School tax supporters blast mayor

By Darrell Clem staff writer

A crowd of 100 school millage supporters descended on city hall Monday night to blame Westland Mayor Robert Thomas for helping to defeat a Wayne-Westland school tax increase that narrowly lost in last week's special election.

Scores of parents and students iammed a city council session in a show of support for spokesman Fred. Hagelthorn, who blasted the mayor for opposing the millage and demanded that he accept a leading role in finding an "immediate resolution" to the school district's crisis.

"It is quite possible, Mr. Mayor, that your stand alone made the difference between Westland being a community which people would want to be a part of, and a community which families with school-age children would want to move away from," Hagelthorn, a parent of five,

Hagelthorn, who worked with the pro-millage Save Our Schools committee, accused Thomas of trying to adopt a politically safe stance by aligning himself with anti-millage forces. But Hagelthorn said that Thomas "grossly miscalculated" public sentiment and vowed that the millage's "temporary defeat will be overshadowed by triumph."

Moreover, Hagelthorn warned that elected city officials will be remembered for their millage stances when they are up for re-election.

AMID THE overwhelming opposition to Thomas at Monday's meeting, one millage critic addressed the council and commended the mayor for his "incredible courage and foresight" in opposing the 7.75-mill tax increase that failed 51.6 percent to 48.4 percent last Wednesday.

"We are just not going to be tax suckers in this city any longer," said Walter Warren, a Norwayne neighborhood landlord whose anti-millage message drew boos from the crowd that grew so large it spilled from the council chambers.

Warren also sparked criticism from council President Thomas Brown, who told Warren, "If you want to rent your properties, you'd better be sure they've got some schools."

Meanwhile, Brown refused to let Mayor Thomas respond immediately to Hagelthorn's criticism, saying the council needed to move on to other

City considers paying library fee to restore privileges

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Westland Mayor Robert Thomas plans to ask the city council to pay the Canton Township library $112,000 a year to restore privileges for Westland residents who use the

The move would end a dispute that prompted Canton library officials to let Westland residents check out only one book at a time. Westland residents can have unlimited book privileges by paying an $80 per family fee.

Library officials placed the restrictions on Westland residents because the city of Westland had declined to help defray the Canton library's costs. Westland residents account for 7 percent of the library's

The restrictions prompted a flurry of calls to Thomas' office after Canton library officials explained their position in a memo posted at the library. Some local students also wrote to Thomas about the controversy.

Since the outcry emerged, Thomas has directed finance director Michael Gorman and budget director Tim McCurley to work out a plan in which the city of Westland would pay the Canton library $112,000 a year to restore full borrowing privileges for Westland residents.

That's the amount Canton officials had requested the city pay to end the

"It's fair," Thomas said of the agreement. "If we have 7 percent of the (library's) users, we should pay that share of the cost."

Canton library officials declined to comment on the plan until they received official notification of it from Westland city officials. But they have said the $112,000 would represent Westland's share of costs in the library's $1.6 million budget.

THOMAS PLANS to introduce the proposal to city council members in the near future.

Though the mayor said the amount requested by Canton appears fair, he did question whether the library has taken steps to streamline its operating costs.

"I would hope we'd never have operating costs like that in Westland," he said. "But it's their library. They can do what they want to do."

Officials want to abolish panel that OK'd pay cut plan

By Darrell Clem staff writer

A proposal to let Westland elected officials reduce their pay to as low as $1 a year sparked concerns Monday night among some city council members who suggested disbanding the panel that approved the plan.

Some city officials indicated support for abolishing the Local Officers Compensation Commission, saying that external political pressure has been placed on the panel charged with setting salaries for the mayor and seven city council mem-

"We as a community are the biggest losers," Hagelthorn countered.

Hagelthorn, noting that some citizens believe the school board won't carry out such budget cuts as eliminating busing, said, "People who are willing to gamble like that should not live in Westland. They should live in Las Vegas.

Council recalls laid-off cable television staffers

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Westland's embattled cable television station began returning to normal Tuesday as city officials recalled four workers laid off by ousted cable chief Dennis Fassett.

The recall came as city officials prepared to advertise the post from which Fassett was fired last month, amid heated criticism from Mayor Robert Thomas, some city council members and the local cable commission.

The four workers resumed their duties, one day after the Westland City Council unanimously approved temporary contracts keeping the employees on the job through June

The council's decision Monday to approve the contracts drew applause from cable officials in the audience.

"I think this is a good, strong beginning," said cable commission member Anthony Rosati.

THOUGH CABLE commission members had grown increasingly upset with Fassett, they have been pleased with the other cable workers' performance "from the beginning," Rosati said.

Fassett dismissed the workers on Feb. 22 - six days before his con--tract-with the city expired amid concerns he had failed to develop enough local programming. Fassett also had been criticized for poor relations with the cable commission, the Thomas administration and Continental Cablevision officials.

In recent weeks, local cable Channel 8 has been showing reruns, but this week's recall will set the stage for more new programming, city officials said.

Officials hope to provide dramatically improved local programming once Fassett's successor is hired. Eassett had held the post of cable-TV community relations consultant

Schools try to forecast state aid plan

By Marie Chestney staff writer

Officials of the Livonia school district, which includes the northern section of Westland, will keep one eye on a number of school financing plans now being touted statewide as they put together their proposed budget for the 1991-92 school year.

In doing so, school officials must second guess which, if any, of the plans may pass, or which, if any, may lead to cuts in the amount of money the school district gets next year from the state.

"All these plans rile the water and make the revenue side murky at this time," said finance director Michael Furlong. "There's a number of plans - revenue sharing, tax reduction, recapture. Will they pass? Will they go away? We're now trying to anticipate what will happen.'

THE DISTRICT is now putting together a preliminary budget which must be submitted to Wayne County by the end of April. Because this budget deals strictly with expected bills for next year, district officials have until mid-May, when the district's final budget andmiliage are set, to know their actual income. But Furlong expects the state to take more state aid away from Livonia next year in the form of recap-

Last year, the district expected

Livonia School District

The Livenia School District includes the northern section of Westland

the state to recapture $2.8 million; the state took $3.4 million.

Because of the state's $1 billion shortfall, Furlong expects next year's recapture to be even more.

"We are at risk here," Furlong said. "The state is in a dire situation and are looking for all kinds of revenue sources. Their most recent way is to take more away from us through recapture."

THE BULK of the district's income - $86 million - comes from property taxes.

This year, the district's expenses - $101.6 million - exceeded its income of $97 million.

The shortfall will be made up through the district's fund equity, or surplus. The district's latest amended budget shows it will end the school year in June with a $5.8 million fund equity. The district began its current year last July with a $10.1 million fund equity.

The district's surplus is disappearing faster than school officials originally projected when it set this year's budget. Last spring, the district expected its operating reserves would drop to $6.4 million by the end

For 1990-91, the district lowered its millage rate from 33.25 mills to 32.15 mills. The district is authorized to levy 36 mills.

FURLONG DOES NOT see how the state could cut property taxes, as sought by Gov. John Engler, without boosting its revenue elsewhere.

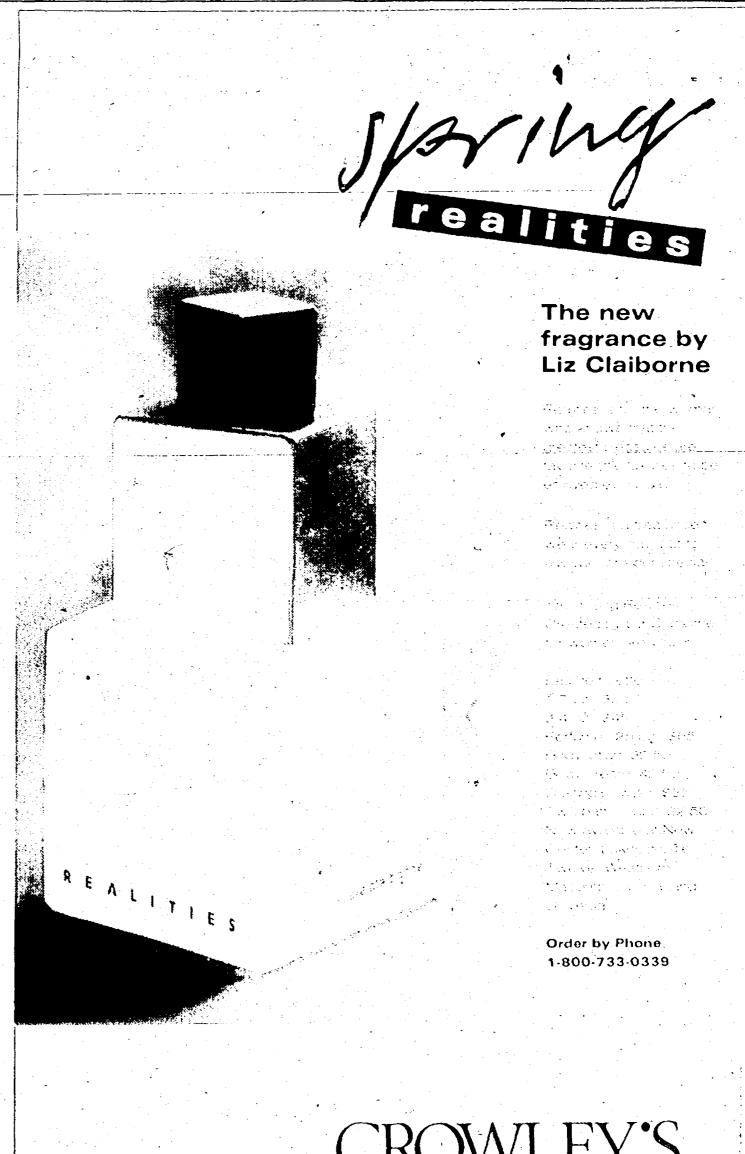

"Engler came into office saying we had to change the state's priorities. That was a plus for education. My discomfort comes from knowing that a $1 billion shortfall exists.

"Can they cut the budget and still hold education harmless? If they cut property taxes, what will they replace it with? In the absence of some sort of revenue source on the horizon, he won't have the funds to deliv-

"The motion in Lansing is for a property tax cut, but the reality of where they'll get the money will set in. If they reduce, they'll have to replace."

If property taxes are cut, Furlong predicted Michigan residents will eventually pay either a higher income or sales tax.

"Our income and sales taxes are lower than many other states. Michigan is a high property tax state but our other taxes are lower."

Schools mull plan to close incinerators

The air near Livonia school district buildings will be cleaner if the district follows through on a plan to stop burning trash.

The proposal to close down school incinerators as early as September was made Tuesday to the district's environment task force by Art Howell, director of operations for the district which includes the northern section of Westland.

The task force had a public hearing to give residents a chance to tell school officials how the district can change its wasteful or environmentally harmful ways to help save the hearing, giving the task force more time to discuss Howell's proposal to close the incinerators.

Much of the debate centered on illegal dumping that could take place if a Dumpster was set outside each school to collect trash no longer

"You're in jeopardy of having the

Howell said dumping trash would be cheaper than burning it, but only if the district reduced the amount of trash going into the Dumpsters through recycling.

In other words, to stop burning, the district would have to make sure teachers and students learn about waste reduction and recycling.

"Landfilling is costly, so we would have to have these in place also," Howell said. "We have learned that we have to continue to reinforce the importance of doing this and keep everyone's interest peaked. If we don't, we become careless and go back to our old ways."

HOWELL ESTIMATED either landfilling or burning will cost the district about the same - $17,000-$20,000 per month.

Burning costs that much because, at a cost of $2.27 per hour, gas is burned at each school for up to eight hours after school each day, five days a week.

If the district stops burning, Howell outlined three ways it can get rid of its trash.

The least expensive option, and the one Howell favors, is to put a Dumpster outside each school and hire a hauler to empty it weekly.

The Dumpster could be locked to keep residents from putting in their own trash, and signs could be posted saying large items cannot be left outside the Dumpster, Howell said.

The second option is to hire a contractor to pick up trash that is either bagged or put in cans.

The third option, Howell said, is to crush trash in in-school compactors.

THE SCHOOL board must approve any change made in trash disposal.

Like the district is now doing with recycling, a burning ban could be phased in, with some schools set up as pilot schools.

Mother, coach, judge want drug law eased

By Tim Richard staff writer

Foes of Michigan's life-without-parole law face an uphill battle if they expect to convince lawmakers that the penalty falls too harshly on small time drug dealers.

Several members of the House Judiciary Committee were unimpressed by the testimony of a Canton mother, a Rochester Hills coach and an Oakland circuit judge seeking to soften the law. Tuesday's hearing ran 21/2

The testimony was heard only by Judiciary chair Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, and minority Republicans as Democrats caucused to discuss reapportionment.

Bullard likes the bill but appeared in no hurry to report it out of committee.

House Bill 4024, sponsored by Republican William Bryant of Grosse Pointe, would allow judges discretion in sentencing people who deal in 650 grams (1.4 pounds) or more of cocaine or heroin. Bryant's bill would allow a sentence as light as five years if a judge found "substantial and compelling reasons to depart" from the mandatory life without parole.

Republicans, vice chair Michael Nye of Litchfield and former State Police trooper Bill Martin of Battle Creek, were unimpressed by the testimony, remarking that "first offenders" referred only to persons caught the

One Republican who was moved, however, was Gerald Law of Plymouth, a fourth-term lawmaker but new to the Judiciary Committee.

"For a runner, life without parole is pretty stiff. We give serial murderers that," said Law, pointing to coed killer John Collins.

But Law agreed with Fitzgerald that the five-year minimum was too light.

BRYANT SAID 138 prisoners are serving life without parole for drug crimes, but fully half were first-time

He called Michigan's law, passed in 1978, harshest in the country. "It was clearly our intent to use it to put away major drug 'kingpins,' not drivers, not bag men, not lookouts, not flunkies, not drug addicts cajoled into one major deal by a sting operation, and not minor involvement first-time offenders."

Oakland Circuit Judge David Breck supported the bill. "The judges here today are not bleeding hearts. We have no qualms about putting kingpins away," he said.

Breck told of giving 10 case histories to Birmingham Optimist Club members — mostly conservative businessmen — and finding, "Their sentences were lighter than the judge gave in every case."

"The law falls on poor, uneducated minorities," said Wayne Circuit Judge Robert J. Columbo.

Chief Detroit Recorders Judge Dalton Roberson said Colombia is giving 15-year sentences to cartel members. "People who shipped tons of cocaine get lighter sentences than our own citizens," he said.

LINDA FANNON, a Canton mother whose son Gary was sentenced to life five years ago at age 18, admitted he was an addict and deserved a term but said it was

"You can rape, assault and burglarize repeatedly and not get the sentence my son got," she said. "To throw my son's life away for one mistake is a crime in itself. Charles Manson gets a chance for parole once a year. That's more than Gary gets."

Fannon said her son, a former Plymouth-Salem student, agreed to a deal with an undercover officer in a western Wayne County drug task force. But she said Gary backed away from the deal and was en route to Florida when he was extradited to Michigan.

He got life for a kilo he had never seen," she said. "The main supplier got a mistrial and never spent a day in prison. An undercover officer who was an addict lost his badge. My son lost his freedom."

CHARLES SKINNER, a Rochester Hills retiree who coached 34 year, pleaded for a change in the law on behalf of an unnamed young man convicted several years ago.

"We need severe penalties, but not sadistic ones. I consider this Baghdad justice or Khohmeni justice," he said, referring to the Iranian religious leader who called for the death penalty for religious crimes.

U.S. District Judge Avern Cohn quoted appeallate judges as comparing Michigan's penalties to "springing a tiger trap on a sick kitten.'

Deloneo Young, a Detroit teenager, read a letter from his mother DeJonna, convicted 12 years ago at age 23. "I've watched convicted rapists and child molesters come and go," wrote the mother, who now has earned a bachelor's degree in criminal justice.

OAKLAND COUNTY Prosecutor Richard Thompson, WHO defended Michigan's law in arguments before the U.S. Supreme Court last fall, came back swinging.

"Convicts don't like it and want out. Judges don't like the lack of discretion," said Thompson, who served as chief assistant to L. Brooks Patterson before winning the office in 1988.

"The victims haven't been able to speak out," said Thompson, referring to crack babies. The threshold for a life sentence, he said, is 650 grams, which is enough for "12,000 hits in powdered form and 5,000 rocks of сгаск.'

Thompson had these replies to Bryant's supporters:

• To the charge that "only mules get caught," he said mules are intimately involved in the supply network. Major drug dealers don't have arrest records and deal with very few people.

• To the charge that "prisons are overcrowded," Thompson said less than 1 percent of Michigan's 31,000 convicts are there under the life without parole law.

• To the charge that kingpins aren't being caught, he said, "The act never defines kingpins. The purpose is to deter drug dealers. This act focuses on the supply net-

• To the charge that Michigan's law is stiffer than the federal law, Thompson said federal officials deferred to Oakland on prosecuting a major drug ring because of the tougher state law.

"The judges want the revolving door swinging again. Maybe Michigan is the most enlightened state."

Thompson warned lawmakers: "Your constituency is more than inmates in Jackson and the judges."

Tough law was aimed at drug kingpins

How did Michigan pass such a draconian law - life in prison without hope of parole - for people dealing in 650 grams (1.4 pounds) of drugs? House Judiciary chair Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, asked that question after Tuesday's hearing on a bill to lighten the penalties. "I was vice chair of the House Judiciary Committee when it passed in 1978," said Richard Fessler, who went back to private law practice this year after 16 years in the Legislature.

"It was aimed at drug kingpins. But the first thing they (law enforcers) did was to go after the street cor-

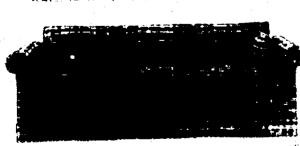

"The judges at that time were lenient. Judges wanted to get them through the system on lesser charges."

Fessler, who plans to do "a little lobbying," was visiting the Capitol Building Tuesday and was interviewed in a corridor. He did not attend the committee hearing.

Hospice group needs volunteers

Hospice Services of Western Wayne County Inc. needs volunteers to help in caring for terminally ill patients in the western Wayne:

The non-profit organization provides a community based, in home care program. A specialized team of registered nurses, social work and bereavement specialists, home health aides and trained volunteers provide hands on care, companionship and emotional support for the patient and his or her family.

Hospice Services needs both lay and health care professional volunteers. It provides training, with the next class scheduled for Tuesday, March 26.

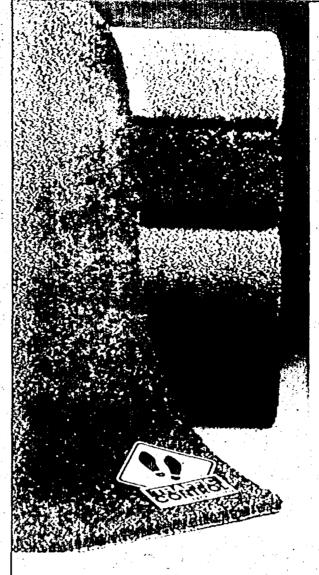

"BEING A hospice volunteer is a rewarding and challenging experience," said Mary Letters, coordinator of volunteer services.

"By giving your time and talents as a trained volunteer, you allow the patient to live the remaining portion of his or her life in as much normalcy as possible. "Trained volunteers help give quality of life to our patients by caring for them in the comfort of

DISCOVER HOW TO MAKE YOUR HOME WORK FOR YOU.

Designing a home is not easy. Basic principles must be observed, no matter what your lifestyle or how much you wish to invest. During 4 two-hour sessions, Hudson's professional interior designers will pass their expertise on to you. Here's a week-by-week breakdown:

WEEKONE WEEKONE

History & Lifestyle. Review the history of interior design and explore your interests, hobbies, and your pattern of living. It's the most important basis for your decorating plan. Our personality surveys will give you surprising insights.

WEEK TWO

Floor Planning. You and your designer will work with your floor plan to achieve a workable, livable room, taking into account traffic patterns, conversation areas and natural focal points.

WEEKTHREE

Color, Backgrounds. First, discover how to use color to solve problems and create moods. You'll discuss how to make the most of your favorite colors and which colors work almost everywhere. Then we'll discuss ceilings, walls and floors. They are a big part of every room, and we'll study everything from carpet to mirrors.

WEEKFOUR

Accessories, Putting it all together. A quilt. An antique chest with a high tech lamp. Artwork you've acquired over the years. Discover how accents can bring a room to life. Finally you'll get to see an empty room furnished in logical stages from furniture and rugs to valances and chandeliers.

Throughout the workshop, you'll be using an information filled manual that's yours to keep. See hundreds of slides of beautiful rooms. You'll be able to ask lots of questions and have the opportunity for a personal consultation with a designer. Fee is only $60. Workshops are limited and will fill up fast, so sign up now. Exec says plan harms efforts to keep Tigers

If Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara were an umpire, he'd call three strikes on a state legislator's new plan to save Tiger Stadium.

The stadium renovation plan, announced last week by state Sen. John Kelly, D-Grosse Pointe Woods, offers too little money and not enough flexibility, McNamara said.

Strike three, however, is that the plan contrasts with the McNamara's own proposal.

"THEY DIDN'T consult with us." said McNamara, who has proposed using county bonds to finance a new Tiger Stadium.

The Kelly plan would provide $75 million in state money to renovate the current stadium at Michigan and Trumbull.

That's not enough, said McNamara, who estimated it could take up to $90 million to save the old stadium.

The proposal would also ban public bonds for any stadium that would seat more than 25,000 people - essentially ruling out public finacing of any new major league baseball sta-

Locking the Tigers into their existing ballpark is a mistake, McNamara added.

"It's been our feeling that the Tigers are interested in a new ballpark," he said. "This plan would threaten efforts to keep the Tigers in

While the Tiger management has kept mum on any plan, Kelly's plan has been endorsed by the Tiger Stadium Fan Club - a citizens group that has lobbied heavily for stadium renovations.

"The people of Michigan like their baseball at Michigan and Trumbull and don't want their financial resources to be used for a new stadium." said Bob Buchta, a founding fan club member.

Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, is sponsoring one of the bills in the Kelly package: Plymouth Township has been roumored as a possible stadium site, but Law said area residents want the team to stay in Detroit.

The $75 million limit represents one-sixth of money available for all public projects in Michgian.

The Kelly plan was announced last

While a dollar figure has yet to be announced for the McNamara plan, the executive said county bonds would be financed by stadium reve-

Airport eyed as mechanics school

By Kevin Brown staff writer

A Schoolcraft College-run training program for mechanics at Mettetal Airport in Canton Township will be discussed by college president Richard McDowell, at the March 27 college trustees meeting, the board chairwoman said Monday.

And in another airport-related issue, Plymouth city attorney Ron Lowe reported Monday that a citywide vote would be scheduled in November on the charter amendment sought by airport opponents.

Mary Breen, chairwoman of the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees, said, "There will be an announcement made to the board by the president at our next meeting.

"I know that it's a very positive announcement," she said, adding she had no further detail as McDowell is out of town.

AMONG SCHOOLCRAFT administrators, Breen said, "I know the interest is there and it is strong" in support of a program at Mettetal, adding training for mechanics would be centered "around some certified program."

Breen said plans call for the state to pay for the program, as the colA Schoolcraft College-run training program for mechanics at Mettetal Airport in Canton Township will be discussed by college president Richard McDowell at the March 27 college trustees meeting.

ALSO MONDAY, Lowe said now that the city clerk has certified petition signatures collected by those seeking a charter amendment vote, airport opponents and the city must each submit statements to appear on the ballot explaining their positions.

Those statements must be reviewed and approved by the state attorney general, he said.

Bill McAninch of the citizens group told Lowe, "You appear to be moving forward as rapidly as you can to put a JOA (joint operating agreement) in place."

He urged commissioners "to delay a purchase until the vote takes

> If you had walked by a certain yard on the afternoon of August 25th, you might have heard the ground crying. That was the day a man walked into his backyard, dug a hole, and buried six puppies alive. Unable to stop him, a young neighbor girl looked on in horror. Luckily, her mother was also looking on.

She quickly called a Michigan Humane Society Investigator.

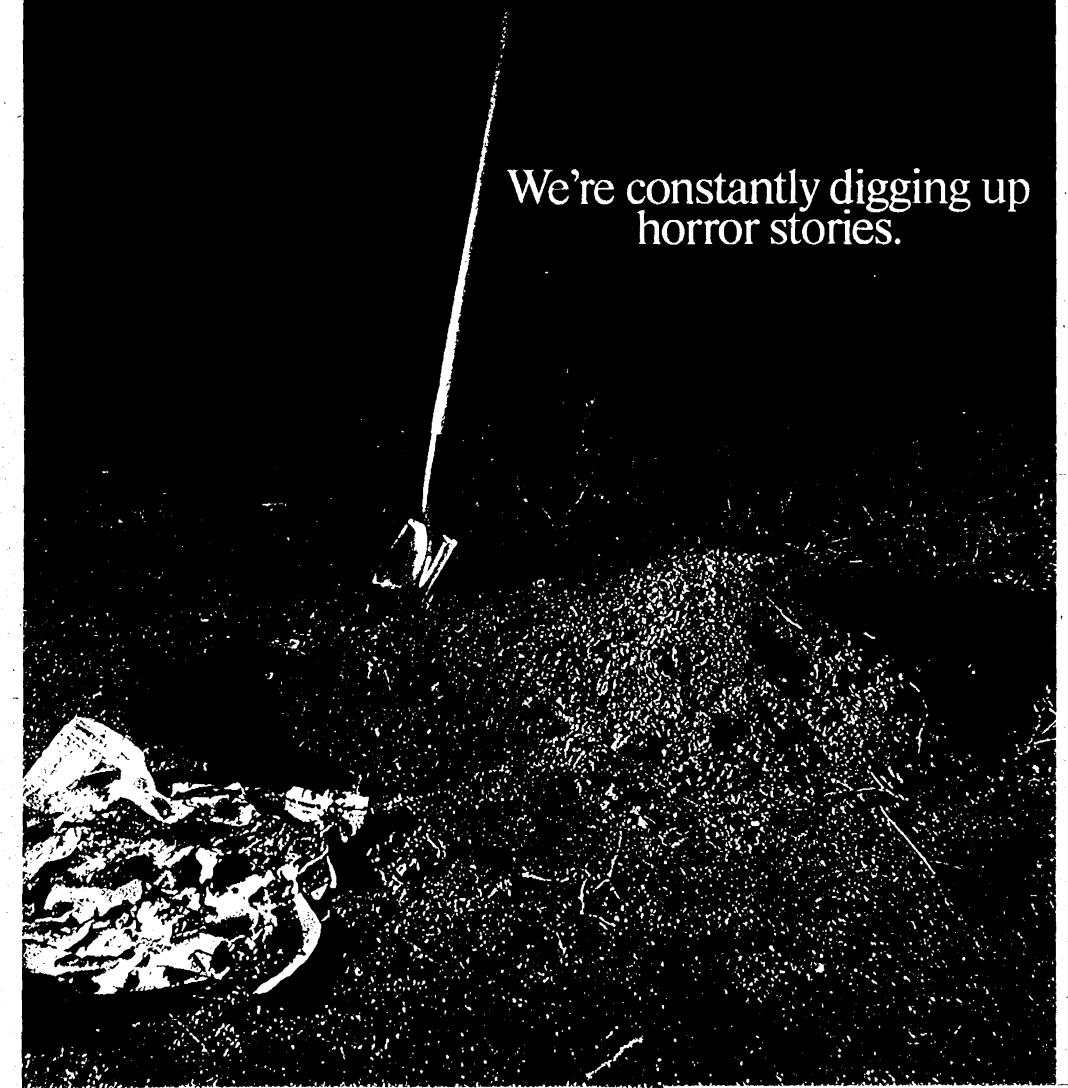

When he arrived, the cruelty investigator found the mother of the puppies chained and lying protectively on a fresh patch of soil. Her sensitive ears could easily hear the cries of her puppies eighteen inches below her. What she couldn't figure out was how to help them. The MHS cruelty investigator got into the dog pen and dug the puppies out with his bare. Today five of those puppies are _alive. And there's no clearer picture than this photo of what your contributions to the Michigan Humane Society accomplish. Your contributions help us feed and shelter the victims of animal abuse. Your contributions find them homes. And your contributions allow us to keep cruelty investigators on staff, so caring neighbors have someone to call.

In this season of giving, please find it in your heart to give what you can, large or small to the Michigan Humane Society. Because your contributions are the only reason stories like this have happy endings.

Area Muslims embark on month of fasting, prayer

By Pat Murphy staff writer

A message from area Muslims to the rest of us: It's OK to ask.

Sunday was the first day of Ramadan, the holiest month in the Islamic religion. And as Ramadan begins. Americans - whose curiosity was aroused by the Persian Gulf War and its aftermath - are likely to wonder about Islam and the people who practice it.

People in the metro area have shown more interest in the Middle East and its people, said Charles K. Alawan, a native Detroiter who received part of his education at the , holy day of the Islamic year, accord-American University of Beirut.

"Invitations to speak have increased by 300 fold," said Alawan, now a West Bloomfield resident who is active in a number of Arabic organizations, including the Islamic Center of America which he helped organize in Detroit.

As someone knowledgeable about the Arab world, Alawan gets frequent requests from the media. Last Friday, almost the eve of Ramadan, he was on the Good Morning America television show.

One reason non-Muslims might be interested in the Islamic holy month, he said, is that this year, at least, it holy days of Judaism and Christiani- for Ramadan compared with 40 for on March 31.

RAMADAN IS BASED on the Islamic lunar year which is almost , two weeks shorter than the calendar year used in the U.S. and other western nations. Thus Ramadan can occur at any time of the year.

Whenever it falls, however, Ramadan is important to the 900 million Muslims in the world and 4 million. in the U.S. The Detroit area has about 250,000 Arabs, with about half being Muslims.

Ramadan is the most demanding ing to Alawan, with most adults obligated to abstain from food, drink and most bodily satisfactions from dawn to dusk.

Ramadan commemorates the time in the sixth century when God revealed the Koran, the holy book of Islam, to Muhammad. Among others, principles God set forth to Muhammad is that prayer and fasting is necessary for Muslims, the same as it was "for others," believed to be a reference to Jews and Chris-

There is a similarity between Ramadan and the Christian observance of Lent, Alawan said, in the duration of the holy periods (29 days ly in view of what's happened in ty, Passover on March 27 and Easter. Lent.) And both end with a kind of celebration although Easter is more visible than the end of Ramadan, Eid Al-Fitr.

> Hadi A. Akeel, an Egyptian-born ' engineer who lives in Rochester Hills, notes one major difference, however - the absence of external

For Muslims the fasting and praying associated with Ramadan is supposed to be a very private and personal matter. Outward displays of piety are considered to be in very. poor taste and bordering on advertising the individual's zeal, he said.

"It's a very personal time for the practice of humility and helping your fellow man," he said. It's likely to be characterized by family and social gatherings as well as more visits to the mosque.

AKEEL, FOR EXAMPLE, said he usually visits the mosque on Auburn Road in Rochester Hills about once a week. During Ramadan, he'll generally make one additional visit each Akeel said he personally thinks there's a hesitancy on the part of non-Muslims to ask about Islam. "But it's important that people understand each other . . . particulariIraq. People should be able to separate the politics of the Middle East from the practice of Islam."

Alawan said the purpose of Ramadan is to encourage Muslims to turn away from personal pleasures and become more introspective about God and their individual relationship with the creator,

"And it works," he said. "for the first two or three days, fasting is difficult. Your body simply isn't used to

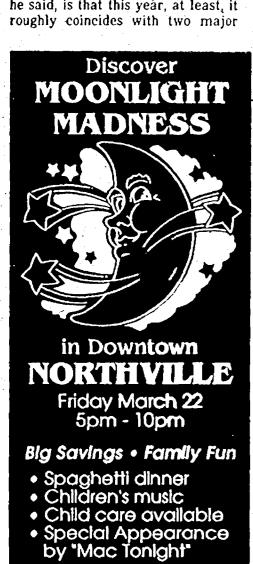

"But after a few days, you do think more about God," he said. "For one thing, you see food and drink . . . and you realize the reason you can't partake."

Barbara Aswad, a Birmingham resident who teaches anthropology at Wayne State University, said she can tell when her Muslim students are fasting because they are visibly affected.

"They're weaker, at least at first,"

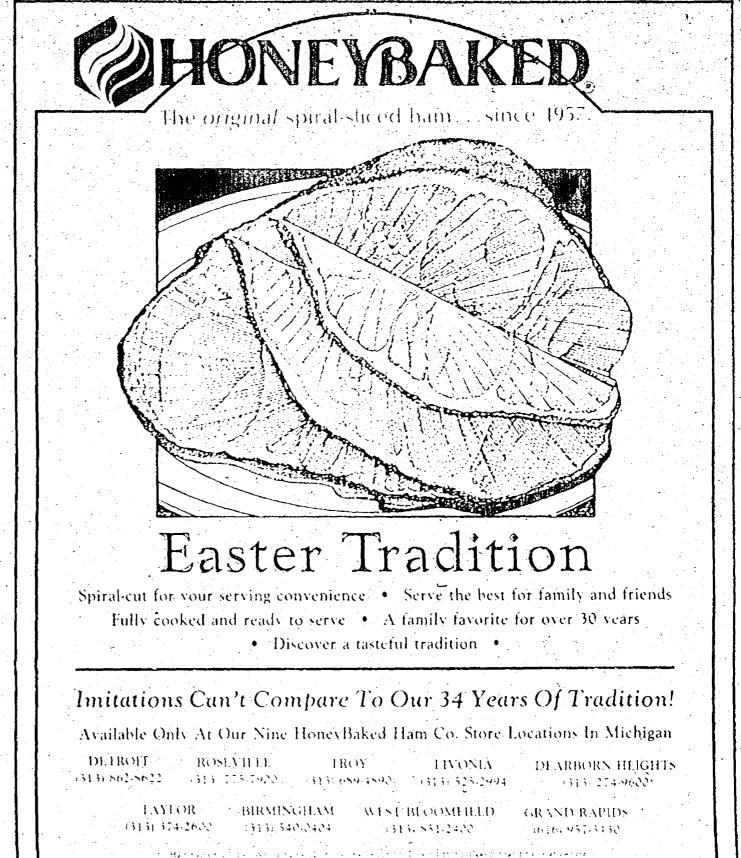

said Aswad, a Baptist married to a Muslim, "They get used to it within a week or so, but I can definitely tell when Ramadan begins."

Like religious holidays in other faiths, Ramadan can have a unifying effect on Muslims, according to John T. Walbridge, a Dearborn resident, who has a doctorate in Islamic studies from Harvard. "It's something that brings people and communities together ... it gives a sense of iden-

Roll Call Report

Here's how Observer & Eccentricarea members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending March 13. HOUSE:

To Fund S&L Bailout — By a vote of 192 for and 181 against, the House approved a bill (HR 1315) providing $78 billion to fund the second round of the savings-and-loan bailout. Borrowed by the government, the money will be used by the Resolution Trust Corp. (RTC) to reimburse federally insured deposits and for other purposes. It follows up to $167 billion already from asset sales.

The Treasury hopes to recoup about $48 billion of the new authority by selling seized S&L assests. The remaining $30 billion is charged directly to taxpayers. But it will not show up in the annual deficit because federal budgeteers exempted bailout costs from the long range plan enacted last year to curb the

A yes vote was to approve new funding for the S&L cleanup.

Voting yes was Sander Levin, D-Southfield. Voting no from were Carl Pursell, R. Plymouth, Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, and William Ford, D-Taylor. William Broomfield, R-Birmingham, did not vote.

To Pay For Cleanup — The House rejected, 186 for and 237 against, an amendment requiring future costs of the S&L bailout to be financed by taxes or spending cuts instead of borrowing. The amendment to HR 1312 (later replaced by S 419, above). called upon the administration to submit' a "pay-as-you-go plan as a condition of receiving $30 billion this fiscal year to cover deposit insurance losses.

The amendment also sought to inslude bailout costs in the federal budget, replacing the "off budget" bookkeeping status the cleanup has under last year's deficit reduction

A yes vote was to require future S&L cleanup costs to be met directly rather than by borrowing.

Voting yes were Hertel and William Ford. Voting no were Pursell, Levin and Broomfield.

To Pay For The War — By a vote of 175 for and 248 against, the House rejected a pay-as-you-go approach for parts of legislation (HR 1175) providing $15 billion ofr U.S. military costs of the Persian Gulf war and related programs. The bill was sent to conference with the Senate.

Sponsors noted that under the 1990 deficit reduction law, new expenditures must be offset by tax increases or spending cuts, except for "emergency" spending. The amendment sought to keep the emergency loopof previous wars.

A yes vote supported the pay-asyou-go approach for non-emergency items in the gulf war funding bill.

Voting yes were Pursell and A yes Broomfield Voting no were Hertel, ment.

William Ford and Layin. SENATE:

Credit For Soluters - By a vote of 58 for and 38 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to secure more favorable Small Business Administration credit for certain reserve and National Guard veterans hole from being applied to upwards of the Persian Gulf war. Law says secession impossible'

Downriver residents are considering seceding from Wayne County, but one local state representative wouldn't bet a nickel on their chanc-

"It's impossible," said Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, who four years ago led a similar effort in western Wayne County.

Law, who drafted legislation that would have included almost every county community but Detroit in a new county — called "Suburbia" — said the 1987 secession effort quickly lost steam in the face of heavy ob-

"You have to get it through the Legislature, or get it passed by a vote of the people and that's tough,"

Law said. Even if that were to happen, communities would have to reach agreement with their former county on numerous service charges - including bond payments for roads, sewers and other public works projects. They would also have to build their own jail and county courthouse.

"WHEN YOU take everything into consideration, it's very difficult," Law said. "It's much more easy to consolidate counties than to separate from them."

Michigan hasn't added a new county since Dickinson County, in the Upper Penninsula, was organized 1891. Succession talk, however, is nothing new in Wayne County.

The downriver petitions represent at least the fourth attempt to separate suburban communities from Detroit — including a similar down-river plan floated, then abandoned, about three years ago.

Law's plan was proposed at a time when county officials were negotiating a debt repayment plan with the state. Secesion plans are seen as a sign of resentment between suburbs and the City of Detroit.

"I understand their feeling — that the city gets the bulk of county services," Law said.

Deputy Wayne County Executive Michael Duggan said the county's goal is to spread services fairly.

"We have a lot of people working very hard to provide the best service we can," Duggan said.

The downriver plan includes no western Wayne communities. The proposed county — tentatively named "Erie" — would be borderd by Allen Park to the northeast, Belleville to the northwest, Sumpter Township to the southwest and Brownstown Township to the south-

"We're just forgotten down here," said petition circulator Norman Chinavere of Brownstown Township. "Nobody ever looks to downriver unless they want a place to dump their garbage, run their sewage or collect

State tax board orders reduction

If the state-equalized valuation of rate of increase of state-equalized existing property in your community has risen more than 5.4 percent, the millage rate must be reduced, the State Tax Commission announced this week.

The rate must be lowered unless local voters elect to retain the higher rate, under the state constitution.

Report links race relations, urban sprawl

By Tim Richard staff writer

Metro Detroit's bad race relations are a major reason for urban sprawl, according to a staff report from the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

"Racial discrimination, educational inequalities and crime problems all merge in the older areas to make redevelopment (in older, cities) far less attractive, despite the lower land and building costs," the report said.

SEMCOG is engaging in a yearlong study of how to stop urban sprawl — a stable population that develops farmlands, leaving unused roads and utilities behind.

The study is co-chaired by Marilynn Gosling, Oakland County commissioner from Bloomfield Hills, and E.A. Jackson Morris, supervisor of Pittsfield Township in Washtenaw County.

"SPRAWL IS often supported by public subsidies for roads, sewers, water lines, mortgages and tax breaks," the report said referring to past areas of study. But the new report pointed to race and poverty. as core issues in the sprawl phe-

· Crime victims, particularly whites, will leave central cities, studies in Chicago and the Detroit areas have shown. "The more recent advent of crack cocaine trade has brought with it a sharp increase in the violent crime associated with narcotics trafficking," said the SEMCOG report.

Business has fled the old city of Detroit because of low educational levels of city residents, ease of transportation and Detroit's high tax rates — 90 mills of property tax, 3 percent resident income tax and 5 percent on utility bills.

The number of city income tax returns in Detroit has plummeted 37 percent — from 450,000 in 1976 to 284,000 in 1985.

THE STAFF report said it will leave to SEMCOG's leaders - local elected officials from the seven county region - which policies to pursue. But it listed "draft strategies" for discussion of curbing the influence of race, poverty and crime on urban sprawl.

Among the possibilities:

• Gun controls — such as criminal checks, a waiting period for purchase of handguns and a ban on military style weapons. "Unrestricted access to firearms is substantially responsible for an unacceptable high level of violent crime" in the region.

• Coordination of drug enforce-

June millage proposal urged

HE VOTES are in, but the noise continues to shake the local political structure. The noise is the aftermath of voters' rejection March 13 of the Wayne-Westland school board's 7.75 mill property tax in-

Upset residents and students jammed the Westland City Council chambers Monday night to protest Mayor Robert Thomas' opposition to the Admittedly, when a ballot proposal loses by under 500 votes, or three percentage points, any factor can be blamed.

But there were several other factors, such as the property assessment notices being mailed to homeowners the week before the election so that residents would be notified before the city's Board of Review was scheduled to meet.

Scheduling the election close to the time when most people are filing their federal and state income tax returns was also a problem for the promillage workers.

But that's history.

THE CLOSE margin of Wednesday's election shows a dramatic change in the political atmosphere from last year when voters twice rejected a tax increase by overwhelming margins.

The question now is for the school board and administration to discuss whether to put the same or similar proposal on the June 10 board of education ballot or wait until next fall when the proposed budgets cuts, including elimination of most busing, are implemented.

The board should put a millage proposal on the June ballot for several reasons.

One is that there is a scheduled election to fill three school board positions and there wouldn't be any extra cost. If a special election is held in the fall, the additional cost would be used by mil- cuts and balance the budget.

A June millage proposal would avoid problems related to timing of other money issues.

lage opponents to back their claims that the board and administration are wasting taxpayers'

The June timing would also remove the unrelated factors of assessment increase notices and the filing of federal and state tax returns, which remind homeowners of their individual tax bur-

While many voters are still unhappy about the salary raises of nearly 6 percent a year for this year and next, others have wisely concluded that the pay increase issue is history and voting against all upcoming tax increases isn't going to change that.

BUT THE millage supporters can do a more effective job in any upcoming campaign in pointing out the "circuit breaker" benefits of rising property taxes.

Explaining any complicated tax rebate is difficult, but it can be done.

While the 7.75 mill proposal meant a $233 per year gross property tax increase on a $60,000 house, the state rebate would have resulted in a net increase of $93 for most homeowners.

Last week's election results demonstrated that the community is divided and that any upcoming tax election should be the last. Four chances is more than enough opportunity.

If the tax increase continues to be rejected, then the board and administration have to get on with their responsibilities to make the program

Engler's job training cuts are shortsighted

I WAS IN New York City last week attending a meeting of the Commission on Skills in the American Workplace, the national panel that has attracted a lot of attention by proposing, among other things, a national skills assessment for every kid leaving school. I got a ton of questions about what Gov. John Engler was up to.

"Michigan used to be the national leader in job training," a school superintendent from California said, "but the word we get is that your new governor is tearing that all apart. Has he got rocks in his head?"

Michigan's widely admired Opportunity Card program, through which people gained efficient access to a wide variety of job training programs, was among the first programs eliminated by the new admin-

Two people recalled asking Engler's chief of staff, Dan Pero, about the cuts in job training in Michigan. "Job training is not something government should be involved with," Pero is reported to have said. "We'll let the private sector worry about job training all that human investment stuff."

I'M CONFUSED. I thought the main priority of the new administration was education. Up to now I had thought that job training was education for adults to do their jobs better and to be more competitive. Why, then, is job training something to be left entirely to the private sector?

Engler himself added to my confusion in an exclusive interview with this newspaper. In it he suggested that job training money was badly spent in the Blanchard administration. The phrase "political cronyism" came up.

Michigan's widely admired Opportunity Card program, through which people gained efficient access to a wide variety of job training programs, was among the first programs eliminated by the new administration.

will be getting $168 million in job training money from the federal government, but that his administration will spend it in a better targeted

"We don't feel the reduction of a modest amount of general fund support, which is a percentage of the total program, is not something we can't overcome by doing a better job targeting the federal dollars," he said. "We think we'll get more job training, not less, out of the smaller investment,"

Less is more, I gather.

WHAT IS SADDEST about the whole mess is that Engler is in the process of throwing out the baby (the most advanced job training and human investment initiative in America) with the bathwater (the debris of the old Blanchard administration).

In part, what's going on here is the "not inventéd here" syndrome. If Blanchard's administration liked something, Engler's won't, by defini-

But surely, at the end of the day, that's a lousy way to run a state. After the initial rush of partisanship, most governors discover that good ideas, regardless of origin, are scarce and important.

MORE THAN that, the Opportunity Card system fits perfectly the empowerment theme now being developed by conservative theoreticians.

In providing people who want job training services ("customers") a card to provide access to all government job training programs ("choice"), the system was designed to empower people. Its purpose was to turn the entire system of government upside down, from supply-driven to demand-driven, from bureaucrat-controlled to customer-controlled.

I cannot imagine an initiative better suited to a radically conservative administration which has run into trouble by appearing to be callous and mean spirited in cutting out human services programs.

But then I've never been able to figure out why less is more. Except in political speeches.

State parks

Engler's latest budget target

N A DEMONSTRATION of arrogance and impudence, Gov. John Engler has stepped over the line in his quixotic quest to slay government services.

The state's park system belongs to all of us, for all of us to enjoy. Its use as a political pawn by our rookie governor should disgust and offend even the most stouthearted budget slashers.

Ideologically focused administrations can shift and cut funds with little harm to the long range benefit of the state's residents. After all, the natural course of American politics dictates that the pendulum of funding priorities swings to accommodate those in power.

But a chief executive who resolves to barter off state land is selling his constituents down a river in a journey that would take decades to make the return trip.

ENGLER'S BUDGET proposes turning over four state parks to local governments, private companies or organizations. As many as 18 state parks could be victimized by Engler's petard, according to Department of Natural Resources officials who are justifiably appalled at this reckless and irresponsible behavior.

Closest to home is the Rochester/Utica state facilities which is lingering in Engler's sights. Other targets include Ortonville, the upper peninsula's Lake Gogebic and Twin Lakes, as well as Michigan's vacation jewel, Mackinac Island.

Engler's formula for providing recreation was revealed recently when he came out in favor of destroying wetlands for the enrichment of a northern Michigan resort which plans to build a Our archaic-minded leader should heed the wisdom of David Stead, director of the Michigan Environmental Council: 'The state parks belong to the people of Michigan and we ought to take care of them . . . Absentee ballots Mail them to senior citizens

CHOOL DISTRICTS must step up to the mark and make sure senior citizens are mailed absentee ballots.

With the disappointing election turnouts, issues are being decided by a minority of voters. This is democracy at its poorest.

The complaint by some school officials that mailing out ballots is expensive for already financially strapped districts is hypo-

- For decades school officials have been playing hide and seek with senior citizens, a group not always friendly to district requests. Educators have depended on a small, pro-administration electorate to decide the fate of school millage issues that involve millions of dollars.

But that strategy has run its course.

In an era of declining support for new local tax dollars, it would behoove districts to seek out senior citizen support. Building an alliance with seniors, rather than hiding behind a wall of avoidance, is the wiser course.

Some cities have put their money where their mouths are by sending out absentee ballots to senior citizens -- automatically -- for every election.

School districts should follow suit. The reluctance of districts is the only factor stopping seniors from being full participants in

If school districts mailed the ballots to seniors, without "pamphleting" for a given school tax, it would add credibility to a district's request to the voters by alleviating the suspicion that districts don't want a group they consider "no voters" rejecting their millage.

He praises Sen. Riegle on liability

To the editor:

Federal Product Liability Reform (S.640) has been introduced in the U.S. Senate, and our own senator, Donald Riegle, is among the 31 initial cosponsors of this important piece of legislation.

Although I must admit that I did not vote for Sen. Riegle in the last election, his consistent support of product liability reform has convinced me to cast my ballot in his favor in future elections.

I am president of a small machine tool company which has been the victim of today's product liability system. It is a system rife with uncertainty as the laws governing product liability are determined almost exclusively by state court judges on a case-by-case basis.

To make matters worse, the judge-made rules are retroactive in their application. It's as though you were driving down the highway with all the speed limit signs pointing in the wrong direction. You wouldn't know the speed limits until you saw them in the rear-view mirror.

Current product liability rules foster confusion, unfairness, and wasteful transaction costs. S. 640 reforms some of the unfairness, unevenness, unpredictability, and inefficiency which characterize today's system.

It does so by establishing fair and balanced guidelines which encourage manufacturers and product sellers to keep their products safe while protecting the rights of injured consumers.

Sen. Riegle deserves support and appreciation from the citizens of Michigan for his outstanding leadership on this bill. Bruce L. Moore,

Abortion a disgrace

To the editor:

It is time everyone stops searching for constitutional threads to support pro-abortion stances like: "equal protection," "privacy," "choice - a misnomer," etc. It is time to face abortion as the disgrace it is, and that we are dealing with human life because:

No one will ever be able to prove when a person becomes a person. A better starting point on this issue is the developmental nature of the human person. There is no fixed point when we finish the lifelong process of becoming who we are.

Call the fetus anything you want, it is a developing infant. Call an infant anything you want, it is a developing child . . . adolescent to adult

. . Call an adult anything you want, he or she is a developing human person. At all stages we are dealing with human life no matter how thin one tries to shave any constitution to try to avoid this fact.

Tax backers to work hard

To the editor:

Although the millage has been deleated again; I think we can feel good about the fact there was over 7.000 "yes" voters this time. The turnout for this special election was the best yet. It is still unfortunate that a mere 500 people can determine the future of a school district.

As always, the children are the losers here. Further program cuts will be made and the quality of education will not be the same. Why can't people see what the impact of their no vote is doing to this once fine district?

It is too bad there are so many senior citizens and others against this much needed proposal because they are only hurting themselves and the future of the cities of Wayne and Westland. What else can be expected when Westland's own mayor is against the millage and there is a citizen's group working to make sure people only get a negative view of the school district.

Marsha Slenko,

Tax foes have vendetta

To the editor:

When the Wayne-Westland school district was defeated for the third time, I like 7,100 other people in this community felt destroyed. What had been an excellent institution of learning and a fine community had been brought to its knees by a cheering group of about 7,600 other people. The picture on the front page of the Observer caught the moment. It seemed to me to be saying that the dark side of our human psyche had won. Imagine, slapping high fives over the demise of the educational opportunities of 17,000 boys and girls.

I have favored the passage of the millage from the beginning. To me, taxes in and of themselves aren't necessarily bad, if they provided a corresponding service of improving my community and/or my property value. To those who opposed the millage, it was more than a millage election. It was a vendetta. "Damn the children! Damn our property values! Damn our community!" They wanted to send a message. What a high price to pay for a telegram. They won. We all lost.

Their victory didn't resolve a thing. They have only dug an ever deeper hole. Even if they win the available three seats on the school board in the June 10 election, they will not have the time to prepare and

In (miliage opponent) Mr. (David) Moranty's own words, "there were no winners." Believe it! Read the live with their own conscience of real estate ads in the local newspapers. Listen to those who are leaving this district or sending their children elsewhere. We got the message. We 'all lost!

 Now that you are in the driver's: seat, will you tell us your plan for recovery? If given the opportunity by the voters to lead the district, will you ask the non-teaching unions who haven't settled a contract to accept a wage freeze? Will you reinstate athletics, busing, the six-hour day at the secondary level, elementary physical education, art and music?

When you fire this administration, will you have a plan to pay new administration? Will you roll back the millage even further? Will you ask the teachers to give back their 11 percent pay raise? If you do, I am sure Mel Straight (local high school counselor and member of the group which opposed the millage) and all like him, will be the first to give it

The economic plight and demise of this district since March 13 is a condition imposed upon us by the Citizens for Education Committee. It is encumbent upon them to define a proposed board policy that will restore this district and make it whole. Election photo knocked

I was sickened by the photograph of people cheering the defeat of the Wayne-Westland millage which you choose to run on the front page of the Westland Observer. What are those people cheering about? That the children in their community will now have a weakened academic curriculum, no expressive arts, no sports and shortened school day?

Are they cheering because children who depend on buses to get to school must now walk and put their lives in danger? Are they happy that highs chool students will now graduate from non-accredited schools, making it even more difficult to gain entrance into the college of their

My guess is: these people are cheering because their personal vendettas against the district brought our proud system and its students to their knees. They made the students their sacrificial lambs to achieve their own selfish goals. That is really something to take pride in, isn't it?

These cheering people will have to what they did to the students in this district IF they have the courage to open their eyes and look around at the faces of the kids.

Shame on them and shame on you for showing their gloating faces on the front page. I'm sure it made our students day to see people cheering the demise of their educational sys-

Children are the big losers

To the editor:

For once, let us remember the children. Whatever your reason was for not voting, or for voting against the (Wayne-Westland school district) millage. I cannot understand them:

Were you too apathetic to come to your precinct and cast your vote? Do you seriously believe defeating the millage will change the way the system is run? That's doubtful - the school board will do what must be done in this weak economy. No money, no programs.

It's not solely the teachers' responsibility to educate our children. Parlems of the district. Let the citizens ents must become more involved in their children's lives, the community must take pride in well-educated students. This involves peoples time and money. We all must sacrifice to benefit the children.

I am not a teacher. My husband and I work hard to support our family. We believe in quality education as a means of providing a fair opportunity for today's children.

It's a shame what the voters have done. It is a crime more parents and former students of Wayne-Westland did not come out to say "yes" to our children. In the end, they are the innocent losers.

Education is valued

To the editor:

As a citizen of Westland, I was very upset the school millage didn't pass. I was reading an article in this months People Magazine and in it there is an article by David McCullough which states:

"Our public schools and great universities have long been considered the best in the world. And if our past can teach us anything it is that education - education second to none and open to all - has been our salvation, our making. That, too, has been part of the work of America, the good work of America. We are what we do. The test will be in what we value, what we want."

-What I and thousands of Westland residents value is a good education for our children. Our children are the future, what we want is for everyone to know that the only ones that are going to suffer now are our they deserve a good education. It's a shame we won't give it to them.

Madeline Hagelthorn,

Shame on tax opponents

To the editor:

Shame on you Mr. Moranty and your committee for cheering on the front page of the Observer at the loss of the millage. You sought to destroy our school district and our students will suffer while you cheer. You never once offered an alternative. This was a "vendetta" you won this time - but you are a "born loser."

Also a Mr. Warren who said M.E.A. (Michigan Education Association) spells "greed" (I'm not a member) - I think your five pieces of property in Norwayne spells "greed," not M.E.A. But that's OK in America - owning five pieces of property - but so is good education and your cheering crowd took that away from our kids here in America. Shame on you.

O&E editorial on abortion was deceptive

Your March 14th editorial on abortion is just another classic example of media bias and manipula-

Your editorial states that abortion is a medical procedure guaranteed by the Constitution. This is simply not true. The truth is that the Constichildren. Our children hot only need, tution of the United States never even mentions the word abortion.

On the other hand, the Declaration of Independence expresses clearly that all men (people) are endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights. The first and foremost of which is the right to life. It also states that his fundamental right is a self-evident truth. It mentions truth, not opinion.

Your editorial states that the ban on tax funding of abortions wrongfully eliminated guaranteed state payments for abortion is absolutely. wrong for a couple of reasons. First, the only reason we had state funding of abortions in Michigan in the first place was the fact that two governors vetoed legislation contrary to the wishes of most of our elected officials and most Michigan voters.

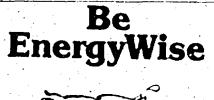

Second, the infamous Roe vs. Wade decision state that abortion is legal. It never stated or implied that abortion must be subsidized. There literally are thousands of things that are legal which poor people can't afford. If we taxed people so that poor people had all the legal things more affluent people have, we'd all be poor.

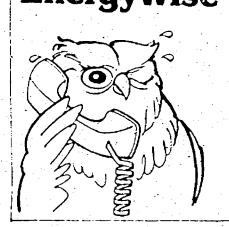

Let me remind you that the people in Michigan have twice voted on abortion issues and once went through legal channels to override the governors veto, so I think that the people in Michigan have a pretty good grasp of the issues. To imply that they were duped or deceived by Right to Life is to insult the voters' intelligence.

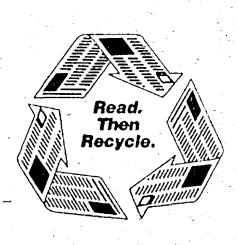

I suggest you are the one who is confused on the issues. If not, then why was your editorial so deceptive?

All we ask of the media is a little honesty and objectivity. Is this too much to hope for?

Best birdhouse builders

Area students win honors in O&E contest

Birds are choosy, just like people. So the nearly 500 young architects in the Best Birdhouse Builder Contest, part of the International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show at Detroit's Cobo Center, had to design a birdhouse worth chirping

All seventh and eighth graders attending schools in the O&E circulation area were eligible to enter. The contest meets state guidelines for math and science proficiency.

Give a bird the right house and it will raise a family, help keep bugs out of your yard and entertain you all day long. The overall shape and the entrance hole diameter determine the kinds of birds that'll call a house home.

In this year's second annual Best Birdhouse Builder Contest, overall winners were (with their school and birdhouse category):

• First place ($150 gift certificates) — Eighth grade, Eleanor MacDonald, Academy of the Sacred Heart, Bloomfield Hills, American Kestrel. Seventh grade, Joneston

Wood Duck.

• Second place ($100 gift certificates) - Eighth grade, David Kwiatkowski, Bloomfield Hills Middle School, Bloomfield Hills, Bluebird. Seventh grade, Tim Orlowski, St. Valentine, Redford, House Wrep.

• Third place ($50 glft certificates) - Eighth grade, Allison Rosinski, Russell Hilbert Junior High, Bluebird. Seventh grade, Laura Videcoq, St. Robert Bellarmine, Redford, American Robin.

TWENTY HONORABLE mentions ($25 gift certificates) went to:

• Eighth grade - Chris Deal, Holmes Middle School, Livonia, House Wren; Collin Krezeminski, Clawson Middle School, Clawson, Bluebird; Jonathan Russell, Detroit Country Day, Beverly Hills, Barred Owl; Chelsea Smoder, St. Michael, Southfield, American Kestrel; Ryan Griffin, Holmes Middle School, Livonia, Bluebird; Katie O'Neill, St. Valentine, Redford, House Wren; Chris-

Henson, John D. Pierce, Redford, Sacred Heart, Bloomfield Hills, House Wren; Mary Kauffman, St. Mary, Royal Oak, Bluebird; Stephanie Cook, Academy of the Sacred Heart, Bloomfield Hills, House Wren; Matt Britcher, Pioneer Middle School, Plymouth, Bluebird.

• Seventh grade — Jason Van Esley, Pierce Junior High, Redford, American Kestrel; Joe Gresham, St., Valentine, Redford, House Wren; Andy Higgins, Eton Academy, Birmingham, Bluebird; Brandon Moli-, tor, Adlai Stevenson Junior High, Westland, American Kestrel; Joseph Carroll, St. Michael, Southfield, House Wren; Stacey Welti, Fairlane Christian West, Northville, American Robin; David Leidel, Eton Academy, Birmingham, House Wren; Christine Stillin, Oakland Christian, Auburn Hills, Tree Swallow; Bryan Abedelnour, St. Robert Bellarmine, Redford, American Robin; Joel Sewell, Oakland Christian, Auburn Hills. builders show floor, next to the Cafeteria/Entertainment Area.

Each young architect receives a $10 gift certificate from Harmony House and a certificate of achievement from the O&E.

A plaque goes to each participating school. Teachers of first through third place winners receive a complimentary dinner for two at the Golden Mushroom, Southfield, courtesy of the O&E.

Contest judges represented the O&E, the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Judging criteria, based on the DNR's "Woodworking for Wildlife" habitat book, ranged from accuracy and creativity to design and workmanship. Entries had to be durable, rainproof, well ventilated, easy to clean and toxin free.

The builders show continues 1-10:30 p.m. today and Friday, 10 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Sunday.

A praised value.

As a matter of fact, you won't even have to have a blue hook to value a Saturn SL2. Just slip behind the wheel and you're bound to notice the difference in off-the-line pickup and ride between an SL2 and other cars in its class. A direct result of things like a powerful dual-overhead-cam-engine, a long 102-inch wheelbase and large 15-inch wheels. And while we could go on, perhaps the best idea is to stop by for a test drive and make your own valued appraisal.

Writer's acceptance of new ideas is limited.

Dear Lorene Green,

I find your weekly column very intriguing, however, I must admit I am somewhat puzzled or even skeptical, as I have often read replies. that could apply to myself 100 per-

Can you analyze my handwriting and perhaps prove my skepticism wrong? With all due respect, I truly do enjoy the uniqueness of your pro-

Handwriting can be compared to bridge hands in that no two are exactly alike. And no two analyses should be exactly alike either. However, I hope you can appreciate the fact that a newspaper analysis cannot delve into the complete personality picture like a private analysis can. Still, I will try to delineate your personality and hope you will find it more personal than some you have previously read.

I feel I should also mention that it is more difficult to be thorough when the letter is written on memo-sized paper as yours was. The spacing (word, letter, line and margin) is extremely important and revealing to the graphologist.

Skepticism does not come as a big surprise to me. Your handwriting suggests you were raised in a rather strict home and you find it comfortable to remain with many of the early patterns. You have a rather limited acceptance of new ideas and/or concepts. And once your mind is made up, you can be somewhat firmly based.

I see an emotional woman here. However, experiences have taught you to keep your emotions under control. You are reluctant to reveal what you are actually feeling. Instead, you tend to act in ways that are acceptable to those in your business world and those who mean most in your social life. You seem to feel you would be too vulnerable to hurts from others if you were to let your feelings be known. As a result, few people know the real you.

I do not mean to give the impres-an because you are. And you can also be fun and helpful as you share friendships with others. In addition, you need the support and recognition that comes from people relationships. And I think you want to be perceived as more confident than you sometimes feel.

Seemingly, you have a long mem-.ory for hurts and/or infringements. It is not easy for you to forgive and forget. Harboring resentments never, allows you to say and mean "let bygones be by gones."

You rather like having your own way and have a need to be right: A little tendency to fret over details is. also here.

Your verbal versatility cannot be missed! You are not comfortable with friction. Your tactful manner is a real asset in fostering smooth relationships and winning favor with others. But let no one be fooled, however, as you can also be defensive

The Problems of Suffering

By Sue Máson staff writer

When the curtain goes up on the Redford Baptist Church's musical drama Friday evening, it will prove what Donna Gleason thought seven years ago . . . "Hey, we can do that."

The church will present "The Twelfth Disciple," an original Easter drama by Gleason, the church's musical director, and her husband, Mark. It's not the first time the couple has collaborated on an Easter drama at the church, but it is the first one with original dialogue and

"The last five years Mark has written the plays and I take published music and fit. in," Gleason said. "It's OK, but it doesn't say what you want it to say. It doesn't gel."

GLEASON GOT the idea to do an-Easter drama after seeing a production at another church. Calling it a powerful way to present the message of God," the congregation decided to present its own drama the next year.

Using a published drama, "Resurrection," that Mark "fine tuned," she plugged in music where it seemed appropriate. Its success was all that was needed to start a tradition at the church.

However, the Gleasons decided to go for original works. Mark "bit the bullet" and started writing the plays.

An engineer with the Chrysler Corp., he carefully researches his subjects, then spends the fall writing the dialogue.

THIS YEAR'S play centers on Matthias, who was selected by the Apostles to replace Judas. The story line takes in the time from the start of Passion Week to just after the As-

The son of a Pharisee, Matthias had been baptized and had followed Christ's ministry. He also had witnessed the Crucifixion. His selection caused his family to disown him and the young woman he was to marry was betrothed to another man.

"We tried to show the interaction with the family and emphasize the kind of sacrifices he probably had to make," Gleason said.

"It took quite a bit to put the pieces together," Mark said. "I had to do a lot of research on the Jewish feast to make it as accurate as possible. We feel a responsibility to teach as well as entertain through what we have written."

Once the script was done, Gleason read it oyer. The reading and rereading helped her come up with 10 original musical pieces.

WRITING MUSIC is nothing new for Gleason, who has a degree in music composition from the University of Maryland. She wrote "her first little number" at the age of 6. She didn't find her niche writing church music, until her first choir director's job at the Lola Valley Methodist

"Most came quickly because I read the words and knew what I wanted to say in the song," she said. "Once you get the words the music flows very quickly."

Jeanine Stiles is directing the drama that has a cast of 35 actors and actresses, a stage crew of 15 and 25-30 choir members serving as the

John McPhail of Livonia has been cast as Matthias, while other cast members include Ed Kent of Farmington as his father, Julie Bertatelle of Ferndale as his mother and Linda Stiles of Plymouth as his fiancee.

Gene Emerson of Redford is Judas, with Mike Fhaner of Livonia as Justus and Tom Cahaher of Novi as Peter. Mark also has a part in the production, that of Jesus.

COMING UP with a new production each year is no easy task, the Gleasons said. They have to come up with a "fairly unique approach without covering the same ground," they

Twelfth Disciple."

"It's a lot of work," Mark said.

Gleason already has ideas "rumbling around" in her head for next year. With a "wonderful" selection of female singers at the church, she would like to do a play that has more female characters, possibly focusing on Pilate's wife.

THEY ALSO are looking at the possibility of having "The Twelth Disciple" published. If that isn't possible, they will copyright it and make it available to other churches.

"There's not really a glut of stuff out there," Gleason said. "There may be a glut of plays and there may be a glut of music, but there's not a glut of plays with specific mu-

The cast and crew have been preparing for the weekend performances since mid-January. The Gleasons are at a loss coming up with how many hours will have been invested in the drama when the final curtain drops.

"We work so hard on this that there's a lot of range of emotion when it's done," Gleason said. "When it sinks in that it's over, we realize we need a little break."

"The Twelfth Disciple" will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, March 22 and 23, at the church, Seven Mile and Grand River, Redford. There is no admission charge, however, visitors should arrive early for good seat-

Church must promote inner growth for men

The young man sat across the table. He spoke of many problems self and develop his talents, yet he needed money.

Then he spoke briefly about the predicament of sexuality. He talked and I listened. As we walked away from the restaurant, I reflected. It is rare for men to talk about their struggles.

Women have come a long way. Women share deeply in their support groups, divorce recovery groups, grief groups. Men still are closed. Even when we hurt, we isolate ourselves. A minister and I talked over lunch. We admitted that there he faced. He struggled with finding are few people with whom we can the right job. He wanted to be him- be totally honest. People have expectations of ministers. It is rare to find people or a group in which one can let it all hang out.

"How about the needs of other men?" we mused. If we were to start a men's sharing group, where would we begin? Who might come? For a while, we felt as though we might be breaking new ground.

WE ARE not. Yet for many men, opening ourselves to other men is new and difficult. In most cases, we men seek out women in whom Rev. David Strong we can confide. Yet this leaves many dimensions that are never addressed.

"Where would we begin?" we wondered. Let's begin with our fathers. Every man I have ever done counseling with has a lot to share about his father. From this beginning point, we might address our own experience as fathers.

There is the important issue of how older men have a positive impact upon younger men. "What about our struggle with our own vulnerability?" I added. I also remembered the young man with whom I had lunch. He mentioned how many single men are confused about how to deal with sexuality. The list grew.

1 thought about times men had really shared. Lives changed as a result. Men bonded in supportive ways. I wondered why these events were so rare. My son tells me that this is what deer hunting parties are all about. Yet even here some of the deeper dimensions dare not be mentioned. The word "competition" came to mind. How caught up we men are in this insanity. For too often, we try to make ourselves into machines in order to compete.

A group of women in our church suggested that we men form our-"support group. Maybe we men need liberating. I could not help but. wonder whether women want the men to change.

Sometimes, change creates chaos. Yet the church must be committed to transformation. Spiritual transformation cannot happen apart from the rest of life. It is time the church promote inner growth and humanization with

Deregulation brings changes to banking industry

By Doug Funke staff writer

This is the second article in an ongoing series about the banking industry in southeastern Michigan. This installment looks at consumerism.

Blame deregulation, bankers say, if you're weary of service fees on checking accounts, collection fees on utility bill payments and fees charged by some institutions on Automatic Teller Machine (ATM) transactions.

Stop grousing, they add, because shareholders aren't getting rich at

"What people think is rapacious gouging is not rapacious gouging, but reflective of changes that have taken place in our business," said Justin L. Moran, a consultant and spokesman for the Michigan Bankers Association.

"They don't realize banks are making 1 percent on their assests. Any bank that's been able to maintain profitability it's from service charges rather than spread," he said.

(Spread is the difference between interest received from borrowers and interest paid depositors.)

"Consumers are used to seeing prices increased annually in every other avenue they deal with," said Robert Heinrich, president of Metropolitan National Bank of Farmington. "They see it everywhere and yet have unreasonable expectations about banks. I think for too many years banks have been looked upon as quasi-public utilities."

FEDERAL DEREGULATION, implemented to help banks survive competition from money market funds, has changed the industry.

"When I was growing up, banks were very highly regulated," Moran said. "Two-thirds, three-quarters of savings were in checking accounts on which, until 1967 b; law, no interest was paid.

"You gave everything away. You (banker) had to be an incompetent fool not to make money," he added. "We had the Rule of Three. Pay 3 percent on passbook, mark up loans by 3 percent and be on the golf course by 3 p.m."

Bankers say they now look at the cost of all their services because the spread has narrowed and is getting squeezed even more.

First of America, for instance, has informed business checking customers that it will pass along the current FDIC insurance fee of .195 percent on those accounts starting in

EYE on BANKS

The FDIC fee, used to bail out failing banks and previously absorbed by First of America and other institutions, was .083 percent in 1989 and rises to .23 percent July

"Postage is another example of something that has gone up and wages to employees," Heinrich said. "Somewhere along the line, we have to get that back.'

Checking accounts are ripe targets.

"Over 50 percent of customers at a bank typically have only a checking account," Moran said. "They don't have certificates of deposit, money market accounts, savings accounts."

About half with checking accounts pay some kind of monthly service fee because they fail to maintain required monthly minimums in either the checking account or other accounts, Moran added.

The fees don't seem to vary much regardless of the size of the institution. For instance:

 Comerica charges $3.50 per month plus 39 cents per check on non-interest bearing checking accounts unless a minimum of $1,000 is maintained in the checking account, a savings account or a CD.

That amounts to $89 per year based on 10 checks per month and doesn't include the printing costs of the checks.

 Metro National Bank of Farmington, with three branches, charges a flat $6.50 per month -$78 per year — unless the balance on its non-interest bearing checking account remains above $500 or averages $1,500 for the month.

MONTHLY FEES are even higher if minimums aren't maintained on NOW interest bearing checking accounts at most banks.

But banks lose money servicing checking accounts even with those monthly charges, Moran maintains. He referred to a Federal Reserve

'Over 50 percent of customers at a bank typically have only a checking account. They don't have certificates of deposits, money market accounts, savings accounts.'

> - Justin Moran banking consultant study that showed Midwest banks incurred an average cost of $14 per month - $168 annually - to service a checking account in 1989.

"Checking accounts basically still are a loss leader for banks," Moran said. "You hope if they (consumers) get a credit card, they will get it through you, if they get a car loan, they get it through you; if they save to send their kids to college, they save through you."

Unit pricing also is the story offered free like utility bill payments.

"It used to be the utilities paid us to take the business," Moran said. "Now, they want to pocket that money. If the utility doesn't pay, we have to ask the customer."

A VARIETY of costs - personnel, computer charges, credit checks, bookkeeping and transaction fees also affect credit card and ATM operations.

"If you want a free credit card, citing Security Bank & Trust of Southgate.

That bank owns a computer company and is conservative about who is approved for credit, said William Davis, a credit manager for Security.

And what about the savings side? Interest rates on deposits savings accounts, CDs. money markets - are driven by both competition among banks and availability of money resulting from moves taken by the Federal Reserve

Minimum account balances to avoid monthly checking fees isn't a high priority, Johnson added.

Charges and interest rates shouldn't be - and aren't -- the only factors in deciding to do business with a particular institution.

"Look at how the account provides value - ATM locations, hours open. how they resolve complaints," said Rick Hebard, director of product management for Comerica. "Ask, 'Are they interested in me as a person?'

"Our surveys show that while rates and fees are important, people issues seem far more important," Hebard said.

Heinrich added: "The vast majority are interested in convenience."

"In the end, all you can take with you is what you've given away."

The focus of this month's financial profile is on a specific planning strategy that can work amazingly well in the right set of circumstances. The charitable remainder trust is a powerful tool with significant benefits to the donor and to the charity chosen by that donor.

Janet L. is a 63-year-old widow who lives in a comfortable Birmingham neighborhood. She is financially well off, with monthly expenses approximating $3,000 and regular income of $700 from Social Security and $1,500 from a pension. The $800 monthly shortfall is provided through income from several of her municipal bonds. The stock dividends and other interest income is reinvested.

Janet has one grown child, a son who owns a successful small business. He has two daughters, Janet's only grandchildren. Janet and her late husband were strong supporters of their church and also of two local arts organizations. They have made annual charitable contributions to these organizations for years. She would like to continue her support as long as possible.

Janet realizes that her estate will be subject to significant estate taxes upon her death. A calculation shows the estate tax due will be more than $140,000, and that she is in the 39percent marginal estate tax bracket. This bracket will likely go higher as her assets increase.

In the early 1960s, Janet invested $25,000 of an inheritance she received into a solid blue chip stock. issue. With splits in the stock and growth in the price per share, the stock has grown to almost $200,000 in value. She realizes she shouldn't have so much of her money in a single stock, particularly one that has had both ups and downs over the last 27 years. But she does not want to pay the substantial capital gains that she would incur upon sale. Almost one-third of the profit would be paid to the IRS in capital gains taxes.

ALL OF THESE factors make Janet a perfect candidate for considering a charitable remainder trust. in such a trust, the person setting up and funding the trust (the "grantor") typically receives a steady income for a period of time, perhaps for life. The remainder of the assets placed into the trust go to the charity or charities, usually at the death of the

Win-win with a charitable trust

The income paid can be a specified percentage of either the initial contribution made to the trust (an "annuity trust") or a percentage of the value of the trust at a specified date each year (a "unitrust").

This payment percentage is usually between 5 and 9 percent per year. Because the dividend yield on her stock is just 2.9 percent, she will obviously increase her income with the charitable trust strategy. Besides this income benefit, there are substantial income tax and estate tax benefits for Janet.

In the charitable remainder trust, the charitable beneficiaries are established by Janet when she first sets up the trust. She can allocate. among the charities as she wishes at that time. But she should not act as trustee of the charitable remainder trust. In Janet's case, we have suggested that her son be the trustee.

We recommend that Janet establish the trust and donate her inherited stock to the trust. The trust can then sell that highly appreciated stock and there is no capital gains tax due because the trust is a nontaxable entity. The $200,000 can then be invested in a more diversified and less volatile mix of assets.

Janet opted for the higher payout percentage of 9 percent per year.

9-percent income ($18,000) per year for the rest of Janet's life. If Janet had sold her stock herself, she would have had to pay capital gains tax of about $55,000 and invest the remaining $145,000 at about 12½ percent to generate that same $18,000 income;

Janet receives an immediate charitable deduction of approximately $56,000. The amount of the deduction is determined by using an IRS table that changes monthly and is based on the age of the donor and the payout rate specified.

IN JANET'S CASE, this tax deduction will actually be spread over several years. The tax code limits charitable deductions of appreciated property to 30 percent of adjusted gross income in any one year. Any unused deduction is carried forward for up to five additional years.

In our calculations, Janet will use the $56,000 deduction over a fouryear period at a rate of approximately $15,000 per year. This will save almost $5,000 in income taxes in each of those four years.

By putting this stock into the trust, Janet has effectively removed the $200,000 from her estate. Using current estate tax rates, this will save more than $75,000 in estate taxes. Thus, a good portion of the charitable donation is indirectly "paid for"

7373 Third Avenue

Thus, the full $200,000 will generate by Uncle Sam. In allowing this strategy to reduce taxes, the government encourages individuals and companies to make gifts to charitable or-

Janet might want the full value of her current estate to pass on to her family. There is another strategy she should consider to meet this objective, assuming she is in reasonaably good health.

She could establish an irrevocable trust with her son or grandchildren as beneficiaries. The trust would own and pay premiums on a life insurance policy on Janet's life. The death benefit would replace the net value of the stock placed in the trust. If properly set up, the life insurance proceeds would not be included in her taxable estate and thus would not increase her estate tax problem.

THE PREMIUM of this insurance policy could be paid for by using a portion of the increase in income being paid to her by the charitable remainder trust. Remember that her current dividend yield on the inherited stock is 2.9 percent or $5,800 per

With her annual income increasing to $18,000 from the trust, she can give money to the irrevocable trust to pay the premiums and still have money left over each year.

When used properly, these strategies are clearly win-win situations. She benefits by increasing her income, receiving a charitable deduction for several years, avoiding capital gains taxes and reducing her es-

This allows Janet to plan for and be recognized for her charitable activities during her lifetime, and yet she maintains or enhances her longterm financial security. The charity obviously benefits by receiving all assets remaining in the trust at death. Such strategies should be pursued only after receiving competent professional counsel.

In the right situations, they can be a powerful and satisfying means of accomplishing charitable and taxplanning objectives.

Shakeout is coming, and Honda's not immune

By Dan McCosh staff writer

Is it time to start feeling sorry for

Let's face it, we Americans are so in love with underdogs, we end up making them so popular, they end up overdogs, and then we kick them in the shins. This trait is manifested in the auto business through such phenomena as excessive Beetle worship, or the way the phrase "gas-guzzling dinosaurs" keeps slipping into the common language, even five years after American Motors bit the dust.

Somehow this never quite worked. for the Yugo, but we have embraced just about any other car that has at least had the appearance of struggling against the establishment loosely defined these days by General Motors, Ford and Toyota.

One major beneficiary of this mentality has been Honda, in the minds of many Americans the archetypal Japanese car company, despite the fact that in Japan a Honda has as little panache as driving a used Checker taxi.

WELL, MAYBE A little better than that. But Honda has been on the outside of the Japanese auto establishment for a variety of reasons, and its independence clearly has helped it in the American market, while doing little good in its home

Interestingly enough, Honda's problems in Japan stem at least partly from the same reason American and other foreign companies have such a tough time reversing the import-export ratio. The retail market in Japan is dominated by factothe newfound aggressiveness of Mitsubishi, which is an arm of the largest industrial-banking complex in Japan.

Add to this a noticeable softening and Honda indeed appears to be in some degree of trouble.

On the surface, the softening in sales would appear to be temporary, mainly recession-related - the kind of thing that blows over when the THIS SYSTEM is imploding on credit eases. But in Honda's case, it Honda these days, particularly with is obvious it has been running on thin margins, and the drop in retail sales in both countries is likely to hurt.

The much ballyhooed fast changes in Honda product lines, for example, necessarily mean a quick return of invested tooling capital, and any slip tries in the world. in full production cuts that return.

Honda, to its credit, has spent more heavily on engineering than most car companies, but this brings on a corresponding cost burden.

LIKEWISE, THE heavy reliance on the U.S. market, where profits are thin, is another Honda problem. Much of its success has been due to the Accord line, often misrepresented as the best selling car in the U.S. (In fact, it only earns that title if both the four- and two-door models are added together.)

If the Accord falters, it's as serious as a break in mini-van sales is to Chrysler these days. Add to this the fact that Honda's other key product lines, mainly motorcycles and small engines, are among the most competitive manufacturing indus-

ALL THESE factors add up to less capability to roll with the punches than the big cash cows such as GM, Volkswagen, Toyota, Daimler-Benz or Fiat.

Does this mean that Honda is going under? Hardly, Still, we are only a couple of years into the new era of automobile manufacturing where Japanese labor costs are: about equal, and in some cases more costly, than the rest of the western industrial nations.

We are going to see some shakeouts in the Japanese industry, and Honda is not immune.

Coaching helps unsatisfactory worker

"We believe that all development, is self-development; we, the company, provide the right environment for you, the individual, to develop yourself. We also provide the opportunities, and if you do not take advantage of these opportunities, then it is your decision to fail, not ours." Found posted on an employee lunchroom wall, this endorsement of self-development theory sounds fine, but it also represents a self-destructive approach to employee training.

Realisticaly, business owners and managers interested in developing the fullest potential of their business must also be interested in developing the fullest potential of their people.

AN IMPORTANT concept of working with people is recognizing that when you hire employees, you are not buying their bodies and souls, but merely renting their behavior. This suggests that you must take responsibility for molding that behavior through coaching so desirable results and profitable productivity is achieved.

Although self-development theory may be appropriate for those few people who are self-starters and yearn for ways to improve themselves, the key to successful management is what you can accomplish through others.

The primary purpose of coaching as a method of training is to determine what is influencing unsatisfactory performance. Coaching is required only when the performance of a new employee does not match expectations. When an individual is performing satisfactorily, he or she should should receive positive reinforcement, not coaching.

MANY EMPLOYERS don't like to

face up to an employee's performance problems. They have a tendency to put off discussion until it becomes a difficult, if not impossible, situation to handle and correct.

Some business owners have actually told me that it would be easier if the individual in question would quit so he or she wouldn't have to be confronted about unsatisfactory performance. At he other extreme are owners who delegate the responsibility of coaching employees to someone else who needs it just as much, if not more so.

As you coach your employees, make sure that you are getting the individual involved, not simply talking at him or her and giving instruc-

Trinity House is a success story

By Victoria Diaz special writer

YNICS MIGHT HAVE said they didn't have a prayer. After all, they were just a little ragtag church group putting on a play almost nobody had ever heard of (one of them had written it) inside a small Baptist church in Livonia. When the Saturday night performance was over, they had to dismantle the stage to make room for a church service the next morn-

Now, 10 years later, Livonia's Trinity House Theatre is celebrating its anniversary by making plans to soon "go professional." Already, the has hired on full-time artistic director Peter Senkbeil, fresh out of Chicago and Northwestern University's prestigious dramatic arts program. The group hopes to pay performing artists, directors, technical and management staff within the next five

In addition, it is extending its season to four plays instead of the usual two, adding to the number of performances of each play, scheduling two staged readings per session, workshopping plays by area playwrights and setting up classes for actors and technical directors.

And, oh, yes, it now has that church building, on Six Mile Road approximately 60-member group near I-275, all to itself, renting it from the congregation that moved to larger quarters several years ago: (It is not affiliated with that church.)

> SENKBEIL, WHO took over his job last September, thinks the key to the group's success lies in a couple of

> "First of all, we offer a high-quality product," he says. "Then, we provide, I suppose, a kind of entertainment alternative for Christians. From what we can gather, a good segment of our audience is made up of church members, many of whom simply don't attend a lot of other theater. So, we're tapping into a new audience, and into an audience that tends to be very loyal."

Having said that, Senkbeil emphasizes strongly, however, that all auditions and crew calls are open to the general public, and that Trinity House has never limited itself to any kind of "evangelistic drama."

"The overriding principle for choosing scripts is our desire to examine the depth and complexity of the Christian world view through theater," he told group members in a recent newsletter. "(We are) not doing 'Christian Theatre,' rather, we are Christians doing theater."

Through the years, the group has examined that Christian view by staging such diverse and well-known plays as Shaw's "Arms and the Man," T.S. Eliot's "The Cocktail Party" and Harold Pinter's "The Dumb Waiter."

ALONG WITH the works of name playwrights, Trinity House also has offered a number of original plays by area writers. In fact, almost half the 40-plus plays it has staged since 1981 have been such productions.

This anniversary season will conclude in June with a musical, "The Paradise" by Henry Woodworth, Sarah Hedeen and Paul Patton. All are members of the Trinity group, and Patton (then youth minister, now pastor at Livonia's Trinity Baptist Church on Merriman Road) put together that very first production, a rock musical called "Gravity," 10 years ago.

One of the main goals at Trinity House, Senkbeil says, has been to present plays that aren't "done to death."

"We may choose plays that don't have especially big names, that aren't among the most popular productions in the world,," he says. "For instance, we haven't done 'Steel Magnolias' and probably won't do it.

Through its choice of plays, the group sometimes finds itself in a rather controversial situation.

need right now is another production of 'Steel Magnolias.' "

"THIS SEASON, we thought it was very important to be doing a play like "When the Wind Blows," which makes a very colorful statement about the consequences of war," says Senkbeil. "We chose the play back in July before any of the things in the Middle East happened. So, when we produced it in January, we found ourselves in the strange position of being the only theater in the Detroit area doing an anti-war play when the war broke out."

As this season nears its end, the community theater group already is looking forward to next year, and the plays that will go on the boards then. Senkbeil says the play selection committee now is "seriously looking" at about 20 plays, trying to decide on the final four for the 1991-92

"As we consider plays, we ask basically, two questions: Does the play say something we as Christians want to say, and does the play stand as born, Julie Cullen of Westland and Sarah Hedeen of Livonia. for the work." 'From what we can gather, a good segment of our playwright realize his or her vision

IN THE MEANTIME, Trinity's future appears to look as bright as an ingenue's smile.

"Our budget was tripled this year, but we're still operating in the black," says Senkbeil, adding that Trinity House is financed solely through members' annual dues, tick-

"We did four shows this year instead of two, plus two staged readings. Our first show did what we expected it to do. 'When the Wind ... Blows' made money far beyond what we expected."

Advance sales for Trinity's current production "Dracula" have been brisk. Opening night and Saturday night were sell-outs, although tickets are still available for other weekend performances through Saturday,

This version of "Dracula" is not simply a rehash of the original play and all the "Dracula" movies that followed, Senkbeil stresses. Adapted by Kerry Cederberg Meads and Robert Smyth, it was first performed by the Lambs' Players Theatre in San Diego in 1988, and examines the spiritual nature of the classic tale by Bram Stoker.

Performances of the Trinitu House Theatre production of "Dracula" continue through Saturday, April 6, at Trinity House in Livonia. For ticket information, call 464-6302.

By Victoria Diaz special writer:

Over the years, I've seen a lot of community theater productions. Some were very good. Some were 'not so good. Most were somewhere' in between. Until this week, I'd seen only one that I considered to be excellent. Then I dropped in at Livonia's Trinity House Theatre Satur-

I suppose that THT's current production of "Dracula" is not perfect. Perhaps a couple of the props aren't exactly right or something. But about the worst thing I can think of to say at this point is that the orangeade served during intermission is a bit on the tepid side.

Few of us, I assume, saw the original 1920s' play that made Bela Lugosi a star. Maybe more of us recall the 1930 movie, or all the Dracula films that followed.

This "Dracula," though, is actually like none of them. According to THT artistic director Peter Senkbeil, this version, adapted by Kerry Cederberg Meads and Robert Smyth, was the first performed in 1988 by the Lamb Players in San Diego.

WHILE IT IS, of course, a horror story (what tale about a guy who drinks blood for a living wouldn't be?), the real emphasis here is not on the horror.

It is, instead, a tale of good vs. evil that follows very closely the original

Bram Stocker novel. Many of the lines, in fact, are taken directly from the book.

It's presented here in chamber theater form. If you've seen "Nicholas Nickleby," you will remember this is a mode of drama in which actors address the audience and then turn to become part of the action on, stage. You may find it a bit distracting at first, but after awhile it seems to serve as just the right touch for this particular play.

Here are a few other details as to why this production succeeds so

No play, of course, gets to be something that knocks your socks off without considerable doses of astute direction. Director Senkbeil is to be applauded here for everything from the well-sustained atmosphere of dread and horror to the perfectly-atease cast, to the memorable staging. The final, climactic scene is marvelous - something you absolutely, positively will not soon forget.

DENNIS T. KLEINSMITH is practically flawless as the evil vampire, Count Dracula. When he makes his first appearance (be prepared for some surprises here) he is utterly heart-stopping. Graceful and elegant in a gruesome sort of way, he is a wonderful scene maker, often appearing as if he just stepped from a waxworks museum. His Dracula is evil incarnate, a kind of cold, untouchable thing, always seeming just the other side of human.

David T. Denis turns in a fine performance as the beleagured "guest," Jonathan Harker, trapped in Dracula's eerie Transylvania castle. A kind of moody, Montgomery Clift look-alike, he seems perfectly cast.

Gary Brda, in a funny-sad role, makes a lively asylum inmate, given to dining on flies and other hapless insects. Larry Pelliccioni as the sometimes-befuddled psychiatrist,

'Arsenic and Old Lace' could be zanier but still is lots of fun

Performances of the Schoolcraft College production of "Arsenic and Old Lace" continue through Saturday, April 6, on campus in Livonia. Dinner is at the Waterman Campus Center and performances at the Liberal Arts Auditorium. Dinner theater performances are Friday-Saturday, March 22-23, and show only, March 29-30 and April 5-6. For ticket information, call the college bookstore at 462-4409.

The loveable old ladies are at it again in Schoolcraft College's production of "Arsenic and Old Lace." The "it" of course (on the odd chance you don't know the show) refers to giving poisoned wine to elderly gentleman, then burying their bodies in the cellar.

As has been the case for 50 years on stages around the world, this latest cast has great fun with Joseph · Kesselring's classic comedy.

The actors need to stretch and take more chances with their characters, however. "Arsenic" provides performers with one of the most outlandish set of screwballs in American theater. Schoolcraft's cast has the beginnings of some interesting eccentrics. What's needed are more quirks, gestures and oddball busidown a hill. Ideally, it should grow in size and momentum to a big finish. Great moments (no matter how well played) followed by lapses in pace or character tend to diminish the total effect.

SPEAKING OF effects, director James Hartman's Victorian setting is excellent. And the Scott Joplin music establishes just the right mood for a mirthful evening of making fun of murder.

Jeanne Bageris and Fave Driscoll are perfectly charming as the seemingly innocent but deadly Brewster sisters. A little more senility or daffiness, would make them even more believable as two ladies who have poisoned 12 old men and performed church services to assure they would have proper Christian burials.

frantic manner than usual. It tends to overshadow his truly frenzied moments (like when he discovers bodies in the window seat - and that his aunts are the culprits).

John Schultz is quite sinister as Jonathan Brewster. He is the black sheep of the family and has returned home to hide out after killing 12 men of his own. With a bit more tension and energy to his speech and mannerisms, his Jonathan would be exceptional.

SEAN SULLIVAN almost steals the evening as his weird sidekick, Dr. Einstein, an alcoholic plastic surgeon. His German accent is right on, and he has a nice sense of comic

Wildlife roams free at San Diego animal park

By Sally Sawyer special writer

We mounted the four-wheeldrive land rover with Tom Lavites, a former Michigan resident and our guide for the day's safari. During the next few hours we fed and counted flamingos, talked to a reticulated Rothschild giraffe, dodged dangerous cape buffalo and stood within arm's reach of three northern white rhinos.

No. we weren't in Africa, we were in the San Diego Wild Animal Park. The park is a companion property of the famous San Diego Zoo, situated 30 miles south in the city of San Diego, Calif.

The Wild Animal Park emphasizes open space; 1,800 acres of it in the foothills along the San Pasqual Valley. Animals live in mixed groups as they would in the wild, except they have no natural predators. The park began as a dream in 1916, when a physician heard; caged lions roaring during a temporary exhibit at Balboa Park in San Diego. The dream came true when Dr. Charles Schroeder established this wild animal park in

I was surprised when a card from Greenhill House arrived in the mail recently. I had pleasant memories of a one-night stay on the beautiful farm of James and Elizabeth Hegarty in Northern Ireland, but hadn't heard from them since.

"I don't know whether you remember us, but just thought I would write you a short note to let you know that we had guests, Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams from Rochester Hills, this year. They had kept the cutting from the Michigan paper on the article you had written about us in October 1981.

We are very interested in old castles, or better yet, haunted castles like you see in the movies. Do You know of any? Are there any circumstances where tourists can stay overnight in castles? Any information you can give us will be much appreciated.

V.H., Hartland

One of the nice things about castles is that they are almost all haunted. You can stay in castles in many parts of England, Ireland and Scotland, as well as in several countries on the European continent.

If you and 20 of your friends want to rent a whole castle for $4,000 to $9,000 a week, you can call Hometours International toll-free at (800) 367-4668 and ask for listings in Castiglionchio in Italy or the country of your choice. If you just want a room, and you are not inclined to mortgage your house to get it, read on. Spain and Portugal have both built tourist hotels in local travel agent.

their old castles. They are very popular, so book ahead. For information about Spanish paradores, contact the National Tourist Office of Spain, 845 N. A hotel association called Relais et Chateaux will connect you with excellent, if somewhat high-priced, castle hotels in Europe, mostly in France. You can get information by calling David Mitchell and Co. in New York, toll free at (800) 372-1323. A copy of the hotel guide is $5.

The most popular castle accommodations in Great Britain are in Scotland, just across the border from England. For information on England, Scotland or Northern Ireland, contact the British Tourist Authority, 625 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, IL 60611, (312) 787-

Costner film expected to boost German tourism in S. Dakota

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) - The movie "Dances With Wolves" promises to be even more popular in Europe than it has been with American audiences, and that could prompt more foreign tourists to visit the

"Most Europeans come here for the same reason others do - Mount Rushmore, the national parks and the Black Hills in general," said Bill Honerkamp, director of the Black Hills Badlands & Lakes Association. "But Germans show a higher interest than others in the romance of the West and the American Indian."

Ray Winters, museum technician at the Sioux Indian Museum in Rapid City, said he believed "Dances With Wolves" would do well in Germany.

"They say that it won't be hard to translate because of the English subtitles already," he said, "I think it will benefit South Dakota in the long run and boost tourism here."

The Germans and English top the list of foreign visitors to the museum, but Germans in particular have a fascination with Plains Indians.

Winters believes the romance that Germans have with Indians may have begun when Buffalo Bill Cody took some Indians with him on his Wild West Show tour to Germany in the 1890s.

Today members of Indian clubs in Germany make bead work, tan hides and practice other traditional Plains Indian crafts:

South Dakota tourism officials plan to capitalize on the opening of the film in Frankfurt, Germany.

Majestic Films International, the European distributor for "Dances with Wolves," has offered the tourism promoters exclusive use of a theater in Frankfurt to host tour operators, travel agents, media and representatives of the German office of the U.S. Travel and Tourism Administration.

Continental Airlines has provided two round-trip tickets to South Dakota from Frankfurt that will be given away at the German showing. The South Dakota Department of Tourism will coordinate ground arrangements for the winner.

Publicity from the movie also is helping to promote South Dakota with American travelers.

We visited Mission Beach in San Diego, which was busy with tattooed sunbathers, black leather and motorcycles. This not being our "thing." we traveled north to La Jolla where we found La Jolla Cove, and a spectacular beach, quiet except for the sound of the crashing waves.

To me there is nothing more peaceful than digging your toes into cool white sand, feeling the wind in your hair, the sun on your face and the smell of fresh air.

.The town of La Jolla is quaint, affluent and has lots of shops and art galleries to wander through.

We ate at some great restaurants. The mainstays in San Diego are Mexican and Italian food. We ate at an outdoor Mexican cafe in Old Town nestled in lush tropical vegetation under a blue sky. The food was authentic and reasonably priced.

Michigan Department of Transportation's Aeronautics Bureau has installed an Automated Weather Observing System at Mackinac Island Airport. LAST CHANCE FOR SNOW

Indianhead Mountain and Bear Creek Ski Resort in Wakefield hold their annual Upper Peninsula Snowbeach Party March 23-24. People driven crazy by winter will have outdoor barbecues, play snowbeach volleyball, participate in a Beach Costume Contest and otherwise lose their minds in a snowbank. Indianhead loves to brag about its late-winter early-spring skiing, so they've got a Family Fest, a Kids Fun Race, a teen-agers bash and other things going on this weekend, too. Give them a break, at least they don't push beds across the ice like they do in Wisconsin!

GOT A WHALE PERMIT?

Sea World Inc. has applied to the National Marine Fisheries Service for a permit under the Marine Mammal Protection Trust to import a killer whale from Windsor Safari Park near London. The park now has 2,200 animals, representing more than 225 species of birds and mammals, including the largest number of hooved animals ever assembled on Earth. More than 60 southern white rhi-'nos, as well as several gorillas and okapis, have been born there.

Tom Layites was letting us tag along on his daily run through the park. The public can't do that, but visitors can arrange a photo safari on an open truck with a guide of their own.

Lavites is a bird specialist now, à status he never imagined he'd obtain when he graduated in 1971 from Wayne State University with majors in English and humanities.

He was at Central Michigan University when got a job walking horses on a race track and began his love affair with animals. He learned to break horses and became a jockey, following the circuit from Detroit to Kentucky, Arkansas and elsewhere.

Eight years ago, Tom followed his natural reverence for animals into a job at the San Diego Wild Animal Park, where he now specializes in birds.

Tom's first stop was to feed and count flamingos. The park has four of the six remaining species of lesser and greater flamingos remaining in the world. Flamingos are filter feeders, and special eating stations were set up for them so migrating birds wouldn't get all their food.

Park "residents" must also be protected from endemic animals such as coyotes and bobcats. Because of the recent drought, even local pelicans have been moving into the park's waterholes!

On a small hill behind us, a beautifully reticulated Rothschild giraffe moved closer, recognizing Tom. He called her by name, but seeing us, she didn't come closer. Further on were antelope, impala and a large old-world marabou stork. The "star" of Ishtar, a whiteback vulture, was elusive, but we heard he has quite a personality and would probably turn up on a Johnny Carson show!

Once again keeping a safe distance in the rover, we passed a herd of cape buffalo. "Those are the most dangerous people killers in Africa," Tom said. "Lions are afraid of them, even the cows." Real Mozzarella cheese comes from buffalos.

San Diego Wild Animal Park bird specialist quires as to the well-being of one of the parks Tom Lavites, a former Michigan resident, in- many rhinos.

Tom carefully showed us incubators for endangered species and told how the California condor, Arabian oryx and pygmy chimps had been saved from extinction.

Next, we were in for a real treat. We stopped less than 10 feet from three females northern white rhinos. They are among the most endangered species in existence and appear as the visual logo on the red and white Wild Animal Park patch. Tom scratched "one of the girls," the others moved jealously forward to get some attention, too.

"This park has the largest collection of animals in the world," Tom. said. "It presents a great opportunity for study, especially in subjects like genetics. We also have a keeper training program. In fact, the park has turned out to be a curator factory."

Tom carefully showed us incubators for endangered species and told how the California condor, Arabian oryx and pygmy chimps had been saved from extinction; how park "midwives" helped birth weak birds by carefully removing tiny parts of their shells daily.

Why would anyone choose to work for low pay in a potentially dangerous setting? "Working with animals," Tom answered. "I'm outdoors all year around and I work with wonderful people. Dave Rimlinger, head of birds here, is going to China to help them preserve one of their species. That's how much our collected knowledge is appreciated elsewhere:

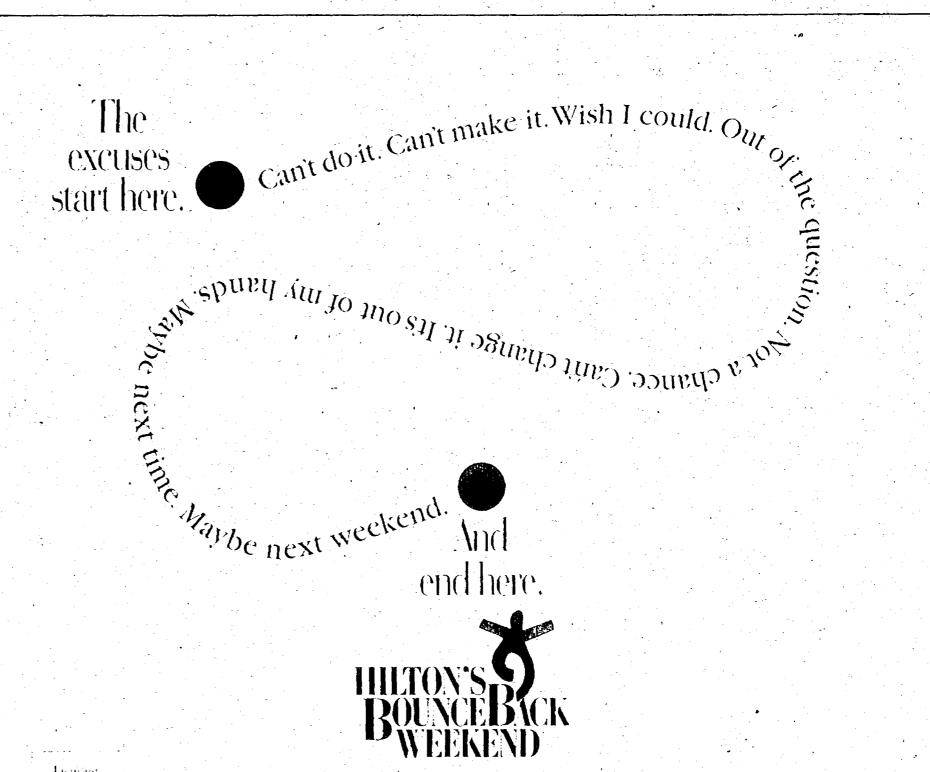

All this year the Wild Animal Park and San Diego Zoo are celebrating the zoo's 75th anniversary. Free pins commemorating the fateful lions' roar will be given out along with a new and different show each day.

"The zoo of the future," said Dr. Heinrich Dathe, director of Tier Park in Berlin, "should be a paradise for animals." I could add that the Wild Animal Park in San Diego is a paradise for people, too.

For a delightfully humorous and sometimes sad account of the world famous San Diego Zoo and Wild Animal Park read "Lifeboats To Ararat" by Sheldon Campbell who worked at the zoo more than 40 years and is a trustee.

The San Diego Wild Animal Park is open all year. Tickets are $14.50 for adults, $7.50 for children age 3-15; kids 2 and under get in free. Your admission ticket includes the monorail, animal shows and exhib-

Photo safaris, which must be reserved well in advance, cost $60 for 90 minutes and $85 for three hours. For more information, contact the San Diego Wild Animal Park, 15500 San Pasqual Valley Road, Escondido, CA 92027-9614 or telephone (619) 234-6541.

Churchill's Hughes a teacher 1st

HE COACH OF the newly crowned state Class A volleyball champions was tending to some unfinished business late Monday afternoon in his office.

"What are you doing there at this hour?" I asked him over the phone around 5:30 p.m.

Mike Hughes replied: "We've got a starters rank among the top 10 acaconference coming up on Russian history. I had to catch up on a few things. Remember, I wasn't in school on Friday.'

Most of the time Hughes considers himself a social studies teacher, not a coach.

"Teaching is my love, that's what I do best," he said. "Coaching is something I enjoy, but it's not nearly as important."

But over the weekend, Hughes' coaching job could not be ignored.

After 14 years, Hughes reached the mountain top, guiding Livonia Churchill to three straight victories, including a 15-12, 15-8 victory Saturday over Temperance-Bedford in the finals at Kalamazoo's Nazareth Col-

SO WAS IT time to let loose, do a little dance and parade the state championship trophy around the gym - right? No, that isn't Hughes' style.

He let his players do the celebrating, treating the conquest as just another match.

Pack the balls in the bag and head

It was the same way six weeks ago when his Churchill team, unbeaten and untested, left a path of destruction against a field of stateranked teams in the Schoolcraft Invitational. Hughes was low key.

And the next Monday, before a large crowd at home, Hughes never changed expressions, even after his team's 30-game winning streak was snapped by city rival Stevenson.

State rankings? Hughes could care

"WE USED TO practice on Saturdays, but not anymore," he said. "My emphasis has always been on academics. Those things are more important than volleyball."

Where many teams practice and play year-round, Hughes takes a different approach.

"We run a two-week clinic in the summer, anybody and everybody is welcome, we work on basic individual skills," he said.

Hughes, a product of Detroit Cooley High School and Wayne State University, got into coaching only aftér budget cuts cost fellow teacher Roberta Kempski her social studies job and varsity volleyball position

In 14 seasons he has only had one losing record. His overall mark is 399-116-32.

This year's team broke the school record for wins, finishing 47-1-1. On paper, the Chargers are not impressive, their tallest player being only 5-feet, 9-inches. Holland West Ottawa marched into Nazareth's gym as the overwhelming favorite with a 65-0 record, but when it was all over, many fans and coaches in the stands admired the tenacity and teamwork displayed by Hughes' club. After Friday's 15-7, 15-6 quarterfinal win over Grosse Pointe South,

Hughes and his girls scouted the rest of the competition and came away convinced they could win it all. "It was an honor to be there, but they believed they could beat the other teams," Hughes said. "Wayne Memorial has a fine team, but they pushed Holland West Ottawa to the limit (a 12-15, 15-9, 15-11 score). There was no question in their minds they could play West Ollawa. They felt they were the best team."

THE SCOUTING report on Churchill: Small team, scrappy, good defensively.

"We pass and serve extremely well," Hughes added. "Both of our middle hitters (Christina Garry and Alyssa Belaire) are excellent, and are utilized well by an outstanding setter (Amy Baron)."

The Chargers won their semifinal match against Bay City Central (15-10, 12-15, 15-9) and then watched Temperance-Bedford upend West Ottawa in the other semifinal on Saturday (5-15, 16-14, 15-6).

Career move

Cunningham goes professional route

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

Carrie Cunningham's recent decision to turn pro had nothing to do with dollars — only sense.

After climbing to a 39th ranking in the world playing as an amateur on the International Pro Tennis Tour, the 1990 Livonia Churchill graduate decided earlier this month it's time to turn professional. Although not guaranteed any big money in her first year, Cunningham and her parents, John and Carol Tenerowicz. felt it was in her best interest to turn Cunningham's other option was to accept a tennis scholarship to Stanford University next fall, and hold off on a professional career. Cunningham turns 19 on April 28.

'We were trying to figure out whether it made more sense for her to pursue tennis as a pro right now or college," John Tenerowicz said. "and right now, given her ranking, interest and dedication to pursue a pro career, she decided to defer college.

"SHE'S A BIT young to make a career decision, but in tennis it's appropriate to do that. The decision was to pursue tennis as a professional, not get rich overnight.'

Cunningham found out last weekend, making her professional debut in the Lipton Internationl Players Championships at Key Biscayne, Fla. After receiving a bye in the first round, Cunningham lost in the second round to Florencia Labat, 4-6, 6-

Cunningham bounced back Tuesday in doubles play as she and partner Amanda Coetzer of South Africa survived a second-round battle with Poland's Renata Baranski and England's Samantha Smith, 6-2, 6-3. The win moved Cunningham and Coetzer into Wednesday's round of 16 against teen-wonder Jennifer Capriati and Gabriela Sabatini (the third-seededsingles player). Reached at her hotel Tuesday in

Miami, Cunningham said she was pleased to win the doubles match after performing below standard in her lone singles match.

Cunningham said she will play this weekend in the U.S. Hardcourts in San Antonio, Texas before heading to Tokyo the following week for the Suntory Open.

"I WAS VERY, very tentative," said Cunningham, who was accompanied on the trip to Florida by her mother. "I think it did affect me playing pro for the first time. It hasn't really hit me yet. If I do well there's a lot of money. If I don't, there's not much. Being rich isn't the point of it, but I have dreamed of being pro (since a young age)."

Cunningham has had to turn down about $100,000 in prize money because of her amateur status in almost three years on the circuit. The 1990 season was highlighted by a semifinal appearance in singles play at the Puerto Rico Invitational and a trip to the quarterfinals at the U.S.

Hardcourts in San Antonio,

In 1989, Cunningham upset No. 3 seed Katerina Maleeva, 4-6, 7-5, 6-2, in the first round of the 1989 Virginia Slims of Houston.

Cunningham must provide for travel expenses to and from tournaments, but her sponsors, Mizuno Rackets (which she swings) and Sergio Tacchini clothing (which she wears while playing), ease the financial burden.

She said she retired her Wilson racket for the EPMZ made by Mizu-

"I like the EPMZ better," said Cunningham, who also hired a friend, Robert Kaplen, of New York City, as an agent.

CUNNINGHAM, COACHED the last three years by Franklin Racquet Club's Armand Molino, and since age 9 by Joe Fodell, says her serving has improved the most.

"My strengths used to be my competitiveness and ground strokes but my serve is my big strength now," Cunningham said.

Another Cunningham strength is her mind, which for the time being will take a break from the school

"I will go to school sometime," said Cunningham, an honors student at Churchill. "But that's far down the road now."

Depth is main problem

By C.J. Risak staff writer

Dave Racer's opening comment regarding his Madonna University. softball team bordered on sarcastic:

"It's a young team." No kidding. Most first-year teams are rather young. This one's going to have to learn pretty fast, though. The Lady Crusaders play a 40-game (maybe more, depending on tournament performance) schedule - and there are only 14 Lady Crusaders to begin

Without doubt, the biggest problems facing Madonna are depth and the anticipated lack of experience. "The most experience we have is Kristen (Wasil)," said Racer. Wasil, a junior from Garden City, played two years at Henry Ford Community College.

There is talent, but not a lot of it. "We can't afford an injury," admitted Racer, the former Plymouth Canton softball coach. "Especially to a key player — which is just about anybody."

THE PROBLEM would not have been so acute had three key recruits - Holly Jondro, Kaylee Davis and Alisa Trent — been eligible. Jondro, Racer's top recruit, has solid academic credentials but she did not meet NAIA requirements; Davis and Trent, both from Oakland CC, did not have enough transferrable credits.

The Crusaders officially embark on their first varsity season Saturday, when they leave on a 10-game trip to Florida. That should tell Racer a good deal about what his team can accomplish this year.

Softball starts with pitching, and Madonna's pitching hopes rest with Wasil ("She'll probably be our No. 1 pitcher," said Racer) and freshmen Joann Donehay (all-Tri-River League at Taylor Kennedy) and. Janet Hietala (Redford Union). When wasii and Donehay aren't pitching, they'll probably be in the outfield.

Racer's appraisal of his pitching staff wasn't exactly filled with su-

perlatives. "We're average," he said. "We're not real overpowering."

THE REST of the team might draw the same type of endorsement. Hughana Wilkie, from Monroe St. Mary's, is at first base; Mandy Armstrong, an all-state selection at Waterford Kettering, is at second; Jenny Marquette, all-Catholic League at Dearborn Divine Child, fills in at shortstop; and Angela Vandyke, from Taylor Center, and Jill Burt, from East Jordan, will platoon at third.

Only Burt - who played basketball at Madonna - and Vandyke are sophomores; the rest are freshmen.

Stacey Girard, a sophomore from Redford (Livonia Ladywood) who started on Madonna's volleyball team, is the leftfielder. "She just came out a couple of weeks ago," said Racer. "She hasn't played in two years, but she's swinging the bat real well."

Megan Armstrong, another sophomore and Mandy's sister (also from Kettering), will be in centerfield, with a whole troop of players spending time in right - including Wasil, Donehay, Burt and Cheryl Baker, a freshman from Detroit Mackenzie who needs work but is developing, according to Racer.

"She is super quick," the Madonna coach said. "And she's come on quite a bit for us. We've had to do a lot of work with her, on bunting and

A POINT of strength: behind the plate, with freshman Holly Brachel, who played on Harper Woods Regina's state championship team in 1989 before spending a year at Schoolcraft College playing volleyball. "She's got a good arm," said

Madonna coach Dave Racer: 'We can't afford an injury. Especially to a key player — which is just about anybody.'

The "top five, six girls (in the lineup) are real decent with the bat," he added. At present, Megan Armstrong will lead off ("She's very quick and an intelligent baserunner,"), with Mandy Armstrong second and Jenny Marquette third. Either Burt or Girard will bat fourth, with Brachel next. "Burt's probably our best hitter right now," said Racer.

Defensively, the Crusaders look strong up the middle with Brachel catching, Mandy Armstrong at second and Marquette at short, and Megan Armstrong in center. The other positions aren't as strong, with right field the weakest point.

STILL, RACER thinks his team may have enough weapons to reach the NAIA District 23 playoffs. "We've kind of got our hopes up to make the playoffs," he said. During fall practice, the Crusaders were 5.6 against a schedule that included University of Michigan, University of Detroit and Hillsdale.

Siena Heights, Aquinas and Northwood Institute figure to be the frontrunners. "I think that would be a plus, if we could just get to the playoffs," Racer said — then added: "And just get through the year."

The northern segment of their schedule will start April 2, with a double-header against Lake Superior State at Massey Field. All of Madonna's home games will be played at Massey (on Plymouth Road at Hag-

Pitcher Kristen Wasil, a Garden City HS grad, will be counted on to carry the Crusaders.

Crusaders earn a sweep

Pitching key to 3 wins

The record shows progress — or at least that's what Mike George

We lost twice there two years ago," said George after his Madonna University baseball team spent a three-game weekend at Ohlo Northern. "We split there last year. And we swept them this year.

"I just hope it's a case of us improving, not them getting worse." That's a question that may not be answered until midway through the NAIA District 23 season. But at present, the Fighting Crusaders are taking on the appearance of title contenders.

They took two from Ohio Northern in Ada on Saturday, 9-3 and 4-2. In a nine-inning single game Sunday, Madonna concluded their sweep with an 11-3 rout.

CHRIS KLOC, a junior (from Redford Thurston), ran his record to 3-0 with a four-hitter in the series' opener. He allowed one earned run in seven innings, walking two and striking out 10. His season earned run average is 0.70. Solo home runs by Jeff Pendell (Livonia Churchill) and Sean Maloney provided Kloc with all the offense he needed. Pendell had three hits and two runs batted in;

Maloney also knocked in two runs. Joe Brusseau (Redford Bishop Borgess) had two hits, scored three runs and stole two bases, and Bill Terski had two hits and an RBI. In game No. 2, Mike Hocking (Bishop Borgess) improved his record to 2-0 with a completegame victory, surrendering seven hits and two walks while fanning six. John Bonham had two hits, including a run-scoring double in the seventh, and Brusseau had a two-out, two-run single in the third. -

baseball

IN SUNDAY'S finale, three freshmen pitchers each threw three innings for Madonna, with the middle man - Lou McKaig (Southfield-Lathrup) - getting the win. McKaig gave up one run on two hits, walking one and striking out four. Rob Kowaiski (Plymouth Salem) started and gave up two runs; Mike Coleman finished with three scoreless frames.

Ernie Bowling cracked his third homer of the year, a two-run shot in the fourth, to spark the Crusader offense. Bowling had two hits and three RBI, bringing his season totals to .417, 17 RBI, 12 runs scored.

Chris Gajewski had three hits and two RBI and Brusseau had two hits, three RBI and two stolen bases. Madonna baserunners swiped six bases in the game.

The downside to the three wins, which raised the Crusaders' record to 9-2-1 (Northern fell to 6-4), is six errors committed. "For us to be a contender in our district, we have to get better defensively," said George.

Madonna opens its district season at 1 p.m. Tuesday at Spring Arbor. The Crusaders follow that with two non-district games at Wayne State Wednesday, then two district games at Nazareth Thursday.

BASEBALL NOTES: The Madonna baseball coaching staff will be part of a fund-raiser for the Dearborn St. Alphonsus program Saturday. For more details, call St. Alphonsus at 582-0666.

AAU tournament attracts top names

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

This must be the definition of March Madness.

Two AAU girls hasketball champions will be crowned this weekend when 39 teams from around the state gather for a three-day tournament at Plymouth Salem, Canton and Northville High Schools.

Nineteen teams will battle for the 16-under title, while the 18-under championship will be decided among 20 teams. The winner in each age group qualifies for the national tournament, held June 28-July 6 in Johnson City, Tenn.

The double-elimination tournament gets underway Friday at 6 p.m., and will continue Saturday from 8 a.m. until 11 p.m. at all three sites. The championship round will start at noon Sunday at Salem for the 16-under and at 12:45 p.m. Sunday for the 18-under at Canton.

Last year's championships were held near Sandusky, Mich., a town which was short on hotel accomodations and had great distances between gyms.

Fred Thomann, the Salem coach who also will guide the Western-Wayne Wildcats teams this weekend, says that isn't the case in metro De-"Sandusky did an excellent job but you had to drive 45-50 minutes to some gyms to play," he said. "A lot of people are coming to the communities for these games and you'll see a ton of great basketball players."

AMONG THOSE PLAYING will be last fall's "Miss Basketball," Markita Aldridge (Detroit Martin Luther King), who will play in the 18-under division for Ronna Greenberg's Metro-Defenders. Greenberg, who also coaches West Bloomfield during the season, has a loaded lineup that includes North Farmington's Eve Claar, Livonia Ladywood's Rebecca Willey, Birmingham Marian's Trina Govan and West Bloomfield's Lanise Baidas. Also on the roster is the state's best junior guard, Tanisha Stevens, of Mount Clemens.

Danforth pulled a major surprise Tuesday when she showed up at practice wearing a knee brace and ready to participate in drills. If Danforth plays at all this weekend and the Defenders win the 18-under state title, she will be eligible to play at the nationals.

"She surprised me today with the brace because I didn't know she had one," Greenberg said. "When she came to practice today she stood up, had on the brace on and I said 'Wo.'

"SHE'LL RUN through the warmups and see very minimal playing time, if any. She's two months ahead of schedule. She played one-on-one tonight and did some cutting but it wouldn't be right to put her on the court with five-on-five and all the bumping going on."

ANY BOWLING ENTHUSI-ASTS watch the Pro Bowlers Tour on television each Saturday, and we can relate to what goes on during the show.

But sometimes there are other things that never get mentioned, and I want to tell you about an incident that took place a couple weeks ago during the stop in Erie, Pa.

The story has a local angle since Harry Sullins, a touring pro from the Detroit area, has been having some success late-

Harry's brother, Bruce, noted that Erie is also the location of the Shriners Hospital for Children and, being active with the Shriners, contacted Harry to see if the touring pros could visit the children.

I'm happy to report these very busy guys took time from their demanding schedules to visit these hospitalized children. The group, which included such . stars as Randy Pederson and Ron Palombi Jr., handed out autographed programs and actual bowling pins to the kids.

The event went over well and was mentioned on the local evening news/ sports programs in Erie.

Bobby Dinkins, the press director of the PBA Tour made most of the arrangements, and it was such a hit that more visitations are planned when the pros, stop in cities where Shriners hospitals are located such as Chicago and St. Louis.

It is gratifying to see the bowlers take the time to show they care about these

• The Detroit Women's Bowling Association City Tournament is under way at Cloverlanes Bowl in Livonia.

After the first week, the leaders in the team event are Goebel Beer No. 2 (Ladies Major) and Martha's Five (Southfield). Goebel Beer has a team 3257 score with 285 handicap, Martha's Five 3216 with 487 handicap.

In doubles play, Kathy Haislip and Aleta Sill lead at 1401 (1394 plus 7) handicap) followed by Jeanni Stemple and Cheryl Daniels with 1384 (1373 plus 9).

In singles competition, the leaders are Sill at 806 (279-258-269), Jan Conner 801 (223-276-235 plus 67); Lorene Raveane 762 (265-268-227 plus 2); Elaine Hum-' phrey of Bowl One Lanes 760 (211-217-236 plus 96), and Daniels 757 (258-255-244). Linda Jackson of Southfield holds fourth place in all events with 583-634-668 plus 222 handicap for a 2107 total.

Area powers dominate Observer team

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

BSERVERLAND HAD TWO of the state's best swim teams this year, and the 1991 All-Area team reflects the strength of those teams.

Redford Catholic Central won the Catholic League crown and finished third in the Class A meet, and Livonia Stevenson ended Plymouth Salem's three-year reign as Western Lakes Activities Association champ and placed 13th at state.

Eleven of the 18 individuals and four of the six relays receiving berths on the all-area squad hail from one of those two schools.

CC's Troy Shumate, the lone state champion from Observerland, and Mike Hoeflein, and Stevenson's Aaron Rieder are first-team repeaters.

First-team picks Ryan Koonce of Farmington Hills Harrison and Leo Moreira of Redford Thurston, as well as at-large selections Randy Teeters of CC, Pat McManaman of Salem and Jason Barringer of Harrison, make their second straight appearance on the team, too. Stevenson coach Doug Buckler, having led the Spartans to their most successful season in recent years, was named coach of the year.

ALL-AREA FIRST TEAM

Troy Shumate, 200 freestyle, Redford CC: Shumate won the Class A championship in the 200 freestyle with a 1:41.87 time, making him tops in Observerland in that event. The senior also finished third in the state in the butterfly.

Shumate was league champion in the 500 freestyle and the 200 individual medtey. He won the butterfly at the MISCA' meet. In addition to his time in the 200 freestyle. Shumate holds school records in the butterfly (51.61) and the 500 freestyle (4:40.91)

"There is no doubt Troy has been the leader of Catholic Central swimming for the past four years," CC coach Peter Leonhardt said. "You can't replace a kid Tike this. He will be greatly missed."

Aaron Rieder, 200 IM, Stevenson: Rieder placed 10th in the IM and 12th in the backstroke at the Class A championships. In the area, he was second only to Glenn's Matt Martin with respective times of 1:58:72 and 55:22.

Bieder, a junior, also was on two relays and scored in four events at the state meet. He was second in the 100 freestyle and the IM at the league finals.

"Aaron is one of the best swimmers I have coached," Buckler said, "He's a fine young man, and I look forward to his senior year at Stevenson.

Leo Moreira, 50 freestyle, Thurston: Moreira was seventh in the Class B meet with a time of 21.84 in the 50 freestyle. edging Redford CC's John Brogan by two 100ths of a second for the best Observerland time and first-team position. He also was 11th in the 100 freestyle with a 49.80 swim at the Class B meet. Ryan Koonce, diving, Harrison: Koonce capped his senior year of competition by finishing second in the Class B diving championships. He stepped up each succeeding year, finishing seventh as a junior and 12th as a sophomore.

He was third in the WLAA but was the top Observerland diver. Koonce also captured a Class B regional title. "Ryan is the most talented diver I have ever coached," Harrison diving coach Dave Mullett said. "He has a promising career ahead of him." Mike Drelles, butterfly, N. Farmington: Drelles, a junior, was seventh in the state in the butterfly with a 52.65 time. Only Shumate had a better time in Observer-

Drelles also qualified for state in the backstroke and as a member of two re-

"Mike is very versatile and swims all strokes well," North coach Sue Gendron said. "He had a great year, and next year is going to be even better for Mike."

Chris Knoche, 100 freestyle, N. Farm-Ington: Knoche, a junior, had a 48.17. time to finish ninth in Class A in the 100 freestyle. As with teammate Drelles, only-Shumate had a faster time in the area.

He also qualified for state in the 200 freestyle and as a member of both freestyle relays. Knoche was the top point scorer-for North.

"Chris is a solid, dedicated swimmer," Gendron said. "He's very coachable and a hard worker. Because of this, he has had great individual success. He's a very talented young man."

Mike Hoeflein, 500 freestyle, Redford CC: In the state finals, Hoeffein finished fourth in the 200 freestyle and filth in the 500 freestyle with respective times of 1:43:14 and 4:43.17. He received All-America consideration in both events.

Hoeflein, a senior, was league champ in the backstroke and a member of two state-scoring freestyle relays, He was second only to Shumate in the 200 freestyle and had the top area time in the 500.

"Mike has been one of the best captains in the sport of swimming that I have seen," Leonhardt said. "His accomplishments in the water and his leadership abifity aré second to none."

Matt Martin, backstroke, John Glenn: Martin was fourth in the backstroke and fifth in the IM at the Class A meet, having espective times of 52.87 and 1:54.97 both area_bests Martin, a sophomore, was a double winner at the WLAA meet in the IM-(1:56.51) and the 500 freestyle (4:45.6). He also was first in the IM and the butterly at the Western Wayne Invita-

Martin holds school records in the 200, 100 and 500 freestyles, 1M, butterfly and backstroke. "Matt has been a pleasure to work with this season," coach Jeff Pryor said. "He had a tremendously successful year."

Alex Goecke, breaststroke, Stevenson: Goecke, also a sophomore, was 11th in the state, set a school record and . established an area best in the breaststroke with his 1:00.45 time.

He was the WLAA champion for the second straight year in the same event (1:01.60) and also won the MISCA meet. He was on two relays that scored at state. "Alex is great not just as a swimmer but as a young man, too," Buckler said. "I always take joy in working with Alex. and I am looking forward to two more great years.".

FIRST-TEAM RELAYS

200 medley: Livonia Stevenson's Taki-Caranicolas (senior), Ryan Freeborn (sophomore), Alex Goecke (sophomore) and Aaron Rieder (junior) were ninth in the state, swimming an Observerland best of 1:39.77 in the prelims.

200 freestyle: Catholic Central's John Brogan, Mike Hoellein, Alan Alsari and Troy Shumate were second to Bloomfield Hills Andover in the state meet. They swam an Observerland best of 1:26.89

These guys worked hard for this relay. and there is no doubt, in any other year, they would have been state champions," Léanhardt said.

400 freestyle: The Redford CC foursome of Alan Afsari, Mike Hoefieln, Brian Dynda and Troy Shumate was third in school record and topping the area list by more than six seconds

"It was incredible the amount of time and out of the water," Leonhardt said. these guys dropped on this relay." Leonhardt said, adding that all had life. - done for CC in the last four years." time best splits.

DIA wrestles with budget woes

By Ralph R. Echtinaw

staff writer.

The Detroit Institute of Arts is learning to live with less government aid. But having lost $1.5 million of $16 million in state aid this fiscal year, DIA staff and Founders Society members are afraid Gov. John Engler will take the rest of the subsidy away July 1, when the next fiscal year begins.

Engler has said he will try to end all state subsidies to arts and cultural organizations.

"Needless to say, I felt somewhat shocked and betrayed," said DIA director Samuel Sachs II. "I think (Engler) hasn't studied fully the impact of this very severe and unexpected move. This governor pretends to be an education governor but doesn't understand the DIA's value to education."

"Needless to say, I felt somewhat shocked and betrayed," said DIA director Samuel Sachs II. "I think (Engler) hasn't studied fully the impact of this very severe and unexpected move. This governor pretends to be an education governor but doesn't understand the DIA's value to education." (Sachs referred to the thousands of students who every year either take field trips to the DIA or take part in its Art to the Schools out-reach service).

As part of a state program to balance its budget, Engler and the Legislature have cut spending 9.2 percent for everything except education. The state Constitution requires the budget to be balanced.

So the DIA, with 320 people on staff and a budget of $26.5 million, has taken steps to cut spending and raise more money from private

Half the museum is now closed in the morning then opened in the afternoon. The other half is closed afternoons and open mornings.

Joseph Bianco Jr., Founders Society executive vice president, has begun an "emergency fund-raising appeal" to the 43,000 Founders Society members, asking them to give more money. The Bloomfield Hills resident said he recognizes the state's financial mess and is "perfectly happy to take our share of the budget cuts." But he doesn't agree with Engler that government has no legitimate role in paying for arts

BIANCO WOULD prefer to retain the DIA's state subsidy, but if it's going to be eliminated altogether, "The least the governor could do is give us seven or eight years to phase down support."

Noting that the museum hasn't received an increase in its state subsidy since 1982, Sachs said when inflation is considered, the DIA subsidy has been cut for the last nine years. "We don't need less money. We need more, but we are willing to take our share of the cuts."

In a speech to the House Appropriations Committee, DIA deputy director Maurice Parrish said, "Even at current rates of private sector support growth (25 percent a year), it would take 15 to 20 more years to substantially replace state funding with 100 percent private sector funding."

He went on to say the DIA also is important to Michigan's tourism, education and econo-

"Clearly, we make a positive contribution to tourism, economic development and to the world and national image that Detroit and Michigan are high-quality places to visit and do business."

Parrish predicts dire consequences for Michigan if the DIA is taken off the state gravy train and has to shut down.

"Business will not consider Michigan when deciding where to locate plants and offices, nor will talented people be successfully recruited for our local industry, professional firms or institutions of higher education."

Artist-teacher shifts love of life to canvas

By Janice Tigar-Kramer special writer

ARIE TUTHILL smiles and says there's really no message, symbolism or hidden meaning to her portraits, realistic landscapes and still-life paintings.

Yet each of Tuthill's paintings, from the Finnish landscape that hangs over her fireplace to the old man's portrait in her living room, is a peaceful work of art that says as much about the artist as it does about the subject.

"I paint what I want to paint. If other people like it, that's wonderful," said the 71-yar-old Livonia artist. "Maybe realistic painting seems old-fashioned today, but it's what I love to do."

Tuthill's work, including about 25 oil and watercolor paintings priced at $65 to $350, is on display in the Livonia City Hall lobby, 33000 Civic Center Drive (Farmington Road at Five Mile), through March 28. Viewing hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Tuthill's love of art and "things of beauty" began as a child growing up in South Dakota. But she didn't try her hand at drawing or painting until age 42, while recovering at home from open heart surgery. Since she needed a relaxing hobby to pass the time, and the youngest of four children was in high school, she decided to give it a try.

SHE SIGNED up for basic painting classes at the YWCA in Detroit, then went on to take art workshops.

Though Tuthill cails herself a self-taught artist, she still joins a workshop now and then, even though most classes are "inhibiting."

"Sunset at Leland" is the title of this oil painting. Dark gray water dominates the picture plane with highlights of white, coral and yellow. This work, of boats in a harbor at sunset, is priced at $375.

Left: Although most of Marie Tuthill's artwork is noted for realism, "Children in the Field," is near impressionistic. The watercolor, which depicts two little girls picking daisies in a field, is priced at $210.

Most of the Botsfords' 10 kids became prominent citizens.

Daughter Rhoda and her husband, P.D. Warner, Michigan's speaker of the How in 1867, were parents to Michigan's first three-term governor, Fred L. Warner.

Son Milton built an identical house across Shiawassee Valley in their Farmington village. There, he ran the Botsford House for 10 years until buying the Sixteen Mile House a few miles away for $4,000 from John Claucherty and renaming it the Botsford Inn in 1860.

Son Orville built a reputation for raising fine horses. When Lemuel, the family patriarch, died in 1868, the house and part of his land were sold.

In 1889, John and Kate Pettibone bought the property and farmed it until about 1900. "The farm was rented out but they sold milk and other produce to some of their town neighbors," Ruth Roth Mochlman writes in her 1980 book, "If Walls Could Talk, Heritage Homes of Farmington.'

Since the turn of the century, the house has had four different owners.

• The Livonia Symphony, short $9,900 in the wake of Gov. Engler's crackdown on state support to the arts, has challenged its Friends to maintain the 18-year-old orchestra's $100,000 budget:

In a community appeal, president Ken Kelsey wrote: 'To continue this forward progress, to bring the sound of the LSO to more people, to increase the outreach to youth and to our seniors, we must take a closer look at what we are doing and where we want to go. The direction of the future of the LSO is in your hands." Time will tell just how successful Kelsey's call for fund-raising innovations is.

Taking a second look could help improve your pictures

Backgrounds can make or break a picture. So just before you press . the shutter release, stop. Yes, stop for a moment and take a second, hard look through the viewfinder.

Check out all four corners of the picture and the background behind your subject.

Is there anything distracting like that tree "growing" out of Aunt Mildred's head or the fence post that would spoil the "in the wilds" look of the lion at the zoo? If there is, a slight adjustment in either camera or subject will fix the prob-

Taking the second, hard look through the viewfinder may add something that will enhance your shot. For example, those tree branches "framing" the distant mountain will definitely add extra impact to your picture.

Yes, backgrounds can be crucial to the effectiveness of a photograph. Backgrounds can add to the composition and help set the mood of a picture or they can detract from and spoil what could have been a great shot.

IN ADDITION to careful composition, a thorough understanding of depth-of-field is a must. Using large apertures, especially with a telephoto lens, will reduced depthof-field and blur out an unwanted background in an outdoor portrait.

Just the opposite, a small lens opening on a normal or wide angle lens will increase depth-of-field so that everything in your finished picture will be sharp and in focus.

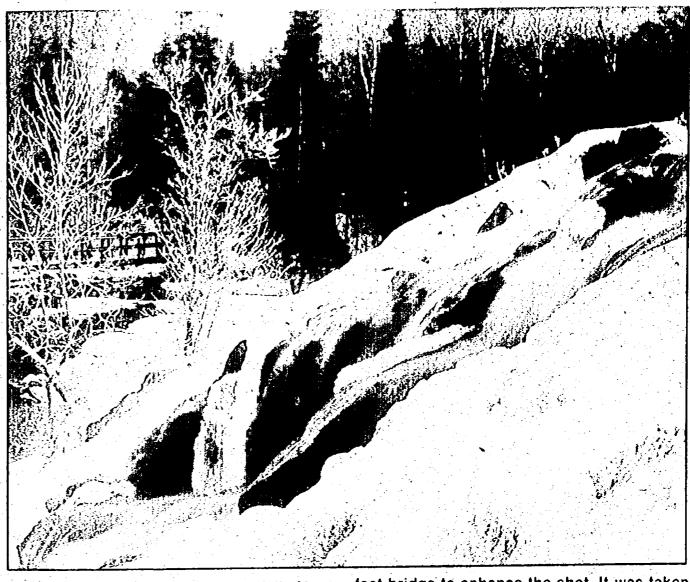

In close-up photography, particularly flowers, a plain, blurred background is important. A busy, distracting background will pull attention away from the beauty of the flower.

in environmental portraits. Effective use of props or locale will make an important difference. You say your daughter is into horseback riding? Than take a portrait of her wearing a riding outfit, at the stables, with her horse, and with riding accessories in view. Can you visualize the strength such a photograph can have?

Yes, backgrounds can make the difference between a strong photograph and an ordinary snapshot. That second, hard look will reward you with many impact-filled shots.

Novel tracks violence in once-proud marriage

"Like China" by Varley O'Connor. (272 pp., William Morrow & Co., $19.95).

In this thought-provoking novel, former Michiganian O'Connor has put together a story about loss, betrayal, growing up and the often-peculiar nature of love and relation-

KATHA PINNELL is a young exmodel whose world is coming apart, who seems at times to feel a vague, from the city to the Hamptons, half-step away from reality: "It was , where she and her self made husas if she had moved far away to a place where . . . everything was strange, to another country, like China maybe."

Now, however, something is very, very wrong Tommy has slowly changed from a man she loved and thought she knew to a sinister, oftenabusive stranger, humiliating her in public, threatening her, taunting her, one night breaking her arm when whe stands between him and a bottle of vodka. Paralyzed with fear, she feels, in a sense, abandoned. The "real Tommy" seems to have disap-

Near the Pinnells, in an ugly little prison-like house, live three young brothers who have been abandoned. After their mother's death, their father has simply walked away, leaving them to fend for themselves. They are trying desperately to keep this desertion a secret since, if it's discovered, they know they'll be sent away to one of "those homes."

"Like China," but nobody is painted in black and white...

Tommy Pinnell, though his behavior is monstrous, oddly never seems a monster at heart. He often appears vulnerable somehow, as if his chilling behavior were something strangely beyond himself (although he is not "crazy"), perhaps the result of a childhood tainted with abuse. Remarkably seductive, he's fascinating as a cohra, and just about as Katha, on the other hand, with her tendency to shut her eyes to the very real danger she is in, seems almost spineless at times.

It's hard at first to root for a heroine who doesn't appear to like herself enough to try to save her own skin O'Connor's insightfulness casts a revealing light here, though, on why this battered young woman finds it so difficult to make the right decision, and then to act upon it.

The brothers, in their own family unit, are by turns annoying, vulgar, cruel, fearful, funny, loving, awful, brave, whatever it is that boys are.

Big Dan, the eldest, torn between It's difficult to illustrate here the a strong sense of responsibility and a yearning to escape it, fights the temptation to follow in his father's sure, there are villains and heroes in footsteps and desert his younger brothers. Sam is sustained by his fantasies. Youngest brother, Peter, trying to make sense of what is happening around him, is in some ways more mature than either.

Melissa Mitchell starred as Swanilda in "Coppelia." Mitchell, a permanent member of the Cleveland San Jose Ballet, formerly lived in West Bloomfield. She graduated from Seaholm High School in Birmingham.

Former Detroiter Dennis Nahat (center), artistic director of Cleveland San Jose Ballet and choreographer of "Coppelia," also likes to take a turn at character roles, which call for more acting than dancing. He alternated in the role of Dr. Coppelius with Jon Carlo Franchi at Masonic Temple.

Cleveland Ballet does memorable 'Coppelia'

By Lynn Slaughter special writer

Hundreds of leaves poured down upon the stage and glittered under the lights as the final curtain dropped on the Cleveland San Jose Ballet's performance of "Coppelia" Saturday, March 9 at Detroit's Masonic Temple.

It was a fitting finale for a dazzling performance of a much-loved

With original choreography by Arthur Saint-Leon and a charming score by Leo Delibes, "Coppelia," subtitled "The Girl with Enamel Eyes," premiered at the Paris opera in 1870 and was considered the Romantic period's last great ballet.

For the first time, national and folk dances (czardas and mazurka) were included, the beginning of a long and popular tradition in classical ballet.

The story, based on Hoffman's "Der Sandmann," takes a lighthearted look at romantic yearning.

IRRITATED THAT her fiance, Franz, seems enraptured with the aloof daughter of Dr. Coppelius, an eccentric old inventor, Swanilda sneaks into the doctor's house with a bevy of girl friends and discovers that her competition is only a mechanical doll.

When Coppelius returns, Swanilda hides in the doll's alcove. Soon Franz arrives to woo Coppelia. When Dr. Coppelius drugs him to try to transfer the life force from Franz into his beloved doll, Swanilda pretends to be Coppelia coming to life and upsets the workshop.

Eventually, Coppelius realizes he has been tricked, and Franz discovers he's been infatuated with a doll, and it is Swanilda he has truly loved

The happy couple weds, and the ballet concludes with a stunning divertissement, a series of dances, called entrees, put together for the purpose of showing off the performers' technical virtuosity.

AND STRUT their stuff they did, to the delight of the Saturday evening crowd. The corps de ballet was especially impressive. Exquisitely trained and impeccably rehearsed, the dancers wowed the audience with a dizzying array of jumps, spins and acrobatic partnering. Melissa Mitchell, who grew up in the suburbs of Detroit, likewise delighted the hometown crowd with her saucy interpretation of Swanilda. Her comedic timing was superb as she feistily outwitted the schemease.

ing Dr. Coppelius, played to hilarious perfection by Jon Carlo Franchi.

Mitchell proved herself equally adept at virtuoso dancing in her variations and was all liquid lyricism in her romantic pas de deux with partner Peter DiBonaventura.

The long legged DiBonaventura was convincingly gawkish as Franz, the young man besotted by a puppet, and later, appropriately elegant as Swanilda's devoted groom. Whether whipping off the requisite tours a la seconde or brises voles during Act III's divertissement, he moved with a refreshing clarity and sense of

SUPPORTED BY David Guthrie's magnificent sets and costumes, Dennis Nahat once again demonstrated his solid choreographic

Particularly effective was his staging of the scene in which Swanilda manages to set Dr. Coppelius' entire collection of zany dolls in mechanistic motion.

All in all, the Cleveland San Jose Ballet delivered a memorable performance. Kudos to the Michigan Opera Theatre for bringing this first rate troupe to Detroit for a return engagement. Let's hope they come back often.

counted tickets for students and chaperones. Middle school teacher should call Michael Kondziolka: 1-313-763-3100. Tickets are $4 per stu-. dent.

Designed for the uninitiated dance viewer, "Chance to Dance" has three goals: to help young people a) understand an appreciate dance as an art from, b) understand and appreciate the dancer's discipline and training and c) think of dance as a career choice.

The first part of the program deals verbally and visually with the dancer's training in ballet, modern and jazz dance, each discussed, then illustrated in a sort example of a training class.

The second part is a performance of some of the troupe's repertoire, accompanied by an explanation of each work.

In the final section, the dancers introduce themselves and talk about their backgrounds, followed by a Q&A in which all dancers and artistic director Randy Duncan partici-

The Jospeh Holmes Chicago Dance Theatre, dedicated to creating and performing original choreography, will give an evening performance in the University Musical Society's Choice Series at 8 p.m. Tuesday, April 2. For tickets, call 1-313-763-TKTS.

Tech centers boost Motor City's image

Marilyn Fitchett editor/591-2300

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

Southeastern Michigan — automotive technical center central.

Much has been made of Toyota's plans to build a technical facility on 1,000 acres in South Lyon Township in southwestern Oakland County, but Japan-based automotive is hardly the first to look to southeastern Michigan as a location for a major research and development facilities.

Within the past five years, five major automotive manufacturers have started construction or plan to start construction on substantial office/technical facilities.

In 1986, the Chrysler Corporation. began work on the Chrysler Technical Center in Auburn Hills; in 1990, the Nissan Motor Co. began work on its technical facility in Farmington Hills; also in 1990, Isuzu Motors Ltd. began building a research and development/office complex in Plymouth Township; in 1990, Volkswagen of America began work on its United States headquarters in Auburn Hills.

Chrysler chose to build its technical center in Auburn Hills for three reasons, but the decision basically follows the old real estate adage: "Location, location, location."

Chrysler spokesman James Kenyon said Chrysler's wanted its technical center to be near Chrysler's world headquarters in Highland Park. It also has excellent access to two major freeways - I-75 and M-59, Kenyon said.

Second, which is essential because of the technology center's 500-acre size, there was land available in the 1,100-acre Oakland Technology

And third, the technical center is near two educational facilities -Oakland University and Oakland Community College. Although there are no specific programs or joint projects between the schools and Chrysler, Kenyon said the businesseducation coalition possibilities are promising.

NISSAN IS MORE interested in tapping into southeastern Michigan's engineering expertise.

"For an international automaker, this is a significant investment in this country," James Gill, corporate communication manager of Nissan North America Inc., said.

It may not be on par with the Chrysler or GM technical centers -Nissan's main corporate technical center is in Japan - but it is not a simple facility either.

"In the big picture, we are a global automaker — but we like to say a global automaker with local flavor. Basically, we're setting up semi-autonomous companies with an integral relationship," Gill said.

Nissan North America facilities will design and build cars for North American roads; Nissan Motor Co. designs and builds cars for Japanese buyers, Nissan Europe designs and builds cars for European roads, he

"These guys (in Farmington Hills) are engineering vehicles that will hit the roads in three to four years," Gill said. "We will be doing complete vehicle design and engineering here taking a car from paper to custom-

Nissan was also interested in southeastern Michigan because despite the waning dominance of the Big Three automakers, this is still the automotive capital of the world. "This is where the knowhow is."

ENGINEERING expertise, automotive suppliers, and educational facilities are centered in southeastern Michigan because its where the industry was born and matured.

"There is something to the geography of southeastern Michigan

Nissan's Farmington Hills location also offers another benefit - it puts the company in a position to become involved in joint ventures with the Big Three automakers, Gill said. Nissan lent Ford its engineering and styling expertise in the development. of a compact van scheduled for 1992production.

Matching objectives of seller, listing agent 1st step to satisfaction

 By Doug Funke staff writer

Before most people can move into that new dream house, they have to unload the old one. Most hire real estate agents to help. But many agents don't take the right approach to the

That's what Al Mayer, a Cincinnati Realtor told a group of sales professionals here recently during a talk billed "Customer Qualification and Total Customer Satisfaction" sponsored by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

"When you go to get the listing, are your objectives the same as the seller?" Mayer asked. "Building customer satisfaction has to be a shared expectation. When I go to get the listing, the first thing I should ask is, 'What do you expect me to do?'

"We don't find out what expectations are, we don't counsel at the beginning . . . we don't have shared expectations, and we don't have a happy customer," Mayer said.

Sure, the house will eventually sell, but at what price and aggravation? And referrals? Forget it.

SIT DOWN with the seller early on and talk turkey about pricing, exactly what services you'll provide, advertising strategies and what's expected of the seller, Mayer said.

"Let's tell them now what we can and can't do," he said. "Tell them, 'Wouldn't it be better to disappoint you now than later?' Dialogue. As partners, it's important that we review the marketing plan on a regu-

Houses that eventually sell within 2 percent of the initial listing price move, on average, in 37 days, Mayer said. The time frame expands to 91 days for 5 percent below listing, 113 days for 7 percent and 184 days for 10 percent.

"Price it right," said Mayer. Brokers shouldn't take a listing they don't believe they can sell within 90 days, he added. The result may be fewer listings, but probably a higher "kill ratio."

THEN THERE'S the marketing plan, or, more specifically advertis-

"What we're suggesting is a combination of image advertising with target advertising," Mayer said.

"The first home is shelter. After the first home, you buy amenities. Tell them about the family room, fancy kitchen, Jacuzzi. People buy image. They'll respond to something they've always wanted."

Mayer said his research indicates that number of bedrooms, number of bathrooms and price don't lure buyers nowadays. A family room, a large, open family kitchen and site privacy are the top three. Realtors should look at how and where they're advertising.

For instance, they might aggressively target a starter home to singles for a couple of weeks, to emptynesters a couple of weeks or to young families for a couple of weeks rather than everyone at once.

And consider radio ads, Mayer

REALTORS AND agents seemed to respond to the message.

"I'm going to go home and analyze my own personal listings," said Dennis Dickstein, a broker/owner of Ralph Manuel Associates in Birmingham. "It's time we started writing ads for different consumers."

Helene Zieman, an agent for Century 21 MJL of Farmington Hills, vouched for many of Mayer's points from personal experience.

She said her firm sold a house that had been on the market for nine months eight days after getting the

"We also set down the law," Zieman said. "We said, 'You've limited showing. We don't want to hear your house is a mess.' We said, 'If you want to sell right away, you have to drop the price.'

The Bloomfield Hills house, which initially listed for $224,000, languished for nine months and ultimately sold for $177,000, Zieman said. "She was happy to get that."

Zieman parts company with Mayer, though, on the importance of price in advertising a house. "My people are really concerned about price," she said.

Ruth Shoemate, an agent for Chamberlain Realtors in Troy, said she found the talk informative.

"I think there are too many people (agents) who think about profit and end result rather than the consumer," she said. "A satisfied customer will recommend and refer people to you. That's more important to future business than the actual sale."

Before seriously hunting for a new house, many prospective buyers must sell their present houses.

Realtors sponsor sales seminar

If you're thinking about selling your house but anxious about the process and not sure what to expect, consider learning the fine points from the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors.

The professional organization will sponsor a free seminar 7-9 p.m. Tuesday at Holiday Inn Livonia West. Reservations are requested through the association offices, 478-1700, Ext. 0 during business hours.

"We like to stress that our seminars are not sales oriented," said Allen C. King, president of the association. "They are strictly for educational purposes. Persons attending are never under any pressure to enter the market or even to do business through one of our member offices."

The panel includes: • Jim Courtney, broker, owner of Remerica, Inc. of Plymouth.

• J.P. Pilot, president of HomePro Inspection of Ann Arbor.

• Tom Ervin, a former real estate agent, now a syndicated real estate columnist from Birmingham.

Attendees are asked to bring a canned good donation for the Salvation Army pantry:
