Barns to keep fighting for school equity

By Tedd Schneider staff writer

Justine Barns is going back to Lansing with a mission — an equitable solution to the state's public school finance quandary.

'We've got to come up with something. There are too many kids getting the short end of the stick," Barns said Tuesday after her easy victory in re-election to the state House of Representatives over Republican challenger Kenneth Raupp.

In unofficial results compiled by the Westland city clerk's office, Barns received 10,712 votes, or nearly 66 percent. Raupp had 5,553 votes, for slightly more than 34 percent.

Democrat Barns said a House proposal on school finance reform has been "stuck in the Senate" since last

The incumbent said it would make little difference to her who occupied the governor's office.

Police were called to Schweitzer, on Trèadwell north of Glenwood, Monday morning. Officers confiscated a loaded .25-caliber Raven automatic pistol and a replica gun, along with seven rounds of shotgun ammunition and 14 pistol bullets.

AN 11-YEAR-OLD student apparently took the guns and ammunition from home. He and a schoolmate were reported playing with them in a lunchroom where other students were present.

Helping is a family tradition for newly named First Citizen

By Leonard Poger editor

Sharon Scott's selection as First Citizen of Westland caps a 20-year period of community service work. Scott, 51, was nominated for her work on the Wayne-Westland board of education, St. John Episcopal Church woman's auxiliary, Friends of the Westland Historical Museum, Westland Cultural Society, Westland Summer Festival, Wayne-Westland Substance Abuse Task Force, Drug Abuse Resistance Committee and Michigan State Fire Board.

The award winner will be publicly honored Tuesday at a Westland Chamber of Commerce membership luncheon, open to the public.

The First Citizen has honed her community service skills in the past 20 years, after observing her parents both involved in volunteer work when she was growing up.

"I come from a long line of community service volunteers," she said of her father, active as a Boy Scout leader, and her mother, member of the Wayne Business and Professional Women's Club.

"I became more involved after my husband became a city employee," she said of Ted, a long-time Westland firefighter who now works for the city.

Scott's nominator said that Scott has "shared herself with so many and at a price that some others might not be willing to do to achieve their goals."

The nominator said the winner has lived the motto of "we cannot always build the future for our youth, but we can build our youth for the future," referring to her involvement in school organizations and the school district.

"She has had a major impact on the community, and it is time that she be publicly recognized as having as much as she has by some of the people she has served."

HER BACKGROUND includes serving with the Annapolis Hospital Auxiliary for 10 years, managing the St. John Church vacation Bible school for many years and continuing to serve in the church's altar guild.

During the nation's bicentennial in 1976, Scott and her husband, Ted, co-chaired the annual Westland Summer Festival and helped build it into a "viable organization with her many innovations and long hard hours to enhance the image of the community," her nominator sald.

She served on the city's 20th anniversary committee in 1986 and is now on the 25th anniversary committee planning a yearlong series of activities throughout 1991.

As a school board member, Scott has served as its president, secretary, and treasurer as well as its current vice president. She has also worked on the board's general education, foundation for the improvement of instruction, employee services, finance, operations, and student services committees.

"SHARON IS an extraordinary person, touching the lives of those around her, helping those who need help, volunteering time and time again for others in an outstanding example for others to follow and get involved themselves in serving others," her nominator added.

In addition to a framed award to be presented by the Westland Observer and the chamber, Scott will also be cited by state, county, and city officials.

Other First Citizen nominees were Norman Krazel, active in school and PTA groups, gun safety, programs, and Boy Scouting; Rick Foy, a coach in the Westland Junior Varsity Football program; Jacqueline Vincenti, Adolescent Recovery Center director for the program based in Whittier Center, and Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek, Westland's director of senior resources and Wayne-Westland school board member.

Michigan law prohibits municipal governments from attaching certain conditions when rezoning property.

Attorney Paul Vincent, representing Asmar and Yono, said the developers already had commitments for leasing 80 percent of the stores in the proposed center.

He said tenants would include Perry Drugs, Blockbuster Video, and hardware and auto supply stores which he declined to identify.

"The building does stand there. Everybody is of the opinion that it is an eyesore and something should be done about it," Vincent said. "That's all we're asking."

The Cooper School building has been scarred by a series of floods, fires and other vandalism incidents since it was vacated in 1972, six years after a new school was built nearby.

The site has also seen at least four Voting with Mehl in favor of the unsuccessful redevelopment proposals in the last 15 years. Failed projects have included a Kroger super-Johnson and council president Tom market, condominiums and one calling for senior citizens housing with an adjacent retail center.

VINCENT SAID Monday the developers have taken steps to secure the vacant school building.

The conditions were ordered Oct. 25 by Wayne County Circuit Judge Kathleen MacDonald, who declared the property a nulsance and gave Asmar and Yono 90 days to abate it.

Those conditions included: • Turn on the electricity

• Replace missing manhole covers

• Hire a security service to watch the building.

The city, which considers the vacant school dangerous and a neighborhood blight, has filed suit against the developers, who purchased the school on a land contract in 1988. Previous owners Russell B. Armstrong and the Livonia Public Schools district are co-defendants.

MacDonald also ruled that the property owners must post a $100,000 bond to assure demolition of the building.

Raupp said he expected to garner support from Westland residents voting for Engler.

The Republican gubernatorial nominee did far better than most election watchers in the heavily Democratic city had predicted. Engler's 8,663 votes in Westland fell just 1,208 short of Blanchard's total.

But many Engler supporters apparently split their tickets to vote overwhelmingly for incumbent U.S. Sen. Carl Levin and U.S. Rep. William Ford. (See related story).

Overall turnout in Westland of just over 39 percent was "good for us," said Diane Rohraff, city clerk. According to unofficial returns, 19,359 of 49,390 registered voters cast ballots Tuesday.

Rohraff said the typical turnout for gubernatorial elections ranges from 30-35 percent. Workers at several precincts reported heavy turnouts. AT PRECINCT 8 (Patchin School), 702 people had voted by 7:30 p.m., up from a total of about 200 in the Aug. 7 primary, said precinct captain N. Jean Nichols.

"We're seeing a lot of new voters.

The commercials were developed at the beginning of the year before he knew who his Republican opponent would be.

Because of that, there were no "attack ads." Instead, the commercials were "warm and fluffly, talking about my record on education, the environment, my sponsorship of the plant closing bill and the fairness of the new federal tax increases."

Ford said he was pleased at that campaign strategy because voters in recent weeks were turned off by negative political TV commercials.

On the other side of that issue, Ford was upset by a TV commercial which claimed that Congress members voted themselves a pay raise and tax cut.

Veteran Smith beats challenger in judicial race

Experience won out handily over youth Tuesday as Westland voters returned 18th District Judge Thomas G. Smith for a record fifth term. Smith, 58, easily defeated his 31year-old challenger Sam C.

Ayyash. "There was no reason to vote for the other person," the veteran judge said of his 82-18 percent victory in the non-partisan race. In unofficial results reported by the city clerk's office late Tuesday, Smith received 9,798 votes to 2,090 for Ayyash.

"He (Ayyash) didn't mount much of a campaign.

"I think the votes he did get are people who just dislike me or people who were negative to all incumbents. Over the years you tend to make a few enemies," Smith

During the campaign Smith said he supported Mayor Robert Thomas' decision to end plea-bargain agreements for ordinance violations, as long as the city was willing to stick by the policy.

THE TOUGHER stand on ordinance enforcement was criticized by McKnight in remarks from the bench last month.

Smith emphasized his accomplishments while on the bench, including the use of volunteers as probation officers, assignment to a work program in lieu of jail time for non-violent offenders and longer court hours.

The reactivated Westland Business Professional Women's Club was formally launched with a charter presentation and luncheon Saturday, attended by BPW officers from throughout Michigan.

There are 35 charter members in the chapter, which is still open to men and women who support the group's aims. The group meets 6 p.m. on the first Tuesday of each month at the Big Boy Restaurant on Wayne Road, south of Hunter.

Louise Cole of Rockford, Michigan federation BPW president, presided over the installation of the charter members in the ceremony held in Hawthorne Gardens banquet, on Merriman north of Warren Road.

Heading the Westland chapter as charter officers are Joyce Wheeler, president; Margaret Harlow, first vice president; Barbara Barr, second vice president; Carol Skamiera, secretary, and Doris Smith, treasurer.

The group was reactivated earlier this year out of a need to respond to women's issues, its officers said.

Wheeler, executive director of the Westland Chamber of Commerce, said she became aware of the newlyformed Suburban West Business and Professional Women's Club, based in Livonia.

Franklin High School's marching band carned a rating of "excellent" in the Midwest Regionals Saturday at Toledo University.

The Marching Patriots band was entered in the novice classification for the first time and earned a score of 72.05. Division AA rating is classified as excellent with scores ranging from 60 to 80 points and superior from 80 to 100.

Engler backers never doubted upset victory

By Wayne Poal staff writer

Did he or didn't he? That was the question Michigan voters asked themselves throughout the long election night.

But at John Engler's election party in Lansing, the celebration began as soon as returns started arriving. By 11 p.m., the Mount Pleasant Republican was up on the podium already declaring victory in the lightest Michigan governor's race in a generation.

While wire service and television networks would wait nearly 12 hours to confirm Engler's upset win over Gov. James Blanchard, there was little doubt among Engler's support-

Livonia resident Laura Reyes Kopack said she had a good feeling about Engler's underdog campaign after making election-day telephone

"The people I talked to seemed very receptive, I think a lot of people wanted incumbents out," she said. Engler's coattails didn't extend to Kopack, who lost her bid to become a Wayne State University trustee. but they did extend to GOP candidates in other unviersity board rac-

"HE RAN a beautiful campaign," said GOP national committeewoman Ronna Rommey of Bloomfield Hills. "I think the negative tone of the governor's campaign definitely hurt him."

Like their Democratic counterparts, GOP leaders were searching for reasons for Engler's surprising showing against pre-election polls that showed him as much as 14 points behind.

While Oakland County's outspoken L. Brooks Patterson plugged Engler as a tax fighter in campaign spots, the former county prosecutor said taxes alone weren't the reason for Engler's victory.

"Taxes are a big issue but it was a combination of factors," Patterson said. "We got out our vote and they didn't."

Low voter turnout in Detroit, traditionally a Democratic stronghold, was seen by many election watchers as a key reason for Blanchard's de-

Others could point to apparent GOP gubernatorial wins in Illinois and Ohio as a regional trend. Still others could point to the rocky parting of the ways between Blanchard and longtime running mate Martha Griffiths. That, however, mattered little to most celebrants.

"This is fun," said Angela Hazel, a student at Michgian Christian College, Rochester, as she corralled three multi-colored Engler campaign balloons.

WHILE NARROW, Engler's victory appeared clearcut. Engler carried 54 percent of the vote in Oakland County and 36 percent of a smallerthan-expected Wayne County vote.

Engler said he would make property taxes and education the two priorities in what he promised would be a long list of initiatives.

While promising a comprehensive audit, Engler also apparently gave his blessing to the Michigan Education Trust. The college-financing plan was one of Blanchard's key achievements.

"It's a contractural obligation," Engler sald. "There's no risk to contract holders, but there's some risk in it's underfunded status."

Engler gave no such assurance for the future of the Michgian Strategic fund, a Blanchard-backed loan program for business owners, saying he would merely "allow that to unfold". Also in doubt, at least for now, is the future of Michigan abortion law. While widely seen as pro-life, Engler did not make abortion one of his major election issues. Tim Richard contributed to this

A STATE OF THE PARTY OF THE PAR

COME TO QUALITY, VALUE & SERVICE

HE WAYNE-WESTLAND board of education missed an excellent chance last week to solve credibility and financial problems that are plaguing the school district.

It named Michael Reddy, a Westland fire department battalion chief, to fill a vacancy on the board created when trustee Kenneth Barnhill resigned, effective Oct. 23.

We have no quibble with Reddy as an individual or a resident concerned with the quality of education in the district. We have a big problem with the way the board abused a well-thought-out process of interviewing candidates for board vacancies.

We had the distinct impression that some of the other seven candidates for the opening interviewed last week by the school board didn't get a fair or objective hearing. Some who seemed to do well were rated low by the board while others who didn't do well apparently rated higher than we expected.

The board has used the public interview process in filling three vacancies in the past four years. The process is a good one for screening candidates, finding out their views on education and local school issues, as well as for seeing how well the candidates think on their feet and communicate with others.

The process has served the board and community well with the appointments of Terri Relghard Johnson in 1986 and Leonard Posey nearly a year ago.

WHILE THE process gives the community the impression that the candidates will be considered mainly on their merits, some board members obviously injected personal or political biases last week during the public interviews.

A glaring example of that was the grilling of Linda Pratt, a longtime PTA leader and worker in the group's clothing bank, who was unfairly treated. One board member critically questioned Pratt's husband's writing letters to local newspaproperty tax increase.

That type of question is clearly way off base and should not have been considered, let alone asked. Mrs. Pratt is the board candidate, not her

Pratt also took some heat for her independent stand on last June's tax increase proposal. Pratt stated publicly that she felt the single proposal should have been split into one for a renewal and a separate one for an increase, a position not supported by the balance of the board.

Another major problem we have in Reddy's appointment is that the seven-member school board, facing major financial problems and negotiations with eight employees' unions, now has a third civil servant.

The other two are Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek, director of the Westland's senior resources department, and Andrew Spisak, recently named a Westland court officer who served before as a Westland police officer and mayoral assistant.

WHILE CIVIL servants perform important public services to the community, we feel that three on a seven-member policy-making board is too many.

The reasons are clear.

Municipal or court employees are members of unions which usually get their pay raises and improvements in pensions and health benefits without having to worry about how to raise the money to pay for the added cost.

In many cases in the community, unions receive pay raises which exceed the rate of inflation and not directly tied to the employer's ability to pay.

It seems that unionized civil servants lose touch with reality and the world around them which has neighbors either being laid off or facing a loss of job or pay raise because of a slump-

The bottom line is that the board has an excellent process for filling vacancies. But they should pers last spring following public rejection of a stick to it to maintain what ever credibility it has

Fires not just Detroit concern

TUCH OF SUBURBIA sat back and gloated — privately if not to " gloated — privately if not to the neighbors — last week as Detroit again burned on Devil's Night.

Media reports revealed a setback in that city's continuing battle with Halloween arson, as fires for the three-day period increased from 223 in 1989 to 281, according to figures compiled by Mayor Coleman Young's office.

Thank God I live north of Eight Mile or west of Telegraph, many suburbanites undoubtedly thought. Here, harmless Halloween pranks involve soap and eggs, not torches and gasoline.

Besides, many suburbanites no doubt asked, who cares what Detroiters do to their city?

Not only do people live in the suburbs, but as western Wayne and Oakland counties have expanded in the last decade it's increasingly likely that they work and play there as well. The city's viability is irrelevant. It just doesn't matter any more, some would say.

SORRY, BUT we disagree.

Like it or not, suburban life is still tied inextricably to what goes on in Detroit.

And all suburban residents — from Redford Township to Rochester Hills — have a stake in Detroit's survival and the city's reputation. This is true, even for those who boast they haven't ventured south of Eight Mile or east of Telegraph since the 1967 riot.

THE AUTO industry, which still dominates this region's economy, is slowly taking leave of the city.

There are positive aspects of that shift — for instance, Livonia's Ford and GM plants contribute heavily to the tax base that finances the Livonia Public Schools.

But how soon will it be before the positive aspects are outweighed by negatives like unforgiving urban sprawl? We can already see examples of this in Oakland County, where formerly rural roads are overburdened with a constant stream

The expanding service economy also depends on a healthy, viable center city. Without Detroit's major conventions, how long would suburban hotels, restaurants and even catering companies survive? Then there's Detroit's rich cultural history, unmatched in any suburb. It's still a magnetic draw for many suburbanites. Just check the season subscription lists for the Detroit Symphony

THE THOUSANDS of volunteers — almost exclusively Detroiters — who mobilized to combat Devil's Night arson in the city deserve a hearty thank you from all residents of metropolor newly renovated Fox Theatre.

Next year we'd like to see more active participation and support from suburban residents with the hope that eventually Devil's Night patrolling won't be necessary at all.

Cloudy logic Bill could limit 'sunshine law'

should move slowly and cautiously in reforming the disciplining of health care professionals. Rep. David Gubow, D-Huntington Woods, is sponsor of the lead bill in the reform package.

The first draft would have created major clouds over our "sunshine laws" - the Open Meetings Act and Freedom of Information Act. Two bills were almed at shutting down the public's right to know about charges, deals ("settlement conferences") and hearings. We would have wound up with a Great Lakes version of the 14th Century star chamber proceedings.

"ICHIGAN'S lame duck Legislature crippling bills were even introduced in a state that has prided itself on open government.

Even the amended bills leave something to be desired. The "sunshine laws" were deliberately written so that ordinary citizens and grass roots officials could read them without a lawyer's mumbo-jumbo interpretation.

Now the bills contain references to "section 16231 of the Public Health Code . . . being section 33.16231 of the Michigan Compiled Laws." The ordinary citizen would need a bunch of law books to look up his or her rights to know what government is doing.

This session of the Legislature/has been spattered with a multitude of attempts to ob-The bills today are due to be amended for the scure the "sunshine laws." Enough bad news! Lawmakers need to think about ways to open up

Standard skills test would help students

ALL OUR international competitors - Japan, Britain, Germany, France, the Scandinavian countries - examine all their children for what they have learned at around age 16. We do not.

All our international competitors use this assessment as an important device to help their children decide whether to go on to higher education or enter the world of work. We do

All our international competitors treat this assessment as an independent measurement of the skill school graduate knows, our diplomas mean nothing as a measurement of

Is there a relationship between the fact that our international competitors have school systems that regularly out-perform ours and their use of independent examinations for all their kids? I think so.

THAT IS WHY I have been urging our leaders in Michigan to adopt such an assessment for our kids.

We already know what employers want in basic skills from people who enter the work place. The statewide Commission on Employability Skills, chaired by Ford vice president Pete Pestillo, has been working for four years to define the necessary skills - literacy, numeracy, problem solving, social — to enter the work force.

We also know it is possible to construct an assessment of these skills that works less like the Scholastic Aptitude Test (multiple guess; scored by computer) and more like a merit badge (practical demonstration of skills; portfolios built over

The Michigan Certificate of Opportunity provides an elegant way to help jump-start the process of school reform by applying pressure to the demand side.

If we put these factors together, levels achieved by their children. As we have all that's required to create anybody who has hired a recent high a Michigan Certificate of Opportunity — a certificate that validates a young person's skills levels and functions as a passport to the world of

LOTS OF PEOPLE have asked me questions about this idea. Now that the election is over, it's a good time to answer some of them.

What's the incentive for kids to take the assessment? We're heading into a recession; jobs will be scarce. Consider-an-employer-interviewing two kids, one with the certificate and one without. Whom is the employer to hire? Kids will catch on real fast. Can an assessment instrument be developed that's fair to all? (Remember, the SAT is widely regarded as biased in favor of white males.) In theory, yes.

But even if it takes a while to get the perfect assessment, some independent assessment of skills levels is better than none at all. We can fix problems with the assessment instrument. Absent any instrument, we have no idea what skills our kids actually derive from school.

Won't such an examination merely invite teachers to "teach to the Philip test"? I sure hope so. If teachers were motivated to teach every kid in school the basic skills required to enter the work force, our economy would be a lot better off than it is.

HOW DOES THIS help school reform? Simple. Faced with employers who demand independently validated skills and with parents and children who expect performance to get their certificates, schools will have to improve their performance.

Increasingly, I believe that the process of reforming our K-12 system is the most vital task we face as a nation. There's a lot of work going on in this area, within individual schools, in schools of education and in state departments of education. All of this work is taking place on the supply side of education.

What is needed now is pressure from the demand side — from those who hire school teachers and from parents and children. The Michigan Certificate of Opportunity provides an elegant way to help jump-start the process of school reform by applying pressure to the demand side.

You listening, Governor?

Board action criticized

To the editor:

As a taxpayer in the Wayne-Westland school district, I am becoming less confident in our school board and its decisions.

After attending the meeting in which the board interviewed and made a decision to fill the vacancy previously held by Ken Barnhill, I left having the feeling the decision had been made prior to the public interviews. Why does it appear the school board and the city of Westland ties are so intermingled? I am sure there are many qualified residents and potential board of education members without ties to the

Linda Pratt was questioned by a board member about actions of her husband. Mr. Pratt was not seeking the position. This action and its unprofessionalism and lack of respect of Mrs. Pratt was uncalled for. The president's inability to prevent this line of questioning demonstrated to me a lack of leadership.

Since school board members are elected by the taxpayers, they should represent all the citizens of the Wayne-Westland district. The people deserve to have a board that represents the citizens who elected them and not a "team player." The only team that should be represented is a "Wayne-Westland residents' team."

As a concerned parent, taxpayer and voter, I feel as though the only way to resolve the district's problems is to work within the systems and not re-elect those members who do not represent the citizens.

Afghan pups belong to her

To the editor:

This letter is to inform you that a picture of my "unidentified" Afghan hound pupples appeared in your newspaper (Street Scene, Monday, Oct. 1) which was brought to my attention by a buyer of one of my pupples. A remark was made that she will love this picture, knowing she is a happy owner of an Afghan hound. The owner responded that not only did she love this picture of the pupples, but that it was her puppy. Likewise, when I was informed, stated

"those are my pupples."
Naturally, I was delighted that they made the paper, however, disappointed that I was not notified because I would have been one of the first people at the newsstand. Unfortunately it was too late to obtain a paper without pursuit. I tracked down the article successfully with the cooperation of your staff, and was able to purchase same. Upon reading the article, I noticed that other pictures of different breeds with their owners' names noted. The more I thought about these adorable "unidentified" pupples, I just had to proceed to question whether there was a mistake in omitting the owner's name and contacted the phone number listed on the last page. I was informed that it must have been neglect on the part of the newspaper because all names were supplied. I doubted this comment due to the fact that I was never notified that they would be placed in a paper. Further, I notified the editorial section and spoke to a pleasant employee, Sue Mason, which revealed that the picture of these pupples were received unidentified and remained so.

The Afghan hound pupples are not orphans, but belong to the happy and proud owner/breeder: Martina Linton, member of the Greater Detroit Afghan Hound Club.

ZIP code change money issue?

cent judicial candidates night in West Bloomfield.

Fifty showed up in Troy last week to hear National Abortion Rights Action League president Kate Michelman in from Washington D.C. to urge Republicans to vote for Gov. Blanchard because he is pro-choice.

But 200 turned out Monday night to protest what hits them right where they live - a post office plan to change their ZIP code and mailing address from Birmingham where they don't live to Beverly Hills where they do.

Oh no!

Abandoning the Birmingham mailing address would result in reduced property values is the argument given by those opposed to adopting a Beverly Hills postal identity. Realtors seconded that.

LET'S SEE. They live in Beverly Hills. They pay taxes in Beverly Hills — actually to Southfield Township. Their children will continue to attend the Birmingham Public Schools. But an artificial mailing address makes their home or business worth more? Postal representatives were shocked that the residents would not want a separate Beverly Hills identity. They said Beverly Hills is the first municipality to undergo a ZIP code change that opposes its own Neighboring Bingham Farms, which also will be separated out from under the Birmingham coverall, is looking forward to living its own life.

And postal authorities have heard no complaints from the parts of Bloomfield Township, which now also will be called what they are -

"I paid a premium to get a house with a Birmingham address. I don't care what the ZIP is - I do care is more than twice Birmingham's what the city is," said Beverly resident Bob Simpson.

Way in the minority was Bob Cassey: "Are you willing to get annexed to Birmingham and willing to pay Birmingham taxes? I wouldn't. I'm proud to be a resident of Beverly Hills. It would be a relief to me to tell people what we really are." IT WOULD BE a relief to the rest of the metro area, as well.

We address an invitation to our friend in Beverly Hills, and it is returned because we logically mailed it to Beverly Hills.

A reporter does a story on an interesting business. He looks up the address in the Yellow Pages. It says Birmingham. It turns out that's inaccurate - it's in Bloomfield Town-

So because of their Birmingham mailing identification, Beverly Hills, Bloomfield Township and Bingham Farms rarely get their due as the distinctive communities they are. And people who live there rarely are correctly linked to where they live. Bloomfield Township's population 23,000 residents and its median house price of $206,000 is more than $50,000 more.

Bingham Farms is a tiny (1,650) village - exclusive we could say with a median house price of $270,000 compared to Birmingham's $152,000.

Beverly Hills, also a village, has about half Birmingham's population, a median house price of $146,000 about $6,000 less — and lower taxes.

It boasts Groves High School, the main campus of Detroit Country Day, the Beverly Hills Grill which to its credit never pretended to be the Birmingham Grill and has done just fine thank you.

And come to think of it - Realtors take note — out-of-staters, whose associations are not so parochial, might prefer to buy in a Beverly Hills as in California, rather than a Birmingham, as in Alabama.

Big tax hike is on the way

I SMELL A gigantic state tax hike coming in two to 10 years.

It won't be like Gov. Blanchard's 1983 penny ante 38-percent temporary increase in the personal income

It will be a Kentucky-style increase - income tax, sales tax, use tax, single business tax and whatever else moves or breathes.

THE REASONS are many:

• The out-bf-formula school districts have had their categorical aid cut by $72 million annually. They are sulng the state, arguing the 1978 Headlee amendment to the constitution says state government must pay local units for state-mandated services. Price: $72 million.

• Many outstate cities and counties are suing for equal treatment in court funding. In the late '70s, the state agreed to pick up the local costs of circuit, probate and district courts, starting with Detroit and Wayne County. The Wayne County suburbs and the other 82 counties never got theirs. Last estimated price tag: $175 million to $225 mil-

• Poorer school districts want to sue the state for underfunding the school aid formula. Some districts can spend just $2,500 per pupil while others have $8,000-plus.

Right now, they have little chance because the Michigan Constitution doesn't require equal educational opportunity. But some lawmakers, such as Rep. Bill Keith of Garden City and Kirk Profit of Ypsilanti, want it, and Jim Blanchard endorsed it in the second debate.

If such a bland and fair-sounding amendment were to be passed, Michigan would be inviting a Kentuckystyle lawsuit for equal financing. I've written about this before. The "fairness" price tag: $1 billion or

• Oakland County already has sued the state for health money under the Headlee amendment, which requires state government to put fect of prisoners' suits on state and 41.6 percent of its budget into aid to county budgets. local units. Lansing accomplished it by taking state programs and labeling them "local." The case is going to the Supreme Court. I'll wager Oakland wins.

• Many other suits are out there - Medicald payments to hospitals, mental health and goodness-knowswhat-else.

• And then we have Headlee II the proposal heading for the 1992 ballot in which we have an opportunity to vote ourselves a 20-percent property tax cut and tell the state to reimburse all the counties, cities, villages, townships, school districts, community colleges and special authorities. Depending on whom you're listening to, our yes votes will cost the state treasury $1 billion to $1.5

Maybe Headlee II won't pass the Michigan Education Association will build up a big war chest to fight it. But let's assume, for the sake of argument, it does.

 Some pessimistic economists say a recession will cut state revenues. Floating around Lansing are predictions of shortfalls of $300 million to $900 million. The 1970-83 recession required hundreds of millions of dollars in spending cuts plus that 38-percent income tax increase.

LET'S PUT IT in perspective. The current state general fund budget is $7.6 billion.

Admittedly, some of the cost numbers I've quoted are hazy, but many are firm. We're looking at revenue shortfalls of several billion, maybe one-third to one-half of the current

Moreover, it will take 10 years to settle some of the lawsuits. That's why I'm using the time frame of two

Only a dreamer will say "cut the fat." And that's why I smell a massive state tax increase. It already has happened in other states. And in Michigan we've already seen the ef-

Children can't start reading too early

Q: We just had our first baby. We know it is important to read to your child. However, we don't know how soon we should start reading to the baby. What do you suggest?

A: As soon as possible! At birth the baby howls - its first communication. Therefore, prior to reading, you should continually communicate in a gentle voice with your baby at its

You see, recent research found that by the 10th week babies can not only recognize their own mother's voice but can literally sense or smell their own mother's presence in the

Jim Trelease stated in his "Read-Aloud (To Your Child) Handbook' that children are programmed from birth with an immediate need to communicate.

Studies constantly find that if early language interchanges are not fostered between six months and two years, intellectual curiosity will most likely not be present at age

What do I mean? Babies first use one word i.e. "Bottle" for "I want my bottle", or "Up" for "Mom or dad, please pick me up." The parental response should be something like, "Oh, you want you bottle" or "Let me pick you up" . . . a full sentence to nurture language develop-

When should you start reading to your child? As soon as the child can sit in your lap. Why?

The emotional bonding that is nurtured between the parent and the child is as critical to the process as teaching the child a love of reading. This belief, although a bit Freudian, is one I personally believe.

As a specific example, have the child bring their favorite teddy bear to you and just happen to have a book on "bears" available. An immediate interest will be generated. Have the child point to the bear in the story. Say, "bear."

Let the child turn the pages, learning left to right as an initial experience for the left to right eye movement needed for successful readers.

Be aware of the child's body language. When the child pushes the book away from you or bangs on it, go to something else. Please don't force the child to be a Shakespearlan scholar by age four. The whole concept is to make reading enjoyable, a natural phase of life.

As the child grows, solicit thoughts. Have the child articulate parts of a story they have become familiar with. And remember, some very active children initially can't sit still for long periods of time. They are into motor skill development and it may take this type of child longer to "settle in" to reading.

But all children will settle into reading if the "reading aloud to your child" experience is perceived as a warm, safe and natural part of life. It won't be long before the child will bring the books to you.

Reading aloud to your child is one of the most important gifts you can give the child. Please let it be natural . . . don't be the drill sergeant parent who wants Johnny reading by the second grade in kindergarten.

I can assure you those children who learned to love reading, who can pick out the main character, sequences activities and draw conclusions will catch up and past robot reader children trained to regurgitate information.

How to become a donor

- 1. Give 2 tablespoons of blood and consent to be entered on the registry. (Must be 18-55 and in good health.)
- 2. Your blood is "HLA-Typed."
- 3. Your HLA-Type goes in the computer. The lab results are stored in a main computer which is searched internationally.
- 4. A preliminary match is determind.
- 5. Additional blood tests are requested. Additional blood samples will be taken to determine if you are a precise match for a specific patient in need.
- 6. The "Miracle Match" is identified. Special counselors will give you detailed information.
- 7. You make the decision to donate. After being fully informed, you make the decision.

Marrow collection procedure

Chances are low that a National Marrow Donor Program volunteer will be a match for a patient with a fatal blood disease. If a match occurs and the volunteer agrees to be a donor, this is the procedure:

- A living gift of life Marrow is taken from the backside of the hip bone (5-10% of a donor's marrow needed; marrow replenishes itself within a few weeks.)
- A surgical procedure Under anesthesia, marrow is extracted from the donor using a needle and syringe.

Repeated extractions are pooled - If the recipient is a baby, a "coffee cup" of marrow is needed; an adult male may need as much as a "coffee pot."

Patient receives the gift of a stranger - The donor's marrow is flown to the patient the same day and given as a blood transfusion.

Spinning and weaving attracts colorful crowd

By Sue Mason staff writer

Janet Laney is quick to admit she's no expert when it comes to weaving. Her edges aren't quite right, a fact pointed out to her by Robert Owen of Livonia.

A hobby weaver and member of the Plymouth-based Weavers Club, Owen spotted the imperfections while watching Laney work a 60-year-old floor loom at Jacobson's Laurel Park Place store recently.

You notice two distinct things when talking to Lancy - the continual click-click of the loom and her soft Southern accent. A resident of Houston, Texas, Laney hardly misses a beat as she works on the loom, the prototype for floor looms used today by The Three Weavers Shop, a Houston-based textile firm known for its blankets, throws and woven material.

Laney was in town as part of the firm's introduction of its newest throw pattern, Prism, an adaptation of its original throw, Joseph's coat. Like the latter, the Prism throw features 100 colors.

"I'm surprised at the number of people who are fairly knowledgeable about weaving," Laney said. "And I've had three people stop by who are building or just built

The Three Weavers has 25 hand looms and employees more than 50 people. Its weavers are predominantly Vietnamese or Mexican immigrants who practice throwing the shuttle from side to side for three to six months. before they're given thread for their looms, Lancy said.

"I THINK the hardest part is keeping the shuttle inside the warp and not throwing it out," Laney said. "The second is the spacing."

The Three Weavers Shop was established in 1928 when three textile workers bought a hand loom and some wool and began to experiment. The idea was to come up with better weaving techniques in order to produce the perfect woolen baby blanket.

Two years later, William Spence bought out his two partners, who had moved from the Houston area, and with one loom and one employee, he began marketing products from The Three Weavers Shop. A few months later, a second loom was designed, built and put into use for making throws.

Today, The Three Weavers Shop uses not only wool, but Irish linen, mohair, silk and pure supima cotton for

It is that second loom, a 400-pound version of the actual 800-pound production looms used by The Three Weavers, that Laney, a marketing manager for the firm, uses in her demonstrations. Trained by the firm's weavers Laney spends a portion of her time traveling around the country, putting on demonstrations. The loom takes 14 man-hours to set up.

"IT'S VERY meticulous work," she said. "It takes the weavers about an hour to make a throw and that's just weaving time."

Although her college degree is in textile engineering, Laney admits that she had never seen a hand loom until she joined The Three Weavers. Her specially was po-

Dear L.D.

Your handwriting tells me I am working with a cerebral person. Your keen mind is capable of analysis and precision. You consciously process all new information, investigating the reasons, causes and relationships in almost everything.

Although capable of quick thinking when necessary, you usually take time to analyze with your discriminating and decisive manner. You have definite opinions and do not simply accept what you are told nor do you believe all you hear.

Seemingly, you have an ever-present need to prove yourself by high achievement. Self-determination, perseverance and the stimulation of mental challenges are pervasive.

Lorene Green

You are self-sufficient with a direct approach to almost everything. You are time aware and probably live by the old cliche, "Time is money." And you are not inclined to waste either one.

You dislike authority figures and may often find yourself in conflict with them. I think women who are in positions of authority would present the highest degree of resentment for EMOTIONAL EXPERIENCES affect you deeply. And while they may not stay with you forever, it does take time for them to wear off.

You need your time and space. You are not unhappy spending time alone. A good book and relaxing music would add to the enjoyment. Still, I think there are times when you feel lonely.

Although you come on strong with others to make that first good impression, social interaction is handled cautiously. You are inclined to make conscious selections as to how and with whom you choose to spend your time. Those people who share similar interests would probably be the ones selected.

An optimistic outlook is much in evidence in this handwriting. Closer observation, however, tells me your upbeat feelings are often being consciously controlled, for whatever

A brisk walk or a stimulating game of tennis should be a healthy outlet for what you sometimes feel, but keep concealed most of the time.

Incidentally, handwriting does not reveal the type of career in which the writer is working. Intuitively, I feel you are practicing law. Am I correct? With your probing mind and the other assets I mentioned, you could probably be successful wherever your interests take you.

IN REGARDS to your son's handwriting, I want to tell you that teenagers' handwriting can fluctuate rapidly. For accuracy, I prefer to examine samples written at various times. However, I can offer some brief comments.

His thinking process is logical and he assimilates new information methodically and carefully. He appears to have an aptitude for mechanical work and can probably work well with his hands. He also is good at details, but may have some tendency to make mountains out of molehills.

He is conscientious and takes pride in the things he does. He is aware of the proper behavior for his social set and will conform to what is expected of him. This handwriting suggests he is a good student.

Socially, he is somewhat inhibited. This is not too unusual for a young man of 15.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. According to FSA statistics, the American family is becoming increasingly diverse. No one type of family can be said to be typical and the traditional nuclear family of a husband, wife and one or more children makes up only one in four U.S. households. And the latter is losing ground to childless couples, single-parent families, step-families, unmarried couples and people living alone.

"We are helping families deal with the problems that come up when both husband and wife are working," said Craig McLean, supervisor of Family Service Livonia District." We have also had an incredible increase in single parent families, especially those headed by women.'

Since 1961, the Livonia FS office marital, individual and group counseling to western Wayne County residents. McLean joined that staff in 1973 after earning a master's degree from Wayne State University. He has seen many changes in family counseling during his 17year career.

"We are treating more people for drug and alcohol abuse, which I think is due to more awareness of that problem," he said.

lymers and she worked for Amoco and Playtex before signing on with The Three Weavers.

A marketing manager, Laney has been to New York, North Carolina. Michigan and Georgia in the past month. While such travel has its drawl_cks, she said she finds it "fun talking to people."

As the shuttle slides effortlessly between the warp, a voice from behinds her calls out: "It had to be your great-grandmother who taught you that." Laney smiles.

Across the room, Barbara Cutler shares Laney's enthusiasm for talking to people. But unlike Laney, her machine makes a quiet whirring sound. Cutler is a spinner, a member of the Spinners Flock, a Ann Arborbased club for spinning enthusiasts.

"It's kind of a tie with the past, I mean what if something happened and we had to do things the old way," she said while spinning mohair into single ply yarn. "The other part is because I love fibers, I love how they feel. I can't describe how it feels to have the thread slide through your hands. It just feels her garage, collecting their fur to spin into yarn.

She acquired her spinning wheel in 1985. The kit cost her $50 and two rabbits. She's really only been spinning for about two years, since she moved to Plymouth and discovered the Spinners Flock.

Like weaving, there's a knack to spinning - coordinating the hands and feet. The feet press down on the treadle, which turns the wheel and in turn the bobbin that puts the twist in the roving, creating e yarn. It wasn't difficult for Cutler to learn, since the motion is similar to operating a treadle sewing machine which was her introduction to machine sewing.

Like weaving, spinning is labor intensive. After gathering the wool or fur, it must be washed, dyed and carded The varn is skeined after spinning and plying, then washed to set the twist, remove excess dye and control shrinking.

THE YEARN then can be used for weaving or needlework. For Cutler, it has meant coming up with the gift that keeps on giving for her busband.

"For Father's Day, I gave him the roving; for his birthday, I gave him the yarn; and for Christmas, I'll give him the sweater," she said. "The rov-ing would cost $70. As spun yarn, it's worth $150 and as a good handknit, about $300."

Barb Ullman of Chelsea, like Cutler, got into spinning because of her children who became interested in weaving through the Ann Arbor YMCA. Uliman grew up in Toronto and didn't know anything about spinning until then. Now, she raises sheep and goats and is involved in the process through to the finished

A shearer shears her animals, but she does the washing and dying. Ullman collects about 100 pounds of wool each season, too much to card by hand, so she travels to Frankenmuth to have it done. She also spins the wool and uses it for knitted or woven projects.

"I guess I got into to it in a sense because It's so relaxing," Ullman said of her spinning. "I really like working with color and I find it interesting trying to produce different colors and see how they combine with each other."

A POUND OF roving produces a pound of spun yarn and, if you're into knitting, it takes about 11/2-2 pounds of yarn for a sweater, Ullman said.

For people interested in spinning, the Spinners Flock meets the second Saturday of the month at Chelsea High School. Members also will be selling their handspun yarns and wool products and novelties at a Handspinners' Holiday Fair 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 24, at the Matthaei Botanical Gardens in Ann Arbor. St. John's choir to perform in National Cathedral

By Julie Brown ataif writer

> HERE'S REASON for rejoicing at St. John's Episcopal Church.

Members of the Parish Choir at the Plymouth church are looking forward to performing Sunday, April 28, at the Washington National Cathedral.

"I think they're really excited," Elaine Grover, director of music, said of choir members. "They're very excited about the prospect of singing there.

"We were overjoyed. I think it will be truly awesome, to participate in that service," said Grover, who is also head of the music department at Marygrove College in Detroit.

Worshipers at St. John's Episcopal are celebrating their church's 30th anniversary, so the 1991 trip to Washington seems particularly appropriate. Choir members requested an invitation to sing in Washington at the national Episcopal cathedral.

The entire choir, including 30 adults, will make the trip. They plan THEY SENT a tape, and weren't to fly to Washington that Friday evening next spring and will do some touring and rehearsing Saturday. After their 25-minute performance and the Sunday worship service, choir the Washington National Cathedral.

"Rev. Shank and the entire congregation are very pleased and supportive of the choir in this venture." she said, referring to the Rev. Robert Shank Jr., rector at the church. "We view this as a pilgrimage. The choir is very enthusiastic, working very hard.

Some familiar faces will be in the audience next spring at the cathe-

"A number of St. John's parishioners also plan to make a trip to Washington to see the choir." Some of the worshipers have been to the cathedral on earlier vacation or business trips.

CHOIR MEMBERS plan to present their program locally next spring, to help them prepare for their Washington performance, she said. In addition, a fund-raising concert will be held 4 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 20, at the church, 574 S. Sheldon in Plymouth.

The concert will feature Grover, who will play the organ, trumpeter Carolyn Bybee and soprano Caroline Rogers. Proceeds will be used to cover trip expenses for the choir.

Those at the Washington National Cathedral are also celebrating a of the cathedral, chartered by the work.

counted. The ads have disappeared from TV and radio. Some of the yard signs have come down.

Some races reached new depths of incivility. In 1988 I did not think that any political campaign would ever match the presidential campaign for sheer meanness and ignoble behavior, but evidently the pattern was set and we have seen a goodly number of first-rate imitators.

The challenge to the community is how to rise out of this incivility and

The 1990 political campaign is affirms the nobility of human life over. The votes have been cast and and builds on its sense of justice, dig-directed another form of address.

That is the integrity the community will now have to exercise. What L. Brooks Patterson chose to ignore, the community will now have to take up. The community will have to give fashion an order for public life that but surely integrity would then have the exact kind of attention to integrity and responsibility in its assessment of taxes that L. Brooks Patterson so summarily rejected.

THE PUBLIC order can access this integrity and responsibility on its own. The formation of civility of the politicians that disregarded even the most basic forms of social intercourse, and their support personnel, such as L. Brooks Patterson, is something that can be done by the community itself.

Even the Bible cannot claim a revealed ethics with authoritative answers to be imposed on a wayward and uncivil world.

The irony of the rampant incivility so visible in this year's political campaigning is that the very goal of political activity is the building of community, and the effect of incivil-that will correct the irresponsibility ity is the destruction of community. The very goal sought by political activity was, in 1990, the one thing nearly destroyed.

> Now that the campaign is over, the community can return to what it must do to bring health and civility to public life. Honesty, integrity, cooperation, kindness, courtesy, responsibility et al. are fundamental features of a decent and fulfilling community life. The 1990 political campaign was not a good year for community. The community has the opportunity and the resources to correct that.

Carolina country is a Blue Ridge surprise

By Bottio Cannon special writer

NCE UPON a time, Cherokee Indians called this place Sahkanaga, the Great Blue Hills of God, or Oconee, Water Eyes of the Hills. Today, people call it "Upcountry" in South Carolina, or "Land of the Sky" in North Carolina.

But whatever you call these mountains now they are a place of waterfalls, white water rivers, lakes, parks and scenes of breathtaking mountain scenery.

Tucked into the side of the Blue Ridge Mountains, which rise to more than 6,600 feet at Mount Mitchell in North Carolina, this westernmost part of the Carolinas is famous for its low humidity and moderate climate.

In every corner of natural beauty, you'll also find local arts and crafts; the largest private home in North America; small, unusual museums; historic houses and towns; and bustling

DAY ONE: Begin your visit by flying into the Greenville/Spartanburg Regional Airport. Rent a car. Pick a spot to use as your base of operations. Take day trips out from your hotel or stay in a new place every night.

But there are reminders of Clemson's historic beginnings here, too. Stop at the University Visitor's Center for tour information.

Cincinnati has chili love affair

By Micky Jones special writer

T LOOKED like a typical chrome-plated downtown restaurant with tables, counter stools and a food preparation area in the middle of the large room. But this is Cincinnati and there were only two basic food items on the plastic menu: Chili Spaghetti and Coney Islands.

In some parts of the country, "chili" means "hot." But to the people of Cincinnati, chili means an oval platter of spaghetti covered with a mild, flavorful meat sauce. Then they dress it up and call it threeway, four-way or five-way Cincin-

Three-way chili is a basic spagnettl and sauce portion covered with mounds of shredded cheddar cheese. A four-way is just a three-way with the addition of either chopped onlons or red beans. A five-way has both onlons and beans.

THE OTHER MENU offering is an unusually small hot dog in a roll about four inches long, topped with meaty chili sauce and shredded cheddar cheese.

You'll find these dishes in hundreds of independent and chain-operated chili parlors in the greater Cincinnati area: Cincinnati airport, Riverfront Stadium, even floating on the Ohio River in recently-opened Covington Landing, an entertainment-dining complex on the south side of the river.

Take that long-winded thought, double it, convert whenever possible to four-syllable words, eliminate punctuation marks and you will be in good shape to enter the Second Annual American Way Faux Faulkner Contest, for which you must submit 250-500 words of the cloquently rambling variety, words like avatar, epicene, promptitude and incffable, thereafter to be eligible to win two round-trip lickets on American Airlines anywhere in the continental United States, Bahamas or Hawaii.

Note to the copy desk: I know that was a very long sentence but please don't shorten it. Note to reader: newspaper writers get yelled at by copy editors if a paragraph is more than four or five lines long.

I got that piece of news from the inflight magazine called "American Way," which also includes a review of a novel by Dan Gerber of Fremont, Mich.

If you stay here, you might want to take the day off from sightseeing and get out on Lake Keowee, which has 300 miles of shoreline. Dress warmly this time of year, the temperature can go as low as 40 degrees. In most seasons, sailboats or the local john boats or pontoon boats can be rented at the Keowee Key Marina on resort grounds.

Gaze into the depths of the water and maybe you'll "see" ghostly farms and old towns, churches and even an old fort or Indian village lost In the watery depths.

The area was flooded in 1971 to develop new lakes for energy production. You are surrounded by thousands of acres of game management land, coves and small bays, and in the distance, three ridges of purple mountain majestles rise up in three pale ridges just for you.

DAY FOUR: This is the day for driving into the high plateaus and mountains, for taking a pienic packed for you at the Keowee Key Country Club, for boots and jeans.

Go to Scenic Highway 11 (also called the Cherokee Foothills Scenic Highway) and drive into the Oconee State Park, which is inside the larger Sumter National Forest. Now a place to camp and picnic, this area was the last stronghold of the Cherokee nation before they left in 1792.

Here the highest falls in eastern America, the Whitewater Falls, cascade from North Carolina down a rocky gorge into South Carolina from a height of 800 feet. There is an easy walk near the entrance of the park into the falls area, but to get closer, you must be a serious hiker.

The lower falls are accessible by boat. For information, contact the Division of State Parks, 1205 Pendleton Street, Columbia, S.C. 29201.

Other sites nearby include the Stumphouse Mountain Tunnel, which was cut 1,600 feet into the mountain Drive into the state park for camping sites, cabins, hiking trails, fishing and boating. Brilliant fall color is burning across the mountainsides and into the valleys at this very moment.

On your way back, take an hour to drive into the little town of Seneca and tour the Lunney Museum. It is a fine example of arts and crafts period architecture on the outside and Victorian furniture on the inside. Local docents take you through on a personal and colorfully informative free tour.

DAY SIX: Now it is time to see a small corner of North Carolina. As you get into the "Sky Country," the mountains seem to be higher, rougher, the road marked by hairpin turns. Via Route 25 north out of Greenville, head for "Connemara,"

When you are on your way down I-75 near Cincinnati, pull off the road and look around. You'll probably see a chili parlor. If not, pull into any gas station and ask for directions. Most shopping centers have at least one.

Governments can raise taxes, which they usually do, and cut spending, which they tend to do to a lesser degree, when they run into financial difficulties.

But most of us are limited to working with the expense side of the ledger with personal budgets.

As talk about recession intensifies and war clouds amass in the Middle East, individuals and families might want to think about potential spending cuts and lifestyle changes now.

Just in case economic push comes to shove.

"The first thing everyone should do is get involved in debt reduction," said Thomas Hogan, a financial planner in Livonia. "In hard times, what causes business, government and individuals the greatest problems is debt service."

That specifically means whittling the outstanding balance on credit cards, which generally carry the highest rate of interest for consumers, down to zero.

HOW QUICKLY do the finance charges mount? The monthly fee on a $2,500 balance at 11/2 percent is $37.50.

Consolidating debts — mortgage, home equity loan and credit cards — into a new mortgage may be advisable for some debtors, Hogan said. It all depends how much is owed, prevailing interest rates, equity in the property and current income of the debtor.

Consolidation spreads the debt over a longer period of time and usually at a lower interest rate. However, there are two corollaries to the plan.

"When the client realizes he has more cash flow, he should pay down the principal on the mortgage," Hogan said. "I also recommend that any future charges made on cards be paid in cash when billed."

This probably is an ideal time to review the family budget given all the attention paid to the federal deficit, said Vanessa Carthron, manager of the Southfield office of Credit Counselor Center.

And if things seem to be deteriorating on the home front?

"Rather than panicking, we just need to sit downand do some hard evaluating, to see where we're spending and where we can save more," Carthron said. "The main thing we need to cut out are frivolous purchases, luxury items, things not needed now."

Take a look at cable TV service and eating habits, she suggested.

"With a lot of our clients, we have to get them to realize that they don't need all the premium channels. Basic cable has a lot of options," Carthron said.

METROVISION provides cable service to Redford, Livonia and Farmington Hills. A subscriber with basic ($15.50 per month),

PASS, a premium sports channel ($8.95) or

Showtime, a premium movie channel ($8), plus remote control ($3) would save more than $300 annually by dropping cable entirely.

Most subscribers have basic and one premium channel, said Kirk Smith, a Metrovision executive. "For a buck a day, how can you really beat it?" he asked.

Then there's food. Eating out can add up in a hurry. If you spend just $3 for lunch every day, you will pay $780 over the course of a year less days off for vacation and holidays.

off for vacation and holidays.
"Start packing things for lunch," Carthron advised.

And shop smart, said Ryan Mathews, editor of Grocery Marketing, a trade publication.

"In this country, we throw out a great deal of food," he said. "What that tells you is inefficient shopping is going on.

"Plan meals efficiently and stick with the list. Raw, commodity food generally costs less than processed food. Shop sales, stock up on bargains. Cherry pick — only go to the store and buy specials," Mathews said.

"Where convenience is a real problem, one thing to do is look at meals that can be cooked in bulk and stored, frozen. Stews, soups, chili."

"If they did all of that, the average person would save 20, 30 or even 40 percent of what they're spending," Mathews said.

GETTING FROM here to there also can impact the family budget.

"One of the things you can do is form a carpool," said Nancy Cain, a spokeswoman for AAA Michigan. "Commuting to and from work is the largest single category of auto use. Two people can each save 25 percent by carpooling.

"About half of car trips in America are under five miles," she added. "We suggest that you plan trips in an area and do things at the same time." Cain offered other advice:

• "Drive at a moderate speed. You can get 15-20 percent more miles per gallon at 55 miles per hour than 65.

• "Maintain your car according to the service manual. You can get up to 10 percent better mileage. Don't idle your car more than one minute. Reduce car weight. If you're carrying around useless things, put them into the garage until you need them.

• "One way to cut the insurance bill is to maintain your driving record. If you get a ticket, in a three-year period you can pay 40 percent more for certain coverages.

• "Every few years you should review the need for collision and comprehensive coverage. Consider deductible coverage. The higher the deductible, the lower the premium."

Then, too, you can always bloycle or walk, especially if the food market, video store and post office are in the neighborhood. No need to confront heavy costs relating to fuel, insurance and maintenance with foot power.

Fuel increases fail to ground business flights

By Gorald Frawley staff writer

Rising fuel rates equals rising ticket prices equals less business travel, right?
Not necessarily.

U.S. airlines, faced with a $10 billion boost in the cost of jet fuel since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, will incur a $1 billion loss in the final quarter of 1990, but most of those losses will be a result of vacationers not flying or money lost on flight tickets sold at locked in prices.

Business travel — which includes everyone from the highest executive to the traveling salesman, as well as product and materials transportation — is not as frivolous as vacationing and so its frequency is less affected by rising costs.

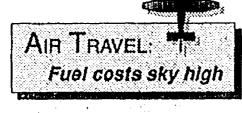

Pat Bresler, a travel agent with Corporate Destinations in Bloom-field Township, said although business travelers are experiencing some "sticker shock," the cost increases and flight cancellations are not affecting the number of business trips.

Many airlines have raised ticket prices as much as 10 percent to compensate for rising fuel prices with the latest round on Nov. 1, she said. "(But) people who own businesses

"(But) people who own businesses (in other areas of the county) have to commute," she said. "It's a necessity; they have no choice."

True, costs have as much as doubled in some instances since this summer, but then again, this summer was an extremely good time for traveling with airlines slashing ticket prices to attract vacationers. "Now it's gone back up again."

BUT AS THE OIL crisis continues, airlines are forced to do more than just increase ticket prices. Many airlines have, or are discussing, laying off employees, asking unions for wage concessions, cutting back on flights, cutting internal budgets and instituting hiring freezes.

Planning for flights has been a problem as airlines have cut unprofitable scheduled flights leaving travelers to scramble for other flights to make trips, she said. Other flights have been added, but keeping track of all the changes is keeping travel agents and business travelers

Cutting flights, she said, has the potential for being more damaging to business travelers and businesses than costs, especially if business travelers are unable to reach destinations in a time-effective manner.

Bresler said despite the airlines rising costs, prices will eventually fall again. The nature of competition

'People who own businesses (in other areas of the county) have to commute. It's a necessity, they have no choice.'

between airlines — with each trying to capture a larger market share, makes it almost inevitable.

"I think the airlines will hang tough for now, but it will only take one to cut its rates and they'll all follow suit," Bresler said, adding she expects prices to begin falling probably in February.

Cassandra Bosco, spokeswoman for the National Business Aircraft Association (NBAA), said that while the Middle East crisis has driven fuel costs up, fuel should continue to be available unless a war breaks out.

THE NBAA REPRESENTS more than 3,000 companies that own and operate their own aircraft for transportation of executives, employees and materials. More than 70 percent of Fortune 500 companies have aircraft.

Most businesses are curtailing frivolous uses of its aircraft, she said, but many flights continue despite the rising fuel prices. Businesses rarely use aircraft frivolously because the main reason they purchased the aircraft in the first place was to save money, she said.

"When a company executive is flying across the country or a product is shipped across the country (by airplane) it is done because the product is needed," she said.

Companies that own airplanes, she said, bought them to save money and time, provide flexibility, increase security, and add efficiency, she said. True, rising fuel prices are taking a bite out of profits, but the benefits of air travel for these companies still outweighs not traveling, Bosco said.

Bosco said the NBAA, as a U.S. Department of Transportation energy conservation task force member, has suggested cost-saving measures to help preserve fuel, including: allowing departing planes to obtain unrestricted climbs to cruise altitude; allow pilots to fly more direct routes; and reviewing noise abatement plans that have an adverse effect on fuel consumption.

BUSINESSES MAY seek other alternatives to the face-to-face meetings that have been so common in the past, according to Chet Dalzell of

Heine sees niche for brewery

By Gorald Frawley staff writer

Some people dream of owning a business, but few would choose to own a brewery especially in an era of declining alcohol consumption.

But not Randall Heine, owner and president of Total Foods Corp. in West Bloomfield, an industrial foods distributor and supplier of food ingredients.

Heine has agreed to buy all stock in the Frankenmuth Brewery in Frankenmuth for an undisclosed amount from the Ann Arbor-based Ervin Industries Inc., saving one of Michigan's last independent brewer-

Heine said that although he is originally from Frankenmuth, there are no hidden motivations behind his decision to buy the brewery.

"It's not anything like (always wanting to be a brewer since he was a young man). Helne said his company is always on the lookout for companies that will fit into its marketing strategy.

"We look at a lot of things that come along, buy some companies and start others — this seemed like it would fit into what we are doing (at Total Foods Corp.)," Heine said, adding that Total Foods already handles some of the ingredients used in brewing beer, so the two companies fit together.

But Heine also said he enjoys the taste of the two beers. "That was a big part of the sale."

Heine sald his immediate plans for the brewery includes stepping up promotion for its existing products.

Since the Frankenmuth Brewery is a micro-brewery, its success or failure depends on finding a market niche, Heine said.

THE FRANKENMUTH facility brews both Frankenmuth Old German Style Beer, a private label dark beer brewed for the Bayarian Inn in Frankenmuth, and Old Detroit -Amber Ale, which it brews under contract license for the Old Detroit Brewing Co.

Two key selling points are that the beer is brewed in Michigan and that they are premium beers.

Heine said that while the trend away from drinking alcohol does "scare me a little," he is confident a micro-brewer of high-quality beers can succeed. "I think that's a problem for the bigger brewers, not the micro-brewers.'

As a micro-brewer, the Frankenmuth Brewery addresses a market that is under served by the larger breweries. The premium beer segment of the market that has done well despite the shrinking alcohol market, he said.

"I think if you can get people to buy it in Michigan, we'll succeed," he said. "We're not going worldwide or even countrywide - that's not the plan."

The Frankenmuth Brewery — formerly the Geyer Bros. Brewery dates back to 1862 and operated until 1986 when it declared bankruptcy. The brewery reopened as the Frankenmuth Brewery in 1988 after chief operating officer and veteran brewer Fred Schumacher, with the backing of Ervin Industries, renovated the facility.

DESPITE RECORDING increased sales of 90 percent over 1989, Ervin Industries — the majority stockholder in the company withdrew financial backing a month ago, Schumacher said.

Although the brewery was forced to lay off its employees during the layover, inventories ensured most retailers were able to keep the company's beer in supply.

Schumacher will remain on as chief executive officer, and Fred Scheer will remain on as brewmaster. Although he will no longer be a part owner, Schumacher said his being retained as chief executive officer and president will ensure consistent quality and productivity.

the Direct Marketers Association in Washington D.C.

Businesses have been looking to other alternatives — like business by telephone, mail and video - for nearly two decades, when traveling costs began increasing dramatically. The latest round of increases, he said, will probably add fuel to the trend

Prior to the 1970s, businesses relied on their sales forces to do much of the selling and buying for corporate America, but skyrocketing business trip costs forced businesses to rely more and more on the phone, Dalzell said.

"In 1987 alone, (the cost of) business visits leaped by $250 - most small businesses can't handle that," Dalzell said. The recent travel increases, although it's still difficult to gauge to impact, could easily add at least that much.

Ida Simmons, director of communications for the D.K. Shifflet & Associates in Washington D.C., a travel research firm, said savvy travelers may not be hurt by the current economic crunch.

Business travelers may have to pay higher prices, but by taking advantage of the current conditions, they may not pay too much more.

In the last recession, airlines bent over backwards to service business customers. "Airlines discovered it was the business travelers who really pay the bills.

"He was going to continue traveling (no matter what happened to the economy) because he had to - to a certain extent," she said.

VACATION TRAVELERS will really make out as airlines add incentives to ensure airline seats don't go unused, she said.

Saturn launch unfairly gets some medicore press

ed the Saturn launch to be an easy trot around the bases, but then again, we weren't expecting a last-second slide into home plate either, let alone what we seem to be getting, which is a slide of the bananna peel variety.

By now, Saturn has knocked off more than a few points, any one of which should have been worth a Forbes cover or two. It's the largest. most-comprehensive industrial startup since World War II, for one thing, the sheer scale of which seems to have been missed by the legions of reporters led astray by Saturn ads. who have been mainly interviewing Spring Hill dogs and school kids.

WHILE I'M not privy to the GM books, there is every evidence that the brand-new tightly organized Saturn plant, running at capacity, is the lowest-cost auto manufacturing warm, projections of GM profits

I don't know that anybody expect- now cheap by virtue of the collapsing dollar. This is reflected in a sticker price that includes a hefty profit of margin for the dealer that is roughly $2,000 less than a comparably equipped four-door sedan.

Lastly, it is arguably the best U.S. small car ever built, an achievement that is muffled only by the dramatic improvement in the Japanese competitors in the last few years. Dollarfor-dollar, it solidly trounces Toyota and Honda's small cars in either price, performance or features, although it's likely to have a tough time with Nissan's new Sentra, the new star of the small-car circus.

ALL OF this should have meant a roaring, standing ovation, instead of what seems to be a smattering of applause, and the sound of a few coughs and rustling feet. Press reports on the car have been lukeplant in a world where U.S. labor is mediocre. Strangest of all, there still isn't a Saturn car on display at GM headquarters, where one would have expected a spotlighted pedestal for the ef.ort.

Most members of auto writing Mafia, used to being spoon-fed by lavish overseas launches of important new models, seem to have Pablum dribbling down their chins in response to a series of early press showings of Saturn, where unfinished engineering prototypes were demonstrated at such unlikely locations as a short track at the GM proving grounds normally used to test the parking brakes on heavy-

MOST OF the early "road tests" now on the magazine stands were based on these shakey cars - arguably all that was available even a few days before the full production began, but nonetheless an unusual way to put your best foot forward into this intense spotlight.

The rush to judgment was also partly due to GM managing to keep only one thing truly secret about the car — its price, which in turn led to bizarre stories including one article that claimed it fell slightly short of a "comparable" car, the Honda Integra, which costs roughly twice as that Saturn was suckered into a premature launch of the vehicle, fevered by the urge to put Roger Smith in the driver's seat before he retired. Not that he didn't deserve the honor, since it clearly was his biggest contribution to an often-troubled career at the head of GM, but a couple of months worth of patience would have smoothed things out a

On the other hand, expectations for the car have been so high as to be ridiculous. A Detroit Free Press reporter, for example, after driving a new Saturn across the country and producing a remarkable series on grass roots American, caps it by noting that that Saturn should be expected to make the list of 10 best on J.D. Power's Consumer Satisfaction Index, ignoring the fact that few of today's top-selling cars are on the list, and that the currently best-sell-

OVERALL, IT now seems obvious ing Honda Accord struggled through two years of expensive recalls after its original introduction in the mid-

> NOT THAT the Saturn is without flaws. Despite its well-developed chassis and extraordinary performance, at best it's a mediocre styling exercise, a rolling argument, hot on the heels of GM's spacey APV minivan, that GM's design department is overdue for a shakeup. Not so strangely, help already seems on the way here.

In fact, the real story to Saturn isn't the plant, the car or the launch. The real story is how quickly Saturn responds in the future after the dust settles: making running engineering changes, introducing new products, and fixing the ones they have already sold.

Now that I think about it, maybe the dust really shouldn't settle at all.

Answers to your questions on saving on a home mortgage

The article published on Oct. 4 in ating additional costs. this column by guest writer Jay L. Smith, who is a member of the board of the Institute of Certified Financial Planners, has had an enthusiastic response.

To date, almost 200 requests have been received, and these requests are continuing. Everyone who has asked has been mailed the information he requested. In addition, those who indicated that they needed additional help have been referred to a toll-free telephone number published by the institute.

Today I will answer several questions that have been raised by my readers.

Q. Why do I need the ABC Bank. Can't I pay bi-weekly mortgages myself?

A. You certainly can, but there are several problems.

• Most banks and mortgage companies won't allow you to modify the existing terms of your contract, so you may have to refinance it, gener-

 Making bi-weekly payments on time is a painstaking chore. Besides, it loses most of its value if you are unable to invest the balance satisfac-

o If you are unable to keep up with a self-generated program for financial reasons, your long-term interests may be jeopardized.

Q. Why did you ask for the mortgage data?

A. My original intention was to analyze the data and advise you if the program will work for you. Unfortunately, the volume of responses made it impossible for me to keep up with the analysis.

Q. Does the ABC Bank actually ex-

A. Yes, it does. In fact, everyone contacting me has already been provided with that information. However, it is my long-standing practice not to use in my column real names of people, products or organizations.

Q. How safe is this plan?

A. Perfectly safe. Your money is always protected while deposited in the bank accounts and during the electronic transfer of the money between accounts. ABC Bank is a depository bank and, acting as a fiduciary, safeguards the deposited money and permits only those transfers authorized by you. Money in the depository account is protected to the limit set by the Federal Deposit Insurance

Q. Do I save as much money as is indicated by the table published in your column?

A. Yes. However there was a typographical error in the original column. The corrected table is presented here. As you can see, the savings are incredible in the long run.

Q. Why did you collect additional financial data on a separate data

A. Those who need help in additional planning areas have been urged to call the ICFA at 1-800-589-5200, so they can be referred to qualified financial planners in their area. I offered this as a special service to my readers.

Judging from the number of questions that remain unanswered, you will benefit immensely from attending a seminar on this topic. The speaker will be a specialist in this program. Details of the seminar are given below.

If you have money to invest, NOW is the time?

Q. I know this is a wild time in the stock market and most of my friends say put your money in the bank, I guess maybe. I am lucky because I have an uncle who has done well in the stock market, and he says the best time to invest is always at a time like the present when most people are scared away. He told me that you periodically put out a starting model portfolio and I should write and get it from you.

A. We do come up every three months with a portfolio that is designed for people just starting out, and it is shown in the accompanying table. The model portfolio is selected by the securities analysts that supervise the stocks published in Better Investing Magazine and is presented as a group of stocks, which in those analysts' view, have the potential to double in value in the coming five years. As an investor, it is well to spread your money over a number of stocks. If you have $12,000 and can buy $1,000 of each stock, that would be the best procedure. Some

Then, all you do is call us-remember, it doesn't make any difference if we're not here—to place an ad, cancel one or change something on one you've placed earlier.

Let's say it's eight o'clock at night and you've just realized that the cupid plays a tin whistle. It's a good selling point, so you punch up our classified number and wait for the operator to guide you through the steps for changing your ad. Have in mind the exact information you want to give us, speak clearly and a bit slower than you usually do. And that's it.

If it's after 5:00 p.m. on Tuesday, your changes will be made for the next Monday paper. Or, if it's after 5:00 p.m. weekend, your changes will hit the Thursday papers. Pretty neat, huh?

Of course, our Classified Ad Takers are here every Monday through Thursday from 8:00 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. and until 5:00 p.m. each Friday. But now, if you miss them, you can still do something about your ad—at your convenience.

Computer users don't need to buy every new toy

over the years I've collected a change? If it ain't broke, as they say, bunch of homey aphorisms. Some of them aren't particularly appropriate for a column in a public newspaper, but a few of them, in my vanity, I've called Stephenson's Axioms.

This week I want to discuss one of these bits of Franklinian wisdom with you.

If you're a propeller-head who loves the latest and greatest technology, this column is probably not for you. Go on out to the kitchen, get a pop and a sandwich and come back after the commercial.

AXIOM: I KNOW it may seem blasphemous, but you don't have to chase technology to get your work plone. Certainly, all of the technocrats want you to run right out and buy the latest release of whatever yord processor, database, or personal computer they're peddling, but there's a better than ever chance that you can ignore them.

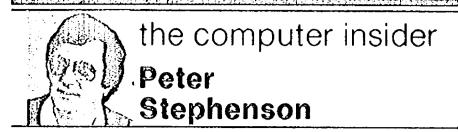

don't fix it.

Of course there are times when you need a bit more comph than your current system can provide. The trick is to know when you're seeking a solution to a problem or a problem to fit a solution.

I CAN'T begin to tell you how much software passes through the Cave in a month. I write columns far more techy and serious than this one. I assure you, for several national computer mags. So everybody and his dog wants me to review his latest whizbang.

I gives piles of the stuff away to the local high school every year. And the fact is that there are only about half a dozen of those new products in a year that actually find their way onto my system. And I'm a power user. I just love new toys!

Think what that means to you who just want to get your work done fast-You see, if you can do your work er, neater and more efficiently with well with what you have, why your PC. The fact is that once you outfit your system with what does the job for you, you may not change it significantly once a year.

AND THAT'S OK. It's not written anywhere that I know of that you have to chase technology.

I was giving a seminar to a government contractor out West a month or so back. The seminar was on selecting a local area network.

One of the attendees told me that they weren't going to buy a network, even though she knew they needed one, because it would be obsolete by the time she installed it and got all of her staff trained. Fine. Don't buy a car either, then.

There's a lot of new technology going into automobiles. The one I drive is a year old. I guess it's obsolete, too. Never mind that it serves me just fine.

COMPUTERS ARE a lot like cars. If it gets you where you want to go in the style to which you've become accustomed, love it. Don't replace it just to get the newest technology.

Which brings us, somewhat serendipitously, to another axiom.

If you give someone too many choices, they won't make any at all. That was my lady at the seminar. She was overwhelmed with the techy stuff, techy magazines and techy people. So she decided to do nothing

THE KEY is to define what you expect from your PC, outfit it correctly and use it to your benefit. If it looks to you like you can actually improve your computing with a new program or piece of hardware, fine.

But let your computer expansion be driven by real needs, not by glitzy ads, reviews or salesperson's hype. And don't survey everything on the market.

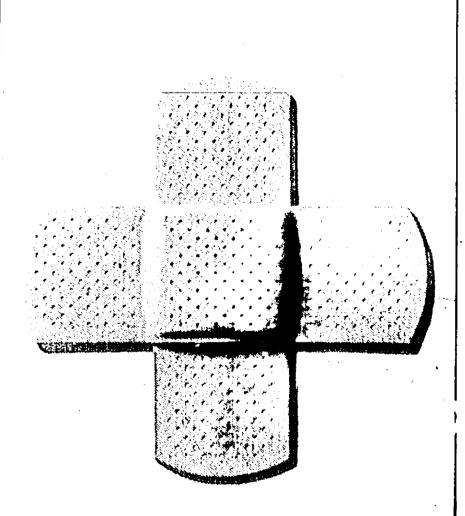

If you don't know what you're looking at, find someone (not a salesperson) who does and take his advice.

THE LAST thing that should drive your decision is the "gotta have the latest upgrade" syndrome. When I stop and realize that most software. companies get a significant dose of extra profit from their predictable annual upgrades, it makes me wonder how all those users got their work done before the upgrade appeared. I'm betting 75 percent of them did just fine. And that's the inside scoop!

Area Jewish leaders refused to meet Kahane

By Pat Murphy

The Monday assassination of Rabbi Meir Kahane in New York City was widely renounced as Jews and Arabs reacted to the news of his

But there were strong feelings in Oakland County about the message preached by the Brooklyn-born zealot who believed Zionism and Western democracy are incompatible and referred to Arabs as "dogs" and moderate Jewish leaders as "Uncle Jakes."

"It's terrifying to think there are assassins around," said Rabbi Sherwin Wine of The Birmingham Temple, who strongly differed with Kahane and in 1978 debated him at the Farmington Hills temple.

"His message I deplore," said Wine. "The man I didn't like. But I would never condone assassination."

People in Oakland County - and elsewhere - rejected Kahane's message because it included violence. said Rabbi Sherman P. Kirshner of Congregation B'nai Israel in West Bloomfield Township.

KAHANE WAS a "racist," according to Dr. Barbara Aswad, a Birmingham resident and a professor of Middle Eastern studies at Wayne State University.

"Nobody likes assassination," said Aswad. "But Kahane was an extremist who advocated violence . . . in that sense he brought it on himself."

Hani Fakhouri, who teaches Middle Eastern studies at the University of Michigan, said he also considered Kahane to be a "racist and extremist" who was outside mainstream Jewish thought.

"I hate to see anybody die like that," said Fakhouri, a resident of Bloomfield Hills. "But those who live by the sword die by the sword."

Kahane, 57, was born in Brooklyn, where he became an Orthodox rabbi and a lawyer. In 1968 he helped organize the Jewish Defense League to help counter violence against Jews.

"That was when elderly Jews were being beaten and harassed," said Kirshner. "Kahane recruited young Jewish men and trained them in the martial arts. Suddenly there was no problem."

plotting to build bombs, Kahane immigrated to Israel in 1971 and became active in the Kach Party, eventually becoming its leader.

He was initially regarded as an "American import and racist lunatic," according to press information circulated by The Jewish Idea, an educational organization that sponsored several Kahane visits to the Detroit area.

Kahane considered himself a "knee-jerk Jew" who advocated a Jewish state run according to Jewish

In his 1981 book, "They Must Go," Kahane said Arabs living within Israel were a fifth column. Saying that no state - including Israel - should be required to tolerate a disloyal minority, Kahane suggested Arabs be expelled.

Kahane gained popularity and, after three unsuccessful attempts, was elected to the Israeli parliament in > Kahane's popularity in Israel may have increased, but his extreme views cost him support in the U.S., Wine said.

> "By his move from America to Israel . . . and becoming a religious fanatic, he lost most of his support."

ON A PERSONAL level, Wine said, he found Kahane to be charming, bright and "very dangerous."

When he and Kahane debated, "we had one of our largest audiences," Wine said. "People like to come out for a good fight.'

After the debate, Wine said, Kahane turned to the audience and said, "So now why don't you get yourself a real rabbi?" Wine said he vividly remembers

Kahane's zeal, even if he didn't like his message. "I don't regret that his message won't be articulated as well as he did it," Wine said.

"But the danger is some kind of revenge may take place here or in Israel," said Wine. "That's my fear." A similar fear was expressed Tuesday by the Jewish Community Council. Executive Director David Gad-Harf issued a statement saying, "Murder is never an appropriate solution to conflict, regardless of how much we may abhor the ideas of the victim. We hope that the leaders of the region will be successful in gulding the progress of resolution to a peaceful conclusion."

LEADERS OF the Jewish Community Council were among those who at one time refused to meet with Kahane because of what they considered to be his extremist views. Kahane wasn't fond of them el-

During a 1985 press conference in the Detroit area, Kahane expressed scorn for Jewish leaders he considered too moderate.

"If Louis Farrakhan wired them asking for a meeting,' Kahane said, "they'd fall all over him."

In 1982, Kahane was initially barred from speaking in Southfield by an Oakland Circuit Court judge after a group identifying itself as the > Super Lotto sales fell slightly during the period, to $515.2 million from $524.1 million in 1988-89.

SLIGHT INCREASES were reported in all other games, except the Daily 3, and the Keno game brought in $41 million since it started in April.

"When you consider the economy softening like it has been in the last several months, and consider the fact that Indiana and Wisconsin lotteries have started and are running full blast, I'm extremely happy with try to better market the tickets the final results," said Lottery commissioner Michael Carr.

The Bureau of State Lottery began the fiscal year with flat Super Lotto sales, but business picked up with the switch from a 6-of-44 Lotto to a 6-of-47 Lotto.

The change enormously reduced odds of winning the jackpot, but more rollovers and higher jackpots brought more people to the ticket

Learning about the natural world can occur in a variety of ways. Reading is certainly one way to learn about a subject. It enables us to obtain information that others have spent a great deal of time deci-

Direct observation is another way of learning about the natural world. Encountering a new species or event can lead one to speculate about its identity or importance. Checking references to see if others have seen the same thing is a rewarding experience, too. Even if someone has made a similar observation it does not make yours any less gratifying.

Report cites ORV damage

AP - Off-road vehicles are leaving a trail of $1.2 billion in damage to vegetation, soil and wildlife habitat on Michigan land, according to a new report.

At least 642,000 acres of land, water and wildlife habitat in 22 counties have been damaged by ORVs, according to a survey by the Michigan Association of Conservation Districts. The group represents soil conservation officials in all 83 Michigan countles, but only 42 countles responded to the survey.

Restoring land damaged by ORVs would cost between $2,000 and $20,000 per acre, depending upon the extent of harm, said Executivve Director Debra Bogar.

"There is a lot of damage out there and it's not just the trails that are being affected; the soil erosion caused by ORVs is affecting bodies of water and a lot of wildlife habitat," Bogar sald.

Property owners and government agencies would get stuck with the tab, she said.

Boger said the 642,000-acre estimate is conservative.

But Mike Burlingham, president of the Cycle Conservation Club, said the study was not a scientific assessment of damage caused by irresponsible ORV riders.

"Even if there was 1 square foot of damage on an acre of land, they called it an area of damage," said Burlingham, who had not seen the report. His group represents 2,800 ORV users in Michigan.

The House Conservation, Recreation and Environment Committee plans to resume hearings Nov. 13 on a bill to restrict ORV use on state forest land, said state Rep. Tom Alley, D-West Branch.

Sun Deer* campers are happy campers and it's no wonder because most severely asthmatic kids are forced to spend their summers indoors. At Camp Sun Deer? asthmatic kids ages 9-12 participate in a variety of outdoor activities, but they can't do It without your help. This is a non-profit agency that can review the care Medicare recipients receive at hospitals, out-patient areas, ambulatory surgery centers, skilled nursing facilities, home health agencies, and health maintenance organizations.

You can call 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Friday, should you feel there is any question about the callber of care given by the above medical facilities. I apologize for any inconvenience this may have caused.

Q. I am confused about who is supposed to submit Medicare claims.

A. Anyone who has Medicare medical insurance (Part B) should know about the change in the way claims are to be submitted. Beginning Sept. 1, 1990, the Medicare medical insurance claims must be prepared and submitted by the service provider, which is the doctor, medical supply company, laboratory or any other party giving the service.

In the past, Medicare beneficiaries had to submit form 1490S, which was the Patient's Request for Medicare,

A. Taking care of nursing home residents can often be one of the most difficult jobs. Working in a nursing facility as I do, I am quite aware that aides or assistants have a multitude of responsibilities to each of their assigned residents.

It can be a backbreaking as well as heartbreaking job, and it is often a thankless job. It requires a great deal of patience and compassion.

We hear of the occasional patient abuse, but few people realize the abuse staff may endure. It is not unusual for staff to be not only verbally abused by residents but physically abused as well, and that includes hitting, biting, kicking, spitting and having things thrown at them. Yet the resident is treated with dignity and respect by the nursing assistant.

I have seen and experienced these abuses myself, and I have also seen the nursing assistant, who is not allowed to defend him or herself, respond with kindness and often hu-

Churchill rolls into soccer final

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

Livonia Churchill and Warren De-LaSalle met earlier this year in a scrimmage game.

This time it's for the hardware. Churchill assured itself of a berth in Saturday's Class A boys soccer final with a 2-1 semifinal win Wednesday over Portage Central at Okemos

High School. The Chargers, who have never won a boys soccer championship, will meet No. 1-ranked DeLaSalle for the championship at 3 p.m. Saturday at Bloomfield Hills Andover. DeLaSalle blanked Traverse City, 8-0, in the other semifinal played Wednesday.

This marks the first time Churchill coach Mark Mason has taken any high school team to the final round.

"Three years ago a high school team I had in Nebraska got knocked out in the semifinals, so I'm glad we've made it past the plateau," said Mason, the first-year coach.

PLAYING IN un-seasonably cold weather, the Chargers opened up a 2-0 lead 15 minutes into the second half and held on to improve their overall record to 17-1-2. Portage Central, which beat Okemos, 2-1, in a regional final, fell to 15-4-1 overall.

Eric Sharmberger and Mike Gentile scored one goal each for Churchill. Sharmberger gave the Chargers the first lead, when he headed in a corner kick by Tim Riley with about 10 minutes remaining before half-

Gentile raised the lead to 2-0 when he stole the ball from Portage Central's Tyler Williams and put it in the net behind goalkeeper Matt Boersma.

"Tyler slipped," Central coach Pat Norman said. "He had been making tackle, after tackle, after tackle. We had him down for 20 tackles in the game. It's a freaky thing."

Gentile (22 goals), Dario Rauker (18) and Dominic Vella (17), have combined to score 77 percent of the team's goals.

BRENDAN NORMAN scored Central's only goal about five minutes after Gentile's tally, deflecting a free kick past Churchill goalkeeper Jeff Cassar. There were a few anxious moments afterward for the Chargers, but they managed to keep Central from capitalizing in front of

Three yellow cards (two to Central) were handed out in the second half when the intensity level seemed Churchill employed a 3-5-2 alignment in the second half instead of a 3-4-3, because of the wider field. It enabled the midfielders to help Scott Lamphear, Riley and Laun Johnson to defend the lead better, Mason

"Mason sure is good with the lead," Norman said. "They have good ball control."

As for DeLaSalle, the Pilots are 23-1 overall and led by senior forward Brian Maisonneuve (sometimes called 'Amaisonneuve' by teammates because of his amazing moves). Maisonneuve and teammate Tim Hardy had two goals each in the Pilots' semifinal win.

THE CHARGERS beat DeLaSalle, 1-0, last month in the scrimmage game, but previous records don't

"They have a lot of seniors and I know their pride level will be high," Mason said. "We only have a couple! of seniors (Johnson, Riley, Aaron Sawicky and Shamberger). Overall, 1. think we have more skill, but we have to make sure we're up for the' -- Sawicky, who has been hampered by a calf injury the last half of the season, will be assigned to mark-Maisonneuve.

"We were on the state team together, and we know each other's moves, so it should be pretty interesting," Sawicky said. "This feels great but we have to be up for that

AUL SCICLUNA was working inside one of his flower shops years ago when he gave chase to a thief who was half his age and twice his size.

An obvious mismatch, but Scicluna - all 5-foot-4, 130 pounds of him - was ready for the chal-

"I was delivering flowers for Paul and some big high school kid who looked like a football player stole the Lions Club charity jar off the counter," recalls Jim Duggan, a Livonia native. "Paul chased him down the sidewalk, through the parking lot and tackled him.

"Paul picked up the money, and said, 'You can steal from me, but don't ever steal from the Lions Club.' I thought, 'I can work for a guy like that."

Most guys would have been better off calling 911. Not Scicluna, a flesty type who never turns down a

His latest is to build the Detroit Rockers, the newest entry in the National Professional Soccer League. Part owner and president of the Rockers, Scicluna has followed an unusual, almost unbelievable script, in becoming one of Observerland's more successful businessmen and soccer coaches.

A Livonia resident since 1972, Scicluna was born 49 years ago on Malta, an island located south of Italy in the Mediterranean Sea. One of 13 children, Scicluna came to Detroit in 1955 with his father Joseph and older brother Eddle.

Although he never earned a high school diploma, Scicluna taught himself to read and write the English language, spent two years in the service, has owned three flower shops; raised a family, helped start the Livonia YMCA Soccer Program and has coached several state and national youth soccer champion teams.

And now he is president of his own professional soccer team. Long-time business partners Brian Tinnion and Gus Moffat are other Rockers owners.

The three also have owned the four Total Soccer Indoor complexes in Greater Detroit since the early '80s.

"We used to talk about this (someday owning a team) in Paul's living room when I was in high school," says Duggan, who now works for Sciciuna as the Rockers Chief Executive Officer. "Paul never does anything with an ulterior motive. He does things because he thinks they're right and he belleves in them."

Although he still refers to Malta as "our country," he hasn't re-turned to the island since he left it 35 years ago. The rest of his family followed a short time later.

"I am Maltese, have Maltese blood and I will die Maltese," says Sciciuna. "But yet, who is Paul Scicluna? He is a hard-working American and ho's been an American since about the third day he stepped into this country."

RU5th in Class A; Spartans (23rd) lag

Holly snuck up on everyone else, while Redford Union finished about where it expected Saturday in the Class A girls cross country state meet at the University of Michigan Golf Course.

Holly placed first with 146 points, followed by Ann Arbor Pioneer in second place, 152; Milford, 153; Traverse City, 169; and RU, 230. For the rest of the results, please see 6D..

RU coach Bob Ouellette said prior to the meet he expected Traverse City and Pioneer to battle for the top spot, but he wasn't stunned by Holly's title.

The un-seasonably warm weather made it tough on all the runners, with about 15 having to drop out of the race because of fatigue.

"Holly coach Duane Raffin is a 30 year coach, so I'm not surprised they won it with him coaching," Ouellette said. "Duane is a good coach so you can't count out Holly. Don't bet against him.

"FIFTH PLACE wasn't what we were shooting for, but that's what we were. We ran the best we could that day. The conditions were strange and I don't remember a state meet being warmer. About the two-mile mark people started going down because the first mile they went out real hard. There were three or four real tough hills and it really took a lot out of them."

Three seniors led the way for RU. Tracey James placed 23rd overall in the team standings finishing the course in 20 minutes, 42.08 seconds. Michelle Daraban was 40th (21:14.34) and Melissa Still took 47th (21:24.20). Junior Jennifer Sturdevant was 52nd (21:29.57) and Kelly Murray took 68th (21:47.71). Senior Liza Mockeridge, finishing an injury plagued season, took 88th (22:12.35).

Livonia Stevenson, the champion of the Western Lakes Activities Association, finished a disappointing 23rd in the team standings with 472 points. Sophomore Stacy Prais was 29th (21:00.11) and Ann Koritnik, another sophomore, took 43rd (21:15.81), but the next best race.

cross country

time came from junior Becky Adamczyk, in 115th

Unfortunately, for the Spartans, No. 3 girl Carrie Creehan had to leave the race without finishing.

"SHE WAS totally dehydrated," coach Paul Holmberg said. "She spent more than an hour on the training table. It was pretty scary. The physicians did a nice job. I haven't been to a state meet where there was such good medical facilities and I've never been to a state meet where there was so much need for medical facilities. Every time I looked around, someone was falling down."

In the individual standings, Livonia Ladywood's Malia Dixon had the area's best finish, as the Blazers sophomore took 15th (20:27.02).

Another runner, Livonia Franklin's Stacy Hewett, took 32nd (21:10.22).

"She was real competitive and she's been that way the whole season," Franklin coach Sue Tatigian said. "She's real gutsy."

CLASS A BOYS

No area boys teams qualified, but RU's Ken Podina placed 22nd (16:58.9) in the individual race. Redford Catholic Central's Jon Borke took 31st place (17:08.68).

CLASS C

Lutheran Westland runners Jennifer Gerlach and Lisa Shafer represented the Warriors well, placing 15th (20:21) and 21st (21:00), respectively in the individual

CC leery of Canton

By Brad Emons staff writer

Massillon, Ohio is the home of power football - rock'em, knock'em down, sock'em style.

But some of coach Bob Khoenle's former high school teammates might be surprised to see his Plymouth Canton football team noted more for its finesse, hide-and-seek style, run-and-shoot antics.

where Redford Catholic Central ferent type of person." coach Tom Mach got his ideas: He's a downriver guy, bent on running the football until somebody stops him.

That's why Saturday's Class AA-Region II matchup - 1:30 p.m. at Pontiac's Wisner Stadium - is so intriguing. (The game will be broadcast on WSDP-88.1 FM.) Neither coach is going to change his style at this stage of the season.

Khoenle will go with what got him here - a wide-open offensive attack mixed in with a bend, but don't break defensive philosophy.

Mach, on the other hand, will rely on a stingy defense and a conservative offensive attack, predicated on minimizing mistakes and eating up the clock.

"I GOT THE PASSING stuff when I was at Purdue," sald Khoenle, whose team is 9-1 overall. "They knew how to throw the football a little bit.

"We don't have the big 230-pound linemen, so go yeu have to go with the abilities of your talent. It's the only way we've gotten to this point. You have to survive to win."

When you think of Canton's team. you think of quarterback Karl Wukie, a dashing and daring sort who does a little bit of everything.

"The first thing you think of them is the efficiency of their quarterback," said Mach, whose team is 8-2. "Also the pressure that their passing game puts on the defense. They're pretty wide open. He's a good thrower and he has some good receivers and two good backs.

"He runs the club real well it seems. He's always a danger when he's running because he can throw the ball at any time. He puts pressure on your defense because you don't know what's coming next. This might be the toughest team we've faced up to this point because of the variety of things they do."

Wukie is an innovator, a student of the game and fearless, according to

"I'm going to miss him, he's been my quarterback for three years," Khoenle said. "He's an extrovert, very opinionated. We get in agruments sometimes, but I listen to him. He changes plays at the line of scrimmage, but most of the time it works out. He's quite a character, One might think. Massillon is dog, but he's very emotional, a dif-

> WHILE MACH frets about Wukle having his way, Khoenle worries about CC's defense.

"They're very solid and they have good people on defense, that's what sticks out;" said the Canton coach. "What bothers me is their oflense against our defense. And if the weather becomes a factor, that concerns me.

"If you face a team that runs a lot, then the pass even become more of a factor. They're basically a running team and they know they can move the ball. They're not going to change much at this stage. We've just got to get tougher this week. You don't care you how big they are, but you just got to be tougher against a bigger and stronger team."

Khoenle also worries about CC's big offensive line running over his 170-pound tackles and 150-pound linebackers.

"Our guys have done a good job," Khoenle said. "We have a stunting defense that is based on quickness, but sometimes it works against you. If you stunt too much, you get caught."

Linebacker Josh Walaskay typifies Canton's defense. He's only 5-10, 165 pounds.

"He's consistent and fits into our mold, he's done a good job," Khoenle

CC ALSO has some unsung heroes. Fullback Jon Barbara, a 6-1, 215pound bruising fullback came into his own in CC's 32-0 mid-season win over rival Birmingham Brother Rice. He complements tailback Arshon Stewart well in the backfield. The speedy Stewart has filled in effectively for the injured Mike Thomas, who may be availabe this week.

But Mach points out that Gary Stegall, a blocking back, is a valuable piece to the backfield puzzle.

"He doesn't carry it up, but he does a tremendous job of opening holes," said the CC coach. One of CC's unsung heroes on defense has been end Dave Dominick, a 6-foot, 200-pound senior.

"He's been a steady player, he's "He's been a steady player, he's really helped make our defense solsome people perceive him as a-hot--id," Mach said. "He didn't make allleague, but he's improved tremendously, and I think he's as good as any defensive end around."

Khoenle calls CC "the best team we've faced up to this point."

"It's going to be quite a challenge," said the Canton coach. "Our offense is the key to having a good defense. We've got to put points on the board and I'd like to think our defense can contribute to this team, and that they can play. My biggest concern is our defense against their offense."

AND CC'S OFFENSE will remain basic and has made strides since losing to Detroit King and Detroit De-

"We're playing our brand of football more, which is running right at you and making you stop us," Mach said. "We have to control the tempo of the game. That's the way we've been successful. Running the ball has been our brand over the years."

Perhaps one ace up CC's sleeve is Saturday's site - Wisner - a stadium where the Shamrocks have enloyed immense success over the Despite two western Suburban teams playing 25 miles to the north, CC opted for Wisner - possibly as a good luck charm.

"It's a great high school atmosphere, it's a small stadium and you get a great feeling," Mach said. "I like the atmosphere.'

Khoenle, meanwhile, suggested another site. "I was thinking of someplace closer," he said. "I thought maybe Ypsilanti High. I don't know how we came up with that, but it really doesn't matter. We have to play somewhere." Maybe CC should play someday in Massillon.

All the marbles Franklin romps to gain WLAA final

By Brad Emons staff writer

Election night provided a mild surprise on the hardwood-Tuesday in the semifinals of the Western Lakes Activities Association playoffs.

Livonia Franklin avenged a loss at home earlier in the season to Plymouth Canton, beating the host Chiefs on their own floor by a surprising count, 54-41.

The win puts the Patriots (16-3) into their first-ever WLAA championship (7 p.m. Saturday at Northville) against Plymouth Salem (16-3), which held off Northville in the other semifinal Tuesday, 45-37.

Franklin junior guard Dawn Warner, held without a field goal in a 46-40 defeat against the Chiefs in a key WLAA matchup last month, bounced back with another strong playoff effort, leading all scorers with a game-high 29 points.

Coming off a 40-point showing last week against Walled Lake Central, Warner hit seven of 12 shots from the floor, including a pair of threepointers. She also made 13 of 16 free throws.

"They (Canton) had some good defensive players on her and the last time they did a nice job of shutting her down," said Franklin coach Dan Freeman. "The last time Dawn did not work hard without the ball, but this time she moved well without the ball. She played over some heavy contact, she came off the floor one time with blood dripping down her face after catching an elbow. She got banged around, but played over some heavy contact. They had a hand in her face almost every shot."

BUT WARNER was not the only factor in the Franklin win.

nine points, while senior forward Julianne Steslak added eight points.

--- "People just-can't key on Dawn,"... said the Franklin coach. "Patty can shoot the ball, but she understands her role. And with Julianne, we have three pretty good perimeter play-

Another factor in the Patriots' win was the play of senior center Jenny Mayle, who despite fouling out midway through the fourth quarter and scoring only three points, helped keep Canton's sophomore center Stephanie Gray under wraps.

Gray, who had been on a roll of late, was limited to seven points.

"This game was won by defense," said Franklin coach Dan Freeman. "Gray hurt us, and we didn't do a good job against her the last time."

Franklin freshman coach Mary Kay McNall-Whalen, the former 6foot-3: Franklin All-Stater who played at Michigan State and the University of Detroit, assumed Gray's role in practice during the week.

"We had Mary Kay worked against Jenny," Freeman said. "Mary Kay worked her hard. Basically we felt that we wanted Gray to work hard."

WARNER opened the game by scoring a layup and converting a free throw after getting fouled for a three-point play.

The Patriots led 11-6 with 2:32 in the opening quarter after a 16-foot jumper by Shea, but Canton took a 12-11 lead at the end of the period on a shot inside by Julie Nicastri.

"I thought we came back in that first quarter and played some solid basketball," said Canton coach Bob

Junior point-guard Patty Shea Blohm, whose team slipped to 12-7 played a strong game, finishing with overall. "The feeling was that we got some good shots and our intensity was good. "But the second quarter was tough on us." The second quarter, where Canton was outscored 13-4, proved painful, as well as the third period when Franklin opened up a 43-19 lead.

Behind eight points from Amy Westerhold, Canton mounted a mild rally in the final period. The Chiefs pulled within nine, 48-39, with 1:16 left on a basket by Mary Barna, but it was simply too little, too late.

(Britta Anderson paced the Chiefs with 10 points.)

"The game became a thing where we started to play in a big hurry, and then we seemed to be out of sync," said Blohm. "Credit Franklin's defense. Shea did a nice job on Barna.

"They also got the ball to Dawn on time. She sent an early message that she was ready to play, but her teammates also set some great screens for her.''

THE YOUNG CHIEFS, who fell to 12-7 overall, will play at 5 p.m. Saturday against host Northville for third place in the WLAA.

"It was a blg game (against Franklin) because it was a semifinal, there was some pressure," Blohm said. "Franklin handled the pressure better than our young kids did, but you can't fault the effort. The execution just wasn't there. But they'll hang in and bounce back."

Franklin now has a chance to avenge another (overtime) loss earlier against Salem in Saturday's

Late basket saves Lutheran Westland girls, 51-49

"We came out and played very flat," Westland Lutheran Coach Kim Melton said. "We took them lightly. They tried a box-and-one on Stephanie, but when she had the ball they were in trouble."

"We've played several close games in the past and we've lost," Livonia Stevenson Coach Chuch Hebestreit said. "It was nice to put 53 points on the board and win.

"We had Patty Diamond guarding Eve (Claar) when she didn't have the ball and we doubled her when she did get the ball. The third quarter (when she scored 12 points) took a toll

CHURCHILL 41, JOHN GLENN 39: Sophomore guard Chrissy Daly scored 18 points and senior guard Lori Place added nine points and seven assists Tuesday, powering host Livonia Churchill over Westland John Glenn.

Junior center Cathy Mruk led John Glenn, which is 7-12, with 15 points. Senior forward Karen Olack contributed eight points. Churchill, which improved to 9-10, hung on despite being outscored 11-4 in the fourth quarter.

'I think it shows there's a tremendous soccer fan base in Detroit. This is the ultimate challenge, that's for sure.'

Rockers use local flavor

By Stove Kowalski staff writer

Jim Duggan, the chief executive officer of the Detroit Rockers professional indoor soccer team, hasn't had dreams about Saturday's home opener against the Milwaukee Wave.

Why not? "I don't sleep," said Duggan, 29, a Livonia native who graduated from Redford Catholic Central.

Duggan's exaggerating, of course. But he's not kidding about spending 12 hours a day at the Rockers office on Eight Mile Road and Newburgh in Livonia.

All the work put in by the Rockers staff seems to be paying off. Duggan said the Rockers have sold about 800 season tickets, which ranks the organization second in the National Professional Soccer

He expects about 5,000 fans to attend the season opener, which begins at 7:35 p.m. Saturday at Cobo

"No team has ever done that in their first year," said Duggan, who graduated from Michigan State University with a degree in psychology. "I think it shows there's a tremendous soccer fan base in Detrolt. This is the ultimate challenge, that's for sure. Between (public relations director) Ian Parratt and (financial director) Janet Stecher, they've laid some incredible ground work for a foundation."

FREE ROCKERS posters will be handed out at the season opener to the first 3,000 youngsters under 16, Duggan said. WDFX's morning crew of Savage and Steve will do the announcing, and Wide Angle, a band out of Livonia, will be the halftime entertainment, he said.

Among the attractions on the field are Drago, the Yugoslavian native who set an NPSL record last year with 167 points, and Andy Chapman, a former star player with the Detroit Express outdoor team. Also on the roster is goalkeeper Chris Moore, of Livonia, who starred at Redford Catholic Central and Schoolcraft College.

The team is owned by Livonia resident Paul Scicluna (president), Gus Moffat (general manager) and Brian Tinnion (head coach).

"The management this time is a little more flexible (than the Express)," said Chapman, 31, who played last year with the Wichita Wings of the Major Indoor Soccer League. "It seems years ago, the owners were soccer people who knew nothing about business or business people who know nothing about soccer. Now we've got both knowledges. Paul is the type of person who if he wants something bad enough he'il get it. And he wants to surround himself with people who want the same things."

Scicluna realizes dream

GIVE ME FREEDOM,

NOT SHELTER Scicluna spent the first seven years of his life in a shelter in Malta with his 10 brothers, two sisters and parents Joseph and Josephine.

Since only the head of the family worked in Malta, the Sciclunas survived or their father's $18 a week job as a marble sculpturer and pol-

The Sciclunas didn't have electricity until 1953.

"Anyone who had more than one pair of shoes, one dress of clothes and more than one meal a day was considered well-to-do," recalls Scicluna. "Life was dictated. If you were born poor, you die poor. There was no middle class."

As for his one meal a day?

"We started out Monday with boiled spaghetti and margarine," says Scicluna. "On Tuesday we'd have spaghetti with tomato sauce; On Wednesday we'd have spaghetti with butter and vegetable oil.

"Thursday was leftover day. By this time, maybe our chicken would have laid an egg and my mom would mix it with our leftover spaghetti and we'd have a spaghetti omelette."

Meat was so scarce he remembers eating it only about once a month. "Here you pet your bunnies on Easter," Scicluna said. "In our country you eat them." Raised in a strict Catholic family, Scicluna remembers skipping mass on occasion to play soccer with his brothers and other friends. Come to think of it, Scicluna played soccer in place of almost anything. If his parents got word of it, punishment was in the form of a beating, or chores around the house. Scicluna doesn't regret the beating since it was the custom in Malta. "I didn't go a week without a beating," Scicluna said. "I didn't say, 'Go ahead and beat me more.' But since I loved the game so much, it was worth getting beat." As for the chores, his mother sometimes made him do the cooking and laundry. "They always had to keep me occupied," recalls Scicluna. "I could cook, do the laundry and write our (Maltese) language. It's the only reason my mother sent me over (to the states) earlier than most of my fami-

A NEW BEGINNING On July 16, 1955, Paul, his brother Eddie and their father got a visa and settled into a Detroit apartment on 910 West Kirby Ave., which is where the Wayne State University football stadium stands today.

"The first day I was too busy being scared to death," he says. "The second day my brother and dad went to work, and the third day I took off for a walk and enjoyed it so much, I got lost.

"It was late at night and a police officer saw me. I didn't know English, but I assume he said 'What are you doing out here this late?' I pulled out a piece of paper in my pocket with my address on it. I wasn't educated, but I wasn't dumb."

Scicluna found his way home and a few days later found a job at the Kay Danzer Flower Shop located in the Book Cadillac Hotel in downtown Detroit. Scicluna made only 50 cents an hour, 70 hours a week as head mopper.

He attended Western High School in Detroit for awhile but dropped

"I (basically) was self-taught," he says. "I learned to read and write in six months. I wasn't going to be a poet, but I got by."

His first love was the flower shop. "I saw a different style of life," he says. "Big cars, superstars. I got to pin corsages on Jacquelyn Kennedy, Betty Davis, boutonnieres on the Nixons, Kennedys. After five or six vears. I loved it."

By 1957, when most of his brothers arrived in Detroit, Sciciuna and Gordon Preston formed the first youth soccer league in the country. Scicluna's team was called the Maltese Falcons, which had nine Sciclunas on it.

Soccer players got weird stares in

"Whenever I had a bad day, I'd just grab the old round ball and bounce it on my head and I was happy again," Scicluna sald. "People around here thought I was crazy."

PRIVATE SCICLUNA Scicluna's first major disappointment in the U.S. didn't come until Nov. 19, 1963, when he was drafted.

"My brothers told me, 'Don't worry, they're not going to draft you, you're too small,' "Scicluna said. "Sure enough, the little runt got drafted."

So it was off to Fort Knox, Ky., where he stayed two years. And wouldn't you know it, "It was the best experience of my life," he said.

"For the first time, I knew what a • southerner was. I'd talk to people,

'What I like most about him is his desire and determination to win. Maybe that's why he and I hit it off."

visit places, and realized every country had poor people, I visited a guy who lived in the Appalachlan Mountains. My country was very poor, but very clean. I could not say that about Appalachia."

When Scicluna was discharged, he returned to his job at Kay Danzer and in time was in charge of dispatch. In 1966, he married wife Sandra and by 1969 the two purchased a flower shop in Livonia.

Scicluna opened two more flower shops in the area and with them flourishing, he helped start the Livonia YMCA Youth Soccer League in 1974 along with David Lussier, Louie Zeches and Norene Divens. There were 13 teams in the opening season and by 1979 the league had grown to more than 200.

Scicluna also has had stints coaching both Livonia Bentley and Redford Catholic Central and in the early '80s opened the Total Soccer facilitles in Farmington Hills, Royal Oak. St. Clair Shores and Southfield.

One of his club teams, which included his son Eric, won a national championship in 1982.

"He spends all his time on the soccer field," Sandra Scicluna said. "It's almost like we loan him out. He always said he wanted to own his own team so we're excited for him."

The sudden death in 1984 of their 8-year-old son. Brian, devastated the Scicluna family and Paul said he might not have recovered were it not for soccer.

"All I can tell you is it was the roughest time of my life," Paul said, fighting back tears. "That's why this game helps me in more ways than one. I've been blessed at being able to do what I want to do — teaching and coaching kids how to play. I'm for the kids.'

DREAM BECOMES REALITY It is Tuesday, a week prior to the Rockers' season opener in New York and Sciciuna is watching the teator practice at the Total Soccer West Complex in Farmington Hills, He spots Claire Tuite, one of the maintenance workers, who is sweeping the floor and getting the arena ready for, another night of youth indoor games.-Sciciuna tells her — to the surprise of a reporter — that he,

swept the day before.
"Oh yeah," Tuite said. "He gets on his hands and knees and isn't afraid. to get dirty.'

"The day I feel I can't sweep or pick up cigarette buts - that's the day Sciciuna really retires," he says.

Practice ends and Sciciuna runs into Drago, one of the Rockers star, players, who is coming off a recent hand injury.~

The two shake each other's hand. "I see your hand's all right, be cause you're squeezing again," Scicluna says to Drago. The two share a laugh.

"Drago is magle," Scicluna says, "What I like most about him is his desire and determination to win. Maybe that's why he and I hit it off.

"To me, they're all my family. As long as you show sincerity and loyal."

Drago, the Most Valuable Player of the league's all-star game last year held at Joe Louis Arena, became a free agent and signed during the summer with the Rockers. The two met at the all-star game and became instant friends.

"There's one reason I came to Dea troit and that's Paul," said Drago. "He's definitely a different kind of owner. He's a player's owner. Every single second - not day - he's there for you to call him if you need his help. He has all the respect as an owner, but he's also a friend."

The Rockers home opener is at 7:35 p.m. Saturday against the Milwaukee Wave at Cobo Arena. Scicluna compares it to the first time he opened his doors of his first flower shop in Livonia.

"This is unbelievable," Sciclung said. "It's not a dream, it's really happening. It's like running a flower shop. If I give people good service and their money's worth and treat them fair, things will work out.

"When I play, work or want some. thing done, I feel I'm six feet tall." ;

. The start of the season always brings hope for the Ocelots. It's at the January semester break, after first-semester grades are announced, that ever "hing falls apart.

But SC coach Dave Bogataj remains staunchly optimistic. He has 12 players on his roster, including sophomore Randy Watters, a secondteam all-Eastern Conference selection last season. And he's certain they'll make both the playing grade and academic grades necessary to make this season successful.

Improvements—on last season's team, which finished 11-20 overall and 4-12 in the conference, are in every phase, said Bogataj. And that includes Watters.

The 6-5 scorer averaged 19 points, 8.8 rebounds and four assists a game as a freshman, making 65 percent of his two-point shots, 55 percent from three-point range and 84 percent from the free-throw line. "HE'S VERY unselfish," said Bogataj of his star. "He shoots to score, not just to feel the ball roll off his fingers. He's really tough because of that, because he does give it up. He's physically stronger this year and has worked on his quickness. Unlike last season, however, Watters won't be expected to carry the load himself. Bogataj thinks he has all sorts of weapons to summon. "We have greater depth," the SC coach said. "And basketball-wise, we have some real good athletes. We're quicker and our bench is much college sports

S'craft men's cagers formidable

'Last year, we lost 10 games by five points or less. I think our bench can turn that around. If we can make half of those wins, suddenly we're

True, he can't be accused of overly high expectations. But reaching the break-even point is something SC hasn't managed in Bogataj's three previous seasons.

One other starter returns from last season's team, and three other sophomores join the squad. The second starter is 6-6 forward Dave Hamilton, who averaged nine points and four rebounds a game last year. Bogataj is hopeful the other sophomores - Marcus Lowe, Barry Quayle and Andy Stevens - will add maturity to his team.

LOWE, A 6-2 Westland John Glenn grad, played one season at Madonna College before the school dropped men's basketball. He'll become eligible at the semester break. Stevens, a 6.5 Plymouth Christian grad, played two years ago for SC; Quayle, a 6-6 Dearborn Fordson grad, just walked into the gym one day last summer and asked if he could play. Bogataj has an impressive list of freshmen, too: Charles Perkins, a 6-1 point guard from Detroit Northern who plays solid defense; Jeff Wagner, a 6-2 guard from Flat Rock who possesses good quickness and sound fundamentals; Lynell Collins, a 6-3 guard from Southfield who has tremendous speed and jumping ability; Tony Flowers, another 6-3 small forward from Detroit Henry Ford who plays better inside than out; Mitch Fyke, a 6-6 forward from Plymouth Canton who is a great leaper and scorer; Kwesi McGill, a 6-4 swingman who averaged 30 points a game and is an above average passer and defensive player, and Scott Meredith, a 6-6 forward from Northville who's tough inside.

"Our quickness (is a strength)," said Bogataj. "We're much quicker than last year, top to bottom. And we're better athletes. We have more kids who can score."

THE BIGGEST question mark is rebounding. 'The board work is up in the air,' the SC coach said. "It's still a question mark. We don't have that one Windex man, a guy you can say, 'Hey, he'll own (the boards).'."

Bogataj is-confident his team won't be outclassed by the opposition this season, as it has been in past years. "It seems we'll be able to match up size-wise with most teams in the area." he said optimistically.

Except maybe Mott CC. And Oakland CC. Bogataj called Mott "huge. They're the biggest team in the league, with Derrick Groce." But Bogataj called OCC "the best team in the league." However, whatever team is in first may not be that much better than the team in last place in the Eastern Conference. "The team that ends up on the bottom won't be a bad team. It's going to be a topsy-turvy league. I can't even see OCC going undefeated."

Just how well SC matches up with the frontrunners won't take long to uncover. The Ocelots host OCC in their conference opener Dec. 12, then travel to Mott Dec. 15.

"We'll find out real quick how good we are," said Bogataj. And hopefully, the team will keep its academics in order long enough to make it through the season, at least.

Don't accuse Rob Diffanbaugh of being a juggler, but life gets a little complicated when you're balancing three different careers.

There's Rob Diffanbaugh, the Schoolcraft College student. Or how about Rob Diffanbaugh, the baseball card collector who works in a coin

And finally there's Rob Diffanbaugh, the boxer, who recently returned from the National Police Athletic League Tournament in Jersey City, N.J., reaching the semifinals in the 147-pound open division. The 19-year-old Livonian, a 1989

Stevenson High grad, returned home to his training base, the Livonia Boxing Club, with encouraging results.

Johnson from the upper peninsula both decisions— before losing to 20year-old Sean Daughtry of New York City (on a decision).

"I was very happy with his performance, considering it was his first national tournament," said LBC director Paul Soucy. By the time he faced Daughtry, the Livonia boxer was feeling the effects of fighting three times in three "I GOT OUT-POINTED and I think it was because I was worn out from the first couple of fights," Diffanbaugh said. "I couldn't lift my arms up and my shoulders were killing me. "I went in there not knowing what to expect, but even though I lost, I'm still happy with what I did. It shows that I can go with the best. But it's tough still working and going to school.'

Diffanbaugh may take next semester off from Schoolcraft to train seriously in preparation for the National Golden Gloves, which will be held in early March.

"I've got to get through Detroit (area finals) first, and if I do, I know I can compete with anyone," said the Livonian. Diffanbaugh's next plan of attack is to hit the weights, increasing his upper body strength. "I need to get stronger fighting and then work on my speed," he said.

1-ring circus Ringmaster still thrills to action of Moscow Circus

The Moscow Circus continues through Sunday at the Palace of Auburn Hills. Tickets are available at the box office (377-8600) and all Tici etmaster outlets.

By Cathleen Collins Los special writer

REATHTAKING TRAPEZE and high-wire acts, clever trained bears, horsemen hanging dangerously close to the ground near thundering hooves. Yan Narosov, ringmaster with the Moscow Circus, sees these things every day. But there is a moment in the circus that never fails to move him.

The last act of the circus is a poignant aerial ballet called "Flying Cranes," based on the story of a Soviet soldier who died in World War II - and by extension all soldiers. In the song, the spirits of the soldiers are likened to cranes soaring to the sky.

They are portrayed by 10 performers in simple white leotards who fly to the ceiling on ropes. Once there, they perform some stunning acrobatics on trapeze swings, including the rare quadruple somersault. The graceful movements, the Wagnerian score, the fog and the lighting combine with powerful effect.

"I hear that song every night, three times on Saturday and two times on Sunday," Narosov said. "I still get the goosebumps every time. It's quite a scene."

NAROSOV'S SINCERE admiration for the Moscow Circus makes him a perfect candidate for ringmaster, a job that requires lots of enthusiasm and personality. Narosov. 29, seems to have plenty of both.

"I fit the job perfectly," he said with a good-humored laugh. "I've got that kind of personality. I'm outgoing and I like people. You've got to like people."

audience responded to the circus. "I love to hear the oohs and ahs and treat," he remembers. "You would laughs and 'Mommy looks!' " he said.

who kept burying her face in her hands. I finally went up to her and said, 'Don't worry, it's not that scary. They do this every day."

The Moscow Circus, well into its third annual tour of the United States, has indeed been performing almost every day since June. Produced by American entertainment entrepreneur Steve Leber, it is one of more entertaining bonuses of the warmer relationship between the two countries. The circus brings to American audiences the best of a rich Soviet tradition that goes back several centuries and has become a national pastime.

Almost 100 Soviets and a dozen or so Americans and Canadians, plus assorted family members, travel with the circus in a grueling schedule that often has them appearing in a city every week. A single ring is the background for everything from bears to acrobats.

AMONG THE MOST noted acts are the endearing clown Alexander Frish, a troupe of 13 Ukrainian acrobats who tumble from teeter boards on 10-foot stilts, and Diana Keseeva, who twirls up to 24 hula hoops. The Dyusembayev troupe demonstrates Cossack horsemanship while brandishing swords in a furious ride around the ring. And the Abakharov family does everything from the splits to multiple forward and backward flips on the high wire.

The Soviet circus is a tradition that began in the early 18th century when tumblers, dancers and performing bears traveled from town to town to perform at fairs and markets. Today, performers spend eight years training at a select circus school, then join one of 100 troupes throughout the country. Nearly 100 million Soviets attend the circus every year.

Narosov, who was born in the Soviet Union and emigrated here with his family 11 years ago, fondly re-Narosov delights in watching the calls attending the circus about once a month as a child. The circus re-entered Narosov's life last year when clown Sasha Frish visited Dallas, where Narosov served as Frish's interpreter, and the two found they worked well together. Narosov worked as Frish's interpreter for a while, then traveled with a couple and their bear Kensha, promoting the circus on radio shows and at shopping malls. All in all, they drove across the country six

"She was very smart. She knew over 25 tricks," he said. "She was doing skateboarding on the beach walk in San Diego with all the rest of the kids. She was not quite as good as the rest of them, but almost.'

WHEN THE CIRCUS needed a new ringmaster last month, Narosov got the job. Although he relishes his moments in the spotlight, he enjoys his many behind-the-scenes jobs as Narosov was very fond of the well. He helps set up and take down the circus — an enormous job — is bears get their water. I like that," he the lighting engineer for several acts and helps tend the animals.

"I help set up and break down, and deal with whatever happens in between," Narosov said. "And let me tell you, a lot can happen in between."

"I'm not one to come in and punch the computer all day," he said.

"One minute I'm playing with the Yellow Pages looking for a vet. The next minute I'm worrying about the technical stuff or making sure the about"

added later.

For Narosov, it's all worthwhile when he step into the ring and brings the circus to the audiences. For him, American audiences and the Moscow Circus are a great combination.

"Americans are brought up to express their emotions," he said. "They, scream, they whistle, they yell, they clap. It's such a difference between Soviet audiences. When I was there, it was disrespectful to whistle. But here we just express what we feel. And there's a lot to whistle and cheer

Brilliant comedic moments mingled with interludes of prosaic theater characterized the opening night production of the Plymouth Theatre Guild's "You Can't Take It With You."

What drives this popular comedy by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman is the clash of family differences. The play takes place in the home of the Sycamores. Most anything goes here. From fireworks in the basement to printing presses in the living room. It just might be the world's greatest collection of screwballs and loonies.

Then we have the very rich, very proper, stuffed-shirt Kirbys. In the middle we have a budding romance between Alice Sycamore and Tony Kirby, both of whom can't appologize fast enough for their families' eccentricities.

Kathleen Lietz (Alice) and Frank Markus (Tony) look good and perform well together as about the only "normal" people on stage.

There is, however, an artificial quality to their embarrassment about their families. It isn't so much their fault as the uneven characterizations and pacing of the show.

COMEDY IN general, and zany comedies in particular, have to be played at a dizzying pace and highenergy level. "You Can't Take It With You" when performed to the Others who are in the spirit of the evening most of the time include Tim Courtney as the Federal Agent, Russell Dore as Mr. Kirby, Steve Katz as Donald and Bobble Judd as the Grand Duchess.

The pyrotechnics of Mr. DePinna and Paul Sycamore are very effective. Perhaps flash paper would be a better choice than powder to cut down on the smoky after-effects.

Director Al LaCroix also designed the set, and it is one of PTG's better eforts in recent years.

Buildings reveal much about city's culture, heritage

By Linda Ann Chomin special writer

RCHITECTURE IS the storyteller of civilizations. An entire culture reveals its ethics, government and religious practices through its architectural style.

The fall of a great empire, world war and fire destroy the means by which a culture or society leaves its mark for future generations to study and grow. This was especially true for time periods before the advent of photography and preservation by written documentation came to be practiced arts.

In 1858, fire destroyed the entire block of Main Street, opposite Kellogg Park, in downtown Plymouth, taking with it the history of a period when wood buildings were erected for functional purposes by wild frontier ploneers.

Shortly thereafter, small dry goods and groceries began to rebuild. By 1869, Amity Hall, along architectural facade remained," with Starkweather's general store, Thomas May's grocery, Root's torical Museum director. Drug Store and Steel's Jewelry opened for business.

IN 1893, tragedy again struck the block between Ann Arbor Street (now Ann Arbor Trail) and Sutton (named Penniman in 1910). A fire destroyed entire buildings, such as Amity Hall, while gutting

VAAL unveils fall art exhibit winners

By Noreon Flack staff writer

The tranquil colors flowing from "Yellow Truck," a landscape painting by Eileen Bibby of Livonia, is a scene from "one of those favorite places," she said.

Bibby, who took first prize in the watercolor category for "Yellow Truck" in the fall art show of the Visual Arts Association of Livonia, has a soft spot for painting in the Leelanau Peninsula.

"It's a real happy place to paint," she said.

THE SKY is pale with jesters of clouds and leaves float gracefully in the surrounding water. "I introduced many colorful jesters on my own, which leaves the viewer to decide what to think," she said.

"I had been doing oil and acrylics for a long time and then everyone kept saying, 'Why not try watercolor?,' "said Bibby, a seven-year VAAL member.

"And now I find watercolor to be much more enjoyable because it's so much more challenging. If you make a mistake with oil and acrylics, you can change it. With watercolor, you have to live with what you do."

The fall show features oil and watercolor paintings and collages that were judged in an October VAAL competition at an art instruction classroom at Jefferson Center, Livonia.

OTHER WINNERS include Agnes Hodge of Northville who won best of show for her painting, "Poples." Irene Kallas of Dearborn Heights won first prize in oil for "Woman in Hat." V. Janus Benda of Farmington Hills won first prize in mixed media for "Pink and Most of the artwork on display is for sale.

"These people are not amateurs by any rate," said Ruthann Platt, VAAL publicity director for the show. "They have all been in the art area for quite a number of years."

VAAL offers a variety of classes ranging from one-day to six-week sessions at an adult level. Classes include watercolor, oil, monotype, drawing, art critiquing, flower design, collage and others.

Although most members have some art experience, beginners are welcome, Bibby said.

VAAL's open painting session on Wednesday afternoon is a good way to "get away" for the afternoon and paint with other artists (no instructors) in a nice relaxing atmosphere, Bibby added.

"The show is offered for the community's enjoyment while promoting local artists' work," Platt said. "The show also offers us exposure, letting the community know about our classes."

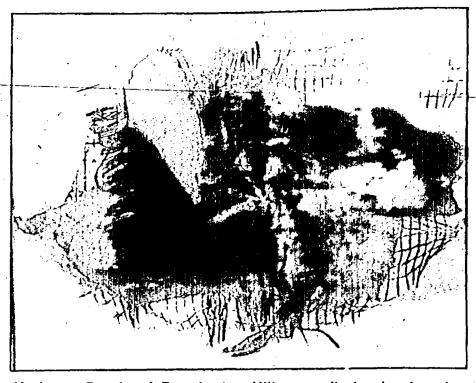

VAAL is the only non-profit organization in western Wayne County to offer art instruction classes. Classes, held in Jefferson Center, are open to non-members. For more information on VAAL, call Marge Masek at 464-6772.

'Nutcracker' returns

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra's popular holiday production of Tchaikovsky's "The Nutcracker" returns to the Fox Theatre for 15 performances, beginning Friday, Dec. 14, and running through Wednesday, Dec. 26.

This year marks the second season of performances at the Fox Theatre in association with Brass Ring Productions and Olympia Arenas, and the 16th season of the DSO's collaboration with Dance Detroit, Iacob Lascu, director/choreogra-

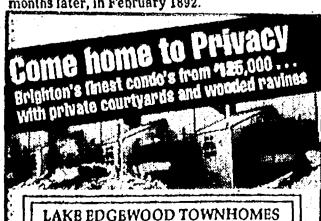

Joining the DSO and Dance Detroit are guest principal dancers from the New York City Ballet: Merrill Ashley and Jock Soto on the evenings of Dec. 19-23; and Melinda Roy and Peter Boal on the evenings of Dec. 14-16, 18 and 26. Principal dancers for the matinee performances will be announced at a later date.

Detroit Symphony associate conductor Leslie B. Dunner leads the orchestra for all 15 performances. The Women of the Detroit Symphony Chorus will provide the off-stage chorus parts at the close of Act I.

FOLLOWING ON the heels of last year's successful performances at The Fox, all this year's "Nutcracker" performances have been moved to the Fox Theatre, representing an on-going collabgrative commitment between three of Detriot's major entertainment institutions to the revitalization of the Woodward Avenue corridor as a major entertainment district.

Tchaikovsky composed the "The Nutcracker," his third and last ballet, in 1891-92 on a commission from the director of St. Petersburg's Imperial Theatre, Prince Vsevolozhsky, and the celebrated choreographer Marius Petipa.

Work on the score was interupted briefly by his highly publicized trip to the United States to pardicipate in the opening concerts dedicating Carnegie Hall. "The Nutcracker" was completed nine months later, in February 1892.

THE DELIGHTFUL story of "The Nutcracker" has enchanted audiences of all ages since its premiere in 1892. A young girl, Clara, is given a nutcracker doll for Christmas. During the night, the doll comes to life to lead the toy soldiers in a battle with the house mice, led by the mouse king. As the nutcracker is about to be attacked by the king, Clara strikes and kills the mouse with her slipper, and the nutcracker turns into a prince and invites her to accompany him to the Kingdom of Sweets as her reward.

There, she is entertained by the subjects of the court, before she awakens to realize it was all a grand dream.

"Nutcracker" ballet performances at the Fox Theatre are part of the 1990 DSO Christmas Festival, which includes six other family presentations at Orchestra Hall.

Tickets are, $24, $21 and $17. Matinees are half price for children 12 and younger and senior citizens 60 and older.

Plymouth Symphony to 'Jazz It Up'

By Linda Ann Chomin special writer

On Friday, Nov. 9, the enchanting sounds of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra in fusion with the magical melodies of jazz flutist Alexander Zonjic, will cast a spell upon the audience in the Plymouth Salem High School Auditorium, 46181 Joy, Can-Zonjic is set to join forces with the Plymouth Symphony, under Russell Reed's direction, to perform music from Mozart to Mangione. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Fresh from a New York recording studio, Zonjic and his ensemble will be featured guest artists for the second concert of the Plymouth Symphony's 45th anniversary season.

The evening's program, "Jazz It Up," includes the music of Mozart's "Flute Concerto No. 2 in D Major" and jazz favorites, Take Five, Bellavia, Spain and Sentimentale.

"Living It Up," an overture written by native Detroiter Michael Ruczczynski, leads off the program, followed by Antonin Dvorak's "Symphony No. 8 in G Major."

The evening, divided equally between classical and jazz compositions, brings together Zonjic's two Zonjic is the solo flutist for the evening's third selection, "Flute Concerto No. 2 in D Major" by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart.

ZONJIC SAID he was "looking forward to performing with the Plymouth Symphony because I've heard wonderful things about them."

He said he believes "community symphonies are of great importance because of what they bring to a community and because of what the community brings to it."

Born in Windsor, Zonjic at age 21, picked up a flute for the first time. In pursuit of proficiency for his newly discovered passion, he returned to school, where he earned a bachelor of music degree at the University of Windsor.

Zonjic estimates he has "been on the Detroit music scene around 10 years." In 1978, he released the first of five albums, "Alexander Zonjic," followed by "Romance With You," "Elegant Evening" and "When Is It

Zonjic's recording with Ervin Monroe, principal flutist of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, is "The Classical Album."

Recently, Zonjic said, he was "in New York, putting some finishing touches on the new album." His sixth album is entitled, "Hi Falutin."

"The new album was recorded in Los Angeles, New York and Detroit," Zonjic said. "It's a lot different than what I've done because there are vocals on it - some lead vocals, some background."

"Bob James and Hiram Bullock re two of the featured artists on the new album," he said.

Zonjic plans to release it by year's

Rico. On Sunday, Zonjic and James leave for a tour of Mexico.

The Alexander Zonjic Quintet consists of Andre Hawkins on drums, Nathan Brown on bass guitar, Pete Martinez on keyboards, Lorenzo Brown on percussion and, of course, Zonjic and his magic flute.

Music in the hands of Zonjic seems intuitively charged with feeling and emotion. He has the ability and artistry to express himself in magical intensity. His music, like love, is easier to experience than to explain.

Russian composer Igor Stravinsky said, "Music to me is a power that justifies things."

Zonjic's music, as an art, is based on the sensuous beauty of lyrical

From Mozart's Flute Concerto No. 2 in D Major to the hauntingly beautiful and mysterious, "Bellavia," the evening's program promises to be filled with the quicksilver sounds of Alexander Zonjic's flute, united with the dynamic Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Russell Reed, to create a romantic evening of pure fantasy.

Tickets are $10 adults, $9 seniors, $5 students K-12. Call the PSO office at 451-2112. The boxoffice opens 30 minutes before the curtain rises.

Farmington club will show fine art

The Farmington Artists Club will host a fall fine art exhibit Wednesday-Saturday, Nov. 14-17, at Nardin Park United Methodist Church, 29887 11 Mile, west of Middlebelt, Farmington Hills.

The annual exhibit introduces the community to high-quality original fine art created by professional and semiprofessional members of the Farmington Artists

Many of the members are prominent professional artists who enjoy statewide and nationwide recogni-

a variety of techniques, media and prices. The exhibit features three sections:

ARTWORK WILL be offered in

• Juried gallery — about 100 • Open gallery - about 100

• Budget-priced, unframed section - about 130 works. "Exhibits of this type by local artists significantly contribute to the community's cultural climate while providing an opportunity for the artists to display their varied talents," said Gloria Gerber, publicity chairwoman.

A DRAWING Saturday, Nov. 17, will feature 10 paintings donated by club members. Tickets may be bought at the show.

Drawing proceeds will go to the Farmington Art Foundation, which sponsors "Picture Lady," an art appreciation program in Farmington elementary schools and the senior citizen art classes, taking place weekly at Mercy Center in Farmington Hills.

The show will include complimentary refreshments. There is no admission charge.

Exhibit hours are 3-8 p.m. Nov. 14, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Nov. 15-16, and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Nov. 17. A reception will be at 7 p.m. Friday, Nov. 16.

THE JUROR will be Leslie Masters, who earned a B.A. in fine arts from Indiana University and who has done graduate work at IU, Wayne State University and the University of Michigan.

She is now a painting, design and color theory instructor at the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association. She has exhibited in shows throughout the country. She also has been an art critic for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

Architecture provides a historical backdrop

"Built in Italianate style, the rectangular, boxy-type of buildings are of uniform height (generally two-story) with tall, narrow windows, decorated with frieze running along the tops and dentil molding below."

Italianate came into its own during the Romantic time period, 1840-1885. Big-city architecture of the East Coast would filter to the small Midwest towns about 20 years laten Stewart said.

The Palladian windows built during the late 1800s can be seen above what is now Wiltse's Community Pharmacy. The Palladian windows are named after the design of 16thcentury Italian architect Andrea Palladio. Thomas Jefferson was one of Palladio's admirers.

"Luckily, Palladio recorded many of his designs," Stewart said. "The plans were circulated through cata-

USING CATALOG plans and creative ingenuity, Plymouth built its late-19th-century Italianate architecture. Pattern books and catalogs were popular with American families and small businesses that could not afford to hire an architect.

In the 1880s, magazines such as Good Housekeeping and Ladies' Home Journal published pattern books. Through these magazines, a reader could order working drawings and specifications.

Sears Roebuck and Co. not only sold plans for structures, but the materials to build them with as well lumber, shingles, plumbing, heating and mill work.

The 19th-century Eclecticism movement, of which Italianate was a part, defined the architecture of businesses and homes in Plymouth. Buildings contained design elements of many different styles, not only Italianate, but Queen Anne, and Richardsonian Romanesque.

On the corner of Main and Penniman, Michael Conner opened a hardware store in a wooden structure in 1857. Although it is not known when he constructed the Queen Anne style building with the semi-circular tower, photographs taken between the fire of 1893 and the year 1900 show the unique brick building as existent. The architecture of "Conner's is one of the most notable features of the second floor, was supported by a brick beam.

"Towers placed at a front facade corner are a common feature of Queen Anne," Stewart said. "The half-tower, blended into the building with a continuous roof line, was popular in the 1870s and 1880s."

"Henry Hobson Richardson of Boston was widely published at that time," Stewart said.

He also could have influenced the style (of Conner's Hardware) because his style of architecture design, Richardsonian Romanesque, was very popular, she added.

In 1990, the basic architectural structure that once housed Conner's Hardware appears with near exactness to the brick business built in the 1890s, except for the noticeable absence of the wooden balustrade, an ornamentation that ran along the

When considering the style of late-19th-century architecture in Plymouth, or in young America as a whole, the importance of function is considerable.

Eclecticism movement during this period, Plymouth's architecture was shaped by vernacular building, or building strictly for utilitarian pur-

"After the fire, there's no unity," Stewart said. "It's architecture for structure."

In downtown Plymouth on Penniman, there are two-story businesses built alongside three-story structures. If the width of a store was too narrow, the owner simply built up. In 1896, architect Louis Sullivan was quoted as saying, "form ever follows function." Early in the 20th century, architect Frank Lloyd Wright, a student of Sullivan's, concurred, stating, "form and function are one."

The architecture of Main Street USA, built in the late 19th century, is designed in Italianate style with uniform rows of two- and three-story structures lining its main thorough-

Italianate design borrowed Northern Italy's rural architecture, com-

A DOMINANT characteristic of main street architecture in small cities and towns is a centrally located bank to serve the retail sector.

In 1920, Plymouth United Savings built a bank on the corner of Main Street and Penniman in Classical Revival style, which was a later stage of the Beaux-Arts tradition. Paired Ionic columns adorn the facade of the bank.

Thomas Jefferson was the founding father of institution design in America. The classical temple style of public and government buildings was rooted deeply in American architecture by Jefferson.

Before the advent of painting and. sculpture in a culture, architecture must come first. It must pave the way, to protect, to serve and to. house society. Without architecture," man quite possibly could not exist. ...

Plymouth recently appointed a committee to study the idea of thepreservation of a historical district. "The desire and interest is there to preserve," Stewart said.

After the American Revolution in: the last quarter of the 18th century, American culture freed itself from. the building style of England. It is with hope, that the story of Plymouth's history will survive to inform future generations.

Performances at 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 23, and 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 24, at Orchestra Hall.

• The DSO presents the first six performances of its 1990-91 educational concert series at 10:15 and 11:30 a.m. Monday-Wednesday, Nov. 12-14, and Thursday, Dec. 13, at Orchestra Hall. •

Under the direction of associate conductor Leslie Dunner, the DSO presents a program entitled "Water Music," featuring orchestral selections by Handel, Mendelssohn, Offenbach, Coleridge-Taylor and Smeta-

The series offers free concerts for school children. About 16,000 children will attend these concerts.

• The Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall Michigan Artists Recital Series opens with a recital by violinist Michelle Makarski, winner of the 1989 Carnegie Hall American Music Competition, and planist Brent McMunn at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov.

The series showcases developing state talent.

• Overtures, a volunteer group of young Detroit-area professionals, exists to build a younger audience for the DSO. Since early 1989, it has combined concerts with pre- or postconcert parties at the Rattlesnake Club, the London Chophouse, the Fox Theatre and other downtown Detroit locations.

For the 1990-91 season, Overtures has scheduled several parties.

A series of musical chats, in suburban locations, also has been scheduled, featuring DSO members discussing musical topics. The first is 7p.m. Thursday, Nov. 15, at Orchestra Hall.

Paul Ganson, DSO assistant principal bassonist, will talk about saving Orchestra Hall. Tickets for the talk, tour and hors d'oeuvres are $15.

Order by Nov. 9. Overtures hopes to introduce younger audience members to classical music in informal, unintimidating settings that will encourage them to become future DSO supporters and subscribers.

Teleconverter: It helps to extend focal length

ing photos at the zoo or of kids in the back yard, and wishing you could bring things in a little closer?

Well, there's an inexpensive piece of equipment that will convert your normal lens into a telephoto and your telephoto into an even longer lens. It's called a teleconverter.

A 2-X teleconverter . . . or extender, as they are sometimes called, is a device that exactly doubles the focal length of your lens. For example, a normal 50mm lens will effectively become a 100mm lens and a 200mm lens will perform like a 400mm lens.

A converter looks like a miniature lens. In seconds, it can be easily inserted between the camera body and your other lens. So be sure to purchase an extender designed for your particular camera brand.

WHAT ARE the advantages of teleconverters? First, you're getting a compact, inexpensive accessory that doubles the focal length of all your lenses. Converters should cost $40-100 depending on the brand of converter and camera.

Second, converters are designed to be compatible with your camera's metering system. This means automatic cameras will still perform automatically and match/needle cameras will still function in the normal way when the converter is attached.

Third, the focusing distance isn't altered by the addition of a converter. Assume you have a 200mm lens on your camera focused on a subject 20 feet away, but the subject isn't quite filling the frame as you would Adding the converter to get an effective 400mm lens will enable you to fill the frame and still focus at 20 feet. This can be highly advantageous under certain picture-taking situations because most 400mm lenses lack capability of focusing at close distances.

WHAT DRAWBACKS do teleconverters have? You lose two f-stops of exposure speed when using a 2-X converter. A subject that requires an aperture of f-16 normally will need f-8 when an extender is added, as-

Have you ever found yourself tak- suming shutter speed remains con-

But while you do lose speed, remember that your camera's meter automatically compensates for the adjustment and proper exposure is always assured.

So far, I've concentrated on the 2-X converter. 3-X extenders that triple the length of your lenses are also available. However, a 3-X may result in loss of picture quality and often a loss of three f-stops is too-

Surround yourself in a home, not a showcase

Personal style has never carried so much weight.

Architectural and interior design trends: The notion suggests following style dictates by smart designers who have a knack for getting their work photographed and published.

But aside from the slick and trendy, what is happening in house design today? If you were planning on decorating your new house, what would make your house look absolutely '90s?

Let's start with the house itself. Warm, real materials are the blggest message coming from designers and homeowners, whose demand is the bottom line.

Wood, for instance, is back. Not dark, walnut-stained paneling, and not pickled and bleached, but just plain, natural wood. The finest finish is a light oil, which lets the beauty of the grain come through. This goes for cabinetry (you'll see a big return to wood in the kitchen), hard wood flooring, post-and-beam structural features and, perhaps soon, the rough wood-shingle exterior look of the '70s.

Stone - it's everywhere. Natural stone (slate, limestone, flagstone, marble and granite) flooring tiles are underfoot and creeping up the walls, covering fireplaces and surrounding doorways. Stone countertops are in huge demand.

Because of this demand, new quarries are opening around the world, expanding the available palette to include gorgeous shades of rose, green, gray and some blues.

INDOORS AND OUT, the look of natural materials on the surfaces we walk on means lots of brick (real brick, not fake "used") and tile, too. Wall-to-wall carpeting has lost out to these natural hard floors, so you'll be seeing more area rugs.

Rush-and-sisal matting is a new/ old floor covering option making a return. Natural-looking, tough wearing and inexpensive, it's a great alternative to carpeting in high-traffic rooms and hallways.

Walls are being stripped down to the (hopefully heavily textured) plaster. Any wallpapering that is being done is in romantic, heavy florals and bold stripes: classic and traditional.

Think white. Not as in cold and contemporary, but as in seaside cottage: warm cream muslin-draped windows and slipcovers for the chairs. It's wonderful with wood.

There is the other extreme to this minimalist, craftsman approach, and that is the return to the very baroque - the big floral flourishes. heavy, tasseled draperies, elaborate crown molding and gilt framing.

Think old Europe. But not stiff and fussy; the very essence of all designs in the '90s is about comfortable surroundings. In an Edwardian room, that might mean thick Wilton-style carpets, an inviting ottoman, a big fireplace.

TRENDS IN furnishing the house come back to this, too: Everything invites touch, makes you want to take a snooze. Brown leather is back, brown in all kinds of furnishings. And if you had to put your finger on the single most important statement in furniture, it would have to be tapestry - heavy, elaborate, in rich earthy colors. Tapestry is good if you have children; very little shows in the way of fingerprints.

Look at the things that concern you today: You'll see a close correlation in design. Who doesn't have the environment on their minds? And so you see a return to earthy, natural colors.

The family - we're reminded again of its importance. So follows the great room off the kitchen, the main gathering place of the house. The living room, although smaller than 20 years ago, isn't off limits to the kids. Rather, furniture accommodates inquisitive hands and dusty sneakers perhaps by being made of leather. The workplace - home offices are a given, but our living spaces have grown softer in reaction to a harder 9-to-5 schedule.

The whole idea is to surround yourself with a house, not a showcase. The houses we build for ourselves for the '90s will be remembered by our grandchildren as warm and comforting - the best place to same time," said Carol Lawson, executive vice president of Herbert Lawson Inc.

"I THINK people who build upwards of $300,000 to $400,000 and up are always looking for something new and different," she said.

But that doesn't mean fancy fixtures will be found in every bathroom of even custom-built homes, Lawson added.

Terrie Koch, project manager for Koch Development of Troy, opted to go back in time when selecting a free-standing tub for the house her family quality of workmanship. built for Homearama.

She chose a cast iron model lined with enamel, brass faucets, oak railing and oak base on a marble platform. The tub, which drew good reviews from showgoers, costs about $4,500. and accents the curved wall."

Every week, more than 500,000 trees are used to produce the two-thirds of newspapers that are never recycled

PETRAK HOMES

American consumers and industry throw away enough aluminum to rebuild our entire commercial aitfleet every three months.

We throw away enough: glass bottles and lars to fill the 1,350 fool twin towers of New York's World Trade Center every two weeks.

We throw away enough iron and steel to continuously supply all the nation's automakers.

The ordinary bag of trash you throw away is slowly becoming a serious problem for everybody.

Not only are we running out of resources to make the products we need, but we're running out of places to put what's left over.

Write the Environmental Defense Fund at: 257 Park Avenue South, New York, NY 10010, for a free brochure that will tell you virtually everything you need to know about recycling.

The few minutes you take to learn how to recycle will spare us all a lot of garbage later.

IF YOU'RE NOT RECYCLING ... YOU'RE THROWING IT ALL AWAY. O 1383 EIVE
