fading and loss of picture detail.

The same is true for brown paper envelopes often used to hold prints and negatives. Glue in the seams of many envelopes can cause discoloration if it gets too close to the emulsion of a picture.

EVEN RUBBER bands wrapped around a roll of negatives or stack of prints contain compounds that can cause damage.

Here are some ideas on how to avoid these dangers and assure the safety of a photographer's most valuable possession - pictures and nega-

Negatives: Care in preserving your prints must naturally begin with your negatives. Store them in transparent polyethylene holders which in turn can be stored in vinyl binders. Larger negetives can be placed in polythylene sleeves and housed in small steel cabinets.

Polyethylene will resist moisture and won't decay or grow misty with age. Furthermore, contact sheets can be made of the negatives without removing them from the holders.

Prints: Sunlight fades and bleaches some color prints. To avoid this, spend a few extra dollars and have a Cibachrome or Fuji "Super Gloss" print made from your favorite slides or negatives. They will last for many years without any fading and will give you prints of superior quality.

When mounting your prints, be sure to use acidfree rag board. Acids in regular mounting boards will eventually cause discoloration to the board as well as your print.

When buying a photo album, make sure the pages are made of an acid-free material, Finally, never hang photographs (or any artwork) where direct sunlight will strike them.

Slides: The biggest enemy to color slides is moisture. In an atmosphere of more than 60 percent humidity, fungus can form on your slides and damage them. Storage methods for slides should therefore provide for circulating air. Most slide trays and metal slide storage boxes are specifically manufactured to permit air circulation and thus reduce moisture.

Preserving your photographic memories is easy. A few simple measures will ensure that they'll be around to enjoy for a long time to com?.

Actor Kirk Douglas will be at Borders Book Shop. Novi Town Center 12:30 -1:30 p.m. Monday to sign his new novel, "Dance with the Devil." Novi Town Center is off Novi Road, just south of I-96. Douglas's autobiography, "The Ragman's Son," was an international best seller in 1988 and was on the New York Times best-seller list for 34 weeks. This new book, his first novel, has already been chosen as the Main Selection of the Literary Guild.

briefly speaking

PAGEANT OF POWER

The amazing machines that revolutionized American farms and factories nearly a century ago will be up and running during the eighth annual Pageant of Power at Greenfield Village, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, June 30 and July 1. Exhibits include an antique tractor pull and a demonstration pitting human muscle against a 25-ton locomotive. There will be guided tours, hands-on activity for children and a new selfguided tour. The Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village is at Oakwood Bouleyard and Village Road in Dearborn.

SYMPHONY PERFORMANCE

The Detroit Sympohony Orchestra performs for the second consecutive year at the annual International Freedom Festival at 8 p.m. Saturday, June 30, at Hart Plaza in downtown Detroit. Classical and pop favorites, including Tachaikovsky's 1812 Overture, will be performed under the direction of conductor Stephen Stein.

ART MUSEUM EXHIBIT

An exhibition of prints and watercolors by Sondra Freckelton opens Friday, July 6, at the University of Michigan Museum of Art, 525 S. State, Ann Arbor. The exhibit is a major retrospective of work by Freckelton, who is a Michigan native. Hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday-Friday, and 1-5 p.m. Saturday-Sunday.

DEARBORN SYMPHONY

SEASON Tickets are available for the 1990-91 concert season of the Dearborn Symphony Orchestra. Entitled World Tour for the New Decade, the season will feature guests artists from Italy, Austria, France, Germany and Spain, performing under the direction of conductor Leslie Dunner.... Programs are Oct. 12 and Nov. 30, 1990, and March J, April 19 and May 17, 1991. For ticket information, write DSO, P.O. Box 2063, Dearborn 48123, or call 565-2424.

• PRINT EXHIBIT

The work of four local photographers is on display at Nelson's Framing on Middlebelt south of Six Mile in Livonia. The artists are: Bob Meder, Randy Lentz, Victoria Wood and Joe Wisniewski. The exhibit will be on display through June 30. The store is open weekdays 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and until 7 p.m. on Thursdays and from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Satur-

JAZZ ON THE PLAZA.

The Steve Wood Quintet will be featured Tuesday, June 21, during the Music on the Plaza concert series at Grosse Pointe's Village. The concert will be 7-8:30 p.m. and is sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Village Association.

 ASQUINI ART EXHIBIT What the artist terms as glorified industrial subjects are the focal point of the art exhibit by commercial photographer Jay Asquini now in progress in the Livonia City Hall lobby and sponsored by the Livonia Arts Commission.

DANCE CONCERT

The Plazza Dance Company will present its annual dance concert Friday and Saturday, June 22 and 23, at Birmingham Groves High School, 13 Mile and Evergreen roads.

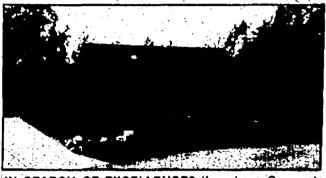

Piazza dancers won first-, secondand third-place awards at the recent Dupree Dance Expo Performing Arts Competition. The award-winning dances will be part of the concert program. Tickets for the 7:30 p.m. performances can be bought in advance at the Plazza Dance Company, in the Northville Plaza on Seven Mile in Northville. Further information is available at 348-3720.

CALLIGRAPHIC IMAGES

"Calligraphic Images '90," the annual spring show of the Michigan Association of Calligraphers, will feature Arabic calligraphy by Ali Majed at an exhibit under way in the Dearborn City Gallery, which is in the Dearborn City Hall.

Where would Her Majesty live in Birmingham?

At Buckingham, naturally.

She'd love the royal park across the street. She'd dote on the spacious two-bedroom apartment with fresh new interiors from the most modern appliances to the best lighting fixtures to designer carpeting to contemporary verticals.

She'd like the uncommon amount of room and royal way the service staff treats her. After all, a person's home ought to be their palace.

DRESSED FOR SUCCESS?

Developers are now realizing that a building can be more uniquely designed to serve as a drawing card for the potential lessee.

The Pierce Building, above, in downtown Birmingham has a low, in Troy has a stagelike presence. First of America, right pedestrian presence with a plaza. Combermere Stage, left be-below, was designed with a strong architectural theme.

By Dale Northup special writer

HE PLETHORA of surrounding commercial buildings is exactly that - commercial - in taste and design. For the most part, these buildings are stereotyped with horizontal bands of precast aggregate panels topped with ribbons of windows that stretch around all four sides.

This is nothing new. Mies van der Rohe, America's "less is more" advocate, visualized this type of design in 1921 as a reaction against the extraneous use of ornamentation prevalent in architecture around the turn of the century. He also wanted to "have an architecture that anybody can do." His omen continues to bear fruit and satisfies commercial developers' cost effectiveness with a pedestrian countenance.

Admittedly, these developers have to work within a fixed budget while, at the same time, showing a net capital gain on their investment. But they also have become cognizant of a more competitive market indicated by a discerning prospective tenant who is seeking an identifiable address. With a few more bucks added to the budget, developers are now realizing that a building can be more uniquely designed to serve as a drawing card for the potential lessee. Why not enhance spending eight hours a day in a building that has a visual sense of place? Sometimes the magic kingdom of business is better served with a yellow brick road, which could wind around the building to become a crenelated parapet at the top and perhaps facilitating a crowning glory of success. Wasn't that the name of a book - "Dress for Success"? Why not expand the circumference of the business image from the beltline to the building?

INTO SUCH A visionary setting have come a number of buildings that are realistic attempts at establishing some semblance of business identity.

The Benjamin K. Pierce Building, by Luckenback, Ziegelman and Partners of Birmingham, on the corner of Brown and Pierce in downtown Birmingham, supplants a pre-existing building and incorporates another one. The 77,000-square-foot, three-story building is clad in Indiana limestone with a polished black granite base. The seams of limestone intersect at the vertical and horizontal junctures, thus serving to define squares and the scale of the building. They also help frame the square windows that punctuate the facade.

One of the interesting features of the building is a concave facade at the corner of a busy intersection, helping to resolve a problem with motorists' sight lines. In addition, it serves to define a pedestrian plaza that immediately links the building with the community. On the Brown Street side, the building steps back, yet the facade on the ground level is continued with a colonnade behind which is another landscaped plaza.

The new operations center for First of America in downtown Royal Oak by Hobbs & Black of Ann Arbor, is a 180,000square-foot, four-story building that has a similar facade treatment to the Pierce Building in Birmingham, raising the question of who was looking over whose shoulder.

MORE IMPORTANT, both buildings work in a contextualist manner. Clad in a reddish-orange brick and limestone, First of America has strong link with the downtown cityscape, the intention of Hobbs & Black. The pilaster treatment of the piers on the middle two floors gives the building a classical appearance and extends to the ground floor framing the display windows behind which are 30,000 square feet of retail space further linking the building with the retail district.

The Atrium Building in Brewery Park in downtown Detroit is a joint venture by Kirco Realty of Troy and River Place Properties. Designed by Gensler & Associates of Denver, the four-story building consists of 144,000 square feet that rests atop a plaza level under which is parking for 900 cars. The entrance is marked by a mock gable clad in brick and limestone behind which is a six-story atrium with a tinted glass enclosure. The piers supporting the skylight over the atrium are encased in black columns with gold leaf capitals serving to define the floor. The building is an interesting amalgam of modern and post-modern elements. Brewery Park offers the amenities of suburbia in an urban setting.

For a commercial building the Combernere Stage Building in Troy is probably the most bizarre. Adhering to its function as a filming studio, it has a facade that could function as a movie set for a western movie. Owner Vern Hammarlund sought an idenity of this building that would separate it from another building he works out of down the street in a light industrial park in Troy. Working with Troy architect Art Kalajian, Hammarlund studied older commercial buildings on the west side of the state, a cross-section of buildings along U.S. 12, to create an old-time flavor.

Unlike so many small, light industrial buildings with false fronts over a concrete block box, this one is unique. The viewer is suddenly transported in space and time much as at Greenfield Village, Kalajian has melded some interesting elements. The brick detail is accentuated by arches, a string course of projecting soldier formations and topped with wooden cornices and a gable framing what else — a stage coach. The dream of filming, which takes place inside, extends outside.

Builders fight code changes

Action!

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

BOCA codes, the building regulations model on which many communities base building requirements, are the subject of a growing national debate pitting builders against the materials manufacturing industry.

Caught between them are the building professionals who will actually make the decisions.

ing costs. Building supply manufacturers contend that a victory for them will mean better, safer buildings. According to Dick Morris, BOCA has come under increasing pressures from outside interest groups to enact changes that, while beneficial to the proponents, will eventually drive up "Unreasonable code changes must be challenged."

Morris is the construction, technology and code specialist for the National Association of Home Builders. Each year, BOCA (Building Officials and Code Administrators) members gather to consider changes to the codes that are used as a model for local ordinances. BOCA WILL HAVE its annual meeting Sunday-Friday,

June 24-29, to discuss changes that will address general construction, light, ventilation, space, plumbing facilities and fixtures, mechanical, electrical, fire safety, responsibility of peo-

special writer

Bubble, bubble: radon gas, smoke, bacteria, mold and mildew, carbon monoxide, nitrogen dioxide, formaldehyde, pesticides, asbestos, lead.

What sounds like a modern-day witches' brew is in reality the list of major pollutants in the home, according to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Many of these airborn contaminants can be eliminated with sound construction practices. A booklet recently published by the EPA and the Consumer Products Safety Council (CPSC), entitled "The Inside Story: A Guide to Indoor Air Quality," lists a set of guidelines for owners to consider when build-

The premise is to prevent indoor air problems before they occur, and the first recommendation is for the owner to express concerns about indoor air quality to the architect or builder and enlist cooperation in taking measures to provide a healthy environment. Two major topics that should be on the list for discussion are specifying and purchasing building materials and furnishings that emit low amounts of pollution, and providing an adequate amount of ventilation.

The EPA/CPSC report reccommends the following steps:

• Use radon-resistant construction techniques, which include providing proper drainage and sealing foundations in new construction.

• Choose building materials and furnishings that will keep indoor air pollution to a minimum. For instance, exterior grade pressed wood products can be used instead of interior-grade for floors, cabinetry and wall surfaces.

EXTERIOR-GRADE pressed wood is made with phenol-formaldehyde, which has a much lower emission rate compared to urea-formaldehyde used

Bill Evens, publications manager for BOCA International, said there are more than 200 code revisions to be discussed at the annual convention - all of which will generate some controversy.

The annual meetings often become combative as both sides of each issue argue vehemently to convince building officials that their side is right, Evens said.

"I don't think we do things strictly from self-interest," Morris of NAHB said. "We're concerned about the lack of frugality of these code changes."

THE EVER-INCREASING cost of housing and the growing anti-growth efforts are making choosing and sions that will effect building

Changes can be critical to the builder who must follow the adopted building codes of a given community, Morris said.

"Many communities and states adopt BOCA changes without ques-

BECAUSE OF the importance, the NAHB is sending its members to local building inspectors to voice the builders' side on the proposed changes and also to encourage them to go to the meeting.

We're not as well organized as we would like to be, but we're hopeful we'll be ready for the meeting.

"In the past, a small minority of BOCA members are making deci-buying homes more difficult, Morris throughout the country," Morris said. "With almost 5,500 voting members, only 300 members attend-

> MORRIS SAID this is the first concentrated effort the builders have put together, but many code changes of the past have had vocal and active industry advocates.

> "Without naming names or specific code changes, there may have been some cases where special interests were able to send people who would vote on their behalf."

At the very least, the NAHB has 'faced extremely organized opposition when it comes to BOCA changes, Morris said.

Evens of BOCA said be has seen no evidence of behind-the-scenes tampering, but the group does not discourage groups from talking to Individual building officials.

"These people are professionals they're not going to be swayed by an argument unless it's a good argument."

MORRIS OF NAHB said three specific changes concern the group the most — one relating to insulation requirements and two relating to fire protection sprinklers.

The insulation code change (B171-90) would require more insulation than practical and add substantially to costs, Morris said.

"Homeowners would not recoup (the costs) in a decade of energy conservation."

Proponents, including insulation manufacturers and chemical companies, argue the changes are necessary to promote energy conservation and improve insulation in above and below grade walls, according to written comments on file with NAHB OPPOSES a code amendment (B108-90) that would require sprinklers in townhouses with independent exit ways or units separated by two-hour fire walls.

Proponents of the code change argue that townhouses are no different from apartments - there are common areas and adjoining walls and therefore fire sprinklers should be required in townhouses, according to written comments on file with BOCA.

NAHB supports an amendment to the BOCA code (B108-90) that would eliminate the need for fire sprinklers in apartments of two stories or less and apartments of four stories or less and a basement, Morris said.

NAHB argues these apartments are already protected by smoke detection systems and fire sprinklers are redundant. Another argument is that many areas do not have adequate public water supplies - fire sprinklers can fail from lack of pres-
