Nearly two-thirds of Wayne-Westland 10th-graders didn't score high enough on the state's last student achievement test to qualify for a state-endorsed diploma in 1994 their graduation year, school officials have confirmed. Officials said 588 of 969 sophomores at John Glenn and Wayne Methe scores they need on the state MEAP (Michigan Educational Assessment Program) test.

School officials confirmed the numbers Thursday during an inquiry by the Observer. Many of the 58 sophomores enrolled in the Cherry Hill alternative school program shared the same fate, officials said.

Concerns about the diploma controversy were raised with the Observer by David Moranty, chairman morial high schools failed to achieve of the Wayne-Westland Citizens for

Despite the poor MEAP scores, 10th-graders won't necessarily miss out on a state-endorsed diploma in 1994 and have to merely settle for a local attendance diploma, school officials sald. Students will be allowed to retake the test in hopes of achieving higher scores.

News of the potential test fallout began to reach students and parents during last week's parent-teacher conferences - five months after 10th-graders took the MEAP test. Moranty criticized the delay of information and predicted that some parents will be furious.

LOCAL EDUCATORS indicated that state officials are to blame for failing to advise local districts of the seriousness of the latest MEAP test.

"These kids actually took this test not knowing they would have to pass it to get a state-endorsed diploma," said Ron Somers, Wayne-Westland's executive director for instruction and planning.

The new rules, which also will apply to the classes of 1995 and 1996, are part of the 1991 state school aid act. A move is under way to require graduating seniors in 1997 and beyond to pass an even more stringent, specially designed state proficiency test to receive their state-endorsed diplomas.

Major crime rate increases in city showed.

Westland crime rates increased for murder, rape, robbery, assault, burglary and car theft last year, newly released state statistics

Police blamed the increase on the recession and beefed-up street patrols that placed police officers closer to crimes and victims.

An ailing economy tends to drive up crime rates, Westland police Inspector Emery Price said. But he placed even more emphasis on increased street patrols.

"If we put more people on the street, we're going to have more contact with the citizens. Inevitably, if we have more contact with the citizens, then we're going to have more (crime) reports," Price said.

Westland recorded three murders in 1991, all in the last half of the year, compared to only one in 1990.

On Aug. 4, 46-year-old Sami Saleh was shot to death at his Westland Circle Apartment on the southeast corner of Joy and Hix roads. Police blamed the death on a dispute with his 37-year-old brother, Samih Saleh, who is scheduled for trial next month on a charge of first-degree murder.

THE SECOND murder occurred on Oct. 13, when Manuel "Joe" Bernal was found stabbed to death at his 625 Lansdowne residence, which had been set afire. No arrest has been made, and Westland police are continuing the investigation.

The year's last murder happened on Nov. 15, when 19-year-old Everett Earl Bowen Jr. was shot to death in what police described as a soured drug deal on the football field of Adams Junior High School. Police arrested four teenagers, including three John Glenn High School students, whose trial on murder charges is expected later this year.

Among other major crimes patterns last year:

• Rapes increased 4.6 percent from the previous year, climbing from 43 cases to 45. Some of those occurred during a series of rapes reported at or near the Hampton Court Apartments.

• Robberles jumped 9.8 percent from 81 confirmed cases to 89. Of those, 34 involved firearms, 11 knives. Other dangerous weapons were used in 13 cases, while strongarm robberies were attributed to 31

 Aggravated assaults increased 17.4 percent, climbing from 304 incidents to 357. Guns and knives accounted for about half the cases, and lesser weapons for the remainder.

Future drivers must pass in classroom

Wayne-Westland district high school students planning to sign up for driver education this summer had better make sure they pass at least four subjects this spring.

That's part of the requirements the school board recently approved, based on the Michigan High School Athletic Association's standards for all non-academic programs' eligibli-

Board member Kathleen Chorbagian said the standards are 'long overdue" and that teens should view a driver's license as a privilege.

Deputy superintendent Thomas Svitkovich told the board that about 700 teens apply each summer for the driver education program.

The board action follows state legislative approval of a new law which allows local boards to set eligibility requirements for students registering for the driving class.

The new rule also applies to students in the parochial schools in the area, but Svitkovich said he wasn't sure how it relates to commercial driving schools.

He said the schools will take several steps to make sure local students are aware of the change. Syitkovich said that the new rule may be a problem for students who had to drop a class to avoid failing because of excessive absenteeism.

He told the board that 5 to 10 percent of the potential driver education students may not be eligible this summer.

Since the district offers driver's education only in the summer, it "puts pressure" on some students to meet the new requirements with less than three months left in the school year.

Prom fashions

The Prom Fashion Show will be held beginning at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the auditorium of Churchill High, on Newburgh north of Ann Arbor Trail, for local seniors. Plans could lead to a shopper's market

staff writer

A full house at the Canton Economic Club luncheon last week welcomed with open arms one of the township's favorite adopted sons — Hank Meljer, Jr., the 40-year-old co-chairman of Meljer, Meljer, of East Grand Rapids, reminisced about the mid-1970's when prior to joining the family business, he covered Canton and Plymouth as a journalist for the Plymouth and Canton Observer Newspapers and later for a weekly newspaper.

Meijer also described the growth and goals of Meijer, Inc. and unveiled plans afoot at one of the Midwest's largest retailers.

Meijer said he'd spent the morning at the Canton Historical Museum, digging up historical photos he hopes to reproduce and blow up to mural size for display in the remodeled cafeteria at the Canton Meijer store at Ford and Canton Center.

"Looking at the photos made me marvel a little bit at all that's happened since early in the century, and in the last 14 years since I worked in Canton Township," said Meljer, who wrote "Thrifty Years," a book detailing the life of his grandfather and company founder Hendrik Meijer.

MEIJER RECALLED that the 1970's was a time of tremendous growth in Canton, coinciding with construction of the township's Meiser store — the first in metro Detroit, and until recently, the retailer's largest outlet. The Flint Meijer has surpassed the Canton store in size.

Building the Canton Meijer "was a major experiment and adventure for us, and it was a great time to be here as a reporter, too," Meijer said. He reminisced about how the late Canton Clerk John Flodin kept things in line, board meetings in the fire hall, and the birth of the township police department.

Meijer said he's been informed of Canton Township's plans for the commercial downtown area, and "It sounds very promising. We're trying to do our best to build for the future," he said.

In addition to the cafeteria revamping, the $6 million remodeling project under way at the Canton Meijer includes the additions of a cheese island with specialty and imported products, a deli and fish counter, and an indoor and outdoor Meijer recently opened stores in Westland and Belleville, and will begin operations soon in Commerce Township and in Midland. The Westland store is opening a pizza shop, "where you can order a premium quality pizza any way you like it when you go in, and pick it up as you leave. If it works, we'll expand that to other stores," he

The company now has a total of 65 stores in Michigan and Ohio. "Dayton is as close to the Sunbelt as we get. We aren't a national company," he said.

THE SALAD DAYS Meijer is enjoying as the sole venue for onestop shopping are numbered, thanks to aggressive competition from the Arkansas-based Wal-Mart

"We've been able to draw on the uniqueness of the one-stop shopping idea. We are not going to have that to ourselves forever," Meljer sald.

Wal-Mart

By M.B. Dillon staff writer.

The world's largest retailer is looking for land in Canton Township, and Supervisor Tom Yack, for one, hopes it comes up empty.

Yack's comments followed the visit of Hank Meljer, Jr., co-chairman of Meljer, Inc. to the Canton Economic Club last week. In his address to what was perhaps the club's largest-ever gathering, Meijer mentioned that the company is feeling pressure from the Arkansas-based Wal-Mart Corp.

"Competitors like Wal-Mart and Target are going to be with us for a long time," sald Meijer. "They're causing us to rethink the way we do business."

THE DISCOUNT RETAILER is eyeing the I-275 corridor for a location, Meljer and Yack said.

Speaking as a resident "who happens to hold an elected position," Yack said he would like to put out the "not welcome sign to Wal-Mart.

"Sure, they would provide a lot of great products for consumers in Canton, but I don't think anything can take the place of a family-run business that reaches out in a humanitarian way to those folks who are less able to participate in shopping activities," said Yack.

Meijer took the initiative to build at its own expense a pedestrian bridge over a creek to service senior citizens at the Carriage Park complex near the Canton Meiler store at Ford and Canton Center roads.

"They built a bridge across a very wide creek regulated by the DNR. That in itself is enough to make most folks shy away," said Yack, with a laugh.

"Meijer spent tens of thousands of dollars on that bridge. It says something about the humanitarian attitude of Meijer, and certainly Hank Meijer, Jr."

Canton has three discounters in Meijer, Kmart and Target, added Yack. It's questionable whether it needs a fourth.

"I know this is America, and when it comes to commercial development, if the property is zoned properly and plans meet the zoning ordinances, Wal-Mart has every right in the world to build.

"However, I guess I am not welcoming them with open arms. I think we need more diversity in our commercial, and I don't believe Wal-Mart will give us that diversi-

IN ADDITION, sald Yack, "from my experience with Wal-Mart, which is very minimal and based upon observation, Wal-Mart generally does very little for the aesthetles of the community." Yack says he believes Canton needs aesthetic consistency, and Hank Meijer is of the same mind. 'We need a long-term strategy to keep businesses viable. While businesses are new, there is a certain level of energy that comes with the new development," he said.

"But five or 10 years go by, and new competing centers spring up elsewhere. There's a general tendency on the part of shoppers to go to the newer places. So I think we have to pay attention to that and develop, as I say, a strategy."

Yack recently visited Meijer headquarters in west Michigan and 'I can't say enough about the Meijer family and their approach to business. When I visited Hank at his headquarters a month ago, he took me on a tour of the facility.

"You could just see the positive relationships he has with his employees. There is a lot of warmth. They call him by his first name, and he apparently knows everyone. There's a congenial, positive atmosphere. He's not at all distant from the folks who work for him, and that shows up in the kind of business they operate."

Meijer's targets wholesale outlets

By M.B. Dillon staff writer

Hank Meijer Jr., co-chairman of Meijer's Inc., unveiled plans last week for the launching of "Source Club," a wholesale business intended to compete with stores such as Pace and the Warehouse Club in what Meijer calls "the fastest growing niche in retailing."

The first location is proposed for a site in Westland on the southwest corner of Newburgh and Warren, due west of the new Westland Meijer's store.

"We're embarking on a new venture called the Source Club that will compete for the business of business people who purchase supplies in bulk for their shops or businesses." Meijer said. "This really is the lowest-cost form of distribution, where the emphasis is on limited selection, limited hours, limited service and amenities. Customers will be limited to paying mem-

Meljer hopes to break ground for the 126,000-squarefoot facility in May and open for business in October.

"This isn't a place where you will do your daily grocery shopping, or one-stop shopping. It's going to be a source for the very best values on supply items businesses and institutions might need, be it computer paper or a 20-pound bag of sugar," Meijer said. Westland planning director George Wilhelmi says the proposal is in the early stages of administrative Site plans likely will be presented to the planning commission in April and to the city council in May. Because part of the land is wetlands, Meijer's will need approval from the state Department of Natural Re-"It's difficult to tell looking at a two-dimensional print, but I believe it will be an attractive facility, us-

It's to early to say whether the project will enjoy clear sailing, Wilhelmi said.

Meijer's has the needed zoning, and "the city has been anticipating developing this into some commercial," Meijer said. "We are just going through our administrative review. We've yet to sit down with the other departments to see if they require any changes.

The two became instant friends through a program that veterinarian Michael Belco, a Canton Township resident, started at Hope Nursing Care Center in Westland. That test is expected to be developed by 1993, said Caroline Kirby, test development coordinator for the Michigan Department of Education.

Michigan's business community has been supportive of the new measures, she said. "Graduates are coming to them for employment without even the basic communication and math skills."

SOMERS BLAMED most of the problems of last October's test on a tough new mathematics portion that baffled many students. It required a higher level of problem-solving skills that forced 10th-graders to develop formulas to find the correct

"The real problem is with mathematics," Somers said, adding later that, "We even have a lot of teachers that are math-shy."

Local schools are planning several measures to try to improve MEAP scores, New reading textbooks are being used this year in elementary schools, and officials hope to introduce new math books next school year for pupils in kindergarten through eighth grade. New science books also are expected next year for junior high students, Somers said.

The math books alone are expected to cost $750,000, he sald,

. In a letter to parents and 10thgraders, Wayne Memorial noted that educators are looking for possible curriculum revisions that would help students who don't qualify for the state-endorsed diploma in 1994. The state plans to let sophomores statewide retake the test in late April or around noon Wednesday, sat in the lobby and began reading the Bible. He refused to place an order when approached by a manager.

The manager called Westland police at 12:17 p.m. When the police arrived and asked the man to leave, he continued to read the Bible.

The man refused to say anything but did stare at the officers. He suddenly stood up and placed his hands together in a praying manner.

Fearing he might have had a weapon, police started to frisk him when he swung his left arm and hit one of three officers on the nose. The officer's nose started to bleed profusely.

Police took the man to the Psychlatric Intervention Center in Westland. He remained under the supervision of mental health authorities last week.

The man said he is manic-depressive and that he had been taking medication for his condition.

His name has not been released. He is expected to appear In Westland's 18th District Court on charges of assaulting a police officer and resisting arrest.

Both charges carry a maximum penalty of 90 days in jail.

MOREOVER, LOCAL schools also are considering offering a remediation class during the summer for students who don't pass the MEAP test this school year. They could then retake the test next fall.

The problem for 10th-graders is expected to raise concerns statewide, because poor scores aren't unique to Wayne-Westland.

"I think this is causing some concern, but I think a lot of people are just beginning to find out about this," Kirby said.

Districts could choose to develop a locally written proficiency exam as a substitute for the MEAP test, but that exam would have to be approved by the state. Adding to the problem, such a test could take three years to develop, Kirby said.

At this point, local officials don't see a district exam as a viable solution, in part because it could make the district liable for lawsuits if a parent chooses to sue over the testing and diploma controversy. We are sticking with MEAP for the time being," Somers said.

Kettering student wins spelling bee

Andrea Galindo, a Kettering Elementary School sixth grader, is the winner of the Wayne-Westland school district's Earle Chorbagian spelling bee, held March 11. Autumn Butler, an eighth grader at Marshall Junior High School, is this year's runner-up.

Autumn went down on the word "deltoidal." After spelling "conceivable" correctly, Andrea won with the word "crackleware."

All elementary and junior high schools in the district, as well as St. Mary Catholic School in Wayne and ticipated in this year's bee. The winner of each school spelling contest was presented with an American Heritage dictionary and a certificate. Andrea's name will be added to the floating trophy that is presented each year to the district winner's school.

McNamara's comments are no surprise to locals

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Is Ed McNamara calling on Coleman Young to step down? Or he campaigning for governor?

The Wayne County, executive said he isn't doing either, but there's no question McNamara has been more pointed in recent public comments about Detroit and its longtime may-

There's also no question he's been more visible — and not just in local McNamara reportedly called on Young to make this term his last during the executive's Wednesday appearance before the Birmingham Optimist Club, according to a newspaper article.

McNamara called on Young to retire because of Detroit's negative image and its effect on the region, said club members quoted by the Free Press.

While McNamara has denied calling on Young to step down, his alleged comments were no surprise to many local residents.

They say he's talked about Detroit's negative image and its spin off effect on suburbs in recent appearances before at least two Wayne County groups.

"I DON'T recall him saying anything about the mayor stepping down, but he did talk about Detroit's image," said Ed Clemente of the South Wayne County Chambers of Commerce. "Maybe those are code

Wayne County Commissioner Bryan Amann, who attended the same event, said McNamara discussed Detroit's image and its importance to the region, but stopped short of calling for Young's retirement.

"Something like that would probably make people more likely to vote for Young," Amann said.

McNamara addressed the Taylorbased chamber organization prior to this Birmigham appearance.

Closer to home, McNamara reportedly said Detroit needs "new blood" and a "new vision" during a March 12 appearance before Garden City Kiwanis members.

Člub president Joseph Gagnon said McNamara had been complimentary about Young's past record but also talked about the city's fu-

Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara has discussed Detroit's future — and possibly his own — in recent appearances before community groups in Wayne and Oakland County.

"The impression you're getting is that he's calling for a new direction," Gagnon said.

THE COUNTY executive linked Detroit's survival to that of its suburbs at the Garden City event.

"The core city must come back if Garden City, Livonia and Birmingham are to survive," McNamara

McNamara received a warm reception from club members, Gagnon said. "He's pretty down-to-earth. He says what's on his mind."

McNamara and Young had enjoyed a cordial relationship - at least in public - for most of the executive's first five years in office.

Their public relationship soured during last year's negotiations over the future of Tiger Stadium. Young went public in his criticism of chief county negotiator Michael Duggan - McNamara's deputy executive for allegedly freezing the city out of negotiations with the baseball team. Since then, McNamara and Young have also been at odds over the future of regional mass transit.

The county executive seeks a merger between SMART, whose bus lines primarily serve the suburbs, and the Detroit Department of Transportation. Young has been adamant that suburbs must directly pay for mass transit - as the city does - before serious merger talks can begin between D-DOT and the Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation.

McNamara has also been critical of new county commission districts that he believes protect urban commissioners at the expense of his suburban supporters.

While Young wasn't directly involved, the county apportionment committee was headed by a member of the city planning department.

County redistricting is now before the state Supreme Court.

If McNamara has been critical toward the mayor, he has extended a hand to the city.

IN THIS year's state of the county address, McNamara proposed a four-step redevelopment plan for city neighborhoods, bringing together business professionals, architects and bankers to promote redevelop-

A non-profit housing corporation, loan program, community bank and computer bank program for small and minority businesses are also part of the plan. -

McNamara listed community growth and redevelopment as his administration's top goal for 1992 and there would be "no more pussyfooting around Coleman Young" in accomplishing redevelopment goals.

McNamara had previously been active in promoting development for Ecorse and other blighted suburbs.

Over the past two years, he has added former county Commissioner Bernard Kilpatrick and former state Representative Teola Hunter — both high-profile leaders in Detroit's black community - to his office

Senate bill limits local protection of wetlands

By Tim Richard staff writer

Local governments would have limited powers to control building on wetlands under a bill before the Michigan Senate,

"No one's completely happy," said Sen. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, who won high praise from most interest groups for engineering a compromise.

"I think on balance it's reasonable and fair. I'm happy wetlands will be protected. Developers are entitled to some decision (on building permits) on an expeditious basis," said the chair of the Senate Local Govenment Committee.

The panel last week gave the bill 5-0 approval after two hours of public comments. Among the yes votes was George Z. Hart, D-Dearborn, ENVIRONMENTALISTS were the only unhappy ones, but even they promised not to seek amendments on the Senate floor.

"Given the starting point, this is the least destructive bill possible." said David Dempsey of Clean Water 'Action and a former adviser to ex-, fill in wetlands" and Honigman's Gov. James Blanchard:

The "starting point" was Senate Bill 522 which would have prohibited all local wetlands regulations. Sponsored by Sen. Paul Wartner, R-Por-. tage, and backed by real estate and development interests, it cleared another committee and was close to Senate passage when Honigman had it sent to his committee for revision.

THE COMPROMISE would:

"It's superfluous. Reject it," said

Elizabeth Chouinard, a Novi resident who summed up the position of most environmentalists: Protect all wetlands permanently; no state limits president of the Michigan Lakes and

Streams Association, called SB, 522

"a scam by development interests to compromise as a "lesser of two evils" technique. "We've tost 50 percent of the wetlands in this state. I propose we say 'enough is enough'."

Don Hoves of Waterford, vice on local ordinances.

said Hoves

- Require local units to adopt the
- state definition of a wetlands. • Allow local units to enforce state law on wetlands of five acres or more.
- Allow local units to regulate wetlands of two to five acres.
- Require local units to issue permits for wetlands smaller than two wetland function would be impaired oy building (Environmentalists attacked this provision because it put the burden of proof on government, not the developer.)

• Require local units to decide on an application to fill in a wetland within 90 days of its submission. The 90-day clock would begin running. even if the permit were incomplete on submission.

- Limit local units to a two-step process instead of a series of hurdles such as a wetlands poard, a natural features board, the township board and zoning appeals board.
- Require local units with ordinances to adopt a non-binding wetlands map as a guide.
- Allow an owner who has been denied a permit to ask for downward re-assessment of the property.
- Close a loophole under which a wetland can be farmed for a year and then developed.

CARLA CLOS — representing the Environmental Protection Council of Oakland Counties, 19 cities and villages with wetlands ordinances praised the state-local approach in the compromise. Local ordinances don't halt development, she said. "Novi issued four times as many permits after it passed a wetlands ordinance than before."

Peggy Johnson, speaking for the Clinton and Rouge River Watershed Councils, gave "explicit concur-

Gene Thornton, lobbyist for the Michigan Townships Association, said the compromise "went 7-5 against me" but supported it. So did Don Stypula of the Michigan Municipal League.

Lynn Egbert of the Michigan Association of Home Builders was "very happy you pulled together this committee."

"This is the best job that could have been done under the circumgan United conservation Clubs. "We've pledged not to be the first to offer floor amendments."

"I'm not happy," said Jack Walker of the Michigan Association of Real, tors. But he praised the section shift! ing the burden of proof to govern ment in protecting wetlands under two acres. "We're fairly comfortable," 'said Vicki Pontz of the Farm Bureau.

"We wanted statewide standards and uniform procedures," The Michigan State Chamber of Commerce supported it. "It unnecessarily restricts local home rule," said Jack Smiley of the Detroit Audubon Society. "But the statewide definition is acceptable."

Sen. Gil DiNello, D-Clinton Township, who took the developers' hard line against local ordinances, attacked environmental groups, promising to introduce legislation forcing them to report their contributions, memberships and spending.

blood tests. Tests may mirror that arthritis is present, and at times certain ones, like the sedimentation rate, may reflect changes in your arthritic condition. But the utility of these results is limited.

Findings such as the rhematoid factor test are unreliable. If the factor is positive, it can be present because of aging, reflect past infection or previous medication use. If you are rheumatoid factor negative, you cannot conclude that arthritis is absent. The factor may be in the blood but not detectable by usual test methods.

When you have arthritis, you need to take medication. Any medication that is strong enough to help overcome arthritis, is also sufficiently powerful to cause harmful effects. Medical science has developed tests that are sentitive monitors of such damage. Thus if you are on medication, regular test samples of blood safeguard you from toxicity by the medicine intended to nelp.

Blood tests play a role in arthritis, but they don't take the place of a physician's evaluation of what is happening to you. At the same time, the prudent doctor will not wait for you to tell him something is awry. He will undertake surveillance periodically to assure that your medication is not a source of more harm than help.

Letter jackets

District expands student right to this honor

THE WIMPS WON in Livonia. Kids who play the piccolo will be wearing the same letter jackets as the quarterbacks who throw the winning touchdown passes. It's an attempt to make everything equal. It never is. The blond quarterback is still going to get more dates than the tuba player.

Bands are nice for a half-time activity at a football game, but they're just that, an activity. It's not a sport. The pompon girls look good, too. But again, it's an activity.

In our mindless quest to make everything equal, we're ignoring the difference between pursuits. Band is an intellectual activity that's dependent on students learning notes, tunes and walking in step. It's not the same as football, basketball, track, swimming, golf or tennis. In those sports, success or failure is immediately visible. If you hit a high C in the horn section, nobody notices. If you miss a tackle, you're alone on the field and everybody is watching.

THERE'S ALSO the effort involved. Athletes push themselves to the limit of physical endurance, and even when they're not successful, they've attained something inside themselves that they'll always have. It's almost a Zen-like state.

Then there's athletic intelligence. It's what makes Bo know more than just football. There are thousands of guys around with the size and speed of Bo Jackson, but there's something extra inside of Mr. Jackson that unhappy. When it's not fair or they're unhappy, they sue.

That's expectly what happened in

That athletic intelligence has traditionally been recognized in high schools by the wearing of a letter jacket, just as membership in the National Honor Society has been bestowed on students who excel in aca-

The group was making noises about a lawsuit, and of course the Livonia School Board caved it on the matter. Perhaps if any of them had played football, they wouldn't have been such gutless wonders.

I just wonder what the next step will be. Perhaps it will be to ban all letter jackets because the wearing of them makes other students feel bad because they've accomplished nothing

It's about what we've come to expect from the educational wimps.

Jeff Counts is the editor of the -Plymouth—and—Canton—Observer Newspapers.

LET'S HEAR IT for the tuba player. Now she can wear her varsity letter on a school jacket, just like the athletes. And if he's lucky, the quarterback might get a date with her.

The Livonia school district made the right decision by letting all klds who have earned their letters display them on school jackets. Don't listen to that testosterone-driven tyrannosaurus Jeff Counts. The battle was lost years ago.

People like Counts stomp around like Tevye, bellowing about tradition, because they still think that brawn beats brains. They do a disservice to all students who excel in school activities. Truth is, the best athletes are as smart as the captain of the debate team. And the tuba player needs as much endurance as the swimmer.

It's not an equality issue or a "feel good" one either. It's just a couple of crusty old coaches trying to hang their jockstraps on an old, and rightly-so dead issue that went out with leather football helmets.

It's part of that old bromide that if you ain't an athlete in high school you ain't noboby. Pass me a chaw o' Red Man.

WHERE AND how the kids choose to display their letter isn't an issue worthy of a school board's time. Boards need to spend time with bigger issues, such as fighting our knuckle-headed governor's school finance proposals. If those proposals fly there won't be ANY extracurricular activities.

Frankly, I'm amazed varsity letter jackets are an issue in Livonia. Surrounding districts don't prohibit non-athletes from wearing the jackets. Heck, 20 years ago the Lansing schools bestowed varsity letters on members of the debate teams and marching bands.

Trucks ruin our roads

To the editor:

Your recent editorial on increasing the fuel tax hit a raw nerve. I must say that your editorial did a pretty fair job of trying to sell the taxpayers that a jump in the gas tax now would solve our transportation woes. Bull.

Did anyone ever stop to think why our roads don't last? Isn't it odd that the automobile manufacturers efforts to lighten the vehicle weights doesn't seem to have an affect on slowing down the deterioration of our highways. Could it be that Michigan allows 80 ton (double the national average) trucks to travel it's roads?

A Michigan Department of Transportation engineer once told me that a car passing over a road is almost like the wind, whereas 80 ton trucks passing over the same road cause our roads and bridges to crumble. It's no wonder that the trucking an road building lobbles are strongly represented in Lansing. I am not against good roads, but lets wake up and look at why our roads don't last.

I DON'T know about you, but I am barely making ends meet and I have a job. I applaud Gov. Engler for opposing this added tax that would impact everyone in Michigan at a time of economic recession.

Your comment on southeast Michigan's public transportation system needs some clarification. More taxes to "revitalize chewed up roads and keep buses running" is throwing good money into a bad system. Two bus systems that compete against each other and both lose taxpayers money is not mass transit, it's mass waste. One transit system for southeast Michigan which includes buses.

and rail is what we need.

Other cities have already built or are now building rail transit systems, while southeast Michigan lags years behind. We need a public transit system that remembers it is supported by the people and for the people.

BLINDNESS. KIDNEY FAILURE. GANGRENE. HEART DISEASE.

Just a few of the side effects a diabetic has to live with. Or die with.

Most of us know that diabetics must take daily insulin shots to control their disease. But what many people don't know is that even with the shots, a host of complications can arise. Like blindness, Kidney failure. Gangrene, Heart disease.

In fact, it's these side effects of diabetes that are so brotal and often lifethreatening. So please give to the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation, Because there's only one way to eliminate the complications. Eliminate the disease.

Who pays the cost of illiteracy? Everyone.

Think about it. Imagine for a moment that you cannot read. How easily are you going to find a job? Do you find a a low-paying job that doesn't require reading and let social welfare and government unemployment compensation take up the slack?

Or, suppose you do find a Job. What happens to production when you can't understand written instructions? Who pays for the wasted time to correct your mistakes? Perhaps you haven't found a Job. Your self-esteem is in the basement. You turn to a life of crime.

Did you know that 60 percent of all prison inmates are functionally illiterate and the figure is higher among Juvenile offenders?

How can you help?

Students seek tougher school site laws

By Tim Richard staff writer

Westland students and Rochester Hills homeowners asked a Senate panel for tougher laws to keep Michigan chemically safe as well as If hepe other children won't have to go to a school on a toxic dump site." said Andrea Graunstadt, 12, who attended the now-closed Cooper School operated by the Livonia district. She supported a bill to require environmental inspections of school building sites.

"Up to 70 percent of Michigan's lakes may exceed safe mercury levels," said Tara Goel of Rochester Hills. Speaking for HOPE (Help Oakland Protect the Environment), she asked for a law prohibiting incinerators within six miles of lakes showing high mercury levels.

THE SENATE Natural Resource Committee on Thursday:

• Reported out a tough school site inspection measure that would require districts, before constructing or remodeling, to do environmental inspections and assessments. Livonia district officials reportedly were unhappy that "remodeling" was included but didn't show up in Lansing to fight it.

Senate Bill 761, sponsored by William Faust, D-Westland, was sent to the Senate floor for action in the coming weeks.

• Promised further study of SB 795 which would stop trash incinerator prmits for sites within a six-mile radius of any inland lake showing 0.5 pats per million of mercury in the last six years. Sponsor Mat Dunaskiss, R-Lake Orion, said a planned incinerator in his northern Oakland district "would condemn the lake."

THE SCHOOL site bill, as written, would require an analysis for as little as $5,000 of improvement. "I like this when you're building a school," said Sen. Chris Dingell, D-Trenton, "but I worry about requiring this when you do more than $5,000 work. I'd hate to require expensive analyses every time you did any improvement."

"The $5,000 figure is negotiable," said an aide to sponsor Faust.

Committee chair Paul Wartner, R-Portage, said the money question would be resolved before the bill is brought to a floor vote.

"This is long over due," said Catherine Pare, resident of the Cooper School area. "Cooper School was built on an old toxic site. Livonia Public Schools, the (state) Department of Natural Resources and the (Wayne) County Health Department kept silent on it for seven long. years."

Noting Livonia district voters approved a $62 million bond issue for renovations, Pare asked that the word "remodeling" be kept in the

"THE SCHOOL board was wrong to build the school," said Andrea Graunstadt.

"I'm concerned about other kids in Michigan," added her sister, Tracy,

"There were no laws to prevent Cooper School from being built (in 1962)," said their mother. Chervl Graunstadt of Westland. "Former students told of funny colored dirt when it rained."

The funny colored dirt contained PCBs, lead, cadmium, mercury, arsenic, DDT and cyanide, left over from the days when trash from Detroit was landfilled there.

Cooper parents asked for a low dollar trigger in the bill, reasoning that playground sites are cheap to develop but expose children most readily.

Faust's bill would require school boards to make visual inspections of property, review ownership history to determine the probability of hazardous substances, and conduct an environmental assessment where indicated. Results of the tests would have to be made public and turned over to the state DNR.

A STATE Health Department official, supporting the incinerator limit bill, warned that "no matter what lake_you_fish," mercury_can_be a problem.

John Hesse, chief of the DPH's assessment program, said mercury has been eliminated from paint, but much gets into the air from power plants and incinerators. Settling on lakes, mercury enters thefood chain, becoming more concentrated as it moves from crustaceans to panfish to predator fish.

A human can tolerate about one pound of fish a week at the 0.5 ppm mercury level, Hesse said. Rock bass, perch and crappies longer than nine inches often exceed that level. So do larger specimens of black bass, northern pike and muskellunge.

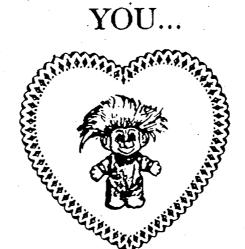

Dunaskiss said his bill would prohibit about 65 percent of Oakland County from being site of an inclnerator. A 12-mile circle in Livingston County, between Howell and Brighton, would be off limits. So would a circle around Wayne County's Belleville Lake, reaching from Ypsilanti to Canton.

Brenda Savage, speaking for the 6,000-member Rochester Hills Inter-Association Council, said solid waste management should be done without incinerators.

Kids learn by helping in kitchen

I've had the honor of learning about food and cooking from some of the best cooks in the world. Pasta from Guliano Bugialli, technique from Julia Childs, wild game from Chef Milos Chielka, sausage-making from Bruce Aidells; a very impressive list of Mentors, indeed. But when people ask me who taught me the most, the hands down award belongs solely to momma.

It was my momma who always allowed me to feel the ple crust with my fingers til just the right consistency was achieved. It was momma who always slathered a roast or leg of lamb with fresh garlic, or thickened turkey drippings with just the proper balance of milk and flour.

When momma shared her knowledge of food and cooking, it was never tutelage, but instead an opportunity to learn. Momma never knew why yeast made bread rise, but her ability to incorporate it in perfect amounts never ceased to amaze.

As I stand in my own kitchen today and reminisce the days of dumpling making and picture perfect German Chocolate cakes, I realize now that she was teaching far more than simple cooking.

TO THIS day, she will never fully realize that by making me add % of this and % of those my math abilitles were being fine honed. Momma never knew that lasagne would prelude an introduction to foreign languages. I can remember the day I first sampled her beet soup, never fully appreciating the fact that it was indeed a geographical Russian borscht.

I never realized then that as far as I'm concerned, the term "momma" and "teacher" should be synonymous. But then again, cooking in Wyandotte was never intended to be a lesson, but instead an expression of creativity that was meant simply to fortify and strengthen.

I know now that the foods children eat affect their growth, development, behavior and their ability to learn. How children eat is equally as important.

The presentation of food in a comfortable and relaxed atmosphere together with love, care and eye appeal can greatly affect the way children feel about themselves and those around them. Early experiences with food may lay the foundation for lifelong eating habits.

KIDS LEARN most by being actively involved. It only makes sense that children at home and at school be encouraged to be interested in, and involved in the preparation of their food. Creating something beautiful and tasty with food is indeed a rewarding experience for anyone.

Big deal, you say? Other than making a royal mess of the kitchen and chowing down on over-kneaded bread, what can a child learn through working with Food comforts, food nourishes. Food has always been an excellent vehicle for human communication. Learning the skills necessary for cooking helps one to develop a sense of Independence. There are many opportunities for children to learn new concepts and language skills while they prepare and eat

Planning, buying, preparing and serving food calls for the development of a sense of quantity and measurement. Money, recipe measurements and timing, the dividing of portions and even the setting of the table involve mathematics. Food can awaken the artist or the creative genius by enabling us to notice colors, shapes and textures. You can make creative food experiences simple enough for a toddler and stimulating enough for a teen. All it takes is a little patience and a lot of love.

T IS 10 A.M., Monday, and Jeremy Rust is wearing an apron, ready to make a Night Owl Jeremy, a 4-year-old Garden City resident, attends a class called "Pooh's Pantry," through the Garden City Public Schools enrichment program.

"Children at this age learn by imitation," said Michele Kramarz, who teaches the class. "We talk about healthy eating habits."

What's a Night Owl Snack? It's peanut butter on a cracker, decorated to look like an owl.

THE ONCE-WEEKLY class is geared to children aged 3 to 5 years. During the 8-week session, they learn how to make simple, tasty snacks.

This class, held at the Cambridge Center in Garden City, is one of several similar local kiddie classes.

At Temple Beth El Nursery School in West Bloomfield, preschoolers have learned to make pancakes, cookies and individual pizzas, using bagels or English muffins.

'It's definitely hands-on," said Joy Kaplan, director of the nursery school. Preschoolers need close supervision and lots of help. Classes are small, usually around 10 students.

Children from Birmingham, Bloomfield, Farmington and Southfield attend the Temple Beth El classes. The Garden City program draws from Westland, Belleville and Dearborn Heights, as well as Garden

A treat called "Ants on a Log" might sound pretty creepy. But the small fry like to make this concoction - celery sticks spread with peanut butter and dotted with raisins. The celery is the "log," and the raisins are "ants."

Today, the Pooh's Pantry gangy will build an elaborate snack, using crackers, peanut butter or cream cheese and a variety of toppings.

We're going to stick things on a cracker and make it look like an owl," Kramarz said. JOINING JEREMY around table are Chelsea Miller, 4, Garden City; Nora Tykoski, 3, of Westland; and Rachel Jachym, 3, Belleville. The supplies include graham crackers, bowls of sweetened cereal bits, peanut butter and cream cheese, grapes and banana slices. Larry Peterson, 4, of Inkster, didn't like the banana bread the class made recently. This snack holds promise. The children get down to business.

Little fingers laboriously spread cream cheese onto crackers. Raisins dribble onto the floor. Slowly, baveloping prereading and premath skills, Kramarz said. Cracking eggs, stirring batter and nanas are chopped into small pieces.

While having fun, the kids are de-spreading cream cheese help develop manual dexterity. "Children enjoy food better if they prepare it themselves," Kramarz said. "They may even try new foods.' Confidence blossoms, according to Kaplan. "It makes the kids feel good about themselves," Kaplan said. "It's the 'I can do it' concept."

OFTEN, THE recipes selected are tied into an art project, or the theme from a book. For example, the Garden City group prepared scrambled eggs, tinted with green food coloring, after reading the Dr. Seuss book, "Green Eggs and Ham."

Cooking or baking is done in a microwave or toaster oven. Kramarz prepares a mimeographed recipe book for each student.

Apparently, many of these kids have had a head start before landing in the class. Lisa Yount, 31/2 of Garden City,

"The fun thing about food is, we like to try different things - to experiment," Kramarz said. "That's why it's nice that there are so many things to eat."

Friends exercise healthy habits family tested winner dinner

Fit for life or fat for life? The choice is, of course, one's own, with genes and lifestyle being the most powerful shapers of the

Betsy human body. There isn't a Brethen whole lot we can do about our genes but the ways in which we cook, cat, exercise and grocery shop play a major role in whether we are tight and toned or soft and flabby.

Like it or not, we look like we live, and the only permanent way to get rid of excess body fat is to get rid of the habits that caused the problem in the first place.

ONE GLANCE at this week's Winner Dinner Winners, Carol Joliat and Beth Yocca, reveals instantly that they have opted to be fit for life.

Friends for over four years, they met at the Workout Company in Birmingham, where both are aerobics instructors.

Believing that regular exercise and a healthy diet go hand in hand, they recently put their heads together and submitted one of their favorite low-fat, high fiber menus. It includes a delicious recipe for vegetarlan lasagna.

Married and the mother of three boys. Jollat knows what she is talking about when it comes to personal fitness. She teaches aerobics classes five or six times a week and jogs regularly.

At home, she works hard at planning healthy, low-fat meals for her family and tries to make her chil-home. But he also helps his mom,

Carol Peterson, 32, whip up batches

Chock-full of lots of healthy vegetables, this lasagna makes a great family dinner. It can be made in advance and frozen and serves six to eight.

I box whole wheat lasagna noodles, boiled

1-container low-fat or non-fatcottage cheese, 8 ounce size 1 container low-fat or non-fat ricotta cheese, 6 ounce size

1 medium onion, finely chopped 11/2 teaspoons fresh parsley, finely chopped 1 teaspoon oregano

I teaspoon basil -1 can tomato puree, 6 ounce size 1 jar Classico pasta sauce, either tomato basil or olive mushroom, 28 ounce size % cup broccoflower, cut up % cup mushrooms, sliced 1/2 cup carrots, finely chopped I medium summer squash, diced 1 medium zucchini, diced 1 clove garlic, finely chopped 1 tablespoon olive oll Parmesan cheese Low-fat mozzarella cheese

Cook lasagna until just tender. Drain, rinse and let stand in cold water. After combining the two cheeses, refrigerate. Chop up all the vegetables and lightly saute them in 1 tablespoon of olive oil until they are crisp tender. Combine the can of tomato puree with the jar of tomato sauce. Layer the lasagna noodles in the bottom of a 9 x 13 inch baking dish. Add a layer of cheese, then vegetables, and the sauce. Place another layer of noodles and repeat the process until all the noodles and vegetables are used.

Add the reamining sauce around the perimeter of the noodles.

Top with 2 or 3 tablespoons of Parmesan cheese. Other suggestions for toppings are low fat mozzarella cheese or Alpine Lace cheese. Bake at 400 degrees for 30-35 minutes.

-CRUNCHY TOSSED SALAD 1 bottle Kraft Free Italian salad dressing

1 head Radicchio lettuce 1 head Bibb lettuce

1 head Romaine lettuce 1/2 cup Michigan dried cherries 1/2 cup pine nuts

Wash, dry and tear the lettuces into bite-sized pieces. Add the cherries and nuts and stir gently to mix well. Add desired amount of dressing, toss well and serve.

PERSIAN SESAME BREAD

This tasty bread is delicious when sprinkled with a little bit of Parmesan cheese and broiled in the oven just before serving. It can be found at Strawberry Hill in West Bloomfield.

HEALTHY FRUIT

Combine your choice of different fruits like melon, blueberries, raspberries, strawberries and bananas, and sprinkle with a little bit of fatfree granola made by Healthy Valley, available in most health food stores or in the health food section of your grocery store.

Prairie Dawn's Popcorn Pudding 24 quarts of popped corn 4 cups milk, scalded 1 egg, lightly beaten % cup sugar ... % cup raisins 1/2 teaspoon each nutmeg, cinnamon and alispice

Crush the popcorn into small crumbs using a rolling pin Place popcorn crumbs and milk in a large bowl. Cover and allow to set for 2 hours. Stir in remaining ingredients, then pour into a lightly greased baking dish and bake at 300 degrees for 1 hour. Serve with ice cream or cold applesauce.

Chef Larry's secret: "I tried this and substituted 1 cup of honey for the sugar and increased the eggs, thick. Then, with clean hands, place to 2 and had excellent results. Sunflower seeds are great additions, too!"

Bert's Best Breakfast Oatmeal Burgers I cup leftover cooked oatmeal 1/2 cup breadcrumbs 1/2 tablespoon butter or margarine

Take the bowl of leftover oatmeal from the refrigerator. With a large, rounded spoon, spoon out patties; about 2 inches wide and 14 inch them on a plate covered with breadcrumbs. Turn them over once so that the sides are covered with crumbs. 2 teaspoons salt

Next, for each oatmeal burger, place 1/2 tablespoon butter or margarine in a frying pan. Fry the oatmeal burgers until they are golden brown and crispy on both sides. Enjoy with milk, syrup or apple butter, if desired.

SNUFFLE-LOAF IN A SPAGHETTI NEST 1 pound chopped meat 1 whole egg % cup breadcrumbs

2 tablespoons of milk 2 tablespoons of onion flakes 35 teaspoon dry mustard 1 small piece of hard boiled egg white I black olive

Place all the ingredients except egg white and olive in a big bowl. Mix them with clean hands until they are blended together. Then shape the mixture with your hands to look like a snuffle-upagus. Place snuffy's tail and trunk close to his body so they don't overcook. Bake the loaf in the oven at 400 degrees for 50 minutes.

When the loaf is cooked, with your selssors, cut little pieces of the egg white and the olive to make eyes Fasten the olive and egg white with the length of a toothpick. Remember not to let anyone eat the toothpicks

To make a spaghetti nest book an 8 ounce box of spaghetti just the way the box tells you. Drain the water and stir in 3 tablespoons butter or margarine. On a large, round platter, arrange the spaghetti in a ring, leaving a space in the center large enough to hold your snuffle loaf Place the snuffle-loaf caretille in the nest and have a snuffle-upagu for dumer!

WineFest 92 to benefit arts

What's the appeal of wine auctions? We suspect it's the drama because at the best of them, you rarely find a bargin.

At least that's what the organizers of WineFest 92 are hoping. Saturday, April 11, marks the 10th anniversary of WineFest, an auction sponsored by the Ann Arbor Art Association to raise money for art programs designed for senior citizens and underprivileged children exhibiting art

With the cutback in state funding to the arts, WineFest 92 revenues. will go a long way in keeping the Art Association's programs affoat for the coming year.

ACCORDING TO the February 1992 issue of Connoisseur, in 1990, at Sotheby's London, the Romanov imperial cellars were finally auctioned, 73 years after Czar Nicholas II and his family were murdered by the Bolsheviks.

Approximately 13,000 bottles were sold for a total of $1,074,544 Those who garnered highest bids included a Swiss who paid a record $12,705 for three bottles of 1891 Port. Why?

A link with history, perhaps. Tasting something remarkable? That could be since this bottling was fit for a king.

While the Ann Arbor WineFest can't promise wines of this stature. they do contend that some of the area's finest wine collectors have dug deep into their cellars for some rare bottlings to keep the paddles raised at this year's event.

Ed Sbragia, Beringer Vineyard's winemaster is the 1992 auction honorary chairman. WineFest attendees will have the opportunity to meet Sbragia and to sample an array of Beringer wines.

Over the past several years, we've recommended many of Beringer's Knights Valley wines as Wine Selections of the Week. Recently, we had the opportunity to sample a vertical of Beringer Knights Valley Cabernets from the 1980s and were impressed at their ageability given their modest release price - modest that is, by current Napa Valley cabernet sauvignon prices from many producers.

• R.I.K.'S

R.I.K.'s, an Italian restaurant in West Bloomfield, is offering seven take-home dishes at Nino Salvaggio's Strawberry Hill fruit and vegetable market, 14 Mile and Middlebelt in West Bloomfield. The Heart Smart dishes are reviewed and approved by nutritionists at Henry. Ford Hospital for calories, fat, cholesterol, and sodium content. Grocery shoppers at Strawberry Hill can now take home these dishes: grilled vegetable pasta, baked whitefish with tomatoes and pesto, baked scrod with rice pilat, shrimp with orzo and vegetables, eggplant rolls, Ribollita Soup and Marinara Sauce. One dish, a hearty portion, is about $7 and can be found in the deli section. Ribolita Soup and Marinara Sauce are available by the quart. R.I.K.'s The Restaurant is at 15 Mile and Orchard Lake in West Bloomfield.

Lesley Elizabeth Inc. of Metamora has created a new line of products to aid busy cooks. Their "Savoury Spreads" and "Spoon Treats" are now on the shelves of local gourmet food stores including Merchant of Yino, Jacobson's, R.I.K.'s, the Red Wagon and Quarton Market. The spreads can be used with pasta and salad, mixed with cream cheese, yogurt or mayonnaise. The spoon teats, enhance cookies, cakes and ice cream. Each product is named for a family member of a bygone generation: "Great Granny's Toffee Fudge Spoon Treat" and "Twinkletoes' Ted's Caper and Dill Savoury Spread" to name two.

First lady visits Schoolcraft kitchens

There's been a lot of excitement in the Schoolcraft College cullnary arts department lately. Two faculty members, Joseph Decker and Kevin Gawronski, were recently chosen to compete on the Michigan Culinary Team in the 1992 World Culinary Olympics in Frankfurt, Germany. The team is practicing at the col-

But you could say first lady Bar-, bara Bush's March 16 visit to the culinary arts program kitchens in Livonia was the "frosting on the cake."

THE FIRST LADY DIDN'T just shake hands and smile during her 20 minute visit, she helped department manager Certified Master Chef Jeffrey Gabriel make a salmon dish, and frosted a cake with pastry chef Decker.

"She's very, very personable," said Gabriel. "It was very exciting for the students and faculty."

Congratulations to the winners in the 19th Annual Culinary Art Salon held March 15 at the Hyatt Regency in Dearborn. The Salon, sponsored by the Michigan Restaurant Association and the Michigan Chefs de Cuisine, drew over 200 entrants in four divisions - high school, college, apprentice, and professional.

Displays were entered in various categories including hot and cold food entrees, pastry displays and ar-

Tips for choosing, storing turkey cuts

AP — The phrase "let's talk turkey" has taken on a whole new meaning. No longer relegated to the once-a-year holiday table, turkey is now available in handy small portions, perfect for quick family meals any time of the year. Because all of these smaller turkey cuts need names, there's a whole new glossary of turkey terms to learn. To make sure you're buying the right cut for your recipe, read through these descriptions:

Turkey Breast Tenderloin is the whole muscle on the inside of the breast. Each one weighs about 8

Turkey Breast Tenderloin Steaks are cut lengthwise from the tenderloin. They are usually 11/4-inch thick and resemble a fish fillet.

Turkey Breast Steaks are cut crosswise from the breast. They are usually 144-to 1-inch thick. They are interchangeable with boned, skinless chicken breast halves of the same

Turkey Breast Slices or Cutlets are also cut crosswise from the breast but are thinner than the steaks (usually ½ to ¾-inch thick). They can be used in recipes that call for pounded skinless, boneless, chicken breast halves.

Ground Turkey usually combines white and dark meat and may include some skin and fat. Because no official standards exist for the amount of fat in ground turkey, read the label before you buy.

Buying and Storage Tips: Look for ground turkey that's at least 90 percent lean by weight. In some areas, you can buy ground turkey breast, which is generally more than 90 percent lean. If there's no label, look at the meat. Lots of little white specks indicate that fat and skin were ground up with the turkey meat, which increases the fat content.

To ensure that you have the leanest ground turkey, you can grind your own or have your butcher grind it for you. Start with a turkey breast. (Avoid the self-basting kind, because they're frequently injected with sat-

Allen: Strong vision, sound

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

Johnny Allen already has his album of "Desperate Years." The singer is quick to add he's still desperate.

While in this state of perpetual frenzy - toiling night after night in smoky nightclubs around the area and investing every last cent into a fleeting dream - count on Allen to keep chronicling this enduring pursuit for rock'n'roll prosperity.

"Change the World," the eightsong follow up to the 1988 release "Desperate Years," is not an anthemic cry into the vast, indifferent world. Rather, the black-leather jacket clad singer finds himself exploring the seeds of discontentment as opposed to bemoaning the constant struggle.

"There's times when I'm broke. All my money is invested in my equipment. The career chooses you." said Allen sanguinely while sipping a soft drink in a Detroit pub. "I think I have a real strong vision and I'm stubborn enough to keep my sights set on what I want."

There's no real riddle to what Allen wants. Anyone who's witnessed one of his sweat-drenched testimonials to the rock'n'roll dream in one of many countless clubs know.

SO DO those who've listened to "Desperate Years," a musical document whose release was in itself an achievement. He's bought into the belief of the spiritual, instrinsic powers of rock'n'roll with no questions asked.

Allen would like the usual things: to get signed to a record contract and have the artistic respect associated with such endeavors. However, the dire in Allen as evidenced in live shows and in recording seems to transcend such cursory goals.

Allen's umcompromising in this pursuit. He mentions he's let go those in his band he doesn't feel share in the same commitment. A suggestion such a regimen might make him difficult to work with draws a bit of laugh.

"It might," he said. "I think it's

CAUGHT IN THE CURRENT — Crossed Wire

driven passion, Crossed Wire's "Caught in the Cur- required. rent" means business from the get-go.

Singer and guitarist Chris Moore chews off the end of his lyrics like they were gristle in the way hind the unbridled zeal. Crossed Wire has someof expressing his next point on this bouyant 11song effort. He growls incessantly. Even the backup vocals are wrought to the point of raw throat gurgling.

His rhythm section of bassist and former Beer on the Penguin member Cary Marsh and drummer Bud Burcar pound out a furious pace, lighting one end of this effort and watching it burn through to the other side. So quick does this release consume itself in its

While many outfits tear through such releases, once stripped away there is little substance be-thing more than just a core of energy. It takes a certain amount of savvy to milk a vocal line, leaving one exposed as Moore does in the heartfelt renderings of "Far Away Place" or the musical dexterity to drastically change the mood of the release as they do in the chestnut "Reflection" and in the jaunty musings of the title track "Caught in the Current." Such adroitness sustains this effort overall. The lyrical quotient of "Caught in the Current" reflect the taut, tenuous feeling throughout. There's no room for compromise here even when expressing a sense of vulnerability as in "I'm Yours."

Sings Moore, "Sewn up my heart with a delicate touch/I never knew love could be used as a crutch ... If you want me, you can have me/I'm yours." He doesn't sound like he's going to wait around for Overall, perhaps this release could do with a few less growls. Crossed Wire demand and deserve attention.

Dear Readers

In my last column I answered a letter that requested information about therapy. The woman who wrote shared with us a traumatic experience and was cynical that she could be helped, least of all by psychotherapy. I answered by telling her how and why I believe psychotherapy could help.

Today's column is the second part of that series. I hope it will give my readers an even deeper understand-

The following poem and homily were written by two different women, both of whom wanted to express their therapeutic experience.

The following is from a grateful patient who wanted to put on paper the words of wisdom learned from If you like things just the way they are, just keep doing what you are There are three choices when confronted with a situation you cannot

(1) Walk away from it, leave it behind for something new. (2) Change yourself to be able to accept the situation.

(3) Don't change, don't accept the situation and pay the price. If you can find and follow your heart of hearts the above choices are always reduced to one. You can change very little about others (as if you have any right to), and accordingly, beware of the fool's megalomania and self-righteousness. If you don't value time, you don't

Allen experiments again with 'Shadows and Fog'

"Shadows and Fog" takes place that never quite works. over a single night in an unidentified European town in the 1920s. The brick-lined streets, covered in a thick fog, are home to a serial murderer who strangles his victims or slits them from ear to ear.

Strange material for a Woody Allen film, you may say. Not really when you consider the past decade of: the popular filmmaker's work, where Fellini and Bergman have been reworked in such film experiments as "Satrdust Memories," "Interiors" and "September."

This time around, Allen pays tribute to the movies, music and morality that put Berlin on the cultural map between the first and second World Wars. Shot in black and white and backed by a haunting Kurt Welll score, "Shadows and Fog" is another of Allen's ambitious experiements

In this film, showing at select AMC and Star theaters, Allen plays Kleinman, a weaselly bureaucrat cut off the same tree as Franz Kafka's character K. Awakened from his bed one night, the film seems to say in prologue, Kleinman discovers himself in a plot to catch the murderer without knowing exactly where he Meanwhile, at the circus, sword swallower Mia Farrow catches clown boyfriend John Malkovich in the trailer of a sexy gypsy fortune teller (played by Madonna). The vicious fight that ensues sends her off' alone on the shadowy streets with nowhere to go.

"SHADOWS AND Fog" evocative cinematography mixes intentionally grainy black-and-white street scenes · with high-contrast black-and-white indoors. The image of the killer emerging from the fog with his arms polsed at his side mimics the vampire in Murnau's "Nosferatu."

Donald Pleasance recalls both John Gleigud and his own ridiculously deadpan roles in the "Halloween" movies where he was always one step behind a similarly slippery killer, Madonna, meanwhile, spends a merciful four minutes on screen in a bogus imitation of sultry Marlene Aside from "Zelig," where he was magically cast opposite the most important historic personages of the 20th century, the new film assemsophic prostitutes who take the sword swallower in. John Cusack makes the best of his small part as a university student and brothel regular who offers Farrow's sword swallower $700 for a night in the sack.

There are only a handful of real laughs in the ambiguous moral landscape of "Shadows and Fog." The best gags come in the form of pithy witticlsms about the meaning of life.

KLEINMAN, asked for the third time whether or not he believes in God, admits that he's not so sure of his own existence. He subscribes to the belief that reality is all a part of some sleeping dog's dream.

Malkovich's circus clown, meanwhile, comments on his dislike of" whores: "I always start out with a burning desire, but then wake up the next morning with a burning sensa-

Ultimately, you experience this same kind of let-down with "Shadows and Fog." Though, considerably. more highbrow in its content and. visual style, Allen's tributes to favorite filmmakers have little more resonance than a good Mel Brooks. movie not much of a compliment for America's most heralded direc-

Cops and dancing. That's not a combination that comes immediately.'lo mind, so naturally there isn't lot of enthusiasm among some New York police officers when they are directed to audition for a modern dance project.

After incurring the wrath of his supervisor. Cleavant Derricks finds himself volunteered as a dancer. Naturally, he calls in a favor owed him by his buddy, played by Judge Reinhold, and sticks him in a mismatched uniform and sends him on to the auditon.

If it was that simple, naturally there wouldn't be much of a story for the rest of the whimsical romantic 1986 comedy "Offbeat."

A rather easygoing rollerskating librarian, Reinhold ends up in the show for the oldest reason of all. He didn't want to look bad in front of a woman officer, played by Meg Tilly, and to shown up by a high octane testosterone powered cop, played by Joe Mantegna, who is a rival for her affections only in his own mind.

REINHOLD'S character is the kind of guy who not only doesn't get a long awaited promotion at the library, but also gets dumped by his girlfriend, who announces she is moving in with the smarmy bureaucrat who just derailed his career plans.

The film, written by Mark Medoff, isn't particularly original in plot. The librarian playing police officer gets into some awkward situations walking around New York in uniharacters and good performances by all of the actors that raises it above average.

Reinhold is very good as a good natured man who has lacked direction and purpose in his life. He and Derricks have a very comfortable relationship as longtime friends, even as Derricks keeps taking the heat for things his alter ego says and does at the dance rehearsals.

Tilly, an actress I usually find vague and irritatingly unfocused, does a nice job creating a woman dealing with work in an overwhelmingly male atmosphere. Her neat handling of a fellow officer making sexist remarks is quick and efficient. There's a very funny scene when she takes Reinhold home to meet her family of police officers.

Mantegna is also funny as the type of guy who's idea of sweet talking a woman who rejects him is to say "I'll kill you before I let you despise me." What a guy.

THERE ARE a lot of other good supporting, performances, including my favorite wiseacre magician Penn

Jillette as Reinhold's co-worker. He announces his two great loves as the Dewey Decimal System and demolition pyrotechnics, both of which he intends to put to use to keep the television networks from canceling "Family Feud."

Harvey Keitel is a bank robber, with an easily distracted partner, whose plans just aren't working out.

The story about police officers participating in a dance program, also featuring youngsters, is apparently based on a program run in New York by dancer Jacques D'Amboise, formerly of the New York City Ballet. He appears in the film as the choregrapher of the program and shares his genuine enthusiasm for the joy and empowerment that comes through dance.

Seeing this film made me want to take another look at a documentary about his program "He Makes Me Feel Like Dancing."

New Zealand's picturesque harbor is circled by houses and quaint commercial architecture spilling down rolling slopes to

Wellington

Travelers often miss New Zealand's most urban city

By Carole Van Grondelle New York Times Syndicate

n a nation brimful of scenic wonders, New Zealand's capital city of Wellington, situated at the southernmost tip of the North Island, is often bypassed in the ourist stampede to Queenstown. Yet New Zealand's first organized European settlement has evolved into the country's most intensely urban city. It is arguably the intellectual and cultural center of New Zealand. The setting is stunning: a fine, deep harbor set in a natural amphitheater of densely wooded hills. Clinging tenaciously to the hillsides is a colorful pastiche of timber houses, many dating to colonial times. A narrow crescent of flat land supports a cluster of tall commercial buildings focused around the Civic Center, which forms a new nucleus for the city's cultural amenities.

A large open-air plaza, which was completed in late November, provides an urban meeting place for outdoor concerts and events. Enclosing this space is an ensemble of new, older and refurbished buildings.

Dominating one end of the Civic Center is the polished armature of the Michael Fowler Center, the city's principal concert venue.

Among new buildings is the three-story Wellington Public Library, which opened in December, presenting an undulating facade to the plaza and lining the street with a colonnade of glant steel "nikau palms."

Beneath the plaza is Capital Discovery Place, a hands-on children's museum scheduled to open in September. Refurbished buildings include the Town Hall, of Edwardian classicist design, and the Early Modern civic administration building.

The former city library, an imposing striped classical edifice, is being remodeled as the new City Art Gallery and will open in early 1993. Beyond the central city, to the south and east, are a series of rocky bays and sandy inlets

Despite its dramatic topography, Wellington is easily negotiated on foot. From the north it takes just two hours to stroll from the pioneer cottages of the Thorndon neighborhood, past the Parliament buildings, along the bustling storefronts of Lambton Quay and south to the Mediterranean-style promenade of Oriental Parade.

For energetic visitors there are several signposted walkways into the city's hills. These trails combine panoramic views and discreet glimpses into private gardens.

A word of caution: The price Wellington pays for its peninsula location and lush green vegetation is a brisk sea breeze and changeable weather.

WHAT TO DO Historic Wellington has a 150year heritage of European settlement.

The Wellington Information Center, on the corner of Wakefield and Victoria streets, P.O. Box 2199, offers the "Thorndon Walk" (80 cents) and "Historic Wellington" ($1.35) brochures, which outline sightseeing tours. For more information call 801-

One spot is the Katherine Mansfield Birthplace, at 25 Tinakori Road, where New Zealand's most gifted writer was born in 1888. It is open from 10. a.m. to 4 p.m.; closed Monday.

Admission is $2.15. For more information call 473-7268.

Farther up Tinakora Road, onto Glenbervie Terrace and Ascot Street, are tiny 1870s cottages.

Among other old places of interest are the Parliament buildings lining Molesworth Street, which include the old Parilament House, built in 1912 and considered a fine example of Edwardian Classicism, and the Gothic Revival General Assembly Library, built in 1899, as well as the modern executive wing of Parliament, known as the Beehive for its conical shape. St. Paul's Cathedral, a block away on Mulgrave Street, is a splendid example of 19th-century timber Gothic architecture.

In the newly completed National Archives building, at 10 Mulgrave Street, you can visit the Constitution room to view the original Treaty of Waitangi, the most important document in New Zealand's constitutional history. It was signed in 1840 by representatives of the British government and many of the country's Maori tribal groups.

The National Archives Building is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Admission is free. For more information call 499-5595.

At the National Museum and Art Gallery, at Buckle Street, is Taonga Maori, a display of rare Maori cultural artifacts assembled for a recent Australian tour. It is open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. For more information call 385-9609.

From Cable Car Lane off Lambton Quay you can take the Kelburn cable car to the top of the Wellington Botanic Gardens (free admission) to admire the view. then walk down through the verdant bush. At the Lady Norwood Rose Garden 100-plus types of roses, arranged in formal geometric design, are in full bloom throughout the summer

The Kelburn cable car, which costs 80 cents, operates from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday to Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. For more information call 472-2199.

For a view of the city skyline from the opposite side of the bay visitors can take the Wellington Harbor Ferry across to Day's Bay, a popular picnic spot. Departure from Queen's Wharf is $12 for a round-trip ticket. Visitors stroll around the beach to Eastbourne and browse in the shops and galleries.

Returning to Queens' Wharf, one can follow the waterfront to Oriental Parade, which sweeps around the sheltered southeast arm of the harbor in a broad serpentine, lined with Norfolk pines. Until late evening the promenade attracts a steady stream of joggers, swimmers, windsurfers, cyclists, fishermen and dog lovers.

Retirees enjoy going through Oregon's only rustic gristmill

By Gene and Adele Malott special writer

Peter Crandall, 70, and his wife Cora bought Oregon's only gristmill - the Butte Creek Mill - in 1972. It took Crandall just two days to close

He had been a mechanical engineer in southern California when he visited Oregon, heard the mill was for sale and decided to buy it and

Now he says, "I have never regret-ted doing it. I'm where I want to be, doing what I want to do."

Crandall's Butte Creek Mill - in Eagle Point, Ore., just north of Medford, Ore., on U.S. Highway 62 — is a favorite stop for mature travelers on the road to Oregon's spectacular Crater Lake area.

Inside the weathered four-story water-powered mill, a miller uses the same 1,400-pound stones that were brought to Eagle Point more than 100 years ago to grind wheat, rye and corn into flours, meals and

Today the structure, which first opened in 1872, is on the National Register of Historic Places.

The Crandalls also run the General Store Museum, which is part of the mill complex. They have filled the museum with items that piqued their interest during the past 50 years: patent-medicine bottles, old advertisements, a turn-of-the-century phonograph, an antique coffee grinder and potbellied stove.

The Crandalls are typical of southern Oregon's new wave of retirees who come to vacation and decide to Most who visit this area will make their way north and east on U.S. Highway 62, perhaps stopping at Natural Bridge Viewpoint about 50 miles past Eagle Point for a stroll across the Rogue River before continuing to Crater Lake.

Medford is central to the area - a good place to camp for day-trips into the rest of the region.

Across the wide road from Crandalls' establishment is Rita's Towne & Country Parlor, a tiny shop filled

Another Oregon retiree is Jack Heald, who collects and displays antique tractors at the Fordson Home Hostel, an American Youth Hostel he runs near Cave Junction, Ore.-

Heald acts as an unofficial guide for mature travelers in the quiet valley just west of Medford.

'It's the best-kept tourism secret in America," Heald tells visitors, referring to Oregon's fishing, hunting, hiking, golf and six months of 90-degree days.

Despite the "youth" in its name, Heald's American Youth Hostel is a haven for mature travelers. It's possible to spend a few days or stay a while longer while looking over the area as a possible place to retire. Accommodations are $7 a night per

Trojans end best season with loss to No. 1 team

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

When Leandra Hoffman boarded the Livonia Clarenceville bus headed for home Friday night she was holding a jacket, duffle bag and jam box in her arms. Unfortunately for Hoffman and the rest of her teammates, they also had their hands full 30 minutes earlier with Concord High, the state's No.

1 ranked Class C girls volleyball

Clarenceville, one of the state's surprise teams, lost to Concord, 15-1, 15-7, in a Class C quarterfinal match played at Kalamazoo College's Anderson Athletic Complex. The loss ended Clarenceville's best season ever at 23-11-6 overall. Hoffman, one of four seniors who played their last match, credits second-year coach Alisha Love for the turnaround. The Trojans are 40-27-9 overall the last two-years.

"WE CAME THIS far and I'm pretty proud," said Hoffman, one of four Clarenceville seniors playing their final match. "We had fun, the unity with the team has improved greatly. I don't know if we'd be here (in the quarterfinal) with a different coach. The talent's here, but she has pulled it out from within."

The Trojans didn't have enough talent, however, to pose a serious threat to Concord. Several unforced errors early by Clarenceville allowed Concord to score the first eight points of the match.

Concord, which is 42-6-4 overall and has won the Big 8 Conference 10 of the last 11 years, got a powerful performance out of junior hitter Stephanie Friedlund and senior setter Carla Gron.

Friedlund finished with eight kills and Gron, a four-time Big 8 Conference first-team choice, had 19 assists to kills and no errors in 41 attempts:

"STEPHANIE IS definitely our go-to person, she's by far our best hitter, and if Carla makes errors they're few-and-far between," Concord coach Tim Wallbaum said. "I knew we weren't going to take Clarenceville lightly. I know that area has good programs, but we were more-or-less worrled about how well we play and go from there. Clarenceville is a good team or it wouldn't have made it this far."

Love didn't agree with some of the officials' calls that went against Clarenceville in the first game but knew the Trojans lost to a quality team. Clarenceville made a strong showing in the second game as Hoffman served four straight points, including three aces, to erase a 5-2 deficit and give Clarenceville a-6-5

Concord scored 10 of the game's last 11 points, however, to secure the victory and a berth in the semifinal round. The Yellowjackets had six kills and two service aces down the stretch.

"What really hurt us was they had a decent setter," Love sald. " We never really got a chance to show our offense because our defense was off the mark. This (the quarterfinal match) was a new experience all the way around, but they did a real good job and I'm proud of them."

HOFFMAN AND sophomore Jaime Zembke led the Trojans with three kills each, while Zembke also contributed two solo blocks. Freshman Tracy Sledz recorded one kill for the Trojans.

Love said she'il miss Hoffman's leadership and ability. When asked what her absence might mean to the Trojans' lineup, Love's husband Mike interrupted and said, "It's like the Pistons without Islah Thomas."

advwood loses 3-game match to Temperance-Bedford

Livonia Ladywood has enjoyed better days at the state volleyball finals.

Ladywood, which won Class A championships in 1988 and '89 and took second in the 1990 state finals, bowed out of this year's tournament in Friday's Class A quarterfinal in Kalamazoo. The Blazers lost in three gámes, 15-11, 5-15, 11-15, to thirdranked Temperance-Bedford.

Ladywood finished the season at 42-10-5. Bedford advanced with a 62-7-6 overall record. "I was real impressed with the way the kids played today," Ladywood coach Tom Teeters said. "We didn't make any errors. The better team won today."

The Blazers were led throughout the match by junior outside hitters Liz Gunn (19 kills) and Mary Jo Kelly (14 kills).

Kelly opened the first game with a pair of kills, and an ace serve by junior Valerie Adzima gave the Blazers a quick 3.0 lead. The Kicking Mules battled back and tied the score at 5-5 before Gunn drilled four kills in a row to give her team the lead for good, 9-5.

FRESHMAN TARA Overaitis, iunior Andrea Putti and senior Jannel Hemme kept the Mules in check with some fine play at the net. Senior Kristy Walker sealed the win with a block on an attack by Bedford senior Jennie Bringman.

Gunn had three kills early in the second game, but the Mules took a 4-1 lead. Kelly added a couple kills and an ace serve but the Blazers never caught fire as Bedford earned a 15-5 victory.

Gunn finished with seven kills in the final game and Kelly five, but Ladywood couldn't gain momentum. The game was tied at 5-5 and 7-7 before the Mules rambled to a 15-11

"We exceeded all of my expectations and I think all of the girls' expectations," Teeters said. "We won the (Catholic) league championship, knocked out last year's state champ (Livonia Churchill) in the district finals and beat a very fine Mercy team for the third time in the regional finals."

Ladywood will lose only Hemme, Nancy Burr and Michelle Wilson to graduation.

"Next year will have to take care of itself, but the experience can only help (the 11 returnees)," Teeters

State champs top Observerland's list

The Coach of the Year is Farmington's Al Beyar, who guided the Falcons to a Western Lakes Activities Association championship and first place in the Observerland Invitational.

Following is a capsule look at each wrestler:

"Jason improves on a daily basis," Garden City coach Phil Freeman sald. "Judging by the amount of natural talent he still has to build on, it's scary to think of how

Tom Pace, 103, Westland John Glenn: Pace was undefeated in 13 dual matches. won the John Glenn and Observerland tournament and took second at the district. Pace, who was 38-8 for the year and 77-24 in his career, placed third in the regional and seventh at the state meet.

"Tom's exterior is that of a 'class clown,' but his interior is that of a serious and dedicated athlete," coach Dave Hill said. "He always had a smile on his face even in a 'back bridge.' He worked very hard and always took the advice of coaches even when it went against his own opinion."

Stevenson grads help remake Ocelot soccer squad

By C.J. Risak staff writer

There was a major task facing Schoolcraft College men's soccer coach Van Dimitriou after last season. Seven players were on their way out; most were starters at year's Rebuilding the team would be difficult. But Dimitriou Isn't lagging; he's received commitments from 13 players who are talented enough to help keep the Ocelots at the top of the NJCAA's Region 12.

Dimitriou isn't making any boastful predictions. He did say, however, that "with the nucleus we have coming back, it looks like we should be challenging for the (region) title again."

The key losses for SC are forward Jeff Vandemergel, midfielder Chris Crawford and keeper Scott Hauman. Also gone are midfielders Bobby Hayes and Dave Hebestrelt, and defenders Shane Millner and Shaun

Dimitriou's recruiting looked like a trip to Meijer's - a "one-stop shopping" spree. Five of his 13 newcomers are from a pretty good source: Class A state champ Livonia Stevenson.

DIMITRIOU'S GREATEST concern was replacing Hauman in goal. He came up with "a good one" in Stevenson's Matt Stabile, a secondteam all-Observer selection and an honorable mention all-state choice.

Another Spartan Dimitriou landed is Tim Lampi, a midfielder or defender who missed several games last fall due to a broken jaw. Still, he played enough to be chosen to the Western Lakes Activities Association's all-Lakes Division team.

A second all-Lakes Division pick from Stevenson will also attend SC. and he's bringing his brother with him. Adam Carriere played forward for the Spartans; his brother Ryan is a defender who played at Central Michigan. He is transferring and will join the Ocelots with one year of eligibility remaining.

Schoolcraft sports

Dave Matovski, Stevenson's cocaptain and a midfielder, completes the list of Spartan recruits, So how did Dimitriou manage to land so many from one source?

Simple, he explained: "All three (Stevenson) coaches (Walt Barrett, Brian Thomas and Chris Moore) are Schoolcraft grads and ex-players of

It helps to have connections like

THE PRIZE recruit for Dimitriou may be from Stevenson's biggest soccer rival - Livonia Churchill. Dominic Vella was an all-WLAA selection who moved from forward to midfield for the Chargers to try and avoid double-teams. He still scored eight goals and collected 10 assists. Vella's best ability, according to Churchill coach Mark Mason, is playing the ball in the air. With the loss of Vandemergel and Crawford, SC's top two scorers in 1991, Dimitriou needs someone who can put the ball in the net.

Although sweeper Mike Presley, stopper Jack Abate and defender Wayne Worosz return, Dimitriou still wanted to strengthen the defensive corps. His reason was that both Worosz and Presley are converted midfielders, pressed into service as defenders. He'd like to move them back to their natural positions.

Dimitriou hasn't yet found anyone capable of playing sweeper as well as Presley did last season, so that might not change. But Worosz will likely be in the midfield in the fall, with Lampi, Ryan Carriere and Aaron Simpson as possible replace-

In addition, Dimitriou likes their size: Simpson is 6-foot, 192 pounds; Cardinal is 6-1, 180. Both kids are the kind that I feel can step in and help us right away," the SC coach

Two other players Dimitriou hopes will be instant aids are forwards Andy Casenza, from Plymouth Salem, and Nick Rochowiak, from Pinckney. Casenza attended Wittenberg College in Ohlo last year, but never played. He is transferring with two years eligibility remaining.

Rochowiak, according to Dimitriou. "is a real find. He has a natural soccer movement." As for Casenza, the SC coach said bluntly: 'This kid can put the ball in the net."

State's best lead All-Area team

Mario Sciciuna, 112, Redford CC: Sciciuna overcame a mid-season leg injury to finish at 26-9 overall and in fifth place at the Class A meet. He was also a Catholic League champi-

Scott Martin, 119, Plymouth Salem: Martin is a repeat performer on the all-area team after finishing fifth in the Class A meet. Martin, who was 41-10 and 110-36 for his career, placed second at the regional and third in the district. He also won both the Salem and Observerland tournaments. Martin is a three-time league champion, a two-time district champion and was named Most Valuable Wrestler for the Rocks this season. "Scott was one of our hardest" workers," Salem coach Ron Krueger sald. "He achieved a lot and deserved it all. We have a saying in our (wrestling) room: Those that stay will be champions.' Scott is truly a champion on and off the mat."

Dan Bonnett, 125, Plymouth Salem: Bonnett, who lost only six matches while winning 83 the last two years, capped his career with a Class A state championship. Bonnett, a two-time league and district champion, went 48-1 as a senior with 37 wins coming on pins. He placed first at the Salem, Lincoln Park and Observerland tournaments and also turned some heads with a championship at the St. Ed's (Ohio) Quad Meet.

"Dan is a very dedicated person," Krueger said. He did everything we beyond the practice room and did Bloomfield meets.

what it takes to be a state champi-

Tony Horvath, 130, Lutheran Westland: Horvath placed third at the Class C state meet, third at the regional and second at district. He was the Garden City, Observerland and league champion. As a junior, Horyath was fourth at the state meet and a regional champion. He finished this season at 35-5-1 and was 105-28-1 for his career.

"Tony is a winner, an honor student, student council president, captain and great inspiration for our team," coach Dennis Tuomi said. "He's a leader by example."

Chris Gorak, 135, Garden City: The senior was the Cougars' Most Valuable Wrestler, compiling a 28-8 record to finish his career with a 98-24 mark. Gorak advanced to the finals of each regular-season tournament he wrestled in and won the Thurston, NSL and Observerland meets. He was second at the Class A district and placed fourth at regional to qualify for the state meet.

Chris shows a lot of intensity and determination when he wrestles," Freeman said. "His will to win comes through against some very talented opponents. His ability to fire up himself and his teammates will be missed."

Marcus Brown, 140, N. Farmington: The Raider senior won Observerland, league and district crowns during a 33-5 season. Brown, who finished his career with a 73-37-2 record, also was fourth at the Oakasked of him and more. He worked land County and third at the West

Anyone who has ever seen Marcus Brown wrestle would agree that he is a tremendous athlete," coach Jeff Fagan said.

Jeff Shumate, 145, Plymouth Salem: Although Shumate failed to advance out of the Class A district, he was first at the Salem, Romulus and Observerland tournaments and finished the year at 36-6. He placed second in the Lincoln Park and Salem invitationals as well as second at the league meet. "Jeff is probably the best kid I've ever worked with," Krueger said. "He didn't reach his goal, but every day after districts he came in and helped the boys that were still involved. He is a true leader. He has every quality you would want in a young man. He is not probably the best kid I've ever coached; he is the best kid I've ever coached."

- Mike Reeves, 152, John Glenn: Reeves lost only once in 43 matches and that came on a disqualification in the Observerland Invitational. Reeves was a state, regional and district champion and has a 75-6-1 career record with his senior year still ahead. He also won tournament titles at Ypsilanti, Redford Catholic Central, Temperance-Bedford and John Glenn. He was a league champ as well.

"Mike Reeves is the true athlete, possessing great strength, agility and endurance," coach Hill said. "Mike has a mind of his own and conditions and pushes his body far beyond all others. His goal is to be an Olympian. As Mike raced the elevators from the lobby to the 16th floor of the Stouffer's Hotel the night before the state championships, I felt sorry for anyone else who may have wanted a championship medal at 152 pounds."

Jason Krueger, 160, Redford CC: Krueger, a regional champion, lost a 6-4 match in the semifinal of the Class A meet to Grandville's Tom Graverson, the eventual champion, Mike Reeves and placed third in the state. He finished his junior season with a 47-4 record. Krueger also was first in the Observerland, Shamrock and Catholic League tournaments.

Dan Kelly, 171, Redford CC: Kelly became a state Class A champion with a 10-4 decision over Brighton's Scott Sucaet. Kelly finished his senior year with a 47-2-1 record, which included regional, district, Shamrock Invitational, Observerland tournament and Catholic League titles.

Aaron Shakarian, 189, Franklin: Shakarian, who was only 10-9 a year ago as a junior, enjoyed a 34-10-1. record as a senior. He was a league champ, finished third at district and fourth at regional. Shakarian had more than 50 career wins, and one of the highlights from 1991-92 was a championship at the Lincoln Park Invitational.

"That kid worked hard his whole career, only this year he started believing in himself," said Frank Vilardi, a former assistant at Franklin now coaching at Wayne Memorial. "He's real good on his feet. He has a move called 'Granby' that coach Ken Meinschein worked with him on, and he's pretty much unstoppable on it. He hits it all the time."

V's 'Challenge' will attract top rollers TOU MAY SEE some of your friends, relatives or neighbors 10-pin alley bowling on television in April.

WKBD-TV (Channel-50) will air the Valvoline Michigan Bowling Challenge each Saturday in April. This is a coordinated effort by the BCA, Channel-50 and the GDBA/DWBA, with Valvoline being the main sponsor.

To qualify for the show, all league bowlers were asked to pay a $1 entry fee. League scores were based on the highest over average from each house, with the top man and woman qualifiers advancing to the regional roll-offs over the week-

. The eight regional champions will then proceed to the televised competition on the one-hour program. If ratings for the show are high enough, there is a good chance Channel-50 will televise the show regularly in the fall. A REMINDER to all secretaries:

Averages of all male bowlers with at least 21 games completed must be sent to the Greater Detroit Bowling Association displaying the bowler's average as of April 1 for the annual bowling yearbook.

The average appearing in the yearbook becomes the bowler's official average for this season - no matter what happens after time of publication.

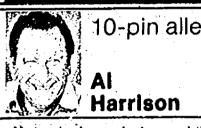

THE LADIES PROFESSIONAL bowling tour will appear in the Observerland area in May at Satellite Bowl in Dearborn Heights.

The Michigan Classic, running May 16-21; will start with a nine-pin, no-tap proam tournament. This will give amateurs an opportunity to meet the professionals and bowl with them.

The pro-am carries a guaranteed $1,000 first prize. For more information, call Mark or Diane Voight at 278-7400.

BOWLING CENTERS are now setting up spring/summer league schedules. As the current season winds down, a lot of bowlers like to continue without taking time off during the summer.

Listings of these leagues will be printed as information comes in. The off-season, usually a 10 or 12 week season, provides a good opportunity to keep on top of your game.

Most spring leagues begin around the end of April, or early May.
