THE WESTLAND Police Officers Association recently contributed $1,000 to the Drug Awareness Resistance Education program. Under the DARE, police officers lecture elementary school students on the dangers of illegal drugs. In Wayne-Westland schools, those officers are Terry Donohue, Jeff Gillespie and David Hooper.

THE NEWLY REACTIVATED Westland Business and Professional Women's Club will hold a dinner meeting for members and guests at 6 p.m. Tuesday at Old Country Buffet, on Wayne Road at Hunter. The group is open to working and professional men and women.

MEMBERS OF the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 3323 and its auxiliary, both of Westland, visited the VFW National Home in Eaton Rapids July 5.

The National Home was created in 1925 to provide care and education for surviving spouses and children of veterans. Since its founding, the National Home has cared for nearly 1,400 children.

Attending were Auxiliary president Dorothea Finrock, Deloria Wakefield, Del Fairbrent, Terry Webb, Lucy Ramsey, Debbie Lawson, Areva Gojewski, Velda Reed, Pat Campbell, post commander Sam Lawson, Bob Campbell, Lloyd Allen, Herman Rayl, Randy Kaiser and Jim Webb.

WESTLAND RESIDENT Guy Mattias, a student of Specs Howard School of Broadcast Arts in Southfield, has been hired as a part-time announcer at WSDS in Ypsilanti. Part of Mattias' responsibilities will be to host his own show.

WESTLAND MAYOR Robert Thomas recently appointed William Deeter to the Westland Planning Commission. Deeter has a three-year term that will expire June 19, 1993.

WESTLAND CENTER, in cooperation with Dearborn's Oakwood Hospital and the Westland Center Burger King, will host "IdentChild," a program that provides the opportunity for parents to gather vital statistics on their children. The program will be held in Westland Center's Center Court from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 18. This is the fifth year Westland Center has offered the program.

IdentChild is a three-step process. First, the child will be photographed. The photo will be mounted on a folder on which parents can record vital statistics.

Secondly, volunteer registered nurses will measure and weigh the child. Finally, volunteers from the Westland Police Explorers will take fingerprints of the child to be entered in the folder.

The program is designed for children from infancy to 14 years of age. Children must be accompanied by a parent or adult guardian. There is no charge.

COUNTRY MUSIC will be featured 7 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 19, in Japane Park, on Whitwood and Hunter, part of the annual Concert in the Park series. The free event is part of a continuing series put on by the Westland Cultural Society. Sunday's concert will be sponsored by the Westland Japanese.

Myers to leave Glenn

By Leonard Poger

John Glenn High School is losing its top Rocket.

James Myers, Glenn principal for the past six years, is resigning to become an assistant principal at Farmington High School.

Myers, who will be 45 next month, has spent his entire career as an educator with the Wayne-Westland school district.

His departure leaves Glenn, home of the Rockets athletic teams, with vacancies in two of its four administrative positions. The new school year will start Aug. 20 for employees and the following week for students.

Larry LeBlanc, one of Glenn's three assistant principals, resigned last month to accept an administrative position in the Dexter School District, southwest of Ann Arbor.

THE TURNOVER at the school, on Marquette west of Wayne, comes at a crucial time for the school district, in which voters rejected property tax increase and renewal proposals twice this year.

The secondary schools are planning to implement a pay-to-play program this fall for students in sports and other extracurricular programs. (See related stories below.)

Myers' resignation comes just 2½ months after he was honored as the outstanding secondary school principal in Wayne County for the past year. The award was sponsored by the Michigan Association of Secondary Principals.

The principal at Farmington is expected to retire and be succeeded by Myers.

In his new post, Myers will continue to have contacts with the Glenn Rockets because the Rockets and the Farmington Falcons are both in the Lakes division of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

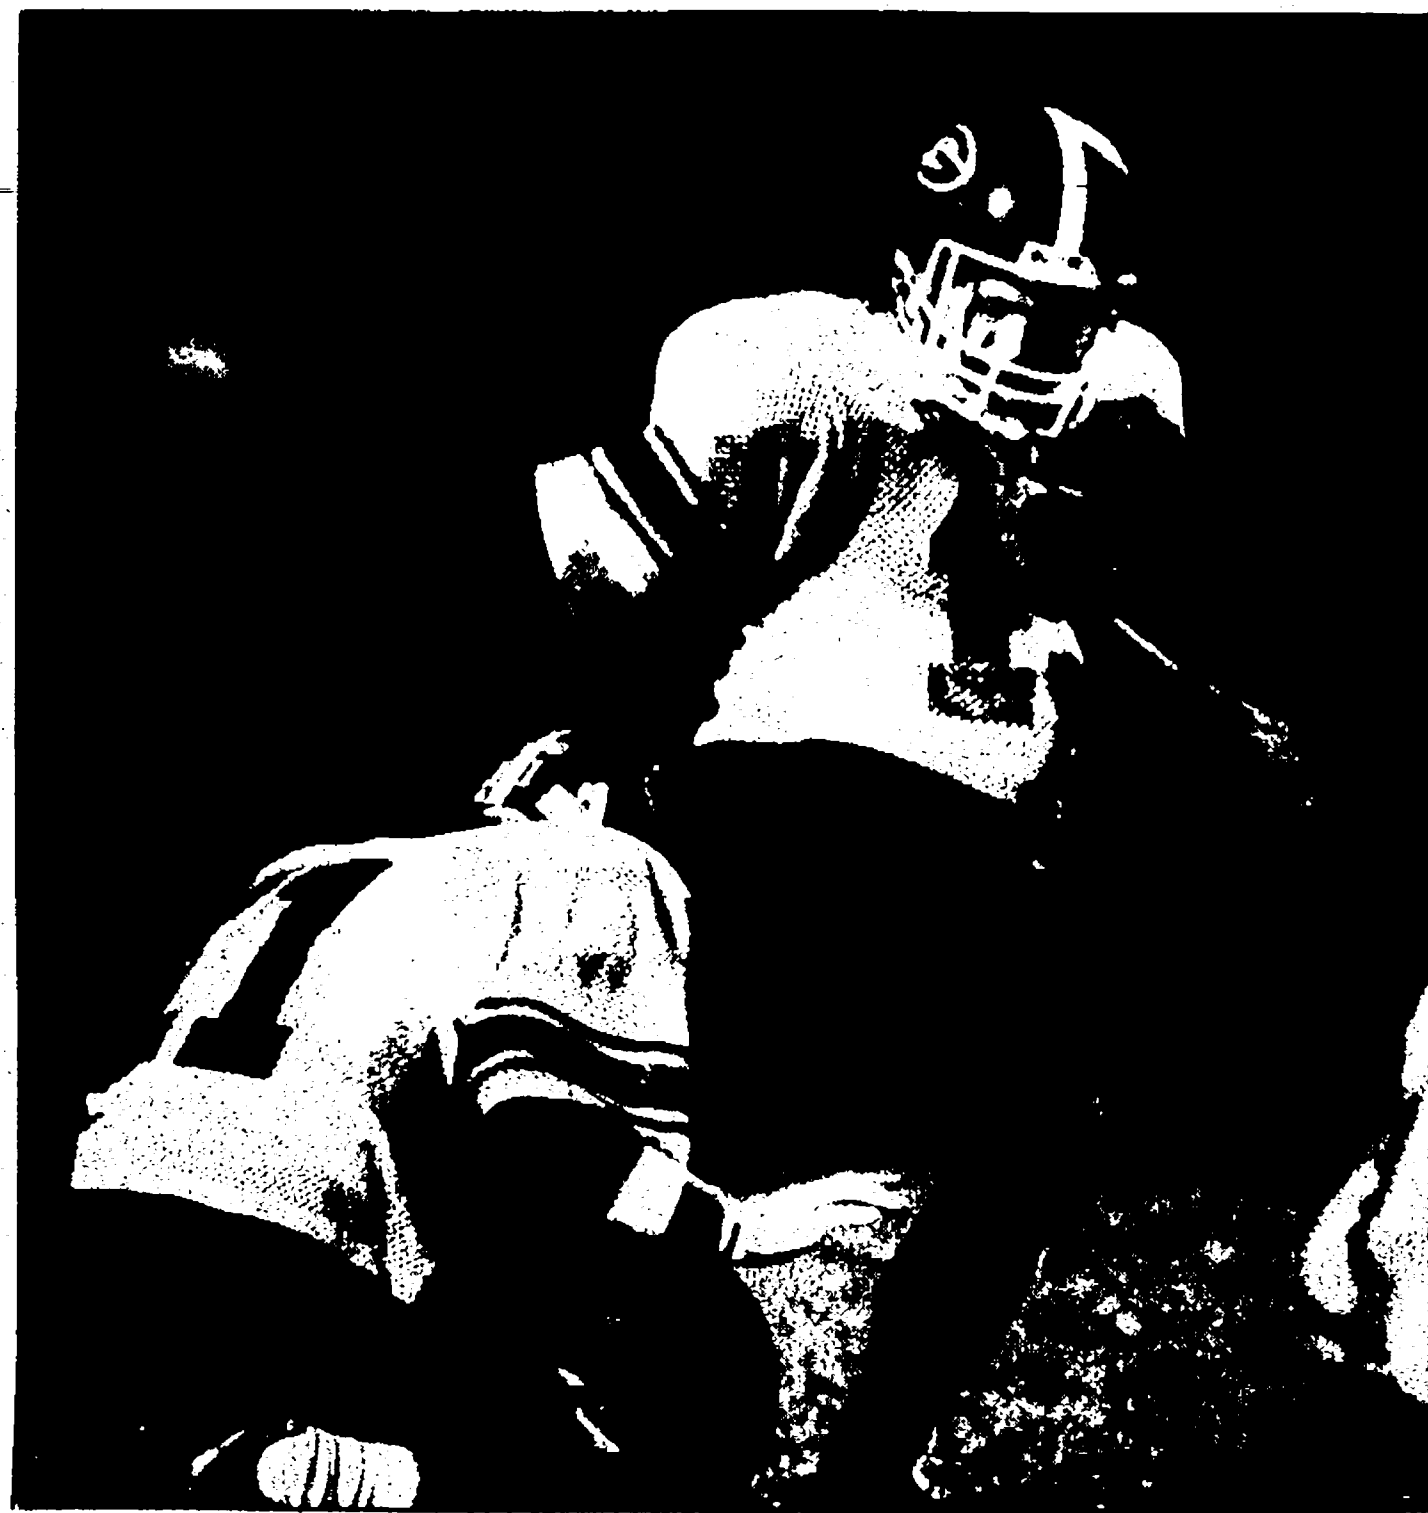

Myers comes to his new post at Farmington with a background that is different from those of most educators.

A YEAR after earning his education degree, Myers entered the Duke University Law School, transferring later to the University of Michigan Law School and completing his juris doctorate studies at Wayne State University.

Football players in the Wayne-Westland school district will have to pay a fee to compete this fall. The move comes after voters defeated school millage renewal and increase measures twice this year.

Fee plan could hurt programs

By Ralph R. Echlinau
staff writer

Participation in Wayne-Westland schools extracurricular activities may drop 10 to 30 percent this year, primarily in sports, based on the history of other school districts.

Since local voters rejected a millage increase and renewal twice this year, school officials established a pay-to-play program for athletics, marching band, instrumental music and vocal music. There is no fee for other extracurricular activities.

Officials contacted many of the 22

Michigan school districts with pay-to-play programs to see how they managed.

The other districts reported 10 to 30 percent less participation when pay-to-play took effect, associate superintendent William Harvey said.

"We're optimistic it's going to go well," Harvey said. "(But) if we have a 30-percent reduction, that could be a problem."

PAY-FOR-PLAY MEANS parents must pay a fee to get their children into extracurricular activities.

Wayne-Westland school district parents who have children in athletic programs or the marching band have a decision to make this year.

Will they pay $210 per child per sport so a juvenile athletic or musical career can continue? Or will they tell their children, "Sorry, you can't play this year?"

The school district put all athletic programs and marching band on a pay-to-play basis last June after a millage increase request failed. Parents of athletes or musicians now must pay for their children's membership on school teams or in the marching band.

JOHN GLENN High School football player Brian Faunce said he worked on his grandfather's cherry farm this summer to raise his $210.

"If that's the only way we can play football, that's all you can do," he said. "I'm pretty sure almost everybody (on the team) is going to pay to play. It hasn't really discouraged a lot of people I know."

Teammate Zak Purdon echoed Faunce.

Board candidates talk crime, drugs

Crime and fighting drugs dominated the discussion among three Democrats campaigning in Tuesday's primary to be the next 12th District county commissioner.

The county must attack the root causes of crime, said commissioner Kay Beard, seeking a seventh two-year term. One possibility is to provide parenting classes for single mothers.

The voters' approval of a 1-mill property tax increase last year for construction of new jail facilities displayed "overwhelming vote of confidence" for the board, Beard said.

More drug enforcement and education programs must be financed since drugs are "destroying our young adults," said Terri Reighard Johnson, a Westland city councilwoman.

As a council member, she supported the planned DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program through the Westland Police Department, she said.

Man ordered to trial to face sex charges

By Ralph R. Echlinau
staff writer

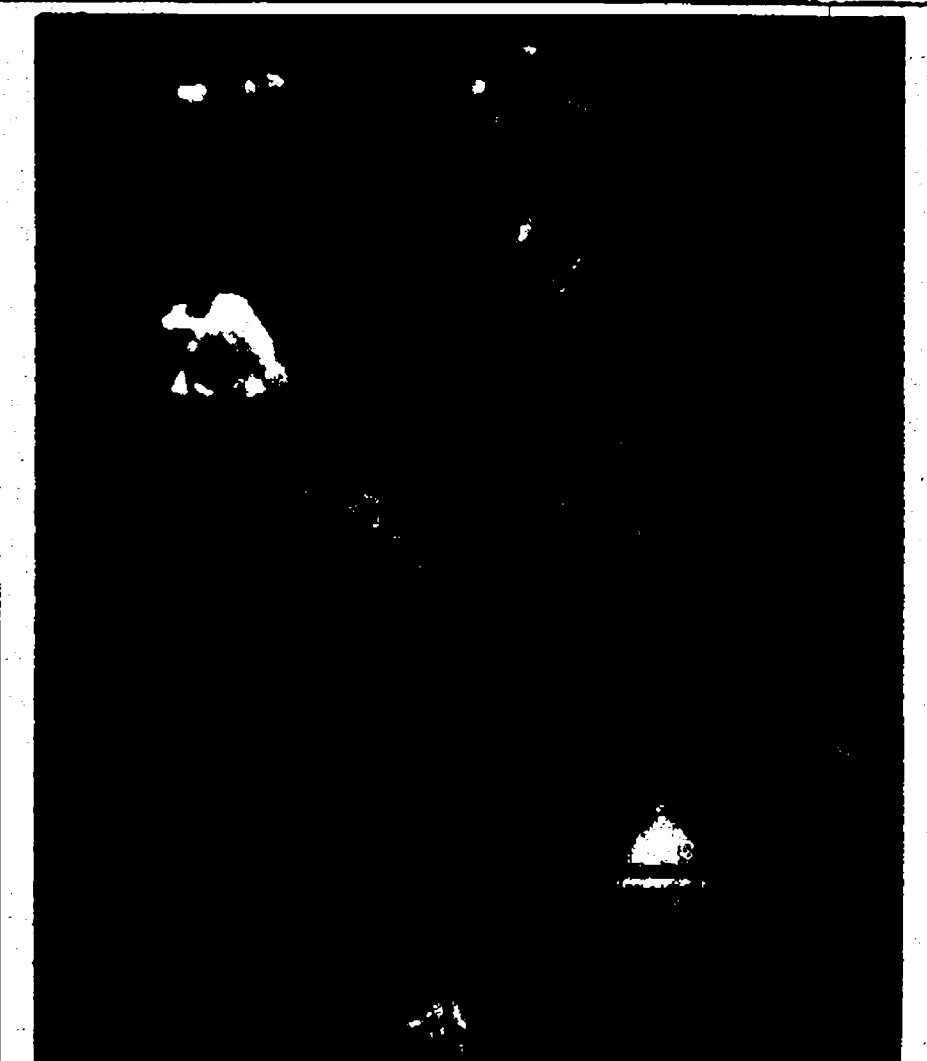

A Livonia man accused of sexually assaulting a 10-year-old Westland girl was bound over to Recorder's Court Thursday after his preliminary exam in 18th District Court.

Michael Harvey Clark, 18, is charged with three counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct and one count of second degree criminal sexual conduct. He could be sentenced to life in prison if convicted of first degree CSC.

The girl told District Judge Thomas Smith that Clark assaulted her on two occasions between May and December last year. Both times she was staying overnight at a friend's house.

Cole-Michael Young of Westland shared first-place honors in a lip synch contest, part of a beach party promotion recently at Wonderland Mall. The boy, 8, a student at Hayes Elementary School in Westland, performed to the music of "LaBamba" in the "oldies" category. He shared a $50 gift certificate prize with co-winner George Wheeler of South Lyon.

In 1974, he was an assistant Washtenaw County prosecuting attorney. A year later, he returned to education as an administrative assistant in the Wayne-Westland school district's employee services department. He was promoted to Stevenson Junior High School assistant principal in 1977 and to the same position at Glenn High in 1982.

Myers, a Canton Township resident, earlier taught math and science at Stevenson and was promoted to math department chairman.

When named Wayne County's outstanding high school principal this spring, several students praised him not only as an educator but also as a friend.

The Wayne-Westland school district is "saddened" to lose Myers, said Thomas Svitkovich, associate superintendent of administration.

Myers "was an extremely talented administrator" with a statewide reputation, he said.

The resignation brings to five the number of administrators who have left in recent months for higher-paying positions and shorter work weeks, Svitkovich added.

"THIS IS an indicator of what we said" during the February and June millage campaigns that an election defeat would lead to resignations of key administrators.

The Glenn principalship will be posted through Aug. 16, Svitkovich said, and a committee will screen and interview candidates and then recommend one or more to Superintendent Dennis O'Neill, who will then ask the board of education to confirm his choice.

A 27-YEAR-OLD Westland woman sprayed Mace on two 19-year-old women at 8:40 p.m. Tuesday in an apartment building on the 33000 block of Trafalgar.

The three women had been fighting in the hallway. The 27-year-old told police the younger women accused her of turning one of them in for child neglect, then attacked her, pulling out her hair and hitting her in the face.

The younger women told police the older woman attacked them first. No arrests were made, but police warned the women to stay away from each other.

A WESTLAND man's precautions kept his riding lawn mower from being stolen Tuesday as a thief was unable to cut through the cable that tethered the machine to a garage floor. A 69-year-old resident of the 8700 block of Liberty told police an identical mower was stolen from his garage last March. The thief, however, got away with two weed whackers this time.

WESTLAND POLICE ticketed a 20-year-old Wayne man at 1:53 a.m. Thursday for having a set of nun-chucks, a martial arts weapon comprised of two wooden sticks with a chain between them, in his truck. The man was stopped originally for following another vehicle too closely. The nun-chucks were confiscated.

A THIEF or thieves with a taste for fishing equipment stole a bunch of it from a 55-year-old Westland man's 19-foot Starcraft boat in the 100 block of Linville last week.

The man reported the following items stolen: radio, tackle box, rods, reels, anchor, tool box, propeller and a portable toilet.

A BREAK-IN was foiled last Tuesday in the 38000 block of Deer Creek, likely by the thief's incompetence. A 50-year-old woman showed police where the thief had entered the garage through an unlocked door and tried unsuccessfully to get the house door open.

The thief also punched a hole in the drywall, apparently attempting to unlock the door from inside. This also failed.

Board hopefuls discuss crime, drugs

Officers should be reassigned from routine county jail duties, such as serving meals to inmates, and put "on the street or into task forces" to fight crime, said Hilliard Hampton Jr., a county sheriff's deputy.

THE THREE Democrats, campaigning to represent the district that includes Garden City, Westland and Inkster, appeared Thursday morning at a Westland Chamber of Commerce legislative breakfast.

About 25 people attended the program, which also had Republican Gerald Cox of Garden City commenting about issues.

Cox, a former Schoolcraft College trustee in the early 1970s, is opposed in his party's primary. He will face the Democratic nominee on the Nov. 6 ballot.

JOHNSON WAS questioned about her running for a county board seat after serving only seven months of a four-year city council term.

She didn't intend to seek the county post until this spring when friends and supporters urged her to do so, she said.

At first, she questioned the timing of her entering the race against Beard. But Johnson insisted that she is "not a career politician or opportunist," a criticism made by opponents this summer because she also resigned from the Wayne-Westland school board before the end of her term to run for the Westland City Council.

In other comments, Johnson complained about the condition of county roads, jail overcrowding, and financing for a regional transit system for senior citizens.

BEARD SAID that she devotes her full-time energies to her job and that she has the experience and background to be an effective commissioner. She was named to a vacancy 12 years ago and then returned for six terms.

Emphasizing her independence, Beard said she fought a losing battle in the mid-1980s in trying to retain the county hospital under public management. It was later sold to a consortium to four Detroit area hospitals.

The former county hospital was western Wayne County's only trauma center with two airports, an interstate freeway and numerous industrial plants in the area.

HAMPTON, AN Inkster resident, urged that the county do more to attract economic developments and new jobs for his hometown, particularly for the Inkster Road-Middlebelt corner.

He said that there is a definite struggle between Detroit and its suburbs and that an independent voice on the board is needed to represent the suburbs' interests.

Cox favors gun controls, opposes capital punishment, and is pro-choice on the abortion issue, he said. The county board doesn't work together as a team, he said.

Man to be tried on sex charges

The girl said she was sleeping in her friend's waterbed when she heard her friend's 17-year-old sister and Clark arrive and begin to kiss each other downstairs.

The duo soon came to the bedroom and continued to kiss each other on the bed the girl was sleeping in. Before long, the girl said, Clark turned his attention to the 10-year-old.

HE FORCED her to have sex with him, the girl testified, while the 17-year-old girl hit him on the back and said, "She's a little girl. Leave her alone."

A second, almost identical incident allegedly took place a number of days later, after which the girl ran downstairs and slept on the couch, she said.

The last assault occurred no later than December 1989, but authorities weren't notified until last month when the girl told her school principal what happened, she said.

The girl is in the Wayne-Westland school district's special education program.

The girl's mother and her friend's mother are single parents. The friend's mother was away both evenings the alleged assaults took place in her home.

Wayne County Assistant Prosecutor Maria Oxholm told Judge Smith that one witness said Clark phoned her and made a death threat. Smith told Clark not to talk to the witnesses.

Clark is scheduled to be arraigned Aug. 16 in Recorder's Court. His $10,000 bond was continued and he remains free.

I'm Sorry, Kay, but . . .

An open letter from Terri Reighard Johnson to Kay Beard

I'm sorry, Kay, that the facts put before the voters of the 12th District have upset you so much. But, I never dreamed that making public the true and verifiable facts of your record as county commissioner would cause you to put out campaign literature containing many distortions.

As you know, we did check the facts before we revealed that you have voted to increase your own part-time salary by nearly $10,000 a year — to $41,396. Official documents also verify you have voted to increase commission pay and benefits for 12 years running.

Official vouchers show that your trips to Las Vegas and other travel centers added up to $21,790 for 38 trips over the last 8 years.

I wish you had paid as much attention to the truth before putting out malicious literature claiming there was something wrong in the way the county purchased trucks from my family's business.

You didn't say that Reighard Trucking was the lowest of many bidders. You didn't reveal to voters that KAY BEARD VOTED IN FAVOR OF EVERY CONTRACT AWARDED TO REIGHARD TRUCKING.

I think this episode shows the difference in our approach to government service. I will trust in the wisdom of voters not to be fooled by distortions and trickery.

All I ask voters to do on Tuesday is to decide which candidate best shares their values and priorities.

Sincerely,
Terri Reighard Johnson

Pete "Mad Cat" Ruth entertained hundreds of youngsters.

AN ESTIMATED 450 youngsters enjoyed entertainment, stuffed animals, and food, thanks to the Wayne-Westland Library and the Wayne Civitan Club.

The children were treated Friday to the fun as part of the annual conclusion of the six-week summer reading program, held to encourage youngsters to read.

Kevin Hutchinson, children's librarian, said the Civitans and the library staff organized the program, held in the Wayne Community Center.

On hand was Pete "Mad Cat" Ruth, a musician who used to perform with the world-famed Dave Brubeck jazz group. Ruth played his harmonica, guitar and his detergent bottle for his audience.

Youngsters who completed the reading program received certificates with those with the most books under their belt winning stuffed animals.

Hutchinson said a Wayne Hardware's, White Castle plus the Friends of the Public Library provided help for the program.

"Mother Bear" (really Liz Parr of Westland) cuddles Christina Bradley, 3, during the Friday library program. The youngster is from California and was visiting her grandmother in Westland.

The show was held in the mall July 24-29 and was judged by Observer & Eccentric photographer Art Emanuel of Livonia and photographer Joseph Benyo of Westland.

In the black-and-white category, Ernest Dodsworth of Dearborn was first-place winner, Leo Price of Livonia was second, and Thomas

Local business saves swan in tangle

By Joanne Maliszewski
staff writer

Frick didn't sing her swan song, thanks to a Westland's Critter Control business and Garden City veterinarian Dr. Stuart Morrison.

As matter of fact — to just about everyone's delight — the only thing wounded about Frick was her pride Tuesday evening when Farmington Hills residents of Fairmont Park apartments discovered the stately swan entangled in a fishing line.

"Apparently someone had been fishing in the pond and either lost or cut the line," complex manager David Chapman said. "The line was protruding from her mouth and wrapped under one leg. She couldn't lower her mouth down to eat."

Critter Control Inc., which has an office on Warren Road at Venoy, retrieved the 35-pound swan — one of two swans in the pond — and took her to Dr. Morrison.

"We suspected she had swallowed the hook, which would have been potentially serious," Morrison said. "We checked her throat and we couldn't detect any line or hook."

BUT AFTER SOME tests and X-rays, Frick, with her three-foot-long neck, was returned to the pond Thursday morning with her buddy Frack. "We all got along pretty well. She was very distressed. But I think it hurt her pride more than anything."

mont Park in the spring and summer months. In the winter, they vacation in the middle of the state.

"We have quite a few residents who venture down to the pond. The swans are domesticated enough that you can get relatively close to them," Chapman said.

Will the real Frick please stand up? No one is quite certain which is Frick or Frack. But after a harrowing experience entangled in fishing line, Frick has been returned to her pond with Frack at apartments in Farmington Hills. A Westland business came to her rescue.

Man ordered to trial on fireworks, gun charges

A Southfield man accused of possessing illegal fireworks and a concealed weapon was bound over to Detroit Recorder's Court Thursday after his preliminary exam in 18th District Court.

Westland police say Jeffrey Stephen Schmideberg, 41, sold fireworks to an undercover police officer July 3 at a 35966 Ford Rd. business.

Arson Investigator Robert Perry

arrested Schmideberg the same day. Perry testified Thursday that Schmideberg removed a two-shot, 38-caliber, chrome Derringer from his back pocket and tossed it on a shelf when told he was under arrest.

Schmideberg is charged with possession of fireworks, a misdemeanor punishable by up to 90 days in jail, and carrying a concealed weapon, a felony punishable by up to five years in prison or a $2,500 fine.

The defendant is free on a $25,000 bond. He has two prior firearm convictions and is scheduled to be arraigned Aug. 16 in Recorder's Court. Perry said the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms is also investigating the case.

Six other people in the store when Schmideberg was arrested were charged with possession of fireworks.

Pay-to-play plan to start

The district set prices last spring for extracurricular activities based on the cost of an activity, such as a football team, divided by the projected number of participants.

If the number of participants is less than officials predicted, the pay-to-play fee won't cover that activity's cost.

The fee won't be raised if that should happen, Harvey said, but the district will be forced to raise the extra money somehow or cancel the program.

VOCAL AND instrumental music programs are not expected to be severely affected, considering the fees are $22 for junior high students and $32 for high school students.

Athletic and marching band fees, however, are significantly higher: $210 for all high school sports, marching band and cheerleading; $142 for junior high sports and marching band.

"No one likes it," Wayne-Memorial High School Principal Ronald Stratton said. "No one wants to do it. But it's the only way we could offer the program."

THE TOTAL cost of all the pay-to-play programs was about $500,000 last year, when all district property owners paid for school sports regardless of whether they had a child participating.

Of about 8,000 children enrolled in Wayne-Westland secondary schools last year, 750 (or just under 10 percent) participated in extracurricular activities. Harvey reported "numerous inquiries from parents" about pay-to-play, most of them questions about the criteria used to establish fees.

While it's too soon to predict now what the various levels of participation will be, Harvey said he should know more in two weeks. (Football practice begins Aug. 13.)

"I think we'll be OK," John Glenn High School football coach Chuck Gordon said. "(But) we may lose some kids. We really won't know until practice starts."

Gordon's primary worry, however, concerns what is truly important. "I'm more concerned about what's happening to our district education-wise," he said. "The millage problem is going to affect everybody."

Reaction to play-to-play

"We've got to do what we've got to do," he said. "I don't think we should be having to pay to play the sport, but I love the team I'm on. We understand that because the millage went down, we have to pay."

SCHOOL DISTRICT officials should have trimmed the budget in other places and left athletics alone, said Tim Purdon, Zak's father.

He suggested eliminating the busing program and kindergarten and cutting first and second grade back to half days. Those first three grades are just baby-sitting functions anyway, he said.

"They have to cut things to affect more people if they expect people to vote for these (millages)," he said. "It would have gotten more reaction from people. In the long run, all the (athletic) programs are going to be hurt."

Purdon also has a daughter in gymnastics. He's worried the gymnastics program will be canceled for lack of parents willing to pay the price.

CAROL MRUK has a daughter, Cathy, who is a John Glenn basketball and softball player. Son David plays football and basketball in junior high. She plans to pay the price for both of her children.

"(Cathy has) got all the skills and she enjoys it and to take it away from her would be a big mistake," Mruk said. "I'm all for (paying) as long as she can play, but it's unfortunate the millage didn't pass."

In the long-term, pay-to-play will keep children out of athletics, Mruk said.

"I think the ones already into it are so committed to it they couldn't get out of it," she said.

But for children not yet in the secondary schools, many of their parents will not be willing to pay when decision time comes, Mruk said.

LINDA RACHWAL, mother of JGHS basketball and softball player Carrie, agreed.

"By the time my daughter is a senior, it's going to be rock bottom," she said. "Each year it's going to get worse until there's nothing at all."

"There are a lot of kids who are good in sports who won't have the opportunity to play because they don't have the money. I've heard parents say they would like their kids to play, but they can't afford it. I feel like it's cheating the kids."

Rachwal's husband, Dennis, will seriously consider sending 10-year-old daughter Erin to private secondary schools so she can play sports if pay-to-play continues, he said.

KARAN FILES, mother of Wayne-Memorial High School football player Joe Files, will pay so Joe can play, but not gladly.

"It's supposed to be one of the best years of his schooling and all of a sudden you have to pay to do this," she said.

"People who have more than one kid are going to have serious problems. You would think these people (who voted no on the millage) would have feelings about educating the children."

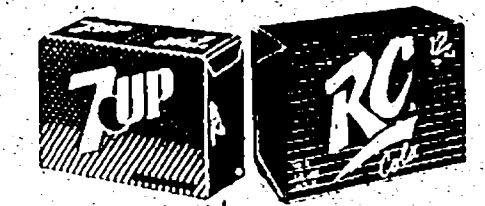

Linda Jimenez, Glenn's volleyball and softball coach, said she anticipates friction from parents who pay for their children, then expect them to get a certain amount of playing time.

"I'm not looking forward to (parents saying), 'My daughter paid to play so she should play,'" she said. "That's going to be kind of sticky there."

Good grades Citizen group gives incumbents an edge

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Which candidates are in the searchlight?

Civic Searchlight, a non-partisan citizens group, has issued its evaluations for contested races in tomorrow's state primary.

In races of interest to area residents, incumbent state representatives Justine Barnes, John Bennett, James Kosteva and Gerald Law all received the organization's highest endorsement — preferred and well qualified — in their races against challengers.

Civic Searchlight's other rankings, in order, include well qualified and qualified.

Bennett's challengers in the 34th District Democratic Party primary, James Bailey and Frank Bradley Jr., were each rated as qualified for election in the Redford/eastern Livonia district. The winner will meet GOP candidate Mark Steinhauer in the fall.

AMONG OTHER races:

• Robert Bell of Romulus, who is challenging Kosteva in the 37th District Democratic race, and David Hayter of Westland, challenging Barnes in the 38th District, were not evaluated.

Neither responded to the Civic Searchlight questionnaire. In interviews with Observer reporters, both men linked themselves to political extremist Lyndon LaRouche.

The winner of the Kosteva/Bell race will meet Republican Dolores Carmichael in the fall. The winner of the Barnes/Hayter race will meet Republican Kenneth Raupp.

The 37th district includes western Canton, the 38th includes Westland.

• GOP candidate Kathleen Keen-McCarthy of Plymouth also wasn't evaluated in her 38th District race against Law. The winner will meet Democrat Dennis Shrewsbury in the fall.

The district includes Plymouth, Plymouth Township and eastern Canton.

OTHER AREA Incumbents, Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, and William Keith, D-Garden City, are running unopposed in their parties' primaries. Bankes will meet Democrat R. Karl Burnett in the fall. Keith will meet Republican Donald Mullett. State representatives serve for two years. Their annual salary is $45,450.

Incumbents' ratings weren't increased because their challengers weren't evaluated, a spokesman for the Detroit-based organization said.

"We rank candidates on how much they know about government," said Civic Searchlight executive director William O'Brien.

IN COUNTY commission races:

• Incumbents Kay Beard, D-Inkster, and Kevin Kelley, D-Redford, were given the preferred and well qualified ratings in their party's primary.

Willard Hampton Jr. of Inkster, one of Beard's three challengers in the 12th district race, received the qualified rating.

Other challengers Terri Reighard Johnson of Westland, who received The Observer's endorsement, and Deborah Miller of Garden City weren't evaluated.

"They didn't respond to the questionnaire," O'Brien said.

Former state representative Jack Legel of Detroit, Kelley's opponent, received the qualified rating.

• Linda Chuhnan and Victor Gustafson, candidates in the area's lone GOP commission primary, were also not evaluated. Both seek to oppose incumbent Milton Mack, D-Wayne. The district includes Canton.

County commissioners serve for two years. They received $29,970 in the past year.

FOUNDED IN Detroit in 1912, Civic Searchlight evaluates candidates based on questionnaires and a follow-up interview.

Though it first evaluated Detroit and Wayne County candidates only, the organization has branched out into Oakland County as well. Since 1988, it has also evaluated Macomb County candidates.

Incumbents generally receive the organization's highest rating, though O'Brien said that isn't by design.

"We've heard that criticism," he said. "But we've found many challengers to be deficient, both in community service and in knowledge of how government works."

"Frankly, there's nothing we'd like to see better than a field of well-qualified challengers."

Probate court candidates are also rated

Civic Searchlight has issued evaluations in the Wayne County Probate court race, in addition to state and county races.

Probate Court referee Patricia B. Campbell has received the organization's preferred and well-qualified rating.

Thirty Sixth District Court magistrate Robert K. Costello was deemed well qualified.

Peter E. Bec, Carolyn Blanchard, William Leo Cahalan Jr. and Sean Patrick Kavanagh were judged qualified.

Campbell, 58, is a Detroit resident and has been an attorney for 15 years. She is a former Wayne County assistant prosecutor.

Probate Court referee Patricia B. Campbell has received Civic Searchlight's preferred and well-qualified rating.

Costello, 44, also lives in Detroit, and has been an attorney for 13 years.

Bec, 48, lives in Plymouth. A former Southgate Municipal Court judge, he has been an attorney for 20 years.

Blanchard, 38, is a Northville resident. She has been an attorney for 10 years.

Cahalan, 32, is a Grosse Ile resident. He has been an attorney for three years.

Kavanagh, 32, is a Livonia resident. A former 16th District Court magistrate, he has been an attorney for seven years.

Voters may choose only one of the six candidates in the Tuesday, Aug. 7 primary. The two top vote-getters will meet in the fall.

The new judge will serve an eight-year term. The annual salary is $91,807.

S'craft ponders building's cost

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

There are only two questions left, officials said, regarding Schoolcraft College's new student services center.

How much will it cost? And how much will have to come out of the college's own pocket?

College officials are drafting a proposal seeking state funding for the estimated $4.85 million building.

"If I had to make a proposal right of this minute, I'd say we'd be asking for somewhere in the vicinity of $2.5 million," business services vice president Adalard Raby III said. "But that could change at any time."

The college hopes to have the state pay for at least half the construction costs, Raby said. Detailed cost estimates are being compiled for presentation at the Aug. 22 college board meeting.

A financing request will then be sent to the state Bureau of Facilities if trustees approve, Raby said.

Though an answer would be expected from the state in September, Raby said it remains unclear whether the state would authorize the money for the 90-91 school year or for some later date.

THE NEW building will house business, registration, counseling and learning assistance offices, as well as a new student activities center.

Its design, roughly two separate two-story buildings connected by a one-story central walkway, drew no criticism from trustees during a recent study session.

Trustees, in fact, said the sky was the limit — at least for now.

"At this point we don't know what the revenue will be," trustee Michael Burley said. "But this is what we'd like to build."

As part of the discussion, trustees also considered replacing the college's current food service program with a contract with a fast food chain. College officials, however, generally believe the Schoolcraft cafeteria's daily volume too small to attract a major chain.

The college is committed to a 57,000-square-foot student services building — roughly two-thirds the size of the college Radcliff Center in Garden City.

"It could be made a little smaller, but not much," Raby said.

The new student center is expected to open in 1993. It will consolidate services currently provided in a series of small houses along Haggerty Road, south of Schoolcraft's main campus in Livonia — including the Women's Resource Center. The houses will be torn down.

Madonna gains grant

Madonna College has received a five-year $125,000 grant from Michigan Bell to support the college's computer writing lab.

The laboratory is designed to boost students' language skills through reading and writing assignments.

Madonna is completing plans for a new Macintosh computer laboratory. The laboratory is expected to serve 720 students in its first year alone.

THE INTESTINAL TRACT & ARTHRITIS
A link exists between arthritis and the intestinal tract. A condition of the small bowel — Crohn Disease, and one of the large bowel — Ulcerative Colitis — are associated with an arthritis that can involve the knees, ankles, hips, and the lower back.
The reason for this relation between the intestines and the joints has not been fully worked out. However, it appears that inflammation of the bowel releases protein material into the blood stream; this protein tends to lodge in the weight bearing joints such as the knee and ankle. The protein, not usually present in the circulation, is seen by the body as a foreign substance. The lymph node system reacts by making antibodies to these proteins, and in turn the antibodies attack the intestinal proteins at their sites in the weight bearing joints. The result is inflammation in the joints with attendant swelling and pain.
Treatment for the arthritis includes the usual measures of anti-inflammatory medication and removal of excess joint fluid; in flares of the arthritis, high doses of oral cortisone often are effective. In addition, the physician must undertake therapy for the bowel problem. Treatment only for the joint inflammation or the intestinal condition alone will not suffice.

Man ordered to trial on fireworks, gun charges

A Southfield man accused of possessing illegal fireworks and a concealed weapon was bound over to Detroit Recorder's Court Thursday after his preliminary exam in 18th District Court.

Westland police say Jeffrey Stephen Schimideberg, 41, sold fireworks to an undercover police officer July 3 at a 35966 Ford Rd. business.

Arson Investigator Robert Perry

arrested Schimideberg the same day. Perry testified Thursday that Schimideberg removed a two-shot, .38-caliber, chrome Derringer from his back pocket and tossed it on a shelf when told he was under arrest.

Schimideberg is charged with possession of fireworks, a misdemeanor punishable by up to 90 days in jail, and carrying a concealed weapon, a felony punishable by up to five years in prison or a $2,500 fine.

The defendant is free on a $25,000 bond. He has two prior firearm convictions and is scheduled to be arraigned Aug. 16 in Recorder's Court. Perry said the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms is also investigating the case.

Six other people in the store when Schimideberg was arrested were charged with possession of fireworks.

Pay-to-play plan to start

The district set prices last spring for extracurricular activities based on the cost of an activity, such as a football team, divided by the projected number of participants.

If the number of participants is less than officials predicted, the pay-to-play fee won't cover that activity's cost.

The fee won't be raised if that should happen, Harvey said, but the district will be forced to raise the extra money somehow or cancel the program.

VOCAL AND instrumental music programs are not expected to be severely affected, considering the fees are $22 for junior high students and $32 for high school students.

Athletic and marching band fees, however, are significantly higher: $210 for all high school sports, marching band and cheerleading; $142 for junior high sports and marching band.

"No one likes it," Wayne-Memorial High School Principal Ronald Stratton said. "No one wants to do it. But it's the only way we could offer the program."

THE TOTAL cost of all the pay-to-play programs was about $500,000 last year, when all district property owners paid for school sports regardless of whether they had a child participating.

Of about 8,000 children enrolled in Wayne-Westland secondary schools last year, 750 (or just under 10 percent) participated in extracurricular activities. Harvey reported "numerous inquiries from parents" about pay-to-play, most of them questions about the criteria used to establish fees.

While it's too soon to predict now what the various levels of participation will be, Harvey said he should know more in two weeks. (Football practice begins Aug. 13.)

"I think we'll be OK," John Glenn High School football coach Chuck Gordon said. "(But) we may lose some kids. We really won't know until practice starts."

Gordon's primary worry, however, concerns what is truly important.

"I'm more concerned about what's happening to our district education-wise," he said. "The millage problem is going to affect everybody."

Reaction to play-to-play

"We've got to do what we've got to do," he said. "I don't think we should be having to pay to play the sport, but I love the team I'm on. We understand that because the millage went down, we have to pay."

SCHOOL DISTRICT officials should have trimmed the budget in other places and left athletics alone, said Tim Purdon, Zak's father.

He suggested eliminating the busing program and kindergarten and cutting first and second grade back to half days. Those first three grades are just baby-sitting functions anyway, he said.

"They have to cut things to affect more people if they expect people to vote for these (millages)," he said. "It would have gotten more reaction from people. In the long run, all the (athletic) programs are going to be hurt."

Purdon also has a daughter in gymnastics. He's worried the gymnastics program will be canceled for lack of parents willing to pay the price.

CAROL MRUK has a daughter, Cathy, who is a John Glenn basketball and softball player. Son David plays football and basketball in junior high. She plans to pay the price for both of her children.

"(Cathy) has got all the skills and she enjoys it and to take it away from her would be a big mistake," Mruk said. "I'm all for (paying) as long as she can play, but it's unfortunate the millage didn't pass."

In the long term, pay-to-play will keep children out of athletics, Mruk said.

"I think the ones already into it are so committed to it they couldn't get out of it," she said.

But for children not yet in the secondary schools, many of their parents will not be willing to pay when decision time comes, Mruk said.

LINDA RACHWAL, mother of JGHS basketball and softball player Carrie, agreed.

"By the time my daughter is a senior, it's going to be rock bottom," she said. "Each year it's going to get worse until there's nothing at all."

"There are a lot of kids who are good in sports who won't have the opportunity to play because they don't have the money. I've heard parents say they would like their kids to play, but they can't afford it. I feel like it's cheating the kids."

Rachwal's husband, Dennis, will seriously consider sending 10-year-old daughter Erin to private secondary schools so she can play sports if pay-to-play continues, he said.

KARAN FILES, mother of Wayne-Memorial High School football player Joe Files, will pay so Joe can play, but not gladly.

"It's supposed to be one of the best years of his schooling and all of a sudden you have to pay to do this," she said.

"People who have more than one kid are going to have serious problems. You would think these people (who voted no on the millage) would have feelings about educating the children."

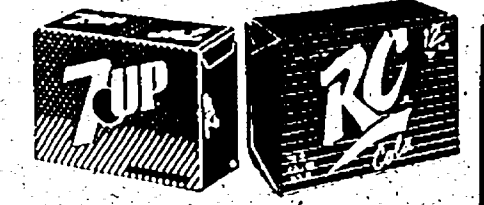

Linda Jiminez, Glenn's volleyball and softball coach, said she anticipates friction from parents who pay for their children, then expect them to get a certain amount of playing time.

"I'm not looking forward to (parents) saying, 'My daughter paid to play so she should play,'" she said. "That's going to be kind of sticky there."

• Incumbents Kay Beard, D-Inkster, and Kevin Kelley, D-Redford, were given the preferred and well qualified ratings in their party's primary.

Hilliard Hampton Jr. of Inkster, one of Beard's three challengers in the 12th district race, received the qualified rating.

Other challengers Terri Reighard Johnson of Westland, who received The Observer's endorsement, and Deborah Miller of Garden City weren't evaluated.

"They didn't respond to the questionnaire," O'Brien said.

Former state representative Jack Legel of Detroit, Kelley's opponent, received the qualified rating.

• Linda Chuhnan and Victor Gustafson, candidates in the area's lone GOP commission primary, were also not evaluated. Both seek to oppose incumbent Milton Mack, D-Wayne. The district includes Canton.

County commissioners serve for two years. They received $29,970 in the past year.

FOUNDED IN Detroit in 1912, Civic Searchlight evaluates candidates based on questionnaires and a follow-up interview.

Though it first evaluated Detroit and Wayne County candidates only, the organization has branched out into Oakland County as well. Since 1988, it has also evaluated Macomb County candidates.

Incumbents generally receive the organization's highest rating, though O'Brien said that isn't by design.

"We've heard that criticism," he said. "But we've found many challengers to be deficient, both in community service and in knowledge of how government works."

"Frankly, there's nothing we'd like to see better than a field of well-qualified challengers."

S'craft ponders building's cost

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

There are only two questions left, officials said, regarding Schoolcraft College's new student services center:

How much will it cost? And how much will have to come out of the college's own pocket?

College officials are drafting a proposal seeking state funding for the estimated $4.85 million building.

"If I had to make a proposal right of this minute, I'd say we'd be asking for somewhere in the vicinity of $2.5 million," business services vice president Adelard Raby III said. "But that could change at any time."

The college hopes to have the state pay for at least half the construction costs, Raby said. Detailed cost estimates are being compiled for presentation at the Aug. 22 college board meeting.

A financing request will then be sent to the state Bureau of Facilities if trustees approve, Raby said.

Though an answer would be expected from the state in September, Raby said it remains unclear whether the state would authorize the money for the 90-91 school year or for some later date.

THE NEW building will house business, registration, counseling and learning assistance offices, as well as a new student activities center.

Its design, roughly two separate two-story buildings connected by a one-story central walkway, drew no criticism from trustees during a recent study session.

Trustees, in fact, said the sky was the limit — at least for now. "At this point we don't know what the revenue will be," trustee Michael Burley said. "But this is what we'd like to build."

As part of the discussion, trustees also considered replacing the college's current food service program with a contract with a fast food chain. College officials, however, generally believe the Schoolcraft cafeteria's daily volume too small to attract a major chain.

The college is committed to a 57,000-square-foot student services building — roughly two-thirds the size of the college Radcliff Center in Garden City.

"It could be made a little smaller, but not much," Raby said.

The new student center is expected to open in 1993. It will consolidate services currently provided in a series of small houses along Haggerty Road, south of Schoolcraft's main campus in Livonia — including the Women's Resource Center. The houses will be torn down.

Probate court candidates are also rated

Civic Searchlight has issued evaluations in the Wayne County Probate court race, in addition to state and county races.

Probate Court referee Patricia B. Campbell has received the organization's preferred and well-qualified rating.

Thirty Sixth District Court magistrate Robert K. Costello was deemed well qualified.

Peter E. Bec, Carolyn Blanchard, William Leo Cahalan Jr. and Sean Patrick Kavanagh were judged qualified.

Campbell, 58, is a Detroit resident and has been an attorney for 15 years. She is a former Wayne County assistant prosecutor.

Probate Court referee Patricia B. Campbell has received Civic Searchlight's preferred and well-qualified rating.

Costello, 44, also lives in Detroit and has been an attorney for 13 years.

Bec, 48, lives in Plymouth. A former Southgate Municipal Court Judge, he has been an attorney for 20 years.

Blanchard, 38, is a Northville resident. She has been an attorney for 10 years.

Cahalan, 32, is a Grosse Ile resident. He has been an attorney for three years.

Kavanagh, 32, is a Livonia resident. A former 18th District Court magistrate, he has been an attorney for seven years.

Voters may choose only one of the six candidates in the Tuesday, Aug. 7 primary. The two top vote-getters will meet in the fall.

The new judge will serve an eight-year term. The annual salary is $91,807.

Madonna gains grant

Madonna College has received a five-year $125,000 grant from Michigan Bell to support the college's computer writing lab.

The laboratory is designed to boost students' language skills through reading and writing assignments.

Madonna is completing plans for a new Macintosh computer laboratory. The laboratory is expected to serve 720 students in its first year alone.

THE INTESTINAL TRACT & ARTHRITIS
A link exists between arthritis and the intestinal tract. A condition of the small bowel — Crohn Disease, and one of the large bowel — Ulcerative Colitis — are associated with an arthritis that can involve the knees, ankles, hips, and the lower back.
The reason for this relation between the intestines and the joints has not been fully worked out. However, it appears that inflammation of the bowel releases protein material into the blood stream; this protein tends to lodge in the weight bearing joints such as the knee and ankle. The protein, not usually present in the circulation, is seen by the body as a foreign substance. The lymph node system reacts by making antibodies to these proteins, and in turn the antibodies attack the intestinal proteins at their sites in the weight bearing joints. The result is inflammation in the joints with attendant swelling and pain.
Treatment for the arthritis includes the usual measures of anti-inflammatory medication and removal of excess joint fluid; in flares of the arthritis, high doses of oral cortisone often are effective. In addition, the physician must undertake therapy for the bowel problem. Treatment only for the joint inflammation or the intestinal condition alone will not suffice.

Education's challenge still to provide citizens for future

By John DiBiaggio
special writer

I often am asked about future challenges facing higher education, in Michigan and nationally. There are times when I want to respond as once did Casey Stengel, "I never make predictions, especially about the future." That, of course, is not an option.

So, as I begin my sixth year as president of Michigan State University, I will share some views about five challenges we face.

THE CHALLENGE OF INTEGRATION: Not long ago, at a time when governors stood in school house doors, this challenge referred to racial integration.

Surely, we need to do much more today to increase the presence of underrepresented groups on our nation's campuses. But that's not what I'm talking about here. The new integration calls colleges and universities to do a lot more to integrate knowledge. This integration calls us to integrate what we know, say, about elementary education with what we know about higher education. It calls us to integrate what we know about science with what we know about philosophy. It calls us to integrate the experiences of the private sector with the experiences of the public sector.

At MSU, we are approaching the new integration with an exciting reform of the curriculum, allowing students to approach their experience at MSU as education in the broadest sense, not as mere job preparation. We are providing students the opportunity to integrate social science with natural science, on-campus learning with international programs, mathematics with art.

THE CHALLENGE OF MANAGEMENT: There's the old joke about "education management" being self-contradictory. The management of higher education has been criticized over the years for allegedly being inefficient and wasteful. If that kind of criticism ever was valid, it certainly is not correct today.

Our challenge in an age of budget constraints and of aggressive competition for limited public dollars is to be goal-oriented stewards who require a proper balance between managerial efficiency and managerial effectiveness. I often quote management expert Peter Drucker who tells the difference: "Efficiency is concerned with doing things right; effectiveness is concerned with doing the right things." Frankly, education administrators often are not given enough credit for sound management practices.

At MSU, we are engaged in a significant management reform we call R-Cubed: Refocus, Rebalance, Refine. It involves a "parade of the acronyms," reform efforts along the banks of the Red Cedar in areas from admission requirements to life long learning: CRUE (Committee to Review Undergraduate Education); CORRAGE (the Council on the Review of Research and Graduate Education); APERTF (the Admissions Policy Entrance Requirement Task Force); PLUS (Planning a Lifelong Education System); IDEA (Institutional Diversity: Excellence in Action); and AMPS (Administration, Management and Support Program).

THE CHALLENGE OF DIVERSITY: I have said it repeatedly. Diversity—racial, ethnic, cultural, philosophical—is not only a salutary component of the life at MSU, it's a requirement of excellence at Michigan's land-grant university.

With the innovative 50-point MSU IDEA we are calling on MSU to celebrate diversity and to proclaim far and wide the benefits of pluralism. The multi-cultural gifts available at MSU and throughout society must be celebrated and proclaimed much more in the years to come. A few weeks ago, in a wonderful comment address at MSU, Lee Iacocca said that "Diversity is our country's greatest strength. And that is something we must never, ever forget."

Diversity isn't something we have to put up with; it's something we have to be proud of. We must see that our differences can be as unifying as our similarities.

Diversity isn't something we have to put up with; it's something we have to be proud of. We must see that our differences can be as unifying as our similarities, because those differences are what make each and every one of us unique. And the celebration of the unique American is central to our heritage.

THE CHALLENGE OF PARTNERSHIPS: One of our nation's pioneer educators, Ben Franklin, said on the occasion of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, "We must indeed all hang together or most assuredly we shall all hang separately."

In education today, we must forge new partnerships and strengthen existing ones. We all must hang together for the common good. The interdependence that exists between K-12 education and higher education must be accepted on all fronts.

Education is a lifelong endeavor, and the K-12/higher education partnership is a crucial one. Also crucial will be public higher education's partnerships with business and industry; with private education; with government on the local, state, and federal levels; and with the various other groups also seeking public support. The "new integration" I mentioned before must include the integration of the best thinking from members of all these groups.

THE CHALLENGE OF CITIZENSHIP: We all have seen the studies showing alleged "cultural illiteracy" among young Americans.

From lack of knowledge about international affairs to lack of understanding of U.S. history, young people are being portrayed as members of a "Now Society," a generation that cares only what is in vogue now and that thinks little about the past or the future.

I am not talking about a minimal comprehension of facts (who was the first Chief Justice of the United States? Define "Pacific Rim." What happened at Yalta?) that will prohibit students from doing well on Jeopardy. I am talking about a lack of knowledge that will ultimately produce poor citizens in the 21st century.

If studies are correct and most students can't tell what the Magna Carta was or where Hungary is on a map, then we must be about the business of improving cultural literacy before it is too late. If a student can't define "apartheid," how can she appreciate the visit of Nelson Mandela? If a student has no idea when or why the Berlin Wall was built, how can he understand what is going on in Eastern Europe in 1990? We are obligated to provide the next century with good citizens, and the education community must lead the way.

Editorial is wrong on issue

To the editor:

Your editorial regarding my position on campaign financing is erroneous, and I'm sorry no one contacted me from your office beforehand.

First, I have never suggested that Michigan should change to public financing of campaigns. Like many people, the increasing costs of campaigns is a concern to me and many have expressed an interest in public funding. Rather than rushing headlong into legislation, I thought it was prudent to investigate the matter first. I have some doubts about public funding myself, particularly since I do not know if it really accomplishes its goal.

Second, you assume that there is only one form of tax checkoff, that in which an individual directs part of his or her tax obligation to be directed to the campaign fund. I would never support such a checkoff for campaign use because of problems created for the rest of our budget and my position on tax credits and tax diversions has always been quite clear. However, it is also possible to provide a tax checkoff on refunds owed an individual, which has no effect on the budget.

Third, no one could possibly "get their hands on your hard earned money" whom the voter did not like since voters concerned about this would simply not participate in this strictly voluntary program.

Finally, while I do not share all the concerns about PACs that some do, your statement that PAC contributions probably account for less than half of candidates' total contributions is not accurate. In fact, the great majority of current legislators receive at least 60 percent of their contributions from PACs and it is not at all unusual to see 80-90 percent figures.

Campaign spending is always a difficult issue and there will probably never be complete agreement. However, as chair of the House Elections Committee, it is my responsibility to pursue various avenues for reform in order to assure the public that Michigan's system is the cleanest and most efficient possible. I intend to fulfill that responsibility.

Maxine Berman

Budget issue riles reader

To the editor:

I read the article by Mary Rodrique "Bush tax shift riles some local lawmakers," Thursday, July 26 with considerable interest.

The comments by my own representative as well as those by the other three representatives who are interviewed caused me to try and recall the congressional budget process workings for the last couple of decades. I can not truly recall the last time Congress did its budgetary job on time. I don't remember when they did not use the odious technique of a "continuing resolution" because they could not do their job before campaigning for re-election.

There was a time when Congress did complete the budget process on time and there also was a time when the Administration did not have to spend every last dime that Congress appropriated. Since the Administration can not spend the appropriated money, I'm about ready to ask the President to not sign any "continuing resolution" which Congress might use to fill the gap caused by their collective incompetence.

How is it that Congress, being filled with such highly competent individuals, can be an incompetent institution? Perhaps it is time that we tell our congressmen and senators that they should not come home every year to campaign for re-election until after they have completed their primary duty of completing a budget.

Redford

Monday, August 6, 1990 O&E

*7A

WASHINGTON — Here's how Observer & Eccentric-area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending July 20.

House:

Balanced Budget Amendment — By a vote of 279 for and 150 against, the House failed to achieve the two-thirds majority needed to approve a constitutional amendment (HJ Res 268) requiring the federal government to balance its budget each year. Deficit spending was to have been outlawed except during wartime or if three-fifths majorities of the House and Senate voted to permit it.

Supporter Charles Stenholm, D-Tex., said lawmakers lack "courage and guts" to master the deficit and therefore "we need some help, an extra tool. We need a balanced budget amendment."

Opponent Jack Brooks, D-Tex., said the measure "is filled with soft and fuzzy feel-good words that by themselves have no more legislative meaning than a bumper sticker that says 'Have a Nice Day.'"

A yes vote supported the constitutional amendment.

Local congressmen voting yes were Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, and William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

Voting no were Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, William Ford, D-Taylor, and Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

Balanced Budget Statute — By a vote of 282 for and 114 against, the House sent to the Senate a bill (HR 5258) requiring that the president and congressional budget committees draft balanced federal budgets each year showing the exact spending cuts and revenue hikes they recommend to stay out of the red. If Congress votes down the proposal, it would then pass a standard deficit-laden budget to run the government.

Roll Call Report

Democratic leaders produced the bill to counter the GOP plan (above) to balance the budget by constitutional amendment. They said it was important for balanced-budget advocates to state precisely how they would avoid a deficit. But Republicans denounced the bill as political cover for those who voted against the constitutional amendment.

A yes vote supported the Democratic bill.

Area members Pursell, Hertel, Ford, Levin and Broomfield all voted in the affirmative.

To Cut Farm Spending — By a vote of 202 for and 216 against, the House refused to cut discretionary spending in a fiscal 1991 agriculture appropriations bill (HR 5268) by 2 percent across the board, saving $150 million. Exempted from the cut was to have been a nutritional program for poor infants and spending mandated by law. The $50.4 billion measure (HR 5268) was sent to the Senate.

Sponsor Timothy Penny, D-Minn., said the "very modest" cut would help offset the bill's 11.5 percent increase over 1990 spending.

Opponent Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., said he believes in a balanced federal budget "but not at the expense of sound and essential programs."

A yes vote supported the 2 percent cut.

Voting yes were Pursell and Broomfield.

No votes were cast by Hertel, Ford and Levin.

Senate:

Civil Rights Bill — By a vote of 65 for and 34 against, the Senate sent to the House a bill (S 2104) providing sweeping new protections against job discrimination based on race, sex, religion, nationality or color. The Civil Rights Act of 1990 would counter recent Supreme Court rulings that have made it more difficult for employees to file and win job bias suits.

One disputed provision requires employers to prove the business necessity of potentially discriminatory personnel decisions. Employers would face a burden of proof so demanding, critics said, that they would resort to hiring and promotion quotas to avoid litigation. The bill also empowers all bias victims to collect compensatory and in some cases punitive damages. Presently only victims of racial bias at work can receive such damages.

Supporter Donald Riegle, D-Mich., said "this legislation does not require or even encourage quotas or hiring by numbers."

tion by imposing new... reverse discrimination, under a quota system." Yes votes by Michigan Senators Donald Riegle and Carl Levin helped pass the bill.

To End Farm Subsidies — By a vote of 66 for and 30 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an attempt to end farm subsidies to agricultural operations that have averaged at least $500,000 in sales the past five years. Sponsors said their intent was deny government payments to 14,000 of the nation's wealthiest farmers. The amendment to S 2830, a bill reauthorizing farm programs, sought to reduce production subsidies by an estimated $1.2 billion annually.

Max Baucus, D-Mont., voted to kill the amendment because, he said, it "attempts to turn the farm program into a welfare program."

Sponsor Harry Reid, D-Nev., said "my amendment will add a vitally needed means test" to farm subsidy programs.

A yes vote opposed the amendment. Both Riegle and Levin voted yes.

To Limit Imports — By a vote of 68 for and 32 against, the Senate sent to the House a bill (HR 4328) to protect American jobs by limiting imports of textiles, apparel and footwear. Such imports could increase by only one percent annually, compared to the 3.5 percent annual growth of recent years.

Supporter Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., said "the closing of a textile or apparel or shoe factory can be devastating to a local community."

Opponent David Durenberger, R-Minn., said the bill would "drive up the price of clothing for all Americans, especially low-income Americans."

A yes vote was to limit textile, apparel and footwear imports. Riegle and Levin cast yes votes.

Cherries good, and pits, too

I cannot tell a lie: I love cherries. Ah, but is it that undecipherable burst of juiciness and sweetness that explodes in your mouth just as the skin gets pierced by the incisors, or is it the knowing that the pit will prove to be this year's best "split" in distance?

There's little doubt it's the flavor but that irresistible pit makes even the thirty-something adults in us seem like kids again, when eating cherries.

One of those foods meant to be eaten outside, cherries can be enjoyed when you sit on a deck or patio, well within the shade production of a Cinzano umbrella. A cold, freshly rinsed bowl of cherries can't be beat.

That's not to say the ever-loving cherry can't stand up to a Bisquick pancake or waffle batter or, for that matter, pureed into a pulp and slathered over a ham or pork loin.

We had a cherry tree in our backyard while growing up in Wyandotte. I can remember swinging from an old tire on lazy summer afternoons. Occasionally Momma would yell from the kitchen window to come in, and then she would grab the big aluminum colander with a request to "Climb up and grab the reddest ones" for tonight's dessert. Little did I know that Momma would whip up two cherry pies, one for us and one for Uncle Pete, who would down half the pie for dinner because "It is good for my gout."

MEDICINALLY, Uncle Pete was right on the money. Ancient Greek physicians often prescribed cherries for epilepsy. American doctors in the 1920s frequently recommended black cherries for curing kidney stones and gallbladder ailments, according to Jean Carper's "The Food Pharmacy" (Bantam Books, $9.95).

In the dental world, a more recent study at the Forsyth Dental Center found that black cherry juice blocked 89 percent of the enzyme activity leading to plaque formation. I'm sure this news alone will bring a smile to my dentist's hygienist, the proof being in next week's check-up.

With Northern Michigan's cherry crop so vulnerable to weather situations, much of the harvest is canned for pie fillings, but an increasingly larger amount is being dried and sold to many gourmet restaurants for rehydration into sweet sauces to accompany duck and pork entrees.

At a recent food writers conference in Washington, D.C., attendees were provided with sacks of the dried raisin-like cherries that could be eaten plain or added to breads, muffins or sauces. Ten years ago, the thought of drying cherries for purposes such as these was virtually unheard of.

Past plentiful harvests have helped the cherry marketers immensely. Even today, Michigan cherries are being used in the production of those fruit leather snack treats for kids. Congratulations to the processors who had the foresight to pursue new markets.

FRESH CHERRIES contain about 70 calories per edible 3/4 ounce portion (about 14 cherries). Look for cherries that are plump and bright in color. Cherries that are mahogany or reddish brown are the most flavorful. Some varieties, however, are good even though lighter in color. Avoid overly soft or shriveled fruits, especially those with dark colored stems, search for those with green flexible stems. If you have a recipe that calls for cherries, figure on about 80 cherries equaling two cups. One pound of cherries makes about 1 1/2 cups.

Inexpensive cherry pitters can be found in almost any housewares department. Young truly has found that a vegetable peeler tip works just as well, especially when the tip is pushed in where the stem was — simply lift and pop out the pit.

Hot summer bargain: chill out with crustaceans

By Larry Janes
special writer

THE AUTOMOBILE industry's prize is the Ferrari. Gemologists' shining stars are diamonds. Cullinarians strive to own Paderno cookware, Gaggenau appliances, Cuisinarts and Wustopf-Trident Tri-Star cutlery.

When money is of little object and you choose to cook something sweet, delicate and succulent, like the rest of the best, you turn toward a lobster — the jewel of the sea.

Hardly. Once classified as the fodder of the nouveau riche, lobsters have been crawling all over town, some possessing lower price tags than bargain basement faux pearls.

Why the clearance sale price tags? Kevin Dean of Superior Fish in Royal Oak claims that after the Fourth of July supply gets larger while the demand gets lower, mostly because of vacations and other choices for backyard grilling. This, in turn, has East Coast wholesalers dropping their prices fast.

Dean says Superior Fish will feature a Lobster Fest during the entire month of August, offering the lowest prices of the season on live Maine lobsters. If you are looking for the best of the fresh in Metro Detroit, look no further than Superior Fish at 309 E. 11 Mile in beautiful downtown Royal Oak, in the heart of Oakland County.

BUT SUMMER is here, and why work up a sweat on a hot stove cooking said crustaceans, then working up additional body-inducing labor by cracking, splitting, sucking and prying out delicate chunks of cooked lobster when, for a few dollars more, you can purchase frozen tails and already cooked, whole lobster, just waiting to be tossed into a cool crisp salad with just a hint of tarragon mayonnaise?

Better fishmongers (like Superior) will, upon request, cook your favorite crustacean for a mere pittance. This way, cooks hoping to keep their summers cool only need to toes the lobster into a refrigerator or ice-cooled chest before the enjoyment begins.

And if the sight of bulging black eyes and a green tomalley (liver) upset the delicate balance between tummy and taste, you can forgo the death wish and purchase whole frozen lobster tails.

Venturing into the realm of a fishmonger's freezer will not reap the benefits of something from the good ol' USA but, in turn, will be a product of either Africa or Australia. These lobster tails are labeled "Cold Rock Lobsters," the difference being, supposedly, that rock lobsters lack claws.

Regarding taste, the delicacies are similar, but when purchasing a frozen tail, remember that the cooking process can make or break it. Frozen tails must first be defrosted completely, then cooked just until the meat turns an opaque white.

EXCESSIVE COOKING will toughen even a live lobster, and with the frozen tails fetching an unbelievable $25 per pound and up, I personally would take great caution in the preparation, lest it be turned into catfood.

The making of a cool summer lobster salad can be as easy as tossing a handful of diced, cooked lobster meat with a little mayonnaise and plopped onto a bed of crisp greens, or it can take on an entirely new meaning, costing the summer cook hours of preparation with memorable results.

Granted, anything I prepare with something that costs more than $8 per pound will never touch the likes of Hellman's mayonnaise but instead will find me making a homemade blend laced with fresh lemon juice and a sprinkling of capers.

Ardent cooks can produce cold summer lobster mousses molded into the shape of a crustacean, to be enjoyed with a warm, crisp croissant or toast points. Remember, however, that the more varied the flavors added to the original product, the less taste is derived from the lobster. Your taste buds might go wild over tarragon, red onion and Old Bay seasoning, but in this case, for great

A more humane death?

To boil or not to boil?, that is the question.

This writer really had not given it much thought. Until now. Lobsters and boiling water kind of go hand in hand like salt on popcorn, right?

Hardly, claims Eileen Liska, director of research and legislation for the Michigan Humane Society. An article on the preparation of seafood in the Animals' Agenda magazine (November 1987) claims studies have shown that lobsters do indeed feel the pain of being dropped into boiling water for at least 20 seconds. The magazine article states, while it does not discourage the consumption of lobster, a more humane technique would be to first render the lobster unconscious by placing it in a pot of cool water and slowly bringing the pot to a boil.

Liska offered yet another procedure, purportedly endorsed by world-renowned chef Jacques Pepin. This technique involves plunging a sharp knife behind the head of the lobster, severing the nerves, producing instantaneous death, then plunging the lobster immediately into boiling water.

Boiling, drowning or decapitating, they all sound pretty tragic to me. The jury is out. You be the judge.

Larry Janes

taste, less is more.

TO CREATE an attractive presentation, don't be afraid to utilize the shell and body cavity. Any cold salad can be plopped onto a bed of iceberg lettuce, but a cold lobster salad or similar creation almost demands that it be form-fit back into its shell and bedecked with suitable accoutrements and garnishes consisting of plenty of lemon and lime slices, scalions, subtle influences of paprika and sliced, hard boiled eggs.

A recent luncheon aboard the cruise ship Star of Chicago in the Windy City found a cooked and chilled lobster tail simply diced with no added flavor and stuffed into its tail, only to be adorned with tomato cups brimming with an assortment of flavored mayonnaise and dipping sauces. Simple, yet sublime.

Old Mexico restaurant is worth discovering

West Bloomfield's Old Mexico would make a nice neighborhood restaurant, if the nearby neighborhoods knew it was there.

The restaurant is in an isolated strip center at Drake and Walnut Lake roads, and just far enough off the beaten path to be overlooked. Nearby residents often are surprised to find it, even after three and a half years, says Tim Castaneda, who owns it with his parents, Ramon and Vickie.

The Castanedas are no strangers to the challenges of restaurateuring. They have owned a restaurant in Livonia for more than 12 years, and until about four years ago owned a restaurant in the old Redford section of Detroit.

The addition of a liquor license to their West Bloomfield site has helped improve traffic — not just because customers expect to have a margarita with their burritos or enchiladas, but because Old Mexico's margaritas are excellent. Made from scratch with lemon juice, water and sugar, they are lighter and fresher than what you will find most places. The only complaint we had was that the blender was in use frequently, overpowering our conversation.

Old Mexico's food is good enough to spare its neighbors the tedious ride downtown where the "authentic" Mexican restaurants are sometimes overrated. Its menu contains everything you would expect to find — and then a little bit more. Quesadillas with a spinach and cheese stuffing, for instance. Or enchiladas stuffed with crabmeat.

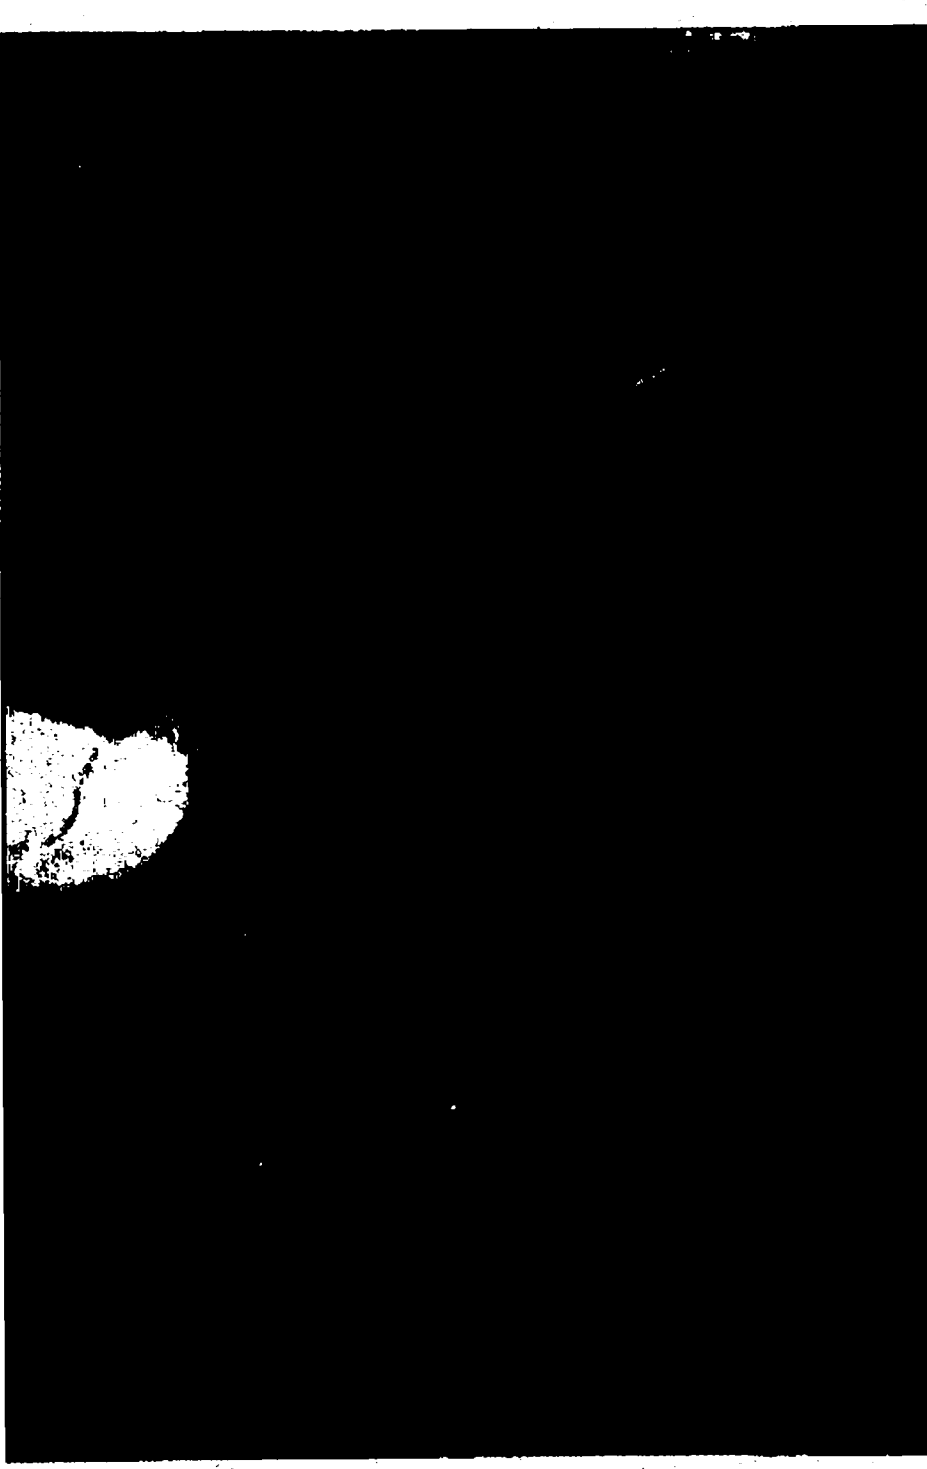

WE ENJOYED the latter. It was different and comfortable at the same time. The tortillas were fresh, and stuffed generously with crab and covered with melted cheese. This dinner, and most others on the menu, came with Spanish rice and refried beans, both of which were about average.

The steak fajitas are good, although they are served a little differently here than they are in places with a heavier Mexican accent. The marinated steak on melted muenster cheese was a dieter's portion, cubed and overgrilled. Condiments such as guacamole, seasoned, diced tomatoes and a dollop of sour cream were a side thought. We also found the chicken burritos good but not great.

Although the Castanedas offer dinner specials, most customers go for the standard fare: tacos, burritos, tostadas, enchiladas. The recent scallop dinner special was a hit, however.

The highlight of our meal came at the beginning of it, which was just the other side of the margaritas. The queso fundido cheese dip was an appetizing, if messy, appetizer of muenster cheese, butter, chills, onion and spices heated and served in a small bowl, with steamed tortillas wrapped in foil on the side. First we dipped the tortillas in the sauce, which didn't bring up enough of the the guts of the dip. Then we tried stuffing the tortillas and decided we could make a lot of money on a cheese scissor concession. Either way it was great, but we needed appetizer plates.

If dreams of a gourmet, chilled, lobster-salad picnic are shattered because you are concerned about a food-borne illness, due to a tainted-mayonnaise problem, a cool summer lobster salad can be produced in a liquid form by incorporating cooked and chilled lobster chunks in a cold bisque.

These chunks will transform a basic broth into a memorable meal.

with the addition of cream, white wine and correct balance of herbs. Couple the chilled bisque with a crusty French baguette and a simple relish tray and Voila!, a perfect summer lunch for the beach, meadow or backyard deck.

Superior Fish, in addition to many of the larger grocery chains fitted with lobster tanks, will hold promotions all summer long. So if this season means enjoying a live Maine lobster, or a succulent lobster tail, consider cooking up an extra one or two for a simple tossing into a resplendent summer salad.

CHILLED LOBSTER FIGARO
3 (2-pound) lobsters, boiled and split
1 tablespoon tarragon

1 teaspoon tomato paste
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Remove lobster meat and chop. Save shells. Combine lobster meat with crab, and toss. In a separate bowl, combine remaining ingredients. Mix well. Pour over shellfish and toss lightly. Fill shells with the mixture. Chill until ready to serve.

CHILLED LOBSTER SURF SALAD
1 cup cooked rice
3 scallions, chopped
1/2 small onion, chopped fine
2 cups cooked lobster meat, chopped

1 small bunch chives, chopped
1 cup mayonnaise
Pinch ground ginger
Salt and fresh ground white pepper to taste

Combine rice with scallions, chives and onion. Set aside. In a bowl, combine mayonnaise with ginger, salt, pepper and lemon juice. Mix well. Add mayonnaise mixture to rice mixture. Toss well to mix. Add lobster chunks. Toss lightly to coat. Chill and serve as desired.

COUPE D'AVOCADO A LA RITZ
2 cups cooked lobster, diced
1 tablespoon tomato, peeled, seeded and chopped
1/2 teaspoon each of chopped tarragon, chervil and chives

LOBSTER BISQUE
(excellent cold or heated)
1 small onion, chopped fine
1 carrot, chopped fine
1 stalk celery, chopped fine
1 leek, chopped fine
3 tablespoons olive oil
1 large lobster
1 cup white wine
1/4 cup Cognac
1/2 cup rice (optional)
1 quart stock or fish bouillon
Salt and fresh ground white pepper to taste
1 cup heavy cream
3-4 tablespoons butter
Cayenne pepper

Prepare a mirepoix by cutting the vegetables and sauteing them for 2-3 minutes in the olive oil over medium-high heat. Add the live lobster, which has been cut in half, and toss it around with wooden spoons until the shell turns red. Add the wine and cognac and simmer for 6 minutes. Remove the meat from the lobster shell and set aside. Pound the shells and put through a grinder or food processor to finely chop.

Return to the pot. Cook rice according to package directions and stir into the pot with the shells and mirepoix. Simmer 5 minutes. Put through a fine sieve or cheesecloth to remove all fragments. Dilute the mixture with stock or fish bouillon until it is the consistency of thick soup. Season to taste. Reheat over low heat, add cream and butter along with a few grains of cayenne pepper. Stir in finely chopped pieces of lobster meat. Serve.

HOMEMADE MARASCHINO CHERRIES

3 cups sugar
1 cup water
1 teaspoon red food coloring
4 cups sweet cherries, carefully pitted
1 teaspoon almond flavoring

CHERRY CHEDDAR BREAD

2 1/2 cups flour
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 1/4 cups milk
1 egg, beaten
3 tablespoons oil
1 1/4 cups pitted and halved fresh cherries
1 1/4 cups shredded cheddar cheese

Mix sugar, water and coloring. In a stainless steel saucepan, boil these for 3 minutes and add the cherries. Add flavoring and slowly cook the cherries for 20 minutes or until juice is thickened to the consistency of jam. Seal in sterilized jars.

Combine dry ingredients. Set aside. Combine milk, egg, oil; pour over dry ingredients and stir to dampen. Fold in cherries and cheese. Pour into a greased loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 55-60 minutes. Cool on a rack for 10 minutes. Makes 1 loaf.

Ways to play it safe in use of outdoor grill

AP — The National Pork Producers Council offers the following tips for grilling safety:

- Always read the owner's manual before using a new barbecue grill.
- Never use gasoline or other highly volatile fluids as a starter. They may explode.
- Barbecue grills should not be used within five feet of any combustible material.
- For fewer hazardous sparks, experts recommend using a covered grill.
- Never use a barbecue grill unless all parts of the unit are firmly in place.
- Barbecue grills should be kept at a level position at all times. An unstable unit can easily be tipped over.

- Infants, children and pets should never be left unattended near a hot barbecue grill.
- Never add liquid starter to hot or even warm coals.
- After unplugging, remove a hot electric starter carefully and remember where you placed it.
- Always use flame-resistant barbecue mitts and barbecue tools with long, heat-resistant handles.
- Barbecue mitts should be worn to adjust hot vents. Wear a heavy apron — to protect clothing from grease and sparks. Never wear loose clothing around a hot barbecue grill. It could inadvertently catch on fire.
- Never touch charcoal or grill to see if it's hot.
- Electric cords should be placed away from walkways.
- Charcoal grills should never be used indoors. Toxic fumes could be fatal. Starter fluid should be capped immediately and placed a safe distance from the grill.

AP — Spring or fall cleaning used to mean days of work, turning out the house from top to bottom. With today's easy-care furnishings and improved cleaning products, most of us have given up that twice-a-year chore. But the part of your kitchen that doesn't show — inside the cupboards and refrigerator — still needs an annual or semiannual cleanup to be sure the food you are storing is safe and high-quality. These storage tips and times will help you with the job:

CUPBOARDS

- Sugar will keep two years in a tight-lidded container.
- All-purpose flour usually will last six to eight months in a tightly covered container. Discard flour or any other grain product if you see signs of insects.
- Store whole-grain flours and other whole-grain products in the refrigerator or freezer. The small amount of oil they contain can become rancid, giving an off-flavor. They also are more attractive to insects.
- Store tea bags in an airtight tin for up to 18 months. Unopened ground coffee in a can lasts two years. Opened ground or freeze-dried coffee crystals last about two months; for longer storage, refrigerate.
- Don't store spices over the stove. It may be convenient, but heat and moisture steal the flavor. Whole spices retain flavor about one year; ground spices about six months.
- Check boxed goods for "use by" dates. If there's no date, remember that boxed pasta lasts one year or more; dry cake or similar mixtures

- about one year.
- Store commercially canned tomato products, fruits and fruit juices up to 18 months.
- Other commercially canned goods can be stored for two to five years if the cans look healthy; no dents, holes, rust, bulges or leaks.
- Home-canned foods should be used within one year.
- If in doubt, throw it out. Never taste suspicious-looking or smelling canned goods or anything that spurts liquid when opened.

REFRIGERATOR

- Check the temperature. Your refrigerator should maintain 40 degrees F or less.
- Remember that fresh poultry and fish keep only one to two days; fresh meat three to five days. For longer storage, wrap in moisture- and vapor-proof wrap and freeze immediately after purchase.
- Most leftovers will keep three to four days.
- Canned hams needing refrigeration last about nine months. Don't freeze such a ham in the can.
- Vacuum-packed meats last two weeks unopened; five to seven days after opening.
- You can safely cut a small mold spot from hard cheese, salami, and firm fruits and vegetables. Keep your knife out of the mold and cut away 1 inch around and below the spot. Discard other moldy foods.

FREEZER

- Discard old, frozen-over packages. Keep packages if they are not past the "use-by" date. Date the packages you save and place them up front to use first.

- Defrost your freezer at least once a year, more often if necessary. When the freezer is frosted over, it can't work efficiently. Also ice crystals can invade food, causing loss of quality.
- Be sure your freezer maintains 0 degrees F or less.

SINK

- Never store food of any kind under the sink; leaky pipes, household chemical spills, insects or rodents can cause contamination.

MORE INFORMATION

- Call the USDA's Meat and Poultry hot line, 1-800-535-4555. Weekdays 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. (Eastern time).
- To order "The Food Keeper," a chart that shows storage times for many foods, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed legal-size envelope to: Food Marketing Institute, 1750 K St. NW, Washington, DC 20006.

Gingerbread waffles can be made ahead

AP — Too busy to make waffles? With a batch of these gingerbread waffles in the freezer, you can enjoy a treat even on a busy weekday morning.

- Using an eight-inch-square waffle iron, cook waffles as directed; cool completely.
- Separate waffles into fourths. Wrap each waffle individually in freezer wrap. Store in the freezer for up to two months.
- To serve, unwrap as many waffles as you need. Place in toaster slots and toast until heated through. Serve immediately.

GINGERBREAD WAFFLES

1 cup all-purpose flour
3/4 cup whole-wheat flour or oat bran flour blend
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
2 slightly beaten eggs
1 1/2 cups milk
1/2 cup cooking oil

1/2 cup molasses
Lightly grease the grids of a waffle iron; preheat.

Meanwhile, in a large bowl combine flours, baking powder, ginger, salt and cloves. In another bowl, with a whisk beat together eggs, milk, oil and molasses; add to flour mixture all at once. Stir just until combined but still slightly lumpy.

Pour about 1 1/2 cups batter evenly onto bottom grid of hot waffle iron. Spread slightly. Close lid quickly; do not open during baking. Bake for 4-5 minutes or according to manufacturer's directions. When done, use a fork to lift the waffle off the grid. Repeat with remaining batter. Serve waffles immediately with warm fruit spread, preserves or maple-flavored syrup, or cool and freeze. Makes 10-12, 4-inch waffles.

Do stir-fry dish in the microwave

AP - We tout stir-frying as a cooking method that requires little fat. Now you take the idea one step further. For a stir-fry that adds no fat, turn your microwave oven into a wok and stir up this delicious one-dish meal.

ORIENTAL BEEF

- 3/4 cup couscous or 1 cup quick-cooking rice
- 1/2 cup reduced-calorie apricot preserves
- 1 tablespoon sodium-reduced soy sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon grated ginger root
- 1/4 teaspoon crushed red pepper
- 3/4 pound beef flank steak
- 1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
- 1 medium green pepper, cut into strips (1 cup)
- 1 medium sweet red pepper, cut into strips (1 cup)
- 2 green onions, bias-sliced into 1-inch pieces
- 2 tablespoons red-wine vinegar
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch

Cook couscous or rice according to package directions on the range top, except omit margarine or butter and salt.

For sauce, stir together preserves, soy sauce, ginger root and crushed red pepper; set aside. Thinly slice steak on the bias into bite-size strips.

Place beef strips in a 1 1/2-quart microwave-safe casserole. Cover and cook on 100 percent power (high) for 5-6 minutes or until meat is tender, stirring after 3 minutes. Remove meat and discard juices.

In the casserole place mushrooms, green and red pepper strips, and green onions. Pour sauce mixture over vegetables. Toss gently until mixed. Cover and cook on high for 4-5 minutes or until pepper strips are crisp-tender, stirring after every minute.

Stir together vinegar and cornstarch; add to casserole. Stir in meat. Cook, uncovered, on high for 3-4 minutes or until mixture is thickened and bubbly, stirring after every minute. Serve with cooked couscous or rice. Makes 4 servings.

Tasty turkey steaks are a low-fat choice

Turkey steaks have robust flavor, yet are low in fat.

According to the National Turkey Federation, boneless, skinless white-meat turkey contains just 1 gram of fat per 3-ounce cooked portion.

Especially good for grilling are quick-cooking boneless cuts like turkey breast tenderloins, cutlets and dark-meat thighs. For the most steaklike effect, cut a thick slice of breast meat, or look for ready-cut turkey steaks.

You can douse the turkey with your favorite herb, tomato or lemon barbecue sauce before grilling.

KENTUCKY BOURBON AND SPICE

- 1 to 2 tablespoons bourbon whiskey
- 1 teaspoon soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 1/4 teaspoon dried thyme
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 large onion, cut into 1/4-inch slices
- One 1-pound package fresh turkey breast steaks

3/4 teaspoon coarsely ground or cracked black pepper

In a medium-sized, shallow bowl combine all ingredients except turkey steaks and pepper. Add steak to bowl and turn to coat with mixture; marinate 30 minutes or longer, refrigerated.

Preheat grill at least 30 minutes before cooking, adjusting grid to 5 to 6 inches from coals. Remove turkey from marinade and place on a cutting board. With the palm of your hand, press pepper into sides of steak.

Grill steak 3 to 5 minutes on each side. Like all steaks, turkey steaks will be done when outside is dark; juices should run clear when meat is pierced. Remove onion from marinade and add to grill in last 2 to 3 minutes. Serve steak garnished with grilled onion rings. Makes 2 servings.

Note: Steaks also may be broiled. Place 5 to 6 inches below heat source and cook 3 to 5 minutes on each side.

You may be the enemy of produce

How fresh is fresh when it comes to vegetables? California broccoli has been on the "road" for almost a week before we see it at the market. What we call fresh has been picked, packed, loaded, unloaded, warehoused, reloaded, shipped and stored.

This may sound like the enemy of fresh produce, but guess what, the real enemy is us. Those of us who store that head of cabbage for a month or leave the vegetables on the kitchen counter all day or overcook them are the real enemies of fresh produce. How you choose and handle produce when you take it home determines the amount of vitamins and minerals remaining, not the packers and shippers.

A vegetable is a living, breathing thing, secreting active enzymes and consuming its own nutrients. Separated from soil and water it is also a dying thing. All this weakens the cell walls and they begin to collapse, and there goes the vitamins. This loss is even greater when the vegetables are not refrigerated. Sometimes when vegetables are marked for sale it is because they are old or damaged. Check before purchasing.

Vegetables such as kale, spinach, broccoli, turnip greens, chard and any other salad greens especially need to be refrigerated promptly. Store in a vegetable crisper or moisture-proof bags to help keep their nutrients. Green peas should be left in their pods until you are ready to eat them. Carrots, sweet potatoes, potatoes and other roots and tubers keep their vitamins best if kept cool and moist enough to prevent withering. Shop often for fresh produce, as prolonged refrigeration storage at home can lead to a significant vitamin loss.

Avoid soaking vegetables in water. Instead, rinse them thoroughly in a heavy stream of water or immerse in a sinkful of water and lift out. Soaking vegetables will promote a loss of nutrients. For hard-surfaced items, use a vegetable brush to clean.

Minimize chopping and peeling, slicing and dicing. This exposes inner surfaces to air, allowing vitamin A and C to oxidize more rapidly. Use a sharp knife to cut vegetables in uniform pieces that cook at the same rate. Avoid buying pre-cut vegetables. They may be convenient but have less nutrients. Try to leave the peels and skin on potatoes and summer squash as these peels protect against leaching and oxidation. When you are making a tossed salad, fix it when you are ready to eat, as it will deteriorate nutritionally very quickly because of all the exposed surfaces.

If you are adding vinegar or lemon juice to vegetables, add these

Lois Thieleke
home economist, Cooperative Extension Service

acids after cooking. They do not destroy nutrients but can give the vegetables a hard-textured surface. Don't add baking soda to the cooking water. It destroys vitamins.

ALWAYS COOK vegetables in a pan with a tight-fitting lid, using a small amount of water in the bottom just to keep from scorching. For best results, bring water to a boil, add vegetables, cover and quickly return to boil. Cook until just tender - not mushy. Vitamins C and B-6 are more likely to be lost during long, slow cooking. For this reason, preheat your oven when baking potatoes, or use a microwave.

Steaming in a vegetable steamer with a lid that fits also will help save the nutrients. Don't allow the vegetables to touch the water or pack too tightly so that the steam can't circulate. Stir-fry is also a way of cooking fresh vegetables for a short period of time. Just be careful not to add too much oil. Microwaving is probably the most popular way of cooking vegetables because they still are recognizable after cooking. In a microwave they can be at added and tender-crisp with no added oils, or water. The water clinging to the vegetables - after washing oftentimes will be enough for cooking. Avoid overcooking vegetables in the microwave, and always use the shortest cooking time in any recipe.

Some vegetables can be cooked in their own containers in the microwave. Potatoes, squash, and corn on the cob have their own skins and husks for their own container. Cook vegetables in a covered dish for a more uniform heating or use wax paper as a cover. Leftovers kept for two to three days will lose lots of their nutritional value so use as soon as possible.

Purchase lots of produce. Nutritionally vegetables are packed with lots of vitamins and minerals and are low in calories, so they are good for you. Don't let the kitchen knife, lack of refrigerator, a large pot of boiling water, or you become the enemy of fresh produce. Instead, be an artist with fresh vegetables.

Kids like vegetables made on the grill

AP - Lonnie Gandara, author of "365 Great Barbecue and Grilling Recipes," says nearly all vegetables - from artichokes to zucchini - can be grilled successfully.

"Kids who eat nothing but hot dogs and hamburgers will reach out their hands for grilled vegetables, especially if they are served to them on a stick," she says. "Small vegetables, such as tiny new potatoes, benefit from the convenience of grilling on thin bamboo skewers."

Gandara says a light coating of oil prevents vegetables from drying out and sticking to the grill rack. Additional flavors, such as herbs and spices, can be added for variety.

Because many vegetables take up so little room on the grill, use an existing fire whenever possible. Cook vegetables before the main course or at the same time on the side of the grill, she says.

When space on the grill is limited, Gandara suggests that you cook the vegetables first. They can be held at the sides of the grill while the rest of the meal is being prepared, or they can be served at room temperature. Corn can be boiled briefly in advance to soften and then quickly browned on the grill at the last minute.

- 2 scallions, chopped
- 1 garlic clove, crushed
- 1 1/2 tablespoons chili powder
- 1 teaspoon fresh lime or lemon juice
- Salt

Prepare a medium fire. Gently peel back corn husks, leaving them attached at the base. Remove and discard as much corn silk as possible.

In a food processor or blender, combine butter, scallions, garlic, chili powder and lime juice. Process until chili butter is well blended.

Rub about 2 teaspoons chili butter over kernels in each ear. Fold husks back over the corn and tie securely in place with kitchen string or a strip of corn husk. Soak corn in a large bowl of cold water 10 minutes to prevent burning. Squeeze out excess water.

'Kids who eat nothing but hot dogs and hamburgers will reach out their hands for grilled vegetables, especially if they are served to them on a stick. Small vegetables, such as tiny new potatoes, benefit from the convenience of grilling on thin bamboo skewers.'

— Lonnie Gandara

Place damp corn on an oiled grill set 4-6 inches from coals. Grill, turning and moving ears frequently, until outside leaves are lightly charred. Peel off husks and eat with additional chili butter and salt. Makes 4-8 servings.

Seafood on the grill increases in popularity

AP — America's love affair with seafood shows no signs of cooling off. Due to consumer desire for healthier, low-fat foods, fish and shellfish are replacing the more traditional protein foods on the grill.

The Barbecue Industry Association says home grilling of all seafood has increased nearly 20 percent in the last few years. It's not hard to figure out why.

Fish is quick-cooking, delicious and healthy. Most fish and shellfish are low in fat, calories, cholesterol and sodium but rich in protein. New research findings confirm earlier reports that omega-3 fatty acids, beneficial polyunsaturated fatty acids found primarily in seafood, help reduce the risk of coronary disease.

There's even more good news: The National Fisheries Institute says consumers can expect good supplies of swordfish, salmon, tuna, halibut and shrimp, items well suited for grilling.

To make your barbecue a seafood sensation, follow these tips from the National Fisheries Institute:

FISH STEAKS

A moderately hot fire is best. It sears the flesh of the fish so that it retains its natural moisture.

Thoroughly clean the grill with a brush and wipe it down with cooking oil. Start the fire 30 minutes before you intend to start cooking. Let it burn until white hot. Or, preheat an outdoor gas grill or electric barbecue grill. Adjust the grill height to 4-6 inches above the heat.

Brush steaks with sauce, marinade or oil and place in an oiled fish basket or directly on a well-oiled grill to prevent sticking. Cook, uncovered, 1-2 minutes to sear fish, then close lid or cover fish with foil tent if desired.

Allow 10 minutes cooking time per inch of thickness of the fish. Fish is done when it just flakes when tested with a fork. Turn steaks and re-oil grill halfway through cooking time. Baste fish frequently to retain moisture.

SEAFOOD KABOBS

Use square-sided or flat skewers, not round. All ingredients on the skewer should cook for the same length of time. If necessary, cook shellfish, finfish, and vegetables on separate skewers.

Turn and brush kabobs frequently with basting sauce, reserve marinade or herb butter to prevent drying. Allow 6-8 minutes total cooking time for a 1-inch piece. Shrimp, scallops, crab and lobster turn opaque throughout when done. Kabobs cook fast. Watch closely to avoid overcooking.

The following recipes are provided by the National Fisheries Institute:

SEAFOOD KABOBS WITH HERB BUTTER

1/2 pound firm fish, such as halibut, shark, swordfish, monkfish, salmon or tuna, cut into 1 to 1 1/4-inch cubes
1/2 pound shellfish, such as peeled deveined medium shrimp, whole sea scallops, or lobster tail cut into large chunks
1/4 red onion separated into segments
Herb butter (recipe follows)
4 branches fresh herb, soaked in water and dried, or 1 teaspoon dried herb (such as oregano, thyme, rosemary, basil or dillweed)

The National Fisheries Institute says consumers can expect good supplies of swordfish, salmon, tuna, halibut and shrimp, items well suited for grilling.

Arrange seafood and onion on skewers. Brush with herb butter. Toss herbs onto moderately hot coals just before cooking kabobs. Place kabobs on well-oiled grill. Cook, basting frequently, for 2-3 minutes per side for a total of 6-7 minutes or until fish begins to flake when tested with a fork and shellfish is firm throughout but still moist. Serve with remaining herb butter. Makes 3-4 servings.
Herb Butter

Combine 1/4 cup softened butter or margarine, 1/2 teaspoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon minced fresh parsley and 2 teaspoons minced fresh herbs (such as oregano, chives, thyme, basil, dillweed or chervil) or 1/2 teaspoon dried herbs in a bowl or food processor. Beat or process until fluffy. Makes about 1/4 cup.
(Recipe from the National Fisheries Institute)

HONEY-MUSTARD SEAFOOD KABOBS

3 tablespoons honey
2 tablespoons beer
1 tablespoon stone-ground mustard
1 1/4 to 1 1/2 pounds halibut, swordfish, tuna, salmon or shark
1 cup bite-size cantaloupe pieces, optional
Oil or vegetable spray for grill rack

Combine honey, beer and mustard in a shallow baking dish. Add fish, cubes and marinate 20 minutes or cover and refrigerate up to 2 hours, turning occasionally.

Thread fish cubes and melon onto skewers. Brush hot grill rack with oil, or remove and coat with cooking spray. Place kabobs on grill 4-6 inches above hot coals. Cook, basting frequently, for 2-3 minutes per side for a total of 6-7 minutes or until fish begins to flake when tested with a fork. Makes 4 servings.
(Recipe from the National Fisheries Institute)

GRILLED FISH STEAKS WITH CORN SALSA

4 teaspoons lime juice
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1/4 teaspoon bottled hot pepper sauce
Six 6-ounce swordfish, tuna, shark, salmon or halibut steaks, 3/4-to 1-inch thick
2 cups frozen corn, thawed
1/2 cup bottled salsa
1-3 tablespoons chopped fresh cilantro
Oil or vegetable cooking spray for grill rack
Lime wedges for garnish
Warm corn or flour tortillas

In shallow baking dish, combine lime juice, oil and pepper sauce. Add fish and turn to coat all sides. Marinate 20-30 minutes, turning once. Combine corn, salsa and cilantro; set aside.

Brush hot grill rack with oil, or remove and coat with cooking spray. Place fish on grill 4-6 inches above hot coals. Cover with lid or tent with foil. Cook, turning once, just until fish begins to flake when tested with a fork, allowing approximately 10 minutes cooking time per inch thickness of fish. Serve fish with corn salsa, lime wedges and warm tortillas. Makes 6 servings.

(Recipe from the the National Fisheries Institute)

FISH STEAKS WITH POTATOES AND PEAS

1 1/2 pounds (about 16) small red potatoes, boiled until just tender
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon fresh dillweed or 1 teaspoon dried dillweed
1/2 teaspoon pepper
Four 6-ounce tuna, halibut, shark, or swordfish steaks, 3/4 to 1-inch thick
2 cups frozen baby peas, thawed
1 cup finely chopped lettuce
2 tablespoons minced onion
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
Oil or vegetable cooking spray for grill rack

Cut potatoes in half and thread on skewers. Combine olive oil, lemon juice, dill and 1/2 teaspoon pepper in small bowl. Brush on fish steaks and potatoes; reserve. Combine peas, lettuce, onion, salt and remaining 1/2 teaspoon pepper in a bowl. Divide among four 9-inch-square pieces of heavy-duty aluminum foil. Fold and seal securely, keeping packets flat.

Brush hot grill rack with olive oil, or remove and coat with cooking spray. Place fish steaks on grill 4-6 inches above hot coals. Add potato skewers and packets of peas. Cover with lid or tent with foil. Cook, turning fish once, and potatoes and peas frequently, just until fish begins to flake when tested with a fork, allowing about 10 minutes cooking time per inch thickness of fish. Transfer to hot plates. Makes 4 servings.
(Recipe from the National Fisheries Institute)

SEAFOOD PASTA SALAD

8 ounces pasta, broken into 4-inch pieces
3 tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons prepared pesto sauce
2 tablespoons water
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 pound frozen cooked shrimp, thawed, or canned tiny shrimp, rinsed and drained, or crab-flavored, salad-style surimi seafood
2 large tomatoes, diced
2 tablespoons thinly sliced green onion for garnish

Cook pasta in 3-4 quarts boiling water until tender to the bite, about 10 minutes. Drain and rinse with cold water; drain again.

Combine olive oil, lemon juice, pesto sauce, water and pepper in jar with tight lid. Shake well and pour over pasta in a large bowl; toss well. Stir in cooked shrimp or surimi seafood and tomato. Cover and refrigerate at least 2 hours or up to 24 hours. Garnish with green onion. Makes 4-6 main-dish servings.

Quick-cooking pork cuts perfect for outdoor meals

AP — From tender chops to juicy roasts, pork offers delicious choices for the grill.

The National Pork Producers Council says direct heat is best for smaller, quick-cooking cuts of pork such as steaks, kabobs and tenderloins.

Arrange the hot coals in an even bed on the fire grate of the grill. The fuel bed should extend in a circle 2-3 inches beyond the perimeter of the pork cuts placed on the grill. Position grill and place pork cuts over coals. For even cooking and browning, you must turn cuts as needed over direct heat.

Use indirect, or reflected, heat for larger pork cuts such as loin roasts, ribs and thick chops. Bank coals equally on both sides of the fire grate in a covered grill. Center a drip pan between banks. Place pork cuts on the grill directly over the pan. Cover grill and roast to recipe specifications.

To ensure juicy, tender results, pork should be grilled over low to moderate heat. Control the heat of the charcoal grill by the number of briquettes used and the distance from the coals.

When using charcoal briquettes, start the cooking fire 20-30 minutes before placing the pork on the grill. Arrange briquettes in a pyramid at the center of the grill. When the coals are covered with ash and glowing in the center, spread them to cover the entire area beneath the meat. Coals should be placed about 1 inch apart to obtain an even cooking temperature and to help prevent flare-ups.

Use a meat thermometer to judge the doneness of thick cuts, such as roasts. Insert the thermometer in the thickest part of the meat cut. Fresh pork should be cooked to an internal temperature of 160 degrees. Remove larger cuts from the heat source when their internal temperature reaches 155 degrees and allow them to stand 10 minutes after grilling for juices to set. The meat's internal temperature will rise another 5 degrees after cooking.

Electric and gas grills heat more quickly than do the charcoal-fired variety. For best results with electricity and gas, follow your manufacturer's instructions.

Japanese Pork Sate is a quick-fix grill favorite with foreign flair. This Indonesian-inspired skewered pork entree is served with raita, an Indian yogurt-and-cucumber sauce, rice and green beans with coconut. The recipes are provided by the National Pork Producers Council.

JAVANESE PORK SATE

1 pound boneless pork loin
2 tablespoons peanut butter
1/2 cup minced onion
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon brown sugar
Dash hot pepper sauce
1 tablespoon vegetable oil

Cut pork into 1/2-inch cubes. Blend remaining ingredients together in a blender. Marinate pork in mixture for 10 minutes. Thread pork on skewers. If using bamboo skewers, soak skewers in water for 1 hour to prevent burning. Grill or broil for 10-12 minutes, turning occasionally, until done. Serve with hot cooked rice, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

Barrels influence how a wine will taste

In the art of winemaking, the use of barrels is a very important component on the winemaker's flavor palette.

The use of barrels, in all their many shapes, sizes and types of woods, allows the winemaker to leave a stylistic signature on each wine.

Although barrels have been a valuable tool of the wine trade for many years, only in recent years has the wine community in California understood how the barrel helps to achieve desired results.

The meticulous attention to detail began by accident at Robert Mondavi Winery in Napa Valley and grew to a series of experiments. The results of the experiments, by Mondavi and then others has allowed the winemaker to fine-tune oak treatment to the extent that a consistent style results year after year.

In a seminar on oak aging, Marcle Mondavi explained the initial discovery. Tim Mondavi, her brother and winemaker, was experiencing difficulty cleaning the French barrels for reuse. Some of the barrels became infected because the inside of the staves had blisters. It was difficult to disinfect the barrel completely, since microorganisms were trapped in the blisters.

focus on wine

TIM CORRESPONDED with Mondavi's French cooper (barrel maker) and asked that future shipments of barrels be produced without blisters. In the next harvest, the wines aging in the new barrels tasted very different. Tim was once more disappointed in the product he was buying from France. After he inquired again, the cooper suggested Mondavi review the method of producing a barrel. Simply, wood staves must be bent in the process. There are two methods used to accomplish this.

In the first method, a small fire is built and the staves are arranged in a circle over the fire. As the wood is heated, water is splashed on the staves. When the staves become pliable, they are shaped and held together by metal or willow hoops. This "fire-pot" method toasts, but does not char, the inside of the oak staves. It contributes a particular flavor to the wine stored in the barrel.

The second method uses steam to bend the staves. Since steam does not toast the wood, the effect on the flavor of the wine is dramatic.

Mondavi also discovered, strangely enough, that the degree of toasting depends on where the barrel is made. Imagine two barrels standing on end, side by side, one produced in Burgundy and the other made in Bordeaux. The Burgundy barrel is shorter, with larger diameter and thicker staves than the one from Bordeaux, even though they hold the same, approximately 60-gallon volume.

Wine Selection of the Week

1987 Beringer Vineyards North Coast Zinfandel($9) perfectly illustrates the effect of French oak aging on Zinfandel. "I chose to age this wine primarily in small, French Nevers oak barrels for a period of seven months," wine maker Ed Sbraglia reported. "The result is a medium-bodied, richly flavored wine with ripe, berry aromas, smooth tannins and lingering flavors." We couldn't agree more. It's delicious!

THE SHAPE is determined by the cooper's method of making the barrel. In Burgundy, the staves are bent more when the barrel is made. Since the staves are thicker, more heat is required, and as a result, the amount of toasting is greater.

An experiment, suggested by this enlightenment, was to age the identical wine in barrels made of the same wood but from different coopers.

The wine we sampled was the Robert Mondavi chardonnay aged in the following barrels, all made of French oak from the Nevers Forest:

1. Old oak, light toast, coopered by Demptos, Bordeaux.

2. New oak, light toast, coopered by Demptos, Bordeaux.

3. New oak, heavy toast, coopered by François Freres, Burgundy.

Barrel No. 1 acted as a neutral control. This barrel had been used several years and most of the flavor and aroma components had been leached out. The wine had good varietal aroma with a hint of vanillins.

The wine from barrel No. 2 had a noticeable oak aroma. It was a warmer wine with greater complexity, less fruit and lengthy aftertaste.

The third wine exhibited an intense smoky nose with a sweet, vanilla character.

After tasting these wines side by side it was evident that the cooper and his method may be more important than the type of wood used to make the barrels.

Next, we tasted the same wines aged in the following barrels, each made from new American oak:

4. Light toast, air dried staves, fire-pot.
5. Light toast, kiln-dried staves, steamed, then fired briefly to set staves.

THE EXTRACTS in American oak have more aromatic components while French oak contains more tannins and flavor components.

The wine from barrel No. 4 was much preferred over that from No. 5. Wine No. 5 had a very woody character with a raw, green aftertaste. The difference is attributed to the fact that air drying over a period of four to five years leaches out the rough, harsh tannins, whereas kiln-dried wood retains these components.

If you are interested in trying a few wines that will illustrate the effect of oak aging on chardonnay, try some of these.

No oak or very little: Fetzer Sundial Chardonnay.

Some oak: the regular chardonnay from Robert Mondavi Winery.

Lots of oak: the reserve chardonnay from Robert Mondavi Winery.

The regular bottling from Mondavi is 25-35 percent barrel fermented, while the reserve is 95 percent barrel fermented, both in French oak.

The results of the experiments, by Mondavi and then others, has allowed the winemaker to fine-tune oak treatment to the extent that a consistent style results year after year.

Back-to-back for Walter's

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Walter's Appliance proved it could go the distance Friday, capturing its second straight Livonia Collegiate Baseball League playoff championship at Livonia's Ford Field with a wild 15-11 victory over Wendy's of Ann Arbor.

Coach Mike Keller's squad won the 3 1/2-hour marathon, despite squandering leads of 4-0 and 11-5, to qualify for the All-American Amateur Baseball Association five-team regional tourney, which starts Wednesday in Zanesville, Ohio. (The regional champ advances to the AAABA nationals, Aug. 13-20 in Johnstown, Pa.)

Walter's, which repeated last year's feat, rising from the ranks of underdogs after finishing down in the standings, won three straight LCBL playoff games without a loss in the four-team double-elimination format.

"During the season we struggled with Duffy's (the LCBL regular season champ), but in the playoffs we seemed to reach down and get a second wind," said Keller. "All 17 kids performed well. I'm drained, but it feels really good the second time around."

With the LCBL playoffs being played three consecutive days (and possibly a fourth), pitching seemed to be valued commodity.

FRIDAY'S CHAMPIONSHIP slugfest, totaling 24 hits and eight different hurlers (four on each side), reflected that need.

"You never have enough pitching," said Wendy's manager Brian Lang. "Both teams hit well, but it became a battle of attrition. It takes a lot of pitching to come from the loser's bracket and neither team had any left."

The scoring spree started early for Walter's, who struck three times in the first when Joe Sturtz, the North Farmington High grad and Indiana University outfielder, ripped a two-run triple off Wendy's starter Sean Kenny. John Gotts added an RBI sacrifice fly make it 3-0.

Walter's increased its lead to 4-0 in the second on a single by Ken Droplewski, a stolen base and a ground out off the bat of Jerry Koester.

Wendy's got two back in the top of the third, but Walter's answered with single runs in the third on RBIs by Koester and Jeff Pendell.

In the top of the fifth, Wendy's closed the gap to 6-5. Jon Chadliha's

RBI triple, pulling the visitors to within one, sent Walter's starter Anthony Chandler to the bench.

Bringing 11 batters to the plate, Walter's exploded for five runs on just two hits in the bottom half of the inning. Wendy's reliever Rob Kangas walked four, hit one batter and allowed singles to Droplewski and Houghtby (RBI) to account for the outburst.

BUT THE SIX-RUN lead evaporated in the seventh, as Wendy's batted around and then some, collecting eight hits en route to a six-run inning.

By that time Walter's relievers Bob Bullach and Steve Owens had come and gone, leaving the task to Chad Wrona, the right-hander from Brooklyn, Mich., who making his third appearance in as many nights.

With the game tied at 11-11, Walter's went to work in the bottom of the seventh, scoring twice when Houghtby started the rally with a walk. Damien Hull followed with a perfect drag bunt down the first base line before Pendell and Jason Gabel, the Churchill High connection, smacked clutch back-to-back doubles.

Catcher Tim Crabtree, the tournament's offensive and defensive stalwart, added an RBI single in the eighth to give Walter's some insurance.

"Crabtree hit very well early, tailed off in the middle of the year, but he came alive at the right time," said Lang. "It's also very difficult to steal on him and that puts you at a disadvantage."

Hull, who was on base five of six times, knocked in the game's final run with a single in the eighth to give Walter's a four-run cushion.

And despite some anxious moments, when Wendy's loaded the bases and had the tying run at the plate in the ninth, Wrona closed it out, pitching the final 2 1/2 innings to gain his second tournament win.

Crabtree, a backup catcher at Michigan State, collected eight hits and eight RBI during a three-day binge to pace the productive Walter's attack.

"I WAS HITTING lousy at the end of the season, but I got more aggressive for the playoffs," said the Grass Lake native. "I felt comfortable in the batters box and I was seeing the ball well."

His defensive prowess was also evident.

"I've been in this league a long time and I've never seen anybody with an arm like Tree's," said Keller. "He takes one of the opposition's offensive weapons away with his arm. He had an excellent playoff. He rose to the occasion."

Crabtree had two triples, a single and three RBI in Thursday's comeback from behind 9-7 win over Hines Park Lincoln-Mercury.

Hull, the center fielder, added three hits, while Gotts and Droplewski chipped in with two apiece.

Wrona was the winning pitcher in relief of Owens, the starter, and Gene Boyce.

Jeremy Krol, likely to be picked up by Keller along with Jim Miller of Little Caesars for the trip to Zanesville, went the distance (nine innings) for Hines Park in a losing cause.

In Friday's first game, Wendy's eliminated Hines Park, 13-1, as Steve Hirschman pitched seven scoreless innings to gain the victory.

Rob Kowalski, the Hines Park starter, took the loss.

WENDY'S, who collected 17 hits, was led by Steve Sonnett, who had a two-run homer, triple and single. Hirschman, Scott Wladischkin and Jeff Herrin added three hits apiece.

John Bonham had two of Hines Park's four hits.

But despite the lopsided victory, Wendy's had little left for its rematch against a fresh Walter's squad. Wendy's couldn't avenge Walter's 11-4 opening-round victory on Wednesday.

"Walter's has a good team and hopefully they'll do well in representing our league," Lang said. "With another pitcher (a pickup), they'll do well in Zanesville."

"It took every player we had," said Keller. "When Wendy's scored, we responded right away. I felt as long as we kept our heads into the game, we'd be there at the end, but if we had to play another game tomorrow, who knows? Maybe the score would have been 27-23."

Walter's hopes the score will be somewhat lower for Wednesday's regional encounter with newcomer Marietta, Ga.

"Playing three days in a row in our playoffs prepares you for places like Zanesville and Johnstown," Keller said. "In a situation like that, you have to use everybody."

And on Friday, Keller had enough in reserve to get the job done.

Duffy's seeks NABF title

The playoffs proved to be a short stint for the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League's regular season champions — but all is not lost.

Despite their second playoff loss in as many days — a 3-2 defeat Thursday at the hands of Wendy's of Ann Arbor — Duffy's Plumbing will continue its season representing the LCBL in the National Amateur Baseball Federation's College Division five-team regional, which starts Friday at Livonia's Ford Field.

Duffy's and another representative of the LCBL, the playoff runner-up, will join two teams from the Macomb Collegiate League and a representative in the Detroit Adray circuit at the NABF regional play.

Action begins at 10 a.m. Friday followed by games at 1, 4 and 7 p.m. Play resumes with a triple-header at noon, 3 and 6 p.m. Saturday. The finals of the double-elimination tourney are set for noon and 3 p.m. (if necessary) on Sunday.

DUFFY'S, which posted a 20-8-2 regular season mark, went out of the playoffs in two straight, starting with an 11-4 loss to Walter's Appliance on Wednesday.

On Thursday, Wendy's pitcher Stuart Hirschman (Michigan State) outdueled Duffy's Brent Hayward.

Both pitchers went the distance. The nine-inning game lasted just two hours and 15 minutes.

Hirschman allowed only five hits, while striking out four and walking only three. His shutout bid went awry in the sixth inning when Lee Tappy of Duffy's smacked a two-run double.

Hayward, meanwhile, scattered seven hits while fanning 12 and allowing just one walk.

Wendy's Steve Sonnett and Hirschman collected RBI singles in the second and third innings, respectively.

Jon Chadliha's solo homer in the fourth proved to be the difference.

MAC season may turn with local stars

By C.J. Rieak
staff writer

There's a new look with new coaches, but will the results of the Mid-American Conference football race follow an old pattern?

More directly, will the MAC representative to the California Raisin Bowl in December be a surprise — certainly not the team selected by the media (which has been correct in naming the conference champ only six times in 22 tries), and probably not a team that's been there before?

Seven different MAC teams have traveled to Fresno for the Cal Bowl in the last seven years. Which means the conference is running out of teams that haven't made the trip; that exclusive list includes just Ohio University, Kent State and Central Michigan.

Of those three, CMU would have the best shot of making the trip — if past patterns hold. To aid Chippewa hopes, in the media's annual meeting Tuesday it picked Toledo to win the title. Eastern Michigan was second, followed by CMU, Western Michigan, defending champ Ball State, Bowling Green State, Miami (Ohio), Ohio and Kent State.

BUT PAST patterns could very easily be derailed this season. Three of the nine MAC teams have new coaches, including favored Toledo. And both of the MAC's offensive and defensive MVPs of 1989 are gone.

So there will be new stars and different coaches adding to the MAC's unpredictability.

There are several Observer & Eclectic-area athletes who could play a pivotal role in their respective team's seasons, most notably with the top four contenders.

At Toledo, there's tailback Corey Ivey (Redford Bishop Borgess) and defensive tackle Nick Varajon (Livonia/Redford Catholic Central); at EMU, defensive end Craig Petersmark (Farmington) and center Gordie Johnstone (Walled Lake Central); at CMU, linebackers Clarence Rose (Southfield) and Kevin Rich (Livonia/Redford St. Agatha); at WMU, wide receiver Ulric King (Southfield-Lathrup).

NICK SABAN is the new man at Toledo, replacing Dan Simrell, whose firing sparked considerable controversy. Saban, formerly the defensive coordinator at Michigan State and the Houston Oilers defensive backfield coach, has inherited a team that finished a half-game out of first in the MAC.

Fourteen starters return for the Rockets, but the leading rusher and passer do not. That's where Ivey, a sophomore in eligibility, enters the picture.

He's small (5-foot-7, 170-pounds), but has 4.45 speed in the 40-yard dash. Although he had just 21 carries for 91 yards last season, Ivey emerged from spring drills as the narrow favorite to start.

"Ivey's got more speed and big-play ability (than the others)," said Saban. "But he's got to prove his durability and that he won't put the ball on the ground."

Brett Petersmark

Corey Ivey

Brett Naumcheff
CMU specialist

Varajon, a 6-1, 249-pound senior, is the kind of player Saban is looking for, someone to anchor his "junk-yard-dog style of defense." Varajon's added 25 pounds to his frame in the last two years and played himself into a starting position.

"We don't have a dominant defensive player," said Saban. "If we're a good defensive team, it's because we have 11 guys who play tough and play together."

PETERSMARK is a proven commodity at EMU. He was named second-team all-MAC after finishing second in the conference in tackles for loss (14 for 53 yards). At 6-4, 255, the senior is expected to be a major force in the Hurons' title drive.

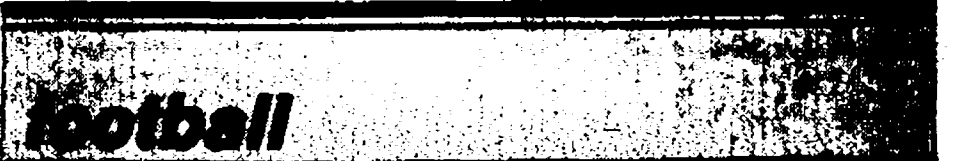

"Right now, our defense is our strength, especially because of our defensive line," said EMU coach Jim Harkema, who guided his team to a 7-3-1 record, 6-2 in the MAC, in '89. "Last year our defense became our identity. I think it will be again this year, because of our defensive line."

Five defensive starters return for EMU, but in Harkema's scheme there's considerable substitution. So expect to see some other familiar faces, like linebackers Chris Cox (Farmington Harrison), a sophomore, and Chris Parenti (Livonia Franklin), a junior, and junior rover-back Dave Marshall (Redford Union).

On offense, Johnstone, a 6-2, 272-pound senior, is one of five returnees and one of only two back on the offensive line. Harkema left no doubts about it: "Our offensive line has to develop." Johnstone and his back-up, sophomore Kurt Ross (Plymouth/CC), will be part of that plan.

THE CHIPPEWAS face a situation similar to EMU's. Nine defensive starters are back from a team that, like EMU, missed going to the Cal Bowl because it lost its final game. CMU finished 5-5-1 overall, 5-2-1 in the MAC.

Rose is one reason the Chips were able to overcome an 0-3 start and contend for the title. In fact, CMU coach Herb Deromedi said on most of his teams a player of Rose's ability would get loads of attention, but the Chips have two all-MAC defensive first teamers and a second-team pick returning.

A 6-0, 225-pound junior inside linebacker, Rose was fourth on the team with 76 tackles in '89. As Deromedi noted, "You have to have defense to contend. Our inside (defense) should be strong, with our linebackers."

Rich, a 6-4, 240-pound junior, faces a different challenge at outside linebacker. He replaces an all-MAC player — hardly an easy task. "If we have a (defensive) concern, it's at outside linebacker," Deromedi conceded. "We have to have people come through for us there."

There are other Chips with O&E backgrounds who will see considerable playing time. Senior Brett Naumcheff (Livonia) is back as the team's long-snapper on kicks; sophomore Mike Nettle (Livonia Stevenson) will see action at middle guard, as will sophomore Chris Scheffer (Westland John Glenn); and freshmen Bryant Satterlee (John Glenn), a linebacker, and Ken Carter (Birmingham Brother Rice), a defensive back, are key back-ups.

KING IS one of several outstanding offensive returnees at WMU. His development last year, as a true freshman, was outstanding, if not a complete surprise to Bronco coach Al Molde.

"We were real excited about him coming in," Molde said of King. But to start as a freshman and lead the team in receptions (32, for 435 yards and three TDs) — was that expected? "That," admitted Molde, "is exceptional."

The Broncos, 5-6 overall and 3-5 in the MAC last season, have eight starters back on offense, including its quarterback, top two receivers and first three rushers. Also returning, after sitting out last season with an injury, is slotback Paul Agema.

The defense isn't as solid, but five starters do return. Sophomore Jeff Reynolds (Southfield) will be a back-up at cornerback.

WMU's problem last season was close games. The Broncos lost four one-point contests — all in the MAC. Experience (starting quarterback Brad Tayles was another true freshman a year ago) and better breaks should correct that.

Or so Molde hopes.

Sanctioning has its merits

THE MONTH of August is the traditional and necessary time for all league officers and captains to get together with their meetings to formulate plans for the upcoming bowling season.

With this in mind, there are a few leagues around that bowl without sanction from the ABC or WIBC. That may seem to be a good choice for some because they save some added costs.

The reason for sanctioning a league? Some will argue that all it means is a ring for a 300 game and the bowlers are not that good. In reality, ABC and WIBC provide services that make the game as great and enjoyable for its members as we see it and many times take it all for granted.

Similar to other sports, there is a regulating body in order to keep everything organized and run well. Without the sanctioned leagues paving the way, others would not exist. There are numerous benefits that go along with that sanction card, and for sake of those officers who are still undecided, here are just a few good reasons to join.

• Rules of the game — The rule book has been developed and revised over the years to provide a basic format for league and tournament play. These rules are a guideline and individual leagues have the option of changing some rules to conform to their own needs.

• Guidance — The ABC and WIBC, in cooperation with local associations, provide handbooks for league presidents, secretaries and treasurers. They provide record-keeping sheets for each individual bowler. Every league can use the schedule they provide for the secretary.

• Awards — Besides the ring for 300, 299 and 298 games, other awards are given out for 100 pins over average in a game, 150 pins over average in a series, Dutch 200, all-spares game, 700 series, 11 consecutive strikes, conversion of 7-10 and 4-6-7-10 splits, most improved average, league champions and senior citizen achievements.

• Assistance — In case of a dispute, the local association can help in resolving the issue and interpreting the rule book.

• Bonding — All of the officers are automatically bonded, providing 100 percent protection of the league funds.

• Annual yearbook — Each league receives a copy of the yearbook containing averages and records of every sanctioned male and female bowler in the district coverage of the local association. This book is indispensable for leagues taking on new bowlers or substitutes during the season or for any bowlers who wish to compete in tournaments. The yearbook also contains a wealth of information on bowling, local history and highlights, records and averages.

• Discounts — In addition to group membership for the Warehouse Club, in which any member can purchase a wide variety of merchandise at wholesale prices, a discount card will be issued to all GDBA association members good at various retail businesses.

Is it worth the extra $6 per year to sanction? Let your officers know what you want and then decide.

Last week the National Sporting Goods Show was held at McCormick Place in Chicago.

Among the thousands of exhibitors, Brunswick Corporation represented the bowling industry. As usual, they exhibited a complete line of equipment for bowlers from every phase of the sport. Brunswick is keenly interested in the younger generation and have come up with a series of Mickey Mouse balls and bags in a variety of colors for the kids.

Another innovation is a tie in with NFL football, using the team logos on a selection of bowling bags.

The Disney-licensed goods are indicative that Brunswick will spend more of its energies to further the cause of youth bowling. The mainstay of the Brunswick balls is still the "Rhino" series, unchanged from the previous year. The "Rhino" is available in five different colors, each one differing in characteristics.

There is an entire line of shoes by Brunswick, styled like athletic shoes with the latest technology for the bowlers.

A new item that is sure to help bowlers if they have a problem with perspiration on their hands is called "Grrrip." This product is available in packets or a spray can. If applied directly to the fingers, it will prevent any sweat, helping to provide a firm, useful grip on the ball.

It is also useful for tennis players, golfers, batters and pass receivers in football. The product will soon be available in pro shops and sports departments.

The National Sporting Goods Show is one of the major trade shows in the nation. It is open daily to the retail and supplier segment of the industry. It is the showcase for most major sports. They usually have several sports celebrities on hand for promotional purposes.

I had previously met professional bowler Mark Roth at the show. You can meet Roth and fellow pro Amleto Monacelli Aug. 18 at Oak Lanes in Westland.

All youth coaches are to pick up their YABA supplies and materials for youth leagues at one of the following locations: Ark Sterling Lanes, Aug. 7, 6-9 p.m.; Satellite Bowl, Aug. 21, 6-9 p.m.; and Thunderbolt Lanes, Aug. 27, 6-9 p.m.

If unable to pick up, contact the office and it will be sent to you.

The bowling personality this week is Mike Samardzija, proprietor of K&S Bowling & Trophy in Livonia. Samardzija was inducted into the Michigan Majors Hall of Fame and averaged 199 in 21 years of ABC tournament play. He has won seven Michigan major titles, five regular tournaments, two senior tournaments and three PBA tourneys. He has bowled two 300 games and has a high series of 794. He is recognized as one of the better instructors in the game and coached some of the best youth league competitors.

(Al Harrison, a Southfield resident, serves as secretary for the Inter-Lodge Bowling League. Harrison requests that any information with area bowling establishments be sent to The Eccentric sports department at 805 E. Maple, or called in at 422-1609.)

Preparing now for deer season smart

IT MAY SEEM a little premature to be thinking about the archery deer season, but most veteran bow hunters have already been scouting and fine tuning their equipment in preparation for the October 1 opener.

There are 60 days remaining before opening day, and although that seems like a long time it really isn't.

Now is the time to do some maintenance on your equipment. Bow strings should be replaced, arrows that need work should be refletched, reknocked and straightened, hardware should be lubricated and tightened and any touch-up paint jobs should be taken care of now. You certainly don't want to walk into the woods on opening morning with a bow that smells like a can of paint.

If you weren't satisfied with the way you shot last year, now is the time to make any changes or try new equipment.

It will take time to adjust to changes such as switching from fingers to a release, trying a new sight or arrow rest, changing broadheads or arrows, adding a peep-sight or lighted sight pins, or trying a completely different bow. If you wait till mid-September to make these alterations chances are you won't be ready for the challenge of opening day.

ONCE CHANGES have been made, you must become comfortable with your new style of shooting. Most archery shops have indoor ranges and will let you try out new equipment before you leave the shop to be sure everything is set up correctly for you.

But once this is accomplished, you're ready for some serious practice.

One of the toughest aspects of bow hunting, especially for new archers, is judging distance between yourself and your quarry.

Most indoor ranges are set up so that archers may practice shots at 20, 25, 30 and sometimes 40-yards. This shooting works well if your opening day 10-point comes in at precisely 20-yards. But what if he comes in at 16-yards, or 28-yards?

If you have the luxury of practicing at home or at a neighbors, practice shooting at various ranges. Don't step off 20 yards, then turn around and shoot 30 arrows. Better yet, shoot several rounds at several different distances.

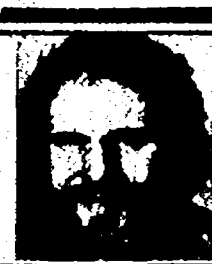

FIXED DISTANCES are perfect for tuning your bow, but once the arrows are hitting in a group, you need to practice judging distance.

Try not to step off your shots before shooting. Shoot a round, see how you hit the target, then step it off to see how accurate you were in judging the distance.

It's also a good practice to take shots from awkward positions. Sit on the ground, crouch behind a bush, shoot from behind a tree or overhanging branch and try to thread the shot through the branches just as you will undoubtedly have to do in the woods.

If you plan to hunt from a tree stand, take some shots from an elevated platform. Shooting down at a target is completely different than shooting on a flat plane. By making the shots tough on yourself in practice, you'll make the task easier when you finally get into your stand.

THERE ARE SEVERAL organizations in the area that offer walk-

through ranges to test your skill. These ranges provide challenging shots much like the shots you may encounter in the wild. They test the archer's ability at various (unmarked) distances and shooting situations.

Most walk-through ranges are set up in wooded areas and archers walk along a path that takes them to numerous, life-like shooting situations.

Courses feature between 12-15 targets per course and some ranges offer two of three different courses if you have enough time to try them all.

A typical 15-target course will take between one and two hours to complete. Broadhead shoots (silhouette targets of deer, bear and turkey) and 3-D shoots (field tips only) with life sized Styrofoam targets are available at different times.

LEAGUES ARE FORMING now at many ranges and most are open to the public on league nights. Weekend shoots are also popular activities.

• WWCCA Plymouth, the Western Wayne County Conservation Association is offering 28-target 3-D shoots on August 19 and September 8, and a broadhead shoot on September 30. Contact WWCCA at 453-9843 between 10 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. daily for more information about upcoming shoots.

• Detroit Archers, in West Bloomfield, offers a 16-target broadhead league every Wednesday evening through August and every Thursday evening through September.

There will also be a "Safari and 3-D Shoot" this weekend, with two 28-target courses set up. They are also holding a "Bowhunters Jamboree" on Sept. 8-9. Contact Detroit Archers at 661-4775 for more information about upcoming shoots.

• Oakland County Sportsmen, in Waterford, offers 15-target broadhead leagues on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays evening through September. They also offer 30-target broadhead shoots every Sunday, 9 a.m.-2 p.m. through September 30. Contact Oakland County Sportsmen at 623-0444 for more information about upcoming shoots.

• Royal Oak Archers, in Lake Orion, offers a 14-target broadhead league every Wednesday through September. Weekend broadhead and 3-D shoots are also scheduled through September. Call Royal Oak Archers at 693-9799 for more information about upcoming shoots.

If you get in one round of practice per week between now and October 1, you'll get in eight sessions before opening day. The ninth time you shoot may be at 7 a.m. opening morning at a trophy buck at 33-yards. Will you be up to the challenge?

(Bill Parker is happy to answer questions readers have regarding the outdoors. Anglers who land trophy fish should also report their success. Send question or comments to: Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, Mi. 48009.)

Miller eyes spot on Lions

By C.J. Riak
Staff writer

When he played football at Farmington Harrison, John Miller was the show.

At Michigan State, Miller was an integral part of what blossomed into a very big show.

Now comes Miller's greatest challenge. He's searching for his place, hoping for a break, wanting to prove he belongs in the biggest show — professional football.

"I think they're pretty good," was Miller's estimation of his chances after the Detroit Lions' Friday morning practice session at the Silverdome. "I know they're better than last year."

Ah, yes. Last year. Not a happy time for Miller, someone unaccustomed to having to prove himself. At Harrison, he was rated as one of the state's best football players. At MSU, he started for three years in the defensive backfield and helped the Spartans win the Rose Bowl in 1988.

AS AN UNDRAFTED rookie last year, Miller was just hoping to stick the season out with the Lions. He couldn't. He ended up on their developmental squad.

Training camp in '89 was a nightmare for Miller. "I didn't know what I was fighting for," he said. The six other safeties in camp battling him for one spot on the roster didn't know, either. "Last year, it was like I just hung around to collect a paycheck through training camp. I knew I wasn't going to make it."

There's less competition this year, improving Miller's chances.

DAN DEAN/staff photographer

John Miller is pointing toward a job in the Detroit Lions' defensive secondary and on special teams.

He's currently the back-up to starting safety Bennie Blades, and he plays on all the special teams.

"They like what I'm doing with the punt-block situation," he said. "I think I belong on this team."

If his work in the secondary doesn't impress the defensive staff, Miller hopes special teams coach Frank Ganz will put in some good words for him.

But he has his negatives. His size is fine (6-foot-1, 200 pounds), but his speed isn't (4.7 in the 40).

"They're always going to question my speed," he said. "I'm not even sure they trust me back there."

WHICH IS why the Lions signed cornerback LeRoy Irvin last week. Irvin may be nearing the end of his career, but he has experience and has had some outstanding seasons, twice making the trip to the Pro Bowl.

Irvin doesn't play the same position, but his signing could have ramifications on Miller's fate. Should the Lions decide to carry five cornerbacks and only three safeties, instead of four and four, Miller's chances of sticking with the squad will dip.

"It's a Catch-22," he said. "They want experience back there and I don't have it."

The catch is the Lions don't want to risk letting him gain experience at their expense.

Miller refuses to let the numbers game — five-and-three or four-and-four — get to him. "I don't have any time to worry about what they're thinking. I have to keep my mind straight."

HIS PERSEVERANCE should work to his advantage. After failing to make the team last season, Miller stuck with it and kept on training. "I worked out here (at the Silverdome) all during the off-season," he said. "I was coming in from East Lansing.

"I think they knew I was committed."

But Miller's determination has its limits. "If this doesn't work out, I'll go somewhere else," he said. If no other team expresses an interest in him, though, Miller will give up his dream. Married six weeks ago, he has no plans to play in the new international football league next year.

"I'll have to go out and find a job," he said. It was clearly a prospect he didn't savor.

And it wasn't something he expected. Miller clearly believes he has a solid shot at making the Lions. "Whenever I start to look down at the situation, I think about last year," he said.

It was much worse then. Now, Miller knows the question of his making the big show will be his to answer, with his performance on the field during the exhibition games.

Cohoes collect point title

The Clarenceville Cohoes' 13-14 age-group swimmers recently took high-point honors at the McDonald's Midland Summer A-B Swim Festival in Midland (hosted by the Dolphins).

The meet attracted 600 swimmers from 45 different teams.

Westland I comeback nets AABC region win

The Westland Federation Baseball Club I team won the "rubber match" against rival Westland II in the opening round Wednesday of the AABC North-Central Mickey Mantle (ages 15-16 year-olds) regional in Coldwater.

The two teams had split during the regular season, but Westland I overcame a 5-0 deficit after 2 1/2 innings to gain a 7-5 triumph in the double-elimination tournament, which continued through Sunday.

Westland II was bolstered by Mark Rutherford's three-run homer in the second inning, but Westland I rallied for one in the second, three in the fourth and two more in the sixth.

Chuck Winters, who pitched 4 1/2 innings of shutout relief of starter Mike Thomas, got credit for the win. He allowed three hits and struck out four.

Each team collected nine hits. Joe Coughlin, Dave Roman and Joe Vondracek led Westland I with two hits apiece.

ON THURSDAY, Westland I

unleashed an 18-hit attack in a 14-0 win over North Farmington/West Bloomfield, a team which had beaten coach Jerry Pitcher's squad in two of three meetings during the regular season. (The game lasted only five innings because of the mercy rule.)

In four at-bats Coughlin, contributed a three-run homer, RBI double and single. Andy Gagne also went 3-for-4, while Vondracek and Roman added two hits each.

Westland I starting pitcher Bob Arellano pitched the first three innings, allowing three walks while fanning C.J. Elswick and Stu Sartwell each pitched an inning of shutout relief to combine for the shutout.

Also on Thursday, Westland II stayed alive with a 5-4 victory over Kalamazoo. Westland I, meanwhile, was to meet host Coldwater on Saturday. (Results of those games will appear in Thursday's Observer.) 30

Boyle Chevrolet edges AJ's for softball crown

Pat Boyle Chevrolet repeated as city champion in the Livonia Men's Modified Fast-Pitch Softball League, defeating AJ's in the tournament final Wednesday 2-1.

Boyle has won the championship six of the last eight years. All but the last two titles were won under the previous team name of FGS Radiator.

"We seem to always come up with some big ball games during the city tournament," said Boyle player/coach Dave Brubaker. Boyle was runner-up to AJ's in the regular season.

"We made wholesale changes this year and brought in a lot of youth. I've never seen a team make as many changes and still be as competitive as this team.

"We knew we'd have some growing pains this year," he added. "It was a matter of getting (the young players) to give up on baseball and learn this game because it is different. It's a quicker game."

RON WANDZEL scored the winning run Wednesday in the bottom of the seventh inning.

He entered as a pinch runner for Tim Robinson and took second on a passed ball. With two out, Mike Kesson hit a chopper over the third baseman's head to drive in Wandzel.

AJ's scored in the first inning, but Boyle tied in the second. Doug Kirkpatrick's single and Kesson's double put runners at second and third for Brubaker, who hit a sacrifice fly.

Yep, you can be one of the smiling, happy faces you see here when you're an Observer & Eccentric carrier. Each year, our carriers get to treat their folks to an evening at the Zoo—we call it Carrier Night at the Zoo, and everybody gets in free. When you're a carrier you get a chance at winning some really neat prizes during the year— 10-speed bikes and cool stuff like that. There's work and responsibility, too. That's the serious part of being a carrier. But you learn a lot—like the kids here—and have fun at the same time. If you'd like to be an Observer & Eccentric carrier and you're between 11 and 14 years old, just call one of the numbers below and apply for your very own route.

THE BEATLES

Original members of Broadway's "Beatlemania" are still drawing crowds of fans.

Putting a price on 'Penny Lane'

By Jill Hamilton
special writer

They came. They saw. They listened to Beatles music 12 hours a day, two days in a row. They spent a lot of money.

We're talking about "Beatle-Con 1990," the area's first-ever Beatles convention, held at the Troy Hilton Inn. If you're thinking about attending the second-ever Beatles convention in the Detroit area, you'd do well to heed the following warning: You must be a very, very big — perhaps borderline obsessive — fan of the Beatles to appreciate these sort of conferences.

You have to have a certain degree of stamina that will allow you to endure 24 hours of Beatles dolls, Beatle movies, performances by the cast of "Beatlemania," get-your-picture-taken-with-the-Beatles booths (with cardboard cut-outs of the Beatles, of course) and quite possibly a bazillion Beatles fan mags.

In other words, enough overexposure to the Beatles to make you want to melt down your once-beloved copy of "Abbey Road."

Fans were dropping money right and left as they discovered such Beatle necessities as a Beatles light switch cover and a mono single of John Lennon's "Mind Games" for a mere $50. For treasures like these, people drove several hundred miles.

Maryann Borgon lives in Orlando, Fla., and she made the long and arduous trip to Troy for the sole reason of attending Beatle-Con.

"THAT'S THE reason I came," she said without a trace of shame. "I wish I had about two zillion dollars."

Debi Hunter, 37, who should presumably know better, drove from Columbus, Ohio, "just for this."

The attendees sat through speeches by Russ Gibb (the radio announcer who first broadcast the "Paul is dead" rumor), watched "A Hard Day's Night," "Help," "Magical Mystery Tour," "Let it Be" and a cartoon featuring a German version of "I Want to Hold Your Hand," watched three (count 'em) performances by the cast of "Beatlemania" and heard talks by jilted ex-Beatle drummer Pete Best, Beatle filmmakers, Beatle biographers and even a Beatle poetry expert.

People even seemed enthralled by those clips of the Beatles appearing on "The Ed Sullivan Show" that possibly every man, woman and child in America has seen at least 60 times.

What makes people act like this? We mean; these Beatles fans are beginning to act like Trekkies. Granted, the Beatles were a fine band, even an excellent band. But, let's be reasonable for a moment here. The Beatles — fine as they were — were only a band, for heaven's sake.

We posed this question to festival co-organizer Charles Rosenay!!!, a man who has had his name legally changed to include three exclamation points.

"THEIR MUSIC is the first and foremost reason," he said. "Second is the memories of the 1960s and third is the magic, the X Factor. That's partly the charisma of the individuals and something else that I can't put my finger on."

Want a shot with the Fab Foursome? Marlan Borgman gladly posed with the boys from Liverpool even though they were cardboard cutouts.

'On the road, maaaaan:' No glitz, no glamour

By Cormac Wright
special writer

Day 1:

"So you want to be a rock'n'roll star, well just get yourself an electric guitar," and a manager, a road crew, a record company, a very tolerant disposition, a belief in what you are doing, and . . . maybe some talent might help also.

Rock'n'roll mythology has always been associated with glamour, money, women, drugs, smashing hotel rooms, decadence of all types.

But what if you are not the Rolling Stones, The Who or U2 and are one of the endless thousands of bands hoping to achieve such legendary status, struggling to have their music heard, and bought.

Life "on the road, maaaaan" can be decidedly unglamorous at this level.

Recently, a band from Ireland, Something Happens, stopped in Detroit and played in the Majestic Theatre as part of a limited nationwide tour. The band has achieved considerable success in their home country, with a No. 1 selling album, "Stuck Together with God's Glue."

Riding on the crest of this success, has led them touring in America. I joined the band in New Haven, Conn., and suffered the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune with the band through to New York.

I meet up with singer Tom Dunne and drummer Eamonn Ryan in the bar of a Holiday Inn in New Haven.

It is 5 p.m. when their van driver, Glenn, arrives to ferry all concerned to the venue for the sound check. We have just hooked onto what is an everyday ritual for the band.

Arriving at The Moon Club, the sound system is still being set up. Something Happens' sound engineer, Ritchie "Daddy" Walsh, paces impatiently from the sound desk to the band, complaining about the speed or lack thereof, at which the house engineers work.

"Would ye look at them," he says in his broad Dublin accent, gesturing toward two gentlemen holding both ends of the same electrical chord. "It takes two of them to unravel it."

He turns to the band and gives a sly smile. Meanwhile, Tom sits and talks to the young English couple, Tracy and Martin, who took advantage of a special offer in the United Kingdom, a no-restriction 30-day ticket for flights anywhere within the United States and are using it to fly to all the Something Happens gigs.

With sound check finally over, the band is taken for dinner to a small and rather dubious Chinese restaurant. Two hours, and some distinctly dodgy digestive systems later, Glenn the van driver returns to take everybody back to the venue.

The gig is a raving success — hot, sweaty and sexy. Before their encore, Tom is accosted on his return to the stage and asked to play "Shoulder High," an older B-side, by three young local girls who saw the band while vacationing in Ireland last year.

One line of the song is self-addressed, and upon reaching it, Tom finds himself accompanied on his vocals by the aforementioned trio, who are all standing at this feet at the front of the stage.

He smiles, telling them, "This has never happened before!"

Their work day at an end, they were interested in relaxing, but they find "nothing's open now." So, it's an early early night, with the tour director instructing everybody to be in the lobby ready to leave at 9:30 a.m.

DAY 2:

The Happens van pulls into Boston after the three-hour drive from New Haven. First stop on the agenda is the offices of Warner Elektra Atlantic (WEA), which is the distributing company for Virgin Records, parent company for Charisma, which is releasing the Something Happens' LPs in the U.S.

The reason for this afternoon's visit is to introduce the band to the people who will be getting, or attempting to get, their records played on U.S. radio and generally pushing the band.

Next up is the radio station stop. While everybody else retires to the hotel to clean up, Tom and drummer, Ted, are driven by the Charisma records representative to WBCN-FM. There they are introduced to Carter Allen, their star DJ who is known to have been the first one to break U2 in America.

Tom and Ted's duties today include recording station IDs, having their photos taken with DJs standing by a Volkswagen beetle covered in rock (hence the station nickname), and autographing a giant card which is to be auctioned off for charity when filled with celebrity signatures.

Once again there's the ritual of the sound check is performed. As it comes to a close, the Charisma records representative is frantically looking for Tom to go and do a radio interview at WFNX. He is whisked off for the 50-minute drive in rush hour traffic to the studios in Lynn, Mass.

Despite it being a small studio, the station is one of the strongest alternative-music stations. Tom was relieved to find that the DJ conducting the interview was well informed about the band.

The gig ensued to a packed house of Irish emigres, regular punters and record and radio execs. After encores, scores of people swamped the dressing room. Next stop is a nine-hour drive to Washington, D.C.

DAY 3:

Having arrived in D.C., the band catches up on their sleep while the road crew decide to take advantage of a couple spare hours and do some sightseeing.

By noon, Tom and Ray have been awoken to be removed to another radio interview. This time, the WHFS-FM DJ is obviously not familiar with the band.

Members of Something Happens take a break during the sound check prior to dinner and the evening's performance.

MOVING PICTURES

Denzel Washington plays trumpeter Bleek Gilliam who falls in love with teacher Indigo Blues in Spike Lee's latest film, "Mo' Better Blues."

Spike Lee may sing blues about 'Mo' Better Blues'

If it was Spike Lee's intention to produce a long, boring, corny, 1930-style musical, he succeeded with "Mo' Better Blues" (D, R, 120 minutes).

Bleek Gilliam (Denzel Washington) and his quintet are packing them in, but they're not making any money because their manager, Giant (Spike Lee), negotiated a very poor contract with Moe and Josh Flatbush (John and Nicholas Turturro). The stereotypical roles and performances of the Turturro brothers is overdrawn beyond belief and becomes leaden and embarrassing.

Meanwhile, Giant has a gambling problem of major proportions. Besides these complications, Bleek has two girlfriends, Indigo (Jolie Lee) and Clarke (Cynda Williams). His passion for music leaves no room for love, just lust.

Music is the only thing this film has going for it with performances by the Branford Marsalis Quartet, Miles Davis, John Coltrane, Cannonball Adderly and Charles Mingus.

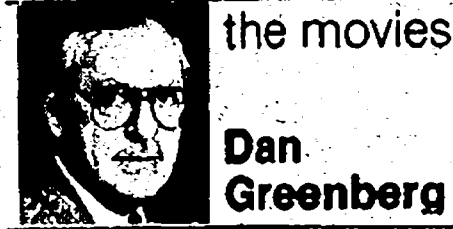

While those guys make the film sound terrific, Spike Lee made it look simply awful. The camera swoops and swirls from one obtuse angle to another and it's hard to decide whether this is avant-garde cinematography or a freshman in film school trying to figure out how the camera works.

Although the acting is pretty decent, the script, direction and editing make hash of the professionalism possessed by competent performers. The first half of the film, in particular, drags along with very little character development.

THE OPENING sequence with Bleek as a child proves that mother's nagging creates passionate musicians, but so what? The repetition of that sequence at the film's conclusion is the ultimate cornball routine.

If there's some message in remarking the most trite and cliched musical films of the early '30s with black performers, well, it got lost in a very poorly written, directed and produced (all by Spike Lee) film.

thoughtfulness of "Do the Right Thing," Spike Lee has let his fans down with a soggy musical marshmallow. Buy the soundtrack and save the time and trouble of trekking out for "Mo' Better Blues."

The Walt Disney Company continues to make its mark with new and old productions. The re-release of "The Jungle Book" reached $18 million at the box office in its first 10 days. Now comes "Duck Tales: The Movie - Treasure of the Lost Lamp" (A, G, 70 minutes).

Based on the popular daytime television syndication, "Duck Tales: Treasure of the Lost Lamp," features Scrooge McDuck with Huey, Dewey and Louie searching for the buried treasure of Collette Baba. Alan Young does the voice of Scrooge, sounding very much like Sean Connery although he claims the brogue was based "largely on that of his own Scottish father."

Be that as it may, the film can't escape its similarities to the Indiana Jones vehicles. Nonetheless, the children will love it and it's a pretty fine animated feature for the kid in all of us.

STILL PLAYING:

"The Adventures of Milo and Otis" (G). A curious kitten (Milo) and its puppy friend (Otis) embark on numerous live-action adventures. Narrated by Dudley Moore.

"The Adventures of Ford Fairlane" (F, R, 90 minutes).

"Another 48 Hrs." (C, R, 90 minutes). Murky plot and lots of violence but by-and-large this Nolte-Murphy reunion is unsatisfying.

"Arachnophobia" (B-, PG-13, 95 minutes).

Killer spiders from Venezuela are no match for Jeff Daniele despite his fear of furry little, eight-legged creatures.

"Back to the Future Part III" (A, PG, 105 minutes).

This time Doc and Marty are back to the past in an extremely entertaining adventure in the old west.

"Beisy's Wedding" (A, R, 90 minutes). Fine comedy nicely synthesizes American ethnic diversity, family values and the problems of being an individual in today's mass culture.

"Bird on a Wire" (A-, PG-13, 105 minutes).

Mel Gibson and Goldie Hawn on thrilling cross-country search for nasty character trying to murder Gibson.

"Days of Thunder" (A-, PG-13, 116 minutes).

"Dick Tracy" (A-, PG, 105 minutes).

Just the right mix of "slam-bang-pow!" cartoon characters, '30s nostalgia and warm human relationships.

"Die Hard 2" (B+, R, 105 minutes).

"The Freshman" (C+, PG, 102 minutes).

Brando is terrific in a satire of his "Godfather" performance but the story here is too complicated and poorly told to make a worthwhile film.

"Ghost" (A-, PG-13, 116 minutes).

Banker's ghost (Patrick Swayze) hangs around after life to protect loved one (Demi Moore). Spiritualist (Whoopi Goldberg) helps him and this romantic/comedy/thriller.

"Ghost Dad" (C, PG, 100 minutes).

Even the Cosby magic can't stretch a half-hour sitcom to 100 minutes without commercials.

"Gremlins 2: The New Batch" (B-, PG-13, 100 minutes).

More of the same with Gizmo, Billie (Zack Gallagher) and Kate (Phoebe Cates).

"The Hunt for Red October" (C) (PG) 135 minutes.

"Jetsons: The Movie" (G).

George is now VP at Spacely where sabotage highlights the ecology versus technology issue.

"The Jungle Book" (A, G, 78 minutes).

Re-release of 1967 Disney animated feature based on Kipling's Mowgli stories.

"Last Exit to Brooklyn" (B-, R, 100 minutes).

Violence and conflict in a forsaken part of the world, the neighborhood surrounding the last Brooklyn subway exit before Manhattan.

"Navy Seals" (R, 113 minutes).

U.S. Navy Commandos hit the beaches to save American helicopter crew from terrorists.

"Pretty Woman" (A-, R, 120 minutes).

"Presumed Innocent" (B+, R, 123 minutes).

Independents have their day

By John Monaghan
special writer

The past few years have been tough on independents, films produced and distributed away from the confines of the major Hollywood studios. That may be changing.

The success of the Irish-made "My Left Foot" shocked everyone, including the company that released it, Miramax Films. New Line, which used to release foreign and low-budget titles, has scored two of the year's biggest hits with "House Party" and "The Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles."

So, it's not surprising that both of these companies are releasing other films from their vaults, with considerably more fanfare than they might have two or three years ago. Miramax's "Strapless" and New Line's "Chicago Joe and the Showgirl" appear on area screens this week.

"Strapless," at the Michigan Theatre in Ann Arbor, is a low-key portrait of two women who experience massive changes in their lives. Working in London, an American doctor in her 40s (Blair Brown of TV's "Days and Nights of Molly Dodd") begins to question the decisions she has made. When a mysterious European (Bruno Ganz) woos her during vacation, she is swept off her feet.

Her sister (Bridget Fonda), meanwhile, has arrived for an open-ended visit. Her casual affairs lead to pregnancy and the matter-of-fact decision to keep the baby brings newfound responsibility that sharply contrasts with her older sister's new-found free spirit.

"Strapless" is directed by playwright David Hare, whose emotionally draining "Plenty" was also made into a film. Critics have been calling "Strapless" an extremely well-acted study of two independent women and a rare film that doesn't women them purely by the men in their lives.

"Chicago Joe and the Showgirl," currently at the Maple in Bloomfield, is based on a real-life story that made headlines during World War II. A casual meeting between a young English woman and an American serviceman leads to nocturnal crime spree.

A self-styled Bonnie and Clyde, the young couple (played by Kiefer Sutherland and Emily Lloyd) commandeers a truck, go for a reckless joy ride, then make off with a fur coat. Eventually, their insatiable search for thrills leads to the murder of a London cabbie.

Director Bernard Rose finished his "Chicago Joe" script in the 1970s, but only recently convinced someone to finance such a morally ambiguous film. He was also adamant about filming completely on studio sets, the way a movie of the 1940s would have been.

This gave the director the ability to recreate dirty London streets during wartime. Rose's real motive was to shed new light on the sensational case, the only time an American was executed in England during World War II.

Blair Brown plays an American doctor who discovers a new-found freedom through her boyfriend, played by Bruno Ganz, in David Hare's "Strapless."

Charlie Chaplin is well-known for 81 films released from 1914 through 1967. Thirty-five of them were produced at Mack Sennett's Keystone Studios in 1914. Those and the 12 Mutual comedies made in 1915 and 1917 were so successful that thereafter Chaplin was able to work at his own pace and in his own, improvisational style.

Three 55-minute videos detailing his style, "Unknown Chaplin" (Color and black and white), were released Aug. 1 by HBO Video. They are a real treat, containing a few familiar scenes and a great deal of new material, outtakes — film shot but cut out of the final production — as well as Chaplin "home movies" and footage from uncompleted films.

These three programs were culled from thousands of feet of footage stored in Chaplin's private vault. He had ordered it destroyed. Fortunately, his wife didn't comply with his wishes so Chaplin fans, nostalgia buffs and cinema lovers have a marvelous three hours waiting.

The series is introduced by Chaplin's daughter, actress Geraldine Chaplin, in a monologue with affection and admiration for her father clearly evident and very touching. The three programs are narrated by James Mason and include recent reminiscences by stars of Chaplin films: Georgia Hale, Virginia Cherrill, Jackie Coogan and Lita Grey — the first Mrs. Chaplin.

PART ONE OF this trilogy, "My Happiest Years," details his early years as a successful film comic and director, particularly with the Mutual Film Company. The second tape, "The Great Director," covers Chaplin's post-Mutual years when First National — a major company of the time — gave Chaplin, already the highest paid film star of the day, $1 million to produce eight films.

The third tape, "Hidden Treasures," features rare footage of Chaplin's home life. The trilogy, "Unknown Chaplin," was written by noted film historian, Kevin Brownlow ("The Parade's Gone By") and David Gillis.

While the three tapes have much to recommend them, one of the most interesting facets are the serial outtakes which detail Chaplin's method of rehearsing on film and then, after screening these "rehearsals," evolving and maturing his comic routines. The rehearsals, however, were all staged and filmed as if they were the real thing. Hence the footage is polished and, even if much of it never made it to the final cut, very funny and extremely enjoyable.

Certainly, a lot more so than many of the videos appearing for home consumption these days.

IN THE AVERAGE (for video) category, Lonl Anderson stars in

"Sorry Wrong Number" (1989, color, not rated, 90 minutes), a made-for-TV vehicle based on the screenplay Lucille Fletcher wrote for the 1948 Barbara Stanwyck/Burt Lancaster film based, in turn, on her original radio play.

This time out Anderson is a wealthy invalid, Madeline Coltrane Stevenson, whose husband (Carl Weintraub) plans her murder because of her $1 million insurance policy. Hal Holbrook appears as her father, Jim Coltrane, an overly protective pharmaceutical tycoon.

There are some fairly tense moments and the flashback technique evolving out of phone calls is fairly effective, but Anderson's acting range is limited to strained and uncomfortable reading of lines. She's at her best looking rich and lovely while displaying lots of cleavage.

The film also has a number of structural problems including Anderson asking, "Am I in danger?" after her husband's accomplice, the Chemist Evans (Patrick MacNee) explains the whole plot. It doesn't help matters when the countdown to midnight murder reaches 11:30 p.m. and then drops back to 11:10 in the next scene.

In the weak category, avoid "Personals" (1989, color, not rated, 93 minutes) with Stephanie Zimbalist as the widow of an investigative reporter (Robin Thomas) who was researching classified personal ads when he ran afoul of a psychotic, Jennifer O'Neill. Can't ask for a better cast, just a decent script.

Kiefer Sutherland returns as Doc Scurlock, poet and outlaw, in "Young Guns II."

Unlike other groups of its genre, Virus B-23 seems to mimic — associated with bands such as the Cure and Echo and the Bunnymen — the Euro-big guitar sound almost to the point of parodying — the Euro-big guitar sound.

Virus B-23: Infectious sound

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Bands often present themselves as the perfect model of a democracy. All members share in the songwriting, booking decisions and the cost for a post-gig six-pack.

Then there is Virus B-23. Lead singer and guitarist John Vincent is in charge. That's evident from the onset of the interview, which also includes fellow band member bassist Adam Lawrence.

Lawrence doesn't say much. "I think we'll survive partly out of attrition because so many bands die out," said Vincent, 22, who is a theater major at Eastern Michigan University. "Number one is the economics. . . . Number two, I think most bands are a democracy. I'm the dictator in this band."

A benevolent dictator? "He can get tough," said Lawrence, 19, who lives in Garden City. "It's the kind of tough you can respect. That's why it's easy to take his orders or whatever."

THAT, ALONG with a knack for a good rock'n'roll beat and somewhat cynical lyrics, makes Virus B-23 certainly one of the brightest new entries on the local music matrix.

In a short time, Virus B-23 has garnered a loyal following and has cuts from its demo tape receiving continual air play on WDTR-FM's "Detroit Music Scene."

Virus B-23 has been together a little more than a year, only three months with its current lineup. Along with Vincent and Lawrence, drummer Larry Rose and guitarist Carl Bartosek, both from Canton, are in the group.

What sets Virus B-23 (named as a result of William Burroughs' book "Cities of the Red Night") apart is its relative inexperience. Band members are young — 19-22 years of age. Some of the members are self-taught musicians.

Vincent didn't start playing the guitar until two years ago, learning a few chords out of a book and figuring out the rest on his own.

"I purposely didn't take lessons," Vincent said. "I didn't want to learn 'Stairway to Heaven.'"

Instead, Vincent became enamored with the post-punk sounds emanating from Great Britain. Bands like Joy Division, Jesus and Mary Chain and the Smiths were inspirations.

VINCENT'S QUICK to point out he didn't "rip off the riff." Instead, "I try to rip off what's good about the song."

Nine songs featured on the group's demo are diverse, from minimalist sounds of "Taste the Flame" to the futuristic drone to "PUMP." Humor is in the repertoire as well, judging by the sardonic "Heavy Metal Babe."

That might be attributable to Vincent's affinity for dark humor. With Burroughs and the Smiths as favorites, it's easy to see why.

Eventually, Virus B-23 would like to head back into the studio and record an LP. Economics, though, dictate otherwise.

Until then, live gigs are the only source for an outlet. The band plays regularly in both Ann Arbor and Detroit, the latter seeming a bit more receptive to the Virus.

"Ann Arbor is more musically dead than Detroit because there are only two clubs that will have you — Club Heidelberg and the Blind Pig," Vincent said. "Most bands from Ann Arbor are either REM ripoffs or '60s, garage psychedelic excrement."

"There are some good bands, but the club scene beats out originality. If you don't play what sells, you won't play."

Virus B-23 will perform on Tuesday, Aug. 7, at New York New York, 24300 Hoover, south of 10 Mile, Warren. For information, call 756-6142. The group will also perform on Saturday, Aug. 11, at the Majestic Theatre, 4140 Woodward Ave., Detroit. For information, call 833-9700.

Bands battle for spot at Whiplash Bash

A contest for Michigan's best rock band is being conducted with the winner opening on "Ted Nugent's Whiplash Bash" on New Year's Eve.

Eighteen finalists will be narrowed from the field of contestants, which will compete during October at the Studio Lounge in Westland. The Studio Lounge is one of the sponsors along with WRIF-FM, Al Nalli Music, Arnoldt Williams Music, Madhouse Management and Bob Gainer Enterprise.

To enter, all contestants must submit a tape of two songs only, a photo of the band and complete an entry form at either: Al Nalli Music, 312 S. Ashley, Ann Arbor, 665-7008; and 317 S. Main, Ann Arbor, 663-2866; or Arnoldt Williams Music, 5701 Canton Center Road, Canton, 453-6586; and 21111 15 Mile, Sterling Heights, 979-0300.

Deadline to enter the contest is Friday, Aug. 31.

Bands must be based in Michigan, have no more than 10 members, be 18 years of age or older, and not be signed to a nationally-distributed record label. Also, a band member must be present at time of entry.

The 18 finalists will be picked by a panel of judges and will be notified of their decision by Monday, Sept. 24.

The first round will feature three bands a night on Mondays and Tuesdays, Oct. 1 through Oct. 16, at The Studio Lounge. Six bands will then compete in the semifinals Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 22-23.

The top two bands will battle it out in the finals on Monday, Nov. 5.

Each of the 18 finalists will perform a 40-minute set on the supplied house system. Contestants will use their own back line equipment such as amps, guitars, drums, keyboards.

Bands will receive scores of 1-9 in four categories such as technical skill, composition-musical material, creativity and originality, and showmanship and appearance. Penalty points will be assessed for running over the set time.

BLANK GENERATION

— Richard Hell and the Voidoids

"Blank Generation" is as interesting for its history as its music. It is sort of a musical document of a time long ago — the birth of the punk movement in America.

While the Sex Pistols and the Clash were beginning to make waves in England, Richard Hell was hanging around with Tom Verlaine and Patti Smith writing poetry in New York. Hell found that writing poetry was not quite the dynamic medium that he wanted so he started to play music.

He formed the band Television with Verlaine. They specialized in the then-original tactics of spiking their hair, ripping their clothes and playing music that depended more on speed and volume than technical process.

Eventually Verlaine went on to become a celebrated guitarist and Hell formed the Voidoids. The Voidoids never exactly burned up the record charts. In fact, their only other record was a 1982 release on Red Star Records (a few other releases on tape are available). So it is not surprising that Hell abandoned the music business and returned to his literary roots.

Now he spends his times editing a New York literary magazine, publishing and acting in underground

filmis. (He had a cameo in "Desperately Seeking Susan.")

Considering Hell's casual approach to making records, his lack of technical expertise and the general sound of most punk music, then, it is surprising how musical "Blank Generation" actually is.

Although Hell's singing tends toward screaming, he does manage to sing melodically for some of the slower songs. The sound of the band ranges from fast-paced dance songs (well, dance music along the same lines as The Ramones) to slow, almost bluesy songs of the down-and-out.

"Love Comes in Spurts" is a pre-Voidoids song that Hell rewrote for the band. In the song, Hell equates sexual release with pain with the lines, "Cuz love comes in spurts/in dangerous flirts/and it murders your heart/They didn't tell you that part."

It's surprisingly good stuff. Even after all these years, Hell's music sounds fresh and innovative.

HIMSELF

— Andy White

After more than 20 years of "The Troubles" in Northern Ireland, things still don't make any sense. Andy White, who calls south Belfast home, knows this better than anyone.

Which, in itself, lends to some great, if not whimsical, music on "Himself" (Cooking Vinyl). White doesn't try to solve all the problems in a place where the "jeeps are green and the girls are pretty."

Instead, White sings in Dylanesque style of people, sights and sounds of living in a war zone. He pulls it off without choosing sides or being bombastic.

The closest White gets to political moralizing is in the charged narrative "The Guildford Four."

There are songs of escape, such as "Birds of Passage." White's better moments, though, come when he gets within himself and finds peace through his imagination, and, as a result, his music.

While White bears his obvious Bob Dylan influence in such folk tinged numbers as "Six String Street" and "St. Patrick Good Luck," his knack for catchy pop melodies borders on genius.

He sings "In a Groovy Kind of Way," the opening cut, in an artsy Ray Davies style. In the rather soothing "1,000,000 Miles Away," White's voice is just above a whisper as he solemnly strums his acoustic guitar. He completes the song with a yawn. "The Whole Love Story" is a soft, yearning number that falls as lightly as fine mist.

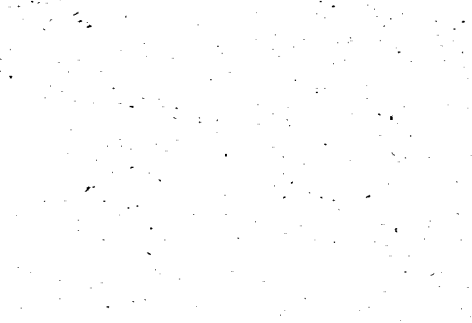

"Six String Street," by contrast, is a dance hall kicker that jumps from the opening note.

TOY MATINEE

— Toy Matinee

Toy Matinee's debut album of the same name burps with the sounds of Peter Gabriel and Squeeze. But it sounds more like a rip-off than an influence.

"Queen of Misery" is the epitome of their inconsistencies. The song contradicts itself with Squeeze-style funk music with a good beat (you can dance to it) and bass sounds like a Peter Gabriel rip-off.

But the lyrics tell a story of a girl's loneliness and pain. So where's the connection?

Toy Matinee does briefly step out of this genre though. "Things She Said" starts out promising with more of a folk influence, but when the chorus comes in, they dive back into the ocean of mediocrity.

By far, the most outstanding song is the title track. The guitar floats along in the vein of Pink Floyd. Surprisingly enough, this isn't a rip-off though.

The song rolls along with a soft guitar and an emotional keyboard line. After being beaten on the head with the first four songs, "Toy Matinee" is both a breath of fresh air and a good song to relax and think to.

With the seasoned talent that appears on this LP — Pat Leonard, Kevin Gilbert and producer Bill Bottrell — it would seem that they could have come up with something more original.

One song, "Toy Matinee," is not worth buying this album for.

Beatlemania: Going strong after 20 years

Rosenay!!! said he first saw the Beatles on the Ed Sullivan Show and has been a fan and collector ever since.

"I am obsessed," he admitted. "So I made it my life."

This strange obsession isn't limited to people who were alive during the time of the Beatles' reign. Howard Freeman of Southfield wasn't even born during the band's heyday, but nonetheless, he and pal Jason Scott, also of Southfield, were as obsessed about Beatles as the others at the conference.

"I've been a big Beatles fan all my life," Freeman said. "My dad loves them too."

Scott also considers himself a big fan.

"I heard a rerun of the Russ Gibb 'Paul is dead' show," he said. "Since then I've been hooked."

The biggest attraction of the day was an appearance by Pete Best, the drummer who was replaced by Ringo Starr. Even now, more than 25 years later, the reason Best was kicked out of the band remains a mystery. He hasn't spoken to any of the Beatles since then and no official answer for why he was fired has ever been given.

"TO BE HONEST, I still don't know," Best said in a pre-convention press conference. "People say that maybe I wasn't a good enough drummer. Maybe it was because I wouldn't comb my hair back."

In response to the theory that he was fired because he wouldn't comb his hair back, Best replied with a wry smile, "I would've done it."

But Best said that he doesn't have any hard feelings about the firing.

"I was upset in the past," he said. "There was a bit of heartbreak and financial embarrassment, but you've got to live your own life."

These words about living one's own life were lost on a crowd who were vividly reliving the good old days of the 1960s. Perhaps buying the perfect souvenir would help someone, for just a small moment, to feel like they did when they were young and all you needed was "love, love, love."

STREET SENSE

It's time to get help with fantasies

Dear Barbara,

Around 26 years ago, when I was 17, our family took our last camping trip to Canada because my Dad said we were going to graduate; we weren't going camping anymore and he was going to sell the trailer.

When we were at the second camping ground, we had met some very nice people. They lived in Canada and weren't too far from where they lived. My sister and I met two girls and a guy who were cousins. We stayed there for three days and got to like them. The night before we were leaving, the guy and I went for a walk. I really cared for him. We exchanged addresses the next morning as we were leaving. I wrote him and one of his cousins.

As time went by and the years passed, we went to visit relatives in Pennsylvania. I met a guy through my cousin. We had mutual feelings about each other. Then he went into the service and it seemed I was lost.

A few years passed and he came out of the service and came to visit me. In between time, I heard from the other guy from Canada. He said he was coming to visit me. So both showed up at the house. I knew one or both were going to propose to me.

Well, to make it short, I married the guy from Pennsylvania, but all these years the man from Canada, who I haven't seen in all these years, is still in my heart. I can't seem to put him out of my mind. I lost contact with one of the girls that wrote to me because she married and moved away — with no forwarding address. She used to tell me about him — that he was married but wasn't happy.

I have a deep loss, Barbara, and I would like to get in contact with him; but I don't have his address anymore. All I know is that he lives in Cornwall, Ontario. I've been to a psychic and he said I would see him. This bothers me. I cry at times because I think I made a big mistake of marrying the wrong person that I lived with all these years. Need your help.

Heartbroken

Dear Heartbroken,

Yours is another of those letters which I have identified in the past that must be addressed bluntly. I hope you will understand that my purpose in being straightforward is to help.

Fantasies like yours are common.

Barbara Schiff

Your preoccupation with fantasy is getting in the way of your marriage. Do you think that your original reasons for making this marital choice are no longer valid? It is often true that people who daydream to solve problems will use that method whatever the circumstance. Thus, if you had married the other man, you might have had a similar response.

Do get some help sorting through these emotions. Often, having a friend who has felt helped by someone is a good way to get a referral or your family doctor might be able to make a recommendation. Blair Shannon sings for his chuckles

By Rebecca Haynes
staff writer

It's your big night out, and you and your significant other have decided to spend it at the local comedy club. You're primed for a good time, ready to roll in the aisles with fits of laughter.

Needless to say, you turn to your honey with a look of confusion when the much ballyhooed headliner launches into a rendition of "What Kind of Fool Am I." This is comedy, you think to yourself.

But not to worry, because Cincinnati comedian Blair Shannon will soon have you in stitches.

"I started singing and entertaining at a very early age, probably six or seven," he said. "Sometimes, when I open with a song, they sort of sit there and don't know how to react, but by the end they're usually into it."

"I like to give them something a little different. I'm not somebody who just stands in front of a microphone for an hour."

Shannon started in the entertainment business as a singer and actor.

He's been on tour with musicals like "Ain't Misbehavin'" and "Porgy & Bess," to name a few. He started doing comedy 10 years ago between his musical performances and as a way to make himself a more versatile performer.

"TO USE the movie rating system, I would grade myself closer to a PG or PG-13 than an R," he said about his comedy act. "I like to do stuff where people don't feel like they have to blush."

"I think you can talk about adult things without having to be filthy. I like to talk about fears and annoyances — like the fear of flying, or rather of crashing, and the person who drives 37 miles per hour on the freeway."

Shannon said he thinks comedy clubs are really the vaudeville of the future.

"I see myself as more of a variety performer, but there's not a lot of opportunity to do that these days," he said. "Sometimes I think I was born at the wrong time."

The 31-year-old performer grew up listening to a large variety of music.

"I love James Brown, but I also love Count Basie," he said. "One of the biggest thrills of my life was meeting Sammy Davis Jr. in 1984. He was a very encouraging, wonderful man."

Shannon's parents always encouraged him to use his talent.

"They really grew up during a different time," he said. "All they knew was to find a job and take it."

"TO THIS day my mother might still say she'd feel more comfortable if I got a job and stayed home. But they always encouraged me. They were very supportive."

whose name is Bubba.

"I like to be in Michigan, especially during the summers," he said. "Detroit's crowds are usually really good, they're into comedy."

"I love performing and entertaining, period," Shannon said. "I love making people laugh and love to make them happy, but when I can combine some of my singing and dancing and can get the audience enjoying everything, that makes it all."

Blair Shannon will perform at Chaplin's East Aug. 8-11. Showtimes are 8:30 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday and 8:30 and 10:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday. He'll make a return visit to Chaplin's West Aug. 28 through Sept. 1. Catch him for an 8:30 p.m. show Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and for either the 8 or 10:30 p.m. show Friday and Saturday. Tickets are $5 for shows Wednesday and Thursday, $8 for Fridays and $10 for the Saturday performances. Call Chaplin's at 792-1902 for more information.

'Women are definitely into the blonde look right now. Maybe it has something to do with the Madonna craze . . .'

The look of summer: Short, sassy and soft

By Charlene Mitchell
special writer

Wondering how to spruce up your looks this summer? A change in your hair color and cosmetics could give you the fresh appearance you want.

Sounds easy, huh? Well, that depends on whether you're a do-it-yourselfer or if you have the extra cash to spend at your favorite salon.

"Women are definitely into the blonde look right now," said Daniel Soller, co-owner of Ronald-Daniel J Salon in Farmington Hills. "Maybe it has something to do with the Madonna craze, but at our salon, we're doing lots of bleach blondes and light tints with lots of highlights."

If blondes are the ones having all the fun, brunettes are running a close second, but not just drabdy brown. The "in" shades for brunettes have a cooler look, with golden tones added in. And for reasons that only the hairdressers know, reds are definitely are out!

"I LIKE THE new softer hair shades and more natural looking makeup," said cable TV personality Alisa Berry of Southfield. Her permed shoulder-length hair was styled by Adria Bircoll.

And speaking of perms, yes, they are still very much in, but the tight, frizzy variety. The current framed look, according to Soller, is "just barely there," with soft body waves dominating the look. Out are the big perms and spiral perms.

Hair isn't the only look that has changed. Face makeup and nail colors are changing at an equally rapid pace. A brief glance at any of the major fashion magazines will show that the new makeup look is more exciting than what the experts tried to push as the "no makeup look" a year ago, but still not as painted as what we were seeing throughout the '80s.

"Makeup is a very personal statement," said professional makeup artist Nancy Praszler, who works with some of the top fashion models in the Midwest. "For instance, corals, pinks and semi-nude colors are the in look for lips and cheeks and defined blush is definitely wrong."

While Praszler steers clear of the deep red lipsticks and darker eye makeup for her clients, she still wears it herself! C'mon, what's the double standard stuff?

Well, Praszler claims she looks all washed out if she wears the newer soft shades because of her very white skin color.

"THE ONLY PART of the new look I moved over to is with the cheeks . . . I hardly wear any blush," she said.

Moving right along to the hands . . . manicurists Ann Dobrusin and Mary Miron, both of Ronald-Daniel J Salon, agree that clients are abandoning most of the deeper shades of nail polish in favor of the softer colors. "I'm using three times as many bottles of pastel polish a week than I did last year, especially corals," said Dobrusin, who does nearly 80 manicures a week.

French manicures are still very much the thing, too, but with a newer, more delicate look.

"I used to always use clear or beige tones over the white tips, but now we're going with a transparent pink over the French tips, and everyone seems to really like it," said Miron.

Nails are always shorter and more rounded this season. Out are the very long square-tipped nails and the "Look at me, I'm fake nails made of acrylic" style. For women who have trouble keeping nails from breaking, linen or silk wraps and fiberglass tips can help achieve a perfect '10.

If you're the type of person who just can't stand anyone telling you how to look in order to fit in, it's still OK to do your own thing. After all, what's in today will probably be out tomorrow, so the changes never hold for long anyway.

AND WHAT DO experts say about that?

"Believe me, there are still a lot of women who want to be informed on what styles are, and that's why we provide the consultation service," Soller said.

His new partner, Ron Anderson, who also owns Hair Fashions by Ronald in Southfield, takes a more conservative approach: "It's one thing to have a new look, but it has to fit the woman. If she's in an office setting, she has to look professional. If she works in the entertainment field, we can be more daring. It all depends on her lifestyle."

There is no such thing as a perfect look, but the makeover session at Ronald-Daniel J Salon did produce a couple of attractive examples of what's hot.

Child care aide Anne Heimbuch's short blonde bowl cut by Bircoll requires very little maintenance, and Praszler's soft makeup touches were just enough to give Heimbuch a finished look.

School teacher and mother Hedy Jacobsen agrees that one hairstyle has to fit her lifestyle.

"I LOVE MY wash-and-wear hair," she said. "Steven (Stablein) cut it like this in February and gave me a body wave." (A smiling Stablein boasts that he keeps trends in mind but never forces a new color or cut on a client who doesn't want it.)

Some last words of advice . . . also from the experts:

Don't throw out all of your old makeup. Mixing it with lighter shades will give you a fresh look with minimum investment.

Don't act impulsively. It could be disastrous. Take your time before making a decision to chop off your shoulder-length locks. Try on a variety of short wigs in a department store to see how you'd look with a short do.

Finally, if you don't like blonde or brunette hair, pale lips and short nails, stick with whatever makes you happy and tell the experts to mind their own business!

What's in: What's out:

- Short, sassy hairstyles; finger waves; anything '60s, especially up-dos; blonde, brunette colors with golden highlights; soft styling aids, and light hold hairsprays.

- For makeup, strong eyeliner in softer browns, coupled with soft color shadows, including pinks; lots of mascara; lipsticks in corals, semi-nude, pinks and bronze, and blushes well-blended in pale peach, pink and coral.

- For nails, short lengths, rounded tips; Pale and bright coral and pink colors; french manicures; high gloss, and nail wraps.

- Overly curly perms; long "for the sake of long" hair; red . . . red . . . red; scrunched, hardened, geled hair, and stiff, sticky, hold-like-iron styling products.

- For makeup, totally nude eyes; blue eye shadow; red . . . red . . . red, violet and white frost lipstick colors; defined areas of blush; brown lines that accent cheekbones, and too much blush.

- For nails, long, curved nails; nail art; dark colors, and acrylic nails.

The rough road to fame: No glitz and no glamour

At one point, he slips and refers to the band as "product" and get as much a reaction as waving a U-M banner at a Michigan State fan. Tom, good-humored, launches into a tirade of introducing the members of the band as "Tom Product" and "Ray Product."

His point was well taken and the DJ sheepishly goes on to tell them that he has had phone calls into the station, requesting that new "religious" band from Ireland, Something Happens. Further investigation reveals that the religious impression has been implanted by a line from the new single: "Hello, hello, hello, hello, your second coming."

It's sound check time again, and enroute, Tom discusses the frustration of hectic schedules: "We go home and people see where we have toured, New York, Washington, Philadelphia, and ask what all these places are like. I can't answer because I've only seen the street with the venue and the street with the hotel."

Tonight's venue is the 9:30 Club. The band opening tonight is the Miracle Legion. Something Happens' members are shocked as the Legion are one of their favorites. It turns out that the Happens used to cover one of the Miracle Legion songs in their early days in Ireland.

That night, Miracle Legion plays a great show to a largely partisan audience. When they finish, the crowd inexplicably leaves.

When the Happens take the stage the venue is only one quarter full. The band is understandably disappointed but still puts on a searing show.

They find out later that Miracle Legion had come to see the Happens play in Boston and, realizing they were up against some stiff competition, had pulled out all the stops to get their crowd to attend. It is still scant comfort to the Happens.

DAY 4:

A quick coffee and danish is grabbed at the hotel and we're into the van again. Next stop: New Jersey.

Tonight, at the Green Parrot, the band is met by Steve Ferguson, the man who booked the tour for FBI, a division of the Miles Copeland R'n'R empire. There is some trepidation as they have just found out that there is a clash for people's attention tonight as That Petrol Emotion has added a last-minute show nearby.

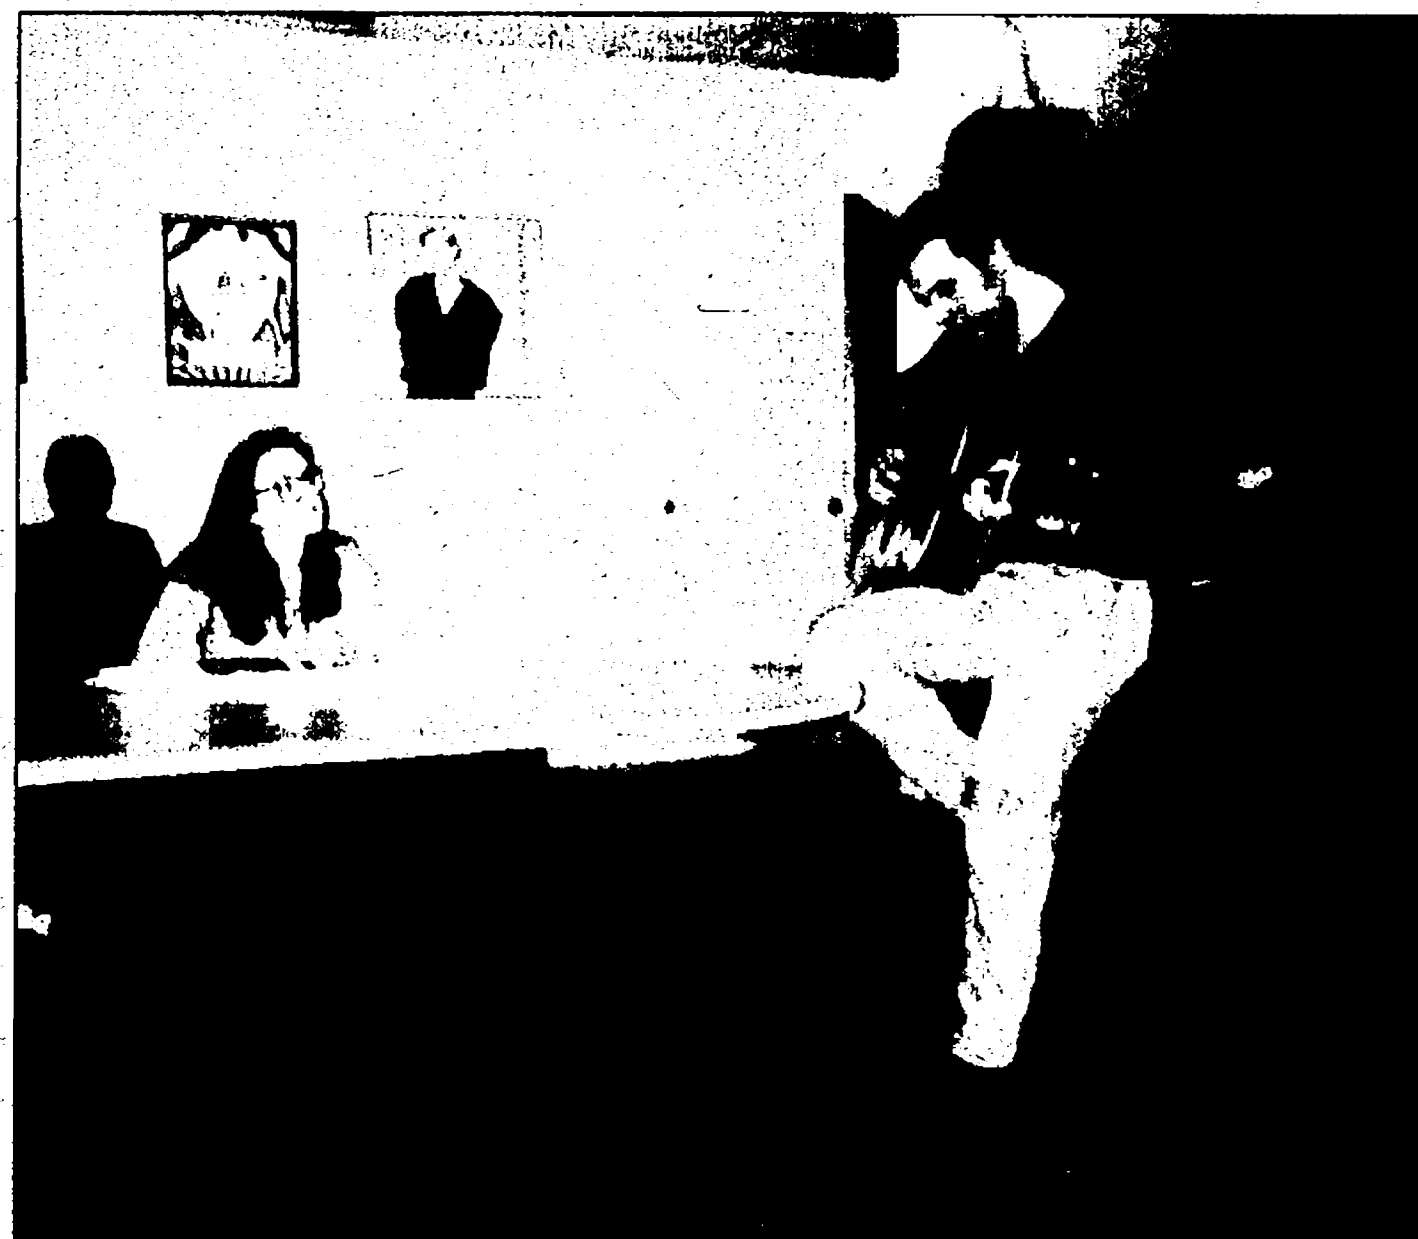

When the show gets under way, their earlier fears prove unfounded as both this and the Petrol Emotion show draw roughly the same number of people. Once again, the band plays their hearts out.

Upon finishing the set, the band enters the kitchen beside the stage and on being called back for an encore, Tom laughs and says "Yeah, you knew that we'd be back 'cuz we weren't going to stay in the kitchen all night!"

DAY 5:

With the early morning wake up call, Ray groans when he tries to pull his jeans on. They are full of sand. It turns out to be the result of a late night excursion with Ritchie, the sound man, and Liam, the tour manager, to the nearby beach. Ray doesn't recall what went on.

Tom and Ray perform a few songs at the Boston offices of Warner Elektra Atlantic (WEA), which is the distributing company for Virgin Records, the parent company for Charisma, which is releasing the Something Happens' LPs in the United States.

The journey out of New Jersey takes us past the location used in Bruce Springsteen's video "Tunnel of Love" and it's Philadelphia here we come.

Philadelphia is kind of alternative rock'n'roll. The bar called J.C. Dobbs is the traditional stop for bands at this level of fame, or lack thereof, in Philly. It's a small place equivalent to the Hamtramck Pub.

With very little breathing room on or off stage and many radio people present, it is a hot and sweaty gig.

Backstage afterward is crammed with industry people. The atmosphere is festive, with Tom being particularly happy as he has just found out that his girlfriend would be meeting him New York instead of Los Angeles.

Day 6:

The drive to New York is heightened by Glenn's impossible banter with toll booth attendants ("WHAT? Two dollars! No way. Here, I'll give you $1.50 . . . or 'Two Big Macs, four large fries and a Coke, please!").

When checking into the hotel, we are met by Conor, Something Happens' Irish manager who quickly arranges for everybody to be taken to the Canadian consulate to get the necessary paperwork cleared for their trip to Toronto in a couple of days.

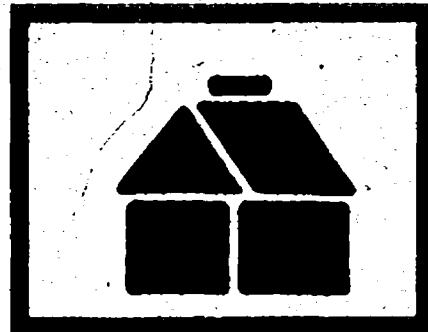

A bar in Greenwich Village, called the Idiot, becomes the target of the Happens entourage upon discovering that Guinness is served on draught. Much happiness ensues and any reports of unidentified Irishmen dancing in the streets of Greenwich Village should not be taken as an exaggeration.

At WBCN-FM radio in Tom and Ted had their picture taken with DJs standing by a Volkswagen Beetle covered in rock (hence the station nickname . . . the "Rock of Boston").

Arts activist presses on for more public funding

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

ACTOR BILL Sharpe of Canton Township is facing one of the most challenging roles of his life.

An arts activist, he's trying to increase public support of the arts, an effort aimed at protecting artistic endeavors from systematic budgetary slashes during an era of enormous national debt.

The '90s, he said in paraphrasing President George Bush, "hopefully will be kinder and gentler," both in artistic appreciation and funding.

"Theater, dance, music, painting, sculpture. It's the blood that carries civilization from one generation to the next. And when budgets are cut, they're the first things to go," said Sharpe, who opted out of law school to earn a graduate degree in theater from the University of Michigan in 1980.

In the years since, he has tried to earn a living acting and directing. To make ends meet, he also teaches, conducts motivational seminars and picks up freelance assignments whenever possible.

Sharpe is a typical struggling artist, content with the challenge of financial survival but acutely aware that decreased public funding means even less opportunity for plying his trade.

"It doesn't seem like we work but artists often work 12 hours a day. We just like to pick which 12 hours. We're professionals and art is our business. We make our living from it."

"VERY FEW artists survive just as artists," said Marilyn Wheaton of Concerned Citizens for the Arts in Michigan, an advocacy group founded seven years ago in Wayne County.

"To make art is expensive. To compose art is time consuming. And once you've done it, how do you make it known?" Wheaton said.

Often, she said, the only opportunity for aspiring artists is through such public grants as provided by the National Endowment for the Arts, noting that since 1976, every play awarded a Pulitzer Prize was penned by a playwright laboring under such a grant.

Last year, 68 Michigan artists and organizations received NEA grants totaling $2.1 million. More might have been available but the NEA budget has increased only minimally since 1982 when President Ronald Reagan first proposed slashing funding by nearly half.

Since then, the NEA budget has increased less than $20 million, to $171 million in 1989. (Funding is now hostage to a censorship movement led by U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-North Carolina, restricting NEA eligibility to artistic guidelines set by the U.S. Senate.)

NEA GRANTS must be matched by state funds, provided here by the Michigan Council for the Arts. In recent years, the MCA budget has increased a mere $100,000 annually, to a total of $12.1 million in 1989.

Wheaton calls the increases "little more than goodwill gestures," attributing the small sums to public apathy and a tightening state budget.

Unfortunately, she said, "Every year there are more and more highly qualified organizations seeking funding. Every year, slices of the pie get smaller."

The Birmingham-Bloomfield Art Association's portion is certain to shrink this year, according to director Ken Gross, who said the state grant is normally used for new, creative programs.

"We've already been notified to expect less," he said, adding that the association has never received its requested amount. Cuts in the past three years have been larger than ever.

THE REASON, according to arts advocate and state Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, is because "Michigan is in a rather tight fiscal bind. There is an effort to sustain all existing budgets."

To offset anticipated cuts in state aid to the arts, Faxon has proposed a bill that would give voters the chance to consider a $300 million cultural capital bond issue. The bonds would raise money to improve the infrastructure of Michigan's cultural institutions — libraries, museums, music halls, zoos. Money would be available through matching grants, endowments and loans.

'Theater, dance, music, painting, sculpture. the blood that carries civilization from one generation to the next.'

organizing
Dorothy Lehmkuhl

Q: I seem to have no "plan of attack" for my business day. The mail and all kinds of papers land on my desk with nerve-rattling regularity. I have stacks of files and papers of all kinds on my desk and my filing isn't caught up. I handle it as best I can, but I've never been trained to do it properly. Is there a "right" way?

A: Yes there is. It's strange that people are highly trained in their own area of expertise — whether it's engineering, marketing or whatever — but are trained least in basic business skills. Somehow, people are just expected to learn how to handle the ebb and flow of papers over their desk by osmosis, I guess. Most people do handle it OK, but the process is difficult for many. It produces pressure (how much depends on the personality of the individual).

You need to take two steps. First, separate out the papers now on your desk. Many items remain there for long periods because you can't decide what to do with them — whether to pitch them, act on them or where to keep them. Those papers soon collect to form "indecision" piles.

Put everything you want to read in one spot — preferably almost out of sight behind you on a credenza or in a bookshelf — and filing in a box specifically for that purpose. Establish one spot for mail and other items coming into your office and another for items that go out of your office — "indecision" piles.

Now you are ready for your second step: Dealing with your action items. Sort out the papers awaiting action by others and put them in a Pending File.

Then begin putting your "To Do's" in writing. If you use a day-planner type of calendar system (which I highly recommend), schedule your tasks for the times you can likely do them. Include filing in your schedule. You could also use a standard desk calendar or even a plain "To Do" notebook. Which system you use isn't so important as it is to establish a single system that works for you and stick with it.

Go through your action items and write down the tasks you need to do to accomplish them. If you have a large quantity, separate them according to importance. Then put the papers into Action Files and store them within extremely easy reach — either in a desk-top, hot-file holder, in your desk file drawer (if it's not too full) or wherever.

Now you can choose your most important task from your written list and work on it without even one other paper on your desk as a distraction. Maintain this system on a daily basis. You will discover a wonderful feeling of relief and serenity by working in such an atmosphere. Even though you will still have just as much work left to do, you'll be able to concentrate on single items one at a time and get more work done in the long run. Good luck.

He crusades for more arts funding

"Not too many people are opposed to culture," Faxon said. "Cultural resources are a very important part of the quality of Michigan's life. They have an awesome responsibility of preserving our culture and history and carrying them forward."

In the interim, he suggests "activating additional revenue sources." The senate passed Bill 882 in June. The bill must pass the house before going onto the governor for his signature.

THE NEWLY formed Canton Arts Council is an excellent example of additional funding sources. The council is part of the Canton Community Foundation, an organization that raises money from private donations.

In 1989, the council received $4,000 and, in less than one year of operation, has sponsored a trip to the opera for Plymouth-Canton school youth, an exhibit earlier this summer for 33 artists and commissioned a sculpture for the township by Canton artist Joseph DeLauro.

Eventually, said Canton Arts Council president Carey Peters, the group hopes to finance its own activities through private donations, membership fees and fund-raising activities.

Now, the foundation and council, working in concert with the Canton Historical Commission, are considering the possibility of converting an area barn into a theater.

Sharpe, who serves on the art council, is elated. "One of these days, my promise to myself, is I will have a theater where good, talented people have the luxury of taking artistic chances, where there is a comfort level to fall, if necessary, in taking those chances."

After all, he said, paraphrasing noted Michigan screenwriter Lawrence Kasdan: "You can't get stuck by lightning unless you're out on the road." Sharpe, the artisan, dreams of traveling that road.

Where would Her Majesty live in Birmingham? At Buckingham, naturally.

She'd love the royal park across the street. She'd dote on the spacious two-bedroom apartment with fresh new interiors from the most modern appliances to the best lighting fixtures to designer carpeting to contemporary verticals. She'd like the uncommon amount of room and royal way the service staff treats her. After all, a person's home ought to be their palace.

Commercial loan scrutiny gets tougher

An oversupply of available space in offices and shopping centers here has prompted some financial institutions to make more demands of developers and builders looking for construction loans for those kinds of projects.

Even experienced players are now asked to invest more of their own money into projects and to prelease more space before getting financing.

"I think developers and builders, especially those who have gone through some ups and downs, are fairly astute people," said Allen Williams, who heads the commercial loan division for Comerica.

"They're not happy about putting more cash in and preleasing, but I'm not discerning that they're particularly surprised," he said.

Richard Roeser, president of Beachum & Roeser Development Corp. in Birmingham, confirmed that it's more difficult to get financing today than it was six months ago — even for developers like himself, who's been in the business more than 25 years.

"Where maybe a few years ago they (lenders) may have said start building, now they're saying prelease, maybe build only one building," Roeser said.

ONGOING DEVELOPMENTS in the savings and loan industry more directly impacting other parts of the country, California, Texas and Florida, have cast a shadow in suburban Detroit.

But the glut of available space is the big reason for a tightening of the qualifying screws, those in the lending and building business agree.

"God knows we've had a strong couple of years in the real estate industry," Roeser said. "Some (lenders) would feel there's an excess out there now. Why add more? You increase your risk level until it's absorbed."

Coldwell Banker Real Estate Services of Southfield reported a suburban office vacancy rate of 18.7 percent and a downtown vacancy rate of 13.6 percent at the end of 1989. Some 56 million square feet were occupied or available.

Coldwell Banker estimated that nearly one million square feet of retail space was vacant in both Oakland and Wayne counties at the end of last year.

THE FINANCIAL Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act of 1989 requires savings and loans to keep more money on reserve, said Al Marshall, manager for business development at First Federal of Michigan.

That, in itself, means less money for development.

The specter of the savings and loan situation nationally has turned financiers here conservative, Marshall said.

Developers, even those with a good track record, may be required to put 30 percent down now rather than 20 percent as in years past, Marshall said.

Comerica, too, is looking for more involvement from developers.

"Our bank was trying to get 5-15 equity in a deal before, but if we had something less than 10 percent, it might have been overcome by the track record of the developer," Williams said. "Nowadays, you're seeing 10 percent."

Williams said. "Nowadays, you're seeing 10 percent."

Golsky added. "Doing spec jobs now is very precarious."

THEN THERE'S the move away from speculative projects.

"We like to have a project 75 percent preleased as a minimum," said Bernie Golsky, senior vice president for the Franklin Commercial Mortgage Group in Southfield. "In past years, when things were going well, we probably were a little more lax, 55-60 percent."

"We make similar demands on older, more established developers,"

"The general attitude is real estate is a no-no now," said Peter Burton, an owner of Burton-Share-Katzman of Birmingham. "Banks are pulling out of real estate whether a deal is good or not. It's pretty lean pickings now."

Not that he's inclined to plan intermediate-term projects anyway, the existing commercial market being what it is, Burton added.

FINANCING ISN'T the starting point or key factor to whether a project materializes for his firm, said Michael Damone, president of Damone-Andrew Associates of Troy. The merits of a specific project in a specific submarket are paramount.

While established builders and developers may be able to live with the new rules or seek alternatives, newcomers and marginal players could be forced out of the game.

"It's a cleansing process," Roeser said. "I don't think there's any question there will be a shakeout of non-seasoned players."

Roeser doesn't believe that situation is all that bad — developers of "some projects not necessarily well conceived or well located" checking out.

Bankers don't see the pendulum swinging back to easier financing soon, even if office and retail vacancies begin to ease.

"The market value of of bank stocks currently is depressed due to problem real estate portfolios," said Comerica's Williams.

Best land use isn't only use

I purchased two contiguous parcels of land. On one I built a house and on the other, which includes a shoreline around a river, I intend to build a residential development that would include a system of canals.

I have met with state officials to discuss my project. Prior to the time I purchased the property I was satisfied that I could develop the property.

I began constructing a drainage ditch, but the DNR stopped the work, telling me that I needed a permit.

My permit was later denied on the grounds that the river shoreline was designated as an environmental area under the Shorelands Protection and Management Act, and the majority of the remainder of my property was considered to be wetlands under the Wetlands Protection Act.

Somehow this seems unfair and an abuse of discretion. What can I do?

In a recent decision based on facts similar to yours, the Michigan Court of Appeals rejected an argument that the designation of the property in question as a wetland and an environmental area constituted a taking by inverse condemnation that deprived the land owner of an economically viable use of his land, and for which he was entitled to compensation.

It also rejected the argument that such designation constituted a de facto taking within the meaning of the Uniform Condemnation Proceedings Act.

The Court of Appeals reasoned that merely because of the denial of permission to dredge the drainage ditch, the plaintiff in that case was free to submit further applications for developments that might be approved.

The court concluded that the plaintiff in that case was not deprived of an economically viable use of his land.

The court further stated that the mere fact that a regulation deprives the owner of the most profitable use of his property does not necessarily establish the owner's right to just compensation.

It further ruled that the Uniform Condemnation Procedures Act has no application to inverse condemnation actions initiated by aggrieved property owners.

The court seems to be saying that designations themselves do not deprive the plaintiff property owner of an economically viable use of his land, and that the economic impact of the designations and the denial of a permit to dredge were not so severe as to compel the court to conclude that a taking occurred.

But the court did emphasize that the holding was limited to the facts of that particular case and, if at some time in the future the plaintiff in that case could show that the economic impact of the pertinent statutes had become more severe, he may then be entitled to compensation.

Depending on the facts of your case, you may also be subject to a similar argument and result.

I read recently about a fire retardant plywood that is becoming a problem, and while I heard that you had an answer in your column regarding this, I would appreciate more details.

You are correct that a fire retardant plywood that has become a standard building material in townhouse developments in the last decade has now been found to decompose after only a few years, leaving homeowners and builders with leaky and unsafe roofs and large repair bills.

The plywood, called FRTP for fire-resistant treated plywood, has been used in millions of housing units east of the Mississippi, the National Association of Home Builders said.

Since the problems were first discovered in New Jersey several years ago, scores of lawsuits have been filed against makers, suppliers and insurers.
