Proposed Dyer cuts draw seniors' ire

By Darrell Clem staff writer

The Wayne-Westland school board would stop paying for a senior citizens leisure program under a proposal that sparked an angry backlash Monday from 200 residents who jammed the board's meeting room.

The flery controversy prompted the board to delay action on the proposal from board member Vicki Welty, who wants to slash $62,700 from the program based in the Dyer Center on Marquette.

"I am not against seniors. Nor have I ever been against seniors," Welty said Monday. "This is a financial issue."

Senior citizens blasted the proposal and accused the board of betraying them by promising that money for the Dyer Center program would be restored, in the wake of a voter-approved tax increase on June 10.

"We believed you," Westland resident Isabella Thompson said. "Why are you going back on that promise now?"

A severe budget crunch last year prompted the board to halt support for the program, but senior citizens paid $25 each to rescue it on a pay-to-play basis. Now they want the money restored for the program, which has a supervisor and includes such activities as ceramics, dances, card games, needlepoint and a "kitchen" band.

"YOU WANT to toss (the seniors) out like an old shoe, and I think that's wrong," local resident Bonnie Schmidt told the school board Monday, adding later, "I just don't understand how cold and callous you board members can be."

Welty, saying the school board must strive for "financial accountability," said the program appears to duplicate many services offered by the city at the nearby Friendship Center on Newburgh Road.

The Friendship Center's director is school board President Sylvia Kozorosky-Wlacek, who drew criticism Monday from some senfor citizens who accused her of having a conflict of interest on the issue. (See related sto-

Senior Margaretta Frobe, who said she has paid Wayne-Westland school taxes for 50 years, was among those who said they preferred the Dyer Center over the Friendship Center.

"I think that I have earned a right to the center of my choosing," Frobe said. She also suggested the board should implement an "adopt-a-grandparent" program in which students needing tutoring could receive help at the Dyer Center.

SENIOR ALMA Sudz questioned the board's "unrelenting desire" to halt the leisure program and said, "If it is closed, there" had better be a darmed good reason. The money is there. We're not taking it from thestudents."

Senior Doris Fitchett warned of "irreparable harm to the credibility" of the school board if it decides to stop paying for the pro-

Concerned parents picket school offices

Buoyed by two small victories, parents opposed to sending Cooper students to Whittier picketed the Livonia Public Schools' administrative offices all day Monday, carrying signs with slogans such as "Read Our Lips" — No Cooper-Whittler" and "This Could Be Your Kid and Your School.'

The parents hope to be as successful in convincing the district to choose another school besides Whittier as they have been in getting a third test taken at Whittier and in getting a fence built around the entire Cooper school grounds.

"We're starting to get things accomplished," said Tim Geslnski, a member of CHECK, or Concerned for the Health and Environment of our Community's Kids, a parents' group formed after news of the contaminated school grounds at Cooper first surfaced in late April.

On Monday, Superintendent Joseph Marinelli said the district would "reassess the situation" if the third DNR test showed the school grounds were unsafe.

"But I don't think the test results will show anything different," Marinelli said. "There has been no tampering with the data. The health and safety of the children is our paramount concern. Children going to Whittier will be as safe as those going to any other school in Michigan.

Board president takes the heat, denies 'conflict'

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Several senior citizens lashed out Monday at school board President Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek, saying her separate roles as school board member and the city's senior resources director have posed a potential conflict of interest.

Kozorosky-Wiacek heads the city-funded, Westland Friendship Center on Newburgh near Marquette. She was criticized Monday for saying that a separate seniors program in the Dyer Center on Marquette near Carlson should be self-supporting, instead of receiving school district

"I have no conflict. I vote my conscience on what I believe is right," she said.

Lewis Fitchett, one of 200 seniors who attended a school board meeting Monday, told Kozorosky-Wiacek, "It's apparently evident to everyone here that an obvious conflict of interest exists.'

Fitchett and several other seniors called on Kozorosky-Wiacek to abstain from a vote on whether the school district should stop paying for

Board member Vicki Welty has proposed slashing the district's $62,700 contribution - more than half of which comes from state aid.

"I WOULD like to know, why she has always been for the seniors, and why now she isn't for the Dyer Center," said Esther Remmenga, who said she and Kozorosky-Wiacek have been friends for many years.

Assessor the 2nd city director to go

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Westland Mayor Robert Thomas, continuing "a housecleaning" in his administration, has told city assessor William Schmidt that he plans to fire him.

But Thomas, saying "we're going to make a nice, smooth transition," has decided to keep Schmidt until he finds a successor.

"I told Mr. Schmidt that he will' need to look for another job," Thom? as sald Monday.

The mayor's remarks came one week after he fired building director Michael Cullity — a city employee of 21 years — and immediately replaced him with Robert Fritz, who had held the building director's post prior to Cullity.

Schmidt, who became city assessor in January 1989, under former Mayor Charles Griffin, did not discuss his pending dismissal at length.

"I hired in knowing that I was at ,the pleasure of the mayor," Schmidt sald Tuesday.

Judge: Enersen can keep other children

By Darrell Clern staff writer

An attorney's attempt to remove four other children from the custody of Westland minister Michael Enersen and his wife, Carol, failed Monday as a juvenile court judge ruled that the youngsters are not threatened with physical abuse.

Juvenile defender Rosemary Chase had sought to have the children - ranging in ages from several's months to 10 years - taken from their parents until their long-term fate can be decided in a Sept. 24 trial in Wayne County Juvenile Court.

Warm memories served at hospital staff picnic

By Leonard Poger staff wilter

For most local families, the aquablue Wayne County General Hospital on Merriman near Palmer represented memories of emergency room visits and flu shots.

They also remember the longterm care and psychiatric facilities in the adjacent complex known for 150 years as "Eloise."

At its peak, the health care complex had about 8,000 patients, 1,500 employees, fire department, power house, post office and its own ZIP

But that part of suburban history was substantially changed in 1984 when Wayne County Executive Wilthe deficit-plagued facility to four health care corporations.

The new name was Westland Medical Center. Two years ago, the building was bought by Oakwood Health Services Corp. which renamed it Annapolis Hospital/Westland Center. Currently, it is used as a stance abuse patients as well as a medical clinic.

For many people, the former county hospital was just a memory.

BUT FOR others, it was a career, a job and a "family which felt like it was home" to them.

NANCY ROWLES, a Garden City resident and a member of the committee which planned the picnic, made a career change after working 17 years at the hospital. Rowles, now 50, began at the hospital as secretary to the pediatrics department director and moved to admitting manager when the hospital closed.

"People enjoyed the type of work" they were doing in health care and had great participation in hospital outings," recalled Rowles, 50. She is now assistant to the sales and marketing manager for Wavemat Co. of Plymouth, which makes industrial microwave processing equipment.

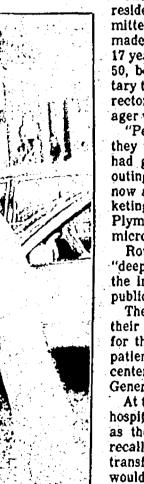

Rowles said that there was an "deep sadness" by employees when the impending closing was debated publicly for more than a year.

There was a concern not only for their own jobs and futures, but also for the many Medicaid and elderly patients who had never known a care center other than Wayne County General.

At the picnic, Joe Slezak, a former hospital firefighter who was known as the hospital's "unofficial poet," recalled that many patients were transferred to other facilities and would occasionally return to walk around the grounds known as their "home" and visit with firefighters.

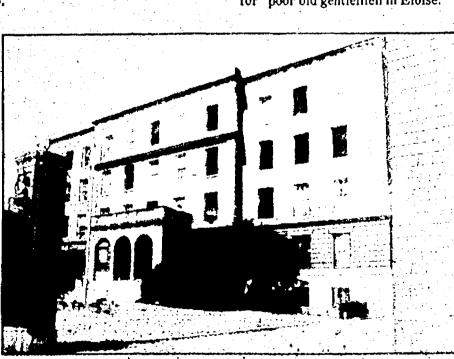

Slezak now owns his own company, Genesis, creating glass designs.

Recalling the mental patients, several former workers said that employees affectionally referred to them as "P.O.G.I.E.s", an acronym for "poor old gentlemen in Eloise."

SEMCOG says urban sprawl will diminish quality of life here

By Tim Richard stall writer

Local public officials will get their first look Friday at a regional report blaming "urban sprawl" on racial bias, fragmented local government, federal policies and heavy property

The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments' executive committee will see the result of a year-long study when it meets at 2 p.m. in the historic Botsford Inn in Farmington

The staff-written report stops short of making any recommendations - such as regional government. But growing numbers of politicos now view regionalism favor. ably as a result of a half-dozen meetings over the last year.

THE CULPRIT is "urban sprawl" - the eating up 40 percent more land, including farms and woods, to serve a 6 percent population growth over the next 20 years.

The flip side of that coin is abandonment of older cities, with their underused streets and utilities, and isolation of poorer populations.

The SEMCOG study will be outlined by Marilynn Gosling, an Oakland County commissioner from Bloomfield Hills; E.A. Jackson Morris, supervisor of Pittsfield Township in Washtenaw County; and Ed Hustoles, planning chief of the seven county agency.

The study says wasteful land use will continue the next 20 years and everyone's quality of life will deteriorate' - unless current policies are changed.

CAUSES OF urban sprawl, the SEMCOG report concludes, are • Racial bias - worst of any region in the U.S. It will block the assimilation of an increasingly diverse population.

• Overbullt water and sewer lines. They created a need for more development to pay off bond issues.

• The perception of environmental degradation in older areas. . Low-density housing.

REDUCE YOUR HANCES OF GETTING HEART DISEASE, IDNEY DISEASE OR GOING

Obesity can start a chain reaction to poor health that can be devastating.

To begin with, most physicians and researchers consider obesity to be the major cause of diabetes in adults. Up to 90% of adults diagnosed as having diabetes, in fact, are overweight.

Of course, once you have diabetes your chances of developing heart disease, kidney disease, or going blind increase dramatically.

As a person with diabetes you'll be twice as prone to heart disease. 17 times as prone to kidney disease. And 25 times as prone to blindness, if you are insulin-dependent.

Diabetes, in fact, can shorten your life expectancy by one-third.

Fortunately, diabetes in adults, in most cases, can be prevented with careful weight control, healthy eating habits, and regular exercise.

So if you're overweight, doesn't it make sense to take off the extra weight? Instead of years off your life?

Dems, GOP concentrating on '92 state races

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Even if there were no presidential election next year, local Republicans and Democrats would be busy,

In fact, the presidential election may take a backseat to state House races for the faithful in both parties and both Wayne and Oakland coun-

With redistricting on its way, Republicans are scrambling to grab as many House seats as they can. Likewise, Democrats are fighting to hang on to their advantage,

With no gubernatorial or U.S. Senate race on the general election ballot; for the first time since 1980, substantial money could be freed up for House campaigns.

Heading into reapportionment with a Republican state Senate, governor and, potentially, state House - and with the current lack of a magnetic Democratic presidential challenger - area Republicans can't believe their good luck.

"TAKING CONTROL of the state House is definitely a goal," said Jim LaVallee, executive director of the Oakland County Republican Party. "And while we're going to be helping President Bush, it looks like we're going to have a lot of time to put into local elections."

FURNACE SALE

Harry Greenleaf, leader of one of Wayne County's largest GOP groups, agreed that 1992 is looking like a Republican year, particularly if a strong Democratic presidential challenger fails to emerge.

"That would be be very, very helpful," Greenleaf said.

But Greenleaf; leader of the Livoma/Plymouth-based 2nd Congressional district GOP organization, said redistricting, not the presidential race, remained the utmost concern for local party activists. "That's the biggest thing that's going to be happening to all of us, and there's no telling how it will work out," he said.

Democrats are trying to make the best of what appears a bad situation. "We're trying to take lemons and make lemonade," said western Wayne County party leader Richard McKnight.

McKnight, leader of the Westland/ Garden City-based 15th Congressional District organization, said some bright spots are emerging.

"It does give us the chance to step back and set some goals as a party," he said. "Normally, we've already split up into factions supporting one presidential candidate or another. This could give us the chance to define where we stand as a party."

"What we're doing is trying to rebuild the base of the party," said Darlene Berent, executive director Oakland County Democratic Party."We came out 21 months in advance last time and didn't do that well. Maybe there's an advantage in waiting until Jan, 1.'

Western Wayne seats, McKnight said, appear unlikely to change hands - at least for now.

"I'd say Justine Barns (D-Westland) is pretty safe unless there's a major redistricting, the same for Lyn Bankes (R-Livonia)," McKnight sald, "But William Kelth (D-Garden City) could see some changes in his

In Oakland County, Democrats are looking at the West Bloomfield-area seat held by first term legislator Barbara Dobb.

We're seeing a lot more Democratic votes coming out of West Republicans. Bloomfield and that's an encouraging sign," Berent said.

Then, too, the apparent Republican advantage could be gone by the time November 1992 rolls around.

"There's a lot of issues that could happen to change the political landscape," McKnight said.

Not the least of them is abortion. Though a pro-choice Republican made a sufprisingly strong showing style challenge isn't that great this? in a western Wayne special House primary this summer, the issue could be even bigger for Oakland

"IT'S OUR hot Issue, no question," LaVallee said. "We have people representing both views."

There, too, the presidential race could influence local politics. Presient Bush's apparent strength with votes makes an in-party challenge unlikely, LaVallee sald. "The prospect of a Robertson-time, Presient Bush's strength scares off challengers," LaValled? sald, referring to the 1998 challenge to the state party hierarchy posed by supporters of televangelist Pat Rob-9 ertson. "But in 1994, anything could? happen."

On that, Democrat Berent agrees, or "In 1994 we'll be putting on a charge to retake the state Senate, plus there will be a governor's race," she said. "By then, things could change completely."

Levin: Presidential field will grow

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Never mind the pundits, Sen. Carl Levin said, when the campaign season starts, there will be plenty of Democratic presidential contenders.

The lack of announced Democratic candidates has caused speculation among political columnists - and worry among many Democrats.

So far only ex-Massachusetts senator Paul Tsongas has announced, with rumored candidates Richard Gephardt and Jay Rockefeller already out of the race and other blg names on the fence.

Levin, in town this week for visits with constituents, said he's already talked to several colleagues he believes are on the verge of declaring candidacies.

Bumpers are likely, Gore is 50/50 and as for Cuomo, I haven't talked to him," Levin said, referring to Iowa Sen. Tom Harkin, Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton and Sen. Dale Bumpers, Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore and New York Gov. Mario Cuomo.

Levin discounted one recent rumor - Democrats would draft a platform first, then hand pick a candidate to carry the message to voters - predicting a typically competitive campaign.

"I THINK we'll beat up on each other in Iowa and New Hampshire," he said, referring to the first state party caucus and primary. "We owe the voters that."

Health care, education, the environment and economic issues should dominate the campaign, Levin said. "We've got to address what people" care about," he said.

The three-term senator said he sees a "growing consensus" for national health care.

"It has to be a system that's efficient and one that contains a significant element of choice, letting people pick their own doctor," Levin said. "Right now, we have the most expensive health care system in the world, but statistics show it's not the Redirecting U.S. trade policy should be another campaign goal, Levin said.

'We have a terribly weak policy on trade," he said. "We've got to start treating other countries like they treat us."

District to review language arts first

Having a core curriculum is one of four major requirements of Public Act 25, approved by the legislature last year to improve the quality of education throughout the state.

Tindall and Barbara Skone, her co-project consultant, briefed the board on what the administration has done in the past year and its plans for the near future.

Skone said that four districtwide education improvement teams are active in the areas of transition, core curriculum, assessment and development of improvement plans for each school building.

Calling back

Board recalls 35 more school staffers

By Darrell Clem staff writer

The Wayne-Westland school board, continuing to recall workers laid off amid an earlier budget crunch, voted Monday to renew contracts for 32 more teachers and three aides.

The board already had called back 142 employees — a majority of them teachers - in an effort to restore school programs that had been slashed or threatened due to a district budget crisis.

The board has steadily recalled workers since school district voters approved a 7.75-mill tax increase in the June 10 election — a move that erased earlier fears of massive program and job cuts.

Monday's action resulted in the school board renewing contracts for 32 teachers and three paraprofessionals who work in such programs as Head Start. With little discussion, the seven-member board approved the positions in a unanimous vote.

Some district employees had been laid off for several years, according to school officials.

The latest move sets the stage for a full instructional program for the 1991-92 school year. Cuts proposed earlier had threatened programs ranging from marching band to elementary arts. The board also is preparing to restore a six-hour day to the district's junior high schools. Previous cuts last year had reduced the junior high instructional day to five hours.

In other developments, the board postponed a decision on calling back an executive secretary of business services until the board can conduct a study session to discuss the posi-

Waging war

Teacher tackles waste issues

By Mary Rodrique staff writer

Harold Stokes acquintance with environmental issues stretches back decades before the rest of the nation caught up.

"It was the early !50s. We were a young struggling couple. I never drank alcohol or smoked, but we lived on canned foods and baked goods," he said. "At 88 years of age, I felt weak. I was concerned about how I would feel at 40."

After reading literature on nutrition and organic gardening, Stokes, a math and chemistry instructor at Henry Ford Community College, prodded his wife into changing the family diet for one month.

With the elimination of sait, Sugar and white flour, Stokes saw his family transformed. Perhaps most the most dramatic change was noticed In his preschool age daughter, who went from listless to spunky. Stokes became a convert to a new way of

"I'm very concerned about the future of our children and the condition we're leaving our planet in," he

At 67, Stokes, who lives in Redford Township, is passionately involved with environmental issues. He sits on the Redford Township Solid Waste Disposal Committee and is Michigan liaison (through Clean Water Action) with the National War on Waste.

Locally, War on Waste is a coalition of 40 environmental groups across the state lobbying Congress to amend the national waste law, the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA).

What prompted his civic activism was the building of the Detroit incinerator in 1986. He is committed to making the public more aware of environmental issues.

The Michigan coalition is working with 450 groups nationally to pass legislation promoting reduction of toxic use, overall waste reductionand recycling and imposing a national freeze on the construction of garbage incinerators and hazardous waste landfills and incinerators.

War, on Waste is organized in Michigan by Clean Water Action, Ecology Center of Ann Arbor and Greenpeace.

"Michigan is important to the national war on waste because we can show the worst and best in trash policy," Stokes said. "The worst is the Detroit incinerator which will end up costing well over $1 billion to send tons of toxic emissions into the air and Into landfills of the U.S. and Canada while wasting valuable materials that should be recovered

"The best is that Michigan has led the way with the best bottle deposit: law in the nation and a growing participation in recycling programs."

RCRA, which is up for reauthorization in Congress this year, has coalltion members lobbying politicians. U.S. Rep. John Dingell's, D-Trenton, House Energy and Commerce committee will begin deliberations later this year.

War on Waste believes strong federal policy is needed to force Michigan and other states into a greater commitment to toxic waste reduc-

"RCRA doesn't ensure genuine protection of health in the environment. There's no hazardous waste reduction or elimination of highly toxic chemicals that result in the most dangerous waste," said Stokes.

"The RCRA doesn't reduce garbage by requiring aggressive recycling and composting or by banning unnecessary packaging and other singlé use materials.

"It has become clear that prevention at the source is the only answer to the contamination caused by all kinds of waste.

"We must put resource conservation into the RCRA to protect health and the environment. The law must be overhauled to emphasize pollution prevention, not pollution management."

Legislation is already being developed as a result of the coalition. U.S. Rep. Garry Sikorski, D-Minnesota, has sponsored a toxic waste reduction bill, which has 28 co-sponsors.

Michigan's War on Waste has opened a dialogue with Dingell, while targeting other Michigan congressmen for the August recess. War on Waste was formed last fall because of the RCRA reauthorization and the lack of restraint on pol-"We're at a crossroads," added Charles Griffith, of the Ecology Center of Ann Arbor, which is helping coordinate the campaign in Michl-

"We either continue to force communities to accept landfills and incinerators which poison our citizens or we usher in a new era of toxic use

Harold Stokes, a Redford resident and Henry Ford Community College Instructor, has been active in environmental issues for four decades. He's now involved with a group fighting the creation and disposal of toxic waste.

Michigan currently has 2,800 identified hazardous waste sites. As underground fuel storage tanks are discovered, Stokes expects that number to increase to 6.000.

"By mixing, burying or incinerating trash, we make waste," Stokes

"Those are concentrated materials that should be recovered. It's irresponsible not to. When we don't we're robbing future generations of their youth."

Group aims to rid U.S. of toxic waste

War on Waste has developed a platform for a toxic free America. Here are some of the highlights.

• Stop the unsafe disposal of garbage. This would be accomplished through a 10-year moratorium on garbage incinerators, regulating ash from existing incinerators, prohibiting the use of ash in construction, banning the incineration of certain toxins and establishing a moratorium on new medical waste incinera-

• Reduce the generation of garbage and maximize recycling of municipal solid waste. This would be accomplished by reducing the use of plastics and phasing out Styrofoam, reducing the use of disposable products, achieving 75 percent recycling of municipal waste by the year 2000, reducing packaging and promoting recycling.

• Stop the unsafe disposal of haz-ardous · waste. Again, a 10-year moratorium on new hazardous waste incinerators and land disposal facilities is urged. Also, a stop to "sham recycling" of hazardous waste, and placing a moratorium on new deep well injection of hazardous waste and halting unsafe practices at existing facilities. • Reduce the use of toxic chemicals. Ban the most hazardous substances. Reduce the use of all toxic chemicals and the generation of associated wastes. Ensure the use of safe alternatives. Increase citizens rights to protect their communities from toxins. Give citizens the right to participate in negotiations between government and industry.

• Ensure a smooth transition to 53-EARTH or Charles Griffith at .. clean technologies and a sustainable economy. Use federal and state government purchasing policies to create markets for environmentally sound products. Provide technical and financial assistance to small businesses and troubled industries to help them reduce toxins. Provide financial assistance for community based recycling. Stimulate the development of alternative technologies.

• Require the federal government including the military to comply with all environmental laws.

• Ensure adequate enforcement 15 of environmental laws. Hold company officials accountable for environmental offenses. Prevent large companies from controlling the waste management industry.

• Preserve the rights of state and local governments to protect their communities from toxic pollution; Make sure there is no federal preemption of stronger state and local environmental laws. Ensure the states rights to ban the import of wastes.

Expert: Teach students how to learn

By Tim Richard staff writer

Today's schools teach English, history, math, shop.

Tomorrow's schools should teach adaptability, problem solving and learning how to learn.

"Michigan is on the cusp of some of the most exciting educational developments in the U.S.," a Briton told state Rep. William Keith's blueribbon panel on career and technical education.

"We really ought to look more at the process of teaching than at the curriculum," said Tony Gordon, an education inspector in the county of Staffordshire, England, who has just completed a year of work in the United States.

KEITH'S PANEL, meeting in an almost deserted State Capitol Friday, heard a trio of experts say high school graduates - even the college bound - must be prepared for the world of work and lifelong learning.

"Americans will have to compete on the basis of superior skills rather than strong backs," said Wolfgang

Linz, executive director of CDS International, a New York-based exchange group which gives young Americans a chance to work in foreign countries. Linz advocated German-style cooperative programs where a company pays a student for a 40-hour week while he or she takes an integrated, work-study, four-year program:

"I visited the system in Germa.. ny," said Keith, D-Garden City. "Their dropout rate is less than 2 percent. We'd give anything to have a dropout rate of 2 percent.

"I visited Audi (the German automaker)," Keith went on, "where 70" percent of the students stay on (with that company). I couldn't imagine Lee Iacocca paying someone for 40 hours and have them go to work for a competitor."

Linz replied that other companies train workers for Audi, so the tradeoff is balanced. And Audi-trained workers sometimes wind up working for firms that supply Audi, he said.

JAN DANFORD, General Motors' director of educational development in Lansing, said academic and vocaand industry needs to be involved. GM trains 25,000 people for everything from management to literacy, job skills to pre-retirement.

"Expand public-private partnerships," she said. "Give tax incentives to business to supply technology to schools."

Danford blistered the collegiate orientation of most educators. But she praised Oakland University for putting counselors through a oneweek exposure to industry,

"Those who come out of colleges of engineering cannot apply what they Jearn," Danford said. "All students graduating from high school should be work-force ready.

Keith asked: "You see the vocational education system in our state as kind of a dumping ground — is that right?"

"That's right," Danford said, adding that colleges and parents see vocational ed as low caste.

Keith added: "Mention tracking, and parents say You mean my son or daughter can't go to college?' That's not what we're saying . . . It's the world of work. It's not that as job ready.

tional education should be linked, you're pushing little Johnny into auto mechanics.'

> KEITH IS chairing the panel appointed by House Speaker Lewis Dodak, D-Birch Run.

Members include eight other lawmakers - among them James Kosteva, D. Canton, who didn't attend the session. Many businesspeople are members, including Phil. Power, chairman of Suburban Communications Corp. and a veteran of state and federal job training Keith set another work session for Sept. 13. He predicted some legislation will be ready by December.

Keith is sponsor of House Bill 4165 to create'a 28-member Career-Technical Advisory Council in the Department of Education.

Meanwhile, the State Board of Education last week finished appointing an advisory group on "employability assessment" - a process that will determine whether a high school graduate has the academic, personal and teamwork skills to be certified.

Central Wayne names board

Garden City Mayor James Plakas has been elected vice chairman of the Central Wayne Sanitation Authority for fiscal 1991-92. He has been a board member since 1988, Inkster Councilman James Colleran was elected chairman.

Richard Dittmar, Westland public service director, was elected board secretary. Arthur Wiltala, Westland water and sewer superintendent, was elected treasurer.

Robert McLachlan, Dearborn Heights city clerk, and Ralph Magid, Wayne public service director, were elected to the authority operating committee.

The sanitation authority handles waste disposal in all five communities.

Dump recall School campaign off target

GROUP of Wayne-Westland school district residents has been working for most of this year to recall three board of education members. The group suffered a small setback last week, being told to rewrite petition language before it resubmits its proposals to the Wayne County elections board.

On paper, the recall targets are board members Kathleen Chorbagian, Leonard Posey and

Most people would have no quarrel with the recall committee if its only target is the three school board members.

But now, the committee has said in published reports in the past month that it also wants to dump Superintendent Dennis O'Neill, Deputy Superintendent Thomas Syitkovich and the Plante and Moran auditing firm, which handles the school district's books.

If the committee is serious about its latest targets, that gives more credence to the argument that the group really wants revenge and another pint of political blood.

Appointment of the superintendent and auditing firm is solely a board of education appointment and not subject to the whim of voters.

FRANKLY, THE recall drive should be dropped. If the group decides to continue its efforts and is successful in having its proposal on schedule when school starts later this month. an upcoming ballot, the community should then reject the recall move.

There are several reasons for voters to either refuse to sign recall petitions or reject the proposal if it reaches the ballot.

One reason is that recalls should be used only for obvious cases of malfeasance and illegal activities as a board member. It shouldn't be used to get revenge against board members because a group of voters disagrees with several policy actions. From a political viewpoint, the recall cam-ty. paign which began earlier this year doesn't make

With voters upset at the size of pay raises for local teachers and repeated tax rate elections, the community dumped three incumbents at the A campaign to recall three school board members is a waste of time.

June 10 election. Two of the election winners were vocal opponents of the tax rate hike on the same ballot and the teachers' salary raises.

ALONG WITH new board president Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek, who isn't a target of the recall committee, the purpose of the recallers has in effect been accomplished.

If it wants to replace Chorbagian, all it has to do is wait another 10 months and support an opposing candidate - if Chorbagian even decides to run for a new term.

The terms of Spisak and Posey expire on June 30, 1993, and 1994, respectively.

On the basic argument about teachers' unionpay raises, the Observer agreed earlier this year that the pay hikes are more than what the public would accept and would create political problems for the three board members seeking new terms two months ago.

But that's history.

THE CONTRACTS are signed and sealed and the teachers will be paid under the new salary

There is also no substance for trying to recall board members for holding several tax rate increase elections.

Voters rejected the tax proposal three times before narrowly approving it on June 10. But that's also history.

The most effective way to change the direction of the school board was done two months ago when three incumbents were replaced.

That election and the related tax rate campaign created a lot of bad blood in the communi-

Hopefully, the political atmosphere was to have been soothed and order restored.

But the recall efforts since then can best be described as nonsense. Voters have better things to worry about.

Mourning Moslems

Some say that Plymouth art festival officials response to this painting of Kuwaiti women depicting the anguish of war was a clear form of censorship. For his opinion on the issue, see Steve Barnaby's column below.

Censorship can't mask real tragedies of war

LIVONIA ARTIST Judy Gibbs recently found that censorship comes in many hues.

We Americans pride ourselves on our freedoms. But those of us involved in transmitting messages are finding increased resistance. Opposition comes from the growing number of people who believe they have a constitutional right not to be offended, the truth be damned.

In a controversial painting, Gibbs' interprets the pain and suffering of war. The scene makes you grimace, for sure. You feel the pain, share the mental anguish.

Entitled "Mourning Moslems," the painting was inspired by a photograph taken during the U.S. military incursion into Iraq and Kuwait:

No yellow ribbons in this painting, no smiling soldiers with happy little kids. Some would say this painting depicts war's devastation, which was masked during the frenzied jingoism this country experienced at the war's

During the recent Plymouth Art in the Park festival, Gibbs' painting drew complaints. Some viewers expressed discomfort at being made to feel sad on a beautiful day. Festival officials "suggested" Gibbs remove it from the front of the booth and make it less conspicuous.

Festival official Jim Miller was even more blatant.

"My concern is to have every artist sell," he recently said. In short, he was concerned that

We Americans pride ourselves on our freedoms. But those of us involved in transmitting messages are finding increased resistance.

Gibbs' display of "Mourning Moslems" would hurt the good old American bottom line.

HOW SAD, how utterly pitiful. It's. frightening to think our values of freedom have become so distorted. Read the Constitution, folks. Nowhere does it prescribe the bottom line as a basic right. Nowhere does it say the profit motive outwelghs freedom of expression.

As a matter of fact, profit is never mentioned in the U.S. Constitution. Neither is defense against being of-

That's why those of us who were offended by the U.S. military adventure in Iraq were willing to put up with yellow ribbons, the symbol of a war which had nothing to do with protecting anybody's freedom.

At every turn we were faced with yellow ribbons. A company, of which I sit on the board of directors, actually had yellow ribbons painted on tric Newspapers.

their vehicles. Because of a deep belief in speech freedoms I felt obliged. to grit my teeth, mumble under my breath and let it pass.

Barnaby

For weeks this newspaper's head: quarters were festooned with yellow. ribbons. I said little, believing that others' freedom to express their feelings about the war outweighed my distaste.

My personal abhorrence of war comes from the experience of havingkilled others during combat and living with the lifelong pain it inflicted on the survivors. I've never been particularly good at expressing those feelings.

Judy Gibbs' painting goes a long. way in doing just that for me and a whole lot of others. We would appreclate it if those who are offended. would simply go off and tie another yellow ribbon and leave reality

Jobby never supported him in the first place. And Engler wisely tempered his position on eliminating arts money under pressure from the silk-stocking lobby that funded his campaign as well as the arts. He opted last week for a threeyear phaseout instead of an immediate end to operating money, offering other kinds of help meanwhile.

BUT ON THE ISSUE of property tax base sharing, the governor is turning his back on many rank-and-file suburbanites who helped give him a razor-thin 30,000-vote margin in

The plan, which probably will be adopted by the Legislature, calls for the poorer districts of the state to gang up on those with growing business tax bases and steal half the latter's growth in commercial and industrial base.

Big losers would be the high-tech belt — the school districts along the freeways of Oakland, Wayne and Washtenaw counties. In the near future, western Oakland and Livingston also would be losers. One legislator tells us 40 percent of the "sharing" would be done by Oakland County predecessor, Democrat James Blanchard, concentrated a lot of attention on this area with his campaign swings and his attention to such issues as college tuitions and drunk driving.

IT WOULD BE ironic if Engler, who wants to be known as a property tax cutter, were to sign a bill taking property taxes away from this voterich area. We wouldn't be able to spend the taxes we generate, and we might have to raise millage rates because of suburbia's propensity to indulge

The cunning legislators behind tax base sharing - Sen. Dan DeGrow of Port Huron, and Reps. James O'Neill of Saginaw - are sweating mightily to disguise their deed. 'No warnings' upsets woman To the editor:

The recent rapes at Hampton Court Apartments put the city of Westland in a poor light due to the actions of the police department, the apartment manager and the Westland Observer.

The repeated, successful rapes within one apartment complex graphically illustrated the damage that can be done to uninformed citizens. The Observer, as usual, "observed" long after the fact. This newspaper, which often seems to focus more on petty political squabbles, failed to put the public on notice that a serious criminal was at

The police department's policy of "keeping it quiet" was unsuccessful in either deterring or catching the rapist, but instead showed the community that it was willing to com-. promise public safety and trust.

And in the center ring of this nightmarfsh policy of silence is the apartment management. They, too, choose the path of silence, not bothering to warn residents to take precautions or even to install new, working locks.

I extend my sympathies to all the victims. What happened to them was monstrous, and has been compounded by an incredible lack of support and protection from those in a position to help. I hope criminal and civil condoned or tolerated. Karen Hill, Westland

Alano Club is praised

To the editor:

I would like to commend the Observer and Sue Mason for the excellent article in the July 25 issue on the Northwest Alano Club, located in the (former) Perrinville School in Westland.

Too many people are unaware of this excellent program and facility. Others have a negative opinion of the people who use such a facility. Your article clearly provides realistic insights into what a great community resource this program is.

Many people come initially because of a court order, but the nearly 700 members elect to participate because it provides them with a way of

Some of the Alano members may come a long distance, but the majority are from Livonia, Westland, Wayne, Canton, Plymouth, Garden City: These members are our husbands, wives, sons, daughters, neighbors, employers, employees, and our Community Commission on Drug

I urge all to support this program, its fund-raisers and its place in our" community. We all need the Alano Club to flourish and grow.

Schools are appreciated

For five weeks in July and early August, 60 young people participated in a special program for middle school students. The program was called SWAP and was held this year at John Glenn High School. Many of the student participants and staff members were from the Wayne-Westland school district.

I am writing to compliment the courtesy, competence and professionalism of all the employees of the district. The building was spotless, the grounds well kept and the attitude of the John Glenn staff was always positive and helpful.

At a time when it is unfortunately fashionable to be critical of our schools, be aware that over 100 kids : and parents quietly benefitted from the skill and dedication of the educators of the Wayne-Westland schools I wanted them to know that their etal. forts did not go unnoticed or unage preciated.

Guv 'whups' arts lobby despite compromise

"COMPROMISE," my eye. Gov. handful of arts groups own buildings. John Engler won the battle of the "arts summit," and he won it handle

Engler and the big money-raisers for the arts, like the Leon Cohans and A. Alfred Taubmans, publicly agreed that operating grants for arts groups would have to be phased out. Engler says three years, Cohan says ! some may need to take longer.

Keep in mind that Engler, not Cohan, appoints the budget director and signs the budget bills,

LIKE A DIPLOMAT, Engler didn't annihilate the opposition. He tossed a few crumbs to help them save face.

One crumb is that the state will provide some capital grants. Only a

Another crumb was to sign a florid statement recognizing the importance of a state role in the arts, a good deal of coze about how the arts enrich our souls and ennoble our spirits. That gush and 80 cents will buy you a cup of coffee.

A third crumb is that the reconstiluted Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs will continue. But its chief function is changed to helping arts groups raise their own private money rather than dishing out state grants.

But those are crumbs. The arts operating grants are going, the guv

ENGLER WAS blunt about what has been going on in the existing MCA. "In recent years, it has become a random, politically driven, pork barrel process," he said.

-At almost the same moment; a conservative think tank called the Mackinac Center released a finding about where state arts money has gone. Oakland and Washtenaw, the two most affluent counties in the state, were running 1-2 in the grantgrabbing sweepstakes. Of the 25 most downtrodden counties, 24 got zero grants.

The inescapable conclusion: Arts grants are welfare for the middle. and upper classes at the expense of

ENGLER RUBBED the arts people's noses in another reeking fact of

Without naming names, he noted many artists and arts groups seem to have set up shop just because state money was available. "We don't do anybody any favors" with endless subsidies, Engler said.

If Cohan and his gang disagreed, they didn't say so out loud.

In past columns, I've raised the same objection. One can argue that the state should take pride in the Detroit Institute of Arts (which actually has an outreach program to help other areas of the state); and one can argue that outstate benefits when the Detroit Symphony sets up shop for a night in Iron Mountain.

But what state purpose is served by subsidizing the teaching of the Suzuki violin method to 4-year-olds in Keewenaw County? What state. purpose is served by subsidizing a Mexican dance troupe in Saginaw?

And if we're really subsidizing artistic merit, then why the statutory hurdle that 16 percent of the money must go to minorities? That's no artistic specification. That's raw poli-

One senses, with Engler, that a racket has been going on.

THE POLITICAL nature of the state arts funding program was further underlined with the agreement that line-item grants to various groups like the Chinese Cultural Center, Motown Museum and Lake SC Clair Symphony are out.

Hereafter, they will have to apply to the MCA like everyone else. The Legislature won't guarantee politically favored groups.

Under the "arts summit" agreement, only four agencies will get line item money: Detroit Institute of Arts and Symphony, Grand Rapids Museum and Symphony.

That's four too many. But as I said, Engler just whupped 'eng. He didn't annihilate 'em.

Uproar is likely in name change

I PREDICT an uproar.

Tom Wilson, a longtime member of the Bloomfield Hills school board, is suggesting a name change for the prestigious Bloomfield Hills School District to Bloomfield Community.

His idea makes sense.

The district was born at Vaughn School in the city of Bloomfield Hills. But Vaughn is long-gone, and none of the district's six elementaries, three middle schools and two high schools now lie within the city.

The schools are where most of the students live - Bloomfield and West Bloomfield townships.

In fact, the only schools in Bloomfield Hills are either private or parochial - Cranbrook Schools, St. Hugo of the Hills, Academy of the Sacred Heart and one of the two campuses

The school board certainly has no irrent attachment to the city fathers which would woo them to retain the Bloomfield Hills name.

In fact in an unusual action for a community, city government came out against the schools' ballot request for money. In turn, the district's teachers union for the first time endorsed council candidates who would be more favorable - or at least not against — the schools.

PERHAPS WE'RE just trying to become more accurate around our suburbs - letting go of the illusory and grabbing on to the reality.

As of July 1, residents of Bloomfield Township got a mailing address of their own after years of being listed as either part of Birmingham or Bloomfield Hills.

The same thing happened to Beverly Hills and Bingham Farms; formerly disguised by a Birmingham malling address.

And, people with the mailing address of the imaginary municipality of Union Lake became full-fledged members of their real communities by post office standards - West Bloomfield, Commerce, White Lake or Waterford townships.

All of that did not come about without a lot of kicking and screaming -- about history, about property values. Some people didn't really care where they lived - only that their mailing address should continue to say "Birmingham" or "Union

Bowing to political pressure, the post office agreed that those people who still want to cling to their old mailing address on their actual mail can do so, so long as they use the correct street address and ZIP code.

But the telephone book now tells it

THE NEW ZIPS also discourage schools outside Bloomfield Hills proper from using the city name in addresses.

Plus Mature Minglers, which serves seniors in Bloomfield Town-ship, Bloomfield Hills and greater West Bloomfield, earlier this year decided to define itself more accurately.

No action 'till September, but some of the suggestions are: "Greater Bloomfield Seniors," "Bloomfield Seniors," "Bloomfield Community Seniors" and "Seniors of Bloom-

When I was a young violinist in the great Taras Hubicki's classical Detroit Fiddlers' Band, no one paid me or my other young colleagues to perform, and we were very

During those same years, no one paid me to box, play football, baseball or basketball. I still did all of these things, often in church gyms, on school playgrounds, vacant lots, streets and alleys for the love of sport and spontaneous competition.

When I outran Olympic champions a few years later, no one paid me for that, either, even though I was representing the United States on the national team and dashing quarter-miles In a time no human had ever clocked before.

THESE NOSTALGIC reminiscences of generous, joyous amateurism bring forth from my pen a modest proposal: I suggest that professional entertainers and athletes whose annual salaries exceed those earnings to bail out financially strapped school districts throughout the country and revert to performing and competing more. for the sheer love of it.

So you think maybe they'd be less than eager to make such a sacrifice for the benefit of our country's school children? Well, we could ask them to donate only half of their earnings, or a quarter or even a tenth.

What, they won't?

OK, then, perhaps all of America's schoolteachers, administrators, crossing guards, custodians. secretaries, counselors, social workers, speech pathologists, cafeteria workers and teachers' aides could contribute their munificent salaries and hourly wages to this worthy cause. And the nation's university professors could descend into the public schools and help teach some courses gratis.

We could then have a 100 percent volunteer work force in Amer-the world would applaud our educators' altruism!

SAY WHAT? Then all those people wouldn't be able to feed, house and clothe their families. But we could set up cots in the schools for them, and hold bake sales for their other needs. Or possibly we could just ask parents to keep their kids home and teach them themselves.

OK, that's illegal — so here's another idea: Let's get state legislatures across the land to eschew the property tax as a means of financing schools and substitute a graduated (percentage-based) income tax, with each taxpayer paying according to ability.

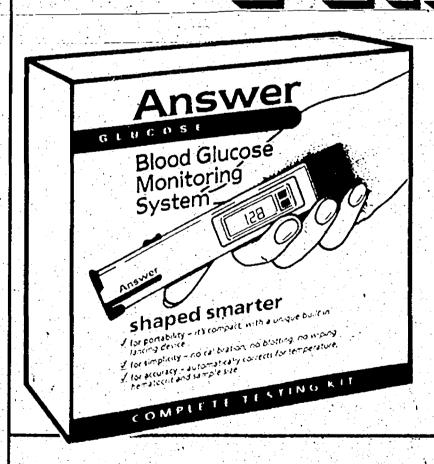

ring in thousands of school districts is precisely what this country's children don't need. The number of impoverished American children increased by 10 percent in the final six months of 1990.

Something's on backwards when a team like the New York Mets pays its pitchers $5 million a year while there are kids in that city. who wake up every morning too hungry to concentrate on anything but the hollow aches in their stomachs in the richest country in the world.

In the days of Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Hank Greenberg, though, schools wouldn't have needed to ask major league athletes to contribute to their support, because then New York's and Detroit's public schools were sleek and confident models for the rest of the nation as the linchpin of democracy at work.

Now all of America's public. schools are in trouble, and it's high time this country set its priorities

Lally seeks Norris' title

Fight is slated for HBO

By C.J. Risak staff writer

Everything Brett Lally - the selfproclaimed "Irish Hawk" - has worked and sweated for during endless training sessions over the past 41/2 years will culminate in 36 minutes of ruthless action Saturday

Lally hopes it won't take that long. Naturally. He's a big-time underdog, a puncher challenging World Boxing Council junior middleweight champion Terry Norris in a 12-round match for the WBC title. The fight will be televised on cable TV by HBO.

Norris has defeated Sugar Ray Leonard. He's knocked out Donald Curry. And he has a 28-3 record.

Lally, a Westland native and 1981, John Glenn HS graduate with a 29-5 pro record, was knocked out by Curry in the second round of their December 26, 1989 meeting.

THAT'S ONE reason Norris is such a heavy favorite. Another is his smooth boxing style. Boxer versus puncher, like Sugar Ray Robinson against Jake LaMotta. The boxer

Also, the fight will be in Norris' home town, at the San Diego Sports

Bradd Lally, who manages his brother's career, is aware of all this, of course. And like any good manager, Bradd has found ways to turn negatives into positives.

"Because (Norris) beat Leonard and knocked out Curry, who knocked out Brett, it's made out that he should be the heavy favorite," said his brother, "They're making Brett the blg underdog, but I think they're making a big mistake."

Bradd was doing the talking for Brett because Brett was out bowling. They had returned a few days earlier from California's Big Bear Mountain, where Brett trained for four weeks at an elevation of 7,000 feet.

THE INTENSE workouts — "He's never trained for a fight like he has for this one" — will help even the odds, said Bradd. And he isn't so certain the hometown crowd will be a Norris advantage.

"Norris is fighting in front of his hometown people," Bradd said. "We know how that can be. Brett fought in Livonia in June, and he went out and tried to knock the guy (Anthony Ivory) out."

That fight proved a disappointment for Brett. He won the 10-round bout on a unanimous decision, but wasn't sharp, "He didn't train properly for that fight," said Bradd. "Plus, there was more pressure because he had just found out he was getting this fight, and he didn't want anything to happen that might jeop-

Bradd is hoping Norris will react similarly in front of his hometown fans. If he does, if Norris abandons his normal defensive, counterpunching style and tries to slug it out, Brett could pull off the upset.

"There's a lot less pressure on Brett," sald Bradd. "Norris is a real good fighter, with quick hands and quick feet. But we think Brett has a real good chance."

BRETT HAS been concentrating Bradd, noting the 8-to-1 odds against on body punching after watching films of Norris. "He's a counterpuncher, a sticker and a mover," sald Bradd of Norris. "But we found out he doesn't like getting hit in the body."

However the fight goes, the Lally strategy is to force Norris to earn it. "We want to make Terry work for-180 seconds a round for 12 rounds, or as long as the fight lasts," said

A shorter fight would favor Brett, considering the possibilities of hometown favoritism by the judges (even though Michigan Boxing Council commissioner Stuart Kirschenbaum is one of the three judges). And only-13 of Norris' victories have been by

It's not going to be easy, not by any stretch of the imagination. Still, "Brett feels very confident he can do the job," said Bradd.

And if he does? "If he wins, goes to the moon," said Bradd. "He goes to the top. All the doors are

Caesars gains 2nd tourney win

A grand slam home run by Mike Glacomontonio highlighted a 10run, third-inning by Livonia Little Caesars Tuesday, propelling it to an 11-8 win over Schnectady, N.Y., at the All-American Amateur Baseball Association Tournament in Johnstown, Pa.

The victory left Little Caesars. winners of the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League playoffs, in an unfamiliar and, to many, unexpected position — unbeaten after two

There were a lot of people who didn't have much faith in us, but I did," said Caesars' assistant coach Ken Wandzel.

Glacomantonio's homer was the key blow in the game for Caesars. Jeff Bates added three RBI in the third, two on a single and another on a sacrifice fly. Kevin Croclata and Earl Johnson added run-scoring singles and Mike Heard walked with the bases loaded for Caesars' other runs in the third.

HEARD PUT the final run on the board for the Livonia team with a solo homer in the eighth.

Caesars got strong pitching from starter Tom Kutcher, who surrendered just one hit in five scoreless innings. Kutcher walked two and struck out five before being lifted in the sixth to be saved for another tournament game.

Pulling Kutcher early was nearly costly. Bill Bannon relieved and allowed two runs in his one inning. Sean Henkel followed and was tagged for four runs in the seventh, trimming the Caesar lead to 10-6, before he was relieved by Lou McKaig with two out. McKaig got out of trouble and did not give up run in the final 21/3 innings.

Croclata's three hits led Caesars' 11-hit attack. Johnson and Eric Stanczak contributed two hits each.

CAESARS NEEDED to raily to win its first game, 14-5, over Cleveland on Monday. Caesars trailed, 5-4, after five innings but scored five in the sixth inning and five more in the eighth to make starting pitcher Tim Bruce, a pickup from LCBL rival Delwal, a win-

Despite a sluggish start, Bruce went the distance and struck out the side in the ninth to finish with 10 strikeouts. He allowed six hits.

Giacomantonio's two-run single with two outs and two strikes in the count gave Caesars the lead for good, 6-5, in the sixth. Sikora, Brent Hayward and Heard (Wayne Memorial) also delivered key hits during the rally.

Caesars' 13-hit attack was led by designated Brent Hayward, who was 2-for-2 with four RBI, including a 400-foot homer in the eighth that scored Stanczak and Giacomantonio.

"It might have ended up in Livonia," Wandzel joked of Hayward's home run. Jeff Miller was 2-3, including a three-run homer, and leadoff man Johnson impressed all the scouts with his speed. Johnson was 2-4 with a pair of stolen bases.

"He hit a two-hopper to second base one time, the kid came up with the ball, threw it and Earl beat it out at first," Wandzel said. The scouts all looked at their watches and probably all thought the clock was wrong. They were in awe of his speed."

Lang gets Churchill post

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

Those hoping to make the Livonia Churchill boys varsity basketball team this year can finallly refer to Tom Lang as "coach."

Churchill athletic director Don Albertson made it official Monday, naming Lang to replace Fred Price, who resigned in June as coach of both the boys basketball and track teams. The announcement ended some anxiety for Lang, who volunteered to take the Churchill varsity boys basketball team to "Team Camp" at Albion College last month without officially being named coach. Lang coached Churchill's fresh-man boys team the last three years and this fall will be his second season as the school's junior varsity girls basketball coach. Lang, who also took the JV girls to "Team Camp" this summer, found out about his new position Monday morning, after returning with his wife, Sharon, from a three-week trip overseas.

baseball

"I'M ELATED," Lang said of his appointment. "It's something I've wanted to try for a long time. It's going to be a good challenge."

Lang was one of the area's most successful girls basketball coaches in the late 1970s and early '80's at Livonia Bentley before the school closed in 1985. He guided Bentley to six district and three regional crowns in eight years, and his best teams were led by Kim Archer, who later starred in basketball and softball at Michigan State Univer-

Churchill's boys varsity last year won its first district title since 1977 and finished with a 15-9 overall Approaching those standards right away will be hard, considering their leading scorer and rebounder, Randy Calcaterra, is now playing at Wayne State, and sharpshooting guard Mike Thomas also graduated.

Lang, 49, said his boys teams will play "man-to-man defense most of the time."

Offensively, he might have to endorse a style made popular by Loyola-Marymount and closer to home by Livonia Stevenson coach Jim McIntyre. The leading returnees are point guard Marcus Sarnovsky and forward Brian Johnson, both entering their senior seasons. Unless there's a sudden growth spurt in the next few months no one Defense is what matters, football coaches insist.

Walter's 2nd in NABF Series

Walter's Appliance coach Mike Keller, although pleased with finishing second at last weekend's National Amateur Baseball Federation World Series in Dayton, Ohio, had to wonder what might have been . . .

If his consistent third baseman Jeff Pendell and hot-hitting Jeff Kugelman weren't forced to leave the tournament early with injuries.

Kugelman, a playoff acquisition from Livonia Collegiate Baseball League rival Hines-Park Lincoln Mercury, hit a three-run home run and led off a five-run ninth-inning rally with a double in an openinground, 13-12 win Thursday over Lieb's, of Buffalo, N.Y.

Unfortunately, Kugelman (Plymouth Canton) severely sprained his ankle rounding second base on the double, making him miss the rest of the World Series.

Walter's luck didn't get any better on Saturday when Pendell (Livonia Churchill and Madonna University) suffered a knee injury sliding into third base in a 12-9 win, again, over Llebs.

Pendell was hitting .529 prior to the injury, Keller said. Walter's also played the entire tournament without Craig Overaitis (Livonia Franklin and Henry Ford Community College) and David Houghtby (Stevenson), because of job commitments, according to Keller.

"You take good hitters out of your. lineup, that always hurts you," said Keller, who guided his team to a 25-11-1 record, including a regular-season LCBL championship. "We had a good summer overall. All I can say is thanks to our sponsor and John Mistak, the backbone of the sponsorship. I have nothing but high praise for him from me and the players' parents."

Walter's won four of its six games and, met eventual-champion McDonald's (Kansas City) Sunday in the final round. Walter's was 3-1 after Saturday's action and had to beat. McDonald's twice on Sunday to go away champions of the double-elimination tournament.

Walter's passed the first test, rallying to win Sanday's first game, 10- . 8. Trailing 8-7 in the bottom of the seventh inning, LCBL Most Valuable Player Jerry Koester (Westland John Glenn and Henry Ford) and Ron Hollis scored on a two-run double by Jason Gabel (Livonia Churchill) to give Walter's the lead for good.

Koester had reached base on an error and Hollis walked to set the stage for Gabel. In the eighth, Wal-ter's added an insurance run when Joe Brusseau (Redford Bishop Borgess and Madonna) walked, stole second and came home on Koester's sin-

Hollis, the starter, earned the win, but Mike Sulak's (Plymouth Canton) three innings of scoreless relief was just as important to Walter's cause. The long ball helped Walter's early in the game as Paul Pirronello (Redford Catholic Central and Henry Ford) clubbed a three-run home run in the second and Mark Hribar hit a McDonald's capitalized later Sunday on poor Walter's flelding in the clinching game, scoring three uncarned runs in the eighth for a 5-3 comeback win. Walter's, which committed five errors during the nineinning game, had three in the eighth when McDonald's chased starting pitcher Mike Coleman (Madonha).

Walter's had taken a 2-0 lead on a two-run double by Hollis in the third. McDonald's scored a run in the fourth but Walter's made it 3-1 in the fifth when Koester tripled to score Brusseau from first base.

McDonald's battled back with a run in the seventh and three more in the forgettable eighth to send Walter's home in second place. Keller credited Coleman for going 7% innings on only one day's rest after pitching a complete game Friday.

"Mike did a real nice job for us," Keller said. "When you go to a tournament and play day-in-and day-out, all teams are going to have a staff that goes through hell."

Following is a look at other games played Saturday and Friday:

WALTER'S 12, LIEB'S 9; Chris White (North Farmington) pitched 515 innings in relief of Chad Wrona, who allowed seven runs in the first, 33's innings. White kept Walter's in contention by allowing only two: runs, four hits, two walks to go with three strikeouts.

The win gave Walter's a 3-1. record and a berth in Sunday's finals.

"He just shut the door down and I couldn't ask for anyone to do more," Keller sald of White. "I know after losing one game everything is mental and getting it back together is a . tough way to go."

MCDONALD'S 6, WALTER'S 3: Bob Bullach suffered the loss for Walter's in six innings of pitching. Walter's scored two runs in the third on RBI singles by Pendell and Gabel. In the sixth, Walter's scored on a walk to Stover, a single by Pirronello and Brusseau's sacrifice fly.

Creek project a-bridged

FTER NEARLY 15 years of planning and paperwork the bottom draw on Paint Creek at Lake Orion is in place and in working order. Unfortunately, it's not working quite yet.

The project was completed earlier this summer, but-because of construction of a new bridge where the creek passes under Broadway Street, 100 yards downstream from the headwaters, the bottom draw has not yet been put into operation.

"It's very disappointing," said DNR Fisheries blologist Ron Spitler, who has overseen the development of the project from its inception in the mld '70s, "We made some brief tests just after the pipe was installed and found a 10-degree drop in the water temperature just down stream from the dam. But, because of the construction, we just haven't been able to work with it to see what adjustments we need to make. The bridge, was supposed to have been completed by now, but we're still waiting."

THE BOTTOM DRAW pipe - actually a large plastic tube - extends into Lake Orion 740-feet out from the control structure located north of the dam. The tube is submerged in 62-feet of water. When operating, the tube will suck cold, oxygenated water from the bottom of the lake. It will not interfere with the level of Lake Orion since the bottom draw will only operate when there is water spilling over the top of the dam.

The water from the bottom of the lake picks up more oxygen as it flows down a rock filled gully and into the creek at the base of the dam.

SPITLER FEELS THE bottom draw will cool the creek water to 70 degrees or below so trout can survive in the upper stretches of Paint

"We made some brief tests and found the water in the tube was 55 degrees," Spitler said. "The oxygen was near zero at the bottom of the lake, but up to nine ppb by the time it passed over the rocks.

"Ideally, we'd like to keep the water temperature in the mid-60s throughout the summer. If we can keep it below 70-degrees during the hot, dry days in the middle of the summer we should be OK. Trout can survive in water temperatures in the middle to upper 70s for a short period of

Currently, warm water temperatures in the upper four miles of the creek are lethal to trout. If the water cools as expected the DNR will begin stocking the upper stretches of the creek with 1,000 to 1,500 brown trout next spring, according to Spitler.

THE BOTTOM DRAW is part of an overall improvement package on Paint Creek, which begins at Lake Orion and flows southeasterly into Rochester where it empties into the Clinton Riv-

Through the cooperation of local chapters of Trout Unlimited, the Paint Creek Trailways Commission, the DNR, the Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation and other agencies, many improvements have already been completed on the 14-mile creek.

Log jams and debris that once cluttered the creek bed and restricted the flow of water have been removed. Erosion control devises such as rock riprapping and log shoreing have been constructed. Stairways have been built at several locations providing easy access for anglers and hikers from the abandoned railroad grade which runs the length of the creek.

MORE IMPROVEMENTS are planned for the

The Trailways Commission recently received $1,200 in state-matching Inland Fisheries Cooperative grants to continue the improvements.

Basically, we'll be doing more of the same things we've already done," said Peg Johnson, secretary of the Trailways Commission. "We'll be riprapping the bank to help control the erosion and we'll be building more stairways which also help control erosion."

While the work continues, Paint Creek creeps closer and closer to becoming southeastern Michigan's premiere trout stream.

Hillsdale, Saginaw Valley in title hunt

Controlling the line will be an experienced group, said Kelly. "We return a lot of veterans on a very talented offensive line," he noted. Included is starting senior guard Doug Strehl (6-2, 250), from John Glenn.

Mitchell's return (48 catches in '89) strengthens the receiving. Top pass-catcher Michael Short is gone, but seniors Ted Monken and John Sanders are back. So is junior Todd Gesund (6-0, 185), from North Farmington. Gesund caught 13 passes for 249 yards and one TD last season.

IT MAY BE tough to repeat, however. Ashland College was picked to finish second, with Hillsdale College third and Saginaw Valley State fourth: Ferris State and Northern Michigan tied for fifth in the poll; any of them could challenge for the championship.

At Hillsdale, a strong offensive line and tough defense could propel. the Chargers (7-4 overall, 7-3 in the MIFC last season) into contention. The offensive line is anchored by senior center Kurt Urban (6-2, 240), from Plymouth Salem. Urban started every game last season.

"Our offensive line is going to be as strong as it's ever been," said coach Dick Lowry as he prepared for his 35th season. "The question mark will be at quarterback."

Lowry hasn't found a suitable replacement for graduated Craig Como at quarterback, and hinted a freshman may even fill the position. Another notable loss to graduation was tailback Jeff Cameron, who led the team in rushing and receiving.

JUNIOR SPLIT end Joe Ransley

punter tast year; and Alan Pitts (right), also from Stevenson, will be a defensive force for Saginaw Valley State.

(5-11, 175), from Livonia Franklin, should help offset the losses; he had nine catches for 193 yards and two TDs in '90.

from Livonia Stevenson, to boot the Chargers out of trouble, Wolter averaged nearly 41 yards a kick last

And on defense, there's an abundance of talent. "Our defense is as good as it's ever been," said Lowry. "We have a lot of speed on defense."

Two-year starting defensive tackle Joe Jouppi (6-2, 230), from Plymouth Salem, is a key component on an able defense. Jouppi had 49 tackles, including three quarterback sacks, last year. "Joe should be an awfully good defensive lineman,"

Hillsdale should be an awfully good team, if capable replacements away," said Cardinal coach George Inler's also happy to have an extremely productive ground attack back. Sophomores Brett Mullins (1,178 yards rushing) and Brett Burris (860 yards) will be joined in the backfield by senior Kevin Mitchell, who rushed for over 1,000 yards for three consecutive seasons before sitting out last year.

Other teams can contend, but have bigger questions to answer. Ferris State, 5-4-1 in the MIFC last season, needs junior quarterback Doug Arnold to return to the form of his freshman year. Pat Pettit (6.0, 168), - said Horn. "On defense, we have a a junior flanker from John Glenn, was one of Arnold's favorite targets. last season with 28 catches for 'a team-best 497 yards and two TDs.

FOR WAYNE State, this could be a turn-the-corner season. The Tartars were just 3-7 last season; coach Joe B. Horn is expecting much better this season.

"Our offense should be strong." lot of guys who have played but not a lot of standouts. We're going to win some games."

His defense has eight players with starting experience returning, including sophomore defensive end Eric Ruth (6-3, 245), from Stevenson, the team's most valuable defensive lineman and honorable mention all-MIFC in '90. Ruth had 50 tackles last year, including five sacks and 11 tac-

Also back is sophomore safety Ebble Herbert (5-11, 185); from Redford Bishop Borgess, who also gained honorable mention all-MIFC honors and was named WSU's MVP in the secondary. Herbert had 49 tackles and two interceptions in '90. Expect sophomore strong safety Brian Piergentili (5-11, 180), from Stevenson, a part-time starter last season; to see plenty of action, too.

One major question at WSU is the kicking game. Horn hopes redshirt freshman Erik Burton, from Redford Catholic Central, can provide the answer. "Erik Burton is the best technical punter I've worked with, but he is a freshman," said Horn, noting Burton's occasional mis-

Still, with the right breaks and some contributions from a few newcomers, the Tartars could finish in the upper echelon of the MIFC.

Yankees come up short

Coach Al Fernandez and his Westland Federation Yankees came home late Sunday night from the All-American Baseball Congress World Series, held earlier this month in Spring, Texas.

"Some teams came home before we did," Fer-

Translated, that means Westland Federation, was able to win one of its three games and finish fifth among nine teams at the double-elimination tournament. Fernandez was pleased with the showing, considering the Yankees had to play without starting third baseman/ pitcher Luke Bonner (Taylor), who was suffering from a kneeand starting first baseman Jason Overton (Westland), out with tonselltis.

The Yankees, who won the regional in Westland, finished the season at 39-5 overall.

"I really felt bad for the two that didn't get to play because it's a once in a lifetime opportunity,'

The Yankees made the most of their first opportunity Thursday in the tournament, whipping New Jersey, 10-2, in a five-inning mercy. Brian Cabana, of Windsor, was the winning pitcher, striking out five, walking two and scattering five

EJ Roman's three-run home run in the third scored Aaron Shrewsbury (Dearborn) and Cabana to give Westland a 3-0 lead and the Yankees added four runs in the fourth inning and five in the fifth for the mercy.

Mike Cervenak (Huron) had two hits and two RBI to lead Westland's seven-hit attack.

"THE FIRST game we played very well, like they did in the regional," Fernandez said. "We played good defense, hit the ball well. Everything went acording to the book. The nightmare was in the second game."

He was referring to the Yankees' first loss Friday, when Colorado rallied for two unearned runs in the sixth for a 5-3 win. Playing without Bonner and Overton on the corners apparently had an effect on the Yankees, since they allowed Colorado to execute a pair of consecutive suicide squeeze bunts in the sixth to score the go-ahead runs.

"When you lose that way, you look for a rope," joked Fernandez. "Everybody knew the squeezes were coming, we just didn't do it well and that's what happens when you miss your regulars."

Rick Miller (Detroit) was on the mound for the Yankees when the go-ahead runs scored, but the loss went to Chris DeShelter (Allen Park), who allowed two of the four batters he faced in the sixth to reach base on hits.

Drains Run Slow?

You'll never have a slow running, or clogged drain again! or your pipes. An expensive, temporary measure. The secret? Clean drains don't run slow.

The "slows", or periodic clogs, are SIGNALS that a thick layer of GOOK is choking your pipes. Grease, hair, and other waste stick to your pipes, with every use. This gook deposits along the entire length of the pipe. It chokes your pipes gradually, as chemically on the surface of the gook. To be effective, they must

Now, with just a few minutes each month, you can easily clean out your pipes ... and KEEP them clean with Plamb Cleans. It clings, and penetrates deep into the gook. No other product has the Plumb Clean formula. That is what allows it to liquefy even years of build-up. Plumb Cloon* will clean the entire length of your pipes. It will make your drains run like new, when used as directed. This penetrating action is so revolutionary, we stand behind Plumb Clean with a money-back guaranteel Don't be confused. Plumb Clean is the brand with the money-back guarantee right on the label.

Saves Money. A 1 lb. jar of Plumb Cleans holds up to 41 drain treatments. Even if drain openers could fix slow drains, it would take over 10 quart bottles to get the same number of treatments. Plumb Cleen costs about 35¢ per treatment. We don't know of anything that cleans drains for less.

Independent laboratory studies show Plumb Cleans more effectively breaks down organic waste than all other products remain in contact with the waste. Even a small tunnel through the gook lets them flow out to the sewer, leaving the gook behind.

In the past, the only way to remove this build-up was to rootguaranteed Plumb Clean today! Available only at: tested. So, if your drains have the "slows", act now. Get safe,

To be part of the solution, not part of the problem.

Times change. There was once a time when we thought that providing the very best community news coverage was enough.

Today it's not. Today we have a responsibility not only to our readers and advertisers, but also to our environment.

That's why 30% of the newsprint we put on our press has been recycled. This will increase when our other suppliers bring recycled newsprint on line later this year.

Our communities and the entire State of Michigan face a solid waste crisis.

There used to be 624 Type II landfills in Michigan*. The trash from your home, your neighbor's homes and the businesses in your town goes into a Type II landfill. As you read this, there are only 71 of them still open and licensed to do business. That's 71 in all of Michigan's 83 counties. Estimates say one-third of these will be out of business in less than five years.

So what can a business like ours do to be part of the solution and not part of the problem?

We're buying and printing your newspaper on recycled newsprint. We're looking for other recycled products to use in our business. We're recycling all of our newsprint and office paper. We're working to increase public awareness and participation. We're encouraging our readers to recycle.

How can you help? Why not begin with this newspaper; recycle it along with others you may have collected. Then start buying recycled products. Spread the word about those landfills and recycle this page by sharing it with a friend.

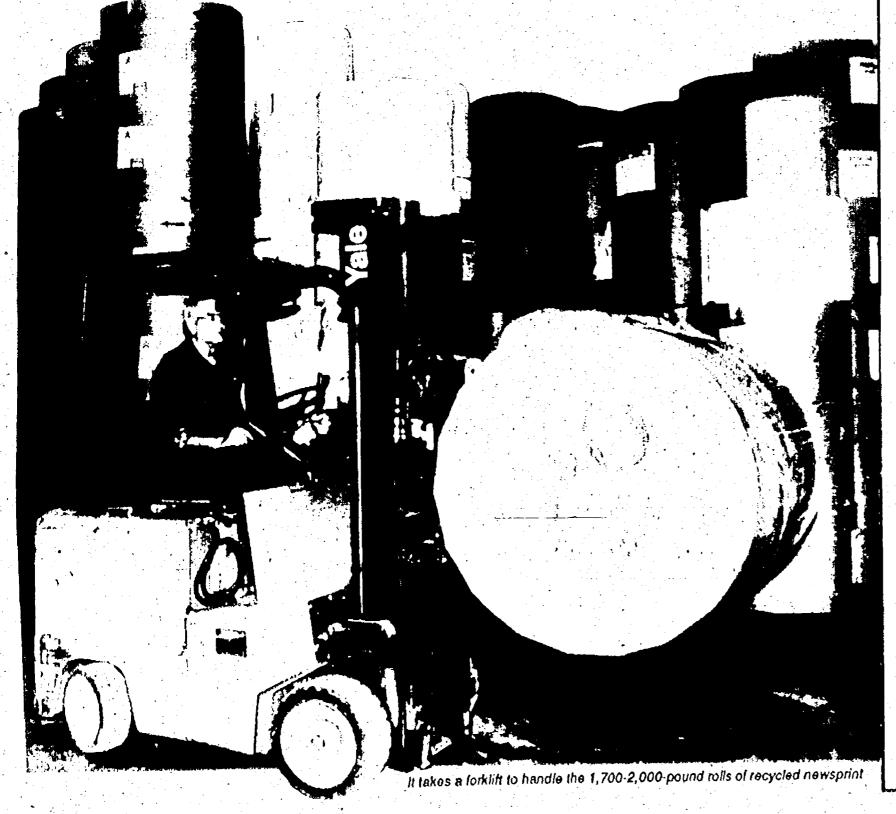

And if you are already recycling—thank you.

Digger wasps help control insect population

While walking trails in forests, meadows, or wetlands, it is benefigial to, search in all directions. Though no one wants to trip over roots or rocks on the trail, learning to scan the tree tops, tree trunks, shrubs, shoreline, and the ground, takes practice. Learning to see as much as possible while hiking is an art in itself.

- Scanning and learning to look for things that are different will often alert you to interesting subjects of natural history. We are all familiar with ant holes in the soil. Most of us have watched ant "wars" and seen their small hills and entrance holes. But as you hike trails in sandy areas, you may see large holes with a "fan" of sand on one side of the opening.

This different kind of hole in the ground should be a clue to spark: ohe's curiosity. Watching an opening for a short time should satisfy that curlosity. In some cases the hole could be from ground bees that build a nest underground. They look similiar to honey bees, but they are more gray in colora-io If it is not a ground bee, then it could be a digger wasp. There are several different kinds displaying various color patterns and colors. All prefer sandy soil so that stand-ing water will not promote the growth of mold and fungus, which would kill their young.

Digger wasps dig diligently to form a chamber under ground where they will put insects they capture. These insects will serve as food for their developing young. Many species of digger wasps specialize in only one kind of prey insect. Just the other day I watched some digger wasps, which were dark metallic blue-black, bring bright green stink bugs back to their hole. Each stink bug probably waighed as much as the wasp.

There were several holes in the vicinity, yet each wasp returned to its own hole. When wasps leave their hole to search for food, they hover above the hole for a moment of two. This allows them to memorize the placement of their hole compared to other holes and landmarks.

Though we often only think of wasps as those insects that can sting us, the majority of wasps help control insect populations and are not a threat to humans.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia.

There are no push-button phones that typified the post-World War II in Meldrum Bay, Ontario, and Lloyd Webster, who retired from professional motorcycle racing to run the general store, sell fishing licenses of his leadership or the fact that he and operate the local Coast Guard search and rescue boat, has to make a hundred mile round trip to buy bread for the store.

This tends to make for the kind of vacation where you come back and get surprised by news, which for me Solchiro Honda, and the demise of the Sterling and Peugeot cars in the U.S. market.

At the age of 84, Mr. Honda was a walking affront to the granola and low-stress lifestyle. Hard-working and hard-living, he once hit the head of Honda Research and Development over the head with a bolt he was displeased with.

HIS NAME was on the company rise of the Japanese auto industry, but it's not clear today whether Honda's present success was the result stepped down long before the company began to gain any respect in the U.S. marketplace.

No matter, Mr. Honda was the kind of belligerent outsider most Americans could identify with, and somehow he managed to maintain included reading about the death of the image of an underdog car company even when Honda began to outsell General Motors.

It was Honda also that led the way in elbowing aside the old-line European manufacturers in the U.S. market. Honda has doggedly pursued the likes of Volkswagen for decades, but the huge surplus of models currently on sale in the United States squeezed the British, French and Italian industries even harder.

The state of the s

SO IT WAS no great surprise when Sterling Motors threw in the towel. As a surviving fragment of the British industry that once produced the likes of Triumphs and Jaguars, Sterling was selling a UK-assembled version of the Acura Legend, which put them in the unenviable position of trying to sell a car with Japanese looks and British assembly quality, sort of like trying to make a movie idol out of Woody Allen's body and Stallone's brains.

Most missed will be the class the British brought to the auto show circults, where they served tea and their models wore hats.

Even more missed (by me, anyway) will be Peugeot, which was the last genuine oddball import on sale in the United States. A vestige of the 1960s, when every import was weird by definition, Peugeot began in the United States by selling dieselpowered French taxicabs with huge, white steering wheels, so bizarre that they made a three-cylinder twostroke Saab look as stodgy as a fu-

LATER, THE long-winded effort to sell Peugeots as ersatz luxury cars in the face of a beleaguered U.S. industry, the anxious Germans and the aggressive Japanese proved too much, and they folded their U.S. operation after 35 years on these shores.

It's clear that what's happening is the salad days are about over for using the United States as an endless source of wealth for anybody with something on four wheels and an urge to get into the auto business. Peugeot is withdrawing to Europe, which promises both growth that will outstrip the United States in the coming decades, and relentless competition from the Japanese if the new European economic order ever lets them in. I predict that, like Fiat, they will prosper on their home turf.

IN ANY case, I figure Lloyd saw the handwriting on the wall carlier than most of us.

Lloyd moved to Meldrum Bay after selling off a collection of 36 motorcycles, a legacy of 20 years selling Triumphs and other brands, mainly British, in his store near Toronto, before he hung it up and headed north. That also ended 17 years of professional racing with the Triumph motocross team, in Europe and North America, in the years when British bikes still dominated the sport:

"A buddy of mine is still in the business, but he only sold about 50 bikes last year, and he used to sell 500," he told me as we drove through the woods in his pickup to get the bread, 50 miles away.

Sometimes a successful savings plan depends more on how you save trip to the Far East later this year at than on how much you save.

This lesson can be demonstrated by Fran Bigelow, who lives in her own condo in Birmingham. Bigelow, 47 and single, is employed in staff training and development at a local hospital. She earns $40,000 per year.

Her situation contains a number of financial strengths and weaknesses. She is conservative in her spending habits and has no consumer debt. She is solidly employed in a position that provides good benefits. Her life, auto and homeowners insurance coverage is adequate. Although she saves through a tax-sheltered annuity at work, there appears to be an increased need in the rate of retirement'savings to meet her goals for retirement at age 65.

Currently she has inadequate. emergency reserves. As of yet, she has not made out a will.

BIGELOW'S SHORT-TERM goals include buying a new car next year, installing air conditioning in her condo at a cost of $3,000, and a major a cost of $3,000. She would like to term financial goal is saving for rewants to maintain her current standard of living, which she estimates would cost about $3,000 per month in today's dollars.

Her major strength is her regular . savings habit of $500 per month, which she divides equally between tax-sheltered annuity savings and mutual fund investments. She is able to save this much because she has accumulated little debt. Her only debts are an assumed mortgage of $12,000 and a personal loan from her parents of $50,000, which was used to purchase the condo.

Bigelow's pension from the hospital is projected to be only $500 per month, and Social Security is projected to pay approximately $750 per month. Both figures are adjusted for inflation. If her goal is income of $3,000 per month, almost two-thirds of her monthly retirement needs must come through her own savings and investments.

In analyzing her current savings picture, it appears she will fall short retire in 18 years, so a major long. of what is required. She is not significantly under-saving, but it appears tirement. After retirement she that to meet her goals she will need to increase her savings from $500 > per month to $600-$700 per month. She asks, "How can my savings be put to better use?"

We would suggest that she increase her savings within her taxsheltered annulty. Currently, she is saving only about 7 percent of her income in the TSA. She should consider doubling that to 15 percent to about $500 per month. Pre-tax contributions to the annuity aren't taxed until withdrawn so that the $250 increase in contribution reduces her take-home pay by only $150. By reducing the mutual fund savings from $250 to $150 per month, she can save more dollars without significantly reducing her other discretionary expenditures.

This strategy of shifting after-tax investments to tax deductible investments is a good way to "leverage" her savings rate without significantly affecting her standard of living.

BIGELOW HAS done a good job of diversifying her investment portfolio, which contains a general balance between growth-oriented investments and fixed interest assets. She should continue to monitor this mix of investments to get both appreciation of assets and a secure income stream.

She has suggested a desire to spend a significant amount on shortterm goals. Because she only maintains $2,000 in her savings account, she is concerned that she will end up In debt given these short-term expenditures.

"Can I accomplish all I want to do and not hurt my long-term plans?"

To keep costs down, we suggest that instead of buying a new car she consider purchasing a later model used car. Even then she may need to aggressively accumulate savings to afford these items next year, borrow to make these purchases or liquidate some of her growth mutual fund in-

Our last choice would be to liquidate an investment. If she is forced to sell her growth mutual fund investment, she may be required to do this at an inopportune time and will.

she should set a goal of maintaining at least $5,000 in savings or money market account for "working capifal" and any short-term needs. As we said earlier, Bigelow had borrowed money from her parents to purchase the condo in which she lives. IRS rules require that for Bigelow to deduct the interest as home mortgage interest, she must have a formal note signed and secured by a mortgage interest recorded against the condo. Without a note and mortgage, the IRS will disqualify the interest deduction. Although she has good benefits in general, Bigelow is in need of longterm disability coverage. The policy at work covers her only up to a maximum of $1,000 per month. If she were to become disabled, not only would her future goals be in serious jeopardy, but her current standard of living could fall dramatically. We would suggest that she supplement her policy at work with a personnally owned disability policy that could cover her should she become sick or Another weakness in her financial picture is a lack of estate plan. She should execute a will to designate where her assets will go upon her death and who will act as administrator of the estate. Bigelow may also want to consider executing a living revocable trust into which she can transfer her assets and thus avoid probate and its attendant costs and time delays. If she is charitably inclined, there are planning techniques that would give her flexibility during her lifetime and provide for charitable beneficiaries at her death.

U-M graduate student shares award for new business plan

By Doug Funke staff writer

Some students look upon a class project as a bothersome chore.

Thomas McLean, a Plymouth resident, and a classmate refined an assignment from an entrepreneur strategy class at the University of Michigan into the winner of the sixth annual Millard Pryor Award.

The award went to the U-M student or team who submitted the most thorough and realistic plan for a new or reconstructed business. McLean and his partner, Peter B. Ramsden, shared a $3,500 cash

Their idea was a weekly news digest summarizing key developments by business category for CEOs and other top executives.

"We saw managers and people in business facing information overload," McLean said. "Time is getting to be a bigger and bigger scarce resource. They have trade periodicals coming across their desks they don't have time to read.

"Our idea was to take all sources (of information) and condense it down to one page. Each page would be one topic. We'd come out with the top 10 stories of the previous week. We'd reference each summary and supply a full text at an additional

'We'd use a combination of scanners and employees to log articles in a data base and screen the top 10 articles," McLean said.

wee hours of the morning Mondays to be available when they hit their desks to begin another week.

Why fax rather than direct computer access?

"It was our idea higher-level managers have more need for the product, and from our experience, there's still a phobia of personal computers out there," McLean said.

Executives could choose three summaries from categories like tax, real estate, accounting and business law for an annual fee of $200-$250. Additional digests and full-text arti-THE INFORMATION would be cles would be available at additional

The big drawback to the plan,

McLean admitted, is that large existing data base companies like Source and CompuServe could easily respond and snuff out smaller upstarts like him.

"COMPETITORS COULD react very easily, hire additional folks for summary sheets and copy what we're doing," he said.

McLean, who recently received a master's degree in business admistration, will begin a training program to become a commercial loan officer at National Bank of Detroit.

He has no immediate plans to launch the prize-winning digest but does admit to having an entrepreneurial spirit. The thought of some day starting a business has crossed his mind.

"I look to the bank to provide good experience and exposure to a number of industries," he said.

McLean's impressions of starting a business from scratch as a result of the academic exercise?

"It's a lot of hard work. I knew that going in, but maybe it's more' than I expected. There's a lot of risks, too, to take the plunge to quit what you're doing, mortgage the

"Having business people and ven-ture capitalists critique the project surprised me how much thought has to go into a lot of details — funding, contingency plans, competitor analysis," he said.

McLean, 28, had previously earned a bachelor's degree in economics from Kalamazoo College and worked five years in financial analysis and investment portfolio management before pursuing an MBA.

Camera sales, use decline

special writer

With the vacation season in full swing, area camera shops are eyeing a rare downturn in the industry as last year Americans took fewer snapshots and bought fewer cameras than the year before — the first annual decline ever.

"With 35-millimeter cameras in the $300 to $400 range, it's gotten to the point where people are thinking twice about buying a new camera," said Jim Crosby, owner of The Camera Connection in Redford.

They either put off the purchase or borrow a camera from friends or neighbors. At the same time, everywhere you go today, it seems there's a video camera cradled on someone's shoulder, and that has taken a large chunk out of the 35-millimeter market.'

According to the Wolfman Report, an annual survey of the photography industry, there were 15.7 billion snapshots taken last year, down from 16.1 billion the year before. At the same time, new camera sales dropped to 18.7 million from 20 mil-uct with different uses," said Wayne Loder, president of F-Stop, a camera shop in Farmington Hills.

"Both have their place. The still camera is great for shots of the Grand Canyon or family albums, and the video camera is all about action - a day at the park, hot-air balloon rides. They just have different uses."

STILL, PART of the decline in still photography and camera sales may reflect the growing popularity of video cameras, as sales of camcorders rose 29 percent to almost three million units last year. Because camcorders play back through . videocassette recorders, and therefore don't require film processing, photo shop owners believe they are losing business to live-action models. . At the same time, like most other businesses, the snapshot industry was hurt by both the economic recession and war jitters after Iraq invaded Kuwait last August. The dual punch of these events sharply reduced vacation travel.

"Our business is up between 20 and 30 percent from earlier in the year," said William Day, manager of the Birmingham Camera Shop in downtown Birmingham. "I could tell vacation travel was down in January and February, because our passport and visa business was down 20 per-mixed results. Still, many expect the general photography business to pick up again as the economy improves, although at moderate rates.

SALES ARE said to be strong for small 35-millimeter "point and shoot" cameras with automatic focus. Other strong sellers include cameras with features such as builtin zoom lenses and improved flashes, though the big question is whether amateur photographers will embrace the latest offering - digital cameras that store photos on small disks for display on television.

"People have been taking slides for years and flashing them on screens at home, so the digital model picks up on that," said Day. "But the price for digital is high, and the quality isn't as good as 35-millimeter

Additional software may also be required to manipulate and transmit the pictures on TV screens. Despite these drawbacks, companies such as Ameritech Publishing Inc. in Troy have found the new cameras to be an excellent sales tool. Ameritech, which publishes more than 450 white and yellow page directories, is beginning to equip field personnel with the new technology to encourage small business owners to include personal photographs with their ad-

'Welcome to Julianne's neighborhood'

She helps those in need of home

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

In Julianne Meyer-Sorek's neighborhood, there is poverty, hunger and people who are homeless. All of which is probably news to those who live nearby the Livonia resident.

But it's all a matter of perception. While most would suppose their community begins and ends at the end of the block, Meyer-Sorek's world encompasses a good deal more than even the city limits. In less fortunate is not an occurrence in some nether region of the globe. She witnesses it virtually in her own back yard, only a 20-minute drive

"I believe if you see something, you react to it," said Meyer-Sorek, who grew up in Garden City and is a 1978 graduate of Farmington Hills Mercy High School.

It's something new for Alexandra and Bob Sakellaris, Farmington Hills residents who operate the facilty at 35780 Five Mile Road.

It's a labor of love for Steve Katz, Livonia resident who quit his job as a sales representative to turn fulltime actor, producer and writer for the fledgling company, Entertaining

Pcople. Of the company, owned by Katz and his co-producer Kathleen Lietz of Redford, the former says, "So far so good. "Kathy and I are both board members for the Plymouth Theatre Guild so we know a lot of actors and see a lot of them audition," he said. "We've hand-picked the actors and actresses we use in our scripts and have excellent casts that all work well together,"

But the key to the murder mystery dinner theater is interaction with the audience, which "is an intrinsic part of all of our scripts." "The actor or actress must be able to respond or ad lib under any conceivable set of circumstances because so many times those circumstances change with a different audience," Katz said.

ENTERTAINING people has produced five scripts for a large variety of audiences. Four have been produced for dinner audiences. The other, called "Stanley and Sara,"

Before I begin the analysis I would like to say that my analysis is always done on the handwriting and not on the contents of the letter.

Our writer today is a social young woman who wants to live her life to the fullest. Seemingly there is a strong need to experience change and a variety of activities in her dally routine.

A restless nature is searching for something. When things become too routine, boredom sets in. She needs to guard against becoming overly involved at times.

On the day she wrote this letter, she was feeling irrepressible optimism. However, her moods can go from the peaks to the pits, some-

ACCORDING TO Supan, Mever-Sorek has been committed from the onset. She serves on the board of directors for the sanctuary. She writes proposals for grants and is involved in fund-raising projects, such as selling Entertainment Passbooks.

Then there are the little things. Meyer-Sorek arrives an hour before the families in order to help prepare lunches. She organizes the playroom, getting donations for Learning Tree in Livonia, Sometimes, she'll transport clients to and from the sanctuary.

But there is a price. Some families have been coming to the sanctuary for a year; Others have gone, their whereabouts unknown.

"There are some people you can't help but become personally in-volved," she said. "I go to their home and pick them up. After seeing people twice a week over a period of time, it naturally progresses into a friendship."

Meyer-Sorek doesn't impose her values on the mothers or tell them how to run their lives. She said that can be destructive.

Rather she relates as a parent, perhaps a person, to offer an ear to someone who is just more than a little low on cash.

"I have a couple of children; I can't imagine sitting on the curb with no place to stay," she said. "I often said that if I had half the problems of these people, I don't know if I could wake up in the morning.

"It sometimes takes a while for the riders to catch on to what is going on, but when they do, they keep interacting with us all the way." Katz said.

. The dinner theater format begins with the actors and actresses greeting the guests as they arrive for the show. They introduce themselves personally and chat, then mingle or table hop to say hello to other guests.

When dinner is ready to be served, the cast is seated at a prominent table. The cast talks among themselves and to those around them. Sometimes one or two of the cast will have a conversation all can hear on the way to the bar, for example, or use whatever ruse possible to give out clues. The murder may have already taken place, or may take place during dinner. Many times, during the early part of the evening, a guest will be asked if he or she will cooperate by pretending to be a given character.

"It's easy; it's fun. Nobody is put on the spot. Nobody is ever intimidated. We keep it light and funny and entertaining," Katz said.

BOTH ALEXANDRA and Bobby Sakellaris come from families that have a long history in the restaurant business. They have been operating Bobby's Country House for about seven years, and closed down the restaurant when the banquet part of the business began taking up the bulk of their time.

had to be on Thursdays," she said. "We've enjoyed the Thursday nights so much I am doing what I can to get some of the people who have booked our rooms interested in hiring Entertaining People for their entertainment.

"I have a feeling this is going to be some kind of a trend. I think this is going to be the new thing for private parties."

"We tailor our scripts to any kind of special-interest group audience, from a Sweet 16 Party to a_ 50th Anniversary," Katz said. "Weare continually working on new scripts and coming up with new ideas."

KATZ JOKES that he thinks he must have hit his mid-life crisis when he gave up his job to give Entertaining People all of his time and energies.

"Murdery mystery companies have come and gone, many of them were evening jobs and the people running them just ran out of steam," he said. "For myself, the 'time came when I just had to make a decision. I believe in this, so I had to try - to give it my all."

Katz and Lietz have both worked as actors on and off since high school days.

Katz graduated with a degree in philosophy from the University of Toledo. Knowing about Socrates didn't help him much in the way of marketing Entertaining People, so, he says, "the way has sometimes been rocky, but I always liked people. I was always a ham. It all fell together. I like what I'm doing."

Sonlight Club provides Christian fellowship and fun

By Larry O'Connor . staff writer

HERE THERE isn't beer, there's root beer. . Where there isn't smoke, there is

And Sonlight Club in Ypsilanti is not a place where a guy asks a woman if she is a Virgo or a Cancer. The cross is the only sign patrons have, in common at this nightspot catering to Christians.

Other than that, Sonlight could pass for any other entertainment center for young people.

Strobe lights bounce off the dance floor as young people throw down to the latest in Christian music by such non-Top 40 contemporaries as Michael W. Smith, Halo and Petra.

"I think it's a big improvement over nightclubs," sald David Kraemer, 25, of Westland, drinking an A&W root beer and watching the action on the dance floor with a friend, Rebecca Moore of Redford.

"For one, it allows you to have fellowship with other Christians ... You can't have strong fellowship when you're only around non-Christians."____

RULES ARE rather simple at Sonlight, which is only open Saturdays at Radisson on the Lake off I-94 on the Huron Street exit.

No suggestive dancing is allowed. A dress code calls for "proper and modest" clothes to be worn. Of course, alcohol and smoking are forbidden.

Otherwise, organizer Tony Weatherly just wants everyone to Weatherly started Sonlight Ministries two years ago as an alternative to the smoky secular bar scene. He had put ' accom similar Christian clubs in Louisiana and Tennessee before moving to Michigan a few years ago.

"We're not against bars," Weatherly said. "We preach a positive message, You don't have to drink to have a good time."

TURNOUT HAS been on the upswing. After 18 months of being "in the hole," Weatherly said the club is at a break-even point. Cover at the door is $4; a can of pop goes for $1 and pizza slices are sold for the same price.

But people come from as far away as Wyandotte to savor the Christian-styled night life.

Most are in their teens and early 20s, representing a cross-section of denominations such as Baptists, Assemblies of God and Methodists.

Weatherly advertises Sonlight Club on Christian radio stations such as WCM-AM in Ypsilanti and in entertainment-oriented newspapers such as Metro Times. Word of mouth brings most patrons out.

PEOPLE LIKE Julie Schonfeld, 18, of Livonia, who's visiting for the first time with regular Greg Gordish of Redford. Both attend Livonia Assemblies of God.

"It's very tough to find places like this," said Gordish, who is a Wayne County sheriff's deputy. "It's a great alternative to the bar scene. It can be a supplement to church activity.'

Leslev Carmichael of Plymouth agrees. She's a senior at Michigan State University, majoring in jour-

ON THIS night, those in attencance are treated to a special aprearance by a heavy metal outfit; Detonator, A few people stick tissue in their ears when the longhaired band members launch into a 20-minute set of spiritual guitar grunge.

Detonator recently became a converted lot, said Linda Weatherly, Tony's wife.

These guys really mean business," she said.

On stage, the four-piece metal group is joined by another Christian singer, Adam Plom. Band members and guest singer alike share their testimony with an attentive audience.

"There's a few people here who know the Lord and we're glad you're here," Plom said. "There's a few people here who don't know the Lord. We're even happier you're here."

David Kraemer of Westland and Rebecca Moore of Redford enjoy their time at the nightclub.

Jeff Kassuba of Ypsilanti and Libble Rinaldi of Wyandotte "step out" on a Saturday night at the club.

Detonator, a Christian band, performs for the crowd at the Sonlight Club.

THE SLEEK silver dining cars of the Michigan Star Clipper can't help but draw attention. Shirtless children stop their play, and drivers blocked at railroad crossings roll down their windows to wave at the bit of railroad history passing by.

On board, nattlly dressed diners pause briefly between the first and second installments of their fivecourse meal. Shielded from the heat and bugs of a steamy summer night, they take in the panorama of wetlands, forests, and ever-encroaching subdivisions that is north Oakland

THE CARS, built for the Pennsylvania Railroad in 1956, are known as Keystone Cars. Their original use was short-lived because their signature low windows were constantly being covered by high station platforms. Now refurbished with carpeting and long rows of mirrors where baggage racks used to be, they glide at an almost bumpless 8-10 miles per hour as the Michigan Star

The dinner train now embarks from his circa 1800s red and white train depot near the corner of Maple and Pontiac Trail roads. This easier accessibility for metro Detroiters has made the train a success,

The first half of the journey, four miles into Wixom and then back again, glided past fields of wildflowers, rows of identical yellow school buses, and the back yards of both grand and modest houses.

Past the depot again, the second leg remains the most enchanting, as trees, bushes, and vines along the track formed a green tunnel through wetlands and bird sanctuaries. The pastoral image was only obscured by the new homes, which find their way deeper and deeper into the wilderness each year.

Saturday, Aug. 17, Robinson will create his one-of-a-kind painted clothing, airbrushing before the customer's eyes between noon and 6 p.m. at T's-N-Things, inside Wonderland Mall, Plymouth Road at Middlebelt, Livonia. From painted realism to abstract geometric shapes, the wearable art features scenes from everyday life, as well as fantasy.

Animals, clowns, flowers, flamingo and dragons keep Robinson painting into the early morning hours on many a night.

"It started out as a hobby for relaxation. Painting helps me relax from a very stressful job as chief engineer for a hotel in Novi," Robinson said in a July interview at the Farmington/Farmington Hills Founders Festival.

ROBINSON CREATES the wearable art using three different painting methods.

One time-consuming method is airbrushing through a stencil. Robinson airbrushes the image onto fabric after cutting out separate stencils for eyes, nose, lips, hands, fingernails and

"We're getting bigger and better. The quality of our exhibitors is excellent. Last year we had 50; this year we could have as many as 72," said Del Broquet, who chairs the Sheridan Square Promotion Committee and owns Your Travel Planner.

Two days of art, entertainment, food and fun have been planned by participating Sheridan Square mer-chants and Garden City Fine Arts Association members to promote quality arts and crafts.

"We want to give the impression that Arts on the Square is quality. We've screened the exhibitors and there's a good variety," said Norma McQueen, Garden City Fine Arts Association president and The Art Gallery manager.

Museum serves up treats from Canton's earlier times

FOR A flavorful slice of community history, try a visit to the Canton Historical Society Museum.

The little red-brick building is the former 'one-room Canton Center School, built in 1884 by Hargreaze Sittlington. It was the last actively used schoolhouse for all eight grades in Wayne County. The township now owns the building, home to the museum since 1982.

In addition to periodic special exhibits, like the current Great Lakes Indian artifacts, the museum boasts three permanent exhibits, which spotlight the history of the township's farms, villages and schools.

Other regular displays serve up tidbits from early Canton life.

"I can't say exactly how I know but when I look at a color, I knowwhat colors it takes to make it.

I (gradually) build up my colors. I know what colors to put on it to build up that color."

Robinson points to a scene with a dragon on the back of a jean jacket, the first in a series of fantasy jackCastle towers and a wizard with a

Fund-raisers boost restoration at Greenmead

By Mary Rodriguo staff writer

It's not on a par with Henry Ford's Greenfield Village - yet. But when volunteers finish restoring Greenmead, Livonia will boast a treasured historic village sure to keep visitors coming for years.

"Restoration has been a long-time project," said Marian Lynch, Livonia Historical Society president. "We hope to live to see the day when it's all done,"

That "we" includes the Livonia Historical Society, Livonia Historical Commission, Livonia Historic Preservation Committee and Friends of Greenmead.

EACH GROUP has hosted its share of events to finance restoration of the 25 buildings on the cityowned grounds at Eight Mile and Newburgh.

Coming Sunday, Aug. 18, Is an American Motors-sponsored antique car show, followed Saturday-Sunday, Aug. 24-25, by a Livonia Historical Commission-sponsored Americana crafts show.

The historical society's annual progressive dinner is Saturday, Sept.

"We do anything we can think of to get funds for restoration," said Sue Danlel, historical commission president and chairman of the restoration committee.

"When restoration is done, we can turn our energy toward developing programs so more people can use land contract, Lynch said. and enjoy (Greenmead)."

PROCEEDS ARE now financing the $56,000 restoration of a 1913 bungalow that once stood at Ann Arbor Trail and Newburgh and the $70,000 phased stabilization of the farm complex — buildings dating as far back as 1829 and which form the nucleus of Greenmead. -Also under reconstruction is the Blue House, moved to Greenmead from the Middlebelt/Schoolcraft road area. The Victorian Italianate house, circa 1850, was once owned by magistrate Alexander Blue.

The city of Livonia bought the 103acres Greenmead in 1976 from Hill family descendants for $500,000 on

In recent years, the city sold 3.5 acres to the U.S. Post Office for about $360,000; with proceeds going into the restoration fund.

"Greenmead is the only farm left within the city," Lynch said.

IT IS truly a citywide labor of love. The Livonia Garden Club plants its lush gardens and local resi-, dents rent plots to cultivate flower and vegotable gardens.

Volunteers act as tour guides for each building on Sundays. Others, like Lynch and Daniel, devote uncounted hours to making sure authenticity is strictly adhered.

One of the buildings on the grounds is a Quaker meeting house circa 1846. The Livonia-Farmington area once housed a sizeable Quaker population. Future plans call for the restoration of the meeting house to its original condition. Some of the buildings in

Greenmead, like the bungalow, were moved there from the intersection of Newburgh and Ann Arbor Trail, once a community crossroads:

ANOTHER TRANSPORT is historic Newburg Church, which seats about 100 guests and is the scene of three weddings per week.

- When the Blue House is fully restored, it will be available for small Meadow Brooke for 91 years. wedding receptions, Lynch said.

Restored earlier this year was the Newburg School at Greenmead. A community committee created a school program for grades four and five. School groups can come in to tour the one-room schoolhouse circa 1861.

In addition to the 14 buildings moved to Greenmead is the 11-building farm complex, which includes two barns, a carriage house, and two small houses plus the main house."

The main farmhouse, known as Simmons/Hill House, is now a muse-

"There are quite a few dresses on display now," Lynch said. "We had bridal gowns for June and July. Now there's afternoon bridge fashions."

GREENMEAD BOOSTERS are sticklers for authenticity

The original farm was called Meadow Brooke, 160 acres bought in 1824 by Joshua Simmons of New York for $225.

Two years later, the 25-year-old newlywed built a log cabin on the site, then in 1841 commissioned a

Greek Revival-style farmhouse. Simmons family members occupied

"I THINK there was at least one other owner before the Hills (Sherwin and Jean) bought the property in 1920," Lynch sald.

"Mrs. Hill came from a wealthy family in Baltimore. Her husband was a Detroit attorney and one of the founders of Meadow Brook Country Club. The farm was already in disrepair when they bought it and restored it.

"The Hills entertained a great deal. They were friendly with the Dodges. Mrs. Hill had a greenhouse and she always had fresh flowers."

A stipulation in Mrs. Hill's will gave the city of Livonia first offer to buy the property.

"We fight very strongly to keep these buildings in their time period," Lynch said.

GREENMEAD IS open for tours 1-4 p.m. Sundays. Admission is $1 for seniors and $2 for adults. Children

The village is open at other times for tours by appointment only. Call are admitted free.

Short story collection falls short

"The Matter is Life" by J. California Cooper (227 pp., Doubleday, $18).

This collection of short stories by J. California Cooper is surprising. Unfortunately, the surprises are not all that pleasant.

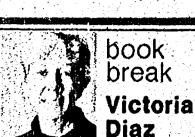

By the time you have read Cooper's book dedication (to Pharoah Akhenaten, Dian Fossey and her gorillas, India's untouchables and others), her acknowledgements, the author's note at the beginning of the book and the sensitive, absolutely enchanting first story, "The Big Day" (about a sassy nonagenarian attending the funeral of a good friend), you're definitely looking forward to what's coming next.

What comes next, though, is disappointing. With the exception of a lus-clously horrific tale, "Evergreen Grass," in which an ordinary farmer's livestock dies in a most extraordinary way, none of the remaining half-dozen stories really lives up to expectations. Cooper, author of the highly popular novel, "Family," plus three more short-story collections (including the 1989 American Book Award winner, "Homemade Love") and 17 plays, was in town recently to read from her work and autograph copies of

IN "THE Matter of Life," she has put together eight tales centering around some of life's meanest miseries. Murder, drugs, drinking, greed, physical abuse, emotional abuse, selfishness, cheating, thievery, sloth, ignorance, poverty, loneliness, fear several points in the collection. Most and utter despair - you name it, you'll probably find it playing an integral part in one of these stories. In "The Doras," a long, unwieldy story about a poverty stricken, hardworking but always loving black woman and her four daughters, mental retardation, physical deformity and other birth defects figure in, too.

In another story ("No Lie"), a promiscuous egotist faces old age alone, wishing he had more time to put to use his acquired "wisdom." ("I'd get me a young girl and have plenty bables. I'd stay around long enough to let them know I was their daddy fore

In another ("Friends, Anyone?"), a materialistic psychologist can't understand why she has no one ("I am smart. I have a degree and I am gorgeous.") An abusive husband gets his due in "I Told Him!" Male characters don't come off too well in these stories, by the way. Sometimes nefarious, sometimes merely shiftless, they're rarely admirable.

In a collection such as this, the effect of each individual story is eventually weakened by this plethora of misery, intense and almost unrelieved as it is. And, after awhile, not only does the adversity become tiresome, it starts to feel ludicrous, too.

IN ADDITION to this monotonous litany of pain, confusion reigns at of the tales are narrated by a lively, folksy "voice" usually identified as that of a close friend or neighbor observing the events. The trouble is, this ordinary viewpoint character. inexplicably can see into other people's minds, discern their innermost feelings and knows what is said in private conversations, whether she happens to be present or not.

Why Cooper has chosen to disregard this inconsistency in her viewpoint characters is an odd little mystery. How the first person narrator in "Friends, Anyone?" is able to recall in detail an event that occurred during her infancy is also an odd mystery. Another puzzler: why the couple called the Conets throughout "Evergreen Grass" is suddenly referred to as the Millers at the end of

A final thought: One imagines Cooper sitting down to her desk one morning and perhaps saying to herself, "Maybe I should write a story to illustrate the evils of self-absorption and drugs, and sometime later, out comes "Vanity", a story in this collection about a beautiful, narcissistic woman who does indeed illustrate the evils of self-absorption and drugs. It succeeds on the level of a parable, I suppose - which is what most of the stories here are.

Like most parables, it's instructive and predictable. And as in most parables, the characters exist in the story ultimately to illustrate a point, and need not be much more dimensional or believable than paper dolls.

It's just that after meeting the memorable, subtly rendered protagonist in "The Big Day," a story that fairly sparkles with all kinds of freshness and wit. I was looking forward to something other than a collection of parables. Maybe next time.

Fast films help build in more shooting options

Fast film enabled Monte Nagler to use a small aperture with increased depth-of-field for this shot taken on Manitoulin Island in Onterio.

Party-goers, drive-in theaters and vampires all come alive as darkness approaches. After dark is one of the times that the new super fast films come alive, too.

Never before have so many highspeed emulsions been available. They've practically introduced a new dimension to photography. You can now shoot in dimmer light than ever before, use faster shutter speeds and gain lucreased depth-offield.

Fast films moan natural, indoor portraits even under candlelight, illuminated night scenes and good shots at the concert and circus where flash just won't do.

Fast films mean faster shutter speeds to enable you to capture the action in limited light. East films also allow you to photograph at smaller apertures to gain depth-of-

All of these advantages are available in color negative films such as Kodak Gold 1600, Fuji Super 1600, Konlea 3200 and Ektar 1000, For slide users, there's Ektachrome 800/ 1600, and black and white lovers can use Fuji Neopan 1600 and the remarkable Kodak T-Max 3200.

Say, for example, that as a100 film gives you a meter reading in a low light situation of F-4 at 1/8 second — too slow to hand hold.

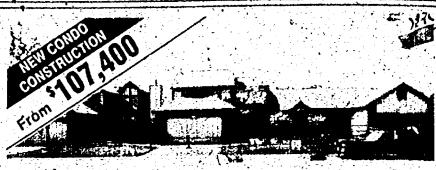

Changing to a 1600 speed film will enable you to gain 4 F-stops (100 to 200 is one, 200 to 400 is two, 400 to 800 is three, and 800 to 1600 is four) and you can now hand hold easily at 1/125 second at the same aperture.

Conversely, remaining at the 1/8 second shutter speed with 1600 speed film will allow you to close the aperture down to F-16 for a tremendous: increase in depth-of-field.

BE SURE not to use fast films for all your photo taking. When the light is bright, stick to slower emulsion: films. Your pictures will be less: grainy and will have more saturated colors.

But, as you can see, faster films certainly have their place. So speed; on down to your film supplier for a few rolls . . just don't drive too

Realtors push for seller disclosure regulation

By Doug Funke staff writer

The Michigan Association of Realtors wants a state law or bureaucratically mandated regulation that would require sellers to disclose in writing all known defects of a house prior to a sale.

And the association wants that kind of measure to apply to all residential sales - those by owners as well as professional agents.

"It puts everything up front," said Carol Frick, president of the Birmingham-Bloomfield Board of Real-

"THE BENEFITS to the buyer are obvious," she said. "To the seller, they're less obvious. It allows them to put everything on the table. There's no question of coverup or trying to hide something."

"It's an effort to eliminate confusion," sald Stephen E. Pew, legislative chairman for the Michigan Association of Realtors and chairman of the board at Max Broock Inc. "I think the most important element for a buyer when looking at a piece of property is to know what's wrong with the property."

The exact content of the disclosure form remains to be worked out, sald Al Rietberg, president of the state association and the owner of a real estate firm in Grand Rapids.

number of lawsuits relative to property condition, most were a lack of communication of surprises that came up after the fact," Rietberg

But not everyone thinks more legislation is the answer.

The argument goes that sellers and their agents must now respond to specific questions about known defects during the negotiation process. Realtors say they're ethically bound to disclose all known defects. Buyers have recourse to huy with an inspection contingency.

SO, THE logic goes, why do we need a law to compet what already. can be accomplished with a little common sense?.

Because, supporters respond, the more information that can be brought to bear in a fransaction, the better the opportunity for a prob-"IF YOU look and review the lem-free outcome. And common sense isn't always so common:

Realtors concede that a disclosure requirement, would help get them out of the middle when undisclosed defects materialize after a sale.

"IT WOULD reduce liability (for us) and hopefully for the seller as well," said Allen C. King, president of the Western Wayne Oakland Assoclation of Realtors.

California and Maine are the only states that now require sellers to disclose known defects in writing.

"The basic thrust of it is the person most likely to know about past problems is the seller who has lived in the property," said Steven Sokol, associate general counsel for the California Association of Realtors.

'IT DOESN'T mean a seller has an obligation to find out things be doesn't know but impart to a buyer knowledge of material facts:"

A disclosure statement is only part of the negotiation process. which should include a right to inspection and warranty coverage, Sokol said. "There are a lot of things that have to come together."

Sokol believes that lawsuits have declined in California since the law went into effect, although he had no specific numbers.

in the nation's urban centers." ---

Development requires financing, patience

I have some property that would be good for developing a site condominium. But I am not experienced and don't know the first thing about developing. How do I go about it?

It sounds as though you are talking about d'site condominium where houses or cabins could be built in the vicinity. If the land is beautiful and rolling, you may have the perfect setting for a residential complex. You should contact an architect, lawyer and site planner to help you formulate your ideas. You will obviously also have to get the appropriate zoning approval, financial commitments and legal documentation together. It is a long, taxing and sometimes frustrating experience. But, if successful, it can be beneficial economically as well as a worthwhile undertaking.

Can you tell me whether ownership alone creates liability as it relates to an adjacent property owner concerning a condition or defect of the land or activity conducted on the land that causes damage to the adjacent landowner by a landlord who has leased the premises to a tenant in possession?

I believe your scenario is under the legal principle of premises liability that indicates that the right to recover for a condition or defect of land or for an activityy conducted on the land requires that the defendant have legal possession and control of the premises. The defendant's duty ends at the boundary of his premises unless he is undermining adjacent

What's in a name? Plenty, builders say

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

The diversity of residential development names is amazing.

This Pointes, That Something, Animal Run, Wood Acres, Blank Ridge, Such and Such Estates, So and So Farms, Whatever Lakes, Someplace Pines, There Meadows, Here Rock, and Three Ridge Pine Wood Lake Meadows Estates - names aren't selected by accident.

Ivanhoe Bullding Co. in West Bloomfield, said development names can be critical to a project's success.

Ivanhoe's most recent developments include Mission Springs, Pointe on Pleasant Lake, and Woodland Ridge — the last in association with Biltmore Properties - all in West Bloomfield.

"Names give a community a sense of identity," Shaplro said. "A big part of what the developer does is to set the tone for a community."

Setting the tone for a community includes a name, logos, entrance signs, architectural and landscape styles - all of which creates a distinct feeling and attracts a certain type of person, Shapiro said.

But it all begins with a name, he

Shapiro said the process of naming the development begins the moment he acquires a parcel of land.

Generally, he said he starts by identifying geographical features and then proceeds by taking into ac-count the community and the market he is targeting for the development.

OTHER DEVELOPERS might start with different criteria. But Shapiro said he begins with a geographic theme because he takes great pride in the lengths Ivanhoe goes to retain the natural elements of development sites.

After he determines the dominant geographic elements, Shapiro said he begins the long process of brainstorming, late evening doodling and soul searching.

"I may pick 50 names before settling on four or five that I really like, Gary Shapiro, president of the and then I play with these for a vanhoe Building Co. in West Bloom- while," he said. "There's no magic to It, but there's got to be some thought

After settling on the best options, Shapiro said he reviews his favorites for weeks (sometimes months) until finally one stands above the rest.

A good name, he said, shouldn't be trendy, because it has to stand the test of time.

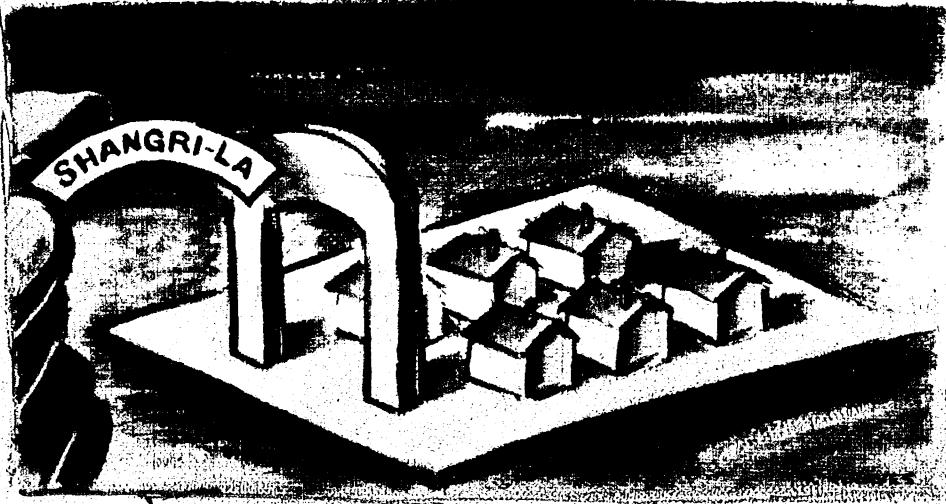

"When I finally pick the name, I with it."

Once named, a development retains that name as long as it exists, Shapiro said. "People who live there live with it from the beginning to the end - they want something that makes them feel comfortable."

BERNARD GLIEBERMAN, pres-West Bloomfield, said naming a development harkens back to the age old idea of the community or village; he continued.

It makes a development distinctive. It turns a somewhere into a destination, he said.

Glieberman said he likes to choose a name after researching a site or community's history. In the case of Millpointe, Glieberman chose that name for his Westland development of single-family homes because the project was developed near Nankin

Developing Millpointe around the really like it and feel comfortable. Nankin Mills theme was actually one of his easier choices because it was such an obvious selection, he said. "That was the one obvious thing about that area and its history - everyone knows about the mill."

After being built sometime between 1835 and 1842, the first Nankin Mill served as the focal point of what was then Nankin Township, opident of Crosswinds Community in erating as a grist mill to grind grain of nearby farms.

> The mill's significance to the surrounding area continued into this century. The existing mill building was constructed during the 1860s and was purchased by Henry Ford in 1918 for use as a small auto parts manufacturing facility.

Henry Ford, in response to the urbanization of the automotive industry, sought to mix elements of the city and countryside by developing Nankin Mill and similar buildings into small factories.

Nankin Mill and the area's history figure prominently in the development's marketing, Glieberman continued. The sales office displays old photographs and histories about the

"I don't think you have to be a history buff to appreciate it."

Tying a development into a local history gives it a sense of belonging, he said. "It makes people feel there's a reason for that community being Developments aren't always named after historical figures and events, Glieberman said. Naming developments after previous owners of the property — a farmer whose family owned the land for generations is also quite common.

DEVELOPMENTS NEED not be named after geographic features or historical anecdotes. Some developments are named after significant nearby objects.

Mark Erickson, legal counsel and spokesman for Frankel Associates in Troy, said Somerset North — the developers new residential project was very deliberately named after the Somerset Mall.

Now called the Somerset Collection, Frankel Associates developed the mall in Troy more than two decades ago. Sometimes, names take on a life of there own, he said.

"Somerset has come to mean a certain location," he said. The Somerset name has come to represent more than just the mall, but a part of Troy (and even Royal Oak).

Erikson said it isn't uncommon for people to give directions to the area by saying it's "by Somerset."

Developers and businesses have appropriated the name over the years for use on office buildings, medical supply companies, cab companies, cleaners construction, health, hotels, limousine companies and even apartments.

Frankel Associates couldn't prevent others from using the word "Somerset," Erickson said, but fortunately that extensive use hasn't diminished the image.

It's not surprising, then, that Frankel Associates — the company that started it all - would use the name for it's own luxury, singlefamily home development Somerset

"Somerset has come to mean value and quality," Erickson said.

Marketing for the development relies heavily on the Somerset name and the development's proximity to the Somerset Collection, he said.

Somerset, Erickson admits, does carry a connotation of upscale, but even more important is that the words have become synonymous with value and quality.

Demand still lagging area office availability

The next 12 to 18 months may be the optimal time for corporate tenants to lease office space longterm before rates return to 1980s

That advice comes from Cushman & Wakefield, the commercial real estate development firm with offices In Southfield, which has been collecting and disseminating office and industrial real estate data quarterly for 24 years.

"The next year to 18 months still provide a window of opportunity for tenants, Significant concessions can be negotiated in contracts," said Kelth Sant, branch manager. Cushman & Wakefield has 50 offices: across the country and is headquartered in New York.

ALTHOUGH AT a slow pace, local real estate market indicators continue to improve. Here's a closer look at suburban activity:

• Auburn Hills/Rochester Hills - The market still reflects the highest vacancy rate of the suburban office markets at 26.9 percent, up slightly from 1990's second quarter rate of 26.8 percent.

One reason for the high vacancy rate is high quality office space available at attractive rates in adjacent Troy. With only one fully occupled new construction completion in sight, the vacancy rate will be marginally affected and will continue to experience high vacancies throughout 1991.

Construction of the 346,000square-foot headquarters for Volkswagen of North America, Inc., will be completed in September. Volkswagen will occupy the entire build-

The average rental rate continues to decline from $17.39 per square foot this year.

• Birmingham/Bloomfield Hills - The vacancy rate remained relatively stable from mid-1990 to this quarter. But vacancles increased slightly in the third and fourth quarters of 1990.

Most of last year's negative absorption was due to lack of pre-leasing in the Bloomfield Centre South office building, a Jonna Companies property. The building is now more than 95 percent leased.

The average rental rate stands at $18.78 per square foot, down from . last year's rate of $19.62.

• Farmington/Farmington Hills This market has been erratic, evidenced by fluctuating vacancy rates. Leasing activity has increased downtown core and suburban office slightly over last year. Most of the transactions were small leases, except Market Opinion Research, which took 47,000 square feet this quarter in Brookfield Office Park

Farmington/Farmington Hills has Detroit's activity declined drastical- the most planned square footage in ly from 245,500 square feet in the the Detroit suburban office markets, though with the current market many of these projects will be shelved until economic conditions improve. The average rental rate has been stable, moving from $16.49 a square foot last year to $16.43 this quarter.

> Livonia/Novi - Of all the suburban office markets, Livonia/Novl has witnessed the most significant decline in vacancy from last year's rate of 23.3 percent to this quarter's rate of 17.5 percent.

> Some major leases consummated this year that helped reduce the vacancy rate were Manufacturers National Bank, which leased more than 25,000 square feet in Crystal Glen Office Centre; US Sprint, which leased 18,900 square feet in the Seven Mile Crossing II and McDonnel Douglas with more than 13,000 square feet in Seven Mile Crossing

Livonia/Novi follows closely behind Southfield and Troy in terms of net absorption. Victor Corporate Park V, a 114,281-square-foot office complex was completed with no prifoot last year to $16.45 per square or leasing. It caused a short term in vacancy and rent rates. The average rental rate has declined from last year's second quarter rate of $16.98 per square foot to this quarter's rate of $16.87.

• Southfield - Southfield continues to be the most dominant suburban office market in the metro area. Southfield totalled 663,407 square feet of leasing activity by mid year 1991, comparable to mid-year 1990's figure of 628,510 square feet.

While leasing activity remained strong, net absorption increased significantly from 5,604 square feet mid-1990 to 263,659 square feet this year. Southfield's vacancy rate currently stands at 23.1 percent, a slight increase over last year's second quarter rate of 22.8 percent. The yacancy rate should continue to hold in the 23 percent to 25 percent range. The average rental rate stands at $15.82 per square foot, a decline of .94 over last year's second quarter

• Troy - The Troy office market is one of the most dominant in the suburbs, second only to Southfield. Net absorption has increased by 400 percent from last year's mid-year total. Some major leasing transactions in 1991 were: Kidder Peabodywith 25,000 square feet in the Standard Federal Financial Center, General Dynamics in the Robbins Executive Park with more than 25,000 square feet; and Lawyers Title in the Wilshire Plaza West taking over-30,000 square feet.

While absorption increased, leasing activity remained constant. Vacancy shows a noticeable decline from last year's second quarter rate of 19.8 percent to this quarter's rate of 18.1 percent.

• West Bloomfield - The smallest office market in metro Detroit also witnessed the least amount of activity in leasing. Leasing activity totalled 10,968 square feet by mid year 1991 compared to last year's figure of 16,691 square feet, a marginal decline. With no new construction completions in sight, this market should continue to witness repeatedly low levels of absorption; and leasing activity. The average rental rate stands at $15.77 persquare foot, a decline of .68 from a. year ago.
