School decision is 'nobody's business'

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Wayne-Westland school board member Kathleen Chorbagian, saying "it's nobody's damn business," refused Tuesday to say where her 14-year-old daughter, Kelly, will attend high school.

Chorbagian drew criticism at a board meeting last month for enrolling her daughter at Ladywood, a Catholic girls high school in Livonia. Chorbagian also said she enrolled the girl in Wayne Memorial High School.

Westland resident Betty Talmadge lashed out at Chorbagian during the meeting and told her, "You really don't think the Wayne-Westland school system is as great as you say . it is."

Chorbagian countered that she and her husband, Mark, enrolled Kelly at Ladywood before they knew that . Wayne-Westland voters would approve a 7.75-mill tax increase on June 10. Chorbagian, fearing a tax defeat and massive program cuts, had grown concerned that her daughter would not receive a good education at Wayne Memorial.

Chorbagian confirmed Tuesday that her family has reached a decision on which school her daughter will attend, though she refused to elaborate.

"The family has made a decision, but it's nobody else's decision," she said. "My husband has said it's nobody's damn business."

In response to Talmadge's inquiry, Chorbagian said, "If she's that inquisitive, then she had better post herself outside both of those schools on opening day."

Chorbagian said her advice also applies to anyone else who wants to know which school will be attended by her daughter, who recently completed ninth grade at Adams Junior High in the Wayne-Westland district.

CHORBAGIAN ADMITTED that last month she made a downpayment on tuition at Ladywood, which costs $2,500 a year to attend.

Program cuts at Wayne Memorial could have caused the high school to lose its accreditation, school officlais have said.

On Tuesday, Chorbagian said that

'Talmadge wouldn't have raised the issue "if she really cared about kids!" Chorbagian said her daughter has nothing to do with the Wayne-Westland school district's political turmoil, which caused three tax defeats before the June 10 passage of the 7.75-mill plan.

"It's unfair for a 14-year-old girl to be brought into a political situa-tion," Chorbagian said. "I believe the Betty Talmadges of the world don't care who they hurt."

Chorbagian noted that, regardless of which school her daughter attends, the Chorbagian family of Wayne will continue to pay its share of Wayne-Westland school taxes. But, she added, "What we do with our daughter is our business."

'The family has made a decision, but it's nobody else's decision. My husband has said it's nobody's damn business. If she's that inquisitive, then she had better post herself outside both of those schools on opening

Federal authorities have dismissed a criminal complaint of bank fraud against newspaper executive David Willett, but the U.S. Attorney's Office plans to review the matter for possible indictment by a federal grand jury.

As expected, federal officials Tuesday filed documents in federal court seeking to have the bank fraud complaint dismissed. The motion was approved late last week in Detroit federal court, FBI spokesman John Anthony said.

Federal authorities earlier had indicated that the complaint would be disfilissed against Willett, president of a company that publishes the Westland Eagle and the Canton Eagle, However, authoritles described the move as standard procedure, and Anthony said a grand jury indictment may be sought after the U.S. Attorney's Office completes its review.

'Anthony said he could not speculate on when an indictment might be ly, said he plans to meet with federal prosecutors "to enlighten them" about what he described as Willett's innocence. Early hopes the effort will convince federal officials that a grand jury indictment should not be sought against Willett.

WILLETT HAS denied the bank fraud charge in which federal authorities accused him of shifting milllons of dollars among checking accounts in attempts to cover bad checks.

Authorities charged Willett with a check-kilting scheme in which they said he schemed to defraud the Wayne-Westland Federal Credit Union and First of America in Wayne during a three-month period last year, from Jan. 1 to March 31.

FBI officials said Willett shifted $5.8 million of the more than $6.3 million that he deposited to his accounts, in a scheme that authorities said resulted in First of America losing $30,000.

Leaking transformers on a county-owned Westland site are a health concern, officials said, but apparently not as great a concern as initially feared.

Nearby residents called Observer offices early this week, saying they feared toxic PCBs were leaking from three unused transformers near the county-owned Eloise site, south of Michigan Avenue, near Henry Ruff Road.

But county health officials said that wasn't the case.

"There are some types of transformers that contain PCBs but, thankfully, these aren't among them," said Glenn Brown, county director of environmental health.

The fluid being leaked was standard transformer fluid, Brown added.

"Essentially, it's mineral oil, but that doesn't mean it isn't a concern," he said.

Brown visited the site Monday evening. He said his preliminary look indicated transformer fluid had leaked onto the ground and, possibly, into a nearby pond.....

"WE'RE GOING to clean it up," he said. It is believed the transformers were vandalized.

"They were locked up behind a fence, and the lock was missing," Brown said. "That leads us to believe it was vandalism."

County officials have since secured the site. The transformers were used to provide power to a section of the sprawling Eloise complex.

The pond had apparently been used as a backup water source for fire fighters in the region.

Elosie, which held Wayne County General Hospital and many other county offices in its heyday, is now mostly vacant.

It was the second time in roughly 18 months unused county transformers were apparently vandallzed.

An earlier incident, on county owned property in Northville, posed a greater environmental hazard.

Restrictions apply to the hours of 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. During those hours, residents with evennumbered addresses may use lawn sprinklers only on evennumbered dates, such as July 12. Residents with odd-numbered addresses may use lawn sprinklers only on odd-numbered dates, such as July 11.

The restrictions are not in ef-tal director Dr. Norma Josef said Tuesday. However, Josef said she plans to pay close attention to state budget problems, which she fears could yet threaten the project as state lawmakers grapple with spending cuts.

JOSEF LAST month said the hospital, near Palmer and Merriman, would be forced to shut down and. displace nearly 300 patients if money for the power plant did not come through. The hospital, described as serves patients primarily 60 years or older. The move to restore funding is expected to result in a groundbreaking for the power plant in January or February, Josef said. The project should be completed within 10 months. The plant will be built on hospital grounds.

Josef attributed the joint committee's decision to restore funding to lobbying efforts by such Wayne-Westland area advocacy groups as. Senior Alliance and the Alliance for the Mentally III.

"We certainly express our appreciation to the advocacy groups," she said.

Firefighter appeals suspension, demotion

By Darrell Clem staff writer

2A(W)

Westland firefighter Paul Bush has an pealed à six-month unpaid suspension he received from the civil service commission: stemming from an accusation that he took personal property from an apartment tenant he helped evict.

Bush has filed the appeal in Wayne County Circuit Court, city attorney Charles Bokos said Monday. A hearing has not been set, Bush, who returned to work April 26, hopes to recoup the pay he lost as a result of the suspension He also has appealed the civil service commission's decision to demote him from his former rank of battalion chief to driver engineer - a two-rank drop that marked a 12-percent pay cut.

Neither Bush nor his attorney, James Fowler, could be reached for comment Tuesday.

But Bokos, commenting on the appeal, said Bush claims the city had no evidence to prove that he took personal property belonging to Elaine Botz during a June 1990 eviction at Hawthorne Club Apartments on Merriman, between Ann Arbor Trail and Warren Road.

BOTZ CLAIMED that Bush and fire. fighter Mark Wilhide took such items as a microwave oven, two footlockers, a television, a lawn chair and other of her belongings. The two men were fired last Oct. 3.

Bush was acting as a baillff for Westland's 18th District Court during the eviction, and Wilhide was working as his assistant.

Both men were cleared of charges in circult court --- an action that their attorneys said should have prompted the city to drop its civil service charges.

Though the civil service panel did not uphold Bush's firing, it accused him of unethical behavior in announcing its decision in April to'suspend him for six months and demote him.

Kevin Riley, the Westland firefighters' union president, has called the decision "unfair" and said he believes Bush and Wilhide were not guilty.

Wilhide's case has not been decided. Unlike Bush, he chose not to appear before the civil service commission and has instead sought arbitration. A hearing is expected to be held in August, Bokos said.

Wilhlde's altorney, Anthony Guerriero, had questioned whether Wilhide would receive a fair hearing before the civil service panel, Guerriero said the Bush ruling had no impact on Wilhide's decision to seek arbitration.

As the controversy unfolded following the eviction, Wilhide turned over to Westland police such items as two footlockers and a lawn chair. Wilhide had been under the impression that Botz's property was considered abandoned once it was removed from the apartment, Guerriero has said.

Wilhide's move to return the property ' showed that he had not intended to break any rules. Guerriero said

Though both firefighters had sought back pay, the civil service panel ruled that Bush should not receive it,

Once the arbitration proceedings have been completed in Wilhide's case, Guerriero has predicted that Wilhide will be reinstated at the fire department with back bay.

'Rob the rich' Robin Hood bill worries school officials

By Mary Rodrigue staff writer.

A Robin Hood style piece of legislation that would take money from richer school districts for redistribution to poorer districts has local school officials wary.

The controversial bill that takes some money generated from business growth in the state's richest districts and gives it to their poorer neighbors was approved by the state House, with final Senate approval expected this week.

TAX RICH Livonia Schools Superintendent Joe Marinelli has a list of concerns he has been sharing with legislators.

The taxbase proposal is still a _ bandaid approach. It doesn't address the adequacy and equity between ans will operate Saturday and Sun-.day, July 13-14. The non-profit Bluewater Michlgan chapter of the National Railway

"The first year, it would provide $30 per pupil to in-formula districts. In 10 years, it would increase to $250 districts," said Marinelli.

per pupil. Those numbers do little to solve the equity problem when you're looking at $3,000 to $8,000 per. pupil spending across the state."

While the additional funds wouldn't amount to much for recipients, out of formula districts would be dramatically affected, according to Marinelli.

"The first year alone, Livonia would lose $1.4 million."

Even though that may look like a drop in Livonia's $100 million school budget, compounded by other legislation, such as recapture (state withholding reimbursement for state mandated programs) which sucked $4.6 million from Livonia this year, combined with next year's proposed tax assessment freeze (a projected $4.1 million dollar loss), it "amounts to a huge chunk of change," said Marinelli.

SUPPORTERS OF the legislation argue it's fair to share commercial and industrial growth - from a utllity, for example - because it serves more than one community yet hikes the taxbase only in one district.

Their goal is to narrow the per pupil spending gap in Michigan schools, which ranges from $2,200 to $9,000 per student in districts across the state.

Under the plan, districts would have to share half of the valuation growth of commercial and industrial property with other districts.

One provision is intended to make it less likely the plan would hurt a district that generates too much-money per student locally to get state aid - out of formula - but isn't really rich.

Any district with an adjusted gross income per student less than 75 percent of the state average won't have to share its money. If they have an average that's 125 percent of the state average, they have to share the full 50 percent.

Between 75 percent and 125 percent, the percentage of growth they would have to share goes up 1 percent for each percent.

income per student is 102 percent of the state's average will have to give up 27 percent of its growth, while a. district with income per student that is 78 percent of the state's average will share just 3 percent.

A 70-year-old Westland woman whose car was smashed by a semitrailer as she ran a red light at Newburgh and Ford remained in the University of Michigan Hospital on Tuesday - 18 days after she received multiple injuries in the crash that police said she was lucky to survive.

"It appears she's going to make it," Westland police officer Thomas Hissong sald.

The woman, Dorothy Dell, has received three operations since the 2:06 p.m. June 20 crash that broke both of her legs, both of her arms and her pelvis. She also suffered a collapsed lung and other internal injurles.

Pending an investigation, police had initially declined to identify the woman. Hissong revealed her identity on Monday and said she will face a charge of driving without due care and caution, punishable by a fine of up to $100.

Witnesses told police that Dell had been driving on the wrong side of the road when she ran a red light Michigan Hospital.

Dell had been driving south on Newburgh; the semi-trailer had been heading west on Ford.

ON MONDAY, Hissong said police have ruled out alcohol as a contributing factor in the accident. Hissong indicated that Dell's diabetic condition could have caused her to drive erratically, causing the crash.

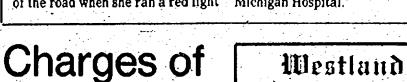

"She's an insulin-dependent diabetic," he said. "It appears she may have had a reaction to the diabetes."

Police said they were certain Dell would have been killed had she not been wearing her seatbelt. After the accident, she remained trapped --- semi-conscious and bleeding -- in her 1988 Ford Tempo as rescue workers used the "jaws-of-life" equipment to pry her out

The FBI accused Willett of shifting the money among his accounts "at such intervals that it would appear to the victim banks that there were sufficient funds on deposit to honor (the) checks." In fact, FBI officials said, Willett did not have sufflcient funds:

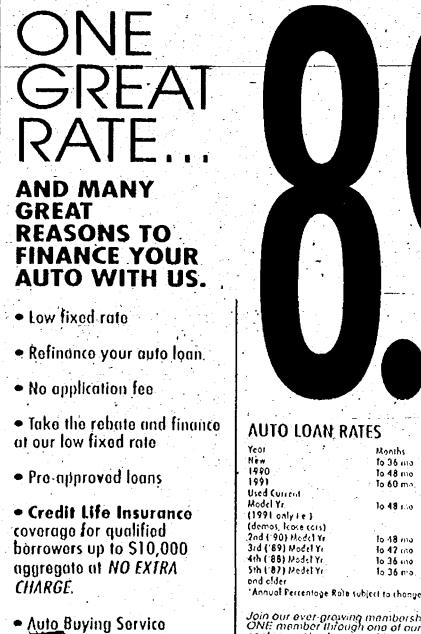

Willett appeared in federal court June 13, after he surrendered to authorities on the criminal complaint. Federal officials also searched the offices of Associated Newspapers Inc., which publishes six suburban newspapers, and selzed documents that they said implicated Willett in the check-kiting scheme.

Summer camp is under way at the Wayne-Westland YMCA, much to the delight of youngsters who are spending part of their summer swimming, singing, playing games and learning about such subjects as dinosaurs, '50s culture and Hawalian holidays.

The 10-week camp began June 17 and runs through Aug. 23 at the YMCA on Wayne Road, between Cherry Hill and Palmer. Admission ranges from $12 a day to $70 a week.

As a bonus for working parents, a "sitter service" has been provided that allows parents to drop off their. children between the hours of 6:30 a.m: and 6:30 p.m.

The camp itself starts at 9 a.m. and ends at 4 p.m. Children ages 6 to 12 are headquartered in the YMCA. barn, and each age group participates in separate activities.

The day camp also has a stated goal: "It is a program designed to give children a new experience, develop new skills, make new friends and to make them more aware of the wonders of nature."

WEEKLY THEMES are being addressed at the camp. During this week's theme, "Time of the Dinosaurs," children learned about the ancient animals, drew pictures of them and colored them with crayons.

Other themes include "Sports Week," "Mysterious Doings," "Hawalian Holiday" and "Gags and Games," among others.

All day camp fees must be paid a week in advance. Weekly fees are $60 for YMCA full members and $70 for others. Daily fees are $12 a fee for full members and $14 a day for others.

Safety is the driving force for book on traffic habits

By Helen Niemlec staff writer .

Men are not better drivers. That statement is derived from tons of automobile data assimilated into a single book by a Bloomfield Hills scientist.

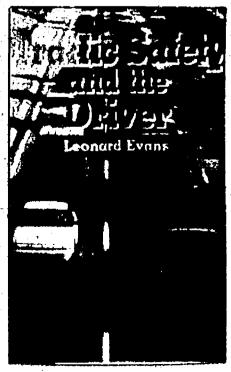

Leonard Evans is a principal research scientist for General Motors Research Lab who often refers to scores of authoritative studies for his job. To make his life easler - as well as life for other traffic engineers, police officers and drivers interested in the topic - he put everything together in one handy, dandy book.

The result is "Traffic Safety and the Driver," published by Van Nostrand Reinhold of New York. Evans will be making a presentation at Barnes and Noble bookstore in Rochester at 8 p.m. on July 13.

LOCAL TALKS ARE a rarity. Eyans already has spoken about his findings in New Delhi, India, and will be the keynote speaker at the Australia Statistical Association. A trip to Sweden also is in the works.

"It should be a best seller," Evans said. "It's filled with sex and violence.'

Actually the sex is separation of a

When it comes to safety, statistics on drunken driving and fatal crashes show men are worse drivers than women, writes Leonard Evans of Bloomfield Hills in his book.

statistics based on gender and age, while the violence is traffic fatality rates. With enough graphs and statistical formulas to satisfy the person well-versed in mathematics and probability, the substance of the book - descriptions and analyses will not intimidate the nonexpert.

Chapters cover everything from an overview of American driving habits to the influence of alcohol in accidents to effectiveness of safety belts, airbags and motorcycle helmets.

Evans also devotes a chapter to how drivers can reduce their risks.

The Bloomfield Hills man has never been involved in an accident, so he speaks with authority about how good driving record.

SHARING EQUALLY fine driving records and assisting him in completing his book were his wife, Wendy, daughter Anita and sons, David and Edwin. Most of the family can be seen on the cover of the book, driving cars that appear in a photograph taken by Evans.

"After I wrote that in the book. I was afraid that it might finx me but instead it has motivated me to keeping that record," Evans said.

Attitude plays a key role in driver 'safety. People who tend 'to take more risks, get in more accidents. Young men who see a vehicle to display their machismo often drive at a fashion that makes it difficult to avoid accidents. Men between 18 and 25 also are more apt to mix alcohol with driving.

Male fatality driving statistics are higher than female statistics, no. matter what age range is looked at, Evans said. Accident rates taper off as drivers get older, and they see a car as a utilitarian vehicle to take them where they want to go.

TRAFFIC FATALITY rates there were 46,900 auto deaths reported in the U.S. in 1989 - have been falling by approximately 3 percent annually since 1921. Some of that is due to improved driving skills and the rest can be attributed to cars and roads that are designed with safety in mind, Evans said.

Driving is more complex than just a law enforcement issue, Evans points out in his book. Improving driving requires not only help from engineers but also social pathologists because much of driving is behavioral, Evans said.

"The driver's behavior and performances are not sufficiently stressed. It's at the core of what's going on. A person doesn't drive fast because they lack the knowledge of driving slower," Evans said.

But behavior can change, witness how smoking has moved from socially acceptable to unacceptable in 25 years. Driving after drinking is making a similar change. "We're looking at evolving social norms. And there are many factors involved," Evans said.

Drivers who want to be safe should not mutter about congested roads, since the slower speeds contribute to fewer injuries if an accident occurs, Evans' research showed.

"There's more of a risk of a fenderbender at that time. But there is motivation is a key component to a more risk of a fatality at other times of the day," Evans said.

Bad places to be are rural roads on early Sunday mornings, hours between midnight, and 2 a.m. White most accidents occur in urban settings, Evans said that two-thirds of all traffic fatalities are recorded on rural roads.

People may change behavior to lessen their chances of being involved in an accident. But the Bloomfield Hills man who holds a doctorate in physics from Oxford University in England doesn't overlook that one unpredictable variable - luck.

"If you drive over a bridge and it collapses, well, it happens. It has nothing to do with the driver's re-

City 'fortunate' in severe storm

By Darrell Clem staff writer

A severe thunderstorm that ravaged the metropolitan Detroit area Sanday night downed power lines, toppled trees, sparked fires and caused the cancellation of a fireworks show in Westland, but authorities said the city wasn't hit nearly as hard as many other communities. "I think we were fortunate compared to a lot of other cities," Westland police Inspector Emery Price said Tuesday. "We had some minor damage, but it was nothing like Oakland County had."

Portions of Westland, mostly in the north end, remained without power Tuesday as Detroit Edison workers scrambled to restore service knocked out by the storm.

Westland police received scores of storm-related calls Sunday and Monday - most of them stemming from downed power lines.

Firefighters also received numerous calls, including a north-end garage fire, but no major fires or inju-ries were reported, said Westland fire Chief Larry Lane.

The fireworks display was held Monday night instead.

A traffic light at Newburgh and Palmer remained knocked out Tuesday, though several other traffic signals had been repaired. According to police reports, power was knocked out on portions of Hannan, Donna, Grace, Canyon, Hunter and Henry Ruff, among numerous other streets.

The Westland Post Office, on Wayne Road north of Ford, remained without power until shortly before 11 a.m. Tuesday. Postal workers brought in emergency generators to keep the doors open until power could be restored.

Madonna to host Taiwanese students

Twenty-five Taiwanese students will be touring area schools this. month as part of their master program studies at Madonna University. Livonla.

Students will begin a three-week U.S. program July 14. They will tour area public schools, as well as vocational and trade schools.

Many of the students are teachers or school administrators in their native land.

During their U.S. tour, students will participate in panel discussions, drawing comparisons between education in both nations.

Dutside of the Madonna program, master's studies generally are not available for working Talwanese adults. Programs are usually limited to those who plan to teach college.

Before entering high school, Talwanese youngsters must take a national test to determine their future education. Based upon the test, students either attend college preparatory or vocational high schools. Madonna began its Taiwanese program in March 1989 when university President Sister Francilene and academic vice president Sister Rose Marle fraveled to Taipel to meet with Taiwanese officials.

Joint programs for business and education professionals were subsequently been developed. Courses were developed in conjunction with the New Schoolmates Foundation for Culture and Education and Chen. L: Chang, principal of Pankow Vocational-Technical School, Mount Clemens. Chang is a New Schoolmates representative.

Coruses are taught by Madonna faculty members stationed in Taiwan, although students must complete their studies on the university's main Livonia campus.

The Madonna program includes such topics as computer information systems, management theory and organizational behavior.

Stempien tapped to lead SC board

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Jeanne Stemplen, a Schoolcraft College trustee since 1986, has been named chairwoman of the seven-member board, Stempien, a Northville Township resident, was appointed during the annual board organizational meeting July 1.

As chairwoman, Stemplen will direct and help, shape the agenda at board meetings.

Stempien said she'd like to see the board developing a new satellite campus, among other long. term goals.

"I think there's a strong feeling on the board that we should be looking for something to the south and west," she said. "(Schoolcraft-College-Radcliff) Garden City has been such a success that there's a feeling we should now be looking to do something for these other students, too."

Schoolcraft currently operates classes out of Plymouth-Canton school buildings, as well as on the Livonia and Garden City cam-sources is also a key priority,

Stempien said, especially as state money becomes less certain:

"We already know not to expect one of our quarterly payments (from the state) on time," she said.

The move forces the college to tap into its reserves.

FORMERLY BOARD vice chairwoman, Stempien swapped jobs with ex-chairwoman Mary Breen of Plymouth Township. Breen, chairwoman since 1987, is

She and her husband are partners in Stempien & Stemplen, a Livonia-based law firm. The has two children.

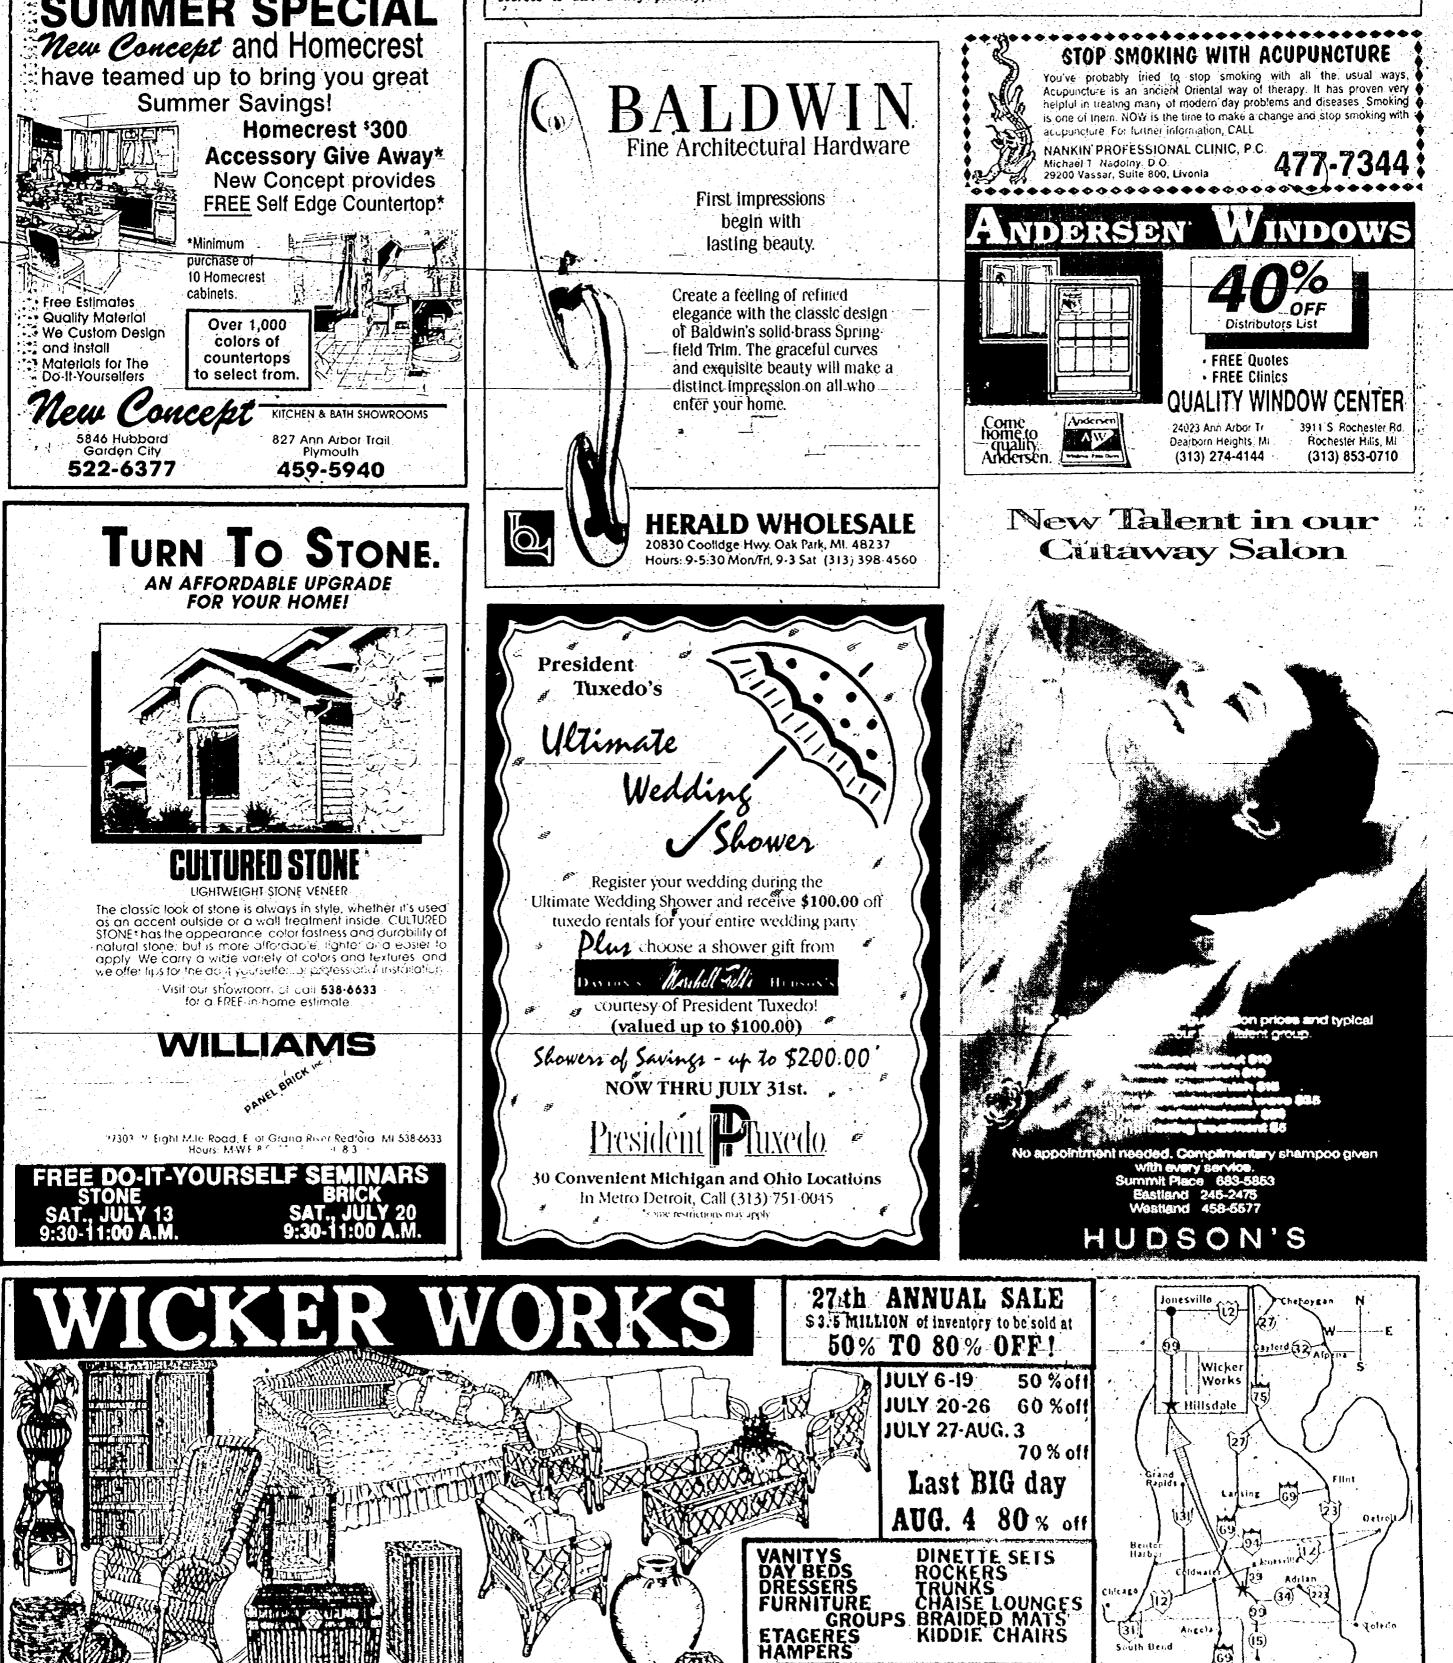

Stempien is a magna cum laude graduate of the Detroit College of Law and also holds a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Michigan. She taught for two years in the Taylor Public Schools before becoming an attorney.

In other board appointments, Stephen Ragan of Plymouth was appointed board secretary and Michael Burley of Canton was appointed treasurer.

In other appointments, Harry Greenleaf was named trustee director for the Michigan Community College Association. Thaddeus McCotter was named board parliamentarian. Both are Livonia residents:

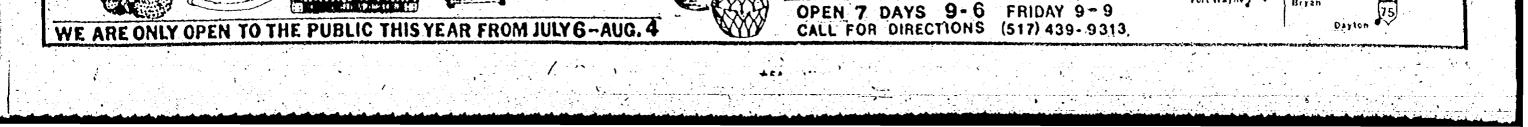

Stempien, Burley and Ragan were all winners in the June board election.

Stempien was the leading votegetter, and Burley the runner up, in a three-candidate race for two six-year board seats. Burley has been a trustee since 1979.

Ford tops state delegation in mailings to constituents

U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor, was once chairman of the House committee on Post Office and Civil Service so it might not be a surprise he's among Michigan's leaders in sending mailings to his constituents.

Ford spent $27,294 on mailings in the first quarter of this year, more than any other Michigan Congressman except Bob Traxler. Traxler, a Bay City Democrat, spent more than $45,000 in mailings. Ford's district Includes southern Livonia, Westland, Garden City and Canton.

All but about $3,000 of Ford's spending went for a questionnaire that solicited constituents' views on issues such as free trade with Mexico and taxing Medicare benefits for the wealthy, spokesman Mike Russell said.

Ford has sent out questionnaires in each of his 27 years in Congress. "He honestly believes that the survey results give him a true indication of the mainstream public thought in the 15th District," Russell said. "We generally get 10,000 to much of Oakland County, spent $2,653. Pursell, who represents northern Livonia, Plymouth and Plymouth Township, speat $1,705, less than any Congressman other than Detroit Democrat John Convers. Convers only spent $472.

Critics of government spending accuse lawmakers of abusing the socalled "franking privilege," which enables them to send mass mailings to their districts at taxpayer expense. Such communications, say the critics, are political propaganda that gives incumbents an unfair advantage over challengers.

"Even some in Congress agree. "A public relations menu for some members of the House," Rep. Jerry. Lewis, R-Calif., said last year.

The complaints grew so loud that the House, aware of polls showing its popularity dropping out of sight, approved reforms shortly before the. 1990 election.

Now, members get an allowance sufficient to send three first-class mailings a year to each residential address in their districts. The average allowance: $178,000.

Broomfield's allowance is $215,660, most of any Michigan Congressman. Allowances for other area representatives are: Pursell, $182,945; Levin, $172,761 and Ford, $170,057.

Previously, some members were spending more than of $400,000 a year on mass postage.

The reforms appear to be paying off, said the National Taxpayers Union, a watchdog group that Howled over the old system.

The House spent about $7 million on franked mail in the first three months of this year, down from $12.5 million during the same period in 1989, the previous non-election year.

But "even with reforms, the ayer-; age incumbent still spends far more on the frank than the average challenger spends on his entire election campaign," said James Davidson, the group's chairman. Between Jan, 1 and March 31,

Rep. Bob Traxler, D-Bay City, was the Michigan delegation's biggest mass mailer, according to the House. clerk's quarterly report. He spent $45,297.65, or 27.3 percent of his allowance for the year.

The Associated Press contributed to this article.

Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor, whose district includes Garden City, Westland, Canton and part of Livonia, spent $27,294 on mailings in the first quarter of this year, more than any other Michigan Congressman except Bob Traxler.

Teaming up Group responds when hazards arise

By Joanno Maliszewski staff writer

They've responded to leaking chlorine in Novi and a fire in a laboratory in Ypsllanti Township. During Memorial Day weekend, out they went to Dearborn, where a railroad car was leaking.

When' someone calls for help from the Western Wayne County Hazardous Incident Response Team, 40 members from 23 communities covering 450 square miles show up.

HIRT is a part of the Western Wayne County Fire Mutual Aid Association, of which communities such as Redford, Livonia, Canton, Westland, Garden City, Plymouth and Farmington Hills, to name a few, are members.

"I think people are more aware when something spills. Sometimes. it's à matter of not doing anything. Maybe It's just putting a bucket un-der a drip or it could be an extensive operation," said Wally Kurzeja, an inspector with the Farmington Hills Fire Department.

Firefighters from these communities are the ones who show up when there's any kind of an emergency with hazardous materials. They do mote than just show spe-There's research study learning and of course; training, for the type of situations they will encounter.

"We have full response responsibilities. We have the ability to mitigate and investigate a wide variety of situations," said Kurzeja, HIRT's training coordinator.

IN 1990 ALONE, HIRT responded to five incidents.

In August, for example, the team went to Canton Township, where hazardous materials were disposed of in a stream.

Two days later they went to Northville Township, where a toxic and corrosive material was found in an abandoned building.

In December, the team responded to the runway crash of two passenger jets at Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

But these firefighters aren't walking blindly and uninformed into a situation. There's plenty of training and studying behind them. By December, the whole team is expected to be trained at the technician level, which is the minimum level of training the state now requires for those who respond to hazardous materials emergencies.

The state is considering combining the technician level with the next step, which is specialist.

The topics covered in the team's training includes decontamination and proper use of equipment. The team in 1990 also had the opportunity to practice on simulated hazardous spills.

"It's hard to keep up," said Kurzeja, who in fire department circles is considered knowledgeable about hazardous materials.

Even since HIRT formed in 1988-89, laws have changed. TrainBrandemill of Livonia and Mike Frost of Garden City repair pressurized tanks during a training ing is a constant, as is studying and keeping abreast of the laws and regulations governing hazardous and toxic materials.

In June, Farmington Hills hosted the monthly training. Beginning this month, the group will train twice a month through December, Kurzeja sald.

AT THE LATEST training session, HIRT members practiced the use of chloring kits.

Chlorine, Kurzeja said, comes in a variety of containers, from cylinders to tank trucks. The kits contain the tools necessary to stop a chlorine leak.

"We need to do this on a frequent basis," Kurzeja said. ---Training is absolutely necessary. Consider that for at least an hour before the HIRT team enters a facility with a spill, for example, there's research to be done, special suits and clothing to be set up and plans for contamination to be made.

"You can't find an encapsulated suit that's good for all materials you encounter. There are specific suits for specific things. It has to be compatible with that class of chemical."

Before HIRT members enter a facility or situation involving hazardous or toxic materials, they are given the rundown on the Immediate signs of exposure to the material, as well as the signs of late exposure.

> "If we can't have a positive impact, sometimes the best thing to do is to do nothing," Kurzeja said. He does, however, want the public to know that these-hazardous and toxic problems are not going unnoticed or unaddressed.

> "We want to make citizens aware that this is one of the things their city has the capability of this. team. There are people who are taking care of their concerns, their lives and their property," Kurzeja added.

Office helps crime victims without fanfare

By Wayne Peal staff writer

She's often the first person crime victims see - after the police but, until they become victims, few people even know her office exists. "Unfortunately people usually find out about us only after they've been victimized,", said Charlene Batchelor, out-county victims rights advocate for the Wayne County Prosecutors office. 'Based in Westland, Batchelor assists crime victims in that, city,' as well as Livonia, Garden City, Redford, Plymouth, Canton and a host of other suburban communities.

The Westland office, opened less than one year ago, provides emotional support to crime victims and directs them toward other social service agencies.

"Often, after a crime people font know where to go," Batchelor said. Batchelor's duties have ranged from sitting alongside crime victims in court to finding housing for battered spouses.

Domestic violence accounts for a large portion of Batchelor's case load, though she also assists victims/ of child abuse and rape, as well as senior citizen crime victims. Her case load includes victims as young as 13.

"IT'S OUR job to assist society's most vulnerable members," she said. By her own estimation, Batchelor meets with about 10 people a week. Frequently on the road, Batchelor attends hearings at 27 district courts from the Grosse Pointes to downriver.

- Roughly 25 members of the county prosecutor's staff are involved with ting right and many handle suburban cases, though Batchelor is the only victim rights advocate assigned to a suburban office.

Cases are referred from local police departments. "Every police re-port has to come here," Batchelor sald.

Among those impressed with the process is Judge Gail McKnight of the 18th District Court, Westland.

Victim of a breaking and entry, McKnight said she was impressed by how quickly the victim advocate office contacted her. "They really do their job," McKnight said. "Plus, the booklet they give crime victims is full of good information."

Victim advocates also provide a form for victims who wish to add their comments to the court record.

"Court can be a very stressful. place," McKnight said. "I know people might not always be comfortable about standing up in coult and speaking."

The Westland office is at 3000 Henry Ruff, off Michigan Avenue, in the former Eloise complex. The county's new homeless shelter is less than one block to the west.

A trained social worker with a degree from University of Detroit-Mercy, Batchelor makes it a point to educate her, contacts - not only about the legal process but about the" 'Unfortunately, people usually find out about us only after they've been victimized.' - Charlene Batchelor. out-county victims rights advocate > ing the accused, gives victims permission to confer with prosecutors and allows victims to make a statement during sentencing.

But Batchelor said the concept of victims rights is also designed to -prevent crimes. It's a way to show victims how the system works, she said, and prevent them from taking the law into their own hands.

"We don't want another 'Burning Bed' " she said.

Livonia pair offers trips in a high-flying biplane

By Janice Brunson staff writer

Ride into yesteryear aboard an antique, open-air biplane and enjoy a flight over one of Michigan's more quaint tourist attractions. the authentic Bavarian Germanvillage of Frankenmuth some 80 miles north of Wayne County.

Vintage Air Tours, owned and operated by Russ and Kathleen Newhouse of Livonia, offers 20minute flights each weekend in a genuine 1929 Travelair plane. The flights originate at the Frankenmuth Airport, located one mile east of town. Cost is $39.50 for adults and $27.50 for children.

Russ Newhouse, a Northwest pilot who hails from a family of pilots, maneuvers the plane. Kathleen, who married Russ a year ago, attends to all arrangements.

Indeed, customers don helmets and goggles, climb into the forward cockpit and, with Russ at controls in the rear cockpit, ascend a thousand feet for an aerial. view of the Cass River, historic structures like the Lutheran Church in Frankenmuth and a sea of fields rich with soy beans and wheat.

THE FORWARD OR passenger cockpit is outfitted with bench seating accomodating up to two passengers. The plane, which has a 220 Continental engine, travels at speeds of 100 knots.

Russ arranges flight schedules with Northwest to free up weekends for Vintage Tours. He has been flying biplanes, aircraft outfitted with two wings, for 30 years, according to Kathleen.

the site of the new business both because it is a popular tourist area and because of its German heritage. Early aviators were of primarily German descent, including Clyde Cessna, Lloyd Stearman and Walter Beech who designed and manufactured the Travelair. The plane is very similar in design to the Fokker, a World War I fighter.

Russ's grandfather started Princeton Airport in New Jersey and his father is a retired commercial pilot for American Airlizes. Three uncles also were commercial pilots.

Kathleen, mother of sons Joseph, 7, and Joshua, 5, is retired as a supervisor from Northwest Airlines.

Discovering nature is life-long challenge

An interest in nature and its vari ous aspects can be a life long pursuit. No single person can know everything there is to know about the natural world, and thus it provides a challenge to expand on one's present Knowledge, or expand into new areas of interest.

While in the field pursuing an interest in birds, for instance, it is hard not to notice the flowers, trees, and insects that are found in the area. Though an interest in birds may be the initial reason for getting into the. field, to fully understand birds it is necessary to become familiar with many aspects of nature.

If you find a bird nest it is interesting to note what kind of a tree it. is in, or what the nest material consists of. Walching bluebirds bringing food to their young may stimulate you to try and identify what kind of insects the adults are finding.

these side interests, it may result in a life long interest too. Then investigating the new subject provides all the excitement of discovery that the initial subject provided.

PURSUING an interest in nature can start at any age and continue until death. Be careful with reverse mortgages

Q. My husband and I own our own home. I have heard about a new way. to get cash from our home with some type of special mortgage. Can you tell us if this is true and how it is

A. Up until now, the only way you could get any cash from your house was to either borrow against it, which means you would have to move. There is a new way to realize 'cash from your house known as "reverse mortgages" or "home equity. ·conversion." These programs allow you to take the value of your house without monthly loan repayments or without having to move out of your house.

The American Association of Retired Persons recommends investigating several aspects of the plans before you decide to use them. You should determine what your monthly payment or line of credit will be and weigh that against your needs today and in the future.

YOUR ATTORNEY or financial planner should be consulted as to whether the receipt of the cash will affect your eligibility for benefits such as Medicaid and pharmaceutical or energy assistance.

S

Cash from a reverse mortgage, however, does not affect your eligibility for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) if the money is spent within the month it is received.

You should decide if you want to retain some equity, should you prepay the reverse mortgage, for yourself or your estate. As with any legal document, you should review the papers, prior to signing, with your attorney, accountant and your family.

ADDITIONAL USEFUL information is that reverse mortgages are considered a loan and therefore not calculated as income for tax purposes. It is also possible that you will be required to share, with the lender, a percentage of your house's appreciation in value during the term of : the loan. Homeowners should also be aware that the monthly payments of reverse mortgades or home equity conversions are figured, in part, on the basis of age. The younger the applicant the less is received.

Depending on your age and the amount of equity you have in the house, these programs may not be worth having. Home equity conversion plans are relatively new. They are not available, as yet, in Michigan and seem to function where houses have appreciated the most, which is in states such as California.

The transaction cost of obtaining a reverse mortgage is high.

If you want more information, you can write for a copy of "Home-Made Money A Consumer's Guide to Home Equity Conversion." The pamphlet is available from AARP Home Equity Information Center, Box A, 1909 K Street NW, Washington, D.C. 20049.

Nankin Transit

Local service is needed

HE EXISTENCE of the Nankin Transit Commission is being threatened and ac-tion to save the transportation service is being called for by various elected officials. Unfortunately this is a situation Mankin Transit has found itself in regularly over the vears.

In the most recent salvo, the Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation, SMART; has announced plans to halt funding to Nankin Transit Sept. 2. SMART, formerly the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority, allocates state money to Nankin Transit.

County Commissioner Kay Beard and officials from Garden City, Westland, Canton Township, Wayne and Inkster are mounting an effort to keep funds flowing to the transit authority and separate itself from SMART.

A SEPARATION FROM SMART would be wise SMART notified Nankin Transit only last month that funding will end. That isn't much time to find alternatives since most municipalities have fiscal years beginning July 1.

"We're locked in," said Garden City Mayor James Plakas. "We can't go back and reopen the budget."

They (SMART officials) have very effectively choked us out of the time we would need to go back'and do something," Plakas added.

Nankin Transit board members may be correct in thinking SMART would like the 17-yearold local system to go away. There also has been criticism of SMART's action expanding service · in areas such as Royal Oak while cutting funding to Nankin Transit.

Currently Nankin Transit operates 12 buses and provides 9,000 rides per month for about 1,000 elderly and handicapped residents in West-land, Garden City, Canton Township, Wayne and Inkster.

As a replacement, SMART will offer area curbside bus service rather than the door-todoor rides provided now to local residents under bers that the wisest course of action would be toseparate itself from SMART. For many communities, SMART simply hasn't provided the kind of service Nankin Transit or other local systems have been able to offer.

While making some plans to obtain funding on a short-term basis, Nankin Transit needs to take a careful look at ways to meet the needs of its customers.

Part of the problem is inherent in the automobile culture shared by most people in the metropolitan area. Most people don't want to use pub-lic transportation. Conversely, there are very few places in the United States where you find mass transportation or, if you do find it, where you would actually be able to get to work or other commitments without spending major portions of your life waiting for your connection.

There are arguments for mass transportation regarding the negative impact of vehicles on the environment, and there are economic issues, when the cost for owning and operating a vehicle rapidly outpaces one's income. Both are valid concerns but they haven't affected America's love for getting behind the wheel.

For many of Nankin Transit's customers, there is another issue. Elderly and handicapped residents often have no other option for getting to the grocery store, doctor visits or just getting out of the house for awhile. We fear curbside service might also negatively impact their use of the service.

While making some plans to obtain funding on a short-term basis, Nankin Transit needs to take a careful look at ways to meet the needs of its customers. Perhaps a subsidized taxi program or some alternative might be more efficient than

Batting Practice....Hardball Racist images require affirmative action step

IT'S WORRISOME TO think twice about going downtown - again.

Yes, again. When we moved back to metro Detroit from Houston 18 years ago, suburbanites rarely went downtown although it had been six years since the race rlots.

But in recent years, despite Mayor Coleman Young's offensive behavior toward whites and the suburbs, much of that fear has dissipated.

On a recent trip to Pewabic Pottery on Jefferson, I had to detour onto an unfamiliar expressway. Once I was able to get off the expressway, I stopped at a fast food restaurant and got out to ask for di-rections back to Jefferson. On the way to my car, a black man called tome, "Hey there, white girl."

Clearly I was in his territory, and I was being made to feel uncomfort-

They were in white territory, and not only were they made to feel uncomfortable, they were denied access to services only on the basis of color.

They were in white territory, and not only were they made to feel uncomfortable, they were denied access to services only on the basis of color.

These were two isolated scenarios - scenarios which, with minor variations, are probably repeated dozens of times each day all over Detroit and its suburbs. At a recent meeting with Birmingham representatives, following two well-publicized racial incidents in that city, the NAACP said they have had numerous complaints from blacks who said they were poorly treated in Birmingham shops and restaurants. That's when Birmingham city commissioner Rex Martin made the extraordinary statement about living all his life in Birmingham and never hearing of one problem related to blacks shopping in Birmingham.

was from someone involved in the Birmingham business community, who said he couldn't give his name for fear of losing his clientele. But he wanted to report that when some longtime members of the Birmingham business community meet for breakfast or lunch — as they do on a regular basis — racist remarks aren't the exception, but the rule. Birmingham is on the line here.

And with one of the smallest percentages of minority residents of any of the suburbs we cover, it is a handy target. But countering this group of bigoted businessmen, Birmingham also has a core of residents out to change its racist image to one of affirmative action.

Nankin Transit.

WE AGREE with Nankin Transit board mem-the current system. The people who depend on Nankin Transit deserve some long-term planning for transportation they can count on.

Interpreting those rights hasn't been easy. Sometimes portions of the same amendment conflict.

When a Livonia school principal says a second grader can't show a videotape to her classmates because it contains religious material, it raises the potential conflict between her right to free expression --- or everyone's right to freedom of religion. The First Amendment guarantees both.

It calls strongly for "free exercise of religion"

3. The governor makes minor changes and gan's education crisis have spent the submits his idea to the Senate, which passes it by a wide margin and sends it to the House.

This kind of partisan strategy has given us a property tax freeze instead_of the promised cut and, more importantly, a lukewarm tax-sharing plan to solve the education funding dilemma.

The tax-sharing plan under consideration would divide the state into three regions and pool the property tax revenues from districts in each segment. It is flawed both in concept and execution.

What is needed is a radical departure from the past practices of funding public education in Michigan.

That means ending reliance on property taxes for education.

Equality among Michigan's public school districts can never be attained in a system that uses -residential and commercial property values to apportion revenue.

DROP PROPERTY taxes from the equation and residents might be willing to take another look at a graduated income tax or increasing the state sales tax to pay for schools. Yes, these ideas have been rejected by voters in recent years. But offer them some true property tax relief and see what happens.

This kind of proposal demands that politicians be willing to put partisan pettiness aside and concentrate on larger solutions to serious problems.

From what we've seen and heard in budget deliberations, we're not sure the current crop of leaders can handle it.

To the editor:

Your (governor John Engler's) decision to reject the site selected by the Vietnam Memorial Committee to honor those that paid the supreme sacrifice is deplorable.

Being a Vietnam Veteran, having served in combat myself, I find your actions to be insensitive to the large number of Vietnam Veterans in Michlgan. It would appear with the high patriotic morale of the American public and we here in Michigan, mainly due to the strong showing in the Persian Gulf, you would have shown your support and approved this site.

On many occasions I have spoken publicly and have said that the true minority in this country is the Vietnam veteran and your actions further confirm those feelings. It is unfortunate that people like yourself along with many others after all these years continue to disregard all the effort that was given by the men and women who served in Vietnam. I am personally proud to have served our country and will continue to do so with or without your support.

In closing, I would hope you reconslder your decision. The men and women who served and those who will never return, along with their families deserve the small recognition this memorial would provide.

and report important facts such as: 1. Congress enacted the second largest tax increase in history;

2. Congress increased spending by $111 billion:

3. Congress enlarged the deficit by $100 billion to an all-time record of $320 billion for FY 1991 alone;

4. Congress pushed the national debt to a new record and increased the annual interest payment on the debt to a staggering $254 BILLION; and,

5. Congress destroyed the Gramm-Rudman Deficit Reduction Act and all other effective controls on future congressional wasteful spending,

As Citizens Against Government Waste has pointed out repeatedly, we have this skyrocketing deficit today not because of the recession but because Congress refuses to stop its reckless spending. Unless we get Congress' runaway taxes and wasteful deficit spending under control, we will all be in very, very serious trouble very soon. I urge you to give more coverage to this all-important story. Thank you.

Recent Supreme Court rulings have furthered Thomas Jefferson's view that the clause's intention was to build "a wall of separation between church and state." The court has set guidelines for display of a creche or menorah on public property.

This is another in a continuing series of articles marking the anniversary of the Bill of Rights.

5 court rulings endanger spirit

WE'RE AN ENDANGERED specles. Unfortunately, it's by choice,

Environmentalists see one part of the self-destruct sequence --- shrinking water supplies, toxic chemicals sceping into the ground water and acid rain. All very physical and all very measurable.

There has been vocal opposition raised against, those contaminants. that are killing our physical bodies. Sad is the sllent acceptance of things that are killing our spirit. The American spirit was not made of yellow ribbons and blind patriotism but rather the notion that the individual must be protected.

THE BASIC liberties are ones that have been with us since childhood the freedom to speak, to protest and to come and go as we please without government treading on these rights.

It is an American tradition to pack the family into a car and drive across town (or across the country) for some companionship. The visit would have to include some argument about politics, religion or Madonna, depending on the mood.

Months ago, that would have been an idyllic way to spend time. Recent-U.S. Supreme Court rulings endanger even those simple pleasures. Americans no longer are as free as they think - and we're losing ground

The "war on crime" and the "war on drugs" propaganda has paralyzed the system of individual liberties to the point where the law presumes that all are guilty until proven innocent. That shouldn't be a comforting thought.

THAT'S NOT MUCH of an exaggeration. Take a look at what our Supreme Court has done lately.

• It has permitted anyone arrested without a warrant to be jailed for as long as 48 hours before having to go before a judge. Explain that one to your employer - if you already haven't been fired for an unexcused absence.

Some defendants now can be convicted through coerced confessions. Not many people could go two or three days without sleep and not want sleep so badly that they wouldn't confess to kidnapping the Lindbergh baby just to give their bodies relief • Anyone using public transportation now not only is ecologicallyminded because they re trying to reduce reliance on automobiles, but also could be asked to submit to random police searches The Supreme Court just last week said that an officer getting on a bus or train can search a passenger with his permission There is increasion to object - other than the obvious infringement on privacy.

• Police are allowed to search a container in the car without a warrant if they believe it contains drugs or crime evidence and if the driver had given previous approval for a less drastic search. Nothing said about probable cause - just having a hunch. A simple traffic stop can mean that a car is searched from trunk to hood. Even if there's nothing to hide - which isn't the point it's an invasion of privacy. Not many enjoy having their cars searched that thoroughly when going through U.S.-Canada Customs when we know it's a right we forfeit to cross national borders.

• Medical facilities receiving federal funds cannot talk about abortion. Hot abortion topic aside, this is a free speech issue. The government now is telling people what to say and think. Government, until that ruling, had to keep its opinions to itself and could neither prohibit nor compel speech. If government funds are the trigger, then artists soon could be told what to create. (Read the majority opinion - its broad definitions do allow that.) That brings to mind "thought police" to make the arrest.

IT MAY TAKE a century - or centuries - before inhabitants of this planet become fatally ill with cancers and other disorders brought on by the abuse of our environment. But by then it won't matter - we'll have been dead since the 1990s. As sentient beings, it's spirit and freedom that separates us from animals. Just breathing isn't living.

Cramming not good for tests

QUESTION: My son always waits until the last day and then crams for his tests and exams, Now he is in. summer school, and I hoped he would not cram for his exam because he is only taking one class. Yet he is getting ready for the final tests and again he is cramming. This can't, be the best way to prepare for a test. Is there any hope that I can get him to study through out a semester rather than waiting for the last minute?

ANSWER; Probably not Frankly, I'm cramming right now to get this. response to your question on time to the Observer & Eccentric because I have a golf match in a couple of hours.

Cramming seems to be an incurable disease for students from high school through graduate school.

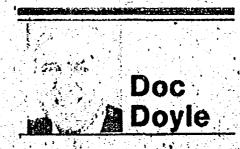

Educators have been seeking the cause and cure of this disease for years; still no breakthrough has been made.

Nevertheless, cramming at the last minute is not the best route for students. Numerous educational studies have been completed in regard to the craming method of "concentrated learning" and the "distributive learning" method.

DISTRIBUTIVE learning is when the student spreads the study effort and review over a semester and then does one final review prior to taking an exam. Distributive learning does, according to research, does result in (all factors being equal) a greater ability to achieve on tests.

There are a few humans who have photographic memorles. For what, ever reason these people absorb information and have immediate and accurate recall whenever the knowledge is needed. Their minds are like a computer and they can access the brain to produce a picture of what they have learned.

However, this person is rare. The extreme would be the savant in the. movie "Rainman" whose memory is beyond homan understanding. But . for most of us, distributive learning or a continual on-going review is best.

It should be noted that the average student forgets 50 percent of what they learned one day after an exam. * This is called "loss of learning." However, once something is learned, it is in your mind where it is stored. That is called "latent learning;" that ls, learning stored in the brain which can be retrieved by the learner when the need arises.

For instance, many lawyers have a law clerk who will research a par-ticular issue that the lawyer may have faced many times before. Once the law clerk shares the information with the lawyer, recall will 'occur from similar cases because the lawyer had the information stored in the brain. This is a clear example of latent learning....

ALL THAT withstanding, the molivation for test taking for most people still seems to wait until the sweat beads roll off the forehead when the pressure is on and the delivery date is upon one - and there is no escape.

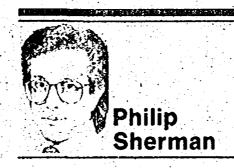

Visit the editorial department of a newspaper in the final hours before printing for a clear example. Whatever the cause, cramming is not the best procedure for test taking. Distributing the study and review of material over a period of time (the distributive learning process) is the better choice.

Reserve celebration for others return

FOR THE PAST couple months my telephone bill has exceeded my car payment. While I can't let that go on, I can't say I'm unhappy about lt, either.

A few weeks ago, incoming collect calls were originating from a pay phone on the sidewalk outside a bar somewhere in Germany. My son, Brian, is in the Army and recently was shipped to Germany.

Two of his calls are worth noting: • The first came through in the early evening, our time, but late in the evening, Brian time. Speaking in a voice a little too loud and a lot too happy, we heard a description of the club he'd just left. "And yoo not what? Yoo don't hafve tobe 21 to get a beer over here," he slurred. Apparently.

• The second call informed us that Brian was toying with the idea ### of purchasing a motorcycle and zipping along the Autobahn. A dumb idea on its face, made worse by the fact that he'd had a motorcycle accident last summer and had been lucky enough to escape with serious but fixable injuries.

A talk with his mother, a very intelligent individual blessed with the gift of succinctly telling people just how stupid they can be, short-circuited that plan.

THEN, ABOUT three weeks ago, Brian left Germany for the Persian Gulf for a 3-to-6-month rotation. It was the Army's idea to send him, but he didn't complain, either.

Actually, he did complain about one thing. The Army wants soldiers to wear desert boots in the desert, but they didn't have any to issue to soldiers. So Brian's last call was to ask for his mother's Visa number so he could call. from Germany, mind' you, a store about 2 miles from Fort Knox, Ky., and order a pair, women still are in the Gulf. They aren't home. The war isn't over.

Brian's job is to drive trucks from Riyadh to Kuwait City. He had been trained to find land mines, but they had enough people finding mines, so Brian's duty was switched. He's disappointed. We're not all that upset.

BRIAN CALLED at 2 p.m. Brian time, 6 a.m. our time. In Kuwait, the temperature was 120 degrees. He had just finished his first run.

The most interesting part of the drive was a two-mile stretch outside Kuwait. Brian said land mines, honest-to-God land mines that had been dug up and were awaiting proper disposal, were just sitting in the sun along the shoulder on each side of the road.

He also told us about one soldier who backed over a mine while driving a truck. The mine didn't explode so the soldier picked it up, got back in the driver's seat and put the mine on his lap, thinking he had a souvenir.

- have been taken for granted by the people and are being slowly extinguished by the courts. Soon we'll all act, believe and think the same way - the way decreed by government.

A nation without a soul is our destiny. The acid rain can't destroy this nation as quickly as our Supreme Court and our refusal to protest this new direction.

Thursday, July 11, 1991 O&E

When Robble Harkins volunteered to play goalie Sunday for the Michigan Wolves Under-16 boys soccer team, it saved coach Dan O'Shea from having any further worries at the Wolverine XII Tournament.

The Wolves were one of 14 teams crowned champions at Schoolcraft College, and Harkins played a key role in the team's second-straight Wolverine championship.

Harkins played most of the semifinal and all of the championship game as the Wolves beat the Canton Titans, 2-1 in a shootout. First-string keeper Cal Kaliszewski was given a red card during the first half of a 2-0 semifinal win over Bealing (Pennsylvania), meaning he was unable to play the rest of that game as well as the championship.

In stepped Harkins, who normally plays sweeper for the Wolves and Redford Catholic Central.

"He stepped up and said he could do it so we went with him," O'Shea said. "He's not normally a goalkeeper, but he played great and is an unsong hero. He played good games."

Harkins made a key save during regulation to allow the Wolves to finish the two halves tied at 1-1 with the Titans. After a scoreless over-

Challengers set for Mile

Will it be a Black Tie Affair?

By Sleve Kowalski staff writer

Although the prize money will lack in quantity compared to recentyears, the horses scheduled to race in Saturday's 43rd running of the Michigan Mile are of high quality, say officials at Ladbroke DRC.

This year's purse is $250,000, down $50,000 from the last three years. Ladbroke DRC assistant public relations director Mike Tanner doesn't believe the drop in purse had an effect on the Michigan Mile, which is actually run at 1% miles.

The Mile's record purse came in 1986, when $315,000 was paid out.

"I don't think it hurt the field in any way," Tanner said. "We would have gotten them with a $300,000 purse or a $200,000 purse." -

THE 12-RACE card begins at 1 p.m. General Admission tickets cost $2.50 and clubhouse level are $4. Post time for the Michigan Mile is 5:10 p.m.

Eight horses have committed to the Mile, and on Tuesday officials said two more may be added before Saturday's card.

The Michigan Mile's post position draw and odds will be set today at DRC, but the early favorite appears to be Black Tie Affair, winner of the Stephen Foster May 27 at Churchill Downs. Black Tie Affair has won more than $1.1 million in his racing career.

More racing fans than ever before will have a chance to watch, as 73 simulcast outlets are lined up across the nation for the Mile, up from 44 last year.

At last year's Mile, 11,493 fans showed up at DRC, despite rainy and muddy conditions. Attendance and the handle at DRC have each dropped about 3 percent this season, publicity director Bob Raymond said, but he expects at least as large a turnout as last year's Mile.

ATTENDANCE IS down throughout the country, according to Raymond, and officials at Hazel Park said their course is suffering a 5.8 percent drop in attendance. Raymond has a couple theories for the drop in daily attendance and handle.

"It's mainly the recession; people don't have discretionary income," Raymond said. "But also the unusually hot weather. People don't come out to the race track as much during the hot weather." Following is a profile of each

Walter's falls back in Collegiate quest

Walter's Appliance lost ground to league leader Little Caesars in the Livonia Collegiate baseball race, splitting a double-header Sunday with Total Travel Values at Ford Field:

Second place Walter's captured the opener, 8-2, as Chad Wrona ran his record to 4-1, pitching a seveninning complete game.

Wrona struck out seven and scattered 10 hits, outdueling Total Travel starter Darren Clark, who. worked 61/3 innings.

Walter's big hitters included Craig Overailis, the Livonia Franklin High product now at Henry Ford Community College. He had two hits and three RBI, while teammate Jason Gabel (Churchill High and Central Michigan), added two hits and two RBI.

Farmington Harrison High product Gary Devine led Total Travel with two singles and a double.

Total Travel earned the split with a 5-4 victory in the nightcap.

Kevin Young, who prepped at Farmington High and recently completed his freshman year at CMU, blasted a two-run homer in the first inning. Mike Julien added two hits for the winners.

Winning pitcher Scott Nielsen went the distance, scattering nine hits. He struck out seven and walked five.

Mike Coleman, who gave up only one-run (the game-winner) while working the final five innings in relief of Walter's starter David Houghtby, took the loss.

Jeff Pendell (Churchill and Madonna University) led the losers with a triple, double and two RBI. Joe Brusseau (Redford Bishop Borgess and Madonna), Jerry Koester (Westland Glenn and Henry Ford CC) and Gabel each contributed two hits. Koester and Gabel both had triples.

Walter's is 14-7-1 overall, six points behind league-leading Caesars (17-5-1), who swept a doubleheader Sunday from the last-place. C.P.O.A. Canucks (no report submitted or called in) on Sunday. -.FLEGER 13, WENDY'S 8:

SOVA juniors gain Sweet 16

A dramatic comeback got SOVA's under-18 girls volleyball team into the round of 16 at the AAU Junior Olympics, but that was as far as it went.

SOVA was knocked out of the tournament by River City, Ill., 15-8, 15-9, in spite of strong performances from Jannel Hemme (11 digs) and Nancy Ehlert (seven kills, 10 assists-tokills):

Still, it was an impressive outing for the local squad, which competed against 104 other teams in its division in the national tournament, hosted by Illinois Benedictine College in Lisle, Il., June 22-23. SOVA edged Jacksonville, Fla., in a rally-point scoring match (every ball scoring a point) 13-15, 15-12, 17-16, before losing to River City. Kari Van Deusen, with eight kills and four blocks, and Renea Bonser, with 10 kills and two blocks, dominated the middle against Jacksonville. Keli Haeger added 13 assists, five kills and four service aces. Prior to meeting Jacksonville, SOVA edged Battle Creek Red in another rally-point match 15-10, 11-15, 15-9. Haeger and Van Deusen combined for 10 kills, and Bonser supplied superb defense with eight digs. In pool play SOVA was 9-1, best among all under-18 division teams. SOVA was 12-2 in all matches.

SOVA's under-16 girls team played well, too, recording a 7-3 record to finish second in its pool. The under-16s won one post-poolplay match before being eliminated.

Hall hails coaches

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

Redford Thurston's Emil Majeski and Garden City's Bob Dropp were among 10 coaches inducted recently into the Michigan High School Baseball Coaches Association Hall of Fame,

Along with their inductions, the pair have something else in common: they just finished their 26th year of coaching high school varsity baseball,

In fact, Dropp remembers the first season, way back in 1966, when Thurston got the best of his team in the championship of the Les Anders Tournament.

"They beat us 6-1," recalled Dropp, a Westland resident. "I had to look back in the scrap book to determine the score, but I knew we had gotten together as coaches back then."

Both have enjoyed nothing but success since.

Majeski's teams at Thurston have a combined 313-240 record. His 1984 team won the Class B state title, and the Eagles won eight Northwest Suburban League crowns before joining the Tri-River League in the mld-

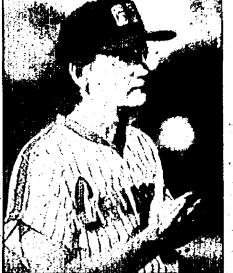

Lee Bjerke, a former player at Redford Union who currently coaches in the metro area, nominated Majeski for the honor and the MHSBCA elected him in.

"It was a great, unexpected honor," said Majeski, who resides in Livonia. "It's kind of neat that Lee nominated me and I appreciate that from him."

Majeski's most memorable moment in coaching came when the Eagles won their only state championship in '84. 'Thurston wasn't favored to win the fitle but won its last eight games, including the last four by one run each.

He also will long remember Monday night's banquet when he accepted the induction and was surprised to see 11 of his former players from. the 1960s on hand to watch:

"It was great seeing those guys; they were fine players, fine gentlemen," Majeski said. "One (Deno Syros) came in from Atlanta and one (Gordie Eszes) came in from just outside Australia to see his dad who still lives in Redford - and he also stopped by. Majoski graduated from Kinde North High School in the thumb, and later earned a degree from Eastern Michigan University, where he also lettered three years in football. He: hopes to coach 10 more years.

"If I feel good and still enjoy the game, I'll continue," Majeski said. The important thing is my health." Dropp has guided Garden City West and Garden City High School to a combined 368-213 record. The Cougars have won seven league titles (Tri-River and NSL combined) and four district championships under Dropp's guidance.

A native of Minnesota and a graduate of the University of Minnesota-Duluth, Dropp hopes to continue coaching baseball despite recently taking over the athletic director duties at Garden City.

"It's definitely an honor to be recognized in such a way," Dropp said. "Being placed in a hall of fame is the highest tribute a coach can achieve in his sport."

Mile a Black Tie Affair? Derby that year.

than 5,000 races who will be inducted in August into the National Museum of Racing Hall of Fame. Day has won every major race, according to Tanner, except the Kentucky Derby.

Black Tie Affair has 13 wins in 40 career mounts and this year has won two of his five starts. A sprinter, Black Tie Affair outlasted last year's sprint champlon, House Buster, in seven furlongs in April at the Commonwealth Breeder's Cup in Keeneland, Ky.

He also has a second and third place finish in 1991.

"I expect him to run right in front and say 'Catch me if you can," Tanner said. "He'll try to carry speed as far as it will take him."

Silver Ending: The 4-year-old took fifth place in the 1990 Kentucky Derby, Silver Ending, who has started five races this season, has won the Arkansas Derby and the Pegasus Handicap in the Meadowlands.

Hall of Fame jockey Jorge Velasquez, who rode Pleasant Colony to the Kentucky Derby championship in 1981, will ride Silver Ending. The horse has been a fine investment for owners Angelo and Beth Constanzo, who bought Silver Ending for a mere $2,500. The dividends have been impressive, as Silver Ending has won more than $920,000 in his racing career. "It's been a hell of an investment," Tanner said. "He likes long distance of ground and likes to come off the pace. He's one of those horses who makes the long, big run."

Silver Ending earned his nickname because of the gray tall, which is easy to spot on his mostly dark brown body.

Private School: Based out of Churchill Downs, Private School took second in the Foster Handicap to Black Tie Affair and has won six of 19 career starts. Private School proved he can be successful on a 1% mile course last year in winning the Ohio Derby.

He has made more than $384,000. "He normally races from just off the early pace, not quite as far back as Silver Ending, but he doesn't have the great early speed of Black Tie Affair," Tanner sald.

Yonder: Three of Yonder's four races this year have come on grass, but don't think it'll be a major adjustment racing. on DRC's dirt field. Yonder, a 4-year-old, has won four of 19 career mounts - and all four wins came on dirt.

The son of 1977 Triple Crown winner Seattle Slew, Yonder has won $63,000. He finished fifth in the 1990 Belmont Stakes as a 3-year old and also won the Jersey Angel Cordero, the Hall of Fame jockey who rode Opening Verse to a second place finish in the Michigan Mile last year, is expected to say today whether he will ride Yonder or not, Tanner said.

"His style is the same as Silver Ending's; he likes to hang in the back of the pack and then make a big run," Tanner said. "He's finished second and third this year against some real hard hitters, so he's been competitive."

· Sangria Time: His sire, Timeless Native, wop the Michigan Mile in 1984 as a 4-year-old. Sangria Time is enjoying a fine 1991, winning three of six starts and finishing second and third one time each -He has won nine of 27 lifetime starts and. has more than $276,000 in career earnings. One of his wins came at the Ark-La. Tex Handicap at the Lousianna Downs, a 1% mile course.

"He's an improving horse and could definitely be a factor," Tanner said. They're shipping him up all the way from Louislanna, so they obviously think they have a good chance."

His jockey will be David Gulllory, a leading rider in both Arkansas and Louislanna.

Solo Matt: The 5-year-old comes home to DRC, where he was based until" last fall. Now based at Woodbine Race Course in Toronto, Solo Matt has won 11 of 36 races. Riding Solo Matt is Euclides. Vergara, Ladbroke DRC's leading jockey. The last time Vergara rode Solo Matt they won the Frontier Handicap last Labor Day at DRC.

Solo Matt showed his distance ability_ in finishing second by a nose at a 1% mile race at the Greenwood Race Course in Toronto. Despite being based most of his career at DRC, this is Solo Matt's first Michigan Mile.

Regal Affair: Tanner calls this a "mystery horse" because of his great success in a thus far injury-riddled career. After winning his first career race in May, 1989, by 10 lengths at Churchill Downs, Regal Affair broke a bone in his stifle (equivalent to a human's shoulder) and it took two years to heal. Since his comeback in April, Regal Affair has wonthree of his four starts and now has $66,000 in career earnings.

Regal Affair's jockey will be Ricardo Lopez, who rode Beau Genius to the Michigan Mile crown last year. The Michigan Mile 1% mile course could be a challenge, since Regal Affair has never raced that far.

"Regal Affair's shown great potential, beating lesser horses with relative ease," Tanner said. "His owner and trainer are going to give him a chance to run against the bigger boys."

Midland, meanwhile, is managed by Xavier University head coach Larry Redwine. The Midland program, which flourished under former University of Michigan coach Bud Middaugh, also lists Bo Schembechler on its board of directors.

Redwine's 1985 team featured seven major league draft picks, including Ken Griffey Jr. (Seattle Mariners) and Mark Lewis (Cleveland Indians).

Midland's next star appears to be center fielder Ryan Grimmett, who batted .652 for the tourney and Grimmett also showed his prowess as an outfielder, making a spectacular diving catch in the championship game against the Yankee-Rebels.

"He's the fastest player I've ever coached," Redwine said of the Glen Este High junior-to-be. "He has good bat speed and is disciplined at the plate. He can be a total intimidating force."

BUT IT WAS the crafty Weltlinger who had the final word.

"He's tough," Redwine said. "I hope to see him someday in an Xavier uniform. He has a good changeup and curve, and was spotting those with his fastball."

one of the Westland America players named to the all-tourney team.

He struck out four, allowed seven hits and four walks in seven innings against Baltimore. He was also Westland's top hitter, going 3-for-4 with an RBI.

After losing the opener, Westland America drilled Lorain, Ohio Tippe Insurance, 14-0, as all-tourney pick Brian Hicks, a catcher from Dearborn Heights Fairlane Christian, went 3-3 with three RBI. Jason Zielinski (Lutheran High Westland) went 2-for-2 with two RBI.

Winning pitcher Marcus Sarnovsky (Livonia Churchill) went five innings (mercy rule), allowing one hit and only one walk while fanning six.

WESTLAND AMERICA then blasted the Central Macomb Black Sox on Friday, 12-1, as Kevin Kern

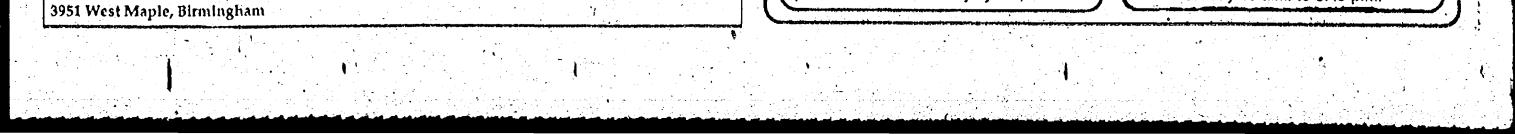

On Saturday, Westland America collected 12 hits, but lost on Grimmett's grand slam.

Despite the loss, alf-tourney pick Greg Tamás (Glenn High), Jeff Tapp (Wayne Memorial), Kapla and Jason Wetmore (Wayne) each contributed two hits. Tapp also knocked in a pair of runs.

Later in the day, Westland routed Cincinnati Elder-West, 18-2, as Hicks went 3-for-3 with two doubles and five RBI. Kapla and Matt Barrett (Belleville) also had two hits and one RBI each. Wetmore pitched five innings, allowing three hits and only two walks in gaining the win.

Westland America closed out its tournament quest on Sunday with a 9-2 victory over Windsor as Kern was the winning pitcher, tossing a two-hitter over five innings. Tapp was the leading hitter, going 2-for-3.

Wolverine chairman praises turnout, Carleton

Aside from the 90-degree heat, there wasn't much to complain about last weekend at the Wolverine XII Soccer Tournament, held at Livonia's Bicentennial Park and Schoolcraft College.

Former pro and National Team captain Rick Davis provided quite a show for kids under 14 Saturday with The Chiquita Challenge, a soccer 'skills competition conducted at ma-· jor youth soccer events across the United States. And when he left, the amateurs finished strutting their say they had a good time," said stuff Sunday during the championship round at Schoolcraft College.

Fourteen teams were crowned champions, but a lot of other folks also went home happy after the three-day event was completed. Wolverine XII and Michigan State Youth Soccer Association chaliperson Irene Saucedo Smith said about 400 kids showed Saturday after lioon for Davis' exhibition.

This year we had a lot of people

Smith, who hopes to host Chiquita at future Wolverine tournaments. "It was nice Chiquita chose us. (Chiquita publicity director) Maura O'Neill said to me, 'You guys were real organized.'

"I think it went all right. You're always worried about the fields. Schoolcraft is usually hard, but it rained ahead of time and that helped the fields enough. And as hot as it was, you'd think there'd be a lot more yelling and arguing, but 1 didn't hear any bad reports," Smith praised Schoolcraft assistant dean Midge Carleton for her help during the tournament.

"Midge really helps a lot," Smith said. "I remember being tugged from three different directions at the tournament at one point and she came up to me and said she wanted to hug me and say goodbye. She's a no-nonsense person and I like people like that."

Birmingham Cobras sting Marauders, 1-0

By C.J. Alsak staff writer.

This is, as several members of the Birmingham Cobras I team agreed, one tough league.

The previously unbeaten Redford' Marauders did not need further convincing Tuesday - not after tying Cobras II 2-2 Sunday. But they got it anyway, absorbing a 1.0 defeat 4-1-1 for nine points, with two fewer dished out by Cobras I in a Great matches played. Lakes Men's Soccer League match at Livonia's Jaycee Park.

The game's only goal was scored, midway through the first half by defender Steve Kovacs, a 1989 Central Michigan University graduate. Kovacs charged forward to head the ball past, Marauder keeper Brian O'Shea.

"I got lucky," said Kovacs modestly. "I don't know what I was doing up there."

What he was doing was something the Marauders failed to do throughout the match - converting an opportunity. Certainly Cobras I took full advantage of their lead, concentrating on defense throughout the second half.

"That's what makes scoring in soccer so tough," said Marauder coach Nick O'Shea. "If you can get the lead, you can just pack in your defense."

WHICH MADE it very difficult for the Marauders to penetrate on the ground. But their fortunes playing the ball in the air were no better; Cobras I controlled nearly every head ball, with Kovacs particularly tough In the middle.

Still, the Marauders did get their chances. Problem was, they missed. Three excellent opportunities were miffed inside 15 yards in the second half.

Officiating didn't help the Marauders, either. In the final minute, Gary Mexicotte was dragged down in the penalty area, but no foul which would have resulted in a penalty kick - was called.

All that really mattered, though, was the final result, and that favored the Cobras I, who leapfrogged past the Marauders into first place. Cobras I are now 5-1-3 for 13 points, one more than the Marauders, who have played one fewer game (5-1-2 for 12 points).

Also still very much in the hunt for first in the GLMSL is Paragon at,

At stake is a berth in the Michigan district of the Tournament of Champions next spring, which goes to the GLMSL's regular-season winner.

The Marauders play their final regular-season match Sunday against Bud-Light at 6 p.m. at Jaycee Park.

Kingwswood alumna makes movie for doctoral thesis

By Dan Greenberg special writer

RADUATE dissertations summon up visions of dedicated students scrabbling through dusty volumes, scanning endless rolls of microfilm or, these days, hacking away endlessly on computer keyboards.

Not so for former Detroiter, Birminghamite and Kingswood School alumna, Marcy Hedy Lynn, whose graduate thesis for a doctorate in film at New York University is the feature film production "Murder Too Sweet" under the banner of Whim Wham Productions.

The line producer, Detroit Producer's Association member Patricia Wedhorn, describes the film, set in 1936-as "a darkly comic thriller centered around a gangster family and their miscues while trying to fulfill a contract.

Wedhorn continued, 'This is a student thesis film, which means that there are no investors. All the money for the film is coming right out of her pocket. Many costumes, location permits and creative time was donated.'

PRINCIPAL PHOTOGRAPHY took place in the metropolitan area from June 19 through July 3 with 80. industry professionals and 70 extras including Michigan State Senator. Jack Faxon who, Wedhorn noted, "got the shortest haircut he ever had so he could be an extra."

All these dedicated individuals spent countless hours in rehearsal.

'It's an actual feature with numerous locations, many extras, special effects, everything associated with a feature.

- Patricia Wedhorn

"Murder Too Sweet" is a period plece, so donations included a wide range of vintage costumes as well as the usual materials required for film production. Cast and crew worked at such unique locations as the Thornley Mansion at Cranbrook in Bloomfield Hills, the Evergreen Cemetery on Woodward Avenue in Detroit; the Soup Kitchen in Detroit; the Franklin Cider Mill, and one of Ann Arbor's well known landmarks, Drake's Sandwich Shop, for the scene in which Sen Faxon appears as an extra.

Director Marcy Hedy Lynn is an enthusiastic, committed filmmaker who speaks with a quiet, burning intensity about her work. Her academic career reads like a Cook's tour of the Western world, with several years in Chicago where she received a bachelor of science in theater and a master of arts in film theory and production at Northwestern University.

-From there she headed to the Sorbonne, where she earned the equivalent of another bachelor's degree, this one in cinema. After Paris shestudied at London's Royal Academy and the Goethe Institute in Berlin before returning to New York and New York University. Lynn's practical experience as a filmmaker is awesome for someone not yet 30, with every aspect of filmmaking represented by her particularly long list of skills, awards and productions.

being fitted for costumes and, during principal photography, many 14-16 hour days on the set. "It's not the typical student film that I'm used to here in Michigan," Wedhorn commented. "It's an actual feature with numerous locations, many extras, special effects, everything associated with a feature."

LIKE HER education, Lynn's honors and screenings read like an American road map, with stops here in Detroit on the way west to Santa Barbara and San Francisco film festivals. Houston, Chicago, New York and New England are also locales where she has screened her films and won certificates of merit, excellence and commendation.

Her "Shortnin' Bread Rock" and 'Whether Willed" were screened last year on Boston's Channel 5, WCVB-TV. Another one of her film's will be screened there later this month.

"Murder Too Sweet" was shot on 16mm film with a $25,000 budget, miniscule in these days of Hollywood's megabudget mania.

Even at the low end, feature film production is expensive. Lynn's talent and experience have stood her in good stead as she worked professionally to raise money for the production of "Murder Too Sweet." She also, obtained grants and, as she said. "1. rely heavily on my credit cards." Lynn fits right, into the Detroit area's long, rich and internationally renowned tradition of producing fine film talent.

Stratford's 'Our Town' flawless in presentation

'Our Town" continues in repertory through Saturday, Oct. 19, at the Avon Theatre at the Stratford Festival in Stratford, Ontario. The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers is a promotional sponsor for the festival's 39th season. For ticket information call 964-4668 in metropolitan Detroit.

By Ethel Simmons staff writer

"Our Town," the American classic by Thornton Wilder, is a jewel of a production in the hands of the Stratford Festival in Canada.

Combining gentle humor and dramatic punches, the play stars Douglas Rain as the Stage Manager, or narrator, of the story of life in smalltown Grover's Corners, N.H., in the early 1900s. A seasoned pro, Rain manages to extract every bit of meaning from subtle lines that could just slip past you with a less able actor.

"Touching" and "warm" are words that describe the low-key action, directed by Vivian Matalon, which builds to a stunning climax in Act 3. One of the most powerful, and incredibly sad scenes, I've ever seen on stage is this funeral sequence, where mourners and the dead are present after the death of the young herolne, Emily, in childbirth.

Staging and lighting throughout the play are magnificent, especially in the fuperal scene where the dead, dressed in iridescent grey, are stark contrast to the mourners, all in black with umbrellas.

THE MESSAGE of "Our Town," as pointed out to the audience, is that the living are all blind, and don't appreciate death. "It (life) goes so fast," the deceased Emily says.

Ann Baggley gives a strong performance as a vibrant Emily Webb, and Andrew Dolha is appropriately pleasant and confused as George Gibbs, the next-door neighbor who becomes her boyfriend when they are teenagers.

One of the play's most amusing scenes is where actor Rain, taking the role of the drugstore owner, pantomines making ice cream sodas for the young couple.

The first act concerns the couple's growing up in Grover's Corners, Good performances all are those by William Dunlop and Roberta Maxwell as George's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Gibbs; Claire_Bankin as George's younger sister, Rebecca; Peter Donaldson and Susah Wright as Mr. and Mrs. Webb, and Sam Dinicol as Emily's brother, little Wally Webb.

In Act 2, George and Emily are married, and then the action jumps back to their teenage "romance" where he buys her an expensive, ice cream soda.

The stage for "Our Town" is bare, except for tables and chairs, which are changed about and used imaginatively to create the mood called for by each scene. At times, some

Comedian Ron Robertson likens his job to "going to college without taking classes."

"I get excited about going to work - it's just too good to be true. I can't work enough," he recently said from the comfort of his Santa Monica home, which just happens to overlook the beach.

Robertson retains his enthusiasm; . even when comedy appearances re-. quire him to travel. Why?

"Because I'm getting free peanuts > and getting paid to make people laugh," he said. "What could be better?"

Robertson didn't always feel that way about his career. After graduating from high school he played major league baseball with the Oakland A's and the Atlanta Brayes.

That was a long time ago, the 42year-old comic admits.

"I was good at it when I was a kid and it helped pay my way through school," he said.

WHEN HE signed a contract to play baseball he included a clause that required the Oakland A's to pay for his college education, whatever it might be. Robertson chose Harvard University. And after he finished school, he hung up his baseball cap.

Business degree in hand, Robertson then entered the world of big business, where he became a marketing executive, first for Duracell Batteries in New York, then for a company in Houston, Texas.

erison started hanging out in a Houston comedy club after a hectic day at the office. That's when things began to change.

"I started going there in 1978 when it first opened and just watched," he recalled. "And some of the stuff just wasn't funny. I said to myself 'I could do that.' "

And he gave it a shot. The date is etched in his memory: March 3. 1980, the day Robertson calls his "comedy anniversary."

"I signed up and was supposed to do flve minutes. I had an idea of what I was going to do but not that much of an Idea, Luckily it was a ... good crowd," Robertson said.

From that night on, Robertson lead a double identity. By day he was a button-down marketing mogul . . . by night, an up-and-coming stand-up comedian.

BEFORE LONG - 2/4 years later, to be exact - he decided to abandon the business world and pursue comedy full-time. Robertson said he's never regretted his decision.

tration degree in marketing find humor in? "Things that have happened to me," Robertson said. "My comedy style is conversational and realitybased. I have a rather caustic sense of humor."

In his routines, Robertson jokes about relationships, about the quirks that surface between married couples and about the confusion among genders,

"If people come to see me, they'll a see themselves," Robertson ' said. "The mirror may be different, but they'll see the same things inside."

Robertson's favorite comedians are George Carlin, Robert Klein and Richard Pryor, "although I like a lot of other people, too."

Asked what his career goals are, Robertson said "eating and paying rent works well for me right now."

In his spare time Robertson, who's single, often heads to the golf course.

Robertson was last in Michigan in February 1989 and said he's looking forward to his bext visit.

Car magazines can be as blind as manufacturers

"Grosse Pointe myopia" was the title of a column by Brock Yates published in Car and Driver magazine in the late 1960s in which Mr. Yates squared off against the domestic auto industry as hopelessly selfinvolved, rarely able to see beyond their collective Big Three navels, as it were.

The column established Yates as a Detroit critic. Yates also established himself as hopelessly lost, having wandered over to the east side, rather than heading toward Bloomfield Hills, where the top auto execs mainly live. But I digress.

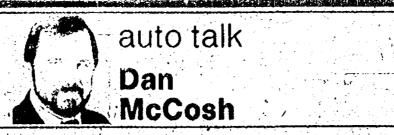

The point to the essay was that Detroit automakers were unable to see beyond their own cultural norms, and continued to churn out huge gasguzzlers when the rest of the country

(i.e. California) was heading toward small, light imports.

Since then, Car and Driver along with Road and Track and Motor Trend have grown from being backpocket stuffers for hard-core gearheads to the status of self-proclaimed Opinion Makers in the arcane science of why people buy cars.

The so-called "buff books" by now also have managed to close the same loop previously criticized by the likes of Mr. Yates. They have, in fact, created a substantial cult of auto executives that see the greater world out there through the eyes of magazines that are mainly the stuff of automotive adolescent fantasy.

JUST HOW far this has gone was impressed on me the other day when the president of one of the Big. Three - himself a regular reader of enthusiast magazines - confessed he had not read a thoughtful cover story in Atlantic Magazine that used hiscompany as an example of how U.S. corporations are bumbling international trade. I wouldn't have expected him to personally pick up the magazine, but I did assume his staff culled this kind of thing and brought magazine new-car reviews. Without getting into the journalistic merits of the auto enthusiast magazines (some of my best friends write for them), the incident started me wondering how much of the greater world of automobilesis screened out, rather than Illuminated, in their pages.

For one thing, the heavy emphasis on high-performance cars in enthusiit to his attention - as they do for , ast magazines has precluded virtually any mention of the major marketing trends that have shaped the U.S. industry in the past twenty years or so - including the mom-and pop minivan, the huge growth in four-wheel drive utilities, and the abrupt emergence of the light truck as a family vehicle.

Also notable is that Honda eschewed magazine publicity until it was well-established as a dominant presence in the United States. Yugo, on the other hand, courted the magazines and it backfired. A former Olds division general manager ducked any kind of press and managed to. lead the entire country in sales of a single model.

There seems to be no particular pattern to whether slavish buff book praise guarantees success or not tor of Popular Science Magazine .

The Camry didn't have much support, and it is dynamite in the showroom; Nissan has been lauded, but is hurting for sales.

All this may seem blasphemy coming from someone who has made à living as an auto magazine writer for nearly two decades. In fact I tend to share the car nut's enthusiasms for high-performance cars. On the other hand, I don't doubt that there are lots of other reasons why people buy cars and trucks, ranging from child-proof seats, to a nice color, to a dull old thing that starts in the morning.

Maybe bull book myopla has gone too far..

Management of computer access urged

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

Computer virus - the words send shivers up the collective spines of everyone who has ever tinkled the keys of a desktop PC.

But as dramatic sounding as computer viruses may seem - and even though computer viruses gets all the attention - other areas of computer security are more important. People who depend on computers in their day-to-day affairs and businesses should be more concerned about unauthorized access than isolated computer virus attacks.

In today's modern office, with computer terminals at every desk, the potential for abuse is great. Unauthorized access can lead not only to the obvious - stolen Information that may help a competitor take your business - to the less obvious - inadvertent destruction from a well-meaning employee.

Robert Fiolek, senior manager of consulting services for BDO Seidman with offices in Troy, said small- and medium-sized businesses don't rank computer security very highly on their list of priorities.

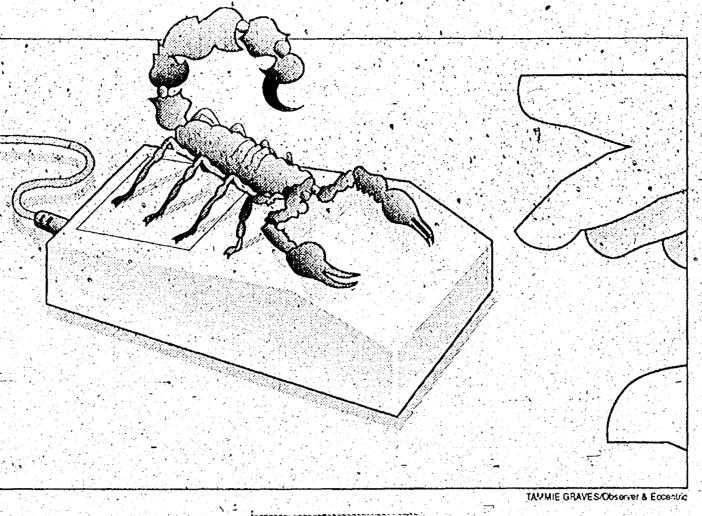

"People should definitely be more concerned than they are," he said. "Something about micro-computers has made people more comfortable."

The proliferation of micro-computers and knowledge about how they are used should make businesses uncomfortable, not comfortable, Fiolek said.

Computer security is not difficult, he said. Simple password and authorization levels would eliminate most of the problems of unauthorized access.

MENU-DRIVEN applications that permit users access to only certain areas of data will eliminate many of the rest.

Computer security can be broken up into three basic areas, the first is hardware and software controls, he said.

"The real irony is that most computer systems have (security measures), but it's surprising how few people turn them on," he said. If companies would just turn on the basic password and access controls included with their software packages, they would eliminate most of their problems.

The second area, Fiolek said, is who is in charge of the system. Because sensitive information is kept on computers, the person in charge of computers should be someone the company can trust with the information first, and someone who knows about computers second.

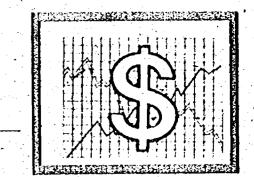

"It shouldn't be some guy who moved up from the mail room because he has a computer at home," he said. The third area, Fiolek said, is the importance of backing up information. Again, sensitive files are kept on computer and duplicates should be made of them in a timely manner.

Access to data is important not only because data can be lost, but also because data can be altered. "We want to make sure people know where there data comes from.'

Fiolek said most information kept on computers is probably important, but his clients are most concerned about pricing strategies and cost margins - information that would give opponents a competitive edge.

- Other information his clients have stressed an interest in keeping from prying eyes include customer lists; inside information like payroll and inventory; and new technology or product development planning.

FRED SHUBACK, manager of Coopers & Lybrand's Information Technology Computer Security Services,

O&E Thursday, July 11, 1991

said although computer viruses have received much of the attention, accidental data erasures and unauthorized access to data are far more common areas for breaches in computer security, Viruses are more glamorous, but the bigger issue is the ease in which you can retrieve things from a computer," he said.

Computers are often compared to file cabinets in the way they store information. "Today, the issue is the ease with which you can retrieve things from a computen as opposed to a file cabinet."

Twenty years ago, when businesses kept their files under lock and key in file cabinets, searching for information - be it for innocent or nefarious reasons - was a lot of work.

Today, the same information, much more in fact, is available by punching several keys: Access, Shuback said, is key.

Authorized access is a problem, he said, but not because of corporate espionage. The real problem is not stealing data, but altering data by accident.

"People are curious and may destroy data by accident when poking about the computer," he said. "The way to resolve this is to have a system that allows people to do exactly what they're asked to do, but in an efficient way."

FOR EXAMPLE, if a person's job requires only inputting sales information, there is no reason they should have to call up sales reports.

"So the system would be designed with a menu that has several options — those tasks that the person is not responsible for (doing) wouldn't even be listed." Shuback said computer security is also not limited to preventing damage.

"We also want to make sure errors are detected," he said. "It's not unheard of for a company to go months without discovering an error."

Since information in computers is used - not just stored - incorrect data can affect decision making. Decisions based on faulty premises can seriously affect the health of a business.

"The cost of reconstructing lost data can be enormous," he said.

Computer security also encompasses tracing mistakes, Shuback said. "When changes are made to files, it is important that the changes can be traced to an individual so any questions can be cleared up later."

Fantasy flights hurt

By David F. Stein special writer

Five years after the Challenger tragedy, NASA fumbles projects like the Hubble space telescope.

General Motors spent more than $70 billion on new plants and products in the 1980s but-continues to lose market share.

The CEO of a small firm confronted with foreign competition wistfully maintains that "maybe something will happen."

The cause: a narcissistic flight from reality that has consumed our nation's organizations. The result: unhappy workers and an ever-declining ability to compete on the world stage.

"It's more of a characteristic of the current state of American culture than the institutions," says Howard Schwartz, Oakland University business professor and author of the recently published book, "Narclssistic Process and Corporate Decay."

Schwartz maintains that society gives organizations the impossible task of recreating the narcissistic state of the child, who is the center of a safe and loving world to relieve the anxieties and uncertainties of adulthood.

SUCH GROUPS comfort us but also trap us.

Symptoms of organizational decay include: commitment to bad decisions, a hostile response to other companies and markets, ritual in place of work, and advancement based on ideology and politics rather than achievement and competence. The individual unhappiness and lack of fulfillment in many organizations is bad enough, Schwartz said. But companies beset by organizational decay have also contributed to the decline in American global competitiveness.

IT WASN'T always so.

"A hundred years ago, you didn't find these kinds of narcissistic organizations," Schwartz said: "The organizations existed pretty much aware that the outside world was a trial for them."

Schwartz dates our narcissistic culture from 1945 when Americans were buoyed by their World War II successes and new found power and prosperity. It collapsed with the Viet Nam war.

"We were living off of capital and our way of organizing that had served well," Schwartz said. "The whole Vict Nam war was built around the maintenance of an illusion.'

Howard Schwartz disecting corporations increasingly narcissistic American culture," he wrote in his book. In the process of a flight from reality, NASA changed from the embodiment of individual "right stuff" to a kind of Disneyland in space. He believes all the needed feedback systems were in place to prevent the Challenger tragedy, but upper management didn't listen and didn't believe that NASA's efforts could be flawed.

ONE ANTIDOTE to such narcissism is feat, said Schwartz, using the Japanese as an example.

"One of the essential elements of Japanese culture is the feeling of danger, the feeling of risk. It's due to geography; they live in a country that's on an earthquake fault,' Schwartz said,

."And paradoxically, it's the organizations that feel a sense of vulnerability, that better understand their limitations, where this stuff is less likely to take place."

He maintains that flawed organizatlops only reflect flawed individuals.

"This understanding of reality is deeply repressed. If you bring it up, it's denied; people will get anxious and avoid you," Schwartz said. -

He is not optimistic that the lessons of American corporate failure are being learned by today's young people, including his students.

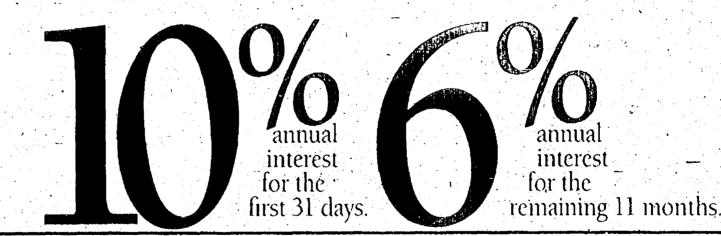

"What I see is a worsening of the situation because these kids are really cynical. They've grown up in an era where the vision of business was all rapaciousness," Schwartz said.

"As far as they're concerned, business knows nothing but exploitation.-It comes as no surprise to them. It's really what they expect."

And organizations like NASA were The solution to these organizationpressured into sustaining the national problems is as difficult as adultal fantasies of grandeur, he said. hood, according to Schwariz. ## Kids talk the lingo

By Mary Rodrique staff writer

REMEMBER "Bill & Ted's Excellent Adventure"? Those awesome, totally bodacious dudes are back in a most excellent triumphant way. "Bill & Ted's Bogus Journey" opens in moviehouses nationwide on Friday, July 19, and if local teenagers are any barometer, their return is being hailed as outstanding. In "Bill & Ted's Excellent Adventure," the duo soared through time, creating their own language, loosely based on 20th Century English.

Again starring Keanu Reeves and Alex Winter, the awesome odyssey this time whisks them to hell, heaven and beyond. As they confront the grim reaper, devil, Albert Einstein and the Easter Bunny, their lingo, like the cosmos, keeps expanding. Thus Orion Pictures has released a Bill & Ted Speak vocabulary.

Greg Reuter (right foreground), a product of Livonia Schools Creative and Performing Arts program, is starring in "Radio Hot Spots" this summer at Cedar Point. Reuter is one of 100 young performers who entertain audiences at the amusement park in Sandusky, Ohio.

Triple treat His act plays well at Cedar Point

By Larry D'Connor staff writer

> AUL HOURNUNG OF THE GREEN BAY Packers was one. So too was Al Kaline of the Detroit Tigers. Add the name Greg Reuter to the list.

By all accounts, the 1989 graduate of Livonia Churchill is a triple threat.

While Hournung could kick, pass and punt; Kaline could hit, run and throw; Reuter can sing, dance and act. This summer, he's returning as one of 100 performers to Cedar Point's live theater to do all three.

And like the aforementioned athletes, the product of Livonia Churchill's Creative and Performing Arts program has them raving.

"You have certain people who pass through here and you say, 'Hey this person has something special. If he stays in the business ... he'll make it,'" said Marje Cronenwett, manager of live shows at Cedar Point.

Reuter, 19, is starring in "Radio Hot Spots" this summer at the amusement park in Sandusky, Ohlo. The musical retrospective features the Western Michigan University theater major as a deejay, spinning tunes from the 1930s through the present.

"Radio Hot Spots" includes Reuter performing a solo singing part and swinging in a dance number — all areas he's quite adept.

TIHS IS Reuter's sophomore year at the amusement park summer theater. Last year, he performed in "Jumpin' at the Jukebox" at Cedar Point's Centennial Theatre.

"It was kind of intimidating at first because I didn't know anybody," said Reuter, who's performed in a numright at home because I was there with other perform-

Amusement park theater is no carnival ride. Performers at places like Cedar Point do six shows-a-day, six days a week.

In preparation, Reuter and his fellow actors spend 12hour days in rehearsals for a week. "Radio Hot Spots" opened June 15 and runs through Sept. 3.

"It's a really good training ground if you're thinking about going into this as a career," Reuter said. "We did our show 390 times during the summertime. I came out of there pretty much begging for more."

Reuter got the notion to head to the park for the summer last year at WMU. He auditioned for the Cedar Point people, preparing two songs and doing a dance number.

"They took my measurements right, there," he sald. "So that's usually a good sign."

Reuter has received plenty of good signs in a short time. His list of theater productions is impressive.

IN THE CAPA program at Churchill, some of his theater credits include Oscar in "Sweet Charity," Kenneth in "The Bad Seed," Phillip Lombard in "Ten Little Indlans." At WMU, he played Billy's Sidekick in "Billy the Kid" and Basque in "The Misanthrope."

Reuter has also branched out, performing in the "Nutcracker" with Kalamazoo Ballet Co. and in "Chorus Line" at the Kalamazoo Civic Theatre.

"Radio Hot Spots" features three guys and three women as Reuter takes people on musical odyssey as deejay. Several actors auditioned for the part but Cronenwett added "We had him in mind."

Dear Lorenc.

I am interested in graphology for my students and myself. Just for the heck of it, I'm a teacher, wife and mother. I will be 60 in June and I write with my right hand.

Ċ.M., Oak Park

Dear C.M.,

Today, we are analyzing the handwriting of a people-oriented woman!.

You are happiest when in the company of others. You relate well to people and are helpful considerate friend, Recognition and approval from those around you is important. Basically, you are traditional in your approach to life and living. Hearth, home and gamily are most meaningful and bring you a full measure of happiness. Your home is probably neat and attractively furnished.

Although you are emotional by nature, you tend to hold your feelings inside. When things do not go well you retreat inwardly to look for answers and work out the problem.

At times you may be a tad impulsive. Then it's leap first and consider second. But rarely do you lose sight of protocol.

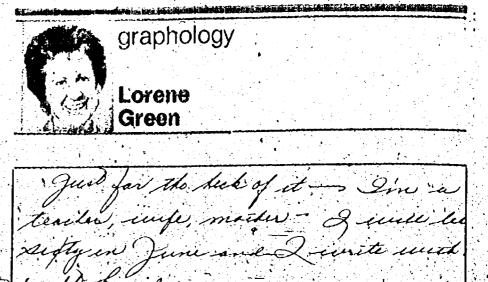

Obligations are taken seriously, I suspect you heard a lot of "shoulds" and "should nots" as you were growing up.

The self-conscious strokes here suggest you may have experienced ridicule in the past. The self-consciousness is probably more evident in unfamiliar situations or, among new people.

Seemingly, you have been hurt and have not been able to completely overcome the feelings of resentnient. Some guilt also appears in your handwriting. These are selfdefeating traits you may wish to work on

Your finaking is extremely logical and often practical, You seem to have a need to be right and may fret. over details.

Your discipline and organization are valuable traits for success in any field of endeavor. Augmenting them is determination and an indomitable will to succeed. Consciously, you decide what you wish to achieve and then work toward these goals. You prefer a structured setting in which to work and appear to be more interested in following than creating. You can also assume and handle responsibility well.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at. 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are all helpful and constructive feedback is always welcome.

Joe Summers performs for the audience at the Over 30 Guitar Club meeting, which takes place monthly at the Evola Music Center in Plymouth.

Club strings members along

By Julie Brown staff writer

It has been nearly 30 years since the Beatles arrived on U.S. shores, and a good 20 years since the group broke up. Even so, their influence on music remains strong to this day.

Many baby boomers grew up with the music of the Beatles and learned to play the guitar in part from listening to the Fab Four's songs. Those boomers are among members of the Over 30 Guitar Club.

Club meetings are 7 p.m. the first Monday of each month at the Evola Music Center, 215 W. Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth. The club is designed with adults in mind, although age isn't a major consideration.

"We're not so stringent that we're checking ID at the door," said Russ Tkac, store manager.

The club is for those who are interested in playing the guitar. They could weigh 30 pounds or more or be stores in Ulica and Waterford, with artists appearing on different nights at each location.

"I'M JUST going to play, basically an improvisational thing," Summers said prior to last week's session. He began playing the guitar at age

12. "I've been playing for a long time." Summers, from Ypsilanti, now spends much of his time in Florida. "I've been trying to relocate down to Florida, but Michigan summers keep drawing me back." He has played at restaurants and bars in Michigan, Florida and elsewhere.

HE PLAYED for an appreciative audience at Evola Music Center. Club members then asked Summers a variety of questions.

"You've got to be around other musicians and you've got to listen a lot," Summers told members. * He often plays on his own at res-members also appreciate the opportunity

We have such a diverse range of adults, male and female."

Beginners and more advanced players come to each meeting, Tkac said. There's no charge for participating, although hosting club meetings does help Tkac's business in the long run.

"If you can get somebody in and they find it's enjoyable, they're going to tell their friends," he said.

RICHARD CLARK of Livonia and his son, Rich, came to last week's session. They've been to earlier meetings at the Plymouth store.

"I think it's an excellent idea. I'm very interested in guitars," said Richard Clark a technical trainer for Blue Cross & Blue Shield. "I build guitars and my son plays guitars."

He plays the guitar a bit. Rich Clark, 21, is a junior at Western Michigan University, where he's studying engineering. He has played the guitar for about 11/2 years. "I think it's great," he said of the Over 30 Guitar Club. "I like the experience of being up close to someone who plays well. You learn a lot."

Signs send messages of hope

By Ariens Funke special writer

"Broken hearts mended here" proclaimed the sign in front of the Parkway Heights Fide Methodist Church in Redford.

The Rev: Donald Stanton, pastor of the church, always has his eye but calls , one of his favorites: "Don't for a thought provoking message to put on the church's outdoor sign.

"I think this is one of my favor- said Lee, 59 ites," said Stanton, 57 of Redford. Hopefully, it will catch somebody's eye.

Many churches have signs advertising the pastor's name and times of worship services. The signs an nounce important events, such as va: cation Bible school or a picnic for the congregation.

Some offer congratulations for weddings, anniversaries or births.

BUT A MESSAGE saying "Countvour blessings" or "A happy marriage is an earlier heaven" is a lowkey outreach it's a ministry" said the Re Mark McGilvrey, pastor of Mein A chorch of Christ in Livonia. "I this die key to getting (the messages) reac is to change them ofmigraid McGuivrey 41.

The bemee generally are inspirational, rather than doctrinal. They emphasize hope and God's abiding: love.

Most messages are short and punchy. Often, humor and plays-onwords are employed.

The Rev. Dr. DuWayne Lee, pastor of Faith Bible Church in Livonia, recount sheep - talk to the shepherd."

"It's an encouragement to pray," C. 15 6. 23

Where do the ideas come from? Companies which sell the outdoor signs sometimes provide publications containing inspirational messages.

The "Reader's Digest" is a favorite source. Church members make suggestions. Even a blurb on somebody's bulletin board or little messages on tea bag dunkers can provide clever nuggets.

And there is no shortage of books with clever quotations.

Lee especially enjoys a book called "Our Daily Bread." It is chock-full of upbeat one-liners.

The Praise Chapel Church of God in Plymouth sets a weekly theme, tied to the sermon and reflected throughout the worship service.

THE MESSAGES are geared to "meaningful worship," said the Rev.

Words of comfort, love greet many passers-by

Following is a sampling of inspirational messages which have er heaven," Lake Pointe Bible Chapappeared on local outdoor church : signs in recent months:

• "Seven days without church makes one weak Faith Bible Church, Livonia.

• "Enter to worship, exit to serve," Lake Pointe Bible Chapel, Plymouth.

• "The world needs more warm hearts and fewer hot heads," Memorial Church of Christ, Livonia

• "Egotist: One who is me-deep in conversation," Church of Christ,

• "A happy marriage is an earliel, Plymouth.

• "Don't couht sheep - talk to the shepherd," Falth Bible Church, Livonia. - L

• "God knows you up close & personal - does that concern or comfort you?," Dunning Park Bible Chapel, Redford.

• "He who laughs, lasts," Memorial Church of Christ, Livonia.

• "If you value eternity, make good use of time," Memorial Church of Christ, Livonia.

• "The Gospel is for sinners only," Parkway Heights Free MethBrian Tucker, 23, associate pastor. One of Tucker's recent favorite themes was "Beware of the barrenness of a busy life." It comes from a book called "Ordering Your Private World."

"I think everyone can associate with that (theme)," said Tucker, 'a Redford resident.

Some churches recruit members of the congregation to come up with message ideas and to maintain the outdoor signs.

At the Church of Christ in Plymouth, all proposed sign messages are, screened by a committee for appropriateness and good taste, David Thomas, the pastor, said. Church members maintain and change the sign board.

The church, which has an elevated and highly visible sign, is known to its neighbors as "the church with the sign," Thomas said.

"The main idea is to cause people to think about their life, hopefully in a spiritual sense," Thomas, 42, said of the sign messages.

"When you're in the wrong place, your right place is empty", recently appeared on the Plymouth Church of Christ sign.

CANTON RESIDENT Robert St. John is currently responsible for brainstorming the sign messages at the Lake Pointe Bible Chapel of Plymouth.

St. John, a 20-year member of the church, takes his job seriously.

"What we're trying to achieve is to give encouragement to people who pass by," said St. John, 47, an engineer. "They may be hurting or struggling. Perhaps it will whet somebody's appetite to come and visit."

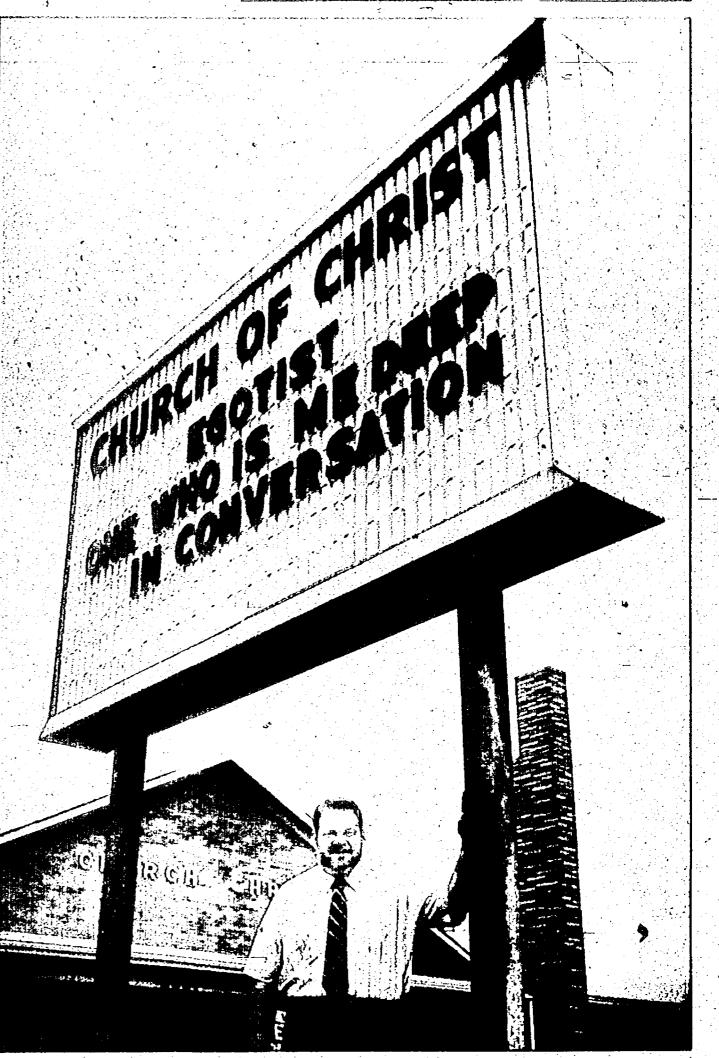

St. John's favorite message is "The best 4-letter word is love." He likes it because it is short. More to the point, St. John said, is that "love is a very important Christian concept."

Feedback is sporadic. Occasionally, someone will call a church to comment on a message. Thomas has received letters of appreciation.

None of the pastors interviewed have any evidence that the messages have attracted new members. But they expressed satisfaction at providing inspiration or comfort.

"You never know what seed has

Stereotypes based on gender can also hurt men

Men are in trouble. I counseled with a man recently who is facing. a divorce He has isolated himself and he has begun to drink. These are symptoms of more trouble in his life. They may be the cause of even greater problems.

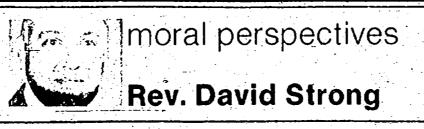

This man is said to be the cause of his family's separation This is not the whole story The children blame him The wife blames him. He is losing his nome and his family He is going to the outermost darkness where he will be pointed to as the cause of this tragedy.

Yes, he caused some of the pain. Others caused some of it as well Yet he is not going to be forgiven, nor included back into the affection of the family members. Healing seems a long way off, if ever.

I have seen this pattern over and over ugain The man leaves and loses most everything but his job. Yet why should anyone have compassion for a big, grown-up man? We men are tough and should be able to take care of ourselves. Who cares about the hurt that men feel? What is most significant in the eyes of society is the hurt that men'do.

A RECENT article suggests that there are other factors at work. It is a kind of prejudice against men. The evidence comes from a study of homeless people in America. Between 64 and 78 percent of all homeless adults are men.

Among single homeless adults, 78 percent are men. This means that with the higher death rate of men compared with women, particularly in this category of persons of poverty and often advanced age, a lot of men are in trouble.

The author of the article on homeless men believes that there is a prejudice against the homeless r. helpless man. He, is considered worthless. Male losers are "unworthy of help." We can easily identify a woman as a victim. She deserves protection and help. Men in such circumstances do not.

What can be worse in our society than an unemployed man! The answer is an unemployed man who drinks and has left his family. Even worse than this, cites the author, men in this condition are scary. We imagine that they are not simply worthless, but dangerous to our society.

Such prejudice against men in trouble is multiplied when the person is a minority race. Most if not all have experienced rejection, betrayal and even violence because of their racial heritage,

Will society change? Those who consider themselves religious must address this problem. Do we believe in a God who has equal forgiveness for men and women? Do we support a means to provide work for men at the bottom of our society?

sign."

WOMEN AND children have welfare. Men are supposed to get a job. Over and over again, I have men come to our church and ask for a job. There are no jobs available.

I call upon you to look and see. I call upon you to have compassion for the man who is divorced and alone. We must talk to the man who is without a job and find out what this person experiences.

Religious persons must begin by identifying our prejudices, forgiving ourselves and changing our ways. These things are very difficult, yet they are at the heart of a faith and commitment to a God that renews and transforms life.

Let's face it. If men are in trouble, we all are in trouble.

Village road dubbed Joshua Simmons Drive

By Janice Tigar-Kramer special writer

The family of Joshua Simmons, a Livonia Township ploneer and the area's most prosperous farmer in 1850, applauded the naming of the road winding through Greenmead Historical Village as Joshua Simmons Drive.

The road was christened June 30. About 40 descendants of Simmons came from Northville, Novi, Plymouth, Grand Rapids, Florida, Ohio, site in 1920 regulation it Greenmond

tion

The event marked the 150th anniversary of the Simmons/Hill House, the stately Greek Revival-style house that stands in the northwestsection of the village, Eight Mile and Newburgh.

Simmons, a farmer and native of New York, had the house (called Meadow Brooke) built in 1841, his third and most lavish home on the site. Sherwin Hall, a Detroit lawyer, and his wife, Jean, bought the farm-

Texas and California for the celebra- after ther childhood home in Baltimore. . . .

> Welcoming the crowd, John Colley, Livonia Historical Commission secretary, said: "This is the 15th year Livonia' has owned the Greenmead property, just one-tenth of the time it was owned by the Simmons family."

COLLEY PRAISED the city, historic groups and Friends for the Development of Greenmead for taking on a project as ambitious as Greenmead Historical Village, which boasts 25 historic buildings in the village and farmsite.

Fourteen have been moved to the village from their original sites in Livonia; seven are restored and open to the public.

"Greenmead's wonderful for the heritage of Livonia and for the children of the community who have a chance to see our history," he said. Standing near the new street sign. between the old carriage house and the caretaker's house, Marian Lynch,

This weekend, you can see Squire's handiwork as well as watch it being made during the a 11th annual Art in the Park in Plymouth.

"It's a great way to keep organized," said Squire in an interview at her Livonia home. Squire began weaving baskets five years ago after taking Livonia Community Education classes. "I just always have to be busy," she said. "Making baskets, I have something to show for my 'busyness.' '

From Egypt to China, basket making is an ancient art, thousands of years old. The history of basketry is difficult, if not impossible, to determine because the roots, vines, grasses and fiber materials disintegrate over time. It is known that basketry preceded pollery as a craft in North and South America.

FOR 9.000 years at least, North American Indians have used their skills to make baskets. American Indians gathered grasses and reeds to construct baskets for storing food, sleeping mats and pitchcoated boats.

Squire decorates the baskets with folk art images, ranging from apples to Amish girls. Using acrylic tole paint, she creates country themes on ash from onehalf to three inches wide, interwoven with the rattan. Interwoven curls, American Indian style, as well as ratian roses decorate other baskets by Squire. Squire works 40 hours weaving baskets the week before a show, 30 hours weekly otherwise. "It's a great way to pass time while waiting for the kids at cheerleading practice or T-ball," she said.

Arts and crafts to brighten Kellog

By Linda Ann Chomin special writer

The 11th annual "Art in the Park" will line the sidewalks surrounding Kellogg Park in the heart of Plymouth Saturday-Sunday, July 13-14, filling the historic streets with art, music and food.

About 280 artists from more than 30 states and 100 Michigan communities will exhibit paintings, pottery, sculpture, jeweiry, wearable art, stained glass, woodwork and calligraphy. "We're real excited about this year's show. It'll be bigger. The quality is better and the variety is wider," said Dianne Quinn, founder, producer and director of Art in the Park.

Free music will add to the festivities. Music will ring freely through the air as Barbryellen performs North American folk songs. Rochester musician Guy Sferlazza along with Chautauqua Express will provide a hands-on learning experience for children with his musical instruments. "Kim Murley of Plymouth will be strolling through the streets with her hammered dulcimer," Quinn said.

THE PLYMOUTH Community Arts Council offers yet another learning experience for kids of all ages -- a booth for creating handson art.

On Sunday, July 14, 14 artists will demonstrate their artistic knowledge under "The Gathering" on Penniman. Hand-built clay. work, basket weaving, cloth marbling, English smocking, children's toys and Bonsai trees will be created before the eyes of fair visitors.

To raise money, the Plymouth chapter of American Association of University Women will sell arts and crafts books.

Visitors to the fair will be able to rest and refresh themselves under the shade of the trees in Kellogg Park. Buttered popcorn and fresh pastries are only two of the many food items that will be offered for sale.

Plymouth artist Thomas LeGault in booth 155 will demonstrate acrylic painting techniques at faster-than-lightning speed.

LeGault, after practicing painting for 21 years, has been known to complete a traditional landscape bathed in a pink mist in 90 minutes.

"I'm really going to be showing off because this is the first time I'll be doing a home show at Plymouth's Art in the Park," LeGault said. "I actually create some of my best pieces at the shows."

Families, art, food and entertainment paints a perfect picture of Art in the Park. "I thought, we (Plymouth) had a beautiful setting here in the park for art," Quinn said. "We started out with 30 artists and now there are 280.'

New festival gardens fulfill 12-year dream

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

Thank goodness, Mary Bonnell persevered. More than 12 years ago, Bonnell, costume designer and later artist relations manager for Oakland University's Meadow Brook Theatre, began to talk about gardens on the festival grounds."

"So many artists would come and say, What a beautiful place you have here.' I'at Boone loved to jog along the trails with a limuusine following him, and Kris Kristofferson the big sculptures were put up; that was a dandy idea, but what about natural art, I said."

Well, she kept refining her idea, theb inspired by the way'florists donate displays for Christmas at Meadow Brook Hall, she drew up a new plan. And this time it worked.

With the approval of Stuart Hyke, director of cultural affairs, and the folks at the university, she pounded the pavement and made calls earlier this spring.

And the result? She found 34 firms willing to give time, talent and materials to turn the east side of the festival grounds into one of the loveliest garden spots in the metropolitan area.

A DOZEN firms have built or are in the midst of building individual gardens along 1,500 feet of walkway (donated). A new gazebo with a shake roof in a circular brick courtyard makes a dramatic focal point for the gardens, which randomly follow the pathway from the front entrance at the top of the hill down and around the back of the hill to the south parking lot Bonnell, who's been on the site ever since the activity started in earlý May, said, "I'm just thrilled. It has exceeded my expectations ... I thought they might be using leftover or excess material, but they sure didn't skimp on the plant material." She strolled along the newly pavedwalkway pointing out specimen trees and shrubs and noting items of special interest --- the attractive design of the Weigand's Nursery (Uti-(ca) annual and perennial gardens just inside the front gate; and the pergola about to receive its second coat of paint just across the walk in the garden by Goldner Walsh of Pontlac already looking settled in, with roses, annuals and a tall beech tree. ## Hometown slides wanted for show

Amateur photographers from around Michigan will have the chance to exhibit their work in the new Michigan Historical Museum in downtown Lansing.

As part of its temporary exhibit, "Still Memories: A Century of Michigan Photography," which opens Sept. 21, the museum is holding a photo contest to locate outstanding color slides of contemporary life in Michigan hometowns.

"This exhibit will feature Michigan hometowns as seen today by amateur photographers, both young and old," said Secretary of State Richard Austin, Michigan's official historian.

"This is an excellent opportunity to view different interpretations of what reminds Michigan residents of their local town or city.

"While we may receive photographic entries of city parks and downtown streets, we are sure to receive snapshots of families and individuals enjoying everyday activities," Austin added.

We want to show Michigan through a photographer's eye and who better to help us than Michiganians who have captured that spirit on film." In addition to the 80 photographs being selected for "Hometown Reflections," the exhibit will fea-ture photographs from the State Archives of Michigan taken between 1857 and 1957, as well as period artifacts.

THE SLIDES may feature any aspect of hometown life in Michigan and must be submitted in 35mm format no later than Aug. 16 Entries are limited to one per person and become the property of the Michigan Historical Museum. Therefore, duplicate slides, rather than originals, should be submitted.

The 80 individuals whose slides are chosen for the exhibit will be recognized in the "Hometown Reflections" section of the exhibit. All will be given certificates of recognition, with the top five entries receiving prizes donated by Kodak.

Entry forms may be obtained from up to 1,000 Kodak dealers, Secretary of State branch offices or by sending a self-addressed, stamped No. 10size envelope to "My Michigan Hometown" Pho-tography Contest, Michigan Historical Museum, 171 W. Allegan St., Lansing 40910

Detroit Tigers Hall of Fame broadcaster Ernle Harwell of Farmington Hills will sign copies of his'new book, "Ernie Harwell's Diamond Gems," 7-8:30 p.m. Saturday, July 13, at Coopersmith's bookstore at Laurel Park Place, Six Mile and Newburgh, Livonia.

PHOTORAMA

More than 4,000 photographers from across the Pavilton, Evergreen Road and Civic Center Drive. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday.

More than 100 dealers will display new and used photo equipment. A workshop on model photography will be offered both days. Admission to the workshops, conducted by Farmington Hills photographer Alan Lowy, is free with admission to the show.

A free shutter check will be offered with admission by Mid-West Camera Repair. Photorama USA will offer a hotline with further show information, 884-2242.

AMERICANA ART

Americana artist David McCall Johnston of Farmington Hills will display his opaque watercolor paintings in the main gallery of the Scarab Club, 217 Farnsworth, Detroit (behind the Detroit Institute of Arts), July 17-22.

Hours are 11. a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday, Wednes-day, Friday and Saturday, 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday and 2-6 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free.

The show, called "Spirit of America," includes about 40 prints and original watercolors, including a print of his Mount Rushmore painting, which was commissioned for the monument's golden anniversary celebration in Rapid City, S.D., for the Fourth of July.

Mount Rushmore prints will be available at the gallery for $175, with proceeds donated to the Mount Rushmore Preservation Fund.

RICKERBY PHOTOS

Great moments in recent U.S. history are among the images captured in an exhibit at the Detroit Historical Museum highlighting the work of UPI and Life photographer Arthur B. Rickerby. Titled "The Photographs of Arthur B. Rickerby, the UPI and Life Years, 1941-71," the exhibit will run from July 17 through January.

The 70-piece collection is a nationally traveling exhibition coming directly from the Smithsonian Institution in Washington. It's the first time a retrospective of Rickerby's works are being shown to a national audience.

Some of the photos feature well-known Detroit celebrities and locations, including Alex Karas Lem Barney and the Ford Motor Co. Proving Grounds. The photographs also depict significant moments in U.S. history, such as the Japanese surrender aboard the USS Missouri in 1945 and the day President John Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas.

Call 369-8290 for details.

CONCERT SERIES

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra will perform two concerts as part of the 1991 Meadow Brook Music Festival Chrysler Concert Series in Baldwin Pavilion at Oakland University in Rochester Hills.

Awash with color Belle Isle gardens are a bloomin'

The gardens are blooming on Belle Isle — that special, unusual island in Detroit. The conservatory, with its spectacular displays, is visited by many people through the year, but I wonder how many are aware of the beautiful gardens on the east side of that dome?

Many of the gardens are planted and maintained by city employees. The resulting avenues of floral displays are a treat for weary eyes. A well-kept hedge outlines the areas with large expanses of grass for leisurely strolling separating the gardens."

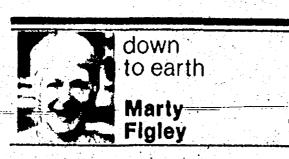

The north section of this area is devoted to roses. One side boasts heritage roses (all species before 1867), which are planted in honor or in memory of a special person. Asrecord is kept to assure that all is in order and that only heritage roses are used.

Across the expanse of grass, a modern rose bed of hybrid teas, floribundas and others (no minis) is carefully tended. These rose gardens, begun in. 1989, are under the direction of rosarian Victoria Zamojska-Lang of Warren. She is a member of the Belle Isle Botanical Society, a dedicated group of several hundred volunteers who work diligently to keep this garden and the perennial and annual beds in good shape.

The Belle Isle Botanical Society was begun in 1988 with the encouragement of Joe Stanton of Indian Village.

THE LATEST project, a huge undertaking, is to restore the large lily pond between the conservatory and the aquarium. Much overgrown foliage and plants have been removed and pruned. Care has been taken to save as many original plants as possible, while new ones, as well as annuals have snake bush, four Sargent crabs and a tri-color maple can be seen, as well as many begonias, which add color and interest.

The cement used in the pond cracked, so repairs need to be done before water is put in and fish and water plants are introduced.

The society's goal is to keep the beauty of Belle-Isle alive, serve as docents in the conservatory and work in the gardens.

It was my pleasure to speak to this group in February. The meeting was held in the nature center on the island, a wonderful place to learn and observe. I highly recommend a faunt to this spot. Take a stroll along the river, enjoy the fountain, the zoo, the conservatory and the gardens. A picnic would be in order. You may want to try a bit of fishing off the piers or from the river bank.

One other observation: notice the lovely iron fence around the gardens. It was erected in memeory of the famous architect Leonard B. Willeke by his wife. Leona.

You can join the Belle Isle Botanical Society, a non-profit group. Write to P.O. Box 14693, Detrolt, 48214 for information. There are several classes of membership.

Mayfair market still busy after all these years

By Doug Funke staff writer

Mayfair Realty, opened in Detroit's Rosedale Park in 1955 by nine employees of an existing firm unhappy with the way things were going, has prospered in the suburbs . for nearly three decades.

One of those young mutineers, Bill Willis, a Farmington Hills resident, remains active in the business today.

"We saw a chance to take a more aggressive position in marketing," recalled Willis, 59, now vice president. "Five of us at that time pooled our money. It wasn't very profitable for the first two years. We had to put money back in the business to make it work."

They took the name of the adiacent subdivision - Mayfair Park as the name of the firm and endured. "People with us were the top producers in the business," Willis said.

The firm followed the Detroit migration west with subsequent moves to Redford in the early 1960s and to Livonia a decade later.

Those two communities still are targeted by the firm due to their affordability and reputation of schools. MAYFAIR CONTINUES to sell in

Detroit and has branched out into new houses priced at several hundred thousand dollars in Gakland

But the affordable suburban resale market - with houses available in a variety of price ranges including starter homes - is the firm's bread and butter...

Last year, the office team of 28 sold more than 400 houses for an aggregate of $33.3 million, Willis said. S We've been following the marketout," he said. "The biggest thing that started the exodus (from Detroit) was busing, and I was here with the houses. We deal in more affordable housing for the average person."

Willis, whose father, Bill, was in the business, and whose son. Jim, also is associated with the firm, has no plans to slow down." The attractions?

"IT'S A BETTER income you can make working for someone else and being your own boss," he said.

Willis ticked off several changes he's seen in the business over the years. Buyers and sellers are more consumer-oriented. Closing costs are much higher now due to soaring taxes and the concept of points attached to mortgages. More women are working as sales agents.

"I think what's changed the most is training programs through the Multi-List Service that weren't available when I got started," he said. "I learned by hard knocks." Now, they learn through books.

"With the computer," said son, Jim, "If you have a huyer who knows what he wants, you can put the parameters in and pull them right. out."

But Bill Willis laughingly admitted to avoiding computers. "Everything's photographic memory," he sald.

WILLIS OFFERED his thoughts on a couple of other topics:

• On the secret to his success: "You have to be very honest and be very aggressive. Today, you have to. do what the competition isn't doing, go the extra mile. In service, there's now," Willis said.

a big difference in saying and doing."

He told the story about telling a telephone inquirer that he would mail some information, then surprising by hand-delivering later that day.

• On home buyers today: "People buying a house used to work their way up to the (dream) house. Kids today tend to want to start where their parents left off. Kids stretch themselves to the limit today:"

But if young buyers seem to be greedy, they do have an advantage their parents didn't."

"Financing is much more flexible-

No deal better than a bad deal

I have an offer to purchase, but it doesn't provide a date for the purchaser to get a mortgage. It indicates the offer will stay open as long as he has made reasonable efforts to obtain a mortgage. I am desperate to sell but am wondering about the propriety of such a provision. What do you suggest?

Sometimes no deal is better than a bad deal. I have seen situations where such one-sided provisions give the purchaser an unlimited amount of time to obtain financing and many times the purchaser does not even make a good faith effort to obtain financing. But if such a provision is in the purchase agreement, the agreement can be open for months short of the seller going to court to get a declaratory pronouncement on the terms and conditions of the agreement. Do not sign such an agreement that does not allow you a clear escape clause in the event that the purchaser does not obtain financing at a stipulated rate for a stipulated sum within a certain period of time. In this case, let the seller beware.

I am the secretary of our association and we are in the middle of a major battle with the developer including litigation. The developer is attempting to divide the members of the association through what we consider to be dirty tricks. Letters have been sent to members the association by so-called "interested citizens" of the condominium attacking members of the board and their legal counsel. What can we do to stem the tide of the developer under these circumstances?

First you must try to confirm to the extent possible that the developer or its agents are responsible for the "dirty tricks." Depending on the nature of them, have your attorney determine whether they are in violation of any ethical or legal rules regarding the incidents of litigation. Also, keep your members apprised of the fact that this is a common tactic on the part of some developers who are engaged in litigation.

To the extent that any slanderous or defamatory statements have been made against any members of the board or its legal counsel, you should examine remedies available to the association including additional claims against the developer or persons in concert with the developer.

May marked the fourth straight month of increases in area house. and condo sales over 1990, according to Metro MLS, the multiple listing service.

May sales rise again

MLS members sold 1,566 units, 1,446 single-family homes and 120 condominiums, respresenting a 13.8 perceat jump over last May. Year-to-date totals are up 6.6

percent over last year. Metro MLS covers a 1,600-square-mile are in northwest Detroit, western Wayne and Oakland counties.

"The home market here began to tail off rather sharply in the last quarter of 1990 but started a signifleant turnaround in February," said Allen C. King, Metro MLS most incoem levels.

president. "We knew that a lot of potential buyers were being delayed during that period as consumers waited to gauge the effects of the business downturn."

House listings are 13 percent ahead of a year ago. The median price of houses and condos sold in May was $86,950, 6.5 percent higher than a year ago. The year-todate median is $84,000, up 5.1 percent.

"Homes priced above $100,000 now account for nearly 40 percent of our sales," King said. "But one in four homes still go for under $60,000, so that we can generally find allordable proeprties to match

staff writer

If you're driving along a major mile road and someone has removed the "Welcome to - City" signs, how would you know when you're leaving one community and entering another?

things, but it has not been a total success. Many of the communities that have been built since the end of World War II – and in some cases in the last two decades - lack a focal point.

Ironically, many towns with a focal point areas like downtown Birmingham, Rochester, Plymouth, Farmington and those further out like Clarkston and Milford - could not be built today.

Planners have forgotten the fundamentals that formed them, according to Robert Gibbs, president tural themes run throughout the project's commerof Gibbs Planning Group of Bloomfield Hills. Curiously, those very same things that make small conventional planning wisdom, Gibbs said.

Small lots, street trees, sidewalks, walking to the corner store, knowing your neighbors, sitting on the front porch, kids playing on the front lawn, commons, town squares, and parks don't translate well lots.

"That may be changing," he said.

village or town building - takes lessons learned from old villages and the principles learned in retail development and combines them into projects that take mixed-use developments to their next evolution.

"What makes a neo-traditional project work is Modern planning has accomplished positive the relationship between the various aspects of the project," Gibbs said. "You have to understand the dynamics - you have to make it work."

In a neo-traditional development, people living in the project are more likely to walk to the store, he said: Why? Because the project is designed in such a way as to make walking comfortable and driving seem absurd.

That means there has to be a community identity and continuity - similar materials and architeccial, residential and special uses, Gibbs said.

Site lines are established with street trees and towns and villages so charming are also shunned in roads to draw the eye to focal points like parks; pedestrian links - remember sidewalks? - bind homes and retail areas.

But how the elements are used is less important than how they relate, Gibbs said. "People get hung up on the details - they think if they have cute to "sidewalkless" suburbs with homes on half-acre benches and light poles that it's is neo-traditional - it's not."

PERHAPS THE most important aspect is scale, he said. The typical retail strip wouldn't fit in the middle of a residential development.

Russell Lewis, associate planner in the Oakland County planning department, said to his knowledge, there are no neo-traditional developments in southeastern Michigan, but he believes that will change in the next decade.

, Developers have already scored big with these "neo-traditional town" developments in New England and Florida, but neo-traditional projects are slow in coming to the-Midwest, he said.

The evolution of modern municipal zoning has made neo-traditional planning unworkable, Lewis said. Larger lots because of setbacks, wider roads, wetlands and woodlands preservation and other restrictions preclude neo-traditional development, he said.

Planning must be re-evaluated, if notireinvented, he sald. "Current planners are not familiar with what. goes into the traditional planning process."

Traditional planning creates communities and projects with a focal point; modern planning creates buffer zones, Lewis said.

BY EXAMPLE, Lewis said an acquaintance told him a story about a visitorito this country who upon being asked what they thought of the United States responded: "There's no there, there."

When municipal planners are planning for development, they are looking at things that can be controlled by ordinance, but they are of planning -- design, he said. Planning is not master plans, ordi-

Construction hampered y concrete hauler strike

By Doug Funke staff writer

A new building for service operations at Livonia Chrysler Plymouth remains partially finished and idle for want of a concrete floor.

Holtzman & Silverman, a building company based in Farmington Hills, is ready to start 14 houses in one of its developments. But the inability to get curbs poured has stalled the project.

And if you're waiting for a new driveway or concrete work around your house, well, you know the frustration

A monthlong strike of concrete transit drivers in Wayne and parts of Oakland County has had an impact on the local construction scene.

"It's having a great effect," said James Bonadeo, president of ~ the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan "They (drivers) deliver the concrete. We can't get any concrete, so we can't put in any basements. Without a basement, you can't build a house."

TEAMSTERS LOCAL 247, representing some 600 drivers in negotiations with an association of 27 concrete suppliers, is asking for a raise of $1.60 per hour over three years plus pension and health improvements.

Drivers now make nearly $16 per hour, said Ben Mosqueda, business agent for the Teamsters.

Different Teamsters locals represent different areas. Local 247 generally covers all of Wayne and Washtenaw counties and pockets of Oakland County.

Builders working in some areas of Oakland where agreement has been reached with other Teamster locals or builders supplied by the handful of concrete independents with which Local 247 has settled are less affected.

It's all a function of where builders happen to be building.

Builders can get their concrete from any supplier. But concrete won't set properly if trucked longer distances. And with demand exceeding supply now, some builders get stuck.

Builders like Stephen Taglione, president of the B.B.C. Group of Farmington Hills.

"We have nine locations around town, and it's hurting two or three badly," Taglione said. "If you don't get foundations started, you're stopped before you start."

Some two dozen potential houses currently are on hold, he said.

"Every site under construction has been touched by it (strike), some more adverseley than others," said Gary Cooper, executive vice president for Holtzman & Silverman.

Some subcontractors in Oakland are paying premiums to get concrete in a timely fashion even when it is available, Cooper added.

THAT COULD result in pass-ons and higher prices for buyers.

Cooper also touched on another concern - buyers canceling orders — should the stike become lengthy.

"I would hate to see a labor problem affecting houses already sold," he said.

Holtzman & Silverman projects now on hold due to the strike include 14 houses in a subdivision in Ypsilanti stalled by curbs and another half dozen houses awaiting foundations and base. ments scattered throughout Oakland County, مند ا

Bonadeo, a Plymouth builder, said the strike has stalled about three of his houses,

Abe Ran, a vice president for Biltmore Properties in Troy and Byrne Benson, president of a building company in Waterford, both said that they haven't been impacted by the strike vet:

Benson, who specializes in houses priced at less than $100,000, added that he will be affected if concrete still isn't. available by mid-August.

SOMÉ BUILDERS like Bonadeo said they've noticed a trickle-down effect to other building trades.

"We get all kinds of calls from carpenters we've never heard of looking for work," he said.

Residential builders aren't the only ones affected by the strike.

Livonia Chrysler Plymouth was in the middle of replacing two older service buildings with one modern structure.

"It stopped everything," said Gary Marl, general manager of the dealership. "The shell is all done and half the floor is in."

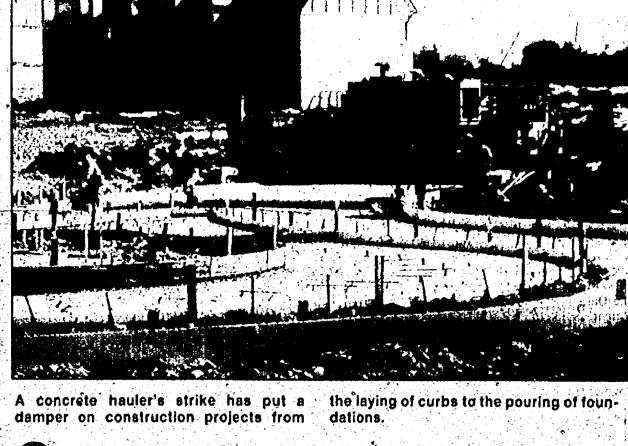

To compensate, the dealership has moved service operations to the body shop and extended hours. Marl figures that the strike will cost the dealership $10,000 per month in overtime, temporary phone lines, extra security and other internal adjustments.

"It's very disorganized," Marl stated. "I said thank-goodness it isn't winter.

Mosqueda said just before the July 4th holiday that he expected the strike could last a couple more weeks.

"Summer's getting shorter," he said. "I think this is the time to be doing this when the weather is in your favor."

Concrete can be poured year-round, but a premium is charged when additives are included during winter months.
