City tax rate may inch up this summer

By Leonard Poger editor

The Westland city administration is "pretty sure" a small tax rate increase will be recommended this spring to generate more revenues in the first year of a state-mandated property assessment freeze.

While homeowners will welcome the freeze after several years of increases, Mayor Robert Thomas and his staff are trying to figure how to prepare a new budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

In an interview in his office, Thomas and two key finance persons said that there are a lot of things they can do to control costs while projecting a modest increase in new revenues.

One possible way to avoid major cuts in programs and services is a slight increase in the city tax rate.

The mayor, who has received recommended budget requests from his department heads last week, must submit his proposed spending plan to the city council by April 1.

"I AM pretty sure" a tax rate increase will be recommended to the city council to support the projected budget of nearly $30 million.

If he carries through on the rate hike and it is approved by the city council before its early June deadline, homeowners with a house valued at $60,000 would have a city tax bill increase of $12.30 this summer.

Thomas said the tax levy in the current budget is 7 mills, or $7 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation. He is planning to recommend that the rate be boosted to the maximum authorization of $7.41 per $1,000.

If that happens, the city would gain an additional $400,000 in reve-

New election rules rile some voters

By Leonard Poger

The person who administers local elections fears that the March 17 presidential primary will be the most confusing for local voters.

At the same time, it will be the hardest election she has had to administer during her 14 years as city

For those reasons and the possibility of election workers being confronted by angry and hostile voters on election day, clerk Diane Fritz said last week that she intends to ask the Westland Police Department for

What's causing the problems are the ongoing changes in Democratic Party and Republican Party rules to vote in the Republican primary. that many voters say are an intrusion in the nominating process and a violation of their privacy.

Fritz said that while the parties may make more changes in the primary rules in the near future, here is how local voters may take part in the primary:

ON THE Democratic side, voters will be asked to declare their party preference on election day.

Republican voters are not required to register their party preference before the March 17 primary. But those who receive an absentee ballot party declaration form and declare themselves to be Republicans by Tuesday will only be allowed

Fritz stressed that the party preference declarations made on primary day are only good for that one day and have no effect on the Nov. 3 general election.

The problem is that the current rules - while subject to change allow any Democrat who wishes not to vote in the Democratic primary to vote in the GOP primary but bars Republicans who have declared their party preference by Tuesday from the crossing over.

Those Republicans who do not declare a party preference early can choose to vote in the Democratic pri-

The election day records are public records, Fritz said.

Fritz told the Observer last week that she has been receiving about a half-dozen letters a day from angry residents who protest the violation of the privacy of the ballot box.

"It's a shame after all these years I am going to be denied my right to vote," wrote one person who indicated she may not vote to avoid having her party preference becoming public. The March 17 primary rules "are a disgrace to all Americans." Fritz said the city clerks in Wayne County met last week in Dearborn were upset about the upcoming primary and felt that the rules were 'very confusing."

The clerks stressed that they only administer the elections and don't approve the election laws, Fritz said.

The meeting was held by the elections division of the Secretary of

To prepare for the expected confrontations with voters angry about the party declaration rules, Fritz has had a training session with her election workers.

"I TOLD them (the workers) that if they can't handle a hostile yoter, call me or send them to me" at City Hall, the clear said.

Fritz stressed that the rules, which have been changed several times in recent weeks, may be revised again. "Stay tuned for the next episode,"

The clerk said the primary will be in the same precinct locations used for other local elections.

3 more suspects nabbed in crackdown on drugs

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Three more people have appeared in 18th District Court on charges of drug possession as drug busts continue in Westland.

Two of the latest arrests are linked, while a third stemmed from cocaine found on an Inkster man stopped by police for a traffic violation, Westland police Sgt. Timothy Abramski said Friday.

Each defendant could face up to four years in prison if convicted. They include Charles Dufresne of Westland for cocaine possession, Charles Shane Sprinkle, 23, of Westland, for possession of marijuana with intent to deliver, and Gable Grant Searcy Jr., 18, of Inkster, for possession of cocaine with intent to Westland police arrested Sprinkle when they issued a recent search warrant at his Alpena Court residence and found marijuana, Abramski said. Sprinkle had already been taken to the Westland police station when Dufresne arrived later at Sprinkle's residence and began talking with plainclothes officers who remained on the scene, Abramski

Dufresne had indicated he came to Sprinkle's residence to buy marijuana, and he was arrested after police found less than a gram of cocaine

when they searched him, Abramski

Searcy, meanwhile, was arrested Feb. 4 after police stopped him for a traffic violation and found cocaine during a search, Abramski said. He has been charged with possession of cocaine with intent to deliver less than 25 grams, the sergeant said.

ALL THREE defendants appeared Thursday in 18th District Court for a preliminary examination to determine if they should face trial on the drug charges. They have pleaded not guilty.

Mary Fisher's shocking, tragic announcement of HIV infection should focus new attention on a disturbing statistic already known by area health professionals:

The Detroit area ratio of HIV-infected women to men is higher than that of any other region except New York City.

Former Oakland County resident Fisher, daughter of millionaire philanthropist Max Fisher, gained widespread local publicity with her announcement last week.

Less publicity has been given a recent Centers for Disease Control study that found one HIV-infected Detroit area female for every two infected males.

Hard-pressed to pay taxes? Appeal home's assessment

Westland homeowners, angry about increasing property assessments, will get a break this summer because of a state-mandated one-year assessment freeze.

But the city's new assessor, Karen Hardin, said that residents can continue to appeal to the Board of Review to have their assessment reduced because of financial hard-

At the same time, Hardin and other city officials are planning to have a live call-in show on cable-TV Wednesday night, Feb. 26, to hear residents' questions about the assessment freeze. The show will be at 7 p.m. on Channel 8. Besides Hardin, Mayor Robert Thomas and finance director Michael Gorman will be on the call-in show.

Hardin also announced the schedule of meetings of the review board, to convene March 2 and continue through March 18.

The assessor, hired in mld-January, said she expects a reduction in the number of assessment appeal to the review board, but felt that many people may appeal next month because of the large in-crease in the Wayne-Westland school district tax rate.

The increase of 7.75 mills, of $7.75 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, was approved by voters last June and reflected for the first time in the property tax bills mailed to residents this winter. The tax rate increase represents a tax bill boost of $232 for a person in a home valued at $60,000.

Hardin said that assessments can be dropped this year in specific cases and those who have bought a home in the city since Jan. 1, 1991, also have the right to appeal.

Assessments can be dropped if there have been removal of improvements or a loss of property caused by a fire, she said.

But assessments may be increased this year if there have been additions or improvements to a home or lots split or a combination of splits.

THE REVIEW board may adjust assessments only if the property meets one of the exceptions to the freeze or if the taxpayer acquired the property after Jan. 1, 1991, said a state House Taxation Committee staff member in a memo explaining the freeze, good only for this

If a person wants an assessment reduction based on financial hardship, the board will review the appeal and determine if the resident is paying more than his/her fair share in property taxes, Hardin

In those cases, residents may demonstrate their inability to pay their property taxes.

The assessor added that people may want to appeal to the review board to preserve their right to continue their appeal to the Michigan Tax Tribunal.

Residents will be heard by the review board on a first-come, firstserved basis in City Hall, 36601 Ford. Industrial and commercial property owners must call the assessor's office, 467-3161, to arrange appointments.

FOLLOWING IS the schedule of the review board:

Monday, March 2, 9:30 a.m.-noon and 1:30-5 p.m.; Tuesday, March 3, 9:30 a.m.-noon and 1:30-5 p.m.; Wednesday, March 4, 1-5 and 6:30-9 p.m., Thursday, March 5, 1-5 and 6:30-9 p.m.; Monday, March 9, 9:30noon and 1:30-5 p.m.; Tuesday, March 10, 1-5 and 6:30-9 p.m.; Wednesday, March 11, 1-5 and 6:30-9 p.m.; Monday, March 16, 9:30noon and 1:30-5 p.m., and Wednesday, March 18, 9:30 a.m.-noon and 1:30-5 p.m.

Report questioned

By Darrell Clem staff writer

A defense attorney has questioned reports that an 18-year-old Westland man had threatened an Inkster 17year-old before police arrested him Feb. 2 and charged him with carrying a concealed weapon.

"There's a completely different scenario from our point of view," attorney William Montgomery sald Thursday.

Police said they arrested Jeffery Donald Hargis about 1:10 a.m. Feb. 2, a Sunday, after they found a handgun under the seat of a car he was driving near his Avondale resi-

But Montgomery raised questions about police reports, earlier quoted in the Observer, that indicated Hargis had been involved in a dispute before his arrest.

"There's a completely different set of facts," he said, but did not elaborate.

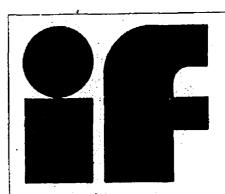

Westland police Sgt. Daniel Pfannes confirmed Thursday that some details of the police reports, based on accounts from witnesses, haven't been substantiated. The reports were written before the case was turned over to Plannes.

ON THURSDAY, Hargis appeared before 18th District Judge Gail McKnight for a preliminary examination to determine if he should face trial for carrying a concealed weapon, which carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison. Hargis wajved the exam, and McKnight has sent the case to Detroit Recorder's Court for possible trial. Hargis, who has pleaded not guilty, is free on a $5,000 personal Several acquaintances of Hargis accompanied him to 18th District Court on Thursday. No witnesses were called to testify, however, because Hargis waived his exam.

Montgomery noted Thursday that Hargis was not the owner of the handgun that police said they found in the car he was driving on Feb. 2. Montgomery also said the car didn't belong to Hargis.

'Two men accused of firing shotgun blasts into a Westland man's house as he slept are scheduled to appear in court Tuesday for a hearing to determine whether they should stand trial.

five gunshots on two men who misthe residence of a rival during a charge drive-by shooting.

Richard Bronson, 21, of Dearborn Heights, and Carl Emil Karcher, 19, of Westland, were arrested after a 28-year-old Westland man awoke at 3:15 a.m. Feb. 1 as gunfire shattered windows and pelted the door of his house on the 1300 block of Easley.

Bronson and Karcher could face ed of intentionally discharging a firearm into an occupied dwelling. Bronson also could face a mandatory two-year term on a felony firearms charge.

A preliminary examination, originally scheduled for Thursday, will be held Tuesday in 18th District Court should stand trial on the charges.

Judge dismisses assault charge in family dispute

The latest developments came as Polgar appeared in 18th District ed to address Judge McKnight. Court for a preliminary examination on a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder, which carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison. Judge Gail McKnight had been prepared to hear testimony to determine if Polgar should face trial.

But James Wise, assistant Wayne County prosecutor, said Polgar's mother and her boyfriend had reservations about the charge being prosecuted. Both appeared in court with Polgar, and the boyfriend had want-prompting Wise and investigating Westland police Sgt. Russell Nowaczck to talk privately before recommending that the assault charge be dismissed.

McKnight agreed to dismiss the charge after Wise and Nowaczck were assured by public defender Darryl Fink that Polgar would turn himself over to authorities if a new, lesser charge emerges from the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office.

McKnight rejected the request, about the 2:20 a.m. Feb. 2 dispute in "because of the relationship between Polgar fired the shots at his mother's $5,000 bond set by Judge McKnight.

Engler says it must focus on equity

Courts will take over the school funding problem unless Michigan achieves per-student equity, Gov. John Engler warns.

"We've seen that happen in a number of states, and that's the worst possible outcome for education," Engler said in a wide-ranging inter-

In his second year in office, Engler said he's willing to abandon taxbase sharing, a law tied up in the courts, but insists school funding needs to focus on per-pupil equity.
So he's advocating a "fair trade":

 Eliminate tax base sharing, under which suburban school districts share half the growth in their commercial-industrial tax base.

• Let the state pump the Social Security and retirement payments it makes on behalf of school districts into the state aid formula. Engler also would phase out several special purpose grants. And he would eliminate "recapturing" the process by which the state takes back categorical aid to richer school districts. The governor said he has rejected the idea of ending all categorical aids. Some, such as special education, are required by federal law. Others are required by the Headlee Amendment, which says the state must pay for any programs it mandates from local government.

A. Absolutely. One of the criticisms - a fair criticism by local districts - is that the state, by overemphasizing categoricals, has handcuffed the districts and prevented them from solving the educational problems that are most urgent.

School districts have been saying they want more freedom to innovate. They want to be able to do what they know how - to teach kids without the state telling them you have to fit these rather tight defini-

We have a law that students, in about three years, in order to get a diploma endorsed by the state, would have to meet minimum state standards. We ought to give the districts maximum flexibility.

There's considerable concern over tax-base sharing because that reached out at the local districts' local revenue and sald, "You'll have to share some of the local revenue." That wasn't in my budget, as I proposed it, but it came forth from the Legislature, and I signed it amid much criticism and concern.

As we looked at the issue, it was clear that there was a different way to approach it, and we ought to focus on how we spend state dollars and

Madonna vp welcomes Kresge 'challenge'

Madonna University Vice President Sister Mary Lauriana Gruszczynski has no problem being an optimist.

Facing a fund-raising goal of $740,000 by Dec. 1, the university vice president for advancement is confident the Livonia-based institution will meet its fund-raising challenge from the Kresge Foun-

Last fall, Madonna accepted a $300,000 challenge grant from the foundation to be used toward renovation of the university's science wing. The grant was made on a challenge basis to help the univer-sity in raising, by Dec. 1, the $944,315 to complete funding of the project and the $4.297 million capital component of the $10 million Campaign for Academic Excellence (the $10 million campaign was launched in 1988 to raise funds for capital renovation, operations and endowment).

"I'm very optimistic," said Sister Laurlana, adding that the unlversity "is looking for major gifts of cash and/or pledges which canbe extended over two or three years."

"Being recognized by the Kresge Foundation also helps," said Sister Laurlana.

"The Kresge Foundation has every reason to believe that Madonna University will be successful in meeting this challenge," said Alfred H. Taylor Jr. chairman of the Kresge Foundation.

"The foundation recognized that Madonna has a very real need for the renovation and expansion of its science wing and is more than happy to assist the university in raising the necessary funds," he added.

The purpose of a challenge grant it to cultivate new donors or 'friends.'

Madonna University Vice President Sister Mary Lauriana Gruszczynski recently met with Alfred H. Taylor Jr., chairman of the Sister Lauriana, who is spearheading the campaign, said the university is writing to area companies and foundations, then following up with a personal call in an effort to explain how Madonna has contributed to the area.

She noted that some 2,000 nurses currently employed in the metro area received their degrees from the university. Another 2,000 teachers in local systems and private schools were trained at Ma-

Older adults can explore their educational options

The Southeast Michigan Older Learner Committee will host a oneday conference from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 28 at Madonna University in Livonia.

"Moving Toward Tomorrow," will explore educational opportunities for older adults and feature workshop designed for community and adult educators, senior center and agency staff and older adults interested in lifelong learning.

Topics of discussion will include education theory, job retraining, intergenerational learning opportunities, volunteer work and marketing programs for older adults. Statewide objectives and pilot projects also will be examined. Howard Hickey, professor of educational administration at Michigan State University, will deliver the keynote address, "Learning and Aging: An Oxymoron?" The day will also highlight presenters from Project ABLE, the Institute for Retired Professional, the Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency, the Downtown Senior Center and representatives from several public school districts.

Cost for the conference, co-sponsored by Madonna, the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging and the state Department of Education, is $15. Information, call 591-5089.

WHAT IS ACCEPTABLE? A question that patients with arthritis often ask is: 'What is acceptable?' An answer requires reviewing the cause of joint

Arthritis does not result from a single event. Medical knowledge about osteo and rheumatoid arthritis is sufficient to state that these conditions are the result of heredity and environment: what you are born with, and what in life you must contend with. No error in judgement of episode of undue strain caused your present joint problem. The Nature gave the capability to feel pain as a watchdog. In arthritis the presence of pain prevents you from activity that could further harm your joints. You will feel an intense and unremitting discomfort before you could ruin a knee by walking, bowling, skiing, hiking or undertaking heavy physical labor.

The answer to 'what is acceptable?' is: whatever is acceptable to you, it is not the doctor who determines your capabilities, your body makes that evaluation and commu nicates the decision through the media of pain.

In dealing with arthritis, it is important that you listen to what your body counsels. Disregarding this good advice can bring on the very disability you seek to avoid. In arthritis: no pain means gain.

Medical examiner sticks by murder ruling

By Pat Murphy staff writer

Neither of the two women who died in the presence of Dr. Jack Kevorklan last October could have taken their own lives without help, according to the Oakland County medical examiner who classified their deaths as homicide.

The women may have taken active roles in their own deaths, but neither could have committed sulcide by themselves, testified Dr. Ljubisa J. Dragovic, the medical examiner who performed autopsies on Marjorie Wantz and Sherry Miller and signed their death certificates.

Testifying Saturday at Kevorkian's preliminary examination on murder charges, Dragovic said forensic pathology does not address. the term "assisted suicide. That's a contradiction in terms.".

And in the case of Wantz and Miller, the person or persons who set up the complex system enabling each to take her own life committed homicide, testified Dragovic.

The medical examiner was a key witness in the examination of Kevorkian Friday and Saturday in Rochester District Court before Judge James P. Sheehy.

The examination is scheduled to continue today although no ruling is expected for weeks. Sheehy can rule a crime was committed — and order Kevorkian into circuit court for possible trial.

'Or, he can dismiss the charges, as a Clarkston District judge did in 1990 when Kevorkian was accused of murdering Janet Adkins.

LAST OCT. 23 is the night Wantz, 58, from the Benton Harbor area, and Miller, 43, of Roseville, died in a remote cabin in the Bald Mountain Recreation Area in Oakland Township. Keyorkian has admitted assisting each in taking her life.

During the three hours Dragovic was on the witness stand, there was an undercurrent of animosity between him and defense attorney Geoffrey N. Fieger, who previously suggested the medical examiner was unduly pressured by the prosecution.

Fieger repeatedly asked if Wantz and Miller would have died if each had not taken a final step — Wantz activating the machine that injected a fatal sodium chloride and Miller turning the valve admitting carbon monoxide gas into the mask over her

It was irrelevant that each woman might have wanted to die, said Dragovic. The actions of either woman would not have necessarily ended their lives if each had not been hooked up to a complex system de-'signed for death.

.The person who set up those systems committed homicide, he insist-

Is the person who sells rope used by someone to hang himself commiting homicide? asked Fieger.

No, said Dragovic. But the person who ties the rope around the neck of someone precariously perched on a stool does, even if that person wants to hang himself.

Dragovic bristled at Fieger's suggestion someone else - possibly sheriff's Sgt. William Harvey or Prosecutor Richard Thompson - influenced his findings.

"I ruled the deaths homicide," Dragovic said repeatedly, "nobody else influenced my decision."

Fieger - , sometimes almost smirking, and other times on the verge of rage - tried to suggest the medical examiner's approach, and definition of homicide, was unique . . . and somehow not acceptable.

Dr. Jack Kevorkian (left) and one of his attorneys, Michael Schwartz of West Bloomfield, prepare to leave the Rochester Hills district courtroom Friday during the lunch break.

Spotlight brings out admirers

By Pat Murphy staff writer

There have been no proposals of marriage - as with the man convicted as the notorious "Hillside Strangler" in southern California.

And no amorous women were lurking in the court corridors — as during the sanity hearings of Jeffrey Dahmer.

But "Doctor Death" has his admirers, including four teenagers who - identified themselves as "the Rochester girls," Sarah, Valerie, Jen and Fess.

During his examination on murder charges Saturday in Rochester District Court, "the Rochester girls" gave Dr. Jack Kevorkian a single, long-stemmed rose, along with a short note saying, ". . . you'll always have our support."

"I don't know who they are," Kevorkian said. "But I chatted with them during a break. They're very

AND THEY weren't the only ones with kind words for the retired pathologist charged in the Oct. 23 deaths of Marjorie Wantz and Sherry Miller.

On several occasions during the examination Friday and Saturday, Kevorkian was asked to autograph his book, "Prescription: Medicide."

Both times Kevorkian went to lunch at the Olive Garden Italian Restaurant, about a block away from Rochester District Court, the waitresses favorably acknowledged his presence, according to Michael A. Schwartz, a West Bloomfield lawyer who is one of his defense attor-

"Today (Saturday) one of the waitresses asked for his autograph," said Schwartz. "Yesterday, the waltress said it is 'an honor' to take our food order."

Even one of the prosecution's witnesses admitted having some regard for Kevorkian. James M. Brown, an Orion Township fire fighter, said on Oct. 23 he was one of the first people to arrive at the secluded cabin in the Bald Mountain Recreation Area after the deaths of Wantz and Miller.

In response to questions from assistant prosecutor Larry Bunting, notoriety."

Brown said as he was waiting for sheriff's deputies to allow him into the cabin he recognized Kevorkian.

"What happened?" asked Bunting. "I went over and shook his (Kevorkian's) hand," said Brown.

KEVORKIAN SAID he has received "hundreds" of phone calls since June 1990, when he kicked off public debate on the right to die by helping Alzheimer's patient Janet Adkins end her own life.

"All but two have been supportive," he said. "Most people agree that if it's done correctly, assisting a suicide can be beneficial.'

Throughout his numerous interviews - some for national and international television and others for local newspapers - Kevorkian said he is a confirmed bachelor and has been throughout his 63 years.

Asked about romantic overtures since becoming a household figure. Kevorkian responded, "There haven't been any."

After a pause he added with a smile, "I think it's the nature of the Summertime in Sydney

Sydney's Harbor Bridge adds an imposing presence to parts of the Australian seaport's skyline. If skylines aren't enough, culture thrives at the famed Sydney Opera House while nearby there are endless stretches of pristine beach. Remember: winter is summer down under.

The Sydney Opera House, with its odd roof, is home to theater, opera, ballet and symphony productions.

City celebrates 150th birthday

By Andrea Anderson-Ribadeneira New York Times Syndicate

🕆 ummertime in Sydney, Australia, is a brilliant affair.

The city, always enhanced by the harbor's deep blue, is further brightened with the colors of wattle, jacaranda and flame

The harbor comes alive with fleets of striped spinnakers and Windsurfers dancing from bay to bay. Beaches, quiet and dignified in the autumn and winter (March through August) turn to festival grounds full of boisterous sunbathers and surfers.

They arrive in hordes, many in neon bathing suits with matching zinc sunblock on their noses. Broad strips of pristine white sand are patterned with beach towels from the promenade to the water's edge.

With this year being the 150th anniversary of the city, residents of Sydney celebrated Australia Day (Jan. 26), commemorating the arrival of the first European settlers in 1788, and the celebrations will continue right through Decémber.

Between 1788, when Capt. Arthur Phillip moored off Sydney Cove with the first fleet of convicts, and 1842, when Britain first granted the city a right to representative government, Sydney was considered nothing more than a rough colonial outpost.

With establishment of a partially elected legislative council, Sydney was on its way to becoming more than a dumping ground for England's outcasts.

To celebrate the sesquicentennial the current city council has coordinated a series of events that involve almost every area and cultural institution in Sydney. The highlights include Queen Elizabeth's arrival for the opening of the refurbished Victorian-era Town Hall on Feb.

EVENTS

The Opera House is the focal point of Sydney's rich cultural life. Information and bookings for all theater, opera, ballet and symphony productions held at the Opera House can be obtained by ealling 250-7777. Half-price tickets for that day's performances are sold for cash only at the Halftix booth on Martin Place from noon to 5:30 p.m. Monday to Friday and noon to 5 p.m. on Saturday. For more information call 0055-

The summer opera season runs through March 2. Out of the six scheduled works, two, "Fidelio" and "The Marriage of Figaro," are new productions.

The winter season runs from June to October and contains twice as many productions. Tickets cost $20 to $91. All prices are in U.S. dollars at an exchange of 75 American cents for one Australian dollar.

A play by Australia's foremost contemporary playwright, David Williamson, started off the year for the Sydney Theater Co. "Money and Friends" is a comedy about modern Australians facing the recession and runs through Feb. 29. Tickets cost $19 to $25.

To celebrate the 60th anniversary of its opening, the Harbor Bridge is going to invite the city aboard for a huge party on March 15. Traffic will be banned and the bridge transformed into a stage with entertainment from one end to the other.

Top Australian and international musicians will congregate in Sydney for the International Jazz Festival from March 19 to March 29. James Morrison, the multi-instrumentalist who is one of Australia's contemporary jazz stars, opens the festival in concert with the American Ray Brown Trio. For more information call 265-9554.

An Easter parade through the city opens this year's Royal Easter Show, a farming exhibition of grand proportions that offers visitors an impressive introduction to rural Australia. Events range from livestock parades to cake decorating contests.

The show will be from April 10 to April 21 at the Sydney Showground in Paddington. Tickets are $9. For more information call 0055-21111.

For information on these and other events check The Sydney Morning Herald's Friday Metro section.

Hostel trips for the young at heart

By Everett Potter special writer

Consumers searching for a real travel bargain in 1992 would do well to reflect on the late 1960s.

During those heady days of student travel, all that was needed for a lengthy European vacation was a cheap charter-airline ticket, a couple of hundred dollars and an American Youth Hostel card.

The AYH card, more than anything else, allowed students to spend night after night in major cities and small towns throughout Europe for just a few dollars a day.

A hostel provided overnight, dormitory-style accommodations in a simple but clean facility, with sepa-

Those cheap charters may be a distant memory, but AYH lives on And membership in the non-profit AYH is not restricted to the youthful backpacking set either.

"The 'youth' in AYH really means 'young at heart," said David Kalter, program education manager for American Youth Hostels.

"There has never been an upper age limit for members of AYH. In fact, we have members of every age, from 5 or 8 on up."

Since AYH is affiliated with the International Youth Hostel Federa-Fuon, members of AYH have access to more than 6,300 hostels worldcents a night in India to $18,75 a night in New York City. The average accommodation ranges from $7 to $10 a night. The hostel itself might be a log cabin, a Victorian mansion, a renovated lighthouse or a modern highrise building in a major city center.

The hostel movement was started in Germany in 1909 by a schoolteacher named Richard Schirmann, who was fond of taking groups of students on mountain Schirmann wanted to extend the hikes but was unable to find affordable overnight accommodations. His solution was to persuade schoolmasters in neighboring towns to allow their schoolhouses to be used for the night.

In return, the young hikers would rise early and tidy up the place in time for the first classes.

The idea "spread like wildfire rate bedrooms and bathrooms for throughout Germany and to other men and women.

European countries," said Kalter.

Those cheap charters may be a "Although schoolhouses aren't used these days, the idea of getting up for an early departure is still practiced by most hostels."

As for leaving the schoolhouse neat and clean, the concept of performing a few chores in exchange for inexpensive accommodation has long been a part of the hostel experience, although that is changing.

"Traditionally," said Kalter, "people have been asked to sweep a floor, take out some garbage or do some task that might take five minutes, but is essential to the communal-living arrangement."

The hostel concept began in the wide, at prices ranging from 35 United States under the guidance of Monroe and Isabel Smith who had encountered hostels in Germany when they escorted a group of Boy Scouts there in 1932.

They founded AYH in 1934 and opened the first American hostel in Northfield, Mass., the same year. There are now 240 hostels throughout the United States, In 1990 they registered 888,000 overnight While dormitory-style accommodations are still the norm - and members still need the inexpensive sheet known as a "sleep sack" that eliminates the bedding cost for hostels - some things have changed. An increasing number of hostels

Engler: Colleges must do more

To Gov. John Engler, the question of double-digit college tuition hikes is less important than what colleges are doing for so-called "non-traditional students."

Engler said his administration's thrust is better management of facilities rather than tultion restraint.

His budget for fiscal 1993 contained virtually no new money for the 15 state universities and 29 community colleges. That led some higher education leaders to predict double-digit tuition hikes to keep pace with inflation.

Engler portrayed his chief Democratic rival, House Speaker Lewis Dodak, as an economic illiterate for proposing that college tuition hikes be capped at the rate of consumer price inflation.

Here are the questions and an-

Q. When your higher education budget came out (no increase), some universities immediately said there would be "double digit tultion increases." Any reaction?

A. We certainly are urging restraint. I try to appoint men and women to boards who will exercise restraint -

Q. That's my next question, Should tuition restraint be an issue at the Republican and Democratic state conventions when they nominate university board candidates?

A. I think it's something they may wish to raise, and they're certainly than that — the management of the Democrats want a ballot proposal to cap tuition increases at the consumer price index. Are you in favor?

A. The speaker doesn't know economics very well. That's been one of the problems for nearly a year. While we're at it, why not cap the price of all goods we buy?

Price controls don't work. They're discredited right now in eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union. They're scrapping price controls because they're 'facing shortages and inefficient systems, and that's the way it would work here.

We have in our universities a good deal of freedom of choice for students, and we also have ample evidence a college education is a kind of investment. So I think his proposal, while having some surface political appeal, can't be taken seriously upon analysis by thoughtful people. It won't work.

The previous administration (James Blanchard in 1985) tried to control the price of tuition while winking and nodding as fees were raised and new fees created across the board.

Madonna is named Ameritech 'partner'

Madonna University has received a $10,000 Ameritech Partnership Award for activities that demonstrate the distinctive value of independent higher educa-

The university is one of only five in Michigan and 25 colleges and universities in the Midwest to receive the award. Recipients were chosen for their commitment to programs aimed at integrating ethics and values across the curricula, motivating at-risk minority students for college success, enhancing resources through alumni involvement and creating multicultural enrichment programs on

This is the second year the Ameritech Foundation has sponsored the awards and the second year Madonna has been identified as a stand-out among the Midwest Partnership of Independent Colleges that represents more than 170 private institutions in Illionis. Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin. In Michigan, a panel of business leaders familiar with independent higher education were brought together by the Michigan' Colleges Foundation (MCF).

Jack Koten, president of the Ameritech Foundation, explained that the awards program is part of a larger effort to demonstrate the impact that independent colleges have on education, society, the economy and quality of life.

"America's dual system of public and private higher education is critical to our nation's well-being," Koten said. "And, by showing that private colleges perform a public service, we maintain this dual system, which better serves our students.

let the local districts keep the money they raise locally.

I'm prepared to support the immediate repeal of tax-base sharing in return for putting up the state's ability to redirect some of the retirement funds. So it's a quid pro quo, but it's a fair trade: The local districts are free to do what they want with their dollars, and the state is free to budget how you wish.

When the average expenditure is under $4,000 per student and one that is spending $7,000 is pleading poverty, one has to wonder where the money's going.

Q. Keith says 30 percent of districts are out-of-formula; if we put more money into the formula and less into categoricals, we could have 90 percent in formula. Is that in line with your thinking?

A. Well, that would be helpful to the schools, certainly. You would have a school aid formula dispensing dollars designed to give parity for equal effort. That's what's difficult to justify today: When somebody's taxing themselves at 36 mills for school operations, and the person across the road pays 36 mills and gets twice as much revenue. That's the inherent unfairness.

That's where some states have gotten themselves in trouble with litigation. One of my goals is not to have Michigan schools taken over by the courts. We've seen that happen in a number of states, and that's the worst possible outcome for educa-

Q. Kentucky?

A. Kentucky; Texas has had two or three plans turned down by the state supreme court, there are challenges in other states, they're expensive and very counterproductive. I would prefer to act now and blunt the threat of that happening.

Q. You've got certain legislators who actually want a lawsuit.

A. (Nod.)

Q. Do you support the Michigan Model (for comprehensive health ed-

A. I don't oppose it. I mean, it's an option available for schools. I support its being an option. I don't support its being mandated. I've not studied specific components in detail because that's a decision that's made locally. They don't have to use any of

it. They may use all of it if they wish. The concern I've had that emerged quite by accident: The previous administration used substantial dollars of drug monies to pay for the Michigan Model, which has aspects of drug education, yet it is not focused on drugs; it's much, much broader than that.

Abortions a holocaust?

To the editor:

Since the legalization of abortion in January 1973 by the U.S. Supreme Court, abortions have surpassed the tragic "German Holocuast!"

The Alan Gutmacher Institute had statistically confirmed that "over 28 million unborn bables" have been aborted since then. Ninety-seven percent, as a personal choice, near three percent (as) a medical necessi-

This law is erroneous. It was based on the premise of Roe versus Wade, in which a woman claimed to be raped. Six years later, this same person had admitted that she had

It is a fact that sonographic evaluation early in pregnancy has shown and proven the presence and activity of an unborn baby in the womb of the mother. We cannot plead ignorance any longer. Modern technology has given us profound insight, and what an astounding factor that is.

NOT TOO LONG ago, a news commentator on the MacNeil News Hour had made a shocking, irresponsible statement when he said: "If it be a choice of women to kill, so be it!" End of quote. This is evidence of an irrational mentality. Engendered by those who are so obsessed with "women's rights" that they fail to see that deliberate interruption of a human conceived life is morally wrong . . . since it is a "chosen termination of unborn life" . . . with the exception to save the life of the mother, it is exactly that. Wasn't it said, a million times or more that the Holocaust must never happen again? Yet it is occuring . . . now . . . in a society that pleads abuse if not allowed the latter. Strange, that it thinks nothing of the voluminous abuse of the unborn life, as it proceeds to infanticide.

Many cringe at the horror of cruelty to animals, while fostering the same cruelty to the innocent unborn. Why? There should be no tolerance

When will we have the moral courage to defend those tiny, innocent cherubs in the womb? Who will defend them, if we don't?

It should be noted that the primary objective of those who defend the unborn is to educate. We do not stand to be judgemental. We leave that to the devine author of human life.

Julianne Pieknik,

Westland Tax credits can move us forward again

To the editor:

I am writing to express my feelings about the current controversy regarding the reduction on taxes for capital gains. Although George Mitchell and company have unwisely and unfairly branded this as a "tax break for the rich," my experience with the former capital gains law has been quite the opposite.

In 1980 I sold a business for $60,000, which I had started on a shoestring seven years prior. That business supported five people (and to the best of my knowledge, still does today) on revenues of $350,000. Because I benefitted from the liberal tax treatment of its increased value, I was able to support myself and my family on the proceeds of that sale for over a year while I struggled to start a new business.

Twelve years later, that new business comfortably supports 45 consultants and 5 administrators, and is now bringing over $3 million into Michigan annually. Admittedly, that is not a lot of people and certainly not a lot of revenue, but that is just the point: This tax has the power to create economic growth - for anybody, and at any level, who has the desire and ability to want to grow. If it were not for the former capital gains tax structure, I could not have afforded to either sell my business or start a new one.

In my opinion, our current dilemma to gain worldwide economic strength is tantamount to war: Continuing to weaken those who are best positioned or naturally endowed to wage this war, through burdensome rules, regulations and tax laws, significantly lessens our chances for victory. In any other type of war, we would be doing all in our power to make them strong. And speaking of strength, I believe we became strong as a country because we were committed to being the "land of opportunity." Somehow over the last few decades, as a society, we have done much to erode the substance of that philosophy. As I see it, other countries are winning this war and steal-

more conducive to economic prog-

Measures such as reduced Capital Gains taxes and Targeted Investment tax credits can do much to get our industries — big and small to move forward again. The best thing that George Mitchell and his supporters could do for our country, in my opinion, is to quit preaching to the American Public that "profit" is a dirty word.

Change policy; move forward

To the editor:

I am writing in reference to the policy regarding the controversial issue of varsity jackets. I feel I have an unbiased opinion, as my children are grown adults but, at one time, were Livonia students.

In the past, a varsity jacket might have been athletic related. But it is 1992, and we've come a long way, and it is time to change that antiquated policy.

All students are expected to be treated equally and should not be discriminated against. They all put forth an individual effort and should ing our jobs because their laws are be able to display their award equally. The jacket should represent the school regardless of what was in the past. This is my opinion, but in speaking with others, it is the opinion of a lot of people.

> WHEN I SEE a varsity jacket, I don't think of football, basketball, etc., I think of Churchill, Stevenson, etc. On sight, the association is with the school. Therefore, maybe it's time to change the policy and go forward.

> The student should be allowed to wear the school letter on the jacket if a school letter is earned, no matter what activity was involved, and no matter what gender the person is. Athletics should not be singled out. An athlete represents the school at an athletic function, and by the same token, the marching band represents the school at an athletic event. So where is the difference? My son wore his jacket proudly > with the letter he earned for his sport. But I'm sure, he would have been just as proud if it had been earned in another activity.

> Sometimes we lose sight of the fact that if we treat our youth with respect, they will in turn treat others with respect. What goes around comes around.

Our children are our future.

Had I known how refreshing "Fried Green Tomatoes" truly is, I would have seen it much sooner. By now, almost a month after release, it's no secret that this is the most satisfying and moving film to reach screens this year.

The story, according to the advertisements, centers around the relationship between Kathy Bates and Jessica Tandy. This isn't surprising, since the two back-to-back Oscar winners, usually seen on stage, are at the height of their powers at the box office.

Actually, they become something of a framing device in the adaptation of Fanny Flagg's novel. Tandy's character, who resides temporarily in a retirement home, begins to reminisce about life in a tiny Alabama town in the 1930s. Here, Idgie, a tomboy, and the more demure Ruth strike up a deep and lasting friend-main pulse of the town. Problems trived, but it also works in a rare arise, however, when Ruth's estranged husband returns out of nowhere and tries to kidnap their baby. When his car is dredged up from the local pond years later, Idgie is still a prime suspect.

THE CAPTIVATING saga, told during several visits, inspires Bates, who has been suffering the strain of a mid-life crisis. She gets a new image of herself and starts to assert herself with her oafish and insensitive husband.

"Fried Green Tomatoes" has a wonderful message about individuality and lust for life that really works. They open a restaurant, the Whis- Sure, if you pick the movie apart it tle Stop Cafe, which becomes the can be seen as sentimental and conand deceptively simple way. .

Bates and Tandy are brilliant, as usual, so the real surprises come from Mary Stuart Masterson, who has her best role to date as the nonconforming Idgie. At first she seems too pretty for the role, but overcomes that beautifully by the time "Fried Green Tomatoes" reaches its surprising conclusion.

"Kafka" is another story entirely. The long-awaited new film from the director of "sex, lies and videotape" certainly had promise. The shadowy, paranoid landscapes of writer Franz Kafka lend themselves perfectly to the lens of the proper filmmaker.

And in the new film, director Steven Soderbergh does create a "film world in black-and-white where characters walk in and out of shadows and disembodied footsteps always seem to be just behind you.

AS IN THE current "Naked Lunch," the film places the writer as the central character in a story that mixes biographical elements with dialogue and imagery from books. Fans of the great Czech writer will recognize references to such works as "The Metamorphosis," "The Penal Colony," and "The Castle" within the framework of a murder mystery story.

Visually, there are moments of great power here. Most of it is shot in stunning black and white (always a treat), except for 20 minutes or so when Kaska enters the government headquarters where scientists hope to create a race of zombie-like humans.

Jeremy Irons, his natural paleness accentuated through heavy makeup and a trace of lipstick, tries his best to bring some life to what inevitably becomes a tedious exercise in style. The film has been halled for its wittiness, but to me it was nothing more than a pretentious in-joke from an already overrated young director.

Kathy Bates offers up a memorable performance as Ruth, coowner of the Whistle Stop Cafe, in "Fried Green Tomatoes."

'Cat:' Something's missing

Sitting on the beachfront in sunny Florida, things are pretty quiet around the less than glamorous Coconut Palm Resort Apartments. There are few guests and no palm trees at all as someone points out to the owner, former Marine and ex-Detroiter George Moran.

That's how a 1988 film "Cat Chaser," based on a novel by Elmore Leonard begins. Anyone familiar with Leonard's work knows it won't be long before a variety of characters with their own personal and often criminal agendas start crossing Played by Peter Weller, Moran often dreams of his Marine experiences being wounded and captured by insurgents during the 1965 U.S. invasion of the Dominican Republic. A war that probably won't be remembered, the voice over narrator notes.

On a return visit to the Dominican Republic, Moran tries to contact the woman rebel soldier who didn't kill him during the invasion. He also renews a relationship with an old friend from Detroit, a woman (played by Kelly McGillis) who is married to a former head of the Dominican secret police.

AS MIGHT be expected, Moran incurs the wrath of McGillis' husband directly and indirectly through mipass the popcorn LeAnne Rogers

Weller's Moran is really the only character whose motivation is clear, he wants McGillis, and who has any ethics. As is often the case in Leonard's books, Moran isn't a stereotypical hero. He is a person who has his personal concept of ethics and fol-

Detroit-area females gaining on men in testing HIV-positive

Samples from sexually active area adults 25-44 — the group deemed at highest risk by health professionals — showed an infection tracted HIV though sexual contact rate of 4 percent for men, 2 percent with her husband. She added she latfor women.

Study findings should prompt all area residents, even those outside high risk groups, to frankly discuss the issue with their doctors, Lawrenchuk sald.

"EVERYBODY NEEDS to be assessed and, if necessary, be tested."

Detroit-area samples were processed at Detroit Medical Center, Detroit. St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Ann Arbor, was also among the 41 participating medical centers nationwide.

The Ann Arbor sample showed a 6-to-1 male/female infection ratio, closer to the national average.

In all studies, the highest incidence of HIV was reported in blood taken from men 24-44. No breakdown was given for lifestyle, though homosexual males and intravenous drug users are still considered the groups most at risk.

In a Detroit Free Press story, Fisher said she believed she coner discovered her husband was an intravenous drug user.

Other studies have indicated the Detroit area also trails only New York City in its number of intravenous drug users.

"We've seen statistics that there's 30,000 to 35,000 IV drug users," Lawrenchuk said. "That's a walking time bomb."

FOUR PERCENT of all Michigan AIDS cases so far are ascribed to heterosexuals who are not IV drug users, though Lawrenchuk said that figure could understate the risk to those in that group.

"I would caution people our AIDS statistics are really a snapshot of what was happening up to 10 years ago," he said.

The study is considered more telling, he said, because it traces HIV, not full-blown AIDS, which can take up to a decade to develop.

Presence of HIV, human immunodeficiency virus, means a person is likely to develop AIDS. Medical ex-perts say an HIV-infected person can show no trace of the fatal disease for several years after infection. HIV, is most commonly passed to others through unprotected sex or shared intravenous needles.

The Detroit Medical Center study included blood samples taken from January 1987 to October 1990.

Of 10,627 samples tested, 0.98 percent tested positive for HIV - 1.32percent of all samples taken from males, 0.63 of those taken from fe-

By race, 0.79 percent of samples taken from whites tested HIV-positive, compared with 1.08 percent of samples taken from blacks. Nearly two-thirds of DMC samples were taken from blacks.

Samples were identified by age, race and sex, though not by the patient's name.

The CDC/DMC study, called Sentinel Hospital and Seroprevalence Study was issued June 28, 1991.

Wayne County has accounted for 54 percent of all Michigan AIDS cases. The 1,407 AIDS cases reported to date far exceed those of any other Michigan county... Though 1,151 of those cases were reported in Detroit, the 256 AIDS cases reported in suburban Wayne County communities exceeds the figure for all countles but Oakland. To date, there have been 269 AIDS cases reported in Oakland County.

Blazers show no Mercy

In title matchup

By Brad Emons staff writer

The front-runner, at least for now, in Catholic League volleyball circles is Livonia Ladywood.

The Blazers wrapped up their first Central Division title since 1989 with a 15-13, 15-13 victory Thursday on the road against rival Farmington Hills Mercy. Ladywood clinched the division with an 8-1 record, while Mercy finished 7-2.

It was the third meeting this season between the two state-ranked Ladywood avenged a lopsided 15-12, 15-6 loss to the two-time defending Catholic League champion Marlins on their home floor back on Jan.

The Blazers, 28-4-3 overall, now lead the spirited season series 2-1.

"It's the first time (Central Division title) in three years and you give credit to our seniors and captains Mary Jo Kelly, Jannel Hemme and Michelle Wilson," Ladywood coach Tom Teeters said. "There was a lot of pressure on both teams, but I don't think either team played its best match.

"I think the difference this time. was our serving and our serve reception. The last time it was the other way around. It was their serving and serve reception that beat us."

Both teams now advance to the single-elimination Catholic League playoffs, which begin tonight at two sites. See playoff pairings.

"YOU CAN CROSS out serve reception and just put serving," said first-year Mercy coach Ann Kolnytis, explaining her team's loss.

The Marlins made an unforced error to fall behind 14-13. Kelly's dink then crossed over the net untouched for the game-winner.

TEETERS SINGLED out the clutch effort of middle-blocker Hemme, a 5-foot-9 senior, who figured prominently in the victory.

"She went from one of her worst games (the last meeting against Mercy) to one of her best," said the Ladywood coach. "It was her steadiness, her key blocks, serving and serve reception."

"We have the skills, now we need the attitude that 'I can do it.' It's boils down to who believes in themself the most."

The Marlins have a chance to redeem themselves beginning tonight when the playoffs kick off.

Shamrocks upset, 57-42

By Brad Emons staff writer

Redford Catholic Central's 57-42 basketball loss Friday night to visiting Warren DeLaSalle was painful in more ways than one.

Not only did the host Shamrocks end up sharing the Catholic League's Central Division title with De-LaSalle, but they also lost their top seeding for the eight-team playoffs, which start Sunday at the University of Detroit's Calihan Hall.

Both teams finished 8-2 in the Central, but DeLaSalle earned the Central's No. 1 spot for the playoffs under the league's complicated tiebreaker system.

Under the tiebreaker format, the Pilots needed at 15-point margin of victory and got it when Jeff McGavin nailed a three-pointer with only 11 seconds left in the game. No. 2 seeded CC will play Dearborn Divine Child (11-4) at 2 p.m. Sunday in a quarterfinal game at Calihan Hall.

"It's hard to swallow in your own gym when you get taken to school," said CC coach Bernie Holowicki, whose team fell to 13-3 overall. "We put players in and out. We were looking for a spark, somebody with fire in their eyes, but it never happened."

The Shamrocks' two main sparkplugs, 6-foot-5 Chad Varga and 6-6 Bob Kummer, each averaging over 20 points per game, were handcuffed by DeLaSalle's defense for a combined 20 points.

VARGA, the University of Richmond-bound center, scored 32 in CC's 83-60 victory Jan. 28 at De-LaSalle, but finished with only 11 on 5-of-12 shooting.

He had to share team-high scoring honors with junior forward Brian Paluk, who came off the bench to net 11, generating the only offense CC could muster. Kummer, meanwhile, was plagued by foul problems from start to fin-

The senior forward, headed for UNC-Charlotte, had a chance to protect CC's top seeding for the playoffs, but missed two shots in the

"A lot of teams the last three or have been clogging the paint with a zone and daring us to beat them with outside shooting," Holowicki said. "Most teams now are going to try and shut down Chad and Bobby because they think the rest of our team is mediocre. And it's not a myth. It was proven tonight."

The Shamrocks shot only 31.2 percent from the field (15-of-48).

Outside of Varga and Kummer, the remaining CC cast connected on just 7-of-26 shots from the floor (26.9 percent).

"We wanted to take Varga and Kummer out of the game and obviously we were successful at doing that," DeLaSalle coach Tim Turner said. "But we know how good they'll be the next time, if we're fortunate to meet them in the playoffs."

THE PILOTS, who raised their overall season record to 11-4, ran their game plan nearly to perfection, controlling the tempo and taking away CC's vaunted inside attack.

"It was absolutely the best game we've played all year," Turner said. "I can't remember a better performance. We did exactly what we set out to do. We were patient offensively, their (CC's) press didn't bother us, we wanted our No. 11 to take the ball to the basket and our No. 12 to shoot the three-pointer when he had the opportunity."

No. 11 was 5-10 junior guard Don DeDonatis, who led all scorers with 18 points. He gave CC fits all night long with his spin moves to the basket, challenging the Shamrocks' big people. And No. 12, McGavin, a senior guard, chipped in with 15, including four 3-pointers, the biggest coming at the 11-second mark.

Being co-champs (in the Central) was our No. 1 goal," Turner said. "We didn't want to focus on that (15-point margin), we just wanted to win by one." Two other DeLaSalle players netted double figures including 6-7 sen-

for center Ron Anikewich, who tailied 11, and 6-4 senior guard Craig Abraham, who added 10. "Abraham is an excellent pointguard, but we ask him to guard Kummer, break the press and score, too," Turner said. "If he didn't have so many responsibilities, he could really show his true worth, and I think he's a Division I point-guard."

For the Pilots, it was a victory sweeter in more ways than one.

Wolves tear up Madonna hopes

By C.J. Risak staff writer

The halftime intermission wasn't half over, and there was Bill St. John, coach of University of Michigan-Dearborn's women's basketball team, already standing by his bench.

What was he doing? Why wasn't he where most coaches would be at a time like that, doing what most coaches would be doing — berating his troops after their abysmal performance in the nine minutes prior to the break?

With his team down 38-28, wasn't he a bit distraught? "No," St. John answered without hesitation after the second half was completed and his Lady Wolves had pulled out a 68-62 triumph over Madonna University at Madonna Saturday.

"I know my team," he added. "We try to stay as consistent emotionally as possible. I knew (Madonna) would be emotional because it was a must win for them. I thought if we were within 10 at the half, we'd be in good

"We kept our heads. I told them I thought this was a character win for WHATEVER THE victory did to build the Lady Wolves' ego, it did far more actual damage to Madonna. The Lady Crusaders needed to win to keep their NAIA District 23 playoff hopes alive. Only the top four teams

"It doesn't look like we'll qualify now," admitted Madonna coach Bill Potter. "It would take a huge amount of luck to get in. "If we'd won, we would have been in great shape,"

The loss left Madonna at 5-7 in the district, 7-15 overall. UM-D is already assured of a spot in the playoffs; the Wolves are second in the district at 7-3 and are at .500 overall with a 14-14 mark, the first time they have had a record that good in 15 seasons, according to St.

Despite St. John's lack of concern at halftime, there was no reason to expect such a second half turnaround. Madonna had sparkled over the final 8:41, coming from six points down to eventually take a 14point lead in a 6:45 span - outscoring UM-D 21-1. Jill Burt scored 10 of Madonna's points in that stretch and had 18 in the half.

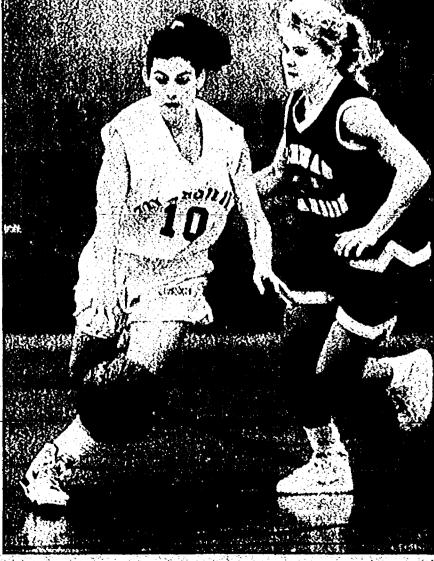

THERE WERE other problems confronting the Wolves as well. They had committed five turnovers and were 1-of-4 from the free throw line, missing the front ends of two 1-andis, during the Crusaders' run, and their best player, Dana Filzek, drew her third foul with 5:46 left in the

But Filzek did not draw another foul, and fouls proved to be the difference in the second half. UM-D reached the bonus with eight minutes left in the game; Madonna never did. Two starters for the Crusaders, Cheri Sangregorlo (with 7:53 left) and Kim Kibbey (with 5:34 to go), fouled out.

We wanted to keep the tempo of the game up, but we couldn't because they kept calling fouls on us and we had to use different personnel," sald Potter, who was assessed a technical foul with 8:05 left in the game..."(The fouls) made us more tentative on defense."

Vitti unsung performer at Saginaw Valley State

Problem is, try as he might, Vitti hasn't been able to carry his Saginaw Valley State basketball team to the lofty heights he treasures.

His coach, Robert Pratt, summed up his feelings regarding Vitti like this: "I think the world of hlm."

WHAT COACH wouldn't? Vitti has been a part of the all-Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference defensive team since he enrolled at SVSU 31/2 years ago. He is a rebounding fiend, averaging 9.2 a game for his career and leading the league this season with a 10.6 aver-

He's currently making nearly 65 percent of his floor shots (his career shooting: 61.2 percent), and he always plays - 106 games thus far, with 103 starts.

Here's a capsule description of Vitti that sums up his attitude toward the game:

For several weeks, he felt tired rebounds, playing 36 of 40 minutes.

and weak. Of course, he kept playing. Then he noticed his weight was Freshmen" are being elevated to a .dropping. When his weight loss reached double-figures — according to Vi(ii, "10 or 15 pounds," — he figured something might be wrong. He went to the doctor. "He said I might have had mono(nucleosis)." said Vitti. Imagine that. But it never occurred to him to stop playing, even though, as he described it, "I was really feeling weak. I mean, I'd go up for a rebound and some skinny guy would bump me and I'd go flying out of bounds."

SO WHY not do what the average human being would do and take it easy for a while? "This is my last year," he answered, almost surprised by such a question. "I'm not going to miss a game."

Said Pratt of his senior co-captain: 'He's a self-made player. He's not the greatest athlete, but he's always there. And he's a gamer.

"Whether he has a sprained ankle or the flu, whatever, you can always count on him."

The only thing that bugs Vitti more than missing a game is not winning one. Which is why he wasn't all-that-ecstatic Thursday after his Cardinals dropped a 69-56 decision to GLIAC-frontrunner Wayne State. Vitti finished with a typical nine points (4-of-7 from the field) and 13

It was SVSU's third-straight GLI-AC loss, taking the Cards from the penthouse - 10 days earlier, they were 6-3 and within a half-game of first - to 6.6 and mediocrity. Six teams have a shot at the four-team league playoffs, including SVSU.

"WE'VE LOST to some teams we should have beat," he said, referring to losses to Lake Superior State (by four) and Oakland University (bythree in overtime). "It's been very frustrating."

It's also frustrating for Vitti to be. the team's leading scorer. He's averaging just 13.6 points a game, and he's the first to admit the team would be better off if someone else stepped forward and asserted himself offensively. "When I score, it's usually off rebounds — garbage stuff," he said.

That's not the kind of attack a team can build its offense around.

The Cardinals' success, more than ever, is predicated on a Vitti-type of game: strong defense and rebounding. They are averaging just 68 points a game, but they are also surrendering fewer than 66.

It would help to have a Vitti-type attitude, too. Asked what his goals for the season are, Vitti replied, "Besides going to the league tournament, I wanted to get 1,000 re-eyes enviously: Extending the season, at least a few games (which means making the playoffs); and making a few free throws.

"If he made his free throws, he'd have the total package," said his coach. Pratt's package includes something other coaches tend to ignore: academics. According to Pratt, Vitti took 17 credits (he has a double major in marketing and management) last semester and recorded a 4.0 grade point.

"He's a premier student, an incredibly diligent worker," the SVSU coach said.

But free throws are Vitti's downfall. He's made just 57 percent this season, a bit better than his career average of 53 percent.

"I've been working on it a lot," Vitti insisted. "But I get into the game and I don't know what happens. I'll make 40 or 50 in a row in practice, but in the game it's an air

It may be his only flaw. His teammates, though, have another - they may tend to depend on Vitti too much. And he can carry them only so

The 5-foot-6 senior was also key figure in helping Franklin to four consecutive Class A district basket- ... ball championships.

She helped form one of the state's most potent backcourt combinations last fall along with All-State guard Dawn Warner.

The two helped Franklin finish 17-6 overall with a near upset of No. 1 ranked Detroit Murray-Wright (69-66 loss) in the regional at Dearborn Edsel Ford.

Schoolcraft men's cagers get past St. Clair

Now this is rolling.

And at the right time, too. Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team put together back-to-back wins in the Eastern Conference for the first time since — well, let's just say it would make a great trivia ques-

The Ocelots can't be considered trivial any longer, not by anybody. They improved to 5-8 in the conference with an 84-81 win at St. Clair CC Wednesday, their second-straight win and third in four games.

final eight points of the game. Trailing 81-76 with less than two minutes left, the Ocelots got a basket and two free throws from Gamal Ahmed to cut the deficit to one. Scott Meredith gave SC the lead with two more free throws, and Jarvis Murray iced it with another pair from the stripe in the closing seconds.

BALANCE KEYED the victory. Four players reached double-figures in scoring for SC, and Jeff Wagner

SC accomplished it by scoring the netted nine. Murray led the parade with 22 points; Ahmed contributed 16, Tony Rumple scored 15 and Meredith had 12 (and seven assists).

St. Clair CC got 19 from Michael Davis, 13 from both Rozier Looney and Javon Basnight, and 11 apiece from Chad Kelly and Steve Ameel.

The win lifted the Ocelots to 12-15 overall. The Skippers slipped to 4-8 in the conference, 5-19 overall.

SC got off to a fast start, thanks to Ahmed and Rumple. St. Clair CC's defenders concentrated on Meredith and Murray inside, so Ahmed and Rumple went to work. The Ocelots led 29-7 midway through the first half, and Ahmed had 10 of those points. The Skippers recovered to close to within 44-33 at the break, but Ahmed had scored 12 points and Rumple 10 by that time.

It took St. Clair CC nine minutes to tie it at 63-all. From then on it was a battle, but SC got tough down the stretch defensively and made its free throws (19-of-23 for the game). -

Senior guard Rick Barnes led Wayne with 16 points and six rebounds. Greg Hartman and Romarco Fletcher chipped in 12 points apiece. Maurice Robinson paced Belleville with 19 points.

JOHN GLENN 58, W.L. CENTRAL 50: Senior guard Micah Orr scored 20 points Friday, including 18 in the first half to lead host Westland John Glenn to the upset victo-

Orr also had five rebounds and five assists as Glenn improved to 7-7 overall and 5-4 in the Western Lakes Activities Association. Walled Lake Central dropped to 12-3 overall and

Glenn was down 9-1 early in the ballgame, before connecting on seven first-half three-pointers, including four by Orr to lead 36-20 at intermission. Center Chris McFarlane led Walled Lake Central with 15 points. Junjor forward Eric Leaf added 12.

NORTHVILLE 65, FRANKLIN 55: Junior center Mike Maschek notched 20 points and senior guard Chris Lehr added 14 points Friday in Mustangs' win on the road. Livonia Franklin dropped to 8-6 overall and 4-5 in the

while Keith Roberts contributed 14. "It was a close game throughout until we had to foul at the end," Franklin coach Rod Hanna said. "We were down by 10 at the half and we cut the lead to four, we had to foul and they Northville was 13-for-17 (77 percent) at the free throw line. Franklin was 10-for-17 (59 percent).

CHURCHILL 70, W.L. WESTERN 50: Livonia Churchill used a 18-3 third quarter run Friday to defeat host Walled Lake Western.

Senior Brian Johnson led four Churchill players in double figures with 16 points. Junior Chris Owens scored 12 points, while seniors Jeremiah Karolak and Marcus Sarnovsky chipped in 11 points apiece.

Churchill improved to 3-11 overall and 2-6 in the WLAA. The Warriors dropped to 3-10 overall and 2-6 in the league. Ryan Bolton led Western with 17 points. Brent Mackowiak added 16.

"They were pressing us in the first ball and we had some trouble with it," Churchill coach Tom Lang said. "We made some adjustments at halftime and it lead to some easy baskets at the start of the second half

"Our quickness and aggressiveness was the difference. They had a hard time matching up with us."

SALEM 69, STEVENSON 49: On Friday, host Plymouth Salem outscored Livonia Stevenson 13-3 in the first quarter run before pulling away for the WLAA win.

Junior guard Mike Slone tied his career high with 20 points, including four three-pointers. James Head (10 rebounds), Bob Schneider and Don Johnson all scored eight points aplece for the victorious Rocks.

Ryan Furkas led Stevenson with 10 points, while Adam Roy . chipped in with nine.

Salem improved to 9.5 overall and 6-3 in the WLAA. Stevenson dropped to 8-6 overall and 4-5 in the conference.

"Stevenson is one of those teams that if they're not hitting the three (pointers), and they're not getting the transistion game going, they have a tough time," Salem coach Bob Brodie said. "We mixed up the defenses quite a bit and it might have thrown them out of tempo. We were pretty steady the whole

HAMTRAMCK 81, CLARENCEVILLE 68: The Cosmos outscored Livonia Clarenceville 22-12 in the third quarter Friday en route to a Metro Conference road win.

STEP ON IT. The Fun Is Back In Aerobics.

This year, over 3,000 health clubs added The Step. Why? Because people are literally waiting in line for the low impact, high intensity workout that's fun. The results are something to smile about too: Hearts are pumping stronger, lungs are breathing deeper, and fat is burning faster. From out-of-shape beginners to well-conditioned athletes, it's the right step.

Free Step Training Video. Fully adjustable, The Step is a shockabsorbing, non-skid platform that uses just 43x16 inches of floor space. This is the same unit used in health clubs nationwide. Don't be fooled by imitations. We've reduced the price, plus included a free 30-minute music workout video. The next step is up to you.

Shamrocks race to league/crown

The Redford Catholic Central ski team lived up to coach Cass Zarlikowski's expectations.

The Shamrocks, who earlier this month won the Mount Brighton Ski Division championship, captured the Southeast Michigan League title Thursday at Mount Holly. CC became champion with 110 points, while West Bloomfield placed second with 142 and Clarkston came in third at 187.

The placing did not surprise Zarlikowski, who believes the Shamrocks can make a similar showing in Thursday's regional at Alpine Valley. The regional is set to start at 9

"I expect them to win," he said. "Anything can happen, but I think we can go all the way this time. I thought they did real well (in the league meet). We're peaking out at the right time."

Among those peaking are senior Steve Witek, who paced CC's run on the slalom course with a fourthplace time of 54.31 seconds. Witek drew support from teammates Jason Darnell, 18th (57.79), Tim Williams, 24th (58.70), Andy Csicsila, 28th (59.07) and Andy Kronk, 29th (59.45).

Both Darnell and Witek placed among the top 10 skiers in the giant slalom race. Darnell was third (44.33) and Witek placed sixth (46.18), while Matt McIntosh took 12th (46.61), Csicsila, 15th (47.23), Williams, 27th (47.58) and Mike Williams, 60th (50.12).

Mike Williams might have fared better had his goggles not fogged up near the end of the course.

"It was like skiing blind-folded," Zarlikowski said of Williams' effort.

THE FARMINGTON HILLS Mercy ski team took seventh place in the girls meet, and to no one's surprise, Nicole Sinclair and Nicole Gable led the Marlins' effort.

Mercy gathered 200 points. Birmingham Marlan won the meet with 63 points, and Bloomfield Hills Andover took second place (172).

Sinclair was third in the slalom race (60.76), and Gable took fourth place (61.62). Sinclair placed second on the glant slalom run (48.36) behind first place Julie Byrd of Marian (46.98).

Gable was third in the giant slalom in a time of 48,48.

The Northwest Suburban, Tri-River and Wolverine A leagues will merge to form one conference with three divisions starting with the 1993-94 school year, Redford Union athletic director Jim Gibbons said

Gibraltar Carlson, of the Huron League, will also be included in the realignment of the new conference, Gibbons said.

Division alignments for each season (fall, winter and spring) have not yet been determined but will be based on enrollment, according to Gibbons. A press conference, announcing the name of the conference as well as further details, is scheduled for later this month at Dearborn High School.

Gibbons is excited about the realignment because it will make scheduling easier for schools, especially those playing in the NSL, a five-team league. RU and Garden City are members of the NSL and often have trouble finding enough nearby non-conference opponents to complete a schedule, Gibbons said.

A TOTAL OF 22 teams are involved in the realignment, meaning there could be at least seven schools placed in each division.

RU in the past has traveled to Waterford and Jackson to play nonconference opponents in football, but will end that commitment after next fall, Gibbons said. RU, however, hopes to continue non-league football rivalries against Livonia Stevenson, he said.

"It's a great idea," said Gibbons, who works on the realignment committee. "It has been very difficult to schedule non-league opponents when all the schools around us are locked into league games. In football we play nine games with only four in the league and we have to find five non-

"I could tell horror stories about having to travel to Jackson for games. And in some of our not-big spectator sports, we couldn't get a

Officials in the Wolverine A were concerned about having some schools in the league compete despite dwindling enrollment against larger schools.

For example, Monroe is the Wolverine A's largest school with a 1991-92 enrollment of 2,170, while Trenton has the least enrollment with 970 students.

Musicians remember Rob Tyner

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

HEIRS WAS MORE THAN just music. MC5 and its leader Rob Tyner sent out a rallying cry in the late 1960s. The echoes of which are still; largely heard today in local music circles.

One need look no further as evidence than to a series of memorial concerts this week in tribute to Tyner, 46, who died Sept. 18 of a heart attack.

The Friends of Robin Tyner have put together four shows, including an eight-band concert "Kick Out The Jams: A Tribute to Rob Tyner," Saturday, Feb. 22, at the State Theatre in Detroit.

The Romantics, Goober and the Peas, Dark Carnival, The Rationals, Loudhouse, The Notorious Johnnys are among those scheduled to perform. Also, rumors abound of possible appearances by members of other national acts in the area Saturday.

An all-star blues jam Thursday, Feb. 20, at Moby Dicks in Dearborn sets off the series. Other shows will follow Friday, Feb. 21, at The Miami and Sunday, Feb. 23, at Alvin's.

A majority of the proceeds will benefit the Tvner Scholarship Fund for his children, son Robin, and daughters, Amy and Elizabeth; with a portion also going to the Center for Creative Studies.

"I think he's some sort of focal point for the Detroit music scene," said committee member Scott Morgan. whose Rationals were also a product of the thriving '60s in Detroit music. "Being the lead singer for the MC5, a lot of people came up in the late '60s and got started in the music business at that time. They know how influential the MC5 were.

"ALSO, THERE is some sort of desire to be part of a community. It never had the opportunity to happen be-

One of Tyner's visions was a unified music scene in Detroit. And he always did his part to foster it.

Aside from the MC5 — whose sound along with Iggy and the Stooges influenced a generation of punk and metal bands - Tyner could later be seen helping out local outfits, such as the Vertical Pillows and the Orange Roughies. He also released a solo effort in 1990 "Blood Brothers," on Troy-based R&A Records trying to rekindle an insurgent spirit that had been seemingly amiss in the scene.

The memorial concerts have evolved into something more than just a gathering to honor Tyner's musical con-

Sire recording artist Primal Scream will do a video performing an MC5 number to be played at Saturday's show. Artist Gary Grimshaw has designed a commemorative poster for the event, which will be presented to Tyner's wife, Rebecca.

The 50 or so people involved in The Friends of Robin Tyner perhaps best mirror the diversity of those affected by Tyner and the MC5s anarchistic sound and vision. Included are a plethora of musicians, radio disc jockeys, concert promoters, club owners and journalists who are normally in competitive situations.

"IN THE course of pulling them all together, a lot of people who had no prior relationship have suddenly found out they could get along with each other," said Ben Edmonds, who is co-chair of The Friends of Robin Tyner with music journalist Stewart Francke. "Which is something Rob always worked for - a unified music commu-

Added Francke: "Everybody is making a statement about how they feel about Detroit rock'n'roll and what it can still do, and Rob's contribution to that."

Rob Tyner was MC5's chief lyricist, but his artistic vision expanded beyond music. He was a gifted graphic artist and involved in poetry.

The idea of a tribute concert came about when a small group of people met after Tyner's death to decide what would be the best way to remember him. Initially, a bill featuring national acts was considered but proved un-

A strong schedule of local acts was deemed more appropriate, seeing that Tyner held a firm belief in the singular strength of the music already here, Edmonds

Edmonds worked closely with Tyner, finishing up a book on the band "No Greater Noise: The MC5 Story" due out in the spring of 1993. The author believes there was no better band live than the MC5 in its heyday of late '60s and early '70s.

A testament is the unbelievable number of bands influenced by the MC5 today, including many in the metal/ thrash explosion in Seattle, Wash., and the UK.

"THE THING that really distinguished the MC5 apart from a lot of the stereotypical peace and love bands of the era they came out of was they reflected a completely different consciousness," Edmonds said. "They were not a hippie band in the classic '60s sense. That's why the darker side they looked at is more attractive to people today rather than the nostalgic flower power stuff.

"They were hated for it. Hate might be too mild a term. They were actively despised in a lot of quarters because it was just too loud, too intense and too aggressive in a time when everybody was lovey dovey."

At the forefront of the MC5's uncompromising stance was Tyner, who was the group's chief lyricist.

Tyner's artistic vision expanded beyond music, Edmonds noted. He was a gifted graphic artist and involved in poetry. But the way he expressed himself made any conversation with him memorable.

"He communicated well with people," said Morgan, who kept in contact with Tyner after the MC5 broke up in 1971 and sang on his "Blood Brothers" release. "He interacted well with a wide variety of people."

Which is understandable since Tyner always had a message to get across.

Future of relationship with Devoted to Dad is up to you

Dear Barbara.

I am a single woman in my early 40s with three teenaged children. I have been dating a man, about the same age as me, for several years. He is a wonderful person both to me and my children.

My problem is this — he has never lived away from home. He lives with his elderly, albeit healthy father and tends to his every need from cooking to laundry to companionship. His mother died several years ago and he seems to have taken over her role where his father is concerned.

He gets no help from his siblings, both of whom are married with familles, but he doesn't ask for any elther. His father is able to do for himself, but no one encourages any independent behavior from him. It seems he has never been able to adjust to the fact that he is a widower. Instead, it's like my boyfriend is his think you are angry that your friend wouldn't approve. I find it hard to understand a man of this age needing parental approval for anything.

I care very much for him, but I feel this situation with his father dysfunctional at the very least and even boarders on unhealthy. I wonder if he'll ever be able to break away and not feel gullty about it. I've tried many times to discuss my concerns with him, but it only results in an argument. I have been accused of being jealous of his father.

I'm beginning to think I'm crazy. Are my concerns about the future of this relationship valid? Do you see this situation as abnormal or am I being overly sensitive? I'm confused. Confused

Dear Confused,

Your concerns about the future of this relationship depend on you. If you need a man and would be better off with one than without one, accept him as he is. You cannot change him and will drive yourself crazy if you try. I have sometimes seen this turn into a macabre situation, where a partner waits for the parent to die.

Of course, in the movies, the father would find a woman to take care of him and you would have the man you want. It is unfortunate, but the movies and reality have little in common. I sometimes think I cry at happy movie endings because I know how rare they are in real life.

Barbara

Dear Barbara,

Last week my neighbor died. She was a 30-year-old woman with two young children, ages 2 and 6.

Her husband brought the 6-yearold to the funeral parlor and to the funeral. That seems so morbld to me. Of course, I didn't say anything to him, but I wonder what do you think. Is 6 too young for a child to attend a funeral?

Dear Kathy, ...

To answer your question, I spoke with David Techner, funeral director at the Ira Kaufman Funeral Home, He is active locally and nationally in educating parents and children on death and funerals. He says the critical aspect of deciding whether a child should attend a funeral is relationship, not age. He has children as young as 3 attending funerals.

I told him that I have always advised parents to ask their child whether they want to attend. He agrees but adds that the child should be properly educated first. He does this by taking the child to the funeral home and walking him through the procedure. He explains where everyone will be sitting and what they will:

He rehearses the child, all the while looking for signs of comprehension and interest. After the tour and explanation, then the child is given a choice. Children are never forced to attend nor are they forbidden to go.

He agrees with you that this is morbid. But the reality is morbid and children, too, must understand reality. A child needs to understand that their parent or other close relative is gone.

Because children are concrete, they need to witness that the body of the loved one is somewhere else and that this is final. Techner says that without the actual witnessing of the event, children are left with questions that are far more confusing and harmful than the morbidity of the reality.

This outlook confirms my experience working with adults who lost parents when they were children. When they were shielded from events and feelings surrounding death, they were less able to go on with their lives. When they were appropriately involved and educated. they felt free to go on.

Beef dish warms cold winter day

It might possibly be the weather. Then again, it is February and spring is still a good seven weeks away.

It's nights like these that make a pot of traditional beef bourguignon so heartwarming. You know what I mean.

I COULD blame it on the howling winds or maybe even the fact that the snow has yet to melt in my driveway from last month's blizzard.

IT'S ON a night like tonight that I uncork a bottle of Gallo Hearty Burgundy, get out my heaviest Calphalon saucepan and crank up the electric blanket to a notch above "7."

I SILENTLY give thanks that the tiny pearl onions have waited to sprout after more than a few weeks in the cellar.

I remember how good red wine is now that it's been proven that a glass or two really is good for the body, and tonight, equally as good for the soul.

Unwrapping the package of tenderloin tips from the butcher, I must remember to applaud his trimming and uniform cutting, leaving me with nothing more to do than brush the mushrooms and peel the vegetables.

AS DARKNESS descends while Bill Bonds does his 5 p.m. newscast, I begin to notice faint signs of frost beginning to form on the bottoms of my elderly aluminum windows.

Before long, the frost is transformed into steam while the beef sizzles in a healthler substitute for butter.

CULINARY PURISTS might question my addition of cooked bacon, opting instead to cook the bacon with the garlic after removing the beef from the pan. Tonight is the night to relish and replenish, certainly not to clean.

Frying bacon is not on my agenda when four minutes between paper towels in the microwave can suffice.

It takes all the strength I can muster just to pare and slice the carrots. Futhermore, back issues of foodle magazines await me under the electric blanket.

Yes, there's a bottle of Stag's Leap Cabernet in the wine rack. But since beef burgundy needs to be kept nary to a simmer, and, since the name is burgundy, we will opt for a 1990 Gallo hearty Red Burgundy.

It was one of those "three for $10" bargains at the corner deli that was impossible to pass up.

THE RECIPE calls for cheap red wine. At just $3.33 a bottle, I can't imagine finding anything cheaper than that.

. While some might not agree, in all honesty, the wine drinks as well as it cooks.

An hour or so has passed and the time to prepare a starch has arrived. Class beef burgundy begs to be presented over a bed of buttery wide noodles.

But I have, on many occasions, enjoyed it over rice, fettuccine, barley and once, with polenta.

FROM EXPERIENCE, you can skip the polenta as it made for a feeling one gets having a gold brick sundae after a two pound lobster dinner. Ditto for

The fettucini was acceptable and the rice was, how do we say it. politely? OK.

Classic beef bourguignon begs to be ladled over wide real egg noodles so that the noodles can stand up to piece of meat and vegetables on nothing less than a full-sized dinner fork.

A salad would have been refreshing but as I snuggled under the blanket with a steaming plate, a full glass, and the TV remote primed for Murphy Brown, I felt a hearty warmth overtake my senses.

Beef burgundy is to winter what ice cream is to summer.

Nearly all regional beverages developed due to an abundance of a given raw material or because the beverage paired so well with the region's food.

Scandinavian aquavit and vodkas are no exception. Vodka and aquavit are primarily associated with northern European countries. They are well suited to the region's hearty fare.

AQUAVIT TRANSLATED "water of life," is the national beverage of the Scandinavian countries and has been considered a cure for various ailments since the 16th century.

Production methods for aquavit are similar in Denmark (where it is called Akvavit), Norway and Sweden, although there are some variations in the proportion of the principal flavoring, caraway seed.

Danes have been producing a nearly neutral, colorless spirit from both grain and potatoes for about 400 years. Today's Akvavit from Aalborg is typical of the Scandinavian favorite drink.

Each potato used in its production has sufficient starch for a single shot. Aalborg makes more than 10 types of potato spirits, using the flavored caraway as well as dill, coriander, bog myrtle, fennel, angelica and

At their inception, Scandinavian vodkas were distilled in primitive alembics from any available carbohy-drates, grains as well as potatoes. They probably had little appeal by today's refined standards.

ALL SPIRITS are perfectly colorless when they run off the still. In whisky, color comes later, by extraction from wooden casks during aging or by addition of try to another and from one producer to another. Bastcally, as in the case with whiskey, the grain is made into a mash, fermented and put through a continuous still.

The distillate is collected at about 190 degrees F. and is almost entirely free of the congeners that impart distinctive flavor characteristics to whiskey.

INGESTION OF these congeners, or flavor elements, also happen to be the root cause of the headache experienced by many people, even those consuming at moderate levels. Died in the wool vodka drinkers claim they never experience headaches. This is not a myth. The headache claim has its basis in scientific fact. Absolut vodka from Sweden is our personal favorite. It has distinctive, yet delicate aromas with substantial body and elegant, sophisticated finish. Finlandia from Finland has slightly more body and flavor than Ameri-

"It keeps forever," said Nayback who stores hers on a kitchen counter in a decorative tin.

The Finns, originally drawn to Michigan by the mining communities up north, are known for their thrift, warmth, hospitality and simple, hearty fare.

Nayback describes Finnish food as "pretty simple, not spicy, that has a tendency to be bland."-

While spice is not a hallmark, there are two that no Finnish cook could do without - allspice and car-

ALLSPICE, WHICH Emma describes as having a nutmeg flavor, is commonly used in Finnish stews, meatballs and cabbage rolls.

Freshly ground cardamom seeds, which grow in small pods like peas, gives Nisu it's unique flavor, Nayback grinds hers in an old coffee grinder.

Emma puts hers in the corner of a dish towel, lays it on a cutting board and whacks it with a hammer. "You get coarse chunks, it gives the bread a good flavor," she said.

Other foods that are typically Finnish include buttered potatoes, sprinkled with parsley, beets, pea soup, a fish casserole made with chunks of salmon, onions, potatoes and milk, and open face sandwiches.

"The sandwiches are like little works of art," said Emma. "A typical sandwich consists of a slice of sour rye bread, topped with a slice of hard salami or ham, cheese and decorated with circles of hard bolled egg, cucumbers, radishes, or tomato, and sprigs of dill."

FINNS ALSO love berries, said Nayback, all kinds - brambleberries, cloudberries, cranberries, blueberries, lingonberries, strawberries and raspberries. After dinner, some Finns like to have a glass of Lapponia, a sweet liquor made with ber-

"During berry season you'll see big bins of them in Finland," she said. "Everything has berries in it, even salads."

This year the Finds are celebrating their 75th anniversary of independence.

As part of the celebration, the Holjakat Folk dancers, who rehearse 7:30-9:30 p.m. every Wednesday at the Finnish Center, will visit Finland July 17 to Aug. 2 to perform.

"Our members come from all over! the metro Detroit area, including Birmingham, Farmington and Southfield," said group member Matt Til-ley of Waterford. "We're always looking for new members. You don't have to be Finnish to join, but you must have an interest in dancing. For information on joining the group, call 478-6939.

TO RAISE money to pay expenses for their trip to Finland, the dancers are having a pasty sale every month through June. The small crusty plea filled with beef and vegetables cost $2.25 each.

On March 3, excerpts of the Kalevala, the national epic of Finland will be recited at the Finnish Center. The poems, composed orally over centuries, were first published in 1835 by Elias Lonnrot, a Finnish country doctor and literary scholar.

Throughout history, the Kalevala has served as a guide to values, traditions, beliefs and customs of the Finnish people. This except from the Kalevala, says a lot about Finnish hospitality.

'Ask the guest to sit, and rest him. With the guest converse in friendship. With thy talk amuse the stranger till dinner shall be ready."

Low fat chicken cooks fast

AP - Sometimes I wonder how we ever survived before the days of ready-to-use skinless, boneless chicken breasts. They need no preparation. They cook fast. Even better, just 12 percent of the calories in a chicken breast comes from fat. To keep the fat low in this 15-minute recipe, cook the chicken in a skillet sprayed with non-stick coating and top each serving with a fat-free sherry-apple glaze.

GLAZED CHICKEN AND GRAPES 4 skinless, boneless large chicken breast halves (about 1 pound total) Non-stick spray coating

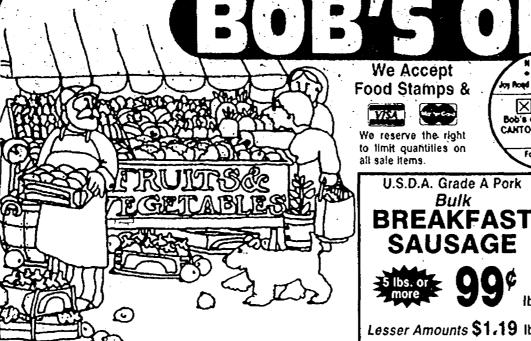

34 cup seedless red grapes 3 parsley sprigs 15 cup apple jelly 2 tablespoons dry sherry 2 teaspoons lemon juice

¼ teaspoon salt

Rinse chicken; pat dry with paper towels. Spray a cold large skillet with non-stick coating. Heat the skillet over medium-high heat. Add chicken to skillet. Cook for 8 to 10 minutes or until no longer pink, turning once during cooking. Meanwhile, cut the grapes in half lengthwise and snip the parsley; set aside. Transfer the chicken to four serving plates; cover to keep warm. For glaze, add apple jelly, sherry, lemon juice and salt to the skillet. Cook and stir until jelly is melted. Stir in grapes and parsley; heat through. Spoon glaze over chicken.

Tasty bananas are a good source of potassium

Happy President's Day to everyone who has today off and is home relaxing.

YOU'VE HEARD the saying "an apple a day keeps the doctor away." Add bananas to the list, They're nutritious, and provide complex carbohydrates, fiber, vitamins and minerals, especially potassium, said Mary Helen Gunkler, registered ' dietitian and staff nutritionist for Total cereal.

Recent studies show a diet high in potassium and low in sodium may help to control high blood pressure. Other potassium-rich foods include tomatoes, oranges, grapefruit and all citrus juices.

IF YOU'RE wondering who to blame for raising prices of fresh tomatoes and other salad vegetables, it's the weather.

According to the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service, cloudy skies and rain over Texas, Mexico and southern California are to blame. Look for prices of carrots and onlons to increase next month as the usual Texas supplies are absent.

But, on the plus side, broccoli and cauliflower are now available at reduced prices. Meat prices, especially poultry and pork are lower too, reports Ada Shinabarger, MSU food marketing specialist.

Here are some food storage tips from Sylvia Treitman, home economist for Oakland County Coopera-·tive· Extension Service. Vacuumpacked deli-meats have to be kept in the refrigerator.

turkey, or roast beef, two to four days; hard salami and dry sausage, four to six weeks. Use all pre-heated cooked foods from the gourmet or deli sections quickly.

Garlic puree boosts the flavor of many foods

PRIME

RIB ROAST..

AP - Creative cooks agree that 1 tablespoon olive or cooking oil garlic boosts the flavor in many non-Italian foods. If you'd like to use fresh garlic more often, but find the chopping too much of a hassle, make your own garlic puree and keep it on hand. Steaming and crushing garlic once to make the puree provides a convenient supply for as long as two

Use garlic puree to make the Garlic Butter, Garlic Croutons and Creamy Garlic Salad Dressing below. Or substitute the puree in almost any recipe calling for garlic. Use 1/2 to 1 teaspoon of the Garlic Puree to replace one clove of garlic.
GARLIC PUREE 8 garlie bulbs

Put garlic bulbs in a steamer basket; place over bolling water in a saucepan. Cover and steam for 30 minutes. Remove bulbs from steamer; let cool. When cool enough to handle, separate and peel the garlic cloves. In a blender container or a food processor bowl, blend or process the cloves until pureed. In a screw-top jar combine crushed garlic, oil and vinegar; cover and shake well to mix. Store, covered, in the refrigerator for up to two weeks. Makes 1/2 cup.

Garlie Butter: In a small mixing bowl stir together 1/2 cup softened butter or margarine and 1 teaspoon Garlic Puree. Use as a topping for hot cooked vegetables such as potatoes, beans and zucchini. Makes 1/2 cup butter. Store in the refrigerator for up to 2 weeks.

Garlle Croutons: Gradually stir 3 tablespoons cooking oil and 1/2 to 1/4 teaspoon Garlic Puree into 1/4 cup softened butter or margarine. Spread mixture onto both sides of eight 1/2-inch-thick slices of French bread. Cut bread into 1/2-inch cubes. Spread cubes in a 15- by 10- by 1-inch baking pan.

Bake in a 300-degree F oven for 20 to 25 minutes or until crisp. Store in a tightly covered container in the refrigerator for up to 1 week. Makes 11/2 cups croutons.

Stir together 1/2 cup dairy sour cream, 1/2 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing, 2 tablespoons milk, 1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese. 1 teaspoon Garlic Puree and 1/4 teaspoon paprika. Cover and chill for up to 1 week. Makes 1 1/3 cups. __

Good-for-you muffins healthy way to start day

AP - Here's a muffin recipe that 4 cup chopped walnuts lives up to its good-for-you name. The fiber-rich fruits and whole grains hiding inside are reason enough to put them on your morning menu, but even more appealing is how low in fat they are. Two more fat-minimizing tips: use egg whites in place of whole eggs and low-fat cooking spray in place of shortening to grease the pans.

GOOD-FOR-YOU MUFFINS

11/2 cups rolled oats % cup whole-wheat flour 1/2 cup all-purpose flour 14 cup packed brown sugar 3 tablespoons oat bran 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon % teaspoon baking soda 1/4 teaspoon salt 5 cup currants or raisins 1/2 cup broken dried banana chips ¼ cup snipped pitted dates

I cup milk 1/4 cup cooking oil 2 slightly beaten egg whites

In a large mixing bowl stir together oats, whole-wheat flour, all-purpose flour, brown sugar, oat bran, baking powder, cinnamon, baking soda and salt; mix well. Add currants or raisins, banana chips, dates and nuts. Stir to coat with flour mix-

In a 2-cup measure combine milk, oil and egg whites. Add milk mixture to flour mixture. Stir just until moistened (the batter should be lumpy). Spray 12 mulfin cups with non-stick cooking spray or line with paper bake cups. Spoon batter into cups, filling cups full. Bake in a 400-degree F oven for 18 to 20 minutes or until light brown. Cool slightly on a wire rack. Serve warm. Makes 12

Stir-fry suppers, those colorful quick-cooking combos of vegetables and meat, poultry or seafood, point the way to light and healthy eating.

WHEN SERVED atop mounds of fluffy rice, they're right on target with nutrition experts' recommendations that we boost carbohydrate consumption to at least 55 percent of daily calories and limit fat to no more than 30 percent.

An excellent source of energy-giving complex carbohydrates, rice contains virtually no fat or sodium' and provides only about 100 calories per satisfying half-cup serving.

WHEN RICE is a bigger part of the daily diet, light and healthy eating is easy enjoyable and, importantly, satisfying.

See for yourself how delicious healthy eating can be with two new savory stir-fry recipes to serve over rice from Uncle Ben's Converted Brand Rice.

STEAK AND Snow Peas Stir-Fry boasts a bright mix of Oriental vegetables and the vivid flavors favored at Chinese restaurants.

Rosemary Chicken Stir-Fry stars all-American flavors and vegetables, and it's ready to serve in only about 15 minutes.

STEAK & SNOW PEAS STIR-FRY 4 pound lean, well-trimmed bone-

- less beef top round steak
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce 1 tablespoon dry sherry
- 1/2 teaspoon sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup rice 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- ¾ cup water 1 can (8 ounces) water chestnuts, drained and sliced
- 1 package (6 ounces) frozen pea pods, thawed
- 2 tablespoons thinly sliced green onions with tops
- 2 tablespoons diced red bell pepper

Freeze meat until slightly firm. Cut diagonally aeross grain into very thin slices; place in shallow baking

Combine 1 tablespoon of the cornstarch, soy sauce, sherry, sugar and salt; pour over-meat. Let stand 30 minutes. Prepare rice according to package directions omitting but-

Just for brides

The Monthly Album is published the third Monday of each month for the announcement of engagements and weddings. All announcements are published on a first-come-first-served backs.

Information sent must be legible and include a daytime telephone number so if there is a question the staff can call.

Photos submitted should, preferably, be black-and-while glossies, 5 by 7 inches in size. Color photos can be submitted and will be accepted, but they do not reproduce as well.

Because of the volume of photographs handled, the newspaper will not be responsible for any that are lost or damaged. Photos can be plcked up after publication in the Farmington Observer office, or if a self-addressed sufficiently stamped envelope is received with the photo, every effort will be made to return it. However, photos do get lost because so many are handled every month. There is just no guarantee the photo will be returned.

Engagement and wedding announcements pertinent to Livonia, Redford, Garden City, Westland, Farmington and Farmington Hills should be addressed to Suburban Life Editor, The Farmington Observer, 21898 Farmington Road, Farmington 48336.

Inquiries are taken by Rose Butler in the Farmington Observer office, 477-5450.

Gowns show the Dior touch

The Christian Dior bridal collection incorporates many of details which have become signature touches of the House of Dior.

The Dior shoulder is accomplished through inset and tallored sleeves. A small shoulder pad helps maintain a smooth line.

All of the gowns feature intricately pleated waistlines. This allows for a large volume of material to be used in the skirts while keeping a slim silhouette. Shirring, commonly used by other designers, adds bulk to the garment.

A shawl is attached at one side of the gown that can either be wrapped and tucked for coverage or draped over the opposite arm as a stole. It can be removed to reveal a strapless bodice.

The rose, the signature flower of the House of Dior, is made from hand-rolled silk. Another signature flower, the lily-of-the-valley, is beaded on silk faille to give it a threedimensional look.

Instead of the traditional veil, the collection offers a small top hat, the poupee hat. Also featured in the couture collection, the poupee is styled to reflect the lines of the gown it matches.
