THE WILLIAM D. Ford Vocational/Technical Center will once again accept tuition students from a variety of area school districts part fail.

The Wayne-Westland school board Monday approved a tuition agreemedt with (Allen Park) Cabrisi High School. The three-year contract follows a one-year pilot agreement that elapsed last spring.

Other districts sending students to the center include public schools in Allen Park, Crestwood and Melvindale.

Under the agreement, students from other districts fill vacant seats in vocational/technical programs only after Wayne-Westland students have been accommodated.

Abandoned eyesores top mayor's hit list

By Tedd Schneider staff writer

Progress has been slower than he expected, but Mayor Robert Thomas intends to push hard until nearly five dozen abandoned, vacant city buildings are razed.

The buildings, mostly residential, are an eyesore and many present a safety hazard in their neighborhoods, Thomas said.

"It's a frustrating process," the mayor said of the program he initiated last spring. "The courts have placed municipalities in a position where they have to prove they've given (property) owners every means of notice before tearing a building down."

A burned out, abandoned home on the 1500 block of S. Hambleton was scheduled for demolition Thursday, but that action has been delayed until the end of the month, according to the mayor's office.

The last single-family residential house in the city's downtown business district was scheduled for razing to-day. City officials obtained a permit to tear the abandoned home on the 36500 block of Warren Road last month, but action was delayed when the Westland Jaycees made a last-minute bid to buy the property, Thomas said.

The city decided against the offer.

Anti-tax sign draws vandalism, jeers

By Tedd Schneider staff writer

Members of a Hunter Street family say they're being unfairly punished for their political views— a month after a Wayne-Westland school tax increase was defeated by district voters.

Steve Mexicotte, 24, said his family's house on the 34600 block of Hunter has been vandalized several times since the June 11 election by groups of high school-aged youths.

The most recent incident was July 9, when vandals threw a beer bottle through a kitchen window and caused $150 in damage to the property, according to a police report.

The family believes they were targeted by angry students after they placed a large sign against the millage on their front lawn. The sign says "No" in large letters and "June 11" in smaller letters.

Their home is directly across the street from Edison Elementary School, which was a voting precinct on election day.

"That's when it started," said Steve's mother, Pat Mexicotte, who has lived in the house since 1971. "Before that we've never had a problem here."

"We keep pretty much to ourselves. I don't hardly know the neighbors," she said.

Teenagers have been disrupting the neighborhood, the Mexicottes said, by squealing their car tires, yelling obscenities and loitering after midnight almost daily since the election.

Resident faces charges in shoe store robbery, chase

By Joe Bouman staff writer

James Steven Hart of Westland was one of two people charged Tuesday with robbing at guspoint an employee of the Pic Way shoe store at Middlebelt and Joy roads in Livonia.

turb the neighborhood, one family says.

Hart, 22, pleaded not guilty to the charge before 16th District Court Judge James McCann, as well as to a second charge of violating the state's felony firearms law.

A second suspect, Henry William Ramires, 21, of Clearwater, Fla., is charged with a single count of armed robbery in connection with the July 9 incident. Ramires also pleaded not guilty.

Both men are being held at the Wayne County Jail in lieu of $100,000 cash bonds pending preliminary examinations scheduled for July 19 before district court Judge Robert Breezinski.

HART AND Ramirez are charged with robbing the shoe store and then leading police on a wild car chase that ended in the city of Inkster.

The pair had been followed from Hart's Westland home by a police surveillance team after police received a tip that Hart had been involved in a series of armed robberies in Livonia, Westland and Inkster.

A third man was arrested at the same residence a short time later but released from custody after a witness in another robbery could not positively identify him as being involved in the holdup, Livonia police Detective Sgt. Jose Bartlett said.

Livonia schools set to acquire new property

By Joe Bauman staff writer

It appears the Livonia Public Schools will have a much easier time accepting a piece of city-owned property than the Livonia City Council had offering the parcel for We're very appreciative of the fact the city was good enough to give us the first shot at the property instead of going through the bidding process," said Art Howell, director of operations for the school district, which serves the northern portion of Westland.

We have three vacant lots right now, but with the scarcity of property in the city we are always anxious to build a surplus."

HOWELL IS responsible for buying lots to use in the district's building trades pro-

Students build houses on the sites and then sell them on the open market. The proceeds from one sale are used to buy the land and building materials for the next house.

"We've been doing this for about seven years and it has been a successful program," Howell sald. "It gives the kids hands-on experience while adding reasonably priced homes to a market that is quite short on housing stock."

The council, in a split 4.3 vote, opted to offer the parcel to the district rather than sell it on the open market or keep the property for future use.

The council action was opposed by the city administration, which recommended? the lot be kept for use in the city's housing assistance program. The 60-foot-wide parcel is on Lamont in the Golden Gate Subdivision near Minton

Howell said he is waiting for the city to have the property appraised before he makes a specific recommendation to the and Lamont.

"If the appraisal is in the ballpark my recommendation to the board will be favorable. The cost of the land will be reflected in the selling price of the home once it is completed."

Howell said the school district owns three vacant lots on W. Chicago that also were bought from the city.

"If we do get the Lamont property we might develop that one next because of its proximity to Churchill High School, where the building trades class is located."

THE VOCATIONAL education students build four different style of homes in an effort to have the new house blend in with the surrounding area, Howell said.

"We just finished a nice ranch home that is on the market for about $75,000. We never have a problem selling the houses because there is such a great shortage of housing in Livonia.

"We are always eager to find vacant lots for sale because the worst situation to be in is having a program but no property to de-first choice for the property, council members Ron Ochala, Laura Toy and Joan McCotter argued the city should at least determine first whether the district wanted the property. Ochala also said he concurred with the administration recommendation to keep the property for the housing assistance program, which provides single-family residential housing for lower income residents. Leading the debate to offer the property to the district was councilman Fernon Feenstra, who was joined in support of the plan by council members Robert Bishop. Dale Jurcisin and Gerald Taylor.

The city had also received purchase proposals from three residents that the council. rejected in offering the site to the schools.

Mayor pushes to demolish eyesores

A WOMAN WHO lives across the street from the Hambleton home said Thursday she would be happy to see the house razed so its former occupants wouldn't return.

"Even after the (December, 1988) fire they came back for a while at night drinking and partying," said the woman, who asked not to be identified.

The dilapidated, white two-story frame home with a detached garage is blocked off by a knee-high, single strand barbed wire. The first-floor windows have been removed. The lot is filled with overgrown weeds, but relatively free of debris.

Several families with young children live around the corner on Cady, but the woman said she couldn't recall seeing any kids playing on the property.

Another neighbor said Friday she has made repeated complaints to city half about the house. The wornan said its occupants smashed one of her windows when they learned she complained about the property.

Kids get into the basement at the school and it's filled with water," Thomas said. "We've already been in there twice to pump it out." A group of neighborhood homeowners has been fighting to raze the vacant school since the mid-1980s. Livonia Public Schools sold the building to Westland after building a new school across the street in 1966. The city has been struggling with the former Urban Cowboy (nee Poison Apple, nee New Trend) since shortly after its closing in 1984.

The vacant nightclub is owned by Alice Sassak of Las Cruces, N.M., who received the building as part of her 1984 divorce settlement with Livonia-based entertainment entrepreneur John Sassak.

cop calls

POLICE believe two burglaries reported Wednesday by adjacent residents at the Westwood Village Apartments, off Joy and John Hix, were probably committed by the same culprit. The break-ins occurred approximately the same time and the robber appears to have used the same method of entry, officers said. One resident reported $800 cash. two fur coats, a one-carat diamond ring and a videocassette recorder

Missing from the other apartment were $100 in quarters, a VCR and portable stereo-compact disc player, according to police reports. Rooms were ransacked in both apartments.

The first resident sald the break-in at her unit occurred between 7:40 a.m. and 3 p.m. while the second victim said her apartment was burglarized between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

The culprit used a prying instrument, possibly a screw driver, to open dead bolts to both front doors, police said.

TWO CARS were reported stolen from the city's south side in separate incidents last week. A Wayne woman told police her 1987 Chevrolet station wagon was stolen from the K mart parking lot,

Wayne Road south of Cherry Hill, Tuesday.

The car was stolen between 6:30 and 7 p.m. while she was shopping, the woman said.

A resident of the 1600 block of Regene reported her 1985 Pontlac 6000 sedan stolen from Farragut and Harvey late Tuesday or early Wednesday.

The woman said she left the locked car near the intersection at 9 p.m. because of mechanical problems. When she returned at 10 a.m. the car was gone, she said.

POLICE apprehended three youths early Wednesday after they were spotted lighting fireworks from the roof of P.D. Graham Elementary School, 1255 S. John Hix.

A neighbor called police about 2 a.m. when he saw the youths in back of the school. A few moments later the neighbor said he noticed what appeared to be a fire on the school roof.

When police arrived they found 14-year-old twin brothers and a 13year-old companion on the roof. Police said they confiscated several fireworks and a plastic container that smelled of gasoline from the

What's hot (petunias), what's not (the weather) and what's next (who knows?).

The plant and flower business, like nearly everything else these days, is dominated by fads, say the owners of a Garden City greenhouse that has been around a decidedly un-faddish 49 years.

"The perennials (like petunias) are a big item because they come back year after year and don't require a lot of attention," said Joe Barson of Barson's Greenhouse on Maplewood at Merriman.

"People are more into spending time on their boats or whatever. They don't have as much time for their yards," he said.

But they still want their property to look nice. That's why Joe and Debbie Barson stay in business.

The Barsons bought the greenhouse from its longtime owners the Summerfield family - in 1980. Before that it was owned by three farmers (Joe Barson doesn't remember their names) who operated it as a "carnation ranch" during

What are influences of pupil achievement

Q: I teach high school social studies. I love teaching and I work at it. Sometimes I get upset for constantly being blamed for the lack of student achievement on national standardized tests. Some of my students don't do their homework, don't bring their books to class making me feel like a babysitter at times. I believe there dent achievement. What are the major factors that influence student achievement? Are teachers entirely the blame?

A: To answer your question, I reviewed the research on non-instructional or non-teacher influences on high school student achievement. The major finding didn't surprise me at all; some of the other findings did.

Students who perform well in school are raised in homes by parents who are supportive of their children, yet demanding. They encourage and expect academic achievement by their children and are able to transmit this expectation in a loving, caring manner.

They have kept involved in their school one way or another. At'a minimum they, at least, attend their children's teacher/parent conferences. These parents know what's going on. Whether they like it or not is an-

We've all heard of the great impact of peer group influence. Well, peer influence, according to this major study, was found to be far less influential than the parent influence over the "long haul."

Indeed, the peer group influence that was observed (except in totally allenated adolescent groups) tended to encourage their friends to achieve rather than discourage or bad-mouth student achievement.

So we shouldn't lay the blame on youth as each previous generation historically has. Indeed, it seems the only time our youth are of any value is when there is a war to fight. Most interesting is the impact of the single parent or working mother in regards to their children achievement. Generalities are often made that "Johnny" doesn't achieve be-cause he is a product of a working mother or single parent.

> Part-time employment seems to carry an academic price for many students. In general, those students who work more than 15 hours a week (especially on school days) are adversely affected in their academic performance. This was especially evident for the sophomores and juniors who then struggle as seniors to improve their grades for college entrance or just to graduate.

Challenges gun half truths

To the editor:

I had to respond to a recent letter castigating the National Rifle Association for its ". . . unrelenting opposition to any and all gun control

... " The writer then goes on to recite the usual litany of half truths perpetrated by the professional gun control advocates.

My concern is that if these half truths are not challenged, people begin to ascribe validity to them. For example, the allegation that the NRA was opposed to legislation regulating the so-called "cop-killer" bullet (a name designed for maximum propaganda benefit, since there is not one reported case of this type of ammunition ever being used against a police officer).

The NRA was opposed to the initial draft of the legislation because it would have also outlawed most types of sporting ammunition. After the NRA proposed legislation (the language that was finally passed by Congress) that would have outlawed only the ammunition in question, the gun control proponents became very silent on the issue. It would make you wonder what was the original intent of the initial draft.

I'm not going to rebut each of the other equally misleading allegations. Instead I will offer the writer some insight into the reason for the NRA's "unrelenting opposition." Handgun Control Inc. (HCI) members have made it clear that their goal is the total elimination of legal ownership of firearms. It makes no sense for the NRA (or anyone else) to consider giving any ground toward that type of attack on constitutional liberties.

Readers need to consider only one thing to figure out where they should stand.' The NRA consistently and clearly states its position and its reasons, while the groups like HCI consistently demonstrate that they will use any means possible, including a clear pattern of intentional misinformation, to achieve their ends.

Do you want to line up with people willing to take sometimes unpopular. To the editor: stands to defend freedoms, or people who will use any means available to take those freedoms away?

Don't need more money

To the editor:

It's only been a few weeks since the Clarenceville School District's election. An election in which the voters sent a clear message to the board - no Headlee waiver and no more money!

The June 25 issue of The Observer reveals the real reason why the board wanted the added money: to add three more administrators. It does not make sense to add more administrators to a system with declining enrollment.

While the board does not have the money to hire all three, it still plans to hire a math/science coordinator. This person is supposed to research current programs and coordinate

If I am not mistaken, we had a similar "crisis" during the Sputnik era of the early '60s. People were pushing for more math and science in the schools.

Representatives of teachers and other school officials often meet among themselves to discuss ways to improve the curriculum. With this simple joining of hands we have advanced more than we had dreamed possible.

The question is why do we need to spend more money for more adminletter and let their elected officials istration when all we need is for

This is in response to the letter 30 from Arlene Victor of Birmingham that was in the July 2 Observer & Eccentric. -

She states that plastic handguns are undetectable by radar (its X- 53 rays). They are detectable by airport X-rays on a normal setting.

Ms. Victor also wants more gun laws. There are already over 20,000 laws on the books relating to background checks, waiting periods, registration and every thing to do with guns already. Adding more will not help. The courts need to use the ones they have.

I wish to express my heartfelt ... thanks and admiration to the parents ... who planned and organized the allnight party at Livonia Franklin High following graduation.

The decorations, games and prizes were fabulous. It was evident that """ many parents put in hours, probably too numerous to count. I thoroughly enjoyed my 2:30-4:30

On July 9, three cars drove up about 11 p.m., according to the police report.

Steve Mexicotte said he and a friend were watching television in the living room when they saw youths get out of two of the cars, tear the porch light from the front of the house and knock down the mailbox.

The beer bottle came sailing through the window as the cars took off, he said.

Mexicotte's friend told police he recognized the youths as John Glenn High School students.

John Glenn principal Dr. James Myers said Thursday he wasn't aware of the incidents. "If they are students - or adults - doing vandalism than they should be charged,"

'Madonna U' is considered

By C. L. Rugenstein . 5 staff writer

Form follows function.

In the case of Livonia's Madonna College, officials believe the college has been functioning as a university for years. That form could soon be reflected in a change of status and name.

"We've broadened beyond this campus," said Sister Mary Francilene, president of Madonna, which seeks university status.

"The scope of program offerings we have, the size of the student population and the level of preparation, added. of our faculty is very similar to that of a university. It encourages us to recognize the (institutional) level Madonna has achieved."

Reaction to the change has been favorable so far, according a preliminary survey of the faculty by the college's University Study Task torate degrees. Porce.

"The results were positive - it was a way of introducing the change, and if (the faculty) had any concerns or wanted to produce input, to do so." said Sister Francilene.

A more comprehensive survey will be sent to 14,000 alumni, friends and benefactors in the August Issue of the school's quarterly report, "Madonna Now." That's the one the task force will be looking for.

Results from that and their recommendations on the change will be ered by the task force, a lot of col-

January 1991.

"WE'VE HAD several meetings so far," said the Rev. John Sajdak, task force member and assistant professor of philosophy at Madonna. "The main question was: 'What is the difference? between a college and a university?'"

The differences between a college and a university are not formally nailed down, Sajdak said. "It seems to be extremely fluid," he said.

It depends on the accrediting association to which a college belongs, he

Generally, universities are considered to be broader in scope, offering several areas of study, master's degrees and three doctorate degree

Universities must also have a certain percentage of faculty with doc-

A university can consist of several colleges. Madonna's five major divisions could become individual colleges — of nursing, business, humanities, science and technology and social sciences - with a change to university status. In all, Madonna offers 50 different programs including one for for the handicapped, within the five divisions. Colleges generally offer only a baccalaureate degree, with no post graduate programs.

According to information gathpresented to the board of trustees in leges call themselves universities. despite that distinction, said Saidak.

The main cause of concern for some faculty members was the perception of universities as primarily research institutions.

Said Dr. Leon Levitt, chairman of the management, marketing and economics department, "I think their fears are groundless. Our philosophy as a teaching institution would not change."

Sr. Francilene said they would request faculty members to do more research but, "it would be subservient" to teaching and liberal arts.

Greater prestige and the opportunity for wider support are among the advantages of changing from college to university status said Sr. Franci-

It would also give the school higher visibility to attract more students, nationally and internationally."

"Most foreign countries define 'college' as being more a vocational school, and a two-year school in form.'

Madonna currently has an exchange program with Lansdowne College in London, England, and is looking to expand its international outreach.

"IN THE graduating class this year we recognized we had students graduating from 15 other nations," including India, Cameroon, Tanzania and Nigeria, sald Sr. Rose Marle.

Another characteristic of universitles is that they write a lot of grants for funding.

Last year the college won a grant over 12 other colleges to provide an on-site bachelor of science degree program at Michigan Bell in Southfield. Madonna faculty travel to the site where 300 people are enrolled in the program.

They Just won a Title III Strengthening Institutions Programs grant from the U.S. Department of Education to subsidize doctoral studies by faculty members.

A disadvantage of the change is concern that the school would be lost in bureaucracy and become impersonal, said Sr. Francilene.

"We want to continue with the staff, faculty and students working closely together," to maintain the intimate campus atmosphere.

If the board of trustees approves the status change in January, the school will have to apply to two other sources: the state board of education, and the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools, the national accrediting organization for this region. Both must also approve the change of status.

"MOST PEOPLE seem to be in favor (of the change) as long as it doesn't mean some sort of radical change from what we've been doing," Sajdak said. "The feeling is we've been doing the work of a university, all we have to do is change the name."

Sr. Francilene added, "People say Madonna is one of the best-kept secrets around. Well, it's time for the secret to be out."

Governor talks taxes, schools

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Gov. James Blanchard stressed his property tax reform package Friday, in an appearance before local city and township leaders.

But it was the "other" part of the plan - a proposal for giving more state money to less wealthy school districts - that caused the most concern.

Blanchard said his plan, limiting school property taxes to the rate of inflation, was the most responsible of the numerous tax-limiting plans under discussion in the state Capi-

"This is a very substantial proposal." Blanchard said.

In other comments, the governor said he would lean toward an equity plan that would take away increases in state money already given to wealthier, out-of-formula school districts and distribute it among less-financially secure informula districts.

In-formula districts don't receive state aid for direct classroom expenses, but they do receive money for 29 "categorical" pro-

"I'VE ALWAYS felt the idea of cutting distributions (altogether) would be a mistake," Blanchard

Cutting increases means that system.

wealthier districts, like Livonia, South Redford and Plymouth-Canton, could lose additional state aid for employees' Social Security benefits and pensions, as well as other select programs.

Losing any or all of that aid is a concern for those districts.

"I'm really in a quandary," said state Rep. Justine Barns, D-Westland, whose district includes portions of the out-of-formula Livonia and in-formula Wayne-Westland schools.

"LIVONIA SAYS don't take away from us but give them (Wayne-Westland) more from someplace else," Barns said. "But" where do you find that money?"

Barns, like Blanchard, addressed the Conference of Western Wayne legislative forum Friday in Dearborn. Livonia, Westland, Redford, Garden City, Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton are conference members.

In other comments, Blanchard continued to boost a state constitutional amendment that would dedicate lottery money to schools.

Though lottery money already goes to schools, the governor said, mandating it through a constitutional amendment would restore taxpayer confidence in the lottery

TRAVELING If you have arthitis and are traveling this summer, reconsider precepts of home care; they may not be sensible

For instance, take the use of wheelchairs. The rule is that you should walk whenever possible. However, when traveling, often the reverse is better

In airports, wheelchairs allow you to keep up with your companions and carry your personal fuggage without undue strain. Advice that you can make up for extra effort with the prolonged sitting that accompanies flying, is in error. Seating is cramped, and airport chairs are too low to offer a respite from joint discomfort and fatigue.

If you travel by plane, ask to board first so you will not be forced to hurry on board. Plan to depart last so you will not be harried by impatient exiting passengers. Try to arrange an aisle seat. Then, if flying conditions permit, you can walk the aisle every 30-40 minutes with no disturbance to others, The same is true for tours. If you are to enjoy museums, churches or famous buildings, you must be spared the strain and ache that can accompany you when walking. If possible, go on the tour by wheelchair. To quote Andy Warhol, "Everyone is famous for 15 minutes," Quite frequently I will be standing in line at the grocery store or walking through a mall and getstopped by folks like you who usually say, "You don't look at all like the picture that runs every Monday."

Being almost six foot seven, with weight apportioned to height, I get noticed. Come to think of it, it's kind of hard not to get noticed when you're my size. Yes it is true that I get paid to eat. It's a tough assignment, but somebody has to do it.

But you don't have to be a cardcarrying, 98-pound wimp to enjoy tea sandwiches. You know what I'm talking about. Those frilly little sandwiches that used to have their crusts removed and were spread with the likes of watercress, cream cheese, avocado and other tasty fillings and were more commonly enjoyed during Gatsby-era garden parties.

Tea sandwiches are experiencing a rebirth and once again are finding their way to the trays of experienced hosts and hostesses around metro Detroit. At one time only reserved for serving with tea, these demure little sandwiches are now making headway in upscale picnic baskets and coolers all over town. But forget the boiled ham slices and olive loaf - these sandwiches are being stuffed with unusual mixtures that will please the palates of 8 to 80-year-olds.

THE FILLINGS have pretty much stayed the same, with the usual watercress and pate-like ground meats. What has taken on a noticeable change are the wrappings.

Gone are the days of Wonder bread slices trimmed of their crusts. Instead we have stone ground wheats, fortified ryes that could accompany a hearty winter soup, delicate sourdoughs and crusted French baguettes. Pita bread triangles closed with frilly elongated wooden toothpicks and soft corn and flour tortillas are presently the rage - not to be outdone by footlong sub-type sandwiches that have the eater slicing off a desired wedge with a wooden-handled, serrated bread knife.

Pair these little finger sandwiches with a bag of chilled grapes and a few slices of imported cheese, and today's kitchen culinarian can wrap up a tasty lunch or light dinner with minimal exertion and maximum raves from any who partake. You don't have to be Upper-East-Side Manhattanish and supply china cups and plates. A few bottles of trendy German beers or wine coolers or a randomly picked assortment of sparkling waters can do for these sandwiches what $60 per pound tea would do.

The Janes Gang got pretty tired of ironing our red and white checked damask picnic tablecloth and instead switched to a brightly colored flat sheet on which to spread the repast. To keep the picnic basket as light as possible for traveling, the sandwiches can bither be stacked in plastic containers lined with lettuce leaf or, for a little added presentation, wrapped in pastel-colored tissue and tied with thin matching ribbons.

WHEN IT COMES to fillings for the assortment of breads, it's best to remember that anything that travels should not have mayonnaise or salad dressing, which spoil easily. Always remember to "keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold."

For a pesty alternative to mayonnaise, try a blend of four parts imported mustard to one part olive oil. This will act as a stabiliser when trying to bold chopped meets and poultry inside a sand-

Simply, a whole fish or fish fillets are poached by submerging them into a flavored liquid. Bring the liquld to a quick boil, then reduce the temperature to a lower heat. The liquid can be plain water or sea water. Most often the liquid is a mixture of water, vinegar, wine or milk, seasoned with herbs or vegetables, commonly known in the culinary world as a court bouillon.

FOR DECADES, the classic French chefs recommended adding fish bones and trimmings to the court bouillon, which then becomes a fish fumet.

The reason was that the strongflavored liquid could be strained after poaching and used as a base to make an aspic or a sauce to glaze the chilled fish. Many of the "young" chefs of the '90s prefer to season the court bouillon with a variety of flavors, depending on the variety of

> IF YOU OWN a heavy-gauge fish careful that the fish you select fits comfortably on the poaching rack. If you don't own a fish poacher, whole fish can be prepared in a long or oblong, covered roasting pan fitted with a removable rack.

> Ideally, when preparing the fish for poaching, the head and tail should be intact, and evisceration should be done through the gills. Most of the time, fish markets open the abdominal cavity completely. In that case, you will need to wrap the fish in two layers of rinsed cheesecloth.

Once the fish is wrapped, set it on the fitted rack and lower into the cold court boullion. Place the poacher over medium-low heat, making sure the pan is centered on the front and rear burner on top of the stove. Bring the liquid to a boil. As soon as the liquid begins to boil, reduce the temperature. It is best to keep the temperature of the poaching liquid between 180 and 200 degrees.

There are three techniques to use when judging the doneness of the fish. I like to use all three in combiation. The standard test was developed by the Canadian Department of Fisheries. It recommends measuring the thickness of the fish before cooking at the thickest point. Allow 10 minutes of cooking time for every inch. The perfect internal temperature of cooked fish should measure 140 degrees.

A small, instant meat thermometer works well, without puncturing a large section. Any fish, whether poached or baked, should barely flake when pricked with a fork. Gen-

Frozen yogurt: Choices keep growing

By Larry Janes special writer

Remember the old saying,"I scream, you scream, we all scream for ice cream?" Well, that might have been the norm years back, but with the proliferation of yogurt shops sprouting up faster than summer weeds, move over ice cream, here comes something a little healthier and with a lot less fat.

roasting pan with removable rack.

Unless you've been living in the boonies with your head stuck in a cool Michigan foundation basement, you must have tried frozen yogurt. While a trip to the ice cream store of yesteryear offered a choice of chocolate, vanilla, strawberry and an occasional blue moon hand-dipped ice cream in a funnel-shaped, creamy yellow cone for just pocket change, today's ice cream shops are changing fast.

Most ice cream shops offer choices of hand-dipped ice cream, softserve ice cream, frozen yogurt and, now, even new nonfat frozen yogurt. Before, it was shoved into a cone or plopped into a shiny, stainless steel. bleached white-paper-cup-lined bowl. Period. Now it can be a plain cone, sugar cone, waifle cone, bowled, flurried, avalanched, dipped and drizzled with everything from carameled walnuts to crushed Orece. And the list keeps growing.

Take, for example, Sandro Scopone and his newly opened Polo Yogert and Cafe on Seven Mile Road just west of Farmington Road in Livonia. Forget about the megabucks that went into the sleek contemporary decor, Scopone wants his spent a weekend in Grand Rapids shop to feature what he thinks is the best frozen yogurt money can buy, Honey Hill Farms.

BEFORE OPENING, Scopone and his partner, Tony D'Orazio, sampling 30 to 40 different brands of yogurt (some of us have it rough, eh?) only to decide on the Honey Hill Farms brand because of its rich taste, creamy texture and tasty sugar-free offerings. Knowing that man does not live by ice cream and frozèn yogurt alone, Scopone also imported a classic espresso/cappuccino machine direct from Italy for what has to be the finest demitasse cup of imported coffee in town. All of this is in addition to the 12 flavor options of Guernsey Dairy handpacked ice cream.

The flavors at Polo Yogurt change: weekly but there's always the standard chocolate, vanilla and two; more flavors in addition to two sugar-free frozen yogurt options. Rumor has it that soon Polo also will branch out to light dell offerings and homemade soups.

But what's really new in frozen yogurt offerings? Alan Bell, sales i manager for Frosty Yogurt Products in Troy, says that the future holds some interesting twists. With the introduction of Olestra and Simplesse, fat substitutes without the fat, coupled with Nutra Sweet, consumers: can look for bealthier options with reduced calories and better taste.

Health-conscious consumers soon will be able to partake of soft-serve; frozen yogurt containing only 10 & calories an ounce. That works out to a 50-calorie cone in flavors that would have Mae West asking for more. In addition, Bell claims the hottest item in frozen yogurt on the West Coast is self-serve ice cream and from yogurt shops. Self-serve is already flourishing in many grocery stores. Customers soon will be able to serve themselves, get just what they wanted and pay by the pound, contrasted to being served by a pony-tailed teen.

Always looking over his shoulder and trying to keep up with customer requests is Evans Spyros, owner of Hugley's, in Orchard Place mall just south of 14 Mile on Orchard Lake

Following are some tips for ethnic . it's swimming in oil. eating so you don't have to let out your belt another notch.

CHINESE FOOD generally has a low-calorie reputation. However, it can be high in fat because of the amount of oil used for stir-frying or deep-frying.

Starting your meal with a good low-fat soup will also help curb your appetite,

Duck dishes are usually high in fat, so choose chicken or seafood. The wonderful thing about Chinese cooking is that almost all their dishes can be made with any kind of Eat a generous amount of steamed rice and therefore limit the amount of the entree.

Choose dishes that are boiled, steamed or lightly stir-fried rather than sauteed in oil. Ask the waiter/ waitress about the cooking technique for the foods.

Because of cholesterol, limit the egg foo yung dishes and lobster sauces. These are made with egg yolks. Many Chinese restaurants will be happy to make your dish without monosodium glutamate (MSG) or without salt, and serve the soy sauce on the side.

GREEK FOOD IS generally prepared with generous amounts of olive oil, which is a monounsaturated fat (the good kind).

But still look for menu choices not loaded down with oil. Pita bread, tzatziki and feta cheese are lower in fat. (Feta can be high in sodium.)

Tomato sauces are rich in vitamin C. and many recipes call for low-fat burritos and enchiladas. Eat as seafood and lots of vegetables, tomatoes, onlons and beans.

PASTA, TYPICAL Italian fare, can be great for low-fat diets as long as you limit the cheese, meat, butter and cream sauces.

Even though olive oil is used for

When eating at the local ethnic many Italian dishes, this oil still contains about the same amount of calories (120) per tablespoon as any other kind of fat.

Limit the antipasto, expecially if Choose linguini with white or red sauce, or marsala, which is made with wine, or marinara, which is made with tomatoes, onions ard garlic. Don't forget the Italian ices, for a low-fat low calorie dessert.

JAPANESE CUISINE has a large selection of low-fat dishes. Seafood and lots of vegetables are the mainstay of many recipes. Many dishes are made with tofu, which is a very nutritious alternative to meat.

Ask for sauces on the side and ask about the preparation method. Soy sauce is a standard ingredient in Japanese cooking. At 343 milligrams per teaspoon, go easy.

Indian food is an exotic, vegetarian delight. The exotic spices turn these dishes into tempting treats with limited calories.

However, steer clear of coconut milk and opt for yogurt rather than cream-based dishes. Indian Mulligatawny (vegetable soup) is a great way to start the meal.

MEXICAN FOOD IS not off limits to a dieter, but keep it simple. Try rice and beans. They are high in flber, low in fat and a great vegetable protein.

Many Mexican dishes use whole grains such as tortillas, which are made from corn. Make sure they are baked and not fried.

Request cheese, sour cream and guacamole served on the side so you can control the amount.

Good choices are chicken tacos, much lettuce, tomato and salsa topping as your stomach can handle. Refried beans are sometimes fried in lard, so ask the server about the preparation.

Try to pass up the fried ice cream dessert, or share this dessert with your dinner companion.

Seafood and berries make meal special

Although Mrs. Paul's Fish Sticks were frequent finger food fare when my sons were younger, today they can still be a bit skittish when it comes to eating seafood. While lobster, shrimp and anything they catch are sure to be happily and quickly consumed, there are other kinds of fish that they simply don't touch. Anything served with skin is immediately suspect, and if the entire head is still on, forget it.

This week's Winner Dinner features a recipe for Seafood Fettucine that is made with scallops, shrimp and pasta. Submitted by Gail Silverman of West Bloomfield, it is one of her favorite meals as it is easily put together at the last minute, and her three children love the mild taste of the seafood mixed in with the pasta. Served with a mock Caesar salad, crescent rolls and strawberry shortcake, this dinner promises to be a swimming success for you and your family as well.

A trained medical assistant, Silverman works in a pediatrician's office one day a week. During the school year, she does a lot of volunteer work at her children's school. Green Elementary. Her-boys recently finished their baseball season, which kept their family busy four nights a week. They are now enjoying a slower, more relaxed pace as they swing into summer.

Like so many women today, Silverman finds that her days are full and busy ones, and keep her on the go with little time to cook. Her husband periodically pitches in, though, and takes over the kitchen, creating wonderful stir-fried creations . . . and more than a few dirty pots and pans. Thank you, Gail Silverman, for being our Winner Dinner winner of the week. Wishing you and your family all the best, I hope that you have a super summer.

AS A LAST note, just as there is a "Live-Aid," "First-Aid," and "Farm-Aid," it is my sincere hope that you might consider this column to be a kind of "Meal-Aid" for those nights when dinner is still nothing but a figment of your imagination at 5

SEAFOOD FETTUCINE

Light and refreshing, this dish is easy to prepare and is versatile enough to be served-to company as well as to your family,

As a timesaving hint, cook and peel the shrimp and scallops in advance for an even faster preparation time. This recipe amply serves six.

1 pound fresh shrimp (imitation crab legs make an excellent substitute for those who don't eat seafood.) 1 pound bay scallops

1 tablespoon salt 1-2 tablespoons olive oil

1/2 cup butter 2-3 tablespoons lemon juice Fresh parsley

1 package fettucine (12-ounce size)

Microwave the shrimp on high for three minutes, then half turn and continue for another three minutes. Repeat this procedure with the scallops.

If you don't have a microwave, drop the shrimp into boiling water, reduce the heat at once and simmer 3-4 minutes. Repeat for the scallops. Peel and develo the shrimp and wash well. If the scallops are large, cut them in halfand rinse. Refrigerate until mixed in with the pasta.

While the shrimp and scallops are cooking, add salt and olive oil to water in a large pot and bring to a boil.

Add the fettucine and cook according to package directions. Drain well. Melt butter and add lemon julce and mix with the pasta. Add the seafood to the pasta mixture.

Sprinkle with chopped parsley and season to taste. Garnish with Parmesan cheese and serve.

MOCK CAESAR SALAD

Real bacon bits add a subtle variation to this classic salad.

1 large egg, coddled 1 clove garlle, minced

½ cup oil 2 tablespoons real bacon bits

1 cup (approximately) grated Parmesan cheese

1 tablespoon temon juice 1 head romaine lettuce Pinch of salt Pinch of pepper

With the exception of the bacon and lettuce, whisk together the above ingredients. This dressing is best at room temperature. Tear the lettuce into small pieces, wash well and spin dry. Add the dressing just before serving and garnish with the bacon bits.

CRESCENT ROLLS 2 packages (or eight rolls) of Pillsbury Crescent Rolls, prepared as directed

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

What's summer without this classic dessert?

1 package shortcake dessert

1 small container Cool Whip 1 quart fresh strawberries, washed and hulled 1/4 cup sugar (optional)

Defrost the Cool Whip as directed. Clean and prepare the strawberries and sprinkle with the sugar. Mash the berries down with a fork to help bring out the juices. Just before serving, dollop the Cool Whip onto the dessert cups. Arrange the strawberries on top and enjoy.

"We Put It All Back Together

Grilled foods and wine easy to put together

Summer meal planning usually means light, refreshing menus to take advantage of the outdoors.

Evening cookouts that allow you and your guests to kick back and bask in the waning rays of sun call for light, crisp, well-chilled wines that emphasize bright fruit flavors.

Grilling on the deck is fun and low-key because food preparation is simple and may be shared by friends and family. It is comforting to know that wine selection is also easy because there are few bad matches when pairing grilled foods and wine.

There are a few things to remember, since it is easy for the selected wine to be overwhelmed by the intense flavors of grilled meats and vegetables.

ALWAYS TRY TO balance both the weight and texture of wine and Serve white and light red wines cool. Chilled wines are more refreshing and tend to contrast well with smoky, grilled fare. Select white wines that show some spice and red wines with low tannin. Light red wines are fruity and refreshing when lightly chilled. This is not the time to serve a big red wine at room tem-

White wine suggestions include dry, Alsace riesling, pinot blanc or gewurztraminer, as well as the trocken orhalb-trocken styles from Germany. Sauvignon blanc from Sancerre in France's Loire Valley or California have the acidity needed to cut through most flavors from the grill.

Chardonnays emphasizing fresh fruit and high acidity are less expensive and more versatile than their oaky, barrel-fermented counterparts. We suggest chardonnays from France (Macon or Chablis), California or Michigan. Do not spend megabucks on a reserve-style chardonnay for a barbecue.

Red wines that can be chilled emphasize fruit rather than tannin. Included are French Beaujolais or Cotes du Rhone, Italian Dolcetto or Barbera, and California pinot noir, gamay beaujolais or merlot, plus lighter-style cabernet sauvignon and

Eleanor and Ray Heald

THE TEXTURE AND smokiness of grilled tuna, swordfish or salmon make great companions for fruity red wines with good acidity like Beaujolais, pinot noir or merlot, even when seasoned with herbs like basil, fennel or fresh cilantro. Yes, you read that correctly - red wine with fish.

Sauvignon blanc is a particular favorite for summertime entertaining. It has plenty of flavor and a palatecleansing acidity that make it great for grilled breast of chicken. Because sauvignon blanc has a natural herbal note, it can handle fresh herb seasoning. A fruity-style sauvignon blanc is fabulous with grilled chicken salad garnished with melon and fresh cilantro.

Grilled chicken, seafood, turkey and game birds make attractive contrasts for dry riesling, pinot blanc and gewurztraminer from Alsace. These wines show good acidity and attractive floral and spice aromatics. Even salty or sweet and sour dishes make it with these bracing white wines.

When grilling, try a little guacamole on the side. Avocado intensifies the flavor of the wine, while the wine's acidity cuts through the avocado's richness.

Some wines are best with simply prepared meats without fancy marinades or sauces. Grilled steaks or lamb chops work well with a young cabernet sauvignon or Cotes-du-Rhone Villages, since the fat in the meat tames the tannin of the wine. Older reds work best with roasted

WINE SELECTION OF THE WEEK

1988 Zind-Humbrecht Pinot d'Alsace ($11) is produced from pinot blanc grapes. It's fresh and alive with multi-dimensional aromas and flavors that will enhance grilled or smoked foods. The finish is long, crisp and clean. Simply delicious.

1988 Beringer Fume Blanc ($9) is a ringer for a Sancerre from the Loire Valley. In a true French style, it sports lime citrus and herbal aromas with generous tropical fruit on the palate, It's drinking excellently now.

rather than grilled meats, so this is not the time to raid the cellar.

CHARDONNAY SHOULD be your selection with foods that feature understated flavors and seasonings. Fruity chardonnays harmonize best with simple dishes that enchance the wine's flavor rather than distract.

Try a grilled rock cornish game hen, lightly seasoned, with the William Hill Silver Label Chardonnay or a crisp Macon-Villages.

If your menu includes barbecued pork or beef ribs with a spicy sauce or a roast with rosemary, theme or garlic, you need a red wine. California zinfandel, Italian Dolcetto or French Rhone wines offer earth, spice and fruit to handle more complex preparations. If pork, veal or lighter meats get to the grill, select a lighter red like the Clos du Bois Merlot or a Saintsbury Pinot Noir.

Don't forget that vegetables are easily prepared. Try grilling onions, zucchini, mushrooms, peppers, tomatoes, eggplant or sweet corn. If you are planning a vegetarian meal, select a variety of whites, light reds and roses. These may include a Simi Rose of Cabernet, Dry Creek Fume Blanc or the Beringer Gamay Beau-

A few tips for storing concentrated juices

AP — The Florida Department of If the freezer fails and the juice Citrus has the following tips for stor- thaws, reconstitute immediately. ing frozen concentrated orange and grapefruit juices:

• Place frozen citrus products in the freezer immediately and keep frozen at 0 degrees until ready to use. Citrus will store at this temperature for about 1 year.

• Keep frozen concentrated juice in its frozen state until ready to use.

• To reconstitute frozen juice, place the unopened can in the refrigerator. Do not thaw completely. For best flavor, prepare juice according to instructions but allow the concentrate to continue to thaw in the juice pitcher or container.

• Shake or stir before serving to bring out peak flavor. Store in the refrigerator.

Opening Verse wavers at end; local favorite conquers Mile

The local favorite outdueled the odds-on favorite Saturday at the 42nd annual Michigan Mile at Ladbroke DRC.

Beau Genius, a horse trained by DRC's own Gerry Bennett, edged heavily favored Opening Verse in one of the most thrilling Miles in recent memory.

Making a strong run down the backstretch, Beau Genius beat Opening Verse by a nose and gave the 11,493 fans in attendance reason to smile - even if their money was on another horse.

The win was the seventh straight for the Canadian horse, who is making his owners (Dr. Brian Davidson and Joseph Shiewitz) and Bennett very proud. The guaranteed $300,000 purse included $180,000 for the

"This is unbelievable. I'm very pleased and have no words to describe it," said Bennett, DRC's leading trainer. "This is the greatest thrill of my life. No money can buy a thrill like this. This was a win for everyone in Michigan, not just for our jockey (Ricardo Lopez) or the trainer and owners."

Known as the Midwest's best sprinter, Beau Genius put any doubts to rest about his ability to race longer distances. "THIS HORSE don't mind tough situations," Bennett said. "He's never been beaten in the mud and he loves the mud. He's the best horse I've ever had and outside of today, I've never asked a horse to run as hard as he did. He had to run all-out to win today."

He also had kind words for Lopez. "Ricardo is right there with all the best riders," said Bennett. "He's very intelligent and a very strong finisher. Very few lockeys can outrun him, horse to horse, down to

The rain, which fell most of the early morning hours Saturday, didn't have an adverse effect on the turnout at the gate, Raymond said. The betting handle for the Mile of $309,990 topped last year's on-track betting total by nearly $100,000, Raymond said.

He estimated that the day's 12 races could attract more than $2,000,000 in bets.

Tom Holzer Ford made a move to get out of the cellar in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League last week, winning back-to-back games.

Holzer blanked Total Travel Values 3-0 on Wednesday, a day after beating second-place Walter's Home Appliance 5-4 in a makeup game Tuesday.

Andrew Margolick tossed a fourhitter and pitched a complete game against Total Travel. He limited the walks to three and struck out two.

A two-run single by Brian Daniels in the first inning was the winning hit, and Steve Ross added an RBI single in the sixth. Jim Izzo had two hits for Holser Ford.

Rick Rachner pitched 5% innings for Total Travel, giving up all seven Holser hits and three walks. He fanned three.

Daniels, who was 3-for-3 and scored Holser's first run, started the last-inning rally with a single.

After walks to Rob Baumgartel and Chris Bronis, Greg Hyseli hit a two-run single.

Hysell tagged up and went to second on Ross' fly ball to center baseball field, and Bronis scored the tying run when Izzo hit a ball of pitcher Chad Wrona's hand. John Frazzini followed with a single off reliever Steve Owens that knocked in Hysell with the winning run. Ross went the distance for Holzer, allowing seven hits and three walks. Wrona, who entered in the fifth inning, was the loser.

John Gotts had a two-run single and Jerry Koester two hits for Walter's. David Houghtby remained an undefeated pitcher Wednesday when he hurled a two-hitter in Walter's 5-0 defeat of Little Cassars.

Houghtby pitched no-hit ball over the last four innings, struck out five and walked four. JEFF PENDELL was 1-for-4. His two-run double gave Walter's a 3-0 lead in the third inning, and he

Travel restrictions have also entertained thoughts of bringing teams in beyond the 600-mile (round trip) travel restriction limit, many from states other than those bordering Michigan (Wisconsin, Indiana and Ohio). "The more travel, the more television, the larger the trophies, the more excessively the program is treated," said Roberts, "the more likely people are to break rules regarding recruiting, regarding season limitations, and the more likely individuals are to specialize in a sport, which studies say are not good for

"I look at those attention grabbing things. I'm looking at the big picture and it's not good for kids."

 The expanded state football playoffs has also been a hot topic. The expansion from four to eight classes gives more schools a chance to qualify, which has been well received by members of the coaches association.

"Personally I was not for expan-• The transfer rule had been sion," Roberts said. "And at some upper administration levels it's not as well received, but it gives some of the smaller schools a chance to procede. There's less enthusiasm out-state, but in places like Macomb County it's been received very well."

Having enough venues for an expanded playoff format has also become a concern, but Roberts said all semifinal sites will be played on artificial surfaces with the first and second round sites being hosted by the top point getters.

Roberts also said that Friday night semifical games have been eliminated in favor of Saturday afternoon times. Last November, Roberts was well aware of the criticism he received for allowing a game between Farmington Harrison and East Grand Rapids to be played under ley conditions at Flint's Atwood Stadium.

"We will double up twice on Saturday, 11:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. if necessary," said the MHSAA director.

 Roberts was posed a question regarding the issue of drug testing for athletes in the Melvidale Schools. The MHSAA chief has been made aware of studies revealing that eight percent of high school students have used steroids. "It seems inappropriate to test just athletes because those figures are no greater than the average student," he said. "Drug feeting is expensive and philosophically I have difficulty with it. It's no greater problem for the athlete then the gen-

". "Some people benefit from that rigorous schedule, but large numbers do not. Some schools want our office things. We're not in position to lead the charge. We're looking to the leagues and conferences to lead that charge."

• As for sportsmanship, Roberts' said he's raised the idea and "a lot of schools have responded very well by taking the initiative."

"The schools have taken on the cause better than I anticipated," he said. "We've seen some positive reabout poor sportsmanship, but we're getting less reports about less signifleant acts now; to me that's progress. The standard of what we tolerto lead the charge to eliminate those ate is a lot less than what we did tolerate two years ago."

> · As far as officials, Roberts would like to see the MHSAA strengthen its evaluation and certification standards during the '90's, as well as educate coaches.

But for now, Roberts says his staff: does not have the resources to properly get the job done. Concerning rules enforcement, Roberts' principal investigator (besides himself) is Jerry Cyengros, an assistant director and former football, athletic director and principal from Escanaba. Of the 10 violations that occurred last year, nine of the schools reported themselves, a good sign according to Roberts.

• As for the future, Roberts is looking ahead to the '90-91 school

"We have to remind our schools that regulation and control is OK," he said. "We were created, the MHSAA and all other state associations around the country, not to run tournaments or to do sportsmanship campaigns, but the main reason we were created was to control, to limit the interscholastic program in an educational framework, to eliminate tional competition that occurred back in the '20's.

"I have to keep reminding myself of that, but that's OK. Aggressive coaches, parents, and booster clubs. and the media, they'll all promote the program, but the unique function is to control the program and keep it in the proper framework. And I don't apoligize for that, Even with the corporate sponsors for our tournaments, we have to keep reminding myself. That's my biggest challenge facing us this decade. But somebody's got to do it. That's our rudder. That's why we were created, to limit. the excesses. Bigger is not better."

C'ville swims to fine results

Tina Caranicolas collected top point-scoring honors in the 11- 12year-old girls division at the Flag City Invitational swimming meet June 29-July 1 in Findlay, Ohio.

Caranicolas of Livonia and the Clarenceville Cohoes had four firstplace finishes. She won the 200meter freestyle (2:20.11), the 100 butterfly (1:15.50), the 100 backstroke (1:18.25) and the 200 individual medley (2:42.32).

Caranicolas was also second in the 50 back (37.23), 50 free (31.42), 100 free (1:06.12) and 50 fly (34.24), and placed third in the 200 open back (2:44.37), fourth in the 100 breaststroke (1:34.24), sixth in the 200 open fly (2:45.86) and ninth in the 50 breast (44.39).

Coho teammates Karen Kissinger, Craig Sieving, Jennifer Knapp also performed well at the 28-team, 502swimmer meet. EASING CADILLAC DEALER IN THE WORL

"Now, there's a new Cadillac in your future"

You must take retail delivery out of dealer stock. Tax, license, title fees and insurance extra. Mileage charge of 10 cents pez mule over 45,000. Payments may be slightly higher in Alabama, Arkansas and Texas. Lessee pays for excessive wear and use. GMAC must approve lease. Example - Sedan de Ville: 529,635 MSRP, includes destination charge. Total of monthly

a month/36 months*

It's a great time to improve your driving. Because you can get a 36-month lease on a new Sedan de Ville - America's most spacious front-drive sedan—for just $398 a month.

Up to a $2,000 cash bonus. You can receive a $2,000 cash bonus direct from Cadillac when you purchase a new Cadillac Seville or Eldorado. Or a $1,500 cash bonus direct from Cadillac on a new Cadillac Fleetwood, De Ville or Brougham. See your dealer for details.

Whichever of these Cadillacs you choose, your investment is protected by 24-hour Cadillac Roadside Service® and backed by Cadillac's 4-year/50,000-mile Gold Key Bumper to Bumper Warranty.

But act promptly. Because the selection of these luxurious Cadillacs continues to diminish. And you don't have to be Arnold Palmer to appreciate outstanding drives like these.

Option to purchase at lease end for $13,040. Purchase option price is fixed at lease signing and varies by vehicle model

The eight-on-eight energy game is compacted onto a field not much larger than the surface of a bockey rink and contained at both ends with huge nets that keep the ball in play on kicks and passes. Arena football puts the fans right on top of the action — football in your lap.

football caught the attention of Red Wings owner Mike Illitch, who put together a team for the 1988 season.

Winning their 12 regular season games, the Detroit Drive went on to capture the Arenaball championship trophy with a 24-13 victory over the Chicago Bruisers.

LAST YEAR, the Drive won its The abridged version of American second Arenabali championship with a 39-26 victory over the Pittsburgh Gladiators in front of 12,046 fans at. Joe Louis Arena. These days, the Drive averages 10,516 fans a game, well above the league average of

> So the Detroit Pistons aren't the only team that has a chance for a "three-peat."

> They go all out to make the whole evening as entertaining as possible. Beginning with a truck pull-type announcer's introduction of the players one by one they sprint out of a tunnel and billowing fog and race down a strobe-lit gauntlet as "Fanfare for the Common Man" by Emerson, Lake and Palmer charges up the fans.

"Introducing the starting lineup for your Detroit Drive," shouts the announcer just as if "Bigfoot" was going to crush some junk cars.

"Yeah, Yeah," responds the

A spotlight picks up each player as he exits the tunnel and follows him across the darkened floor, where he meets his fellow teammates with a round of high fives. Shades of the old indoor soccer league and the Detroit Lightening's amazing disco ball and laser show.

BESIDES THE giant nets in the end zones and the padded walls that line the field, no more than a couple of feet from the boundaries, the game showcases another interesting feature that you don't see in the NFL. Most of the athletes play offense and defense.

"You have to make a lot of adjustments," said Greg Orton, a University of Nebraska graduate in his third year with the Drive. He plays both the offensive and defensive line.

"Defense is always attack, attack, attack, while offense is much more passive," he said. "It's kind of like high school, when a lot of us played both ways. You have to be in a lot better shape to keep up."

Teammate Robert Banks of Ann Arbor and Adrian College agreed.

"You don't see the big 300-pound plus players playing Arena football like you would see in college and the NFL," he said. "You see much more versatile athletes playing this game."

Many of the players hold college degrees and play Arenaball pretty much as a hobby: (You won't find mega-buck contracts here. All players make $500 per game.) Others use it as a chance to be noticed by the NFL or scouts for the stagnant International Football League.

The main draw for these players. though, is their love of competition and the game of football.

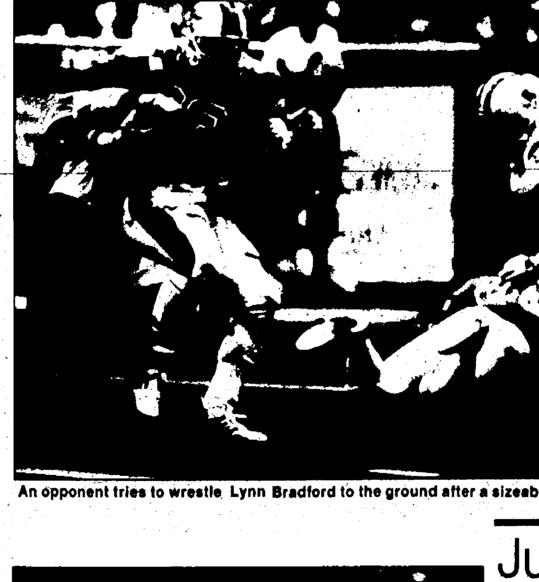

ASKED WHETHER or not he had aspirations for making the NFL, veteran Detroit Drive and USFL Michigan Panther place kicker Novo Bojovic said no. Football provides him treated to some real football. Al with "special feelings that keep the

Just the facts

At a glance, here's the differences between the National Footbal League style of football Americans are used to seeing each weekend dur- hours. ing the fall and Arenaball that's played during the summer.

The Field: In the NFL, players traverse a field 100 yards long and 150 feet wide. In Arenaball, it's 50 yards by $5 feet.

Scoring: Scoring is the same in both leagues except Arenabali allows two-point conversions by pass, run or drop kick.

Field Goals: Arenaball field goal attempts are the same as in the NFL except the ball is still alive if it rebounds off one of the nets on either side of the goal post.

Eichoffs: Kickoffs in the NFL are from the 35-yard line and from the goal line in Arenaball.

Punting: Allowed in the NFL, but a no-no in Arenabell.

Game Clock: Unlike the NFL, the clock doesn't stop for out of bounds off the field when going out of plays in Arenaball or for incomplete passes unless in the last two minutes of play each half.

Game Time: Both leagues have four 15-minute quarters.

Game Length: While NFL games take about three hours, Arenaball games usually last just over two Line-Up: NFL teams have 11 men on the field per team, while Arenaball teams have only eight men.

Rosters: There's 47 on a normal NFL sideline and just 18, including two reserve players, for Arenaball.

Players: NFL players specialize in one discipline while Arenaball players (except for the kicker and quarterback) must be able to play offense and defense.

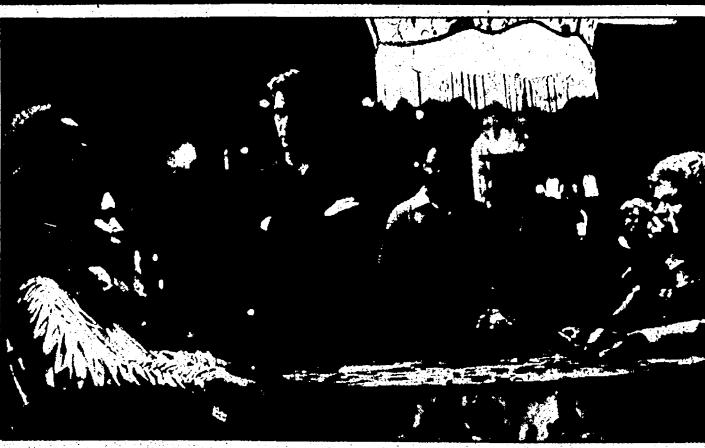

Defense: Only man-to-man defense can be played in Arenaball. while the NFL can also play sone de-

Nets: Rebound nets on each of the Arenabali goal line are eight feet high and 30 feet wide and keep the ball in play. The NFL has no such Sidelines: NFL players simply run bounds, while Arena players hit a four-foot high barrier.

Terf: All Arenaball games are on artificial turf. Half of the NFL teams still play on natural grass.

MOVING PICTURES

Sam Wheat (Patrick Swayze) is a ghost who realizes that he can be heard by psychic Oda Mae Brown (Whoopi Goldberg) in "Ghost."

'Ghost: It's the sleeper movie of summer 1990

According to the smart money, the movie to beat this summer is Jeff Daniels and John Goodman in "Arachnophobia" (B-, PG-13, 95 minutes). That's hard to believe given the $82 million box office for "Dick Tracy" after only 24 days. "Arachnophobia" isn't bad but let's nominate "Ghost" (A-, PG-13, 105 minutes) as the sleeper of the summer.

Sam Wheat (Patrick Swayze) is a New York banker, living with — and loving - artist Molly (Demi Moore). Friend and business associate, Carl Bruner (Tony Goldwyn), help Sam and Molly refurbish a loft (rather rapidly and effortlessly) in very high

Tragedy strikes as an unknown assailant kills Sam during a street robbery. But Sam's spirit remains on earth to protect Molly who, it turns out, is in great danger. "Ghost" is attractive, amusing, entertaining, an intelligent film that defies easy ca-

It's warm and inspiring, portraying the very best kind of romance, as Molly and Sam's love transcends physical boundaries. His unfinished business in this world is twofold to warn Molly of the danger she faces and tell her he loves her, something he'd failed to do properly while still alive.

BOTH ARE important tasks, and the film's sensitive interpretation of these emotions touches our hearts with good feelings, particularly when Sam achieves that second goal.

Sam's struggle to contact Molly generates some excellent comedy as he enlists the help of a charlatan, Oda Mae Brown (Whoopi Goldberg), a medium who doesn't realize she has the power — and an attitude. Goldberg's performance is finely tuned comedy and one of her best screen roles.

Keeping the comedy flowing, West Bloomfield resident Sondra Rubin, mother of scenarist Bruce Rubin, makes a cameo appearance as a nun. But, beyond the laughter and romance, there's a serious thriller.

The mysterious danger that killed Sam proves to be a real threat to Molly. While that is an important thread in the film, the main task of "Ghost" sets for itself is representing the difficulty of communication between physical and spiritual. With excellent production values, the film evolves as a sensitive metaphor for the pain and ultimate acceptance in the loss of a loved one.

As well, scenarist Rubin was inspired by the challenge of translating into 20th Century idiom the dilemmas faced by Hamlet when he saw his father's ghost and learned of the tragic crime that 'ended the king's life.

THIS INTRIGUING comedy/romance/thriller/ghost story ought to attract a wide audience. "Ghost" is emotional, entertaining and literate, with fine performances by the principals and excellent special effects. That, after all, is what movies are supposed to be.

What could be more refreshing for world-weary urbanites than the rustic pleasures of Canaima, Calif., a relaxed, small town north of San Francisco? That's essentially the story here. Our hero, Dr. Jennings, is scared silly of spiders. Boy, has he got his work cut out for him to save the town. "Arachnophobia" has terrific spider sequences, but the edge is taken off the horror with comic rellef by the town's exterminator, Delbert McClintock (John Goodman), a very funny "Rambo" style bug-killer,

"ARACHNOPHOBIA" IS an elaborate production, although one wonders if it is worth all the effort (see related story) for the excitement generated? Certainly, fans of "creature from hell movies" will not be disappointed. Nor will they notice that the terrible spider kills everyone on contact - except for the hero. Jeff Daniels wrestles with that big bad bug for 10 minutes , . . and

Andrew Dice Clay has made a name for himself as a foul-mouthed, sexist, standup comic. Now he's trying to broaden his repertoire with a '50s style comic thriller, "The Adventures of Ford Fairlane"(F, R, 90 minutes).

Both he and the film are miserable failures. "The Adventures of Ford Fairlane" has only one value, It confirms Clay's reputation as a rude, vulgar, egomaniac who can't act. No one else would appear in such unpleasant, childish drivel.

Whoever dreamed up this poorly edited, offensive failure to meld the hardboiled, private eye genre with rock'n'roll films deserves a robust condemnation. Vote with your dollars and don't let this Ford be in your

ALTERNATIVE VIEWING

'Ben-Hur:' Enduring spectacle

By John Monaghan special writer

Seeing the chariot race in "Ben-Hur" (1959) on the big screen remains for most filmgoers the greatest moment of pure action ever put on film. The thundering hooves of the charlots roaring nine times around the no-rules arena is a dazraw emotion.

Such an epic requires an opic build-up. And for all its obvious overblown pretensions, "Ben-Hur" - the entire package, not just the charlot race - is surprisingly powerful today.

Of all the films that have unreeled on the big screen of the Fox Theatre, "Ben-Hur" is perhaps the film that zling mix of editing, sound, color and needs the grandiose surroundings most. Everything is big in this tale of a peaceful man thrown into hatred of the Roman Empire during the time of Christ.

Hothouse Flowers have always provided power-packed live performances. Albums, though, have been something of a hit-and-miss proposi-

The group's latest, "Home," (PolyGram/London) has received mixed reviews. Some have lauded its charm, and Celtic/soul renderings while others have been critical of the band trying to be too large in musical scope.

"I'm not one who depends on reviews," said Liam O'Maonlai, lead vocalist of the group that performs on Thursday at Saint Andrew's Hall. "What I think myself and what others close to us think is more important to me. I can get the worst review imaginable and it doesn't bother

Compared to the band's debut album "People," this effort is better produced. That was a conscious effort on part of Hothouse Flowers, which felt in the past they labored too long trying to pick off the lint of imperfection.

This time the band tried to capture a more natural setting where the music would evolve from the confines of sterile studio environ-

Of course, nothing matches performing live. Hothouse Flowers have garnered more than their share of rave marks for yeoman efforts on stage where emotionally-wrought numbers like "Don't Go" and "Give It Up" take on new life.

ing a gentler, melodic side as well. Out of all this, though, comes a side of Second Self never revealed before. This band has soul. The setting of Muscle Shoals Studios in Birmingham, Ala., obviously didn't hurt.

One can easily suss out the streetcorner harmonica on "Aunt Jenny" (Bless My Soul) or Greg Giampa's gritty, rhythm and blues gultar stylings on "Trapped Beneath the Stone" as evidence. Like sincerity at the fu-

To their credit, Second Self's music comes straight from the guthoned, though years of dogged touring and unfetered persistence to suc-

hooks, and by far, lead singer Michael Nehra's best vocal work. Other than this very obvious attempt to curry favor with the commercial airplay man, Second Self rides on the emotion of the moment. Things get a little acoustical on "I Stand You Spin" and "Untitled," which provides the album's most introspective pieces. Otherwise, it's a four-prong attack as Second Self selzes the moment they've waited for a long time. One can sense the desperation lyrically in "Trapped Beneath the neral service of a mass murderer, Stone," "Mind Over Matter" and soul cannot be faked.

SHOUTING, QUIETLY — Bradford

Bradford is a city north of Manchester in Great Britain. What does this have to do with the band at hand? Probably, about as much as this latest release has to do music today. Rather irrelevant, real-Bradford, the band, appears to be following a well-worn path already taken by the Smiths, the Housemartins and Elvis Costello. The five-man contingent sounds, in essence, like the sum total of the 1980s pop guitar experience. Then again, if one prefers to get a little nostalgic this is the potion for the emotion.

Vocalist Ian H. somehow manages to sing in his best Roland Gift/Elvis Costello style. The gultar work is a carrousel of shimmering acoustical pieces and pristine electrical strumming reminiscent of the Housemartins. Lyrics? Listen to this angst: "He was the one they all kicked/On the school corridor/And his bag ended up in the trees/And his footprinted blazer on floors/Called him a goon and called him a clown." Change the "he" to "I" and you have Morrissey bathing in self-pity. Of course, the formula wouldn't be complete without some political lament about the Land of Thatcher. On "Greed and Peasant Land," "I dragged my butt across the town/ Past empty mills and sad fashion clowns/I walk this Land of Dope and Tory/That would be funny if it wasn't so true." On one note, Bradford deserves due for having a melodic sense. Songs such as "Always Torn" an "Adrift Again" possess an easy feel to them that are alluring.

Too bad that can't be said for the rest of the product.

Safety marriage outweighs infidelity

I read the Observer quite regularly and can't help but notice your colump, (Mainly because of the ridiculous pose you strike in your picture. Wasn't there any furniture in the photography studio?)

Anyways . . . Your response to "Betrayed" (June 4) was the height of irresponsibility and, might I add, brevity. She writes that a best friend told her that her husband was having an affair. She also received a letter telling her the same thing. You then proceed to give her an answer that you must have spent all of five seconds thinking about.

Were you late for a deadline? "Don'trock the boat" was your best effort? There is clearly something going on with her husband. Since when is "not making trouble" a prerequisite to staying married?

I think you did the woman a real disservice by your flip answer. Honesty is crucial in any relationship. You essentially told "Betrayed" to "shut up" and be a good little girl.

Sincerely, Surprised and Disappointed Dear Surprised and Disappointed,

Thank you for your honest letter. Your objection to the picture above the column is a valid one. I've never really been pleased with it, but it seemed like a good idea at the time I started this column. Rest assured, the picture will be changed.

Now, let us focus on your reaction to the letter by "Betrayed." You extracted the part where a friend told her that her husband was having an affair and that she also received a letter telling her the same thing.

Fortunately, I spent much more than five seconds thinking about this letter and the plight of the witer. Included in the contents of this letter were the very important sentences which you seemed to ignore. "Betrayed" wrote that she loved her husband and didn't want a divorce, and in effect, implied that she would rather accept the present situation than take a chance on losing her hus-

Director William Wyler, who already had epic tales like "Wuthering Helghts" (1939) and "The Best Years of Our Lives" (1946) under his belt, brought a personal touch to all the pomp and circumstance. He established a bitter relationship between the two former friends - Messala (Stephen Boyd) and Judah — that lasts even beyond their charlot duel.

Schneider 'cashes' in on Elvis

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

Whether it's Elvis impersonations or his spontaneous comedy routines, Rob Schneider has them all shook

The San Francisco-raised comedian has graduated from performing in small clubs as an underage laugh bound to writing skits for "Saturday Night' Live." He's even dabbling in acting, recently seen as a nerdy history student in a "Coach" episode with Craig T. Nelson.

Sure, those are all fine entries on the comedy resume. Of the latter, though, Schneider was more thrilled to work with Shelley Fabares, who had starred in several Elvis films.

To Schneider, stories about The King are like files to a frog: He can't snap up enough of them.

"She told me that when she saw him he was the most beautiful person she had ever seen," said Schneider, who bears a resemblence to Elvis Presley. "She said he was a porcelain doll."

In his travels, Schneider came across a woman who lived with Elvis and received a ring and a gun from the rock'n'roll legend. Another person he met knew someone who worked in the office where they prepared his body for burlal and related how they couldn't fit a shirt on him because of his girth.

IN HIS stage act, Schneider has been known to pull out a copy of "Elvis and Me" by Priscilla Presley and read passages.

"One time, someone come up to me afterward and said (Schneider in . a southern drawl), 'You're pretty funny, but you shouldn't make fun of the King like that," Schneider said. "He was serious."

Schneider got his blue suede shoes in a knot over Elvis when he was in high school. Because of his likeness to the rock'n'roll icon, he did an impersonation in a talent show and the audience loved it.

Lis career in comedy was already in gear. At 15, he performed a standup routine in one nightclub in San Francisco for $30 a night. He decided to hang around after his routine, but was physically removed because he was under age.

Otherwise, the city has been a gateway of comedy for him.

"The audiences are great,"

said. "That's why comedians seem to come from there.

"When you're starting out, that's important because you're trying to gain your confidence. They give you a little creative space. They tend to want to see something different."

Schneider didn't jump into comedy full-time until 1984. His career quickly took off, performing standup on "Late Night With David Letterman," "HBO Young Comedians Special" and "Evening at the Improv."

Lately, Schneider has been writing skits for "Saturday Night Live." Though the show is in summer hiatus, he's been coming up with ideas for next season. One bit is a parody commercial for the "Esophagizer," a takeoff on the Adominizer that is design to "firm up those flabby spots around the neck."

Last season, Schneider worked on five SNL shows. He wrote one sketch on a homophobic convention for the controversial show that featured comedy's foul-mouthed Andrew Dice. Clay. The Dice Man declined to do it.

WITH THE cast unsettled for next season, Schneider obviously wouldn't mind stepping in as a regular mem-

"Lorne Michaels told me, 'I hired Chevy (Chase) as a writer. I hired Garret (Morris) as a writer," Schneider said. "It just evolved from there. I'm just happy to be writing."

Elvis still rears his head occasionally in Schneider's stand-up set. But. for the most part, it's a steady stream of comedic consciousness as he's been known to develop new skits right on stage.

He enjoys the writing aspect of comedy. The real fun, though, comes on stage when he can act out his ma-

"I think if an audience is giving me their confidence I can take it farther - and I will," Schneider said. "If they continue going with me, you don't know how far it will go.

"You have to give a little bit. I'm not going to hit you over the head with it. You have to go with me a bit and get lost with it."

Rob Schneider will perform Friday and Saturday, July 20-21. at the MainStreet Comedy Showcase, 314 E. Liberty, beneath Seva Restaurant, Ann Arbor. For information, call 996-9080.

Architecture: an Indian Village lure

This is the second of a threepart series on residents in Detroit's historic Indian Village.

By Joan Boram special writer

N AND Sandy Phillips were The Georgian Colonial house they bought on Iroquois had been carefully tended since it was built in 1917, so they were spared the restoration work that other Indian Village residents in Detroit have so often encountered. "The house was designed by architect William Stratton, the husband of Mary Chase Stratton, who founded Pewable Pottery," Sandy said. "It was commissioned by Detroit businessman Allan Shelden, and is a pretty close copy of Carter Hall, in Williamsburg, Va. Shelden had been stationed in Washington during World War I, and while there, developed an appreciation for Williamsburg's architecture."

Phillips, who is just a smidgen over 5 feet tall, does her own decorating. To realize the implications behind this statement, consider that when they moved from Orchard Lake to their present house, her husband gave her a set of industrial ladders

'We had 27 people stay overnight for a family reunion last summer, and you'd hardly have known they were here."

> -Sandy Phillips Indian Village

as a housewarming gift.

The formal dining room is 26 by 22 feet, with 11-foot ceilings. The dramatic foyer, easily the size of a small house, is two stories high.

PERCHED ON her ladders like Michelangelo in the Sistine Chapel, Phillips, who has a fine arts background, applied Williamsburg colors bought at the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn.

The foyer is old rose. In the dining room, traditional furniture and a collection of antique pewter plates are set off by stunning dark green. walls and rich, cream crown moldings and woodwork.

The living room, considerably larger than the dining room, is paneled in pecan wood, and is practically care-free.

"I just wipe with a dust mop once in a while to get rid of cobwebs.

"Pecan wood has a kind of golden glow all its own. There's no need to polish it - luckily, it's in perfect shape.'

The house also incorporates five fireplaces, 12 bedrooms (five for servants), a butler's kitchen complete with silver vault, a kitchen, a sun room, a library, and a patio with a swimming pool.

YOU COULD easily have 100 for cocktails on that patio, and the Phillips often do just that.

'We had 27 people stay overnight for a family reunion last summer, and you'd hardly have known they were here.

"One of the problems with a house of this vintage, though, is that standard dimensions have changed over the last half-century.

"For example, we needed awnings for 40-odd windows. They all had to be custom-made."

SANDY IS known in the community as the "cheerleader of Indian Village," and it's easy to see why. Her enthusiasm is contagious.

"It's a true neighborhood, a real community, not a suburb.

'We're an eclectic group, but we have in common an appreciation of the village and its significant archi-- tecture, and a dedication to preserving them as a vibrant community."

This is a view of the living room in the Indian Village home of Sandy and Ron Phillips.

Where would Her Majesty live Birmingham?

At Buckingham, naturally.

She'd love the royal park across the street. She'd dote on the spacious two-bedroom apartment with fresh new interiors from the most modern appliances to the best lighting fixtures to designer carpeting to contempest lighting fixtures to designer carpeting to contemporary verticals.

She'd like the uncommon amount of room and royal way the service staff treats her. After all, a person's nome ought to be their palace.

Builders look to rental agencies to fill apartments

Your landlord has raised the rent again, and this time it's the last straw. Maybe you're ready to move up to fancier digs but you're not in a position to buy.

Perhaps you're a transferee looking for a nice rental or you just want a new place to hang your hat.

For whatever reason, you need an apartment and you need one now. What you don't want to do is spend a lot of time looking.

Welcome to the world of locator services.

They can work in a couple of different ways, but the service is always free to tenants.

In some cases, service providers, like Apartments Unlimited, work with apartment owners on a commission basis. In others, like Central Leasing Center, the owner of several properties will set up an office to represent all of his holdings at one location.

THEN THERE are specialty directories like Apartment Shoppers Gulde, essentially a book of advertisements offered free to con-

Convenience is the big attraction for tenants.

"They can go through papers, make phone calls, do all the driving around, or we can show them all the properties," said Kathy Staub, a sales manager for Apartments Unlimited in Canton. "It's going to save them time and money.

'Apartments Unlimited also has area offices in Southfield and Troy. "It's kind of a matchmaking operation, if you will," said Tom

"We list apartment buildings in our system, a computerized data base coupled with laser disc photographs of properties. People (employees) here have visited properties, they're familiar with proper-

Apartments Unlimited gets a commission from the landlord — about 370 percent of one month's rent — for the referral if a tenant leases.

R&T Management, a subsidiary of Rosin & Co., intends to close its Central Leasing Center which opened just over two years, said Barbara Katz, a property manager for the While each of Rosin's seven complexes has a manager's office, the centralized leasing center was established so no potential tenants would be missed. Katz said.

A problem recently developed in that would-be tenants made it to the Central Leasing Center but not always to one of the complexes to which they had been referred, she

"IT WAS something that seemed to be the mode of the future," Katz said of the center's launching. "If one wasn't getting traffic, the leasing center would direct to that particular complex."

· Central Air Conditioning

So why don't more multi-complex owners have a central leasing center? "It's expensive." Katz said. "You're running an office out of another office. It's an around the clock service Monday through Sunday."

Relocation Assistance in West Bloomfield finds housing for out-oftown transferees as part of a broader mission to settle newcomers in the metro area.

Its fee is paid by corporations. Some apartment owners also may pay commissions to Relocation Assistance for a referral if tenants

"We don't work for apartments." We work for corporations," said Ilene Chait, owner of Relocation As-

"Some (clients) prefer a narrow set of choices, some like to exhaust anything possible," said Thelma Stalburg, manager of the apartment division for Relocation Assistance. "We discuss with them what their needs are. We save them a lot of time in the course of interviewing them and introducing them to the area." she said.

Staff members are familiar with several hundred complexes in the area, Chait said. About half of their clients end up in houses, half renting apartments.

Even newly-constructed apartments show up in locator services.

"Any new property normally advertises quite a bit," said Susan Deakins, associate publisher of Apartment Shoppers Guide in Southfield. "Most have large set-up advertising budgets."

Sweeten, an owner of the company...... NEW PROJECTS advertised in her shopper's guide include Citation Club in Farmington Hills by Beztak, River Oaks West in Novi by The Solomon Group, Westbury Village in Auburn Hills by Kaftan Enterprises and Village Green of Madison Heights by Holtzman/Silverman, Deakins said.

> About 22 percent of the listings in the monthly guide are for new complexes, she estimated.

> Sweeten reported that upwards of 20 percent of tenants who go through Apartments Unlimited are looking for brand new living quarters.

> "Right now, there's certainly more apartments than people to occupy them," he said. "Generally, location is the most important factor. Most want to be close to where they want to work or play. Next is economics — what can I afford in this area."

> The Fourmidable Group of Farm ington Hills and The Solomon Group of Troy are among owners of new complexes which have a working relationship with Apartments Unlimited. Sweeten said.

Newness doesn't seem to be a top priority for transferees with whom she deals, Stalburg said.

The difference (in demand) between one five years old and brand new isn't that great," she said. "Mostof it centers around proximity to the work place, the money they want to spend and amenities.

What they're looking for is a good looking attractive building. If it's newer, that's a plus," Stalburg said.

Patrick Parks, who is moving here from Montgomery, Ala., discusses leasing possibilities with Gina Taylor, a rental consultant for Apartments Unlimited.

assessment seems inconsistent

I own a condo in a development that has four sizes of condos. Monthly charges are based on the footage of the units. My size condo pays $60 more than most. My grounds are no larger and the driveways are the same. But when it was painted and the roof was replaced, charges were prorated the same for everyone. Is this the rule for most condos? I protest every year. They say that's the way it is in the bylaws and can't be changed.

It is my assumption that the assessment for the roofs was allocated among all the co-owners equally, even though the percentages of value are different and the co-owners are paying different assessments on a normal basis for the units. There would appear to be an inconsistency in the manner in which the association levied the additional or special assessment. I would consult with legal counsel to review your documents and the assessment policies of the association. In addition, to the extent that the documents are 17 years old, it may be next to impossible to amend the documents, depending on the policy of the association regarding recent changes to the Condominium Act, as they relate to the amendment of condominium documents. You should consult with an attorney regarding these issues or, at least, encourage your board of directors to do so to determine the viability of such changes.

the township, but we understand that it may assist us in regard to his future projects in the township. What is the best course of action in terms of dealing with the developer at this time? If you have made every reasonable effort to present your claim as documented to the developer and have been unsuccessful, you should consider the various legal remedies you have available, including the institution of legal proceedings. While the township may be helpful to the extent that it is willing to deprive the developer of the right to develop additional phases until the problems are corrected at your project, generally speaking, that does not result in a permanent and satisfactory resolution for the association. The township is not in the position, normally, to satisfy the needs of the association in this type of problem. Oftentimes, developers respond to the association if they realize that it is serious in pursuing them, and that is has both the legal and financial wherewithal to do so. quality of the consultants, experts and legal coun-
