CAN YOU say Zamboni?
The Westland Sports Arena will take delivery on a new ice resurfacing machine this month to replace a 1971 model, the oldest of two Zambonis in the arena's inventory.
On July 2, the Westland City Council approved purchase of the $45,085 machine from Charles R. Mueller and Sons of Detroit, one of two Zamboni dealers in the metropolitan area.
The city will receive $1,500 on its old Zamboni as a trade-in.

COUNCIL MEMBERS also approved the purchase of a new platform engine for the Westland fire department.
The demo model Gruman Aerial Cat carries a $545,144 sticker price, but the city will receive a $10,000 "demo" discount and a $50,000 trade-in allowance, bringing the city's cost down to $485,144.

THE CITY is accepting leaves and grass clippings from local residents at its transfer site for composting.
The program will reduce the amount of yard waste going to landfills and the Central Wayne Sanitation Authority incinerator, city officials hope.
Materials may be dropped off at the transfer site, 37137 Marquette, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Fridays and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays. Grass and/or leaves may be in plastic bags or dumped in bulk.
The service is provided free for residents and no commercial drop-offs will be accepted.
For more information, call the department of public services, 728-1770.

REGISTRATION is under way for skills training programs at the William D. Ford Vocational/Technical Center.
The center is run by Wayne-Westland Community Schools. One-year courses in more than 20 occupations are offered free to eligible students.
For more information, call the center, 595-2314.

Shotgun murders case goes to jury

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

The fate of a Garden City man charged with the shotgun slayings of his estranged wife and her Westland boyfriend is now in the hands of a jury.
Twelve jurors and one alternate were expected to begin deliberations in Detroit Recorder's Court this morning in the first-degree murder trial of Ronald Gerrior. A second alternate was dismissed early in the trial by Judge Robert Ziolkowski when he told the judge he lived in the same mobile home park as one of the victims.

Gerrior, 44, has pleaded innocent to the Dec. 13 slayings of Michele Gerrior, a 37-year-old Livonia mail carrier, and Jason LaCroix, 27, at LaCroix's home on the 8300 block of Fremont in Westland.
If convicted, he faces a mandatory sentence of life in prison without parole.
Ziolkowski on Friday denied a motion by defense attorney Walter Piszczatowski requesting a directed verdict of less than first-degree murder. The evidence presented in the eight-day trial substantiated the initial charges, the judge ruled.

IN CLOSING statements Friday, both attorneys addressed the defendant's actions and state of mind in the hours leading up to the shootings.
Kym Worthy, assistant Wayne County prosecutor, told the court that Gerrior's statement to police indicated he saw his wife embrace LaCroix outside an Allen Park bowling alley. He then followed her to LaCroix's house, returned to his own house on the 32400 block of Marquette to get a Mossberg 12-gauge shotgun, she said.

After returning to LaCroix's house, the defendant watched through a window as the couple had sex, broke into the home and killed them, Worthy said.
In her statement, Worthy criticized the defense attorney for "trashing" Michele Gerrior. "You've heard that Jason LaCroix and Michele Gerrior were terrible people and that Ronald Gerrior was only a poor man trying to get his Former city cop honored

By LeAnne Rogers
staff writer

A former Garden City police officer recently was awarded a top honor by the Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police.

Mark Relich, 25, was honored for his efforts in disarming and arresting a man who had just fatally shot his former supervisor near Ford and Venoy roads on the Westland-Garden City limits in 1989.

"To my knowledge this is first Garden City officer to receive this honor," said Chief Roger Wilkes, who nominated Relich for the recognition.

On April 22, 1989, while off duty and driving along Venoy to work, Relich saw a man being pursued through a parking lot by a man carrying a shotgun. The officer reported seeing the armed man, later identified as Robert Zellin, fire two shots which hit the victim, Ziebart supervisor Michael LaDuke.

Relich turned his vehicle around, then positioned himself behind his truck as he ordered Zellin to drop his weapon. Zellin turned toward the officer and pointed the shotgun at him, then dropped it after Relich again told him to do so.

AFTER ZELIN was disarmed, Relich held him on the ground until other officers arrived at the scene. Following his September conviction on a first-degree murder charge in Detroit Recorder's Court, Zellin was sentenced to life in prison without parole.

"That guy was mentally unstable. Who knows how many people might have been killed if Mark hadn't intervened?" said Wilkes.

When confronted with an armed gunman, Relich said he really didn't

Business keeps picking up at recycling center

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

Garden City's City Council should decide within the next few weeks whether Downriver Recycling Center will operate a drop-off recycling center one Saturday a month.

The non-profit firm has made preliminary overtures to Westland officials to operate a similar satellite drop-off center there.
Last week, an Observer reporter and photographer visited Downriver's Recycling's headquarters to talk to workers there and to residents who come in to use the facilities, and to observe the operation.

The main center for Downriver Recycling sits in the shadows of Detroit Edison electric towers and tucked behind a water pumping station of West Jefferson in Trenton, just inland from the Detroit River.
The center is open 3-5 p.m. on Thursdays and from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturdays. At 3, when the gate to the small drive-in area is opened, seven cars sit in line, filling the short dirt entry road and threatening to spill out into Jefferson.

For the next two hours, a stream of cars pulls in, 60 in all. They make a small U-turn, with the drivers getting out and unloading their refuse into various bins, newspapers into one, glass clattering loudly into another, flattened cans into a third, jugs of used oil into a fourth. Volunteers and paid staff help the residents, who are on their way in a minute or two.

"Thursdays used to be a little bit slow, but as people get more environmentally conscious, we've been getting busier," says staffer Charlotte Gay, who, when she isn't in gloves tossing refuse, is in the schools giving talks to kids or meeting with community groups. Saturdays at the recycling center, it's a zoo.

Westland's recycling center makes debut

The City of Westland opened a recycling center Saturday, which will operate at the Department of Public Service Building on the first and third Saturday of each month.

The center is being run temporarily by Canton Waste Recycling until the city can approve a contract with one of three recycling operations who have made proposals to permanently run the center.
The other two are Taylor Recycling and Downriver Recycling Center.

"We needed to get this thing up and running," said Bruce Guertin, superintendent for construction and maintenance at the DPS. "We're going to be learning a lot from this in the next few weeks."

Attendance, temperature soar at summer festival

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

Westland's 20th annual Summer Festival was the biggest, the most crowded and — thanks to 98 degrees on the Fourth of July — the hottest ever, said chief organizer Donna Raines, who estimated that 250,000 attended the six-day extravaganza at City Hall.

"It was wonderful," said Raines, who said she is already eager to begin planning next year's fest. "Attendance was up. The weather was great. Everybody sold out of everything.

The last day could have been a little cooler, but . . ."

From start to finish, huge throngs showed that Westlanders and their friends love a good time.

From the pancake breakfast and parade Saturday through the 5-mile run through the streets of the city as the sun beat down Wednesday morning through the poohing and aahing of the fireworks spectacular at 10 p.m., the crowds seemed to be larger and more exuberant than ever before.

A beating incident after the fireworks marred the holiday for at least one family, though.

THE FUN RUN was a big draw, despite numerous other fun runs in the metropolitan area the same day, including races in Clawson, Oak Park and South Lyon. The race was a benefit for the Fire Safety House, and organizers were pleasantly shocked by a registration of nearly 400.

"It was a great turnout," firefighter Mike Reddy said. "And we're going to be at least double that next year. There was a lot of favorable comments from the runners. Everyone seemed to appreciate it. We did a lot for them."

Mike Kavulich of Farmington Hills ran a blistering time on a blistering day, finishing first in 25:35, an average of 5:07 a mile. Noelle Dixon of Livonia, a runner at Eastern Michigan, led the women in 31:08.

THE HUGE CROWDS at the fireworks resulted in one of the few sour moments of the wife back," she told the jury. "But no sin is so great that these two people should have wound up dead because of it," Worthy said. Gerrior's actions on the night of the incident were clearly planned out, Worthy said, and allowed sufficient time for reflection on what he was about to do.

PISZCZATOWSKI said irregularities in the statement his client gave to police, inconsistencies in much of the testimony and Gerrior's highly agitated state of mind after watching his wife have sex with another man formed "a classic case of manslaughter."

"He didn't know what he was going to find until he looked in that window," Piszczatowski said. "And then he just went berserk." He also cited testimony psychiatrist Emanuel Tanay, called as an expert defense witness, who said that Gerrior was suffering from depression, showed signs of a mental illness and was legally insane at the time of the killings. In three hours of testimony, Tanay said Gerrior suffered "a disassociative reaction" after seeing the couple through the window. The traumatic incident triggered "a type of amnesia where Mr. Gerrior was unaware of his actions," Tanay said.

The psychiatrist also testified that in an interview Gerrior told him he had "gone back to his truck to get a baseball bat" but for an unknown reason took the shotgun instead.

Tanay, who testified he examined Gerrior on three separate occasions, said the defendant strongly believed that he would reconcile with his wife, who had moved out of their Garden City home into a Westland mobile home park in October.

Testimony by several witnesses indicated that although separated, the two still saw each other on a regular basis. Gerrior had given his wife an expensive pair of boots as a Christmas present a few days before the killings, according to testimony.

A PSYCHIATRIST and psychologist testifying as expert witnesses on behalf of the prosecution differed strongly with Tanay's diagnosis.

Dr. Dexter Fields, chief psychiatrist for the Recorder's Court clinic, said although Gerrior "came close to showing signs of psychogenic amnesia (one form of disassociative disorder)," he could not be classified as being mentally ill. He also testified that Gerrior's depression was a reaction to specific events and not a sign of mental illness.

Psychologist Jack Hanes testified that after examining the defendant he found that he appeared to be a "logical, coherent person" and would be criminally responsible for any illegal behavior.

have time to think about how to react.

"This was something that happened. It's another part of police work," he said. "You never expect it. Someone else might not have known what to do."

Relich agreed with Wilkes that it was fortunate that no one else was killed or injured during the incident, in which Zeilin pursued his victim through a parking lot and across a busy intersection on a Saturday afternoon.

"You don't think about the fear until later. You do what you are trained to do," he said. "You don't know how you will react."

While the department is proud of the honors received by Relich for his actions while a Garden City officer, Wilkes noted the police medal of honor was given to an individual.

"THE WHOLE gist of this was not for the department to shine. It recognizes his actions above and beyond the call of duty," Wilkes said.

At the time of the Ziebart shooting, Relich had been with the department about nine months. Prior to that he had worked three years as a police cadet with the Garden City Explorers.

Before hiring on as a Garden City officer, Relich was a reserve officer for the Van Buren Township Police Department. While there he completed the police academy training and subsequently joined that department.

"Then the opening came up in Garden City. I always wanted to work in Garden City. It was my hometown," he said.

Relich's brother Tom is a Garden City police officer and his father Nick is a former head of the Garden City police reserve unit.

About eight months ago Relich returned to a job with the Van Buren Police Department and has been also working part time as a Belleville police dispatcher.

The decision to leave the Garden City department stemmed largely from the its residency requirement, along with better opportunities.

Relich was married in May and currently lives in Belleville.

"The residency was a big factor. You have no choice on where to live or what schools your children will attend," he added.

Only July 23, he will start a new job as a Grosse Ile police officer.

"I'm very excited about the new job. I'm pretty happy about Grosse Ile. The pay is great and its a super area," Relich said.

festival, when, according to one witness, nearby residents angry at cars cutting over their property pulled a man out of his truck and beat him up in front of his wife and two small children.

The witness, Anita Mayhew, said the incident occurred in the parking lot of the Ford Vocational Center off Marquette. She said residents had become angered after some cars drove across their property to get to a nearby street.

"They were throwing rocks at cars and they swung a golf club at a guy on a motorcycle but missed him," Mayhew said.

About six or seven young men "in their late 20s or early 30s" then ran into the parking lot at the tech center, she said, surrounding a truck as it still sat on city property and pulling out the driver.

"They hit him about five or six times to the head and knocked him down. When his wife tried to get out, they slammed the door on her leg and wouldn't let her out.

"Finally, he was able to drive away. He stopped in the parking lot and we gave him ice cubes for his cuts and cleaned off his blood. And then he went to the hospital for stitches."

Westland police are investigating, and no charges have been filed.

MAYOR Robert Thomas, who has had disagreements with festival planners, said he would like to see the festival ultimately moved to a different site because of congestion in the area of City Hall and the police station.

"Parking is the biggest problem. I would like to see that solved. We need to make some changes," Thomas said.

"They (festival planners) may have misconstrued me. I don't want the festival canceled by any means. I was over there just about every day and thought it was great. I took my grandson and he just had a ball."

ables off at the center, at 37137 Marquette.

The center will accept newspapers, either wrapped in brown paper bags or tied; clear, green or brown glass jars and bottles (no caps, no Pyrex cookware, no light bulbs and no window panes); aluminum, tin and steel cans, flattened when possible (no aerosol or paint cans); and clear or colored plastic containers used for such products as pop, milk, liquid cleaners, water and detergents (cleaned, with no lids).

Volunteers are needed to staff the recycling center. Call 728-1770 to be put on the list.

"We aren't accepting waste oil, yet, but we will down the road," said Guertin.

He said there was no timetable for deciding on which firm to run the center permanently.

Volunteers busy at recycling center

Dearborn Heights, Detroit, Riverview, Southgate, Woodhaven, Wyandotte and Wayne. It handled 1,050 tons of material last year and may do 1,800 tons this year, said President James McNally.

But though business seems to be booming, it isn't. The Catch-22 that afflicts recycling nationwide is that increased awareness has meant more product, resulting in glut and falling prices.

"Fifty to 60 percent of what we handle is newspapers," said McNally. "Two years ago, we were getting $25-30 a ton. Early this year it was down to zero. And in the last two weeks, we're being charged $10 a ton. There's a tremendous glut of newspapers on the market and the mills are taking advantage of it."

MARK LEON pulls in a battered pick-up, so loaded with newspapers the bed sits down on its springs. He hauls newspapers for 181 homeowners and a variety of condos and apartments on Grosse Ile.

"I got all the newspapers you can handle," he hollers out to no one in particular.

Leon used to take them to Romulus, but they started charging him $20 a load and he heard Downriver was still taking them for nothing.

"When newspapers were paying, I didn't charge my customers," he said. "Now that it isn't, I do."

Gloria Gallagher of Trenton pulls in with her three kids, Sean, 11, Kevin, 9, and Megan, 6.

She has been recycling for "five or six years. I'm an old-timer. There's days when I'd like to throw a can away instead of washing it out, but my conscience gets the best of me."

Gallagher and the kids pour a box of glass into the bin, pose for some pictures and leave.

Jane Mackay, a staffer, is too busy to talk. They're short of volunteers today and she's too busy slinging refuse into bins to do an interview.

Another car swings in, the dust rising up and swirling. Glass clatters into one bin, a stack of paper thuds into another.

If the people of Trenton flock in so steadily when the center is open twice a week, four weeks a month, Garden City and Westland should keep the volunteers extra busy just one day a month.

Woodwind Enterprises owner David Topolski shows off some of the instruments available in his Sheridan Square store.

Topolski holds a bachelor of science and a master of arts in woodwind performance and education — he gained further experience in the Army. "I ran a repair shop in the Army. When I came back, I subcontracted with a couple of shops as a repair technician. I felt uncomfortable with that and opened a small shop in 1973."

TODAY, TOPOLSKI has a client base of 1,300 customers and six school districts, he said. The demand for services was great enough to prompt the move to a larger location in Garden City, he said. "We have over 100 instruments in for repair. That demand indicates the move was justified," said Topolski, himself a performing musician. "Repairs have been the backbone of our business primarily."

While new instrument sales and rentals are featured at the store, instruments that have been reconditioned by Topolski or repair technician Ken Cameron are also offered.

OTHER TIMES the owners will bring their beloved instruments in for repair or restoration.

"Many times we are asked to restore an instrument. In many cases we have to build specific parts on site. It takes ingenuity and the ability to fabricate a part. People will upset that a very old valuable part can't be replaced."

Unlike instruments in the other musical families, woodwinds have many moveable parts that can be difficult to replace, Topolski said.

"We try to give a lot of individual attention. You need a lot of experience to serve people."

School district offered chance to buy empty lot

By Joe Bauman
staff writer

Livonia Public Schools will be given the first chance to buy a vacant piece of land owned by the city of Livonia whether or not it wants it.

The Livonia City Council, in a split 4-3 vote, approved a resolution June 25 offering the parcel for use in the school district's building trades program.

In doing so the council rejected three purchase proposals offered by three residents.

The vote also rejected an administrative recommendation that the vacant lot be retained by the city for possible future use in the housing assistance program for low income residents.

The district includes the northern section of Westland.

DESPITE THE vote, the issue is far from settled since the council hasn't said if it is interested in the property.

Leading the debate to offer the property to the district was councilman Fernon Feenstra, who was joined by council members Robert Bishop, Dale Jurcisin and Gerald Taylor in approving the resolution.

Opposing votes were cast by council president Joan McCotter and council members Ron Ochala and Laura Toy.

The council opted not to refer the issue to its school liaison committee, which meets on an irregular basis with school officials and typically deals with issues facing both bodies.

"Perhaps that would have been the best way to go," Ochala said Tuesday referring to the liaison committee.

"I still don't feel the vote was the proper action, but there appeared to be a desire by the majority of the council to rush to a conclusion and dispose of the property."

The property is in a residential area near Minton and Lamont in the Golden Gate Subdivision.

BEFORE THE council vote, James Inglis, executive director of the Livonia Housing Commission, restated the administration's position that the property should be kept by the city for future use.

Inglis said the commission has begun discussing the possibility of constructing homes on city owned lots and using them for a lease-to-own program for low income residents.

"We're not ready to come to council yet with a program but I want you to know the idea is being discussed."

The concept met with opposition from Feenstra and Bishop, with both stating they did not feel the city should be in the "home building business."

Jurcisin said he supported the concept of the home-building program as an expansion of the current housing assistance plan.

"The problem is that by Mr. Inglis' own admission we are not ready to proceed with such a program so I can't support setting this particular piece of property aside," Jurcisin said.

Art Howell, director of operations for the school district, was out of town and unavailable for comment at press time.

If the district is not interested in the property, Ochala said he will again push to have the land set aside for the housing program.

THE CITY was sued in the late 1970s by several housing assistance advocate organizations that claimed Livonia was not living up to its obligation of providing low-income housing for people who worked in the community but could not afford to live there.

As a result of the lawsuit, the city adopted the so-called "Livonia Plan," which provided scattered single-family housing throughout the community for low-income residents in lieu of the more traditional subsidized apartment setting.

Inglis cautioned the council that the city must continue to show a commitment to its housing assistance program or face the possibility of losing more than $400,000 a year in federal block grant funds.

A YOUNG MAN armed either with a shotgun or a rifle held up Dandy Oil on Arbor Trail early Tuesday morning.

About 3:35 a.m., the man — described as a white male, about 25-28, 5 feet 6 and 130 pounds — walked in and told the employee, a 33-year-old Westland woman: "Give me all your money."

He fled on foot with $55. No shots were fired.

THE EX-HUSBAND of a Westland woman is being sought for obtaining money on false pretenses after telling a former neighbor he needed money to buy food and diapers for his children.

The man, 34, went door-to-door through his old neighborhood, telling ex-neighbors that his wife had to leave town to visit her sick grandfather, that she had left him with the kids and he had no food or diapers for them and no money.

Several of them turned him down but one woman gave him $3. She filed charges July 4 after asking the man's ex-wife about her grandfather and finding out the whole thing was a scam.

AN 85-YEAR-OLD Westland woman was robbed of her purse Tuesday afternoon by someone on a bicycle as she walked home from the grocery store.

The woman, who told police she didn't see well enough to furnish a description of the suspect, lost $30-40 and her credit cards when the bike rider grabbed her straw purse off the top of her small grocery cart.

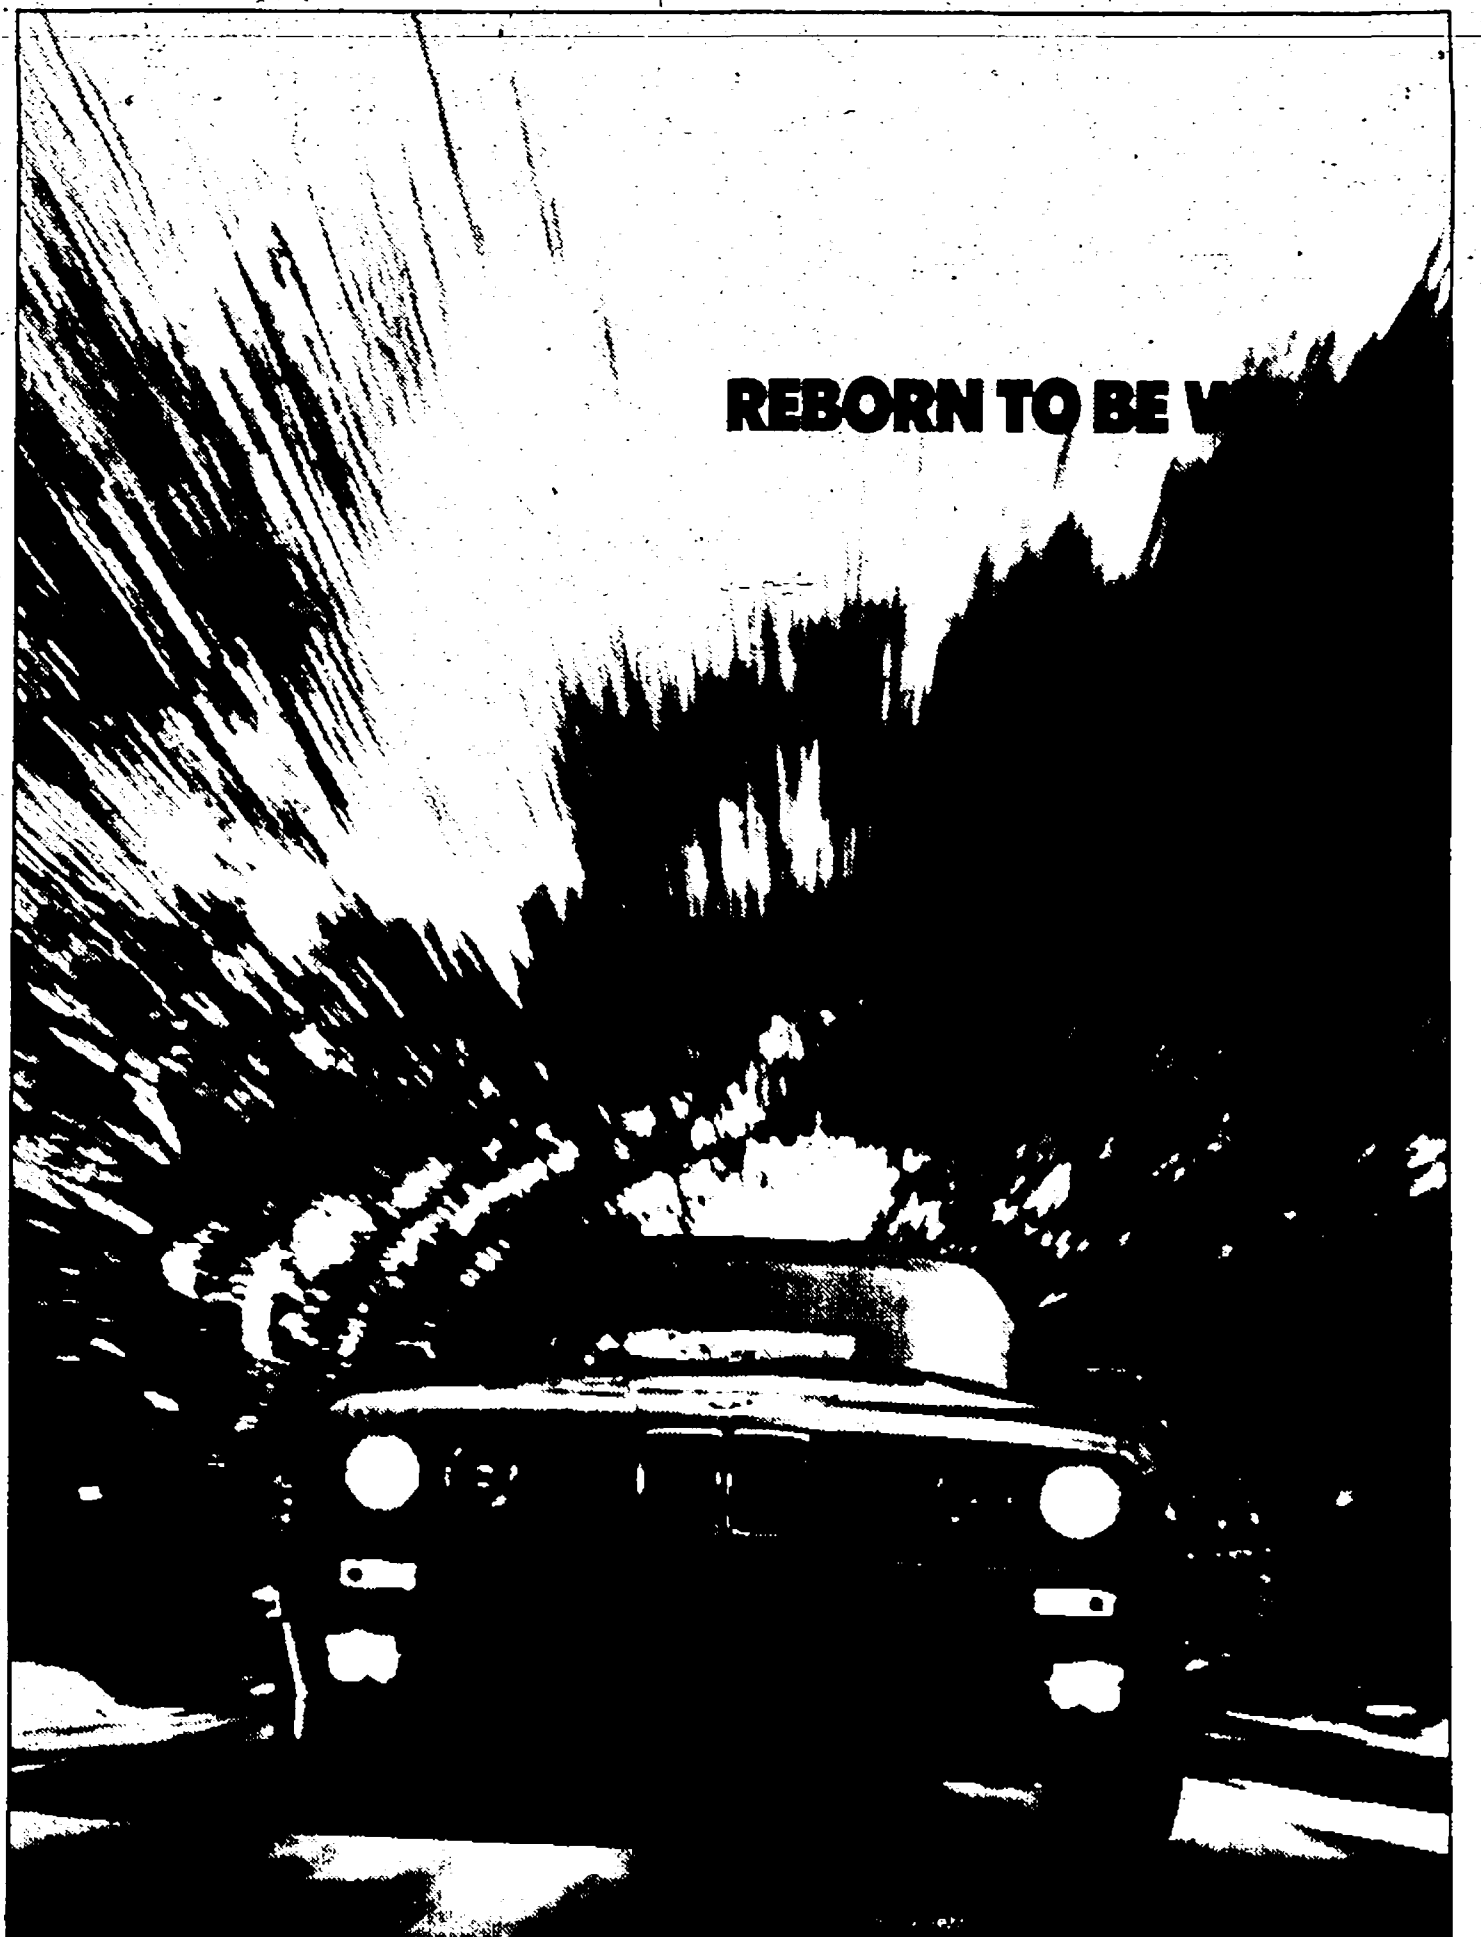

QUICK WORK by Mayor Robert Thomas led to the arrest of a 16-year-old Wayne youth for fighting and carrying concealed weapons, a razor blade and a knife.

The mayor was at the Summer Festival and approached police working the fair to tell them about a nearby fistfight. Police broke it up, searched the participants and made an arrest after finding weapons.

A 32-YEAR-OLD DETROIT man was killed at Joy Road and August Street in Westland during an early morning head-on accident on Saturday, police said.

At about 12:40 a.m. the victim, who was driving a 1985 Renault Alliance, was travelling west on Joy approaching August when he collided head-on with a 1988 Ford Mustang.

Recycling mania misguided by well-meaning zealots

THE RECENT round of recycling mania is well-intentioned, but misguided.

That's because the emphasis on saving the environment has been placed on us common folk. Many, without question, accept recycling as our burden.

But while all this talk continues on how homeowners must recycle, a question comes to mind:

Who is pushing big companies to change their packaging? Shouldn't our legislators be pushing McDonald's and others who turn out excess packaging to clean up their act?

And if they did, wouldn't that really make the difference that's needed to reduce trash going into garbage dumps?

This thought occurred recently, while spotting the rectangular paper that lined my McDonald's tray.

The tray liner showed a beautiful photo of the earth, and information on how McDonald's was doing its part to save the world.

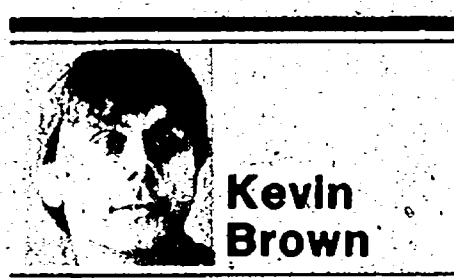

There's probably lots of folks, who upon reading the same message, leave the golden arches with a warm feeling about the place.

But McDonald's puts their burgers in some sort of foam box, which so far nobody has figured out how to recycle.

The topper has to be the little recycle logo printed on McDonald's hash brown containers. If you don't examine it closely, you'd probably get the idea that the paper container is made from recycled paper.

Wrong. A printed message near that logo explains that the container is printed on recyclable paper.

Well now, isn't that big of them?

Kevin Brown

Then, there's the little plastic foam pellets used to pad various products boxed for shipping. And if you've ever bought a compact disc, you've noticed that while the disc comes in a hard plastic box, it's also wrapped in sealed plastic, a cardboard box, and plastic shrink-wrap.

Targeting the packaging practices of corporate America would seem to be a more far-reaching way to reduce trash produced here.

But as mentioned earlier, the onus is being placed on the consumers. And sure, many of us are doing what they tell us — making compost piles, stacking newspapers, crushing cans and recycled plastic — and hauling the stuff off to a recycle center.

But what about those of us — and there's got to be plenty — who won't take the time to do all this?

You can't make everyone recycle, or expect them to. That's not being negative, it's just recognizing cold, hard reality.

If consumers would get a little more angered with big corporations that over-package their goods, if we'd scream at lawmakers to get on the backs of these corporations, then we would really be doing our part to save the earth.

Environmental groups praise vote on bill

To the editor:

Two weeks ago the Michigan Senate held an important vote on SB 375, a bill that would force polluters to pay for cleanup of contaminated sites.

There were votes on two versions of the bill. One was a strong bill, backed by the environmental community that would make polluters pay their fair share for toxic waste cleanup and would have resulted in faster cleanups.

The other had been so severely weakened that it was worse than no bill at all. Both were defeated.

The Senate will have a chance to consider these and similar bills again.

On behalf of our members and their other constituents, we would like to thank Sens. William Faust, D-Westland; Arthur Miller, D-Warren,

Job chances concern for phys ed students

Q: I read where Bo Schembechler, former University of Michigan football coach, gave a special graduation speech to the 75 physical education majors who were graduated from U-M last month. My son wants to be a physical education teacher and a coach. I am concerned about his opportunity for getting a job four years from now. Are my concerns legitimate?

A: Unfortunately yes.

A simple calculation tells me about 450-500 phys ed majors are graduating this year. My estimate does not take into consideration the juniors who will be seniors next fall, and the sophomores and freshmen presently in the physical education programs.

Potentially, there could be close to 1,500 of the present phys ed majors now in colleges graduated and looking for a teaching job by your son's senior year in college. We don't have enough gymnasiums in the state to accommodate those numbers.

It is not my purpose to bring doom and gloom to those who wish to coach and teach physical education. But somehow, young adults need to know the fact before committing to a four-year physical education degree only to find very few physical education jobs available when they graduate.

One fact is that today's couples are having fewer children. Fewer children mean few teachers are needed.

Also where students are required to take English, math, science and social studies for three or four years, phys ed may be required for only one year. Therefore a school district needs fewer phys ed teachers for their middle schools and high schools.

And, unfortunately, if cutbacks in staff occur, elementary art, music and phys ed have traditionally been the first areas cut.

And with the proliferation of athletic events, which now include women's sports, many schools are hiring part-time coaches who have other jobs.

Many of these part-time coaches played the sport but are not necessarily phys ed majors. Many have degrees in other areas and they are cost-effective. Districts pay for their coaching time but no fringe benefits.

Part-time coaches are not necessarily the best route for an athletic sports program but athletic directors have no choice when there are now twice as many events that need coaches.

I taught chemistry, a couple phys ed classes and coached varsity basketball early on in my career. I learned then and still believe in the value of a sound body as part of a sound mind.

Health and physical education programs in school districts too often have been after-thoughts and do not receive the recognition they deserve. Our present cultural trend, however, is beginning to appreciate the value of a sound body. Just look at the health spa phenomenon that has over-taken the country.

What I suggest is that your son get a double major, one in physical education and one in a subject such as general science or language arts, biology, social studies etc. He then would have two major areas to offer a school district and indeed a better opportunity for a teaching position.

It will take some extra time, possibly summer work or an extra semester. But if physical education and coaching are his goals, he has to break into the system and a phys ed major by itself makes it very difficult — at least in this part of the country.

School libraries show inequality

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

A new report on public school libraries has added more fuel to the fire in Michigan's long running school financing debate.

A state board of education report, published last week, found vast differences in spending for library books and supplies among Michigan's rich and poor school districts.

An Observer survey of local school districts found some who spent more than 10 times as much on libraries as others — with out-of-formula districts generally spending more than those still receiving state aid for basic school expenses.

"IT'S DEFINITELY a concern," said Richard Witkowski, executive director of business services for the Garden City Schools, which receives direct state aid. "We try to provide what we can, but it's tough."

Garden City spent an estimated $18,000 — less than $3 per student — on library supplies in the past school year, Witkowski said.

The difference between in-formula and out-of-formula districts might be best shown by comparing the similarly sized Wayne-Westland and Livonia school districts.

While in-formula Wayne-Westland spent roughly $115,000 on its libraries — more than $6.50 per student — Livonia spent $373,000, or about $23 per student.

Plymouth-Canton, another of the area's larger districts, spent a whopping $864,601, though only $51,655 came from its general operating budget — the rest came from a new millage.

Among other districts, Clarenceville spent $14,097 on libraries, about $7.80 per student. South Redford spent $19,608, or about $6.50 per student. Both are out-of-formula.

Spending per student is based upon unaudited enrollment figures provided in the Wayne County Intermediate Schools directory for 1989-90.

THE STATE board of education report found that some districts had no money to spend on libraries while spending in other districts topped the $100,000 mark.

"If the funding for media programs in the state is any indication, public education in Michigan is not equitable," the report concluded.

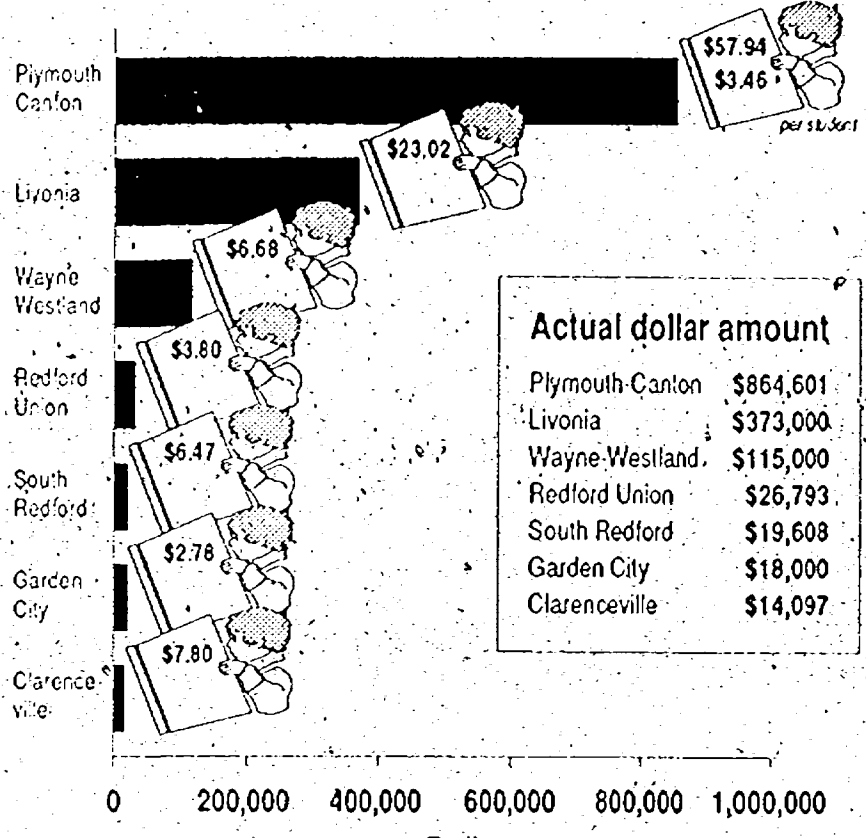

Lack of library spending might leave students in some districts unprepared for college, said Rosemary Cary, library, media and telecommunications coordinator for the state Department of Education.

"I have been in many schools this year where the senior high school library has been locked shut for a couple of years," Cary said.

Michigan also lags behind other

An Observer survey of area schools confirmed a recent state report that found vast differences in library spending among Michigan public school districts. It also found out-of-formula districts, such as Plymouth-Canton, Livonia, South Redford and Clarenceville spent more on libraries than districts that received direct state aid.

states in school library spending, according to the survey of more than 300 public school libraries.

The typical Michigan school library contains about 7,992 books, the survey said, more than 2,000 fewer than typical libraries in other north central states.

At the same time, Michigan averaged $5.60 per student, compared with roughly $13.50 in neighboring states.

Nearly two-thirds of the libraries surveyed reported that at least half their books are more than a decade old.

The Associated Press contributed to this story.

Program promotes independent living

Some 300 people with developmental disabilities will take a step toward independence at the "We're Making It On Our Own" conference Saturday, July 14, at Madonna College.

"Many people with developmental disabilities wish to live as independently as they can," said Lisa Chapman, conference planner.

"At this event, they can gain skills by attending workshops, meeting new people and sharing ideas with each other. By hearing each other's success stories, many people begin to consider living more independently."

PEOPLE LIVING in group homes, foster care homes and supported independence programs from across the state are expected to attend.

Keynote speakers will be Vicki

Caruso, who lived in institutions for 16 years and currently lives in a home in Livonia, and former Detroit Lion Freddie Scott. Caruso will deliver her speech using a computerized voice synthesizer.

Scott, now a marketing representative, will discuss turning obstacles into stepping stones.

Fifteen workshops will be offered in the afternoon. Topics include finance, cooking, first aid, driving, and travel.

Developmental disabilities include mental retardation, cerebral palsy, epilepsy, autism and other related conditions.

The conference is sponsored by the Interdependent Living Council of Michigan.

For more information, contact Chapman at 455-8880, Ext. 365.

Madonna is at 36600 Schoolcraft, Livonia.

MET tuition program sets enrollment period

The Michigan Education Trust will be open for four weeks this fall for parents who want to invest for a child's future college education.

The MET board designated Oct. 15 through Nov. 9 as the 1990 application period, expanding it from the previous one week.

"The longer application period and the new payment options will allow more families to participate in MET," said state Treasurer Robert Bowman, MET board chair.

New options include monthly installment payments and payroll deductions, in addition to the one-time lump-sum payment offered in the past.

"Since 1988, approximately 50,000 youngsters have been enrolled in MET, making MET bigger than the state's largest university. The board's decisions were based on the actuarial soundness of the $350 million MET fund and the continued public interest in the program," Bowman added.

PSYCHIATRIST BRAINWASHES FAT
A Detroit area psychiatrist is using classic Russian and Chinese techniques to brainwash people into losing weight. The brainwashing is based on more than 6 years of medical research using alternating periods of sensory deprivation and sensory overload to plant a new, thin belief system in the mind. The brainwashing makes cravings disappear and stops bingeing and compulsive eating. The program was created for people who have never been able to stay on a diet, and has helped thousands of people lose weight and keep it off over the past 6 years. The BRAINWASHING DIET has been featured on the Joan Rivers Show, Sally Jesse Raphael and Larry King Live. The BRAINWASHING DIET BOOK by William Nagler, M.D. and Anne Androff, M.A. contains the complete 12 Hour Brainwashing Seminar thousands have paid $395 for. Now you can brainwash yourself at home. AZATHIOPRINE
Azathioprine is another medicine physicians use to treat rheumatoid arthritis. The medication is a consideration if gold, and/or methotrexate, penicillamine, or azulfadine have failed to halt the activity of the arthritis.
Like these other medications, azathioprine has toxic side effects. They include the stopping of production of red blood cells, platelets, and white blood cells. In addition, azathioprine may cause injury to the kidney, liver, lung, and skin.
The basis for these different toxicities is that azathioprine stops the proliferation of rapidly dividing cells. Central to the development of rheumatoid arthritis is a rapid increase in lymphocytes that cause self immunity. A medicine that stops this growth possibly could stop the arthritis.
Unfortunately, azathioprine may destroy any rapidly dividing cells, not only lymphocytes, but also blood cells, platelets, and other cells of the liver and kidney that are involved in the activities of these organs.
More physicians are turning to azathioprine because experience has shown that its toxicity is less than other drugs such as gold or methotrexate. Unfortunately, the efficacy of azathioprine is still unknown; greater use of the medication will establish its place.

Bill will reduce state aid to some school districts

By Tim Richard
staff writer

A "Robin Hood" school aid bill was approved by a 3-1 margin in the state House of Representatives only a day after the Senate gave it bare approval.

The vote was 74 to 24 with 12 absent.

The bill reduces categorical state aid to many suburban school districts by increasing the so-called "recapture" amount to $72 million from last year's $22 million.

"Almost $20 million of that $50 million will be on the backs of the taxpayers in Oakland County," said Rep. Mat Dunaskiss, R-Lake Orion, who filed a formal protest against the bill.

He predicted many districts will have to ask voters for local property tax increases to make up for lost state categorical aid.

AMONG OAKLAND lawmakers, the bill was opposed by Dunaskiss, Maxine Berman, D-Southfield, Jan Dolan, R-Farmington Hills, Judith Miller, R-Birmingham, Gordon Sparks, R-Troy, and Willfred Webb, D-Hazel Park.

David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, voted yes, making school aid a major issue in his next election. Honigman and Miller are rivals in the Aug. 7 Republican primary for the 17th District Senate seat being vacated by Richard Fessler, R-Commerce.

Both sides described it as a "Robin Hood" bill, taking from the out-of-formula districts with large property tax bases and giving to the districts within the state aid formula.

Among Wayne County lawmakers, the bill was favored by sponsor William Keith, D-Garden City, Justine Barns, D-Westland, and James Kosteva, D-Canton.

Missing the roll call was John Bennett, D-Redford.

Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, and Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, had excused absences.

The $3.15 billion state aid bill includes about $650 million in categorical aid for Social Security, pensions, bilingual, pregnant teens, special education and other defined purposes.

Until the last two budgets, all districts — rich and poor — had received categorical aid.

Dunaskiss and Sen. Doug Cruce, R-Troy, talked of a lawsuit challenging the bill on the ground that the Headlee amendment to the Michigan Constitution requires the state to pay for services that it mandates local governments to perform.

Keith said his long-range goal is to remove as many categoricals as possible from the aid bill and use the money in the general aid formula. If that were done, the proportion of districts receiving general state aid would rise to 90 percent from the current 71 percent.

IN OTHER business, the House fell far short of overriding Gov. James Blanchard's veto of a bill greatly reducing the state inheritance tax.

With 74 votes, a two-thirds majority, needed to override, the House mustered 49 yes votes, less than a simple majority, and 46 nays.

Observer & Eccentric Republicans all voted yes and Democrats no, except for the absent Bennett, Bankes and Law.

Petitions ask state Legislature to enact parental consent bill

Citizens for Parents' Rights has submitted a total of 332,787 signatures to the Secretary of State in Lansing in favor of a proposed abortion regulation bill called the Parental Rights Restoration Act.

Right to Life of Michigan President Barbara Listing, CPR spokeswoman, said the petitions ask the state Legislature to enact the bill to require a minor seeking an abortion to obtain parental consent.

"Once again, Gov. Blanchard's extreme pro-abortion stance has caused the citizens of Michigan to resort to their constitutional right to initiate legislation to restore parents' rights," Listing said. Blanchard vetoed a similar bill passed by the Legislature, but the House was unable to muster a two-thirds majority to override the veto.

If the Legislature acts on RTL's initiative, the bill could not be vetoed by the governor.

Listing said the group exceeded the quota of signatures by about 140,000 and also beat the 180-day deadline for signature collection by two months. Some 9,000 volunteers from all 83 counties obtained the signatures in less than four months, she said.

The completed petitions are under review by the state elections division. Listing said validation is expected by early September.

May figures are best showing for state economy this year

The Michigan Business Activity Index is heading up again. The May index jumped five points to 132 compared with 127 in April, Manufacturers National Bank reported.

"This is the best showing for the state's business conditions since the year began," said David L. Littmann, the bank's first vice president and senior economist.

"Nevertheless, year to date, the MBI is 0.8 percent below the first five months of last year, with May nearly 4 percent below the same month a year ago.

"Michigan's economic strength in the month of May came principally from the automotive sector, with higher car sales contributing 1.5 points and Michigan motor vehicle production adding nearly three points.

"Some of May's robust activity is clearly attributable to typical auto industry output patterns in a bargaining year," Littmann added. The MBI represents 10 measures of Michigan economic activity compiled monthly by the bank."

Savory summer mousses

Having been born and raised in Wyandotte and not reaching the age of culinary maturity till I ventured out north of Ford Road, whenever anyone mentioned mousse, they were referring to an animal, heralding from Northern Canada.

Most of us are accustomed to a creamy-smooth, melt-in-your-mouth concoction usually containing more total calories than a rotund French chef. But mousses don't necessarily have to be laden with sweet cream, sugar and chocolate.

A recent story on turning calorie-laden cheesecakes into savory lunch or light dinner entrees spurred this writer into researching what the average household cook can do to transform another cool, summer-loved treat into a light brunchable or tres chic cool entree.

SAVORY OR sweet, the cold mousse is the queen of summer's epicurean dishes.

The climax of a summer night's dinner party, or the entree for an evening meal when the temperatures are soaring and the plates are jaded, a cool entree can be a welcome star at any table.

The blender, food processor and electric mixer, coupled with the refrigerator, are allies in making light work of a cool summer savory mousse.

MOUSSE, IN FRENCH, means "moss," "froth" and "cream" — all apt descriptions of this super-smooth concoction.

Whipped cream with gelatin as a stabilizer is the base for most cold mousses. For picture-perfect results, the cream shouldn't be whipped to a fare-thee-well, or the mixture will be grainy.

Rather, it should be whipped just until it begins to take the form of gentle mounds and pillows, never stiff peaks.

THE GELATIN should be used sparingly to avoid a rubbery consistency, and it always must be thoroughly dissolved before being added to any of the mixtures.

Generally, a tablespoon of plain gelatin will gel one pint of liquid, and commercial unflavored gelatin is usually packaged with one tablespoon of granules per packet.

A call to the cooking professionals at Kitchen Glamor, the metro area's gourmet haven, found what kitchen connoisseurs consider to be the best in unflavored gelatin, dubbed Grayslake.

Available exclusively from Kitchen Glamor, this pure unflavored gelatin not only excels in mousses but can be made into marshmallow.

WHILE MOUSSES may be served directly from a bowl or, for dessert, in individual glasses or bowls, savory mousses are most attractive when chilled in a mold and garnished after unmolding on a serving plate or tray.

The more decorative the mold, the more dramatic will be the presentation of the dish.

Again, Kitchen Glamor has a vast array of attractive molds, as do many of the kitchen departments at major retailers. In all honesty, however, yours truly has even used, in a pinch, a suitable-sized bowl from the kitchen cupboard.

BEST OF all are the lightweight tin molds, easiest to unmold by inverting on the serving plate and covering with a hot towel wrung out in hot water. Of course, a light spray of a food-release agent such as Pam also can do the trick.

Ring molds are especially good for mousses requiring a sauce or for holding garnishes. In general, a 1 1/4-quart mold will easily serve six.

Mousses need not be totally smooth. Crunchy, crisp textures can be buried or mixed into the creamy base.

So if you can't stand the heat in the kitchen, get out!

Old-fashioned meat market

By Janice Brunson
Staff writer

IN SOME WAYS, a step into Porterhouse Meats on Main Street in Plymouth is a step into the past.

Sides of beef are hung to age in the style of yesteryear. Bacon, cured on the premises, is warin from smoking. A dozen varieties of sausage reflect customer request. Sauces, home canned from personalized recipes, adorn countertops.

Moreover, the sense of an earlier time is flavored by good old-fashioned service.

Such an atmosphere is not mere happenstance.

It is the result of 14-hour-workdays, attention to detail and an artistic bent by owners Jack and Kristin Trabue — parents of three young daughters — who purchased the butcher shop four years ago.

According to Jack Trabue, dressing meat, improving standard butchery fare and fashioning new fare is akin to the advanced degree in fine arts he holds from Eastern Michigan University.

"It's the same process. The attitude is the same. The mentality is the same," said Jack, the acknowledged idea man of the pair.

Kristin, a speech pathologist who graduated from Michigan State University, attends to business. "My job is to know the customers and tell them about the products he develops."

ANDOUILLE CAJUN and Creole Cajun sausages are a case in point.

Though something of a master sausage maker, Trabue was unprepared when an area caterer ordered spicy Cajun.

"I got on the phone and started calling butcher shops in New Orleans," Trabue said. Half a dozen calls later, he had pieced together zesty recipes for Andouille and Creole. Both are now standard fare.

Other customer requests that are now staples include Boerewors, an African sausage of beef and lamb, and Chorizo, a Mexican blood sausage. On request in the fall, Trabue prepares Thüringer or venison sausage for area hunters.

When a group of gourmands who meet monthly required a specially prepared rolled lamb loin without bone — an unusual request that requires a certain amount of butchery skill to prepare — they turned to Trabue. "I don't know if they could have found anyone else to do it."

Trabue's city chicken, marinated skewers of chicken breast and pork tenderloin, is an adaptation, as is improved chicken cordon bleu, a smaller, more secure version that is less likely to leak tasty cheese stuffing.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Jack and Kristin Trabue show some of the butchery fare, as well as their own new product line, that they offer at Porterhouse Meats in Plymouth.

Such things, he said, "are small changes but customers seem to like them."

Trabue also accommodates increasing health concerns by stocking specially raised Amish chicken and by smoking bacon with less salt, a process that requires seven days of preparation. He also smokes wild boar, pheasant, caribou and salmon upon request.

SUNDAY IS "FUN DAY" at Porterhouse Meats, a day set aside for special requests and one-of-a-kind orders. "I'm willing to cut anything," Jack said, adding, "I always meet a lot of new customers."

Sunday also permits ample time to visit with customers, Kristin points out.

All beef used in the shop is top-choice, aged, hanging beef that allows for more tender meat. Sides of beef are available at $1.59 a pound, a hind quarter costs $1.89 a pound and a front quarter is $1.49 a pound.

Although quality is higher, Porterhouse prices are comparable to area supermarkets, according to Kristin, who said, "People assume we're more expensive but we're comparable." Bulk purchases are possible, phone orders are accepted and delivery is available for the homebound.

Though cuts of meat, poultry and fish are the mainstay of the business, Jack's legendary enthusiasm in experimenting with new culinary ideas is also an important part of the business.

Passing interest in spaghetti and barbecue sauces and chili led to cooking marathons at home and in the shop. Word of Mouth Spaghetti Sauce, Jack's Smokey BBQ Sauce and Word of Mouth Chili are now prepared and packaged for sale at Porterhouse and other locations. chili is available in frozen crow-crow packages.

Once, using an old recipe, Jack even prepared soap from leftover tallow. New ideas for a steak salt and a vegetable drink are in the planning stages.

BIGGEST CHALLENGE of the moment, according to Kristin, is maintaining quality, in view of Jack's busy schedule. "I can sell it but I don't know how to make it," she said with a laugh, referring to the special cuts of meat and homemade sauces that require much of Jack's time.

Porterhouse Spidini

- Sirloin tip, thinly sliced: 2 slices per person
- Provolone cheese, cut into sticks 1/2 x 4 inches: 2 sticks per person
- Italian plum tomatoes, fresh or canned, crushed
- Dehydrated onions, moistened with water

Place 2 slices sirloin tip side by side, overlapping by 1 inch. Place 2 sticks Provolone in center of sirloin. Cover with tomatoes and onions. Fold in half once. Fold ends. Roll. Dip roll in olive oil and coat with Italian Progresso bread crumbs. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Place side by side in baking dish. Cover with Jack's Word of Mouth spaghetti sauce and bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Normally serve one spidini per person.

Jack's Jambalaya

With pork, ham and sausage

- 2 tablespoons salted butter

- 4 cups chopped onions
- 2/3 cup chopped green pepper
- 1/3 cup thinly sliced green scallion tops
- 1 tablespoon finely minced garlic
- 2 tablespoons finely minced fresh parsley
- 1 pound lean pork cut into 3/4-inch cubes
- 1 cup finely chopped baked ham
- 6 links creole sausage
- 2-1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon coarse ground black pepper
- 1/8 teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon chili powder
- 2 whole bay leaves, crushed
- 1/4 teaspoon dried thyme
- 1/8 teaspoon cloves
- 1-1/2 cups long grain rice
- 3 cups rich beef stock

Game for a great meal? Try reliable MacKinnon's

Ten years ago, the west-side restaurant scene — below Oakland County's glitz and glitter belt — was generally dreary.

Downriver cuisine had not yet graduated from braised muskrat to raw fish, and in the Western Wayne County heartland, restaurants were stuck in the steak sandwich stage.

Tom MacKinnon didn't single-handedly change that when his new restaurant opened nearly a decade ago in downtown Northville.

But the opening of MacKinnon's did coincide with a west-side restaurant renaissance, and today a night of fine dining no longer means heading to Ann Arbor or downtown Detroit.

THOUGH MACKINNON'S bears the strong stamp of its 34-year-old co-owner, a big part of the package is its location.

MacKinnon's front window, draped in lace curtains, looks out on downtown Northville, a pleasant main street community with a Victorian theme.

MacKinnon's menu also is Victorian, after a fashion. Its strong suit is game, and that's reflected in the decor. Mallard, pheasant and quail are captured in paintings and lithographs hanging on the brick walls, in a lovely stained glass panel, and in little treatments like the napkin holders.

Much of the artwork is that of Leonard Wades, the other co-owner who has done as much for the restaurant's ambience as MacKinnon has done for the food.

IN SEASON, MacKinnon does venison, buffalo, pheasant, quail and other game, often combined with a fruit sauce — black currant, for example.

A year-round staple is duck, and the best dish on the menu is "blown-up duck," where the chef injects air underneath the skin of a half duck before baking.

The result is crisped skin while the meat underneath remains moist. Add a raspberry sauce, and you've got a real heart stopper.

Char-grilled mallard breast is one of three items in the Scotch grill, a plate that adds a lamb chop and smoked salmon in a pastry, served with two sauces.

MACKINNON ALSO has a confident hand with fish.

Our Dover sole was cooked perfectly in herb butter and then fileted artfully at the table.

It was served with two delicious sauces, a zesty bearnaise and a milder lobster cream sauce. A recent swordfish special also was excellent.

THOUGH THE menu changes periodically and is always supplemented with an array of specials, two items have been around almost as long as the restaurant (which opened on Devil's Night, 1981).

Those are the rack of lamb served with a black currant sauce and the Beef Wellington, complemented with a bordelaise sauce.

We like the crawfish bisque, we like the duck pate, we like the French crepe-like taco, we like the sirloin with green pepper, we like the ravioli with tomato prosciutto sauce, we like the wild turkey tenderloin with spiced berry sauce.

WE CAN'T remember anything we haven't liked about MacKinnon's, except that every once in a while the gruyere gets one touch over the line and the wonderful wine just is a bit too pricey for us to sample from top to bottom.

JOHN DISCHER

We've had dozens of meals at MacKinnon's over the last nine years, and it has never disappointed us.

It is one of the rare restaurants where you can dine with complete confidence and comfort. We can't get enough of the place.

See Larry Janes' Taste Buds column, Page 1B

- ZUCCHINI MOUSSE
(Another great way to use that abundance from the garden)
- 1 pound zucchini, unpeeled, cut into thick slices
 - 1 medium onion, sliced thin
 - 1/2 stick butter or margarine
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons curry powder
 - 1 can (13 ounces) chicken broth or homemade stock
 - Pinch cayenne pepper
 - 1 cup heavy cream
 - 3 tablespoons chopped green onions, tops only
 - 2 tablespoons unflavored gelatin
 - 1/2 cup cold chicken broth or homemade stock

Prepare a mold or bowl. Reserve 12 slices of zucchini for garnish. Sauté remaining zucchini and onion in butter until limp but not mushy. Drain. Add salt, curry powder, cayenne and chicken broth.

With a slotted spoon, remove 1 cup of mixture (without the liquid) and mash. Puree remaining mixture in blender or processor until smooth. Fold into cream and add green onions. Chill while preparing gelatin.

Sprinkle gelatin over broth, stir and cook over low heat until gelatin is dissolved, about 3 minutes. Do not boil. Cool for a few minutes and fold into chilled mixture.

Transfer to mold and refrigerate about 4 hours or until firm. Unmold and garnish with remaining zucchini slices. Serves 6. (Great with a cold chicken or turkey salad, rolls and light summer wine.)

- CLAM MOUSSE
- 18 cherry-stemmed clams, steamed open, with juice reserved
 - 2 tablespoons unflavored gelatin
 - 2 tablespoons cold water
 - 1/4 cup dry white wine
 - 1/4 cup bottled clam juice
 - 1 cup frozen peas, thawed, drained
 - 1 tablespoon chives, chopped
 - 1 tablespoon parsley, chopped
 - 1 medium carrot, peeled and chopped fine
 - 2 medium stalks celery, chopped fine
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon fresh ground pepper
 - 1 cup mayonnaise
 - 1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Prepare a mold. Remove clams from shells and chop coarsely. Dissolve gelatin in water and add wine and clam juice reserved from clams.

Cook over low heat but do not boil until dissolved, about 3 minutes. Add to clams. Add remaining ingredients except cream. Mix well. Fold in cream gently and transfer to mold or bowl.

Refrigerate for 4 hours or until firm. Unmold onto plate or platter and garnish with parsley, olives and cherry tomatoes. Great with a tossed salad and hot garlic bread.

2 cooks are finalists

Two area women, Jan Huszco of Birmingham and Ruth Kluth of Livonia, were finalists in the fourth annual Bavarian Inn Lodge Cook Off in Frankenmuth recently.

Huszco was a finalist in the meat and poultry category. A homemaker whose hobbies include stained glass work, Huszco prepared her entry titled "Stir-Fried Chicken Fajitas" before a live audience at the cook off.

Ruth Kluth was a finalist in the vegetable dish category. A retired analyst who previously won a national cooking contest, Kluth also prepared her entry "Glorified Sauerkraut" before a live audience.

Each woman was awarded two tickets for Sunday brunch at the lodge, for her participation. Prizes also were given in the dessert category.

GLORIFIED SAUERKRAUT

- 1 pound can sauerkraut, drained
- 1 pound can chopped tomatoes
- 2 medium onions, chopped
- 1 green pepper, chopped
- 1 4-ounce can sliced mushrooms, drained
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Saute onions, pepper and mushrooms in butter until limp. Add to sauerkraut with undrained tomatoes. Place into lightly greased 2-quart casserole and bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes covered. Remove cover and bake an additional 30 minutes.

Keeps well and can be reheated easily. Serves 8.

GRAND PRIZE winner was Marie Rizzio from Traverse City who received a deluxe weekend for two at the lodge including a meal allowance, plus a $300 Frankenmuth shopping spree.

A total of 451 recipes from contestants in Michigan, surrounding states and Canada were submitted. Thirty-six finalists were chosen to compete in the cook off.

Guests sampled the prize-winning recipes following the judgments. The cook off day also included free baking and cooking demonstrations as well as exhibits of chocolate artistry and doll making. A special luncheon was available featuring some of the lion, garlic, parsley, pork and ham. Continue to cook over low heat for 15 minutes, stirring constantly until vegetables and meat are browned. Add sausage and remaining seasonings. Continue cooking over low heat 5 minutes or more. Add rice and beef stock. Mix well. Increase heat to high and bring to a boil. Cover pot and turn heat to very-low and cook 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Uncover pot, raise temperature to medium and cook 10 minutes more, stirring frequently. This will dry rice slightly. Serve immediately.

Jack likes his jambalaya rich, and uses beef stock in place of water. To stretch the amount for extra mouths, double the rice and broth, and add an additional 1/2 teaspoon salt, and 1/4 teaspoon pepper.

CHICKEN SATAY WITH PEANUT SAUCE
"365 Great Barbecue & Grilling Recipes"

Harper & Row, 1990

- 4 skinless, boneless chicken breast halves
- 1/2 cup soy sauce
- 2 teaspoons grated fresh ginger
- 2 garlic cloves, minced
- 2 tablespoons fresh lime juice
- 1 tablespoon peanut butter
- 1 tablespoon Asian sesame oil
- 1/2 teaspoon crushed hot red pepper flakes

Soak 30 long bamboo skewers in water at least 30 minutes. Slice chicken crosswise into wide, thin strips about 3/4-by-4-by-2 inches. Thread chicken strips onto soaked skewers, leaving about 4 inches for a handle at one end. Place in a baking dish and marinate 2 hours in sauce of soy sauce, ginger, garlic, lime juice, peanut butter, sesame oil and hot pepper. Then grill until chicken is lightly browned, about 3-5 minutes.

PEANUT SAUCE
2 tablespoons peanut oil

- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 2 garlic cloves, minced
- 1 tablespoon crushed hot red pepper flakes
- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- 3 tablespoons lime juice
- 1/4 cup soy sauce
- 1 cup peanut butter, smooth or chunky
- 1/2 cup unsweetened coconut milk, canned or fresh

In a small heavy saucepan, heat oil. Add onion, garlic, hot pepper flakes and cumin. Cook until onion and garlic are fragrant but not brown, about 10 minutes. Stir in lime juice and soy sauce. Gradually stir in peanut butter and then coconut milk until smooth. Cook, stirring, until hot, about 5 minutes.

MARINATED STEAK SALAD
"Japanese Cooking with American Beef"
U.S. Meat Export Federation, 1990
17 ounces beef fillet
10 baby onions

- 1/2 carrot, sliced thin
- 1/2 cauliflower, cut into bite-sized pieces
- 1/2 zucchini, sliced thin
- 8 mushrooms, sliced thin
- 12 green beans, cut into bite-sized pieces
- 1 tomato, cut into bite-sized pieces
- Pepper
- Olive oil
- Green vegetables: 1 head salad greens, 1/2 bunch white radish sprouts, 1 handful chicory, dandelion leaves and chervil
- Dressing
1/2 cup olive oil
2 tablespoons white wine
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard.

Tear green vegetables into pieces. Add mushrooms and tomato. Boil other vegetables; cool and add to greens. Cut beef into bite-size pieces, flavor with salt and pepper and saute in olive oil. Combine with vegetables. Mix with dressing.

'Souper Bowl' selects prize winners

Chef Ron Nicol of Les Auteurs in Royal Oak won first place and $500 in the Michigan "Souper Bowl II" contest recently held at the Black Swan Inn in Kalamazoo.

Nicol took top honors for his recipe, Michigan Green and White Asparagus Soup with Grilled Salmon and Smoked Tomatoes.

In the amateur category, Mina De Kraker of Holland won first place and $500 in the competition for her Cold Apple Soup.

Among professional chef finalists were Terence Shuster of the Fox and Hounds in Bloomfield Hills; Craig Common of Charley's Restaurant group, headquartered in Farmington Hills; Lorraine Platman of Sweet Lorraine's Cafe in Southfield; and David Phillips of the Wharfside in Charlevoix.

AMATEUR FINALISTS included Virginia Karnafel of Redford, Gail Bliss of Ann Arbor, Barbara Palin of Gaylord and Dorothy Wonacott of Elk Rapids.

Final judges were Mark Griffin, vice-president of the Michigan Restaurant Association; Louis "Ned" Legg, chairman of Michigan Week, and Edward Edwardson, public safety director for the city of Kalamazoo.

Preliminary judges were Ethel

Simmons, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers food editor; Jean Sarna, Detroit Free Press test kitchen director, food writer and home economist; and Evelyn Cairns, Heritage Newspapers food editor.

The "Souper Bowl" contest is a search for the best state soup made of all-Michigan products in honor of Michigan Week, May 18-26.

SMOKED TURKEY AND LENTIL SOUP

- 1/2 gallon chicken stock
- 1/2 gallon beef stock
- 1 1/4 pound leeks (cleaned, sliced 1/4-inch thick)
- 1 pound celery (diced fine)
- 1 pound carrots (diced fine)
- 1 tablespoon fresh thyme (chopped fine)
- 1 1/2 pound smoked turkey (cubed 1/2-inch thick)
- 8 ounces mushrooms (sliced 1/4-inch thick)
- 1/4 teaspoon black pepper
- 1 tablespoon parsley (chopped fine)
- 12 ounces lentils (soak in water for 4 hours)

with chicken and beef stock, mushrooms, celery, carrots, leeks, thyme, black pepper and cook for 1 hour, covered. Add smoked turkey and parsley, cook for 15 minutes. Serve hot.

Yield: 1 1/2 gallons.

MICHIGAN HARVEST SOUP

- 1/2 gallon cubed butternut squash
- 1 quart of peeled, cored and diced Michigan cooking apples
- 2 medium onions, diced
- 1/2 gallon homemade chicken stock
- 1/2 tablespoon dried rosemary
- 1/2 teaspoon of ground white pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon of ground cayenne pepper
- 8 tablespoons of unsalted butter
- 3/4 cup unbleached all-purpose flour
- sliced red delicious apples for garnish

In a large stock pot, melt butter and add the flour and stir until mixture is combined and bubbly. Stir in chicken stock and cook, stirring constantly until mixture has thickened. Lower heat and add all remaining ingredients and simmer until squash is tender. Puree thoroughly. Serve hot, garnish with a red delicious apple slice.

Yields: 1 gallon.

FINALIST - AMATEUR

ONE-POT CHOWDER

- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 3 minced garlic cloves
- 1 cup finely chopped celery
- 1 cup finely chopped onion
- 16-ounce size stewed tomatoes (chopped fine)
- 1 quart Clamato juice
- 1/4 teaspoon oregano
- 1/4 teaspoon basil
- 1/4 teaspoon thyme
- 1 pound of boneless fish (such as cod, turbot, perch)
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

Cook onions in oil until tender. Add garlic and spices and cook for another minute. Add celery and cook with lid on until tender. Add tomatoes and cook for 20-25 minutes, stirring occasionally to prevent sticking. Add fish and Clamato juice and cook for 15 minutes uncovered at full heat. Salt to taste, cover and cook for 2 minutes at low heat. Stir often with a whisk to break up fish.

Serves 6-8.

This week's Winner Dinner was submitted by Suzanne Paranjpe of Birmingham.

Featuring Shrimp and Rice Paella, Mandarin Orange Salad, Stir-Fried Zucchini and Summer Pudding, the delicious menu will bring a taste of Spain to your dinner table.

A health care and benefits consultant, Paranjpe enjoys traveling with her husband of four years. Together they have traveled to his native country, India, as well as to Canada and Ireland, and are hoping to go to Spain for the 1992 Summer Olympics.

They have worked together on fixing up and redoing their home and have found a lot of pleasure in gardening and antiques.

Their teamwork extends to the kitchen as well, where they divide up the work and prepare meals together. They enjoy having their friends over for Sunday brunch, although the cuisine tends to be more American than Indian.

Thank you, Suzanne Paranjpe, for sharing your menu with us, and congratulations on being this week's Winner Dinner Winner. Continued happy trails to you and your husband.

A final note. I'm still looking for terrific pasta salad recipes, menus designed for two people and meals that children can easily put together. I hope you will take a minute to jot your favorite recipes down and send them my way.

Submit your recipes, to be considered for publication in this column or elsewhere, to: Winner Dinner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham 48012. All submissions become the property of the publisher. Each week's winner receives an apron with the words Winner Dinner Winner on it.

Recipes are printed the same size so that you may clip and save them in a three-ring binder. Use a paper punch to make holes in the clipping, or paste the clipping on a blank sheet of three-ring notebook paper. Another option is to simply file the clipping in a folder with pockets that will hold them.

Observer & Eccentric Winner Dinner

SHRIMP AND RICE PAELLA

This tasty dish takes about 20 minutes to prepare and only needs to cook for 30 minutes. It serves 4 and can be doubled in order to feed more people.

- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 4 shallots, finely chopped (or the white part of two green onions)
- 6 mushrooms, thinly sliced
- 1 red pepper, seeded and finely chopped
- 1 cup uncooked white rice
- 1/2 cup dry vermouth
- 1 1/2 cups chicken broth
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon finely minced garlic
- 1/2 teaspoon crumbled dried oregano
- 1/2 teaspoon powdered saffron or 1/4 teaspoon saffron threads dissolved in 2 tablespoons hot chicken broth
- 1/4 teaspoon red pepper flakes
- 3/4 cup cleaned and deveined medium shrimp, cut into small pieces

OR

- 1 package Crab Delights chunks
- 1 cup frozen peas, thawed
- 2 tablespoon Parmesan cheese

Heat oil and saute the shallots, mushrooms and red pepper over medium heat for 7-8 minutes or until softened. Add rice and stir to coat. Add vermouth and allow to boil.

Add broth, lemon juice, garlic, oregano, saffron and red pepper flakes. Bring to a boil, cover and reduce heat. Simmer 20 minutes and be sure not to remove the cover until 20 minutes have passed.

Add shrimp and peas. Stir, cover and cook for 3-5 minutes. Add the parmesan cheese, stir and serve.

- #### MANDARIN ORANGE SALAD
- 1 small can mandarin oranges, drained

- 1 small can sliced water chestnuts, drained
- 1 tablespoon slivered almonds
- Red and green leaf lettuce
- 4 green onions, white and green parts minced
- Dressing
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 tablespoons raspberry or red wine vinegar
- 1/2 teaspoon Dijon mustard
- Pinch of salt
- Salt and freshly ground pepper

Toss salad ingredients. In a small bowl, whisk salad dressing ingredients. Pour dressing over salad, toss and serve.

STIR-FRIED ZUCCHINI

- 1 medium onion, thinly sliced
- 2 medium zucchini, sliced
- 1 small can stewed tomatoes
- 1 tablespoon oregano
- 1 teaspoon basil
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1 tablespoon Parmesan cheese

Melt butter or margarine. Saute onion over medium heat until soft. Add zucchini and stir until soft. Add tomatoes, spices and cook until heated through. Sprinkle with cheese and serve.

SUMMER PUDDING

- 14 slices very thin white bread, crusts removed
- 3 1/2 cups strawberries, sliced
- 2 1/2 cups blueberries
- 1/2 cups sugar

Place one slice of bread in the bottom of a 1 1/2 quart bowl. Arrange 10 slices of bread, overlapping, around the side of the bowl.

Combine the berries and sugar in a medium sauce pan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until the sugar is dissolved.

Cool to room temperature. Pour off about 1/2 cup of fruit syrup and reserve.

Shopping List

- olive oil
- 4 shallots
- 1 bunch of green onions
- 1 medium-sized onion
- 2 medium zucchini
- Mushrooms
- 1 red pepper
- white rice
- Dry Vermouth
- 1 can chicken broth
- 1 small can stewed tomatoes
- 1 lemon
- Garlic
- Oregano
- Basil
- Saffron
- Red pepper flakes
- 1/4 pound cooked, cleaned and deveined shrimp
- Frozen peas
- Parmesan cheese
- Butter or margarine
- 1 can mandarin oranges
- 1 small can sliced water chestnuts
- Slivered almonds
- Red and green leaf lettuce
- Raspberry or red wine vinegar
- Dijon mustard
- Salt
- Pepper
- 1 loaf of very thinly sliced white bread
- 1 quart of strawberries
- 1 quart of blueberries
- Sugar
- Whipping cream
- Almond extract

Pour fruit mixture into the bread-lined bowl. Cover with the remaining bread slices, cutting them to fit. Cover with a plate that fits inside the bowl, weight with cans and refrigerate 12 hours or overnight.

To serve, unmold onto a serving plate and serve with whipped cream, reserved syrup and additional berries.

Real whipped cream with 1/4 teaspoon almond extract added is wonderful.

KITCHEN CALLS

The staff of culinary experts at the Opus One restaurant in Detroit is available from 2-4 p.m. Mondays "to talk to you about your kitchen difficulties, dilemmas and disasters," according to a spokesperson.

The number to call is 961-7766. Subjects tackled by the experts range from equipment to methodology and from technique to food spoilage.

Opus One Executive Chef Peter

Loren said, "When you need financial advice you go to your accountant; when you need medical information, you call your doctor. But until now there's been virtually no one you could turn to when you had a problem in the kitchen."

NASSER FROOZAN

Funeral services for area physician Nasser Froozan were held Thursday at Santeiu and Sons funeral home in Garden City. A physician for over 35 years, Dr. Froozan, 60, died of cardiac arrest July 1. Born in Iran, he came to the United States in 1958 and pursued residencies at several hospitals. At the completion of those residencies, he opened an obstetrics and gynecology practice in Westland. Over the years, Dr. Froozan became increasingly active in infertility and the AIDS Awareness Program, lecturing to students throughout the community. Surviving are his sons, John, Javeed and Nader; a daughter-in-law, Minerva; three brothers and one sister. In lieu of flowers, donations are requested for the "Fund for Iranian Earthquake Relief."

ARNOLD WALLACE

Funeral services for Arnold Wallace, 69, were held Tuesday at the Vermeulen Funeral home in Westland.

He is survived by 10 brothers and sisters, including Betty (Dan) Neal of Westland. Pastor Earl Habecker of Westland Free Methodist Church officiated at the funeral with interment at United Memorial Gardens in Superior Township. Donations were requested to the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

Piedmont's specialty is the big red wines

Italy's Piedmont region is the land of the Fiat, white truffles, prestigious Vermouth houses and Asti Spumante producers. It also boasts a significant production of Italy's finest dry sparkling wines.

Annual Piedmont wine production approximates 120 million gallons from 250,000 acres of vineyards.

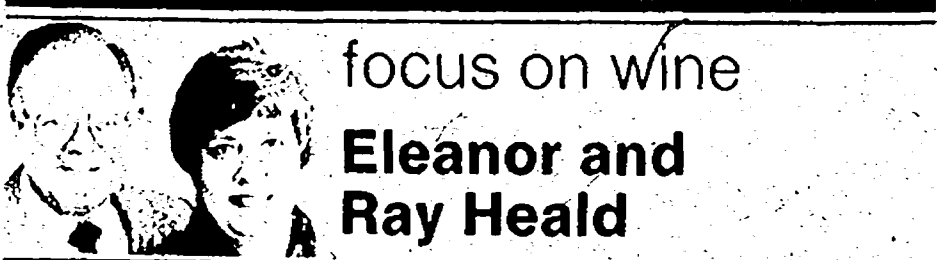

Flinty, crisp white Gavi wine from the Piedmont is fast becoming a chic item. Distinctive, rich, dry Arneis is attracting attention. But the specialty of Northern Italy's Piedmont region is big, mouth-filling red wines.

PIEDMONT MEANS "foot of the mountains."

Much of the picturesque terrain consists of Alpine or Apennine slopes covered with south-facing vineyards. This is a land blessed with many small independent growers and wineries with impeccable standards and world-class red wines.

THE NOBLE grape of the region is nebbiolo. However, this variety represents only a little over 2.5 percent of all grapes produced in the region.

Translated as "foggy," the name nebbiolo derives from the fog that covers the hills of the Piedmont until late morning.

Eleanor and Ray Heald

Documentation of the cultivation of this grape in the hillsides of the Piedmont, principally between the towns of Alba and Asti, dates to the 13th century.

IT IS A difficult grape to grow. Cultivation is localized in limited areas chosen for the proper soil, elevation and sun exposure.

Nebbiolo gains its greatest distinction in the wines from the villages of Barolo and Barbaresco near the town of Alba in the Southern Piedmont.

Here, brothers Bruno and Marcello Ceretto continue the work of their father, Riccardo, who founded the family winery in 1935.

IN 1952, the brothers made history as the first Italian producers to ferment red wines in stainless steel tanks.

"Stainless steel fermentation of red wines in the Piedmont is most important," Bruno Ceretto said. "Without it, temperature control is impossible and the wine suffers a loss of fruit."

The Cerettos specialize in premium single-vineyard Barolo and Barbaresco wines, and boast ownership of the prestigious Faset Vineyard in Barbaresco. The very limited production 1985 Barbaresco Faset was first released in 1988.

FROM THEIR Bracco Rocche Estate in Castiglione Falletto, the Cerettos produce three "cru" Barolos: Brunate, Prapo and Bracco Rocche.

The Ceretto winery in the town of Alba also vinifies grapes grown in vineyards the family leases for 30-year periods — the approximate lifespan of a vine.

These wines are labeled Barbaresco from the Asij vineyard,

WINE SELECTION OF THE WEEK

1988 Ceretto Dolcetto d'Alba, Rossana Vineyard ($16) fits the bill as a superbly crafted, seriously made, light red wine. Ripe red fruit aromas and flavors and resolved tannins make it both approachable and delicious with a long, tasty finish.

Barolo from the Zonchera di Brunate vineyard, Dolcetto d'Alba from the Rossana vineyard and Nebbiolo d'Alba from the Lantasco vineyard.

A TASTING of the wines from the diversified vineyards reveals a distinctive charm and charisma.

1988 Arneis Blange ($18) is lean and tannic with solid supporting fruit. The straightforward presentation is a good introduction to the nebbiolo grape in the style of a Barolo.

1985 Barbaresco Asij ($18) represents the higher tannin levels of the vintage in a round, well-extracted wine with solid fruit and finish. It exemplifies a handsomely styled Bar-baresco. Both the Barolo and Barbaresco will benefit from continued bottle aging for several more years.

Because of Italy's lengthy winemaking history, the top producers are continually faced with upholding special regional traditions while striving to bring the region to its fullest modern potential. The Ceretto brothers have done this extraordinarily well.

"THE PIEDMONT tradition continues in quality vineyard sites, even though the winemaking techniques are modern," Ceretto said. "1989 is the vintage of the century. It's better than the acclaimed 1961. All wines will be uniformly excellent with concentrated, extracted fruit."

"Good to average wines are made in years when it is sunny only during the months of July and August. In great years, like 1989, it is very sunny from April to November."

It would seem, then, that while current releases are stellar performers, we await the best wines from the craftsmen Ceretto.

Secrets of grilling fine cheeseburgers

AP — The American Dairy Association has the following tips for grilling great cheeseburgers.

- Use your hands to gently shape ground beef into patties, but keep handling to a minimum. The more the beef is manipulated, the less juicy the burgers will be.
- Grill burgers over medium coals. The coals are considered medium when they appear to glow through the layer of gray ash that covers them. This usually takes 30-45 minutes. Or hold your hand, palm down, about 4 inches above the coals for four seconds before the heat becomes uncomfortable.

- Wait to salt burgers until after they have been turned.

Boles becomes number at U-M

THOUGHTS WHILE waiting at another long train crossing at Merriman Road.

Boles 'em over?: From all indications, ex-Westland John Glenn High star Tony Boles will not be back this fall in the University of Michigan football uniform.

Fifth-year seniors at U-M are traditionally considered "risks," and with Boles' grades and knee in question, new head coach Gary Moeller figures the two-time All-Big Ten tailback is expendable.

If the Michigan people were concerned about his situation, he would have been enrolled in the spring term.

Unfortunately, Boles is another victim of the "100 Yard Lie" that Sports Illustrated's Rick Telander writes about in his book about the abuses of college football.

Considered damaged goods, Boles can easily be replaced in the backfield by such guys as Jon Vaughn, Allen Jefferson and Ricky Powers.

Boles' father Daniel also made an interesting comment about his son being somewhat miffed when the U-M people downplayed his prospects for the Heisman.

Ironically, if Boles would have been at Notre Dame or Michigan State, the promotional campaign would have been in full swing.

Things are done differently in Ann Arbor, whether it's right or wrong.

My main concern about Tony Boles is will he find his niche in life without pro football or a college degree?

But whatever happens, Boles certainly gave me plenty of exciting Fridays and Saturdays to last a lifetime. He was a gifted, natural athlete, through and through, ala Bo Jackson.

Maybe getting ready to play in the new World Football League this spring is Boles' best option. I can empathize with him.

Ron Way-ward?: Former Wayne High pitcher Ron Way was progressing nicely through the Pirates organization until he had a run-in with a manager down in Class A team last month in Augusta, Ga.

Way, who was 5-2 with an ERA under 3.00, was suspended indefinitely and sent home.

The confrontation didn't sit well with some of the Pirates staff, but I learned recently that Way will be reassigned to another farm club. Last week he flew back to Bradenton, Fla., awaiting reassignment.

Maybe the best solution for both parties concerned to find another organization that will take Way, possibly in a trade.

Here's the boot: Just a reminder, high school football is only five weeks away with the first practice scheduled Aug. 13 and the first game Aug. 31.

This season should be more bizarre than ever with eight different divisions.

AA (Region II) — Plymouth Canton, Plymouth Salem, Garden City, Livonia Churchill, Livonia Franklin, Livonia Stevenson, Redford Catholic Central, Wayne Memorial and Westland John Glenn.

A (Region IV) — Farmington, North Farmington, Redford Union, Walled Lake Central and Walled Lake Western.

BB (Region IV) — Farmington Harrison and Redford Thurston.

B (Region IV) — Livonia Clarenceville and Redford Bishop Borgess.

C (Region IV) — Redford St. Agatha and Lutheran Westland.

DD and D — nobody.

Sabo an All-Star: Observerland will be represented in Tuesday's All-Star game at Wrigley Field in Chicago.

Redford Catholic Central grad Chris Sabo was voted the starting third baseman for the National League.

Sabo has been up over the .300 mark most of the season and displayed some power with 16 homers.

He is one of the reasons the Reds are on top the National League West. Sabo is making his second All-Star appearance.

Not bad for a guy who at one time wanted to be a goalie in the National Hockey League.

College stars off to Tiger Stadium

By Brad Emons
staff writer

As a prelude to the Major League All-Star Game Tuesday night at Chicago's Wrigley Field, the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League All-Stars will take on the best from the Detroit Adray League in a 9:30 a.m. matchup at Tiger Stadium.

The LCBL All-Stars will be trying to avenge a 16-2 loss last season to the Detroiters. Baseball fans will get an added bonus at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday as the Detroiters take on the Lansing-area All-Stars.

Admission is free for both games. Spectators can enter Tiger Stadium through Gate No. 15 beginning at 9 a.m.

Detroit again will be managed by Bob Atkins, whose first-place Adray Appliance team, now 13-1 in league play and 19-2 overall, boasts 11 representatives. (Dave Racer of Hines Park Lincoln-Mercury will manage the LCBL squad.)

The most impressive player to date for the Appliance squad is catcher/outfielder Mike Heard.

HEARD, a product of Wayne Memorial High, is battling cleanup for Appliance. He will be a junior this fall at Siena Heights College where he made the All-NAA District 23 team.

"He's done very well for us, he's been outstanding," said Atkins. "Mike does a lot of things right. He's alert and aggressive."

The versatile Heard, likely to be drafted next year, has been filling in for injured Appliance starting catcher Mike Stefanski, who has been bothered by a sprained knee.

Stefanski, a Redford Union High product, will play Tuesday if his knee comes around, according to Atkins.

Stefanski, who will be a senior at this fall at the University of Detroit, is coming off his best season as a Titan where he batted over .300 and gained All-Midwestern Collegiate League honors.

Another familiar face from Observerland is ex-Westland John

LCBL ALL-STAR LINEUP

(S) denotes starter

Catchers: (S) Tim Crabtree, Walter's (Michigan State University); John Frazzoo, Tom Holter Ford (Adrian College).

Bulpen catcher: Ron Groh, Hines Park (Plymouth Canton HS).

Designated hitter: Joe Brusseau, Little Caesars (Madonna).

First basemen: (S) Lee Tappy, Duffy's (Western Michigan); Jon Chaska, Wendy's (MSU).

Second basemen: (S) Todd Fracassi, Duffy's (Henry Ford CC); Kevin Learned, Hines Park (Madonna).

Shortstops: (S) Steve Michelz, Duffy's (Oakland University); Jeff Herrin, Wendy's (Grand Valley State).

Third basemen: (S) Jeremy Krol, Hines Park (Madonna); John Gotts, Walter's (Western Michigan).

Outfielders: (S) Mike Swajak, Duffy's (Kalamazoo); (S) Jim Mober, Little Caesars (MSU); (S) Jerry Koester, Walter's (ex-Westland John Glenn HS); Fred Higgins, Total Travel (Oakland CC); John Bonham, Hines Park (Madonna); Dennis Szczechowski, Hines Park (Siena Heights).

Pitchers (tentative): Bill Barron (Kansas City CC) and Rob Kowalski (Plymouth Salem HS); Hines Park, Stu Hirschman (MSU) and Steve Hirschman (MSU); Wendy's, Doug McGregor (Henry Ford); Duffy's, Dave Houghtby (Henry Ford CC) and Steve Owens (Schockert CC); Walter's.

The LCBL starting lineup, meanwhile, is set.

The starting infield will be: LCBL RBI leader Lee Tappy of Duffy's Plumbing, a first baseman who played at RU; second baseman Todd Fracassi, also of Duffy's, who went to Livonia Stevenson High and Henry Ford CC; Duffy's shortstop Steve Michelz of Oakland University; and third baseman Jeremy Krol, who went to Garden City High and now plays for Madonna College.

The catcher is Grass Lake native Tim Crabtree of defending LCBL champion Walter's Appliance. He is a back-up catcher at Michigan State.

Scheduled to play in the outfield: Mike Siwajek of Duffy's, who attends Kalamazoo College; Little Caesars' Jim Miller, the outstanding red-shirt freshman quarterback prospect for MSU (Waterford Kettering High); and Jerry Koester, who attended Glenn High.

THE DESIGNATED hitter is Caesars' Joe Brusseau, who prepped at Redford Bishop Borgess High before going on to Madonna. See LCBL lineup and roster.

Racer is unsure about his starting pitcher, but will most likely call on one of the Hirschman brothers, Stu or Steve, from Wendy's of Ann Arbor. Both play at MSU; or former Stevenson High and Henry Ford CC left-hander Dave Houghtby of Walter's, the LCBL's winningest pitcher.

Area fans can get a sneak preview of the LCBL All-Stars beginning at 7 tonight at Livonia's Ford Field when they take on Felgert & Felgert, a team from the Pontiac Class A League coached by Scott Combs.

Felgert has several former Collegiate and Adray league players on its roster including Wayne State pitcher Henry Miller, shortstop Randy Barringer, outfielder Jim Brusseau, second baseman Scott Wyler, designated hitter Jeff DePorter; former minor league catcher Dave Slavin, formerly of Plymouth Salem High and the University of Missouri; and infielder Art George of the University of Evansville and Redford Thurston High. George played last season for Caesars in the LCBL.

Westland Fed, Mustangs win

Westland Federation's Connie Mack (boys 18 and under) played home run derby last week, winning the eight-team double-elimination Holiday Baseball Tournament in Jackson, sponsored by Rose City Post 324.

Westland, coached by Al Fernandez, belted 13 homers in winning five of six games.

Anthony Raptis knocked in the game-winning two-run single in the seventh inning to give Westland a 14-12 win over Taylor Legion in the championship game on Wednesday (July 4).

Westland jumped out to an 8-0 lead as Brent Beshears, who collected three homers in the tournament, hit a solo blast in the first followed by Lawrence Scheffer's three-run homer and Larry Feist's two-run round-tripper, each coming in the third.

But Taylor rallied to tie it at 11-11 in the bottom of the sixth after Greg Everingham ripped a two-run homer in the top of the inning.

Vince Sacco collected three of Westland's 12 hits, including a pair of RBIs.

George Leung, Jr., the last of three Westland pitchers, gained the victory. He gave up one unearned run in 1½ innings of work.

WESTLAND REACHED the championship game with a 12-7 semi-final victory over Taylor as Bobby Mullins scattered 10 hits in going the distance. He struck out seven, walked two and allowed five earned runs.

Westland collected 15 hits with Beshears, Everingham, Sacco, Feist, Scott Janack and Aaron Mach contributing two apiece.

Beshears socked a solo homer in the first and Mach followed with a three-run shot in the second. Everingham collected three RBI for the winners.

In the tournament opener, a 6-3 triumph over Rose City, pitcher Dustin Atkins tossed a three-hitter, fanning 10.

Westland was handed its first loss of the tourney by Taylor, 4-3, before bouncing back with wins over Jackson Wendy's 7-6 and Dowagiac Post 563, 13-5.

Westland's Mark Van Ameey scattered eight hits and struck out 11 in the victory over Dowagiac.

Catchers Eric Stover and Kevin Wheeler, played sound defensively, according to Fernandez.

THE MUSTANGS, meanwhile, remained atop the Livonia Connie Mack circuit with a 13-0, five-inning mercy rule victory over Re/Max in a game played Thursday at Ford Field.

Winning pitcher Tad Dennis, a right-hander, allowed only two hits while striking out five and walking only one.

"When he's on and keeps the ball low, and doesn't hang his breaking ball, Tad is tough," said Mustangs manager Don Harris, whose team is 10-1 overall. "Tad has had some real good outings lately. In fact, our pitchers have done quite well the last couple of games."

Jason Starchurski, Scott Marinkovich and Craig Overaitis each collected two hits to lead an 11-hit Mustangs' attack.

Starchurski knocked in a pair of runs, while Overaitis smacked a double and triple.

Total Travel tops Caesars

Total Travel Values rallied from a 3-0 deficit to defeat Little Caesars 6-4 in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League July 2.

Jason Hicks pitched a strong game for the winners, scattering seven hits over six innings — the length of the contest due to a time limit. He also struck out nine and didn't walk any.

Total Travel pulled within 4-3 with a three runs in the top of the fourth inning and won it with a three-run sixth.

After two were out in the last inning, Total Travel started its rally on Jason Lichtman's double and a walk to Leo Devine.

Fred Higgins singled home the tying run, and Devine scored on a wild pitch. Following a walk to Mike Julian, Kevin Young's RBI single knocked in the final run.

Higgins was 3-for-4 with three RBI, including a two-run single in the fourth inning. Lichtman had two hits, drove in the third run in the fourth and scored two runs.

Bill Bertera and Eric Linck had two hits apiece for Caesars. Jim Miller had a two-run single, losing pitcher Tom Hill doubled in a run and Bertera had an RBI on a sacrifice fly.

Mike Dallmonte pitched 3½ innings and was replaced by Hill, who finished the fourth and lasted until two outs in the sixth.

Bozyk sparks Concealed Security

Concealed Security had a good start in the Edgar Martin Baseball Classic in Wheeling, W. Va., last week.

The team, composed primarily of Observerland players, was 2-0-1 as of late Friday afternoon. The tournament, in which 11 states were represented, was scheduled to conclude Sunday.

After whipping Waukegan, Ill., in its first game 17-2, Concealed's next contest was suspended after eight innings because of darkness. The Michigan team and Weirton, W. Va., were deadlocked at 7-7, and the game was expected to be finished early Sunday.

Weirton, boasting a 21-1 record, had won a previous tournament in Greensboro, N.C., and was a favorite in this one, according to Concealed coach Lou Pirronello.

Concealed won its second tournament game and ran its season record to 22-2 with a 16-5 shellacking of Washington, Pa., early Friday.

IN THAT game, which ended after six innings because of the 10-run mercy rule, Shondell Currie pitched a complete game, scattering seven hits. He struck out six and walked four.

Keith Bozyk was 3-for-3 with two RBI for Concealed, and Kevin Young, Joe Brusseau, Mike Grahl and Jim Solak had two hits apiece in Concealed's 12-hit attack.

Young and Brusseau each had a pair of doubles, and Grahl belted a home run and had four RBI. Solak's hits were a double and a home run, and he drove in two runs.

Solak was still on the mound against Weirton, having pitched the eighth inning after relieving Louie McKaig, who pitched the first seven. McKaig pitched a strong game, scattering seven hits but striking out eight and walking only two.

Paul Pirronello was 3-for-4 with an RBI for Concealed. Solak, Young and Brusseau had two hits apiece. Young knocked in two runs, Solak one.

In the Waukegan game, Bozyk pitched a two-hitter and went the distance as the game was shortened to five innings because of the mercy rule. He walked five and fanned four.

SOLAK WAS the leading hitter, going 4-for-4 and collecting six RBI. His hits included two doubles and one homer. Concealed had 14 hits.

All three of Chris Schmid's hits were home runs, and he drove in four runs. Young, also had three hits, which included two homers, and three RBI.

Before departing for West Virginia, Concealed defeated second-place Ypsilanti 1 in the Little Caesars Connie Mack League 11-3. Concealed leads the league with a 15-0 record.

Jeff Pendell pitched a complete game at Capitol Park, allowing six hits along the way. He struck out seven and walked the same.

Pirronello led another 14-hit attack for Concealed by going 3-for-3 with three RBI. Young chipped in a double, a triple and two RBI.

Currie, Brusseau, Shannon Degan and Bozyk had two hits apiece. Degan also knocked in two runs, and Brusseau, Currie and Degan one each.

sports roundup

PIRRONELLO SIGNS

All-Area infielder Paul Pirronello of Redford Catholic Central High has signed a letter-of-intent to play baseball next year for Henry Ford Community College, according to head coach Stu Rose.

Pirronello, a shortstop who led CC to the Catholic League A-B Division and Class A district titles, hit .452 (42 for 93) with 17 extra-base hits and 31 RBI.

He is playing this summer for Little Caesars of the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League and Concealed Security in the Little Caesars Connie Mack circuit.

SOCCER TRYOUTS

The Livonia Youth Soccer Club Cougars will hold tryouts for their under-16 boys team (born 1975) from 6-8 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday at Bicentennial Park (field No. 7).

For more information, call Kire Bosnjarski (478-8258) or Jim Kearney (421-5233).

Tryouts for the Vardar III '75 boys team (spring 1991 season), coached by former Detroit Express professional player Billy Boljevic, will be from 3 to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday at Whitman School, located off W. Chicago between Farmington and Merriman roads.

For more information, call 459-4206 or 455-4829.

SOCCER SIGNUP

Final registration for the Westland Youth Soccer League (1990 season) will be from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. Saturday at Bailey Center on Ford Road. Registration is open to girls and boys born between 1972 and 1985. (Applicants must show proof of age.)

For more information, call Eric Radcliffe at 422-2487.

SC SOCCER SCHOOLS

Schoolcraft College will conduct a pair of soccer schools for boys and girls (ages 6-18) from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m., Monday through Friday, July 23-28 (Session I) and July 30-Aug. 4 (Session II). The cost is $90 for each session.

SC will also hold its advanced players camp, run by Ocelot men's coach Van Dimitriou and Eastern Michigan's Chris Cortez, from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m., Monday through Friday, July 16-20. The cost is $130.

Registration forms are available at the Physical Education Building on the Schoolcraft College campus.

SOCCER TOURNEY

National AAU soccer tournaments for boys and girls teams, under 10 to 19, will be played July 23-26 in Florence, Ala. (The under-16 boys and girls will play in Tampa, Fla.)

All-Star teams are allowed. No passcards are necessary, just birth certificates.

SUMMER HOOP CAMP

The Dare To Be Great summer basketball camp for boys and girls ages 8-18 will be from 9 a.m. until noon, Monday through Friday, July 16-20 at University of Michigan-Dearborn.

The cost is $95 for the week. For more information, call 683-0445 or 683-0536.

HOLE-IN-ONES

A pair of aces were carded last week at Whispering Willows Golf Course in Livonia.

Tom Zurek of Livonia, 35, used a 5-wood to score a hole-in-one Tuesday on the 196-yard No. 5 hole. He shot an 83.

Ernest Mongeluzzo, 37, of Rochester Hills used a 7-iron to ace the 135-yard, No. 17 hole. He shot a 93.

It was the first ace for both Zurek and Mongeluzzo.

PEOPLE MAKE NEWS

Ken Ahlgren of Garden City finished second and Westland's Craig Pace took fifth in the 50-lap figure 8 feature held June 30 at Flat Rock Speedway. Westland's Steve Cronewett was ninth and Ken Harrison of Garden City 10th in the 15-lap ARCA Street Stock feature.

MUD VOLLEYBALL

The second annual TV2 Mud coed volleyball round-robin (five games guaranteed) tournament will begin at 11:30 a.m. Saturday on Boblo Island. (The tournament boat leaves at 10:15 a.m. at the Amherstburg, Ontario dock.)

Each team will consist of eight players, 21 years or older, with an equal amount of men and women.

The reward for the mud champs: a trip on American Airlines to Club Med for each player.

A portion of the tournament proceeds will benefit the Detroit Recreation Department.

For more information, call 567-7737.

White, McManaway lead Boyle Chevrolet romp

Boyle Chevrolet forced a tie for first place in the Livonia Men's Modified Fast-Pitch Softball League by defeating Total Foods 12-4 at Ford Field on July 2.

Both teams were deadlocked with 7-4 records after that game in which Boyle pitcher Curt White scattered eight hits and walked only three. Pete Lynn suffered the loss.

Keith McManaway was 3-for-4 and slugged a three-run homer that gave Boyle a 7-2 lead in the fourth inning.

White and Ron Wandzel were 2-for-3 with a triple, and Boyle teammates Dave Brubaker and Rick Dreher went 2-for-4.

In a pair of important league games today, Total Foods plays AJ's

and Boyle faces Primo's. AJ's and Primo's are tied for third place and only percentage points behind the co-leaders with 6-4-1 records.

Boyle was fifth in the Port Huron Tournament the weekend of June 30-July 1, winning its first game with Port Huron Bluewater Bible 8-5 but losing to Secory's 9-8 and Total Foods 9-8.

Mike Kesson hit .668 with seven hits in 11 at-bats. Little Caesars won the tournament, and Secory's was second.

World Cup Soccer in need of alteration

WHAT HAS BEEN billed as the world's greatest sports spectacular has climaxed. Now, hopefully, the residents of the earth will take a moment to regain their collective breaths after the exciting conclusion of the once-every-four-years battle for worldwide soccer supremacy.

I watched. I marveled. I appreciated. But in the end, mostly I wondered.

"What's the big deal?" I asked myself. World Cup soccer doesn't seem such a tough game to master.

True, you can't just send college-experienced players out there and expect to succeed, like the United States does in basketball and it tried to do in this World Cup. But as far as strategy goes, it shouldn't be so difficult.

For our country to put its national team into the Cup's final four in 1994 (when we host the tournament), all we have to do is find a decent keeper; one big (maybe 6-foot-6), fast, mobile striker proficient at heading the ball; and nine other guys to play a zone-like defense surrounding their own goal.

Trust me. Follow these directions and you'll be in the Cup semis.

Oh, one other thing. Make sure the guys chosen to the U.S. team — all of them — are well-practiced in shooting penalty kicks.

IT'S NO SECRET that the best soccer in our state is practiced within the boundaries of the Observer & Eccentric coverage area. Consequently, I realize a lot of the folks who read this paper are soccer nuts.

So what I've proposed is nothing visionary to the experts. Are you kidding? It's all too apparent.

I saw the four quarterfinal matches a week ago. Three were decided by penalty kicks, one in an overtime penalty-kick shootout. Then both semifinal match winners could not be decided before the overtime shootout.

C.J. Risak

Seems pretty ridiculous to me, but hey, if FIFA (the international group governing soccer) wants to even things up among all the teams in the world, why fight it?

If you watched any of the Cup on TV, there's no arguing it's a defensive game. There isn't much room for offense. A one-goal advantage is nearly insurmountable.

WHAT'S WORSE, there's very little drama. Has any team in the tournament come back to tie after trailing by two goals? No. The only real excitement has come during shootouts.

And that, folks, isn't really soccer.

I guess I expected more. Wait — let me take that a step further. I've watched World Cup games in the past, and I've seen better. Just watching TV highlights of Cup finals from years past is enough to prove the game has changed considerably. Defenses are so suffocating the only way to score is on a penalty kick or by blind luck.

Two thoughts struck me during the lackluster matches: First, how can fans all over the world get so excited about something like this; and second, how are Europeans going to handle American football when it debuts on the continent next year?

Of course, it also occurred to me that Americans can't sit still during a Cup match featuring endless minutes of mindless probing by the team with the ball. Our sports are more action-packed and fast-paced, which raises doubts in me about soccer's future in the U.S. — certainly the defensive style now in vogue.

AMERICANS ALSO like tough guys. Soccer players are always falling down and rolling around on the grass. I'm not saying they're not hurt, but —

Let me draw an analogy: An average soccer player is about 6-foot, 180 pounds, about the size of the Pistons' Isiah Thomas. Thomas fearlessly slices through defenders a foot taller and 100 pounds heavier, gets knocked to the hardwood floor, then gets up and sprints downcourt on defense.

This might happen to the Pistons' captain two or three times a game. No timeouts are called, the play doesn't stop.

I think this injury act so many soccer players like to use would be tempered if more substitution was allowed. Then, if a guy got hurt, out he would come and the game could continue.

As for shootouts, can 'em. Instead of two 15-minute overtime sessions to be played in their entirety, just have sudden-death OT. And, unless the substitution rule is altered according to the abovementioned guidelines, give each team at least one additional sub for the extra time.

The offside rule is already being relaxed, and that's good. But my opinion is, it isn't enough.

Of course, I'm just an American. And what America thinks doesn't have much influence on the conservative worldwide soccer community.

The first player signed by the Detroit Rockers indoor soccer club is a familiar one. He should also provide a valuable starting point as the Farmington Hills-based pro franchise begins to build its team.

Andy Chapman will give the Rockers three ingredients important in constructing a successful squad: First, he's local (he lives with his family in Birmingham) and identifiable; second, he's experienced, having played 11 seasons in the Major Indoor Soccer League; and last but not least, as Rockers' spokesman Ian Parratt said, "He can still play."

Chapman's proved that, certainly. In stints with the MISL's Cleveland Force, Baltimore Blast and, most recently, Wichita Wings, Chapman has scored 360 goals and collected 209 assists for 569 total points.

For the Wings last season, Chapman had 21 goals and 24 assists. His 45 points were fourth best on the team.

But perhaps even more valuable than goal-scoring to a new franchise like Detroit is experience. In that aspect, Chapman has no peers. He has played in 501 MISL games, more than any other player.

Chapman, now 31, began his soccer career in his hometown of London, England, at the age of 15 with the First Division Arsenal club. He migrated to the U.S. two years later.

CHAPMAN JOINED the Detroit Express in 1981 and was an integral part of the team, helping guide it to an American Soccer League championship in 1982. He was named to the ASL's all-star team and led the league in scoring during his three years (1981-83) with the Express.

His goal-scoring ability is a proven commodity, but Chapman will be called upon to provide much more for Detroit. Rockers' coach Brian Tinnion knew Chapman when both were with the Express. Chapman will also serve as Tinnion's assistant coach.

"As a player, he is well-rounded with good vision and creativity, and his prolific goal-scoring will obviously be a great asset to us," said Tinnion. "As a coach, his maturity and experience, along with his infectious personality, make him an ideal teacher."

Chapman's signing is the first by the Rockers, who will open their inaugural season this fall. Others will be added through similar free-agent signings and the two player drafts.

An expansion draft from current National Professional Indoor Soccer League rosters will be held within the next month. The college draft is slated for Aug. 18 in Rockford, Ill.

Lawn bowling venues give competitors breath of fresh air

LAST WEEK I offered a bit of a spoof about a golfing friend and all that sunshine and fresh air that bowlers sometimes miss. Well, there is another element to bowling that takes place in the great outdoors — lawn bowling.

A regularly organized and very structured sport, lawn bowling should not be confused with bocce ball, another popular member of the bowling family.

For the most bocce ball is played rather informally in parks and at the beaches, while lawn bowling is played on specially groomed areas known as bowling greens.

Usually the bowling green is a well-maintained Pen-Cross Bent Grass which is groomed to a perfect level and smooth surface.

The Westland Lawn Bowling Club, 36500 Marquette, maintains a green and full facilities in Westland near Ford and Newburgh roads. It is an attractive club with a regular slate of competition, luring players from such places as Flint, Chicago, Milwaukee, parts of Florida and foreign countries.

A three-day tournament was held earlier this month with some of the area's top lawn bowlers turning in strong performances. The Trebles team, made up of Sam McBride, Lorraine Zarenko and Sam Campagna, placed second while All-Westland, comprised of Nancy Davidson, Dave Cooper and Fred Suedegar, came in fourth.

The game of lawn bowling is played by rolling a "Jack," a small white ball, across the green to a point at least 75 feet away from the starting mat. It is then up to the players to roll as close to the "Jack" as possible in order to run up points. The ball itself is made with a slant so it will always hook either right or left according to how it is delivered.

There is a considerable bit of skill required. The speed of the ball will determine the length of roll as well as the amount of hook or curve the ball will take. The strategy of the game is to get as many points as you can while blocking out the opposing team. Scoring is based on 21 points per game.

Lawn bowling is organized nationally with the American Lawn Bowling Association serving as the governing body. The game originated in England more than 200 years ago. It's popularity spread throughout the British Empire.

There are many areas in Canada where it is very popular and not uncommon to see bowling greens in small towns and villages.

It is also popular in Australia where some 70,000 players compete on a regular basis.

Lawn balls are made of Mineralite, weighing little more than three pounds each.

It is a fun sport for all ages and serves as a great off-season sport for the 10-pin bowlers who want to try something different.

The Westland Lawn Bowling Club invites interested parties to come and give the sport a try. For further information call Jim or Cathie Symington at 722-7650.

The Second Annual Children's Hospital Bowling Party and Tournament will be held at Woodland Lanes in Livonia Aug. 17-19. There is a $1,000 first prize and one additional prize per 10 bowlers.

Other amenities will be disc jockeys and food specials. It is an ABC/WIBC sanctioned event so bring the 1989-90 sanction cards and 1988-89 league averages.

Entry fee is $15 ($5 donated to Children's Hospital, $4 bowling expense, $6 toward the prize fund). Squad times are: Aug. 17, 6:30-9:30 p.m.; Aug. 18, 9 a.m., noon, 3 p.m., 6 p.m.; and Aug. 19, noon, 3 p.m., 6 p.m., 9 p.m.

For tournament information, call Marv Hamann at 561-2763 or Tom Winkler at 522-4515.

Larry Sisson, proprietor of West Bloomfield Lanes on Orchard Lake Road recently announced the "Summer Rock 'n' Roll" program for kids between the ages of 10 and 15.

A portion of the proceeds will benefit the DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) campaign which is an anti-drug activity for school-age youngsters. The program will be held Thursdays from 7-10 p.m. throughout the summer with bowling and dancing for the kids.

Redford Bowl will hold an AMF Singles No-Tap tournament July 21-22, July 28-29 and Aug. 4-5. Starting times on all dates will be 7 p.m.

Entry fee is $15 ($4 toward the AMF picnic fund, $5 toward the prize fund, $6 for bowling expenses).

A top prize of $500 will be awarded. A bowling towel will be presented free with each entry.

For further information, call Yvoanne Payne at 729-2479 or Paul Butler at 531-2271.

Mac's Attack: John McIntyre, another CC product who recently graduated from the University Missouri, is planning to attend both the Detroit Pistons and Boston Celtics free-agent rookie camps this month.

Look for the 6-foot-4 guard to play in Europe this year.

Another CC grad, Greg Wendt, spent the year playing professionally in the Germany.

Livonia Stevenson product Tom Domako, the last cut by the Houston Rockets last fall, spent time in the Continental Basketball Association last winter, most recently in Columbus, Ohio.

Baseball talk: This year's winner of the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League playoffs does not get an automatic bid to the All-American Amateur Baseball Association tournament in Johnstown, Pa., (Aug. 12-18).

The LCBL winner must first get through a regional qualifier in Zanesville, Ohio.

Wondering: Who is going to be the new boys basketball coach at Walled Lake Western and Westland John Glenn?

Is Livonia Clarenceville close to hiring a new football coach?

Why don't girls wear caps in high school softball? Franklin's Amporn (my favorite first name) Wagner was the only exception.

Will they really tear up the Silverdome to bring World Cup Soccer here in 1994?

Can John Miller stick with the Lions another year?

Why does it seem that baseball is a dying sport among the youth, but there's more television exposure than ever?

Don't NBA referees now have more credibility than World Cup Soccer refs?

Wasn't England's Gascoigne and Cameroon's Milla worth the price of admission?

Why do pro baseball players seem more injured than pro basketball players? Why are they paid more?

Is Bernie Carbo still a hair stylist?

Why can't sportswriters start running summer camps? (Air conditioning guaranteed.)

Now that I know Vardar is a river in Yugoslavia, why can't some of our youth soccer teams name themselves after one of our own tributaries, like the Rouge?

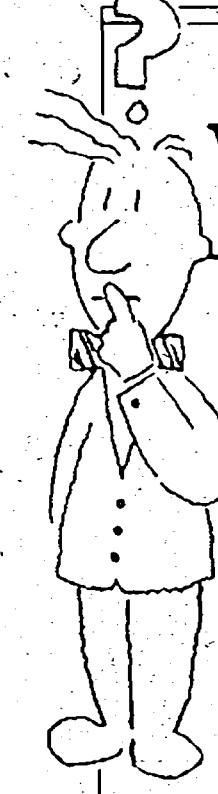

Will Mike Donnelly, an unrestricted free agent, sign with the Red Wings?

Who's better anyway, Chevier or Cheveldae? I'll take Crozier.

Why was there only one Michigan soccer player invited to the U.S. Olympic Festival?

Can Parish Hickman start for Michigan State? I like him better off the bench.

The train crossing gate is starting to open.

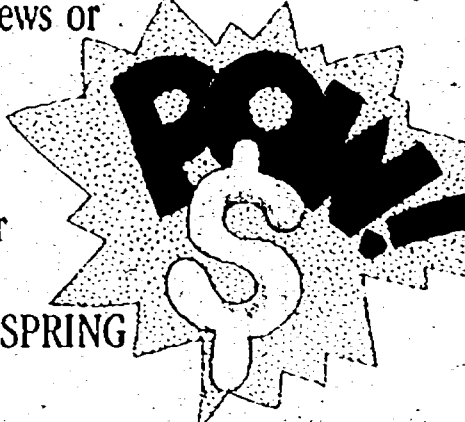

What's an advertiser to do?

1. Trust the right numbers.
Ad rates in the News and Free Press are up. Circulation is down. Yet, hundreds of thousands of eager, affluent consumers in the Detroit suburbs need to know what you sell. What should you do?

2. Put your money where it counts.

Even using the DNA's un-audited figures, SPRING delivers Detroit's suburban market at a lower cost per inch and a lower cost per thousand than either the News or the Free Press.

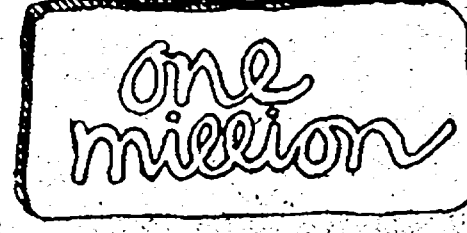

In short, your advertising dollar will pack a bigger punch when you place your ad in SPRING

1. Trust the right numbers.

The Detroit News and Free Press' own figures show suburban circulation of both the dailies and Sunday newspaper is down.

At the same time, SPRING's network of 39 Detroit suburban newspapers offers a solid, stable circulation of 530,000. (That represents more than one million readers!) What's more, all SPRING newspapers are audited by either ABC or CAC.

3. Switch to SPRING.

Lower your cost per ad. Drop your cost per thousand. Hit your budget. And reach the suburban buyers you want to reach.

Put more SPRING in your next media buy.

One call. One order. One ad. One million readers. One heck-of-a-buy.

Jetson landing

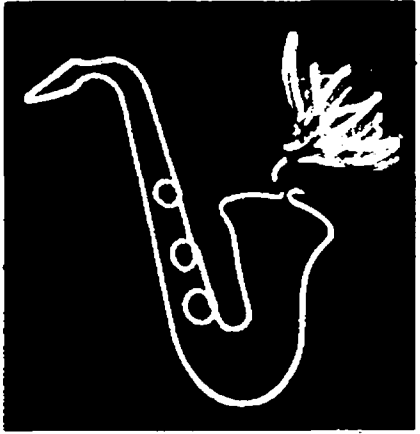

That George Jetson, what an actor! That might be the word from the guy in the film "Night Shift" who heaped similar praise on one Barney Rubble. Back are the Jetsons: George, Jane, Judy and Elroy — this time on the big screen in "Jetsons: The Movie." To get the critique from the cosmos, please turn to Page 2D.

Where to find all that jazz

By William Coutant
staff writer

The room is quiet, except for the polished sounds coming from the jazz ensemble performing to an attentive and appreciative audience. After bassist Marion Hayden's solo riff, the foursome known as Straight Ahead join together and continue their music as the crowd bursts into applause.

It's been an often repeated scene at Baker's Keyboard Lounge, which claims the title of the world's oldest jazz club.

Cannonball Adderley, George Benson, Dave Brubeck, Cab Calloway, Nat King Cole, Chick Corea, Miles Davis, Dizzy Gillespie, Earl Klugh, Gene Krupa, Ramsey Lewis, Charlie Parker, Mel Torme . . . they've all played here. Baker's is a real club, plush but not stuffy — a place to listen to good jazz in comfort. And the cover is very reasonable, from $6 to $10. Service is good and there is a sandwich menu. But the main course is jazz.

"Baker's is a true jazz club," said Straight Ahead pianist Eileen Orr. "It's subdued. Mr. Baker runs a very professional club. That's why it's great playing here."

THE CLUB started as a beer and sandwich shop in 1934. Five years later, Clarence Baker took over his ailing father's business and turned it into a landmark jazz nightclub that has prided itself on bringing the country's best jazz keyboard artists to Detroit and Baker's.

The intimate but classy club features large mirrors, a low ceiling and beautiful acoustics. The club's bar even has a keyboard design.

Baker said he still loves the business he's been in for more than 50 years, but laments the plight of jazz in Detroit.

"There used to be all kinds of clubs," he said. "There are plenty of good, young musicians. There just aren't that many places to play."

ANOTHER GOOD jazz club is Alexander's. Named after famed jazz musician Alexander Zonjic, Alexander's, at the corner of Woodward and Canfield in Detroit, hosts jazz notables like Orange Lake Drive and Zonjic himself.

Alexander's is trying live jazz on Thursday nights as well as weekends.

"We want to give Thursdays a try and see how it goes," said Alexander's manager Carol Macil.

The club, started nine years ago, is about good jazz and good food — both are available in quantity. Alexander's has a full menu including salads, soups, seafood, pasta dishes, sandwiches, desserts, pizza and some house specialties. Seating is not too close to the stage, but still intimate.

The group Kokayi, which began playing the club when it first opened in 1981, has graced Alexander's stage on recent Thursday nights and plans to return to its home club for engagements. A high-energy group, Kokayi has added the smooth and sweet vocal talents of Mildrea Vineye Hill to its already substantial pool of talent.

IF YOU WANT to hear jazz dur-

The group Kokayi, featuring Melvin Maxwell and Mildrea Vineye Hill, perform at Alexander's in Detroit, a popular jazz club which is named after well-known jazz artist Alexandra Zonjic.

ing the week, or for that matter any day of the week, then The Bird of Paradise in Ann Arbor is the place.

It's straight-ahead jazz seven days a week in an intimate atmosphere just made for acoustic jazz at its best. And it should be, since the club's owner, Ron Brooks, is a lifelong jazz musician and oftentimes performer with his trio at the club.

Although The Bird draws its share of jazz aficionados from all over the world, it's still a place where anyone can go for some melodic entertainment, something to eat and some good conversation.

"We fit that bill," said Brooks, who helped finance his college education by playing the music he loves. "But we have a very strong, faithful clientele. We get people from Germany, Japan and Moscow who want to hear jazz."

Hardly an empty boast, as a lady with a distinctly German accent thanked Brooks for the music.

The cover on Friday and Saturday is reasonable; during the week it's $2 or $4 and on Sunday nights there is no cover. The Bird celebrated its fifth anniversary in May.

OTHER BARS in the suburbs have jazz on a regular basis, but that is not the primary draw for most.

R.I.K.S in West Bloomfield at the Orchard Mall features Buddy Budson in the piano bar. Bob Seeley plays at Charlie's Crab in Troy and the Troy Hilton off I-75 offers a summer jazz series on Wednesday nights.

The club started as a beer and sandwich shop in 1934. Five years later, Clarence Baker took over his ailing father's business and turned it into a landmark jazz nightclub that has prided itself on bringing the country's best jazz keyboard artists to Detroit and Baker's.

A virtual who's who of jazz has performed at Baker's Keyboard Lounge, including George Benson, Cab Calloway, Nat King Cole, Chick Corea, Miles Davis, Dizzy Gillespie and Earl Klugh. On this night, violinist Regina Carter of Straight Ahead performs.

. . . Then on a blues note

By William Coutant
staff writer

Sully's Bar bills itself as "The Westside's Favorite Dance Club," and it may be, but on weekends blues are its top draw.

Names like Dr. John, Leon Russell and John Coltrane have performed at this unpretentious bar in — brace yourself — Dearborn.

Forget the "No smoking" section and plan on a cover charge of from $10 to $18 for a weekend performance. But plan on a full house enjoying some of the country's top blues, and rhythm and blues artists.

Service is good, but on weekends, the club really gears for a blues performance. And the crowd at Sully's knows it's getting great music. A recent weekend gig by Roomful of Blues, a Providence, R.I. band that has been around for the past 20 years, was proof that Sully's delivers.

The nine-man band belted out its combination of brassy, bluesy songs rapid-fire to an enthusiastic room full of blues fans.

Sully's co-owner Jimmy Lessnau said the club's Dearborn location on Greenfield, between Michigan Avenue and Ford Road, throws a lot of blues enthusiasts. But once they find their way to Sully's, they come back.

"As blues goes, this has the top blues bands," Lessnau said. "But these bands cost. So we have to fill the place."

Local blues bands also make their way to Sully's. But weekends usually belong to the likes of Charlie Musslewhite, The Paladins, Terance Simeon, Delbert McClinton, Lonnie Mack, Jason D. Williams, Katie Webster and other nationally known acts.

Don't let the location fool you, blues is alive and well in Dearborn.

Sully's in Dearborn has played host to several big name blues artists such as Dr. John, John Coltrane and Leon Russell. The nine-piece outfit Roomful of Blues entertains the audience on this night.

MOVING PICTURES

Elroy, Astro, Judy, George and Jane Jetson are back, this time in "Jetsons: The Movie."

Space-age 'toon returns

By Dan Greenberg
special writer

Building on a quarter century of television popularity, Hanna and Barbera now present "Jetsons: The Movie" (G).

All the old familiar faces are back — George, Jane, Judy and Elroy — and the conventional, hand-drawn animation is augmented by eight minutes of computer-generated footage, the wave of the future appropriate enough in this comic cartoon about the 21st Century.

In "The Movie," the Jetsons are living in a new home and George has been promoted to vice president at the Spacely Sprocket factory where sabotage is afoot in a struggle between forces of ecology and technology.

"Last Exit to Brooklyn" (B-, R, 100 minutes) has a little bit of everything: sex, violence, conflict, a "cause" and interaction among all the characters. The men, members of Local 3392, are on strike and that cause as well as their constant conflict with soldiers from the army base located near their plant is a central aspect of the film.

The conflict, often sexual, in the characters' lives is the most important element of this story about a forsaken neighborhood in lower Brooklyn, the last exit on the subway line before the train reaches Manhattan.

One of Local 3392's leaders, Harry (Stephan Lang), a husband and father, faces marital conflict along with strife at work and has a homosexual affair which weakens what had been his very strong, masculine presence.

It's a tight neighborhood and everyone is acquainted, especially Tralala (Jennifer Jason Leigh) who is involved with a different kind of sex. She lures soldiers in order to steal their money with the help of her boyfriend, Vinnie (Peter Dinklage), and his buddies. Tralala surprises herself by falling for one of the soldiers.

Another character in this forlorn neighborhood is Joe (Burt Young), a hard-working man who tries to care for his family, especially his pregnant, unwed daughter.

Director Uli Edel elicits good performances and breathes life into

Grading the movies

A+	Top marks - sure to please
A	Close behind - excellent
A-	Still in running for top honors
B+	Pretty good stuff, not perfect
B	Good
B-	Good but notable deficiencies
C+	Just a cut above average
C	Mediocre
C-	Not so hot and slipping fast
D+	The very best of the poor stuff
D	Poor
D-	It doesn't get much worse
F	Truly awful
Z	Reserved for the colossally bad

these sad but colorful characters. There are, however, too many key, unresolved plot elements. That seriously diminishes "Last Exit to Brooklyn." (Reviewed by Jennifer L. Morse.)

STILL PLAYING:

"The Adventures of Milo and Otis" (G). A curious litten (Milo) and its puppy friend (Otis) embark on numerous live-action adventures. Narrated by Dudley Moore.

"Another 48 Hrs." (C-, R, 90 minutes). Murky plot and lots of violence but by-and-large this Nolte-Murphy reunion is unsatisfying.

"Back to the Future Part III" A, PG, 105 minutes). This time Doc and Marty are back to the past in an extremely entertaining adventure in the old west.

"Bird on a Wire" (A-, PG-13, 105 minutes). Mel Gibson and Goldie Hawn on thrilling cross-country search for nasty character trying to murder Gibson.

"Cadillac Man" (B-, R, 94 minutes). Slow start detracts from Robin Williams fine, comic performance as Cadillac salesman under pressure.

"Camille Claudel" (R). Oscar-nominated (best actress and foreign film) story of Auguste Rodin's mistress, a sculptress in her own right.

"Cinema Paradiso" (A-, 120 minutes). Excellent story of Alfredo (Philippe Noiret), the projectionist in a small Sicilian town just after World War II.

"The Cook, The Thief, His Wife & Her Lover". A very black comedy that is unrated for good reason.

"Dick Tracy" (A-, PG, 105 minutes). Just the right mix of "slam-bang-pow" cartoon characters, '30s nostalgia and warm human relationships.

"Driving Miss Daisy" (A) (PG) 100 minutes. Fine acting highlights personal drama of Jewish widow (Jessica Tandy) chauffeured by a black man (Morgan Freeman) set against southern changes from 1948-1973.

"Ernest Goes to Jail" (*, PG). Because someone stole his identity.

"Fire Birds" (C-, PG-13, 81 minutes). Assault helicopter pilots (Nicolas Cage and Sean Young) fight South American drug lords and fall in love.

"Gremlos 2: The New Batch" (B-, PG-13, 100 minutes). More of the same with Gizmo, Billie (Zack Gallager) and Kale (Phoebe Cates).

"House Party" (*, R). Dance, dance, dance.

"The Hunt for Red October" (C-) (PG), 135 minutes.

Confusing underwater sequences are as murky as this tale of Soviet sub commander (Sean Connery) trying to defect.

"Pretty Woman" (A-, R, 120 minutes). Charming, romantic fantasy with Wall Street mogul (Richard Gere) falling in love with prostitute (Julia Roberts).

"Rosalie Goes Shopping" (D, PG, 95 minutes). This satire on conspicuous consumption in America falls flat.

"Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles" (PG). You guessed it. Lean, green and on the screen.

"Tie Me Up, Tie Me Down" (A-, unrated but sexually explicit, 95 minutes). Farcical structure and satiric tone in an unusual retelling of the obsessed male and the unwilling girl of his desire. Entertaining and significant commentary on human nature.

"Total Recall" (D, R, 109 minutes). Exceeding violent, gross and unimaginative sci-fi trip to Mars where Arnold Schwarzenegger searches for his identity.

"Wild Orchard" (R, *). Mickey Rourke in another of his stereotypical sleazebag roles.

The fluff and puff behind 'Tracy'

By Dan Greenberg
special writer

The public relations excess associated with the "Dick Tracy" premiere at Walt Disney World recently is at the core of the system which motivates our product-driven culture.

Countless advance publicity releases were capped by a post-premiere party and parade of stars at the Disney-MGM Studios. That's the Disney World theme park which includes working studios as well as replicas of Hollywood landmarks.

A lavish buffet, music and dancing continued until midnight fireworks narrated by Vincent Price completed the premiere, an extremely elaborate introduction of "Dick Tracy" to the movie-going public. Given the $50 million box-office receipts after the first 10 days, apparently advertising works.

A press conference the next day at the Disney-MGM Studio's Superstar Television Theatre featured Warren Beatty flanked by Michael Eisner, chairman and CEO of The Walt Disney Co. and Jeffrey Katzenberg, head of Disney Studios.

Throughout the proceedings, the media evinced an excess interest in the Madonna/Warren Beatty relationship despite its irrelevance to film production. Although stars' private lives are no one's business, a good part of the motion pictures' appeal to the American public has always been snoring on the hijinks and lifestyles of celebrities.

THAT'S THE MAJOR reason Warren Beatty has avoided talking to the press for so many years. The invasion of privacy and, more importantly, he feels the press distort for the sake of stories. He was asked why he was more receptive to the press these days.

"I don't really believe in movie publicity, but the way we make and distribute movies now requires it for some reason."

Beatty continued: "I stopped doing interviews for about 12-13 years because I found that I was misquoted, that I was taken out of context, that other things were added to the interviews and it seemed to be a no-win proposition."

Beatty explained that he thought that if he stopped doing interviews everyone would know that he didn't say those things, but, "they just invented it anyway so I would rather do the bad stuff myself."

The charismatic and debonair actor is also a very thoughtful, analytic person who believes "we are in a communications" crisis (with) technology that far surpasses our ability to use it.

Despite this analysis, reporters continued throughout the day to nag whomever they could about the Madonna/Beatty relationship.

Following the press conference, round-robin interviews were held on the Disney-MGM Soundstage 2. One hundred-twenty reporters and film critics sat at 12 tables while Beatty, Dustin Hoffman, Glenna Haddy, Charlie Korsmo and virtually everyone else associated with the "Dick Tracy" production moved from table to table answering questions.

Madonna, under doctor's orders to rest, was the only major figure missing from the festivities.

CHARLIE KORSMO who plays The Kid in "Dick Tracy" is a remarkably talented and self-assured 11-year-old boy. He first appeared in film as Jessica Lange's younger son in "Men Don't Leave."

He fielded questions with a great deal of poise and, despite some rather rude badgering from one reporter, maintained a calm demeanor. When asked for the umpteenth time, "Do Madonna and Warren still have a relationship?" He retained his composure and responded quietly, "I don't know, I haven't been around them that much." As Dick Tracy learns early in the film, The Kid is all right.

Dustin Hoffman stopped by while our table was questioning Beatty. His light-hearted approach set the right tone. As Hoffman put it, in a teasing manner, "You guys don't know how to ask questions. Pretend I'm Warren. Ask me about Madonna. Yes. Are we... Yes." And so it went with Hoffman providing a rapid series of questions and answers that left reporters laughing and Warren Beatty blushing.

It also left the distinct impression that it was nobody's business except the principals.

Warren Beatty summed up the media/communications crisis and the first amendment issues involved in contemporary press relations by advocating unfettered free speech without libel laws. That, he believes, will drive out the gossip-mongers because the public will recognize their foolishness: "eventually technology will permit free speech to proliferate."

A pair made for film

You can almost hear the PR boys cranking out the copy now; he was a pirate, scourge of the seven seas, loathed by his native England yet loyal to a noble king. She was a proud lady of means, beautiful and virtuous — the only woman who could tame him.

Shuffle the situations slightly and you have basically every film Errol Flynn and Olivia de Havilland made together.

From their first pairing in "Captain Blood" (1935), the dashing Flynn and demure de Havilland complemented each other in a fairy tale-like way. The Livonia Mall rekindles their on-screen romance his month with five superb films.

The series began last week with the colorful "Adventures of Robin Hood" (1937). It continues this week with "Captain Blood," the first film that offered Flynn a starring role. (Up to then, his most memorable part was as a corpse.)

He played Peter Blood, a surgeon who becomes a pirate in order to fight the tyranny of James II. Though less effective in dramatic moments, Flynn showed his penchant for rousing action, shouting sea jargon like "Follow me m'hear-ties!" and engaging in constant swordplay.

De Havilland played the proper Arabella Bishop, who watches Blood flogged as a slave and patronizingly buys him out of his misery. He has an opportunity to return the favor when the woman is captured by a French pirate (Basil Rathbone) and Blood has to duel with swords to literally win her back.

THE PAIRING made millions for Warner Brothers, and prompted a number of follow-ups — seven in all. On July 17, the Mall presents "The Charge of the Light Brigade" (1936), a consistently rousing adventure loosely based on Tennyson's poem, with British soldiers performing heroic deeds during the Crimean War.

"By the time we made 'The Charge of the Light Brigade,' I was sure I was in love with her," Flynn said of de Havilland in his autobiography, "My Wicked, Wicked Ways." "She must have actively disliked me for the teasing I did, for I sprang

Happy Accidents crash local scene

By Jill Hamilton
special writer

The Happy Accidents are just that. The four members — Mike Crimmins (guitar), Jim Faulkner (drums), Paul Einhaus (guitar, vocals) and Steve Carlson (bass) — have played together, in various combinations, for years in different bands, most notably the Dancing Smoothies and Static Alphabet.

Finally, a few months ago, the guys realized that if they enjoyed playing together so much, they should form a band of their own. Voila — The Happy Accidents were born.

"We've all been in bands for so many years," Faulkner said, "but this is the first time I've been excited in a long time."

CRIMMINS HAS a method of his own for determining how well the band is getting along.

The band practices in his basement, so Crimmins' mother has heard years of her son playing in various bands. Even she commented on how well The Happy Accidents seemed to be working out.

"We knew we already had good chemistry," Crimmins said. "So, it's (practicing) not like punching in for a job."

Although the band has three old Static Alphabet songs on their new self-titled tape, they are careful to point out that The Happy Accidents are not Static Alphabet II.

"We're different from Static Alphabet by a long shot," Crimmins said. "We have a more powerful sound, not in a heavy metal, leather-clad way, it's more, like Midwest rock and roll."

ANOTHER DIFFERENCE with this band is that they are, as Crimmins puts it, "more goal-oriented" — they really want this band to work.

"When we first started the band, I said, 'If I die without getting in a van, driving around the country, sleeping in cheap hotels, that whole

To reach this future goal, The Happy Accidents are practicing thrift now. All the money from their shows goes directly back into making tapes.

They plan to head back to the studios this fall to begin work on their next tape, and, as far as financing the project, they should be pretty well set.

When they made "The Happy Accidents," they spent a grand total of $20. The six-song tape is at a few local record stores like Sam's Jams, Blitz and Off the Record. So far, they say that the tape has sold "a fair amount."

IN ADDITION to bringing the band a few dollars, the tape allowed them (some for the first time) to hear what Einhaus was singing about.

"When I heard the tape, I could finally hear the lyrics. I was blown away," Faulkner said. "He's a lyricist's lyricist."

Crimmins agreed.

"Paul writes some of the most clever lyrics that I've ever come across," he said.

The rest of The Happy Accidents, for that matter, aren't too shabby themselves. Carlson's drumming ranges from banging the skins with a certain controlled tension to out and out whaling away. It perfectly complements songs like "Turn Down Your Brain," a little ditty listing various schlock artists.

"Jim's drumming has a lot of appeal," Crimmins said. "It's one of the things that holds our band together."

Things like this translate into better live performances.

"WE GET shows pretty easily," Faulkner said. "Mostly warming up, but a few headliners. We'll probably stay on this plateau awhile."

Being on a plateau doesn't seem to bother him, though.

"We get tighter and tighter every time we play, there's an intensity there," he said.

Apparently others are noticing. Someone in the audience at one of their shows told the band they looked "exaggerated" as in "larger than life" when they were up on stage.

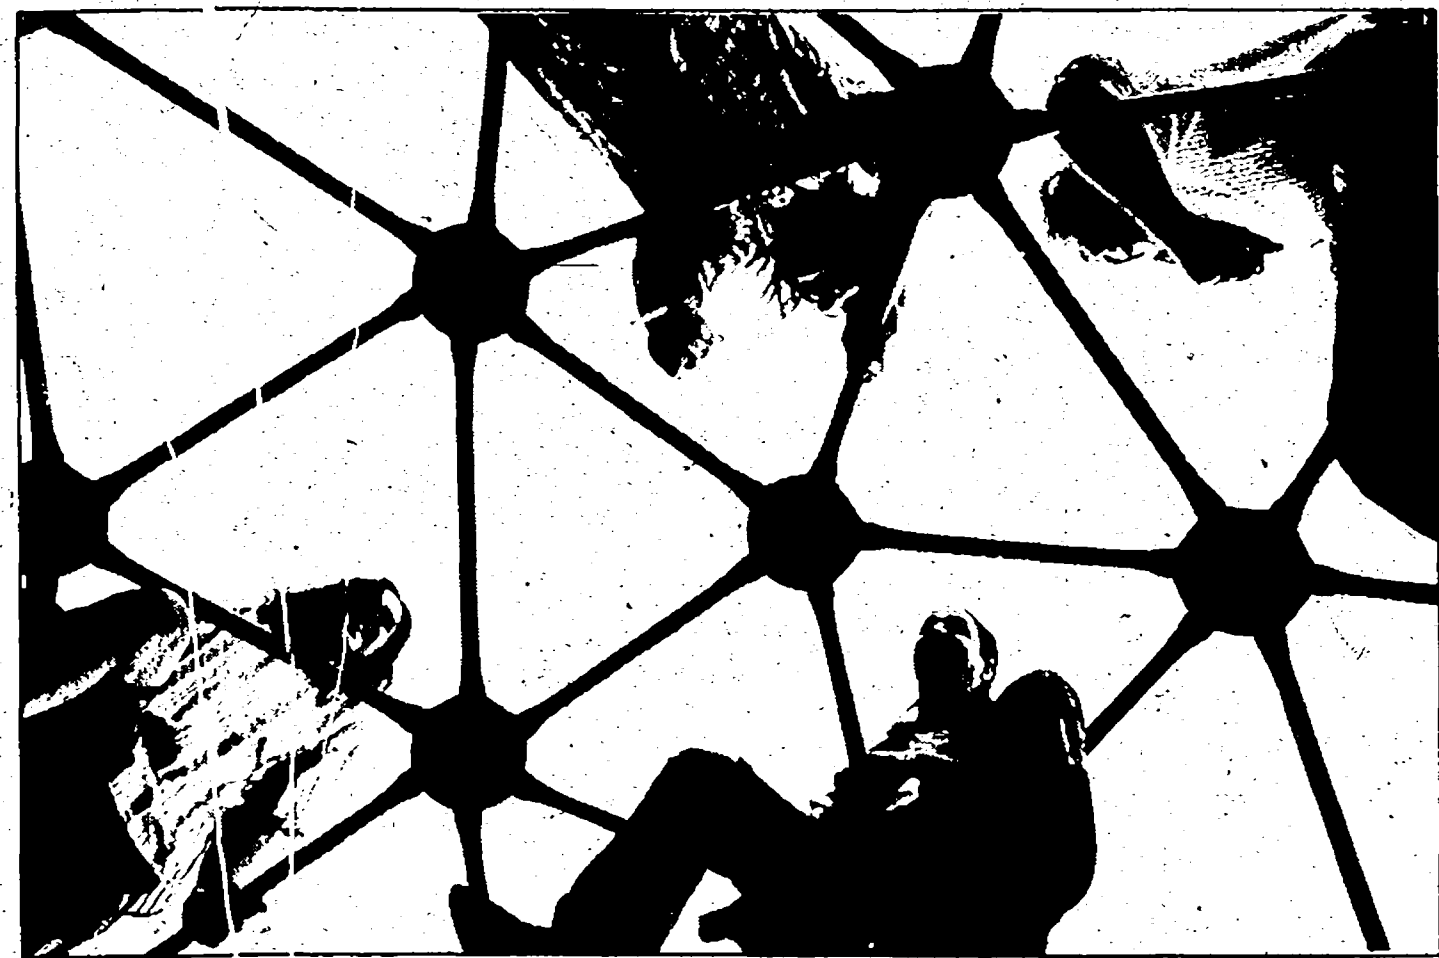

COMPLIMENTS LIKE this are hard to come by, but maybe The Happy Accidents get so many compliments because they give so many out.

"Make sure you mention the Speaker's Corner is one of the nicest bands around," one said during the interview.

What? A band complimenting the competition? Sure. They have plenty of nice things to say about Detroit bands like the Junk Monkeys ("Those guys know rock and roll"), Hippodrome, The Sensitive Big Guys and the Colors ("... an inspiration, they show how hard a band has to work").

"I'd much rather work that much harder to be signed while we're in Detroit to help other bands around here get discovered," Faulkner said. "Look at Second Self, Elvis Hiller, the Junk Monkeys — that's the biggest lump of bands to be signed in a while."

Ideally, record executives will notice this "lump" of bands and maybe, just maybe, they'll start signing some more Detroit bands. It could happen.

ROBIN COVEY

Mike Crimmins (guitar), Jim Faulkner (drums), Paul Einhaus (guitar, vocals) and Steve Carlson (bass) have played in various combinations before colliding their efforts into the Happy Accidents.

Viv Akauldren: Sleep, lip-synch and videotape

By Jill Hamilton
special writer

"I just have time for 2 1/2 hours of sleep before we play Saint Andrew's tonight," said Jeff Tartleton of Viv Akauldren.

He has reason to be tired. He just spent the day filming a video for Viv Akauldren's new album, "Vivian's Fountain." The band shot the first one in Germany, but for this one, they're sticking closer to home — The Majestic Theatre in Detroit, to be exact.

For the video, Tartleton had to learn the delicate art of lip synching to cuts off the album.

"It's kind of strange," Tartleton said. "It's really weird while you're doing it, but it looks OK once you're done."

Who's picking up the tab for this day of video making? Resonance Records, a label based in Holland, is paying. Although Viv Akauldren has been with the label since 1987, Tartleton said that this is the first time that the label has paid for everything. "Everything" actually does include everything, right down to the brand-spanking new promotional posters of the band. Lucky band, huh?

Well, luck is part of it, of course, but Resonance Records knows a good deal when they see one.

"Everybody at the label is really excited about our record," Tartleton said. "They keep telling us it's our best album yet."

Viv Akauldren has been playing in clubs across Europe for years and have, in the process, built up quite a following.

"IN EUROPE, we're probably

Viv Akauldren is a Detroit band that has gained quite a following in Europe.

more popular than we are here," Tartleton said. "It's really weird to go over there and have people know all the words to all our songs. People will come up to me and ask me about some obscure single like something off our fourth album for 1986."

Tartleton hypothesizes that the reason for Viv Akauldren's greater popularity in Europe is due to the better distribution process there.

REVIEWS

TALES LIKE THESE — Wildflowers

When you see this album by the Wildflowers, you may notice that it is on the Slash record label. You might think to yourself that Slash is some independent label so maybe "Tales Like These" will be different from the hoards of releases from huge, mega-corporation record companies. Wrong.

Look a little closer at the fine print on the album — Slash is a division of Warner Brothers. Warner Brothers is one of the largest record companies in America. Perhaps you thought that Reprise Records, Atlantic, Elektra, Sire and Atco were all separate labels. Well, they are... but in name only. They still answer to the big bosses at Time-Warner Inc. In other words, a record on Slash is the same thing as a Warner Brothers release. The Slash name is just there to make the buyer think that they are getting a choice. Ha Ha Ha.

Perhaps this is why Slash signed the Wildflowers — because the band fits the label's status quo. You won't find anything too original or especially challenging on "Tales Like These."

The Wildflowers play a somewhat bland mid-tempo pop/rock. Singer Nell Cook has a competent voice although she leans a bit heavily on strongly echoed vocals a la Steve Miller. Echoed vocals are usually OK, but Cook goes a little overboard and sounds sort of silly. The credits list Simon Atkins as the drummer, but he should watch out for his job because he could easily be replaced by a machine. Atkins seems to favor banging away on one drum in a thumping, plodding manner. Yes, yes, drummers are supposed to thump in a rhythmic manner, but, Atkins is almost too rhythmic to the point of boredom.

The best song on the album is the first tune, "Shakedown." This is a full-tilt pop/rock, full of dance potential. "This Feeling's Gone" is a watered down version of "Shakedown," but the song is also OK. Finally, by the third song, "Put the Blame on Me," the Wildflowers have hit their stride of blandness: boring drummer Atkins is completely in his listless thumping mode, the background vocals are half-hearted and the guitars are plodding.

For the rest of the album, expect more of the same thing. Sorry.

HOME — Hothouse Flowers

Hothouse Flowers is everything everyone wants the group to be: possess a little Celtic wisdom (a la Van Morrison), have a fistful of feeling (like the Waterboys), and encompass a boatful of soul (take your pick).

In the past this has led to some rather disjointed music as this five-man outfit has searched for an identity. The band's debut LP "People" had its moments, but, for the most part was unfocused.

"Home" (Polygram/London) is far more polished, but it's not without its flaws.

This doesn't stem from a lack of effort. Singer Liam O'Maonlai's passionate voice can get him in trouble sometimes. He can overdo the emotional my-vocals-come-straight-from-the-aorta routine as evidenced in such windbag numbers as "Hardstone City."

But when O'Maonlai is not trying to be the Irish reincarnation of Al Green, he can be damn fine at the mike. The slow, elegant path pursued on "Sweet Marie" and the uplifting tone of "Give It Up" provides cover for such blemishes.

Credit has to be given here for the willingness to experiment with the traditional sound. Hothouse Flowers recorded part of this LP in New Orleans. There, they met up mega-producer Daniel Lanols and recorded the cajun-tempered number "Shut Up and Listen." This is one of the more intriguing songs on the album, revealing some future possibilities for the Flower's Celtic/soul renderings.

By dabbling with the chemistry of its music, the group has one mishap. The remake of "I Can See Clearly Now" starts off beautifully with O'Maonlai's vocal interpretation of this classic.

Then, for no apparent reason except to flex their I-Have-Soul tattoos, the song breaks up into an Up With People tag-team gospel fest. With apologies to the Angelical Voice Choir, there should be a moratorium declared on rock groups using gospel groups as back-up vocalists. This is a tried and tired formula. Besides, Foreigner's "I Want to Know What Love Is" and U2's "I Still Haven't Found What I'm Looking For" is enough for one century.

Then again, subtlety has never been this group's friend.

LLOYD COLE — Lloyd Cole

Lloyd Cole could easily record ultimate pop album to make all the girls swoon. He's smarter than that.

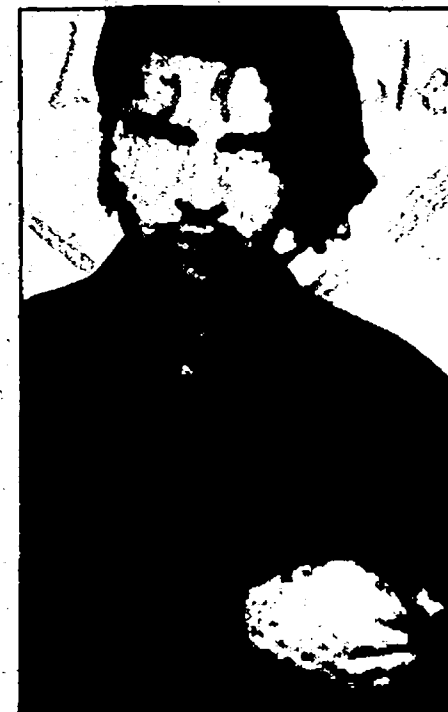

His first album without the Comotions, titled simply "Lloyd Cole" (Capitol), deals with being spurned, loneliness and lovelessness. All of which Cole encountered in our times before moving to New York from London and eventually marrying a woman from Kalamazoo.

To simply write this off as melancholically LP would be an injustice. Against the backdrop some of the most gorgeous guitar pieces heard in quite awhile, Cole's lyrics take on new meaning, new life. So much so, a listener almost feels guilty for bathing Cole's misery.

And bitter this boy is. Heard in the harmonica-tinged "Blue Skies": "Hey baby, want to leave be my guest/All I'm going to do is cry/Then I'm going to find someone else and tear the stars out of the sky."

Or in "What Do You Know About Love?" Cole opines: "Take a look at my face to get my meaning/Mister I've got scars on my knees/Take a look at the hands that have been praying/I do believe you better be leaving."

In the past, Cole has self-admittedly tried to be too literate with some of his lyrics. On this effort, the words flow with ease. Heck, the guy who studied American Literature at Glasgow University even resorts to a cliché in "Long Way Down." The feelings are real. When Cole snidely refers to "a punch drunk... S.O.B." in "Long Way Down" or refers to a woman as "you're sure looking pretty when it's hidden on your face" in "Downtown," the anger is there.

So, too, is the musicianship. Cole has surrounded himself with quite a crew on this, his first solo LP. The wind-blown effect of the horn in the background, for example, provides one of many subtleties that makes "Lloyd Cole" certainly a contender as best album of the year.

some very obstreperous gags." One time he placed a dead snake in her panties before she put them on. Such juvenile behavior didn't wear well but it made filmmaking unpredictable. Neither ever admitted to an off-screen affair. "Dodge City" (1939) and "They Died with Their Boots On" (1941) round out the Tuesday morning screenings. The former casts Flynn as a marshal locking horns with the corrupt boss of Dodge City. The latter recounts the mythic story of Gen. George Custer, from his cadet days to the last stand at Little Big Horn.

PART OF these films' success lies in skilled action directors Michael Curtiz and Raoul Walsh, who often persuaded Flynn to perform his own stunts. Flynn always considered himself underpaid for his film work, though he was doing much more daring things for free in his explosive personal life.

De Havilland was finally able to break free of Flynn's shadow and her good-girl persona. The highly acclaimed "The Dark Mirror" (1946) and "The Snake Pit" (1948) both cast her as mentally unstable women who had more to do than pine for a handsome leading man.

For most vintage movie fans, however, Flynn and de Havilland will be best remembered as young, beautiful and hopelessly in love.

Patrick Dempsey stars as a humorously stereotyped college freshman, Chris, bent on a literary career. As he is leaving Chicago on the bus for a Los Angeles college, his mother tries to convince him to fly but, he replies, "Mother, writers don't fly, they take buses to experience life."

BEWARE OF literary types who "want to experience life." All that "experience" is merely observation. Chris is so far from life that all the typewriters, busts of Shakespeare and pipes in town won't enable him to write passionately — which is exactly what his instructors try to teach him.

It takes a good roommate to activate Chris' emotions and sensitivities. The humorous twist in "Happy Together" is that the roommate is a gal, Alexandra (Helen Slater), generally known as "Alex," a name the

If you're willing to accept the fact that this kind of mistake can happen — and there's no reason not to — "Happy Together" is a satisfying film. Alex is just what Chris needs to awaken him to a passionate belief in life. Conversation can lead to solution

Dear Barbara Schiff, Hi. It's me again, the one who wrote in to tell G.A.'s daughter to stand up for herself.

It was a shock to see my letter in the paper 'cause I didn't expect you to print it. I'd write something in to the Detroit News that I was positive they'd put in, but no luck. Thank you for printing it. It shows you care about this kind of thing.

Even though when I read your response, at first I felt like you were putting my "advice" down (especially the headline "Solve problem intelligently" — I figured you felt my response wasn't an intelligent solution). I came to realize you were right, too, that sometimes there are better ways to solve a problem like that than a confrontation, especially if it's like a whole "gang" of folks look forward to messing with you every day, not just two or three. What I mean to say is that you should at least try to stand up for yourself and kick back at these people rather than think you can avoid it. To be quite honest, I never did that when I was 11 and I felt I let myself down. Then a year later in eighth grade, I saw the same kind of thing happening to me with a different person and I realized I had to show them I had had it and I wasn't going to take it anymore. Let me just say it felt so much better. See, some people think "solving" the problem is to tell the principal and the teachers to handle it, but what can they do? Give them a lecture about "love your fellow student as yourself" and confiscate their spitballs? What happens when you're not in school and you encounter these people in your neighborhood? You just can't run away. I try not to hold a grudge but I still have angry feelings towards my parents and their way of trying to handle it. And I'm 19 now.

I really hope that G.A.'s daughter comes through this situation triumphant and that both her parents love her and listen to how she wants to handle it. I'll be rooting for her and I'm sorry if I've been going on and on about it. This is the last of my letters.

May the force be with you!

P.S. Yes, I'm a girl!

Dear L.A. It is letters like yours which make this column gratifying to write. If is heartwarming to me that our exchange of letters could help you learn. I'll miss you if you don't write again. Perhaps you could write a follow-up in a year to see what steps you have taken, that would be helpful to other readers.

Open conversation is sometimes the best way to solve a problem, (when there is careful consideration of all the options). There was never a recommendation for the young scapegoated girl not to face her tormentors. There was a recommendation to explore the situation before pretending to understand it.

Careful exploration can help us see what our contribution to the problem has been. This gives us an opportunity to grow that we cannot get by acting out.

I ONCE HAD a patient who remembered being ostracized by her peers in junior high school. This was a frightening experience for her and she persuaded her parents into sending her to a different school. Then the experience repeated itself when in college. When she came to see me, she was 35 and again having difficulty making friends with desirable women. She was confused. There was only a faint understanding that the rest of the world wasn't wrong and she was right. If there had been some success understanding in junior high school what she was doing to alienate others, then many years of unhappiness could have been avoided.

This problem becomes more complicated. By the time I saw this woman, the only other women available to her as friends were objectionable. They were complaining and critical. This confused my patient even more and she became depressed.

While this is an example of only one woman, the scenario occurs with regularity.

I understand how you feel about the headline. I do not write them myself.

Area possesses rich jazz history

By William Coutant staff writer

With all that jazz out there, the uninitiated might well wonder just what is and what is not jazz.

That is not always an easy question, because as one musician and jazz teacher put it, the form is "always evolving."

Morris Lawrence, born in New Orleans and raised on jazz, said dixieland, contemporary and big band are all styles of jazz, always subject to a new arrangement.

"I developed a love for it," said Lawrence, who teaches music at Washtenaw Community College and is a fixture with his Jazz Connection ensemble at University of Michigan home basketball games in Crisler Arena. "You can always improvise and it's always changing. It is always modern music. That's what I love about jazz. It's always new."

And according to Michael G. Nastos, jazz disc jockey at WEMU-FM in Ypsilanti and a jazz critic for several publications in the area, jazz has strong roots here.

"This area has a great legacy of jazz and blues from the 30s and 40s," Nastos said.

THAT LEGACY includes many famous musicians who went on to national and international recognition, such as Miles Davis and Dizzy Gillespie.

Nastos said jazz musicians have had a tougher time making a go of it in Detroit since the departure of Motown Records.

"A lot of jazz musicians played backup for Motown," he said. "When Motown left, a lot of them were without jobs and had to do something else."

The Montreux Jazz Festival in late August gives many jazz musicians a chance to show their stuff, but that's a once-a-year event.

"For some, it's the only chance they have all year to perform," Nastos said. "That's really sad."

Although the musicians are some of the most talented, and the music is a real American art form, it has not been promoted or supported in the United States, while Europeans and others look to this country as a leader and innovator in the field, Nastos said.

And even though you can hear live jazz performed seven-days-a-week in the Detroit area, clubs are fewer than in years past.

Clarence Baker, owner of Baker's Keyboard Lounge in Detroit, said jazz musicians have a tough time working steady in the area.

And one club owner in the suburbs said despite spending money to bring in good jazz, it's a music form that is not well supported.

"We brought in beautiful jazz," said the man, who didn't want his name used. "People just won't support it."

BUT THE NEWS is not all bad.

Ron Brooks, owner of the Bird of Paradise, a seven-day-a-week jazz club in Ann Arbor, said the music is probably gaining in popularity.

"The (club) business is up and down, but the music side is getting better," Brooks said. "There is a very strong, faithful group of people who listen to jazz."

Brooks, who plays in The Ron Brooks Trio and works as a psychologist in addition to running "the Bird," said jazz fans from Europe, the Soviet Union and other countries want to hear jazz performed when they come here.

"We have tourists from Germany, the Soviet Union and Japan, looking for jazz," he said. "We're very well attended on the weekend."

Perhaps some of that enthusiasm will rub off on the natives of an area rich in jazz heritage.

Stunt Johnson Theatre has been together a little over a year. Its members are Todd Woster, Matt Hale, Brian Kruger, Larry Koch and Buddy Moorehouse.

Stunt Johnson Theatre: Comedy by committee

By Susan Steinnmueller
staff writer

If you're in the mood for a comedy club act that's a little different from the traditional stand-up comic, you might want to go see a performance of the Stunt Johnson Theatre.

First, you'll hear funny lines from not just one comedian, but from all five members of the comedy group.

"Visually, just to see us up there, just sets us apart from the start," said group member Buddy Moorehouse. "Even if we aren't funny, visually, we're different, and we have that going for us."

Second, you'll see a wild and wacky act that can be, and is, described by Moorehouse as equal parts Second City, Monty Python, "Saturday Night Live" and the Three Stooges.

Basically a series of short skits, the show features the All New-Three Stooges, with Moe, Larry and the newest Stoooge — Charlie Joe Manson. Also, there is a touching scene from the latest "ABC Afterschool Special," in which a gang of nerds mercilessly picks on a football player.

There is also a skit in which the five drive around in a car "acting juvenile," and it turns out they are really doctors. Even the "worst possible audience" always enjoys it, Moorehouse said.

THE STUNT Johnson Theatre got its start 1½ years ago, with a successful "open mike" night at the MainStreet Comedy Showcase in Ann Arbor.

Since then, the members have been a favorite on the Detroit area comedy club circuit, headlining at many of the area's top clubs, among them Joey's Comedy Club in Allen Park, the Looney Bin in Belleville and the Toledo Comedy Club.

They have also been a featured act at several other well-known clubs, including Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle in Royal Oak, and Bea's Comedy Kitchen in Detroit.

In the past year, the Stunt Johnson Theatre has also shared the stage with such national acts as Tim Allen, Thom Sharp, Bobcat Goldthwait and Diane Ford, and film star Jeff Daniels.

THE FIVE members are actually longtime friends, who have been interested in performing since high school days when they took drama classes.

In addition to Moorehouse, the members are Larry Koch, Brian Kruger, Matt Hale and Todd Woster. All are Ann Arbor area residents.

The five had done other projects and skits for various activities before, Moorehouse said, before deciding to see if their act would play in comedy clubs.

While it has been successful, they haven't yet quit their daytime jobs, which range from teaching to writing.

THEY ARE also exploring other creative avenues. These include working on a television pilot, the format of which they believe "will give us a chance to do a lot of different type of things."

In the meantime, they are having fun going for the laughs together.

"We just have the best time working together," Moorehouse said. "Being with your best friends and doing what you love — it really is great."

The Stunt Johnson Theatre will perform at Joey's Comedy Club in Livonia Aug. 8-11. For information, call 261-0555.

Talking Heads

Scott: Radio's individual

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

A few minutes past 9 a.m., commercials blare in the background. Time for a break in the WXYT-AM studios in Southfield.

The host of the "Mark Scott Show" is not resting, though. Instead, he hovers over a pile of newspaper clippings, studying the articles like a college student before finals.

They will serve to line the gloves on his first punch of morning thought. A signal is given from the other side of the glass partition. Mark Scott slowly draws back his chair and rises to his feet.

Let the preamble begin. "Are we safe? Are we secure?" says Scott, pointing a menacing finger at no one in particular. "The major issue in the United States today is can we protect ourselves."

His opening salvo is a lengthy oratory that pushes all the buttons. Scott somehow weaves gun control into a massive ball of rhetoric that goes on to include declining moral values, the alarmist environmental movement and germ warfare by the Iraqis.

SCOTT LISTS the problems; he labels the culprits. Environmentalists are "tree huggers," social workers are "social engineers" and tax-collectors in government are "legalized criminals."

Slowly, the phone lines light up. The talk show host prides himself as a warrior of the individual, the person who fights for his rights and who doesn't wither under the guilt pushers of church, government and '60s folk singers.

"They (the audience) recognize that," Scott said. "They know I put it on the line."

His resume reflects that. Scott was canned in 1988 from WWJ-AM after only a few weeks on the job after moving from WXYT-AM. Many believed he was fired because his views were too extreme for the all-news station. Loyal listeners rallied behind him, sending him off to New York at WWOR-AM as something of a deposed hero of the common man.

In February, Scott returned from exile to WXYT-AM. The event was marked by Scott appearing on stage in Marine fatigues during Rush Limbaugh's "Rush to Excellence Tour" at the Masonic Temple, promising to run the Com-mies out of town.

Today, Scott is in his familiar spot: inciting audiences with his reactionary views that go against the grain of popular thought. His show is aired 9 a.m. to noon on WXYT-AM 1270. His tone of voice doesn't change once the mike is off.

• Organized religion: "Organized religion is the most destructive force in the world today. It always has been. It's never going to change. I've seen it ruin lives; split families."

• Altruism: "Altruism is sacrifice. Sacrifice is not high and noble. Benevolence is high and noble."

• Some members of government: "These guys who take advantage of us are legalized criminals."

Not surprisingly, Scott is against gun control and big government. Unlike most conservative idealogues, though, Scott's views are grounded in a philosophy called Objectivism.

Author Ayn Rand is the founder of the belief that touts the virtues of selfishness. Scott had just left the Marine Corps in 1960 when he picked up the book, "The Fountainhead" written by Rand.

"What I remember most is the defense scene with Howard Rourke," said Scott, describing the climactic scene in the book. "He's in the middle of the court room and he tells the people no man should live for the sake of another. A man should live for his own sake and not expect from other people."

At first, Objectivism presented an "enormous conflict" for Scott. He was heavily into religion and his political views were somewhat to the left. With a laugh of irony,

WXYT-AM's Mark Scott's controversial views are grounded in a belief called Objectivism, which touts the rights of the individual.

'Disagreement and argument is how you learn, it's how you grow. Out of that comes solutions to the problems.'

— Mark Scott

Scott even recalls how he and a few Marine buddies considered joining Che Rivera to fight the revolution.

NOW HE fights his revolution on the radio. As a talk show host, Scott sets himself up as the champion to be dethroned.

Scott stands defiantly as the first wave of calls come through. For every argument, he has a counter argument. He doesn't suffer fools with any patience.

On this day, though to his disappointment, a majority of the callers appear to agree with him.

"Disagreement and argument is how you learn, it's how you grow," he said. "Out of that comes solutions to problems."

The Rush of right-wing views

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

With a large American flag in the background, Rush Limbaugh meets his radio talk show audience face-to-face.

The voice of good ol' moral values and conservatism is matched up with a rotund figure who only a few minutes into the presentation of "Rush to Excellence Tour" is already perspiring.

On this night at the Masonic Temple Auditorium, though, it's no sweat for Limbaugh. Members of the sold-out crowd include the well-heeled in business suits and the soles of the working class in nylon union jackets.

Few dissenters are in attendance. Three black men promptly exit after Limbaugh begins lambasting Detroit political leaders Mayor Coleman Young and Congressman John Conyers.

For the most part, though, they're his.

Limbaugh doesn't disappoint. He asks for women volunteers from the audience. They trip in their high heels rushing up to the stage in response.

In the course of making a point of how women shouldn't be allowed to fight in military combat, he drops a card. He requests a woman bend over and pick it up for him; She obliges.

FROM THERE, Limbaugh expounds on such topics as the exaggerated plight of the homeless, the liberal bias in the media and frog licking. Oh, and yes, Limbaugh injects a little humor on the proceedings.

"What has 80 eyes and nine teeth?" asks Limbaugh. "The front row of a Merle Haggard concert."

At $15 a ticket, talk is not cheap in this case. Yet Limbaugh continues to pack them around the country with his to the right of Goldwater oratorics.

As a talk show host, Limbaugh's success is unrefuted. His daily audience is more than one million with his show broadcast on 205 radio stations nationwide, including noon to 2 a.m. WXYT-AM 1270 in Detroit.

So successful is the midway call-in program Limbaugh turned it into a traveling road show. His popularity even befuddles him.

"It's really been a curiosity to me," said Limbaugh in a recent telephone interview from New York. "I have at times tried to figure it out and other times I've said, 'Naw, don't mess with this.'"

"I'm awed by it. It's humbling. I'm proud of it. It's deserving."

Born and raised in Missouri, Limbaugh forsaked a career in law for radio. He left home for a radio job in Pittsburgh at 20.

LIMBAUGH QUICKLY earned a reputation as a master of parody and put-on with such pranks as calling a sporting goods store to order a left-handed baseball bat or asking for slacks with a left-handed zipper.

After leaving radio for three years, Limbaugh worked as director of Group Sales for the Kansas City Royals. He returned to the airwaves in 1983.

On his radio show, Limbaugh has garnered a reputation for combining humor and conservatism to outrageous lengths.

But many don't find Limbaugh's views all that funny. His AIDS updates have been considered inflammatory to the gay community; his commentaries on people who are homeless have been deemed insensitive.

"I'm not insensitive," Limbaugh said. "Sensitivity is the new fascism. What they really mean is I'm not saying what they want to hear."

"I attack the politics of issues that I disagree on. I don't make fun of the homeless. I merely say the people who are friends of the homeless are frauds. They try to blame the country, the policies of Ronald Reagan."

The AIDS updates ran their course. They were targeted towards a small minority in the gay community; the militant gays. These people trash St. Patrick's Cathedral and send letters to Paul Michael Glasser's wife saying that she shouldn't be using Ronald Reagan in TV (AIDS awareness) ads. I take offense to that."

LIMBAUGH CONSIDERS himself the messenger of the conservative viewpoint. He doesn't place his show on the intellectual level as say, George Will or William F. Buckley.

Rush Limbaugh's success as a radio talk show host has evolved beyond the airwaves. His "Rush to Excellence Tour" packs auditoriums around the country.

A sports show with a twist

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

"The Ted Tevan Show" on CKWW-AM 580 is a sports call-in show. Or so we are told.

But there's no meaningless trivia here. If you want to know what Cecil Fielder hits against right-handed throwers with French surnames, better dial somewhere else.

On a given night, a listener is likely to hear the gravel-voiced host play a little Neil Diamond, soothe a woman caller whose husband is in the hospital after a massive heart attack and discuss the real action between the lines of a game called life.

"Life is more than scores," said Tevan, whose show can be heard in the Detroit area 6:15-9 p.m. weeknights. "2-1, 3-2... screw that. I leave that to the other guys."

"HEY COACH!" yells his producer, Troy "McGillcuddy" Robinson. "Time to go back on."

"Ah, throw on another song," hollers Tevan, taking another drag on his cigarette. "Play 'Yesterday.'"

As of today, Tevan has performed more than 4,700 shows, mostly in Montreal for CFCF-AM.

At one time, he had the highest-rated show for both English and French audiences. He also had a syndicated talk show in Canada that lasted less than a year.

Tevan headed down Highway 401

'Life is more than scores. 2-1, 3-2... screw that. I leave that to the other guys.'

— Ted Tevan

to join much smaller CKWW-AM in August of last year.

HE DOESN'T look at the relocation as a step down, citing the gold mine of a potential listening audience across the Detroit River where the Tigers, Red Wings, Pistons and Lions are always hot topics of conversation.

Already a growing number of callers are from the Detroit area. One regular is Kathleen who is part of the show's "little family," according to "McGillcuddy."

Kathleen of Westland phones in to talk hockey. Wally calls in jokes, the "Gorilla" is an Italian who discusses soccer, "Earl the Pearl" simply "knows it all," Kevin is a "big Boston fan," Elaine loves Wayne Gretzky and "Ross the Boss" hates No. 99.

"One time we crossed the lines," Robinson said. "It was World War III. Ted turned off his mike and let (Elaine and Ross the Boss) go at it."

ANOTHER MEMBER of the Little Family is Eleanor, whose husband recently died after a heart attack. After he was admitted to the hospital, she called in to Tevan, distraught.

Tevan, who has been known to cut off callers with canned machine gun fire, consoled Eleanor on the air. Since then, other callers will ask how Eleanor is doing and Kathleen occasionally calls the older woman at home to chat.

Unlike many radio talk shows, telephone conversations on Tevan's show last longer than the average inquiry to the operator. He has been known to keep some callers on up to 45 minutes, sometimes even longer.

IN MONTREAL, a woman called in who had just slit her wrists in a suicide attempt. Another man phoned saying he had a gun in his hand and wanted to speak to Tevan before "he left this world."

In both cases, Tevan talked them through the ordeal.

"She was right out of it," said Tevan, recalling the first incident, which lasted three hours.

"Police said her touchtone phone was caked with blood. She was calling me names, screaming at me. I went off the air. I played love songs for her, I cajoled her."

Fortunately, the baby sitter for the woman's children happened to be listening to the show. She recognized the caller's voice and phoned police. Tevan later personally met the woman, who thanked him.

TEVAN SHAKES his head at such incidents, dismissing it as one of the great whys of talk radio. He does know why his show works.

"I'm the best at what I do," Tevan said. "This is information and entertainment. Some can do one. Some can do the other. Nobody can do both as well as I can."

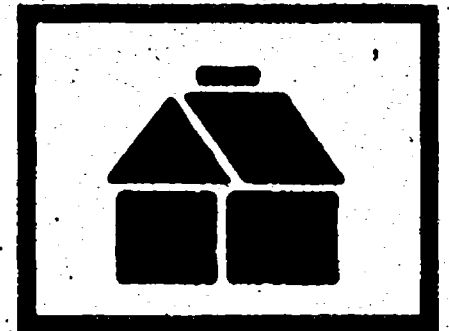

"I've been getting ready for tonight's show all my life."

Ted Tevan mixes humor and music on his zany sports call-in show heard 6:15-9 p.m. weeknights on CKWW-AM 580.

Galleries look to the Hills Posner Gallery plants roots on Northwestern

Editor's note: These three galleries in northern Farmington Hills are part of a fast-growing art community in the Southfield-Farmington area of western Oakland County.

By Anahid Lisa Derbabian
special writer

MADELINE POSNER and her daughter, Karen, co-owners of Posner Gallery, 32407 Northwestern, Farmington Hills, fill their gallery with original works by local, national and international artists.

"Our direction is to be a contemporary gallery as opposed to traditional," said Madeline Posner.

The gallery has been around for four years. It was in Southfield's Prudential Town Center before moving to Farmington Hills 7½ months ago. "This location is more visible, has adequate parking and easy access off the road," she said.

Before getting involved with the gallery, Posner worked as a volunteer at the Detroit Institute of Arts. That plus her involvement in corporate art, where she selected art works for professional surroundings, prepared her for a career in art.

"You have to have your own little niche and decide where you want to be in the art field," she said, adding that the gallery will begin to offer more representational pieces — works which people can readily understand and identify with. Most of what she presently has is.

ABOUT 30 percent of the gallery's artists are local, and Posner said they don't receive the recognition they deserve.

"People often feel that a New York or Chicago artist has more national or international appeal. Therefore, there is a resistance to paying what the local artist determines the piece is worth.

"Whatever appeals to you is what you should have. Art is to decorate your home and make you feel good. When someone is looking for a painting and says, 'I know I shouldn't look for color or match it with my room,' I say, 'buy it to make you feel comfortable.'"

Posner encourages browsing in her gallery. "Galleries, by and large, are intimidating, so we encourage our customers to take their time and browse. We want people to rely on our judgment and trust our taste," she said.

On this particular day, a browser would have seen raku-earrings by Dani Jeffries, a local artist; three large nudes, Naked Bride I, II and III, by Dale Sparage of Bloomfield Hills; a large abstract oil in rich lavenders and blue-greens by Jim Fekete of Southfield; and an untitled acrylic on paper by New York Douglas Eisman that appeared both calm and zesty.

AT RIGHT: The metal sculpture by Fred Myers sets up an interesting dichotomy between two-dimensional and three-dimensional works at Posner Gallery.

Northwestern's still home for Hayman Gallery

By Anahid Lisa Derbabian
special writer

LINDA HAYMAN, owner of Linda Hayman Gallery and Art Poster Co., 29555 Northwestern, Farmington Hills, said the arts in the metropolitan area are in desperate need of more exposure.

"People don't have any sort of a guide as to where to go and what to see. And there is so much out there."

Her 5,600-square-foot space includes a fine arts gallery, poster shop, frame shop and offices, all in one centralized, modern location.

"ELEVEN YEARS ago, my children were getting older and I was looking for something to do.

"Posters at that time were something you'd buy at a drugstore. The really nice poster could only be found at museums or special exhibits."

So in 1979 she established a mail-order poster business, which started with a simple flyer and grew into a 56-page catalog.

"It was nice to have the contact with the people from all over the world."

She moved from her Southfield location in 1984 to La Mirage shopping plaza off Northwestern highway and 12 Mile, where she opened a retail poster shop and phased out of the catalog business.

HAYMAN MOVED to her present site in October 1989. Sliding walls house more than 500 modern and traditional frames.

"Doing my own framing offers me more quality control and quicker service to my customers. If a painting isn't framed properly, it can lose its value. Acid-free matting helps preserve art."

Posters are subject-divided by titles such as Art Deco, Sports, Famous People, Food and Detroit.

HAYMAN BROUGHT fine art into her shop because clients requested "something a little nicer or something original."

A painting, "Spring Iris" by California artist John Powell, illustrates her point.

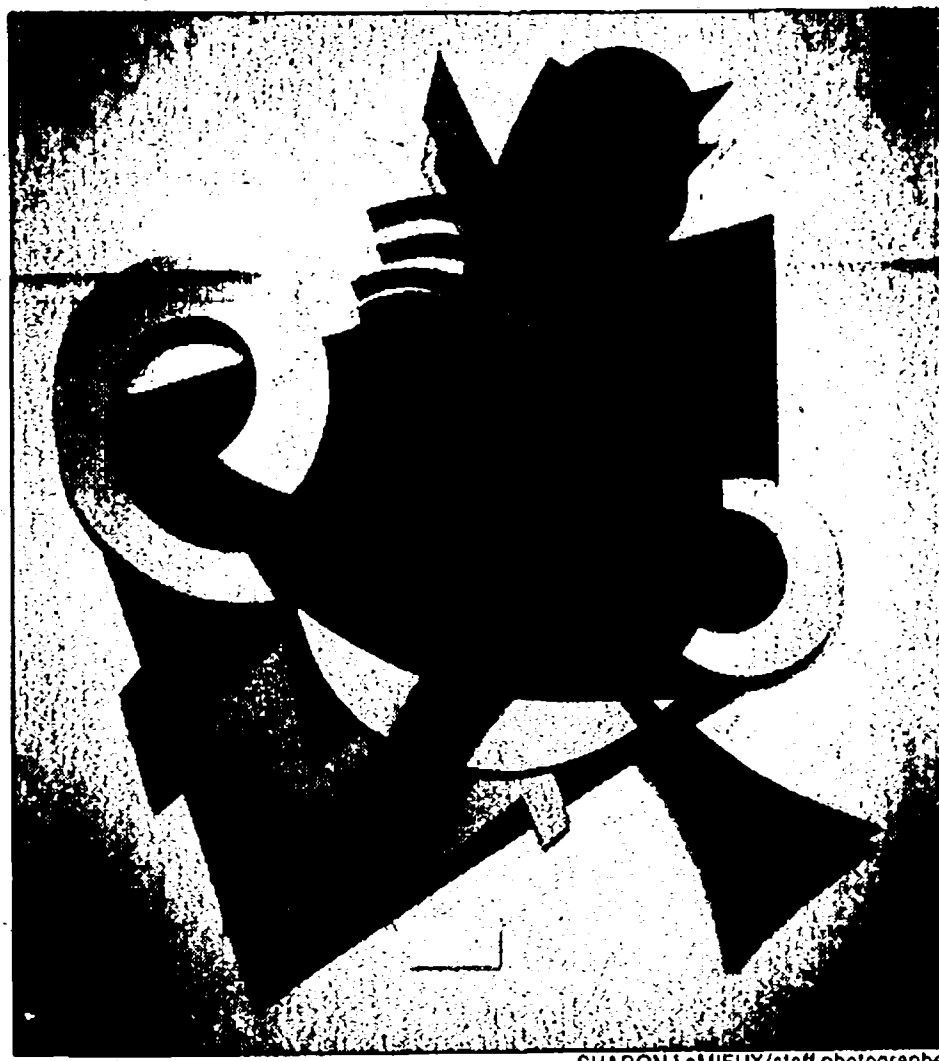

"I pick works that are happy and easy to live with — interesting, figurative, flower-filled, colorful and bright.

Another California artist represented is Jennifer Marks, who produces brightly colored, whimsical Jamaican works.

One piece, titled "Dieu Si bon," shows black, Jamaican women walking on the beach in a line, with large baskets of fruit on their heads. A bus loaded with villagers is passing by. The mountains in the background are turquoise, orange, hot pink and purple.

"We suggest people buy things because they like them, not because they'll increase in value. So few artworks really increase that much. Andy Warhol's are great, but so rare." NOW THAT Hayman has ample room, she plans to begin locating and helping to support new talent.

SHARON LEMIEUX/staff photographer

The wall sculpture "Two Penny Opera" by Norman Ridenour is an interesting, colorful eye-catcher at Linda Hayman Gallery.

"I go to the (Detroit-based) Center for Creative Studies art shows. It's nice to promote people who work in the community, as long as their work is on the same caliber and level as national artists."

Ilona and Gallery settles in at Hunters Square

By Anahid Lisa Derbabian
special writer

DISPLAYS FROM both local and national artists fill the 3,300-square-foot Ilona and Gallery in Hunters Square, Orchard Lake and 14 Mile, Farmington Hills.

"The craft market today is very strong. People like one-of-a-kind gifts, and are more aware of special colors and designs," said Toni Levine, who co-owns the gallery with her husband, Hirschel.

The 10-year-old Ilona and Gallery occupied three locations before settling into its present site five years ago.

"We started out in the basement of my sister's home," Hirschel said.

THE GALLERY carries glass, pottery, jewelry, wall hangings and paintings, but generally doesn't handle wearable art, wood, leather or functional earthenware, he said.

"Earlier, the craft field wasn't considered mainstream business, but now our craft items compete against other stores' gift items," he said.

Petoskey artist Don Doak's miniature glass and sterling silver ring boxes are displayed in a choice of soft colors.

New Jersey artist Peggy Kerr's checkerboard-trimmed glass fruit plates offer a new and refreshing approach to eating fruit.

Each handmade, female beanbag Poupee Dolls by French artist Pablo flaunts a hat and pumps to match its French, psychedelic outfits.

Garments for small children by Miltz Jacobs of West Bloomfield are both charming and functional.

"WE HAVE a varied clientele come in. We try to find out what they want and stay within their price range," Toni said.

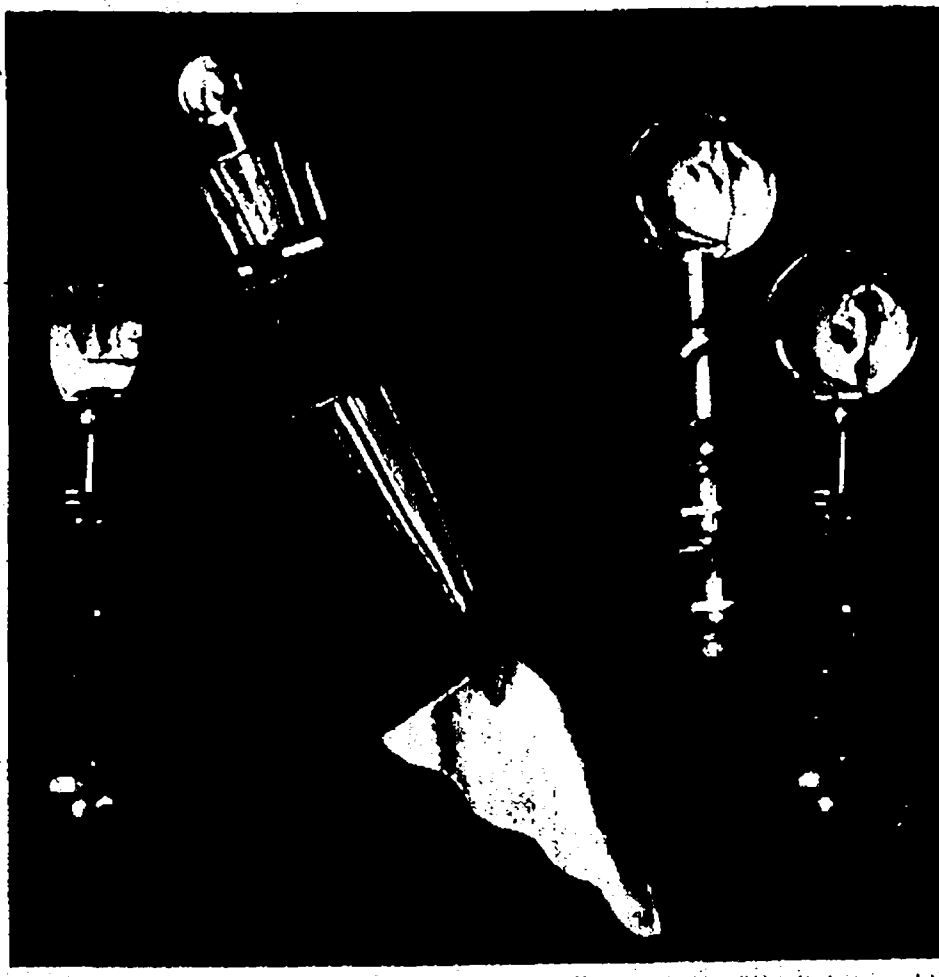

The gallery's jewelry buyers begin at about age 12, ceramics and glass purchasers start at about age 20, and wall hangings and paintings buyers run from age 25 up.

HOWEVER, THE gallery currently represents more local artists than ever before.

Glassware from Lumen Essence, a Troy-based company, (artist, Laurel Clark) includes large and small innovative bowls and candlesticks, all with a sea-green hue, which resemble organic rather than man-made objects.

Hand-painted bowls, colorful clay snakes, blown glass perfume bottles in fluid shapes and transparent colors, plus Delaware artist Peter Saenger's clay coffee sets, illustrate the diversity and variety that characterize this gallery.

SHARON LEMIEUX/staff photographer

These jewels for the table at Ilona and Gallery are the work of Mardi-Jo Cohen. The large piece is a cake server. To its immediate right is an adult rattle spoon of sterling silver, acrylic and amethyst.

exhibitions

Consider these time-saving tips

Q: I'm always interested in little ways I can save time and make life a bit more convenient. I have gotten lots of good ideas from your columns, but you often write about generalities rather than specific hints. Could you give more actual tips?

organizing

Dorothy Lehmkuhl

A: You make a good point and, yes, I'll be glad to do one or more columns on tips. While I try to stay away from being a regular "tips" column, that can be fun once in a while.

Here's one: Some people buy only identical socks so they no longer have to pair them after doing the laundry — a match is guaranteed with any grab. Not only is this a time saver, it's also an irritant saver by avoiding the "single-sock syndrome."

One entrepreneur has not carried any keys for the last two years now.

He accomplishes this by using the garage door opener in his car to gain entrance to his house, installing a touch pad lock on his office door, and also having touch pad entry installed on his car.

He figures he gets in and out of his car at least 800 times a year, and even if using a key takes only 10 seconds, that adds up to almost 2½ hours per year.

Not only does he save time fumbling with keys in the dark, for instance, he feels electronic locking systems are safer and he never has to waste time looking for misplaced keys.

Another "quickle" involves taking down an address involving a mailing.

Rather than writing down the name and address on a separate sheet of paper and then transferring it to the envelope, write on the envelope itself the first time and the job will be done.

This is particularly helpful when taking telephone orders; it works on order forms as well.

A tremendous amount of time can be saved by telephoning merchandise orders to be delivered rather than driving to do all your shopping.

More and more stores either have their own delivery trucks or will use a service such as UPS.

Have gifts mailed from stores directly to recipients, for instance, or do business with catalog mail-order houses, drugstores, department stores, cleaners, office supplies, garden nurseries or other places that will send things out.

I'm sure every reader of this column has his or her own pet time-saving ideas.

I would welcome cards or letters with little ideas that add up to saving lots of time, and will print as many as space allows. Mail them to Organizing Techniques, 6165 Worlington, Birmingham 48010.

Dorothy Lehmkuhl is owner of Organizing Techniques and teaches time management and organizing through speeches, seminars, writing and consulting.

save energy

Use your dishwasher only when it is full. Turn it off when the final wash cycle is completed and open the door. Your dishes will air-dry. It's best to use your dishwasher in the cool of the evening.

The Crossings At Canton.

Apartment living just got better. We're making The Crossings a better place to live and a better value. You'll feel it in the new hallways and newly refurbished clubhouse. You'll see it in the lush landscaping when you enter the grounds. And that's just the beginning. It's the new look and feel of The Crossings at Canton - and it's for you.

The Crossings at Canton offers 19 different floor plans with 1 to 4 bedrooms. And whether you choose a 2-level townhome or a luxury apartment, the renewed beauty of this charming rental community shines through in every one - the result of our recent "Capital Improvement & Upgrading" program. These apartments and townhomes are the largest in the area, yet are still incredibly affordable.

Discover these features at The Crossings at Canton:

- Dens & Fireplaces
- Fully-applianced Kitchens
- Patios or Balconies
- Central Air Conditioning
- A Clubhouse with sauna, indoor pool, exercise room, a new party room, and more!

Visit The Crossings at Canton today. We're just 20 minutes from Ann Arbor and downtown Detroit, yet comfortably away from it all. From I-275, just exit Arbor Rd. West to Haggerty Rd., follow south to Joy Rd. then east to The Crossings. Open Mon.-Fri., 10-6, Sat. 10-5, Sun. 12-5. Phone 455-2424 today.

Looking at a new sub? Consider . . .

(AP) — Some brand new, still-on-the-drawing-board housing developments can convert even die-hard old house lovers.

For starters, you don't have to worry about buying something that has a leaking roof, a not-so-hot water heater or a moldy basement. You get spacious walk-in closets, better-designed kitchens and bathrooms, and enough electrical outlets.

At the same time, you're dropping a lot of money into something that's not even there yet — and may not be finished when you want to move in. You may not get what you ordered. Builders sometimes substitute materials and alter designs, a prerogative written into many new-house contracts.

If that sounds to you like a potential nightmare, you're reacting properly. Buying a not-yet-built home isn't like buying an existing one. It's harder, according to the editors of Changing Times magazine.

In short, you're not buying a piece of land and a house; you're buying a builder. More to the point, you're buying a builder's reputation.

In addition to making the usual checks with the Better Business Bureau and the local builders' association, you'll probably look at model homes. But when you see a model, keep in mind that you're looking at the builder's best effort, loaded with eye-catching "decorator's options," such as additional molding, custom lighting and special finishes on cupboards.

You'll also want to consider when in the construction cycle to buy. Prices may be lower when you buy a house that's built early on. In booming markets, houses often jump in $10,000 increments as a development is completed. But buy too early and you'll wind up living in a construction site for several years.

IF YOU WAIT, you may end up farther from the busy highway at the entrance or closer to the lake that was just a hole in the ground when the first buyers moved in. There's also less risk when you buy later. You can monitor the quality of the houses and watch how the neighborhood shapes up.

You put a contract on a new house just as you would on an existing house, except you face a lot more decisions.

If the market is active, you may be advised to put down a deposit on the lot immediately. Typically the deposit is 5 percent, but you may be able to bargain even in a competitive market. As with the purchase of an existing home, you should be able to get the deposit back if the deal falls through — because of financing, for example.

Then you and the selling agent hammer out the details of the contract. You pick the model you like and the options you want to add. If you are sitting in a model, you can point to things you want. Otherwise, you'll be using illustrations, brochures and samples of materials.

Joint owner can't cut off in-law

I hold title to some real estate with my brother-in-law. The deed says that we hold it as "joint tenants with full rights of survivorship." Can I convey my interest in the property, which I am told is a life estate, and cut off the interest of my brother-in-law upon my death?

condo queries

Robert M. Meisner

The answer is no. There is no rule prohibiting you from transferring your life estate interest in the property to someone else. On the other hand, your conveyance of your life estate to someone else would not destroy what is called a "contingent remainder" of the joint tenant who was holding the property with you. In other words, even if you convey your life estate to a friend, if that person dies before your brother-in-law, your brother-in-law will have legal title to all of the property. Simply put, upon the death of either of the original co-tenants, the other co-tenant, or any person to whom he has transferred his contingent remainder, takes the whole estate. The state Supreme Court has recently confirmed this conclusion and also has held that the joint life estate may be partitioned without affecting the contingent remainder. This simply means the property can be divided up during your lifetime but that does not affect the right of the contingent beneficiaries of the life estate to their interest in the property.

Our management company has just submitted a new contract with us in our condo, and they apparently have divested some of the partners and are in the process of forming a new corporation. Our present attorney has had some affiliation with the old management company in that it was responsible for sending him a number of accounts and, in fact, he had some business relationship with the management firm in that they were joint owners of a building, among other things. Several members of the board think that it is necessary to retain another attorney to review the new management contract to look into its legal and financial background. Do you think that is necessary?

You board is astute in ensuring that they will be free from any criticism on the part of the members of the association by retaining an independent attorney who has no affiliation with the management firm, either financial or proprietary. To the extent that the management company is responsible for the attorney receiving numerous accounts almost exclusively, and if the attorney has some business relationship with the management firm, the attorney may well be in a conflict of interest. Even if he or she is not, it may appear that he or she is and the best judgment of the attorney may be altered because of this financial relationship with the management firm. Prudence being the better part of valor, you have made the right decision in retaining someone who is totally independent of any tie-ins with the management firm.

My husband and I have found a condominium that we really like, but it is a cooperative condominium where we would own the condo but not the land. In the cooperative all property is owned by the corporation which is owned and operated by the members. We would lease the land and the lease is good for 99 years. It is a community of 55 years and older. Could you please tell me what is your opinion on such an arrangement?

Obviously, without reviewing the "Condominium Documents," it is hard for me to determine exactly what you are intending to purchase. It appears that you may be dealing with a leasehold condo wherein the land is not part of the condo project but it is being leased under a 99-year lease. You may be confused as to whether, in fact, it is a cooperative where all of the premises of the project are owned by the condo association. It may be that you are confused as to what you are intending to purchase. The best advice I can give you is to get a knowledgeable attorney to review the "Condominium Documents" in regard to the cooperation-condo-leasehold condo to determine exactly what you are thinking about purchasing and to give you an opinion in regard to it.

Robert M. Meisner is a Birmingham attorney specializing in condominiums, real estate and corporate law. You are invited to submit topics for this column by writing Robert M. Meisner, 30200 Telegraph Road, Suite 467, Birmingham 48010. This column provides general information and should not be construed as legal opinion.

TO GET A MORE realistic picture, go to a comparable subdivision also built by your builder. (Get subdivision names from the builder or the real estate section of your newspaper.) Visit folks who live there. Talk about quality and service. Ask the owners how long it took to complete each home and how many were delivered when promised.

Ask the builder what happens to unsold homes. Houses that are discounted to sell quickly can affect the value of the entire subdivision. As a result, builders try to avoid price-cutting, except perhaps on the final handful of units. In a slow market a builder may pay points on your mortgage.

As with existing homes, timing affects the price. You may find a slower market in the fall and winter. You probably won't be able to get a discount, but you may be able to negotiate for options like decks or carpet upgrades. The downside of buying during the winter: Landscaping would be delayed until spring. And it may be harder to maintain the quality of a house under construction during the cooler months.

YOU'LL WANT to consider how to pay for each option you choose. When the cost is lumped into your mortgage, it's easier to afford, but it's more expensive in the long run because it's amortized over three decades. If you add the options later, you save some interest, but some things are more difficult to add after the house is complete. Decks are easy; bay windows and bathrooms aren't.

You probably won't be able to get the builder to guarantee delivery on a specified date, for example, and there will be little you can do during construction of your house to keep the builder on schedule. But you can add a clause to your contract demanding that your house be built to the quality standards of the model.

Ask whether the home you're considering is covered by the Home Owners Warranty Corp. or another insurance plan. Such plans cover repairs for major construction defects and usually last for a period of 10 years. Builders pay the premiums for these insurance plans, but they remain in effect even if you sell the house.

GARAGE SALE

HOW TO DO A LITTLE BUSINESS ON YOUR OWN...

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own . . . but it takes a bit of planning. Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item . . . and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers . . . so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood . . . but you'll want a bigger crowd than that . . . so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

Pick up your free Garage Sale folder in our office when you place your ad! (Contains two signs, two arrows, a handy ledger, 14 tips for a successful sale and nine tips for a successful ad)
