Sparks fly at budget review

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

New Wayne-Westland school board members came under sharp attack during a budget review session Wednesday for calling into question some of the spending priorities of the previous board.

New board members raised concerns about spending in areas ranging from textbooks to teacher conferences, sparking an outburst from longtime board member Kathleen Chorbagan.

Chorbagan defended veteran board members, three of whom were ousted in the June 10 election — and she backed Superintendent Dennis O'Neill, whose administration has been criticized by new board members.

"I am not going to sit here week after week and ignore these condemnations when I think we made some very good decisions," Chorbagan said. "I don't think that's fair to us (long-time board members) or the superintendent."

Moreover, Chorbagan called on board president Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek, also a longtime board member, to "correct" new board members when they make statements that Chorbagan said are misleading.

"That's your job," she told Kozorosky-Wiacek. "You've got to keep control of those ac-sions."

CHORBAGIAN'S OUTBURST prompted Kozorosky-Wiacek to warn her not to speak out of turn at board meetings. Kozorosky-Wiacek told Chorbagan to first raise her hand, "and I will let you speak to the issue."

New board members Vicki Welty, Laurel Raisanen and Fred Warmbler won election June 10, defeating incumbents Matthew McCusker, Sharon Scott and Michael Reddy.

During their election campaigns, the new members raised concerns about the spending priorities of the previous board and the school administration. Raisanen went so far as to suggest the firing of O'Neill and an "immediate" search for a new superintendent.

New board members continued to probe spending practices during Wednesday's session.

"Everybody's playing politics with this," Chorbagan said.

At one point, Chorbagan accused Warmbler of "a personal attack on me" and said his allegations about her spending priorities were false.

"He's wrong, and he's lying to you," she said.

WATER USE restrictions that had been placed on Westland residents because of lower water pressure in the city have been lifted, according to Westland Mayor Robert Thomas' office. The restrictions were lifted Wednesday, meaning residents can now use their lawn sprinklers at any time they choose.

The music ranges from 1950s to contemporary country. Cayley Park is at Grand Traverse and Darwin, off Wildwood between Palmer and Glenwood. The concert begins at 6 p.m. Patrons are advised to bring lawn chairs and blankets for seating. For more information call 522-3918.

U.S. NAVAL ACADEMY Midshipman James D. Hicks of Westland recently won the 1991 A. Stuart Pitt Memorial Poetry Prize. His winning submission consisted of two poems, "Birthday Boy" and "Hershey Bar Everywhere," which describe both the entertainments and the menaces of life in modern suburbia, according to a news release from the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md.

In announcing their decision, judges praised Hicks' "crisp and unexpected imagery." Hicks will be entering his sophomore year at the Academy in the fall. The competition is conducted under the auspices of the Academy of American Poets, which sponsors individual poetry contests at colleges across the nation.

CALLING ALL soccer fans: The Wayne-Westland Soccer League will be accepting registrations for fall soccer at the Bailey Recreation Center on Ford Road, near Carlson, on Friday, July 16 from 8 to 8 p.m. Copies of birth certificates for league files is required. IT MAY BE a long time before area ponds and lakes freeze over and ice skaters head for the ice, but the Westland Sports Arena offers skating as a way to cool down in the summer months. Hours at the arena, 6210 Y. Wildwood, are 4-4:45 p.m. Fridays; 1-2:45 p.m. and 7-8:45 p.m. Saturdays; and 1-3:45 p.m. Sundays. Admission is $2.50 for adults, $1 for students and $1 for skate rental. For more information call 725-4999 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Betting scheme busted

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Two Westland men pleaded guilty Thursday to running an apartment-based illegal gambling business that police said resulted in potential earnings of thousands of dollars a week.

Fredman E. Cox, 62, and Paul Petryczkowiec, 56, appeared before 18th District Court Judge Gail McKnight on gambling conspiracy charges stemming from a raid in which Westland police and the FBI seized hundreds of dollars and gambling documents.

The men used a Westland Estates apartment, west of Wayne Road between Warren and Hunter, as a base for a sports-betting scheme in which they accepted bets by telephone on such sporting events as the NCAA basketball finals, said Westland police Sgt. Timothy Abramski.

Under a plea agreement Thursday, felony charges were dropped and each defendant pleaded guilty to two misdemeanor charges. They are scheduled for sentencing Aug. 9.

Pending sentencing, Cox and Petryczkowiec remain free on a $5,000 personal bond. Each could be jailed up to a year and fined up to $500, Abramski said.

IN THE afternoon raid March 23, authorities had to force their way into the apartment where they found schedules of sporting events, memo

Man attacked

Friend questions police response time

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

An attacker clubbed a 26-year-old Westland man with a wooden stake and tried to run him down with a pickup truck in the parking lot of the Westland Police Department — then sped away before police could apprehend him, a police report said.

The attack occurred as a 23-year-old friend of the victim went inside the police station to seek help — help that he said did not come quickly enough.

"I'm really disappointed in the police," he said. "We went there for help. We went there for safety."

THE INCIDENT started about 3 a.m. Tuesday at a fast-food restaurant on south Wayne Road, where the 26-year-old and 23-year-old had gone after returning from a trip to Cedar Point amusement park in Ohio.

The two friends, who asked not to be identified, had pulled behind a black Chevy S-10 pickup truck in the restaurant drive-through lane when the truck driver shouted at them and accused them of tossing an empty beer can in his truck bed. They denied it.

The men told police the truck driver waited until they drove north on Wayne Road and began following them, trying to force them off the road. The truck then followed them, west on Marquette, north on Newburgh and east on Ford to the police station, where they went for help.

The two men got out of their 1982 Grand Prix, and the 23-year-old said he rushed inside for help as the truck driver got out of his vehicle with a 3-foot wooden stake and struck the 26-year-old behind his left ear. The attacker then got back into his truck and tried to run over the victim, the police report said.

THE TRUCK driver missed the 26-year-old, but smashed into the Grand Prix and damaged a car door. About that time, police officers came outside as the assailant sped away, squealing his tires and swerving as he fled east on Ford.

Neither the victims nor the police were able to get a license plate number for the pickup. Though police tried to pursue the assailant, they lost him.

The 26-year-old said he believed the assailant could have been apprehended if police had responded quickly enough after he reported the attack to the front desk.

"I think they handled it very poorly," he said.

MANY PEOPLE have the misconception that many officers are stationed at the police department, Westland police Chief Michael Frayer said.

Grant boosts arson-prevention program

The city of Westland has received a $25,000 grant to boost an arson-prevention program aimed at children.

The state grant will assist a program in which Westland firefighters talk individually with juveniles and go into schools in efforts to teach about the dangers of arson.

The grant from the Michigan Department of Commerce was announced this month by state Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, and state Rep. Justine Barns, D-Westland.

"THIS GRANT will go a long way towards assisting the community against the threat of arson," Faust said.

The city of Westland submitted the grant proposal to the Department of Commerce last fall. State budget woes had threatened such grants, which had been frozen, but officials appeared pleased that the local grant survived the ax.

Westland fire Chief Larry Lane said the money will be used for what is called the Juvenile Firesetter Program.

Trained personnel involved in the program not only address youngsters in the school setting, but also counsel them one-on-one based on referrals from schools and parents.

"Sometimes it might be a parent who has a child that plays with matches," Lane said. "Or if we have a problem with a child in an arson situation, an officer will follow up on it."

At times, Lane added, children may have deep-rooted problems that require psychiatric help for their fire-setting tendencies.

The program has been lauded by local and state officials.

"The city of Westland has provided an innovative program to attack the problem of arson and the state has recognized that," Barns said, commenting on the grant.

Board members blasted at budget review session

The budget controversy exploded during the board's first meeting since the election of new officers on July 1.

Kozorosky-Wiacek called Wednesday's special session after other board members requested it. New board members wanted the budget review, though the $85.1 million budget already had been approved June 24.

Raisanen questioned why the school district last year received $2.3 million more in revenues than had been projected.

Randy Leipa, interim fiscal officer, attributed much of the additional revenue to an unexpected $1.3-million infusion of state aid — money that arrived late in the fiscal year.

Warmbler raised questions about textbook purchases, indicating that he had believed a $12.9 million bond issue passed several years ago would bring all textbooks up to date.

But the board recently approved spending $600,000 for elementary reading books, and O'Neill said new elementary math books will be proposed in the next year. O'Neill said the $12.9 million bond issue was "never" intended to update all textbooks.

During Wednesday's meeting, some board members appeared concerned as the board became bogged down in discussion about spending items — some of which involved small amounts of money.

Losing gamble

pads containing the names and addresses of bettors, a calculator and other documents that indicated a gambling scheme.

As many as 50 bettors were named in the documents that indicated wagers were made, ranging from $25 to $500, Abramski said. Cox and Petryczkowycz apparently earned their living from the gambling proceeds, he said.

During the raid, two telephones on the kitchen table rang numerous times, a police report said. FBI special agent Eugene Kroj answered the telephone and received wagers on several sports events, the report said.

Authorities arrested Cox and Petryczkowycz and seized $500 — believed to be gambling proceeds — from the apartment. Police also found $1,366 in Petryczkowycz's car, and an additional $1,694 was found stuffed in Cox's sock after he had been taken to the police station, police said.

AFTER THEIR arrest, the men were released from custody as investigators sought witnesses and additional evidence used for a warrant issued by McKnight on May 20. Cox and Petryczkowycz stood mute two days later during an arraignment.

Their guilty pleas came Thursday, when they appeared before McKnight for what was to have been a preliminary examination to determine whether the case should go to trial.

Attorneys agreed to drop the felony charge in return for guilty pleas on the misdemeanor charges, Abramski said. The agreement to dismiss felony charges stemmed, in part, from a background investigation that revealed neither Cox nor Petryczkowycz had any prior criminal record, Abramski said.

Man attacked outside station

"It's a fallacy that we have a whole bunch of police officers in the police station, when they're really out on the roads," Frayer said.

Tuesday's incident was not the only time complainants have come to the police station seeking immediate help, Frayer said. There have been instances in which family disputes actually spilled over to the police department lobby, he said.

Restaurants target in late night burglaries

Burglars hungry for cash have struck four Plymouth Road restaurants and one on Middlebelt near Seven Mile in the last three weeks, Livonia police said.

Police are unsure if the after-hours burglaries are related.

"We're continuing our investigation. There are no suspects at this time," detective Lt. Mike Murray said Friday.

DePalma's, 31735 Plymouth, is the latest victim in the burglary spree.

The Italian restaurant was robbed of $2,800 cash and other goods in a break-in early Friday.

THOMAS' Family Dining, Archie's and the Daly's restaurant on Plymouth near Farmington Road have all been burglarized since June 23, police said.

The Elias Brothers Big Boy, 19190 Middlebelt, was hit June 26 in a similar burglary.

The thieves had to bypass alarm systems in the incidents, police said.

POLICE WERE tipped to Friday's burglary after a call from a witness shortly before 3 a.m.

Officers arrived at the restaurant to find a rear door pried off its hinges and the office door forced open.

Money bags containing $2,400 cash and two cash registers containing a total $280 were stolen, the restaurant owner told police.

Also taken were an unknown amount of liquor, a leg of lamb and three prime rib steaks.

Children beat the summer heat at the Westland city pool, which is open seven days a week.

Beating the heat

City pool making a splash in summer

It's a steamy, hot summer day. Though the cool comfort of air conditioning beckons, you're tired of spending the summer indoors.

Three glasses of lemonade have failed to beat the heat, so you're looking for an alternative.

If you're like many other Westland residents, it's time to grab a bathing suit and towel and head for the city pool, behind the Bailey Recreation Center on Ford Road, near Carlson.

Swimming in the city pool is a way to cool off and have fun seven days a week in Westland, and people of all ages are taking advantage of it.

SOME YOUNGSTERS, like 10-year-old Mike Swafford, are seasoned swimmers who like to climb aboard the diving board and take a plunge into the cool waters.

Others, like 2½-year-old Angela Stevens, are a little less experienced and need a helping hand. Angela recently enjoyed the pool with assistance from her mother, Carol.

Either way, the pool provides a getaway for summer fun.

WHAT'S MORE, it's a relatively inexpensive way to spend a summer day.

For children age 16 and under, the cost is $1.50 a day for Westland residents and $2 a day for non-residents. For the older crowd, admission is $2.25 for residents and $2.75 for non-residents.

Season swimming passes for residents also may be bought for $50. And if you want to add other names to your pass, you can do so at $35 a name.

Season passes cost $70 for non-residents, who may add other names to their passes for $55 a name.

The pool is open daily noon to 4 p.m. and 5-8 p.m.

New service keeps track of events

Charity fund-raisers and special event planners in Oakland, Wayne and Macomb counties no longer have to live in fear that their event will lose patrons to another event set for the same date.

A new community service is being offered to the tri-county area by The Community House in Birmingham — The Community Calendar.

It's a direct response to the lament that charity, cultural and educational organizations frequently and inadvertently schedule events in competition with each other.

The service is being patterned after a similar one based at the Field Museum in Chicago.

"Fund-raisers in the Chicago area wouldn't dream of scheduling a benefit without checking out competition for the date at the museum," reports Wally Klein, a Bloomfield Township resident who is a member of the community calendar committee.

And, like the Chicago model, The Community Calendar will be a free service.

Beginning immediately, planners of special charity events sponsored by non-profit organizations based in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties, should submit in writing the following information:

- Nature and name of the event.

- Name of the sponsoring organization.
- Date, time and place.
- Name and telephone number of a contact person.

Information should be sent to: The Calendar Keeper, 380 S. Bates, Birmingham, Mich., 48009.

To check out dates listed on the calendar, call The Community House at 644-5832 and ask for The Calendar Keeper (aka Stacey Lineman). Of course, Lineman can only relay information she has, so dates should be submitted to her as soon as they are known.

State to pay owed racetrack revenues

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

Late payment by the state to Livonia of racetrack revenues won't cause a financial hardship.

Livonia city finance director David Preston said state officials have promised delivery of the $800,000 by September.

"For us, it's only 2 percent of our budget," Preston said. "In Northville and other cities where it plays more of a role it could be a problem."

Northville has laid off two police officers and implemented other cost-cutting measures in the wake of the delay.

A SPOKESMAN for Gov. John Engler said last week cities owed money will receive full payment over the next three months.

Preston said the state hasn't indicated whether it would pay interest to make up for the late payment of revenues from Ladbroke DRC.

A spokesman for Gov. John Engler said last week cities owed money will receive full payment over the next three months.

But state officials have indicated they will add interest to other scheduled payments that were missed, Preston said.

The delay was caused by the snafu over the state budget and the fact that it was paying bills faster than it was collecting taxes, according to the Engler administration.

The lack of cash was caused primarily by a February court decision which put payment to the state of single business taxes on hold. That issue was resolved last month as part of budget deliberations.

"Until we had a budget agreement, many of the state's payments were held because we needed to know how much the state could spend," Engler press secretary John Truscott said.

IN ADDITION to the racetrack revenues, school aid and other payments were delayed.

Racetrack communities annually receive a portion of the revenues up to $900,000 from the state to help cover police and fire protection and other expenses.

Earlier this year the grants were targeted by Engler in budget-cutting proposals but were reinstated after deliberations with the Michigan Legislature.

In addition to Livonia and Northville, communities receiving the grants are Hazel Park, Saginaw, Mount Pleasant, Jackson, Fruitport and Swartz Creek.

Area hospital offers new gallbladder surgery

A year ago, a gallbladder surgery patient could anticipate intense post-operative pain, a large scar, a lengthy hospital stay and a recovery period of four-six weeks before returning to work.

But no longer.

A new gallbladder surgery, called laparoscopic cholecystectomy, now offered at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia, is expected to replace traditional gall bladder surgery.

Conventional gallbladder surgery — the second most frequently performed surgery in the U.S. — still may be used if the patient does not meet the necessary criteria.

Instead of a broad abdominal incision, the new technique allows surgeons to make four tiny openings in the abdomen — each less than the diameter of a dime.

A miniature video camera inserted through one of the openings enables the surgeon to view the internal organs on video monitors. After the bile and stones are suctioned out, the collapsed gallbladder is then removed.

Because there is no large incision, pain and scarring are dramatically reduced. Recovery time also is significantly reduced, resulting in lower hospital costs for the patient and earlier return to work and normal activities.

At St. Mary Hospital, several surgeons have been trained and credentialled for the new procedure. The first laparoscopic cholecystectomy was performed May 21, 1991, with the patient returning to work in six days.

Another recent patient, Mary Lou Houlihan, a registered nurse at St. Mary, opted for the new technique after experiencing a gallbladder attack. After only a 23-hour stay in the hospital, she returned home and anticipated returning to work in the outpatient surgery department in another week.

The new gallbladder procedure will be the first of many less invasive techniques made possible with advanced surgical technology.

WHAT TO BRING WITH YOU

When you initially see your doctor because of an arthritic problem, come with the following information.

First, bring all your medicines, as one of your current medications could be causing your problem. For example: gout can occur after using diuretics to control heart failure or hypertension.

Your present drugs inform the doctor what medication to avoid in treating your arthritis. If you are already on an antiacid, your physician would use caution in prescribing an arthritic medication such as Indocin.

Second, bring laboratory studies, but only if those studies are less than 6 months old. Blood tests that doctors consider important such as the rheumatoid factor, sedimentation rate, and serum uric acid level, often reflect changes in your general status. Blood studies older than six months may need repeating, particularly if your arthritis has flared recently.

Thirdly, bring x-rays of your involved joints. Again, the six month rule-of-thumb holds. Older x-rays are not likely to reflect your joints as they are now.

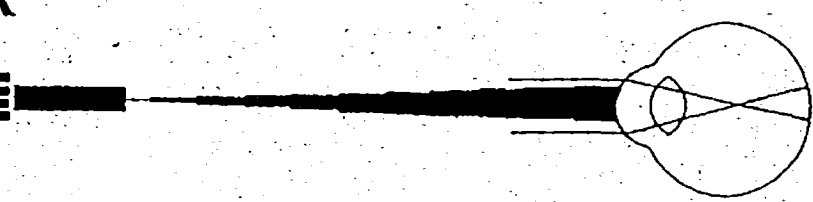

Finally, come with previous medical reports. This information expedites the doctor's understanding of your overall health, and brings down costs by negating the need to repeat blood tests or x-rays.

Beat-The-Heat SUMMER SPA SALE

SLIP INTO A HOT SPRING SPA... AND BEAT THE HEAT

You may wonder why anyone would purchase a hot tub during the sweltering summer. Well, just ask one of the experts pictured above. After a lot of debating on whether to get a pool or a spa, they decided a Hot Spring Spa would give them the most use. As the fellow in the middle explains, "We figured we could turn down the heat and use the spa like a pool to cool off, only it even has moving jets and other neat stuff." And from the gentleman on the right, "Yeah, and we can still use it outdoors in the winter cause Hot Springs costs less to use than other spas, even when the snow is really blasting." "And Mom and Dad like using it when it's cooler at night," this from the left, "cause it helps them unwind after work." Okay, but why Hot Springs? "Well, they have the best warranty, five years even on the pumps and other stuff, and Dad said that was real important," from the right, "And don't forget," from the middle again, "it was real easy to set up." "Yeah," from the left, "all we did was fill it with the garden hose and plug it in." And from all three, "Make sure you get one during their sale, cause you save lots of money. Buying things on sale makes mom and dad real happy!"

So there are your reasons. From some real experts, Summer or Winter... Hot Springs Spas.

Day camp reaches out to kids of alcoholics

*I want to grow up
I want to be happy
Be the best me that I can be
With every bit of strength I have I'll try real hard to be drug-free.*

By Judith Donor Berne
staff writer

They sing songs about the dangers of cigarettes, marijuana and alcohol.

They wear T-shirts with the logo: "Drug free that's me."
They put on plays with kids playing the roles of addicts.
This is the first week of the new Maplegrove Day Camp in West Bloomfield, the first day camp in the state - and maybe in the nation - designed for children of alcoholics and drug abusers.
It's free, thank you, volunteer staff trained by Maplegrove Community Education and funds provided by the Junior League of Birmingham.

And it's filled to its 30-child capacity, with parents bringing youngsters from as far away as St. Clair Shores, Flat Rock and Canton and as nearby as Troy, Southfield and Walled Lake.

SET ON THE wooded Maplegrove site, and flanked by the treatment center that houses teens and adults recovering from chemical abuse, the camp is divided by age groups.
Each day has a different focus, beginning with information on alcohol and drugs and what they do to body, mind and personality. Feelings and self image, defenses and coping, family issues, peer pressure and getting help are other topics.

The information is delivered through games, crafts, group discussion, songs, stories and drama.
ON THIS DAY, the youngest group - first and second graders - draws up a list of safe people, people to whom they can turn if something goes wrong in their lives.
Their list includes police officers and grandma, mom and dad and teachers. But tiny, blond, gamine-faced Katy has another idea. "Let's write all our names down because I'm safe," she announces.

Following a song played on the guitar by counselor Bonnie Kalinowski of Union Lake, the evils of tobacco, marijuana and alcohol, Keith ventures, "My mom and dad used to do marijuana."
NEARBY, SIXTH, seventh and eighth graders sit on the ground discussing their feelings about their family situations. A counselor explains that an alcoholic parent does what he or she does because he has an illness - not because the parent doesn't love them.
"But Earl, looking down at the ground, tells the group "If they loved you they wouldn't do all the things that they do."
"Earl, your mom had to sign to let you come here," he is reassured.
"My grandmother told her to," comes Earl's response.
"Mary Anne, 18, a teen volunteer from Bloomfield Hills, offers a method of coping. She knows how they're feeling, since she too comes from an alcoholic home.
"You know what I did," she confides. "I wrote a letter to my father. I got all my feelings out. I never gave it to him, but sometimes I go back and read it."
"We have to take care of ourselves," another counselor reminds.

MEANWHILE, THIRD, fourth and fifth graders play a game in which a ball of yarn is thrown to each person, and that person wraps it around a part of their body and then toss it on to someone else. Now everyone is entangled, and each must find a way get out of the net.

"If we can start to disengage ourselves from everybody's problems, we can get out of the web," says Kathy Reynolds, a volunteer from Farmington.
She reminds them of the four C's:
• I didn't cause it.
• I can't control it.
• I can't cure it.
• I can cope with it.
Late Tuesday morning, camp directors, Kathy Walton and Betty Conger have a chance to back off from their administrative duties and see how the program they designed is working.

The two Rochester Hills residents designed separate activities for the three age groups, "but all with the same objectives," Conger said.
"We're really, really happy," said Conger at week's end. "We've had good attendance, good feedback from parents, staff and kids. And kids who originally didn't sign up for the overnight (scheduled at the end of camp) now want to attend."

Camp deals with issues which hit now and later

One of every four school children comes from an alcoholic family, according to the National Council on Alcoholism.

The problems associated with their childhood follow them to adulthood, including a 50 percent greater than normal chance of becoming alcoholics themselves.

And, only about 10 percent of these young children currently receive help.

The Maplegrove Day Camp for young children of alcoholics and other drug abusers grew out of an idea first put out by Dr. Glenn Craig Davis, a Birmingham resident, and an of the psychiatry department of Henry Ford Hospital.

Funding from the Junior League of Birmingham and volunteer training and staffing by Maplegrove Community Education secured it. And West Bloomfield Parks and Recreation will host the overnight camping experience at Bloomer Park which will end each of the two two-week sessions.

The next camp starts July 22 and runs 9 a.m. to noon Monday-Thursday on the grounds of Henry Ford Hospital's Maplegrove Center on Maple Road in West Bloomfield.

A few openings are still available. It is free. Call 661-6170 for more information.

Volunteer counselors like Kathy Reynolds of Farmington take extensive substance abuse training and commit part of their summer to the new day camp, which is the first one in the state, if not the country.

By the second day, friendships had formed among campers, who all have the common bond of coming from a family where there is - or has been - chemical abuse.

Patterson, Ragan spent big in Schoolcraft race

By Wayne Pool
Staff writer

Schoolcraft College's recent board election was one of the costliest in school history, with two candidates topping or approaching five figures in campaign fund raising.

Runner up Bruce Patterson and winning candidate Stephen Ragan both neared or exceeded the $10,000 mark in campaign spending for the four-year board seat.

Patterson's final filing shows the Canton attorney raised $17,239, including $4,664 of his own money for his campaign.

Patterson received $1,000 contributions from James and Jocelyn Lange, Ronald and Sharon Mack and David Winkler.

Lange was identified as "auto dealer, James Martin Chevrolet, Detroit." Mack is an electrical contractor. Winkler is a senior financial consultant with Merrill Lynch, Farmington Hills.

Outside contributions show $50 from Wayne County Commissioner Bryan Amann and his wife, Mary and $150 from McNamara Band — credited to "McNamara Bank" — 600 Randolph, Detroit. McNamara Band is the political action committee founded by Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara. In addition, the Canton community activist received $150 from Canton Township Supervisor Thomas Yack and $100 from state House candidate Jerry Vorva of Plymouth.

Patterson also received $75 from the Michigan Bell Political Action Committee.

Ragan hadn't filed his campaign report as of Friday — already totaling $50 in late fines.

"We just haven't finished all our paperwork," the Plymouth resident said.

His campaign records, which he supplied to the Observer late Friday, will show he raised and spent $9,813 on his campaign.

He received political action committee money from: City PAC, $200; Carpenters Southeast District Council PAC, $50 and Wayne Disposal PAC, $50.

He also received contributions from Plymouth Township Supervisor Gerald Lay, $50; state Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, $100, state representative candidate, Georgina Goss of Northville Township, $100; Schoolcraft Trustee Michael Burley of Canton, $50, the office holder expense fund of Livonia Councilman Dale Jurcisin, $50, and Livonia-Mayor Robert Bennett, $50.

Third place finisher Ronaale Bowman of Livonia was the only other candidate filing a full campaign disclosure.

Bowman and Patterson filings show each candidate spent the bulk of their campaign funds on mailings.

Bowman rated $700 and spent $300 in campaign funds according to her report, though she also listed $2,228 of her own money as "in kind" campaign contributions. Bowman's contributors included state Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, Garden City Councilwoman Mary Jane Schildberg and Livonia School Board member Richard McKnight, all of whom contributed $50.

Other candidates for the four-year seat, including Willis Brauer of Livonia, Paulette Cebulski of Plymouth, Robert Gordon of Plymouth, M. Andrea Taylor of Livonia and Patricia Watson of Northville, all filed a campaign waiver, indicating they raised and spent less than $1,000.

The three candidates for six-year board seats, including winners Michael Burley of Canton, Jeanne Stempfen of Northville Township and runner-up Subramanian Ramamurthy of Canton, also filed campaign waivers.

Schoolcraft trustees oversee the college budget and programs. They serve without pay.

Pretzels add twist to picnic

If you are planning a German-style picnic, besides rolling out the barrel and having a barrel of fun, add to the festivities with homemade pretzels.

Who in the heck makes homemade pretzels in the middle of summer? I do, and I learned from my momma.

Every now and then, during summer vacation, the heat and humidity have a tendency to clash with god-knows-what and produce a day of rain.

Not just any rain, mind you, but a mini-gully-washer day that has a tendency to freshen the air, water the grass and cool down the environment, if all but for very short time.

Having six kids, Momma was a pro at keeping us busy on those rainy days.

I don't remember malls or video arcades, so if we had already seen the movie at the neighborhood theater and didn't have enough money to go bowling, Momma would get out the flour, yeast and herbaceous seeds for a fun afternoon of pretzel making.

The only thermometer we had was the one outside the kitchen window that told Dad how well to dress for the day at work.

Nowadays, equipment-shocked cooks wouldn't think of proofing the yeast without just the right (103 degree) temperature water for optimum results.

Momma's thermometer: her pinky finger and the line, "That feels just about right."

I REMEMBER that wait for the yeast to proof was as long as the intermission on a double-featured Saturday afternoon.

If it didn't start bubbling within 10 minutes, we would try again.

While the yeast was proofing, the argument about hand washing was always prevalent.

After Sissy and I had already washed once, we were instructed to do it again and "this time with soap."

It was then that Momma would get down on her hands and knees and search the bottom cupboards for two equal-sized pans and cookie sheets.

Momma knew that if Sissy's bowl was slightly bigger than mine, a battle would take place that could never be resolved.

After sifting the flour and salt with our hands, of course, we would scream in unison, "Eeeeeuuuuuuuuuu!" as Momma poured in the lukewarm water, oil and yeast mixture. No wooden spoons here. "That's why the Lord gave you hands" was all we remember.

After combining the mixture and being sure to "clean the sides," we turned the dough onto a homemade kneading board that Dad assembled out in the garage.

This was the classic breadboard, for it even had a little lip that wrapped precisely around the dining room table so as not to slip while working the dough. Dad made two. I still have mine, I wonder if Sis still has hers?

As kids, we never knew the meaning of "knead until smooth and elastic." For some odd reason, Momma could tell with the punch of a finger. We divided the dough into 24 pieces each, then proceeded to roll each piece into strips, about a foot long, give or take a few inches.

I MUST HAVE been 17 before I realized how to twist the dough into pretzel shapes. Now I will never forget and someday hope to teach my kids the same.

Before baking, a fight always ensued about what to cover the pretzels with.

Our favorite was salt. Momma like poppy seeds while Dad always loved caraway, especially with his beer. Speaking of beer, that was one of the few times I ever recall Momma sitting down with a can of Pabst, us with our Kool-Aid, all sinking our teeth into pretzels hot from the oven.

That was one lesson that could never be repeated in a culinary arts classroom.

JUST ABOUT this time every year I begin to plan our annual, summer, backyard party for family and friends.

The menu usually features a variety of cold appetizers made up of vegetables, a platter of chilled poached or smoked fish fillets, grilled veal bratwurst (which is then steamed in dark beer), a noodle or spatzle salad, assorted vegetable and mixed green salads, a baked fruit tart and traditional German spice cookies.

You may think the menu was inspired after a pleasure trip through Germany, a few years ago, and you're right. It was during that trip, when I became reacquainted with the fact that German food is healthy, fun and quite diverse.

Although most of us think of German food as one continuous sausage and schnitzel feast, German cuisine is nearly as diverse as our own. In the same way many tourists keep a journal of their travels through museums, galleries and historic monuments, a food writer records the elements of every meal accompanied by little sketches of the placement or arrangement of food presentation, along with comments about the flavors, visits to food markets and names of wines, beer and other beverages.

WHILE REVIEWING and reminiscing through my gourmet journal it was as if I was sampling the splendid cuisine of Baden and Wurttemberg all over again. On this particular trip, my culinary adventures began in Frankfurt, then south to Rothenburg on the Tauber River, Hildeberg and then to Sluggart.

Rothenburg oder Tauber, which is just a leisurely drive from Frankfurt, is one great array of breads, cakes and other sweet, buttery pastries.

At the Goldener Hirsch Hotel, an old inn built in 1500, with a spectacular view of the Tauber Valley, one finds Kalbsteak Zurich a veal steak served with fried potatoes and steak cordon bleu, wiener schnitzel, mauthhuhnchen (pullet chicken), rebhuhn (partridge) and reh-rucken (saddle of venison).

Later I ventured through the town to sample and ogle the many elegant pastries in the numerous konditorein. These offerings still constitute the most interesting part, by far, of German cuisine: tortes, marzipan candies, fruit tartlets, and trays of pfeffernusse, lebkuchen (gingerbread) hearts and springerle.

At the Baumeisterhouse Cafe, a most picturesque building near Marketplatz in Rothenburg, supper began with a semolina soup made with a light, velvety broth. This was followed by bratwurst, a grilled pork and veal sausage cooked over an open wood-fired grill.

MEMORIES OF these and other specialties of Tothenburg and my other travels along the Rhine River encouraged me to cook up all sorts of German delights when I returned home.

Grilled bratwurst and weisswurst can be a great focus for a backyard barbecue menu. Any accompanying chilled vegetable salads can be made in advance, as well as most desserts. The only challenge you may face will be locating top-quality German sausages.

Bratwurst a specialty of Nurnberg, is made of pork and veal. The filling is ground and flavored with nutmeg, caraway, marjoram, salt and pepper. Caraway and marjoram are commonly used in flavoring vegetable dishes, as well as sausages in and around Baden.

If you are traveling to Frankenmuth, Kern's Sausage shop on Main Street almost always has freshly made bratwurst and other traditional German sausages. Just remember to bring along an ice chest to keep the sausage cold.

Locally, there are a number of butcher shops in the Detroit area. Here are my personal favorites: Hans Delicatessen, 1049 E. Long Lake Road, Troy, an authentic German food shop, which carries both pre-cooked bratwurst and weisswurst, along with lots of imported German goodies such as Westphalian ham, traditional German hard rolls, smoked meats, desserts and Rittersport chocolates.

FOR AN UNCOOKED bratwurst made with 85 percent veal and 15 percent pork meat, try Torpey's Meat Market, 3336 Rochester Road, Troy. Torpey's makes bratwurst and other sausages fresh daily.

Conrad's Sausage Co., 28974 Orchard Lake Road, Farmington, and at 27470 Schoolcraft, Livonia, makes a pre-cooked bratwurst, which is mostly veal with a bit of pork. Whether you choose the uncooked or the precooked bratwurst, it's a matter of personal taste. I generally buy some of both to add a bit of interest to the meal.

Beer lover makes own home brew

By Larry Janes
special writer

What used to be "A loaf of bread, jug of wine and thou" has taken a turn, not necessarily for the worse.

Cutting-edge culinarians are hopping on the micro-brew rage with homemade lagers, ales, stouts and pilsners in record numbers threatening to change the jugs of wine into barrels of brew.

Brian Hassell of Livonia was so impressed with his first batch of homemade dark amber ale that a second batch of Canadian ale is brewing as you read this. Hassell is even beginning to ask friends and neighbors to start saving the brown long-neck bottles for next month's batch. A senior this year at Eastern Michigan University, majoring in Food Systems Management, Hassell is a night sous chef at MacKinnon's Restaurant in Northville.

When asked what prompted him to get into home micro-brewing, Hassell claims that it's simply his "love for the stuff." Working as a chef in a few Washtenaw County watering holes exposed Hassell to different brews from around the world and began kindling his interest in making homemade brew. Hassell's fellow chef, Steve Shaughnessey, told him about Mark George, owner of the Wine Barrel in Redford, a beer/wine/deli operation that offers an extensive assortment of home brew kits.

It was here that Chef Hassell picked up a home brewing kit consisting of a fermenter, air lock, siphon, hydrometer, capper, sanitizer, thermometer and all the necessities to begin bottling his personal favorite, a dark amber ale.

A quick trip over to the Wine Barrel turned into an afternoon discussion with owner Mark George, who seemed to know (and stock) just about everything the home brewer would need to get started. George stocks kits that allow the home micro-brewer to invest as little as $13.99, plus starters, to get brewing. "After a recent PBS special on home brewing, requests for brewing supplies shot off like a rocket," said George, who answered the call with his own boxed, brewing kit, self-assembled, consisting of all the professional equipment for $65 and change.

But what about the taste, you ask? I've been known to tip a few brews in my day and have tasted various restaurant micro-brews from the Traffic Jam and even coerced a taste from master brewers George and Hassell. The home brews I sampled were very tasty, with little after-taste, some sediment and what seemed to be a little more fizz. I found that pouring the home brew into a pre-chilled beer mug and allowing it to sit for a few minutes before tasting improved its character tenfold.

But before you set off with cash in hand, and dreams of owning your own Clydesdales, you should know a Federal statute states, "Any individual head of household is allowed to brew a maximum of 200 gallons per year." If your visions of brewing include Clydesdales, you first must be qualified as a micro-brewery from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

For additional information on home brewing, write Mark George at the Wine Barrel, 25303 Plymouth Road, Redford 48239, or call him at 533-wine.

GRILLED BRATWURST IN ALE

1 1/2 pounds uncooked bratwurst
Boiling water to cover
3 cups ale or dark German beer
1 small bay leaf

Prick bratwurst with a fork and precook in a pan of boiling water. Reduce temperature and simmer sausage about 7 minutes. Preheat barbecue grill. Remove sausages from water and cook over medium-high heat until juices in the sausage are running clear when tested. In a saucepan mix beer and bay leaf, bring mixture to a boil, then reduce heat to a simmer. Remove grilled sausages and add to simmering pot of beer and continue to cook 15 minutes. To serve remove from beer and set on a platter garnished with herbs or sauteed vegetables or in individual buns. Serves 4.

CHILLED GREEN BEAN SALAD

1 pound fresh, very thin green beans

4 tablespoons finely minced red/purple onion

Dressing

Makes 1 cup
1/2 cup extra-virgin olive oil
3 tablespoons raspberry/red wine vinegar
1/2 teaspoon mustard with horseradish
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 tablespoon very finely minced fresh parsley

Trim beans and cook whole, in a large pot of boiling water. When tender, drain and rinse immediately in cold water. Mix together dressing in a glass jar or pitcher. Mix in just enough dressing to moisten beans, add minced onion. Keep refrigerated until serving time. Toss beans and dressing once again just before serving. Serves 4.

STREUSEL-TOPPED FRESH FRUIT TART

1 recipe favorite pie crust, rolled to fit a 9-inch pan

1 pound fresh peaches peeled and sliced
1/2 pound fresh cherries, pits removed Zest of 1 lemon
1/4 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch dissolved into 3 tablespoons orange juice

Topping:

4 tablespoons butter, diced
3/4 cup flour
1/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/2 cup rolled oats
1 medium-size egg

Toss fresh fruit with lemon zest, 1/4 cup sugar and cornstarch dissolved in juice. Line a flan or tart pan with chilled pastry and fill with mixed fruit. Mix together topping ingredients thoroughly until mixture resembles crumbs. Spoon on top of fruit and bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for 35-40 minutes until golden brown. Serves 6-8.

Treats to ship to troops

AP — "Troop Treats: How to Make, Package, and Ship 100 Non-perishable Treats to Friends and Relatives in the Persian Gulf" contains cookies and snacks to send to friends and relatives still serving in the Persian Gulf.

Recipes include Artillery Mix (Savory Herb Snacks), Wing Nuts (Cinnamon Triangles), Desert Bites (Oatmeal Peanut Butter Cookies), Sand Dunes (Orange-Mint Cookies), Stormin' Normans (Orange-Oatmeal Cookies) and Grunts (Shortbread Cookies). There's also a spice mixture — the authors call it M.R.E. (Meals Ready to Eat) Helper.

The book, written by by Sue Spittler and Liddy Davenport (Surrey Books, $4.95), includes the following:

- Food restrictions based on legalities, humidity and heat.
- A chart of acceptable ingredients for homemade foods.
- A list of acceptable prepared foods, such as pretzels, beef jerky and candy bars.
- Baking tips.
- Detailed packing instructions, including addresses and the cost of postage.
- Telephone numbers for current Defense Department requirements and information about sending specific foods to the Gulf.
- A U.S. Department of Agriculture telephone number for additional advice or suggestions on what foods to ship to the Gulf.

Because the weather in the Gulf is so varied, the authors researched the climate of every-area and have included recipes for special weather conditions. They also tested a number of cookies for "desert durability" by baking them in a 150-degree oven for four days.

"We have even included, at the end of the book, a special fudgy and moist Happy Homecoming Brownie with a rich chocolate frosting," the authors said in their book. "This would never survive a trip to the Gulf, but it will be delicious for homecoming. We've also included four Stay-at-Home Frostings in case you want to make a double batch of cookies and eat or serve half of them yourself."

CHOCOLATE CHIP OATMEAL COOKIES

1 cup butter or margarine, softened
3/4 cup packed light brown sugar
2 1/2 cups quick-cooking oats
1 1/4 cups whole-wheat flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup semisweet chocolate morsels
1/2 cup chopped pecans

Beat butter or margarine and sugar until fluffy. In a separate bowl, combine oats, flour, baking soda and salt. Combine flour mixture with butter-sugar mixture, then mix in the chocolate morsels and pecans. Drop dough by tablespoons onto ungreased cookie sheets.

Bake in a 325-degree oven until cookies begin to brown, about 12 to 15 minutes. Cool on wire racks. Makes 2 1/2 dozen cookies, about seven cookies per pound.

(To order "Troop Treats" by mail, send name, address and zip code, and a check or money order for $6.95, which includes postage and handling, to: "Troop Treats," Surrey Books, Box 11326, Chicago, IL 60611.)

Beer lover makes brew

See related story, Page 1B.

George has supplied us with this recipe for a simple batch of:

HOMEMADE BEER

- 5 gallons water
- Pre-measured can of malt (approximately 3 1/2 pound can)
- 5 cups corn sugar
- 1-2 teaspoons water salts
- 1 ounce hops (if malt is not already hopped)
- Yeast

In a 1 1/2 gallon stainless or enamel pot, bring 1 gallon of water to a boil. Remove from heat, stir in malt, sugar, water salts, and hops if needed. Bring to a rolling boil, uncovered for 45 minutes. (Note: keep an eye on the boiling "wort" as it will boil over.) Cool rapidly by placing the pot in a sink of ice water. While the mixture is cooling, prepare the primary fermenter. It must be clean and sterilized. Pour in 3 1/2 gallons of cold water. When the "wort" is cool (65-70 degrees) pour into the primary fermenter and top it off with additional cold water to make 5 gallons.

The starting specific gravity should be approximately 1.035 or 4 1/2 on the alcohol scale (write down the specific gravity). Sprinkle yeast on top and wait 10 minutes. Stir in yeast and cover the fermenter with lid and air lock half filled with water. Allow to ferment for 7-10 days. Your terminal gravity should read 1.004-1.008; this is the time to bottle. Have 55 12-ounce beer bottles cleaned and ready for bottling. In a small pan, heat 1 cup beer or water and stir in 3/4 cup sugar until dissolved. Cool rapidly. Syphon beer into a clean plastic pail, leaving sediment behind. Pour cooled corn syrup into the brew and mix thoroughly. Syphon beer into bottles to within 1 inch of top and cap with sterilized caps. Keep bottles at standard room temperature and out of light for the first week. Then, for best results, age at cooler temperatures, if possible, for 5-6 weeks.

Vinegars flavor many dishes

Flavored vinegars are making a comeback. Why? Because they zip up salads, sauces, marinades, soups and stews and add pizzazz to your favorite dishes without adding fat.

Look for your favorite flavored vinegar in your supermarket, or be a money-wise gourmet and make your own. Package your homemade vinegar attractively and you've got a handy gift-giving idea.

Distilled, cider and wine vinegars are the three most common vinegars.

- Distilled or white vinegar is a colorless vinegar made from grains. The distilling process removes any flavor and leaves only an acidic taste.

- Cider vinegar, made from apples, is a golden-brown vinegar with a slightly fruity flavor.

- For wine vinegars, the color and flavor of the vinegar depend on the type of wine used. White wine produces a lighter-tasting vinegar than does red wine.

To make flavored vinegars, start with a base of cider, distilled or wine vinegar. Your choice of a base depends on how you plan to flavor your vinegar. Wine vinegars are a good match for herbs and spices. Cider vinegar can also complement spices. Fruits and edible flowers go well with distilled vinegar.

Flavored vinegars can be prepared in two ways: For the quickest method, heat the vinegar in a stainless steel or enamel pan until hot, but not boiling. (Do not use aluminum as it could react with the vinegar.) Pour the hot vinegar over the herb, seed, fruit or spice and cover with cheesecloth. Let it stand in a warm, dark place for one to two weeks to mellow the flavor. Then filter the vinegar through several layers of cheesecloth and pour it into bottles.

For the second method, pour the vinegar directly over the flavoring ingredients and let the mixture stand for a month before filtering.

When sampling vinegar, trust your taste buds. If the flavor of the herb or fruit is too strong, add some plain vinegar. If the flavor is too weak, add more seasoning. Once you have tried a variety of vinegars, try combining flavors. Mix two or three ingredients, such as raspberry and mint, lemon and garlic, or peaches and cloves.

RASPBERRY WINE VINEGAR
2 cups fresh raspberries or two 10-ounce packages frozen raspberries, thawed and drained
4 cups cider vinegar
2 cups dry red wine

Rinse fresh raspberries with cold water and drain well. In a large bowl combine raspberries, cider vinegar and wine. Cover and let stand overnight. In a stainless steel or enamel saucepan, heat vinegar mixture to boiling; reduce heat. Boil, uncovered, for 3 minutes. Cool.

Strain mixture, discarding solids. Pour into bottles; cover tightly. Let vinegar age for 2 to 4 weeks before using. Store in a cool, dark place. Makes 6 cups.

WHY PEOPLE DON'T GO TO THE DENTIST

- They had a painful experience
- They are concerned about cost
- It's been so long that there is probably not much that can be done to save their teeth
- They have more important things on which to spend their money
- They've been thinking about it
- The pain will go away by itself
- They can't justify spending money on themselves at this point in life

Do any of these sound familiar? Dentists hear these all the time, but the truth is that dental problems snowball. When a regular preventive routine is not maintained, simple problems grow. If you find yourself described in the reasons above, give today's dentistry a second chance. Find an office that is gentle and careful and listens to your concerns. GET ON TRACK AND STAY THERE! There are no valid reasons to neglect your teeth and lots of long lasting reasons to go back to the dentist.

Santa Cruz wines are unique

Unique geographical characters, a marine influence and the elevations of the Santa Cruz Mountains combine to yield distinctive wines not duplicated in other California wine regions.

Although virtually all winegrowing in the Santa Cruz Mountains ceased with Prohibition, there were a few local vintners who continued to believe in the future of the region. Two among them were brothers Philip and John Bargetto, emigres from the renowned mountainous winegrowing region of the Piedmont in Italy.

Because of their understanding of the quality of grapes grown in the Santa Cruz Mountains, they decided to establish a winery in the region, in 1933, at the end of Prohibition. By the mid-1940s, American wine consumers had become more knowledgeable about wine. Consequently, in 1946, John Bargetto launched a major winery expansion which was to become the winery's main storage cellar. It is still used today.

The Bargetto family winemaking traditions continued with John's son Lawrence, after whom the winery is named. Through the mid-1960s, the winery was able to produce all its wine from Santa Cruz Mountain vineyards.

is difficult work and a labor of love. By the late 1970s, the Bargettos realized the mountain grape supply had so diminished that they had to source grapes outside the region. However, by the mid-1980s, new vineyards came into production and the winery returned to its roots with the production of wines with the Santa Cruz Mountain appellation.

Today, the Lawrence J. Bargetto Winery continues to be owned and operated by the Bargetto Family. Limited annual production enables the winery to produce vineyard-designated wines from the unique Santa Cruz Mountain and other select viticultural areas.

Wine selections from Bargetto fall into three tiers. In the lowest tier, with pricing about $7, are sauvignon blanc and cabernet sauvignon with a California appellation. Priced mid-range, about $11, are chardonnay and cabernet sauvignon with a "Cypress" designation. These wines are produced from grapes grown in California's Central Coast.

Bargetto's super-premium offerings bear the Santa Cruz Mountain designation and carry a price tag around $20 for chardonnay, cabernet sauvignon and pinot noir. "It's Bargetto's aim to make elegant wines from mountain-grown fruit," John Bargetto states. "Without special care, mountain grapes can end up as a clumsy, angular pour. We're looking for a generous palate impression from well-extracted fruit. We want the wine to come across rich, finesseful and ageable."

Flavorful fruit wines constitute about 15 percent of Bargetto's production under the Chaucer's label. Among these, the Plum Wine ($9.75) is fragrant and delicious. Serve it chilled after dinner. The method of producing this wine from Santa Rosa plums has not changed from the original created by John's father Lawrence.

WINE SELECTIONS OF THE WEEK

1989 Bargetto Cypress Chardonnay ($11) offers lemony and citrus impressions in the aroma and on the palate. Vanilla accents add an attractive touch. This fruity, crisp, light and appealing chardonnay is perfect for summertime drinking with seafood salads.

1988 Bargetto Santa Cruz Mountain Chardonnay ($20) makes a bold statement and is a perfect accompaniment for lobster with drawn butter. Concentrated and extracted with depthful flavors, its creamy style will match well with any buttery sauce preparation for seafood. We like this wine because it is big and rich without being overoaked.

Like most unfortified fruit wines, it should be consumed shortly after purchase to enjoy its natural, rich fruit flavor.

Weight Loss Surprises Researchers

WASHINGTON—A nutrition organization was hopeful that a nutritionally complete "hi-tech" food tablet would help erase world hunger problems, until a study revealed that one of the ingredients could cause significant weight loss.

Researchers in Europe found that an ingredient in the aptly named produce Food Source One actually caused people to lose weight, even though specifically instructed not to alter normal eating patterns, according to one study published in the prestigious British Journal of Nutrition. Researchers in an earlier study had speculated that the weight loss was due to a decrease in intestinal absorption of calories.

While the development of Food Source One, a project of National Dietary Research, would not be used to successfully fulfill its original goal, the discovery has been a windfall for overweight people. A Daytona Beach, Florida woman fighting a weight battle for 12 years used the product on the recommendation of her physician and lost 30 pounds. She stated, "Not only have I lost 30 pounds, but my cholesterol has dropped from 232 to 143. I have two closets full of clothes which have not fit me in two years that I can now wear." In a separate report, a telephone interview revealed that a Wilmington, North Carolina pharmacist lost 14 pounds in 15 days on the product and was never hungry. Food Source One is available through physicians and pharmacies without a prescription because it is not a drug and contains only natural ingredients already known to be safe. Copies of the referenced style are available free from National Dietary Research, Suite 553, 1377 K St., Washington, DC 20005, however, please include $2 Postage & Handling for each request. ©1990 Onalcor International

At Wayne State University, our students—fresh out of college—are getting those jobs. Wayne State's close relationship with industry and southeastern Michigan businesses helps our students land prime internships and part-time jobs. And experience counts. In fact in 1988-89, nearly three out of four of our students had full-time jobs in their fields within six months after graduation. Some people find that amazing.

At Wayne State University we expect it.

Black Tie Affair prevails

Favored horse dominates

By C.J. Rieck
staff writer

Pat Day, who will be inducted into the National Museum of Racing's Hall of Fame next month, said he was just along for the ride.

All those who bet on Black Tie Affair could have said the same thing. Heck, they might have been able to play pilot in this Michigan Mile — that's how easy the win came.

A heavy favorite with the bettors, the gray horse burst from the gate out of his No. 4 slot to grab the lead instantly. He fought off a pair of challengers down the backstretch and pulled away over the last half-mile to post a convincing victory in the 43rd running of the Mile in front of 11,759 Saturday at Ladbroke DRC in Livonia.

Black Tie Affair's winning time of 1:49.8 over the 1 1/4-mile course was far off the Mile record of 1:47.4, first set by Calandrito in 1969 and equaled by Fast Hilarious in 1970. But had Affair been pushed over the last half of the race, he might have challenged the mark.

"HE DID all the work. I was just the passenger," said Day of his mount. "I encouraged him ever so mildly (midway through the race), and he finished very strong."

"He was a pleasure to ride — I wasn't sure how fast (the field) would want to go early and when I found us in the lead, he relaxed and just went with it."

Which pinpointed one of the qualities that has endeared Affair to bettors — his ability to adapt to any type of race.

"Every time he runs, he goes with whatever develops," said owner Jeff Sullivan, an auto dealer from Arlington Heights, Ill. "He runs well off the pace, too."

Affair had no such worries in this race. Rain threatened throughout the afternoon but never developed, and the Mile was run on a fast track. Before he reached the first turn, Affair had opened up a full-length lead over the field.

HEADING INTO the backstretch, first Lotus Pool inside and then Whiz Along outside challenged, but neither Black Tie Affair, ridden by future Hall of Fame jockey Pat Day, became the first horse since 1977 to lead wire to wire in the Michigan Mile.

Black Tie Affair's time of 1:49.8 Saturday also made him the first favorite to win the race since 1988.

could pull closer than a half-length. Lotus Pool faded midway through the race, but Whiz Along kept pace until the final stretch.

Affair proved to be too much, though. Whiz Along dropped back, too, finishing 2 1/2 lengths behind. Solo Matt, the only Michigan-bred horse in the race, came on to place third, ahead of Private School.

"Hey, we gave it our best shot," said Whiz Along jockey Carlos Marquez. "What else can you do? The winner was too much."

Unfortunately for bettors, Affair didn't pay too much — $3.20 to win, tying for the second-lowest payout for a winner in Mile history. Whiz Along paid $20.60 to place and $9.40 to show, while Solo Matt paid $5.80 to show.

AFFAIR WENT off a 3-5 favorite, which might have been perceived as a jinx, considering recent Miles. The last time a favorite won was Lost Code in 1988. Present Value was the upset winner in '89, with Beau Genius doing the same in '90.

Indeed, one must go back to 1979 to find the last wire-to-wire winner in the Mile: Sensitive Prince.

Affair's owner had his concerns coming into the race, even though his 5-year-old had 13 triumphs in 40 starts. "I was a little concerned about the track," said Sullivan. "I was told it was kind of sandy. He ran on a sandy track in Louisiana without too much success."

—Of course, putting Day in the saddle — the 37-year-old is one of only 12 North Americans to post 5,000 career wins — helped allay many concerns. "He was the best 'passenger,' I think," said Sullivan.

As for Affair's future, Sullivan couldn't be specific. "For the first year, I thought we had pretty much a sprinter," he said of Affair. "But he's shown he can stretch it out in the last year and a half."

Affair stretched it out, he outdistanced the pack in the Mile.

After the race Day accepts a congratulatory handshake from trainer Ernie Poulos.

Scholarship offering tribute to Fitzpatrick

BILLY JOEL'S song may have said it best: "Only the good die young." State trooper Kermit Fitzpatrick, a member of the Livonia Boxing Club, was a good man and only 30 when he was slain a week ago Sunday morning after he pulled over a motorist on I-96 near Joy Road in Detroit. (A suspect, being held by Ohio police, is awaiting extradition procedures.)

It seems unfair that this man, loved by his wife Gertrude, friends, boxing club teammates, coaches, neighbors, and fellow officers, had so much left to accomplish in life.

Eulogized before over 1,000 mourners Friday at St. Stephen AME Church in Detroit, Fitzpatrick was described as someone you could look up to, a positive black role model.

"You wonder why these things happen, I just could not believe it," said Livonia Boxing Club director Paul Soucy, who was Fitzpatrick's manager and coach. "We had a lot of good times together. Kermit wanted to be coach at our club after his (boxing) days were over. He had good rapport with the kids."

FITZPATRICK got a late start in the sport of boxing, but the 6-foot-3, 235-pound Highland Park native was an accomplished enough amateur to place second in the National Golden Gloves and earn a berth in the 1988 Olympic Trials.

He turned professional last year and was 4-1-1, but unhappy with his most recent result, a draw at Livonia's Laurel Manor Conference Center—against Chicagoan Robert Smith, a man who outweighed him by nearly 100 pounds.

"Kermit was very disappointed, he thought he should have won that fight," Soucy recalls. "He was a very proud man. I didn't hear from him for two weeks, but then he came over my house to watch the tapes. He was still convinced he won the fight."

Fitzpatrick's friends called him a gentle giant, friendly and outgoing.

He was an educated man, graduating from Western Michigan University. He taught school before becoming a state trooper.

"It just doesn't make sense," said Soucy, who learned the tragic news while experiencing car problems in Harrisburg, Pa. "He's just good people."

What type of guy was Fitzpatrick?

HE MADE IT a point once to

Brad Emons

send our sports reporter, Steve Kowalski, a thank you note after a story appeared about him after one of his amateur tournaments.

His neighbors on San Juan in Detroit called him "warm and friendly."

A captain in the army reserve, Fitzpatrick led a disciplined lifestyle, but he always had a soft spot in his heart. Soucy also recalls the time Fitzpatrick wrote a letter for leniency to a Detroit judge for a defendant, a fellow boxer, who was involved in a murder case.

Being a trooper, Fitzpatrick wrestled with his decision about writing the letter, but the judge, upon sentencing, gave the defendant probation, citing Fitzpatrick's recommendation as the reason for his decision.

Fitzpatrick is gone, but not forgotten. His dream of making our society a better place to live will not die.

The Board of Directors at the Livonia Boxing Club recently established a $1,000 scholarship in his name. A boxer from the Detroit area will be selected annually to receive a scholarship from the fund.

Tax deductible contributions can be made to: The Kermit Fitzpatrick Fund—Michigan National Bank, 33300 Five Mile, Suite 100, Livonia, Mi. 48154. Checks can also be dropped off at any Michigan National branch.

Fieger holds on for win

Todd Fracassi's RBI single, scoring Brian Dantels in the fourth inning, was the difference Wednesday as Fieger & Fieger defeated Hines Park Lincoln/Mercury, 6-5, in Livonia Collegiate Baseball League action at Ford Field.

Fieger (12-8-1) scored five times in the first inning, keyed by Aaron Mach's two-run triple. Corey Montry and Matt LeMieux each added RBI singles during the surge.

Mike Culver hit a solo homer in a three-run second inning for Hines Park (9-11-1). Jason Dembny and Tim Ulrich each added two hits.

Brent Hayward, who pitched three scoreless innings in relief of starter Bill Wicker, was the winner. He struck out three, walked three and allowed two hits.

Mark Stokes, who went the distance for Hines Park, took the loss.

DELWAL 17, CAESARS 7: In the second game of a double-header Wednesday at Ford Field, Delwal (11-9-2) took just five innings to earn a mercy-rule win over first-place Little Caesars (17-6-1).

Tim Bruce sparked a six-run Delwal rally in the fourth with a bases-loaded single.

Bruce went 3-for-3 with four RBI, while teammate Eric Sumpter also went 3-for-3 with four runs scored and two RBI.

Steve Money contributed two hits and three runs, while Mark Dube went 2-for-

4. Andrew Margolick, who struck out five in 1 1/2 innings of relief of starter Bill McKelg, earned his first win of the year.

WALTER'S 11, WENDY'S 6: Walter's Appliance (15-7-1) hit three homers Wednesday, beating Wendy's of Ann Arbor (7-12-1) in an LBCL game played at Ford Field.

The winners had 15 hits. Chris White hit a two-run homer in the second inning, while designated hitter Dave Houghtby added two hits, including his first-ever LBCL homer over the left-center fence.

Jeff Pendell went 4-for-4 with a double and two RBI for Walter's, while teammates Joe Brusseau, Chad Wrona and Eric Stover each contributed two hits.

Stover homered with nobody on in the seventh.

Winning pitcher Bob Bullach (4-2) went all seven innings for Walter's. The Farmington Hills native allowed six hits (including a grand slam), six walks and struck out six.

Payne returns to ring

By Brad Emons
staff writer

"I'm back, not as Jason or Freddie Krueger" said the answer to one of boxing's best trivia questions.

What boxer owns wins over Mike Tyson, three-time Olympic Gold Medalist Teofilo Stevenson of Cuba and 1984 Olympic Gold Medalist Tyrell Biggs of the U.S.?

Livonia's own Craig Payne, who was runner-up to Biggs in the 1984 U.S. Olympic Trials.

It's been six years since the highly touted amateur super-heavyweight stepped into the ring. Now 28, with just one professional bout (a victory) to his credit, Payne will face Detroit Kronk's Vernon Griffin in a scheduled six-round Tuesday at the Lansing Civic Center. He'll be part of the undercard scheduled to be broadcast on USA Cable.

His hiatus from the ring was not a total nightmare.

"I took time off to get my head together," Payne said. "Now I'm a fresh fighter starting over. I'm over my bad habits, and I'm more mature."

PAYNE IS NOT quite in fighting shape, the fit-and-fiddle form that earned the 1983 National Golden Gloves crown against the then 16-year-old Tyson.

But the Livonian is down to 285 pounds from a previous high of 368.

"I ballooned, but I'll get in better shape. I've been out so long I don't want to waste any more time."

Payne, who lives on Five Mile in Livonia, has been doing construction work since he dropped out of boxing.

"My company is called Champ Construction. We'll do anything — patios, driveways, porches, any type of cement work. Call me at 425-6657 if you need anything done.

"I got my business going, and I'm doing OK. I want to get back into the top 10."

Shortly after Payne turned pro, his problems started.

He feuded with his amateur coach, Paul Soucy, and haggled over money, managers and contracts.

IRONICALLY, Soucy, director and coach of the Livonia Boxing Club, will be in Payne's corner Tuesday night along with LBC assistants Roger Coon and Bill Clements.

"Things happened, and I just walked away," Payne said. "Things just didn't work out when I turned pro, and I lost interest."

"I didn't want to get hurt. If I had made the type of money I was capable of making back then, I might not be here today, as wild and crazy as I was. I might be dead."

Payne, who is dedicating the fight to LBC teammate and slain State Trooper Kermit Fitzpatrick, said "I've settled down, I'm a homebody."

"I used to worry what the public thought, but I'm over that now. I can fight with a clear conscience."

"I'm in it for me. I know there are a lot of doubters out there, but I'm out to prove them wrong. I'm fighting for the working people in the world, the ones just like me."

"I always had the dream, it never went away, and now it's come back to me. I had to get my house in order because you don't want to become, as they say, 'poor, broke or black.'"

Payne also said the George Foreman's comeback spurred him on.

"They said a big man and an older man couldn't do it," said Payne, who will have a large family cheering him on. "I'm in the same boat, only I'm a little younger."

OAK and CHERRY FURNITURE

By Brad Emons
staff writer

The National AAU girls 16-and-under basketball tournament proved fruitful for several Observerland standouts, members of the Western Wayne Wildcats.

Coached by Plymouth Salem's Fred Thomann, the Wildcats reached the Sweet 16 in the 42-team tournament, held June 29 through July 3 in Johnson City, Tenn.

They finished with an overall record of 3-3.

"I thought we were very competitive," Thomann said. "We were not one of the top six or eight teams, but in that next group of six or eight."

"The kids made a great account of themselves."

Livonia Franklin High guard Dawn Warner improved her stock dramatically among Division I college recruiters, according to Thomann.

She averaged 26 points per game, including a total 73 in one day during a pair of elimination-round games.

Warner scored 24 as the Wildcats won their opener in pool play, an 82-75 triumph over New Jersey.

Sarah Willverd, a 5-foot-9 forward from Flint Powers, added 14, while 6-2 Lisa Negri (also of Powers) and 6-1 Darcie Miller (Salem) chipped in with 11 each.

IN THE SECOND round, the Wildcats downed Adirondack, N.Y., 79-63, as Warner pumped in 21 and Willverd added 13. Julie Nicastri (Plymouth Canton) contributed eight.

basketball

Fort Washington, N.H. then out-gunned the Wildcats, 88-80, despite 28 from Negri and 20 from Warner. Paula Sanders (Harper Woods Regina) and Miller each collected eight.

Despite the loss, the Wildcats moved into the round of 16, beating Illinois Central, 93-82, behind Warner's 38. Negri and Miller tossed in 19 and 11, respectively, but the victory took its toll as Nicastri severely sprained her ankle.

Only two hours later, the Wildcats had to face a fresh Minneapolis Lakers club.

Western Wayne led 81-77 with four minutes to play, but the Lakers made a late charge, outscoring the Wildcats 22-5 down the stretch.

"We played so hard and so well, but just couldn't finish the game," said Thomann, who also watched Sanders go down with an ankle injury.

WARNER, the 5-8 senior from Franklin, tallied 35 points from her lead-guard spot.

Miller, also a senior-to-be, chipped in with 14 along with Negri.

In the consolation round the following day, South Pacific, a team out of southern California, downed the Wildcats, 106-60. Warner and Negri finished the tourney with 16 points each, while Miller reached double figures for the third time with 13.

"Dawn got rave reviews, and Negri, of course, was tough," Thomann said. "Everyone lit in nicely. We had a nice supporting cast."

"Darcie became more of a consistent scorer for us inside. She did not put up huge numbers, but good numbers. She played basically 20 minutes for us, splitting time with Noelle Beaudry (also of Powers). It was a great experience for her."

"And the Nicastri kid played well also. We gave her a perimeter type of role and she fit in quite well."

Rounding of the Wildcats' roster was Mary Bieniewicz of Farmington Hills Mercy, Stacey Nyland and Karen Pump, both of Northville, Stephanie Coddens, Grosse Pointe-South, and Janet Hughes, New Boston Huron. (Thomann's assistant was Northville's Pete Wright.)

"THROUGH OUR STATE tourney and through the practices we had, the team got better and better," Thomann said. "It was a great tourney and a great experience for us. It's the second time for me at this tournament, and I can see the improvement in the level of talent. It's also amazing to see the number of players involved with the recruiting process."

A team from Louisiana won the title with a 105-95 win over an entry from North Carolina.

Michigan's 18-and-under entry, coached by former Livonia Ladywood standout Ronna Greenberg and featuring Eve Clair of North Farmington, also finished 3-3 overall.

Duggan accepts World Cup post

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

To hear Roger Faulkner tell it, he couldn't find a more worthy candidate than Jim Duggan to fill the job as executive director of the Michigan World Cup Bid Committee.

Faulkner, president of the Michigan Soccer Association, wanted a person with a variety of skills and the 30-year-old Duggan seemed to fill all of Faulkner's requirements.

"He is ideal from our standpoint," said Faulkner, a native of England who founded the now-defunct Detroit Express, Michigan's first professional soccer team in 1978.

"We wanted a young, aggressive American image. For so long soccer had a foreign image. Now that's changing."

"Jim is a very bright, capable man and well-collected politically. Jim loves the game and is intelligent."

Bids to host the 1994 World Cup at eight to 12 sites have been submitted by 27 cities throughout the United States, including Michigan. Faulkner started the bid process in January, 1989, but suffered a heart attack last May.

Faulkner is recovering well enough, but decided to appoint Duggan in charge of the eight-person committee, which will make a final push toward assuring the Pontiac Silverdome as one of the 12 sites.

DUGGAN HAS a lengthy background in the sport. The Livonia native and 1979 Redford Catholic Central graduate spent the last 1 1/2 years as chief executive officer of the Detroit Rockers, a National Professional Soccer League indoor team.

Prior to his involvement with the Rockers, Duggan spent four years

soccer

as an assistant coach with the CC soccer team and a year as head coach of North Farmington.

Duggan's future with the Rockers is uncertain in part because it isn't sure how long his role with the World Cup committee will last. Detroit could be ruled out as a host site as early as September, when the Federation International of Football Association will visit U.S. sites and eliminate some from consideration.

The United States World Cup Organizing Committee will make recommendations on possible sites and the FIFA will make the final decision by December, Faulkner said.

Faulkner said the Michigan World Cup Committee submitted a 200-page bid document and a refundable check of $88,500 to the U.S. World Cup Committee on May 1. An oral bid was presented on May 23 in Los Angeles, Calif.

"We have a better than 50-50 chance," said Faulkner, a Bloomfield Hills resident.

DUGGAN'S FIRST objective as executive director will be to raise about $1 1/2 million for stadium renovation and host committee costs. Duggan said he is looking for corporate and civic support, one of seven criteria that the U.S. World Cup Committee has made for each site.

"From now until September, it's going to take all our energies to get the money collected," said Duggan, a Michigan State graduate who offered viable reasons for corporations to get involved. "The world is going to be focused on whatever venue for two months, one month prior to the games, and the month it's going on. The rest of the world treats this like we treat 'Super Bowl Week.' It'll bring hundreds of millions to billions of dollars of exposure."

The No. 1 criteria is that a stadium be available that will allow for a playing field 85 yards wide and 110 yards long. The stadium also must have a grass playing surface.

The Silverdome can accommodate for the width and length of the field, Faulkner said. As for the grass issue, a study is currently being conducted at the New Orleans (La.) Superdome, which will be finished Wednesday and prove whether grass can be grown and maintained indoors.

Joe Tsao, the Silverdome's director of marketing events, will leave this week for New Orleans to get a progress report on the test.

"THE PROGRESS (so far) is very encouraging," Tsao said Friday.

Duggan, who now lives in Farmington, believes Michigan is "very strong" in criteria two through seven. They include: 2) corporate and civic support; 3) the area's solid soccer community; 4) population (the metro area is the sixth largest in the country); 5) geography (Canada and several states border Michigan); 6) community infrastructure (accessibility to the site); 7) International Broadcast Capability (the ability to transmit the games to other parts of the world).

Ross Berlin, a 1974 Bloomfield Hills Andover graduate, is the senior vice president of venues for the U.S. World Cup Committee. Berlin cautions Michiganders not to get their hopes up just because of his ties with the state, however.

"As much as I have a strong, fond feeling for Greater Detroit, everything will be done in a fair and objective basis," said Berlin, an attorney by trade.

Golden days of bowling revisited

Anyone under the age of 40 might have difficulty relating to this column.

This is a trip back in time, to the grand old days of the pin boys, a time before automatic pinsetters when pins were set by human hands.

For some, this was a nice after-school occupation, a way to pick up some extra cash. Many pin boys were not boys at all; rather, they were a motley assortment of migrants, vagrants and drop-outs. Everyone was paid in cash, and every day was pay day.

Bud Gignac of Redford, now the owner of Redford Bowling and Trophy Sales, recalls getting paid eight cents a line at the old Northwestern Bowl on Grand River. Gignac wandered into the place one day to get out of the rain. The owner came over and asked, "Hey kid! Want to make a buck and a half today setting pins?"

After getting the OK from his mom, Gignac accepted the offer. The boss told him to go out back and see "old Charley," and he'd show him what to do. There were all sorts of "old Charley" type characters around, guys who would disappear with their daily pay to purchase another bottle of booze.

SOME BOWLING alleys had their own living quarters, which took care of the "old Charleys." For school kids like Gignac, the job gave them a great opportunity to bowl for free — they'd just take turns setting pins for each other. That's how many of the top bowlers of yesterday got their starts.

The more experienced and proficient pin boys could pick up three pins in each hand, load the rack, pick up the rest of the pins and the ball, and send the ball back — all in a couple of swoops.

There are tales of pin boys who "enhanced" a bowler's luck with a quick and subtle nudge of the foot just before the ball struck the pins. Usually, this maneuver was saved for the good tippers.

The job had its hazards, too; ankles, shins and hands were particularly vulnerable to stray flying pins. Most shifts would result in a few bruises, but these were the days of the depression, and for a kid, having a couple of dollars in his pocket felt pretty good.

10-pin alley

WARREN TEUBERT of Redford Township, a past president of the GDBA, started setting pins at an early age, getting three cents a line at St. John's Lutheran Church. By setting pins two shifts per night, two nights a week, Teubert earned enough money to bowl in a league the next night.

In the early days, a pin boy could only set one line. Then, along came technology — a cutaway partition allowed pin boys to set two lanes. This meant double pay, with pay reaching $1.80 per shift.

In these early days, pins were individually placed on a peg, which was raised and lowered with a foot pedal. Today, all pins still have that little hole centered on the bottom.

Technology later led to the rack. The first racks were operated by a handle connected by chain to a gear that would raise and lower the rack. This evolved, adding a bar into the back of the rack to allow raising and lowering the rack by leverage.

THE LIFE of the pin boy was getting better all the time. If a pin boy showed ambition, he could be promoted to foul judge. Foul lights had not been invented yet; the judges sat in their chairs, watching bowlers for fouls. If someone violated the line, the judge would push a button and the red light over that lane would flash.

There were many an argument, and the bowling alley proprietor was often summoned to mediate — usually in favor of the bowler. The foul judge was remunerated on the same pay scale as the pin boy, but usually there were fewer bumps and bruises, and less work. The brighter kids would be promoted further, to counter work — a dream come true.

There are lots of old-timers around, like Bud and Warren, who worked in the pits setting pins. Some still bear the scars of their work. Pin boys were there when bowling needed them, when there was no other way to do it.

The job got easier still with the addition of the semi-automatic pinsetter.

WE'RE ON A BIG ROLL

To be part of the solution, not part of the problem.

Times change. There was once a time when we thought that providing the very best community news coverage was enough.

Today it's not. Today we have a responsibility not only to our readers and advertisers, but also to our environment.

That's why 30% of the newsprint we put on our press has been recycled. This will increase when our other suppliers bring recycled newsprint on line later this year.

Our communities and the entire State of Michigan face a solid waste crisis.

There used to be 624 Type II landfills in Michigan*. The trash from your home, your neighbor's homes and the businesses in your town goes into a Type II landfill. As you read this, there are only 71 of them still open and licensed to do business. That's 71 in all of Michigan's 83 counties. Estimates say one-third of these will be out of business in less than five years.

So what can a business like ours do to be part of the solution and not part of the problem?

We're buying and printing your newspaper on recycled newsprint. We're looking for other recycled products to use in our business. We're recycling all of our newsprint and office paper. We're working to increase public awareness and participation. We're encouraging our readers to recycle.

How can you help? Why not begin with this newspaper; recycle it along with others you may have collected. Then start buying recycled products. Spread the word about those landfills and recycle this page by sharing it with a friend.

And if you are already recycling—thank you.

care specialist at Sea World Ohio. "I saw an ad in the paper for a duck master so I answered it to satisfy my curiosity," he said. He has been managing the ducks ever since, supervising the breeding program at the farm just out of town, where the original five ducks and their descendants now number 30.

"Lauby has been through two generations. These ducks are not pets. We don't give them names. They're trained, but they still do everything that ducks do in the wild."

"Ducks are very color conscious, and the drake thinks I'm his competition when I wear my green jacket," Lauby says, laughing. "He has had his head down in a defensive position several times, because he thinks I'm trying to lure his females away from him."

THE PEABODY ducks continue all their other mating rituals too, so guests are sometimes startled to see them mating in the fountain. They are not potty-trained and they are very territorial, so they stay in the fountain most of the time. Observant guests notice that a housekeeper approaches the fountain every 15 minutes or so to clean up what the ducks have left behind.

"The water is changed daily, it is not recycled," Lauby said.

"People come to see the ducks, but I love to see the people. We have a lot of conventions here so there's the guy in his $800 Italian suit standing beside the red carpet laughing right along with the 2-year-olds."

If you've seen the crowds and the flashing cameras on television during the Oscar ceremonies, you get a taste of what happens at the Peabody Memphis and the Peabody Orlando twice every day.

Fanfare. The "King Cotton March." People crowding both sides of a red carpet that leads from the elevator to the elegant lobby fountain.

"Here they come! Here they come!"

THE DUCKS waddle grandly down the carpet, the duck master in his green gold-braided jacket right behind them. Cameras click and explode with light.

When the ducks climb up the red carpeted steps to the fountain, past the sign that says "please don't feed the ducks," the audience breaks into applause.

The ducks are used to this royal adulation. They don't pay any attention. They swim in the fountain, or march around its marble lip, for the rest of the day, until the "King Cotton March" plays again.

The crowds gather again. The flashguns explode. The audience claps its hands. And the ducks march back to the elevator. Up, up to the Royal Duck Palace on the fourth-floor roof. The palace has fresh running water spouting from brass duck fountains into a black marble pool, a fire-prevention system, track lighting and a ceiling fan for hot summer nights.

It's a tough job for a duck, but somebody's got to do it.

The Grist Mill Inn, which was built in 1905, has much of the original oak woodwork still in place.

Interesting, entertaining hostess adds to charm of Grist Mill Inn

By Phyllis Kreger Stillman
special writer

I knew I was in for an interesting stay the moment I walked into the Grist Mill Inn. It was February, but there was a Christmas tree still up in the parlor.

I mentioned the tree to Judith Krupka, owner of the inn, and she said, "We've decided that it's a Valentine's tree." That kind of laid back outlook on life translates into a very relaxed stay for guests to the bed-and-breakfast inn in Homer, about 20 miles west of Jackson.

Krupka, a former professor at Michigan State University, is one of the main reasons a stay at Grist Mill Inn is so pleasant. Although she's been in the area only 6 years, she knows a lot about Homer and has great stories to tell about the small town.

She also has stories about the pleasures of rural life, including wildlife and birds; she's seen wild turkey in her garden and wood ducks who build nests and live in her trees.

Krupka also knows all about the many antique stores in the area — which dealers you can barter with, which ones you can't, and which stores are only open "when the mood strikes." She'll be glad to tell you all the great places to go, and draw a map so you can find them.

PAT DAVIDSON and Rick Hendrix of Northville had been antiquing in Marshall the day before. Krupka told them about Allen, sometimes referred to as the antiques capital of Michigan, and they were headed there armed with a map from Krupka.

"It's like having your own personal guide," said Davidson.

Along with being a very entertaining and interesting hostess, Krupka is also a great cook. There was a glazed apple cake and hot wassail punch waiting for me when I arrived at the inn.

In the morning, breakfast was a gourmet feast, featuring orange juice with Grand Marnier, lots of fresh fruit, scrambled eggs with chives and lemon butter served in a crisp popover, orange glazed chicken with perfectly prepared, crisp-tender, fresh asparagus, and strawberries with homemade sorbet and whipped cream.

"The food was wonderful. Little touches like the apple cake and the wassail are very nice," said Davidson.

THE GRIST Mill Inn, which was built in 1905, has much of the original oak woodwork still in place. The inn is charming in its own right, and Krupka has done a great job decorating it. "I wanted to make it so people could live in it, not so they'd be afraid to touch anything," said Krupka.

Davidson thinks Krupka has succeeded. "It's really like visiting someone's home."

The decor is Victorian, with lots of lace, ribbons and knickknacks. "Most of the people who come here really like it and all the things. They enjoy looking around," said Krupka. The inn has a romantic look and feel, and has been chosen as the site for marriage proposals, weddings, wedding nights and anniversaries.

All guest rooms have private baths, and all are decorated differently. One has a lace-canopied bed; another is decorated very simply, featuring a bed with a rope spring; still another has a quilt-covered queen-size bed along with a day bed covered with pillows, and has a big, old-fashioned, claw-foot bathtub right in the bedroom!

An overnight stay at the Grist Mill Inn costs $65 per room on the weekend with the full breakfast; during the week, the rate is $50, with a continental breakfast.

Krupka also offers a package plan which includes a gourmet dinner; cost is $115 for one night per couple, $150 for two nights. Canoes are available for the use of guests; the inn is near a river which connects to a chain of lakes. Krupka also sometimes arranges craft workshops. Call (517) 568-4063 for reservations.

Billingsgate is like visiting wealthy estate

one went down the street to buy gas for my car, put it in the car, and even started the engine to make sure everything was all right!

Horton, where Billingsgate is located, is a small, out of the way, rural community, which is one of the reasons Ray Holland put together an overnight package with several area bed-and-breakfast inns.

"We had a lot of people staying at bed-and-breakfasts in the area, and we were getting a lot of calls from people who were an hour away from here, wanting to know where to stay."

"The reason we put together the limo package was that a lot of people are from the city, and they don't want to drive on the country roads at night. Also, if we provide the transportation to and from the bed and breakfast, it would make an event out of it," said Holland.

THE PACKAGE is $225 for a Friday night, $235 for Saturday. It includes a champagne and fruit basket on arrival at the B & B of your choice, a limousine to drive you back and forth to Billingsgate, dinner at the restaurant, and breakfast at the B & B in the morning.

If you don't want the limousine, make the bed and breakfast reservations on your own at the Grist Mill in Homer (517) 568-4063; Suttons Weed Farm in Hudson (517) 547-6302; the Munro House in Jonesville (517) 849-9292; the Chicago Street Inn in Brooklyn; (517) 592-3888. They are all within half an hour's drive of Billingsgate; their average rate is $65 per night per couple for bed and breakfast.

Shirley Geggie and her husband stayed at Suttons Weed Farm, which has been owned by the same family since 1873.

"There were a lot of old pictures from a long time ago. They still have most of the antique furniture; you could pick out pieces from the photographs," said Geggie.

My friend and I also stayed at one of the B & Bs used in the package, the Grist Mill Inn in nearby Homer. Our stay there was so pleasant, we lingered over a fabulous gourmet breakfast until 2 in the afternoon!

Billingsgate is open only on weekends and dinner is by reservation only. Reservations are taken for 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday and 3 to 7 p.m. on Sunday. Call toll-free 1-800-THE-GATE for reservations.

Area residents impressed by Billingsgate, Grist Mill

Sharon Clark of Milford went to Billingsgate with her husband Bob. She was impressed as soon as they arrived. "The restaurant is out in the middle of nowhere. When you get there, it's a pleasant surprise. It's also kind of unique that you have to ring the doorbell to get in."

The rest of the experience was just as impressive. "The staff was very casual. They didn't push you; you could take as long as you wanted. There was an artistic flare to the presentation, and the food was fantastic!"

The Clarks appreciated the antiques. "It's an old, old church, and all the antiques just seemed to belong there."

Even though Billingsgate is an hour and a half from Milford, the Clarks would like to go back. "It would have to be a special occasion, though; it's that kind of place."

Judy Beards of South Lyon went to Billingsgate with her husband Mark on his birthday. It was a surprise — she arranged a weekend with two other couples who met them at Grist Mill Inn.

They all liked the rural feel of the area. "It's not very far. You get there fairly quickly, but when you get there it feels like it's far away."

Beards liked Billingsgate as soon as she saw it. "The restaurant reminded me of Christmas, the way it was all lit up." Billingsgate was especially nice for a party. "The table is yours for the evening. We just took our time, and had a wonderful evening."

Couple finds travel in Romania easy

"It was hard to believe that we were in Romania once again."

That was John Schroth of Redford, who spent three weeks this summer traveling through eastern Europe with his wife Mary. Mary's family comes from Hungary. John's family comes from Romania. They traveled to both countries two years ago, before the wall came down in Berlin and things began to change in eastern Europe.

The State Department has issued a travel advisory about Romania, which means that they don't recommend travel there, but Schroth didn't know about that until after he got home. It probably wouldn't have stopped him anyway.

"When we went to Romania in 1989, before the revolution, we had a hard time getting in," he said. "The border guards searched everything. We had to take everything out of the car. They even made us open the hood. It was the same way going out."

"But this time, in 1991, we had no problem at the border of Romania. I paid $63 for a visa for my wife and myself. The border guard gave me a small form to be filled out, and that was that."

"If you drive into Romania as we did, you must buy coupons at the tourist office to purchase gas. Usually there are about 20 or more cars in line for gas, but foreigners are allowed to go ahead of the line."

"We visited my cousin in a small town called Deta, and had a very good time. They seem to have everything but on a smaller scale."

I love to hear stories like that about readers who travel. Governments and public relations professionals give us the factual information we need to plan trips, but there is nothing like a personal experience to make that information real.

If you have a brief experience to share with us, in or out of the country, send it to me at 22000 Springbrook, Suite 206C, Farmington Hills 48336. Feel free to include one color print of yourself in a travel setting, as long as it does not need to be returned.

THE MIDWEST is more likely to be on your calendar this month. If so, here are some of the events that may brighten your summer:

• Nautical festival — The Rogers City Nautical Festival has been chosen by the state for its special list of festivals celebrating the Great Lakes this summer. It will be July 31 through Aug. 4.

They are advertising it as a real homecoming, Lake Huron style. There will be brass bands, polka music, ethnic foods, a kiddie carnival, a children's parade, fishing and softball tournaments, grand prix bike race, 10K run and fireworks.

Rogers City, in the northeast Lower Peninsula 255 miles from Detroit, is known for its beaches, boating facilities, fishing and for the world's largest limestone quarry. Offshore shipwrecks are accessible to scuba divers.

The twin 7-foot Ocqueoc Falls cascade over fossilized coral limestone into natural wading pools 12 miles west of town.

• Michigan Festival — You can now buy a $12 admission button for the fun and games scheduled for the fifth annual Michigan Festival in East Lansing Aug. 9-18. The button, which saves on the gate charge of $14, will buy you four weekend days of music, dance and folk activities as well as general admission to 10 evening concerts.

Outdoor concerts on the Oldsmobile Main Stage include Bonnie Raitt and Chris Isaak Aug. 9; country singer Reba McEntire Aug. 10; folk musicians Leo Kottke and Don McLean Aug. 11; Michigan Chenille Sisters Aug. 12; jazz guitarist Earl Klugh and guest Tim Cunningham Aug. 13.

Detroit's jazz singer Norma Jean Bell is on stage Aug. 14; the Latino rock quartet Los Lobos Aug. 15; rock performer Robert Palmer Aug. 16; Motown's Spinners Aug. 17 and two soft rock bands — Air Supply and Little River Band — Aug. 18.

You can buy the button at Kroger stores or AAA Michigan branches or telephone (517) 351-6620 for more information.

John Schroth of Redford, center, with his wife Mary, traveled to Romania this summer where they visited his cousin Johann.

'Here they come'

Fanfare greets Peabody ducks on their daily trek to fountain

By Iris Sanderson Jones
special writer

ORLANDO, FLA. — The hum of voices gets louder as the moment arrives. They'll be here soon, stepping out of the elevator, following the red carpet into the glare of flashguns.

"What time are they coming?"
"They're supposed to be here at 11."
Suddenly the music starts, the "King Cotton March." Heads turn. Voices drop to a whisper. "Here they come!"

The clue was the sound of the elevator door opening, where the carpet disappears around the corner.

AND HERE they come, one by one, the teal-feathered drake in the lead, the four mallard hens behind, five ducks marching down the red carpet between rows of admiring fans, with duck master Keith Lauby right behind.

He didn't learn that at King's Island or Sea World of Ohio.

The Peabody ducks march down the red carpet to the fountain in the lobby of the Peabody Hotel every morning exactly at 11 a.m., spend their day in the elegant lobby fountain and march back down the carpet to the elevator every evening at exactly 5 p.m., so that they can spend the night in their $100,000 Royal Duck Palace beside the tennis courts on the fourth floor.

The march of the Peabody ducks began in Memphis in the 1930s, when hunters typically used live ducks as decoys, known as "call ducks." The general manager of what is now the Peabody Memphis came home from a hunting trip one day and put his call ducks in the lobby fountain as a prank.

The guests loved the joke. In 1940 the Peabody Memphis hired former Ringling Brothers animal handler Edward Pembroke to formalize the duck march. He is 82 now and is still the duck master in Memphis.

WHEN THE 27-floor Peabody Orlando was opened in 1986, five of the Memphis ducks came with the staff — "we must preserve the Peabody breed" — and started their own lineage.

Enter Keith Lauby, raised in Cleveland, graduated from Ohio State with a bachelor's degree in wildlife biology, veteran of the wild animal habitat at King's Island and animal

Dining at Billingsgate — like being a guest at an estate

By Phyllis Kroger Stillman
special writer

A weekend in the country. Frazzled by the hectic pace of everyday life, getting away for a day or two of rest and relaxation appeals to many of us. But we don't know where to go, and we don't have the time to plan our escape.

Raymond and Cynthia Holland, who own Billingsgate, a fabulous restaurant in rural Horton about 15 miles southwest of Jackson, have heard this before. They have put together an overnight package with local bed and breakfasts so people can experience a relaxing getaway, and dinner at Billingsgate, without having to increase their stress level to plan the trip.

Billingsgate — the name conjures up the image of a wealthy family's estate, set back in the woods, surrounded by a high, wrought-iron fence. The restaurant resembles that estate and dining there is like being invited by the family (who happen to have a wonderful chef) as guests for dinner.

There is a reason why patrons feel like guests. "This is a passion that both Ray and I have. We've put a lot of love into this place, and we want to see people enjoy it," said Cynthia Giles Holland, who was born and raised in Dearborn.

BILLINGSGATE IS housed in what used to be a church. Stained glass windows dominate both ends of the dining room. The furnishings are mostly antiques, but not just any antiques. They are the Hollands' own collection, as well as antiques inherited from their grandparents.

You seldom wait for a table. As a general rule, each table is reserved for only one party per evening. "It's all part of our philosophy of a special evening. It's the kind of place where you can relax and forget the world," said Ray Holland, who has lived in several southeastern Michigan communities including Canton and Milford.

The menu, which changes every month, is somewhat eclectic. "We wanted to give people a mix between classic French and comfort food," said Cynthia, who is head chef.

Dinner is five courses, with a set price of $25 per person, plus tax and 15 percent gratuity. It was quite a dinner. A choice of three appetizers: country pate, mushrooms burgundy or cream of vegetable soup. A house salad or a Caesar salad. A choice of three entrees: beef Wellington, amaretto shrimp or chicken breast in phyllo.

And three desserts: a morning shell filled with ice cream, cheesecake, or a densely chocolate creation called "chocolate suicide" which was so good we decided it should be called "chocolate reason to live." The meal ended with a specially blended hazelnut coffee which is good enough all by itself to ensure a return visit.

EVERYTHING WAS beautifully presented and perfectly prepared, with staff continuing to make diners, like Shirley Geggie of Troy, feel like special guests. "Very personal service. I asked them to make a variation on the dessert, and they did. I was also impressed that the chef came out to talk with us," said Geggie.

I was also very impressed with the service. On one of my visits to Billingsgate I ran out of gas and had to coast into a parking space. I told the staff about my problem, and some-

'Henry' misses mark

By John Monaghan
special writer

Tasteless lawyer joke No. 532: How do you get a lawyer to start acting like a human being?

If you believe the premise of "Regarding Henry," you shoot him in the head and cross your fingers during the recovery.

Mike Nichols' new film begins with the closing statements of high-powered attorney Henry Turner (Harrison Ford) during a controversial court case. He, of course, is defending the hospital charged with negligence for allegedly disregarding a patient's diabetic condition.

And though he hates to bring it up again, Turner delves into ancient history and the man's previous bout with alcoholism. He deftly turns the jury over to his side and wins the case.

That same night, gloating over his victory, Turner descends from his high-rise Manhattan apartment and walks to the corner market for a pack of cigarettes. A young punk in the process of robbing the place casually pumps a pair of bullets into him. One hits a major artery, the other his frontal lobe.

FROM HERE, "Regarding Henry" could have gone just about anywhere. But director Nichols, who teamed with Ford for the infinitely more insightful "Working Girl," takes the easy road. With a few exceptions, the story of Henry's painfully slow recovery only offers predictable situations and characters.

Harrison Ford stars as Henry Turner and Mikki Allen is his daughter Rachel in Mike Nichols' "Regarding Henry."

The first stage of recovery is handled by Bradley, a young black therapist with an eye for the ladies. For Turner, who remembers nothing of his past, Bradley becomes his best friend and soulmate.

Ford is surprisingly good as Henry, who walks through the film befuddled and infinitely more likable, discovering what a creep he was before the shooting. He now talks to and learns from the young daughter he only lectured at before.

Wife Sarah, played by Annette Bening, also undergoes a dramatic change. She starts out as shallowly as he does, wallowing in the power and the luxury, but then learns the responsibilities of marriage and finances.

Perhaps the change is too dramatic. While the audience undergoes every painful first step and syllable of Henry's recuperation, you need to read too much into her character. At one point you see her on the phone, apparently back to work as a secretary to make ends meet, but you have no idea how she got there.

'Sugar Baby' is Eurotechno Flat even as a video

By LeAnne Rogers
staff writer

Dressing bodies at the RIP Funeral Home where she works and helping lug coffins around, the amply endowed heroine of "Sugarbaby" has about as much animation in her face as some of her customers.

Things aren't any better during her off-hours, as the woman blankly rides the subway home, does some power grocery shopping while munching an éclair, and then crawls into bed for an evening of eating and dozing before the television. Her major recreation is floating on her back in a swimming pool.

One day things change for the woman, played by Marianne Sagebrecht. Riding on the subway she becomes entranced by the subway train conductor, hypnotized by his voice as he calls out the stops and warns passengers to stand clear of the doors.

After riding to the end of the line, she finds a purpose in life — tracking down the tall blond conductor with whom she has become smitten.

AFTER HER preoccupation disrupts her work at the funeral home, she decides to use her accumulated vacation time to further her pursuit. Her dour employer expresses the hope after taking some time off she'll be back to her old self. She smiles and nods but that's clearly not likely to happen.

The film has some good points as Sagebrecht, with her flat dull hair and sensible shoes, tries to dress for romantic success, wobbling in high heels, floating on perfume and giggling over special order lingerie. She stalks her prey with a fierce determination and the cunning of an espionage agent.

Being a large woman, about whom one somewhat awestruck male character says "she sure is a lot of woman," Sagebrecht's size is never really an issue. She doesn't go on a crash diet to attract the man of her dreams; she offers him a candy bar in the subway station. She is totally open to her chosen.

Sagebrecht has some nice moments as she goes through that agony of wondering whether you've made a fool of yourself or your loved one will respond as you hoped. Will he show up or won't he?

LATER, SHE has an especially nice monologue about her family life that explains a lot about how she came to where she is in her life.

Overall though, the film has a kind of oddly detached feeling. Sagebrecht's character acts pretty obsessively in the lengths she goes to in tracking down this man whose name she doesn't know and with whom she has never spoken.

The feeling that her behavior might be neurotic or at best adolescent is reinforced by the title of the film and the nickname she gives to her beloved, which comes from a record she liked as a 15-year-old.

A 1985 German film, directed by Percy Adlom, "Sugarbaby" has a pretty flat Eurotechno look to it, not to mention a distractingly wobbly camera in some scenes. A better film from Adlom is "Bagdad Cafe," which also features Sagebrecht.

Alligators members guitarist Garrett Kazanowski, vocalist Dave Krammer of Redford, harmonica player Wallin' Dale, drummer Pete Berg of Farmington and bassist Robert "RD" Jones give the blues band an uptown boogie bite.

A respiratory therapist who smokes, a blues aficionado with more than 1,000 records and a guy whose taking a poll in his back yard on whether they ever had chicken pox.

Meet the Alligators, a rollicking uptown blues outfit who doesn't believe in restricting a good time feeling to the stage.

"Did I tell you Ric Flair quit the N.W.A.?" says lead guitarist Garrett Kazanowski, the respiratory therapist who is puffing on a Marlboro Light.

Band mates vocalist Dave Krammer of Redford and harmonica player Wallin' Dale collectively roll their eyes at their guitarist's apparent second passion — professional wrestling. But the Alligators are grappling with bigger beasts.

The five-man band is set to take down the notion that says the blues must always be a low-down, gut-wrenching expression of pain and sorrow. The Alligators swing.

They also have some history behind them. Band members

Krammer and Dale witnessed the lean years of playing the blues in Detroit, starting out together 11 years ago in an outfit called Hound's Tooth Jones.

Four years later, the duo were the founding members of The Alligators. Initially, the group was styled in a rock-blues motif to coincide with the emergence of similar rock-blues artists such as Stevie Ray Vaughan and The Thunderbirds.

AFTER 12 MONTHS into the experiment, the Alligators were disillusioned to find everyone else doing the same. Instead, the band changed gears to incorporate more of a dance sound.

"The blues was a dance music in the '20s and '30s," says Dale, the appointed musical historian of the band. "You sort of lose that when you go into long, drawn-out solos."

Or as Kazanowski waxes philosophically: "I get depressed at work. I don't play my guitar to get depressed."

Citing the likes of Duke Robillard (member of Roomful of Blues) and T-Bone Walker as influences, a slithering up-tempo guitar sound pours out of both Kazanowski's 175 and his vintage dot-neck 335 Gibson guitars.

Kazanowski is one of three former members of the Progressive Blues Band in the Alligators. Drummer Pete Berg of Farmington and bassist Robert "RD" Jones of St. Clair Shores, also played in the Detroit area club favorite.

Kazanowski played rhythm guitar in the Progressive Blues Band for eight years, but he convinced Krammer and Dale he could fill the lead role when the vacancy opened up a year ago.

THE ALLIGATORS swing with a repertoire of originals spiked with a series of obscure covers such as an old New Orleans nugget like "Flatfoot Sam" or a raucous rendition of "The Big Maybelle Tune." Those numbers are culled from Dale's extensive archives.

"Wallin' helps us stretch out by bringing that stuff in," says Krammer, whose daughter has the chicken pox, necessitating a meeting in his back yard.

The band travels extensively around Michigan and Ohio to be heard.

Members say traveling to places like Traverse City or Zalesville, Ohio, provides for some fun rides, especially when Kazanowski starts in with some lore from the pro mat wars.

"One time, I met (wrestler) Lord Athal Layton outside behind Cobo Arena when I was a kid. I told him, 'Watch out for that nail! Remember, The Sheik has that nail.' But he got in the ring and then, wham, he got hit with that nail. No, he wouldn't listen to me."

But blues audiences are.

The idea is to get in free and enjoy the music. Elwood found himself on main stage at the festival the next year.

THIS IS perhaps attributable to many things, but most notably a hefty batch of well-crafted songs that had been fermenting for 12 years. Only Elwood didn't choose to reveal them until two years ago.

"I couldn't sit on them anymore," Elwood said in a telephone interview from Dallas with his musical partner, Beth Galiger. Both perform Saturday, July 20, at Birmingham Unitarian Church.

"I went through a lot of personal changes. I went through a divorce. I was definitely drawn into it by the response."

ELWOOD'S WRITING style embraces simplicity, yet is ornate with piercing inflections and synopated with scrupulous detail. He's not one to wrap songs in vague metaphors, rather, letting stories tell themselves.

Each number's authenticity is relayed in Elwood's vocals. He sings in a direct, whispery narrative of a storyteller, underscoring impassioned honesty.

While those trademarks might be synonymous with many songwriters from Austin, Texas, Elwood's work explores divergent styles of music.

NEVER LOVED ELVIS

— The Wonder Stuff

The Wonder Stuff are an English band whose members take pride in not taking themselves too seriously. Don't worry, fellas, we won't either after listening to this wayward effort.

Oh, The Wonder Stuff try to pull the wool over our eyes (or ears in this case).

They blast through their pop babble at breakneck speed in an attempt to insert some sort of immediacy to make their musical statements seem profound. "Never Loved Elvis"? Why not just name this "I Hate Peanut Butter"?

Certainly, The Wonder Stuff must be admired for their humor. They even go to such wisecracking lengths of inviting Mick Glossop, whose previous production credits include Van Morrison and the Waterboys, to mix this bland stew.

Also, former sideman Martin Bell is made into a full-fledged member so he can play fiddle, banjo, mandolin and accordion.

This so-called "Celtic-shading" turns out to be hilarious, especially mixed with the organ heavy psychedelic groove put forth by the rest of the band. It's kind of like the Chieftans meet Stone Roses.

ACTUALLY, ONE suspects The Wonder Stuff really had something going at one time, but realizing everybody and their mother was copying the '70s-inspired Manchester sound decided to change gears.

Also, part of the problem is Miles Hunt's vocals are so ordinary. He tries to work up the passion on such numbers as "Mission Drive," but the soul is just not there, old boy.

Some songs have the makings of excellent pop numbers, but get slogged down in the marsh of over production.

The end result has a band blithely tearing through a batch of songs that are going nowhere.

THE WHEEZER TRACKS

— The Grins

Remarkably, The Grins recorded 17 songs during a period of 11 months with only Guy Clark and Paul Koppel manning drums, guitars, bass and keyboards. The process included initially recording on eight-tracks and mixing the project to a digital two-track in their home studio.

This is the basis of "The Wheezer Tracks," a rather fanciful collection of pop songs that are delectable in their most rudimentary form. Yet, The Grins reveal far more in an their endless stream of pop songs. Despite the self-imposed limitations, (there's only so much two guys can do, you know), The Grins prove one can go above and beyond with the smallest of resources if the idea is right.

The Grins know how to make pop songs bore out in the fact that "The Wheezer Tracks" (Mek Mok Records, Box 610002, Port Huron 48061-0002) is neither derivative or tedious despite numerous offerings. Each number is simple, hook-ridden and expansive.

Guy Clark sounds a little like a junior Elvis Costello, sometimes muffled. But he's more than able to invoke a plea or a moan when the emotive edge is called for like in the brilliant song like "Old & Rotten."

Yet the guitar-playing is one of the more endearing qualities of this project. While strident, Clark's strumming is certainly not one-dimensional as he handles a yeoman's load of the guitar playing. On three cuts, "If You Go On," "Wheezer I" and "Wheezer II," he plays all the instruments. When Koppel joins the fray on some of the numbers (he's co-written six songs here), the guitar interplay enhances the effort without being self-indulgent.

Instrumental and vocal economy are the focal points. So, too, is the lyrical content of "The Wheezer Tracks." Not ones to mix metaphors, Clark and Koppel usher this project through with an endless batch of rhymes.

And, of course, no pop offering is complete without a few numbers about girls. Only in the doo-wop of "Mary Lou," do The Grins steer dangerously close to throw-away Beach Boy territory. Otherwise, heck, the band scores points there.

After listening to "The Wheezer Tracks," one only wonders what The Grins could do with a full complement of musicians and a big studio.

STREET SENSE

Healthy image is important

Dear Barbara,

My four-year-old son stays in a private home while I work. The caregiver handed me a picture of my son standing in a pool in the back yard, naked, laughing, displaying himself.

I was alarmed that my son was outdoors naked. Also, that the caregiver deliberately brought out a camera to take such a picture.

32-year-old mother

Your letter is very interesting because it illustrates how different people can view the same scene and have opposing reactions to it.

To illustrate this point, I asked two mothers of young children how they would feel if the experience had happened to them. One responded that she would be comfortable taking her own pictures of her children naked. However, she is against anyone else doing it because, she said, "there are too many crazies out there." The other woman said she would be uncomfortable because of her mother-in-law's disapproval.

I cannot fully respond to your letter as I would like because you are unclear as to who the caregiver was. Was it a teenage girl? Was it a relative? Was it someone against whom you have hostile feelings?

The sentence that I like shows that your son was laughing and displaying himself. I like this happy picture because it is normal and natural for his age group. He has not yet been indoctrinated with shame, guilt and criticisms, such as what a bad boy he is.

What if there was no evil intent but normal healthy youthful exuberance?

You underline the word old three times. Have you forgotten what it was like to be young and happy and not have the fears of the world bearing heavily down?

I know that this last emphasis can be subjected to outraged criticism from my readers. If so, I apologize. It is based on my observations that many adults lose their childhood ability to play, and to have fun, and to that degree, diminish their mental health.

The same mother who said she would be comfortable taking her own pictures of her children naked but would be suspicious of others doing so has helped her children develop healthy body images. The family has a pool in the back yard and, at the age when it is appropriate for each, the four children cavort in and around it without clothes.

This mother hugs them and tickles them and plays with their toes. She enjoys the freedom they feel with their bodies. Thus, they are developing good feelings about their bodies. Mental health includes a healthy body image.

When I read your letter, my first thought was maybe they were just having fun. Need it be more complicated than that? Should your son grow up with a great pride in his body, it will give him more confidence than he would have if he has a terrible body image.

Confidence in one's body seems more important today than ever before. Many of our youngsters are turning to steroids and eating disorders to force their bodies into unrealistic media images. With self-love, it is less likely they will torture themselves into those ways.

Barbara Schiff

Thank you for this most interesting letter.

MOVING PICTURES

ate," is still fighting battles against the establishment. He paints a calculatedly grim picture of the legal profession, where crass attorneys justify the practice of withholding evidence.

"It's paying for our lunch," Turner's partner says.

There are some clever and subtle moments, too. The law firm takes Henry back, knowing full well that he is unable to carry on his duties. "We're human, too," they say, though they keep files from him, realizing that he has developed a conscience.

And just by the way she looks at him, you can size up the situation between Turner and an attractive female attorney. You just know they had an affair. This becomes the film's one memorable twist.

But something backfires here.

Perhaps it's because we've been through too many movies about slow recoveries and therapy concerning every disease from AIDS to autism to amnesia.

Little quirks that will supposedly add dimension to these characters — like the irritating habit Turner has of losing his keys early in the film — don't add up to much.

WHEN HENRY decides that his daughter doesn't belong at a fancy school for girls, he dashes off to a little white chapel where she is being indoctrinated. The climax of "The Graduate" comes to mind immediately, but minus the emotion.

ASIDE FROM being a meeting point, Austin proved creatively inspiring for Elwood.

He moved with his family from Pennsylvania to the epicenter of roots music 11 years ago. He spent idle time doing Neil Young, Tom Waits and Jackson Browne covers at fraternity parties while attending the University of Texas. He has a bachelor's degree in Spanish.

At the time, people like Lucinda Williams and Christopher Cross were performing at Austin clubs.

"It intimidated the hell out of me," Elwood said.

Enough to keep Elwood crafting songs instead of performing them in public. Then two years ago, he made his debut at the Chicago House in Austin. The response was overwhelming.

"I NEVER thought I'd be a performer," Elwood said. "It's a notion I didn't even entertain until a couple of years ago. I know I could write songs. I just wrote and wrote... I thought it (the music industry) was all flash. I didn't know there was a market out for well-crafted songs."

Elwood refers to his songs as "head cartoons." One number, "The Major," is an example of his ability to craft poignant short stories.

In the acoustic ballad, Elwood searches the soul of a World War II bomber whose son follows his dad's footsteps in the military. Except instead of the glory he derived from war, his son is killed.

But within the confines of a three-minute song, Elwood carefully whittles the character while singing disdainfully. "Now two times a year, he heads up for Las Vegas/With his wife and his whiskey in the old Winnebago/He's looking for something he hasn't found yet/He's running from something he'll never forget."

"Scarecrow's Prayer" marks the evolving process of Elwood's songwriting. He said he always keeps a notebook and pen handy when on the road, jotting ideas or images.

As any artist will confess, the first release is a lifetime in the making. The follow-up usually only involves a year. Elwood said he's looking to release a live album, recording numbers on this current tour (including his stop at Birmingham Unitarian Church).

In his repertoire are 25-27 songs along with a couple of covers, including Tom Waits' (who is one of Elwood's influences) "Heart of Saturday Night."

"I definitely tell a story. I have a story to tell."

Prayer" (Agua Azul Records in Austin), features a cross section of folk ballads ("The Major"), barebone rockers ("Drug Wars") and soulful blues bordering on gospel ("The Distance").

The compact disc is also a cornucopia of instrumentation, including flute, cello, ebow guitar and accordion — hardly the stuff one pairs up with sparse, tumbleweed sounds usually associated with Austin.

BACK IN Austin, Elwood has recently put together a five-member band. Prior commitments, however, have him touring with only one member. Galiger plays flute and percussion and provides harmonies.

"I've even pulled my sax out of the closet," Galiger said.

Galiger's and Elwood's musical careers have some parallels.

SHE STUDIED classical music while in college and also performed jazz. She grew tired of recitals, dropping out of music for a year. She landed in a bluegrass band, rediscovering the spontaneity of performing live music. She eventually found her way to Austin four years ago.

Michael Elwood

Then Galiger met up with Elwood at the Chicago House in Austin, a place where the singer made his debut.

Flaming feasts

High technology and earth-safe items are popping up everywhere, including summertime backyard barbecues. From Sharper Image in Novi and Troy, the Pyramid Portable Stove enables you to cook a complete meal without an air-polluting charcoal starter or using flammable propane gas.

The charcoal briquets heat the grill to 1,110 degrees, making it possible not only to barbecue, but stir fry, roast, bake and boil foods. The unusual inverted pyramid shape reflects heat from the interior walls, maintaining a 400-degree oven for several hours (using the included hood). The folding steel stove repacks in its own compact carry tote with a cool down time of only five minutes. Priced at $70.

Mmmmmmm, great cookout discovery... jumbo chicken kabobs ($4.49 each) and beef kabobs ($3.99 each) ready for the grill, available at Diamond Market on 12 Mile Road in Southfield.

When crack moved into a row house on a quiet block of Stanton Park in Washington, D.C., folks decided to serve an eviction notice.

They met with police to find out what they could do to keep drugs out of their neighborhood.

The cops told them to keep an eye out—to let police know whenever something suspicious happened. They began to notice faces. They wrote down license

They noted the times of odd behavior.

They worked with each other. They worked with the police. Armed with field glasses, note pads and telephones, folks kept track of the neighborhood.

Tim 'Men are Pigs' Allen goes prime time

By Bob Sadler
special writer

Metro Detroit has been grunting with Tim Allen for years, as the local funnyman's career has gathered momentum. The way things have been progressing lately, the phrase that would most accurately describe Tim Allen's career might be "runaway freight train."

He's certainly not our little secret anymore. When we last checked in with the self-proclaimed "masculinist" one year ago, the Birmingham resident had recently completed taping his first Showtime special — the appropriately titled "Tim Allen: Men Are Pigs." He was a few months away from receiving an ACE Award, the cable equivalent of the Emmy; for his performance at the 1990 International Comedy Festival in Montreal, also on Showtime.

A national commercial for GMC Truck, featuring Allen, had just been taped for air during the fall and winter sports programming. Finally, he had just signed a development deal with Disney's Touchstone group to produce a weekly television series.

Now it's only a matter of time before the rest of America joins the ride. Allen's series, called "Home Improvement," will premiere this fall on ABC on Tuesday, nestled gently into the schedule between "Full House" (moved from its Friday slot) and "Roseanne."

IN OTHER words, ABC wants the show, in which Allen plays a "Bob Vila on steroids" local cable television host, to be a hit.

Early screenings of the pilot have predominately been received favorably by ABC affiliates and critics alike.

The premise for "Home Improvement" is partially derived, of course, from Allen's comedy act, and he knew exactly what he wanted when adapting the idea for a weekly sit-com.

"We wanted a show that celebrated families, something that celebrated men — not as superiors, but as equals to women," Allen said. "We looked to celebrate those differences (between men and women). It fits my mold perfectly."

The fact that he is working hard at producing "Home Improvement" doesn't mean, however, that Allen has been ignoring his stand-up act lately. In fact, a performance last month in Ann Arbor was taped for his second Showtime special, entitled "Tim Allen Rewires America." The special is scheduled to air in November or December, according to officials at the taping.

It would be easy to think that someone as busy as Allen might be content to put his stand-up work on cruise control while developing the television series. Certainly, one could understand the amount of time it takes to sign a development deal and tape a pilot might not leave a great deal of free hours to spend writing fresh material.

WELL, IN taping the Showtime special, Allen remained true to the masculine subject matter that put him on the map (grunt grunt), but did it with fresh material and a few surprises.

"I worked harder than I've ever worked," Allen said about putting together the new material for the special. "I'm happier with it (the performance) than I thought I was going to be."

Now, standing on the threshold of potentially greater fame, Allen acknowledges that he is taking on network television. For all the Roseannes and Coshys there have been over the years, there also have been other stand-up comics who have seen their sit-coms end up in the rubbish heap.

"I'm at the top of my game right now doing stand-up, so I am risking something," Allen said.

On the other hand, if "Home Improvement" makes him a household name, Allen will be in the enviable position to pick and choose his stand-up appearances and play larger venues. It's a chance he's willing to take.

"It's a great challenge," Allen said. "I'm going to give it my best shot."

Tim Allen will appear Tuesday, July 16, at Chaplin's West, 16890 Telegraph, one block south of Six Mile Road. Show times are 8 and 10:30 p.m. Tickets are $15. For information, call 533-8866.

Tim Allen is a rising star in Hollywood. Parlaying his success with Showtime's 1990 International Comedy Festival in Montreal, he's now working on an ABC sit-com, "Home Improvement."

Earth concerts: Tie-dyed shirts, peace and love

By Janice Brunson
special writer

In a semi-darkened room replete with folding chairs and a symbolic Unitarian lamp of knowledge, Richard Cyr strums his guitar and sings of social issues.

A native American who was raised in Wayne County, Cyr, a handsome man with shoulder-length gray hair, sings lyrics he has penned.

"I know freedom isn't for me," he croons. Billy Zook, a former trucker and Alaskan fisherman, now from Oakland County, plays a baritone ukulele and warbles country western tunes.

A metal cup dangles from Zook's frayed belt, holding up faded jeans over shoeless feet.

"Haven't used Styrofoam in years, out of love and respect of the planet," he says.

Bruce Jenvey, a Bloomfield Hills advertising executive who was once a member of the underground poets workshop at Michigan State University in the 1960s, studies the stage technique of Cyr and Zook. It's been years since Jenvey, a guitarist, has performed in public and this is the perfect opportunity — before a "low cost, forgiving audience."

It is a gathering of metropolitan Detroit's counter culture, the people who live alternative lifestyles as well as those who, now ensconced in suburbia, harken back to days past when social change was in the air.

THE EARTH Community Concerts and Coffee House, a monthly evening of performing arts staged at the Northwest Unitarian Universalist Church in Southfield, is the '60s revisited, but with a decided difference.

"Different approach, new energy, less naive," observed Farmington Hills attorney Gary Colbert, a former 1960s university activist who now dresses in business suits. He embraces the message of the Earth Concerts.

"I believe things can change for the better and I believe they ought to," he said. "The Persian Gulf showed how little respect we have for human life. This group echoes the prevalent issues of the '60s."

An outgrowth of the Art Center Music

School in Detroit, Earth Concerts is a collective effort that provides a smoke- and alcohol-free "art space" where seasoned and novice performers do their own thing without censorship. Concerts benefit such diverse groups as St. Dominic's soup kitchen and Victims of War.

Cyr, a professional musician, performs periodically, on request during the programmed portion of the show that starts promptly at 9 p.m. Zook, an amateur, is a regular. Jenvey is new, performing during "open mike" when anyone who wishes may appear between 7:30 and 9 p.m. Nobody is paid.

"IT'S THE entire spectrum of humanity; every race, creed, non-creed, anarchist, any point of view," said Craig Schenk, a 1969 graduate of Seaholm High School in Birmingham and a member of the collective that produces Earth Concerts. "In a nutshell, we support anything that's good. We oppose anything that's bad."

Another is Charlie Gee. "We present a stage for a diverse group of visionaries," he said. "It's an offensive to the Rambo-Reagan definition of art."

A self-employed Wayne County businessman and the father of two teens, Gee said he accommodates work to his lifestyle, wearing to the office what he has on now — sandals, a tie-dyed T-shirt and cut-off Levis.

John Blake, a 1975 graduate of Livonia Stevenson High School who operates the collective's coffee house, serves a strict vegan (vegetarian sans dairy products) menu that uses only foods from the plant kingdom. Even honey is excluded because its production "enslaves bees."

Gentle by nature, Blake said the food offers an alternative to normal daily fare.

Marcel Trimble, a Birmingham nurse, and friend Sherry Jantz have responded to an advertisement about the concert series and are attending for the first time.

"I haven't seen the term 'rainbow gathering' used in a long time," said Trimble. "I wanted to see what was going on."

TOO YOUNG to be a part of the '60s movement, she said she supports its intent.

Harold Stokes of Redford and Sandra Zhihar of Southfield, both full-time environmentalists whose friendship blossomed at an Earth Day Every Day benefit, often attend.

Pressing for environmental affairs can be "insulting, humiliating and degrading work," Zhihar said. "I come here to relax."

Sporting a waist-length red beard, Keith Turner of Orchard Lake collects $5 admission from the 100 or so who have shown up for tonight's concert. Turner, 28, last shaved when as a 16-year-old attending Andover High School in Birmingham, he faced expulsion for growing a beard.

Susan Sunshine, Schenk's girlfriend who favors long skirts and beads, spreads welcomes. Five teens, including one who uses the name Cindy Cadaver, perform a noisy skit on stage.

Aside from the noise, the performance appears to have little meaning. 15 minutes of self-indulged nonsense that lacks interest or humor.

Bald Eagle, a Southfield financial consultant who devotes full time to writing music, comments: "Some acts make absolutely no sense to me. But some people may not like my singing. Different strokes for different folks."

The thought, according to collective members, is exactly what the concert series is all about.

Corey Conn of Auburn Hills laughs at the description of the exploits of full-time environmentalist Sandy Zhihar of Southfield.

King Richard III fans aim to lift his image

By Ralph R. Echlinew
staff writer

KING RICHARD III's perceived villainy has endured centuries, thanks to Henry VIII, William Shakespeare and a cast of thousands.

Like the erudite scholars and amateur sleuths that many of them are, Richard III Society members work diligently to prove their hero was no more a human ogre than Winston Churchill, but rather a victim of a heinous Tudor effort to malign his character.

In brief, Richard was framed! Or so say the Ricardians, as they call themselves.

The English king's detractors, including no less a respected figure than St. Thomas More, claim the last Plantagenet king was a hunchback with a withered arm who ate live frogs and had two young nephews smothered with pillows to neatly negate any claim to the throne they might have.

Canton Township resident Mary Miller, who grew up in the Texas panhandle, gained interest in English history in her salad days, earned a history degree from Texas Christian University and joined the Ricardian ranks 20 years ago.

She formed the local Richard III Society chapter a year ago after her husband, a General Motors employee, was transferred here.

WITH JUST 20 members, the local chapter will never be accused of especial prominence. However, the devoted Ricardians gather four times a year to discuss their namesake and refute those who would damn Richard.

"His people were completely out of power for 100 years and the Tudors wrote the history," Miller said.

"It was more than 130 years (after Richard died) before any historian wrote a sympathetic history."

SHE SHOULD know. Miller, a Plymouth library clerk, owns more than 100 books on Richard III.

"You sometimes think you're the only one who has read these books," she said.

While Miller admits Shakespeare

'It's not just Richard III. Although he's a very enigmatic character, I don't consider myself to be on a mission from God to defend Richard's reputation. I think we are all just basically armchair scholars.'

— Barbara Bluford, member
Richard III Society

is the society's "nemesis" for writing "Richard III" (a decidedly uncomplimentary vision, she has seen the play four times.

"If you read the play a lot, you begin to see a lot of it is tongue-in-cheek," she said. "Sometimes, it's played for comedy almost."

Troy resident Barbara Bluford, a University of Michigan graduate with a degree in history, joined Richard's society six months ago.

Interested in English history from farther back than she cares to admit, Bluford "quickly went through every book on English history, the medieval period, in the Troy Public Library (and still) consider myself to be a neophyte."

THE NATIONAL society maintains a Richard III library in California for its 750 members, so Bluford now gets her history fix from that direction.

Like many society members, Bluford's interest is broader than Richard alone, encompassing the entire English medieval era.

"It's not just Richard III," she said. "Although he's a very enigmatic character, I don't consider myself to be on a mission from God to defend Richard's reputation. I think we are all just basically armchair scholars."

Bluford said her husband of 20 years, Alan, is "mildly amused" with her hobby/obsession and that some day she'll take him with her on the society's annual trip to England.

An attorney for nine years,

Bluford wasn't sure about giving her employer publicity in a Richard III context.

"I don't know if the firm wants to be mentioned," she said.

PLYMOUTH RESIDENT Sara Fiegenschuh, whose ancestry is German, majored in biology at Gettysburg College (often studying on the Gettysburg battlefield), yet had been interested in English history since the dew was fresh on the lawn of her life.

In 1981, she wrote to Sharon Penman, author of "The Sunne in Splendour" (a fictional Richard III biography) and Penman put her in touch with the society, which she promptly joined.

"(Richard) was very young (32 years old) when he was killed, so it was kind of romantic," she said. "(Ricardians) just don't want to believe anybody could be that ruthless."

Fiegenschuh said the society's goal is to burnish the tarnished image of Richard, perhaps in the same way historians have come to approve more of Dwight Eisenhower's presidency since 1960.

BRIAN MURPHY, an Oakland University English professor and Shakespeare expert, has tremendous respect for the Ricardians, saying they have a "very good case" for Richard's innocence.

"They tend to be real literary historians."

Steven Claypoole, Oakland Community College history professor, agreed in part.

In Richard's favor, Claypoole called him a "loyal brother, capable king, courageous warrior" and agreed "there's no hard evidence that he was hunchbacked" or that he killed his nephews.

But Claypoole, a remarkable scholar with reams of history seemingly at his fingertips, called the society "a bit whimsical. It's the whim of the people who want to defend Richard."

People interested in joining the Ricardians can call Mary Miller at 459-8948. Dues are $5 a year for the local chapter and $25 a year for national society membership.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Canton Township resident Mary Miller, who chairs the local Richard III Society chapter, sits before a portrait of the maligned king in her study. Her three children, she said, "call it my Richard III Room."

Be rational in how you use your time

Everyone has the same amount of time: 24 hours per day. Some spend that time wisely and some don't. The question is: "What is wisely?"

Everyone decides the value of things from their own perspective, from their own paradigm. Unfortunately, these decisions are sometimes rationalized instead of being rational.

I excerpted the following from "Something to Think About" (author unknown) in our church bulletin. It illustrates the different ways people look at the same thing:

"FUNNY — a 10 dollar bill looks so big when you take it to church, but so small when you take it to the store. FUNNY — an hour seems long when you consider giving to the work of the church, but short when spent for fishing, playing golf, watching TV, etc. FUNNY — it's difficult to find time to read a chapter in the Bible, but we can manage several hundred pages in a current novel. FUNNY — it's such a task to fit a few church events into our busy schedules, but a social invitation can often be worked into them at the last minute."

In the fifth grade, I learned an axiom that repeatedly pops back into my mind: "Every person makes the best decision they can, based on what they have to work with at that time" (their attitudes, personal experience, pressures, current environment, etc. — their paradigm). Whether it's how to deal with a situation or how to spend money, each person makes the "right" decision at that moment.

(Sadly, when a person doesn't know a better way to handle a situation, too often these days the result is murder. That's not to say it's right, acceptable or excusable from society's point of view, but using a gun is the "best" way a murderer knows to handle the situation at that moment.)

AND SO IT IS with the way we spend our time.

Although we'd be loathe to admit it, most of us choose what to do ac-organizing

ording to whether we want to do it or not — which means it's the "right" decision for us.

This includes everything from out-of-town business trips to exercising, from what we eat to which papers on our desk to handle next. Although these decisions are the best we know how to make them, too often they are not correct from an overall perspective and will not lead us toward achieving our goals.

The next time you decide how to spend your time, ask yourself if you are rationalizing or if you're being rational. Will you make a knee-jerk excuse based on doing what you'd rather do, or will you base your decision on what's best for you and those around you, and spend your time wisely?

Dorothy Lehmkuhl is a time management consultant based in Birmingham. Her column runs regularly.

Models to be photographed

Alan Lowy of Farmington Hills will host his 21st annual photographers/models picnic 11 a.m. to dusk, Sunday, July 21, rain or shine, at Kaleva Park, 5395 Greer, West Bloomfield.

He invites photographers to photograph more than 30 models: women and men, wearing evening wear to bikinis against antique and custom cars, motorcycles, boats and props. Picnic admission is $25 per person. Prospective models should call Lowy, 474-7299.

Just for brides

The Monthly Album is published the third Monday of each month for the announcement of engagements, weddings and major anniversaries. All announcements are published on a first-come-first-served basis.

Information sent must be legible and include a daytime telephone number so if there is a question the staff can call.

Photos submitted should, preferably, be black-and-white glossies, 5 x 7 inches in size. Color photos can be submitted and will be accepted, but they do not reproduce as well.

Due to the volume of photographs handled, the newspaper will not be responsible for any that may get lost or damaged. Photos can be picked up after publication in the Farmington Observer office, or if a self-addressed sufficiently stamped envelope is received with the photo, every effort will be made to return it. However, photos do get lost because so many are handled every month. There is just no guarantee the photo will be returned.

Engagement and wedding announcements pertinent to Livonia, Redford, Garden City, Westland, Farmington and Farmington Hills should be addressed to Loraine McClish, in care of the Farmington Observer, 21898 Farmington Road, Farmington 48336.

Inquiries are taken by McClish or Rose Butler in the Farmington Observer office, 477-5450.
