Convicted pastor returns to pulpit

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Westland minister Michael Enersen, who left the pulpit May 16 amid charges he abused his 16-year-old daughter, has returned to the helm of Westland Full Gospel Church.

Enersen, 36, resumed his pastoral duties less than two weeks after he and his wife, Carol, were placed on five years probation June 17 in a child abuse case that rattled the Assemblies of God-affiliated church on Palmer, between Wildwood and Venoy.

Enersen again did not return a telephone call from the Observer, and higher church authorities refused to speak at length about his speedy return to the pulpit.

"He returned to the pulpit, and that's all I'm saying," said Ernest Zilch, executive secretary of the Michigan District Assemblies of God. "This is an ecclesiastical matter, and that is how we are handling it."

ENERSEN, IN an emotional sermon May 16, announced he would take a temporary leave of absence until the child abuse case had been resolved. His decision came amid pressure from higher church authorities.

When asked if Enersen had been given the nod by church authorities

'He returned to the pulpit, and that's all I'm saying. This is an ecclesiastical matter, and that is how we are handling it.'

— Ernest Zilch

Michigan District Assemblies of God

to return to the helm of the church, Zilch replied, "He wouldn't be there if he hadn't."

Earlier district church officials had indicated that a decision about Enersen's fate as an Assemblies minister would be made only after they had prepared a report on the case and submitted it to the national church headquarters in Springfield, Mo.

Zilch refused to discuss the matter

last week.

Enersen's sentence in Detroit Recorder's Court ordered him not to have contact with his daughter and his 13-year-old son for five years. Both children were taken from Enersen in March and placed in foster care, amid charges they had been severely abused.

Carol Enersen, the children's stepmother, also has been ordered not to have contact with them for five years.

Westland police Sgt. Laura Moore, who investigated the case, said the children had been severely beaten and had received human bite marks.

fireworks went off in a big way in Westland in recent days.

According to police department records, police responded to at least 22 calls involving fireworks Wednesday and Thursday. Police said the large number of calls is not unusual on the nation's birthday.

RESIDENTS IN

Westland were still being required to follow restrictions on using lawn sprinklers as of 4 p.m. Friday, as a water shortage continues to plague the city. Recent rains did not completely alleviate the shortage.

Between the hours of 8 a.m. and 9 p.m., only those residents with even-numbered addresses may use lawn sprinklers on even-numbered dates, such as July 8 and 10. The same rule applies to residents with odd-numbered addresses on odd-numbered dates.

City officials have said the mandatory restrictions will remain in place until further notice. Anyone violating the ban is subject to citation.

IT'S TIME

for Westland Mayor Robert Thomas to put on his walking shoes again. Thomas and some of his staff members are participating in their second annual neighborhood walk program.

"The purpose of the walk is to allow the citizens in the selected area to bring their concerns to the attention of the mayor and his staff," the mayor said in a news release.

The next walk will be on Tuesday from 4 to 7 p.m. in the Tonquish subdivision, bounded on the east and west by Wildwood and Farmington and on the north and south by Hunter and Warren.

One man stabbed as gathering turns ugly, police investigate

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Police are continuing to investigate an assault in which one Westland man was stabbed three times by a broken beer bottle and another said he was chased by gunfire.

The June 30 incident occurred at a house in the 28000 block of Annapolis where a 22-year-old resident and a 24-year-old friend had invited five other males over for beer, according to a police report.

The group had been drinking beer on the front porch

when one guest, who had gone inside to use the bathroom, stole an M-25 military rifle from a hall closet and disappeared through a rear door, the police report said.

The rifle belonged to an acquaintance -- stationed in Korea -- of the 22-year-old resident.

The resident and his friend, demanding that the rifle be returned, subsequently became embroiled in an argument with the remaining four guests. The four visitors had begun walking away from the house when racial slurs were yelled at them, the police report said.

Officials race to keep transit buses rolling

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Lawmakers concerned about the pending shutdown of Nankin Transit plan to push for new state legislation to protect the financially troubled bus system.

In an emergency meeting called by county commissioner Kay Beard, officials last week indicated they will seek support for legislation to provide direct state funding for Nankin Transit -- a 17-year-old system that provides door-to-door service for elderly and handicapped people in five communities.

Under current law, state money for Nankin Transit comes from SMART -- the Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation -- which plans to halt funding on Sept. 2.

That move, announced last month, could idle the 12 Nankin Transit buses that provide 9,000 rides a month for about 1,000 elderly and handicapped residents in Westland, Garden City, Canton Township, Wayne and Inkster.

Though SMART would replace Nankin Transit in those communities, it would provide curbside service and not the door-to-door rides that many local residents depend on for trips to doctors' offices and grocery stores, among other places, officials said during Tuesday's meeting at the Inkster Recreation Center.

The session drew representatives from all four levels of government -- local, county, state and federal.

"We have really devised a system that works. It is worth fighting for," said Thomas Brown, Nankin Transit Commission secretary and Westland city council president.

COMMISSION CHAIRMAN Thomas Kelly suggested the only way to ensure the continuation of Nankin Transit is to seek a new state law that would remove the bus service from the umbrella of SMART and provide for direct funding.

Festival location concerns mayor

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

As the Westland city festival plunged into the weekend, Mayor Robert Thomas remained concerned about the annual event being staged near city offices on Ford Road.

Thomas blamed the festival for causing the trampling of city property, and he said large crowds flocking to the area invade parking spaces and disrupt city business.

"It's difficult for people who come here to do business," he said, adding that many city workers also cannot find parking spaces near city offices on Ford, between Wayne and Newburgh.

However, Thomas conceded that a search for an alternate site for the festival has proved fruitless.

"We looked for an alternative site, and I couldn't find one that would work quite as well as having it here," Thomas said Friday, as festival-goers geared up for a weekend of carnival rides and contests ranging from bubble gum blowing to horseshoes to the best beer belly.

Thomas indicated the search for an alternate site for future festivals will continue, though he added "I don't know if we will find one."

IN ANOTHER development, Thomas has told city employees to closely monitor the time they spend

Environmental goals could save district money

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

As part of its effort to help save the environment, Livonia Public Schools will no longer burn trash in incinerators.

School officials estimate the elimination of incineration will save the district about $200,000 a year, but only if a major effort also is undertaken to reduce, reuse and recycle.

School officials Monday said they were pleasantly surprised to discover that most of the new "environmentally friendly" changes the district plans to make won't cost extra money.

THE CHANGES were recommended by an environmental task

Livonia School District

The Livonia School District includes the northern section of Westland.

force formed last year to find ways that the district can change its wasteful or environmentally harmful ways to help save the planet.

"I had no idea that the committee would end up saving us money," said newly elected board president Richard McKnight. "I can barely contain my enthusiasm for this report."

Livonia Public Schools will launch a districtwide reduce, reuse and recycle campaign that should cut down on the amount of trash being thrown out.

The remaining trash will not be burned but collected in dumpsters outside each school and carted away weekly by a trash hauler.

Of the 19 goals set by the task force, only the dumpsters — at an estimated cost of $105,000 yearly — will cost a significant amount more each year.

All other goals either have little cost, no cost or should lead to a slight savings, according to Patricia Laarman, task force chairwoman.

"We anticipated higher costs to be environmentally responsive," said trustee Pat Sari. "We found this not to be the case."

The 19 goals, said trustee Marjorie Roach, will not only help the environment but will help the district's budget.

SOME OF the changes include:

- The districtwide recycling of paper, cardboard and styrofoam. Right now, recycling is being done in pilot programs in certain buildings.

- Photocopying on both sides of paper.

- Avoiding aerosol products which damage the ozone layer.

- Buying white legal pads and message pads instead of colored pads.

- Requiring all vendors to verify the recycled percent content of their products.

- Explore working with the city of Livonia in the recycling program it is launching in mid-July.

When the switch to dumpsters was first discussed, much of the debate centered on the illegal dumping which could take place if a dumpster was set outside each school.

Art Howell, director of operations, suggested that the dumpsters could be locked and signs posted saying that large items cannot be left outside the dumpster.

For the incinerators to be shut down and the dumpster plan to work, school officials all agreed that a tremendous amount of education will be needed to get staff and students to view the trash can only as a receptacle of last resort.

Items should only go into the can if they can't first be reused or recycled.

If the district winds up having large amounts of trash hauled away, Howell said, the costs to landfill could exceed the costs to incinerate.

Task force members were: Laarman; Richard Braun, Livonia Public Schools science coordinator; Dan Gilmartin, executive director, Conference of Western Wayne; Scott Heinzman, Garfield parent; Allison Jatczak, Churchill student; Carolyn Norris, Riley Middle School teacher; Chris Scuto, Ford Motor Co. environmentalist; Wilma Wagner, Franklin High teacher; and Howell.

Prisoner escaped, caught minutes later

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

A Detroit man arrested for cocaine possession escaped from the Westland jail Wednesday morning, but he was captured moments later in a wooded area north of Ford Road.

Larry L. Harris, 19, has been turned over to Detroit police who, along with several other police departments, had sought him in connection with various earlier felony warrants for cocaine possession, fleeing police and malicious destruction to a police vehicle.

Harris later will face additional charges of cocaine possession and escape in Westland, Lt. John Reddy said.

"He'll be bounced around (on the previous warrants), and then we'll get him back," Reddy said.

HARRIS ESCAPED the Westland jail, 36701 Ford Road, about 8:35 a.m. Wednesday, after he had been placed in a jail cell that had been accidentally left unlocked, according to police. He had been placed in the cell after being fingerprinted.

Moments later, a police officer saw him crawling along a jail hallway floor, between the holding rooms for women and juveniles.

Harris fled through a door on the west side of the police station before he could be caught. He escaped through an emergency exit that cannot be secured from the interior.

With police in pursuit, Harris crossed to the north side of Ford Road and fled into a wooded area.

ELEVEN POLICE cruisers responded to the escape, and officers surrounded the wooded area and closed in on Harris. He was captured about 10 minutes after his escape, Reddy said.

After his capture, Harris accused police officers of abusing him when they caught him — an accusation the responding officers denied.

An officer at the police station wrote in a report that he saw no signs of abuse. Police took six photographs of Harris.

A colostomy bag that Harris has been dependent on since he was shot in the stomach during an earlier incident in another city may have hampered his escape effort.

Harris' escape marked the first time in about two years that a prisoner has escaped the Westland jail, Reddy said.

"That doesn't happen very often," he said.

Officials scramble to keep buses rolling

Despite that long-term solution, however, officials remain concerned about what they termed a short-term crisis that could emerge unless emergency funding is found to keep Nankin Transit running after Sept. 2. Lawmakers are still pondering ways to avert the shutdown.

In last week's meeting, officials blasted SMART for waiting until June 3 to announce its plans to halt funding for Nankin Transit. The sudden announcement made it difficult for local communities to consider revising their budgets to help make up the loss, officials said.

"We're locked in. We can't go back and reopen the budget," Garden City

Mayor Jim Plakas said. "They (SMART officials) have very effectively choked us out of the time we would need to go back and do something."

At another point, Plakas said, "I get the distinct impression that SMART would like to see (the Nankin Transit Commission) go away."

Others agreed.

"They have done everything they can do to obstruct the smooth operation of Nankin Transit," Kelly said.

Summer fun

City fest full of delights

Westland residents flocked to the city's annual summer festival to enjoy the amusement rides, games and food that make any summer day or night just a bit more enjoyable.

For both the young and the young at heart, the festival offered something for most tastes, whether you prefer a carousel, a candy apple or the view from the top of a ferris wheel.

The wide array of activities and events included a car show, bingo, horseshoes, a kiddie tractor pull, a puppet show, and men's and women's legs contests.

THE FESTIVAL, which took place in the civic center area on the south side of Ford, near Carlson, got off to a pre-weekend bang Wednesday, with a fireworks display and entertainment by United Band.

The kickoff also included a parade, which started at Ford and Wildwood and proceeded to City Hall.

A fireworks display was planned for Sunday at dusk, signaling the finale of the festival until it returns next summer.

Jessica Smith is followed close behind by her mother, Suz, on a slide at the city's summer festival.

Home delivery among services new owner sets for drug store

By Susan Buck
staff writer

He's a new man, pun intended, at Andrews Drugs.

Bill Newman took ownership of Andrews Drugs from Tony Andrews, 65, during the Christmas holidays. Andrews still owns the Belleville store, which Newman managed since 1988, but wants to ease into retirement, according to Newman.

"We still advertise together; we still buy together," Newman said. "I'm going to keep the name. He's a good man, a good name. Why not keep it?"

Newman also retained the store's employees.

A 1978 graduate of Southfield-Lathrup High School, he took the long route to Garden City following graduation.

After earning a bachelor's degree in accounting from Michigan State University, Newman moved to Denver. He received a master's degree in accounting from the University of Colorado.

After working at a national accounting firm, Newman realized he couldn't sit at a desk.

"I liked the hustle and bustle of retail," said Newman, who worked for a time at area Arbor Drugs stores.

"I plan to update the product mix in the store. We'll add more services and have sharper prices," he said. "I'm going to be a little bit higher than F&M, but not enough to make you want to go there."

FOR EXAMPLE, Newman plans to deliver prescriptions. "We have an older clientele," Newman said.

The chief pharmacist will go out into the community to talk to senior citizens, Newman said.

Competition for Andrews Drugs is fierce with Kmart, Arbor Drugs, Perry Drugs and Kroger all located nearby.

"This is the second busiest corner in Wayne County, next to Ford and Telegraph," Newman said. I want to build on that. My goal is to be the best drug store in Wayne County."

At one time the drug store was originally on the corner of Ford and Middlebelt. During the 1950s, it was named Minder's.

Having a clean store is something on which Newman prides himself. As an independent drug store, Andrews Drugs faces some obstacles not faced by chain stores.

"One of the problems that independent pharmacies have in the country is to be able to service all the customers who walk in," he said.

Some independent pharmacies are not allowed to participate in certain medical insurance programs, Newman said.

"The patients have an access ment with the chains," he added.

Newman said he pushed hard to get the Medi-cost program used by Ford employees. He also plans some innovative programs to attract customers.

"We're the first (drug) store, in the country, I think, to start recycling for our customers," Newman said. "We're not making any money from it. What it does is tell people that we're here. So that when they come in with their newspapers, plastics and bottles, they see that we are doing a community service."

"WE CARRY everything that supermarkets carry except for meat," Newman said. "I'll be able to compete with the chains because I'm going to shop the stores. We're re-merchandising the store."

Andrews Drugs also discounts Ambassador Greeting cards by 20 percent.

Newman will further update by providing more product assortment. "If I get a good deal, I'm going to pass it along to the customer. There's not a person I turn away (regarding donations)."

"I'm going to reinvest in the community," Newman said. "I'm going to make it fun to shop at the drug store."

And he said, the customers will always

Prices differ in state's varying regions

IN ALL THE jabbering about school funding "equity," you'll read repeatedly about $2,500 and $8,000. They represent what the poorest Michigan public school district spends per child annually versus the richest.

I, too, have been guilty of reporting those bald numbers without explanation, as if they weren't apples and oranges.

The truth is that Michigan isn't one economy but two or three. Indexes need to have different price indexes for different parts of the state.

PRICES IN metropolitan Detroit are about 22 percent higher than in the major outstate cities.

The evidence comes from elaborate indexes constructed by economists in the hospital industry and my own experiences across the state.

Housing prices in these suburbs run about 25 percent higher than in Kalamazoo, Saginaw and the major outstate cities between 40,000 and 200,000 population.

The hospital industry chart shows we pay 22 percent more for house construction and, as you'd expect, 22 percent more for public education.

In smaller towns and the North Woods, boonies, the differential is even greater. But the comparison isn't apt because there are so few managerial, white collar, pink collar and skilled trades jobs in the third economy.

WE PAY 34 percent more for auto repairs, 44 percent more for trash collection and 55 percent more for house insurance in southeastern Michigan.

Hospital and dental prices run 18-19 percent higher. Those numbers are particularly noteworthy because they are big ticket benefits in contracts penned by teachers' unions and school boards.

We do get a few things cheaper. Store-bought groceries are 1 percent lower here. (But vegetables and fruit from a farmer's stand are cheaper outstate, and there are more stands.)

Gasoline is 6 percent cheaper here, according to the Index, and you have more places to shop.

There's no data I've seen, but my hunch is that a suburbanite here has a longer drive to work than someone in Battle Creek, Midland or Port Huron. So outstaters probably consume less fuel commuting, and they certainly waste less fuel at red lights than suburbanites.

LET'S TURN back to that $2,500 versus $8,000 comparison of school spending.

Many legislators say our first goal should be to lift that lower-number to $3,000. Well, multiply the $2,500 figure by the 22-percent differential, and you inflate the poor outstate district's budget to $3,050 per pupil — by metro Detroit standards.

Possibly you've been following the education news statewide. Detroit is paying its newly hired superintendent $125,000 even before she has reduced the dropout rate 1 percent. The State Board of Education is bidding $83,000 for a new superintendent of public instruction.

And as for lawsuits, anyone outside a cocoon knows Wayne County juries' reputations for generosity to plaintiffs, and Oakland's are trying to catch up.

NO LAWMAKER or lobbyist during the tax-stealing debate ever pointed out that it simply costs more to run schools in southeastern Michigan.

Meanwhile, the sponsor of the House tax-base-stealing bill, Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, is seriously contemplating more mischief. Later this year he plans to hold hearings in the House Education Committee on a proposed constitutional amendment by Rep. Kirk Proffitt, D-Ypsilanti, to write "educational equity" into the Michigan Constitution. That would enable so-called poor districts to sue the state for more money.

Talk about economic illiteracy!

Tim Richard reports regularly on the local implications of state and regional events.

Blackout brightens neighborhood's lifestyles

Storms are wonderful things. They disrupt our normal routine and make us do something different.

And the power outages that often accompany them provide more challenges than inconvenience for me.

Recently our newspapers called in an editorial for the power companies to put their lines underground. The call for progress cited safety as one reason, and fewer power outages as another.

While I can agree with not getting zapped by a 440 line, I'd miss the times without power like we had on a recent Saturday evening.

It was Father's Day weekend and I had spent part of the day at my father's house listening to stories about the old days in Arkansas when they didn't have electricity and kept their meat by curing it in a smoke house.

"And at night, we just sat on the front porch, talked and then went to bed when it got dark," he said.

THAT'S NOT exactly my idea of a hot night, and it wasn't what I had planned for that Saturday night. But that's what we had, and I enjoyed it.

The storm came moving through at about 6 p.m., knocking down a large tree in a neighbor's yard and pulling out the power for about 24 hours.

What ensued was reminiscent of what life must have been like in the old days.

First of all, I met many of my neighbors who came out of their houses when their television sets and radios went dead. We stood there looking at the downed tree and speculating about when the power would go back on.

Inside my house my son and his girlfriend lighted candles and my youngest son actually read a book by candle light. I actually talked to my wife.

But during it all, I was thinking about my father and the life he lived in the 1920s and 1930s. It was pretty much like living in the 19th century. Mules were used for plowing, cotton was picked by hand and there was no indoor plumbing.

GROWING UP in such a way has given him a different perspective from which to view the world. It interests me. It's also made me realize that our spending binge since World War II has been the biggest cause of pollution.

Sure, we like to blame the big corporate giants like General Motors, Ford or Dow Chemical Co.

But really it's us. We demand too much from our environment. We trash the world with too much garbage because we buy too much stuff.

And our obsession with being clean has been a big contributor to water pollution. We dump tons of soap and cleaners with god knows what in them needlessly into the sewer system.

And flush toilets. Chances are that in 1940 most people in rural areas still used outhouses. Now they're hooked up to expensive sewer systems that still put human waste in our lakes and rivers.

The outhouse may have been chilly on a January night, but our lakes were a lot cleaner when we used them.

THERE'S ALSO the land ethic. That's the idea that good agricultural land should be used to help feed the world instead of being turned into another strip mall. We're really losing that ideal in the Detroit area.

There was also the idea that animals were animals. If you had dogs or cats, they lived outside with the other animals. Houses were for people. And when it came hog killing time, you did it quickly and efficiently. You weren't there to torture the animal, and you weren't there to wonder about its feelings. You were there to feed your family.

The concern for the environment was pretty practical then because people lived in their environments. They didn't put their environment into tree museums like we've done with state and national parks.

It's time we flip off the power for a while and read a few books by candle light. It would be good for our brains and our environment.

Abortion kills, exploits women

To the editor: I am sorely tempted to begin this letter by calling Jack Gladden a lot of crude names, but I do not have to stoop to his level to answer his vulgar column.

First of all, since I was at the Livonia abortion mill on Saturday, June 8, I am fairly certain that Jack Gladden was not there. Reading his column, I know he wasn't. Makes me wonder where he got his information. From the very dark resources of his mind, maybe.

If he had been there, he would have seen and actually experienced what the abortion issue is all about. He would have noticed that one group of people, the "fetus worshipers," were walking around the clinic, singing and praying, while another group which he failed to mention carried banners advocating gay rights, chanting obscene slogans and calling us all kinds of vulgar names. He would have seen both sides of the abortion issue in real live color, if he had only been there.

FROM MY point of view, it was wrong that a couple of our members put the names of women about to have an abortion on their signs. But I also know that their intention was to deter the women from killing their babies, so I fault their judgment, not their intention.

The real tragedy here, however, is not this lack of judgment, but how this isolated incident has been exploited by the media. Here we have this tremendous media outcry against a couple's action outside an abortion mill, yet no outrage against the deliberate killing that goes on inside the abortion mill.

They seized on this isolated incident and resort to name calling because they hide from the real issue — a reality they cannot face or argue: that abortion not only deliberately kills innocent human life, but exploits women as well.

Let me conclude by inviting Jack Gladden and all who read this letter to observe how we picket in front of clinics. If the other side is there, you will have no trouble telling who the hatemongers are.

Festival raises concerns

working on the festival, so that the festival committee can be billed for the work.

"That's a practice that we've always followed in the past," he said, but added, "We're probably following it a little more closely this year." Thomas has been adamant that he does not want city workers spending their time working on the festival, unless the festival committee picks up the tab for the work.

Festival organizers "have always paid for time that city employees have spent working on the festival," Thomas said, citing police and fire department workers as examples of city employees who work in connection with the festival.

Department heads have been told to be sure the festival committee is billed for the services, he said.

Thomas has been at odds with the festival committee on some occasions, but he said the two sides appear to have ironed out some of the "problems" that arose during last year's festival.

Party turns ugly, man stabbed

The four males then became "enraged" during the 2 p.m. incident, according to police reports.

Two of the males attacked the 24-year-old in the driveway, resulting in three stab wounds caused by a broken beer bottle, according to the police report. The victim, who was "covered in blood," was later treated at Annapolis Hospital for stab wounds to his right cheek, right forearm and lower back, police said.

As the 24-year-old came under attack, the 22-year-old resident went inside the house to get a .357-caliber handgun, but was chased by the two other guests, who wrestled the weapon from him and chased him to a back bedroom.

The resident, who had a 6-month-old daughter in the house at the time, grabbed the child and escaped through a bedroom window, as the handgun was fired at him, he told police.

Pastor returns to pulpit

The children's maternal grandmother — whose daughter, Cheryl, was married to Michael Enersen until she died in 1978 of heart failure at age 19 — said she believes the case has been handled too lightly.

"I TRIED to get them (county juvenile authorities) to reopen the case," said the grandmother, Nancy Esparza, who has vowed to try to win custody of the children.

Esparza voiced concern that the Enerses have returned to their normal lives, while she said the children continue to suffer from the emotional scars of abuse.

"It's very frustrating," she said.

Despite the child abuse charges, Enersen continued to draw strong support from his 700-member congregation, though some former church members began to speak out about the child abuse that they said had occurred for several years.

In another development, four younger Enersen children — born during Michael and Carol Enersen's marriage — also could be removed from their custody under a petition pending in Wayne County Probate Court.

A hearing on that petition had been scheduled last month, but it has been postponed until July 29.

We're constantly digging up horror stories.

If you had walked by a certain yard on the afternoon of August 25th, you might have heard the ground crying. That was the day a man walked into his backyard, dug a hole, and buried six puppies alive. Unable to stop him, a young neighbor girl looked on in horror. Luckily, her mother was also looking on.

She quickly called a Michigan Humane Society Investigator.

When he arrived, the cruelty investigator found the mother of the puppies chained and lying protectively on a fresh patch of soil. Her sensitive ears could easily hear the cries of her puppies eighteen inches below her. What she couldn't figure out was how to help them. The MHS cruelty investigator got into the dog pen and dug the puppies out with his bare hands.

Today five of those puppies are alive. And there's no clearer picture than this photo of what your contributions to the Michigan Humane Society accomplish. Your contributions help us feed and shelter the victims of animal abuse. Your contributions find them homes. And your contributions allow us to keep cruelty investigators on staff, so caring neighbors have someone to call.

In this season of giving, please find it in your heart to give what you can, large or small to the Michigan Humane Society. Because your contributions are the only reason stories like this have happy endings.

SC offers management programs

Communications Skills for Managers and How Successful Women Manage, a pair of American Management Association classes, are being offered this month at Schoolcraft College.

Communication Skills for Managers, examines written, spoken and non-verbal communication. The five-week class meets 7-10 p.m. Tuesdays, beginning July 23. Fee is $109.

How Successful Women Manage examines societal stereotypes, personal values and beliefs and workplace norms. The five-week class meets 7-10 p.m. Wednesdays, beginning July 24. Fee is $120.

To register, or for additional information, call the college continuing education services office, 462-4448. Schoolcraft is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile roads, Livonia.

Class targets cycle safety

Motorcycle safety is the focus of a three-day class being offered at Schoolcraft College-Radcliff.

The 20-hour Motorcycle Safety Foundation course is designed for riders 15 and older.

Motorcycles will be provided, though riders are required to bring their own protective equipment and gear.

The class meets July 19-21. Fee is $20.

Additional information is available by calling the college continuing education services division, 462-4448. Schoolcraft College-Radcliff is at 1751 Radcliff, south of Ford Road, between Wayne and Venoy roads, Garden City.

Alzheimer's group seeks volunteers

Volunteers are sought for the in-home respite care program provided by the Alzheimer's Association, Detroit Area Chapter.

The program is used by families in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. It provides relief for family members who care for persons with Alzheimer's disease or related memory impairments.

Training sessions will be held in July.

Volunteers donate four to 16 hours per month. They are trained by skilled professionals prior to placement and receive travel mileage to and from training as well as placement sites. Day and evening hours are available.

Those interested in attending a July training session are asked to call 557-8277 for additional information.

Geake loses battle to end welfare 'vending'

Despite urging from Sen. Robert Geake, Gov. John Engler's administration has reversed itself and will continue welfare "vending" — making rent checks to landlords of welfare clients.

Gerald Miller, director of the state Department of Social Services, changed his mind after many landlords threatened to evict welfare tenants.

"Let the free market work," said Geake, R-Northville. Although he is the owner of five rental properties, Geake had encouraged DSS to halt the program July 1 as planned.

GEAKE SAID welfare recipients would learn responsibility — a view shared by a welfare rights organization.

Two weeks ago, Geake released a survey showing only 11 of the 48 contiguous states mailed rent checks to landlords. Virtually all were in New England, the northern Midwest and along the Canadian border.

In social services budget hearings, Geake heard landlords plead for continued vending.

A Battle Creek landlord leader, Iris Hendershott, summed up her group's case for continued vending:

"When the vendor payments are cut, you have to be there the day the (welfare) check arrives because the minute the check is cashed, the money will be gone, and rent is the last thing that gets paid."

A lobbyist for the Michigan Rental Housing Association said its members would have evicted residents of 20,000 housing units if DSS had stopped the program.

ABOUT 40 percent of the state's 350,000 recipients of AFDC and general assistance allow the state to "vendor." Many landlords require it before they will rent to welfare recipients.

Some 55,000 landlords are paid by the state, costing the state $4 million a month in clerical services and postage.

DSS chief Miller said the state would consider alternatives to ending vending. To be eligible, landlords may have to:

- Pay the state a check processing fee.
- Furnish proof of property tax payments.

- Have their housing inspected.

A bipartisan group of state representatives passed a resolution urging Engler to continue vending. The Senate buried it in committee.

Lobster not now for poor

One thing about Michigan summers, the time is always right for enjoying lobster.

Lobster used to be a scourge to be abhorred, a pollutant on North American beaches. At best it was a passable fertilizer for farmers' fields or a suitable bait for fishing the highly esteemed codfish. Any child forced to take lobster in his or her lunch can be publicly stating, "My family is poor."

My, how times have changed. Lobster is revered by culinarians and cooks around the world. Most major supermarkets and fish stores have lobster tanks on the premises, allowing the everyday shopper to take home some floundering crustacean just waiting to be boiled, steamed or grilled.

Lobster are usually trapped between 10 to 200 feet of water although there are some areas, such as off the coast of New Jersey, where they are trapped as deep as 600 feet. When caught, lobsters are generally a greenish blue to a reddish brown in color, but like rules there are always exceptions with rumors of white lobsters and black lobster; all the same, they turn an indescribable gorgeous red when cooked to perfection.

THERE ARE hundreds of ways lobster can be prepared for the table. Some methods, like Lobster Newburgh, are best left to capable cooks. There are, however, ways for the everyday cook to enjoy fresh lobster while being intimidated only by the price and not by the cooking procedures.

The basic and most widely acclaimed cooking procedure calls for boiling the lobster in salted, boiling water. While arguably not the best cooking method, it is the most familiar and humane. Serving the lobster piping hot or chilled, with a little melted butter, a nutcracker and small forks is all that is needed for culinary nirvana.

Steaming lobsters is another alternative. Professional cooks swear a "pinky-finger length" measure of water, coupled with plenty of seaweed and about 20 minutes of a good rolling steam, is all that is necessary. Afficionados claim steamed lobsters are more tasty, saying only steam cooks the lobster and that boiling them toughens and boils away the flavor.

But when personal whims are exposed, yours truly can't beat the taste of grilled lobster constantly being brushed with some butter during grilling. This technique is especially easy when preparing just lobster tails but also can be used with a whole lobster that has been split. Cooking times will vary depending on the size of the lobster. For the most part, glowing red coils (with no flame) will cook a whole lobster, that has been split, in 20-30 minutes with frequent turning and brushing with butter.

Occasionally, I like to take some fresh snipped herbs from the garden (maybe a little dill or cilantro) and mix them into the butter. Just a tiny bit because you still want the sweetness of the lobster to come shining through.

MY PHILOSOPHY is that if I have enough money to purchase lobster, I might as well go a little deeper in the hole and get one or two extra. I cook these right along with the dinner and then keep them chilled for the next few days entry into a chilled vegetable salad or simply tossed on a bed of greens with a little sliced avocado. A dollop of mayonnaise flavored with a little lemon or lime works miracles.

Don't wait for an anniversary or special occasion to enjoy lobster. Have it year round, especially in these recipes:

RASPBERRIES

Gathering the season's harvest yourself

By Phyllis Kruger Stillman
special writer

RASPBERRIES COULD be considered the aristocracy of summer fruit. They are delicate and fragile, with a burst of sweet-sour flavor in every berry that many feel is the best taste of the summer. Unfortunately, like the aristocracy, raspberries don't come cheap. It isn't unusual to pay as much as $3 a pint.

One way to beat the high cost of raspberries, as well as many other fruits and vegetables, is to pick your own. As a bonus, of course, you get to hand choose every berry so that each one is a fresh, high-quality gem.

To help locate places to buy and pick homegrown produce, the Michigan Department of Agriculture publishes a Farm Market and U-Pick Directory called "In Michigan, Nothing's As Good As Homegrown." Using the directory, which lists farms by county, we found several U-Pick farms that offer raspberries.

Raspberries have two growing seasons — one in early summer and another in the fall. Although different varieties mature at different times, most of the summer berries are ripe right now. But there's not much time. The summer season only lasts about three weeks.

BARBARA MIDDLETON of Middleton Berry Farm near Lake Orion says that the weather is a big factor, but that their berries are ripe now and should be available until about the middle of July. Berries seem to be plentiful. "It looks like a really good year. The bushes are just loaded right now."

Middleton says you should look for berries with fully developed color that almost fall off the vine. "If you have to tug on them to get them off the stem, they're not ripe."

It helps, if you want to pick raspberries, to be a morning person. "We start at 6:30 in the morning, and we are picked out very fast," says Middleton. Believe it or not, she says there's usually a line when the farm opens.

You don't have to be quite as early a riser to pick at Whale-Inn Farms near Milford — it opens at 7:30 a.m. — but you do have to be persistent. "I tell people that the best fruit will often hide under the leaves," says Sandy Whalen.

Whale-Inn Farms has the usual red and black raspberries, plus something different. "We also have royalty raspberries. They are a cross between red and black that are called purple and are an excellent variety." Whale-Inn expects to have berries through around the third week in July.

Middleton and Whalen offer some tips on taking care of your raspberries:

- Store raspberries in the refrigerator for only a few days. The berries are so fragile that the weight of the berries on top will crush those underneath.

- Don't wash the berries until you're ready to use them, because water slightly damages the berries and causes them to spoil more quickly.

- When you do wash them, rinse or spray very gently. Don't allow them to soak — they will absorb water.

- To freeze individually, spread out on cookie sheet until frozen, then put in plastic bags or boxes.

- Another freezing technique is to mix berries with sugar to taste, let set for about 20 minutes until a syrup forms, then pack in containers and freeze. These berries can be used in recipes which call for raspberries frozen in syrup.

Both Middleton Farms and Whale-Inn Farms stress the importance of calling before you go out to pick, because picking schedules vary and berries often aren't available every day. "Sometimes we have to close a day or two to allow for ripening in between," explains Whalen. "Both farms furnish containers for picking, but Whalen worries about our throwaway society. "Just for recycling purposes, if people have their own containers, they can bring them."

Thematic dinners are quite a lark

DISHING IT OUT

It's Monday night. Just one day into the work week. But you think you are on holiday once you enter the Lark restaurant — particularly on an evening on which it has scheduled one of its monthly theme dinners.

Colorful triangular flags adorn the walls of the intimate, elegant West Bloomfield restaurant, the pride and joy of Jim and Mary Lark and, indeed, of metropolitan Detroit.

Despite a window seat overlooking Mary's glorious walled garden, you are transported into the atmosphere of a cruise ship, with recipes direct from the Cunard line via Malaga, Barcelona and Puerto Banus, and accompanied by strolling musicians.

Cut crystal, English silver and colorful French china are set precisely on white damask as a tuxedoed Jim Lark announces the ingredients of the first of the six — no seven — courses. (They added soft-shell crabs with sundried tomatoes, capers and Parisienne vegetables over (not under because it would get mushy) a light curry sauce.

The crabs are tucked in after the Russian Malossol caviar served on almond potato pancake and the cream of spring onion soup which features the tiniest stack of hand-silvered, french fried onion sticks, so delicate they all but melt in your mouth.

THEN, TO CLEANSE your palate before the entree, a pineapple-Kirsch granite instead of the more traditional sorbet. A granite, Jim Lark later explained, is grainier than a sorbet and made with water instead of milk. And, this night, it is sipped from a tulip champagne glass.

Speaking of sipping, you can order a wine bouquet, with a selection for each course priced at $20 or have wine by the bottle or glass from the Lark's extensive cellar.

The entree, a thick, grilled veal chop with Sicilian pecorino cheese on mustard sauce, is done to perfection, with just a hint of pink to the meat as you cut into it. It is served over spinach fettuccini, accompanied by miniature string beans and a dollop of the best candied carrots you've ever tasted.

If there is any course to criticize, and this is stretching it, it would be the salad of arugula, radicchio, mache and oak leaf lettuce in an Italian herb vinaigrette dressing. Salad served after the entree may be very continental, but it seems misplaced. In this case, the olive oil in the Italian herb vinaigrette dressing was a little too predominant.

Jim and Mary Lark, with Chef de Cuisine Marcus Haight, in garden of the Lark in West Bloomfield.

DAN DEAN staff photographer

Cut crystal, English silver and colorful French china are set precisely on white damask.

BUT PERHAPS we were just looking ahead to the two desserts! An absolutely mouth-watering rhubarb tart on chocolate sabayon had as its crowning touch a delicate chocolate bow. And the petits fours — tiny eclairs and lemon tarts topped with a raspberry — were only left on the platter because so much had gone before.

Chef de cuisine Marcus Haight, who will celebrate five years at the Lark in August, obviously has the ability to both inspire and train his staff to prepare nearly any cuisine. The Larks beckoned him here from Le Bec Fin in Philadelphia.

The next theme dinner, Monday-Tuesday, July 29-30, features the cuisine of New Orleans. Next to the Lark's special Christmas dinner, Jim Lark says, the Russian dinner — at Eastertime — is the most popular as well as the most expensive, all that caviar you know.

You can do lots of tasty things with raspberries

Most people think that cheesecake is difficult to make. This recipe, which uses fresh raspberries to make a very special dessert, disproves that myth.

RASPBERRY CHEESECAKE

2 1/4 cup graham cracker crumbs
1/2 cup butter
1/4 cup sugar, optional

Melt butter in medium saucepan; stir in crumbs and sugar, if used. Pat onto bottom and up sides of a 9-inch springform pan.

Three 8-ounce packages cream cheese
1 1/2 cup sugar
4 eggs
1 pint raspberries
3 tablespoons grated lemon peel
3 tablespoons flour
1/2 cup lemon juice

In medium mixer bowl, combine all ingredients except raspberries; beat until smooth. Fold in raspberries gently, by hand. Pour onto crust. Bake at 350 degrees about 45 minutes, or until a knife inserted into the middle of cheesecake comes out clean. Remove from oven and let cool.

1/2 cup raspberry jelly, melted
1 pint raspberries

Arrange fresh raspberries on top of cheesecake; brush melted jelly over top. Chill

I used to make this pie for my father's birthday in July. Unlike strawberries, raspberries make a very good, traditional, two-crust pie all by themselves, although you can use half raspberries and half sliced, tart apples if you like.

RASPBERRY PIE

2 cups flour
3/4 cups shortening
1/2 teaspoon salt
About 6 tablespoons cold water

Mix flour, salt and shortening until crumbly. Stir in enough water to moisten (mixture should form into a ball). Divide in half and roll out on floured board to fit a 9-inch deep-dish pie pan. Roll out remaining dough for top crust.

6 cups raspberries
6 tablespoons flour
1 1/4 cup sugar
1 tablespoon butter

Combine raspberries, flour and sugar in same bowl used for crust. Pour filling into crust; dot with butter. Arrange top crust on filling and seal edges using your fingers, or a fork. Cut vent holes into top crust and sprinkle with sugar, if desired. Bake at 400 degrees for about 50 minutes or until filling is bubbly and crust is brown.

Jams made with uncooked fruit and stored in the freezer retain the fresh flavor of the fruit. Every time you use freezer jam, it's like summer harvest time all over again.

RASPBERRY FREEZER JAM

2 cups crushed fresh raspberries (about 1 quart)
4 cups sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 pouch liquid pectin

Stir sugar into raspberries in a large bowl. Set aside for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add lemon juice and pectin and stir constantly for 3 minutes. Fill jelly jars to within 1/4-inch of top. Wipe off edges of jars and cover with lids. Let stand at room temperature for 24 hours, then place in freezer.

A combination of two heavenly and addictive delights — chocolate and raspberries.

RASPBERRY MOUSSE BROWNIE

Two 1-ounce squares unsweetened chocolate
1/2 cup butter
1 cup sugar

Serve lobster as dip or salad

See Larry Janes' column Taste Buds, Page 1B.

LOBSTER DIP

Slightly extravagant — but worth it!
4 ounces cream cheese
1/4 cup sour cream
1/4 teaspoon salt
Pinch cayenne pepper
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 cup finely chopped cooked lobster meat

Combine all ingredients in a bowl and mix well. Can be placed in a mold and chilled until set, then unmolded. Serve with toast points or water crackers.

TARRAGON LOBSTER SALAD

A friend sent me this recipe from New York. She said this salad sells for $60 per pound in the Big Apple.

2 pounds cooked lobster meat
2 tablespoons Dijon-style mustard
3 tablespoons sherry or wine vinegar
1/2 cup light vegetable oil (not olive)
2 tablespoons fresh tarragon minced or 1 tablespoon dried
Pinch cayenne or red pepper
2 bunches mache or butter lettuce

Chop lobster meat into chunks. Blend mustard and sherry vinegar in a processor and with motor running, drizzle in oil until thickened and well blended. This also can be done in a small bowl using a wire whisk. Fold dressing and lobster together and add tarragon. Season with pepper. Refrigerate at least 1 hour. Serve on a bed of lettuce. Serves 6.

Stuff an eggplant

AP — Speedy Swiss-Styled Eggplant is a quick side dish that takes about 15 minutes to cook in your microwave oven.

SPEEDY SWISS-STUFFED EGGPLANT

Two 1-pound eggplants
1/2 cup sliced green onions, including green tops
1 large clove garlic, minced
1/2 cup tomato juice or water
2 tablespoons olive oil or vegetable oil
2 cups seasoned croutons
2 1/2 cups shredded Swiss cheese (10 ounces)
1/4 teaspoon thyme
1/2 to 1/4 teaspoon pepper
Paprika

Halve eggplants lengthwise. Loosen and scoop out pulp, leaving shells about 1/2-inch thick; reserve shells. Coarsely chop pulp; combine in a 2-quart microwave-safe dish with onions, garlic, tomato juice and oil. Cook, covered with plastic wrap, on high (100 percent power) for 2 minutes. Uncover, stir, cover again; cook on high for 2 minutes. Add croutons, 2 cups of the cheese, thyme and pepper. Toss to mix. Spoon into eggplant shells, dividing equally. Sprinkle tops with remaining 1/2 cup cheese. Dust with paprika. Place on a microwave-safe plate; spoon fashion. Cook on high for 8 minutes, turning a quarter turn every 2 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Falling in love with miniatures

"Before you eat a miniature, you fall in love with it. After all," says Flo Braker, "it's all yours. You don't have to share it with anyone." Braker believes in the proverb, "Good things come in small packages."

These words represent the philosophy of Braker, master baker of perfect, bite-size desserts. Her techniques and recipes for creating miniatures are showcased in her latest book, "Sweet Miniatures: The Art of Making Bite-Size Desserts" (William Morrow & Co., June 20, 1991; $25, hardcover).

This comprehensive volume contains her recipes for Sweet Cheese Puffs, Drei Augen and Dutch Mini-cakes as well as new recipes for Creamy Ginger Squares, Chocolate Shadows, Scheherazade Tartlets and 110 other tempting recipes.

During Braker's career as a baking teacher, caterer, food columnist and cookbook author, miniatures have become her trademark. Her passion is creating these scaled-down desserts, such as Harlequin Stars, Maple Japonais, Chocolate Tulips and Romeo Tartlets, to deliver intense tastes of apricot, maple, chocolate or even amaretto.

She has perfected other gems, such as Apricot Medals, Pecan Diamonds, Tiffany Rings and Jewel Fruit Prisms, though miniature in size, to satisfy the palate just as a large slice of dessert would.

BRAKER DIVIDES her miniatures into three categories: Miniature Cookies, Miniature Pastries and Miniature Cakes. For each of these three types of recipes, she discusses the most crucial techniques needed to create them successfully. She analyzes the various methods for mixing cookie doughs, their uses and comparative advantages. She sheds light on the secrets of rolling pastry doughs and of cutting full-sized cakes into miniature shapes.

"Sweet Miniatures" contains an entire chapter on preparing the tiny desserts ahead, with helpful advice on storing, freezing and serving. Braker's step-by-step directions are for both the beginning baker and seasoned professional. She includes a section on Making Miniatures Ahead, 1 to 100 Dozen, and there is a miniature planning chart, cross-referencing her recipes by category, size and texture.

The cookbook also offers countless ideas for variations on the basic themes. For example, the recipe for Lemon Macaroon Triangles, which yields a tender cookie with an almond-flavored topping and tangy lemon filling, can be followed exactly, or the baker can add a mixture of mascarpone and cream cheese, the result resembling the popular Italian dessert, Tiramisu.

BRAKER NEVER runs out of innovative suggestions for baking the best possible miniatures, but in "Sweet Miniatures," her ultimate advice is to experiment: "The best reward for me would be if this book inspired you to invent your own memorable miniatures."

Braker, once a professional caterer, lives in Palo Alto, Calif. Along with years of trial and error baking in her kitchen, she attended the Ecole LeNotre in France and the Richemont Professional School in Switzerland. She has been teaching baking techniques across the country for 15 years. The baker columnist for the San Francisco Chronicle, Braker also has authored the cookbook "The Simple Art of Perfect Baking."

Flo Braker is the author of "Sweet Miniatures."

Recipes designed for baseball fans

AP — For the baseball players — and fans — in your family: "Out of the Park" Popcorn, a combination of peanuts and popcorn, and Pitcher's Mounds, made with pudding and crushed cookies.

Other kid-pleasing recipes: Magic Potion, made with pudding and crushed cookies, and Magic Pie, made with ice cream and topped with chocolate fudge sauce.

"OUT OF THE PARK" POPCORN
8 cups popped popcorn
1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted
One 4-serving size package gelatin, strawberry, cherry or raspberry flavor
1/2 cup peanuts

Place popcorn in a large bowl. Add melted butter and toss to coat. Sprinkle with gelatin and toss again until evenly coated. Mix in peanuts. Makes 9 cups.

PITCHER'S MOUNDS
2 cups milk
One 4-serving size package chocolate-flavor instant pudding and pie filling
3 1/2 cups (8 ounces) frozen non-dairy whipped topping, thawed
One 16-ounce package chocolate sandwich cookies, crushed

Pour milk into a medium bowl. Add pudding mix. Beat with wire whisk until well blended, 1 to 2 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes. Stir in whipped topping and half of the crushed cookies.

To assemble, place about 1 tablespoon of the crushed cookies into the bottoms of eight to ten 8-ounce paper or plastic cups. Fill cups about 3/4 full with pudding mixture. Top with remaining crushed cookies. Chill. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

MAGIC POTION
3 cups milk
One 4 1/2-ounce package instant vanilla pudding and pie filling 8 chocolate sandwich cookies

In a blender container, combine milk, pudding mix and cookies. Blend on high for 2 minutes. Pour into glasses. Serve immediately. Makes 5 servings.

MAGIC PIE
42 chocolate sandwich cookies
2 tablespoons margarine, melted
1 quart chocolate ice cream
1 pint vanilla ice cream, softened
1/2 cup prepared whipped topping
Chocolate fudge sauce

Finely roll 22 cookies. Mix 1/4 cups cookie crumbs and margarine; press onto the bottom of a 9-inch pie plate. Stand 14 cookies around the edge of the plate, pressing lightly into the crust.

Scoop chocolate ice cream into balls; arrange in a prepared crust. Coarsely chop remaining six cookies; sprinkle over ice cream scoops. Spread softened vanilla ice cream evenly over cookie layer; freeze 15 minutes. Top with a layer of remaining cookie crumbs, pressing gently into the ice cream. Freeze several hours or overnight. To serve, garnish with whipped topping and fudge sauce. Makes 8 servings.

He's well brought up in Burgundy region

In 1850, the Burgundian Symphonien Moillard, a Nuits-Saint-Georges vineyard owner, became a negotiant as a result of his customers' requests. They wanted him to obtain more wines from Burgundy and other regions for them.

Selecting, as well as cellaring wines, became Moillard's main concern. Today, his descendants are the owners of Burgundy estates which have been enlarged by each generation.

Domaine Moillard sources or owns parcels in several important grands cru and premier cru locations. At Vosne-Romanee, as an example, the company is distinguished at Les Beaux Monts and Les Malconsorts, a site contiguous with the renowned La Tache.

Wine production from Moillard's grape sources in the Hautes-Cotes de Nuits offers consumers more reasonably priced Burgundy wines. Moillard planted chardonnay in this region about seven years ago.

"In Burgundy it is not sufficient to be well born. It is also important to be well brought up," maintains Henri Thomas, a Moillard descendant and the firm's general manager.

"The Moillard policy stresses quality. In order to source and produce quality wines, it is necessary to make thoughtful selections. We do this from three avenues of supply: the family vineyard holdings; grapes purchased by Moillard and fermented in its winery, and the wines purchased either by contract or from various, carefully selected growers."

THESE GRAPE supply resources qualify Moillard to be termed a negotiant-eleveur. The negotiant capacity extends to wines from the Maconnais, Beaujolais and the Rhone. The latter makes up about 22 percent of production.

The key advantage of Moillard may be a 140-year experience in the Burgundy wine trade, constituting about 50 percent of wines produced.

"In general, the 1988 vintage is

WINE SELECTIONS OF THE WEEK

Moillard is no exception when it comes to Burgundy producers with high-priced bottlings from premier and grand cru vineyards. We found the following lesser appellation wines representative of the Burgundy region and very good values.

1988 Moillard Bourgogne, Hautes Cotes de Nuits "Les Vignes Hautes" ($14.75) is generously fruity with ripe cherry aromas and flavors. It is stylish, user-friendly and approachable in its youth.

1988 Moillard Givry, Clos de Vauvry ($15.50) has expressive black cherry aromas with a gentle oak and fruit palate impression. The lengthy finish is quite elegant.

WINE BULLETIN BOARD

Flora Springs Winery Dinner at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, July 13, at the Golden Mushroom in Southfield, in cooperation with the Cloverleaf Market. still tight and not showing that well," Thomas states. "The acid is still too obvious. The 1985 reds are more mature, but the whites need another six to eight months' bottle aging."

In a three-year projection, Thomas believes that the 1988 white burgundies will show better than the '85s. "The reds from 1985 will remain ahead of the '88s," he affirms.

"I believe that it's a mistake for importers and wholesalers not to stock back vintages. The 1988 sumers are deceived by the hype given to certain vintages. Currently, Moillard still has some 1983s available. They are drinking well and they cost less than either the 1985s or the 1988s.

"Consumers tend to read the wine press, and the 1988s and 1989s are being discussed now. They've forgotten about a drinkable vintage like 1983."

Looking to the future, Thomas believes that eventually the 1990 vintage wines will be much better than 1989s. "Perhaps the 1990 wines will be as good as 1988," he says.

ARTHRITIS MEDICATIONS AND OTHER DRUGS

Arthritis medications can change the effect of other drugs; the best known example is the interplay of aspirin with "blood thinners." Blood thinners are medications that deliberately impair the coagulation of blood cells; aspirin renders blood platelets less sticky to blood vessel walls and other platelets. If both your platelets and red blood cells have lost the ability to clump, then you are at risk that a small cut will turn into a large bleed. Other arthritis drugs share aspirin's ability to impair platelet function, but usually are not as great or prolonged in that effect.

The relation between blood thinners and arthritis medications becomes more complex if you have rheumatoid arthritis and are taking additional medicines such as gold or methotrexate. These medications impede the ability of bone marrow to make new platelets when bleeding occurs.

Info: any doctor providing you care that you are taking arthritis medication, if you should have a stroke, heart attack or blood clot in your leg, the use of "blood thinners" will be a problem. From discussions with you, doctors must decide if you can tolerate stopping your arthritis medicine so they can start anticoagulation therapy as treatment for these

THOMAS CLAIMS the 1990 red burgundies (pinot noir) have deep color, rich fruit with balanced acid and tannins. "The 1990 whites (chardonnay) are balanced with generous fruit," he reports. "Chablis wines from 1990 should prove very good. In general, all the 1990 white wines are better than whites from 1989."

Thomas is not shy to say that a string of good Burgundy vintages is not without problems. In particular, he points to the growers asking higher prices year after year. "I try to point out to them that the market will not bear increases currently," he contends.

Food in Mexico it's not necessarily hot

Mexican food is very popular in the United States today. However, there are still many people who think all Mexican food is hot and spicy.

I once thought the same thing and was totally unacquainted with anything but tacos, burritos and other Tex-Mex favorites until I visited Mexico a few years ago.

Then I learned that I had a lot of false beliefs about Mexico and the Mexican people, as well as the food they eat.

Until only a few days before we left home, we were planning a trip to the Bahamas. Mexico was the furthest thing from our minds. It was a place I didn't think I would like, and had no desire to visit.

BUT THERE WAS a last minute mix-up at the travel agency, and we ended up in Quintana Roo, on the Yucatan peninsula.

I have always believed that all things happen for a reason. Why fate chose to send me to Mexico, I don't know. But I do know that I shall be eternally grateful.

We were enchanted by crystal-clear waters, coral reefs, giant turtles and tropical fish that will eat from your hand as you swim among them.

We were warmed by 80-degree temperatures that were never uncomfortable because of the constant breezes scented by the perfumes of tropical flowers.

WE WERE HAUNTED by the ghosts of 10,000 Mayans that hovered about us as we explored the ruins of their homes and temples and gazed into their sacred cenote (waterhole).

And we fell in love with the Mexican people who took the time to listen and try to understand our poor attempts to speak their beautiful language.

There was a blond, blue-eyed man who told me he knew all about snow because he had seen it once on a mountain top in Chihuahua, and the middle-aged couple who lived in a jungle hut with a dirt floor near Xcaret, who gave me the uncured skin of a seven-foot boa they had killed in the garden that morning (they kept the meat to eat).

There are mariachis in big sombreros, who serenade you wherever you go.

And, believe it or not, there was all the fantastic food, some of it mild enough to please an Englishman with an ulcer.

THE BREAKFAST menu at the restaurant where we ate every morning offered eggs with seafood sauce. These proved to be poached eggs on top of tortillas, smothered with creamed shrimp, lobster, crab and scallops.

Another item featured there was "bananas tabasco." It sounded horrible, but later we learned that it had nothing to do with the hot sauce.

Tabasco is a county in Mexico, just as is Quintana Roo. Tabasco sauce and bananas tabasco are both named for that county where they originated. They have nothing else in common.

On the little island of Isla Mujeres (Island of the Women), we were served a turtle soup that was so good I embarrassed my family by refusing to leave without seeking out the cook and begging for the recipe.

He was gracious enough to give it to me, through an interpreter, and even told me how to make it without turtle, if need be.

We found we liked cactus, cooked with any kind of meat at all. And there wasn't a tomato or hot pepper in it.

We ate many dishes that featured goat's meat, and proved to be very delicious.

But our favorite food of all was the quesadilla, which in no way resembles those you get here at Taco Bell or Chi-Chi's. They are simple to make and are really nothing more than a Mexican version of a grilled cheese sandwich.

Here are a few of my favorite Mexican recipes. Please feel free to call me at 427-1072 if you need help with any of them.

QUESADILLAS

(Pronounced Kay-sa-dee-a)

Place a slice of mild, meltable cheese on a flour tortilla. (Provolone, Monterey Jack or Muenster are all very good.) Fold the tortilla once (as you would an omelet). Fry in a small amount of hot shortening or oil in a heavy skillet. Turn over once to brown both sides until the outside is crispy and golden brown and the cheese inside is melted.

These are delicious eaten plain, but they may be served with a salsa, mild or spicy hot, as your own tastes dictates. Here is the recipe I use:

kitchen witch

Gundella

SALSA RAPIDA (Quick Sauce)
2 tomatoes peeled and chopped
1 onion peeled and chopped
1 clove of garlic, crushed
3 sprigs of fresh parsley, finely chopped
1/2 teaspoon ground coriander
1 teaspoon salt
a pinch of marjoram
a pinch of ground cloves

Mix together and allow to sit at least 1 hour before serving.

TORTAS DE CAMARONES

Shrimp Fritters

1 1/2 cups flour
1/4 teaspoon ginger
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper (optional)
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
3/4 cups milk
1 egg, well beaten
1 1/2 cups cooked shrimp (shelled, deveined and chopped coarsely)

Sift together the dry ingredients. Blend together the milk and egg, slowly adding the dry ingredients, mixing well. Stir in the shrimp. Drop mixture from a tablespoon into deep hot fat (365-375 degrees) and fry 2-5 minutes or until golden brown. Drain on paper towel and serve hot.

BANANAS TABASCO

These make a delightful dessert or company treat and are really just crepes filled with fried bananas and flamed with rum.

CREPAS

Makes about 16 pancakes
4 eggs
1 1/2 cups milk
1 3/4 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 1/2 teaspoons melted butter

Beat eggs and add milk, flour, salt and butter and mix well (I use my blender), using a crepe pan or a small cast-iron frying pan (6-7 inches) which has been well buttered and heated. Add just enough batter to thinly coat the bottom of the pan (tip the pan to spread it evenly). When lightly brown on one side, turn and brown on the other. Repeat until all the batter is used.

Filling
6 bananas, peeled and sliced
1/4 pound butter
10 tablespoons brown sugar

Melt butter in a skillet. Add sliced bananas and cook for 1 minute, stirring carefully so as not to break the bananas, while sprinkling with the brown sugar.

Cook until butter and brown sugar make a syrup that coats the bananas well. Fill the crepes with the banana mixture and flame with rum. (Tip: Heat the rum to just warm before igniting it. If you have never flamed a dessert before, call me for more explicit directions.)

Garnish with whipped cream and chopped nuts if desired.

TURTLE SOUP

3 pounds turtle meat (you can substitute lean beef)
1 1/2 quarts of water
2 cups milk
1/4 pound butter
1 cup heavy cream
1 tablespoon flour
1/2 teaspoon may
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
Salt and pepper to taste

Boil meat in water until 1/2 of the liquid is gone. Add milk and butter. Remove the meat and allow it to cool. Grind it and return it to the stock. Let it cook down a little more and stir in the flour dissolved in the heavy cream. Add wine, mustard, salt and pepper. Mix well, simmer a few more minutes and serve hot. If you like, you may garnish with parsley, chopped chives and/or croûtons.

How to enjoy vegetables the Italian way

An appetite for the robust flavors of Italian cuisine led Viana La Place away from her first love of art and into the kitchens of Los Angeles' trend-setting restaurants, where she received high acclaim as a chef.

Now she continues her success in translating her culinary talent onto the printed page, this time exploring her personal passion for vegetable cooking in "Verdura: Vegetables Italian Style" (William Morrow & Co. Inc.; $22.95, hardcover; May 22, 1991).

"Verdura" awakens the senses with 250 recipes for salads, soups, bruschetta, fritters, risotto, tartis and pasta. The cream of the crop includes Broccoli and Tomato Salad; Fresh Pasta with Tomato, Eggplant, Ricotta and Walnuts; Baked Red Pepper Frittata; Gratin of Artichokes and Potatoes; and Radicchio with Cream and Parmesan.

The recipes in "Verdura" require minimal preparation time. For example, raw sauces for Spaghettini with Italian Parsley and Mozzarella or Tubetti with Diced Tomato and Avocado Sauce can be prepared while the pasta cooks.

NATURAL INGREDIENTS and simple presentations are the basis of "Verdura" cooking, totally keeping it in sync with the changing eating habits of Americans. Most of the savory dishes are either sauteed, roasted, grilled or steamed.

The author writes, "As we turn our focus away from meats and heavy meals and toward the fresh flavors and beauty of vegetables, we can learn from the Italian style of eating."

La Place provides menus for all occasions from Lunch in the Country to Sicilian Summer Dinner. To round out the vegetarian menu, fresh fruit and cheese dessert recipes such as Marinated Watermelon with Bittersweet Chocolate Shavings, and Coffee-Flavored Ricotta are included. A chapter on Pantry Recipes contains basics to have on hand, including Black Olive Pesto and Olive Oil from Hell.

"Verdura" also contains an in-depth guide to selecting and preparing vegetables and herbs and a glossary of ingredients.

La Place is co-author of "Cucina Rustica, Pasta Fresca and Cucina Fresca." She earned her experience as a great chef at such Los Angeles restaurants as Verdi and Mangia. She is a restaurant consultant and cooking teacher.

POTATO-TOMATO SOUP WITH ROSEMARY

A simple amalgam of potatoes and tomatoes, perfumed with rosemary, cooked until the potatoes break down to a coarse yet creamy puree. The tomatoes provide bright color and tart-sweet flavor. For a smoother texture, put the soup through a food mill. It is quite refreshing served at room temperature with a drizzle of fine olive oil over the top and a few grindings of coarse black pepper.

4 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil

1 small onion, finely diced
6 Roma tomatoes, peeled, seeded, and pureed not too fine
2 teaspoons finely chopped fresh rosemary leaves
Salt to taste
3 medium russet potatoes, peeled and cut into dice
Water
Freshly grated imported Parmesan cheese, optional

Place the olive oil and onion in a soup pot. Cook over low heat until the onion is tender and golden. Add the tomatoes, rosemary, and salt to taste, and cook at a gentle simmer for 5 minutes.

Add the potatoes and stir. Cook for 5 minutes. Add 2 cups of water. Bring to a boil and adjust to a simmer. As the potatoes become tender, break them up with the back of a wooden spoon until a coarse puree forms.

Cook the soup for about 45 minutes, or until it is thick and the flavor deepens. Ladle into soup bowls. If desired, sprinkle each serving with a little grated Parmesan cheese.

Henry returning to roots, Wayne

By Brad Emone
staff writer

The coaching merry-go-round continues to whirl for Chuck Henry.

After only one year and a 9-12 record at Walled Lake Western High, Henry will return to Wayne Memorial for his third stint as boys basketball coach.

Henry succeeds his brother Dan, who went 15-7 in his only season as coach. Dan kept the job in the family after his brother decided to take a "general purpose leave" last September from his physical education and coaching position in the Wayne-Westland Schools.

"He's definitely coming back," said Wayne High principal Ronald Stratton. "He's all set to take the job. We're obviously glad to have him back."

Because of repeated millage failures last year in Wayne-Westland, causing athletic budgets to be slashed, the district was forced to adopt a pay-to-play plan where students shelled out $210 per sport, per season.

Chuck Henry, one of the area's most successful coaches with an overall record of 216-94 (including a stint at Dearborn Divine Child), went to Walled Lake on the premise of exploring another teacher/coaching option in the advent of a final millage defeat.

Also unsettled by the fact that he would have to uproot his family, Henry was ultimately lured back to his old job when district voters in Wayne-Westland approved a 7.76-mill tax increase last month, adding a total of $23 million in revenues for the next two years, thus eliminating pay-to-play.

"BASICALLY IT was a lot easier for me to be a husband-father-teacher-coach in Wayne-Westland," Henry said. "I looked seriously at houses out there (Walled Lake), but with five children I didn't want to move right now. I'm living only a mile-and-a-half from where I work. It just made more sense to live in the community where I teach and coach."

"It just made more sense to live in the community where I teach and coach."

Henry's letter of resignation at Walled Lake Western was met by mixed reaction from Athletic Director Bob Atkins.

"I did not know he was on a sabbatical until I heard something in November (of 1990)," Atkins said. "But I understand why he went back. It was for security reasons. He also has five little children and 19 years invested in the Wayne-Westland system."

"I'm disappointed in the fact that we lost a real good man and a good person. He was also a very good basketball coach."

"I didn't know Chuck Henry when he went in for his interview, but he got some fine recommendations, and they were warranted. I wish he'd been able to stay. What I feel sorry for is the kids. He had some good things started."

Atkins said he'll seek a replacement for Henry "in the very near future."

"We want stability," the Walled Lake Schools AD said. "We want a good model for kids, which all high school coaches should be. It's the same thing we looked for the last time. We're looking for a commitment as a teacher (in PE) first, and a coach second."

AMONG THE CANDIDATES mentioned for Henry's job include John Verdura of Riverview Gabriel Richard, who was reportedly a close second last year, and Redford Bishop Borgess's Mike Fusco.

"It's a great situation for whoever gets it," Henry said. "They (the Western administration) were disappointed, but they understood my decision. I left two people of the highest quality in Dennis Champnella (Western's principal) and Bob (Atkins). They went above and beyond to make me feel comfortable."

Meanwhile, all coaching contracts in Wayne-Westland are reviewed and renewed on a one-year basis, leaving the door open for Chuck Henry to return home again.

His brother Dan, a Wayne-Westland teacher and currently the head varsity football coach at Romulus, reportedly was not interested in coming back for a second season.

He was out of town and could not be reached for comment.

"I think Dan did a great job with a team of underclassmen," Chuck said. "He had a competitive year with largely a sophomore and junior class. They played hard for him and that bodes well for an easy transition and makes for a strong team."

Stratton also echoed Chuck's sentiments.

"Dan did a very good job in a difficult situation," said the Wayne principal. "Without the millage we did not have anything."

Chuck Henry, meanwhile, has settled back into his old job. He is in the midst of running the school's summer basketball program.

Trooper killed

Livonia club mourns team member

By Brad Emone
staff writer

Members of the Livonia Boxing Club are mourning the death of Kermit Fitzpatrick, a Michigan State Trooper who was gunned down Sunday morning by an unknown assailant after making a routine traffic stop on the Jeffries Freeway in Detroit.

Paul Soucy, director of the Livonia Boxing Club (LBC) and Fitzpatrick's coach, was unavailable for comment. (He was stranded because of car trouble en route from Pennsylvania.)

"I talked to Paul (by phone late Sunday) and he is really crushed over the whole thing," said Soucy's wife Rita.

Roger Coon, Soucy's assistant at the LBC, called Fitzpatrick a "hard-working, dedicated person."

"He had a good sense of humor, but could get serious when he trained," Coon said. "He was always friendly and outgoing in the gym and very easy to get along with. Kermit was also a religious man."

"I'm really devastated initially, but now I'm angry about it because he was doing his job, serving the public. He took pride in himself and his work."

FITZPATRICK, 30, a four-year veteran of the state police, stopped the motorist, described by witnesses as a young male with reddish long hair, on westbound I-96 near Joy Road. According to accounts given to Michigan State Police and the Detroit Police Department, Fitzpatrick was shot in the face and neck with a 22-caliber firearm.

The assailant, still at large, was wearing a red-colored shirt and was driving a blue 1982 Mustang.

Several passing motorists came to Fitzpatrick's aid after the suspect fled, but attempts to revive him on the scene and at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit were unsuccessful.

Fitzpatrick, a native of Highland Park and resident of northwest Detroit, was survived by his wife Gertrude.

FITZPATRICK was also a captain in the Army Reserve.

The 6-foot-3, 220-pound boxer was a 1979 graduate of Highland Park High where he excelled in football. He went on to obtain a teaching degree from Western Michigan University.

Fitzpatrick began his boxing career late in life (six years ago) after competing in a local Toughman Contest. He won several Toughman bouts, only return his prize money to remain an amateur.

He was a member of the U.S. Amateur Boxing Team that toured Yugoslavia in 1986 and won the Ohio State Fair that year. He also finished second in the National Golden Gloves.

He began training at the LBC in 1987 and quickly earned a national ranking (as high as sixth), while accumulating a 20-4 record as a super-heavyweight.

Fitzpatrick won the 1987 Michigan Amateur Boxing Federation Tournament, and qualified for the U.S. Olympic Trials in 1988, losing in the first round.

"He was one of the best amateur heavyweights at that time," Coon said.

He remained an amateur until 1990 when he turned pro.

In six professional bouts, still under the direction of Soucy at the LBC, Fitzpatrick went 4-1-1.

In his most recent bout, held last month at the Laurel Manor Conference Center in Livonia, Fitzpatrick, despite being outweighed by nearly 90 pounds, fought to a draw against Robert Smith of Chicago.

FITZPATRICK WAS the 38th Michigan State trooper to die in the line of duty since the agency was created in 1917, and the first to die in the line of duty since troopers started patrolling Detroit freeways.

The boxer originally started working for the State Police out of the New Baltimore post before being transferred to the Detroit branch last year.

Fitzpatrick's neighbors on San Juan Street in northwest Detroit were also stunned by the news.

Residents of that area called him "warm-hearted and friendly, a man who jogged in the morning, and minded his own business."

WE'RE ON A BIG ROLL

To be part of the solution, not part of the problem.

Times change. There was once a time when we thought that providing the very best community news coverage was enough.

Today it's not. Today we have a responsibility not only to our readers and advertisers, but also to our environment.

That's why 30% of the newsprint we put on our press has been recycled. This will increase when our other suppliers bring recycled newsprint on line later this year.

Our communities and the entire State of Michigan face a solid waste crisis.

There used to be 624 Type II landfills in Michigan*. The trash from your home, your neighbor's homes and the businesses in your town goes into a Type-II landfill. As you read this, there are only 71 of them still open and licensed to do business. That's 71 in all of Michigan's 83 counties. Estimates say one-third of these will be out of business in less than five years.

So what can a business like ours do to be part of the solution and not part of the problem?

We're buying and printing your newspaper on recycled newsprint. We're looking for other recycled products to use in our business. We're recycling all of our newsprint and office paper. We're working to increase public awareness and participation. We're encouraging our readers to recycle.

How can you help? Why not begin with this newspaper; recycle it along with others you may have collected. Then start buying recycled products. Spread the word about those landfills and recycle this page by sharing it with a friend.

And if you are already recycling—thank you.

WE DON'T COVER WORLD NEWS,
BUT WE CARE ABOUT THE WORLD

Here's how to safely observe July 11 eclipse

On July 11, 1991, Skywatchers will have the opportunity to see a very rare event. There will be an eclipse of the sun and, depending on your location, you may see a total eclipse, a partial eclipse, or no eclipse at all.

An eclipse occurs when the moon passes between the earth and the sun, and blocks the sun.

Every month, at the time of the New Moon, the moon is located between the earth and the sun, so you might wonder why eclipses don't occur monthly.

It's because the moon's orbit around the earth is tilted by five degrees. The moon usually passes above or below the sun, not directly across its face.

There are at least two solar eclipses every year, but visibility is extremely limited. If the eclipse occurs after sunset, or before sunrise, it obviously won't be visible.

The last solar eclipse visible to a large portion of the United States was on March 7, 1989. The next total eclipse that touches the United States will be on Aug. 21, 2017, but totality will last only 2 1/2 minutes. The next total eclipse anywhere in the world is June 30, 1992. It touches land only near Montevideo, Uruguay. The rest of the eclipse is visible from the South Atlantic Ocean.

Raymond E. Bullock

IN METRO DETROIT the eclipse will begin at 2:42 p.m., Eastern Daylight Time, when the leading edge of the moon begins to cover the sun. Maximum eclipse occurs at 3:22 p.m., when only 7 percent of the sun will be covered. The eclipse ends at 3:59 p.m. when the trailing edge of the moon leaves the sun.

What is it about an eclipse that makes it dangerous to observe? Nothing. The eclipse will not blind you, but looking directly at the sun will cause permanent blindness. Unfortunately, you can't look at one without seeing the other. Never look directly at the sun.

What about using special filters or goggles? Sun glasses are not safe. Solar filters that screw onto the eyepiece of some telescopes are not safe. (In fact they are dangerous and should be thrown away.) Exposed and developed black-and-white film, smoked glass, X-ray film, black plastic garbage bags, and crossed polarizing filters are not safe. Some welder's goggles are not safe; light colors, such as No. 12 goggles, are definitely not safe.

THERE IS A dark green, No. 14 glass, welder's goggle that filters out all ultraviolet and infrared radiation and reduces the amount of visible light by a factor of 370,000 that is safe, but if you use that be sure to cover both of your eyes.

There are two ways you can safely use a telescope to view the eclipse. Use a low power eyepiece and make a mask to reduce the size of the front aperture of the telescope to one or two inches. (Do not attempt this with a Schmidt-Cassegrain or Maksutov-type telescope; the heat build up inside the tube could damage the secondary mirror.) Be sure to cover over the front of the finder scope. Do not look through the telescope to aim it.

Instead, aim the telescope at the sun by adjusting the tube until it makes the smallest possible shadow on the ground. The image of the sun will be projected through the eyepiece and can be focused on a piece of cardboard. Caution; the eyepiece could become very warm. If the aperture is not stopped down, enough heat could be generated to cause the eyepiece to shatter.

Another way to observe the sun with a telescope is by using a Mylar solar filter. Aluminumized Mylar filters come in different sizes and are designed to fit over the front of most telescopes. Care should be taken to examine these filters for scratches and small holes. If there is any doubt, don't use it.

THE SAFEST way to observe the eclipse is with "pinhole projection." Get a box that you can put over your head. Cut a hole an inch across in one end, tape a piece of aluminum foil over it and punch a pinhole through the foil. On the opposite end, inside the box, tape a piece of white paper. During the eclipse, stand with your back to the sun and put the box over your head. The sun will enter the pinhole and form an image on the piece of white paper, provided your head isn't blocking the path.

Do not look directly at the sun through the pinhole. At 3:22 p.m. you will see a 7 percent "bite" missing from the projected image. (Pinhole projection can also be accomplished with two pieces of cardboard, the one with the hole held in front of the other, but the box method blocks all ambient sunlight and gives better results.)

IRIS SANDERSON JONES

Take a friend to the art fair

By Iris Sanderson Jones
special writer

The trouble with art fairs is that there is too much art in one place. I love the Ann Arbor Art Fair, July 24-27 this year, but I lose my oomph after I have walked through the first mile of booths.

My Ann Arbor friends don't have this problem, because they know where to take those refreshing breaks that make a day at the fair survivable. If you have Ann Arbor friends, let them take you to the fair. If you don't, plan a day with lots of breaks in it.

Don't drive into that midtown madhouse. Park your car free and take the shuttle ($1 each way) from the southeast side of Briarwood Mall, off I-94 on State Street near Sears, or from the Pioneer High School on the corner of Main and Stadium.

The shuttle circles all day, and stops at a number of places, so you can always get back to your car. Shuttle riders also ride free on the trolley that runs between the three fairs; others pay 50 cents for the trolley.

START AT the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, the original juried fair on South University.

You will find Pat Dunn Bremner of Birmingham doing mixed media on paper in one of the booths. You'll find Linda Rizza of Troy creating a pen-and-ink still life at 11 a.m. and 4 p.m., part of the artist demonstrations that take place morning, afternoon and evening during the fair.

All the stores in town have sidewalk sales, so you can always duck into Middle Earth for an unusual gift or go to the Bagel Factory for breakfast.

AS YOU continue down South University you will pass the President's House, home of the University of Michigan president.

Walk into the courtyard of the Cook Law Quadrangle across the street, patterned after old English university quads. Go to the original law library and then underground to the spectacular addition with its skylight.

A diversion like that makes the fair more fun. You'll find another diversion at the U of M Art Museum, at the corner of South University and State.

IF YOU walk north on State Street from there, you will be in one of two parts of the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans Summer Art Fair. Members sell from a gold mine of hand crafts, jewelry and paintings; entertainment includes music, demonstrations and children's programs.

Keep going and you will be in the State Street Art Fair; the artists are on Thompson, Maynard, North University and Liberty streets — only the merchants are on State Street. This fair is similar to the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair; artists apply for one or the other.

Ready for another break? Duck into Nickel's Arcade, built in 1917. It was patterned after European arcades: two stories, glass ceilings. You will find one of the largest collections of antique jewelry you have ever seen in a shop called The Arcadian. Book lovers know that the original Borders Book Store is also in this area.

WHEN IT'S time for lunch, get away from the street hubbub. Go two blocks east to the Michigan League, a beautiful old 1920s building with cool marble floors and a nice relaxing cafeteria. Or go two blocks north to the Campus Inn, where the restaurant is run by the Macchus restaurant people.

Tennessee has an 'island' treasure

By Micky Jones
special writer

"Welcome to the Cumberland Plateau," said the Park Ranger, "I like to refer to it as 'An Island in the Mainstream of America.' We were in the nature center of Fall Creek Falls State Park near Pikeville, on the Cumberland Plateau, an elevated region that cuts a swath 50 miles wide through Tennessee, about 50 miles west of Interstate-75.

Outdoor activities and attractions make this a great place for a laid-back, non-city vacation. There's plenty to see and do or you can relax and do nothing.

I picked up a bike at the modern 72-room Fall Creek Lodge and pedaled along the shore of Fall Creek Lake, past fishermen bait-casting from flat-bottomed boats, until I reached an unusual row of modern "fisherman" cabins. Guests fish from private porches that hang over the lake.

I rode past the golf course, tennis courts, two camping areas and a swimming pool before reaching spectacular Fall Creek Falls. At 256 feet, it is the highest waterfall east of the Rocky Mountains.

The Cumberland Plateau drops 1000 feet to the Tennessee River Valley on the east and tapers to the Cumberland River, and several large TVA lakes, on the west. There are no cities on the plateau, just friendly villages and small towns such as McMinnville and its nearby Cumberland Caverns, second in size only to Kentucky's Mammoth Cave.

The Cavern has a one-ton crystal chandelier in the first of several large caves, including one called "the 10-acre room". Saltpeter, used in gunpowder, was mined in these caves during the war of 1812 and during the Civil War.

CROSSVILLE AREA

About 30 miles north of Fall Creek, near Crossville, is a smaller State Park called Cumberland Mountain. It has modern cottages, a lake, campground and restaurant but no lodge. A nearby alternative is Thunder Hollow, a time-share resort that offers motel-like rooms by the day or week, plus recreation facilities and golf course.

Four miles south of Crossville, at the junction of highways 68 and 127, is the wonderful Cumberland General Store "with goods in endless variety for man and beast"

Luxembourg: Small with a nice difference

By Dawne Fitzgerald
special writer

It was late September 1989 when we first learned of my husband's three-year job assignment in Luxembourg. I remember my first thought: "where exactly is this little European country?" A bit frustrated by my rusty elementary geography, I pulled out an old history book.

It all started coming back to me... World War Two, Battle of the Bulge, General Patton and the American liberation. Now, a resident of one and a half year, I can't imagine never knowing this charming international place and its fascinating history.

Luxembourg is the fifth smallest country in Europe close to the size of Long Island with a population of nearly 370,000. Its people and culture are unique in that it has maintained its identity apart from its neighbors: Germany, France and Belgium.

The principal spoken language is Luxembourgish; however, French and German are more commonly used in the business sector.

The capital and our home, Luxembourg City, offer an international setting for business and pleasure alike. Surprisingly, in close proximity, one can see modern architecture at its finest, as well as castles and ruins of centuries past. Scattered traces of medieval times titillate the tourist with thoughts of fortresses, dungeons and messengers to the king.

FROM A tourist's viewpoint, the place is enchanting. But I remember questioning what it would be like to live here without the daily comforts and conveniences of home. I soon found out that living abroad, exciting as it was, involved a slow process of learning to fit in.

We arrived in Luxembourg on New Year's Eve with only a few suitcases to tide us over until our boat shipment arrived six weeks later. I was seven months pregnant with no doctor and no idea of where to begin what.

I was so busy dealing with culture shock that I had no time or energy to address the fears of giving birth in a foreign country. There were other more pressing matters to be concerned about such as the location of our new bank, post office and pharmacy. Thinking back now, I believe it was pure optimism, although somewhat naive, that brought about our smooth assimilation.

My first impressions of the surroundings were definitely misleading. In the beginning, simple tasks like grocery shopping and making phone calls were difficult and often took double the time to complete. Even driving was a chore.

The road signs were confusing — yellow diamonds and red divided circles. My philosophy was do-first learn-later. It wasn't until I had my first confrontation with the gendarme (local police), a minor fender-bender, that I realized this was more than a three-year vacation.

MOVING PICTURES

Arnold makes good

By John Monaghan
special writer

Director James Cameron was the first to recognize that Arnold Schwarzenegger is best seen and not heard. Let others explain the intricacies of the plot, he seemed to say in 1984's "The Terminator," while the big guy blows away everything in sight.

In Cameron's much-anticipated sequel, "Terminator 2: Judgement Day," Arnold chats a bit more (perhaps too much), but the film makes good on his promise of "I'll be back" with the best arsenal of special effects and pyrotechnics that $100 million can buy.

"I need your clothes, your boots, and your bike," announces a buck-naked Arnold, fresh from the future, to an especially sleazy denizen of a biker bar. After taking a few bullets and tearing up the place, Arnold roars off on a Harley Davidson sporting black leather and dark sunglasses.

In the original "Terminator," which opened with a similar scene, Arnold was a killing machine sent from the future to destroy Sarah Connor before she could give birth to a son. Following nuclear holocaust, John Connor would grow up to lead resistance forces against robots who control the planet.

Here, 10 years after the first Terminator battle, Arnold plays a reprogrammed version of that same cyborg, sent by the future's freedom fighters to protect John from another assassination attempt.

A NEW villain, T-1000 (Robert Patrick), is made of a shiny silver alloy which can get literally split in two, then meld back together good as new. Bullets pump into him like pebbles in still water, with regenerative metal sinking back into the wound. T-1000 has the power to take the appearance of anything it comes in contact with, from a checkered floor to your best friend.

To set up this mother of all robot battles, "Termina-

Schwarzenegger keeps his promise of 'I'll be back' with the best arsenal of special effects and pyrotechnics that $100 million can buy.

tor 2" goes all out with special effects, using computer animation to create images until now found only in comic books. In one of the countless innovative action scenes, T-1000 is thrown face-first into a wall, but then transforms in a split second front-to-back and charges again.

Linda Hamilton returns as Sarah Connor, who has spent the last six months in a mental institution for using violence to get her message across to a world she knows will be obliterated in 1997. Pumped up to solid muscle and bone from exercising in her cell, Hamilton's Sarah comes as close as it gets to a female Arnold Schwarzenegger.

Son John, played by Edward Furlong, grows pretty irritating after while, though you get brief glimpses of the leader he will later become. Mostly, he's here for laughs, teaching his cyborg buddy a new vocabulary including "asta-la-vista, baby" and assorted profanities.

"Terminator 2" stays light on time travel plot twists, but weaves in a message about changing the future of the planet. Sarah is plagued by vivid dreams of nuclear holocaust, with children on swing sets bursting into flames. Her conclusion that the good robot is the only man suitable for raising her son is pretty wild stuff.

'Brilliant Career' remains a delight

By LeAnne Rogera
staff writer

By way of a disclaimer, I probably should say up front that "My Brilliant Career" has been one of my favorite films. Since I first saw this charming 1979 Australian film years ago, I've regularly revisited the tale of teenager Sybylla Melvyn and her journey to have a brilliant career.

Living with her large poor farming family in the Australian outback during the last years of the 19th century, Sybylla wants a career in the arts, opera, literature or as a concert pianist, something other than farming. Since Sybylla has no training or apparent skills, her exasperated mother, worn and prematurely aged, has a more practical solution — placing Sybylla to work as a servant.

Instead, Sybylla is sent to live with her wealthy grandmother, an proper Victorian woman who is confounded by her granddaughter's high spirits and plans for a career instead of marriage.

Judy Davis is wonderful as Sybylla, starting as a gangly adolescent with that sullenness parents of teenagers will immediately recognize. Her early comments about wanting an artistic career seem like so much unfocused youthful pretension. She is insecure about her appearance, awkward in the fine surroundings she had for which she had been longing. Through the ministrations of her grandmother and genteel aunt, Davis slowly loses the rough farm edges without losing her spirit, sense of humor and commitment to discovering her own potential. Davis shows Sybylla's transformation from a prickly youngster to a confident woman. She eventually realizes her goals but not perhaps in the way she first had anticipated.

ONE OF the nice things about this film is that when Sybylla is faced with a suitor, it's really a struggle. Too often the choice is easy for the woman because the men are presented as boors or cretins: She doesn't take seriously a proposal from a greenhorn Englishman, who condescendingly urges her to marry him since she couldn't possibly expect a better offer. Things are a bit stickier with the handsome landowner, played by Sam Neill, who falls in love with Sybylla. He's rich, he's charming, he's a fun guy and he's crazy about her. A very tough decision.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

Michael On Fire, formerly Michael Colone of Livonia, is drawing raves with his live performances and his latest release "Commanche Moon."

Michael blazes new trail

By Larry O'Connor, staff writer.

Though based in Southern California, Michael On Fire's musical wick was lit in his native Detroit. The 1988 graduate of Livonia Stevenson mentions names from his playing days here, people like jazz master Lyman Woodward and political activist John Sinclair, as sources of inspiration.

"They brought the music to the people from the street," said Michael On Fire, formerly known as Michael Colone. "They didn't care about things like fame and fortune. They were playing because they had to play. I took that with me."

This Wednesday, Michael On Fire will bring that passion and immediacy back with him as returns to this area for a show at Alvin's. Terry Farmer, another Livonian transplanted in Southern California, and his Beat Band will open. The gig will mark Michael On Fire's first show in the Motor City since leaving for California in 1980.

NO DOUBT, things have been refined since those days when Michael On Fire played with a jazz fusion outfit, Prismatic, in the 1970s at such clubs as Cobb's Corner on Cass Avenue.

Today, Michael On Fire plays a gruelling schedule of 360 shows a year and continually embarks on cross-country tours. He likens himself to a "local band performing all over the country," meaning he has no major label support.

His latest release on the independent label M.C.R. Music, "Commanche Moon," features a stirring blend of folk, blues and rock'n'roll ushered home with Michael On Fire's commanding vocals and simmering musicianship. The LP is boundless in musical scope, refraining from the standard radio ready pop fare.

Crenshaw back to old self with new LP

By Steve O'Leary, special writer

Singer/songwriter Marshall Crenshaw has come a long way since he played in a variety of high school and oldies bar bands. A graduate of Berkley High School, he says he'd just as soon forget those days.

"Let's just say the names of those bands are best left obscure," Crenshaw said from his Los Angeles hotel room where he's doing publicity in preparation for his latest tour, which will promote his sixth and latest album, "Life's Too Short."

Crenshaw left the Detroit area in 1976 to join a friend's band in Alaska, of all places. "But the band leader and I didn't hit it off good at all, so I split. I was working in some small bar bands out west when I decided to screw it, I've had enough of playing second fiddle in second-rate bands. I decided to come back to Detroit and marry my girlfriend, Tone (he won't disclose her last name but says they're still happily married)."

Along the way, he answered an ad for "Beatlemania." They called me in Detroit, I auditioned and got the part. After nearly two years, I quit to spend more time with my family."

It was then that a 12-inch version of "Someday, Someway" was recorded and he was offered a record contract with Warner Brothers, a relationship which finally soured in 1989. He was wooed — and won — by MCA, who released "Life's Too Short."

"LIFE'S TOO SHORT" delivers what we've come to expect from Crenshaw: short, snappy power pop filled with enough hooks to get a toe-tapping response from even the most jaded rock fans. While Cronies like Nick Lowe and Elvis Costello fell off along the wayside, Crenshaw has maintained his pop sensibility, as evidenced in tunes like "Everything's the Truth" and "Walkin' Around." His tour, which will hit Saint Andrew's Hall on Thursday, July 11, will feature an all-new band for Crenshaw, including Mitch Easter, perhaps best known as a producer of bands such as the much lamented dB's and Chris Stills.

"I'm as excited about this tour as

WARM YOUR HEART — Aaron Neville

Most folks know Aaron Neville from his work with his sibling group, the Neville Brothers, or from his MTV balladeering on "Don't Know Much" with Linda Ronstadt. In the video, Neville's the one in the dangerous looking cut-off jeans jacket that gives him that surly "least likely to be a singing ballad" look.

But Neville's been around since the late 1960's when he hit it big with the classic "Tell It Like It Is." That song was given new life when it was included on the soundtrack to the movie "The Big Easy" — an excellent sampler of New Orleans sounds, by the way.

Surprisingly, "Warm Your Heart" is Neville's first solo offering in more than 20 years, and for an occasion as big as this, Neville brought out some big-gun collaborators.

For one, strangely enough, Linda Ronstadt is a coproducer on the album. She also sings a duet with Neville on the doo-wop Five Keys song "Close Your Eyes," sings back-up on a few songs and is even credited with whistling on "Everybody plays The Fool." Apparently Ronstadt is very, very grateful to Neville for revitalizing her previously sluggish career.

Neville was careful to pick tunes for "Warm Your Heart" that complement his soaring, clear voice. His roster of songwriters is impressive. The CD kicks off with Randy Newman's lovely "Louisiana 1927." A John Hiatt tune, "Feels Like Rain," features the great Ry Cooder on slide guitar.

If an artist is going to wait 20 years between albums, the final product better be pretty darn good. In the case of "Warm Your Heart," happily, the result was worth waiting for. The record is able to address subjects like faith and healing without being sappy — quite an accomplishment.

— Jill Hamilton

SLINKY — Milltown Brothers

"Slinky" is a hard record to get a handle on — it's difficult to say whether it's very enjoyable or not. It's certainly not offensive. But then, I don't think I'd pay money for it.

It's sort of what would happen if a Hollywood producer who knew nothing about music was making a then flick and needed an alternative-sounding band to play at the big dance scene at the end of the movie. Milltown Brothers would be that band. Their music is a kind of generic alternative music.

Their lyrics are more like sound bites than any attempt at communication. The song "Which Way Should I Jump?" for example, the lyrics pretty much are "Which way should I jump?" repeated at least 13 times. Sure there are other lyrics, but they seem to be there only so that the entire song isn't comprised of the words "Which Way Should I Jump?"

Speaking of "Which Way Should I Jump?," it's one of the many songs on "Slinky" that is more that a bit influenced by the Byrds. Unfortunately for the Milltown Brothers, the Byrds-esque soaring harmonies, guitar sounds and sound structures were done a lot better by the Byrds themselves. Anyway, if you're going to copy someone, you may as well be original in your selection. Everyone does the Byrds, it'd be nice to here a rising young band imitate someone different for a change like Donovan or the Village People or something.

The vocals are nothing to sing about either. I'm sure no vocal training was involved here. The guy sounds a bit like Mike Patton of Faith No More, but sounds infinitely more annoying. My friend said the lead singer sounds like a cartoon character. Good enough.

The main reason these guys probably got signed to a record label is that they are cute.

And, in the music business, unfortunately, that often counts for a lot.

Should cousins go beyond kissing?

Dear Barbara:
I have fallen in love with my first cousin. He is my father's sister's son. We have not told our family. We know they will be very angry and against this union. We are determined to get married. Are there laws against first cousins marrying?

Jean

then come back to Michigan, your marriage is recognized and thus the children are legitimate.

Your parents' anger is something that you and your spouse will have to tolerate. Many people have a strong emotional response to first cousins marrying because of fears of breaking incest taboos. Of course, marriage between first cousins is not incest.

Many also have fears of birth defects, but this is also unfounded. In a marriage between two genetic strangers, the chance for a birth defect is 1 to 2 percent. In a marriage between first cousins, the chance of a birth defect is 3 percent. The differences in these statistics is lower than most would expect. Good luck and congratulations to you and your fiance.

Barbara Schif
you and your fiance.

Dear Jean:
The bad news is yes. I asked Sue Ellen Eisenberg, a Birmingham attorney, and she says that in Michigan it is illegal for first cousins to marry. This being the case, if you marry in Michigan, your children will be illegitimate. The good news is that in many states, e.g. Kentucky, marriages between first cousins are legal. If you marry in such a state and

BUT PHILOSOPHY is only secondary and Cameron's contention that this is "a violent movie about peace" seems pretty naive. "Terminator 2" is an action picture and in this department, Cameron remains the best in the business. He knows the power of a black-clad Arnold on a Harley, cocking a sawed-off shotgun with one hand while riding at top speed, blowing a padlock away before crashing through a gate.

Two lingering questions keep popping up: "Is Terminator 2 worth its almost nine-figure price tag?" With the play money they use in Hollywood, who cares.
And will there be a "Terminator 3"? If it's as good as this, and with Cameron and Schwarzenegger at the helm, I'll follow the story in any direction they want to take.

FOR A FEW weeks there, Mally Rich almost became a household name. The Cinderella story of a 19-year-old black man who, against almost impossible odds, made a film about hard times in the Brooklyn projects kept imaginations flowing. Mally's story is the best thing about "Straight out of Brooklyn," a heartfelt attempt that lacks style, believable performances, or plausible plotting.

Some of the scenes almost work. In one, the father (George T. Odum) has a Tired of shuffling for 'the white man,' the father simply refuses to pump the gas.
The few 'real' moments are quickly overshadowed by the naivete of the main character Dennis (Lawrence Gilliard Jr.), who wants to make fast money by swiping a briefcase full of drug money. The idiotic way this supposedly intelligent teenager goes about the heist leaves the audience both guessing and irritated.
It's difficult to dislike a movie like "Straight out of Brooklyn" without seeming insensitive and racist. It simply boils down to this: "Straight out of Brooklyn" proves that it takes more than heart and hype to produce a compelling movie.

Some numbers on Michael On Fire's latest effort — a follow-up to the Stephen Stills-produced "Pre-Dawn Chronicles" in 1989 — range from exploratory to searing. Some songs are long, like the protracted acoustic blues scorcher "Be My Baby Tonight" (9:16) to lean folk musings of "Kiss My A—" (1:56).
"I do that as an artistic statement," said Michael On Fire, which is a legal name. "To write three minute pop songs is an art form in itself. Which is something I haven't been too interested in only because I've found the reality that has nothing to do with longevity or respect of the peers."

went out on M.C.R. "Pre-Dawn Chronicles" was still a relative success, selling out of all 25,000 copies.
If anything, the sale of the LP is a telling gauge of Michael On Fire's surging popularity. So, too, are the constant critical raves. "Commanche Moon" landed in several critic's Top-25 lists after its release last year.
Despite the zeal, Michael On Fire doesn't have a record deal. After 20 years of performing, he knows the score.
"If all of a sudden, say the head of Sony Records comes along and says, 'We want to sign you up but, you know, judging by your record you write nine-minute songs.' You have to realize the people in power are all marketing men. They have business degrees. They don't have music degrees."
Music has always been first and foremost for Michael On Fire. The crippling recession in 1980 dried up a good deal of the musical jobs in the area.

Michael On Fire didn't want to work a day job, figuring it would cut into his time making music. He went to Los Angeles instead.
EVENTUALLY, HE opened for the likes of Jimmy Cliff, Spyro Gyro, Bob Seger and Jean Luc Ponty. Stephen Stills took a particular interest in his career, producing some cuts on "Pre-Dawn Chronicles."
Along the way, Michael Colone picked up the name Michael On Fire from a Sioux Indian while playing at a New Age Festival.
"He felt the drive and what he called fire I have inside of me. He told me I should probably not be afraid to live up to the warrior in me, which is Michael On Fire. It's a pretty pretentious name. People probably say, 'What does he think he is a disco guy?' or 'What does he think he's hot or something?' That's what he (the Indian) meant by not being afraid of the name."

NOT THAT he didn't try, though. Michael On Fire said he attempted to work within those confines on his first LP "Pre-Dawn Chronicles." At the time, Stills had been trying to get Michael On Fire signed to Atlantic. Things fell through, so the release

Rickles: Beyond the barbs

By Doug Funko
Staff Writer

Don Rickles.
The name conjures up all kinds of images. The master of the insult. The man with the barbed tongue. Mr. Sensitively.

Rickles, 65, lives in Los Angeles. He performs several months a year, mainly in Las Vegas and Atlantic City. He's due to appear Tuesday at The New Pine Knob Music Theatre with singer Toni Tennille.

Younger fans of comedy may not know it, but Rickles is more than a comedian. He graduated from the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York and has played serious roles in the movies and on television.

Street Scene caught up with Rickles by telephone for a brief interview prior to his visit.

What kind of act would you do in Detroit compared to Vegas?

People are people. It doesn't change that much, although there might be an inside joke about Detroit. On the whole, people are pretty much the same. You just do what you do there, what you're best at, and that's what I continue to do.

What do you think draws people to you?

I think that being different in the sense that I am different and I think that ribbing people I don't bat a thousand. The whole world doesn't love Don Rickles, I know that, but what person does everybody love?

I think it's the attraction of being different and doing things that the average guy doesn't do. I always said even when I was a very young man starting out in this business, if you're different than the next guy, you have a chance.

The proof of it is if you sustain. If they last as I have 30 years or more hey, they're doing something right.

'The whole world doesn't love Don Rickles, I know that, but . . . what person does everybody love?'

— Don Rickles

To what do you attribute your appeal over time?

I've been very fortunate because my humor, as you know, is based on people. And people don't change.

By ribbing and talking about different peoples' background, it always stays fresh in the sense that, sure I have a beginning, middle and ending, but in between, things happen that always make it look different.

I think I have the upper hand on a fellow that comes out and does say a joke because the jokes get tiring after a while. You hear the same jokes.

But I perform in a sense where I act out all these things about different people and what's in the audience and that always makes it look different.

Why keep at it after so many years?

First of all, it's still fun. And second of all, people still come to see me. And, why not? It's better than if I had to, you know, maybe go out and put tar on a highway.

So I figure as long as I still enjoy it and I still have my health and am in good shape and have response of an audience, I will continue.

Is there a serious side to Don Rickles?

Well, as you see, I'm talking to you now and not calling you a dummy. I live a pretty much the average kind of life like anybody else. When I'm with my friends, sure, I kid around if we have a party or something. But you know, you go about your business.

I play golf like a lot of other guys — badly, by the way. And I go to ball games and I watch television and I lay around a lot. And I go traveling with my wife around the world quite a bit. So I do things pretty much like the average guy.

Are there any topics that you don't like to joke about?

The only thing I can think of is somebody that's handicapped or mentally has a problem, naturally. I won't go after that. But I think pretty much compared to what's being said today, I'm a monk.

What's the hardest part about being funny?

It's not really hard. If you're funny, you're funny. You don't think about it.

It's like when you write a column, I don't think you find it hard. I think you find the subjects hard. To write isn't hard because that's what you studied, that's what you know. The same thing with comedy.

You get out there and you know, hey, what I've said, is proven, that people laugh at and it's funny. So I don't find it hard.

The difficult part is traveling. Once you're on stage, it's fun. It's the traveling and going to the hotels and being away from you family and getting on planes, trains and automobiles and that's the toughest part.

How much do you travel now?

Not as much as years ago. I would say it takes up my time between eight weeks in Las Vegas, and five or six weeks in Atlantic City, theaters such as Detroit and around the country. It winds up 18, 19 weeks a year, maybe 20.

Don Rickles will appear with special guest, Toni Tennille, on Tuesday, July 9, at The New Pine Knob in Clarkston. Tickets are $24.50 pavilion and $7 for lawn. For information, call 377-8200.

Don Rickles might be the master of insult, but he has a serious, humble side to him.

Sean Franke, 20, of Redford is right at home in the cockpit of his fiberglass sailplane, often competing against people twice his age in the sport of soaring.

High in the summer skies, this sailplane pilot goes for the big soar

By LARRY O'CONNOR
STAFF WRITER

AT 3,000 FEET IN THE AIR, a loud snap should elicit dire panic and a few prayers. The content look on pilot Sean Franke's face, though, reveals he's already in heaven.

The loud noise is the disconnection of the tow line from Franke's 600-pound fiberglass sailplane to an engine-driven aircraft, which serves as an umbilical cord of sorts as both climb into a vast blue sky.

Almost begrudgingly, the line exists. The rope symbolizes the contrast of an individual conquering the environment with the engine plane while the sailplane allows a person to be one with nature.

For once severed, the Redford resident will navigate his craft without the mechanical means of a propeller or fuel.

Franke's flight is a rendezvous with the atmosphere where rising heat from the ground, known as thermals, provide an spiral staircase of elevation. Some have soared as high as 47,000 feet using the earth's solar lifts.

"You know," says Franke, 20, preparing for another one of his more than 350 flights, "it still amazes me what you can do in a sail plane."

Franke's statement seems like a contradiction when compared to the business-as-usual way he goes about the sport.

He's a National Junior Champion in soaring circles and has already won four contests and holds three state records. Often, Franke finds himself competing against people

THE BLOND-HAIRED Michigan State University junior smiling behind the aviator sunglasses looks like he should be masterminding some fraternity prank, not navigating an engine-less craft across the horizon.

Sometimes, it takes convincing. Last year, Franke traveled 240 miles while reaching heights of 13,500 feet at the Sports Club Nationals in Texas.

"When I came in, they said 'You decided to quit and come back to the airport, huh?'" Franke recalls. "I said, 'No, I finished the course.' They all stopped talking."

Talk recently has centered on the Junior European Soaring Championships, June 24 in Sweden. Franke was one of two Americans to compete in the event, which is for people 25 years and younger.

This would serve as a mighty dose of ego for any 20-year-old. Franke rattles off his accomplishments as matter-of-factly as a librarian checking in books.

Part of the reason is Franke comes from a line of soaring competitors. His father, Manfred, is an avid participant in the sport as well as his grandfather, Herbert.

HIS WHITE SAILPLANE with a 15-meter wing span has been in the family for 12 years. Soaring is in his blood.

After World War II, the use of engine-powered aircraft was restricted in Germany. People like Franke's grandfather, Herbert, yearned for flight and turned to gliding instead.

After emigrating with his son, Manfred, to the United States in the late 1950s the tradition continued. Sean received his first sailplane ride when he was a year old; took his first flying lesson at 13 and soloed on his 14th birthday.

"In a way, it was kind of expected with grandfather and my dad both being pilots," Franke said. "Eventually I fell in love with the sport."

In one sense, it's an unrequited love. Soaring receives very little media coverage and few people are aware of the sport.

According to Mark Kennedy, editor of Soaring magazine, there are 24,000 soaring enthusiasts in the country. Sailplanes can run anywhere from $4,500 for ones designed for hobbyists to $75,000 for high performance ones engineered for competitions.

The sport is safe. In 1990, there were only four deaths resulting from soaring.

THE NUMBER of fatalities is relatively small, considering it's a sport that involves flying engine-less craft at high altitudes. Most pilots wear parachutes as a precaution.

Soaring can be very intense. The game doesn't pit pilot versus pilot as much as pilot against the elements. Split-second decisions can mean the difference between winning or losing.

Pilots compete on a course, sometimes stretched out over hundreds of miles. They must photograph certain points along the course to verify completing it.

Once airborne, the frustrating part can be finding the thermal. Hard terrain in soaring temperatures provide ideal conditions for rising air. In mountainous regions, wind deflecting off the side of the hill also provides an uplift of air.

In Michigan, finding either is like looking for quarters on Skid Row. Farm land and lakes can absorb the sun's heat instead of deflecting the air upward. As a result, heights of 5,000 feet in the state are considered a good day, although the drought in the summer of 1988 increased altitudes.

Follower of the fast wind

With the help of another pilot, Franke adjusts one of the wings on his sailplane that has been passed on through three generations of his family.

Another key figure in soaring is the lift-over-drag ratio of the plane. For example, a plane that is 1,000 feet in the air has 40,000 feet before it has to land.

A SAILPLANE with a 40-to-1 ratio is considered a high-performance craft. Most planes range between 28-to-1 and 35-to-1.

Then there are days when the only hot air around is the pilot's exasperated breath.

"One time I couldn't find a lift," said Franke, recalling one flight to the Thumb area. "Thirty-five miles later I landed in a farmer's field. It just so happened his daughter was having a graduation party, so they invited me in for some food."

When a sailplane pilot finds a thermal, he's in his element. Rising air can lift a plane 1,300 to 1,500 feet per minute in hot climates such as Texas. An engine plane averages 500 feet a minute.

Also, there's the sense of accomplishment. Once airborne, a sailplane pilot doesn't depend on mechanical means. His flight is his own.

Inside the glass bubble of the cockpit are a few gauges to measure altitude and rate of descent. A home gel cell battery powers both the radio and the instruments.

Hand operated controls operate wing and tail flaps. Franke examines everything before taking a visitor up for a ride.

IN THE SKIES over Ionia, the serenity of the moment is interrupted by the whir of the engine plane that tows the two-seater craft. Once reaching heights of 3,000 feet, Franke disconnects the line.

As if an act of defiance, the sailplane turns away from the power plane and cuts its own yet-to-be determined course.

Except for a few sudden dips, the ride is smooth. A whistle of wind against the Plexiglas bubble offers the only sound.

Franke remains quiet, focusing instead on finding the ever-elusive thermal. A clear blue sky offers no red carpet to the stairwell on this day.

Slowly, Franke maneuvers the craft closer to the ground. The plane lands smoothly, almost effortlessly on the grass.

"There are a considerable amount of engine pilots who, if their engine fails, they wouldn't be ready to handle it," said Franke, who is also a licensed engine pilot. "You always have to consider the possibility of landing off field in a sailplane."

In soaring, though, you learn to wing it.

Sean Franke (above) adjusts his parachute in preparation for a flight in his sailplane. The Franke plane (right) hovers 3,000 feet over Ionia as the pilot searches for the ever elusive thermal that will send his craft soaring into the blue skies.

Always curious and helpful, Franke tows another sailplane back after landing at Ionia Airport.

Franke's flight is a rendezvous with the atmosphere where rising heat from the ground, known as thermals, provide a spiral staircase of elevation.

Exhibit showcases works of paper art

By Linda Ann Chomin
special writer

"The Art of Paper Making," an exhibition featuring two- and three-dimensional wallhanging pieces, nonfunctional teapots and baskets of handmade paper by six Michigan artists, continues through July 21 at Route 10 Gallery in Farmington Hills.

Doree Schwartz of Farmington Hills, Cindy L. Fields of West Bloomfield, Michelle Kalt, formerly of West Bloomfield, Ande Roeser of Ada, Marsha Makowski of Dearborn and Pat Jakunas of Ann Arbor comprise the group showing a variety of works, built from handmade paper.

"The show has a real good mix because our styles are different," said Doree Schwartz, gallery co-owner.

The handmade paper exhibition consists of 35 wallhanging pieces and 20 nonfunctional teapots and baskets, as well as an assortment of lapel pins, some of them displaying cats. A majority of mixed media works in the exhibit incorporate beads, wire, plastic people and moose.

Before design or construction of a piece begins, the paper is crafted by the individual artist from 100-percent cotton rag, then either air or sun dried. Permanent pigments are used to color the handmade paper while wet and of pulp consistency.

"I start out by making paper, choosing the colors, I want to work with," Schwartz said.

SCHWARTZ HAS worked in handmade paper since 1984. "Making paper is physically difficult," Schwartz said, "because of the large amounts of water that are used."

Schwartz begins with large vats of water and pulp, which she colors with permanent pigments. Dipping a screen into the fluid pulp, she lifts it from the vats and turns it onto an old sheet, quilt or blanket, then leaves it to dry.

"The Japanese Fan" by Schwartz is a three-dimensional work encased in a deep lucite box. Yellow, mauve, deep violet and green pieces of ragged edge paper jut from a purple background. The wallhanging piece is priced at $500.

Fields has been making paper for four years. A full-time artist and business woman, she does 15 art fairs a year.

"I work very dimensional. All of my pieces have to be in these wide lucite boxes," Fields said in an interview at the gallery.

"Wild Thing" by Fields is Ande Roeser of Ada creates nonfunctional teapots and baskets from handmade paper. One of the whimsical works features moose parading on the teapot's handle.

framed and matted in black. A strip of white runs vertically through the work. Throughout the white grid pattern strip, Fields integrates strings, arrows and curls of diagonally positioned torn paper. The work is priced at $380.

Fields starts out with a concept for a piece then hopes she gets the color right the first time as the color lightens when dry.

"I do tons of commissions," Fields said. "Trying to get the color right, it's a different story."

TEXTURES PLAY an important part in many of the paper works, currently on exhibit. Forming the cotton pulp over corrugated cardboard, bubble wrap and grid imprints the dried paper with eye-catching design and texture.

Kalt integrates her textured paper pieces with dowels, embroidery thread and plastic dolls. She is now designing and selling textiles in New York City after earning a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree from the University of Michigan.

In 1987, after taking classes taught at Rhode Island School of Design, Kalt began to hand-make the paper with which she builds two- and three-dimensional wallhanging pieces.

"I like to get different textures. I use spray paint to give it a burnt edge look," Kalt said.

To create a sense of flow in an untitled piece, Kalt formed the pulp over a piece of corrugated cardboard while wet. Over a charcoal-colored background, she has positioned abstract shapes of mauve paper in different shades.

Makowski crafts her matted and framed, handmade paper work to look as if it is made of felt. Using flashy colors such as hot pink, she intersperses her collage with various materials and cast paper human images.

JAKUNAS WEAVES the majority of her baskets with handmade paper. A few of the rustic baskets in the show are dipped in paper pulp after she weaves a base from twigs.

Roeser creates whimsical paper teapots in violet, black and mauve, decorating some with sprinkles of glitter. Moose parade nonchalantly along the top of one of the teapot's handles.

Prices for the works in "The Art of Papermaking," range from $80

Doree Schwartz designed this untitled work—sional piece, encased in a deep lucite box, is of crumpled paper, using red, yellow, green, violet and shades of blue. The three-dimen- priced at $900.

to $900. Pins are $20. An opening reception with the artists is scheduled for 2-5 p.m. Saturday, July 13. A papermaking demonstration will give visitors to the reception an idea of the process involved in handmade paper. During July, Route 10 Gallery is holding workshops in papermaking. For information, call 932-4160.

Route 10 Gallery is at 32430 Northwestern Highway, Farmington Hills. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday, and till 9 p.m. on Thursday.

Ideas to combat cosmetic clutter

Why is it easier to keep the makeup on your face in better order than to organize the cosmetics in your drawer?

For years, I've fought cosmetic clutter, using first one organizer and then another. I've finally found what works best for me. It's not fancy but maybe you'll like it, too.

First, I've settled on wearing exactly the same makeup 95 percent of the time, with very few variations: I use darker foundation in the summer and lighter in the winter, two lipsticks (red and pink) and two eye shadows.

The "Big Secret" to organizing cosmetics is a simple tray, about 7-by-11 inches with sides, about one inch high. Mine is the smallest of a set of three serving trays. Clear plastic trays that resemble cut glass can be bought in houseware departments of drugstores, hardware stores, etc.

The makeup I use regularly is laid out in the tray from left to right, according to use. (The moisturizer container and powder are too large to fit, so they are placed immediately beside the tray.)

On the left is a bottle of foundation. Next are the two "patties" of blush, one behind the other, followed by the two brushes to apply them.

organizing

Dorothy Lehmkuhl

Then come the three flat eye shadow containers, one behind the other, with the brushes beside them. Next is my eye liner pencil, a Q-tip for blending, and then mascara. Finally, my lipstick liner is placed by the two lipsticks, one behind the other. Across the back is a tweezers and nail file.

Frankly, this tray sits out on my counter most of the time, but when I want to clean up, it's easily stowed away in a drawer with off-season and other special-occasion items.

Besides saving time by having things at a finger's touch, it also avoids the occasional frustration of forgetting an obvious step while I was talking or not yet fully awake.

Cosmetic clutter, both at home and abroad, can now be a thing of the past.
