Senior citizen bus to get lift

☐ Related editorial, 14A

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Amid fierce opposition from senior citizens, the Westland City Council ended a dispute over a recreation tour bus Monday by narrowly voting to add a handleap lift to it.

The controversial 4-3 vote decided the most emotionally overwhelming issue to confront the council in years, city officials said afterward.

Many of the nearly 200 seniors attending Monday night's session at city hall oppose the handicap lift, saying it will reduce capacity on the 41-passenger bus, cause nolsy disruptions and slow down recreational trips. They support a separate bus for the disabled.

Others, accusing the seniors of discrimination, voiced shock, outrage and shame at what they view as efforts to segregate the disabled.

"Do we really believe that the disabled have some disease that we Kenneth Mehl, a handicap lift supporter, asked.

SOME SENIOR citizens booed the council's decision and indicated they will ask for a refund of money they donated for the $150,000 bus. Cries of "I want my money back" could be heard among the crowd.

By contrast, war veterans and several others applauded the declsion. In the front row, three wheelchair-bound men remained virtually silent, occasionally scanning the audience of seniors.

Some handicap lift opponents felt betrayed by a city council that had pledged to spend $75,000 on the bus if seniors raised a matching amount. Concerns about the handicap lift emerged long after the seniors had nearly reached their goal.

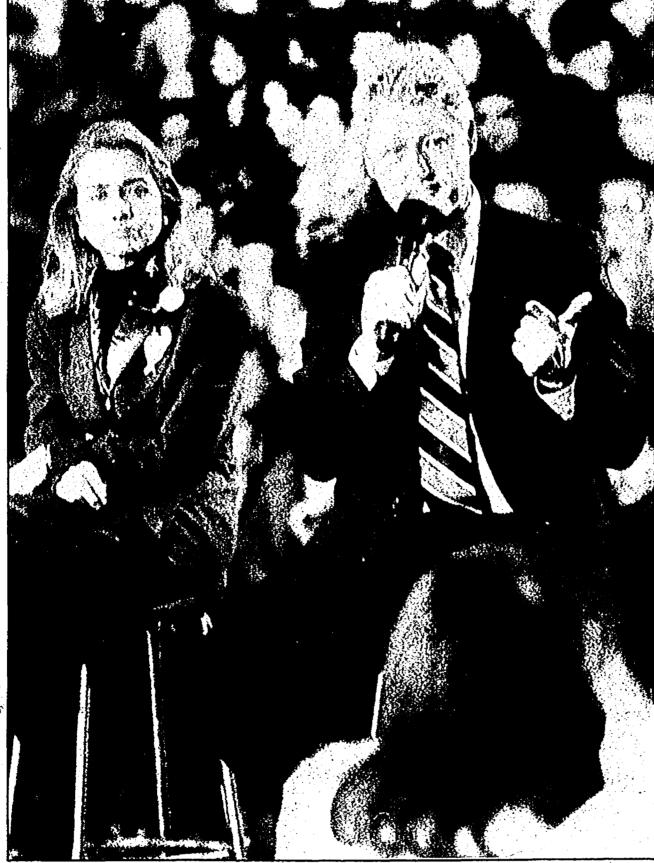

Moreover, many seniors and some council members said the city has always found alternate transportation for disabled people wanting to attend the group trips. Some said the disabled would rather travel in a separate vehicle.

SENIOR AGNES Zidzik suggested that, like disabled relatives of hers, disabled seniors "do not want to be pushed into a situation where they are embarrassed."

Zidzik was among the seniors wanting a refund of donations. The council hasn't yet said whether it will give back the money - or how it would replenish the trust fund for the bus that's already on order.

Seniors who attend programs at the city's Friendship Center on Newburgh, near Marquette, have been the most outspoken against the handicap lift. However, hundreds of senfors who support the lift have recently signed petitions circulated in Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton stormed Wayne Memorial High School on Monday, scoring a decisive victory with students and teachers on his way to winning Michigan's Democratic presidential primary on Tuesday.

Students cheered loudly as Clinton called for an education system "second to none" and promised that his economic policies would provide jobs for a generation worried about its future.

Clinton, accompanied by wife Hillary, came under tough questioning from an informed student body that wanted to know his solutions for improving schools, spurring the economy, fighting drugs and crime, protecting the environment, combating racism and helping the homeless.

Students didn't shy away from personal questions, either, asking about accusations that Hillary Clinton's law firm benefitted from state business in Arkansas.

Greeted by the school band, hundreds of balloons, a huge American flag and placards that read "Wayne 4 Clinton" and "Michigan Wants B.C. in D.C.," Clinton arrived about 1 p.m. and talked with the 1,200-student body for more than an hour inside Alumni Arena.

His address offered a stern warning for students to stay in school if they want to succeed. "If you drop out," he said, "you're signing an economic death war-

Westland voters supported Democrat Bill Clinton and President George Bush in Tuesday's presidential primaries, but a small number of residents walked out of their voting precincts to protest the primary's voting procedures.

With Arkansas Gov. Clinton getting 44.8 percent of the party's vote, slightly less than his statewide total, Jerry Brown, former California governor, came in surprise second with 36.5 percent of the tally, or about eight points ahead of his Michigan total.

Piper's flancee, Sharon Piper, who has the same surname, collapsed in tears in the arms of friends following Archbold's ruling.

"Chuck might have the last word in this yet," she said. "I just pray that justice will be served."

In asking that Morris be bound over for trial, assistant Wayne Counprosecutor Michael Reynolds pointed to court testimony that Morris had threatened to "blow his (Piper's) head off" and "get even."

Piper and Morris had been named in a lawsuit filed by Morris' girlfriend, Sharon Broughton, who claimed that her son, Frank, had been injured in an accident at Chuck's Cycle Service. Other testimony indicated the child, who had been burned, was injured elsewhere.

COURT TESTIMONY revealed that Morris had become worried about the lawsuit and its potential costs. Witnesses also testified that

Morris had planned to open an engine repair shop and that he needed money to get started. Reynolds stressed that Morris knew of a cash box, containing about $3,000, that Piper kept at his motorcycle shop. Moreover, Reynolds noted that Morris had become angry last summer, when he was fired by Piper.

Testimony from Morris' friend Bob Sikes indicated that Sikes had given Morris a .38-caliber handgun two days before Piper was killed by two shots - one in the face and one at the base of his skull. Reynolds and Wayne police believe the same gun was used in Piper's death.

Workers at Chuck's Cycle Service testified that Morris had visited the shop on Jan. 5 - the same day Piper was killed. They said he wore a latex glove, though some acquaintances had seen him wear gloves on previous occasions because of a skin con-

Livonia schools to lay off 12 administrators

By Marie Chestney staff writer

The Livonia school board is facing a storm of protests about program. and staff cutbacks that would chop $11 million from next year's budget.

The first step in the budget-cutting process took place Monday when the Livonia Board of Education, which represents the northern section of Westland, approved layoff notices to 12 administrators, effective June 30.

Decisions on just where the ax will fall have not yet been made. Trustees will publicly discuss the cuts starting at 6:30 p.m. March 30 and 31 at board offices at 15125 Farmington Road. On April 6, the exact cuts should be known when the board approves

BUDGET CUTS could range from $7 million to $11 million, depending on what school aid plan the Michigan Legislature adopts this summer. Right now, next year's deficit is pegged at $7 million.

Each department head has put to-them in priority.

Through letter-writing campaigns, parents of students involved in programs now on the chopping block are asking trustees to wield the ax elsewhere. (see accompanying story);

When the full extent of the cuts are known, some may see the need for a millage increase, said trustee Richard McKnight.

"People are asking if the board is going to go for a millage," McKnight sald. "We're waiting to see what these $7 million in cuts look like. Always it is there as a possibility.

"You don't have to be an idlot to see that increased revenues are a necessity. You don't have to be a 'tax and spend liberal' to see that there

However, at Monday's board meeting, attention was focused on the 12 administrators who became the first victims of next year's budget cutting.

Perhaps this list is larger than the number we'll end up with when this is over," said Superintendeni Joseph Marinelli. "But because of the uncertainties of state policy, we need to have this flexibility."

THE FOLLOWING administrators were laid off:

"This is a terribly unpleasant thing we have to do, unfortunately, as our funds shrink," said board trustee Marjorie Roach. "I hope it won't be as bad as it looks.'

Due to cuts and changes in state funding, the district is expecting at least a $5 million shortfall next year. School officials also want to keep another $2 million in its rainy day fund, to be used for emergencies.

BY ASKING department heads to cut 11 percent from their budgets, the district is preparing itself for two worst-case scenarios.

The first is up to a $4 million loss if the state no longer fully funds Social Security.

The second is up to a $6 million

In this latest example of the "Robin Hood" approach to school financing, Gov. Engler has threatened to cut off both payments to wealthler school districts such as Livonia and send the money to poorer, in-formula school districts such as Redford

"I'm responsible for millions of dollars that have to be cut," said trustee Richard Thorderson. "The irrationality and the irresponsibility of the state draws us to this."

THE TRUSTEES said that educators all across the state, from both in-formula and out-of-formula districts, are beginning to see that nelther side is benefiting from the "Robin Hood" approach to school funding.

"No school district is gaining extra funding, and some are suffering massive losses," McKnight said. "Sophistry (misleading but clever argument) says that tax-base sharing is helping. But in-formula districts are receiving state aid payments late. Having to borrow money eats away at that money. There's a lot of bull being thrown."

Trustee Joseph Laura said the district needs to take an in-depth look at its revenue and ways to raise money. He also said the schools should monitor more closely tax abatement requests made to the Livonia City Council.

Jokingly, McKnight suggested the district could raise money by selling seven million candy bars. Roach sided with Laura.

"There are things we need to do to make money when we don't have it. If we don't get it from the state, we can make an effort to get it else-

The letters begin politely.

We know you have the noxious task of cutting the Livonia school district's budget next year, the writers say. We know this is a tough task.

But we want you to know that we moved into the district, which includes the northern section of Westland, because of its top-rated schools. And we want you to know about a program that has helped (or is helping) our child (children).

Please don't cut it. THE LIVONIA Board of Education has about two weeks before it makes some of the most difficult decisions it has made in years. And in that time, the pleas to save our-program are expected to continue to pour into the district. Many letter writers so far have backed programs for gifted children. "You have a nationally recognized program," writes the Brodericks.

Others, such as Kathy Petersen back the arts.

"My major concern is that, with the emphasis today on test results in math and language arts, programs in visual arts and music will be sacrificed, and in cutting these programs from the curriculum, overall education will be sacrificed," Petersen wrote.

Karen Crowe of wants to save instrumental music. "The possible elimination of the fifth and sixth grade instrumental program is not acceptable as a solution to budget problems," Crowe wrote.

Joanna Fornell backs both the arts and instrumental music programs.

"I believe a well-rounded education is vital to our children's future," Fornell wrote. "Nurturing potential artists and musicians and creating culturally literate future citizens ranks just as high in importance as the

"To eliminate art or music is to trample the seedlings of the creative force of the 21st Century. If science and math are the brain cells of a nation, then art and music

DEBBIE STOOPS took district officials to task for approving a 6.4-percent pay raise for teachers at a time when some Livonia residents are losing their jobs.

"It is important for you to consider that along with the belt tightening process, if educational programs are going to be cut or reduced, there is a need to look at the type of salary settlements that have been given to employees," Stoops wrote.

She called 6-7 percent pay hikes "unrealistic in today's economy.'

"The taxpayers who help pay these salaries are not receiving these types of increases. In fact, many of them are simply grateful just to keep their jobs with no increase in salary at all."

And another writer, Brenda Sequin, took the school's budget crunch as a chance to lash out at how taxpayer's money is being spent today by government entities across the nation.

She especially lashed out at the "Robin Hood" approach to school financing.

"There are many people who scrimp and save and work two or more jobs to be able to live in (the school district) and other secure, safe and educationally superior areas," Sequin wrote.

Seniors boo as lift for tour bus is OK'd

Carol Denton, an Abington Manor employee, presented the petitions to the council on Monday. "To hear those people who were in favor of the liftgate for the bus be booed by the able-bodied seniors was something that is unimaginable to anyone with a sense of moral responsibility, and who truly cares about the wellbeing of others in the community," she said.

City Attorney C. Charles Bokos issued an opinion Monday stating that, if the city didn't provide a handicap lift on the bus, it must provide alternate transportation with "equivalent service" - an American Disabilities Act term that hasn't been tested in court. Even Bokos conceded that federal transportation officials have given conflicting opinions on the law.

Some city officials fear ignoring the handicap lift would invite a potentially expensive lawsuit.

IN MONDAY'S action, the council voted 4-3 for a budget amendment of $5,000 to pay for the handicap lift. The North Carolina company making the bus will be notified.

Council members supporting the lift include Kenneth Mehl, Sharon

Scott, Thomas Brown and President Charles Pickering, who changed his earlier stance and apologized Monday for "unintentional discrimina-tion" toward the disabled.

"I am entitled to change my mind," he said. "I think I'm man enough to stand up and say, 'I made a mistake.' And I did." Council members Glenn Anderson, Sandra Cicirelli and Terri Reighard-Johnson voted against adding the lift, saying they believe they had to keep the earlier promise to seniors who raised money. "It's very unfair for us to let people work for almost two years and then come up with (the handicap lift) now," Reighard-Johnson said. Pickering warned the city could face more issues as it implements the American Disabilities Act for the disabled. 'It's their civil rights act,'' he said.

"is the tip of the Iceberg."

Local teens give Clinton good grades

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Jeff Robertson, a Wayne Memorial High School senior, hadn't decided which presidential candidate he'd support. Then Bill Clinton came to town — more specifically, to Robertson's school.

"He's worth a shot," the 18-year-old said, before taking a slap at President George Bush. "What we've got right now is worse."

Wayne Memorial stood proudly in the limelight Monday as Arkansas Gov. Clinton and wife Hillary visited the 1,200-student school for a rally, during a swing through southeast Michigan on the eve of Tuesday's presidential primary.

"This is a big boost for us," Wayne-Westland school board member Vicki Welty said.

Senior Glen Dare, Wayne Memorial Student Senate president, introduced the Clintons, who waved as applause filled the Alumni Arena, near Glenwood and Fourth Street in Wayne. The school band chimed in with patriotic songs.

"I was very impressed," said 10th-grader Leslie Williams, 16. "I think Governor Clinton would make a great president. He seems concerned with the United States and what's going on with the children."

Students commended Clinton, a Democrat, for his pro-choice stance on abortion and his pro-education policies, among other issues. He appeared to win support for his strong rapport with students, who posed numerous questions.

"I THINK his answers were thorough," said Jim Chon, a 17-year-old senior. Still, Chon remained unsure of his choice for the presidency.

At one point, Clinton and his wife mingled with students and gave autographs. Taking their time to talk one on one, they seemed to ignore campaign workers who appeared intent on rushing them to the next destination.

Most students interviewed by the Observer gave Clinton an "A" grade in his quest for the presidency.

"I'd give Hillary an 'A' too," said student Kas Butler of Westland.

Clinton's staff contacted school officials over the weekend to arrange the rally. Deputy Superintendent Thomas Svitkovich called Wayne Memorial Principal Ronald Stratton, and teachers learned of the pending visit during a "fan-out" of telephone calls.

But the visit came as a surprise to students, whose response was applauded by teachers.

"THEY WERE just great," Chris Bak, a physical education teacher, said. "(Clinton) really made them think. He encouraged them to continue with their education."

Bak commended the students for their behavior. They not only gave the Clintons a warm welcome, but also a standing ovation at the rally's conclusion.

"I just want to go to all the students and shake their nands," Bak said.

At one point, Clinton was interrupted by several hecklers who accused him of ignoring AIDS issues. Clinton later said his national health care proposal addresses AIDS.

The demonstrators weren't students, but members of ACT UP (AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power) who have been confronting presidential candidates across the nation. Security forces ushered them from the arena as they yelled, "Condoms in schools!"

CLINTON'S VISIT was arranged hastily after his campaign staff contacted school officials over the weekend. Some observers hoped that Clinton would fare better than the last presidential candidate who came to Wayne Memorial — Democrat Walter Mondale in 1984.

Clinton outlined numerous programs Monday and said he'd pay for them, in part, by gradually reducing the defense budget and using the money to "reinvest in the country."

money to "reinvest in the country."

Among the issues at Monday's rally were:

• Hillary Clinton's law firm. Clinton said Democratic candidate Jerry Brown "should be ashamed" for suggesting his wife benefitted from state contracts in Arkansas.

Hillary Clinton told students, "You saw a desperate man. You saw a man who's stretching really hard to try to save his presidential campaign."

• Corporate tax breaks. Clinton lashed out at Bush for cutting corporate taxes and helping wealthy executives who made decisions that "led to fewer jobs and lower incomes." He vowed to provide tax incentives only for companies that invest in American jobs, and he promised to help U.S. Industries become more competitive.

• Education. Clinton said he favors setting up a trust fund to let qualified students borrow money for college. They would repay it with their future income or by donating one or two years of community service in their professions.

To aid the non-college bound, Clinton called for a two-year apprenticeship program in which the government and employers would share the cost.

• Health care. Clinton reiterated his support for a national health care plan and said, "We have to have Abortion. He drew strong applause from students when he said,

 "I think it should be the choice and the decision of the individual."

• Drugs. Clinton called for "drug treatment on demand" and suggested setting up "boot camps" where offenders could receive help and, hopefully, avoid prison. "Give them a chance to live the kind of life we want them to live, first," he said.

Nuclear weapons. Clinton wants the United States to help the former Soviet Union — now the Commonwealth of Independent States — dismantle its arsenals. He also said nuclear weapons must be kept from such leaders as Iraq's Saddam Hussein.

 Racism. "Unless we can come together across racial lines, we're never going to revitalize this country's economy," he said. As Arkansas governor, he said he has appointed more blacks to jobs than all of the state's former governors combined.

Welfare. Clinton suggested investing more in education, job training and child care — moves that would foster "opportunity plus responsibility" for welfare recipients. Such a plan could help solve the homeless problem, too, he said.

• Gun control. Clinton suggested checking the criminal and mental health history of gun-permit applicants. He also called for more efforts to rid schools of weapons.

If school violence isn't curbed, he said, "It's going to kill this country."

The gym at the Wayne Memorial High School Alumni Arena was jammed as Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton and wife Hillary brought his campaign to the western Wayne County suburbs

Monday.

Livonia schools, Ford boost career programs

By Marie Chestney staff writer

The Livonia school district, which represents the northern portion of Westland, and Ford Motor Co. have forged a new partnership that will give Career Center students a boost in getting a good technological job.

To gain job knowledge, students in programs such as computers, accounting, word processing, auto technology and electronics will soon be "shadowing" workers at the Ford Transmission Plant at Levan and Plymouth in Livonia.

"Ford is gung-ho about the program," said center spokesman Denny Vince.

Ford and school officials signed the partnership contract Monday for a program that will benefit both Ford and the Career Center, on Newburgh north of Joy.

Through on-the-job experience, the center will be able to enhance the education of students.

And Ford will help put into the workforce students who glimpse the inner workings of industry and are better prepared for the workplace of the future.

tion," said Karl Watler, transmission plant manager. "What we're doing is making students aware of what's required. We also want to get people interested in the field of technology, to increase our pool of future workers."

Many Career Center students who "shadow" Ford workers will further their education in such fields as engineering and computer technology and then come back to Ford to apply for a job, Watler said.

Other students who don't go on to college might get into Ford through an apprenticeship program, Watler said.

"Technology can be at any level," Watler said. "Right now, we're not hiring directly into the plant but are now recalling people who are on layoff. But sooner or later, we will be hiring."

the advantage. On top of funding operations essential to lawmaking, the bill provides each member with many hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of staff and support services, which typically are used to advance political fortunes as much as to conduct: official business.

Scandals during 1991 deprived House members of their bounceproof brand and see-no-evil credit politics at their Capitol restaurant. But the congressional budget remains fat with perks.

It funds on-site doctors' care and low-premium, taxpayer-subsidized healthcare plans; domestic and foreign travel, where the line is blurred between work and play, parking comes free at National Airport; expense accounts liberal enough to reimburse all that can be claimed as official business; and many more privileges that set lawmakers apart from the way most of their constitu-

The bill allots House members $537,480 in payroll for up to 22 personal staff aides. That figure is nearly $62,000 or 12 percent, higher than the $475,000 allotment in effect at the end of 1990.

It gives senators a staff payroll increase of between $42,000 and $165,000. The average senator has 41 personal aides paid $1.86 million annually with specific totals varying

The fiscal 1992 house budget provides $80 million for members' free postage. In this year of congressional redistricting, the franking allowance of about $176,000 per member will help incumbents to promote themselves in new territorities at taxpayers expense. The Senate postage figure is $32 million, an average of $320,000 per senator.

Here are the issues that make up the 1991 Comfort Index votes show on the accompany chart.

• To cut mail costs: By a vote of 198-277, House members refused to cut the outlay for their postage from $80 million to $59 million (HR 2506; June 5, 1991).

• To curb spending growth: By a vote of 171-255, the House refused to trim 1.4 percent from the 1992 legislative branch appropriations bill. The proposed cut did not address Senate funds. (HR 2506; June 5,

• To pass congressional budget: The House voted 308-110 to pass the 1991 legislative branch budget of nearly $1.81 billion. Senate funds of about $500 million were added later. (HR 2506: June 5, 1991).

• To approve committee budgets: The House voted 363-58 to approve a $60.8 million measure to fund about half the cost of its 180 committees and subcommittees in calendar 1991. (House Res. 92; March 20, 1991). • To close house bank: The House probe an auditor's finding of large checks bounced without penalty. (House Res. 236; Oct., 3, 1991). • For spending growth: By a 56-

The Senate killed, 55-41, an amendment to freeze committee staffs at the 1990 complement of 1,203 (Senate Res. 62; Feb. 28, 1991.).

to trim spending on its 19 commit-lion in fiscal 1992-1993. (Senate Res.

 To approve committee budgets; The Senate voted 72-22 to approve a fiscal 1991-1992 committee budget that was up 6 percent over 1989-1990. (Senate Res. 62; Feb. 28, 1991).

. To raise senators' pay: By a vote of 53-45, senators raised their pay from $101,900 to $125,000 and renounced honoraria as an income supplement (HR 2506; July 17, 1991).

Board tunes out TV coverage

By Marie Chestney staff writer

An attempt to televise school board meetings fizzled Monday at the Livonia Board of Education despite the efforts of a Livonia city councilman.

But one school board member questioned how meetings would be aired in Westland, which is served by Continental Cablevision, The northern section of Westland is in the Livonia district. (The Wayne-Westland school district started taping its meetings last week for board members' review. The public cablecasting will start in the near future.)

Livonia Councilman Ron Ochala struck out when he asked the board, which represents the northern section of Westland, to consider cablecasting weekly school board meetings on MetroVision.

By a 4-3 vote, the school board agreed to put the issue on the back burner and not seek additional information on how the costs of cablecasting could be borne.

UNDAUNTED, OCHALA said he intends to ask his council colleagues at a March 23 study session to back a resolution urging the trustees to reconsider last week's board

"This is not buried, just shelved," Ochala said. "I have strong feelings on this issue.

"The time has come for the board to televise their meetings and I hoped they would exercise their leadership and do it. I was received politely, but I heard one school board member say the school board tries not to tell the city council what to do."

The estimated $21,000 cost of cablecasting the meetings at a time when the district is grappling with a $7 to $11 million deficit influenced some board members to vote against it.

"In our present financial condition, this is not a priority," board trustee Marjorie Roach said. "With so many cuts, the community might perceive that this is money spent unwisely."

Another board member, Joe Laura, who has pushed for cablecasting, said the estimated $21,000 price tag could have been whittled almost to zero by paring the list of equipment needed to the absolute minimum and by sharing equipment owned by Metro-Vision, which serves Livonia.

"There's 100 ways to skin a cat, to get the cost down to close to zero," Laura said. "But they have 101 excuses why they don't publicly want to go on TV."

Ochala said he offered the district the use of city equipment and trained city person-

THE LIVONIA City Council cablecasts both its study sessions and voting meetings live on alternate Mondays and Wednesdays. Some planning commission meetings also are televised on MetroVision.

City officials have often lamented that the spotlight gets put on city government and its $38 million budget while the district's $100-plus million budget goes unnoticed.

School board trustees James Watters, Pat Sari and Joe Laura voted to seek additional cost information on cablecasting.

Trustees Richard McKnight, Richard Thorderson, Roach and Pat Tancill voted against pursuing the question any further.

Right now, school officials are grappling with the biggest deficit to hit the district in years and have put together a list of possible cuts.

If Monday's school board committee meeting had been cablecast, viewers would have gotten the latest information on just where the cutting process now stands. They also would have heard discussions on the School Age Child Care (SACC) program, the recently passed $62.1 million bond issue, high school athletics, and the cablecasting issue.

THORDERSON SAID he believed cablecasting would be a turnoff in attracting 'quality" people to run for a seat on the school board.

"One of the things that happens is they get hassled by the public," Thorderson said. "If we have a TV forum, we'll have people coming here with every crazy idea. This will make it less attractive for potential school board members. This should not be a forum for politicians.'

Thorderson, who is not seeking re-election in the June 8 school board election, called the cablecasting of school board meetings a "good idea whose time has nev-

Livonia changes varsity jacket policy

By Marie Chestney staff writer

It's now official. All Livonia school district high school students who earn a letter in school activities can now wear that letter on the school's varsity jacket.

It's a big victory for a group of Churchill students who pressed the board of education to change a guideline that the students called discriminatory.

Before Monday, only athletes at Churchill, which serves the northwest corner of Westland, could wear their earned letters on varsity jacket.

The students, members of Churchill's

Marching Band, couldn't, and they protested to the school board.

On Monday, Superintendent Joseph Marinelli announced new guidelines that will apply to the three high schools. Franklin High serves the northeast corner of Westland.

"Others preferred the status quo but felt they could live with the new recommendations," Marinelli said. "There may be some resistance from athletes who in the past have only been able to wear the jacket. But I think that it's a fair and equitable propos-

Marinelli agreed with recommendations made by Churchill principal Rodney Hosman, Franklin principal Michael Fenchel, and Stevenson principal Dale Coller.

"If a school chooses to award an allschool letter as a result of participation in many co-curricular and other activities, students who earn that letter will be eligible to display it on a school letter jacket identical to the one worn by varsity athletes," Marinelli said.

Hosman admitted some Churchill athletes might feel they are getting "the short end of the stick."

He also praised the Churchill students for 'doing a good job" in getting a school procedure changed.

"Anytime that students can learn by doing, that's beneficial."

AN OPEN LETTER TO HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS AND THEIR PARENTS

As part of our continuing commitment to community service, we want to help high school students select courses which will prepare them for academic success at Wayne State University.

Recommended Course of Study

1. ENGLISH (4 years recommended)
Students entering the University should be able to (1) understand the main and subordinate ideas in written works, lectures and discussions; and (2) conceive ideas about a topic and organize them for presentation in verbal and in written forms, using standard. English sentences. Effective use of the English language is central to one's ability to succeed at the University and in the professions and occupations for which our students are pre-

2. MATHEMATICS (4 years recommended) Entering students should be able to (1) add, subtract, multiply and divide using natural numbers; (2) use the mathematics of integers, fractions and decimals; (3) understand ratios, proportions, percentages, roots and powers; and (4) perform the mathematical operations of algebra and geometry. Most careers for which University students are preparing require mathematical competency, and an increasing number of careers in the science and technical curricula require advanced preparation in mathematics.

3. BIOLOGICAL AND PHYSICAL SCIENCES (3 years recommended) Students should be acquainted with (1) concepts of matter, energy, motion and force, and the natural laws and processes of the physical sciences in general; (2) the science of life and living matter with special attention to growth, reproduction and structure; and (3) laboratory methods. A basic understanding of the physical and biological sciences is essential for many fields of University study, and is necessary if one is to comprehend our world and the impact of science and technology on it.

Students should study different cultures and societies-their social systems, customs, communities, values, economics, governments and politics. Knowledge of the major events and ideas that have shaped our nation and its place in the world is a necessary foundation for college study in several subjects. Students should be able to make inferences about how the past affects the present and future course of the world. The social sciences, by teaching the use of critical analysis, develop an understanding of society and current events that is essential for an informed citizenry in an open society.

4. SOCIAL SCIENCES/HISTORY (3 years recommended)

tunities denied to those without it.

5. FOREIGN LANGUAGES (2 years recommended)
Proficiency in a foreign language not only introduces students to non-English speaking countries but also heightens awareness and comprehension of one's native tongue. Language is the basic instrument of thought; the ability to read, speak and write a foreign language permits one to understand another culture in a more fundamental way. Foreign language competency will open up career oppor-

6. FINE ARTS (2 years recommended) Students entering the University should be acquainted with the visual and performing arts through study and/or participation. Several academic disciplines at the University require high levels of skill in the arts. Study in this area enriches life and heightens one's sense of beauty and aesthetic perception.

7. COMPUTER LITERACY Some formal instruction in the logic and use of computers in problem solving and data retrieval is increasingly important in all fields of study.

We suggest that this letter be clipped from the newspaper, and we urge students to review and discuss these recommendations with their parents and school counselors as they develop plans of study for high school. # Kelley announces bid for sheriff

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Keyln Kelley is throwing his hat - and everything else - in the ring in his challenge to Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano.

Kelley, 33, is giving up his $43,000plus seat on the county commission to run against Ficano in the Aug. 4

Democratic primary.
"With my background in government at all levels, I feel I can bring a lot to the job," the Redford resident

Kelley said he expects to mount a "six-figure" campaign against the two-term incumbent.

"We're going to be aggressively seeking endorsements from police groups and union groups," Kelley said. "This is going to be an active Democratic primary."

the county deputies' union, is "carefully considering" Kelley, union president Don Cox said.

"We'll take it to the membership at the end of the month," he said. .

The union has been at odds with Ficano for filling vacancles on his administrative staff, rather than using the money on training and equipment for jail deputies.

Kelley criticized the sheriff for being "more involved with politics than with policy".

"ONE THING I've learned from my father (longtime Detroit councilman Jack Kelley) is that if you take care of your job, the politics will take care of itself," he said. "I think the sheriff looks at things the other way."

running on them," Ficano said.

Redistricting gave Kelley a moreheavily Republican commission district. The announcement came only days after the state Suprmeme Court agreed to hear his appeal.

"People have said I was crazy to announce without waiting to hear what was going to happen with my (commission) district," Kelley said.
"But I've made a commitment to a lot of people, there's no going back."

As a commissioner, Kelley has generally supported Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara. Kelley said he plans to seek McNamara's endorsement KELLEY IS chairman of the commission Public Safety Committee, overlooking sheriff's department spending. He has served on the county commission since 1989 after previously having been Redford deputy supervisor.

Kelley earlier had served on the staff of state Rep. Curtis Hertel, D-Detroit, and former state House Speaker Gary Owen.

He holds a master's degree in public, administration from Western Michigan University and a bachelor's in political science from Central Michigan University.

'With my background in government at all levels, I feel I can bring a lot to the job,'

New call service offers access without listing in phone book

For $1.25 a month, Michigan Bell customers now can choose to allow Information operators to give out their telephone numbers to callers but remain unlisted inthe telephone directory.

Bell's "semiprivate listing" service started last week.

'We're happy to offer customers this option, which offers the privacy of not listing their numbers in the directory, but gives access to their numbers through Information," said Pat Black, product manager for listing services.

Black said neither "semiprivate" nor "private listing" service (non- published) would prevent customers' numbers from being displayed when they call businesses - such as mail-order firms or credit card companies - with automatic number identification.

Similarly, semiprivate and private listings will be displayed if the customer calls someone who has "caller ID" service and a number display device.

Black said customers can block display of their numbers to "caller ID" subscribers by pressing a code before they make each call. The code is star symbol 6.7 on a touchtone phone, or 1-1-6-7 on a rotary

There is no charge for caller ID call blocking, and customers 'do not have to order the per-call blocking feature. Blocking can be activated whether or not a customer subscribes to caller ID service.

No tears 'Farewell' leaves sour note

ON'T EXPECT a barrel of tears on the have ended the statement on that note. announced political retirement of Kathleen Chorbagian, who served on the Wayne-Westland school board for 91/2

She said last week she would not seek a third term at the June.8 election, for which the filing deadline is three weeks away.

Chorbagian has, indeed, made contributions to the school district in her first two terms.

But the political and community dynamics have changed and apparently she didn't.

It's no crime to be a cheerleader for the district when things are going well. But it's time to change gears when there are serious financial and board relations problems.

IN HER POLITICAL farewell statement, Chorbagian really had two distinct and contrasting messages. One was positive in which she reflected about her service on the board. She should Instead, she ran off at the mouth and made caustic comments about Steve Lind, leader of a campaign to recall Chorbagian and two other board members, and to a lesser degree, David Moranty, a critic of the board/administration policies and actions.

In her earlier years on the board, Chorbagian was a positive force in developing the school district. But like others who previously served on the board of the second-largest district in the county, she resented others who had a different point of view.

When three board incumbents were soundly defeated in last June's election, Chorbagian never accepted the change, continuing to fight a battle that was long over.

It's too early to know of the candidates who will campaign to replace her, but it should be a

Bus lift a victory for disabled

right thing Monday night in approving a lift for a senior citizens' bus to allow handicapped persons to enjoy the same privileges as others.

While the Observer questions why the city hesitated about the request from the first, officials are to be commended for seeing the light — both from a human rights and legal perspective.

The dispute surfaced when non-handicapped seniors protested the addition of a lift to their field trip bus. The lift would allow persons in wheel chairs to use the bus for field trips.

Protesters should be ashamed of themselves for showing in public their bias toward those in wheelchairs.

Those who supported the addition of a lift warned the council at a noisy meeting last week that they may sue the city if the lift isn't provid-

LEGALLY, THE supporters were on the right track. There are federal and state laws which

HE WESTLAND City Council did the prohibit discrimination against disabled persons in housing, employment and transportation..

The chance of a suit is now academic in the wake of the council's approval of the lift. But it was clear that the legal expenses of defending itself in a civil suit may have been more than the cost of the lift itself.

The larger issue is the attitude of persons toward the disabled.

Those attitudes go back to when handicapped persons were viewed by others as "different" and a group which should be kept out of sight and out of mind.

What utter nonsense.

People are people and are entitled to all the benefits of public programs and services without regard to race, religion, national origin or physi-

Non-disabled seniors should be more considerate. One day, they may also be in a wheelchair, anxious to enjoy the same quality of life as

Act now Make assisted suicide illegal

HE ARRANGED deaths of two women in an Oakland County park and the subsequent charges of open murder against Dr. Jack Kevorkian have brought the debate over the ethics and legality of assisted : suicide back to the courts.

But Michigan legislators still have not passed legislation to address assisted suicide as separate from murder. And unless they do, the courts could be seeing a lot of Dr. Kevorkian or others who insist that assisted suicide should be legal.

The Legislature has come up with two bills that specifically address assisted suicide as a four-year felony, not murder. Legislators should adopt those bills into law, with a few changes, and soon.

THERE IS precedent for making assisted suicide a crime distinct from murder. Laws similar to bills working their way through both chambers in Lansing are already on the books in 22 states.

The proposed bills make it a felony punishable by up to four years in prison and a $2,000 fine to intentionally provide the means by which another could commit or attempt to commit suicide. Anyone who knowingly or intentionally causes another to commit suicide, by force or duress, would be guilty of murder under the bills.

The major flaw of the bills is that they would consider withholding medical treatment under direction as assisting a suicide. That practice is currently allowed under right-to-die statutes and should not be changed. An assisted suicide law should address the fundamental differences between murder and "mercy killings" while addressing the legitimacy of an individual's right to commit suicide if he or she so chooses.

SUICIDE IS not a crime in this country, but many other states have already recognized that bringing another person into the picture is dangerous because it forces that person to take responsibility for another's death. There is a large body of psychological literature that suggests sulcide assistance may well be a response to coercion and manipulation exerted by the suicide "victim" against the assistant. A relative or friend of someone in great physical pain could be made to feel guilty or responsible for the plight of that person and could be coerced into helping that person commit suicide.

The argument that a "qualified" assistant, such as a doctor, could make sure nothing goes wrong with a suicide has two flaws. It qualifies someone to validate a judgment that only the individual can make. And it presumes that with such an assistant the suicide could not be botched. There is no reason to believe an assisted suicide couldn't go wrong. If it did, the assistant might make sure the act is completed. That action would become something other than assist-

LEGALIZING ASSISTED suicide would obscure the differences between murder and suicide. If there were only two people involved and one of them dies, there are no other witnesses and determining whether there was an assisted suicide or a murder would be next to impossible.

Opponents argue that such a law would punish someone, for instance, who intentionally leaves a bottle of sleeping pills out at a spouse's direction to make the suicide easier.

The law would make it up to a four-year crime. Circumstances, however, could warrant a lighter sentence.

The House is also considering a bill that would create a commission on suicide and one that would make assisted suicide legal. These would both do great harm.

CREATING A commission would only serve to put off a decision with no sure prospect that, after some length of time (the bill suggests two years), there would be some recommendation concerning the question. The Legislature has already wasted too much time and must address assisted suicide now.

The bill to legalize assisted suicide would have doctors determine the medical condition and life expectancy of someone asking to die. That is contrary to the position taken by the Michigan State Medical Society, which says "Physicians must not perform euthanasia or participate in assisted suicide."

The Legislature should pass a sensible law making assisted suicide illegal and do it soon. Otherwise, the state could become a mecca for anyone and everyone wanting help to commit

Recession to change auto industry, labor

LAST WEEK I suggested the closure of Willow Run symbolized the fundamental changes now shaking the core of Michigan's political econ-

Aggravated by the recession, the basic changes now shaking the American auto industry will in time redefine the relationship between our state's two most powerful institutions: the Big Three and organized labor.

Because Michigan's economy is being transformed, so too will our

GOV. JOHN Engler, Michigan's first radical governor since G. Mennen Williams was elected in 1948, seems to understand this.

Engler argues that because our economic base is crumbling, Michigan is no longer a wealthy state with high personal incomes. The state cannot, therefore, afford to sustain its historic level of government activity at an overall tax burden that citizens are willing to accept.

The policies adopted by the Engler administration follow logically. Slash government programs to cut costs, especially now that the recession has cut income so drastically. Focus what government can spend on education in order to make Michlgan more competitive at home and abroad. Cut taxes, especially those on real proprety, to improve the climate for business growth.

Informed by a conservative ideology that holds that government is always the problem and never a solution, Engler's prescription for a state in turmoil is classic supply side

As part and parcel of the fundamental readjustment in Michigan's political economy, our current political system will have to change, too.

FOR DEMOCRATS, the best news is Gov. Engler's policies are more popular than he is. Some are even beginning to realize that ceaselessly calling the governor "mean-spirited" does not itself constitute a credible policy alternative.

Beginning with State Rep. William Keith's underreported set of hearings on how to improve the skills levels of those who leave school and thereby Michigan's economic competitiveness, Democrats are developing an agenda built around the idea of "government as investor."

Instead of spending money solely on income supplements, insist that it be accompanied by job training. Instead of giving expensive real estate tax breaks to employers, find out what skills they need and get the K-12 system to provide them. In the words of a bishop friend of mine, "Instead of giving a hungry man a fish, give him a fishing rod and teach him to fish."

This process will take a while, if only because the components of the Democratic coalition are less coherent than the Republicans, and getting agreement from them takes time. But now there is some chance for a genuine policy debate by the time we elect a governor in 1994.

Philip

BOTH PARTIES, however, are going to have to realize that in politics, as in economics, it cannot be "business as usual." Current fear and loathing of the political system as it presently works is higher than I have ever seen it.

Most folks believe (correctly, in my view) that the political system is largely designed to serve the interests of a bunch of professional politicians, interested mainly in getting (re)elected, bought and paid for by money from the special interest

Speak to some thoughtful political insiders, people who have devoted years to public service, and you get the sense that they, too, agree. But they don't know how to change from inside the system that has sustained them for so long.

They'd better think fast. As part and parcel of the fundamental readjustment in Michigan's political economy, our current political system will have to change, too. Otherwise, the anger and alarm that so many people are now feeling will be expressed in extra political - and very dangerous - ways.

Debate continues

To the editor:

In response to Mrs. Gesinski's letter of Jan.-16, I wonder if she truly researched "documented cases of children with learning disabilities that had attended Cooper." It's interesting to note that all aspects of a student's records (including learning disabilities) are confidential; available only to the student's parents, teacher and school administrator. While we all would be interested in a study on learning disabilities in the Cooper area, that interest would be limited to a medical and scientific

Because we (the parents of 290 Cooper/Whittier students) don't agree with her, Mrs. Gesinski decided that we "chose convenience," were "led blindly" by the school district, and that our decision "should result in castigation." I would like to inform Mrs. Gesinski of some of the resources used to form our decision:

1. Some had our children's blood tested and repeatedly called the Wayne County Health Department. To date, not one doctor has reported any abnormal results or unusual occurences as required by law.

2. Soll and air quality tests at Whittler performed by the Michigan Department of Natural Resource and the county health department air at. Whittler had lead levels of two miles west of Cooper! only a fraction of 1/4 to 1/5 that of Wayne County outdoor air.

3. Some of us asked the Livonia school district to compare achieveschool district to compare achievement test results, learning disabilities and absenteeism rates at Cooper with other elementary schools in the district. There were no significant differences.

In conclusion, I would like to comment on an article that appeared in the Jan. 13 Observer. The headline "DNR ups Cooper Site's toxic score" only repeats what this paper reported last Oct. 24, and in my opinion only takes advantage of the sensationalism surrounding the Cooper School situation. # Respect lacking for blacks

MY WORK BUDDY, Barry, came bounding into my office one day last week, clutching a copy of the Eccentric. He was all excited - agitated really. I could see his jaw muscle working in the side of his face as he waited for me to hang up the phone. As I turned to greet him with a "Good-morning-how's-business," he blurted out, "I have to talk to you about your column," pointing to the newspaper he held.

"I mean, you write some good stuff and make me think about things the way I normally wouldn't, but, I mean, why do you have to put that line at the bottom about one black man's opinion? Why do you have to call attention to your race? Why can't you just be a man with an opinion; why do you have to be a black man?"

Well, after my mouth had closed, after five seconds of astonishment at his outburst, all kinds of impulses came to mind: Defend my position; explain the point of the statement again (as I had done in my inaugural column); drop the phrase because if it were causing people to turn off, then maybe it wasn't worth it; get angry at his attack. But then as his words penetrated the fog of my defense mechanism, I realized that he was still speaking, and I tuned back

"YOU KNOW, Jeff," he said, "I don't look at you as a black man, I mean, I respect you. I know you and I know you're not a racist. But when you put 'black man' at the end of your column, when you bring race into what otherwise are good ideas, you sound like you have a chip on your shoulder. You sound like a rac-

I nodded my head in acknowledgement of his position. I told him I'd think about what he had said and went back to the business of lining up guests for the next installment of my show "Transition." My mind, though engaged with the task of producing a quality TV program, would not disengage from Barry's com-

One in particular stood out, glared out actually, almost as if it were highlighted with a bright red border: "I don't look at you as a black man, I mean, I respect you."

Respect. Perhaps the most critical ingredient in the mix of a satisfying life for all adults is largely lacking in the life of most black Americans.

The stereotypical responses of most of America toward African-Americans in this culture are not compatible with the notion of respect. Welfare cheats, drug addicts, undereducated, ghetto dwellers, lazy, shiftless, illiterate, violent, oversexed baby makers. These images perpetuated in virtually all media do not engender respectful attitudes. What Barry was really saying to me was that I don't fit the stereotype of "Black Man," and by identifying myself that way, I somehow had diminished the value of my commen-

THE TRAGEDY that is the ultimate outcome of this type of thought process is already occurring in our nation. A generation of young, black its own culture and looks to Africa for its historic roots.

A generation of young, white 'Americans has bought the affirmative action myth that blacks with responsible careers achieved that success due to some sort of quota.

As a black person in our melting pot culture, respect is given to athletes and entertainers. Perform for the greater enjoyment, and honors and cash are freely given. But if you are an average looking, sounding, acting African-American, your contribution, your motivation is suspect.

My work buddy, Barry, means well. He's a nice guy and I like him; I don't look at him as a white man, just a man. But it's different for the Barrys of this world. Disrespect is not a birthright as it is for those born with black skin, and until that changes, I'm gonna keep signing off my column with: This is just one black man's opinion. What's yours?

Phase in a fuel tax, says commissioner

IRVING RUBIN is a name I hadn't heard in a long time until he appeared in 1991 on Gov. John Engler's list for the state Transportaion Commission.

In the '60s, Rubin was great news copy as head of the Transportation and Land Use Study (TALUS), forerunner of SEMCOG.

He's retired from Ford Motor Co. iow. Engler needed a bipartisan Transportation Commission and apped Democrat Rubin of Bloomield Hills.

Rubin was white-haired, candid and outspoken in his TALUS days. He hasn't changed a bit, bless him.

Last month the Transportation Commission took up a resolution to support Engler's plans to fix roads with a bond issue and no fuel tax hike. One voice dissented. Guess

"I HAVE NO philosophical probem with the sale of bonds," said Rubin, "when circumstances are appropriate." Michigan borrowed in the '50s to speed up the fledgling interstate freeway program.

But times are different. Uncle Sam will boost Michigan's annual alocation of $300 million to more than $500 million — that is, "IF state and local road agencies can find the 20 percent matching dollars that the federal programs require," says the Michigan Municipal League.

The bond issue would give "not one red cent for municipalities and counties," said Rubin.

Around here, county roads, in paricular, are an embarrassment.

Existing taxes could retire the bonds, but $200 million would be inerest payments to bankers. Myself, I'd rather see lenders making new business and home mortgage investments.

OH, THERE ARE a few things for the locals in the Engler package. One involves using Mackinac Straits Bridge tolls for the critical bridge program.

But this once-a-year Mackinac Bridge user can't see the connection between a straits bridge toll and local bridges.

Rubin said Engler correctly wants o eliminate something called the 'evaporation allowance" by change ing the point of fuel tax collection from the distributor to the refinery and regional news.

Richard

"eliminates cheating," Rubin said. And that's good.

"BUT IT'S simpler and cleaner to raise the fuel tax," Rubin argued. 'Six cents would be enough to match all the federal aid and help the cities and counties."

"Now is not the time," said Engler.

Nor will House Speaker Lew Dodak, a Democrat, advocate a muchneeded fuel tax hike. Dodak wants Engler and the Republican Senate to lead, and then maybe he'll follow. Maybe.

So this fuel tax idea isn't partisan.

And if the recession bothers you, said Rubin, bond the first year and pass a fuel tax the second.

TRY AS I might, I can't see Engler's problem with hiking the fuel

Prices are below $1 a gallon for the first time since Engler was an obscure back-bencher in the House and 16 cents lower than a year ago. We'd hardly notice it, particularly if it were phased in over two or three "Competitive" is Engler's favorite word. OK. Michigan's fuel tax is 15 cents, same as Indiana and Kentucky. The national average is 16.1 cents. Ohio charges 20 cents, Illinois 19, Wisconsin 21.5, Iowa 20, Tennessee (home of the Saturn plant) 20.

Because of efficient vehicles, Rubin said, fuel revenues are "flat at best, and probably declining" even though we're driving more miles. I checked. From 1989 to the '92 budget, total motor fuel taxes slipped 1.17 percent. Ol' Irv was right. Never known as a flaming party man, Rubin had some good political advice for Engler and the Legisla-"Good roads are good politics."

It was great to have Rubin back in

Americans finds little to respect in Social promotion hurts test scores

QUESTION: What do you believe is the major problem causing our children to score lower in math and in other areas than Taiwan, Japan, Germany and other countries?

ANSWER: Social promotion, or, "You're getting too big for the chair, Harry, so we're passing you on to the next grade." It is a system in which some children are moved on whether or not they have the basic skills necessary for success.

Social promotion starts in upper elementary and in middle school. Some children make a physical jump and could be twice as big as the other children, say, in the fifth grade. Some simply have bodies too big for the desk.

BY UPPER middle school and high school, grades become the issue. Whether parents or teachers know it, most school districts keep data on teacher grading practices.

These grading patterns are reviewed by the principal and central office staff. Fail too many kids and your skills are questioned. Give too many A's, except in advanced classes, and you're called Santa Claus.

Other countries run dual systems. The college-bound kids go to highly academic secondary schools. The vocational kids are tracked into a skill sequence for an occupation.

In this country, our secondary teachers get most of the kids in a college-oriented, llberal-arts-type curriculum, and many don't fit the

SO MANY teachers, rather than see Johnny next year, grade "gently" to move him on in hope the community college will pick up the slack.

What should be done? I believe if a child is not mastering the basic skills, he/she should stay after school, receive highly intensified one-on-one help from a teacher who is receiving overtime pay. Parents make arrangements to pick up the child. They do this in Japan. The kids are taught and tested until they master the basic skills necessary for success at the next level.

Will this happen? Our system is not oriented toward placing the responsibility on the child's back lest we cause mental stress. Parents will not or possibly cannot pick up the children after school, and there isn't money to pay for an after-school support system. So bunch them all together, water down the grading system and hope for the best. Sad.

Cardinals top Wayne in regional

By Brad Emons staff writer

It wasn't necessary for Detroit Cooley to pull off its "comeback kid" routine Tuesday.

The top-ranked Cardinals had a few anxious moments in the first half, but had things in control the rest of the way en route to their 22nd straight victory, a 65-52 triumph over Wayne Memorial in the Class A regional semifinals at Southfield.

Cooley, which has overcome large deficits to win in both the regular season and state tourney, demonstrated against Wayne just how to protect a lead.

"There's reasons why you get behind and I'm just glad we didn't have to come back," Cooley coach Ben Kelso said. "We get scared when you have to come back."

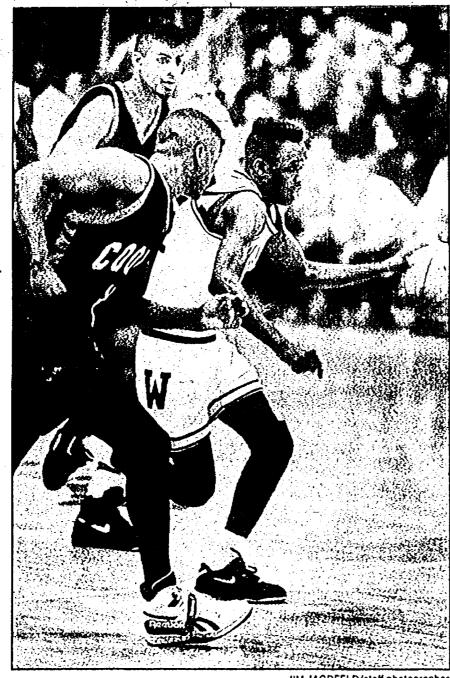

The Cardinals amazingly made only three turnovers in the second half, two coming in the final minute when the verdict was already decid-

"They just don't beat themselves or make mistakes," said Wayne coach Chuck Henry, whose team bowed out with a 19-4 overall record. "They play simple basketball, but are very effective at doing it. They don't play fancy-dancy basketball at all.

WAYNE STAYED right with Cooley for two quarters, leading 13-12 after one period and trailing by only two at intermission, 31-29.

But the third quarter was a differnt story as the Cards opened up an eight-point lead, 50-42, after outscoring the Zebras 19-13.

"We wanted to take it (the ball) inside to see how much pressure their defense could absorb," Cooley coach Ben Kelso said. "But we knew they (Wayne) would change up. They did an excellent job of coaching, but they got in a little foul trouble and they had to start subbing smaller players, and I was glad to see it."

Cooley began the fourth quarter by patiently running its offense. During one possession, the Cardinals made 33 passes before putting up a shot, a strong testimony to Kelso's style of coaching.

Not only did the Cards run down the clock, but they also got to the free throw line frequently while building upon their lead.

"We wanted to win, and we wanted to make sure," said Kelso, whose

Cooley freezes out Shamrocks

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

Detroit Cooley held Redford Catholic Central to 35 points Wednesday night, which was one less than CC senior center Chad Varga scored the night before.

That about says it all.

Cooley's deliberate offense and suffocating defense were just good enough to end CC's run in the state playoffs, 39-35, in a Class A regional basketball final before a capacity crowd at Southfield.

Varga, who averaged 30.8 points in four previous postseason games, was limited to 11 points, only three after halftime. Cooley, which won three straight Class A titles from 1987-89, held the ball for minutes at a time to get CC out of a zone defense and also forced 15 Shamrock turnovers.

The Cardinals, 23-0 and topranked in the state, made 15 of 31 shots from the field (48 percent) compared to CC's 12 of 29 (41 percent). CC did a commendable job on defense in both the man-to-man and

"THE OBJECT of the game is to win. If it's 2-1 isn't that all right?" Cooley coach Ben Kelso said. "We came for one reason and that was to win a ballgame. He (CC coach Bernie Holowicki) had all the choices. If he wanted to press he could have, if he wanted to play man-to-man he could. You play with what you have."

Guido Legardy, Cooley's 6-foot-7 senior center, was responsible for guarding Varga. After making four of eight shots and scoring eight firsthalf points, Varga took two secondhalf shots and made one. He failed to shoot in the third quarter. Varga scored 36 in CC's 62-60 regional sem- first six shots in the second half.

ifinal win over Detroit Southwest-

"It wasn't a personal battle but I felt I had to stop him for us to win," said Legardy, who finished with six points and five rebounds. "My game plan was not to score. I wanted to stop him."

The loss ended CC's six game winning streak and left the Shamrocks with a 19-5 overall record. The game was the last played by CC's four seniors: Varga, Bob Kummer, Tom Laco and Will Marcoux.

KUMMER, A 6-foot-6 forward, bowed out with 12 points on threefor-13 shooting. Kummer missed his

'We're going to miss them (Varga and Kummer), they were like our bread and butter." Holowicki sald: "We lost, we're hurting and there's a sting in our heart, but I've got to be proud. Kelso is a good coach, a grizzly bear, and I enjoy coaching against him. Cooley makes very few mistakes and before the game we told the kids if they make any we got to capitalize on them."

Senior guard Fred Montgomery, whose right arm is shorter than his left because of a birth defect, scored nine of his game-high 13 points in the first quarter when Cooley opened up a 19-16 first-quarter lead.

The tempo slowed considerably, however, in the next eight minutes as CC went nearly seven minutes without scoring and Cooley held the ball most of the time. The Cardinals scored the first four points of the second quarter to lead 23-16 before the Shamrocks outscored the Cardinals 7-1 in the last minute to pull within 26-25 at halftime.

KUMMER'S THREE-pointer followed by a basket at the buzzer by junior forward Brian Paluk highlighted the rally.

The second half was a struggle for the Shamrocks, who made two of 10 shots from the field and suffered nine turnovers. Holowicki would have liked to have at least another day to prepare for Cooley after beating Southwestern Tuesday.

"If you make it to the regional you'd think they'd accommodate the teams better, but it's Southfield's prerogative," Holowicki said earlier in the week. "This was a tough regional. We played man-to-man against Southwestern and against Cooley on back-to-back nights and not too many teams in the Catholic League can do-that."

Glenn's Reeves, CC's Kelly wear individual state crowns

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Dan Kelly didn't need a good-luck charm or a lucky shamrock tucked away in his wrestling shoe to help him win a state individual championship Saturday night.

But the Redford Catholic Central senior did inspire himself by invoking memories of past CC triumphs before his final match in Battle Creek's Kellogg Arena.

"I even put on an old singlet instead of the brand new ones just to give me a little more pride and tradition," said Kelly, who added to CC's storied history by winning the Class A title at 171 pounds.

"I've waited four years for this. I set a goal my freshman year, and to do it is just a rush. I was on a mission and I succeeded." Kelly was one of three Observer-> land champions, the others being Westland John Glenn junior Mike Reeves (152) and Plymouth Salem senior Dan Bonnett (125).

> IN ADDITION to that trio, CC junior Jason Krueger (160) placed third, CC senior Mario Scicluna (112) fifth and Glenn senior Tom Pace (103)

> Kelly won the championship with a 10-4 decision over Brighton's Scott Sucaet, who had upset Kelly's friend and rival, George Young of Plymouth Canton, with a pin in the semifi-

"The adrenaline got me through the whole match," Kelly said. "I knew no one could stop my fireman, so I couldn't be stopped.

"I knew he had a tremendous headlock that got him through the whole tournament, and I knew if I. stayed away from his headlock there was no way he could beat me."

Kelly (47-2-1) said he was confident he could win the title, but he was a bit overconfident at the start Friday. His first match showed him that when Midland's Aaron Anderson scored an early takedown. Kelly eventually won 8-4.

"The first match was a reality check, and it refocused me real quick," Kelly said. "I came in thinking he'd be a pushover, because he took fourth at the regional. I totally forgot that anyone who makes it to state is a tough opponent."

Reeves (41-1), whose only loss was by disqualification in the Observerland tournament, defeated Orle Long of Holt 8-4 in the finals and then leaped into the arms of assistant coach Kelth Zimmerman.

"A LOT OF people brought me this far," said Reeves, naming Glenn head coach Dave Hill and Zimmerman but especially his father, Michael. "If it wasn't for him, I wouldn't be anything. He's the one who made me what I am.

"He gave up four nights during the off-season to take me to practice (at Eastern Michigan University). Re's taken me everywhere, to freestyle tournaments and practices, He's

Madonna's hopes hinge upon hurlers

By C.J. Risak staff writer

The promise of Madonna University's second softball team lost some of its luster Monday.

With the return of the MIAs (Madonna's Ineligible Athletes, or something similar), it seemed a bright campaign was about to begin. Then sophomore Hughanna Wilkie broke the little finger of her left hand; she had surgery today to have a pln placed in it and is lost for the season.

That put a damper on things, but the Lady Crusaders will still be a force. How much? Well, they lost their top pitcher from last year's 22-16 team, Joanne Donehay, who left school — and its no big deal. Sald Madonna coach Dave Racer: "She would have been No. 4 this year."

The reason Donehay would have slipped so far in the rotation is that two of the returning MIAs are pitchers: junior Kristin Wasil, from Garden City, and freshman Holly Jondro. Both had to sit out last season due to a lack of credits.

COMBINED WITH newcomer Tracy, Vachon, from Class A champlon Waterford Keltering, Madonna has a formidable mound corps. "Our pitching is very solid," said Racer. "Pitching and defense are our strengths."

Indeed, during fall practice, 38 of 44 innings were scoreless.

The defense is anchored in a classic sense: strong up the middle. Freshman Kim Supron (Livonia Ladywood) has been so impressive with the bat, she has moved into the No. 5 batting slot. "She's really making good contact for us," said Racer. And she has a great arm, he

At second is sophomore Mandy Armstrong (Kettering), an all-district player last season. Armstrong batted a team-best .377, with 43 hits and 27 runs batted in, and she struck out just seven times. Sophomore Jenny Marquette (Dearborn Divine Child) is the shortstop; she hit .333 with 27 RBI and 12 steals in 14 attempts. "She's our best allaround athlete," said Racer.

IN CENTER field, junior Megan Armstrong, Mandy's older sister, returns from an all-district season. Megan topped Madonna in runs scored (40), hits (44) and stolen bases (18-of-20). She also batted .349 with 21 RBI as the team's lead-off hitter, striking out just seven times in 126 at-bats.

Unlike last year, when the Crusaders had several weak spots to guard, there are few this season. The third MIA, freshman Kay Lee

softball

Davis, fills in at first base. She, too, lacked the credits to play last sea-

Davis will be the top first base-man with the loss of Wilkle, who hit .357 with 25 RBI last year. The biggest loss with Wilkle, however, is in versatility. She served as back-up catcher and played in right field. 'She's an intelligent player," said Racer. "It really hurt to lose her."

At third base is junior Jill Burt, who also starred on Madonna's basketball team. Burt batted .311 last season with a team-high 39 RBI this season, she's made great strides defensively. "I think she'll be one of the better defensive third basemen in the district," said

THE RIGHT and left field posttions will be patrolled by pitchers most of the time. Jondro has the strongest arm on the team; she'll play left when she's not pitching. Wasil will take over in left when Jondro's on the mound.

Vachon will be in right. She batted .400 for Kettering last season.

Others who will contribute are: sophomore Cheryl Baker (.240 and 11-of-11 in stolen bases last season), who will pinch-hit and be the designated hitter; freshman Emily Skura (Livona Franklin), a back-up at third and short, and the starting DH; and freshman Jenny Smith (Ladywood), a backup at second.

If Madonna has a weakness, it's experience. "We're such a young team," noted Racer. "There's a lack of senior leadership. I would have to say we're a year or two away from challenging for the district championship.

The Crusaders may be young, but they're talented. Which means if they can maintain consistency, they could go a long way. "We just have to play good, solid ball," said Racer.

It won't take long to find out how good they are. They open the season Sunday in Fort Meyers, Fla., against NCAA Division I teams Florida International and Harvard, then follow that with another NCAA Lencounter with Brown University Monday. Half their 12game Florida schedule will be against NCAA I and II teams.

It may not sound like much fun in the sun, but a split in Florida particularly with a win or two against an NCAA I foe - could put the Crusaders a year ahead on their developmental timetable.

Concord next victim for Trojans? By Brad Emons

staff writer

Can Livonia Clarenceville's volleyball team do it again?

The regional champion Trojans (23-10-6) are underdogs again when they meet No. 1 ranked Concord (43-6-4) in the state Class C quarterfinals Friday at Kalamazoo College, but that doesn't faze second-year coach Allsha Love. (The match starts at

"I think we match up with any of the teams left," Love said. "You can't worry about any particular

"We're going to play our game and not accommodate any team and their style. I told my girls you don't worry about what the others do. You . 'don't let them take you out of your game . . . just play your game.'

Concord, nicknamed the Yellow Jackets with an enrollment of 275, defeated Class A quarterfinalist Livonia Ladywood in pool play during the Comstock Invitational Jan.

Clarenceville, meanwhile, has been on a high since going 1-7 in pool play at the always tough Schoolcraft Invitational on Feb. 8.

The Trojans are unbeaten since that tournament.

"WE WERE beaten up by some pretty good teams there," said Love, whose Trojans faced the likes of Class A quarterfinalist Temperance-Bedford, along with Plymouth Salem, Birmingham Marian, North Farmington and Dearborn Edsel Ford. "Better serving has definitely been a key along with hard work."

Love's "Six-D Motto" is based on dedication, determination, discipline, desire, direction and dependa-

"And we've met all six of those," she said. "I'm a tough coach and I expect a lot in return, but I also give a lot."

The Trojans have been transformed in a versatile nine-girl unit with interchangeable parts.

Leandra Holiman, a 5-100t-7 senior, is the team's hardest hitter with 348 kills in 715 attempts. The Metro Conference MVP averages 4.4 kills

"She's been on the court for every serve and hasn't missed a practice or game in two years," said Love of the middle and outside hitter.

The team's unsung player may be 5-2 defensive specialist Monica Kaiplo, also a senior.

There has not been one ball dropped around her," said the Clarenceville coach.

BETH MAGUIRE, also a 5-2 senior, is the team's setter, while 5-2 sophomore Chris Nunnery has emerged as the Trojans' most dangerous server.

The other starters are 5-8 outsidehitter Michelle Loukajarvi, a junior, and 5-8 outside-hitter Tracy Sledz, a

"We pulled Tracy off the JV team and she's got a lot of potential," Love said. "I think she's going to be an outstanding player because she has the aggressiveness."

Another standout has been 5.9 middle-hitter Jamie Zemke, who currently ranks second on the team (behind Hoffman) in total blocks with 91.

"She's filled the shoes of another player who left the team," Love said. "She's stays after practice and is very eager to learn. She's showing a lot of progress."

Kristen Przegenza, a 5-3 sophomore setter, and 5-10 freshman Wendy Roy round out the squad.

"All nine players have the versatility and that makes us a good team," Love said. "If there is a word. to describe us, I'd say we're relentless. Even when we're down, we're not out. And we proved that on Saturday."

CLARENCEVILLE'S regional conquest of Southfield Christian and Almont has lifted the spirits of the 470-student body.

"The whole staff has been so supportive and outside the school we've gotten all kinds of recognition," Love said. "It feels really good because the fans and parents have been dedicated and loyal."

Love, former standout for the 1988 National Junior College Athletic Association Schoolcraft College squad, also has a loyal following at home from her husband Mike (of eight years), along with sons Mike, Jr., Aaron and Andrew.

The team will depart at noon today and practice tonight at K'zoo

It's their first trip to the state finals since 1980.

Ladywood underdog in 'A' quarterfinal matchup

By Brad Emons staff writer

Tom Teeters never dreamed his volleyball team would get this far. But the veteran Livonia Ladywood coach is no stranger when it comes to playing in the state finals. His 1988 and '89 squads won the coveted title and his 1990 team reached the Class A championship before finish-

With a team dominated by underclassmen, Teeters is back again, this time in a tough quarterfinal matchup, 4 p.m. Friday against Temperance-Bedford (61-6-7) at Nazareth College in Kalamazoo.

"At the beginning of the season I thought it would be great if we could take second in the Catholic League," said Teeters, whose team is 42-9-5 overall. "We lost a ton of good people, but this year we've had a good mix of seniors, juniors and sophomores, and even a freshman gets in there from time to time. I thought we'd be good next year, but I never thought we'd be where we're at now.

League, followed by upset district ent." and regional wins against the likes of defending Class A champion and Western Lakes Activities Association winner Livonia Churchill, along with state-ranked Farmington Hills Mercy and Livonia Stevenson.

"DEFENSIVELY we made some saves that were unbelievable," said Teeters after Saturday's regional conquest at Ferndale. "We've had many opportunities to fall apart, and we didn't. We've played consistently, and even when the other teams step it up a notch, they don't seem to sustain it for three games."

Bedford is no stranger to Teeters, but Kicking Mules ironically have not faced the Blazers this season.

They are led by 5-foot-10 senior setter Stacy Scarbrough, who has signed with Miami of Ohio, and 5-8 senior Jennie Bringman, who is bound for Division I school Wright State of Ohio.

"Bedford is a strong team," Teeters said. "They have some of the best setting in the state. I'm not sure of any weaknesses they have. They have talent on the bench, and when everybody else is tired, they bring The Blazers exceeded Teeters' ex- more people off the bench. They pass pectations by winning the Catholic very well and they're always consist-

The Blazers rely on the one-two hitting combination of 5-10 Liz Gunn 5-4 junior, and Andrea Putti, a 5-8 and 5-8 Mary Jo Kelly, both juniors and better known as "Machine Gunn Kelly.

Kelly was a freshman on the varsity squad when Ladywood reached the 1990 state final. "Our dominant attack comes from the outside," Teeters said. "That left hand (of Gunn's) is hard to block and Mary Jo has that oulck arm swing. "But we're not going to block or snuff them (Bedford). We're going to have to make them re-direct their shots." LADYWOOD'S defense has been bolstered by the play of 5-8 senior middle hitter Jannel Hemme, along with 5-4 senior Michelle Wilson. Outside hitter Valerie Adzima, a junior, also figure prominently in the stop Bedford scheme, along with Nancy Burr, a senior, and Kristy Walker, a sophomore.

"We're going to have to serve tough," said the Ladywood coach, "and absorb at lot of their hits. On Saturday, Jannel and Michelle made some great digs. We need to continue that kind of play."

Bedford is not the prohibitive favorite to win the state crown, but the Kicking Mules are rated as the No. 2 choice (behind Portage Norther) to take it all.

"We're definitely an underdog, but we were that way in '89 at Wayne Memorial when we knocked them out," said the Ladywood coach.

Stevenson's 6th leads area schools

· A change in focus this season may affect Livonia Stevenson, swimmers of the future.

Instead of concentrating solely on the Western Lakes Activities Association meet and tapering for it, Stevenson coach Doug Buckler tried to divide attention between the league meet and the Class A state finals.

It wasn't exactly a resounding success, but it worked well enough. With the change the Spartans may have moved up a level into the state contenders' club, after finishing sixth at Saturday's Class A meet in East Lansing.

Stevenson wasn't the only local team to excel. North Farmington, sparked by its 200-yard medley relay, turned in a superb effort. The Raiders nearly caught Stevenson, scoring 95.5 points to finish seventh. The Spartans had 97.

Redford Catholic Central lacked the depth of both Stevenson and North, but the Shamrocks - who finished eighth with 81 points could boast the only state champion from Observerland: Randy Teeters in the 100 breaststroke.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS Andover ran away with its third-consecutive championship, notching 221 points. Ann Arbor Pioneer was second with 111.5, just ahead of Birmingham Groves (110). Grand Haven was fourth (103), followed by Dearborn in fifth (101).

"We wanted to swim well (at state)," said Buckler of Stevenson's performance. "That's the best we've swam there. We've always peaked for the league meet because it's such a tough meet. This year, we did it for both."

That's easier said than done. Getting one swimmer in top form for one meet (season bests for winners were trimmed by at least 1.7 seconds in every event but the 50 freestyle Saturday) is difficult; multiply it by 10 (approximate size and the task spirals in difficulty. Then try and do it for two meets instead of one.

Still, the Spartans did well enough. Two of their three relays reached the championship final: the 400 free team of Aaron Relder, Bryan Morrison, Alex Goecke and Gordy Gatewood combined for a fourth (3:11.26) and the 200 free foursome of Morrison, Jeff Buckler, Gatewood and Greg Priede placed sixth (1:28.41),

But it was North's medley relay that nearly stole the show. The Raiders surprised by qualifying first in Friday's preliminaries, but they couldn't hold off Andover's powerful team, revamped for the North's Mike Drelles, Chris Knoche, Jonathan Kershaw and Adam Kammer were second in 1:36.28. Andover won in 1:35.92; the Barons went on to sweep all three relays, two in state-record time.

"I was really surprised how well they swam," said North coach Sue Gendron of her team. "All season I knew we were going to have a good state meet. But I'm really proud of them. The kids all pulled together. They had their goals set at the beginning of the season and they achieved them."

Drelles anchored North's effort. He finished tied with Ann Arbor Pioneer's Bill Beecher for second in the 100 butterfly (52.37), was 10th in the 100 backstroke (54.93) and led off the 400 free relay, which was sixth (3:17.23). Karl Kozicki, Knoche and Kershaw were also on the 400 free relay.

CC'S 200 medley team of Leslie, Teeters, Reinke and John Brogan was fifth (1:37.35); the 200 free foursome of Brogan, Paul Magoulick. Devon Fekete and Teeters was eighth (1:28.19); and the 400 free team of Reinke, Fekete, Chris Meck and Leslie was 11th (3:17.40).

Other Observerland scorers were Farmington diver Brandon Richardson, who placed ninth with 362.55 points, and the Plymouth Canton 400 free relay of Jeff Clark, Craig Steshetz, Pat Lancaster and Mike Orris, which took 12th (3:17.97).

Andover's Mike Lane was named the coach of the year, and Lansing Eastern's Ian Mull repeated as swimmer of the year. Mull won the 200 IM in a state record 1:49.84 and the 500 free in 4:28.85.

Andover's Raffi Karapetian was also an individual double-winner, capturing the 50-yard free in a state-record 20.37 and the 100 free in 45.00. Karapetian was part of two state-record setting relays for Andover as well: the 200 free (1:23.57) and the 400 free (3:06.10).

Oakland Christian ends Hawks' year

By Darren A. Nichols staff writer

No one bothered to tell Westland Huron Valley Lutheran it was supposed to win Tuesday night.

The Lancers, who finally woke up from the nearnightmare in the fourth quarter, moved into the region al final, 7:30 tonight against Detroit East Catholic, which beat Warren Bethesda in the other regional sem-

"In a way, I am a little disappointed," Huron Valley coach Dave Kolander sald. "But I'm really proud of my kids. Nobody outside of this locker room thought we had a chance to win. We believed in ourselves, and even when we got down 12 (midway through the fourth quarter), we didn't quit.

"Coming into this game, I didn't know how we were going to respond. We were just having some fun while showing them we could play some basketball, too."

OAKLAND CHRISTIAN, which improved to 22-2 overall, was led by Carter's 17 points. Senior guard Scott Mehlberg and senior forward Jeff Reed added seven points aplece.

Junior forward Melton Stoudemire and junior guard Doug Hartley led Huron Valley with 16 points apiece. Stoudemire also had 11 rebounds and slx assists. Senior center Aaron Thompson contributed seven points and 10 rebounds.

Huron Valley finished the season at 8-15 overall after an 0-11 start.

coach Edward Mehlberg said. "They controlled the tempo, and we didn't know who we were guarding. We played pretty ugly, but I'll take an ugly win by three (points) every time. I'll take an ugly win Thursday against East Catholic."

Oakland Christian, which led 30-27 at the end of the third quarter, took a 12-point lead after an 8-2 run to start the fourth.

A HARTLEY three-pointer cut the deficit to 46-41 with 1:15 left. After committing two straight fouls to reach the bonus, Reed missed a front-end of a one-andone with 53 seconds left.

Hartley then hit another three-pointer that sliced the margin to 46-44 with 45 seconds left. Only 13 seconds later, Carter missed another front-end of a one-and-

Hartley rebounded the miss, dribbled the ball the length of the floor and handed it to Stoudemire, who took a 16-foot jumper. The jumper missed, and Thompson grabbed the rebound but couldn't convert a layup with 14 seconds left.

Carter was fouled, hitting the front end of the oneand-one for the final margin. The Hawks' final attempt failed as Stoudemire dribbled the ball off his leg, and wildly threw up a three-pointer at the buzzer.

"We gave it our best shot," Kolander said. "We had two good shots at the basket, but both of them bounced in and out. My heart was pounding. Our defense really did a good job holding them under 50 points."

ADDED MEHLBERG: "We got a couple of breakaways and dunks to start the fourth quarter, and I thought we were finally going to play smart. We had our best free-throw shooter on the line, and he just didn't hit them tonight. I was confident that we would win. I knew we would do the necessary things (down the

Tough semifinal

Shamrocks oust defending champs

By C.J. Risak staff writer

The pressure was enough to break almost any team, but Redford Catholic Central withstood it' - and it wasn't just the team's Shamrock heritage that worked in its favor on this St. Patrick's Day, playing against Detroit Southwestern in the opening round of the Southfield basketball regional.

CC needed more than mere luck, and got it - mainly from Chad Varga, who poured in 36 points to lift the Shamrocks to a 62-60 triumph Tues-

The pressure came in the form of going against the two-time defending Class A champion Prospectors. And it came on the court, with Southwestern pressuring full-court most of the game.

And then, even though CC had the lead from the end of the first quarter on, there was the pressure of the Prospectors' unrelenting attack.

As Shamrock coach Bernie Holowicki summed up: "There was a lot of pressure. They wouldn't go down without a fight.'

TWO FACTORS allowed CC to take control early and maintain it fouls and shooting. Southwestern got into foul trouble almost immediately, with starters Derrick Hayes and Anthony Eagle drawing their third personals in the second quarter.

Shooting didn't work in the Prospectors' favor, either. They started both the first and second quarters by missing their first five shots; at halftime, they were 9-of-28 from the floor (32 percent).

Which is why the Prospectors trailed 32-21 at the break. "We got the shots we wanted, right around the basket," sald Southwestern coach Larry Pierce. "They just didn't go

CC's biggest challenge came in the third quarter. After padding their lead to 36-21 on two Varga baskets, the Shamrocks found themselves in trouble. Vargà picked up two fouls in an 18-second span, giving him three and putting him on the bench. *

THE PROSPECTORS rallied immediately behind Hayes. They outscored CC 18-7 through the rest of the quarter to pull to within 43-39 heading into the final period. Hayes scored 10-straight Southwestern points in the rally and had 12 in the

When Bob Kummer - who scored 11 points in the first half - was whistled for his third foul with 1:37 left in the third, fate seemed to have turned on CC. But there was another reversal ahead; Hayes drew his fourth foul with :35 to play in the quarter.

Which freed up Varga even more in the paint. The 6-foot-5 senior took advantage, pivoting his way to 14 fourth-quarter points. A CC adjustment early in the game had helped. Explained Holowicki: "(Southwestern) was in their 1-3-1 (zone defense), and we had some trouble with it. So we moved Bobby (Kummer) outside, and that opened up the middle for Chad."

The Prospectors' pressure didn't hurt, either. CC point guard Eric Justice adeptly handled the ball through most of the game; the Shamrocks had just 12 turnovers.

STILL, SOUTHWESTERN kept it close, and a three-point play by Diarra Wilkerson left CC clinging to a 47-46 lead. But the Shamrocks answered with an 11-3 run, punctuated by a Varga floating slam with 2:30 to play that prompted a Prospector timeout.

CC had a 58-49 lead, but managed to keep Southwestern in the game by missing free throws down the stretch. The Shamrocks were 15-of-21 before the final two minutes, then went 4-of-11. Still, they had enough of a lead to keep Southwestern at bay; Hayes' three-pointer at the buzzer made the score closer, but the outcome was the same.

The loss left the Prospectors with a season-ending 14-8 record. Pierce could only praise Varga for his performance. "We wanted to front him and give weak-side help," the Southwestern coach said. "But he's a helluva player. When he gets the ball, he knows what to do with it."

Hayes finished with 21 points to lead Southwestern, 19 coming in the second half. Wilkerson had 11. Kummer netted 15 for CC. Varga and Brian Paluk had eight rebounds apiece for CC; Hayes grabbed eight for Southwestern.

'On Golden Pond' Plenty of warmth, humor

Performances of the Plymouth Theatre Guild production of "On Golden Pond" continue through March 28 at the Water Tower Theatre on the campus of Northville Regional Hospital. For ticket information call 349-7110.

"On Golden Pond," by Ernest Thompson, is offered by the Plymouth Theatre Guild with plenty of warmth and humor, but director Dean Acheson has culled the script only for that humor while neglecting some of the human complexities.

Set in a rustic summer home/cabin, "On Golden Pond" draws a charming picture of the faltering twilight years of Norman Thayer Jr. (performed by Robert Ketterer) and his wife, Ethel (played by Rosemary in Norman is on the brink of celebrating his 80th birthday, and is reminded of his mortality by recurring forgetfulness and heart palpitations. MDirector Acheson opts for comedy and plays down the serious tones to be found in the "Pond" storyline. While the play is funny, opportunitles abound for various levels of anger and uncertainty which are not 'extracted from the script.

SOMETIMES, SCRIPTED anger springs from nowhere. For instance,

Sally Dubats

in one scene, Ethel rants during the "Old Poop's" anger and even leaves the room because of the "hot air," but Acheson has not precipitated this by any show of anger on Norman's

Robert Ketterer is well-cast as Norman, and plays excellently his forgetfulness. Ketterer is a natural and subtle comedian. He brings color and dimension to the character with a strong sense of loss and fear when tragic lapses of memory occur.

Ketterer has, however, erroneously taken off the gruffest edges expected in Norman, as this is a character known to be domineering and curmudgeonly.

Ethel is Norman's loving partner and wife who gives unconditional support. Rosemary Rock portrays Ethel with almost too much understanding rather than being slightly ornery. Rock's delivery is funny when quoting Norman's belief that, "It isn't fair to get a dog when you're planning to die soon." But when she receives a letter from her muchmissed daughter, Chelsea, her Carole Channing expressions are histrionic in lieu of a genuine emotion.

Norman and Ethel have been encumbered with a guest for the summer. Their daughter has left her fiance's son with them. Wayne Faler is terrific as Billy Ray, the snotty kid who eventually learns to respect, and even like his elders despite his obvious reluctance to admit he's enjoying himself. Faler is a definite bright spot in the show.

Nancy Matejak portrays Norman and Ethel's daugher, Chelsea Thayer. Conflict ensues when Chelsea visits the summer home from the West. Coast for the first time in eight years, and feels all the insecurities of childhood and domineering parents engulf her.

ALTHOUGH MATEJAK is supposed to be wishy-washy in her performance, the "I'm in charge in Los Angeles" line is never apparent to any degree in her character.

Adding quirk to his character is Jack Abella as Charlie, the postman. Abella creates a likable personality who paints a picture of life on Golden Pond.

Rounding out the cast is Kevin Kowalski as dentist/fiance Bill Ray. The scene between Ray and Ketterer is interesting as men from different generations explore each other's touching moments were buried. morals, and whether it is acceptable for Bill and Chelsea to sleep together. Kowalski's contribution to the show are wonderful stage voice and stage presence. The overall tone of Dean Acheson's "On Golden Pond" is one of comedy, where only the surface of the script was scratched. Many

Enjoy 'Old Time Movies' with Livonia Symphony

By Linda Ann Chomin special writer

If Scott Joplin's ragtime music sets your bones a-jumpin, and pratfalls by silent screen legends like Charlie Chaplin, Laurel and Hardy, Fatty Arbuckle and Buster Keaton are your cup of tea, grab a bag of popcorn Friday night, March 20, and head for the "Old Time Movies" with the Livonia Symphony Orchestra.

The fun starts 8 p.m. sharp when the orchestra under the musical direction of Francesco DiBlasi accompanies the "little tramp" in an evening of antics that'll leave you wishing for those silent golden days of comedy at the Livonia Civic Center Library Auditorium, Farmington Road at Five Mile.

Tickets are $10, ($6 seniors/students) at the Livonia Civic Center Library, Madonna University, Schoolcraft and Levan, and Hammell Music. 15630 Middlebelt. Tickets available at the door the night of the concert.

"IT WAS a lot of work to put this together. This week we went through 15 reels of film to get what we wanted," said DiBlasi. "We are using three projectors (run by Gordon Draper) to keep the continuity."

The idea to feature silent movies set to chamber music came from Di-Blasi's daughter who plays with the Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra. "My daughter tipped me off. The old-time movies have been done a lot on the West Coast by chamber orchestras where a single ticket to a benefit concert can cost $1,000," Di-Blasi said.

Leading off the evening's program, Ernest Bloch's "Concerto

"Ernest Bloch is a composer who spanned classic, romanticism and into the modern Concerto Grosse was written in 1925," DiBlasi said. Music history points out that

Bloch's style was based on a mystic identification with what he conceived to be the Hebraic spirit. "As a composer, Bloch wrote a lot of folk tunes," said concertmaster, Haltom. "He's well known for his ethnic folk melodies. He's written a lot of famous, Jewish music." LSO principal flutist, Robynn Rhodes' enthusiasm for "Suite for Flute and Jazz Piano" by Claude-Bolling bubbles over as she describes the homogenization of two vastly different styles spotlighted in the second selection of the evening.

"THE FLUTE is baroque. The flute and jazz piano play off each other till in the second part there is harmony instead of separate melodies by the classic style flute and jazz plano, a melding of the two genre."

James Poe, bassoon, Robynn Rhodes, flute, Kristen Williams. oboe, Carl Karoub, French horn, and Colin Lord, clarinet, will be performing with the Livonia Symphony Orchestra on Friday.

Joining Rhodes on stage is percussionist, Pam Manos, bassist, Dave Reese, and planist, Diane Lord.

"The Bolling is unusual," said Haltom, "because in jazz music there are no parts written for any instruments, no violin, no piano, not any instrument. The Bolling allows classical musicians to play in the style of jazz without any jazz training."

TOP 40's OLDIES

— Francesco DiBlasi

Adept at playing classical and jazz flute, Rhodes attended the Philadelphia Musical Academy and Wayne State University. She studied with Loren Lind of the Philadelphia Orchestra, and Ervin Monroe, principle flutist with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Rhodes, who made her debut at Orchestra Hall in Detroit, toured China and Japan with the Wayne State University Symphonic Band. She performs around town with chamber and orchestral ensembles. and with the jazz group James Tatum Trio Plus. The four year LSO member said. as a child she didn't even know what a flute sounded like, when she saw a classical flutist walk out on stage for a performance. "I've tried lots of instruments," Rhodes sald, "but when I saw it shine, and reflect the light on stage, that was it for me." After intermission the lights go down and the projectors whir with silent movies as the Livonia Symphony Woodwind Quintet takes center stage. The quintet, featuring Rhodes, principal obolst, Kristen Williams, clarinetist, Colin Lord, bassoonist, James Poe, pianist, Diane Lord, and Carl Karoub perform the music of Leroy Anderson, Morton Gould, Gustav Hoist, the ragtime of Scott Joplin, and a Gay 90s medley by Shostakovich.

From the dramatic strings and piano melodies of Bloch to the silent antics of Chaplin, the evening promises an entertaining trip back to the turn-of-the-century.

"You don't hear music like this anymore, Bloch, Bolling and Laurel and Hardy," said DiBlasi.

Cast provides lots of razzamatazz in 'Barnum'

Performances of the the Ridgedale Players production of "Barnum" continue through March 29 at the playhouse in Troy. For ticket information, call 844-8328.

The Ridgedale Players production of "Barnum," directed by Kent Martini and Bill Glace plays well despite Cy Coleman's thin script.

The savvy 61-year-old troupe manages to give theatergoers a night of razzamatazz: it's wall to wall clowns, balloons, bearded ladies, tumblers, trapeze artists, flags, fireworks, the Bridgeport Pageant Choir, confetti and lots of inventive lyrics by Michael Stewart.

The mild overtones of Mark Twain's world and Frank Baum's "Wizard of Oz" add a necessary ingredient, a bit of salt to this musical biography about the famous P.T. who founded "The Greatest Show on Stephen Tadevic gives us an energic Phineas Taylor Barnum. Tadevic is surprisingly swift on his feet; he's a good dancer as well as fast talker. One of the best numbers in the show is "The Prince of Humbug," and Tedvic pulls the show together while giving his all to this terrific song.

He's believable as the dreamer who built the successful American museum in 1851 and went on to found a traveling circus after the museum burned down in 1852.

Holly Hellsten is equally believable as the down-to-earth, exschoolteacher, Chairy Barnum. P.T. needed a wife who kept her wits about her, and Chairy's tart words and clear vision help make P.T.'s dreams reality.

Hellsten has a lovely voice, and she and Tedvic do a moving rendition of "The Colors of My Life." We feel Barnum's loss when his priceless wife dies, and understand that the three-ring-circus as America knew it might not have existed if James A. Bailey hadn't convinced Barnum to fill his late years with

of a man - with a voice to match. does a splendid job as the Ringmaster, crying out acts from his niche at stage right while doing magic tricks, as the Concertmaster, and as the well-tailored James A. Bailey, Hammell is splendid, no matter who he's playing. He's the spirit of progress, the voice of the late 19th century.

Genie Garner is amusing as Joice Heth, the 161-year-old woman. Garner doubles as a very nimble dancer/juggler. Mike Elbert is an amusing, robust Tom Thumb. Elbert uses great Cowardly Lion phrasing in his "Bigger Isn't Better" number.

Karee Stegeman is gorgeous and funny as Jenny Lind, who becomes Barnum's mistress for six months. "The Swedish Nightingale," a name ironically dreamed up by Chalry Barnum, is glorious and stiff as she sings the "Jenny Lind Obligato." Stegeman gives us a Lind who moves believably to the French Ambassador on the night Barnum goes home to Chairy.

Lori Jacobs is wonderful as the blues singer who gives us "Black and White." Julie Klock-Tilotson is efficient as Lyman, Barnum's faithful helper. Carl Territo is a sober Amos Scudder, co-founder of the American Museum.

Kudos to producer Donna Backus who put together the "cast of thousands," the terrific costumes, and the great special effects, including popcorn for 10 cents. And to Jody Lavin for fine choreography, Roblin Kearney and Chick Ray for the set, and to music director Kerry Price, his plano and to the orchestra, Dan Gardner, Don Martin, David Coleman and Eric Shea.

Don't miss the museum show in the lounge during intermission.

As long as you can get 40 or more their parts memorized," Wendzel people together, we can put one on."

The party will be a first for the guild, but hopefully not the last, said event co-chairwoman Carol Wendzel of Bloomfield Hills.

"We're trying to build up a guild that will be able to do a lot of fundraising," she said.

The 100 member guild is made up of "opera lovers" who volunteer their time to strengthen MOT through community outreach programs and fund-raisers like the murder mystery party.

The party, like all guild functions, is open to the public. The $90 ticket includes cocktails, dinner and valet parking. The murder mystery will be played out during the evening's festivities.

Guests will arrive at Meadowbrook to find a hearse already parked outside.

"The cast of characters will be known and the cast will all have said.

Wendzel said the party is one of many guild functions designed to build up membership as well as keep MOT going strong.

"The money goes wherever MOT needs it," she said. "MOT is one of the best companies in the country. A lot of this is due to (MOT director) David DiChiera. We want the guild to be one of the best too."

Eaton's obscurity won him Chrylser top job

This has been another bad week for journalism, at least for those in the business of predicting the future, rather than reporting the past. Normally, it's far easier to speculate on things like who will be the next chairman of Chrysler than take notes, get wet, etc., which goes along with more mundane reporting jobs. The best speculation is about something far enough in the future so that when reality comes due, most people have forgotten the idiotic prediction you made way back when.

Not that there isn't some danger in the speculation business. As I have pointed out in the past, nothing cools an executives chances to become the next chairman of Chrysler, or General Motors, for that matter, like too many speculative stories that put you into office before your boss and board of directors get around to making up their minds.

Which brings us around to the point: Who the heck is Robert Eaton? In the five years or so of speculation about just who is going to succeed Chairman Lee, rumors have started up about every top-level administrator except possibly Coleman Young as a possible successor to the flamboyant | Iacocca.(Actually, even Young may have been a candidate, particularly when it turned out the last five acres of land to build the new Jeep plant downtown was going to cost $50 million, but I digress.) Nobody gave Eaton a chance, in fact, nobody had even heard of Ea-

WELL, MAYBE a few. I remember Eaton as one of the principal architects of the Corvair, after which he worked on the front-drive X-car program. Later, he was an unusually quiet head of GM's advanced engineering staff. At the time, I figured he was so quiet because he had a lot of secrets. That was before Donald Runkle got the job and demonstrated that you could talk a lot and still keep secrets. Now I know that Eaton was being quiet so that nobody would write about him and mess up his chances to be chairman of

Then Eaton sort of disappeared, having been named head of GM's European operations. Eaton finally was seen in Czechoslovakia or someplace like that, negotiating obtuse deals to make defunct Russlan tank tracks into suspension components, an area where GM is credited with being far ahead of the competition, figuring that the remnants of the Soviet Block will turn to Chevrolets as soon as they get the food problem straightened out. This was where Chairman Lee found him, and noticed that Eaton had been in the auto business for nearly 30 years, and nobody at Fortune, Time, Newsweek or Automotive News had ever speculated that he was going to become chairman of Chrysler.

Even the New York Times had never heard of Eaton, mainly because Doron Levin, chief auto writer for the Times, was busy working on a book about how the Japanese are going to take over Chrysler, and he had been ignoring the meaningful happenings in Eastern Europe.

CHAIRMAN LEE was impressed. For one thing, Eaton was making a lot of money in a GM division, a rare achievement these days, since most GM division only made money after they were sold to Roger Penske. Iacocca reportedly had asked Penske to be chairman of Chrysler, but Penske didn't want the pay cut.

Chrysler President Bob Lutz had already been named Chrysler Chairman by Fortune, the Wall Street Journal, the New York Times, and David E. Davis Jr., editor of Automobile Magazine. These important publications often pointed out that Lutz had managed to orchestrate the reorganization of the company and developed a new line of cars that will carry Chrysler forward for the next millennium. Unfortunately, this is the sort of thing that the actual chairman of a major auto company likes to read about himself.

Bob Lutz, himself former chairman of Ford of Europe, had heard of Bob Eaton. "I just didn't think he'd be my boss," he said.

"We never know the worth of water until the well runs dry."

The wellspring of financial security is one's income. If this is in jeopardy, as it may be for Andy and Jo West, major financial difficulties could follow.

Andy and Jo live in in Canton with their 1-year-old daughter. Jo, 28, works as a part-time producer for a machine maintenance at the General Motors Willow Run plant and earns

With the recent announcement of GM's plant closings, Andy's future employment situation is uncertain. He may be laid off permanently or he may be transferred to another facility, which would result in Jo leaving her job. In either case, they will experience a drop in income, at least temporarily.

Jo asks, "What steps should be taken now to prepare for these changes? Should we pay off our car? Take money out of the IRAs to build up our cash reserves? What is the best course of action?"

OUR FIRST BIT of advice is not to panic. The Wests are actually in good financial shape, especially for a young couple. They obviously have done some good financial planning in the past, and now is their payoff

They have an emergency reserve of six month's expenses in a money market fund. This can help tide them over this transition period. They have no debts beyond a modest mortgage and an auto loan taken out when they bought a new car six local cable television station. She months ago. We would strongly enearns $14,000. Andy is 31 and is in courage them to avoid additional debt until their incomes could easily support additional payments.

Andy also has a union-sponsored plan for laid-off auto workers. This ensures that he will continue to receive a majority of his income for a number of months if he is not offered another position. It offers a measure of short-term security, and along with their other assets, it gives the Wests time to prepare for their

Their estate plan is in relatively good shape. They established wills when their daughter was born. The wills contain a contingency trust, which provides that in the case of simultaneous death, their assets and life insurance proceeds would be managed for their daughter's benefit until she reaches her mid-20s.

But a trust within a will is subject to the probate process. Probate remains open until the trust provisions are completely satisfied, which could be 20 years or more (when their daughter becomes an adult). This could result in significant probate administrative expense. We would suggest that they may want to consider changing to a revocable trust outside of and separate from

A COMMON REACTION to an impending decrease in income is to use any available cash to pay down loans, and even to prepay upcoming bills such as property taxes and insurance. This may provide a measure of psychological security because those bills won't be coming in over the next few months.

But we believe this is the wrong approach to take. Although the Wests should not incur additional debt, they should hoard their cash reserves to provide the greatest cushion for the longest possible period of time.

Andy periodically buys individual stocks for growth in his portfolio. We recommend that he defer such purchases until their future is clearer. Stocks and bonds are subject to greater short-term fluctuations. If they were forced to liquidate at an inopportune time, they could be faced with a significant loss. They should build up the cash in the money market fund as long as their incomes are steady, even though interest rates are currently low.

Andy and Jo should not take assets out of their IRAs at this time. There is a significant tax cost to liquidating these funds. Any money withdrawn would be subject to ordinary income tax plus a 10 percent penalty; thus, about 40 percent of the funds withdrawn would be due in taxes and penalties. If they are forced to take IRA withdrawals in a later year to maintain their standard of living, it is likely that their income tax bracket will be lower, and therefore the tax cost will be less for such with-

PERHAPS LESS obviously, Andy should also continue the tax deferral on his 401(k) plan monies. If Andy is terminated from GM, it is likely that he will receive a lump sum distribution of the entire balance in his 401(k) account - currently $12,000. Especially for those who have recently lost a job, it is tempting to put this money into a savings account and let it sit there until it needed.

This is a mistake. Like the IRA. such a distribution is typically subject to ordinary income tax and a 10 percent penalty if the recipient is under the age of 591/2. If this distribution is rolled over into an IRA within 60 days, it continues to avoid current taxation; yet withdrawals are still available if needed.

In their efforts to conserve cash, Andy and Jo should defer all possible major expenditures. They were hoping to buy a second new car this year, but this is obviously an expense that they do not need to incur. In fact, if their income is reduced for an extended period of time, they may have to look at whether it makes sense to keep the new car. It might be necessary to downscale and reduce or eliminate this debt pay-

Similarly, they were planning on starting an educational savings plan for their daughter and any future children. Though we believe it is important to do this as soon as possible, this is a discretionary outlay that should be put on hold for now.

ONE AREA OF weakness is their insurance coverages. Their auto and medical coverages are fine; their life and homeowners coverages need review.

"We have never felt comfortable reviewing our insurance program," Andy said. "I am not sure it is adequate. Please review it for us."

The only life insurance they carry is that which is provided through General Motors: $44,000 on Andy and $10,000 on Jo. Should Andy die, Jo's income and the $44,000 would not go very far toward meeting her long-term living costs. Furthermore, if Andy is terminated from GM he could lose these benefits altogether.

This is not the time to scrimp on insurance. We would suggest a minimum of $250,000 on Andy and $100,000 on Jo. We would suggest term coverage for them because of the low cost and their need to conserve cash. The annual outlay would likely be no more than $400-$500, and it might be less. Eventually, when their future becomes more certain they might want to consider converting a portion of this coverage into a permanent policy that builds cash values.

Another less critical problem is in their homeowners coverage. They believe their house is worth $120,000, but they have only $90,000 of property coverage. This may be adequate if their insurance carrier can assure them that this is the full replacement cost of rebuilding their home. But if they find that the amount of coverage has not kept up with the cost of inflation over the years, they should increase their coverage.

Andy and Jo have done a good job of preparing themselves for the worse. Their financial "well" is deeper than perhaps they realize, and with some effort and a bit of luck, they should be able to get through this difficult period in good

By Doug Funke staff writer.

Professionally certify new car salespeople?

That's what the National Automobile Dealers Association wants to do.

The trade association will launch its program this spring, but it probably will take some time for the Detroit Auto Dealers Association to jump on the bandwagon. "We're going to take a hard look at it," said Daniel Hayes, executive vice president of the Detroit association. "We don't want to put false impressions out there. We just want to make sure it's right. That's why we're going to go slow and steady."

Training sessions have been scheduled for Cleveland, Buffalo, Salt Lake City and Casper, Wyo., after a trial run in suburban Washington, D.C.

"It's no secret customers are not happy with the new car buying process," said Deborah M. Hopkins, spokeswoman for NADA. "We want to make buying a new car fun again. We want people to feel comfortable walking into a dealership. We want people to look forward to it, not be apprehensive."

To get NADA certification, salespeople must score at least 70 on an exam that covers ethical and legal sales practices, car selling techniques, and consumer psychology and loyalty.

EACH OF those three units consists of several audio tapes, a workbook and a daylong classroom session. The ethical and legal practices unit is mandatory, the others optional. Cost of each unit is $150.

Certification also requires at least six months of sales experience, which can be acquired concurrently, and completion of manufacturer product training, which most salespeople do anyway.

"This is much more than a self-help program," Hopkins said. "It's rooted very firmly in ethics and law." Several dealership owners and managers contacted here were lukewarm about the NADA certification pro-

With product training their salespeople get from the manufacturers, the competitive market in metro Detroit with some 250 dealerships and the Big Three headquartered here, some wonder how much difference NADA certification will make.

"GM, Ford and Chrysler do a good job educating people. They have seminars and sale schools," said Lou-LaRiche, owner of Chevolet and Subaru dealerships in Plymouth.

"DEALERSHIPS do a good job educating salespeople. I think salespeople in this area are knowledgeable and polite. I just don't know what a certification will Bill Ritchle, owner of a Lincoln Mercury dealership and the Detroit delegate to NADA, has similar feelings. "We have been a little more in the forefront in that area," he said of training. "The majority of us (here) would say that (NADA certification) is like taking altar boys to church."

But Ritchie believes that it will be offered here as soon as a program dealing specifically with legal practices in Michigan can be put together. "We've all become more consumer-oriented in the last 10 years," he said. "It's a different world out there and we better recognize it."

Brian English, general sales manager at Birmingham Chrysler Plymouth in Troy, said he believes a NADA certification program is just as important as other training salespeople receive.

"I SPENT 12 years on the floor selling cars. When I was on the floor, I always looked for new opportunities to learn something," English said. "Today's buyer is pretty sophisticated. People demand a little more."

Susan lanni, general manager at Gordon Chevrolet in Garden City, said her salespeople don't negotiate pric-

"I don't know what they (NADA) offer. If it's to teach us how to treat customers, we don't need it," she said. "We learn that from our customers."

John Leary, director of training for Carlson Marketing Group in Troy, put together the training program

"It certainly is needed from a consumer point of view," Leary said. "Long-term, it's needed by salespeople. It will increase their professionalism, increase their sales.

"That's really the purpose of the program — to help salespeople sell in a more customer-friendly way, helping the customer rather than controlling the situation," he said. "The mindset of the program is that the salesperson is there to act as a sales consultant.

"WE'RE-SETTING about to make a fundamental change in the way the average consumer views the carbuying experience," Leary said.

"The answer on whether we're successful may be a few years down the road. If consumers look at the experience as a fun, interesting, positive . . . we will have succeeded."

· Carmel Weems, public information coordinator for the Better Business Bureau of Detroit and Eastern Michigan, likes the professional sales certification con-"The BBB is a strong advocate of self-regulation,"

she said. "The idea of setting up your own program. . and establishing your own standards is a great idea. "I think it will bring about a more positive image for dealerships," Weems said. "It would also bring about

"Some people inside and outside are going to be skeptical until we prove it makes a difference," Hopkins said. "It's a big change. It's something we're going to have to overcome."

Big job to bring circus to town

William Wagar and Charles Strong are in agreement. As children, neither one dreamt of running away to join the circus.

Then again, they're not too interested in joining now. It's hard work and a hard life, they say.

Now, that's not to say you won't finding them hanging around a circus because that's what they're doing these days. Hanging out at Woodward and Eight Mile, making sure the "Big Top" is a big hit.

The circus is the 84th Shrine Circus that opened Friday at the Michigan State Fairgrounds. The two Livonia residents have had an integral part in this year's produc-

Strong is Detroit Moslem Temple Shrine's Illustrious Potentate, while Wagar, at Strong's behest, is the circus director. Between the two of them, they've attended about a dozen circuses in cities throughout the Midwest, previewing acts for this year's circus.

And it's been no easy assignment. "I wake up at three in the morning thinking about it," said Wagar. "I started on this May 1 and have been working on it a minimum of 60 hours a week."

The Detroit Moslem Temple Shrine has been staging a circus since 1908. In fact, the first Shrine Circus started in Detroit but was called a carnival, Wagar said. As it grew in popularity, more acts were added, eventually evolving into the Shrine Circus.

It was probably the last time circus director William Wagar (left) and Moslem Temple Shrine Illustrious Potentate Charles Strong had a chance to rest. The two Livonia residents

FOR THE uneducated, there isn't a Shrine Circus per se that travels from city to city like the Barnum and Bailey Circus. Each temple does its own circus, contracting acts from a producer. In Detroit's case, that producer is the Tommy Hanneford Royal Circus.

Hanneford has two circuses that tour throughout the United States and it was from those two circuses that Wagar selected the 25 acts for this year's three-ring affair.

"I look for thrills," Wagar said of his selections, drawing a nod of agreement from Strong. "I look for acts that will have eye appeal for Longtime circus goers will remember the "Flying Wallendas" and their human pyramid, a mainstay of the Detroit Shrine Circus. It was in 1962 that two family members fell to their deaths and a third was paralyzed while performing the feat at the fairgrounds.

There also will be an "exceptional" horse act and a death-defying precision motorcycle team, the Cycle Gyros, Wagar said. Other traditional crowd-pleasers will be trapeze acts, acrobats, clowns, dog and

> "IT'LL BE the traditional threering circus," Strong said. "When there's something going on in one ring, there'll be something going on in the others rings, except when the lions and tigers are performing."

Working on the circus isn't new for Wagar. This is his "24th or 25th" year he's helped put it together, but it is his first as the director. You would think with that kind of experience, it would be an easy assign-

For a brief instant - very brief -I imagine how it feels to be a circus star. And as they say in the beer commercial . . . "It doesn't get better than this." Weeeeell, maybe.

Oh, how I remember all those trips to the Shrine Circus. That and the Saturday matinee at the Ice Capades were annual events in the Happ household.

I'm not sure if I yearned more to be in the box seats or one of those little clown dolls, dangling unceremonlously from a wooden stick, to take home as a souvenier.

Either way, both came true - almost. The clown wasn't hanging from a stick.

All those years, I sat with my family in the stands and watched the clowns, the lion tamers, the bareback riders and wished I could do that. And then, decades later, there I was perched on top of Tina, striking the circus star pose. "Look, Mom, no

Actually, that was the only part of her that didn't need a heavy dose of Lubriderm. Yes, Virginia, elephants have dry skin. We're talking really dry with a spattering of bristles that add to the coarseness.

I don't think I ever realized how big an elephant was until I stood nose to nose with Tina - or maybe that should read trunk to nose. The start of the dangling probosis wasn't anywhere near where mine was and where it was was wider than my head.

And those soulful eyes. They were a good foot above my head and set farther apart than my shoulders are

This was the creature I was going to climb on and ride around the ring. Trainer Mark Karoly provided a boost once I positioned my foot on Tina's foreleg. The boost got me to mid-shoulder, then it was up to me to drag myself up and over.

I thought I was a goner when she got up. I just knew I was going to get up close and personal with her backside as I slowly slid down it to the floor, but that sensation passed as the front came up, and there I was in modified nose bleed territory.

THE MAN responsible for the ride, Charlie Strong, illustrious potentate of the Moslem Temple Shrine had gotten me up there and then got Tina moving. At his urging Mark took Tina and myself for a stroll around the ring.

Let me tell you, when you ride an elephant, your fanny is straddling the animal's' shoulders. And we're talking WIIIIDE shoulders. Every step Tina took a shoulder blade moved up and and one moved down. The combined effect was getting jos-

Jiggle, Jiggle; shake, shake. Riding a paint mixer probably would have been less bumpy. We hadn't even made it around the ring once when I was telling Mark I felt like I was sliding off. Thankfully, he had a grip on my left ankle to keep me upright. Now, I know why elephant trainers. ride into the ring at a full trot.

I was ready for a quick dismount after the first trip around, but at Charlie's insistence, we did it one more time. That's when they asked for the circus pose. I accommodated. I think I let go of the harness long enough to get my hands mid-chest high. I know the smile had to look like something out of a cheap Hollywood horror film.

Ah, no thanks, Sue. And it's too hard on my gluttis maximus.

Writer wants to control life

Dear Ms. Green,

I enjoy reading your column and am very interested to see what you could tell me about myself. I am right-handed and 33 years old.

I would like very much to see my letter in print. Thank you.

Garden City

Looking at this left-slanted handwriting one may think it was written by a left-handed person, but this is not the case. The writer is right handed and 33 years old.

Within this young woman there is a basic conflict between dependency and independency. On the one hand, she wants to be independent and incontrol of her life. On the other hand, however, she has concerns about the future and is reluctant to move for-

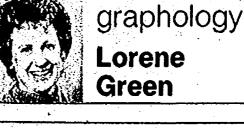

Growing up, our writer appears to have felt hurt or rejection. Although she was exposed to a great deal of criticism, she conceals her vulnerability behind a calm facade. Female influence from this period was strong with the result she may have a little difficulty with female authority figures.

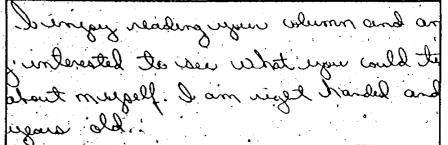

Although quite reserved, she often acts more outgoing than she inwardly feels. She has learned to "role play" rather successfully. Seemingly, she has a need for attention she missed earlier in her life.

A cautious nature allows her to pause and size up a situation. Before becoming actively involved, she will take time to decide whether this action is prudent. And also whether her self-interest would suffer from the consequences of said action. She appears to worry over everyday happenings.

Her personal life is not an open book and she can be secretive about some things. At times, she may be tempted to color the picture a little different than what it is to place herself in a more favorable light. Her imagination may cause her to get a tad carried away relating an experience or incident.

Don't spoil nature . . . leave only

Some lack of generosity toward commitments and possessions is seen in this handwriting.

Thinking is methodical and careful. She builds slowly in her mind until she has the total picture. Once in command of it, her memory is quite retentive. She also has good powers of observation.

Being open minded makes her capable of accepting others opinions and ideas. Her intellectual functioning benefits from the influx of new

Work is performed in an orderly fashion. She is dependable in her daily routine and does not like pressure deadlines.

Signature and the text of her handwriting are in harmony telling us she is the same in her private life as she is in her personal life.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. ment, but he admits that "it changes every year."

"There are times we fly by the seat of our pants and times when we use common sense and good judgment," he said.

When he first got involved with the circus, he was working for General Motors. Back then he would take two-weeks vacation to be at the fairgrounds during circus time. As he moved up in the company, he talked his boss into letting him work half days so he could be at the fairgrounds in the afternoon.

The circus is a major undertaking for the temple. More than 750 members are working at the fairgrounds, selling everything from programs to popcorn.

All of the money raised goes for the temple's operating expenses, a costly endeavor, considering the Masonic Hall in Detroit was built in 1922 and is, Strong said, "a very old building." All other Shriner fund-raisers go for its crippled children's programs and 22 Shrine hospitals.

THE TEMPLE is one of four in Michigan. It takes in 11 southeast Michigan counties and its boundaries run from Port Huron to Coldwater to Monroe and Pontiac. It has some 10,000 members.

Within the temple are several lodges of which the Shriners are one. To be a Shriner, a member must have their 32nd masonic degree. Even Strong's climb to highest temple post has spanned a half decade.

He went through five chairs (offices) - oriental guide, high priest and prophet, assistant rebban, chief rebban, and, finally, potentate. Each is a one-year term.

"And as part of being potentate, you have to put on the and die shop in Livonia, which while he addresses Temple needs, is being run by his daughter and four sons. Like Wagar, Strong is hoping for a good turnout for this year's circus. He hesitates to guess at how much money will be raised or even offer a hoped-for amount. He does admit the circus tends to do better in tough economic times.

"We have better luck now than when the economy is increasing," he said. "People recognize it as quality entertainment for a good price."

Good price? Tickets for the two-hour show are $5-9 Monday through Thursday and $6-10 Friday through Sunday for reserved seating. Some general admission tickets at $3 each are also available, Strong said.

And as a grabber, the Shriners will be giving away a child's bicycle during each show's 15-minute intermis-

"It's family oriented," Wagar said. "Even price-wise, it's the best entertainment for your money in the Detroit 1992 Shrine Circus will be at the Michigan State Fairgrounds, Woodward Avenue and Eight Mile Road, Detroit, through March 29. Tickets are available at the fairgrounds or TicketMaster Unlike Wagar, Strong has yet to retire. He has a tool gutlets.

Knowing plants pays off in green — leaves, that is

By Sue Mason staff writer

You say the leaves of your corn plant look as yellow as a ripe ear of corn. Your philodendron has as many tiny leaves as Munchkins for "The Wizard of Oz." And your ficus has developed a receeding leaf line.

Well, one of the causes could be abuse of the two most important things needed for green plants.

"The two most important things for green plants are water and light," said Colette Bielat of Sparr's Greenhouse in Plymouth. "Too much sun can bleach out a plant's leaves and, if poorly watered, the leaves can fade."

Bielat was the star attraction at the second of three winter luncheons staged by Schoolcraft College's Women's Resource Center. The fact that she grew up on a greenhouse truck farm that sold its plants at Eastern Market and trained in her parent's floral shop in Manistee came through in her presentation.

Bielat came armed with a variety of potted plants to educate luncheon goers on the how to's and how not to's of healthy plants.

According to Bielat, knowledge is an important tool in keeping plants healthy and a place to get the information needed is the library. Knowing about specific houseplants goes a long way toward a healthy relationship.

"High light would be a south window that's really sunny," she said. "Medium light is the east or west window and low light is a north window, A fiscus is notorious for dropping its leaves and the major cause is a lack of light.

"A PHILODENDRON will grow in low light but you'll get smaller leaves and with a pothos, a member of philodendron familly, you'll lose the varigation and get small leaves."

But excessive light can cause problems for plants. It can dry out a plant and cause it to wilt as well as bleach and fade the leaves, not to mention, causing scorch spots, she said.

That's why knowing about the plant is important. You don't want to put low to medium light loving plants like pothos, philodendron, bamboo palms and spider plants in high light areas that are favorites of most ivy plants,

And the same goes for watering. If you're looking for hall and hearty plants then good choices would be umbrella and jade plants and cactus.

"They can stand neglect," Bielat said. "You can water them every two months and they do fine."

But for plants that require more frequent refreshment, there's a proper way of doing it - that's if it's due for a watering. Not all plants require water on a weekly basis. Bielat recommends feeling the soil. You can stick you're finger in or use a modified cake testing method - inserting in a stick the size of a pencil.

"IF YOUR plants are on a schedule of once a week, you may be overwatering or underwatering," Bielat said. "With overwatering, the plant can wilt and there's no new growth. The lower leaves can turn yellow and drop off and the stems can turn mushy at the soil line because of root

"If you underwater, you can get wilt. The leaves will curl under, the leaf tips will turn brown and green leaves will drop off."

Bielat recalled a time when she was caring for plants at a church. The pastor, members of the Altar Society, even the janitor took turns watering the plants. "By the time I got there, there was water running all over the floor."

And when you water, it's best to water from the top of the plant and let it run out the bottom. If the pot sits in a saucer, the excess water should be drained off. Such watering leeches out salts that can kill a plant and the good accomplished by that is reversed if the plant is left to re-absorb the liquid.

Cacti, jade and yucca plants and bromeliads like drier conditions while azelias and certain ferns need moisture all the time. And the ideal temperature for plants is between 65-75 degrees. Anything colder than that can stunt the plants' growth, she said.

BIELAT ALSO recommended fertilizing once a month during the winter, when plants go dormant. During the summer months, plants reproduce tissue lost during cold weather and during the growing season should be fertilized every two weeks.

And taking your plants outside during the summer is healthy, but be sure to slowly introduce them to sunlight and temperature changes, Bielat said.

Now those tips may ensure green plants, but there are still some bugs you might have to work out.

If you see webs similar to spider webs on your plants, you'll be going to war with spider mites. If you're finding small white things on the stems and under the leaves, the challenger is mealy bugs and those brown bumps on leaves is scale.

Bielat recommends wiping the underside of leaves with denatured alcohol then using a good insecticide soap on the infected plant. If the problem is white fly, you'll need to spray the plant every 14 days until the problem is under control, she said.

AND A word to the wise about giving plants as gifts: Don't let the poor thing sit around for an extended period of time sealed up in florist's wrap. Plants produce an ethelyne gas and if kept sealed up it, they will literally gas themseives.

That is all plants except the bromeliad, which apparently is immune to the fumes. In fact, place a cut apple with a bromeliad in a plastic bag and you can force it to bloom, Bielat said.

As for flowering potted plants like mums, they can be planted outside after the first frost. But don't expect blooms right away.

You have to wait until they get on cycle to bloom again,' Bielat said. "And that usually takes a year."

Key of G takes Word to cable

By Sue Mason staff writer

It isn't quite the caliber of an MTV rock video. Heck, every now and then, Gail Carson messes up on the lip sync. But such miscues aren't stopping the Key of G from taking the "Leap" to the airwaves.

The Plymouth-based contemporary Christian rock group has parlayed cable TV community access training, donations and friendships into a series of videos, featuring 10 songs from its latest LP, "Leap of

"Working with this medium is fun and challenging; it's a whole new art form," said Carson of Plymouth Township. "It's a fantastic way to introduce Christian music through the secular world."

Carson is the group's driving force, handling the production and promotion chores along with the songwriting and vocals, no easy chore for the 29-year-old mother of two boys, ages 3 and 5.

Admittedly, a late bloomer on the music scene, she had been crafting "silly love songs and gospel songs" for years before approaching her husband's best friend, also a musician, about her music two years ago.

Carson was into classical and folk music, bass player Jeff Lightfoot was into heavy rock, but he decided to give her music a listen. What he found was a positive message, backed up with some straight music.

"Had she presented it to me five years earlier, I probably would have laughed or turned my nose up at it," the Livonia resident said. "But I found her stuff genuine, sincere and homey and that appealed to me."

ONCE THEIR interests merged, they decided to add guitarist Rick Zerndt of Garden City. He brings classic, acoustic and the electric guitar sounds to the group's music. Zerndt found the group through an advertisement in a Christian musicians network.

"I saw the ad and it sounded interesting, so I went over and listened to them," he said. "I thought they sounded greet."

And when the trio went into the studio this winter to work on "Leap of Faith" they called on drummer Larry Cunningham of Plymouth who performed on their first LP, "Take a Little Step." Carson hopes they can convince Cunningham to join the band on a more permanent basis.

"Leap of Faith" is a "fun rock" album for the group. Recorded at Christian Music Productions in Ypsilanti, the album features a mix of country rock, love songs, '50s rock'n'roll, Motown and reggae sounds.

And the fun is reflected in the videos. In one video, Carson dons a Carmen Miranda outfit, complete with a fruit salad hat. Props included a collection of tropical bird hand puppets from the Canton library and a pseudo steel drum made by her husband Daryl from an aluminum

IN ANOTHER, the studio was transformed into a '50s soda shop. Carson chuckles when she watches the first take. Amid the collection 45 rpm records on the wall is a more modern compact disc and there she is, sprawled on the floor, the victim of a clash between her rollerskates and recording cables.

It took three days to complete the 10 videos and it took as many photo shoots to come up with the cover for "Leap of Faith." The best photo was of the group on the Belle Isle Bridge, but with an album title like "Leap of Faith," Carson worrled people might get the wrong impression.

They settled for a cover that features the trio airborne while working out on trampolines at Joanne's Dance Extension in Plymouth.

Carson writes the basic words, melodies and chords for the songs. Lightfoot and Zerndt do the more intricate things that help flesh out the songs. It's a gradual process that can take weeks, even months, Zerndt said. "This is the most-well-organized group I've been in and Gall has the push to make things happen," he said. "This has been a dream of hers for a long time and she's really made a push for it."

"I'VE BEEN playing for about 15 years in other bands and basement groups and this is the first real band I've played for with this level of professionalism," added Lightfoot. "And it all boils down to maturity."

The group has been doing the cable talk show circuit of late, but has performed at local churches in Livonia, Caton and Northville and music festivals in Ypsilanti and White Lake, Carson would like to add the Ann Arbor Art Fair to the list.

"We're ready and it would be a really good ministry and a good place to air our music," she said.

And that hasn't been easy. The band by no means is getting rich. They barely broke even on their first album and to finance their latest one, Carson raised and sold eight of her nine purebred Vizsla pupples. But while they would like to land a contract with a major record label, they haven't lost track of why they're playing - to get the message of God to the people.

"The most important thing in this band is the message in the words, and to spread the word of the Lord," Lightfoot said. "Whether or not we get picked up by a major label, we'll still be playing."

AND THE videos are another way of getting that message out.

"My hope is that some day some one feeling really down and desperate would flip the channels on TV and get a laugh at what those crazy Christians are doing and then really think about the truth of what the music is talking about," . Carson said. "And that's exactly when God can make an impact on their lives.'

The videos will air at 7:30 p.m. March 19-20 on Channel 15 of Omnicom of Plymouth, Canton and Northville. According to Carson, they also are being picked up by Continental Cablevision in Westland, Metrovision of Livonia and Redford and MacLean-Hunter in Garden City.

The "Leap of Faith" album is in the final stages of completion and will be available wherever the group performs as well as by special order through Eden Books on Ford Road in Canton.

Copies also can be ordered by mail ($10 plus postage and handling) by writing Carson at 8850 Brookline, Plymouth 48170.

of Plymouth Township and Jeff Lightfoot of Livonia.

Fear of death clouds our thinking

My great-grandfather told many stories about his life out west following the Civil War. One of these stories is about how he encountered men who carried guns.

He told of an incident in the family's move from Ohio to Kansas. Several men rode near their wagon and shot to one side and to the other just for the fun of scaring them. At the next town, great-grandpa bought a

He then added another point to the story. After living in the west for a time, he noticed something. He realized that the men who were killed by guns were the very ones who were carrying guns. Great-grandpa decided not to carry a gun.

I believe that our society is still living like the old west in the 1860s. Not only do more and more people want guns; more and more people believe that violence solves problems. Unfortunately, most of us have not gotten to the stage at which great-grandpa realized he needed to put his gun away.

VIOLENCE AND death excite us. In the words of Matthew Fox, "We are an age which is busy with death." Think for a moment how death attracts our attention. Killings, abortion, the death penalty, assisted suicide, guns, movies such as "The Terminator," these and many more things direct our attention toward death.

Remember the war in the Middle East? People got excited. Yellow ribbons lined the streets of several suburbs. There was high energy genmoral perspectives Rev. David Strong erated by this war. We all became involved either supporting the war or opposing it.

By March of last year, it was all over. The yellow ribbons got dirty and ragged. Our souls and hearts felt the same way. Many in the majority who had opposed the war in the first place wondered why they had changed their minds. Why did they support it? We now know about the tragedy it has caused for thousands of children in Iraq. We wonder if anything has really been solved.

Only death excites us. With the Soviet Union no longer our enemy, Americans find it difficult to be excited about anything. Poverty, unemployment, homeless people, the need to repair our streets, our schools and our cities provide no excitement. Only a war or a good murder gets our juices flowing.

What is most often reported on . television and in the papers? A gruesome death will get us excited for at least several days. If this is not enough to convince us of the death orientation of our society, we simply need to notice our passion for guns. Like the use of drugs, guns are carried by younger and younger chil-

WE ARE FASCINATED by death,

yet we do not want to face it in a personal way. Gone are many of the beliefs that at one time helped us to face our own death. Thus, we become obsessed with the deaths of

The psychologist Rollo May beeves that our society's focus upon sex expresses an inability to deal with death. Sex is sought out as a means to control life in a world which seems increasingly out of control. By pursuing sex, we fool ourselves that we do not have to face

We fool ourselves that we are like the television ads. We are young and desirable and will always be this way. As long as we believe this, we will not have to think about decline

Great-grandpa learned in the old west that those who carry a gun are most apt to die by a gun. So it is that our obsession with things of death in this society leads us to more things of death. War begets more thoughts of war. More guns in the streets creates a market for even more guns.

Where does it all end?

FIRST, WE MUST be clear that death does not lead us to life. Only love and forgiveness can lead us to life. Religion must guide us to focus upon life. This focus must not be expressed in terms of another battle or another demand.

Life is a gift which becomes effective through love and forgiveness. Religion must also help us to deal with our own deaths. Religion must undergird the four pillars of a healthy society: the family, the schools, the neighborhoods and the churches and synagogues.

Second, we must deepen our understanding of what our obsession with death hides. Our death-oriented society fails to help us deal with the uncertainty, the fear we feel in the face of real or imagined threats. War, violence, guns seem to many people to be a way to defend ourselves.

Third, we should be clear that our deepest desires, our deepest struggles are finally a way we need to encounter God. A person can come to an understanding that death is our encounter with God. At one level, death is the opposite of life. At a deeper level, death is an encounter with a loving God.

-New-ways of thinking and new ways of acting need to be found which will shake us out of the death orientation we see all around us. Each person can do his or her part. Each of us can reject things that are oriented to death. We can seek the ways that lead to reconciliation and resolution.

The Rev. David T. Strong is the pastor of Central United Methodist Church in Detroit.

Memorial observes 50th year

In March 1942, a small group of Christians met in the Detroit home of Wilfred McIntosh for Bible school and church services. Today, 50 years later, the small group has grown to a congregation of 500 and has moved from Detroit to Livonia.

Memorial Church of Christ will observe those simple beginnings when members gather Friday-Sun-day, March 27-29, for a 50th anniversary celebration.

The festivities will kick off with a banquet Friday evening at the Holiday Inn in Livonia. Lawrence Downs, a former Memorial member who was ordained as a minister in 1961, will be the guest speaker. The music will be by Amy Emmert, wife of a former youth and associate pastor Chuck Emmert.

A video program and photographic displays depicting the church's history will be presented at the church Saturday morning. Max Copeland, a minister at Memorial from 1962 to 1973, will be the guest speaker. John Wright, an elder at Memorial who was ordained to the ministry in 1979 will also participate in the program.

BIBLE CLASS reunions will be held at-different locations in the afternoon for returning members and in the evening, a concert at the church will feature performances by the church choirs and past and present Memorial members.

The weekend will conclude at the Sunday worship services, with two past ministers returning for the celebration. Lloyd Taylor, who was minister from 1954 to 1962, will speak at the 8:15 a.m. service, and Lee Doty, who served the congregation from 1944 to 1953, will address members at the 10:45 a.m. service.

Three former Memorial members who are now ministers - Paul and Mark St. Louis and Bill Ely - as well as Emmert will participate in the worship.

Starting with 84 charter members. Memorial has undergone a number of changes during its 28 years in Detroit. It moved from the McIntosh house to Burns Elementary School, an American Legion Hall and Healy Elementary School until moving into a new church at Schoolcraft and Fenton in Detroit in 1960.

The congregation remained there until 1970, when it moved to its present location, a move prompted by the construction of the I-96 freeway.

MEMORIAL Church of Christ also has played a role in starting new churches in the metropolitan area. Presently, members are assisting in the start-up of the Southpoint Community Christian Church in the Woodhaven area.

The church also has a strong youth program with more than 160 children in preschool through high school activities; a new MOMS (Mothers Out for the Morning) to provide fellowship time for mothers and their children; a Women's Council that has taken on service projects like the First Step Shelter for battered women and children; and a Golden Agers group for seniors.

Mark McGilvery is the current minister, with Steve Allen as associate minister. Memorial Church of Christ is at 35475 Five Mile Road. For more information on the celebration, call 464-6722.

Journal provides memories of hike

When an animal finds an abundant source of food it develops a "search image." A search image enables an animal to find a source of food quickly and efficiently, Sometimes the animal may by-pass edible food while it is searching for the more abundant food.

One thing is for certain, the animals know how to find their food because they are observant. Hikers and naturalists can enhance their powers of observation by writing and drawing in a notebook.

Walking trails is enjoyable and fun, but knowing what is along the trail makes it even more enjoyable. Carrying field guldes for any eventual subject could be overwhelming, but a sketch pad and a notebook to record pertinent information are not heavy at all.

If you take the time to stop and sit and sense the surroundings, It is remarkable what you will observe. Writing down what you are viewing, or hearing, or smelling, or feeling, will help to codify the experience. Writing forces one to describe what is there and to put observations into perspective. It also stimulates deeper thoughts.

A written description can be long and flowery, or short and simple. No matter how it is written be sure to put a date and place notation. This will be helpful to know if comparisons are to be made in the future.

Complementing written descriptions with some drawings or illustrations will enhance a journal remarkably. Drawings do not have to be superior, they are just a means to help learn about a parficular subject. Many people feel they cannot draw, but a rough sketch with written descriptions in the margins to supplement your drawing, will add a great deal to the observation. Examining a subject closely enough to draw it will only enhance your appreciation and knowledge of the subject. A cursory examination does not define the detail that a more extended observation would.

Doing some sketching will also provide one with a greater appreciation for those professionals who create some marvelous paintings and sculptures of wildlife they have experienced.

This weekend, March 21 and 22. the Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation is sponsoring a wildlife art show at the Southfield Civic Center. There will be plenty of fine art, along with speakers and a marketplace. Its a great opportunity to talk with artists and to see various styles and techniques.

Creating a journal will improve your observations, provide descriptions for future identifications, and provide nostalgic reading in the fu-

A former Livonia Public Schools art instructor will be among seven alumni honored at the Wayne State University Arts Achievement Awards ceremony March 28 in the McGregor Memorial Conference Center.

Alumnus Sharon McColl will receive her award for dance. She's artist-in-residence at the State Arts Council of Oklahoma.

In other residencies, she focused on elementary and secondary schools and provided dance experiences for preschool handicapped students and mentally retarded students.

She provided art education at the University of Oklahoma School of Music and Central State University School of Health.

For the Oklahoma State Department of Education, she planned and introduced training institutes for coordinators, teachers, administrators and .selected educators/artists.

The annual awards program is part of a two-day Celebration of the Arts Friday-Saturday, March .27-28, to showcase creative arts programs and events unique to the university.

Come celebrate! To celebrate its 10th anniversary, the Canton Historical Society will host an open house 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, March 21 at the Canton Historical Museum, Proctor and Canton Center roads, south of Cherry Hill. Refreshments will be

In addition to periodic special exhibits, the museum boasts three permanent exhibits, which spotlight the history of the township's farms, villages and schools. Other regular displays serve up tidbits from early Canton life.

A new alcove display shows a ·turn-of-the century family washday scene.

The current special exhibit features DeVileiss perfume atomizers, loaned by a private collector. The Toledo-made set dates from the 1920s. The 30piece set includes accessories like powder boxes, trays and a perfume nightlight.

IF THE recession and road work weren't bad enough, Nelson's received another blow recently when its neighbor, Baker Street Interiors, announced plans to move to downtown Farmington. The Palette Guild's spring art show, featuring watercolor, acrylic, oil, pastel, graphite, colored pencil and collage, awakens the Livonia City Hall lobby with bright red tulips, geraniums and petunias through March 27.

Fifteen Guild artists display florals, landscapes, portraits and still life in the tradition of realism and abstraction in the 73-piece exhibition judged by Marie Larson, who teaches oil portrait and figure painting at the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association. "The show is hung so that the colors kind of flow. We wanted a nice showing, a nice interplay with the work, a certain amount of watercolor, a certain amount of oil," said Guild president Callie Thomson of West Bloomfield.

"I hate to see a show that's all watercolor or all oil. We wanted all of the media to be represented in the prizes."

Thomson took first place for the collage, "Underfoot," a dark dynamic work with a woodsy feel. "I love to work on a black background," Thomson said. "It doesn't mean there isn't color in there. They're very subtle."

Take literary peek behind silver screen

One of my earliest, most vivid memories: my older sister and me, seated in the balcony at Grauman's Chinese Theater in Hollywood, watching Walt Disney's animated short film "Saludos Amigos."

I must have been about 3 years old then. It's hard to remember a time In my life when I wasn't crazy about movies. I mean really freaked out. Good movies, bad movies, in-between movies - I'll watch just about any movie ever made.

This is not to say that I don't have a Favorites List, of course, Every discriminating movie freak has one of those. Right now, mine is headed by "2001," "Deliverance," "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," "We Were Strangers" and "Chinatown," although not necessarily in that or-

Naturally, since I love to read, reading about movies, moviemakers and moviemaking is one of my favorite pastimes.

What more enjoyable way to savor "The African Queen," for example, than to read Katharine Hepburn's lively 1987 memolr, "The Making of the African Queen"? Except perhaps to read director John Huston's account of things in "An Open Book" (1980). And, speaking of John Huston, how better to acquaint yourself with the nitty-gritty of filmmaking than to study Lillian Ross' "Picture" (first published in 1952), which centers on the creation of his film "The Red Badge of Courage"?

HERE, A list of recently published books that can take fans behind-the-

• "Fred Zinneman: An Autobiography," by Fred Zinneman (Scribners/Stewart, $29.95). This memoir by the Oscar-winning director is a sparkling treasure for all film buffs. Zinneman reminisces about the making of such classics as "From Here to Eternity" (its upbeat ending, he says, "makes me sick every time I see it"), "High Noon" and "Oklahoma!" other films. Of all his movies, Zinneman names "A Member of the Wedding" (1952) as his favorite, even though, commercially, it was a resounding failure. Splendid photos.

 "Martin Scorsese: A Journey," by Mary Pat Kelly (Thunder's Mouth, $21.95). A large, stellar cast of characters, including Robert De Niro, Liza Minnelli, Paul Newman, Sting and Scorsese himself provide the dialogue for this engrossing look into Scorsese movies like "Raging Bull," "Taxi Driver," "The King of Comedy," and others. The book also contains preview material from Scorsese's latest film, "Cape Fear," plus notes on some intriguing future

All 423 pages are devoted to the making (unmaking?) of one movie: "The Bonfire of the Vanities," from Tom Wolfe's megaseller novel. think business will get better. Nothing can last forever," she

Last year also brought tough times to D & M Art Studio & Cooperative Galiery in Plymouth, which sells original work by Michigan artists priced from $50 to $900.

"This has been a tough year and a scary one," said owner Sharon Dillenbeck, whose business has dropped about 35 percent compared to a year ago.

"A lot of friends have lost their galieries or have gone into smaller places. It takes a lot of money to run a gallery and it's just not there," she said.

SINCE DILLENBECK sells on consignment, she has reduced her fee from 40 to 20 percent so artists can lower their prices. To reduce overhead, artists who show work at D & M volunteer to work at the gallery one day a month.

Dillenbeck also has beefed up advertising and, like Nelson's Gallery, has increased the number of parent-and-child workshops, especially during school breaks.

'All of the galleries are networking to help each other," she said "Commissions are down, but if I get a request for something I can't do, I'll recommend another local gallery or artist."

Last November, Dillenbeck and Julie Giordano, a Northville gallery owner, organized a bus tour of 10 galleries in Northville and Plymouth "just to let people know what was in their own community." Gallery owners chipped in to rent double-decker buses from Dearborn Trolley and just about broke even on the one-day event, Dillenbeck said.

BUSINESS AT Native West Gallery in downtown Plymouth hasn't decreased, but customers are choosing modest-priced prints over limited editions and other higher-priced art like acrylics and watercolors, said owner Becky Dodson, who sells original southwest art, rugs and jewelry.

With the recession came the downtown closing of Me & Mr. Jones, Fred Hill Haberdashery and Cloverdale Ice Cream Parlours & Restaurant — closings that did little to bolster consumer confidence in Plymouth, Dodson said. er confidence in Plymouth, Dodson said.

For now, Dodson will stock more modest-priced art than she did a year ago, but she'll also start selling Navajo rugs, priced at $150 to $3,000 and sandpaintings priced as high as $2,000.

UNLIKE ITS competition, Wentworth Gallery, headquartered in Miami, Fla., is going ahead with ambitious plans to open 12 new locations throughout the country this year. Their newest opened Feb. 29 in Laurel Park Place Mall in Livonia.

An optimistic Michael O'Mahony, company president and CEO, reports that sales in all 22 of his galleries are well ahead of previous years. He believes his galleries thrive in spite of the times for three reasons: right mix of merchandise, right price, Though O'Mahony says there's no magic to selling art, his company does extensive market research before setting up shop. All of his galleries are in upscale malls like Laurel Park, which also includes Jacobson's, Ann Taylor, Gantos and Talbots (coming this spring).

Wentworth sells oils, sculptures and numbered lithographs and serigraphs by 40 renowned artists from the U.S. and Europe. Prices range from $100 to $50,000, with the greatest number of sales in the $300 to $4,000 range.

O'MAHONY SAYS his galleries have an "art-friendly" atmosphere to encourage browsing: the door is always open and the gallery is brightly lit.

"I find it very offensive to walk into a gallery and be asked, 'Are you a collector?'." he said. "You don't have to be to appreciate fine art. Everyone starts by owning his or her first plece of

You could say Wentworth Galleries also gives customers an offer they generally can't refuse. They'll deliver and even hang your selection at no charge. And if you can't decide what to buy, they'll deliver as many as 20 paintings to your home, so you or a designer can see the work with your furnishings and lighting.

Said O'Mahony of the recession: "I'm refusing to take part in

Livonia art fest spotlights color

work speak of skills learned during the many years spent in advertising. "I like all kinds of color. I see colors in people's skin that others don't, bluish and peach tones," Henry said.

Two one-person shows at the Scarab Club in Detroit, two at Livonia City Hall and two at the Farmington Community Library demonstrate an advanced degree of maturity in Henty's work.

Henry plays with the sun and shadows it casts upon foliage in "Orchids No.II." The stem holding up the cluster of moth orchids looms upward, leading the viewer's eye to translucent petals, pale pink and lyrical. A huge old snarling tree on the left contrasts the orchid's delicacy and the foliage's sharp lines.

THIRD PLACE winner Rose Marie Starke of Farmington Hills rendered "Breakfast in the Garden" in colored pencil. In this whimsical piece two rabbits, jolted to attention by an unseen sight or sound nibble beet leaves in a vegetable garden. Their beige fur is accented by hints of white rimming their eyes, noses, ears and tails.

Judging for the spring show went according to Guild guidelines, Thomson said. 🕠

"You should give the judge guidelines. They've got to judge on technique, use of color and design. Art is art. There are the rules and it should be judged on the basics."

Organized in 1954, the 58-member Palette Guild takes pride in that its numbers run smaller than most art clubs. "We're a quality club and because we have fewer members, we. relate more on a one-to-one basis," Thomson said.

An in-house critique session of works in the spring show took place at the Guild's monthly meeting a week previous to the city hall open-

"We view our peers works, add our comments. Everyone adds something. It's kind of nice because it gives you an idea how it is going to hit someone else," Thomson said.

HONORABLE MENTIONS went to Evelyn Henry for "Lola Valley." Madeline Tabock for "Winter Delight," Marlene Zazoulinsky for "Birch Walk," Rose Marie Starke for

"The judge couldn't decide between the two by Betty Shaw so she awarded her two honorable mentions," Henry said,

WILDLIFE ART

The wild ones will return for the ninth annual running of the Michigan Wildlife Art Festival, Friday-Sunday, March 20-22, in Southfield.

The annual benefit for wildlife restoration is designed to raise public consciousness about the needs of wildlife by exhibiting the best in wildlife art.

For the first time in many years, all festival activities and exhibits will be in one facility, the Southfield Civic Center, on Evergreen between 10 and 11 Mile.

All festival admissions and art purchases are direct investments in the wildlife work of the Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation. The festival is produced by the foundation in cooperation with the city of Southfield. For information about becoming a sponsor or to receive a schedule of events, call the foundation at 517-882-3630.

The Southfield Pavilion will be the site of the largest exhibition of wildlife art in the Midwest. More than 50 of the USA's premiere wildlife artists will display hundreds of paintings, prints, carvings, etchings, bronzes, photography and scratchboard. All art work at the festival will be for sale.

The festival will feature "The Federal," a montage of the present, past and most interesting details of 58 years of the Federal Duck Stamp Program.

Also present will be the last three winners, including the only woman to ever win, three of the top four finishers in 1992, the top 20 original entries and the only brothers to ever win the contest. The U.S. Department of Interior will present an exhibition, "The Duck Stamp Story."

The 1992 featured artist is Al Agnew of • CRAFTY ENCOUNTER Ste Genevieve Mo Agnew's red for painting, "Running Wild," will be the festival print and given to all habitat sponsors. Sponsors will also receive two tickets to the

Buyers stand to gain with consumer information

staff writer

Behind all the fancy words relating to marketing, financing and product, residential real estate is still a consumer transaction with a buyer and seller at each end.

Carol Hainline, a Realtor for nine years and currently president-elect of the Society of Consumer Affairs Professionals in Business, Great Lakes Chapter, has applied some tips she's learned from involvement in that organization to her workaday world.

"In real estate, our customers are consumers as well," Hainline said. "They are making one of the largest financial decisions of their lifetime. It should be looked at as an investment as well as a place to live."

Hainline, a Livonia resident, also works in that community at Century 21 Row.

"I provide a lot of information to consumers, not just sales," she said. "There's mortgages, condition of houses as far as inspections . . . information about what to look for in a home, investment potential, what neighborhood will resell.

"I do it (consumer affairs) differently than corporations. I do it more on an individual basis," she said.

HAINLINE RECALLS taking to heart the message of a luncheon speaker, John Knappenberger, affiliated with the American Society for Quality Control. "When he talked about quality, he talked about not only products, but services," she said.

"In general, there's a lot of seminars and publications, little hints about going out of the way to help customers," Hainline said of membership in the association.

Specifically, she has learned to:

• Carry a cellular telephone in her purse. "If I'm out of range, I have a message beeper. I'm always available. Customers can't get frustrated if they can't reach'me."

 Look for ways to cut down busy work. "We're independent contractors. Generally each individual goes to the banks on their own to get information. I contact people in community affairs (at banks) and ask, 'Can you send me 100 pamphlets?' It helps them, promotes the bank and helps me as well."

• Make contacts to keep current of events that could impact her business. "A lot of information is available to me. Knowing what's going on with the economy and what's going on with a company can help me with job insights."

ONE EXAMPLE she cited knowing in advance about the possibility of the GM Willow Run Assembly Plant closing and potential impacts on the local real estate market.

"Sometimes, I'm facing a little downturn in the economy," Hainline. said. "I can discuss with Credit Counseling to see how it affects their business . . . and how I can advise my customers so'they don't get into (adverse) credit situations."

The Great Lakes Chapter maintains a video and publications li-, brary for members that address a variety of consumer affairs issues, she said. Monthly luncheons and seminars also provide an opportunity to learn and network.

"Most people are involved in consumer affairs at some point whether they realize it or not," Hainline said. "Most people in sales or public relations are involved with a customer one way or another."

Real estate professionals and others interested in joining the Society of Consumer Affairs Professionals in Business should con-. tact Hainline at her office, 464-7111. Dues are $95 the first year.

I understand there are new tax advantages having to do with home sales. One regarding a delay in a tax on the appreciation of the home and the other regarding an exclusion for persons age 55 and over. Can you explain this?

. The new rules are potentially simple tax breaks that may be a trap for the unwary. If you sell your house and buy another within two years before or two years after the sale date, you can defer taxation of the gain from the sale of the old house as long as the cost of the new house at least equals the sales price (minus certain expenses) of the old. This does not include special rules for military service people and job-related foreign moves.

If the new house costs less than the old, then some of the gain on the old will have to be recognized to the extent of the difference. Both the old and new houses must be principal residences. The deferral of gain is not optional - if you meet the requirements of the tax law, you must not report the gain.

As to the exclusion to which you refer, taxpayers who are 55 or older can elect to exclude up to $125,000 of gain on the sale of a principal residence. Taxpayers must have used the house as a principal residence for at least three out of the five condo queries years before the sale. There is a special rule for taxpayers who require care in a nursing home or other fa-

If you qualify for this break, you can subtract up to $125,000 from whatever gain you have on the sale of your house in figuring your tax liability. But the exclusion is available only once in a taxpayer's lifetime.

Beware of the potential trap because a married couple is treated as a unit for purposes of the $125,000 exclusion. Thus, if a couple owns a house in joint name, and only one spouse is 55 or older and satisfies the three out of five years rule, then both can elect the exclusion on a joint return. But once a spouse has used the break, the couple is "tainted," and the "taint" stays with both spouses wherever they go.

If the couple divorces, or if one spouse dies, the break cannot be used again with a new spouse. So if a home-owning taxpayer who has not used the break marries a divorced or widowed taxpayer who has used it, that couple cannot use the break. If a couple is contemplating marriage and both are homeowners who would qualify for this break, they should consider selling both homes before marriage if circumstances otherwise favor such a move.

In determining what is a principal residence, if taxpayers have more than one house, only the house in which they live most of the time will qualify. In that regard, a co-op, condo, houseboat, trailer or yacht can qualify. Renting out the old house for a short period will not prevent the house from being a princiapl residence under these rules. PLEASE READ THIS NOTICE CAREFULLY.

WHAT YOU MUST DO TO OBTAIN RELIEF In order to be eligible, you must return the claim form below or write to the Clerk of the Court, 133 U.S. Courthouse, Detroit, Michigan 48226 (ATTN: GRACE V. CITY OF DETROIT, Case No: 90-CV-70178-DT) no later than April 1, 1992. THE LEGAL RIGHTS OF ALL NON-RESIDENT APPLICANTS FOR EMPLOYMENT WITH THE CITY OF DETROIT BETWEEN APRIL 17, 1987 AND APRIL 5, 1991 WILL BE AFFECTED BY THIS LAWSUIT. YOUR FAILURE TO RETURN THE CLAIM FORM OR TO WRITE TO THE COURT BY APRIL 1, 1992, WILL PRECLUDE YOU FROM RECOVERING ANY RELIEF IN CONNECTION WITH THIS LAWSUIT. Any questions may be addressed to the attorney for the class: JOHN R. RUNYAN, Sachs, Nunn, Kates, 1000 Farmer, Detroit, Michigan 48226, (313) 965-3464. All pleadings may be reviewed at the Clerk's Office, 133 United States Courthouse, 231 W.

Lafayette Blvd., Detrojt, Michigan 48226.

NATURE OF THE LAWSUIT On April 17, 1990 three unsuccessful applicants for employment with the City of Detroit Frought a lawsuit challenging the City's policy of rejecting those who were not residents at the time of application. On March 5, 1990, the Court determined that the lawsuit could proceed on behalf of a class (group) composed of all past, present and future applicants for employment with the City of Detroit, including those who would have applied but for the City's pre-employment residency requirement(s), whose applications have since April 17, 1987, been discouraged, delayed, denied, refused or rejected on the basis of the City's pre-employment residency requirement(s).

NATURE OF COURT'S RULING On April 5, 1991, the Court ruled that the City of Detroit's pre-employment residency requirements result in an impermissible burden on the fundamental right to travel and are therefore unconstitutional (unlawful). The pre-employment residency rules struck down by the Court include the requirements (1) that applicants for general City employment be residents of the City at the time of application, (2) that applicants for employment as police officers shall have established permanent residence in the City of Detroit at least 60 days prior to application; and that non-residents of the City shall not be certified for employment (regardless of their position on the eligible register) as long as there are Detroit residents on the register. At the same time, the Court recognized that the City had the right to require residency of those who actually do become City employees. CLAIM FORM

Cost and location are among the top factors for choosing an office site. But other less obvious factors such as prestige, address and even proximity to the CEO's home are often considered before a lease is signed. Above are Seven Mile Crossing (left) and Victor V, both located in Livonia.

Subtle factors influence choice of office location

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

The economy is slow, and there is little growth — we know that. Office leasing is flat - we know

Any leasing that is going on is just a result of a lease expiring — or to put it in the vernacular, it's all musical buildings - we know that. What we don't know is why one Location, location is critcal in every real estate transaction. but location in relation to what?

Developers spend thousands of dollars on architects for plans, but how important is that?

A tony Birmingham zip code adds distinction for a house, but does it mean anything to an office?

According to Jerome L. Reiss, an office specialist with Burland, Reiss, Murphy & Remblesa Inc. in Southfield, prospective tenants want efficiency, not necessarily price.

In any given market, competition between offices governs leasing prices, he said. "Price will seek its own level."

Since most buildings will have similar leasing rates, Reiss explained efficiency is a better determiner of what space will lease.

Efficiency in an office building means several things, Reiss said-Naturally, the office should have enough space to meet tenant present and future needs.

For a growing company, that means room to expand. For a mature company, that means space to meet existing needs. It also means how adapable a property is to needs.

Efficiency also means location, but it's not necessarily an address or zip code that attracts tenants, he

A business that has frequent visicerned with space and basic needs.
Chaben stressed it's difficult to speculate what a potential tenant looks for in an office building. "Each potential tenant has specific needs and specific wants."

REISS OF Burland, Reiss, Murphy & Rembiesa agreed. An upscale community or building is important for some; for others, it's not.

Is the office going to have clients office as a central headquarters? If clients visit, potential tenants want an office that is easy to find access to roads and airports, good parking, and easy to find.

tors may also want a more glitzy building to put on its best face for clients, he said. If a tenant uses the office as a headquarters, but mostly works in the field, a firm can do without the frills and be more con-

Cost still biggest factor in leasing

staff writer

No matter how nice a building looks, no matter where it's located, no matter what other perquisites an office building has to offer - the greatest concern of all potential tenants is cost, sald Steven Chaben, executive vice president at Farbman Stein & Co. in Troy.

Today, there are two things motivating people to move - number one is downsizing, number two is economics," he said.

With companies cutting their work force, they obviously don't need as much space, he sald.

Economics, naturally, speaks for itself. The tenant wants the most space and best address and amenities for his dollar, he said. Right now, that is the overriding concern of tenants looking for office space.

In a competitive market, comparable buildings would have comparable lease rates, which means that other, non-financial considerations might make a difference in how an office building is leased.

BUT IN A competitive, overbuilt market suffering from a recession, there are other factors at work. Two identical office buildings in the same area may have drastically different lease rates.

Lately, there has been a steady stream of foreclosures hitting the market.

After a building owner defaults on a loan, the lending institutions takes control of property. The lending institutions' primary concern is to break even and collect on the debt, not make a profit that is necessary to pay of a loan.

Therefore, the lending institution can undercut other building owners who need the profit margin. The result: More tenants go to the less expensive buildings.

Building owners either lose tenants and cannot make their loan payments or they try to match the lending institutions rates and have full buildings but still can't make their payments.

"More than likely, the en-frepreneur is going to lose his prop-erty," he said, adding this will lead to more foreclosures.

"It's a domino effect," As more lenders foreclose on buildings, the rates are dropping below levels where building owners can compete, he said.

"After he (the prospective tenant) has worked the competitive julces of the market and it comes to applesand apples comparison, it's all up to the individual needs and wants of the company," he said.

"If you get beyond that, your talking non-economic factors and that's really not worth editorializing

A tony address and architectural flourishes are generally more important for firms seeking prestige. "All other things being equal, prestige can be very important."

Reiss related a story of an advertising firm he set up in a prestigious office building.

'Basically, they didn't want a "Location means proximity to the high-prestige image anymore they didn't want to have better quarters than their customer," he said. Reiss said he found them a plain, but

Several years later, when that lease had expired, the company contacted him about another move this time to nicer quarters.

"There was a change in management philosophy - they went from less expensive to very expensive because they felt the nice offices would help them to attract new clients," Reiss said.

PAT PULKOWNIK, president of the Patrician Group, said in her experience it is still location that leases office space. Proximity to clients, proximity to airports, proximity to the road network - firms need to be near clients.

But one factor that isn't often discussed, but which is important concerning location, is convenience for the chief executive of the company. "Daily drive time for the CEO can make the difference - he always wants a location that is closer to home.

"One of the things I do in the first interview is find out where the (chief executive) lives," Pulkownik said.

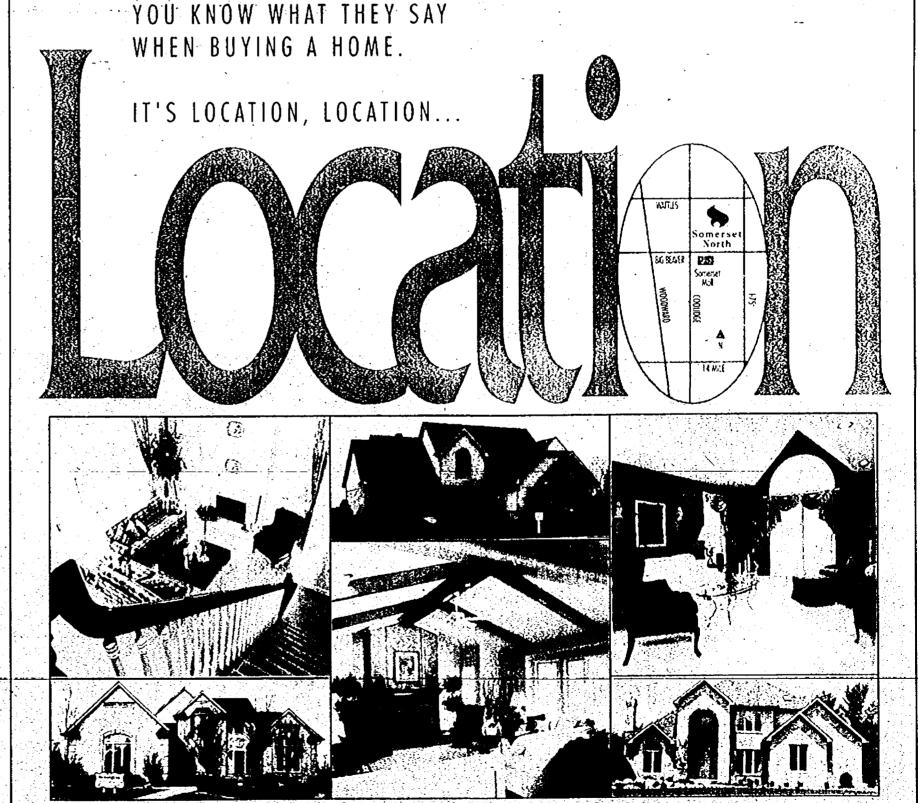

Many companies are also concerned about where employees live when considering an office move. Less disruption for the employees means less disruption in the workplace. The third critical area to consider is the landlord. Early on in the process. Pulkownik said she likes to set up a meeting between the tenant and landlord. "Tenants want to see how easy the landlord is to live with. I want the tenant to be satisfied," she said. "If he's not, the tenant will badmouth

Preparation key to reducing stress on moving day

By R.J. King special writer

For anyone buying or selling a home these days, negotiating with mortgage lenders, real estate agents and home inspectors is nothing compared to moving day,

If unorganized or unprepared, get set for both physical pain and mental anguish. Even under the best of conditions, moving from one home to another can bring on stress in the worst way. Perhaps the most important consideration in moving, according to area experts, is whether homeowners can afford professionals to do all the transporting.

In most cases, a full-service move across state lines will run $3,000, and will cost more than a do-it-yourself move. A full-service move within metro Detroit will run roughly $500 to $600. But if you have the money and are considering spending it on something else, calculate what your time is worth per hour and how many hours it would take to move. pack and unpack without any help. Then factor in the cost of renting or borrowing a truck, gasoline, something breaking in transit and physical wear and tear. (See box.)

"Cost really depends on how much people want to do," said Wayne Daniels, president and CEO of R.J. Liddy Moving and Transport in Plymouth Township, "If you pack everything yourself, mark the boxes, and are waiting when the movers arrive, it will be a lot less expensive.

'If you're planning a move up north, think about what will be packed. It doesn't really pay to haul timber or gardening stones because you can get that stuff a lot cheaper by buying it after you've settled."

In a given metropolitan area, most movers charge by the hour (about $50 to $70). The price includes two or three movers, depending on the size of a home. Sayvy customers may also get movers to lend them used boxes at little or no cost.

Outside metro boundaries, though, the cost of a move is based on the weight of the shipment and the distance to be traveled. But again, the more work you do beforehand will reflect on the final price. While most moving companies provide free estimates, as a general rule, figure about 1,000 to 1,500 pounds per room, using the higher figure for ap-

The time of the move is also important.

"Most movers charge more for Sundays and holidays, but if we're booked on a Saturday and you really have to move, we may waive the extra Sunday cost at our discretion." said JoAnn Clark, office manager of All State Van Lines in Troy.

away, people can also save by making trips on their own and putting things like kitchen Items away when no one is around. That way, you can have the movers take care of the heavy stuff and save time." Another way to save money is to cut down on possessions. Movers recommend having a garage sale before an estimator comes to the house. Pitch or give away items that can be easily replaced. In addition, large items like dressers can be left intact as movers will lift them regardless of whether clothing is inside or not.

"If you're not moving too far On the morning of the move, save a few empty boxes for such items as coffee makers, overnight linens and bathroom towels.

In hiring a professional, buyers should check that both the company and individual movers are licensed and carry insurance. State law also requires that movers have current physicals. In turn, while it may be cheaper to pack boxes yourself, consider that liability for damaged goods such as broken crystal shifts to the homeowner, unless a mover happens to drop a box somewhere along the line.

to people which outlines everything you need to know about moving." said Jenni Page, office manager for O'Sullivan Moving & Storage Co., Inc., which has offices in Farmington Hills and Rochester.

"Generally, if the mover packs the boxes and something breaks along the way, then the mover is responsibie. But if the customer packs the box, and the dishes wind up broken after the move, the customer is responsible.".

One way to avoid some liability is to pack everything but the most favor.

"We have a free brochure we send fragile items yourself. In addition, some movers will lend furniture pads and Styrofoam inserts at no extra charge. As for the do-it-yourself move, it pays to have friends, especially those who work for automotive companies.

> Such people may have the clout to borrow a free van for the weekend. Friends also won't charge for their . services, although tradition mandates a homeowner spring for lunch or dinner. But keep in mind that someday yoù may have to return the

The Environmental Protection Agency also would be required to make a detailed assessment of radon contamination and establish "radon priority" areas, estimated to cover about one-third of the country, where high levels of the gas are considered most likely.

Within those areas: • People seeking a mortgage must be given the radon health risk information and details about how to obtain a radon inspection.

me for putting him in the building."

If the landlord keeps his word, keeps the building maintained and takes care of problems quickly, that will go a long way toward cementing a lease agreement, Pulkownik said.

REISS OF Burland, Reiss, Murphy & Rembiesa said building ownership or management does play an important role.

A full-time, professional, nearby ownership should also not be discounted, Reiss said. "For a more sophisticated type of corporation - that's important.

"A busy professional who has a problem with his office does not want to chase some guy in Florida around all day to get it resolved," he said. "We as brokers, bring this out up front."

Pulkownik said amenities like auxiliary and commercial services near the building also score fairly high on tenant preference lists, he said. Banks, hotels or retail space that cater to the specific needs of a company in the building or nearby are also a big plus.

Security and lighted parking has also become a far more important issue for tenants as well.

A building's appearance should also not be overlooked, she said. For the most part, architecture is a given. "A building has to look nice."

Still, the corporate culture and type of business may limit the type of architecture and design appropriate for a given tenant, she said. Some tenants may demand a more traditional-looking building or more contemporary building.
