Recall effort meets another roadblock

Wayne County elections officials consider petitions to recall three Wayne-Westland school board members -- Kathleen Chorbagian, Andrew Spisak and Leonard Posey - who are seated in the background. The elections commission rejected the petitions.

Welty criticizes effort to recall board members

By Darrell Clem

A recall effort against three Wayne-Westland school board members stumbled a second time Monday, as county elections officials again rejected the proposed petitions that recall organizers had hoped to circulate.

Though disappointed, recall leaders immediately revised the petitions in preparation for a third bout, and committee chairman Steven Lind hand-delivered them to the county elections office on Wednesday.

On Monday, the three-member Wayne County Elections Commission voted 2-1 to reject the petitions, citing wording problems. The action came during a hearing in Detroit attended by recall leaders, Wayne-Westland school Superintendent Dennis O'Neill and the three schoolboard members targeted for recall - Kathleen Chorbagian, Leonard Posey and Andrew Spisak.

"It's quite apparent to me that there is political pressure" being placed on the commission, Lind charged. "I'm not going to make any accusations as to who or what or why."

Recall supporter Kenneth Raupp, a vocal school board critic, called the process "a joke" after the hearing ended Monday.

That drew a sharp response from Chorbagian, who said, "How can youcall it a joke? We're taking this very seriously."

VISIBLY PLEASED with Monday's decision. Chorbagian said, "I'm elated that so much common sense prevails down here at the elections commission."

Spisak described himself as "happy and pleased" with the elections commission's ruling.

"Once again, I think it's a shame that disgruntled people are going to try to recall us because we're doing our jobs," he said. "Now it's getting to the point that it's vindictive. I think they (recall leaders) just want - cational programs" while simultatheir 15 minutes in the sun."

Posey criticized recall organizers for seeking a special recall election that would cost the school district $12,000.

"It costs money, and that's unfortunate," he said. "It's a waste of time. I've not run across anybody in our, community that's in favor of this.'

O'Neill said the repeated proceedings in the recall effort point out the flaws in state recall legislation. "This is a crazy way to do business," he said.

DURING MONDAY'S hearing; elections commissioners Raymond Wojtowicz and Fred Burton voted to deny the proposed petition language, which must be approved before the recall committee can collect the 4,420 signatures it needs from voters. Only then can a special recall election be set.

The commissioners cited problems with petition language that read, in part, "We believe (board members) did not represent the people by voting in favor of cuts to eduneously approving teacher pay raises of 11.9-percent.

Wayne-Westland school board member Vicki Welty lashed out, Monday at a recall committee trying to force three other board members from office.

Welty, in an unsolicited telephone" call to the Observer, said she felt compelled to speak out against the "ludicrous" recall effort that she plans to lobby against.

"I think it's time we mend our community - not tear it apart," Welty, the board's vice president, said.

The recall committee wants to oust board members Kathleen Chorbagian, Leonard Posey and Andrew Spisak for approving an 11.9-percent teacher pay raise, amid an earlier budget crunch that had threatened massive school program cuts.

The recall effort doesn't target Welty or board members Laurel Raisanen and Fred Warmbier, who were not on the board when the cuts were approved. It also is not aimed at board President Sylvia Kozorosky-Wlacek, who voted against many of the cuts.

Kozorosky-Wiacek has said she doesn't support the recall. Raisanen and Warmbler haven't made public statements either supporting or condemning it.

Welty questioned why recall leaders want to "waste money" on a special recall election when they have been some of the harshest critics of wasteful spending. An election would cost $12,000, and the board would have to pay the tab.

Though Welty said she has often disagreed with Chorbagian, Posey and Spisak, she defended their right to vote their conscience on the board.

"That's all any of us can do," she

Man, 19, charged in mobile home assault

By Darrell Clem staff writer

A Westland woman sleeping in bed was threatened at knifepoint early Sunday morning when she awoke to find an intruder in her bedroom, Westland police said.

Police have charged 19-year-old Kristopher Erik Myers of Westland with assault with a dangerous weapon and breaking and entering an occupied dwelling in the 2:30 a.m. incldent. It occurred in Westland Meadows, a mobile home park at Van Born and Merriman in the city's southeast end.

A plea of not guilty was entered on Myers' behalf during an arraignment this week in Westland's 18th District Court, said David Wiacek, court administrator. Myers has been scheduled for a preliminary examination on Sept: 26 to determine if he should face trial on the charges. Wiacek said.

Westland gas station robbed at knifepoint

By Darrell Clem staff writer

A knife-wielding man robbed a Marathon gas station in Westland early Sunday morning, just hours after he made numerous but nonthreatening telephone calls to the station attendant.

The attendant, an 18-year-old Garden City woman, told police that she had received 10 to 15 telephone calls before 1 a.m. Sunday from a man who called her "sweetheart" and said he knew what she was wearing.

Though the calls didn't Indicate a robbery was planned, a man described as in his mid-30s walked into the station wielding a six-inch knife at 5:11 a.m. and said to the attendant,

The attendant said the man was white, thin, had short brown hair and wore a dark blue Tshirt and jeans. He also wore framed eyeglasses, she told police. He escaped in a dark blue van, possibly a Chevy, she told police.

Westland police continued to investigate the robbery on Tuesday, and it was not thought to be connected to three other armed robberles. that have occurred in the city since Sept. 4, said Sgt. Don Haigh of the Westland Police Department's detective bureau.

Cooper fence to stay until site is safe

By Marle Chestney staff writer

The eight-foot fence being erected around the Cooper school grounds will not come down until the site is safe to walk on, Michigan Department of Natural Resources representative Mary Vanderlaan told a group of parents Tuesday at an informational meeting in a Westland park.

The parents had invited Vanderlaan to answer questions parents still might have over the DNR investigation of the Cooper site, a former landfill.

While much of what is to come, including how long the investigation will take, is still uncertain and depends on what is found at the site, Vanderlaan was sure of one point. "The whole object of our work is to make the property so good that people can have direct contact with the surface," Vanderlaan said. "Then there'll be no need for the fence."

IT'S A' SAFE bet the fence will be up for the next two-to-three years, Vanderlaan

And it would stay up longer if groundwater found under the Cooper site is found to be contaminated, she said, as the source of the contaminant then would have to be tracked. However, whether the building itself will ever be used again to house students remains highly questionable, she said. "The question is, how what is in the landfill will affect the school building," Vanderlaan said. Former Cooper students are now attending Whittler school, which is directly across the street. Right now, crews are digging post holes around the 43-acre site on Ann'Arbor Trail east of Middlebelt. Chain link fencing will soon be attached to the posts, and yellow "hazardous substance" signs attached to the fence.

The DNR is now working with Wayne County to get them to put up a fence around portions of the former landfill owned by Wayne County, including Dead Man's Hill on Edward Hines Drive, Vanderlaan said.

Many Cooper parents have opposed sending their children to Whittier because they fear toxic fumes or dust might be released during the clean-up and contaminate the neighborhood, including Whittler. At Tuesday's meeting, Vanderlaan said the work plan includes air monitoring and that little dust will be raised during the site investigation and clean-up.

"The work being done there, digging soll borings and wells, won't create a lot of dust. And they're not going to dlg out the landfill and haul it away. Dust may come when a cap is laid but that's clean soll."

ONCE THE site has been thoroughly investigated, Vanderlaan said it could be cleaned up as follows:

First, a liner would be laid over the land; Then a clay cap could be laid over the liner;

Then fill soll would be laid over the clay; And then a sealer would be put over the entire grounds.

DNR officials have estimated the cost of the clean-up could run as high as $10 million.

If the grounds are capped, trees on the site would be removed so that their roots don't break the cap, and building foundations could never be dug into the land, Vanderlaan

Animals in the area would be trapped and removed so they couldn't burrow under the soil, she said.

By Sept. 27, she said, the DNR will have reviewed, changed and returned to the Livonia Public Schools a preliminary workplan recently submitted by the district to the DNR.

SITE WORK will be done in phases, she said, with one phase triggering another phase, depending on the results of the investigation.

Information already known shows the site is not hazardous to human health, she said.

"Unless the Wayne County Health Department declares it a health emergency, we'll continue along the same path. The land should be no hazard as long as people keep off it."

At Monday's meeting of the Livonla Board of Education, Cooper parents reported that people are still entering the schoolgrounds. despite "keep off" signs that are posted. .

One man, they said, apparently uses the grounds for early mothing rounds of golf:

Investigations already done show that leachate leaking from the school grounds isnot toxic, that the water in nearby wells is not contaminated and that the material found in three drums on a nearby cemetery is not toxic, Vanderlaan said, bled the commission after the board members' attorney, Richard James, argued that "it's improper to respond to an allegation about what a person believes."

Commission member Marya Sieminski, who cast the only vote favoring the petitions, said the language was clear. She urged other commissioners to rule only on the merits of the language "and not whether we like it."

ON WEDNESDAY, Lind had submitted revised petitions stating that board members should be recalled "because (they)-voted in favor of granting teachers a pay raise of over 11 percent" during a February meeting. "At the same meeting, after voting to grant these raises, (they) voted in favor of school program cuts."

Board members have defended their actions, saying they negotlated the best possible teacher contract. They have said they considered program cuts to avert a severe budget crunch, which was later averted after voters approved a tax increase.

On Wednesday, the elections commission had not yet set a meeting to consider the latest-proposed petitions.

Armed intruder threatens woman

A $10,000 cash bond was set for Myers, who remained in the county jail on Tuesday afternoon. If convicted, he could face up to 15 years in prison, according to the Wayne County prosecutor's office.

reported

The assailant then left the room and encountered the woman's husband - who had heard the scream from another part of the mobile home - in the hallway, police said. The attacker then lunged at the husband and then fled through the back door, police said.

The husband pursued the attacker outside of the mobile home. A man was eventually caught and held by Westland Meadows security until police arrived on the scene, police said.

At least two other witnesses saw portions of the incident, and one of the witnesses also was threatened at knife-point by the attacker, police said in a report.

The knife that the attacker had used to threaten the woman and her husband was found in a leather sheath hanging around his neck, police said.

The back door of the residence he entered apparently had not been locked, police indicated in a report.

City admits error in allowing building

By Darrell Clem 5 staff writer

Westland's city administration admitted Monday that it erred in letting a commercial building be partially constructed before the city council approved it.

The city's new building director, Robert Fritz, ordered the builder to halt work earlier this month on the one-story building at the northeast corner of Warren and Gilman, in the city's northeast corner. Building permits had been issued when the city building department was headed by former director Michael Cullity, whom Mayor Robert Thomas fired in August and replaced with Fritz. "There was an error made, and it was made by someone who used to work for this administration," Thomas told the city council Monday. "We're trying to correct it."

move, the council approved the plan with a 4-2 vote Monday.

"It's nice to hear somebody admit that a mistake was made, but this has happened before," councilman Kenneth Mehl said.

Mehl and councilman Thomas Artley opposed the plan, but it was approved in a majority vote by council members Thomas Brown, Sandra Cicirelli, Ben DeHart and Charles Pickering. Councilwoman Terri Reighard-Johnson was absent. Under questioning from Mehl, City ately known.

Attorney C. Charles Bokos said he doubted the city would win a legal battle if it tried to permanently halt the project.

"I think we would be very hardpressed to make the building owner tear down the property," Bokos said. "I just can't see the court saying, 'City, you have the right to tear the building down, even though you gave (the owner) the permit to build it.' " said, adding later, "They're not murderers, or robbers, or rapists, or anything like that."

AFTER THE June 10 school board election in which Welty, Raisanen and Warmbler unseated three incumbents, Welty said she had hoped the beleaguered board could begin to heal itself.

"We've got a right wing, we've got a left wing, and we've got a couple in the middle," she said, describing the seven-member board.

Some board critics had previously blasted the board for being what was described as a rubber stamp for school Superintendent Dennis O'Neill:

"It shouldn't be a 'yes' board," Welty agreed Monday, "But It certainly shouldn't be a 'no' board."

If the recall committee succeeds in getting its recall petitions approved by the Wayne County Elections Commission, Welty said she will publicly discourage school district voters from signing. The committee needs 4,420 signatures before a special recall election can be held.

New cable leader wants more local coverage

gets TV contract

By Dorroll Clom staff writer

Westland's municipal cable-TV operations, surrounded by controversy when its former contractor was ousted earlier this year, has a new leader who wants to deepen the station's community involvement by increasing coverage of local events.

Diane Abbott, a four-year cable employee, was named the station's new consultant Monday night amid strong support from the city council, which drew applause from Abbott's supporters for its decision. The council accepting a recommendation from Mayor Robert Thomas to hire Abbott, approved a two-year contract, though specific details such as her salary remain unresolved. A three-member council com-mittee will work to finalize loopholes.

Abboll has been acting head of the municipal gov-ernment cable channel (18) for six months. She filled the vacancy created when former director Dennis Fasselt was ousted, amid criticism from city officials that he failed to initiate enough local programs, ABBOTT WILL head a staff of seven cable workers. three more than now on the staff.

We just want to expand our programming," she said Monday night, when asked about her goals for the station on Warren Road, between Farmington Road

'I've seen her in action running the department, and I think she's going to be a very positive force in our (cable television) department.'

--- Councilman Charles Pickering and Wayne Road.

Councilman Charles Pickering commended Abbott's performance and appeared optimistic that the station will reach new heights under her direction,

"I've seen her in action running the department, and I think she's going to be a very positive force in our (cable television) department," Pickering said. "She has proven herself to be a good manager, and the people that work with her have demonstrated their abilities in the programming and production aspects" of cable television.

Pickering said he expects that community organizations and the Wayne-Westland school district, among others, will receive more public attention under Abbott.

"I think they're all going to benefit," he said.

THOUGH THE mayor recommended Abbott for the post, she earlier had not been his first choice. After Fassett's departure in February, Thomas had asked the council to hire Drew Ramsey, a city of Southfield cable producer.

However, the council balked at the proposal and told the mayor to seek more applicants. Some councilmembers, such as Pickering, have said that Thomas should have been allowed to hand pick a cable consultant or director, but a majority of council members disagreed.+----

Fasselt failed to have his contract extended last February. He was with the city for nearly seven years. Officials said that Fassett failed to receive enough direction from the city council and administration.

On Tuesday, Pickering stressed that the mayor's office and the council shouldn't make the same mistake again, but should let Abbott know what is expected.

"Westland has got so many things going on," he said. "We shouldn't have any problem at all filling the air time."

Sand left impression on African trip

By Marie Chestney staff writer

Sand, sand and sand was everywhere this summer as five Livonia school district students and teacher Jonathan Swift toured one of the world's newest nations, Namibia.

"The kids take pride in their heritage," said Spongberg. "In Namibia, they have no animosity toward those who are outside their culture. There were groups of kids who were illegitimate who are called bastards and they are proud of it."

WHILE ATTENDING school in Windhoek, the capital of Namibia, the students lived with local families while Swift stayed in the home of the headmaster of St. John, Chris Sexton.

They spent part of their time there attending classes at St. John, a private integrated high school, and the rest of their time in a van touring the countryside.

In the classroom, the students sat beside students who were black Africlasses were much like American high school classes, Todorov said.

The students took two main trips,

Much of the countryside was desert and sand dunes, with mountains jutting up out of nowhere. Occasionally they passed a ranch.

"There's sand everywhere, but there's also lovely mountains," Swift said, "Parts of it looks like a lunar landscape. There are outcrops of granite 200 feet high."

IN SOUTH NAMIBIA, they toured Fish River Canyon, the second-larg-

The U.S., Swift said, looks to Namibia as a model for all African countries to follow.

The country's biggest-problem is a lack of jobs, with unemployment running as high as 40 percent.

The lack of jobs leads to thievery, and thievery leads to homeowners hiring security guards and putting barbed wire around their houses, Swift said.

Swift left his students in Windhoek for a short time and flew to South Africa. There, he was the keynote speaker for a conference of headmasters of all the private schools in Namibia and South Africa.

Link's plea came as she appeared Sept. 9 before Recorder's Court Judge Gershwin Drain. The judge plans to sentence Link on Monday, Sept. 30.

Link could be sentenced up to 90 days in fail and fired $500 on the misdemeanor charge. Had she been tried and convicted of negligent homicide, she could have faced two years in prison.

Westland police officer Steven Frazer, who investigated the case, said Link is expected to be placed on probation for causing the accident that occurred at 9:42 a.m. Monday, March 11, as she was driving south on Newburgh Road at the Palmer intersection.

Link, who drove her semi-trailer through the traffic light as it turned red, collided with a 1989 Ford Taurus that Gary was driving east on Palmer, Gary's car was crushed and dragged 210 feet south of the intersection.

ting through the vehicle's roof. Gary, a mother of two teenagers, died about two hours later at Annapolis Hospital. She had been running errands on her day off from her job at United Parcel in Livonia.

Under the plea agreement, Link will not lose her job, but is expected to be placed on probation, Frazer said. She also is a mother of two, and she is the children's sole provider, he said.

"She won't be fired from her job," Frazer sald.

Though the accident was tragic for the Gary family, Frazer sald both sides in the case believed that Link should be allowed to plead

Senior service? Bus routes being considered

By Wayne Peal staff writer

A regional transportation servicefor seniors is being considered by the Conference of Western Wayne.

Though details are far from set, conference members are expressing fresh interest in regional transportation,

"Senior transportation is definitely something we're looking at," said conference director Daniel Gilmar-

While there's talk of the conference running its own service, some members seem to prefer a coordinating role only. In that role, conference members would work with SMART (Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation), metro Detroit's regional busing authority, as well as The Senior Alliance and the Michigan Department- solid waste issues. The post is now of Transporation, to coordinate routes.

ence's role as a one-stop information center on area transportation. Action isn't expected, however, until SMART issues Its own plans for 1992 and beyond. Those plans are expected in about 30 days.

While the conference seeks to expand services, it also seeks to expand its budget,- CWW, an Intergovernmental group, represents 18 western Wayne County communities, including Livonia, Westland, Redford, Canton, Garden City, Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

IT EXPECTS a $40,000 budget cut for fiscal 1992. Last year's $116;035 budget will be trimmed to $75,767 due to a now-expired Michigan Department of Natural Resources grant.

The grant financed the conference solid waste coordinator's office. The coordinator, an outside consultant, had advised area communities on vacant, Gilmartin said.

In addition to providing senior Some members view the confer- transportation, the conference is also looking at boosting revenue by providing services to Wayne County government.

tions.

"We are looking at expanding our services first," Gilmartin said. "But we're also looking at revenue."

Various county research projects have been let out for bid, said county Commissioner Maurice Breen, R-Plymouth Township, a former CWW delegate.

CWW activites are primarily financed through community dues and grant money.

Each community is assessed dues based upon population, Glimartin said.

Livonia, the conference's most populous member, will pay slightly more than $3,000 in the coming year, the city of Plymouth, one of its smallest, will pay just under $1,400. Roughly three quarters of the budget goes for salaries and benefits. for the conference's three employees.

In the past, the conference has coordinated numerous area projects, including implementation of 911 emergency telephone services. It also provides a forum for local officials to discuss issues.

Knapp's opens Westland eatery

There was no advance promotion, but Westland's newest restaurant was nearly full within 90 minutes after opening its doors Tuesday morning.

To no one's surprise, many of the opening day customers at Bill Knapp's restaurant on Warren Road between Central City Parkway and Newburgh were in the 50-orolder category, with several accompanied by married children and grandchildren.

That suits the company just fine, said Jerry F. Powers, the company's president and chief executive officer.

The firm specializes in feeding customers (the company insists they be called guests) who are "mature," that is, empty nesters or close to it, and who want a family-style restaurant.

The company's research shows that many of Bill Knapp's patrons eat at one of the firm's restaurants five to six times a week.

A QUICK look at the opening-day "guests" showed retirees who live nearby, some with their grandchildren and Chamber of Commerce and city of Westland officials invited to the grand opening.

The new restaurant has a 130-seat capacity, smaller than other Bill Knapp's and employs 60 part-time and fulltime workers.

The Westland restaurant was intended to be smaller, Powers said, so it doesn't lose any quality or service that may be sacrificed in a larger facility.

Westland was picked as the site of the 65th Knapp's

Area lawmakers split on school tax plan

By Tim Richard stalf writer

A bill requiring suburban school districts to share their business property tax growth with poorer districts is on its way to the state Senate.

The House of Representatives Tuesday scraped together 73 votes - a bare two-thirds majority - to give the immediate effect as soon as it's passed by the Senate and signed by Gov. John Engler.

Last week the House approved, 68 to 35, a House-Senate compromise of the controversial bill, The immediate effect vote had to wait until several missing lawmakers returned this week.

The Senate could take up House Bill 4267 as early as this morning.

"A Robin Hood scheme . . . hypo-ty of education," said six suburban Republicans, including Lyn Bankes of Livonia and Georgina Goss, in a written protest explaining their no votes.

First year total loss to affected districts; $87.4 million.

THE BILL bears the sponsorship. of Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, though it was advanced by the partnership of Rep. James O'Neill Jr., D-Saginaw, and Sen. Dan De-Grow, R-Port Huron.

While praising the tax-base-sharing concept, Keith, whose district includes Inkster, dislikes its companion feature - returning some categorical aid (such 'as special education) to well-heeled districts.

Gov. John Engler is certain to sign the bill. "It will make sure every child has an equal educational opportunity," Engler said Sept. 11 in his special message on school quality,

Area lawmakers living south of Joy Road voted yes on final passage and immediate effect; those north voted no. The roll call:

Yes - Justine Barns, D-Westland, William Keith, D-Garden City, James Kosteva, D-Canton.

No - Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, John Bennett, D-Redford, Georgina Goss, R-Northville.

Months ago both chambers produced different versions of the bill, which were ironed out in a six-member conference committee last week. Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, and an outstate Republican representative refused to sign.

THE BILL would work like this:

• 59 of the state's 562 school districts would have to give half their growth in commercial and industrial property taxes for schools to other school districts. Existing business tax base would not be affected, nor would houses, farms, forests and mines. In the first year, they would send $27.2 million to other districts.

• The state's recent practice of "recapluring" (taking back) $72 million in categorical aid from those districts would be phased out. In the first year, recapture would be reduced $1 for every $2 shared; the second year, $2 for every $1 shared; thereafter, $1 for $1 shared.

• Michigan's 83 countles would be split into two regions. Region 1 would be Oakland, Macomb, Genesee, the Thumb area, northeastern lower Michigan and the Upper Reninsula. Region 2 would be Wayne, Washtenaw, Livingston, Kent, the southern two tiers of counties and the Lake Michigan shoreline up to Grand Traverse.

THE STATWIDE effect-looks like this, according to the House Taxation Committee staff: Without the bill, affected districts lose $72 million a year. In the first year under tax base sharing, they would lose $87 million - $27 million from tax base sharing and $60 million from recapture. In the second year, they would lose $67 million - $27 million from sharing, $40 million from recapture. The O'Neill-DeGrow plan, after the first year, is to leave affected districts better off under the combined effects of sharing and reducing recapture.

NO FIGURES were available for what gaining districts will receive.

'This House analysis shows how losers' will be affected in the first year:

Livonia - $4.6 million lost through recapture drops to $4.1 million; $1,1 million is lost through sharing. Total loss $5.2 million. Plymouth-Canton - $713,000 lost through recapture drops to $222,000; nearly $1 million is lost through sharing. Total loss $1.2 million. South Redford - $305,000 lost through recapture · is reduced to $223,000; $164,000 is lost through sharing. Total loss $387,000.

Northville - $1.7 million lost through recapture is reduced to $1.4. million; $546,000 is lost through sharing. Total loss nearly $2 million.

School board Recall campaign bad move

COMMITTEE trying to recall three Wayne-Westland school hoard members ran into another, legal roadblock Monday. That's fine:

Voters should oppose any move by the group to reach its goal.

The committee wants to dump board members Andrew Spisak, Kathleen Chorbagian and Leonard Posey, mainly because they joined the other board members in calling for several millage elections within the past 18 months.

The committee insists it will push ahead to meet its goal, which is their prerogative.

But frankly, the Observer doesn't wish it success.

As the Observer said before, recalls of public officials should be used only as a last resort, such as when someone violates a law, steals money or embarrasses himself or herself beyond the point of reason.

But recalls should not be used to punish an elected official for voting for something that may not be overly popular in some segments of the community.

THE LAUGHABLE part of the recall committee's efforts is that one of its targets, Chorbagian, has already announced she will not seek a new term when her term expires next June 30.

The recall committee should drop its efforts and redirect its energies into something more positive.

At the same time, the community ousted three board members just three months ago in a revolt against what voters felt were generous salary raises for local teachers and the board being too cozy with the administration.

Those voters wanted a more independent school board — and that's what they got in Fred Warmbier, Vicki Welty and Laura Raisanen. winners in the June 10 election.

Even Welty, who has no political reason to get involved as a supporter or opponent of the recall campaign, has registered vocal opposition to the move.

Hopefully, the recall committee will get the message and let the school district return to normalcy.

The community was torn apart about nine years ago in another recall.

Certainly, students, parents and employees shouldn't have to go through that agony again.

Engler education plan lacks financial backing

GOVERNOR ENGLER last week unveiled in a special speech to the Legislature his long-awaited proposals to improve school quality. The most important thing about the speech may be that it was given at all. After nine months in office, it is clear that the governor's promise to focus on education is being kept.

Whether Engler's proposals make any sense in substance or in the hurly-burly political process in Lansing remains to be seen. My experience is that the politics of school improvement are much more difficult than the substance.

Some parts of the Engler package make more sense than others.

THE EMPHASIS on the young atrisk kids is very good.

The governor wants to spend lots more on all-day kindergarten for them. He wants tutoring for these skills, fewer kids would need help later on."

ANOTHER GOOD idea is to have schools guarantee the basic job-related skills of graduates to their employers.

Pioneered in the Plymouth-Canton school district, the system is simple. Every graduate comes with a warranty that reading, writing, math and reasoning skills are up to snuff. If the employer finds that isn't so, the kid is returned to school and remediated free.

This sensible approach focuses on results. It uses incentives -- free remediation - to satisfy customers employers.

It is unpopular, with a lot of school. people who are accustomed to passing kids from grade to grade. I got dirty looks when I suggested a version of the idea to state government school aid formula. "The last time the state did something major for education, we lost $6 million," said Farmington Superintendent Michael Flanagan, referring to the "Robin Hood" bill that shifted $50 million from rich to poorer districts for the 1990-1 school year.

THE BIGGEST problem remains money.

Take Engler's interest in lengthening the school year from 180 to 200 days. He proposed $300,000 in incentives for pilot projects - a drop range of governmental experiences.

That unfairness was reflected in the Sept. 10 Westland city council primary in which three incumbents and a former Wayne-Westland school board member won the top four spots.

When the smoke cleared, councilmen Charles Pickering, Thomas Brown and Thomas Artley finished in that order, followed by Sharon Scott, who served on the local school board for more than eight years.

Those who put up a lot of signs and expressed a wide range of knowledge about city issues were in the bottom half of the eight nominees who survived the primary.

But a political primary, like a student's test scores of the previous school year, is history.

outcome.

Ziemba, Dorothy Smith and David Cox - have their work cut out for them.

To improve their standing in the general election, they must knock on more doors, have a sharper focus on their campaign messages and listen carefully to voters' concerns.

While incumbents have an advantage in name recognition, Westland voters have shown a flair for independence and doing the unexpected in local elections.

For example, voters ousted a mayor and one councilman two years ago with two council incumbents finishing third and fourth in the race for four seats.

Although there is no mayoral election this fall to spice up the political campaign, there is still a good chance for challengers to win a council seat in November.

County board Egos outweigh logic over act

T'S HARD TO GET excited about county government - especially those big, amorphous bodies called the Oakland and Wayne County boards of commissioners.

But the Oakland County group has made a mistake - one that the Wayne County board, county prosecutor and state attorney general should learn from.

Nineteen of its 27 commissioners met March 17 behind locked doors while attending a conference of the National Association of Counties in Washington, D.C.

Although no decisions were reached and no action was taken, the meeting was beyond public scrutiny.

That's an apparent violation of the Michigan Open Meetings Act and an affront to the public interest, no matter where you live.

THEY WERE MEETING to talk about possibly the hottest issue in Oakland County history: the $500 million solid waste program, including the controversial incinerator in Auburn Hills. The issue is also one voters will be involved in on Nov. 5, when they vote on a financing proposal.something that needs public information.

Board chairman Roy Rewold called the secret meeting in the nation's capital, then later said he didn't think Michigan law applied because commissioners were outside the state.

According to Oakland County prosecutor Richard Thompson, commissioners were polified of the morning meeting the night before. "One commissioner said he was notified there would be a meeting before leaving Oakland County."

The wife of one of commissioner was excluded from the meeting, Thompson said.

By excluding an Oakland County resident from the meeting, and subsequently locking the doors, commissioners demonstrated their intent, Thompson said.

THE OPEN MEETINGS ACT says in part: "All meetings of a public body shall be open to the public and shall be held in a place available to the general public. All persons shall be permitted to attend any meeting except as otherwise provided in this act."

Thompson asked the commission to sign an agreement, reached with Rewold, that the meeting "may have constituted an unintentional violation of the Open Meetings Act" and stipulated that future meetings would comply with the law.

By a 19-5 vote they refused, and the prosecutor promptly filed a civil suit against them, seeking a declaration that a violation of the law occurred and asking for an order that future meetings comply with the Act.

Judge Hilda Gagé has set a trial for Nov. 25,

The only commissioners who favored the agreement were: Rewold, R-Oakland Township; Frank Millard, R-Sylvan Lake; Larry Crake, R-Waterford; Richard Skarritt, R-Milford; and Donna Huntoon, R-Clarkston.

IT IS TO REWOLD'S credit that he has worked out a way to make amends. Ditto for the four commissioners.

As for the rest, it is apparent that their egos outweigh their logic.

The Oakland County Board of Commissioners must sign the agreement not to violate the Open Meetings Act. It's an act which strengthens the right of residents, regardless of where they live, to know what goes on in goverment by requiring public bodies to conduct nearly all business at open meetings.

Research findings - from a University of Michigan study in Ypsilanti - are definitive: Special early help really makes a difference for at-risk kids. As Wayne-Westland Superintendent Dennis O'Neill said, "If we can get kids ready at an early age and get them the appropriate

We have watched as you regressed from a fact-finding task force to become emotional terrorists, manipulating the media and others for your cause.

Now the school year is beginning and the children once again returning to their classrooms. Which classrooms they return to has been a decision of their parents. Unfortunately; the parents and the 300 children who chose to remain a part of the Cooper community at Whittler face the harassment of CHECK members who chose to send their children elsewhere.

Your decision was to leave the Cooper community, and, therefore, you have no right to continue your fight to close Whittler or to insist our children be transferred.

The DNR has declared Whittler a safe place for our children. Why should we not be allowed to send our children to a school of our choice, without facing your pickets at Whittier, across the street at Cooper or in front of the school board? THE GOVERNOR did pay homage to conservative ideology. Schools of choice are to be achieved through something called "charter" schools, partly funded by the state but run by former teachers or private business.

Teachers unions are sure to oppose two other good ideas: making it harder for teachers to get tenure and allowing non-certified (i.e., not unionized) people to teach.

Cooper School was built on a toxić; landfill. This is a frightening thing. A lot of fingers are being pointed, but who's really to blame?

This incident points to the larger issue at hand. Why are there hazardous waste sites at all? Why are there; over 2,800 in Michigan? Why are there tens of thousands of toxic sites around the nation? And why is it es-. timated that three times that many, are yet to be identified?

The answer automatically antagonizes the average person and solicitates denial. Most people don't want to admit that our collective lifestyle is the main contributor to toxic pollution.

The processing of raw materials, manufacturing, transportation, con-; sumption or disposal of everyday items continually pollutes us. Many of the toxics blo-accumulate and don't breakdown biologically.

So who's to blame for toxic waste? Blame the government for not promoting safer alternatives. Blame some businesses for breaking the rules to increase profit.

But mostly, we as individuals must take responsibility for poison? ing ourselves. We do it with silent approval. We do it by turning our heads at work. We do it by not asking questions because we're afraid of the answers. And we do it by rationalizing that it's anyone's responsibility but ours to protect our health.

points of view

Guv's message lacks focus

SOME REFLECTIONS on Gov. John Engler's special message to the Legislature on school quality and how the media covered It:

That Republicans thought it innovalive and Democrats didn't was hardly news.

What surprised me was the way everyone picked out something different to praise or bash: charter" schools . . . early education . . . the importance of parenting . . . "New. American" schools . . . easier certification for non-traditional people

. 200 class days . . . doubling aid for teacher improvement high schools' warranting their graduates ... how we're going to pay for it.

It was a nightmare for news people. Every paper you read, every broadcast you heard, every politiclan you talked to opened with something different.

TRUE, MUCH of what Engler advocated wasn't new, as Democrats pointed out.

That's par for governors. There is no copyright on political ideas, so governors are free to "borrow" them, the way Huck Finn borrowed watermelons. Jim Blanchard (1983-90) used to borrow Republican Ideas all the time, to the Grand Old Party's delight.

Engler's message goes on for 49 pages, but here are the unifying themes:

• Kids at risk. Some are 4-yearolds from poor families. Others have been kicked up to 12th grade without learning what they were taught. (Read Phil Power's column.)

• Teachers. More in-service training. Empowerment - more chances to start alternative schools of choice. Reform of protective tenure laws. Easier certification for those with non-traditional backgrounds. Less,"student teaching."

• Parents. Unlike Blanchard, who would have introduced teachers. who had benefitted from state programs or his own favorite mentors, Engler introduced his first two and most important teachers - mom. and dad. More chances for parents to choose programs, for their kids. Some teaching of parenting. It was a conservative's political message. "Schools don't count; families do" -Moynihan.

There was nothing for superintendents, nothing for principals, little for bureaucrats and not much for college-bound kids from stable, working families. But that's OK.

I'M NOT CERTAIN whether it was the fault of the listeners or with Engler for not providing a crisper, more pungent, central theme.

The TV crews were there, and film clips were on the 6 o'clock news. But by 11 p.m., the topic of improving educational quality was dropped completely in favor of extended coverage of the Wayne County Jall shooting.

CBS newsman Mike Wallace, in a University of Michigan appearance last weekend, called metro Detroit TV news some of the worst in the. country. "Murder and mayhem," he sald.

Most of my friends have noticed it, too, for the last two years or so.

Blame station managers, not the individual TV reporters and anchors. WJBK has ignored state government for years. WDIV's "senior political correspondent," Bob Pisor, has been shunted to chasing fire engines and soon will take a leave of absence, perhaps never to return. WXYZ's Jim Herrington is being wasted on general assignments and rarely is sent to the Capitol any more. Except for WJR, metro Detroit radio has no one on the spot.

Tim Richard reports regularly on the local implications of state. and regional events.

GROWING UP IN a neighborhood heavily populated by first-generation Poles and Italians, it wasn't hard to see that sons were prized and daughters were nice to have, but not quite as vital.

Parants would scrimp and save to put money in the bank to ensure that their sons would attend college after high school, get a fine education and get a solid job to provide for the wives and children they would have. That was the dream.

Daughters, well; they learned to cook and clean. If they did well in school, it would mean that they could help their future chlidren with their homework. Parents put money away for their weddings, not for their education.

It's an Old World idea.

Today it seems abhorrent. Or, rather, today it should be abhorrent. Women have a place in the workforce, and there shouldn't be even a question about that. Women do not have a mental deficiency because of their hormones.

BACK WHEN THE Equal Rights Amendment was a possibility, feminists argued that women deserved equal standing in the law and in opportunities. Feminists argued that women weren't covered by the Constitution because they weren't named specifically, as were men and blacks. The Happiness Of Womanhood group - remember them? argued that women had all the protection they needed without another. amendment to the Constitution.

We'll see.

The women's issue should again be coming to the forefront now that President George Bush has declared that federal laws should be changed to allow publicly financed male academies. Some Michigan legislators also want state laws to allow such financing.

It seems they would have the principle of "separate isn't equal" apply to racial questions but not to matters of gender.

WHAT MESSAGE IS the president sending? Are girls less valued than boys? Is it worse for a male to be an illiterate than it is for a female? Why are only inner-city boys considered to be at risk?

A MARKED BERTS TO THE REAL PROPERTY OF THE PRO

Don't little girls count? Maybe the question is, did they really ever? And now the nation is close to having a conservative black Supreme Court justice who is a firm believer in natural law, whatever that is. It; would seem most ironic if nominee ; Clarence Thomas were to be a deciding voice in permitting all-male academies and breaking the "separate isn't equal" rule. Wouldn't his predecessor -, Thurgood Marshall, who successfully argued before the court in Brown vs. the Board of Education, which ended racially segregated schools - rue the day he retired?

The new Supreme Court test then could be that separate is equal, if it helps boys.

TWENTY YEARS ago, women came so close to being legally equals. But now it seems as if women have slipped back to the less-thancitizen status that they "enjoyed" during the 1950s and 1960s.

Through the fine efforts of Bush, Clarence Thomas and certain Detroit school leaders, parents will again be scrimping and saving to send their sons to school, devoting their energies to the male portion of their family. And girls will stay in the background.

Rather than putting a poor girl through the shame of scoring lower on college tests or dropping out of school, this kinder, gentler nation. will once again encourage that girl; to learn to cook and sew and findherself a good husband. Preferably, he would be one of those lucky enough - based on gender rather than smarts — to go to such a publicly financed, all-male school.

Old habits stay despite new sins

they call them "sin taxes."

You know what I mean; Those exorbitantly high levies that governments have been placing on alcohol and tobacco products lately.

. I always thought they were called that because only "sinners" would spell relief a-l-c-o-h-o-l or n-i-c-o-t-in-e. The taxes are loosely based on the notion that "if you play, you've gotta pay." And, of course, socking the sinners is an easy way to put extra money in government coffers.

But now the phrase has taken on a new meaning. According to published reports, those sin taxes, in Canada, anyway, have turned some law-abiding citizens into criminals. And they are starting to cost the government money it had intended to raise.

IVE FINALLY figured out why -Canada has imposed such heavy taxes on cigarettes in the last couple of years that the little coffin nails sell for as much as $7 a pack or $60 a carton. For a pack-a-day smoker that comes out to over $2,500 a year.

> WELL, SOME Canadian smokers are finding ways to avoid paying the tax, which can run as high as $35 a carton.

One Canadian Mountie estimated that 90 percent of the 131/2 million cartons of Canadian cigarettes exported to the United States last year were smuggled back in and sold on the black market.

There are even rumors of cocaine smugglers switching to cigarettes because there's more money in them and, if they do get caught, the penal-for dealing coke. Still, a conviction could bring up to four years in prison and a $25,000 fine.

It all smacks of the bootleg era in the United States during prohibition. People who otherwise wouldn't consider breaking the law think nothing of sneaking a few cartons of cigarettes over the border.

A customs official in Windsor said that in the past 18 months there have for Observer & Eccentric newspaties are much less severe than those been about 25 major seizures at the pers.

Windsor border crossing plus hundreds of smaller ones.

AND HOW is this affecting the government's fund-raising activities? According to a report by a tobacco industry group in Canada, smuggling has cost the federal and provincial governments $373 million a year in lost tax revenue.

It's called the "shooting yourself in the foot syndrome:" Pushing "reforms" to the point that they become intolerable and nobody pays any attention to them.

It can happen here if U.S. proponents of the "sin taxes" don't learn something from the experience of their northern neighbors. Jack Gladden is a copy editor

Replacing trees lost through development is the focus of Global ReLeaf of Michigan.

The grass roots, not-for-profit volunteer organization's fall tree planting program is about to get under way, spokeswoman Melinda Jones said.

Global ReLeaf seeks neighborhood groups and service clubs interested in planting tress in their communities. It is willing to pay 50 percent of tree costs.

"WE ARE looking for homeowners groups and Kiwanis, school groups, Girl Scouts and people like that," Jones said. "We want a group that's going to be around not only to plant the trees, but also to maintain them."

Groups in Southfield, Livonia, Canton, Westland and Garden City have already participated.

Heavy emphasis upon maintenance, Jones said, sets her organization apart from others.

"We want to get away from this Arbor Day mentality where people plant trees in the spring, ignore them in the summer and the trees end up dying in the fall," she said.

Under the Global ReLeaf program, groups are also encouraged to suggest three sites for tree plantings. "We use public sites," Jones said. "We don't do plantings in front of private homes." Once a site is selected, Global ReLeaf orders trees and supervises planting.

Trees are ordered from local nurseries. While 50/50 financing is preferred, Global ReLeaf is flexible on that issue.

On the day of the planting, Global ReLeaf workers conduct a short program, teaching volunteers on how to maintain their new trees. One year later, Global ReLeaf workers return, to examine how the trees are progressing.

ONLY ONE tree is replanted for every four lost in the U.S. each year, according to Global ReLeaf estimates.

The state goal is to have 2 million new trees planted by 1992.

Nearly 350 trees have been planted, at 55 sites, since the organization was founded in 1989.

Spartans run to SC crown

By Brad Emons staff writer

Livonia Stevenson was apparently tired of being the bridesmaid in the 14th annual Schoolcraft College Invitational cross country meet.

The Spartans showed great balance and depth, winning their first title ever Saturday after finishing second five different times.

Stevenson scored 62 points, 11 better than second place Walled Lake Western and 30 better and than third place North Farmington. See statistical summary.

"We needed it with some tough invitationals coming up," Stevenson coach Paul Holmberg said. "And if you can't win in our own backyard, you can't compete against the state powers."

The Spartans placed two in the top 10 - juniors A.J. Koritnik (third) and Stacy Prais (ninth).

Koritnik was able to stay close to one-two finishers Jennifer Ray of Western Lake Western (who repeated as champion) and North Farmington's Emily Shively throughout the 5,000-meter race.

"We knew there were four or five individuals out there who were girls cross country tough," Holmberg said. "I told A.J. to run as hard as she, could with the leaders. Usually she runs in a pack, . but today I let her go."

PRAIS' TOP 10 finish was not unexpected. She finished third a year ago.

Her sister, Kelly, a freshman, added an 11th, while senior Gail Grewe took 17th and sophomore Bridget MacKinnon 22nd.

"I knew about Kelly, she was the city middle school champ last year as an eighth-grader," Holmberg said. "MacKinnon came out for track last spring and tried everything, and finally settled on distance events. She came on at the end of the season. She's one of those kids that is willing to work.

"We had four girls under 22 minutes today. They're sights are set high and they're willing to work for it.'

the individual battled waged between Ray of Western and Shively of North.

Ray defended her title with a firstplace time of 19:21.4, while Shively, also a junior, finished second in 19:26.2.

Ray, who sat exhausted under a canopy following the race, was not tested in her first two races this season, which included an easy win in the Milford Early Bird.

"I FELT DEHYDRATED even though I normally drink lots of water," said the Western standout, who beat last year's time by 55 seconds, "But I felt strong. I haven't had competition and I knew she (Shively) would be up there. I was looking out for her.

"I thought we went out too hard. I had to push hard at the end. Normally I have more left. I had to kick at the end.'

Shively, meanwhile, is juggling two fall sports. She swims distance even for the North swim team, rising at 5:45 a.m each morning, followed by cross country practice after school.

Another addition to the script was "...." "She (Ray) just has a great kick, she kills me every time," Shiyely said. "I just try to keep up with her." The two ran against each other last spring in track and they'll will probably meet again later in the sea-

"I ran track so I just wanted to see what I could do in cross country," Shively said. "I like it.

"It's been tough (the two sports), plus I have a lot of hard classes. It keeps me busy. I lose a little sleep, but it's not too bad."

WESTERN'S second place team finish was bolstered by the sixth place finish of senior Wendy Proos. North's Keegan Keefover, a sophomore, took fifth.

"Our goal was to finish with every runner in the top 50," North coach Bill Pinnell, Jr. said. "And our seventh runner was 42nd, so that was 200d.

"So far the attitudes of these girls has been great. They're hard workers and they're not affaid, of the competition."

Other area runners in the top 10 include Ladywood junior Malia Dixon (fourth), Walled Lake Central junlor Tabitha Belcher (eight) and Plymouth Canton sophomore Lana-Boroditsch (10th).

Warner sparks Patriots

Dawn Warner is like a faucet, she can turn her game on and off.

The senior guard showed why she is considered one of the top players in the state, scoring 14 third-quarter points to lead Livonia Franklin to its fifth straight girls basketball victory without a loss in a 61-53 conquest Tuesday of host Livonia Stevenson. The 5-foot-7 Warner and her teammates found themselves trailing by a deuce at halftime, 26-24. But a 22-11 Franklin scoring surge in the third left the Spartans tapped out. Warner's three-pointer with 5:45 to play in the period gave Franklin a 31-28 advantage and the lead for keeps. Warner's basket with two seconds left in the quarter put Franklin ahead by nine, 46-37. She finished with a game-high 32

Key victory Churchill wins divisional battle, 1-0

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Providing there are no stunning upsets, Livonia Churchill will play Livonia Stevenson for the Western Lakes Activities Association boys soccer championship next month.

Churchill all but won the WLAA's Western Division title when it defeated host Plymouth Canton 1-0 Monday.

The Chargers, ranked second in Class A behind Stevenson, had already beaten Northville and No. 7 Canton was the only other Western team with a legitimate chance to topple Churchill, 3-0 in the division and 6-1 overall.

For a while, an upset seemed entirely possible as the Chiefs (2-1 and keep Churchill scoreless in the first half. But Dominic Vella's goal with 26:55 remaining ended up being the difference.

Vella raced up the left side, took a pass on the run from Vince Trolani and fired a hard shot into the opposite corner. Canton goalkeeper Ryan Henkel made a lot of impressive saves, but Vella delivered the ball too fast and at too difficult an angle for him to stop it.

"SCOTTY (LAMPHEAR) carried the ball up beautifully and executed to Vinnie, who made a beautiful 6-2) produced big defensive plays to cross and I one-touched it from the corner," Vella said.

Junior goalkeeper Kal Kaliszewski played the entire game for Churchill, replacing standout Jeff Cassar, who was sick last week but could have played Monday. "I decided Kal could use this kind" of game just to keep him fresh," Churchill coach Mark Mason said. "On any other team, he would start. We have two of the best goalkeepers in the state. I can play either one and the defense still has the same confidence in them."

Kaliszewski was not tested to the extent Henkel was, certainly not in the first half when the Chargers pressured Canton continuously but failed to make the right connections to achieve a goal.

Stevenson stays undefeated

Top-ranked Livonia Stevenson ran its overall record to 6-0 with a pair of non-league boys soccer wins Monday and Saturday.

The Spartans broke a 0-0 deadlock in the second half Monday, defeating visiting Ann Arbor Ploneer, 1=0, on Todd Krzisnik's goal off a Tim McCarley throw-in.

Goalie Matt Stabile earned the shutout. On Saturday, Stevenson bombed host Birmingham Seaholm, 10-0, behind senior forward Matt Grodzicki's hat trick. He tallied one goal on a penalty kick.

SC volleys to victory

The performance of Schoolcraft College's volleyball team seems to have taken even their coach by surprise.

After losing five starters from last year's NJCAA Tournament-qualifying team, coach Tom Teeters wasn't sure exactly what to expect. The players he had recruited had talent, but experience was lacking.

And yet, nothing seemed to be lacking last weekend at the Lake Michigan Community College Tournament. SC swept through the 10-team field, winning six-straight matches and 12-consecutive games en route to the litle.

In the final, SC overpowered Southwestern CC 15-1, 15-12; In the semis, Mott CO - which had won two tournaments earlier this season - was dismantled by the Lady Ocetols 15-12, 16-9.

Other wins came against South Suburban College (South Holland, Ill.) 15.4, 18.8; Lake Michigan 15-8, 15-0; Grand Rapids JC 15-3, 15-4; and Delta CC 15-2, 15-2.

Schoolcraft sports

"WE PLAYED quite well," said Teeters, whose team is now 7.0 and has won 15 games in a row. "Better than expected, really. This was, the best team interaction we've had all season." At any one point, in any game at a crucial point, a different player shined.

"The team chemistry is phenomenal." In the title match against Southwestern, Renea

Bonser (seven kills) and Julie Wood (three service aces) propelled SC to an easy first-game win

In the second game, Southwestern was up 12-6 before Judy Scott rescued SC. Scott had six kills in the game, scoring the final four points for the Ocelots. Bonser had five more kills in the game. The Mott match was similar. Mott was ahead

8-1 in the first game; then Kari Van Deusen served six aces. She finished the match with six kills and two solo blocks. Bonser had seven kills and three solos, and Keli Haeger added seven digs and 16 assists-to-kills.

Stephanie Jandasek led SC against South Suburban with eight kills without an error (.364 kill average).

SC plays at the University of Wisconsin-Parkside Invitational this weekend, the only JC squad in 12-team field.

Kickers salvage tie

, The play of Schoolcraft College's women's soccer team matched the weather, according to coach Nick O'Shea.

"We played terrible," 'was his summary after the Lady Ocelois tied Hope College 1-1 Saturday in Holland. The match was played in the rain, and SC played it without top forward Shannon Meath, out with a leg muscle pull.

The game was scoreless through regulation. Hope got the first goal, two minutes into the second 15-minute overtime, but it was scored by the Lady Ocelots. As Jennifer Whitfield prepared to clear a ball from in front of the net, it skipped off the wet turf and went off of her side and ... SC takes its 2-1-2 record on the into the goal.

At that point, with just 13 minutes left to retaliate, O'Shea said "It didn't matter if we gave up another goal, so we pushed (stopper) Lori (Place) up front: In four minutes we had a goal. We almost gave up two in that time, though."

Without Meath, SC forwards Carol Pletila and Becky Diverno had trouble handling the ball on the wet grass. O'Shea tried pushing midfielder Nikki Johnson up front, but then there was no one at midfield to move the ball forward.

Only when he put Place up front did the SC offense finally click. Place was pulled down just outside the penalty area, and she put the direct kick into the net to knot the garhe, road this weekend, playing Central College Saturday and Florissant Valley CC Sunday, both at Florissant Valley in St. Louis.

SC men find winning formula

It took quite a while for Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team to start playing like the defending NJCAA Region 12 champions they are. 1973 24

Indeed, the realization of just what it will take to regain that title almost came too late.

With less than 10 minutes remaining in their first match in regional play, against visiting Cuyahoga Metro CO Saturday, the Ocelots found themselves trailing 3-2. Fortunately, they also found a pair of very important veterans on the field in Chris Crawford and Jeff VanDemergel Crawlord took a free kick from midfield with seven minutes left. A Guyahoga defender tried to head the ball out of danger, but wasn't quite able to reach the ball. VanDemergel was though; he figured what would happen and raced behind the defender to field the ball, putting it into the het for the tying score.

After that, the game belonged to SC. The Ocelots dominated the two 15-minute overtimes, with Dave Hebestreit and Crawford each scoring in the first OT to deliver a 5-3 victory.

"OUR GUYS just totally dominated (the overtimes)," said SC coach Van Dimitriou. That wasn't the case during regulation, however. "It wasn't that we were outplayed, but when they made a rush we didn't defend properly."

SC opened the scoring 12 minutes into the match when Rick Menary scored from six yards out. John Varro rallied Cuyahoga, however, scoring a goal on a hard drive at 30:00 and setting up a second when he was hauled down in the penalty area by SC sweeper Mike Presley at 36:00. John Abusada scored on the penalty. kick, putting Cuyahoga up 2-1.

With under a minute left in the half, SC's Brian Hauman slammed home a pass from Menary to the the game at 2-2. Cuyahoga again forged ahead when Varro drilled a free kick from 25 yards out past a mis-aligned SC defense.

"There were a number of situations where we just had miscommunications on defense," said Dimitriou. "I cannot remember when we have allowed three restart goals in a season, and we've already done that this year."

It's something the Ocelots, now 2-1-1 for the season, will have to

THE SPARTANS tried to make a late run, pulling to within six, 57-51, with 1:13 to go on a free throw by Groulz, But Franklin, despite some ill-advised shots down the down stretch, was able to hang on.

Shea, a three-year starter at guard, contributed seven points and played a solid floor game, while senlor guard Wendy Rynkiewicz. chipped in with six first-half points.

"Nobody knows this, but Wendy played with a broken toe," Freeman said. "She did a real nice job. She stepped up and did some scoring in some key spots to keep the pressure off Dawn."

But it was the play of Warner, the four-year starter, that kept the Patriots from running into trouble.

"Dawn reads situations well," Freeman sald. "She's matured. She plays with more intensity in praclice. She seems even more determined. You can see it more in her attitude."

Warner hit 11 of 25 shots from the floor for 44 percent. As a team, Franklin hit 47 percent (25 of 33).

Stevenson, meanwhile, made 21 of 55 field goals for 38 percent.

Churchill boots Chiefs for key divisional win mentum but pull up on the ball and don't get a shot," Mason said. "We have to try and pass it around more to get a good shot."

WITH PLENTY OF talent, Churchill can do that and prefers to build its attack in progressive steps but, at the same time, it can't take forever to develop, Mason said.

Like a football team needs a balapced offense, a soccer team needs to mix that approach with an occasional long ball to provide a variety : in its attack, he said.

We try to get 6-7-8 players into the atlack, and that's the way you can play if you have a skilled team," Mason said. "We just weren't getting anything going fast enough. We just weren't getting behind the defense enough.

We wanted to give Dominic and Mike (Gentile) a chance to go 1-on-1. They play well when they face the goal.'

Canton couch Don Smith could accept the fact his team lost because of a well-executed play by the Chargers. It was a solid goal, definitely no fluke.

"It was just a quick break down there, and they took advantage of it," he said. "There was a quick transition from the middle of the field and boom, boom, boom. They're opportunists, but they work the ball so well and create a lot of opportuni; ties, too."

Nelther Mason or Vella , was surprised by Canton's strong performance.

"WE HEARD they had a good team, a lot of good players," Vella said, "but I think we had a little more talent and maybe that gave us an edge at the end."

Mason cited theiplay of freshman midlielder Charlie Roberts and that of junior defenders Kevin DeHority and Brian Peters. The latter two "are always solid back there," ho-so said. "They mark pretty well and can cover for (Lamphear) when he goes up.'

Western contingent 1st

Walled Lake Western High's nickname is the Warriors, but Jackrabbits or Roadrunners would fit better for the boys cross country squad.

Once again, Western proved to be a bunch of Wylle Coyotes, placing five of the top 10, and seven of the first 20 finishers in the 26th annual Schoolcraft Invitational on Saturday.

Western, the stato's top-ranked team in Class A, won for the second straight year by setting a meet record for the lowest total team. score ever with 29 points. Novi was a strong second with 56 and Farmington Harrison a distant third with, 93 in the 14-school field. See statisti-'cal summary.

Senior Bill Crosby of Western was the runaway winner over the revamped 5,000-meter course with a time of 16:02.4. Novi's Brian Molloy took second in 16:55.1.

It was Crosby's first Schoolcraft crown after finishing behind Farmington's Ben Goba the past two years.

"Last year I ran against him"

boys cross country

(Goba)," Crosby said. "This year I feel more confident. I wanted to stay with the pack and run as fast as I could at the end."

CROSBY HAD plenty of competition on the course from his teammates.

-Four others cracked the top 10 to earn all-invitational honors, including senior Jim Sweetman, third; senlor Matt Wright, seventh; junior Art Schuetzler, eighth; and twin brother. Chris Crosby; 10th.

"Schuetzler has been our sixth man, but he's made a big jump the last couple of meets," Western coach Dennis Keeney said. "He decided he's capable of being in the top 10 and being right up there with the others. He's got a lot more confidence. Art really came through today."

And if that wasn't enough for Western, Keeney's two sons, Brandon, a junior, and Trevor, a sophomore, finished 13th and 19th, respectively.

"The competition on the team scares them somewhat," Keeney said. "That's good to a certain extent, but I also want them to run for each other."

Bill Crosby, however, got the green light to set his own pace and it showed, beating his closest competitor by nearly 53 seconds.

"Coach Keeney has time for the runners and he'll bend over backwards for you," said the Schoolcraft_ champ. "But he keeps me in my place while bending over backwards for me, too."

THE ONLY OTHER two area runners to crack the Western-Novi domination were. Harrison senior Jason Zydrski, who took fifth; and Livonia Churchill senior, Jeff Martus, who finished sixth.

But with a four-point win already over perennial state power Milford, the rest of the area schools will simply fall into line behind Western.

"I think we can win the whole thing," said Crosby, looking ahead to the state meet.

Shamrocks disappointing at Holly

One week after winning the West Bloomfield Invitational, Redford Catholic Central took a disappointing sixth place finish among 23 teams Saturday at the Holly Invitational

Sylvania Southview, from Ohio, won the invitational with 50 points. Milford was second with 81 points, followed by Ann Arbor Pioneer and Lake Orion, 128 apiece; Rochester Adams, 153; and CC, 158.

Senior Steve Witek, who led CC's charge at West Bloomfield, again paced the Shamrocks with a seventh place finish in 16 minutes, 47 seconds. Junior Jamie Fitzgerald took 26th overall at 17:28, just ahead of teammate John Wiktor.

The rest of CC's runners finished as follows: Damon Harris, 43rd (17:53); Chris Kuzia, 55th (18:03); Jon Gould, 71st (18:23); and Aaron Sheposh, 82nd (18:38).

Sheposh, a senior, usually finishes near the top for CC but was under the weather and it had an effect on his finish, Magni sald."

"He had a chest cold and looked sluggish," CC coach Tony Magni said. "If Sheposh runs like he's supposed to he would have been the second man, which would have taken 40 points off our score, putting us right there with Pioneer. We've got to be more consistent."

The Shamrocks host their own In-vitational Saturday at Marshbank Park and will be without both Fitzgerald and Kuzia, who have weddings to attend. Magni has called up juniors Eric McKeon and Jeff Wollschlager, who placed first and third, respectively, in the junior varsity competition at the Holly Invitational.

The Shamrock Invitational begins at 10 a.m. with the girls races. The boys division begins at 11 a.m.

St. Agatha, Mulka rush past Liggett

Redford St. Agatha eoach John Goddard didn't get to watch Mike Whelan try a field goal Saturday for Grosse Pointe University-Liggett - but you won't find Goddard complaining.

Whelan, one of the Midwest's best placekickers, got most of his work accomplished during pregame warmups. St. Agatha dominated the line of scrimmage and stunned favored Liggett, 27-0, at Hilbert Junior High.

It was a rout from start to finish as Agatha improved to 2-0 overall.

St. Agatha fielded the opening kickoff by Whelan and on the first play from scrimmage, fullback Pete Mulka raced 88 yards for a fouchdown and a 6-0 lead-Liam Shivers! first of three extrapoints gave the Aggles a 7-0 lead.

Liggett, a Class C team, brought a state-ranking into the game but it was St. Agatha which resembled a highly-ranked team. The Aggies outgained the Knights, 328-190 In total yardage and had a one-two backfield combination which was next to impossible to stop.

Mulka finished with 214 yards on 14 carries and three TDs and tailback Cardell Davis was a perfect complement, scoring once and gaining 90 yards on nine carries.

Despite the domination, Goddard prefers the Aggies' underdog status.

"I don't believe right now we're one of the state's top 10 teams (in Class C)," Goddard said. "Rankings don't mean anything and that's what we told the kids."

Mulka gave St. Agatha a 14-0 halftime lead, football

taking a hand-off from junior quarterback Paul Parsell and scoring on a 42-yard run in the second quarter. It was Davis' turn in the third quarter as the senior raced 56 yards for a score on the second play of a drive for a commanding 21-0lead.

'Mulka finished the scoring in the fourth quarter, capping a 50-yard drive with a 21-yard TD run. The Aggies' rushing game was so effective they needed to pass only one time - an 18-yard completion from Parsell to wide receiver River Pollington.

St. Agatha lost two fumbles and the Aggles' defense caused three fumbles by the Knights. Goddard said defensive linemen Shivers, Scott Brigmon and James Pierce dominated the line play: 1.1.1

"Defensively, our kids just stuffed them," Goddard said.

REDFORD CC 23, MUMFORD 0: Lineman Dan Kelly and linebackers Gary Stegall and Joe Herman stood out Saturday as Redford Catholic Central's defense dominated the non-league game against Detroit Mumford at Livonia Clarenceville.

Kelly, a nose guard, had one solo and 12 assisted tackles, while Stegall finished with two solo and 10 assists, and Herman, two solo and nine assists. Mumford quarterback Tachallah Chapman completed only oneof-11 passes for 4 yards and the Shamrocks limited Mumford to 105 yards in total offense.

CC placekicker Kerry Zavagnin burled two kickoffs in the end zone, punted for a 39.5 yard average, made a 21-yard field goal and kicked two extra points,

The Shamrocks gained 187 yards, all on the ground, with quarterback Chris Barbara, fullback Dan Gusoff and Jason Krueger all scoring on 1-yard runs. Mario Vassallo helped set up CC's first score with a 42-yard punt return.

CC's senior tallback Jeff Tibaldi led all rushers with 93 yards on 19 carries.

LUTH. WESTLAND 34, ST. ALPHONSUS 14: In another game played Saturday, senior halfback Paul Seltz had 117 yards on 15 carries and two touchdowns, leading the Warrlors to the win at home.

Lutheran Westland moved to 2-0 overall. Dearborn St. Alphonsus is 1-1.

Sellz scored on runs of 32 and 9 yards and added two interceptions for the defense. Senior halfback Matt Grams gained 80 yards and a touchdown.

Lutheran Westland, which had 353 yards in total offense, led 20-6 at halftime and scored twice in the third quarter to seal the victory.

Lutheran Westland held St. Alphonsus to 150 total yards, and senior linebacker Troy Smith led the Warriors with five solo tackles and seven assisted tackles.

'We're improving," said Lutheran Westland coach Dennis Tuomi. "We looked good in some moments and bad in other moments. I was pleased for the most part."

Lutheran Westland will play at Tekonsha on Friday at 7:30.

CC-King matchup highlights weekend

By Brad Emons and Dan O'Meara staff writers

HE GAP CLOSED just a bit between your two expert prognosticators. After going a mediocre 8-6 last week, the smiling Irishman (Dan O'Meara) now stands

23-8 on the season. He still maintains a two-game lead over the frowning Welshman (Brad Emons), who cut that four-game deftcit in half over the weekend, going 10-4 to up his record to 21-10 overall

As for Week No. 3, what's in store?

For the Western Lakes Activities Association. it marks divisional openers. League play also opens up in the Northwest Suburban League, while the Metro Conference and Tri-River begin its second week of league games.

The Catholic League is still one week away from its openers.

How many unbeaten teams are left in Observerland? The answer is seven - Redford Catholic Central, Westland John Glenn, Livonia Stevenson, Farmington Harrison, Wayne Memorial, Lutheran High Westland and Redford St. Agatha.

That number could be cut in half after this weekend. Here is a preview of the action:

grid predictions

North do the trick twice at Centennial Educational Park? PICKS: O'Meara isn't counting out North just yet. Emons likes the Rocks' chances.

Pty. Canton at Northville: The Chiefs (1-1) somehow must tind a way to contain Northville (1-1) quarterback Ryan Huzjak, one of the top signal callers in the state. This could be a wide open, high-scoring attain. PICKS: Canton finds a way to win, both agree.

Farm. Harrison vs. W.L. Western (at Walled Lake Central): The euphoria at Western has subsided. After getting a rare win against Novi in their opener, the Warriors foil back down to earth, losing last Friday to Farmington. What Jekyl and Hyde team will show up this week? PICKS: Western falls into a large crater as unbeaten Harrison rolls to victory No. 3.

Garden City at Ypsi Lincoln: The Railsplitters (1-1) rely on defense. They defeated Detroit East Catholic and lost to Tecumseh last week 23-0. GC (0-2) is searching for its first win after being drubbed 19-2 last week by Romulus. PICKS: FEp a coin, both take with the Land of Lincoln.

Wyandotte et Wayne Memorial: This game could be for the Wolverine A League title. Both teams are unbeaten. Wyandotta seems to have absorbed the loss of running back Joe Allano (1,400 yards), who was lost before the season to knee surgery. Wayne's kicking game needs to pick up this week, particularly If the score is close. PICKS: Bad news for the Bears, Wayne makes it three straight.

back David Little has been a plus. Churchill's defense has to come up big if a victory is going to take place. PICKS: Franklin pulls out a win.

W.L. Central at Farmington: The Falcons (1-1), Iresh from a win against Western, are looking to make it a clean sweep against the Walled Lakes. The home field should help for sure. Central (0-2) lost last week to Northville and standout QB Ryan Huzjak, 34-20. PICKS: Farmington puts the Vikings in the cellar of the Lakes Division.

Taylor Kennedy at Red. Thurston: There are a lot of similarities between the two schools. Both teams are nicknamed the Eagles and are both 0-2. Both are picked up finish near the middle-to-bottom of the Tri-River League. Thurston has only scored two points thus far in losses to Robichaud and Crestwood, while Kennedy talled 13 last week in a defeat against city rival Truman. PICKS: No ties in this one, both like JFK over Lee Μ.

Lutheran North at Liv. Clarenceville: Turn out the lights, the Trojans are playing a rare afternoon game at home. Nothing, however, has been bright about the Trojans' 0-2 start. North (1-1), a state playoff team a year ago, has a strong defense led by linebacker Aaron Carpenter. The Mustangs, who toppled Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook last week, were picked by some to challenge Avondale for the Metro Conference, title, PICKS: The Trojans fall to 0-3.

St. Agatha vs. Innisdale, Ontario (at Det. Benedic-

PICKS: King wins a defensive struggle, says Emons, but O'Meara takes CC.

Redford Union at Dearborn (4 p.m.): The Panthers (1-1) got a boost after beating Waterlord Kettering last week by a point. Dearborn, defending Northwest Suburban League champs, are human, despite a 2-0 record. Can RU's defense do the job? PICKS: RU hates Friday afternoon football, go with Dearborn.

Westland Glenn at Liv, Stevenson: Both teams are unbeat en. Glenn, however, whipped the Spartans last year by a 41-0 count. Sfevenson is a better football team than a year ago, but is that enough? PICKS: Glenn gets tested, but earns passing roarks.

N. Farmington at Ply. Salem: Both teams are 1-1 and play murderous schedules to open the season. North is coming off a 26-15 win at Canton, while Salem is licking its wounds from a 21-12 loss to Farmington Harrison. This should be a war, Can Choose a positive outlook, consultant says

By Doug Funke slaff writer

Negativity is learned. Negativity can be unlearned. It's up to everyone to decide as individuals whether they want to have a positive outlook in the workplace and at home, then make a conscious effort to do so.

Be prepared for a more satisfying life — and some funny looks — if you make the transformation.

That was the gist of a message provided Monday by Lois Wolfe-Morgan, a management consultant and motivational speaker, to a marketing club of the Livonia Chamber of Commerce.

"Every workday experience is a call to action," she said. "We can no longer wait around for someone to put rocks in our positive buckets. You have to do it yourself.

"You will get there if you remain strong and keep taking baby steps. My challenge is to say yes to positivism and say yes to life."

One of the best ways to get out of the negativity rut is to find ways to say yes rather than no to yourself and others, Wolfe-Morgan advised.

"By the time you're 35 years old, you've heard 'no' 300,000 times," she said. "We hear it from parents, teachers, children, bosses, friends, people we don't even care about.

"PEOPLE WHO don't have their expectations met form negative expectations," she said. "Negativity is a habit. Most people I meet don't prepare, plan or expect to be positive."

We sometimes set ourselves up for a negative experience in the morning when an irritating alarm rouses us out of a sound sleep. We see how lousy we look as we stumble into the bathroom, we hear all kinds of bad news from the radio or TV while getting ready, then we get bogged down in traffic while heading to work.

"Wouldn't it be neat if we could wake up and say, 'What a great, new morning,' Wolfe-Morgan said. "Most people don't believe they have options. They believe they're stuck in their rut.

eir rut. "We can't wait around for the rest of the world to give us the compliments we need," Wolfe-Morgan repeated. "We have to tell ourselves those things."

But taking a few seconds to give. undivided attention — and a compliment — to your children or col-leagues at work will make you and them feel good."

"When you have increased satisfaction, you have increased productivity . . . the bottom line is up," she said.

'When you have increased satisfaction, you have increased productivity. The bottom line is up.' — Lois Wolfe-Morgan WOLFE-MORGAN identified four magic phrases — "hmmmm," "ahhhh," "oh," and "tell me more" — that defuse negative conversation on the job and at home.

'You would be amazed at the power of these words," she said. "Use these four words over and over.

What it does is stop you from fueling the fires of negativity."

Sure, you'll end up in some boring conversations, she said, but better boring than negative.

"We move in the direction of that which we think about," Wolfe-Morgan said. And excuses about lack of opportunity, dysfunctional families, divorce, poverty are just that - excuses, she said.

"Environment impacts life, people impact life but do you know who has the biggest impact on your life? You."

Don't be surprised if you're regarded a bit differently when you can change your outlook, Wolfe-Morgan said.

"People think you're weird because they're not accustomed to positiveness," she said. "They have become so comfortable in life it (negativity) has become part of their personality."

Beverly A. White, sales director for Lazer Images, agreed especially with Morgan-Wolfe's assertion that people choose to be positive or negative.

"SOME PEOPLE don't feel they have that choice. It is your choice, under all circumstances, to be positive," White said.

"I thought she was an excellent speaker," said Patty Donohue-Ebach, physical education director for the Livonia Family YMCA. "We have it in our power to choose to be positive or negative. I think most people make their own beds, then put the blame in other places."

"I liked the fact she said not to encourage a person who has a negative attitude and (suggested) ways to cool them off," said Janet Ramsden, an administrative assistant at Suburban Medical Center. "It's something we can all put to use."

"You're not going to succeed if you have negative thoughts," said Peggy Crilley, a sales representative for Business & Pleasure Travel. "Positive thinking has to be not only in the workplace, but day-to-day living."

"I thought she had good points," said Phil Bahr, a partner in the CPA firm of Parker, Wittus & Co. "How many times do you fuel someone's negative comments?'

Pension options affect decision on early retirement payouts), he would receive almost $1,500 per month. Income from his investment assets of $250,000 could provide the $1,100 per month needed to reach the $2,600 goal.

But Wright is concerned about the effects of future inflation on his required income. The pension pay-ments are a fixed amount that will not increase over time. With a life expectancy of 20-25 years, the purchasing power of this pension benefit spouse. Obviously, the greater the survivor benefit, the lower the pension payment will be. For example, the 100 percent survivor benefit option is only 85 percent of the amount paid under the single life option in which no survivor benefits are paid.

We would strongly suggest that they choose the 100 percent survivor option. Because Norma Wright has no pension of her own, she will need continuing income should she become widowed. Her income would already be reduced because she would not be receiving any of her husband's future earned income, por would she receive his Social Security at age 62 although her widow's Social Security benefits would be available at age 60. A 50 percent or more reduction in the pension benefit in addition to these other reductions could be devastating.

Evaluating an early retirement package is not an easy process. Each individual set of circumstances is different, and there are few blanket answers. We'd encourage the Wrights to seek the advice of a personal financial adviser on these matters. This is a critical period for them, and the financial decisions made now may impact their future financial security for years to come.

1991 NBD HOUSING CONFERENCE

Dan Boyce, a certified financial planner at the Center for Financial Planning in Southfield, has been recognized by Money magazine as one of the top financial planners in the nation. Alan Ferrara is a partner in the Farmington Hills law firm of Couzens, Lansky, Fealk, Ellis, Roeder & Lazar. Both serve on the board of directors for the Southeast Michigan Chapter of the International Association for Financial Planning.

John Wright is facing one of the most difficult decisions in his career. Along with many of his peers, he has been offered an early retirement package from Unisys. Although he is inclined toward accepting the offer, he has requested our evaluation regarding his options.

Wright, 57, has worked for Unisys (formerly Burroughs) for the last 26 years. His wife has never worked outside the home, and their three children are grown and financially independent. They have a house in Plymouth that will be paid off in four years.

Wright has always planned to work at Unisys at least until age 62, and probably 65. He had never considered retiring until this recent package was offered. But if they can afford it, he would like to accept the offer.

Incentives in the early retirement package include a favorable formula used to determine the pension benefit. This calculation bases his pension on his higher "final average earnings," rather than on an average of his "career earnings," which would be used if he stayed on until age 62. Offsetting this somewhat is the fact he will have fewer years of service, a factor that reduces the pension benefit. Also, his medical insurance, would be, in effect subsidized. We calculate the value of the medical benefits package at approx imately $100 per month.

More important, an early retirement would give him the option to pursue other vocational opportunities. He has often thought he would enjoy teaching at the college level. But if landing a position proved difficult, he could work as a computer systems consultant/independent contractor.

IN PREPARING for retirement, a major focus must be on the necessary income to meet projected expenses. Fortunately, the Wrights have tracked their actual expenditures over the past few years. This provides them with an accurate picture of the income needed during retirement, which they estimate at $2,600 per month to maintain their current standard of living.

Retirement income generally comes from three sources: pensions, income from investments and Social Security. Because it will be five years before Wright reaches 62, he will have to rely initially on just the pension and investments plus any outside earnings from a new job.

At first blush, it appears that the Wrights should have no problem reaching their income goal. If Wright took the maximum pension for which he is eligible (unreduced by survivorship options or lump sum would be drastically reduced over time.

We would point out that they, in fact, have some built-in future increases in their spendable income. When Wright reaches 61, the house will be paid off and they will effectively increase their spendable income by $450 per month. The following year, when he reaches 62, he will be eligible for Social Security of more than $700 per month, and his wife would be eligible for Social Security benefits of $350 the following. year.

BUT EVEN THESE amounts might not provide them with the needed cushion should inflation become a major problem. At just 5 percent inflation, their income needs would increase to more than $5,500 by the time they reach their late 60s. Our projections indicate that they might be financially secure with their current assets, but that this is dependent upon relatively favorable economic assumptions.

We conclude that he can accept the early retirement offer, but we would highly recommend that hepursue a teaching or consulting position for at least the next five years. By supplementing their income in this manner, they should be able to leave their investment assets virtually untouched, reinvesting all interest and dividends. The growth of these assets during the next fewyears will help provide a larger margin for a comfortable retirement even in more adverse economic conditions.

Wright has the option of taking his pension in a single lump sum payment rather than monthly payments. Under the basic pension plan, he could opt for a $125,000 lump sum payment, and there is a special relirement incentive that could pay him a lump sum of about $36,000.

Although the lump sum payments would increase their asset base, we . would recommend that Wright elect to receive the monthly pension payments. This would not be the right solution for everyone. But especially because his wife has no pension of her own, the pension can provide a steady base of income for their daily. living expenses. Cash flow is simply easier to monitor and manage with this regular income:

Also, the lump sum distribution would generate substantial immedi-. ate income tax liability. Because of this tax, they would have fewer assets earning interest. The actuarial interest rate assumption in the monthly pension is more than 8 percent. A lump sum election would require even higher rates of return to generate the same income because the taxes paid immediately reduce the principal.

The standard form of the pension provides that if Wright died, his wife would continue to receive 50 percent of the pension benefit. Alternatively,

Resale revives fashionable 'leftovers'

By Sue Mason staff writer;

Growing up in a big family has its advantages and disadvantages.

On the plus side is a built-in supply of playmates. On the downside are the hand-me-down clothes that move from the oldest to the youngest and have encores in family photos sometimes spanning decades.

Hand-me-downs seem to have a life of their own. Possibly made of some top secret, wear-resistant fabric, they hang around longer than fruitcake And they never make it to the rag box. until they are truly rags and even then, the buttons and zippers are saved for a hand-me-down in need of repair.

Suburban Life

It's no wonder Barbra Streisand lamented about her life as a "Secondhand Rose" in the movie "Funny , Girl."

But what was once looked on as the scourge of the Earth has been reborn . . . as resale. As the cost of new and designer clothing escalates to triple digits and higher, stores are popping up all over to market last year's fashlonaties

Call them nearly new, slightly used, previously owned or plain and simple used, secondhand items have gained new status. They're accept- , able - and sought after - substitutes for brand spanking new.

DORA SABATINI knows- that's true. A veteran resaler, she owns Dora's Place, a resale shop that has been on Seven Mile in Livonia for more than 15 years.

"My customers tell me I have good prices and great merchandise," she said.

"I do have good clothes in the store. You can find a skirt for $10 or a leather suit that's like new for $150."

THE RESALE shop is an offshoot of selling books for the benefit of Tyler Elementary School and wearing used clothing she bought from friends. She enjoyed the former and was flattered by compliments about. her used clothing, so she decided to rent a storefront.

Two years later, she bought a small place and has been there ever since.

Her original clients lived in Southfield and Farmington Hills. She still gets clothing from them, but they're ensconced in Birmingham and-Bloomfield Hills and the list now includes their daughters.

"I get very nice things from them," she said. "They know me well and want me to buy from them."

DORA'S PLACE is a different kind of resale shop. Sabatini shuns selling her clothing on consignment. She buys her clothing (ranging in sizes 4 to 10 with a few 12s) from her. clients ("They take good care of themselves") and then sells it, never making the usual 50 percent profit, she said.

'Potty Proud' venture: A flush with success

By Sue Mason staff writer

"One and two and three and four . . . going to the bathroom door. Five and six and seven, eight . . going potty just can't wait. One and two and three and four . . . I can't hold it anymore. Five and six and seven, eight . . . I think I might be too late."

"Potty Rock" isn't the kind of song you'll find on the airwaves. Don't look for a rock video on MTV and skip the bins at the record store.

You can find "Potty Rock" in just one place - on a cassette tape in a box that colorfully announces it's "Potty Proud."

If you're a parent with a young child, this tape . . . in fact, the entire kit is for you. So says Stephanie Olen of Farmington Hills who with her sister Patti Glangrande of Southfield came up with a toilet training kit for children and their parents.

The goal of "Potty Proud" is to make the transition from diapers to toilet a fun and rewarding experience for all concerned.

"Adults tend to simplify potty training, but there's a lot of things the child has to master," Olen said.

OLEN AND Giangrande got the idea for "Potty Proud" while trying to toilet train their children. They went looking for information on the subject and found the same four-five books in book stores.

The books pointed out that toilet training should be something children are proud of and a lot suggesting using stickers and posters as a way of rewarding children in training.

But, the two women rationalized, "what working mother has the time" to gather up those items. Enter Anton Enterprises Inc. of Farmington Hills.

A takeoff of the women's maiden name of Antonow,

Stephanie Olen of Farm-Ington Hills and her sister Pattl Giangrande of Southfield hope "Potty Proud" will take the stress and struggle out of tollet training tod-

Kind heart influences writer's thinking and actions

Dear Ms. Green,

I regularly read your graphology column in the Observer, and I would like very much to have you analysis of my handwriting. I am female, 38 years old and right handed. This is the style I most often use, though I also like to print. I am most comfortable using a medium point pen, and I like to write with a padding of some paper. I am enclosing a sample of my printing. Perhaps it will be of some use in your analysis.

Shops give old clothes new life

CLIENTS MAKE appointments to bring in their consignment goods up to 50 items in good condition (no holes, no tears, not dirty or solled). Walk-ins are welcome for children's clothing only.

There are times when appointments are booked three months in advance, although they're only running two weeks in advance at present, Campbell said.

The items are tagged and numbered before being put on the selling floor for two months at full price. The price drops to half price at the start of the third month and if they don't sell within 10 days, they are pulled from the floor.

THE OWNERS can reclaim the unsold goods, but if they don't, they are donated to charity. Some of the items may show up on the ever popular $1 rack, Campbell said.

Wellman and Campbell keep track of things by using colored tags. A different color is used for each month. At the end of the month, they tally up what has sold and issue checks.

They also keep items seasonal and are now accepting fall and winter wear for resale.

"We try to carry quality items," Campbell said. "We get a lot of Liz (Claiborne) wear, but there's also stuff from Lord & Taylor and Bill Blass."

THE RESALE shop was a spinoff the garage sales Wellman and Campbell would have. Worried about where they would get the items for their racks, they gathered up things of their own and stuff garnered from friends.

But an advertisement in the newspaper put their fears to rest. There was plenty of response. Now, the Yellow Pages and word-of-mouth keep the things coming in.

"There aren't a whole lot of resale shops around," Campbell said. "A lot opened when we did, but have since closed. We've been lucky to hang 0n."

AND THERE'S a lot of truth in that statement. Having a great selection isn't a surefire guarantee for secondhand success.

Second Chance, a relatively new resale shop on Plymouth Road in Redford, closed its doors in August because of a lack of customers. And

Compelling message

Baby boomers find their niche at this Canton church

By Arlene Funke special writer

What is your personal relationship with God? Why do bad things happen to good people?

The Canton Community Church, which this month marked its second anniversary, regularly explores such timeless themes with fresh techniques dramatic readings, skits, mime performances and contemporary Christian music.

The church is affiliated with the Evangelical Free Church of America, a small mainline Protestant denomination.

"We want to make our messages compelling," said the Rev, Eric Moore, 32, pastor of the church. "We get to be creative."

Moore, a Canton resident, is targeting baby boomers who, for a variety of reasons, aren't attending church. He is convinced that many have strong-"spiritual longings."

Cynthia and Mike Shaft of Plymouth Township have responded to Moore's unorthodox approach. The Shafts, chiropractic physicians with a Canton practice, have five children ages 4 to 13,

THE SILAFTS were particularly concerned about their children, who had become bored with church ritual. Cynthia Shaft said the klds enjoy the skits at Canton Community.

"Tradition is very important, but I think the traditional church has become weighted down," said Shaft, 32. She and her husband wanted their children to retain spiritual ties.

Currently, around 120 people attend weekly services. Sunday worship is 10 a.m. in the gym at Field Elementary School, on Haggerty between Cherry Hill and Palmer in Canton.

Moore and his wife, Kim, have two children, ages 4 and 5; a third is due in March. Most members of the families.

Sunday worship, which Moore calls the "seeker's service," is geared to non-members. There is no choir. Music is provided by talented member-musicians, or by tapes, rather than the traditional organ.

There is no passing of a collection plate. Donations may be dropped into a box, if desired.

are apprehensive," Moore said. "We try to take the sting away."

A DIFFERENT service takes place on Thursday evenings. Members have the use of the Christ Community Church, on Ford Road west of Canton Center in Canton, where they sing spiritual songs and study the Bible.

During a recent Thursday service, a dozen people were baptized by immersion. Because the church encourages personal choice, those being baptized are typically age 10 or older, Moore said.

Other small groups meet in members' homes for discussions and fellowship.

The Evangelical Free Church of America is rooted among Scandinavian-Americans traditionally in farming areas of the Midwest, Moore said.

Moore, a Romulus native, has a bachelor's degree in communications from Tennessee Temple University and a master of divinity degree from Temple Baptist Theological Seminary. Both are in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Moore also teaches speech at William Tyndale College in Farmington Hills.

Member David Shull says his affiliation with the Canton Community Church is "rejuvenating."

Shull, 47, is a marriage and family counselor. His wife, Marian, 38, is a registered nurse. They moved to Canton from Portland, Ore., around three years ago.

The Shulls have five children, ranging in age from 10 months to 12 years.

"We found it very easy to make friends," Shull said. "There is a lot of excitement and growth when young people are around."

David Shull heads up one of the small study groups. Marian Shull is the church's nursery director.

The Shafts are involved in the music ministry. Mike Shaft, 35, plays drums. Cynthia Shaft plays the flute.

Cynthia Shaft had attended high school with Moore, church also are young married couples with growing but had lost touch with her former classmate until she began attending the church. She describes Moore as "humble and quiet," but inspiring.

"This is real exciting, starting from scratch," she said. "There is something going on here. The words born again' sound like a cliche, but that's what it is."

"We want to make our messages compelling," said the Rev. Eric Moore, pastor of the Canton Community Church.

We can reach out to overcome loneliness

The subject of loneliness is one that few of us discuss with anyone. except psychiatrists, and then only when we feel we are in deep trouble.

As Suzanne Gordon noted: "What was once a philosophical problem spoken of mainly by poets and prophets, has now become an almost permanent condition for millions of Americans, not only for the old and divorced, but also for the men and women filling singles bars and encounter groups, the adolescents running away from home, the corporate transients who move every two or three years and thepeople calling suicide and crisis hot lines in search of someone to talk to."

suicide among young people. Indeed, the latter is the second leading cause of death for those between 15 and 24. What we see emerging in white middle-class America is the kind of instability the sincere caring of others. We can prove to them by our patience, understanding and supportive presence that their fears are unjustified. Selfishly, when you dig another out of his troubles, you will find and unknowable in order to protect our fragile egos, but at the cost of our physical, emotional and spiritual health. The answer, he says, is to make ourselves "transparent," to make ourselves open and available to those we most love - our families and friends. This is the escape route out of the prison of our loneliness, a path marked by sharing, self-disclosure and openness. This happens because God has given us the capacity to love,' to care about others. To look at the world through the eyes of love is to become related to all mankind and thus to become insulated against the ravages of loneliness.

Why are there so, many lonely people in our midst? Among the primary causes are family instability, high mobility, the increasing divorce rate, and the striving for independence and personal success.

CONSIDER THE effects of divorce on the family. There are an estimated 8,000,000 children under 18 whose parents are divorced. What impact do you imagine-this has on the emotional integration of these children?

One 12-year-old girl of divorced parents put her feelings down on paper: "I get lonely because I miss my mom. I live with my aunt. My mom left me here while she was looking for a job. And then she got this boyfriend and she never came for me. I guess I could never talk to my mom when I felt lonely because she was lonely too.'

Psychologists believe that this increasing stress in the family maybe one of the factors for the growing rates of both alcoholism and that used to be solely peculiar to poor and black families.

Even within "stable" marriages and interpersonal relationships, there can be loneliness if there is no communication. Couples can be strangers, friends can be remote, and neighbors can be emotionally distant. In the absence of communication and sharing, the loneliness grows. "Dialogue is the elixir of life," writes James Lynch.

SOME LONELY people withdraw from human contact because they lack trust in the honesty and a place to bury your own.

If we are to rediscover trust and friendship, we must be willing to respond and graciously accept the hand of caring. And, if there-is nohand to grab, then we must initiate the reaching out. We must become activists and become involved in our community and in helping others. He who builds walls about himself or herself will, in turn, become isolated from the mainstream of · • • • • humankind.

Blue skies JET soars into its 3rd season

Performances of the Jewish Ensemble Theatre production of "Crossing Delancey" continue through Oct. 6 at the Aaron DeRoy Theatre at the Jewish Community Center, 6600 W. Maple Road in West Bloomfield. For tickets, call JET at 788-2900, visit any Ticketmaster outlet or call 645-6666.

By Cathle Breldenbach special writer

RTISTIC BRILLIANCE alone can't keep a theater afloat in the turbulent waters of modern American arts, especially in Michigan waters made more treacherous by cutbacks in arts funding.

The Jewish Ensemble Theatre of West Bloomfield, one of metro Detroit's newest professional theaters, knows theater is a business as well as an art.

Critics can acclaim productions, and praise for JET's productions to date has been generous, but unless a theater fills the house regularly, builds a subscription base, and makes wise business decisions, the stage lights are destined to dim.

WITH TWO successful seasons under its belt, and the business acumen to keep the momentum building, JET is opening its third season this week with the romantic comedy "Crossing Delancey.".

The New York hit pits a content-

'The first year, buying a subscription was an act of faith because we had no track record.' - Evelyn Orbach

Sylvia Kauders, who created the grandmother in the original New York show recreates her role in JET's production.

SUBSCRIPTIONS HAVE tripled since the theater opened its doors in February 1990 in the 180-seat auditorium of the Jewish Community Center on Maple Road in West Bloomfield, said James August, a founder, and immediate past president.

That first year, subscriptions started at about 300; this year they top 900.

He cites "A Rosen by Any Other Name," last season's closing show about a boy preparing for his bar mitzvah, as an example of how JET's following is growing.

The show sold out a number of nights; its run was extended two weeks, and numerous non-denominational school groups attended.

"It was a cross-cultural experience they could relate to," said Evelyn Orbach, JET's artistic director. "The whole genesis of the theater was to share the Jewish experience with a broader audience," adds August rietta Hermelin, Irving and Babs Protetch, and Evelyn Orbach commissioned a market feasibility study to assess whether the Jewish community would support a new theater.

The mandate was clear - Yes, the Jewish community would welcome a theater provided it was a thoroughly professional venture and provided productions that had a recognizable Jewish content.

In theater, the word "professional" connotes more than top-notch productions; it means that an agreed-upon percentage of cast and crew in each production will be members of the professional union, Actors Equity.

statement that reads "plays must be by Jewish playwrights, and r on Jewish themes, andr of interest to Jewish audiences."

Orbach points out that "the 'and/ or' in the statement is very important," because it gives the theater flexibility in selecting the season of four plays plus, each spring, a festival of staged readings of new works in progress.

JET's play reading committee uses the mission statement as a guideline when it reads 60-100 new plays per year and selects four to be ... A JET subscription package inincluded in the festival.

company, which Orbach calls "a van and a car full of actors who bring Jewish theater beyond the borders of the metro area."

"We wanted to be not just a terrific professional theater providing theatrical entertainment. It was important to be a platform, a sounding board for new voices and new ideas, to facilitate the development of aspiring playwrights, as one way to contribute to the community as a whole," said Frank.

after each reading.

Comparing JET to other, established professional theaters in the area, Orbach said, "they have the administrative machinery already in place. We're still building our machinery. For the first two to three years we were using start up energy and money from the Fisher Foundation (which funds new enterprises).".

JET's third season promises challenges as the new theater comes of. age. New staffers will be hired to carry the increasing administrative Ken Ludwig's "Lend Me A Tenor" is one of the most ingenious farces in recent memory. The Birmingham Theatre opens its 1991-92 season with a raucous version of this hilarious play.

While the production certainly leaves the audience laughing, it does suffer a bit from an overly frantic pace and tendency to try to hit the audience over the head with every punch line. In the process, some of Ludwig's delightful script gets lost.

THE CURTAIN opens on a lavish art deco hotel suite in 1934 Cleveland. There, the general manager of the Cleveland Grand Opera (Barry Nelson), and his long-suffering assistant Max (Larry Cahn), cagerly await the arrival of Tito Merelli, the world's greatest tenor, for a onenight-only appearance as Otello. When Tito (II Stupendo to his legion of fans) does show up he quickly becomes massively indisposed (or worse). In a frantic effort to save the evening, the impresario and his sidekick cook up a plot to impersonate the star.

WITH ONE big case of mistaken identity and a set that includes no fewer than six doors, the comic antics start flying at a breathtaking pace.

The star of the show, though you'd never know it to look at the program or read the press releases, is clearly Larry Cahn in the demanding role of Max.

Cahn takes this bullied assistant manager and transforms him from a whiny nebbish into a dashing ladies man when he impersonates the great Merelli at the last minute. Cahn's performance is energetic, endearing, and features perfect comic timing.

POPULAR STAGE and film star Berry Nelson is also excellent as the totally befuddled and somewhat amoral theater manager, Saunders He is an unabashed cad who will do anything to save his hide or a buck, but you can't help love him for his cunning and energy:

Ron Holgate, creator of several memorable Broadway characters, plays the egotistical, womanizing and child-like Tito with great bravado and a thousand comic facial expressions.

His character suffers a bit, though, from a fairly lame Italian accent and a tendancy toward overkill on the punch lines.

"Lend Me A Tenor" is a marvelously entertaining play, and despite the Birmingham's heavy handed approach to it, this production (also directed by Holgate) will definitely entertain.

By the way, the show is a treat for opera fans.

Workshop helps artists learn the business

By Linda Ann Chomin special writer

Are you an artist struggling to turn your creative output into a successful business? > If so, plan to attend the Livonia Arts Commission workshop, "The Business of Being an Artist," with artist and lecturer Nancy Thayer of Lathrup Village.

The informative workshop for artists of all experiences is scheduled for 1:30-5 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 21, in the Livonia Civic Center Library Auditorium, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

Thayer will discuss "vital information that every artist needs to know." Topics include writing an artist's resume, how to maintain a studio, what not to put into a portfolio, what is tax deductible, the best way to keep track of expenses and alternate sources of income.

"It is important in today's economy for artists to function in a businesslike manner. They must be able to keep records, pay taxes, use contracts as well as spend quality time in their studio. It takes an enormous amount of discipline," Thayer said.

"In addition, I'll be discussing the differences in writing resulmes for artists. Resumes for artists are different than resumes for business. I'll also discuss alternate sources of income such as sales directly out of the studio, street fairs, and agents and representatives."

AN ACCOMPLISHED artist, Thayer received a Master of Arts Degree from Michigan State University and a Master of Fine Arts from Instituto Allende, Mexico.

She teaches at Center for Creative Studies in Detroit, as well as the Detroit Institute of Arts. Her work is currently exhibited at Rubiner's C. st Bloomfield, Volid Gallery in Chicago and Windsor's Gallery in Boca Raton.

Thayer is curating an exchange exhibition between five Detroit area artists and five artists from West Germany for 1992. She is busy working in her Pontiac studio, developing a body of new work to exhibit next year.

Livonia arts commissioner Therese Jaye initiated the series of workshops and seminars for artists in 1989. Since that time, guest speakers have given information and tips on topics ranging from framing artwork to selling your art.

"Although they're artists, they are not familiar with marketing their work. We aim to give them an idea of how to market their work," Jaye sald.

SINCE THE first art workshop two years ago. artists from Livonia, P1.

Farmington Hills, Birmingham and West Bloomfield, have gained insight into the art business.

One of the local artists benefiting from the workshops is Canton resident Gwen Dietrich, Dietrich's first one-person exhibition, "Dogs and Dames," at Nelson's Galtery in Livonia last March was so well-received, she is working toward a second one-person show in 1992. In February, new works by Dietrich will be exhibited at Livonia City Hall in a Livonia Arts Commission show,

"The workshops target specific ways to pursue goals as an artist," Dietrich said. "Organization, recordkeeping, how to document and deduct art-related expenses are just some of the helpful hints that I learned by taking part in the workshops."

Dietrich, who works in pastel, colored oneil and watercolor, added: "I learned the importance of having my own studio, solely used for my art business as opposed to a corner of the bedroom. The painting that I've left the night before on the easel or drawing board compels me to get back to. my studio."

THE FEE for "The Business of Being an Artist" is $5. The cost of the workshop has been underwritten by the Livonla Arts Commission.

During a mid-afternoon break, refreshments will be served. Jaye said the arts commission prefers that artists planning to attend the workshop preregister by calling the Livonia City Hall Community Resources Center, 421-2000.

"The workshops are important because the networking is valuable to artists. For anybody interested, we will accept people at the door," Jaye said.

Lew Pleasant removes a rough edge from one of his walking sticks.

which he makes by hand in the basement workshop of his Canton home.

These handshaped sticks are made for walking

By Jeff Hooten special writer

T'S NO secret that walking is the latest fitness craze to sweep the nation. Thousands, if not millions of Americans can be seen trodding terrain ranging from neighborhood parks to backwoods trails.

Retail sales also reflect this trend, as modern enthusiasts stock up on high-priced hiking shoes. designer exercise suits and even memberships to walking clubs.

Even so, according to one local resident, most newcomers are forgetting an important accessory - one that existed long before aucushioned insoles.

Lew Pleasant of Canton has been crafting walking sticks and hiking stalls by hand for the past several years. As his skills improved, he decided to display his work at local arts and craft shows, including the annual Plymouth Art in the Park, where he recently made his fourth straight appearance. "I'm always on Union Street," Pleasant said. "I have my own canopy and specially built racks for my sticks.' A special education teacher with the Detroit Public Schools for nine months out of the year," Pleasant still considers his craft to be merely a hobby, a natural outgrowth of his fondness for walking.

"My wife and I hike a lot," Pleasant said. "We like to go on nature trails and we go walking at the metroparks. In the past, we used to just pick up sticks along the way. It's easier to walk with a stick.

ACCORDING TO Pleasant. hiking staffs and walking sticks have been used in Europe for many years, more recently gaining popularity in this country, especially in California. Yet it was after attending the

'You're saving wear and tear on your feet, your legs and your back by using a staff.'

----Lew Pleasant, crafter annual Renaissance Festival in Holly one year that Pleasant saw firsthand what could be done with sticks and branches. Though the ones he saw at the festival were more on the ornamental side, they inspired him to begin finishing his own sticks.

"We started having permanent sticks and we began taking our own favorites out on hikes. Then friends wanted sticks and we started giving them as gifts. That's when the idea came to me, just by going to craft shows, to start offering them for sale."

The process of crafting a walking stick or a hiking staff (the two are essentially the same, differing primarily in length) begins with the gathering of raw materials, namely branches from dead trees.

"I make note of local construction that's going on and where workers have uprooted trees." Pleasant said. "I don't use any exotic woods. I've discovered that some of the softer, lighter woods such as cottonwood, aspen and linden are very strong."

AFTER GETTING the chosen branches home, Pleasant cuts them down to the size he wants. Using only his knife, he then strips the bark off each branch. concentrating on one stick at a time. Once the wood is dry, Pleasant gets out his sandpaper. "I'll sand it down, moving from a coarse grit to a very fine grit to prepare the surface. Then the process of staining begins."

Pleasant feels each plece of wood has a character all it own and he can be very particular with each stick.

> "If I can get the look I want with just one coating of stain, then that's all I'll use. But that doesn't happen very often. I can apply as many as five coats of stain just to get a color that I'm satisfied with."

Once the staining is done and the stick is dry, Pleasant then decides whether he wants a satin finish or a "high-gloss" look. "Some people like a high lustre and some don't, so I try to give them a variety."

Since he sometimes applies up to six coats of all-weather varnish to a particular stick, a finished piece can take up to two weeks to complete,

Though the labor involved is quite time-consuming, the cost is not reflected in the price he charges. None of his walking sticks or hiking staffs cost more than $35, and some of them are priced as low as $15.

"This really is only a hobby and I musn't figure the time spent in the price. There could never be enough money that would make it worthwhile on an hourly basis."

UNLIKE OTHER sticks he has seen that were merely for show, Pleasant hopes his customers will actually use his creations.

'You're saving wear and tear on your feet, your legs and your back by using a staff. You're actually coming off a longer hike less tired than you would be if you just walked, even though you're carrying's staff "

When giving advice on selecting a stick, Pleasant keeps it simple: "The only way a person can judge a stick is to handle it themselves and see how it feels."

If you don't want to wait until the 1992 Plymouth Art in the Park to buy a walking stick/ hiking staff, Lew Pleasant can be reached at (313) 981-5958.

Fund-raising aim: turn mill into arts center

Total estimated cost for the renovation and planned development is $991,000. The arts council is responsible for raising $765,000.

Construction costs are projected at $685,000. Another $80,000 is needed for architectural fees and the estimated 3-percent costs of raising the money.

The Wayne County Parks Division plans to obtain grants for the remaining $226,000 to renovate the mill grounds and surrounding park land.

"WE KNEW it would need a lot of work and that we needed to pull a team together to raise the capital funds," said Kathryn Savitskie, arts council executive director.

The Ann Arbor architectural firm of Quinn-Eyans developed plans for Wilcox Mill. The firm is noted for historical restoration projects such as the Smithsonian Institution in Washington and the Old Wayne County Courthouse and Orchestra Hall in Detroit.

"Celebrate the Arts" hopes to raise 63 percent of the money, or $480,000, from grants and advance gifts.

The arts council will raise 7 percent, or $55,000. Of that, $45,000 already is in the bank. Major corporations, businesses and individuals will be asked to contribute the remaining 30 percent, $230,000.

Robert DeMattia, president of R.A. DeMattia Co. of Plymouth, will chair "Celebrate the Arts."

DeMATTIA WILL work with four co-chairmen in overseeing fund-raising efforts:

president, First of America Bank, Plymouth.

• Gregory Goodman, owner of Cafe Bon Homme, Plymouth.

• Joahne Winkleman-Hulce, founder/first director, Plymouth Community Arts Council. Odom will head the corporate area, Perrot the general business/ services area, Goodman the retail/r estaurant area and Winkleman-Hulce the individual area.

The volunteer co-chairmen, all business community members, will lead the capital fund drive.

"I believe that we in the business community have a responsibility to the community," DeMattia said. "I think it will be very good for the community, and we will be taking care of the arts.

"The arts center will not only benefit the Plymouth community but the surrounding communities of Northville, Canton, Livonia, Westland and Garden City as well."

WHEN ASKED about campaign strategy, he said: "It's a multi-faceted strategy to get corporate and individual donors. We're also going for some grants, which will be matching grants."

"This is a dynamite project. The building has a history. It's historical-, ly significant to the area. The building itself is situated on a beautiful site overlooking Wilcox Lake.

"The building will be good for the environment and, of course, with the involvement of Wayne County Parks, it will enirch the entire parks system. What a jewel."

New novelist hits bull's eye with whodunit

'Carpool" by Mary Cahill. 258 pp., Random House, $19.00.

Buckle your seatbelfs and , get ready for a fast and riveting trip with this set-in-the-suburbs-whodunit from first-time novelist Mary Cahill. A former pilot for a medical air delivery service, 35-year-old Jenny Meade is married, lives in the suburbs, and has three kids who, as suburban kids will, require care, feeding, and TRANSPORTATION.

One day, as a respite from trips to three different schools, the orthodontist's office, the dermatologist's, swim classes, music and art lessons; track practice, the library, PTA meetings, etc., etc., the earthbound Jenny stops off for a stroll through the local cometery — one of the few places, in her harried life, where she can hear herself think.

Meandering from gravestone to gravestone in a thick morning fog and alone with her thoughts, she stumbles into something.

Turns out, it's the very dead body of her neighbor, John Jensen, who has apparently hung himself from an old oak tree in the graveyard.

TURNS OUT, though, maybe John didn't kill himself after all. Turns out, apparently he was murdered in-stead, and Jenny Meade is going to be directly involved in tracking down his killer.

As the inscrutable, semi-retired detective Tom Black Cloud sagely observes early on: "No single act (is) ever really a single act. One thing connects to the next."

The mysterious crime and its solution will eventually connect with Jenny's frenetic life on the road, her dream of one day returning to flying, her parents' death some 10 years earlier, John Jensens's wife and her family, other neighbors, the illicit affair of an unlikely couple, land developers, the U.S. government, even some soda pop cans littering a ditch.

Characters along for the ride here include Jenny's spelunking, "cave-man" husband, Berlie; assorted carpool passengers; the quiet bachelor, Black Cloud, who eats fettucine for breakfast because things like Rice Krisples, toast and bacon are like "the 1812 Overture in your mouth, right up there next to your ears;" the ghostly, anachronistic Flower Lady; and Bart Stott, who's even mean in his sleep.

OFTEN, NOVELS that are, by turns, funny, sad and sinister don't work all that well. But Cahill manages to pull everything off here almost without a hitch. True, things get a little cliched now and then. There's the suburban orthondontist, for example, suffering a mid-life crisis, driving a red Porsche, and having an affair with a blonde. A bad guy is "an old coot," or "weasely;" or going "to hell in a handbasket."

Also, Cahill flits from one different viewpoint to another, so much and so abruptly that readers may feel a bit discombobulated at first. But ultimately, the action is the thing and, on that, Cahill delivers with finesse. If you're looking to be entertained, here's entertainment.

By the way, aspiring novelists will be especially heartened to learn that Cahill's debut novel was submitted unsolicited and unagented to Random House.

You can meet Mary Cahill at 1 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 21 at Borders Book Shop-Novi. She'll be signing copies of "Carpool," and drawing the winning name in the Easy Rider contest, conducted by Borders in connection with the release of the book and Cahill's visit.

Local realty managers earn national designation

By Doug Funke staff writer

, The managers of day-to-day office operations at two area realty boards are among the first group of candidates to earn a new professional designation - Realtor Certified Executive - from the National Association of Realtors.

Arthur L. Mullen Jr., executive vice president of the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors, and Judy Waugh, vice president of the Rochester Board of Realtors, met experience requirements, then passed a six-hour exam to gain certification.

"The purpose is to increase professionalism and just give an extra professional development activity, something to strive for," said Julie Ann Read, leadership development manager for the National Association of Realtors.

Waugh, a Rochester Hills resident, , has served as that board's top administrator for 10 years, Mullen, who lives in Livonia, has served his board for five years.

"I just believe it was the appropriate thing to do," Waugh said of her motivation for pursuing the certification. "It does say to the membership that we have reached a certain level of excellence. It underscores to me that I do have a working knowledge of the day-to-day process."

Mullen articulated similar thoughts.

Judy Waugh

"BASICALLY, what it's for is to ensure and certify you are, in fact, excellent in your profession," he association management.

"No one can remember everything." Mullen sald. "It (certification) gives you the opportunity to review material, bring it in focus and know where to go to get information."

To take the exam, candidates had to have at least three years of experience as an executive officer or five. years experience as a staff specialist for a Realtor organization.

Both Waugh and Mullen are highly regarded by the presidents of their respective boards,

"It involves hours and hours of said. "It makes you aware of all the work and dedication even to go for various facets, the complexities, of that designation," said Nancy the real estate profession today and Howell, president of the Rochester.

board. "That's just like Judy to do something like this,

"She is probably the best executive officer this board has ever had," Howell continued. "She has a great personality. She's one in a million. She makes my job easy."

"We encouraged him to do it (certification) this year," said Allen C. King, president of the Western Wayne/Oakland Board. "He went at it and got it accomplished. I think that's fantastic.

"It's kind of like graduate training," King said. "You keep going on and getting better and better."

Executive officers who pass the exam must take continuing education classes to maintain their certification.

Stormy waters for slip owner

We live in a marina condominium. One of the boat, owners adjacent to our slip has carousing parties at all hours of the night. The condominium association board-won't do anything. I am wondering what we can do. I don't want to start an altercation with my neighbor.

Check your restrictions to see whether "improper, immoral, or obnoxious conduct" is expressly prohibited in the documents. If not, there may be a general catch-all clause that may apply. You should write the board of directors of the association advising them of the difficulty you, arehaving and requesting that it take appropriate action to deal with the problem. I presume that you have already attempted to talk to your neighbor, ·but if not, a calm discussion may have some beneficial effect. If the board refuses to take action, you may have to seek legal counsel to provide you with remedies against the association and your recalcitrant boat slip neighbor.

New law prompts appraising seminar

A fledgling professional group, the Michigan Association of Certified Appraisers, will sponsor a half-day symposium to focus on the particulars of a state law that requires the licensing of appraisers.

The session, which runs 8:45 a.m. to noon Friday, Sept. 27, at the Sheraton Inn in Southfield, will consider several aspects of the law that takes effect Jan. 1.

The law imposes a licensing requirement on residential appraisers who take jobs from a federally insured savings and loan or bank. Licensees must complete at least 75 hours of classroom instruction, acquire 2,000 hours of experience and passed a state exam.

The symposium panel includes Judith Dennis, licensing administrator for the Board of Real Estate Appraisers; Kathleen M. Wilbur, director of the state's Department of Licensing and Regulation; and state Rep. Raymond M. Murphy, who sponsored the new appraisal legislation.

Fee for the symposium is $25 for charter members, $35 for regular members and $45 for non-members.

The Michigan Association of Certified Appraisers was established about four months ago as an educational and professional forum for persons interested in appraisal practice, theory and law.

With change in the law . . . appraisers I don't think appreciate what is happening," said Jon Gutek, a MACA founder, a certified appraiser, a lawyer and a certified public accountant.

"Our group thinks the time has come to pull the appraisal professional together and move toward professionalism," Gutek said. "Appraisers have been left out in the cold. You can call any college and get the accounting department. They don't have appraisal departments."

Prospective members don't have to be appraisers.

For more information about the symposium or MACA, contact Gutek at 644-4343 or write the assocation at P.O. Box 4691, Troy 48099-4691.

Plain or fancy — How do you dress a model house?

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

What you see is what you get? Truth in advertising? So, exactly what's included in this price?

All the flash and excitement that goes along with models can be a cause for confusion for potential home buyers, according to Richard Komer, president of the Wineman & Komer Building Co. in Southfield. Komer said during the last year he has noticed a trend in "dressing down" - more model homes will be base models without the frills.

Traditionally, a builder's model includes all the extras - more square footage, fancy trim work. upscale lighting fixtures, extra space, finished basements, better cabinets, skylights and larger bathrooms, to name just a few.

The problem, Komer said, is when a prospective buyer comes in to look at a model, it's difficult to discern what comes for the advertised price and what's extra.

"Let's say you have a $500,000 home with $250,000 in amenities you have a real stunning house, but when the buyer finds out what he sees is $750,000 (and the home was presented as a $500,000 home), the people are mad."

This strategy works just as well in the $100,000 homes as in the $500,000, he said. "People are doing a lot of comparison shopping, and if you have a home with all the extras.

show units under construction, Komer said.

"A base model is still very nice. It may not have a hardwood floor entry, or top of the line cabinetry, or extra trim, but a base model should in no way be anything less than a complete home."

Nor does it mean the home is undecorated. "We'll still have furniture, curtains, paint and wallpaper - we still want to show a home as some place lived in.

"We want them to walk out with a good impression.

dressed up models with luxury features, additions and upscale interior decorating to show buyers what options and upgrades are available, Komer said.

Komer said he believes most buyers are aware that models are dressed up versions of the basic model but still doesn't make visualizing the basic model any easier.

While these models give a good idea of what a home's potential is, they don't convey what the buyer gets for the advertised price that brought the buyer to the development in the first place.

presented, it would generally cost thousands of dollars more because of the added amenities." Komer said.

But having only basic models makes selling the extras more difficult. "We have catalogues, displays and pictures of what (the amenities) - it makes it a bit harder to sell the

In the future, builders will be "dressing down" their models so buyers can see what the base price brings. If this base model living room at Boulder Park was the typical model of five years ago, it probably would have included skylights, more extravagant light fixtures, a marble floor-to-celling fireplace, areas of stone before the fireplace, an oak mantle, wood beams along the cathedral ceiling, custom wood trim around doors and windows, granite flooring in the kitchen.

it's difficult to do that.'

KOMER SAID that he has tried two models - one dressed up and the other basic, but showing the extra features through displays and pictures seems to work just as well. And if a buyer wants to purchase

> "We firmly believe a well-merchandised model is our best tool," Whitefield said. This often includes homes with extra amenities not found in the base model.

"But," she added, "if we advertise a home for (a certain price) that home is available." There may not be a model — although there often is a basic model - but there are at least detailed plans.

Whitefield stressed that model home strategy - building a home that is more than the basic model was developed to show buyers the possibilities - not to be misleading or confusing.

When a builder shows a model, he wants to show what can be done -either what they can provide or what (the homeowner) can do later," she said. It's not uncommon that a buyer purchases a base model, and then adds the amenities himself later.

Some models have more than others. "We want to show a home just as they (the target market) would live in it," she said.

When a home is targeted for a certain family, the idea behind the model is to excite that buyer. A base model may not accomplish that, she said.

Well merchandised means different things for different homes.

Whitefield said that when the Selective Group starts a development. it begins with a marketing study to determine what the buyers they are targeting will want at home.

In a more-moderately priced home, options displayed in the model are fewer; in an upscale home, models include all the amenities, she said.

HARRIET BRANDT, president of Candle Lite II Interiors, a model merchandising/consulting firm in Farmington Hills, said both approaches are going to appeal to people, but the basic merchandising strategy is still adding all the features.

"You want people to buy what, you're selling - if it's a plain Jane, it's not going to impress them," Brandt said.

Showing homes with all the extras, after all, is really to the builder's benefit — a buyer who doesn't see

Lumber prices worry builders

"I've found lumber prices have gone wild," Bonadeo said. Bonadeo said he's not aware of local builders. putting off projects until prices. come down, but the fluctuating prices are having an effect on builders' cost estimations and bottom line.

When pricing a home, lumber costs make up roughly 15 percent of the total cost second only to land costs, he said.

"Rough lumber-that would have cost me $14,000 last year, is costing $2,000 to $3,000 more this year," he said. "These costs are just being passed onto the buyer."

THE MAIN REASON builders. have been given for the price increase, Bonadeo said, is acres of Pacific Northwest forest land are being preserved for the spotted owl.

"Well, it's true some of the blamebelongs to the spotted owl, but some of the blame goes to the big lumber barons."

Bonadeo estimated roughly 40 percent of the lumber used in this area comes form the Pacific North-- another significant portion west comes from North and South Carollna.

If lumber prices are based on supply and demand, Bonadeo continued; prices would have been much higher had it not been for the housing slump throughout the country.

Bonadeo said local housing starts, while lower than last year, are significantly higher than other areas of the country

"We're doing just about as well in fact, in the last two months things have been really moving."

BONADEO SAID it seems as if the companies that supply lumber to the wholesalers figured they wanted "x" amount of dollars, and they were going to charge that amount regardless of how much lumber they had.

"That's unconscionable," Bonadeo said. Bonadeo said he has even heard talk that - because a lot of lumber. comes from government lands there could be a government investigation of lumber gouging.

The lumber increases are especially discouraging because the building industry is working so hard to contain costs.

But if supply is the reason for the increases, there is reason to believe. year, "Lumber prices were at a 10that imber from other sources can help limit fluctuations in the future. Now that the U.S. Canadian free trade agreement is under way, Bonadeo said a growing proportion of lumber will come from Canada. Bonadeo also suggested that the United States could import a great deal of lumber from the Soviet Union in coming years.

FRANK RENNER, sales manager for Georgia-Pacific Corp. at the Toledo Distribution Center, said this has been a tremendously volatile year for the lumber industry.

Throughout the wholesale lumber industry, costs have increased, supplies have dwindled, lumber mills have closed and orders from retailers have dropped, he said.

"Even for people in the industry, (estimating prices) is very difficult,' he said. ''(This year) really caught us all by surprise."

Renner said he's been in the lumber industry for more than 20 years and few times have compared to this year low in late winter, early spring."

"Then they went up drastically," Renner said.

Lumber costs continued to climb through late July when they started to drop off again. After falling for more than a month, lumber prices jumped slightly several weeks ago.

'Lumber trades like soy beans or any other commodity - more supply means lower prices and more demand means higher prices," he said. Prices were low in the winter and early spring because the economy was slow and builders weren't buying, he explained. Prices were so low and business was so slow, in fact. that some of the lumber mills were either shutting down temporarily or going out of business.

WHEN DEMAND rose slightly in the spring - as it usually does because of the seasonal building economy - lumber stock was quickly depleted and the lumber mills weren't able to get up and running.

That's why it took until July before the prices bogan to fall, Renner said. The recent increase was a result of more builders becoming optimistic and starting building projects.

The price increase wasn't as severe because many of the mills were operating and the industry was able to respond to the demand.

vember and early December are always the least expensive time for lumber.

Renner noted that the builders may not have seen similar increases and decreases. "This is what's happening in wholesale; retail lags behind - retail prices reflect (the cost) of the last shipment.

"When it gets cold in the next "That's the simple answer," month, prices all begin to fall," Renne: "ndustry is slightly Renner solution and late No.

and demand. Lumber prices are also determined by how much land is being devoted to timber.

Growing environmental pressures that remove thousands of acres of timberland to preserve natural habitats are also causing price increases. he sald.

"But overall, people don't realize this, but over the last 15 years lumber prices - when you factor in inflation - haven't risen that much," Renner said.

Masonry design Housing recovery sputters

AP - New home sales dropped 8.5 percent in July, the government said last week, raising doubts about whether the housing revival would be strong enough to lead the economy out of recession.

All regions except the Northeast, which had suffered the worst of the sales slump last year, reported a decline.

Sales of new single-family homes totaled a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 472,000, down from 516,000 a month earlier, said the departments of Commerce and Housing and Urban Development in a joint release. Also, an earlier estimate that sales rose 7.4 percent in June was revised sharply downward to 4 percent.

. Sales of new homes were roughly in line with sales of existing homes, which the National Association of Realtors this week said fell 6.7 percent in July.

"The fact is the housing sales boom has petered out. Unless they get going again, you are throwing up a roadblock in an area that you usu-. ally expect to carry you forward," said economist Robert G. Dederick of Northern Trust Co.

BECAUSE HOUSING typically responds quickest to the lowering of interest rates in attempts to end recessions, this business sector often leads the economy out of a slump.

The median price of a new home in July was $120,200, up 1.3 percent from a year earlier.

what the options are isn't going to ask for them, and may not even buy them if the builder points them out.

"If they see something they like, people will stretch themselves to the limit to get what they want," she said.

The one big plus behind the homes with all the extras is it will generate sales. Buyers may be put off by not being able to purchase all the extras, but they will be impressed by the i home's possibilities.

"And occasionally, you'll get a person who wasn't planning on buying a house, but was so impressed with it, they decide to buy," Brandt said.

How a model -- extras or not -influences a person depends on their finances, Brandy said. Some people shop for houses in their price range, some shop for houses below their price range, and some shop above their price range.

A basic home will appeal to someone shopping in a specific price range because they don't have to be concerned with figuring price differenees.

A basic model, she added, may also help sell more homes in slower economic times when people have less to spend.

Some people look for houses below their price range because they intend to add the extras - in these cases, people want to see models with all the extras so they can choose what they want in their home.

"The best way would be to have two models," she said. That way, the builder appeals to both potential buyers.

Dust, rust top list of furnace enemies

AP — Tuning up your gas furnace is something you can do yourself in less than an hour with a few simple hand tools and a vacuum cleaner.

In most cases, the entire job consists of cleaning and lubricating the blower unit, and cleaning and adjusting the burner assembly.

This simple maintenance is your best front-line defense in the battle against the twin threats to furnace life and efficiency - dust and rust.-As long as you stay clear of the control valve and limit switches and put back everything as you found it, there's little chance of error.

You can see if your burner is improperly adjusted by watching the burners in operation.

A standard gas furnace will have two, three or four burners, each with some sort of ignition crossover device. When the furnace starts, ignition should progress evenly from one burner to the next and without hesitation or a late flash. Once lit, the burners should operate with a steady blue flame:

lifts off its ports, you can bet that the air mixture on that burner is too rich. Conversely, a flame that burns orange and lazy (wavering from side to side) means there's too little air in the mix. Before attempting to regulate the air intake the burner assembly should be cleaned.

Before working on the furnace shut off the electrical disconnect switch so the furnace can't come on. If there's no switch, turn the gas control from ON to PILOT. Then vacuum the inside of the cabinet.

To remove a burner for cleaning, remove the securing clip that holds the burner to the feed pipe. Then carefully lift the burner up and slide it out of its seat below the heat exchanger cell.

Once it's removed, turn it so the open end faces down, and tap the burner repeatedly on the floor or some other hard surface to dislodge rust particles inside.

If you've noticed gaps in the flames on that burner, poke a thin

If you see a burner that doesn't ignite at all, or only puffs on and off sporadically, it's a good bet that the gas jet that feeds the burner is partially clogged with dirt or rust.

On the other hand, a burner that shows flame gaps along its length during normal operation suggests that some of the gas ports are clogged.

wire or small Allen wrench into each of the burner openings. Then tap the burner on the floor again. Finally, clean the openings in the crossover. member with a thin-bladed knife and vacuum the entire chamber thoroughly.

To service the gas jet, back the entire jet from its threads in the feed pipe and then clean it with a thin wire or small Allen wrench. When the jet is cleared, thread it back into its opening until snug. No joint compound is needed.

Burners are adjusted usually by either sliding sleeves or rotating end caps to align their openings to a greater or lesser degree with openings on the burner.
