Superintendent defends teachers' raises

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Wayne-Westland school officials came under sharp attack Wednesday for approving teacher pay increases during a severe budget crunch that, barring a tax increase, threatens deep cuts in programs.

"I thought raises were awarded for a job well done. The kids are failing," said Laurel Raisanen, member of the Wayne-Westland Citizens for Education Committee.

But school Superintendent Dennis O'Neill defended the salary increases of 11.9-percent over two years. The district already has lost some teachers to higher-paying districts, Raisanen and O'Neill clashed during an "Education on Education" breakfast Wednesday morning that drew 30 people to Joy Manor in Westland. The debate, sponsored by the Westland Chamber of Commerce, came just two weeks before a March 13 election in which voters will decide whether to increase taxes by 7.75 mills.

RAISANEN DEMANDED more cost the district $4 million over two accountability from teachers and accused school officials of "black-

"We are being oppressed into a taxation level that many people cannot afford," Raisanen said. "We are being bullied by our public servants into granting them pay increases.

"I don't feel that giving the teachers raises for a job not well done is the way to go," she added later.

BUT O'NEILL took "strong exception" to Raisanen's statement that teachers aren't doing a good job. It's "unfair" to expect them to work for less money than their counterparts in surrounding districts, he said.

Acting state school Superintendent Gary Hawks sought support Tuesday for a Wayne-Westland school tax increase, saying the district has entered "a very critical stage" that could leave it bankrupt.

"It may be a deficit school district," Hawks said during a press conference Tuesday morning at the school board office.

Hawks rallied for support just 15 days before district voters will decide the fate of a proposed 7.75-mill tax increase that school officials say is needed to avert sweeping budget cuts. A special election will be held Wednesday, March 13. Hawks, accompanied by state school budget director Calvin Cupidore, came from Lansing as a "personal favor" for Wayne-Westland school Superintendent Dennis O'Neill, who stressed that "we are in

Hawks talked at length with reporters during the one-hour press conference that also drew local businesswoman Margaret Harlow, who co-chairs the pro-millage citizens group Save Our Schools, and local school business manager Elwood (Woody) London.

Though Hawks and Cupidore conceded there's much local opposition to higher taxes, they stressed that state-level efforts to improve school financing could take several years.

Many house buyers are shying away from Westland - and some city residents want to move out because local schools are deteriorating, according to some real estate brokers.

Wayne-Westland school officials last year slashed school programs and services to combat a budget crunch, and the problem is expected to deepen if additional cuts are made, the brokers said.

House buyers, especially those with children, are opting to live in such cities as Livonia, amid widespread concerns that Wayne-Westland schools are on the decline, they

"It seems like at one time there was more pride in Wayne-Westland schools, but that seems to be changing," said Walter Tabaka of Camelot Realty, Inc., in Westland.

Westland used to be a bigger draw for house buyers than such neighboring cities as Garden City, because Wayne-Westland schools were considered superior, Tabaka said.

"Now you'll see them (house

Westland Mayor Robert Thomas appears assured of winning his battle to fire Dennis Fassett, the city's embattled cable TV community relations consultant.

Thomas vetoed a split Westland City Council decision Monday to extend Fassett's contract for three months, and council members conceded they cannot muster the five votes needed to override the mayor's Four council members supported keeping Fassett on the job - temporarily - but the remaining three who opposed Fassett said they wouldn't join an override effort.

Even councilman Thomas Artley, who suggested extending Fassett's contract through May 31, said he wouldn't seek to thwart the mayor's veto, despite concerns about the fate of local cable programming once Fassett's pact expires Friday.

ARTLEY'S VOTE to support Fassett came just six days after a fiery council session in which members locked in a 3-3 vote over extending Fassett's contract. Artley, absent at that meeting, broke the deadlock Monday, though he said he cast his reluctant vote for Fassett "to many - Fassett's contract before the city appeople's chagrin.

Wider field of candidates sought By Darrell Clem staff writer

Westland Mayor Robert Thomas on Monday unveiled his choice for replacing Dennis Fassett at the helm of local cable television, sparking criticism from some city council members who called for a wider field of

Thomas introduced Drew Ramsey, a nine-year, award-winning cable production specialist for the city of Southfield, as his choice for the cable-TV community relations post that one council member said has become "a political football."

Ramsey, addressing the council, remarked that council members appeared at odds over the direction of local cable, but he tried to assure them that he doesn't want to be drawn into the political wrangling.

"I'm not politically aligned with him (the mayor)." Ramsey said. "I'm interest-aligned with him."

Ramsey expressed his interest in Fassett's post in a letter to Thomas last July, in which he asked to be considered for the job "If you (Thomas) are concerned with the present cable channel management and recognize the need for a change . . .

Thomas had met Ramsey during a visit to Southfield's cable station.

SOME COUNCIL members appeared impressed Monday night with a video presentation that Ramsey made to introduce himself - and his work - to city officials. He titled the video, "Together We Can Make It Better."

Councilman Charles Pickering, among Fassett's most vocal opponents, said if Ramsey's presentation reflected his ability to upgrade the local cable Channel 8, then "we're in for a great amount of improvement."

Though no council members downplayed Ramsey's work, some of them did criticize the mayor for trying to handpick Fassett's successor instead of seeking a wider field of candidates.

"I don't believe one individual has the right to say this is the way it is," Councilman Kenneth Mehl said.

The cable post has become a "political football," Mehl said, "and it's everybody's fault."

Mehl chastised the council for blaming all of cable's problems on Fassett, who's headed the local cable station for nearly seven years.

"It's just get rid of Dennis Fassett, that's all, (but) what exactly are we looking for?" he asked.

Most council members appeared to want a wider field of candidates.

only on a pay-to-play basis. "I'm getting a lot of feedback from people who say the school district is going down the tubes," said Ron Patterson, a real estate broker for Metro West in Garden City. "People want to sell and get out of Westland, and it's hurting the values of the homes."

The district's image began to deteriorate in the mid-80s, when it absorbed part of the former Cherry Hill School District, but the problem has worsened because of the latest budget cuts. Patterson said.

"I've even had teachers in the Wayne-Westland school district tell me that this district is going down the tubes," he said. "They see the school district from the inside decaying, and they're telling everybody to get out."

Not every real estate broker gave such a bleak assessment of local schools. Jim Anderson of Century 21 Dynamic in Westland said he's not so sure the district's financial woes have steered house buyers away.

"I DON'T know that they'd be aware of this (the budget cuts)," he Moreover, Anderson questioned whether Westland residents are moving because of a battered school district image. "No one's moving because of that.

he said.

Ironically, the bleak forecast among some real estate brokers came after Westland property assessments rose by about 8 percent. However, the increase preceded the

Immunization clinic

Mom rolls up sleeves to work on project

By Marie Chestney staff writer

A project originally conceived last winter to give local Girl Scouts the chance to do community service has mushroomed to the point where 500. Livonia school district students can get free immunization shots Saturday at a medical clinic.

Along the way, the Girl Scouts decided not to do the project because they couldn't meet the strict deadlines imposed by governmental agencies in the giving of the shots.

But their leader, Linda Hoff, wasn't to be deterred.

In the process of researching the project for her scouts. Hoff learned how vital it was for young people to be fully protected, with a second shot, against measles, mumps and rubella.

And she realized that many families couldn't afford the $30-to-$90 cost per child doctors charge to give the vaccination.

Hoff kept on with the project, doing most of the work herself, long after it became apparent her Girl Scouts had to choose another project for their service award.

"We were brainstorming ideas when I took my daughter Katie to the doctor and paid $50 for the shot," said Hoff.

"I thought, that's a lot of money. Why not have an immunization

That question asked last winter led to free immunizations in early December for more than 180 seventh graders in the district which includes the northern half of Westland

SATURDAY'S IMMUNIZATION clinic has been expanded to include free shots for any person born on or after Jan. 1, 1957, starting at age 4. The Wayne County Department of Public Health is providing the shots for 500 people.

A letter telling of Saturday's clinic was sent Thursday to the parents of all Livonia school children.

At the Hoff household this week, the phone has been ringing constantly from parents with questions about the free shots.

'Parents wonder if their child is They want to make sure it's free. And their asking if we'll check their financial records, to make sure they can't afford to pay for the shots

'Our goal is to get as many kids immunized as we can. The . recommendations on whether kids should get these shots gets so confusing, many parents give up and do nothing.'

"I tell them, it's entirely your own Hoff expects even bigger lines Saturjudgment. If you feel you can't afford it, that it's too expensive, then by all means come."

Once she got the idea of providing free shots through a special clinic, Hoff called Dr. Donald Lawrenchuk, Wayne County's medical director. for advice.

The county, using shots provided by the Michigan Department of Public Health, is the only agency locally that can administer free shots.

"He went over the procedures with me for one and a half hours on the phone." Hoff said. "He said it was a big undertaking and that the chances of succeeding were slim because of liability concerns. He said the only way we could proceed was through a governmental agency because governmental agencies are protected from all claims except claims involving neglect."

AS A MOTHER of four and PTA member at Frost Middle and Hull Elementary, Hoff naturally thought first of contacting the school district.

"It was the most sensible place to start. It made sense to tie the PTA into it because it dealt with the wellbeing of kids."

Hoff then got the OKs she needed from both the district and Botsford Hospital, who provided the medical staff and facility for the free shot program.

YOUNGSTERS TYPICALLY are given a measles, mumps and rubella shot at 15 months of age.

A second dose is not mandatory but research increasingly shows that a second one is needed.

In the last 10 years, the U.S. has seen a dramatic increase in the number of reported cases of measles, mumps and rubella.

"The incidents of these diseases among those not immunized is going up," Hoff said. "And one dose is not enough to guarantee protection.

"We got to the point where people.

were not getting measles any more so people were not paying that much attention to getting the shots. They thought, it's not that important. When's the last time you heard of anyone getting measles?"

"In Michigan alone, there were over 475 confirmed cases of measles disease reported in the past year despite major efforts to control these outbreaks," said Dr. Lawrenchuk. "Nationwide, there were over 26,000 cases of this highly communicable disease last year, including at least 64 deaths."

The federal Centers for Disease Control and the American Academy of Pediatrics currently recommend a routine two-dose measles vaccination for all people born on or after Jan. 1, 1957.

IT IS believed that people born before that date were infected with measles prevalent at the time and are therefore considered protected.

Hoff believes Saturday's free shots will be the last ones given through the school district and Botsford Health Clinic.

She also believes a second shot will become mandatory within the next few years.

"The Michigan Department of Health is looking at it now. It has been recommended by medical organizations. Measles is one of the most contagious diseases. Once it gets going, it's hard to get control of

When Linda Hoff took her daughter, Katie, to the doctor for an immunization, she found out just how expensive the shots can be. Since then, Hoff has led a campaign to give free immunizations to students in Livonia.

Schools look at changes to prepare students for future

By Marie Chestney staff writer

One of the biggest challenges facing educators in the 1990s is preparing students to meet the vastly changed demands of the workplace of the 21st Century.

How students - and teaching must change in this decade is one of the many "assumptions of the future" showcased in the strategic plan for the future being put together by the Livonia school district, which includes the northern section of Westland.

In a talk to PTA members Feb. 20 at the annual Founders Day program, Superintendent Joseph Marinelli described the demands schools must place on students now so that they can successfully compete in the workplace of tomorrow. In his talk, Marinelli told how the teaching of students must change.

"Society will require a higher order of thinking skills," Marinelli said. "It's important that students not just get the basic facts but that they learn how to learn.

"We now teach individual subject areas but the world doesn't operate in that way. Students have to be actively engaged, not quietly regurgitating facts.'

together by Marinelli after numerous interviews with professionals knowledgeable about education. The paper includes changes of the 1990s expected in the district, the financing of schools, the district's school buildings, its teachers and the district's programs and services. With the expected changes now outlined, the district will use them to set its priorities in the years ahead. These priorities could significantly change how the district operates.

They also will be crucial in setting the district's annual budget. Some of the assumptions for the he game is newspaper advertising—and the rules are changing. Rates are up in the Detroit News and Free Press. Suburban circulation is down. And all around town, advertisers are wondering what numbers to trust and where to place their media dollars. What should you do?

Beware of smoke and mirrors.

Right now, the News and Free Press circulation is unstable at best. On the other hand, SPRING's network of 39 Detroit suburban newspapers delivers to more than 500,000 households and that's a real number.

How do we know? All SPRING newspapers are audited. Every year, the circulation figures for each SPRING newspaper are verified by either CAC or ABC—two of the industry's most highly-respected independent auditors.

No slippery stuff here. SPRING's numbers are tested, tried, and true.

Place your bet on SPRING.

Once you've studied the numbers, we're sure you'll agree: SPRING is a sure winner.

SPRING's circulation is solid and stable. It's audited. And it represents more than one million readers who have the means to buy what misleading. And, when it comes to newspaper circulation figures, you want more than quantity. You want quality.

We've got it. SPRING's one million readers are some of the most affluent consumers around. SPRING newspapers go to suburbs with the spending power to buy more cars, condos, boats, bikes, appliances, apparel, gizmos, and gadgets than most other Michigan communities combined.

Best of all, SPRING delivers this upscale suburban market at a lower cost per thousand than either the Newsor the Free Press.

One call. One order. One ad. One million readers. One heck-of-a-buy.

School choice

Hot debate soon expected in Lansing

By Tim Richard staff writer

Look for "schools of choice" to be an issue in Michigan in two months or so. Don't look for it to be a panacea. Expect a lot of distrust in the educational establishment.

That's the prognosis for a plan by which parents would choose the schools their youngsters would attend, and educators would be empowered to offer specialized programs for them to choose from.

"Choice" won't be on the front burner for two months," lobbyist Tom White told his boss, the Michigan Association of School Boards, In convention last week.

Added Mike Addonizio, the former college professor who is Gov. John Engler's education adviser: "We do not have a full-blown program for choice. The governor does not view it as a pancea, not as an end in itself.

"A year of planning would be needed for choice," said Addonizio, pointing to fall of 1992 as a starting date. "The governor and Legislature would be interested in supporting the costs — particularly counseling for families and transportation."

WHITE SAID MASB, which represents the elected trustees who govern school districts, is more interested in funding equity between dismally poor and well-off districts. "Choice detracts from the real issues of finance and school improvement.'

In Minnesota, half of 1 percent of parents enrolled their children in a statewide choice program. "Of those, only 20 percent did so for academic reasons. The others were for convenience or athletics," White said.

MASB's interests are getting the state to fund transportation, staff. development and parental counseling if a "choice" program is adopted here. "We want to be there if this is imposed," White said.

In this area, many districts are wary of choice, fearing their quality programs would be inundated with applicants from lesser dis-

ADDONIZIO'S words were reassuring to trustees. An economist and former state Senate Fiscal Agency analyst, he used the words "the governor is interested in. ..." when presenting Engler's views.

Engler's goal is improved pupil outcomes, and choice is only one element in that program, Addonizio said. More important elements are state aid, equity between districts and site-based management, he Engler and the State Board of Education have endorsed inter-district choice, and Addonizio said an additional year of planning would be needed. The governor would be interested in providing state grants for pilot programs, transportation. costs and formula aid.

To an Oakland County school board member who asked how a limited number of slots would be allocated, Addonizio replied it would be done by random selection. "Everyone seeking a place has the same chance. We wouldn't let the (receiving) schools choose. In large districts which offer choice programs, they guarantee a family one of their first three choices," he said.

THE STATE WILL come close to giving districts the monetary aid increase they want next fall, it appeared.

Lobbyist White said public schools will need an increase of 4 to 6 percent to "keep pace with inflation" on top of rising retirement cósts.

Addonizio said they can expect

"better than 4 percent, which is not remarkable by mid-1980s standards" but is good in a period of downsizing state government.

Two key lawmakers told MASB is doing better by its public schools than other states:

"Michigan is the only state not. cutting K-12 aid," said Sen. Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron, chair of the Senate appropriations subcommittee. "It will not occur. It is not negotiable. . A lot of John's problems would go away if he were to decide to cut education."

"K-12 education is a very important human service," said Rep. James O'Neill, D-Saginaw, chair of the House appropriations subcommittee. "Over the last 10 years, alot of money has been diverted from education to other programs."

THE LAWMAKERS said it's unlikely the state would follow through with money for classroom computers, a program started by former Gov. James Blanchard.

"It is not his (Engler's) favorite program," said DeGrow. "School districts were notified they would purchase computers at their own risk. . . Any (computer) money will come from the K-12 slice of the pie (general state aid)."

"Let's face it," added O'Neill. "There's been a change in the administration and a change in the economy.'

Board to interview trustee candidates

Every one of the 10 people who applied to fill a vacancy on the Schoolcraft College board of Trustees will be interviewed in person for the job.

Board chairwoman Mary Breen announced the interview policy this week.

Candidate interviews have tentatively been set for Monday, March II in the college board room, with each candidate given about 15 minutes to respond to board questions. Interviews are open to the public.

Cashdidates to be interviewed include Ronaele Bowman, Livonia, Willis Brauer, Livonia; Paulette Cebulski, Plymouth, Yvonne Constas, Livonia; Robert Gordon, Plymouth; Stephen Ragan, Plymouth; Subramanian Ramamurthy, Canton; Andrea Taylor, Livonia; Jeffrey Theodore, Livonia; and Patricia Watson, Northville.

Bowman, Taylor and Theodore all ran for the board in 1989.

Candidates seek to replace trustee Jack Kirksey. The Livonia resident announced his intention to resign from the board last fall, after a dispute involving selection of the college's legal representative.

Bowman is a trainer at the Michigan Training and Resource Center, Westland, Brauer is a principal at Coolidge Elementary School in Livonia. Cebulski is an assistant director with the University of Michigan Hospital Department of Physical and Medical Rehabilitation. Constas is a social worker in private practice. Gordon is a doctor, with a family practice in Plymouth.

Ragan is an administrative assistant in the Wayne County Division of Airports. Ramamurthy is president of Optimum Management, Inc., an engineering and management consulting firm based in Plymouth Taylor, a graduate of Schoolcraft's culinary arts program, operates a catering business. Theodore is an assistant Wayne County prosecuting attorney. Watson is a clinical supervisor with Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital and is also a mental health professional in private practice.

Kirksey, director of community education for the Livonia Schools, is a Livonia resident.

Kirksey was elected to a six-year board term in 1989; however, his appointed replacement will only serve from April 24-June 30.

IN ADDITION to Kirksey's former seat, seats held by Michael Burley and Jeanne Stempien will also up for election.

The election is scheduled for Monday, June 10.

Schoolcraft, a two-year community college serves a number of western Wayne County communities, including the Clarenceville, Garden City, Livonia, Northville or Plymouth/Canton public school districts. A small portion of Novi Schools is also included in the Schoolcraft service area.

Trustees oversee the college budget and curriculum and are also responsible for hiring the college president.

SC offers motorcycle safety classes

With warmer weather approaching, Schoolcraft College is offering two motorcycle safety classes.

Motorcycle Safety, a 20-hour class, is offered for motorcyclists who are at least 15 years old. Classroom and range instruction is included, motorcycles are also provided. Riders who successfully complete the course will have their Michigan Secretary of State road test waived. The first session is scheduled Friday, March 15-Fee is $20.

Performance Based Better Biking, a one-day class, includes the Secretary of State Alternative Motorcycle Operation Skills Test and allows licensed cyclists the opportunity to improve their skills in braking, turning and avoiding obstacles.

The class is offered 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, March 3 and will be repeated Saturday, March 24. Fee is

Bill would ban assisted suicide

By Tim Richard staff-writer

A state Senate panel is moving ahead with a bill to make assisting suicides a felony over a buzzsaw of. objections from "Dr. Death" - Jack Kevorkian — and his admirers.

"We should move this quickly." sponsor Fred Dillingham, R-Fowlerville, told the Senate Family Law and Criminal Justice Committee.

"I'm not intimidated. I know I'm right. Time will vindicate me,' shouted Kevorkian, the media starwitness at whom Senate Bill 32 is

The bill would punish assisted suicide with four years in prison or a $2,000 fine. It would distinguish between assisting a suicide and removing medical treatment.

COMMITTEE CHAIR Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo, scheduled a vote at 3 p.m. next Tuesday in 405. State Capitol Building, Lansing, to report out the bill. Sen, Robert Geake, R-Northville, is a member.

Kevorkian, a Royal Oak pathologist who gained international fame when he helped a fatally ill Oregon woman end her life with his suicide machine last June, blistered the committee and the medical profes-

Kevorkian, 64, compared himself to medical pioneers who introduced dissection, the smallpox vaccine, assistance to women in labor and birth

"Legislators, judges and medical politicians are keeping this nation in the Dark Ages," he said, accusing his legion of enemies of "unspeakable barbarity, cowering under church dogma, knuckling under."

KEVORKIAN and his attorney, Geoffrey Fieger of Southfield, advocated a euthanasia law instead. Under it, a "blue ribbon panel" of medical professionals would whether a patient should be allowed to, and assisted in, taking his or her own life.

Kinglet: Pixie of bird world

After spending time in the field over a period of several years, one becomes aware of the usual and the unusual. Last year red-breasted nuthatches were a common sight, but most years they are rare. This winter the golden-crowned kinglet is more common than usual.

In December of 1990 there were 61 golden-crowned kinglets counted within a 15 mile diameter count area. During the 46 years of the Detroit Audubon Society Christmas Counts, there were only four previous years with higher recorded numbers. On the average, only 24 birds are counted. The record of 105 individuals seen in 1973 still stands.

Gold-crowned kinglets and their cousin the ruby-crowned kinglet are the smallest birds found in Michigan, next to the ruby-throated hummingbird. Yet despite their four inch length and one-fifth ounce weight; they can survive Michigan winters.

These pixies of the bird world are very descriptively named, Goldencrown's have a bright yellow-gold patch on the top of their head. Females have an entirely yellow patch. Males have an orange-red patch surrounded by yellow. Bordering the yellow patch in both sexes is a black perimeter. Ruby crowns are only found in males of the ruby-crowned kinglets. Female ruby-crown's do not have any red feathers on their

Southeastern Michigan is a wintering area for the golden-crowned kinglet, but during the summer they are found in the northern coniferous forests. They nest in the upper peninsula of Michigan and on Isle Royale. Some nesting has also occurred in the northern tip of the Lower Penin-

Commission wants more info on stadium proposal

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara is getting good marks from area county commissioners on his recent State of the County address, but commissioners said they want more information on McNamara's plans to keep the Detroit Tigers in Wayne County.

"It's nice that, for the first time since he's taken office, the executive can address our successes, without having the speech dominated by some big problem we're having," said commission vice chairwoman Susan Heintz, R-Northville Town-

McNamara's proposal to keep the major league baseball team in Detroit was briefly mentioned during the half hour speech earlier this month — but dominated post-speech conversation and speculation.

McNamara has said the county would be willing to help pay for a renovation of Tiger Stadium if the 88-year-old baseball park is kept in Detroit.

"Our position is that the stadium absolutely must be in Detroit, and our second position is that if the present stadium could be utilized. that's where we prefer to see it," McNamara said.

That may not be enough, however, to convince Tigers owner Tom Monaghan to keep the stadium in Detroit. Monaghan recently said he wanted to move the stadium out of Detroit because the city's high crime rate was hurting attendance.

wants the ball club to stay in Detroit. The executive committee of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) last week said the baseball club should reconstruct its 79-year-old stadium or build a new one in the city. The committee said it favors using existing infrastructure over expanding into the suburbs. But McNamara's proposal, which potentially includes county stadium, bonds, is also drawing questions. "I'd have to take a long, hard look at financing," Kelley said.

Heintz, Shirley Poling, D-Canton, and Kay Beard, D-Inkster, said they were opposed to using county money to finance a new stadium.

"I think (club owner) Tom Monaghan and the Detroit Tigers have enough money of their own," Poling said.

Added Heintz: "I'd never support taxing people to pay for it."

Beard also said she preferred a privately-financed stadium.

"In this day and age, that's the way to go about it," she said.

Though McNamara hasn't officially issued his stadium proposal, he indicated a stadium could be financed without raising county taxes during a December interview with the Observer Newspapers.

McNamara said he was committed to using a new stadium to spur residential and industrial develop-

McNamara isn't the only one who for his plans to stop suburban sprawl.

> "YOU CAN see that in my district," said Poling. "On one hand, people are leaving (the city of) Wayne in bunches, while Canton continues to grow." Poling and others praised McNamara's plans to develop county management teams to work with local officials in retaining residents and businesses: McNamara's plans to gain county control over general assistance welfare payments faces a less certain

Beard said the county shouldn't be too eager to assume responsibility.

"Anytime the state gives you something they give it to you with less than full funding," Beard said. "I can see us putting a lot of money we don't have into this."

Plans to convert general assistance to a job training program are also a concern, Beard said.

"As far as I'm aware, general assistance is going to be done away with," said Heintz. "I don't know if that's something we'd even get the chance to consider."

McNamara's infant mortality task force drew strong support from Poling, one of the commission's newest members.

"I wasn't here when they started it last year, but I'd have to say that infant mortality is one of the county's most serious problems," she said.

MU seeks one-room schoolhouses

Eastern Michigan University's College of Education is seeking information about one-room schoolhouses in Michigan to establish an inventory of these 'disappearing' landmarks and provide a network for schoolhouse owners.

The survey, funded by the EMU Chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, international education fraternity, the EMU College of Education and the Washtenaw County Historic District Commission, needs those with information on one-room schoolhouses in Michigan to complete and return a two-page survey to EMU.

According to Thomas L. Jones, executive director of the Historical Society of Michigan, many one-room schoolhouses have been purchased from private homes, some have been converted into museums and a few are used by historical societies to provide hands-on learning experiences for children.

Jones said a 1987 study by the Michigan Department of Education found 21 such schoolhouses still in use by Michigan school districts and added, the survey is an attempt "to find out if that figure is accurate in 1991."

EMU and the Historical Society plan to form a network of owners who can benefit from sharing information and resources.

Westerman and Jones announced the survey as part of EMU's plan to renovate and create a museum of its own one-room Town Hall Schoolhouse, donated to the University in 1988 by the Geddes family.

The Town Hall Schoolhouse, which EMU relocated from its out-county location to central campus in 1989, has been restored on the exterior and awaits interior completion.

Already, Westerman said, the building symbolizes EMU's history as a teacher training institution, the first teachers' college west of the Allegheny Mountains.

One-room schoolhouse owners and/or those with information about one-room schoolhouses anywhere in Michigan are asked to write: College of Education, Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti, Mich. 48197.

Thomas veto Mayor pulls plug on Fassett

ESTLAND CITY officials and the cable advisory communications committee will embark on a new path relating to programming of Channel 8. The new direction was prompted by a divided city council which extended by only three months the contract of Dennis Fassett, who has been head of the city's cable-TV/community relations department on a contractural basis for six years.

The extension faces a certain veto by Mayor Robert Thomas. The council's 4-3 vote Monday night indicates there isn't the minimum fivevotes required to override a mayoral veto.

If the veto stands, Fassett is political history. The administration and the city's cable advisory commission were unhappy with Fassett over a number of issues. The commission last week recommended that the council not extend Fassett's contract.

With Fassett out of the picture, council members and the commission should make it a point to meet as a group and educate themselves about local programming to avoid similar problems in the future.

IT'S CLEAR from comments in recent weeks that city officials have no idea how much time is involved in producing local programs and events.

They complained about what they believe are too many repeats of local programs. But if the council and commission want more new programming and fewer reruns, they must increase the budget and hire more people.

Whoever the council approves as Fassett's successor, that person will have a major responsibility to educate the commission and council on local programming.

It's easy to demand that there be 20 to 30 hours of new programming each week. But it's harder to put up the money to hire the staff to generate the programs.

The new cable coordinator must educate the council and commission on local programming.

The new cable director will also have to communicate clearly with the commissioners on the priorities of program content.

If there are complaints about the mayor (past and present) being on Channel 8 too often, then it's up to viewers and the commission to volunteer new ideas to the cable director.

When the new director takes office, he or she and the commission should act speedily to draft a plan for the nearly $900,000 in grants from Contentinal Cablevision Co., earmarked for cable equipment and services.

THE COUNCIL, commission and administration should also agree that the "watchdog" responsibilities of the franchise agreement with Continental Cablevision should be separated from the new director's duties and assigned to the city attorney or a consultant to be paid with the company's franchise fees, which are about $400,000 a year.

Those duties should be divided among different people because it's clear that it's hard to be a franchise agreement watchdog on one day and have a positive and professional communications with the cable company the next.

Engler seeks change in state government

THE TWO great contrasting political executive styles are Richard Nixon and Ronald Reagan. As John Engler approaches two months as Michigan's governor, I still can't figure out which he's most like.

Nixon: the ultimate insider shrewd, clever, calculating, knowledgeable and pragmatic didn't care much about ideology. His style was to scope out tactically how to attain his objective, then follow through regardless of political philosophy.

Reagan: knew little about details of governance or tactics of maneuver, didn't care. He did know overall philosophy. He defined an overarching ideology and communicated it with so much power as to define the arena for subsequent debate.

Understanding whether Engler is more like Nixon or Reagan provides weekend showed a politician who una way to evaluate the core of a man who, to date, has succeeded in remaining distant and closed to public

IT'S EASY to argue that Engler is a Nixonian tactician.

Engler's entire career since graduating from Michigan State University has been in the sandbox of the Legislature where the primary rule of survival is that skill in maneuver is more important than substance or philosophy.

There he gained respect as the ultimate insider, a master of legislative and procedural detail. His core was adherence to Republican advantage.

Even his come-from-behind election as governor reminds many of Nixon's style. Engler clearly understood that the only issue that could add emotional punch to his superlatively organized but passsionless campaign was high property taxes. derstood polling data and how to capitalize on it.

TO ARGUE that Engler is more like Reagan requires looking at what he actually has said and tried to do in his earliest days as governor.

First, he consistently has said Michigan's government is too big. At some political damage to himself, he has cut programs - some because they existed rather than in response to results. He has eliminated offices, proposes to consolidate departments, laid off some people and threatens to fire more. Second, he consistently has said property taxes are too high and should be cut. He has held to this position in the face of a $1 billion-plus budget deficit. He has held to it in the face of criticism that he proposes to pay for his radical philosophy of state government by cutting taxes for the rich and services for the poor.

That isn't the style of the cunning Nixonian tactician. It is the style of the Reaganesque radical.

THE PRIMARY conclusion I reach about Engler's governorship is just how radical it is.

Engler wants fundamental change in the size of government, what government does and how government is paid for. It makes his agenda un like any governor's in modern Michigan history.

George Romney (1963-68) was a moderate Republican with a pitchman's skills. Bill Milliken (1969-82) was more of the same but with more class and grace. Jim Blanchard (1983-90) consistently sought the political center, possibly to his own defeat. John Swainson (1961-2) was a transitional governor.

You have to go back to the earliest days of G. Mennen Williams' administration (1949-60) to see an ideological core and a policy vision as far reaching as Engler's.

For Engler, the question is whether he can assemble a coalition of support as large and as durable as Williams did in his 12 years in office.

War cries Freedom is the right to dissent

ITH THE war in the Persian Gulf winding down, it's time for us to reexamine our views on freedom and

Most disturbing during this conflict was the attitude which dictated that we should be grateful for the right to speak our minds and criticize our government, but we should shut up and go along with whatever the government decides.

In Livonia, city assessor Ron Mardiros saw fit to call for the reassignment of Bishop Thomas Gumbleton, a longtime peace activist who actively opposes the current war.

In Birmingham, an outraged caller complained to this newspaper about a headline that described local reaction to the war as "mixed."

Despite the newsroom truism that reaction fo just about anything always is mixed, this caller, a valued reader, thought it a slap in the face of our troops to suggest the country is not 100 percent behind their cause.

FREEDOM IS the license to express dissenting opinions, especially ones likely to offend the status quo. Democracy, if it means anything, says that all the people have an equal say about , the course of government policy and a reponsibility to pull for their point of view.

Unfortunately, the war in the Persian Gulf has moved some, with notable passion, to attempt stifling opinions with which they disagree.

The attitude of a recent guest commentary printed in another area newspaper demonstrates the danger from those who wish to snuff out dissent. The writer paints the entire local Arab-American community with the brush of anti-Americanism for failing to denounce a West Bloomfield man of Iraqi origin who has spoken favorably of Saddam Hussein.

Anti-war protesters, to be sure, also can be self-satisfied and a little too sure of their own correctness. But, as yet, we've heard none of them demand that supporters of the war be deprived of their right to express that support.

THOSE WHO would stifle discussion — those who offer the wisdom that now that war has begun we all have a duty to fall in line and support it — seem to think somehow that because lives are on the line the debate that is essential to democracy should be suspended.

Quite the contrary. War is the result of diplomatic failure. Debate is mandatory — before, during and after. The public examination of our goals, and of our consciences, must never stop.

As for the attitude that any questioning of the war or related policies insults our troops, we say not. Americans feel passionately, and correctly, that our soldiers must never be humiliated or shamed for what our elected leaders ask them to do, as many were in the aftermath of Vietnam. But disagreeing with a policy is no insult to the men and women asked to carry out that policy.

If soldiers can face the enemy's bullets and shells overseas, they can face the words "we disagree" at home.

Besides, there's something disingenuous in the assumption that all the soldiers in the Middle East support the war and expect the same fromus. We remember news reports in the weeks following the August deployment in which some soldiers clearly questioned their mission. They have that right, and so do we at home.

What might be most disturbing about all of this is that some people actually fear open debate. It's that strange attitude again that democracy is all-important -- and heaven forbid we should actually practice it.

What will be price of war?

To the editor:

I'd like to address the issue of whether people are aware of the consequences the war with Iraq will unavoidably produce.

More specifically, it is my concern that the young Iraqi men living in Baghdad who are witnessing U.S. forces destroy their city will grow up hating the United States for what we did to their country. This frightens me because today's youth of Iraq are tomorrow's leaders and will be in the position to make important decisions which will ultimately affect national security.

I fear that the future leaders of Iraq will avenge the U.S. attack on their country through acts of terrorism, oil shortages, and quite possibly, war. Presently, it appears Iraq does not pose a military threat to the United States. However, they may acquire deadly nuclear weapon capability 10 to 20 years from now.

We don't have to look far for proof that history does repeat itself. For example, World War I left Germany financially devastated and its people humiliated. One of those people was Adolf Hitler. After becoming leader of the Nazi German party, he swore revenge on France and invaded Poland. The United States, Great Britain, and France then declared war and World War II began.

Hitler was a young man who experienced the devestation of his country and abused political power to seek revenge later on in his life. I am worried that history will repeat itself and a future Iraqi leader will want to get even with the United States in one form or another.

The war is in full swing and Iraq's obvious hatred towards the U.S. is severe and widespread. Consequently, a major post-war responsibility facing the United States and our allied forces is to establish Arab-Israeli peace and furthermore, peace between the United States and all Arab

Do we want our young men and women in the armed services to be turned into cannon fodder in a ground war with Saddam Hussein?

I am sure the resounding answer to the above question would be, "absolutely not." Can this carnage be prevented? There is a very good chance that it can be by the use of or the threat of using the neutron bomb.

In listening to the Paul Harvey news broadcast, this bomb will kill all living things in a one square mile area while leaving all structures intact, and not leaving the area contaminated by radiation.

To bring this about, we would need a ground swell of public opinion to our elected officials. This could be brought about by your paper and all other papers, printing a blank in your paper that states, "we the undersigned urge you to use the neutron bomb to end this war with Iraq," and sign your name and address, then send it to your elected official in Washington.

Doing this would give Saddam Hussein three choices: 1. Ignore the warning and get his troops killed; 2. Move troops out where they can be killed by conventional weapons; or, 3. Surrender and get out of Kuwait.

I am sure he would get the mes-Arnold Wobefiel,

Concern grows Urban sprawl draws reaction

THE OLD CLICHE OF living in a throwaway society has now evolved into the reality of living in a society with "throwaway cities."

That's the concern of Edward McNamara, Wayne County executive. And he's not alone. In Oakland County officials recently held a summit meeting to discuss the causes and consequences of urban sprawl. In some cases those are fairly obvious. Wayne County is facing the potential loss of two U.S. Congressional seats due to population loss. In outlying areas of Oakland County where the population is growing, attention to infrastructure these problems. Resolve them before they grow needs like roads and sewers is siphoning off support for our older suburbs.

The combination of growth in new areas and abandonment of aging ones is ominous.

"We are trying to head off something that could be disastrous," said Joseph Joachim, director of the Oakland County Department of Community and Economic Development.

Now is not the time to twiddle thumbs. So Oakland County's establishment of a Regional Development Initiative is a good move. So is the team approach being set up by Wayne County.

But it's going to take more than talk to solve unmanageable.

What a difference a year makes. City Councilman Kenneth Mehl running for election says he's the "cooperation candidate." Now he's the "confrontation councilman."

Arrogant board knocked

To the editor:

The taxpayers of the Wayne-Westland school district are financially supporting their schools in 1990-91 more than ever before.

In your story (School tax proposal on March 13 ballot), school Superintendent Dennis O'Neill is quoted as saying that the current $39.38 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation is $4.02 than the rate four years ago.

The 1987-88 school year has been used as the "base" for his statement because the tax rate that year was the highest operating millage levied in the school district's history. The

at the show or visit one of our showrooms.

2.75 mills, now expired, passed by 11 votes in April, 1987, and was for two years to help straighten out the district until other help could be obtained from the state. This year there is the greatest chance for the state to return to its 1980 level of 50. percent funding as proposed by the new governor.

The value of property in the district increased almost 27 percent from the base year of 1987-88 until 1991. During that period, the amount of dollars from local taxpayers increased almost 23 percent to an alltime high. In 1987-88, local taxpayers contributed 54 percent of the school tax dollars while the state contributed 46 percent. Today, the taxpayers pay 64 percent and the state only pays 36 percent.

Yes, local taxpayers are financially supporting their schools more today than they ever have before!

But what about the future? The school board wants an increase of $7.75 per $1,000 of SEV which is almost a 20 percent increase. It will generate an additional $10 million-$11.5 million per year (depending on who is doing the reporting) since the base year of 1987-88 and would increase local taxpayers school taxes over 42 percent in four years.

Your article states that the propoccured last year when he called me sal (on the March 13 ballot) is the same as one defeated by voters last June. This proposal is not the same. The board wants the increase for five years, 1991-95. The proposed millage would last three years longer than either millage defeated ear-

> In addition to the extra time and money, 32 mills now levied would also expire in 1995. That means that an arrogant school board will try to "blackmail" the voters in 1995 with a combined "renewal" of 39.75 mills. They will offer another "up or down/all or nothing" proposal and "threaten" to shut down the schools if the voters reject it.

If the current millage passes, an arrogant board with plenty of voted money will spend freely, waste freely and reward the mediocre performance of its employees.

Responsible government spends what it must to meet the needs. The Wayne-Westland board continues to spend what it doesn't have.

In reply to those opposing the Wayne-Westland school tax (increase), I would like to start with just some facts. Wildwood and Hamilton schools are being operated with only one principal between them and the junior highs and elementary schools are cut by one hour a day, therefore losing 10 teachers.

Administration has taken a cut of one-third not to mention the sports program and other activities that have been canceled. In short, we have lost educators, valuable learning time, important authoritative positions and programs that give our children, along with enjoyment, a sense of discipline and comradery.

You attack our school board for it's budgeting problems, but what about our government who so gladly made us believe that the "lottery" was to help our education program while in truth it only provides enough funds for each student to attend school 12 days out of the year.

These students need good teachers and they need more time IN school not OUT! If you cut more hours and more teachers the only "hostages" you will have are our children's minds.

And as for the seniors, there are many many seniors, some of whom are still teaching, who have children that have successfully made it through the Wayne-Westland school system as the millages were passed each time. I wonder, do we retire from our families at age 65? Please seniors, don't forget your grandchil-

This is a crucial time for all of us, no one likes taxes just like no one likes war. We all have to tighten our belts in these times and make concessions. But, as these concessions are made we have to recognize our priorities. We can not and should not make concessions when it comes to our children's education. Is giving up one pack of chewing gum per day to much to ask. After all, we spend more on buying a pack of cigarettes or pay to rent a movie for our VCR's not to mention our call waiting.

It is time to wake up and smell the roses. Your child's education is not like buying a car. You cannot afford to economize and save gas. You must feed it premium because if it breaks down, there's no trading it in.

Our future lies in our children's hands. So doesn't it make sense to provide them with the most and the best education possible. If we as their parents, grandparents and also members of the community, do not provide them with this, then who will? Our government hasn't.

First comes education and then comes a better world.

Millage OK is urged

To the editor:

March 13 is the date set for the next millage election in the Wayne-Westland school district. Passage of this critical millage proposition will guarantee restoration of all of the programs that were cut (last Aug-

- Full elementary school day will
- Junior high schools will regain their one hour that was cut,
- The elementary schools with part-time principals would be able to have a full-time principal.
- New textbooks could be purchased. (Some textbooks are 13 years old or older)
- Elementary schools would be able to have full-time art, music and physical education programs.
- Junior and senior high extracurricular activities and athletics will be reinstated. (No more "pay to
- play.") • More money would be available for school supplies.

All these programs are important for the children attending school in the Wayne-Westland school district in order to assure them a wellrounded education and better future. The top priority of the district has always been "education."

Until the state passes an equitable school funding bill (which probably won't be for at least three years), passing this millage proposition is the only way funds can be generated to operate the school district. The state continues to reduce its funding for schools in Wayne-Westland. The cost to the average taxpayer if the millage is passed would be $20 a month or 65 cents per day. Property values and also accreditation at the high school level are key issues to consider here.

The Save Our Schools Committee is asking for your help. The next meeting will be on Feb. 12 at 7 p.m. at the Board of Education Meeting Room, 36745 Marquette, Westland. We need your support and help. If you are not a registered voter, you can contact your child's school or call the school nearest you and a representative can help you register. The deadline to register is Feb. 11. Vote YES March 13. Remember

Think summer... camp, that is

Pairing children, camping

By Carolyn DeMarco staff writer

HEN YOU THINK of summer opportunities for children, it's the traditional summer camp that comes to mind, but there's more to summer fun than cabins without plumbing and butterfly-chasing, says Ruthe Lax of West Bloomfield.

Lax is the area representative of Student Camp and Trip Advisor, which for 21 years has been assisting kids 7-18 in the selection of camps, school and travel experiences. The Boston-based company represents 600 programs in the United States, Canada and abroad, ranging from New York stage experience to community service in Appalachia. Their aim is to match young clients with the most suitable summer experience for their interests and wallets.

"We're not just a referral service," Lax said in an interview in her in-home office. "We don't just send out brochures."

HER SERVICE begins with a telephone call and the completion of a profile sheet that asks for special information on the child — interests and previous camp experience, for example. She sets up an hour appointment with the parent and child to focus on the child's interests and parents' expectations.

"What makes SCATA different is the personal contact," Lax said. That and the fact that SCATA representatives spend their own summers visiting the camps for evaluation. "When I can talk about it, it makes it much more viable than just handing out a brochure," she said.

After acquainting the young client with suitable potential camps, the camps take over, Lax said. She collects no fees from the client. If the child enrolls in a camp, the camp pays her a commission.

SUMMER 'CAMP'is different today than it was 20 years ago, Lax said, because of the proliferation of specialized programs. For a young child, she said, a traditional general camp might be the best approach, but for the already experienced camper, a more sophisticated summer adventure might be in order.

So, what is there besides sleeping on bunks and eating cafeteria chow? Lax offers a few examples of a variety of the specialized summer programs she represents:

CAMPING — One company hosts expeditions of 12-18 teens, grouped according to age, chaperoned by three adults. A beginner's 24-day expedition in Pennsylvania offers bicycle touring, caving, rock climbing, backpacking and whitewater rafting. The adventure starts with a ropes and initiative course in the forest surrounding the camp. The cost—

"Everything is well-supervised," Lax said.

TEEN TOURS — They combine camping with dormitory life as participants explore a region, including city sights and sites. One 21-day excursion begins with arrival in Los Angeles, then on to San Diego, Las Vegas, the Grand Canyon, Lake Tahoe, San Francisco and points in between. For $2,495 teens receive air transportation to and from California, three meals daily, all entertainment, recreation and lodging.

"Yes, it's upscale," Lax said.
"Kids are seeing the country with friends. Safety is an incredible factor. Every teen is told — no smoking, no alcohol, no substances. If you do, you go home. There's no second sports camps — Expect to pay to play for the top quality sports programs, Lax said. One company offers hockey training in Russia, two weeks for $3;150; tennis in Florida, one month for $2,895, or skiing in British Columbia, three weeks for $2,695. Lax said, "Or you can go to a traditional camp that offers a variety of activities like swimming and night activities although tennis is the main focus. A moderate camp might run $600 per week. . There's an interest camp for every sport."

STUDY CAMPS — Academic programs are offered by eastern schools, including Wellesley. Serious students can delve into subjects like philosophy, literature, archaeology, ecology, physics, and medicine. Attendance is required and class participation and preparation are expected, but there is no credit, no grades.

Tuition for residential students at this camp is $1,725 for a three-week ession. "All year long kids are under pressure at school," Lax said, "and often they can't fit into their schedule the class they want. There's no pressure here for grades. It appeals to the bright, motivated student who is tired of the pressure."

CAREER EXPLORATION — National Law Camp is one. It admits aspiring lawyers as young as ninth-graders and exposes them tomock trials, computer legal research, etc. Another is a course for future film producers at UCLA for those 15-19. The film school fee is $2,850 for the four week-course, including tuition, accommodations, two meals daily and excursions.

WORK ETHIC — Teenagers who want to spend the summer being useful can do it in countries as far away as Hungary or Botswana, or closer to home — the West Indies or Jamaica, or Appalachia. Prices, programs and lengths of stay vary, and there is plenty of work out there. An in-country visit might cost $2,200 to $2,400, Lax said.

"We see a lot of young people who want to something for themselves and world," Lax said. "And a lot of these trips are tax-deductible."

PERFORMING ARTS — One New York program offers classes on acting, television, musical theater, voice and music, dance, and technical behind-the-scenes aspects, with all the luxuries of a resort hotel. Every participant appears in productions at local hotels. A full summer, nine weeks, is $4,750. Attend only the last three weeks and the tab is $1,750.

Other specialized camps Lax represents include weight reduction, foreign language immersion, motivational, European travel, world peace, and a limited number of those for learning and physically disabled.

"Parents just don't know what's out there," Lax said. There is a life outside of Michigan. If you're going to be four hours away, what's the difference if it's six. . . We're educating the public on what is available. It's an investment. Parents should take steps to find out if it's the right one."

The 'fair' facts of camping

By Carolyn DeMarco staff writer

A summer camp fair has been scheduled for 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, March 3, at Bloomfield Hills Middle School in Bloomfield Township. The event is sponsored by The Merrill-Palmer Institute, the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and All Things Considered magazine.

"Super Summer for Kids: A Camp and Activities Fair" is free and open to all. Families will have the opportunity to meet with dozens of representatives from local, state and national organizations who sponsor summer programs for children. There will also be an opportunity for those seeking summer employment.

For information on camps which have agreed to attend, call Elaine Sturman at Merrill-Palmer at 577-5244.

Camp fairs may be the best way to introduce child and parents to the vast number of summer camps out there. "Unfortunately," said Cliff Borbas, public relations chairman for the Michigan section of the American Camping Association, "Many show up at camp fairs and are overwhelmed. They don't know where to start."

He offers some advice for parents of campgoers. "Ask yourself first if it's day camp or residential that you want," said Borbas, operator of a residential camp in the upper peninsula. "Is the child ready to leave home? Is the parent ready for them to leave home?"

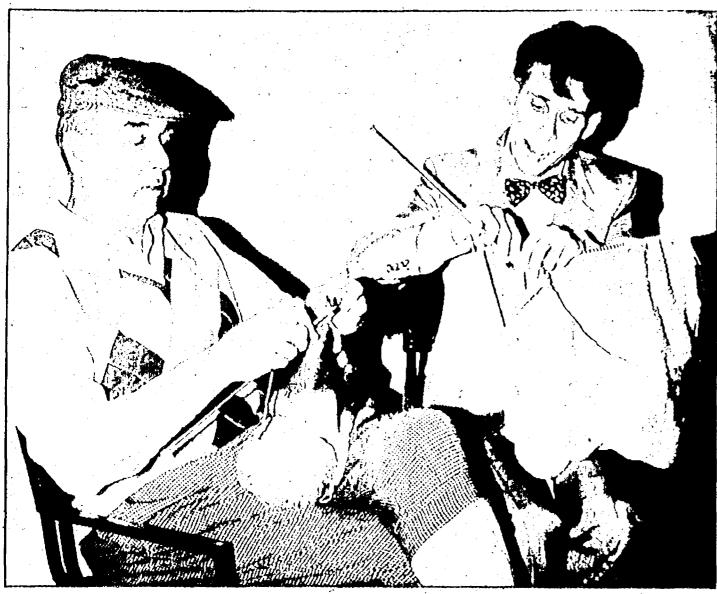

Cost is always a factor, Borbas said. "How much can the family afford to spend?" There are highly subsidized camps sponsored by scouts and churches as well as private camps which may be $400 per week and higher.

Determine what focus you prefer, Borbas said. "Ours is very rustic, very small for those who value a simpler life. Some like a country club atmosphere. In the end it's what you want for your kids."

In selecting a camp, know what the child is interested in, Borbas said, but don't discount one because it offers activities they haven't done before. "Look beyond what they normally do to offer new experiences."

Borbas encourages parents to include the child in the selection process. "If they go willingly to camp, that's half the battle. Discuss the camp guidelines. Get some bro-

A church basement isn't quite where you'd expect to see a Broadway musical. But after 20 years, that's where people in Livonia have come to expect just that.

Aspiring thesplans at Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian Church are putting the finishing touches on their 20th annual musical, "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," which has curtain calls for March 8-10.

"All of us were very scared because we didn't know what we were getting into," director Martha Kuykendall said of the first production, "The Sound of Music" in 1971.

"The choir director suggested we do a musical and that I be the director and we've been doing one ever since."

The first year, the group used a portable stage with flat curtains attached to the sets. Now, the basement, actually the church's fellowship hall, has a permanent stage, room for an orchestra — what's a musical without music? — and seating for an audience of 250.

. KUYKENDALL, AN Emerson Middle School music teacher, spends her summers reading plays to find one appropriate for a basement production and one the 35-40 church members can handle church members can handle.

Kuykendall looks for family type musicals. She considers the major parts that can be handled by the three or four people she knows will be a part of the production.

"Usually, it ends up that someone else plays the role.
This is comparable to community theater, but it's in a church basement."

The cast and crew spend six weeks getting ready for opening night. Thanks to help from an artist, an electrician and the like they are able to come up with the sets, costumes and lighting for the show. This year's production will have at least six set changes.

The most difficult production undertaken was that of "Fiddler on the Roof." As the years go by, the cast and crew have become more experienced.

"We've come a long way and all of us have learned a lot since we first started. But we're really lucky that we can get together, that we all get a lot out of it and that it's good for the church."

KUYKENDALL, 55, has been a member of the church since 1968. She started singing with the choir just after joining the congregation and three years later accepted the challenge of directing the musical.

"You know how church is once you say yes," she said,

In addition to her theatrical work at the church, Kuykendall also has done some musical direction at School-craft College and worked in community theater in Livonia and Garden City.

I have always been interested in graphology. I enjoy reading your article every week.

I would like to have my handwriting analyzed: I'm very curlous to see what my handwriting says about my personality.

I am a 31-year-old female, wife and mother of four very young children. I'm currently a homemaker and do not work outside our home.

I am also right-handed. I would appreciate an analysis of this letter. Thank you very much for your time.

Dear K.M.

Before I begin my analysis I would like to tell my readers that contrary to popular belief this leftslanted handwriting was written by a right-handed young woman.

Your handwriting strongly suggest that your early upbringing was handled with emphasis on discipline, self-control and perfection. It also

There is something about your life to which you have resigned yourself. It probably involves a person or situation you feel you cannot change, so you must live with it.

Self-consciousness, especially in new situations or with unfamiliar people, manifest itself. Are you, perhaps, magnifying something out of proportion about yourself?

You are a diligent worker, ever busy trying to keep things around you neat and organized. With four young children, this is no easy task, but your determination keeps you persevering. Your personal standards border on perfection. You may want to consider that perfection is impossible and can be very stressful, both to yourself and those around

At the time you wrote this letter, you were feeling a little down. Emotional energy was pent up and not finding a release. You may be seeingyour friends enjoying a more carefree lifestyle and be a tad envious that you are homebound with all the responsibilities a young mother with four children must handle. And I can appreciate how overwhelming this may seem at times. Try to keep in mind that heartwarming rewards will come when your children grow up and love you dearly for staying home and giving them a secure start in life.

Your thinking and learning are done in a methodical way. You arrive at answers slowly rather than by jumping to conclusions. Your solutions can be methodical and creative. You are quite observant and

SPRING (The Suburban Press RING) is the 50 Detroit suburban newspapers published by the Adams, Associated, Heritage, Observer & Eccentric, and Hometown groups, which together deliver advertisers a single, extremely effective way to reach as many as 728,812 households in Detroit's affluent suburbs.

That is approximately twice as many as you can reach in the daily Free Press, and more than twice the number you can reach in The News.

Best of all is the SPRING's rate for inserts is just $23 per thousand, regardless of size (approximately half the published CPMs of the DNA and ADVO), and our ROP CPMs are lower, too. And you place just one order, deal with one rep, provide one set of ROP copy or art, and get one invoice. Look at us this way: we offer you an honest-to-goodness way to get more for less. # Seminar to focus on church growth

By Julie Brown staff writer

Evangelism's not a word all Christians are comfortable with.

Often, Christians have faith in . God and Jesus, "but have a hard time sharing that faith with their friends, their neighbors and of course strangers," said David Snyder, a member of the First United Methodist Church of Plym-

"It's kind of a scary thought. We want to make this a more comfortable thought."

Snyder's the evangelism work area chairman at the church. He and others have been working on a "Reach Your Unreached Neighbors" seminar, to be held Saturday, March 2, at the church, 45201 N. Territorial, west of Sheldon in Plymouth Township.

The evangelism/church growth seminar will be presented by The International Bible Society, translation sponsor of the New International Version (NIV) Bible. Overcoming the fear of evangelism's one goal of the seminar.

PARTICIPANTS WILL learn how to use the Bible in witnessing and how to reach out to neighbors through the church. The day-long seminar will include practical sessions featuring a variety of learning activities, such as role playing.

'We're a growing church. The numbers bear that out and so does our recen. building renovation," said Snyder, a Plymouth resident. "We feel called to reach out further into the community. We want to prepare and enable our people to go out and share their faith."

The church has nearly 1,400 members. Worshipers recently completed an extensive renovation project.

The Saturday, March 2, seminar's been put together by representatives of The International Bible Society, Snyder said. Such a program hasn't been held in the recent past at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth. The church has had evangelistic speakers who aren't of the fire and brimstone variety, such as the Rev. Peter Marshall.

The Saturday, March 2, seminar is open to teens and adults. Registration is $10, $7 for students and senior citizens, including lunch. To register, call 453-5280.

THE SEMINAR is for Christians of all denominations.

"Our faith crosses those boundaries that we've set up as human beings," Snyder said. "This transcends all that. Our faith is much bigger than that."

The biblical call is for Christians to make disciples of all the world. Snyder knows from his own experience that sharing faith can be lough.

"It is not easy. I don't think it's something you necessarily have to push on people." It's possible to share faith and good news with others without being overbearing.

He's an administrator at Plymouth Salem High School where he runs the student radio station, WSDP.

"You have to be very careful because it's a public institution." He doesn't push his faith on others, but tends to incorporate his beliefs into suggestions and comments he makes to students.

"H's just something you have to be very careful with.

For some Christians, there's a tendency to think "Sunday is the day we go to church and we're Christians between 11 and 12 o'clock," Snyder said. "We have to remember God comes first seven days a week."

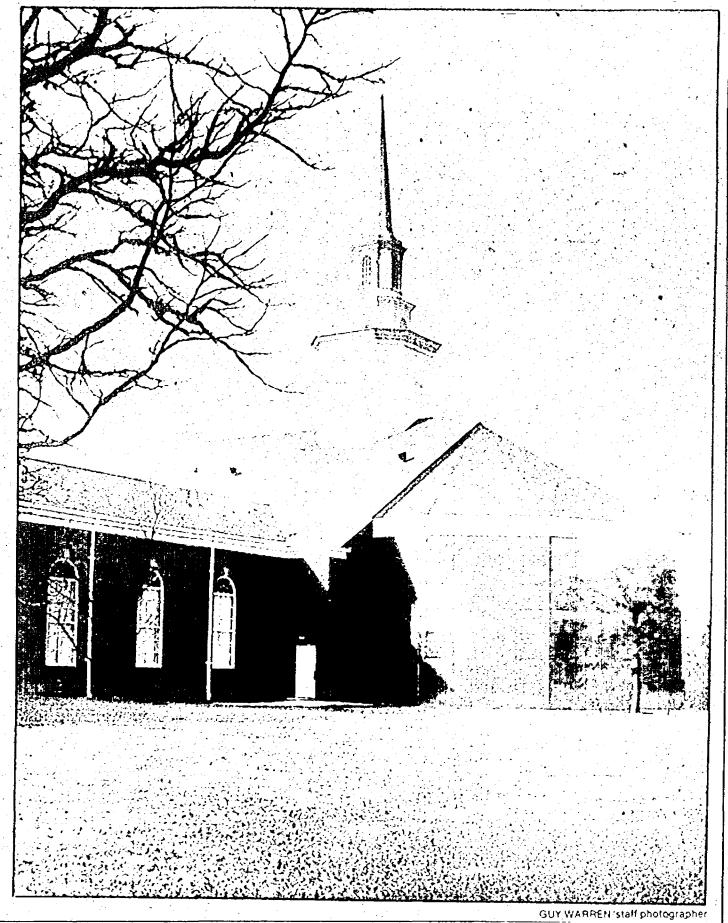

Evangelism hasn't traditionally been associated with such mainline Protestant denominations as the Methodist and Presbyterian churches. Snyder has found that members of his church and of others in the area have a firm faith and commitment.

"Therefore, they're open to the idea of evangelism." For many, it's simply a matter of learning more about evangelism.

Ministers and priests aren't the only ones for whom evangelism is important. Laypeople too have a vital role to play in developing faith and sharing it with others.

"Evangelism is something each Christian needs to pursue," Snyder

Members of the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth recently completed an extensive building project. "We're a growing church," said David Snyder, evangelism work area chairman. "We feel called to reach out further into the communi-

Other operations touted when car sales dip

By Doug Funke staff writer

Automobile dealers who succeed in the 1990s will increase output of their back-end operations - sevice, body shop and parts. And successful dealers will become even more adept at getting customers to return from one car buy to another.

That's the analysis of Jeremy Anwyl, a Californiabased researcher and consultant to the industry. He pegs the profit margin on gross sales from all operations for most dealers today at one percent or less.

"If you could find 10 percent of the dealers in the U.S. making money on the sales of new cars, I'd be surprised," Anwyl said. "The key is you've got to build up a strong back-end. The service department has to be very busy.

"This is a relationship business," Anwyl added. "Going after the repeat sale is a two- or three-year process. The factor I find with the dealer making money is percentage of business coming in for repeat and referral."

Car sales here are down, way down in some instances, dealers report. Consumers lack confidence to commit to major purchases given the economy and uncertainty about how long the war will last in the Middle East.

So dealers are trying different approaches to pick up the slack.

"IN TIMES like this we tend to hunker down, to cut back on some additional expenses," said Carl Fischer, owner of Buick, Mazda, Subaru dealerships in Troy and president of the Detroit Auto Dealers Association.

"We've held off doing some redecorating of the store. We try to emphasize service a little more, do a little more direct mail advertising. We go after used car business a little stronger."

In January, new car sales at his Buick dealership were up slightly, Mazda sales flat and Subaru down slightly, Fischer said.

Bob Moran, an executive at Pontiac, GMC and Mitsubishi dealerships in Southfield, said tough times are affecting all of his operations.

"People can keep their cars longer than you or I could believe," he said.

"Industry-wide, body shops are down. Every day there are no fewer accidents. If you were laid off and your fender was banged in and you got a check for $400-500, you wouldn't give the money to me, you'd buy groceries," Moran said. Service and body shop repair orders indicate that people are neglecting their cars, he said.

"We have oil specials, brake specials. We have a free shuttle and reasonable rental rates," Moran said. "You're forced to advertise differently, advertise less. What we do in many cases is eliminate the shotgun approach all over the city."

Ten to 15 percent of the staff, mostly in sales and office personnel, has been laid off since Dec. 1, Moran said. He recently included a letter to employees with their paychecks emphasizing the importance of quality service in all operations.

BUT IT'S DIFFICULT to sell consumers who clam up, he said. "When people aren't spending money, they don't come in."

So what's a dealer to do?

Birmingham Chrysler Plymouth in Troy is promoting itself on a couple of cable TV systems.

"Rather than focus on the price of the car . . . it is basically a half hour program explaining who we are from the service department to the parts department," said Bill Kolath, general manager. "Sales - how we can go about financing a car, used cars. It's really to-

"It (campaign) is something we've had on the burner," Kolath said. "We've been setting up a while. Economic conditions didn't stall or force it.'

Listen to Gary Marl, general manager and part owner of Livonia Chrysler Plymouth.

"The key becomes did you take care of them (customers) when they were under warranty. Actually, when you get in a slowdown, you can't instantly get competitive. You begin to tighten a little bit. If you need drastic action, you're in trouble."

Prices for service jobs may be reduced to compete with the independent specialty shops, Marl said. Previous buyers of new cars may receive coupons for free maintenance jobs to get them in and let them know the dealer is thinking about them.

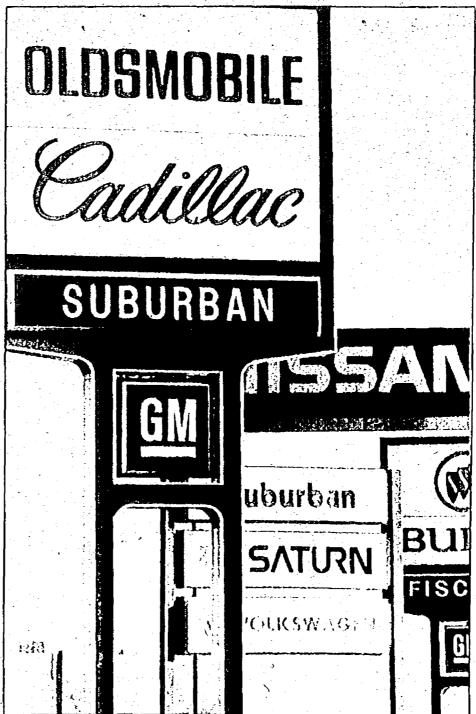

"They do know you can do anything. Maybe you'll get something else," Marl said of spin-off business.

EVEN IF dealers don't, Anwyl said, "Oil changes add up very quickly."

Marl painted a rosier picture than some of his counterparts. "All our departments are slightly up other than new car sales," he said. "I won't feel the pinch as

Investor measures the options in game theory, actual market

By Doug Funke staff writer

It should come as no surprise that Steve Wingert, a research associate who intends to pursue a graduate degree in business administration, aspires one day to manage investment portfolios.

And if his performance in a recent mock investment competition sponsored by Wall Street Games of Massachusetts is indicative of success, the 23-year-old Southfield resident has a promising future.

among 8,000 players and second in the state in the options division by turning an initial stake of $500,000 in play money plus the ability to borrow another $500,000 on margin into $4.8 million — all in the three-month period October through December. Wingert won $1,250 in real money for his efforts. Option investors buy and sell rights to buy or unload the actual stock of companies at a strike price within a specific period of time. A call option is the right to buy at right to sell at the strike price. The money received by the option seller from the buyer is the premium.

OPTIONS GENERALLY move at a price considerably lower than the stock, itself. So even small movements in price on options markets present opportunities for big profits - and losses.

"I made a lot of money on takeover stocks, specifically MCA and Square D, all on premiums," Wingert said of the contest.

Wingert sold call options on MCA, an entertainment company taken over by a Japanese firm, and on Square D, an electronics firm subject to takeover rumors. He figured the stock prices wouldn't rise any Wingert placed ninth nationally higher to the strike price and they didn't. The options expired and he kept the premiums.

> buy options in game theory and real life. He developed that strategy after losing big in an early foray into the real options market.

"THE POTENTIAL is for big gains, but if the stock goes in the the strike price, a put option is the other direction, stays the same or only moves a little bit, potential is for losing," Wingert said.

Abuse often begets abuse

By R.J. King special writer

Child abuse, long considered a domestic nightmare, is costing American corporations $3-$5 billion annually as a result of managers who, once abused as children, abuse their own employees.

According to a report by the Bureau of National Affairs, an independent publishing company, managers who were subject to abusive treatment as children, tend to run their businesses by incorporating the values taught to them by their parents. The report, which focuses on relationships between the workplace and family history, reveals one of every four supervisors often yells at subordinates, unfairly criticizes them or engages in other forms of abusive behavior that serves to undermine productivity.

"It's really a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde syndrome where a boss acts like a good guy one day and a bad guy the next," said David Mills, executive director of the Children's Trust Fund in Lansing, the state's largest child abuse prevention agency. "For children who are improperly parented, it doesn't end there. Some kids who were abused as children turn out to be Mother Teresa, but the majority of cases are people who make mean neighbors, mean drivers and exhibit sharp swings in their personality."

EMPLOYEES ON the receiving end of managerial abuse tend to be "less creative, take less risks, have more health problems and hunker down to stay out of harm's way," Mills said. Dorothy Mardeusz Chodyniecki, associate executive director of the Judson Center, a family treatment center in Royal Oak, which runs group homes in Beverly Hills, Lathrup Village, Southfield and Troy, said the problem of abuse at the workplace can be corrected.

"In almost all cases of child abuse, the victim suffers from a self-esteem that has been disintegrated," she said. "At the office, this type of person may become obsessed with having absolute control over everything.

"When that person comes here, we assess what happened to the individual, what skeletons or ghosts are there, and then we work toward finding solutions, which includes rebuilding self-esteem."

Treatment, said Chodynlecki, can take anywhere from three to six months of weekly appointments, depending on the nature of the problem. Costs range from $10 to $45 an hour, and may be covered by health insur-

To avoid potential abuse problems at the workplace, the study urges employers to become more involved in their employees' private lives, and start programs that can reduce domestic violence and improve performance and productivity.

OFFERING AN example of an abusive boss who suffered from child abuse, the study presented an individual who was a "highly trained, technically competent executive" whose subordinates had difficulty with his management style:

"He constantly changes positions and directions, making it difficult to détermine where he stands on issues from day to day; he regularly embarrasses employees by scolding them in front of their peers; and he makes fun of those he considers

for Oakland Family Services, a nonprofit family service agency in Pontiac, which also runs out-patient facilities in several cities, including

Rochester, said companies should not overlook the human side of their employees. "In situations where you have child abuse show up in abusive bosses, it basically boils down to a job performance issue," he said. "If I the behavior and see if it continued. "If it did, I would meet with that supervisor, go over all the incidents, and indicate to them that their performance is suffering. I would then recommend they take care of the problem, set out expectations and lay down a time frame."

Earl added most progressive companies have employee assistance programs to deal with such problems, or falling short of that, he recommended companies or employees seek out a family service agency. He also warned there was a tendency on behalf of companies to look at managers' performance from an efficiency level as opposed to one of human relations. Such a pattern may cause companies to be more protective of

A conservative approach to options actually can be a safe way toinvest, Wingert said.

"If someone owned GM stock for 20 years, they could have sold call options (to buy) on shares 15-20 percent higher than the current price and receive premium income every couple of months," he said. "The only risk is willing to part with the stock at a higher price.'

"I'd say a majority of investors will invest only in mutual funds or stock," Wingert said. "I think a majority of investors are scared of options, and the reason they're scared is they haven't taken the time to learn about it.

"I can sell call options at a significantly higher striking price and earn at least premium income.

"I don't use computer formulas," Wingert said of real-life investment strategies. "I read Investors Daily every day. I spot opportunities with two eyes and a knowledge of math. I'll look at most active options, the most up in price."

Wingert, who came to Southfield via Grinnell College in Iowa, was bit by the investment bug while a student in Atlanta, Ga.

Two thoughts flashed through my head. The first: "That's a narrow view of travel." The second: "The Florida Keys."

Voices. "I'm going to sunset. You coming?" The sun goes down all over the world, but there's only one place I know where people "go to sunset" and applaud the sun as it goes down. The Florida Keys.

Now, to retrieve your luggage. The last bag has been belched up onto the conveyor belt, but yours is nowhere to be found.

The fact that airlines successfully deliver vast numbers of checked bags to intended destinations on time doesn't impress you as you stand there, claim check in hand, surveying the empty carousel..

You report the bag missing, and the airline immediately puts a tracer on it. With luck, your luggage will be found and delivered to you within 24 hours. If not, what compensation can you expect?

For actual loss, if the bag cannot be found within a reasonable period (often specified as five days), the airline's liability is limited to the amount listed on the back of your airline ticket.

For domestic flights it's $1,250 per incident (not per bag), set by U.S. Transportation Department regulations. For international flights, it's $20 per kilogram, or $9.05 per pound, of checked baggage, determined by the Warsaw Convention. That's $1,269.80 for the 70 pounds of allowable free luggage.

These amounts are frequently inadequate. And, to be compensated, most airlines require passengers to list contents of lost bags, with receipts or other proofs of value.

The drive south from Islamorada is a quick lesson in geography and what free souls can do with it when they love water. There are some elegant resorts, like Hawk's Cay Resort on Duck Key near Marathon, or the resort on Little Palm Island, which looks more like the south seas than the United States.

If you stay on the Overseas Highway, however, it still looks like it did in those old Bogart movies. Marinas cluttered with dive boats and fishing boats. Roadside restaurants that serve fresh seafood on picnic tables. Scores of tiny coastal resorts. Herons on an offshore pole. Barefoot beach lovers at Bahia Honda State Park, one of the very few good swimming beaches in the Keys.

There were only a few seagoing souls here when Henry Flagler built his railway down the Keys in 1912, carrying passengers to his grand hotel and by ferry across 90 miles of sea to Havana. One good hurricane wiped all that out but the hotel is still there, now Marriott's Casa Ma-

The Wall of Time displays major events in which the Red Cross has participated from its founding in 1863: wars, epidemics, massacres, genocide, collective and individual tragedies.

It participated first in the Danish War, the Franco-Prussian War and the Russo-Turkish War. It was during the latter that the Turks asked Geneva for permission to replace the cross, which offended their Muslim soldiers, with a red crescent on a white background.

, The Red Cross was there during the Sino-Japanese War, Transvaal and Boer wars, Spanish-American War, Russo-Japanese War and the Mexican Revolution, identified and put in touch with their families. Surely an amazing accomplishment before the days of the computer.

Between wars the Red Cross extended its activities to include social services and relief in times of natural disaster. These are shown in photos and films. A cracked pieta-like sculpture entitled "The Humanitarian Gesture" gives theme to these sufferings.

Set into the floor is a radio-telegram of 21,590 words transmitted in 1943 by the United States government to the international committee of the Red Cross, listing the names of German prisoners of war held in the U.S.

Against the threatening background of a nuclear explosion, two stone blocks project rays of hope for the second half of the 20th century: the 1945 Charter of the United Nations and the 1949 Geneva Conventions.

Also, a glass panel illuminates the 1948 Universal Declaration of Human Rights and includes new provisions for the protection of clvilian populations.

A cell with three seated figures by Carl Bucher represents 20th century political detention. Beneath scaffolding representing a world under construction is a series of pictures on 20 screens taking up the theme of The Wall of Time and extending it to the recent work of the Red Cross. The music of The Beatles, and particularly that of John Lennon, rings forth in this room.

"Children in War," a temporary exhibition when I was in the museum, showed more than 100 photographs and audio-visuals of children suffering, starving or wounded. Also shown is the film, "I'm 12 and I'm in War, Already a Soldier."

A tour through Geneva's Red Cross and Red Crescent Museum provides a particularly emotional experience. I found it to be an emphatically moving, provocative, educational and inspirational encounter. In these tense times of war we can look to this unique museum to find the costs of the use of force.

Donations to the museum have come from private and public funds. Listed among American benefactors are American Express, Citicorp, Johnson & Johnson, Arthur Anderson & Co. and the Digital Equipment Corporation.

By Cathle Breidenbach special writer

O DETAIL ESCAPES the surveillance of Roberta Campion, the free lance director who for the last seven years has produced, directed and choreographed musicals at Mercy High School in Farmington Hills.

This year she is directing a cast and crew of 85 in the Rogers and Hammerstein hit musical "The King and I." In the script, the King of Siam has multiple wives and 67 children, "but we're not that crazy," said Campion, with a director's appreciation for the logistical headache of having 67 children on stage. She has cut the number to 23 children and 23 wives, still a formidable undertaking to cast, costume and coordinate that many young players.

For seven years Campion has pulled together the myriad details for Mercy's musical productions. Packed houses and word-of-mouth praise prove she has the upbeat enthusiasm to develop the talents of her young cast members as well as tradition Campion remembers fondschizophrenic demands of producing and directing a huge musical.

"I work about five to six hours a day on the musical alone," she said, as she ticked off responsibilities such as the program, publicity, photos and logo that she oversees, beyond rehearsing, choreographing and directing the show.

A MUSICAL is a long-standing Mercy High School tradition - a the raw endurance to survive the ly from her days as a stage-struck

Mercy student. She danced in "The King and I" in a Mercy High School production and went on to earn a bachelor of arts in theater and English and a master of arts in dance and English at the University of De-

Now Mercy faculty such as Larry Teevens, chair of the Music Department, and Michael Bistritzsky, orchestra teacher, under whom she worked as a student, have become her colleagues. She and Teevens choose a show each year that has numerous plum female roles for Mercy's all-girl-high-school students.

"We like to give more kids more chances to be on stage," she said. Male parts, such as that of the king, played by Pascal McGaffey, are cast in open auditions as are children's parts such as the king's stairstep lineup of 23 adorable children.

"This year," Campion said, "we have kids in the show from 32 schools and 23 different communities. Students have to have a good grade-point average to be cast, so we usually have the best students. Most have a G.P.A. of 3.5 and above."

From her command post in Mercy's 1,200-seat auditorium, Campion oversees a rehearsal as Anna (played by Mercy senior Leslie Erin Gaiser) sings "Shall We Dance" and polkas for the first time in her elegant, tealblue ball gown with a voluminous hoop skirt. Within a span of minutes Campion's comments dart from tips on heightening the romantic tension, as Anna and the king discover their love, to costumes, to musical pacing.

Performances of the Theatre Guild production of "The Road to Mecca" continue through Saturday, March 9, at the Theatre Guild playhouse in Redford, For ticket information call the box office at 538-5678.

By Bob Weibel special writer

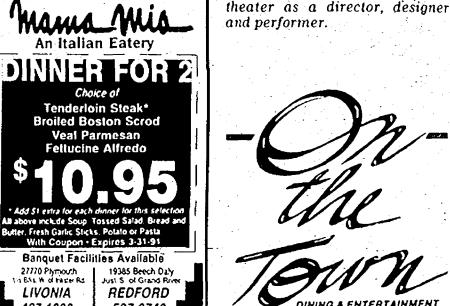

The Theatre Guild's season of plays about artists continues with a splendid, thought-provoking production of "The Road to Mecca."

It is by South African playwright Athol Fugard, who has written muchabout racial strife (most notably "Master Harold and the Boys"). While this play is set in his homeland, it tells of a different sort of intolerance. It is about an artist's struggle to remain true to her vision, which puts her into conflict with her neighbors.

Peggy Joyce is superb as Miss Helen, an aging artist whom the community views as something of an eccentric. An early widow, she copes with the inhospitable outer world by creating her own inner world.

Miss Helen constructs weird concrete sculptures of owls, camels and other creatures for her garden which she calls Mecca. And she bathes her small cottage in candlelight - creating what she calls "a city of light and color more splendid than anything imaginable."

Vic Spicer, animator, talks about the medium of claymation at "Update 91."

Filmmakers, animators speak

By Dan Greenberg special writer

It's often been said that metro Detroit is a major filmmaking center, and the recent "Update 91" proved

Co-sponsored by Detroit Producers Association and Detroit Area Film and Television and Educational Association, Update brings together filmmakers, students, teachers and film buffs of every sort for a daylong exposure to all aspects of film and video production.

Held for the second consecutive year at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge Campus in Farmington Hills, Update 91 hosted 150-plus registrants who were treated to presentations by, among others, DPA president Shannon Hammed and her partner, Ron Senkowski, a 1981 North Farmington High School graduate.

Their company, Lighten Up Films, currently is completing its first feature film, "Let's Kill All the Lawyers," which is also the first movie to be edited via a new electronic system, the Avid MediaComposer. The partners leave early next month for the Cannes Film Festival's second selection round, in New York.

THEIR PRESENTATION included clips from the work-in-progress, a description of the electronic editing system and considerable insight into the trials, tribulations and rewards of independent film production.

Len Radjewski, president of the co-sponsoring DAFT organization, said, "Update is a fine, continuing tradition, which improves each year. It's a terrific opportunity for filmmakers and film aficianados to learn what's going on in the film and video ·media,"

Other presentations were "The Art of the Film" by Dearborn film historian Jim Limbacher, who screened videotapes from his television course, "The Screening Room," which ran for many years on local television.

"Independent and student filmmakers seem drawn to animation techniques," said Vic Spicer who, with art director David Messing, currently is working on a featurelength animation, "Christmas Pirates," which will premiere during the holiday season, 1993.

"Animation is the great equaliz-er," Spicer continued, "where every-body can find something of interest. Cinema is the marriage of the arts, and animation draws all the crafts together."

ANIMATION ALSO appeals to young filmmakers because it is a medium where time, creativity and patience can replace big budgets and reliance on large numbers of person-

Ocelots finish year quietly, miss playoffs

Midway through the first half Saturday, Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team had a seven-point lead. Then Kwesi McGill - who had scored 10 points - reinjured his an-

McGill, the only guard among the top five listed on SC's preseason roster remaining, missed the next 15 minutes. With him went the Ocelots' hopes for a win and a berth in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association playoffs - Highland Park CC got both, claiming a 96-86 homecourt victory.

McGill did return, five minutes into the second half. But his effectiveness was limited; he finished with 14 points. By the time he returned, SC was trailing by nine

The deficit grew to 16 in the second half, but the Ocelots didn't surrender. With less than four minutes left, SC had crept to within four points. But the final blow was then delivered - leading scorer Randy Watters (27 points) fouled out. Although the Ocelots got to within three, they couldn't keep the comeback going.

Barry Quayle added 15 points and 10 rebounds to the SC effort, with Scott Meredith getting 13 points and eight boards and Dave Hamilton contributing 12 points at 1 seven rebounds.

With McGill out much of the game, and Mitch Fyke - who had been working in the backcourt, too - sidelined with a shoulder separation, turnovers became a problem for SC. The Ocelots had 18 of them, which explained why Highland Park took 18 more shots.

Highland Park (now 5-22) was led by Arnold Wilson, with 21 points; Marco Honey, with 19; Jose Lewis, with 18; Mike Caston, with 15; and Marcus Hall, with 14.

SC ended its season with a 14-15 overall record, 5-11 in the Eastern Conference. The school's administration has opted not to send the team to compete in the National Junior College Athletic Association Division II tournament.

Chiefs rally by Spartans

Stevenson falls, 54-46

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

As the players filed out of Plymouth Canton's locker room Tuesday night, someone offered Mike Stafford a post-game doughnut to eat.

He almost turned it down.

The sophomore guard showed no hesitation in accepting Livonia Stevenson's charity during the game, as he led the host Chiefs to a 54-46 Western Lakes Activities Association semifinal playoff win.

With the under-sized Spartans packed into a zone defense, Stafford responded with four three-pointers and a team-high 16 points as Canton earned its way into Saturday's WLAA final against Salem.

Game time is 7 p.m.

"We're supposed to throw the ball inside, but the shot was there," said Stafford, who sparked a Chiefs' rally with 11 second-half points. "Coach (Dave Van Wagoner) said at halftime, 'We're up by one (21-20) and we're playing bad.' We just had a bad first half and had to play as hard as we could because we've got more ability and we're in better shape, Canton, 12-7 overall, lost 56-53 earlier this year to the Rocks.

"I WANT TO play Salem again --for revenge," Stafford said.

van Wagoner, who coached the Chiefs the last time they won the WLAA title in 1984, wasn't concerned who the opponent would be Saturday. Canton got this far by limiting Stevenson's guards Matt Grod-zicki and Phil Woods to a combined six points and outscoring the visitors, 14-7, in the game's final five minutes.

Canton made eight three-point shots, including three in the fourth quarter, and played much of the game without 6-foot-6 center Tony Coshatt because of foul trouble.

basketball

Only Stafford managed double figures for the Chiefs, while Jon Paupore and Karl Wukie scored eight points and Coshatt five before fouling out. Junior Derrick McDonald led with seven assists and Brett Howell, one of four Canton seniors, led all rebounders with eight.

"We had great seniors then (in 1984) and I've great seniors now, so I'm real excited," Van Wagoner said. "It seemed like Livonia Stevenson kind of told us, 'If Plymouth Canton's going to beat us, you're going to beat us on the outside shot.' They packed it in on our big guys and we have some guys who can shoot who made some big shots.

"Stafford is going to be one heck of a high school player. He's pretty good right now. He hit some big-time shots and when Mike is open it's usually down."

STEVENSON, WIIICH fell to 12-7 overall, led 38-37 on a Dan Gibbons rebound basket with 6:15 left in the game. A three-point shot by Wukie put Canton ahead to stay, 40-38, and the Chiefs outscored Stevenson, 12-1, in the next five minutes to lead, 52-

The Spartans had won eight of their last nine games, losing only to Livonia Franklin at home. Colin Stockton led Stevenson with 17 points, including 12 in the second half, and four three-point shots. Gibbons had 11 and Paul Rockwood 10

Trenton ousts Churchill, 6-2

staff writer

Trenton's 6-2 triumph over Livonia Churchill in the Class A regional hockey opener was anything but a

The victorious Trojans (15-6-2) scored three unanswered goals in the final five minutes to oust the Chargers (17-4-1) in state tournament action Tuesday at Wyandotte's Yack Arena.

"We haven't had any breaks all year, it was nice for a change, we were fortunate to win," Trenton coach Skip Howey said. "It was an even game except for the latter part of the third period."

Frustration was the only way to describe the feeling afterwards in the Churchill dressing room. The Chargers outshot the Trojans, 27-23, and did a credible job of forechecking and back-checking for nearly the entire 45 minutes.

But the goal that broke Churchill's back came with 4:44 left in the game when Andy Watson, pinned along the boards, flipped what appeared to be a harmless shot toward the net that handcuffed Churchill goaltender Jeremy Niemiec.

THE GOAL pushed Trenton ahead, 4-2.

"He (Niemiec) tried to use his glove when he knows should have used his stick," Churchill coach Rudy Varvari said. "But he (Niemiec) played a good game. He made some good saves."

Watson's unassisted effort had a chilling effect on the Chargers, who appeared to be right back in the game after Larry Allen's blistering shot from the blue line beat Trenton goalie Dave Spurr with 6:23 to go. (Colin Gallagher and Jeff King drew the assists to make it 3-

"I told the kids it was going to be a one-period game," said Varvari, whose team was even at 1-all after two periods. "Give Trenton credit. They have good skaters and they're well disciplined. They hit you quick with two goals. They get them in bunches."

After a scoreless first-period, Trenton's Ken Pierce flicked in a back-hand at 6:04 of the second to give the definitely miss this group."

Trojans a 1-0 lead.

But only 50 seconds later, defenseman Tony Dyplowski knifed through the Trenton defense with a couple of nifty stick-handling moves to make it 1-1.

THE TWO state-ranked teams then remained deadlocked into the third period.

Dyplowski was called for a tripping penalty with 12:02 to go and Trenton's Steve Nagy capitalized, ripping a shot from just outside the face-off circle. The puck caromed off Niemiec's mask and just under the crossbar with 11:13 remaining.

"We couldn't even get a break off the cage," said Varvari, whose team lost to Trenton 9.4 in an earlier meeting. "If it would have been one of those old goalie masks, it might have dropped straight down or gone to the corner. But that's hockey."

Trenton's Sean Slater then tallied what proved to be the game-winner with 9:40 to play on an assist from Jeff Dunn. The goal gave Trenton a 3-1 advantage.

That goal and three of the next four enabled the former state champions to advance to tonight's regional semifinal (8 at Yack) against Grosse Pointe South.

"Obviously is was not a 6.2 game," Howey said. "With 71/2 minutes to go it could have gone either way. "Rudy did a great job with those kids. We'd rather played any other team tonight than Rudy's."

IT WAS SOMEWHAT of a sad finish to a great season for the Chargers, who captured Suburban Hockey league title.

These kids did a helluva job," the Churchill coach said. "There were a lot of team players on this club. The senior class was excellent, just good people. We lose nine quality seniors, but have a good crew of juniors, and the sophomores we have are not bad. But I'll Ryan Gusick also contributed two goals for the winners, while Scott Johnson (the game-winner) and Frank Eupizi collected one each.

Chris Rennie collected three assists in the romp, while Mark Peterson, Doug Gulau, Aaron Moorehouse, Kevin Bush and Mike Schmidt added two aplece.

Goalie Mike Williams earned the shutout. "It was a nice team effort all the way around," Stevenson coach Paul Ferguson said. "All three lines were clicking. We got off to kind of a slow start (1-0 first-

The Spartans return to action at 7:30 tonight to face Redford Catholic Central (14-6-1) in the semifinals.

Shamrocks miss finals

By Marty Budner staff writer

Like the song, Mike Rodriguez tried to "Put on a Happy Face."

The veteran Redford Catholic Central wrestling coach attempted to take a positive outlook on his team's unexpectedly poor performance at Saturday's Michigan High School Athletic Association Lower Peninsula Individual Wrestling Tournament at the Kellogg Arena in Battle Creek.

But it was tough. "They did the best they could," he

Then, in his next breath, he added, "I thought we'd at least get one (wrestler) into the finals."

Catholic Central qualified five wresters for the individual finals. Only four other schools - Clarkston, East Detroit, Temperance-Bedford and Warren Lincoln - had more.

Although the Shamrocks were shut out of a championship-round appearance, they did manage to pick up three medals.

Senior Rob Sylvester took home a fifth-place medal in the 275-pound weight class. Teammates Rusty Fowler (119), a senior who entered the tourney with a credible 51-1 overall rec. rd, and junior Dan Kelly (171) each lost their third-place matches and finished fourth.

Junior Dan Rieple (145) and sophomore Jason Krueger (160) failed to place.

THE MEDALS, however, were of little consolation to Rodriguez.

No I'm not satisfied at all," he said. "We should have had one man in the finals I think. But, shouldhave, would-have, could-have, that's

"They did the best they could and I can't ask any more of them. I just thought we could have had at least one winner and a couple seconds," he said. "Where we come from, I always expect to get someone into the finals when we come up here."

After a scoreless first period, Fowler let Facundo escape off the whistle to begin the second period and the Bay City wrestler took an easy 1-0 lead which proved to be the difference in the match. Each wrestler scored a reversal - Fowler early in the third period and Facundo with just 15 seconds left in the final period to win a close 3-2 decision

"(FOWLER) does that all the time," said Rodriguez of Fowler's strategy to begin the second period. "We spend enough time on our feet that we should be able to take people down regardless of who you are or where you come from."

Kelly fashioned a 4-3 lead early in the third period in the rematch, but Steinacker scored a takedown with 35 seconds left and held on for a 5-4 victory.

Sylvester was in control all the way in his medal-round match against Jim Jacques of Davison. It was close after two periods, but Sylvester pulled away to dominate the final period and earn a fifth-place medal.

Krueger won one match while Rieple dropped his two matches.

"If you 'don't demand more of them they'll only give you a little," said Rodriguez. "We'll be back next year, and I think we'll be much Battle Creek. Fowler lost the match, 3-2, to settle for fourth place overall. He finished the year with a 54-3 record.

Thurston grappler takes 3rd

Jed Kramer, Redford Thurston's 119-pound wrestler, took third place in the Class B individual state wrestling meet Saturday at Battle Creek.

Kramer, who brought a 36-2 overall record into the meet, went 4-1 during the two-day meet held at the Kellogg Center. Kramer, a senior, was undefeated Friday as he pinned Cedar Springs' Zack Hughes win over previously undefeated Gary Williams of Fenton.

There, Kramer beat Hughes again, 6-5, and pinned Melvindale's Stuart Barringer in 2:01 to take third place.

"It was a great tourney for Jed," Thurston coach Pete Newton said. "He wrestled one bad match and in 4:36 and followed with an 8-3 that's what made the difference. His weight class was the toughest in the state, with three undefeated Defending B champion Ken records. He did extremely well,

Calcaterra sparks Chargers

In a preview of Monday's Class A district basketball opener at Livonia Franklin, host Livonia Churchill proved to be too tough in Tuesday's physical game, 47-38.

The score indicates how physical a game it was," Churchill coach Fred Price said. "The game really was who can get off an open shot. There were not a lot of open shots in this game."

Churchill (11-8) will play Saturday against North Farmington for fifth place in the Western Lakes Activities Association (at Plymouth Salem) before return to Franklin's gym Monday for the districts.

Senior center Randy Calcaterra tallied 19 points and eight rebounds for the winners, but the key according to Price was senior forward Steve Townsend, who came off the bench in the fourth quarter to pour in three straight field goals. Churchill led 28-17 at halftime, but could only muster six points in the third quarter. "Both teams were stuck in the mud in the third quarter," Price said. "I give my team's defense a lot of credit for only giving up 17 first half points."

Junior forward Jerry Jordan and senior forward Jackie Howard scored 15 and 13 points for Glenn, respectively. Steve Gallagher poured in a game-high 16 points for the Palcons, while Jay Jensen added 11

ANNAPOLIS 55, LUTHERAN WEST-LAND 53: Dearborn Heights Annapolis (7-12) pulled out a dramatic victory Tuesday with a layup at the buzzer to defeat host Lutheran Westland.

The Warriors (4-15) had the ball with eight seconds remaining and inbounded the ball at half court. The Cougars' Jamie Ledda stole the ball and drove the full length of the court for the game-winning layup.

The game was close throughout, but the Warriors didn't take its first lead until two minutes remaining (51-50).

"It shows a lot of character when a team that's 4-15 and down most of the game to come back and take the lead," Warrior coach Scoft Wiemer said. The Cougars jumped out to a 22-21 lead at the end of the first quarter and held a 30-27 halftime lead. "Both teams shot well in the first quarter, but the defensive intensity really picked up," Wiemer said.

The Warriors were led by senior forward Dave Gielow's 17 points and senior guard Dan Hoest's 16

Seniors Todd Alley and Scott Keyandwy led Annapolis with 19 points each. Alley nailed four three-pointers.

In an effort to restore the declining American woodcock population, the U.S Fish and Wildlife Service, the Forest Service and the Ruffed Grouse Society joined forces in a cooperative effort at the Eighth American Woodcock Symposium held recently at Purdue University. The joint venture will work toward improving woodcock habitat and completing a new American Woodcock Management Plan to guide woodcock conservation nationwide.

According to the Fish and Wildlife Service, woodcock numbers have declined by 36-percent in the fishing, the size of the fish is not. East and 19-percent in the Midwest important. What is important is over the past 23 years. Much of this decline is attributed to maturing forests and urban and agricultural development.

"With this symposium, we have you go on their fishing trip. I really, the potential to begin a new era for the American woodcock," said Samuel Pursglove, executive director of the Ruffed Grouse Society.

Kirkpatrick scored 11 of his 13 first-half points in the first quarter The Hawks made a critical mistake in attempting to defense Kirkpatrick, according to Harrison coach

Mike Teachman. "I told the players before the game he was left-handed," he said. "He gets the ball in the post and makes that little circle move to his left, and our guys were jumping out on his right and getting the foul from in the third quarter and all but debehind. That was basically our big faux pas."

Teachman, who started in place of Roy Granger, who was ill, had 15 points to lead the Hawks, making all nine free throws in the second half.

Blazo Sarcevich tossed in 12 ter. points, but Harrison's big scorers, forward Andy Smith and center Paul Gilvydis, were in foul trouble and held to 11 and 10, respectively. Gilvydis provided a counter weight to Kirkpatrick's scoring in the first quarter when he had eight points, and the Hawks closed to 21-17 at the end. But he had only two the game. Harrison was 14-of-16 in free throws the rest of the game, and

"SHE (GARRY) was just unstoppable," said the Stevenson coach. "She was high in the air.

"It was a great win for Churchill. The way they played, they deserved

Stevenson was riding high going into the finals, having polished off North Farmington (15-3, 15-10), Plymouth Salem (15-1, 15-11), Walled Lake Western (15-6, 15-6) and Farmington Harrison (15-1, 15-5) in pool play.

Stevenson, behind the play of senior Laura Zatorski, then bounced host Central in the semifinals, 15-9, 15-11.

"We didn't make any errors, we couldn't be any more prepared for the final," Cagle said. "But you never know the pyschological or emotional factor that comes into play." Zatorski, who stood out defensively, also had 17 kills on the day. Senior Sue Bell led Stevenson with a total of 20 kills to go along with 15 ace serves. Junior Teresa Sarno added 10 kills and 14 blocks, while sophomore setter Patty Diamond recorded 56 assists.

"I THOUGHT we were going to make the finals, but we were inconsistent at time during the day," Central coach Mike Lindstrom said.

The Vikings held first-game leads of 6-0 and 8-2 against Stevenson, but couldn't maintain their momentum.

"They started to roll and we weren't tough enough to hang in there," Lindstrom said. "Stevenson played well all day long." In pool play, Central defeated

Plymouth Canton (15-3, 15-5) and Farmington (15-9, 15-10). The Vikings split with Westland John Glenn (15.0, 15.17) and Livonia Franklin (12-15, 15-3). Forced to play Glenn in a tiebreaker for a semifinal berth, the host Vikings came through in a onegame playoff, defeating the Rockets,

Central's top hitters on the day included Stacie Barrett (46 kills), Bridget Norris (42), Cindy Muha (39) and Shannon Capstick (36).

worley gets 5th for CC

Redford Catholic Central ski team garnered sixth place Saturday in the 1991 state meet held at Nub's Nob in Petoskey.

The Shamrocks' Jason Worley was fifth individually in the giant slalom in 60.12 seconds, but CC had three competitors fall after the first turn and not place. Traverse City won the team title with 100 points, followed by Petoskey, 110; Marquette, 120; East Grand Rapids, 138; Rochester Adams, 146; and CC, 201.

Birmingham Brother Rice finished eighth with 240 points. Traverse City led 41-50 over

East Grand Rapids after the morning session's giant slalom. This was the 17th annual Alpine Skiing Championships.

East Grand Rapids' Andy Shape was the individual giant slalom champion, finishing the course in 58.50.

In the slalom, Worley took ninth place in 77.58. Shape also won the slalom in 74.07.

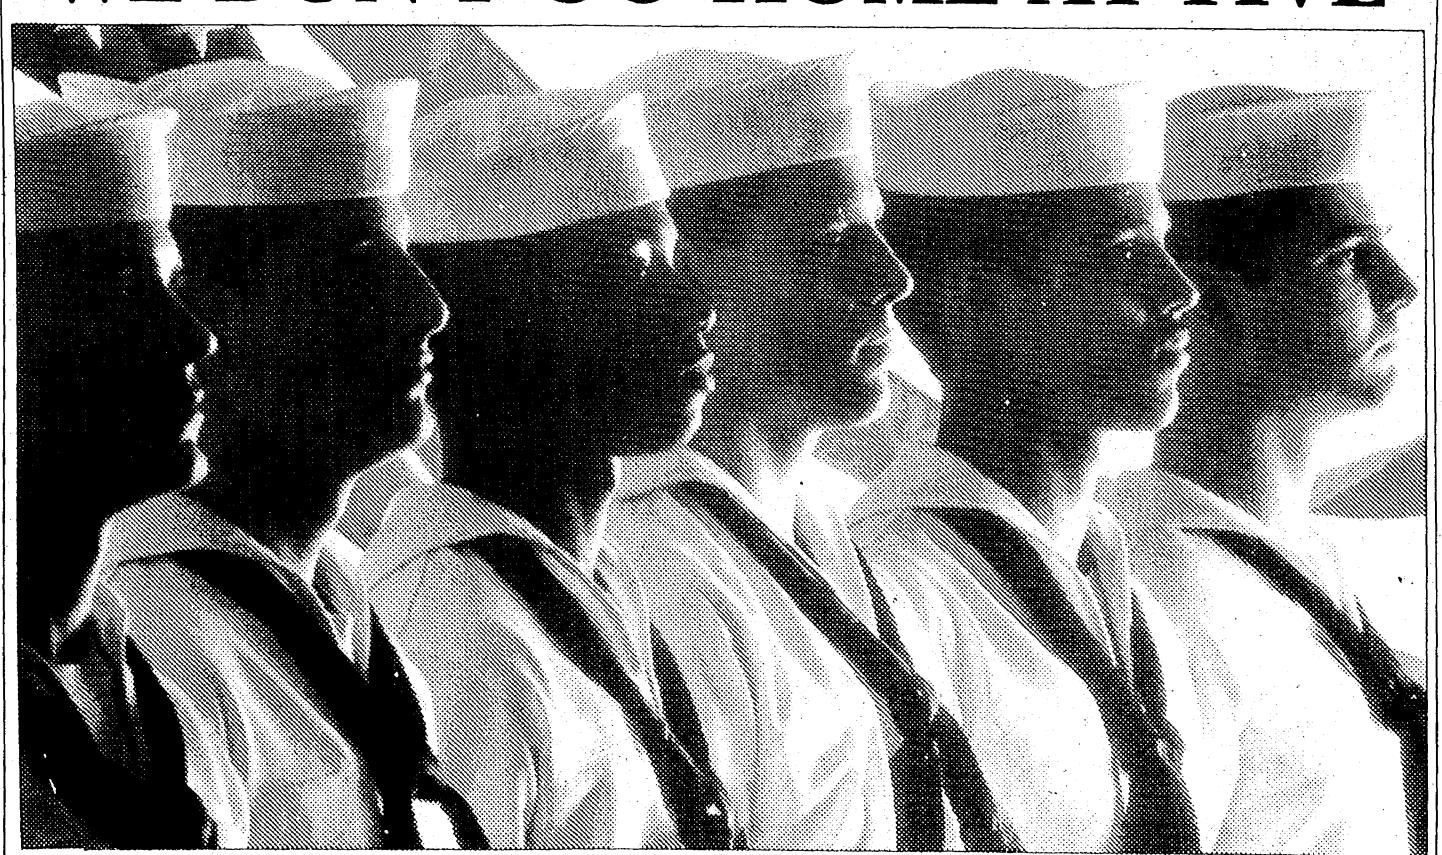

ON THE GIRLS ledger, Petoskey took the team title with 72 points, followed in order by Harbor Springs, 77.5; Birmingham Marian, 119; Marquette, 149; Cadillac, 182; Grand Blanc, 188; East Grand Rapids, 232; Clarkston, 274.5; Brighton, 297; and Kingsford, 311.

Farmington Hills Mercy failed to qualify its team for the state meet, but the Marlins' Nicole Sinclair took 10th place individually in the giant slalom at 67.22.

Walled Lake Central's Angie Johnson took 42nd on the giant slalom in 74.32.

Judo event Oakland CC to stage national tourney

The largest-ever judo tournament for high school age athletes will be Saturday, March 9, at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge campus in Farmington Hills.

The competition is sponsored by Judo Affiliates of Michigan, Inc.

More than 200 entrants are expected based on early registration figures. Among the talented individuals signed up Caron Catana of Mounts Clemens, the state champion who was third in the 1990 national championships; Tony Okada of California; the 1990 national champion at 60 kilograms and Olympic hopeful; Marcus Dawson of

New Jersey, the national champ at 78 kilos and a junior national champion since age 9; Harold Gettinga of New Jersey, the national champion at 71 kilos; and Afrika King of Florida, the national female champ at 66 kilos.

"The caliber of competition at this tournament will be very impressive," sald Noboru Saito, the event chairperson. "We expect to see all of the top competitors of high school age from around the U.S."

Judo, which evolved as a modern sport in 1882, has been part of Olympic competition since 1964. It derives from the ancient Japanese art of Jiu Jitsu, which was traditionally practiced by Samurai warriors. Judo is well known for providing training for the mind as well as the body since the sport calls for a focusing of mental faculties.

For information on the 1991 U.S. High School National Championships call Salto or Cindy Silk, 585-7582.

In addition to the competition, there will be workshops and instructional sessions at OCC and the event's host hotel, the Farmington Hills Holiday Inn. There will also be testing for referees, leading to certification for participation in future tournaments.

Lensman casts peaceful images in infrared

By Linda Ann Chomin special writer

EDFORD TOWNSHIP photographer William P. Thayer creates black and white, hand-colored images of landscapes and architecture that instill a sense of tranquility in the viewer.

From the quiet ruins of an English abbey to the simple architectural space of a doorway in a serene Shaker community, Thayer uses lines, forms, balance, and contrasting lights, shadows and geometric shapes to draw an individual into the striking compositions.

"I'm a frustrated painter," said William Thayer at his Plymouth business, Salone International. "I used to work in oils, and pen and ink. Pen and ink, I think that's where I got started working in black and white."

Thayer jokingly refers to "a midlife crisis" as being the catalyst that projected him into the world of photography.

"About six or seven years to create his serene, calming photographs, Thayer shoots black and white, infrared film, prints the images on matte paper, then handcolors the work using "transparent oils that they used to use for portraits."

INFRARED FILM is sensitive to visible light and to red beyond the visible spectrum into the invisible infrared.

Being heat sensitive as well, with infrared film it is possible to photograph seemingly invisible objects by the "light" of the heat they give off.

A silhouetted, rocky-mountain at sunset becomes an ethereal, almost impressionistic painting with mountaintop aglow, when Thayer used infrared film for a southwest photograph.

"It's fun to work with infrared," Thayer said, "because it's unpredictable." Thayer said he uses "the whole month of October just for shooting." October 1990 brought Thayer to the ancient landscapes of shadows and lights, in grays and whites, create triangular shapes that please the eye. Geometric lines predominating the scene provide contrast to the curved lines of the water pot, while complementing each other.

"What I look for in a negative," Thayer said, "if I can get the same feeling (I had) when I was there, the same feeling that came over

A burst of light surrounds the stop sign, drawing the eye to the barely visible lettering, STOP.

THAYER'S SUBJECT matter ranges from landscapes to architecture, but Thayer said "It's mainly architecture, I'm after. "I did quite a bit of work in the Shaker community," Thayer said. "It has a mystery or quietness about it." Thayer's black and white photo of a Shaker spiral staircase captures your eye at the bottom of the image. The curves are so strong that they pull the viewer's eye up the snaking staircase. The straight lines of the balustrades contrast the curves of the winding

"I really enjoy the art fair, the feedback you get from people coming into the booth," Thayer said. "People will say it's kind of tranquil, or it's peaceful. Sometimes they'll say, it's moody.'

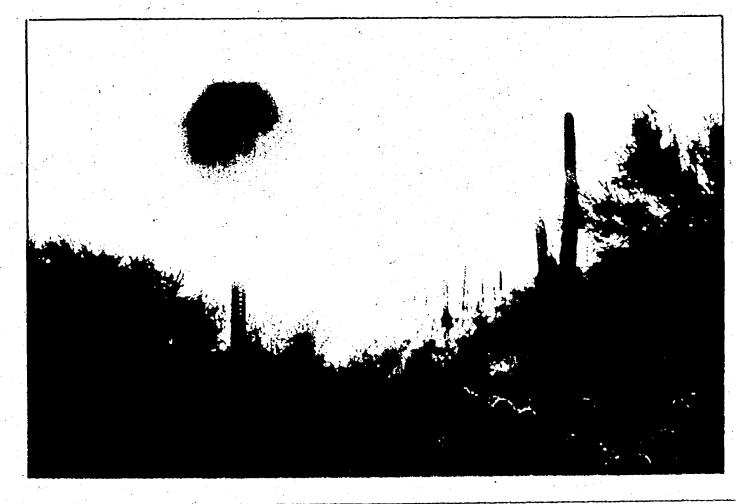

Viewing Thayer's images, you are overcome with peacefulness, a sense of calm that invites you into the world, his photographs create.

"I always shoot open doors," Thayer said. "If the door is closed, I have to open it."

At work in his studio at home, photographer William Thayer hand colors a print of Indian Cliff dwellings. He uses transparent oils to give the black and white, infrared photographs a hint of color.

Show's gardens use water and fog for effect

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

James C. Scott of Bloomfield Hills has some kind of track record as landscape architect for the International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show at Cobo Cen-

This next show, March 16-25, will be his 29th year on the job. And he's as enthusiastic as ever, maybe more so, about the surprises he has in store for the more than 400,000 people who attend annual-

"We started planning the '91 show before the 1990 show was over," he said "This year for the first time, we are building an Easter Bunny that will be about 20 feet long and 15 feet high. It will be filled with thousands of flowers. It is being brought in on a flat bed trailer.'

ers Creek Perennial Gardens of La-

The bunny is being built by Hunt-

In keeping with the increased interest in the environment and wetlands, there will be a 40- by 40-foot water garden, prepared by Grass Roots Landscape & Nursery Contractors of New Boston. It will be complete with fish (Japanese koi, an exotic member of the carp family), lots of flowers such as water hyacinths, dwarf papayrus, umbrella palm, water canna, water lettuce, tropical thalla and tropical water-lily.

Gary Bates of Grass Roots said, We might have a bull frog if we can wake one up," adding that water gardens of all sizes from a half water barrel for a patio to larger ones in the yard with either a soft or hard liner are "very big right

SCOTT SAID, "I think the water garden is part of an evolutionaryprocess, More and more people can have a wetlands garden in their. own yard."

He listed some of the other types: of gardens new to this year's show "gardens to eat (an attractive way to have a vegetable garden), a bulb garden (Lease Landscape of, Waterford), a Japanese bonsai garden (Bonsai Center of Mount Clemens) and a fog garden."

The Detroit Parks & Recreation Department is working on the fog garden. Scott predicted, "It will be a theatrical garden with the fog coming down the gorge," adding, "and as in past years there will be water - water - water and more flowers than ever before . . . what we have now is a hall of gardens."

Another harbinger of the future of gardens will be the presence of ornamental grass. "You'll see much more it it than before because it's low maintenance and many people just want to keep their property looking soft and natural. . . . naturalism," he said, "is the thing of the future."

Scott said all plants will be labeled, "So bring a notebook to write down the names of plants you want to remember and, oh - wear comfortable shoes."

Even though it was inside, the 1990 builders show waterfall. when finished, was close to the real thing with flowing water, rocks, ferns, trees, shrubs, clumps of flowers - and no mosquitoes. Mark J. Baldwin Associates of Plymouth designed it.

Landscape architect wins award

For the first time last year, James C. Scott. Cobo Center flower show landscape architect, documented the preparations and the final displays on film. He submitted this documentation to the Michigan Nursery and Landscape Association and received an award for "A Flower Show," at a special luncheon in Grand Rapids last month.

He said each of the garden builders in the show should share in the award. They include: Mark J. Baldwin & Associates, Plymouth; Colasamti Greenhouse, Ruthven, Ontario; Hunters Creek Perennial Gardens, Lapeer, Lease Landscape, Waterford, Michigan Deck Builders, Lake Orion, and Muellers Sunrise Nursery, Shelby Township.

Others sharing in the credit are: City of Detroit Parks & Recreation Department; Soulliere Decorative Stone, Utica; Superior Scape, Utica: Zendt's Landscaping, Mount Clemens; and Bonsai Center, Mount Clemens. All of them will be returning for the 1991 show.

Scott said his responsibility is to "design, coordinate, detail and supervise" this show, which is one of the major ones of its kind in the Midwest.

"Preparation begins one year in advance with the development of shapes all the various gardens and parks. Ordering all horticultural materials is next, growers and greenhouses procured and stock brought in for forcing.," Scott wrote in a statement submitted with his pictures for the award competition. He said while outside show the

Sponsors of the gardens were: Art Van, First Federal of Michigan, National Bank of Detroit and Standard Federal.

Floral carnival set

The Michigan Floral Association will host its 71st annual spring convention and trade show, "A Floral Carnival,"

March 1-4 at the Hyatt Regency Hotel, Dearborn. A carnival of spring floral arrangements created by the nation's top floral designers will be displayed. Four design shows are planned. More than 3,000 florists from the Midwest will gather to tout their skills, learn about new trends and techniques and shop the trade show. Professional floral designers will compete in a design contest to exhibit the latest in floral frends. The five designers who score the highest overall will compete for cash and the coveted MFA Designer to the Year title. Floral shop designers will be able to work directly with nationally recognized designers during hands-on workshops. Industry experts will educate florists on how to build a successful business during business sessions. The trade show will boast 150 exhibit booths. Tours will stop at floral shops and area wholesalers and

The Michigan floriculture industry is made up of 470 greenhouse growers, 30 full-line wholesalers plus specialty manufacturers of floral-related products.

The industry provides 8,000 jobs and contributes $254 million annually to the state's economy. Michigan ranks fifth nationally in sales of floriculture products, according to the Federal/State Agricultural Statistics Service.

More than 540 acres, under greenhouse cover in Michigan, produce $100 million worth of product at wholesale value. Only California and Florida have more covered growing area than Michigan.

Soprano showcases range

By Mary Jane Doerr special writer

Judith Zorn is a soprano who knows her voice. She knows its capabilities, its features, its distinctions, and its limitations.

Saturday evening, Feb. 9, the Bloomfield Hills resident gave a free recital at the Liberal Arts Theatre at Schoolcraft College in Livonia, picking her music to show off those qualities. The entertainment was a mix of light, popular pieces with a few serious opera arias, a most enjoyable diversion.

Zorn is a stage personality with an exciting demeanor. This critic has witnessed firsthand her acting skill as Aldo Annie in "Oaklahoma," Annie Oakley in "Annie Get Your Gun," and Nellie in "South Pacific" at the Bay View Music Festival.

But because her acting skills are so strong, the tendency has been to character-cast her into these starring roles, not in parts showcasing her vocal range. Feb. 9 was the first opportunity to listen to this soprano singing the right repertoire.

ZORN'S VOCAL range is that of a soprano whose strength is at the top of her range.

Aria's such as Offenbach's "My Lords and Ladies I Salute You" (La Perichole) and Massenet's "Recitative" and "Gavotte" from Manon showed off that power, containing phrasing that was particularly suitable for her emotional interpretation. Her choice of "Standchen" (Strauss) was appropriate, since it suits her range perfectly.

The Manon was the evening's climax. It was well-chosen, not too long, with short phrasing that allowed her to drive out her force without having to sing long, drawnout phrasing.

Most recitals are in French, English, German, and Italian.

Zorn's diction was good in all the languages and especially in Menoti's famous aria from The Telephone. The words in this piece were funny because her English was clear. Since this song lies in the middle range where she has most difficulty projecting, the small auditorium proved to be an advantage.

MOST EFFECTIVE on the concert bill was Mendelssohn's "Hexenlied" and Arnold's "Hist! Hist!" because Zorn maintained an elevated intensity and managed to project excitement with her animated style. Both songs exhibited her best qualities: her acting ability and the range of her projection.

Every singer depends upon a good accompanist. Gale Kramer is exceptional, always at the right place, with the right shading; supportive, never the virtuoso. Harpist Donna Novack provided the Britten trilogy "Afton Water," "The Winter," and "Leezie Lindsay" with cohesion and rhythmic sparkle.

Zorn has been studying with Barbara Windham and obviously is headed in the right direction, working on eliminating the breathy quality in her middle voice and evening out her range.

Mozart's "Ma se colva non ho," and "batti, batti," Mendelssohn's "Auf Flugeln des Gesanges," and Copland's "Simple Gifts" were not only beautiful additions to the program but represent the kind of singing she should be doing. They will help her develop the sustaining quality of the melodic line of her voice.

Hopefully, the attractive soprano will continue to develop her opera repertoire.

Learn the business of being an artist

By Linda Ann Chomin special writer

If you're an artist in need of information on turning your talent into an economically successful business, then plan to attend the Livonia Arts Commission workshop on "Thi Business of Being an Artist."

The informative workshop for artists if all experiences will be 1:30-5 p.m. Saturdly, March 16, in the Livonia Civic Center Library Auditorium, Farmington Road and Eive Mile.

Lathrup Village artist and lecturer Nmcy Thayer will speak about "vital information : that every artist needs to know." Topics such as establishing goals, working with galfries, record keeping and time management are only a few of the areas Thayer plans p cov-

"The workshop will focus on thoseartists who eventually want to work with alleries both in Michigan and out-of-state."Thayer teaches at Center for Creative Studies in Detroit and at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

She received her Master of Arts degree from Michigan State University and a Master of Fine Arts from Instituto Allende, Mex-

Exhibitions of her work have graced gallery walls in New York, Chicago, Florida, ... West Germany and Mexico and across Michigan from the Rubiner Gallery in West Bloomfield to the Bay Street Gallery in Northport.

Thayer said she currently is "co-curating the 1992 German American Exchange Exhibition where an exhibition by five Detroitarea artists will be exchanged with that of five artists from West Germany."

IN MARCH, Thayer has been honored with the duty of juror for the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair.

Thayer said information such as preparing work for a gallery, selecting a gallery and working with galleries will be included THAYER IS an accomplished atist who in the Livonia Arts Commission workshop.

Livonia arts commissioner Therese Jaye initiated the series of workshops and seminars for artists in March 1989. Since that time, guest speakers have revealed information and tips on art topics, which ranged from framing your art to critique sessions.

When I started on the arts commission, I thought we should have someone come in to speak on art - purchasing art, what to look for, buying art to fit not only your budget but your and your home and (buying) something you can live with," Jaye said.

AT THE end of the first workshop, Jaye said, she realized the audience was predominantly artists hungry for knowledge about marketing their work. That is when Jaye contacted the Michigan Council for the Arts and received Nancy Thayer's name.

Since the first artist's workshop two years ago, artists from Birmingham, West Bloomfield, Plymouth, Farmington, Livonia and Canton benefited from Livonia Arts Commission seminars and workshops.

Among local artists who benefited from the series of workshops is Canton resident Gwen Dietrich. Dietrich's first one womanexhibition, "Dogs and Dames," opens Friday, March 15 at Nelson's Gallery in Liyonia. "The workshop helped the to focus and plot a strategy to begin exhibiting and selling my work," Dietrich said.

Dietrich, who works in colored pencil, pastel and watercolor, said the series of seminars and workshops created an opportunity to learn from other artists.

"It helped to listen to the other artists and what their concerns were," Dietrich said.

SOME OF what Dietrich learned from the Livonia Arts Commission workshops included how to compose an inventory list of all her pieces, create a file card catalog on each piece submitted to galleries and establish prices for her work.

"I don't know of any other communities that sponsor workshops where the artist can grow and benefit," Dietrich said.

Therese Jaye concurred with Dietrich.

"I'd like to see other communities pick up these workshops," Jaye said. "Especially with the (budget) cuts from the MCA, artists will need these types of programs."

. At a Livonia Arts Commission-sponsored session last fall, Thayer asked the addience. of artists, "What is it you are aiming for, what are you willing to sacrifice for your

These are key questions for artists which the workshops tries to help them answer.

SINCE THE workshop is underwritten by the Livonia Arts Commission, the charge to the artists is minimal.

Registration fee for the workshop is $3. Refreshments will be served during a midafternoon break.

Jaye said the arts commission preferred that artists planning to attend the "Business of Being an Artist" workshop pre-register by contacting the Livonia City Hall's Community Resources Center at 421-2000.

"Although no one will be turned away at the door on the day of the workshop." Jaye

Cassette introduces kids to classics

By Susan Buck staff writer

Kids regard Mark Rubin's latest cassette, "Bring on the Bras" as rousing, foot-stomping fun.

Adults know that it's really classieal music for children ages 5,0 8.

The cassette, released in November, is designed to be a prime on the British version brass band and includes a musical story wrtten by Rubin. All the music is performed by the Hannaford Street Silver Band, a Toronto brass orchestra.

Born in Detroit and pised in Huntington Woods, Rubin, 45, is a graduate of Kalamazoo Cdlege and Berkley High school.

He now lives in Toronto.He began this career as a photographer and then went on to produce ducational

" and institutional films andvideos. "I asked the band to selet several pieces," Rubin said. "The rass band

When Rubin's two children Jacob, 15, and Anna, 13, were younger, they were the inspiration for his musical endeavors.

"I wanted to introduce my son, who was only 3 at the tine, to classical music." Rubin said. I looked for a book and record which had clear, simple explanations with pleasant music and could not find it anywhere, Helping children learn about and appreciate classical music is a

The book, written by Rubin and illustrated by Alan Daniel, preceded the accompanying recording that features Peter Ustinov as narrator with the Toronto Philharmonic Orchestra performing the music.

The book and record were selected as Parents' Choice "Gold Seal Award Winner," an American Library Association "notable recording," and a Juno Award nominee for "Best Children's Recording."

FOR "BRING on the Brass." Rubin recruited veteran PBS actor Leo McKern, best known for his role in the British television series "Rumpole of the Bailey" to host and narrate the recording.

McKern introduces the concert and each of the selections, relating interesting bits of history and gives explanations about brass instruments along the way. The recording ends with a special story about the musical misadventures of a brass band in search of an audience.

"The music on this recording is very vibrant and alive," Rubin said. "Scott Joplin's 'Stoptime Rag,' several marches such as Abe Holzman's rousing 'Blaze Away March' and nursery songs were used, along with an original composition by Canadian composer, J. Scott Irvine."

"The Orchestra," on video and cassette, is available at all Harmony House and Borders Bookshop locations.

"Bring on the Brass" on cassette tape, is at all Harmony House locations. It is also at Falling Water Books in Ann Arbor, Marmel Gifts & Toys in Farmington Hills, Children's Book Shop in Southfield, Half-Way Down the Stairs children's bookstore in Rochester and Borders Bookshops.

DSO CONCERTS

Zdenek Macal, music director of the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra, returns to Detroit to Jead the Detroit Symphony Orchestra in performances of Roberto Sierra's SaSiMa and Mussorgsky's Pietures at an Exhibition.

Performances will be 8 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 28, and Friday, March 1; and 10:45 a.m. and 8:30 p.m. Saturday, March 2, at Detroit's Orchestra Hall.

The orchestra will be joined by violin virtuoso Madori, a Japan native, in performances of Bartok's Violin Concerto No. 2.

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra will perform "An Evening for America," a benefit concert to assist Michigan families of military personnel in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

Underwritten by ANR Pipeline Co. and co-sponsored by the American Red Cross, WXYZ-TV and The Detroit News, the concert will be at 7:30 Sunday, March 10, at Orchestra Hall.

It is an additional performance of the DSO's Weekender Pops concert already scheduled for that week. Led by conductor Richard Hayman with the Dallas Brass, the program will feature works by George Gershwin, Harold Arlen, Irving Berlin and others. Tickets are $25, $50 and $100.

"We are grateful to Pops conductor Richard Hayman and the Dallas Brass, who have graciously consented to perform this additional concert without performance fees in an effort to extend aid to those Michigan families who are bearing the brunt of the war in the Gulf."

"The Southeastern Michigan chapter of the American Red Cross has always provided emergency communications and social services for the families of military personnel," said Robert Miller, Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall chairman.

"Our responsibilities increase significantly in times of armed conflict," said Dr. A. William Shafer, chapter executive director.

"Overtures," a group of metro-Detroit professionals organized to support the development of younger audiences for DSO concerts, will hold its fourth event of the season, a brunch at the Detroit Historical Museum, in conjunction with the Sunday, March 17 concert at Orchestra Hall.

The brunch will be at 1 p.m. in the museum's re-creation of 19th-century Detroit streets.

At 3:30 p.m., those attending will move to Orchestra Hall for a concert led by guest conductor Hugh Wolff and featuring renowned pianist Alicia

On the program are Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 3 and Aaron Copland's Fanfare for the Common Man and Symphony No. 3.

The $35 tickets include the concert and brunch. The next Overtures event will be Saturday, April 20. Following the 8:30 p.m. concert, participants will move to Detroit's Clubland for a buffet and

SACRED MUSIC

St. Agatha Catholic Parish in Redford Township will present "An Hour of Sacred Music" at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, March 3.

The concert will feature the Wayne State University Concert Chorale, under the direction of Dennis Tini.

The mixed ensemble of 26 voices has performed on state, national and international levels. The program will include works by Mozart, Monteverdi, Durufle and Thompson. Light refreshments will be offered after the performance. St. Agatha is at 19650 Beech-Daly Road, just north of Grand River. There is no admission charge.

MAGIC WORKSHOP

Magician Bernie Stevens, Detroit based and a national performer, will offer a magic workshop for children ages 6 to 12 from noon to 1:30 p.m. Sunday, March 3, at Borders Book Shop at the Novi Town Center.

Called "The Bernie Stevens Associates Degree in Magic," the workshop costs $4 per child. Registration is required. Call 347-0780. Stevens will show students how to make objects appear and disappear, defy gravity and make solid objects pass through solid objects. He will demonstrate how to do a card trick and how to make a balloon animal. Students will leave with materials for performing their own magic tricks.

SPRING WALKS

Anyone looking for signs of spring can join a trail walk at 2 p.m. Sunday, March 3 at Matthaei Botanical Gardens in Ann Arbor.

"Called the Secret Signs of Spring," the walk will begin from the main entrance and last 11/2 to 2 hours. Participants are encouraged to dress warmly and wear warm waterproof footwear.

For those who would rather stay indoors, docents will offer conservatory tours at 2 and 3 p.m. each Saturday in March - March 2, 9, 16, 23 and 30. The topic will be "Medicinal Plants."

The general conservatory admission charge of $1 per person applies to tours. The tours are limited to 30 people per hour because of space limitations in the conservatory.

Visitors interested in joining the tours are asked to arrive 10-15 minutes early and sign in with the receptionist. Telephone reservations will not be accepted.

The Matthei Botanical Gardens is at 1800 N. Dixboro Rd., 21/2 miles north of the Geddes Road intersection. Since Plymouth Road is closed at Dixboro Road, it is best to approach from the south if coming from the University of Michigan campus area.

ANTIQUE SHOW

Arborland Cosumer Mall at U. S. 23 and Washtenaw in Ann Arbor will host an antique show featuring local residents March 7-10.

The show will be open 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. There is no admission charge.

Exhibitors will include Livonia residents Ruth Heremann, Mary Haggerty and Gloria Siegert.

Crystal beads in all colors, depression era items, linens, and gold jewelry also will be avail-

• COPPELIA STAGED

Three casts will alternate in five performances when the Cleveland San Jose Ballet brings Cop-pelia to Detroit's Masonic Temple March 7-10.

Presented by the Michigan Opera Theatre, Coppelia is scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, March 8 and 9, and 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Sunday, March 10, with a student matinee at 11 a.m. Thursday, March 7.

Three artists originally from Michigan will be featured prominently in the ballet: Detroit native and Cleveland San Jose Ballet artistic director Dennis Nahat, former West Bloomfield resident Melissa Mitchell and Flint native Mark Otloski.

MOT is offering family-priced tickets to Coppelia. With the purchase of one full-price ticket, up to two additional children's tickets may be purchased for $10 each, subject to availability. Call the MOT Ticket Services Office, 874-SING.

New generation of builders band together to learn ropes

By Doug Funke taff writer

You can learn things the hard way brough trial and error. Or you can earn the easy way through the expeiences of others.

The New Generation Builders ouncil, with an emphasis on the econd approach, is a loosely orgaized network organized last year by he Builders Association of outheastern Michigan for people ew to the business.

They could be builders, developers r suppliers. They may have no famly ties to the business or close family associations but not much personal involvement.

Those who think they might be interested in the building industry are welcome. So are seasoned veterans.

"We try to provide a more informal forum to learn nuts and bolts of building," said Nancy Bonadeo, a Plymouth building executive in her mid-30s and co-chairwoman of the council.

"We kind of draw a group of people who in some ways wouldn't be comfortable attending large general meetings of the association," said John Bollan Jr., 37, a Troy builder and co-chairman of the council.

Carey Peters, a staff member for the BASM, helped start the council.

'A LOT OF our people are ready for retirement in the next few years," she said. "We need an infiltration of younger people to keep the association going.

"We find a lot of younger builders builder. . have done field work or were in an office doing book work," Peters said. "They don't know what customers needs and wants are, newest technology, how to supervise subs. That's information they're looking for now."

The council convenes for breakfast about eight times a year. The biggest crowds so far came to learn about plywood and kitchen and bath fixtures.

"We try to have one or two meetings a year we call round tables," Bollan said. "It's a cross exchange of ideas, thoughts, questions builders might have who may not feel comfortable addressing a larger group who knows who they are." Some third-generation builders, like Bollan, and second-generation builders, like Bonadeo, grow up in the business. But there's always something to

"Perhaps it's a disdain from workers on the job you being related to the boss," she said. "It (council) would provide a sharing of common experiences, ideas how one person handled it.'

learn, Bonadeo maintained.

Gregory Benson, 32, is a third-generation builder.

"It's been a pretty fair exchange about what's going on, who's doing what, how sales and traffic are," he said of the sessions. "That's pretty valuable information in our busi-

Then there are the new builders like Carol Lee, 25, of Livonia. She found little fulfillment in inside sales work and as a real estate agent.

Her father, Alex Fedrigo, had built a few industrial buildings as a personal sideline/investment kind of thing, but wasn't even a licensed

THE TWO built a house for Lee, then afterwards, obtained licenses.

She since has established her own building company, Five Star Construction, and has built several more

Lee finds the council informative: "I'm basically going there because it's filled with people who know what's going on," she said. "I'm there to listen. You're in a room with people who do this every day. "It was strictly a learn-by-mistake thing," Lee said of her initial building experience. "In this business, mistakes cost money so you learn

Simple things that might not occur to a novice like getting trades people on site at the right time can make all the difference in the world, she said.

Robert Hall, manager of the builders sales division for Erb Lumber of Birmaingham, has attended several meetings. "It gives us a chance to learn about builders' business, meet customers and it gives us a teaching forum as well," he said. "There's a lot to know in this business. Getting the word out is extremely important to

Lee said she's amazed by the willingness of other builders to share information.

"That will make the industry stronger, bring a community spirit into the industry and make it better in the long run," Bonadeo said.

"You may not always want to ask a certain question in front of your competition." Bollan said, "but evprivene is usually pretty open."

"Tl .. a_certain camaraderie when you just together," Benson said. "A lot of people are looking over their shoulder. That never bothered me.'

Carol Lee finds the New Generation Builders Council informative

Porches make comeback

Screen-enclosed porches are back with an new landscaping. The screened enclosure should be an enthusiasm that is reminiscent of their popularity a integral part of your home and its surroundings, couple of generations ago. And the reasons are the and blend into the overall design. same: A screen-enclosed porch is a pleasant place to enjoy a quiet summer evening.

For the benefits it offers, a screen-enclosed porch is relatively inexpensive to install if a roofed porch is already in place. Aluminum and fiber glass insect screening is available in rolls up to 48 inches wide at local hardware stores and is simply stapled to studs. Many homeowners combine a chair rail with studs on four-foot (roll width) centers.

If you're starting from scratch to build a new screen-enclosed porch, deck or free-standing garden structure, your first consideration is a design that harmonizes with your home, its site and your
