A Westland minister and his wife have been charged with abuse of three of their six children. Michael K. The father faces a maximum prison term of eight years if convicted on one count of second-degree child abuse and three counts of fourth-degree child abuse. The mother could be sentenced up to three years in prison for one count of third-degree child abuse and one count of fourthdegree child abuse.

The couple, who pleaded not guilty stland's 18th District Court, waived a preliminary examination that had been scheduled for March 11. That sent the case to Detroit Recorder's Court for today's arraignment.

THE CHILDREN were schooled at home and the church, which is on Palmer near Wildwood. 'The Westland police removed the two oldest children - a 16-year-old girl and a 13-year-old boy - from the Enersen's home on a tip from a former church member.

The two older children have been placed in a foster home. Their parents - each released from custody on a $1,000 personal bond - have been ordered not to see the youngsters or to telephone them.

The 16-year-old girl attended parochial school until about third grade, and the 13-year-old boy was belleved to have attended kindergarten. The remainder of their schooling came from the mother at home.

O'NEILL'S RECOMMENDATION surfaced after a leader of the promillage citizens group Save Our Schools submitted to the board 2,152 petitions signed by district residents who support a 7.75-mill proposal. The committee already had turned over 3,683 petitions, bringing the total to 5,835. "We would like this board to act in a positive manner in putting the millage on the ballot on June 10," SOS co-chair Margaret Harlow said Monday, after presenting the petitions. Wiacek, who had earlier called for separate millage proposals to give voters more choices, indicated Monday she was willing to compromise with other board members and place a one-year proposal for 6 mills on the ballot.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer or obtaining more information should write the the John Glenn High School cafeteria for yet another fiery school board meeting on the millage issue.

In a 6-1 vote, the board chose to accept a recommendation from Superintendent Dennis O'Neill to place the 7.75-mill proposal on the June 10 ballot. Board member Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek, who suggested seeking a smaller millage, cast the lone dissenting vote.

Several audience members also asked for millage proposals similar to Wiacek's.

Though board members decided to ask voters for 7.75 mills, they chose to propose levying the tax hike over two years instead of five. Voters narrowly rejected a five-year plan in a special election March 13, marking the third millage defeat in 13 months.

The 7.75 mill proposal represents an annual property tax increase of $232 for a family in a $60,000 home. The net increase would be substantially less if residents qualify for a state property tax rebate.

O'Neill, in making his two-year recommendation, noted that state legislators have agreed to freeze property taxes in 1992.

"Now that the Michigan Legislature has addressed the property assessment freeze for the short haul, that would also be the bench mark for the length of our proposal," he said. "The governor and both houses have indicated that this is just the beginning of their efforts, so possibly Wiacek suggested the board try to "regain accountability" before seeking a larger tax hike.

"I do know that we need the money, but I do believe that accountability is what's necessary," she said.

The 6-mill proposal would be enough "to put our children back-in school" for a full day, Wiacek said. One hour was slashed from the junior high instructional day this year, and pending cuts would reduce the high school day by one hour this fall.

WIACEK REFERRED to a stateconducted survey - prior to last June's defeated millage vote - in which the district was encouraged to delay seeking a tax hike. She indicated the board still has not regained the accountability needed to win passage of a 7.75-mill proposal.

School tax plan gets mixed reaction

By Darrell Clom staff writer

The Wayne-Westland school board, in deciding to seek a 7.75-mill tax increase, tossed aside several alternative proposals suggested by-some of the 350 people who attended Monday's heated board meeting.

Other school district residents voiced support for the 7.75-mill proposal, while some blasted school officials for seeking a tax increase and accused them of mismanaging district money.

Twenty-one residents addressed the board on the same night board members decided to renew their request for a 7.75-mill tax increrase - this one for two years.

Westland resident Robert Chartrand, a former teacher, asked the board to place a 5-mill tax increase on the June 10 ballot, saying he doubted the larger proposal would win voter approval.

In addressing the board Monday, Chartrand referred to three millage proposals that failed in the last 14 months, saying that voters have told school board members "rather emphatically three times that they are unwilling to support the program you are proposing."

Chartrand suggested the board could win approval of 5 mills and possibly return to voters later with an additional millage request. He voiced deep concerns about program cuts, especially at the high school level.

ADDRESSING MILLAGE opponents, Chartrand said, "I would beg you not to take your aggressions out on the boys and girls of this school district, especially those that are in high school," Chartrand also had some advice for Westland Mayor Robert Thomas, who spoke out agains) the last 7.75-mill tax proposal and has since proposed a blue ribbon study committee for the school district.

Saying he hopes Thomas learned his lesson, Chartrand added, "That lesson is to keep your mouth shut."

Fredric Hagelthorn, a June 10 school board candidate who had earlier lashed out at Thomas, urged the school board Monday to support the blue ribbon panel's efforts: And he encouraged the board to seek a millage increase for two years, pending the study commmittee's nonbinding recommendations for the school district.

Another board candidate, Kenneth-Raupp, lashed out loudly at board members for continuing to ask voters for more money.

"There is (enough) money," he told the board. "You're misappropriating it. You're using it wrong."

Raupp added, "I'm against government waste, and you're part of it."

ROBERT MATHESON asked the board to separate the millage proposal on the June 10 ballot and let voters decide the various areas they want to support with a tax increase. He cited three areas - transportation, extracurricular activities such as band and music, and K-12 academic programs.

"At least half a loaf is better than none," Matheson said, predicting voters would approve some millage increase if the board decided to separate the proposals.

Inkster resident Denise Thomas, a district bus driver, accused the board of making a "political move" by laying off transportation workers, whom she said have worked hard to support millage proposals.

"We can either work with you or against you," she said. "It's up to you. Which side do you want us on?"

Several millage supporters voiced continued backing Monday for the 7.75-mill proposal.

JOHN GLENN student Alicia Embury offered advice for residents of the Greenbrook Village subdivision in Canton — whom she said want to break from the Wayne-Westland district and become part of the Plymouth Canton district.

"For those who think the grass is greener on the other side, water your own lawns," Embury said.

Mildred Evans pleaded with board members not to cut busing, which she said the district's poor children depend on to get to school. She said some youngsters already have to walk relatively long distances, though they don't have proper clothing in winter months.

"Some of them probably don't even have breakfast before they go to school," she said.

Volunteers plant, distribute trees

HE WEATHER didn't cooperate but lots of tree lovers had a good time Saturday afternoon. Despite a light rain, volunteers took part in two separate tree programs in Westland.

At 1 p.m., the Holliday Nature Preserve Association planted trees in the Holliday Park Nature Preserve as part of the annual Earth Week activities.

The trees were planted off the Newburgh entrance to the nature preserve which includes nearly 600 acres of trails and wildlife in Westland between Farmington Road and Hix.

The association was formed three years ago to preserve the nature trails in the wake of a proposal by the Westland city administration to build a city-owned golf course on 100 acres of the property.

Helping out in the Saturday planting were Sierra Inner City Outing groups, Churchill High School "Stand-up" chapter members who work on environmental activities, and Boy Scout Troop 900.

It was part of the national Global Releaf program which promotes planting of trees.

In the afternoon, the Westland Historical Commission held its annual adopt-a-tree program, giving away 1,000 seedlings to local residents.

The distribution, held in a move to help beautify the community, was held at the Helen C. Brown Historical Museum, 857 N. Wayne Road.

School tax backers outspent foes, lost

By Darrell Clem staff writer

The pro-millage Save Our Schools committee spent nearly $28 for every $1 spent by anti-tax forces; campaign expense reports said, but still lost in the Wayne-Westland special millage election March 13.

The SOS group shelled out $7,486 for the electron, compared to a mere $268 spent by the Wayne-Westland Citizens for Education Committee that fought the proposed 7.75-mill tax increase, said reports filed at the Wayne County Clerk's office in Detrolt.

The bulk of the SOS group's money went to pay for school district mass mailings and for telephone installation and service at the group's campaign headquarters, the reports said.

Most of the opponents' money paid for anti-millage brochures distributed in a massive door-to-door campaign throughout the school district, the reports said.

THE SOS GROUP ended its failed campaign with a balance of $624. Wayne-Westland Citizens showed a balance of $1,447.

Both groups are expected to renew their efforts in the wake of Monday's school board decision to place yet another 7.75-mill tax increase on I and Citizens for Education.

The bulk of money raised by SOS members came during a Feb. 28 fund-raiser at St. Kevin's Social Hall in Inkster. That event raised about $6,000.

The SOS also received contributions of $100 or less from several school officials and school workers. Named on the campaign reports are board vice president Sharon Scott, board members Michael Reddy and Leonard Posey, John Glenn High principal Dennis Connolly and some district teachers.

MORE THAN half of the money raised by anti-millage forces was carried over from last year, when donations came not only from inside the district, but also from residents in such cities as Southfield, Flint, Detroit, Novi, Okemos, Romulus, Ypsilanti and Chicago, campaign reports said.

However, many school district workers - some of whom contributed to the SOS campaign - also do not live in the district, millage opponents said.

The amount spent by pro-millage forces came as no surprise to David "I thought maybe they'd spend MORANTY SAID school board members and top-level school administrators "should accept the blame" for the millage defeat, which he attributed to voter distrust of school officials.

Moranty also criticized school officials for blaming Westland Mayor Robert Thomas, among others, for helping to defeat the millage. The mayor had publicly opposed the 7.75mill proposal.

"I think the board and the administration ought to take a real hard. look at themselves instead of blaming everybody else," Moranty said.

IN OTHER developments, SOS treasurer Linda Pratt - also a candidate in the June 10 school board election - said she's not sure what campaign approaches SOS members will use to try to sway voters in the June 10 millage election.

The millage supporters have "a really short time" to try to win more voters to the pro-millage camp, Pratt said.

Strategies will be discussed during the next SOS meeting, which she said Moranty, chairman of Wayne-West- is expected to be within the next week.

Trustee wants to expand study panel

By Darrell Clem staff writer 🕓

Westland Mayor Robert Thomas' plan for a blue ribbon school committee has prompted a Wayne-Westland school trustee to call for an expanded proposal.

Trustee Kathleen Chorbagian said the proposal should include more representation from three other communities - Wayne, Inkster and Canton — that the school district serves.

Chorbagian suggested the mayors of those communities also should name committees to study school district needs, as Thomas did April 11 during a town hall meeting."

"This has to be a total communication from across the district," Chorbagian said.

-"I-think it's a start," she said of recent efforts to spark more community involvement in the school system. "We (school board members) have been remiss.'

Thomas' proposal won support from some local school officials, including Superintendent Dennis O'Neill, but Chorbagian indicated Monday the project needs to be expanded. :

Chorbagian, a Wayne resident, suggested that separate mayoral/supervisor appointed committees from Westland, Wayne, Inkster and Canton Township should be created to study the school district and make recommendations for improvements.

Moreover, each committee should appoint two of its members to serve on a panel that Chorbagian suggested naming the Community Education Council to the Board of Education, she said. The panel would issue non-binding recommendations to the school board.

Chorbagian, speaking after Monday's school board session, said more input from communities other than Westland annears necessary because "we cannot show favoritism to one community."

"I think we do need to draw other people and work on (public relations)," Scott added. "I think it would/ help in getting millages passed if more people understood what's going on in our school system."

The school district has seen three millage proposals defeated since February 1990, and school officials have decided to seek a 7.75-mill tax hike in the June 10 school election.

A newly formed committee to study Wayne-Westland school district finances and operations will have its first session at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

The committee was recommended three weeks ago by Mayor Robert Thomas to draft proposals to be submitted to the school board.

"The initial meeting will be held to acquaint all of the committee members with each other and to get a feel as to what direction you wish Randy Liepa. to take," Thomas said in letters to the committee members.

to the mayors of Wayne, Inkster and Canton, Scott said. "We haven't really gotten that far in terms of exactly how we're going to work on this."

Thomas' proposal includes both millage supporters and opponents, and it includes a number of city and school representatives.

Erik, 13, a seventh grader at Emerson Middle School in the Livonia district, is the son of Ugo and Kathleen Coppola.

The carrier's favorite school subjects are math and gym. Outside of class, he likes building models and stained glass activities.

Erik said he hopes to attend colleg/after high school graduation.*

"The people" is what he likes most about his paper route. Learning responsibility and remembering things are important skills he developed on the route.

A paper route could benefit other youngsters by developing responsibility, he said.

A section of a deteriorating Wayne County building in Westland has been renovated to create temporary homes for 26 families with small children.

The renovation, described by county officials as a model of a facility for homeless families for the nation, was formally opened to the public and media Monday morning.

The first families are expected to move in for periods up to 30 days about May 1, said Linda Makowski, manager of the Wayne County Family Center. The facility is located in the former county commissary building on Michigan Avenue, between Merriman and Henry Ruff.

The first county facility for homeless families "has long been a" dream for all of us," said county commissioner Kay Beard, D-Inkster, whose district includes Westland and Garden City.

The shelter will also "give dignity and humanity and offer a brighter future" to those families, said Luther Flanagan, executive director of Wayne Metro Community Services, a private agency which will operate the center.

Flanagan said that potential numbers of homeless is based on the agency's figures which show that about 2 percent of the county's poor are expected to be homeless at some point during a year. He estimated the poor at between 162,000 and 180,000.

THE CENTER is described as a "place of hopeond renewal," said Rick Pennings, "acting director of the Michigan State Housing Authority.

County executive Edward McNamara, who presided over the ribbon-cutting ceremony and press conference, stressed that the shelter will provide much more than just temporary housing for homeless families,

"There will be counseling, job training, help in looking for affordable housing, and help to let the people get back on their feet," he said.

McNamara also praised the cities in the county for allocating part of their federal block grant funds to pay for the family center. He also complimented the U.S.

Housing and Urban Development Department for approving $1 million in operational funds and other private and commercial groups for their donations,

For example, J.C. Penney Inc. donated mattresses, a Livonia Holiday Inn provided linens and other furnishings, the Detroit Edison Foundation contributed rollaway beds and cash while the Michigan Landscaping Association handled the landscaping outside the building.

IN DESCRIBING the center as one of the largest in the country, McNamara stressed that the shelter will preserve the family unit which "is so important to our society."

DeWitt Henry, assistant county executive in charge of jobs and economic development, called the renovation a "miracle" in view of the masive amount of work that had to be done. To get an idea of the original condition of the building's first floor, visitors should see the second floor.

New hotline makes volunteering easy

Want to lend a hand? Make-a donation?

Thursday, April 25, 1991 O&E

Doing either will be easier beginning Wednesday, May 1, when the new "HelpLink HotLine" becomes operative.

The holling - initiated in observance of National Volunteer Week being celebrated this week - will enable volunteers to contact nonprofit agencies that need money or -workers.

_ It was created by Birminghambased Allnet Communications Services Inc., the largest Michiganbased long distance carrier.

"We know there are many people put there who want to volunteer to help others, but don't know how to go about it." said Allnet President John Zrno. "The HelpLink HotLine enables prospective volunteers to quickly learn about agencies needing help."

Zrno offered his comments Tuesday during a press conference at the Detroit headquarters of Alternatives for Gigls, an example of agencies that and expected to benefit from the new hotvine.

ALTERNATIVES FOR GIRLS, 10cated in the shadow of Tiger Stadium, tries to alert young women to the dangers of prostitution and inform them of alternatives.

Also boosting the system was Lem Barney, a former defensive back with the Detroit Lions. "Volunteering through the HelpLink Hotline is one way for Detroiters to help brighten the city's image and show Zrno sald volunteers are especially needed in light of budget cuts and the problems they create for social agencies. "With massive cuts in both state and federal budgets, non-profit agencies need our help more than ever.

"We see this (HelpLink) as a hightech way of tugging at people's heart strings," said Zrno.

The HelpLink number is 1-800-U-R-VITAL, or 1-800-878-4825. People who call that number looking for assistance will be directed to the 24hour human service referral program-operated by the United Community Services.

WHEN PEOPLE CALL HelpLink; they will get a computerized director of up to 25 non-profit agencies and information on contacting them. Callers can listen to the agency's recorded information and then leave a message for the agency.

-Some agencies in the Oakland and western Wayne county areas who have expressed a commitment to participate or act as a distribution network for HelpLink materials include: ARC of Oakland County, Child Abuse and Neglect Council of Oakland, Cultural Council of Birmingham/Bloomfield, Family Service of Detroit and Wayne County, Forgotten Harvest, The Haven, JARC, Jewish Community Council of Metropolitan Detroit, Judson Center, Kadima, Meals on Wheels, National Society of Fundraising Executives, Orchards, The Sanctuary, Inc., The Heat and Warmth Fund (THAW).

Burger Center Cub Scouts hold derby

It wasn't the Indianapolis 500 but it was just as much fun for Cub Scout Pack 565 at the Burger Center for Autistic Students.

The scouts at the Garden City school held their first pinewood derby, which most cub packs have annually.

The boys made their own model cars and had a race track donated for the day by Tom Palazzola and John Cargell, cubmaster and assistant cubmaster of Pack 881 based at Westland's Hayes Elementary School.

in making the cars from kits from Ron Wroblewski, Burger's woodworking teacher.

Cubmistress Colleen Presley said help was also provided by Chris Nicholson, father of a member of the cub pack, who is a professional race car driver who donated automotive paints and numbers.

Presley said the derby was held so the boys, who are developmentally disabled and unable to communicate and relate to others, could have the same racing experience as other scouts.

Donating their time for the event. The youngsters also received help which included ribbons for the winners, were Fay Calvo, mother of one of the racers, Debbie Hunt, who made ribbons for the top finishers, and Hunt's mother, Barbara Zuchelski.

Police pool resources to stop drug sales Comparing 1988/89 figures to 1990

By LeAnne Rogers staff writer

Prosecution of drug cases would be much more difficult without regional units like the Western Wayne County Narcotics Enforcement Team, according to prosecutors.

"Detroit is different. Typically, Detroit drug dealers tend to stay in the city," said Paul Bernier, an assistant Wayne County prosecutor assigned to the drug unit. "In western Wayne County, the 'dealers don't know boundaries. There is not a Garden City or Dearborn dealer. They go all over western Wayne."

The various Michigan state police concept enforcement teams, which also focus on other crimes such as auto theft, make working in local communities easier by using local officers assigned to the units, he said.

"For the smaller communities, it's nice to have local officers working drugs. No one knows it like the local officers," Bernler said, "But from a staffing perspective, you need so many people that it's better to be attached to Western Wayne."

About two years after joining the prosecutor's staff, Bernier, now 33, was transferred to the special operations division and assigned to the. prosecutor's drug unit.

"I HAVE NO idea why I was assigned to the unit. I'd like to think it was because I was doing a good job," he said. "I didn't have any special training but working down here you can't help but do a lot of narcotics and murder cases."

When Bernier and two other assistant prosecutors were assigned specifically to handle drug cases three years ago, the bulk of cases. were coming from western Wayne County.

"It goes in cycles. The cycle. switched for awhile to Detroit," he said. "Now it's going back a bit (to the suburbs)."

Once enforcement is able to cut out a drug organization in the suburbs, Bernier said it takes some time for a 10- to 20-member group to fill the vold.

"It's not-like Detroit where someone will fill a spot in 10 minutes." he said.

It is naive to think drug activity can be pushed out of a local community, he said, because the problem is too widespread.

""You can't be parochial about drugs. It's a national problem," Bernler said. "We need to solve all the way. If it is difficult to buy drugs in Garden City, they will go to Westland."

twofold emphasis, he said, a combination of education and enforcement.

"I put a lot more faith in education than rehabilitation," Bernier said, "From a drug trafficking view, the dealer is motivated by pure greed. You're not going to rehabilitate that.".

YOUNGSTERS need to be taught about what will happen to them if they get involved in selling drugs, he said.

"Long term in drug dealing, you will either be killed or in jail," Ber-

· Illegal drugs with an estimated street value of $1.3 million were purchased or confiscated in 1990 through the efforts of the Western Wayne County Narcotic Enforcement-Team-

That figure was more than double the street value of illegal drugs purchased or seized by the 10-member unit in 1988-1989 in which $496,986 worth of drugs was confiscated. "Because of the media, people are

Garden City Police Chief Roger Wilkes chairs the unit's board of directors although his department currently doesn't have an officer in the unit,

The largest purchases or seizures by the unit in 1990 were 8603.3 grams of cocaine and 28,885 units of LSD.

Members of the unit made 104 arrests in 1990, with charges including 39 counts of delivery of cocaine over 50 grams and 20 counts for delivery of marijuana. The arrests were made in 24 different communities in Wayne, Oakland, Washtenaw and

"We have no jurisdictional boundaries to overcome. Out-of-state cases, we work constantly with federal groups."

Communities which have an officer assigned to the unit do receive priority treatment on enforcement and arrests, he said Each local officer's salary is paid by his/her department.

"It is preferable to have a body from each community assigned to the unit," Shewell said. "That officer usually has a finger on the pulse of who the dealers are and what is going on. The local patrol officers will call him with information-too."

During 1988-1989, a 15-month reporting period, the unit initiated 223 complaints with 164 arrests on 228 counts.~

Since the Western Wayne narcotles enforcement team was started. Shewell said it has received strong support from local communities.

Unlike some regional law enforcement groups which have gotten into disputes with local agencies over drug-related forfeitures, he said that hasn't been an issue in Western Wayne County.

"Our main goal is not to seize. money but to put defendants in jail. It's good to keep that in mind," said Shewell, who has worked off and on in narcotics since 1969. "The bigger the dealer, the better. Forfeitures

Spring bloom brightens woodland trail

Next to skunk cabbage, hepatica is one of the very first spring wildflowers to bloom. Their short blooming period can be missed by those who do not walk woodland trails early in the season.

Contrasting with the neutral browns and grays of the forest floor are the white, blue or electric purple colors of the flower. Surprisingly enough, this flower has no petals. Those beautiful colors are from sepals, supported underneath by bracts and attached to a fuzzy stem. Stems rise only 4-6 inches above the. ground.

Lying flat on the ground are the brownish-green or liver-colored leaves. Each leaf has three lobes. It is the color and shape of the leaves that insimuated its medicinal application.

In the not-too-distant past, the doctrine of signatures prevailed before modern medicines became available. If any structure of a plant resembled a part of the human body, its signature, it was thought that by using that part of the plant it would heal ailments of that part of the body which it resembled.

Thus hepatica leaves were used to treat liver ailments, Other plants resembling other parts of the human body were used to treat other problems. Snapdragon family plants, such as butter and eggs, were used to treat throat problems because people thought the flower resembled a throat.

Bellwort flowers that are long and tubular looking were also used to cure throat ailments because it looked like the uvula in the throat.

If you have ever walked in fields in fall, you have probably collected half-inch round burrs with several "fish-hook" spikes radiating from the center of the sphere. Those radiating hooks are connected to seeds. and are designed like that so they will attach to fur, or cloth and be disbursed.

Choo. Choose Classified!

Well, according to the doctrine of signature, because those burrs stuck to anything, people ate the burrs to help things "stick" in their mind.

Another spring wildflower, not very common in southeastern Michigan woodlots, is the toothwort. On its roots are white toothlike projections, and as you have guessed, it was used to relieve toothaches.

In most cases these plants did not cure or relieve anything. Some plants have been analyzed and do have chemicals 'recognized as pain relievers, but they are not very common.

A lot of the bigger cases involving marijuana will be prosecuted under federal law, he said, which carries ' stiffer penalties than state statutes.

"If I had a million pounds of marijuana, if I'm making $1 million on it, I'd still only get four years (under state law)," Bernier said. "There are more and more large marijuana cases. There is incredible profit with a corresponding lack of penalties."

Conversely Michigan has the stiffest penalties in the nation for selling or buying cocaine and heroin including mandatory life prison sentences for large quantities.

Magic touch

Westland principal casts loving spell

By Marle Chestney staff writer

Hayes, Nehs and hugs. At Hayes Elementary School in Westland, when principal Jerry Nehs walks into a classroom, the kids crowd around him for hugs.

That's not your typical reaction to the sudden appearance of the principal. But it is just one of the many reasons why Nehs, a 25-year-veteran of the Livonia school district, recently was given one of education's most prestigious awards, the National Parent Teacher Association's Phoebe Apperson Hearst Outstanding Educator Award for 1990. Nehs, a modest man, said he got the award because two Hayes parents; Carol Crocker and Kathy Hofmeister, sat down and wrote pages and then start a business together. of nice things about him.

AT A RECENT school board meeting during which he got the award, Nehs even shared the spotlight with other school workers, saying he couldn't do his job without the "hundreds of unsung heros out there" in the school system.

"When you see a turtle sitting on a Ience post, you know he didn't get there by himself," Nehs told the trustees.

Yet, any visitor to the school quickly sees that a special magic exists at Hayes.

It's the kind of magic that lets a student write of Nehs, "I think of you as a dad."

: It's the kind of magic that leads parents to say, "Mr. Nehs is an educator of the mind and spirit."

--And it's the kind of magic that lets Nehs say, "Each parent, child, teacher has basic worth and dignity. You'll find what you look for. If you look for negatives, you'll find them. Even a difficult child has positive qualities."

they love him. He's a man perfectly matched to his job, an optimistic, caring, sensitive man in charge of 400 students bursting with the energy and optimism of youth. "You can't help but be affected by_ them," Nehs said. "Kids are so genuinely happy and honest. "In my job, I feel like a baseball player, like a kid again. Never has there been a day, either as a teacher or principal, when I woke up and didn't want to go to work. Being around kids, you can be a child yourself. There's laughter, fun and the excitement of discovery."

Nehs, 53, became an educator because of a personal family tragedy, the death of his brother. Both he and his brother planned to study horticulture at Michigan State University

When his brother died of cancer, that dream died too, and Nehs began a nine-year-stint in night school at the University of Detroit, working towards degrees in education.

"In picking another career, I remembered my elementary school "teachers who had impressed me."

At night, he was a student. By day he was a laborer, factory worker, septic tank driver, construction crew member, anything to earn his tultion.

"All these experiences gave me an appreciation of people. I also know what it's like to get dirt on my hands."

IN 1966, he found himself in the right place at the right time. A teaching job opened up at Garfield Elementary on the Friday he was finishing a student teaching job at the school.

He became a third grade teacher on Monday, and has been in the Livonia system since. He moved to Hoover for the 1980-81 school year, and then was promoted to Hayes princi-everything growing and green, seeing the Hayes building for the first time was depressing. There was nothing growing around the school on Louise except overgrown weeds. But Hayes didn't keep its unkempt appearance for long. Part of Nehs' philosophy of being an administrator is that students should feel a sense of ownership in the building.

One way to build that sense of ownership is to have students plant something that-will stay on the grounds long after they have moved on to another school.

Every bush, flower and tree at Hayes has been planted by Hayes' students in the 10 years he has been at the school.

The sense of ownership is so strong that the school rarely is vandalized.

"The kids feel they own the building," Nehs said.

INSIDE HAYES, one of the highlights of the day for Nehs is Junch hour. While the students eat, Nehs makes his rounds, talking to, hugging and touching each one of them, addressing them by name.

It's a ritual the kids get used to, from kindergarten on, and they love hug them and they hug me. They get used to it." In their recommendation for the PTA national award, Crocker and Hofmeister wrote: "Our children know that they have his confidence, trust, support and his unconditional love. He is known for paying attention to children who need it, or kids who are just not getting the attention they deserve."

Nehs can't walk into a classroom without being surrounded by the kids, each child waiting their turn for a special word from their principal.

"You can't just say you love, you have to show it," Nehs said. "There's a special joy that comes from a little tiny child giving you a hug."

WHILE PRINCIPALS are expected to deal with problems that arise, Nehs can't let a good act go unnoticed, either.

He congratulates kids when they walk properly down the hall. He calls parents when their child is doing well in school. And he writes personal notes on the report cards of all 400 children when school ends in June.

Nehs adds two more Rs to the ba-

The worse part of his job, Nehs said, is not having enough time in the school day to do all the things that need to be done.

The best part, he said, is being around kids.

"I like working with people, making things work, solving problems, getting a smooth-running machine." OUTSIDE HAYES, Nehs and wife

Genie, a nurse at St. Mary Hospital,

Inside Hayes, surrounded by his kids, Nehs promotes trust.

"There's a risk involved, but kids trust you if you trust them. For the kids, coming into my office is not a scary place. We have a mutual trust and I have high expectations for them.

'I think, kids don't have problems." It's the adults who have problems. Some parents have not had a good school experience. We have to break through that. We have to raise parents' expectations about themselves

Two area residents are among a ing to knock down barriers to adopting children.

"This was our biggest and best auction yet," said auction coordinator Betty Jean Awrey of Awrey Bakerles, Livonia. "We're learning all the time."

At the auction, one bidder acquired prime acreage in Michigan's north woods for $4,200, then celebrated by acquiring a $1,300 "night on the town" entertainment package and a $1,000 trip to watch the colors change in northern Michigan.

> APPOINTED by Gov. John Engler, the panel is headed by Lt. Gov. Connie Binsfeld.

Binsfeld's 'panel held its first meeting Tuesday behind closed doors in a Senate caucus room. As an executive office agency, it is not subject to the Open Meetings Act.

The appointment was so sudden that Young, whose probate court handles adoptions, was unsure prior. to the meeting what the committee would be asked to do.

Engler asked the group to study barriers to adoption, greater use of adoption, "private" and interstate. time a child spends in foster care? adptions, and ways to promote and facilitate adoption.

Michigan records about 4,000 adoptions per year, Marengere. About half are "related" adoptions - for example, where a husband adopts his wife's child by a previous marriage. Half are between unrelated people.

MARENGERE, whose group promotes adoption, said other issues are likely to be:

• How can the state reduce the • What can be done to increase the use of adoption for unwed teen mothers? A generation ago, half or more of unwed mothers placed their , for Private Child and Family Agenchildren for adoption. Today only 3.5 percent of teen mothers place their

 Can adoption become an alternative to abortion for the two in five women in Detroit who terminate their pregnancies each year?

Marengere said the panel plans to meet every second week for about a! year. "There's a wealth of experience," he said, pointing to Verlie Ruffin of the Michigan Federation cies and Robert Ennis of the Ennis Center for Children. "We have adoptive parents and a birth parent."

*Marengere is supporting three House-passed bills sponsored by Rep. Maxine Berman, D-Southfield, that would require health insurers to cover adopted children the day they enter their new homes. Currently many insurers require a one-year waiting period before coverage will begin.

UNDERLYING the panel's concern is the high governmental cost of social services for unwed mothers.

Tax backers have tough fight

HE WAYNE-Westland Board of Education has a tough, but not impossible, fight ahead in the next two months in its campaign to get public approval for a large property tax increase.....

District voters have rejected a millage boost . three times in a 13-month period, the most recent being a narrow defeat nearly six weeks ago.

While the margins of defeat are getting closer, the basic problems remain.

A segment of the voting public doesn't have faith in the school board or administration. Other voters are fearful of a major tax increase during a recession.

But the board didn't do itself any favors Monday when it placed the 7.75 mill increase on the June 10 ballot on a less than unanimous vote. The proposal is nearly the same as the one which was narrowly defeated last month. The only difference is that the new proposal is for two years instead of five.

In most cases, a split board results in an unsuccessful campaign. The reason is that most residents feel that if the school district's leaders can't agree on a tax proposal; why should_the community support it. -

Leading the argument for several tax proposals is board trustee Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek, who prefers to have three separate issues on the ballot to give voters a choice.

BUT HER reasoning fails the test of logic and political realities of life.

After all, what would happen to the district if voters approved the smaller millage levy for extracurricular programs and rejected the levy which could have allowed the restoration of the Millage supporters will continue to have a tough fight with a divided school board putting a gram we had last year. Do you think it should be continued? Yes or no?"

While the board is facing a problem in going before the public with a split board, there is one positive factor it has in its favor that wasn't there in the past three elections — the legislative-approved property tax freeze for 1992.

Under the agreement reached last week in Lansing, next year's assessments will be the same as this year instead of having homeowners face the typical 8 to 10 percent increases. The Wayne-Westland school board and millage backers faced a major timing problem in last month's election because residents were notified of their annual assessment increases of 7 to 8 percent the week before the millage election.

IN THE past few years, local voters were upset about a lot of things involving schools and taxes, but a major problem was the ongoing, unsettled disputes about the related issues of property tax cuts, school financing and the disparity between rich and poor school districts.

When large numbers of persons are unsure of what the future is on property assessments, they will not go out of their way to raise the tax rates.

But now with the assessment freeze assured for next year, it will eliminate one problem for

President's ideas put to a test in Michigan

Fiddledywinks

"THEY'RE NOT new ideas. A lot of them are restatements of what a lot of people have been saying about education for a long time . . . But he's telling a whole country that education is important."

So thinks Michigan U.S. Rep. William D. Ford about President Bush's big set of proposals to improve American schools. Ford's views should count. He chairs the House Education and Labor Committee, which must approve these proposals for them to become law.

Most people who know something about the field generally agree.

I'm pleased, for example, the president has endorsed a set of ideas put forth by the Commission on Skills in the American Workforce on which I still serve. Our report urged a set of national asessments for basic skills and national skills centers to train workers for on-the-job careers - both ideas endorsed by the president.

model curriculums and requires that kids pass competency tests before they graduate. Sadly, this bold innovation bogged down once the educational bureaucracy in Lansing began to issue mind-numbing regulations about what kids were really expected to learn. Not much, I'm sorry to say.

And the idea of getting businesses to help build new schools is already going forward. In this area, the Model High School in Bloomfield Hills was created with the help of $750,000 from RJR Nabisco, and the Ford Academy of Manufacturing Sciences in Novi High School was started with $1 million from Ford. So far, it's too early to know how these promising experiments will turn out.

might be a good idea to find out what basic skills Michigan employers actually wanted from new hires. That, led to a full committee, headed by Owen Bieber of the UAW and Peterr Pestillo of Ford. It beavered away for several years.

The commission's sensible report disappeared into the bowels of the Department of Education. "Just-" working out the details of how to test for these skills," they said.

Nothing has been heard from it in three years. I'm not holding my" breath.

Who's at fault? Lawsuits are business trend

RE BUSINESSES responsible for what happens on their premises? The Michigan Court of Appeals has decided they are, and that could lead to a disturbing trend in which lawsuits are filed simply for the sake of financial reward. Take the following examples.

Situation: A teenager and three companions are playing alongside rallroad tracks in northeast Detroit. As a freight train passes, a shot rings out, striking and crippling one of the youths. Who fired the gun or even where the shooter was remains unknown.

Situation: A Grand Rapids-area woman rents a truck in Detroit to haul some furniture she purchased at a garage sale. The truck rental firm is at a motel in a high-crime area. The woman is abducted, robbed and raped in the motel parking lot.

In a pair of decisions that could have longreaching effects both on small businesses and the business climate and economic stability of older communities in western Wayne and Oakland Counties, the appeals court reversed earlier rul. ings and awarded damages to the plaintiffs in each case.

Both are likely headed to the Michigan Supreme Court for further review.

TAKEN SEPARATELY, the rulings represent the first instances in which the appellate court has countered a 1988 state Supreme Court ruling holding that businesses aren't responsible for criminal actions of third parties on their premises unless they have been truly negligent. Together, they indicate a disturbing frend in our increasingly litigious society: File suit against a faceless corporation, pursue it long enough and you'll be rewarded financially.

We can certainly empathize with the victims in these cases. Both went through terrible experiences with lasting physical and emotional scars. The acts were criminal and punishment for the perpetrators should be handled accordingly.

Lawyers need to learn — when it's justified — how to 'just say no.'

We do not advocate infringing on anyone's personal right to take legal action to remedy a situation in which they have been wronged.

--But to place blame on the companies involved is wrong.

Yes, local businesses should take reasonable precautions to ensure the safety of their customers. We would hardly argue against the business owner's responsibility to maintain the premises and offer an immediate environment that is secure.

But those measures respond to the negligence standards outlined by the Supreme Court. The appeals court, however, is putting a lower standard in place, assigning responsibility to those who fail to mitigate what the court defines as "a public nuisance.'

HOLDING COMPANIES legally and financially accountable for situations in which they have no control strikes us as unreasonable and impractical •The cost for the small businesses that dominate our towns would be prohibitive.

In addition, the consequences if this trend continues could be devasting to retention and renewal efforts in our older communities.

How long will businesses be able to hang on in some of our older suburbs? Will small merchants in Garden City, Redford or Southfield tough it out in the face of a long string of such damage 'awards? We doubt it. 🗉

The answer lies in self-restraint on the part of juries, courts, lawyers and juries.

Jurors must learn to truly separate the law from the all-too-human desire to see large corporations brought to their knees.

Michigan judges, both appointed and elected, have a responsibility to the community at large as well as the litigants who appear before them. Because their decisions have wide-ranging consequences on that community, any departure from precedent should be weighed with extreme care, something that seems lacking in the two appeals court decisions.

Meanwhile, the state bar association needs to impress upon its members the dangers of an al-

Board member responds to editorial

To the editor:

I read with interest your editorial of April 11 regarding the Wayne-Westland district and the potential for change the election of new board members represents.

I did not intend to respond to your editorial until I received numerous letters and phone calls from citizens about your inference that I, along with any newly elected board members, would form a new majority on the board.

While I recognize the need for a change in Jeadership and direction of the board (I am personally supporting candidates Vickie Welty and Lin-> da Pratt), it is not my intention to form a majority with any board member's past, present or future.

Some of the letters/calls insinuated that I was in the back pocket of the "anti-administration" faction (whomever they may be). Others indicated I based my decisions on what the administration wanted.

People who know me know that neither is correct. I am not pro- or anti-administration, but rather an independent individual who decides is- " sues on what is best for the children of our district.

My moral obligation as a member of the board is to keep our children in school for a full day so that they can get a proper education.

While I have this opportunity, I would like to clear up any misunderstanding the public may have regarding my "split millage proposal."

A survey done by a state education organization in Lansing prior to last September told us not to hold an election at that time. This survey indicated that the majority of the public may support proposals designated for certain purposes.

I would like to see three separate proposals on the June 10 ballot.

The first would be a proposal for enough mills for academic purposes to restore all educational programs K-12, i.e., full day of school, new textbooks, full accreditation, etc.

The second proposal would carmark enough dollars for 'busing/ maintenance items. The third would specify millage for extracurricular programs, sports, drama, all clubs, etc.

I believe that the public is willing to spend additional tax dollars if it knows specifically what those tax dollars are used for (accountability). If the public is not willing to support carmarked proposals, then the board has justification for their cuts.

I became very upset at the March 25 school board meeting.

Why are people lashing out at others, putting blame on everyone else. Let us help with this situation in ways that we can, not call people ignorant because they have a different view point. Everyone has to take a stand on what they believe. We should not be "yes" people, but have a mind of our own.

I have raised 11 children in this school system, paid private tultion and public taxes and asked help from no one - and am proud of it.

My taxes have gone from $45 in 1946 to $1,832 in 1990. How can I possibly pay more on a small fixed income?

Could you please publish a yearly break down of school income and expenses in a local paper? I'm sure other people would agree.

Has Mayor (Robert) Thomas finally taken a stand on the school millage or is there a hidden reason for his sudden miraculous decision to form a "Blue Ribbon Committee" to study the problems facing the Wayne-Westland school district?

Is he now beginning to see the light at the end of the dark tunnel which he has created by his continued silence on this very serious issue?

I hope his intentions are honorable. He is right about one thing. Ic isn't up to him to do anything about the current school problems but a little flicker of hope can be seen by this positive step. Now, the next question is whether all the people asked to serve on this committee will accept and what

local millages

QUESTION: We voted in a $2 million millage package for "educational excellence" two years ago. The state took the money away through its recaptore bill or what is called the Robin Hood Act and gave it to poorer districts. Now our district wants another millage to get the money back.

How long does our school district get fed up with supporting other disthink we're going to vote in money if tricts. the state keeps taking it away each time we vote it in and giving it to some other district? What are some of its long range implications?

ANSWER: Depends on who you talk to. Some districts have lost more than $3 million last year and will lose another $3 million this year through the recapture bill.

Many in affected districts say this state financial plan which former Gov. James Blanchard promoted is not to improve education but to turn quality school programs into mediocre programs. They say, "Let's bring the poorer programs up instead of pulling us down."

The Robin Hood bill cuts back severely on what is called categorical aid for the "out-of-formula" districts (relatively wealthler districts than poorer or "in-formula districts").

YOU ASK, "What are some of the long range implications?" If the state continues to decrease its support of categoricals, such as Social Security, transportation and special education, and backs off on supporting teacher-retirement for-wealthier districts, this is what I envision:

• Taxpayers in the wealthier districts will be hard pressed to continue supporting local millages. The reason or rationalization will be, "Why should I vote in a tax increase when the state continually decreases its support of our district and gives money to some other school districts?"

• Some of the wealthier districts could spend more than they take in even after major program reductions are made.

Doyle

INFROME TREAM OF HEALTHING THE

• New legislation will gradually and then greatly have an impact on teacher negotiations. Right now a bill mandating that school districts must bid out their health coverage is on the agenda.

I'm told the cost of MESSA insurance can be 10 to 15 percent higher than competitors. On a $40 million thadget, this is $600,000 more thancan be saved through competitive bidding.

The new insurance bill, if passed, says you will bid competitively for health insurance or lose state aid.

OTHER EFFECTS - the more financially solvent districts will eventually feel are obvious as in poorer districts.

-Class size could increase drastically. Paraprofessionals and teacher aids will be cut back.

Special education class size will increase through legislative action. Art, music and physical education (the usual whipping boys) will be reduced at the elementary level.

Pupil transportation could be cut back. Enrichment programs, such as for the gifted and talented, will be affected; athletics could be substantially cut back or eliminated.

Teachers could be reassigned and some will be teaching in their minor areas. Early retirement packages will become more popular, even inthose districts that philosophically oppose this concept.

. The bottom line is, regardless of what fantasy teachers and administrators in wealthier districts hold, Chrysler, Ford, General Motors, ad-• Unions, in the wealthier dis- vertising agencies, wall Street and tricts, will find little, if any, support thousands of other entities are drasfor teacher strikes. Taxpayers will tically reducing their expenditures.

Schoolcraft board to decide tuition increase Tax freeze may mean more hikes --- officials---

By-Wayne Peal staff writer

A $2 tuition increase is being proposed for most Schoolcraft College students, but students may face an even bigger increase next year.

The proposed increase roughly reflects the current rate of inflation. said Adelard Raby, college vice president for business services.

"It's been rounded off to the near-above the inflation rate, Raby said, due to the property tax assessment freeze recently approved by the state Legislature.

Property tax assessments for 1992 will be frozen at current levels, with voters to decide in November, 1992 whether to adopt additional property tax limits.

While that is good news for home-

"The good news is that gave us a * reprieve for this year," Raby said.

THE PROPOSED $2-increase would be applied to students living within the Schoolcraft service dis-

Developers would get tax breaks By Wayne Peal staff writer

Bo Schembechler made it clear Monday the Detroit Tigers seek a municipally built stadium. But the Tigers wouldn't be the only ones receiving public help if stadium plans become a reality.

Developers of proposed ethnic villages and shops around the new. ballpark would receive large-scale tax breaks under plans proposed by Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara.

Schembechler, president of the Detroit baseball team, gave county and city officials until Aug. 1 to put forth a stadium package.

McNamara said plans would ready to go long before the Tigersimposed deadline.

WE CAN be ready by June 1 if he wants," McNamara said. "We have our package ready."

That package includes creation of an enterprise zone around the as-yet undisclosed stadium site.

--While McNamara and Gov. John Engler have discussed the concept, no commitments have yet been måde.

It would be the second enterprise zone in the state. One has already been enacted in economically ravaged Benton Harbor.

Using that as a guideline, developers could see a two-thirds cut in property taxes, plus complete exemption from other taxes over the estimated 10-year life of the enterprise zone. Enteprise zones are "a benefit/in-centive package paid for by state and local tax abatements", said economic development specialist John Iverson of the state Department of Commerce. In Benton Harbor, he said, devel-opers received a 65 percent cut in property taxes, plus 100 percent exemption from the state single business tax and sales and use tax. Those figures, he added, wouldn't necessarily be the same for a Detroit enterprise zone. "I'm not sure if the program as it exists now will be transposed entirely to any Detroit situation," Iverson said. "There may be some refinement."

ENTERPRISE ZONES were created by the state in 1985. They are governed by a seven-member body, with two members appointed by the governor and five others appointed locally.

Businesses rejected for enterprise zone benefits at the local level can appeal to a state governing board, Iverson said.

Though an enterprise zone would require state approval, Iverson said the Detroit project could be enacted locally under slightly different guidelines.

"Though they've been calling it an enterprise zone, they could also do it as a development zone," he said. "Because it would be Detroit-specif-ic, it wouldn't need state approval."

McNamara has said no additional legislation was necessary to complete the project.

A number of area business leaders and developers, including millionaire businessman Alfred Taubman and Plymouth developer Robert De-Mattia, have discussed the en-terprise zone with McNamara, though what role reach would play in developing land around the stadium isn't known

Members of the Tiger Stadium Fan Club - boosting their own plans to save the existing stadium — have criticized the county executive's plan as too grandiose and costly. "We're looking at a financially sfrapped city and state and here we're talking about making (millionaire Tiger owner) Tom Monaghan our biggest welfare recipient," said fan club founder Frank Rashid of Detroit.

McNamara, however, said the stadium and surrounding facilities would spur economic growth throughout the city.

"If the Tigers left, it would be devastating," he said.

Stevenson holds Churchill at bay

By Brad Emons staff writer

Early in the second half, Livonia Stevenson girls soccer coach Mary Kay Hussey retreated to the top of the bleachers to get a birds-eye view of things.

"You see a different game up there," said the coach of the defending state Class A champions.___

City rival Churchill couldn't knock Hussey's topranked and unbeaten Spartans off their perch Wednesday, falling 2-0.

"I thought we played well in the first half as a team," Hussey said. "We had a lot of great passing and several close_opportunities. We had great movement off the ball."

Stevenson dominated most of the first half, scoringonly 4 minutes and nine seconds into the match when Maureen Drabicki drilled in a shot from close-range on a long throw-in from Patty Diamond.

The Spartans had at least three other serious chances to score during the opening 40 minutes, only to be turned away by Churchill goalkeeper Monia Cervi.

WITH A 1-0 lead entering the second half, Hussey moved up into the stands and left assistant coach Paul Scicluna in charge on the sideline.

Hussey eventually moved back onto the field to watch her girls record their sixth straight victory.

Churchill, saved only by the play of Cervi, stayed close despite being outplayed for 55 of the first 80 mlnutes.

The Chargers mounted a late second-half comeback, but could not finish off any offensive set-ups.

Stevenson's Lisa Thomas, who sparked her team all night long from her midfield post, put the game away when she scored off her own rebound after Cervi stopped a penalty shot with 1:40 remaining.

"Lisa' just goes and doesn't stop," Hussey said. "Her intensity is extreme and her desire is a high as it can be.

"That goal (off the rebound shot) was the sign of a smart player."

Stevenson's speedy foursome Thomas, Shannon Wilkinson, Michelle Brach and Ragen Coyne made it difficult for the Chargers to keep pace. "They (Stevenson) looked faster and I think they are faster, but we had no intend y whatsoever, especially in the first half," Churchill coach Nick O'Shea said. "Letting the rebound go (on Thomas' penalty kick) was typical of the way we played. We sat back all night and waited for something to happen."

THE CHARGERS became more aggressive during the latter stages of the second half, but it was too little, too late.

"Churchill came at us in the second half," Hussey said. "We looked like we were a little tired, while Churchill was going hard in all different directions. I think we got a bit confused."

The Spartans' defense, spearheaded by Lori Godlewski, Andrea Wittrock, Kristin Oswandel and Diamond, made goalie Karen Groulx's job much easier than Cervi's.

But the Stevenson netminder came through when called upon.

"Karen made a very good save in the first half and I thought overall she did very well under pressure," Hussey said.

O'Shea, whose team fell to 3-2-1 overall, also had nothing but praise for his keeper.

"Monia made some great saves, not to mention the penalty kick, too," the Churchill coach said. "We just had no intensity. We didn't get nuch going offensively in the first half, but they scored on a penalty kick and a -throw-in-It could have been a different-game, but-for-some reason we didn't play. Maybe we were emotionally drained going in."

HUSSEY BELIEVES the Chargers will be heard from again. The two teams could match up again in the Western Lakes Activities Association crossover (Inursday May 16), or in the district tournament (May 20-25).

Boles taken by Cowboys in 11th round of NFL draft

By Brad Emons staff writer

What are Tony Boles' chances of making the Dallas Cowboys? It all depends on how his damaged knee comes around.

Boles, the Westland John Glenn High product who later starred at the University of Michigan, is expected to be at the Cowboys' minicamp, which begins today.

Dallas took a gamble, selecting Boles on the 11th round, the 291st pick overall in the National Football League draft.

Cowboys running backs coach Joe Brodsky said he is sold on Boles, but the big if is the condition of the tailback's knee. Boles suffered severe ligament damage when he went down in during a 49-15 victory at Minnesota on Nov. 18, 1989.

After undergoing reconstructive surgery, Boles ultimately dropped out of school and out of sight, while forfeiting his final year of eligibility.

As an assistant under Dallas headcoach Jimmy Johnson during his tenure at the University of Miami, Brodsky remembers the Boles that gained 129 yards in 33 carries in a 31-30 loss to the Hurricanes (Sept. 1988).

"COACH JOHNSON (Jimmy) thought he was very impressive when we played against him, and we only draft people that Jimmy likes," Brodsky said. "I met Tony twice and worked him out in Ann Arbor. I believe he's a quality young man, quiet and reserved. I'm the one who really pushed for him."

Dallas is looking for someone to back up starter Emmitt Smith.

Among the back-up candidates are Pittsburgh's Curvin Richards, a fourth-round pick; and Keith Jones, a Plan B free agent from Nebraska who is also coming off knee surgery. "All four have credentials and can be starters," Brodsky said. "Our offense has changed, so everybody will be starting out new."

But Boles' biggest obstacle is regaining a work ethic toward rehabilitating his knee.

"Physically he has work to do," Brodsky said. "He has to have the right kind of rehab, the five-six-seven day per week rehab so we know what kind of player he can be. To get a job, he has to triple the effort on rehab."

BOLES, who made All Big Ten after gaining 1,408 yards (5.4 per carry) in 1988 and added 839 more (6.4 per carry) in 1989 before being injured, was often compared to former Dallas All-Pro Tony Dorsett.

"I really don't see that comparison," Brodsky said. "I see a much taller, leaner, slashing type of guy. Before he went down (with the injury) he was a helluva back. He was the type of runner who made you miss tackles, very shifty. Coach Johnson has always been impressed with that type of runner."

But can Boles, who ran a 4.55 in the 40-yard dash at NFL Combine in Indianapolls, persuade Johnson and the Cowboys that they made the right pick?

Kurtis prevails at West Bloomfield

By Steve Kowalski staff writer-

To no one's surprise, Doug Kurtis won Sunday's 15th Annual West Bloomfield Half-Marathon - and the brand new videocassette recorder that goes to the men's champion.

A year ago Kurtis also won the men's race and a new color television set, which ultimately he gave to his mother-in-law. Does that mean the VCR is going to her, too?

"No, I can use a VCR," said Kurlis, a 1970 Livonia Stevenson graduate who now lives in Northville. "My mother-in-law needed a TV last year so I gave it to her."

Kurtls deserved something for himself after finishing the 13.1 mile course in one hour, nine minutes and 17 seconds. Kurlis, who ranks second in the world with 57 marathons in less than 2:20, had to battle 10-15

'Kurtis' beat out Ann Arbor's Don Demetriades, 30, who finished second in 1:10:06.

Last year, running under sunny skies and 65 degree weather, Kurtis withstood a big challenge from 25year-old Don Johns before pulling away in the last half mile. He didn't feel as threatened this time by Demetriades, but Kurtis said he never really lost sight of his greatest challenger.

"Don hung in there for a couple of miles and when'I got away from him he still was 10 to 20 yards behind," said Kurtis. "This the third time I've run against him this year and I beat

Crusaders fight back after Aquinas losses

After a disappointing doubleheader loss April 17 to Aquinas College - both games by a single run -- Madonna University's softball team-rebounded to collectthree wins in four games last weekend.

Two of the wins were over NAIA District 23 foe Grand Rapids Baptist, and both were stopped prematurely, accordingto the district's eight-run mercy rule. The Lady Crusaders thumped the Comets 9-1 and 19-0 Thursday.in Grand Rapids.

Janet Hietila (from Redford Union HS) earned the win in the opener, hurling a three-hitter over six innings. She walked one and struck out two.

The game was close entering the sixth, with Madonna clinging to a 2-1 lead. But four Baptist errors helped trigger the seven-run rally, which included singles by Megan Armstrong, Holly Brachel, Stacey Girard and Mandy Armstrong - four of the Crusaders' six hits.

IN THE SECOND game, Madonna didn't wait so long to assert itself. The Crusaders pushed across nine runs in the first inning - with Jill Burt and Kelly Gannon each slashing two-run singles and Mandy Armstrong adding a run-scoring single. Four more Comet errors fueled Madonna's rally.

Jenny Marquette added a tworun single to spur the Crusaders' four-run second inning, and Mandy Armstrong drove in two runs with a base hit in the four-run third. Mandy Armstrong finished with two hits, two-runs scored and three runs batted in, while sister Megan scored four runs. Gannon also had two hits.

Hietila (first three lnnings) combined with Joann Donehay (last two) in the three-hit shutout, with Donehay getting the win. They did not walk a batter between them; Baptist pitchers walked nine.

ON FRIDAY, Madonna split its doubleheader-against Ferris-State, winning the opener 3-2 on Burt's clutch run-producing double in the seventh but losing the nightcap 6-5.

Burt's game-winner followed a walk to Marquette. Madonna got. its first two runs in the first inning on RBI singles by Marquette (she had two hits in the game) and Brachel. Donehay limited the Lady Bulldogs to five hits and no walks in picking up the win.

In the second game, two passed balls by Brachel allowed two runs to score, and that hurt in the onerun loss.

ANGIE VAN DYKE and Megan Armstrong each singled in a run in the second to put the Crusadersahead - briefly, before Ferris got two in its half of the inning. Madonna recaptured the lead on Stacey Girard's run-scoring single, but the Bulldogs again tied it in-the-bottom-half-of the inning, then went ahead 5-3 with two in fourth.

- Cheryl Baker knocked in a run with a base hit, pulling Madonna to within 5-4 midway through the fifth. But Ferris added another run to its total in its half of the fifth, leaving Burt's RBI double in the sixth one run shy.

Donehay absorbed both defeats against Aquinas College last week, 4.3 and 6.5, at Massey Field in Plymouth. Girard had a two-run homer for Madonna. The_Crusaders are 20.12 overall, 5-3 in the district - in third place behind Siena Heights (6-0) and Aquinas (5-1).

Patterson, Liedel spark EMU track

By Brad Emona staff writer

Eastern Michigan University's men's track program may be one of the best-kept secrets around, but it may be difficult to silence the running exploits of two former All-Observer standouts, Tiberia-Patterson (Redford Catholic Central) and Dan Liedel (Westland John Glenn).

Patterson, a sophomoro hurdler, and Liedel, a junior steeplechaser and distance runner, have the Hurons on the verge of yet another Mid-American Conference title, which could be their ninth in the last 10 years.

Under longtime coach Bob Parks, EMU has produced its share of Olympic standouts including gold medal hurdler Hayes Jones (1964-Tokyo), gold medal sprinter Hasely Crawford (1976-Montreal) and Earl Jones, silver medalist at 800 meters (1984-Los Angeles).

At the University of Tennessee's Dogwood Relays (April 12-13), Patterson nearly eclipsed Jones' 110-meter school record of 13.74.

The CC product went 13.82 to win the open event, beating Big Eight champion Willie Clark of Iowa State and Rocket Ismail's little brother from Syracuse, Quadry (also known as the Missile). Patterson's time ranks him among the top six NCAA competitors this spring in the 110 highs.

LIEDEL, meanwhile, finished second in the 3,000-meter steeplechase with an EMU season best of 9:11.83.

Both Patterson and Liedel took second in their respective events last spring at the MAC Championships... But Patterson's rise through the Huron program has been the most dramatic.

After running the hurdles only one year at CC (with a season best 14.2 as a senior), Patterson came to EMU as a virtual unknown, a walk-on.

"I'll guarantee that whoever was ahead of him then (in high school), is ships at Notre Dame. not ahead of him now," said Parks, who coached at Redford Thurstonmaybe the best," said the EMU coach. "But he's got to do it consist-High from 1954-61. "We got ahold of him in the summer and he proently, under 14.0 every time out. gressed rapidly." 'In the summer we'd do a lot of things, study film and work on technique drills. We try to take it day byday."

PATTERSON, who is majoring in construction technology, does not be-lieve he's run his best race outdoors. "I felt better indoors," said Patterson, who clocked a 7.35 over in the winter in the 55-meter hurdles. "I didn't feel I ran my best race (at the Dogwood Relays) because I hit the seventh hurdle and it knocked me down.

"The ultimate for me is to run the fastest race that my body can take." Jones' long-standing school record, set back in the late '50s, may be in jeopardy, but Parks can't compare the two just yet.

"Jones had raw speed, world-class speed," Parks said. "Tiberia has very good technique. He's good over the hurdles and he's strong. He just keeps it going over and over."

Parks, however, is convinced that Patterson may be the Midwest's top collegiate hurdler. He'll have a chance to prove that next week at the Central Collegiate Champion-

"He's in the top three or four,

(knee), but he's done a good job. He's very steady and he doesn't blow up on you."

The ex-Glenn standout helped EMU to the MAC cross country title last fall, finishing eighth while ranking-third on team. Last year in the steeplechase at the MAC finals, " Liedel finished second behind team: mate Scott Hippen, who clocked an 8:55.

Liedel became a steeplechaser almost by accident.

"Actually I was gooling around in practice and coach Parks put thedistance running and the hurdling together," Liedel said. "You have to learn to run with your stride being : broken every 40 to 50 yards."

Liedel's personal best in the 3,000 steeplechase came last season, a 9:07, but he would like to break the nine-minute barrler between now and the MAC finals.

"I REALLY have no goals in track," he said. "My ultimate goal is to graduate. (He carried a 3.5 gradepoint last semester in pre-law.) Distance running is something that is, continuous practice throughout the year."

Liedel came to EMU on a partial track scholarship, a move he has not

LIEDEL, meanwhile, according to Parks, "is like all distance runners."

"He's got a good attitude, and is dedicated with a lot of ability," said the EMU coach. Liedel's best time in the 1,500 run (outdoors) is 3:53, while his top indoor time in the mile is 4:11 (beating Earl Jones over the winter). "He hasn't hit his peak yet this year, he ran faster last year," Parks said. "Right now he has a sore-leg

"I looked at Western (Michigan), but EMU had a good track program and they operate like a team," he sald.

Perhaps another Glenn product following in Lledel's footsteps is freshman Carl Lowe.

Last weekend at the Dogwood Relays, Parks threw Lowe into the 800meter run where he ran a surprising. 1:52.2, along with an impressive 47.7____ 400-split in the 1,600 relay.

"He's got a great deal of ability, that kid," Parks said. "He has a ? great deal of talent. How he progresses is how hard he works." Another secret may be out.

Gelmisi's AAU North squad 1st

By C.J. Rieak

staff writer

Nothing, it seemed, was going right for the Yorth team at the first annual boys AAU/USA Michigan High School Seniors' All-Star Soccer Tournament, played Sunday at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

The person originally selected to coach them, Henry Kilmes, couldn't make it; he was replaced by John Gelmisi, a former all-stater at Livonia Stevenson and an assistant coach at Schoolcraft College last year.

Then four North team players didn't show-up-Three of them were from Okemos'HS, and all played on a club team that had a game scheduled for that day.

Making a deteriorating situation worse, two of the no-shows were the team's keepers. His other absentees had left Gelmisi with just two true defenders.

A little roster shuffling helped - quite a bit, as it turned out. Dave Glaser, a keeper from Sterling Heights Stevenson, was added to the North leam; so were two defenders.

JUST PRIOR to the start of the tournament, Gelmisi said, "I was more concerned with our defense," for reasons already apparent. When it was over, his concern had helped the North record a pair of shutout victories, 1-0 over the South team (coached by Schoolcraft head coach Van Dimitriou) and, in the championship match, Franz Lamarre).

The win-qualified the North for the AAU Junior Olympics National Championship TournaNervice in anternet between the second of the test of the second s

ment July 25-30 in Tallahassee, Fla.

"I was incredibly pleased with the way they responded," to his coaching, Gelmisi said. "I only met them 15 minutes before the game. That's when we put together a game plan, the only one we could make work. It's all the time we had to prepare."-

The defensive problems facing the North convinced Gelmisi to have them play "a high-pressure defense, with very, very tight marking." He had to take into account they would by nature "do a lot of overlapping on defense. Normal defenders wouldn't, but someone with offensive tendencies would."

THE NORTH dodged some bullets ágainst the East in the title game. "We got lucky a couple of . times," said Gelmisi. "They hit the goalpost twice on breakaways. But our defense settled down after that."

The game was scoreless at the half. The North got scores from Mike Weiskirch (Utica Eisenhower HS), Phil York (Novi HS), Jason Stemplen (Milford HS) and Jeff Scouler (Rochester HS) in the second half to post the victory.

"The key was getting everyone to think the 4-0 over the East (coached by Livonia Franklin's same out there," said Gelmisi. "They were definitely on the same wayelength.

-"They were a great bunch of guys. They really responded well - all kudos go to them. We didn't have the best players, but we had the best team." In the North's opening win over the South, Bob Mainhardt (Eisenhower) scored the only goal of the match in the first half after a free kick from 25 yards out. The ball was volleyed from the right side of the net to the left, and Mainhardt knocked it in.

IN THE OTHER opening-round match, the East advanced with narrow 4-3 win over the West. The East scored the first four goals of the match, but the West battled back with goals by Rob Gnepper (Ottowa Hills), Carl Bostrom (Walled Lake Central) and Eric Petker (Rochester) - but could get no closer.

In the consolation final, Mason's West squad got two goals from both Gnepper and Bostrom and hung on to beat the South 4-2. Brian Hauman netted two goals for the South, the second pulling his team to within 3-2. --

Poor weather hurt the attendance, but - according to Michigan AAU/USA soccer president Wayne Worosz — there were still five college coaches present: Gary Parsons of Oakland University; Joe Baum of Michigan State, Chris Corteg of Eastern Michigan, Blake Glass of Western. Michigan and Louie Stankovich of University of Detroit-Mercy.

NOTES: Because of the poor weather and resulting small crowd, Worosz said sponsors will be needed to help offset the costs of sending the North team to the national tournament. Worosz said three players will be added to the North roster and an additional team consisting of other all-star players - may also make the trip. Anyone wishing to help sponsor the team can call Worosz at 455-4011.

"FOR THE TALENT we had and the little time we had together, we did very well," said A.J. Baker, Team Michigan general manager. "The coaches (which also included Lake Superior State assistant Ron Rolston) were very pleased. It was a very positive experience for these guys.'

It was Team Michigan's best finish since 1987 when Buffalo, N.Y., defeated the state representative, 6-5, in the finals.

"It's a shame the Michigan High School Athletic Association, in their infinite, bungling wisdom, won't let all the seniors play," said Baker, referring to the MHSAA's ban on spring sports athletes from participating in post-season all-star games. Baker was referring to the absence of Rice's Pat Grohar and Chris Freeman, both whom play lacrosse, although not a MHSAA sanctioned sport, in the spring. Rice's Tim Capaldi, a linemate of Hubenschmidt's, scored three goals and added three assists for Team Michigan during the five-game run. Defenseman Colin Gallagher (Livonia Churchill) contributed three assists. CC's Matt Surowiec also played on defense for Team Michigan.

Brett Lally, fresh from defending his North American Boxing-Federation Junior Middleweight title last weekend in Lake Tahoe, Nev., was unavailable for interviews

The sign on Lally's house should have read: "Gone fishing."

"Brett's down in Ohio, he's got the week off," said brother and trainer Bradd.

Lally could sit back on his boat and reflect on his sixth-round TKO of Willie "Montana" Hotchletter, The victory gave the 1981 Westland John Glenn High product a professional record of 28-5 (including 18 KOs), but more importantly it-moved him closer to a shot at a world title.

Lally, a landscaper from South Lyon who plans to relocate soon in Plymouth, is now 5-0 since his loss to Donald Curry in Dec. 1989.

"The NABF stipulates you make a mandatory title defense in three months, but we may forfeit that," Bradd said. "We're willing to sit and wait.

"Brett wants at least one fight for his people Livonia. We've talked to the people at Laurel Manor (a banquet facility in Livonia) about something the first week of June. We've talked to the Del Signore family (the Laurel Manor owners), and we may go with a non-title fight."

LALLY CURRENTLY is ranked No. 3 among junior middleweights (154 pounds) by the World Boxing-Council (affiliated with the NABF), No. 7 in the International Boxing Federation, and No. 9 by the World Boxing Association.

Meanwhile, Lally's brother Bradd called the win over Montana,-a-blackjack dealer, a "very brutal fight."

"He (Hotchletter) said some things that Brett didn't appreciate before the fight," Bradd recalls. "Montana told everybody he was

"Brett told me he was going to box, but that-lasted-about two-seconds," said Bradd. "After eight seconds he put him down."

LALLY CONTROLLED five of the first six rounds in the scheduled 12-rounder, losing only the third.

In the fourth round, Hotchletter's eye was cut open. The referee then stopped the bout in the sixth.

"The gamblers were confident this guy (Hotchletter) could take Brett out," Bradd said. "The people were chanting, Willie, Willie, but Brett understood."

The bout drew a crowd of about 1,000 at Caesars Tahoe.

Andrew Maynard, the 1988 Olympic light-heavyweight gold . medalist, was also on the card.

"There was no TV and I was a little surprised with that with Maynard being on the card," Bradd said.

Two possible upcoming opponents for Lally include WBA champ Gilbert DeLe of France, the IBF champ, or Gianfranco Rossi of-Italy.

"We've talked to Brett's agent and I'd like to line up a title fight in Michigan because he's on top of his game," Bradd said .----

LBC AT GOLDEN GLOVES: The Livonia Boxing Club came away with four titles, three without landing a punch, during Saturday's Metro Detroit Golden Gloves Finals at Cobo Arena. Those going unopposed included

Novi's Devon Peyton, 201 pounds, Senior Novice A Division; Ann Arbor's Chris Jakubowski, 165, Novice; and Brent McFadyen, 156 Novice.

"I'm disappointed because all three would have shown well," said Paul Soucy, LBC director.

"NO, THIS DOES NOT mean retirement. Lam just 58. I could keep going another 30 years," said Teevens of Northville, referring to a colleague, Mischa Bistritzky, 92, who conducts the strings at Mercy. Members of the Mercyaires are picked from the 780 all-girls Mercy High School. They are juniors and seniors who can afford to devote nine hours a week to rehearsals and are willing to perform between 60 to 70 concerts a year. They are highly trained, can divide down into sevenpart harmony, dance a finale from 'A Chorus Line" and are comfortable anywhere - on tour with Rosemary Clooney in Pittsburgh or singing their "Cats" medley for the

"It was more than the singing. It was the good qualities they developed - the sensitivity, responsibility and thoughtfulness that Larry taught them," said Betty Law of Orchard Lake, who has three daughters who were Mercyaires.

Former member Marie Rumbly of Northville added, "I had never danced before, but in the group you learned to be the best you can. It was a wonderful experience."

"Since I was a child I heard my mother talk about how Larry had given her a sense of confidence and " importance. When I became a Mercyaire I found the same thing. He instills in you the idea that you can do it," said Becky Bonnell of Bloomfield Hills.

LARRY TEEVENS himself does not recognize his musical talent as the important part of his effect as a teacher.

"More important than that is the tremendous number of the girls who have gone on into some type of so- Larry Teevens cial work. I want to teach them what mercy' is all about."

The group has evolved through the years, adapting to the changing modes and fads of society, not only in its vocal style but the way the members look. Twenty years ago choreography was added, and with it a change from the girls' original dark skirt/white blazer uniform to snazzy black dancer pants and white dressy blouse/red vest tops for day wear and elegant Bishop sleeve pink tops for evening garb.

"I follow their lead," said Teevens, about new ideas he dreams up for the group. "I utilize the talents the girls bring and change the program to bring in that developed talent."

An Irish tenor, Teevens got his musical experience the same way his students are getting theirs, with Don Large's "Make Way for Youth" on WJR radio. He went on to the "Wayne King Show" in Chicago but returned to Detroit to get a bachelor of arts from the University of Detroit, a master of arts from Wayne State University and a job at Mercy High School. He also got married. From those early contacts he knows professionals such as Matt Michaels and Randy Herkness, who do the group's unique arrangements. A Mercyaires alumnus, Roberta Campion of Southfield, does the choreography.

Federal Judge Barbara Hackett had four daughters who were Mercyaires. "It opened a whole new world to them of the joy of music. Larry is a show personality and a talented musician but he also has a special gift to impart this to others. He makes music fun for everyone."

Performances of the Theatre Guild production of "It's Only a Play" continue through Saturday, May 4, at the Theatre Guild playhouse in Redford. For ticket information. call the box office at 538-5678.

Making fun of yourself is always, well, great fun. And that's just what the Theatre Guild is having with its season finale, "It's Only a Play," directed by Walter Mark Hill.

Playwright Terrence McNally also enjoys spoofing the conflicts and personalities of the theater. He fondly skewers assorted actors, critics, authors, producers, directors and would be's in his scathingly satirical look at the New York theater world.

The setting (tastefully executed by the guild's Rebecca Smith in pastels of lime, cream and salmon) is the bedroom suite of an elegant East Side townhouse. Downstairs, a gala opening night theater party is under way. At least that's what we're told. One of the few things missing from this otherwise generally fine production is background sound effects of the party.

A parade of skitterish theatrical types make their way into the bedroom. They are, we learn, awaiting the reviews of their new show, "The Golden Egg." A few key critics, especially Frank Rich

Sandy Martin is very much at home in the role of a wealthy producer who doesn't have a clue about theater or why the show failed but can't wait to put up money for the next one.

Virginia Noyes energizes the stage as a flaky actress with a bag of controlled substances and an uncontrollable explicit mouth.

Joe Haynes creates an interesting slothy sarcasm for his role as a caustic critic. Charles Van-Hooses is delightful as the "boy genlus" director and sometime kleptomaniac who gets his wish for a bad review.

Webber weaves an element of spiritual goodness into "Cats" as he does into "Starlight Express" and his other musicals. Grizabella ascends to heaven knows where, amid the theater lights, upon a tire. She has been chosen by Old Deuteronomy for a new life. And Daniel Marsuc's Old Deuteronomy 'teaches how to address cats with dignity and respect. There is richness in his powerful voice.

Older workers benefit from new profit-sharing plan

Traditionally, profit-sharing plans have been the most popular type of qualified retirement plan among unall business owners. This was confirmed by a recent study conducted by the IRS that tracked the number of initial applications received for the four different types of plans from October 1989 to September 1990.

The results showed that fewer than 500 applications were submitted for target benefit plans, approximately 2,000 each for defined and money purchase plans and nearly 9,000 relative to the profit-sharing plan.

The popularity of profit sharing pfans are primarily attributable to the flexibility offered in the amount of contributions made each year and the fact that such a plan is easy to inderstand, set up and administer.

Since the passage of the Tax Reform Act of 1986, business owners can make contributions to a profitsharing plan without declining a profit. Contribtuions can range up to 15 percent of covered payroll and allow for many types of directed investments. Each 'employee is allocated separate accounts, and investment earnings are used to increase benefits.

For younger employees who benelit by having longer periods of taxdeferred growth, small deposits can focus: small business Mary DiPaolo generate a high percentage of salary at retirement. Combined with Social Security benefits, a payout of 100 percent of salary is possible.

But this plan may not be best for achieving a high percentage of salary for older, more highly compensated business owners or key employees. This is especially true for those who, in many cases, have fewer years of participation until retirement.

The IRS has recognized this problem and has issued new regulations under section 401(a)(4)-8 of the Internal Revenue .Code. "Aged-based" profit sharing has recently been in-troduced as a solution to favor older while minimizing employee costs.

"Employees who adopt an agebased formula can see a significant reduction in total contributions with---out sacrificing contributions for themselves and their key employees," said Curt Whipple, a certified financial plannet with Curtis/Thomas & Associates in Farmington.

The same general rules as traditional profit-sharing plans apply to the new aged-based plan, except for the allocation method. The fewer "number of years until retirement. makes it possible for increased allocations into these accounts, which makes this type of plan enormously attractive for rewarding owners and business owners and employees , employees for their many years of hard work."

The savings realized through implementation of an aged-based plan can be an important source of revenue for offsetting high renewal rates for group health insurance or adding needed disability protection, Whipple said.

For more information on aged-. based profit sharing, call Whipple at 476-3740.

The guilty blame everyone else for weak car sales

Thère are a few U.S. congresspeople wandering around Detroit this week, anxious to learn more about the auto industry.

Judging from a few of the statements attributed to them concerning their ignorance, you probably could recognize them in a crowd because of the bags they wear over their heads.

One-confessed_that he was surprised he had to worry about suppliers when he was talking about the car business. He thought the auto companies made everything themselves.

THIS IS easy enough to understand, since U.S. Steel Corp. was so ashamed of the metal it was selling to General Motors it renamed itself USX Corp., or something like that, a few years ago. Anyone who doesn't realize that auto companies buy steel; and rubber from other companies would really be shocked to find out how many computers they buy, which aren't made on Detroit assembly lines either.

Actually, the avowed ignorance of how the car business fits into the U.S. economy, isn't half as disconcerting as the ignorance of how the U.S. government - all national governments, for that matter - affect the largest manufacturing business.

I FIRST noticed this phenomenon when David Halberstam, a Pulitzerprize-winning political analyst, managed to write a 750-page analysis of the U.S. and Japanese auto indus-

INTERNET PROPERTY AND ADDRESS OF THE OWNER OWNER

auto talk Dan McCosh

Still, the mere fact that a few congresspeople took the time to visit Detroit is encouraging. Not so encouraging was the remark from a think-tank type who was quoted "Washington Isn't Detroit's problem; the problem is making cars as good as the Japanese."

Blunt as it is, this is as succinct as statement as you are likely to find about what drives the seemingly unending mountain of legislation that hamstrings what used to be a relatively straightforward business of

IN FACT, making cars as well as the Japanese is what the bonafide competitive effort is all about. On the other hand, if making good cars is all it takes, we would be driving Deusenbergs today, and Saab wouldbe giving Toyota a run for its money. Actually, I'm afraid that the total effort of this trip will be wasted on the obvious -- that nobody can really make a fleet averaging 45 mpg or make exhaust so clean that it's cleaner than California air.

What I'd like to hear are a few people address some questions that have been bothering me lately, problems that have built up over the years since I was a youth, which I somehow think reflect a long effort of government policy.

'WAY BACK then, in the mid-1960s, a monthly payment on a new car, a year's car insurance, cand a term's worth of tuition at Michigan State University's engineering school all were slightly less than $90. General Motors was paying nearly 15 percent in dividends, and interest rates were 3 percent.

At the risk of sounding reactionary, I wonder if the changes we have seen, in tort liability, the dwindling dollar, the national debt, a diminished industrial base, and the dissolution of the system of education ha-'ven't somehow had an effect on the U.S. auto business. Maybe, in fact, more of an effect than the mechanical improvement in Japanese cars accomplished during those years. It's an odd thought that elected officials who have orchestrated these changes don't think so.

Record-setting Dow means it's time for investors to be careful

On April 17, at 14:09 EST the Dow Jones Industrial Average crossed the elusive 3,000-mark and. for the first time, stayed about that level at the close.

The next morning the Wall Street Journal published the following headline, "Dow Industrial Crack the 3.000 Mark", What is really surprise ing is the fact that investors pushed the Dow over the top without any help from the Federal Reserve.

This year much of the stock market's rise has been fueled by the Fed's policy of lowering interest rates to counter the recession. However, on April 17 the Dow closed at a record 3.004.36, up 17.58 percent on the day despite the fact that the Fed decided not to lower the interest rate.

ANALYSTS POINT out that this stock market rally is very different from the one last July. It is broader, the Dow's 30 Blue Chips are laging other market indexes, such as the S&P's 500, which hit records a while ago. And it is being led by a very different group of stocks.

finances and you Sid Mittra The six-month rally that has sent the Dow Industrial surging 639 points, or 27 percent, since the October low of 2365.10 has been dominated by growth stocks, and, to some extent, by cyclical companies whose earnings turn higher as the economy strengthens. In fact, what we have experienced is a market driven by the expectation of economic recovery and responding to lower interest rates.

In July 1990, the Dow rose above -3000-on two successive days, but both times closed at 2999.75. Shortly thereafter, Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and the ensuing economic slump in the United States resulted in a large decline in the market. But beginning in October 1990, with most economists forecasting only a short recession, the market has been rallying. And it got a strong support from the U.S. victory over Iraq.

BUT ALTHOUGH the Dow Industrials are back at 3000, investors are facing very different bets than they were last summer. Nine month ago, when the Dow and the S&P 500 were racing to record levels, much of the stock market was not going along. Small stocks, especially, were taking a beating. As of mid-July, when the Dow was flirting with 3000, NAS-DAQ's Index of small industrial stocks was off 12 percent from its late 1989 peak.

Now the Standard and Poor's 500, the NASDAQ Composite, and just -about-every-other-market-index issetting records. The S&P 500, a broad-based market measure, is 6 percent higher than it was in July. The NASDAQ Index, which represents small stocks, is up 57 percent from its low in October. And some of the fastest-rising stocks are those most sensitive to economic cycles and to interest rates-

EVERY FINANCIAL newspaper is predicting that the Dow is about to reach 3200. However, I am really concerned about the short-term prognosis of this market.

In my view, investors are speculating that a quick economic rebound lies ahead. But, despite all th talk of recovery, autos, housing, employment, and consumer spending remain weak.

Investors are assuming that the economy will recover, interest rates will continue falling, and inflation is well under control. However, that line of thinking creates all the more opportunities for disappointments.

So I strongly advise caution.

Early retirement decision demands careful analysis

DUSINESS

Marilyn Fitchett editor7953-2102

By Doug Funke staff writer

Jim Brooks was 57 when he received an offer 11/2 years ago from his employer of 33 years - a job buyout and opportunity for early retirement.

Brooks, not his real name, had worked for the telephone company in a variety of jobs before and after divestiture.

"It was very difficult," he said of the decision. "It's irreversible. It's not like you say I'll do it and three months later you say it's a mistake and HI go back."

Brooks did some serious soul searching. He had many questions. The biggest -- why would I want to do this? - he asked of himself.

"Basically, the decision, number one; hinges on whether you're retiring from something or to something," he said. "Once you get by the psychological portion, then I think you look at the financial end."

Brooks touched base with a couple of financial planners to examine projections and listen to recommendations: "I needed a lot of help," he conceded.

IN THE END, Brooks said farewell to the workaday world and took a lump sum monetary distribution in lieu of a monthly pension. He hasn't toiled for a salary since and doesn't know if he ever will again.

"It's working out well so far," Brooks said. "Basically, I work around the (Farmington Hills) house on mundane tasks I had no time for before. I do a little golfing, and I have a computer I'm trying mightily of Bodman, Longley & Dahling in sum distribution at normal retire-Troy. "It's money well spent."

People seem to have a great reluctance to spend a little money for advice when a lot of money is at stake, said Orville Lefko, a certified public accountant and chartered financial analyst.

His company, the Lefko Group in Troy, evaluates businesses and various business transactions.

"How do you find someone responsible to go to?" said Daniel P. Murphy, vice president of investments for Paine Webber of Livonia.

"Get some (client) references, not just one, but four or five, and randomly call and ask what their experience has been. Go to a firm with some financial staying power." Negotiation is a big part of the decision-making process. Don't be afraid to bargain over what initially has been offered in a buyout, especially if you're thinking about re-entering the job market. You may not get it if you don't ask and an initial offer may not be the best offer.

"AN EMPLOYEE will be able to negotiate some terms of a buyout and structure them to benefit him," Cashen said. "Negotiate fringe benefits. You may negotiate that an employer will provide health benefits for six months, a year.

"You might want to try to negotiate continued use of the premises while you do your own job search. It's fairly common for employers to do it.

-"Things like a reference letter. It's always easier to get that at the time (negotiations) than when you're let ment ultimately come down to dollars and cents.

"I THINK the real big issue is what are your future obligations and how close to meeting those obligations will the offer enable you to come," Lefko sald. Murphy described a four-step evaluation process:

• Analyze current savings and investments. • Identify buyout/retirement payouts from company. Acquire estimates of current or future Social Security payouts. • Estimate income needs after buyout or retirement.

"Now that you've got all that, try to put it all together in an organized fashion," Murphy said. "Determine how long it will last based on what I need and what I have."

Retirees generally need 60-80 percent of gross working pay to maintain a similar lifestyle, Murphy said. Actuarial studies indicate that women who reach the age of 65 probably will live to 88, while men who live to 65 probably will be around to 84, he added.

THAT MEANS inflation becomes a big part of the equation. Fixed income investments like certificates of deposit, are considered safe as to preservation of principal, but aren't the best inflation hedges. Especially in higher tax brackets.

"The Standard & Poor 500, including '87 and '29, (big stock market crashes), has returned 9.7 percent on average," Murphy said. So invest some of your lump sum distribution, 20-25 percent, in the market, he said. "You're not looking at speculative growth, but blue chip, dividend payers, good quality stocks. Most big pension plans have 40-60 percent of their assets in the stock market. That's where pension checks are coming from," Murphy said.

to master.

A job buyout or a lump sum profit sharing distribution at regular retirement age can pave the way to a happily ever after - or, without careful analysis and planning, years of regret.

"I think most people don't seek the advice they should seek," said John Cashen; a labor lawyer with the firm Cashen said.

Lefko also is a proponent of negotiation. "It all depends on your position with the company," he said. "You can say, 'I understand what you're doing. Let's sweeten it up and I'll take it.' "

But decisions on whether to take a buyout or what to do with a lump Tarimie Garves

But before you decide to do with a lump sum distribution, know that there are different tax consequences depending on how you choose to account for the payout.

The bottom line is the earlier you start to plan for retirement, the more options you will have.

"Plan ahead," Brooks said. "Make some realistic appraisals on inflation and real income so you don't build a castle on sand. And seek some very good professional advice in more than one location."

Bankers want opportunities to expand product offerings

By Doug Funke staff writer

This final article in a series about banking in southeastern Michigan looks at the future of the industry.

If bankers here had their way, customers could come into their local, branch and cash a payroll check, deposit money in a savings account, : purchase various kinds of insurance, buy or sell stock and hire an agent to sell their house.

State and federal law now-limits banks in Michigan to traditional kinds of services - conservative savings instruments,-loans-and-checking accounts. Many of those restrictions resulted from the stock market crash of 1929 and the Great Depression that followed.

But times change, bankers say, and regulations should change to reflect the times. Personal finance has become more sophisticated, its elements more interconnected.

"I think consumers look at banks for more information," said Robert Heinrich, president of the Metropolitan National Bank of Farmington, one of the smaller independent banks in metro Detroit. "The financial arena has become more complex. There's more affluence amongthe consumer base," Heinrich said.

"MANY BABY BOOMERS are in an age category now where they're beginning to accumulate wealth. The older population, statistics have shown more are living longer, are looking for places for help to generate income. Survey after survey shows people trust banks," Heinrich sald.

"Banks have to be allowed to become more profitable. To do things that don't take a lot of capital or risk, that involves selling things," he said.

U.S. Sen. Donald W. Riegle Jr., D-Mich., chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, also recognizes a changing financial landscape. He has several questions, but not a lot of answers.

"How do you define what is a financial commercial center? What percentage is the traditional bankingsystem of the whole? Where do we go?"

RIEGLE ISN'T so sure that letting banks expand their empires is a good idea. He made an analogy that General Motors, a world leader in manufacturing cars, still loses millions of dollars in off sales years.

"There's a notion that banks can jump into these areas where established players are losing a lot of money," Riegle said. "Whether banks can jump in and make a great killing is highly questionable."

Heinrich suspects that banks have been tarnished by problems experi-v enced by savings and loans.

"Are banks going to get into other areas? I think they will. I think it will be a much slower process than originally thought."

Banks will carve other niches, Nyberg agreed.

"We won't be manufacturing (products), but helping with delivery," he projected. "Insurance products make the most sense. I think it will happen eventually."

It probably will take some time, Moran speculated.

"We have the securities industry against it, the insurance industry, or at least insurance agents, against it and real estate agents against it," Moran said. "It's called turf. It's going to be bloody politics."

IN THE MEANTIME, consumers can look forward to telephonic and home banking.

"Convenience will be redefined," Nyberg said. "I think telephone banking will be more a wave of the future. They (consumers) can pay a (credit) charge, transfer accounts, check balances.'

NBD customers' with Automatic Teller Machine cards and push button phones can do that now, Nyberg said, adding, "A lot aren't comfortable doing it or haven't learned all the capabilities."

Aches and pains Victims cope with the nightmare of life after tainted L-tryptophan

By Janice Brunson special writer

When John Wright speaks of the ondition that afflicts him, he stresses the word pain.

"The worst is the muscle pain; it's so distracting, a burning pain that's persistent," said Wright, who directs public programs at the Henry Ford Museum. "It's hard to think of anything else."

Wright suffers from Eosinophilia-Myalgia Syndrome (EMS), a rare and debilitating disorder that has no known cure and is caused by the use of a Japanese-manufactured food supplement popular in the 1980s, called L-tryptohpan.

Sold widely in health food and drug stores, the supplement was recalled by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration a year ago after thousands fell ill with mysterious symptoms, including severe muscle and joint pain, pulmonary and respiratory problems, paralysis, organ deterioration, skin and eye diseases andeven brain dysfunction.

L-tryptohpan is an amino-acid used a dietary supplement. Called nature's sleeping pill, some 14 million Americans took it to gain an uninterrupted night's sleep. It was also used to suppress symptoms of premenstrual syndrome or to enhance the effects of antidepressants. Based on data compiled by the Centers for Disease Control in Atlan-

They were both drafted and volunteered for the job. Since neither will be at the fashion show and a lot of the preparations are done during class hours, they decided to work on publicity.

"It wasn't as hard as I thought it would be," Zywicki said. "And we've gotten a lot of experience talking to different people,"

"A LOT OF people donate because they've donated before and since all the proceeds go to charity, they like that," Edmunds said.

The students are hoping to have 300 people in attendance so that they will have a sizable donation for the Make A Wish Foundation. Last year, they donated $1,000 for AIDS research:

Young performers find a way to share good news

By Julie Brown staff writer

OR MEMBERS of The Way, performing contemporary Christian music is a way to have fun while sending a powerful message.

The musical group-at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth was formed about five years ago. Its members are local middloschool and high school students.

"We do our own songs," said Heather Berlin, 18, a senior, at Plymouth Salem High School. She sings, writes songs and plays the plano, and has performed with The Way for about four years. She got involved "because I'm a music person so I was looking for a band. This is a good experience. I've been performing forever, since I've been able to stand.

"It's not just a band. It's like a family," said Berlin, a Plymouth resident. "We try to help each other."

Lance Loiselle, 18, has been involved with The Way since its beginning.

LOISELLE, A Salem senior and Plymouth resident, plays the piano, writes music and helps run rehearsals. Performing gives him a sense of spiritual satisfaction.

"It gives me a good feeling about helping people," said Loiselle, whose twin brother, Jason, also performs with The Way. "I wouldn't miss it for the world."

The musiclans gathered on a recent Wednesday evening to rehearse for an upcoming performance at the church. They perform during some Sunday morning worship services and at other churches and community gatherings.

Dale Hoard of Plymouth Township has been director of The Way for a little more than a year. Hoard, who works for Michigan Bell in in-house maintenance, plays the guitar and sings with the group. "I try to leave everything up to them for the most part," said Hoard, who worships at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth.

Several high school seniors who will graduate this year form a core group to-keep things runningsmoothly. The group's size varies from week to week, Hoard said, ronging for 2.8 conprised by the about 28.

RUSCUA INDECUA

PARTICIPATING HELPS to keep Hoard, 38, active musically. He and his wife have three children ages 5, 3 and 1, so he doesn't have a lot of experience working with teenagers. He occasionally needs to ask students to stop falking during rehearsals, but still enjoys being involved. "They keep my faith going. They keep me younger." The musicians perform some original music and present music done by other contemporary Christian artists. They've recorded several tapes and plan to start work on another recording soon.

MUSICIANS FIND performances are a good way to share the message of God's love. They recently performed at the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth and have presented their music at various community gatherings.

"We love doing it," Berlin said. "We look for opportunities."

Some intend to pursue careers in music.-Berlin-plans to attend Albion College, most likely as a voice majore

Lance Loiselle plans to study music at Eastern Michigan University and to continue his involvement in music ministry at the Plymouth church. He and the others have found that involvement in The Way provides fun and friendship, along with opportunities to grow musically.

"The best friends in my life (are) here," Loiselle said.

JAY AHO, 17, has been involved in The Way since its early days. He played the keyboard and trumpet in the past and now does mostly vocals.

"Mainly, I like the performing part of it," said Aho, a junior at Salem and a Plymouth resident.

He's considering a career in broadcasting.

Aho's older brother, John, and some of his friends were instru- mental in getting the group started. The Way, made up primarily of students who worship at the Methodist church in Plymouth Township, has been going strong ever since.

CONTEMPORARY MUSIC helps to hold the interest of younger worshipers who may not care for "Onward, Christian Soldiers" and other traditional hymns, members agree.

"There's a lot of really good contemporary Christian music," Hoard said

Some older church members found that The Way's musical style took a little getting used to, he said "We have slowly turned them toward us." Musicians changed their performing style a bit and aren't quite as rebellious as they once were. "We're a little bit rebellious at heart," he said with a smile.

Elitism is a byproduct of schools of choice concept

Schools of choice seem to be the people's new choice for education. The list of those who have expressed their support for this proposal suggested by both the new superintendent of schools for Detroit and the president of the United States is surely a prestigious one.

The dream held out for schools of choice is that the learning process will become so engaging and successful that students will then succeed where now they have failed. The goal presented for schools of choice is that accomplishment of education that has thus far eluded us.

Who could possibly argue with the hopes and dreams for schools of choice? I cannot imagine a single person in this country who would want the learning process to be less than engaging and successful in that growth to maturity. No one objects to what we want to have happen in the classrooms of our land.

NOT ALL, however, would agree with the technique chosen to accomplish these noble ends. Their number does not yet match that of those who have supported the idea, but the schools of choice proposal is meeting increasing critique. And rightly so.

The primary use of competition to develop priority schools of choice isalso its greatest flaw. Competition immediately establishes two categories — those who succeed and those who do not. Once that principle has been placed in operation, the rest is simply a numbers game.

Each school will either succeed or fail and the number in each category will depend on the criteria used for competition.

THE AUTOMOTIVE industry, just to mention one, has asked for greater governmental intervention to restrict foreign imports. Competition in the automotive industry has created its successes and failures, and some are not pleased with the results. Apparently, competition has to be checked if the wrong side is winning.

To build a school system on the 'model of a market economy is also to create a product that will depend on the practice of marketing just as much as it depends on its production. This can be equally as disastrous  $\times$ as raw competition. Marketing seldom focuses on the public good. Marketing by nature focuses on selling a private good to the public.

SCHOOLS OF choice create an elitism that we cannot alford. In a nation that has already been divided by economics and tribe, the deliberate and intentional division between schools that succeed and schools that fail is to turn the experience of learning into a callous and prejudiced process.

Our schools surely need to be improved. We know their failures and their shortcomings only too well.

But to establish, carefully and precisely, criteria that will guarantee some to succeed and some to fail is to destroy the very hope that can create the vision for success. The proposal for schools of choice is al-

Views mixed on cutting state arts subsidies

🗋 DIA's future uncertain, 4D

By Ralph R. Echtinaw staff writer

Most-state lawmakers-from the Observer & Eccentric area say Michigan should reduce its arts subsidies. But they differ in the support they give Gov. John Engler's plan to virtually eliminate them entirely.

Engler has suggested that the Michigan Council for the Arts be stripped of the $9 million it passes out annually to local arts programs around the state.

The Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills was supposed to get $232,200 from the arts council this fiscal year, but received just $66,000 before Engler froze all council grants in January.

President Roy Slade said the Academy's museum and school will not be affected if Engler succeeds in wiping out future arts council grants, but outreach programs such as artwork tours and lectures will be curtailed.

At 11 a.m. rally on the Capitol

The roundhouse: It fulfills dream of unique house

By Janice Tigar-Kramer special writer

EN BOB and Corrine Dean had the basement dug for their home on Westland's north side, the local kids cheered - they thought it was a neighborhood swimming pool. From then on, lew people the circular-styled house on Parkgrove (which actually has 14 sides) without commenting on its unique design. The Deans, who three years ago moved into what neighbors call the roundhouse, always preferred outof-the-ordinary or state-of-the-art cars and vans. So, when they saw the two-story circular house designed by Eagle's Nest Inc. while vacationing in North Carolina, they were determined to build one in the Detroit area. "We knew if we were ever going to build, we wanted a house that would eatch the eye." Corrine said Though Bob and Corrine generally enjoy the attention paid to their "roundhouse." they recently put it on the real estate market and have already bought their retirement house, this time a conventional ranch-style house, in 🦕 Ohio. Bob, a physics teacher at Livonia's Stevenson High School, and Bill Hosman, a friend and Livonia teacher, built the Eagle's Nest House in 1988 as a test project.

We knew if we're ever going to build, we wanted a house that would catch the eye." — Corrinë Dean homeowner

The two men, both licensed builders, were near retirement and wondered if there was a market in the Detroit suburban area for circular homes. If so, they wanted to build them

THE DEANS, who d just sold their tri-level house in Livonia. liked the Eagle's Nest House so much, they decided to move in. Bob, who appreciates the quality and adaptability of the design, is a company rep for Eagle's Nest Inc. and sells the house plan for the North Carolina firm.

Though the Deans admit the house, priced at $149,900, requires a special buyer, they think its versatility is a strong selling point. Since the house has no interior load bearing walls, a new owner could add a fourth bedroom or alter the size and shape of existing rooms.

In place of structural walls, the Eagle's Nest House includes one steel post, concealed in a closet, from the basement to the second floor. Floor joists forming a "wheel" extend from the post to support the upper level.

Foundation walls are 10 inches thick (about two inches thicker than the foundation of a traditional house) to add additional support to the second floor and roof.

Besides a versatile floor plan, the 2,036-square-foot house, in the Livonia school district, offers spectacular views of the large. corner lot from a wrap-around deck on the second level.

THE FIRST floor includes a great room, a large kitchen, plus a master suite with adjoining bath. A circular, steel staircase leads to the second floor. which the Deans use for a family room and office. The spacious room, with a modified cathedral ceiling, leads to two bedrooms and a bath.

Though the house is built of 14 sides, or panels, the angles are hardly visible inside. Interior walls are constructed to form a cove, giving the inside a rounded look.

The round interior makes the house feel very open, very spacious," Bob said. "You'd never know there are 14 individual sides

Because there are no right angled walls or other "nooks and crannies" to trap air, the house has greater air circulation and lower fuel bills than a traditionally styled house; this also results in more useable living space.

The roof, too, has 14 sides topped

Document valuables in pictures

There's a very simple way to make strong and effective photographs of objects such as sculptures, vases and figurines. These pictures can be used for documentation for insurance purposes or to satisfy your artistic pursuits.

To begin with, let's talk backgrounds. As I've discussed in the past, a background can make or break a photograph. So keep it simple. A plain piece of posterboard or mat board in any color you desire is all you'll need. Place a card table or kitchen table against the wall and tape (masking tape works best) the posterboard both to the wall and the table curving it to obtain a plain, solid colored background.

Place the object to be photographed on the posterboard and set up your camera. You'll need a tripod and cable release to keep things steady. Remember to move in close and fill the frame with the subject. If what you're photographing is small, you'll probably need supplemental close-up filters or a macro lens to allow you to get in tight.

USE A small aperture such as the f-11 or f-16 to provide enough depthof-field so the entire subject will be sharp in the finished print or slide. Remember that shutter speed is irrelevant with a tripod and non-moving object.

What's the best film choice? Use slow to medium speed film in either color print, color slide or black and white. Just keep in mind that with color films you must match the film with the lighting. For example, I prefer using tungston lights so therefore I make sure to use the tungsten. balanced film.

If using flash, you must use daylight balanced film. Or when using nat al window light, you again use daylight film.

With black and white film, any light source will work well. Your local photo dealer will be happy to help you with film and light selections. Whatever you choice, photographing objects around your home is fun and easy. You'll be pleasantly surprised at the results.

Monte Nagler is a professional photographer based in Farmington Hills. His column runs the second and fourth Thursdays of each month.

Monte Nagler used two tungsten lights and a plain white background to photograph this bronze by local sculptor Sharon Sommers.

The culmination of "Mozart Magic in Motor City" comes April 27, May 1, 3 and 4 with Michigan Opera Theatre's production of Mozart's "The Magic Flute" (Die Zauberfloete) at the Detroit Masonic Temple Theatre.

Presented in honor of the 200th anniversary of Mozart's death in 1791, this production of the composer's final operatic masterpiece features the costumes and settings of English artist David Hockney, originally designed for the Glyndebourne Festival Opera, England. Ford Motor Co., MOT's largest corporate contributor, has underwritten the production."

"This production is the finale of three consecutive years of Mozart opera programming by Michigan Opera Theatre in anticipation of the Mozart bicentennial," said David Di-Chiera, MOT founder and general di-

THE OPERA will be performed under the baton of Viennese-born conductor Georg Tintner, currently musical director of Symphony Nova Scotia, Canada. He has led the National Youth Orchestra of Canada and is former resident conductor of the Australian Opera.

Jay Lesenger, former director of the University of Michigan School of Music Opera Theatre, will stage the production.

The ensemble of vocal stars features soprano Maureen O'Flynn as Pamina. Grosse Pointe native Elizabeth Parcells sings the role of the Queen of the Night.

Following their performances as the three nymphs in the just-ended "Ariadne auf Naxos," three local singers-return-to-sing-"Three La-dies" in "The Magic Flute": soprano Laura Lamport of Ann Arbor, mezzo-soprano Terese Fedea of Lincoln Park, and mezzo-soprano Kathleen Segar of Ann Arbor. Ara Berberian returns as the wise sage Sarastro. The Metropolitan Opera baritone now lives in Southfield. He continues to perform regularly at the Metropolitan Opera, where he has been featured in 30 operas, appearing in many "Live from the Met" broadcasts.

Tenor Melvin Lowery sings the role of Monostatos, following his debut as the dancing master in "Ariadne auf Naxos.'

MOT Young Artist Apprentice Gina Lottinger of Ann Arbor portrays Papagena. Grosse Pointe students Brendan Walsh, John Skinner and Liam Ryan sing the roles of the three Genies.

PART FAIRY tale, part morality play, Mozart's "The Magic Flute" introduced the ideals and rituals inspired by freemasonry. Mozart himself had joined an order that preached the spirit of universal brotherhood.

As part of his proposed budget to the-Legislature, Gov. John-Englerhas asked for an abrupt end to the Detroit Institute of Arts' $16 million annual subsidy beginning next fiscal year in October.

Already, the Republican governor has succeeded in reducing the subsidy to $14.5 million for the current fiscal-year after an across-theboard, 9.2-percent cut took effect in January.

Museum officials and elected politicians who believe in the ascendancy of the arts and the government's role as a helium balloon were upset by the $1.5-million cut, but say they are alarmed by the specter of losing the subsidy altogether....

Rep. Jan Dolan, R-Farmington Hills, noted that many museums in this country receive smaller state subsidies than the DIA.

She cited art museums in Chicago. Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Toledothat each receive less than 5 percent of their budget in state subsidies, whereas the DIA gets more than 50. percent of its budget from the state, even after the $1.5-million cut.

"There's no museum in the country that relies on state aid for operation like the DIA does," Dolan said. "Any time you rely that heavily on tax dollars and something happens, you're in trouble. And that's what's happening now."

don't even try.' Although (DIA officials) are improving, they have not made it obvious that (visitors) will make a donation."

Dolan is making noises now about a plan whereby Macomb, Wayne and Oakland counties would put a small millage request on a ballot perhaps as early as 1992 to subsidize the DIA and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra in lieu of state subsidization, (The plan was first suggested in a 1978 column by Observer & Eccentric Lansing correspondent Tim Richard.)

Dolan said she bases her plan on the "very good educated guess" that "99 out of 100" DIA and DSO patrons reside in Macomb, Wayne or Oakland counties.

Most local legislators agree the DIA should be weened to some extent from state subsidization.

SEN. JACK Faxon, D-Farmington

Hills, is an exception. Were it up to him, Faxon said, no arts subsidy would be cut in order to balance the budget.

"Obviously, (the cuts that Engler suggests) are devastating and incredibly insensitive," he said. "It would be inconceivable that the governor would even consider that this institution should be shut down."

Faxon compared shutting the DIA to "closing down the University of Michigan in terms of what that means to the state."

Rep. Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham, said he supports arts subsidies, but is willing to compromise in light of the state's budget situation.

The DIA, he said, should continue to reduce reliance on its state subsidy, but the subsidy should be reduced slowly, giving DIA officials time to raise more money from private sources.

Rep. Jim Kosteva, D-Canton, agreed. "The DIA is a clear example of where we just can't use the gover-__ nor's meat-ax methodology," he -said,-explaining_that_arts_subsidies_ should be reduced slowly.

Rep. Mat Dunaskiss, R-Lake Orion, goes along with Kosteva. "(The DIA subsidy) should be ratcheted down," he said, but not eliminated.

Dunaskiss added that public contributions to state arts programs, including the DIA, would be higher if the organizations didn't-have-asmuch state money coming in:

Like Faxon, Sen. George Hart, D-Dearborn, opposes arts subsidy cuts. "The arts are an easy target," he said in a prepared statement. "No pun intended, but those who are supporting cuts in funding paint a picture of a bunch of longhairs wearing berets benefiting from state funding.'

Fate of state arts support remains in limbo

backs millage idea

Jan Dolan

"We might not be able to serve the state as well as we could," Slade said. "(But) we've got to be realistic about this and see (the cuts) in view of the overall economy."

Engler also proposes to break the Detroit Institute of Arts' reliance on tax subsidies, removing the museum's $16 million annual grant all at once.

Museum officials have said the 105-year-old institution will die without its financial fix, even though there were no state subsidies to the DIA until 1966.

SEN. R. ROBERT Geake, R-Northville, summarized the arts controversy best when he said, "One person's pork is another person's cultural necessity."

"Eliminating the arts from the state budget will mean the end of hundreds of elementary, middle and subsidies, but eschews Engler's dras- area. "Those who benefit from it high school-art-programs-and-the-tic-proposal for eliminating them. scaling back or closing of many art and cultural organizations," said zens for the Arts in Michigan executive director. Overall state funding for the arts was about $40 million last year, anabout one-half of 1 percent of the total state general fund budget, she said.

Geake, who represents Redford, Livonia, Plymouth and Canton, sald arts subsidies should be pared, but not slashed. "Clearly, we cannot afford to do all the things we've been doing (with arts funding)," he said.

Rep. Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham, likes to talk about arts cuts in the broader context of reducing government's size. "We've gotten to be too many things to too many people," he said. "We've got a structural problem where we always seem to spend more than we take in."

Bouchard supports reducing arts "All the grants to everything will have to be reduced by necessity, but Marilyn Wheaton, Concerned Citl- we need to do it at a speed that (recipients) can react to," he said.

Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, a DIA Founders Society member, supports Engler's plan to slash arts subaverage of $6 per taxpayer and sidies. "We are faced with such a _ huge deficit that I support what the governor is trying to do," she said. 'You don't have to be a mathematical genius to know we have to take drastic measures."

> How can one suggest maintaining arts funding, she asks, when "we've got children who are hungry and uneducated with no place to sleep?"

> BANKES SUPPORTS a plan pushed by Rep. Jan Dolan, R-Farmington Hills, to ask Macomb, Wayne and Oakland countles to ask voters for an "arts millage" to replace state subsidies to the DIA, Detroit Symphony Orchestra and smaller county programs.

> Dolan guesses that "99 out of 100" DIA visitors are from the tri-county should pay for it," Bankes said.

Overall, Bankes see a tide of reality sweeping over Lansing. "I think you're going to see honesty in budgeting here that has not gone on before," she said. "You couldn't run a business like we run the state.

The best-known arts advocate is Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, who would not cut arts subsidies if balancing the budget were left to him:

Faxon argues that every dollar the state spends on arts subsidies generates $4 or $5 in the Michigan economy. Further, he said the arts are "common to all the people of the state" and therefore must be pretty important.

Faxon said people who don't believe the arts should be subsidized by the state haven't learned to appreciate the arts properly. "The governor seems to lack a sensitivity to the Validity of the arts," he said. "I don't think he realizes what it represents. He has never integrated the arts into his life."

Faxon compared Engler's attitude to that of a man who never-gets sick, so doesn't believe in the necessity of hospitals.

WHILE REP. Jim Kosteva, D-Canton, believes "arts funding needs to reduce its dependence on the state," he compared Engler's approach to "wielding a meat-ax."

Kosteva prefers Democratic House speaker Lewis Dodak's budget plan to Engler's, but admits "the budget numbers don't lie. Everybody's going to have to feel a little pain on this. We (Democrats) are just trying to be more rational."

Dodak's plan calls for using more than three-fourths of the state government's "rainy day" fund (at least $334 million) to cancel a third of the estimated $1.1 billion deficit, leaving about $100 million in the fund.---

Dodak proposes to save another third of the deficit with employee furloughs, early retirement incentives, sale of assets and more. Dodak would wipe out the rest of the deficit with budget cuts. However, his plan does not say how deeply arts subsidies would be cut.

SEN. GEORGE Hart, D-Dearborn, whose district includes Garden City, also opposes Engler's plan, arguing that arts cut advocates are anti-education. "There are people in Lansing who would like to turn the clock back to the Middle Ages when only princes and princesses would have the benefits of a well-rounded education," he said in a prepared statement.

Rep. Barbara Dobb, R-West Bloomfield, said in tough economic times, state government should place social services above arts funding. "There are more desperate and needy people that we have to take care of first," she said.

"These people are never going to make it to a symphony or get down to the DIA."

Whatever happens in regard to state arts subsidies, one thing is certain: Because the state constitution requires a balanced budget, government must reform its financial behavior and spend less, at least for a year or two.

"The gravy train has been de-railed, and it's being dismantled," Dolan said.

Choral team's 'Requiem' a triumph

By Linda Ann Chomin special writer

Beautiful instrumental strains accompanied the Plymouth Oratorio Society's performance of Johannes Brahms' "A German Requiem, Op. 45" at First United Methodist. Church in Plymouth Sunday.

The Michigan Sinfonietta (formerly the Ann Arbor Chamber Orchestra) provided the instrumental accompaniment.

Baritone John Stewart of Plymouth and soprano Carolyn Pratt of Minnesota were featured soloists for the triumphant evening.

Stewart's talent was showcased in the third movement of the "Re-

review

quiem," as he pulled notes from the very depths of his soul.

Perhaps the best known movement of Brahms' "Requiem" is "How lovely is thy dwelling place." The Plymouth Oratorio Society performed the inspirational work of comfort with a tremendous outpouring of emotion.

AFTER A brief intermission, the chorus, under conductor Robert Pratt and accompanied by the 35-### member Michigan Sinfonietta, returned to the sanctuary with Carolyn Pratt and Stewart.

Pratt sang the soprano aria of the fifth movement, which Brahms wrote in tribute to his mother after her death in 1865.

Pratt, a professional singer in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area, sang brighlty with total control. The last movement of the "Requiem" ended gloriously with nearly 90 voices uplifted with hope for the living.

The seven movements of Brahms' "A German Requiem" swiftly sailed through the evening, an evening of triumph that concluded the fifth season of the community chorus, "all united by a love and commitment to great choral music."

String quartet to play

The New World String Quartet returns for a fifth appearance at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, May 5, in The Birmingham Temple, 28611 W. 12 Mile, Farmington Hills (between Inkster and Middlebelt).

Tickets are $10 general, $9 senior citizens or students. Call 647-4632 or 288-3953.

The ensemble has planned a diversified program that includes these string quartets: Mozart, No. 16, K. 428 in E flat; Bartok, No. 3; Dvorak No. 12 in F major, Op. 96, "American."

Since the Quartet's last appearance at The Birmingham Temple, the group has remained Harvard University's Quartet-in-Residence.

After the New World's-1989-London debut, the Financial_Timesviewed it as being "firmly entrenched within the tradition of the best American groups."

The quartet is scheduled for a repeat London engagement this year with plans for performing in Austria, Yugoslavia, Switzerland and Italy.

The quartet has made 12 recordings, the most recent being works of Schubert, Ravel and Debussy. Soon to be released under the MCA label is a major recording of Brahms chamber works for strings.

is made of Douglas Fir with cedar trim.

THE DEANS' "roundhouse," a landmark on a street of colonial and ranch-style houses, is the epito-

Growing trend How to buy a piece of the farm

"It's always interesting to hear about new ideas and enterprises related to gardening.

A new type of gardening concept began in Orfonville last year at Stromberry Farm, owned and operated by David and Linda Strom.

It is called Community Supported Agriculture, and the idea behind it is to bring the farm back to the city, to provide fresh fruits and vegetables to the participants.

The Stroms are striving to foster the symbiotic relationship between the farmer, the environment and the consumer. This concept began in Europe and is growing in this country. Some of the farms are quite large and involve many people, while others are run on a smaller scale.

The Stroms feel that since many foods have to be picked before they are ready, then shipped long' distances, much flayor is lost. They offer vegetables and fruits the day they are picked.

THERE ARE six to seven ecosystems in the 54 acres, including a stream, bog, marsh, old peat bog, high meadow, wet meadow and dry forest; there are a lot of different growing conditions. Since the land had not been farmed for 17-20 years, the Stroms were able to "begin from scratch."

David Strom said, "It was wild, so we have carved fields out of the pasture areas. In doing that, we've left areas around the edge of the field and the creek. Between the edge of the field and the marsh, there's probably 50 feet. Plenty of room for wildlife.

natural process without using processes," David said.

HE EXPLAINED that organic fertilizers are * slow-release and it takes time for the creatures and the bacteria in the soil to work together to evenutally release nitrogen that is already there, In a form that other plants can use. In other words; when compost or an organic fertilizer is applied, the soil bacteria is being fed.

. The farm will again offer many vegetables, some of thein not readily available commercially, plus strawberries and melons. Participants pay in advance for the season's produce and travel to specific locations each week to pick up their share.

The brochure lists the proposed crops and the vield per share. Each share is calibrated for a family of four (with young children). Last year, the harvest was generous. One member described the taste as "More!"

Pick up destinations are: Detrolt Baha'l Center, Delroit; Good Shepard Lutheran Church, Royal Oak; Wilson Barn, Livonia; and the Stromberry Farm, Ortonville.

Home seller's mistake: emotional attachment

This is the first in a series of articles on buying and selling a house.

By Doug Funke staff writer

Selling a house nowadays involves niore than sprucing the place up and placing a sign on the front lawn."

There are all kinds of decisions to make. Like selling the property yourself or hiring an agent. Setting a price. Developing a marketing plan. Determining how much money and effort to put into repairs. And where you're going to live after you sell. But first things first.

Get an agent, real estate professionals strongly advise.

Sellers can get quite attached to a house and judgment of value tends to cloud with time.

"It's hard for them to look at their home objectively. That's why I think they should always have a Realtor," advised Thomas Ervin, a syndicated real estate columnist based in Franklin.

Jim Courtney, president of Remerica Hometown Realtors in Plymouth, makes the point by citing a study done in Philadelphia more than a decade ago.

"BROKERS WHO sold homes brought in on average 9½ percent more," he said. "Sellers were actually costing themselves money trying to sell themselves."

Sellers who hire an agent can expect to pay a commission at closing for services. Commissions, negotiable when a home is listed for sale, range from 4 to 9 percent of sales price.

How do you find a good agent?

"Probably the best way is look at signs in the neighborhood, look in the paper who's advertising a lot, ask a friend who had a good experience," Courtney said.

Talk with several agents before offer made. Try to counter it." committing to one.

* "People should be contacting a Realtor or a mortgage man-to see if a market analysis can be done," said Donald Locke, operations manager for Shore Mortgage of Southfield. "You look for three homes sold . . . during the last six months within a: mile radius."

HOUSES SHOULD be of similar design and financed in a similar fashion -- conventional or FHA mortgage - for comparisons to be valid.

"The biggest mistake most sellers make probably is over-pricing," Courtney said, "They get emotionally attached to the home and don't look at it through buyers' eyes."

Added Locke: "Never refuse any

Home inspections by sellers reportedly are becoming more wide just as soothing to a buyer as a mortspread, especially on the East Coast_ "More (real estate) companies are recommending that sellers get an inspection . . , so all parties know what's up," said J.P. Pilot, president of HomePro Systems, an Ann Arbor inspection service.

"If anything is found, there can be an adjustment of the listing, it (problem) can be remedied, monies can be set aside for work to be done,"Pilot added.

IT CAN BE quite disconcerting to a seller that a deal apparently cinched unravels after an inspection. Pilot charges $200-250 for a 242-3 hour survey examining structure, electrical, heating, plumbing, basement, kitchen, interior and exterior. An-inspection by a seller can be gage pre-qualifying of a buyer is to a seller.

Don't waste a lot of time on walkin traffic without some kind of prequalifying documentation if you're selling yourself. Realtors generally will screen prospects in that regard. "A lot of people are looking for houses they're not qualified for,"

Locke said. "We ask potential buyers before signing a purchase agreement to get qualified. It takes 20 minutes."

Open houses can be effective. "A lot of times buyers will go out driving in an area they would like to live in and not look at the paper (for ads)," Courtney said.

FIRST-TIME buyers and those____ who have established some roots use open houses as educational tools -when they're ready to step into the market. "Buyers appreciate cleanliness. Filth and odors will send lookers quickly on their way.

"If you show good maintenance, good upkeep ... it sells well,"-Locke said.

Time shares in foreign country warrant extra caution

In 1988 my husband and I bought two weeks of a time share in Mexico that was financed in California. Since then we found out that it was a scam to get whatever monles they could. When we vacationed there the following year, the place was a mess. There were bugs everywhere, and the place smelled sickening. All built-ins had been removed leaving empty spaces. The maintenance fee was originally to be $185 per week and now has jumped to $315 per week. We have tried to sell but the realty company we contacted charges a fee of $95 each week just to list the condominium. When we purchased the time share, the developer promised to buy it back if we decided to sell, but after everything was signed, he says he will not buy the unit back. All we want is the unit to be purchased back by the developer. We know we have been exploited because the manager informed us in 1989 after the purchase that she could not sell it.

Your story is a case of an abuse by a developer in a time share concept in a foreign county. That is not to say that all time shares are scams, but they should be looked upon very carefully by any prospective purchaser. The potential for abuse by a developer in a time share is greater because of the absence of full ownership or control of the condominium by the homeowners because of the diversity of owners and geographic areas. I would determine whether the developer had any arrangement with the financing company in California that might give you a basis to pursue the developer or the financing company as an affiliate of the developer in California.

I would also check whether the government of Mexico or any municipality there has any regulatory authority with respect to developer in the vicinity where you bought the condominium and file a complaint with the appropriate administrative agencies. I would also threaten to pursue any real estate firms that are advertising the time share arrangements in the U.S. and would also consider retaining a lawyer who can coordinate his effort with Mexican counsel if necessary, or contact your condominium association to determine whether it has problems with already retained legal counsel.

We have a condo up north where the developer has an arrangement oper's leasing agent. What I am conagent seems to be running the afto the managing agent or the board of directors. What can you suggest in this situation?

While it appears that the co-ownthe developer as well and may have oper's leasing agent; one of the biggest-problems in recreational condominiums is the absence of centralized control and power on the part of with the leasing agent to lease out a the co-owners. Oftentimes that connumber of units of the condominium trol remains with the developer, project. Many of the co-owners have even after a majority of the units entered into this pool with the devel- have been sold to non-developer coowners. To the extent that the cocerned_about_is_that_the_leasing _owners are contributing to the developer's power that is being abused, fairs of the condominium as opposed they should consider using another leasing agent or organizing among themselves to insure that their rights as co-owners in the condominium are being protected. It sounds like a ers are voluntarily entering into a letter to the co-owners from a "conleasing arrangement with the devel- cerned committee of co-owners" is overdue.

"Sometimes, I wonder if it's worth it (to make realistic flowers)," he said. "Do people really notice? And then there's that client or guest at a party..... who will pick it up to smell it and just be blown away. Or they'll touch it and just can't believe. Then it's all wofth it."

ANCIENT ROMAN couples needed 10 witnesses to make their nuptials official, several of whom wore identical clothes to the bride and groom to confuse evil spirits.

Today, there's no set number of witnesses to officially tie the knot. Weddings are held before just a judge, mayor or clergyman, or before dozens, even hundreds, of guests.

With the peak of the wedding season at hand, the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers today presents this special spring bridal section.

We've tried to present a lively look at traditions that help make the big day special.

Incidentally, newlyweds^care doing well, according to a Modern Bride survey. Their mean combined income: $50,500. Almost half expect to own their own home.

The Italian silk satin gown features reembroidered Alencon lace, offshoulder petal sleeves, and an assymetrical waist with a full skirt and a cathedral train. It's accented with seed pearls and sequins. The headpiece ($300), handmade roses and petals, is made from Italian satin. O&E staff photographer Bill —Bresler-took the picture.

Women shape marriages

Dr. Helen Fisher, an anthropologist who specializes in the evolution and future of human sexuality, says women are the difference in marriages. "We have the chance now to make the most interesting marriages in the history of western civilization because women are well educated," says Fisher, author of "The Sex Contract: The Evolution of Human Behavior," And for those that aren't so interesting? "Bad marriages can end," she said, "because women today are relatively independent."

Headpieces accentuate bridal look

By Artene Funke special writer

HINK OF the headpiece as the crowning glory in a beautiful wedding ensemble. More than half of today's brides choose a customized headpiece to achieve a special look, say proprietors of two local bridal salons. "Usually the bride has something specific in her mind and can't quite find it." said Debbie Pollak-Zimberg of Creations by Pollak's, with shops in Farmington Hills and Rochester.

Brides need not buy a headpiece simply because it matches the gown, according to Bride's magazine.

The bride may want to have the headpiece altered so it will be more flattering to face size or hairstyle. She may want a sprinkling of iridescent beads to match a pattern in her dress. Perhaps she wants a special veil.

"The worst thing is to have a headpiece that takes away from the dress," said Nanci Del Signore, coowner of Lina's Bridal in Plymouth." "You want people to notice the bride before they notice anything else."

A BRIDAL shop seamstress or special order to the manufacturer can provide a custom headpiece. The price varies widely, generally costing a few hundred dollars. In some cases, the price includes veil.

What's hot in headpieces?

"Right now, everyone seems to want a crown or tiara," Del Signore said.

This look reflects a "nostalgic" Grace Kelly look, according to Del Signore. Also popular, in the classic mode, are small pillbox hats, so reminiscent of the late 1950s.

Loretta Akouri of Farmington Hills has chosen a custom, tiara-style Although the white dress is most popular, many brides opt for ivory, blush or delicate pink dresses. Headpieces may be dyed to match. ~ ``Every bride has a fantasy of how she wants to look," Pollak-Zimberg said. Both Pollak-Zimberg and Del

Signore grew up in the bridal business. Del Signore, 22, is the daughter of John and Lina Del Signore of Livonia, owners of Lina's for the past 10 years. Del Signore, a graduate of Ladywood High School in Livonia, studied retail marketing at the Fashion Institute in Florida.

headpiece, with the assistance of Pollak-Zimberg.

"I did not want anything that would be overdone," said Akouri, 25, planning a May wedding.

Akouri wanted a headpiece to complement her ornate, traditional, full-skirted bridal gown. She plans to wear her hair up, possibly in a french twist.

Akouri's tiara has crystal beads and pearls. It's finished with a cascade of veils and a "pour." Akouri also will have a longer veil attached to a Velcro strip so it can be removed for greater comfort. The total cost, including the special veil, is $545.

THE BRIDAL veil had practical . origins.

In cultures that favored arranged marriages, the bride's face was covered by a veil. Often, the groom didn't see her face until he unveiled her.

In ancient Greece, people believed the veil protected the bride from the evil eye of jealous rivals. Veils were worn to confuse "evil spirits."

Today's brides make their selections based on beauty and tradition.

Pollak-Zimberg, 35, a Farmington resident, learned the business from her mother, Madge Pollak of West Bloomfield, who launched her business 40 years ago.

THEIR ADVICE: Set a budget and find a shop willing to work with you, Allow plenty of time — at least three months — for a custom headpiece.

Christine Christou, a restaurant manager from Trenton, found her perfect bridal ensemble at Lina's.

Christou, to be married in September, has ordered an ivorycolored gown flecked with gold and cinbellished with hand-sewn floral appliques.

The headpiece, which matches the dress, will be adapted so Christou can wçar her hair on her forehead. A floral adornment will be relocated.

The headpiece costs $990, which includes the veil.

Right: Bride-to-be Loretta Akouri of Farmington Hills has chosen a customized tiara-style headpiece with crystal beads and pearls. The extended veil, embellished with sequins, can be detached for greater mobility.

NCE THE joy and excitement of a wedding are over, photographs become a priceless memoir of the big day.

But brides and their attendants can do themselves a disservice if their makeup is not applied for the cameraas well as for the crowd.

"One of the biggest mistakes I see in bridal parties is going for too natural of a look." says Sharon Raskin, a Farmington Hills professional makeup expert.

"It's fine to aim for a soft, romanticappearance, but color needs to be applied for a bit more intensely for photographs. Otherwise, the result is a washed out look."

Raskin, who is a photographer's makeup artist for such international magazines as Playboy, Penthouse and Vogue, also operates a skin care business, Sharon's Enterprises, out of her studio.

She has accomplished numerous makeovers for brides-to-be, their families and their attendants. And she believes some advance planning can allow all participants to look and feel attractive.

WHETHER THE look you desire is dramatic or toned down, certain makeup techniques bode equally well for models or brides, Raskin said.

If these are done effectively, a woman can wear new colors well and can get away with more vibrant shades," she said.

Misconception prevails that makeup artists automatically layer on a ton of makeup. That belief can deter someone from seeking a makeover, which can provide valuable application and skin care advice. Raskin said.

Professional photographer Bill Schwankee of Troy uses Raskin exclusively for his photo shoots: "I photograph many young women who know little or nothing about makeup. What Sharon dges with them is unbelievably dramatic. All I have to tell her is the location of the shoot and the clothes the model will wear, and she can take over."

If you are going to participate in a wedding, having a makeover some days or weeks before the event is wise. Sensitivities to certain cosmetics can be identified, and experimenting with color can be done when you're relaxed.

Raskin recommends brides and their entourage exfoliate their skins

THE DAY of the wedding, hair should always be done first. "No matter how kind or considerate your beautician is, it's almost impossible not to ruin makeup when your hair is washed and styled."

If you have less than perfect skin and most people do — a good cover cream originally developed for burn patients can be a lifesaver.

Raskin is the only licensed representative in Michigan to market Natural Cover, a camouflage makeup developed by Linda Siedel. Raskin worked with the product when she attended a hands on workshop at the Linda Siedel Institute in Baltimore in 1987.

"It's a lifesaver because it is opaque but not cakey," Raskin said. "It comes in eight colors and three toners, and can be blended if needed to disguise acne scars, broken capillaries around the nose, port wine stains or any mark that is disfiguring or undesirable."

Many women have inherited dafk undereye circles. The product is particularly effective for that problem

Etiquette: key to a winner wedding

By Debbie Wallis Landau special writer

THEN A shadow is cast upon a "perfect wedding," chances are it wasn't from -a rainstorm. And the shy * flower girl's detour from her parade down the aisle usually gets more giggles than groans:

The spoilsport of many weddings is very often a breach of etiquette or a lack of planning. As Abigail Van Buren writes in "Dear Abby: On Planning Your Wedding

"A perfect wedding is one that is everything the bride and groom want it to be --- with the understanding that they take time to explore not only what they want but how to get it." Dilemmas on seating, the receiving line, how to deal with parent and hosts or guests who are divorced, and allocating who pays for what services. are issues that can only be solved by individuals who know the families' dynamics.

"Over the last two decades." writes Van Buren, "tlfree major social" changes have occurred that not only affect your life, but have changed the way you plan your wedding."

She lists those as couples marrying at olderlages, couples sharing costs. and responsibilities of wedding plans as equal partners, and the impact

Although you can never guarantee another guest's happiness, and you can't force your in laws to adore each other, you can feel you've done your utmost to avoid sticky situations if you've been "walked through" the event by someone skilled in wedding diplomacy.

ELAINE LUSKY of Southfield has been assisting bridal couples and their families for almost 13 years throughout the tri county area. In addition to comprehensive wedding and party planning, she often conducts wedding rehearsals.

Lusky shared some universally asked questions and answers with the or because it simply takes so much time. One nice compromise I have suggested and have seen at weddings was for the two sets of parents to visit guests at their dinner tables together. The parents who invited those guests can then make the introduction to the other couple. It is so much friendlier and less awkward, and it's a nice gesture of unity for the parents to make.

LUSKY: Nowadays, a lot of couplesare dispensing with the receiving line because of either the need to leave the church or synagogue for the reception not invited with a date to a wedding reception/dinner. Is there a proper etiquette for this situation? What do you recommend?

LUSKY: This is so hotly debated that the only general way I can answer it is to say that financial abilities vary-so widely between families, it isn't always possible to invite guests with an escort. Of course, it is desirable.

embarrassed by the accolades.

"I'm there to cut and serve a lot of these cakes," he said. "And I very much like to stay in the background when people come up and ooh-aah, ooh-aah. I like it, but I kind of withdraw from it because it's my client's cake.

"(At a wedding in Florida), the father got up on the stage and announced that the cake came from Michigan and I was the one who did it and, 'There he is!' Ugh. It embarrasses me, but it's neat. I still blush."

Pavlina, 28, grew up in Highland, near Milford, and graduated from Milford High School in 1981. He began creating unusual cakes in junior high school, recognized a talent for things culinary, and earned degrees in restaurant management and culinary arts from Oakland Community College.

After 2½ years cooking for the Machus restaurant chain, he decided to follow his dream and went to Chicago to study cake design with Amy Rohr. Returning to Michigan in 1987, Pavlina set up his own company, Memorable Occasions, and began to "make the cakes that make the whole world amazed," as Manilow might put it.

PARTY PLANNER Dee Dee Hoffman of Party Design in West

Bloomfield concurs.

She uses Paylina's cakes for 85 percent of her parties." The detail work on his cakes is just incredible," she said. "Kevin is beyond a cake maker. He's an artist."

Pavlina, however, says he's only 50 percent artist. And the proof, as they say, is in the pudding (or cake in this case). In short, they taste as good as they look. "I very much feel like I receive an artistic commission to create (cakes)." he said. " (But) if the look of the cake becomes more important than the taste, then you're an artist.

"The cake goes one step further (than art) and appeals to the sense of taste. When you do a cake that looks as interesting as these cakes do.

(clients) are shocked when it tastes good.

"People say, 'Don't you hate when they cut (the cakes)." No. I love it. It's why I do it from the beginning. It's made to be eaten."

Eaten yes; but some customers could buy a small car for what they spend on a Pavlina cake. They start at $400 a pop, but rise as high as $10,000; so far.

WEST BLOOMFIELD resident Kathy Rosenzweig bought a cake and a small car at the same time from Pavlina in 1989, a red Ferarri cake for her son's bar mitzvah. "It was wonderful." she said. "We actually froze the cake, so we still have it."

While his business was relatively slow in the first 1½ years, word of mouth had its way with potential clients. Pavlina has to turn down some jobs now due to bookings that take precedence.

And if he's booked for a $400 cake when a $10,000 offer is tendered? He might ask the less lucrative client to reschedule, but Pavlina runs his oneman business on a first-come, firstserved basis — and the $10,000 customer might have to go somewhere else. "I realize that's the way it goes." he said. "There will be other $10,000 cakes."

Pavlina will take orders for cakes at his Northville home (348-8596), where he lives with his wife. Sarah Minor, and daughter Lettie (almost 2 years old), whose birthdays Pavlina might be able to sell tickets to someday.

 "I have clients and friends who say they will bring a gift and come to her birthday party just to see the cakes." he said.

RASKIN IS as concerned about what is good for you as much as what looks good on you.

Her aversion to potentially harmful ingredients led her to buy the rights to a French line of holistic skin care products she has renamed "Pour Femme." The line includes cleansers, hand and body lotions, an acne remedy and a deodorant without aluminum.

Raskin is quick to point out, "the," public seems to use the terms holistic and natural interchangeably. It is incorrect to do so. Legally, a horistic product cannot contain any animal byproducts, chemicals or synthetic ingredients. A natural product only has to have three natural ingredients to be labeled that way."

According to the 1991 edition of The Wellness Encyclopedia (University of California, Berkeley), "Natural cosmetics, the customer might assume, would necessarily be preservative-free. But on cosmetics, as on food, this term in meaningless. Nearly all cosmetics contain preservatives to ward off bacteria and fungi. And some people are allergic to those substances." "Sharon really makes the most of what you have," said Debra Saperstein, a Farmington Hills client,. "If you have a special occasion, she beautifully enhances your features. That is every bit as important maybe more so — than wearing a lovely dress."

ONE EXCEPTION Raskin makes is to recommend waterproof mascara for weddings. "I don't like it," she said, "because it contains lacquer, but let's face it, tears are such a reality for weddings that it makes sense on that one day for criers to use it!"

She normally recommends smudgeproof products, whose ingredients she maintains are not as potentially harmful.

Raskin admonishes bridal attendants for what she claims are well-intended but "ludicrous" beliefs.

"I frequently hear women saying they don't want to outshine the bride. So they think putting on less makeup, for example, will accomplish that, I say, you're insulting the bride for not looking the absolute best you can on her day. You owe it to her, and to yourself, to be as put together as possible, and that includes your face."
