Corrects fire code violations

By Darrell Clem staff writer

One day after Westland fire officials shut down the Van Dresser Corp. Friday, citing fire code violations, the company reopened Tuesday after correcting most of the problems.

Fire officials ordered the plant closed at 12:01 a.m. Aug. 30, but company and fire officials worked "extensively" over the weekend to address-the code violations, said police Capt. Patrick Harder.

Violations at the automotive trim parts plant on Newburgh north of Palmer included improper emergency alarms and the mishandling of chemicals, among other problems, Harder sald.

There were quite a number of fire code violations - some more serious than others," he said.

However, the most serious problems had been addressed by Saturday evening, at which time fire officials gave van Dresser the go-ahead to resume operations.

In a prepared statement about the plant's temporary closing, fire marshal Robert Perry said last week that "this action was taken in an effort to protect the citizens of Westland, the employees in the workplace and the firefighters who would be required to mitigate any emergency at the work site.'

THE PLANT manager wasn't available for comment Tuesday morning, according to a woman who answered the telephone, and a separate call to the company's Troybased headquarters had not been returned Tuesday morning.

The plant employs between 400 and 500 workers, according to the most recent information at city hall, said Scott Veldhuis, economic development director.

The plant's temporary closing came after fire officials had conducted an ongoing inspection, Hard-

"We felt they were dragging their feet a little bit," he added.

Group pickets over substitute school opening

By Marie Chestney staff writer

On their first day back to school Tuesday, Cooper-Whittier students passed police cars, pickets, a bevy of school officials and TV cameras to get into their new school.

All the commotion outside Whittier, a former junior high school on Ann Arbor Trail east of Middlebelt, was highly unusual for a student's first day of school.

But life itself for residents in the Cooper-Whittler area of Westland has been chaotic ever since the Michigan Department of Natural Resources announced in mid-April that Cooper Elementary had been built on top of a toxic landfill.

AFTER THE uproar over the landfill that swept through the Westland neighborhood this summer, Tuesday's return to school appeared almost peaceful, despite the police presence, the picketers and one shouting match between two former Cooper parents.

'We didn't know what to expect considering the summer; we had some concerns. But it looks good," Livonia school district Superintendent Joseph Marinelli said as he stood on the sidewalk outside Whittier welcoming students and their parents to Whittier.

Westland police were on hand because district officials had received anonymous phone calls, Whittier principal Linda Gantos said. She declined to comment on the nature of the calls.

'Our number one concern is the kids," Gantos said. "We'll do what's necessary to make this a safe, secure environment."

AS THE youngsters arrived either by bus or hand-in-hand with their parents, picketers walked back and forth across the street on the Cooper sidewalk.

One mother, driving her child to Whittier, said she was outraged when she saw the picketers near the school.

"I was fuming," Cindy Nichols said. "I yelled out the window at them because they had promised not to picket."

Westland police broke up the shouting match.

WHILE SOME of the dozen or so picketers were former Cooper parents, others were from outside the area or represented outstate environmental groups.

Cooper parents who objected to sending their children to Whittier had formed CHECK, a grass-roots environmental group, and had picketed Whittier and other school buildings in August.

15% turnout expected for council primary

By Darrell Clem - staff writer

Westland city clerk Diane Fritz predicted Tuesday that as much as 15 percent of Westland's registered voters will cast ballots in the Sept. 10 city council primary.

Though the turnout for a council primary usually approaches only 10 percent to 12 percent, Fritz is hoping that an increase in registered voters since the last primary will translate into more voters at the polls.

The number of registered voters has increased from 47,000 to 49,000 since the last primary, which was held in September 1989, Fritz said.

Ten candidates are competing to become eight city council finalists in the primary. After the primary, the nominees then compete for four seats up Nov. 5 on the seven-member council.

The candidates include incumbents Thomas Brown, Thomas Artley and Charles Pickering, former council member William Ziemba, and council hopefuls Glenn Anderson, Dorothy Smith, Don Mead, Sharon Scott, David Cox and Bhagwan Dashairya.

A fourth incumbent, Ben DeHart, decided not to seek re-election for health reasons.

MANY OF the candidates have voiced similar views on issues, such as agreeing unanimously during interviews with the Observer that the Cooper school controversy has pointed out the need for a wider study of former landfills. The Cooper issue erupted after hazardous chemicals were found in soil samples taken near the school.

today (see Page 1) examining issues in the council race.)

Most candidates favor tax breaks

By Darrell Clem staff writer

This is the third in a series of stories about issues in the Westland City Council primary.

In efforts to boost the economy, seven out of 10. candidates competing in the Westland City Council primary favor tax breaks to lure new businesses and industries here.

Candidates favoring tax abatements say the program works because it brings in new businesses and industries and adds to the city's tax base. Moreover, they say, it creates new jobs.

Critics, however, view the program as unfair because it gives tax breaks of up to 50 percent to developers and companies, while providing no residential tax breaks.

The 10 candidates competing for eight slots in the Sept. 10 primary were asked about tax abatements during a group interview with the Observer. The eight winners will compete for four coun-'cil' seats at stake in the Nov. 5 general election.

Those favoring tax abatements were incumbents Thomas Brown, Thomas Artley and Charles Pickering, and council hopefuls Glenn Anderson, Don Mead, Sharon Scott and David Cox. Those opposing the plan included former council member and Bhagwan Dashairya. "I have been against that for years," Smith said. "Developers and businesses benefit, but the taxpayers don't. Why should they get a 50-percent tax break when the taxpayers don't?'

Smith, a part-time college instructor, added that businesses and industries depend on the same city services, such as the fire and police departments, as residents do, and that they should pay their fair share of taxes.

Dashairya, a 52-year-old mechanical engineer, sald tax abatements may have been necessary in the past, "but nowadays that is no longer valid." He said he is generally opposed to the tax breaks, though his criticism wasn't as strong as that from some candidates.

"Even if we have to give (tax breaks), we have to make sure we're getting our money's worth in . return," he said.

ZIEMBA, A 47-year-old Ford energy; management engineer, said he has opposed tax abatements all along, including when he served on the city council from 1986 to 1990. He said it's unfair for businesses and industries to receive tax breaks, yet residents get none.

"We also should look at residential tax abate-ments," Ziemba said. "We do have some upscale subdivisions in Westland."

Among those favoring tax breaks, council president Brown, a 74-year-old former mayor and state legislator, said he "definitely" believes the program has shown success. "You can just look around the town. It had no industry until that (tax abatements) came through," Brown said. "It's an advantage to a bedroom community such as Westland to improve the tax base.'' Incumbent Artley, a 53-year-old Ford computer systems project leader, agreed.

"I think the tax abatements have helped the economic growth in our community," Artley said. "It has given us a little stronger tax base. It also has supplied a lot of jobs, and it has brought some new types of industries to the community,

Anderson, a 37-year-old Ford Motor Co. employee and licensed real estate agent, said he favors the tax breaks, though he stressed that they must be closely monitored so that "they're in proportion to what the community will get hack."

Anderson said the tax breaks appear to be necessary to make Westland competitive with other communities.

Husband survives, wife dies in double-suicide try

By Darrell Clem staff writer

In what police described as an attempted double suicide, an elderly Westland woman is dead and her husband remained in critical condition Tuesday after they received numerous razor and knife cuts.

The couple; in their 80s and married for more than 50 years, apparently made a suicide pact because they wanted to die together instead of waiting for one to dle and leave the other behind, sald police Lt. Al George.

"I think they were both III, and they were afraid," George said.

The couple, of Asian descent, left a suicide note during the Sunday morning incident, but it was written in Chinese and its contents were not immediately known, George said Tuesday.

Police declined to identify the couple, in part because authorities were awaiting a Wayne County medical examiner's report for more complete details of the woman's death. Police also were trying to reach some of the couple's children, who were out of the country.

The couple received multiple knife and razor cuts to several parts of their bodies, including the wrists, neck, stomach and ankles. George said.

POLICE WERE notified about the incident by one of the couple's sons, who apparently had received a telephone call from his father,

When police arrived at the couple's Woodgreen Street apartment, the wife was found to be dead on the scene. The husband remained alive and hospitalized in serious condition Tuesday afternoon in the intensive care unit at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne. Doctors have indicated the man will sur- ing to a police department statement.

The incident remained under investigation, and Westland police weren't sure whether the woman inflicted her own wounds or was helped by her husband, George said.

The couple's exact ages were not immediately known, but police said both were in their 80s. They were thought to be natives of Taiwan, George said.

"Initial investigation by the police revealed the couple had been married for more than 50 years, had made a suicide pact and had attempted to carry out the agreement," accord-

PICKERING, A 48-year-old real estate broker and former mayor, sald he has seen "a real benefit to the city" from the state's tax abatement program, which he said has been modified over the years "so that we're not just giving away the store to the developers."

However, Pickering said the program should be slowly phased out as much as pos-

Cox, a 33-year-old commercial insurance. specialist, said tax abatements are "one of the reasons why we've achieved success" in luring new businesses and Industries.

"It's necessary to maintain a compatibility with other communities to ensure that the city of Westland offers, the same type of favorable economic climate," Cox said. Mead, a 36-year-old systems administrator for a tool company, also said he favors tax abatements within reason, but he added that he would like for the city to do more extensive follow-up work with businesses and industries to see just how much the city has gained from the program.

Scott, a 52-year-old former Wayne-Westland school board member, agreed that the program has provided an economic boost to the city, though she also said the tax breaks should be closely monitored.

Moreover, Scott noted that some companies participate in the program for a 12year period, which she said may be too long.

Whittier school picketed

Harold Stokes, a Sierra Club activist from Redford Township, said he was picketing to protest irresponsible actions taken by the landfill operators years ago that have come. back to haunt today's children.

"We have to take responsibility for our actions or our children will be paying the penalty for our irresponsibility," Stokes said.

A man wearing a death mask said he represented an environmental group from Frankenmuth.

Carol Rames said she drove in from northern Oakland County Tuesday morning to support CHECK parents who "don't want their kids exposed to toxic chemicals."

CHECK PARENTS oppose sending students to Whittier because they fear airborne toxins will be carried across Ann Arbor Trall to Whittier once the cleanup starts.

Soil tests taken at Cooper showed. elevated levels of PCBs, lead, cadmlum, mercury, arsenic and DDT.

The health and safety of all area residents, including Whittler students, will be ensured during the cleanup, Marinelli has said.

Classes started Tuesday with 108 former Cooper students missing. Since April, those parents have asked that their children be sent to another school in Livonia besides Whittier.

GROUP MEMBERS picketed Tuesday to show their longtime commitment to keep Cooper students out of Whittler and to make sure Cooper never reopens, CHECK spokeswoman Mary Gesinski said.

We're in this for the long haul; we're here to show them that we're not going away."

However, many former Cooper parents criticize actions taken by CHECK, and they especially criticize them for picketing on the opening day of school.

"What will the older kids think who read the sign, Whittier is death'?" Joanne Boven asked.

Many youngsters looked petrified Tuesday when they saw police cars and officers milling about, Nichols

"You should have seen my kid's facial expression when they saw the police," she said. Now that Whittier has opened,

Laura McLean said CHECK members should end their protest. "I feel that with school open, and the kids going here, they should drop it," she said.

Cop handles most hated crime

By Barbara Wilson special writer

For 23 years Westland police detective Laura Moore has confronted the most despised type of crimis nal, but still she keeps a positive outlook and works to educate the community about crimes against children.

During her career in the police department; Moore has watched her caseload triple. She considers the increase a triumph of sorts as more people become aware of the physical, sexual and mental abuse of children.

Moore, a mother and grandmother, has headed the department's sex crimes/child abuse and neglect division since she joined the force.

"When I first joined the force this was the area women went to work in," Moore said. "I always enjoyed working with kids."

Westland once ranked second only to Detroit in the numbers of this type of cases. That used to alarm Moore, but now she considers that the Westland police may just do a better job of investigating these crimes. Moore claims a 98percent rate of conviction.

She attributes her success rate to increased public awareness through programs like the Bubby-Ionian Encounter, the McGruff program, as well as media attention.

and Newburgh.

Moore has handled many cases involving horrible treatment of children and she has watched through the years as that violance is passed along to the second and third generations of a family.

"You can't help but take it home with you when you leave the office. I would be pretty cold-hearted if I just closed the door on the people," she said. "If I didn't feel I was doing something to help them then I probably couldn't live with myself."

As a parent, Moore understands how aggravating children can be. She offers full support to groups and classes that offer assistance in teaching parents to cope.

These classes and groups, however, will do nothing to curb the cycle of sexual abuse that children experience in their homes and elsewhere.

Moore warns parents and teachers to watch for drastic changes in personality and behavior, as well as physical signs, and question a child who you may suspect as being abused.

"Children don't lie about sexual abuse. They have very little knowledge about aspects of sex unless they watch a lot of television or have witnessed it firsthand," Moore said. "They should be believed when they speak out."

Moore also warns parents to be very cautious of people who have no children or grandchildren and yet become involved in coaching or other youth activities.

"Of course, there are people out there who genuinely want to help out with these activities, but be aware," she added.

WHILE MOORE has been quite successful in her prosecution of child abusers and molesters, she is quick to admit that frustrations are met along the way.

These frustrations include neighbors and relatives who won't get involved, a consistent turnover in social workers and an occasional judge who does not choose to issue severe punishment.

"I think there should mandatory sentencing guidlines used on a more regular basis,"she said. "Some judges are tough and others are not."

Moore also strongly disagrees with a social services system that believes the children should be returned to their homes even after their parent has been found guilty of abuse.

"Some people should not be parents and these children should not be put back in those homes," she sald.

How long can Moore, or any other police officer, endure handling these cases every day? After 23 years, Moore said she still feels good about her work but will consider retiring in the next couple уеагв.

"You can only do this, see this, for so long, and then it is time for someone else to do the job.".

If the recall committee succeeds in getting the petitions approved, it must then collect signatures from 4,420 school district voters before the recall can be placed on a special election ballot.

Chorbagian, Posey and Spisak have defended their actions as board members, saying they voted their conscience.

Food service employees Jane Talley, Sabina Macuga, Sandy Woodhouse and Carol Shemo returned to work last week to get ready for the thousands of meals to be prepared daily for students when school opens Tuesday.

Soup's on - in school kitchen

With Westland students in the Livonia school district to start classes this week, some school employees have been slaving over hot stoves to make sure that they eat nutritious meals at lunch time.

The workers are in a former elementary school that serves as the food center for the two districts.

Workers at the center, housed in the former Wilson School, on West Chicago near Harrison, reported to work last Monday for the upcoming school year.

We got the first blast of everyone working today," said Mike Howard, food services supervisor.

THAT DAY the 120 workers at the food center were primarily involved in pre-packaging and freezing products, such as hamburgers and spaghetti, to send to schools in refrigerated trucks.

The Wilson operation provides food for all 30 schools in the Livonia district, which serves the northern section of Westland, and Garden City schools.

Hot lunches will be available in all the schools. The menu, featuring hamburgers, hot dogs, spaghetti, macaroni and cheese, pizza and chili, doesn't change much, Howard

"We follow guidelines under the U.S. Department of Agriculture." The staff puts out 6,000 to 8,000 meals a day, and those figures rarely fluctuate.

"THE MOST popular choices are nizza and chicken nuggets. We discontinue things that aren't popular with the kids!" Howard said.

The popularity of other entrees is subject to cycles. Meatloaf and macaroni and cheese, once shunned by young palates, are in vogue

And Howard said there are more requests for poultry and fish, probably reflective of the changing dietary patterns in the home.

Fresh salads are available every day at the middle schools and high schools, and every day except Monday in the elementary schools.

Middle and high school kids favor minestrone and chicken noodle soups best, according to Howard.

ELEMENTARY STUDENTS will get a menu the first day of school of each month.

Junior and senior high school students can find a menu posted in ... their school, with daily specials said.

Woman juggles job, activities

By Barbara Wilson special writer

When people think of Abington Manor in Westland, they think of Barbara Barr. She likes it that way. Abington Manor is a residential congregate care facility on Joy west of Newburgh for nearly 100 elderly

Barr is a 43-year-old businesswoman and community activist who devotes her time to Abington Manor, family, and community.

A Canton Township resident, Barr found herself in the business of caring for the elderly by accident. It is an accident for which she is grateful.

"I used to work at doctors' offices and I was generally steered in this direction," Barr said.

Dr. Benjamin Stein, president of the board of directors pf Abington, said he saw Barr's managerial skills right away and her activism in the area of care for the elderly.

"She is just a great lady and we: have never had any complaints about her work," Stein said, "We don't know how she does it all, but' when she's out in the community and they see Barbara Barr, they think of Abington Manor." --

BARR, NOW vice president of the facility, is one of the first woman managers of a congregate care facility. She is also one of the first women to be inducted into the Westland Rotary Club, which was an all-male service group up until a few years

Her community involvement, however, doesn't end there. She is the president-elect of the Westland Chamber of Commerce; helped organize a visit of a Soviet hockey team to the United States and hosted six of the visitors in her home; is vice president of the Westland Business and Professional Women's Club; and served on a committee to implement the emergency 9-1-1 system in Westland and will host a French exchange student in her home for a year.

"I don't know why I'do it all," she said. "I like being busy and all of these organizations are such good public relations tools for Abbington Manor and the needs of the elderly."

As a single mother of three children, Barr finds herself fulfilled, and yet is always able to fit in one more thing to her busy life.

The success of Abington Manor is evident. Barr is a big part of that success as she was there in the begiphing, and was responsible for everything from the design of the building to the colors selected for the dining rooms and gathering areas.

"I WANTED it to be a comfortable place where residents can enjoy their privacy or gather with others, Barr said.

The complex is always filled and Barr is excited about plans to add 36 more apartments to Abington

"These people are still very vital and have a lot to offer. In this type of facility they are able to maintain control of their own lives," she add-

"They go to bed when they like, eat when they like, have their own furnishings around them and maintain control of their money. These vital people retain their dignity." Just as more options are now made available for senior citizens, Barr suggests that more options than ever are available to women.

"I have never really experienced inequalities in my work, but I have been very fortunate. I'm sure there are still problems out there, but I can't help but think that doors are opening.'

Recall supporters count signatures

By Pat Murphy staff writer

Mary DesHarnals and her husband of Birmingham say they collected amore than 500 signatures on petitions to recall Gov. John Engler over the weekend at the Michigan State

Dorothy Habicht of the city of Wayne says she collected about 300. mostly from people enjoying the Labor Day weekend at Belle Isle. "We're going to make it," asserted Habicht, a single parent who said she previously collected 2,000 signa-

These are two examples of why area residents working on the petition drive to oust Engler are confident the "big push" for signatures over the last two weeks has been to Sept. 3 and called for one "big successful and they have more than the 641,141 needed to put a recall on tures. the ballot.

But they won't know for sure until organizers in Lansing finish counting and announce the results, possibly sometime this week.

Robert Alexander, state coordinator of the recall, was unavailable Tuesday and Wednesday and did not return phone calls.

A recorded message, however, said: "We're counting signatures. If we have 800,000, we'll file. If not. we'll extend one week."

The original deadline was Aug. 20, when organizers claimed to have almost enough signatures for the recall. But they extended the deadline push" to guarantee 800,000 signa-

That 800,000 — more than 150,000 more than the minimum number needed — is a goal Alexander and others active in the recall imposed on themselves. The extras are needed, they say, to make up for any signatures that may be invalidated when the petitions are certified by the state board of canvasers.

The recall effort started in May as a reaction to across the board budget cuts that cut basic state services and trimmed welfare benefits.

People like Mary M. Johnston of Farmington Hills and Vic Taylor of Livonia say they are active in the recall because the budget cuts reduce important state functions — like protecting the environment - in addition to taking much-needed assistance from the disadvantaged, like the disabled and families with chil-

State Republicans on Wednesday, however, again declared the recall a failure and insisted most residents approve of Engler's budget-cutting

"This recall thing was never the mass movement the organizers made it out to be," said Bryan Flood, press secretary for the Michigan GOP. The majority of residents voted Gov. Engler into office because he said he'd cut needless spending. They like the fact that he's living up to his campaign promises."

Local care program is designed for elderly By Wayne Peal staff writer

For a local church, it was a longtime dream; for families of home bound seniors, it could be a godsend.

The Redford Baptist Church adult day care program has been operating since late July at the Redford YWCA

"This was something we've wanted to do for a long, long time," said the Rev. Bill Nelson.

The program is designed for frail elderly people. It is nonder nominational and open to Wayne and Oakland county residents. The program offers from one to 10 hours of respite care per weekday for seniors and their relatives.

"IT ALLOWS family members a few hours to do what they want, go shopping, get their hair done, whatever," Nelson said.

But the program also allows seniors the chance to socialize with others the same age.

"The socialization aspect is very important," said Lori Pitzen, recreation director and assistant site: manager. "There are a lot of activities, but we make sure they're adult activities. We don't want to insult their intelligence."

The program is just that. "It's not a drop-in center," Nelson said. "But a program designed to meet seniors' needs."

Five seniors are currently enrolled, though the program has space for 17.

Programs are offered 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., though additional donations are sought after 3 p.m.

"We make the point that it's by donation," site director Cindy Lockman said. "Our first goal is to. provide service."

In addition to support from the church, the program is also financed by The Senior Alliance, a western Wayne service agency.

Additional churches in the Livonia/Redford area are considering joining the program, Nelson said.

Downtowns seen as plus, but not by all

Survey examines key attitudes

Good downtowns may not raise residential property values, But shoddy downtowns can have a blighting effect on a community.

Some cities nourish their downjowns. Others consider downtown yaguely important but see no need to pamper them.

Those pictures emerge from a survey of editors, city managers and planners in two dozen communities.

DOWNTOWN'S IMPORTANCE

Local governments appear to have four different attitudes toward downtown business districts:

HELP, PROMOTION

Ideally, Birmingham (population 19,997) would like city promotion of its central business district, which provides 30 percent of the property tax base. But City Manager Thomas Markus said it can't be done with current tight budgets.

State Sen. Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham, is pushing a package of bills to allow local units to make levies on business for promotion.

In Plymouth (9,560), City Manager Steve Walters sald downtown is (1) a source of commerce, (2) an entertainment and cultural center and (3) a source of taxes. "Business sends your kids to school," he said.

Walters' record in Northville (6,226) and St. Ignace shows he believes in making downtown physically attractive with waterfront promenades, benches, flowers and trees.

Southfield (75,728) has no downtown, but its tax base is 66.7 percent commercial and office, and city-hall lets people know who's paying the bills. Nimrod Rosenthal, director of community relations, said the city:

• Produces a videotape which It plays on cable Ch. 8 7-8 p.m. at budget time and is available to any

• Puts 50 pages of exhibits in its budget book.

• Mails a newsletter to residents that includes news of business as well as municipal activity.

Northville has constant events downtown or near it. Some have a commercial side: the May flower show, "Summer Song" with musicians strolling closed streets, the weekly Farmers' Market in the race track parking lot, the Tivoli Fair aiding the historical society. Some are just civic events that generate visitors, the Victorian Festival walking tours, prades on both Memorial Day and the Fourth, live theater, the annual Bluegrass Festival, the Santa parade.

Northville's new city manager, Gary Word, said a healthy tax base is 50-50 or 60-40 residential to nonresidential. He said industrial development generally has a more posttive impact on the local economy than commercial.

Novi City Manager Ed Kriewall would calculate the importance of downtown (or a mall) by taking the property tax revenue and subtracting the revenue it would produce if developed for residential. Twelve Oaks alone increased city revenue by 15-20 percent.

FOCAL POINT

In smaller towns and incorporated townships, downtown is important more culturally and esthetically, andthere's little talk of municipal promotion.

Northville manager Word said his downtown is more than a commercial or civic center. Its "quaintness" makes it almost a tourist attraction, and the people spend money in Northville.'

South Lyon (5,857) City Manager Rodney Cook: "If you don't have a viable downtown, people don't take pride in (the city).

Brighton (4,300) City Manager Dana Foster, who started last month: "Survey residents who just moved to town or located here for business. I'm sure they'd tell you that the fact that Brighton has a lively and attractive downtown helped convince them to move here. It attracted me."

Sources in this category were fond of sneering, sometimes directly, at Novi with its Twelve Oaks Mall. Their tones of voice equate Novi (32,998) socially with Ecorse or Zug Island.

But some shopping centers — such as Twelve Oaks and Somerset generate more cultural activities, entertainment and exhibits than do downtowns.

Rochester (7,130) City Manager Ken Johnson: The economic impact of the CBD is just not an issue. This older city's breakdown: 50 percent residential, 40 percent commercial, 10 percent industrial — indicating things are going well without official attention.

Rochester has used a downtown development authority since the early 1980s, capturing a portion fo lowntown taxes for business development and downtown beautificaion.

Farmington DDA director Wendy Strip-Sittsamer said downtowns provide "a central meeting place".

Downtowns are not just collections of old buildings. They're gathering places for people."

Farmngton's downtown, she said, has seen a near-doubling of standard assessed valuation since the DDA began in 1986.

City Manager Frank Gerstenecker: "If values of a CBD remain constant or decline, the cost of operating schools would also have to decline, or property taxes would go Rochester Hills (61,766) was incorporated from Avon Township, surrounding the old city of Rochester. Since its 1984 incorporation, it has seen growth no only in industry, but also in strip malls and mom and pop variety stores. Hills Mayor Billie Ireland sees no direct relationship between the business district and residential district. The farther away the home is from a business, the less the home is affected by business.

Canton Township (57,040), south of Plymouth, has lots of chain firms on Ford Road. Supervisor Tom Yack rather than downtown. A thriving business section contributes to the image of community and its residential resale values, he said.

Beverly Hills (10,610) Village Manager George Majoros said local businesses are few and need little help from local government. Most residents shop on the Southfield Road strip. In 1987 the village orchestrated an improvement project on Southfield Road - storm sewers (closing open ditches) and paving the shoulders; a women's club donated $17,000 for plantings; a special assessment district charges businesses for maintenance.

Bloomfield Township (42,473) is 95 percent residential. Supervisor Fred Korzon sees the national and state economic climates as more import-. ant than local businesses. The township surrounds the cities of Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills.

Local governments appear to have four different attitudes toward downtown business districts:

 Downtowns need city help and promotion.

 Downtowns are important focal points for image, cultural activity and attractiveness to residents.

 Downtowns aren't very important.

• Downtown is a drag on community resources.

Application forms and full informtion may be obtained by writing Ford at 3719 Newberry, Wayne, Mich., 48184, or calling his district office in Wayne at 722-1411.

The 15th district includes Westland, Garden City, Canton Township and the southern portion of Livonia.

Nominations will be available for the class entering in June 1992 to the Military (West Point), Naval, Air Force and Merchant Marine Academies. Applicants must be at least 17, but not have reached 22 by July 1992. They must be U.S. citizens, unmarried and legal residents of the 15th district.

Once nominated, nominees must pass competitve examinations given by the academies. Those selected for admission will be notified early in 1992 and will report to the academy next June.

Dems pledge cooperation on redistricting

By Tim Richard staff writer

State Rep. Maxine Berman has offered Republicans the olive branch of cooperation on legislative redis-

"We'll end up with more compact districts. I really would like to put together a bipartisan plan," said Berman, the Southfield Democrat who chairs the 18-member House committee that will draw new legislative districts.

She and House Speaker Lew Dodak, D-Birch Run, called a news conference lat last month to allay GOPfears that majority Democrats would disregard the so-called "Apol guidelines" that call for compact districts breaking as few city, township and county lines as possible, with a population variance of no more than 16,4 percent between the largest and the smallest.

Berman denied Democrats had "flipped" on the issue of compactness. Dodak added, "I never sald we wouldn't accept Apol."

"THAT'S SOMETHING new," countered Rep. Willis Bullard, R-Highland, the GOP's point man on redistricting, in an interview. "They wouldn't agree to it (Apol guidelines) before. They avoided it. This is a step forward," Bullard said.

The two Democratic leaders added they also would use federal Voters Rights Act guidelines that prohibit "packing" of minority popula-tions in a district to dilute their strength.

"The rather sizeable Hispanic community in southwest Detroit was split in two by Apol," Berman said of the 1982 reapportlonment. "I don't think it was deliberate. But I'm telling you right now they won't stand for it again."

· Said the GOP's Bullard: "There's no dispute about that legally. We have to do it."

BERMAN SAID a bill would be ready in "about a month."

Reapportionment already has been held up over big-city complaints that the 1990 census missed many minorities - charges rejected by the U.S. Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher.

A former teacher serving her fifth House term, Berman gave up the chair of the House Elections Committee this year to chair the 18member legislative redistricting panel. Congressional reapportionment is chaired by Rep. Michael Griffin, D-Jackson, a pro-life leader who tangles bittely with Berman over the abortion issue,

In the state Senate, both congressional and legislative reapportionment will be done in a single committee headed by majority leader Dick Posthumus, R-Alto.

FROM-1964-to-1982-legislative districts were drawn up by a state Apportionment Commission of four Demograts and four Republicans. It' always deadlocked, leaving the state Supreme Court to choose between

The high court looked only for numerical equality between districts; leading Republicans to charge "gerrymandering."

But in 1982 the court threw out the Apportionment Commission and appointed retired state elections director Bernard Apol to draw up dis-

To this Democrats have added the racial guidelines of the federal law.

BERMAN'S PROPOSED outline of guidelines provides for a solution if there's a legislative deadlock:

"If both houses of the Legislature and the governor cannot agree to a complete legislative redistricting plan before Jan. 1, 1992, the Supreme Court shall ultimately select, from any plan approved by either legislative body, the plan that most closely complies with these guide-

Added Dodak: "We prefer that it not go to the courts. We want to work in a bipartisan way,"

"The message we get," said Republican Bullard, "is they believe congressional districting should go. to the courts, but they want bipar-tisan districting of the Legislature."

Reapportionment is generally expected to cost Detroit one of its five state Senate seats, which will probably go to Oakland and Macomb counties. In addition, western Oakland County is expected to gain a House

The census will cost Michigan two of its 18 U.S. representatives. Republicans say both losses should be Democratic seats. Democrats say one from each side of the aisle should go.

Arts advocates vow to monitor new council

Outgoing members of the Michigan Council for the Arts vowed to act as a "shadow cabinet" to watch the new council appointed by Gov. John Engler.

Leon S. Cohan, chairing the final meeting Wednesday of the MCA, said the old group's final action was to issue a "Michigan Manifesto for the Arts."...

By executive order, Engler last month abolished MCA and will replace it with a council on arts and cultural affairs. Engler also declared he wants to phase out all operating grants in three years. The new group will administer capital grants and help arts groups obtain private funding.

THE MCA'S "manifesto" applauded the new agency but added:

"We declare our intention to act in the tradition of a 'shadow cabinet.' or in this case a 'shadow council,' to monitor the actions of the new council, the administration, and the Legislature, with regard to public policy-concerning the arts and arts education."

A "shadow cabinet" is a device used in the British Parliament by the party out of power to critique the government.

"We hope and expect to support these policies," the manifesto said. But where members fall to "serve the public interest," former members will, as citizens, "propose constructive alternatives."

COHAN'S GROUP said it will be guided by these "general princi-

· "While we will work for greater private contributions, we will strongly encourage continued public support for the arts and arts

• Any attempt to interfere with the peer review system for issuing grants "for political or public relations purposes, or for reasons of favoritism, would be strenuously opposed.' • Censorship "is condemned and will be strenuously opposed." • "Cultural diversity" will be supported, including "significant grants to minority institutions and artists."

• "We will support grants for individual artists as well as art institutions, and small organizations as well as large ones."

Signers, besides Cohan, were Cledie Taylor, Margaret Bradshaw, Willard Hertz, Klichi Usui, Beverly Suits, Paula Blanchard, Orthela Barnes, Madeleine Berman and Marian Impastato.

Plants, animals adjust to seasons

We are indeed fortunate to live in a state that has seasons. Our four seasons are caused by a slight tilt in the earth's axis, but it results in some amazing phenomena. Extreme temperatures ranging from 100 degrees to 20 below zero are a result of that tilt of th earth's axis.

Animals and plants must cope with climatic extremes such as temperature and rainfall. They must reproduce within the short time in which growing is possible. Those that extended that time into the colder season never reproduced.

So by walking the trails at different seasons of the year, we get a chance to see the same plants or animals at different stages of their life cycles. In spring, the showy flowers draw our attention, as well as the attention of pollinators.

Jack-in-the-pulpit flowers are evi-

School board Let's start working together

TIKE A TV soap opera, the strained relations among Wayne-Westland school board members take a lot of turns, leaving people wondering what will happen next. There were numerous peaks and valleys in. board and administration relations in the past year, covering several tax rate elections, budget cuts, pay-for-play policy for extra-curricular programs and other issues.

But last week there were clear signs that there may be progress.

Let's hope so.

The potential good news came from board member Kathleen Chorbagian who suggested a special board meeting to address the problem of strained relations among its members.

"Maybe we can work it out," said Chorbagian, who announced earlier this year she will not seek a new term next June.

HER COLLEAGUES are encouraged to back her suggestion for a meeting to help define the roles of board members, who set policies, and Superintendent Dennis O'Neill, whose administration is responsible for implementing those Chorbagian said that a part of the community is concerned that those roles have become blurred since the election of three new board members in June.

"I think this entire community is laughing at the school board, and I don't think that's good for the people who work for us and the students we serve," she said.

The seven-member board has clashed repeatedly in recent weeks on such topics as teacher salaries, spending priorities, potential cuts to senior citizens programs and administrative ap-is right on target in appealing for a meeting to let board members understand those roles.

One valuable source of help is the Michigan Association of School Boards which has workshops and publications for new board members.

Certainly, board members should be kept informed on major issues in the district.

At the same time, they should avoid the obvious temptation to get involved in the administrative matters of the district.

Universities also can be of help in working with board members in building trust and setting

Newly elected board member Laurel Raisanen admitted last week that she has faced "a dilemma" in learning about her school board role, which she said often appears at odds with the public's perception.

In a medium-sized suburb there may be ongoing confusion on what the roles and responsibili-

IT'S ONE thing to set a policy for, as an example, improving employee relations.

It's another to dictate the minute details of the type of activities required to meet the goal. Sometimes, new board members can get confused on what is a policy, goal or activity. If that's the case, then a learning session is needed to make sure everyone is on the same track and talking the same language.

At the same time, board members should resist the temptation to meddle in the implementation of goals — unless the details are part of the goal.

A first step is to meet as a group and learn more about their own responsibilities.

The sooner the better.

Both parties to pander to public with tax cuts

LAST WEEK brought Gov. John Engler's plan to cut property taxes for school operations by 30 percent over five years and to limit annual increases in assessments to 3 percent or less.

It's unclear how his plan (which will cost more than $6 billion in state revenue over five years) would be funded. What would replace the schools' lost property taxes?

This followed by some weeks the Democratic plan to cut homeowners' property taxes and pay for it by repealing the capital acquisition deduction of the single business tax and a whole raft of industrial tax abate-

It's unclear in this proposal what would be used to stimulate private business investment or contribute to job growth in Michigan.

Both political parties are in a pandering rush to cut taxes. Both proposals are to be on the November 1992 ballot, suggesting both parties are more interested in campaign rhetoric than in genuine tax relief.

It sounds like deja vu all over

REMEMBER 1981, the early days of the Reagan Administration in Washington? The cry was that income taxes were too high. And they

Led by budget director Dave Stockman, former Michigan congressman, the administration proposed the largest single tax rate cut. in American history. Democrats rushed to submit their own cuts.

Stockman himself later admitted the new tax law guaranteed the largest growth in national deficits in American history.

Two consequences: First, the federal government systematically sloughed off responsibility for all kinds of programs, from education to housing, onto the states and local governments. Today's result: Chronic, severe financial crisis in states like Michigan and even a city bankruptcy in Bridgeport, Conn.

SECOND, EQUALLY important, was the budgetary straitjacket into which virtually all government programs were jammed.

Want to build bridges? Educate poor kids? Provide another 13 weeks of unemployment to workers laid off during the recession? No money. Sorry:

Later it became clear that some canny folk on the political right had this outcome in mind all along. They reasoned, correctly, that if the country could be thrown into a large and persistent deficit through excessive tax cuts, there would be no money left for activities of government, both useful and not so useful.

Last year the price to achieve a (read my llps) modest tax increase and a balanced budget was an agreement between Congress and the White House that new spending would have to be accompanied by specific increased revenues.

Could some clever people around pete with Democrats in pandering to middle-income taxpayers, they reason, because at day's end no money will be left to drive state government.

Gov. Engler have devised the same strategy for Michigan? Rush to com-

NO DOUBT Michigan's tax structure relies too heavily on the property tax. No doubt a lot of state spending is either wasted or yields dubious outcomes.

But does it follow that nothing done by government is useful? Are good schools a waste? Is job training for our workers useless? Should state colleges be ignored? Is it pointless to clean our lakes and preserve

Not at all. To ask these questions is to answer them.

People ought to ask the governor and those around him what they have in mind when they want to cut state revenue by more than $1 billion a year for the next five years.

Child abuse Cases require training, funds

Recent child abuse cases still plague us. But the recognition that these cases require special training for the judges involved is needed, along with ways to further protect the victims of child Michigan law now provides clear guidelines on what constitutes physical and sexual abuse of children. Many county prosecuting attorneys will have one or several staff members who specialize in child abuse cases. That has helped prosecutors more effectively pursue such cases and allowed them to work with the victim on a one-toone basis, rather than shuffle a child who is already a victim from one official to another.

The state's child abuse statute also provides penalties that reflect a crime whose victims are sometimes too young even to speak, much less know how to seek protection.

ALTHOUGH MANY judges have become familiar with child abuse cases, they often lack the training needed to properly try such cases. Although testifying in court is often the best therapy for young abuse victims, judges need to understand that questions must be phrased in a way the child can understand.

Judges must also understand that the courtroom is an intimidating place for a child facing his alleged abuser, including the imposing figure of a judge, sitting on high, dressed in black robes. Some judges actually step down from the bench to question the child in a less formal way, setting the child at ease.

There are also some changes needed to current laws to help prevent the crime and determine if abuse has taken place.

State Sen. Michael Bouchard has introduced a bill that requires a criminal history check for anyone employed in the child care field, from day care centers to schools. The check would turn up any felony convictions or misdemeanor convictions that involve a sexual offense or child

ANOTHER NEEDED change to the child protection law would require that police be contacted if there is an injury to a child that could be a result of abuse. Police see many cases where children's injuries are not recognized as abuse.

But not all legislative remedies are good ones. Bills that would require prosecutors to represent the Department of Social Services will not make trying abuse cases easier or serve the victim. They will only encumber the proceedings and give DSS bureaucrats more sway in the courts.

And the one aspect of child abuse that gets short shrift is prevention. The state should continue to put money into the child protection fund. Taxpayers should support the fund by donating when they turn in their Michigan tax return. That money goes to teaching kids and parents about preventing child abuse before the legal system becomes involved.

The Legislature also should do its part in funding child abuse prevention.

RECENT CHANGES in the law that address child abuse have gone a long way toward bringing understanding of an ugly crime into the courtroom and giving abused children real pro-

But judges must be trained in the fine distinctions of a body of crime that can repeat itself if the victims grow up to be the criminals.

For in the words of Elizabeth Barrett Browning, "The child's sob in the silence curses deeper than the strong man in his wrath."

Urge for freedom topples repressive governments Bill of Rights

HE CELEBRATION of our Constitution's bicentennial occurs in momentous times. With the human urge for freedom breaking out all over the world, repressive governments are toppling as people reach for those basic rights we, in this county, have enjoyed for more than 200 years.

. The Bill of Rights and subsequent amendments have made our constitutional system of government a beacon to the rest of the world - especially evidenced at this time in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union - by providing a model for a political system that effectively guarantees the rights of the individual.

Vaclav Havel, president of Czechoslovakia, in his address to Congress on Feb. 21, 1990, said: "Wasn't it the best minds of your country . . . who wrote your famous Declaration of Independence, your bill of human rights and your Constitution? . . . Those great documents . . . inspire us all; they inspire us despite the fact that they are over 200 years old. They inspire us to be citizens."

Cooper issue too emotional?

To the editor:

It was a pleasure to read the Detroit News (Aug. 19) editorial "Cooper School: Overreaction?." As an environmental professional for over 20 years and a home owner near Cooper with a child attending Cooper, I have monitored the data and events to date.

I have also assisted Cooper staff and the Livonia school board to inform local families of the facts and alternatives. In my opinion, that editorial and two other articles (by Mike Williams of the Free Press) are fair and representative accounts. Sadly, most other accounts (in print or film) have been inaccurate or onesided with little attempt to confirm the accuracy of statements prior to printing or airing.

The media is allowing itself to be used by an activist group which does not represent the majority of the Cooper community. High emotions aren't unusual in the early stages of cases like this. And I truly believe that the entire Cooper community has only one mission in their hearts: safe and healthy children.

But many of the statements from this small group have proven to be emotionally driven misinformation, speculation and exaggeration. While this emotionalism sells papers, the media's inability to report accurate, balanced and verified information has contributed greatly to unnecessary public trauma.

Example 1: The News' Friday, Aug. 2, (front page) story showed a 1949 aerial photograph, supplied by the activist group, showing 'liquid waste retention ponds' on the site where Cooper is now located. When a Livonia school board official questioned who labeled the photo, the News responded - "We don't know, we received it with the labels." Obviously, the News printed the photo, posthaste, without confirming validity. Yet, recent information from a property owner in the area asserted that these were storm water retention ponds used by the local children for fishing and swimming. The Free Press is currently confirming this information.

Example 2: A Detroit reporter was confronted by a community. member and asked why she had not confirmed erroneous information prior to printing a recent article. Her response was: "Listen, I cover 12 districts and don't have time to verily statements. Besides, I strongly believe in what this group is doing." The public deserves good professional journalism that-focuses on the proper and balanced presentation of facts. 'Beliefs' belong on the editorial page. The community emotional index climbs dangerously higher every day with continuing inaccurate articles or news broadcasts. What began as a united community anxious to understand if there were or are health risks, has now evolved into bitter, split neighborhoods with emotionally distraught adults and children.

G. Fischer,

Glenn swim team urged

As a concerned parent of Westland, I am wondering why I voted for the 7.75 mill tax rate increase (in the Wayne-Westland district)? I was under the impression that all school programs would be restored and started on time if the increase was approved.

My daughter swims for John Glenn High School and was ready to begin practice Aug. 12, as stated in the newsletter sent to our home. When she called the school, she was informed there was no coach and would be notified when one was hired. When I called the school and requested to speak to the athletic director, I was told he was not avail-

I have learned that all coaching spots have been filled except for swimming, even though I was told there were many applicants for the swimming program.

Anyone who participates in sports knows that, in order to be competitive in any sport, practice is of the essence. The first meet is scheduled for Sept. 4 and there hasn't been one practice session as of this date.

Any parent wishing to form a Swim Team Booster Club can contact me at 326-3712. Let's put John Glenn swimming back in the news.

Her worries go to top of heap

By Sarah Weiner Keldan guest columnist

YOU ALL KNOW what a bride does on the day after her wedding: She goes on her honeymoon. But did you ever consider what the mother of the bride does?

This one spent her day in the pouring rain, walking up mounds of garbage in the local landfill, looking for the special large envelope which contained the marriage license, the ornate religious wedding contract and all the envelopes with the wedding gift money!

The Sunday evening wedding was a triumph. It was the celebration of a very happy event in our family.

Because the groom was particularly concerned about the safe keeping of any gifts that might be tendered at the party I arranged for a trusted person to be at the synagogue to collect and take them back to the house. This she did.

The following morning I consolidated all the envelopes including the marriage license, the wedding contract and some other incidentals such as the front page of the New York Times which would be a great memento of the great day, into the large one. While doing so, I decided to clean out my "wedding briefcase" and threw all no-longer-needed lists and papers in the trash.

THE TRASH COLLECTORS arrived before 8 a.m. and took everything I had left at the curb. I then went to exercise class, back to the synagogue and kept some other appointments. I got home about 1 p.m. in a heavy downpour and decided to make some lunch before I went to other appointments in the afternoon.

The kitchen looked messy, though, with wedding gifts on the counter, floral arrangements on the floor, etc. I decided to consolidate the gifts into a large bag so that when the bride and groom stopped by for coctails before leaving for the airport

- they spent their wedding night in a local hotel — they would find everything in one place. All the gift boxes were in carrybags when I reached for the large envelope. It wasn't there!

It wasn't anywhere! I searched the house. My heart was racing, I was hyperventillating.

But I knew: I had tossed the envelope into the trash. I called the fownship to get the name of the garbage collection company. I called the company to get my route number and the name of the landfill I called the landfill (about 20 miles away it turned out). Their computerized system indicated that my truck had dumped at about 11 a.m., and the man on the phone informed me that although he could tell me within 200 feet where my neighborhood load was, it was already buried underabout four feet of additional gar-drove me to the site. The mud was ankle-deep. He advised me not to bother getting out of the truck because it was dangerous and hopeless. But I was compelled. After all, what would I tell the newlyweds?

And so I trudged to the top of the garbage heap. I looked carefully and hopefully and found . . . NOTHING!

Reluctantly I left the spot, returned to my car and drove toward home. On the way I used the carphone to call the rabbi and the county clerk's office to begin the task of replacing the documents. I composed the letter to the guests.

By the time I got home it was nearly 5 p.m. I sat in the kitchen bereft, cold, exhausted. At least the travelers' checks hadn't been placed In the envelope, I thought.

SLAPP means "strategic lawsuit against public participation." It's what developers do when homeowners, environmentalists and preservationists fight too hard against tearing up God's ecosystem.

I stumbled across SLAPP in the June issue of Planning, a magazine you won't find on the supermarket shelves or chain bookstores. Readers are public officials who deal in land use. The writer is Gary Enos, a New York-based magazine reporter.

SLAPPs are designed to have a chilling effect on folks who speak out against developers' plans or petition government for the redress of grievances. Some authorities say SLAPPs are a threat to freedom of speech. Remember the Bill of Rights? We're celebrating its 200th University of Denver researchers have identified 400 SLAPP lawsuits around the country. New York, California and Colorado have seen most of these lawsuits, but they are spreading.

As I write, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments is circulating its draft plan to curb "urban sprawl" - the eating up of cornfields and lakeshores by developers with no population growth to justify it, and the abandonment of older cities. There is strong, but not unanimous, sentiment for containing urban sprawl.

SLAPP. Wow, that's a new and nasty one. But folks in growing communities had better learn it because it's going around the country.

Michigan is ripe for SLAPP suits because we have thousands of teenytiny cities, villages and townships, each thinking of itself. The neighboring community, one block away, wants to rezone for a billion-dollar megamall. You scream. You organize protests. You hold meetings. You circulate pamphlets.

And you could get SLAPPed. It. happened, Enos said, in Rye, N.Y., to folks who wanted to protect the 18th century home of John Jay, the diplomat and chief justice. The developer who wanted to build luxury homes asked $30 million damages.

NOW, FILING a lawsuit and winning it are two different things.

Developers are losing most SLAPPs, Enos reports. Their lawyers have found it difficult to plerce the people's freedom of speech de-

But we in the news business know about these suits. They cost you money to defend. They cost you enormous amounts of time to prepare a defense. You can't do your regular work while you're defending a lawsuit designed to quiet you.

A. Teacher empowerment articles are in every major newspaper and in every educational journal on the market today. Empowerment is the latest educational buzz word.

Yet teacher empowerment is not a new concept. Wendell Hough of Wayne State University has been infusing this concept in numerous school districts in Michigan since

And it is effective.

Basically it is a collaborative effort that involves both teachers and administrators in the planning and implementation of a building improvement program.

It is far removed from the topdown model. The top-down model is where "central office" goes to a conference, becomes mesmerized by a charismatic speaker, returns all excited, shoves a supposedly new educational model down the throats of how much teachers like it.

TEACHERS WILL implement such a top-down model but really have nothing personally at stake to see the new educational concept or program is successful.

If it is a good concept, fine. If not, they will say: "It wasn't my idea; just another responsibility laid on me by those 'funny people' in the central office."

Conversely, the whole concept of teacher empowerment or collaboration between administration and teachers hinges on certain basic beliefs, beliefs I held throughout my tenure as an instructional leader in central offices for 17 years. Those beliefs have been articulated by Hough and paraphrased by this writer. They included:

• The more people are involved in program planning, the more they have at stake to see the program is successful. The less they are involved, the less they have at stake to see a program is successful.

• An effective school district or school building educational program will result only when the potential of office staff don't recognize that real power comes from the teachers. Teachers talk to neighbors who are in the Rotary, who talk to board members, who find out which leaders are respected and which are not.

You imply in your question that teachers have enough power in their contracts. Frankly, as a former president of a teachers' organization who was part of the group that started negotiations in 1965. I consider the contract a separate issue. Reality says it exists and isn't going away. To use that as an excuse to stymie the creativity of staff is a cop-out.

What is most interesting in all this is that the Michigan Education Association and now local school districts are considering this new "teacher empowerment" concept. Yet Hough has been doing it for more than 10 years. Maybe more educators should start paying more attention to the good professor. I did. He was was my doctoral degree adviser.

Spartans muscle past Salem, 2-1

By Sleve Kowalski staff writer

All that was missing was the awards ceremony.

Here it was the season opener for the Livonia Stevenson boys soccer team, and already some were conceding the Lakes Division championship to the Spartans after they beat Plymouth Salem, 2-1, at Centennial Educational Park.

Salem coach Ken Johnson gave Stevenson coach Wally Barrett a congratulatory hand shake after the game, and he might as well have given him the trophy to boot.

Stevenson still has to play Walled Lake Central, North Farmington and Farmington in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association. But for all intents and purposes the championship game was played Wednesday between the division's two heavyweights.

"It's the division championship, more or less," said Johnson, whose team is 3-1 overall. "Miracles happen, the season is not over, but whoever won tonight has the advan-

"High school games get emotional," he said. "All can be tough games. There are good players out there."

This one was emotional, and Stevenson, which lost the last two meetings to Salem, enjoyed a 2-0 halftime lead and held off a secondhalf Salem rally. Tom Baker's goal, assisted by Rich Androslak, with 36:50 remaining in the game closed the deficit to 2-1 for Salem, but Stevenson's backline defense and goalkeeper Matt Stabile kept the Rocks off the board the rest of the way.

Seniors Scott Wiggins and Travis Roy keyed the defensive effort, with help from teammates Bill Lanspeary and Jeff Thomas.

ROY PLAYED forward much of last season but his tough style suits the Stevenson defense just as well. "It looks like he's found a home there," Barrett said. The game was rugged in Salem's end as well, as Stevenson's Tim Lampi was forced to leave the game with a chipped tooth after a secondhalf collision with Salem goalkeeper Nick Dazer.

"It was a war zone out there," Barrett said. "There's no question Plymouth Salem played a hell of a game, but Travis-Roy, Wiggins, the whole defensive line put on a hell of a show. We lost the last two times to Salem so we had a chip on our shoulder when we walked out here.

"Stevenson got a great second effort all night long, which provided the difference in a gut-wrenching, hard-hitting type of game that wouldn't be shown on television for a ball-control clinic."

ONE OF THE second efforts Barrett referred to came early in the first half when senior midfielder Adam Carriere picked up a rebound off a 30-yard drive by Roy and put the ball past Dazer for a 1-0 lead.

The Spartans controlled the midfield most of the first half and took a 2-0 lead with less than a minute left before halftime on a goal by Dave Matovski off a corner kick.

Carriere got the assist on the goal, sending the corner kick in front of the net where Matovski got control and kicked it into the Salem net.

Salem had a chance late in the half to score but a shot deflected off Stabile's face and over the crossbar.

SALEM'S CENTER-STRIKER John Truskowski missed the game because of a pulled chest muscle and Johnson said his absence hurt the Rocks' midfield play.

Truskowski suffered the injury in the Plymouth Invitational last weekend won by the Rocks and will miss another week, according to Johnson.

"John is very mature and experienced and controls the front-middle for us," Johnson said. "Without him is like a ship without a rudder. I was surprised with Livonia Stevenson. They were aggressive and quick to the ball. They kicked the long ball good, like a typical Stevenson team. They're a good, solid team."

Churchill victorious

Northville blanked, 3-0

By Brad Emons staff writer

The Livonia Churchill of old, the team that reached the state Class A boys soccer final last season, came alive in the second half Wednesday, scoring three unanswered goals enroute to a 3.0 win at Northville.

The Chargers, 18-3-2 a year ago with 13 players returning, rebounded after struggling in their opening two games — a 4-0 loss to Toledo St. John and a 3-2 win over Rochester Adams.

"We hadn't played with our entire lineup until tonight because of suspensions (dating back to last year's state final)," Churchill coach Mark Mason said. "We had three seniors who had to sit out. This is the first time we had everybody together and it makes a difference."

Northville put up a battle for one half, but the talented Chargers gradually wore the host Mustangs

Kevin DeHority broke the ice for Churchill with a goal from Jeremy Banks, ultimately proving to be the game-winner.

The Chargers added two more in the final nine minutes - Mike Gen-

TWO OF CHURCHILL'S goals were a result of restarts.

We spent a lot of time on free kicks all week," Mason said. "We got a break on the first one. It was good to see us capitalize on two of them."

The Chargers carried the play in Northville's end much of the second half, enabling goalie Jeff Cassar to record his first shutout of the

"It took us a half to wear them down," Mason said. "Northville was very strong and tenacious in the first half. We had to try to find some weakness and mistakes intheir attack and once we were able. to do that, everything opened up."

The victory gives Churchill a 2-1 record on the year.

Opening game clasnes key

By Brad Emons and Dan O'Meara staff writers.

OUR ADEPT AND knowledgeable prep prognosticators each went 2-for-2 last weekend as Plymouth Salem and Westland John Glenn came through in the clutch as the 1991 season opened a week early. Piece of cake, eh?

Well it could be "Let'em eat cake" this week as the season really gets into high gear.

This could be the toughest week of all. No scouting reports to lean on, not to mention the unknown factor of non-league matchups.

But our readers should not fret.

Going on last year's percentages and the experience factor, don't be surprised if someone hits the jackpot and takes control of the race early on.

So sit back and check your percentages each week against ours. Let's see who comes out ahead?

FRIDAY'S GAMES (all 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Red. Thurston at Dearborn Hts. Robichaud (4 p.m.): Thurston will have its hands full even without Robichaud's Tyrone Wheatley. Robichaud bombed the Eagles last year and went all the way to the state Class B championship. Ten letter winners return for the Bulldogs, including two lineman with a combined weight of 585 pounds. Thurston, meanwhile, lists only eight lineman on its roster. PICKS: Go with Robichaud again, both

N. Farmington at Pontiac Northern (7 p.m.): The Huskies, 6-3 a year ago, are picked to win the Greater Oakland League and gain a state playoff borth. Fifteen starters return including tailback Charles Talley, who rushed for over 1,000 yards. North Farmington, a disappointing 5.4 in 1990, returns 16 starters including quarterback Mark Temple, an underrated passer, PIGKS: Emons has a hunch and goes with North, but O'Meara

Dearborn at Liv. Churchill: It's not Sterling Heights in the opener this time for Churchill, but it doesn't get any easier with the Pioneers (9-2 a year ago and state Class A qualifier). Dearborn has a strong field goal kicker in Rich Tlusty. Churchill, 0-9 last year, will be unveiling its one-back attack. PICKS: The Chargers won't catch Dearborn napping. Ride with the Pioneers, both agree.

Redford Union at Liv. Stevenson: This was supposed to be a big night at RU's Kraft Field, but the stadium and field renovations are not quite ready, so Stevenson (5-4 in 1990) gets the homefield advantage for the second straight year and should be able to take advantage of it against the Panthers (2-7). This matchup pits RU passer Brian Theis against Spartan running back Chris Lehtl. PICKS: Stevenson struggles to victory, both

Dearborn Heights Crestwood at Garden City: Who do you like in this one? Crestwood (4-5) is picked to linish in the middle of the pack in the Tri-River League, while GC (4-5) is rebuilding. The untested Cougars may lack depth, but Crestwood is not deep either. PICKS: Emons likes Garden City's chances, but O'Meara differs and goes with the visiting Chargers, Wayne Memorial at Adrian: Could be the best matchup of the night. Wayne (6-3 last year) won a thriller in the final minute to turn the Maples (5-4) Into syrup. Can lightning strike twice for Jason Welmore, Greg Carrico, Jermaine Ellis, Rick Barnes and Co.? PICKS: O'Meara likes the revenge factor for Adrian, but Emons earns his stripes by picking the Zebras.

Farmington at W. Bloomfield: West Bloomfield (3-6) will rely on defense as eight starters return. Meanwhile, Farmington (2-7) is working on a two-geme winning streak under secondyear coach Bernle Call. Chris Marting, who scored 12 touchdowns last year for the Falcons, is one of 10 returning starters. PICKS: Marting will have the Lakers smarting, Emons predicts, while O'Meara sticks with the home team.

Pty. Canton at Monroe: Canton (9-2) is coming off its best

grid predictions

season ever in the school's history, but lost a ton of talent including quarterback Karl Wukie, wide receiver Brett Howell and running back/defensive back Jason Riggs. Watch for tallback Steve Kohl and fullback Mark Meszaros to pick up the slack. Sophomore Kevin Shankle may get the start at QB. Monroe (4-5) is keyed by tailback Weyman Jones (870 yards). PICKS: The well is far from dry for Canton, go with the Chiefs, as both Center Line St. Clement at Clarenceville: The Crusaders have seven starters returning from last year's 3-6 squad. Clarenceville (6-3) lost all-purpose back Kendrick Harrington. but could have a better overall team behind the running of Carl Holston, PICKS: The coin please - O'Meara takes St. Clement, but Emons sticks with the host Trojans.

Bishop Borgess at Bridgeport: The Spartans (6-3) were hard hit by graduation and may be hard-pressed to win for the second straight year against Bearcats, who return a huge line. That should make things easier for 5-foot-10, 175-pound tail-back Jim Carne, who rushed for 924 yards last year. Bridgeport's JV squad finished 6-3 a year ago. PICKS: The speed factor is not a factor this year, as Bridgeport prevails. according to Emons. Borgess, however, has a friend in O'Meara.

SATURDAY'S GAMES (all 1 p.m. unless noted)

Lake Orion at Liv. Franklin: The Patriots (3-6) never seem to have an easy opener whether it's a Midland Dow, a Dearborn Fordson, a Lansing Sexton and now a Lake Orion (7-2). The defending Greater Oakland champs lost 19 starters, including All-State back Jim Vackaro. But even though the Dragons lost their final two games of 1990, they're still a team to be reckoned with. The Patriots have the skill people this season, led by fullback Aaron Shakarian, but can the line match Orion's? PICKS: Another dismal opener for Franklin, both agree.

Cardinal Mooney at Lutheran Westland: Marine City Cardinal Mooney (1-8) hopes to surprise in the D-Section of the Catholic League with 29 players returning off the varsity. Lutheran Westland (5-4) is trying to improve on last year's record behind the efforts of returning quarterback Jason Zielinski and tackle Jamie Hardy. PICKS: The only people that will be surprised are yours truly and his sidekick if Mooney wins. Both like the host Warriors.

St. Agatha vs. Det. Redford St. Mary (7:30 p.m. at Clarenceville): The Aggles expect to be much improved over last year's 2-7 club. The Rustics (4-5) feature a speedy backfield, led by froshmen James Fleming. Agatha, however, should have the better running game with the return of fullback Pete Mulka and tallback Cardell Davis. PICKS: You've got to like the Aggles in this one, as both concur.

PREP KICK-OFF CLASSIC at PONTIAC SILVERDOME

Redford CC vs. Temperance-Bedford (4 p.m.): The defending Class AA champs, if you recall, had a tough time with the Kicking Mules in last year's opener, winning by a mere count of 10-8. Bedford, which beat mighty Dearborn Fordson 50-0 in last year's season finale before losing in the first round of the state playoffs, will miss quarterback Brett Parachek (now at Eastern Michigan). CC (11-2) has a new, but talented cast. PICKS: Shamrocks won't need any luck this time, both agree.

Farm. Harrison vs. Birm. Brother Rice (7 p.m.): Two giants in Michigan high school football collide for the first time. Rice (11-2), the defending Class A champs, features a dangerous backfield in sophomore Marcus Harvey and senior Sean Johnson. Harrison (10-2), which some rate as one of the top five. teams in the state, has a slow of returnees led by light end Greg Piscopink and tallback Roy Granger, who moves in from flanker to replace the graduated Gary Devine. What a matchup! PICKS: Got to fly with the Hawks as Rice gets boiled.

Note: Tickets for the double-header are $5 (available at the door). Gates open at 3 p.m.

Rebuilding task no chore for Schoolcraft coach

GUY-WARREN/staff photographer

Renea Bonser (left) is one of the top returnees for the Schoolcraft College Lady Ocelots voileyball squad for By C.J. Risak staff writer

First of all, most noticeably, there is much to do to rebuild Schoolcraft College's volleyball team.

When seven players leave - four of whom are currently playing for four-year colleges - it's easy to tag the next season as a rebuilder. But remember: SC coach Tom Teeters has had reconstruction jobs to oversee in the past.

He is currently entering his ninth . season at SC (seventh in a row); in that span, he has not lost an Eastern Conference match.

So, sure, there's work to do. But Teeters is confident the streak can continue, and his Lady Ocelots can again reach the National Junior College Athletic Association Tourna-

They finished seventh in the NJCAA last year, compiling a 43-6 overall record (23-4 against NJCAA teams) SC may possess enough talent to post a similar record this season. But that's where the similarities will end.

THE '91 Ocelots are bigger and stronger in the middle, weaker on the outside. Quickness and defense could be lacking, but Teeters thinks other strengths could provide relief.

"Yes, we have to improve on our outside hitting," the SC coach admitted. "But we don't have to match up to last year's team as much as just be this year's team. This will be a better serving team, which should help offset other problems.

'Also, we'll have two setters instead of one, which should give us a wider variety of altack."

There's no doubt the losses SC must overcome are significant. Gone are setter Jenniler Sproul (now at Central Michigan University), outside hitters Angellette Love (Bowling Green State) and Elena Oparka (Madonna University), and middle blocker Kari Domanski (University of Michigan-Dearborn).

Also missing are defensive specialists Laura Brown, Lisa Domke and Chrissy Clark.

The returnees, though, spark optimism. And the additions give this season a very special attraction.

volleyball

FIRST, WITH 6-foot-2 Kari Van Deusen (from Waterford Mott), 5-11 Renea Bonser (Livonia Stevenson) and 5-8 Stephanie Jandasek (Brighton) coming back for their sophomore campaigns, there's size and experience down the middle. Teeters called Van Deusen "the most improved player during the off-season" thanks to her work in the weight

A challenger to Van Deusen for that title would be freshman Keli Haeger, the 5-9 Livonia Ladywood graduate. Haeger has improved her vertical jump three inches, according to Teeters, and "we're still seeing improvement. Weight-lifting has really impacted Keli."

Haeger will share the setting duties with 5-7 freshman Nancy Ehlert, the sister of former SC standout Jill Ehlert, Nancy can do it all, accord-ing to Teeters; a first-team all-state performer at Monroe St. Mary's, Ehlert will be "setting and be a primary passer for us, and an outside hitter."

EHLERT'S OUTSIDE hitting will be needed to offset the losses of Love and Oparka. Other freshmen who may get a shot on the outside are 5-9 Julie Wood, from Harper Woods Lutheran East; 5:7 Judi Scott, from Clawson; 5-10 Christle Hunter, from Livonia Clarenceville; Jandasek and Haeger.

Denise Walsh, 5:4 from Wayne Memorial, and Sue Berger, 5-7 from Marysyllle, are counted on to fill the defensive positions.

The team has a sizable look to it, which fuels Teeters' optimism?

"Renea will be better than last, year," he sald. "We'll be stronger in the middle than on the outside."

Still, there's holes to fill. And while the serving is improved, the defense is a question. So is quickness and experience.

But Teeters has always found the answers before.

in Southfield.

Madonna 3rd in tournament

It wasn't everything Madonna with Mesa State for third in the University volleyball coach Jerry Abraham hoped for, this second trip (in as many years) west to the Mesa State College Tournament in Grand Junction, Colo.

But it came close.

Indeed, it came down to the final game of the final match. The Lady Crusaders were in no position to win the five-team tournament, it's true; Brigham Young-Hawaii had already clinched, winning all eight of its matches.

But a victory by Madonna over Azusa-Pacific (Calif.) in the fifth game of its last tourney match would have given the Crusaders a 4-4 record and a second-place finish. Instead, they lost the pivotal game 15-10 and the match, threegames-to-two. Other game scores in the match: Madonna 15-10. Azusa 15-7, Azusa 15-9, Madonna 15-12.

THE CRUSADERS finished tied tournament at 3-5. On Friday, they beat Azusa 15-10, 15-4, 11-15, 6-15, 15-9; lost to Brigham Young 15-4, 12-15, 15-7, 15-9; beat Fort Hayes State (Kan.) 15-2, 15-5, 15-9; and lost to Mesa State 15-5, 15-7, 7-15,

Against the same four teams Saturday, Madonna rallied to beat Fort Hayes 15-6, 6-15, 8-15, 15-10, 15-10, then lost to Mesa State 15-2, 6-15, 15-2, 17-15, and BYU 15-6, 15-8, 15-12, before falling to Azusa.

Madonna's Dana Hicks-Finley was selected to the six-person alltournament team. Hicks had 151 kills in the tournament with a .420 kill average. Other team standouts: Tonia Smith, 121 kills (.380) and Melissa Mars, 61 kills (.340) on offense, Maureen Paulin, Jenny Sladewski, Evette Sluder and Smith on defense.

Agatha gridders want to reverse '90 record

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

Redford St. Agatha football coach John Goddard said the Aggles went from "the penthouse to the outhouse real quick," last year.

As he embarks on his 16th season as head coach, Goddard hopes for a trip back to the penthouse that's just as quick.

After consecutive seasons of 7-2 in 1988 and '89, Agatha stumbled to a 2-7 finish in 1990. The prospects look much better in 1991 for the Aggles, who have several key players returning and a new quarterback that' fits right into the team's offensive

The Aggles play six home games, beginning with a 7:30 p.m. Sept. 7 season opener against Redford St. Mary at Livonia Clarenceville.

"I think we'll be much, much improved," Goddard said. "Last year our younger kids got a lot of playing time, so we're not lacking as far as experience goes. The attitude has been real super so far."

THAT'S A CHANGE from last season, when the Aggies lost starting quarterback Brian Kutch to a knee. injury for the first three games and then for good after the sixth game for disciplinary reasons. To make matters worse, speedy tailback Cardell Davis missed about five games with an ankle injury, and several players were lost because of gradua-

The Aggles were 1-4 in the Catholic League's C-Section last season after winning the crown the year be-

"Last year's record was an accumulation of a lot of things," Goddard said. "That is history, as they say."

As for the present, Goddard welcomes back the 6-1, 175-pound Davis, a senior who is healthy and was impressive in the Aggles' first scrimmage. Also returning is 6-1, 180-pound senior fullback Pete Mul-

Goddard believes each player could play at the college level.

"Pete is more of a power runner and Cardell more of finesse, but both are excellent backs," Goddard said. "People can't just line up and key on Cardell because we have a lot of weapons and can keep people hon-

HELPING MAKE opposing defenses honest will be junior quarterback Paul Parsell, a 5-9 160-pound option-type quarterback who started most of the season last year at Redford Thurston, Parsell moved during the summer to Detroit and transferred to St. Agatha, keeping his eligibility for the fall.

"He's a good athlete and fills a big need for us," Goddard said. "He's got game experience and is going to be a big plus because he complements the other backfield kids real well."

The Aggles' major problem in the backfield is depth, or lack of it, with only 24 players on the varsity roster. John Goddard (the coach's son) will line up at wide receiver and also back up Parsell at quarterback. The slot back is 5-10, 170-pound junior Mike Tymczak, who caught two touchdown passes a year ago. Tymczak also is a backup running back.

Jason Stoll, a 6-0, 170-pound junfor, will also see time as a receiver.

The only loss to graduation on the offensive line was Joe Boards, who was a three-year starter and earned All-Catholic C-Section honors.

RETURNING AS starters on the offensive line are center Adam Martell, 5-10, 170-pound junior; guards James Pierce, 6-2, 230-pound senior, and Liam Shivers, 6-2, 235-pound junior; and tackles Scott Brigmon, 6-1, 195-pound senior, and Matt Masarak, 5-10, 180-pound junior. River Pollington, a 6-1, 165-pound senior who only played defense last year, is the tight end.

"I'm pleased with them so far," Goddard said.-

The Aggies' 5-0 defensive scheme will have Pollington and Brigmon lining up on the ends, with Shivers, Pierce and Jeff Rooksberry (5-11, 180 junior) as defensive tackles.

The linebackers are Mulka and Martell, with Tymczak, Stoll, Davis and Goddard holding down secondary positions.

Shivers will handle both the punting and placekicking duties. He has not made a field goal in two years for the Aggles, but showed potential last year in an overtime loss to Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes. Shiver's 38-yard attempt had plenty of distance but sailed wide.

3-point shooter leaves CC for Salem

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

Bobby Schneider, the top three-point shooting threat last season for Redford Catholic Central's basketball team, has transferred to Plymouth Salem. Schneider missed part of the 1990-91 season because of academic reasons but was not dismissed from CC for the present school year, according to Bill Hayes, CC's assistant principal for discipline.

Schneider, whose older sister Sandra graduated from Salem, began his junior year Tuesday at Salem.

"It was not a matter of CC telling him he can't come back," said Brenda Schneider, Bobby's mother. "He wasn't doing as well there as we wanted him to and we thought at this time it was best for him to go to Salem."

Because he's a transfer student, Schneider, a 6-foot-2 guard, won't be eligible to play at Salem until the second semester begins in January. His mother indicated he might sit out his entire junior year.

"He plans on playing basketball but we've already told him he has to have decent grades," she said.

Hayes said Schneider would not have been eligible for any fall sports at CC but could have regained eligibility for the basketball team by attaining at least a 1.75 grade point average in the fall semester, which ends

Regardless of an athlete's overall GPA, he must have at least a 1.75 GPA during a quarter to be eligible to play the next marking period, Hayes said.

"It forces a student to do well in each quarter," Hayes said. "Bobby was not asked to leave. It was strictly the family's decision. His parents made an agreement with him that he had to perform in summer school and since he did not, they decided he cannot attend CC anymore.":

Schneider, a two-year letterwinner at CC, averaged 12.5 points per game last year and would have been a perfect complement to the Shamrocks' talented 6-foot-6 senior duo of Bob Kummer and Chad Varga. The Sham: rocks made it to the Class A regional semifinal before losing to Detroit Cody and even more was expected this "Bobby can play, there's no question about it," coach

Bernie Holowicki said. "We expected a good year out of him and to take some pressure off Bobby (Kummer) and Chad. He's a good kid and great athlete. We call him 'bulldog,' because he can be electrifying sometimes. Iwish him luck."

All-American seizes national modified crow

Farmington Hills achieved a milestone in its storied history of men's modified fast-pitch softball competition last weekend.

All-American, which has played under two other names in the past, claimed its first national championship in its first season of All-American sponsorship.

All-American — playing seven games in two days at the 10-man national tournament in Stevens Point, Wis. - overcame an earlier loss to win two straight from unbeaten Elm Street-Bud Light of Norwood, Minn., in the finals.

All-American's Dave Brubaker, the girls softball coach at North Farmington High School, was named the most valuable player of the tournament and the All-American catcher for the second time in his career.

The 36-year-old Brubaker, who played high school baseball for Roger Frayer at Livonia Churchill in the early 1970s, collected 14 hits and

Other All-American players on the All-American team were pitcher Jerry Staszel, first baseman Shawn Maloney, second baseman John Longridge, shortstop Doug Kirkpatrick and center fielder Jim Dillon.

Staszel was 7-1 in the tournament, and his teammates supported his pitching with 135 hits and 105 runs. All-American, which competed with just the minimum 10 players,

GC East grad eyes '92 Games

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

Erle Hebestreit hasn't given an "arm and a leg" to make the U.S. Olympic wrestling team, but he's broken enough other body parts in the last decade to consider his effort worthwhile.

"I've beaten my body to death," said Hebestreit, a 1981 Garden City East graduate. "I've broken fingers I don't know how many times. I've had 16 shadows (slang for broken noses), shoulder surgery and three knee surgeries. At one time I got kicked, kneed and head butted four consecutive days, my eyes were so swollen the trainer had to open up my eyes kind of like the old Rocky movie."

Hebestrelt has overcome it all to finish third earlier this summer in the 163-pound weight class of the Greco-Roman national championships. Hebestreit, who turned 28 Wednesday, will begin a final push for a berth on the 1992 Olympic Greco-Roman wrestling team in November when he competes in the Sunkist Kids Open in Phoenix, Ariz.

FOLLOWING THAT, Hebestreit hopes for an Invitation to the World Team Trials, U.S. International Tournament and U.S. Nationals early next year when the final Olympic spots are de-

The top two wrestlers in each weight class qualify for the Olympics, with the second of the two being an alternate.

"No. 2 would still be a heck of an accomplish-

wrestling

ment," said Hebestrelt, one of the older competitors in his sport. "There's people I went to high school with, we get to talking, and asking 'what's happening?' and I tell them. They say 'Geez, you're still wrestling!' It's pretty funny, because people don't imagine I'm still at it.

"I'll go as far as I can and whether I make it or not, after the '92 Olympics, I'm done. I'll retire from competition."

Most wrestlers who went through what Hebestrelt has physically would have retired years ago from the sport. After a successful career at East High School, Hebestreit enjoyed even more success as a freestyle wrestler at Muskegon Community College before becoming injury prone.

As a-freshman in 1981-82, Hebestreit was 20-10 overall and ranked fourth in the National Junior College Athletic Association's 158-pound division before a dislocated shoulder ended his year. Hebestrelt recovered enough to return as a sophomore, but after going 26-6 and ranking as high as second at 167, he was sidelined the remainder of the 82-83 season by knee surgery.

Hebestreit planned on finishing his collegiate career at the University of Michigan and trying for the 1984 Olympics as a freestyle wrestler, but two more knee operations ended those hopes.

AT THAT TIME I had no thoughts I'd make it back," sald Hebestreit. "You hope to, but realistically, you don't think you can."

Hebestreit rehabilitated the knee with help from U-M's Dr. Warren Schildberg, but he never returned to the mats collegiately. Hebestrelt earned a liberal arts degree at the U-M in-1986 and in his free time helped coach wrestling at Garden City High, instead of pursuing the sport

Not until the fall of '87, while enlisted in the U.S. Navy, did Hebestreit get back on the mat. Hebestreit, who joined the Navy because "I felt like I was just treading water at that point in my life," happened to be stationed in Orlando, Fla., not far from where the Navy's wrestling team trained, in Pensacola.

One day, while watching the team practice,

Hebestreit got a chance to show he's still got it. "I walked in and just started wrestling, and as it turned out I was beating their No. 1 people," said Hebestreit. "I was just tearing 'em up."

HEBESTREIT ENDED up making the All-Navy team by the spring of '88 and it was then he knew he was "really back" in the sport.

Midway through 1989, after being "honorably discharged" by the Navy, Hebestreit began wrestling seriously again at the AAU level with the Michigan Wrestling Club. He finished fifth in Greco-Roman and seventh in freestyle at the national tournament in '89 and has continued his upward climb since.

In his own way, Hebestrelt has shown he's a

Ridgedale Players stage revue

By Keely Wygonik staff writer.

HE RIDGEDALE Players are celebrating their 60th anniversary with a sampling of songs, dance, comedy and fashion from the 1930s through the 1980s in a dinner theater Produced and directed by longtime Ridgedalers Helen Stout, Genie Garner and Dawn Hooper, "The Music Goes 'Round', is being presented 6:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 6, Saturday, Sept. 7, Friday, Sept. 13, and Saturday, Sept. 14.

"We're doing a medley of songs from television shows and commercials," said Garner. "We'll do the Texaco song; 'When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain, the Howdy Doody song and Mickey Mouse Club. Some of them are funny."

Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. with an 8 p.m. curtain. Tickets for the show and dinner are $20. Seating for the dinner theater is limited. Call 644-8328 for tickets.

"We've opened our season for about the past three years with a musical revue," said Ridegedaler Mark Carley. "It's become a tradition."

CONTINUING IN this spirit of nostalgia, Ridgedale will open its regular season Nov. 1 with the comedy "Arsenic and Old Lace." The story features Abby and Martha Brewster, two very sweet malden aunts who can't understand what's wrong with sending lonely old men to their eternal resting place with a nice glass of poisoned elderberry wine.

Social Security, a modern comedy by Andrew Bergman about Sophie Greengrass, a senior citizen who shows her thirtysomething daughter and son-in-law that's she's capable of taking care of herself, opens Jan. 10.

The musical comedy "Working" by Stephen Schwartz and Studs Terkel featuring memorable songs from Schwartz, James Taylor and many others, opens March 13.

'The Uninvited," a classic ghost story by Tim Kelly, based on the classic Ray Milland film by the same name, opens May 1.

Founded in 1931, Ridgedale's first home was build as a WPA project under President Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal. The old playhouse on 10 Mile Road in Oak Park served the group for 52 years.

Originally organized as a private group, Ridgedale staged productions only for its members until 1936, when they "went public" with their first production, "Remote Control." "WE'VE COME a long way since then," said Carley. "In the beginning we did one show a year. Now we do five, including a musical revue and a full scale musical."

In 1983 Ridgedale faced its biggest challenge. They were evicted from their longtime home by the I-696 freeway expansion. The group found a new theater at 205 W. Long Lake Road in Troy, west of Livernois, in a one-story cinder block building that had been a church.

"The move was quite difficult for us at first," said Carley. "Every year we have had to make some sort of improvement to our property in order to create a better theater and to make the theater experience more comfortable and enjoyable for our patrons."

Among the improvements are widening the auditorium, raising the stage and roof, redecorating the lobby and lounge area, paving the parking lot and installing air condition-

"We were very fortunate that when we moved out here, much of our south Oakland audience came with us," said Carley. "But ticket sales fell off as we tried to establish ourselves in our new community."

That's changed. Troy area residents now make up a majority of the audience, and ticket sales are picking up every year, said Carley.

"After every production we have an afterglow and serve sandwiches and coffee to the audience," said Susan Masters, a Ridgedaler for over 39 years. "It's one thing we do that no other theater group in the area does. The people just love it. It's a nice way to spend the evening."

THE GROUP hopes to attract more members, especially from the Troy area. They are holding an open house 2-5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 8, at the Ridgedale Playhouse.

"You don't have to have acting experience," said Masters. "For every The theater seats about 100 for person on stage there's eight or nine

Ad agency blazes new trails in motorsports

By Doug Funke staff writer

A Livonia advertising agency that happened to be in the right place at the right time now promotes itself as a pioneer in applying a new photographic reproduction technique to decals for the sides of large semi-

Fisher Advertising, which earlier this year established a motorsports division, picked up a job for Ford Motorcraft at the time a decal applicator for the agency learned about the new reproduction process developed by 3M.

"In the process, you literally take a 3-by-5 (inch) color photo, put it in a machine and it literally blows an image up 9-by-12 (feet) or larger," said Larry G. Ciancio, a Fisher marketing rep. "Basically we were the first company in the country to use this in a motorsports application."

Fisher's assignment — to redesign the advertising on the outside of a 51-foot trailer used by Bob Glidden, a drag racer sponsored by Motorcraft. A photo of Glidden's car seems to jump off the side of the truck used to haul his equipment to race sites.

"I had a key set of objectives. I wanted the client's product to look the best it could and Fisher Motorsports to do the best job we could," Ciancio said.

TRADITIONAL COLOR separa-

A photo of Bob Glidden's car seems to jump off the side of the truck used to haul his equipment to race sites, thanks to Fisher Advertising's application of a 3M photographic process.

tion for huge enlargements and air brushing on the sides of trucks don't produce the quality of 3M's process and can be much more expensive by several thousand dollars, said Ciancio and Frank J. Fisher, executive vice president for the agency.

"First you're going to get better quality," Fisher said. "3M guarantees outdoor use for three years. The market that's going to be best for this is anything for limited production run where only two or three images are required.'

"This is the leading edge of technology," Cianclo added. Glidden's truck and a hauler for Morgan Shepherd, a NASCAR racer, seem to be the hit of the track wherever they go, Ciancio said.

Sam Scott, Motorcraft motorsports coordinator, said Fisher's utilization of 3M's technology has surpassed expectations.

"Most people couldn't believe it," Scott said. "It grabs your attention. We had Glidden's trailer in Denver and the people from Winston (cigarettes) came around. They have seen everything and even they were impressed.

"LAST WEEK, we had all the (racing) teams we have at Ford here. They took a look at this and said, 'Maybe this is something we want to do,' "Scott sald.

"It's like packaging in marketing," Fisher said. "We're actually designing a package that rolls down the highway and shows up at race meets.

With Ciancio's connection to auto racing and with the hundreds of teams involved in the sport, Pisher has decided to concentrate application of the photo process for advertising purposes to that Industry.

"Here we understand the language, understand the business and know the players on a first-name basis," Ciancio said. "Just think about the motorsports opportunities."

Fisher conceded that other advertising agencies will have access to the same technology but figures he has the advantage as a trend setter.

"We got such a jump getting out of the gate," he said. "We thought about the best approach and figured that motor sports is the quickest attack, the strongest link."

"Just think about motorsports opportunities, the number of suppliers in the Motor City," Cianclo added.

Other applications may be to other haulers - food products, faces of human endorsers - but as the number of photos grow, the process becomes less economical. "Twenty is about the limit for economies of scale," Fisher said.

The new technology in an increasingly visual world presents new opportunities for advertising agencies.

"What our objective is is to give a sponsor (client) a quality product. The sponsoris objective is to get a recall of the product around the country," Ciancio said.

And that's the bottom line in any kind of advertising relationship.

Manager of credit union bridges banking cultures

By David F. Stein special writer.

Lithuania is banking on Michigan - thanks to Gaile Dedinas, manager KASA Lithuanian Federal Credit Union's branch in Southfield.

Last year, Dedinas invited the officials of Litimpex, the newly organized import-export bank of an autonomous Lithuania, to Michigan to study American banking techniques. The visit led to meetings with officials at Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit.

Now, much to the chagrin of the Citicorps and Chase Manhattans of the banking world, MNB will handle the worldwide transactions of Litimpex and train its staff in modern banking techniques.

The agreement, upgraded in May, is one of the first necessary steps to achieve economic independence from the Soviet Union, Dedinas said, because the Soviet ruble is essentially worthless and deals going through Moscow take months to clear.

"Even though the Lithuanians declared themselves independent, if they cannot stand independent economically, then it's just so much bravado," Dedinas said. Dedinas lives in West Bloomfield with her husband Saul and children Kristina and To-

IN THE LAST five years, starting from scratch, Dedinas has also built the Southfield office of KASA into a 1,600-member branch with assets of $5.5 million. There are some 50,000 Lithuanians in the area.

Dedinas was born in 1947 in a displaced persons camp in Germany. Her parents had fled Lithuania, where they faced confiscation of family businesses and resettlement or imprisonment by the Soviets.

The family emigrated to the United States in 1948, living in Fargo, N.D., and Brooks, Minn., before joining relatives in Detroit.

It was while attending a wedding that Dedinas was recommended by wedding guests to KASA directors to set up the Michigan branch. She was working at a Rochester, N.Y., advertising firm at the time.

Although she had little accounting experience, she was confident in her marketing and advertising skills and convinced the directors she was right for the job at a formal inter-

One early decision proved right on target. Dedinas placed the credit union office on Nine Mile, just down the street from Divine Providence ter for suburban Detroit Lithuani-

The credit union specializes in car loans and five-year, fixed-rate home equity loans.

BUT ONE OF its most important services is providing a banking environment for those not fluent in Eng-

"Older Lithuanians look more toward the comfort of doing business in Lithuanian," Dedinas said, "We're all bilingual. New Lithuanians coming in and living here - they also have a languange barrier and like the idea that they can do business with us in Lithuanian."

The Southfield staff includes loan officer Irene Vizgirda, customer service representatives Valentina Bulo-Church, a religious and cultural cen- ta, teller Daiva Memenas and Vida Zambo who handles Visa credit cards and CDs.

A chance meeting also led to the banking agreement between Litimpex and Manufacturer's.

At an economic and trade conference in Florida in 1989, Dedinas met Roumaldus Visokavicius, the future president of Litimpex, and the Lithuanian prime minister Gediminas Vagnorius.

Dedinas invited the Lithuanians to Michigan to study American financial techniques. The six-week visit by Lithuanian banking officials was sponsored by KASA and the Michlgan Credit Union League.

Saul Anuzis, an aide to state Sen. Richard Posthumus, R-Alto, and Dedinas' brother, helped the Lithuanian bankers; get together with Manufacturers' international department during their stay. The meetings led to the corresponding bank and training agreements.

The deal indicates the soundness of Michigan banking, according to Ann Arbor banking consultant Justin

"The Lithuanians were looking for a large bank with a good international department that stood up to very conservative financial standards. Manufacturers fit that bill, and none of the New York banks did," Moran

Insurance companies come under eye of rating services

By Sid Mittra special writer

This is the second in a series regarding the state of health of the insurance industry.

Amid the worry and confusion surrounding the insurance industry, you can safeguard your assets by relying on those knowledgeable in the field and doing a little homework on your own.

As Joseph Belth, Indiana University professor, puts it, "The idea that an individual planner can do the analysis (of the insurance industry) on his own is quite simply ridiculous."

So the next best thing is to rely on the opinions of these rating services: A.M. Best, Duff & Phelps, Moody's Investor Services and Standard & Poor's. For details on rating companies, consult Stranger's Investment Advisor, July 1991.

Here's a brief description of the services offered by the rating companies.

• A.M. BEST. In existence the longest time, Best rates 1,379 (of 2,300) insurance companies on a nine-level scale ranging from A+ down to C-. Best also has 10 "ratings not assigned classifications," meaning the insurance company doesn't meet Best's minimum size or the minimum financial requirements. Best offers a wide range of services, including a number of publications. For more information, confact A.M. Best Co., Ambest Road, Oldwick N.J. 08858, Phone 908-439-2200.

• STANDARD & POOR'S. S&P has been rating

financial strengths and credit quality for more than 50 years. It rates 480 companies. In April, S&P introduced "quality solvency ratings," which are based on the statistics obtained from the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC).

S&P offers several publications, including S&P's Insurance Book, Select Reports and S&P's Insurer Ratings List. For more information, write S&P's Insurance Ratings, 25 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10004 or call 212-208-1524.

• DUFF & PHELPS. Reporting since 1986, Duff & Phelps has claims paying ability ratings on 61 companies. But the company claims that within 18 months it will be rating 90 percent of major U.S. insurance comanies.

You can obtain the ratings from the Claims Paying Ability Rating Service or the quarterly issues of the company's Insurance Company Claims Paying Ability Rating Guide. For-more information, contact Duff & Phelps Credit Rating Co., 55 E. Monroe Street, Chicago, Ill. 60603 or call 312-

• MOODY'S INVESTOR SERVICES. Evaluating life insurance companies since the 1970s, Moody's rates 72 companies. The company refers to the ratings as "financial strength ratings."

10 steps aid in recovery

IM meetings consist of planned lessons, relaxation and discussions. The group uses "10 tools of recovery"

- Belief. Believing in recovery is the first step.
- Relaxation and meditation. These techniques are important in relieving tension, literature said.
- Self-talk. Listening to your negative messages must be eliminated, the literature said.
- Affirmations. The use of positive thinking is taught to relieve anxiety.
- Image books. Using an image book is a powerful tool to help visualize a "new you."
- Goal setting. One small goal is encouraged each week.
- Exposure. Regularly facing the frightening object or situation rather than avoiding it is the main step in overcoming it.
- Telephone. Telephone support is provided.
- Support. Group meetings offer support in a relaxed atmosphere, the literature said. Group field trips may also take place.
- Spiritual step program. AIM considers itself a spiritual program. The steps are adapted from Alcoholics Anonymous.

Area Agoraphobics in Motion group aims to help victims of panic attacks

By Susan Steinmueller staff writer

ARY ANN Gogoleski suffered her first panic attack at age 12. It was during dally Mass in a church, an activity important to the young girl who was planning on entering the convent. "It was such an intense feeling that what I decided to do was not go to church again," she said.

Faintness, a speeding heartbeat, nausea, dizziness and hyperventilation are just some of the symptoms that can occur when panic, such as Gogoleski felt, hits. Some victims believe they are dying or having a heart attack.

Medical examinations found she was healthy. But later, the panic attacks occurred in other places. By the time Gogoleski was married with three young daughters, she was housebound.

Finally a magazine article led her to recognize her condition as agoraphobia, a disorder characterized by acute panic

Gogoleski received help from an anxiety center but, ironically, it was a minister who helped her overcome the condition for good. Today, Gogoleski has been free of panic attacks for eight years.

WHILE SHE did not become the missionary nun she dreamed of being as a child, during the past eight years she has been on a mission of a different sort — helping others to recover too.

She does so through the non-profit self-help organization she founded called A.I.M., an acronym for 'Agoraphobics in Motion."

There are now 31 groups throughout the United States. Locally, a support group opened at Troy High School last month. Others are in Warren, Auburn Hills,

'It-was started to let people know it is possible to be free of excessive anxiety. The problem is recovery is slow, and we live in a world where there are microwave ovens.'

Livonia, Waterford and Birmingham.

"It was started to let people know it is possible to be free of excessive anxiety. The problem is recovery is slow, and we live in a world where there are microwave ovens," Gogoleski sald.

For many, she noted, just putting a name to the condition is a big relief.

"Agoraphobia has only been a diagnosis for the last 11 years, and as such is not real well recognized," she said.

It is commonly defined as an abnormal fear of open spaces. But Gogoleski said, "It's such a controversial topic. Most people who suffer from this kind of anxiety are quite functional, but they have limitations in some form or another. Some can't go out the door, although that is rare. Others can travel all around the country, but don't ask them to go into a mall. I guess the main core is the panic has limited them in some way.

"Agoraphobia is a fear of fear. Agoraphobics feel that if they avoid the places where panic occurs that then their fear reaction will be alleviated. The fear response can be so all-encompassing that any place or any situation can trigger uncontrollable panic.

GOGOLESKI, a Royal Oak

resident, recalls that doctors told her she would outgrow it. She went to college for awhile, then worked at a hospital, then married. It was then that anxiety, which had become worse over the years, spread to all areas of her life.

When a doctor prescribed Valium, "I got frustrated because I knew it." wasn't a cure." And, despite a Vallum before getting up in the morning, she had symptoms several times a day.

"I ended up going to analysis," she said, not knowing that it was not the type of therapy for phobias. Desperate for help, she talked the therapist into seeing her four times a week. It didn't help.

In the meantime, "I was going toevery medical specialist in the city.' When a friend finally showed her the article describing agoraphobia, she had a treatable diagnosis. She signed up at a center called TERRAP, a contraction of the words "territorial apprehension." The 18-month program was costly, but helpful for her severe condition. She learned behavior and cognitive techniques including gradual exposure and desensitization to feared places. But depression settled in when the group ended. THE TURNING POINT, Gogoleski said, was seeing the Rev. Jack Boland of the Church of Today in Warren speak on a television talk show about how a positive attitude

Polish history inspires successful trivia book

By Julie Brown staff writer

Do you know what Polish-Americans John Dingell, Barbara Mikulski and Clement Zablocki have in common? Can you name the religious order of sisters that arrived in the U.S. in 1874 and became the largest and most important Polish sisterhood in the country?

The answers (The three were elected to Congress; the Felician Sisters) are on page 26 of "The Polish Trivia Book," written by John Vraniak of Plymouth Township.

Vraniak's book came out in 1989 and is going through its third printing. That printing will take the book, published by Avenue Publishing Co. of Hamtramck, up to about 15,000

"It's doing real well," said Vraniak, a senior quality engineer with the Ford Motor Co. Powertrain Operations in Livonia. He describes his book as the exact opposite of a Polish joke book.

VRANIAK DOESN'T consider his book to be the opposite extreme, a tedious fextbook. It's easy to read, page.

but still provides plenty of informa-

'It allows people to pick it up in small doses, learn about the Polish experience," said Vraniak, who's mostly Polish and part Lithuanian and Slovak.

He began to think about writing such a book quite a few years ago. The game Trivial Pursuit came out in the early 1980s, and Vraniak (pronounced Ver-on-ic) noticed its popu-

He didn't want to produce a trivia game, and thought a book would be a better choice. Vraniak paid a great deal of attention to the book's format, wanting to make it readerfriendly. He talked to many people about the format, discussing it with Polish-Americans and others.

Answers to questions are found on the opposite page, meaning readers don't have to flip through the book to find what they want to know. Vraniak didn't sort the questions into catogories, such as sports or history, thinking that some readers might bypass such sections. Instead, questions from a number of different subject areas are found on each Vraniak, 37, did a great deal of research on questions and answers, relying on books, newspapers, magazines and other sources.

"I knew very little of it." Vraniak was surprised to learn that scientist Marie Curie was Polish, rather than French. (She was born Marie Sklodowska in 1867, and received the nickname "Madame" when she married a Frenchman.)

HE WAS ALSO interested to learn of the contributions Poles have made in U.S. wars, including the Revolutionary War. Polish-Americans have fought in all wars since the country's beginnings, he said, and have made significant contributions.

Vraniak, who grew up on the east side, didn't learn much about Polish and Polish-American history as a student in the Harper Woods schools. Such history typically isn't taught in school, he said, and many young Polish-Americans are unaware of the contributions their countrymen and women have made.

"Oh, absolutely. They know little or nothing."

Vraniak started his research in 1986 and took a couple of years to finish. He did research at area libraries, including the main branch of the Detroit Public Library.

At the time, he was traveling quite a bit for Ford, and found he could take materials with him on business trips and do work on planes and at other in-between times.

He didn't use a computer to put together information. Instead, Vraniak wrote questions and answers on 3-by-5 cards, which were easy to take along on trips. 'It worked out great." He was pleased to find a publisher without much difficulty, and knows many first-time authors aren't as fortunate. Vraniak enjoyed working with a local publisher.

VRANIAK SPEAKS and reads a little Polish, but got help from a translator with the Polish words and phrases in the book.

Vraniak's wife, Annette, was a tremendous help to him in working on the book. They have three children, ages 8, 6 and 3. Vraniak found it a challenge at times to work on the book while keeping up with the demands of his job and family life.

positive attitude. "I began to start a journal and look at my self talk."

She was "pretty amazed" to see that many thoughts were negative, and began changing her self talk to positive affirmations. She also set and achieved goals. "One day, I was sitting in a movie theater and I didn't feel like leaving, I didn't feel like dying," she said.

The change was so dramatic, she decided to start a support group.

The first group, at the Church of Today, drew 20 people. A Kelly and Company appearance caused it to triple overnight.

Today, she gets a lot of satisfaction from helping others. "My goal is that I would like to try and tap the people who are suffering from the problem everywhere."

The groups take the form of planned lessons, relaxation and discussion. They are not a replacement for other treatments of the anxiety disorder, still being studied by researchers. At A.I.M., a

THOSE WHO have found help and understanding from A.I.M. include a Royal Oak resident and business owner who now facilitates the Troy group.

Like Gogoleski, he suffered from panic attacks for years, and at one point, was unable to drive.

He attributes much of his recovery to A.I.M.

"Now when I have these experiences, I just say these affirmations and keep repeating them and everything subsides," he told a group of five at a recent meeting. "It's not easy getting better. But it's worthwhile. I can tell you right now, there's nothing

Writer finds things fit to print

Dear Lorene,

I am a 34-year-old male who never writes. Since I was in high school I have always printed. My job' requires everything in print so the only time I write is when I sign my name.

As I write to you now, I find that I have to pause a bit and think of the pen strokes needed just for this writ-

I thought it would be interesting to

Redford

I, too, thought it would be interesting to see what I discovered about your personality from your handwriting, but wish you had enclosed some of your printing for comparison and accuracy.

Our writer today is a young man who is most comfortable with the known, the predictable and the organized. He needs to be in control of his life and his situations to be at ease.

There is a basic optimism about our writer. At times, he may even get carried away with it. At other times, however, he must fight against mood swings.

In his interactions with others, he may come on strong trying to make an impression. However, once he finds the relationship progressing well, he feels more confident and able to let down the barrier. Rarely does he become emotionally involved. And there are times when he looks at others with envy.

This young man is gifted with a silver tongue and seldom finds himself at a loss for words and/or ideas. Literary interests are also here, Aspirations appear to reach highsee what my writing reveals about er than the amount of effort he is willing to put forth to bring them into reality. He has a strong need for material acquisitions. These may have a way of compensating for some deprivation he perceives from the formative years. It seems quite possible he experienced some sort of trauma early in life.

> Still, our writer adheres to much of the training of his early life. He is not too receptive to new theories or

He finds if he can put in "one good hour" of work early in the morning he manages. Vraniak has a sequel due out in early 1992, and was busy in recent years doing that research and writing.

"The format will be identical, but it's all new information." The second book will also published by Avenue.

"The Polish Trivia Book" is most well-known in the Detroit area, he said, and has started to do well in other cities with a large Polish-American population, including Chicago, New York, Cleveland, Milwaukee and Pittsburgh.

"It's still a relatively unknown quantity,", said Vraniak, who invited readers to write to him through his publisher with any comments. He's received 75 to 100 letters, and hasn't heard any negative responses.

Some younger people have bought "The Polish Trivia Book" as a gift for a parent or grandparent. They've ended up reading it themselves, learning a great deal in the process.

He's found some people are surprised that an engineer would write a non-technical book. Vraniak would eventually like to work on writing full time. He's proud of his Polish ancestry, but isn't necessarily bothered by those who tell Polish jokes. It's easy to tell when such a joke-teller's belligerent, he said.

"For the most part, they're not. A lot of those same people truly appre-clate what the Polish have accomplished."

John Vraniak will sign copies of his book during the Plymouth Fall Festival, noon to 2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 8, at Little Professor On the Park, 380 S. Main, north of Ann Arbor Trail in Plymouth.

There's a tad of chauvinism here, I believe. Our writer would not be comfortable in a subordinate position to female authority. And he wishes to be perceived by others as more self-assured than he may inwardly feel.

Some indecisiveness here can make it difficult to arrive at decislons. He may also have a problem following through with projects, especially lengthy ones. His preference Please use a full sheet of white is for immediate results and actions.

There is an element of self-consclousness about our writer. Criticism, especially of his appearance, and constructive feedback is welcan strike a sensitive chord.

Before closing I would like to reiterate what I have sald many times before. Printers are often people with talent in art, design, engineering and other areas that require it.

Ohio native finds a friendly welcome north of border

By Julie Brown staff writer

The Rev. Paul While knows that Oblo State graduates are in the minority in western Wayne County. Even so, he decided to travel north to Michigan and appreciates the warm welcome he's received.

White, who grew up in the Columbus area, earned a bachelor's degree in psychology from Ohio State University. He's the new pastor at the First Baptist Church of Plymouth, and opted to wear OSU's scarlet and gray his first Sunday at the church. At least one worshiper wore maize and blue that day.

"So I think there will be a lot of good-natured teasing," White said.

Before coming to Plymouth, White was pastor of Calvary Baptist Church in Rio Grande, Ohlo, a com-

'We've been just overwhelmed by the love and the friendship, the generosity that has been exhibited to us aiready. It just seems to be a very friendly and loving church.'

- The Rev. Paul White First Baptist Church of Plymouth the original Bob Evans farm and restaurant.

He'd been chaplain at the University of Rio Grande in Ohio and then became the university's executive director of counseling services, handling those duties while also serving as the church's pastor.

WHITE, WHO earned a master's degree in counseling psychology from Florida State University, didn't enter the ministry in his 20s. He worked first as a counselor and later as a university administrator.

"Then at age 38, I left that field and went off to seminary," said White, 45. He earned a master of divinity degree from Ashland Theological Seminary in Ashland, Ohio, in White had felt the call to the ministry as a teenager. "I argued with Him for a number of years before finally giving in and accepting the

He realized he wouldn't be completely happy doing anything else until he accepted that call.

White discovered many other students at the seminary were in their . 30s or older. He was involved in student government and recalled that only one of the five officers was under 30.

He's found that having experience in another field has helped him as a pastor. Such experience can make a pastor more sympathetic to the realities of life for laypeople trying to give their best to God and the church munity known for being the home of while handling family and work responsibilities.

> CALVARY BAPTIST Church in Ohlo was White's first assignment after he finished at the seminary. He and his family recently arrived at the church on North Territorial in Plymouth Township. "We've been just overwhelmed by the love and the friendship, the generosity that has been exhibited to us already. It just seems to be a very friendly and loving church."

White's wife, Connie, is a reference librarian and plans to look for work in her field. They have three sons. Matthew, 17, a junior at Plymouth Salem High School, recently returned from a mission trip to Guatemala. Timothy, 13, is a seventh grader at West Middle School and Joseph, 9, is a third grader at Bird Elementary School.

"We have been made to feel very, very welcome here. It's our prayer that we will be able to live up to the kindness and the love that everyone has extended to us so far."

He came to interview and give a trial sermon at the church in mid-July, and was in Plymouth for his birthday and wedding anniversary. Church members provided a cake at the end of dinner in honor of both occasions. Worshipers also spent many hours fixing up the parsonage, and have shown a great deal of hospitality since the family arrived.

WHITE AND his wife enjoy traveling and walking. He's busy these days at work figuring out the church's computer system. His duties at the First Baptist Church of Plymouth will include preaching, counseling and pastoral care.

"My first goal is just to get to know the people." He's getting to know the community and the congregation. White's looking forward to working with church members to develop a mission.

He was raised in the Methodist church, and began worshiping at a Baptist church while in graduate school at Florida State University. White was baptized at that church in Tallahassee and served as a deacon.

White hasn't been to Ann Arbor just yet, but imagines he'll get there eventually. He remembers being asked by a church member during his initial telephone interview if he could take a position so close to the University of Michigan.

White replied that it would be OK to do so now that OSU football coach Woody Hayes is dead. One of the church members promptly responded that White could be considered for the job now that Bo Schembechler has left U-M.

"So I think we'll have a good time with it," said White, who doesn't consider such a good-natured rivalry inappropriate for Christians.

Our enemies also should be in our prayers

We returned to Haiti for a work project a while ago. We discovered much to our surprise that the people we had come to know in that country had been praying for us and our church during the year or so we had been gone.

What a surprise! Those in deep trouble praying for people who have very few troubles. I discovered the same among friends in Czechoslovakia. They had been praying for the problems which they have heard about in our nation. They were praying for our crime and drug problems. They were praying about our violence and our build-up of arms. They were praying for personal needs here in our family when they heard about them. Again I was surprised Will poor people pray for rich people? Will African-Americans pray for whites? Will the homeless pray for those of us who are comfortably housed?

WHEN I REFLECT upon this phenomenon, I realize that it is perfectly natural. It is not surprising. Those who think they have it tled up neatly, such do not need to pray. Certainly, they do not need to pray for folks who remind them of their human and God-given responsibility to share with the less fortunate.

Compassion is important in our religious traditions. Compassion may only be a word if it is not related to experience. A religion which suggests that I pray for my soul and my family is incomplete. It is only humane and true if compassionate prayers and deeds reach out beyond our own. Unfortunately, the trend is the opposite.

Money and the greed for more money is the god of our society. It is important that we counteract this. We need to counteract this not only with our teaching but with our human contact.

It is especially important now to have personal contact with people in need. It is important to have contact with people who have experienced tyranny. We need to find persons who exemplify a human and spiritual greatness. This is a greatness that would be found in the oppressed who pray for the op--pressor. It is the poor Haitian who prays for his or her rich brother and sister in the faith.

THERE IS AN old tradition in our religious heritage wherein prayer is made for government leaders. Some would believe that this suggests support for their policy. But no, prayer has been made.... for political leaders with whom we disagree. During the war in Vietnam, there were Vietnamese Christians who prayed for the head of a government who was killing their people. For me, this is a radical statement about life. Pray for your enemies. Pray for those who abuse you. Pray for them and love those who have power over you and your social class.

Pray that they will have love and compassion reborn in them. Pray that they will seek peace and justice. Pray that they will consider the cries of the needy. The power which changes life for the better comes from within.

Yet it has the power to touch the most hard heart. This is the truth that many believing people have who have faced the greatest difficulty. It is a radical statement about life.

The Rev. David T. Strong is pastor of Central United Methodist Church in Detroit.

To be part of the solution, not part of the problem.

Times change. There was once a time when we thought that providing the very best community news coverage was enough.

Today it's not. Today we have a responsibility not only to our readers and advertisers, but also to our environment.

That's why 30% of the newsprint we put on our press has been recycled. This will increase when our other suppliers bring recycled newsprint on line later this year.

Our communities and the entire State of Michigan face a solid waste crisis.

There used to be 624 Type II landfills in Michigan*. The trash from your home, your neighbor's homes and the businesses in your town goes into a Type II landfill. As you read this, there are only 71 of them still open and licensed to do business. That's 71 in all of Michigan's 83 counties. Estimates say one-third of these will be out of business in less than five years.

So what can a business like ours do to be part of the solution and not part of the problem?

We're buying and printing your newspaper on recycled newsprint. We're looking for other recycled products to use in our business. We're recycling all of our newsprint and office paper. We're working to increase public awareness and participation. We're encouraging our readers to recycle.

How can you help? Why not begin with this newspaper; recycle it along with others you may have collected. Then start buying recycled products. Spread the word about those landfills and recycle this page by sharing it with a friend.

And if you are already recycling—thank you.

4 bronze reliefs capture spirit of civil rights hero

Bob Sklar editor/953-2113

By William Coutant. staff writer

HEN SCULPTOR Sergio De Giusti was commissioned to make four bronze reliefs to honor the life and work of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. for Eastern Michigan University, it affirmed to him that the slain civil rights leader's dream of racial tolerance included all people,

5. The Italian-born sculptor, who lives in and has his studio in Redford Township, said the Art on Campus Committee asked him to complete the project after the artist originally selected, Oscar Graves, died of a heart attack.

"They gave me quite a bit of llberty," De Glusti said. "They had enough faith in me that I wouldn't embarrass them."

The reliefs are a part of the Martin Luther King Gardens between Welch and Boon halls on Eastern's campus. A committee, started in 1986, began raising money to landscape a garden with flowering trees and shrubs and a bust of King.

THE ART on Campus Committee then joined the project with the idea of adding reliefs depicting four milestones in King's life: The Montgomery bus boycott, the letter from the Birmingham Jail, the "I Have a Dream" speech, and King receiving the Nobel We've always had a verysuccessful celebration of King," said Juanita Reid, a member of the Aris on Campus Committee. "But we wanted a different kind of recognition of King because his message is everlasting."

De Giusti, who has been sculpting for a living full-time for five years, had no doubts about his ability. But he had some concerns about taking on the project.

"I thought, How can a white person do this relief?' But we are all a part of what he worked for. Race was not the only Issue for King. It (racial strife) was the crisis that led him (in his work). You've got to stick to what you believe in."

De Giusti took on the project, starting with clay, then using plaster before having the final bronze reliefs cast. The 49-year-old said he wanted the reliefs to convey a message, but one that had to be interpreted, not one that came at the viewer like a photograph.

"I work right from the clay." De Glusti sald. "I don't use sketches. I want a more psychological effect, not just to translate a photograph

AND THE reliefs, which vary in size, some as large as 16 by 22 feet, are anything but replicas of photos The bus boycott relief shows blacks linked arm to arm, the "I Have a Dream" relief has an image of Abraham Lincoln in the background while King delivers his famous address in the foreground. and the letter from the Birmingham Jail relief shows King in an almost Papal pose, with jail bars and church windows in the background. The relief of the Nobel Prize includes the medal, part of

King's casket on a wagon and his hand reaching skyward.

De Giusti said the Redford Township Library provided him with his best and most complete information about the life and accomplishments of King.

"Once I got into it, I really enjoyed it," De Giusti said. "I wanted (the Nobel Prize relief) to show that anyone can reach great heights. I'lust wanted to give clues.

The sculptor's more interpretive, less heavy-handed approach to depicting the meaning of King's life has not gone unnoticed. At the January ceremony to honor King on Eastern's campus, the plaster casts of the reliefs were displayed.

"The woman who spoke therecame up to me afterward and thanked me for doing the reliefs," he said. "She said: 'We just don't nced any more busts of the man."

THE COMMITTEE came up with the idea of four events in the life of King after consulting A. P. Marshall, a former dean at EMU, and an authority on Black American history in the area. Marshall has met and written articles about King.

Marshall said the reliefs are "as good as any for what they wanted to communicate. The symbols represent what the man stood for. He meant something different to everyone. Women and gays have benefited because he made the individual more important."

And so a man, who came to this country from Italy at the age of 14 has attempted to recreate in symbols the life and teachings of the most famous civil rights leader In our history. .... ...

in the "Bus Boycott" relief, De Guisti shows riders arm-inarm, a symbol for the unity during the Birmingham, Ala., boycott and beyond for the civil rights movement.

De Guisti said he likes the way Dr. Martin Luther King Jr,'s hairline adds to his papal appearance in the "Letter from Jail" relief.

Like almost everybody, I've spent great deal of time lately watching television. Frankly, I have been concerned that, if I dare to look away, some new, earth-changing event will occur and I will have missed seeing it at the very moment it took place.

It's gotten to the point that if I happen to wake up in the middle of the night, I immediately start groping for the TV switch. Who knows what new country may have been formed as I slept, what longstanding ideology declared null and void, what leader ousted, what visible or invisible walls sent tumbling down? I wish I knew more about the Soviet Union. Toward this end, I plan to go there some time, and not just to visit Moscow and Leningrad, but also to see places like Taganrog, the birthplace of Chekov, or Yasnaya Polyana, where Tolstof was born.

IN THE meantime, here's a sampling of recent fiction and non-fiction that can provide a closer look at that vast, mysterious place and its

• "The Turn: From the Cold War to a New Era: The United States and the Soviet Union, 1983-1990" by Don Oberdorfer (Poseldon).

Washington Post correspondent Oberdorfer was present at all the USA-USSR summit meetings during the last decade, covering the events and interviewing the participants. His up-close observations and conclusions go to make up this hefty volome. Gorbachev receives high marks as does former Secretary of State George Shultz.

• "Stalin: Triumph and Tragedy" hy Dmitri Volkogonov, edited and translated by Harold Shukman (Grove Weidenfeld).

Perhaps one of the most noteworthy aspects of this no-holds-barred biography of Stalin is that it comes from a Soviet source. Volkogonov is à historian and a deputy in Russia's parliament. Also noteworthy: Volkogonov's father was a casualty of one of Stalin's many purges.

"The Irony Tower: Soviet Artists in a Time of Glasnost" by An-

book break Victoria Diaz

drew Solomon (Knopf).

This focuses on avant garde artists from enclaves in Moscow and Leningrad who, a decade ago, were forbidden to exhibit their works in public. Solomon is a British journalist who. covered Sotheby's historic auction of their paintings in Moscow in 1988.

• "The New Russians" by Hedrick Smith (Avon-paperback). Comprehensive study of the Soviet Union today, even as it changes.

• "The New Soviet Journalism: The Best of the Soviet Weekly Ogonyok" edited by Vitaly Korotich, translated by Cathy Porter (Beaconpaperback).

Ogonyok, a progressive Soviet journal, published these 32 articles in 1988 and 1989. The pieces explore such matters as the chronic Soviet food shortages, anti-semitism in Leningrad, organized crime in the Soviet Union, contraception and abortion in Moscow. Photos complement the collection. Korotich edits Oronyk.

• "Gorbachev: Heretic in the Kremlin" by Dusko Doder and Louise Branson (Penguin-paperback).

Thought-provoking commentary on perestrolka, glasnost and the Gorbachev era, written by two worldclass journalists wise in the ways of the Kremlin.

• "Every Hunter Wants To Know: A Leningrad Life" by Mikhall Iossel (Norton).

A collection of 10 short stories, many of which are set in Iossel's native Leningrad (he now lives in the United States). A taste of pre-andpost-glasnost.

• "Catalyst" by Philip Cornford (Bantam).

Espionage thriller by Austrian journalist Cornford features KGB and CIA operatives, and the fictional Vigilantes for Peace, who apparently aim to stop at nothing in order to attain their goal of total nuclear dis-

• "Aysa" by Michael Ignatieff

Extravagant first novel by this BBC television journalist is filled with romance, tragedy, intrigue.

A story about the Livonia Arts Commission's challenge grant to the Livonia Symphony in the Creative Living section Thursday, Aug. 29, should have stressed that the grant is new this year.

Last year, the commission gave a symphony. This year, the symphony than last.

hasn't yet approached the commission to do so again.

The symphony has, however, successfully raised $3,000 on its own to match and secure the $3,000 challenge grant from the commission.

So there's the potential for financial support from the commission to $5,500 concert sponsorship to the the symphony to be greater this year

Owners apply different strategies when sales stall

By Janice Brunson staff writer

So, you're planning to move and you've listed the house for sale at a fair market price, carefully selecting an able real estate agent to handle the deal.

Everything is in order and the wait begins, a trying time during " which you hope for a reasonable offer that signals a sale.

Alas, too often sellers find there is no such signal in today's real estate market. A sale does not materialize in a timely manner.

Owner response to such a dilemma varies widely, depending upon the motivation for selling a home in the first place.

Alice, a 50-year-old Farmington Hills woman who is in the midst of a messy divorce, is ambivilant about selling the family home where she pending divorce. and her husband, an auto executive who left a year ago, reared two chil-

The house, a contemporary twostory structure, has been on the market 10 months. The current listing expires in two weeks.

Alice, who doesn't want her full name used for legal reasons, would like to sell the home because divorce proceedings cannot be finalized until then. But she is in no hurry to do so because her husband, pays the monthly mortgage and supplies her with a living allowance, buying Alice time to adjust to divorced status in the supportive comfort of the family

"WHAT I'D LIKE to do is stay put," she said, knowing full well the Buyers regularly tour the house but an offer of purchase has yet to be made, even though the asking price has been reduced from $345,000 to $305,000. "I guess I'll just have to . hang in there," Alice said.

For now, she refuses to lower the price any further and when the listing comes due, she intends to relist with a new agent.

Pat and Jim Glionna of West Bloomfield are more intent on selling their 3,000-square-foot, tri-level home which has been reduced $5,000 to an asking price of $249,900. They first listed for sale in May.

The Glionnas have purchased property in downtown Toronto and are currently building a home there. sale of the home here to complete does not sell, they are considering refinancing, according to Pat Glion-

"We thought about renting (the West Bloomfield house). We decided no. We'll sell. When it didn't sell, we again thought about renting. But we decided to stick with our original deeision, which was to sell.

"Now we have no intention of centing. We'll keep it on the market until it finally goes," she said. "Hey, it's only been four months."

THE GLIONNAS do not rule out reconsidering renting the house if it does not sell by early next year when their new home in Toronto is expected to be completed. Then, they will move their furniture, which Pat They are depending on cash from the feels adds to the selling potential of the house here, home must be sold as part of the construction of the new house. If it, For now, the house is regularly shown to interested buyers and the couple is considering another possible reduction in asking price.

Patricia and Steve Cramer of Birmingham have had their remodeled storybook home listed for sale since March following an intense six months during which they converted the basement into an exercise, laundry and storage room complete with : a built-in wine vault.

The house is one of four for sale in their neighborhood. Nobody, according to Patricia Cramer, has had luck in selling. While hordes of buyers regularly tour their home, and they have reduced the selling price from $275,000 to $264,500, there have been no offers of purchase.

The listing with their current realtor comes due in mid-September. "We're not going to relist. We've decided to stay. We're not under any pressure to move," she said.

The couple originally decided to sell in order to purchase property in either Birmingham or Bloomfield Hills and construct the Victorianstyled home of their dreams.

We were more or less testing the market. Now we're going to wait until the market picks up," she sald,

, A stimulated market may be just around the cornor, the result of recently reduced interest rates, for home loans, according to Allen King, president of the Western Wayne Oakland Association of Realtors.

"The lowered rates have produced a very favorable impact, the fuel for home purchase among first-time buyers and people wanting to move up," King said.

Soil contamination demands thorough investigation

When we purchased our condominium, the developer denied anything about the levels of contaminants in the soils around our condominium. We have just determined that the attorney for our managing agent is also the attorney for our association. These facts were never disclosed, elther by the managing agent or the attorney. # Builders take unusual steps to reach buyers

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

In the vast spectrum of sales, few challenges have proved as daunting as selling new homes.

Some marketing efforts are directed at attracting potential buyers, some are directed at bringing lookers back, and others are directed at people who have already bought - which not only thanks the buyer, but generates good feelings and word of mouth advertising.

NOSAN/COHEN Associates of West Bloomfield introduced its newest Woods of Novi development in Novi with a "sneaker" preview for Realtors back in April. "It was a complete success."

President Lawrence Cohen said the marketing effort was aimed at Realtors, not buyers. Cohen said some builders shy away from using Realtors for selling homes and instead rely on in-house sales staff, but he has always believed they can be a valuable component of a sales strat-

Builders often target Realtors for marketing efforts with the idea of getting them interested in a project.

Cohen mailed 1,500 single sneakers in plastic tubes with brochures and an invitation to a "Sneaker Preview" at the development. Invitees brought the sneaker with them where they were matched with partners to make a pair.

"Then we sent the sneakers to the Pontiac Lighthouse (an organization that helps the needy) so they could give them to needy children," he

Response to the campaign was nearly 70 percent. "That's double what I expected."

"I was never one for grand openings - when people come to grand openings they expect perfect, they expect clean," Cohen said.

The truth is the landscaping isn't. done and the streets are dirty," he said. "Generally, (the development's) still rough around the edges.'

So rather than a grand opening, or a sneak preview, the idea for a sneaker preview was proposed.

The promotion combines the elements of the rough conditions found at building sites in early spring hence the need to wear sneakers and the idea of an early opening. The term "sneaker preview" comes from the idea that models are previewed before they are completed.

CLASSIC CONSTRUCTION in

Builders are constantly looking for new ways to make their projects stick out in people's minds. For example, Jaikins Investment Development Corporation in Orchard Lake put on a pig roast to engender good feelings in potential homeowners and also to thank people who had already bought in the company's Milford Bluffs project.

West Bloomfield raised awareness of transferees - with a Japanese open house July 21.

Dave Botsford, marketing director, noticed several months ago that a good number of potential buyers at the development were Japanese transferees or immigrants. On reflection, he said, it made perfect

Western Oakland and Wayne County's Asian population has grownsignificantly during the past decade as Japanese owned and operated companies have moved offices and technical centers to the area.

But a bigger part of the Maples of its 900-unit Maples of Novi project Novi's attraction is the on-site golf by targeting a specific group of course. To join a golf club in Japan home buyers — Japanese would cost $1 million, to buy a home on a gold course would cost $3 mil-

And many Japanese transferees have housing allowances that makes homes in Maples of Novi affordable.

Botsford sald Classic Construction's Japanese open house was meant to accomplish several things, but the main idea was to make them feel comfortable. Home lists, feature lists, brochures, even advertisements, were translated into Japanese so people could readily under-

Japanese foods were served, a for-mai Japanese tea was given, and interpreters were on hand. "They (the interpreters) worked really well because many of the wives can't speak English."

The initial open house attracted more than 50 couples, he said, but the residual effect has been even more promising. "What we were looking for was to start something that would generate referrals several months down the road."

JAIKINS INVESTMENT Development in Orchard Lake took a different tack when it offered a pig roast at its 46-unit detached condominium development Milford Bluffs in the Village of Milford.

Vice president Linda Friedman said the purpose behind the plg roast was to thank new homeowners and enable homeowners to get together with their neighbors. Builders showing their appreciation to customers is becoming more common, Friedman pointed out. In addition to thanking residents, the roast had another purpose and that was to show prospective buyers the type of development Milford

Some potential home buyers who had expressed interest in the development were also invited, Friedman said. "We sent some of our sales brochures and follow-up cards inviting

The idea, she said, is to make people feel welcome and to make them feel as if they're part of something special.

A builder does more than sell a home today, Friedman said; they sell a place to live. Activities like a pig roast draw a development together and create a sense of goodwill.

That, in turn, gets people talking, and a builder just can't buy that kind of advertising.

THE HERMAN FRANKEL Organization's Artistry theme uses still another technique to build a marketing approach around the development.

The idea began as a love for a painting, said Laurie Frankel, marketing director for the Herman Frankel Organization.

Her father, Herman, first saw the abstract painting by Helen Cavensky about six years ago; that painting is now reproduced on the Frankel signs and sales brochures.

The idea behind the artistry theme is to convey that the company's homes are interesting, good pleces

Frankel's Woodcliff, Woodcliff on the Lake and Simsbury projects in West Bloomfield are presented as more than just homes — they are creative, she said,

. "With our homes, we look into every single detail, so they are artistic in a sense," she said.

After buying the painting six years ago, the idea of how to use it in a marketing effort began to evolve, she said. "Homes are more than just two by fours slapped in a square.

"I think a lot of frustrated artists are architects and a lot of frustrated

The artistry not only includes the art of building, but the decor as well. The Wyndam model home at Woodcliff is decorated with several different kinds of art pieces.

The image of the Cavensky painting also serves to generate interest in another way.

"I think the idea intrigues people - people see the painting, but don't know what it is," she said. People are curious, and that leads them to look further.

"I've had people say they thought it was a bunch of balloons and I've had them say it's (a depiction) of flowers," she said.

Architect issues idea magazine to spark interest in new homes

Robert Bryce, an architect, figures the more people know, the better chance business has never been better. they wanted it (their house) to be," they'll get what they want.

By Doug Funke staff writer

Robert Bryce enjoys architecture. So much so that the 37-year-old West Bloomfield resident has begun publishing a bi-monthly idea magazine on building, decorating and lifestyles as an extension of his architectural practice in that community. The first issue was distributed free last month to some 2,000 clients, friends, associates and other referrals who may be interested in home building topics. The long-term goal is free distribution of a 178-page publication to 60,000 every other month.

"If someone is planning on build-ing, renovating or remodeling, this is, something someone would keep as a reference book, a source book, like Reader's Digest or National Geographic," Bryce said.

'We're trying to make it a combination of Building Ideas Magazine, Homes & Gardens and Architecture Digest. Exactly what our magazine is trying to do is pique interest, create interest," he said.

"The purpose is to promote good architecture, exhibit good architecture, highlight people capable of doing these things," Bryco said. "It's definitely a good way for us to get our name out in the community, but We're swamped."

Other architects produce sales brochures, but Bryce knows of nothing here that compares to his maga-

"It seems like they've taken some initiative," said Robert Ziegelman, president-elect of the Detroit chapter of the American Institute of Architects, who admitted to not seeing the initial issue.

Companies in other industries put out house organs, so why not archltects, VanderKloot reasons. "Architects can capitalize on an exchange of information better than other industries because every job is new," he said.

KNOWLEDGE LEADS to more informed choices, said Lisa Fantuzzi, marketing director for Bryce's firm who is in charge of the maga-

"It may well spark interest and people will take a more active interest. Maybe they won't rely on an architect to say, 'This is the kind of house you want,' "she said.

"Lisa brought out a good point the other day," Bryce said. "What we want to eliminate is people saying, Twish I had done that. If we can show them, they can do it." An encounter with a couple from

Vermont who hired the firm a year and a half ago to design a house supplied the spark that prompted Bryce to launch the publication. "The clients put together a book of what they liked, didn't like and wanted. They spent years collecting informailon. They taped things on blank pages. There were several hundred

"What really excites the publicis period decorating," says Rhett Sypher, president of Shoal Creek of Anniston, Ala. "High tech and contemporary do not sell very Sypher says 95 percent of his company's 800 styles are traditional. Many have period defailing that fits into rooms with Victorian, neoclassical, French country, 18th-century or even Russian court decorating schemes.

Interest in 20th-century designs appears to stop at the Arts & Crafts period, which began about 1888. That era is especially rich as a source for lighting since it coincided with early electrification of American homes. New York City, for example, was electrified in the

The cost of period originals designed by famous early 20th-century designers such as Gustav Stickley, Dirk Van Erp and Frank Lloyd Wright puts them out of reach of most consumers. But reproductions that recreate the feeling are readily available.

One popular style reminiscent of the period uses mica lampshades. The mica sheets treated with shellac to give them a smoky amber translucence are handled like stained glass and inserted into metal channels.

WHEN SHOAL CREEK first offered mica-shade lamps in Arts & Crafts styles two years ago, they were popular enough for the company to add to the collection. Now there are 18 styles at prices ranging from $200 to $500. Mica shades are also available on other lamps for about $100 extra.

Jerry Cohen of The Mission Oak Shop in Woodstock, Conn., reports that pricey reproductions of arts

Home lighting trends offer lamps and fixtures by Stickley, Van Erp and Wright are doing In fact, the mass market is aglow -well all around the country. The lamps, which sell for $425 to $5,500 each, are made by Michael Adams, a Syracuse, N.Y., crafts-

> Cohen started buying the reproductions to sell in his antiques store in 1984 after he saw them in a Syracuse antiques shop. He began distributing Adams' lamps nationwlde in 1987.

> "Some antiques dealers don't. like reproductions because they think they undercut sales of the originals," he says: "I don't think we are going to ruin our market. We don't have many customers who can pay $50,000 for a lamp, but we do have customers who can pay $2,000 or $3,000."

> ALTHOUGH ORIGINALS by top names are scarce and expensive, there is a good supply of less exalted turn-of-the-century lighting, according to Bill Langton, a Norwalk, Conn., dealer. Langton reconditions old lamps he finds at auctions and house sales, antiques stores and flea markets.

He says demand is driving up prices and creating scarcity in a field where 20 years ago finding customers was the biggest problem. For example, a gasolier (a hanging gas lamp converted to electric) that sells for $1,000 today went for about $150 in 1970. A converted brass oil lamp with a glass shade that once sold for $45 now runs about $170.

Besides specialty stores such as Langton's Ye Olde Lamp Shop, other sources for old lighting are auctions, estate sales and, if you are lucky, flea markets. Typically, those bought as-is need new wiring and socket replacements If brass, they require refinishing.

Here's how to stop burglars

(AP)If you worry about burglars — and most of glars will phone to learn if anyone is at home. us do - there is much you can do to prevent illegal entry. Here is some information that can reduce your chances of being burglarized and provide you with greater peace of mind.

• If you spot people in your neighborhood behaving suspiciously, notify the police immediate-

For example, burglars often cruise in pairs. Upon seeing an empty garage or a car pulling out of a driveway, they ring the doorbell. If someone answers, they ask an innocent question and leave. If there is no response, they try to enter the home.

• Speak to your local police to find out which entry methods intruders favor in your area. Then, examine your home for weak points.

• Burglars commonly enter through an unlocked door, break in through a cellar window, break simple locks on doors or use force until the screws burst out of the wood or the frame gives

Replace a hollow wooden door or flimsy door frame with a solid wooden (or even a steel) door mounted in a sturdy frame. Then equip the door, with a deadbolt lock. A good bolt is one inch thick is and has a 1-inch throw.

· Overgrown shrubbery and high hedges provide as much privacy for burglars as they do for you. Keep hedges trimmed, prune tree branches and remove trellises - especially if they provide access to second-floor windows. Keep basement windows - a favorite entry point for burglars locked and free of follage.
