Beard runs strong in heated county race

staff writer

All precincts had yet to be counted, but Wayne County Commissioner Kay Beard was in a celebratory

A stronger-than-expected showing in Westland apparently guaranteed Beard the Democratic Party nomination in Tuesday's heated primary against three challengers.

"I'm grinning from ear to ear," the Inkster resident said after viewing Westland returns.

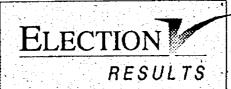

Beard's elation was justified. Final vote totals showed her with 3,536 votes in the 12th District primary, defeating challengers Terri Reighard Johnson, 2,935; Hilliard Hampton Jr., 1,747; and Deborah Miller, 252. In percentage terms, it was Beard, 41.7 percent; Reighard Johnson, 34.6 percent; Hampton, 20.6 percent; Miller, 3 percent.

"I not only beat my challengers, I beat (county Executive) Ed McNamara," Beard said.

She had characterized the primary race as an attempt by the executive to remove her from office. The two have disagreed on various issues over the past three years, including the sale of Westland Medical Center and a proposed ballot issue that would have made the deputy executive's post elected rather than appointed.

While the executive issued no endorsements, he made it clear he viewed Beard as an impediment to county reform.

Reighard Johnson is a Westland councilwoman. Hampton is an Inkster School Board member. Miller, a Garden City resident, didn't campaign for the seat.

Kay Beard (incumbent) Terri Reighard Johnson 1,747 Hilliard Hampton Jr. Deborah Miller

Beard, 69, will now face GOP nominee Gerald Cox, a former Schoolcraft College trustee, in the fall. The district, however, is considered heavily Democratic.

While Relghard Johnson carried Westland, and Hampton carried Inkster, Beard made a strong enough showing in both citles to guarantee victory.

Vote totals for area communities

• Westland - Reighard Johnson, 2,049; Beard, 1,836; Hampton; 347; Miller, 132; Cox, 1,459.

• Garden City - Beard, 893; Reighard Johnson, 733; Hampton; 99; Miller, 81; Cox, 695.

ry boiled down to a race between Beard and Reighard Johnson.

Strong support from union households and seniors helped Beard to victory in a race that included more than a little mud-slinging.

Voters reject VCCC tax hike

staff writer

Wayne-Westland school district voters continued Tuesday to oppose increased property taxes and overwhelmingly rejected a 1-mill rate increase for Wayne County Community College.

The tax proposal, which had voters in most of Wayne County casting ballots, was also defeated by a large margin.

In the Wayne-Westland district, the tax issue was supported by only 19 percent of those voting on it.

There were 3,016 "no" votes and only 702 "yes" votes. On a county level, the tax was backed by 36 percent, or 52,182 voters, and opposed by 64 percent, or 93,818 persons, in unofficial tallies. Local voters rejected a Wayne-Westland school tax increase and renewal twice this year.

Westland's Ted Scott, who serves on the WCCC's nine-member board of trustees, attributed the tax defeat to several factors, including several newspaper stories about financial and management problems which took place in 1978 and 1985.

ONE ISSUE concerned the college failing to spend bond monies for earmarked building projects in 1978.

The other was a dispute with the former college president on spending money on housing which was not intended by the college's board of

Veterans overwhelm challengers

Veteran Democratic state legislators from Westland had an easy time winning Tuesday's primary election.

State Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, overwhelmed challenger James Stamps Sr. of Belleville by a margin of nearly 4-1. His senate district includes Westland and part of southwestern Wayne County.

Faust, a former Nankin Township supervisor, is unopposed in the Nov. 6 general election for a seventh fouryear term.

In Westland, Faust had 3,397 votes to Stamps' 457. Districtwide, Faust was far ahead, 9,178 votes to 1,736. State Rep. Justine Barns, D-Westland, easily routed Democratic challenger David Hayter by a 3,099 to 462 margin. In a rematch of the 1988 race, Barns will face Republican Kenneth Raupp in the fall. Raupp was unopposed in the Republican State Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, represents the 33rd House District, which serves the southeast corner of Westland, Unopposed, Keith received 219 votes to Republican Donald Mullett's 91. They will face each other Nov. 6. Kelth is looking for his 10th two year term.

School bells to ring one day earlier under new calendar

By Marie Chestney staff writer

Next June, Westland students in the Livonia School District won't have to swelter in hot school rooms while students in nearby districts have already begun their summer vacation.

That's the good news. The bad news for students is that, to get out of school one week earlier next June, school starts one day earlier next month.

The students also must give up some of their traditional long Christmas vacation.

WHILE STUDENTS might want to keep the one extra day of summer vacation, this change in start-up time should come as good news to parents who didn't like school running so late in June, but who didn't

Ginny Denison accident victim

Teen fights to recover from accident that severed her leg

By Raiph R. Echlinaw staff writer

Westland teenager Ginny Denison's left leg lies somewhere at the bottom of Half Moon Lake in Washtenaw County, cut off by a motorboat propeller on the Fourth of July.

Denison, however, lies in the University of Michigan Hospital, heavily dosed with pain killers, without control of her bladder or bowels, slowly recovering from an accident that for all intents and purposes should have killed her.

The 17-year-old girl was driving boyfriend Tom Elkens' jet-ski when a 28-year-old Redford Township

Thomas Brown, Westland city council president, the city's first mayor and a former state representative, "won" his latest campaign by a margin of one vote.

He and Dee Hill were married at St. Mary Catholic Church in Wayne. The bride has been active in community affairs and at St. Mary Church.

The Rev. Raymond Sayers, a former St. Mary pastor, officiated.

The wedding was a private ceremony for members of the couple's families and included children, grandchildren, brothers and sisters from across the country, with the children of Dee and Tom serving as witnesses. The reception was held at the LeRight Banquet Room in Westland after the ceremony. Vocalist for the wedding was Norm Swope of Westland.

ing.
The nurses attended to Denison, perhaps saving her life, before an ambulance arrived. Denison was taken to a clear spot where the hospital's helicopter could land, then rushed to Ann Arbor.

The Washtenaw sheriff's department expects to bring charges against the Redford Township man when Denison is well enough to be Interviewed and to testify. Marine Safety Officer David Egeler said alcohol was a factor in the accident.

Meanwhile, Denison fights to recover.

"WE RECEIVED probably 30 to 50 calls the first week after the accident," Egeler sald. "She's got a lot of people pulling for her. She's an amazing girl. She can remember details of the accident that are just phenomenal. She's going to make a terrific witness."

Denison's mother, Donna, has been at the hospital every day since the accident, as has Elkens. Mrs. Denison spends her nights at the Ronald McDonald House in Ann Arbor, husband George said, while Elkens visits his girlfriend after work. Schools to use fund equity to offset state aid cuts

By Marie Chestney staff writer

Thanks to its fund equity, the Livonia school district will be able to get through this school year without having to cut its budget or seek a millage increase.

The district Monday adopted an superintendents have met recently our fund equity, no students will sufamended 1990-91 budget that chops—to discuss a potential lawsuit. $3.7 million from its reserve fund. LIKE MANY out-of-formula districts throughout Michigan, the district has been scrambling to make the state Legislature passed its 1990-91 school aid budget in late June.

This year, in an attempt to equalize school spending, the state cut $50 million in state categorical aid to wealthy districts and redistributed the money to poorer school systems.

Some districts which expect to lose state funds are talking of filing a class action lawsuit against the Michigan Department of Education.

The Rochester school board recently adopted a resolution supporting such a lawsuit, and other area

THE LAWSUIT would have to prove that the state cuts had caused irreparable harm to children in a particular district.

A special committee of the Michigan Out-of-Formula School Districts Association will meet Aug. 15 to determine the next step to take, Marinelli said.

The reason why Livonia's students won't suffer irreparable harm, said trustee Carol Strom, is that the district had the foresight to build up its fund equity, which had $11 million in the 1989-90 school year.

"I'm interested in many of his ideas," Thayer said of Schuette's efforts in problems of the aging, Medicare and drugs.

The anti-drug theme popped up many times in chats with the young staffers and volunteers, who fear many in their age group, in the United States and Europe, are succumbing to drugs.

Voters approve county millage

Wayne County voters said yes to a 1-mill county tax renewal during 2.772. Tuesday's primary voting.

County voters approved the renewal 98,988-82,437. A majority of voters in Livonia, Redford, Canton, Plymouth and Plymouth Township approved the renewal. A majority of voters in Westland and Garden City rejected it.

County voters approved the measure, 54.5 percent to 45.5 percent.

The vote in area communities was as follows:

● Canton — yes, 1,409; no, 1,339. • Garden City - yes, 927; no,

• Livonia — yes, 3,826; 3,050. • Plymouth — yes, 522; no, 373. • Plymouth Township - yes,

1,240; no 1,056. • Redford — yes, 4,339; no, 2,772. • Westland — yes, 2,511; no,

The one-mill renewal translates to about $37.50 a year on a house with a market value of $75,000.

County officials had predicted dire times if the tax renewal had lost.

Losing the millage would have delayed opening of the new county jail, closed county parks, restricted county health care programs and forced layoffs for more than 400 county employees, county Executive Edward McNamara said.

The tax provides an estimated $24

The county's overall tax levy is 8.07 mills. The figure includes 6.07 mills in non-voted operating taxes and 1 mill approved by voters in 1998 for a new county jail.

Richard Myers. Many times, local teens are ticketed by Plymouth police.

And while Myers and Plymouth assistant City Manager Paul Sincock said their "mini-zone concept" is helping relieve jammed traffic on downtown streets during cruise-ins, Mayflower Hotel co-owner Creon Smith said, "I think what they need are more officers."

The noise generated last weekend from cruisers - mostly from loud radios and yelling - caused some Mayflower Hotel guests to check out

"They-come-to-Plymouth-for-a- the traffic flow in the event we have quiet weekend," Smith said. "(The excessive volumes," Sincock said. noise) doesn't make for a pleasant stay."

CRUISING-RELATED TRAFFIC was hurling some businesses, commissioner James Jabara said at the Plymouth City Commission meeting Monday.

"The eating establishments have had a bad time of it," he said.

Some friends traveling in a car downtown "couldn't go 15 or 20 feet without hearing vulgarities, or somebody swearing at them," commissioner John Vos said. "They won't be coming back to downtown Plymouth.",

One commissioner raised the possibility of blocking off traffic coming into downtown. But Jabara said such an action "doesn't give you a good feeling about the city of Plymouth.".

THE MINI-ZONE concept, used last weekend and at other times in the past three years, involves "various lane closures that will help ease Smith commended Myers for trying to deal with the situation. "I'm sure they're trying to do everything they can, but it's not good anymore," Sincock said. Police have also increased foot patrols downtown.

CRUISING - WHICH usually involves dozens, even hundreds, of young people driving cars or walking around downtown Plymouth in the evening - was a popular pastime in the late 1950s and early '60s.

The activity picked up again in Plymouth five years ago. Downtown cruising usually ends about the time school starts in September, officials said.

House sugar vote isn't sweet for consumers area members of Congress were recorded on major amendments to: farm legislation under debate in the House and Senate in the week ending July 27. Both chambers were working to reauthorize federal farm programs for another five years. HOUSE

SUGAR PRICE SUPPORTS — By a vote of 150 for and 271 against, the House rejected an amendment to lower from 18 cents to 16 cents per pound the level at which the government props up the price of domestic sugar. Although the program sets an artificially high price that works its way through to consumers, it operates at small cost to the Treasury. The vote occurred as the House debated a five-year extension to federal farm programs (HR 3950).

Supporter Jim Moody, R-Wis., said "the sugar program is a consumer program (providing) stable supplies of sugar at a solid, reasonable, predictable price."

A yes vote was to lower federal price supports and thus the market price of sugar. William Broomfield, R-Birmingham, voted yes.

Voting no were: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth; Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods; William Ford, D-Taylor, and Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

TO ELIMINATE SUBSIDIES -

Here's how Observer & Eccentric By a vote of 159 for and 263 against, the House rejected a farm bill amendment to deny federal crop support payments to the nation's wealthiest farmers, those with adjusted gross incomes of $100,000 or more. The amendment would have reduced spending for loans, direct payments and other subsidies by $700 million annually. Some 20,000 individuals and 4,500 farm entities. would have been denied payments under the amendment.

Supporter Bill Green, R-N.Y., asked: "Is it such a harsh thing to ask that people who are above $100,000 a year in income come off the dole?"

Opponent Neal Smith, D-Iowa, said the purpose of farm payments is not income maintenance but to stabilize supplies and prices for con-

Opponent Glenn English, D-Okla., said the honey program "has provided great benefit to not only American agriculture but the American consumer."

The growers are guaranteed under federal farm policy. The measure was virtually identical to the House sugar amendment (above).

Tabling supporter Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., said "every major sugar producing nation in the world provides some sort of economic incentive or protection to their domestic sugar producers."

Sponsor Bill Bradley, D-N.J., said "the sugar program is the S&L of agriculture policy. It is insured sugar deposits. There are no downsides here."

TO CHANGE PEANUT PRO-GRAM — By a vote of 57 for and 41 against, the Senate tabled (killed) a farm bill amendment to adopt a free-market system in place of the 51-year-old program that controls peanut production. By law, peanut growing for domestic markets is virgovernment further helps these producers by supporting the domestic price of peanuts at about helf-again the world market price. Farmers lacking quotas can only sell abroad or for domestic meal and oil production. Critics acknowledge the program costs the government little but say it is expensive to consumers.

Howell Heflin, D-Ala., who voted to kill the amendment, said the program provides "American consumers with adequate supplies of excellent quality peanuts at very reasonable prices." Amendment sponsor William Roth, R-Del., called it "hard to believe in this age of enlightenment there are laws on the books that protect feaudalism . . . " A yes vote was to preserve the peanut program. Riegle and Levin voted no.

THE HONEY PROGRAM — By a vote of 46 for and 52 against, the Senate refused to preserve the 51year-od price support program for honey. This adopted a farm bill amendment to phase the program out over four years. Established in 1949, it uses non-recourse loans to guarantee the incomes of approximately 2,000 commercial beekeepers even when they find no suitable market for their honey. Collaterized by surplus honey, such loans need not be repaid if market prices fall too low. The honey subsidy has cost taxpayers an average of $75 million annually over the past five

Thomas Daschle, D-S.D., said R-R.I., said honey producers "can compete in the world. And they ought

School dispute

GOP trio sues to block governor's veto

By Tim Richard staff writer

Three state Senate Republicans have gone to court to fight Gov. James Blanchard's unusual use of a line item veto — to raise spending on the Youth Corps and classroom computers.

"The fiscal integrity of the state's appropriations process is in jeopardy," said Sen. Doug Cruce, R-Troy, chair of the appropriations subcommittee on regulatory agen-

Cruce provided an exhibit in the Ingham County Circuit Court suit filed by appropriations chair Harry Gast of St. Joseph and vice chair Dan DeGrow of Port Huron.

"This puts school districts in a real quandary," said Garden City Schools superintendent Michael Wilmot, whose district applied for 10 computers under the state "Classrooms For Tomorrow" program. "Do you apply for something knowing you could get stiffed?"

The program promises state financing, Wilmot said, but would make local districts pay if the state rescinded its money.

Garden City's answer, he added, was to apply, "for items we would have only bought ourselves any-

"I can't help but feel we got caught in politics," Wilmot said.

THE LEGISLATURE, in a supplemental budget measure called, House Bill 5278, reduced spending in two key areas for the Blanchard administration.

Blanchard used the line item veto to eliminate the cuts.

The senators say it's an unconstitutional action because the constitution authorizes the executive to reduce spending levels but not to increase them. "He has leaped over, the constitutional boundaries defining and separating the powers of the legislative and executive branch," said Gast.

The senators asked the court for a temporary restraining order against Blanchard's act.

THE ITEMS Blanchard vetoed are cuts of:

• $4 million for the Youth Corps, the nation's largest job training program. His act restores the budget to the $22.3 million in the original bill. Cruce has attacked the program as over-funded. Not all of last year's appropriation was spent, and there are more pressing state needs, Cruce argued. Blanchard says he intends to spend some of the current budget in the following fiscal year.

• $2 million to finance a bond issue for the purchase of more than 24,000 computers for public

That program has become highly politicized, with Republicans on the State Board of Education accusing Blanchard of trying to take credit for it. Republicans fear Blanchard will try to use the new computers when school starts in September for political "media"

In addition, Republicans say the computer appropriation should be delayed to ascertain (1) that school districts can fund their local shares and (2) that teachers are trained to use the new technology.

An economic cloud hangs over the debate. In Lansing there is talk - but no definitive reports - that the auto sales slump will reduce revenues to the point where the governor must make widespread spending cuts in the middle of the fiscal year. The fiscal year starts

GOP's Adkins ready for Ford Candidate gears up for tough campaign

Burl Adkins

Burl Adkins defeated Westland resident Glen Kassel in the Republican primary Tuesday for U.S. Congress, but he faces a tough task in trying to pick off incumbent William D. Ford in November.

Adkins received 5,729 votes compared to Kassel's 3,966. Ford, who was unchallenged in the Democratic primary, polled 15,864 votes.

The 15th District includes Garden City, Westland, Canton Township and part of Livonia in addition to several downriver communities. Adkins outpolled Kassel in Livonia (730-536), Westland (769-663) and Canton Township (932-558). Kassel out distanced Adkins in. Garden City, 371-295. THOUGH FORD faced no primary challenge he had a busy primary week.

Ford married Washington attorney Mary Whalen on Saturday in San Diego during services attended by both families.

His honeymoon was cut short, however, when he was forced to undergo emergency abdominal surgery Tuesday at Oakwood Hospital, Dearborn. Ford was "recovering nicely" by Wednesday morning, according to a staff spokesman, and was expected to be released from the hospital within 7-9 days.

Adkins edged Kassel by 365 votes in a four-way GOP primary two years ago, but he faces a tall order in the fall trying to unseat Ford. Even with George Bush at the top of the ticket, Ford defeated Adkins by a near 2-to-1 margin in

In line to become chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, the 25-year congressional veteran could prove an even more formidable opponent this

He has challenged Ford to a series of debates "to defend his liberal tax and spend policies."

"I feel people are looking for a change," Adkins sald.

ADKINS IS founder and president of Global Technology Associates, Ltd., a Lincoln Park-based firm that supplies technical services to auto suppliers.

Kassel is a real estate and insurance agent with a Wayne-based agency. Adkins built his campaign on protection of American workers, especially auto workers.

Secrecy shrouds rare bird

To call junior precoclous may be an understatement. At age 6, he's a ham from the word go.

He's not shy about strutting his stuff or shaking a tail feather to get your attention. If that doesn't work, he tries a tug on a shirt sleeve. And if that fails, watch out for his pinch.

Junior isn't your typical twolegged smoothie. Decked out in cobalt blue plumage and a hint of bright yellow skin around his eyes and lower mandible, Junior is a highly prized Hyacinth Macaw.

"He's just like a precocious child, always into something," said his owner, Jerry. "This guy is personality plus."

For Junior's sake and that of his mate, a 2-year-old bird, two other pairs of hyacinth macaws, including a 3-month-old, a pair of red-fronted macaws, a pair of blue and gold macaws and a green parrot, Jerry doesn't use a last name. Nor does he say where he lives. Junior, one of about 1,000 hyacinth macaws living in captivity, costs $10,000. Bonded pairs are valued at up to $30,000.

With six hyacinth macaws in their collection, Jerry and his wife Bobbi are in the top 10 nationally and probably the largest owner of such macaws in the Midwest. Not bad, considering they've only been into exotic birds for five years.

THEY GOT started as they result of their work with the Ford Motor Co. Bobbi works in new car promotion; Jerry is involved with the racing side of it. On the road a lot, they started visiting zoos, other breeders and pet stores in malls and looking at birds in their off time.

Their first purchase was a cockatoo, but eventually they gave it to a friend because the fine white powder the bird produced made it a poor choice for living indoors. They switched to a young blue-fronted Amazon parrot they named Taco and from there moved on to macaws. Their first hyacinth macaw was a male, Max, which after a feather sex test, was renamed Maxine.

One thing lead to another and their collection led to 11 birds, including Angel, a female blue and gold macaw that jauntily says hello when one of the couple's four cats enters the room, and Male (pronounced Molly) — short for HotTamale — who lounges contentedly on her back while having her stomach rubbed.

But it's Junior and his compatriots that are the stars of the couple's collection, and not because of their brilliant blue feathering. Hyacinth macaws are a becoming an endangered species.

He rates as 'best' for a pet

If you close your eyes, you'd think you were listening to a scratchy Gene Autry recording of "Home on the Range." And the New Christy Minstrels need not worry, they still have the best version of "This Land Is Your Land."

OK, so it's not Gene Autry or the Minstrels, It's Al. And, yes, he's a little off-key at times. But considering that he's a yellow-naped Amazon parrot, he sounds pretty

"He loves to sing opera," said Claudia Mitchell of Redford, belting out an operatic la-la-la, echoed in Al's falsetto response. "And when I tell him he's a rotten bird, he says 'I'm not rotten, I'm an eagle.'"

Mitchell doesn't take credit for Al's musical talents. His previous owners taught him that. But she has got him to say "Hi" when she waves at him and house trained him.

Mitchell and her husband, Walt, have had Al for about 1% years. They got him from their neighbors who were unable to take the bird with them when they moved to Bangkok, Thailand.

At the age of four, Al is, to say the least, a character. The yellow-naped Amazon is the talker of the parrot family and Al can chat up a storm, but he tends to be shy about talking in front of people.

IN THE EVENING, he makes screeching noises, one of his "more pleasant sounds," which Mitchell believes relates to his wild nature. In the wild, parrots screech in the evening to call the flock together for the night, she said.

Climbing around on his cage on the screened porch of the Mitchell home, Al enjoys talking to the others birds he hears. However, squirrels aren't on his popularity list.

"One neighbor says Al adds character to the neighborhood," Mitchell said. "Of course, the guy over here is always yelling for him to shut up."

Al likes to take things apart. Mitchel has discovered Al's handiwork — trying to unscrew his cage, the screw mechanism on a peppermill and the caps of the metal support for his swing.

Also on the list of things he likes is having his head scratched and preening feathers he can't reach. He also loves taking a bath.

Mitchell hoses down a small ornamental tree in the front of the house and put All in amongst the wet leaves. Al "goes wild; he just loves it," he said.

Mitchell was friends with Al before he joined the family, but she now admits that he has "bonded" with her. And the family's other bird, a cockatiel named Simon, has taken a liking to Walt. The fact that Al Isn't fond of him, doesn't bother Walt.

"I TOLERATE him and he tolerates me," Walt said. "He's OK."

Exotic birds aren't a new experience for Mitchell. At one time, she owned a double yellow parrot. And with the help of the Ann Arbor Caged Bird Club and Bird Talk magazine, she is educating herself about the yellow-naped parrot.

And like many bird owners, she did have parakeets at one time. In fact, she credits her grandmother with her penchant for birds.

"My grandmother raised canaries and parakeets, upstairs were the canaries and downstairs were the parakeets," she said. "I'd go over and help her take care of them. I had several as a kid... and killed them."

Al eats twice a day. In the morning, he likes to dine on bread and milk or juice. In the evening, he gets fruits and vegetables and what the Mitchells eat. Favorites are chicken, pasta and hamburgers.

"He loves any food I cook soft like vegetables; he loves the mushy stuff," she said. "But he can make a mess eating it."

mess eating it."
Al for all intent and purpose has become the dominant pet in the Mitchell household. He requires a lot of care and attention. But that's not to say Simon or the Mitchells' two Dobermans, Amy and Eric, are starved for affection, although Amy's soulful eyes may tell another story.

"I DO SPEND a lot of time with him, more than my husband thinks I should," Mitchell said. "He,really dominates my time."

Before Al, Mitchell would show her dogs. She spent a lot of time obedience training Amy. But she

LEV

Club aids in picking out a bird

Levi likes ice tea and isn't shy about passing out a kiss to get a sip. Wally is partial to pistachio nuts and will do tricks to get some.

Levi-is a green-winged macaw, Wally a green-checked Amazon parrot. Together, they're the pets of Guy and Sand Hurlbutt. They're also the reason the former Livonia couple got involved in the Ann Arbor Caged Bird Club, so much so that Guy is its president.

After caring for a parakeet, the most common of avian pets, for 15 years, the couple moved up to a parrot five years ago, adding the macaw 3½ years ago.

The Hurlbutts are, by no means, avian experts, but, thanks to the club, have learned a lot about working with their birds and understanding their behavior.

"If you learn to read the signs in birds, you can train them," Hurlbutt said. "Birds are so much smarter than you think. A macaw has the emotional level of a 5-year-old and the intelligence of a 2-year-old."

"Birds are so intelligent that they can get bored really easy," added Sandy.

Founded in 1980, the Ann Arbor Caged Bird Club meets monthly at the Matthael Botanical Garden. It has almost 200 memberships (mostly families) from communities throughout southeastern Michigan and Ohio like Livonia, Westland and Redford to Oakland County's Troy, Rochester and Clarkston, not to mention the Jackson and Toledo areas.

THE CLUB serves a dual purpose. First, it provides a forum for people interested in birds to meet, socialize and exchange information. It also serves as a vehicle to educate the public about birds and issues — like rain forest deforestation — and raise money for avian research.

In addition to the monthly meetings — members are encouraged to bring their feathered friends — there are picnics, photo contests and educational shows, including visits to schools, to keep members busy.

The club also maintains a telephone number — 483-BIRD — that serves as a clearing house of information. Callers can get information on avian vets (there are 8-10 such vets in southeastern Michigan), a list of breeders and information on buying and selling hirds

The club's annual membership dues of $15 cover the cost of printing and mailing the club newsletter. Its annual bird exhibition, held last month at Weber's in Ann Arbor, helps cover other costs.

Just about every species of bird—from toucans and mynahs to the largest macaw— is represented within the club membership. A majority of the members own parrots and a lot have canaries and finches, but having a bird isn't necessary to belong to the club, Hurlbutt said. All that's needed is an interest in birds.

Some people join the club after buying their bird, the "smart ones" join before they buy a bird to find out all they can about a particular species, Hurlbutt said.

"A lot of people who have had a parakeet or a finch, buy a parrot and

Handwriting shows 2 organized, responsible people

Dear Mrs. Green,

I have been reading your columns recently and find them quite interesting. I was wondering if graphology is ever used to determine personal compatibility.

My flance and I are due to be married in six months and we believe that we are very compatible. Is this consistent with our writing? Don't worry, we will get married regardless of the outcome.

I'm 25 and write right-handed.

Usually, I don't do compatibility analyses in my column due to space limitations. However, you and your fiance are so compatible I think your handwritings will make an interesting column.

Most of the authorities I consulted seem to agree that in a successful marriage "like attracts like" and good self-esteem on the part of both partners is also important. I am happy to find you qualify on both counts. The well-spaced handwriting in

And while you are ready for new experiences and people, you do not drop your former friends. Old friendships are like treasures and you are loyal to them.

Good self-esteem can be found in both handwritings. Neither of you have a big ego, which the other one

In each handwriting, I see evidence of humor. Personally, I feel that humor is an important ingredient of a happy marriage. While you both are basically serious minded, you do like to have fun along the way. In your quiet manner, you are quick with a witty retort to make your point.

Both of you have plain signatures and harmonious with the script. When combined with the many positive traits in handwritings, this tells me you are the same person in your public life as well as private lives. You have no need for facades.

Summing it up, it is quite evident you are well matched. You know yourself and your intended well and should have a happy, productive marriage. Incidentally, with your fine analytical mind, I suspect you are just testing graphology. Am I correct in my assumption?

If you would like handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, full signature and handedness are all helpful and object tive feedback is always welcome.

Owning a rare bird mandates being an expert

A LOT ISN'T known about the bird. Native to parts of Brazil, Bolivia and Paraguay, experts say that in 1988 only 2,000 of the birds live in the wild. That number could be far less today because of the destruction of their dry forest habitats, illegal capture for trade and killing for feathers and meat.

Another 1,000 or so hyacinth macaws live in captivity. As a result of the dwindling number, a worldwide ban on trading the birds has been in place since 1987.

Admittedly, Jerry and Bobbi have an expensive hobby. A portion of their basement has been set aside to house the birds. Large cages line the wall, special grow lights illuminate them and a color TV drones on to acquaint the birds with the sounds of humans.

But at "lights out" and after some boisterous squawking, the birds quickly settle down for eight to 10 hours sleep, necessary to keep their plumage looking healthy, Jerry said.

The couple spends $20 a week on fresh fruits and vegetables and another $30 a week on special bird seed. There's also a high protein biscuit-like concotion, called monkey chow, and nuts — peanuts and Brazil

JERRY VARIES their fruit and vegetable mix each day because the birds get bored with the same food day after day.

"One day, they'll wolf the food down and the next day they won't touch it," Jerry said. "Actually, they'll eat anything you eat; so you have to watch them closely."

A case in point is Junior's penchant for berry yogurt. With a gentleness that one wouldn't expect from a bird with a beak that has a 350-pound clamping force, Junior nudges Jerry for a spoonful of yogurt. He quickly licks the pink goo from the spoon and waits for more.

"Junior loves yogurt," said Jerry, refilling the spoon. ". . . and beer."

Jerry and Bobbi aren't sure where their hobby will lead. At present, they're not prepared to take on the task of raising macaws chicks although a young (3-month-old) handfed hyacinth macaw chick sells for $8,000.

They plan of concentrating on the hyacinth macaw species and becoming experts. As Jerry sees it, "it almost behooves you, when you own birds like this, to become an expert."

They also acknowledge that owning the birds is like owning a legacy. With such long life expectancy, the macaws may well outlive the couple and the latter have taken steps to have the birds given to zoos with exceptional breeding programs, following the former's deaths.

BUT FOR NOW, Bobbi and Jerry enjoy their birds. Bobbi talks quietly to each one and nuzzles with a sleepy-eyed Male. Jerry feigns annoyance as Junior pokes at him, trying to start some rough housing play.

Married for five years, the couple said the birds, the cats and their two dogs are "their children."

"They're such bables," Bobbi said of the macaws. "And having them is very therapeutic. Stroking them has a very calming effect on them and on you."

They're as much trouble as children and as demanding," Jerry added. "But they're straightforward to do." about their feelings. You love them and they love you."

now admits that a bird like Al is "the best pet."

"He'll live a long time unlike a dog that you have for a few years and it's gone," she said. "He's attached to me and is as affectionate as a dog. And he's more interesting because he can talk. He's pretty smart."

With the loss of habitat of parrots taking place in the wild, Mitchell is seriously considering breeding Al. although she wonders where she could put another cage. She also admits she recently saw a small macaw chick she "fell in love with."

"I think I'd like to get into breeding Al somewhere down the road," she said. "Then I could say that I'm following in my grandmother's footsteps."

Club doesn't mind going to birds

then don't know what to do," Hurlbutt said. "They come to us to get educated.

"BUYING A BIRD is like buying a dog. You don't go out and buy a poodle for rabbit hunting. Some birds like to be handle and cuddle. but some can be stand-offish. You have to decide what you want a bird

With the help of programs offered through the club, the Hurlbutts have learned to work with their birds. Both birds are house trained, taught to defecate in their cages when asked if it's time to rest - short for restreem, according to Sandy avoiding accidents on shoulders, furniture or the floor.

The Hurlbutts have limited their number of birds to two so they can spend more time with Wally and Levi. In the wild, the birds live in flocks and birds in captivity tend to think of their families as their flocks, Hurlbutt said.

A case in point is Guy and Levi. According to Sandy, they tend to "hang out together" in the family room, but if Guy pays attention to Wally, Levi tends to get jealous. He also has been known to get frustrated.

"He sometimes gets frustrated because I don't have feathers to preen," Hurlbutt said. "Instead. he'll go through my hair and mustache and try to preen my shirt, so I have shirts with little holes in them."

The Hurlbutts have learned that macaws are adventurous. Levi has been known to get down from his perch and wander through the house looking for Guy and Sandy. He loves to be outside but to keep him from wandering off across the lawn, he's keep on a high swing on the porch.

Wally, on the other hand, feels more secure watching life go by from a perch in the living room window. And with a vocabulary of 3 words, his repertoire includes the sounds of brushing teeth right down to swishing with water and spitting.

THE BIRDS' diet include a fortified seed mixture, fruits and vegetables and what the Hurlbutts eat "that's good for you."

"The ones that live longest eat what you eat that's good for you," Hurlbutt said. "A mono diet for a bird is like you surviving solely on Twinkies. They need variety just like you do."

Both of the Hurlbutts' birds are domestically breed. Hand fed as chicks, they are used to being handled by humans and make a better pet than captive birds, they said.

"It's like trying to make a farm cat into a house cat," Hurlbutt said. "Domestic breeders have been so successful that there's no reason to stress the birds in the wild which are already stressed because of the loss of habitat. Why take them out of the wild when it's not necessary.

"Breeders have been so successful with these birds that some experts think they will become extinct in the wild, but survive through domestic breeding and be re-introduced into the wild."

Preacher believes in being a teacher

By Atlene Funke special writer

He's the preacher teacher.

"Education is the heart and soul of my ministry," said the Rev. Dr. Thomas Eggebeen, new senior pastor at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church (USA) in Livonia.

Eggeteen, 46, assumed the pastorate of the 1,300member church in June He expressed as a major goal offering seminars which teach people how to "enhance their communication with God."

"Every church needs a strong educational program which involves everyone from the youngest to the oldest," Eggebeen said.

Eggebeen, a native of Wisconsin, believes it is his responsibility as pastor to provide a positive and encouraging Sunday worship that sets the tone for dally life.

"If I can put it in a nutshell, it is to provide a joyful environment in which people can learn about God and find out who they are," Eggebeen said.

· HE WAS IN high school when he began feeling called

"I always lived with a sense of God being very close to me, and that isn't said arrogantly," he said. "It took a long time to clarify. A number of my friends couldn't believe it. I seemed too unministerlike,

"Ministers were thought of as being tight and stodgy.

I was anything but stodgy and I still am not stodgy." Eggebeen received his undergraduate education at Calvin College in Grand Rapids and his seminary training at Western Theological Seminary in Holland. He holds bachelor of divinity and doctor of divinity degrees. Ordained in 1970, Eggebeen has served churches in been said. "The sword cuts both ways. Ultimately, we resent what we are afraid of. We (clergy) are here only because God loves us too."

EGGEBEEN HAS done much research and developed several topics for seminars, including study questions and take-home materials. These subjects include the meaning of baptism and learning to pray out loud.

"Sometimes people need a larger vocabulary," Eggebeen said. "They need words to help describe what they are thinking and feeling."

Eggebeen has studied the role of 16th century Protestant theologian John Calvin, whom he dubs the "theological granddaddy" of the Presbyterian denomination.

The class on "what it means to be Presbyterian" emphasizes the doctrine of grace, or the strong belief in God's forgiving nature, "from the beginning to the end,"

"Some people might think the world is under the influence of the devil, rather than God. Presbyterians feel very much the opposite - that we can trust what this world is, we can trust God.

"Evil is real, but God is more real." Eggebeen has already begun to implement the Stephen Ministry, a St. Louis-based instructional program which teaches basic pastoral skills for handling such tasks as hospital visits and counseling people who are experiencing personal crises.

"It's a ministry of creative listening," Eggebeen said.

THE CHURCH already has a flourishing music program and active youth group, he said. A group of teens from St. Paul's spent time this summer fixing up and refurbishing dilapidated housing in Topeka.

Eggebeen will be looking to target some programs for people nearing retirement age and for others in their 20s.

"Age-wise, it's a well-balanced congregation," he said. "Probably the largest group is aged 55 and up. But there is a very healthy proportion of young people with children."

Community service has been a mainstay at St. Paul's. Several self-help and philanthropic organizations hold their meetings at the church.

Several congregation members donate their time serving meals at Fort Street Presbyterian Church in downtown Detroit. That once-a-week mission program feeds more than 500, Eggebeen said.

"I think this is a very friendly congregation," he said. "I perceive this as one of the strengths."

Eggebeen's wife, Donna, is a real estate saleswoman. Son Josh, 18, and daughter Rachel, 14, are enrolled at Stevenson High School in Livonia.

Eggebeen enjoys going to plays and reading history and biography books for relaxation. He likes to attend movies with Josh and browse in bookstores with Rachel. A motto which Eggebeen has adopted was a commentby fictional detective Sherlock Holmes that the sleuth

Weapons don't guarantee peace

Michigan is a beautiful state! At this time of the year especially we feel blessed with water, green forests and pretty nice weather.

Recent reports tell us that our state leaders are concerned about bettering our environment. Even the DNR can no longer poison fish in our streams. But there is something else that is about to happen. Nobody seems concerned. It probably will not stir interest like the poisoning of fish in one of our streams.

The big missiles are being taken out of Colorado and are coming to Michigan. Each holds 10 H bombs. They will be mounted upon railroad cars and be ready to be moved about the state.

When this deadly cargo arrives in Michigan and joins the other 630 nuclear bombs in the state, we will probably not know about it. We will be concerned about our beautiful state and rightly so. We will watch to see that all our refuse dumps are carefully monitored. But who will note the arrival of the trains bearing H bombs?

THESE TERRIBLE weapons have become just like the neighbor's little pet dog. As long as they don't make a noise, we will ignore their existence.

Yet, we all must remember. If we do not remember, we may suffer the consequences. Aug. 6 was the celebration of Hiroshima day. We began a new era 45 years ago.

We must remember the horror that was and the horror that can still happen. I met one of the survivors of that first atom bomb. She was a child then. Now she asks us to remember and work toward a future when this will never happen again. I remember Mrs. Amano from Hiroshima.

I am sure that there are military people who believe that the 630 nuclear bombs in Michigan have helped keep the peace. There are peace witnesses who believe just as strongly that removing these bornbs from our state will help achieve peace more completely.

Isn't enough, enough? How many police standing on a corner insure safety? Do we want more H bombs in Michigan? The week in which Hiroshima day fell, 45 years ago, is a time to remember and reflect.

I believe that the world is changing. We need to be ready to change in the directions of co-existence and cooperation. How does it feel for this great state to be going backward?

This whole thing reminds me of an expressway bridge which was built in Boston. Subsequently, the route was changed, leaving the bridge in place, hanging in the sky to nowhere. How do we feel about more missiles coming to Michigan

London, the smart way

crossroads

Iris Jones

QUESTION: My husband and I will be in London, England, for one week in August. Where should we exchange dollars for pounds? What is the best way to get around? What are some neat places to eat, what light and entertaining plays should we see and where should we shop for souvenirs (not junk). Thanks for your help. Bonnie.

ANSWER: I've been to London many times, but I asked travel photographer Micky Jones of Farmington Hills to answer your question, because he was there quite recently.

"London is a great place to visit anytime and there is so much to do there that your week will disappear rapidly.

'London is a great place to visit anytime and there is so much to do there that your week will disappear rapidly.'

— Micky Jones Farmington

Before you leave home, visit a local travel agency and buy two Visitor Travel Card Vouchers which entitle you to unlimited use of London's bus and underground systems for three, four or seven days, including the trips to and from Heathrow airport. (They don't cover transportation from Gatwick Airport). The Vouchers cost $15, $21 and $35 and cannot be bought in England.

"Since you may not have time to get information on London attractions, events, shopping and dining from the British Tourist Authority office in Chicago, you can get what you need from the British Travel Center at 12 Regent St. in London. It is a two-minute walk south from Picadilly Circus, the London equivalent of Times Square.

"They will provide you with maps and guide books including the current issue of London Planner, containing a complete theater listing. London is like New York in one way, tickets to the top shows are hard to come by unless you pay scalper's prices or are lucky enough to get a cancellation at the box office.

"Half-priced tickets are available to many good plays and musicals at the Half Price Ticket Booth in Leicester Square. They sell matinee tickets noon to 2 p.m. and evening show tickets 2:30 to 6:30 p.m. on the day of the performance.

"You may be hustled while in line by scalpers selling very high-price tickets to sold-out shows like the Phantom of the Opera. Agatha Christie's 'Mousetrap', which has played continuously for 38 years and is the world's longest-running play.

"For quality products and souvenirs you can't go wrong at either Harrod's department store in Knightsbridge or Selfridge's on Oxford St. For less quality but more fun try Covent Garden and Portobello Rd. If you will be there Sunday, head for Petticoat Lane on Middlesex St. between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. to see the biggest, most crowded and fascinating street market I've ever seen. It only operates on Sundays.

"There are so many London restaurants that it is impossible to make a few specific recommendations. Prices range from moderate to very high so check the menu posted on the window before entering. Most English pubs serve good inexpensive lunnches and are wonderful places to meet local people.

"Wander across Waterloo Bridge to the South Bank Center which is a large modernistic complex of theaters, concert halls, museums and restaurants. It is a good place for lunch or afternoon tea even if you don't stay for one of the shows.

"What do you do after the Changing of the Guard, the Tower of London, Madame Tussaud's, Westminster Abbey and the British Museum?

Take a relaxing boat ride on the Thames; you can choose one that takes 20 minutes or one that takes as long as four hours."

What I would add to Micky Jones' recommendations are a few thoughts about money. I never change my dollars in the United States. I buy American Express travelers checks, free with my membership in the Automobile Club of Michigan or for a small commission at the bank.

Exchange enough at the airport in England to get you through a day or two, then change as you go at English banks. Warning: they charge the same commission for $20 or $200 so don't exchange small amounts. You can change them at a hotel desk but the exchange rate is usually lower.

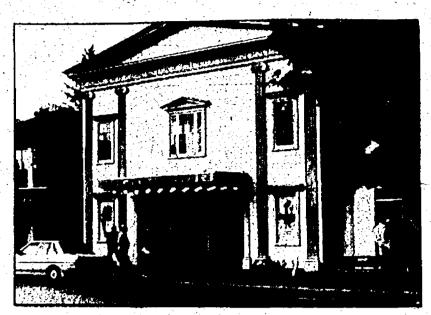

And remember this rule of travel: there is nothing wrong with scheduling your time loosely, as long as you schedule in time to wander, watch the pigeons and enjoy the street life of London.

For more information, the British Tourist Authority office is at 625 N. Michigan Ave., Suite 1510, Chicago, Illinois 60611 or call (812) 787-0490.

Dallying through fudge and flowers

Aromas linger from the verandah of The Buttery.

The Shaw Festival presents some of the most respected theater performances at The Royal George Theatre.

in Niagara-on-the-Lake

☐ B&B accommodations, 7B

By Iris Sanderson Jones travel editor

If I stood blindfolded on Queen Street, I would still know that I was in Niagara-on-the Lake, Ontario. It's not just the smell of fudge from the Niagara Fudge shop, the marmalade from Greaves or the aromas wafting off the verandah at The Buttery.

I would smell the brilliant red geraniums that grow around the clock tower outside the Court House Theater. The flowers that hang from the lamp posts and make a red, yellow and blue passage down Queen Street, the main strip in town.

It is only a few blocks from the place where Highway 55 dead-ends on Queen and the corner where Queen becomes Picton Street and bends out of town between the Shaw Festival Theater and Fort George, but everything you need for a colorful short vacation is along that six-block stretch. The rest is available within a block or two on either side.

THE MUNICIPALITY of Niagara-on-the-Lake covers a large area at the end of the Niagara Peninsula, but the picturesque old town covers a few blocks at the very tip, where the Niagara River enters Lake Ontario 14 miles downriver from Niagara Falls.

Old hands say that Niagara-on-the-Lake has changed in 15 years from a small town full of locally owned shops to a tourist center. For a newcomer, it has only one flaw. Flowers or not, it costs more than you might want to spend for a few days in the village.

Any accomodation under $100 is considered moderate, although you can search-and-find less expensive mostly unlisted bed-and-breakfasts. Add $50 a person for a couple of Shaw plays and the bill starts getting high.

Some things cost less Tuesday through Thursday, so we drove in Thursday and stayed where Highway 55 dead-ends, at The Kiely House, a large white verandahed house built as a summer home by a Toronto lawyer in 1832.

Heather Pettit was weeding her large back garden when we parked and walked past the centuries-old Osage orange trees to the back of the house. If you arrive in the fall, watch out for the odd-shaped Osage fruit, which looks like a large warty orange; it thumps down on unsuspecting parked cars.

"The garden smells wonderful," I said.
"It's the hedge," Heather said in her somewhat British accent. "Every time you trim it, it smells like oranges."

IT ALSO smelled like petunias and nasturtiums and geraniums as I followed the scent down Queen Street, past shops with names like Maple Leaf Fudge, Dansk Outlet Store and Cornelis de Jonge Collectibles to the Royal George, the first of the three Shaw Festival theaters I met during my brief love affair with Niagara-on-the-Lake.

I planned to see Shaw's "Village Wooing" there the next day so I went on past the Courthouse building, on the site of the first capital of Upper Canada, now Ontario, in 1792, and settled in for a bowl of onion soup on The Buttery verandah.

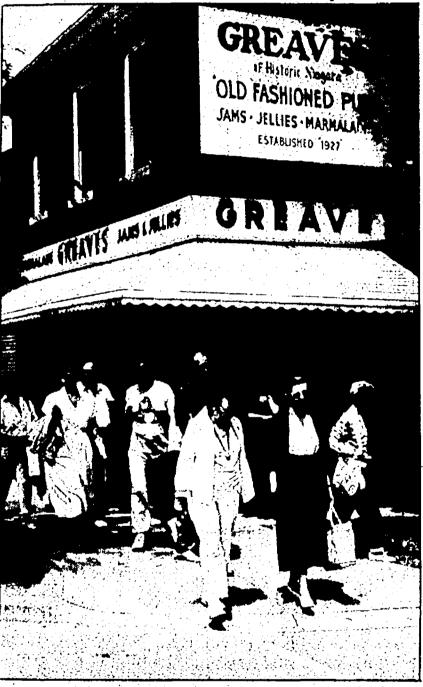

From there I saw the passing parade: shorts and baseball caps, T-shirts and Nikes gave way, as theater time approached, to dresses and jackets moving east toward the Shaw Festival Theater.

Any traveler who likes to do things right would start at the east end of town, where they fight the War of 1812 every day in Fort George. The little blue-and-white map, available in all hotels, tells you that this town was settled at the close of the American Revolution by loyalists, many of them members of Butler's Rangers, based across the river at Fort Niagara.

That's why you see signs, as you come into town, pointing to Butler's Burial Ground and the Negro Burial Ground.

Vintage Junkers renew dreamy days of flying

After three major rebuilds and eight different identities in five countries, this 1936 vintage Junkers Ju 52 tri-motor was fully overhauled and completely restored at Lufthansa's Hamburg maintenance base.

By William Coutant staff writer.

For Lufthansa Airlines Capt. Didi Krauss, flying the Junkers Ju 52 marks the fulfillment of a boyhood dream. And although he's ferrying passengers in the 54-year-old aircraft without pay, hundreds, perhaps thousands, of other airline pilots would pay to take his place.

"I remember this plane from when I was a child," Krauss said. "In fact, we're the same age."

Both Krauss and the distinctive passenger plane were born in April 1936. Lufthansa Airlines resurrected the vintage craft from seeming death and restored it.

The German airline has brought the plane with its corrugated, black and silver body to the United States for a 34-city promotional tour. After stops in Milwaukee and Osh Kosh, Wis., and Grand Rapids, the plane will come to Detroit for the weekend of Aug. 17-19.

WITH IT, the plane brings back memories of a time when piston-engine prop planes were king and the "Aunty Ju" was the mainstay of European air travel.

In 1926, two German airlines, Deutscher Aero Lloyd and Junkers Luftverkehr, merged to form Deutsche Luft Hansa AG, the predecessor of modern-day Lufthansa.

Junkers' Dessau plant built the world's first allmetal aircraft in 1919, the Junkers F13. The plane changed air travel, linking remote countries to Europe. In 1932, the three-engined Junkers Ju 52/ 3m, which could travel 250 kilometers (150 miles)

The best stays in Niagara-on-the-Lake

By Iris Sanderson Jones travel editor

Where should I stay in Niagara-onthe-Lake? I learned a lot of things, and ran up quite a telephone bill, while trying to answer that question.

The Chamber of Commerce, (416) 468-4263, has an unusual reservation service. Call or write ahead, tell them what your priorities are and for $5 they'll find you accommodations that fit your needs.

They list 12 hotels and inns, with rates in Canadian dollars. Multiply by .86 to convert to U.S. dollars. Hotel rates range from $112 to $325 (U.S. $96-$280) a night for two. Inns range from $78 to $140. They also list bed-and-breakfast accommodations from $55 to $95.

I was surprised rates were so high. but Ontario prices are high for everything, and you pay extra for staying in a tourist town that can usually fill its beds, especially on weekends.

THE LARGEST and newest hotel, two blocks from town and overlooking the marina and lake, is Queen's Landing (416) 468-2195, $135 to $325. It is owned by the same family that

A new hotel across the street from the Festival Theater, the Royal Park (416) 468-2010, offers special rates of $95 to $120 this year. The bestknown historic hotel is the Prince of Wales (416) 468-3246, on the main street in the middle of town, for $112 to $228.

I started calling my friends and learned that many B&B's are not listed with the chamber.

SALLY SAWYER of West Bloomfield recommended the bed-andbreakfast home of Dorothy McCullough, "a delightful elderly woman who loves to play cribbage," at 300 Niagara (416) 468-4688. A Canadian friend told me she stayed there for $35 last year. But nobody was ever home when I called.

Al and Shirley Sandner of Lansing stay in the Old Bank House bed-andbreakfast (416) 468-7136, overlooking the lake three blocks from town. Rates: $88 with a bathroom down the hall or $125 "en suite" (with a bathroom in the room).

I couldn't get a room there, but they recommended The Wellington House (416) 468-4081, rate $65, run by Richard and Monica Taylor. By this time my phone bill was rising.

Mrs. Taylor was full too. She recommended Carol Grey (416) 468Kiely House (416) 468-4588, $75 to

Our room at Kiely House was in the "new wing" built in the 1850s. It's a nice house. The room was small, up a long-flight of stairs. The day night dinner reservation three breakfast and ambience were delightful.

It cost $88 plus tax for the night, which still seems high to me as I adjust to village prices.

I ASKED two local people where they would put their relatives if they came to town. One said the Moffat Inn or the Prince of Wales. The other said the Prince of Wales or the Mof-

The Ju 52 became the plane of the 1930s in both scheduled services and pioneering achievements, easily winning a race over the Alps from Zurich to Geneva to Milan and back to Zurich.

"It is legendary in Germany," Krauss said. "My whole flying career I've loved flying piston aircraft. And this is the one I most wanted to fly."

THIS PARTICULAR model has an unusual history of its own, almost an encapsulation of all Ju 52s.

One of 5,000 planes built at the Junkers factory between 1932 and 1952, the "Fritz Simon" with its D-AQUI marking went into service on \ April 10, 1936.

In July 1936, it was sent to Norway, where it was fitted with floats and renamed the "Falcon" for air travel in the country's remote coastal region.

In 1940, the German army confiscated the plane and used it to transport troops.

"During that time it was (painted) green," said Krauss. "That was not such a good time."

IN 1956 the Ju 52 was retired as jetliners were taking over the skies. With its large wingspan (30 meters), museums weren't even interested. But the plane found another life when an airline in Quito, Equador bought the plane, renamed it "Ama- delight of those who found space on zonas" and began flying passengers, flights of 30 minutes to downtown cattle and cargo across the jungle.

In 1963, after 8,000 flying hours, the decrepit aircraft was falling apart. It was abandoned on the perimeter of Quito Airport. But once again it was rescued when a former U. S. Air Force pilot, Lester Weaver, bought the wreck in 1969 for $5,200 and had it repaired.

Another American, writer Martin Caidan bought the plane for $52,500 and gave it the name "Iron Annie."

"I just had to buy the damned plane," Caidan said.

After some stints with air shows in the United States, Caidan overhauled the plane in 1976 and put in new Pratt & Whitney engines. He then sold the plane to Lufthansa, which Krauss and his crew took the plane easily off the ground at Midway Airport in Chicago, much to the and back.

The British, taking no chances, built Fort George on the Canadian side, where it was very busy during the War of 1812. What I like about that war is that markers on the U.S. side say that the Americans won it, and markers on the Canadian side say the Canadians won it.

Whoever won it, when they say "the war" in Niagara-on-the-Lake, they don't mean World War I or World War II. Korea or Vietnam, they mean the War of 1812. I've never been an organized trav-

The Shaw Festival started on the third floor of the old courthouse in 1962 and now has three theaters going full tilt. The festival is not just about British playwright George Bernard Shaw. With the kind of poetic logic I appreciate, the mandate is to produce any plays written during Shaw's lifetime, 1856-1950; fortunately he lived a long life.

As B.J. Armstrong of the Shaw Festival staff says, "artistic director Christopher Newton likes plays that show what happened when the 19th

He plans to clean up on lots of dirty cars

Mobile wash service targets professionals

By Doug Funke staff writer

Can a 25-year-old suburbanite successfully run a one-man mobile car wash business out of a pickup truck in an increasingly sophisticated technological world?

Michael Wright, a Plymouth resident, thinks so.

And it's because of technology that Wright can load as much as 55 gallons of water in a couple of tanks, a low-pressure hose system, vacuum cleaners, a portable generator, miscellaneous cleaning products and a cellular phone into his truck to seek fortune if not fame in parking garages and offic-

"It's a fantastic idea," Wright said. "Everyone told me I'm crazy for doing this. Yes, I probably am crazy for doing it, but nothing tried, nothing gained."

Wright, as owner of Executive Mobile Wash, does it all himself from knocking on doors in search of customers to answering his own business phone in the truck to hand washing the vehicles.

He first came across the concept last year while selling medical supplies in Las Vegas.

"I SAW guys washing doctors' cars right at their offices. I thought it was weird, the silliest thing I'd seen. But what an idea, I

Wright returned to southeastern Michigan this year and worked for a while at a family-owned driving

"I love my family to death, but we didn't work well together. I didn't want to go to work for some-

Wright eventually stumbled across an ad in a magazine for a mobile wash business. The light of recall clicked.

"I DID some calling around, checked it out. Some people pull in $75,000 with one truck. I went ahead and bought the equipment."

That involved an expenditure of some $7,000, Wright said, but he figures that's his only overhead. And besides, it's all depreciable for tax purposes.

Wright generally charges $10 for an exterior wash, $20 for an interior/exterior job and a premium for shampooing carpeting. The average job takes about an hour and uses only about four gallons of Wright is the first to admit that his service isn't for most people. He targets doctors, lawyers and salespeople for whom a clean car is an important part of their professional image.

"THIS IS for the very affluent. It's mostly for the higher clientele, guys who can afford the Porsche, the new Lincoln."

Even the wealthy could get their cars washed more economically elsewhere, Wright said. What he sells is convenience, quality and reliabilty, especially in winter when good intentions don't always translate into action.

"You have all that salt, garbage they're putting on roads. I know from personal experience a car gets grubbed up in winter, especially the interior."

WRIGHT WORKS just as hard at drumming up business as he does washing.

"If a guy thinks he's going to buy equipment, go down to the local mall and wash cars, he's wasting money.'

Wright takes the direct approach, knocking on doors with fli-

"I personally go in there and talk to them, cold spec, first thing in the morning. If a guy can afford a receptionist, he's probably very busy and a service like this would probably be fantastic for him."

WRIGHT HAS a handful of regular customers so far, but he has only been at it a couple of weeks. One of his first clients was the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth.

'It was nice to see to see someone else give service," said Creon ... Smith, a co-owner of the hotel. "You couldn't say no to the guy. His price was right. His truck was clean. Someone like that, you have to give a chance.'

Wright's work often is his best advertisement. People, curious as to what he's doing in a parking lot, will stop by for a closer look.

Now, Wright figures if he can just get a big break or two while prospecting parking garages and large office complexes, he'll really be in business.

'It's mostly for the higher clientele, guys who can afford the Porsche, the new Lincoln.'

The oil panics of the late 1970s produced a short-lived, genuine interest in fuel economy. This is often cited as the main reason the imports began a sudden surge in sales that today accounts for about a third of the cars sold. .

Domestic cars improved dramatically, since they mainly were getting approximately the same mileage as a Mack truck in the early 1970s. That improvement comes measured against truly dismal performance in the bad old days.

The first efforts to meet then-new emissions laws led to incredibly poor mileage, dipping into the single digits, until the first catalytic converters came on the market in 1975.

You also can expect another short-lived mad scramble to buy "fuel-efficient" cars, a trend that seems to come back about as often as the Hula Hoop.

THE REALITY is that to make any dramatio change in national fuel consumption, the whole automotive fleet must change, not just a handful of new cars. This takes a sustained change in thinking and policy that must continue for at least a decade - the minimum time to replace most of the cars on the road.

Project cost estimates vary and will depend on two factors - the nature and complexity of your projects and the level of professional expertise your writer offers. Simple projects such as preparing short press releases, fliers or cover letters may be successfully handled by moonlighters who have writing talent but who are not in a position to advise you in a professional consulting capacity.

IF YOU are seeking direction on one or more projects before the work actually begins, consider freelancers who have formal taining in the field of marketing, advertising or small business management. Expect to pay between $20 and $35 and hour for moonlighters charging hourly rates. Freelance rates run from $40 to $90 per hour.

You can keep the price down by preparing as much information as possible for your writer beforehand, and by working with one writer on a variety of assignments. Once you establish a solid, longterm business relationship with a writer, he or she will go out of their way to watch out for your financial interests.

Q. I have owned McDonald's stock for several years. My purchases look like this (see table A). I recently decided to sell 100 shares and, because the stock is now selling for $3414, I asked my broker to sell 100 of the shares I bought in October 1966 so that I could register a tax loss on the sale. My broker said that my cost on my October 1986 purchase would have to be reduced by the stock dividends I had received and that I would have a tax from selling those shares. I always thought a stock dividend gave you shares that were free. Is my broker right?

A. Yes, your broker is correct. A stock split or stock dividend does not represent a gift. All the corporation is really doing is dividing the shares into more pieces. The corporation isn't worth more after it pays a stock dividend.

As one writer had put it, receiving a 100-percent stock dividend is just like changing all the dimes in your pocket into nickels. You have twice. as many pieces in your pocket, but when you add them all up, you have

Investors like stock dividends because they usually are paid by corporations that are growing and earning more money.

That growth makes the company more valuable and the price of its stock usually goes up. Companies pay stock dividends usually because their growth has caused the stock price to go up.

Reducing the selling price by cutting the price of the stock in half brings the price down to one that is popular with investors, and they buy it more frequently.

See table B to find out what you should have done.

If you want to keep your taxes at the lowest figure, you should tell your broker to sell 100 of the shares you bought in January 1989.

Walter's gets by Marietta, 3-2

By Bred Emons staff writer

Walter's Appliance hung on Wednesday in the first round of the five-team All-American Amateur Baseball Association (20 and under) regional at Municipal Stadium in Zanesville, Ohio.

Manager Mike Keller's team edged Marietta, Ga., featuring several players from the 1982 Little League World Series championship team, 3-2.

"We left several runners on base, but played great defense again," said Keller, whose team is 21-12-1 overall. "There were a few anxious moments, but we hung tough. Winning the first one in any tourney is a big one."

Trailing 3-1 in the bottom of the ninth, Marietta scored quickly off rellef pitcher Gene Boyce (the eventubasebali al winner), who allowed a run on a double and single.

On came the third Walter's pitcher. Chad Wrona, who got the final three outs to earn the save. Wrona got clean-up hitter Ron Umphenrian to pop out to third haseman John Gotts with the bases loaded to end the game.

WALTER'S OPENED the scoring in the second inning on a walk to Jerry Koester, a sacrifice bunt by Ken Dropiewski and an RBI single by catcher Tim Crabtree, who continued his hot post-season hitting.

Marietta tied it in the third, but Walter's first baseman Jason Gabel, the Livonia Churchill High product, 235-pound junior. "It's my feeling he could be starting in the Big Ten. I

Mitchell was first-team all-GLIAC

last year, snaring 48 passes for 735

vards and seven touchdowns. "He's an outstanding athlete," added Beck.

"He has great awareness on the field

Lipsey also posted impressive numbers for GVSU a year ago. A 6-

1,013 yards on 168 carries, averaging 8.0 yards an attempt; and scored six TDs in '89. He also caught 34 homered to lead off the sixth. Walter's added an insurance run in the eighth. Gotts walked and Koester singled, Gotts went to third when Dropiewski hit into a double play, but Crabtree, the Michigan State sophomore, came through again with his second RBI single.

Lefty David Houghtby, the Walter's starter, worked 51/3 innings before giving way to Boyce, who went the middle 23/3.

Walter's got a big defensive play in the first when left fielder Joe Sturtz gunned down a Marietta runner trying to tag from third on a sacrifice fly.

Walter's meets Washington, D.C. at 4 foday in the second round. Right-hander Jeremy Krol (Garden City High and Madonna College), a pick-up from Hines Park, gets the starting assignment.

Home run binge lifts Westland

Westland Federation is in Youngstown, Ohio, today in search of the National Amateur Baseball Federation's Connie Mack (16-18 year-olds) baseball

Coach Al Fernandez's squad won five straight over the weekend in the nine-team regional hosted at Redford's Capitol Park and Westland's Rotary Park to Westland used to long ball, blasting a total of nine homers at the regional, running its overall record to 30-5.

Left-hander John Anthony of Plymouth Canton High threw a three-hitter in the championship game, a 7-0 victory over Kelsey Motors of Toledo, Ohio, to send Westland Federation to the NABF finals.

Grand Valley favored in

By C.J. Risak staff writer

The coaches are in agreement: The same teams that dominated the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athlétic Conference football race a year ago will prove most powerful in the Midwest Intercollegiate Football Conference's initial season.

The GLIAC's football-playing schools merged with the Heartland Conference — which consisted of Ashland University, Butler University. University of Indianapolis and Valparaiso University — to form the Grand Valley State was unbeatable in the regular season a year ago, going 11-0 overall and 5-0 in the GLIAC. With 26 of the 37 players with starting experience returning, GVSU was picked to repeat in a vote of the MIFC's 11 coaches.

Hillsdale was selected to finish second and Northern Michigan was chosen fourth (behind Butler), giving former GLIAC teams three of the top four places in the balloting.

TWO REASONS GVSU bas received such rave reviews are tight end Bob Mitchell, from Bloomfield Hills (Birmingham Brother Rice), and running back Ike Lipsey, from Southfield (Southfield-Lathrup).

'Mitchell, without question, is a great player," was Laker coach Tom Beck's description of the 6-foot-5,

football

HILLSDALE, 6-4 overall and 3-2 and, like all great athletes, he wants in the GLIAC a year ago, hopes improvement defensively will enable it to make a run at GVSU. The Chargers expect junior outside linebacker foot, 199-pound senior, Lipsey gained Joe Jouppi, a 6-2, 220-pounder from Canton (Plymouth Salem), to provide offensive front. The 6-2, 245-pound leadership and steady play.

Hillsdale has 14-of-22 starters back, which will help. Kurt Urban, a passes for 409 yards, second only to 8-2, 235-pound sophomore center from Canton (Salem), will anchor the "Ike Lipsey had a great year for offensive line. Junior Mark Wolter, from Livonia (Stevenson) returns as the Chargers' punter; he averaged 36.3 yards a kick last year.

NMU's '89 campaign was, like Hillsdale's, not up to normal standards. The Wildcats finished 5-5, 3-2 in the GLIAC, but with 17-of-22 starters returning, that should

A key to NMU's resurgence will be junior wide receiver Eric Stokes, a 6-foot, 174-pound native of Southfield (Lathrup). Stokes topped the Wildcats with 40 catches for 536 vards and two TDs a year ago.

Andy Avery will beef up NMU's junior played various line positions last season and was named offensive player of the week for his performance against Hillsdale.

Late surge provides Marauders with title

By C.J. Risak staff writer

> None of it made any sense. With two of the best players on the Birmingham Cobras' roster missing for Sunday's championship match in the Great Lakes Men's Soccer League at Livonia's Bicentennial Park, it seemed logical to assume the Redford Marauders would dominate, from start to finish. They didn't.

When the Marauders took a 1-0 lead into halftime, after playing the first half into the wind, it figured they would roll with the wind at their backs in the second half.

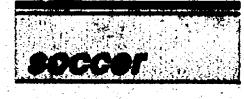

Then, when the Cobras lost a player to a red card 10 minutes into the second half, forcing them to play shorthanded the rest of the match, the Marauders would certainly dominate - right? Wrong again.

INDEED, THE Cobras played like a team possessed through most of the second half and forged a tie with less than 20 minutes remaining. The tide, which should have favored Marauders, had shifted. But not for long. Down but hardly out, the Marauders pulled themselves together and scored twice in the final 12 minutes to capture the GLMSL Division I title with a 3-1

Birmingham Cobras II scored GLMSL Division II crown, 4-2 over they scored, we started going hard the Corinthlans, in Sunday's first

A shift in strategy nearly cost the Marauders, according to coach Nick O'Shea. Trying to create more offensive opportunities, O'Shea wanted his keeper, Brian O'Shea, to hold the ball and force the shorthanded Cobras to push more players forward. That would leave more one-on-one situations on the offensive end for the Marauders.

But confusion by the Marauders led to hesitation, and the Cobras took advantage. A Nick Hotchkins header, off a corner kick from Matt Pace, five minutes before halftime had given the Marauders a 1-0 lead.

THE COBRAS, already without Han Roest (MVP at Indiana-in-'88)and leading scorer Joe Dimaria, lost Bobby Lipká to a red card for arguing a call early in the second half. But they pressured and controlled play anyway and, 15 minutes after Lipka's disqualification, they knotted it when Willie Rushton bounced a shot past Brian O'Shea after a Dave Wassman free kick.

"We played them really even," said Cobras' coach Tim Beuchner. "I thought we played real well. It looked like the momentum was going our way."

The Cobras' goal, however, was again," said Nick O'Shea.

The Marauders went back in front with 10 minutes left, and they did it by scoring again off a corner kick. Listening to the opposing coaches after the match, this shouldn't have happened. Said O'Shea: "It's surprising. We haven't been doing well on corner kicks all' year." Added Beuchner: "I don't think we've had a corner kick scored on us all year."

BUT IT did fit the illogical pattern of the game. Robby Ludwig, who performed ably throughout the match, took the corner, sending the ball to Gordon Wells at the far side of the net for the header.

The Marauders were back on top, and this time they didn't let up. Two minutes later they iced their victory with another goal, set up by a long pass from Wells near midfield to Gary Mexicotte on the right wing. After eluding one defender, Mexicotte pushed a pass to Ludwig in front of the net and he converted.

The win gave the Marauders their second major title this year. They captured the National Amateur Cup state crown in May.

In the second division title match, Cobras II overcame all sorts of difficulties to claim the victory. John Bennett scored with 20 minutes left in the second half to tie it at 2-all for Cobras II, forcing two 15-minute overtime periods. Jason Goldsmith got the game-winner; Jamle Huffadded an insurance goal.

Dave Cooper netted the first goal wice in overtime to collect the the Marauders wake-up call. "Once for Cobras II, who were without sweeper Billy Adam, red-carded midway through the second half, and three other key starters. Doug Kopp scored for the Corinthians.

Recruiting woes

Troubles over, Madonna looks better

By C.J. Risak staff writer

It's August, and uncertainty surrounds Madonna College's women's basketball program.

So what's new? Last year, you may remember, the program's future was in doubt until August, when it was decided — what the heck? — to keep it. That gave coach Bob Belf a whole lot of time, an entire month, to recruit a team.

The Fighting Crusaders didn't confirm their schedule until then; their first game wasn't until

It was hoped this year would be different, that things would run more smoothly. But, alas, no

A misunderstanding on how much scholarship money Belf had to work with, combined with a late confirmation (July) of his budget, led to trouble. Belf overspent, promising his recruits more than his reduced budget - smaller than last year because of the addition of softball as a varsity sport - allowed.

OPTIONS RANGED from reneging on the promised scholarship money to finding other ways to come up with it. The disagreement between Belf and athletic director Ray Summers grew so heated, Belf's resignation - which most likely would have caused cancellation of the program - was threatened.

Hopefully, all's well that ends well, and this episode is now over. Summers and Belf met Tuesday and decided to make some adjustments, sponsor a few fundraisers and try to deliver the money promised.

"My biggest concern," said Belf, "was that I didn't want to screw everything up for my kids. Those kids had already committed."

college sports

If Belf and his players can put these troubled times behind them, they might have a pretty good season ahead. The Crusaders finished 6-15 last season, 4-9 in the NAIA's District 23, even though they had just eight squad members. With six returnees and four promising re-cruits, depth shouldn't be as big a problem. And the newcomers could help immediately.

At least Belf is counting on them to. "Our (team) quickness, shooting, (playing) tempo are all improved," he said. "The last thing we need to improve is rebounding. I think, at our level of competition, the quality of your athletes will dictate how well you play defensively."

THE TWO players expected to contribute most are both former Oakland Community College stars: Stephanie Niebauer, a 5-foot-8 shooting guard, and Alice Williams, a 5-7 point guard. Both will have junior eligibility.

Niebauer, from Romeo HS, went to OCC to play softball but never did after making her mark on the basketball court. "She's predominantly a perimeter player," said Belf. "The kid's a tremendous shooter, and a great three-point shooter. She's at her best in an up-tempo game."

Which is what Belf is trying to install. "I want to make people play with us athletically," he just dynamite. The more you let her loose, the more she makes happen. She sees the floor well, she's a good shooter, and she gets out on the break well."

Belf is considering using Williams, who also positions herself well for rebounds, at small forward, which would allow him to use both her and returning point guard Lyndel Ingalis at the same

THE BIGGEST Madonna recruit will provide the team with what it needs most: a dominating figure in the post. Lori Creten, a Gladstone HS grad, may be all of that. She stands 6-1, but just as impressive are her athletic credentials - she ran track in high school, anchoring the 400-meter and 800-meter relays.

"She's not a great scorer, but she runs the court, blocks shots and rebounds real well," the Madonna coach said.

The fourth Crusader recruit is 5-6 Renee Bennett, a 22-year-old from Dearborn HS who will add depth at point guard. "She's real quick like lightning," sald Belf.

Others may be coming as well. With the University of Michigan-Dearborn women's program folding, transfer possibilities exist. Madonna may need them; some problems may have been solved, but not all.

Three returning players will be forced to sit out the first semester because of eligibility restrictions. All three - forwards Michelle Dyksinski, Lisa Kline and Theresa Ternes - have three semesters of eligibility remaining.

Which means Madonna will have just seven players available (unless others are added) for the first 11 games.

Morton Downey Jr. will bring his Big Mouth format and the Big Mouth podium to Joey's Comedy Club in Livonia for a show

Morton Downey won't apologize for TV persona

By Loraine McClish staff writer

Once the most talked about talk show host, Morton Downey Jr. will bring his show to Joey's Comedy Club in Livonia for a special appearance Sunday.

"The Morton Downey Jr. Show" continues to rake up high ratings on CNBC Cable. The show that's coming here with the Big Mouth format and the Big Mouth podium is the last stop on a multi-city tour of live performances across the country.

The format remains the same. Downey chooses a subject. He asks for volunteers from the audience who are knowledgeable about that subject. The audience-volunteer experts in turn choose to take a for or against stand on a question pertaining to that subject. Then the show

His show was once described as "Downey facing off with guests like a starved lion eyeing fresh

Downey makes no apologies for the television persona he has created. He is quick to defend his position as a kind and decent man, albeit an angry one.

TESTING THE bounds have been his legacy, one that has pushed the interview form far enough to discover the truth.

Downey is the son of Morton Downey, probably the most noted tenor of his day, and Barbara Bennett, sister to Joan and Constance.

He has proved himself a versatile entertainer over and over

He has had starring roles in a succession of films - "Tales from the Crypt" for HBO; "Predator II" opposite Danny Glover, the soonto-be-released film "Down and Dirty" opposite Robert Davi; and the NBC television movie "Thanksgiving Day" opposite Mary Tyler Moore.

Late in 1989 he walked away from Trump's Castle in Atlantic City with across-the-board rave reviews for his performance in a review of music that spanned the '50s to the '90s.

Mellow singer Bennett marks 40th show biz year

By Carolyn Barnett-Goldstein special writer

PEAKING FROM his Manhattan apartment in the softspoken, mellowed voice sometimes heard in concert and on his recordings, Tony Bennett is candid, and patient, with a readily infectious laugh.

In discussing his music and his painting (one of his watercolors, "Peace," is part of the permanent display at the United Nations Assembly building), his life's concerns, attitudes and goals and how he acquired his perspectives are revealed, as is the mind behind the works.

He is in the middle of a four-nation tour celebrating his 40th anniversary in show business and promoting his 91st album, the autobiographical "Astoria" (the New York city where he was born), that brings him to the Meadow Brook Music Festival with the Count Basie Orchestra at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Describing his considerations in finding a song, Bennett says, "One of the games I play with singing songs, well, there are a couple of games, but one is to try and find new songs that hopefully will enter into the American songbook permanently.

"BUT, THEN if there's a terrific standard that I like — I'm in competition with myself — but what I try to do is to try to get the definitive version of a song, of one of those great standards that isn't overdone. But I really try to nail it down

"And one of the fun games is to try and have an orchestration, or an individual musician get properly involved with me and come up with something that just nails that song down to the ground. So they say, 'That's the way to do that song.' In other words, to try and make it my own, just that one tune."

He credits his music director of 25 years, pianist Ralph Sharon, with hepling him. Bennett says, "He and I really have this game of just being tunesmiths. I mean, where we just look for new songs by new composers, or undiscovered songs by great composers the public doesn't know about, and try and make them famous. And we've had good luck. We've had, maybe, 37 songs like 'The_ Good Life,' 'Who Can I Turn To?'

'The Shadow of Your Smile' "We try to find songs that other singers start doing. It's nice to find new songs, and then you hear all the other singers doing them."

Each song must relate to his heart. He must feel he is able to make it credible. "That's the only way I do it." For example, he never tires of "I Left My Heart in San

HE SAYS, "It's become my favorite song because it's given me the most wonderful music adventure, I've been able to sing for five presidents and for five Command Performances. I'm invited all over the world to sing. It's given me a handle where I'm able to sing without compromising (because it's a quality song). I can just sing the best songs audience. You know, I notice that stincts, it just becomes right."

and his hits include "The Good Life," "Who Can I Turn To," "The Shadow of Your Smite"

Tony Bennett has starred on 91 record albums and, of course, "Left My Heart in San Francis-more than anyone else with Judy Garland. It was such a phenomenon to watch her when she was at Carnegie Hall. What I really saw, very clearly, more than any other performer, is that she loved the audience so much that that's how much she got back. And I said that, that's what it's all about."

He tries to sing from his heart to reach that of a listener's. "It's all about that. That's how I paint. It's like Joe Williams, the blues singer, told me, 'It's not that you want to sing. It's that you have to sing."

Facing his 64th birthday the next day, he says, "I really feel like I'm starting out. I'm always learning. And it feels great."

Bennett's prerequisite of quality is automatically dictated by a self-respect learned as a child from his mother's example. A seamstress, she raised three children alone after his father, an Italian grocer, died when he was 9. A peaceful, hard-working woman, she refused to work on a cheap dress. He quotes her as saying, "You give me a good dress, and I'll work on it."

HE ALSO LEARNED a lot about respect for his music as an altar boyin church.

From his music he has learned "to have the courage not to compromise. You should be strong enough as an artist, no matter what the punishment may be (he laughs) just to do what you have to do. Whatever it is. Even if it's considered a failure to everyone else. If you know in your "If a singer doesn't love a song, he heart what's right, then, just do it. can't convey that kind of love to the And usually when you follow your in-

The courage of his convictions comes from "just rolling through life (meeting) masters like Duke Ellington, who taught me to eliminate all negatives and stay away from stress and be positive, and, then, I use that as a study. There are people along the way that have given me some very wonderful lessons, and they're not only masters. They're just good human beings."

Composer Richard Rodgers told Bennett, "The audience is the critic. They're the ones. If they like it, that's it." His first vocal teacher, Abe Katz, former principal trumpet of the Metropolitian Opera, taught him his imperceptible breath control and continues assisting him in preserving his voice.

In painting as well as in music he believes, "You're supposed to communicate. That's why my champions are the givers like Louis Armstrong, Jimmy Durante, Sammy Davis Jr. They went on stage and gave a hundred percent. These are my heroes. Ella Fitzgerald, she can't wait to get to the next job. I love people like BENNETT THINKS to be given this gift from God means one should not "sin against it." Like Fitzgerald, who he says is, "the most humble person in the world," he loves to sing

He says, "It's a matter of just getting that lesson of not sinning against whatever humble gift that you've been given. I learned the hard way. We all made mistakes, but I've learned, don't abuse it. Be professional. I admire that in other people,

OVER 150 CRAFTSMEN

so I decided I'd get disciplined about

'If you're disciplined, you know your center. You know what you have to do. You show up. You make it happen as many times as you can, and good things come from hard work."

His painting helps his peace of mind. It's "very meditative." He says,"I'm almost three quarters finished with the painting (I'm doing) of the Grand Canal in Venice. And I'm looking at it right now as I'm talking - in the reflection in the mirror. I'm very happy with the way it's coming out. It's very good because, while it looks classical, there's a beautiful, modern motorboat going by a gondola (he laughs), so it makes it a mod-. ern painting."

Originally he studied to be a graphic artist before turning to music. He says, "Teachers today say, 'Come up with a new idea.' They don't say, 'Study life, study techniques. It's a hard job. Study the masters."-

INSPIRATION FOR his paintings comes from music as well as literary works. He loves to read authors like Thomas Mann and Dostoyevsky. "I just think it's great to have a conversation, when you're reading, with a master. You're going to really learn something."

While his life's perspective is a combination of an Italian acceptance of life and that of a dreamer, he's definitely part of the American experience.

him as the modern day Howard Beal, the crazed newsman in "Network," Downey will join the panel of inquisitors on the new NBC game show "To Tell the Truth." There the "kinder and gentler" Downey will seek out the truth affably while reprising his confrontational style on "The Morton Dwney Jr. Show."

NOW AFTER A peripatetic year of acting, lecturing and generally decrying the injustices that prompt his anger, Downey looks forward to pounding the podium with the hellbent evangelical style that galvanized his popularity and earned him a unique niche in broadcast history.

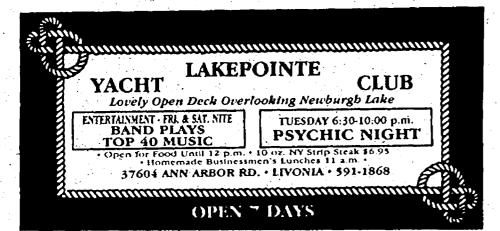

Downey credits parental censorship during his childhood as the seed of his anger,

"I remember when I was a kid and I tried to speak out and was countered with a firm, 'Keep still," he said. "I was held under a bushel long enough.

"When I spit out my silver spoon, I decided I would speak out on the issues. I felt I should speak out not to change people's minds — as much as to give them another thought. Maybe the seed would grow."

Children's theater is important to Marquis

Performances of the musical "Jack and the Beanstalk" will be presented at 11:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 11, 18 and 25, and at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday-Friday, Aug. 14-31, at the Marquis Theatre in Northville. Tickets at $4 for children, $5 for adults are available at the door or by calling the theater at 349-8110.

By Mary Jane Doerr special writer

The stage of the Marquis Theatre in Northville was filled with a set complete enough for an afternoon rehearsal.

Down the aisles came about 50 thumb-clicking, toe-dancing children keeping time with a jazzy piano piece. If anyone talked, the others were quick to quiet them. These children were very serious about their two-week acting course.

Children's theater is Inge Zayti's thing, and director Arthur Rizzo says she is fabulous at it.

This summer, 200 children have been enrolled by their parents in the Marquis Theatre's Day Camp for Children, in downtown Northville. Each two-week session has two classes of 25 children each, all ranging in age from 7 to 14.

TOGETHER THEY receive instruction in singing, dancing, acting, improvisation, mime, makeup, stage movement and just about everything that is involved with a community theatrical production. On the final Friday, the children perform a show for their parents. "This has been a big success ever since we started it three summers ago," said Zayti, owner of the Marquis Theatre. Zayti came to the United States in 1966 from her native Badharburg in Germany. She received her experience in children's theater in Africa working for the German peace corps.

As summer progresses each week brings new experiences. Spring wildflowers, like trillium and trout lily, are gone for the year. But they have been replaced by hawkweed and oxeye daisy in the meadows, which will be replaced by knapweed and Queen Anne's lace.

Some flowers leave no trace of their appearance after they have finished setting seed. While other flowers leave behind a hardened "woody" stem and remnant flower parts to mark their location for next season.

driet stems by late summer. It is easy to recognize the location of bergamot because the stems stand 4-5 feet tall. They prefer to grow in dry open clearings.

ON TOP OF this towering stem is a half-sphere shaped flower head made of small tubes. Looking down into the flower head itself can be an interesting experience in shape and patterns. But if you take a flower head and crush it between your fingers and then smell it, you will be rewarded with a delightful minty fragrance.

It seems like this entire plant is a multitude of sensory experiences. If you gently grasp the stem and rotate your finger you will note

These sensations can be experienced even before the plant blooms. In late summer the spray of tubular layender colored flowers eminating from a half sphere base are very attractive to people and insects. Butterflies are common pollinators of bergamot because their long probosis can reach the

Architect/adventurer built his career brick by brick

By C. L. Rugenstein special writer

Until Indiana Jones and "Raiders of the Lost Ark" came along, archaeologists were percieved as quiet scholarly types who liked to poke around old ruins.

Now, with the publication of his autobiography, "From An Israeli Pioneer to An American Architect" (1989) Louis Redstone of Livonia may revolutionize our perception of architects. Few, if indeed any, architects have followed as adventurous or dangerous a path into the profession as Redstone seems to have.

Take, for example, the time in Israel (1920) when he was on a volunteer arms smuggling mission to fledgling Jewish settlements and was stopped by a British patrol.

Raids and searches of the settlements were frequent.

"Possession of arms was punishable by long prison terms (under British rule of then-Palestine) and heavy fines," Redstone said. Sometimes resisters were "shot on the spot."

He was given a water flask and told it contained a pistol.

That evening as the band of five amateur smugglers were rounding home, they heard the "heavy thump of a British patrol" followed immediately by the patrol itself.

THE CAPTAIN POINTED his flashlight directly at Redstone, who said he instinctively reached for the

According to Redstone the captain replied, "You fool, I dont't want your damned water, I want to know the time." His light was aimed at Redstone's wristwatch.

In his book Redstone recounts his 87-year odyssey (he was born in 1903) from Grodno, Poland, to Detroit via Even leaving Poland turned out to be a dangerous venture at the time

The economy was bad, work was scarce. For Jewish people the situation was even bleaker. "There was no hope for a higher education. Jewish people in particular were not being accepted (at universities) anywhere," he said. He succumbed to the lure of recruiters to go and rebuild Israel. Since the Russians and Polish were fighting over Poland, Redstone literally caught the last train out.

Photograph taken in 1922 shows the construction of the governor's residence in Palestine. Louis Redstone was one of the stone masons.

Every train after his was stopped.

As a young pioneer in Israel he helped to replant trees (on Mount Carmel for one). But before he could do that, the workers had to build their own barracks. And Redstone's interest in architecture was born.

"It was my first experience at physical work, and the process of creating a shelter with my own hands was exciting," he said.

. He apprenticed with an Arab stonecutter and learned how to make

He said he didn't realize it at the time, but he was learning the business by the hands-on theory practiced in the bauhauses (guild halls) of Germany, "An architect has to go through all the different work to get the feel of the material before he becomes an architect."

Adventure and danger were walting for him when he immigrated to Detroit in 1923 to join his brother hour, "One of the highest rates in the construction industry," he said.

"Bricklayers and plasterers were the highest paid . . . in construction at that time." Ironically he noted, "In Poland, bricklaying was (considered) the lowest profession."

While working as a bricklayer on the construction of another downtown monument, the Buhl Building, Redstone had another brush with

In those days builders didn't want to go to the expense of putting up scaffolding for bricklayers. The bricklayers had to walk out on planks fastened in the windows to finish mortaring (called "pointing") the brick around the windows. He was out on a plank when it shifted suddenly throwing him backward. But he said, "Some force threw me forward onto the plank," and he managed to get safely back to the building. The incident put him in bed with a wrenched back for a week, he philosophy as did the late sculptor Samuel Cashwan.

Redstone and Cashwan celebrated 50 years of creative partnership three years ago. A small model of Cashwan's suspended sculpture in the lobby of Manufactuer's Bank headquarters sets on a table in Redstone's office.

"We met one summer vacation I was passing by Arts and Crafts (now the Center for Creative Studies) where he had his studio. I stopped in and said I wanted to study sculpture, he said "come on in," Redstone said.

Redstone collaborated on several of his books on architecture and sculpture installations throughout the world with Ruth Redstone, his wife of 51 years.

Though retired as president of the

Woodcarving

An art beyond decoy ducks By Linda Ann Chomin

More than 100 exhibitors lined the aisles with carousel horses, rabbits, dogs, a stork and ducks at the 16th annual Livonia Wood Carving Show, Aug. 4-5. Art pieces from 200 varieties of wood were displayed at the Eddle Edgar Arena in

A common misconception about wood carving is that the subject used by woodcarvers is always

If "you say wood carving, people think ducks," said Mary Finn, a wood-carving instructor at Craftsman's Cove in Livonia. "Woodcarving is fun." sculpting. Woodcarving is an art." Albert Charles of Farmington Hills, a former tool maker for Burroughs Corp., agreed that it is an art, creating something from nothing. "You start out with a big hunk of wood. Youstart carving, then it starts taking form. Carve a little longer and it starts coming to life," Charles Along with the tools, books and wood that are needed to produce the woodcarvings, a contagious air of fun and festivity filled the arena. "We have an awful lot of fun," said Bob Brooks, president of the Livenia Wood Carvers Club. "We share. We believe in sharing. We would like to get the community interested in

The show was started by the Livonia Wood Carvers Club, and for the last 16 years has been sponsored by the Livonia (Department of) Parks and Recreation," Brooks added.

Toll, who has been carving for nearly 12 years said, "It's a stress reliever. It's very relaxing,

Many "not for sale" signs hung in the arena and exhibitors agreed that people don't carve wood for money. Woodcarvers carve wood because it relieves stress, it is fun and for the camaraderie - the friendship of fellow carvers. They carve wood to be together, to sit and talk, Brooks said.

Bill Lovell and wife, Florence, of Southfield were popular for selling wood starters.

"My starters are ducks for beginners to find out if they like to carve," Lovell said. He has carved ducks about the size of a 6-week-old kitten from over 200 different varieties of wood. Red cedar, walnut, cherry wood, and bass wood ducks with glass eyes stare at the browser from behind Lovell's enclosed glass display case.

"TO START CARVING, all you need is an interest in woodcarving, and the gumption to do it," said instructor Finn:

"Buy a starting knife for $6 to $8, some basswood and a strop to keep your knife sharp, so you don't have to put it on a stone," Finn said.

"To start carving, we use basswood. Basswood comes from the linden tree. We start out with basswood because it holds the shape well. It's soft and easy to work with."

The Livonia Wood Carvers Club had an endangered species table set up at the end of one aisle. The table was filled with carvings of several endangered species, and literature from the U.S. Department of the Interior, Fish and Wildlife Service. The brochures gave information on pesticide use and endangered species and what you can do to stop the extinction of wildlife.

Jeff Zibble of Garden City sat carving a northern blackcap chickadee. Zibble, who said his grandfather inspired him, has been carving for one year.

For a vacation, visit homes of great writers

IF YOU'RE looking for a vacation that's a bit out of the ordinary this year, why not visit some spots that are of great historical significance?

No, I'm not talking about stone monuments, museums, cemeteries or battlefields. I'm suggesting you take a leisurely look at some of the places where great American writers once lived and from which they produced some of their most memorable work.

You might begin in the Northeast, which is a real hotspot in that regard. All of the following (just a partial list of places you could visit there) are open to the public.

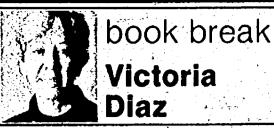

Near Pittsfield, Mass. is Herman Melville's Arrowhead Farm, where he took up residence in 1850, and and completed "Moby Dick."

The simple white frame house, deep in the heart of the Berkshires, looks out on Mt. Greylock, which some observers have noted resembles a ghostly whale surfacing in the misty distance. A quotation from Melville's essay, "I and My Chimney," scratched out probably by the author himself, is still visible across the sooty, kitchen fireplace.

LOUISA MAY Alcott wrote "Little Women" and several other of her popular books from the family home, Orchard House, in Concord, Mass. The two-story clapboard home, with its small, mullioned windows, cramped rooms and uneven floors, overlooks Lexington Road. It was an aging house even when the Alcotts moved in in 1858. Alcott wrote in her drafty, upstairs bedroom while her father, Bronson Alcott, entertained such colleagues as Hawthorne, Thorcau and Emerson in his downstairs study just inside the front door.

In Cambridge, you'll find the splendid mansion Henry Wadsworth Longfellow called home for the last 40 years of his life. This silk-and-velvet splendor is not the condition, of course, in which most contemporary poets live, and it was certainly not how most poets lived in Longfellow's time, either.

But the author of such American classics as "Evangeline" and "The Courtship of Miles Standish" happened to have "married well," as they say. Here, in his red-draped study that looks out on the Charles River, he composed "The Song of Hiawatha," "The Wreck of the Hesperus," "The Children's Hour," and most of the other works that made him one of the most popular poets of the 19th century. Longfellow himself planted several of the linden trees at the back of the house.

DON'T MISS Mark Twain's fabulous, fanciful, riverboat-like mansion in Hartford, Conn. The 19-room home was once called "one of the oddest looking buildings in the state" by the Hartford Daily Times.

But America's great humorist, who often marched to a different drum, adored the unusual house, which he helped design. Here, both Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn were created in his large study, a room that was eventually relinquished to his children for a schoolroom. (As long as you're in the neighborhood, . be sure to visit the Harriet Beecher Stowe house. The author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was Twain's next-door neighbor. Though she'd already written her most famous work when she came to Hartford, the Victorian mansion reflects Stowe's strong personality and her less-recognized talent, painting.)

The cramped, unpretentious cottage where Edgar Allan Poe composed the immortal lines of "Annabel Lee," "The Bells" and "Ulalume" is in the Bronx, N.Y. Poe moved to the tiny house around 1846 from mid-town New York, in hopes that often was. its higher ground would prove to be a healthier location for his young wife, suffering from tuberculosis. The move was in vain, however, and she died there within the year. Poe wrote in an attic room reached by a narrow stairway just outside her bedroom door.

WHAT WASHINGTON Irving liked to call his "little Dutch cottage" hugs the banks of the Hudson River at Tarrytown, N.Y., and the wisteria vine he planted when he lived there still flourishes at the front door. He had already created his notable short stories, "Rip Van Winkle," "The Spectre Bridegroom" and "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" when he took up residence in 1835 at the house he called Sunnyside. There, he spent much of his time working on the five-volume biography of his namesake, George Washington. The desk at which he worked - a gift from his publisher, G.P. Putnam remains in his study, near the tiny alcove in which he slept when Sunny-

Popular western novelist Zane Grey was born in Ohio (Zanesville), and lived much of his life not in the western United States, but in a rambling, country home near Lackawaxen, Penn.

Surrounded by large evergreens, the white frame home of the dentistwho-became-an-author is multi-storied, and filled with fascinating memorabilia, including old sombreros Zane collected, western and Indian artifacts, copies of Grey's 86 books, magazines in which his fiction and non-fiction appeared, plaques from his dental office, movie stills from "Riders of the Purple Sage," correspondence, old pens, pencils, yellow foolscap.

Grey's bare-floored office, with its cluttered desktop and rather wornlooking Morris chair (from which he wrote his first western novel, "Last of the Plainsmen") looks as if he'd just stepped outside for a breath of fresh, Delaware Valley air.

"Book Break" is a regular feaside was overrun with guests, as it ture in Creative Living.

Museum shows offer striking contrasts

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

It takes either nerve or stupidity to write about the Helen Frankenthaler and the Tyree Guyton exhibits at Detroit Institute of Arts in the same article.

But, I have never shied away from stupid, and one could find relationships (granted more shirttail than siclose) between the two beyond being in the same section of the museum, one floor apart. Frankenthaler grew up in New York City, youngest of three daughters of New York Supreme Court Justice Alfred and Martha Frankenthaler. She graduated from Bennington College, traveled in Europe, took graduate courses in Columbia, quickly became friends with many leading artists of the '50s when she settled in a studio in New York City.

She paints what she sees in a most ingenious and courageous style and what she has always seen are magnificent lands and seas, bays, sailboats and fine art. She does this with such abandon and with such a love of color that the viewer vicariously experiences a thrilling sense of freedom.

She moved beyond classical restrictions with grace and consummate skill, leading her peers into a new world of techniques that involved painting on the floor, according to Jackson Pollack, and pouring paint directly on the canvas, so the rich color saturates it heavily and after continued applications and ma-nipulations takes on an rich glow.

Frankenthaler's paintings are hard to leave, they have inner resources that surface gradually like a friend slowly revealing himself over long hours of conversation. And in that vein, "Salome," with its many veils of color, is the prime example.

GUYTON, TOO, paints what he sees around him, but instead of broad vistas of green and wide open skies, his is city streets, abandoned houses and piles of trash and debris.

His exhibit, part of OMAP, Ongoing Michigan Artists Program, is an Installation and display of the kind of thing Guyton has done in the Detroit neighborhood around Heidelberg street where he grew up. He has received international recognition for the project, which continues to be done in collaboration with his wife, Karen, and his grandfather, Sam Mackey.

Guyton's assemblages of found objects, from douche bags and bicycles, tires and toilet seats, doors and dolls, are dense, highly energetic and

He is a highly artful arranger in the DIA show, the bedsprings over the American flag illustrate his keen eye. One painting," "Wheel of Fortune," a thick, dark green ground, with an actual bicycle tire on it (partly painted blue) and half of a checkerboard at the bottom has a strange, unlikely relationship to Frankenthaler's "On the Cusp." a floor above.

OF COURSE, her dark green ground is elegantly saturated canvas, her circle is edged in gold and the dash of pinkish at the bottom looks like an exotic bird.

This isn't to make light of either - Guyton thinks like an artist just as Frankenthaler does and he uses what he has available to create.

In an excellent video about him made by Harvey Ovshinsky, Guyton says, "I realize that ugly exists, but I try to look beyond that . . . I truly feel an artist looks at problems and tries to solve them.'

Certainly Guyton's art began as a way to solving problems. As noble as turning trash into beauty was his idea of introducing the neighborhood children to the fun and excitement of art, to let them express themselves, to let them see that a a can of old paint is a can of magic.

As shown in the film, Guyton has his share of dissenters — people who wish he's just pack it up and get out, but he can't do that now, he's become too famous.

Frankenthaler and Guyton inhabit opposite ends of the spectrum. Yet, both have made substantial contributions to art, each has a vision. Frankenthaler is known worldwide, Guyton's getting there. And they're only a floor apart.

These shows continue through Aug. 19. Guyton's is free of charge, there's a fee for the Frankenthaler - seems logical, doesn't it?

A dumpster on the front lawn is the status symbol of the 190s. It's what the Rolex and the BMW were to the

That's the latest from Home Magazine's merchandising editor, JoAnne Pier, speaking at a seminar co-sponsored by Home and Schoolcraft College's Continuing Education Service in Livonia.

The theme of the program, at the Michigan Design Center in Troy, was "Redesign, Redecorate, Remodel" - the buzzwords of the '90s, according to Pier.

That's where the dumpster comes in. Pler didn't say whether dedicated trendles were abandoning last year's Rolexes and BMWs in the dumpster, but there seems to be room in there for almost everything else.

Traditionalists among us may think of redecorating in terms of new wallpaper or paint, but not those folks at

"Redecorating and remodeling are synergistic," said Joseph Reggiero, editor-in-chief of the California-edited publication. "Redecorating now means tearing down a wall to enlarge an area or to add a bath or potting corner. The ranch home of the 50s is being rethought and redesigned.

"Housing is prohibitively expensive; people just can't afford to move. A cheaper, more efficient use of money is to turn the attached garage into a master bedroom suite or to install custom-designed windows and French doors to open up a room to the outdoors."

MANY CALIFORNIA homes, influenced by indigenous Spanish architecture, are open to the environment, hacienda-style. Master baths open to inner courtyards, kitchens and dining rooms to herb gardens. Often, shutters replace curtains, resulting in a less cluttered, country effect."

Ruggiero predicts that, in the '90s, gardening will replace gourmet cooking. Why would anyone want to watch a souffle rise when they could watch a cabbage grow is his argument.

That's how we got the potting corner. After all, you can't very well throw your garden tools in the garage you've just turned it into a master bedroom suite. When you were a gourmet cook you displayed your copper Tablescapes and mantelscapes are an ideal place to show things you particularly like. This look could be changed using different acces-pots. Now that gardening is your thing, it's logical to display your garden tools.

So just take a little space near the back door and strew the area with clay pots, pruning shears, a few seed packets and some nice black dirt. (But no pesticides; just leave them under the bed.)

It's part of the California rustica look, said Ruggiero, who moved to California from New York a year and a half ago. "Which is adapted from European country. Gardens are European, especially vest pocket gardens in the front yard.

"First impressions are very important. A combination of perennials - old fashioned flowers, such as hollyhocks, roses and daisies — along with pots filled with sories in an asymmetrical arrangement for a pleasant change of pace.

herbs that smell luscious as you come up the front walk, creates a much warmer, more welcoming, entrance than closely clipped grass and boxy foundation plant-

Together, Ruggiero and Pier elaborated on important new decorating elements of the '90s.

TO CREATE a personal style, mix textures and finishes - real or simulated natural elements, such as stone, metal, natural grain woods, stoneware and tile. Fabrics are nubby and textural. Mix is what's important here. Minimalist is out.

American country is giving way to Eurocountry — a cohesive look, putting together a mix of styles, traditional blended with country. The days of one style furniture or one furniture finish are ended. No more relentlessly "Mediterranean" rooms. Mix fabric patterns plaid, floral, ribbons.

Pier said natural whites are the bridge between formal and casual. Shades and textures determine the mood. For example, an antique lace runner on a scrubbed pine table modifies the countryness of the table and adds a note of elegance. Queen Anne's lace in a silver teapot, completes the formal/country tableau.

"Grey was the neutral of the '80s. It was everywhere. The neutrals of the '90s are earth tones - taupe, brown, mocha. Jewel and spice tones are hot right now.

But if you like pastels, as I do, stay with them. It's your home. The main thing is to suit yourself. Live with whatever you're most comfortable with."

TABLESCAPES AND mantelscapes are an important way of displaying both your personal interests and your good taste. A dish of vanilla creams and a pot of ivy just won't do it any more.

Pier cites an understandably anonymous authority who decrees that it's the kiss of death not to change the accessories in your tablescape once a week, a stunning blow if you expect a merit badge for dusting that often.

Tablescapes combine a melange of objects such as books, flowers (in non-traditional containers, such as a mug or a pitcher), a pretty plate, a piece of Majolica ware. All combine to achieve a French country look.

"Put a picture on the table and lean it against the wall," says Pier. "It's a very casual look, like you forgot to hang it."

Harmony is vital to a successful mantelscape. Unlike the charmingly disarrayed tablescape, the mantelpiece is a disciplined still life.

For an asymmetrical look, place everything at one side of the mantel, leaving the rest of the mantel bare. Such an arrangement might inleude an "important" piece of sculpture with Art Deco candlesticks or a "classical" stoneware vase filled with flowers and one or two pictures layered against the wall.

Or, if your life is spent juggling career and family and housekeeping, you might just like to repair to the sinkscape and do the dishes.

Midland competition invites local artists

Entry applications for the 32nd Annual Mid-Michigan Competition of the Midland Art Council are now available.

The deadline for slide entries (painting, drawing, sculpture, photography, jewelry, glass, ceramics, fiber, metal, wood and new forms) is Sept. 14, 1990. Works selected in preliminary slide jury will be accepted Oct. 19 and 20 and final jury will be held Oct. 21.

The exhibition dates are Nov.3-29 at the Midland Center for the Arts in Midland.

The juror for the exhibition is Neal Benezra, curator of Twentieth Century Painting and Sculpture at the Art Institute of Chicago.

There will be $2,250 in prizes awarded throughout the competition including the Midland Art Council $1,000 Best of Show Award; three $250 Awards of Merit; four $100 Honorable Mentions; a $50 Award for Crafts; and a $50 Viewer's Choice

The council offices, galleries and studios are located at the Midland Center for the Arts, 1801 W. St. Andrews, Midland. Gallery hours are from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. daily. For more information, call (517)631-

Art alumni preserve Cranbrook splendor in show

By Jackie Powell special writer

Princeton University's Robert Judson Clark has said, "The influence of Cranbrook is still with us, and is still being renewed."

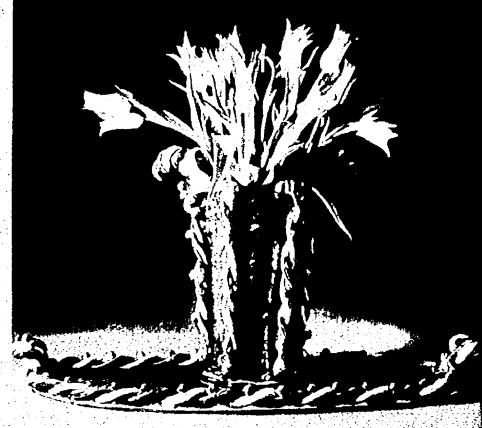

The Cranbrook Academy of Art Alumni Show at Sybaris Gallery of Royal Oak through Aug. 25 lends credence to his statement. Art in the form of stoneware, screenprint on cotton, steel and bronze, woven construction, red earthenware, pewter . . . excite the sensibilities.

Jamle L. Goode has taken up the banner of "preserving our planet Earth." Her piece entitled "Mother Earth" was done in response to the outrage she felt after reading an article in the Smithsonian on the pollution of our waters. "I used my husband's Mig welder for this whole piece, working on it 10 hours a day and on the weekends."

Another of her works, a crucible with a cold forged and welded steel hand extending out of the top, holds an acorn. "I feel this is a hopeful plece. A great deal of my work has this kind of paradox."

The hand is used as a metaphor for the planet Earth and its fragile containment of resources. Her "Rusted Hand" exemplifies the result of the tons of waste being it will go away.

Goode said, "We live with the fallacy that everything around us is ours for the taking, to do with as we please. It would please me to leave this world in a state that can support to his pewter-textured tree trunk and casually lifted off the top. "It's a water pitcher, a teapot," he redumped into the earth, air and water marked. "I'm a traditionalist at and how we cross our fingers hoping heart even though my images are different. I have a strong feeling toward utilitarian vessels."

He said he grew up near wooded areas and was hooked on the beauty of trees. "One of the points of art is supplying enough information to build an image without doing it all

THE THREAD in Randal Crawford's weaving is hand dyed over and over until it attains the exact shade he is searching for. His work is very slow, often taking many months to

"I don't mind slow," he said. "I keep my spontaneity even when it takes months to finish."

All his pieces relate to the concept of journey. "A stripe records the dicurs, the line has been affected, the line marking the direction and measuring space. How far can I go before a line is no longer a line? The different ways I can discover this line. What is the most interesting journey within the line?"

In his weaving, he records information and draws a path with threads. "I plot shapes within the given space and find new relationships as I continue. The cloth holds the memory of the experience."

"Frida's Quilt" came about as a result of a trip to Mexico, which JoAnn Giordano made with fellowstudents from Cranbrook. She uses screen prints to express her personal and social concerns.

"Social commentary and humor have been recurring themes in my work. The object, which seems pleasantly decorative at first glance, reveals another layer of meaning upon closer inspection." Her "Frida's Quilt" depicts the life of Frida Kahlo the painter, who was Diego Rivera's wife.

Her "Tallsman For Frida" uses Mexican bingo cards as a border for one side of the print. "I used these cards because they're universal sym-

Others represented in this show are Doreen Mastandrea and Julie Terestman.

Antique bottle club presents show, sale

Old American glass? It's just glass, right? Wrong. It's American history retold in a handmade mixture of sand and heat that's beautiful and useful.

The 17th annual Metro Detroit Antique Bottle Club's show and sale will be Sunday, Aug. 12 at the Livonia Holiday Inn, I-275 and Six Mile. Early American glass, in a range of shapes, colors and sizes, goes back to early colonial days and continues through our presidents and the intro-duction of the railroads (all shown on flasks), the patent medicine era (with its cures and tonics), the home canning period (with 4,000 different kinds of fruit jars) and the many early breweries and dairies (with pottery beer bottles and tin-topped milk

"Collecting early American glass" is a hobby that gives an appreciation for history and geography, affords a network of friends from coast to coast and produces shelves filled with interest," said Richard Roosen, club member.

Harmonize bright colors of stationary

Q. Some of my friends have been criticizing me for the bright color combinations I use for my personal stationery. They say it isn't appropriate for a woman my age. I'm a senior citizen who loves to combine stationery in bright pinks with blue envelopes. Sometimes, I combine red with orange, or orange with yellow. To me, these colors look cheerful. Are my friends right in objecting to my use of bright colors?

Your friends are quite wrong in objecting to your use of bright colors. They're probably caught up in the stereotype of how an older person is supposed to behave. Almost anything lively can be considered out of place. Instead of giving up bright colors, you might try harmonizing them in more sophisticated ways and also take into account the matter of

Bright colors, with the exception of yellow, actually are quite dark in value. To have adequate legibility, you must have sufficient contrast between the writ-

Set in Paris, the Haines piece lays a trap for those hunting revelations of the much married Hemingway's personal life. Like Ernest, Haines loves his wife and yet innocently falls for her friend, Dorothy. Philip self-pitingly misses his hearth when he divorces his spouse and must wait months for his lover to return from America.

Like the artist-hero of "Snows of Kilimanjaro," Philip regards himself as a "ruined writer" whose life depends on the mailboats and a note from Dorothy. Although neither of them knows it, the love affair ends with an exchange of angry correspondence.

The humor and vitality of Hemingway sing in those pages in which Philip buys new pajamas at the Carnival of Venice for a prospective conjugal night and then buys a pistol to protect a rented Citroen in which to surprise Dorothy.

THE IRONIC note on which the story closes underscores Philip's self-absorption which has left him with tragic realities to face.

He goes to see his wife when he is crazed from loneliness to find that she is about to marry someone else. When he hunts his returning lover on the ship at Havre, the bad air and the iron smell of the liner underscore, human inflexibility and failure.

Those who want to read these two stories may join the Ernest Hemingway Society and receive the Hemingway Review and newsletter as part of the $18 annual dues. Livonia Symphony puts dulcet tones 'under the stars'

The Livonia Symphony Orchestra will present a "Music Under the Stars" concert 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 16 at the Livonia Civic Center, Five Mile and Farmington Road.

The free concert will be moved indoors in case of rain to the Madonna College Activities Building, Levan and Schoolcraft.

Conductor Francesco DiBlasi has invited Cynthia Lark, mezzo soprano from Livonia, to appear as guest artist. She will perform excerpts from "The King and I" by Rodgers and Hammerstein and an aria from "The Barber of Seville" by Rossini.

A candidate for the master of music degree in vocal performance at the University of Connecticut, Lark has sung roles in Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" with the Opera Theatre of Connecticut and in Puccini's 'Suor Angelica" at the Chautauqua Institution as well as scenes with the University of Connecticut Opera

The Michigan State graduate also has appeared with the Cleveland Orchestra and the Opera Company of Greater Lansing. While a student at the Cleveland Institute of Music, she was a member of the Robert Page Singers and was featured soloist with the group.

IN TODAY'S JOB MARKET EMPLOYERS WANT MORE THAN THE SAME OLD B.S.

Every year, over a million new college graduates put on their new blue suits and go job hunting.

All of them have degrees. Most of them have hearty handshakes. But very few have what employers want most — practical work experience.

That's why there's a nationwide program called Cooperative Education. It allows students to alternate studies at the college of their choice with paid, practical work experience in the career of

So Co-op Education students graduate with more than a degree. They have practical knowledge. And a competitive advantage in today's crowded job market. And that sure beats trying to B.S. your way into a job.

Co-op Education

You earn a future when you earn a degree.

WRITEI AND REAP.

Writing a classified ad that gets results—whether it be for real estate, employment, the personals, transportation, or merchandise— is easy if you follow the guidelines below.

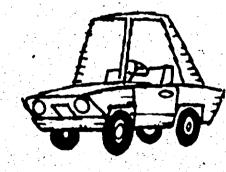

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ac by using appreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or wsw (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a distributed thinds cot the

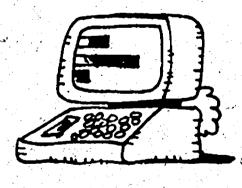

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back-after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.
