Schools surplus heats up meeting

By Darrell Ciem staff writer

Wavne-Westland school board members clashed Monday night in a heated discussion about a $4.4-million district surplus that emerged in an audit of the fiscal year that ended June 30.

Some board members continued to raise questions about whether Superintendent Dennis O'Neill's administration knew of the surplus prior to the June 10 election in which voters approved a 7.75 mill tax rate increase to avert threatened program cuts.

"There's just constant potholes of doubt," board member Laurel Raisanen said.

However, school officials, some of the auditing firm Plante Moran strongly denied that the administration could have predicted as large a surplus.

'It's good, conservative business practices that led us to the fact that we've got a little money left, and we_ ought to be damn glad," said board member Andrew Spisak, who later stormed from Monday's budget-review session.

The surplus stunned some observboard members and a representative ers last month when it was made public by Raisanen in a finance committee meeting of Mayor Robert Thomas' blue ribbon school panel. The news spread like wildfire through the district.

Though Raisanen said she hadn't been told to remain silent about the fund balance. O'Nelll lashed out at her Monday for leaking the information prior to Monday's session, during which finance officer Randy Liepa provided some reasons for the surplus.

"THE BOARD had better get some trust among its own members," O'Neill said, after Raisanen had raised concerns about trusting the administration. "Don't just blame the administration."

Golf park manager fired after 13 years

Ralph Slade has been named acting manager of the city of Westland golf course on Merriman and Cherry Hill after the firing of longtime manager Carl Morton.

Morton, who had managed the nine-hole course since it was opened 13 years ago, refused to make any comment when contacted by the Observer this week.

Mayor Thomas puts brakes on family's Halloween hayrides

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Westland Mayor Robert Thomas has ordered a shutdown of an elaborate Halloween display that had offered "haunted hayrides" for handicapped children, saying organizers failed to seek required city approval.

The mayor's action Friday came as organizers Rose and Charles Litthat six days earlier had been destroyed by vandals.

"I've just had it," Rose Little said Monday. "This has been very upsetting."

The display on Ford Road, between Wayne and Newburgh, had been open a week when vandals wrecked it Oct. 12, prompting the Littles to shut it down and rebuild it in an effort to reopen Oct. 18.

Vandals wrecked the electrical tle prepared to reopen the display, and battery-powered spiders, gravestones, skeletons, space ship, Dracula, witches' den and other displays tucked in a wooded area where public tours were offered, including supervised "haunted havrides" for handicapped youngsters. The Littles have two disabled children.

The Littles, who had permission to use the land from its owner, were caught by surprise Friday when the mayor ordered the display shut down until the Littles sought city

Watson wins Schoolcraft board seat what's inside

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Patricia Watson was a runner-up In the June election for Schoolcraft College trustees, but first choice among trustees Wednesday to fill a vacancy on the board.

Watson was appointed to the board Wednesday, She will take her seat Nov. 20 and serve until June 30, 1993, filling out the balance of Wendell Smith's term.

The Northville resident is a clinical psychologist with Providence Hospital, Southfield, and in privatepractice.

"SHE WAS mature and direct in her answers to the board," said board president Jeanne Stempien. "I think that helped her stand out."

Fourteen people applied to replace Smith, who resigned because he is leaving the area to head an Ohio-based pet supply chain.

After interviewing candidates Monday and Tuesday night, the board appointed Watson on Wednesday night in a two-step process.

Trustees first listed their top three choices, with Watson receiving votes from all six trustees in the initial round. She faced Canton 'resident Bruce Patterson, recipient of four first-round votes, in a two-candidate runoff.

Those who received first round votes but didn't reach the final round included Daniel Dalton and Elizabeth Johnson, both of Plymouth, Ronaele Bowman of Livonia and Jane Smiley of Northville.

Watson finished fourth in the June election for a four-year board seat. She trailed winner Stephen Ragan, as well as Patterson and Bowman.

In the final round, Watson received votes from trustees Stempien, Ragan, Mary Breen and Thaddeus McCotter. Patterson received votes from Michael Burley and Harry Greenleaf. Burley then moved to make the appointment unanimous.

Watson is a consultant to the Detrolt-area Salvation Army Corps and Denby Memorial Children's Home. Detroit. She also served on a Persian Gulf crisis intervention team.

She holds a doctorate in clinical psychology from the University of Detroit, a master's from St. Francis College, Fort Wayne, and a bachelor's from Aquinas College, Grand Rapids.

School board clashes over budget surplus

Lieps gave several reasons for the surplus:

• Schools, in preparation for a possible tax defeat on June 10, slashed spending for supplies. • Worker compensation claims were lower than expected.

• The district had received earlir warnings that state funds could be theid, though the money eventuin came through.

Chool officials spent cautious-the on, knowing that several contracts would have to be plus wouldn't have provided enough money for all programs, Liepa said.

Moreover, he stressed that the district will lose $2 million this year from declining enrollment and another $780,000 because of recent state budget cuts, among other losses.

MAJOR CHANGES at the state level have made it difficult for the local district to predict its fund balance, Llepa said. In June, school officials expected a $2.2-million surplus. an amount that doubled during the audit review.

Plante Moran auditor Pearl Holforty, under questioning by the the 7.75-mill tax increase board, cited across-the-board con-time 10, the $4.4-million sur- servative spending and said the dis-

Ralsanen responded: "Was it real-ly necessary to threaten those cuts?" O'Neill then indicated that the district may have been able to avoid some cuts, though not all. As their spat continued, Raisanen and O'Neill took turns accusing each other of being "stubborn."

Board President Sylvia Kozorosky-Wlacek said the surplus convinced her that the board could have followed her earlier suggestion for seeking a smaller tax increase. But she said the board must halt old disputes and "go forward."

However, other lingering disputes emerged Monday, Board member Fred Warmbler blasted a two-year. teacher contract that awarded raises of 11.9 percent - money he said the district couldn't afford.

BOARD MBMBER Kathleen Chorbagian responded sharply that teachers had threatened a strike. "We should have let them walk," she sald. "Why don't we let them walk the next time around?"

Meanwhile, Liepa suggested moving $725,000 of the surplus from the general fund to a capital improvement fund for building repairs. A vote was not taken Monday, but Raisanen raised concerns that district residents would think the board was trying to "hide" the money, Warmbler warned that the moneycould later be returned to the general fund and used for salary increas. es.

O'Neill reminded the board that the money couldn't be spent without board approval. "There isn't a damn thing hidden," he said:

ROSE LITTLE said she was told she would have to pay $500 for a permit, but that the earliest her request could be placed on the city council agenda was Nov. 2 - too flate for Halloween.

Rose Little said she spent more than $300 for Halloween masks, alone. The masks were used on mannequins set up along the "haunted havride" route. The money that the Littles earned won't even cover their expenses, she said.

Upset with the mayor's office, Rose Little questioned why the display earlier remained open for a week without being shut down. She said she had called various departments at city hall and that no one told her she needed council approval.

"I find it hard to believe that she called all the departments and didn't get the correct story," Thomas said.

LITTLE FEARS she may have offended the administration when she indicated that the police department should keep a closer watch on the display after vandals wrecked it.

But Thomas indicated the display would've been shut down sooner had he known about it.

The mayor said he "had no problem" with the display, but that the Littles needed to follow city procedures. He suggested they approach the city council next year in time to have the project considered before Halloween. But Rose Little said she may not bother. The Littles, who in past years set up the display in a family yard, moved it to Ford Road this year to let the public enjoy it. Former displays had been for family and friends, but had attracted attention in the neighborhood. "I guess we'll just lick our wounds and go back home," she said.

Posey pointed out the need for a "smooth transition" - a need underscored in recent days by board members who warned O'Nelll to retire Aug. 31 because his contract wouldn't be renewed.

WELTY, KOZOROSKY-WIA-CEK, Raisanen and Warmbler voted Oct. 15 to accept 56-year-old O'Nelll's retirement after 31 years in the district, including 71/2 years as superintendent. Posey, Chorbagian and Spisak opposed the retirement and accused other board members of plotting the move in secret.

In the wake of O'Neill's controversial retirement, board members appeared to agree Monday that they must launch efforts to choose a successor - whom O'Neill's critics have indicated could help heal the embattled district's wounds.

O'Neill's critics had accused his administration of misleading the public on such issues as the need for a tax increase, which was approved in June after three failed attempts. His supporters have strongly denied such charges.

On Monday, Chorbagian said the board must consider how much money it wants to spend to hire a professional search team to provide aid in finding O'Neill's successor. She questioned whether the public wants to spend $10,000 to $20,000, and suggested $5,000 might be more acceptable.

BOARD MEMBERS pointed out that the Livonia district, in its last superintendent search, spent $35,000 of the $50,000 it set aside.

"We can't let the dollar get in the way of finding the best search firm." Kozorosky-Włacek said.

It wasn't immediately known when the board would interview the search teams and choose one to: begin the nationwide search for a superintendent.

Candidates face off for city council seats

Brown stresses 30 years experience

This is the first of a two-pant When asked by the Observer to series on the Westland City cite what he considers the top three Council candidates on the Nov. 5 ballot. The final segment will be published in Monday's Observer.

By Darrell Clem staff writer

At age 74, Thomas Brown has spent 30 years in government, serving as Westland mayor, state representative, city council member and - before Westland became a city - Nankin Township trustee, treasurer and supervisor.

Brown, a city council member since 1985, has stressed his three decades of experience in his bid for re-election.

Brown finished second among eight candidates in the Sept. 10 primary. He needs only to retain that level of support to win one of four council seats at stake in the Nov. 5 election.

Brown proudly points to Westland's growth in its first 25 years as a city, and he has said the city appears ready to continue its progress in the next decade.

concerns of his campaign, Brown named these:

• Ensuring, that the Nankin Transit bus system continues operating for senior citizens, handis capped people and others who depend on its door-to-door service. SMART - the Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation - has decided to halt subsidies for Nankin Transit on Dec: 31.

"Members of the (Nankin Transit) Commission and local, county and state officials are giving unrelenting efforts to find the needed funding to continue this necessary service," Brown said, adding that he will continue pressing for permanent solutions.

• Continuing to improve roads, With help from the county and the city's Tax Increment Finance Authority, the city has built "new, widened and improved roads serving the commercial and industrial areas north of Ford, west of Wildwood to the western city limits and south of Joy," Brown said.

Moreover, a traffic pattern for long-time official

the area is being mapped out, which will include enhanced traffic control measures. More street lights are also planned for major arterles, Brown said.

"We intend to have improvements in place to aid in traffic control during the upcoming holiday season," he added.

• Improved city services, including beefed-up fire stations, the computerization of fire and police departments, better library services, and improved recreational and cultural opportunities.

Scott aims to keep her 4th-place finish

By Darrell Clem staff writer -

Sharon Scott, seeking her first Westland City Council term, hopes to hang on to her fourth-place finish in the Sept. 10 primary to capture one of four council seats at stake in the Nov. 5 general election.

In an attempt to seal her council bid, Seott has labeled herself an independent and stressed her 25 years of community involvement. Though she narrowly finished fourth in the primary - behind the three incumbents — she hopes to thwart the attempts of other challengers to overtake her.

Scott also has sounded the call to oust the incumbents, saying, "It's. time for a change."

One of eight candidates vying for four council seats, Scott entered the race after she lost her bid for re-election in June to the embattled Wayne-Westland school board. She had been on the school boardsince 1982, and was most recently its vice president.

In entering the city council race,

Ziemba urges end

to city's bickering

Scott said she had considered previous campaigns for the council Scott cited two main concerns that she is pressing in her campaign. They include fire safety and lat issues. • On fire safety, Scott said, "there, is no excuse" that fire stations are still being closed, despite earlier promises from the Mayor Robert Thomas administration to keep all stations open.

Stressing that she was a member of the state fire safety board for four years, Scott noted that she "recognized this critical safety problem."

• On tax issues, Scott called for greater efforts to list priorities for spending.

"The time has come that our tax spending of our tax dollars by the dollars be spent on items that will service our citizens," she said, adding that she believes "it is time to prioritize our spending (to) provide all age groups the services and programs for the betterment of our city."

In a direct attack on the Thomas administration and city council incumbents, she said, "The frivolous mayor and the council must stop."

Scott, 52, also has stressed that if elected, she will "work full-time on the part-time Westland City Council.

Scott has been involved in numerous community organizations, including the Westland Cultural Society and the city's 25th anniversary committee.

Smith seeking win in 5th election bid

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Dorothy Smith laughed when she read a newspaper article that described her as a "veteran city council candidate."

She's never won a race, and in her fifth try for a council seat since 1981, she readily admits the description fits. "I just got a kick out of it," she said.

Humor aside, Smith hopes to turn her four previous losses to victory in the Nov. 5 election. One of eight candidates competing for four seats, Smith has been campaigning earnestly in the city's neighborhoods.

One possible drawback, she has said, is that she perhaps spends too much time with individual voters talking at length about the issues.

Franklin marching band takes 2nd at invitational

Franklin High School's marching band placed second with Lamphere taking first in Flight III out of a field of eight at Saturday's John Glenn High School Invitational.

Franklin serves the northeast section of Westland.

The Franklin color guard again took the caption award for the best colorguard for the second consecutive year. The score not only earned them the best colorguard caption award in Flight III but was the highest overall colorguard score out of the 14 bands participating in the invitational.

The caption award for best percussion went to the Franklin band for the third time this season.

"We are determined to work very hard in this one last week to qualify for the state finals," said band director Joan Seay. "Our goal for this year is to make the state finals to compete for the Michigan championship."

From 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday, Franklin will host a total of 256 Flight II and III bands competing in the preliminaries for the state finals. The best four Flight I, best four Flight II, best three Flight III, and best three Flight IV bands will then compete in the evening for the Michigan State Championship title.

The largest competition is in Flight III with 18 bands competing.

THE STATE finals will be held at the Plymouth Centennial-Educational Park at on Canton Center Road south of Joy.

The band boosters who man the equipment trailers are Bill Barr, Brian Barr, Bob Blga, Mike Blga, Kevin Biga, Mike Green, Dick Szaal, Bill Weier, Fred Winternheimer and Lou Wriska.

The Franklin band was one of 28 marching bands participating in the Midwest Regionals sponsored by the Bands of America on Saturday, Oct. 12, at the University of Toledo.

At Toledo, Franklin earned a Division II rating which is consdiered very good as a Division I rating is excellent.

The class divisions are not based on band size but on school enrollment size. An AAA Division is a school enrollment of 1,200 students or more. This resulted in Franklin, one of hte smallest bands at 88 members, competing with larger and more experienced bands.

At the state meet Saturday, the flights are groupings by band size, not by school enrollment.

PTA kills bee, backs volunteer project

By Marie Chestney staff writer

In a spelling bee, there's only one winner.

But when students reach out to help someone, every youngster is a winner.

With that thought in mind, the Livonia Parent-Teachers Association is abandoning one of its popular projects and embracing a new one.

The new project - Youth Making a Difference - makes its debut this month in the Livonia school district which includes the northern section òf Westland.

The old project - the annual spelling bee - will be given a rest, at least temporarily, while the PTA works out the kinks of the new one and assesses how eagerly youngsters join the ranks of student volunteers.

"We've been running the spelling bee for years and have been concerned about how the kids felt about themselves after participating," sald PTA spokeswoman Karen Holmes. "Those who weren't winners walked out sad. The PTA was not comfortable with this."

STUDENTS IN grades K-12 are now being asked to commit themselves to doing something for freefor a person or group.

The PTA expects that the sheer act of doing something for someone will boost every students' self-esteem, making them feel good about themselves.'

'The return the child gets is the joy of helping others and the community," said principal Gerald Nehs of Westland's Hayes Elementary School. He conceived the project and brought it to the PTA Council for approval.

We were looking for something that hits more and more students. They'll all be winners. Some wanted the spelling bee to continue, but we can't do both."

How long the volunteer job lasts, and how difficult it is, depends on the age of the child.

For example, younger children can take part in a food or clothing drive, do odd jobs for a senior citizen or maintain an animal feeding station in the winter.

Older students can shovel snow for a senior citizen, help in the River Rouge cleanup or pick up trash on the school grounds.

"There'll be no value judgment made on what they do," Nehs said. Students are now being asked to team up with a PTA member at their school, pick a project, fill out a commitment form and turn it in to their school by Nov. 1.

The youngsters will keep a record of what they do, either through pictures, a journal, posters or drawings. All the volunteers will be honored in a special "Celebration" March 24 at Franklin High, which serves northeast Westland. The PTA council is asking corporations to help sponsor the event, which will feature local celebrities and entertainment.

THE LIST OF jobs students can volunteer for is endless. Included on it are: • Maintaining a senior citizen's lawn.

 Decorating a nursing home for a holiday.

• Recycling.

• Visiting nursing homes.

• Carrying garbage to the curb for a senior citizen.

• Reading to a senior citizen, preschooler or blind person.

• Writing letters to senior citizens

• Adopting a grandparent. . Sending birthday or holiday cards to senior citizens.

• Helping a teacher.

 Working on crafts in a nursing home.

The PTA views this project as the antithesis of the 1980s, when people looked out mostly for themselves.

That could be a detriment because she needs more votes to rise from a seventh-place finish in the primes ry

But when she leaves a voter's house during her door-to-door campaign, she has said, "I believe I have their vole."

Few - if any - Westland residents have been the council watchdog that Smith has been. If the council gave out audience attendance awards, the walls of her home in the city's far southeast end would be covered.

AT CITY council meetings or on the campaign trail, Smith has an

- about any issue that comes her way. When asked by the Observer to name the three biggest problems facing the city, she cited:

• Unfair taxation of residents when industrial businesses are not paying their fair share." Smith vehemently opposes tax abatements that give industries a 50 percent tax break. She differs with some city officials who believe that tax abatements spur the economy, create more jobs and help build a larger tax base.

• Too much development, despite the blight that has occurred as some strip malls and other businesses have been boarded up. In a recent council forum, Smith called . for a halt in new development and opinion - and usually a strong one said vacant buildings should be used or razed.

• Development that tends to encroach on wetlands, Linked to her concern about burgeoning development, Smith has raised concerns that growth has damaged the environment, encroaching on the few areas of the city that retain natural beauty.

Smith, a part-time college instructor, has an extensive education, including a bachelor's degree in vocal music education at Wayne State University, a master's in humanities from Wayne State, and some pre-doctoral degree work at UCLA.

She also has been a community activist and has given time to numerous volunteer and social groups.

Man ordered to repay money

By Darrell Clem staff writer

A former Westland business manager has been ordered to repay $9,355 he stole from a Westland Center video arcade, in a scheme in which he lied about being abducted and robbed at knifepoint.

Ted Daniel Gainer, 29, also was placed on probation for five years Tuesday during sentencing before Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Michael Sapala. The probation will end in three years if he repays the money, the judge ruled.

The sentencing came after Gainer, in a plea agreement that averted a trial, pleaded guilty to attempted embezzlement. He could have faced up to five years in prison.

Gainer - originally charged with the 10-year felony of embezzlement - pleaded guilty after he admitted that he lied about being abducted and robbed at knifepoint to cover up his embezzling at the Pocket Change

GAINER INITIALLY told the Westland Police and the Michigan State Police that he had been abducted at Westland Center by two males who took him to Washtenaw County and robbed him.

He claimed he went to a house in Ypsilanti — his hands tied with rope behind his back — and sought help. He later confessed that he paid a younger male $300 to tie him up. After a confession he made to police, authorities searched Gainer's brother's apartment in Garden City where Gainer had stashed $5,200 of the money that he took, police said.

GAINER'S ATTORNEY, James Albulov, has said Gainer apologized for taking the money and that he took it merely because "it was very easy for him to do."

Gainer was bound over to Recorder's Court for trial after be appeared in Westland 18th District Court for a preliminary examination before Judge Gail McKnight. Gainerwaived that exam.-

Police have said that Gainer also faces an embezzling charge in Osco? da County. Earlier this month, the. prosecutor's office there said the case would be handled after his sentencing in Recorder's Court.

Ziemba criticizes 'political rhetoric'

Ziemba, 47, a Ford Motor Co. energy management engineer, cited these concerns when asked by the Observer to list the top three problems facing Westland:

• The periodic closing of fire stations due to the lack of manpower.

In a recent candidates forum, Ziemba accused the Thomas administration of "political rhetoric" for continuing to close some fire stations in the wake of earlier pledges to halt the closings.

IN A statement to the Observer, he said: "After the revenues are in place, a scheduling time table for the hiring of firemen should be established." He also called for computerizing the fire department.

• The lack of computerization in the city police department.

This problem, Ziemba said, has hampered the jobs of police department personnel.

Ziemba suggested that retiring the city's Tax Increment Finance

Authority bonds "as soon as possible" so that tax revenues can be returned to the general fund, providing more money for police and fire department improvements.

• The water emergency that last summer resulted in city-imposed restrictions - which he fears will be repeated.

Ziemba suggested that Westland city attorney C. Charles Bokos should look into the possibility of a court injunction against Canton, which Ziemba blames.

Commission district dispute heads to court

By Wayne Peal staff writer

utive Edward McNamara and county Commissioner Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, have gone to court to change newly drawn commission districts, But while the primary battlefield involves Detroit, suburban districts aren't far from the heart of the dispute.

The challenge was filed Friday with the Michigan Court of Appeals. McNamara has criticized proposed districts for western Wayne -County, calling them an attempt to weaken Amann and others among his supporters on the commission.

Still, the proposed western Wayne County districts appear to follow. state and national voting rights law. "They look pretty legal," said Amann, whose present district includes Canton Township.

Because of that, court filings generally ignore local districts and take aim at districts proposed for Detroit and Downriver communities.

Amann is not only a plaintiff but also attorney for three other commissioners, including Kevin Kelley, As expected, Wayne County Exec- D-Redford, who are also challenging the new districts.

> DISTRICTS ARE being challenged, Amann said, because they allegedly place: too many parts of Detroit into too many suburban-dominated commission districts and provide for too few clear minority districts - alleged violations of the state's Charter Counties Act and the federal Voting Rights Act.

There are six Detroit/suburban districts in the plan adopted last month by a county apportionment panel, compared with two in an alternate plan favored by Amann and McNamara.

There are six majority black districts in the county panel's plan, while Amann said the alternative plan would provide for seven minority-dominated districts.

The Amann-drafted plan would also alter western Wayne districts, but it's uncertain whether the threejudge Court of Appeals panel would order that plan into action.

"It's just as likely the court would local level and everybody would variance. have to start over," Amann said." (For details of proposed districts and ployee, was the Democrtic Party de-McNamara and Amann's proposed changes, see related story.)

The appeals court panel could also let the districts stand as drawn.

Apportionment committee members Juliette Okotie-Eboh, Wendy Lamb and Marya Sieminski have called the plan the fairest among the many alternatives they viewed - including Amann's.

APPORTIONMENT committee members have said the districts uphold minority rights, while containremand the whole thing back to the ing the lowest possible population legate to the five-member committee. Lamb, an aide to state Sen. Mat Dunaskiss, R-Lake Orion, was the GOP delegate. Deputy county clerk Sieminski, who filled in for clerk James Killeen is also a focus of the sult.

McNamara and Amann, claim Sieminski, an Oakland County resident, was ineligible to serve. Sleminski, however, has said she served legally - and with Killeen's consent - due to her boss' temporary illness. Other apportionment committee members included county prosecutor John O'Hair, who later called for revisions, and county treasurer Raymond Wojtowich.

Senate bills would trim payouts for malpractice

By Tim Richard staff writer

Big jury awards in medical malpractice cases would be history under two bills before the state Senate. So would attorney fees taking up to one-third of multi-million-dollar "pain and suffering" awards.

"This is an incentive to get the job done rapidly, without' going to court," said Sep, John J.H. Schwarz, R- Battle Creek, sponsor of the bill to set up arbitration panets in medical suits.

"The Michigan Trial Lawyers Association will challenge the bills (in court)," predicted Sen. Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron, sponsor of the bill to cap attorneys fees and non-economic damages. "So you won't see any lowering of (malpractice insurance) rates until we have a definitive ruling."

THE TRIAL lawyers group representing injured plaintiffs, and with a liberal political bent - vehemently opposes both bills.

MTLA executive director Jane R. Bailey said Senate Bills 248-9 "only create new hurdles and hardships for victims. . ."

"The only way to lower the cost of malpractice to the health care sys- determination panels under the tem is to reduce the amount of malpractice that occurs." she said.

The Senate Judiciary Committee last week reported out both bills on, votes of three Republicans in favor and one Democrat opposed, with one. Democrat missing.

Opponent Virgil Smith of Detroit said the bills "pick the wrong target - the victims."...

The bills, which DeGrow thinks the Republican Senate will pass the week of Oct, 28, face trouble in the House, where majority Democrats lean to the trial lawyers' view.

TRIAL LAWYERS, many from Southfield, insisted repeatedly in months of subcommittee hearings there are no medical malpractice insurance crisis, no loss of doctors but soaring profits for insurers.

"Is there a serious problem? There is, and serious," replied Judiciary chair William VanRegenmorter, R-Jenison, "though not as serious in some parts of the state as others."

MTLA's Bailey didn't reply.

MAJOR FEATURES of SB 248-9 are:

• Five regional medical liability

Commerce Department. Each would have three members - an attorney, a health professional and a lay person. The parties have six months to accept or reject a panel finding. The plaintiff may sue, but issues would be narrowed to the panel findings, which may be used as court evidence. + · Caps on attorney fees, now typically one-third of an award. There would be a sliding scale topped at 10 percent for an award over $500,000. 'MTLA calls it unconstitutional.

• A cap on non-econòmic "pain. and suffering" damages of $250,000, compared to, the current $225,000. But exemptions would be removed for cases involving death, loss of a vital body function and injury to the reproductive system, eliminating multi-million-dollar, "pain and suffering" awards.

• Limits on expert witnesses. They would have to be persons who spend 80 percent of their time practicing or teaching. This limit is aimed at persons whose full-time work is allegedly testifying in court.

• Tighter time limits for filing suits on behalf of children.

• Limits on post-judgment interest. Interest would be payable only on the amount the patient receives; attorney fees and costs would be excluded.

Animal populations change from year to year

Becoming aware of the natural world also makes one aware of the differences in animal populations from year to year. This year there were more butterflies than last year, and there were more dragonflies too. A couple winters ago there were large numbers of red-breasted nuthatches and pine siskens at feeders:

Beneath their cottony/waxy white covering is a small insect body about one-eighth inch long. Protruding from the back of the aphid are small pimples. From each of those pimples emerges a strand of the white "cotwoodpecker feed on a cluster of them.

There are different species of woolly aphids each feeding on different plants. One species is commonly seen on alder trees. This species is fed upon by a carnivorous butterfly caterpillar. Most butterfly larvae eat plants. Larvae of the harvestere feed on the aphids and then incorporate their "wool" on their own body for camouflage.

Many species of aphids are injurious to plants because they suck the . juices from the plant. They attack this summer I watched a downy, leaves and stems often causing the plant to grown abnormally, or to be weakened. But while they are sucking the sap from the plant, they also are eliminating excess sap or honeydew.

Ants will farm these aphids for their honeydew and protect the aphids from harm. Adult harvester butterflies also will eat the honeydew.

Woolly aphids exhibit some unusual reproductive biology, which is why they proliferate to such great Independence Oaks County Park numbers during one summer. In the summer, females give birth to females without mating. This new gen eration of females also gives birth fo more females without mating. At the onset of cold temperatures in fall, females give birth to both males and females, who then mate.

Females produced after mating lay one or two eggs that pass the winter and develop into females in spring.

Teacher tells lawmakers how German schools succeed

By Tim Richard staff writer

Suburban lawmakers were stunned when Gabriele Barth told them how much one German state spent on its "dual system" of schooling.

Baden Wuerttenberg, whose 9.3 million population is identical to Michigan's, spends $29.4 billion on everything, taxes incomes up to 53 percent, levies 15 percent on sales -"and $6 billion goes to education," the exchange intern said.

"It's a very expensive system," said Barth, a teacher and principal spending a year in the United States. to upgrade her skills to the executive : level

Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, and others quizzed Barth Tuesday as the House Education Committee the relationship between industry and schooling in the rounited German republic.

Michigan's general fund budget is $7.5 billion, with one-third going to all education. It taxes incomes at 4.4 percent and sales at 4 percent. The figures aren't comparable, however, because local school districts and community colleges levy property taxes, and all colleges charge tultion.

HOW INDUSTRY supports Baden Wurtemberg's "hauptschule" was the eye-opener.

for ages 10 to 16, German sludents 1949, Barth said, and the vocational spend 31/2 days in a company and 11/2 days in class.

The company pays them salaries and their social insurances, provides tools and instructors - 69 percent of the total cost, Barth sald.

Local industries in this southern state are Mercedes-Benz - and -Porsche, the automakers, and many computer manufacturers - much like southeastern Michigan.

Curricula are set by committees of industrialists, trade unionists and educators. A youngster's "track" is determined by parents' and educators, she said, "Companies spend a lot of money on further training (of adult workers)," Barth added.

"GLOBAL' competitiveness" is the buzz phrase in state capitals these days. Michigan's thrust is to make students employable in an international economy.

The voc-tech "hauptschule" is one of three kinds of German middle schools. Barth said. Others are "realschule," six years of non-professional school, and "gymnasium," the ac-ademic school for university preparation.

Rep. Tom Middleton, R-Lake Orion, asked if the five former East German states have adopted this system. "Yah, sure," Barth replied. Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton: -How long has Germany been doing

REP. JUSTINE Barhs, D-Westland, had many questions about, parental participation in setting standards and running school boards, and she wasn't pleased by Barth's answers.

+2"I don't hear just a housewife participating anywhere," said Barns. "I want my piece of the world represented."

Barns asked, "What happens to a student who doesn't pass (graduation) tests?" Barth: "He repeats the whole school year." She added the dropout rate was less than 2 percent. Barth said, "Successful trainees become journeymen; they can become masters, technicians, instructors. The world is open to them." whether to take part in the dual system. "They training more than they can employ," she said. "Training is of increasing importance for the economic success of companies."

With the tearing down of European economic barriers, she said, a hauptschule graduate can work in France or any other country of choice. Hauptschule students must study at least one foreign language; gymnasium students, two languages.

"TAXES IN America are lower than any country in the world," observed Rep. Nate Jonker, D Clio, a former teacher.

"Is that your platform?" replied Republican Bankes. "I'm not going to run on that."

"They're used to a lot of national control," said Rep. Susan Munsell, R-Howell, expressing doubts Michiganians would care either for central-control or the stifling tax Burden.

"We're moving toward a more centralized system, a new world order," sald Rep. Dianne Byrum, D-Onondaga, a first-term member and vice chair of the Education Committee. "The thrust is not coming from legislators. It's coming from gover-

Cooper School rings in 150 years

By Marie Chestney staff writer

Going to a new school this year didn't keep the Cooper community Friday from. throwing a giant "Happy Birthday" party for Westland's Cooper Elementary School. While Cooper school, 150 years old this year, sits empty and forlorn across the street behind a newly erected eight-foot fence, the new Cooper School, also known informally as "Cooper-at-Whittier," still hums with the vibrancy of youth Cooper students, parents and staff gathered at Cooper-at-Whittier to celebrate "150 years of continuous education" in Livonia and Westland With a spaghetti dinner, birthday cake, slide show and sing-along, partygoers celebrated the birthday of a school which local historians have traced back to 1841, but which may be as old as the state of Michigan itself.

Ringing a handheld school bell, Principal Linda Gantos opened the party as if she were getting a school day underway.

The bell was borrowed from one of Cooper-al-Whittler's five showcases, which holds artifacts used over the years at Cooper school. The bell came from the years when Cooper school was a one-room schoolhouse. Up until August, the artifacts were displayed at Cooper school. Now they are on display in newly made showcases at Whittier.

IN THE slide show, local historians Ruth Dale and Delphine Goodwin traced the roots of Cooper school, beginning with the year 1835 when Gilbert Cooper bought 167 acres of land and located the first school on his property.

For many years, Cooper was thought to honor the American novelist, James Fenimore Cooper. When Cooper historians began their journey into the past in the mid-1980s, to celebrate the Michigan Sesquicentennial, they discovered this was not

Historians Dale, Goodwin, Kathy Kalousek and Simone White discovered there have been four different Cooper school buildings since 1841:

The historical roots of Cooper Elementary School are told on a marker which stands outside the school. The marker, erected in 1988, designates the school as a Michigan historical site.

State boosts Cooper School's toxic site ranking

By Marie Chestney staff writer

Westland's Cooper Elementary School site has lost its low ranking as a toxic site and is now close to being one of the top 100 toxic sites in Michigan.

However, as further soil and water tests are done on the school grounds on Ann Arbor Trail east of Middlebelt, the site's toxic ranking could change even more.

-"The score can go up or down, especially after water is looked at," said Mary Vanderlaan, spokeswoman for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. "If the groundwater is contaminated, it could go up. There is the potential for contamination of Rouge River water."

THE DNR ranks the state's toxic states from 048, with 48 being the most contaminated.

The Cooper site, owned by Livonia Public Schools. has jumped from its initial 2 ranking to its present 35.

"Thirty-five puts it close to the top 100 sites in Michigan," Vanderlaan said. "It's not one of the worst in the state, but it has higher contamination than we initially anticipated.

We initially had no information on the site, so it was not scored high. The score would have increased anyway, once we had the information. But 2 was too low."

The DNR gave the site its initial 2 ranking in 1984, when the site was known to be a former landfill but had not yet been tested.

Art Howell, director of operations for Livonia Public Schools, said he had expected tests would lead to a higher rating:

"Plus it's near a school; that automatically gives it a higher ranking," Howell said.

High concentrations of lead found in soil samples taken by the DNR this summer helped push the score higher. The DNR also found mercury, chromium, PCB and DDT on the site. These contaminants were found in mounds of. dirt raised by burrowing animals.

Livonia schools has fenced in three sides of the school grounds to keep people from coming in contact with the toxic contaminants.

A fence has not yet gone up on the fourth, south side of the school grounds on property owned by Wayne County.

WAYNE COUNTY has delayed putting up a fence until it gets the results of further tests taken on the site, said Barbara Godre, assistant county executive. Preliminary results of the tests are expected this week, she said.

The county also is testing "Dead Man's Hill," which is on the south side of Hines Drive, across from the school property.-

The county wants to know for sure the level of contamination before putting up a fence, Godre said.

"We will take action if the tests indicate something needs to be done," Godre said. "The level was low, initially, now it's high. It sounds pretty serious, but it could also drop once again. We're not backing away from our responsibilities. We want to know what's out there."

Howell said it didn't make any sense for Livonia schools to put up the fence on school property because the contaminated area extends beyond the school property on the south side.

However, he said the fence now up is "meaningless" as long as people know they can get onto the school grounds from the south side.

Vanderlaan said the fence will keep people from coming in contact with the high concentrations of lead in the soil.

The second school also was located on Cooper family property. This one-room frame school house, built in 1865, was used until 1938.

The third Copper school was built over a period of 10 years. The 1938 school must have been luxurious to the boys and girls at that time, for there were indoor drinking fountains and indoor toilets.

In 1941, the growth of the Nankin added to the three-room school. In the late 1940's, a brick addition was attached. Cooper now had a gymnasium, kitchen, offices and a separate heated garage.

THE THIRD school was used for 30 years and had several names: Fractional School District No. 1 of Nankin and Livonia, Cooper School, Old Cooper, Cooper Annex and Cooper Past.

The present and fourth Cooper rooms also were used at Cooper Past, a quarter mile west on Ann Arbor Trail.

One highlight of the birthday party were the student photo albums left on tables near the front door. Partygoers spent a lot of time looking at old pictures and remembering old familles.

The sing-along was led by Martha Kuykendall, vocal music teacher. PTA present Sally Rowland ended the two-hour party at 8 p.m. with words of farewell.

The average dog can expect to live 12 years. Unfortunately, Sammy might have to lower his expectations.

Imagine being only 8 weeks old and already having the best days of your life behind you. That just might be the case with Sammy:

Sammy wasn't picked up on the streets. He wasn't beaten or abused. But he is a victim. A victim of the biggest problem facing the Michigan Humane Society today-animal over-population. As a result, there are more animals without homes than there are homes to give. It's a problem that only threatens to grow larger.

And it will continue to grow without your help. If you have a pet, have him spayed or neutered. If you don't have a pet, please find room in your heart and your home for Sammy or any one of the hundreds of animals at the Michigan Humane Society.

Or you can do the next best thing. You can make a donation, big or small, to the MHS. Your donations enable us to operate low cost spay and neuter clinics. Clinics that last year alone sterilized over 8,000 animals. They help us educate the public and bring us closer to finding a solution to the over-population problem. And most importantly, your dontribution helps shelter and care for these animals until that solution can be found.

Just one look at Sammy and you can tell that within this one small puppy is enough love to last a lifetime. With your help, he might one day have a chance to prove it. Yes, I would like to help. Halloween scary — for pets

Every, October, households around the country prepare for a surge of miniature witches, ghosts and goblins begging for treats Halloween is a favorite for many youngsters but family pets may not find it as much fun, according to area veterinarians.

Halloween can be a frightening and potentially dangerous time for pets. But pets may be less disturbed by this haunting holiday if their owners follow these suggestions provided by the Westland Veterinary Hospital:

• Excitable pets should be kept away from the door and out of. hearing range of a constantly ringing doorbell. A frightened or upset pet may run out the door at the first opportunity and could bite a child in its way.

• Candy and other treats should be kept out of the pet's reach. Sweets, especially chocolate, are not healthy for pets. Loaded with a substance called theobromine, chocolate can cause vomiting, restlessness, heart disturbances or death to a pet. • Candy wrappers also can cause health problems, in their > haste to devour candy, many animals may eat the wrapper as well. Wrapped candy many not dissolve and the wrapper could cause obstruction or irritation to the pet's digestive system.

• Candied apples and suckers may seem harmless, but a swallowed stick could cause obstruction or perforate the stomach or bowels. Keep these away from pets.

• Dispose of rotten or poor quality treats in hard to reach places.

If you suspect your pet has eaten. chocolate or any other treat that is causing discomfort, consult a veterinarian.

Election These 4 top city council field

HE PROBLEMS facing Westland aren't new. That's why the council, working with the city administration, must somehow continue to provide a full range of services under a state-imposed freeze on property assessments.

It also must do'more long-range planning on proposed developments and develop solutions on how to curb the neighborhood crime problem.

Those are issues Westland voters should consider when they elect four city council members. from a field of eight candidates on Tuesday, Nov. 5.

At least one new face will be on the council after the election because Councilman Ben DeHart is not seeking a new term for health reasons.

The eight candidates — three incumbents and five challengers - represent differing views on community issues and possess varied community service backgrounds.

The best choices for voters are incumbents Thomas Brown, Charles Pickering and Thomas Artley and former councilman William Ziemba.

Each has a unique set of skills and views which could combine to serve voters.

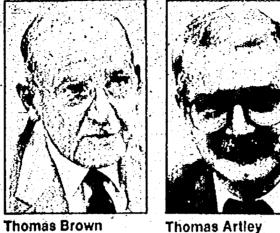

Brown is the dean of local elected officials and has a sense of the city's history. As council president in the past two years, he is usually effective in bringing conflicting views together and reaching a decision. He has the deserved respect of his colleagues who appreciate his politically honed skills as a former township officer, mayor and state representative.

Pickering, who warred with the council when he was mayor from 1982-1985, has grown and matured as a councilman in the past four years.

He has a grasp of the council's role and is a problem-solver instead of a problem-creator.

Artley has a sharp sense of what makes for an effective councilman, and he, too, seems to have matured, overcoming what was once a morebelligerent style on the council.

He also has shown a strong ability to look at all sides in an issue and, despite his current support of Mayor Robert Thomas, has shown himself as

He has the skills and temperament to be an effective councilman. If elected, he would be an excellent replacement for DeHart, whose term ends Dec. 31.

THINKING ABOUT changing jobs? Consider the details of this one: Pay: $45,450 a year - nearly double the average Michigan worker's salary.

Hours: Normal work week is Tuesday through Thursday, but you might have to work 12 hours a day. Other days of the week, you are expected. to see people, give speeches, answer the phone and kiss babies.

Retirement: After turning 55 and working just eight years, you get a $1,212 check each month, increasing to $1,818 after 12 years on the job. Benefits: Fully paid health insurance.

Vacation: A couple of months in the summer, plus another month or, so around Christmas and Easter. Your business friends often kick in free trips in exchange for a speech or some advice.

Expenses: During the work week you have to live away from home, so you get $8,500 for room and other expenses. Your business friends regularly pick up the tab for lunch and dinner. Your better-heeled business associates usually finance your "expense fund," which makes the lease payments on your car or pays your greens fees.

seats in case you might want to see a game.

WHAT KIND of job has perks like this? A state legislator. Why? Two reasons;

First, there's no question that being a member of the Michigan House or Senate is both tough and important. You are on point most of the time. You have to answer to a lot of bossy and cross people. You have to help make the laws that governus all and forge political compromises that make life livable.

Second, as I suggested in last week's column, members of the state Legislature (and their staffs and governors and their staffs) are no longer citizen politicians, responsibly taking some time away from otherwise legitimate careers to do a spell of public service. Legislators are members of a separate political class whose main career purpose is to seek and hold elective office. When members of a separate class are allowed to set their own pay and define their own perks, what do you expect they'll do? Take a vow of poverty?

Make a choice Request drug free dorm rooms

N 1989, IT was 1,500. In 1990, it was 2,870. In 1991, it is more than 4,050.

That's the combined number of students at Oakland University, the University of Michigan, Michigan State University and Eastern Michigan who have chosen to live in alcohol and drug-free dorm rooms.

The steady gain in students making the choice on their housing application to have a roommate who does not use alcohol or drugs is a credit to them and to the communities and school systems from which they come.

Colleges and universities had to be convinced this was their province. Rather than weakening their position on in loco parentis (charged with a parent's rights, duties and responsibilities), as they feared, the schools have taken a further step toward increased students rights.

SOME SCHOOLS, such as Oakland University and Eastern Michigan University, have taken the concept and run with it.

OU not only offers alcohol free dorm rooms, but has an entire dorm for students who don't want alcohol, drugs or smoking where they live.

Anibal House has had to turn away students ever since it opened in fall 1990. "We silenced the skeptics," OU spokesman Jim Llewellyn said at the time. "When we announced this, a lot of people said it would never fly."

And at Eastern, students are being encouragedto help educate their peers on alcohol and drugissues. Through a grant, they are developing a national model for student-run substance abuse programs on college campuses, starting in the residence halls.

Recent alcohol-related problems at both Eastern and the University of Michigan are only the tip of an iceberg of illegal drinking that has gone on on college campuses for decades.

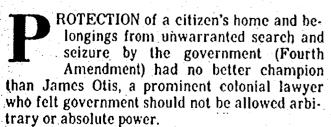

For those who for any number of reasons don't want to take part, there have been few alternatives. One aim of Eastern's program is to help students create a social environment that doesn't include drinking but isn't self-conscious about it.

ALTHOUGH ALL of Michigan's public colleges agreed to offer alcohol-free rooming, tabs have been kept only on the four public universities closest to our Oakland and western Wayne County communities, which the majority of our students altend.

It's important that all 14 are living up to the spirit of their voluntary, verbal agreement they made with the group of Birmingham-West Bloomfield parents, students, drug treatment professionals and legislators who first brought it to their attention. It was an agreement Michigan's private colleges have thus far refused to make.

If you don't have the choice of a drug/alcohol free dorm room at a institution of higher learning in Michigan, you are being cheated. Fight for your rights or think about another school.

Colonial lawyer championed protection from searches

In 1761, Olis asked the Massachusetts Superior Court to discontinue issuing writs of assistance which allowed British customs agents, at their discretion, to search all houses suspected of harboring arms, contraband or seditious documents.

Appealing to the court to base its decision on a "higher law," Olis argued that "the judges of England have declared . . . that acts of Parliament against natural equity are void." In his opinion, the writs violated natural law by giving police unlimited powers of search and seizure throughout an entire area.

The publicity of the case was such that most colonial courts subsequently refused to issue such writs, and later eight states explicitly inserted guarantees against general warrants in their constitutions. The Bill of Rights prohibited general warrants because the public mood was so against them.

Otis' briefs were later used by Alexander Hamilton in support of the concept of judicial review.

O'Neill mad at Moranty

To the editor:

One of the cardinal rules of a positive superintendency is to refrain from getting into the gutter with scoundrels. However, in my new role as a "lame duck" superintendent, I will assure you that snakes like defeated, vindictive ex-board member Moranty will no longer go unchallenged.

The chairman of the Citizens for Education Committee, David Moranty, in the Oct. 17 Westland Observer accused my administration of being deceptive and dishonest.

I propose to the residents, parents and students of our district that the title of his committee is the most deceptive and dishonest name he could represent. He could care less about education and his only goal is to discredit my administration for his negative motives.

What has really prompted my response to the quotes of Moranty in that article was the unconscionable statement. ". . . Now that he's out, several other high ranking school officials should take his lead and either retire or resign."

Priorities are confused

To the editor:

Our leadership in this country and its priorities are most confusing. Forty-six years after World War II, we are still defending Germany and Japan with standing armies while they steal our markets. We pacify the Persian Gull, while women walking their dogs in Central Park are being slashed to death by burns. We seal the border of Saudi Arabia, but cannot close our own to illegal aliens flooding into our southern states.

Official reports show illegal immigration is rising at an unprecedented rate, could be as high as five million this year alone. Massive immigration could destroy our way of life, we could wind up a strife-ridden replica of a third world country.

Past civilizations such as Egypt, Hellenic Greeks and last but not least Rome were plagued by this problem also.

Trial lawyers talk, don't listen well

points of view

Family values' bring bigotry

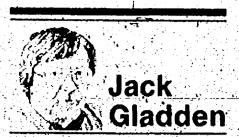

NEWS ITEM: David Duke, a former grand wizard of the Ku Klux Klan and one-time Nazi sympathizer, finished a strong second in the Louisiana bipartisan primary for governor. Running as a Republican. Duke knocked incumbent Gov. Buddy Roemer out . of the race and now faces a Nov. 16 runoff with former governor Edwin W. Edwards.

That bit of news from the South has sent shock waves through the national Republican party and has political analysts scrambling all over each other trying to explain what happened.

But while Republicans try desperately to disassociate themselves from Duke and analysts talk of frustration over taxes and government spending as well as racial resentment, the best explanation may have come from an unlikely group meeting in, of all places, Livonia.

At the seventh annual state convention of the American Atheists of Michigan, Jon C. Murray, president of the national atheist organization, expressed dismay at Duke's semivictory.

One of Murray's concerns is that Duke "wants prayer in the public schools. But Murray said he thought the strong showing for Duke "indi- in attitudes toward gays.

cates to me that people are on this traditional family, values' kick, and they somehow feel that if, we turn backwards maybe that will help the economy and society."

"TRADITIONAL FAMILY, values kick"? How can you call a desire to maintain (or return to) "traditional" family values" a kick? Isn't that as disgusting as the idea of a former_ Klan wizard becoming governor of Louisiana? Maybe. Or maybe not.

Those traditional "values" often went hand-in-hand with traditional bigotry. And today "traditional family values" are often being used to disgulse out-and-out discrimination.

This trend shows up subtly in attitudes toward women, in the abortion debates and in the creeping and growing use of religious beliefs to influence or intimidate lawmakers. But nowhere is it more evident than

Consider

• The Cracker Barrel, that "down-home" restaurant that opened in Belleville recently, has been under slege from gay protesters over the company's hiring policy. The Tennessee-based company reportedly fired more than a dozen workers for being homosexual. And in a memo released in January, an executive wrote that employees "whose sexual preferences fail to demonstrate normal (my italics) heterosexual values" would damage the chain's "family image."

• The University of Michigan, which seems determined to provide a racism-free campus, balked at a proposal to allow homosexual couples access to the university's married housing program. A graduate student worried about the effect that such an arrangement might have on "traditional families" living there.

• In Atlanta, some state legislators threatened to cut off state money to a local public television station after it aired a documentary on what it is like to be a black, gay male in America. Too many people were offended by it. One legislator said he had always thought that public television officials used state funds for "family-oriented programs."

• In Richmond, Va., a cafe owner who challenged a state law banning gay bars got the state Alcohol Beverage Control Board to agree to seek a court order to overturn the statute. But board members said they were being pressured to enforce the law by a resident who maintains that gay bars pose a threat to "family life" and that allowing them to exist would be "traveling a pathway to an-archy. Hoge

• In Salt Lake City, a legislative. committee considering a. "hatecrime" bill has deadlocked over including homosexuals among those groups protected by the bill. "It's unfair to try and put heightened legal protections on this segment of society that engages in antisocial conduct . . . ," one committee member said.

• And in St. Paul, Minn., yoters will decide on Nov. 5 on a referendum to repeal an existing law prohibiting discrimination based on sexual orientation in housing, public accommodations, jobs and education. A group called Citizens Alert gathered more than 6,000 signatures to put the question on the ballot.

Despite what Murray would say, maybe we should say a prayer that a return to "traditional family values" doesn't take us all the way back to the caveman with his wife by the hair and a club in his hand.

TRIAL LAWYERS are good talk-

Members of the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association, who represent injured plaintiffs, talk to defense lawyers to persuade them to settle for big sums. They talk to expert witnesses to draw out opinions favorable to their clients. They talk to judges about-procedures.-And theytalk to juries - especially to juries - about the pain and suffering their clients endured.

When they win a big one, they hire a PR consultant who arranges for them to talk to the media. They talk, via commercials, to late-night television audiences.

Talk, talk, talk.

But they're poor listeners.

ONCE AGAIN there's a move in Lansing to curb the number of medical liability cases that go to trial, the multi-million-dollar payouts, and the fees attorneys get.

I say "once again" because it happened in 1985, with indifferent results. The cap on P&S payouts didn't apply to many cases, and the 33 percent fees went unchanged.

As I listened to the medical people, I got the impression that a big payout is only one concern, and not necessarily the biggest. The medical people are saying it's the constant hassle, hassle, hassle of lawsuits that is doing them in.

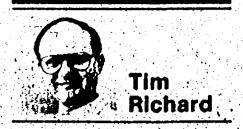

Being on the defense end of a lawsuit, even when you win, takes an enormous amount of psychic energy out of a person, whatever the line of work. I've seen it among non-medical people. It affects defendants' complexions, their self-confidence. their conversations. My hunch is that it also trims years off their lives.

Some say "the hell with it," go into a less stressful line of work or move, robbing the community of the best use of their talents.

During the medical liability debate, the health care people cited many towns where professionals just packed up and moved to other states.

"NO PROBLEM," replied spokespersons for the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association.

No insurance problem. No shortage of doctors. No problem with jury awards. No problem with high fees. No problem with too many trials. No need for an arbitration system. Just no problem,

"The only way to lower the cost of malpractice to the health care system," sald Jane Bailey, MTLA executive director, "is to reduce the amount of malpractice that occurs." Thus, in reducing the amount of malpractice, MTLA sees its suits as part of the solution, not part of the problem.

Meanwhile, MTLA didn't even bother to rebut the notion that the burden of lawsuits is a killer. "No problem."

VICE PRESIDENT Dan Quayle ruffled feathers recently when he told the American Bar Association that the United States, with 5 percent of the world's population, has 70 percent of the world's lawyers. Quayle implied we're sapping our own economic growth by suing each other for the existing economic pie.

Marketing Resource Group, Inc., floated Quayle's numbers past 800 Michigan voters on behalf of the hospital association. Results:

• 73 percent agreed that "America just doesn't need 70 percent of the world's lawyers."

• 73 percent agree that "the high cost of lawsuits is making America less competitive in the world economy."

But the only problem MTLA can spot is "soaring profits" for companies that sell medical liability insurance. One senator pointed out, however, that the few companies selling that coverage are owned by health professionals themselves. Why would they overcharge themselves for insurance? There is no profit motive.

MTLA's lobbyists didn't answer. Apparently they didn't even hear the question.

lady, he sought even fiercer foes. "Bring me giants!" he cried.

I have some for him, but if he met them, I think he'd join them rather than run them through, as their cause is just and their intentions no less bold than his. I speak of the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments' Task Force on Regional Development.

Chaired by county commissioner Marilyn Gosling and Pittsfield Township Supervisor E.A. Jackson Morris, it recently set forth recommendations essential to southeast Michigan's fiscal and social survival.

THE MEMBERS of the SEMCOG Task Force dared to correctly identify racial discrimination as the premier agent of urban gobble and sprawl, with crime and educational quality following right behind.

To combat this rampant sprawl, tute equity operations to foster intercommunities, and a mandatory fegional review of any new projects with area-wide impact. This will force developers and communities to install the supportive infrastructure before any more subdivisions and mega-mails can be built.

PREDICTABLY, nervous local politicos are already railing against the recommendations, denouncing them as socialistic. Others profess no faith in the concept of regional planning.

Two thousand years ago a renowned and timeless teacher had a few things to say about us being our they want all area schools to insti-brother's keeper, and I also recall a few words in there somewhere about those who have little faith. Not only is this task force plan the fair thing to do, it's also the farsighted thing to do for the ultimate common good. Cyrano's not here today, of course, to draw his sword for such a cause, but with valiant voices like Gosling's and Jackson's and their bold task force, maybe we don't need him. What we do need is for all of you quiet ones who truly believe in democratic progress to muster courage to draw your own swords and raise your own voices in support of the task forces's recommendations.

Your greater Detroit metropolitan area desperately needs you to do. this, because be assured that those recommendations will be fought by fearful foes whose selfish interests are their only concern. They couldn't care less about our entire region's mutual social and economic future.

Spartans roll; CC upset

Livonia Stevenson moved easily into the Class A district boys soccer finals with a 6-0 triumph Wednesday against city rival Franklin.

The Spartans (15-0-3) take on host Dearborn for the title on Saturday. Gametime is 9 a.m.

Stevenson led 2-0 at half on goals by Tim Lampi and Travis Roy (penalty shot). Todd Krzisnik added two second-half goals, while Matt Grodzicki and Matt Jacobs contributed one each Tim McCarley had two assists on the day, while Krzisnik, Grodzicki and Craig VanRaemdonck added one apiece.

'Franklin did everything to throw us out of our game and they frustrated us some in the first half," Steven-" son coach Walt Barrett said. "We zares and Russ Keberly. Dave Steinhad a hard time getting it going, but ... we still managed to muscle in a couple of shots," Franklin finished the year at 8-8-1, "I'm satisfied with the season, but not this game," Franklin coach Frantz Lamarre said. "We lose five seniors and we're basically a young team. I think we'll be back."

Stevenson won its district opener Monday against visiting Dearborn Fordson, 4-0, on Krzisnik's hat trick. Adam Carriere had the other goal, while Jeff Thomas recorded three assists.

Goalie Matt Stabile had the shutout in both games.

Franklin, meanwhile, won its opener Monday at Dearborn Edsel Ford, 2-1, on goals by Guillermo Caert and Vic Rodopolous had assists. Other standouts included goalie Brian Spitler and defender Jason Buelow.

CHURCHILL 6, BELLEVILLE 0: Vince Troiani notched the hat trick and Dominic Vella. assisted on three goals Wednesday, leading Livonia Churchill (16-1-3) to the district semifinat win over visiting Belleville (12-2).

KIMBALL 2, REDFORD CC 1 (OT): Brian Sopala tied it with 26 seconds left in regulation play and Dan Polsgrove tallied the gamewinner at 5:29 of sudden death Wednesday, propetting host Royal Oak Kimball (15-4) to a shocking Class A district semifinal triumph over state-ranked Redford Catholic Central (17-3). Although they out-shot the Knights 20-5, CC could only scole once, a first-hall goal by Anthinny Verino (from Rich Walos).

"What are you going to do when you can't 'put the ball in the net?" CC coach Phil LaJoy said. "We had our opportunities, we just gidn't linish them off."

Chargers blank Canton in district-opening test

The Livonia Churchill boys soccer team made an already cold Monday night even less comforting for visiting Plymouth Canton.

Senior forwards Mike Gentile and Dominic Vella had one goal and one assist each to lead Churchill past Canton, 3.0, in-a-Class A-district opener,

The Chargers, who defeated Canton 1-0 earlier this season in a Western Lakes Activities Association game, improved to 15-1-3 overall. The Chiefs, who fell behind 2-0 before the game was 25 minutes old, dropped to 11-7-1.

"I think the key was we started out hard and had some goals early," Churchill coach Mark Mason said. "We weren't going for goals in the second half. We just relaxed. We gave a good effort.

"WE PLAYED confident and Canton coach Don Smith said! "They just kicked our tails. They just beat us to the ball and outran us today. They took it to us today. They are a very good team. They played excellent.

Churchill, which outshot Canton 17-4 in the game, scored all of its goals in the first half.

Vella scored the first goal for Churchilll when he took a centering pass from Gentile and shot past Canton goalkeeper Jim Bradley at the 22 minute mark for a 1-0 lead.

With 17:14 left in the first half Gentile scored an unassisted goal for a 2.0 lead.

JUNIOR MIDFIELDER Vince Trojani rounded out the scoring with a spectacular play off a throw-in from Vella. Trojani took the pass, made two dribbles and fired the ball past Bradley for a 3-0 halftime lead. "I scored the third goal from a perfect pass." Trojani said. "I a goal late by Vella with 26:55 left in in the game. Mason said this game was different from the first contest. "We didn't drag this game out," he said. "(The last game), we had a lot of shots on goal, but only one goal went through. This game wasn't as agonizing.

We got a good effort from (senior midfielder Dario) Rauker and our backs played well. And (goalkeeper) Jeff Cassar didn't have to make many saves until our underclassmen got into the game."

Trojani said: "I think the key key was that we were playing hard and being the first to the ball. We played real tough."

Trojani overcame some nervous moments prior to the game's start.

"I was nervous because the (state) tournament is a one game knock out," he said. "We should be fine for the rest of the season. I'd say we'd do so well because he have two national

Dr. Lewis makes visit

HE WIRE-RIMMED glasses threw me off for an instant as I spotted one of the two honorary captains strolling to the center of the Michigan Stadium field for the pregame coin toss Saturday against Indiana. The ceremony marked the 100th consecutive 100,000-plus sellout for Michigan football.

Although I was stationed way above in the pressbox, a quick glance through my binoculars confirmed what I had already heard on the P.A. system.

No, Kirk Lewis may not be talked about in the same breath as Jim Harbaugh, Anthony Carter or even Desmond Howard, but the Garden City native is an All-American in his own right. (The other honoree was his former teammate, Don Dufek.)

Excuse me, that's Dr. Kirk Lewis, an orthopedic surgeon at the Idaho Medicine Institute in Bolse.

Lewis, a West High product. played offensive guard for the Wolverines from 1972 to 1976, the days when Michigan football became immensely popular.

He was never All-Big Ten, but he won the Dr. Arthur D. Robinson Scholarship Award in 1976. Lewis was also part of U-M's Intellex Program, an accelerated medical school curriculum.

THE GLASSES weren't the only thing that disguised the Lewis I once knew. He appears to be a mere shadow of his football self.

"I weighed 265 pounds when I played my last game in the Rose Bowl and now I'm around 215," he said. "I'm going to run the New York City Marathon next week. It will be my fifth marathon.

"Every few years I have to prove to myself I can still do something athletically. I guess you can never get away from something like that after playing in such as competitive environment as college football."

Brad Emons

As a player under Bo Schembechler, Lewis once wrote a paper about the importance of replenishing body fluids (namely water) during stressful exercise and heat conditions. At the time, coaches often frowned on water breaks for athletes.

So it was ironic that Lewis was able to walk on natural grass at Michigan Stadium on Saturday.

During his days at U-M, artificial turf was the rage.

"I love it, I'm a proponent of grass even though the statistics show that the number of injuries are about the same," Lewis said. "But I think the nature of the injuries are different. I just think grass is a lot safer.

"When you are a lineman, you like artificial turf. We thought it made-us faster. We felt quicker and more powerful. On grass you felt slower, but the body definitely takes a pounding on artificial turf. It's just harder, and you suffer a lot of aches and pains.

"Anyway, there's something to say. about dirt and grass stains."

SPORTS MEDICINE is Lewis' field of expertise.

After doing his residency work at UCLA, he joined former U-M track All-American George Wade (his pariner), where they oversee the treatment of Boise State University athletic teams.

"From a professional point of view, sports medicine has become a trendy, marketing ploy in some re-spects," he said. "I have a problem with some of the people who do it full time as to their legitimacy in the business. But at least it's made the public more aware of fitness and health, and if we can reach all walks of life it will be a real plus. And that's our goal, to make all quality of life better and apply it to all ages."

When Lewis played, steroids were never part of the players' vernacular. "We're just starting to see the injuries related to steroid use," he said. "Back then it was only prescribed from a medical point of view. It's become a form of male cosmetic surgery where young kids aspire to be well-built.

The problems I see are not on the big-time collegiate level, where the players are already biggest and best. The problems occur on the level below that, where a guy feels he has to get bigger and stronger to compete."

Lewis is grateful he was able to be coached and educated by a man like Schembechler. When he comes to town, Lewis often calls his former mentor.

"I HAVE a lot of respect for him," Lewis said. "Other than my father, he taught me more about life than anybody, and I apply a lot of what he taught me to my daily practice in life.

"Bo does what's best for you and what's best for the team he's associated with. He made a lot of enemies, but the sign of a great leader is often an unpopular one. Some of our great leaders in America were despised.

"With Bo, no individual is more important than the team.

"I hope the way he coaches will continue. Now you see more businessmen and politicians as head coaches. That's what's missing today. Bo was a football coach, but he considered himself an educator. And that's the way Gary Moeller (U-M's current head coach) is. He was the

O'Shea troubled by injury-riddled year

TOOK 15 MINUTES to cripple and - quite likely - destroy more than two months of intense work.

Reaching the NJCAA Tournament is now little more than a disappearing dream for Schoolcraft College's women's soccer team, What makes it so devastating, so frustrating, is that it has nothing to do with they way they performed on the field.

As coach Nick O'Shea said after the Lady Ocelots split their weekend series against two of the top fiveranked teams in the NJCAA, "We proved we can play with the best teams in the country.'

They may never get the chance again this season. With five minutes left in the first half of Sunday's match against No. 1-ranked. Meramec CC (from St. Louis), Carol Pietila twisted her knee and had to be helped off the field.

Then, with the second half barely two minutes old, Nikki Johnson collided with a Meramec defender and collapsed.

BOTH HAVE serious knee injuries, Neither is expected to need surgery, but it will be a week to 10 days before Pietila can begin rehabilitation, and probably two-to-three weeks (at least) before she can return.

The prognosis for Johnson is worse: four-to-six weeks of rehabilitation.

Add to that the ankle injury Jennifer Whitfield suffered in Saturday's 1-0 win over Florissant Valley CC (St. Louis) - it could be two weeks before she can play again and you have a serious problem. Why? Because O'Shea had just 11 players on the team; now he has eight who are healthy. There are no reserves to summon. Why? That's a question with no simple answer.

--It's O'Shea's program, so he must bear the blame. Player defections, a poor year for recruiting, and now injuries have turned the season into a nightmare of misfortune.

IT WOULD be easy to point the finger at O'Shea and say, "If you had done a better job recruiting, this could have been avoided." Then make note of last season's team, which overcame all sorts of adver-chick with a roster of just 11 players to them third at the NJCAA Tournatalked to everyone," said O'Shea of his recruiting efforts. "No one from last year is playing."

Was O'Shea tempting providence

As an example, he used the Livonia Churchill HS team, which he also coaches. There were eight seniors on that team last spring, "Two," O'Shea said, "are playing college soccer."

One is Lori Place, SC's stopper. The other is Fran Priebe, who's playing for Kalamazoo College. The others, O'Shea said, just decided against playing. "It was such a lean recruiting year to begin with, all the good players got scholarships to four-year schools," he claimed.

The casualties in all this, of course, are those still trying to make something out of SC's season. The Ocelots have gone into games short one or two players, their nine or 10 against 11, trying to beat the odds.

WHY? TO reach the NJCAA Tournament. It was just a few short weeks ago that O'Shea showed his team what was at stake, playing a videotape of highlights from SC's 1987 NJCAA title team while distributing newspaper. clippings and the championship watch presented to those team members.

"I wanted them to see what was at stake," said O'Shea. "Then I told them what they were going to have to do to get to nationals. Most of them realized this might be their last chance to win a national title, that this could be the last year they play soccer.'

All those goals set, then dashed. "I really feel bad for the players," said O'Shea.

For now, SC will continue. There's always hope, after all. On Nov. 2 Central College (Kansas) will come to town for a regional playoff; the winner qualifies for the NJCAAs. O'Shea figures his team can win, even if it is shorthanded.

"After that, we'll decide what we're going to do," he said.

WHITFIELD WILL be able to play by the time the NJCAA Tournament comes around, Nov. 21-24. Pietila should be back, too, Johnson, one of SC's top players, is questionable. But none of them will be able to perform at much better than 50 percent of their capabilities. In a tournament that requires a team to play three games in four days, it may be asking too much. If blame for this unfortunate flasco need be assessed, you can point a finger at O'Shea for his recruiting. Or at those who said they'd play, then changed their minds. Or at fate itself, for dumping on a team already burdened with its share of troubles.

Crusaders win 4th tourney

For the fourth time in six attempts, Madonna University's volleyball team came away the winner at a tournament.

The Lady Crusaders captured the Mount St. Joseph's Tournament last weekend in Cincinnati, defeating three solid NAIA teams in the process. On Friday, Madonna topped Georgetown (Ky.) College 15-7, 15-7, 15-6; on Saturday, the Crusaders defeated host St., Joseph's 15-12, 7-15, 15-12, 5-15, 15-3, and Walsh College (Ohlo) 15-12, 17-15, 15-8.

"We just played exceptional volleyball all weekend long," said Ma-donna coach Jerry Abraham. "(Against Georgetown) we played our best match of the season by far. They're the best NAIA team in Kentucky.

"Offensively and defensively, it. was our best match of the season - especially, offensively. And defensively, we passed very well, which allowed Penny Baker to set well and kept them off-balance."

ELENA OPARKA, who was selected the NAIA District 23 player of the week, led Madonna with 16 kills (a .527 average) against Georgetown Dana Hicks-Finley had 15 (.410) and Tonia Smith had nine (.370). Jenny Sladewski and

Oparka Player of Week

Last week, Elena Oparka became the fourth Madonna University volleyball-player in five weeks to be selected as the NAIA District 23 player of the week.

It was a well-deserved honor. Oparka, a junior outside hitter from Madison Heights who played two years at Schoolcraft Maureen Paulin paced the defense with 16 and 11 digs, respectively, The win over St. Joseph's was equally impressive. The host team was ranked 24th in the NAIA and was the top NAIA team in Ohio with a 25-3 record coming into the match.

The Crusaders used a strong inside attack, featuring Hicks-Finley, to subdue St. Joseph's. She finished with 19 kllls. Oparka and Smith had 13 kills apiece, with Smith adding 14 digs. Sladewski had 17 digs and Baker contributed 14.

College before enrolling at Madonna, collected, 85 kills in five matches, with a .467 kill average. She also had eight solo blocks and 43 digs.

SC men get kicks down stretch

Drawing from baseball parlance, these would be known as the "dog days of soccer."

Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team has one minor test remaining — at Lakeland College this Saturday - before turning up the juice for post-season play, which could begin with a playoff against Macomb CC for the Region 12 championship.

Whether or not that game is necessary won't be certain until the final regular-season results are posted Saturday. Details (when and where) of a possible SC-Macomb match have not yet been decided.

Saturday's match at Della was hardly a test for the Ocelots, but coach Van Dimitriou insisted some good was squeezed out of the 8-0 rout.

"ACTUALLY, FOR the kind of game it was, I think we accomplished a lot," he said. "I wasn't particularly interested in how many goals we got, but I wanted to see how we passed the ball and moved it around. Our kids did a lot of good things

For the most part, all the starters were on the bench by halftlime. Why not? By then the score was 6-0. Jeff Vandermergel had scored three goals, Bobby Hayes had two and Wayne Worosz got one.

Sean Ryan and Chris Crawford each put one in the net in the second half.

The victory improved the Ocelots' record to 9-2-1 overall, 6-1 in the region. Considering past performance, they should handle Lakeland with ease - which will get them to their first checkpoint on the road toward their ultimate goal: a return trip to the NJCAA Tournament.

Phillips-Karlinger duo star

By Brad Emons staff writer.

Livonia Stevenson, thanks to the efforts of No. 3 doubles team of Erin Phillips and Tanya Karlinger, made some noise last weekend at the state Class A girls tennis finals at the Midland Community Center.

The Spartans finished 12th among the 23-team field with 12 points.

Kalamazoo Loy Norrix edged Birmingham Seaholm for the team title, 23-22. Other area teams making appearances, included. Birmingham Marian, tied for 13th with six points; Farmington Hills Mercy, 14th, four; Plymouth Salem and North Farmington; tied for 20th, two each.

Phillips and Karlinger, unseeded, made it all the way to the finals before being offsted by Seaholm's duo of Becky Clout and Betsy Grenzke, 6-0, 6-1.

"They lost to a very good team and may have been a bit overwhelmed by being in the finals," Stevenson coach George Croll said. "But by that point they were just happy to be there, and rightfully so."

THE TWO SENIORS opened with a 2-6, 6-3, 6-0 first-round triumph over Abby Snyder and Kim Kellogg of East Lansing.

Phillips and Karlinger then knocked off three seeded teams in a row en route to the finals. They defeated No. 6 Carrie Busch and Kathy Grimm of Rochester (6-1, 7-6), No. 4 Alexandra Wehmier and Carolyn tennis

Begg of Grosse Pointe South (7-5, 6-3); and No. 2 Kathleen Lott and Sarah Wallgren of Grand Rapids Forest Hills Central (6-1, 6-3) in a match interrupted by snow flurries.

Karlinger, an exchange student from Germany, had no real experience coming into the season as a doubles player, but adapted quickly, teaming with, Phillips for a 21-1 record on the season.

"They both got better and better as the season went along," Croll said "This was a tremendous accomplishment for them."

"The Spartans were also strong at No. 2 doubles, where sisters Karen and Lori Balley won two rounds before being eliminated by No. 2 seeds Meghan Lindstrom and Jenny Hallock of Ann Arbor Pioneer, 6-1, 6-2.

KAREN, a junior, and Lori, a senior, defeated Cheryl Adelsberger and Katie Hengel of Romeo (6-3, 6-1); and Raquel Perdon and Becky Robins of Battle Creek Lakevlew (6-1, 6-2) on their way to the quartefinals.

The Baileys finished 18-2 for the year.

Stevenson earned its other point when senior Laura DiBasio defeated

Port Huron Northern's Katle Gostinger in a first-round match at No. 3 singles, 6-4, 7-6.

Eve Halderson of Loy Norrix eliminated DiBasio in the second round, 6-2, 6-1.

Stevenson, the Waterford Mott regional champs a week earlier; lost four other first-round matches — Holly Findling (No. 1 singles), Sarah Brudi (No. 2), Joy Crownover (No. 4) and Cortney Richa and Laura Perry (No. 1 doubles).

"The reason we did so well is that we had 12 good players," Croll said. "Holly was the best, by far, but the other 11 could beat each other on any given day. We fust had tremendous depth this year."

TANYA BERNER, Livonia Franklin's lone state qualifier, went 1-1 at No. 1 singles, defeating Katy Heiden of Grand Rapids Forest Hills Central (7-5, 6-2), before losing to freshman Kiran Khanuga of East Lansing (6-1, 6-2).

"She (Khanuga) is a very good player," said Berner, a senior and three-time regional champion. "She had good angles on her shots and she could move the ball around. I believe she won the Ann Arbor Junior Open this summer."

Berner finished the year with a 17-2 overall record.

In the Girls 16s, Berner is ranked No. 5 in the Southeastern Michigan Tennis Association and No. 81 in the six-state Western Tennis Association.

Interest grows for 7 playoff hopefuls

By Dan O'Meara

No less than seven Observerland teams are either sure-bets to qualify for the post-season field or have a legitimate chance at doing so. Plus, three others are longshot possibilities.

Three games to be played this weekend plt playoff contenders against each other. The outcome of the Northville (Class A) Plymouth Salem (AA), Walled Lake Western (A)-Westland John Glenn (AA) and Farmington Harrison (BB)-North Farmington (A) games will help one team and hurt the other.

The Harrison-North contest also will decide the Western Lakes Activities Association championship. It marks the first time in five years the teams have played each other. Harrison won the WLAA title in 1986 with a 34-7 win over the Raiders.

Redford could have three teams in the playoffs, and Union (A), St. Agatha (C) and Catholic Central (AA) will try to remain on that track. RU has the most difficult game, playing host to Waterford Mott.

Lutheran Westland (C), Farmington (A) and Redford Bishop Borgess (CC) could make the playoffs but need victories and a lot of help in the last two weeks.

In the prediction contest between Observer sports editors, Brad Emons was 15-0 last week and trimmed two games olf Dan O'Meara's lead. O'Meara (13-2) is 81-22 overall, Emons 75-28.

Northville at Ply, Salem: The Rocks (5-2) have won four straight and should move up in AA-Region II. Besides first-place Ann Arbor Ploneer, No. 4 Jackson also lost, making room for one more in the top four. Salem was sixth last week. Northville (5-2) rebounded from its loss to Harrison with a 59-7 rout of Livonia Churchill. The Muslangs, who went to the A semifinals last year, were ninth in their region. This game features two of Western Wayne County's top offensive players - Salem tallback Leon Hister and Northville quarterback Ryan Huzjak. The same teams played in the WLAA crossover game two years ago, and the Rocks won $5-8. PICKS: Salem picks up a lot of bonus points with a win.

W.L. Western at Westland Glenn: Western (4-3) has never made the playoffs and must beat the Rockets to get thete - a tall order for any team, The Warriors were seventh in A'Region IIL which includes North and RU, but four of the top seven teams lost. Glenn, no stranger to the playolfs, was tight behind Salem in AA-Region II. The Rockets (5-2) have been in postseason play the last three years and five of the last six PICKS; Glenn keeps slive its playoff hopes.

Ply. Canton at Lilv, Stevenson: After impressive starts, both teams have struggled, linishing fourth in their respective WLAA divisions. Canton (2-5) beat Monroe in the opener but has since defeated only winless Livonia Churchill. losing 21-0 to Western last week. The Spartans (3-4) opened with wins over Redford Union and Livonia Franklin but are 1-5 in their last six games. PICKS: Stevenson wins the vote.

Liv. Churchill at W.L. Central: One team will celebrate for the first time this season. Both are 0-7, but one will be a winner this week. Alter close games the previous week against Canton (20-17 in triple overtime) and Glenn (10-0), both suffered lopsided losses to Northville and Salem (41-13) last Friday. PICKS: Give the edge to the home team.

Clarkston at Garden City: Despite a 1-6 record, Garden City has not been blown out in any game. A pair of 21-0 losses to Woodbaven and Edsel Ford were the worst defeats. The Cougars face a blg challenge this week, however, when No. 9-ranked Clarkston (6-1) pays a visit. The Wolves, who moved up in AA-Region III this week, are led by quarterback Dugan Fife, who has committed to play basketball for the University of Michigan but could probably play football there, too. RU has lost only to Edsel Ford (7-0) in its last six games and knocked off unbeaten Woodhaven 14-7 Friday to gain a share of the Northwest Suburban League champlonship - its first league title since 1979. The Panthers were fifth in their region but strengthened their playoff situation while No. 4 Romulus lost. Mott (4-3) should be another good test for RU. The Corsairs whipped Lake Orion the previous week and lost 20-14 to a good Pontlac Northern team. PICKS: Emons thinks the Panthers are ripe for the upset after beating Woodhaven, but O'Meara says that win made a believer out of him. Monroe at Wayne Memorial: Let's see if we have this right? Wayoe beat Adrian, which beat Alpena, which beat lop-ranked Traverse City. Hmmmm. Does that mean the Zebras should be No. 1 in the state? That might be stretching it since Wayne (3-4) and has lost its last two games and four of its last five. The Zebras came up short against Fordson and Southgate, In each case by a 14-8 score. Borgess was 10th in CC Region IV before losing 27-6 to Nouvel lasy week. PICKS: The Spartans crown the Monarchs.

SATURDAY GAMES (1 p.m. unless noted)

Farm. Harrison at N. Farmington: For a change. Harrison won't be playing Glenn for the WLAA title. The Hawks and Glenn have been league finalists every year since 1988, which is when Harrison and North last played each other. After beating the Raiders to win the league title that year, the Hawks defeated North again the following week, 25-20 in the regular-season finale. The Hawks (7-0) have! won the Western Division title every year since 1982 when the WLAA was organized. Harrison? has won seven WLAA champlonships, including the last three. Liv, Franklin at Farmington: The Falcons (5-4) have been through the grind the last three weeks, losing to Lakes Division powers Satem, North and Glenn Franklin (3-4) was routed by Harrison and hopes to end a two-game losing skid. Looking at common opponents, Farmington defeated Walled Lake Western (13-3) and Stevenson (15-7 in OT). The Patriots lost to Stevenson (21-12) and WLW (13-12). The Falcons have a pretty good defense and a fine running back in Chris Marting PICKS: The Palcons even their record at .500.

Redford CC at Notre Dame, 1:30 p.m.: The Fighting Irish (0-3 in the Central Division, 1-6) won their first game last week, 27-7 over Southgate Aquinas. But there won't be any winning streak for Notre Dame, not with mighty CC (3-0 and 7-0) up next on the schedule. The Irish lost by pretty big scores to teams CC has dominated. DePorres defeated Notre Dame 48-0: the Shamrocks defeated DePorres 21-8 Not 2-ranked CC is tops in AA-Region III and would be virtually assured of a playoff berth with another win. North Farmington won some big games to capture the Lakes Division football championship, but the next game will present the Raiders with their biggest challenge.

Farmington Hills Harrison will visit North at 1 p.m. Saturday to determine the Western Lakes Activities Association championship.

The Raiders take a six-game winning streak into their first meeting with Harrison in five years, having completed a sweep of the Lakes teams Saturday with a 31-7 victory over visiting Livonia Stevenson.

North finished 5-0 in the division and is 6-1 overall. The Spartans are 1-4 and 3-4. 'It's a thrill because I think the Lakes Division is one of the toughest in the state," North coach Jim O'Leary said.

"TWO TEAMS (Plymouth Salem and Westland John Glenn) are always going to be tough and to beat both is special. To go undefeated is even more special."

The Raiders and Harrison, considered by some, the top teams in the state, will play for the first time since the WLAA title game in 1986. The Hawks are threetime defending league champs.

"They definitely have us outsized and outmanned," North tricaptain Mike Hamill said. "But this season has taught us that size and strength aren't everything. It's also heart and determination."

"That took the momentum away from them. If a team that is struggling is in the game, it will play hard. Once you get down you tend to get discouraged, and it looked like that happened to them."

Temple ended up 4-of-7 for 92 yards. Despite the defensive effort of the Spartans, Anderson consistently got 4 yards a carry, finishing with 114 and a touchdown on 25 attempts.

"We didn't have good coverage; we let kids gets behind us," Stevenson coach Jack Reardon said. "(Temple) had a lot of time to throw the ball, too. You should never let people get behind you, but by the same token you have to apply some pressure."

THE RAIDERS kept Stevenson in check with their defense, holding the Spartans to 36 yards rushing and 117 in total offense. Back-up quarterback John Rarog completed six of 12 passes for 57 yards.

Stevenson didn't cross midfield until midway in the third quarter. The Spartans had two of their six first downs in the first half, recovering a fumbled punt for one.

"Their defense was good, but you should be able to run the ball a bit," Reardon sald. "We never sustain blocks; we don't stay on our blocks long enough." North went ahead 28-7 in the third quarter, using up the first 7:22 with a 14play, 73-yard drive. Anderson carried eight times and finished it with a 2-yard

The Raiders have a lot of those qualities, according to O'Leary, who once coached JV football at North with Harrison coach John Herrington.

Their head coach can't run through the band as quick as I can," O'Leary said. "That's their only weakness."

North scored early against Stevenson after Rob Chuba recovered a fumble on the opening kickoff. Mark Temple passed 24 yards to Brian Lee two plays later for a touchdown and 7-0 lead at 10:49.

BUT THE Raiders were stung when Stevenson's Jason Dreger returned an interception 70 yards to the the score early in the second quarter.

North bounced back with TDs on its next two possessions to take a 21-7 halflime lead. Temple, who had his first three completions go for TDs, passed 31 yards to Mike Jehle and 24 yards to Todd Anderson, who turned a screen pass on a broken play into a TD.

"They made a commitment to stop the run, and we decided if we were going to score we had better put the ball in the

45th season opener Plymouth Theatre Guild scores hit with audiences

Theatre Guild production of "Steel Magnotias" continue through Nov. 9 at the Water Tower Theatre on the campus of Northville Regional Hospital, 41001 W. Seven Mile Road. For ticket information call 349-7110.

By Sally Dubats special writer

After 45 years of an almost no-. madic existence, the Plymouth Theatre Guild, a non-profit organization, has finally found what seems to be a permanent home at the Water Tower Theatre.

The full facility theater belongs to the Northville State Regional Psychiatric Hospital. The Guild is celebrating their 45th season this year, and has performed for the last three years at the Water Tower.

"WE HAVE a nice working relationship with Northville Hospital," said Nancy Schuster, a Guild member for six years who is an actress. The Guild now has room for cos-

Performances of the Plymouth was available at the Water Tower theatre, were stored sporadically in trailers and wherever space available.

A home base has also been good for ticket sales — they've tripled since the Guild moved to the Water Tower. There are over 3,000 Guild patrons on the mailing list.

The 45th season promises a variety of entertainment with popular shows such as "Steel Magnolias," "Camelot," "On Golden Pond" and "Brighton Beach Memoirs."

OF THE upcoming "Steel Magnolia," which opens 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 25, Schuster said, "We are as professional as possible, but we are still community theater; we still have our day jobs."

The Guild selects plays that are targeted with wide appeal in mind. Said Guild vice president Kathleen Lietz. "We tend to stick with plays that have been on Broadway, and - have been a success and liked by the general public."

and makes recommendations to the board, but any Guild member can tumes and props which, until space make suggestions. Last year, an audience survey was taken to provide ideas from the community.

LIETZ ALSO implies a responsibility to the public. She said plays "...have to mean something. They have to have something that the audience will relate to; whether it be a drama, comedy or musical."

Other considerations when selecting a play include multiple sets within a play which would prohibit production, and the ratio of men to women. There are more female Guild members than male.

This year, the Guild is offering members a full range of programs including an actor's workshop, an audition workshop, and a director's workshop. They are also considering a lighting workshop.

"THE PURPOSE of these workshops is that a lot of members work very hard behind the scenes, but there are not a lot of programs in community theater designated to enhance an actor or a person who A play committee reads new plays would like to learn to act. This year, our purpose is to build the actors," said Lietz, whose many hats include workshop committee chairman.

The acting workshop in progress culminates In a Nov. 17 performance of contemporary scenes and monologues, with a reception afterward. The Guild is asking those attending to bring canned goods that will be donated to local kitchens and groups in need.

The 45th season also includes an active search for corporate sponsorship. "We're looking for a company. that will either finance part or all of a show," said Lietz. The publicity which a given show generates would also be publicity for the corporation sponsoring the show.

principal at nearby Woodson Elementary School who says that students have told him they saw ghostly figures at the nearby cemetery. Active imaginations?, perhaps.

But a grown man named Tony Pointer also tells of ghost sightings. Once late at night, Pointer swerved his car to avoid hitting what looked to be a woman dressed in white crossing the road in front of the cemetery. She suddenly vanished before his eyes, recounts Gundella.

A year later, the same man passed the cemetery at dusk on a foggy October evening. The same figure of a woman in white stood in the graveyard before a large monument. Next

"'No sir," averts Tony. Those are ghosts. I saw them.'"

Gundella then tells of her own visit to the cemetery in 1980 to investigate. A rusty gate led into the graveyard of overgrown grass and fallen branches, offering an eerie sensation even on a sunny day.

The suspense mounted when her companion found a grave that had dropped it again when I quickly realized it was not a wig but the dry scalp of a woman."

Gundella reported her findings to the police, who dismissed the dug-up grave to the work of animals. She suspects it was grave robbers and, adds with a hint of suspense, several auto accidents have also happened nearby the cemetery.

Just a coincidence, or perhaps attributable to people like Tony Pointer swerving out of the way of restless souls who have been stirred awake?

Fine cast in 'Blithe Spirit'

Performances of the Farmington Players production of "Blithe Spirit" continue through Nov. 9 at the Farmington Players Barn, 32332 12 Mile Road in Farmington Hills. For ticket information, call 553-2955. 🝝

In the spring of 1941, Noel Coward, that most sophisticated and multi-talented of British playwrights, locked himself in his study for a mere five days and emerged with a delightful gift of diversion for England's war-weary populace. "Bilthe Spirit" opened that summer in Lohdon and ran for years, earning its place as one of the most popular' comedies in English language theater.

Now, in the fall of 1991, on its 50th. anniversary, "Blithe Spirit" receives its own special gift in the form of a fine production by Farmington Players.

Coward was a product of Britain's ultra-sophisticated super-cynical post World War I elite, and his plays delight in poking fun at this blase clique. "Blithe Spirit" is the story of upper class novelist Charles Condimine (Stephen Kiersey). In an attempt to gather information for a book, he invites Madame Arcati (Emily McSweeney), the local medium, to conduct to seance in his living Madame Arcati is not a very good medium, but she does manage to conjure up an ectoplasmic representation of Charles' deceased wife, Elvira (Rebecca Shaffner). Elvira's untimely return from the dead meets with stern resistance from Charles' current wife, Ruth (Debbie Nymshack), and causes Charles nothing but anguish.

Circumstances and attitudes then combine to create a very funny and decidedly anti-romantic comedy. Unable to enjoy Elvira's return, Charles frantically searches for ways to send her back. When Elvira's scheme to win Charles back ends tragically, it merely created another inconvenience for him to deal with.

Blithe Spirit" presents dangerous territory for an amatuer theater group. The play is long and the humor, though almost non-stop, is subtle, droll and drier than Charles' beloved martinis. Fortunately, this is not ordinary amateur theater cast. Kiersey is a combination of frantic energy and detached sophistication. His lines pop out at machine gun pace, but his diction is so polished that the audience misses little.

Nymshack, as the good wife Ruth, is a total professional, even managing to overcome costumes and a wig which make her look like a 1950's. sitcom mom.

As Elvira, Schaffner is practically. perfect. She is a manipulative, pouly vixen who never quite loses her charm.

Emily McSweeney does a fine job of supporting this stellar group as Madame Arcati.

Director Sharlan Douglas has done an outstanding job in setting a fast. and exciting pace to a show which could easily stall in the hands of lesser talent.

_A special technical note of tribute goes to the costume and make-up crews who have created breathtaking ghost in Elvira.

Mark S. Carley is active in local community theater, both onstage and behind the scenes. He is a member of the Birmingham Village Players and Ridgedale Players in Troy.

The Balalaika Orchestra of Detroit will perform a concert of Russian folk music Oct, 28-27 et the Jones-Johnson Theater on the campus of Oakland Community College in Royal Oak.

Balalaika orchestra to perform

America's oldest balalaika orchestra, founded in Detroit by Russlan immigrants, will celebrate its 65th anniversary with two concerts. in Royal Oak, Oct 26-27.

Balalaika Orchestra of Detroit will perform 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 26, and 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 27, at the Jones-Johnson Theater, Oakland Community College, 739 S. Washington at Lincoln in Royal Oak. Tickets are $12 and available through Ticketmaster, 645-6666, or by calling 543-7830.

"THE GROUP was formed in 1926 when a group of Russian immigrants got together to play the music-of their homeland," said Irene Perloff McCullough.

In the Soviet Union, folk instruments like the balalaika are studied at the conservatory level like violin is in the United States, said McCullough.

"Many Balalaika Orchestra of Detroit members are self-taught. They learn from each other, and from visiting guest musicians from the Soviet Union."

Orchestra members rehearse every Friday night in West Bloomfield. The oldest member, George Omelianoff of Birmingham, is an alto Domrist. His sister, Olga, who lives in Beverly Hills, is the group's pianist. «

The Domra is a round Russian folk instrument, played with a pick. It has a sound similar to the madolin. Amy Brode, a bass balalaikist, is the youngest member. She is a graduate of Birmingham Seaholm High School and a student the University of Indiana. She will be performing with the group this weekend.

THERE ARE 12 people in the brchestra, including a vocalist and pianist. The director is William Goldes of Dearborn, whose father, was one of the original orchestra; members. Goldes is the leady balalaikist. Five of the members play the balalaika, and three play the domra-Balalaikas and domras have three strings. The balalaika, unlike. the domra, is triangular in shape and played with the fingers. It has a softer sound.

In the past two years, a Russian immigrant from Minsk, now living in Oak Park, and a college graduate from the University of Illinois have joined the group.

For more information about the orchestra, call 543-7830.

Wonderful singing, cast in 'Oaklahoma!'

Performances of the Avon Players production of "Oaklahomal" continue through Nov. 10 at the playhouse on Tienken at Runuon Road in Rochester Hills. For ticket information call the box office at 375-1390.

Avon Players presents an energetic cast of "territory folks" in Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Oklahoma!" Director Debble Schlutow. gives the homespun musical a traditional 1943 treatment, complete with lighthearted American morals and plenty of charm.

THE MAIN reason for the show's : success is its stars. Curly (the boy who is supposed to get the girl), is played by Kim Monterosso with a wonderful lilting voice. The classics, "Oh, What A Beautiful Mornin"" and "The Surrey With a Fringe On Top" are resurrected with a mix of warmth, and an irresistible devilishness.

Monique Grotloh breezes through . "Oklahoma!" as Laurey (the girl who is supposed to get the boy) with a crystal clear voice that would melt butter and is right on the mark. The duet "People Will Say We're in Love" illustrates well the onstage chemistry between the two leads, as well as first-rate singing styles.

THE THRUST of "Oklahoma!" is

The chorus provides a nice visual backdrop with pretty costumes and -movement .-- The -ladies'-hairstyles, however, are not turn-of-the-century, but rather provide a fast-forward '90s flair. The gentlemen should provide more volume.

Musical director Lee George provides a predictable execution of "Oklahoma!" as he plays it safely with tempo. Festive songs such as 'Sur-rey,' "Kansas City" and the group number "The Farmer and the Cowman" would fare well with an original flavor, a more up-beat tempo. This risk would create a quicker sense of word-play for the more sophisticated audience of the '90s.

Don Boase, vice president of Associates Creative, sees the Southfield advertising firm capitalizing on video technology from designing the video presentation CBS used to unveil its fall television programs to providing audience response technology.

Business theater finds audiences

By Brian Lyseght, staff writer

Donald Boase wants the business world to know that meetings don't have to be dull

Boase is vice president of Associates Creative, a Southfield advertising firm that produces "business theatre." That's not some slick, pinstriped drama troupe that-performsafter the CEO's presentation.

It's slicker: video production and audience polling. Associates Creative organizes video and sound programs for meetings and seminars. The company has also perfected software for wireless audience participation controls - hand-held touchpads that allow audience mentibers to vote with their fingers. The polling results are immediately tabulated by computer and can be presented to the audience in bar graph form on video monitors, just like on "America's Funnlest Home Videos."

While the results provide data to audience and speakers, the process stimulates discussion and gets an audience involved, Boase said. It can add spark to a meeting.

"It allows us to make the audience as much a part of the meeting as the speaker," he said.

The company has perfected software for wireless audience participation controls - hand-held. touchpads that allow audience members to vote with their fingers. The polling results are immediately tabulated by computer and can be presented to the audience in bar graph form on video monitors.----

THE COMPANY IS providing audience response technology for the Channel 56 program, "City of Youth," which airs its last program today. The program is using the Associates Creative software and touch pads to poll audience members.

Chris Felcyn, coordinating producer of the program, said the sys-tem provides "instant feedback.

"The key is coming up with the right question," Felcyn said. The technology has vast potential, he said, some of it still untapped.

"It's a technology that I don'tthink people have totally learned how to use."

Associates Creative works regularly for automotive companies. Their video projects have been seen in Detroit's auto show, and Boase traveled to the Tokyo Auto Show this month to prepare a General Motors display.

The company uses a sound system and a laser disc about twice the size of a compact disc to store video images, which can be brought to the screen by a computer or hand-held control. The visuals can be shown on monitors around a room or on screens behind a speaker.

IT'S A CONTEMPORARY version of the slide show and slide projector. but one that many companies are just learning about. "It's an area that's developing right now," Boase said. Associates Creative got involved with the format five years ago, he said.

The company introduced Ford's Fiesta and Escort models at a Society of Automotive Engineers meet ing with a multi-screen video showing the cars on the drawing board and on the road. The visuals were accompanied by the Willie Nelson song "On the Road Again," with rewritten lyrics and verses in Japanese.

For two years in a row, the company designed the video presentation CBS used to unveil its fall television programs to station affiliates.

Boase said he likes the versatility of video. The disc can store still pictures, moving pictures, computer graphics and animation.

The medium can convey a lot of different moods and feelings," he said.

Video can even adjust to human error. Boase recalled the nervous executive who mistakenly skipped a page or two of his speech text, putting the graphics out of synch with his speech. No problem, Boase said, the graphics operator just jumped ahead to catch up.

The technological advances are continuing rapidly. Desk-top video production is now the norm, and many companies are joining Associates Creative in the burgeoning field.

"On the one hand we're kind of happy people are catching on, and on the other hand, our uniqueness is dissipating."

Benjamin Franklin once said that "an investment in knowledge always pays the best interest." This month's couple, Mark and Kelly Lewis, want to educate themselves about the financial planning process and how it can help them meet their goals.

Mark and Kelly, both 43, live in Livonia. Their youngest two children are attending college, and their oldest daughter has just started her first job and is planning to get married next summer.

Mark, an engineer at Ford, earns a salary of $50,000. Kelly is a parttime bank teller and earns $8,000 per year. She returned to work five years ago to supplement the cost of the children's college education.

She plans to continue working three to four more years until her son graduates. After providing for their children's college education, the Lewises' primary goal is to live ' comfortably and set up a financially secure retirement.

Mark and Kelly have never forunderstanding of the financial planning process and determining if they need the help of a planner.

While it is unfortunate that Mark and Kelly did not start preparing many years earlier for their children's college education costs, that doesn't mean nothing can be done. As discussed in a recent article, they should re-apply for financial aid even though they were once told they would probably not qualify for it. Now that two children are in college, the aid formulas will change, and they might find that financial aid is now available.

READERS WITH younger children would do well beginning now to save for their children's education costs. With Mark putting 5 percent of his pre-tax salary into his company's 401(k) savings plan, they are making a regular contribution to their retirement. This type of plan allows the employee to put money aside on a tax-deferred basis and grow tax mally planned for their future. They free until retirement withdrawals are interested in developing a better start. If it is possible, we would encourage him to raise the contribution to 10 percent. Once that is done, any remaining discretionary income can be spent.

> Mark is reviewing his insurance coverage. He asks; "Are we over-insured or under-insured? Should we get mortgage insurance to pay off the house if something happens to elther of us?" Generally, mortgage insurance offered by lenders is very expensive coverage. This coverage is actually decreasing term life insurance. If the Lewises are in reasonably good health, they could easily find much less expensive personal term insurance coverage.

Watch the birdie: Houses provide style and shelter

By Sue Mason staff writer

When Jerry and Sallie Merchant started making birdhouses, it was to accommodate the fine feathered friends that visited the backyard of their Redford Township home.

There's nary a birdhouse in their backyard these days. The ones the couple have made sit on a table in Sallie's home office. Their new business, Unique Birdhouses, is getting ready for the next craft show and sale.

"At one point we had seven in the backyard," Merchant said. "But people would come over, see the birdhouses and carry on so about them that I felt so proud I'd give them to them."

That's not to say that there will be a lot of homeless birds in their backyard next spring. Two ducks from the nearby golf course have decided their pool cover is a nice private swimming hole.

Sallie Merchant didn't start making birdhouses with a business in mind. The primary reason was the number of birds that visited their backyard. She also wanted something to do with her 11-year-old son Sean.

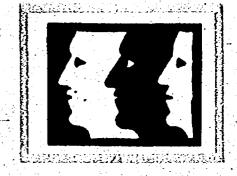

Unhappy with her job as manager of a gift shop at Tel-Twelve Mall, she guit to be at home with Sean this summer. She quickly realized "you can only clean house just so much" and, spurred on by an article in a magazine, turned to her creative side.

"I saw an article in a magazine about a lady who used dollhouse trim to decorate birdhouses and decided to try it," said Sallie, adding that it helped having a husband who's handy with tools. "I'm blessed in that I can show him a birdhouse and he can build it. I do the finishing work."

THE FIRST one they did was from scrap wood. A pink and blue "Hansel and Gretel" style birdhouse, it has gingerbread trim, false windows and cedar shake roof . . . and even turned posts on the porch. Merchant spent four hours painting the birdhouse before deciding she didn't like the colors and starting over.

The designs are varied. There's a church with a bell tower, arched windows and wrought-iron fencing around it; a country cottage with a covered front porch and authentic lattice trim on the rail; and a duplex that resembles a Texas ranch house, complete with welcome mats and mailbox.

She can spend as little as 11/2 hours on the small houses but up to 5-6 hours on the country cottage. And the prices reflect the effort. The small, simple stenciled houses cost $20, the "Hansel and Gretel" style $35, the church $50, the country cottage $65 and the duplex $75.

They also make bird feeders. A small one with stenciling costs $15 while a double-sided diner with two feeding stations, costs $40.

THE IDEA of selling the birdhouses developed when Jerry took some photographs to work to show off to his co-workers. When he came home, he announced he had "sold two of this one and one of that one." He even set the prices.

"He did pretty good because no one has questioned the prices," she said. "They must be pretty reasonable."

Sallie travels far and near for her supplies. She gets her windows from a craft store in Berkley, after the nearby Franks Nursery and Crafts stopped carrying the ones she originally used.

"I called craft stores from here to Flint looking for those windows and no one had them, then I found this store in Berkley last week," she said. "I bought 200 windows. I'm not taking any chances."

She picks up the rest of her stuff at dollhouse stores in Dearborn, Wayne and Farmington, but that list will be trimmed to just two stores with the pending closing of the latter.

Merchant finds working on the birdhouses relaxing although she admits the day before her first venture into craft shows, the Apple Fest in Plymouth's Old Village, was less than calm and sedate.

"The day before it was like I was driving myself nuts," she said. "I had to get in the car and take a ride to the park to get away for awhile.",

THE FESTIVAL was disappointing -"Cold weather, poor turnout, but positive comments" - but it was enough to get Sallie to sign up for a weekend show at Oakland Community College and at St. Innocent Orthodox Church in Redford, the Livonia Elks and at the Fowlerville Elementary School in Fowlerville in November.

Iolanda Peticca (center) of Livonia started it by having daughters Julia Hawley (left) and Anna Lawley on the same day two years apart. The sister continued the tradition by having their daughters Katelyn Hawley and Alexandra Lawley on the same day.

Like mother 2nd generation shares birthdays

By Sue Mason staff writer

Growing up, Julia Hawley and Anna Lawley weren't all that thrilled with having to share birthdays with each other, let alone their sister Janie. But what's a mother to do with three birthdays within five days' time?

You see, Julia and Anna were both born on June 21. They're not twins mind you. Julia is the oldest daughter of Americo and Iolanda Peticca, born June 21, 1961. Anna is the youngest, born June 21, 1963.

And Janie, the middle child, was born June 26, 1962. "I couldn't believe it when it happened," Iolanda Peticca said. "When they were small it was easy for the birthday parties, but when they got older, they didn't like it. You know how kids are."

Well, they may not have liked it as kids, but they're liking it a lot now, considering they both gave birth to baby girls Sept. 30.

"I was really surprised it would happen on the same day," said Julia. "I had to go through 30 hours of labor for it."

"I kind of joked around with her husband and told him to tell her to wait until Monday," Anna said.

While Anna was quick to tell her family of her pregnancy, Julia chose to wait until she was three months. pregnant. And it wasn't until she had an ultrasound that her due date was changed to that of Anna's, Sept. 25.

BUT NO ONE expected the infants to share birth dates. After all, it's practically a tradition for the first born to be late. And so it was. Julia went into labor on Sept. 28, but when, after 30 hours, she developed an infection and high fever and the baby turned, creating a possible breech delivery, doctors decided to perform a Ceasarean.

Julia gave birth to a 7-pound, 6-ounce baby girl at 12:11 a.m. Sept. 20. Named Katelyn Peticca, she is the first child for Julie and husband John, who live in Livonia.

For Anna, the delivery was easier. She saw her obstetrician on Friday, and at the urging of her husband, Jeff, it was decided to wait through the weekend before inducing labor. She called her mother to get her to watch her children, Lindsay, 4 and Jeff, 2, and got the word about her sister.

"I told her Julia had beat her to it," Pelicea said. "Julia said it was like being a biscuit having to wait for the other to be ready."

After a few moments of dead air, Monroe figured the hastily scribbled question meant "ills of the party." Muskie was chairman of the Democratic Party. The interview continued.

She garners recognition, acceptance from others

Dear Lorene,

I am a 48-year-old professional woman whose career is dedicated to helping people solve their problems. I enjoy participating in sports, especially snow skiing. My newest endeavor is rollerblading which is challenging especially if there is no grass, if I need to stop.

I am right handed and would appreclate some insight that you might be able to give me about myself. Thank you so much. : 'LL';

It is interesting to note that while our writer today is in a profession where she helps other people solve their problems, she herself is strongly dependent on others to provide recognition and acceptance for her. I suspect she is better at dealing with the problems of others than her own. Her need for approval is so strong that she often does things to gain attention and praise from others.

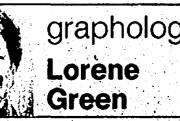

Our writer is kindly, caring and sympathetic toward others, especially the underdog. She abhors friction and will do whatever she feels is necessary to promote smooth relationships with others. Her emotions are kept bottled up inside and cannot find release.

Forgetting hurts or slights from the past isn't easy. She often becomes defensive when she feels she is being used or made to feel like the patsy. All of this does not happen without inner tension, however.

Persistence runs through the handwriting. This perseverence applies to both her new habits as well as the old ones.

It seems quite possible that the male authority figure from her early life was not all that she wished him to be. She may have been the recipient of much criticism which has made her self-conscious about herself. She longs for the love she feels she missed and continues to seek attention, especially from the opposite sex. And she may do a little grandstanding to get it. As I analyzed this handwriting I sometimes got the feeling she may be trying to escape from some person or situation in her

Iolanda Peticca also got to break the news to Julia that her newest granddaughters share the same birth date

"I was out of it on Monday, so I didn't know until Mom have to agree on which day and it would always end up on the 21st because there was two of us voting for the 21st. Janie always hated that."

And the sisters are sure their mother won't follow the ways of their grandmother. The latter always gave the three sisters the same birthday present.

THERE WERE a few differences. Katelyn, who measured 20 inches in length, was delivered by Caesarsean Section at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor, Alexandra, who was 201/2" long, was born at Garden City Hospital in Garden City.

The sisters had to wait until Oct. 4 to see each other's baby. Of course, there were the usual comparisons -"Both have dark hair and dark eyes," said Anna.

Now, while it's a tad early, the question of celebrating birthdays has surfaced. Julia thinks Katelyn will probably have her parties with her cousin. Anna thinks like-wise, but may hold off until after Katelyn has her first celebration.

Gospel group shares news of Christ's enduring love

Robert Scoggins is the acting police chief in the city of Plymouth. But the 43-year-old Scoggins, a Canton resident, also has a budding. career as a gospel singer.

Scoggins has teamed up with Wostland resident Terry Crouson, a marketing representative with the U.S. Postal Service, and Anita Clark, a teacher from Plymouth, toform a trio called The Chapels.

On Sunday, Oct. 27, The Chapels will perform in concert at the Masonic Temple of Northville, Concert time is 5 p.m.

The Chapels will appear with another local gospel group called The Reason.

"We use contemporary music, reaching out to the secular world," Scoggins said. "Our entire goal is to point people to Jesus Christ."

SCOGGINS SEES nothing unusu-. al about a top-ranked police officer performing religious music.

"I think they are very compatible," Scoggins said. "You have to ask yourself 'What makes a good cop?' They care for their fellow human being.

The concert coincides with the release of The Chapels' first album. The title song, "His Arms of Love," was written by Scoggins.

"It is a good news message," Scoggins said. "It talks about people who are searching for answers in life. Jesus is always waiting."

THE ALBUM songs have a strong country-western flavor. The lyrics speak of Jesus' strength, wisdom and enduring love.

"We take Southern gospel music and give it the modern approach, through instrumentation, phrasing and vocalization," Scoggins said. "It's a combination of all our styles."

Clark also penned songs for the album. One is titled "I Am the Way." It is about Clark's feelings of allenation, as a teenager, and her ultimate spiritual awakening. "I was going through the mo-tions," said Clark, 27. "After I fi-

They want to continue appearing at local churches and revival meetings, and they're developing new songs.

Appearing with The Chapels is a Plymouth-based gospel duo called The Reason. Making up the group, which has a contemporary fazz style, are Dickle Lee and his longtime collaborator, Larry Cunningham.

Both Lee and Cunningham are 38 years old and live in Plymouth. Under the name D.L. Turner, Lee is the longtime harpist and house musician at the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth.

Trust can only find its way into an open mind

By the time this column finds its way into print the Thomas/Hill debacle will be all over but the shouting. Unfortunately, though, the whole event was a tragedy from which pieces will have to be picked up for some time to come.

knew what had happened. Many of the noisemakers didn't really care. Their minds had been set.

In listening to the questions put forth under the guise of looking forthe truth, it was all too evident from which side of the aisle they came. Those senators already in the Thomas corner asked their questions accordingly as they sought to vindicate their candidate. OTHERS APPEARED equally as intent upon discrediting him, Questions that originate from minds already invested in a particular answer seldom give room for the real answer to surface.

moral perspectives Rev. Robert Schaden

I am reminded of the seeker who sought out the guru in search of the. truth. The guru invited her client to sit while she poured for her a glass of water. When the glass became full the guru continued to pour, whereupon the client exclaimed "The glass is from time to time, so that some truth might find its way into an open mind.

Whether the issues are in regard to our individual or family lives, or the institutions of which we are a part and at times represent, truth will never stand a chance if we have already decided for our righteous selves that our glass is full. Until then, victims will continue to be strewn about.

In actuality, the shouting began long before the microphones and the cameras were turned on Anita Hill. This senatorial circus was too typical of the way in which many socalled investigations into truth are conducted. But senators were not the only shouters.

Folks from across the country were shouting from Anita's corner or Clarence's corner as if they already

"A wise observation," replied the guru. "The glass is not unlike yourself. Since you are already filled with your own brand of truth, there is no room for the real thing."

UNFORTUNATELY, THE Thomas/Hill tragedy is not an isolated event. We would all do well to listen to the guru and empty our glass

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara formed the Wayne County Council for the arts in 1989 to recognize artists of various disciplines. This month, he presented the first Wayne County Artistic Excellence and Commitment Award to six Hispanic recipients, including photographer Carlos Diaz of Livonia.

"I think we have a lot of artists in Wayne County who need to be recognized for their achievements. Carlos Diaz's photographs are not only outstanding artistically, but they relay the human condition so well," said Sherry Washington, council arts consultant. Washington said McNamara

"wants to recognize the diversity of artists who have excelled in the visual arts, performing arts. and literary arts."

In April, the arts council will recognize Native American artists.

The number 25 has great significance at Livonia's Greenmead Historical Village. Until time took its toll, the 100acre site at Newburgh and Eight Mile contained 25 historical buildings. Only nine of the 11 Simmons/Hill farmstead buildings now remain.

The farm complex dates back to about 1860 — 25 years after Livonia became a township. The village complex re-creates the 1925 Intersection of Ann Arbor Trail and Newburgh - 25 years before cityhood.

By Linda Ann Chomin special writer

Spend an entertaining Sunday afternoon supporting local art and artists while riding a trolley through the historic streets of Plymouth and Northville during the first Holiday Gallery Tour Sunday, Nov. 10.

Tour hours are noon to 5 p.m.

J. Giordano Studio of Northville, in conjunction with D&M Art Studio and Cooperative Gallery of Plymouth, organized the tour of 11 galleries in Plymouth and Northville. Tickets are $10 and can only be bought in advance,

We wanted to pull together the communities of Plymouth and Northville to show that art is alive and flourishing," said Julie Giordano, event coordinator and owner of J. Giordano Studio.

Because of the economy and cuts in Michigan's budget for arts funding, it's time for us to rally around each other and the community, supporting the communities and the arts."

THE TOUR begins in Northville at historic Mill Race Village. After boarding the trolley, art lovers will travel to Plymouth where they will visit seven galleries.

Galleries participating in the tour through Plymouth's downtown and Old Village area are D&M Art Studio and Cooperative Gallery, Native West, Penniman Showcase of Art and Crafts; Chameleon Gallery, Frameworks, Wild Wings and the Plymouth Community Arts Council's Art Rental Gallery on the second floor of the Dunning-Hough Library. Northville gallery stops include J. Giordano Studio, Atrium Gallery, Painter's Place and Tiffany's Art Glass.

Livonia artist Ed Ferguson has done a commissioned mural inside Trapper's Alley, Detroit. Using a "Save the Earth" theme, the mural features an image of the Earth with superimposed graffiti that reads, "Love it or Leave it." On an adjacent wall, he designed a second image on a similar theme. In July, after 12 years as an advertising executive, Ferguson decided to pursue the dream of becoming a full-time artistillustrator. To survive until established, he creates advertisments.

Since setting out on his own, he has designed a cover for a gospel cassette as well as its promotional poster.

 He also contracted to publish a poster of his painting, "Habitat #6: Graffiti Sphere," with Pomegranate Publishing. T-shirts with that theme are distributed through Advertising Accents, Redford.

Canton artist Connie Lucas took an honorable mention in the "Transforming Visions '91" show at Plowshares Peace Center and Gallery, Detroit.

Her reverse image, acrylic painting represents "the tools of war and the grief that results."

Forty-three artists from Michigan and Ontario image a world of peace and justice in a variety of media in the juried show, which runs to Dec. 28. The gallery is at 33 E. Adams on Grand Circus Park.

OR MANY local young people, the arrival of fall means more than a return to the classrooms. For Livonia Youth Philharmonic of Michigan members, it signals the start of rehearsals for their 1991-92 concert season. . Staffed with a new music director in Andrew Sewell, LYPM consists of three individual youth orchestras. Ages of members range from 8 to 22. The Junior and Advanced String Orchestras, as their names suggest, provide string players with introductory orchestral training. The Philharmonic Orchestra combines more experienced string players with selected brass, woodwind and percussion players. Conductor for the string orchestras is Melissa Gerber. Sewell conducts the Philharmonic.

"We try to provide something for students at all levels," said Lois Gilmore, LYPM president. "They are placed in the various orchestras based on their musical ability, not their ages."

Despite the group's name, the program is open to all young musicians, regardless of where they live.

"We have the name Livonia because they provide us with the use of their facilities (the orchestras rehearse Saturdays at Livonia Churchill High School), but the program is open to anyone in all the surrounding communities. We have members from Farmington, Plymouth, Northville, Bloomfield, Canton, Detroit, Redford, Novi, Wayne, Westland and Ann Arbor," Gilmore said.

IN ADDITION to his promotion to music director of the LYPM (he conducted the string orchestras in 1989 and 1990), Sewell has benefited from a recent merger with another local youth orchestra, the American Youth Symphony.

"We had over 80 people audition this year," he said. "That's a good number of people to audition for all three orchestras. It's certainly the largest group yet in the time that I've been here.

Christie Simonson of Livonia sharpens her skills on the flute. "I really like the program," she said about music director Andrew Sewell's efforts.

"Gallery stops are 20 to 25 minutes long and there will be progressive snacking at each gallery along the way. The galleries offer everything from photo-realistic portraits to the Southwest art at Native West," Giordano said.

"Chameleon and Atrium exhibit contemporary art. Tiffany Stained Glass has beautiful Tiffany-style lamps. Penniman Showcase features fine art and decorative crafts. Carolyn Dunphy of the Painter's Place just returned from France. She'll have watercolors, she painted at Monet's gardens in Giverny," Glordano said.

"D&M WILL offer demonstrations by Jim DeArmond, who'll be doing airbrush, and Hugh Burley, who will be painting," sald Sharon Dillenbeck of D&M Art Studio.

"This is going to be a fun tour. We're really getting excited. We -have nice art places and we wanted to let the public know what they have with the local art and artists.'

Along with the gallery of artworks done in a variety of media at D&M. Dillenbeck will have hand-painted ornaments priced at $5 for small bulbs, $10 for the large.

Entertainment will be provided at the Art Rental Gallery in Plymouth by wind instrumentalist Gary Cooper and Friends. They will perform classical and jazz music.

feature a well-known artist's latest work, the Visual Art Association of Livonia's annual fall show spotlights the best of its membership.

This year's show runs Nov. 1-22 in the lobby of Livonia City Hall, Farmington Road and Five Mile. Lobby hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

The meet-the-artists reception will be 2-4 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 3.

David Sharp, a painting and drawing professor at Eastern Michigan University, juried the show. He pleked 93 paintings - mixed media, watercolor, oil, collage, block print, acrylic - from the 120 submitted for consideration.

He and the show sponsors presented 18 awards: Best of Show Award, UNLIKE MAJOR art exhibits that Grumbacher Best Use of Color Award, first, second and third place in mixed medla, oil and watercolor, and six honorable mentions.

The award-winning works, Sharp said, "represent an aesthetic sophistication in their imagery and treatment of subject matter. As in many shows like this, there's a considerable difference between the topquality works and those at beginner levels.'

Watercolor, he said, was the best medium represented: "That's somewhat unusual in that oil is the medium top-echelon artists typically aspire to. But that's also a nice thing. A half-dozen of the watercolors were really high quality and I was impressed by that."

Livonia Arts Commission Award, Trantham, an artist for 10 years, get excited about."

will display three watercolors in the show: "Dance of the Kachina," "The Windsong" and "Parlor Bouquet."

Trantham has studied watercolor under VAAL instructor Edee Joppich of Farmington Hills, a nationally honored watercolorist, for four years.

"I think it's the actual painting that's so inspiring," Trantham said. "It just fires me up."

A big fan of nature, she said she's very fortunate to be able to paint what God created."

The Livonia Arts Commission and the Livonia Cultural League co-sponsor VAAL's fall show.

"What the juror chose to have in the show is really, really good," said arts commissioner Dorothy Wilshaw.

"There are lot of communities around here that don't have arts clubs," she added. "So VAAL provides something for surrounding communities, too."

THE ARTS commission's $200 award went to Farmington Hills artist Lorraine Whitacre, who also won VAAL's Best of Show and first place for watercolor.

Her abstract painting, "On the Reef," catapulted her to the three awards, which totaled $290, scenes underwater," said Whitacre, a Michigan Watercolor Society member who doubles as show chairwoman.

A serious painter for seven years. Whitacre has studied art at Madonna University in Livonia. "I probably have a need, a drive, to do it. When I go for awhile without it, I have a drive to start it again."

VAAL'S MISSION is to promote skill building through studio work and twice-yearly exhibits. All classes are open to the public, although. VAAL members receive reduced tultion and exhibit fees.

Classes span the arts spectrum: watercolor, monotypes, oil portraits, drawing and sketching, even independent study.

"It's one in my series of reef medium of your choice, learning to use principles of design, mastering color and watercolor painting.

> Student art ranges in price from $60 to $500.

> Students come from throughout Observerland. They meet at the Jefferson Center in Livonia. To register, call VAAL's class and workshop coordinator, Marge Masek, 464-6772.

> As Professor Sharp suggested, the range in artistic experience and quality represented there make VAAL's shows something special --and inspiring.

> What I especially like about them is they help boost the confidence of artists at all levels by giving them the much-sought opportunity to showcase their talents in public.

Plymouth boasts ties to subject of new film

By Mary Klemic staff writer.

Albert Kahn used a variety of materials in his architecture. Now yet another material - the thin cellulold of movie film - is being associated with him.

A German cameraman and Detroit support crew visited the Detroit area in September, researching and interviewing for "Kahn," a film about the architect.

"I call it a documentary and essay, because it's not really a documentary, it's a very subjective approach to Albert Kahn and his time," said director and producer Dieter Marcello.

KAHN WAS the foremost industrial architect of the first half of the 20th century.

His work includes the Fisher Building, the James Couzens and George Booth houses in Bloomfield Hills-(Booth founded Cranbrook on his estate), a summer cottage on Walnut Lake, the Burroughs Adding Machine Co. building (now Unisys) in Plymouth Township, the Belle Isle conservatory and casino, and Hill Auditorium and Angell Hall at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

"It sounds like it's going to be a wonderful film." said Sue Marx of Sue Marx Films of Detroit, which will be involved in "Kahn" distribution. "He's (Marcello) done his homework, dug up a lot of information.

"Kahn was a major, major figure. He designed the houses and country clubs for the auto barons, clubs he couldn't go into himself."

MARCELLO, A native of southern Germany, had the idea for "Kahn" when he came to the Detroit area'in 1988 while (ilming "American Beauty LTD," a fiction feature about an immigrant coming to the United States, specifically to Detroit. "American Beauty LTD" went on to receive a German film award. "I saw all this architecture of Albert Kahn," Marcello said, Kahn's work spans between the 15th and 16th century Renaissance era in Europe and what Marcello calls "modernity" of the turn of this century, the filmmaker said

"When the new auto industry arose, he had a totally new look for the future.

"The other architects that I see cared a lot about how the art world would look at their work. Kahn cared about how his architecture would work. This was one of the reasons he was so effective." Kahn designed about 3,000 buildings, compared to Frank Lloyd Wright's 150, Marcello said. "He was the right man at the right time at the right place. Detroit had a totally new industry."

KAHN, THE son of a rabbi, was born in 1869 in Rhaunen, Germany, and received his early schooling in family when he was 11. He was apprenticed at age 15 to the Detroit architectural firm of Mason and Rice. and started his own practice in 1896. "I think having this experience - traveling scholarship.

During the industrial/mass production age, Albert Kahn (1889-1942) left his imprint on five continents. His 1938 design for the Burrough's Adding Machine Co. plant (above) in Plymouth was influenced by German architects Emil Fahrenkamp and Wilhelm Kreis. The plant today is part of the Unisys Corp.

"He did a lot of sketches. He loved all these Renaissance buildings. This is what he brought here to the States."

THE FILM crew will be back in the area by next April to shoot the buildings. Now it is doing a lot of interviews.

"We're having discussions with people who worked with him, or we're talking to his daughter, just to know how he shared his esthetic views with those around him. We're' talking to other architects."

The crew plans to shoot buildings in Italy next spring that inspired Kahn on his European travels. The film will show these buildings and. what they influenced in Detroit.

"We are still thinking about shooting in Russia."

In 1929-32, the Russian government commissioned Kahn to design factories and tractor plants. He drew up 521 plans, and was criticized by the U.S. government for it. But the factories generated business between the two countries.

"There was criticism that he was helping the enemies of capitalists. He would refer (such criticism) to Henry Ford, who said, 'As long as we do business with them.' "

Among Kahn's other architecture are GM Headquarters and "almost every one of the auto plants in Detroit."

half of the material for World War II, Marcello said. He said the British general Montgomery credited military victory to Kahn.

KAHN, WHO died in 1942, was honored both in the United States and abroad.

The U-M and Syracuse University conferred honorary degrees on him, in 1933 and 1942, respectively. In 1937, he received a gold medal at the International Exposition of Arts and Sciences in Paris, and was made chevalier of the Legion of Honor of France.

The American Institute of Architects gave him a special award at its annual meeting in Detroit in 1942, and the same year awarded him a medal for distinguished war service.

The Franklin Institute awarded him the Frank P, Brown medal. posthumously, in recognition of his outstanding achievements in the development of industrial architecture. ARCHITECTURE MUSEUMS in 3

Germany and the United States are cooperating in making the film. Marcello is especially pleased with : the local response the project has been receiving.

"Fantastic. We are very, very hap-Py. "I think I've been back (to the area) at least five or eight times, and every time I find the same willingness to cooperate."

Marcello hopes to have "Kahn" completed by next fall.

Canton library fare — Mozart to Gershwin

By Linda Ann Chomin special writer

The music of Mozart, Mendelssohn, Beethoven and Gershwin will fill the air as the Anderson String Ensemble opens the 1991-92 music series, hosted by the Friends of Canton Public Library.

Show time is 7:30 p.m. Rriday, Oct. 25, in the library meeting room, 1200 S. Canton Center Road.

The first half of the program follows, a progression through music history, from the classical period to romantic. The ensemble will perform Mozart's "Divertimento, K. 136," Beethoven's "Allegro con brio, Op. 18, No. 1," and Mendelssohn's "Presto agitato, Op. 44, No. 2,"

After intermission, the music lightens with Scott Joplin's "The Entertainer," Irish folk music and a George Gerswhin medley, including "Embraceable You," "The Man I Love," and "I Got Rhythm."

"We wanted this to be a taste of something classical, something light and entertaining. The second half of the program is for people to relax and shows the versatility of the quartet," said Beth Vandervennet, ensemble cellist.

ANDERSON STRING Ensemble consists of Daniel Anderson, first violinist; Nancy Steinberger, second violinist; Debbie Stearns, violist; and Vandervennet.

We'll begin the evening with a Divertimento by Mozart, which is early classical, proceed to a Beethoven piece, which is considered late classical to early romantic, then conclude the first half with Mendelssohn, who is definitely a romantic," Vandervennet said.

Vandervennet said she was "looking forward to performing the Scott Joplin rag along with the challenging second half.

"I do enjoy for a change of pace.... something light and entertaining. Although when you get into something jazzy, with the rhythms, it's kind of difficult."

Formed three years ago, the Anderson String Ensemble performs recitals, receptions and, through a new program in the Plymouth-Canton Schools, will soon begin to introduce elementary students to the beauty of string music.

ANDERSON, THE ensemble's first violinist, earned his bachelor's degree in music performance from Eastern Michigan University, where he's enrolled in the graduate program. He is assistant director and concertmaster of the Eastern Michigan University Symphony Orchestra. "The Mozart is a nice audience, plece. Beethoven is a standard string quartet piece, a transitional piece between the classical and romantic periods. The Mendelssohn is a romantic piece," Anderson said.

Vandervennet, Plymouth Symphony Orchestra principal cellist, is an active chamber musician. She works part-time for the Ann Arbor Symphony as marketing and education outreach coordinator. She majored in cello performance, earning a degree from the University of Michi- brary was designed for this type of gan. She also is a member of the Ann Arbor Symphony.

Steinberger attended Eastern, She later transferred to the University of Michigan School of Music. She's now studying engineering at U-M and will graduate in May.

Stearns studied music at Eastern and performed with the EMU Symphony as a soloist. She teaches privately.

Feltz was on the planning board when the library was designed. Listudying with Pignotti and Foster. brary plans called for an area that could be used for community cultural events with plenty of parking.

"As the library developed, we wanted to give back to the commune ty a special program. The library has done a lot of educational and instructional programs so we chose a musical activity. We're trying to start out small with a small building block.

Youth orchestra tuning up for a new season

Sewell came to this country in 1988 to attend the University of Michigan. He served as a substitute conductor for the LYPM during rehearsals before being asked to stay on as the string director in 1989. He graduated from the University of Michigan in May 1990 with a master's degree in conducting

"It's been very good to have had the benefit of first working as the string director and now as the music director; A lot of the students that I've trained in the past are now coming into the Philharmonic. Now I'm dealing with wind players, percussion and brass, so there's an added dimension. It's like a normal orchestra, as opposed to. idst'a 'strings-only' orchestra,"

IN ADDITION to conducting the LYPM, Sewellistalso the music director of the Lake St. Clair Symphony and the Scandanavian Symphony, which is a community-orchestra based in Southfield.

I'I think it's important that people realize that 1 in a director of the Lake St. Clair Symphony and the Scandanavian Symphony, which is a community orchestra based in Southfield.

I think it's important that people realize that I'm a professional conductor. I don't have another job, that's what I'm trained to be. Although I may conduct a youth orchestra, I don't want to be labeled as simply a youth orchestra conductor. All the attributes that one uses in conducting a professional orchestra apply to conducting a youth orchestra, and my goal is to try and encourage and teach young people, while instilling in them a professional attitude."

"I really like the program," said Christie Simonson, 18, of Livonia. "Andrew's really nice. I like him as a conductor because he makes you feel relaxed. He's not a strict conductor but he is very serious."

It's fun and challenging for me to get new music," said.Lydia Beaudrie, 12, of Plymouth. "I enjoy it.".

"I like going places with the orchestra," said Robert Karl, 13, of Livonia, "That's what's special to me. It also helps me learn different musical terms and styles of playing:"

LIKE MANY programs dealing with the arts," LYPM finds financial support from the community hard to come by. As a non-profit organization, tuition is kept to a minimum, ranging from $70 for the Junior Strings to $110 for the Philharmon-

"My big emphasis is to provide these kids with musical education," Gilmore said. "The kids that like music should have the same chance as the kids who like soccer and football. Sports teams get a lot of community support from stores, but when you approach people regarding music, they say, "Oh, let them pay for themselves.""

Another difficulty the group has overcome is the short supply of string players from the public schools.

"The band programs are strong in the schools," Sewell said. "But at the present time, there seems to be a lack of string/orchestral programs,"

The LYPM plans to kick off its fall season at 1 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 26 at Laurel Park Place in Livonia. A 3 p.m. performance will follow Sunday, Nov. 24 in the Ford World Headquarters Auditorium in Dearborn. Both concerts will feature all three orchestras.'

AT LEAST two more performances are planned for the new year, one of which will be a chamber orchestra concert featuring only the Philharmonic orchestra, tentatively scheduled for March.

ALthough auditions have already been held, Sewell pointed out that he's still on the lookout for a few more musicians, especially a second bassoon, some trombones and a tuba. At the same time, he's optimistic about this year's program. "They're a very committed group of people. I enjoy them very much. Certainly the parents of the children involved are totally committed to their children's education and take an interest in what's going on.

"I would say that it's probably the best group yet."

For more information about the Livonia Youth Philharmonic of Michigan, call Lois Gilmore: 453-8887.

Robert Karl of Livonia plays trumpet. "I like going places with the orchestra. That's what's special to me," he said.

Video helps acquaint buyers with sales process

If you're thinking of buying a house, you might want to make your first stop the local library.

National Bank of Detroit has produced a 17-minute videotape titled "Buying a Home Where to Begin." It's available free of charge by calling 1-800-CALL NBD or by visit. ing the 66 public libraries in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb countles.

According to Russell J. LaBruzzy, first vice president and director of are a number of points a buyer should know, before easing into a real estate purchase. They include: • Determine what you can af-

Banks usually advise that your mortgage should be no more than 28 percent of your gross monthly income per month. As a guideline, total monthly debt should not exceed 36 percent of your gross monthly income.

• Closing. Once the loan is approved, the legal documents are in hand and mortgage insurance has been ordered, it's time to close. One-sided purchase agreement ignores buyer default

We have been handed a proposed purchase agreement by a real estate firm that wants to give us a purchaser for our home that was not listed with any Realtor. We have looked at the purchase agreement. and find that there is no provision for a default by the purchaser in the agreement although there is a provision in the event that the seller defaults. We are trying not to hire an attorney, but somehow this looks funny to me. Do we have any remedles in the event that the purchaser , defaults?

The sale of real estate is sometimes a complex and tedlous task. Many states require that attorneys be involved in all aspects of the real such requirement exists, although Realtors are obligated to recommend to purchasers and sellers that they obtain the advice of counsel.

In your situation, it appears that the Realtor is obviously representing the interests of the purchaser, having provided you with a purchase agreement that does not clearly spell out the rights of the seller in the event of a default. I would review the contract with an attorney before it is signed and make any adjustments that are necessary to protect your rights.

I would also advise the Realtor of what you consider to be an unfair attempt to obtain benefits for the purchaser under the circumstances, estate arrangement. In Michigan, no particularly when the Realtor is looking to you to have his or her commission paid. Have your lawyer also review any commission agreement before it is signed.

Our association now has a dispute with the management company in terms of who is supposed to service our condominium at the management company and it appears that it cannot be resolved. We are uncovering additional impropieties in that the attorney for the management company recommended to us, we understand, has 'a financial relation. ship with the management company. We had initially consulted with our attorney regarding a problem with the management company, but now feel there is a clear conflict of interest. The board of directors wants to clean house but feels somewhat betrayed. What can we do?

Your experience underlines two major lessons for condominium associations. First, when entering into a management agreement with a management company, the person at the management tirm whom the as-sociation wished to attend the meetings and service the condominium should be spelled out with sufficient provision in the contract to insure that if that person does not do so. that allows the association to terminate the management contract at its discretion.

Secondly, in choosing an attorney, particularly when one is recommended by the management company, it is important to ensure that the attorney and the management company have an arm's length relationship with one another, either financially or otherwise.

Make sure that the principals of the management company or the management company itself are not being or have not been represented by the attorney who is now being offered to serve the interests of the association. In your particular situation I would seriously consider cleaning house and informing both the attorney and the management company of what you consider to be totally improper conduct. More than likely, both will back off it they know what is good for them.

Economy pares extravagance in new houses

By Mary Rodrigue staff writer

Paralleling the trend back to comfort foods, today's new house buyers are craving things that recall an earller erg — french doors, kitchen pantries, oak flooring and glass block. Of course, today's houses are updated with extras grandma never dreamed of like roomy kitchens with build-in appliances and food preparation centers, in-suite baths, home offices and an emphasis on energy efficiency from windows to furnaces.

Add a weak economy and you have a change in what buyers are seeking.

"A couple of years ago when the economy was expanding, young successful people with good incomes were looking for glitz," said William Spagnoli, a Plymouth builder and developer.

"It's like gasoline. When it's expensive, people will conserve. When it's cheap, they'll use all they can." Today, buyers are pulling back a bit.

"We're looking at a more conservative buyer who likes stylish trends, but not excessive things, not wasted space," Spagnoli said. "You don't need a 20-foot by 20-foot open foyer. At least half of home buyers today are making a wise choice in the efficiency rating of furnaces."

Spagnoli spoke while tending Country Manor, one of a cluster of model homes in the Quall Run development in Plymouth Township. The site will include 74 homes and 58 condominiums. Country Manor is priced at $289,000 with about 3,000 square feet.

COUNTRY MANOR'S decor, furnished by Ray Interiors of Farmington, feels warm and inviting from the big farm kitchen table and hutch top cabinet to the area rugs scattered over hardwood floors.

Spagnoli said buyers are going to brighter, more colorful interiors. "We're mixing earlier features with new colors," he said. "The earth tone era is over. Lots of bright natural color is in."

And the return to the traditional applies to the house exterior as well as seen in extra peaks, bay windows and the use of copper and fieldstone.

Visit Heather Hills where houses are priced in the $350,000 range, and you'll find builder James Bonadeo has incorporated many of the same warm features from natural wood flooring and lots of painted wood trim to french doors and dominant staircases with heavy wood banisters.

"Jim builds very traditional homes," said broker Patricia Neff. "You'll see the 10-foot ceilings, the crown molding, french doors, beveled glass, two fireplaces. We've never gotten away from traditional in this area."

AT LAUREL ESTATES, a new development on Seven Mile, east of Newburgh in Livonia, tradition is also the trend.

"People today are not as extravagant," says Harry Wolfe of Prudential Realtors. "They want wherever they place their money to be a safe return. They're not as gutsy. They're very resale conscious."

While Laurel Estates also borrows heavily from the past, modern touches include a food preparation center in the kitchen, built-in appliances, three-car garages and bathrooms galore. The Embassy, a. four-bedroom colonial, has 31/2 baths.

"Two and a half baths are minimal today in a two-story colonial," Wolfe said. "The old days of standing in line for the bathroom are not practical with today's quickly moving lifestyle."

Models at Laurel Estates range from 1,830 to 3,075 square feet, $179,900 to $245,900.

BUYERS WITH their hearts set on a more contemporary look may have to look in Oakland County. That's what Brenda Burkhardt did. The Novi woman, with husband and two preschoolers in tow, is hoping for a January move-in date at Woodland Ridge, a contemporary development on Walnut Lake Road in West Bloomfield.

"I love the windows, the open floor plan, the high ceilings, the dramatic entry - that kind of feeling," said Burkhardt, who was ironing out details Saturday with a sales representative.

Another couple, retirees who live near Middlebelt and Maple, were gushing over the models - an Aspen chalet with angular geometricshaped rooms, and the Huntington, a dramatic home dressed in black and white from the large tiled checkerboard foyer and kitchen to the bold black and glass staircase.

"Most people really like them," said Leslely Schneider, sales representative for Ivanhoe Huntley Homes.

Woodland Ridge will have 86 units of contemporary and traditional houses when complete. Square footage will be in the 2,995-3,325 range and prices in the high $200s.

But even with the dramatic contemporary look, the same trademark features of the '90s are apparent large kitchens with built-ins, firstfloor laundry rooms, impact window walls and numerous bathrooms. Grandma would be envious.

Build kids' self-esteem.

building consultant says

By Brian Lyseght staff writer

More than two decades later. Donald Tocco remembers the disappointment he felt listening to the commencement speaker at his high school graduation.

Tocco and his classmates were told that 95 percent of them would be either dead or dependent on Social Security at age 65.

"I found that to be very disheartening," said the 44-year-old Troy resident and businessman. Tocco described himself as an unmotivated student, but when he heard the dismaying statistics he vowed to return to his alma mater, Warren Lincoln High School, with a more positive message.

He did in 1977, "It actually went over quite well, and I started doing other addresses at schools." He's delivered speeches to thousands of students since then.

TOCCO SAID HE builds self-esteem by offering youngster's a businessman's view of how to enrich their lives and succeed.

"I do it for kids because I know the only way they'll have the opportunity to learn these things is from someone outside the educational system."

Tocco is president of D.L. Tocco and Associates, an industrial development marketing firm. He started the company two years after completing a Dale Carnegie leadership class.

Young people are more receptive than adults to Tocco's message, he said, though he makes presentations for corporations as well.

"Adults have got too many reasons why they think motivation will not work for them. Kids haven't experienced the failures," he sald.

Tocco, who said businesses need to get more involved with schools, doesn't talk economics with kids. He stresses attributes like resourcefulness, determination, persistence and planning. He said he wants kids to feel good about themselves. He suggests they start the day with a pep talk.

SOME OTHER Tocco thoughts and suggestions:

• A smile gets you further than a frown:

• Kindle a burning desire: Achievers must be willing to face and overcome obstacles.

• Set specific goals: All great achievers had specific, refined goals and a time frame within which they accomplished them.

• Have faith: Have confidence in yourself and whatever higher power you believe in.

• Be persistent: Resist the urge to quit. Search and work until you uncover every opportunity,

• Take courageous action: The best way to overcome inertia is to move steadily forward to a bold and adventurous goal. Act with confidence and kindness.

IN 1987 he developed his Youth Enrichment Program aimed at fourth graders. The age group is at an important stage in development of self-esteem, Tocco said. He delivers the program one hour per week for six weeks.

"He's a dramatic person and you can't help but get enthusiastic when you're in the room with him," said Carolyn Plsek, principal of Farmington's Kenbrook Elementary.

The Kenbrook children loved the program when Tocco presented it last year, she said. "It was especially great for the boys. It was a male role model who told about how he got motivated."

He's also done programs at Birmingham's Greenfield and Bingham Farms elementaries, and Troy's Morse Elementary.

Last week he organized a one-day program for children from seven Detroitarea schools featuring several motivational speakers for children from seven schools. The forum was sponsored by General Motors' Electronic Data Systems division.

Tocco talks to schools for free, taking time from his company to do so. He describes the letters he gets from youngsters as "better than any paycheck."

D.L. Tocco and Associates Inc. specializes in developing industrial construction companies, a business he said remains. steady despite the economic climate. His company has eight employees in three cilies, and has had collective sales of about $750 million since he started it in 1974, he said.

Residential building drops

(AP) - Construction of new houses and apartments plunged 2.2 percent in September, heightening concerns that the economy is in for a second dose of recession.

The Commerce Department said Friday that housing starts totaled a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.03 milllon. That was down from 1.06 million units in August and broke the first fivemonth string of gains in 11 years.

The report followed other government statistics showing flat industrial production; falling exports, formerly a source of economic strength; and weak spending by consumers, who account for two-thirds of the nation's economic activity.

"I really think it's panic-button time," said David F. Seiders, chief economist for the National Association of Home Builders.

Daryl Delano of Cahners Economics, a Newton, Mass., forecasting service, called the latest report "worrisome," and said "the economy could stall out and give us the classic double-dip."

But he said he did not believe the economy would fall back into recession. "I think the economy is idling now and will move forward eventually," he said.

ALL REGIONS of the country except for the South experienced a decline in housing starts last month, and the South failed to recoup its loss of a month earlier.

Revisions in the report also showed the level of new construction nationally. in July and August lower than first estlmated.

Seiders said the latest Home Builders' survey suggests housing starts may be down in October as well.

"Everything deteriorated," he said. "Sales activity, buyer traffic and builders' own expectations of future sales activity all eroded."

Fall brings rush to energy efficiency

(AP) - Some houses simply take more energy to run than others, but the worst of them can be made better by do-it-yourself efforts. A number of low-cost and no-cost energy conservation practices can help nibble sizable chunks off your heating bills.

You can begin by reducing your water heater temperature to 120 degrees Fahrenheit. Install water-flow restrictors on shower heads, install Insulation behind electrical outlets and switch plates and add insulation over the attic stairs.

A faucet leak, small as it may be, is an energy waster. The fix may be as simple as a new washer. An oftenoverlooked measure is vacuuming dusty baseboard heaters.

OTHER LOW-COST practices include lowering the thermostat to 55 degrees when your family is out of the house for four hours or more. Also, consider reducing the oil burner firing rate to the proper level after you've made your home more energy efficient by sealing the house shell.

A chart showing the energy-saving plan listing measures to reduce heat loss and cold air infiltration through the roof, walls, floor, windows and doors would include items like these:

Caulking, $50 in cost, $262 (firstyear savings), and two months (payback time). Weatherstripping: $20, $35, seven months. Interior storm windows: $230, $53, 455 years. Attic insulation: $60, $40, 1½ years. Foundation insulation: $400, $100, four years, Water heater insulation: $15, $30, six months. Costs and payback time can vary depending on your own situation, but this typical chart will give you a relative idea of the benefits you can expect.

SOME PRETTY simple but laborious jobs can pay anyone to learn how to do - jobs such as installing switch plate insulation and weatherstripping. Others, such as insulating an attic or, worse yet, an oulside wall, are really jobs for a professional even though some super-handy homeowners with lots of time at their disposal might be able to handle them.

Additional energy-saving measures that you may be able to handle, you, may include sloping the earth away from the house on all sides. This will keep out water and moisture so the heating equipment can work more efficiently, and caulking the joint between the basement wall and the wooden floor framing.

Architects debate usefulness of 'best' lists

By Doug Funke staff writer

If you want to start a good discussion among architects, just ask who is the greatest American architect of all time, the most influential living American architect and the best example of American architecture.

The American Institute of Architects, a professional association, surveyed some 800 members last summer and came up with some interesting results.

The top three individuals in the greatest ever category were Frank-Lloyd, Wright (1869-1959), Louis Henri Sullivan (1856-1924) and Henry Hobson Richardson (1838-1886). Wright, who designed more than 500 projects, was named by 99 percent of the respondents. His revolutionary residential work, Fallingwater in western Pennsylvania, headed the list of all-time American bestworks.

The University of Virginia, designed in 1826 by Thomas Jefferson, placed second in that category and the Chrysler Building in New York City, designed in 1929 by William van Alen, was third.

leoh Ming (I.M.) Pei, born in 1917, was chosen as the most influential living American architect. He also placed eighth on the all-time list.

PEI'S WORKS include the East Wing of the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. - which was 10th on the all-time list - expansion and modernization of the Louvre Museum in Paris and the Bank of China Tower in Hong Kong.

Robert Venturi and Charles Moore were rated the second and third most influential living architects. Venturi authored a book, "Complexity and Contradiction in Architecture," considered to be a standard Carne said. for the profession.

Erick Carne, a Plymouth architect who has practiced for nearly 40. years, agrees with the rankings of Wright and Fallingwater. He considers John Portman of Atlanta as the greatest living architect.

"He has had a great influence on design. American cityscape," Carne said. "I.M. "He designed a fabulous house, a doesn't contemporary house, probably in the wrong spot among colonials, on Sea" Island, Ga."

Renaissance Center.

"Great architecture meets the needs of the mass of people and influences people," Carne said. "It brings them shelter, grace and deof their mundane lives. It lets them see some art, some excitement, some awe."

TOP 10 LISTS probably aren't really fair, Carne agreed, but they do serve a purpose in getting people to think about architecture.

There may be a parks shelter in Wyoming that's wonderful for its purpose and a skyscraper in New York that's wonderful for its purpose. It's hard to match them up,"

Francis Bartlett, a Rochester archilect in practice since 1962, fluences people in general, Bartlelt doesn't like the idea of rankings. He also believes that the American Institute of Architects has bogged down in management detait in recent years rather than focusing on
