Black leaders: Duke bid could spur racism

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

An unsettling fear clouded Monday's observance of Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday, as local black leaders worried that race relations could be damaged by ex-Klanman David Duke's bid in Michigan's presidential primary.

Some leaders raised concerns that Duke, a former Ku Klux Klan grand wizard and Nazi sympathizer, could use the ailing economy to foster hatred of minorities among whites who've lost their jobs or fear losing them.

Despite some gains that blacks cited in race relations in Westland, the Wayne-Westland school district and other western Wayne County communities, black leaders suggested that Duke's appeal — however limited — could create more acceptance of white supremacist beliefs.

"David Duke's message sells easier right now because you've got a lot of disgruntled people out there," said Jim Netter, who recently ended a six-year stint as executive secretary of the western Wayne County NAACP chapter.

Black leaders suggested that Duke's showing in the presidential primary will provide an indication of whether race relations have improved or deteriorated.

"I'm a little bit concerned," said Leonard Posey, named two years ago as the first black Wayne-Westland school board member. "I've got to believe there are some people in our community who believe in this philosophy that minorities are taking opportunities away (from whites)."

Duke has been criticized by many blacks and whites, alike, and the Republican Party to which he purports to belong has shunned him. But black leaders know that some voters who denounce Duke in public may support him in private.

Netter recalled a chilling scenario when Gerald Carlson, an admitted white supremacist, became the Republican nominee to oppose U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor, in the 15th Congressional District race in 1980. The district includes Westland, Garden City, part of Livonia and as well as other parts of western Wayne county and eastern Washtenaw County.

Carlson lost that fall, then switched to the Democratic Party and challenged Ford — again unsuccessfully — in the 1982 primary. Even though Carlson lost both races, he mounted a strong challenge that has been remembered by local black leaders who fear Duke's message.

"His belief is if you're white,

Activist charges school board recall drive has racist origins

By Darrell Clem

Allegations of racism have emerged against a recall committee that wants to oust three Wayne-Westland school board members, including the only black ever appointed to the board and two whites who supported his candidacy.

But recall leaders have strongly denied racism as a motive in their effort to oust Leonard Posey, who is black, and Kathleen Chorbagan and Andrew Spisak, who are white.

"We're recalling two whites and one black. Come on, now," said Steven Lind, chairman of the citizens recall group known as New Beginnings for our Children.

The charges of racism came from Wayne resident Jim Netter, a local NAACP activist who raised the issue Monday — Martin Luther King Jr. Day — as the Observer polled local minority leaders about suburban race relations. Netter recently stepped down from a six-year stint as executive secretary of the NAACP's western Wayne County chapter.

SOME WHITES became upset with Chorbagan, Spisak and some other board members — who have since resigned or lost their re-election bids — for supporting Posey for a board vacancy in December 1989, Netter said. Posey won election to a four-year term six months later.

"It had been a lily white board, and they loved it," Netter said.

Netter singled out NBC's efforts to recall Posey as an indication that "racism doesn't die," even though he said the school district and the city

Dad receives probation for molesting daughter

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

A 43-year-old Westland man who admitted sexually abusing his 16-year-old daughter has been placed on probation for five years and ordered to cease contact with minors.

Roger Stewart Martz, whose daughter accused him of forcing her to undress, fondling her and performing oral sex on her, also has been ordered to receive psychiatric help and perform community service.

Martz's sentence came as he appeared before Judge Harvey Tennen in Detroit Recorder's Court — about two months after he pleaded guilty to one count of second-degree criminal sexual conduct.

His daughter had testified in September in Westland's 18th District Court that Martz sexually abused her "at least once a week" from the summer of 1989 until April 1990, when she was 14 and 15 years old.

The girl remained silent until she told her mother in July 1990. The disclosure resulted in divorce proceedings.

Martz's sentence stemmed from a guilty plea in Recorder's Court in November. He pleaded guilty to a single count of second-degree criminal sexual conduct, amid a plea agreement worked out by his attorney, Marvin Blake, and the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office.

THE AGREEMENT resulted in two first-degree counts of criminal sexual conduct and an additional second-degree count being dropped.

"The court did follow the terms of the agreement," Blake said, referring to the Jan. 5 sentence.

Martz, a Ford Motor Co. employee, could have been sentenced up to 15 years in prison. But attorneys agreed that probation, psychiatric treatment and an order that he cease contact with minors, including his daughter, appeared to be a suitable outcome.

Still, his attorney indicated that Martz eventually could be allowed to see his children. "I can't imagine that he wouldn't," Blake said.

Blake had earlier told the Observer that Martz "has maintained his innocence from the start, but in relation to the plea agreement, he did have to offer a plea to one count."

"He was willing to do this," Blake said, "so if he was satisfied with it, then I'm satisfied with it."

Martz's daughter said he became violent when she openly confronted him about the sexual abuse. Martz never took the stand during court proceedings.

Proposed bus for seniors criticized for not having lift

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

The Westland City Council's decision to buy a senior citizens tour bus that lacks a handicap lift sparked criticism from several residents attending Monday night's council session.

"It sounds like discrimination to me," senior Dorothy Canup told the council.

The council voted last month to spend $75,000 for the 43-passenger bus that will be used for long-distance tours that leave from the senior citizens' Friendship Center on Newburgh Road, north of Marquette. The council pledged the money after seniors agreed to raise a matching amount.

But some residents raised concerns Monday that the council has shunned seniors by ordering the bus that is expected to be built and delivered in about six months.

"Why isn't it going to have a lift? If it's money, then wait until we have the money," Canup, a Westgate Towers resident, said. She said later that at least five residents in her building would need a handicap lift to make trips.

Genevieve Scroggins, who accompanied Canup to Monday's session, said during an interview with the Observer that, "We're all liable to be crippled at times. I might be in a wheelchair in another year with arthritis."

Patrick Quinn, representing the Westland Civilians, said his group also wanted to go on the record opposing the decision.

neth Mehl cast the lone dissenting vote against the bus, saying the council made "a big mistake" by failing to accommodate all senior citizens on the bus.

Some other council members appeared concerned, but said they approved the bus because they had made a promise to senior citizens. The council vote came after a legal opinion noted that a handicap lift couldn't be required by law unless the bus became a part of a fixed-route system.

Earlier estimates had indicated it would cost only $10,000 more to add a handicap lift, but city officials said the lift would slash 10 of 43 seats from the bus.

But Westland resident Ethel Boll-

Booze sellers: Privatization could dry up jobs

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Facing what may be the most serious threat in recent memory at doing away with state involvement in wholesale liquor operations, Michael Bacon displays moderation when discussing the subject.

Bacon, manager of the state liquor store on Levan south of I-96 in Livonia, is responsible for distributing hard liquor to local party stores, bars and restaurants and other Detroit area communities.

"I try to be fair, but when your job is on the line it's hard to be absolutely neutral," said Bacon, a 20-year state employee.

He was referring to proposed legislation calling for the privatization or deregulation of the state's liquor traffic and Gov. John Engler's instruction to the Michigan Department of Commerce to devise a plan for private wholesaling beginning next Jan. 1.

"Over the past 10 years, the state has spent $500,000 on studies for privatization. Every three or four years the issue comes up. But this is the most serious threat since I've been here," Bacon said.

THE MOST recent study, commissioned in 1990 by the state Commerce Department and conducted by Price Waterhouse, concluded that under privatization the state could not impose enough new liquor taxes to replace revenue it gets as the state's monopoly wholesaler.

"Privatization doesn't make sense. It doesn't make more money. It's an ideological thing," Bacon said.

Since Prohibition ended in the early 1930s, the Michigan Liquor Control Commission has been the sole wholesaler of liquor in the state, issuing licenses, setting prices and earning money from taxes as well as a markup on distillery prices.

The operation nets some $95 million annually which helps fund education, fire protection, tourism and the housing authority.

Under privatization, an estimated 500 state employees at 72 state-run liquor stores will likely lose jobs, including the 12 who are employed in Livonia. The number does not include additional contract employees.

BACON'S ASSISTANT manager John Fisher asks, "We're such a big revenue-maker for the state. The money trickles down to everyone, including school kids. Why monkey with the system?"

The Price Waterhouse study also concluded prices of liquor would jump under privatization, up some 38 percent based on markups from distillers to private wholesalers to retailers.

This point is of grave concern to Romeo Hesano, who for six years has operated a family-owned business called the Pilgrim Party Shoppe in Plymouth.

"We'd probably go out of business. It's a tough industry as it is and when you do something like privatization, the bigger stores with bigger buying power can get better wholesale prices. They have the money be-

Activist: Recall has racist origins

of Westland have made some strides in recent years to improve race relations. (See related story.)

Posey conceded that he believes some of his critics want him recalled because "they would like to see the only black on the board (taken) off the board."

"To a degree, there is a segment of the people involved in the recall effort who don't want to see blacks on the board," Posey said. "I don't know how many, but I can tell you that there are community black leaders who are very concerned about it. It is an issue."

HOWEVER, POSEY didn't cite racism as the predominant factor in the recall. He said he believes the recall group has targeted him, Chorbagan and Spisak primarily because they supported Superintendent Dennis O'Neill, who plans to retire Aug. 31 amid pressure from four other board members who want new leadership.

"The fact that I happen to be black is an added bonus for some people," Posey said.

The recall committee has attrib-ted its effort to a school board-approved contract in February that gave teachers an 11.9-percent raise over two years, despite threatened program cuts for students. Lind said racist motives have never emerged in talks among NBC members.

"To my knowledge, there's nobody on my committee who feels that way about it," he said. "It's not a racial issue. That's completely unfounded. It has absolutely nothing to do with his color."

Lind said he had been a Posey supporter until Posey — along with Chorbagan, Spisak and other board members since ousted — supported a 7.75-mill tax increase that eventually won voter approval last June 10. Lind and NBC members didn't believe the tax increase was necessary.

"That issue alone changed my mind," Lind said.

ALTHOUGH POSEY believes there are some racist motives in the recall, he indicated that those sentiments don't appear to be widespread. When he campaigned for a four-year term, he said, "I didn't encounter any outward act of racism, nor did anybody in my campaign."

Posey also has drawn support

Leonard Posey school board member from both blacks and whites as a member of such groups as the Wayne-Westland Youth Athletic Association. "I've always been treated with respect," he said.

Posey indicated that the recall group has failed to realize the significance of having the first black ever to serve on the school board. Moreover, NBC members don't understand the contributions that he has made to improve the district not only for blacks — but for all students, he said.

"If they did, I think they'd leave me alone," he said.

Leaders fear Duke could spawn racism blond-haired and blue-eyed, you should be considered first. He's saying 'you're genetically better,'" Netter said. "But Martin Luther King Jr. had a dream for mankind, rather than himself. And he made the ultimate sacrifice for that dream."

Black leaders fear that Duke's message could damage race relations that they said have improved locally.

NETTER COMMENDED the Wayne-Westland school district for "doing everything possible to make the kids know and understand what Martin Luther King Jr. was all about." Many schools had special displays and programs honoring the slain civil rights activist.

Netter also lauded the city of Westland, saying it has prospered, while some cities have deteriorated, because it has strived to diversify. "You don't hear about too much racial strife in Westland. At city hall, I just don't think it's tolerated," he said.

"The city has provided equal services to all areas of the city, and I think that's what has made Westland great."

Posey said he believes Wayne-Westland schools have come up short on multicultural programs. "That has been one of the things that has disturbed me and bothered me and that I'm critical about in our schools," he said.

Posey plans to continue to push for better programs. Moreover, he suggested that city governments, churches and other organizations could improve race relations by sponsoring more public forums to discuss issues.

"We're not anywhere close, in a lot of ways, to realizing equality in economics, education and employment," he said.

DARLENE SCOTT, an assistant principal at Wayne Memorial High School, agreed. "Things are at a standstill, or maybe we're even losing some ground," she said.

In schools, little attention has been paid to achieving a racial balance in the last decade — both in student populations and teaching staffs, she said. "And it seems like people are just looking the other way."

Scott said more opportunities for minority teachers may open up as longtime teachers begin to retire. "But it's going to take some expertise in identifying minorities and hiring them."

With political figures like Duke emerging, black leaders have called for a redoubling of efforts to improve race relations.

Scott, referring to King's dream, said, "It's important that we don't let the flame die."

hind them." Richard George of the Wine Barrel in Redford Township shares Hesano's concern.

"I've been in the liquor industry for 30 years. I've seen Meijer's come into the state. Right now, you can buy vodka for the same price from me or Meijer's, but ask consumers where it's cheaper and 95 percent will say Meijer's."

"DON'T GET me wrong. I like Meijer's. I shop at Meijer's," George said. "But with privatization, I estimate they will take over probably 50 percent of the existing (liquor) market."

"This is the second largest revenue maker in the state. Why fix something if it isn't broken," he said. "If the state wants to increase revenue, why not hire someone like me, whose been in the business my entire life, to tighten up the existing system?"

"There's too much inventory, too many distribution centers," George said. "I could fine tune the system and make the state an additional 25 percent."

Until recently, state Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, supported privatization. He now "questions the wisdom" of such a proposal.

"We need to do a great deal of research before we jump on this," Geake said.

A primary issue, he said, is money.

PRESENT STATE income from liquor wholesaling could not be matched under privatization, even with increased taxes. And, he added, an estimated $30 million windfall from the sale of current liquor stock owned by the state is misleading. The stock has yet to be paid for.

He also fears privatization means heightened marketing and advertising strategies by private companies. The state presently does no advertising whatsoever.

"I would be very concerned about any state initiative that leads to more advertising of liquor," Geake said. "More advertising could be the result of privatization."

Tour bus purchase criticized inger, who works with handicapped people, told the council Monday that she had information about a lift that wouldn't reduce the bus capacity as much. "Hopefully we could meet the needs of all the citizens of Westland," she said.

COUNCIL MEMBERS agreed to handicap lift installed as the bus is being built. "It's not really a done issue as far as the lift is concerned," council President Charles Pickering said, though he stopped short of promising the lift.

If it's not added, the council is expected to buy a separate, smaller bus to carry handicapped people on the tours, he said. That bus would cost an estimated $25,000 to $40,000.

Westland resident Dorothy Smith indicated that the city could have saved money if it had planned earlier to buy one bus, with a handicap lift. "Anybody who can make any sense of this, see me out in the hall," she said Monday.

Continental Cablevision...Bringing Things You Just Can't Put A Price On INTERNATIONAL AWARENESS

Last year we bought cable TV for the first time when my oldest son went to the Persian Gulf. My youngest son was able to keep track of what his big brother was going through by watching CNN anytime of the day. The crisis is mostly over now, but my son is still overseas and we still watch CNN to keep an eye on world events.

TOGETHERNESS

My husband Sam just retired last year and we've had cable for a long time. Since we don't get out much anymore great home entertainment is important to us. And besides, Cable TV is something we deserve to enjoy during our retirement.

EDUCATION

We've always enjoyed Cable TV, but we've always been concerned about how much TV we let our kids watch. Then something different happened. Our daughter Kristen was excited about a homework assignment on dinosaurs. She had watched a segment of a dinosaur program on Arts & Entertainment in school and watched the rest at home. Well, she got a B+ on her dinosaur paper and now she's watching C-SPAN for her government class. We knew Cable TV entertained our kids, but we didn't realize it could teach them too.

All in all, it is important that you know you're getting your money's worth in programming, service and support.

It's all downhill for sledders before meltdown begins

WESTLAND WAS buried under 10 inches of snow last week.

Drivers hated it because they couldn't get to their jobs.

But kids loved it because they missed one day of school and enjoyed more than week of sledding, ice skating and snowman-building.

Since all good (or bad) things have to come to an end, the snow started to melt this week with a mid-January thaw.

But that didn't stop youngsters Monday from enjoying one last fling with their sleds on the Hines Drive near Ann Arbor Trail.

Sleepy pheasant program to perk up area students

John Curcio's wildlife presentation will put a pheasant to sleep, but youngsters are likely to stay wide awake and deeply interested.

Curcio, 25, is bringing his program to several schools in Livonia school district, which includes the northern section of Westland.

"They love it," Curcio said of the youngsters. "A lot of kids have never seen pheasants. A lot of kids don't even know what they are."

CURCIO SOMETIMES brings quail and a wild turkey to schools, along with pheasant eggs and grown ring-necked pheasants.

He can put a pheasant to sleep by tucking the bird's head beneath its wing, then gently rubbing its back. He uses the trick to transport the birds peacefully as well. Youngsters like to see this trick too. If Curcio is successful, the pheasant will fall over, deep in slumber.

"I was taught that by a little old man," he said.

Curcio began raising pheasants at age 15 when he got a dozen of the wild birds as a gift.

He now has more than 100, including ring-necks, red golden and yellow goldens, which he keeps in a pen outside his Taylor home.

Curcio started touring Detroit area schools less than two years ago, when a Lincoln Park teacher asked him to bring the birds to a classroom.

Curcio, who is a state-licensed pheasant keeper, said he visited 150 schools last year and hopes to make presentations at 350 this year.

CURCIO HAS talks in the near future at Cass, Buchanan and Cleveland elementaries.

Curcio delivers pheasant eggs that students can raise and eventually release into the wild.

Usually as part of his program, he brings eggs to the school in spring. The school incubates the eggs, then keeps them for a few weeks after they hatch, when Curcio then picks up again. The following autumn he goes with students to a state park or other wildlife area where the birds are freed.

'They love it. A lot of kids have never seen pheasants.'

Curcio said "it's a happy day" when the birds are released.

"This is giving something back, instead of everybody taking and taking and taking." He hopes to one day establish a sanctuary where pheasants can be raised and released.

He said Michigan's pheasant population has been struggling in recent years because development has destroyed the birds' habitat and also pointed to the effects of agricultural chemicals.

Trump business cards feature pictures

By Phillip A. Sherman
staff writer

Back in the mists of time, before our collective consciousness recognized The Donald, Ivana and Maria Maples, there were Trump Cards.

Karen Strichartz, owner of Face Value Marketing in West Bloomfield, said Trump once filed a lawsuit against Trump Cards, a national company that sells franchises to entrepreneurs, but later turned around and endorsed the product.

Not that he needs a business card bearing his picture — we know what he looks like.

BUT STRICHARTZ, an authorized Trump Card dealer, is betting most people don't know what you look like.

Judging by the fact that her client list numbers in the low hundreds after only 5 years in business, one could assume she wagered correctly.

Trump cards are business cards, but better. They're actually photographs the size of business cards, in full color, on Kodak paper, often but not always bearing the likeness of the person named on the card.

'They don't realize it's not really a business card — it's more of a walking billboard for themselves.'

The picture is limited only by one's imagination, according to Strichartz.

"They don't realize it's not really a business card — it's more of a walking billboard for themselves," Strichartz said, paging through examples of the cards.

Strichartz recommends a picture of yourself on the card. "It's really your face that you want on that photograph — people buy from people. It warms them up," she said.

That said, one of her most popular Trump Cards — "the name goes back to playing your best card" — was of a crossed scissors and comb on a lush red background for a hair stylist.

ANOTHER CARD, for a magician, had a picture of the wizard in black tux, levitating a silver sphere while a boa constrictor slithered over his shoulder.

Effective is the word that comes to mind, and that's confirmed by Strichartz.

"Eight of 10 conventional business cards are pitched. Ten of 10 Trump Cards are kept."

Local reps star in Dems reply

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Local Democrats James Kosteva of Canton and William Keith of Garden City won starring roles in their party's reply to Gov. John Engler's state of the state message.

Democratic orators on a 22-minute videotape used the term "middle class" 14 times and accused Engler of "shredding the safety net" of social services for the poor.

Kosteva, chair of the House Colleges and Universities Committee, sponsored the Michigan Education Trust (MET), the prepaid college tuition program Engler is trying to shut down.

"One evidence of the success of the MET program is that it's not only the 55,000 enrollees who have signed up, but we currently have 1,300 students in Michigan colleges and universities today who are there largely because of MET," Kosteva said.

He accused Engler of "political motivations" in trying to "discredit" MET.

KEITH, de facto chair of Speaker Lewis Dodak's commission on worker training, said the goal is to bring business into vocational education so it's "no longer a dumping ground" for the academically weak.

Keith added, "Many of these middle class people are one paycheck away from disaster."

"And with massive layoffs and massive cutbacks such as we're facing in the state of Michigan, many of those people need to be retrained so that they could get jobs, even in their own fields, today, with more technical knowledge."

But as Democrats bashed Engler on behalf of the middle class and poor, one Republican bashed back. "What we don't need is people thinking in terms of one class against another," said Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia.

REP. MAXINE Berman, D-Southfield, found one line in Engler's speech to praise.

"The governor struck the right chord on Michigan workers being quality workers. He may have learned from last year that if he comes waving a machete, people are going to wave a machete back," she said.

"But I don't like his (property) tax proposal. First, it will decimate our budget — there's no money to replace that. Second, the residential property taxpayer has been paying more (than business). I suspect it won't win at the polls."

But Rep. John Bennett, D-Redford, found much more to agree with. A $1,000 per job tax credit for business? "That's pretty good. I like that." Promoting tourism and giving business tax incentives in Detroit? "I'm for that." Cleaning up more Democrat James Kosteva of Canton criticized Engler for trying to shut down the Michigan Education Trust Fund.

Democrat William Keith of Garden City said: "Many of these middle class people are one paycheck away from disaster."

toxic sites? "I've been preaching that for five years."

BENNETT RAISED an eyebrow at Engler's opposition to a fuel tax increase. "How are we gonna improve roads?" he asked.

Said Rep. Dennis Hertel, D-Detroit, chair of the House Transportation Committee: "Without additional revenue, it (road building) is going to be jeopardized."

Two outstate Republicans also were unhappy at Engler's opposition to a fuel tax increase.

"I'm disappointed. We've got a lot of work to do," said Rep. Susan Munsell of Howell.

Engler calls for tax cuts, better schools

By Tim Richard

"Change." Gov. John Engler said 23 times in his 1992 state of the state address.

More tax cuts, improved schools and better delivery of social services will be the themes of his second year as chief executive.

The conservative Republican insisted Tuesday there would be "no retreat down the path of failure — liberal, big government, tax and spend approach — $150 billion worth during the 1980s."

Engler disappointed many on both sides of the aisle with his refusal to support a fuel tax increase for roads. "Now is not the time," he said, pledging Michigan would come up with a 20 percent match for an anticipated $3 billion in federal aid without a tax hike.

How? "We have ways. There are things we can do," said Patrick Nowak, the former Oakland County politico who heads the Department of Transportation.

DEMOCRATS, WHO control the House, sat in icy silence 18 of the 22 times Republicans interrupted his speech with applause.

Democrats joined when Engler praised American cars and auto workers, said he would work to keep open the General Motors plant at Willow Run, introduced former hostage Alann Steen and praised Lt. Gov. Connie Binsfeld's commission to improve adoption laws.

"We all share that. I worked there (at Willow Run) as a kid, when it was a bomber plant," said

"A modest gas tax is justified. I'm disappointed," said Rep. Robert Bender, R-Middleville.

BUT OTHERS on both sides of the aisle wanted no part of any tax increase.

"He's not allowing himself to waver," said freshman Rep. John Jamian, R-Bloomfield Township. "His position on the fuel tax goes in stride with his no-tax position."

"I'm delighted he's not going to ask for a gas tax," said freshman Rep. Georgina Goss, R-Northville. "If he can find a way (to pay for roads), more power to him."

"I'm opposed to any tax increase, including a cigarette tax," said Sen. George Z. Hart, D-Dearborn.

"It's gratifying his road program does not include a gas tax increase," said freshman Rep. Barbara Dobb, R-West Bloomfield, repeating Engler's line: "Now is not the time."

An accountant with small business clients, Dobb warmly praised Engler's proposal to lighten the single business tax burden for small business. "I know first hand the impact it can have on small business."

REP. JAN Dolan, R-Farmington Hills, underlined an Engler theme that few others noticed: "Rebuilding cities, our distressed areas. They're costing us either way," she said, referring to social services versus attracting new business.

In a news conference, Senate minority leader Art Miller, D-Warren, said Engler's "rhetoric is geared to the corporate board room — the country club — not neighborhoods."

But Engler fired his own salvo, citing his conversations with 400 individual Michiganders last year in his open door chats. "I listened to a single mother. I listened to a factory worker. I listened to senior citizens. I listened to a mother of three in a Salvation Army shelter," he said. "I know people want change."

Sen. George Z. Hart, D-Dearborn.

"The governor and I are walking hand in hand on Willow Run. First time," said Rep. Kirk Profit, D-Ypsilanti, whose district include the auto plant. Profit handed out red teddy bear badges saying "I love Willow Run."

Despite his oratorical emphasis, Engler offered no specific plan for persuading GM to consolidate operations there rather than in Texas.

MORE TAX cuts are on Engler's general agenda:

- Voter approval of his "cut and cap" plan to slice all property taxes 30 percent and hold assessment increases to 3 percent annually. The plan is likely to be on the 1992 ballot.

- A $1,000 tax credit for every business that hires a person unemployed for six months. Engler gave no revenue loss estimate.

- "An increase in the number of smaller enterprises eligible for relief under the single business tax." His business ombudsman, Judy Miller of Bloomfield Township, said she hadn't seen any detail. Again, Engler gave no revenue loss estimate.

- "Additional tax incentives to revitalize Detroit and other urban centers" through enterprise zones.

- UNLIKE GOVS. William Milliken (1969-82) and James Blanchard (1983-90), Engler did not issue a lengthy pamphlet with dozens of detailed recommendations and extract 30 minutes' worth for a speech.

His total message was the eight-page speech, printed on recycled paper and paid for by his officeholder expense fund. The spartan appearance underscored his theme of attracting business investment by slashing state spending except for schools and social services for families.

Engler proposed two methods to improve delivery of social services:

- Expansion of "Families First" — an intensive, in-home service (to reduce the need for foster care by successfully keeping at-risk families together.)

Retirement assets grow

State of Michigan Retirement Systems showed "substantial growth in assets during 1991," according to state Treasurer Douglas Roberts.

At year-end, the systems' assets totaled a record $20.73 billion, up nearly $3 billion for the year. This growth continued the trend of the 1980s, a period in which the funds' assets increased fivefold, Roberts said. But he cautioned that the future growth rate is likely to slow.

State retirement systems cover 500,000 active and retired members and their beneficiaries.

The portfolio is broadly diversified with investments in stocks, corporate and government bonds, notes, mortgages, real estate, commercial paper and alternative investments.

'Author, Author' comes back to SC

Schoolcraft College's popular "Author Author" program resumes Tuesday, Feb. 4.

Published authors will offer tips to budding writers during the five week program. Students learn about each author's area of expertise and acquire writing techniques and publishing tips.

Authors scheduled to appear include: children's author Paul Stawski, Feb. 4; suspense writer Sarah Wolf, Feb. 11; romance writer Terese Daly Ramin, Feb. 18; poet Lorene Erickson, Feb. 25 and non-fiction writer Victoria Diaz, March 3.

Stawski recently was a winner in the fourth annual Highlights for Children magazine fiction contest.

Wolf, a former teacher and research librarian, is author of several books, including the recent best seller "MacKinnon's Machine."

Ramin, author of several books, is a recipient of the Romance Writers of America's Golden Heart Award.

Erickson is a recipient of a Creative Artist Grant, through the Michigan Council for the Arts, and has contributed to Woman Poet, Midwest, Isis, Third Coast, and other publications.

Diaz is a freelance writer specializing in personal profiles. Her work has appeared in several area newspapers, including Observer & Eccentric.

The series fee is $75, or $58 for senior citizens. Individual sessions are $18. Sessions are held 6-8 p.m. at Schoolcraft's main campus, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

To register, or for additional information, call the college continuing education services office, 462-4448.

Local Dems, GOP expect big name visitors

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

The 1988 presidential election was a mere four days away and there he was — GOP nominee George Bush — at a campaign rally at Livonia's Schoolcraft College.

Bush wasn't the only candidate to set foot in western Wayne County that year, either. Democratic nominee Michael Dukakis made a fall campaign stop at the Central Wayne Sanitation Authority incinerator in Dearborn Heights. Democratic hopeful Richard Gephardt made several area stops during the March party caucuses.

Will candidates make similar western Wayne appearances this time around? Local party activists hope so. Moreover, they expect so.

"THIS IS an important area, I'm sure there's going to be a major event sometime this year," said GOP 2nd district chairman Harry Greenleaf of Livonia, who helped coordinate the president's 1988 Schoolcraft rally. The 2nd District includes such GOP local strongholds as Livonia, Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

Area Republicans seek to bring a heavyweight visitor to the area early on in the campaign.

"We're going to be holding a spring fund-raiser and we are looking for a major, name speaker," said Ed Haroutunian, president of the newly formed Wayne County Republican Party organization.

David Duke need not apply, however. "With regard to Duke, there's little, if any, question with the Republican organizations" (that he wouldn't be welcome)," Haroutunian said, of the former Ku Klux Klan leader and recent Louisiana gubernatorial candidate.

As for conservative political columnist Patrick Buchanan, the question remains open.

"It's really premature to say," Haroutunian said, regarding the kind of local welcome Buchanan might receive.

While Republicans look to minimize the candidacy of Duke — and possibly Buchanan — area Democrats say their field is wide open.

"Our role is as a facilitator," said 15th district chairman Richard McKnight of Westland. "We want to make sure each of our candidates has access."

TWO MAJOR Democratic candidates have already pressed the flesh with area activists.

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara held receptions for Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton and Iowa Sen. Thomas Harkin while both attended December's UAW convention in Detroit.

"They appear to be the front-runner, at least in our area," said McKnight, whose district organization includes southern Livonia, Westland, Garden City and Canton.

A straw vote during a recent meeting of 15th district committee members split 12:12 between the two, McKnight said.

Still, McKnight noted, party regulars don't appear to be falling in behind any one candidate this time — in contrast to 1984 and 1988.

McNamara, meanwhile, isn't expecting to hold any more meet-the-candidate events.

"He's going to be issuing an endorsement pretty soon," deputy county executive Michael Duggan said, while declining comment on who McNamara would endorse.

With two contested primaries for the first time in 16 years, Michigan could be a frequent campaign stop in the days leading to the March 17 primary — or not.

Michigan shares its March 17 primary date with neighboring Illinois, an attractive pairing in an election where declining American industrial strength looms as a major issue.

ter of primaries the week before could all but settle both nominations.

On the Republican side, Buchanan and Duke are at best considered irritants to the president, not potential nominees. A strong presidential showing could put an end to both as soon as the upcoming New Hampshire primary.

The cluster of Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Missouri, Mississippi, Rhode Island, Tennessee and Texas, meanwhile could add up to a coronation for any Democrat lucky enough to string together victories in all 10.

But Michigan is a state Democrats ignore at their peril. Jimmy Carter skipped the 1976 Michigan primary, nearly suffering a momentum-halting defeat to Morris Udall. Likewise, Dukakis' low Michigan profile spelled an upset win for Jesse Jackson in the 1988 caucuses.

Whatever the party, whoever the candidate, a local appearance can have a long lasting effect on local party allegiance.

"Any time a presidential candidate come here it's a major event," Greenleaf said. "It's something that is felt for a long time."

Alcohol laws discussed

A class advising bar and restaurant employees of their responsibility under Michigan liquor law is being taught beginning Monday, Feb. 3, at Schoolcraft College.

The class, Training for Intervention Procedures, is designed to help bartenders and other employees recognize and respond to intoxicated customers.

The class is taught by Scott Forbes, who has trained more than 5,000 bar and restaurant employees. He is one of four master trainers in the U.S. He will discuss Michigan laws, as well as designated driver and cab programs.

Insurance companies offer discounts of up to 20 percent for those who complete the four-week program.

Fee is $50 per person. To register, or for additional information, call 462-4448.

The Michigan Eyecare Institute is known for its pioneering breakthroughs. Staffed by specialists who have developed and refined the latest medical techniques, the Michigan Eyecare Institute specializes in treating and eliminating disabling eye disease.

As founders of The Michigan Eyecare Institute, Dr. William Ayres and Dr. Mark Rubinstein have been at the forefront of Ophthalmologic breakthroughs. They were the first Ophthalmologists in the state to develop or utilize:

- YAG laser surgery for treatment of secondary cataracts
- Nova Curve lens, designed especially for the YAG laser surgery
- Excimer laser surgery for treatment of glaucoma
- Radial Keratotomy for correction of nearsightedness

These laser surgeries are fast, virtually painless and they require no hospital stay or recovery time.

The founders of Michigan Eyecare Institute conduct courses in surgery and have lectured on their state of the art surgical techniques to other physicians throughout North America, Europe, Russia and the Far East. If you are nearsighted, farsighted, or suffer from cataracts or glaucoma, Michigan Eyecare Institute can help.

Stadium vote followed — from afar

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

A stadium vote is expected this year in San Jose, but that doesn't mean friends and foes of Wayne County's own proposal will bump into each other on the way west.

Wayne County's stadium proposal "isn't on the front burner" at present, according to deputy county executive Michael Duggan. But that doesn't mean County Executive Edward McNamara and his staff will be doing any field research in California.

"We don't see any reason to go out there," Duggan said. "We have the press clippings, we're keeping on top of what's going on."

Tiger Stadium Fan Club members said they wouldn't be spending time in the Bay Area, either.

"THERE ARE similarities, but the issue out there isn't exactly like the one we have here," said fan club member William Dow of Birmingham.

Voters in San Jose are being asked to approve bonds for a $155 million, 48,000-seat, open-air stadium that would lure the San Francisco Giants baseball team south.

One major difference, at least according to fan club members, is that Tiger Stadium is beloved by baseball fans while San Francisco's chilly Candlestick Park is beloved by no one.

"There, they're trying to build a baseball stadium," Dow said. "While here, we already have a perfectly good one."

Duggan, however, sees more similarities than differences.

"The San Jose proposal is essentially the same one we have before the Tigers in terms of bonds and revenue," he said.

One other similarity: voters, not baseball officials, would have the final say on each proposal.

Despite an estimated 50 mile distance, San Jose and San Francisco are considered part of the same geographic region by major league baseball. That means the Giants' move wouldn't be subject to a vote by other team owners.

Similar provisions would also apply to an attempt to move the Tigers to another metro site — though baseball's American League would have to authorize an out-of-state move.

Despite several months of negotiating, the county and Tigers' management have yet to agree on a stadium deal.

With talks stalled, it looks increasingly doubtful that there will be a Wayne County stadium vote this year — though Duggan didn't rule out the possibility.

"It could happen, but it isn't on the front burner at this time," he said.

At the same time fan club members are going to Wayne County Circuit Court this month to answer a challenge to their petitions calling for a Detroit-only vote on strict enforcement of the Tiger Stadium lease.

The lease, fan club members said, binds the ballclub to the stadium through 2008.

If they seek precedent, fan club members need look no further than San Francisco. Provisions of their Candlestick Park lease prevented the Giants from moving to Toronto some 15 years ago.

Detroit Zoo-goers can hear condor tales

Detroit Zoo fans soon can learn more about the two local Andean condors which helped provide research for the successful reintroduction of the California condor last week.

The Detroit Zoological Society, the private group which aids the city-owned zoo, will sponsor a lecture about the California condors at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, April 23, in the auditorium of Cranbrook Institute of Science, Lone Pine Road in Bloomfield Hills.

In "California Condors: Back to the Wild," Dr. William Toone, curator of birds from the San Diego Wild Animal Park, will tell of his conservation work with the California condor population.

Tickets are $5 for the public and $3 for Detroit Zoological Society members. Call (313) 541-5717 for ticket information.

"Our condors' siblings were actually used to develop the release techniques for the California condors," said Detroit Zoo bird curator Tom Schneider.

The local zoo is a member of the American Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums Condor Propagation Group. Located on 10 Mile Road at Woodward Avenue in Royal Oak next to the I-696 freeway, the Detroit Zoo is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday.

"BECAUSE THE reproductive biology of the California condor is similar to that of the Andean condor, which breeds well in captivity, zoo biologists were successful in reproducing this species at selected zoos," said Schneider.

The zoo's bird exhibit is located to the right of the zoo's main entrance. The 6- and 7-year-old Andean condors are in the courtyard.

In 1987, when the last California condor was captured, the species no longer occurred in the wild. A two-phased program to recover the condors was developed.

It included increasing the captive population so birds would be available for release and developing the necessary release techniques.

Buy American hearing re-set

A public hearing on a proposed Wayne County "Buy American" ordinance has been rescheduled to 10 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 28 in Room 402 of the Wayne County Building, 600 Randolph, Detroit.

The hearing was initially scheduled for Jan. 14, but canceled due to heavy snowfall.

The ordinance is proposed by Wayne County Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Westland.

Edison sponsors poster contest on environment

LOCAL ELEMENTARY and special education students can illustrate ways to help protect the earth's environment by entering Detroit Edison's 1992 Environmental Poster Contest by Feb. 28.

Posters must address one or more of these environmental issues: recycling, planting the proper tree in the right location — away from power lines, and conserving the world's natural resources.

"The poster contest is designed to encourage environmental awareness among children in Southeastern Michigan," said Robert Buckler, an Edison vice president.

Each entry must be marked with the child's name, address, school, school address, teacher's name, school phone and number grade level. All entries will be acknowledged with a small gift and will become the property of Detroit Edison.

Prizes will be awarded in five categories: kindergarten, first and second grades, third and fourth grades, fifth and sixth grades and special education. Semifinalists will receive a savings bond and overall award winners also will choose prizes from selected items.

In addition, Detroit Edison will plant a tree at the overall winner's schools and present tree seedlings to each student in any school that has 100 percent participation in the contest.

For a copy of the contest rules or further information, call Detroit Edison at 237-7187.

Hospital plans health programs

Annapolis Hospital in Wayne is offering several preventative health programs.

For those who want to stop smoking, classes in the program will start Feb. 24. The program is designed to get smokers permanently off of cigarettes in five days.

Annapolis, on Annapolis at Venoy, is also offering a stress management course, which will start Feb. 10, and a babysitting clinic, to start Saturday. Information on any of the three programs may be obtained by calling the hospital at 487-2530.

The hospital is part of Oakwood United Hospitals, Inc.

It's fishy: Rouge eyed as hatchery

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

For the first time in recent memory, a river once considered among the most-polluted in the Midwest will be home to brown trout — a fish that requires extremely clean water to survive.

That is if all goes as planned by Westland's Robert Lajch, the Western Wayne County Conservation Association and state Department of Natural Resources.

Seven years ago, about the time the Friends of the Rouge initiated its annual "Clean the Rouge" day, Lajch seized the opportunity to work on the WWCCA's section of the river, a tributary that flows through northwest Wayne County.

Known as Johnson Creek or the Johnson Drain, the tributary flows through a beautiful wooded area that's home to wild turkeys, white-tailed deer, snapping turtles, opossums, raccoons, and enough birds to go though 1,500 pounds of bird seed furnished each winter by the WWCCA.

"MY DREAM WAS to make this into a viable trout fishery in Wayne County," said Lajch, who is vice president of the Michigan United Conservation Club and a past WWCCA president.

It was an uphill battle. Unfortunately, many used the river as a junkyard. It was so far gone that people who heard about Lajch's idea thought he was dreaming.

"When Bob started this six or seven years ago, I thought he was crazy," said longtime WWCCA member John Goulet. "That stream has a reputation of being as polluted as any of them."

It didn't dissuade the retired Lajch, who grew accustomed to envisioning the future as an automotive design sculptor with Ford Motor Co.

"That was my goal. Seven years later, it's going to become a reality. I'm looking so forward when I get the next phone call" from the DNR, informing the WWCCA that fingerlings actually will be stocked in the Johnson Drain, he said. "Then I'll know it's a reality. Since I got the first call, I've been walking high. It makes me feel so good," said Lajch, who fished and swam in the Rouge as a kid growing up in Westland.

While the Clean Water Act of 1972 is responsible in many ways for the enhancement of water quality in southeastern Michigan, so is the elbow grease of Lajch and WWCCA members. They've rolled up their sleeves and climbed into the river, hauling out everything from engine blocks to ice boxes.

"All of us got dirty, bit up, and what have you, but we kept at it throughout the years," Lajch said.

WHILE THERE'S PLENTY of credit to go around — including to folks like Plymouth Township officials Chuch Van Vleck, Esther Hulsing and Ron Griffith, Lajch says stocking trout in the Rouge wouldn't be possible without Liz Hay.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Bob Lajch of the Western Wayne Conservation Association tests the waters of the upper Rouge River where brown trout could be planted by the state.

Hay is a fisheries biologist with the DNR's Southeast Michigan District Field Office in Livonia.

"At the beginning, I could see the look of skepticism in her eyes," said Lajch of Hay. Lajch and Hay quickly saw eye-to-eye. To Lajch's delight, Hay has worked diligently on the project for the past two years. Lajch says you can work all you want independently cleaning a stream. But "if you don't find someone (in the DNR) who thinks like you do, it isn't going to fly. I give Liz a whole lot of credit for making this a reality."

Historical records on trout in Wayne County are tough to come by, and conventional wisdom varies. Some say this will mark the first time in 40 years trout have thrived in this area. Others claim it'll be the first time ever.

HAY LEARNED that "historically, Johnson Creek has been a brook trout stream. The first fish hatchery in the state was established in Northville in 1874 by Nelson Clark," she said.

"They used to have whitefish and brook trout. Both require cold water, and their water source was Johnson Creek, so there had to be good water quality. They had a very successful hatchery."

Hay said she looked at the stream to see if that type of condition still existed, despite all the urbanization which has gone on in Wayne County.

After monitoring the stream's temperature, oxygen levels, sediment load, and pollution levels for two years, Hay proposed that "we try and re-establish a fishery in there using brown trout. This tributary has clearly come back from a state where it wasn't as good in the 1970s. It's come back much more now."

Hay said she's optimistic the DNR will approve her recommendation.

"I think the data supports putting trout in there," Hay has found in the Johnson Creek mayflies, caddisflies and stoneflies — all preferred trout foods — as well as blacknose dace and mottled sculpin, fish normally found in places inhabited by trout.

Classes target travel, real estate, speaking

Classes in real estate appraisal, public speaking, travel and a pilot ground school are being offered at Schoolcraft College in February.

Classes include:
 • Foundations of Real Estate Appraisal — The class provides a basic understanding for entry-level students and experienced professionals and can be used to meet state licensing requirements. The nine-week class meets 5-7 p.m. beginning Monday, Feb. 3. Fee is $250.
 • Effective Public Speaking — Taught by Detroit radio personality Marc Avery, the class is designed to help speakers overcome stage fright and improve their speaking skills. The eight-week class meets 7-10 p.m., beginning Monday, Feb. 3. Fee is $75.
 • Let's Travel to India — The class offers information on the history, climate, culture and physical features of India, including holidays, tourist attractions, transportation, lodging and food. The eight-week class meets 7-10 p.m., beginning Monday, Feb. 3. Fee is $75.

• Private Pilot Ground School — Pilot operations, procedures and regulations are taught in the 12-week class, which emphasizes areas covered by Federal Aviation Administration exams. The 12-week class meets 8-10 p.m. Monday and Thursday beginning Feb. 3 and 6. Fee is $132.

• Appraise the Single Family Residence — Market analysis, property inspection and sources of market information are featured in the class, which can be used to meet state licensing requirements. The eight-week class meets 5-7 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, beginning Feb. 4 and 6.

To register, or for additional information, call the college continuing education services office, 462-4448. Schoolcraft is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile roads, Livonia.

Gourmet eatery reopens

American Harvest Restaurant, featuring gourmet specialties prepared by Schoolcraft College culinary arts students, has reopened for lunch after the winter holidays.

The restaurant will be open noon to 1:30 p.m. Tuesday through Friday. Entrees are served Tuesday through Thursday. A gourmet buffet is served Fridays.

Reservations can be made by calling 462-4488.

Paintings by local artist Sandra Weed are currently on display at the restaurant. Weed is an instructor in the college continuing education services division. The paintings are for sale and can be bought through the college office of institutional advancement, 462-4417.

American House is in the Waterman Campus Center on the grounds of Schoolcraft's main campus, 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile roads, Livonia.

New director appointed

K.K. Kumar, a consulting psychiatrist for Northwestern Community Services, has been appointed director of psychiatric services for the Garden City-based agency.

Kumar has been with the Michigan Department of Mental Health for 20 years, including 18 years as a staff member of Hawthorn Center in Northville. He is currently medical staff chairman at Hawthorn Center.

Trained in Madras, India, Kumar is a naturalized U.S. citizen. He lives in Ann Arbor with his wife and their 11-year-old son.

Northwestern Community Services is a community mental health agency serving children, adolescents and their families throughout western Wayne County since 1963. It operates programs in Garden City, Canton and Inkster.

Madonna offers food service sanitation class

Madonna University will offer a course on food service sanitation for owners, managers and supervisors of food service establishments during the winter term.

The program will provide information on the cause and control of food-borne illness, the specifics of Michigan's Food Service Sanitation Law, interpretation of inspection report forms and the resources available for training and motivating employees toward compliance with regulations.

Certification is available for those completing the course and passing the examinations provided by the National Restaurant Association and the Michigan Department of Public Health.

Food service sanitation will be held 7-9:30 p.m. Tuesdays, March 10 through April 14. Cost is $133 for academic credit or $80 for continuing education units.

For more information or to register by phone with a credit card, call 591-5188.

Crafters sought for SC show

Applications are being accepted from people who wish to participate in the Schoolcraft College Spring Craft Show, Saturday, March 14.

Painting, sculpture, pottery, jewelry, textiles, needle work, photography, glass work, stained glass, leather, graphics and wood carving will be featured.

Fees are $60 for a 12-by-12-foot booth, $45 for 10-by-10 and $35 for 8-by-9 booth.

To apply, or for additional information, call the office of Institutional Advancement, 467-4417. Schoolcraft is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile roads, Livonia.

Doctor's been mending Wings for 30 years

By Greg Kowaleki
staff writer

When a Detroit Red Wing skated over the face of Toronto Maple Leafs player Borje Salming, it left a wound requiring 400 stitches and a potentially fearsome scar.

It presented Dr. John Finley with his greatest challenge: To repair the severe damage and not leave a scar. It took his best efforts, but by the time Finley was done, the scar was nearly invisible.

Finley has been team physician for the Detroit Red Wings for more than 30 years, stitching and mending both Wings and opposing players at all home games.

"It's given him a perspective of the game that few people see.

"It's sort of an avocation for me. Pro hockey players are the cream of the crop as far as athletes go," he said. They have to have expert timing and top skating skills.

"I like the speed and intensity. At every game I sit in awe of how talented these players are, how they skate and pass the puck and maneuver. This requires great skill and quickness."

RECENTLY, THE American College of Osteopathic Surgeons awarded Finley with a Distinguished Osteopathic Surgeons Award "in recognition of his outstanding accomplishments and leadership in the field of surgery."

Finley is senior surgeon at Detroit Osteopathic Hospital and a member of the board of trustees and executive committee of Horizon Health Systems, parent company of Bi-County Community Hospital in Warren, Detroit, Osteopathic Hospital in Highland Park and Riverside Osteopathic Hospital in Trenton.

He attends all Red Wings home games, mainly tending to the cuts, sprains and bruises the players suffer.

INJURIES AS severe as Salming's facial cut are rare, but there's no question that hockey is a rough game. And those fights are real.

Finley has pictures of his patients. One player had his face smashed with a hockey stick. Another shows Bobby Hull doing a forward flip and landing on his face.

Besides on-site treatment, Finley also orders players to Detroit's Henry Ford Hospital for treatment if needed.

Finley started with the Red Wings back when sports medicine was a fledgling science. Sports teams then, as now, often sought the services of osteopathic doctors because of osteopathy's focus on the muscular and skeletal system.

He was at Detroit Osteopathic Hospital where the chief cardiologist was a neighbor of Jack Adams, then Wings' general manager.

At the time the club was looking for a doctor with radiology background. Finley met the qualifications and got the job. Eventually, the other doctors who tended the team left and Finley inherited the job.

HE WAS A NATURAL choice. Finley developed a love for hockey while growing up in Syracuse, N.Y.

"As a youngster, my father and I used to sit up on Saturday night listening to Hockey Night in Canada. We had a minor league pro-team in Syracuse, and my father was a general practitioner and saw some of the players."

'I like the speed and intensity. At every game I sit in awe of how talented these players are, how they skate and pass the puck and maneuver. This requires great skill and quickness.'

— Dr. John Finley

He developed a respect and appreciation for the players. Unlike many athletes, they tend to have humble beginnings and don't usually develop prima donna attitudes.

Rouge River eyed as trout hatchery

PLANS CALL for five-inch fingerlings to be planted sometime in April, which means fishing by the summer of 1993. While the presence of two bubbling feeder streams and plans for enhancing the stream make spawning a good possibility, reproductivity will be in question for a while, says Hay.

There's a difference of opinion on whether the rule will be catch-and-release or catch-and-keep. Hay favors the former, Latch the latter.

Van Vleck, a WWCCA member who works in emergency preparedness for Plymouth Township, says "I am really tickled with the news. What it tells me is how we've cleaned up the quality of the water."

Chairman of the WWCCA's Rouge clean-up team, Van Vleck for four years has donned old clothes and helped clear the river of refrigerators, tires, rusted car parts and tree cuttings on the Friends of the Rouge day in June, and on other occasions.

"We'll be back out there June 6 with our chain saws and sweat, making sure the river stays clean and running free," Van Vleck said.

DOES ALL this mean the Rouge can come back?

"I think any river can heal itself," says Hay.

"Parts of the Main River and some of the tributaries are in good shape, and with the ongoing projects on the Rouge, a lot of money is being spent to try and correct the problems."

CITY OF GARDEN CITY
NOTICE OF HEARING ON PROPOSED ORDINANCE
FEBRUARY 3, 1992

The following Ordinance (known as the Sanitary Sewer Use/Rate Ordinance) amending the Code of the City of Garden City has been proposed. A public hearing has been scheduled for Monday, February 3, 1992, at 7:30 P.M., in the Council Chambers of the City Hall, 6000 Middlebelt Road, to provide Public comments on the proposed ordinance.

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND SECTIONS 52.01, 52.02, 52.09, 52.10 AND SUBSECTIONS 52.04(D) OF CHAPTER 52, TITLE V OF THE CODE OF THE CITY OF GARDEN CITY.

THE CITY OF GARDEN CITY HEREBY ORDAINS:

THAT SECTIONS 52.01, 52.02 AND SUBSECTIONS 52.04(D) OF CHAPTER 52, TITLE V OF THE CODE OF THE CITY OF GARDEN CITY BE AMENDED TO READ AS FOLLOWS AND THAT SECTIONS 52.09 AND 52.10 BE REPEALED.

52.01 DEFINITIONS.
For the purpose of this chapter the following definitions shall apply unless the context clearly indicates or requires a different meaning:
"BIOCHEMICAL OXYGEN DEMAND (BOD)." The quantity of oxygen utilized in the biochemical oxidation of organic matter under standard laboratory procedures, five days at 20 degrees C. expressed in terms of weight and concentration (milligrams per liter (mg/l)), as measured by standard methods.
"DOMESTIC SEWAGE." Sewage derived principally from sanitary conveniences of dwellings, business buildings, institutions and the like, and does not exceed the limits of normal strength sewage.
"DEPARTMENT." The City Department of Public Services.
"EXCESS SEWAGE." Quantities of Sewage and Wastes delivered to the Wayne County Interceptor which exceed the quantity of potable water purchased from the City of Detroit. Excess Sewage is normally the result of infiltration of ground water and inflow of storm water into the Wastewater System.
"FOG." Fat, oils, or grease in the waste expressed in terms of milligrams per liter (p.p.m.)
"INDIRECT DISCHARGE." The discharge of the introduction of non-domestic pollutants from any source regulated under Section 301 (b) or (c) of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, P.L. 92-500, as amended into the public waste treatment system.
"INDUSTRIAL WASTE." Any liquid, solid, or gaseous waste of form of energy or combination thereof resulting from any process of industry, manufacturing, business, trade, or research, including the development, recovery, or processing of natural resources.
"MILLIGRAMS PER LITER."
"NORMAL STRENGTH SEWAGE." Sewage or wastes, the concentration of which does not exceed BOD of 215 mg/l, TSS of 150 mg/l, phosphorus of 13 mg/l, and fat, oils, and grease 100 mg/l, which have a pH between 6.5 and 9.5 and which do not contain a concentration of other constituents which will interfere with the normal sewage treatment process.
"P." Phosphorus in the waste expressed in terms of milligrams per liter (p.p.m.)
"PERSON." Any individual, firm, association, public or private corporation, or public agency or instrumentality.
"POLLUTANT." Any dredged spoil, solid waste, incinerator residue, sewage, garbage, sewage sludge, manure, chemical wastes, biological materials, radioactive materials, heat, wrecked or discarded equipment, rock, sand, cellar dirt or industrial, municipal, or agricultural waste discharged into water.
"PREMISES." Each lot or parcel of land, building, or premises having any connection to the water supply or sewage disposal system of the City.
"PUBLIC SEWERS." A common sewer controlled by a governmental agency or public utility.
"SEWER - DEBT SERVICE CHARGE." The charge levied on customers of the wastewater system which are used to pay principal, interest, and administrative costs of retiring the debt incurred for construction of the system. The debt service charge shall be in addition to the user charge.
"SEWER SERVICE CHARGE." The sum of services provided by the Wastewater System, including premises which are connected to and discharge Sewage or Wastes into the System. The debt service charge shall be in addition to the user charge.
"SEWER USER." The recipients of services provided by the Wastewater System, including premises which are connected to and discharge Sewage or Wastes into the System and shall consist of the following classes:
a. "Residential User." A User whose premises (i) are dwellings for single or multiple family use and (ii) discharge only Domestic Sewage.
b. "Government User." A User whose premises (i) are publicly-owned facilities performing government functions (e.g. government office building, post office, library, school) and (ii) discharge only Domestic Sewage.
c. "Commercial User." A User whose premises (i) are privately owned and used to perform and/or sell services and/or products for profit (e.g. retail and wholesale stores, restaurants, motels, gasoline stations) and (ii) discharge primarily Domestic Sewage.
d. "Institutional User." A User whose premises (i) are owned by a non-profit organization pursuant to Section 601 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended (e.g. churches, hospitals) and (ii) discharge primarily Domestic Sewage.
e. "Industrial User." A User whose premises (i) are privately owned and are used for manufacturing a product from raw or purchased material and (ii) discharge wastewater used in any way in the manufacturing process in addition to Domestic Sewage.
"SEWER USER CHARGE." A charge based on thousand of cubic feet, or fractions thereof, levied on Users of the Wastewater System for User's proportionate share of the cost of Operation and Maintenance (including Replacement) of the System.
"SEWER USER SURCHARGE." A charge imposed on a User of the Wastewater System who discharges Sewage or Wastes in excess of Normal Strength.
"SUSPENDED SOLIDS." The total suspended matter that floats on the surface of, or is suspended in, water, wastewater, or other liquids, and which is removable by laboratory filtering as measured according to standard methods.
"WASTEWATER OR SEWAGE." Spent water which may be a combination of the liquid and water-containing drainage water load currently present in said waste.
"WASTEWATER SYSTEM OR SEWER SYSTEM." Any part, or all, of the property, structures, equipment, sewers, materials, or appurtenances used in conjunction with the collection and disposal of wastewater, including the publicly owned treatment work (POTW).
"WASTEWATER OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE." All costs, direct and indirect, inclusive of all expenditures attributable to the collection, replacement, treatment and collection of Sewage or Wastes, necessary to ensure adequate treatment and collection of Sewage and Wastes on a continuing basis in conformance with the NPDES Permit, and other applicable regulations.

"WASTEWATER REPLACEMENT COSTS." Expenditures and costs for obtaining and installing equipment, accessories, or appurtenances which are necessary during the service life of the Wastewater System to maintain the capacity and performance for which the System was designed and constructed.

52.02 BASIS OF CHARGES.
A. All water service shall be charged for on the basis of water consumed as determined by the meter installed on the premises of the water supply or sewage disposal customers by the Department. Sewage disposal service shall be charged for on the basis of water consumed as determined by the above mentioned meter. No fee water supply or sewage disposal service shall be furnished to any person.
B. Rates and charges for the use of the wastewater system of the city shall be based upon the methodology in the user charge system approved by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. Revisions to the rates for total sewer service charges are to be established by resolution of the City Council which shall be enacted apart from the published ordinances as necessary to ensure sufficiency of revenues to meet operation, maintenance and replacement cost, as well as debt service.
1. User charges for operation, maintenance and replacement shall be subject to the annual review of the user charge system. User charges shall be the same for all customers of the system regardless of geographical boundaries.
2. All customers of the City Wastewater System will receive an annual notification, which will show the breakdown of the sewer service charge into its components for administration, operation, maintenance and replacement and for debt service.

52.04 SEWAGE DISPOSAL RATES.
D. Industrial waste surcharge. Commercial and industrial users who discharge wastes into the public wastewater system in excess of the strength of normal sewage shall be charged a surcharge which reflects their equitable share of the costs of wastewater treatment. Such surcharge shall be determined as follows:
1. Purpose and objective. This section has as its purpose the protection of public health and safety and because of the widely varying quality characteristics of the sewage discharged by different users of the public sewer and the publicly owned treatment works, it is the objective of this section to impose sewage charges which reflect the cost of treating sewage strength factors as well as sewage volume. These charges to commercial and industrial users will be in the form of a payment called a surcharge and will reflect industries equitable costs of wastewater treatment in excess of the strength of the domestic sewage. Sewer charges will be based on a volume rate and surcharged based on volume of discharge and the strength of BOD, suspended solids, phosphorus, fats, oil and grease or other pollutants present in the wastewater. In the event other pollutants are required to be surcharged under this subchapter, authorized variances, or by special arrangements with the owner of the publicly owned treatment works, the rules and regulations adopted hereinafter will apply, said rules and regulations being on file with the City Clerk.
2. Authority. This section is adopted pursuant to and in accordance with the requirements of Federal Law - Clean Water Act, 33 USC Section 1311 et seq. and applicable Federal Regulations, the requirements of the Settlement Agreement in United States v. City of Detroit, et al, Civil Action No. 77-11111.
3. It is ordained that the Schedule of Industrial Waste Pollutant Strength Surcharges is hereby adopted and made effective for users of the wastewater system of the city. Said surcharges to be computed as follows:

COMPUTATION OF INDUSTRIAL WASTE POLLUTANT STRENGTH SURCHARGE

The industrial waste pollutant strength surcharge shall be computed to accordance with the following formula:

WHERE:
SC = Pollutant strength surcharge fee in dollars for the billing period.
V = Volume of waste discharged in the billing period in MCF (1000 cubic feet).
BOD = Five-day biochemical oxygen demand of the waste expressed in milligrams per liter (ppm).
TSS = Total suspended solids in the waste expressed in milligrams per liter (ppm).
P = Phosphorus in the waste expressed in milligrams per liter (ppm).
FOG = Fat, oils, and grease expressed in milligrams per liter (ppm).
O.M.H. = Factor which converts MCF to MGL lbs.
a = $0.0044/cubic foot
b = $0.111/pound
c = $2.00/pound
d = $0.63/pound

4. In accordance with the basic service agreement between the City of Garden City, the County of Wayne, and the Wayne County Board of Public Works or other properly designated agent of the County of Wayne named pursuant to Public Acts 212, 1193, and 1194, 1971, this section provides that any person, firm, or corporation discharging wastewater into the publicly owned sewer system shall comply with the standards, rules, and regulations controlling the quality or quantity of discharge or wastewater into the system. The standards, rules, and regulations shall be established from time to time by the county or its designated agent.

Validity, Severability, Construction.
The provisions of this chapter are severable, and if any of the provisions, words, phrases, clauses or terms, or the application thereof to any person, firm or corporation, or to any circumstances, shall be held invalid, illegal, or unconstitutional in any court of competent jurisdiction, such decision or findings shall not in any way affect the validity, legality or constitutionality of any other provisions, word, phrase, clause or term, and they shall continue in full force and effect. All laws and parts of laws, all ordinances, codes and regulations which are inconsistent with or in conflict with or repugnant to any provisions of this ordinance, shall be deemed not to apply, provided that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the adoption and enforcement of a law, ordinance, code or regulation which is more restrictive or establishes a higher standard than those provided in this article.
EXCEPT AS HEREIN MODIFIED, THE SAID CODE SHALL REMAIN IN FULL FORCE AND EFFECT.

"They are gentlemen off the ice," she said of the players. The Finleys know many old-time greats like Red Wing Gordie Howe and former Chicago Black Hawk Bobby Hull, as well as the new generation of stars, such as Steve Yzerman and Bob Probert. Even as players are traded and move on, they stay in contact.

"You have friends all over as they get traded," Genevieve said. Occasionally, the Finleys host players at their home.

IT'S BEEN fun for more than three decades, Finley said, although it could be trying.

He recalled the incident when his wife was with him at a game and she went into labor just as a goalie got smacked in the face with the puck. That was in the days before, face masks.

"I had someone take my wife to the hospital while I repaired his face."

Despite keeping a busy schedule at the medical facilities and attending games, Finley said he has no plans to retire.

"We're there at the invitation of the owners and management. I personally find our involvement something we enjoy immensely and have a special love for the team.

"As long as we enjoy the work, we'd like to be involved."

School feud Board chief merits support

WAYNE-WESTLAND school board members were right on target in strongly rejecting criticism of their president, Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek.

She was accused by a long-time nemesis that the president acted improperly by receiving school board correspondence at her city office.

Five board members Monday night defended president Kozorosky-Wiacek against an attack from board member Kathleen Chorbagan, who lashed out at the president in a story in the Westland Eagle.

Kozorosky-Wiacek and Chorbagan have feuded on other issues in recent years.

Ignoring the personality clashes, the Observer urges residents to keep their focus on the issue: The board president should be the contact with a Chicago-based firm that's helping the board find a successor to Superintendent Dennis O'Neill.

CHORBAGIAN HAD questioned whether Kozorosky-Wiacek should receive school board correspondence at the senior citizens Friendship Center, where she is the city's senior resources department director.

Even though the board had decided informally that the president should receive the correspondence there, Chorbagan now claims that "We never agreed to have all correspondence go through her."

Moreover, Chorbagan claimed that she and other board members had been removed from the search process and that Kozorosky-Wiacek "can tell us whatever she chooses to let us know."

Somewhere in the communication process, Chorbagan missed something or board members are using different languages in talking to each other.

WHAT MAKES Chorbagan a loser on this issue is that board members who have supported her in other disputes with the board president are backing Kozorosky-Wiacek on this issue.

That clearly signals that residents may be better off without Chorbagan when she leaves the school board June 30 when her term expires. She has served more than eight years and announced last fall that she won't run for a new term.

At the same time, a group of school district residents is circulating petitions seeking the removal of Chorbagan and board members Leonard Posey and Andrew Spisak.

In last week's dispute, the Observer agrees with the public comment of Spisak, who said "I don't know what the big deal is."

Bill Taylor, the school district's associate superintendent of employee services, said Monday that it was he who had suggested to Kozorosky-Wiacek that search firm correspondence be sent to her city office. He has been told by the search firm that it usually sends correspondence to board-presidents.

MOREOVER, TAYLOR also receives the same correspondence from the search firm, and he said Kozorosky-Wiacek has told him to duplicate all materials and make them available to every school board member.

"Frankly, unless I'm missing something, I don't know what the hell the problem is," Taylor said.

Kozorosky-Wiacek stresses she doesn't routinely conduct school board business at the Friendship Center — and that she only receives the correspondence there.

Actually, it is a convenience for her and board members to get the consultant's material at her city office, although it is less than a mile from the board office where communications are normally sent.

THE OBSERVER doesn't see any big problem in the board president getting the correspondence at her city office — as long as she shares all the correspondence with the other six board members.

Since those board members, including Chorbagan, haven't complained of being shut out of the correspondence from the consultant, the Observer wonders what is the problem.

If there is a problem, Chorbagan or others can raise it when they perceive it.

But until then, let's get on with board business.

Physical plant Health, safety depend on tax

OUR ROADS, bridges and sewers must function or we all suffer in many ways. And in Michigan, we've come to a point where we have to take care of our physical plant now, or risk the loss of tourism, business and the public's health and safety for years to come.

Falling roads and sewers also will fuel continued urban sprawl.

The fuel tax is a fair tax because it is a user fee and must be increased. Those motorists who don't drive much, won't buy as much gas or pay as much tax. The state also needs a similar user fee mechanism or a bond issue earmarked for sewers and water system improvements.

Michigan has a lower gas tax than all but one Midwestern state (Indiana) at 15 cents and ranks 43rd in per capita spending on roads. The fuel tax was last raised eight years ago. And because we are driving more fuel efficient cars, we end up paying less gas tax each year. That has brought us to the point where we have less tax money to build and maintain roads and bridges than we did when construction costs were lower. Counties are also hampered by smaller budgets for road repairs.

WHILE CUTTING back on "big government" sounds nice, especially when it means lowering taxes, there are some legitimate functions of state government that are necessities; put them off now and taxpayers will have to pay more later.

Wayne County is on the state's short list of "distressed communities" suffering from combined sewer overflows. The antiquated sewers can't handle the increased storm and waste streams that overflow in the lakes and streams endangering public health and lowering property values.

Add to that the list of roads and bridges that the state has on its "critical list" and the problem is plain as a pothole at rush hour on Eight Mile Road.

A state study completed in April 1985 made specific recommendations concerning sewer and other infrastructure improvements and ways to pay for them.

Gov. Engler needs to move on this now because a poor state infrastructure can only hurt the state's business climate and tourist industry. Waiting for the recession to end before tackling this issue would be penny wise and pound foolish.

Metroparks

Dream preserves outdoors

TODAY IT couldn't be done. Southeast Michigan couldn't launch a series of 13 metroparks covering 23,000 acres.

Tax fighters would battle the quarter-mill of property tax the metroparks cost. Politicians would be unable to cooperate on a multi-county basis.

Indeed, the state is shutting down campgrounds and spinning off parks rather than preserving scarce open space.

IN 1942 it was different — better.

Dr. Henry S. Curtis, one-time playgrounds director from New York City, and Professor Harlow O. Whittemore, landscape designer from the University of Michigan, had a vision: a series of parks along the Huron and Clinton rivers, encircling the urban area.

Leroy C. Smith of the Wayne County Road Commission put the dream together politically, winning legislative approval of a law to incorporate the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority and winning 2-1 approval of voters in five counties for a property tax.

This year it celebrates its 50th anniversary. We toast HCMA not just for running good parks but for keeping alive that stupendous dream in the face of political pressure, backlashes and power grabs.

TO MOST folks, the HCMA name doesn't ring a bell, but we all know its good works: Kensington Metropark, 4,300 acres, opened in 1948; Stony Creek Metropark, 4,500 acres, 1964; Metropark Beach, 770 acres on Lake St. Clair, 1950; the western Wayne four — Lower Huron, Willow, Oakwoods and Lake Erie metropark; Indian Springs, near Clarkston, and others.

Where cities and townships are fighting to preserve open space and wetlands, HCMA did the job by starting a half-century ago.

We can thank the visionaries of the 1940s for the unspoiled outdoors we enjoy today.

Politics paralyzes any action on deficit growth

HERE ARE some simple facts that underline how badly governed we are:

- The annual national budget deficit is nearly $400 billion.

- Our total national debt is more than $3 trillion, the majority run up over the last 20 years. That's more than $10,000 for every man, woman and child in this country.

- America has gone in the past 10 years from the world's largest creditor nation to the largest borrower.

- Despite window dressings like "national deficit summits" and Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit reduction bills, absolutely no progress has been made on cutting our nation's deficit. In fact, the deficit has doubled since 1985, when Gramm-Rudman was first talked about.

- In an election year when the economy is terrible and the middle class howling, both Republicans and Democrats can confidently be expected to pander for popularity by cutting taxes . . . and driving the deficit still higher.

FOR YEARS, I have been asking members of our Michigan congressional delegation (now among the most powerful in the country) what exactly they proposed to do about this. And for years I have been getting the polite runaround.

I had a chance to talk with Carl

Pursell, a GOP congressman from Plymouth, over the holidays. He had some very interesting and — for somebody who works in Washington — very unusual things to say.

The deficit will make tomorrow's generation pay for the excesses of today's spending. "How can we look our children and grandchildren in the eye knowing full well what is happening on our watch?"

Amazing! Somebody actually prepared to accept responsibility!

What would he do about it? Simple. First, get both political parties to prepare their own unified national budgets, their own statement of their political priorities. With a sitting Republican president, get the administration to buy into the GOP budget. Have the president say to Congress, in effect, "Any spending bill above the levels in this budget will be vetoed."

Then, when Democrats who control Congress offer their budgets and pass appropriations above this limit, have the president simply veto them. Force a crisis in continuation of government spending in order to rein in spending.

Astonishing! Somebody actually willing to force partisan clarity and cause some conflict to get something done!

I DON'T know whether Carl Pursell's idea is good or bad, realistic or not. But I do know that he, at least, is prepared to suggest something.

Not only that, but last year Pursell proposed in 1990 a total freeze — with no inflation adjustment — for all federal discretionary spending. Not surprisingly, that lost.

He also shocked colleagues on the House Appropriations Committee that year by requesting deletion from the spending bill of a $3 million cleanup project for the Rouge River, much of which is in his district. That lost, too.

Some people in Washington think Pursell is naive or a grandstander or both. I can't agree.

He is deeply concerned about the deficit and alarmed at the political paralysis in our government. And he's not afraid to try to do something about it.

Keep it up, Carl.

Hopes project isn't built

To the editor:

This is in regards to the latest dispute over the development of the huge Senior Citizens complex on Marquette between Carlson and Wayne Road.

Please don't get me wrong, I sincerely appreciate our senior citizens and hope only the very best for them. But I would be very happy if this project does fail and the trees and 50 acres would stay intact.

We have lived in Westland for almost five years, and in the past years, I have seen so many beautiful wooded areas cut down.

My children and I have enjoyed biking from our home to the Bailey Center. Biking over there can be dangerous at times, especially crossing Wayne Road. But, when we finally reach Marquette and head down toward John Glenn, those trees are always so beautiful and relaxing to look at.

When I noticed the huge sign that went up a while back, advertising the new senior citizen center, I was shocked. I've been depressed about it ever since. Once that center goes up, can you imagine all the more traffic on Marquette? Just trying to cross the road over to Central City Park would take 15 minutes.

Those trees help the pollution from all the cars in that area, besides being beautiful to the eyes.

I guess if our senior citizens are having difficulty finding housing, it's important for this to be built. But, I also think our sanity and our health are important, and just a simple drive to the park, past those trees on Marquette, can be very refreshing in today's hectic world.

The next time you drive down that road, please take a few moments to think about this matter.

Kathy Schillerstrom,

How to save school money

To the editor:

There is plenty of money in the Wayne-Westland Community Schools coffers now! But there will not be plenty forever. Therefore something must be done by the board of education now to ensure that cost saving efforts are in operation.

The effects of the 7.75 mill increase in June 1991 has not hit most homeowners yet. Only those who pay their property taxes directly have seen the huge increases in July and December. Most homeowners, who pay their taxes through their mortgage escrow, will not feel the effect of the huge tax increase until the mortgage companies adjust their house payments in February or March.

Then the $4.4 million fund balance which has accumulated without the 7.75 mills will look even bigger. In June 1992, when the projected fund balance is $8.7 million, those tax increases will look enormous.

WHAT CAN be done now? Two things need to take place at the end of the 1992 school year, and must begin now to happen then.

First, ninth-grade students need to be transferred to the high schools in September 1992.

In the process of complying with the schools of choice within a school district in the 1992-93 school year, the high school enrollments must be adjusted to equalize the number of students and to guarantee racial balance per the impending legislation.

When this has been done, then the option is to create middle schools with Grades 6, 7, and 8; or to keep grades 7 and 8 together, and be able to close a junior high building. If the middle school option is chosen, the possibility exists for closing three elementary buildings whose enrollment will drop below 300.

Second, an early retirement incentive for all staff must be inaugurated.

The aging staff must be encouraged to retire early so that replacements receiving half the salary can be hired, or layoffs from "downsizing" can be kept at a minimum. In the process of trimming the staff, a complete reorganization of the administration to comply with the Public Act 25 concept of site-based decision making can also be accomplished.

In these days of transition, the board of education must provide the necessary leadership to cut operational costs before another contrived or real emergency occurs again.

Join in railing against system

ON THE SOUTH side of Chicago in the year 1969, there was a radio station commentator on WVON who always railed against the system. Some called him an agitator.

Also on the south side of Chicago, circa 1969, there was a young black man freshly graduated from the university who thought he knew life's answers, always challenging the status quo. Some said he had a chip on his shoulder.

The young man listened to the radio while the old man railed. "Taxes too high; the war in Nam must stop; busing is the answer. Black Panthers hounded by Hoover; Richard Nixon can't be trusted."

This was interspersed with Marvin Gaye, the OJays, the Isley Brothers and Maze. Sometimes, when the commentator spoke of Martin Luther King, Lyndon Johnson, Viet Nam, racism, poverty and the ghetto, the young man tuned out figuratively and literally. Stopped listening. Closed off. Pushed the button to WLS for Janis or Mick Jagger or maybe some Sly and the Family Stone.

THE WIZENED veteran, up the hard way from an all-black, southern blues station, now talking on an all-black Chicago urban station with white owners, took a helluva chance back in 1969. If you wanted to keep your job, you didn't talk about the system — you joined. Then if you were lucky, you milked it. If you wanted longevity, you went along to get along.

The young man, brazenly upstart, dared to climb the corporate ladder. Or so he thought. Trainee positions led to account positions which led to management positions. Those led to the suburban upwardly mobile lifestyle, the wife, the kid, the traveling job, the high five-figure income. The young man on the fast track forgot what he'd been when the old commentator spoke.

It was during the heady, anything goes '80s that this brash, somewhat arrogant man began to be humbled. The Reagan years: tax reductions, junk bonds, leveraged buy outs, greenmail, T. Boone Pickens and H. Ross Perot. The '80s — those go-go years when as Gheko said greed was good; as Bush said voodoo economics reigned and our future was sold to tomorrow.

This upstart, a black man who sought to defy the odds, proceeded, missing all the cues and crashed upon the glass ceiling.

THE CHICAGO Radio Seer, a man named Roy Wood, retired to the south after years of battling the system. He lost more battles than he won. The thing is that he fought them. Why will fight them now?

Many thought the cocky, now aging man had not only crashed but burned against the glass ceiling. Corporate America with its clubs and cliques and rules and pecking order and politics, was not compatible with this rebel who had early on been influenced by the fire of Roy Wood who always ended his controversial commentary with the verbal challenge:

"This is just one black man's opinion? What's yours?"

The man, now pushing the four decade mark, was through the years forged. Life had taught some of the hard knocks a black man in this country will take. Affirmative action, discrimination, fear and misperception were common occurrences which ultimately brought him again to the point of the fiery commentary of Roy Wood.

The point. The only way to fix the system is to challenge it. How? By providing balance, perspective and provocative new ideas.

I'M JEFFREY MILLER, that once brash man, a Detroit area transplant since the mid-'80s, who is fed up to the eyebrows with the way things are. Racial fear, production cutbacks, layoffs, the New World Order, AIDS, car jackings, Detroit bashing, minority scapegoating and the litany goes on.

I'm tired of dealing with the same old mindset that has the President in a Japan, hat-in-hand, whining for a fair U.S. trade deal. In tow, like puppies on a leash, 20 of this country's most powerful businessmen expose the plea for fairness as the sham it is. Their monstrous salaries point up the very management/worker practices that have encouraged the deficit.

I happen to think that we can fix what ails us and so does the managing editor of this paper, Steve Barnaby, who watches a TV show called Transition that I produce. Since the show talks to these issues, Steve thought it would be a good idea to express some of those ideas in your paper.

So here I am: not quite so young anymore, still with a chip on my shoulder, committed to shaking things up. Committed to change.

In this column, every other week, I'll be railing against the system like Roy Wood, the old Chicago commentator. From him I'll take the words:

"This is just one black man's opinion! What's yours?"

I hope you read this space and get involved.

Jeffrey Miller is a Southfield resident. Transition can be seen on WXON-TV 20, Continental Cable and United Cable.

No end in sight to tax spending

HOW DID we get this way? How did Michigan and America get to the point where one person in five draws some kind of welfare and one baby in four is born to a single mother who likely will join the welfare rolls?

Agnes Mansour, once director of the state Department of Social Services, had her answer: "The media." Stories on movie stars showed girls it was OK to have babies without a husband.

Coretta Scott King, widow of the civil rights leader, in a 1988 Oakland University talk, had her scapegoat: "conservative economists" of the '80s. She was blissfully ignorant that the trend started under John Kennedy in the '60s. (Happily, Gov. John Engler vetoed the program that paid for King's misinformation.)

A BETTER answer to why welfare dependency is growing came in a 1987 report by U.S. Senate Republicans. They blamed a series of U.S. Supreme Court decisions, saying:

• Loving v. Virginia (1967) "strikes down law against interracial marriage. This approach... limits the ability of the state to regulate any aspect of marriage, remarriage after divorce, cohabitation, or legitimacy — central matters in welfare debates over the following two decades."

• King v. Smith (1968) "strikes down Alabama law denying AFDC eligibility to households which include 'substitute fathers,' i.e., adult males unrelated to the mother by blood or marriage. Decision makes cohabitation more profitable than marriage in most states."

• Weber v. Aetna Casualty and Surety Co. (1972) says "workmen's compensation benefits cannot be limited to legitimate children, sets stage for barring any government preference for legitimacy."

• New Jersey Welfare Rights Organization v. Cahill (1973) "forbids state preference for marriage over cohabitation in welfare programs."

• USDA v. Moreno (1973) "invalidates a provision of the food stamp program basing household eligibility upon ties of blood, marriage or adoption — the traditional definition of family."

• Moore v. East Cleveland (1977) "invalidates municipal zoning ordinance based on the traditional family. (The court found this effort by a black community to strengthen family life 'senseless and arbitrary.' The court says government can't 'standardize' people by 'forcing all to live in certain narrowly defined family patterns.'"

• Zablocki v. Redhail (1979) strikes down Wisconsin law that had required people obtaining a marriage license to show that "remarriage would not prevent them from continuing to support their children. Right to marry is given precedence over responsibility to spouse and children of former marriage."

THE BOTTOM line is that the U.S. Supreme Court prohibited states from showing preference to people who marry over people who cohabit.

By 1983 the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights was reporting that increases in marital disruption and illegitimacy "are responsible for essentially all of the growth in poverty since 1970... and that they show no signs of abating as the unwed birth and divorce rates continue to climb rapidly."

So today we have 52 million people soaking up hundreds of billions of tax dollars in 59 major programs — with no end in sight.

OK, some states overdid it by outlawing contraceptives and interracial marriage. But do the justices make fiscal impact studies of what their narrow legal decisions cost taxpayers, businesses and other social needs like education? We don't know. The justices meet in secret.

Check variables on success

QUESTION: We are often told that money spent per child, higher teacher salaries and small class sizes impact on graduation rates, SAT scores and the like. What is the relationship?

ANSWER: After 14 years South Dakota's teachers make $21,300, the lowest teacher salary in the country.

Yet South Dakota has the fourth highest graduation rate in the country and ranks seventh highest nationally in SAT scores.

Washington D.C. spends the most money per child ($7,850), has the third highest average teacher salary ($39,850) and the worst graduation rate in the country (57.7 percent).

Salaries and money spent on students meant little if anything in Washington D.C.

Michigan has the fifth best class size ratio and the seventh best average teacher salary ($36,427) in the country but ranks 18th in SAT scores and 36th nationally in their graduation rate. Detroit has a 50 percent drop out rate. There is a relationship between money spent on children and school success, but numerous other variables (crime rate in Washington D.C.) need to be considered. You need to look at your own district, its expenditures, graduation rate, the social economics existing and determine if you are getting your money's worth.

Tracking animals can be fun, tricky

Snow allows us to see where animals in our backyards, forests and meadows travel. If there is snow on the ground, an animal is going to make a track. Even if we do not see the animal, we know it was there by the tracks it left behind.

nature
Timothy Nowicki

Wildlife biologists take advantage of this time of year to census animals in different habitats. They erect two stakes and identify the tracks and count how many of each track that cross an imaginary line between the two stakes. This technique can only be used in winter.

Following tracks in winter's snow can often tell a story. Consider the fresh snow as the blank pages of a book, tracks as the words, and following the tracks as the sentences and paragraphs of the story. I remember following well-trodden paths of a fox to its den one winter season. Several main pathways radiated from the den in different directions.

IF YOU follow tracks in the proper direction it may lead you to the animal. But sometimes following a track in the proper direction can be tricky. For instance, two common tracks that can be found in backyards are squirrels and rabbits.

When the snow is not too deep the impressions of each toe can be seen. This is particularly true with a squirrel. Which ever way the toes are pointing is the direction the animal is traveling. But in soft, deep fluffy snow toe impressions are not very distinct. Under these conditions the direction of travel is determined by the basic pattern of the track.

When either the squirrel or rabbit is running fast, the front feet are put down first and the back feet swing in front of the front feet. Squirrels generally keep their two front feet directly across from each other. Rabbits align their front feet one in front of the other, or slightly askew.

This pattern is just opposite of what one would think. Large back feet impressions do not mean that they are always the trailing track. Some animals like the fox walk in their own tracks. A single file pattern of tracks in the meadow is generally that of a fox. Both front and back feet register in the same impression. If you have a cat, watch how they make their tracks in the snow. Its the same method as the fox.

Next time you walk the trails, see if you can identify the animal that made a track, and see if you can identify which direction it was traveling.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia.

TIM NOWICKI/illustration

Following tracks can be tricky. In soft, deep fluffy snow, toe impressions of rabbits and squirrels look very similar. Rabbits align their front feet one in front of the other, or slightly askew.

boxing

Craig Payne doesn't admit to being the next Muhammad Ali — yet — but he's starting to sound like the great former champion.

The 28-year-old Livonia Boxing Club heavyweight improved his professional record to 5-0-1 after a four-round unanimous decision Tuesday over Luis Torres at Canton's Center Stage.

Payne, listed at 260 pounds, doesn't resemble the great champion but started to sound like him after he battered Torres throughout the fight.

"In '92, I'm going to show you what I can do, so in '93, I can say look at me," Payne chanted in his locker room. "I'm still six to eight months away from being all the way back, but when I am, I'll be hell to contend with. They're going to think I'm All out of retirement."

"He can take a punch," Payne said. "I hit him good in the left side a couple of times and thought he was going to collapse."

BY THE END of the fight, Torres' entire left side was as red as his trunks and blood trickled from his nose and upper lip. The fight looked as if it wouldn't

The second round was also all Payne, as he landed several punches to Torres' mid-section. Payne, fighting in new look zebra-like shorts, hammered away at Torres, who landed only one combination for the entire fight.

With Torres' face starting to show signs of the fight in the third round, Payne mistakenly nailed Torres with a low blow. The delay seemed to give Torres time to regroup.

The fight ended with both fighters leaning on each other with Payne, looking somewhat frustrated, unable to record a knockdown. The judges awarded Payne a 40-38 decision.

"I'm not at my best — I'm still a little weak," Payne admitted. "I still have to lose some weight. I have to keep on working. I'm still proud of myself."

"He made me work which may prove to be good for me in later fights with stiffer competition. I have to keep on fighting. I'll be in the gym tomorrow morning."

UNSURPRISINGLY, Torres (1-2) was unimpressed with Payne and welcomes a rematch.

"If he wants to come back, he's got to lose about 50 pounds," Torres said. "Whatever he threw at me, I didn't feel. I hit him with some good punches by I'm only 214 pounds. If he was 214 pounds, then it would be a better fight."

"I know when I fight, win or lose, it will be a good fight. If he wants to fight me again, fine. I'm confident. I'll fight him next month if he wants."

Paul Soucy, Payne's manager, said Payne may fight as many as three bouts in February. The caliber of competition may improve after some television appearances, he added. The USA Cable Network was present for Tuesday's card, but technical problems caused Payne's fight to be omitted from the telecast.

"He has to lose about 40 more pounds," Soucy said. "It'll take three to four months to take the weight off. He'll have to keep fighting to keep intense. You can practice and work out and lose your intensity. But I like his attitude. He wants it more than ever. He's back and he's here to stay."

IN OTHER BOUTS: Super bantamweight Jemal Hinton of Detroit's Kronk Gym improved to 22-0 with a 10-round unanimous decision over Lucido Norasco (33-13-2) in featured bout; Lansing's Joe Lipsey (12-0) scored a technical knockout over Californian Ricky Haynes in middleweight action; and Fritz Bruney of Toronto (5-1) won a majority decision over Brian Blakley of Grand Rapids in junior middleweight action.

Rousing rally

Wayne catches fire, cages Tigers

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Coach Chuck Henry "wondered if we'd ever get over the hump."

His Wayne Memorial basketball team trilled most of the game, but came on strong during the final stages to overtake visiting Belleville, 66-60.

The victory, a make-up game from a scheduled Jan. 14 matchup that was snowed out, gives the Zebras sole possession of first place in the Wolverine A League at 5-0.

And at least for one night, Wayne is king of the Wolverine A mountain. Both teams played again Tuesday. See related story.

"You're the home team, and when you catch them and get the momentum, the crowd begins picks up and the adrenaline flows," Henry said. "But it seemed like they had the lead forever."

Rick Barnes, a 6-foot-1 pivotman, provided Wayne with a shot in the arm, scoring a team-high 18 points to go along with 11 rebounds.

"He was just unbelievable late," Henry said. "For his size, being only 6-1 in the post, and to do what he does... is incredible."

Wayne outscored the Tigers 19-7 in the decisive fourth quarter after Belleville led by as many as eight points in the third.

THE ZEBRAS enjoyed their first lead of the night since the close of the first quarter (19-18) when senior forward Greg Hartman converted a pair of free throws to make it 58-55 with 3:48 remaining.

Demarco Robinson, a 6-2 senior forward who finished with 18 points, then drilled a three-pointer with 2:25 left to put Wayne up 59-55.

Belleville, however, came roaring back despite a blown layup.

After Wayne guard Stan Hill made it 60-55 with a free throw, Belleville's Maurice Robinson hit a shot with 1:41 to play and teammate Nate Griffin came up with a steal and turned it into a layup 14 seconds later to pull the Tigers to within one, 60-59.

But Wayne held off Belleville despite missing a pair of one-and-ones free throw attempts in the final 1:20.

On each miss, Wayne came up with a critical rebound, a sore subject with Belleville coach Mike Garland.

"We talked about it throughout the game," he said. "Height is overemphazed when you talk about rebounding. There's no way you can allow them three and four shots. Rebounding is not always about jumping, it's how quick you are to the ball."

FREE THROWS were another major statistic as the Zebras converted six straight in during final minute — four by Barnes and two by Hartman — to clinch the victory.

"Wayne did what they had to do to win the ballgame and we didn't," Garland said. "We can cry about spilled milk or the free throws, but they (Wayne) played better when the game was on the line."

Garland, however, could not be pleased with the wide disparity in free throws attempted.

Wayne converted 26 of 38 on the night (68 percent), while Belleville hit only 5-of-8 (62.5 percent).

"We'd turn back right around and play defense, and then they would walk to the line," said Garland, whose team is 6-3 overall and 4-1 in the league.

Belleville's top scorer was center Tyrone Hicks, who tallied a game-high 19.

But the 6-foot-7 senior, who has already signed a national letter-of-intent with Central Michigan, was held without a field goal during the final seven minutes of play.

"I THOUGHT a real key in the game was that Greg Hartman shut down Hicks," Henry said. "He (Hartman) was the fourth guy to guard him and he definitely did the best job."

Garland said that Hicks "touched the ball several times" in the final period, but "Wayne had him playing out away on the floor all night."

"We were not trying to hold the ball (in the fourth quarter)," Garland explained. "I thought we did a fine job adjusting to their pressure. There was no sense in rushing. We showed patience and I thought we took care of the basketball."

Each team had 16 turnovers. For the game, Belleville made 27 of 51 field goal tries for 53 percent, while Wayne was 18 of 43 for 42 percent.

"We had some good little short jumpers and didn't score them," said Garland, whose team shot 3-of-11 in the final quarter.

The victory gives Wayne a 7-1 overall record, but more importantly the Zebras are a leg up in the league race.

"Friday ends the first round," Henry said. "but we still have (Dearborn) Fordson, Monroe and Belleville all in the road and that's a tough assignment."

Wayne, at least for one night, however, passed their most difficult league test to date.

Hagelthorn picks CMU

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

football

Westland John Glenn football player Jason Hagelthorn has made a verbal commitment to Central Michigan University.

Hagelthorn, a member of the All-Observer first-team last fall, chose CMU over the University of Toledo, another Mid-American Conference school. Hagelthorn was a linebacker in high school but the Chippewas plan on playing the 6-foot-3, 236-pounder as a defensive lineman.

Players can sign binding national letters of intent on Wednesday, Feb. 5.

Hagelthorn, who has been selected to play in this summer's Michigan High School All-Star game, said knowing former Glenn players Chris Scheffer and Bryant Satterlee are prospering at CMU helped sway his decision.

"It was a real difficult decision," Hagelthorn said. "Toledo is a real good academic school, too, and they finished third in the league last year. I didn't want to go to a losing program."

CMU, which defeated Michigan State last year, won the MAC and a birth to the California Raisin Bowl in 1990.

IN OTHER recruiting news, Bowling Green has received commitments from a pair of Farmington Hills Harrison players and one from Redford Catholic Central. Making commitments this week were Harrison's 6-6, 280-pound lineman Mike Story and 6-2, 185-pound receiver Duante Anderson and Redford Catholic Central's 6-5, 235-pound defensive end Dave Bruhowzki.

Story picked BG over CMU, while Anderson selected the Falcons over Western Michigan. Bruhowzki chose BG over the University of Toledo.

Bowling Green finished 11-1 last fall and earned a No. 30 national ranking by the Associated Press and USA Today after a 28-21 upset victory over Fresno State in the Raisin Bowl.

BG's coach Gary Blackney, a one-time Ohio State University assistant, recently signed a five-year contract extension. Bruhowzki didn't catch a pass as a tight end for CC last fall but he showed promise as a defensive end — and that's where he'll play at BG.

"WHAT I LIKED about BG most is the players — they seemed to be a lot like myself, dedicated and hard working," Bruhowzki said. "It seemed to be the program I wanted to be in. My host (BG defensive tackle Bob Dudley) was a guy full of enthusiasm."

Story began his career at Harrison on the golfing team before finally putting football pads on his massive frame as a junior.

"I guess there was a lot of peer pressure for me to play because of my size — everyone thought it would be great if I played — and I guess it paid off," Story said. "All the BG coaches told me I was just starting to reach my peak."

BG is playing at Ohio State University on Sept. 12 and plays the following week at the University of Wisconsin, another Big Ten school.

Another Harrison standout, defensive tackle Leon Jefferson, has committed to Eastern Michigan.

Roberts scores 27 to stymie Novi

Keith Roberts popped in a game-high 27 points Tuesday, sparking Livonia Franklin to a 59-52 non-league boys basketball win at Novi.

"Keith played a smart game, he made good decisions at the end when we went into our delay to score offense," said Franklin coach Rod Hanna, whose team is 5-2 overall.

Novi falls to 6-4 overall. Roberts, a 5-foot-9 senior guard, made nine of 10 free throws on the night.

Franklin also held down Novi's top two scorers, Mike Kramer and Jason Walker, to 18 and 12 points, respectively.

"Jeff Hunt (nine points) and Jeff Witkowski did a super job on Kramer," Hanna said. "And Russ Keberly (eight points) and Joe Jarvis held down Walker."

Hanna also pleased with the rebounding of Facone and Keberly.

"It was a non-league game and we wanted to give everybody the opportunity to play," Hanna said. "We got to use everybody and I thought we played hard."

LUTH. WESTLAND 66, HARPER WOODS 57: A 21-12 scoring surge in the second quarter propelled Lutheran High Westland (2-6) to the non-league win Tuesday over the visiting Pioneers (1-6).

"We were much more intense in the second quarter," Lutheran High coach Scott Wiemer said. "We went to a full-court man-to-man press and scored some points off turnovers, and we were able to get the ball inside."

The Warriors led by as many as 21 points in the third quarter before Harper Woods closed the gap to two down the stretch. But the Pioneers could not convert the equalizer.

Junior guard Phil Spolarick and junior forward Rich Mobley each tallied 14 points. Junior center Kevin Nelson added 12 points.

Nelson and Mobley grabbed nine and eight rebounds, respectively.

Pete Gallagher tallied a game-high 20 for Harper Woods.

STEVENSON 68, REDFORD UNION 54: On Tuesday, senior forward Colin Stockton netted a game-high 26 points, leading Livonia Stevenson (5-2) to the non-league win over the host Panthers (3-6).

Ryan Furkas and Matt Grodzicki added 10 and nine points, respectively, for the victorious Spartans, who outscored RU 28-7 in the second quarter.

Senior guard Paul Nowak had 10 for RU, which lost its third straight.

NORTHVILLE 61, JOHN GLENN 59: Westland John Glenn made a furious nine-point rally in the final minute

Tuesday, but came up short when Kevin Champion's 30-foot attempt missed at the buzzer.

The visiting Mustangs (5-3) escaped with the win behind Ryan Huzjak's 19 points. Chris Lehr and Matt Schramm added 18 and 11, respectively.

The Rockets (2-4) were led by senior guard Mitch Orr, who tossed in 15, including seven in the final period. Champion, a senior forward, added 11.

Glenn trailed 51-50 with 1:05 left when Aaron Scheffer scored four points, Champion added two and Orr converted his third 3-pointer of the night to pull Glenn to within two, 61-59.

Northville could not put the game away, missing three one-and-one free throw opportunities.

Free throw inaccuracy also led to Glenn's demise. The Rockets made only six of 20 on the night.

DEARBORN 75, CHURCHILL 67: Senior guard Nick Hartsaris flipped in a game-high 25 points, including four triples Tuesday, leading the visiting Pioneers (3-4) to the non-league triumph at Livonia Churchill (1-6).

Ken Swider and Ali Abdrraboh each tallied 12 points for the winners.

Brian Johnson, a senior guard, scored 19 to pace Churchill, which lost its sixth straight. Senior centers Keith Gullan and Mario Lucaj added 14 and 12, respectively. Lucaj also grabbed eight rebounds.

Dearborn hit 17 of 24 free throws, while Churchill stayed close by connecting on 21 of 23.

WAYNE 89, SOUTHGATE 61: On Tuesday, host Wayne Memorial (8-1) stayed unbeaten in the Wolverine A League as five players scored in double figures against winless Southgate Anderson (0-9, 0-5).

Wayne led by only six at intermission, 40-34, before going on a 24-12 run in the third period followed by a 25-15 scoring outburst in the final quarter.

Demarco Robinson paced the victors with 20 points. Others in double figures for the Zebras included Lee Williams (15), Donteze Prewitt (13), Stan Hill (12) and Rick Barnes (10).

Paul Luljgaral led the Titans with 12.

HAMTRAMCK 73, CLARENCEVILLE 67: Damon Williams, a junior guard, poured in a game-high 27 Tuesday, carrying the host Cosmos (4-4, 2-0) to the Metro Conference win over Livonia Clarenceville (5-3, 0-2).

Dan Nunnery, a senior forward, scored 17 points in a losing cause.

Delta tames Ocelots in hoop sweep

Done in by foul trouble and a long-range shooting game that had deserted it, Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team was chopped down again, 95-77 by Delta CC Saturday at the Saginaw Civic Center.

"We shot from downtown and that hurt us," said coach Dave Bogataj after his team had fallen to 8-12 overall, 2-6 in the Eastern Conference. Delta improved to 9-8 overall, 3-5 in the conference.

Delta packed in their defense in an attempt to neutralize SC inside threats Jarvis Murray and Scott Meredith. It worked: Murray managed just seven points and six rebounds, and Meredith got 12 points and six boards.

Both ended up fouling out. So did Jamal Ahmed. The Ocelots sent the Pioneers to the free throw line 42 times; they made 27 (64 percent). SC was just 5-of-11 (45 percent).

SC got 15 points and seven boards from Jeff Wagner. Fred Frieman led Delta with 28 points.

SC WOMEN: The Lady Ocelots suffered from a power outage Saturday. It started at SC when a generator went out, forcing the game — which SC was supposed to host — to be changed to Delta CC.

Then the loss of power followed the Lady Ocelots all the way to Saginaw.

It started to show at the end of the first half. Delta went to the free throw line seven times in the final two minutes, making six; in that same span, the Lady Ocelots missed the front end of two one-and-ones.

That gave the Lady Pioneers a 37-29 halftime advantage, and sent them on their way to a 74-63 triumph over SC.

The Lady Ocelots did not surrender meekly in the second half. With 12 minutes remaining, a Donna Gall basket put them ahead 52-50. The game remained tight until SC point guard Jen Audet fouled out with five minutes left. Delta took immediate advantage, stealing the ball twice in a row and scoring to open up a six-point (60-54) lead.

That started the Lady Pioneers on a 20-9 closing run, which elevated them to 11-6 overall and 4-3 in the Eastern Conference.

SC got 23 points from Gall and 19 more from Sis Guth. The defeat dropped the Lady Ocelots to 12-7 overall, 2-4 in the conference.

Glenn grappler a hit at CC

Temperance Bedford, ranked No. 1 in Class A, had five individual champions Saturday and won its third straight Redford Catholic Central Wrestling Invitational.

The Kicking Mules have now won 13 of the 28 CC Invitationals and eight of the last 11.

Westland John Glenn was the highest-placing Observerland team, taking seventh place with 86 points, followed by CC in eighth place (86½), Birmingham Brother Rice in 12th (53½) and Wayne Memorial in 15th place (15½). Fifteen of the scheduled 16 teams showed.

Holt, rated ninth in Class A prior to the meet, placed ninth with 82½ points. Four of the individual winners are past champions at the CC Invitational.

For statistical summary, see page 4B.

JOHN GLENN'S Mike Reeves turned in the surprise performance of the meet, winning the 152-pound division after receiving a No. 2 seed. Reeves started his assault on the title with a 17-0 win over Mount Pleasant's Matt Daniels. In the second round, Reeves beat Howell's Brad Barron because of a default and then outdueled Warren Lincoln's Sean Pearse, the ninth-seed, 6-4, to reach the finals.

Reeves outlasted the No. 1 seed, Bedford's Jess Hurley, 10-5, to win the championship and cement himself as a legitimate contender for the state title. Reeves is currently undefeated overall.

The Rockets had strong depth as defined by their three third place finishes. Tom Pace took third place in the 103-pound division with a 4-1 win over Holt's Rob Hernandez; Mike Mancini captured third in the 112 division with a default over CC's Mario Scicuna, who broke an ankle earlier in the day; and Shane Hall picked up third-place recognition with a 7-5 win over Ulica Ford's Jason Koss.

CC, which won the meet in 1987, '88 and '89, finished with two champions — junior Jason Krueger and senior Dan Kelly.

Krueger, seeded first, won the title with a 10-4 win over Holt's Jim Workman in the final round. To reach the final round, Krueger won his first match by void, beat Mount Pleasant's Tom Hutchins, 15-0, and East Detroit's Brian Carr, 10-0.

KELLY ALSO WAS seeded first and after a first-round victory by void he pinned his remaining three opponents for the 171-pound title. Kelly pinned Howell's Bernie Gibbons in 1 minute, 46 seconds, Mount Pleasant's Jamey Ervin in 3:39 and Davison's Jeff Lewis in the finals in 5:5.

Bedford's Fred Schumacher, the defending 119-pound Class A champion, was named the invitational's Most Valuable Wrestler. Schumacher, the second seed, defeated No. 1 seed Derek Moscovic of Birmingham Brother Rice, 9-6, in the finals. Moscovic, who is the defending 112 pound state champion and a CC Invitational winner in 1991, recorded two pins and a 22-7 win sandwiched in-between to reach the final round against Schumacher.

Rice also had a runnerup in the 189-pound division, where John McGuire was pinned in the final by Howell's Jason Steinacker in 3:01.

McGuire, the second seed, received a bye into the second round, won a 16-14 decision over Bedford's Jay Woodbury, and pinned Davison's Rob Gould in 3:12 to reach the finals.

Madonna women bounce Wilmington

In its most impressive performance of the season, Madonna University made its trip to Lake Erie CC in Mentor, Ohio to play Wilmington College a worthwhile one by recording a 69-64 basketball triumph Saturday.

Balanced scoring and good shooting made a major impact for Madonna, which improved to 4-11. Both Cheri Sangregorio and Jill Burt scored 23 points for the Lady Crusaders, with Sangregorio grabbing 10 rebounds. Karen Sangregorio added 10 points and 13 boards, and Michelle Krashovetz netted 10 points.

Madonna made 49 percent of its floor shots, but ac-ording to coach Bill Potter, "the key to the game was our defense on their No. 1 scorer, Antoinette Brown."

Brown still managed 16 points, including the first 10 of the second half. But the Crusaders' box-and-one defense, with Samatha Yesh assigned the coverage on Brown, kept her in check.

The loss left Wilmington, which had received mention in the NAIA national rankings, at 10-8 overall.

Madonna returns to NAIA District 23 action tonight when it plays at University of Michigan-Dearborn at 7:30 p.m.

'The Sound and Fury' Playwright introduces Faulkner

"Oh, Mr. Faulkner, Do You Write," 8 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 30, at the Livonia City Hall Auditorium and 7 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 1, at a dinner theater in the Mayflower Meeting House in Plymouth. Tickets for the Jan. 30 performance are $5 in advance, or $6 at the door. Dinner theater tickets, $25, available at the Plymouth Community Arts Council office 322 S. Main. For reservations call 455-5260.

By Linda Ann Chomin
special writer

Actor/playwright John Maxwell presents his one-man play "Oh, Mr. Faulkner, Do You Write?" at the Livonia City Hall Auditorium, Farmington Road at Five Mile, 8 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 30, and at a dinner theater 7 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 1, in the Mayflower Meeting House, 455 S. Main Plymouth.

"I ENJOY introducing people to the man," said Maxwell who performs the part in a soft, Southern drawl using some of Faulkner's personal belongings such as his pipe and hat as props.

"I read all of his novels, screen plays and poetry," said Maxwell, who spent six years researching the book, and six months co-writing it with Tom Dupree.

"I spoke with people who had known him for their personal recollections. The key was the letters. There was a volatileness there about the man. I didn't start off with a grand plan to it. It formed on its own as I began writing."

Set in the author's Mississippi den, the action takes place prior to Faulkner's receiving the Nobel Prize

'It's entertaining. It's not an academic piece. It makes Faulkner accessible to those who knew his work, and those who never heard of the man.'

— John Maxwell

in 1949 as he wrestles with whether or not to travel to Stockholm to accept it.

"Oh, Mr. Faulkner" strikes a delicate balance between drama and humor as Maxwell's script focuses on Faulkner's human side. In one heart-rending scene, Faulkner reveals details of his brother Dean's death in an airplane. He blames himself because he bought the plane and paid for his brother's lessons.

"It's entertaining. It's not an academic piece. It makes Faulkner accessible to those who knew his work, and those who never heard of the man. He has such a dry, dark sense of humor. He's an abundantly rich storyteller."

TO SHOWCASE Faulkner's dry wit, the play travels back to the hard drinking author's unhappy screen writing days in Hollywood where his famous conversation with Clark Gable took place.

Gable asked Faulkner to name the top writers in America. Faulkner named them, and included himself in the list. Gable replied "Oh, Mr. Faulkner, do you write?"

Faulkner countered, "Yes, Mr. Gable, what do you do?"

The play ends with Faulkner deciding to go to Stockholm to accept the Nobel Prize because, as he puts it, he owes it to a lot of people who have "waited a long time to be proud of me."

Like Faulkner, Maxwell graduated from the University of Mississippi with a master's degree in theater after completing undergraduate work in English. After a decade as a professor of speech and theater at a community college outside Jackson, Miss., he said he felt burned out. Taking a leave of absence, he applied for a grant from the Mississippi Arts Commission to write, "Oh, Mr. Faulkner."

The play made its debut in April 1981 at the New State Theatre in Jackson, Miss. Since then, Maxwell has taken the play throughout the United States and to 12 other countries including U.S. Information Agency tours to the Middle East and Africa. Later this year, he will perform in Japan.

"We're very excited to be bringing such an acclaimed performer to our area, and that so many people including students will have a chance to see this play," said Nancy Pilon, chairwoman of community programs for the Plymouth Community Arts Council which is hosting the performances.

The Jan. 30 performance is hosted in conjunction with the Livonia Arts Actor/playwright John Maxwell brings to life William Faulkner's humorous side as well as tragic in "Oh, Mr. Faulkner, Do You Write?" Thursday, Jan. 30, in Livonia and Saturday, Feb. 1, in Plymouth.

Commission. Advance tickets are available at the City of Livonia's Department of Community Resources office in city hall, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

BESIDES MAXWELL'S two public performances, he will give theater workshops, and perform for students at Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton High School, Divine Child High School in Dearborn, and Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti. All are funded in part by a grant from Arts Midwest.

"I'm interested in presenting the Livonia performance because it's another service that the arts commission can offer the community. Any money we receive will go to help pay the fee of the artist," said

Jack Olds, chairman of the Livonia Arts Commission.

"We'd like to make it as affordable as possible," said Kathy Savitskie, Plymouth Arts Council executive director. "This is one of the things we'd like to do with our Wilcox Mill Arts Center to bring in events for all of the surrounding communities, a kind of sharing and collaborating with each other."

Youngster breaks into show biz

By William Coutant
staff writer

Marvin Brennan probably won't be watching TV tonight.

While some of his friends play video games, watch their favorite sitcoms or play some one-on-one basketball, the 10-year-old will likely be taking dance lessons or acting lessons, or he might even be in front of a TV camera.

Brennan, a fourth grade student at Guardian Angel School in Birmingham, tried his hand at performing two and a half years ago and has been at it ever since.

"My sisters took a tap dancing class, and I went with them," Brennan said. "I watched what they were doing and practiced it myself."

That imitation of sisters Stacey, 16, and Bridgette, 14, brought out the young dancer's love of performing, and got him started. His mother Kathy said her son's abilities and interest soon took him beyond regular dance lessons, which led to private lessons. Since then, Marvin has appeared on stage in musicals, plays and operas, on TV specials and commercials, and in industrial and commercial films. His most recent Detroit area appearance came on "Never Lose Hope," a Christmas special that featured Pistons star Isiah Thomas.

And despite those accomplishments, Marvin is like any other boy who likes baseball and playing with friends.

"I got his (Thomas') autograph," he said. "He was nice."

ALTHOUGH HIS parts are sometimes small, Marvin has excelled in a variety of media, from Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado," which played at the Fisher Theatre in December, to a principal part in the American Academy of Dance's Soviet Union Cultural Tour to commercial films and a part in a Walt Disney Movie, "Wild Hearts Can't Be Broken."

Being ready for a variety of roles requires hours of training in dancing, acting and voice (Marvin has twice won national dance competitions). And even then, a director might want some one with "a different look."

"They want (the performer) to be good at everything," said Kathy Brennan. "You never know. They may want some singing or dancing in a role. So you've got to be prepared."

So far, Marvin has not been too disappointed with being passed up for parts. He's certainly had his share of roles in his brief career.

And friends don't have a problem with his celebrity status either.

"They think it's pretty neat," he said. "They didn't know I could do that work."

Sue Martin, of the Talent Shop in Birmingham, said with few companies that direct their message to audiences with children, such as those that produce toy or baby products, opportunities for young actors are limited. Marvin's good work ethic and professional attitude have helped him get parts.

"Marvin is a very skilled young man," she said. "He has professional experience and he wants to do this. They either want to or they don't. He really does a good job."

Already, in his brief career, Marvin has traveled to Poland, Russia, Denmark and Sweden, and has auditioned for shows in New York, North Carolina and, most recently, San Francisco.

That travel has a price. Marvin has to make up school work, and if he's on the road, he has to work with a tutor. After a recent trip to San Francisco for an audition, the young thespian returned only to have to cram for seven exams.

"It's a lot of fun, but a lot of work," Kathy Brennan said. "I told him 'If you want to do this, you have to do your school work.' We don't want to push."

Marvin may be missing out on some things, but he doesn't seem to mind. After all, he might just end up on the other side of the TV screen his friends are watching.

Marvin Brennan is at home on stage. The Birmingham resident was in costume for the Detroit production of "The Mikado" at the Fisher Theatre in December.

American Artists Series sheds light on obscure works

The American Artists Series, which has had a dedicated core of followers during its more than 20 years of existence, is distinguished by its unusual repertoire.

Joann Freeman, pianist and musical director of the series, seems to have an inexhaustible ability to dig through libraries and archives and come up with new musical treasures that seldom, if ever, see the light of day.

The latest program of this series, given Jan. 12, marked a certain departure from this approach. While some non-standard material will still be presented on future programs, it will be intermingled with established selections from the standard repertoire.

Starting with the recent program, the selections on all events have been changed to reflect the new trend.

THE LATEST program opened with Mozart's Quartet in F major for Oboe and Strings. It concluded with the Piano Trio in C major by Brahms. In between were two less familiar works that were in the original schedule — a Larghetto and Humoreske by John Knowles Paine (1839-1906) and a quartet for Oboe and Strings by Malcolm Arnold (b. 1921).

The regular contingent of DSO musicians consisted of violinists Linda Snedden-Smith and Ronald Fischer, violist Hart Hollman, cellist John Thurman and oboist Donald Baker.

Such change in format is, in my opinion, a step in the right direction. In his introductory notes to the Mozart Oboe quartet, Baker elicited chuckles from the audience when he remarked that the Mozart masterpiece was of a much higher quality than the obscure work by Crusell originally scheduled.

THIS, IN itself, may not be a great revelation to most of us — few would seriously dispute the superiority of the established masters. This, however, doesn't make the less established works obsolete.

Unknown works with reasonable qualifications may be analogous, if not outright equivalent, to a voyage into foreign lands. Such a voyage can be enjoyable provided one doesn't remain stranded. The established repertoire serves as a secure home base of return from such a journey.

Possibly a less desirable side effect is that programming obscure works side by side with the more-established masterpieces tends to put the former at a distinct disadvantage.

THIS WAS the case, for example, with Paine's work for the same instrumental combination as the Brahms Trio. This Larghetto and Humoreske, in itself, reflects some central aspects of the endowed Romantic tradition, imitating generously the styles of Schumann and Brahms. But it was a far cry from the artistic excellence of Brahms.

Among the factors that made this chiasm even more pronounced was the fact that the performance of the Brahms Trio was among the better, more-inspired live performances of this work that I have heard — complete with a sense of perspective and subtle nuances.

The energy flowed from the music itself, rather than from brute force. The latter was more apparent in the Paine work. One had to strain to find something humorous in the Humoreske.

THE Oboe Quartet by Arnold fared better.

With its style and period so far removed from Mozart, it avoided the futile prospect of a direct comparison. Its English idyllic style provided this program with a dimension that was not duplicated in the other works. It also benefited from Baker's ability to make, almost any work for oboe sound like a masterpiece.

There was some concern on the part of the organizers that the Detroit Lions game, which took place that day, would reduce attendance. Kingswood Auditorium turned out to be more full than ever. This may have been one significant albeit indirect contribution to the advancement of the arts by a most-inspired invention — the VCR.

THE NEXT program, on March 8, will feature works by Mozart (Flute Quartet), Amy Beach, Villa-Lobos and Mendelssohn (C minor Trio).

Beach has been put on the map recently by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and its director, Neeme Jarvi, who recorded her Gaelic Symphony. Her work on this program will be Theme and Variations for Flute and String Quartet.

Avigdor Zoromp, born in Poland, educated in Israel and the United States, has a Ph.D. in math and has studied piano, music theory and history.

Foland's planning overhaul; lenders want liquidation

By Doug Funke, staff writer

A bankruptcy judge apparently will decide Foland's short-term future after negotiations between creditors and the Livonia-based showroom retailer failed.

Foland's this week announced plans to file a Chapter 11 petition in which the company reorganizes under court supervision and continues to operate.

A committee representing several hundred creditors announced an intention to force a Chapter 7 filing — an involuntary liquidation. In that situation, a court-appointed trustee sells assets and the debtor is discharged of further responsibility.

Bankruptcy laws will allow Foland's a shot at devising a survival plan.

Foland's announced it would reopen all six of its metro Detroit stores including outlets in Rochester, Southfield and Livonia as of yesterday (Wednesday).

day (Wednesday).

"It will be business as usual," said David Castlegrant, director of stores for Foland's. "We plan to continue operating all six locations, expanding our strongest categories, namely fine jewelry, bridal registry, gift and tabletop.

"Weaker business segments will be eliminated through aggressive inventory liquidations," he added.

ALL SIX FOLAND'S stores closed Jan. 3. The Livonia store opened Jan. 14, but only to process layaway purchases and repairs.

Upwards of 250 of the 450 employees who had been laid off have been called back to work, Castlegrant said. Others are expected in the weeks ahead, but he couldn't provide an exact number or timetable.

Cost cutting moves contemplated by Foland's include combining positions at the Livonia headquarters.

Foland's also plans to discontinue its annual catalogue book.

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

Foland's plans to open all six of its catalogue showrooms and file for Chapter 11 bankruptcy reorganization, despite plans by creditors to force the company to liquidate under Chapter 7.

Shelly Mishal, a lawyer representing the creditor's committee, said a majority of businesses owed money opted to call for a forced liquidation after negotiations failed.

"At this point, the creditors... have an obligation to recover as much as they can," Mishal said. "They've provided goods and services in good faith. Foland's has an obligation to pay them.

"Our goal is to maximize return or minimize losses for hundreds of businesses," Mishal added. "We worked hard to come to a satisfactory solution for everyone. It hasn't happened yet. We're still hoping for a resolution good for everyone.

Foland's, established in 1973, is a privately-owned company.

Standard Federal sets new mortgage record

Standard Federal Bank in 1991 set a new record for home mortgage lending volume, said Thomas R. Ricketts, chairman and president.

The Troy-based lender closed 20,960 home loans for a total of $1.67 billion — a 65-percent increase over last year's record $1.01 billion.

Standard Federal also:

- Doubled its net income for the final quarter of 1991 to $21.4 million or 68 cents a share, compared to $10.6 million and 34 cents share in the same quarter of 1990. It credited the showing to relatively lower levels of market interest rates for deposits.

- Raised the quarterly dividend 10 percent — to 11 cents from 10 cents for holders of record Feb. 17, payable March 2.

Of the loan closings, 28.1 percent were refinances of current Standard Federal loans compared to 9.0 percent in 1990. Standard Federal is by far the largest home mortgage lender in Michigan, closing more loans than the next two largest home lenders put together.

Non-performing assets are less than 0.5 percent of total assets, a continued drop.

"With our current outstanding loan commitments of over $199 million, we anticipate another very large volume of home mortgage loan closings in 1992," said Ricketts, whose bank has 120 branches in Michigan, Indiana and Ohio.

Laid-off retail employees face slim pickings

By Doug Funke
staff writer

The 500 or so Highland Superstores employees who have been or will be laid off in a cost-cutting move face a difficult time finding comparable jobs, consultants familiar with the industry said.

Highland, a publicly-owned company that sells appliances and home entertainment equipment, has headquarters in Plymouth and 49 stores in the Midwest including Westland, Southfield and Troy.

The layoffs — in all areas of the company's operations — were announced last week to stem a tide of red financial ink. Most have already occurred, said Danette Wineberg, a Highland spokeswoman.

The 500 jobs due to be cut represent nearly 18 percent of Highland's current work force of 2,800 full and part-timers.

"People unemployed will have a hard time finding jobs," said James V. McTevia, president of an East Detroit distressed debtor consulting firm that carries his name. "With the situation in the retail industry today, there are simply not going to be jobs out there."

"In the retail industry, January, February and March generally are downers anyway," McTevia said. "It's going to be a long time before they (employers) even start taking resumes."

"IN METRO Detroit, look at what usually happens after Christmas. Even in good times, people brought in temporarily are laid off. These aren't good times," he said.

Ronald P. Leonetti, who owns a senior management strategist company in Southfield specializing in retail, concurred with McTevia's observations.

"Those detached are going to have a very difficult time getting re-attached," he said. "The trend in retailing doesn't suggest there's an abundance of jobs."

"It doesn't seem like we're going through a cycle, but a transition," Leonetti said. "Other large employers have also gone through reductions through attritions, buyouts or other methods."

Joseph O'Connor, president of Consumer Market Analysts in Birmingham, echoed similar thoughts.

"The job market is tight now, especially for professionals, especially in retail where they're cutting back," O'Connor said. "I would think it would be difficult (to find jobs) with the recession we're in."

"I KNOW from personal experience, people we work with, retail or otherwise, are going through restructurings," he said. "Whoever you are today, if you're in middle management, you have a heckuva job to convince someone you have something to offer them."

McTevia doesn't see much hope for improvement any time soon. "Can people go out of Michigan? No. It's a recession trend nationally," he said. "You can go to West Palm Beach and shoot off a cannon in the malls and not hit anyone."

"A repairman may be able to eke out some income, but other stores surviving have their own work force," McTevia said.

Jay A. Wedeven, an owner of Strategic Edge, a Southfield retail planning firm, sees a mixed bag of opportunity.

"There's two ways to look at it. If you have a highly productive professional salesperson on commission, they may get a job with another organization," he said. "Corporate staff may have a difficult time. So many companies are consolidating and merging."

PEOPLE WHO lose their jobs should take advantage of any outplacement services Highland might offer, Leonetti advised.

"Knock on doors, respond to ads, make yourself available to people you know — friends, church members, old associates," he said. "You can make a substantial list of contacts. Make phone calls, set up breakfast meetings or coffee meetings."

Highland has offered "severance pay, various job counseling and referral assistance" to employees who were laid off, Wineberg said.

Highland reported a loss of $156.9 million on revenues of $420.8 million through the first nine months of its current budget year.

Highland reported a loss of $11.7 million on sales of $860.8 million during fiscal 1990 and a loss of $12.4 million on sales of $924.7 million in 1989.

"The streamlining of our work force and operations, both in our stores and in our corporate office, is designed to enable Highland to become an even lower-cost operator," said Ira Mondry, president and CEO.

"The lower our costs, the lower our prices can be. At the same time, we have designed the changes to maintain our high level of in-store and after-the-sale customer service," he added.

Highland also was to meet with creditors this week in an effort to restructure debt payments. A lawyer representing suppliers said his clients were owed in excess of $100 million.

Mondry confirmed that Highland has no plans to close any of its existing stores.

'People unemployed will have a hard time finding jobs. In the retail industry, January, February and March generally are downers anyway. It's going to be a long time before they (employers) even start taking resumes.'

Track expenditures, plug leaks to climb out of hole

By Dan Boyce

Second of two parts

Local financial planning experts reviewed the data of the family profiled here and made general recommendations based on the participants' resources and goals. The information is for educational purposes only; references are not intended as discrimination or endorsements by this newspaper or the advisers.

To receive a free financial planning brochure or to obtain a questionnaire to participate in this column, contact the Center of Financial Planning, Dept. 100, 26211 Central Park Blvd., Suite 604, Southfield 48076 or call 948-7900. Names of participants are withheld upon request, and submitted financial data is confidential.

"Beware of little expenses; small leaks will sink a great ship," said Benjamin Franklin. This month's profiled couple, Joe and Phyllis Harris, need to plug those expense leaks from their monthly budget lest their entire financial ship founder.

Last week, when we reviewed their credit card and debt problems, we saw that there were two methods that would work well in making these debts more manageable. Our comments this week will focus on helping them get the most from their $45,000 income.

The Harrises are living at the edge. Any unforeseen major expense or temporary loss of income could push them into insolvency. They need to take steps now to build a more secure foundation.

This financial dilemma is one that is faced by people of all income levels — from people who earn $15,000 per year to those earning more than $250,000 per year. It is probably difficult for the Harrises to believe that someone earning $250,000 per year could get into financial difficulty. But it is not how much one makes that determines financial success. It is the rate of expenditures in relation to that income that is the primary factor influencing financial security.

Most people think they would be in great shape if their income were about 20 percent higher than it is currently. But there are always more consumer goods on which to spend money. We all face choices, and Joe and Phyllis have sufficient income to be successful financially if they choose.

Understanding and accepting this basic financial truth is a powerful key to helping the Harrises to make progress toward their goals. They need to make sure that their dollars are being put toward those areas that are of greatest importance to them. They should ask themselves the golden question: When does "more" become "enough?"

THE HARRISES should begin by developing a formal spending plan. They have been operating by the "seat of their pants" ever since they were married. Despite the best intentions to pay off debts each month, when the end of the month comes there is rarely any money left.

Instead of handling their money in this haphazard fashion, they need to run their financial affairs like a small business. In essence, their family unit has revenues of $45,000, and they should plan to have a "profit" (money left over) at the end of each year or month.

The first step in preparing this spending plan is to track their expenditures. If their situation was not so critical they could start keeping records on a month-by-month basis in 1992. But they need to start this process immediately.

They should look back over their records for 1991 and come as close as they can in estimating their monthly outlays. They may want to use the format in the Cash Flow Worksheet (accompanying this article). It summarizes the expense categories in a monthly format, and it minimizes the need to flip pages or get mired in unnecessary detail.

Joe and Phyllis don't need to track down how every dollar was spent. Their checkbook and charge statements should provide them with 90 percent of the detail necessary to categorize expenses. Their cash expenditures can simply be lumped together under the "allowance" category, or they can create a new category called "cash expenditures." They can add or subtract categories to reflect their own expenditure patterns.

They should continue to track expenditures at the end of each month. Again, they don't need to write down every dollar they spend. Check register, credit card statements, and cash withdrawals should be adequate. They should have to spend no more than one-half hour per month on their recordkeeping.

THESE RECORDS become a vital tool in helping them plan for future expenditures. First, they can look at the month-by-month expenditures for 1991 and have a fairly accurate picture of the expenses for each month in 1992. Having the previous year's actual monthly expenditures is an advantage because it picks up the occasional major items that are part of everybody's budget, including auto insurance premiums, property taxes and the like.

Second, this past record gives them a good idea of their cumulative spending in each category. Upon review, they may be surprised to see where some of their money has been spent.

Expenditures can then be prioritized. They should plan to end the year with a surplus. Even if unexpected contingencies arise, they can use this information to adjust future years' spending plans.

In reviewing priorities, they might review whether it is of primary importance to replace one of their cars every two years with a new car. Is the boat bought two years ago a wise use of their recreational dollars? Did they really need to upgrade their computer system last year? These are some of the choices they made.

Joe and Phyllis have the capability of taking control of their monthly expenditures. By taking the steps recommended last week to eliminate their credit card debt and then following the steps outlined in this article, they will avoid the month-to-month struggle to make ends meet. They will have plugged the leaks in their financial foundation and made major progress toward setting their financial ship on the proper course.

Author gets just facts about LBJ, Kennedys

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

As a biographer, Doris Kearns Goodwin has always been concerned with going with the right stuff as opposed to just writing the good stuff.

The author of two New York Times best sellers — "Fitzgeralds and the Kennedys" and "Lyndon Johnson and the American Dream" — was quick to make the distinction before the Jan. 15 Livonia Town Hall audience at Burton Manor.

"As a historian, I still believe that there are ways of evaluating what parts of our public figures lives are important to understanding their character," Kearns Goodwin said, "and what parts are not. It's a continuing struggle, however."

Kearns Goodwin presentation is rapid and very compelling.

She expresses the roles of a biographer, the importance of putting things into context, meticulous research and substantiating a person's recollections with fact. All of which seems lost in today's plethora of kiss-and-tell books. And Especially when history butts up against controversial films such as Oliver Stone's "JFK."

The movie advances the theory that the military-industrial complex with Lyndon Johnson at the helm was behind the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

KEARNS GOODWIN sees the movie as a positive vehicle in prompting discussion about the Kennedy assassination. As Johnson's biographer and confidant in his final years, though, she finds it's unfathomable he was behind the conspiracy.

"Every time he had an election he would get sick," said Kearns Goodwin, a former Harvard professor. "When he ran up against controversy, it was very hard for him. He left the race in 1968. But to imagine him to have the capacity to oversee such a thing is astonishing. I can't imagine it.

"Even if he did, there's no evidence in the movie. To have implicated Johnson with no evidence is an extraordinary feat. If Johnson were still alive, he'd have crushed Oliver Stone, I think. He (Oliver) went too far. . . ."

Through the course of her discussion, Kearns Goodwin gave examples of how careful one has to be in charting a person's role in history.

Smooth moves Husband-wife team creates dance game for pre-teens

By Sue Mason
staff writer

At Julie Fahner's ninth birthday, her aunt and uncle watched as she opened her presents. There were clothes, books, pens and paper. Good stuff as far as birthdays go, but so-so when you consider there was nothing to play with.

Julie may not have realized it at the time, but that party provided an inspiration for her aunt and uncle, Nancy and Tony Walser . . . an inspiration that two years later is on sale at places like Toys R Us, Kmart, Meijer and Service Merchandise.

That inspiration is now Golden Games' "Dance Party."

"This is kind of anticlimactic," said Nancy, fiddling with a few game cards fanned out on the floor of their Westland home. "We worked on this so hard and were so excited about it. . . . It was fun because someone was interested in it. We weren't at home working on it, wondering if someone would buy it."

"To us, it's a success because it came out," added Tony. "We're excited but cautious. We're taking this month by month."

"Dance Party" is along the lines of an in-home "American Bandstand" with a dash of the moves seen on MTV and VH-1.

Players pair up to dance to their favorite music using the moves depicted on six playing cards. Each card contains a different component of a dance and, when paired up with an action card that describes how to do the dance, provides the basis for earning points.

THE POINTS translate into colored charms for the players' score-keeping bracelets, with the top two point-getters facing off in the final round, a dance-off.

In a way, the Walsers came up with all the right moves, both with the game and in selling it. While some budding inventors take their concepts from an idea to a finish product and then market it themselves, the couple marketed the concept through their Impress Me product development company.

As the result of a less-than-profitable experience trying to market a toy several years ago, they decided to get help and contacts at Ferris State University and Wayne State University directed them to Random Games and Toys in Ann Arbor. With the help of Random's Garry Donnor and Michael Steer, they were able to license "Dance Party" to Western Publishing Co., makers of Golden Books and Golden Games.

"We licensed 'Dance Party' to Golden Games," said Tony. "We sold them our product. It was totally out of our hands when they were finally done with the modifications."

Donnor and Steer have been inventing games for 15 years and as creative and marketing consultants, they were able to open the doors at Western for the Walsers. They "knew what was right for what company," Tony said.

And since they have worked as a team in marketing the game, they will share the royalties (5 percent of the wholesale price which is about $8) equally.

The side switch, jitters, chorus kick and hip swivel are a few of the action cards that tell players what steps to incorporate in their impromptu dance routine.

WE'RE THE PLACE FOR SKIERS

Writer values friendship and is loyal to her friends

Dear Ms. Green,
I am writing for an analysis of my handwriting. I am 48 years old and I write with my left hand.
I have been on a journey of personal growth for several years now and would consider an analysis to be a valuable part of this process.
Thank you.

graphology
Lorene Green

A.C. Berkley
I'm happy to do an analysis of your handwriting and I want to compliment you for working toward self-improvement. You may find the following cliché meaningful: "There's always room for improvement, it's the biggest room in the house."
Today's handwriting is what we term copybook style. Adults who continue to write this way are usually people who adhere to principles and patterns learned early in life.

They tend to be approval seeking. While many fine qualities can be found in copybook writing, it does have a way of limiting one's personal creativity.
Our writer values friendship and is loyal to her friends. Some of them probably date a long way back in her life. Speaking of loyalty, she is also loyal to those things in which she believes. And while she is receptive to views of life which may be different than her own, she knows what is right for her personally and she lives by it.

Dignity, which is proper behavior as the writer perceives it, has a prominent place in the handwriting. This reinforces her need for approval from others. She can be counted upon to act in ways that will put her in a favorable light with those who mean most to her. I suspect that few people know her intimately.
There is some self-consciousness here, suggesting her fear of ridicule. This can either be the result of hearing too much criticism in the formafive years, or an over-awareness of something about the writer's appearance which she very much dislikes.

Augmenting the dignity is a strong sense of pride. When this is coupled with her determination, it can inspire her to live up to the expectations of others as well as her own. She is a very responsible person who honors the commitments she makes. And she can be depended upon to do a commendable job of what she undertakes.
Our writer is self-disciplined and wants to be in control of her life. However, there appears to be some reluctance to commit to a specific goal or some involvement in the future.
There is resentment in this handwriting. In her journey for personal growth, she may want to consider ways of eliminating this hurt. It is important to consider that resentment, which is either an unwillingness or an inability to forgive, is always self-defeating.

I am writing to you for an analysis of my handwriting. I am 48 years old and I write with my left hand.

Friction can be upsetting for her and she tries to avoid it where she can. This seems to reinforce the need for approval. In her quest for self-improvement, she may want to look inward for this approval and not rely on others for it.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are all helpful and objective feedback is always welcome.

Undoubtedly, she's tackled two of the most influential with the Kennedys and Johnson. She's also working on a book focusing on Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt.

With Johnson, Kearns Goodwin served as a White House fellow and later came to know him personally in his retirement years.

She portrays the leader during one of this country's most tumultuous eras as a compliant welder of power who would get into anyone's face to get his point across. But once the night was gone Johnson had withered to a sad, broken figure who was so afraid of being alone he had someone stationed outside his bedroom door whenever he took a nap.

IN THOSE times, Kearns Goodwin found a person who was vulnerable. He would talk of the love of his mother and his fears of not being remembered in history.

Johnson was also a jovial, hearty storyteller even though half his Texas-spun tales lacked substance. He once told an audience in a rousing speech how his great, great-grandfather had died fighting in the Battle of the Alamo.

When confronted with this inaccuracy by Kearns Goodwin, Johnson said his great, great-grandpa was actually killed in the Battle of San Jacinto — far more pivotal to the course of Mexican-American War. Further investigation by Kearns Goodwin revealed the old man actually died at home in bed.

Such persistence for detail served Kearns Goodwin well in chronicling the Kennedys.

Although she had access to 150 cartons of family memorabilia — photos, letters, report cards — Kearns Goodwin relied on the memory of family matriarch Rose Kennedy.

At first, the process was frustrating. Then

Kearns Goodwin began bringing pieces of the memorabilia to spur Rose Kennedy's recollections.

"I KNEW at some point I'd have to talk about Gloria Swanson who had this long standing affair with Joe Kennedy," Kearns Goodwin said. "I'd wake up in the morning and say, 'I've got to talk to her about Gloria Swanson.'"

"One day at lunch, Mrs. Kennedy turned to me and said, 'My dear today, I'd like to talk about Gloria Swanson.'"

There was some conjecture about a boat trip to Europe, in which the press first reported seeing Joe Kennedy and Swanson hand-in-hand.

Rose Kennedy contends her husband was merely comforting the heartbroken Swanson, whose own husband, a count in France, was having an affair at the time. In Gloria Swanson's memoirs, Kearns Goodwin read where the actress recalled how Joe Kennedy flirted incessantly with her during the trip.

"When I did the research, I discovered they were never even on the boat together," Kearns Goodwin said. "It just teaches you the memory is a tricky thing. People remember what they want to."

During those lunchtime sessions, Rose Kennedy opened up more. As with Johnson, Kearns Goodwin wasn't sure what was for public consumption or something to be shared only between acquaintances.

ONE DAY, Rose Kennedy mentioned how she never forgave her husband, Joe, for the "awful" operation he had performed on their mentally retarded daughter Rosemary. He didn't tell Rose until after the lobotomy had rendered their daughter speechless and institutionalized.

"I thought, 'Was it fair to use this material?'" Kearns Goodwin said. "She just blurted it out."

In order to put the incident into context, Kearns Goodwin went back through medical journals. She found lobotomies were considered breakthrough surgeries in correcting mental illness at the time.

She hasn't had the same dilemmas researching her yet-to-be titled book on the Roosevelts due out next year.

Although there was a paramour in the Franklin Roosevelt legacy, Kearns Goodwin examines the role of the five women in the presidency at the cornerstone of American history. She looks at his mother, wife, secretary, daughter and lover Lucy Mercer.

At the forefront is Eleanor Roosevelt, who knew of the affair between social secretary Lucy Mercer and her husband and proceeded to be a driving force in his presidency.

MOST OF the research for the book was done in archives and libraries.

"In some ways, I was relieved to not have any special access," she said. "It meant I had to do it as a regular historian. The challenge was fun. This is what historians have to do."

"They don't have the special relationship that I did with LBJ or access to any special cartons. It turns out there are 25 to 30 people who are alive who know them or worked with them."

Her interests to Democratic presidents is apparent. She worked as a fellow for Johnson. She also turned down an opportunity to head the Peace Corps when asked by President Jimmy Carter.

She hasn't ruled out doing a book on a Republican president in the future, possibly one on Abraham Lincoln.

"At one time I would have loved to have done something on (Richard) Nixon," she said. "But, I'm not sure because of my Democratic past he would have agreed to do it."

JIM JAGDFELD/staff photographer

Julie Fahner, 11, has good reasons to smile about "Dance Party," the brainchild of her aunt and uncle, Nancy and Tony Walser. It came about because she received no games at her ninth birthday party.

HOW MUCH they actually share won't be known for another month or so when Western determines how many games have been sold. The manufacturer put out about 175,000 games between August and December and there has been "quite a bit of sell-out" across the country, Tony said.

While that sounds promising, the couple isn't looking forward to moving to Easy Street tomorrow. Another game, "Commotion," which they marketed to Parker Bros. In 1990, fell 200,000 short of sales projections. The Walsers said poor promotion by the manufacturer spelled a quick trip from the toy shelves to the clearance tables for the adult word category game.

And getting this from sketches Tony did on napkins while at lunch to a finished product took a lot of time. Many of the dance moves he gleaned while watching Janet Jackson and Paula Abdul videos during his one-year out-of-state stint for Ford Motor Co., where he works as an automotive engineer.

FOR ITS part, Random was able to bring in the graphic artist to turn Tony's sketches into stylized cards. When Western was first introduced to the game, it was basically black-and-white dance cards without the spinner and action cards.

"To keep the prototype costs low, we kept it in black and white," Tony said. "We figured that if it appealed in black and white, then it would work in color."

Admittedly, "Dance Party" wasn't easy to do. To the Walsers, it seemed like the development "went on forever." For their part, they focused on punctuality in dealing with the various changes requested by Western during the fine tuning.

Nancy recalls going "all over the place" to find six sets of charms to match the first set they had submitted. And they talk about testing each change, using their niece's Girl Scout Troop from Memorial Elementary School in Garden City and a few others as the test group.

"We always came back quickly with the changes because we wanted to build a reputation for ourselves," Nancy said.

BY READING the body language of their test group, the Walsers knew the game was a winner. And that was confirmed after a small blurb about their game appeared in Ford's Spotlight People publication.

"A guy at work told me his daughter bought it; he said his daughter loves the the game," Tony said. "We haven't heard people say their kids like the game, it's 'they love it' and that's what we want to hear."

Considering that a large portion of the buying public are 8 years and older and the positive feedback they've been hearing about "Dance Party," the Walsers expect the game to have a shelf life longer than "Commotion." They also expect other companies to come out with their own versions of it in the coming year.

The Walsers aren't resting on their laurels. They have always wanted to do something together, but not in going into business for themselves. Inventing games and toys fits in their niche.

"We planned on having a family and were more interested in using the skills we have," Tony said. "We wanted something that we could use our creativity on."

The Walsers have a daughter, Natalie, and another child on the way. They also have three other products — a doll, a toy and a game — that their agent is attempting to sell.

"I've always dreamed of being the inventor of some famous thing," Tony said.

Carnival to benefit Hospice Services

You can chase the winter blahs away and help the Hospice of Western Wayne County Inc. Saturday, Feb. 15, at Children's Carnival, sponsored by the Canton Newcomers Club.

The carnival will be 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the auditorium of Plymouth Canton High School, 8415 N. Canton Center Road, Canton. There will be games, prizes, clowns, face-painting and even a pocket lady.

There also will be a silent auction and a raffle of new items donated by local merchants. Pizza and other carnival styles foods will be on sale.

For more information, call Trish Logsdon at 454-4277.

Plymouth shop caters to bargain-hunters

By Julie Brown
staff writer

BARGAINS ABOUND at the Presbyterian Thrift Shop in Plymouth's Old Village. Members of the Presbyterian Women at the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth volunteer their time and talents to keep the shop running smoothly. Proceeds are used for mission work in the U.S. and overseas.

"We have a lot of people who come in for clothing," said Lynne Porter, Presbyterian Women president. "A lot of people who come in really need the clothing."

That's particularly true now during the recession, said Porter, a

'A lot of people who come in really need the clothing.'

— Lynne Porter.

Northville Township resident and First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth member. Many young single mothers come to the shop at 187 W. Liberty to look for clothing, shoes and boots for their children.

The shop carries used clothing for men, women and children. It also carries small household goods, such as toasters, dishes and knickknacks, but doesn't have the space for furniture or large appliances. Some toys and games are available.

THE WOMEN who volunteer at the shop are proud of the work they do. Last year, they raised nearly $10,000 for mission work, Porter said.

The shop is open to customers 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each Thursday. During the holiday season, additional hours of noon to 4 p.m. Saturday were added.

Many customers indicated they were at work during the week, Porter said, so shop volunteers decided to add Saturday hours. Those have been well-received, although she recommends that customers first call on Saturdays to make sure the thrift shop is open. The shop is also open 9-11 a.m. each Tuesday for donation acceptance only.

"We can always use donations," said Porter, who's been involved as a shop volunteer for about seven years. Donations are tax-deductible and much appreciated.

First Presbyterian Church members donate used clothing and other items, as do people from other churches and the community. Some designer clothing finds its way to the shop and is priced to sell.

"We're backed 100 percent by our church," said Porter, who works part time as a seamstress and does volunteer work. The support of church members is a tremendous help.

CLOTHING DONATIONS are always needed, she said. Jewelry, plates, cups and other items are needed as well.

When she first started as a volunteer at the shop, Porter was surprised to discover that so many needy people live in the community. She and other volunteers find it rewarding to help those in need.

Another volunteer, Lila Vincent, has worked at the shop for about six years. She's a registered nurse who was on the staff for 31 years at Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital; when she retired as assistant director of nursing, Vincent decided to get involved in volunteer work.

Members of the three Presbyterian Women Circles — A.C.T.S., Handicraft and Helen Beavers — contribute their time and talents to run the shop. The shop's been around for some 37 years at several Plymouth locations and has been at its current Old Village location for a long time, Porter said.

Vincent, a Plymouth Township resident and church member, is pleased to see younger women from the A.C.T.S. Circle getting involved. Those women and their husbands recently worked on cleaning up and repairing the shop's back room, which is used for storage. That effort included putting up shelves.

"They're really a great group," Vincent said. "They're so capable and competent."

MANY OF THE younger women have small children, so it's difficult for them to volunteer during the day, Vincent said.

"The rest of us are older and don't have children at home." Women employed outside the home don't generally volunteer to work at the shop, Vincent said, because they're on the job during the day.

She hasn't seen much difficulty in finding dedicated volunteers to work at the shop. "A lot of them have been there for many, many years," said Vincent, who considers herself a newcomer to the shop's volunteer force.

Each Tuesday morning, women gather at the store to price articles. Volunteer Leora Norgrove coordinates thrift shop activities.

"She deserves a lot of credit because she's devoted a lot of time to the Helen Beavers Circle. Some brand-name men's suits are priced far below what they'd cost in a retail store, she said. Many faithful customers come to the shop nearly every week, in some cases waiting outside the door for it to open "so they can have first crack at the new things."

"It's really a good place to shop," Vincent said. "You can really find some bargains in there."

The women are pleased they're able to support mission work to the extent that they do. Proceeds from the shop and other fund-raising efforts support mission work in foreign countries and the U.S. in "Appalachia and various areas where they need assistance," Vincent said.

Items that don't sell are given to the Salvation Army, rather than being thrown away. Shop volunteers are proud of their "recycling" efforts. They even recycle shopping bags, Porter said.

For more information, call the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth, 453-6464, or the Presbyterian Thrift Shop, 459-1250, during shop hours. The shop is at 187 W. Liberty, between Mill and Starkweather.

We should celebrate our religious diversity

Some time ago, a scholar pointed out that the United States was the first nation in the world not to have an established religion. Some would argue this point. Nevertheless, we might agree that the idea of the separation of religion and state has marked our history.

There are religious groups that would like the United States to be run according to their dogma. Most Americans believe that this will never happen here. Our diversity may prevent what is happening today in Algeria. Let us hope so.

Fundamentalists are on the verge of taking control of the government of Algeria. The Prime Minister has resigned and the military has taken control of the government so as to prevent an election which would have gone to the fundamentalist Islamic Salvation Front. In the minds of some people, freedom has been sacrificed to prevent the freedom of the nation from being lost.

WE NEED to acknowledge the fact that in every religion there are factions who have a goal of taking over the leadership of the country. In the not too distant past, religion and state were one entity.

We see the pressure being exerted in Israel to run the state from the law and will of the religious leaders. We saw this happen in Iran. Yet we need to admit that there are Christian groups that have as their goal turning the United States into a nation run by a church. Let us hope it never happens.

Democracy, freedom, indeed the realities of a shrinking interdependent world require that we not build nations into religious fundamental bodies. How can we understand this trend? How can we address such a need on the part of a religious body to dominate a nation?

This will be a question for the 1990s and to the turn of the century. Individual attention and community concern needs to be directed to such questions.

Deep below such movements, I moral perspectives

Rev. David Strong

believe, are the issues of diversity and identity. At the basic level, a person must be able to say "I am a human being." This means many things in terms of human rights, and unique identity, culturally and racially.

Close to this is the issue which is so much before us today, sex. I am a human being who is male or female. What is unique about being a man or a woman? We are not sure in this society. What are the choices of roles available for men and women? We are not certain. Let us hope that we work these out.

TWO MONTHS ago, a friend and I offered a weekend workshop addressing the male experience, the male role. So few registered that we had to cancel the weekend. It was designed as a non-threatening experience. When I talked with several men and a few women the reason stated for the lack of registration was "fear." Men are afraid to deal with these issues.

I have to believe that the same is true of serious interaction between religions. We are afraid. We want the issue of a diversity of world religions to go away. It will not go away. It will become a stronger and stronger force in the world.

My religion is very close to my identity. Each religion not only embraces ultimate beliefs, each religion embraces a culture. These items, being a human being, being male or female and being a person with a religion and a culture summarize most of what it means to be a person on this planet earth.

Since the next phase of our work as human beings on earth has to do with the question of how we live in community with one another and with the other creatures on this planet, religion will be a major issue.

What I believe we are facing is nothing less than a spiritual evolution of the earth. This evolution is not best accomplished by killing one another. Some social scientists would argue that killing one another will indeed reduce the numbers of humans.

It might possibly save stress on the environment. I abhor such thinking. However, such predictions simply are based upon what is happening today and extending the same trends into the future.

If we believe in a God of love, mercy and justice, we human beings will find a perilous path. It is a path that affirms the necessity of the full expression of religion and culture, and at the same time does not exclude those who are diverse. Someone has said that the new martyrs must be persons who lived and died for all human and natural life, not only for their own cause.

The sad thing is that few religious people or institutions are prepared to live in this way. The tragic thing is that too many people and religious groups are ready to give their life to make everyone act, believe and look like themselves. It is a terrible illusion which ignores every clue as to what creation and God are all about.

Peace and a future for the earth are possible only if we become acquainted with other religions. We must give up any illusions that suggest we will be all the same. We must affirm the gift of human identity and diversity to the future.

The Rev. David T. Strong is pastor of Central United Methodist Church in Detroit.

"It can't hurt to try." So says chairwoman Sue Daniel about the Livonia Historical Commission's bid for a Michigan equity grant to help restore the Quaker Meeting House at Greenmead Historical Village. The commission would match the $90,000 grant to generate the $180,000 needed to restore the 146-year-old house to 1850s vintage. Word from the state is expected by March.

Local Quakers have chipped in $1,000. Restoration of the one-story, white-clapboard house has been on the burner for eight years.

The hope, Daniel said, "is to put it back as meeting house. I also can see us using it for weddings, although it won't have quite the appeal Newburg School at Greenmead does."

Without the grant, restoration probably will take to 1994.

"It's really a job of finishing gutting the building and doing quite a bit of structural work," Daniel said. "In the '40s, the ceiling was lowered and hand-hewn beams were cut to make room for a studio in the attic. We want to put the support pieces back so the house is like it was."

By 1860, with the Religious Society of Friends (Quakers) no longer meeting there, owner David Lapham sold the house to Sarah and William Roberts. They converted it to a dwelling, which it remained until the city bought it in 1962.

The house later served as a historical museum and a meeting place for historians. It was moved from its original location to Greenmead in 1981.

Two other Greenmead restoration projects were done thanks in part to Michigan equity grants: the Newburg School, built in 1861, and the pre-Civil War Cranson/Hinbern House.

They're on the way. Livonia City Council last week approved the arts commission's share of the cost to buy art exhibition panels for the glass-enclosed, second-floor gallery in the Livonia Civic Center Library.

Friends of the Library and the arts commission will split the $16,000 cost for the panels, made by Designs Fabrications, Troy. The city's share will come from the commission's trust fund, not Livonia's general fund.

The lightweight, freestanding slatwall display panels will be expensive enough to accommodate a typical 45-piece individual exhibit and versatile enough to showcase three-dimensional pieces.

Monthly art exhibits will come to the library by spring. Similar shows will continue in the city hall lobby.

Arts commissioners Dorothy Wilshaw and Jack Olds will coordinate library art exhibitions. Olds is the commission's liaison to the Friends. Wilshaw oversees the city hall shows.

A smoky gray glass holder for a flower arrangement features three arcs enclosing an opaque glass planter, leading the eye to focus on silk violets. The decorative piece is an original design as are all of Joe Slezak's works. It sells for $40 with silk flowers, $35 without.

Library spotlights stained glass

ton Road and Five Mile.

Flashing prisms of light dance throughout Slezak's green, amber, crystal and burgundy glass, fascinating the viewer, catching and holding the eye with its movement.

"I enjoy beautiful things. I always liked the beauty of stained glass and one day decided to try it. I took an adult education class at night in stained glass at Schoolcraft College," Slezak said.

After serving 18 years as a firefighter in Wayne County, where he attained the rank of sergeant, Slezak retired in 1983. Shortly thereafter, his stained glass-making skills blossomed. Two years ago, he decided to pursue his art professionally. Now, he displays his work at six shows a year.

"If I have orders to fill, I put in more than 40 hours a week," he said.

IN 1990 at the Arts and Crafts Festival sponsored by the Livonia Arts Commission at Greenmead Historical Village, Slezak took a first-

Old-time spice: Antique fest benefits Plymouth Symphony

By Linda Ann Chomin special writer

FROM ANTIQUE violins and valentines to oil paintings, Plymouth Symphony League's Winter Antique Show, on behalf of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, promises two days filled with historical treasures and old-time fun.

Dates for the sixth annual fundraiser are Friday and Saturday, Jan. 24-25, at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer.

The benefit show will feature 25 Michigan dealers specializing in such wares as European and American furniture, classic country, Victorian, oil paintings, prints, art glass and pottery, folk art, estate jewelry, linens and lace, vintage clothing, antique maps and paper items, silver, quilts, rugs and leaded glass lamps.

The Plymouth Symphony League has added new dealers as well as a new attraction, a consignment booth, to the popular event, making for a nicely seasoned, historically spiced show.

Toys

They prove more than child's play

Exhibitions, 4D

By Janice Tigar-Kramer special writer

The 1961 Nash Metropolitan parked outside Dave Hudson's Westland home is a clue that a collector of some sort of American memorabilia lives inside.

Though Hudson won't rule out collecting classic cars some day, for now he's concentrating on his vast collection of antique and collectible toys ranging from simple wind-up cartoon characters produced in the 1960s to motorized wooden boats dating to the 1940s.

Hudson will show his toys with 60 other collectors at the seventh annual Clarkston Toy Show from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 25 at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 5690 Maybee, Clarkston. (Take I-75 north to exit 69, one mile south on Sashabaw Road, turn east on Maybee). Toys for sale will range from $5 to over $1,000. Admission is $2; children younger than 12 are free.

"The size of the show grows every year," said Barry Young, president of the Flint Area Toy Collectors Club, which sponsors the show. "Toy collecting is a way to become involved with the past and the show gives people an idea of how to begin."

FOR HUDSON, 34, toy collecting began by accident just eight years ago at a car swap meet in Pennsylvania.

Browsing through tables of auto parts and other odds-and-ends, he found a display of plastic western figures from classic television shows such as The Lawman, The Rifleman and Gunsmoke. He bought two figures for $30 each and, like most new

Exhibitions help artists brush up on finding fulfillment

TAKE IT from two veteran Observerland artists — preparing a fine art exhibition is tedious but richly fulfilling.

By day, she's a graphics designer and illustrator for a Southfield advertising company. By night, she's a professional artist, painstakingly putting pencil to paper or brush to canvas in her Canton home studio.

"My evenings are dedicated to creating my own art. That takes great discipline after working all day," says Gwen Dietrich, a graduate of the Parsons School of Design in New York.

Dietrich calls her 40-piece exhibit planned for February at the Livonia City Hall a mini retrospective. It will trace her work in colored pencil and pastel over the past 15 years.

"I'm thinking of having 10 to 20 new pieces," she said, "because show goers typically want to see where you were to where you are now."

The exhibit, Dietrich's second one-person show, will run Feb. 3-28 in the lobby of Livonia City Hall, Farmington Road at Five Mile. Pieces will range in price from $100 to $300.

Dietrich has come a long way since her days as a youngster, when she first started to draw at her father's drafting table.

She considers drawing "the foundation of good artwork. You have to draw constantly to be good at it." As a means of discipline and a source of development, she studies drawing each semester at Oakland Community College.

Dietrich has exhibited more than 20 times in Michigan and New York. That includes a 1990 exhibit at the Scarab Club in Detroit.

Her first one-person show, "Dogs and Dames" last April at Nelson's Gallery in Livonia, reinforced her depth and dimension as a traditional artist.

Her themes focus on ethnicity, beauty, animals, nature and, only recently, landscape.

While grateful the Livonia Arts Commission invited her to show her work at the city hall next month, Dietrich said show preparation takes lots of time. "Larger new pieces take up to 40 hours to do. That's after I do my research and initial drawing."

Then there's the cost of mats, frames, glass and invitations — upwards of $1,000 or more.

The cost and time aside, Dietrich wouldn't pass up the chance to share the fruits of what she calls "a God-given talent."

"I have a certain insight into the beauty of the world," she said. "And I feel a need to expose and educate people to that beauty."

The world, she said, "is bombarded by so many negative things. There's so much junk, from pornography to nasty pictures. We need to grace our walls with what beauty there is — in nature, animals and people."

She always has time to paint, even after a full day at work sharing with her Livonia Churchill High School visual arts students the art of using light, color and composition to paint broadstrokes scenes of nature and life.

"If you want to be a painter, you have to paint — pure and simple," says Barb Demgen, who studied fine arts at Wayne State University and Marygrove College in Detroit.

Persistence in honing what came naturally to her has reaped reward — the sale of hundreds of pieces.

"My parents fostered in me a sense of self-esteem, that it's almost a disgrace not to pursue a talent," the Livonia artist said. "What I am today, has to do with my art. There's a lot of me out there."

Six of Demgen's oils and watercolors, including landscapes of Maybury State Park and Lake Charlevoix, are on exhibit through January at Atrium Gallery, 113 N. Center, Northville. Prices range from $200 to $500.

Although she has appeared in 35 shows over 30 years, Demgen is just now planning perhaps her most important ever: a 43-piece retrospective hosted by the Livonia Arts Commission July 1-31 at Livonia City Hall. Works will range from a 1968 acrylic of an Upper Peninsula woodpile to a new watercolor of layered birch leaves in Maybury State Park.

Her themes touch on landscapes ("It's a challenge to depict nature and its beauty"), portraits ("They can take up to 175 hours") and still life ("Painting a flame is very challenging because it's like a living thing").

She loves to paint on location, whether in Livonia's Greenmead Historical Village, at Lake Charlevoix or in the Arizona desert.

Curiosity — for example, painting everything from trains to wildlife to Oriental art — keeps her fresh. "I'm compulsive. I love to try different things."

Despite the investment of time and money, Demgen loves to display her work — in a gallery, in a show or at home. "It's incredibly fulfilling to see your work side by side, for others to enjoy."

"Sure there's a lot of work involved in a show, but the end result is a feeling of pride. Sales, of course, not only are a source of pleasure but also motivation."

with translucent purple in a bowl of a different design. Lead channels between the cut-glass shapes are colored copper, silver or black.

Six-sided bowls are priced at $70, eight-sided bowls at $85. Coat-of-arms window panels run between $125 to $150 or more depending on the intricacy of design.

Slezak takes order for custom designs on request. "Window panels or sidelight panels, if they want bevels or geometric designs or florals, I would draw something up for their approval," he said.

A FEW verses Slezak wrote in 1986 describe his feelings about stained glass: "Sunlight passing through caresses the glass and the glow from that embrace grants it life."

The history of manmade glass spans 3,500 centuries. Stained glass, one of the oldest crafts in the world, existed in Europe before painting. Stained glass today is no longer a tool of the church but a respected art form.

Display hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday, and 1-5 p.m. Sunday. To reach Slezak for custom design work, call 455-3074.

ART AS A BUSINESS

Artist Nancy Thayer of the Center for Creative Studies, in Detroit will present a workshop addressing "The Business of Being an Artist" 7-10 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 30 at The Scarab Club, 217 Farnsworth, Detroit.

She'll address entering into legal contracts, tax issues, pricing and record keeping and building a portfolio.

To register, call the club, 831-1250. Registration is limited. Cost is $15; the non-member fee is $20.

DANCE SESSIONS

The Center for Creative Studies offers ballet, tap and East Indian dancing at its North Branch campus, 13 Mile and Evergreen, Southfield.

Winter/spring sessions begin for new students at the end of January. Prospective students can view classes throughout January.

Classical ballet for adults is scheduled for 10:40 a.m. to 12:20 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays. Points for all levels, teen and adults, runs 5:30-7 p.m. Mondays.

Introductory and advanced ballet for teens and adults begins at 5:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. Beginner level ballet for teens and adults is set for 7 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Children's ballet classes are scheduled for Thursday afternoons and Saturday mornings.

ANTIQUE FEST

Two Plymouth dealers will be featured in the Dearborn Historical Museum and the Museum Guild of Dearborn's first Dearborn Historic Guild Antique Show Saturday-Sunday, Feb. 1-2, at the Dearborn Civic Center, Michigan Avenue near Greenfield Road.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Plymouth participants include Plymouth Antique Emporium and Little Shop Antiques.

Show dealers will feature jewelry, glass, china, vintage clothing, linens and lace, toys, dolls, clocks, primitives, furniture and select collectibles.

The entry fee is $3; parking is free. There will be live music. Food will be available.

All proceeds will go to the Dearborn Historical Foundation and Museum Guild of Dearborn's "Building and Restoration Fund," reports Winfield Arneson, chief curator.

ART CLASSES

Plymouth Community Arts Council announces the winter schedule of art classes to begin the week of Feb. 3.

The classes are taught by qualified art instructors and include a variety of media for children and adults.

Classes are appropriate for beginners and those who want to improve their skills.

To register, visit the PCAC office, 332 S. Main, Plymouth, from 9 a.m. to noon weekdays. Or call 455-5260.

Information on class locations can be obtained through the PCAC office.

SING OUT

The Michigan Federation of Music Clubs announces auditions for the Elizabeth Gardner Vocal Award, taking place at 1 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 23, at the First Baptist Church in Birmingham.

Application deadline is Saturday, Feb. 15. For application forms, call 375-9534.

Applicants for the $400 award must be between 17 and 23 years old on Feb. 23, 1992.

For the audition, an applicant must play one selection from each of these four categories: Opera or Oratorio, Old Italian, Romantic — French or German, and 20th Century — American or British — in English. All selections, except the Oratorio, must be memorized.

A letter of recommendation from a voice teacher is also required.

The entrance fee is $5; plus $7.50 for student MFMC membership, if applicable. Exceptions are students of these federated schools: Interlochen Center for the Arts, Michigan State University, Oakland University, Olivet College, Spring Arbor College and Western Michigan University.

Antique show to bolster symphony budget

"We have four new dealers this time. We have the consignment booth, Booth No. 3, and we have a 1920s quilt for the drawing," said Peggy Blaisdell, antique show co-chair with Judy Lore.

STAFFED BY league members, the booth will sell antiques on consignment. The league will donate 25 percent of the selling price to the symphony.

"Anyone with an antique or collectible from before 1950, that they'd like us to sell can drop by Thursday, Jan. 23, between 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.," Blaisdell said.

Sharon Burton, owner of Burton Gallery Antiques, is one of the new dealers in the show. Burton's Plymouth antique shop, adjacent to Cafe Bon Homme, strikes a Victorian note the moment visitors step behind its beveled glass, oak door.

"I buy the things I love. Sometimes I buy whole estates if there are lots of wonderful things, or I buy the lots of wonderful things," Burton said.

Burton began to buy antiques for resale during her school days. Her booth at the show will include architectural details; jewelry; linens and laces; Victorian glassware, perfume bottles; violins, valentines, greeting cards and birth announcements from the 1930s aged an ivory color; Victorian clothing and hats; and vintage handbags.

"THAT'S GOING to be a wonderful show. One half of the booth will be Victorian, the other half will be country," Burton said. "One of the things I'm going to feature at the Plymouth show is vintage hat flowers. People need spring, so I'm going to bring some of these special trims."

A room full of blue velvet morning glories, linen lilacs and rosebuds were indirectly bought at auction from a downtown Detroit milliner who went out of business.

Burton has a story relating the history behind each and every item she sells.

"I'll have architectural details taken from the Wilcox House during the renovations, also from the house next door to it that was torn down," Burton said.

Many of the antiques she will offer for sale in the Plymouth show, have stayed in the same families for generations. "A lot of things I buy from local estates. The majority of things have never been for sale. A lot of them are from families that had never been for sale."

'BURTON' ENTERED the retail business arena 20 years ago when she and a partner opened Elderly Instruments in Lansing, a store selling vintage guitars and violins. She then opened an East Lansing shop, Somebody Else's Closet, that sold clothing from 1860 to the 1940s.

After a move to Plymouth four years ago, she opened Burton Gallery Antiques and moved to the present location on Penniman Avenue 15 months ago. After nearly three decades of selling antiques, she continues to study and read in quest of knowledge. "It takes studying history, art and science. The trick of all this is to study, study. The more you know, the better you are at appraisal. At night I go home and read books and magazines. There's so much to learn."

Beside Burton, new dealers in the show include Margaret and Mike Hubert, owners of the antique shop, M. Hubert & Co. The Huberts opened their Plymouth shop, specializing in fine antiques, art and accessories, last April.

"We're excited about the show. We'll have a variety of things, art glass from the 1880s to 1920s, oil paintings, furniture, Oriental rugs, 16th-century city view maps, art pottery, and leaded glass lamps," Mike Hubert said.

"If I don't have what they want, I'll search and try to find it for them. I maintain a computer search series for people."

POPULAR ESTATE jewelry and silver dealers, Pauline and Jacki Work of Farmington Hills will display their wares at the show again this winter.

For a fourth year, Brookville Gardens of Plymouth will sell dried flowers, potpourri, herb wreaths and teas. Brookville grows 250 varieties of herbs. It sells fresh-cut to restaurants and live plants to gardeners in spring.

"Once again, we'll have Muriel Koske, who does china painting. If you're missing a particular piece of china and searched but can't find a replacement, she can paint one to match your set," said Judy Lore, show co-chair.

Peggy Blaisdell, of Blaisdell Antiques, will feature mainly oak in her booth. Items include a golden oak dresser and commode, a children's freestanding slate chalk board, and plant stands and occasional tables, all from the turn-of-the-century.

She also will have an 1880s pine blanket chest, a Victorian walnut dresser, a set of four kitchen chairs, an oak kindergarten table and chairs, high chairs, junior chairs, a children's rocker, one-drawer stands, mirrors, picture frames, china, tin kitchen items, and brass and children's toys, including blocks.

"THE QUILT we're raffling off to benefit the symphony this time is a 1920s queen size, postage stamp design with a navy blue and white-checked background from Burton Gallery Antiques. It's multicolored and includes more than 50 different patterns and types of material," Blaisdell said.

Tickets for the quilt drawing are $1 apiece, or six for $5.

The Penniman Deli will sell sandwiches, salads, soup and desserts at a mini deli inside the show. Coffee and soft drinks also will be available.

Admission to the Plymouth Symphony League's winter antique show is $3. All proceeds from the event are presented to the Plymouth Symphony Society for use in operating the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

Winter Antique Show hours are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday. For information on the consignment booth, call Peggy Blaisdell at 459-1358 or Judy Lore at 453-5181.

Don't be too camera shy to vie

Did you ever take what you knew was a prize-winning shot and then wonder if it could capture first place in a photography contest?

Well, there's a competitive spirit in all of us, and unless you enter your picture in a contest, you'll never know how you'd do.

Today, I'm going to give you some advice about photo contests — where to locate them and how best to go about entering the competition. After all, you may win an exciting trip, new camera equipment or some useful cash.

THE BEST source for finding contests is the news media. Your local newspapers always announce photography contests and quite frequently sponsor their own contests. Check out one of the many photography magazines available. They always announce contests, too.

Major shopping malls in the area often conduct contests and, of course, camera clubs in the vicinity welcome your best shots in their competitions. And your favorite camera store can also keep you up to date on photo happenings.

Knowing what judges look for in a good photograph can be a valuable guide when entering a photo contest. Usually, judges base their score on three criteria.

FIRST IS subject matter. A judge will ask: Is the subject unusual, or, if commonplace, is it treated in an unusual way? Does it stand apart from other entries and command attention? Are my emotions stirred and is the picture communicating anything to me? In short, does the image have impact and "stopping power"?

Second, judges will take a critical look at composition to determine if all the elements of the picture are arranged in the most effective way.

They'll ask themselves: Is this photograph simplified and uncluttered? Is there a strong idea being expressed and does the composition complement the subject?

Third, and equally important, is the technical quality of the photograph. A judge will look for sharpness, proper exposure and good color saturation. He or she will look for a clean slide or print, and, if the photo is matted, will want to see neat, well-cut mats.

MAKE SURE you read all the entry rules carefully and abide by them. You wouldn't want that special shot to be disqualified on a minor technicality.

Very important, shoot those subjects that interest you. By putting your own feelings and emotions in your photography, you most certainly will increase your chances of producing a prizewinning photo with impact.

Shooting for the judges and not for yourself will result in pictures that will lack that all important ingredient — you!

Monte Nagler is a professional photographer based in Farmington Hills.

Well, there's a competitive spirit in all of us, and unless you enter your picture in a contest, you'll never know how you'd do.

Collector toying with Americana

collectors, started to research the toys.

The plastic figures, about 8 1/2 inches high, were made by The Hartland Co. in the 1950s, when television westerns were popular. The company made 47 different characters, most with a horse and rider.

"Growing up, I was a big western fan, so I recognized these characters right away," said Hudson. "I think most toy collectors start by buying a toy they remember from their childhood."

Call it beginner's luck, but in just six years, Hudson collected the whole set, all boxed in mint condition. To complete the Hartland set, of course, he began attending local toy shows and antique sales, picking up other pieces along the way.

To a toy collector, an antique is any piece at least 25 years old. A collectible could be a new, limited production toy or one no longer being made. New or old, a toy in the original box could cost three times more than the un-boxed toy.

THOUGH HUDSON'S collection mostly includes American-made toys from the 1950s and 1960s (the years he grew up), many pieces date to the early and mid-1900s: a tin wind-up ship made in 1900 by the German toymaker Carette is valued at $2,000; a replica of Adolph Hitler's Mercedes-Benz made in 1937 by Germany's Tipp Company is valued at $2,500, and a pressed steel truck made in the early 1930s by the Tip-ton Co. is worth $275.

Over the years, Hudson, a senior coordinator for General Motors, has collected all of the Hanna-Barbera characters made in 1962, such as the Dave Hudson began collecting antique toys eight years ago. Today his collection includes hundreds of toys, mostly from the 1950s and 1960s.

Flintstones and Jetsons. The tin wind-up and friction-operated toys that originally sold for just 50 cents could cost up to $1,000 today.

Hudson's permanent collection includes 50 motorized wooden boats made by Japanese toymakers in the 1940s and 1950s. Each highly detailed boat is about 18 inches long and worth $100 to $1,000 each.

To complete his collection, Hudson wants to find the wooden cruiser he played with as a child. Ironically, he sold it to another collector years ago, but believes it will turn up one day at a Detroit-area sale. His permanent collection also includes his own American Flyer train set from 1957 and a set of Hot Wheels from the late 1960s.

"IT'S SMART for a collector to buy what he likes. That way, you get the most enjoyment from the hobby and you never feel like you've paid too much for a piece," said Hudson.

Part of toy collecting is anticipating what might be valuable in the future. So far, Hudson has purchased all of the current Batman figures and several of each of the McDonald characters that come with the restaurant's Happy Meal.

"Knowing what's collectible today gives me an idea of what might be in demand in years to come. But you never know for sure," said Hudson.

There is a camaraderie among toy hobbyists who use the shows as a meeting place to share information and trade or buy toys from each other. At one show, for example, Hudson exchanged a toy in his collection for a battery-operated Popeye character worth $1,500.

"The real fun is in the search," said Hudson. "Sometimes you find a toy you've only read about or seen in pictures. It's a thrill to find it and get it for a good price."

A true hobbyist, like Hudson, researches every toy by looking for identifying marks, such as the manufacturer's name, factory marks or a patent date or number. Toy directories listing the dates a factory operated give collectors a general idea when a piece was produced. But even without a manufacturer's name, a patent number can be traced to the date of issue.

Though a sluggish economy has caused some antique toy buyers to shop around and buy more cautiously, there still is a demand for hard-to-find toys, said Hudson. And though some hobbyists collect strictly for investment, Hudson's goal for now is simply to break even.

"I reinvest everything I make. If this hobby was just for profit I'd stop right now," he said.

● ATRIUM GALLERY

Thursday, Jan. 23 — Kevin Knittel of Livonia has paper cast sculptures, Barb Demgen of Livonia has acrylics and watercolors, George Jewell of Northville has large stained glass pieces, Donguale Jurgulis of Farmington has mixed water media work and Susan Van Deventer-Warner of Farmington has contemporary acrylic paintings on canvas. Through February. 113 N. Center, Northville.

● ROBERT KIDD GALLERY

Thursday, Jan. 23 — An exhibition of new paintings by Mary Vitelli Berti will open Jan. 24 and continue through Feb. 22. Opening reception for the artist 7-9 p.m. Thursday. Berti's figurative landscapes and interior scenes generate a sense of domesticity and timelessness. Her impressionist palette captures a rich, crisp quality of light. Hours are 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 107 Townsend, Birmingham, 642-3909.

● UNDERGROUND 245 GALLERY

Thursday, Jan. 23 — "Hed-E, Two Naked Artists Riding Go-carts Through Your Mind," works by Lance Head and Brad Richards, on display. Opening reception 4:30-7 p.m. Thursday. The gallery is in the Park Shelton, 15 E. Kirby, Suite 107, Detroit, 874-1955.

● SWORDS INTO PLOWSHARES

Friday, Jan. 24 — First midwest showing of "U.S. Detention Camps: 1942-1946," a photographic exhibit through April 25 chronicling the experience of 120,000 persons of Japanese ancestry, the majority American citizens, who were forced from their homes into 10 concentration camps in the U.S. during World War II. The 90 photos, some never before publicly shown, capture the upheaval in the lives of families and communities and the hostility expressed to them by the government and their fellow West Coast citizens. Despite government censorship, a few revealing images by U.S. Army photographers and others were smuggled out and are part of the exhibit. Opening reception is 5-8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 24. 33 E. Adams on Grand Circus Park, Detroit. Hours are 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday.

● COMMUNITY ARTS AUDITORIUM

To Jan. 24 — The "Unseen Landscape" art exhibition, featuring 19 paintings by seven major Michigan artists at Wayne State University. Call the WSU department of art hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, closed Dec. 23 to Jan. 6.

● PEWABIC POTTERY

Friday, Jan. 24 — Work in clay by Pi Benlo, Thom Bohnert, Kathy Dambach, Graham Marks, Tom Phardel and Georgette Zirbes will be shown in "Progressions," Jan. 25 through March 7. Opening reception, which the public may attend, 5:30-7:30 p.m. Jan. 24. As a counterpart to a March exhibition of their students' work, this show will include work by six Michigan artists who are also faculty in area ceramics departments. Pewabic has exhibited student work in clay from Michigan universities and art schools regularly, and will show work from the Cranbrook Academy of Art, the University of Michigan, Adrian College, Henry Ford Community College, the Center for Creative Studies and Mott Community College from March 14 through April 25. Pewabic is at 10125 E. Jefferson, Detroit. Call 822-0954.

● BIRMINGHAM BLOOMFIELD ART ASSOCIATION

To Jan. 25 — Oriental brush painting exhibition. This is a joint exhibition involving the Los Angeles Chinese Artists Association and the Midwest Oriental Art Club.

The contemporary paintings will include landscapes, figures, animal and still lifes, plus calligraphy works, seals and seal carvings. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday-Saturday, 1516 S. Cranbrook Road, Birmingham, 644-0866.

● O.K. HARRIS WORKS OF ART

Saturday, Jan. 25 — Mariano Del Rosario, working with cement, wax and acrylic, will bring his new paintings to the gallery. Opening reception 2-5 p.m. Saturday, at which Del Rosario will speak informally about his fresh new body of work. The exhibition will run through Feb. 22.

Also running Jan. 25 through Feb. 22 will be a display of egg tempera paintings on lead by Tamara Carlisle. Hours are 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, extended to 8:30 p.m. the first Thursday of each month, Mondays by appointment, 430 N. Woodward, Birmingham, 433-3700.

● SCARAB CLUB

To Jan. 25 — The 1991 Annual Printmaking and Works on Paper Exhibition continues. The purpose of the display is to recognize achievement among Michigan and Ontario artists.

Hours are noon to 5 p.m. Wednesday-Saturday, 217 Farnsworth at John R in Detroit's Cultural Center. Call the office at 831-1250 between noon and 5 p.m. Tuesday-Friday.

Home sales buck national trend

By Doug Funke staff writer

Home sales reported last year by Metro MLS, an affiliate of the Western Wayne Oakland Association of Realtors, were up 5.1 percent from 1990.

Some 17,150 houses and condominiums were sold in its jurisdiction during 1991 - nearly 850 more than the previous year.

Nationally, home sales through the first 11 months of 1991 were down slightly, 1.1 percent, from the comparable period in 1990, according to Ruth Clevers, Metro MLS and Western Wayne/Oakland president.

The median (half higher, half lower) sales price of a house in its territory during 1991 was $84,900 compared to $79,900 the previous year - a 6 1/4 percent increase, Metro MLS reported.

'With an area as automobile-oriented as this area is and their industry in the shape it's in, we're pleased our industry didn't come out with the same effect. This area has become more diversified. A lot of people are working; they're stable and taking advantage of market conditions.'

Ruth Clevers

'With an area as automobile-oriented as this area is and their industry in the shape it's in, we're pleased our industry didn't come out with the same effect,' said Clevers, vice president and sales manager for Ralph Manuel Associates-West, Farmington Hills.

'This area has become more diversified. A lot of people are working; they're stable and taking advantage of market conditions. Interest rates are the lowest they've been in 14 years. It's especially good for first-time buyers,' she added.

CLEVERS EXPECTS that more homes will be sold this year.

'We're hoping and believe we'll continue to increase. We anticipate an 8-10 percent increase for 1992,' she said. 'We anticipate interest staying at a favorable rate.'

'It keeps the industry viable and buyers willing to change (move) interested,' Clevers said. 'Rates are the biggest thing we work with.'

Decreases were recorded in Redford, 928 from 972, and Farmington/Farmington Hills, 1,185 from 1,208.

Median sales priced increased in every Observer & Eccentric community except Plymouth/Plymouth Township, which dipped to $114,000 from $119,900.

Reimbursement of 'owner's equity' is negotiable

I am the president of our condominium association, which is approximately 15 years old. One of the original purchasers is now in the process of selling his unit and wants his original 'working capital deposit' returned. Do we have any responsibility to return this money to him?

It depends upon the original purchase documents and the original purchase agreement that was signed. In most condominiums, a buyer is obligated at the time of purchase to provide a two-month working capital deposit that is generally non-refundable and which is used for the operation of the association.

Some older condominium documents provided for a refund of these monies and some condominiums, perhaps in the absence of authority, have either refunded or allowed a transfer on the association's books of a "co-owner's equity" in the association's funds to a new purchaser. Generally, the matter of whether a seller is entitled to reimbursement of "owner's equity" for any contribution that was made on behalf of his account is a matter of negotiation between the buyer and seller. I would suggest that you have a knowledgeable condominium attorney look at various legal documents of your condominium and provide the association with a legal opinion on this issue.

Our board does not respect our master deed and bylaws. Notifications, election procedures and due process have been ignored, and I believe that the condominium act has been violated and maintenance fees and assessments levied contrary to the percentages of value requirements of the documents. Unfortunately, the vast majority of co-owners are uninformed and complacent. How can a minority of co-owners protect themselves from abuse without resorting to a court hearing at their own expense? Does the state enforce the condominium act?

Unfortunately, the state has gone out of the enforcement business as it relates to condominiums. The only recourse through the state would be to complain to the Department of Commerce, which might turn the matter over to the attorney general for investigation.

More appropriately, the members of the association may have political recourse against the board of directors if they are not complying with the condominium documents and they can convince a sufficient number of association members of that fact. As to protecting your rights from abuse without resorting to a court hearing at your expense, you may wish to consider bringing a class action or stockholder's derivative suit against the association, hoping that if you prevail the attorney fees and costs will be reimbursed to you by the corporation.

Perhaps you can resolve the matter without legal proceedings if your attorney is successful in convincing the board of its wrongdoing.

Construction industry showcases top projects

The Timberland Four office building incorporates extensive use of landscaping and plenty of windows from which to enjoy the parklike view. The lobby features granite and wood materials, a water display and indirect neon cove lighting.

St. Mary's of the Hills features a large multipurpose room towering over classrooms with varying roof lines. A bell tower connects to the chapel.

BUILDERS AND architects with local connections were highly regarded by their peers this year in voting for Showcase Awards sponsored by the Construction Association of Michigan.

Seven of the 10 projects selected as best examples of quality design and construction craftsmanship in the state by members of the professional association involved firms in the Observer & Eccentric circulation area.

"This is one of the few award programs in existence where people who actually build projects every day determine which jobs represent outstanding work," said John DeMattia, CAM chairman and president of a Novi construction company.

Each of the CAM 3,000 members could nominate up to three projects that were built within the past four years and included both a Michigan contractor and architect. More than 300 were submitted. Showcase award winners include:

TMP Associates of Bloomfield Hills designed the Northern Michigan University Sports Training Complex in Marquette and the Saginaw Regional Correctional Facility, a state prison, in Freeland.

R.E. Dailey & Co. of Southfield was the contractor on both of those projects.

A.J. Etkin Construction of Farmington Hills was the contractor for Timberland Four, a Troy office building, and Volkswagen of America, North American Headquarters in Auburn Hills.

St. Mary's of the Hills Church in Rochester Hills was designed by Brown Associates Architects of Bloomfield Hills. Payne-Hickey of Livonia was the general contractor.

Hubbell, Roth & Clark of Bloomfield Hills was the project engineer for the Wixom Wastewater Treatment Plant and Coquillard/Dundon/Peterson & Argenta of Southfield was the architect for Madison Heights Police headquarters. Both are Showcase Award winners.

"We think it's important to highlight architects that show innovation in design and innovation in construction," DeMattia said of the awards.

TOM LANDRY, president of A.J. Etkin Construction, elaborated.

"Awards are given by people in the industry. It's like players in the National Basketball Association deciding on the all-stars, not the fans. It's contemporaries who judge who are in the trenches with you," he said.

Following is a brief description of the award winners with information provided by CAM. Comments from principals involved also follow.

• St. Mary's of the Hills Church, Rochester Hills.

The initial phase of 19,000 square feet consists of a multipurpose room currently used for worship, a smaller chapel, narthex with coffee bar, kitchen and office facilities, and five instructional rooms. All at a cost of $2.2 million.

"We did a very nice project for the money, a good value," said Doug Atkinson, project architect for Brown Associates. "We used a lot of masonry, a lot of block. We used shingle roof on everything."

"By keeping the cost of the building down, we could spend money inside," he added. "The chapel has ceramic tile. Pavers are at the front entrance. The multipurpose room has an inexpensive (57-foot) skylight."

Raising the bell tower proved to be a unique experience, said Dale Payne, president of Payne-Hickey.

"The top section was completed on the ground including gypsum board, roofing, all flashings, finish paint and the cross installed at the very peak," he said.

"The completed tower section then had to be lifted from the bottom because there was nowhere else to lift from. This, of course, made balancing it extremely difficult because it was topheavy. Once set in place, the mason contractor was able to enclose the columns," Payne said.

• Timberland Four office building, Troy.

The fourth building in the complex, 128,000 square feet at a cost of $6.5 million, incorporates extensive landscaping in a park-like atmosphere. The lobby features granite and wood materials, a water display and indirect neon cove lighting.

Disruptions of other tenants was kept to a minimum during construction, Landry said.

"Basically, we maintained the same theme. All buildings are brick. Maximum trees were left on the site and landscaping enhances overall development," he added.

• Volkswagen of America, Auburn Hills.

This four-story structure of 360,000 square feet integrates offices with research and development functions. The building, erected at a cost of $25 million, has a high ratio of perimeter windows to interior space providing natural light and a good view of the outdoors.

"It's an office building that encompasses two wings that has an atrium in the middle that connects both areas," Landry said. "It was built in 13½ months — including all interior and tenant work — extremely good for a building that size."

• Northern Michigan University Sports Training Complex, Marquette.

The timber-domed sports arena rises 132 feet above the ground at its highest point and measures 533 feet in diameter. The dome is formed by 400 preassembled wooden triangles in a grid system, a wooden deck, insulation, then a roof of synthetic rubber.

The structure cost $21.8 million.

"They (university officials) said we want to play football in it," said Stephen Smith, project architect. "We researched what materials were the most cost effective for the climate and we arrived at a wooden dome."

Tolerances were plus or minus ¼ inch at the foundation for all of the precut pieces to merge at the top, Smith said, adding, "It fit like a glove."

"It's unique in that once it was enclosed, completion schedule was accelerated," said Larry Dailey, the general contractor. "Usually you do the frame, then the exterior walls, then the roof. In this case . . . exterior walls are really the roof."

• Saginaw Regional Correctional Facility, Freeland.

The $33-million, 612-bed multi-security state prison consists of six housing units, an educational/recreational building, administrative building, clinic, food service and warehouse.

Again, both TMP and Dailey combined on the work.

"Things representative of a successful project are to come in within the budget and we did that, come in on schedule and we did that," said George A. Rogers, project manager for TMP.

"There was great coordination between building trades," he added, "and the product is a fine example of craftsmanship. The site is pleasing. In the psychology of reform and incarceration, a more pleasant yard helps morale and in the healing process to return to society," Rogers said.

"One thing important to the construction aspect because there were so many buildings was sequencing the work so the project was adequately manned to maintain schedule," Dailey said.

"A complicated part of most prisons is hardware and security systems and coordinating those with the owner," Dailey added.

The prison hasn't yet open due to the state money crunch.

• Wixom Wastewater Treatment Plant, Wixom.

A new technology never applied before to municipal wastewater treatment — parallel plate settlers and continuous backwash filters — was engineered to treat three million gallons of water daily. The $16 million plant discharges treated water into Kent Lake in Kensington Park.

"Basically, the treatment plant was designed like other plants, then this additional equipment was tacked on at the end of the process to bring the phosphorus level down," said Curt Christeson, project manager for Hubbell, Roth & Clark.

"It really does expand the state of the art, in effect," he added. "We think it's easier to maintain and operate. The plant after one year is operating beautifully."

• Madison Heights Police headquarters.

The 35,000-square-foot facility built at a cost of $2.7 million contains a central command area, a pistol training range, exercise rooms and office and locker areas.

"We have a lot of very functional floor space in a very economical package," said Dennis Dundon, principal in charge of the project. "We kept the complications to a minimum and were able to get a lot of value for the owner."

"We have brought together positions manned 24-hours a day — dispatch, lockup, desk where people first come in and shift commander," Dundon added. "This gives flexibility for one person to cover for another during peak times."

Showcase Award winners will be displayed during the CAM Expo Feb. 12-13 at the Pontiac Silverdome.

Projects win construction industry's praises

A.J. Elkin Construction Co. of Farmington Hills was the general contractor for the Volkswagen of America North American Headquarters in Auburn Hills.

The Northern Michigan University Sports Training Complex was designed by TMP Associates of Bloomfield Hills. R.E. Dailey & Co. of Southfield was the supervising contractor.

Hubbell, Roth & Clark of Bloomfield Hills, consulting engineers, used new technology in the Wixom Wastewater Treatment Plant.

Builders see tax credit boosting home sales

By Gerald Frawley
staff writer

Give you $2,000 if you buy a house. That's what builders are hoping President George Bush will say during his State of the Union address on Jan. 28.

In an attempt to kick start the economy, the administration has been kicking around a notion — among other ideas — that would offer a $2,000 tax credit for middle income, first-time house buyers. The program, according to information leaked to the media, would last for only a short time — six months to a year.

Every little bit will help, according to area builders, who despite a better sales year than many expected, are expecting a hard time if the economy continues to plod along like a ballet dancer in snow shoes.

BERNARD GLIEBERMAN, president of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan, said he doesn't think a $2,000 tax credit would have made much of a difference several months ago. But coupled with low interest rates, the offer may be too good for people who are considering buying a home — but still haven't made a commitment — to pass up.

"For any young person considering buying a house, the low interest rates (and $2,000 tax credit) is the chance of a lifetime," Gliberman said. "If they were having doubts, that's a great reason to buy now."

Getting the housing industry going again is critical, Gliberman said, and not just because he happens to be in the business of selling houses.

"One thing I believe, and that is because I've seen it before, is the housing industry always pulls the country out of a slow turn," he said.

House building creates construction jobs, adds to the tax base, and once a house is bought, stimulates the economy when new homeowners buy goods to use in their homes.

The fact that what is being proposed is a tax credit — which means the $2,000 comes right off the top of the tax bill — would also spur home sales.

A tax deduction, which would give consumers only a percentage of the $2,000 after buying a home, would be far less successful, he said.

DEVELOPER HERBERT LAWSON, president of Herbert Lawson Inc. in West Bloomfield, said that he's leary about speculating on a proposal before it's penned in ink, but he is encouraged at what he's heard from the rumor mill and media reports.

"Anything that will help people buy homes should be encouraged," he said.

How much difference an incentive like a $2,000 tax credit will make is difficult to say.

"Everything is relative; the car companies have done very well with their rebate program."

Like Gliberman, Lawson said he believes many people are sitting on the fence because they are afraid the economy is not going to improve. A tax credit could send the right message.

Still, the major obstacle to buying a house — especially for first-time buyers who have not built equity in an existing home — is coming up with a down payment, he said.

If a tax credit becomes reality, that may make a difference. When people buy a home they need money for more than a down payment. Furniture, appliances, taxes, association fees and other home basics are associated expenses.

"With the $2,000 they know they are getting right back, they may be able to buy a home now or borrow money to get them through to tax return time."

The limited time frame would give consumers a reason to buy now, Builders are hoping President Bush will announce a tax credit plan that will allow more buyers to open the door to new houses.

"All in all, it may be enough to take (potential buyers) off the fence," he said.

JAY SKACKFORD, vice president of public affairs for the National Association of Home Builders, the group that began spearheading a drive for a housing tax credit as far back as September, said such an incentive would get the housing market moving again. He mentioned that housing starts (nationwide) in 1991 were the lowest since 1945.

"Builders are on the cutting edge of the economy — we see the downturns and the upturns first."

"Basically, we came up with three suggestions. One, put an end to the credit crunch," Skackford said. Despite the availability of money, lenders were being very conservative after the savings and loan debacle.

"You can't run a free, open market unless there is money available," he said.

"Second, we felt pressure had to be kept on the Federal Reserve to lower interest rates," Skackford said.

The final piece of the puzzle was to restore consumer confidence. "We felt the government really had to step in here."

A tax credit for first-time, new home buyers was proposed, he said, because buying new homes would have an immediate effect on the economy.

The NAHB has since relaxed this stance, and opted for a tax credit for buyers of new and existing houses.

"The impact would be less dramatic but will accomplish the same goal, he said. Once older homes are sold, move-up buyers can afford to buy new homes.

"Our figures said that such a tax credit will result in an additional 250,000 housing starts over last year, which will generate 450,000 jobs," he said. The measure will cost approximately $1 billion, but should generate $4 billion.

'One thing I believe, and that is because I've seen it before, is the housing industry always pulls the country out of a slow turn.'
