By Darrell Clem staff writer

A recall campaign against Wayne-Westland school board member Leonard Posey has failed, amid strong indications that two of his colleagues also will survive efforts to oust them.

"I am relieved and happy to hear the news that this (recall) is at an end for me," Posey said Monday night. A campaign to recall board members Kathleen Chor-

A campaign to recall board members Kathleen Chorbagian and Andrew Spisak also appears in deep trouble, although the effort hadn't been dropped as of Tuesday afternoon.

County elections officials halted the campaign against Posey after declaring hundreds of petition signatures invalid. A committee trying to oust him fell 44 signatures short of the 4,420 it needed.

The committee, known as New Beginnings for our Children (NBC), had collected more than 6,000 signatures against Posey. But hundreds proved invalid because citizens didn't meet such requirements as being a registered voter and a school district resident.

"SURE I'M disappointed," committee leader Steven Lind said, but added that his committee won't try again for a special recall election.

County officials also tossed out hundreds of signatures against Chorbagian and Spisak, but not enough to halt the campaign. However, the petitions have been sent to local city clerks for further review, and other signatures are expected to be lost.

NBC also had collected more than 6,000 signatures against Chorbagian and Spisak. When the county completed its count, it upheld only 4,433 names against Chorbagian and 4,500 against Spisak.

That means there would be no Chorbagian recall proposal if another 14 invalid signatures are found by clerks in the cities and one township served by the school district. Spisak's recall would be dropped if 81 signatures are tossed out.

City clerk offices confirmed that some signatures have been discarded, but they didn't expect to complete their count until late this week or early next week.

Steven Lind, leader of a recall campaign against Chorbagian and two other board members, demanded during a board meeting Monday that she apologize for what he called "the most irresponsible words spoken in the last 10 years by any board member."

He also asked for an apology from the board, and some members complied.

Lind's demand came two weeks after Chorbagian compared him and another longtime critic, David Moranty, to Ku Klux Klan types as she angrily announced that she wouldn't seek ré-election in June.

In a telephone conversation Tuesday, Chorbagian accused Lind's recall committee of spreading lies and said, "I think Mr. Lind owes me and my family an apology."

Lind told Chorbagian on Monday

also said she was accused of "immoral" behavior.

Lind vehemently denied Chorbagian's claims and said he told recall supporters to focus on such issues as a controversial teachers contract and proposed school program cuts. If they made accusations against Chorbagian, he said, they did it on their own.

"I certainly did not instruct those people to say anything like that," he said.

On Monday, Lind also told Chorbagian he was offended by accusations that he wants to damage the school district. As a member of the Taft-Galloway Elementary School PTA,

In the swing GC resident tees off as manager of golf course

By Leonard Poger editor

The new Westland municipal golf course manager is young but has spent most of his life in Garden City recreation groups.

Robert Kosowski, who began his new duties. last month, lettered in three varsity sports at Garden City East High School and spent the next 10 years helping run youth and adult recreation programs for the Garden City recreation department.

Kosowski, 28, was hired last month by the Westland Municipal Service Bureau to run the nine-hole course on Merriman, south of Cherry Hill. He replaces Carl Morton, who was fired last fall after 13 years at the course.

Although the unexpected snow storm of last weekend may prevent the planned April 1 opening of the course, Kosowski said there are many changes under way at the pro shop.

Those changes include new carpeting, furniture, counter, blinds and painted pipes, which he believes will "brighten up the atmosphere." An 'organizational change will have open golf scheduled 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays and after 6:30 p.m. Open golf will also be available for all of the weekends. The other times will be scheduled for leagues.

The green fees have been raised $1, boosting the rates to $9 for weekends and holidays; $8 for weekdays and $6 for senior citizens.

THE COURSE has been busy for many years, reporting 45,000 rounds last year.

Kosowski said he wants to make sure that the course's golfers are pleased and hopes they are happy with the changes.

The new manager was raised on Detroit's southwest side before his family moved to Garden City when he was 13.

He lettered in football, baseball and basketball at East High before graduating in 1982, the school's last year as a separate high school. The next fall, it was consolidated with West High and operated as Garden City High.

After graduation, he attended Adrian College where he studied business and was a linebacker on the school's football team. Subsequently, he enrolled at Wayne State University in Detroit. There he studied business and recreation administration. He hopes to get his bachelor's degree next year.

Last summer, he married his high school sweetheart, Liz. They now live in Garden City.

Recall leader Lind is candidate for school board seat

By Darrell Clem staff writer

2A(W)

Steven Lind, denying he had ulterior motives for trying to recall three Wayne-Westland school board members, has confirmed he will seek a board seat in the June 8 election.

Lind conceded Monday that his critics will seize the opportunity to link his candidacy to his attempt to recall board members Kathleen Chorbagian, Leonard Posey and Andrew Spisak.

"It looks had," he acknowledged Monday affernoon.

Hours later, Chorbagian accused Lind of launching the recall to improve his chances of winning a board seat. But she said Lind has focused too much attention on her, desplie her announcement that she won't seek re-election.

"He's running against me, and I'm not even running," Chorbagian said, "He'd better start running against the people who are running?" Lind denied he had plans last year to seek a board seat when he formed the recall committee New Beginnings for Our Children. (See related story.)

His recent decision to campaign for the board stemmed from a mostly discouraging list of possible board candidates, he said.

Two of the seven board seats are at stake June 8. Although Chorbagian plans to step down, board President Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek expects to seek re-election.

THE FILING deadline is Monday afternoon, April 6. Other potential candidates who've picked up nominating petitions at the board office include:

Former board member Mathew McCusker - one of three incumbents ousted last June amid public anger over a board-approved contract that gave teachers an 11.9 percent raise over two years, despite a budget crunch.

• John Albrecht, who lost his first board campaign last June. In his second bid, Albrecht has questioned the ability of board members to set aside their personal differences and move the embattled district forward.

 Richard LeBlanc, also defeated last June in his first election bid. LeBlanc wants more board representation for elementary schools.

• Michael Flemming, a 21-year-old prelaw student at the University of Michigan-Dearborn. Flemming, also a lawn care worker, believes his age will help him be a role model for students.

Moreover, he said, "I'm disturbed over what I see happening on the school board now - the fighting between the factions."

• Kenneth Raupp, an unsuccessful candidate last June, who has suggested the district could save money through privatization.

"Everything they do can be done cheaper," he said.

Raupp also wants to halt the escalation of salaries for district employees and indicated he would support worker concessions. He is considering a survey of district residents to . see if they agree.

IN OTHER developments, one district union leader has ruled out an election bid, though hehad picked up petitions at the board office.

William Brown dropped his plans after being chosen as national pension committee chairman of AFSCME, the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Another widely rumored candidate, former Wayne Memorial High School principal Francis "Bud" Winter, hasn't yet picked up petitions. He told the Observer in early March that he hadn't reached a decision. He couldn't be reached for comment as of Tuesday morning.

tract that awarded salary increases of 11.9 percent over two years, despite a budget crunch that threatened deep cuts in school programs and services. The cuts were averted after voters approved a 7.75-mill tax increase in June.

Board members defended the pay raises as among the lowest in Wayne County. Moreover, teachers had threatened to strike before the contract was approved.

Lind vowed Monday that his committee won't renew its campaign for a special recall election, even if the effort fails against all three board members. Chorbagian's term expires in June, and she has announced she won't seek re-election. Spisak's four-year term expires next year, and Posey's in 1994.

"I think at this point we need to get beyond the recall. We need to start mending things," said Lind, a newly announced candidate in the June 8 school board race.

(See related story.)

AFTER LEARNING that Posey's recall effort had failed, Lind suggested that Posey still should remember that thousands of citizens opposed him.

"Perhaps he ought to reflect on that and learn from his mistakes," Lind said. "He's not a very popular man right now, and he knows it."

Posey, meanwhile, vowed to "do whatever I can" to help Chorbagian and Spisak survive the recall.

The three board members have spent a combined $4,300 in attorney fees to fight the campaign, including a battle they lost in court to get the effort halted.

On Monday, Posey called the attempted recall "vindictive" and said it hurt not only the board members but also their families. He thanked supporters who stood behind him, saying "they felt all along that I did the right thing."

Chorbagian refuses to apologize

he said, "I have worked hard for children."

Board members Laurel Raisanen, Vicki Welty and Fred Warmbler did publicly apologize to Lind Monday.

"I feel the board does owe you an apology," Raisanen said, drawing applause from some audience memsaid Chorbagian's remarks were "absolutely not" appropriate.

BUT BOARD member Leonard Posey refused to join an apology "for something that I personally didn't say."

At one point Monday, board President Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek

The president suggested that Chorbagian meet with Lind after the meeting. But Chorbagian declined and pointed out that Lind and Moranty had recently refused her offer to meet with them to discuss their differences.

Lind and Moranty had dismissed the offer as political grand-standing by Chorbagian because she made it while still considering a re-election bid in June.

bers . Welty, who as vice president had presided over the March 9 meeting, refused Chorbagian an opportunity to respond to Lind and said, "I think it's best just to let this rest."

School choice plan unveiled by committee

By Darrell Clem staff writer

Hundreds of Wayne-Westland students would have more choices of which school they want to attend next school year under a proposal developed by a committee of parents and educators.

Students entering the seventh and eighth grades would be allowed to choose among the district's four junior high schools under the plan outlined Monday during a school board meeting.

The board appears prepared to vote on the proposal during a special session at 7 p.m. Monday. In a separate matter, the public meeting also will include an update from the Chicago-based search firm that's spearheading a national search for a new school superintendent.

The proposal to let seventh and eighth graders choose among Adams, Franklin, Marshall and Stevenson junior high schools emerged from a 24-member committee that includes 16 parents and eight school officials. The state has ordered all districts to develop a "schools of choice" plan.

STUDENTS WOULD have to decide at the end of this school year which junior high they want to attend. They would have to live with that decision for a year, the committee has decided.

The initial phase would be the first of several in implementing schools of choice in the 16,000-student district.

Students in the ninth grade would be allowed to choose their school in 1993-94. In each subsequent year, the next-highest grade level would be added until all junior high and high school students would have choices by`1996-97.

Elementary pupils in Wayne-Westland already may choose a school that's not in their home attendance area, as long as that school has available space. That policy would continue.

However, the new state mandate

'I think it's going to build enthusiasm. I think the parents are going to like it.' - Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek school board president

The schools of choice plan was outlined in detail Monday by the district's curriculum director, Norine Blake, who was assisted by committee members. The panel has been meeting since mid-January.

ALTHOUGH COMMITTEE members disagreed on some issues, they did reach a consensus that "we are in favor" of schools of choice, Blake said. The committee has made several recommendations to the school board. Among those:

 Keep neighborhood schools intact. Students living in an attendance area would have higher priority than outside pupils wanting to attend, if space problems occur.

 Schools wouldn't have a quota system to seek racial balance, but the selection process would allow for "equal opportunity" for students of all ethnic, social and economic backgrounds.

 Amid a state mandate, the district would provide transportation for students choosing a school outside their attendance area. That could include a shuttle service or new bus routes costing as much as $50,000.

Some board members appeared optimistic about schools of choice.

"I think it's going to build enthusiasm," board president Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek said. "I think the parents are going to like it."

Districts could let voters decide in the June 8 election if they want to waive the schools of choice plan. That requires a majority vote of district residents.

But the Wayne-Westland committee has embraced the plan. Even if the district pursued a ballot proposal, a schools of choice plan would still have to be ready to implement, in case voters favored it.

New U.S. House districts bring big changes

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Carl Pursell isn't running for reelection.

William Ford is running, but will move into a new district.

Sander Levin is also running, but faces a tough primary battle without his western Wayne constituents.

That is the fate of the area's incumbent U.S. congressmen in the wake of a redistricting plan approved Monday by a federal court, panel.

Western Wayne's three U.S. House districts face major revisions under the plan.

That means residents in Redford,

Plymouth, Plymouth Township and parts of Livonia can expect a new representative next year.

It could also mean a hot race between senior GOP House member William Broomfield and rising party star David Honigman for voters in Redford and parts of Livonia.

Pursell's retirement announcement was a bombshell. The 16-year Republican veteran had earlier plans to run for another term.

The three judge panel's reapportionment plan also appeared to give him'a fairly safe south central Michigan district, but it cost him his traditional Plymouth/Livonia base.

"MY DECISION hasn't been an easy one," Pursell said. "With the impact of redistricting, we quite frankly have arrived at a point where it is time to pass on the baton to a new generation of leadership."

Pursell's departure could cost Michigan a seat on the powerful House Appropriations Committee.

Pursell and his constituents aren't the only ones facing changes. Ford's hometown, Taylor, was placed in a district with communities currently represented by John Dingell, D. Trenton. Instead of facing his longtime friend in a Democratic primary, the 26-year incumbent will run in a newly created district that includes Garden City, Westland and Canton - all part of his old district. "I already represent 63 percent of the district," Ford said.

In the process, Ford will move from his Taylor townhouse and take up residence within the new district. "The saddest part of this whole process is that each time we go through it, we have to leave some close friends behind," he said. "In this case, it includes the people of the city of Taylor, which has been my home since 1933."

Even though his hometown is in another district, Ford wouldn't have to move. Federal election law only requires, candidates to live in the

County commission districts struck down

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Michigan Supreme Court justices struck down new Wayne County Commission Districts on Tuesday, giving a temporary victory to suburban commissioners who sued to block the districts.

In a move unrelated to U.S. House redistricting, the state high court rejected plans drafted by a county apportionment panel.

Panel members are expected to file a revised plan with the court in two weeks.

"The court will put them under a microscope," said Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, one of four commissioners who challenged the new districts. "If they're still not happy, the justices hold the wild card."

The ruling was issued late Tuesday afternoon. Apportionment panel spokeswoman Marya Sieminski wasn't available for comment as of press time.

Amann and the other commissioners, including Kevin Kelley, D-Redford, brought an alternative plan before the court, but it's uncertain whether any part of that plan would be included in the county panel's revision.

The new district also includes Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Ann Arbor, among other communilies previously represented by Pursell.

CHAIRMAN OF the House Committee on Education and Labor, Ford is the highest ranking of the. area's three current representatives. Redford and northern Livonia could be the site of a heated Republican primary between state Sen. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, and longtime incumbent William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

Hongiman could have the GOP field to himself, however if Broomfield decides to challenge Dale Kil-

Carl Pursell retiring

dee, D-Flint, in a district that stretches from northern Oakland to Genessee and Lapeer counties. Right now, it appears a Broomfield-Honigman race appears likely. "Redistricting changes the political map in Michigan, but the new map leaves the heart of my, districtin tact," said Broomfield, who will probably move from his part-time residence in his brother's Lake Orion home, which is no longer part of the district.

Honigman, earlier tabbed for a race 'against Pursell, said he was anxious to run from the revised district.

"Most of my Senate seat is in the district," Honigman said, "80 percent population-wise: This is the time for me."

Levin, D-Southfield, will face feltrict that have been moved elsewhere, but I look forward to representing this new and diverse district," Levin said Tuesday in announcing his candidacy.

New districts take effect this year. Redistricting was mandated by the 1990 census. In adopting its own plan, the court panel rejected plans proposed by state Republicans and Democrats.

"THERE'S NO guarantee our districts would be saved," Amann said.

Court arguments centered on Livonia's division into two districts. as well as other boundary line issues. But the suburban commissioners all Democrats - have also said the proposed districts make them more vulnerable to Republican challengers.

Amann was placed in a district with GOP incumbent Maurice Breen, would have also included western Livonia.

Kelley lost the Redford portion of his district, gaining more Republican sections of eastern Livonia. Kelley, however, has already said he wouldn't run for re-election. Instead, he said he would challenge incumbent Robert Ficano in the Democratic primary for county sheriff. Commissioners Susan Hubbard, D-suburban commissioners had shown it was possible to adopt a valid redistricting plan that provides for more Detroit-only districts. Districts are to vary no more than eight percent in population, while also providing adequate minority representation under state and federal laws.

Dearborn and William O'Nell, D-Allen park, were placed in the same district.

Music maven Social worker by day is violinist by night By Joanne Maliezewski

staff writer

Kathie Spratt has her plans for heaven. She's going to be the violinist in a string quartet - forever.

"I love classical the best," said the program director for treatment foster care at the St. Vincent and Sarah Fisher Center which serves the metropolitan Detroit region. "It's what I grew up doing."

Music has always been Spratt's life and her family's. But she's not torn between her two loves - her work at the center and her violin. Both are part and parcel of her life.

If you've been to the theater in the last few years to see "Les Miserables," "Annie," "Showboat," "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers," or "On Your Toes," you can bet Spratt was in the pit.

And during the day she was right back in her office working with children in the foster care program. Co-workers talk about the 17 weeks she played in the or-chestra for "Les Miserables" doing eight shows a week.

Music was something Spratt and her family always thought she'd do as a career. "I'm a real believer that it's in the genes," Spratt said.

HER FATHER played the string bass, her grandfather, the trumpet, her grandmother, the organ and plano, her uncle, the jazz saxophone, her brother, the classical string bass, her niece, the violin, and a sister sings. "My mom just listens and tells us how good we are."

Spratt's musical life began with piano lessons, which she hated. And she was afraid of her teacher. When demonstrations of instruments were given at school, she picked the violin and took private lessons.

Spratt dove into her music. She spent summers at Interlochen Musical Camp and quit her first year in college to play in the Kansas City Philharmonic. For awhile she went back and forth between college and playing as a full-time violinst. She also did a stint with the Omaha Symphony.

But in her heart, her interest in psychology continued to bud. She went back to college again and took two psychology courses "just to see if the interest was really still there " It was. She got bachelor's degrees in psychology and sociology, and a master's degree in clinical social work. Music remained her ally throughout her college studies. "I'd be in the pit with my books, reading during the breaks," she said. Spratt arrived at Sarah Fisher five years ago as a therapist in the treatment foster care program. But her music is still with her. You may not know this, but most didn't even know it. The program director for treatment foster care at St. Vincent and Sarah Fisher Cenof the well-known shows that travel to the Fisher Theater or Masonle Temple don't bring their own orchestras. Contractors hire local musicians. "You get known in the city after awhile," Spratt said,

ALSO ON HER resume of shows are stints with the Michigan Opera Theater, ballet companies and as backup for Aretha Franklin. In addition to doing a few shows each year, Spratt also gives private lessons to 10 sludents every Saturday."I teach kids from seven years to 75."

totally different kind of gratification. It's so rewarding in so many different ways."

Yet she tries to encourage the children to whom she gives music lessons to decide what they want to do - violin or ballet or soccer or skating. "You don't want to be mediocre at one thing. Pick one thing and do it well."

SHARON LeMIEUX/staff photographe:

You've probably heard Kathy Spratt play the violin and ter has played in a lot of the big shows that come to Detroit, such as "Les Miserables," "Annie," and "On

> "rubbing your head and patting your stomach at the same time."

But she's not alone. Two other Sarah Fisher employees - Susan Feldman, who is in licensing home development for foster parents, and Anne Cannell, a residential therapist - also play the violin. "We're trying to figure if there's a link

Your Toes,"

It's a lot of work doing everything. But Spratt says she really couldn't give up one for the other. "Music is gratifying when you do it well for an audience response. But this field (psychology/social work) is a

Spratt admits she hasn't given a thought to learning another instrument. She doesn't want to. She loves her violin. "It's so intense to become proficient at one instrument."

And the violin isn't exactly an easy instrument. Spratt says playing a violin with it under your chin and your fingers sliding up and down the instrument's neck with a bow in your other hand - is like here."

No doubt though, Spratt says playing the violin is a relief. "It's a relief for me to go and play after problems with children and child welfare. This is a high burnout job for everyone."

That doesn't mean she goes home and practices the violin every night. "I have a 15-pound Tomcat. If I just put my hand on the (violin) case, he runs."

Assisted suicide bill gains support

By Tim Richard stall writer

State Rep. Ted Wallace picked up support for an even stronger version of his bill to permit doctor-assisted suicide.

In an Oak Park public hearing Friday, some people even asked him to remove long waiting periods and restrictions on assisted suicide.

"I congratulate you on your alternative bill — putting the brakes on a knee-jerk reaction in the Legislature," said Daniel Devine Jr., Bloomfield Hills attorney representing the Hemlock Society of Michigan. "Why not deal with it (terminal illness and uncontrollable pain) directly - allow one to choose death tomorrow instead of six months from now?"

"This decision (to seek aid in ending life) must be reserved to the individual," agreed Madelyn Farris, a Southfield resident who told of caring for terminally ill family members. Opposing a provision in the bill restricting it to those of sound mind, Farris said, "Even dementia patients have periods of awareness."

BUT, OTHERS said allowing suicide will lessen respect for human assisting a sulcide a four-year felo-

"Once assisted suicide is legal, involuntary suicide (euthanasia) becomes common practice. Once the door is open, there's no way of stopping it," said Detroit attorney Joseph Zanglin, representing Right to Life.

A House Judiciary subcommittee headed by Rep. Lyn Jondahl, D-Okemos, went through the lunch hour listening to testimony on rival bills. One would prohibit assisted suicide (SB 32, sponsored by Sen. Fred Dillingham, R-Fowlerville); another would allow it (HB 5415, sponsored' by Wallace, D-Detroit).

The chief criticism of Wallace's bill was not that he would allow assisted suicide but that it was "too restrictive," in the words of Southfield attorney Barbara Cash.

"When you speak of funcontrollable pain' and tell a patient to wait two months, I have a problem," Cash added.

TERESA HOBBINS, a Lansing woman who said she has terminal cancer, called Wallace's bill "good because it gives people options. "But where you say two persons life. They called for a law to make — a physician and a psychologist or psychiatrist - must sign your directive within seven days - that's nearly impossible and unrealistic. Unless it's an emergency, it's going to be six to eight weeks to get an appointment," Hobbins said.

"It (the bill) says you're not supposed to be depressed (when asking for assisted suicide), Hobbins said. "Anyone standing in front of a doctor who tells them they're terminally ill is going to be depressed.

"If a person is in unbearable pain, two months (of legal procedures) is a lifetime. It's easler to go out and walk in front of a truck. Stop making people jump through hoops," said Hobbins to great audience applause.

HANDICAPPERS dread legalizing assisted suicide out of fear they may be targeted, said Ron Seigel of Detroit.

Speaking for the Democratic Party's handicapper caucus and the National Association for the Physically Handicapped, Seigel said an article in a pediatrics journal proposed dropping the term "sanctity of life" in favor of "quality of life." He drew a link between deciding some lives lacked quality and Nazi Germany's attempt to exterminate Jews.

Asked committee counsel David Sobelsohn: "You drew an analogy to Hitler. Did Hitler put people to death because they asked to be put to death?"

Wallace also jumped on Seigel. "I have no desire to cause the death of any handicapper or any person against their will. I do not even support the death penalty. However, there are persons who know they're going to die or suffer unbearable pain. My bill doesn't say a doctor or hospital has to administer a lethal injection," Wallace said.

Countered Seigel: "But they have to find someone who will."

THE STATE SENATE passed SB 32 making assisted suicide a felony a year ago, but until last month it wasn't taken up in the House Judiciary Committee.

Dr. Jack Kevorkian, the Royal Oak pathologist who has assisted several suicides, is awaiting trial in Oakland Circuit Court on an open murder charge because Michigan has no law clearly prohibiting or allowing assisted suicide.

Wallace's HB 5415 would have to be approved by voters to become law. It would allow doctors to administer lethal injections to patients who had signed a written directive in front of witnesses, waited two months and made repeated requests, both witnessed and videotaped.

Race for the Cure is a nationwide series of roadraces presented by the Susan G. Komen Breast Can- . cer Foundation. Race proceeds finance breast cancer research, ed-. ucation and treatment.

This year marks the race's 10th anniversary. The race is presented by the Meyer L. Prentis Comprehensive Cancer Center. Local sponsors include the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, Jacobson's, F&M, WDIV Channel 4 and Detroit Edison Foundation.

The 5 kilometer race will be conducted, timed and scored by the Motor City Striders. Results will be published in the Michigan Runner.

Women of all ages and athletic ability are encouraged to participate in the run/walk or racewalk. Racewalk judges will be positioned along the course. No pets, roller blades, baby strollers or baby joggers will be allowed.

Registration is $12 if postmarked by April 3 or $15 on race day.

The 5K loop course is on zoo property and adjacent streets in Huntington Woods. The 1 mile fun run/walk will be on zoo grounds.

Registration is 7:30-8:30 a.m. The 5K run/walk/racewalk starts at 9 a.m. followed at 9:10 by the 1 mile fun run/walk.

To judges and jailers, it's the greatest time saver since sliced bread.

Instead of using skilled deputies to transport prisoners from jail to court for a five-minute arraignment, you use a pair of closed-circuit television cameras to let the prisoner enter his plea from jail to the judge in the courthouse.

Whoa! said the state appellate defender's office, the press and a law professor. There are some real constitutional dangers, they told the House Judiciary Committee Tuesday in Lansing.

"ARE THEY able to stand? Are they surly? Flip?" asked Jim Neuhard of the appellate defender's office.

In the Los Angeles cases where four police officers beat a man during an arrest, Neuhard asked, would a TV camera have shown his injuries?

Neuhard said a prisoner could be

She said it is being tested in several Michigan counties including Oakland, Genesee and Kalamazoo. Bills before the Judiciary Committee would allow it statewide in criminal, motor vehicle, marine safety and conservation caes.

Ivor Jones, an attorney who ran the Genesee experiment, said security is greater where prisoners don't have to be moved.

One problem, Jones said, was that the prisoner could see only the judge at his end. "We moved the prosecutor next to the judge so the defendant can see both," he said.

Frank Reynolds, a Lansing attorney who does defense work, said TV monitoring gives the defendant a better appearance than bringing a dozen prisoners, "shackled and chained," into court.

Reynolds said one of his own clients was brought into court shackled

He said reporters covering the Cassandra Rutherford assault trial on a video monitor had a much different impression of the proceedings than those who were in the courtroom. (The judge prohibited reporters from taking notes in the courtroom, so part of the trial was covered by video monitor.)

"We feel there is some risk if the prisoner is only viewed via a television camera which cannot possibly show the entire room," said Dirk Milliman, editor and publisher of newspapers in Three Rivers, Marshall, Albion and East Lansing. "For example, the camera could not see if someone in the room, but off camera, were threatening the prisoner so as to coerce a particular response.

Call to serve Nominating deadline April 6

THIN THE next two weeks, local residents will be filing nominating petitions for the school board.

School board positions will be filled in the annual school election on Monday, June 8, in the Wayne-Westland and Livonia school districts. Deadline to file nominating petitions for the school board is Monday, April 6.

Each district will have two four-year terms to be filled.

In the Wayne-Westland district, which covers most of the community, board member Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek has not yet announced if she will seek another term. A colleague, Kathleen Chorbagian, announced two weeks ago that she will not seek a third term.

In the Livonia district, which represents the northern section of Westland, there will also be a chance for a newcomer to run without the obstacles of facing a well-known incumbent. While board member Marjorie Roach is expected to run for another term, colleague Richard Thorderson has announced he doesn't plan to seek reelection.

THE EDUCATION of young people is one of the most important services local government provides. For that reason we need committed, caring residents concerned about education to represent us on the school board.

The opportunity exists to serve the community by seeking election to the school board. But nominating petitions should not be taken out as a lark. First candidates must examine their motives and abilities and make sure they are worthy of consideration by voters.

An out-of-formula district, like Livonia, faces some rough days ahead financially as the state juggles tax base sharing schemes and FICA-aid withdrawals to balance its budgets and to seek funding equity statewide. The in-formula districts like Wayne-Westland face more serious problems since the state is delegating more responsibilities without providing the dollars.

A school trustee must be committed to public education and believe that learning is the community's greatest investment in tomorrow.

Time and commitment are two very important qualifications for anyone who seeks public office. A school trustee must be committed to public education and believe that learning is the community's greatest investment in tomorrow.

Board members must have time to attend almost all regular meetings, most study sessions, and be accessible to residents, students, local businesses, administrators and employees. A person can hold a full-time job but must have enough personal commitment to be organized enough to be available.

School board candidates also must demonstrate some knowledge of the district. A candidate active as a volunteer in the classroom, with the PTA or a booster club, or who has served on a parent advisory committee or study committee, has first-hand knowledge that cannot be obtained by reading board minutes or reports.

WHEN THE Observer evaluates candidates before making editorial endorsements, we consider available time, commitment and involvement, among other factors. Informed voters also are interested in these elements when deciding which candidate can best serve the community.

The Observer urges its readers to consider serving on the school board. Not all readers are qualified, but many are. Those who feel worthy of serving in this arena may pick up nominating petitions at the school board office. There are 19 days left to collect the required signatures and file the petitions.

SMART move

Keeping SMART operating for another year was the right thing to do for our suburban communities, but a more permanent solution must be found. For an editorial on the subject, see the lower left hand columns on this page.

Focus our resources on quality, outcomes

THE FUNDAMENTAL upheaval that will transform Michigan's economy and politics for the remainder of this century is this: Our current economy and our political system cannot produce the revenues needed to meet the demands being placed on them.

The evidence: The state budget shortfall this fiscal year is now pegged at $750 million; regardless of when the recession ends, we can expect continued enormous structural deficits between tax income and government spending.

Why? Compared to the rest of the country, Michigan has slipped.

Listen to Paul McCracken, professor at the University of Michigan Business School, former chair of the President's Council of Economic Advisors and all-around sensible guy. Michigan's share of total personal income in the U.S. dropped from 5.1 percent in 1955 to 3.6 percent in 1991. Civilian employment in Michi-gan grew only 13.5 percent between Paul Courant, a U-M professor of economics who knows more about what makes Michigan's economy tick than anyone I know, says: "In the world in which we live, the income and wealth of nations and states will be determined by the skills, broadly construed, embodied in labor.

"If the children of Michigan are to succeed in the world economy as adults," Courant concludes, "they will need education, from kindergarten on up, that is as good as any in the world."

WHAT ARE Michigan's prospects? Not very good, for three reasons.

Transit costs

Keep an open mind on SMART

OUTHEAST Michigan must pay more for mass transit.

But our mass transit system must be more responsive to the communities --and taxpayers - it serves.

SMART officials will soon be visiting local councils and commissions, seeking support for a new transit tax.

We urge community leaders to keep their minds open.

Whether it's a sales tax or a property tax, there's no question mass transit in our region cannot survive without it.

The problem isn't that we've been paying too much for mass transit. It's that we've tried to do it on the cheap.

UNLIKE EVERY other major metropolitan area, our region has steadfastly refused to support its bus lines with a stable, regional tax.

We chose instead to depend upon government grants and rider-fares.-

The result: Grants dried up, services were terminated and ridership declined.

So what, critics say. Metro Detroit can survive without mass transit. Our region is already heavily dependent upon the automobile, with a larger number of people living ever-further from the central city,

But far more people still live in Southfield and Livonia than Brighton and Holly.

If we are to curb urban sprawl - keeping existing businesses and neighborhoods stable, keeping traffic flowing - viable, dependable mass transit is a must-

That is precisely what we don't have now.

MASS TRANSIT'S local history has been a herky-jerky thing — a story of services begun, then abandoned.

Despite a recently-announced reprieve, SMART will cease operating by mid-1993.

SMART's shut down would mean Metro Detrolt would abandon mass transit at a time when other regions are expanding commuter services. Even such far-flung metro regions as Los Angeles and San Diego are investing in their mass transit systems,

Likewise, stable transit service has been a toooften overlooked factor in keeping older metro areas alive.

SMART --- the Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transporation - seeks merger with Detroit transportation department bus lines.

Such a move would save millions of dollars each year.

RIGHT NOW, SMART can transport passengers into the city or out of the city but not from place-to-place inside the city. This leads to a wasteful duplication of services between SMART and D-DOT.

Thus far, a merger isn't guaranteed. Detroit supports mass transit from its general fund budget and city officials said suburbs, too, must begin supporting mass transit before a merger can proceed.

-Detroit could expand suburban bus services if SMART were to fold. But whether it would add suburb-to-suburb service, or even give suburban communities much say in setting routes and fares, is uncertain.

The best solution, a board with proportional representation from city and suburbs, should be a by-product of the merger.

Suburban mass transit is worth saving even without a merger, however, provided local communities take a greater role in its operation.

SMART'S RECENT history shows just how important-local scrutiny can be-Pushed to the brink, SMART officials recently accomplished more in just a few weeks than they had in years.

Union contracts were settled, surplus reserves drained and - most importantly - union workers and mid-level managers were encouraged to offer cost-cutting recommendations of their own.

It leads us to ask: Who was minding the store all these years?

The answer, sadly, is no one.

Despite being around for more than two decades, suburban mass transit generated too little interest, for too long, among county and local officials.

Don't ask for money, suburban officials seemed to say, and we won't ask you to be fiscally responsible.

Now the time has come for both.

Mass transit hasn't been a success in metro Detroit, at least not recently.

But it hasn't been given a fair chance. This is the time to give it that chance.

1976 and 1991 compared to a 31.6 percent increase in jobs nationally.

"The basic problem we face," McCracken told the state Legislature earlier this month, "is that we have to focus more on strengthening the performance of the Michigan econòmy."

RIGHT ON. The big question is, how best to do this?

One obvious way is to concentrate on human capital, the set of skills of Michigan's people.

from our readers

Stop early retirements

To the editor:

. Several weeks ago we suggested that two things needed to be done by the Wayne-Westland board of education. Move the ninth grade students into the high school buildings and offer an early retirement incentive to school employees. The whole purpose of our-suggestion-was-to-cut costs and to save money.

If the district enrollment projections are accurate, there will be 1,500 fewer students in 1992-93 than there were in 1989-90, the current staffing standard. With the downsizing of the students, there will have to be a similar downsizing of employees, resulting in layoffs.

What has happened in recent weeks, according to rumors afloat, is that the current administrative leadership has shelved the first suggestion in a committee, pending the coming of the new superintendent, who may have different ideas.

However, our second suggestion has been selzed upon vigorously. Rumors have it that the school board, through Bill Taylor's office (of employee services) is offering outrageous amounts of money to early relirees. Furthermore, he, (deputy superintendent) Thomas Svitkovitch, and the exited (superintendent) Dennis O'Neill all would qualify for the outlandish "golden parachutes" being negotiated as ERI.

happenings, we urge the board to postpone any further discussions of early retirement incentives until the new superintendent has been hired on May 8 - nearly two months away.

If the board foolishly allows the currently rumored plan to proceed without the new superintendent, they will not be cutting costs. They will allow the continued rape of the citizens which has been prevalent in recent years under the O'Neill, Svitkovitch, Taylor administration.

Parenting takes more than luck Find new school

it's just your bad luck to be born into a family where people don't always know the right thing to do or say!

Father to son in "Doing Time on Maple Drive" Fox TV Network movie

WE'RE IN THE MIDDLE of Michigan's first' Parenting Awareness Week.

It was designated for March 22-28 earlier this year by Gov. John Engler at the urging of Stewart Mandell, a Southfield resident who is a tax attorney with Dykema Gossett and an active member of Birmingham-Bloomfield Families in Action.

Mandell and his wife, Havi, a therapist with Oakland Family Services, have two children, David, 9, and Sarab. 7. He got involved because he strongly believes that "informed parenting, more than any other force, can improve the quality of our lives.'

Now, the term "parenting" doesn't just roll off your tongue, particularly if you raised children much earlier than the '80s. So my first instinct was to see if it was even in the dictionary. It was: "Parenting - noun; the work of a parent in raising a child or children."

Frankly, I was surprised. "Parenting," as such, is a relatively new phenomenon - at least outside the therapeutic community. When I had my three children - in 1962, '66 and '69 - there were prenatal classes and then you were turned over to Dr. Spock.

MY FIRST ENCOUNTER was when, as a reporter, I covered the initial parenting classes offered through West Bloomfield Community Education back in 1978.

'We were the first people in the area to offer the S.T.E.P. (Systematic Training for Effective Parenting) program," said Faye Mapley, West Bloomfield community ed coordina-

But, it didn't catch on right away. "For years, dog obedience classes outregistered parenting," the everquotable Mapley said. Then, about a year ago, parenting pulled ahead.

This past term, 74 people were enrolled in the S.T.E.P. classes, while dog obedience topped out at 59 registrants. "Parents are out there looking for parent education," Mapley said. These days they don't have far to look. Parenting instruction comes packaged as one-time workshops, weekly support groups or as a series of classes.

It is offered through schools, Families in Action groups, social service agencies, community centers, churches, synagogues and private counselors.

In Wayne County, Family and Neighborhood Services offers ongoing parenting classes with child care available for a $1 donation. Registration is required by calling 941-9590.

In Redford Township the popularity of parenting classes became clear when a limit of 80 parents had to be set for a March 30 seminar at the community center.

SOON, THERE WILL be a new venue. A synagogue, Congregation Shaarey Zedek, is building a fullfledged parenting center expected to open this September in West Bloomfield.

Parenting classes and support groups will be available to the community at large.

Even when times weren't so unusual, we could have been better parents with the kind of guidance now available. Being informed gives parents a road map instead of forcing them to drive aimlessly over uncharted territory.

Now, thank goodness, good parenting doesn't have to rely on luck.

WHAT'S GOING ON? Ipternationally, the U.S. is in a trade war with Japan the likes of which we haven't seen since just before World War H. Nationally, our battered economy tailspins. School dropout rates in our core cities and many of our rural areas approach 50 percent. As our prison population-proliferates, millions of young Americans aren't being prepared to earn a living.

Thursday, March 26, 1992 O&E

Here at home in Michigan, Genearl Motors closes our Willow Run plant to save one in Texas, throwing thousands more of us out of work and pitting Americans against Americans in competition for jobs.

In a state where historic Willow Run once housed the Arsenal of Democracy (remember the B-52 bombers and Rosie the Riveter?), crack and carjack killings and boarded-up houses abound. Also our inter-city transit system is tangled in economic and political trouble.

IN THE MIDST of this turmoil, Michigan has drastically cut social services. It has also enacted the "Robin Hood" bill for wealthy outof-formula school districts which potentially produce many of the young leaders whose skills will be needed to save the state and the nation. "Robin Hood" can't even begin to appreciably help the poorer districts it was clumsily designed for.

Rochester and Waterford have been hit particularly hard. Last year as Rochester's assistant superintendent, I was the reluctant architect of a pay-for-play athletic program and several other costsaving cuts such as the elimination of all department heads, a reduction in assistant principal time and teacher layoffs that escalated class sizes.

But my personal sacrifice was like a straw in the wind. Robin

(R,W,Q-13A)(L)15A

Hood - and a property tax freeze plus contemplated legislation socking districts with social security and retirement costs - will now cause even more unconscionable cuts in Rochester if an April 6 millage request fails.

ROCHESTER, Waterford and other district like them aren't at fault for their plight. The fault lies with your myopic "Robin Hood" legislators who merrily continue to steal kids' futures. You parents out there from both in-formula and out-of-formula districts had better band together to stop "the merry men" right now with letters and picketing in Lansing.

Otherwise, they're going to keep on chopping down all the tall trees in this contemporary version of "Sherwood Forest" without measurably nuturing the short ones. On a national scope, we've got to get rid of property tax funding for schools and tap income taxes instead.

What's going on? The educational short-changing of every child in Michigan and millions of other children in America is what's going on. And children who are themselves short-changed won't ever be able to change this battered world for the better.

John Telford, a Rochester Hills resident, most recently was assistant superintendent in the Rochester School District. He previously was executive director for secondary education in the Plymouth Canton district.

Healthocrats stray from domain

OLD JOE may be about to buy the farm.

Joe - Joe Smooth to be precise is the cartoon character that R.J. Reynolds has been using to advertise Camel cigarettes.

But Joe is more than just a cartoon. He's a pusher. He causes children to smoke cigarettes, especially Camel cigarettes.

That, at least, is the claim of Antonia C. Novello, the U.S. surgeon general, and the American Medical Association.

They cite as evidence a study that, according to the AMA, showed 6year-olds were as familiar with the likeness of Old Joe as they were with Mickey Mouse. From that report the AMA and the surgeon general concluded that Old Joe causes children to take up smoking.

The report didn't indicate how many of the 6-year-olds surveyed actually smoke Camels or any other cigarette, for that matter. But that didn't stop the surgeon general and dispute the interpretation of the "study." But they are not alone. The American Civil Liberties Union has sided with Reynolds, saying "It is inappropriate for the government to attempt to censor this by calling on others to do so."

And a child psychology expert says the healthocrats are missing the point. She says children are influenced to smoke by peer pressure, the actions of parents and curiosity. She says cartoon ads might contribute to underage smoking, but they are not the cause.

WELL, THE arguments over smoking, Old Joe and the influence of advertising on "susceptible" members of society will keep on going. But the brouhaha over the smoking Carnel brings to the surface a couple of dangerous trends in today's society.

As Americans become more "hoalth conscious," healthocrats like the AMA, the Heart Association, the Cancer Society, local health organizations, etc., are exerting more and more influence over our lives, both public and private, and are sticking their collective noses into areas far outside their domain.

but by whether they are "right" or "wrong."

Yet the healthocrats and the moralists, in their zeal to impose their own opinions and beliefs on everyone else, don't give a damn about how many laws or rights they trample or how truthful they are in some of their claims.

When a New York Times reporter recently questioned the American Cancer Society's latest "statistic" that women's chances of getting breast cancer have risen to 1-in-9, a society spokeswoman admitted that the figure was not accurate.

But she said the society v

IN CALIFORNIA the state medical association has passed resolutions not only to discourage cigarette smoking but also calling for a reduction in the amount of "violence" in television, movies and other mass media. "Violence" includes not only films and programs about criminals, but such sports as boxing, football and hockey.

And in several states across the country, the anti-smoking fervor has been extended to candy cigarettes and bubble gum "cigars" or "chewing tobacco."

In Ohio a state representative has introduced a bill to make it illegal to sell non-alcoholic beer to anyone under 21.

The reason, of course, is not that it's illegal but that it's wrong.

So what's wrong with this picture? If you can't figure it out, we're in deeper trouble than I thought.

the AMA from demanding that the ads be stopped.

They were joined by the American Heart Association, the American Cancer Society and the American Lung Association, who petitioned the federal trade commission to ban the ads as "deceptive and misleading."

Both R.J. Reynolds and the Tobacco Institute, as you would expect,

And as an associated wave of new moralism, sweeps the country, our actions are coming to be judged not by whether they are legal or illegal tinue to use the misleading "statistic" because it is "meant to be a jolt."

CC family mourns loss of Roberts

Slain All-State tailback remembered

By Brad Emons and Steve Kowalski staff writers

The Rev. Norbert Clemens was sitting inside his office at Redford Catholic Central years ago when a famous college football coach called.

"I answered the phone one day and he said, 'Hi, I'm Gerry Faust,' " recalled Clemens. "I said, 'Yeah, and I'm Pope Pius the 12th.' I thought someone was pulling my leg."

Truth is, Faust, then the football coach at Notre Dame, wanted to know more about CC's All-America tailback Aaron Roberts and there was no better man to ask than Clemens.

Clemens had Roberts in a religion class and also drove him home every day after practice from the school, near Inkster and Schoolcraft roads in Redford, to Roberts' grandmother's home in Detroit. Roberts, who later played football at Michigan State University, died early Saturday morning after being shot four times in the chest at the intersection of 10 Mile Road and Evergreen in Southfield.

The shooting occurred following a party Roberts attended at the Embassy Suites Hotel. Rommell Lamont Sanders, 22, of Detroit, was arraigned Tuesday and charged with first-degree murder. Sanders was a former work associate of Roberts at a Northland sporting goods store. Roberts was 29.

"it's very sad, Aaron and I were very close," Clemens said. "He was a peach of a guy. It's a tragic ending for a good guy to meet. He was solid, fearless, but very humble. He never thought he was someone special. A really nice, quiet kid."

CLEMENS remembers Roberts'

Aaron Roberts ex-CC great

"He came here (to CC) from the Monroe School for Boys," CC coach Tom Mach said. "His grandmother and aunt wanted him to have direction. They wanted him in a parochial school."

So Roberts enrolled at the campus on Breakfast Drive, a school which preached the motto: "Teach me goodness, discipline and knowledge."

Roberts not only was molded as a person, but also into the No. 1 college football recruit from this state during his senior year (1980-81).

Arguably the greatest back ever to come out of Observerland, Roberts helped CC to its first state Class A championship as a junior in 1979.

IN TWO SEASONS he rushed for 2,335 yards and scored 24 touchdowns.

"He had powerful thighs, but below the knees there was not much there," Mach recalls. "He was a great high school runner who combined power and speed. He was a game-breaking runner, never caught from behind. "He was well-liked by everybody during the time he was at CC. We counted on Aaron a great deal." Roberts averaged 6.7 yards per carry and gained 1,330 yards his senlor year. He also excelled in track. The 6-foot-1, 180-pound runner was sought after by several bigname schools including Michigan, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Miaml of Florida and Oklahoma. Michigan and ND appeared to be the front-runners, but in an 11th hour decision, Roberts stunned even his own coaches at CC by signing a national letter-of-intent with Michigan State following a last-minute pitch by head coach Muddy Waters. (Roberts apparently got scared off going to Michlgan after the Wolverines signed Wayne Memorial's Rick Rogers and Cincinnati native Brian Mercer.)

Ed Pobur Sr., a Livonia car salesman whose son Ed Jr. was a teammate and close friend of Roberts at CC and later at MSU, helped set up the meeting with Waters.

"AARON WAS just like one of my sons," Ed Sr. said. "He was a good kid, and it just goes to show you all the senseless bull . . . that goes on with guns. It's too bad, he was a good man and a helluva football player."

Roberts' promising football career at MSU stalled before it even got started.

In the 1981 season opener on a scorching hot September afternoon against Illinois, Roberts was jarred on his first collegiate carry by Illini linebacker Kelvin Atkins, losing several teeth.

"I was a senior when he was a freshman," recalled Jeff Wiska, a former CC standout and starting offensive lineman at the time for the Spartans. "Aaron was very soft-spoken and well-mannered.

"All I remember (of that play) is seeing him laying on the field and it looked like a bunch of popcorn kernels laying around. We didn't realize at the time that it was his teeth."

Roberts, however, returned to the starting lineup and led the 5-6 Spartans in rushing with 461 total yards in 94 carries (4.9 average). He rushed for 135 yards on Oct. 31 in a 26-3 victory at Indiana.

In the spring game of 1982, Roberts shared offensive Green Team MVP honors, but a leg injury and a 2-9 MSU record during the fall clouded his sophomore year.

WATERS was fired during the winter of '83 and replaced by George Perles, who decided to go with JC transfer Carl Butler and Belleville's Keith Gates ahead of Roberts. 'He came here (to CC) from the Monroe School for Boys. His grandmother and aunt wanted him to have direction.'

ever seen. He had explosive speed. "Aaron used to spend the night at my home before games. We were close then, but we kind of went our separate ways.

"But the thing I always remember about Aaron is that he never complained about anything. Hard work never bothered him. He was always willing to work out."

ROBERTS had a brief tryout before getting cut by the Denver Broncos during the summer of '85. Shortly after, Roberts began to drift apart from his friends at CC.

He recently went back to school with hopes of earning a teaching certificate, according to Ed Pobur Jr., now a lease car manager for a Farmington Hills car dealer.

Roberts returned to Detroit where he worked at Cody High. He was also employed by Champs, a sporting goods outlet at Northland Center before taking a job in February as a security officer at a convalescent home in Detroit.

The former CC standout was recently married (wife Elaine) and had a 4<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>-month old daughter (Ariel).

"It was almost like we fell out of touch," said Troy insurance agent Paul Bobbitt, a Southfield-Lathrup High grad who was Roberts' former roommate and teammate at MSU. "His grandma passed away in the latter part of '89 or '90, and that re## ally brought him down.

Aaron Roberts (No. 22) was tough to stop in the 1979 state Class A football finals against Escanaba at the Pontiac Silverdome. The tailback helped CC to a 32-7 win that day.

"He really didn't have an immediate family, I really haven't had that (family deaths) affect me, so I don't know how he felt.

"The only thing I could say is, 'If you need anything, don't hesitate to give me a call.' Everyone seemed to lose touch with him, whether it was a result of him trying to find a different direction, or the passing of his grandma affected him to the point where he didn't want to talk to anyVisitation is 6-9 tonight at the Northwest Chapel of the James H. Cole Funeral home, 13631 Puritan Ave., Detroit. A wake will be held 7-8 p.m. Friday at United Congregational Christian Church on 19510 W. Chicago Road, Detroit. The funeral will be at 10 a.m. Saturday at the church, with burial being held at Detroit Memorial Park on 13 Mile and Ryan roads.

first days at CC, when after football practice, the sophomore would walk north on Inkster Road nearly three miles to catch a bus heading to Detroit.

"I noticed him one day walking down Lyndon toward Inkster and I said, "Where are you going?" " Clemens said. "He said, 'I'm walking down to Seven Mile Road to get the bus.' I asked him how long it takes to get home and he said, 'Depending on the bus connections, an hour to an hour and a half.' I said, 'Get in my çar, I'll take you home.""

CC became the family Roberts never really had.

The greatest tailback ever to come out of CC did not know his parents. His mother passed away during his early years, and he reportedly didn't meet his natural father, Aldredge Reid, until his adult years.

Aaron was raised by his grandmother Velmore V. Roberts, who was killed two years ago in a robbery. Roberts saw minimal time as a junior and toiled behind MSU's alltime leading rusher Lorenzo White during his senior year (1984).

"Aaron was a very, very friendly, outgoing, unwavering type of guy, even though he wasn't getting, in his eyes, a fair shake in football," said Livonian Art Durivage, a former classmate of Roberts' at MSU. "He maintained a real consistent, positive attitude. It was a real pleasure to be friends with him."

Ed Pobur, Jr., who lettered in '82 as a linebacker with the Spartans, said the hit Roberts took during the Illinois game (his freshman year) had a lingering effect.

"After Aaron got whacked I don't think he was ever the same, it stalled him tremendously," he said. "He ran behind a decent line at CC and got hit, but not the same kind of hits he took in college.

"But as a high school player he probably showed more talent, speed and quickness than anybody I've

Borgess pegs new coaches for football, baseball slots

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

While searching for a football coach, Redford Bishop Borgess athletic director Mike Fusco found a baseball coach as well.

Borgess' new football coach is Craig James, a longtime assistant coach at Allen Park Cabrini who was among seven interviewed for the position. The new baseball coach, meanwhile, is Victor Calhoun, who was offered the job when interviewing for the vacant football coach's position.

James, 38, coached two all-state quarterbacks while at Cabrini: Terry Andrysiak, who went on to play at Notre Dame, and Brian Nycz, who will play next fall at Central Michigan. Cabrini was 8-3 two years ago when it won the Catholic League's C-D Division.

James takes over for Walt Bazylewicz, who resigned after reviving the Borgess football program in three years at the helm. Borgess was 6-3 in 1990, its best season under Bazylewicz.

"HE (JAMES) has a progressive philosophy regarding football, he has a wide-open style, is going to pass the ball and that's attractive to us," Fusco said of James. "He is very enthusiastic and he's hard working."

A graduate of Taylor Center High School and the University of Michigan-Dearborn, James began his football coaching career in the early '80s under Cabrini's former coach Brandon Oliver.

"In all my years of coaching Oliver's the best I've seen," said James, who teaches at Taylor Center High School. "Our whole attack is based on what he had done - with adjustments to multiple fronts and secondary formations. It's an I (formation) attack with a lot of play-action passing.

"If we have the personnel I would like to run this offense. You can't force things but I'll bring pretty much the same package. I have high hopes, but no predictions, I think things will work out." 'In all my years of coaching (Brandon) Oliver's the best I've seen.'

- Cralg James

JAMES HAS coached Cabrini's varsity baseball team the last 10 years and will remain in that capacity this spring.

"I'm going to finish out this year, I don't think it would be fair to walk out on the kids at this point," he said.

Calhoun, 29, didn't mind being passed over for the football coach's job. Most of his coaching and playing background came in football, but Calhoun is eager to try to rebuild the baseball program.

Calhoun played baseball and football at Lansing Everett High School and has had stints at his alma mater and at Dearborn Heights Robichaud as a volunteer baseball coach.

"I love it," Calhoun said. "I was interviewing for the football job and during the interview coach Fusco asked me what other sport I was interested in. I said baseball, because I have that experience, too. I feel very comfortable where I am.

"I'm very good with kids and I like a challenge. The first thing I want to do is make it fun as far as education goes. The kids come first."

CALHOUN PLAYED football at Eastern Michigan University and said he spent the 1985 exhibition season with the NFL's St. Louis Cardinals before a shoulder injury ended his career.

Calhoun was an assistant varsity football coach in 1989 and '90 at Inkster High and last fall was a defensive coordinator for the Denease High School football team in Jacksonville, Fla. Calhoun is a leasing car supervisor for General Motors.

"Victor came to us highly-recommended," Fusco said. "He's dedicated."

Dixon sets trail for Blazers

By Darren A. Nichols staff writer

28(L,R,W,G)

HERE'S ONE THING that stands out about the 1992 Livonia Ladywood girls track team.

The Blazers are extremely young. Ladywood, which finished third in the Catholic League A-B Division last season, boasts one of its largest track turnouts with 48 girls.

We're a little too young to contend for the regional title," Ladywood coach Joe Peruski sald. "But we're hoping to do better than last year."

Ladywood's only notable loss is a major one - Observerland Trackwomen of the year Rebecca Willey, who won the Class A title in the high jump. But All-Observerland distance runner Malia Dixon spearheads the 1992 team, which has only one senior. Dixon finished second in Class A in the 3,200 meter run (11:45.5).

'I know she will finish in the top. three in the state," Peruski said. "She's that kind of athlete-that you can pretty much predict where she will finish. She's the leader of our team. I wish I had 10 more of her."

Ladywood's weak spots seem to be in the field events and sprints. Newcomers Lyndi Puling and Kate O'Brien will try to take over the duties Willey left, while junior Brenda Blackmer and freshman Nicole Clausen carry the sprint load in the 100- and 200-meters.

"That's our weak spot," Peruski sald of the field events. "We have a lof of underclassmen who haven't proven themselves yet. I expect to see improvement from Pauling and O'Brien.

"Our sprinters are a diamond in the rough. There's a lot of unknown talent, which gives us a multitude of possibilities."

run last year because of an arch problem, leads a corps of middle dislance runners. Nicole Dugas, who will also run the 200, along with freshmen Megan Goebel and Sarah Dixon will contribute.

Peruski said two of his four hurdlers (Paling and Karin Mauer, 300 low hurdles and Heather Zupec and Michelle Copobres, 100 hurdles) should qualify for the state championships.

"We had a pretty good season last year because of Willey, but that's not to say we're not going to be good this year," he said.

LIVONIA CHURCHILL

The Chargers' major concern this sea-son will be how to dress all of the participants.

"I have 60 girls this year, it's the largest group of girls since I've been coaching," fifth-year coach Kelly Graham said. "This is the first year that we've not had enough uniforms for the team."

Churchill returns all of its runners from last year's squad, which finished with a 1-5 dual meet record and in ninth place in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

The Chargers will look to seniors high jumper/hurdler Stacey Rokicsak (16.3 in 100), Hue Diep (100 and 200), Kelly Kobane (hurdles), Jeanette Swartout, Amy Jo Paszek (800 and 1,600) and junior Amanda Burdeno (shot put, relays) to lead the way.

Add to that the five freshmen -Heather Bonni, Amy Place and Karen Dawley, Carol McCoy and Tracy Parker - all of whom Graham believes can contribute.

Although she won't predict what place Churchill might finish, Graham insists the Chargers will be competitive.

"It's difficult to say where we will floish," Graham said. "I've tried to answer this question (in the past) and I'm always wrong each year. We have a huge team this year, and they can only improve. We Junior Karyn Nagy, who didn't will be more competitive this year."

LIVONIA CLARENCEVILLE

After not fielding a team last season, Clarenceville is ready for action.

Coach Dick Davio will return seniors Tricia Wiggle and Julie Stoliker, who were major contributors in 1990.

Wiggle was a member of the state qualifying 400 relay team.

Clarenceville will also look to nine freshmen to contribute, including Stacey Bishop (hurdles, high jump), Sarah Swanson (shot put, sprints) and Tol Bates (sprints).

"I'm trying to get the numbers so we can have a team," Davio said. "It's hard to say how we'll do because I don't know much about the league, I hope to have a little fun and showing the girls how to train for next year.

"I do expect Tricla to do well. As for the team, it's really hard to say."

LIVONIA FRANKLIN

First-year coach Rick Lee will look to middle distance runner Kelly Gustafson (1:03.2 in the 400) and shot put and discus thrower Danielle Simon (110 feet, 6 Inches) to lead a young Patriot squad.

"I feel strong that those two will qualify for-the state," Lee said. "Danlelle brings three years of varsity experience to the team, and Kelly provides good leadership qualities, which is good for a first year coach."

Franklin is extremely young with 24 freshmen and only eight seniors. Lee is looking for contributions from returnees senior hurdler Kristi Celeski, junior sprinter Erin Fisher junior distance runner Sandi Schutte and middle distance runners Debbie Brays and Mary Lou Maddison.

Tanya Berner, a senior middle distance/distance runner, who decided to run track after receiving a tennis scholarship, is a surprising newcomer to the Patriots. Other top newcomers are junior Karen Potempa (field events) and freshman Jenette Lukofski (middle distance). Lee said the Patriots hope to improve on last seasons 10th place WLAA finish.

"I expect to be real competitive," he said. "We're in a tough division, but hopefully we can improve on our overall record. Our middle distance and our high jumper seem to be strong." · Franklin will open its season Thursday ## at Walled Lake Central.

LIVONIA STEVENSON

Despite losing Debbie Wroblewski, who finished seventh in the state in the discus. and four others from a team that won the Class A regional and finished second in the WLAA, Stevenson will be strong.

Returning for the Spartans is senior discus thrower Teresa Sarno, who finished fourth in the state meet last year (121-1). And after finishing fourth in the state meet in cross country last fall, A.J. Koritnik will be a top contender in the distance events.

"We're hoping to give Canton a run for their money," Stevenson coach Paul Holmberg said. "They're the team to beat."

Stevenson also returns the state qualifying 400 relay team from last season of Michelle Slawski, Debble Walsh, Kim Nelson and Kathy Bacile (52.0), and will also look for scoring from Becky Adamezyk (sprints), middle distance runner/ high jumper Gail Grewe (5-0) and hurdlers Kelli Songuist, Karen Rosinski (16.8 in 100), Jen Turbiak and Stacy Prais.

Stevenson had more than 100 girls come out for track this season.

"We've got a big group this year," Holmberg said. "We have 40 ninth graders that came out. We'll be all right." Stevenson will open the season Thursday at home against Farmington Harrison.

WESTLAND JOHN GLENN

Westland John Glenn (8-3 overall and 3-2 in the WLAA in 1991) will reap the benefits from the rescinded pay-to-play rule.

"I'm kind of excited about this season," Glenn coach John Kitchen said. "The payto-play (rule) shortened our numbers last year. We've got some athletes that ran in junior high that are excited about running, too."

Kitchen was referring to the 29 sophomores that he will count on to find a distance runner. Glenn will look to seniors sprinter/middle distance runner Dana Nowicki (2:29.6 in 800) long jumper/200 runner Lynette Conner (28.1) and long jumper/hurdler Mary Hartwig (49.6 in $00) to provide leadership and scoring. Lisa Rankey (shot put, discus), Calby Riney (shot put, discus) and junior Karen Deschaine (high jump) will handle the field events.

Juniors Tina Honeycutt, Tamara Murphy, Melissa Husted and Kim Springer will provide help in the sprints and middle distance events.

We're hoping to be pretty competitive. It's a really tough league, but we hope to improve from our record in the league from last year'. That's my goal." Glenn was supposed to open the season Wednesday (weather permitting) at Ypsilanti. . J LUTHERAN HIGH WESTLAND

John Gerlach returns 15 leiter winners from a team that finished 18-0, first in the Michlgan Independent' Athletic Conference and seventh in the Class C state regional.

"I've got a quite a few people back from last year," Gerlach said. "Our number one goal is to repeat as conference champs. I don't think we're that strong to compete in the regional as a team, but quite a few of the seniors are capable of qualifying for the state meet."

Gerlach is expecting scoring punch from seniors Kristin Hughes (hurdles, 200), Heather Thomson (hurdles, sprints), Tonia Schlicker (200, sprint relays) Lori Gentz (distances), Lisa Shafer (distances) and Jennifer Billand (field events).

Gerlach will also look to seven freshmen for added depth. The Warriors had 34 girls come out for track this season. "I'm really excited with our participation," he said. On Tuesday, April 7, the Warriors host Flat Rock in their season opener.

WAYNE MEMORIAL

Wayne, which returns only one senior, will look to junior sprinter Tranessa Burroughs and junior Kim Morrow in the shot put (33-feet, 21/4) and discus to keep the stability this season.

Gail Grewe was the second leading point-producer last season for the Livonia Stevenson girls track team, which won the regional and finished second in the WLAA.

"Those are the two mainstays of the team," coach Joe Grasley said. "Morrow will be one of the best in the area in the shot and discus, and Burroughs had a good year as a sophomore.

"We're very inexperienced, but they are good people to build a team around." Grasley is hoping to get major contributions from junior middle distance runners: Stacey Maldonodo and Nicole Seymore. Sophomore Angela Bailey will provide help in the distance races.

Others expected to provide scoring are: Kate Adamson, Nicole Perry, Sonya Carson, Ashakee Buckner and Ellen Clark.

"It's hard to predict where we will finish," Grasley said. "If we hold on to the kids, stay away from injury from our key runners and be able to fill in someone in the high jump and long jump, we'll probably be very competitive.

"We don't have a lot of outstanding kids, but we have a number of better than average kids. As they gain more experience, we'll become more competitive."

RU Panthers optimistic despite key losses

By Ray Setlock staff writer

Redford Union girls track coach Bob Quellette isn't one to hold back his feelings when talking about the upcoming season.

We are just a poor little school. We cannot compete with the powerhouses in the WLAA (Western Lakes Activites Association)," he said. "But this team will not step aside for anyone."

"They will be tough to beat." Following are profiles on the area's other girls track teams: GARDEN CITY

The Cougars have a small turnout (13), but coach Rob Phillips says they should improve on last year's 1-7 dual-meet record.

"I think we can have a better record," Phillips said. "Last year, our numbers were even lower than they are now. We only had eight girls." Junior Jeannie Krolczyk will be countdo well in dual-meet action. Last year, the Eagles were 6-1. "I think we'll be good," Lake said. "But Taylor Truman and Allen Park are going to be tough. I hope for a good season.'

Lake will have seasoned veteran Kinshasa Hughes back for another campaign. Hughes will take part in the 100 and 200 dashes, anchor the relays and possibly do the shot put. "She's very strong," Lake said. "Tm convinced that she's one of the stronger sprinters in the area. Kinshasa is just an all-around athlete. Last season, she won Pugh was all area in the 100 dash and teamed with Hollis, Gipson and Ebonl Affum to earn all area in the 400 and 800 relay.

Affum is the lone member of the group back this season. Pugh and Hollis graduated. Gipson didn't go out for the team.

"Eboni Affum really wasn't a surprise last year," McGreevy said. "She's a good athlete and came along and did well." Senior Shaughn Wilson and freshman rica Partee will participate in the field

ond in the Catholic League C-D Division in the events.

"Patricia had the most success last year." St. Agatha coach Dave McPhail said. "I expect her to score a lot of first place finishes this year."

Senior Stephanie Smith will also contribute in the throwing events.

"They (the throwing events) are probably the strongest part of our team," McPhail said.

Pre-Season

But if the Aggles are to match last season's 5-1 record, they will need contribu-tions in the distance and long jump from senior Stephanie Falkowski.

"She's probably our best all-around athlete," McPhail said. "She's really been working hard so far this season."

Freshman Nicole Lee and senior Shalauna Wilkins, a pair of newcomers, are also expected to contribute.

The Panthers are without All-Area athletes Sarah Percy (100 meter hurdles) and Kellie Watkins (discus), who have graduated.

"Anytime you lose a senior, you lose a good kid," Ouellette said. "We are in bad shape. Virtually our whole team is freshmen and sophomores."

Senior Charity Claramunt and junlor Wendy Malecki return from last year's all area 1,600-meter relay team.

Claramunt will take part in the high hurdles and high jump. Malecki will handle distance events.

Junior Mercedes Langley and senior Jenny Sturdevant will also contribute for RU.

ed on heavily. She was the team's Most Valuable Player last season, excelling in the 200 and 400 dashes.

"Jeannie is a tough runner," Phillips said. "She's one of the best competitors I've ever coached. She does not like to lose." Sophomore Andria Reynolds will contribute in the sprinting events for Garden City. She will also do the high jump. 'I'm looking for big things from Andria," Phillips said. "She's got a lot of talent.'

Senior Amy Kuclemba will handle the discus, shot put and high jump for the Cougars.

Phillips will look to sophomore Robin Lauer and junior Christy Smith for help in the 400 dash and 800 run. Sophomore Dawn Virant will represent Garden City in the long distance events.

REDFORD THURSTON

Once again coach Bob Lake expects to the distance events for Thurston. She was a state qualifier in cross country.

"Tanya has a good work ethic," Lake said. "She'll help us a lot this year." Others expected to contribute include:

Michelle Wood, senior (discus/shot put); Dayna Strand, senior (hurdies); Christie Dennis, junior (high jump/mlddle distance); Suzie Nagel, freshman (high jump); Michelle Bates, sophomore (sprinter).

We have a lot of new kids," Lake said. "They are really working hard, but the weather is not cooperating. We have to practice in the gym and it's hard to get anything done in there."

Wilson, who has been academically ineligible for the past two seasons, will do the shot put and discus. Partee will be in the high jump.

Junior Chaquese Sears and freshman Dominque Thomson, Latoya Empry and Tanisha Dillard will do the sprints.

Redemption for WLAA? Spartans lead parade

By Brad Emons staff writer

Once again, there will be no shrinking violets - girls soccer teams - in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

That's the line for the 1992 season despite the fact that for the first time in the nine-year history of the Michigan High School Athletic Associalion's tournament, the WLAA failed to produce a finalist.

Livonia Stevenson, the 1990 state champs, got derailed in last year's semifinal by eventual winner Troy Athens, which routed Okemos in the 1991 championship final, 4-0.

Although the WLAA had its string snapped last June, the conference is again the premier circuit in the state.

This year's WLAA race figures to be a battle between Stevenson, Plymouth Salem, Plymouth Canton, Livonia Churchill and Northville, and perhaps Farmington and Livonia Franklin.

Stevenson, 17-1-2 a year ago and defending division (Lakes), WLAA, district and regional champs, are loaded once again despite the absence of first-team All-Area defender Lori Godlewski, who graduated and second-team All-Area midfielder Lisa Thomas, a University of Wisconsin recruit who chose not to come out.

Salem, however, will be breathing down Stevenson's neck with the return of senior defender Gwen Gibbish and senior goalkeeper Jennifer Emmett.

""The '92 season will be a battle," Stevenson coach Mary Kay Hussey said. "In this league anything can happen."

The two teams meet in an early season showdown (weather permitting), 7 p.m. Monday at Salem.

Canton, not to be counted out, is a year older and wiser and should challenge, bolstered by the return of junior defender Danielle Meyka.

WLAA-Western Division champ Churchill, meanwhile, was hard-hit by graduation, losing two first-team All-Area players (Lori Place and Stephanie Speen) and a pair of second-teamers (Fran Priebe and Mechelle Brazin).

The Chargers will have to rely on a host of newcomers.

The top returnee is senior forward Dana Pososki.

"I'd say Salem and Stevenson are the teams to beat," Churchill coach Nick O'Shea said. "But Canton always plays hard and Farmington has some awesome players (Sue Gibson and Kim Popyk).

the weather to cooperate.

Salem goalie Emmett

braves critical illness

If that last detail can be resolved. Emmett will be in goal for the Rocks . when they begin the 1992 season Monday night with a game against Livonia Stevenson.

Emmett learned earlier this year she will need a bone marrow transplant, but not even a life-threatening circumstance as that could suppress the desire to play her final year of varsity soccer.

She received an OK to play from her family physician, and Emmett's parents agreed to accept all responsibility for her participation and were expected to submit a letter to that effect this week to Plymouth-Canton Athletic Director Paul Cummings.

"I WANTED to play so bad and I was pleading with them," Emmett said. "I promised I would wear my helmet, be careful and if I didn't feel good at that time I wouldn't play."

Being allowed to play was like a reprieve, a new lease on life, for Emmett, who will only play in the so-called big games.

"If I feel I can't play I won't," she said. "I'm not going to put myself in that much danger. I'd rather live than play, but it's different now. I'll probably push myself more."

Emmett was diagnosed as having aplastic anemia last year, but she learned just before Christmas that what she actually had was myelodipplastic syndrome, also known as diplesia - an early form of leukemia.

The Emmetts had hoped Jenny's immune system would correct itself and rid her of the disease, or at best remain stable and allow her play soccer this year. But the new medical discovery and a coinciding drop in her blood count precipitated the need for a transplant.

However, the specialist tending to Emmett's medical needs said it was possible to wait until after she graduates June 5 to perform the transplant.

"Things are in place now so we will be able to move any time," said Emmett's mother, Linda, "But the desirable thing is to let her walk through graduation with her class-in her jersey, long pants and knee pads.

(L,W)3B

"(Her teammates) kiss the helmet for good luck before we go on the field," she said. "(Opposing indoor players) look at me like 'Is there something wrong with her.' I just look at them and smile.

"FOR THE Canton game and if , we make the state final, we're going to dye my hair blue and pull it out through the holes in the helmet."

The helmet and added protection is necessary since Emmett must guard against collisions with charging forwards, because bruises or abrasions could drastically affect her -condition or even be fatal.

But Emmett still exudes a gung-ho attitude. The extra protection gives her the confidence and courage she might not have under the circumstances.

"I feel less apt to be hurt," she said. "It makes me feel freer, like I can head-butt them. I don't feel like I have to be cautious all the time."

Her mother once suggested Emmett could be the manager, but needless to say that didn't go over well with Jenny.

"If drive, will and desire have anything to do with it, she'll play," Linda Emmett said. "She has been hoping so intensely that she can't accept being part of the team in any other way.'

But Emmett still won't be a fulltime player like she was and will have to watch as sophomore Mesha Chicon takes her place in some games.

"I'll definitely be a good sport and cheer everybody on and help the other goalkeeper as much as I can." Emmett said. "It was hard getting used to it, knowing she was going to' play instead of me, but I've accepted it."

THE EMMETTS also know it's a calculated risk, first allowing Jenny to play and secondly putting off the transplant for three more months.

"When you begin to see missing numbers from chromosomes and cloning on blasts (in the blood), you know it's the onset of leukemia," Linda Emmett said. "We don't want to get to that point.

"We want to do it before something happens that would cause her to be transfused. As a result, the transplant would be achieved easier without complications or letting the blood count get so low."

AND, IN THE meantime, Emmett will continue her passionate pursuit, which is playing soccer.

Emmett, twice an all-state goalkeeper, was overjoyed at being allowed to play as a senior, especially since the Rocks have a talented team that aspires to great things.

"We're just awesome this year." she said. "If there is a year for us to do it, it's this year."

Salem coach Ken Johnson, who coached the Salem girls to the Class A title in 1987, said Emmett being allowed to play was good news.

"With nine returning starters and an all-state goalie behind them, she could be the key, the link in the chain," he said. "In big games, we might need a big save which Jenny might give us.

"I heard some of the girls talking amongst themselves, saying 'If we have Jenny, we could go all the, way.' "

When she plays, Emmett will wear a "stupid" helmet that resembles hockey headgear, extra padding donors – her younger sister and teammate Mackenzie and an older brother - for the transplant to be performed at Harper Hospital. Mackenzie was selected since a younger sibling of the same sex increases the chances for success.

Emmett will have to undergo a week of chemotherapy treatment prior to the transplant to eliminate her own bone marrow and will be hospitalized for at least a month afterward. She will then be homebound for six months to a year, putting her college plans on hold.

For now Emmett can put her health concerns on hold and enjoy playing soccer and the final months, of her high school days.

"It's there; it's reality," she said of the impending transplant. "But now with soccer I don't have to think about it as much.

"Before I didn't want the season to come, because I didn't think I'd be able to play. I would've had to tell myself I was sick. With it, I know I'm sick but I feel like everybody else.'

said Nick O'Shea, women's soccer coach at Schoolcraft College, girls soccer coach at Livonia Churchill and former All-American at Oakland University. "People always hear it is the No. 1 sport in the world, but they don't actually believe it. Now they will see how crazy it can get."

MAKING THE Michigan stop possible has been Bloomfield Hills stockbroker Roger Faulkner, chairman of the Michigan Bid Committee. Faulkner helped initiate the idea of bringing the World Cup to Michigan once FIFA awarded the games to the United States in 1988.

"Roger Faulkner is a soccer marketing genius," Storch said. "He went against all odds. He took an indoor stadium, made it feasible to grow grass and sold the idea to help hold the biggest event in the world. It is a stroke of genius. He and his committee should get all the kudos in the world. They have done the impossible."

Oakland University men's soccer coach Gary Parsons echoed the praises offered by Storch and O'Shea, adding that the recent exhibition match between the United States National Team and Commonwealth of Independent States at the Silverdome may have added the finishing touches on the final decision.

"As things continued to develop, it became more and more evident FIFA had intentions of bringing it here," Parsons said. "I think the exhibition game may have made it final.

"It looks like FIFA wants to get" the U.S. in with the rest of the world in terms of soccer," Parsons said. "Also by playing indoors, FIFA may be looking for viable alternatives to people who are soccer people in high positions will have to spend big money," O'Shea said.

Other sites to host World Cup games include: R.F.K. Stadium in Washington D.C., the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Cotton Bowl in Dallas, Soldier Field in Chicago, Giants Stadium in New York, Stanford Stadium in San Franciso, Citrus Bowl in Orlando and Foxboro Stadium in Bos-

T WAS ANOTHER quality season of prep hockey for four ' area schools.

Suburban High School League champion Livonia Stevenson (18-4-2) held the No. 1 ranking in Class A during one stage of the regular season. The Spartans reached the regional final before eventually bowing out to state champion Birmingham Brother Rice, 2-1.

Redford Catholic Central (16-5-2) was also highly touted, earning a consistent top 10 rating throughout the season.

And Livonia Churchill (15-7-1) came on strong during the regional, nearly upsetting Rice before losing in triple overtime, 3-2.

Stevenson, CC and Churchill each placed four skaters on the first and second All-Observer squads.

Coach of the Year honors go to Livonia Franklin's Terry Jobbitt, who guided the Patriots to a 15-6-2 campaign after successive 4-18-1 seasons.

Jobbilt, 44, boasts a career record of 119-103-12 in 10 seasons. He was also named Suburban High School Hockey League Coach of the Year.

"This team really came around;"said Jobbitt, who works in sales for the Frank Hand Insurance Agency of Farmington Hills. "This team went above and beyond my expectations. There was definitely a big difference with my boys this year."

JOBBITT, a Detroit native, began playing organized hockey at age 7.

The defenseman played one year of Junior A hockey in Canada. He also was a member of the Port Huron Junior College squad before Mike Brusseau, goalle, Redford CC: The sophomore carried at 2.06 goalsagainst average and a save percentage of 91.5 en route to Class A All-State (Coaches Association) and third-team All-Metro honors.

"He's cool, calm and doesn't get rattled," said Catholic Central coach Jack Gumbleton. "He had a high percentage of saves because of being in the right place at the right time.

"He's a solid goalle who's consistent. And he's a hard worker who never complained. Mike has a good attitude."

Kevin Bush, defenseman, Liv. Stevenson: The senior made first-team All-Suburban and Class A All-State (Coaches Association).

Bush collected 20, points and eight goals and 12 assists.

"He handles the puck well and is a heads-up defenseman," Stevenson coach Paul Ferguson said. "He's difficult to get around and he seldom gets beat.

"Kevin plays with a lot of heart and is a gutsy performer who will sacrifice for the team.'

Corey Swider, defenseman, Liv. Churchill: In just 10 league games, the 5foot-10, 150-pound junior accumulated 18 points on one goal and 17 assists.

His total for the season was 67 points on 39 poals and 28 assists (leading the team) en route to Dream Team (coaches association) honors.

Mastroberto is also an academic allstater, carrying a 4.258 grade-point average.

"He approached the game with smarts," Ferguson said, "and he pays attention

"He works at his game and puts in his time. He's good around the net and sees the ice well.

Comedies challenge, entertain

Performances of the Schoolcraft College Theatre Department production of "Waiting for Godot" and "The Marriage Proposal" continue through April 11 on campus in Livania. Dinner is at the Waterman Campus Center and performances at the Liberal Arts Auditorium. For ticket information, call the college bookstore at 462-4409.

If you want to experience a special evening of theatre, don't miss Schoolcraft College's current production. Director James Hartman has chosen two totally different types of farce.

The first is "Waiting For Godot" - absurbist theater that will challenge your intellect. The second is "The Marriage Proposal" - a comic farce to tickle your funny bone.

Samuel Beckett's "Waiting For Godot" never fails to provoke audiences into thoughtful discussions (often heated) of "what's life all about." Beckett, an existentialist, believes that truth must come from within oneself, that accepting conventional values of a chaotic, illogical world is nonsense

IN short, God is dead or dying, existence has little or no meaning, all communication is a banalty, and if there is any hope for a better life it must come from ourselves.

It follows that the dramatic form of absurbist theater such as "Waiting For Godot" should be non-conformist. This often confuses audiences. Beckett gives us disconnected dialogue, little or no dramatic plot, and incongruous characters.

The leads are two tramps, played splendidly by Robert Hamblin and John Drouiliard. They trade insults, pester each other, complain about life, consider hanging themselves, and wait for a mysterious Mr. Godot (obviously God), who has promised to come and explain what it's all about. There are touches of Laurel and Hardy in their comedy. And insightful moments of more weighty issues. Both are excellent in a most difficult theatrical form.

Brain Wilson is very good as a young messenger who keeps reassuring our tramps that although Godot didn't make it today, he promises to come tomorrow. Some say this points out the bleakness of life. Others say this means there is always hope. Who is to say that both views are not valid. That is what makes and performer.

"Waiting For Godot" a classic.

GOOD PERFORMANCES are also turned in by Matt Siadek, as an' oppressive taskmaster, and Ken Hannan as his unquestioning slave. Hannan's long, mumbo jumbo speech about politics and religion was especially impressive.

"The Marriage Proposal" by Anton Chekhov is one of his early oneact vaudevilles. It's pure farce. Jerri Doll steals the scene as a giddy lady in a tither over a proposal. Guy Ricketts is a howl as her nervous beloved

The fun begins when they get into a dispute over which family owns an adjoining meadow, which leads to an argument over who has the ugliest dog. Fortunately, her mother, played superbly by Patricia Parsons sorts out the problems. At least for the time being.

Bob Weibel of Westland is a freelance writer, who has spent more than 25 years in community theater as a director, designer

Please don't ask me about my favorite car

Much as I get a kick out of giving my unbiased (please don't snicker) opinion on new cars in print, I still tend to mumble when people ask what I do for a living, since the question always is followed by one of two questions: 'What do you think about' the new Bizzarini?' worse, 'What Is your favorite car?"

I duck the first one since I figured out long ago that everybody who asks it just bought a new car, and any sort of candor is more or less like giving an honest opinion on the looks of a new baby. The second one is worse, however, since it tempts me to give an honest answer.

The reason an honest disclosure of my favorite car would do serious damage to my credibility as an automotive connoisseur is that for years

I have harbored a deep-seated passion for the great losers of the auto world. A friend of mine, who populates her house with dogs she finds abandoned around boarded-up houses and nurses them back to health, feels some kinship with the cars I 'have owned. I have not brought a car home by holding out the back of my hand to smell and offering it a Milk-Bone, but I have come close.

GENERALLY, I try to keep this quiet. When the conversation turns to someone's old '57 Chevy, Austin Healey, '59 Cadillac or any Ferrari, I sort of bite my tongue about the great times I had with my '74 Fiat 128 (the one with the dual-throat Weber carburetor, the prototype for the Yugo); the '63 Corvair Greenbri-ar station wagon (the one even Ralph Nader didn't notice or appreciate); two AMC Concords (one with a genuine Gucci interior); the '71 Pinto . . . * But why go on? A guy in the office keeps pictures in his wallet of his Shelby Cobra with the 454 "stroker" engine. Somehow I never got around to taking a picture of the old '51 Dodge Power Wagon that had the roof dented in by the guy I bought it from. The roof was dented in because he used to drop trees on it. Boy, I loved that truck.

There is a theory that car tastes are set early in life. Now that I think of it, this kind of thing dates back to my old high school in Royal Oak, where everybody I knew was driving either a car they borrowed from their mother or had left to them by their grandmother. Some guys had grandmothers who didn't trust them, so the car was left to their mother, who had to be talked out of it on weekends. Still, these were our first cars, which is why a '58 Pontiac with rusty chrome still sends me into fits of nostalgia; and explains why I get goose bumps thinking about a '53 Dodge with bigholes in the upholstery. We only knew one guy who ac-. tually had a new car that you might brag about today, and that guy became a lawyer.

At any point in time, there are neo-classics emerging that are unlikely to make it into a museum, but still are worthy of recognition before they go to that great car shredder in the sky.

The AMC Gremlin, for example, was a homely, misbegotten effort by AMC to build a small car by chopping off the tail of the second-homeliest car in the world - the aforementioned Concord. These things were cheap new, then got dirt cheap used, and then rusted out. At that point they are considered well aged, like fine wine, for any kid with $100 and . looking for a runner.

First, of course, you check out the battery, which is worth half the price of the whole car. The engine; a great block of inefficient cast iron. runs forever. The rust holes in the floor are handy, since they allow the water leaking in overhead to run out. Any Gremlin was always burglarproof, for obvious reasons, but it is wise to keep an eye on that battery.

I never actually owned a Gremlin, but it's on my list of favorites, if you should ever ask.

Firms peg growth hopes on mergers, product line

By Doug Funke staff writer

... One plus one sometimes equals more than two in the business world.

Take the case of a small, unprofitable Troy manufacturer of bioengineering equipment and a small, profitable Livonia manufacturer of cardiovascular tubing whose sales and earnings in 1991 were flat after years of steady growth.

Medical Profiles, a privately held company, intends to acquire Biolectronics, a publicly owned company in a stock swap, then go public. As part of the deal, Biolectronics has found an investor who would bring some $5 million to the marriage.

That money would be used to purchase a small, growing manufacturer of cardiovascular products, Cardiac Assist in Boston.

The final result — a single publicly owned corporation, Bio-Life Systems, with headquarters and manufacturing operations of all three divisions under one roof in Livonia.

Memoranda of intent have been filed. The deadline for finalizing all the details is March 31.

"I think we'll be looking at approximately 30 employees initially," said John J. Ferszt, Medical Profiles president who also will preside over all Bio-Life operations.

'The goal now is to bring everything together, close the deal and concentrate on operations.'

> — John J. Ferszt Medical Profiles

Ferszt lives in Farmington Hills.

"THE GOAL would be to have three operating subsidiaries, all profitable and growing year to year," he said. "All operations need to be operating in sync.

"My main focus now is putting the operation together today," Ferszt said. "We have our forecasts. The goal now is to bring everything together, close the deal and concentrate on operations."

Cardiac Assist, which reported recast earnings of $700,000 last year on sales of $2.4 million, is the big prize in the realignment.

"We decided we needed more than one profit center," Ferszt said. "The way to grow fastest was to look for an acquisition. We didn't want to compete with our customers. We wanted income in a niche area."

Cardiac Assist is one of only four companies in the world that manufactures an intra-aortic balloon catheter, said Ben T. Lowell, founder of Medical Profiles and chairman-to-be of Bio-Life.

A competitor, Datascope, currently controls 80 percent of the market, Ferszt said.

"IT'S IMPORTANT to have another major player," said Ferszt. "People like to be able to pick and choose." Bio-Life can promote Cardiac Assist products better than the previous owner who concentrated on other heart-related medical products, he added.

The realignment should benefit the other divisions, especially Biolectronics, which has been strapped for cash since its founding in 1982.

"The company has never advertised," said William Harrison, Biolectronics president and a former tax and securities lawyer. "We'll be able to go to trade shows, produce videos to support the sales staff.

"We looked at them (Medical Profiles) as a big brother to carry the load and overhead and give us some them in gave us a public vehicle for raising money. We didn't necessarily have an interest in Biolectronics itself. We felt it had some promise."

Medical Profiles posted a recast profit of $450,000 on sales of $1.3 million in 1990. Sales and revenue were flat last year, Ferszt said.

BIOLECTRONICS, which has never reported a profit, had operating losses of $52,000 through September of last year and a loss of $36,000 on sales of $123,000 during all of 1990, Harrison sald.

"I see that Biolectronics will probably get working capital they need now to develop some patents they have," said Lowell, a Bloomfield Hills resident. "They won't have to scrounge." Biolectronics makes equipment used to manipulate cell structures in biolgical and medical research.

O&E Thursday, March 26, 1992

Ferszt figures to have his hands full with the day-today operations of an expanded Bio-Life. "Growth will come through sales and development of current companies, at least near term."

Harrison, a dealmaker who has helped 32 companies go to public ownership, sees a similar scenario, although he noted that Bio-Life has an option to buy a small medical implant supply manufacturer over the next several weeks.

"We have to digest this and put it all together," he said. "Long term, I think growth will be augmented by acquisitions."

And why was Medical Profiles attracted to Biolectronics? "They're a public company," Ferszt said. "Getting

Lock-in mortgage policy varies among institutions

By Doug Funke staff writer

Delays in processing mortgage refinancing requests and original mortgage applications didn't much matter when interest rates were falling.

That's because some financial institutions honored the lower rate at closing so that the lock-in rate became the worst-case scenario.

Things are different now with rising mortgage rates. The lock-in figure becomes the best-case scenario. And some consumers wonder aloud whether lenders deliberately drag their feet at times like this to clip borrowers with a higher rate. Peter, a suburbanite, has a dilemma. His 50-day lock-n period is about to expire and the prevailing rate on an adjustable rate mortgage refinancing will jump from 5% to 6% percent.

He can accept that higher rate, a difference of about $41 per month on a $50,000 note, or back out of the deal and forfeit his $300 application fee.

"I personally consider it a bait and switch," Peter said bitterly. "They have no incentive if rates are going up to close."

But walts of up to two months on refinancings are common now for a variety of reasons, executives at larger institutions said.

APPRAISERS ARE still overworked. Homeowners are still refinancing. Lenders generally give priority to people seeking a first mortgage. And fence-sitters are starting to move into the market now that rates are heading north.

"Purchasers have priority. We do those first," said Al Marshall, manager of business development for First Federal of Michigan. "We don't want to stymie the real estate market."

"Then when you have 90 percent of your business refinancings, someone is going to have to wait," said Michael Lubig, mortgage department manager for Standard Federal Bank, the most active in Michigan.

Standard Federal has processed nearly $750 million in mortgage applications through mid March of this year, Lubig said.

"I don't think anyone is foot-dragging," sald Paul Swan, senior vice president for NBD Mortgage. "Appraisers are working as hard as they can, title companies are working hard, surveyors. It's a very time-consuming, paper-intensive process."

"BANKS ARE so inundated now with people coming through, they aren't going to be as efficient," said Thomas Klar, assistant marketing manager for First Security Sayings Bank. "Mistakes are going to happen." It pays to shop around and ask questions. Lock-in policies differ among institutions. First Federal, for instance, locks in for 45 days, NBD for 60 days, First Security for 50 days and Standard Federal for 30 days on refinancings, 45 on new mortgages.

Most report difficulties completing the paperwork within those time frames now, Standard Federal and NBD will extend the lock if processing problems like delayed appraisals originate at their end. First Federal and First Security generally won't extend.

Standard Federal and First Federal will give the lower rate if rates fall between locking at application and closing. NBD and First Security won't.

Applicants in some instances can extend the lock-in period for an additional fee.

Borrowers face a real quandary whether to lock or float at application, especially when dealing with institutions that strictly enforce lock terms.

"IF RATES are tracking downward, a higher percentage float. If they feel rates are going back up, they will lock it goes back and forth." Swan said lock. It goes back and forth," Swan said. About 70 percent of NBD applicants lock now, he added, where some 60 percent floated last summer.

ed, where some 60 percent floated last summer. "It's a gamble," Lubig conceded. "If rates go up, you win. If they come down, you've spent money for peace of mind and that's all you get."

Daniel B. Smith, Plymouth branch manager of Republic Bancorp Mortgage, said virtually all recent refinancers there paid a $600 application fee, applied to closing costs, to lock in a rate.

"They liked what they saw, they weren't willing to gamble," he said. "It ($600) sure separates serious people from people not so serious."

His branch processes about 98 percent of all mortgage applications within the 45-day lock period, Smith said, adding that he pushes the paperwork because he's on commission and doesn't get paid until closing.

And what about Peter and his dilemma?

"I'd go there and raise hell with the bank manager and accept nothing less than what he applied for," Smith said:

"I would call back and lay it on the line," Lubig said. "He's done everything he's supposed to do. He shouldn't suffer for their inability to get the job done." OUSELUER & ECCENTRIC CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING 644-1070 Oakland County 591-0900 Wayne County 852-3222 Rochester/Rochester Hills

At 87, John Van Sipe isn't too old to be unconcerned about looking good.

Van Sipe and other residents of the Cambridge West Nursing Care Center in Redford appreciate being able to find clothing styles that are comfortable and attractive. Designs offered by Caring Concepts, a Canton-based franchise company, suit them just fine.

"It's very good," Van Sipe said during a recent shopping boutique at the center. "More comfortable than ordinary pants. I like the shirts they've got. The colors are very good."

He's used a wheelchair for about 18 years, and appreciates the comfort provided by Caring Concepts designs. Van Sipe had been wearing hospital gowns for some time, said Sherry Kiselica, activity director at Cambridge West Nursing Care Center.

"He was feeling kind of bad about himself," Kiselica said. Van Sipe found the side-zip sweatpants much more comfortable than regular trousers.

"YOU CAN SEE a big difference in his attitude," she said. "He's real pleased with himself now."

Staffers at Cambridge West, who dress some of the residents, are grateful that such adaptive apparel is available. Residents who are able to dress themselves have also benefited, said Kiselica, an Inkster resident.

"It's great for the residents' self-esteem. Their dignity is so important." Residents who no longer get out and about also appreciate the convenience of having Caring Concepts come to them, she said.

Christopher Lachowicz and David Lachowicz bought the franchise last summer, after seeing an ad in the Wall Street Journal. The brothers, who had looked into a number of different franchises, got their business up and running in October and November.

They have the franchise for Wayne County and Monroe County. Michigan has one other Caring Concepts franchise, in Bay City.

Caring Concepts Inc., based in New York City, has eight franchises. Plans are to add another 12 this year, said Christopher Lachowicz, a Westland resident who serves as Caring Concepts president.

CARING CONCEPTS was founded in 1990. Founders worked with nursing home staffers "so they knew exactly what the demands were."

Clothing designs have such features as:

• Ring-pull zippers, to help arthritic people or those who've had strokes;

An aunt of theirs had had a stroke, and they remember how difficult that was for family members who cared for her.

"My uncle struggled with her day in and day out." Many families are caring for an older loved one at home, Christopher Lachowicz said, and need clothing styles that are comfortable, practical and washable.

The brothers have years of business experience to draw on. Christopher Lachowicz, 42, earned a bachelor's degree in education from Niagara University in New York and a master's degree in business administration from the University of Windsor. He worked southwestern cacti garden and nearly 100 other exhibits will replace horses and antiques Thursday-Sunday, April 2-5, at Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds, new site of the Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show.

Sponsored by the University of Michigan's Matthaei Botanical Gardens, the third annual flower show has changed its location from Yost Ice Arena on the U-M campus to the fairgrounds on Ann Arbor/Saline Road.

Show planners say the six-building complex, with large parking areas, should comfortably accommodate the exhibits and garden marketplace as well as an expected crowd of 20,000.

This year's theme, "A Touch of Country," capitalizes on the rustic location, complete with pole barns for farm animals.

"There is no way to mask the casual atmosphere, so we decided to turn it into an asset with a playful country theme," said Michael Hommel, flower show designer and gardens superintendent. "The roomy barns provide ample space for visitors to walk, push strollers or just sit and enjoy the beauty around them."

SINCE JUNE, garden staffers have been designing and building the show's elaborate staging.

Visitors will enter through a grove of confers and stroll along sod-covered country lanes edged with goldenrod and authentic remains of Americana such as "Burma Shave" signs.

Designed as building connectors, the lanes will be exhibits themselves of native and alien plants seen along rural roads during each of the four seasons.

"We're trying to reduce the Clydesdale scale of the barns while using every opportunity to incorporate greenery into the staging," Hommel said. "Our challenge has been to create an outdoor environment with indoor comforts, such as heating and restrooms."

Judith Corkran Katch, flower show manager, describes this year's show as "definitely more family-oriented than previous shows."

John Van Sipe, 87, gets some help looking at new clothes from Gail Bird, a Cambridge West Nursing Care Center staffer. • Easy-to-reach pockets, including some on the lower leg of slacks (for wheelchair users);

• Side-snap slacks and side-zip pants, designed to help those who are incontinent;

• Blouses and shirts that open in the back, making dressing easler.

A variety of designs are offered in many sizes for men and women. Sportswear, dresses, underwear, hosiery, nightwear and other items are available.

Blouses are priced at about $12.95 to $16.95, with dresses available for $21 to $35. Dusters are priced at about $14 to $18.

"They're all bright pastels, prints of some sort," Christopher Lachowicz said. Clothing's designed to be attractive as well as practical, and new designs are regularly added to the line.

THE BROTHERS saw a growing need for such apparel, and decided to get into the business. They conduct shopping boutiques at area nursing homes and for the Ford Motor Co. for 17 years.

David Lachowicz, a 38-year-old Commerce Township resident, earned a bachelor's degree in marketing from Wayne State University. He'd worked in sales management for a number of years, most recently with Frito Lay, before going into business with his brother.

"Business is picking up as more and more people are finding the material is available," David Lachowicz said. January and February are traditionally slow in retailing, but business is improving as spring approaches.

"We're just getting our feet wet, actually," Christopher Lachowicz said. They hope to expand their territory into northern Ohio, including the Toledo area.

Miss Tall Detroit prepares for club's annual weekend

By Sue Mason staff writer

Hey, have you heard the one about the girl who was so tall she had to bend down to use the shower? Or the one about the girl who was so tall she had to install a sun roof in her car for more head room?

Christine Schemanske has. She's THAT girl.

At 6 feet 14 inches tall, the Livonia resident has incurred her share of tall people problems. Pants with creeping cuffs, bumping kneecaps in airline and theater seats. Squeezing into a small car.

In fact, her height was such a problem for her growing up, her first date didn't come until she was a sophomore in college. The tall guys, she discovered as a teenager, preferred short girls.

Schemanske will get a chance to experience what she missed; she'll get a chance to be the belle of the ball this weekend when she reigns over the Tip Topper Club's Detroit weekend as the 1992 Miss Tall Detroit.

"By fifth grade I was the tallest in the class; I was a good half a head taller," she said. "By high school it was all over."

For Schemanske, a substitute teacher in the Clarenceville and Livonia school districts, the Tip Topper Club has been the answer to her dreams in a way. It is wonderful, she said, to find men and women who have endured the same problems she has.

"I WAS called names in school — bean stalk, too tall — and that's what's so wonderful about the club," she said. "Everyone went through the same thing. As a kld, I felt like I towered over them, so it's wonderful to walk into a room and feel short even when I'm wearing heels. It feels wonderful."

The club is a part of Tall Clubs International with membership open to women 5 feet 10 inches and taller and men 6 feet 2 inches and taller. There are 50 clubs throughout the country with each staging a weekend to promote the club.

Detroit's club weekend will include a costume ball Friday evening and a formal dinner/dance Saturday night. It will be Schemanske's weekend to promote the club, but she'll share the spotlight with the Miss Tall International and Miss Tall Chicago.

Schemanske joined the club last May and was urged almost immediately by other members to enter the pageant. She downplayed their insistancy, but in the end, on a whim, she decided to enter the pageant.

Her parents are elated with her new royal duties, and Schemanske is surprised. She never thought of herself as "Miss Tall anything, except when I was growing up and then I thought I never fitted in," she said.

IN A FAMILY of five, she comes in fourth when it comes to height. Her mother is dead last at 5 feet 7 inches and her father towers over the group at 6 feet 6, with her brothers coming in at 6 feet 5 and 6 feet 2.

Growing up tall wasn't easy. Her pet peeve is clothing, hard to find when you wear a size 7. As a teenager, she wore a size 5, unheard of in tall shops where the smallest size was a 12. In response, her mother took up sewing to keep her in clothes.

"I'm so glad stirrup pants are in style," said Schemanske, who has a $4-inch inseam. "Those tabs hold the legs in place."

Writer is caring, sharing

Dear Lorene,

I'm right-handed and a 41-year-old female who has been working at the same profession for over 20 years. I find your column very interesting and informative.

I've often wondered if your handwriting style gives any clues on career paths which would be suit. you?

At times when I'm writing, I will print some letters; could you tell me what that could mean? I'm anxious to hear from you and see what my handwriting tells you about me. J.P.,

Livonia

Our writer is a beautiful young woman, one who is sharing and caring to others. She is also emotional and finds it difficult to hold back her feelings, Happiness, sadness, grief, anger, fear, etc., cannot be totally concealed from others. Her body language will usually give her away.

Most of her goals are set at quite a practical level. She enjoys those little dally challenges that come her way. Her work reflects a sense of pride. She is happlest working at her own pace and can be a tad deliberate at times.

Several signs suggest she is experiencing dissatisfaction with present achievements and/or the work role. In fact, this situation seems to be causing her moods to fluctuate and could lead to depression, if not remedled.

Seemingly, she harbors ambivalent feelings about several things.

She's tops with club

Her funniest moment as a tall person happened on her recent trip to England. For some reason the bathtub was on a raised platform two feet above the floor. Schemanske couldn't stand up to use the shower.

"And when I had my apartment in Ann Arbor, the shower was at five feet so I had to duck under it to wash my hair," she added. "My roommates thought it was just too funny."

Being comfortable with her height has changed her outlook. She chuckles about children in the early elementary grades when they catch a glimpse of their substitute teacher. One youngsters was heard to tell his classmates, "We have the giantest teacher in the whole world."

SHE IS impressed with a program scarced by miss Tall international Rose Carnduff, called Sky Writers. It pairs up high school students going through the problems of being tall with peers or someone so they can talk about their tall problems.

She may be undergoing changes with regard to security and assurance, dependence and independence and undertaking projects or activities which are unfamiliar to her.

Her security needs are noted. She tends to be a little possessive of those she loves. She wants many things. These may be compensation for some inner lack she feels.

This is a logical thinker. She accumulates facts and information bit by bit, mentally constructing a picture in her mind's eye. Once in possession of the material her memory serves her well.

Our writer appears to have strong opinions regarding her values and STROLLERS ARE permitted for the first time and the price of children's tickets dropped from $6 to $3. Several children's categories have been added to the horticulture and design classes, including "garbage gardening" for plants grown from kitchen refuse like avocado plts and potatoes.

Children and adults alike should appreciate the colorful windmill and animal sculptures interspersed among the conifers near the entrance. Sculpted by Gerome Kamrowski, the nationally known abstract expressionist and professor emeritus in the U-M School of Art, the slightly whimsical pieces are Kamrowski's donation to the flower show.

New this year is a landscape exhibit entered by the Ann Arbor Parks and Recreation Department that demonstrates how city volunteers can create an "island of green" within an urban environment. A lily pond under an arched bridgeway will represent water gardening, another first-time landscape exhibit.

WHILE LANDSCAPE exhibits vary widely, major awards go only to those that display predominantly Michigan plant material, according to Katch. As in past years, design classes require entrants to interpret themes such as "Up a Lazy River" and "Country Kitchen" by building upon one or two "props." For example, Hommel's staff is applying the finish-ing touches to the bow halves of wooden rowboats for the "Up a Lazy River" category. Exhibitors start with the boats and a few cattails, then fill in the rest of the scene with their own plant materials, accessories and imaginations.

In addition to to the landscape exhibits, design class arrangements and horticultural specimens, the show offers lectures and workshops by educational and environmental groups and a marketplace of plants and gardening accessories.

The Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show "Friends for Tea" display includes these magenta and cream orchids,

"I wish I had someone like that when I was growing up," she said. "I never really had anyone to talk to. I had my mom, she was tall for a woman, but not like me. It would have been great to know there were others out there like me and going through what I was."

She'd like to get involved in Sky Writers, especially being a teacher,

Telethon isn't affected by economy

An economic downtown doesn't mean that metro Detroiters become stingy. Organizers of the annual Easter Seal Telethon are grateful for that generosity.

The telethon, broadcast March 7-8 on WDIV-TV/Channel 4, raised $1.024.719 in the metro Detroit area.

"We really are pleased with it," said Rosemary Ging, executive director of the Easter Seal Society of Oakland County. "This was a rough year economically for a lot of people. The people of the metro area still opened their hearts.

"They still were there for us. That just points out how generous the people of metro Detroit are."

Ramadan: Fasting focuses on control and faults

By Arlene Funke special writer

Each school day during the Holy Month of Ramadan, Kashlf Haque of Livonia eats breakfast before dawn.

Then Kashif, a 15-year-old boy, heads for classes at Catholio Central High School in Redford.

As a devout Muslim, Kashif will take neither food nor drink until dusk, approximately 6:30 p.m.

This dawn-to-sunset fast will continue for 30 days, until Ramadan ends on April 4.

"The purpose of Ramadan is not just to go 30 days without food and water," said Kashif, a sophomore. "Fasting, in itself, develops self-control and helps us to overcome selfishness, greed, laziness and other human faults."

During Ramadan, Muslims are required to abstain from food or drink from dawn until sunset. They also must refrain from smoking and sexual relations during the fast.

RAMADAN IS a time of selfdenial and intense examination of one's spirituality, according to the Rev. Imam Muhammad Karoub, a spiritual leader in the Muslim community.

"It is a time of thanksgiving," said Karoub, 67, of Farmington Hills. "It is a time to be extra charitable. Empathy and sympathy pervade our spirit."

Islam means "submission to God." Those who believe in Islam are called Muslims, meaning, in Arabic, "one who has given himself to God."

Islam was founded in 622 A.D. Arabia by the prophet Mohammed. Muslims revere the prophets of Jewish and Christian scriptures.

Muslims believe Mohammed is the last and greatest prophet. They believe that Mohammed wasn't divine but an instrument chosen to bring the message of God - Allah.

More than 800 million people worldwide are Muslims. Islam, predominant in the Middle East, also has followers in large portions of Africa, Malaysia, Pakistan and Bangladesh.

Many Muslims live in Turkey, the Balkan states and portions of the former Soviet Union. Around four million Muslims live in America Kashif is the son of Syed Haque, a quality control specialist at Chrysler Corp., and Sanjeeda Haque.

'It means I can sit back and say to myself, 'What have I done wrong? How can I change to be a better person?' '

- Kashif Haque

cause of its high scholastic standards and excellence in athletics.

"Kids from all backgrounds attend the school," said Kashif, who belongs to the science club and takes part in track and football.

Kashif knows of one other Muslim student, and a Muslim teacher, at Catholic Central.

While Kashif feels comfortable in his school, he believes many people in general simply have no idea about the meaning of Islam. Misconceptions are rampant.

"By the year 2000, one-quarter of the human race will be Muslim," Kashif said. "I want to clear up the misconceptions.

"We aren't all oil sheiks," he added. "We don't go around blowing up airplanes. Islam is a religion of peace."

In a recent letter to the Observer, Kashif expressed his feelings about Ramadan, a time of great significance for Muslims.

"It means I can sit back and say to myself, 'What have I done wrong?'" Kashif said. "How can I change to be a better person? You can understand what it means to be hungry."

RAMADAN, WHICH began in early March, takes place in the ninth month of the lunar calendar. The actual dates vary from year to year. The holiday commemorates the time that Allah revealed to Mohammed a divine plan and prescription for daily life.

These edicts are set forth in the Koran, also known as Quran, the holy book of Islam.

Devout Muslims are forbidden to eat pork, gamble, drink alcoholic beverages and take drugs. Muslims must pray five times daily while facing Mecca, a city in Saudi Arabia that is sacred to Muslims. The Muslim holy day is Friday, when followers attend congregational prayers at a mosque. During Ramadan, Mohammed centuries ago. Then, each family diges according to its own customs.

- During Ramadan, gifts of cash or goods are distributed to the needy.

At the conclusion of the Holy Month, Muslims gather at the mosque for prayers. This time also is marked by the payment of a "purifying tax," called Zakat, to benefit the poor.

Kashif, who hopes to attend the University of Michigan, plans to work at a soup kitchen this summer.

He also belongs to a group called United Michigan Muslim Association, which seeks to bring together Muslims of different schools of thought and diverse ethnicity.

Traditionally, Muslims tend to worship and associate with their own nationalities, "and that is what we are trying to eliminate," Kashif said.

THE HAQUES left Pakistan, moved to Canada and relocated to metro Detroit.

Kashif's sister Shazia, 20, attends Madonna University in Livonia. Twin brothers Shamael and Sadiq, 14, are students at Livonia Churchill High School.

"I'm used to it now," Kashif said. "The hardest part for me is getting up early so I can eat breakfast before the fast begins." As the daily fast ends, the Haques gather for prayers. They drink juice and eat fruits.

Many Muslims eat dates at the end of the fast, as did the prophet Preserving history . A Plymouth native edited a new guidebook designed to provide travelers and history buffs with information about the state's past as recorded on Michigan historical markers.

Laura Ashlee, state register and historical marker director, edited "Traveling Through Time: A Guide to Michigan's Historical Markers," a 336-page paperback guidebook available through the state (1-800-366-3703) and at selected bookstores. The book sells for $14.95.

"It's a compilation of a lot of unrelated items, but when you put it all together, it really is a chronicle of local history as well as state history," said Ashlee, a 1979 Plymouth Salem High School graduate. Her family moved to Plymouth from Los Angeles in 1963, when she was just 18 months old.

"Even though each marker may not seem related, when you look at them in the big picture, they are," added the Michigan State University alumnae who earned a master of arts degree in American studies.

Published by the Michigan Department of State's Bureau of History, the book spotlights 1,100 official green-and-gold historical markers.

The markers honor and celebrate the people, places and events that have shaped Michigan history. Observerland boasts 18 markers.

He'll host a continuous demonstration from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, March 28 at Atrium Gallery, 113 N. Center at Main, in downtown Northville.

The appearance accompanies "People Pots," a 35-piece exhibition of his work on display through mid-May.

"I never tire of making them. They're a whimsical sculpture that's there to stand and talk back to you," said the Ann Arbor resident at a demonstration in the ceramics room at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

Black, who has worked in ceramics since 1958, celebrates his 26th year as an art professor at Schoolcraft.

His hands deftly manipulate the clay as he begins to hand-build a cowboy, a popular seller right now. Pushing and pulling the clay, he maneuvers it into shapes used to create one of 80 different characters.

A PINCH here, a push there and suddenly a sinister character with an evil eye appears. Next time, a white porcelain, 10-gallon hat on a cowboy is all it takes to make him one of the good guys. "You can move them any way you like," said Black as he cocked the figure's head to the right. "Twist an eye or close a mouth and the People Pot takes on a whole new meaning." Created on a cylindrical base, Black's figures have grown through stages since the first one was built in 1965. In the beginning, he explains, they were tall, thin vessels. "I started with the vases, then thought it looked like a person," Black said. "From there, they went through an evolutionary process as I began to add fingers, which simply grew out of their chest. Sherlock Holmes was the first definitive character. I called them my 'Regulars.' " Quickly rolling the clay into tiny fingers and hands for the cowboy, Black soon slips them up the sleeves. "He's going to be holding a lariat," Black said as he proceeds to cut a pattern out of white porcelain clay to build a hat. "He's a good guy."

"marker tells a special story and teaches a lesson about our history," said Secretary of State Richard Austin.

In the book, the location and text of each marker is arranged by county. The book features 100 historic and contemporary ilustrations of marker subjects.

Drawing the spotlight . . . Watercolorist Mark Revers of Plymouth will exhibit his painting, "Michigan and Trumbell," April 4 to May 2 at Michigan Fine Arts Competition at the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association, 1516 S. Cranbrook, Birmingham.

In January, Revers exhibited the painting of Tiger Stadium at Michigan Art '92, a statewide fine arts competition presented by the Plymouth Community Arts Council. The competition was jurored by Mary Stephenson, former assistant curator of 20th century art at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Since Feb. 20, when Revers' watercolors were featured in Creative Living, he decided to make photo prints of "Michigan and Trumbell" and the architectural painting of a historic Detroit fire station's doorway, "Larned and Washington."

If you'd like to know more about the prints, call Revers: 453-3078.

Artist shares her survival strategy, 5D

Editor's note: Like most everything else, the art world isn't immune from the fallout of a depressed economy and the closing of a major auto assembly plant like Willow Run in Ypsilanti. In a series of reports continuing today, we're examining the extent of the recession's tug on art galleries and artists around Observerland.

By Linda Ann Chomin special writer

ESPITE THE gloomy economic landscape, local artists report sale of their work remains, on average, unaffected as they continue searching for ways to touch people's lives through canvas, paper and bronze.

"Sometimes in a recession, it's a good time for people to buy art. Art can be a most important purchase because it fulfills a spiritual need," said Edee Jóppich, a Visual Art Association of Livonla watercolor and collage instructor.

Art provides soothing relief from life's everyday struggles in a cold economic climate, evoking tears and smiles, sparking and communicating experiences unique to the human condition.

"Gallery owners are saying sales are down, art buying is down all over the country. At my gallery in Northport, my clientele is from all over the country and my sales haven't been affected," said Joppich, co-owner of Joppich's Bay Street Gallery on the Leelanau Peninsula.

"When people fall in love with a piece of art," the Farmington Hills resident added, "they tend to buy it rather than wait because so many people have stories of the painting that got away."

BLEAK CUTBACKS by the auto companies haven't kept artists from generating innovative marketing ideas. Joppich and other artists are finding ways to make new purchases possible, instituting payment plans and layaways.

"Not all art lovers are wealthy. Some of them make sacrifices to buy it," Joppich said. "We try to help them any way we can because chances are they won't be able to come back in a year and buy it because it'll be gone, sold to 'Not all art lovers are wealthy. photographer Carlos Diaz, an associate professor of photography at the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit.

Diaz has never sought sales or commercial success. His portraits of unemployed autoworkers jar the conscience and speak of social concerns. Through a viewfinder, his images illustrate a range of ideas: irony, inner-city decay and leveling of Detroit's residences and businesses as he steps back to "let the viewer come to their own conclusions."

"Because I do have a teaching position at an art school, the recession doesn't directly affect me. Indirectly, it effects me because the grants have been cut. For an artist like me, who does

BLACK BUILDS three to six each morning or 1,000 figures a year, seliing them at 10 art fairs.

A mainstay of the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair for 31 years, Black demonstrated wheel-thrown pottery in the early years. He continues to entertain fair goers with the creative craft of hand-building People Pots right before their eyes.

"People say they're so perfect. They're done in a mold, but it's all very spontaneous. I like to call them happy accidents. If you get too serious, it gets too contrived."

Let's team up to rekindle usability of Hough School

ON A RECENT crisp morning, jagged shadows cut by the morning sun silhouetted the little red schoolhouse, a broken shell of its former self as a center of learning.

In disrepair and open to vandals, Hough School clings to a bleak existence at Old Haggeriy and Warren Road, along an old stagecoach trail, in Canton Township.

Distress signs permeate the century-old, two-room school. The windows are boarded up or uncovered. The clapboard paint is peeling. The interior is strewn with junk. And the front door is falling apart.

A hopscotch outline on the walk and a large tire in the yard are stark reminders of a time when Hough buzzed with the bustle of children.

Sewer work along Warren Road punctuates the scene with the rigors of road construction: tractor tracks, uprooted fencing, survey flags and atone mounds.

BUT HOUGH School may yet survive, thanks to a determined group of history buffs and others hooked on Canton's heritage.

The newly formed Committee to Save Hough School aims to build public support for saving and finding adaptive re-use for the historic landmark, now privately owned.

Virginia Parker, who co-chairs the preservation committee with Diane Neihengen, says tearing down Hough could erase a "visible piece of the community's longstanding commitment to education and the only tangible link newer residents have with Canton's early history."

Both co-chairwomen are in the Canton Historical Society. "We'll help them any way we can — by hosting meetings or providing money until they get the ball rolling," said Marta McCabe, society president.

LIVONIA DEVELOPER Mel Belovicz has no immediate plans for the 10-acre site he bought in 1987 and rezoned to office use four years later. But, the collector of old carssald, he "would not like to see the building torn down. There's no benefit to tearing down a 100-year-old building. I would like to see it saved."

Belovicz says he's "willing to cooperate with the committee and do something reasonable,

"If I developed offices with enough density elsewhere on the property, I'd even consider giving the school site away for historical preservation."

He underscores that restoration on-site must be tied to a development plan.

PARKER'S RESEARCH tracks Hough's roots back to seven years before Canton became a township. Neighbors paid Mary Barber $32 to teach in the original Hough School, a one-room log schoolhouse built in 1827 on land owned by the Houghs.

In the 1890s, Hough School District bought part of a nearby orchard and built a one-room school with a block foundation. The second room came in 1942. In the 1950s, Hough School District merged with Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Hough served as an elementary until 1956.

Hough is one of five one-room schoolhouses gracing Canton's countryside. Two already have been restored. The township's in the midst of restoring a third. Hanford, like Hough, is in private hands. From 1963 to 1988, Hough School housed Plymouth Co-op Nursery School. "The building was meticulously preserved through the efforts of volunteer parents, who scraped and painted the aged, red clapboards and performed the other exterior and interior maintenance tasks," Parker said.

TO JOIN Parker's cause, send your name, address and phone number to: Committee to Save Hough School, c/o Canton Historical Society, P.O. Box 87362, Canton, MI 48187.

Says Parker: "The committee would very much like to hear from anyone who attended Hough School or who otherwise has a fondness for this treasured landmark and its place in the community's heritage," Right onl

Now's the time to rally the community behind Hough, especially in light of Mel Belovicz's pledge to save the school. He likens his pledge to "the same way I save trees when I develop. I believe in protecting the environment."

Like the committee, I want to see Hough saved on site. Original location accentuates a building's historical significance.

But if the site isn't developed soon, I'd rather see Hough moved and rebuilt elsewhere in Canton than languish endlessly at its original location — deteriorating to a level thatthreatens restoration.

Bob Sklar is assistant managing editor for special projects.

SISSON GALLERY

To March 27 — "Photo National 1," an exhibition by Michigan Friends of Photography, Hours: 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday-Friday, until 8 p.m. Tuesday-Wednesday, at MacKenzle Fine Arts Center at Henry Ford Community College, 5101 Evergreen, Dearborn, 845-9634.

• THE PRINT GALLERY

Friday, March 27 - "Nudes and Foods," an exhibit of the work of native Michigan artist Jack R. Smith, will run through April 30. Reception to meet the artist 7-9 p.m. Friday. He favors a small format, 4 by 6 inches, on wood or copper. Smith mixes his paint with oil and wax, a process that suspends the pigment, giving a sublime translucence to the flesh in his nudes. Hours: 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Saturday and 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday in the Franklin Plaza, 29203 Northwestern Highway, Southfield, 356-5454.

SYBARIS GALLERY

Friday, March 27 - A one-person show of ceramics by Nancy Selvin through April 25. Reception for the artist 6-8:30 p.m. Friday. Selvin's ceramics focus on a series of still-life explorations juxtaposing form, color and architectural space. Personal or historical references are often included as she builds space and reorganizes domestic forms that emphasize material and process. Her wallmounted vignettes consist of rather offhanded shelf fragments of roughedged wall board, on which are set what amounts to sculptural sketches of cups, bottles, pots, plates or eggs with multi layers of underglaze to build deeper, richer tones. Hours: 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 301 W. Fourth, Royal Oak, 544-3388.

The camera offers unusual perspectives on life in an exhibit at the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum, 500 Lone Pine Road in Bloomfield Hills, now through April 5.

The show, "Vantage Point: Photographs from the Warren J. Coville Collection," is the first public exhibit of this collection. It's the first of two displays celebrating the 20th anniversary of the academy's photography department. The second will feature photography by department alumni. "Vantage Point," with 75 images by 33 artists, both delights and impresses the viewer, combin-ing the romantic and the magnetic. In Coville's words, the photos aren't just documentary but many have true artistic value because of how they were composed and exposed. So you see the famed election photograph of a jubilant — and victorious — Harry Truman holding a newspaper proclaiming his "defeat" by Dewey.

BUT YOU also see an image of John Kennedy at the 1960 Democratic National Convention looking both forward and backward at the same time: His back is to the camera, but his face is on a TV screen in the foreground of the picture.

Fine art photographs are a major focus of the exhibit. Many images are visual poetry. One print captures the motion of cars on a busy Detroit street. A dizzying view of organ pipes makes them look mountainous in size. A newsstand is silhouetted against a wall plastered with ads for a musical comedy.

A photo of Washington Square in the winter looks like a pencil drawing. One image is a dream-like shot of people on a bridge. Ordinary people presented in these images become extraordinary. Two old women walk past a building with two large statues of women on it, "The Steerage" captures the immigrant experience as it shows poor passengers crowded on an ocean liner.

CHILDREN MAKE an impression, such as the little girls solemnly dancing, and the little boy carrying two bottles almost half as tall as he is. The nudes photographed include a woman dreamily silting at a vanity mirror with a photo of Clark Gable nearby.

"Vantage Point" includes work by famous photographers, among them Clarence White, Margaret Bourke-White, Ralph Steiner, Karl Struss, Anton Bruehl, Laura Gilpin, Paul Outerbridge Jr., Imogen Cunningham, Walker Evans, Lewis W. Hine, Edward Steichen, Paul Strand and Edward Weston.

Also featured are people known for their work in other media, such as painters Charles Sheeler, Ralston Crawford and multimedia artist Laszlo Moholy-Nagy.

After viewing the collection, you are inspired to find and appreciate the drama and significance of everyday life.

The Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum is open to the public for general viewing 1-5 p.m. Wednesday-Sunday. Admission is $3 for adults, $2 for full-time students and senior citizens, free for children under age 7 and muse-um members. Docent-guided tours are available for groups of 10 or more 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. Tuesday-Thursday and 10 a.m. Friday, with advanced notice. Tours are $2 for adults and $1 for children, full-time students and senior citizens.

Artist Saundra Weed of Westland teaches artists the finer points of marketing their work using multiple thinking in a monthlong series of workshops at Schoolcraft College in Livonia and Oakland Community College in Farmington Hills.

By Linds Ann Chomin special writer

Artist and teacher Saundra Weed chooses to see the proverbial glass as half full, instead of half empty. Multiple thinking, as she refers to it, and an upbeat attitude help keep her afloat in these stormy economic times.

"Everything's good, and bad. The sales are there, but not in the quantity they once were. It doesn't mean people stop appreciating artwork, they just stop buying the larger wall pieces," said Weed in an interview at her Westland home.

"Artists are going to be changing the sizes of their paintings, creating smaller pieces that are more affordable. I see them being sold differently, too, buying the painting without ington Hills. the frame."

By thinking in multiple uses, saving money and increasing time used for production, artists can continue to sell their artwork in an otherwise depressed economy.

Weed covers this information and more in "Marketing Your Arts and Crafts," a monthlong series of Saturday workshops she teaches based on "Dollars, Sales, and Sense - A Complete Business System," a book she and Eleanor Ford wrote and published.

THE MARKETING series for artists takes place on a rotating basis at Schoolcraft College in Livonia and the Orchard Ridge Campus of Oakland Community Colelge in Farm-

In the workshops, Weed shares moneysavers like learning to stretch your own canvas and because setup takes time to use the production line method as she does, cutting a dozen mats at a time instead of only one. "I think it's a very emotional time for people. Even the subject matter that sells is different, more emotional," Weed said. "People want more landscape instead of abstracts. They want a recognizable place in a painting that they can escape to. It's better than taking a vacation."

Weed should know what they want. She has been living off sales from her artwork for more than 30 years. Her advice to artists is to think creatively as they would in their work and "to change the direction of what they do."

"Artists can still retain the investment they've put into a painting by making prints. Some artists are now making note cards from the print and they're utilitarian. Sell the rights to a card company or calendar company where a lot of people can enjoy their work on the walls,"

Weed said. FOR SOME artists, taking Weed's advice on selling their artwork will suffice, carrying them over the rough times. Others, however, may need to incorporate other moneymaking skills into their lives because as all artists know, starving does nothing to further art.

Artists persevering

work that's not commercial, funding cuts make it difficult. Photography has gotten to be expensive. I won't be able to do projects as large," said Diaz, recipient of three individual Creative Artists grants from the Michigan Council for the Arts.

There are less grants and more competition for grants. There's not as much money to do communityoriented work.'

REDFORD SCULPTOR Sergio De Giusti's sales have not slowed due to the recession. "Last year, I had a show that sold a great deal," De Glusti said. "I really didn't feel it." De Glusti suggests the economy alone is not detrimental to an artist's survival.

"Traditionally, America has not looked upon art spiritually," De Giusti said. "It's not like in Italy where people surround themselves with art."

Here it takes years, in his case 25 to 30 years, to develop a following while remaining true to art.

"If you place standards first and live very modestly, it takes years to do that," De Giusti said. "I stay with a certain type of imagery that I really want to create. I'm pretty independent as an artist. Grants help me do that."

Last year, De Guisti lost $1,000 of a $10,000 grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts, but it was "insignificant when compared to other artists who lost quite a bit," he said.

De Giusti prides himself on never having to compromise his art for. profit, not even commissioned work. In the last month, however, be has created a series of smaller works, 100 in all because at Christmas time. people requested them.

LIVONIA PAINTER Barbara Demgen's has felt a slowing in sales within the last few months. She, believes there are two reasons for the downturn in sales.

"Buying a piece of artwork is a luxury. Pronouncements of the auto companies really affects the market in this area, because people get down," Demgen said. "In general though, January, February and March is not a good time of the year to sell artwork."

Demgen, an instructor in the Creative and Performing Arts Program at Churchill High School in Livonia, thinks commissions have fallen off because people aren't redecorating. Since these commissions are down, she has compensated by switching from painting large oil or acrylic canvases to watercolor.

"During a crunch, you don't want to outlay that expense. I'm not willing to go out and spend a hundred dollars for canvas and stretchers. I tend to stay more with watercolors," Demgen said.

CANTON ARTIST Gweb Dietrich, an illustrator/graphic designer for A.R. Brasch Advertising in Southfield by day, agrees with Demgen that the time of the year has a lot to do with slow sales.

"At the first of the year, sales typically slow and with the bad news from GM, people hold back on their spending," Dietrich said.

But Dietrich's sales and commissions increased in February because of her 45-piece retrospective, "Animal Antics," hosted by the Livonia Arts Commission and the city of Livonia.

Cranbrook P.M., in cooperation with the Cranbrook Institute of Science and Grass Roots Nursery, will present two workshops on "Water Gardens: Simple Steps to Bring Success."

The workshops will simplify the process of developing this special form of gardening to adapt to your own needs. For information and reservations, call Cranbrook P.M. at 645-3635.

The indoor workshop, 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 8, in Room 36 in Gordon Hall on the Cranbrook campus, 550 Lone Pine Road in Bloomfield Hills, will be led by Scott Bates of Grass Roots Nursery.

Bates is the resident water garden specialist for this company, which has created garden ponds for Fairlane Manor, First Federal Bank of Michigan, the Cranbrook Institute of Science and exhibits at Cobo Hall.

Slides will illustrate selecting a site, design, pool liners, fountains,

"You'll enjoy watching the devel-opment of the People Pots," said Heidi, Eizelman, Atrium Gallery coowner with Pat Jania. "He does all sorts of figures, he also does professions. A lot of people order them as gifts.

Besides figures, Black's Southwest collages are on exhibit through mid-May.

"I get a big charge out of the fact that it's going to be part of some-one's family," Black said. "It gives me great satisfaction to know how it 'means so much to someone."

Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson rest on top of the kiln, waiting for-Black to complete the trio that also includes Moriarty. Once glazed and fired, Black will paint, then ship them to the Colorado collector who special-ordered them.

FROM BEHIND, ceramics student Pat Gardner of Plymouth quips: "Did you notice how they all look like hlm.'

Black, who looks a bit like St. Nick with his snow white hair and beard. smiles, barely hiding the sadness over his upcoming retirement. It's obvious he will miss the camaraderie shared with his students over the years.

After the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair in July, Black will head to a newly purchased adobe home in the foothills of Tucson, where he will continue building People Pots.

Schoolcraft College art professor Robert Black the Atrium Gallery in Northville Saturday. will hand-build a dozen of his People Pots at March 28.

Agents turn to computers for jump on competition

By Doug Funke staff writer

Information is power in real estate transactions.

And access to up-to-the-minute data, listings of specific houses new to the market just might make a difference in how quickly a buyer and seller get together.

Annette Foland, a Realtor with four years experience, and Steve Hofman, a computer programmer who lives in Beverly Hills, have collaborated on Infotel-Real Estate Management System, a computer software package.

Their product enables real estate professionals to tap into Multi Listing Service computers with telephones using personal computers, store the information, then display the data for clients outside of traditional office settings.

"To buyers, it means you have information with you at all times," said Foland, a Realfor with Century 21 Northwood in Royal Oak, "If they 'call you at home, you have information regardless of what time of day it is."."

MLS books are always two weeks behind, Foland said, and efforts to reach mainTrame computers for MLS data can be difficult at certain times of the day with hundreds of agents having access.

"BEFORE, REALTORS had to use MLS books," Hofman said. "In central location and get into the main computer. Many now don't use that because they're older and computer illiterate.

"As more people come into the business and get on line, the system will bog down," he said. "It (Infotel-. REMS) is another big-tool giving agents a little more of an edge. As the price for laptop computers keeps dropping, this program will be more In use.

Infotel is priced at $495 plus a $10 monthly maintenance charge. About a dozen have been sold since promotion started earlier this year, Foland said.

"A lot of it is just getting people to the last five years, they could dial a know about it," she said. "I've got - running. We never have to come several agents using this, top producers. When people see they can make money off this, then they'll say, 'This is what I need.' "

Foland sees a couple of situations - doing a market analysis on the spot for a prospective seller and responding to an inquiry from a buyer about a new listing - where Infotel could be especially handy.

PAUL BALOGH, who works for Cranbrook Realtors in Birmingham, has been using Infotel for a couple of months.

"It provides me constant access to MLS systems whenever I'm on the road, in a client's office or cold prospecting," he said. "We're off and back to the office."

Balogh said he updates through MLS computers every night.

"Any tool that can give you that kind of flexibility is worth the cost." he said, "I'd like to keep it a secret as much as I can."

Keith Weber, a colleague of Foland's at Century 21 Northwood, also endorses the product.

"It cuts down on time," he said. "It allows me to be quicker in giving answers. "It makes me look more professional, more aggressive, more contemporary. Customers are impressed, I'm impressed."

Joe Durso, owner of ReMax West in Livonia, also liked Infotel during a trial run.

"It's an excellent tool. You can take information with you at all times and be current," he said. "The problem is, so many different things are happening now. Each one costs $300, $400, $500. That's why I'm waiting, to see what else comes onthe market."

Other software programs, including PC Portable Listing System, have been available for a couple of years and more are expected in the years ahead.

"Two fundamental things are working here now," said Rob Reid, a spokesman for Boris Systems of East Lansing. "The price of PCs are coming down and people are using them every day doing business."

California highly regulated

I want to buy a second vacation condominium in the Los Angeles area but am concerned about the real estate climate and whether the condominium laws are markedly different from Michigan.

Get yourself an experienced and recommended broker in California who represents your interests to try to find the right property for you and to analyze the market conditions in the area in which you wish to live. In general, real estate in Los Angeles has reacted much like the rest of the country recently but is still relatively strong.

Condominiums are highly regulated in California by both state administrative agencies and laws. There are also many more court decisions and condominium laws there than in Michigan, so you are advised to consult with a competent condominium lawyer before you consider buying there.

Why have so many management companies told me that they can deliver free legal advice with their services when I, as a practicing attorney on a condominium board, know s based upon their respective experithis is ridiculous. Please comment.

There often is a thin line between the giving of management advice and that of legal advice, particularly in the area of interpreting condominium documents or pursuing a construction defect claim against a developer. Management companies, if they are good, will limit their activities to that of strictly giving management advice - how to implement the restriction of the bylaws.

Lawyering should be left to the experienced attorney who is trained in interpreting the bylaws. While the lawyer and the management company must work together, their respective duties should be duly delineated ence.

Review land deed's language

a plot of land, the seller gives you a deed as proof that you own the property. Although it is essential to have your lawyer review a deed before you sign it, it's a good idea for you to also understand it.

The seller is referred to as the grantor.

You (the buyer) are referred to as the grantee.

Any land being sold or conveyed must be described in detail. The description is usually in technical language.

For example, "parcel lies 124 degrees northerly of Main Street, bound 90 degrees easterly by Fox Lane." Be sure to read this description carefully against the most recent survey of the land. Once you accept the deed, you own exactly what it says and nothing more.

BARGAIN-AND-SALE DEEDS give you complete ownership of the land. Watch out if you are offered a

(AP) - When you buy real estate, such as a house or quitclaim deed. This type of deed entitles you to no more than what the seller owned - often less than full ownership.

> For example, the state may have filed a claim against the property because the seller neglected to pay property taxes. In that case, you would own the property only after you paid the back taxes from your own pocket.

> One way to be sure that the seller gives you complete ownership of the land is to check into the history of ownership, also referred to as the chain of title. Make sure your lawyer does a title search to uncover any existing or potential problems.

> After you have checked out the deed and feel confident that it is accurate, you are ready to have it signed. The seller signs and dates the deed. Some states require witnesses to ensure that the seller is not being forced to give up the property.

Design discipline seeks an earlier role in planning

"OK, the development complies with the community master plan, we've got architectural renderings and construction blueprints, the civil engineering specs are done. I think we're ready to go, but I can't help but feel we're forgetting something."

"What about landscaping?" "Oh, I don't know, I suppose we could have a guy come out and throw some sod down and plant a couple of trees and bushes. . . ."

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

The sound you just heard was the scream of landscape architects everywhere.

As development has evolved over the years, the design disciplines of architecture, civil engineering and community planning have become more involved in the early planning process.

In recent years, landscape architects have become more involved too, but sadly, landscape architects say, they are still often not called until the late stages of a project.

The Michigan chapter of the American Society of Landscape Architects is taking steps to change that. At the chapter's January meeting, the society sponsored a panel discussion with the theme "Common Ground - Creative Endeavors Between Design Disciplines."

The intent of the discussion was to emphasize the importance of each discipline in the design process, Jack Goodnoe, president of the MASLA, said.

The issue is deeper than landscape architects being ignored, he said. "Landscape architects can be myopic about what (others) do."

The point behind MASLA and Goodnoe's efforts is not to point fingers, he said. "I wouldn't want to characterize it based on a negative assumption."

As the development process stands, the lines between the disciplines are blurred. "Rather than dispute the overlaps, we should use them and try to come up with better designs."

Still, he admits, part of the focus of the seminar was to raise awareness about the importance of the landscape architecture. "The optimum result of any project is to have as many perspectives as possible."

A long-term goal of the profession is to convince the decision makers -the developers - that what they do has merit, Goodnoe said.

"In the long term, we feel we can save (the developer) money."

*A project that involves the landscape architect in the planning process earlier will reduce grading, minimize landscape budgets, help site buildings so they are less costly to erect, and result in more efficient road and utility systems.

"Mistakes in the infrastructure can lead to large operation and maintenance costs later," he said. Landscape architects sometimes feel they are considered decorators - they're there to dress up a buildsaid. ing's exterior after it's been designed. That overlooks other areas of expertise the landscape architect brings to the project. "It ignored environmental, urban planning and recreational planning expertise," he

Nicholas Lomako, a planner with engineering, planning firm Wade Trim/Impact, said he wouldn't say, nor does he think many landscape architects feel a need to take on a process.

"I think it's more a question of working in isolation." On some projects, each member of the design team does tend to work without input from others.

It's understandable, therefore, that landscape architects, as a member of the design team, would want to be brought into the planning process earlier.

"There's a grain of truth to that." Two of the biggest obstacles to the Michigan has public relations problems, although not insurmount-able, when it comes to attracting business to the state.

• Réal estate investment trusts seeded by pension funds may finance more commercial projects in the fu-

• Conscientious office owners keep their financial houses in order and negotiate with tenants and lenders, if necessary, in down times.

• Building owners shouldn't be as eager to eat remodeling costs for tenants as they may have been.

Those were some observations recently presented by a panel of heavy hitters on the local development scene to Commercial Real Estate Women, a professional association. "We're a very maligned area," said Robert A. DeMattia, president of a Plymouth-based construction, design and management firm. 'It hurts us in Michigan when other firms look at what they can get down South compared to what they can get here.

"Other states have a bag of givea-ways for customers," DeMattia added. "The first question I get when I visit businesses in other areas is what do you give? What are the tax benefits? What about job training?"

BUSINESS AND governmental leaders here should respond with a solid, unrelenting campaign, he said. DeMattia described how he managed to retain a client with the hard sell on a weekend's notice.

"The existing sales force here, we said, would be in a safe harbor. They wouldn't have to relocate their fami-lies. They could stay with their friends.

"We actively stressed the produc-tivity of northern workers versus southern workers. You can find (quantitative) information like that," DeMattia said.

"Michigan has a lot of manufacturing about it and is considered a union state. What percentage of workers do you think are union? The low 20 percent — that's the figure we've heard," he added.

Other panelists were:

• Michael G. Damone, president of Damone/Andrew in Troy, a developer and manager of light industrial and office properties.

• Douglas M. Etkin, president of Etkin Equities, a Southfield real estate development company.

• Richard W. Horn, general manager of Duke Associates, a developer of office, industrial and retail projects.

INSURANCE COMPANIES have financed a majority of his projects, Damone said, but they're getting a little gun-shy with rating services scrutinizing their portfolios.

Banks here always have been strict, and savings and loans are es-sentially out of the commercial lending business, he added.

"Some pension funds invested in closed or open-ended (stock) funds feel locked in," Damone said. "Now, there's talk about real estate investment trusts."

Some tenants not aware of an owner's financial requirements are getting a little too full of themselves, he observed.

"We had a request for proposal (to bld) for a 1,200-square-foot tenant. I thought this was carrying it just a little too far."

Not all owners have clean hands, though, Damone added.

"We've done a lot of work for trou-bled properties. In each case buildings are in a chaotic position, tenants are unhappy, taxes aren't paid. Tenants have suffered tremendous-

Etkin picked up on that theme.

OFFER TO reduce rents a little and make improvements in exchange for lease extensions, he advised. Banks may be willing to re-negotiate interest rates with owners if owners are willing to pump more of their own money into a building when the economy sours and rates fall.

"You have to be aware of tenants' needs," Etkin said, "We believe in spending money before tenants want you to spend money. That way you get satisfaction.

"If you're prepared to put new money into a deal, a lender will listen," he said of refinancing. "But if you don't pay taxes or utility bills, you won't have credibility." Etkin prefers to have space empty than give it away.

Horn told the gathering that own-ers can no longer afford to remodel to a tenant's specifications and just get their money back. The numbers don't support that now.

Two families with extensive experience in the real estate business the McNabnays of Farmington Hills and the Buitings of Bloomfield Hills - have joined forces to attract commercial property management accounts.

"Our goal was to break into the commercial field," Buiting said.

"Down the line if it works out and dollars are there, we might merge everything."

McNabnay said his company had gross sales last year of some $40 million. Builing said his firm collected management fees of $350,000:

Houses take honors in Builders Show parade

Six houses ranging in price from $129,900 to $435,900 and in size from just under 1,500 to 4,200 square feet garnered award of excellence designations from a panel of architects during the annual Parade of Homes exhibition.

The showcase, co-sponsored by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan and Comerica Mortgage, was held in conjunction with the International Builders Home Flower Furniture Show.

"People come from far and wide looking for ideas," said Sam Krels, vice president of construction lending for Comerica. "Parade of Homes gives them an opportunity to deal with those builders or go to their own builder and say, 'I like floor plan three and floor plan seven' and go from there."

Judging was based on design, special features and value for price. Floor plans and renderings submitted by more than 20 builders were evaluated. All models have been constructed and are scattered throughout metro Detroit.

Following is a brief summary of the winners by category.

• Condominium — The Bayview, 1,459 square feet priced from $135,900. This is a joint venture between The Brody Group and Adams Development Corp. of Bloomfield Hills in Lochmoor at Voorheis Lake, Orion Township.

The unit contains two bedrooms, two baths, an oversized kitchen with breakfast nook, a large great room, a two-car garage and an unfinished basement. A laundry room is conveniently linked to the garage entrance.

"The floor plan, the open flow to it, is one of the nicest plans I've encountered," said John Sheehan, marketing director for Brody.

• Under $135,000 - The Ryan, 2,240 square feet priced from $129,900, built by DOB Custom Builders of Auburn Hills in Brandon Township.

The floor plan shows the master suite, great room, kitchen with dining nook, laundry room and powder room on the first floor. Two bedrooms with a loft - possibility for a third bedroom or recreational use - is on the second level. The model also has a garage and basement.

"Open the front door and you're looking straight at a fireplace, transom windows, solid glass on each side of the fireplace, two loft areas upstairs," said Dean O'Brien, DOB president. "It's very open. I have people just stand and gulp."

• Up to $160,000 - The Cambridge, 1,856 square feet priced from $155,490 built by the BBC Group of Farmington Hills. The model is available in Canton and Pittsfield townships.

The common living areas are built into one side of the house, three bedrooms on the other. Vaulted ceilings can be found in the great room, dining room, kitchen and breakfast nook. The model also has a first-floor laundry, attached garage and basement.

"The adaptability of the model is a great feature," said Steve Taglione, owner of BBC Group. "It can be three bedrooms and a den or four bedrooms.

The vaulted ceilings also give an already spacious ranch a more spacious feel, he added.

• Up to $200,000 - The Lexington, 2,182 square feet built by The Irvine Group of Farmington Hills in Milford. The price starts at $189,000.

This is another example of the master bedroom suite designed on the main level, with two other bedrooms and the possibility of a third upstairs. The den, great room or steps leading to the second level are right off the main foyer.

As with other winners, this model contains a first-floor laundry, attached garage and basement.

"The look and feel of the exterior is an unusual feature of the home," said Norm Finkelstein, an Irvine partner. "We call it kind of country comtemporary. Big covered porches, high roof lines . . . give it a special attraction."

• Up to $300,000 - The New Dream, 3,400 square feet built by TDM Housing of East Detroit. The model in Farmington Hills is priced from $295,000.

The house plans show a separate living room and family room, plus a dining room and an eating nook off the kitchen. All three bedrooms are on the second floor. The house has 21/2 baths, first-floor laundry, walkout basement and two-car garage. The inturned garage creates a courtyard entry.

Judges seemed especially impressed by the different elevations, combination of brick and cedar for exterior facing and the barrel vault front entrance, said Brian Bunetta, TDM owner.

• Over $300,000 - The Oakland, 4,200 square feet priced from $435,900 built by F&M Construction of Rochester Hills in that community.

The main floor contains a family room and living room between a study, a large kitchen with a dining nook, butler's pantry and a separate dining room.

All four bedrooms and three baths are upstairs. Two separate sets of stairs lead to the second level. A two-story solarium attaches to the family room downstairs, the master suite up. "There's no wasted square footage," said Donna Ybarra, an F&M sales rep. "It has a real nice master suite, a real nice kitchen. Those are the two things people in that price range are looking for."

Picture worth 1,000 words — even on an empty wall

(AP) - Walls without pictures are not merely empty, they're sterile and sad. But only slightly more so than a wall with just one picture.

Indeed, it takes a group of pictures to add vitality to a room, said Stephanie Hoppen, author of "Decorating With Pictures" (Clarkson Potter, 1991, $40).

Any wall is good, she said. Use large pieces of furniture such as a sofa or a long, low cabinet as anchors for a grouping. An architectural element such as a mantelpiece also works. Bring an empty corner into a better relationship with the rest of the room by hanging a group of small pictures. Add interest to stairwells and long hallways by turning them into a gallery setting.

If you're stumped for ideas, combine different versions of the same subject. "It could be roses, views of Venice, cats, photographs of your children," Hoppen said.

Att photographs, botanical prints, architectural drawings, antique and modern advertisements and illustrations, fashion plates, pictures of pets, caricatures and plates are among pictures I put up aren't necessarily her suggestions for wall ornaments. Hoppen claims no special training in the art of putting pictures together. She said none is needed.

SHE STARTED AS a dealer in maps and artworks on paper in England and branched out to framing. She now maintains showrooms in London, Toronto and New York.

"I learned framing as I went along, and I wasn't particularly adept," she said. "Even today, the

• Stripping and refinishing is an-right the first time. If I could learn, so can others."

Still, there are some tricks of the trade: • Look for wood or plaster architectural ornaments such as rosettes or finials which can add dimension to a wall of framed art works.

• Intersperse objects such as wall sconces, mirrors, wood carvings and plaster plaques to create a more vivid setting.

• Hang a dimensional ornament above a series of paintings as a finial. It's a finishing touch that often produces a more interesting effect.

• Work on the floor to create an arrangement. Step back and look. Try different patterns until you find one you like.

• It's more difficult to hang plctures in a straight line than to create an asymmetrical arrangement.

• If you have a series of pictures identically framed, string a length of ribbon from one to the other. Each framed work is actually hung separately, but the illusion that all are attached to a single ribbon creates a pleasing visual whole. • To lend interest to a wall full of books, include a few small framed pieces of art. An even more dramatic effect is created by hanging a plcture across the front of a shelf. "You could hide all your paperbacks behind the picture," she said.

• Look for new places to hang pictures, such as closet doors. If the door will be opened frequently, choose small, almost weightless, pieces.

• If a mirrored wall or door no longer delights you, cover part of the surface with framed art. Call a professional glass installer to affix the art to a mirrored wall.

• Since custom framing is so pricey, consider hanging oil paintings without frames.

Face the fact that good framing involves hand work, which is expen-sive, Hoppen said. The more intricate the frame and mat, the more costly the job. This applies to custom work as well as ready-made moldings which have hand-rubbed finishes and intricate carving.

While a well-chosen frame protects against dirt, dust, fingerprints, accidents and molsture, it also enhances the art work and contributes to the room's decor.

When shopping for frames, pay close attention to the work on display and choose a framer whose work you admire. If there is no display, ask to see samples of his or her work.
