Marksman dies in accidental shooting

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Robert Plante's dream of competing on the 1992 Olympic Pistol Team ended tragically Sunday when he killed himself in an accidental shooting that stunned family members and friends who remembered him as the definitive role model for gun safety.

'He was a good marksman, and he was going to reach the top," his grandfather, Paul Plante, said Tuesday in Westland. "He was a good boy. This is terrible."

Those who knew Plante searched this week for answers to why he jokingly placed a pistol to his head and pulled the trigger at a house in Parker, Colo. He had gone there with two friends - members of the Spanish national shooting team — to buy a handgun.

Plante, a 29-year-old Westland native and a resident athlete at the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs since January 1990, was killed instantly.

"Such a foolish accident," his grandfather said. "I don't know what to say."

PLANTE'S PARENTS, Don and Jan, were not yet prepared to talk about the accident Tuesday afternoon.

Plante, who won a gold medal and set a match record at the 1990 U.S. Olympic Festival, was sitting at a table inspecting handguns when he placed a .45-caliber Colt automatic pistol to his head and pulled the trigger around 10 p.m. EST Sunday, said Capt. William Walker of the Douglas County Sheriff's Department-in Colorado. Plante had brought the gun with him, Walker said.

"He was loking around. We believe it was accidental," Walker said. "Everything in the investigation is consistent with it being an accidental death."

The sheriff's department said there were no early indications that the accident was alcohol-related. Results of blood tests had not been received Tuesday afternoon.

"It was a real tragic situation," Walker said. "The people on the U.S. Shooting Team were just dumbfounded. It's hard to explain, because he knew so much about guns. But sometimes familiarity breeds carelessness. That's human.

"I'm sure he thought the pistol was unloaded," Walker continued, "but unfortunately it wasn't."

BACK HOME, family members and friends mourned the death of the 5-foot-11. 175-pound athlete, who had won gold and bronze medals at this year's Mexico World Cup and silver and bronze medals at the 1991 I.S. Olympic Festiva.

AFTER GRADUATING from John Glenn, Plante attended Henry Ford Community College. His hobbies included water-skiing, fishing and working on computers and cars. He began shooting shotguns with his father

In a July, 1991, article in the Observer, Plante noted that, "I'm still climbing the ladder.''

Judge delays decision on recall drive

By Darrell Clem staff writer

A Wayne County Circuit Court judge Wednesday delayed a decision on a proposed injunction aimed at blocking a petition drive to recall three Wayne-Westland school board members.

Judge Kathleen MacDonald took the injunction under advisement Wednesday and set another hearing for 3 p.m. Friday, at which time she is expected to issue a ruling.

The court-ordered injunction to stop recall committee Chairman Steven Lind from collecting signatures on the petitions is being sought by board members Kathleen Chorbagian, Leonard Posey and Andrew Spisak - targets of the recall cam-

The board members also have filed a lawsuit in circuit court seeking to overturn an Oct. 28 decision by the Wayne County Elections Commission to approve the wording on the recall petitions.

The injunction, if granted, would block the petition drive until Mac-Donald rules on whether the elections commission's decision should be overturned.

O'Neill supporters blast school board

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Four Wayne-Westland school board members, blamed for forcing Superintendent Dennis O'Neill to retire, continued to draw heavy criticism Tuesday night from O'Neill supporters who lauded his leader-

Moreover, board member Laurel Raisanen was singled out and blasted for publicly stating earlier that she supports a recall effort against three of her peers — board members Kathleen Chorbagian, Andrew Spisak and Leonard Posey.

"I have never seen a sorrier bunch of people running this school district," Westland resident Maureen Boettcher sald. "This used to be the No. 1 school district around. Where does it rank now? In the pits.
"I'm appalled as a citizen,"

Boettcher added later.

Boettcher's remarks surfaced during the first board meeting held since O'Neill began a three-month medical leave on Nov. 4, citing hypertension that he blamed on the district's political upheaval. About 125 people attended the session.

VFW post remembers Pearl Harbor

Westland man survived attack

Little did the Westland serviceman know that the explosions marked the Dec. 7, 1941, Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor that killed 2,403 Americans and wounded 1,078 more, in what then-President Franklin D. Roosevelt called "a date which will live in infamy.'

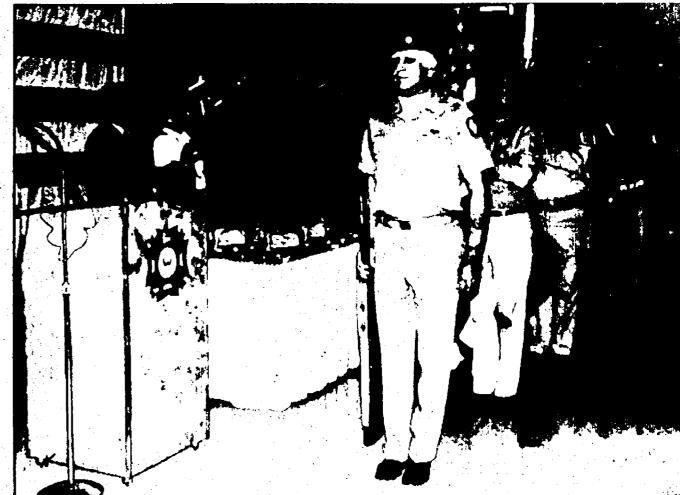

The memories came flooding back for Bannerman during a ceremony Thursday at the VFW Harris Kehrer Post 3323 in Westland to honor survivors of the Pearl Harbor attack. This year marks the at-tack's 50th anniversary.

"This is wonderful," he said of the ceremony, which drew a crowd of about 250 people.

"When I think back, it brings tears to my eyes," Bannerman said, recalling his war days. "I don't think I've cried for about five years."

U.S. Rep. William D. Ford, D-Taylor, came to Westland to present congressional medals of honorto Bannerman and 15 other veterans stationed in Pearl Harbor during the attack. Veterans from Westland, Garden City, Wayne and other cities were honored.

FORD, WHO served in the U.S. Navy from 1944-46, called the war "a real watershed" in Americans' lives. He recalled hearing sketchy radio broadcasts in which "Americans were led to believe for a while that (the Pearl Harbor attack) wasn't much of a raid and didn't do much damage." As people learned the truth and panie set in, rumors began surfacing that Japan was bombing the United States' west coast, he said.

Board members draw heat from O'Neill's supporters

O'Nelll announced last month that he will retire Aug. 31, amid pressure from board members Ralsanen, Vicki Welty, Fred Warmbler and President Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek. At Tuesday's meeting, Deputy Su-perintendent Thomas Svitkovich assumed O'Neill's dutlès.

Raisanen cited declining scores on student achievement tests and the district's financial woes as reasons for replacing O'Neill, a 31-year district employee named superintendent 71/2 years ago.

Boettcher countered Raisanen's remarks about test scores by asking: 'Do we blame the superintendent because our teachers may not be doing their job?"

WESTLAND RESIDENT Bonnie Schmidt accused Raisanen, Warmbier and Welty - who won their board seats in the June election — of forcing O'Neill's retirement "before said. "But they can't (run it)."

you have even given him a chance. "He's been an excellent superintendent. I, don't understand it,"

Schmidt said, adding later that O'Neill "should have been given a fair chance, because I don't think any of you would want the same thing done to you."

Welty reiterated her earlier views that the district needs a superintendent with "good, strong leadership and communication" skills, and she defended her vote last month to accept O'Neill's retirement. "I just vote what I think is right."

Warmbier also defended the board's action. "We called the shots," he said, "and we hope we called it right."

Board member Spisak, an O'Neill supporter, argued that board members who opposed O'Neill have failed to chart a direction for the district.

"If anybody on this board thinks they can run this district, I don't know what they're smoking," he she supports the effort because "local control was abused last year" when school board members sought a tax increase in four elections before it was finally approved. She also cited threats of program cuts, which came as teachers got an 11.9-percent pay raise over two years.

The tax campaign "went so deep into the heart of the community and into everybody's house and to their dining room tables," Raisanen said.

However, Schmidt accused Raisanen of falling to try to work with Chorbagian, Spisak and Posey and sald, "If that is an example we set for our children, it's a bad, sad ex-

Chorbagian called Raisanen's support for the recall campaign a "very, very low" public move.

Raisanen drew support, however, from local resident Michael Miller. "Laurel, I would like to thank you for being such an honest person," he

He attributed his skills, in part, to help from his father. "My dad definifely taught me everything I knew up to the point of becoming an international shooter," Plante told the Observer, adding later, "I look forward to winning as many medals as I can . . . I feel very confident. Aslong as I continue my trend of shooting, I will be one tough competitor."

At the time of his death, he was one of 30 contenders for a spot on the 1992 Olympic Pistol Team.

Although board members refute the language, Lind has vehemently defended it.

"We both feel strongly that our positions are correct," Abel said.

The petition states that during a Feb. 11 meeting, the board members "voted in favor of proposed cuts" that would have caused dramatic school program cuts, while approving teacher pay raises of 11.9 percent over two years.

James has said board members voted only to "inform the electorate" what the cuts would be if a school tax increase failed in June. It was approved.

Lind, however, has noted that the petition clearly states that the cuts were only "proposed."

The recall committee has not yet | Wella - 12200 started collecting signatures on the petitions.

Auditor suggests schools watch money more closely

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Wayne-Westland school officials should do a better job of monitoring the district's finances, an auditor suggested Tuesday.

Auditor Joseph Wentrack's recommendation came several weeks after the district emerged from the 1990-91 fiscal year with a $4.4-million surplus, despite earlier predictions that the district would be virtually. broke.

"You should be closer than you." were at the end of the year," said Wentrack, a Plante Moran auditing firm partner. His report came during a board session Tuesday.

.Some school officials have become frustrated at trying to forecast the district's financial picture. They blamed the state earlier this year for sending mixed signals about if and when - some portions of state ald would be released.

State aid that came late in the fiscal year - coupled with conserva- amount to $4.4 million.

tive spending measures - resulted in a $4.4-million surplus that angered some critics who accused the administration of lying about the district's finances.

Superintendent Dennis O'Neill's administration has strongly denied that it expected as large a surplus.

The controversy fueled the lingering debate about whether school officials should have sought a tax increase smaller than the 7.75-mill increase approved by voters on June

EVEN WITH the surplus, school officials have stressed that they would've had to slash school programs if the tax increase hadn't been approved.

On Tuesday, board member Laurel Raisanen also questioned whether the board needed to borrow $2.5 million in early June to pay bills, in view of the surplus. Again, the administration has said it didn't know then that the surplus would Wentrack called the move to borrow the $2.5 million "quite common" among school districts.

At one point, board member Andrew Spisak accused Raisanen of implying that the administration had hidden the surplus. "That's bull," he Raisanen responded by saying Spisak misinterpreted her concerns. She indicated that her concerns stemmed from her view that the administration should have kept closer tabs on the surplus as it grew.

Raisanen didn't say she believed the money was hidden and said, "I feel that what (information) came out to the public could be a little? more accurate."

On Tuesday, the board voted 6-0 to accept the audit report. Board President Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek was absent. However, the board still plans to continue budget and audit talks at a future session.

Schools promise better reading with new text

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Wayne-Westland school officials believe that a new elementary reading textbook series could dramatically improve students' reading skills and boost their state test scores.

Student response to the new books that teachers began using in their classrooms this year has been encouraging, school officials said, and teachers hope that parents will seize on the enthusiasm and urge their children to read more at home.

The Houghton Mifflin reading series differs from the district's previous reading program in several key

• Students are reading less in isolation and more in groups, and they're engaging in classroom discussions about the selections they read.

"It gives them an opportunity not only to grow with their peers - but also to grow individually," said James Edwards, executive director of instruction and planning.

• Increasingly, reading is being integrated with writing. In some cases, students are being encouraged to read stories, imagine plot changes and then write them down.

 Many teachers are discarding multiple-choice tests and placing more emphasis on written responses to test questions.

 Instead of studying isolated phonics and words, students are learning them from stories and passages that give them more meaning.

• Teachers are emphasizing more reading and writing in all subject areas.

Those are but a few of the changes that educators hope will improve students' reading skills and boost their self-confidence in the classroom. As youngsters begin to read more on their own, educators say, they will begin to succeed more at school and see their test scores and grades - improve.

In an effort to get parents involved, school principals are explaining the new reading series during parent-teacher association meetings, Edwards said. School officials hope that parents will become as enthused as teachers about the project. "Teachers have openly embraced this new series," said Noreen Blake,

Groups want out of school district

County Regional Educational Service Agency's board to make their neighborhoods part of the Plymouth Canton schools. But the county board blocked the attempt-after Wayne-Westland officials raised concerns about state aid being slashed.

"It would have an impact on every student in our district," Deputy Su-perintendent Thomas Svitkovich said last week. "I think we're looking at the benefits for everyone. We're trying to maintain a quality educational program for all of our kids."

Although Plymouth Canton officials have remained neutral on the secession attempt, they have said their schools are strapped for space because of an influx of residents in recent years.

In September, however, Plymouth Canton voters approved a $59.7-milllon bond issue that includes money for two new elementaries and several classroom additions to existing schools.

"IT WOULD seem logical to us that, with the new schools being built, the (Plymouth Canton) district would be able to accommodate us," McGuire said.

Perhaps, but plans for the new schools were based on enrollment projections within existing district boundaries, sald district spokesman Richard Egli. Moreover, the elementaries won't open until the 1993-94 school year.

As the secession controversy continues, Egli said, "Our position is still one of neutrality."

Canton parents have wanted to pull out of the Wayne-Westland district for years, McGuire said and the movement has gained steam amid the district's turmoil. A school tax increase won voter approval in June, after three failed attempts divided the community. And some board members have battled the district's administration, resulting in Superintendent Dennis O'Neill's plans to retire under pressure on Aug. 31. Canton parents have denied accusations from Wayne-Westland officials that the secession attempt stems from concerns about higher attendance areas. boost student MEAP scores, though

Dems hold off on endorsements

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Barb Johnson didn't know which Democratic presidential contender

Then, former California Gov. Jerry Brown stayed at her Livonia

"If I wasn't a Brown supporter before, I am now," said Johnson, a fonglime party activist.

That's what this week's Michigan visit by the six declared party hopefuls was all about. They came, they saw, and they tried to convince voters why they should be the man into replace George Bush.

Brown's visit to Johnson's house was prompted by his low budget, longshot campaign.

"HE'S NOT accepting any PAC money and an old, dear friend of mine who's working on his campaign asked if I could put him up," Johnson

Other candidates, including Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton, Iowa Sen. Tom Harkin, Nebraska Sen. Bob Kerrey, former Massachusetts Sen. Paul Tsongas and Virginia Gov. Douglas Wilder, joined Brown at the AFL-CIO convention in Detroit,

But from grassroots workers like Johnson, to party heavyweights, local Democrats were keeping theirminds - and options - open.

Perhaps they're waiting for the AFL-CIO to issue its own endorsement. Perhaps they're walting for a more glamorous candidate to enter. the field. Or perhaps they're beingmore cautious after backing a losing candidate-last time.

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara is among those who haven't decided on a candidate.

"HE HASN'T issued an endorsement yet, but I expect he will," press secretary Irma Clark sald. "He's not one to sit on the fence."

McNamara was in Amsterdam early this week discussing airport issues, Clark said. He was expected back in the country to host a Tuesday evening reception in Clinton's

The reception wasn't necessarily an endorsement.

"We previously held a reception for Tom Harkin," Clark said, "Mr. McNamara wants the voters of Wayne County to meet the candidates,"

Four years ago, McNamara and most other suburban party leaders came out early for Missouri Rep. Richard Gephardt. But Gephardt's anti-import message found much more favor with party leaders than voters in party caucuses.

Duggan pitches tax package

staff writer

Wayne County officials seeking state taxing authority for Tiger Stadium bonds will have to do some missionary work next door.

"I have a problem with their taxing non-residents," said Rep. Gordon Sparks, R-Troy, who voted against a bill enabling Wayne to raise $14-17 million a year.

'My guess is that well over half. the people (who will pay the taxes) are from outside (Wayne County). It's a joke - a ruse - to ask the people of Wayne County to vote to tar somebody else," Sparks said.

Sparks cast the lone hay vote in a House Appropriations subcommittee. Tuesday as it advanced, 5-1, a bill authorizing Wayne County commissloners to put a three-tax package on the spring ballot. But he may have, spoken for counties bordering Wayne whose residents will pay the taxes.

"This is on a fast track, and I resent it," said Sparks, adding he preferred a broader tax than Wayne County was asking.

WAYNE IS seeking state authorization to ask voter approval of a 1 percent tax on restaurant and bar food and beverages, 2 percent on motor vehicle rentals and 1 percent on hotels and motels.

If approved, the taxes would be levied countywide, collected by the state and turned over to the county. The revenue would finance a bond issue of $140 million over 25 to 30 years, said deputy county executive Michael Duggan.

Jay Rising, an attorney for the firm of Miller Canfield, the county's bond counsel, said the exise taxes

during

November

would "sunset" after the bonds are paid off.

The bond issue would pay for the "shell stadium," Rising said. If the Tigers install luxury "sky boxes," those revenues would pay for their construction costs.

Duggan spent three warm hours fending off objections and answering questions, emphasizing a new stadium's role in revitalizing downtown . "We did some polling and found a 75 percent negative reaction to Tom Monaghan (Tigers owner) and emotional attachment to (old) Tiger Stadium," Duggan said.

"The easiest thing for us would be to bash Monaghan. We could have made political points," said the chief aide to county executive Edward McNamara.

The enabling measure (House Bill-5300) specifies a location "within the boundaries of a downtown district,". pointing to a Woodward Avenue location near Detroit's theater district rather than a west side site near the present stadium, built in 1912.

THE BILL, sponsored by Rep. Curtis Hertel, D-Detroit, is getting unusual treatment.

Although it is a tax and local government measure, it was first sent to an appropriations subcommittee on regulatory agencies, headed by Rep. Morris Hood, D-Detroit.

Hood sald in an interview he views the bill as an aid to Detroit and Wayne County. He said he still wants to know who will get the construction and legal jobs.

After the hearing in Hood's subcommittee, the bill will go to the full Apropriations Committee, probably this week, then to the Taxation Committee before reaching the House

Some members still want to know whether food and souvenir concessions will be open to bidding.

NORTHVILLE resident Bill McLaughlin, president of the Metro Detroit (tri-county) Convention Bureau, said his group "historically has opposed hotel taxes for brick and mortar." The group opposed. Wayne's earlier 5 percent hotel-motel tax idea.

But the group backs the current plan to tax 1 percent of gross receipts, he said.

"Detroit's image is in a terrible state," said McLaughlin. "Hotels are depressed. Jobs, are in danger."

A former Commerce Department director and Republican state chairman in the Milliken administration, McLaughlin said, "People don't just come to a ballgame and go home. They come for an entire entertainment experience. We need help pretty badly."

Ted Gatzaros, Greek-born restaurateur and office owner in Detroit, said, "I can tell you from the receipts (in Greektown restaurants) what day there is a game at the Joe Louis Arena. I can tell what day there is a game at Tiger Stadium."

Detroit politicos also endorsed the OPPOSITION came from Elias Bros, executive William Morgan, representing the Michigan Restaurant Association.

"We are not opposed to a stadium in Detroit. We are opposed to all meal taxes - overwhelmingly," he said. "We haven't been able to see any linkage between a tax on a restaurant and a stadium."

State cuts prompt tuition hike at EMU

Tultion will increase $2.75-$8 per credit hour for winter semester classes at Eastern Michigan Uni-

Increases were approved this month by the EMU Board of Trus-

Tuition for lower-level classes is increasing from $67.25 to $70 for in-state students. Tuition for upperlevel resident undergraduates is increasing from $71.25 to $74.25 per credit hour.

Graduate students will pay $3.75 more per credit hour. The new fee is $100 per credit hour. The doctoral student surcharge will be maintained at 25 percent of the graduate fee.

New fultion rates for students who live outside Michigan and Ohio are: $178 for lower-level classes, $187 for upper-level classes and $235 for graduate classes.

The mid-year tuition increase follows a $1.6 million cut in state. appropriations.

Trustees had approved an earlier tultion increase in August. The combined increases will raise tuition by an estimated 9.9 percent; or $212 per year, for the average, EMU student.

Some EMU students will also pay more per semester in increased course fees. Fees were added to 201 EMU courses and raised in an additional 152 courses.

Report: Suburban polluters rarely stopped

staff writer

Western Wayne County industrial polluters benefit, while Detroit residents suffer, under flawed procedures at the city's wastewater treatment plant, a new report alleges.

Pollution control enforcement is too slow and city authority too weak, according to a report compiled by The Public Interest Research Group in Michigan, an Ann Arbor-based

"Basically, western Wayne County polluters are sending their pollution downstream," PIRGIM spokesman Andy Buchsbaum said. "We're saying the city of Detroit shouldn't besubsidizing Western Wayne County industry."

Detroit handles sewer inspections for most communities using its sewer system - including Livonia, Westland, Canton, Redford, Garden City, Plymouth and Plymouth Town

While the PIRGIM report said the city's pollution enforcement has improved, it said violators could wait years before facing penalties.

Worse, the report said, enforcement depends upon a Detroit ordinance, even if the polluter is outside the city.

If there's a flaw in the system, Fisher said, it's in vague guidelines from the Michgian Department of man, however, denied allegations Natural Resources and federal Environmental Protection Agency.

The guidance we get from the "Everybody is inspected the DNR and EPA is almost zero," he same," said David Fisher, assistant said.

PIRGIM, and the environmental law center gave the Detroit system an overall grade of C-minus in its efforts to curb toxic pollutants,

ON THAT point, city officials and PIRGIM apparently agree. The report also said the state and federal agencies should help address problems in the Detroit system.

In addition to finding fault with and legal authority, it also criticized the lack of limits on such pollutation. as PCBs, mercury and toxic metals It also criticized an alleged lack - public-input-in-enforcement-declara

While Buchsbaum said treatment plants in Chicago and Muskegon do a better job on controlling pollution, he said it was difficult to compare the Detroit system with any other. "We're talking about the second largest system of its kind in the world," he said. "There are an enormous number of industries using the system."

The report was billed as the first analysis of treatment plant records ever compiled by an outside agency.

The program involves a Bahamas Cruise and has been designated as the First Annual "Westland Chamber of Commerce Cruise For DARE." The chamber has reserved space for 16 couples to travel as a group on a cruise to the Bahamas on March 27, 1992. One trip, paid for by the chamber, will be awarded as a prize in a raffle to benefit the DARE program. The DARE officers and the chamber are now selling the raffle tickets with all of the proceeds going to DARE.

For each couple that signs up for the cruise beyond 15 couples, the chamber of commerce will get a free trip for two. The chamber will donate money received for the free trips to DARE. In addition, Westland Travel, which is handling all the arrangements, has pledged a donation to DARE for each couple that goes on the cruise.

Chamber president Fred Mena, said the membership is very excited about this project since it will produce so many benefits. He said the DARE program will have more funds to continue and maybe upgrade its efforts which will in turn help the community.

Firefighter hopefuls display their mettle

Ninety-three hopeful firefighters underwent physical rigors Saturday as the Westland Fire Department sponsored a test that will determine

The firefighters climbed ladders, pulled hoses, ran a mile and carried dummies as part of the exercise at John Glenn High School.

The physical agility test will help determine a list of firefighters who could be hired as the department needs new employees, said Westland firefighter Eric Smith.

The men carried a 125-pound dummy, pretending to rescue it during a fire emergency. They also climbed a fire truck ladder and had to drag hoses to show their skills as firefighters.

Council election

Voters display independence

ESTLAND VOTERS demonstrated last week that they still maintain a politically divided personality and a streak of independence.

Those were seen clearly in the city council election in which two incumbents were re-elected and two challengers elected to join the council

The winners by large margins were challenger Glenn Anderson, who finished first, and incumbent Charles Pickering, a close second. Political veteran Thomas Brown was third, just a few votes ahead of challenger Sharon Scott.

The surprises were that Anderson finished a strong first and that only 274 votes separated the other six candidates.

That demonstrated that many voters giplunked," or voted for less than four candidates on the ballot.

The list of winners and losers also reflected that while some voters like to support political slates, many others don't.

For example, Mayor Robert Thomas, who wasn't on the Nov. 5 ballot, supported Anderson, Pickering and Artley. Voters liked the first two and felt that Artley should be retired after nearly 15 years in office. Artley finished sixth, but was only 128 votes behind fourth-place finisher Scott.

Artley was the victim of two political dynamics in the election.

ONE IS that local voters — like those across the country - are bombarded by network TV anchors about a lack of political ethics and proposals in other states which are designed to limit the terms of public officials to avoid persons staying in power for a lifetime.

The other was more localized — and dirty.

In several campaign fliers distributed in the last week of the campaign, Artley was clearly targeted for special treatment by his opponents and their supporters for what was really a nonissue — his son working for private contractors who do work for the city.

The council election showed that local voters have a streak of independence in picking and choosing candidates.

The move was so low that one last minute flier by candidates Scott, David Cox and William Ziemba even brought up that the city's senior resources director's husband is also the district court administrator and she had a daughter who once worked as a court probation counselor.

In reality, those criticisms are pretty mild compared to the longstanding family ties among other city employees.

While polls show that a majority of voters nationally object to "negative" political advertising, the truth is that it is usually effective. Those same voters are quick to believe anything negative about an elected official.

AS A CANDIDATE, councilman-elect Anderson suggested an ethics committee. A good start would be to clean up the political garbage at election time so it doesn't burden the city's rubbish contractor or recycling center.

With all the major issues facing the community - retail overdevelopment, generating new property tax revenues to pay for city services in the face of a state-imposed assessment freeze and the traffic problems near Westland Center - there must be other things for candidates to discuss other than where relatives are working.

Hopefully, voters will remember that local political campaigns must be cleaned up. They will get their next chance in the spring when the upcoming Wayne-Westland Board of Education election will be held, followed by state House of Representative and county commission primaries and general elections.

A class from Redford Township gathers around a flame during a tour of the Holocaust Center. The Legislature is looking at restoring funding for the center cut by Governor Engler. For an editorial on the subject, see the lower left corner of this page.

Reflections on death with dignity, caring

MY MOTHER-in-law died six weeks ago. Effectively paralyzed and sightless from a severe stroke, she vegetated for three years in a nursing home in Ann Arbor.

When she first was admitted, she was saddened and depressed at her predicament. Later she was angry. Around a year ago, the tone changed. "I don't want to spend another birthday in here," she said repeatedly. "Can't you find a doctor to give me a pill? I just want to get on with it."

It broke my heart to talk with this brave woman who knew she never would recover and who wanted to die with what was left of her dignity

I was never able to find that right doctor. She had another stroke, lapsed into a coma and died quietly. But like many, many others who have faced - are facing - the same situation, I am left wondering why our society cannot find a way for terminally ill or incapacitated people who wish to die when and as they

ONE REASON: This is a very complicated, ethically confused and politically charged issue.

Another practical reason: Those who could help the process - doctors, nurses, hospital and nursing home staff - are terrified of being sued, even in states like Michigan which have no law explicitly forbidding assisted suicide of the terminal-

So the dignity of those who wish to die but cannot, the ambivalent anguish of loving families and the ethics and compassion of the medical profession are all held hostage to the threat of litigation. So what else is

WHAT TO MAKE of Dr. Jack Kevorkian and his most recent as sisted suicides in Oakland County?

If I were prosecutor, I would be looking pretty carefully into whether Dr. Kevorkian's patients were in fact terminally ill. Assisting those already dying is one thing; killing two very unhappy but not terminal patients is quite different.

Beyond that, my own anguish and ambivalencey on this matter are violated by Dr. Kevorkian's loose cannoning and his lawyer's publicity seeking. Together they have succeeded in seriously compromising thoughtful and serious consideration of this complicated ethical issue in Michigan.

SEN. FRED Dillingham, R. Fowlerville, wants to frame the discussion as a criminal matter. The Senate has passed his bill to make assisted suicide a four-year felony.

Other legislators are setting up a special study panel of thoughtful people, which Michigan Right to Life charges is a "stall."

So we have a subject which is uniquely personal and intensely intimate now becoming the subject of a politically charged debate in the Legislature. What a shame!

Fortunately, because of last week's vote in the death-with-dignity referendum in Washington state, consideration of this issue is notgoing to be limited to Dr. Kevorklan's antics or the rocket scientists in the Legislature.

"Grandma's been talking to Grandpa, and Grandpa's been talking to the kids and the grandkids. said a 71-year-old supporter of the initiative. "It's a dinner table topic now like never before."

Initiative opponents agreed. "There are real arguments on both sides, and I can't overstate the importance of debating it openly said a medical ethicist.

So let's debate the right to die with dignity. Let's not frame it as a criminal matter or as a publicity stunt or as a partisan squabble. Len's face it like the thoughtful, caring allults we try to be when we confront Weath at close range.

Decency fights for funding

TO MATTER WHAT ACTION the state House takes this week when it votes on restoring partial funding for The Holocaust Center, the central point of the issue — unbridled gross ignorance born of callous budget cuts — remains.

It all started a couple weeks ago. Guiltless John Engler, fresh from his latest triumph over the disabled, poor and needy, a triumph that turned thousands out of their homes just in time for the Thanksgiving holidays, was riding a wave of his brand of victory. So, having already beat up on the defenseless, Engler turned back to the arts and cultural sciences.

Many wondered what he could do to top his other performances. The Man From Mount Pleasant already had cut state funding for the Detroit Institute of Arts, while quietly restoring a similar funding cut for the Grand Rapids Museum. Any doubt of Engler's blind loyalty to outstate interests and dislike of southeast Michigan was erased with that move.

The Holocaust Center in West Bloomfield, and its $110,000 allocation from the state, was to be Engler's next target. He wiped out the grant as part of his continuing clumsy effort at budget

He made no friends with this latest move.

THE HOLOCAUST Center used that grant to let people, particularly thousands of students, tour the center free instead of paying admission. Rabbi Charles Rosenzveig, director of the center, said he suspected a partial cut was coming, but was stunned when the grant was eliminated.

It seems Engler, after turning on the arts and the poor, decided the state didn't need to fund this chapter in history. His move shows a cold disregard for all those who fought against the Holocaust and for those who sustain this center as a grim reminder to keep history from repeat-

Michigan's Senate, sensing Engler had really blown it this time, last week passed and sent a bill to the House that would restore $50,000 in state funding to the center. Without that restored grant, West Bloomfield's Holocaust Center was the only museum of its kind in the United States not receiving some kind of state support.

The Senate vote was 24-11. Senators David Honigman and Jack Faxon, respectively of West Bloomfield and Farmington Hills, led the charge to restore the funding. Those who voted against the funding restoration are worth noting: Sens. Arthurhultz, DeGrow, DiNello, Emmons, Gast, Geake, McManus, Posthumus, Pridnia, N. Smith and Wartner.

Those who pushed through funding for the center, in the Senate and House, are to be congratulated for seeing this cut in its true light and showing the human decency to fight it.

And those who sided with Engler will be remembered as those who thought the best way for Michigan to prosper was by cutting its job opportunities, its obligation to its needy citizens, and its ties to rich artistic and cultural heritages.

Don't limit auto health care benefits

This week in Lansing legislators are debating changes to the present No-Fault law in Michigan, Proposed changes will substantially reduce the medical benefits provided by your automobile insurance policies. The vote will be before Nov. 15.

Presently, if you are injured in an automobile accident in Michigan you are entitled to all medical and rehabilitation services deemed reasonable and necessary for the remainder of your life. Rehabilitation can turn tax burdens into tax payers.

Hospital bills alone after a serious accident can be as much as $250,000 or more. Under proposed changes, ceilings on medical expenses would be instituted in order to reduce your premium. If you select a celling of $250,000, minimal, or no, funds would remain to provide for your rehabilitation and care that may be needed for the rest of your life. Can you count on the public welfare system to take care of you? Would your family be able to bear the burden?

THE FACT IS the savings to you on your automobile policy would only be approximately $42 per year if you select the above limit rather than lifetime medical coverage. Our youth and underprivileged populations, those most likely to choose the least expensive option, are those in the highest risk group for catastrophic injury. "Across the nation Michigan No-Fault is often cited as one of the best auto insurance systems in the country . . . 17th in average premiums nationally... only 42nd in rate increases in the last five years . . . compared to (rate increases of) 21 percent in California, 31.5 percent in New Jersey, and 36.2 percent in Massachusetts (over the last live years)," said Patrick Templeton of the Automobile Club of Michigan at a January 1990 Cost Containment Conference at Rainbor Rehabilitation Centers in Ypsilanti.

Only 13 percent of your current premium is for health care costs. Thirty percent is for insurance administrative overhead.

There are ways to cut insurance costs without limiting health care benefits. Managed care and coordination of benefits are two such ways.

Don't let our legislators give away the best insurance deal in the country. Call the following legislators today: Representative Alma Stallworth, (517) 373-2276; Senator Paul Warner, (517) 373-7946; Senator Dan DeGrow, (517) 373-7708. Tell them to vote against Senate Bill 154 as pro-

Story unfair to defendant

To the editor:

As a former news reporter in the Wayne-Westland area, I was very saddened to read the graphic child sexual abuse story in your paper.

What purpose did the story serve? While these charges are indeed serious, our legal system says everyone is innocent until proven guilty. But your explicit and detailed account of a perfunctory hearing process clearly demonstrates a lack of sensitivity on your part, and forever creates a cloud around the parties involved. These are not public figures. They are private citizens confronting a very difficult personal situation. They are our neighbors, our friends and our hearts go out to all of them. They do not deserve to be ridiculed, victimized or held up for prurient speculation. Regardless of the outcome, there will be enough suffering and sorrow. to last the participants a lifetime. That suffering should not be compounded by your sensationalizing of a truly tragle situation.

Your story served no useful purpose, except, of course, to put your paper in a class with the supermarket tabloids

After testimony about Penn's public speaking, the court ordered the jury to return a verdict of "guilty of unlawful assembly." But the jury found Penn guilty only of "speaking in Gracechurch Street." Such defiance outraged the judge who ordered the jury jailed indefinitely without food or water.

The abuse of the jury was common practice to assure an acceptable verdict. The jury remained adamant and finally the frustrated judge gave in and accepted the decision.

Lobby muddies health care legislation

"COLEMANITIS" is infecting Republican state senators.

Named for Detroit Mayor Young, "Colemanitis" is the tendency to shroud things in secrecy when the public wants to know what government is doing to them.

If the police department slush fund is misused, hide the books. If the economic development department sold $42 million worth of equipment for 5 cents on the dollar. hide it. If you want to meet with other big wheels but don't want to altend a SEMCOG meeting, hold a secret four-man pow-wow.

When someone tries to find out, accuse 'em of badmouthing your

THE SENATE finished up its 26bill "affordable health care" package last week.

And one dandy way to keep poor folks healthy is to shut down Department of Licensing and Regulation investigations, records and hearings by muddying Michigan's twin "sunshine laws" - the Freedom of Information Act and the Open Meetings Act.

Why the obsession with secrecy in the public's business? Senate Majori-Leader Dick Posthumus of Alto sald, well, the lawyers have it.

In other words, two wrongs make

Sen. John J.H. Schwarz, a Battle Creek physician, added that the final vote would be public. Besides, media publicity would drag doctors' names through the mud.

DOUBLE WRONG, of course.

Richard.

In the first place, the "sunshine laws" aren't media laws but a guarantee that public records and public body meetings are public. Rarely are medical discipline hearings reported in the mass media.

What's more disturbing is the Legislature's propensity to close the books and meetings whenever the plutocracy fears its undeserved "image" will be tarnished.

First lawyers. Then chief executives of schools colleges and cities; get secret evaluations by the boards we elect. Now the medical brotherhood wants to play hide-n-sneak in the name of "affordable health

Financiers don't have such protection. You read all about George Bush's son and the son of the founder of Michigan National Bank. But you have to wonder when they'll demand secrecy.

CPAs could be next. So could Realtors. Maybe newspapers being sued for libel should demand court records and proceedings be sealed. until the Court of Appeals votes.

IT'S IRONIC that these shenanigans occur as we observe the 200th anniversary of the Bill of Rights and the 215th of the Declaration of Independence.

How soon we forget the colonists' complaint that their accused were taken overseas for trial so their friends and neighbors couldn't keep tabs on what government was doing

And they remembered the British Privy Council's "star chamber" proceedings in the 16th and 17th centuries: secret trials, forced confessions, torture, cruel punishment.

Today the fear is that regulatory boards are controlled by the interests they're supposed to regulate and will be too lenient rather than too harsh. Under the GOP Senate bills, you won't find out the allegations, you won't learn what the investigator and hearing officer found, you won't know the substance of the problem - just the final vote, some!

Historically, Republican legislators have supported (attacked) the "sunshine laws" about the same as Democrats.

In the "affordable health care" debate, however, 18 of 20 GOP senators voted yes, providing the bulk of the 24 to 25 votes for secrecy. Two noteworthy exceptions: Dave Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, nay, Bill Faust, D-Westland, yes.

The rest of the package had some merit. Too bad the hide-n-sneak lobby persuaded the party of Teddy, Ike and Bill Milliken to muddy it.

Tim Richard reports reglarly on the local implications of state and regional events.

Develop alliances to get through college years

QUESTION: My son is having a very difficult time in college. He seems lost in this, his freshman, year. Have you any suggestions we can use to help him?

ANSWER: Yes. The best advice I can give your son is to develop mutually beneficial alliances with fellow students, advisers and faculty members. Struggling students often make the mistake of "trying to go it alone" in the big university setting. Many fail, many develop severe emotional problems.

Harvard University recently completed a five-year study on this issue. New university students who suffered the most, both academically and emotionally, were those who signed up for all large classes (up to 500 in a class), sat in the back rows of the auditorium, went back to their room to "go it alone." They developed little, if any, identity with classmates, let alone professors.

Students who survived and prospered formed or were part of study groups, shared what they thought they heard from the lectures with others in their group, quizzed each other on pertinent issues, set up group meetings with their instructor for clarification of lecture material and made use of their academic adviser

Agreed, this is difficult to pull off in a large university, but it can be done with persistence and a realization that the student is paying for those services and is entitled to them. ...

DON'T BUY the, "I can't meet with you . . . I'm a too busy professor." He/she earns a living off your son's tuition. Besides most professors do make themselves available if asked, but they are not mind readers for those students who retreat to their rooms with a sense of hopelessness. And, frankly, there exist a few students who view their professors umbilical cords.

Based on my university teaching experience, many high school graduates have little or no problem "going It alone." However, there are some who simply become overwhelmed (especially in their freshman year).

They are too embarrassed to tell their tuition-paying parents they are falling behind, that they are hurting inside and about to throw in the towel. Indeed, the drop-out rate for college freshmen/women can be as high as 40 percent in some institu-

An interesting aspect of the Harvard study was that it found undergraduate students learn best from professors who continually track progress through frequent mini-tests

Professors who give the one massive test at the end of the semester simply do not understand the loss of learning without intermittent reinforcement theories, don't care, or are simply lazy. They give one test a semester to keep from being overworked! In my opinion, this is the poorest teaching format in existence for undergraduate students.

WHAT CAN professors do? The Harvard study says:

• Professors should help set up small study groups, but require that all assigned readings be completed before the group meets. The meetings are for clarification, not to reteach those who slept through the

• Where writing assignments are required and when appropriate, professors should ask students to photocopy their paper and distribute to the entire class. This sharing experience has always worked well during 'Show and Tell" in kindergarten and works just as well at the higher ed level. I used it at the university leveland students responded very favorably.

 Professors should encourage some cooperative learning rather than a total emphasis on competitiveness. Go to a G.M., Ford or Chrysler engineering department. The engineers are always sharing what's on their drafting boards, critiquing each other, helping each other.

A major problem is that many university students do not feel comfortable setting appointments and talking informally with some faculty members. Some professors, many I've known, simply do not make themselves accessible. Often they are "too busy" consulting, writing articles for journals, seeking grants. That's a phenomenon, however, many professors can't control if they want pay increases and tenure.

ALL THIS notwithstanding, it is the aggressive student, with a need, who ties down the busy professors. through sheer determination and perseverance who will survive.

Have your son, who seems a bit of a loner, identify someone in his class who is outgoing, who likes people, whom people like, who is on top of the subject. Have him ask that person if he/she would help set up a study group. I guarantee you it works! My sons and daughter followed this format through high school and college. We had as many as 15 bodies in our front room, preparing for math and biology tests; when they were in high school.

Canton blitzes Spartans

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Coaches always say defense wins championships, and that's why the Plymouth Canton girls basketball team is in the Western Lakes Activi-. ties Association final.

The Chiefs had a much better defense than the first time they played Livonia Stevenson and defeated the host Spartans 56-33 Tuesday in the WLAA semifinals.

Canton will attempt to win its third league title in four years when it plays defending champ Plymouth Salem at 7 p.m. Saturday in the Sa-

The Chiefs won consecutive championships in 1988-89, defeating the Rocks 54-39 in the final two years ago. Salem, the top seed in the tournament, beat Canton 51-47 earlier this season.

"The conference championship needs to be between the two best teams, and we were the top seeds going in," Canton coach Bob Blohm said. "We want to play the best team. Let's go out and see who wins BLOHM WANTED to enjoy and focus on Tuesday's win in which the Chiefs (16-3) held Stevenson (14-5) to its lowest scoring total of the season.

The Spartans, who pushed Canton to the limit before losing 70-67 in an earlier game, had scored 36 points against Salem and Livonia Franklin. "They worked their game plan real well and deserved to win," Stevenson coach Chuck Hebestreit sald. In the previous meeting, the Spartans had four players in double figures. Teresa Sarno had 28 points, Mo Drabicki 12, Karen Groulx 13 and Lori Shingledecker 14. In the re-match, Sarno had nine, Drabicki seven, Julie Martin six and Groulx five against Canton's person-to-person defense. "Defensively, we did a great job keeping them from doing the things they wanted to do, and we made them work to get good scoring opportunities," Blohm said. "I wondered how we could stop them (after the first game). We did a better job of getting in position and playing the ball. We anticipated very well. The kids went after the ball, and I was really pleased with that."

THE SPARTANS had been playing man defense but went to a zone made two free throws with no time in an attempt to stop Canton from scoring in the post. But the Chiefs foiled that strategy by shooting well

Junior center Stephanie Gray saw her scoring total cut in half from the first game but still led Canton with 14 points. She had balanced support with Amy Westerhold scoring 12, Alyson Noune and Britta Anderson eight aplece and Christie Saffron

"We wanted to keep Gray off the boards and force them to beat us from the perimeter," Hebestreit said. "In the first game, they had 41 points inside (Gray 28 and Kelly Holmes 13). We wanted to take that "They were patient and worked it around the perimeter. They were more patient than us, so they had people shooting jumpers wide open while we forcing shots a bit."

Canton jumped in front 9-0, but the Spartans got it down to 15-11 at the end of the first quarter. Drabicki on the clock to stay within eight at halftime, 29-21.

But the Chiefs began the third quarter hitting five of seven shots and taking a 39-23 lead. Gray and Anderson had two field goals each during the run. Canton shot 54 percent (7-of-13) in that period and led 43-28 at the end. Stevenson made three of 10 shots for 30 percent.

"WE SHOT THE ball real well, which is hard to do here," Blohm said. "It's a hard place to score because of the lights (and depth perception).

"We had some good scoring opportunities. Noune and Gray are good shooters from the perimeter. When we didn't hit the first one, we had some seconds. We had nice balance between the perimeter and inside

"We rebounded well, which I thought would be a problem tonight, because they have good size and mobility."

Pats fall, 61-58

By Bred Emons staff writer

Plymouth Salem got out of a tight spot Tuesday, earning its third straight trip to the Western Lakes Activities Association girls basketball finals with a 61-58 semifinal victory over Livonia Franklin.

The Rocks, sporting a 15-4 overall record, will be gunning for their second straight WLAA crown Saturday against rival Plymouth Canton (16-3). Game time is 7 p.m. Saturday at

"With any team you have under siege, doubt always creeps into your mind," said Plymouth Salem coach Fred Thomann, whose club led by as many as 11 points early in the third quarter before Franklin made a run. "But I was pleased with the fact that we answered their baskets with a basket of our own, particularly down the stretch."

Franklin, down 32-21 at halftime before cutting the deficit to 47-42 after three quarters, made a furious fourth-quarter rally behind the scoring of senior guard Dawn Warner (game-high 37 points).

Her basket with 4:25 remaining tied it at 51-all and her three-point shot, one of four on the night, with 3:22 to play, gave the Patriots a 54-53 léad.

SALEM'S CYNDI PLATTER (13 points) countered with a bucket just 15 seconds later to make it 55-54 in favor of the Rocks, who never relinquished the lead despite some anxlous moments in the final minute.

nailed two free throws to pull Franklin to within one, 57-56, but Salem's catalyst all night, 6-foot-1 Darcie Miller (26 points), hit an off-balance eight-footer with 29 seconds to play, increasing the margin to three.

Myryah Shea then gobbled up a Warner miss with nine seconds remaining, converting the rebound for two points, drawing the Patriots to within 59-58.

The Patriots' Patty Shea (nine points) then fouled Miller with seven seconds to go.

The Salem center missed the front-end of a one-and-one, the fourth in a row for the Rocks in the final period. But Platter grabbed the rebound, only to be tied up by Frank. lin's Lisa Craven.

The jump-ball possession arrow pointed Franklin's way with four seconds left.

Forced to go the length of the floor, Patriot coach Dan Freeman used his final timeout to diagram a Trying to make a long pass to Shea. Craven was called for stepping on the inbound line. The turnover gave the ball back to Salem.

Guard Christy Parimucha (11 points) was immediately fouled. She converted both free throws with three seconds remaining, sealing the At the 55-second mark, Warner win for the Rocks.

WE WERE TRYING to 'deke' with Dawn by going long to Patty, and she was there," Freeman said. "We knew they'd overplay Dawn. We were going to her if she was open. It was something we drew up right in the huddle. But it was my fault, if any, for not coming up with something beforehand. It was not her (Craven's) fault."

The Rocks, once again, worked over the smaller Patriots on the

"Our inside players played well and obviously that's the strength of our team." Thomann said. "Darcie came through when we needed some buckets and Emily (Giuliani) went to the line and hit some big free throws. Platter also hit some big buckets.

"And in all fairness to our guards (Parimucha and Leslie Gotts), they had a tough task, but I thought they weathered it nicely.

The 5-foot-7 Warner, who had her problems shooting (10 of 31 from the field) against a smothering Salem defense, began opening things up midway through the third quarter by posting up inside. (She had 26 second-half points.)

"One of the contributing factors (to Franklin's comeback) was that they were conscious Dawn just about every trip down the floor," Thomann said. "We were able to hold them down a little bit, but not enough to stop the onslaught.

"It was an outstanding high school game by two outstanding teams. Dawn certainly helped stake her claim to Miss Basketball, and I think

Payne punishes Kronk opponent

By Neal Zipser staff writer

Craig Payne is trying to lose weight, but on Tuesday night the 27-year-old heavyweight boxer from Livonia ate up Ken McCants at the Fight Night at the Palace.

Payne, who in 1985 quit boxing after winning his only professional bout, ballooned at one time to more than 350 pounds working in the construction business. But against McCants, a fighter who trains out of Kronk Gym in Detroit, he showed signs of his old self after . do some cheering for McCants. weighing in at 269.

Payne began his comeback on July 16 with a decision win over K. Porter in Lansing.

"He's on schedule," said Paul Soucy, Payne's manager of 13 years. "He has to continue losing weight and the more he loses, the quicker he'll get."

Payne's reflexes may not be as quick as Soucy would like, but he didn't delay in finishing off McCants, whose professional record fell to 2-1. From the opening bell, Payne pummeled his 30-year old counterpart with several combinations to the body.

PAYNE CONTROLLED the fight even though McCants had a 15-inch reach advantage.

After Payne easily won the first round, McCants' fatigue began to show. As Payne stood in his corner between the rounds, McCants tried to catch his breath in his corner and was a little late coming out for the second round bell.

McCants had a couple small flurries of jabs, but none affected Payne. Just prior to the end of the round, ayne connected on a left hook and followed that with a right, spinning around McCants on the canvas.

The third round started slowly but with 1:45 remaining, Payne began his final onslaught of punishing blows. A right hook knocked McCants' mouth guard halfway out of his mouth. With the ropes holding,

McCants failed to get up at the count of 10 and for a while it looked like he may not get up at all. With manager David "Sugar" Shoulders' help, McCants wobbled to his corner while the crowd cheered wildly replays of the knockout on the overhead scoreboard. An unblemished Payne, however, asked the crowd to

"McCants just doesn't have the experience Craig does," Shoulders said. "I've known Craig for quite a while and the fight went like I expected it to. He's just got to lose some weight."

"HE NEVER HURT me," Payne sald, "I didn't know anything about him other than he was 2-0 and he put his pants on one leg at a time. He was a good fighter and it was a pleasure fighting him.

"We've had our ups and downs and have been through the good times and the bad. People said we wouldn't make it and that we were pipe dreamers. Well, look down the pipe now."

Payne knows to become a legitimate contender he has to continue lighting and get down to 235 pounds, His next match is against Robert Smith in Wisconsin on Nov. 29. Eventually, Payne hopes to get another match with Tyrell Biggs, now a professional who split two bouts with Payne during the 1984 Olympic Trials.

Payne had an 87-8 amateur record, fighting out of the Livonia Boxing Club, but Biggs earned the Olympic borth and won the super heavyweight gold medal. "Tell him (Biggs) to be ready - I'll retire him," said Payne, who as an amateur also beat Mike Tyson and three-time Olympic gold medalist Teofilo Stevenson of

Madonna resurrecting hoop program

By C.J. Risak staff writer

The task confronting Bill Potter seemed monumental: First, resurrect Madonna University's women's basketball program, which was suspended for a year due to a rash of injuries, and second, transform it into something it had never been before - a winner.

Potter had never been the head coach of a collegiate program, so rebuilding a team from scratch wasn't the only thing new to him. However, Potter did bring some positive credentials with him: He was an assistant coach for Oakland Community College's women's team for nine seasons, during which the Lady Raiders won or shared seven Eastern Conference titles.

On Friday, the Lady Crusaders will embark on their quest; and Potter is feeling very good about it. Surprisingly good, in fact.

"It's been fun," he said. "It really is going better than I thought. I couldn't ask for a better group."

WHICH MAKES his expectations for the coming season high. "I think playoffs," he said, in earnest.

If Madonna does make it to the four-team playoffs, it will be the first time in school history. And it will also make Potter seem like a miracle worker.

He doesn't claim to be. As far as recruiting, he said, "I got lucky with OCC," and "When I got Marianne Ervin, she talked to the three others from Divine Child and got them to

Combined with three returnees from Madonna's 1989-90 team. Potter had his team. And, he insists, these aren't leftovers, players nobody else wanted. Five are juniors and seniors, so there is experience.

The quality begins with his only senior - 5-foot-8 off-guard Stephanie Niebauer (from Romeo HS), who played for Potter at OCC. During her sophomore season at OCC, Niebauer led the NJCAA in three-point shooting accuracy, making 62.3 percent. She played at University of Detroit last season after Madonna's program was cancelled, but got a waiver and transferred back to Ma-clock and we're down one, we'll be going to Steph. They're going to have to stop her.'

Niebauer won't be Madonna's only weapon, however, Joining her in Potter's three-guard offense will be 5-8 junior Lyndell Ingalls (Gladstone) at point guard. Ingalls played a year at Northern Michigan before enrolling at Madonna. "She's a good passer with leadership ability," said

The third guard is 5-5 junior Kim Kibbey (Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes), another OCC product. A solid perimeter shooter, Kibbey will help keep opposing defenses from concentrating on Niebauer, sald Potter. Her defense is a plus, too.

Under the basket, the Crusaders will have a pair of 6-footers: junior Cheri Sangregorio (Birmingham Groves and OCC) and freshman Lori Creten (Gladstone). Sangregorio will be counted on for rebounding and interior defense; Creten will be looked to for a bit of everything.

"I see nothing but great things for her, she is so talented," said Potter. of Creten. "She runs the floor well; plays defense well, and she's very coachable."

ONE OF the high points for Madonna is depth. "We won't be hurt at all when we put the substitutes in," he said. "They first and second teams are so close, they're interchangeable."

The bench starts with 5-6 sophomore guard Jill Burt (East Jordan), another holdover from the previous Madonna regime who will provide firepower and depth. Michelle Krashovetz (from Canton/Divine Child) is a 5-2 freshman defensive stalwart who will back up Ingalis at point guard.

Ervin, the 5-10 freshman forward from Divine Child (and Plymouth), and Karen Sangregorio (Cheri's twin sister), a 6-0 junior forward (Groves and OCC), will share time with Creten and Cherl Sangregorio. There are two others with Divine

Child_connections: 5.3 freshman walk-on guard Samantha Yesh, whom Potter said will see playing time, and 5-2 freshman guard Jeanette Rioux (from Livonia), who won't be eligible before January due to academic requirements:

POTTER'S TEAM has something few first-year teams possess: famillarity. All have played with at least two teammates previously, and several have played for Potter before.

There are weaknesses, though. Ingalls, Burt, Creten and Krashovetz haven't played in nearly two seasons; It will take them a while to get the feel back.

And: "When we want to play defense, we play it well," said Potter, "but we do have some lapses. I still think we have to improve our defense. And we could have some problems rebounding. We're going to have to do the little things well, like block people out."

The top team in the district is defending champ Aquinas, which returns everyone. Potter isn't predict-

SC men's cage team freshmen dominated

By C.J. Risak staff writer

There will be a different brand of basketball employed by Schoolcraft

College's men's team this season. The Ocelots have been a run-andgun unit the last few seasons, with guys like Randy Watters and Kwesi McGill popping in three-pointers from all over.

Coach Dave Bogataj figures his current team, with both Watters (he starts attending Eastern New Mexico State in January) and McGill (at West Virginia Wesleyan) gone, will still score. But the points will come differently.

"I've told people we'll have a three-point game, but it'll be a different kind of three-point game," said Bogataj, who guided the Ocelots to a 14-15 record — 5-11 in the Eastcrn Conference - last season. "I don't know what kind of three-point shooting we'll have."

What SC will have is a post-up game. At least four of his players can play in the paint, which means the Ocelots will be going inside much

IT ALSO MEANS their biggest weakness of a season ago - rebounding - should be improved. "We can win four or five more ballgames this year just by improving our rebounding," said Bogataj. "And if you rebound better, you don't have ... to play defense as much.

"If we eliminate second shots, we'll be a much better team."

Returning from last season's squad are three sophomores: 6-foot-8 Scott Meredith (from Northville HS), who averaged 10 points and eight rebounds a game last season; 6-4 Mitch Fyke (Plymouth Canton), 15 points a game last season; and 6-2 Jeff Wagner (Flat Rock).

Bogataj expects Meredith to produce big numbers this season, playing center and power forward. "He'll . do a lot more scoring, and we're looking for him to do a lot more rebounding," said Bogataj. Fyke, who will play off-guard and small forward, will be the team's top threepoint shooter. Wagner will be the sixth or seventh man.

Also returning after a year off is 6-0 sophomore Tony Rumple (from Wayne Memorial). A starter at point guard two seasons ago, Rumple averaged nearly 12 points a "He can shoot, and he's smart," said

Alpena CC; the 6-1 point guard will start for SC. "He has the quickness," said Bogataj. Unlike previous years, when the SC bench was weak (particularly after the semester break, when several players became academic casualties), Bogataj has depth this season.

On the front line, there's 6-6 freshman Chris Habitz (Lutheran Westland), an all-around talent who figures to start; 6-7 freshman center Jarvis Murray (Detroit Cody), a leaper who will make an imposing tandem with Meredith: 6-6 freshman Shawn Harrell (Detroit Chadsey), a post player and former National Guardsman with no playing experience but plenty of ability; and 6-5 Lamont Fondren (Oak Park), another strong rebounder and tenacious defender.

At small forward or off guard, Bogataj odn call upon a pair of 6-3 freshmen: Gamal Ahmed (Westland John Glenn) or Jermaine Burden (Cody). Both are strong, both can run and both are very physical; Ahmed is the better outside shooter. Burden is superior in the post.

OTHER FRESHMEN looking for playing time in the backcourt are 5-9 Shawn Benson (Flint Northwestern) and 5-10 Jeff Stein (Mount Morris), both good shooters and ballhandlers, and 5-7 Reggie Brandon (Wayne Memorial), who will be eligible the second semester.

There's also 6-4 forward Sean Menifee (Detroit Benedictine), but he's recovering from pneumonia and may sit this season out.

"We're as quick as we were last year," said Bogataj, "and we're bigger inside, better inside. We never really had a post game before."

Bogataj doesn't plan to abandon his fast-paced offense. "We're still going to play that up-tempo game," he said. "We can run."

However, he isn't sure their improvement will show in the standings. "I think we have some of the best talent since I've been here and we may end up in the same position as last year," he said. The reason: Oakland CC, Macomb CC and Mott CC all figure to be as tough as usual, and Highland Park CC and Henry Ford CC are both better.

SC can keep pace, if the freshmen develop quickly. "Our weakness is 10 freshmen," he said. Also, the Ocelots' first four Eastern Conference games

CC eyes region crown

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

When Detroit Henry Ford football coach Mike Marshall studies films of Redford Catholic Central, one guy seems to play the starring role more often than not.

'I was looking at the film and they had all sorts of guys open and still went to No. 84 (wide receiver Frank Yoakam). That's telling you something," said Marshall, the first-year coach. "It looks like they go to him every time they need a play.'

CC has a fine supporting cast but there's no doubt Yoakam, a senior with 905 all-purpose yards and seven touchdowns, flas been CC's go-to guy. Henry Ford will focus on stopping Yoakam when the two teams meet in a second-round Class AA playoff game at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Livonia Clarenceville.

Henry Ford, winner of six straight, beat Dearborn Fordson, 27-17, in a first-round playoff and is 8-2. overall. CC, 9-1 overall, beat Pontiac Central, 37-15, in its first-round matchup.

THE SHAMROCKS don't throw much but Yoakam is quarterback Chris Barbara's favorite target, catching nine passes for 286 yards (31.8 average) and one touchdown. Yoakam said he runs a 4.4 40-yard dash and it showed two weeks ago when he caught a screen pass and outraced two speedy Detroit St. Martin DePorres players for a 53-yard

football

He also has lined up in CC's backfield, gaining 235 yards rushing on 25 carries and Your TDs. Yoakam has returned 10 kickoffs for 252 yards and a TD and has 12 punt returns for 132 yards and a TD.

The other offensive weapon Marshall frets about is senior tailback Jeff Tibaldi, who leads the Shamrocks with 1,005 yards on 193 carries and eight TDs. Senior fullback Dan Gusoff had his best game of the season against Pontiac Central, gaining 141 yards and scoring three TDs.

"I know they've got No. 84 and No. 20 (Tibaldi) looks like he runs pretty hard; they're the two guys we need to neutralize," Marshall said.

MARSHALL, WHO played defen-sive back at Michigan State from 1976 to 1980, said Ford turned around its season after falling to 2-2 overall with consecutive losses to Birmingham Brother Rice (25-6) and Detroit Mumford (12-6).

CC beat Mumford and Brother Rice by a combined score of 58-7 but coach Tom Mach knows Ford is improved and may have the best backfield he's seen.

Leading the attack is senior quarterback Orlando Fortunato, a converted wide receiver. Fortunato made the Public School League first team after completing 75-120 passes for 1,300 yards and 12 TDs and rushing for 701 yards and seven TDs.

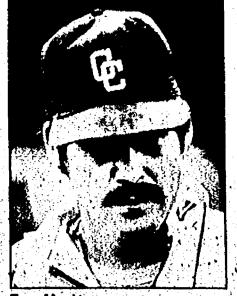

He gained 225 yards rushing on 14 carries and scored three TDs against Fordson and each week amazes Marshall with his progress.

"He couldn't hand the ball off, throw the ball three yards or do anything at the start of the season," Marshall sald. "But he's a hard worker, smart, dependable and shows poise."

The Trojan backfield includes 6foot-2, 210-pound tailback Damond Rush, who has more than 800 yards rushing, and Leon Merritt, a sophomore fullback who already stands 6-2 weighs 207 pounds. Merritt leads the team with more than 900 yards, Marshall said.

THE FASTEST player on the field Saturday will be Landell Bright, a 5-5, 130-pound receiver who can "flat out fly," according to Marshall.

Junior linebacker Joe Herman leads CC with 84 tackles but the leader is senior linebacker Gary Stegall, who has 83 tackles and de-livers devastating blocks when he lines up in the Shamrocks' offensive backfield.

"Gary is one of the toughest kids you'll ever meet," Mach said. "He's the best offensive blocker we've ever had. The linemen open the holes and he picks up the linebackers."

CC placekicker Kerry Zavagnin could be the difference in a close game and Mach hopes the senior can reach the end zone with his kickoffs. Zavagnin had trouble getting his footing against Pontiac Central and Khan Powell took advantage, returning one of Zavagnin's short kickoffs. for an 89-yard TD.

"I'd prefer Mr. Zavagnin put his kickoffs into the end zone," Mach said. "I hope we get the chance to kick off a number of times."

• STEVENSON FROSH 8-0

Livonia Stevenson High's ninth grade football team recently completed an 8-0 season under coaches Tim Gabel and Conrad Newman. They outscored their opponents by a margin of 266-32.

It was the Spartans' first unbeaten freshman season since 1985.

Offensively, tailback Scott Goldman (11) and slotback Steve Vezina

(10) combined for 21 touchdowns. Defensively, linebacker Mike Redington led a first string that allowed only 12 points.

Redford Catholic Central senior tallback Jeff Tibaldi can bench press a team-high 330 pounds, but he knows it's not in his best interest to keep reminding some of his bigger Tibaldi's off-season weight-lifting partners are lineman Brian Brewer and up-back Gary Stegall, who are partly responsible for making holes for Tibaldi.

"They usually make wise cracks about it, like 'Oh, only 15 (repititions) this time.' " Tibaldi said. "I try to stay away from that stuff (teasing them), at least not be an idiot about

The area is loaded with talent and who else better to comment on the state of affairs than Livonia Stevenson's Paul Holmberg, the 1991 Observerland girls cross country Coach of the Year.

"I thought the Western Lakes Activities Association was unbelievably strong," said Holmberg, a veterah of more than 20 years as Stevenson's coach. 'You've got a team (Walled Lake Western) that was fourth at the Class A meet, we were ninth; and North Farmington, if it was in any other regional, would have been in the state meet. There were other good, solld teams that in any other year would have qualified for the state meet." Around here, Stevenson was the best of

The Spartans, who haven't lost a dual meet in the 1990s, won the WLAA's Lakes Division with a 6-0 record, finished second in a Class A regional and ninth in Class A. Stevenson, which won the Schoolcraft College Invitational, was runnerup to Western in the WLAA meet.

There's even more to look forward to next year as Stevenson's top four runners, including All-Observer firstteam selections A.J. Koritnik and Bridget MacKinnon will return. This definitely was one of Holmberg's more memorable record for the best 5K time, 18:57, ever run by a Etronia Stevenson pki. Koritnik was fourth at the Class A state meet in 20:19, third in the Class A regional and second in the Western Lakes Activities Association meet. Korlinik won. the Ypsilanti and Shanwock invitationals, took second in the Gabriel Richard and Centerline meets and third place at Schoolcraft College. "A.J. always demands the best from herself," Holmberg said. "She never gives less than 100 percent and is a straight A student."

Emily Shively, Junior, North Farming-ton: Shively entered seven major invitationals, winning two and finishing second three times in only her first year of cross country. She won stx of seven dual meets and set a North record for Juniors at Oakland Community College with a time of 19:44.

Shively's best time was 19:22 and she was a WLAA (19:13) and city champion (19:59) as well as the West Bloomfield champ (20:05). She took second at the Class A regional (20:05); eighth at the state meet (20:51); second at Schoolcraft (19:28) and Walled Lake Western (20:08) and third in Oakland Country

"Finishing her season as a conference champlog and an all-stater is quite a teat," coach Bill Pinnell sald. "Emily's positive attitude, hard work and dedication has helped her achieve her Malia Dixon, Junior, Livonia Lady-Wood: Dixon, with one year remaining at Ladywood, broke the school record with a time of 19:22 at Cass Benton Park. Dixon was undefeated in six duals and also took first place in the Catholic League, Operation Friendship and Royal Oak Shrine invitationals. She placed second at West Bloomfield and Ypsilanti and fourth in both the Class A regional and state meets.

"Maka is not only a fierce competitor, but she is also a team runner — she knows it takes five runners to win," coach Joe Peruski sald. "After she does her part, she goes back on the course to cheer the others on. Also, she is a coachable

Keegan Keefover, sophomore, North Farmington: Keefover, who also played basketball for the North Junior varsity, had a season best time of 20:25, which gives her the sophomore school record. She was the Walled Lake Western freshman and sophomore champion and took sixth in the WLAA meet (20:35) and seventh at the Class A state meet (20:44). Her state meet placing was most impressive since it came after a disappointing 14th place finish at Keefover took fifth place at Schoolcraft (20.52) and was eighth in the county (20.53) and ninth at West Bloomfield (21:43).

"Keegan has a nice, natural running stride," Pinnell said. "During races, she gets out fast and hangs in there. Keegan is a tough competifor and a strong runner. To play two sports is touch and to excell like she has is very impresshe, it's a credit to her work ethic and atti-

Bridget MacKinnon, sophomore, Livonia Stevenson: MacKinnon reced to her best time of 20:37 at Cass Benton. She was seventh at the WLAA meet (20:45), 10th at a Class A regional (21:07) and 21st at the Class A state meet (21:08).

"This was Bridget's first year in cross country and she just got better and better each week," Holmberg said. "She is one of the main reasons for Stevenson's success. You could always depend on Bridget to get the Job done."

Lana Boroditsch, sophombre, Plymouth Canton: Borodisch set course records Tor Plymouth Canton at four different after this year and also fled the Canton course record at Cass Benton with a time of 20:11. Borodisch was undefeated in six dual meets and placed second at the Yoskanti Invitational. She was fifth in the WLAA meet and Class A regional and took 11th at the state meet.

"Lana le a fierce competitor who thrives on hard work," coach George Przygodski sald. "Lana has set goals for herself all season and it has been very gratifying to watch her socomplish them."

Sharmila Prasad, Junior, Farmington Mercy: Prasad took third in the Catholic League meet (20:28) and second in the Operagion Friendship race (20:27). She was 11th at the Class A regional (21:10) and 22nd at the Class A state meet (21:28).

"Sharmila leads by example," coach Gary Servals said. "She's a real easy athlete to coach because she foves the sport and it shows in her enthusiasm and willingness to do the little things that make the difference. She consistently makes the choices of a champion."

Stacy Moore, freshman, Plymouth Salem: Moore ran like a seasoned veteran, taking eighth at the WLAA meet (20:48), 13th at the Class A regional (21:19) and 14th at the state meet (21:02). Her best time was 20:33.

"Her place at the state meet was pretty darn good for a freshman," coach Jennifer Harris sald. "She just has something in her to make her strive to be the best she can be."

well," predicted Madonna coach Jerry Abraham. "We've been playing with a lot of confidence and with a lot of consistency, both offensively, and defensively. And our big players have been playing very well."

While the Crusaders did indeed play well down the stretch, winning 27 of their last 28 matches, they have not been feeling all that well lately. Illness has taken two starters out of practice this week: Elena Oparka has the chicken pox, and Tonla Smith was battling a case of the flu. Both are outside hitters.

They are expected to play Satur-

WITH AN attack featuring Oparka, Smith and Dana Hicks-Finley, it figures Madonna will be difficult to defeat. They were in control against Northwood in their first meeting, which Madonna won in threestraight games, 15-13, 16-14, 15-6. Hicks-Finley had 25 kills, Oparka got 20 and Smith contributed 12.

A similar performance Saturday will insure Madonna's triumph. "They were very much in control in that match," said Abraham, adding, "That's what they'll have to do this Northwood won't surrender itscrown easily. The Northwomen are still well above Madonna in the NAIA rankings at No. 6; the Crusaders achieved their highest placing this week, at No. 22.

"I don't think it will matter to them that we beat them the first time," said Abraham.

What will matter is Madonna's ability to focus on its objective. Abraham believes the Crusaders will. "I think the kids are excited about it, they want to make a run at nationals," he said.

That run starts Saturday, at a location that never before has been host to an NAIA District 23 champi-

Home-grown talent thrives in opera company

Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta The Mikado" opens Nov. 15 at he Fisher Theatre for 15 performances. For ticket information, call MOT at 874-SING.

By William Coutant staff writer

Although the Michigan Opera Theatre has become one of the top companies of its size in the country, it has always been a home-grown en-

From its founder and director David DiChiera to its cast, MOT has taken advantage of the wealth of talent in Southeast Michigan. And those many performers have not only taken part in the company's success, but In many instances, have used MOT as a springboard to other area performances and even national appearances.

Some MOT performers, like Mary Callaghan Lynch, have been with the company since "the early days" when productions were fewer, and audiences were less sure of what to expect. Lynch, who will appear in the lead role for "The Mikado" beginning Nov. 15, started with the company 13 years ago.

"I started in the chorus," said Lynch. "Then I got small roles. Then I played the leading role of Yum-Yum in 'The Mikado' 10 years ago."

BUT LYNCH is not just appearing with the group simply because she's available or lives in the area. The year-old Troy resident. "I had to sing Birmingham mother of two has pleyed Yum-Yum four times, has worked with other production combankes and is now a full-time per-

"I do some commercial work in fadio," she said. "And I continue to iake lessons and do some coaching."

MOT also depends on many talented performers, like Patricia Pierobon of Troy, who are not full-time. Plerobon, a chorus performer for six seasons with MOT, came in with a strong opera background.

I performed with the Scottish National Opera," said the Troy mother don't have to be fluent, but we have of two in her native country's accent. to know what we're saying." "I never really had a chance to pursue a career here."

'I've had a very good experience. The people are good to work with.'

--- Rosalin Gaustella

But with her children grown, Pierobon has had a chance to practice, take voice lessons, and re-hone her vocal skills. Pierobon is quite happy to be a member of the chorus. She also likes Italian opera the best and performed the MOT's production of 'La Traviata' in 1990.

ROSALIN GAUSTELLA, a performer with MOT since 1985, has seen her repertoire grow from strictly chorus parts to include some solo work.

Like many of the company's performers, the Plymouth resident works with other area companies, including the Warren Symphony Orchestra. And like most MOT members, Gaustella has a busy family life. And her experience with MOT? That's also typical.

"I've had a very good experience," the mother of three said. "The people are good to work with."

Paul Silver, a veteran of 16 MOT productions, has found a way to combine a business career with his love of musical theater.

"Eleven years ago I auditioned on the phone on a dare," said the 29-

Silver won the part as an extra in "Fidelio" and has been performing with the company ever since.

"I felt really intimidated by opera," Silver said. "But once I saw one, I was really hooked."

SILVER, WHO is a network manager for a computer marketing company, said there is a lot to learning even a small part in an opera.

"Although I've performed mostly in Italian, we've had productions in Polish, German and French. We

And Silver said MOT's audience is getting younger. If so, longtime

DOUGLAS SUSALLA/staff_photographer

Livonia resident Deloris Tobis probably has something to do with it. Tobis, who has five grown daughters, arranges MOT presentations for schools and groups throughout the state. Presentations for kindergarteners to sixth graders include "Little Red Riding Hood," a one-act opera by Mozart based on a familiar story for kids. Older students and adults may see a Broadway show.

"It serves a dual purpose," Tobis said. "We need to have future supporters of the arts. But there is also enrichment. A lot of people hear the word opera and say 'yuck,' " she said. "They think of a fat lady singing. This is a way to show them what opera really is."

TOBIS' MESSAGE has not been lost in southeast Michigan where MOT has gone from a tiny company with two productions a year, to a company with a full-time staff of 30 and the prospect of having its own theater by 1994. And maybe some of MOT's success is due to the variety of productions, which range from opera to musical, and even dance. Tobis said that is as it should be.

"That's why it's called Michigan Opera Theatre," she said. "It's bothopera and theater."

Still opera, with its large scale, rehas thrived, inpart, because of the availability of talented performers and staff who live in southeastern Michigan. Lending their talents MOT's production of "The Mikado" are (left to right) Rosalin Guastella of Plymouth, Paul Silver of Troy, Mary Callaghan Lynch of Birmingham and Judith Szefi of Troy.

Journey to Oz full of surprise

Performances of the Birmingham Theatre production of "The Wizard of Oz" opened Nov. 13 and continues, through Dec. 15. For ticket information, call the box office at 644-3533.

By Barbara Michals special writer

One glance at the spectacular set for the "yellow brick road," a banked double helix spiraling upwards, suggests that the Birmingham Thealre's production of "The Wizard of Oz" will be familiar and yet different.

That this production is unique, not simply an imitation of the clasic MGM movie, is the idea stressed by both Worth Gardner, the show's director, choreographer, and composer, and Tom Lawson, the production stage manager and technical wizard of this "Oz"

ALL OF the familiar characters and songs will be included, along with new songs based on the original Harold Arlen melodies. The most obvious change is that the Wicked Witch of the West is now a male. Also an actor will be portraying L. Frank Baum, the creator of the Oz books. Baum will serve as a narrator to the play and also a character himself. "We're expanding on the familiar story," Lawson explained, taking a break in the theater lobby from working on lighting set-ups. 'Adults' will love it just at much as children. They will come for the nostalgia, but they will be pleasantly surprised. This is a more enhanced version, with some of the humor more subtle.

"This is getting back to basics, to what makes one happy," Lawson added. "Its the kind of show where yoù can just forget about everything for two hours and indulge the child within us all."

This production, which began at the University of Cincinnati in 1982, and was recently presented at the Cincinnati Playhouse in the Park, features plenty of technical wizardry to dazzle the eye. The Wicked Witch will do pyrotechnic tricks with his umbrella and eventually "melt" on stage, disappearing through a trap door while his cape flares out on the floor amidst a shroud of fog, Lawson explained, crouching down to demonstrate.

FOR THE poppy scene, a parachute effect will drop down and spread out, with lights creating first the field of red popples and then the snow that covers them before the whole will seem to go down a drain.

For the dimunitive Munchkins. full-size dancers will pop out of trap doors but only to waist level. They will dance with shoes on their hands, with fake arms and roly-poly bodies clad in funky costumes.

do on stage, the bed will fly as one of the 500 cues occupying a back-stage crew of 18 while the 19-member cast performs

Dismissing the various psychological theories that have evolved about the appeal of "The Wizard of Oz," Gardner sees the O2 stories as continuing in the long established literary tradition of using a journey as a metaphor for life itself. As in "The Iliad" and "The Odyssey", the character is asked to do the impossible as do something we didn't think we

'Ten Little Indians' won't disappoint fans

Performances of the Meadow Brook Theatre production of "Ten Little Indians" continue through Nov. 24 on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills For ticket information, call the box office at 377-3300.

Ten guests invited by mysterious letters to an island retreat cut off from the mainland. No phone, No. boat. No one else on the island except 10 strangers, each with a past tainted with murder. Hackneyed formula for the English murder mystery?

Yes, indeed, but fans of Agatha Christie mysteries usually prefer their who-done-it unknowns liberally mixed with well-known and well-loved characters and settings.

Meadow Brook Theatre's able producation of Christie's "Ten Little Indians" comes through with comforting predictability in story, characters, and setting.

The plot sets up the same old lock-in scenario making it impossible for the suspects to escape (the remote island in seas rough from an inevitable storm).

Agatha Christie brings together the same old assemblage of tweedy, uppercrust Britishers vintage 1940s — a military man brandishing a cane and hobbling stiff legged, presumably because he was wounded in glorious battle; a spindly, pickle-pussed spinster, an inspector type; and a pretty lady wearing hose with seams down the back to show off her good legs. The murders, a lineup of them before the culprit is unmasked, follow proper English mystery protocol by being bizarre and virtually bloodless terminations.

THIS PRESCRIPTION Plot is predictably set in a country manor house which designer Peter Hicks creates with his usual good taste. Lord knows he's had plenty of practice through the years. A wingbacked chair is set by the fireplace, oriental rugs over the floor, dark wood mouldings abound, and French doors open onto the garden or in "Ten Little Indians" onto the terrace overlooking the water. Like getting off the highway for a bite at McDonald's, there's comfort in knowing what to expect. That holds for the cast which reads like a repertory list with the same fine player returning play after play. This production includes Geoffrey Beauchamp, Maureen McDevitt, Eric Tavares, Jillian Lindig, Wil Love, Carl Schurr, Thomas Mahard, Paul Hopper, Sue Kenny, and Richard Schrot, all familiar names and able actors.

Cathie Breidenbach of West-Bloomfield teaches college writing classes and works as" W freelance writer.

Japanese build fine cars, but parking eludes them

Directions to the Tokyo Motor Show include a strong warning against driving a car to the show in Chiba City, north of Tokyo, where a new exhibition hall rises at the edge of Tokyo Bay, staked out by high-rise construction cranes still working on a massive convention center.

The new convention center is built on filled wetlands and marks the northern limit of the largest concentration of heavy industry and manufacturing on earth — a boiling mass of smokestack industries that stretches nearly 50 miles south, interspersed with the modern high-Yokohama.

THERE IS, of course, no place to park, which is why the show brochure recommends taking the train, nearly an hour and a half from the center city. The show's theme this year is "Discovering a new relationship: Man, Car and Earth as One." Somehow, it figures.

The Tokyo Motor Show has become the trend-watchers show among the major auto expositions. More new production models will be launched in Detroit than Tokyo this January, and Frankfurt is still favored by the haute couture Italian designers. But the tension is highest at Tokyo, where the power balance of the auto industry of three continents is palpable.

THE NOTORIETY of the Tokyo show has grown exponentially along with the effect of exported Japanese cars. The early years were displays of automotive oddities, including the vast array of minicars sold mainly rises and congestion of Tokyo and in Japan, their bug-like cuteness vastly more appealing to an unfamiliar Westerner than the hapless Japanese commuter crammed inside. In recent years the juggernaut of new models and new technology - four-wheel steering, all-wheel drive, navigation systems - made the show a nerve-wracking experience for auto designers wondering what they had to contend with next.

CURIOUSLY, THIS year there

Far fewer concept cars that rolled on spherical wheels, far more styling exercises testing the waters for a luture model. New models launched at Tokyo just added to a steady stream that have been already unveiled elsewhere. The new Mazda RX7 was the standout, along with the Toyota Aristo, and the new. Ford Telstar.

In this milieu, against the environmental theme, the Europeans made some startling intrusions. The new Jaguar XJ220 supercar, a 220-mph mid-engine sports car, was launched at the show. The XJ220 is one of the most elegant exotics ever built.

LOOMING OVER them all was the Audi Avus Quattro, a polished aluminum, blunt-nosed sports car with a W-12 engine and 220-mph top speed. "They brought that here to kick the Japanese in the shins," said one observer.

The Americans made less of an' impact, although the new Cadillac Seville managed to make the point that there is a modern, but distinctly American car. And Ford put its Contour show car, from last year's Detroit show, on display.

All this was in balance until you wandered to the glass cases full of

Ford unveils new line

One part of the transmission plant has been renovated to taccomodate this new transmission.

"Ergonomically, it's the best line I've worked on," said Mike Bowman, who works in the case machining area. Gone are the mist in the air and the oil on the floor that was found in the old line area dating back 12-15 years, he said.

The Magnetic Displacement Sensing (MDS), a new technology being used on the AODE line, can spot missing or misplaced components inside sealed components. Magnetic fields pass through nonferrous material, such as aluminum, and inspect complicated subassemblies.

The MDS scans components like pins, springs, and bearings to make sure that the subassemblies are assembled properly. The MDS-based system performs an on-line inspection of a transmission subassembly within one second, officials said. IN ADDITION TO the AODE transmission, the Livonia plant manufactures the AOD and AXOD transmissions. The latter is a frontwheel drive transaxle used in the Ford Taurus and Mercury Sable.

At 3.3 million square feet, the Livonia plant is the largest of Ford's component operations. Opened In 1952, the plant has undergone six major additions. Some 3,570 workers are employed there with an annual payroll of $175 million, officials sald.

U.S. Army tanks were the first products produced at the plant, which opened in 1952 and sits on 182 acres.

"It's the largest manufacturing facility under one roof,' Wisnlewski said.

The plant's products go into the Bronco, Continental, Cougar, Crown Victoria, Econoline, Grand Marquis, Lincoln Town Car, Mark VII, Mexican Sable, Mexican Thunderbird, Mustang, Sable, Taurus, Thunderbird and light trucks. The Livonia plant supplies assembly plants in: Atlanta, Chicago, Cuautitlan (Mexico), Dearborn, Kansas City, Lorain, Michigan Truck, Norfolk, Ontario Truck, St. Thomas, Twin Cities and Wixom.

auto talk

Directions to the Tokyo Motor Show include a strong warning against driving a car to the show in Chiba City, north of Tokyo, where a new exhibition hall rises at the edge of Tokyo Bay, staked out by high-rise construction cranes still working on a massive convention center.

The new convention center is builton_filled_wetlands_and -marks-thenorthern limit of the largest concentration of heavy industry and manufacturing on earth — a boiling mass of smokestack industries that stretches nearly 50 miles south, interspersed with the modern highrises and congestion of Tokyo and Yokohama.

THERE IS, of course, no place to park, which is why the show brochure recommends taking the train. nearly an hour and a half from the center city. The show's theme this year is "Discovering a new relationship: Man, Car and Earth as One." Somehow, it figures.

The Tokyo Motor Show has become the trend-watchers show among the major auto expositions. More new production models will be launched in Detroit than Tokyo this January, and Frankfurt is still favored by the haute couture Italian designers. But the tension is highest at Tokyo, where the power balance of the auto industry of three continents is palpable.

THE NOTORIETY of the Tokyo show has grown exponentially along with the effect of exported Japanese cars. The early years were displays of automotive oddities, including the vast array of minicars sold mainly in Japan, their bug-like cuteness vastly more appealing to an unfamillar Westerner than the hapless Japanese commuter crammed inside. In recent years the juggernaut of new models and new technology four-wheel steering, all-wheeldrive, navigation systems - made the show a nerve-wracking experience for auto designers wondering what they had to contend with next.

CURIOUSLY, THIS year there

Dan McCosh was a leveling off of high-flying ideas that characterized Tokyo in the past. Far fewer concept cars that rolled on spherical wheels, far more styling exercises testing the waters for a future model. New models launched at Tokyo just added to a LOOMING OVER them all was the Audi Avus Quattre, a polished aluminum, blunt-nosed sports car with a W-12 engine and 220-mph top speed. "They brought that here to kick the Japanese in the shins," said one observer.

The Americans made less of an impact, although the new Cadillac Seville managed to make the point that there is a modern, but distinctly American car. And Ford put its Contour show car, from last year's Detroit show, on display.

All this was in balance until you wandered to the glass cases full of technical displays, hastily put together to demonstrate that the Japanese manufacturers were, indeed, pursuing the environmental theme.

One part of the transmission plant has been renovated to accomodate this new transmission.

"Ergonomically, it's the best line I've worked on," said Mike Bowman, who works in the case machining area. Gone are the mist in the air and the oil on the floor that was found in the old line area dating back 12-15 years, he said.

The Magnetic Displacement Sensing (MDS), a new technology being used on the AODE line, can spot missing or misplaced components inside sealed components. Magnetic fields pass through nonferrous material, such as aluminum, and inspect complicated subassemblies.

The MDS scans components like pins, springs, and bearings to make sure that the subassemblies are assembled properly. The MDS-based system performs an on-line inspection of a transmission subassembly within one second, officials said. IN ADDITION TO the AODE transmission, the Livonia plant

manufactures the AOD and AXOD transmissions. The latter is a frontwheel drive transaxle used in the Ford Taurus and Mercury Sable.

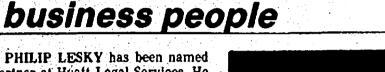

At 3.3 million square feet, the, Livonia plant is the largest of Ford's component operations. Opened in 1952, the plant has undergone six major additions. Some 3,570 workers are employed there with an annual payroll of $175 million, officials said.

U.S. Army tanks were the first products produced at the plant, which opened in 1952 and sits on 182 acres.

"It's the largest manufacturing facility under one roof, Wisniewski said.

The plant's products go into the Bronco, Continental, Cougar, Crown Victoria, Econoline, Grand Marquis, Lincoln Town Car, Mark VII, Mexican Sable, Mexican Thunderbird, Mustang, Sable, Taurus, Thunderbird and light trucks.

The Livonia plant supplies assembly plants in: Atlanta, Chicago, Cuautitlan (Mexico), Dearborn, Kansas City, Lorain, Michigan Truck, Norfolk, Ontario Truck, St. Thomas, Twin Cities and Wixom.

Competition heats up in dog-eat-dog supply stores

By David F. Stein special writer

The Pet Emporium, Pet Supermarket, Pet Supplies

They are to pet owners what the Sports Authority is to athletes or what F & M is to the health and beauty aid shopper.

Within the last several years, a mass merchandising concept for pet foods and pet supplies has taken hold. The new large stores, at 5,000-7,000 square feet, are taking aim at the pet sales of grocery stores and smaller neighborhood pet shops.

These stores don't sell pets, but their supermarketlike aisles are loaded with just about anything you might need to feed, restrain, house, train, transport, entertain or clothe your pet.

The stores feature premium pet food lines, competitive pricing and special events like having Fido pose with Santa as a benefit for pet shelters or anit-cruelty groups. Many welcome pets in the stores, and bulletin boards are festooned with photos of owners' pride and

Perhaps the most prominent newcomer is Pet Supplies "Plus," developed by Farmington resident Jack Berry, which began with a 7,000-square-foot store and corporate headquarters in Redford in 1988.

Within three years, Pet Supplies "Plus" has expanded to five corporate and eight franchise locations in the Detroit area. Other area stores are in Farmington Hills and Union Lake. Pet Supplies "Plus" will have 20 stores in Michigan by the end of this year, and Berry is preparing for national franchising.

"The pet business, up to that point, was basically a hobbyist business with pets. People running pet stores were hobbyists, not business people," said Berry, partowner and chief operating officer.

"Basically, all I've done is I've taken the pet category and moved it into the '90s," added Berry, who has more than 40 years of experience in the grocery business.

THE PET FOOD and supply market is nothing to bark at. More than 50 million dogs and more than 50 million cats are kept as pets in the United States.

Overall, Americans spent more than $2 billion on pet supplies and food in 1990. Gross sales and service per pet store nationally has increased 40 percent in just three years, from an average of $169,000 in 1987 to $238,000 in 1990. Companies spent $126 million advertising pet products on network television in 1988, the last year for which figures are available.

All three stores carry extensive lines of premium pet foods, including lams, Science Diet, Nutro, Purina Pro Plan and Nature's Recipe brands. The typical Pet Supplies "Plus" location may have more than 100 different kinds of dog food, counting the familiar grocery store lines they also carry. Sales for pet foods account for as much as half of total sales at these larger stores.

"The health consciousness of everyone has increased in the last five or 10 years and that health consciousness is carrying over to pet products," said Chuck Haffey, owner of Pet Supermarket stores.

Haffey opened a 6,000-square-foot Livonia store in 1989 and has added outlets in Farmington Hills and Tom Talbot, who opened the 4,800-square-loot Pet Emporlum in Livonia in March, said grocery stores are his main competition.

"The grocery stores are the main competition of every store like us because they own 85 percent of the petfood market," said Talbot, a retired Southfield police-

THE NEW STORES, according to Haffey, reflect the search for good business opportunities by those finding less upward mobility on today's downsized corporate

"A long time ago, all the auto parts stores were little, tiny places: Murry's Discount Auto turned it into a supermarket for auto parts," Haffey sald.

"People want the service. They are willing to pay for it, but they want someone who is clean and presentable and professional about it.

Perhaps the move to large pet stores was begun locally by Specialty Pet Supplies of Plymouth with a 5,000square-foot store that opened in 1979.

Everybody copied us; 10 to 12 years ago there were no stores with strictly supplies, said Terri Bennet, who opened a second store in Farmington Hills in 1989, Bennet does not believe her stores are competing directly with the larger newcomers.

"We specialize in service," Bennett said. "We have a wide variety of everyday pet needs plus specialization in unusual, hard-to-find items that need backup with information.'

These items include show dog equipment and a full line of supplies and training aids for hunting dogs.

"What we are successful at is service; it never gets stale," Bennett said.

Bennett echoes managers and owners at smaller, traditional shops that sell pets as well as food and supplies. They contend that the combination of special attention to service and knowledge about pets will retain the important food and supply part of their business. But they also admit that the pet supply mass merchandisers are formidable competition.

"It hurts business a little bit, (but) I don't think the warehouse store can offer the individual service," said Steve Schultz, manager of Twentieth Century Pets in Westland.

"They have more clerks, but not a vast knowledge of products and the care and upkeep of animals. I think once (small stores) get a sound clientele base, people are willing to pay the few extra cents to get the extra knowledge they need."

Duty drawback: pennies from government heaven?

By Brian Lysaght staff writer

Harvey O. Larson is used to explaining what he does for a living. It's good for business.

Larson is president of the Farmington Hills-based Duty Drawback Service, Inc. The firm helps clients claim little-known rebates called duty drawback from the U.S. Customs Service. The refunds are available to firms who pay tariffs on components goods, then export either the components or products that contain them. Up to 99 percent of the original import duty can be refund-

Larson estimates "hundreds and hundreds" of eligible Detroit-area companies are unaware of duty drawback.

"It's been around since 1789 and people still don't know much about it," said Larson, whose father founded Duty Drawback Service in 1956. Duty drawback was authorized by an 18th century U.S. tariff act.

According to Larson, the U.S. government annually collects more than $16 billion in customs duty, $2.4 billion of which is eligible to be returned to companies as drawback. But only $400 million of that is going uncollected," Larson said. That's because companies don't know about the arrangement. The customs service makes efforts to inform the business community, and Larson does his part because it's good for business, he said.

"There is really millions of dollars the drawback.

Here are some examples of companies that can qualify for draw-microchips that Company C. imports, then uses the microchips in widgets that Company B. exports.

• Company D. imports microchips, stores them and includes them, along with domestically produced microchips, in widgets it ex-

DUTY DRAWBACK may be the closest thing to pennies from heaven that the government provides. The purpose of drawback is to help American firms compete in foreign markets, Larson said.

Not surprisingly, the customs service wants extensive documentation and paperwork in order.

"There is a myriad of forms, rules and procedures that have to be followed," he said. Larson's company usually works for a percentage of

The U.S.-Canada Free Trade Agreement will eliminate or limit some kinds of drawback in 1994, but Larson said he didn't expect the agreement to affect his business much because refunds are retroactive in many cases. Also, there is the large untapped market.

The company has about 200 clients, some large, some small. The larger are among the newest and largest is Ford Motor Co. The truck components manufacturer Kelsey-Hayes is another. Some larger companies have their own duty drawback departments. Larson's father worked in General Motors duty drawback department before launching his own company.

Harvey O. Larson joined his father's company in 1968. They later sold the firm, and in 1990 it was purchased by John V. Carr and Son Inc., a customhouse brokerage and freight forwarding firm. Manufactuer's National Bank owns Carr and Duty Drawback Service moved to larger quarters in Farmington Hills this summer, and increased staffing by 30 percent.

We have to hire people who know nothing about drawback and teach them everything," said Larson, adding that the refund arrangement is not even covered in some business

Booked for discounts

Couponing isn't just for people anymore. Entertainment Publications, the Troy-based business that specializes in discount coupon books, has added owners of furry and feathered friends as its target audience. Its "Pets and their People" contains more than 300 coupons on pet products, grooming, boarding and training, plus there's a people section. When purchased through non-profit organizations such as the Animal Welfare Society, the $15 book raises funds to the selling organization. For information, call 637-8444.

Ford unveils new line at Livonia transmission plant

LOW Home Equity Rates MARGIN OVER PRIME

Call our Equity Department for details 1-800-642-INFO

- No application fees
- No appraisal fees
- No points
- No kidding!

* "Prime Rate" is the Bank Prime Loan Rate as published by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System. Rate example: If the Prime Rate is 8% and our margin is 11/2% over prime, our Annual Percentage Rate would be 91/2% (rate in effect at publishing date 10/91). The rate is subject to change monthly, and will not exceed 18%, nor go lower than 9%. You will be required to carry insurance on the property that secures your account.

Customers with an existing Home Equity Loan from Huntington Banks can change to the new rate by paying a $75 transfer fee.

Caring volunteers lend helping hand

By Arlene Funke special writer

It is 9 a.m., Thursday, and George Irwin of Livonia is at his usual post at the Fort Street Presbyterian Church In downtown Detroit.

Dozens of people - mostly unemployed or homeless Irwin, who has been helping out for around four years. men - stand in line waiting to enter the church. The aroma of mashed potatoes and beef tantalizes.

A hot meal, served by a cadre of volunteers, awaits Irwin's task is to help coordinate activities and keep the line moving in an orderly fashion. Welcome to the Open Door, an outreach for people who need an encouraging smile and a helping hand.

"For some people, this is the only decent meal they will have all week," said Irwin, 64, a retired reliability specialist from Chrysler Corp.

"There is no charge," Irwin added. "It is for people of meager income. But there are no questions asked. If Lee Iacocca came in, he would get just the same as everybody else."

DEDICATED VOLUNTEERS help keep this service humming. People such as Stan Durst of Livonia, Carol Carlin of Detroit, Don Hill of Grosse He and Pamela Johanningsmeier of Plymouth. Around 35 people help

The driving force behind the Open Door is the Rev. Dr. Robert H. Crilley, 57, pastor of Fort Street Presbyterian. He established the outreach in 1968. Fort Street Presbyterian, a huge, quietly elegant church, was founded in the mid-1850s. It has 650 members, half of whom live in the suburbs. Although the church has many programs, and is wellknown for its seasonal concerts, the Open Door focuses on the special needs of local poor people. We're trying to do what we can for the area where we are located," Crilley said.

The program is 9 to 11 a.m. Thursdays. Currently, around 600 people are coming for the complete hot meal. Many of those will get a haircut from one of several barbers on hand, or select a change of clothes from the used clothing bank.

The church has eight shower stalls, available to those who want to freshen up. Sometimes health-care professionals come to give assistance.

The Open Door is non-denominational Participants are called guests. They aren't required to prove they're poor, or attend religious services.

CONFRONTING THE problems of indigents can be

"This type of volunteer work isn't for everyone," said

But Crilley says he has no trouble finding volunteers.

"It's wonderful the way people will help when they know the need is there," Crilley said.

One enthusiastic group is the Plymouth Kiwanis service club. The contingent includes Barbara Kropiewnicki of Farmington Hills, who manages a bank branch in Plymouth, and Mike Gardner, a Plymouth police commander.

The Kiwanians serve food and prepare hundreds of peanut butter and jelly sandwiches.

"I like helping people," said 43-year-old Nancy Caviston, a Plymouth accountant and a Kiwanian. "It makes you feel like a million dollars. Everyone is very appreciative."

Cooks prepare the food in the church kitchen. Today's meal is beef patty, mashed potatoes and gravy, corn, tossed salad and canned peaches. Second helpings on veggies. Coffee and orange juice.

Serving the spuds and salad are several members of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in Livonia. These include Lori Pittard and Betty Almburg of Livonia and Ann Heinicke of Westland, formerly of Redford, Irwin also is affiliated with St. Paul's.

"I think this is very worthwhile," said Heinicke, 34, a homemaker.

THE GUESTS, holding numbered tickets, move along a stairway into the church's huge gym. Long ta-

The room, filled with activity and talking people, reverberates with sound. The mood is friendly and purposeful. Guests banter with the food servers.

"Hi, how are you?" calls Nancy Caviston as she doles out her sandwiches. Irwin sends a man to the back of the line, admonishing him not to take cuts.

According to Crilley, guests include people on public assistance, unemployed and homeless, or lonely. Some have abused drugs or alcohol.

Group provides singular fun

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

In the Farmington Single Professionals, wallflowers can play wallyball, studs may go horseback riding and those wanting to take the plunge can go whitewater rafting.

"If they meet somebody and they go out that's good, too," said Dave Hurlbert, 35, activities coordinator for the group.

But match-making is not the group's primary objective, although an estimated 75 couples have met and later married. Those things just happen when Cupid's arrow goes fly-

Rather the Farmington Single Professionals started five years ago as a social outlet, a place to have fun and meet friends.

Members range between 25 and 40 in age and Hulbert estimates threefourths of the members have never been married. And like the name indicates, they represent a wide variety of professions, including teachers, doctors, lawyers, engineers, social workers as well as those who are self-employed.

"But we don't want that to intimidate anyone," said Hurlbert, 35, who lives in Farmington and is a licensed Actually, the informal nature of the Farmington Single Professionals allows people to feel a little more at ease, and thus, easier to socialize.

Things such as whirlyball, feather. bowling and hayrides elicit laughs rather than war stories of past relationships gone awry.

OTHER ACTIVITIES can appeal to the bicep as well as the intellect. Trips to Red Wing and Piston games as well as to the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and to the Detroit Institute of Arts' "Brunch with Bach." A weekend in Las Vegas as well as a one-day junket to the Bahamas are in the works, too.

On this night, 30 people have turned out for wallyball at Racquet Ball in Farmington. For an hour, the singles mingle on a hardwood court where the only thing being hit on is a blue playground ball.

"The thing I like about it is they do fun things," said Cathy Racicot, 40, who lives in Livonia. "The group is dedicated to having a good time."

Racicot is like many members of the singles group. She was transferred in her job as a sales manager of Ryder Truck from Miami, Fla., to this area and didn't know anyone. While watching Metro Cablevision, Racicot heard about the Farmington Single Professionals. Racicot's been involved in the group since. In nearly three years, she's participated in a myriad of activities such as feather bowling and white water rafting as well as wallyball. And she's made friends along the way like Suzanne Crowley, who figures she's met 20 friends since joining the group two years ago.

"It's more or less like friends," said Crowley, 31, who lives in Livonia. "Most of these guys are friends."

SCALEdown helps to reshape lifestyle

if you are medically overweight, the Henry Ford Medical Center-Redford can help you reshape your body, your thinking and your lifestyle through the SCALEdown lifestyle and weight management program.

SCALEdown is an intensive, medically supervised behavior modification program that teaches participants more than just how to lose weight. The program is designed to alter participants thinking about the foods they eat and provide effective information about calorie intake, nutrition and exercise to help them successfully lose weight and maintain weight loss.

A free orientation for the course will be at 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 21, at the HFMC-Redford in the Redford Plaza, 9327 Telegraph at West Chicago. Doctors, nurses and nutritionists will be available to discuss the medical and behavioral aspects involved with losing weight. The SCALEdown program is structured for adults who are at least 30 percent over their ideal body weight and may have complicating health problems often associated with excess weight.

Participants must attend the orientation to join the class. To make a reservation, or for more information, call HFMC-Redford at 531-

Minister: Churches have a vital role in social change

By Shirlee Rose Iden stalf writer

A gaunt Catholic monk in rope-tied robe, a small figure of Buddha, and a Jewish eight-branched Menorah are part of the decor in the office of the Rev. Ann Reeves

The art objects communicate her ecumenical views and her warmth and conviviality say she is happy to be where she is.

A century and a half ago, Olympia Brown became the first woman ordained as a minister. Now Buehler is the first woman minister in the pulpit at Northwest Universalist Unitarian Church in Southfield.

For Buehler, ordained more than two years ago, it is her second church but not her first career. Prior to her ordination, she was employed in community development and public relations for non-profit organizations and also in advertising.

"I'm an interim minister at Northwest and will be here either one or two years," she said. "The church is searching for someone permanent."

Buehler explained that the Universalist Unitarian denomination rule is that interim ministers may not be candidates for the permanent position.

Buehler, who has three grown children, decided to go to the seminary after dwelling on the idea for a long time. "I wanted to do this for several years, it seemed," she said. "I had a busy community life, but seemed always to look forward to Sunday. While I was mulling over my decision, my youngest son said to me:

"MOM, YOU SHOULD be a minister."

Buehler said she had always harbored uncommon ambitions for herself. "I wanted terribly to be a doctor. But my family, especially my father who was old-time in his opinions, said 'No!'

Now her three daughters seem to approve of Buehler's calling and her career. "One of them asked me, 'Now do we have to call you Reverend Mother?" she said.

Her daughter, a recent graduate from the University of Buffalo law school, told her mother: "If you can do it,

The minister recalled that after her mother died, leaving her a bequest, she had the chance to do something for herself.

"I tried out brain surgery and almost everything else," she said. "I found that everything I wanted to do 15 years before just wasn't important anymore."

Buehler was born in Dayton, Ohio, to a military family that traveled a great deal. Her first position was with a department store where she did advertising.

"After that I worked in a small advertising agency, for non-profit organizations, and lately with a community health agency. When my two eldest went to school, I went to work. I was divorced years ago."

"While I was deciding about the ministry, I came into contact with a small, fundamentalist church. The con gregation voted to mortgage their church in order to help the homeless.

"I came to the conclusion then that change in society would only come from the churches."

Buchler was graduated from the seminary at Bangor. Maine, more than two years ago and served a small church in Montreal before accepting the interim position othfield.

Northwest Universalist Unitarian Church in Southfield.

DEFINING her religious philosophy, she explained the Unitarian Church is a non-doctrinal body with principles and purposes that focus on the human condition, the value of reason in religion, and the inner connectedness of all creation.

'We take a holistic approach," she added. "Each person is responsible for his own theological condition."

Buehler believes that in churches there are powerful people who could accomplish a great deal of good if they used their knowledge and power.

"The homeless are everywhere. This congregation is assisting St. Leo's soup kitchen with four dinners a year,",

Her new congregation with about 160 members has many founding members still active. "I really enjoy the founding members," she said.

Buehler enjoys the worshipers of all ages and is pleased that the church sponsors a ceremony for 13 year olds as a rite of passage. "We will have a special service for them," she said.

NWUU also has a sermon almost every Sunday and sometimes a panel discussion.

Buehler's intent is to give the youth of the church a great deal of instruction about other religions presented as they are, not in a comparative way.

We are getting more Islamic people in this congregation," she pointed out.

BUEHLER SAID Unitarian children seem able to resist the cults. "We don't teach children that they are sinful, we try to build self-esteem. And we were the first denomination to have a resolution on the ordination of homosexuals." The NWUU Church of Southfield evolved in the 1950s when 20 families broke from their original church to form a society for the northwest part of Detroit ultimately settling into the tan brick, one-story church on Northwestern.

Buehler has been preceded by two ministers, Frank Gentile and Michael Boblett. Gentile, NWUU's first religious leader, served the church for 30 years.

Better than "reverend mother," Buehler is enchanted with being the grandmother of six, soon to be seven.

As for the church: "Northwest Church hasn't had many ministers and they wanted a woman to see if they can hire a woman permanently," she said. "I'm enjoying the action and the challenge, but we're still on a honeymoon."

Horsetail is plant of many names

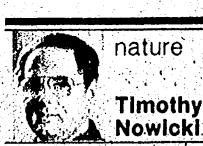

Scrubgrass, mare's-tall, cat's tai colt's-tail, foxtail, pine-top, pinegrass, meadow-pine, bottle-brush, jointed-rush, snake-grass, snakepipes, frog-pipes, toad-pipes are all common names used to describe what people in southeastern Michigan commonly call horsetail or scouring rush.

In scientific terms it's called Equisetum arvense. This name never changes no matter what part of, the country it is found.

Though common names may vary from region to region, or from habitat to habitat, they do help to describe the plant. It may not look like it, but horsetail is a primitive member of the non-flowering plants know as ferns, They do not produce a showy flower to attract insects, in fact one phase of its life cycle is sterile and looks like a bottle brush or a baby pine tree. This time of year when most green vegetation is gone, those plants that remain green become conspicious. A walk along a sandy river bank will probably lead to large green patches of horsetail. These large patches are due to the underground rizhomes that spread and sprout new plants.

DENSE GREEN patches of horsetail are made up of tall slender tubular plants with rounded tip resembling a pine cone. If you examine one of the stalks carefully, you will note some dark pointed tips encircling the plant at junctures along its entire length. These are actually modified leaves.

In summer when the plant is succulent with water it can be pulled apart at the junctures where the dark leaves are found. It can be pulled apart into as many sections as there are junctures. Some people. call it the Tinker Toy plant because it can be pulled apart and then put back together.

During the days of the pioneers, this plant was used to scour their pots and pans. Horsetall has a high concentration of silica in its stem. Its durability and scouring action was like using fine sand.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at IndependenceOaks County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia.

Artheat spotlights vignettes? from the suburban arts scene, Send news leads to: Artheat, Creative Living, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

It was a rousing success.
The third annual Laurel Park Benefit on behalf of the Livonia Symphony Orchestra raised about $12,000 through ticket sales and a silent auction at Laurel Park Place Mall Oct. 27.

'That's just absolutely terrific," said Ken Kelsey, Livonia Symphony Society president. "Last year, we cleared about $6,300 and the year before, about $5,000."

The silent auction generated $4,500.

Kelsey singled out Livonia Marriott Hotel, Northwest Airlines and Laurel Park Place Mall for special recognition in supporting the fund-raiser, now one of the LSO's top moneymakers. The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers was among the co-sponsors.

About 500 people from Oakland and Wayne countles attended the event, which included music by the LSO, food from 25 restaurants and bakeries, and a fashion show by local clothier Ann Taylor. Proceeds will help support the LSO's $100,000 operating budget. "We're looking to continue all of our concerts, unlike some other orchestras around," Kelsey said. "We'll find a way to raise more money. We're trying to be positive. We've got a lot of talent not only in our orchestra but also on our board. We're particularly inviting more corporate involvement - inviting corporations to sponsor concerts."

It's runnerup. The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers' 1990 Hollday Gift Gulde, which came out last Thanksgiving Day, took second place for special sections among weekly/biweekly newspapers in the Michigan Press Association 1990-91 Better Newspaper Contest. The announcement came during National Newspaper Week Oct. 6-12.

"It's very well done," said the judges.

Do you know someone worthy of honor in the arts world?

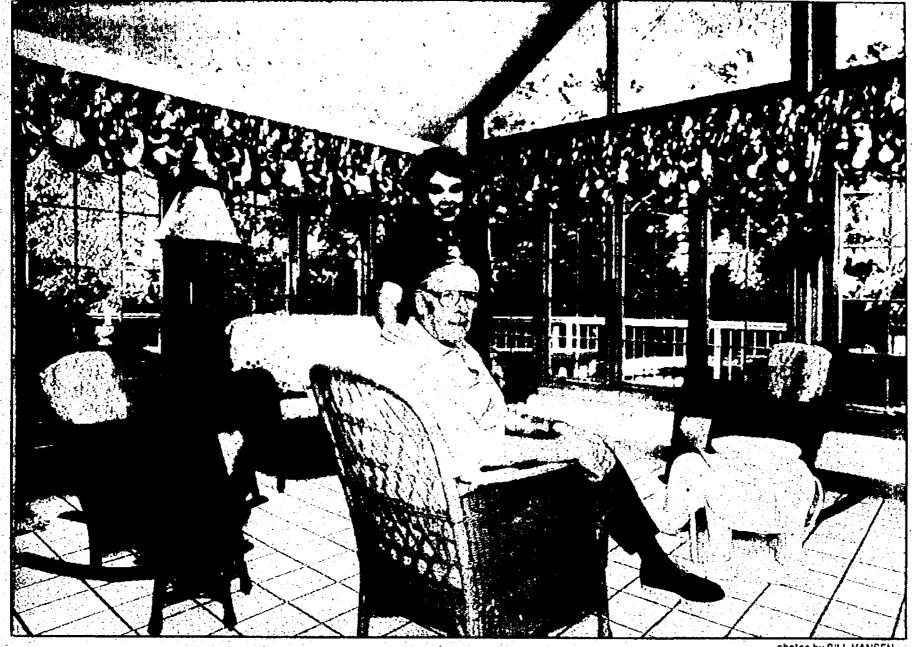

The Arts Foundation of Michigan is now accepting nominations for its 17th annual Michigan Arts and Patrons Awards.

Artists receive cash awards of $5,000.

The awards are given annually to Michigan artists in recognition of outstanding achievement in varying fields. Patron awards are bestowed upon individuals for outstanding service in support of the arts.

Winners are recognized at a ceremony in May in Detroit. The deadline to submit nominations is Jan. 6. For nomination forms, call the foundation offices in Detroit: 964-2244.

The arts foundation is an independent funding organization that encourages investment and excellence in the arts.

Dream house

Plymouth decorator designs way into magazine

By Janice Tigar-Kramer special writer

HEN CHARLES and 1/2 Kitty Talcott decided to build their 4,200square-foot, Cape Cod-style house near downtown Northville, they knew they'd need the help of a skilled interior designer. The couple already knew they liked the casual charm of Country French furniture and planned to reuse some of their classic contemporary pieces in the den. What they wanted to find was a decorator to help them combine their older pieces with new ones. They needed a decorator to help humanize the house's 11 rooms with furniture and window treatments that enhance the expansive windows and doorwalls overlooking the wooded one-acre lot. Their only request: Plenty of color. That's where Dawn McAllister Buda, a Plymouth-based interior designer came in. Her decorating background goes back almost 35 years when she began working at McAllister's House of Decorating, a paint and wallcovering store her parents owned in downtown Northville.

In 1984, Buda opened a fullservice interior design studio called Designer's Choice in her Northville home. Her second store opened 21/2 years ago in Plymouth's Old Village.

KITTY TALCOTT talked with several decorators before finding Buda, but each one told her to look inside the house while drywall was Building Magazine. through magazines for ideas. "I knew what I liked," Kitty said. "But I wanted a decorator to work with me in the house, not through pictures."

Buda, who likes being a "handson" decorator, first worked with the Talcotts from blueprints, then being installed. Buda was still helping the Talcotts select accessories in 1989, a year after they moved in.

The result is a house glamorous enough to appear in an eight-page color spread in the current edition of House Beautiful's Home

"It was a thrill to learn that we were going to be included in the magazine," Buda said. "I read House Beautiful every month so I was excited to hear they were thinking about us." .

Symphony helps young artists stoke competitive fires

THINK MUSIC. And enter a worthy young musician in the Livonia Symphony Orchestra Young Artist Competition. Call the LSO hotline for an application; 458-6575.

It's one of the few such competitions left, but it has lost none of its luster. Despite the economy, prize money will match last year's total of $3,000. And one of the 1990 winners, budding opera singer Terese Fedea, was invited to sing with the Sante Fe Opera Company last summer.

Now in its 14th year, the competition is designed to help talented music students develop into full-time professionals.

Last year, it drew a record 45 con-Livonia. Contestants came from such renowned music hotbeds as Julliard, Curtis, Oberlin, even Leningrad.

Mack-Brzozowski is on the plane faculty at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

THE COMPETITION is open to all young Michigan instrumental, piano and vocal residents or students oriented toward a classical music career but who aren't generally considered seasoned soloists.

As they perform compositions testants to Madonna University in from a symphonic program, contestants are judged on musicianship, technique and stature as a possible performing artist.

Instrumentalists often play a movement or two of a concerto.

This year's judges are first-rate: international planist Flavio Varani; Livonia Symphony's acclaimed concertmaster Victoria Haltom; and LSO music director-conductor Francesco DiBlasi, a professional musician for 45 years.

Despite the crisis in state arts funding and the struggle to lure new local sources of funding, the Livonia Symphony is committed to keeping the Young Artist Competition.

The whole construction project started five years ago when-Charles Talcott, owner and chairman of Home Planners, a company that publishes books of home plans to order, did the rough drawing for his house, designed for "empty nesters" whose children: are grown.

THE TALCOTTS drew from Charles' Boston roots, designing a sprawling Cape Cod with a large master saite on the first floor and two bedrooms and a lounge upstairs that could be closed off until their four children and grandchildreh vislt.

While Anderson-Reinke, AIA, of Farmington Hills, finished blueprints, Kitty Talcott and Buda began selecting wall and floor coverings for each room.

They settled on bold florals and background wallpapers mostly in combinations of mauve, seaform and blue. Off-white tile with mauve diamond accents was selected for the spacious entry; oak plank flooring for the dining room.

The living room's rich teal carpeting is highlighted with a black and rose-colored oriental area rug that matches draperies and a pair of upholstered occasional chairs. Colors complement the living room's wall-to-wall fieldstone fireplace.

The master suite has rosecolored carpeting to match floral wallcoverings and draperies on the bay doorwall (one of two bay windows in the room).

The master suite, tucked to one

Buda helped the Talcotts select textured floor tile in gray and mauve to complement the window and accent the Eurostyle vanity. A large, tufted ottoman in a colorful print fills the center of the bath.

The powder room on the first floor is decorated with a large floral wallpaper and a crystal chandelier brought from the Talcotts' previous house in Livonia. (Buda offset the sink to accommodate the lighting).

"This is a very 'up' house," Kitty said. "There's a quiet feeling here. It's decorated so cozy and serene. It's very easy to live in."

Though the Talcotts bought new furniture for the living and dining rooms, several chairs and sofas throughout the house were recovered. All the pieces in the den were used in their previous home. The cozy room includes classic contemporary pieces like a Knoll sofa and chair, a Warren Platner. glasstop table and a Saarinen. womb chair. The den is lined with shelves holding the Talcotts' favorite architectural books and novels. Wood plantation blinds cover French doors that open to a wrap around deck.

THOUGH THE Talcotts have plenty of living space, most family activity and entertaining ends up in the spacious country kitchen, which includes a generous work area, a two-way fireplace (whitewashed to bring out mauve tones in the red brick) a sitting area and a sunny dining area with a bay doorwall opening to the deck.

Kitty Talcott selected burgundy cherry cabinets (some with glass fronts) for the kitchen and worked with a planner in Ohio to design the room. Her large plate collection is displayed around the room over the cabinets. Buda selected a rosecolored country wallpaper and mauve and navy pin dot carpeting throughout the room. The beamed ceiling reinforces the country

The kitchen leads to the 'clutter room" (laundry) on one side and a bright sun room on the other (296 square feet not included in the total square footage).

vanities. The focal point is a mauve-colored stained glass window over the tub.

Buda and Kitty Talcott shopped around before furnishing the sun room with a 100-year-old wicker set. The decorator painted the fourpiece set mauve and chose colorful, floral cushions and matching balloon shades. A whimsical glasstop table with a cement monkey base finishes the room.

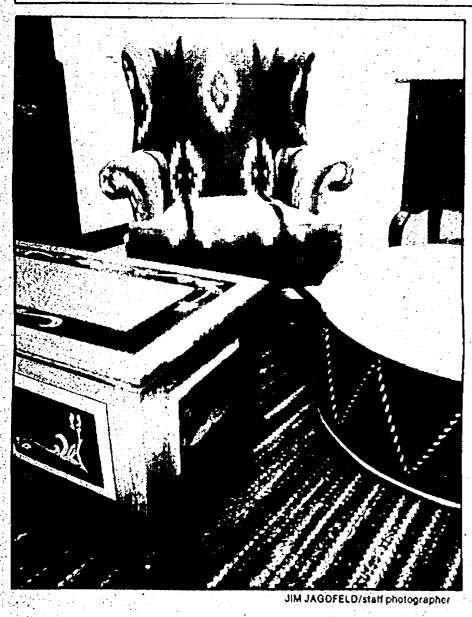

The bright room has a sloped ceiling and expansive windows to view the yard.

THOUGH THE Talcotts reserve the second floor for guests, it, too, is tastefully decorated with a country flair. Charles Talcott has converted one of two bedrooms into a spacious home office.

The charming house with a Colonial-inspired white brick exterior has a cupola and mullioned windows. A white picket fence opens to a brick patio with a garden supplying year-round color.

"The project was a process of elimination," Buda said. "We worked together to find exactly what the Talcotts wanted to live with. The result is a house with a lot of personality. It's colorful, comfortable and inviting.

"A well-decorated home is the product of a client who's open to ideas," Buda added. "The best projects, like the Talcotts, are the homes of people who are fun to work with."

lodge look, which is an evolution of the well-established Early American and country styles," Nichols said.

"Classic Interiors had, in fact, built its good reputation on these styles. To this day, after 57 years in business, we continue to carry some very fine examples through lines such as Harden, Knob Creek and Pennsylvania House, some of the nine major lines in our showroom."

Nichols added, "The lodge look evokes genuine, down-to-earth feelings that contribute to a friendly atmosphere. The collection accommodates many styles, wood finishes, sturdy textile patterns, including trapunto design in leather, and a variety of quilt options for bedding.

"Timberlake's own artistic background and special interest in the Civil War also comes through in the hand-painted panels of farm scenes and other decorative motifs. The furniture seems to acquire the character of art itself."

"FOR ALL the hand-crafted artistry, this line is adapted to modern circumstances," Nichols said, "It may be used in Great Rooms, dining and bedrooms. Cabinets and chests are also designed to include television sets and VCRs."

The coordinated displays at Classic Interiors are a must-see. They are approximations of the original settings in Timberlake's log cabin studio in North Carolina. Each is a representation of a particular aspect of an era largely ignored or reduced to factory reproductions of spinning wheels and dry sinks.

At last we can enjoy a creative artist's vision of his real world that has its roots in the past, but continues in the present. It may be the best antidote to our fast-paced, high-pressured world and provide the opportunity of acquiring our own heir-

Don't shudder at photography mistakes

To err is human . . . to forgive divine." This saying has been around for ages, and how true it is.

We could expand its interpretation in our photography pursuits to say that making a mistake is OK as long as we learn from the experience.

There are common errors that photographers make, and all too often they're repeated. But learning from a mistake will result in photographic growth that will, in turn, lead to better pictures.

HERE ARE some common mistakes photographers make, along with suggestions to correct and learn from them:

• Film didn't advance through the camera? This has probably happened to everyone, and how disappointing it can be when you have no shots of that special event.

The problem is simple to correct. Just make sure the sprockets are engaged when loading the film and keep an eye on the rewind knob. If the knob turns in reverse as you advance the film, everything will come out okay.

• Subject blurred in your shot? You didn't use a fast enough shutter

A speed of 1/125 will stop minlmal motion, but will not freeze the action in sporting events. Using a speed of 1/500 of 1/1000 second will do the trick.

• Only getting partial pictures with flash? Don't blame your flash. You simply didn't set the shutter speed dial at the correct synchronization speed, usually 1/60 second,

A mistakenly set speed of 1/125 or 1/250 second will produce a partial black band over your finished print.

• Composition not right? Is your subject too centered, is there a distracting background, or is there a tree growing out of your subject's head?

The solution is to take a few extra seconds for a careful look through the viewfinder before taking your shot. Often, a slight adjustment in camera angle or position is all it takes to vastly improve your composition. Placing the subject off center will help improve composition, too.

• Foreground subject too dark against a bright sky? Solution: Move in close to the subject, take a meter reading, and use this setting when you snap the shutter. Or you can use a meter reading off the palm of your hand to neutralize the effects of light

• Shoot a roll at the wrong ASA? With black and white film, overdevelop if you've underexposed the film and underdeveloped if you've overexposed. With color negatives film, tell your photo dealer of the error. With his or her special instructions to the processing lab, you should get satisfactory pictures.

From now on, tape the end of the film box to the back of your camera as a constant reminder of the film you're shooting.

Remember, to err in our photography is human, but to learn from the experience is wise.

Ladies kissed by fantasy mark his work

By Linda Ann Chomin special writer

The Art Gallery of Garden City, and director Norma McQueen, will host an artist's reception for Evelio David Garrido 2-6 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 17. The gallery is in Sheridan Square, 30116 Ford Road.

The artist, too lil to attend, will be represented by his friend of three decades, Bill Dean Heimerdinger.

Eleven pieces from Garrido's limited-edition prints will be displayed and available for purchase through November and December. They include Garrido's five-piece Nostalgia series, Leisure Moods series and Fantasy series. All were originally rendered lo colored pencil, pen and ink, and graphite pencil.

"As soon as I saw the work, I could tell the quality was there," McQueen said. "Having struggled with colored pencil, I know the challenge."

Garrido drawing's portray ladies, kissed by moonlight, in quiet moments of reflection."

Also on display, but not for sale, will be oil paintings from the late '60s, and childhood pen and ink drawings from 1949.

BORN IN Spain in 1935, Garrido's works feature a lone, female figure reminiscent of Art Nouveau with fantasy elements similar to Aubrey Beardsley.

Garrido's drawings portray ladies, kissed by moonlight, in quiet moments of reflection.

Even as a child, Garrido had drawn, spending his last pesetas on watercolors, oils, pencils and paper. As his parents did not approve of the desire to spend his life creating art, Garrido lest home at 18, headed for

In 1964, a lifelong dream to visit the United States came true. Once here, he decided to stay and fought the system to become a citizen, of which he is very proud;

Munich, Germany.

In 1989, after 35 years as a hair stylist, Garrido was forced to retire due to falling health. He looked forward to spending the rest of his life creating art, which he refers to as his mistress. But that was not to be.

In July 1990, he was rushed to the hospital by Heimerdinger. After a spinal tap, doctors diagnosed Garrido as suffering from an infection that had lodged itself in the brain, cryptococcal meningitis. After a 24day battle; he went home to Clinton, where he remains ill and weak.

"I HAVE a feeling he's not going to be painting or drawing any more, McQueen said.

A strong female figure lurks in 'Memories," a print created in sepia tones with black, yellow and red accenting the long, evening dress, hat and shoes. There is minimal background, merely a full, white moon. The unframed print is $150; framed, $250.

"Elizabeth the Dreamer" by Garrido features a sparse background and the repeated theme of a lady in evening dress. His use of light on folds of the gown, white roses and doves is reminiscent of the American luminist movement in the mid to late 1800s.

McQueen gracefully pointed to Garrido's use of light in "Elizabeth the Dreamer": "This gives you such a personal feeling the moon highlighting the water, her gown and the roses.".

In 1989, four of Garrido's works were shown at the Scarab Club in

A drawing for a signed print of your choice by Garrido will be at 4. p.m. Sunday, Nov. 17 in The Art Gal. lery. You must be present to win.

"Reflections," a print by Evello Garrido, uses overall sepia tones, black accents, and highlighting on white flowers and beads to create serenity and mystery.

When in doubt, test for formaldehyde problems

special writer

While most of us recall using formaldehyde to dissect frogs during biology class, its presence in foam insulation and other building materials offers the potential for both concern and misconception.

While, formaldehyde as an adhesive agent is safe in products such as plywood, carpeting, furniture and particleboard, it can become mildly acidic when molecules work free and escape in the air. If the coloriess gas builds up in a house, especially one that is weathertight, at concentrations of 0.1 parts per million and above, it may cause some discomfort in the way of a slight burning sensation, watery eyes or a runny nose.

According to the American Lung Association, an estimated one million houses have formaldehyde concentrations at or above levels considered safe. Likely candidates are those houses with extensive plywood, particleboard and foam insulation improperly installed.

"We test between 150 and 250" houses a year for formaldehyde, and I would say of those, less than 5 percent are above the 0.1 level. We're talking about a very low number, said Scott Chandler, a certified industrial hygienist with Testing Engineers & Consultants in Troy.

Chandler added even at concentrations of 0.3 to 0.4 parts per million, formaldehyde levels can be safely reduced by increasing the flow of fresh air in a hose or adding special: filters to air conditioners and furnaces.

"If you think you have a problem with formaldehyde vapors, whether through insulation or carpeting or whatever, have it checked out," Chandler said. "There are a variety of commercial testing kits available or hire a testing lab."

FEES FOR COMMERCIAL kits range from $30 to $70, while Testing Engineers charges $250 for houses in metropolitan Detroit. Real estate agents recommend houses with ureaformaldehyde foam insulation be tested before being placed on the

The professional test requires that home owners seal their homes 24' hours before a technician arrives. By allowing inside air to build up, the house is tested in a worse-case environment. Chandler said many mobile homes that contain an abundance of plywood, wood cabinets and carpeting with formaldehyde as an adhesive agent, should be tested if conditions warrant or health concerns arise. Used primarily during the energy crisis of the '70s, ureaformaldehyde foam insulation (UFFI) was banned by the federal Consumer Product Safety Commis-

A year later, the U.S. Fifth Circuit

Court of Appeals overturned the decision. The product's availability is limited today. Meanwhile, area real estate agents who have sold homes with UFFI say they sometimes have trouble alleviating concerns among prospective buyers.

Some agents argue the issue has been sensationalized by over-ambitious headlines and television reports short on research.

"IN THE LAST two years, I've sold four homes with UFFI, and when they were tested, the formaldehyde levels were the same as outside air," said LuAnn Fardell, a real estate agent of six years with Century 21 Town and Country in Birmingham. "But I have had one or two prospective buyers pass on a house because of UFFI. In those cases, the couples were heeding concerns raised by relatives and friends, and not the experts."

Chandler said he would live in a home with UFFI after having it tested. "When problems with the foam insulation do arise, it's often because the product was improperly installed," he said. "But the problem can be corrected."

In addition, Chandler said most formaldehyde dissipates during the first lew years after installation and should be gone after eight to 10 years. Houses that have been renovated using formaldehyde-based products may also require a test. In almost al instances, sellers, to the best of their knowledge, are required to reveal in disclosure agreements whether a house has UFFL.

If it turns out UFFI is present in the house, a buyer could open up a lawsuit if a seller fails to disclose the presence of the foam insulation. If sellers are unsure of what lies behind outside walls, they can hire a professional home inspector, or the buyer and seller can mutually agree on an inspector and split the cost. "One of the big problems with back up. It just wasn't practical." IN SOME CASES, real estate agents working with UFFI houses which have been tested for formaldehyde vapors have found levels lower than homes with other insulation products.

> For more information about formaldehyde, two free booklets are available by writing to Indoor Air Quality Research Laboratory, Ball State University, Muncie, Ind., 47306. Include a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope for each report.

The fact that the cost of litigation will be potentially expensive does not preclude the board from determining the scope and magnitude of the problems at the condominium and making a proper and reasoned business decision as to whether and in what form it should pursue the developer.

Recently you had an answer to a question regarding a specific warranty obligation to be given by a developer. Is there a law implying warranties to a developer?

Yes. Michigan law implies warranties of habitability in connection with new construction of residential houses, notwithstanding the absence of a specific express warranty. The law implies that the developer of a condominium project, by way of example, will build a condominium that is free from defects in workmanship and materials as they relate to habitability, among other things.

To the extent that these defects are latent, the warranty may well extend beyond the time period set in any specific warranty provided by the developer under certain circumstances. You must look at the particular facts of each case before making a final determination as to the extent and applicability of any express or implied warranty. Keep in mind that there are several implied warranties that may be imputed to the builder/developer such as fitness for a particular purpose and compliance with the plans and specifications of the project or unit.

NEW 1992 DODGE

CARAVAN 7 PASS.

It used to be that buying a car meant choosing between New Car Sticker Shock with instant depreciation or Used Car mystery with high mileage and suspect condition. Now there's an afternative. Smart Cara available only at Bruce Campbell Dodge, are extremely low mileage vehicles. These previously leased buy backs have never been titled to an individual. They're the most popular vehicles available and come with a majority of the manufacturer's warranty. And most important, with the Smart Car, the initial new vehicle depreciation has been eliminated making the purchase price far less than the identical vehicle.

Jon Greenberg and Associates wanted to design an atmosphere at Children's Hospital where kids could act like kids.

Changing patient needs, technology force boom in hospital construction

By Brian Lyaaght

staff writer

Jerry Collins, project manager at Rochester's Crittendon Hospital, realled a time not so long ago when ospital rooms were painted green Crittendon in January opened a 4),000-square-foot ambulatory care enter. The new building's color scheme is teal and purple.

"Hospitals are trying to create a more up-to-date image," Collins

Health care facilities are no longer waiting for patients to check themselves in Health care consumers are shopping around. Marketing is important. Hospitals are competing to draw customers, just like other businesses.

They need modern facilities, and they need to build where their customer base is. In recent years, hospitals, the strong ones at least, have continued to build as the health care industry changed,

"Most hospitals, those that are still healthy, are still building," said David Ferguson, director of design and construction at Botsford Hospi-

"I'm building as fast as they ask me to," said Charles Bisel, Providence Hospital's director of facilities planning and construction.

AMONG THE NEW construction projects under way, planned or recently completed:

• Royal Oak's Beaumont Hospital is in the midst of a $200-million addition, the latest of several major building projects.

• Children's Hospital of Michigan in Detroit unveiled in January a three-story, $12-million ambulatory care center, and is renovating other facilities.

• Botsford Hospital in Farmington Hills is building a 45,000-squarefoot outpatient surgery clinic at a cost of $10 million, to be completed next year. Botsford is soon to break

Retail designers switch gears

The new outpatient center at Children's Hospital of Michigan marked a first for the Southfield-based design firm of Jon Greenberg and Associates.

The company was hired to design common areas in the building, but Greenberg had never worked on a hospital project. Its specialty is retail design.

Greenberg partner Mike Crosson said a six-member team applied a "freewheeling, thinking process" to the job, which both parties are calling a success.

Children's new William Carls Ambulatory Care Center opened last January, and the hospital is in the midst of renovating other buildings, which are about 20 years old.

Crosson said the Children's work provided a lot of satisfaction and more than a few challenges.

'When you get involved in a project like Children's Hospital, your trade, craft, profession has the ability to be put to use to help people where they are in a difficult time," he GREENBURG IS best known for work in malls. The company designed the new Warner Bros. entertainment merchandise stores and several new Ringling Bros. Barnum and Bailey stores. Locally, they've designed Winkelman's stores and renovated the Birmingham clothing store Maxwell's.

Crosson said the six-person team led by Paul Calderon and Michelle Martines was concerned with designing a space to satisfy the needs of Well, here's a novel idea. House sales are down and economic conditions aren't likely to improve in the next couple of months, so builders are faced with coming up with a way of generating interest.

Mel Kaftan, president of Kaftan Enterprises Inc. in Southfield, decided to hold an auction, "It was strictly a business decision," Kaftan said.

The project, Oakbrbooke of West Bloomfield, is nearly three years old and about half sold out, but in the current market, new home sales have ground to a near standstill.

KAFTAN SAID his options were to elther continue selling homes in the traditional way - with an expensive marketing program that includes advertising and a sales staff, or he could opt for a quick sell option of an

Typically, a developer/builder will prepare the property, build a model house or two, and then sell lots and build the houses with desired changes for the buyer. "The carrying costs can be very high."

For a 40-acre development like Oakbrooke, it might take an expensive marketing program and several years before a project is sold out. Anauction speeds up the project tremendously.

"With the auction, I'll sell everything in an hour and a half," he said, adding sometimes businesses hold auctions because creditors are banging at the doors, but in this instance, he made the decision to save money. "I won't make any money, but I will finish off this project." Which isn't to say he regards Oakbrooks as a failure, he said. Nearly half of the houses in the upscale development have been sold and more probably would have been sold if the economy hadn't nosedived. Selling off the project even in an auction - should actually be considered as a success, he said.

This isn't the first time Kaftan has tried an auction. In 1981, Kaftan sold out his Southfield condominium project, Providence Towers, by an

"It seems I need an auction every 10 years or so.

KELLY FRANK, vice president and Michigan broker with the Chicago-based Sheldon Good & Company, said although his company has handled several upscale property auctions around the country this is the first in Michigan.

"This is probably the most desirable project we've done up in Detroit," he said. Earlier this year, the firm held an auction for Orchard Place condominiums in Farmington

Even though housing sales were down even then, Sheldon Good & Company auctioned 61 units in a single afternoon, he said, adding he expects similar success at Oakbrooke.

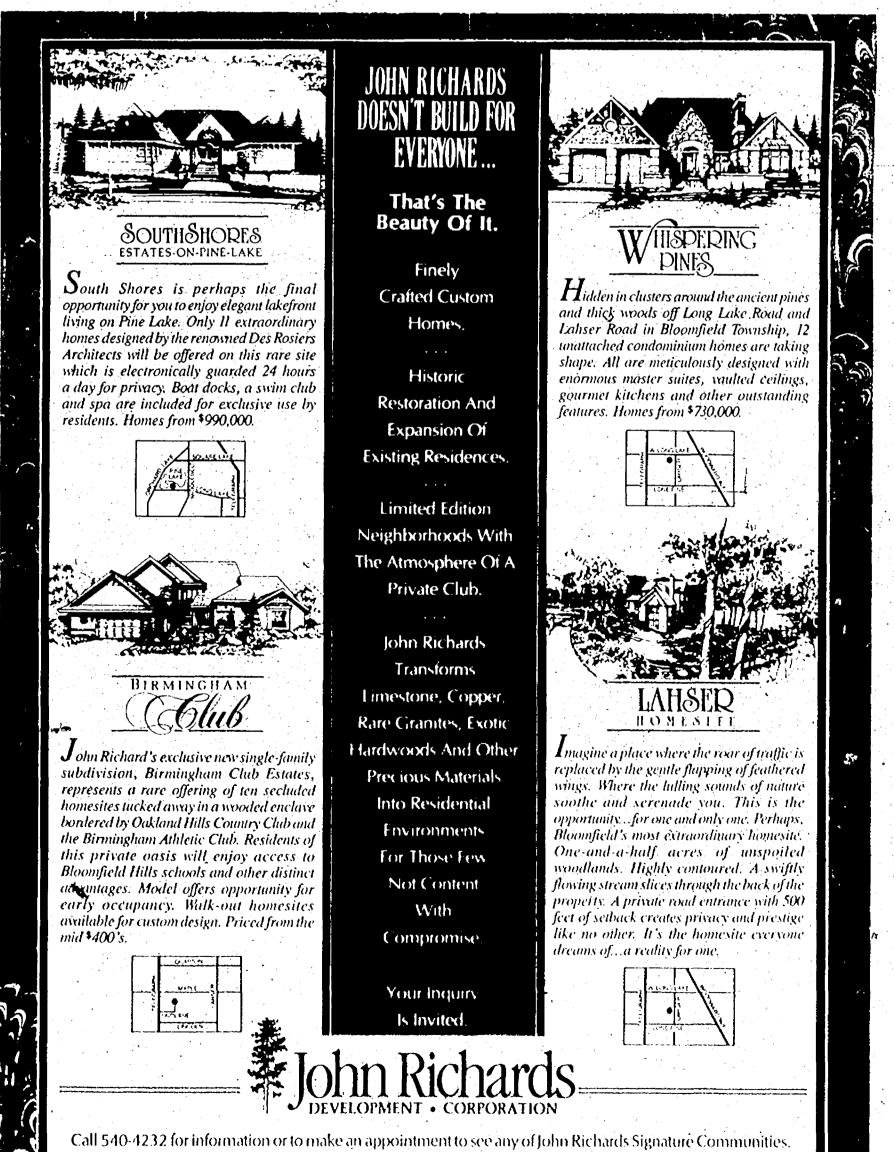

"It's hard for us to determine who will be there (and) how successful the auction may be," he said. But similar upscale auctions in Rochester Hills, Chicago and the Southeast have done well.

An auction in Chicago earlier this year sold 40 townhomes for a total of $8.6 million and a second auction of a single house netted $2.1 million, he said. Despite the economy and slow housing sales nationwide, other auctions have succeeded equally as

"Our (Sheldon Good) niche is handling quality real estate - we don't handle the board-ups and HUD (housing and urban development) homes," Frank said.

New construction property auctions are more like art auctions then bankruptcy or tax sale auctions,

LONG-TERM hospital stays are in the past like the green and white decor, and this too has changed hospital space needs. Crittendon, like most hospitals, now performs more outpatient than inpatient surgery. Many of the new buildings are outpa-

Builders avoid boom-bust cycle

By Doug Funke staff writer

Conservatism in residential construction activity during good times makes life less painful for developers and builders when the economic climate changes.

Builders here - who tend to follow that philosophy - are faring somewhat better now than counterparts' around the country, according to U.S. Housing Markets, a research publication of Lomas Mortgage USA, which has an office in Livonia.

Demand nationally for residential building sites is generally low, the report said. Builders are putting up fewer models, and some are even selling out of trailers in subdivisions. Project phases have become smaller.

"In Detroit, a tight-knit developer community is closely attuned to the local economy," said Wayne D. Ferguson, president of Lomas Realty

Because of the sharply cyclical nature of the auto industry, they've learned to smell trouble well in advance of a slowdown. Thus, the supply of lots in Detroit-Ann Arbor has stayed in balance."

Lot prices have skidded in Philadelphia, Dallas-Fort Worth and Tampa Bay, according to the report.

CONSTRUCTION ACTIVITY in southern California has collapsed, the report continues. California has lost nearly a quarter million jobs in the last year. Work on some houses has stopped in the middle of construction.

As for the metro Detroit-Ann Arbor area, the report found:

drome.

• No wide fluctuations in lot and land prices — no boom and bust syn-

• The inventory of houses, completed or under construction, is moderate and manageable.

• The normally tight-knit, conservative development community has become even more so.

• Projects, which rarely exceeded 300 acres even in good times, generally are less than 100 acres now. • Building permits through the first eight months of the year were down 13 percent. Conversations with several builders here bear out many findings of the report. "Builders have been burned here historically so many times that they're very cautious," said Sheldon Rose, president of Edward Rose Building Co. in Southfield. "Lenders here are extremely cautious. Lenders in this area are sound, and the reason is they have adopted prudent lending practices."

"I THINK we're a little more conservative," said Gary Shapiro, president of Ivanhoe Building Co. in West Bloomfield. "Developers keep close

Builders and developers are cautiously approaching new projects thanks in part to a slowed demand and a tight lending atmosphere.

tabs on what market needs are and bring lots on in accordance with demand.

"Developers and builders have not been greedy or experienced wild inflation. We've kept prices reasonable, profit margins low and fair. In Michigan, we have a very astute

"I would tell you supply and demand are very much in balance," said Gerald Brody, vice president of The Brody Group in Bloomfield Hills. "We have slow but steady absorption. People are getting good value for money. There's no steals."

Many major builders in the metro area build on lots they develop. Few build spec houses. Both situations are good for profit margins.

We generally build after we sell,"

Rose said. "I don't really attempt to plan too far ahead. If demand is there, we build. If it isn't, we don't.

We don't do too much forecasting.' Rose, who described business as "a little on the soft side," is building houses in the $80,000-$90,000 range on 160 lots in Ypsilanti and houses for $100,000-$105,000 on 400 lots in Brownstown Township.

NEITHER SHAPIRO nor Rose intends to build fewer models due to a sagging economy.

But Shapiro said he will take a more cautious approach on potential building sites he's considering in Farmington Hills, West Bloomfield, Novi and Commerce Township. "We'll watch the marketplace and determine how large phases we'll do," Shapiro said. "We have done 80-85 (lots) in the past. We may split

About 18 of 132 lots remain available in Mission Springs in West. Bloomfield, where houses average $250,000.

Nearly 70 percent of the 86 lots have been sold in Woodland Ridge, a joint venture with Biltmore, Shapiro said. Houses in that West Bloomfield subdivision average $275,000.

"We've had good absorption. It's been steady," he said.

Brody said he would build fewer models today - "you're talking a tremendous amount of working caple tal" - and probably would bring fewer units on line in initial phases unless demand would warrant more.

"What we're looking at (in the lmmediate future) is more off-site construction on individual lots. I still -have lots in inventory I'm willing to sell off on the assumption the market isn't going to return in any great boom any time soon."

Brody has 10 of 45 sites left in ... Troy's Hartford Square, where his houses average $179,000, and four of 23 left at Royal Pointe in West Bloomfield, where his models sell ... from $350,000 to $450,000.

Brody also is one-third built at Lochmoor, a 48-unit condominium development in Orion Township where units start at $132,000.
