A plan for a two-branch Wayne-Westland district library - with the Westland branch to be built using a $2million state appropriation approved in October - will be studied by the Westland City Council.'

The council Monday appointed a three-member liaison group to meet with the Wayne-Westland Library Board and report back in January on the feasibility of the board's recommendation.

Council members Charles Pickering, Ken Mehl and president Tom Brown will meet with the nine-member library board on a daily basis through December to discuss the feasibility of a joint library and develop a pro-

But the board's recommendation — which calls for the creation of an autonomous agency to oversee the joint library and passage of a tax rate increase to pay for its operation - may not get enthusiastic support from Mayor Robert Thomas.

Thomas Tuesday reiterated his stance that a library millage should be "a last resort."

"Nobody has convinced me yet that a millage is a necessity," Thomas said. "I think it's still to early to even talk about that."

THE MAYOR also said he still favored his original plan to split the current board into separate commissions for each library, although he "was open to sugges-

Shooting raises questions of security, parental input

By Leonard Poger

Wayne-Westland school officials said a shooting of a teenager after Friday night's John Glenn-Ypsilanti High basketball is a tragedy for several reasons.

One is the injury suffered by a Ypsilanti High student, shot in the face by someone with a shotgun outside the school.

The other, said school Superintendent Dennis O'Neill at a school board meeting Monday, is that "something like this can happen in our community. Our school environment reflects what's happening in society and this is one more example of the breakdown we witness every day."

While O'Neill was commenting on the shooting, Westland Police Inspector Michael Frayer told a city council study session Monday that "maybe it's time for a police department liaison to approach the school district and discuss securi-Frayer said that the shooting is the second or third violent incident after a school district athletic event and the first shooting.

"They (the school district) don't have the financial resources to hire additional security and, in this case, I don't know that that would have prevented what happened anyway."

The inspector added that "maybe we need to think about scheduling more afternoon sporting events."

BUT O'NEILL, when questioned

after the board meeting, said there was good security at the game, including two officers in the school and one patrol car outside the building.

He is not considering increasing security for athletic events.

Council douses mayor's 'rainy day fund' plan By Tedd Schnelder

staff writer

A proposal by Mayor Robert Thomas to set up a "rainy day fund" for city emergencies has been put on the back burner by the Westland City Council. Council members Monday decided against immediate action on the proposal. Instead, it will become part of budget deliberations next spring, they decided during a council study session.

Thomas had proposed creating such a fund in a letter to the council last August.

The mayor's plan called for deposit of 25 percent of the remaining $1.9 million city surplus to establish the account. Twenty-five percent of new surplus money at the end of each fiscal year could be added to the account, Thomas said.

Budget stabilization funds, or "rainy day" accounts, are allowable under a 1978 state law.

"The time to establish one of these funds is not when we need it, but when we don't," Thomas said Mon-

HE CITED possible future emergencies such as infrastructure (road or sewer) breakdowns, new laws regarding solid waste disposal and arbitration awards as ways the account could be used to bail the city out of financial trouble. But' Tom Brown, council president, was severely critical of the idea and several other council members weren't enthusiastic about it.

Criticism centered around the state's requirement that money be appropriated from such an account by a two-thirds vote of the city council, rather than a simple majority.

In Westland, five of the seven council members would have to approve expenditures.

"You're setting up a minority government where one person can keep you from paying the bills," Brown said. "The (Westland) city charter requires a 4-3 vote in order to spend

"I think there are other, better ways to accomplish the same thing," Brown sald.

Once created, municipalities may tap into a "rainy day" account only

• Cover a general fund deficit when one is revealed by an annual audit

• Prevent a reduction in the level of public services or city employees if collection of budgeted revenue falls short

• Prevent a reduction in public services or city employees if estimated revenue for the next fiscal year won't cover expenses

• Cover expenses arising because of a natural disaster, including a flood, fire or tornado (exclusive of federal or state aid).

Election winners outraised, outspent challengers

By Tedd Schneider staff writer

Campaign spending by Westland's state House and district court candidates in November's general election followed the recent political path in Michigan.

Victorious incumbents in both races outraised and outspent their challengers by large margins, according to reports filed with the Secretary of State-Elections Divislon and the elections department of the Wayne County Clerk's office.

State Rep. Justine Barns, D-Westland, her Republican challenger Kenneth Raupp and 18th District Judge Thomas G. Smith filed post election campaign finance reports in Lansing by the Dec. 6 deadline.

Sam C. Ayyash, who sought unsuccessfully to unseat Smith, was assessed a $10 fine for filing one day late, a spokeswoman for the state Elections Division said Monday.

The state will forward the reports to Wayne County this month. Barns had $43,688 in contributions and spent $41,192 for her 1990 re-election effort through Oct. 20, according to a final preelection report filed with the county.

RAUPP RAISED and spent $1,757 through Oct. 21, including an $858 loan from himself and his wife, Helene Raupp.

Barns - who easily won a fifth, two-year term with 66 percent of the vote received $12,850 in cash and in-kind contributions in the two months ending Oct. 20.

Major contributors during that period included $2,450 from the Michigan Education Association Political Action Committee; $1,000 from the UAW-Wayne County PAC; and $1,000 from the Michigan Correction Organization PAC.

Barns also received contributions of $400 each from Lynn Hughes of St. Clair Shores and Carl Guaresimo of Harper Woods, Both were listed as owners of a Haper Woods car hauling firm.

Barns also neited $7,300 at an Oct. 11 fund-raiser at Blarney Bay Pub.

Raupp's larger contributions included $150 from the 15th Congressional District Committee in Lansing $100 from the Michigan Republican Party and $50 from the 15th Congressional District Woman's Commilitee.

He also received,$598.78 in-kind money from a shared mailing with Republican Congressional candidate Burl Adkins. An inkind contribution is one consisting of goods or services.

Raupp was making his third bid for the 38th District state House seat. He lost to Barns in 1988 and was beaten by George Erdel in the 1986 Republican primary.

SMITH RAISED $13,160 between his last campaign in 1984 and Nov. 26, according to the reports.

The largest addition to his campaign fund

($11,500) came following a $100 per ticket fund-raiser last September.

Smith, who defeated Ayyash by 82-18 percent, spent $12,068 on his 1990 campaign. Expenses listed in his report included newspaper advertisements, printing cots, pos-tage, an election night party and $419 for a Nov. 15 meeting of his re-election committee at the Chicago Road House restaurant in Dearborn.

Smith returned his surplus of $1,092 to contributors following the election, as required by state law.

Ayyash spent $650 of his own money for the election and had no outside contributions through Oct. 29, according to his re-

Guest has bad manners

A resident on the 2600 block of Brandon reported that a guest attacked her with a pair of scissors Sunday night. 💪 The victim, a 33-year-old woman, was cut on her left arm but not seriously injured in the assault, police said. The woman told police a 16-yearold girl was at the home waiting for a third person about 7 p.m. when the incident occurred.

According to the victim, the girl began going through drawers in the kitchen. When the victim told the guest to stop, an argument broke out and the guest grabbed the scissors from an open drawer and stabbed her, the victim said.

Coat, cash stolen

A homeowner on the 30700 block of Somerset told police someone broke into his house Saturday and stole a leather coat with $500 cash in the pocket.

The coat was worth about $300, the man sald.

The man told police he returned home at 8:15 p.m. and saw that the side door was open.

Upon walking into the house he thought he heard a noise in the master bedroom, the man said. When he went to investigate he found the coat missing and a bedroom doorwall open. Witnesses told police they saw a

The Burger Choir sang Christmas carols for Westland Center shoppers.

Music in the mall

Burger Choir sings for shoppers

GROUP of students sang for Westland ' Center shoppers recently as part of the mall's annual holiday choral concert program.

But the students weren't typical school-age youngsters.

They ranged in age from 5 to 24 and were part of the Burger Choir, made up of autistic students in a Garden City-based program that serves all of Wayne County. The students are developmentally impaired and don't have the ability to communicate or relate to others, said Mary O'Neill, director of the adolescent program at Burger.

Leading the choir was Micki Carden-Bialach, music teacher. The choir sang the traditional

Christmas carols, such as "Silent Night" and "Toyland."

The choir members were dressed in their, red and white sweatshirts.

O'NEILL said that the music program helps the students develop self-confidence, which is especially important because many of the singers previously couldn't communicate verbally.

After the performance, singer Chris McAllister said the choir activity lets him "feel great and good to be in the choir."

The choir director and her husband, Stanley, are also in the Horizon musical group, performed at the mall a few days later.

The pair also coordinated a benefit Nov. 24 at Ralph's restaurant in Westland, where they perform on weekends, to raise $500 to buy musical instruments for the Burger band.

The choir will return to Westland Center for another performance at 1 p.m. tonight.

Other school and church groups will perform at the mall throughout this month.

Robert Daly sang during the Burger Choir performance.

Asbestos problem delays demolition

By Marie Chestney staff writer.

Thousands of square feet of asbestos-filled floor tile kept the wrecking crews in early November from beginning the demolition of the Whitman Center, owned by the Livonia school district, which serves the northern section of Westland.

Demolition of the former junior high school on W. Chicago at Hubbard in Livonia hit a snag when Wayne County inspectors demanded that 128,000 square feet of tile be torn up and disposed of as a hazardous substance, said Art Howell, director of operations for the school

We first thought we would not have to pull up the tile. Then the county said yes, you have to. So we Howell said.

School district buys equipment at half price

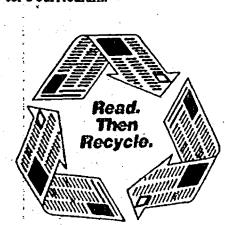

The Wayne-Westland school district is buying nearly $300,000 of vocational-technical equipment in a 'hálf off' sale.

The bargain was made possible through a federal grant administered by the state of Michigan, the board of education was told Monday.

The school district will pay nearly $150,000 of local funds for the $300,000 worth of equipment to be installed at the Ford Voc-Tech Center, on Marquette near Carlson.

"We were able to buy new equipment for 50 cents on the dollar," said Thomas Svitkovich, associate superintendent for administration.

The school board Monday approved the bids for equipment to be used in nearly all areas of the center's curriculum.

'We never tackled a job like this. It took much longer than we thought it would.'

took it up in big sections."

THE TILE is apparently impacted with asbestos.

Now that it has been removed, the district has gotten the county's blessing to go ahead and tear down the building, Howell said.

Demolition should begin within days and continue well into January,

Two demolition deadlines have come and gone but the building still stands because of the complexities involved in removing the asbestos, Howell said.

"We never tackled a job like this. It took much longer than we thought it would."

Federal Environmental Protection Agency rules require that before a building containing asbestos can be torn down, all asbestos in it must be removed. The EPA has linked asbestos to gastrointestinal cancers, lung cancer and other lung disorders.

In 1989, the district solicited bids from companies to remove the asbestos. The bids ranged from a high of $438,000 to a low of $138,000. The district decided to have its own special environmental team do the job, estimating it could remove the asbestos in-house for $60,000.

DESPITE THE delay, Howell said the district still came out ahead financially by doing the work itself.

"There's a big difference in the costs of doing it in-house and out-house," Howell said.

The district will pay Detroit-based Metro Wrecking Co. $123,000 to tear down the building, fill in heating tunnels and level the ground.

Last spring, the Livonia Board of Education approved paying the company $120,000 to wreck the one-story building.

In the spring, district employees will plant grass.

The building's demolition will increase dramatically the amount of open land in the area, a half-mile north of the Westland boundary, and give nearby Grant Elementary extra playground space.

The work at Whitman has been the environmental team's first experience in removing asbestos from a building destined to be torn down.

Exec, commission at war over county budget

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Wayne County's budget battle has escalated to full-scale war with county Executive Edward McNamara and county commissioners likely to wind up in court.

Commissioners overrode McNamara's veto of an estimated $1.5 million in spending for commission and county clerk's activities Tuesday by a wide margin.

Though McNamara Issued two line item vetos, commissioners held override votes in five specific areas - one for commission activities, another for commission special projects, a third for the auditor general's office, another for the county clerk and a final one for a variety of projects ranging from corrections, to youth services, to arts and culture.

Among area commissioners, Kay Beard, D-Inkster, voted for all five overrides. Kevin Kelley, D-Redford, voted against an override for changes in the commission's special projects budget. Susan Heintz, R-Northville Township, voted against the override for the clerk's budget.

The executive, however, responded with a flery pledge to "ignore" the commission's action.

"WE JUST won't fund those activities," McNamara said. "The budget is out of balance and it jeopardizes this county."

Commission Chairman Arthur Blackwell, D-Detroit, said the commission would sue the executive if he failed to provide money for any commission-authorized activity.

"He doesn't have the authority to

But the real issue could be a power struggle between the commission and executive underscored by lingering bitterness over the executive's 3 role in some of last summer's commission primaries.

do that," Blackwell said. "If he does, we'll go to court."

McNamara said it was commissioners who were in the wrong. He charged the commission with using an estimated $1 million from the sale of county property in Northville - money he said the county had yet to receive - to add commission staff.

"That's a one-time thing and they're going to use it to fund something that will continue year-afteryear," McNamara said, charging commissioners were "stealing" the Blackwell took issue with the idea that commissioners were stealing anything.

"First, he said the money is not there, then he says we're stealing it," Blackwell said. "Now, what does that tell you?"

In addition to blocking the additional commission spending. McNamara said he would veto an estimated $500,000 in fee increases for the county clerk's office.

The increases, commissioners said, would help the clerk's office overcome inflation.

McNamara, though, said the increase was approved to get county Clerk James Killeen to draw their district boundaries favorably after 1990 census figures are published. Blackwell called McNamara's charges "a ridiculous argument."

"THE CLERK isn't the only one who'll be involved, there's also the treasurer and prosecutor,' Blackwell said.

Representatives of the Democratic and Republican parties will also serve on the five-member apportionment panel. New districts will be in place for 1992 elections.

McNamara said the $1.5 in additional spending would force the county back into debt, potentially costing it $10 million in penalties under its 1987 debt-reduction with the state.

"JOHN ENGLER is going to look on this no differently than James Blanchard did," McNamara said of the state's new governor. "In fact, he's (Engler) the one that put them in there in the first place."

SC team wins best of show at food expo

Schoolcraft College's Culinary Arts Salon Team received the best of show award for culinary schools at the recent Expo Gast '90 competition in Luxembourg, and won gold medals in several individual competitions.

Individual gold medalists were: executive chef Mary Brady of Northville and students Don Bargo of Ann Arbor, Kim Larson of Sylvan Lake and Shawn Loving of Detroit.

Members of the award-winning salon team are Brady, team coach and certified master chef Jeff Gabriel of Plymouth, team manager and certified culinary educator Kevin Gawronski of Orchard Lake and Pam Ford of Plymouth.

More than 1,000 international chefs competed in the World Cup event. The event is ranked the second most important team competition on the international chef's circult and prepares chefs for the culinary olympics in 1992. The Schoolcraft College team was the only Michigan college in the compeTeam captain Brady credited the instruction from master chef Jeff Gabriel for the team's success. While students develop their talents throughout the two-year program, they are receiving training from "one of the best people in the work at what he's doing," said Brady.

Under Gabriel's direction, the team members learned to prepare hot dishes displayed cold for presentation. Dishes may be prepared as much as a week before the competition and each piece is carefully dipped in aspic, a gelatin coating, to preserve it. The work is precise and Brady said the chefs wear surgical gloves and use tiny paint brushes to develop their works to perfection.

Three members of the team won gold medals for menu le gastronomique, a five-course gourmet meal. The team's culinary creations were judged outstanding in the appearance, perfection, creativity, design, practicality and nutritional quality.

Lights are safe way to celebrate holidays

Decorative lighting is a safe way to celebrate the holidays, but only if used properly, according to Detroit Edison.

Strands of holiday lights should be examined for chipped and damaged sockets, as well as for frayed wires, said Edison lighting specialist Joan Bradley.

"Any such items should be thrown out," she said. "Also, throw out any lights that do not have the Underwriters Laboratories (UL) seal. The seal indicates the lights meet specific safety standards."

Other tips for indoor lights:

• Use no more than three sets of standard lights on each extension

• Never use lights on a metal tree. Use a revolving color wheel or low-wattage colored floodlights in-

• Keep lights away from carpeting, furniture, curtains and drapes. some standard lights produce enough heat to scorch or damage items they

By Wayno Poal staff writer

Sister Ann Stamm's office is, by her own admission, a mess.

Stuffed animals and other toys are scattered throughout the cozy second-floor room. Meanwhile, a pair of rabbits scurry across the floor, munching on a small clump of geranium petals.

Sister Ann, a Madonna College professor and police chaplain, makes no apologies. The room, she says, is the sign of a busy woman.

"I could clean this up, but it. wouldn't be real," she said.

What is real is her schedule. By 9:15 this morning, she'll already have conferred with one police officer and counseled a little girl unexpectedly placed in her care due to a family crisis. And her work week is just beginning.

In addition to her duties as a professor of philosophy and chairwoman of the college's religious studies department, she'll also spend an estimated 15 hours a week riding with police, lending a sympathetic ear to officers and crime victims alike.

If this coming week looks busy, the last week was a bear.

SISTER ANN was among the religious leaders who responded to the collision of two Northwest Airlines jets at Detroit Metropolitan Airport. staving on throughout the two-day ordeal to console bereaved passengers and families.

"First of all, there was a great deal of shock," Sister Ann said.

"When you get on a plane you just don't expect something like this to happen, least of all on the runway.

"Then, there was a sense of guilt. Some passengers were sitting right next to someone who had been killed."

Rescue workers also needed someone to talk to, Sister Ann said.

"Some had flashbacks to the crash of Flight 255," she said. "We had one officer who was out there with a bad cold. When I told him he should go home he said he had to help take care of the crash victims first. That's the kind of dedication they showed."

Sister Ann said her own dedication is really a labor of love.

"THIS IS something I just thoroughly enjoy doing," she said. Where does she find the time?

"I don't watch too much television," she adds with a laugh.

"She's been very dedicated, always willing to step forward," Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano

One elderly gentleman, she recalled, became upset the day Sister. Ann entered a coffee shop accompanied by two armed officers.

"Sir," he said to one of the officer, "what has the good sister done wrong?"

"They told him that after five tickets, they were buying me a free breakfast," Sister Ann said, laughing, "I don't think he got the joke."

. Rapport with police comes easily, Sister Ann said.

"THE OFFICERS were really the ones who got me involved," said the former high school teacher. "There's times I can walk into a room full of Wayne County Sheriff's deputies and identify almost every one of them as a former student."

The upper wall of her college office is covered with police patches. almost every department in Southeastern Michigan is represented, along with a fair sampling of outstate and out-of-state police units.

"When I walk in the room, I bless them all," she laughed. "I guess no one wants to be left out."

Actually, the patches are among her most prized possessions.

Where are kids getting guns?

HOULD STUDENTS and adults worry about their personal safety when attending local high school sports events?

The safety factor is a new issue among people of all ages in the wake of Friday night's shooting and wounding of a Ypsilanti High School High School.

Police have charged a 17-year-old youth in the shooting, which took place outside the school when a crowd of about 1,000 was leaving the

Dennis O'Neill, Wayne-Westland school superintendent, is justifiably upset that the shooting happened in spite of ongoing, visible security at local athletic contests.

He said there were two Westland police officers in the school with a patrol car outside.

Aside from the security issue, we share the frustration of school officials who question why youngsters have such easy access to firearms.

THEY ARE also upset about the accountability of parents toward their sons' and daughters' actions and attitudes.

it's a tragedy that teens have such an easy access to firearms.

In the past two years, the administration has student after a basketball game at John Glenn been tough on disciplining students who brought handguns to school.

One suggestion from a Westland police official on curbing potential problems in the future is to schedule more sports events in the afternoon instead of at night. Frankly, the timing of games won't deter a teenager from getting revenge for an argument earlier in the day.

Many will quickly point the finger of blame to the high level of violence and "bloodless" deaths on TV and changing societal values, but that doesn't help the community deal with the issue specifically on a daily basis.

The best way -- at least in the long run — to solve the problem is to educate parents who have firearms in their homes to keep them out of the hands of their children and to sensitize teenagers on the value of life and that there are other ways to settle disputes without resorting to violence.

Legislation provides guidance

EDICAL CARE can be a mixed blessing as technology progresses. Not only can it keep us living longer and better, it also can keep us artificially functioning when all hope for a normal recovery is ex-

That dichotomy has torn families apart and been the subject of numerous lawsuits, including the Nancy Cruzan case which went to the Supreme Court from Missouri.

Now comes hope in the form of federal and state legislation that allows for patient advocates and self-determination.

On the state 'evel, it's been a 16-year fight which only recently achieved success in allowing patient advocates. The fight was led by state Rep. David Hollister, D-East Lansing, but it was held back for a long time until Right to Life lifted its objections.

Also temporarily blocking passage of the bill was state Sen_Fred Dillingham, R-Fowlerville,_ who wanted action on a bill outlawing assisted suicide. He got an effort but no success.

The legislation is now headed to the governor's desk and could take effect April 1. It's been well worth the effort. The patient advocate legislation says a person 18 or older may designate another adult to make decisions concerning care; custody and medical treatment if the person becomes incapacitated.

WHAT A RELIEF that legislation must be to senior citizens and those of us who literally fear growing older.

The state legislation follows Supreme Court guidelines developed out of the Cruzan case: The patient must have authorized withdrawal of treatment in writing "in a clear and convincing manner" and acknowledged that such a decision could result in death.

The legislation also provides that life-sustaining measures will be continued for a pregnant woman until she gives birth.

At the federal level, U.S. Rep. Sander Levin, D-Southfield, has been successful in wrangling passage of a multi-point act earlier this year. It is expected to take effect in about a year.

The act provides that in order to participate in Medicare, health care institutions must conform with a series of policies and procedures, includ-

- Informing patients on their right under state law to accept or refuse medical or surgical
- Appoint a surrogate to make health care decisions.
- Make a "living will" with written instructions about health care.

The patient advocate legislation says a person 18 or older may designate another adult to make decisions concerning care, custody and medical treatment if the person becomes incapacitated.

• Document whether any advance directive has been made which must be obeyed.

THIS LEGISLATION makes the specter of a long, drawn-out death less likely. But besides fear, there is a rational explanation for why that kind of death is unwarranted.

"This right to determine the medical treatments we prefer is rooted in the ethical principle of autonomy, and in constitutional liberty interests, "sall Levin, whose district includes Redford Township. "This is not to say that people may choose medical care that is inappropriate, or that they should make these decisions in the absence of consultation from family, health care professionals, absence of consultation from family, health care professionals, religious advisers

But aspect for the integrity of the individual within enciety is part of our American tradition."

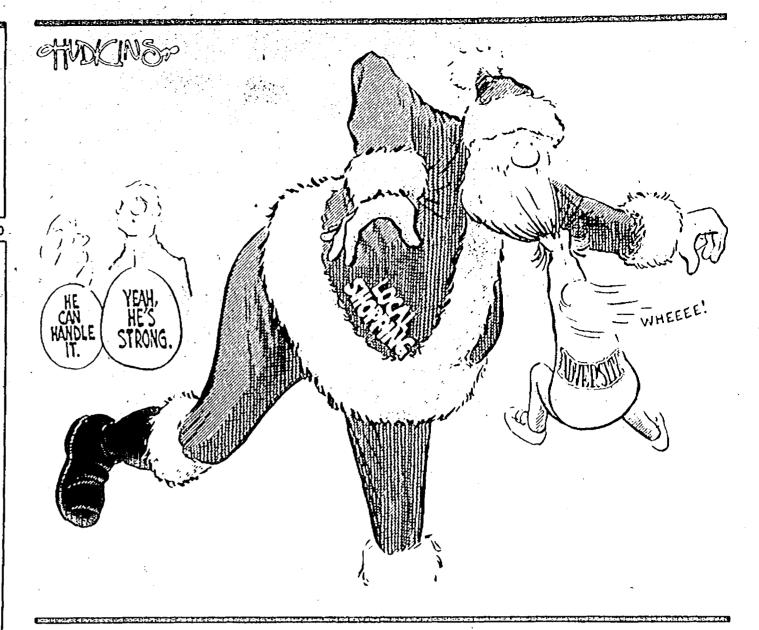

Levin's comments were made before the Medicare and Long-Term Care Subcommitte of the U.S. Senate Finance Committee.

MEANWHILE BACK in Michigan, dead for this session is IIB 4174, the so-called "living will" measure. It was sent back to the Judiciary Committee. The bill would have allowed people to designate the extent of their medical treatment -- a modicum of dignity in a sterile envi-

Sponsor Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, calls it the "medical self-determination" bill.

Why the fuss? "It's very hard to die in peace in this state," Dr. John Finn of the Hospice of Southeastern Michigan said recently. "There is an intense legal climate. Physicians have exaggerated concerns for liability. Physicians practice out of a sense of liability rether than what's ethical."

The dying deserve this much The issue of assisted suicide is completely separate and that's how it should be handled.

American Dream dims as decade marches on

THE AMERICAN Dream - the notion that ever-rising prosperity will make each generation better off - took deep root here in Michigan.

From Henry Ford's proposal to pay workers on his newly invented assembly line the unheard-of wage of $5 per day to the mid-1950s when the percentage of owner-occupied homes made Detroit the mecca of the middle class, Michigan's people lived off The American Dream.

They worked hard. They saved their money. They raised their children in the belief that they would, as a matter of certainty, live a better life than their parents. A steady white-collar job, with no fear of layoffs. A cottage or a boat Up North.

THAT WAS the dream. What is the reality today? Not good.

• The national Census Bureau figures for 1989 show that median inflation-adjusted per-family income is just about where it was in 1973.

 The most recent Bureau of Labor Statistics report indicates that inflation-adjusted weekly earnings for non-agricultural workers have fallen 12 percent since they peaked in 1973. Today's workers earn, in real terms, just about what they earned in 1961.

Much of this income loss came about because of the rampant inflation of the 1970s. This is why so many women joined the work force: It took two incomes to make ends meet, not because women were sitting around the house bored out of

At least as far as straight money is concerned, The American Dream is looking pretty frayed as we enter the 1990s in Michigan.

• Even with the extra income of a working spouse taken into account, the Census Bureau's "adjusted family income" series shows that real total family incomes have grown only 1 percent since 1973. This is far below the real income gains of 3 to 4 percent per year that families expected in the 1950s and 1960s.

MICHIGAN FOLLOWS national patterns.

Although our durable goods manufacturing base remains very highly paid, the number of these "good jobs" in Michigan has shrunk dramatically in the past 20 years.

For example, in 1989 there were 968,000 manufacturing jobs in Michigan, according to the University of Michigan. This year there are 24,000 fewer jobs. Half the losses were in the auto industry.

Job losses in the auto industry have become the norm, in part because the companies figured out how to make cars using less labor and in part because the Big Three are closing plants as their market shares

General Motors is scheduled to close two plants - Pontiac Central Truck and CPC Engine - and the Flint Truck and Bus plant is to be idled for around a year. More thousands of jobs lost.

AT LEAST AS far as straight money is concerned. The American Dream is looking pretty frayed as we enter the 1990s in Michigan.

Wages have not kept pace with inflation. There are many more twoworker families than there were 20 years ago, but even these are just barely staying ahead of the game. Both the proportion and absolute number of good paying manufacturing jobs are dropping.

This is not a recent phenomenon. The patterns I have described have persisted over the past 15 years, and no one I talk to expects them to change in the future.

Future columns will explore the state of The American Dream here in Michigan as we enter the 1990s. Phil Power is chairman of the company that owns this newspaper.

MSB, Morton are praised

To the editor:

Upon reading the editorial about the Municipal Service Bureau, Westland Golf Course manager Carl Morton, and Westland Mayor (Robert) Thomas, I have some questions for other Westland residents to ask themselves and Mayor Thomas.

Unfortunately most Westland residents do not know what the Municipal Service Bureau is nor who Carl

Although the MSB no longer functions in government grants for local job training, it still is in my opinion a big money saver for the city of Westland in operating the golf course and the ice arena, now known as the

What was not said more strongly about the MSB is that it employs mostly seniors, mostly part time in place of where the city of Westland would have employees, which have benefits, pension, vacation, paid holiday, and other costs.

I was very active in the 70s and 80s in the ice arena, youth baseball. I remember when the city was threatening to curtail youth activities because of these costs, I remember how they did cut back on other recreational activities because of costs.

I remember the reasons that the parks and recreation survived through that time, and one of them was the MSB.

I KNOW that most people in the city do not use the golf course, or the ice arena, but all people in the city do pay taxes, and to do away with the MSB, which most employees make in the minimum wage area, and install a more costly employee does not sound that logical to me.

As to Carl Morton, I'm quite surprised and have to wonder why Mayor Thomas would have Carl fired from the golf course.

I have played in two golf leagues since the opening of the Westland Golf Course and know pretty much everyone who has worked or played there over the years, and the only complaint I have ever heard about Carl Morton from MSB employees is that he is too nice to the people that play golf there.

Carl and his staff have always been there to help anyone they can at the golf course.

This has ranged from having youth tournaments during the summer, allowing the schools to play, finding time always to squeeze people in somehow no matter what his schedule. People want a person just like Carl Morton to be the person they are dealing with, someone that you take a problem to and he tries to ' resolve it, and most times Carl and his staff does resolve it.

So I am puzzled why Mayor Thomas wants Carl Morton dismissed. If I was Mayor Thomas I would be looking for Carl Morton clones.

Knowing that the MSB has and does save money for the city, knowing that Carl Morton is one of the most conscientious people I know, what does Mayor Thomas desire from this?

Passive voice ducks moral duty

THE SPEAKER was a consultant, hence an expert. He was telling local managerial people how to deal with different ethnic customs.

Some ethnics stand only eight inches apart when conversing and appear to be whispering. Some are "macho" about dealing with illness; others seek treatment immediately. Interesting stuff you need to know in a workplace where white Norte Americanos will be the minority

He said that in Spanish 85 percent of verbs are passive. We say, "I dropped the pencil." Hispanics say, "It dropped." See the difference?

IN REAL LIFE, however, a lot of folks know the passive verb technique. They can duck moral responsibility.

You hear a crash in the room where your kids are playing. You see a broken lamp on the floor. The 4year-old says, "The lamp fell." He doesn't say that he and his pal were brawling and banged into it.

When the news is bad, the businessperson shifts moral responsibility to rising prices. When the news is good, he or she takes credit. "Rates will rise," says the cable company. "We are slashing prices 30 percent," says the appliance discounter.

the Cold War, the Soviets employed the passive voice expertly.

The Soviets would pump money to a revolutionary group, agitate for general strikes within the target nation, mass their tanks along the border, and feed a line to peace groups in the U.S.

Then they would complain: "Tensions are increasing."

Palestinians are good at it, too, as I learned last year in the West Bank and Gaza. They organize and train 10 year olds to throw rocks at Israeli soldiers and block Israeli vehicles with piles of burning tires.

Palestinian adults call this the "intifada," meaning uprising, and talk as if some disembodied spirit were motivating their offspring. I've never heard any Palestinian adult ever use the active voice or take moral credit/blame for the intifada's wounds and damage. CLOSER TO HOME, Richard Austin and his Department of State are adept at using the passive voice to avoid responsibility.

I had a little traffic case, and Austin's department decided - incorrectly — that I hadn't made a court appearance. I offered physical evidence that I had. Austin's hirelings said they couldn't accept it. I asked them why they wouldn't accept it. They gave me no answer, saying, "It is ordered" that my license be suspended.

I wrote to Austin asking who this "It is" person was who suspended my license. If you know Austin, you know what happened. He wrote a long letter but never named "It is." Sorry, Mr. Consultant. Hispanics aren't alone in using passive verbs. Many people obsessed about evading moral responsibility use the tactic.

Tim Richard reports regularly on the local implications of state and regional news.

A lot of people can duck moral responsibility through the passive verb technique.

MEAP testing for more vital skills

Q: It really bothers me to see that less than half of our students passed the MEAP (Michigan Educational Assessment Program) reading test this year. What's our problem?

A: Yes, districts that had 80 or 90 percent of their students mastering the fourth, seventh and 10th grade reading objectives now have 40 to 50 percent mastering the reading objectives. Why the difference?

The new MEAP reading test requires entirely different test-taking skills and requires an entirely different teaching emphasis. The former MEAP test in reading focused on testing to determine if children had the individual and isolated skills necessary to read a passage,

As a result, a heavy focus was placed on teaching isolated reading skills. The curriculum and teaching had, under the the pressure of a state mandated test, played the game and as a result MEAP reading scores soared up to as high as 95 percent in some districts. Comprehension and understanding of what was read was left to be learned through class discussions, follow-up writing assignments, term papers and the like for students.

Now, however, the game has been changed. The state's new MEAP reading test has moved away from testing individual skills, like word recognition, and now tests for comprehension and understanding.

It's essential for the next generation to have these skills. In a rapidly changing world, different ideologies and issues, from religion to abortion, all call for more than a Pavlovian response to memorized information. The state Department of Education is revising a new MEAP math test for next year. It will be focused primarily on understanding concepts and reasoning and will allow use of calculators as opposed to the basic memorized calculation skills used in the past.

Can one assume an initial drop in math scores? Yes. But students will take on the new challenge and per- pears regularly.

form well . . . given time.

There is nothing wrong with preparing students for a test. Every classroom teacher does it, every athletic coach does it prior to a game. Every drama teacher reviews lines with students prior to the opening performance of a play.

We should prepare our children for what they will face, be it the MEAP test or whatever.

Dining out with Roger & Guido

ROGER SMITH AND I had dinner the other night in a little Italian cafe in Dearborn.

It was a party celebrating the grand opening (actually it was the grand remodeling) of the Dearborn Villa, one of those neighborhood gathering spots that bears a certain resemblance to Archie Bunker's Place or Cheers.

Everybody knows everybody else and Georgia, the bartender, serves up booze and banter with equal aplomb.

So we were sitting there at the bar, my wife and I, and Georgia was starting to get the rhythm down right (when the glass is empty, don't ask, just fill it up) and my wife was asking if I knew any of these people and I said no.

The steam tables were set up and the strolling musicians were starting off with a somewhat strained version of "O Sole Mio" and we were eavesdropping on the talk at the bar.

SOMEONE ASKED if The Mayor was coming (that would be Dearborn Mayor Michael Guido) and somebody else said they doubted it.

"Too bad," I said to my wife. "I could prove to you that he really was one of my students at Wayne State back in a previous life. Also, we could clear up once and for all how he pronounces his name."

The musicians were getting warmed up now and were doing a pretty good version of the theme from the "Godfather" when somebody said that Roger Smith might come to the party.

"Roger Smith?" I thought maybe they were talking about a reporter for one of those Dearborn papers. "The Roger Smith? As in General

Yep, that was the one.

"What would he be doing at some little Italian restaurant in Dearborn? I'd be less surprised to see Iacocca." "I'd rather see Iacocca," somebody said.

The place was starting to get crowded and the Williams brothers. Mike and Gary, owners of the Villa, were working the crowd like a couple of politicians themselves when the nudges and whispers moved around the bar crowd. "He's here!" Said in a loud stage

"Who? Roger Smith?" "No, not him. The Mayor."

"Oh, him."

Jack Gladden

WAITERS WERE loading trays of pizza and pasta onto the steam tables and the musicians, having just finished a request for "Three Coins in the Fountain" and a reprise of the "Godfather" theme, moved on to the next table.

"We don't know any Italian songs," somebody at the table said. "Why don't you just play something you like. But it's gotta be Italian."

For the next three or four minutes the violin and gultar filled the air with the plaintive strains of "Danny Boy."

"Come on," I said. "Let's go talk to The Mayor. We'll find out firsthand whether it's GUY-do or GWEEdo. I don't care if he is a politician, there's only one way to pronounce Having established that memories of a previous life were accurate, I asked the big question. "So, Mr. Mayor, how is your name pronounced? We want to hear it from your own lips.

With no hesitation he answered: "Do you want the Italian or the American pronunciation?"

BACK AT the table, we were digging in to our pasta and pizza and the musicians were playing a tarantella when the flashbulbs started popping.

The nudges and whispers started. again. And there, at the steam table, posing for the bearded photographer at the little Italian restaurant in Dearborn, was Roger. He was with his own party, so he didn't join us at. our table. Still, I figure we had dinner together.

On the way home my wife said, "Well, that was interesting."

"Yeah," I agreed, "but you know what I'm sorry about?" "What's that?"

"I didn't have Michael Moore's phone number."

You say your hooked on an Aquarius and don't have a clue as to what to get him for Christmas? Your best friend is a Virgo and you're torn between buying her a food processor or a Hummel collectible?

She has a son, 7, with Down syndrome.

"I discovered the world wasn't really welcoming him." She wants her store to help make the world better for her own son and other people.

"For me, it's a social responsibility statement." The store, which opened in early September, carries a series of dolls, Hal's Pals. Hal is a ski instructor who had a leg amputated. He's continued to ski and to teach.

ONE OF HIS pals, Kathy, uses a cane and leg braces. Another, Bobby, uses a wheelchalr. Suzie, who is blind, gets around with the help of a white cane and guide puppy. Laura, a ballerina doll, is hearing impaired.

The dolls, available by special order, haven't sold as well as some of the lower-priced items at the store. Fitzmaurice would like to see people whose children don't have disabilities buy the dolls.

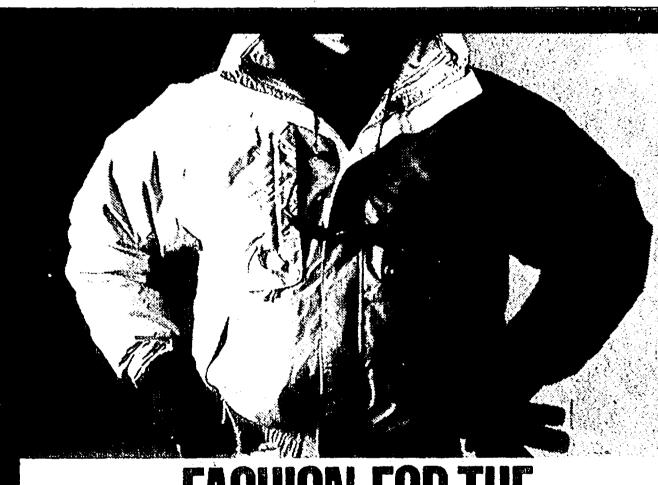

"I would like to see nursery schools with them." The dolls help able-bodied children realize that those with disabilities should be treated just like any other friend or

Writer's warm, friendly ways attracts many friends

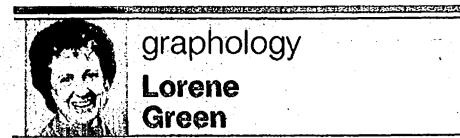

I am a "young 75," interested in graphology as well as the study of the hand. My handwriting changed considerably in the last few years, actually since my husband died.

I find handwriting analysis very interesting and hope you will find time in your schedule to analyze my writing.

Thank you.

It is not unusual for a person's handwriting to show changes following a traumatic experience, such as you have experienced.

In this handwriting, I see a very special person. You are, indeed, a young 75-year-old woman!

Some wise person has said, "Don't measure your age by years, but by your frlends." And you, my dear, have probably accumulated a wide circle of friends. People naturally gravitate to your friendly, warm and energetic ways.

You are oriented toward activity and productivity. It is difficult for you to say no when you feel someone needs your assistance. So you are ever busily engaged. I feel this has undoubtedly always been the pattern of life for you. At the time you wrote me, however, you may have been feeling a little over-extended.

Strong determination is pervasive throughout this handwriting. You are not a quitter! Once you accept a commitment, you remain faithful until you carry it through to completion.

You seem to be blessed with an abundant supply of energy. You are not satisfied with a routine existence, but need to be constantly on the move. Retirement to an easy chair is not one of your priorities. I suspect you enjoy traveling and the opportunity for cultural exposure.

Although you are emotional by nature, you have learned to keep your emotions under control. Seemingly, you calculate your responses to avoid situations which might become a threat and enjoy being in the forefront you seldom disclose your inner life to others.

Your idealism cannot be missed. Your personal code of ethics was established early in life. The resentment in your handwriting suggests some past hurt you have not been able to reconcile.

Decisions are sometimes influenced by intuitive feelings which you experience.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at ment and tickets to sporting events." Leos like personal things, but nothing for their home. The gift list can include things like jewelry and cologne - make it their favorite scent, Wlasuk cautions - and items that cater to their hobbies?

THE RESIDENCE OF THE STREET OF THE PROPERTY OF

36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white. unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are helpful. And objective feedback is always welcome.

A Leo also likes to gamble so the gift list can include lottery tickets is a possibility, she added.

The key words for the Virgo is love, practicality and beauty. The Virgo is "meticulous, immaculate and hard-working person," Wlasuk

"Research and find out what their favorite hobbies are and add to them," she added. "For the woman, try a cross stitch kits; for the man, tools of the trade."

Virgos don't mind getting gifts of appliances because they see them as making life easier for them. Neatness counts so anything to keep them organized - appointment books, book shelf, briefcase - is a plus. Add in gifts like watches and jewelry that they can wear with anything and clothing in shades of blues and greens that are interchangeable. But remember, Wlasuk, said, fashion counts with a

The key word for a Libra is calm and their gifts should reflect that.

"They're the sign of the Zodiac" that likes tranquility around them," Wlasuk sald. "Buy them a gift that pampers them, one they won't buy for themselves."

THE LIST SHOULD include gifts they can cherish - jewelry, fine pleces of furniture - a candlelight dinner at an exquisite restaurant, music, concert tickets or silk floral arrangements. For the woman, consider something "very feminine" like a nightgown or blouse.

Scorpios have a detective mind and are fond of luxuries. On their gift list should be things that they'll treasure as well as electronic games and computers, but not

"They like new adventures; anything that keeps their mind activated and on the prowl," Wlasuk said. "And they love exotic foods."

What to buy for a Scorpio?

Watches that do everything, membership to a video club, talking books and even a wok. Scorpios "love to work in the kitchen." For a Sagittarian, the key words are fun, activity and entertainment when it comes to gift giving. The Sagittarian loves to go to the hottest place in town, be it a restaurant, club or movie.

"Sagittarians don't like to be controlled or told what to do," Wlasuk said. "Their mind is always exploring, always trying the newest or hottest thing on the market."

Christmas smiles can come from gifts of tickets to the "main event," be it a concert or game, or books that relate to their hobbies or interest. For the woman on your list, try fashionable clothing, but make sure it's comfortable. Comfort counts with a Sagittarian.

The key word for Capricorn is control, not to mention prestige and status. Capricorns love to "work, work, work" and have to be reminded that there's only 24 hours in a day, Wlasuk sald.

"YOU HAVE TO give them things that relieve tension," she said. "They work very hard, so if you buy clothing or cologne, make sure it's of a better quality. Make sure your gifts are practical. They will whole-heartedly accept gifts for the home."

Gift Ideas include Nintendo hand games, clothing in shades of green, blues and black, although an ideal gift is a gift certificate so they don't have to worry about the size, color or taking it back.

Aquarius is the futuristic or modern sign of the Zodiac, so put down modern conveniences on their gift

"The Aquarian is highly intellectual; when they want something, they want it five minutes ago,' Wlasuk said. "You can bring out their curiosity with items that are energize with electricity."

What to give? Camcorders, computers, typewriters, even a telephone - "They love the modern convenience of a telephone." - and

Radio ministry provides powerful message

By Julie Brown staff writer

Until recently, the Rev. Rod Trusty didn't have much experience in radio — other than as a listener.

That changed Nov. 19 when Trusty, pastor of Praise Chapel Church of God in Plymouth, began to host the Music will include performances by the Praise Team, the worship ensemble, and Chapel Voices, the choir at Trusty's church. No on-air fundraising is done, and the program is supported by donations from church members and friends. The program goal is to reach the commuter crowd and others who are at home getting ready for work or school. Trusty knows not everyone is up and about at 5:45 a.m.

"Yes, we're aware of that. We take that risk.'

The program precedes the 6 a.m. "Overcomer's Club." That weekday show is popular, Trusty said, so the time slot's ideal for "More Power to

"They were very excited about it," Trusty said. "We were able to raise the necessary funds for the year."

a TV program does, he said, and is more versatile.

'They tune in because they want to. The advantage has already been seen."

Trusty previously was the associate pastor at Evangel Temple Church of God in Warren. Another program, "The Pastor's Study," was broadcast on WMUZ while Trusty was at the Macomb County church. The senior pastor was the speaker for that show, which is no longer Trusty and others at the Plymouth church prayed about a name for the program. Trusty came up with 'More Power to You." He wanted a name that was catchy but not flippant.

The program's already done a great deal to make listeners aware of Christ, he said. Plans are to continue the show after one year if it continues to be as successful.

"There will be no hesitation whatever to continue the ministry."

Improvement: It takes some effort

As we approach Jan. 1, we are stirred to make resolutions for the new year.

You're overweight and resolve to acquire a trim figure in 1991. You drink more alcohol than you know is good, and sometimes you black out. You resolve to stop in the new year.

The list of vices includes smoking too much, exercising too little, eating the wrong food, excessive selfindulgence and an undisciplined life-

Dr. Francis McLaughlin, president of the American Psychoanalytic Association, once commented: "Making a new year's resolution without an action plan is really bribing your conscience. It makes you feel at peace instead of guilty or ashamed."

He suggests that when you resolve to take better care of your health in 1991, you are really forgiving yourself for having neglected it in 1990.

BUT IF WE want to succeed in self-improvement, we need to do more than just resolve. We must define a reasonable plan or program and summon forth the will and energy to implement it.

If you resolve to lose weight, join a weight-reduction class.

If you resolve to quit smoking, join an anti-smoking group.

If you resolve to overcome television addiction and increase your knowledge or acquire a new skill, enroll in an academic program.

The common principle is that we Southfield.

generally don't modify bad habits all alone. We need the encouragement of a support group that provides sustained reinforcement of our motivation and effort.

Some people, while freely admitting the need for personal improvement, lament that they have no time for it. This excuse is a typical form of rationalization and self-deception. Time should be our servant and not our master.

A careful examination of how we allocate our time reveals our strengths and weaknesses, our values and interests more clearly than our formal statements. We always find time for what we really want to

We often laugh at new year's resolutions because we know the frailty of human nature and the weakness of human resolve. But all of us should make serious resolutions, for how else do we grow and improve?

We should make resolutions about personal habits, about relationships with family and friends, about improving our community, ou. country, our world.

We are the only creatures who can make resolutions. These spring from the knowledge that we are free and responsible, able to unite intelligence and will for the achievement of our greater potential.

Festive fashions answer question of what to wear a

By Sharon Williams special writer

F YOU think mom is the only one with a socially crammed holiday calendar and the accompanying wardrobe woes, you obviously haven't kept up on what's happening with the other family members.

For instance, just what does one wear on his very first Christmas Eve? Or, to go caroling at Aunt Martha's? How about suggested attire for the annual high school "Snow

The answers to these and many other what-to-wear questions can easily be found in the bountiful offering of holiday wear for each and every age group.

The following rundown will give you an idea of what's new for the holidays so that planning a winter wardrobe will be as easy as drawing up a wish list for Old St. Nick.

O STRAIGHT FROM SANTA

Santa is the inspiration behind many holiday threads that are as much fun to wear as they are to behold.

For babies and toddlers, there are red and green coveralls appliqued with Christmas trees, teddy bears, penguins and reindeer. So even if they can't say "Merry Christmas," hey, their clothes will speak for Preteens, teens and even dad, meanwhile, can indulge in a little wearable fun with sweat shirts, Tshirts and sweaters bearing special Christmas messages, designs and motifs. Some outfits sport three-dimensional whimsy with appliqued soft sculptures of angels or Santas, while others make use of metallic foils, embroidery and intarsia.

• SWEATER WEATHER

There's nothing save hot chocolate that warms the heart and soul like a sweater, whether you're just 4 months old or more than 40.

Colorful crewnecks for men, for instance, will carry dad or Uncle Leonard through winter's chills in high style. And, no, these are not the ho-hum varieties that once ranked down there with socks, but rather vibrant, stylish sweaters that will make him sit up and take notice.

Playful intarsia motifs range from a golfer poised for a swing to Snoopy at the bat. Other sweaters boast vibrant patterns and daring color combinations.

There's more of the same for the small-fry set. Cardigans, crew and V-necks for children and teens might include matching gloves or detachable dolls, or be dominated by de-motifs in knock-you-out brights.

There even are sweaters with surprisingly civilized tartan plaids and Fair Isle.

O GOOD-NIGHT KISS

Visions of sugarplums are almost guaranteed for little girls and their big sisters this holiday season, thanks to the many choices available in nightles and pajamas.

Some of the hottest looks for snoozing include oversize T-shirts and pajama sets emblazoned with holiday messages and motifs, roomy flannel nightshirts and tartan robes. Slip on a pair of slippers with teddy bears on the toes or bedtime bootles and no one will hear you tiptoeing down to see what Santa brought.

Boys, meanwhile, can shout "Cowabunga" on Christmas morning decked out in slippers and pajamas inspired by the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, Batman and a wide assortment of other super heroes.

And just for dad are plushy robes, silk pajamas in wild but classic paisley prints, red-and-white-striped flannel nightshirts (complete with Santa cap) and even holiday boxer shorts decorated with stripes or San-

Preteens, teens and even dad, meanwhile, can indulge in a little wearable fun with sweatshirts, T-shirts and sweaters bearing special Christmas messages, designs and motifs.

The phrase "sugar and spice and everything nice" certainly applies to the party wear all sewn up for girls, no matter if the outfit is something purchased off the racks or made by mom or a professional seamstress.

Even a sugarplum fairy would be delighted with the old world classic designs and fabrics so appropriate for the holidays - velveteens in deep forest green, navy and scarlet, lace, tulle, tweed, satiny florals and tartan plaids to name just a few.

Among the best party looks: Ballerina-inspired dresses with fitted bodices, pouly sleeves and full, tobe-twirled skirts, black velvet dresses with bows at the waist and a sliver of a tartan slip pecking out at the hem; pint-size, feminine jumpsuits with wide sashes and pulled sleeves, and tartan jumpers topping crisp, ruffly blouses.

Add anklets, shiny shoes and a hair bow or band, and you're ready to narrate the school play or consume a fancy holiday dessert.

Little boy counterparts replace the above frills and flounces with suspenders, calf-hugging knickers or shorts and bow ties for looks that let brothers mix and match with their sisters.

Better business is business of BBB

By Doug Funke staff writer

The Better Business Bureau of Detroit and Eastern Michigan has new offices in Southfield but the same basic mission.

"On balance, it's to monitor advertising, monitor business practices and, in essence, be an agency where business steps up to its responsibility of self-regulation in the marketplace," said Thomas F. Ashcraft, Detroit BBB president

There's no question that people have come to rely on the BBB.

"Our inquiry department averages 500 calls per day from consumers wanting pre-purchase or background information," said Deborah Nigbor, director of operations.

The Detroit BBB last year had 29,000 contacts with people who had complaints about business practices and another 11,600 contacts requesting information, mediations or arbitrations of car problems, she added.

The local BBB, an independent, non-profit corporation, has an annual budget of $1.1 million and a staff of 20 excluding membership sales, Ashcraft said. Upwards of 90 percent of the operating revenue comes from dues of some 3,600 members, most who pay $200-400.

James P. Hoppin, chairman of the BBB's board of directors and vice president of Fitness U.S.A., has been a member for 25 years. It's difficult to recruit businesses to the fold, he conceded.

"PART OF IT is they aren't aware of the value of the bureau and look at it as a big expense," Hoppin said. "If you don't know what it's for and you can get along without it, you move on."

Computer software isn't taxable as real property

By Gorald Frawley staff writer

Businesses can take their extra Word Perfect word processing programs out of the closets and locked file cabinets. Thanks to a new law passed by legislators last week, software programs are no longer considered taxable as real property.

House Bill 6207 was passed by the state House and Senate and awaits the signature of Gov. James Blanchard. Blanchard, who has expressed support for the bill, is expected to sign it this week.

Legislators overruled an October 1989 Michigan State Tax Commission ruling that re-categorized computer software as a tangible item that can be assessed as part of a business' personal property.

Under the ruling, all software — ries of the year."
ranging from the $400 word processing programs to customized software programs costing hundreds of thousands of dollars — would have been classified as taxable.

Manufacturing, small business, grocer and retail associations launched an extensive lobbying effort, spearheaded by the Michigan Chamber of Commerce, to get legislators to reverse the ruling.

Even Michigan treasurer Robert Bowman asked the tax commission to obtain an opinion from the Michigan Attorney General's office on the reclassification.

STEVE YOUNG, MANAGER of taxation and regulatory affairs for the Michigan Chamber of Commerce, said the new law is a victory for businesses in a year of few victories. "It's one of the few success stories of the year."

es of the year."

Michigan businesses have been looking at the ruling and following legislative efforts ever since the tax commission handed down its ruling, Young said, adding that it has been a grueling fight.

"It (the tax commission ruling) would have opened up a whole can of worms, and businesses would have been litigating it for eons," Young said.

How to value software, how to depreciate it, defining software, defining custom software — the tax commission proposed too many questions, Young said.

Young stressed that the new legislation, which is actually an amendment to general property tax act, is not a tax break for businesses — as some opponents have argued.

"It maintains the status quo and prevents overzealous tax collectors

Cultural awareness important, leadership participants taught

By Tim Richard staff writer

A 21st century business manager, besides knowing a foreign language, also will need to understand the cultures of ethnic minorities in the workplace, a Leadership Oakland conference was told.

"Ethnicity is incredibly strong," said Richard Lobenthal, a sociologist, director of B'nai B'rith's Anti-Defamation League and race relations consultant to the Birmingham school district.

"By the year 2000, whites won't be a majority in the U.S.," Lobenthal said, citing the presence of French, German- and Japanese-owned companies in the Southfield building where he works.

His audience was about 100 professional and managerial people in industry, finance, media and government enrolled in a program sponsored by the Councils of Chambers of Commerce of Oakland County.

MANY BLACK males are shot because white police officers can't tell the difference between an "aggressive" (police term) and a "confrontational" ethnic style, he said.

Lobenthal cited a survey indicating 77 percent of American blacks believe there is a "conspiracy to bring down black leaders. That's a statement of their experience. It may be right or wrong."

Simply hiring minorities isn't enough, he said, if the manager fails to understand their intuitive approaches to work. Examples:

• Approaches to illness are different. Macho types are quiet about pain. Religious people view pain as God's punishment. Emotional types respond more quickly and seek treatment.

• Ethnic groups view "family" differently. It may mean a nuclear family of parents and children or an extended family. Among orientals, it includes ances-

• People have different needs for space in conversation. White North Americans like at least 30 inches. Arabs talk at eight-inch distances, leading others to conclude they are whispering, hence sneaky.

• White North American men seek either-or solutions with a winner. Women will synthesize a solution.

A win-lose process is intolerable in business because "losers get even" through office politics or sabotage.

• Jews aren't monolithic. The orthodox follow millenia of tradition by observing holy days for two days; conservatives, one day; secular Jews, not at all.

EVEN WHEN you identify an ethle group, Lobenthal said, you won't necessarily understand an individual's behavior.

"You shouldn't be nervous about making a mistake in dealing with someone who's different from you. Learn from your mistake. Don't isolate yourself," he advised.

"We think it was unconstitutional because (the tax commission) violated state law in promulgating the ruling," Young said.

THE RULING was passed without formal public hearings and legislative stewardship, Young said. Basically, he said, the tax commission is made up of non-elected bureaucrats who answer to no one.

Actually, two types of computer software are still considered as taxable under the new law, he said, but these two exceptions are acceptable to businesses because they are also part of the status quo.

Software that is fully integrated into a product - a high-tech exercise bike, for example, has a computer program that runs the bike, but it is not transferable — would be an example of software that is still taxable.

Steve Arwood, the Michigan director of the National Federation of Independent Businesses, said the signing of House Bill 6207 will save small businesses upwards of $5 million, although some estimates have put the savings as high as $200 mil-

If the ruling had stood, collecting the new revenues would have been an "administrative nightmare," he said. "This is just good public policy.

ARWOOD SAID the problem began when the tax commission began discussing what by 1988 had become a growing problem. Some assessors were beginning to tax business soft-

"Instead of saying, 'No, we can't do that,' they said we're going to take a practice that's becoming common and make it uniform," Arwood said. "But they had no legislative au-The other exception, Young said, thority to do that."

Nor has the two years of debate following that decision changed things, he said. "Given all the intricacles of the debate, there is still no convincing argument that says software should be taxable other than to 'increase revenues."

Arwood said businesses are hopeful this new law will be a turning point in the state after a generally poor business environment for the past half decade,

"Of the many things we were in-volved with this year, this had the greatest potential for causing small businesses pain," Arwood said. A small business can easily spend $10,000 to $15,000 on software pro"How do you determine (the software's) value?" he asked. Or if one uses the retail price, how does software depreciate? "By the time you get your people fully trained, (the software) is already obsolete."

SOFTWARE IS nothing more than encoded commands, he said, and the only tangible part of it is the magnetic disk. "So do we tax the 50-cent disk?" he asked.

common, Arwood said. That allows a company to modify its software as the company's needs change.

This creates another problem.

Customized software is now fairly

When a company purchases buying software, is it buying a product the program - or a service, the programming.

Michigan does not have a service tax. Arwood said, and yet that is what a tax on customized software would be.

Still to be settled, Arwood said, are the isolated cases where assessing districts had already begun taxing software. "There have been some overzealous tax collectors aiready assessing the tax."

Several Ann Arbor businesses have already filed lawsuits against assessments on software, he added. Arwood said the new law does not take these isolated cases into account so they will have to be settled individually.

Young of the chamber of commerce said that even though the legislation prohibits the taxation of software, businesses will have to be on the lookout because the state had already printed up the materials it sends to assessors including provisions for taxing software. The tax commission is sending out a followup form explaining the new law and instructing assessors to ignore that section of the pre-printed personal property form regarding.

magazine took a new Opel, which GM was just starting to import as a way of testing the waters for these new-fangled imported cars, and posed the car in a junkyard as a way of saying C&D didn't think much of the effort.

GM responded by canceling its advertising, which caused a lot of walling and gnashing of teeth about editorial intimidation vs. advertising masochism, etc., until it all quieted down.

It never really went away, of course, as the huge amounts of addollars spent by various auto companies always loomed in the background as a kind of big stick holding sway over the editorial content of the so-called buff books, the magazines catering to automotive enthusi-

Toyota says it was a carefully studied marketing move, rather than a punitive action. Yeah, sure.

I suspect what irritated them was ample of the pitfalls in the Besi not so much not getting on the list, but the fact that R&T awarded half of the Ten Best slots to Toyota's archrival, Nissan. Regardless, it scores a first for Toyota in that it's the first time an auto company has given the impression it is attempting to directly influence one of the numerous Best Car awards given annually by various magazines hungry for automotive ad dollars.

The Toyota backlash is good e game, practiced by dozens of me zines and organizations these days.

The usual suspicion is that thes. awards are an effort to butter up a big advertiser in the hopes he will spend more money in the magazine.

The real reason for Best Car awards is to butter up the advertiser so that he will not only advertise, he will spend millions of dollars on national television bragging he won the award from such-and-such a magazine, which is a lot of expensive publicity for free for the magazine subscription department.

The flaw, of course, is when the whole thing backfires, a la Toyota. If you want to see how to finesse the situation, and spread out the odds of offending someone, take a look at he current issue of Car and Driver and ask why a magazine devoted to high-performance sporty cars picks not one but two minivans for its own Ten Best list, a type of vehicle sold almost exclusively to suburban nousewives who figure a double

If these guys want to know how to run a "Best Car" contest, they should come to me and John McElroy, currently editor-in-chief of Automotive Industries magazine. When we were officers of the highly influential Detroit Auto Writers Group, we once spent months carefully polling the membership so that we could present our award for "Best Car."

I still can't figure it out. When we held our lunch to announce the automotive DAWG of the year, nobody

Set ground rules in social-business relationships

If you decide to take on a friend or family member as a customer of your business, you must establish some ground rules. Regardless of how well you get along with one another, the potential for abuse is a never-present danger and must be nipped in the bud before it becomes a major problem. For example, receiving business calls at any hour of the day or night from relatives or friends who are also "customers" of your business is not a good sign. This potential problem is further complicated when what starts out as a personal call at home turns into a business conference in a matter of minutes. Rather than trying to figure out how to handle such a predicament, it is easier to simply make a habit of not discussing business when accepting personal calls at home.

All that is required is to remind Aunt Clara or cousin Betty of your regular business hours and offer to call them back the next morning. The same principle holds true for personal calls you accept from friends or relatives at the office.

Taking verbal abuse from a friend or relative you're working with is focus: small business Mary DiPaolo

another problem that you have the power to avoid. According to Janet Kellman, a. Plymouth interior designer, business owners must always weigh the pros and cons of prospective business relationships involving people they know well.

"If a friend or a relative exhibits sense, it's foolish to think that your business relationship with them will change all that," claims Kellman.

"Rather than riding the roller coaster with this type of person and becoming a target for abuse, it may questionable personality traits or is very difficult to please in the general

be best to simply indicate that your present relationship with them is more important to you than having them as a client."

Handling payment for services is another issue that can lead to difficulty. If you don't feel comfortable accepting money from a friend or relative, consider a swap or barter arrangement. You may also choose to set a limit on the value of the product or service you are willing to provide free of charge. For example, a consultant may waive the costs of an initial consultation, with any time spent afterwards being billed at the normal hourly rate.

Of course, there will always be those situations where you simply do not want to be professionally involved with friends or relatives. The best policy here is to be upfront about your unwillingness or inability; to work together while being prepared to recommend someone else that can help.

Mary DiPaolo is the owner of MarkeTrends, a Northville business consulting firm. She is also producer and host of the cable; television series, "Chamber Perspectives.".

Here's how '90 tax act may affect you

First of 2 parts

After a long and flerce battle, President George Bush and the Congress have finally hammered out a budget reduction package, known as the Revenue Reconciliation Act of 1990.

In a two-part article, I will present a summary of the main provisions of the act. This information was supplied to me by the CPA firm of Deloitte & Touche.

The act as finally passed nearly meets the aggregate spending and revenue targets requested by the President at the outset of the budget summit process. The package is projected to reduce the deficit by $490 billion over the next five fiscal years. The revenues to be raised by the act ($137 billion) are at approximately the same level as those in the budget summit agreement of Oct. 1, ($134 billion).

The primary difference between the act and the summit agreement are a smaller increase in related excise taxes and larger income tax increases on high-income individuals

The tax bill raises revenue from three primary sources: $67 billion from "high-income" taxpayers, $19 billion from businesses, and $19 bil-

Some consumers have the wrong idea about what the BBB can and can't do.

We don't do credit checks and we don't chase accounts receivable or accounts payable for people," Ashcraft said. "We don't endorse businesses or products."

"We don't close a business down," Nigbor added. "We may refer a file to a regulatory agency if we feel it's warranted."

We provide an independent third ear," Hoppin said. "Giving someone the opportunity to tell their story and be heard often allows both parties an opprtunity to move to resolution of the problem."

THE BBB WILL send a complaint form (644-9136) to a consumer, who is asked to complete it and return one copy to the business and the other to the BBB. The BBB makes several efforts to reach an unresponsive business.

"In most instances, the matter is resolved when brought to the company's attention," Nigbor said. "If a consumer isn't satisfied, we'll attempt to mediate."

Consumers who call the BBB with a performance inquiry (644-1012) a name and address of a business are needed - will be told whether the record is satisfactory, unsatisfactory or there is no record. "The rating is based on the file

The BBB also deals with automotive complaints (644-9152) and adminsters a mandatory arbitration program with eight manufacturers including General Motors, Honda and Volkswagen.

"We are educators of consumers," Ashcraft said. "We have probably in excess of 100 brochures . . . all free of charge. It's simply, a matter of calling (644-9100)."

The BBB's immediate goal is to raise an additional $85,000 from its members to purchase an interactive voice response system so consumers can call the office around the clock to make inquiries.

"The computer will pull us out from under the bushel basket," said Hoppin, who acknowledged that the BBB is aware of frustrations that busy signals bring.

Changes in Income Tax Rate Schedules

The 33 percent "bubble" rate is repealed and replaced with a 31 percent maximum marginal income tax rate. The 31 percent marginal tax brackets, which are effective next year, start at the following amounts of taxable income:

Married	(separa	tel	y)			. $41,075
Estates,	trusts .					.$10,350

In addition, the tax rates applicable to estate and trusts are modified. However, net long-term capital gains will still be taxed at a maximum rate of 28 percent. This provision is effective for taxable years beginning after 1990.

Phaseout of Personal Exemptions The deduction for personal exemptions is phased out as the taxpayer's adjusted gross income exceeds $150,000 for joint returns, $125,000 for a head of household, $100,000 for single taxpayers, and $75,000 for a married person filing a separate return. The exemption is phased out by 2 percent (4 percent for married filing separate returns) for each $2,500 (or fraction thereof) in excess of the applicable threshold. The phaseout of personal exemptions effectively increases marginal rates during the phaseout by approximately 0.5 percent per exemption. The effective date is for taxable years beginning after 1990.

Limitation on Itemized Deductions Total otherwise allowable itemized deductions (other than medical expenses, casualty and theft losses and investment interest) are reduced by 3 percent of the taxpayers adjusted gross income in excess of $100,000, However, total otherwiseallowable deductions may not be reduced by more than 80 percent. The $100,000 threshold will be adjusted annually for inflation for years beginning after 1991. This limitation on itemized deductions effectively increases the marginal rate by 0.93 percentage points. The deduction limitation applies to taxable years beginning after 1990.

Alternative Minimum Tax 🦠

The individual alternative minimum tax rate is increased from 21 percent to 24 percent. The act suspends for one year, 1991, the alternative minimum tax preference treatment of charitable contributions of appreclated tangible person al property. Additionally, the 3 per cent reduction of itemized deductions in excess of $100,000 that applies for regular tax purposes will not apply in calculating the alterna. tive minimum tax. The provision iseffective for taxable years beginning after 1990.

Income Subject to Medicare Hospital Insurance Payroll Tax

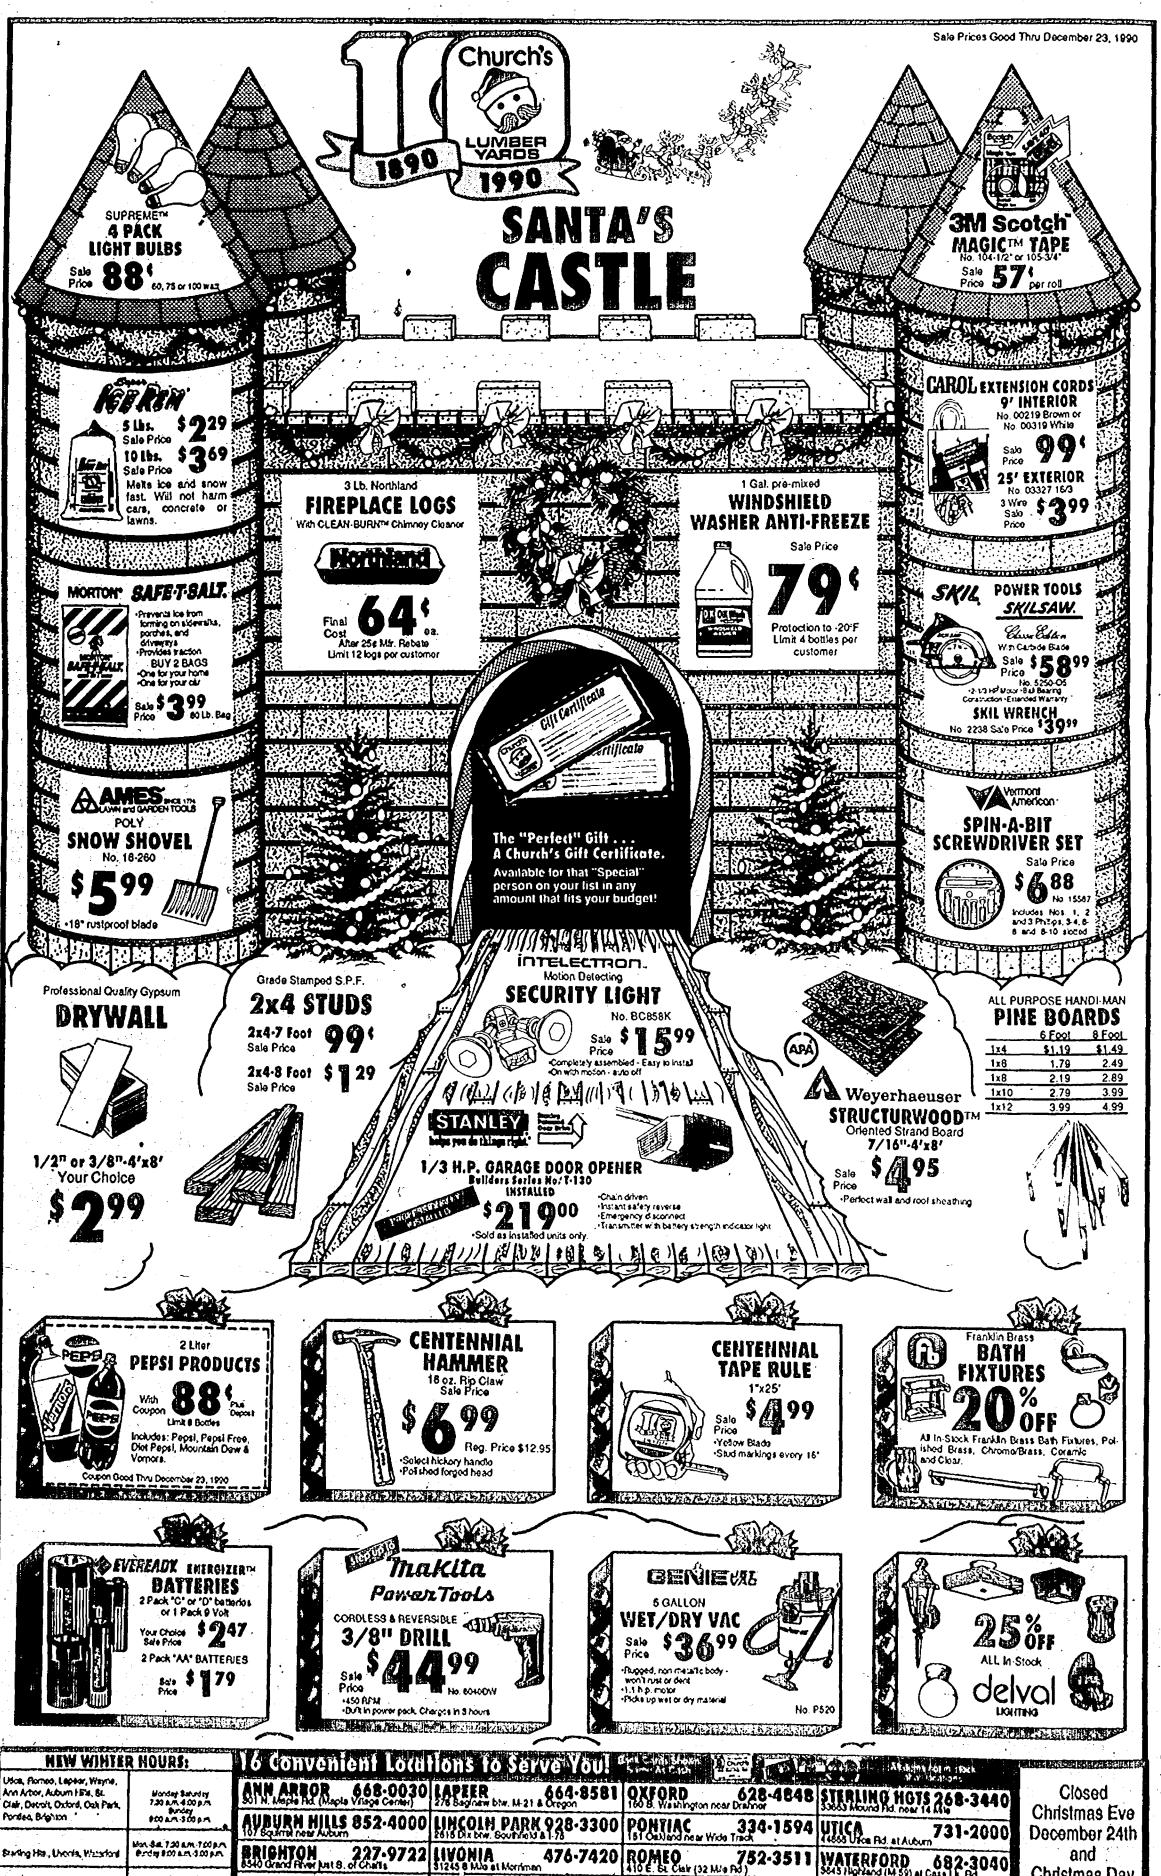

The wages and self-employment income subject to the Medicare Hos pital Insurance payroll tax is increased from $53,400 (the projected) 1991 amount) to $1215,000 on Jan 1991. After 1991, this new cap will be annually indexed for inflation.

Popcorn Players Youngsters learn performing skills

Next session of the Popcorn Players, for children 8-13, begins Jan. 12. It runs 9:20-11:30 a.m. Saturday mornings at the Community House in Birmingham. This session lasts for six weeks and costs $68. For more information, call 644-5832.

ARENTS, SOME carrying small bouquets, settle into folding chairs. Little brothers and sisters squirm excitedly. In front, on a wooden floor in front of a painted fireplace, are two card tables with some simple props: a telephone, an apple, a book.

The final, fall session of the Popcorn Players - an eight-week theater class at the Community House in Birmingham — is about to begin. The children, ages 8-13, present three seasonal skits.

Despite the occasional pause while someone gropes for a line, the children move smoothly from scene to scene. They speak clearly and seem comfortable. Most of all, they seem to be having a great time.

The Popcorn Players, directed by veteran drama teacher Sara Smith, is a low-key introduction to theater for children. They come for two hours every Saturday morning, attending three separate sessions in voice and drama, movement, and mime. They also spend an hour or so of each session preparing the closing

THE TEACHERS, all active in the Hilberry and Bonstelle theaters at Wayne State University; say they are not trying to create future Meryl Streeps and Dustin Hoffmans. Instead they want the children to learn to use their voices, bodies and imaginations, to have fun and be comfortable appearing in front of a group.

"It's great because they're learning to use their voices independently of their bodies, to use their bodies in dance, and to express things through their bodies without voices in mime," says dance teacher Meaghan Shubel, who is working on a master's degree in directing at Wayne State. "Then we put it all together in a play."

"We're not looking for Oscar-winning performances," Shubel adds. "We're not working toward lifelong goals. We want them to have fun and enjoy their bodies."

Speech and drama teacher Alan Harvey, also a graduate student at Wayne State, encourages the children to use their imaginations by im-

They pretend it is their best friend's birthday, but they forgot to buy her a present. Or they imagine they found a kitten on the way home from school and are pleading with their parents to let them keep it. They also practice speaking clearly, using lots of tongue twisters, and projecting their voices.

WITH MIME TEACHER Allen McCoy, a senior at Wayne State, the students learn to use everything but the voice. Games, role-playing, imaginary objects and even a tug-ofwar with an invisible rope get across the idea of using your body to represent something that's not there.

In one exercise, McCoy has them dance to music in all kinds of crazy

"The more specific and creative when you perform," says McCoy.

Shubel teaches the children choreographed routines to songs like "Yakkety Yak" and "All That Jazz," leaving some room for improvisation. She also likes to introduce the children to many kinds of music, from country and western to musical comedy to rap. She teaches them about the origins and traditions of the music and encourages them to develop their own steps in response

Both parents and children seem enthusiastic about the Popcorn Play-

"You have a fun time. You laugh," says Lisa Ledbetter, 11, of Birmingham. "The teachers are helpful. I like to dance, and I learned a lot of different new styles."

SUSAN AND DAVID Rogers of Birmingham said the class gave their son Nicholas, 11, an outlet for his outgoing personality.

"He had a lot of fun," says Susan. "It was fun for him to see the different things that go into a play. This time he was really interested in the props. Any time you have klds willing to give up cartoons, it's pretty good."

theater experience can go a long ...

"They learn things that will be 😕 useful all their lives," says Shubel. "They become more outgoing and lose all fear of ever being on a stage :: or making a speech." She adds, "And they learn to keep using their imagi- 11 nations. By the time you're our age, 😝 unless you're an artist or an actor, 🛷 you lose it. The more you use your imagination, the better and more long lasting it is."

Cast develops laughs in comedy 'Beau Jest'

Performances of "Beau Jest" continue through Sunday at the Birmingham Theatre. For ticket information call the box office at 644-3533.

By Barbara Michala special writer

Proving that the whole can sometimes exceed the sum of its parts, "Beau Jest" at the Birmingham Thegatre is a delightfully hilarious comedy despite its thin plot and characterizations and dialogue that are not memorably witty.

What does make "Beau Jest" work so well is its one inherently funny situation and the wonderful comic timing of director Susan Rosenstock and her skillful cast.

A contemporary family comedy, Beau Jest" focuses on the dilemma of 30-ish kindergarten teacher Sarah Goldman (Kathy Danzer), a nice Jewish girl who has been dating her gentile boyfriend on the sly rather than face her parents' disapproval. Now tired of her mother's constant nagging and matchmaking, Sarah has hired an escort to pose as her new mythical Jewish boyfriend.

Complications quickly ensue. The escort service was supposed to provide a Jewish man but made a mistake. Sarah forgets to tell her date that he is supposed to be a doctor. What was supposed to be a one-time ruse turns into three appearances of the imaginary Dr. David Steinberg because Sarah's parents are so taken with him. Worst of all, Sarah falls in love with the actor she has hired, thus only succeeding in trading one gentile for another.

AS SARAH, Danzer is wholesome and wimsome and makes it very credible that Sarah loves and respects her parents so much that she worries more about pleasing them than about pleasing herself.

Bob, the unemployed actor sent by the escort service, is very adeptly portrayed by Allen Fitzpatrick. He is the one whose comic timing is most crucial as his character reacts to the barrage of questions thrown by Sarah's family, and he makes the unflappable Bob immensely funny and likeable.

Sarah's parents, Abe and Miriam, are warmly played by Judith Granite and David S. Howard. While these characterizations are pretty stereotyped, the humor here is gentle and loving, never vicious, Granite expertly combines exaggerated gestures, facial expressions and vocal inflections to be the quintessential Jewish mother. Howard is funniest when he gracefully backs down from his blustery stubborness.

Bruce Katzman is fine as Sarah's brother Joel, a psychologist who quickly senses something suspicious about Dr. Steinberg. Though Sarah sees her brother as conservative as the elbow patches on his sports jacket and admonishes him to not sound like a therapist, he does help her get her priorities straight.

Michael Cooke is well-cast as Sarah's very patient and loyal first boyfriend, whose unfortunate name of Chris Kringle is a constant reminder of his being gentile.

Carefully dissected, James Sherman's play shouldn't be that funny. Fortunately, it just is.

Joan Benny talks about dad

By Rose Marie Cain special writer

Jack Benny's daughter, Joan, has been doing the book-tour circuit to promote her "Sunday Nights at Seven" reminiscences, published by Warner Books. She spoke recently at the Jewish Community Center in West Bloomfield.

Although battling a cold and laryngitis, Joan managed to speak warmly and entertainingly about her memories of "a privileged, wonderful childhood," in a time when movie stars were bigger than life. Most of her friends were children of celebrities, and while she, like ordinary movie fans, was enthralled by the stars on the silver screen, when these same stars were around her parents, they were to her just ordinary grown-ups.

Now she refers to this strange "duality," but at that time she accepted it as simply part of her life.

A mathematician as well as a mother of four and a new grandmother, she describes herself as "a born observer." As such, she easily recalls moments in her past, people she knew and the reactions of acquaintances and strangers alike.

SHE WOULD go to movie premieres with her parents, and fans and photographers would poke their faces and cameras into the limousine and say, "That's Jack Benny and Mary Livingstone!" At other times, however, later in her life, when she appeared at premieres without her parents, the same types of people would poke their faces into her car and announce, "That's nobody!"

Jack Benny had written an autoblography, with the aid of a ghostwriter, several years earlier, but the book had not been published. After Mary Livingstone died in 1983 (Jack had died nine years earlier), Joan went through the guest cottage at the Benny home and found three office rooms filled with articles and mementos, including the book manuscript.

Joan hired an archivist, who did the cataloging and who is actually the one who found the autobiography. That was the beginning of "Sunday Nights at Seven," which is a combination of that first, unpublished book and of Joan's remembrances of Jack.

Jack, says Joan, "was very smart about people, and about life." He always encouraged and helped other comedians. He felt that the more comedians who dld well the better it was for the profession as a whole. "He didn't have a jealous bone in his body," she says, and he couldn't understand other entertainers who did.

The late Mel Blanc was one of Benny's close friends. After Mel was in a very serious auto accident which left him in a body cast for months, Jack visited Mel every day. (And then, to keep everyone's spirits up, he would stop at Mel's house and ask his wife if Mel was home and if he could come out and play).

OTHER CLOSE friends of Jack's were Irving Fein, his agent; Frank Remley (whom many people remember as being part of Phil Harris' orchestra); Danny Kaye; George Burns and Gracie Allen; Claudette

Colbert; Jane Wyman and Ronald Reagan; and Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor ("Uncle Bob and Aunt Barbara" to Joan). Joan still remembers big New Year's Eve parties at her parents' home, where many of the famous came as guests.

Still, Jack was, as she says, "such an ordinary man." He was "Jack" to everybody. Once, a new secretary knocked on Jack's door, and announced, "Jack, Mr. Fein would like to see you." For Benny, it was natural to be on a first-name basis with his secretary.

To illustrate Jack's lack of awe while in the company of celebrities, Joan tells of being in the hospital for the birth of one of her children. Jack had been visiting every day. One day he called and apologized for having forgotten to come the previous day. He had been at the same hospital, he said, visiting Lew Wasserman and, "I forgot to come see you."

Joan said not to worry, that she had just seen him the day before that, and that she would be home soon anyway. But Jack was still apologetic. "I don't know why I forgot," he went on. "But I'd come to see Lew, and Harry Truman was with me ..." "Who was with you?" cried Joan. Jack seem surprised at how upset Joan was at missing a chance to be visited by the President of the United States. It was obviously not something that he himself would have considered that import-

Joan says, by way of further explanation, "Next Sunday's show was what he thought of "almost all of the time. He was so focused on that that it was hard for him to notice his FORWEIL OF THE PARTY OF THE PAR family's reactions or other things going on around him."

ALTHOUGH WRITERS wrote the outline and script of the show the first two days of the week, Jack worked on it the rest of the week, and it really was his show. He put himself and the greater portion of his time and energy into it.

And, although being around celebritles didn't make him unapproachable to ordinary people, Jack did have his share of ego, Joan admits. Once when he went on vacation to a remote island where nobody knew who he was, and where, therefore, nobody asked for his autograph, the shock of anonymity was so great Jack came home after only two

Jack and his wife, Mary Livingstone (nee Sadie Marks from Seattle), were devoted to each other and were married for 44 years. Yet Joan describes her mother as an "insecure women" and as someone who "never had a sense of her own worth." (To impress and to get immediate service from salespeople and tradesmen, she would always remind them that she was "Mrs. Jack Benny," preferring to establish her own identity through Jack.)

Actually, she never planned to be part of Jack's show on any regular basis. Her character on the Jack Benny show evolved from one appearance during which she played a fan named Mary Livingstone. (In the same way, incidentally, Eddle Anderson's character, Rochester, evolved from a one-time appearance on the show as a railroad porter.)

'Blue Moon' set to shine on New Year's Eve

Mars passes two degrees below the Pleiades on the evening of the 14th. The moon is nowhere near Taurus now, so the fainter members of the Pleiades will be much easier to see.

New Moon occurs at 11:22 p.m. on Dec. 16. The moon is located between the earth and the sun and is not visible.

Use binoculars 30 minutes after sunset on the 18th, and look for Venus and Mercury near the southwestern horizon. The waxing (growing) crescent moon will be easy to see. Above and to the left of the moon is Saturn. Six degrees below and to the right of the moon will be Venus. Venus is a bright object, but it's only two degrees above the horizon.

Watch Venus and Saturn during the next few weeks; the two planets will be in conjunction (have a close grouping) on Jan. 1.

The moon has passed Saturn by the evening of the 19th. Look in the southwest, 45 minutes after sunset. to see them. This will be a good night to look for "earthshine" on the moon. Earthshine is sunlight that is reflected off the earth and onto the unlighted portion of the moon. From there it reflects back to our eyes, making the moon appear to glow with a ghostly light.

WINTER OFFICIALLY arrives on Friday, Dec. 21, at 10:07 p.m. eastern standard time. On this day the sun will be setting at its farthest point south of west, having had its lowest altitude in the sky at noon, and will rise the next day at itsfarthest point south of east.

The sun appears in different parts of the sky at different times of the year. Remember where the sun was rising back in June? It was rising at its farthest north of east and setting north of west. The days were long and warm and we had summer. The difference in the sun's position is not due to any movement on the part of the sun. Instead it's due to the tilt of Earth's axis of rotation.

We orbit around the sun, but our axis is tilted 23.5 degrees. It just happens to be pointing toward a star named Polaris, the North Star. In summer, when the North Pole of the earth is pointed toward Polaris, it is tilted 23.5 degrees toward the sun as well. Six months later the earth is on the opposite side of the sun. The North Pole is still aimed toward Polaris, but now it tilts 23.5 degrees away from the sun. therefore the sun appears in a different part of the

The moment when the earth reaches the point in its orbit, where the North Pole is at the greatest tilt away from the sun, is the exact moment of winter. At least it is for the Northern Hemisphere. When the North Pole is tilted away from the sun the South Pole is tilted toward it. We may be facing the start of winter, but for people south of the equator it's the start of summer.

IF IT WERE not for the tilt of Earth there would be no change of seasons. If the earth's axis was straight up and down, everyone would have March-type weather year-round. That may not be bad if you live in the tropics, but it's not so great in Michigan!

Mercury is at inferior conjunction on the morning of Dec. 24. Mercury is located between the earth and the sun and is not visible.

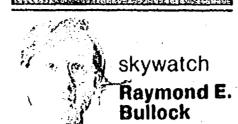

The moon is at first-quarter phase at 10:16 p.m. on the 24th. The moon has completed the first-quarter of its orbit around the earth.

Notice Venus and Saturn on the evening of the 25th. Look close toward the west southwest, 45 minutes after sunset, and use binoculars. Venus is eight degrees below Saturn and drawing closer each night.

The moon passes two degrees above Mars on Dec. 28. Face east before sunset and locate the moon. Look two degrees to the right of the moon and try to spot Mars. (Binoculars will help.) It is possible to see a planet in daylight, so long as you know where to look! After dark, notice the Pleiades below the moon, forming a tight triangle with the moon and Mars.

The second Full Moon of the month (the "blue moon") occurs at 1:35 p.m. on the 31st. The moon will. rise as the sun sets, be visible all night, and set as the sun rises the next morning.

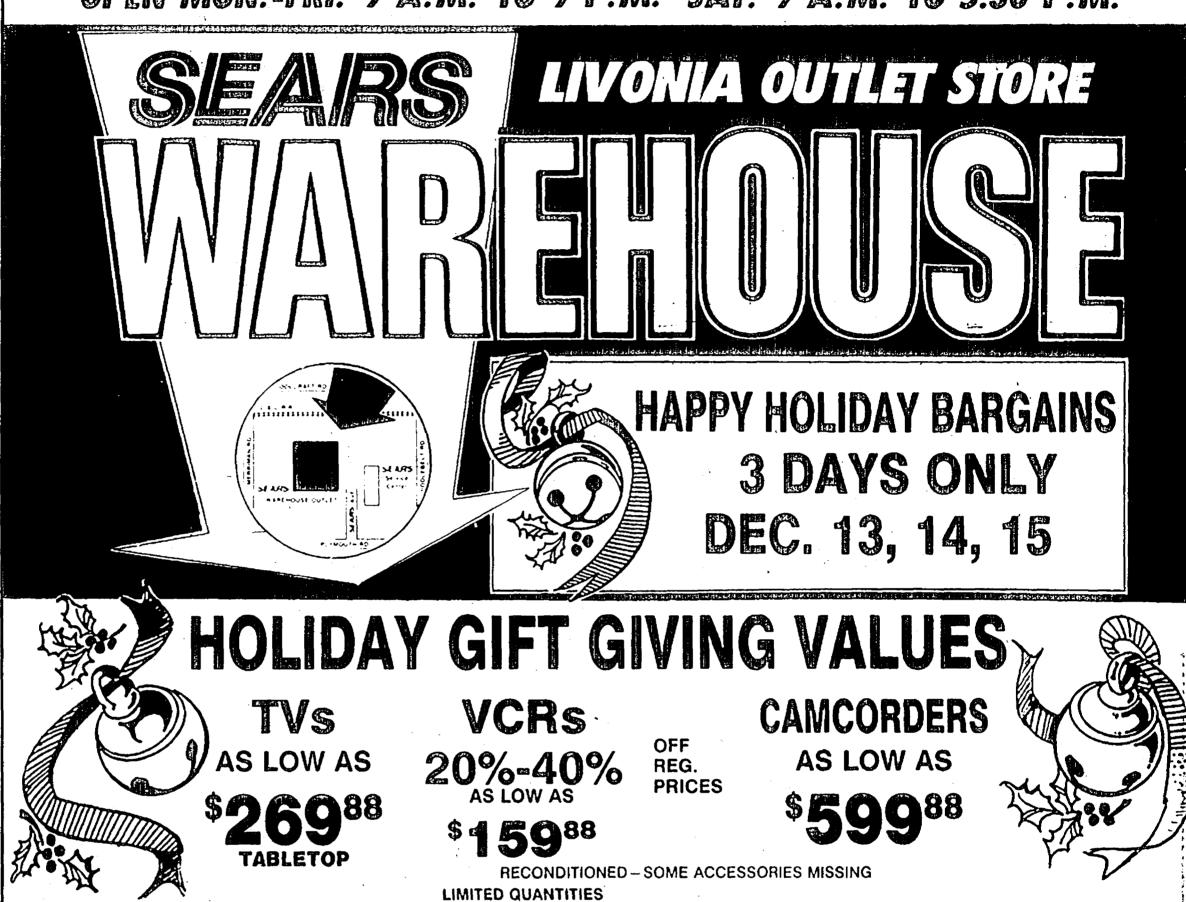

December 31, as everyone knows, is the last day of the year. It is also, however, the end of the decade. Contrary to what most people thought in December 1989, the year 1990 was not the beginning of the decade of the '90s. It is the ending of the decade of the '80s!

The calendar began with the year 1; we had to complete that year for the calendar to be one year old. Likewise, completing the year nine did not close out that first decade; the calendar was only nine years old. It wasn't until after year 10 was completed that the first decade came to a close.

That same logic holds true whether we consider the years 100, 1000, 1900 or 1990; each Dec. 31 of that year was the conclusion of the previous decade. The new decade begins after Dec. 31, 1990; after we have completed the tenth year of the '80s. We are about to embark on the first year of the '90s.

Victim ravaged by Alzheimer's—expert

By Pat Murphy staff writer

The physician who performed the autopsy on the woman who ended her own life with the controversial "sulcide machine" is expected to testify against the doctor who invented it today in Clarkston district court.

Dr. Lynda M. Biedrzycki, the former acting medical examiner of Oakland County, was one of about six witnesses scheduled to be called today in the preliminary examination of Dr. Jack Kevorkian.

Kevorkian, 62, of Royal Oak, faces murder charges because the socalled suicide machine he invented was used by Janet Adkins to end her life by injecting a fatal dose of

"I expect to have it (Kevorkian's examination) finished by noon," predicted Michael Modelski, Oakland County assistant prosecutor. "I expect Dr. Kevorkian to be bound over to circuit court."

Defense lawyer Geoffrey Fleger, however, had a prediction of his own. Asked if he will call any defense witnesses, Fleger responded, "I have no witnesses because there was no murder, no crime."

FEIGER SAID he expects the judge, Gerald E. McNally of the 52nd District Court in Clarkston, to dismiss the charges. Indeed, whether Kevorkian committed a crime by medically assisting Adkins to end her life is the crux of the proceedings that have attract-implications.

Although Michigan law can be interpreted differently, the prosecution claims Kevorkian is guilty of murder even though Adkins was a willing participant. Defense attorneys do not dispute that Kevorkian invented the suicide machine or that he made it available to Adkins while advising how to use They contend, however, that physician-assisted suicides are not ille-

DR. JACOB CHASON of the Bloomfield area said he did not see Adkins when she was alive, but was hired by the medical examiner's office as a consultant to examine her

Other witnesses gave the packedcourtroom a glimpse of the hours beed national attention because of its fore and after Adkins activated the suicide machine.

Michael Podeszwik, an investigator for the medical examiner's office, testified that he was summoned to Groveland Oaks County Park near Holly about 3 p.m. on June 4 where he met Keyorkian, dressed casually fied. in clothes splattered with blood.

Kevorkian was polite and cooperative, Podeszwik sald, and apologized for the blood stains as he was wiping them off with tissue.

Podeszwik said he took numerous pictures of Adkins' body and the scene.

When the prosecution introduced three as exhibits, the defense object-

"THESE PICTURES are being offered solely for sensationalism," said Fieger, who objected that the photos would stir emotions against his client. "Nothing else."

Judge McNally ruled them admissable.

Another witness, Detective Sgt. David Haire of the Michigan State Police, said Kevorkian readily told him Adkins committed suicide by ac-

Kevorkian said he initially intended to have Adkins use his machine in a private residence in Detroit, Haire sald.

The physician said those plans were canceled - and the suicide moved to his van parked in Groveland Oaks - after the owner of the home had second thoughts "and didn't want to get involved in a physician-assisted suicide," Haire testi-

Kevorkian also said he initially couldn't get his suicide machine to function properly and spent time making adjustments, the detective

The physician further said he had difficulty finding a vein in Adkins' arm that could accommodate the needle that would later allow the lethal injection to flow into her body, Haire testified.

REVORKIAN TOLD him Adkins became unconscious within minutes of activating his machine and within five minute, the EKG reading "was flat," indicating she was dead, Haire testified.

The detective testified that Kevorkian told him the first call he made after the flat line EKG reading was to Adkins' husband - staying in a Madison Heights motel -- to say she was dead.

Depth despair

OCC bench too much for Ocelots

SC's Lynell Collins soars in for a dunk against OCC one of the few highlights in the game for the Ocelots.

staff writer

It wasn't all bad for Schoolcraft College Wednesday night.

The final score would seem to indicate otherwise - a 127-96 thrashing dealt out by visiting Oakland Community College in both teams' Eastern Conference men's basketball opener.

But, really, this game was a game for the first 11 minutes. The Ocelots came out determined, scoring eight of the first 10 points — six by Kwesi McGill - and they had a 10-4 lead after 41/2 minutes. With 9:20 left in the opening half, SC was still up 26-

But by then, the teams' benches started to play a role. And SC's bench was overmatched and, ultimately, overwhelmed by its OCC

"It's deep," said SC coach Dave Bogataj when asked his opinion of OCC's bench. "I think it goes all the way back to OCC."

WELL, IT'S not quite that deep. But there was no appreciable drop in talent when Raider coach Lynn Reed began substituting. Indeed, in the first half OCC's second team outperformed the first unit.

Here's some numbers to consider: seven, four, three, four, four, seven, five, two and two. They represent the points OCC scored in between Ocelot baskets over the last 9:18 of the first half. The Raiders outscored SC 38-16 in that stretch to surge to a 62-42 advantage at the intermission.

The Ocelots never again threatened. OCC opened the second half with an 11-2 run - ignited by two Ed Whitaker three-pointers and another by Jerry Prieskorn - and the only question was what the final margin would be. By the 10-minute mark of the second half, the Raiders

college sports

had cracked the century mark and were ahead 101-56.

For any interested mathematicians, those last 10 minutes - during which Reed emptied his bench were better, scoring-wise, than the Ocelots' first 11. They outscored OCC 40-27 during that stretch.

NOT THAT it mattered. What did impress was OCC's overall performance. A year ago, a blowout like this could be expected; SC was low on talent to start with, and after the academic losses at the semester break the level dipped even lower.

But this Ocelot team is pretty good. It's got quickness, and can run and shoot. Problem is, OCC is even quicker, can rebound better, and is proving to be a good shooting team. That final factor concerned Reed entering the season, but the missing piece of the puzzle has seemingly been found.

"I thought our weakness would be our shooting, but we've been working, working, working on it," said Reed. "And we're shooting pretty

So what doesn't this team do well,

"There's no real weakness," Reed replied. "We can run the break, we can play pretty good defense, we can press, we can rebound. I think we'll get even better and better."

HOW?

"We're not a good practice team," he answered. "In fact, we're one of the poorest practice teams I've had at OCC. I keep telling them that will be our downfall."

Finally, an admitted weakness the Raiders don't practice all that well. Which prompts an obvious question: If they're this formidable without good practices, how good can they be if they start practicing

Reed won't come right out and admit it, but this team could be better than his National Junior College Athletic Association Division II championship team of 1987. He will say the current Raiders have more talent.

A major reason for his optimism - and for OCC's 9-0 start, which includes a win over Lansing CC, previously ranked No. 1 in the NJCAA II - is the play of his backcourt. Returnees Whitaker and Starlin Stevens played well last season, but were not big scorers.

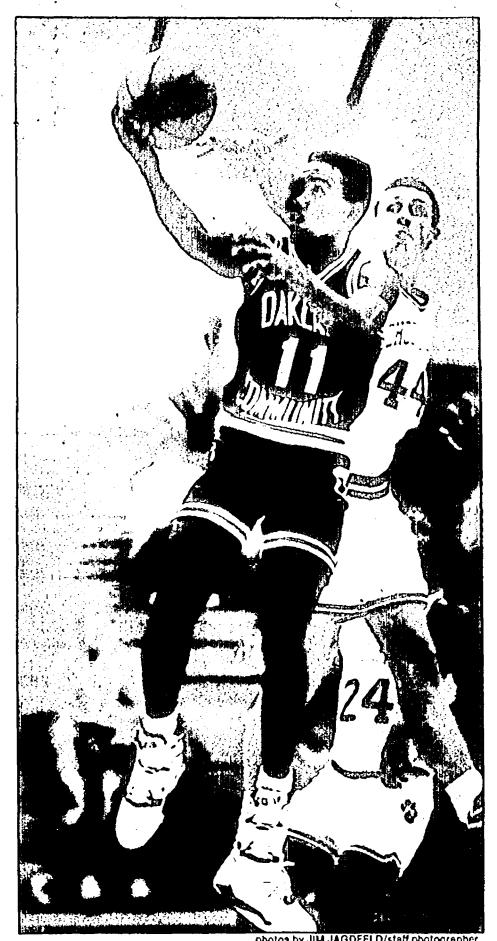

THEY ARE now. Whitaker knocked down 15 points in the first half against SC, including three triples; he had six treys and a gamehigh 28 points on the night. Stevens had 12 first-half points and 15 over-

But this was hardly a one-, or two-, or even three-man show for OCC. Eight Raiders reached doublefigures in scoring. Devlin Bell had 17, Rashe Reviere and James Escoe had 13 apiece, Prieskorn got 12, and Khari Maxwell and Roger Shelton netted 10 each.

For SC, which slipped to 5-4 overali, McGili iinished with 23, Randy Watters contributed 19, Dave Hamilton had 17 and Charles Perkins scored 14.

"He's got a helluva squad," was Bogataj's appraisal of Reed's team. "There's good reason they're where they are, which is unbeaten."

Staying there is always the toughest part, though.

The Raiders' Starlin Stevens takes a forearm to the face from SC's Randy Watters, but still gets the layup.

Chiefs overcome Wayne shooters

By Brad Emons staff writer

Plymouth Canton was held hostage by Wayne Memorial's three-point shooting barrage through three quarters Tuesday, but the host Chiefs broke free down the stretch to post a 66-61 boys basketball victory. Canton, now 2-1 overall, overcame 12 three-pointers

Zebras, who fell to 1-2 overall. "It was a great win for the whole program," Canton an ill-advised intentional foul.

coach Dave Van Wagoner said. "I didn't think they (Wayne) would ever miss. I thought we played pretty for Canton. good defense, but they really rose up and hit the shots.

back and answer with a three-pointer or a basket ourselves."

Canton used its distinct height and weight advantage to wear down the Zebras. The Chiefs, employing a tight 3-2 zone, also made it tough for Wayne to maneuver end," said Henry. "He sat out awhile, but was able to around the hoop.

"I thought we were tired in the fourth quarter, and somebody once said, 'Fatigue makes cowards of us all," Wayne coach Dan Henry said. "Canton can sub a lot of people and at the end we couldn't put pressure on them at crunch time. And that's not like our kids at all. The mind says, 'Do it,' but the body can't."

IT WAS NIP-AND-TUCK most of the way.

Wayne led 15-14 after eight minutes as Wayne's senior forward Greg Hartman, who paced all scorers with 22 points, hit four of his six three-pointers during the period.

But Canton took a 35-33 halftime lead on a shot by Mike Stafford, who knifed in for a layup at the buzzer. It was 49-all entering the final quarter.

That's when Canton's two juniors, 6-foot-8, 250-pound center Tony Coshatt and 6-1 guard Derrick McDonald, took charge. They combined for 14 points as Canton get more scoring from our fifth player. Tonight we had outscored the Zebras 17-12.

McDonald, who played a steady floor game, scored eight straight points to open the fourth quarter, giving the Chiefs a 57-54 advantage with five minutes to play.

Coshatt then went to work inside, scoring six straight, including a critical basket on a pass from McDonald with 3:03 remaining to give Canton its biggest lead of the night, 63-56.

Wayne, however, fought back, pulling to within two, 63-61, on a basket by Hartman with just under a minute

basketball

STAFFORD then hit a pair of free throws with 32 and 53 percent shooting from the field (24 of 45) by the seconds to go to put his team up by four. Wayne followed by committing a costly turnover, coupled with

Coshatt tallied 15 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to "But give credit to us, we seemed to always come pace a balanced Canton attack. McDonald also finished

"Derrick is capable of being a good offensive player and he showed it tonight," said the Canton coach.

Dapprich lifts Lady Ocelots

The Schoolcraft College women's basketball team, behind a pair of free throws from Nicole Dapprich with only two seconds left, rebounded to win the consolation game Saturday of the Glen Oaks Classic, beating Kellogg CC, 68-67. All-Tournament choice Tricia Lucas (Dearborn Heights Crestwood) led the Lady Ocelots with 29 points and 13 rebounds. She made 11 of 14 field goal attempts and hit seven of nine free throws. Schoolcraft opened up a 35-23 halftime lead, but Kellogg rallied in the second half.

We got lax on defense and then we started trading baskets," Schoolcraft coach Jack Grenan

Kellogg, however, couldn't capitalize with a one-point advantage, missing the front end of a one-andone (free throw) with 17 seconds

After SC snared the errant foul shot, Lucas and Dapprich each missed two attempts in the final seconds, but Dapprich, the freshman from Dearborn Edsel Ford, went to the line after being fouled on her third put-back.

She sank both free throws to give SC its last-minute win, its secondbuzzer beater of the year.

Julie Sawicki contributed 10 points for the winners.

Comfort zone Livonian Beaufait adjusts to Marquette

staff writer 📺 🔻

Unlike most Michiganians trying to escape the cold days of winter to warmer temperatures, Livonia's Mark Beaufait decided to head north to experience the icier days of Marquette and play hockey for Northern Michigan University.

Even though the snow on the ground is much higher, the most significant ascent for Beaufait has been on the ice, where the junior has climbed from playing in 11 games his freshman year, to scoring 24 points last season, to recently being named the Western Collegiate Hockey Association's "Player of the

The 1988 Livonia Stevenson graduate notched a goal and an assist in two consecutive games against Michigan Tech, including the gamewinner in the series' first game. His goal in the following day's 4-3 triumph, snapped a 2-2 tie in the third period. He then assisted on the eventual game-winner.

For the season, Beaufait is the Wildcats' fourth leading scorer with nine goals and nine assists in 17 games. He is only one goal shy of matching last season's goal-scoring BEAUFAIT has had to adjust to a slightly different lifestyle in the upper peninsula, where he says "they take their hockey very seriously.

"The fans are very supportive and at first I was surprised with how seriously they take the game," Beaufait said. "It's a very good hockey town. It's also a small town. A lot of people know each other, and in general, people are closer together

But those who follow Stevenson hockey may not remember Beaufait's name. The 5-foot-9, 165pound center did not play high school hockey, opting for junior ranks in-

Beaufait's improvement has not surprised the 14-year coach.

"I think he's the most improved player on the team," Comley added. "It has been a fairly dramatic improvement which has surprised some people, but not me. I have always seen great potential in him. He's a great kid, always smiling and deserving of the credit he received. It was a great honor he won."

Last season, Beaufait made an impact on the Wildcats, but suffered ankle and chest injuries right after Christmas, which caused him to miss eight games. This season, Beaufait has stayed healthy and is playing his best hockey as a Wildcat.

NMU is 12-3-2 overall this season and 11-1-2 in the WCHA, and ranked fifth in the nation according to the Albany (N.Y.) Times-Union poll.

Northern's success is mainly due to a 16-game home unbeaten streak. However, the Wildcats are second in the league to Minnesota, who is 12-1-3. NMU lost and tied a game in a two-game series with the Gophers in mid-November.

Senior forward Rick Drew led a balanced attack with Il points. Junior guards Hight and Granger and junior center Paul Gilvydis added eight points apiece. Granger had six steals and Hight three.

Shamrocks skate past Brother Rice

Redford Catholic Central turned in its best effort of the season Saturday, scoring a 6-4 prep hockey victory over rival Birmingham Brother Rice at the Redford Ice Arena.

"Every kid hustled, it was a great team effort," CC coach John Gumbleton said.

Senior Jesse Hubenschmidt scored two goals and added two assists for the victorious Shamrocks, now 3-2 overall and 2-2 in the Michigan Metro circuit

Hubenschmidt scored a pair of unassisted first-period goals and Chris Freeman tallied one for Rice.

Thurston stunned by late Taylor Center flurry

By Darren A. Nichols staff writer

Robert Bray made a lasting impression on coach Mike Leever in his first game with the Taylor Center varsity basketball squad.

Bray's layup, his only points of the game, capped an 8-0 run in the last 31 seconds of the game. He also got a steal that helped tie the score with 14 seconds left.

"(On the last play) I was yelling to Jeff not to shoot the three-pointer and to pass me the ball," Bray said. "I just ran down the middle of the floor and nobody picked me up. I just tossed the ball up and I didn't even look at the rim."

As for the steal, that led to Kwondo Richelle's tying basket in the last seconds, Bray said: "I'm more of a defensive guy. Coach told me that when we trap the guard in the corner to cut off the pass. I just grabbed the ball and my boy Kwon (Kwondo Rochelle) made the shot."

BOTH TEAMS are 2-1 overall.

Thurston had taken a 66-61 lead with 31 seconds left after a pair of free throws by senior guard Danny Perttula and one by senior guard Rob DeLyon.

With 24 seconds remaining, Jeffrey Johnson hit a running threepoint jumper to cut the lead to 66-64.

Rochelle, a senior center, took a feed from Bray that tied the score with 14 seconds left. Pertulla missed a front end of a one-and-one situation with 11 seconds left and Taylor Center got the ball when a jumpball was called when several players from Thurston and Taylor hit the ball out of bounds. Warga took the ball the length of the floor before passing to Bray.

"I still can't believe we won," Leever said. "It was one great comeback. We worked hard all game and the kids were tough.

"We were a little impatient in the first half and in the second half we started concentrating more and we played under control. We also switched defenses in the second half, using a combination of both zone defense and man-to-man."

Taylor Center led 50-49 after three quarters but baskets by junior forward Jeremy Courval and senior forward Justin McEwen gave Thurston a 53-51 lead. Thurston remained on top until the final rally.

DOWN 42-31 AT halftime, the Rams outscored Thurston 19-7 in the third quarter including a 13-0 run in the last 5:25 of the quarter.

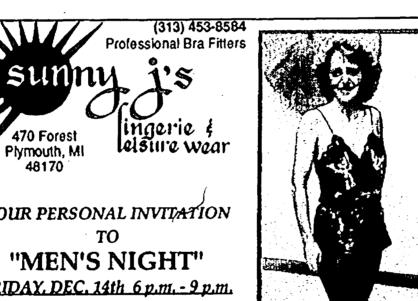

Ironically, it was a technical foul for not having Bray entered correctly in the scorebook with 1:20 in the first quarter that helped put Thurston ahead in the half.

The technical foul caused a seven point swing for Thurston, capped by a Perttulla three-pointer with 1:08 in the quarter. Thurston led 20-17 at the end of the quarter.

"I'm disappointed with our play," Thurston coach Mike Schuette said. "We didn't play smart basketball tonight. We're not that big or quick so we have to play smart basketball.

"We didn't rebound defensively at all and we kept giving them second and third shots all night. We didn't hit any clutch free throws either."

Warriors pin field; Pats 2nd at invite

In its short history, Lutheran High Westland has been to the state wrestling semifinals twice, but never won an invitational meet.

But that all changed Saturday as the Warriors captured the eightteam Livonia Clarenceville Invitational with a team-high 173 points, 15 better than second place Milford Lakeland's JV squad. (Host Clarenceville tied for sixth with 70). See statistical summary.

Lutheran Westland came away with three individual titles and had five second-place finishes.

Runner-ups for the Warriors included Doug Johnson (112), Jeff Walrich (140), Mike Kaltner (160), Eric Schilbe (189) and Jamle Hardy (heavyweight).

"Shafer was 1-7 last year and that was great to see," Lutheran Westland coach Dennis Tuomi said. "Shafer and Mattleson each surpassed their seeds. Mace was not seeded, but we he went undefeated until the final.

"The luck of the draw determined where you go, but we got some good seeds and some lucky breaks."

But it is no luck that the Warriors, who twice reached the state dualmeet semifinals in Class D, are now team to watch in Class C.

CLARENCEVILLE senior Don Walker took the 125-pound title with a 16-7 triumph over Clay Smades of Lakeland.

The host Trojans also gained a second-place finish from senior Chris Koning at 171. Koning was pinned by Maton in 3:08.

Clarenceville also took three fourth-place finishes: Dan Nicolini (130), Keith Bingham (135) and Dave Horvath (145).

LIVONIA FRANKLIN finished with a 4-1 dual-match record Saturday to finish second in the six-team Trenton Invita-

The Patriots, meanwhile, scored victories over Dearborn (37-21), Southgate Aguinas (49-12), Livonia Churchill (48-24) and Erie-Mason (48-21).

Going undefeated (5-0) individual for Franklin were 160-pounder Paul White (all pins) and 140-pounder Eric Holmes.

All-area swimmers among state's best

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

ORTH FARMINGTON AND Farmington Hills Mercy had two of the state's finest girls swim teams this year, so it follows they would have the majority of athletes on the 1990 All-Area Team.

Each school placed five individuals on the 17-member squad and also produced the top relay teams. The Western Lakes Activities Association champion Raiders had the best 200-yard medley and 400 freestyle relays, Mercy the top 200 freestyle.

This year's honor squad includes seven repeat selections: state champ Kerry Doran, Karrie Kranz, Anna Palmer and Carrie Worthen of North, Ellen Lessig, Livonia Churchill; Katie Knipper, Mercy; and Jennifer Knapp, Livonia Stevenson.

Pat Duthie of North was selected coach of the year.

ALL-AREA FIRST TEAM

Kerry Doran, 200 freestyle, N. Farmington: Doran is the Class A champ plon in this event, winning the title last month with a pool-record time of 1:51.26 In the finals at Michigan State University. She dropped more than four seconds off her school record of 1:55.28 and qualified for the senior nationals in the process.

Doran, the only female swimmer in North history to win a state title, also was second in the 500 freestyle at 4:58.

She captured Oakland County champlonships in the IM and 500 freestyle earlier in the season, and she was the WLAA champ in the IM and butterly. Doran is a four-time All-American, a four-time finalist at junior nationals and holds school records in four individual events and two

"It sure was nice that an athlete as outstanding as Kerry has been for North Farmington could go out with a state championship," North coach Pat Duthle said. "You don't get too many kids like" that to work with.

Anna Palmer, 200 IM, N. Farmingion: Palmer dropped more than eight seconds in the IM from the start of the season, realizing her greatest improvement in that event. She was third in the WLSA and 13th at state with a 2:14.46 time in the IM.

Also an outstanding breaststroker, Palmer placed eighth in Class A at 1:09.23. She was second in the league in he breaststroke.

Palmer has been a member of North's All-American medley relay the last two years and has competed in junior nationals three times.

Stop, look and listen

I asked William E. Jackman, assistant vice president of public information for the Air Transport Association of America (ATAA), to comment on my personal air safety rules and to add his own. Bill was in his Washington D.C. office following the Dec. 3 collision between two Northwest Airlines planes at Detroit Metropolitan Airport, so he knew why I was asking the question.

ATAA is the trade association of major airlines, so it represents air carriers. Airlines are all different, but one thing they all agree on is safety rules for passengers.

My personal rules were developed while traveling at least a week a month over 14 years on business, plus several additional years of more casual travel.

I call my standard procedure Stop, Look, Listen, Read and Act. We always look both ways when we cross a street, no matter how often we do it, so why not in an airplane?

1. I listen attentively to the flight attendant no matter how many times a day I take off. My seatmate, usually a business traveler, usually reading his newspaper, often assuming that I am doingothis because it's my first flight. Seasoned travelers traditionally ignore the repetitive recitation of safety instructions. 2. I silently count the seats to the front and back exits, and to the window exits, using my own seat or the one across the aisle as number one so that there is never any doubt in my mind. Someday I might have to count those seats in the dark or in a smokey cabin. 3. I take the safety card out of the back of the seat in front of me and review it, paying special attention to whether the door handles on exit doors open clockwise or counterclockwise and how to activate the escape chutes. If I fly over water I also check the position of the life rafts and reach under my seat just to lightly touch the life jacket.

4. I stay alert and unoccupied, no reading, no sleeping, during takeoff and landing, which is when emergencies usually occur. I'm not at all nervous aloft, so when Tve done my "Stop, Look and Listen," I relax.

"I've flown millions of air miles and never been in an emergency," I told Bill Jackman. "I've never seen the chutes come down or even seen the oxygen masks come down. My rules are to ensure that I do what I can do if the worst happens."

"I don't think that there is a great deal more that you can do than what you've outlined," Bill Jackman said. "I don't think too many people will count seats. Determining the closest exit is as much as we can hope for. We now have a system of lights on the floor to direct passengers to an exit, which certainly helps if the cabin is filled with smoke. "Pay attention to the video if there is one," Jackman continued. "New planes all have their safety instructions on video screens. I've noticed that people are more likely to pay attention to a video

"I get a lot of questions about where to sit on a plane. There are no statistics to show that any part of a plane is safer than any other."

"There are typically two front and two rear exit doors with two exit windows over the plane," I said. "I don't like the idea of going out a window exit to a wing because the engines and fuel are in the wing and I'm afraid of

"I feel exactly the opposite," Bill said. "I feel that structurally the wing area is the dest place to sit. In a lot of accidents the plane breaks up, and often the plane is sectionalized in front of and behind the wing. You don't have to go down chutes to get off the wing."

Try visiting Cincinnati via the back door

By Iris Sanderson Jones staff writer

Like most Michigan travelers, Fred and Carolyn Johnson of Birmingham usually drive right past Cincinnati on their way down I-75. A brief glimpse of the city and the riverboats and the road continues

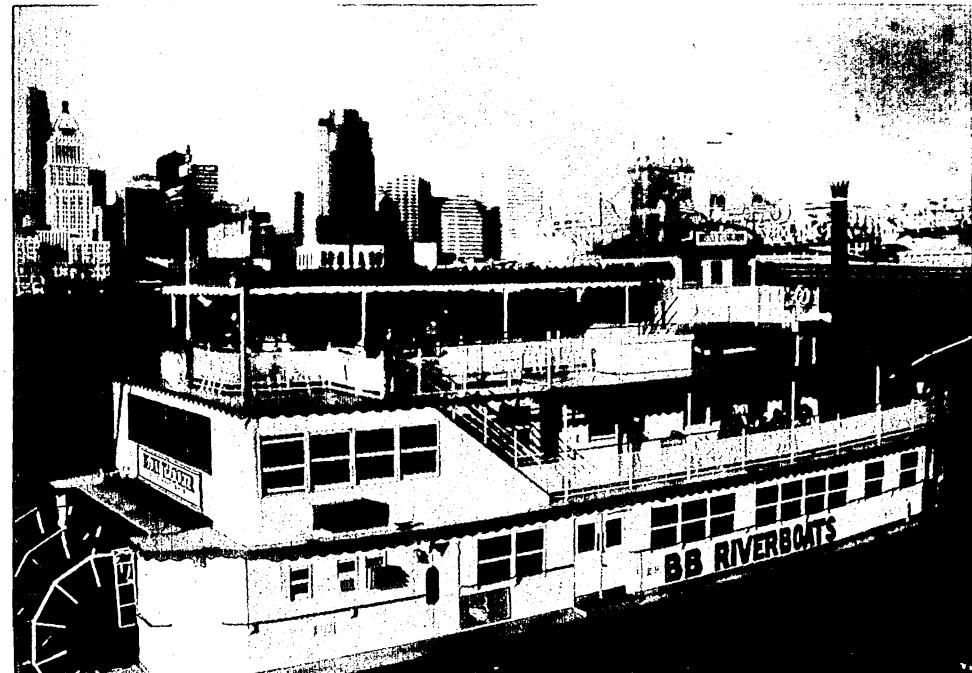

This time they were traveling with their friend Richard Ruehle of Farmington and decided to stop at the Amos Schinkle Townhouse Bed & Breakfast on the Kentucky side of the Ohio River, what folks around here call the "other side of Cincinnati."

The Ohio River created these two towns, Cincinnati on the Ohio side, Covington on the Kentucky side. The settlers who came down by flatboat were mostly Germans so when you turn off at the Covington exit, you see a gemutlichkeit bell tower near the Covington Visitor Center in Goebel Park, solid-looking, restored houses and shops on Mainstrasse and along the dozen blocks to the Kentucky end of the "Blue Bridge."

You will see now why the Johnsons went in by the back door of The Queen City. That wonderful Cincinnati skyline is there across the bridge, spreading upriver from the high rises and Riverfront Stadium, past the Public Landing, where the Delta Queen boats dock when they're in town, and the Serpentine Wall, to Bicentennial Park at the foot of Mount Adams.

The river stretches away on either side, its banks lined on the Kentucky side with paddlewheelers and floating restaurants. Cincinnatians live on the Ohio side of the river but they eat, play and watch the sun go down from the Kentucky side.

If you want high-rise hotels in the

They liked it so much they stayed again

By Iris Sanderson Jones staff writer

Fred and Carolyn Johnson of Birmingham found the Amos Shinkle Townhouse Bed & Breakfast through their friend Dick Ruehle of Farmington, proving once again that word-ofmouth is the best travel guide. They stayed overnight on their way to Gatlinburg, Tenn., and liked it so much they stayed again on their way

Shinkle was the 19th-century businessman who hired John Roebling to build his famous bridge across the Ohio River. You won't find him in the tall, square, white building at 215 Garrard St., in the historic Riverside district near the Kentucky end of the Roebling Bridge, or in the carriage house out back. But you will find either Don Nash or Bernie Moorman, probably in the kitchen making goet-

Bernie was a chemist and Don a microbiologist for the Environmental Protection Agency when they met. Bernie was already in Kenton County politics—city commissioner, mayor, now county commissionerwhen he and Don began restoring houses here on millionaires row and decided in 1980 to open a bed and breakfast.

Bernie is still in politics, so if you ask about division of labor, they'll tell you that Bernie cooks breakfast on the weekends but Don and the part-time help get stuck with the laundry and the cleaning during the

The rooms in the main house are 16 feet high and full of wonderful antiques. The Johnsons stayed in the main bedroom at the top of the stairs, which has a double bed in an elegant old-fashioned setting and a large glamorous bathroom for Shinkle's top rate of $98 a night. Other rooms are small and pretty at $62 a night and up.

Dick Ruehle was escorted across the small garden to the carriage house, which has four rooms with double beds, private baths, a single bed and a trundle for overflow.

"Both the house and our hosts." were delightful," Carolyn Johnson said. "We walked around the won derful old houses in the historic district. Both my husband and I love that sort of thing. Peter Bahra of Farmington Hills may greet you'when you walk into he rotunda of Cincinnati's old Union rerminal, which boasts the largest half-dome in the western hemisphere. Peter graduated from Farmington High School and attended the University of Michigan and Eastern Illinois University before settling down as registrar for the Cincinnati Historical Society.

CHS museum director Ruby Rogers, who helped plan the Herltage Museum in Lansing and a couple of other Michigan field museums, may be there too, running from one exhibit task to another.

The Cincinnati Historical Society and the Cincinnati Museum of Natural History are the two major "tenants" of a brand-new attraction, Museum Center at Union Terminal, which opened to the public last month.

When you look up at the murals that wrap the wall between the dome, it is easy to imagine train travelers bustling in and out of here when this marvelous art deco building was opened in 1933; easy to picture the tearful farewells and joyful reunions of World War II.

The building had a short 39-year

The Center may be Cincinnati's most important tourist attraction when all of its museum exhibits are complete in fall 1991. The threetoed-sloth and bat- cave exhibits will be complete in the natural history section.. The flatboats will pull regularly into the landing at the historical society exhibits.

Whichever one of your charming, witty hosts serves breakfast, be sure to try the goetta with your eggs, pancakes or French toast. Goetta is pork cooked scrapple-style into breakfast patties. If you are a walker, hike 10 blocks south to the Basilica of the Assumption, a sight which must bave amazed 19th century visitors to rural Kentucky. It is modeled after Notre Dame in Paris and claims to have the largest stained-glass window in the world.

If you want to see Cincinnati, jog across the bridge to the activities around Fountain Square, where a skating rink is located and holiday activities are in progress this month. The film "Rain Man" was filmed here and Dustin Hoffman called this bridge the singing bridge because of the sound of whining tires across its metal surface.

You can take the steps down from the Cincinnati end of the bridge and walk past Riverfront Stadium, where the Cincinnati Reds played World Series baseball, and the Riveriront Coliseum. You can rest on the Serpentine wall and wander along a model of the Ohio River amid the gardens and playgrounds of Bicentennial Park. Hardy walkers might find their way up Mount Adams to the museum, conservatory and playhouse theater of Eden Park. Every Easter worshippers climb, often on their knees, up the 82 steps to Immaculata, the Church of the Steps.

The less hardy may prefer to try Montgomery Inn Ribs at the Boathouse on the Riverwalk at the east end of Bicentennial Park. It has a great river view as do all the restaurants set in paddlewheel boats along the Kentucky side of the river.

Many of them are run by wellknown restaurateurs from the area. The Newport Beach restaurant upriver is operated by the Comisar family, whose Cincinnati restaurant, The Maisonette, has held Mobil's five-star rating longer than any other restaurant in the country.

One of the best sunset views is from the moderately priced Crockett's River Cafe at 1 Riverboat Row. Crockett's is owned by the Bernstein family, headed by entrepreneur Ben Bernstein. Bernstein started with the El Greco Cafe in Covington many years ago, bought the popular Mike Fink's riverboat and this fall opened Covington Landing at RiverCenter.

The Livonia resident simply clutched the acceptance letter with tears in his eyes and, out loud, said, "Thanks." Then he called his mother and wife, Beverly, to say, "My work's hanging downtown."

Not an unexpected reaction from a man who dreamed of becoming an artist when growing up on Detroit's east side and even while serving two tours in Vietnam.

The paintings, the first in a series of work using a social theme, illustrate the public's passiveness toward violence in society.

"Who Cares, Rocky?", which illustrates society's reaction to a senseless, inner city murder, sells for $800. "Pleasant Dreams," which depicts an attack on a woman, is priced at $700. Both acrylic paintings include three separate scenes and are about 5 by 21/2 feet. "I've wanted to be an artist all of my life," Ferguson said. "When I told people that as a boy, I'm sure they were thinking, 'Now what's he really going to do?'

FORMERLY THE advertising and public relations director for Michigan-based Sibley Shoes, where he was chief copywriter, art director and designer, Ferguson left the steady job after 12 years to respond to an "overwhelming urge" to become a full-time artist-illustrator.

"Artists and other creative people have an urge that grows inside. As you get older, the urge to create (your own kind of art) becomes overwhelming," said Ferguson, 43.

Like a full-fledged community arts center.

Right now, the 67-year-old, Wayne County-owned building at Wilcox Road and Edward Ilines Drive in Plymouth is used as a parks system maintenance garage.

Seventy years ago, the site was home to Plymouth (Wilcox) Mill, one of Henry Ford I's village mill industries. Between 1918 and 1944, 20 such branch plants went up in the Rouge, Huron and Raisin river valleys to offer industrial work during the slack season for farmers.

The design of these waterpower plants, many adaptive restorations of 19th-century gristmills, reflected Ford's love for nature, history and

A master innovator, Ford offered farmers jobs at small branch plants within their communities "to ensure the values and experiences of the rural way of life." Ford fiddlers served up country tunes at community square dances.

Ever the naturalist, Ford encouraged the building of birdhouses in the villages to attract birds for insect control.

THE PLYMOUTH Mill started out in 1923 making generator cutouts. Thirty men each carned $6 a day. The plant later produced screw

The still-sturdy but drab-looking Plymouth Mill building was named to the state historic register in 1989.

"I think it'd be a perfect location for an arts center," said Beth Stewart, Plymouth Historical Museum director. "I'd really like to see it happen."

SO WOULD Susan Froelich, Plymouth Community Arts Council Interim director.

The arts council is hammering out a 20-year, $1-a-year lease with the county to renovate the 4,200-squarefoot building into an arts center at a cost of upwards of $200,000. In 1948, Henry Ford's wldow, Clara, donated the then-closed Plymouth Mill to the county, which owns the surrounding Middle Rouge Park-

"We'd like to have some kind of entity in there that would respect the history of the site and allow us to develop around that program and not be in conflict," said Hurley Coleman, Wayne County parks director.

"We're eager to be working with the arts council. We feel it's a very good marriage."

"We're working with an architect to develop a renovation plan," Froelich sald. "Structurally, the building is strong and solid. We're upbeat."

A RENOVATION fund-raising plan also must be developed. Wayne County will assist with improvement and upkeep of the grounds. An optimistic timetable would put the nonprofit arts council in new digs by

"If and when we go in there, it'll clean up that whole entrance to Plymouth," Froelich said. "It's a beautiful environment with the lake across the road. "An arts center there would make it a much more handsome entryway to Plymouth."

The arts council envisions offices, classrooms, an exhibit gallery and a rental/consignment shop. The gallery would be flexible enough to allow for chamber concerts.

What's especially appealing about the building is its potential for easy accessibility from the Wilcox Road side for disabled or elderly residents. Incidentally, the small barn between the mill and the Greek Revival-style miller's house on nearby Hardenberg Road is nearly 100

Gallery showcases Southwest jewelry

By Linda Ann Chomin special writer

Step inside the Plymouth art gallery, Native West. Suddenly, you are transported to another land, another culture: that of the Native American tribes of the Southwest.

Friday through Sunday, Dec. 14-16, Native West, in celebration of its one-year anniversary, will draw on another resource of the Southwest: silversmith Martin de Macias Neal of Albuquerque, N. M. He'll demonstrate the skills he uses in the art of creating Navaho- and Zuni-influenced, inlay jewelry.

"You have to have a lot of patience for the inlay work," he said during an interview in Plymouth. "There's basically four steps involved in making inlay jewelry."

"First, the silver work is done; this gives you the skeleton. Then comes the stone cutting. I cut each stone separately.

"Next comes setting the stones into the silverwork with different types of epoxy. After which, I let the stones and silverwork set for two days. Then, I grind and polish the surface until it is smooth as glass."

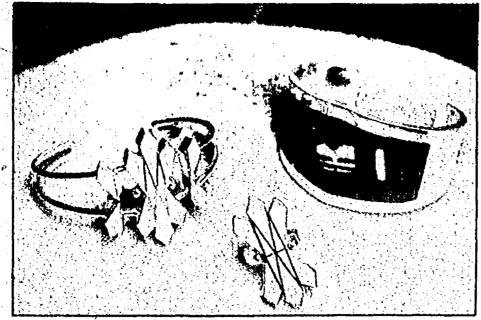

Neal leaves no detectable evidence of the numerous pieces of stone that went into making the final creation.

NEAL ESTIMATES that he has been creating jewelry for 22 years. He uses a combination of techniques gained from the Zuni and Navaho.

"From the Navaho, I learned a lot about silverwork," Neal said. "Navaho silverwork is a lot heavier."

Neal said a lot of the inspiration for his pieces stems from the environment. "I was always around the environment," Neal said, "because my mother has worked 30 years at a Native American trading post" (in Gallup, N. M.). 🌶

He grew up around the silversmiths who worked at the trading post. Soon, he became captivated by the art of creating silverwork.

In his early teens, he learned silversmith techniques from three Navaho artists: Mary Dea, Mary Morgan and the late Charlie Grey. In 1974, Neal spent time with friends at the Zuni Pueblo. Here, he received his introduction to stone cutting and inlay techniques. For the next three years, he studied lapidary skills with his close friend one of the foremost Zuni artists, the late Daniel Eracho.

From this diverse background, which included earning a Bachelor of Anthropology degree from the University of California at Santa Cruz, Neal developed a highly refined style of creating jewelry.

APPEARING IN each of Neal's pieces is the sun. "The sun, for a lot of Pueblo tribes, is the giver of life,' Neal said.

Neal's Sunface necklace set consists of a circular, coral, inlaid medallion of the sun with wings of inlaid coral ascending the chain of the necklace, pierced earrings and bracelet, all set in a framework of silver. The set is priced at $2,250. Neal estimates that he has 40 hours' of labor in the stunning coral set.

Neal creates contemporary as well as traditional pieces, all with a Southwest Native American theme. During the demonstrations at Native West, he will be creating a pair of inlay earrings.

The prices for Neal's jewelry range from $300 to $5,000. Along with Neal at the gallery this

Lamp stand fairly good buy

Q. This wainut lamp stand with square legs is 29 inches high and the top measures 17 by 20 inches. It was purchased in Oblo for $45 in 1971. When was it made and what would it cost today?

A. This stand was made in the mld-19th century and would probably cost $265 to $285 today in an antique shop. Since that beats inflation, it was a fairly good investment.

Q. The attached mark is on the bottom of a figural group consisting of a boy in a sailor suit and a girl in an old-fashloned blue and white dress. The ligures are 13 and 12 inches tall. I would appreciate your opinion of their value. Do you know what the mark means?

A. Your figurines were made by the Gebruder Heubach (Heubach brothers) in Lichte, Germany, during the late 1800s. A dealer would probably price them at $400 to $500 for the pair.

Q. I have a bronze figure of a young boy dressed in a suit. He has both hands in his pockets and is holding a violin under his arm. It is 16 inches tall including a wood base. It is signed "J. Garnler." Can you tell me anything about the origin and the value of my young violinist?

A. Jean Garnier was a well-known French sculptor in the 19th century. He probably modeled the original clay figure about 1875. Your bronze statue was probably cast from the original about 1900. I find pieces similar to this selling for $500 to

A. Royal Bonn porcelain was made in a factory established in 1755 by Franz Mehlem. Your cookie jar was made in the early 1900s and would probably sell for about $100 to $110.

What's topping many holiday book wish lists

I still can't believe it.

But there it is, pictured in one of the dozens of holiday gift catalogs I've received this year. Among the ubiquitous perfumes, lingerie, satin coat hangers, snow domes, travel clocks, et al, it's certainly "the gift with a difference," you must admit. It appears fairly sturdy, looks to be about the size of a small breadbox, and it costs $30.

But you can trust me on this: I do not want a bat house for Christmas. The bat should be "revered," my catalog admonishes. After all, it eats insects at a rate of 500 plus per hour. I still don't want a bat house for Christmas.

Actually, I'm not aware of anyone who does. (Maybe I know the wrong

So what does any of this have to do with books? Nothing really; it's just my way of reminding you that, though they may not be exactly standing in line for bat houses this year, there are millions of people out there who do yearn for good books at holiday time.

THE FOLLOWING are topping many wish lists this season:

• "A Life on the Road by Charles Kuralt (G.P. Putnam's Sons $19.95). The most poetic of newsmen writes of the nomadic existence he has lived and loved since hiring on at CBS for $135 a week in 1957. Most of the book focuses behind-the-scenes on his Emmy-winning series, "On the

"I always wondered where the roads went," Kaualt says, remembering his North Carolina boyhood. For him, they eventually went nearly everywhere. Via this book, readers get to go along for the ride. Black-and-white photos are included.

• "Laura Ingalls Wilder Country" by William Anderson. (Harper Perennial, $19.95). This glossy paperback should be joy to all Wilder fans. The book is a kind of photographic record of the Midwestern author's life, with extensive text by Michigan historian William Anderson. Contemporary photos (by Leslie) Kelly) are interspersed with pictures from the Ingalls-Wilder family collection. (Some Wilder devotees may be surprised to learn that the original manuscript of "The Long Win-to the Detroit Public Library in 1949 by Wilder herself, and is now housed in the Rare Book and Gift Room.)

• "The Oxford Illustrated History of Christianity" edited by John McManners (Oxford University Press, $39.95). What better time to give or get this particular book than at Christmas? Seven-hundred pages of text and striking artwork focus on the 2,000 years of history since the birth of Christ, and chronicle ways in which Christianity has shaped that history.

• "Friday Night Lights" by H.G. Bissinger (Addison-Wesley, $19.95). Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist Bissinger writes of the agony and ecstasy of high school football in tomorrows, a boy can be a worshipped town hero at 16 or 17. But what happens after high school for these kids? "Friday Night Lights" is not just a close look at one football program, though, but a comment on high school athletics and America's passion with sports in general.

• "Epicurean Delight" by Evan Jones (Knopf, $24.95). Subtitled, "The Life and Times of James Beard," this should be a treat for biography fans, history buffs and cookbook lovers. Dozens of the famed gourmet's favorite recipes are included. Black-and-white photos are also part of the fun.

• "Looking for a Ship" by John McPhee (Straus and Giroux, $17.95). A fascinating book for those of us who love to settle in with a good, seafaring tale on a winter's night. "Looking for a Ship" reads almost like fiction, but it's really the true story of essayist McPhee's own 42day adventure aboard the Merchant Marine vesel, the SS Stella Lykes. Cruise out of Charlotte, S. C., through the Panama Canal and on to South America's Pacific Coast, and never get your feet wet. For armchair adventurers, it's a dream.

• "Passing On" by Penelope Lively (Grove Weldenfeld, $17.95). Dorothy Glover, an unloving mother based book reviewer.

if ever there was one, has passed on, leaving her three grown children with the remains of her body and spirit. This novel by British author Lively is not a ghost story in the traditional sense, though. Selected as a Notable Book for 1990 by the New York Times Book Review, it centers more on the living spirit of Dorothy's offspring.

• "A Relative Stranger" by Charles Baxter (Norton, $17.95). Here is a baker's dozen of short stories set in Michigan and created by the critically acclaimed author of "Through the Safety Net" and "First Light." If you're looking for something perceptive, knowing and humorous about familial relationships, look no farther.

Dylann Stokes as Clara put her heart into the part of the girl in love with the Nutcracker. The mice were adorable.

The company, under the artistic direction of Dawn Greene is two years young. But it showed the potential of developing into an accomplished, mature ensemble in the next few years.

THE MAGIC of Tchaikovsky's "The Nutcracker" ballet sprang to life for the enchanted audience in the Livonia Chruchill High School Auditorium Dec. 7-8.

The highly colored production of the Livonia Symphony Orchestra, under conductor Francesco DiBlasi, was fueled by the energy of the dancers in the Contemporary Civic Ballet, under the artistic direction of Rose Marie Floyd.

The first act tickled the audience when people-sized dolls were carried onstage. Clara and her brother, Fritz, brought the magical dolls to life by turning the makebelieve keys in the dolls' backs.

New York dancers Bettina Sulser and Fritz Masten added an extra touch with their polished performances, Sulser with her magical Sugar Plum Fairy and Masten with his debonair Cavalier.

The delightful evening ended for the mirth-filled audience as the last strains of Tchaikovsky's "The Nuteracker" awakened another holiday season.

Architect Christopher J. Longe stands before a Georgian style mansion he designed in Bloomfield Hills. Projects like this, a 28,000-square-foot estate, come along only once in an architect's lifetime, Longe said.

Georgian mansion tests young architect

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

Mansion.

In Oakland County and western Wayne County, the word has lost its meaning. Still, every once in a while, a house comes a long that embodies the word.

This is a story about such a house and the architect who designed it.

First the house.

It's big. Really big. Twenty-eight thousand square feet big on four acres. At that size, and at a construction rate of roughly $200 to $225 a square foot, the house will cost $5.6 to $6.3 million. That's unfurnished.

The Georgian style mansion has closets big enough to house a small clothing store; ceilings high enough to make light bulb changing a major chore; enough bedrooms to give a bedroom to each of the Brady Bunch kids, several cousins and Alice, the maid; a kitchen that could service even the most exclusive of restaurants; a library large enough to hold the collected works of William Shakespeare, Geoffrey Chaucer AND Danielle Steele (not to mention 60 or 70 encyclopedia sets); a servant's apartment bigger than many luxury apartments in some of the swanklest areas; a landscaped yard with multi-leveled patios, ... a swimming pool and decorative fountain: and a lower level with a wine cellar, offices.

could double as a catering hall. All told, it's 63 rooms of custom-designed wood trim detailing; 15 bathrooms; 10 bedrooms; 14 fireplaces (one in each bedroom); two three-car garages; and a 15,000 square foot driveway of brick pavers.

a screening room and a banquet area that Simply, a palatial estate to die for. Now the architect.

Christopher J. Longe of Birmingham is still a voungster as far as architects are concerned. Only 32 years old, Longe graduated in 1982 from Lawrence Institute of Technology in Southfield.

SINCE THEN, HE has built his own firm (which he began in 1984) with a project list that includes large, corporate office facilities, retail centers, and grand mansions in Bloomfield Hills and Naples, Fla.

He has designed large-scale apartment complexes, including Beacon Hill Apartments in Auburn Hills, and cluster home developments such as the Oaks, Pinebrooke Manor and Windemere Hills in the Birmingham/Bloomfield Hills area.

"That is architecture's greatest attraction — the diversity of designing different things," he said.

But his crowning achievement, at least thus far, is the 28,000 square-foot Georgian Estate in Bloomfield Hills that he designed for a local automotive industry executive.

"Every project you do is a calling card," he said, so major projects are important. "These are the most challenging designs overall."

"It (his being chosen for the project) is not based on my track record," he said. "It was serendipitous - luck, really."

Designing a mansion is a fantastic opportunity for a young architect, and it is the type of thing that comes along once in a life tlme.

"A lot of people have a difficult time entrusting this kind of money to a kid." In this case, Longe said he was recommended to the owner by a builder as a good architect. "It's not like he sought me out or anything."

But if this was luck, and opportunities like this come but once in a lifetime, then count Longe among the twice blessed or merely modest. In Bloomfield Hills where multi-million dollar mansions are considered the norm, this is Longe's second extraordinary home. Five years ago, he designed a 20,000square-foot mansion.

BUT EVEN WITH a track record of successful, well-accepted designs, taking on a project like this was still daunting, he said.

"My biggest fear is a blank piece of paper," And unfortunately, there's a lot of blank paper before the architect ever sets pencil to paper. Several months of research into Georgian-style architecture preceded three weeks of design time on this project. "To do a good job, you have to go all the way back to the beginning," Capturing the spirit of an architectural style is not enough, he said, because many of the finer points have been lost as the style has been used over the years.

"It's like making a copy of a copy of a

Still, there is room for individuality and fine details. They range from the subtle, like different colored marble in each bathroom, to the striking, like the 729 squarefoot library done in cherrywood detailing and a herringbone floor with inlaid marble embellishments.

But sweating the details involves more than materials - it also refers to the intricate workings between client and architect, Longe said.

People building luxury mansions are very demanding — not just because they're spending a lot of money and want a good product, but because they are very knowledgeable. "My job is to translate the goals and needs of the client into reality - the more you know you know about the person, the easier it is to do your job," Longe said.

That's never an easy job, he said. "Building projects will stress all relationships." he said. "How do you temper your altruistic tendencies with your client's desires? Houses are people's dreams and sometimes both people (the architect and the client) have different dreams."

BUT WHEN ALL is said is done, the architect is hired by the client for his expertise - which is especially needed in large projects, he said.

Certainly, rooms are bigger in a house of this size, but there's more to designing homes than room size. First there's the style to consider.

A colonaded portico, fluted columns, copper-roofed limestone arches, tall, multiple chimneys - all of these are traits are found in Georgian architecture, but how they are used is more important than what is used. Georgian-style architecture, popular during the early to mid-1700s, developed from earlier Greek and Roman architecture. Like the earlier forms, they depend on very precise geometry, but unlike them, Georgian style architecture seeks to soften the geometry by easing its dependence on the harsh, straight lines and verticality.

Structurally, building large homes is not much different than smaller ones. The architect has to take into account extraweight and stress, but that is a relatively simple process for people who know what they're doing.

Lighting, important in any home, is doubly so in homes with large rooms. Architects prefer natural lighting, so window placement is important. Whenever possible, the architect will even shift the house's placement on the site so that it takes full advantage of weather conditions.

Kitchen design for a mansion is also different from that of the average home, Longe said. It is common for mansion owners to lavishly entertain, which quite often requires the flexibility for transforming the kitchen to allow caterers the ability to prepare food, in addition to merely heating food, and to accept large deliveries.

But like in other homes, the kitchen continues to grow in importance as a focal point for the home, but unlike other homes, a kitchen will serve a different function. "The kitchen should be simple enough so someone can cook himself a late night-

Utilities are also an obstacle. The house has 10 furnaces, several air conditioning units, multiple hot water heaters, and 1,000 amps of electricity (enough to power a medium-sized industrial building).

The house is scheduled to be completed in the spring, two years from the date of plan-

North Carolina competes for furniture buyers

(AP) - Americans confounded retailing experts by taking to the highways in search of bargain-basement prices for high-style clothing and created a new industry in the pro-

In the quest for up-to-date furniture at down-to-earth prices, some people are traveling to North Carolina. Or they are buying by phone.

North Carolina discounters have quietly been doing business for many years, but the phenomenon of longdistance furniture sales came into sharp relief this fall when Furnitureland South Inc. opened a store the size of five football fields in High Point, which is also home to the wholesale furniture market.

The store is the largest in the country devoted solely to furniture and decorative accessories, according to the trade newspaper Furniture Today.

Displayed over some 228,000 square feet is furniture from about 200 manufacturers, including Bernhardt, Broyhill, Century, Lane, Leathercraft, Lexington, Stanley and Thomasville. In addition, there's an outlet store where the showroom used to be and a library of $50 product catalogs from which customers can order. Darrell Harris, owner, promises discounts of at least 35 percent off listed retail price. He says 75 percent of his customers are from out of state who either shop in person or by

ALTHOUGH IT'S the biggest, Furnitureland South is not the only store of its kind. Some of the others offering discounts on national brands and nationwide delivery are included in a directory of 25 home furnishings stores in the High Point area. The brochure is free to those who stop in and ask for it at the High Point Convention and Visitors Bureau at 101 West Green Street.

Do these stores attract customers? You bet, Gary Smith, executive director of the Convention and Visitors Bureau, estimates that about 100 out-of-towners arrive in High Point daily just to shop for furniture. Uncounted others are drawn from conferences and meetings that have become increasingly important to the city in recent years.

"A Furnitureland South truck is in every major city east of the Mississlppi River once a week and in large cities west of the Mississippl at least once a month," said Harris, who has a fleet of 28 delivery trucks. He projects sales of $30 million for 1990, a $4 million increase over 1989. Dealers say discount prices are possible because they are willing to settle for a smaller profit, given their high volume and possibly lower fixed costs than retailers elsewhere.

And while retailers elsewhere may cut prices, they don't offer the same services. High Point area dealers will quote prices over the phone, and several say they are willing to meet clients at the airport and put them up in bed and breakfast establishments.

THIS SOUTHERN hospitality is putting them at odds with retailers elsewhere, and some manufacturers have imposed restrictions or refuse to sell to them. A few brands dealers say are difficult, if not impossible, to get include Baker, Henredon, Drexel, Heritage and Harden Furniture.

"Each factory has its own restric-tions. Some will not permit an 800 number; some will not permit you to advertise outside your trading area," says Sherrill Shaw, owner of Shaw's Clemmons, N.C. Furniture Galleries in Randleman, N.C. "The restrictions appeare retailers in other states but hamper consumers doing business with the discounters of North Carolina."

Nevertheless, these discount dealers are prospering at a time when those elsewhere are reporting dwindling sales.

Thirteen North Carolina retailers recently began marketing six lines of furniture under the Partners name. Edgar Broyhlll, chairman of the buying group, says their furniture is similar to some of the most popular lines from companies that won't sell to them. "As retailers, we are famillar with what sells and what doesn't. We have found alternative manufacturers who make the product at a better price," says Broyhill, who also owns Edgar B., a mall-order retailer in

"We discounters have been looked on as the redheaded stepchild by some in the industry," says Shaw. "But we have to offer everything that the dealer in Houston or Hartford does - displays, delivery, repair or replacement of defective

Although there are similarities, the stores do have their differences. Some, such as Shaw and Rose Furniture Co. in High Point, tag each item with the manufacturer's name, its list price and the discount price. Furnitureland South identifies maker and retail price on the hangtag but not the specific discount. Harris says the price is negotiable depending on how many pleces the customer buys and whether items are in stock.

Building up in state

During the first 10 months of 1990, residential construction starts are up by 1/2 percent in the state as compared to 1989. Wayne and Oakland counties show different sides of the coin though, as new construction dipped 1.5 percent in Oakland/but jumped 10 percent in Wayne. In Oakland, year-to-date totals show 6,446 construction starts this year compared to 6,543 in 1989. In Wayne, year-to-date construction starts number 3,419, up from 3,109.

The Michigan Association of Home Builders, which issued the figures, says construction in the state has increased because the state is not overbuilt as compared to other states and that interest rates for purchasers of new construction are good. The weather has also contributed to fewer seasonal swings in the industry.
