THE CITY Council will hold a business meeting at 7:30 tonight.

Agendas are available at the city clerk's office during the day. The session will be in city hall, 36601 Ford, west of Wayne Road.

IN THE ongoing public debate on the Wayne-Westland school district millage increase, school officials have really boiled down the cost of the tax increase for the average Westland taxpayer in the recent issue of "Focus," a publication of Wayne-Westland schools.

The tax increase amounts to about 65 cents a day for the owner of a $60,000 home that has a state equalized valuation of $30,000, according to school officials.

Westland Center may be sold, enlarged

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Negotiations for the possible sale of Westland Center could result in a major expansion, including a second floor of shops and a Sears store, local officials confirmed Friday.

Hestland

"That is part of the plan," said Scott Veldhuis, the city's economic director.

Homart Development Co. is negotiating with the mall's owner, Equitable Real Estate Investment Management Inc., for a potential sale that would bring dramatic changes to the northwest corner of Warren and Wayne roads. The nearest Sears store is at Livonia Mall, on Seven Mile and Middlebelt.

Westland Planning Director George Wilhelmi confirmed the negotiations, though he added that "they haven't pounded out a deal yet." Homart officials have talked with the city administration about the preliminary plans for the project, Veldhuis said, but it was not immediately known when the possible sale might be completed and the changes implemented Chicago-based Homart is the development

Officials have not disclosed a possible sale price for the 25-year-old mall that had its last major expansion in the fall of 1987; when the MainStreet department store (which was later bought by Kohl's) was added.

WESTLAND CENTER has an assessment of about $15.5 million, meaning its resale value would be about $31 million. However, that assessment doesn't include the merchandise value and the major stores of Hudson's, Kohl's and J.C. Penney, so the actual resale value would be much higher, said City Assessor William Schmidt.

Homart officials declined to release more details of the expansion that reportedly would also include a parking deck.

"I was told by our people that there is no additional information available at this timeon that project," said Kevin Caulfield, Homart spokesman in Chicago.

Athletes challenge students

By Casey Hans staff writer

Pro athletes took the nationally known "say no to drugs" slogan one step further this week, telling local students that their actions speak louder than words.

"I don't think that slogan is fitting enough," said Detroit Lions defensive back Benny Blades, who told students he grow up in an alcoholic family.

"A lot of kids are saying it and still doing it. It always comes down to making the right choices. A GROUP of professional athletes, most of them football players, made the rounds of the Livonia Public Schools Wednesday, visiting Franklin and Churchill which serves the northern section of Westland, at school assemblies amid much hooting and cheering. Called the Pro Challenge, the group competed with teams of student athletes in several physical events including volleyball, situps, relay races, three-point shoot, three-on-three football and basketball - and challenged entire student bodies to make the right choices in life. Other athletes participating Wednesday in Livonia included Lions Kevin Glover and William White, Green Bay Packer Carl Bland, George Jamison, Sheldon White, Lions team chaplain Dave Wilson and Paul Hansen, youth minister at Ward Presbyterian Church in Livonia who organized the Pro Challenge program in 1988 and keeps it going year after year. EVEN THOUGH they don't bring religious overtones to their program, all the atheletes come from a Christian background and are involved in a Bible study group through the church Programs are scheduled for several weeks, sandwiched between training and professional athletic seasons, said Wendy Bernard, Pro Challenge program coordinator. Hansen said he has had a "tremendous" response from the education community to the combination program which alternates short athletic events with downto-earth talk from the pro athletes. "We have seen too many kids saying no, but doing it," Hansen added. "So our message to you is to not say 'no,' but to do 'no.' It's damaging to play with alcohol and drugs."

Council to attempt cable veto override

Fireman challenges

reason for dismissal

The Westland City Council will try tonight to override a mayoral veto and extend the agreement of the city's cable-TV programming and community relations director for three months.

The council agreed 4-3 last Monday to extend the contract of Cable Management Associates, owned by Dennis Fassett, for three months, or until May 1.

But Mayor Robert Thomas veloed the council action the next day, saying that he has another cable director in mind to replace Fassett.

Victim of traffic accident identified as missing woman

By Darrell Clem staff writer.

Police have identified the body of an emotionally disabled Westland woman who disappeared from a residential group home Feb. 12 and was killed that night when she walked into traffic on I-75 near Mack, Detroit.

Palicia Kelly, 26, died Feb. 13 from injuries, including a broken neck, that she received when a vehicle struck her as she attempted to walk across the interstate's northbound lanes, police said.

The accident occurred at 11:10 p.m. Feb. 12, several hours after she walked away from a group home on Schuman Street, near Venoy and Palmer in Westland's south end.

Kelly, who had the mental capability of a 12-year-old, had been a ward of the state for 17 years. Her family had turned her over to the state when she was 9, and she hadn't had contact with relatives for years.

KELLY'S BODY had remained unidentified in the Detroit city morgue until Michigan State Police read published reports about her disappearance, police said. Kelly's description in the reports matched that of the woman at the morgue.

State police contacted the Westland Police Department, and a subsequent investigation by a state medical examiner, matched Kelly's dental records with those of the woman who died at Detroit Receiving Hospital after the Feb. 12 accident on I-75.

Kelly's identity was confirmed Wednesday, said Westland police Sgt. Derek Delacourt.

POLICE DID not know how or why Kelly got to the location where she was killed, though they suspected she had been trying to return to another group home where she once lived in Chandler Park.

"She just stepped out into the lane of traffic," said state police Trooper Joseph O'Connor. "The vehicle was unable to avoid hitting her.'

No charges have been filed, and the driver's identity has not been released, he said.

Kelly died hours later at Detroit Receiving Hospital. She had received a broken neck, a broken leg and other injuries, O'Connor said.

It was not immediately known when or where Kelly would be buried. Those arrangements were being worked out late last week by her legal guardian, Guardian Inc." of Wayne County.

Fireman denies he took property from evicted tenant

The city administration accused the two of taking property belonging to tenant Elaine Botz during a June 22 eviction from Hawthorne Club Apartments, on Merriman between Ann Arbor Trail and Warren Road.

During Thursday's hearing, city attorney C. Charles Bokos submitted pictures of Botz's property, including footlockers, a lawn chair, an air mattress, a typewriter and a bag of bed sheets and blankets, that Wilhide tied in to Mr. Bush in any way whatsoever." However, the commission allowed the snapshots to be presented at the hearing.

During the eviction, Bush had been acting as a district court bailiff with assistance from Wilhide, whose administrative hearing has not been > Wilhide took the microwave from Botz's apartment and turned it over > Bush denied any knowledge of a colto Bush when the two met at a Westland fire station on the same day of the eviction, Bush said. Bush, saying he hadn't known that Wilhide had taken the microwave, then returned it to the apartment complex and threw it in a dumpster, he said.

Though some witnesses have said they saw Bush and Wilhide taking property from Botz's apartment and loading it into a truck, Bush responded Thursday, "That's an incorrect statement. I don't believe I assisted (Wilhide) in taking anything out." Much of Thursday's testimony came from Westland Police Sgt.

Russell Nowaczck, who investigated the complaint against the firefighters. When he first interviewed Bush at the police station, Nowaczck said, Bush "turned rather white, slumped down in the chair" and later "bolted from the room."

In later testimony, Bush said, "I felt intimidated (by Nowaczck), and so I left. He told me I could leave at any time, so I left." However, Bush disputed Nowaczck's claim that he ran from the room.

has overseen some 2,000 evictions in his 18 years with district court.

MEANWHILE THURSDAY, Gary Maitke, the civil service commission's attorney, agreed to research a legal matter on whether the city's firing of Bush and Wilhide came within the 90 days required by law.

The city contends the firings must occur within 90 days from the time city officials learn of the complaint, which was in early July. However, attorneys for Bush and Wilnide turned over to police after an investigation had begun.

BUSH'S ATTORNEY, James V. Fowler, objected to Bokos' move, Maitke expects to prepare an opinion by Monday, March 11.

Tough assignment

Students to defend Iraq at mock U.N.

By Marie Chestney staff writer

Six Livonia school district high school students will have one tough job ahead of them when they face fellow student delegates at a mock United Nations assembly next month in Lansing.

The six students, as members of the Iraq delegation to the mid-American Model United Nations, have been given the task of defending Iraq and its actions in the Persian Gulf War in debate before delegates to the assembly.

It's a task the Stevenson High students earned through superior performances in past years before the student assembly, said Jonathan Swift, head of the district's global awareness education progam.

AND IT'S ALSO a task that the six students eagerly sought out, not because they back Iraq but because of the supreme challenge it will present.

"We wanted a challenge and this was the biggest one we could get," said Tony Caram, who will head the Iraqi delegation as ambassador. Other delegates on the Iraqi team are Marco DeSanto, Eric Anderson, Jason Wade. Mobeen Rab and Kerry Crowley.

Stevenson also is sending delegates to the six-day assembly to represent the countries of Bolivia, Canada, Ghana, Guatemala, India, Indonesia, Malaysia, Norway, Poland, Senegal, Somalia, Sudan and Vietnam.

At this year's assembly, the six students believe the spotlight will be put on Iraq.

When the accusations flow, the students plan to use the combination of reasonable doubt and persuasive speaking to talk the assembly out of charging Iraq with war crimes or making Iraq pay reparations for damage done to Kuwait.

Threstudents think these are the two biggest debates they will face. And their mission will be doubly hard, for the students support the U.S. troops in the war.

"Our personal feelings can't get in the way," Caram said. "We are patriotic, but we can't let it interfere with what we are doing scholastically."

THE STUDENTS expect lukewarm support from some countries such as Yemen, Iran, Sudan, Jordan and Tunisia.

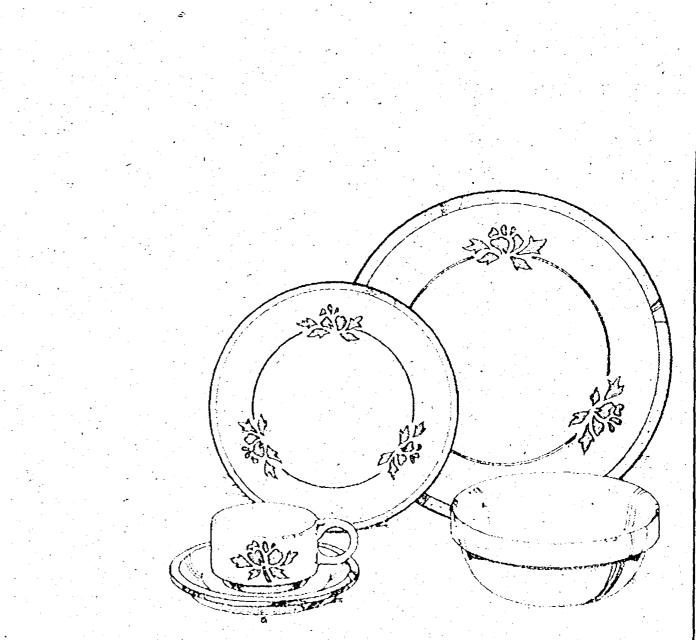

Beyond that, they'll face a hostile assembly.

Their job might be made somewhat easier, they said, because the U.N. assembly tends to ignore propaganda put forth by both sides and is more unbiased.

"The delegates will be skeptical of what both sides put in the paper," DeSanto said. "We laugh at what the Iraqis put in the paper, but the U.N. will laugh at some of the things in the American press."

Point by point, the students hope to discredit claims made by members of the U.N. coalition which fought the war.

Somewhere in time Area artist makes Grand gesture

By Diane Gale staff writer

Stare at Michael Phillips' painting of Jane Seymour and it will take you back somewhere in time.

The unfinished painting sits on a dresser in a room in his Canton house. Phillips, a Wayne-Westland school district teacher, said he will add the last strokes of paint in time for the portrait to be donated this fall to Mackinac Island's Grand Hotel where Seymour and Christopher Reeves filmed the romantic tale, "Somewhere in Time."

It will be unveiled the weekend of Oct. 25-27 during a hotel program devoted to the movie.

PAINTING IS a part-time affair for Phillips, a fifth-grade teacher who has been in the Wayne-Westland district for 23 years.

painting of Seymour after staying at the hotel and realizing there was little there that commemorated the movie.

"I felt a lot of people who visit the Grand Hotel would be very happy to see something that was reminiscent of the movie. A lot of people get the idea to visit Mackinac Island from the movie.

"Few artists get a chance for an unveiling - that will be nice," said Phillips adding that he keeps or gives away most of his work.

"I like people to see my work and it was a place and movie I cared about. Because of the Grand I feel it has to be a world class portrait, because I think the Grand is world class. Anyone who sees the portrait should be able to close their eyes and see the movie."

Phillips thought about donating a land, makes you feel like you stepped back in time, he said. "It probably is one of the most truly romantic movies."

Some fans liked the movie so much that they formed a club, IN-SITE (International Network of Somewhere in Time Enthusiasts). Despite lukewarm to poor reviews when it was released in 1980, the club exists more than 10 years later.

The love story is about a troubled man played by Reeves who stumbles on a picture of a stunning actress, played by Seymour, and falls in love. The ending is mystical and deceiving leaving the audience to wonder if Reeves and Seymour are finally together.

"We'll put them on the spot, get them to sway," Rab said. "We'll make their claims questionable. We'll say things were blown out of porportion. They must prove their claims beyond a reasonable doubt."

The students won't know what evidence students from other countries will present to support their points.

"It will be a tough assignment to convince them otherwise," DeSanto said. "They'll be saying Iraq tossed the Geneva Conventions to the wind. To fake a surrender and then not surrender is terrible. They'll be able to document this.'

RAB, A MOSLEM, will be defending the leader of a country he does not support.

"Saddam is evil. He is not fighting for the Moslems. It's not a holy war. I am anti-Saddam, but I feel for the Iraqi and Kuwaiti civilians."

Instead of going to a library to research a country and its politics, the students have been using the daily newspaper since September to keep abreast of Middle East politics.

Being caught up in the middle of a fast-changing situation made their research especially difficult.

"If you missed two-three days, you'd be in the dark over what was happening," Rab said.

The environment was one of the issues set to be debated at this year's assembly before the invasion of Kuwait took place in August.

But, because the war brought on such environmental catastrophes as the oil spill and the burning of the oil wells, the students expect the environment to be in an even bigger spotlight.

"We'll have to take the opposite point of view, that Iraq didn't cause these things," Rab said.

Township doesn't want stadium

By Kevin Brown staff writer

Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen wants to make one thing perfectly clear: He and other township officials don't want a new Tiger Stadium in Plymouth Township.

While some observers have speculated that Plymouth Township could be a prime site for a new stadium there's available land and three major freeways serve the area - Detroit Tigers officials won't say what sites they're looking at for a new stadium.

Breen said some residents have, called the township offices asking if such a project is in the works. So on Tuesday, township trustees passed a resolution reading:

"Whereas there has been discussion among the media about the possibility of locating a stadium for the Detroit Tigers franchise in the Charter Township of Plymouth.

"Whereas the Plymouth Township master plan does not allow for the siting of such a stadium within the township boundaries.

"Whereas the community in general does not favor the siling of a new stadium for the Detroit Tigers franchise in Plymouth Township. "Now, therefore be it resolved that the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees opposes any and all efforts, attempts and plans to locate a new stadium for the Detroit Tigers within the boundaries of the Charter Township of Plymouth."

Are trustees trying to end speculation that a stadium could be built in Plymouth Township?

"That's exactly right," Breen said Tuesday.

"We have all these people calling, all these residents upset," Breen said. "Our master plan doesn't call for it, it's not the type of facility we encourage in Plymouth Township."

Some local districts stuck with hefty computer bill

By Wayne Peal staff writer

The quick demise of Michigan's "Classrooms of Tomorrow" program means some area public school districts will have to pick up a hefty tab for computers.

But while some districts are angry, others said they knew all along the program was too good to last. Classrooms of Tomorrow, begun by then Goy. James Blanchard last year; offered state money to help; us money but we never seem to see schools add computers to their class- it." : rooms - offering a first-year downpayment of 20 percent on computer ; computers through the state proequipment.

New Goy. John Engler, however, has killed the program, calling it good public relations, but bad policy. The state won't buy any more computers, or make additional payments on computers already sent to Michigan schools.

South Redford Superintendent, Jan Jacobs described the program's demise.-

"It's these types of things that make us so suspicious of Lansing," Jacobs said. "It's just like the lottery, they say they're going to give

Board will interview SC trustee candidates April 8

College board vacancy won't be interviewed March 11, after all.

Other board members moved the interviews back to 7 p.m. Monday, April 8 — the filing date for the June 10 board election.

The person appointed to the seat would serve until the election, though trustees hinted they might give preference to someone who would run in June.

"By then we'll know who's serious," trustee Michael Burley said. Each of the 10 applicants will be Northville.

Candidates for the Schoolcraft interviewed in person for the board vacancy, with each candidate given an estimated 15 minutes to respond to board questions.

Interviews are open to the public. Candidates to be interviewed include Ronaele Bowman, Livonia; Willis Brauer, Livonia; Paulette Cebulski, Plymouth; Yvonne Constas, Livonia; Robert Gordon, Plymouth: Stephen Ragan, Plymouth; Subramanian Ramamurthy, Canton; Andrea Taylor, Livonia; Jeffrey Theodore, Livonia; and Patricia Watson,

Seminar targets health issues

Health issues will be discussed at a pair of Schoolcraft College seminars.

The first seminar, Medications and You, answers questions about generic and over-the-counter drugs. Taught by a pharmacist, the seminar stresses the importance of taking prescribed medication and discusses hazards and side effects of medication. Sessions meet 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Wednesdays for three weeks beginning March 13. Fee is $28.

The second seminar, Physicians Round Table, provides answers on health issues, with special attention given to such female health issues as menopause, osteoporosis, estrogen replacement therapy and pregnancy. The seminar meets 7:30-9:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 13. Fee is $12.

Additional information is available by calling 462-4448. Schoolcraft is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile roads, Livonia.

Men. if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service schools were "very disappointed" according to business manager Ken Johnson.

"WE KNEW all along there were "Unconscionable," is the way no guarantees," Johnson said. "For a district like ours, this was a good way to get computers."

> · Redford. Union, which has struggled with financial problems, will now have to pay an estimated $70,000 for the 26 computers it ordered, after receiving a $38,000 initial payment from the state.

> Even though the program contained risk, Johnson said it was a risk worth taking.

"It was a good program," he said. "Not only did we get state aid, but we did get the computers at a good price.'

Many districts agreed with that assessment.

stored, but you still feel lucky any time you get something wholesale like this," said Jim Edwards, executive director of general education for the Wayne-Westland Schools.

Wayne Westland owes about $53,500 on the 34 computers it ordered, after receiving roughly $13,500 from the state.

Other districts ordered fewer computers.

"We only used the money for computers we were already planning onpurchasing anyway," said Garden City Superintendent Michael Wilmot, whose district added 10 computers. "Our feeling is that whatever happened, it's money we wouldn't ordinarily have had." Garden City received $2,253 though the program.

Plymouth/Canton Schools ordered

"we're still hopeful it will be re- 35 computers through the program, associate superintendent Raymond Hoedel said, and now owes and estimated $62,000 after receiving $8,900 from the state.

"It's one of those things that got cut," Hoedel said. "But school districts are worried about much bigger cuts than this." Clarenceville officials said they doubted they'd have to pay anything for the two computers they ordered through the program.

"As far as we can tell, those computers have already been bought and paid for," said Ralph Skrocki, assistant superintendent for business.

Statewide, schools received 8,000 computers through the program, as well as software and printers.

· Livonia Schools didn't participate in the program, district curriculum director Bill McFarland said.

"WE DIDN'T have a lot of confidence in it from the start," he said. "Plus, it didn't seem to to be something geared for a large district like ours.'

★5A

The state sold $20 million in bonds to buy computers and has already , made the first $2 million bond payment.

The Engler administration has said districts will have to pay for the bonds themselves. School officials were told last year they might end up footing the bill.

"The program has been cut," Engler press secretary John Truscott said. "It was used by Governor Blanchard as a public relations gim-mick rather than a sincere program."

Mayor lauded for stands

To the editor:

In the past month or so I have read article after article that has criticized Mayor Robert Thomas.

The Wayne-Westland Board of Education criticized Mayor Thomas for speaking out against a millage increase, and called him "ignorant" and "irresponsible,"

The Westland Chamber of Commerce criticized Mayor Thomas for trying to make us aware of any unusual events that may affect the residents of Westland, during the course of the war in the Persian Gulf.

The city council criticized publicly. decisions that Mayor Thomas makes that they do not agree with.

I am tired of sitting idle and reading all these negative things about the mayor. I feel that Mayor Thomas is a peoples' mayor and has us in his best interest.

Mayor Thomas talks to the people, as well as listens to what they have to say. He tries to say and do things that the people of Westland understand and want.

Let's not get lost in the politics of Westland. Let's congratulate Mayor Thomas for helping the people of Westland have a better city, and for helping us better understand where he stands as the leader of our "good city," and that is, "for the people."

Schools are deteriorating

To the editor:

My mind races to remembrance of what an education in the Wayne-Westland schools has done for me. I am a 1969 graduate of John Glenn High School.

As a result, I have been honored by a listing in Who's Who in Finance and Industry (1982), Who's Who in the Midwest (1985 to present), Who's Who of Emerging Leaders (1988),

Now you tell me I am being held hostage. If I don't vote to increase my giving to you that you will eliminate busing of my children, take away extra-curricular and co-curricular activities, as well as "non-essential" programs, and have rescinded the accreditation of 'our district's high schools. Yet, you want me to send my four children to your to-bedecimated schools?

Perhaps you are not cognizant of one small factor: I don't have to live in Westland. I don't have to use your school district. My children are attending St. Paul's in Livonia and are receiving an excellent education. Two of the four would attend Wayne-Westland Schools- this fall, but for what?

A denigrated district reminiscent of Detroit? Even Detroit's schools are accredited. Realtors tell me Westland has the highest millage per valuation in southeastern Michigan. I believe it. Why aren't our schools then the best?

Until you show fiscal responsibility in handling the funds and financial affairs you have, I won't be voting you more money. Also, if you decimate the district as you promise, my children won't be attending your schools.

If I have to move, so be it. Redford schools are reputedly excellent, as are Garden City's, and both have proven to be fiscally responsible. Just because I cannot afford Livonia or Canton doesn't mean I have to subject my children to educational depravity in a decimated district.

Please think of this, too. If parents with children continue moving out of your district, what will that do to your school/tax base, real estate values, et al. Do you, Mr. Mayor, want to be known as the man that made Westland educationally Little Detroit?

the millage fails to pass.

If the millage is approved, these will be restored; full junior high instructional day; full elementary in-. structional day; all 'elementary school principal positions; purchase of up-to-date textbooks; junior and senior high athletics and marching band; elementary art, vocal and instrumental music and physical education classes; and increase in all classroom supply and textbook accounts,

If the millage fails, beginning in fall 1991, these additional cuts will be made: school busing; reduction of the senior high day by one hour; loss of high school accreditation; total elimination of elementary art, music and physical education; further reduction in all classroom supply and textbook accounts; additional reduction in the number of building and central office administrators; school buildings will close at 6 p.m.; and no pay-to-play sports or activities.

If the millage fails and the senior high school day is reduced by one hour, the school district will lose almost half a million dollars in state aid.

In addition the property value of the residents of Westland will be affected. People will have difficulty selling their homes as a direct result of the current reduction in programs offered to students.

You may ask, How much will the 7¾-mill addition cost? The cost to the average taxpayer within the district with a state equalized valuation of $30,000 will be less than $20 per month, or about 65 cents per day.

I believe that my children as well as all the other children in this district are worth that amount of money. We need to vote YES on March 13 and give our kids a future as well as a good education.

hours, curtailed programs; now buses!

Has anyone ever checked the ratio of cars in the "student" parking lot to the student population in the high school? A little sensible incentive to "ride share" would have allowed discontinuing bus service at this level years ago. Now we can visualize little kindergartners braving the cold and storms of winter, subject to who knows what evil on their daily walk.

Has anyone, other than board member Sylvia .Kozoroski Wiacek, questioned the viability of specific amounts for specific purposes? We used to have board members who questioned the reasons for various expenditures. They were labeled "curmudgeons." They also visited the schools and talked to various employees to feel the pulse of the district.

If the 7.75 mills is passed March 13, how long would that last to maintain programs? Teachers received an 11.94 percent raise (over two years). The support staff must still be dealt with. Will they not receive equitable treatment?

The business of schools is education! The brain is a wonderful computer, but you can't slick a floppy disc into it. It must learn to read, to comprehend, to use logic. Only in a disciplined, dedicated environment is this possible. Money alone cannot achieve this aim.

Management needs to examine its priorities before another blackmail attempt is made.

This coming June is election time for school board members. Let's replace the "YES" votes - Mathew McCusker and Sharon Scott. It's time to get some new blood in the school board, some independent thinkers. John Molesky,

To the editor:

The millage election for the Wayne-Westland school district is approaching fast. The big question is "do we want quality education for

As the state continues to reduce _ funding for schools in our district, asking for another millage election is the only way funds can be generated to operate the schools.

We must stand united as a community and set education of our children as our priority. These are hard times we are facing if this millage proposition fails. We must take pride in our schools and vote YES March 13.

Quality is emphasized

To the editor:

It's obvious the Wayne-Westland school district is in a condition that is less than healthy. It is confronted by an immediate need for new revenue on one hand, and on the other by a well-organized group that is intent on defeating any campaign that will raise that needed revenue.

Basically the opposition to the new millage revolves around administrative salaries and the management of the district.

What this election is all about is children. Yours, mine and our neighbors. For years this has been an outstanding school district. I offer as proof our graduates. They are found in every major profession and trade. From the cabinet in Washington, D.C., to Wayne County government, and indeed to Westland Mayor Robert Thomas himself. This district has produced quality students because the community demanded it. We, the parents, recognized that to do less can only hurt the children of this community, and in the end the community itself.

This campaign is aimed at raising revenue to continue that quality education. Those that are opposed to the millage for their stated reasons are in the wrong election. They intend to punish children and degrade the value of our property to gain an obscure victory.

Their campaign belongs in the school board elections in June. There they can develop a platform and state their goals. This election is for our children. It is for their continued quality education, and in the end our property values, . . . our community. George Sommerman, Canton

CALLS REALFY IN THE ACCOUNT PARTY OF A CALL AND A CALL

To the editor:

Sixteen years ago, when I decided to purchase a home, my first questions were about the schools and how good they were. At that time, anyone I spoke with proudly answered that the Wayne-Westland school system was the best. As I became involved in the PTA activities at school I was able to see first hand just how great our schools were. We had dedicated, committed teachers, secretaries, custodial and administrative staff. We had great programs. And we had a positive, supportive community who cared about the future of our children.

Those staff are still here. But because our community has not supported prior millages our programs have been badly cut. We can still have great programs. We need to once again become the community who believes in our schools and in educating our children.

In a recent "State of the City Address" Mayor Thomas said he did not support the millage because citizens didn't want a property tax increase. I believe that this is shortsighted on the part of the mayor. Communities who have good schools attract business and home buyers. When school systems are poor, the economy of the community will fail. We will be unable to attract either home buyers or business. Our taxes may be lower, but our schools will reflect that.

Until the state sponsors a more equitable system for funding education, we need to join forces and unite to make our schools one of the best in the state. Persons who feel the system needs to be changed have every opportunity to do so in other ways: through the board of education meetings, the school superintendent's advisory council, local and area council PTA's, PTO's and legislative action.

We were once a positive community and can be one again. I urge everyone to think seriously about this

Celebrate spring, Easter in March

By Raymond E. Bullock special writer

March always brings us the official start of spring, and this year it also brings Easter.

The amount of sunlight we receive this month increases by one hour, 26 minutes.

Of the five naked-eye planets, only Saturn'is visible before sunrise, low in the southeast before dawn. Jupiter, Mars, Venus and Mercury are all evening objects. Jupiter is The bright "star" to the east (left) of nearly overhead, in the faint constellation of Cancer the crab, Mars, the 11 is the planet Saturn. This is the red planet, is high in the southwest, in Taurus. Venus is the bright "star" in the west after sunset.

The moon is approaching the bright orange-red star Antares (an TAR ees) on the morning of March 7. Both can be seen due south about 45 the "heart" of Scorpius the scorpion. Last Quarter Moon is at 5:32 a.m. on March 8. The moon is beginning the last-quarter of its orbit around the earth. It has passed Antares and is now 10 degrees to the southeast (left) of that star. Watch the moon pass through the faint constellation of Sagittarius the archer from March 8 through March 11.

In Greek mythology, Sagittarius was a centaur; a creature who was half man and half horse. It is unlikely that the Greeks, or anyone else for that matter, ever "saw" the outline of a centaur in this part of the sky! This star pattern was named to honor Sagittarius.

Today, it is much easier to see the outline of a "teapot" in this part of the sky. The moon is located directly above the "spout" of our teapot on the morning of March 9. The star dithe top_of the teapot's cover.

skywatch 1.5 Raymond E. Bullock

On the next morning the moon has moved to the east of that star, and is located above a curving row of stars that mark the handle of the teapot. the moon on the morning of March planet with the beautiful rings.

THE VOYAGER spacecraft showed us that the solar system's three other giant gas planets (Juplter, Uranus and Neptune) also have rings, but only Saturn's can be seen with a low power telescope.

The moon will be three degrees to minutes before sunrise. Antares is the east of Saturn on the following morning. Face west, one half-hour after sunset on March 11, and try to spot Mercury.

Bright Venus will be no problem, but Mercury will be a challenge; it will be only a few degrees above the horizon. You will need an unobstructed view of the west and binoculars to spot Mercury. If Mercury proves to be too illusive for you, be patient; as each night goes by Mercury will be higher in the sky and will be much easier to see starting the next week.

New Moon is at 3:10 a.m. on March 16. The moon is located between the earth and the sun and is not visible. Look for the thin waxing (growing) crescent moon on the evening of the 16th.

It is only 16 hours past new phase and will be difficult to spot. Look slightly north of due west with binocrectly to the east (left) of the moon is ulars, 30 minutes after sunset. An unobstructed horizon is a must.

If you spot the moon, try for Mercury; it is due west and higher in altitude than the moon.

If Mercury still eludes you on the 16th, try again on the evening of the 17th. Now the moon will be about six degrées above Mercury, and on the 18th the moon will be four degrees to the north (right) of Venus. From the 17th through the rest of the month, Mercury is best placed for observing

On Wednesday evening, March 20, the moon will occult (cover) the stars of the Pleiades (PLEE a dees). The Pleiades is a beautiful star cluster in the constellation of Taurus. The cluster looks like a tiny "dipper" through binoculars.

On the evening of the 20th, the moon passes directly across the Pleiades and blocks their light. This will be the last time this century that such an occultation will occur.

THE MOON passes through each member of the zodiac each month, but only when the alignment between the earth and the moon is correct can an occultation occur. Each time the orbit of the moon takes it through Taurus after this night, it will pass above or below the Pleiades.

The bright star to the left of the moon is Aldebaran (al DEB a ran). the orange-red 'eye' of Taurus. Sixteen degrees above Aldebaran, at about the same color and brightness, is the red planet, Mars.

Easter is on March 31 this year, but next year it falls in April. Determining the date of this very erratic holiday is not as difficult as you may think. All you need to know is the phase of the moon and a few rules.

The ground rules for determining Easter were set up in the year 325 A.D. when the Emperor Constantine Michigan State University, East called for a Council at Nicea for the Lansing, 48824.

DON'T

purpose of calendar reform.

Based on the advice of his Christian council, he decreed that Easter would be observed on the first Sunday following the first full moon that occurs after the vernal equinox (the start of spring). The reason for choosing the full moon, rather than the new moon, was so people making a pilgrimage to the Holy Land could travel at night by the light of the moon.

SINCE THE start of spring occurs on March 20 or 21, the earliest Easter can be is March 22. But now we have to consider the inevitable exceptions to the rule. If the first full moon to occur after the start of spring falls on a Sunday, then the following Sunday is Easter. If the full moon happens to be on the same day as the vernal equinox, then the April full moon is used. If the April full moon falls on a Sunday, the following Sunday is Easter unless that date is later than April 25, which is the latest date Easter is permitted to fall. If that Sunday does fall after the 25th, then the previous Sunday, the one with the full moon, must be used.

So all things considered, Easter can come as early as March 22, which it last did in the year 1818 and will again in 2285, or as late as April 25, which it did in 1943 and will again in 2038.

This year Easter Sunday is March 31, which is just one day after the full moon. Now, wasn't that simple?

State's 'right to die' bills are explained

By Tim Richard staff writer

Here's a guide to "right to die" bills in Michigan:

• "Patient advocate" or durable power of attorney - This is law and takes effect at the end of March after 15 years of legislative debate.

Under it, a person of sound mind designates another to make medical decisions in the event he or she becomes incapacitated. The state is preparing model forms. Sponsor: Rep. David Hollister, D-Lansing.

• "Living will" - A person would be able to prescribe the extent of treatment if he or she becomes incapacitated.

The bill died last session and has been re-introduced by Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, who calls it a complement to the patient advocate law.

In the Senate it will be resisted by Sen. Fred Dillingham, R-Fowlerville, "Give the durable power law a chance to work, and then see where we are in three or four years," he said. The medical profession would like the living will because it reduces their chances of liability, Dillingham said.

Many lawmakers have circulated model living will forms, but their legality is still in doubt.

• "Assisted suicide" - Senate Bill 32 would make aiding a suicide a felony punishable by four years in prison. Sponsor: Dillingham. A Senate committee likely will report it out the first week of March.

• A euthanasia law - Not in bill form, the idea is advocated by Dr. Jack Kevorkian, alias "Dr. Death." An adult with a crippling disease who is still mentally competent would qualify for counseling by a "blue ribbon panel" of medical professionals before being alded in ending his or her own life. A person who refuses' treatment or whose disease isn't advanced wouldn't qualify. A person with a financial problem would be given financial counseling.

WHAT'S MENTAL competence? "Person, time and place. If a person knows who he is, where he is and when, that's competence," said Kevorkian. "We learned that in medical school.'

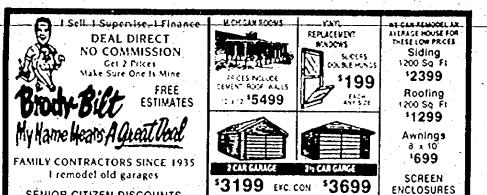

Best known for helping Janet Adkins of Oregon end her life last June in an Oakland County park, Kevorkian said the 54-year-old Oregonian was competent when she consulted him. "She had lost her memory. She could tell a joke and laugh at the punch line. I knew she would be mentally incompetent in four to six months," said Kevorkian, who was acquainted with her two days. "She was failing rapidily."

Kevorkian's proposal got no apparent sympathy from the Senate committee considering Dillingham's bill.

Strangely, Kevorkian's opponents see his proposal as an alternative to outlawing assisted suicide - though not an acceptable one.

Ed Rivet of Right to Life said Kevorkian's idea contains "an inherent logical flaw: If we grant the right to suicide, then we have no business regulating it."

THE OUTLOOK: Dillingham's assisted suicide bill will pass the Senate but may run into trouble in the House with Bullard, who will seek passage of his living will measure.

Custard is always soothing

I love comfort foods. Foods that remind me of Sycamore Street, Sunday chicken dinners and Momma's custard.

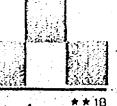

Beloved by children of all ages, custard is a mixture of milk, sugar, salt and a smidgen of flavoring. It can be either gently cooked on a slovetop or slowly baked until firm, which is how Momma did it, in heavy ramekins that resembled silvery Frisbees with handles.

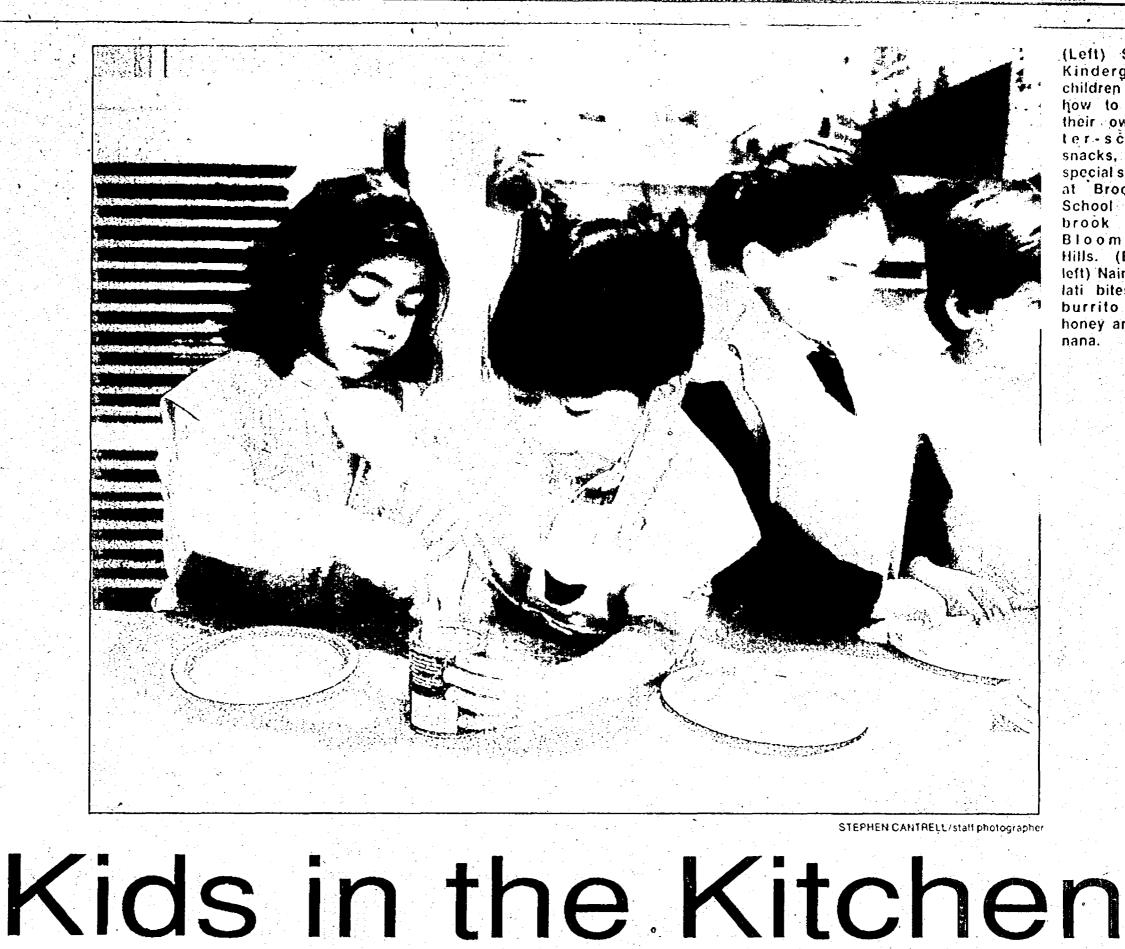

Stirred custard, also known as creme anglaise, is the slowcooked stovetop version that doubles as a sauce, pastry filling and base for many chilled and frozen desserts. Baked custard is a more simple product, especially when garnished with fresh fruit or whipped cream or bathed in a caramelized sugar syrup as in the lamous French dessert creme caramel and its Latin counterpart, flan.

Made properly, custard is creamy and tender. As it so often happens in the Janes Gang kitchen, it turns into a curdled, weepy mess. Last week was the last straw. After a third attempt using Momma's trusted recipe (of which she says she never varies), I found myself hiking to the compost heap with something that was a cross between soured milk and cold, yellow gravy. Now I have to dial 1-313 to get Momma's kitchen hot line, but the long-distance charges are definitely worth it, especially when all my other reference books give me recipes but can't tell me what I'm doing wrong.

DON'T YOU JUST love moms who start out the conversation with, "Don't worry. I'll make you some right now and have your father drive it up for dinner tonight."

"Sorry, Ma, you're missing the point here," I interrupted. "Why can you make it so good and I can't?" was the $50,000 question of the day. Sounding almost like a Certified Executive Chef from Schoolcraft College's famed culinary arts department, she went into a monologue about how, when preparing her custards, she makes sure time is of little consequence. Seems that she, too, once experienced problems because she tried to cool the custard too quickly at too high a temperature. "You have to do it slow, with a gentle heat" was her professional opinion.

"But, Ma, I want to eat it now," I whined. "You can't," she retorted.

Once again, all my years of schooling, coupled with about a million pages from cookbooks slowly crumbled into oblivion followed by the simple line, "Just do it - slow."

Yes, there are other tricks to making a good custard. Most important, however, is knowing that the line between a thickened custard and a curdled one is often only a few degrees of heat. Double boilers over hot, but never boiling, water are a must. Warm up that stirring arm because, like Momma also says, keep stirring so a velvety custard is made instead of a lumpy one. Also remember that a custard has thickened sufficiently when it leaves a velvety coating on the back of a spoon and if a track made by running a finger down the coated spoon stays clear

BAKED CUSTARDS aren't as delicate as stirred custards. They need to cook in a moderate oven but should be set in a pan of hot water to keep from getting too hot. The custard is done if, when touched, the finger comes away clean.

Here's a trick I taught Momma: When she makes her great baked custard, top it with some granulated sugar and then use a blow torch to crystalize the top. Now, even Momma kceps a blow torch under the sink, just for this purpose.

FTER-SCHOOL SNACKS and children go hand in hand like peanut butter and jelly. Cooking with kids is just as natural a pairing. What better way to get . children involved in the kitchen than to have them prepare their own snacks.

The kitchen is a perfect place for learning and trying different foods. What can kids do in the kitchen? Recipes that entail simple steps such as measuring, stirring, rolling or kneading are perfect for little ones. Even the tiniest hands can tear greens, pour milk or sift flour. Two to 4 year olds can perform the simplest of tasks such as washing fruits and vegetables.

With the help of a few experts, from Brookside School Cranbrook's Senior Kindergarten, I was able to put a few of these cooking skills to eryone. My assistants helped to measure and use when trying a few of the following snacks. These snacks are comprised of simple steps and need little supervision.

The crew washed hands, donned smocks and went to work. They prepared two special treats, Peanut Butter Burritos and Cereal Snack Mix. For the burritos, they peeled, sliced and chopped the fruit that was to top the of assorted fillings, ranging from bananas and there for them to sample. Many of them found canned fruit to raisins and shredded coconut, was offered to my assistants for their snack buŕritos

EVEN MARSHMALLOWS found their way into a burrito or two at the suggestion of one student. This snack is so versatile it lends itself to many creative combinations. There even was talk of topping a burrito with Cheerios from the snack mix. After picking and choosing their burrito fillings, the most popular being banana and honey, each youngster rolled his or her tortilla in a burrito fashion.

Naina Gulati was the first to try her burrito. With a little hesitation she tasted the flour tortilla alone. Then, without any hesitation, she bit into her little bundle, which contained honey and banana. There were many approving faces with this snack.

The Cereal Snack Mix has something for evpour the ingredients into a bowl. After dumping and mixing the ingredients, some children picked out the Cheerios, others the marshmallows. A few boys and girls found the combination to be just great. Mathew Shin liked the chocolate-covered raisins so much that he came away from the mix with a handful.

Although there was not enough time for 'my peanut-butter-covered flour tortillas. A choice helpers to cook everything, the cheesecake was the light, airy cream cheese ricotta cake to their liking without any of the toppings. Imagine what they would think of this cheesecake if it were adorned with chopped maraschino cherries and shaved chocolate or any of the other toppings.

The cheesecake is so simple to make and only requires your assistance when whipping the cream, beating the cheese and melting the butter. The kids can crumble their own cookies for the crust. What could be as much fun as crushing cookies in a plastic bag with a rolling pin or simply pounding the cookies with a fist. The rest of the recipe is just as easy.

WHEN MAKING the recipes Peanut Butter-Burrito, Easy Cheesecake, Cereal Snack Mix and Quesadillas, only the Quesadillas require assistance at the stove. Quesadillas are simpleto make and can be cooked either on the stove or in the oven. This Mexican specialty is a great alternative to pizza or grilled cheese sandwiches.

There is no snack every child will like, but if you try these, you are sure to get many approving faces. Make the recipes at home with your children and give them a chance to work in the kitchen. You may have tomorrow's chef at your side.

Brady's burgers light up Irish eyes

Corned beef and cabbage will play a brief starring role at Matt Brady's Tavern on St. Patrick's Day, but any Irishman worth his salt knows what Brady's is famous for - a good hamburger.

Brady's burgers, especially the Charlie Brown version with cheese and bacon, are the main reason people go to his tavern on Southfield Road in Beverly Hills. Some customers are followers of his father, better known as Diamond Jim Brady, whose restaurant on W. Seven Mile Road in Detroit was a popular spot for years.

Matt Brady and his brother Patrick kept that great saloon, with its trademark swinging doors and murals of New York, going for years after his father died and after the neighborhood got rough, It wasn't until late 1988 that Brady closed the Detroit spot and brought the "famous one," as the burger is called, to the suburbs.

Diamond Jim's name lives on through his son, Tom, who operated a restaurant by that name in Southfield for several years and now is in phere lives on at Matt's place.

THERE ARE murals on the wall here too, but they are of Detroit classics, such as the Olympia and Blessed Sacrament Cathedral, and today's Detroit riverfront. The bar itself is a conversation piece made as it is to include 25,000 shiny 1989 copper pennies all carefully lined up — with one flipped over. Find the one and you will win the proprietor's admiration, and maybe a free glass of pop.

This is a great place for families. (even young children are welcome) and friends to gather. Even women feel comfortable to stop in alone for a burger and a beer.

Although the Charlie Brown ($4.95) is most popular (the bacon is always crisp), the "famous one" with bleu cheese is good too. Other variations include adding grilled onions and mushrooms or the "Pancho" ($4.95 too) with its Swiss cheese, chili, onlons and Parmesan cheese.

Add a cup of the chili and an order of the seasoned curly fries or the chill fries, and you have a good meal. The chili is respectable, not terribly hot but nicely seasoned, and thick with meat and kidney beans. The curly fries are very good and milder than seasoned ground turkey, predominantly white meat turkey. Brady says no one was more surprised than he that the turkey burger, topped with onion and cheese, tastes so much like the ground beef version.

SALES OF SALADS are picking up here too, and again Brady's humor shines through. The "garbage" salad -- so named because its wild combination of bleu cheese, anchovies, eggs, bacon bits and tomatoes and lettuce - is hot, but the Caesar salad with grilled chicken strips is better. Both can be ordered in half portions, which make a full meal longlime cook, Annie Thomas, can a.m. - 2 a.m.; Sunday 12 noon - 2 do more than produce good hamburgers. The meat pie on Wednesdays is quite popular and her meatloaf is said to be great, better than his mother's, according to Brady.

Good choices for kids are the grilled cheese sandwiches and grilled chicken strips listed on the menu as an appetizer but easily a meal for a child.

STIRRED CUSTARD (Creme Anglaise) 2 cups milk

35 vanilla bean or 1 teaspoon vanilla • exfract 4 egg yolks. 3 tablespoons sugar

If using vanilla bean, bring milk to: a boil with the bean in a heavy-bottomed saucepan, remove from heat and allow to stand or 10 minutes to infuse the flavor. If using extract, it is added later; bring milk without flavoring to a boil.

In a medium bowl, beat yolks and sugar together until thickened and lemon colored. Add milk, stirring to combine well.

Turn mixture into a double boiler and return to saucepan and cook over very low heat, stirring until it thickens, about 10 minutes.

Remove from heat and if desired, strain into a clean bowl set over a bowl of ice to stop cooking. If using vanilla extract, stir in now. Use immediately or cover with plastic wrap laid directly on the surface to prevent skin from forming.

BAKED CUSTARD 2 eggs 2 egg yolks

2 cups milk 3 tablespoons sugar Vanilla extract or fresh grated nutmeg to taste

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In a medium bowl, beat eggs; egg yolks, milk and sugar. Stir in a drop or two of vanilla or a sprinkling of nutmeg.

Strain through a sleve into a 1-quart. , baking or souffle dish. (Individual cups can be used, if desired.) Set pan in a larger pan filled with enough hot water to reach halfway up the sides of the baking dish. Bake until just set, about 30-35 minutes. Serve warm or refrigerate and serve chilled with crystallized sugar top.

To make creme caramel, combine 1/2 cup sugar with 1/4 cup water in a small heavy saucepan. Stir only until it dissolves, then stop stirring. Raise heat to a boil and boil, without stirring, for 8-10 minutes or until it turns a light brown.

Pour into the bottom of 1-quart baking or souffle or individual dish and proceed to top with prebaked baked custard. Follow baking instructions.

Cool and refrigerate overnight for best results. Invert onto a platter or plate before serving.

Hamburger stroganoff was accidental creation

I have always been impressed with those people who cook by the T.L.A.R. method.

For those who don't use this method, the letters stand for That Looks About Right. This is not your style if, when you cook, you diligently follow a recipe.

This week's Winner Dinner Winner, Marie Kellar of Farmington, has a creative bent when it comes to cooking. She is a definite proponent of T.L.A.R.

THE BUSY mother of three children, Kellar came up with this recipe one night when she discovered she was out of Hamburger Helper and decided to try and make her own.

Short on time, she decided to speed up the preparation by cooking the noodles in the sauce, rather than cooking them separately. And so it was that Cheesy Hamburger Stroganoff came to be born.

It was, Kellar said, most joyfully received by her husband and three sons.

ORIGINALLY FROM Southern California, Kellar loves living in Michigan. She much prefers living here.

Involved in the PTA at her children's school as well as helping out as a kindergarten room mom, she is chairperson for the school's upcoming Spring Fun Fair.

Kellar has a craft business on the side with four other neighbors and makes country-style wooden objects and dolls that she sells at various craft shows around the area.

At the moment, she and her friends are busily preparing for a craft show to be Saturday, March 23, at Franklin High School in Livonia.

Recipes

CHEESY HAMBURGER STROGANOFF

Because the noodles cook in the sauce, this dinner can be assembled quickly. It can be made in advance and/or frozen and reheated just before serving. Serves 4-6.

- 1-11/2 pounds hamburger (ground chuck) 2 cans Campbell's Cream of
- Mushroom soup 2 soup cans of milk
- can stewed tomatoes, 16ounce size small can mushroom stems and pieces
- 1 medium onion, chopped 1/2-1 cup dry red wine 1/2 bag egg noodles
- cheese Salt, pepper and garlic powder
- to taste

Brown the hamburger and chopped onion in a large skillet. Drain off the excess fat and add the spices. Stir in the cans of cream of mushroom soup and the 2 cans full of milk. Mix in the remaining ingredients and let simmer for 20-30 minutes. Add the egg noodles and cover. Cook until the noodles are tender. Sprinkle the cheese on top, cover and cook until the cheese is melted. Serve and enjoy.

AP - Roast Lamb Sesame fea- shreds of orange and lemon rind to tures a leg of lamb basted with a sweet and spicy honey, ginger and orange mixture.

4B★

After the lamb is cooked, this mixture is combined with bouillon and cornstarch to become a sauce for the lamb. Sesame seeds are sprinkled over the top of the lamb for added flavor and eye appeal.

Greek Lamb and Mixed Fruit Pilaf can be served with a green vegetable and a loaf of warm, crusty bread.

ROASTED LAMB SESAME Grated rind of Lorange Grated rind of 1 lemon 1 teaspoon powdered mustard 1/2 teaspoon salt Freshly ground pepper to taste One 3-pound leg of lamb 34 cup orange juice 1 tablespoon honey 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger 1 tablespoon light sesame seeds 34 cup light bouillon 2 teaspoons cornstarch 2 tablespoons cold water Blanched shreds of orange and lemon rind (optional)

Mix grated orange and lemon rinds with mustard, salt and pepper. Rub mixture over lamb and set aside for 30 minutes. Place leg of lamb in roasting pan. Cook in a 350-degree oven for 30 minutes.

Mix orange juice, honey and ginger; pour over lamb. Sprinkle lamb with sesame seeds. Return to oven and cook at 350 degrees for 1 1/2 to 2 hours, basting often with pan juices. Add water to pan when necessary.

Remove lamb from oven; place on platter. Cover and keep warm. Skim fat from pan juices and add bouillon to pan. Heat and stir well to dissolve sediment.

Strain into saucepan and stir in cornstarch mixed with water. Bring to boil, stirring constantly. Serve sauce with lamb. Add blanched sauce, if desired. Makes 6 servings. (Recipe from Australian Meat & Live-Stock Corp.)

GREEK LAMB. AND MIXED FRUIT PILAF

35 cup butter or margarine 1 medium onion, thinly sliced

1 34 pounds lamb, cut into cubes 1/2 cup dried apricots, soaked overnight in cold water, drained and halved 3 tablespoons seedless raisins 1 teaspoon salt 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon

1/4 teaspoon black pepper 3 34 cups water

1 ½ cups long-grain rice, washed, soaked in cold water for 30 minutes, and drained 1 teaspoon salt

Melt butter in large, deep frying pan. When foam subsides, add onion and cook until soft and translucent but not brown. Add lamb and cook for 5 minutes, stirring until browned. Stir in apricots, raisins, 1 teaspoon salt, cinnamon and pepper.

Pour in 2 cups of water and bring to boil, stirring occasionally. Reduce heat, cover pan and simmer for 1 hour or until meat is tender.

Put rice in a medium saucepan. Pour remaining water over rice and add remaining salt. Bring to a boll, reduce heat, cover and simmer for 15 to 20 minutes or until all liquid is absorbed.

Place one-third of cooked rice in medium-size oven-proof casserole. Cover with a layer of one-half of cooked meat mixture. Top with another one-third of rice. Continue to make layers until all ingredients have been used, finishing with rice.

Cover dish and place in center of oven. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 20 minutes and serve from casserole. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Irish soul I've had the pleasure of knowing seems to have a twinkle in. his or her eye and a happy-go-lucky outlook on life.

Their festive natures will be in full force come March 17 - the day the Irish really like to kick up their heels. March-17 marks St. Patrick's Day, Ireland's greatest holiday, celebrated with festivals and gala events to honor St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland.

In America, we celebrate St. Patrick's Day each year by wearin' a . bit o' the green. Throughout the country, "St. Patty's Day" is one of rejoicing found in homes, schools,, churches and places of entertainment. In many communities, a St. Patrick's Day parade takes place,

Want to get in on a bit of the Irish spirit? Plan a St. Patrick's Day party for family and friends. Begin by decorating with green carnations and small pots of shamrock plants, available at any florist around St. Patrick's Day. Offer bright green Irish paper hats to wear for fun. Insist, of course, that everyone wear their green and "kiss the blarney stone" upon entering for a year filled with good luck (any large stone, scrubbed clean, can substitute as your blarney stone).

Gallo challenges ultra-premiums

E. & J. Gallo Winery is this nation's largest wine producer. E. & J. Gallo's Hearty Burgundy may well be America's best-known wine. But let's face it, Gallo offers no competition in the premium end of the market. Until now!

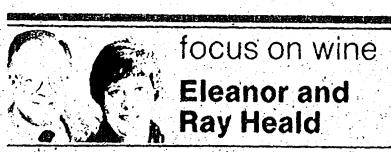

Born within 100 miles of Modesto, Calif., the city they put on the map, Ernest and Julio Gallo grew up working a small vineyard bought by their father in 1925. At the end of Prohibition in 1933, the brothers borrowed about $6,000 and started the greatest wine success story in a rented warehouse.

At the start, their table wines were shipped in barrels. Distributors at the other end of the line bottled the wine under a variety of labels. It was only in the early 1940s that the first Gallo label appeared:

How big is Gallo today? No one in the company will give exact production figures, but it's easy to make close estimates because Gallo has its own glass plant that churns out 1.5 million bottles per day.

OK: You've seen the bottles in every grocery chain, but have you been noticing the subtle changes over the last few years? Wineries in Sonoma County have.

A LITTLE-KNOWN FACT is that have been planted. In the Russian River region of Sonoma, they planted chardonnay, johannisberg riesling and gewurztraminer.

in 1989, the Gallos bought a 1,000acre vineyard site near Asti in the northern reaches of Sonoma County. Vines from this property will come into production in four to six years.

What does this Sonoma County vineyard commitment mean to the consumer? Part of the answer can already be experienced with a taste of Gallo's vintage-dated premium varietals. The completion of the query will come with release of the first estate-bottled Sonoma wines in the near future. This sequel is being ushered in with Gallo's 1988 Limited Release Chardonnay and Sauvignon Blanc together with a stunning rendition, 1978 Gallo Private Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon.

Sorry, folks, you can't find these taurant in Pontiac, to name a few.

THE 1988 GALLO LIMITED Release Chardonnay ($12-14 restaurant list price) is a departure from early 1980s releases. "The attempt is to highlight fruit without overly em--phasizing chardonnay's inherent appley qualities," said Carmen Castorina, Gallo's regional communications director.

About 85 percent of the fruit came from Sonoma's Russian River area. The wine did not receive any oak treatment, but if we didn't tell you this, you might not suspect it. The wine has developed handsomely in the bottle and resembles a fine French Chablis.

1978 E.& J. Gallo Private Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon (about $30 on area restaurant wine lists). Bottled in 1983, this wine was personally selected by Julio Gallo, who also supervised the winemaking.

It was aged 48 months in 4,000gallon Yugoslavian cooperage. It is soft; supple, generous and at its optimum drinkability. Until now, this 'Private Reserve'' bottling was called the Family Selection, reserved for the Gallos' private use and has been seen in the marketplace only at select benefit auctions It could change the way you

Chef follows seasons with his specialties

AP - Seasonality refers to cooking in harmony with the seasons.

.6B★

It means shaping a menu to celebrate the bounty of fresh produce available at particular times of the year.

Seasonality creates excitement. Without it, thoughts of the first ripe strawberry of spring would be hollow. It's the anticipation that builds during the wait for that first ripe, juicy and luscious berry that makes the first bite such a thrill.

Few others embrace the concept than certified master chef Ron De Santis. "I'm always thrilled when juicy, you can eat an ear raw while driving home," De Santis said.

"Consider an example from the Beaujolais nouveau would just be another young, fruity red wine. Inson. During autumn and winter, longer and slower cooking methods are preferable because more time is spent indoors, out of the cold. If one has to spend more time inside, there can be no finer place to be than in a warm, cozy kitchen perfecting a casserole, braise or hearty stew.

THINKING AHEAD to warmer pastures, consider the young, tiny fruits and vegetables of spring and summer at their peak freshness. When summer brings its heat and of seasonality with more enthusiasm 'humidity, grilling, sauteing and stirfrying are the chosen methods. Stevenson makes WLAA splash

By Brad Emons staff writer

The message was loud and clear Friday during the finals of the Western Lakes Activities Association swim meet: "Don't Mess with Buckler's Boyz."

With T-shirts bearing that slogan, along coach Doug Buckler's illustration draped on the back - ironically resembling that bad man from Iraq - meet favorite Livonia Stevenson went out and did what was expected. winning the WLAA championship with a team-high 499 points.

Northville, the Western Division champs, finished a strong second in the 12-school field with 442, nosing out host Plymouth Salem for third by five points. See statistical summary.

"That picture (on the T-shirts) makes me look like a dictator," chuckled the emotionally-drained Buckler, who led Stevenson to its first WLAA crown since 1987. "But I'm wound up every meet. That's the way I am. I think that pysches the kids up."

When the Spartans dumped bluecolored water (their school colors) in the pool, while orchestating a collective victory dip, Buckler was right in the thick of things with his boys.

"He's a pure inspiration," said senior Taki Caranicolas, who won the 50-yard freestyle. "He's crazy, very Intense at times."

Added Stevenson senior Aaron Rieder, who placed second in both the 200 individual medley and 100 freestyle: "Everybody needs to be pushed, but he also brings the team together: It's like a family."

partans demonstrated their power record in the 200 individual medley ing the meet's final race, the 400 freestyle relay. Thanks to a strong anchor leg by junior Bryan Morrison, Stevenson capped off a great night with a firstplace time of 3:20.09, edging second place North Farmington (3:20.4) and third place Salem (3:20.43). Rieder, Ryan Freeborn and Mike Gravina rounded out the winning foursome. But prior to the race, Buckler cautioned his quartet to not jump any starts in fear of losing valuable points. Eighteen places were awarded in each event. Individual first place finishers were given 24 points; second place, 21 . . . all the way to 18th, one point.

"I had a lot of adrenalin, he (Buckler) told me 'just go fast,'" said the 6-foot-2 Morrison, who was suffering asthma because of the body oil (motion lotion) he had applied.

Morrison also earned 24 points for Stevenson when he captured the 200 freestyle in 1:44.07. Freeborn and Eric Peterson added a second and fourth, respectively, to make it one of the Spartans' most productive races.

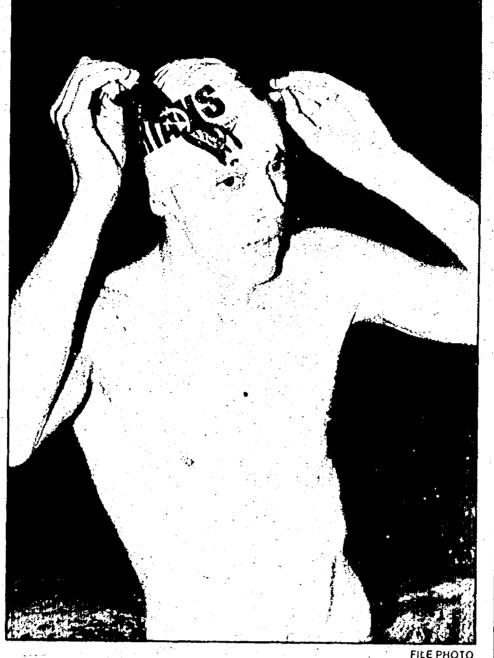

Caranicolas then captured the 50 freestyle in 22.34, beating out Salem's Joe Pawluszka, who had posted a better qualifying time going in.

"Pawluszka is a very good swimmer, but we felt Taki was the best sprinter in the league even though he was tapering down for the state meet (March 7-8 in Ann Arbor)," Buckler said. "He even got his state cut (qualifying time) to boot, which was nice."

FREEBORN, a sophomore, followed by winning the 100 backstroke in 55.91. Teammate Alex Goecke, also a sophomore, added a victory in the 100 breaststroke (1:01.6) as Stevenson captured the final three races.

"I was worried all three days (qualifying started Wednesday) because you've got a great team in Northville, a great team in Plymouth Salem and great teams in (Plymouth) Canton and North Farmington," Buckler said. "The whole league swam great and I knew they'd be shooting at us, but after we (Freeborn) won the backstroke, I knew we were in good shape."

The meet's individual standout was Westland John Glenn's Matt RANKED NO. 8 in Class A, the Martin, a sophomore who set a meet

Martin also came back to win the 500 freestyle in 4:45.76, beating out Morrison.

"He (Martin) is one of the best this league has ever seen," Buckler said. "He's right there behind the great Ron Orris.'

Another league record fell in diving, where Northville's Steve Lang tallied 492.15 points, toppling the mark of 462.7 held since 1986 by Canton's Andy Flower.

NORTHVILLE also won three other races — the 200 freestyle relay (1:29.89); Brad Cook in the 100 butterfly (54.16); and Bob Holdridge in the 100 freestyle (49.21). Salem captured the meet's first event, the 200 medley relay, as Curt Witthoff, Jon Stridiron, Matt Erickson and Albert Sneath were clocked in 1:40.4.

"I thought we swam really well," said Salem coach Chuck Olson, whose team had won the WLAA crown three consecutive years. "To come within five points of Northville after they waxed us in a dual meet is very gratifying. I'm extremely pleased. With a touch here and there, we might have been second."

-But it was Stevenson's night to strut and Olson was one of the first to congratulate his friend Buckler.

"He (Buckler) did all the right things this year with that team," the Salem coach said. "Stevenson deserves its ranking in the state. I know they'll swim well next week at state and represent our conference."

Buckler, meanwhile, was all smiles and thankful for his team's effort.

"This is the nicest group I've coached," he said. "Not that the other teams I've coached haven't been nice, but this team was focused from 'Day One'I never lost faith in where we were going."

Shamrocks foiled in region final, 3-2

By Mike Rosenbaum staff writer

Birmingham Brother Rice is known as an excellent academic high school. But one lesson which the seniors on Rice's hockey team will never learn is how to lose a state regional. The Warriors won their fourth straight Class A regional championship at Oak Park's Compuware Arena Friday night, edging Detroit Catholic Central, 3-2.

For first-year Rice coach Michael Brown, it was his first victory in three tries this season over his alma mater.

"This was real special for me," Brown said, "because I played for Catholic Central . . . we outplayed them twice and lost twice . . . the players tried (too hard) to get me my first Catholic Central game.

In the regular-season losses to the Shamrocks, Rice fell behind early both times. On Friday, the Warriors took charge early and outshot the Shamrocks 12-5 in the first period. However, Rice (18-5-1) could not dent the Catholic Central (15-7-1) net and settled for a scoreless period.

Shamrock star Jesse Hubenschmidt did break loose once, late in the period, but Rice netminder Derek Billis poke-checked the puck away from the senior.

Part of Brown's strategy was to shadow Hubenschmidt closely in the neutral zone, forcing one of the other fore Morrow, left all alone in front Catholic Central skaters to carry the puck into Warrior territory. The strategy was effective as Hubenschmldt did not figure in the Shamrock's scoring.

past the fallen goalie. The assists went to Sharbaugh and Steve Morrow at 4:10.

Rice maintained its pressure, but the Shamrocks withstood a flurry of shots and broke out two-on-one. Paul Schloss fed the puck to Bill Baaki who put it in the far corner at 5:34.

Baaki's goal gave the Shamrocks a lift, and they took charge late in the period. After a strong save by Billis, Catholic Central's Dave Gallagher shot the puck between Billis' legs. Billis deflected the puck but it trickled past him and barely cleared the goal line, tying the game at 13:03 of the period. Matt Gorski drew the assist.

"Too bad the second period ended when it did," said Catholic Central coach John Gumbleton. "I though we had momentum going our way.'

AS THE THIRD period began it was clear the Shamrocks had lost their momentum. Brother Rice was back in control, but Brusseau stopped Capaldi and Chris Freeman in the first minutes of the period. When the Warriors finally broke the tie, it was only after Brusseau was left defenseless or, more accurately, defenseman-less.

After Brusseau kicked out a shot from the right point, the Warriors swarmed around the puck, firing three more shots at the freshman, Brusseau stopped the first two beof the net, finally banged the puck home, at 10:42. Capaldi and Grohar drew the assists.

Rice spent the remainder of the game controlling the puck and protecting its net.

"It was whoever was going to get the break would win the game and they got the bounce,' Spartan coach Paul Ferguson said.

CC's Dave Gallagher opened the night's scoring 9:12 into the first period. The junior pounced on a rebound in front of the Spartan net and drilled a backhand past Labadie. Senior Tom Vaquera and junior Scott Johnson drew assists.

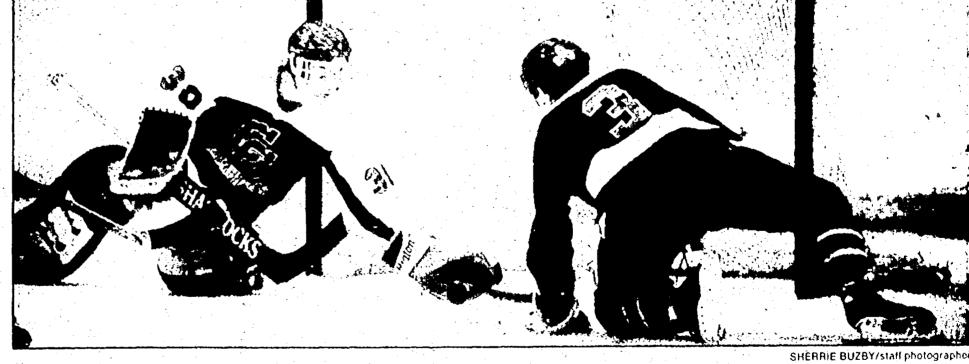

Stevenson (11-11-2) tied the game 30 seconds into the second period, as junior Frank Euplzi

Brusseau made 23 saves and the 5-foot-5 freshman matched Labadie's performance with heroic stops of his own -- the final coming at the game's buzzer.

"HOPEFULLY no one will steal him from us," Gumbleton said of Brusseau, who was in net in every game for the Shamrocks except for a period and a half. "We started off slowly. We wanted the game, but didn't play like we wanted it. It may have been a little over-confidence. I think Stevenson really wanted the game."

Ferguson said the tough loss will benefit his young team next year. He had 15 players returning next season.

"I'm happy with our kids and congratulate them on having a good season," Ferguson said. "I also congratulate CC and wish them luck against

staff writer

Livonia Stevenson goalie Dave Labadie seemed like a brick wall Thursday for Redford Catholic Central, but junior Bill Baaki found a crack with only 28 seconds left in the game.

Baaki scored the decisive goal, his second of the game, on a deflection, lifting the Shamrocks to a 3-2 victory over the Spartans at Oak Park's Compuware Arena. The win put CC in Friday's regional final against rival Birmingham Brother Rice. See related story.

Labadie, who made a total of 28 saves, robbed CC of several excellent scoring opportunities in the game's final period. But with just 34 seconds remaining, junior Matt Fleury uncorked a low slapshot from the blue line. Labadie went down on the shot, but Baaki was able to get his stick in

Bowlers raise funds for DARE

HE BOWLING CENTERS Association of Michigan has joined forces with the DARE program to help raise funds for the antidrug awareness efforts of the program.

According to Larry Sisson, president of the BCAM, 320-member centers throughout Michigan will provide free bowling to community corporations, civic organizations and businesses which sign up for the Bowling for DARE parties.

DARE consists of various law enforcement agencies, Including the Michigan State Police, who conduct a series of classroom lectures for fifth and sixth grade students on how to resist the pressures of drugs and alcohol.

The DARE program goes beyond the tradidtional drug abuse program. It teaches kids not to just say no, rather, how to say no.

Here's how you can help. Your local "Bowling for DARE" will help reserve a day and time for your group's party at a local bowling center. There is no cost to your group for bowling.

Hang the furnished "Bowling for DARE" poster in your lunchroom, coffee room or any other suitable area.

Start signing up sponsors with the furnished pledge sheets and get each sponsor to pledge at least a penny per pin for three games. If a sponsor wishes to pledge a flat rate, it must be a minimum of $5.

Go to your host bowling center and have a fun-filled time while bowling to benefit DARE. And after the event, coordinate the collection of all monies, where the proceeds will be transferred to the DARE program through the BCAM administration office.

Your group will receive a certificate from the Michigan DARE program in recognition of your community. support. In addition, there will be a kids "Bowling for DARE" program, which will be held throughout organized youth leagues. Prizes will be awarded. For more information call the BCAM at 559-5207.

Hartman's shot saves Zebras

Greg Hartman scored only seven points Friday, but his three-point shot at the buzzer turned him into a hero and gave Wayne Memorial a 47-46 boys basketball win over visiting Monroe.

The win improved Wayne to 12-2 in the Wolverine A League and 14-6 overall. Monroe evened its record at 10-10 overall and 7-7 in the Wolverine A. Wayne coach Dan Henry said the three-point shot was planned.

"Hartman and (Rick) Barnes crossed on the baseline and Hartman banged it in," Henry said. "At first I thought he got fouled, but there was no call. After, I asked Greg about it and he said, 'Yeah, I got hit on the wrist.' Maybe that's what made it go in."

The Zebras trailed by 11, 36-25, after three quarters but outscored the Trojans, 22-10, in the fourth quarter. The win in the regular-season finale shows how far the Zebras have come since the season opener, when they squandered an 11-point lead after three quarters and lost to Redford Catholic Central.

"This was the first time we really became a team tonight," Henry said. "We really came back on a team with aggression and never quit."

Barnes, a junior forward, led Wayne with 11 points and junior guard Lee Williams added 10. Senior center James Grady grabbed a team-high nine rebounds

Mike Foster led Monroe with 13 points.

Wayne led Monroe 7-6 after one quarter but the Trojans outscored the Zebras, 15-12, in the second quarter to take a 21-19 halftime lead.

LUTHERAN NORTH 70, CLARENCEVILLE 52: Matt Wengler, a senior forward, scored 22 points Friday to lead host Mount Clemens Lutheran North to victory over Livonia Clarenceville.

The loss dropped Clarenceville to 5-15 overall and 2-12 in the Metro Conference. On Wednesday, senior guards Kendrick Harrington and Frank Juncaj scored 21 points apiece but it wasn't enough as Clarenceville lost to visiting Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook, 60-56.

Senior forward Tennay Evans scored a game-high 22 points for Cranbrook. Clarenceville led 16-9 after one quarter and 36-29 at halftime but Cranbrook rallied in the third and fourth quarters for the victory.

W.L. WESTERN 53, JOHN GLENN 40: Ken Taylor scored 14 points and grabbed a game-high 18 rebounds Friday, but Westland John Glenn still got swamped by host Walled Lake Western.

Jerry Jordan added 13 points for the Rockets, who fell to 4-15 overall after the Western Lakes Activities Association loser's bracket game. Western is 9-11 overall.

Bill Hulme led Western with 11 points and six rebounds and teammate Brent Mackowiak contributed 10.

Western outscored Glenn in every quarter and led 24-21 at halftime.

REDFORD CC 62, BISHOP GALLAGHER 59: Chad Varga's tip in off a missed shot put Redford Catholic Central ahead for good Thursday and the Shamrocks held on for a narrow win over visiting Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher.

CC, which plays Southfield tonight in its own Class A district, is 9-11 overall. Gallagher fell to 7-13.

CC was tied, 30-30, at halftime and trailed 57-53, but Varga and fellow junior Bob Kummer refused to let the Shamrocks lose.

Varga led all scorers with 24 points and Kummer added 17. Varga is a transfer student who has paid dividends after becoming eligible the second semester.

"Chad is getting a little better on defense and plays well with his back to the basket and has a nice turnaround jumper," CC coach Bernie Holowicki said. "He's getting Heartbreak hotel for Observerland?

Monday, March 4, 1991 O&E

Forget reservations for the Palace

HE THREE WEEK JOUR NEY to the Palace of Auburn Hills begins tonight.

For some, the trip will be short, for others, it could last longer.

The state high school boys basketball tournament, better known as "March Madness," is where dreams can come true for, the four state champions in Class A, B, C and D. They will be crowned on March 23 at the home of the World Champion Detroit Pistons.

The tournament, however, can also be nightmarish, where upsets pervade.

This journey is not non-stop. It takes planning. You need reservations so you can lay your head down and get some much needed rest.

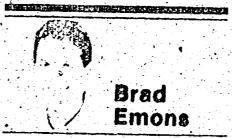

Some learns carry the American Express Gold Card around with them, but others will find few luxuries awaiting them.

Here's the 1-800 number for Observerland basketball teams. Hotel rooms are filling up quickly. (Records are through Friday.) See district draws.

Plymouth Salem (17-2): This is the premier team in Observerland. The Rocks, who reached the state Class A quarterlynals last season, have loads of talent upfront, led by Jake Baker and K.C. Kirkpatrick. But can their guards get the job done come regional time when teams like Ypsilanti (one of two teams to beat Salem) and Bel'eville await? The Novi district is no piece of cake either, with the host Wilcats, rival Plymouth Canton and Livonia Stevenson (the other team to beat Salem) all waiting for a shot.

EMBASSY SUITES (Not a bad place stay)

Wayne Memorial (14-6): Dan Henry has done a masterful coaching job taking over for his brother Chuck. He's also had to battle the pay-to-play thing. A tough non-league schedule should help them Chargers could face in the finals at Frankget through at Livonia Franklin. Walled Lake Central (8-12): Some dub the Vikings as the team of the future. A victory tonight over host Western would most likely put them in the finals, but not further.

Westland John Glenn (4-15): The Rockets never made a serious challenge in the takes Division of the WLAA as some people anticipated. They won't make a challenge either in the Franklin district.

Westland Huron Valley Lutheran (8-10): Melton Stoudemire is a talented 6loct sophomore who can jump out of the gym, but Hawk fans will not be jumping for joy after the Class D district at Allen Park Inter-City Baptist is finished.

Redford St. Agatha (4-16): The Aggies' only victories of the season came in the Catholic League's C-D Division. Since their opener is against a non-division foe (Bishop Borgess), the outcome is predictable.

Farmington (2-18): The Falcons have a Line shooter in junior Sfeve Gallagher, but will soon be shooting blanks (despite getting a bye) in the Walled Lake Western district. But remember, one of Farmington's two wins came against Western.

Lutheran Westland (4-16): The Warriors fost their top player, 6-5 quard Chris Habitz, to an injury recently. Since he is not available. Minning against Harper Woods Bishop Gailagher (the opener at Hamtramck St. Floriari) is remote

Livonia Churchill (11-8): The Chargers have a fine center in 6-7 Randy Calcaterra and don't leave Brian D. Johnson alone.to shoot. Quick teams will hurt them, especially a team like Wayne, whorn the Rocks win title; Stevenson falters

By Brad Emons staff writer

Farmington Harrison rallied in the fourth quarter Saturday to win the consolation final of the Western Lakes Activities Association basket-Livonia Stevenson.

The battle between WLAA's divisional champs - Harrison (Western) and Stevenson (Lakes) - was held as part of a four-game extravaganza by the conference.

Host Plymouth Salem, behind 22 points from Jake Baker and 21 from K.C. Kirkpatrick, captured the championship game with an 89-72 triumph over neighbor Canton in the nightcap. Derrick McDonald and Mike Stafford tallied 18 and 17, respectively, in a losing cause.

Harrison, which lost a previous meeting to Stevenson during the regular season (69-67), rallied from a 12-point third-quarter deficit by outscoring the Spartans 19-10 in the decisive fourth quarter.

Paul Gilvydis' rebound basket with 1:01 rentaining proved to be the difference. He also added a free throw with four seconds left after Stevenson threw away an inbounds pass in attempt to regain the lead.

The Spartans also missed a threequarter court desperation shot in the final seconds.

SENIOR FORWARD Andy Smith

20 points. Three others also scored in cution at the end defensively to win double figures for the Hawks including the 6-foot-7 Gilvydis (14), Roy Granger (13) and Dan Hight (11). Sophomore Jeremy Teachman contributed eight off the bench.

"The last time we played them we ball playoffs, a 77.75 victory over had the lead and lost in the last minute, but this was just the opposite," Harrison coach Mike Teachman said. "We came on (in the fourth quarter) defensively after not playing it all game.

'I thought Jeremy, Blazo (Sarcevich) and Duan'te (Anderson) gave us some quality minutes off the bench, and Andy Fitzpatrick was a mountain for us, grabbing rebounds and diving for loose balls."

Harrison will enter state Class B district tournament play at Birmingham Country Day with a 14-6 record. Stevenson, meanwhile, dropped its second straight to finish 12-8.

The Spartans, who couldn't hold a 43-35 halftime advantage, were led by seniors Phil Woods and Paul Rockwood, who tallied 14 and 13 points, respectively. Dave Amey and Matt Grodzicki contributed 10 each, while Dan Gibbons and Ryan Furkas collected eight apiece.

"We won a lot of games during the year where we had the same opportunities, but this time it went the other way," Stevenson coach Jim McIntyre said. "We were pretty intense for 3½ quarters, but we felt we gave it right away. There was great (scoring) balance, but no exeit."

FIFTH-PLACE GAME

CHURCHILL 58, N. EARM-INGTON 37: Livonia Churchill (12-8) jumped out to a 32-12 halftime lead and never looked back to claim fifth place in the WLAA.

Seniors Randy Calcaterra and Mike Thomas notched 18 and 14 points, respectively, for the winners.

Brian Lee scored nine for North Farmington (7-13), which played minus top scorer Chris White (shoulder injury)------

SEVENTH-PLACE GAME

NORTHVILLE 72, FRANKLIN 63: Despite a career-high 30 points from senior forward Steve Stasevich, Livonia Franklin. (10-10) lost the battle for seventh place against the Mustangs (12-8).

Franklin, minus starting center Steve McCool (wrist injury), couldn't recover from a 38-26 halftime deficit.

Juniors Keith Roberts and Russ Keberly added 10 and nine for the Patriots.

Four Northville players scored in double figures. Paul McCreadie (22). Mark Hilfinger (17), Ryan Huzyak (13) and Mike Lang' (10)

Salem dominates Western Lakes tilt

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Dynasties are nothing new in . Western Lakes Activities Association gymnastics. Only the school names are changing.

Plymouth Salem won its second consecutive championship Thursday in competition at North Farmington, and indications are the Rocks could stay at the top for some time.

Salem had three of the league's top four all-arounders — four of the top 11 - and the quartet has a combined 10 years of high school eligibility remaining.

"You never know what little eighth grader is going to come up," Salem coach Kathi Kinsella said. "But assuming everybody else stays" the same, this team should be in the top five in the state for the next three years, if these kids continue to do these scores."

Kim Miller defended her title as the WLAA's No. 1 gymnast, winning the all-around competition with a 37.55 score and edging runner-up Heather Kahn of North (37.40).

SALEM TEAMMATES Courtney Gonyea (36.40), Alysia Sofios (36.30) and Sarah Makins (33.90) were third, fourth and 11th, respectively. Miller and Gonyea are sophomores, Sofios and Makins freshmen.

Their cumulative efforts and those of other team members enabled the Rocks to dominate the meet, winning by nearly six points over runner-up Plymouth Canton.

Salem scored a season-high 144.40, the Chiefs 138.50. North, which had won the WLAA championship five straight years until last year, also had a season best of 137.35. The order of finish included Westland John Glenn, Northville, Farmington and Walled Lake Western.

"We knew Salem and Canton were > took it back but a little too much." one and two in the league," North coach Jeff Dwyer said, adding 137 would have won the state title in the past. "We just wanted to get as close - first on bars with Sofios and was secas we could - and it was pretty ond on vault. She placed third on close.

whose team has finished second to Salem several times this year, echoed Dwyer's comments.

"I THOUGHT Salem had a nice, solid performance," he said. "I keep hoping they'll have a bad meet, but I. don't think they will. They're just too solid."

The Rocks won by a much larger margin than last year when they scored 141.65 to edge North, which finished second at 140.25.

"This league meet was not like last year," Kinsella said. "We had to psych ourselves up and everybody had to hit. Everybody was psyched up (this year) but didn't hit. But it was enough to win."

Kinsella said she was pleased with what her team did in terms of score but not performance.

"I have a lot of my father in me; it's never good enough," she said. "My personal goal was to hit Elite All-American as a team, so the goal 1 set in my mind for this team we accomplished. We didn't come here to cream anyone."

To be rated Elite All-American, the team's top three gymnasts in each event must score 109.44 three times during the season, and one occasion must be a championship meet.

Miller was the league champion on vault, balance beam and floor exercise. She was third on the uneven bars but might have won that, too, if not for a fall while trying to perform a difficult routine. She still scored 9.00 but Sofios captured the title with a 9.35.

"EVEN THOUGH she fell on her front flip on bars, tonight is the closest she's come to executing (the trick) correctly," Kinsella said. "Usually, she takes it up too high and lands back on the bars. Tonight, she Kahn, who finished second to Miller in the all-around at the league and state meets last year, tied for. beam and floor.

"We were fortunate in those years Finishing second remains a great petition. You have to take care of what you can do. She did and everything turned out well."

Sofios and Gonyea tied for third on vault. Sofios was 14th on beam and fourth on floor. Gonyea was second on beam and floor, 10th on bars. The top 10 all-arounders included Kyna Morgan (Glenn), Kim Rennolds (Canton), Jameelah Gater (North), Marissa Maybouer (Glenn), Chris Prough (Glenn) and Johanna Anderson (Canton).

"In my six years (at North), it seems the competition is getting better and belter every year, and it's because of these clubs," Dwyer said. "Some girls in the clubs are finally coming out to represent their schools, and they're getting the glory they deserve."

AFTER A POOR start, Canton finished strong and salvaged the meet, according to Cunningham. "We had half a meet," he said.

Canton's first event was floor, and the Chiefs never adjusted to the soft, two-layered wrestling mat. Canton finished second (34.75) but still almost 1½ points behind Salem (36.10).

"A wrestling mat is designed to do exactly the opposite of what a gymnast wants it to do," Cunningham said. "On a slow floor you have to punch in and wait for it to come back before you can punch out."

Canton moved to vault where four of five gymnasts fell. The Chiefs finished third (34.55), more than 21/2 points behind Salem (37.10). North had 35.35.

"That was five 10ths off in each case," Cunningham said. "We had to count three of them. That was 11/2 (points lost).

"We finished well. We had good bars and excellent beam - which we typically do - and that was the reason North didn't beat us."

Anderson had one of her best meets, according to Cunningham, who cited Heather Murphy, Dawn Clifford and Rennolds for their beam performances. Canton was closest to Salem in that event, 36.30 to 35.80.

"I was very pleased with half and very disappointed with half," Cunn-(when North dominated the league) accomplishment, according to Dwy- ingham said. "We've got a week to

STARS, STRIPES AND SURPLUS

Remember the opening scene from "Patton"? George C. Scott, in full military regalia, stands before an American flag and delivers a rip-roaring patriotic speech that put hair on everybody's chest. With a fist full of dollars, you can recreate that scene. All it takes is a visit to the surplus store. But be advised that while you'll find plenty of military gear, supplies may be down on the hottest item of 1991, gas masks. COVER PHOTO BY JERRY ZOLYNSKY Page 6

Val Kilmer stars a Jim Morrison in "The Doors," the story of musician/poet Morrison, his rock group and the turbulent '60s.

Stone's fond 'memories' miss the mark in 'Doors'

This week's big debut may not be the film for everyone's taste: But Jim Morrison fans and devotees of The Doors will flock joyously to Oliver Stone's attempt to glorify what many consider to be the worst elements of the '60s.

Besides the pros and cons about this particular style of rock'n'roll music, the film turns out to be a pretty mediocre motion picture. The considerable talent Stone exhibited in "Platoon" and "Born on the Fourth of July" is missing in "The Doors" (C, R, 135 minutes).

The affection Oliver Stone has for his youth is understandable. Youth is the time when our fondest moments occur. Of course, we have good memories of the old days because we were young and enthusiastic and had hope. Hope fades and memories be-

Stone's memories - and his attempt to glorify the best of adolescent rebellion speaking out against all that is wrong in life - unfortunately centers on an unpleasant, disturbed individual, Jim Morrison (Val Kilmer).

Despite the fact that he and The Doors were successful, it's hard to maintain interest in Morrison's sexual problems, his proclivity to excess in booze and drugs and his consistent failure to enjoy success. The obscure explanations revolving around Navaho tribal customs doesn't help.

THAT'S PARTICULARLY true after the first hour or so when the sequences, however exotically photographed and imaginatively enhanced with special effects, tend to begin looking like something we've just seen.

Rock'n'roll and Doors fans may disagree, but much of the music sounds like unadulterated noise as Morrison shrieks while trying to swallow the microphone.

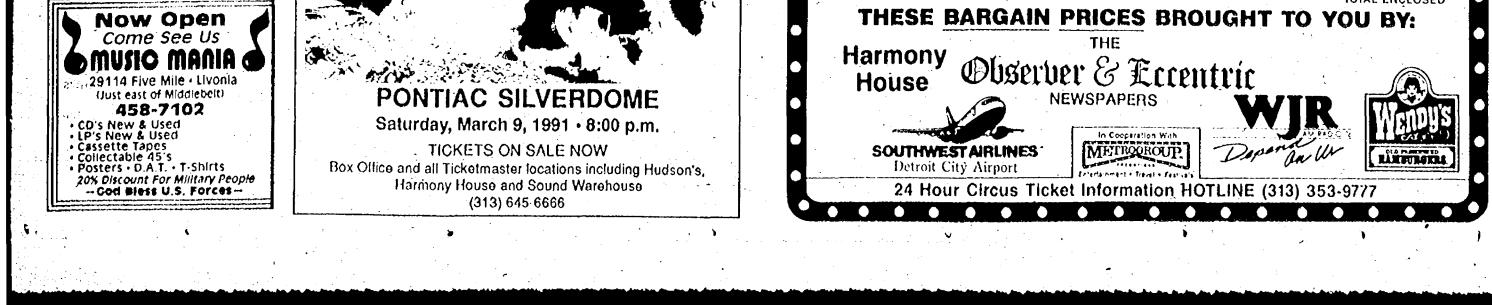

The bottom line is an extended music-video which is just as unrestrained and lacking discipline as the '60s it depicts.

Yes, Virginia, on the other side of the street, they do make movies like the good old days. Disney's latest offering, "Shipwrecked" (B+, PG, 90 minutes), is obviously marketed for the youngsters but it's an old-fashloned adventure story which will entertain the young at heart, no matter what their age.

Filmed on location in England, Fiji, Norway and Spain, the movie is attractive in the best Disney tradition. Stian Smestad, a 15-year-old Norwegian, is very effective in the title role of the young Haakon who goes to sea to earn money and save the family farm after his father is injured.

Falling Joys get a 'Wish'

Falling Joys' lead singer and songwriter Suzie Higgie paints in rather wide strokes on the band's Nettwerk debut, "Wish List."

Instead of banal "boy meets girl," the Australian songstress opts for a more surreal approach on the age-old +1 eme.

On "Tunnel Vision," one of many deliciously orchestrated pop songs on the quartet's latest release, Higgie sings: "Still inside liberty/ shake yourself from under me/ cross your fingers that's all right/ Show me something I can't fight." Higgie pleads guilty to being somewhat all over the canvas.

"That's what I try to do," said Higgie, whose band performs Tuesday at The Blind Pig in Ann Arbor. "Some people miss the point a bit . . I try to paint a picture without being too specific."

YET COMBINED with some doleful guitar and basslines, the Falling Joys' songs seem to be melancholic in scope. This knack for writing pop songs extends back to Higgie's youth.

She fondly recalls writing a book and learning to play guitar at the age of 9.

"It was only a children's book." Things didn't really take hold until much later when she met up Falling Joys guitarist and vocalist Stuart Robertson at an Australian television network.

FALLING JOYS formed in 1984, performing as a three piece until bassist Pat Hayes and drummer Pete Velzen joined the fold. The band released a pair of singles, "Burnt so Low" and "Nearly a Sin," and was signed by Australia's Voliton Records.

The band's 1989 EP, "Omega," was No. 1 on Australian alternative

Although "Wish List" comes across as a crystalline LP, the Falling Joys are said to have more of an edge performing live. That, no doubt, was a trait picked up from performing before sometimes hard-to-please Aussie audiences, who like a little verve to their mu-make a guy a tao sentimental. The Junk Monkeys are no different.

Three of the band's four members. Dave Bierman, Devin Perri and Dave Bouttete, sit around in the old firehouse in Dearborn reminiscing like Dean Moriarty and Jack Keuroac discussing old travels.

Like the time in Galvaston, Texas, when, low on money, band members played for beer on the beach for college students on spring break. Then there was the occasion in Georgia. The Junk Monkeys pulled up at some club only to find out nobody at the bar knew they were supposed to perform.

Then there was Philadelphia, see, when someone tried to break in the van with the band still inside. Albuquerque wasn't any kinder or gentler.

"For a week, we stayed at this one place for $20 a night," said lead singer Dave Bierman. "They never changed the sheets. At 4 o'clock, we'd have people banging at our door asking us if we wanted to buy a rock (crack cocaine)."

Things were somewhat scary then. But these are merely recollections to be pasted in a scrapbook of rock'n'roll hard knocks.

flected in "Five Star Fling," the band's second release on Metal Blade Records (a subsidiary of Warner Bros.). The 10-song collection of fiery pop songs is by far the Junk Monkeys' most focused effort to date.

THE QUARTET plays a searing brand of garage rock'n'roll. The Junk Monkeys remarkably have not deviated from their original vision - being a loud and raucous outfit with pop songs that cause abrasions, not a salve for wounds. Things are more refined on "Five Star Fling," a rock-solid album front to back.

"It didn't seem to me we had a vision when we started out," added lead guitarist Dave Bouettete. "We just wanted to be unique and make sure there weren't 1,000 of us already in the bars."

For the first time, the Junk Monkeys recorded all the songs "Five Star Fling" without trying them out live. Included on the LP is a protracted and spirited version of The Who's "Quick One."

The other nine songs were written by Bierman and musically con-

OK, first let's remove any pretense of objective, critical reviewing of this first solo project by Daniel Ash. You see, I always like any and every musical project spawned from the dregs of Bauhaus. Bauhaus itself, Love and Rockets, David J's solo work, Tones on Tail and even Peter Murphy's solo stuff all sound great to me.

COMING DOWN

Therefore, it comes as no great surprise that I really like ex-Bauhaus and current Love and Rockets guitarist/singer/songwriter Daniel Ash's first solo recording "Coming Down."

What is surprising is that Ash moments, namely "Grandbag's Fu-. . posed to be all covers, but Ash kept getting too creative and had to write some songs of his own. The covers are "Blue Moon," "Day Tripper" and "Me and My Shadow."

No matter what song Ash is covering, it sounds like a Love and Rockets song. "Me and My Shadow" loses its hokeyness and becomes an eerie, day dreamy meditation. So does "Day Tripper" for that matter. Ash could probably make "Row, Row, Row Your Boat" sound like a trippy meditation. "Life is but a dream" is pretty deep stuff, after all.

With the fave raves from across the water, this album was picked as album of the year by the New Musical Express, England's fashionably 'influential music weekly.

Please put sex in perspective

Dear Barbara,

I'd like to comment on your reply to the letter from Bea in the Jan. 28 issue of The Eccentric.

I wish you had pointed out the flaw in her flip remark to her brothers about "marrying prissy girls and being deprived of lifelong good sex."

Does she really believe that being a virgin when marrying means a girl can't give and experience good sex? That mistaken notion is the sad result of the sexual revolution.

I hope the day will come again when it's recognized that the sexuality in us can be restrained, when wise to do so . . . and can be enjoyed to its fullest in marriage.

Dear Helen.

I enjoyed your letter very much, as I did the column by Evelyn Petersen that you sent me. I am in full agreement that controls from within are an important part of growing up. The only note I would like to add is that most problems such as this are complex.

There is no one side that is totally right and the other side that is totally wrong. There is at least a kernel of truth in both positions.

There are virgins who marry and who experience and give not "good" but great sex. On the other hand, there are boys and girls, men and women, who live a life of fear and guilt and are therefore incapable of 'good" or great sex.

Barbara Schiff

Helen

It is easy to be virtuous when you are too frightened to do anything else. Some men marry prissy girls who remain prissy throughout their lives.

Both positions are not mutually exclusive. To be repetitious, I wish to make the point again that these are complicated problems with no simple answers.

Honestly, it's just not entertaining to watch the jumbled, discordant, violent cross-country romp of two disaffected, confused young people, Sailor (Nicolas Cage) and Lula (Laura Dern).

THEY RUN away to escape Lula's mother and her vengeful hoodlum friends (Willem Dafoe and Harry Dean Stanton). Mom wants a better guy for her darling daughter and also is jealous that Sailor rejected her advances - in the bathroom no less.

This leads to lots of obvious references to "The Wizard of Oz," with mean old mom, of course, gettingthe bad rap as the Wicked Witch.

The answer here, obviously, is a resounding no.

Richard Jeni: Perseverance pays off with laughs

By Rebecce Haynes staff writer

Someone recently described him as a cross between Robin Williams and Mickey Rourke, and comedian Richard Jeni agrees with the assessment.

"I'm definitely this kind of New Yorkey, wise guy type of act," he said during a recent telephone interview. "And I do have an upbeat energy."

You could probably say Jeni started doing standup when he was 13. His father was a big comedy fan and Jeni used to listen to his not-tooclean comedy albums when no one was home, memorizing the jokes.

"I think like most comedians I used it as a means of getting accepted. When I was 13, I wanted to hang around with guys who were 17 or 18 and I'd repeat the routines I'd heard on my dad's records and they liked it so they let me stay."

He remembers being attracted at that age to the whole aura that surrounded the vision of the smoky nightclub, open way past his bedtime.

But he never thought of making a career out of comedy. The Brooklyn native managed to maintain a 3.9

grade point average and then graduate with honors in political science and economics from Hunter College in New York.

"I THINK that's one of the things that really works for me on stage. People are thinking, 'Here is somebody who in appearance and manner shouldn't be a very thoughtful person.' The fact that I can dig deep with the concepts is something you wouldn't expect."

And although he held several positions in public relations, he was always doing something that got him fired, the comedian said.

"The thought of doing comedy was so far-fetched that I didn't know how to begin to even think of it. So every job I had I screwed up.

"I think I was subconsciously trying to set in motion the circumstances that made it OK to try the comedy thing. That way I could say I tried to be a regular person but it didn't work out."

THE FIRST year or two in the business, which for Jeni began in 1981, were very difficult:

"I did amateur nights for about a year. There's no way to learn it without going up and putting yourself on the line.

Richard Jeni agrees with the assessment that he's a cross between Robin Williams and Mickey Rourke, a "kind of New Yorkey, wise guy type."

"There's no how to be funny school, so you have to learn everything, how to walk and talk. It's a slow process and in most jobs you get to be in a sheltered environment when you're first starting. "I think I was on the verge of quitting every day. But I had in my mind that I had no place to go."

AND HIS perseverance paid off. His prestige in the comedy industry has climbed steadily since then.

Gone are the nights of performing in small, no-name clubs. He now headlines on an international circuit, including large concert halls, and is continuing a successful relationship with cable's Showtime.

His 1989 special on that network, "Richard Jeni: The Boy From New York City," won him an ACE award nomination. So he undertook a more ambitious one-hour special, "Richard Jeni 2: Crazy From the Heat," which began airing on Showtime this year.

JENI TAKES exaggeration to an extreme, painting absurd pictures about family life and other situations with which people can easily identify.

"You have to find a sentiment that's shared. You have to be on common ground for comedy, so I'm always looking for something people tend to feel a certain way about.

"Most jokes are a distortion of reality, so you have to understand the real situation before you can laugh at the distortion. The more firmly rooted the concept is, the sharper the joke will be."

JENI ATTRIBUTES his standup personality to a combination of traits he inherited from his parents.

"My father was funny, but in a very sarcastic way. And my mother wasn't particularly funny but she's the type of person who loves a good party."

And although his parents are the target of several of his most popular routines, he said they take it all in stride.

"They like it, and the fact that I bought my mother a car for Christmas helped," he said, laughing: "My family is kind of a star-struck group. They'll sit around and talk about movie stars like they know them personally."

JENI DOESN'T consider himself to be particularly funny when he's not on stage.

"Comedy is a lot more cold-blooded than it looks. The trick is to make it look spontaneous.

"Most people laugh the hardest at things that just happen to them when they're not expecting it. But with this, people are told that at 8:30 tonight the funniness will begin. You have to make the routines look spontaneous, like they're just happening for the first time even though you've rehearsed every -line and movement."

★5D

AND ALTIOUGH he says he always includes new material in his road act, the audience will still see some of the routines he considers his best.

"I have found that usually people do want to see a certain amount of material from the (Showtime) show. So I try to sandwich the new stuff-in between the stuff I know already works."

And what can Detroiters expect during his upcoming performances at The Comedy Castle? Jeni replied, chuckling, "I plan on getting naked and spontaneously combusting."

Buy military — surplus style

By Greg Kowalski staff writer

• - - - - -

The winds of war that stormed across the Kuwaiti desert have calmed. In their wake, tons of military ordinance, used and unused and mostly Iraqi, clutter the sands. Gearing up of the military war machine meant an accompanying growth of military gear.

Technically, it's called "materiel," and it represents the guns, tools, clothes and equipment it takes to keep the military functioning.

But even with the fierce rate the military was using equipment in the war against Iraq, from overhead and on the ground, it often orders more than it needs.

And what doesn't get used, gets sold.

On the contrary, sales are booming, said Goldsmith. They took off like a Patriot missile on Jan. 16 when the United States attacked Iraq.

"Most of the goods we get now are foreign-made," Goldsmith said. "The majority of it comes from West Germany. Joe's carries surplus from armies around the world including Israel, Austria and even the Soviet Union."

Why army surplus?

Three reasons: First, patriotism. People are buying flags, pins and other items relating to Operation Desert Storm.

Second, fear. Some people worry that the country may be attacked by terrorists. They've sent sales of gas masks soaring.

THIRD, IT'S tendy. Remember, we are a culture that promotes shredded blue jeans as a fashion statement.

wife of owner Jeff Dubin. "Never in a million years did I think we would be this busy," she said.

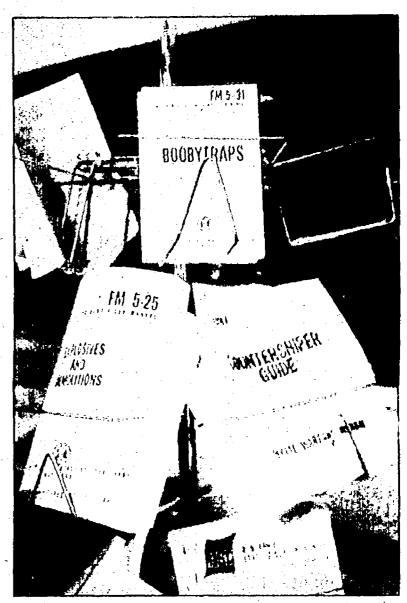

Now a big seller there are Israeli gas masks. "Some people here are actually afraid that we may be attacked," said manager Brian Wais.

Others like the masks for their novelty. "And they're cheap," said Wais. They sell for $14.95 here compared to about $100 in Israel.

Gas masks, in fact, are the hottest selling items around.

"After the war began," Dubin said, "people were buying masks to send to Israel."

But now that the Israeli government has distributed masks to its residents, people are buying them for themselves. Sales have been so brisk that Dubin depleted her stock of 140 in two days.

After World War II, a flood of Army/Navy surplus hit the market and gave birth to such stores as Sliverstein's, in Detroit, which is legendary among many longtime "surpies" (surplus buyers).

Need a tank periscope? Silverstein's had it. How about some pontoons for a plane? See Silverstein's. Ditto for shell casings, ammo boxes and just about any other military item short of a 50-caliber machine gun (which were on display but not for sale).

Silverstein's is long gone. But if you still have a hankering for a 100-pound bomb, take heart. There are still plenty of surplus stores in the area that can supply you with more bombs than a late night TV film fest.

"THE DAYS OF stores like Silverstein's are gone forever," said Jeff Goldsmith, owner of Joe's Army Navy Supply, 311 S. Main in Royal Oak.

After World War II there was so much surplus available that it could be bought by the boxcar at 5 cents on the dollar, Goldsmith said. Gradually, the World War II goods filtered through the market. Even Korean and Vietnam War-era goods are largely gone.

And with Pentagon belt-tightening and the skyrocketing costs of military hardware, it's unlikely a massive glut of surplus will ever occur again despite the current war. But that doesn't mean the surplus supply is in danger of dry agap

A camouflage shirt and military pants are stylish to many. These days, desert wear is in. The market is also especially strong for pins and patches.

Trench coats also sell well, adds Goldsmith. But there's been little call for bulletproof underwear (used by helicopter pilots) or flack jackets. (These weighty vests won't stop a bullet but will protect against shrapnel.)

However, most surplus shoppers are more interested in stitching than style. Hunters, campers and outdoors people especially like military surplus because it's well made.

"The Army may pay $5,000 for a wrench, but it's a good wrench," said Goldsmith.

A lot of Goldsmith's customers are women -"They do the shopping for the family. I have things for everybody, and we try to give a lot of practicality for the dollar."

As the economy is sinking into the doldrums, that is becoming more important.

"In a recession, people put off traveling for a vacation. Instead, a lot go camping, so they come here for supplies," he said. "You get a lot of value and quality for your money (with surplus)."

AT SURPLUS CITY, 3766 W. 12 Mile Road in Berkiev, business is up. Way up. Said Tammy Dubin.

Another trendy favorite is camouflage clothes worn by "paint ball" enthusiasts. Paint ball is a game in which participants stalk each other and try to shoot each other with harmless exploding pellets of paint.

Over at G.I. Surplus, 34932 Michigan Ave. in Wayne, the demand for surplus has blossomed, says owner Walter Littman.

THE BIG sellers are flågs, pins and, of course, gas masks.

Even Littman feels that there is a bit of "hysteria" surrounding the fear of chemical warfare here.

He has seen parents coming in with their children to buy gas-masks. "And they're scaring their kids," said Littman.

He added that war aside, military surplus clothes are "always in style." Hunters and campers make up the bulk of his regular customers.

"We get a lot of sophisticated hunters," Littman said. "They really know what they want." That includes clothes, sleeping bags, knapsacks and other typical outdoor accessories.

But if you still find a certain charm in a hand grenade, if an AK-47 assault rifle (that "cannot be made to fire") appeals to you, or if you want to steep yourself in a "Countersniper Guide," surplus stores ean still deliver the goods.

'Coppelia'

3 Michiganders star with Cleveland Ballet

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

HERE WILL BE A STRONG Michigan connection to Cleveland San Jose Ballet's production of "Coppelia" at Masonic Temple, Detroit, Friday-Sunday, March 8-10.

Melissa Mitchell, who will be dancing the lead role of Swanilda, in the Saturday and Sunday evening performances lived in West Bloomfield and Farmington and graduated from Seaholm High of Birmingham in 1975.

Dennis Nahat, the company's artistic director, who choreographed this production of "Copelia," grew up in Detroit and Grosse Pointe and launched his career from here.

Nahat will dance the role of Doctor Coppelius in the Thursday student matinee, the Friday evening and Sunday matinee performances. Flint native Mark Otloski will also be dancing the role of Milorad on Saturday and Sunday evening.

Dancing opposite Mitchell in the romantic male lead will be Peter Dibonaventura.

The roles of Swanilda and Franz will be performed by Karen Gabay and Raymond Rodrieguez at the Friday evening and Sunday matinee performances and by Karyn Connnell and Olivier Munoz for the student matinee at 11 a.m. Thursday.

Mitchell said, "It's a hard role. It variations, two pas de deux, lots of mime and feats requiring technical ability. I do a lot of hopping around on point. I don't know any ballerina who likes to hop around on point. Yes, it's a hard role, but it's challenging and fun. It's light comedy, not heavy stuff."

Dennis Nahat, artistic director of the Cleveland San Jose Ballet Company, grew up in Detroit and began his study of dance here. He has given up performing except for character roles such as Doctor Coppelis in "Coppelia."

AS SWANILDA, THE BAKER'S daughter, she finds that her rival for Franz's attention is Coppelia, the takes a lot of stamina. I have six beautiful doll with the enamel eyes created by Doctor Coppelius. While the lonely doctor tries to discover a way to bring the doll to life, Swanilda helps him out by sneaking into the workshop and masquerading as the doll. Nahat's version ends happily, but not before lots of dancing, deception and near tragedy. While growing up in Michigan, Mitchell studied ballet with Evelyn Kreason and danced with Kreason's Michigan Ballet Company. Mitchell was born in Dearborn, lived in West Bloomfield and Farmington and graduated from Seaholm in 1975. She studied ballet here with Evelyn Kreason and performed with Kreason's Michigan Ballet Company. She joined the Pennsylvania Ballet right out of high school and was there for for four years. She dropped out of the dance world for several years and managed a Mexican restaurant in Los Angeles.

This painting of one of the costumes for "Coppelia" -done by the company's resident designer, David Gutherie - was reproduced on greeting cards sold to benefit the company.

"Then, one day I had the desire to go to a ballet class, " she said.

Her teacher there called Nahat of the Cleveland San Jose Ballet to tell him about her suggesting she was a dancer whom he would like to see.

Nahat followed up on a trip to California in the spring of 1983 and hired her immediately.

Mitchell's parents live in Ann Arbor. Her mother, Elizabeth, was librarian at West Bloomfield High for 20 years. Her father, Charles, retired from Chrysler is now a full-time sculptor.

graduate, and Munoz will be in the show in Detroit, but Nureyev will not:

marked a milestone in its 15-year March 7. There will be a free preperhistory with its first European tour last year. Rudolf Nureyev toured with the company, taking the role of Doctor Coppelius with Mitchell as Swanilda and Olivier Munoz as Franz at the Point Theatre in Dublin, Ireland. After that the company was featured at the Edinburgh International Festival. Last fall "Coppelia" was on the bill for the company's performances at its second home, San Jose, Calif. Performances are 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, March 8,9; 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Sunday, March 10.

THE STUDENT/SENIOR MATI-NEE will be at 11 a.m. Thursday, formance party 12:30-2 p.m. Sunday with face painters, story tellers and entertainers for children of all ages.

The opening night performance is dedicated to the memory of flight attendant, Heidi Joost who died in the airline accident in Detroit last December. She was a life-long student of dance and studied at the Ricardeau Studio in Detroit where Dennis Nahat started.

Her parents, Cleveland residents, have established a scholarship in her memory at the School of Cleveland-Ballet.

Answering systems drive her crazy

Q: Telephones drive me crazy. They cause constant interruptions. I have to hold during long, boring recorded messages, and now we have to dial our own area code on many calls. Help!

so wonderful as a telephone can become a curse as well. For consumers, the trend toward commercial telephone answering systems swers proved unpopular. When causes stress and delays. There's little individuals can do to fight this trend, but businesses can refine their systems and individuals can learn to facilitate telephone use.

Ironically, as I began gathering research for this article I was immediately thwarted by telephone answering systems and/or uninformed personnel who encouraged me to leave a message for others to return my call later.

Y Too often, companies buy equipment for their features and technical merit rather than their ability to route calls to reach a "body" quickly. One of the biggest mistakes businesses make when installing systems is "voice mail jail," as one communications expert told me. This is where the caller is routed to leave a message without an option to get back to another extension. Good systems allow you to leave a message and then still dial back to another extension afterward.

Many recorded greetings can be cut off midway by pressing a known extension number or "O" for an operator. This is particularly helpful when you would otherwise be forced to listen to a monotonous listing of choices. It's worth a try to just hit "O" immediately.

To avoid switchboards, ask busi-A: It's amazing how something ness people you call frequently if they have a direct number. One company recently installed direct numbers after their recorded anasked about tips on message systems, one of those employees reacted, "Tell 'em to unplug and burn the darn things.'

> Executives should periodically call their own companies so that they'll understand how customers are treated, and customers should let executives know when they feel they receive poor telephone treatment. I recently called an 800 number advertised by my bank and, after a lengthy explanation of my needs, a whiny voice inquired "Oh, do you want to talk to your bank?" I was not impressed and their executive was amazed when I told him.

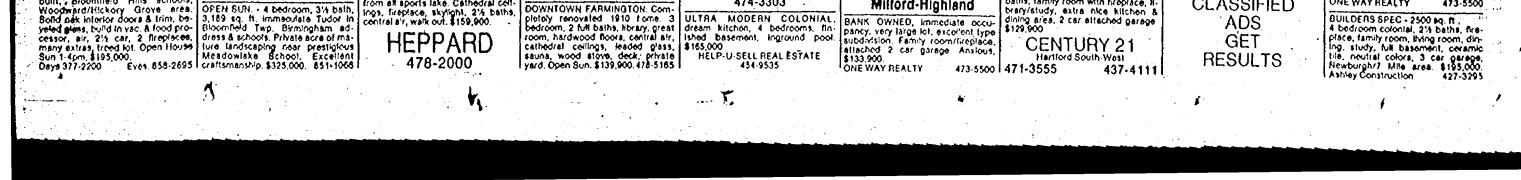

While there are pros and cons both ways, my own feeling is that communications people have done a whale of a sales job by convincing companies that commercial systems are less expensive and more efficient than human operators. What they overlook, however, is the loss of personal contact and the resulting good public relations established by helpful humans. More on telephones next week.

Construction thefts fewer, but still costly

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

Although it is not as bad as it once was, construction site theft is still a multi-billion dollar industry that eventually costs home and building owners, office and commercial tenants and contractors.

Theft from American businesses, by employees or outsiders, is as common as moss on a tree, but it is vividly apparent with construction thefts. When someone at an office walks off with a notebook, no one pays attention, but when a bulldozer is discovered missing now that's hard to miss.

John DeMattia, chairman of the Construction Association of Michigan (CAM) and president and owner of the firm Lerner-Linden Inc. in Novi, said construction site theft is one of the more pressing problems facing contractors in southeastern Michigan and the rest of the country,

"According to the American Subcontractors Association, (construction site theft) costs the industry $15 billion to $25 billion a year," he said. "That figure includes job site theft as well as office theft and embezzlement, but even if it's only half of that it's a staggering figure."

DeMattia said in the end, everyone pays for construction theft. Theft is generally not figured into a construction bid, he said, but it does go into a contractor's overhead costs - which is reflected in bids. "I may not have a line item for it on a bid I make, but it is in there."

ROBERT STOREN, president and owner of Robert Storen & Associates in Bloomfield Hills, said that judging from his experience, construction site theft is on the wane.

"It's difficult to believe it's still that bad," Storen said. "It's very rare for us," he said.

"Years ago, it was a far greater problem."

Storen suggested that one possible reason why it hasn't been a problem in recent years is that the times have been good for the building industry. "Everyone has been busy - getting all the overtime they need - there.

Vehicle and serial numbers on engines are eliminate the problems of large machinery more common today, which has helped to

Manix said most contractors have their own particular horror stories. "You used to hear about people backing up a trailer to a site and loading up bulldozer, but that doesn't happen anymore."

Construction theft is still costly.

"Five years ago, we were working on a project with a lot of landscaping. When we came back the next morning, someone had rolled up the sod and taken the shrubs and trees."

cranes and large generators -- gone.

"There's less of that (stealing large machinery) than even a couple of years ago," DeMattia said.

Most construction equipment had little or no identification, he explained so it was quite easy to take, say a bulldozer, from one site and put it on another.

'Let's face it, if you buy a buildozer from Caterpillar, there's not a lot to distinguish one from another; they're all big and all yellow," DeMattia said.

Storen of Storen & Associates said education and awareness are the key. His company holds regular on job safety "lunch box session," with the trades people, some of which is devoted to security and loss prevention.

"I think the conversation helps to some degree - It keeps it in people's minds," he said.

MANIX OF Campbell/Manix Inc. said simply training construction supervisors and foremen to be more observant has helped curtail most construction theft. "Maybe that little extra awareness was all that was needed."

With contractors sometimes working three to five different jobs per week, a lot of equipment is moved around, he said. In the past, it wasn't uncommon to see trucks moving equipment on and off sites with very little supervision. "Now, if something is taken off site, you'd better believe my (superintendent) is going to be there.'

DeMattia said by its nature, the building industry makes a construction firm's theft/loss prevention manager's job difficult. "Probably 80 percent of all construction site theft involved employees or associated employees."

Most contractors maintain a core group of full-time employees in a supervisory or foreman's position, but subcontract for workers as needed, he said

"And then your subcontractor might hire a sub-subcontractor," he said.

EMPLOYEES STEALING from their own company - although it does happen - is less common then one company's employees stealing from another's, he said. "A lot of theft on construction site involves workers stealing from their colleagues."

Another form of construction site theft is when an employee or subcontractors sets out to set himself up in business. "It doesn't take a lot to become a contractor," he said - all you need is a few tools and some contacts in the industry.

Storen of Storen & Associates said one way to prevent the petty theft that still goes on is to clearly identify the tools. Some subcontractors he has worked with, for example, paint all the tools.

Still others require their workers to keep their own tools. "A lot of contractors demand that tradespeople keep their own tools with the thinking that they'll take better care of them."

Carelessly leaving tools about, he said, is inviting theft.

Manix said there are several things that a general contractor can do to deter theft. "We try to work quickly and close up the buildings — anything that might get stolen, we'll put in there."

Finishing a project isn't always possible, but it is often possible to finish and seal off a portion of the build ing, he said.

hasn't been a need.'

But Storen noted that even though the building industry has slowed, he hasn't seen an increase in crime.

Douglas Manix, president and owner of Campbell/ Manix Inc. in Southfield, also said that if construction site theft is on the rise, he isn't seeing it. There has been some, he said, but not a great deal.

CONSTRUCTION THEFT runs the gamut from the larceny of huge machinery to the pinching of a ball-peen hammer, CAM president DeMattla said.

Tools, rolls of wiring and building supplies probably make up the majority of losses, but it is not that uncommon for a contractor to return to a site in the morning and find a plece of major equipment - buildozers,

Vehicle numbers and serial numbers on engines are more prominent and common today, which has helped to eliminate the problems of large machinery theft.

But the most common site theft involved mechanical portable tools, he said. Power saws and other tools, hand tools, generators and the like disappear from construction sites constantly.

"Another thing we do is not bring valuable materials or equipment to the job if we don't need it," he said. Something can't be stolen if it's not there, he said.

Hired security, fencing and lighting are also alterna tives that can be used depending on the job, he said.

Commission in question when owner refuses to sell

I had a listing agreement with a deal even though he had a purchaser broker for the sale of my condomini- who was prepared to meet the price um. I chose not to go ahead with the and terms set forth in the purchase agreement. It was pretty much the terms of the listing agreement. Do I owe my broker a commission anyway?

Questions arise frequently as to when a broker earns a commission.

This is generally a matter of contract law. In the absence of a special agreement, a broker earns a commission when a buyer is produced who is ready, willing and able to purchase the real estate under the price and terms set forth in the contract (or upon different terms acceptable to the seller). But a broker and a seller may agree that the broker's commission is contingent upon the actual performance of an executory agreement for the sale and purchase of real estate that the commission is payable at closing.

Michigan courts have held that a purchase agreement that contained contingencies did not evidence a "ready, willing and able" buyer. Moreover, the Michigan courts have held that where the proposed buyer tendered a conditional offer, for less money that the asking price, contingent upon the sale of the buyer's house, the broker had not produced a ready, willing and able buyer within the terms of the listing agreement.

Hopefully you can determine from this answer whether in fact you owe your broker a commission although it sounds like you do, particularly since apparently you had no contingencies in the agreement.
