Even before he assumes his duties July 1 as Wayne-Westland school superintendent, Larry Thomas has lost the school board majority that chose him for the district's top post.

Monday's defeat of incumbent Sylvia. Kozorosky-Wiacek leaves only three board members - on a seven-member board - who voted for Thomas on May 13.

But it doesn't appear Thomas will suffer any serious political failout. Newly elected board members Francis "Bud" Winter and Richard LeBlanc have told the Observer they strong support Thomas.

Retired teacher wins in Livonia despite letter

By MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

A last-minute anonymous campaign questioning the candidacy of Kenneth Timmons failed Monday when the retired Livonia school teacher became the top vote getter in Livonia's school election.

The election of Timmons and Susan Thompson to two seats on the Livonia

Board of Education toppled longtime trustee Marjorie Roach seeking a third term.

With 3,134 votes, or 22 percent of the votes cast, Timmons led an eight-person race in which 8,612 residents went to the polls - the largest number of voters for a Livonia school election in years. The district includes the northern section of Westland.

Timmons' election Monday was never in doubt. But nail-biting suspense arose over the neck-and-neck race between Thompson and Roach, two friends who had campaigned together.

Only in the final precinct count did Thompson emerge the second-place winner. She got 2,687 votes, just 100 more than Roach.

"It was a long night and a lot of people were surprised by the outcome," Roach said.

Roach guessed that the schools ofchoice question on the ballot. overwhelmingly defeated 7,281-1,028, brought out the large number of voters.

17-year-old convicted in teen's shooting death

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A 17-year-old Westland youth has been convicted of second degree murder in the Nov. 15 shooting death of enother Westland teen behind Adams Junior High School.

Ian Bruce Cowen's conviction came on Tuesday as a Detroit Recorder's Court Jury announced its verdict in an emotional case that sent shock waves through Westland's teen community.

Cowen could be sentenced to life in prison in the death of Everett Earl Bowen Jr., 19, of Weatland, who was shot in the face and back with a revolver about * 10:30 p.m. Nov. 15.

The slain teen's mother, Patricia Bowen, said Tuesday she feels "absolutely great" about the conviction.

"Justice has been done. Now I can live with my son's death," she said, because the jury sent a message of guilt.

Prosecutors have accused Cowen and three other Westland teens - whose cases are pending - of plotting to kill Bowen in revenge for an earlier clash in which Bowen stabbed Cowen's legs several times with a screwdriver.

In convicting Cowen of second degree murder, the jury rejected a first-degree murder charge. The jury also reduced a murder conspiracy charge and, instead, convicted Cowen of conspiring to assault Bowen.

Judge Denise Page Hood will have latitude in sentencing Cowen for second-degree murder. She can sentence him to up to life in prison or to as few years as she chooses.

Although Cowen was tried as an adult, Hood could sentence him as a juvenile. He was 16 when Bowen was killed.

Hood is expected to decide the sentencing issue during a hearing on July 17. She has asked for recommendations from the Michigan Department of Social

Board to maintain Head Start despite worries over funding

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

The Wayne-Westland school board Tuesday erased fears it will drop the preschool Head Start program, despite worries of a funding shortfall.

The program, which served 322 children from low-income families in the last year, had been expected to lose $30,000 to $40,000 in federal funds that are channeled through the county school board.

But the board agreed Tuesday to allocate $35,000 to maintain the program, which is based at the Wilson--Center, on Wildwood near Palmer. Otherwise, the district could have been forced to turn the program over to another agency.

The board's decision to pump money into the highly successful program in Wayne-Westland drew applause from several Head Start employees in the audience during Tuesday's board meeting.

"I do know that this program works," board member Kathleen Chorbagian said.

The local money will come from the district's general fund surplus, which has been revised and is expected to be $6.5 million as of June

Churchill seniors prefer alumni role

ome 376 seniors changed their status to graduates and alumni at Livonia Churchill High last night.

The yeatherman cooperated and allowed commencement to be held outside on the athletic field. so that the maximum number of family members and friends could view the proud moment for the Class of 1992.

The exercises formally began when the Churchill High Commencement Band, directed by Brooks Barnes, played prelude music and then performed the processional march. The sentor ensemble, directed by Pat Hutchison, presented the national anthem.

After welcoming remarks by principal Rodney Hosman, senior class president Megan Keller presented the farewell address. The farewell song was sang by the senior ensemble and the class gift presented to the school by senior class treasurer Tara Ditchkoff.

The guest-speaker was William Halvangis, student assistant coordinator at Churchill High which serves students from northwest Westland as well as the city of Livonia.

Diplomas were presented by Superintendent Joseph Marinelli, director of secondary education Kenneth C. Watson Jr., and by trustees Richard McKnight, Joseph Laura, Marjorie Roach and J. Richard Thorderson.

Larry Thomas to provide equal educational opportunițies for Wayne-Westland's 16,000 students.

"Naturally I am. disappointed with the results," she said. "But considering the strong anti-incumbent movement in our country today and the mudslinging campaign by supporters of the previous administrations. I believe I did pretty darn good."

·She came under fire from numerous critics such as former Superintendent Dennis O'Neill, who stepped down late last year under pressure from Kozorosky-Wiacek and three other board members.

Kozorosky-Wiacek blasted cam. paign literature that accused her of ... being power hungry and self-serying.

• "I would have hoped that the voters would have chosen substance over sleaze, but unfortunately sleaze won out," she said. "Until the voters say 'no' to this type of campaigning, then these people most responsible for it will continue."

The toppled incumbent said she has "no regrets" about her decisions and said she believes the district will be better because of them. She indicated she will never seek another school board seat.

- Winter, a retired educator and 63year-old Canton Township resident, and LeBlanc, a 33-year-old Westland resident, had many of the same supporters in their election bids. 🛴

Monday night, Winter celebrated his win with at least 100 supporters at the Wayne Community Center. LeBlanc gathered with a core group of his campaign workers at the former Palace theater in Wayne:

Winter attributed his win to yoters "who want to see education put in derspective." The board has been embattled by political infighting for more than a year.

Winter also pledged that his decisions "will be motivated by what's best for the students."

LeBlanc said his victory stemmed from "a concerted effort" by his volunteers,

"I could not have done it myself," he said.

LeBlanc said he wants the board to become progressive, rather than reactive. And he wants the board to strive to overcome differences and "really start making things happen in Wayne-Westland."

When they officially take office July 1, LeBlanc and Winter will join board holdovers Vicki Welty, Laurel Raisanen, Fred Warmbier, Andrew Spisak and Leonard Posey.

Thompson suggested that an anonymous letter mailed to residents on Friday may have inadvertently boosted Timmons' campaign.

The unsigned letter alerted residents to a board of education policy. which bans board members from having both a direct and indirect financial interest in contracts signed by the board.

The letter hinted that Timmons might have to frequently abstain from voting on issues relating to the Livonia Education Association, both because of his past activity with the teachers union and because his wife is now a member. The letter implied that voters might be wasting their vote in vot-

However, McKnight said Timmons might want to get his own legal opinion on the issue.

"He might want to do that so that he knows where he stands and doesn't do something inappropriate," McKnight said.

McKnight said trustees with a potential conflict are required to point out that conflict but they can still vote on the issue. "Legally he's not required to refrain from voting. He only has to state the conflict."

Rennels said he saw "no conflict at all."

'No new Robin Hoods' in school aid bill

By TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Rohin Hood's loot wasn't any less this year, but it wasn't greater and suburban school districts can breathe a short sigh of relief.

The state House of Representatives Tuesday passed a $3 billion school aid bill that still "recaptures" $72 million in categorical aid from wealthier districts, the same as the current year. As proposed last winter, the recapture would have been $100 million.

"There were no new Robin Hoods - no additional Robin Hoods for the first time in six years," said Rick Simonson, lobbyist for Oakland County schools. He summed up the attitude of out-of-formula districts (those which get no general state aid but have seen their cate. gorical aid chipped away).

"We couldn't be happier with retention of FICA (Social Security, paymenta)," said Simonson, interviewed in the lobby, outside the House chamber.

Bill approved .

Representatives voted 94-11 with four absent- to approve a different version of the Senate passed bill.

As usual, the differences will have to be ironed out in a conference committee of three senators and three representatives. It's the panel that really writes Michigan's public school aid bill.

The 11 nay votes also tell who gets hit hardest by the existing Robin Hood provisions: Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, Barbara Dobb, R-Union Lake, Jan Dolan, R-Farmington Hills, John Jamian, R-Bloomfield Township, and Gordon Sparks, R-Troy, from the Observer & Eccentric area.

Other negative votes came from, Warren (2), St. Clair Shores, Grand Blac, Traverse City and West Branch.

"Oakland County still loses $31 million." said Dobb, the first-term lawmaker from Oakland's lakes. area. "That's almost half the total in the state. There's still too much. Robin Hood."

Missing the roll call was John Bennett; D-Redford.

Gov. John Engler had sought to take away all state Social Security and retirement payments, preferring to put the money in the general aid pot "so school districts can spend it as they see fit."

Thus, the House version, like the Senate's, was another defeat for Engler and a bipartisan group who want to narrow drastically the spending gap between the poorest ($2,500) and richest (nearly $9,000) districts.

ternoon on the relatively minor issue of funding adult education. Simonson was pleased with the result.

Rep. William Keith, D.Garden City, won 760.42 approval of his amendment to continue emphasizing adult ed funding on enrollment and attendance at the first two classes,

The appropriations subcommittee had sought to shift payments to the basis of "outcomes." Keith's restoration of the status quo was denounced by one of his closest political friends, Rep. James O'Neill, D-Saginaw. O'Neill said "unethical and unprofessional" administrators sign up anyone they can just to get state money.

Backing Keith was Rep. Wilfred Webb, D-Hazel Park, a retired school administrator, who called adult ed "one of our greatest successes in education," particularly

Geake: Skills bill to help workers compete

State Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, said his bill codifying the Michigan Opportunity and Skills Training (MOST) program will ensure its proper, administration in future generations.

The bill also will enable Michigan residents to develop the skills. needed to compete in today's labor market; said Geake whose 6th Digtrict includes Redford, Livonia, Plymouth and Canton.

The bill passed the Senate on June 3.

"The MOST program will provide chances for a brighter future for all of Michigan's residents by assisting them in continued education, job searches and community "service," said Geake, who said he was able to incorporate into the bill several provisons from Gov. En· gler's welfare reform address offered the day before.

Under the bill, the MOST program would be mandatory for all persons receiving Aid, to Families with Dependent Children, and State Family Assistance. Women would be required to participate up until their third trimester of pregnancy and to resume participation. 90 days after having given birth.

In addition to the services offered for the job-ready in the MOST program; additional public service training and job programs will be created.

For those not in an education program or who fail to find work after 90 days, they will report for work every day in the existing Community Work Exprience program, which includes:

Auto insurance compromise fails in state House

By TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

House Speaker Lewis Dodak's. battle lines held Tuesday as the Democratic chief refused again to. take up a reform bill to cut auto insurance rates and benefits.

His Republican rivel, minority leader Paul Hillegonds of Holland, denounced the Democratic-led House as "a lame duck" after losing a 54-50 bid to take up a compromise reform bill, two votes short of a majority. Hillegonds said Democrats are leaving the job to "interest groups," adding, "Paralysis has become ingrained in the legislative process," Meanwhile, AAA of Michigan, the state's largest auto insurer, filed, literally a truckload of petitions asking a referendum on its plan to cut costs far more than the compromise plan.

AAA vice president Bill Cilluffo. a one-time aide to Detroit Mayore . Coleman Young, had announced he would file the petitions at 10 a.m. but held off until late afternoon to give the House one more chance to act.

Part of history: Carolyn Forrest of Westland has recorded many firsts in her UAW tenure. This month she expects to become the union's highest-ranking female member.

Office Pavillion

Local woman to become UAW veep

BY WAYNE PEAL STAFF WRITER

Carolyn Forrest remembers her first job as a union officer back in the early 1960s and how she faced a six month probation because --horrors! -- she was a woman.

"I think women today would blow up the union local over that," the Westland resident said with laugh. "There's been a lot of changes."

The 35-year UAW member faces some changes of her own, becoming one of the giant labor union's four. vice presidents.

Confirmation is expected at this month's union convention in San' Diego.

The convention has proved controversial. Some UAW members are staying in non-union hotels. But Forrest defends the union's decision.

"I'd be the first one screaming if, we didn't make the effort," she said. "But we did have to find hotels that were compatible, that could hold the delegates,"

Forrest's skill as a negotiator and her commitment to civil rights - were praised by no less an expert than former UAW president Doug.. las Fraser.

"One of great strengths is that she's not afraid to speak out and not afraid to take an unpopular stand," Fraser said. "Those aren't just good things to have as a union vice president, they're good things to have as a person.

Forrest served as Fraser's administrative assistant from 1977-83. She subsequently served current president Owen Bieber in the same capacity.

Though her specific duties as vice president aren't yet assigned, Forrest expects to be placed in charge of the UAW's aerospace wing. As such, she will oversee union activities at a variety of plants from southern California to eastern Pennsylvania.

A vice presidency is reserved for a female DAW member by union pot-. icy.

But while women are rapidly becoming a work force majority, they make up less than 15 percent of UAW membership. 5.4

That, 'too, will change, Forrest said. Nationwide organizing efforts. directed a government workers and othel white collar types are expect-Ed to increase the number of female UAW members.

The change Forrest would most like to see --- greater union power --is less certain.

"We're living though a period of hostility to unions," Forrest said and, in this year of presidential politics, blame starts right at the top.

'George Bush has done nothing for working people in general, let alone union members," she said.

Not surprisingly, a Bill Clinton campaign button holds a place of bonor on her office shelf - resting among photos of her three childrenand beloved granddaughter and in the shadow of a bust of JFK.

"I think support for him (Clinton) is growing," she said. Ross Perot's growing popularity, however, has Fortest and other union leaders worried.

"He's telling people what they want to hear but where's his plan?" she said.

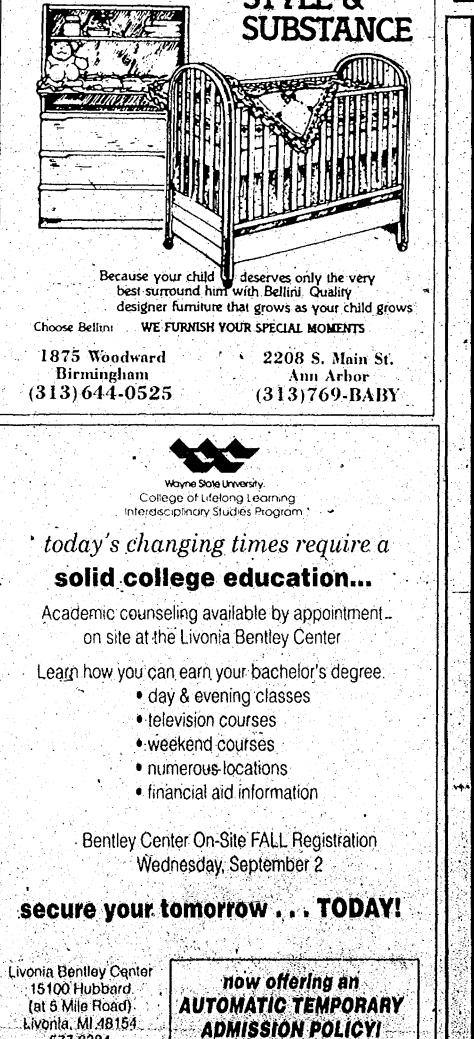

A Tennessee native, Forrestjoined the UAW in 1957 after moving to Michigan with her family.

Two years later she became a local officer -- receiving the now infamous six months probation ----then advanced to regional office before becoming the union's first female administrative assistant.

Forrest's top goal in her new post? Helping bring about economic. change.

2 newcomers in; incumbent out

Francis "Bud" Winter and Richard Leblanc were the big winners in the Wayne-Westland school board race Monday. Continuing a pattern started last year, voters dumped board president Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek in a bitter race.

By DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER.

Wayne-Westland voters ousted a seven-year school board incumbent Monday, marking a second year of anti-incumbent fever, and elected a former principal and a General Motors employee to fill two four-year terms.

Under siege by her critics, incumbent Sylvia Kozorosky-Wfacek lost her reelection bid as voters favored former Wayne Memorial High School principal Francis "Bud" Winter and GM staffer Richard LeBlanc.

Kozorosky-Wiacek blamed her loss on a strong anti-incumbent mood and "a mudslinging campaign" by her political enemies. Another incumbent, Kathleen Chorbagian, didn't seek reelection.

Winter easily captured the most votes in a field of eight candidates, but LeBlanc had to fend off a strong challenge from former board member Mathew McCusker to claim victory.

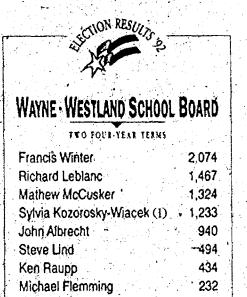

McCusker, one of three incumbents ousted last June, fell less than 150 votes shy of returning to the board.

Kozorosky-Wiacek trailed in fourth place, followed by board hopefuls John Albrecht, Steven Lind, Kenneth Raupp and Michael Plemming.

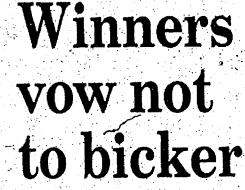

An estimated 4,100 of the district's 68,000 voters went to polls, marking a 6percent turnout that exceeded school officials' expectations. Turnout is usually lower in a school election that has no tax issues on the ballot.

In an interview Tuesday, Kozorosky-Wiacek congratulated the winners and wished them luck in their "difficult task." She said she hopes they will work with Superintendent-designate

Even before he assumes his duties July 1 as Wayne-Westland school superintendent, Larry Thomas has lost the school board majority that chose him for the district's top post.

Monday's defeat of incumbent Sylvia Kozorosky Wiacek leaves only three board members — on a seven member board — who voted for Thomas on May 13.

But it doesn't appear Thomas will suffer any serious political fallout. Newly elected board members Francis "Bud" Winter and Richard LeBlanc have told the Observer they strongly support Thomas.

Retired teacher wins in Livonia despite letter

BY MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

A last-minute anonymous campaign questioning the candidacy of Kenneth Timmons failed Monday when the retired Livonia school teacher became the top vote getter in Livonia's school election.

The election of Timmons and Susan years. The district inclu Thompson to two seats on the Livonia ern section of Westland.

Board of Education toppled longtime trustee Marjorie Roach seeking a third term.

With 3,134 votes, or 22 percent of the votes cast, Timmons led an eight-person race in which 8,612 residents went to the polls — the largest number of voters for a Livonia school election in years. The district includes the northern section of Westland. Timmons' election Monday was never in doubt. But nall-biting suspense arose over the neck-and-neck race between Thompson and Roach, two friends who had campaigned together.

Only in the final precinct count did Thompson emerge the second place winner. She got 2,667 votes, just 100 more than Roach.

"It was a long night and a lot of people were surprised by the outcome,' Roach said.

Reach guessed that the achools ofchoice question on the ballot, overwhelmingly defeated 7,281-1,028, brought out the large number of voters.

The school district sent out letters to all parents on the issue. The district urged residents to turn down schools of

17-year-old convicted in teen's shooting death

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A 17-year-old Westland youth has been convicted of second degree murder in the Nov. 18 shooting death of another Westland teen behind Adams Junior-High School.

Ian Bruce Cowen's conviction came on Tuesday as a Detroit Recorder's Court jury announced its verdict in an emotional-case that sent shock waves through Westland's teen community.

Cowen could be sentenced to life in prison in the death of Everett Earl Bowen Jr., 19, of Westland, who was shot in the face and back with a revolver about 10:30 p.m. Nov. 15. The slain teen's mother, Patricia Bowen, said Tuesday she feels "absolutely great" about the conviction.

"Justice has been done. Now I can live with my son's death," she said, because the jury sent a message of guilt.

Prosecutors have accused Cowen and three other Westland teens — whose cases are pending — of plotting to kill Bowen in revenge for an earlier clash in which Bowen stabbed Cowen's legs several times with a screwdriver.

In convicting Cowen of second degree murder, the jury rejected a first degree murder charge. The jury also reduced a murder conspiracy charge and, instead, convicted Cowen of conspiring to assault Bowen. Cowen could be falled up to a year on the assault charge. He could have faced life in prison on a murder conspiracy conviction.

Judge Denise Page Hood will have latitude in sentencing Cowen for second degree murder. She can sentence him to up to life in prison or to as few years as she chooses.

Although Cowen was tried as an adult, Hood could sentence him as a juvenile. He was 16 when Bowen was killed.

Hood is expected to decide the sentencing issue during a hearing on July 17. She has asked for recommendations from the Michigan Department of Social

When they returned later Friday, they took-him to a nearby field, knocked him unconscious with a blunt object and took his car and money, Haigh said.

Haigh declined to identify the man until he has had a chance to talk with him. The investigation° had just gotten under way early this week.

However, the man apparently was not seriously hurt. He had returned to work on Monday, Haigh said. The man's age was not immedi-

Police have since recovered the man's car in Detroit, Haigh said. Moreover, police had potential suspects in the case, although no arrests had been made as of Tues-, day afternoon.

"It's an ongoing investigation," Haigh said.

Board to maintain Head Start despite worries over funding

By DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

The Wayne-Westland school board Tuesday erased fears it will drop the preschool Head Start program, despite worries of a funding shortfall.

The program, which served 322 children from low-income families. in the last year, had been expected to lose $30,000 to $40,000 in federal funds that are channeled through the county school board.

But the board agreed Tuesday to allocate $35,000 to maintain the program, which is based at the Wilson Center, on Wildwood near Palmer. Otherwise, the district could have been forced to turn the program over to another agency.

The board's decision to pump money into the highly successful program in Wayne-Westland drew applause from several Head Start employees in the audience during Tuesday's board meeting.

"I do know that this program works," board member Kathleen Chorbagian said.

The local money will come from the district's general fund surplus, which has been revised and is expected to be $6.5 million as of June 30.

Head Start employees appealed to the board to save the program and not turn it over to another agency. They pleaded on behalf of the children ages 3 to 5 who benefit. from it, and they appealed for the voungster's parents

Even though the board's action has saved Head Start for the next year, officials remain concerned that more funding shortfalls could. emerge in subsequent years.

The $30,000 to $40,000 shortfall could increase in coming years, school officials have noted.

Churchill seniors prefer alumni role

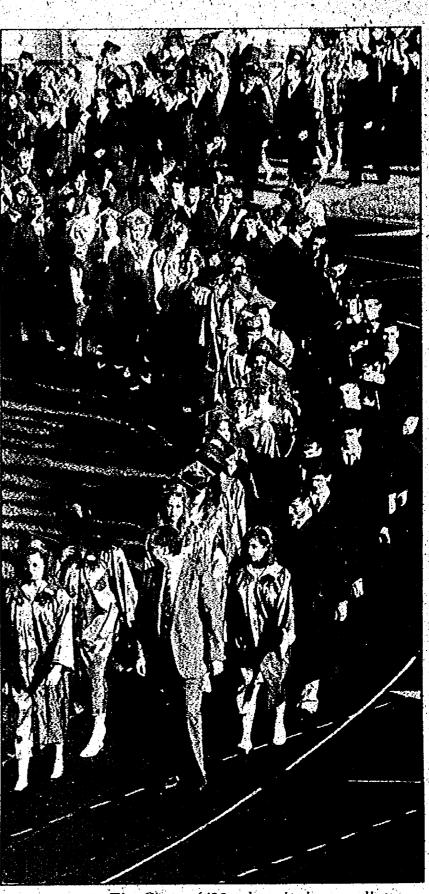

ome 376 seniors changed their status to graduates and alumni at Livonia Churchill High last night.

The weatherman cooperated and allowed commencement to be held outside on the athletic field so that the maximum number of family members and friends could view the proud moment for the Class of 1992.

The exercises formally began when the Churchill High Commencement Band, directed by Brooks Barnes, played prelude music and then performed the processional march. The senior ensemble, directed by Pat Hutchison, presented the national anthem. After welcoming remarks by principal Rodney Hosman, senior class president Megan Keller presented the farewell address. The farewell song was sang by the senior ensemble and the class gift presented to the school by senior class treasurer Tara Ditchkoff.

The guest speaker was William Halvangis, student assistant coordinator at Churchill High which serves students from northwest Westland as well as the city of Livonia.

Diplomas were presented by Superintendent Joseph Marinelli, director of secondary education Kenneth C. Watson Jr., and by trustees Richard McKnight, Joseph Laura, Marjorie Roach and J. Richard Thorderson.

"Naturally I am disappointed with the results," she said, "But considering the strong anti-incurgbent movement in our country today and the mudslinging campaign by supporters of the previous administrations, I believe I did pretty darn good."

She came under fire from numerous critics such as former Superintendent Dennis O'Neill, who stepped down late last year under pressure from Kozorosky-Wiącek and three other board members.

Kozorosky-Wiacek blasted campaign literature that accused her of being power hungry and self-serving. -

The toppled incumbent said she has "no-regrets" about her decisions and said she believes the district will be better because of them. She indicated she will never seek another school board seat.

Winter attributed his win to voters "who want to see education put in perspective." The board has been embattled by political infighting for more than a year.

Winter also pledged that his decisions "will be motivated by what's best for the students."

LeBlanc said his victory stemmed from "a concerted effort" by his volunteers.

"I could not have done it myself," he said.

LeBlanc said he wants the board to become progressive, rather than reactive. And he wants the board to strive to overcome differences and "really start making things happen in Wayne-Westland."

Thompson suggested that an anonymous letter mailed to residents on Friday may have inadvertently boosted Timmons' campaign. The unsigned letter alerted residents to a board of education policy which bans board members from having both a direct and indirect financial interest in contracts signed by the board.

The letter hinted that Timmons might have to frequently abstain from voting on issues relating to the Livonia Education Association, both because of his past activity with the teachers union and because his wife is now a member.

The letter implied that voters might be wasting their vote in vot-

'No new Robin Hoods' in school aid bill

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Robin Hood's loot wasn't any less and suburban school districts can breathe a short sigh of relief.

The state House of Representatives Tuesday passed a $3 billion school aid bill that still "recaptures" $72 million in categorical aid from wealthier districts, the same as the current year. As proposed last winter, the recapture would have been $100 million.

"There were no new Robin Hoods - no additional Robin Hoods for the first time in six years." said Rick Simonson, lobbyist for Oakland County schools. He summed up the attitude of out-of-formula districts (those which get no general state aid but have seen their categorical aid chipped away).

"We couldn't be happier with retention of FICA (Social Security paymenta)," said Simonson, interviewed in the lobby outside the House chamber.

Bill approved

Representatives voted 94-11 with four absent to approve a different Version of the Senate-passed bill.

As usual, the differences will have to be ironed out in a conference committee of three senators and three representatives. It's the panel that really writes Michigan's public school aid bill.

The 11 nay votes also tell who gets hit hardest by the existing Robin Hood-provisions: Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, Barbara Dobb, R-Union Lake, Jan Dolan, R-Farmington Hills, John Jamian, R-Bloomfield Township, and Gordon Sparks, B-Troy, from the Observer & Eccentric area.

Other negative votes came from Warren (2), St. Clair Shores, Grand Blac, Traverse City and West Branoh.

Missing the roll call was John Bennett, D.Redford

Gov. John Engler had sought to take away all state Social Security and retirement payments, preferring to put the money in the general aid pot "so school districts can spend it as they see fit.'

Thus, the House version, like the Senate's, was another defeat for Engler and a bipartisan group who want to narrow drastically the spending gap between the poorest ($2,500) and richest (nearly $9,000) districts.

Adult ed

ternoon on the relatively minor issue of funding adult education. Simonson was pleased with the result.

Rep. William Keith, D.Garden City, won 60-42 approval of his amendment to continue emphasizing adult ed funding on enrollment and attendance at the first two classes.

The 'appropriations subcommittee had sought to shift payments to the basis of "outcomes," Keith's restoration of the status quo was denounced by one of his closest political friends, Rep. James O'Neill, D-Saginaw. O'Neill said "unethical and unprofessional" administrators sign up anyone they can just to get state money.

Backing Keith was Rep. Wilfred Webb, D-Hazel Park, a retired school administrator, who called adult ed "one of our greatest successes in education," particularly benefitting dropouts and single par-

Geake: Skills bill to help workers compete

State Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, said his bill codifying the Michigan Opportunity and Skills Training (MOST) program will ensure its proper administration in future generations.

The bill also will enable Michigan residents to develop the skills needed to compete in today's labor market, said Geake whose 6th District includes Redford, Livonia, Plymouth and Canton.

The bill passed the Senate on June 3. ·

"The MOST program will provide chances for a brighter future for all of Michigan's residents by assisting them in continued education, job searches and community service," said Geake, who said he was able to incorporate into the bill several provisons from Gov. En-

gler's welfare reform address offered the day before. Under the bill, the MOST pro? gram would be mandatory for all. persons receiving Aid to Familias. with Dependent Children, and State Family Assistance. Women would be required to participate up until their third trimester of pregnancy and to resume participation 90 days after having given birth.

In addition to the services offered' for the job-ready in the MOST program, additional public service training and job programs will be created.

For those not in an education program or who fail to find work after 90 days, they will report for work every day in the existing Communi-Ay Work Exprience program, which includes:

Auto insurance compromise fails in state House

By TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

House Speaker Lewis Dodak's battle lines held Tuesday as the Democratic chief refused again to take up a reform bill to cut auto insurance rates and benefits.

His Republican rival, minority 'leader Paul Hillegonds of Holland, denounced the Democratic-led House as "a lame duck" after losing a 54-50 bid to take up a compromise reform bill, two votes short of a ma;... jority. Hillegonds said Democrats are leaving the job to "interest groups," adding, "Paralysis has become ingrained in the legislative.

process,' Meanwhile, AAA of Michigan, the state's largest auto insurer-filedliterally a truckload of petitions asking a referendum on its plan to. cut costs far more than the compromise plan.

AAA vice president Bill Cilluffo, a one-time aide to Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, had announced he would file the petitions at 10 a.m. but held off until late afternoon to give the House one more-chance to act.

AAA needs 205,000 signatures for a ballot slot but filed an estimated 630,000. The collection effort was done through its members who receive Michigan Living magazine. If lawmakers fail to adopt AAA's plan within 40 days - which appears likely -- it will go on the bal lot.

Rep. James Kosteva, D. Canton, a co-sponsor of last week's compromise bill that had the backing of , Republicans and disaffected Democrats, backed down Tuesday and nail. I'm surprised Dodak didn't ac.*

supported Dodak's decision against dehating it.

·Supporting Dodak, were Kosteva and all area Democrats except the absent John Bennett of Redford.

Backing Hillegonds, were all area Republicans.

Michigan Insurance Federation president Doug Cruce, a former . state senator from Troy, said the Kosteva backed compromise was "a bad bill. We'd fight it tooth and cept it."

Chief sticking point, said Cruce, is that insurers want a $250,000 cap on "catastrophic, claims" such as closed-head injuries --- the same as. most other states. AAA's bill calls for a $250,000 capr Present law sets a $5 million cap, and Dodak wop't go any lower than . $3.million. Kosleva's group wanted to settle for a $1 million cap."

Kosteva thought his compromise was proper. "With (Tom) Hickner (D Bay City), we laid H-4 (House Democratic plan) and S-10 (Senate passed bill) aide by side and aplit the difference.

"The trial lawyers are disappointed" with restricting the number of lawsuits.

"The insurance companies are. unhappy about the loss ratio provision (required 70 cents payout for ever $1 of premiums for comprehent sive and collision insurance and 80 cents for personal injury)," Kosteva . .

Part of history: Carolyn-Forrest of Westland has recorded many firsts in her UAW tenure. This month she expects to become the union's highest-ranking female member.

Local woman to become UAW veep

BY WAYNE PEAL STAFF WRITER

Carolyn Forrest remembers her first job as a union officer back in the early 1960s and how she faced a six month probation because ---horrors! - she was s woman. "I think women today would blow up the union local over that." the Westland resident said with laugh. "There's been a lot of changes."

The 35-year UAW member faces some changes of her own, becoming one of the giant labor union's four vice presidents.

-Confirmation is expected at this month's union convention in San Diego, -

The convention has proved controversial. Some UAW members are staying in non-union hotels. But Forrest defends the union's decision.

"I'd be the first one screaming if we didn't make the effort," she said.

"But we did have to find hotels that were compatible, that could hold the delegates"

Forrest's skill as a negotiator -- ' and her commitment to civil rights - were praised by no less an expert. than former UAW president Douglas Fraser.

"One of great strengths is that she's not afraid to speak out and ... That, too, will change, Forrest not afraid to take an unpopular stand," Fraset said. "Those aren't just good things to have as a union vice president, they're good things to have as a person."

Forrest served as Fraser's administrative assistant from 1977-83. She subsequently-served current president Owen Bieber in the same capacity.

Though her specific duties as vice president aren't yet assigned, Forrest expects to be placed in charge of the UAW's aerospace wing. As such, she will oversee union activities at a variety of plants from Pennsylvania.

A vice presidency is reserved for a female UAW member by union polloy.

But while women are rapidly becoming a work force majority, they make up less than 15 percent of UAW membership.

said. Nationwide organizing efforts directed a government workers and other white collar types are expected to increase the number of female UAW members.

The change Forrest would most like to see - greater union power is less certain.

"We're living though a period of hostility to unions," Forrest said and, in this year of presidential politics, blame starts right at the top.

"George Bush has done nothing for working people in general, let alone union members," she said. Not surprisingly, a Bill Clinton southern California to eastern campaign button holds a place of honor on her office shelf - resting among photos of her three children and beloved granddaughter and in the shadow of a bust of JFK:

"I think support for him (Clin o ton) is growing," she said. Ross Perot's growing popularity, however, has Forrest and other union , leaders worried.

"He's telling people what they want to hear but where's his plan?" she said.

A Tennessee native, Porrest joined the UAW in 1957 after moving to Michigan with her family.

Two years later she became a local officer - receiving the now infamous six months probation ---then advanced to regional office before becoming the union's first female administrative assistant.

Forrest's top goal in her new post? Helping bring about economic change:

secure your tomorrow . . . TODAY!

Signs of time: Gowns and mortarboards are in fashion this time of year as colleges, high schools and nursery schools complete graduation ceremonies. This graduate, Frank Parker of Livonia, had an appropriate message on the back of his gown as he was participating in the adult education commencement held tast week by the Livonia school district at Churchill High...

Adult education seniors honored with ceremony

Churchill High School's James P. Carli Auditorium was the site of an adult education graduation ceremony for 81 adults receiving diplomas and 133 receiving GED certificates.

The Livonia school districts' adult education graduation ceremony had a unique group of "seniors" receiving diplomas last week in Churchill High School's James P. Carli Auditorium.

There were 81 adults, including several Westland residents, receiving their high school diplomas and 133 receiving their General Education Development certificates.

The Livonia district includes the northern section of Westland.

Among the GED recipients were sisters Tobi and Toni Desimore and the mother-daughter team of June Delgadillo and Olga Paschke.

The oldest graduates were Olga Paschke, 63, oldest GED graduate, and Ray Thibodeau, 65, oldest high school graduate.

Academic excellence awards went to Cheryl Anulare, Christopher Beadles, Charise Koch, Sarah Murphy, and Raymond Thibodeau.

Shane Werhlinger and Daniel Kazaleh received Schoolcraft Trustee scholarships while Grace Vondra, Heather Jackson and Amy Collier received Detroit College of Business scholarships.

Sue Matkin of Virginia Farrell Beauty School presented the cosmetology graduates and Leonora Arroyo presented those who passed their boards for emergency medical technician.

Entertainment was provided by the Churchill Wind Ensemble directed by Brooke Barnes. Soloist was Ronee Carriere of the CAPA program.

Guest speaker was Dennis Dresser, president of GEL Inc. on Stark Road in Livonia. James Newman, principal of Bentley Center, was master of ceremonies and the ceremony was coordinated by Cliff Laho of the district's community education department.

On hand to meet graduates were state Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, Livonia school board president Richard McKnight, school trustees Mariorie Roach, Pat Tancil, Jim Waters, Superintendent Joseph Marinelli, and community education director Jack Kirk-

More than 800 people attended the ceremonies.

Thad Pearl

"I'm glad to be at Oakbrook Common"

Thad Pearl wanted to be in control of his own future---so he moved to Oakbrook Common.

"I know, if I ever need added assistance or skilled nursing, someone is nearby," he says. "This is very important to me because I want to keep the burden of my possible future health care needs from falling on my children."

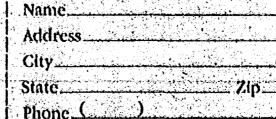

Thad has found that "companionship, and the chance to make new friends are added benefits." Also, he smiles, are Oakbrook Common's "pleasant surroundings and friendly staff."

"Many of my friends also have moved to Oakbrook Common," remarks Thad. "That's because everything here is so good. I'm glad to be here."

Bankes: Welfare reform to strengthen families

Goy, John Engler's welfare reform plan will strengthen families by changing the nature of the state's welfare system, said state Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia.

Responding to the governor's June 2 televised address in which he introduced a 21-point plan to restructure the state's welfare system, Bankes said Engler's proposals will change welfare from a hand-a out to a helping hand.

"The governor's plan encourages" employment and education; and targets support to preserve families, . not punish them. His new 'social contract, will encourage independence and self-reliance, and build self-esteem. This is a plan to break the cycle of dependency.

"I agree with the governor that, change is the only cure to the cynicism and helplessness that grip somany families trapped in poverty

'The governor's plan encourages employment and education, and targets support to preserve families, not punish them.

Engler's proposals will require state income tax refunds be garnmost adults receiving Aid to Famiished lies with Dependent Children to Bankes said-the governor also is work, attend school, or do volunteer proposing a statewide expansion of the pilot program called Families First, a Department of Social Services program to preserve families and keep children out of foster care.

The community-driven, that children be covered under an . service delivery initiative targets absent parent's health insurance, blighted neighborhoods by combining welfare, education, day care,

Bankes also said that 10 of the governor's 21 proposed initiatives will requrie waivers from the federal government. Such waivers will permit welfare parents who work to keep substantially more of their earnings without penalty and, in certain situations, require minor parents on assistance to return to their parental home when it is in their best interest

"Over the past 20 years, Michigan's welfare system has eroded the: self-esteem of needy indivdiuals, a situation that must be turned around," said Bankes.

"We can't overemphasize the importance of education in breaking the bonds of poverty and ending the cycle of dependency. The positive incentives of the governor's plan will help us accomplish great change, and I look forward to helping him bring about these much-

"needed changes."

Article focuses on pollution prevention

Common sense is merging with environmental management efforts. The result is pollution prevention, a buzzword on the lips of industry environmental managers and government policymakers.

Simply put, pollution prevention means not making pollution in the first place, instead of making it and then cleaning it up. Industries are embracing this common-sense_approach by rethinking how products are made and used.

Regulators are incorporating pollution prevention strategies into environmental policies. A critical review published in the May issue of 1 the "Journal of the Air & Waste" Management Association" provides an overview of material available on pollution prevention.

The article, written by researchers at the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Risk Reduction Laboratory in Cincinnati, defines pollution prevention, discusses its benefits and barriers, and outlines industry programs as well as initiatives by federal, state and local governments.

Information is useful to industry managers who are implementing strategies to prevent pollution or who already have such strategies in place.

The article is also of interest to policymakers at local, state and federal levels, as well as educators, consultants and public interest group members.

What's wrong with the old way? Many times, when an environmental problem is "cleaned up," it's actually just moved to another part of the environment.

A closer look shows that these traditional "end-of-pipe" controls may not be appropriate for many environmental problems for several reasons:-----

• They may not be effective. An effort may have already been made to solve a pollution problem, but available controls are just not effective enough. Case in point: emission controls on cars have not solved the ground-level ozone problem.

• They may not be feasible. There may be no way to put a control on a pollution source. Case in point: many products may contrib- regulations will include pollution ute to indoor air pollution. It's more prevention practices as part of their indoor air pollution sources than it 'is to clean indoor air.

• They may be expensive. In many cases, it's cheaper to prevent pollution than to clean it up. Case in pointi the costs and liability issues of using, generating or cleaning up hazardous wastes tend to outweigh the costs of finding less hazardous alternatives or modifying processes so less hazardous waste is created.

Solving problems

Why pollution prevention is pref: erable cuts across air, water and land pollution issues. It solves problems before they occur, and can be practiced by industries, schools, businesses and everyone in their homes

Often, it makes economic sense because it can lead to improved production processes, afford the use of less-expensive and safer materials during production and lessen the liability issues associated with using, generating or disposing of hazardous wastes.

Pollution prevention helps to safeguard the environment, the surrounding community and workers. It requires changes in production and consumption practices that must become second nature to all. It must be factored into business decisions, just as economic issues are given consideration.

Areas where pollution prevention strategies can be incorporated are: product design, process design, plant configuration, information and control systems, human resources, research and development, suppliers' role and relationship and organization.

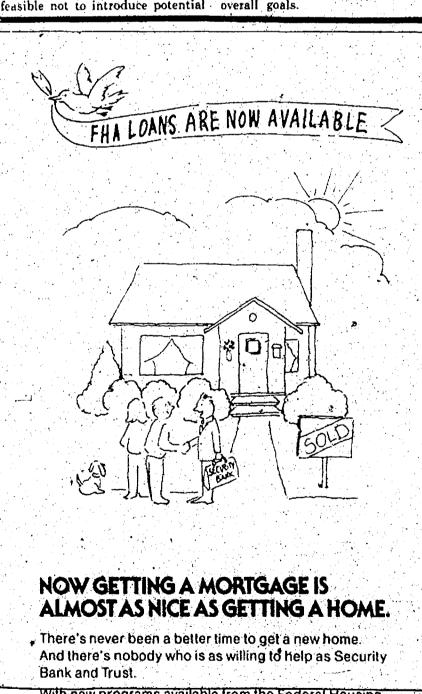

The Pollution Prevention Act of 1990 states that "pollution should be-prevented or reduced at the source whenever feasible; pollution that cannot be prevented should be recycled in an environmentally safe manner, whenever feasible; and disposal or other release into the environment should be employed only as a last resort and should be conducted in an environmentally safe manner."

Bankes: Welfare reform to strengthen families

'Gov. John Engler's welfare reform plan will strengthen families by changing the nature of the state's welfare system, said state Rep. Lyn. Bankes, R-Livonia.

Responding_to the governor's June 2 televised address in which he introduced a 21-point plan to restructure the state's welfare system, Bankes said Engler's proposals will change welfare from a handout to a helping hand.

"The governor's plan encourages employment and education, and targets; support to preserve families. not punish them. His new 'social contract, will encourage independence and self-reliance, and build self esteem. This is a plan to break the cycle of dependency.

"I agree with the governor that change is the only cure to the cynirism and helplessness that grip somany families trapped in poverty Engler's proposals will require most adults receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Chiklren to work, attend school, or do volunteer work for at least 20 hours a week in exchange for their monthly assistance checks."

Reform initiatives also call for a crackdown on fathers who have defaulted on court ordered child support payments. Under the governor's plan, the state would require that children be covered under an absent parent's health insurance, an errant parent's employer notified state income tax refunds be garnished

Bankes said the governor also is proposing a statewide expansion of. the pilot program called Families First, a Department of Social Services program to preserve families and keep children out of foster care.

The neighborhood-based Communities First pilot program, targeted to four state sites; will be expanded. The community-driven, service-delivery initiative targets blighted neighborhoods by combining welfare, education, day care, Bankes also said that 10 of the governor's 21 proposed initiatives will require waivers from the federal government. Such waivers will permit welfare parents who work to keep substantially more of their earnings without penalty and, in certain situations, require minor parents on assistance to return to their parental home when it is in their best interest.

"Over the past 20 years, Michigan's welfare system has eroded the self-esteem of needy indivdiuals, a situation that must be turned around," said Bankes. "We can't overemphasize the importance of education in breaking the bonds of poverty and ending the cycle of dependency. The positive incentives of the governor's plan will help us accomplish great change, and I look forward to helping him bring about these much-needed changes."

Article focuses on pollution prevention environmental management efforts, The result is pollution prevention, a. buzzword on the lips of industry environmental managers and government policymakers.

Simply put, pollution prevention means not making pollution in the first place, instead of making it and then cleaning it up. Industries are embracing this common sense approach by rethinking how products are made and used.

Regulators are incorporating pollution prevention strategies into environmental policies. A critical review published in the May issue of the "Journal of the Air & Waste Management Association" provides an overview of material available on pollution prevention.

The article, written by researchers at the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Risk Reduction Laboratory in Cincinnati, defines pollution prevention, discusses its benefits and barriers, and outlines industry programs as well as initiatives by federal, state and local governments.

Information is useful to industry managers who are implementing strategies to prevent pollution or who already have such strategies in place.

The article is also of interest to policymakers at local, state and federal levels, as well as educators, consultants and public interest group members.

What's wrong with the old way? Many times, when an environmental problem is "cleaned up," it's actually just moved to another part of the environment.

A closer look shows that these traditional "end-of-pipe" controls may not be appropriate for many environmental problems for several reasons:

• They may not be effective. An effort may have already been made to solve a pollution problem, but available controls are just not effective enough. Case in point: emission controls on cars have not solved the ground-level ozone problem.

• They may not be feasible. There may be no way to put a control on a pollution source. Case in point: many products may contrib-

Common sense is merging with indoor sir pollution sources than it is to clean indoor air.

• They may be expensive. In many cases, it's cheaper to prevent pollution than to clean it up. Case in point: the costs and liability issues of using, generating or cleaning. up hazardous wastes tend to outweigh the costs of finding less hazardous alternatives or modifying processes so less hazardous waste is created.

Solving problems

Why pollution prevention is preferable cuts across air, water and land pollution issues. It solves problems before they occur, and can be practiced by industries, schools, businesses and everyone in their homes.

Often, it makes economic sense because it can lead to improved production processes, afford the use of less-expensive and safer materials during production and lessen the liability issues associated with using, generating or disposing of hazardous wastes.

Pollution prevention helps to safeguard the environment, the surrounding community and workers. It requires changes in production and consumption practices that must become second nature to all. It must be factored into business decisions, just as economic issues are given consideration.

Areas where pollution prevention strategies can be incorporated are: product design, process design, plant configuration, information and control systems, human resources, research and development, suppliers' role and relationship and organization.

The Pollution Prevention Act of 1990 states that "pollution should be prevented or reduced at the source whenever feasible; pollution that cannot be prevented should be recycled in an environmentally safe manner, whenever feasible; and disposal or other release into the environment should be employed only as a last resort and should be conducted in an environmentally safe manner.'

Undoubtedly, new environmental regulations will include pollution ute to indoor air pollution. It's more prevention practices as part of their feasible not to introduce potential overall goals here were plenty of winners, losers and messages in the Wayne-Westland and Livonia school board elections Monday. In the Wayne-Westland district, effectively communicating a positive message to voters was the key to success for Francis (Bud) Winter and Richard LeBlanc.

Message sent Voters hoping for board peace

14A(W)

They demonstrated during the campaign that they don't like the ongoing squabbles of board members and direction of the district. Rather than indulge in the whos and whys of past battles, the winners kept their eyes on the future. and what can be done to solve problems.

Winter is the beneficiary of having plenty of name recognition and contacts through his many years as principal at Wayne Memorial High School. Unlike defeated incumbent Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek, Winter had plenty of supporters and few enemies through his numerous contacts with school employees, former students and parents at the school.

LeBlanc's victory was the result of a lot of energy spent campaining door to door in neighborhoods and getting his message across. Like Winter, he didn't want to be part of the board squabbles; instead he directed his message to moving ahead.

The campaign didn't end soon enough. There was plenty of bad political blood in the battle to prevent Kozorosky-Wiacek, current board president, from being re-elected. A bitter letter from Dennis O'Neill, school superintendent who had his requested retirement approved in October, effective this Aug. 31, was just the tip of the iceberg. He felt she was hypocritical in the areas of hiring relatives for school positions and failing to take part in board in-service training programs.

Kozorosky-Wiacek disagreed, but she was put on the defensive and that clearly hurt her in the last weeks of the campaign.

In the Livonia district, which includes the northern section of Westland, there were plenty of last-minute fireworks in the campaign that ended with Kenneth Timmons and Sue Thompson the winners. The big loser was board member Marjorie Roach, who was seeking her third four-year term.

Timmons was criticized for being a former Livonia district teacher and union officer and having his wife continue to serve on the faculty. While Timmons' foes saw an ethical conflict of interest in his being on the board, other voters disagreed. Like Winter in the Wayne-Westland district, Timmons apparently used his faculty connections to his advantage.

The bottom line is that the voters in both districts elected new faces to the boards of education. In both districts, the winners were not part of any political slate. Hopefully, the problems in the Wayne-Westland and Liconiardis tricts will be clearly identified and solutions developed when the winners take office in early July.

Ensure right to abort, educate he Michigan Legislature finds itself in anenviable position: It has the opportunity to ensure not only the rights of women: but to advance education for our young people to decrease the need for abortion

The U.S. Supreme Court shortly will announce its decision in the Pennsylvania case that many agree will end the current federal protection accorded to abortion under the hisresult of lack of information.

Michigan's Legislature should adopt a comprehensive package that addresses all thoses concerns and, in the wake, perhaps even please those who vehemently oppose abortion.

The package should provide for: Access to abortion for all women. Let women chose what to do with their bodies. If abortion is banned in Michigan, rich women still have the option of traveling to other states for a safe, legal abortion while poor women must choose between a back alley clinic or an unwanted pregnancy. • An updated adoption law that would make it easier for couples and singles to adopt. Children also would benefit from laws to trim red tape. Having difficult adoption procedures and a ban on abortion would force a glut of children into foster homes without showing a true regard for those new lives. • Mandatory sex education in the schools. It's not a popular topic, but young people need correct information to keep them free not only from unwanted pregnancies but also from sexually transmitted diseases. Discussing sex is the role of the family, but statistics for teen pregnancy, abortion and sexual disease show the family isn't doing what is necessary to protect children. The Legislature before its July 2 summer recess has time to plot out a comprehensive plan. Legislators are sadly mistaken if they believe pro-choice advocates will take the "old ways" lightly - or without a fight.

toric 1972 Roe v. Wade. While the Supreme Court probably won't make abortion illegal nationwide, the court will likely let the question of abortion right's rest with the states.

* In Michigan, that's not such a hot proposition, since Gov. John Engler and the majority of the Legislature are openly pro-life. Without Roe v. Wade, the state reverts to its restrictive abortion law that allows abortions only in the event of the mother's health, rape or incest.

As it stands now, the state Supreme Court on Tuesday upheld Michigan's ban on Medicaid abortions for the poor, further supressing what has already become the underclass in a growing de facto caste system.

Women should have the right to self-determination, and that includes family planning. Without that control, there is no control of relationships, careers and life plans. Deficit breaks down the system he careerists who inhabit the American political system have driven it to the edge of breakdown by:

• Hypocrisy: substitution and manipulation of symbols (the 10-second sound bite, the simplistic proposal, the trumped-up press release) for substance. The result is:

• Incompetence: Our government simply does not get the job done any-more. Therefore, the system requires for maintenance in office: • More hypocrisy.

The leading and most dangerous example of this vicious cycle is our federal deficit, now standing at $4 trillion and growing at the rate of $400 billion per year.

Annually for the past 10 years, the president and Congress have declined either seriously to cut spending or to increase taxes. Therefore, the deficit has grown. Therefore, the president and Congress have resorted to finger pointing and sham suggestions about fixing the deficit, both knowing full well that neither will work.

A small, bipartisan group of U.S. senators, including Michigan's Carl Levin, has proposed a sensible and imaginative way out of this deadlock.

On the "Nightline" show last week and in a resolution to be introduced into the Senate, the group urged all three presidential candidates to discuss in detail their plans for reducing the deficit in a novel prime-time TV format:

• Length and focus. The idea is to have the discussion entirely on the deficit for at least an hour. "This is a serious and complicated subject," said Levin, "and we need to go beyond simplistic non-proposals."

• Moderator. This year, two respected and smart members of the Budget Committee ---Republican Warren Rudman and Democrat Kent Conrad - are retiring from the Senate. They would be the questioners, "These guys ... know too much to let the candidates get by with a sound bite," according to Levin. "They'd pin 'ein down.'' Bipartisan risk. Republicans are scared of raising taxes; Democrats are frightened of cutz. ting entitlements. But "the national interest in controlling the deficit takes precedence over partisan advantage," according to the forthcoming resolution.

• Political realism. "The only way a presidential candidate can get a mandate to do something serious about the deficit is to discuss it in a detailed way during the campaign," said Levin. "Detailed proposals during the campaign are the precondition for presidential leadership."

Sounds too good to be true. Any chance of this actually taking place?

Levin is cautiously optimistic. He and his colleagues intend to force a vote on their resolution as soon as possible.

The reaction of the candidates gives slight grounds for optimism. Ross Perot attacked Congress for inaction, but didn't say "no." Bill Clinton said yes. The president talked about. the balanced budget amendment to the Constitution, but hasn't turned down the idea.

What makes this suggestion so sensible is that it helps remedy what Levin calls the "tacit truce" between all the candidates not to get into detail about the budget deficit. The text of the resolution makes the point well: "The candidates, Congress and the media have ignored or trivialized the issue."

True. Maybe in this season of discontent, some sanity will prevail. I certainly hope so.

Upset about wetland am a 10th-grade student at Churchill High and am currently taking biology. On Friday, May 1, my biology class planned to set up some bird nets to trap and band birds for study. We had hoped to set up at a wetland across from our school, and to the left of the Livonia Career Center.

We were very disappointed to find that the wetland had been cleared. Previous attempts by businesses to develop the area had failed because of their inability to acquire a permit. Our biology teacher promised to call the DNR to find out who had acquired the permit to destroy the wetland and how the permit was obtained.

Because of the DNR's lack of staff, which is partially due to cuts by Governor John Engler, our teacher was not able to contact anyone. He did find out, however, that the part of the wetland that was destroyed is no longer considered a wetland by the DNR. Whatever the DNR calls the area, it was still a valuable piece of land to the students at Churchill. In previous years, CHS students learned a great deal about wetlands and biology in general by studying this area.

My biology class and future classes must now find another site to study. Since the nets must be checked every hour, a new site near enough to the school may be difficult to locate. If we do find a new site, who knows, it may also be destroyed by developers as well. There is no doubt that the opportunity to gain valuable knowledge has been destroyed by the loss of the wetlands. SAFE is still needed

As I have read the headlines and feature stories in the Observer and the Free Press over the last several weeks, am struck by the tragedy and traumaaffecting young people across our community and other suburban communities just like ours.

Could some of this tragedy and trauma have been prevented? I have to believe the answer is yes, and I also believe there is no way to put a price tag on that prevention. The safety and well-being of my children certainly have no price tag.

Therefore, I want to take issue with comments that have appeared in the Observer about the Student Assistance Family Education (SAFE) program that the Livonia Board of Education has decided to fully fund for a second year. I understand that this program has primarily been funded from the consolidation of existing elementary school student support programs. It does not represent a new or additional $1.5 million. Indeed, it represents a more efficient and effective way to deliver student support services.

I believe this is an extremely valuable program that supports and promotes the well-being and positive development of all children so they can be successful students. Furthermore, it provides additional support to students whose circumstances leave them especially vulnerable to faulure. This includes children with "sordid childhoods" (like Leslie Williams), children at risk for victimization, and those who have already been victimized (like the 13-year-old Livonia boy). The numbers of these children are shocking, the realities of our changing society are shocking.

I appreciate that the Livonia schools are educating the "whole" child and are concerned about every child's social, emotional and physical development. All of these aspects of development, in addition to cognition, influence a child's ability to learn and benefit from the educational experience.

Today's complex society demands more than reading and math skills (or instrumental music skills) to achieve personal and professional success. Susan Kinkead,

Districts learn to check employee credentials

QUESTION: As a parent, this whole thing with Leslie Williams having been released from prison worries me. I have three children in school. How do I know that a teacher, custodian, bus driver, volunteer or parent aide doesn't have a record? Do school districts know if their employees have a record?

ANSWER: There are no Leslie Williamses (that is, the Williams with his criminal record) walking the halls of any school district in this area, I assure you. May there be one out there who has "acted out" or not yet been caught? Possibly. Just as there may be a minister, lawyer or doctor with a warped mind.

I would not become too alarmed about teachers in this readership area. Most, if not all, school personnel offices have potential teachers sign a release statement authorizing the state police to forward all information about their background. Thorough checks are also made by most school districts on non-certified or called classified employees (bus drivers, teacher aides, custodial, etc.)

However, in Dallas a recent background check by the Dallas Morning News showed that 85 employees classified as non-teachers had criminal records, one for murder. Some teachers' aides were convicted felons or on probation for committing a felony. Why does this occur?

The potential employees lie on their application. Some school districts rely on the person's resume and don't check to see if it is true. The in-touch districts will check on past employment. If a candidate for a classified job lies on the application or leaves out a former employers, a red flag goes up. If a district doesn't check this deliberate error of omission, that school district is asking for big trouble.

Elaine Miller of Credential Checks of May there be one out there who has "acted out" or not yet been caught? Possibly. Just as there may be a minister, lawyer or doctor with a warped mind. Farmington Hills said, "School districts in this area are doing a fine job of checking out potential teacher candidates.

"There are certain applications that should be red flagged. For instance, if an employee, i.e. bus driver, custodian, leaves out one of their former places of employment, there usually is a reason. And the reason doesn't favor the candidate."

Mistakes are made. I was on the hiring committee for a purchasing director in one school district in the 1960s. He had an official diploma for his business degree from Michigan State University — we thought: His salary was very modest (in those precontract days), but he was leading the high life with a wife who didn't work "who came from money," he said. He was taking kickbacks from vendors and had forged the MSU degree. We hadn't completed a background check; we didn't call MSU. We looked stunid. In today's world, with lawsuits as common as your morning coffee, background checks are mandatory first to protect the children and second to protect the budget. Years ago, I remember a male substitute teacher who was making sexual moves on girls and boys. Confronted, he disappeared — left the state. There had been no background check on him. We were lucky.

A greater awareness exists today, much greater than in the good ol' days, that warped, sick minds are among us. Possibly it is the times; possibly the media have made us more aware.

With telephone conference calling, fax machines and our knowledge there is no excuse for a school employee who could endanger a child ever to be hired.

Stevenson jobs open

. Vacancies for varsity coaches at Livonia Stevenson High have now grown to four.

On the heels of hockey coach Paul Ferguson's resignation earlier this spring comes news that girls basketball and softball coach Chuck Hebestreit recently resigned, along with baseball coach Richard DeVries, who is retiring.

"Chuck basically coached three sports (also boys basketball) and then two and didn't feel he could perform his duties with the same vigor as he had in the past, plus his family commitment and situation became more complex," Stevenson athletic director Roger Frayer said, "Chuck came in and thanked me for the opportunity to coach. He did a good job, all in all."

Hebestreit posted a 52-73 record in six seasons as girls basketball coach, including a 14-7 mark (his best) last season. (In three softball seasons, his Spartans went 18-37 overall.)

JV.coach Wayne Henry, whom Hebestreit succeeded in 1986, appears to be the leading candidate for the girls basketball job.

"We're waiting to post the other jobs (including JV soccer) if we have those sports next year," said Frayer, in lieu of budget cuts recommended by the school district

DeVries; meanwhile, resigned after four seasons (24-57 record). He formerly coached baseball at Bentley and Churchill Highs

Tigers draft Kapla

The Detroit Tigers drafted Redford Catholic Central ace Scott Kapla on the 42nd round of the Major League Baseball Draft for amateur players.

The All-Observer and All-Catholic pitcher, infielder and outfielder has already signed with Eastern Michigan University.

"I'm open to discussions, but chances are I'll be at Eastern," Kapla said after Saturday's 5 4 regional semifinal loss to Westland John Glenn.

Major League draft rights have changed. As the rule stands now, the Tigers can retain the rights to Kapla for five years.

Scott is a good kid and comes from a good family," Tiger scout Mark Monahan said. "I've been_ watching him since his sophomore year and he's progressed and we expect him to progress even more. I think he'll get even bigger and stronger. Scott has all the tools."

Glenn peaking at right time

The Rockets are making their first final four appearance since 1986 when they lost to Brother Rice, 1-0.

was mid-May and Westland John Glenn baseball coach Norm Hoenes admitted, "I was ready to put the bats and balls away.'

The struggling Rockets looked anything but a state Class A semifinalist at the time, but Hoenes, now in his 27th season as varsity coach, watched in amazement, only a matter of weeks, as his club was transformed into a state. contender.

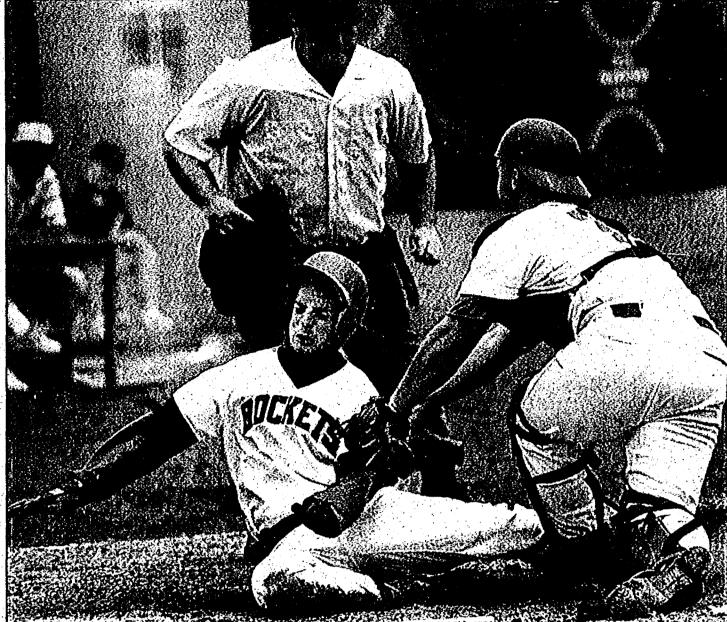

Glenn's 17-7 record (after a 2-6 start) pales in comparison to Friday's semifinal opponent Lapeer West (36-4), or the other two final four qualifiers - Birmingham Brother Rice (28-10) and Jenison (34-5).

But the Rockets may well be the most dangerous after knocking off No. 1 Redford Catholic Central, 5-4, in last weekend's regional semifinal.

"I always feel confident if we play good defense and Aaron (Scheffer) pitches well," Hoenes said. "I feel that if we can beat CC, we can beat anybody.'

Scheffer, a junior right-hander, has come on after an 0-3 start, winning six of his last seven decisions. Number two starter Chris Kirkey, a senior righthander with a 6-0 mark, has been consistent all season.

"Our team ERA (earned run average) is around 2.00 and our team batting average is ,298, that's usually good enough," Hoenes said. "And now our fielding percentage (as a team) is up to .908, but it was in the 70s for quite awhile." That's when Hoenes made some late season defensive and lineup adjustments, moving senior Greg Tamas back to his original position at third, and bringing up sophomore Derek Besco up from the JV squad to fill in for the injured Bobby Hayes at short.

Livonians lead Typhoons

Seven Livonia players helped the Van Buren Typhoons, an under-13 boys soccer team, win the Westlake, Ohio Invitational (May 23-25).

The Livonians include Scott Babinski, Jim Bullock, Eric O'Neil, Mike Minicilli, Jason Roy, Chris King and Matt Smith.

Rounding out the squad, coached by Dale Travis, include: Seth Heinrich, Andres Lopez and Mike Elsner, all of Plymouth; Jason Bennett, Andy Neal, Jason Viers and Zach Wilkinson, all of Bellville; and Travis Tate of Romulus.

Daly early qualifier

* Daly Restaurant of Livonia became an early qualifier for this year's Women's Class A National Fast Pitch Softball Championship (Aug. 13-16 in Salem, Ore.) after a second place finish in the Snyder-Oliver National Qualifier last weekend in Chattanooga, 👘 Tenn.

Daly came away with a 5-1 record against second and third place finishers in last year's Class B Nationals.

Coach Bob Thompson's squad blanked five opponents including the Eagles of host Chattanooga (2-0 and 4-0), SOMA of Birmingham, Ala. (2-0 and 4-0) and the Nashville Patriots (17-0). Daly's only loss was to tourney champ Redan, Ga., 4-3.

"That was a tough opener," Hoenes recalls. "Our season could have been over on May the 14th."

Glenn added a predistrict win over Plymouth Canton (8-1), followed by district victories over host Ann Arbor

Thurston grad Bradley puts Lapeer West on state map

BY BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER

Coaches Tim Bradley of Lapeer West and Norm Hoenes of Westland John Glenn will have a reunion of sorts Friday in the state Class A baseball semifinals at Nichols Field in Battle Creek. It's been 23 years since the two met on the diamond - but neither can recall the meetings.

Bradley was a player at Redford Thurston High in 1969 (under coach Emil Majeski) while a young Hoenes was in his fourth year as coach of the Rockets. That's when both schools were members of the Northwest Suburban League.

and if they had a state tournament we might have done pretty well," said ranked Redford Catholic Central in last Bradley, now in his 12th season as head coach of the Panthers, who are making their first state semifinal appearance.

"My first good team was about '71 with J.P. McBride and that crew," recalls Hoenes, whose team is making their second semifinal appearance, "We were about 31-10 and made it into the regionals. I can't remember much about the '69 season."

Through scouting reports, Bradley and Hoenes should get a little more familiar with each other.

games, including a 5-4 win over No. 1-Saturday's regional at Temperance-Bedford.

The Rockets (17-7) struggled early in the season, while Lapeer, the highest ranked team still alive in Class A (No. 3), has been on a roll since opening day, racking up an impressive 36-4 mark.

"This is the farthest a Lapeer team has gone and naturally the school and our community are excited," said Bradley, whose parents live in Livonia. "We're'looking forward to Friday. If we play the way we're canable of, it's going Glenn has become red-hot at the to take an excellent team to beat us.

Lapeer West captured the Flint Metro League championship with a 15-1 record and reached the semifinals of the 32-school Greater Flint Tournament, losing to Swartz Creek before avenging that defeat with a 1-0 win in the districts.

In state tournament play, West has come from behind to win four of six games. Last weckend, Lapeer West ousted host Port Huron (7-3) and Howell (10-5) to win the regional.

OUTDOORS

WILDLIFE ARTISTS HONORED

Mike Todoroff of Westland, and John MacDermaid of West Bloomfield, are among the top 10, winners in Michigan's annual trout/salmon and waterfowl stamp design contests. The top 10 winning designs will be on display at selected spots throughout the state this summer.

The design contests are sponsored by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. Judging took place during the Bluebird Festival. and Wildlife Art Show, March 7, in Jackson.

Grand Rapids artist John La-Beau won the trout/salmon stamp design contest for his painting of a grayling. Clark Sullivan, of Swartz Creek, won the waterfowl stamp design contest for his painting of a pair of hooded mergansers.

More than 300,000 trout/salmon stamps and 60,000 waterfowl stamps are expected to be purchased by anglers and hunters this year.

The artwork will be on display through Saturday at the Marshland Gallery in Grand Rapids; July 1-18 at Chandlers Gallery in Peteskey; July 24-Aug. 10 at Grand River Gallery in Grand Haven; Aug. 12-17 at the Mint Festival in St. John's; and Sept. 12-13 at Pte. Mouillee State Game Area near Rockwood during the Duck Hunter's Tournament.

I FUND-RAISER SUCCESS

Upwards of $3,000 was raised for the Mike Utley Foundation through the Mike Utley Fundraiser sporting clays shoot, held recently at the Hunter's Ridge Hunt Club.

"It was excellent," said Hunter's Ridge owner Dave Fischer. "We had 216 shooters. That probably makes it the fifth-largest shoot in the U.S. as far as the number of shooters."

Eight of the Detroit Lions line. men, including Lomas Brown, were on hand to sign autographs and sev eral autographed Red Wing hockey sticks were auctioned off.

Mike Utley, a former offensive lineman for the Detroit Lions, was severely injured last fall in a game against the Los Angeles Rams and was forced to retire. His neck injury has caused permanent paralysis from the chest down. The Mike Utley Foundation was established in December of 1991 to assist research offorts for finding a cure for paralysis.

Hunters' Ridge will host the Michigan U.S. Open Shoot, June 26-28. The course is open to the public 2 p.m. to dusk on Wednesdays and Fridays, and 9 a.m. to dusk Saturdays and Sundays, Reservations are required. Call 628-4868 to reserve a shoot or for more information.

E FEDERAL AID ARRIVES

Michigan was the top recipient in. Region 3 of federal aid for fish and wildlife restoration programs.

Secretary of the Interior Manuel Lujan announced that $353.4 million will be made available to state and conservation agencies across the nation to help finance fish and wildlife restoration programs. This distribution of federal aid funding. by the Department of the Interior's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service constitutes the final apportionment for fiscal year 1992. Of this total, the Service's North Central Region, Region 3, will receive $74.5 million.

Michigan will receive $6,228,209 of Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration Funds. Of that total, $5,391,209 will be used for wildlife restoration and $837,000 for hunter education.

Michigan will receive $7,785,024 of Federal Aid in Sport Fish Restoration Funds.

The revenues generated are from excise taxes paid by the hunting, fishing and boating public. They are collected by sporting goods_ manufacturers and credited to the Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration Fund (Pittman-Robertson) and the Sport Fish Restoration Account of the Aquatic Resources Trust Fund (Dingell Johnson/Wallop Breaux). The funds are then appropriated to the service to be distributed to the states as grants.

Distribution of the sport fish restoration funds is based on the landand water area and the number of fishing license holders in each state. Wildlife restoration funds are made available based on land area and the number of hunting license holders in each state. Distribution of the hunter education fund is based on the relative population of each state.

U-D MERCY SIGNS 3

Three All-Observer boys soccer players recently signed national letter-of-intents with the University of Detroit-Mercy. The list includes Dario Rauker (Livonia Churchill), Scott Wiggins (Livonia Stevenson) and John Truskowski (Plymouth Salem).

Rauker, who carries a 3.7 gradepoint average, was a member of the Vardar III under 19 Michigan State Youth Soccer Association championship squad, which defeated Metro Magic, 2-0, in the finals June 7 at Oakland University.

Wisconsin-bound Travis Roy (Stevenson) had a goal and assist in the win. Schoolcraft College-bound Dominic Vella (Churchill) had the other Vardar goal.

Both Roy and Vella also earned All-Observer honors.

Churchill junior Kal Kaliszewski turned in the shutout in goal. Other Vardar III members from Livonia include All-Area goalie Jeff Casser (Churchill), who was participating with the junior national team; and All-Area forward Mike Gentile (Churchill), who was out with an injury. (Wiggins, who helped Stevenson win the state Class A championship team, is a member of the Metro Magic squad.)

In the under-16 finals June 7 at OU, coach Paul Scicluna's Michigan Wolves defeated Vardar '75 by a 3-1 score.

Grieve sparked Wendy's offen. sively with two hits and five RBI.

Mike Coleman was the losing pitcher for Walter's, allowing seven runs in 21/3 innings. Lou McKaig finished the game and gave up the other five runs.

Hines Park sweeps

Hines Park Lincoln/Mércury is coming off a solid weekend, winning three games and improving its record to 4-1...

On Friday, Hines Park edged Wendy's, 8-7, thanks to a threerun homer from Keith Bozyk (Redford CC and Adrian College).

Jason McDonald (EMU) sparked Wendy's with a threerun homer.

On Sunday, Hines Park won the opener, 3-0, while dropping the second game 4-3.

In the first game, Brandon Endicotte suffered the loss for Caesars, going the distance and striking out three.

In the nightcap, Scott Rodgers (Plymouth Salem and Kent State) was the winning pitcher in relief of starter Scott Kennedy, the Toronto Blue Javs draftee out of Plymouth Canton High.

Delwal lacks offense

Delwal could only muster four hits Friday, losing to Caesars 9.2 at Ford Field.

Tony Falletich tossed the fourhitter for Caesars, striking out nine. Jim Solak paced Caesars offensively with four hits.

Derek Wirebaugh was the loser for Delwal, allowing eight runs in one inning. Brian Feldman came on in relief, giving up just one run.

COLLEGE SPORTS

SC coach bolsters men's cage roster

By C.J. RISAK STAFF WRITER

One, quality rarely associated with junior college basketball is experience.

For coaches, it's usually a constant rebuilding process, from year to year: It seemed it would be the same this fall for Schoolcraft College men's coach Dave Bogataj; after all, he was losing all but three players.

Gone were Scott Meredith, Tony Rumple, Jeff Wagner (all starters), Jermaine Burden, Chris Habitz and Shawn Harrell.

Bogataj has a solid core to rebuild around, including all-Eastern Conference selection Jarvis Murray and starting small forward/off-guard Gemal Ahmed (from Westland John Glenn).

And - surprise! - as it turns out, he won't exactly be without experience, despite the large number of losses.

The reason: Of the 10 players he has committed so far, seven graduated more than a year ago. Five were already attending college.

That should help, particularly around the end of the first semester. As Bogataj pointed out, these guys have already been exposed to college. They know what lifestyle adjustments are necessary to survive academically.

"This will be a mature team," noted Bogataj.

But maturity alone isn't a formula for success. And that isn't what Bogataj was really after. "All of these kids are versatile," he said. "All of them played more than one position in high school. They don't care who scores, they just want to win."

Recruiting formula

What Bogataj felt he needed to do in his recruiting was, first, "replace Scott Meredith," his 6-foot-8 do-everything forward. Then "we had to get point guards, we needed to improve our three-point shooting, and we wanted to get more athleticism at the (power forward, small forward, shooting guard) positions."

Last year's team was strong around the basket with Meredith and the 6-7 Murray, but lacked both a true point guard to feed the ball into them and a consistent three-point threat to relieve inside pressure. Also, with quickness and athleticism lacking at the guard positions, trying to apply defensive pressure was difficult.

Bogataj may have found solutions to many of those problems.

Five of his recruits are in the 6-4 to 6-7 range, and all, according to Bogataj, are solid athletes. Leading the pack is Mohammed Abdrabboh, a Dearborn Edsel Ford graduate who was a walk-on at University of Detroit-Mercy last season. With such a large number of new players coming in this season, Abdrabboh figured he would get more playing time at SC, so he transferred.

A small forward/off-guard who will have sophomore status. Abdrabboh "runs the court well and can shoot the three," said Bogataj.

Lots of potential

Another athletic-type joining the Ocelots is small forward Mark Donahue, a 6-41/2 leaper who graduated from Livonia Franklin in 1989. Then there's 6-5 Courtney Williamsonbey, a strong post-up player who also possesses a "nice 17-footer. He's quick and jumps well."

There's more along the same line. Steve Whitlow, a 1991 Redford Catholic Central graduate; is transferring from Michigan State to join the Ocelots. At 6-4, he will have freshman status. Said Bogataj: "He's a tough kid who can play the point, off-guard or small forward. He's another three-point shooter, and he's very versatile.

Frank McCray is the elder statesman among the newcomers. A 1988 Inkster graduate, his prep team nearly upset the Redford Bishop Borgess squad that eventually reached the state finals. McCray is another 6:4 off-guard/small forward who can "run, jump and is a good passer."

Then there's Brian Markowicz, a 6.7 true freshman who last season led Dearborn Crestwood in scoring. Markowicz has "excellent hands and is a great shooter" with threepoint range.

There are also three point-guards to distribute the ball to all these scoring threats. Richardo Mitchell is a true freshman from East Catholic; at 5-11, Bogataj described him as someone who "knows how to win. He does what has to be done to win," and he's a good defensive player."

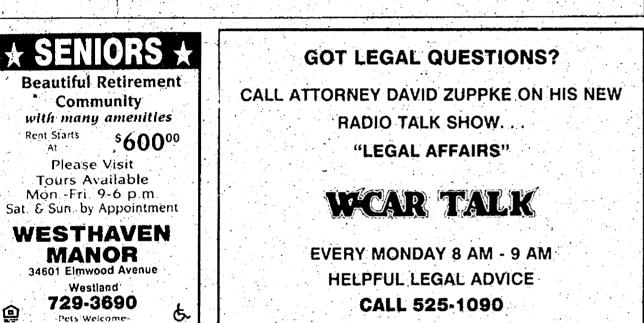

Deep and athletic

Two others who can play the point are older. Craig Bowdry is a 5-11 '91 graduate of Detroit Redford who was already attending SC; Vincent Turner came to SC from Detroit Henry Ford ('89) after spending two years in the Army.

"With Vincent and Craig being" older, that might give them a bit of an edge (as a starter)," said Bogataj. "But Ricky (Mitchell) comes from such a good program."

Bogataj's 10th recruit is Jon Fitzpatrick, a 6-1 shooting guard who graduated from Farmington in '91. The SC coach isn't through yet, however; there are at least two more who could join the team, and each would make an immediate impact.

·But even without further signees; Bogataj called this team "the most athletic I've had here." He won't venture a guess as to who the potential starters would be or even who will contribute the most. "I think it will be a whole combination of things," he said. "All of them will complement Jarvis (Murray).

ALL-AREA GIRLS TRACK

Hot Wheeler paces '92 all-area track team

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Salem's girls track team showed consistency throughout an undefeated dual-meet season, but coach Mark Gregor still. found a turning point.

It came during Salem's 70-58 win last month over Plymouth Canton in the annual Mangan Invitational.

"If I could pinpoint a turning point it was when we swept the 200 meter dash against Canton; the girls really came together and believed in themselves," said Gregor, the Observer's 1992 Coach of the Year. "From then on they believed they could win the conference (Western Lakes) and do well at regional.

The Rocks, who won the WLAA with a 5-0 dual meet record, were 7-0 overall and took second at the Class A Belleville regional. Salem qualified 10 athletes for the state meet in nine events, and the 104 points scored at regional were the most ever by a Salem team.

Gregor just finished his fifth year at Salem and he was assisted in '92 by Tom Garrett and Jay Blaylock. The youthful Rocks were led by junior Tonya Wheeler, the 400meter dash champion in Class A.

"This was the best season I ever had as a track and field coach, the most cooperative group I've ever been associated with," Gregor said.

The Rocks placed two individuals and two relays on this year's Observer first team: Farmington Hills Mercy, the Catholic League champion, and Canton each placed two individuals and one relay on the first team. North Farmington and traditionally strong Livonia Steven', son feature two first-team individuals.

Nicole Pryor, 200, Farmington Mercy: The junior broke the school record that stood for 13 years, in the 400 meters (58.9), and she was a champion in both the 200 and 400 races in the Catholic League meet. Pryor was an Operation Friendship champion in the 400 meters and placed third in the same meet in the 200 dash. She placed second at the Oakland County meet in the 400 meters. Mercy coach Gary Servais has had success shuffling Pryor in the lineup.

Nicole hasn't achieved her best performance yet, and we're still trying to determine her best event," Servais said. We're leaning toward the 1,600 run."

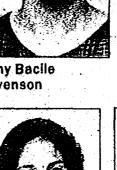

Tonya Wheeler, 400, Salam: Wheeler already is the all-time, leader in points scored at Salem, despite only being a junior. She was a regional and state champion in the 400 dash and also was league champ in each event. Her best times of 58.2 in the 400 and 26.2 in the 200 were also the best times in the area. Wheeler also was the state indoor 600 meter bua), Canton: After being disqualified from a meet against Livonia Franklin, this foursome never lost another dual meet and ended up with a school record time. (51.8). They were Stafford Relays and WLAA champions before placing fifth in the regional. All four will return to the Chiefs' lineup next year: 800-meter (Sarah Hamilton, Dana Driscoll, Marcia Parker, Tonya Wheeler), Salem: The three-time WLAA champlons were undefeated in seven plua meets and took 10th in Class A. They won the Lady Chiefs and Stafford relays and were third in the Spartan Relays and the Class A Belleville regional. Their best time (1:46.6) was recorded at the regional. Hamilton and Parker are frestimen, while Driscoll, a junior, has been on all three relay WLAA champions and Wheeler, another junior, has been on two.

Sarah is all business when she steps on the track, and Marcia is another fine freshman who combines speed, power, determination and intelligence in producing quality efforts, Gregor said "Dana is one of the leading scorers in school history and is a key element in two relays. Tonya has proven what a great 'team'-oriented athlete she is by helping to qualify five other athletes for the state Becky is a dedicated athlete who has shown great improvement each year, coach Bruce Brown said. "Her hard work and determination have really paid off for her. She is great to work with.

Teresa Sarno, discus, Stevenson: The most accomplished athlete at Stevenson, Samo is headed to the University of Virginia on a volleyball scholarship. She finished second in the discus and third in the shot put in Class A and was a regional champion in both. Samo holds the school record for best toss in each event (135-2 in discus, 38-5 in shot put) and won each dual meet in which she competed. She also was a WLAA champion.

Teresa is a gifted athlete who willingly worked as hard as necessary to achieve her goals," coach Paul Holmberg said. She was named Stevenson's most outstanding all around athlete, and rightfully SO.

Catherine Bacile, long jump, Stevenson: Bacile, who had a personal best long jump of 16.61/2 (the highest in the area), was Stevenson's leading point-getter. The sophomore qualified for the second time for the Class A meet in the long jump and 200 meter dash, finishing third at the regional in each event.

Catherine is on her way toward setting an all-time scoring record for Stevenson girls track," Holmberg said, "In addition to long jump, she was one of the area's best in the 200 and ran on two relays."

Stephanie Gray, high jump, Canton: The junior has qualified for the Class A meet in the high jump three years in a row, Undefeated in six dual meets, Gray won the WLAA meet for a second time in a row and she finished third in the regional. Her best jump is 5-2. She cleared 5-0 or higher 13 times this season and made 5-2 seven times. She also has thrown the discus 91-2 and the shot put 34-10.

"Stephanie is a very dedicated and taiented athlete." coach George Przygodski "Consistency is Stephanie's tradesaid. mark;

RUNNING EVENTS

Theresa Glacherlo, 100 meter hurdles, Safem: She is the school record holder in the 300 meter hurdles (46:6) and this spring she won the 100 hurdles in both the WLAA and regional meets. Glacherlo is a two-time WLAA champion as well as a two-time state qualifier in the 300 hurdles.

oriships," coach Mark Gregor said. "She graduates with a long list of accomplishments and has definitely left her mark as a quality person and athlete."

Wendy Malecki, 300 hurdles, Redford Union: With a year of eligibility remaining at RU, Malecki already holds the school record in the 300 hurdles (46.6). She was ninth in the state meet in the 300 hurdles (46.82) and a league champion in the 100 hurdles. She also anchored RU's 1,600 relay team that was a champion at the Northwest Suburban League meet.

This was only the first year as a hurdler for Malecki, who last fall was a first-team

NSL basketball choice. 'She's a fine athlete, very coachable," RU coach Bob Quellette said. "She could be 45.5 next year (in the 300 hurdles) -watch out.

Ndu Okwumabua, 100 dash, Canton: Okwumabua praked at the right time, placing first in the WLAA meet and fifth in the regional. The sophomore's best time in the 100 meters was 12.7, second in the area. Okwumabua also scored for, Canton in the long jump, placing fifth in Class A. Okwumabua, who has a 3.8 grade point average, might also find success down the road in longer distances, according to Canton coach George Przygodski.

'Tonya combines speed, power and great determination to produce a two-, year climb to become state champion,' Gregor said. Her potential to improve drives her toward even greater heights. Her hard work in the classroom and inathletics provides our school and team with a great role model. The best is yet to Dawn DiPonio, 800, Farmington Mercy: A regional champion in the 800 run and a two-time state champion. DiPonio also was second in the Catholic League meet and third at Oakland County. She also was part of the 3,200 relay teamthat holds a school record. Her best time of 2-22.0 was tops in the area.

"Dawn is a leader and a joy to coach," Servais said. "I wish I had 10 athletes like her.

Jenny Weh, 1,600 meter run, North Farmington: Weh's best time of 5:21.9 is a North Farmington record and the best time in the area. She ran less than 5:30 six times and was first at the Class A regional and first in the West Bloomfield Invitational. She was second at the WLAA: fourth at the Oakland County and 12th in the state tournament.

Weh also was instrumental in anchoring the school's 3,200 meter relay team that placed seventh at the Class A meet in a school record time (9:58.4).

Jenny has worked hard for us all season and did what we asked her to do," North coach Bill Pinnell said. "She has been a team leader and excellent role model for our athletes. It was nice to see her get out of the season what she put nto it.

Emily Shively, 3,200 meter run, North Farmington: Despite a nagging injury, Shively-recovered enough to place second in the WLAA, fourth in the regional and sixth in Oakland County. Her best time was 11:48.9 (No.+1 in the area). She also was a member of the 3,200 relay team^ethat took second at the regional and seventh in the state meet in a record time (9:56.4).

She had to alternate running workouts with pool workouts (because of the inju ... n)," Pinnell sald. "Emily was dedicated to her varied way of training so that she could maintain some conditioning. She made some personal sacrifices for the good of the team and still ran within six seconds (of) her personal best time."

In many ways, The American Inn restaurant at 15800 Middle Belt between Five and Six Mile roads in Livonia is the American dream come true for coowners Angeles Anastasiou and Christos Kanis.

The two met in Detroit's Greek Town at the Old Parthenon Restaurant where they worked together as waiters. "We planned it," Anastasiou said of the restaurant. "We are dreamers."

Anastasiou jokes he was born into the hotel and restaurant business. He started working at his uncle's restaurant at age eight. He studied hotel and restaurant management in Greece and has over 30 years of restaurant experience. He managed the Pegasus Restaurant in Greek Town, before opening a-Dimitri Restaurant in Farmington six years ago.

New booths, partitions, color scheme and menu featuring daily specials, heart healthy and children's items, Greek and American specialties await diners at the 141-seat restaurant, formerly Nags Head Pub, which officially opens Monday, June 15.

"When this is finished it will be especially nice," said Anastasiou. The restaurant will only serve lunch and dinner. Hours will be 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 11 a.m. to. midnight, Friday, noon to midnight, Saturday, and noon to 10 p.m. Sunday.

Prices range from $2.75 to $4.75 for sandwiches, luncheon specials like Yankee Pot Roast, stuffed cabbage, and baked pork chops start at $4.95 with the most expensive being Cajun-Style Prime Rib for $7.95. Specials served. with soup or salad and homemade rolls and butter. Salad selection include tossed, Greek, Caesar, chef, Almond Chicken, tuna, honey mustard chicken, and Cobb salad. Prices start at $1.45 for tossed salad served with dinner to $5.95 for a Cobb salad.

Dinner specials like Orange Roughy. Parmesan Marinara and Chicken Cordon Bleu range from $5.95 for Yankee Pot Roast to $8.95 for a 12 oz. New York Burgundy Pepper Steak.

"You can have a glass of wine and a good meal without spending more than $10 per person at our restaurant," said Anastasiou. "Everything on the menu is-made fresh daily, from the mashed potatoes to the orange marmalade."

House specialties include Avgolemono and Chicago Style Chicken Pie. Avgolemono is a deliciously blended Greek soup made with fresh chicken, rice, lemon and eggs. Chicago Style Chicken Pie is a special blend of whitechicken meat, sauteed onions, eggs and bechamel wrapped in phyllo, served with chicken gravy, rice and tomsto.

Duo inspires audience at Shaarey Zedek largest Jewish Conservative congregation in the area, its appeal goes far beyond those with the underlying religious background and philosophy.

For the past 13 years, it has featured an annual musical event, named after Peter and Clara Weisberg, who established this series in 1980

The latest of these, on Wednesday, June 6. featured violinist Daniel Heifetz and pianist Samuel Sanders in a varied program of selections, ranging from the standard classical repertoire to the Jewish folklore.

This event, with only limited advertising, nevertheless attracted an audience comparable in size to that of Orchestra Hall for a major event. General admission to these events is free, with some of the costs being assumed by contributing patrons.

One aspiration of any artist is to establish his own artistic identity. With a name like Heifetz, the inevitable question arises in the mind of any listener. The subject of any relationship between Daniel Heifetz and the legendary Jascha Heiletz was never brought up in the speeches preceding the program or in the printed program itself,

One may rationalize that such an aspect shouldn't matter - each artist should be treated as an individual. This, however, is not enough to make one's curiosity go away. To put this issue to rest. I asked the question: and was told by Daniel Heifetz that there was a very remote, indirect relationship. Having this issue, resolved. I am happy to conclude that Daniel Heifetz is, indeed, a gifted artist in his own right.

His partner that evening, Samuel Sanders, has collaborated with many velebrated artists. Here he appeared secently with the Kavafian sisters at Orchestra Hall. This duo is a powerful combination.

The audience consisted largely of people who were eager and enthusiastic to attend a musical event under these surroundings, but who are not among regular concertgoers:

Thus, there were several Jewish oriented selections, and some of the standard classical items were cut short. My biggest sense of loss was when the Franck sonata in A major . Jewish, captured the Negro soul in had only its last move. The entire work, however, may have fequired. too long of an attention span for many others in this audience.

Another classical selection which was cut short was from Prokofiev's Romeo and Juliet, of which only the. march of the Montagues and Capulets was played. While one could hardly expect a more forceful rendition of this massive piece when given by a piano and violin, it still couldn't match Prokofiev's thick and resonating orchestration. Among the Jewish themes, the most pronounced was the Nigun by Ernest Bloch, which is seldom performed before a general audience, but frequently before Jewish audiences. Seldom, however, one could hear a rendition as musically and ethnically meaningful as in this performance.

Music can be applied to a certain audience with a specific heritage, as shown in this performance. Even the two pieces by Kreisler -- "Praeludium and Alegro" and Liebesleid - given for an encore - sounder almost Jewish with some of the tonal inflections. Yet, paradoxically, it didn't detract from their authenticity. Gershwin, who himself was his opera "Porgy and Bess," which was featured with some of its popular melodies on this program.

. An appeal to a specific ethnic group is but one of music's many faces. Its universal language was illustrated by Heifetz, who proved to be a capable storyteller as well as a musician. According to one of his stories, he and his colleague Samuel Sanders were able to move and inspire an unusual 'captive audience' in a New York State prison by performing some Soul Music - Not just of any kind - but Jewish Soul Music - before inmates who were mostly black and Hispanic, Indeed. only those who understand music's universal language can properly understand some of its ethnic dialects. Heifetz and Sanders are among those who do.

chandise is priced only at a dollar, and when they shop at other places, it's higher," said Jeffrey Bell, district manager for Dollar Tree. "They feel they get excellent value for a dollar."

While price point clothing stores, have been around for a while, dollar outlets, a variation of the five and dime, are fairly new, said Frederick Marx, a Farmington Hills marketing consultant.

Shoppers profiled

"Generally, somebody who is a budget shopper, who has a tight pocketbook, will shop at a 13 Below," Marx said. "An affluent shopper may go to a dollar store. It's something to do. It's a penny arcade for adults."

Dollar Tree, now in its third year of business in Michigan, has stores in Troy, Rochester Hills, Southfield and Livonia. Dollar Bill$ first came to Michigan last July and now has stores in Livonia, Redford and Westland.

into those stores.

"We started 51/3-6 years ago. We've had numerous people (com-'petitors) come after us. We found it very challenging when we started. Some would say it's a junk store. It's quality merchandise at a value price," Bell said.

Merchandise varies

Customers never really know what they'll find in variety stores.

"We usually don't have the same merchandise for repeat buys," Bell. said. "It's a surprise every week. Our main office is in Norfolk, Va., but each individual stores orders as per their needs."

Corporate provides a list of available goods; Bell added. "It (concept) is real sexy now,"

Marx said. "You never know what's going to be there. People have fun. with them."

Merchandise offered generally is of decent quality, he-added. Sunplies come from odd lots, remainders, over shipments and canceled orders.

"All is first-run merchandise, no Variety stores generally are seconds, no damaged goods," Laski said. "We work with buying offices." in New York. Probably at any point. Shoppers comment

Several shoppers were interviewed last week outside of a Dollar Bill$ and 13 Below store at Redford Plaza.

"I've seen the same cereal in grovery stores for $3 or $4 dollars. Here, it's a dollar. You can get real good bargains," said Angie Cruz.

money and they have nice clothes, said Jessica Montgomery.

But those sentiments werent unanimous.

"Everything you buy in those (va-C riety) stores is cheap," said Kevin Kulyk, "I don't think it's worth it."

Their stores are profitable, Laski and Bell said, declining to provide specific numbers.

Marx wonders whether the mushrooming of variety stores can be supported by the customer base.

"When you do it in only a couple 🐁 of stores and they're hand picked, you do well. Buyers can't buy for hundreds of stores and keep people excited about the fun they had from the first time.

"Too many people are doing the same thing. There will be a shakeout," Marx predicted.

Buck paradise: Price point variety stores like Dollar Tree, where everything sells for $1, must do high volume business to turn a profit, said Frederick Marx, a Farmington Hills marketing consultant.

Price point shoppers seek bargains

There's no such thing as sticker shock at stores where all merchandise is the same, low price. Several stores that sell everything under the roof for less than $1, $10, or $13 have popped up in the area. One analyst, however, doubts they'll all survive.

Few waves seen in breakup of GMF Robotics marriage

BY GERALD FRAWLEY STAFF WRITER

General Motors Corp. is getting out of the robotics. business, and the industry is buzzing with speculation about whether this is good news, bad news or mere scuttlebutt around the water cooler.

General Motors announced last week that it was selling its half interest in the Auburn Hills-based robotics manufacturer to its venture partner Fanuc Limited, which already owns the other 50 percent.

Don Vincent, executive vice president of the Robitics Industries Association in Ann Arbor, said the news prompted calls from people throughout the industry.

"On the surface, it appears to not be a big deal," he said. General Motors is selling its shares to raise money and refocus its energies on its main business."

Vincent said robotics sales were down slightly last year to about $470 million in 1991 from $485 million in 1990, but overall capital spending by manufacturers was down.

Dave Conner, marketing manager at Bosch Automation Products in Plymouth Township, said although the news of the sale was a surprise, the actual sale isn't likely to have much of an impact on the automation industry. . . .

Bosch Automation Products recently entered a partnership making GMFanuc an authorized integrator of its products.

There is no reason to expect a change in the relationship following GM's recent decision to divest itself of its interests in GMFanuc, he said.

As for changes in the way GMFanuc does business, Conner said despite the association, GMFanuc did and will continue to have customers other than General Motors. .

"We're no less optimistic about our relationship this week than we were last week," he said. "We see the (divestiture) pretty much as a paper change."

Conner speculated that GMFanuc could become an even stronger force in the market, if for no other reason than it gaining its own identity from General Motors. "Total autonomy can only benefit the company."

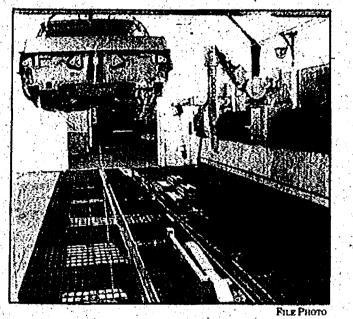

When two companies Join in a partnership, like Bosch and GMFanuc, they do so primarily for a busin'ess réasons.

"Relationships are driven by the end user more than the two companies saying if we get into bed together we can really do something."

In the case of General Motors and Fanue Limited, they got together for a purpose that is no longer needed and so the two are going there separate ways, Conner said.

"Does it even make sense for an auto maker to be in the robotics industry anyway?"

Thomas Getta, director of sales and marketing at the Farmington Hills based laser processing motion systems developer Robomatic International U.S.A., said the sale could open up opportunities for other. robotics manufacturers. 1.11.1

Little difference: Players in the robotics industry see few changes occurring because of General Motor's pullout from GMFanuc.

Ties between General Motors and Fanue Limited often precluded other robotics firms from doing business with GM, he said - and sometimes to GM's disadvantage.

Under the old relationship, it wouldn't be unusual for GM to spend millions of dollars on research and development for a particular application so GMFanuc could manufacturer it for the automotive giant.

That isn't very efficient when independent firms already had the products General Motors needed and could provide them without the wait or cost, he said.

If another robotics manufacturer were to bid on a project for the car company, GMFanuc usually won. "OMFanuc always received the nod in a tie," he said,

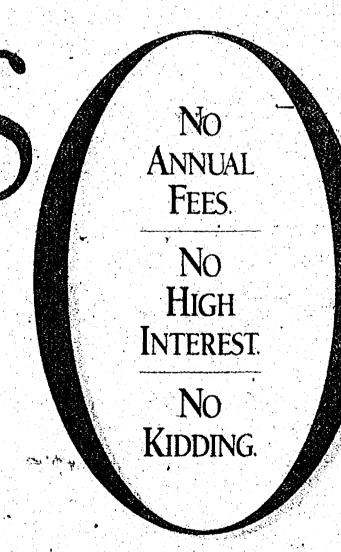

In the short term, that could change with the sale. The sale may also have an impact on the new entity. "GM has put substantial amounts of dollar in R&D. Will Fanue Limited do the same? I don't know but my guess is they will probably be more conservative."

A less well:funded Fanue Limited may be a less formidable competitor, he said.

. On the other hand, he wondered whether a Fanuc Limited unincumbered by the General Motors namewill become a greater competitor for other automotive manufacturers like Ford and Chrysler, Kazumasa Arima, president of VSI Automation in Auburn Hills, said his company probably won't notice any changes because he has never directly competed. with GMFanue.

"Our products are guite different from GMFanuc," he said. While that larger company devoted its energies to developing large manufacturing machines, VSI Automation clients are mainly automotive small parts suppliers.

Adult scouts get enthused at conference

You could say that Peggy Seery has been recharged. That's how the president of the Huron Valtey Girl Scout Council came away from the recent national meeting of Girl Scout presidents and executive directors.

It's always wonderful to get a chance to meet with your peers from all over the country," said Seery, a Canton resident. The organization has 333 councils - throughout the country, "including Alaska, Puerto Rico and Hawaii, and they were all there.'

Seery was joined at the, conference by Gail Scott, the council's executive director. The meeting was for top volunteers and executives of the Scouting organization and was held in May in Albuquerque, N:M. The keynote speech was given by the Rev. Bernice King, daughter of the late Rey. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., the civil rights leader assassinated in 1968.

"She was very inspiring," Seery said .. King discussed the power Scouting has as an organization to bring about change.

The conference also featured a panel of education and child development experts who discussed gender-related challenges girls face. The panelists included Dr. Myra Sadker of American University, Dr. Nona Lyons of Brown University, Dr. Heather Johnston Nicholson of the non-profit organization Girls Inc. and Maria Guajardo of the Colorado State Department of Education.

Sadker told conference participants that gender

Oh, bits of your life after death

No one likes to ponder his or her mortality. We spend much of our lives skirting the issue and when the time arrives, we leave much of what needs to be done to those we leave behind, including our obituary. But, if you could write your own, what would you say?

BY TAYLOR LINCOLN STAFF WRITER

When Ernest Hemingway was in an airplane accident in Africa in 1954 and was incorrectly reported dead, his survival gave him the unusual opportunity to read his own obituary.

Few, if any, of us will share Hemingway's freak experience. And most like Hemingway won't have control over what their survivors say about them.

Chances are, our obituaries will reflect the way we lived. Some people prefer obituaries with reflections on their achievements, some want them to focus on their personalities, and some, such as Stephanie English, of Livonia, want both.

"She was tough-minded but tenderhearted. That's for being a single parent with two children," she said.

Many, such as Audrey Sommers of Redford Township, hope that they will be remembered for the messages that they conveyed to others.

"She was a person who set an example for others, and she proved that it's possible to become all you can be. I haven't reached my goals yet, but I hope I. will soon," said Sommers, a reporter at Channel 50 who is aiming to get an anchor position on a Detroit TV news proeram:

Although a question about an obituary, with its implication about mortality and the morality with which we live, tended to elicit sober responses, some people had some fun with their obituar-. . . ies.

"I would like (my death) to be at the age of 103. I took my last jump and the chute didn't open." said Dan Krause of Livonia.

Krause recently went skydiving with his son, Jamie, who has enlisted in the U.S. Army and wants to be in an airborne division. Jamie escaped the jump unscathed, but Dan was nursing a sprained ankel.

Some people mentioned their own happiness as a quality they would like to be remembered for.

"As a happy fellow that loved everything he did in his past life, and as being the mayor of Plymouth and the director of the public works, and for being a fine person," said Joe Bida of Canton Townsip.

Others didn't think about their own past as much as the future of their survivors. "Don't forget all the good people like my good neighbors," said. Esther Searl of Plymouth.

Lester Maiden of Westland said he. wants to be remembered "As a sober man, remembered by my six children.".

And Carol Krawczeyk said she'd likeher obit to say, "She was a good mother, a great friend, and a loving wife." She is married with two children.

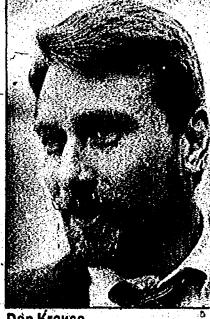

Val Martino of Farmington Hills would like to be remembered as a good, person, but not for a while.

"As a good, decent, person, l've done the best I could to treat people the way they wanted to be treated. I'd like to live a good many years, another 30 or 40 at least," said Martino, who is 65.

Harry England, of Garden City, focused on his civic achievements.

"I'd like to be remembered for being active in Garden City, active in the schools. I helped Garden City to grow and be a little more successful in business. And I was on the school board for eight years in Garden City," England said.

One person from Redford Township, who looked to be about 18 years old. an-

He said he'd like his obituary to resflect "the truth."

Occupying a wing of University Nursing and Reha-These days, an illness that in the past may have bilitation Center in Livonia, TCU is possibly the first of meant a minimum of a two-week's stay in the hospital its kind in the state. It is part of a joint venture behas been pared down to four days or so as insurance, tween the Health Care and Retirement Corporation of > America and The Chi Group Inc., an Ann Arbor-based health care consulting firm. The plan is to open similar units at HCR skilled care facilities in Plymouth (Plymouth Court) and Bloomfield Hills (Georgian Bloomfield).

> But TCU should not be confused with a nursing home. The latter offers continuing and rehabilitative care, the former offers transient care. It operates as a recovery center for patients who haven't quite recovered.

> "This is a hybrid," said Harry Dalsey of The Chi Group. "And these are patients who would be sitting in the hospital waiting to go home. The intent here is to get the patient back home; the intent is not to institutionalize them."

Different style

To escape the negative images of a nursing home, the TCU has its own entrance and its own nursing staff. Doctors visit on a daily basis and the staffing is equal to what would be found in a hospital.

The rooms are set up like hospital rooms with electric beds, call lights, TV and telephones. Not found in the hospital are the couches and tables and chairs for visiting and meals sans bed pillows. And like hospitals, the unit is capable of providing occupational, physical and speech therapy. But what sets the hospital and TCU spart is how it is staffed. The TCU uses more aides and licensed practical nurses under a registered nurse's supervision.

The nurses work 12-hour shifts and HCR has made a point to hire nurses who are accustomed to the clinical challenges the patients bias in many cases has become more subtle in recent years. Too often in school, boys are praised for their actions while girls are praised for having neat margins on school papers, Seery said.

Tracy Leese

"That was very informative;" she added. Scouting officials are working with the American Association of University Women and other organizations to promote gender equity in education for girls.

Being involved in Scouting helps young women prepare for the future, she said. The East Coast has many high-quality women's colleges, but there isn't as much of that in the Midwest, so Scouting's contribution is tremendously important.

Five teens from Livonia, Redford and Garden City have made it to the top, so to speak, receiving the -Gold Award, the highest achievement in Girl Scouting.

Karen Woicik and Tracy Leese of Reford, Jesseca Long and Danielle Hall of Livonia and Lora Bingham of Garden City were among 21 girls scouts of the Michigan Metro Girl Scout Council to receive the award this year.

To earn the award, scouts must learn about themselves, explore careers, build on their talents and skills, develop leadership and conduct a community service project.

Karen and Tracey, both 16 and members of Senior Girl Scout Troop 1139, used their skill and knowledge of clowning at presentations for fellow scouts and hospitalized children.

Both juniors at Redford Thurston High School, their performances permitted other girls to learn about clowning as well as bring good cheer to sick youngsters.

Lora also is 16 years old. A member of Senior Girl Scout Troop 1820, she designed and organized a mini Olympic field day event for younger girl scouts in Garden City.

A junior at Garden City High School, the objective of her community service project was to teach the girls teamwork while having fun.

Jesseca, 15, is a member of Senior Girl Scout Troop 2489. A junior at Livonia Stevenson High School, she tutored a third grade student who was certified as learning disabled in reading as her community service project.

Jesseca devoted 34 hours to tutoring sessions in reading, mathematics, social studies and spelling. Her student not only learned many new words, but greatly increased his. confidence level because of her help.

Danielle, 17, is a member of Senior Girl Scout Troop 406. A senior at Livonia Churchill High School, her service project was a video she created about local girl scout camps. She wrote the script and shot and edited all the video footaġe.

The video is being used by new scout leaders to familiarize themselves with available camping facilities.

The five teens received their awards at the Metro Council's recent Honors Reception. More than 500 people were on hand to recognize the scouts' achievements.

"It does and has been for years." Scouts benefit from having a safe environment in which to try new-things and, in some cases, to fail.

"Absolutely. We feel that we can help provide some of the opportunities," said Seery, a copy editor for the Ford Motor Co.

Participants also discussed topics related to managing Girl Scout councils, including marketing for demographic changes, fund-raising and others. New Scout cookie box designs were unveiled during the

ANNIVERSARIES

Lyle and LaVerne Nemeth

Lyle and LaVerne Nemeth of Lexington, Mich., returned to their old neighborhood, so to speak, when they came back to Garden City May 16 to celebrate their 58th wedding ann grsary.

present. In short, they are experienced like Judy Griffin.

Griffin has been in nutsing for 28years, working most recently in crit. ical care at Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak in addition to 15 years at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit.

"We're a small staff so we get to know the patients and they get to know us," Griffin said, "They get to know us as human beings so we can take care of more of their needs. They need more intensive nursing "Bloomsield resident. "We try to than is available at home, but not quite what's available in the hospital setting.

The TCU has a family focus. There are no structured visiting hours. Children of all ages, even pets, are able to visit and if a family member is joining the patient, for dinner, arrangements can be made to have a meal for him or her, Griffin said.

"A lot of patients tend to think of this as home," she said. "They verbalize that they have a good feeling about being here.

'We'try to make it more open and friendly so the patient feels comfortable," added Dalsey, a West smooth the transition from the hospital to home and make it easier on the patient."

A new step What HCR is trying to do is build a new step in the health care con tinuum by working with the insurer, the patient, his or her family and the doctor, a step with an orientation toward wellness, recovery and quality of life.

Potential patients are screened, with a TCU nurse performing an initial assessment. The criteria for admission includes a stable condition within the parameters of the diagnosis, a reasonable expectation . of the patient moving to a lower. level of care, a care plan and an identified final discharger destination.

Because of its newness, the patient load at the TCU has been relatively small since its opening and HCR has begun marketing it to doctors, hospitals and insurance companies. The case it makes is the cost.

Basic care at the TCU can cost as low as $125 per day. More advanced care can run as high as $575, substantially less than the more than $1,000 per day charge at hospitals.

"On the average we can save an insurance company $7,500 per, 'case," Dalsey said. "For one insurer, we saved them more that $125,000 on just one patient.

"People going to the huspital are sicker, so people leaving the hospital are sicker. If a patient is sick, it's not going to go away when he leaves, the hospital. We need a place to care for these people."

He prepares for his last sermon

By Julie Brown Staff Writer

Saying his goodbyes remains difficult for the Rev. Philip' Rodgers Magee.

"You would think they'd be a little easier, having some experience with it," said 'Magee, senior minister of the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth.

He'll retire this summer following 40 years in the ministry. He's been at the 1,200-member congregation since February 1972:

"I'm proud of this parish in a million ways." Worshipers are sensitive to the needs of others and are involved in a variety of community projects.

He'll preach his final sermon Sunday, July 26, and wrap up his duties at the end of August, being granted the title of minister emeritus "which means no responsibilities, no duties."

He graduated from Princeton Theological Seminary in New Jersev in 1952 with a master of divinity degree. Magee' served at congregations in York, Pa., New York City and Baltimore before coming to Plymouth.

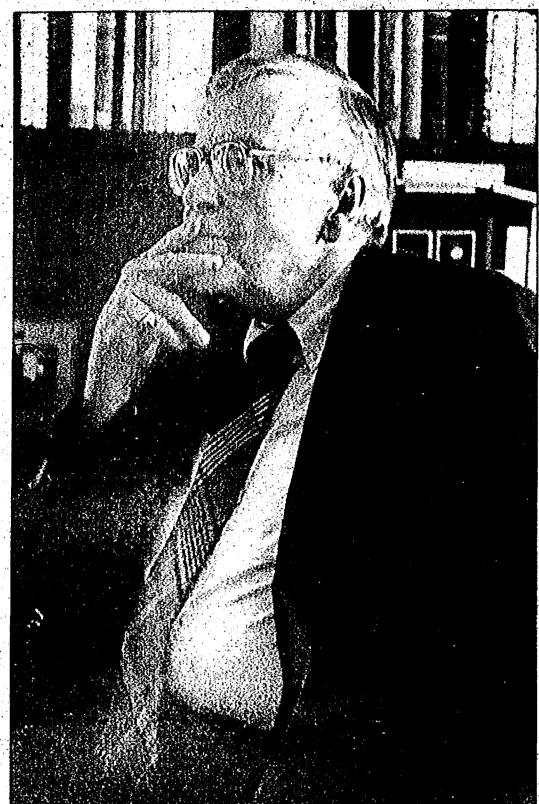

"I've seen a great number of changes in the community,' Plymouth had become an honestto-goodness suburb several years before his arrival.

"Canton, I think, was the greatest change. It became almost instantly built up." Some rivalry, primarily political, developed between Plymouth and Canton, "which I think is largely healthy."

"Plymouth itself has maintained its uniqueness in its shops." The community has a great deal of pride for itself, he said, as does Canton.

Magee, 65, has seen changes in the ministry as well. The photo in his office of his Princeton graduating class from the early 1950s is 100 percent male. These days, more and more women are becoming pastors, along with "what we call second career people going into the ministry. They decide, or are called, to the ministry."

He's pleased to see older people who've worked in other fields enter the seminary. Donation not duration to ministry is the key.

Magee was diagnosed with a form of sclerosis shortly after his arrival in Plymouth, and had been concerned he wouldn't be able to fulfill his duties. "Twenty years later, nothing much else has happened, thank God," said Magee, who uses a walker. He and his associate, the Rev. Leland Seese, divide up responsibilities.

dance at services is excellent, and the church is in good financial shape, thanks to the generosity of worshipers. -

Church members work every Thursday at Fort Street Presbyterian Church in Detroit, "to help in that exceptional food kitchen they have down there. They sometimes feed 400 people. Worshipers provide financial support for such endeavors, along with conducting such practical Christianity with its "Put your money where your mouth is" focus.

"It has always been a totally united congregation. There are no splits, major or minor." Atten-

He's pleased to see the congregation's mix as well, including more and more people in their 20s and 30s who "are discovering they want for their children something they didn't have." Those people are looking for a source of values.

Magee's retirement plans will depend somewhat on where he and his wife end up. He'll play some of the CDs he hasn't had a chance to hear "and read some of the books I have on the shelf but haven't read yet, which sounds dull, but if you bought the book you bought it for a reason."

As a thrifty Scot, Magee can't let those books go unread.

BOB SKLAR Old house gaining a new lease on life

guint at the old house in the morning sun and, for a fleeting moment, you're taken back to when families like the Bartletts and Travises farmed the Canton Township countryside.

But gaze too long and the house's sorry state — the chipped clapboard, sagging overhang, boarded windows and missing stairs — jolts you back to reality. Portions of the Bartlett-Travis House, originally at Warren and Canton Center roads, date to Canton's frontier days in the 1830s.

The township rescued the house from the wrecker's ball in 1989 after code requirements thwarted a developer's bid to convert it to offices. For many years, it had been divided into apartments.

When the developer made the house available, the township moved it to a wooded, 20-acre site on Ridge Road in the Cherry Hill Historic District.

Local historians plan to furnish the house with donated heirlooms and open it for public viewing.

"After we moved the house, we discovered more about it," said Melissa McLaughlin, Canton Historic District Commission secretary. "These old houses are reluctant to give up their secrets. Often, they dictate what you do."

The two-story, 11-room house is two houses in one. When the Bartletts bought the land in the 1850s, they built a Greek Revival-style house next to a smaller post-and-beam-construction house. About *-1870, they joined the houses and added a second level to the smaller house.

[°] By fall, the township hopes to spruce up the house's drab exterior.

Festival to color historic grounds

Walk the rolling land of a pioneer village setting while enjoying handmade pottery, blownglass, jewelry and paintings as 180 artists and artisans converge on Greenmead Historical Village at the Livonia Fine Arts and Crafts Festival this weekend.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN SPECIAL WRITER

If you're tired of street and sidewalk art fairs, imagine yourself in the heart of a historic village, enjoying the outdoors as you browse through hundreds of booths filled with handmade crafts and fine art.

Imagine yourself at the 16th annual Livonia Fine Arts and Crafts Festival, Saturday-Sunday, June 13-14, at Livonia's Greenmead Historical Village, Newburgh at Eight Mile. Imagine walking 104 acres of rolling land as Joshua Simmons did in 1826, at a time in Livonia's early history when "wild beasts" were abundant and the only roads were Indian trails and new paths laid out by the settlers and marked with blazed trees."

Take in the handmade pottery, glass, jewelry, country crafts; photography and paintings by 180 artists and artisans from 10 states. Watch as nearly 30 of the exhibitors paint, or hand-craft their wares before your eyes. "That's really a nice show. It's a nice setting," said potter Kathy Sandberg of Plymouth.

ples of four early architectural styles: 1830s postand-beam construction, 1850s Greek Revival, 1870s Italianate and 1890s Queen Anne.

The Queen Anne wraparound front porch was too rickety to move but it'll be replaced. "We saved some of the columns as a guide for when we reconstruct the dimensions of the porch posts and reapply any capital details that might've been on them," McLaughlin said.

The ornate, Italianate iron railing around the small front porch was stolen a few days before the move, but McLaughlin hopes to find a reproduction.

"Four different eras of 19th century life here in Canton come together in this one house," McLaughlin said. "As you go from room to room, we hope the different architectural and decorative styles will be evident."

McLaughlin underscores how the pioneering families who lived there "recycled, added on and combined — early forms of modernizing and home improvement — instead of tearing down and rebuild, ing."

Costly endeavor

The township matched a state grant to generate the $100,000 needed to move and stabilize the house in Cherry Hill. That didn't include site work.

It'll cost at least $85,000 to finish structural restoration. "Completion is at least two years away," " McLaughlin said.

"We feel badly about that," she added, "but we're gung-ho with Sheldon School's restoration. With grant money restricted these days, it's very difficult to work on two projects at once. The paperwork is mind-boggling."

Sheldon School, an 1868 one-room, brick schoolhouse, is on Michigan Avenue, west of Sheldon, at. Sheldon Corners, a state historic site. The one-room schoolhouse is being restored for community-service office use. That three-year project, including land purchase, asbestos removal, architectural drawings and construction, will cost upwards of $300,000. Grants will cover the bulk of the cost.

Meanwhile, the Bartlett-Travis House restoration fund received a boost in the form of a $500 donation from Helen Hasselbach in memory of her husband, Freeman, a lifelong Canton farmer, who died this year.

Long range plans call for the house to be the showpiece of a turn-of-the century working farm, complete with livestock, crops, pasture, implements and demonstrations. Features will include the smokehouse, corn crib and barn siding from the Hasselbach farm. A capital drive will raise development money.

The farm will provide "a feel for Canton's agricultural past," said Marta McCabe, Canton Historical Society president.

"We see the farm not only as a source of cultural enhancement and family enjoyment, but also an educational opportunity, a means to experience a way of life that no longer exists," McLaughlin said.

"It'd be a way of life almost all of us can trace our heritage to."

. Bob Sklar is assistant managing editor for special projects.

Alaska's natural lures beckon artist Virginia Janus Benda to return to where animals roam free and scenery remains untouched.

After a 3^{1/3}-week trip to the rugged 49th state last September, the Farmington Hills resident returned home with a passion to paint "all of the scenery and vastness of it all."

ARTIST CALL

Fine artists, photographers and jewelry makers may apply to be part of the first ever Liberty Pest Pine Arts Show from Saturday to Sunday, June 27-28, at Canton Township's newly enlarged Heritage Park, 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

The juried 50 booth show will be part of Liberty Fest '92. The family fair will include a classic car show, music and entertainment, fireworks, youth has created an outpouring of translucent watercolor, ink and dye on rice paper, oil, acrylic, and handmade paper assemblage.

The Livonia Arts Commission showcases 35 of these new works through July 3 in the first one-person show at the new art gallery, on the second floor of the Livonia Civic Center Library, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

"I've traveled all over the world — Mexico, Paris. Alaska is the only place that keeps haunting me," Janus Benda said. "Alaska must be the only state left where nature is, virtually undisturbed by man. It's undeveloped. There was so much raw nature there. I would like to be able to go back to Alaska, stay there awhile and paint on location."

Rising at 5 a.m., Janus Benda works 5 to 14 hours a day, six days a week in her studio. Her zeal impresses, the viewer in the landscapes, florals and abstracts, all created within the last nine months. "I enjoy what I do, I love it," she said.

Janus Benda considers drawing of the utmost importance to an artist. "In order to produce a good painting, you have to be able to draw — have a complete mastery of the medium. If design is good and balance, it has to have a message." Beside watercolor, works in the

The photograph shown here is a good example of how applying thought and planning can reward you with a memorable picture. I'll explain exactly how, on a recent trip to Ireland, this photograph was made.

I was in the small village of Bunratty when I came upon these quaint, thatched roof cottages. I saw excellent photographic potential here. Rather than take just the quick, ordinary snapshot, I put my mind in the "plan a photograph" mode.

First, I began looking for nearby subjects that could serve as "framing" objects while still allowing me to place the cottages in a pleasing composition in the viewfinder.

Sure enough, I found a position where an overhanging branch and a hedge of tall grass worked perfectly.

I was also able to use the roadway as an effective "lead-in." This way, the viewer's eye is directed into the picture.

To place everything in the viewfinder, I chose a 28mm wide angle lens. This lens gave me the perspective I wanted as well as a three dimensional appearance to the image · It's very important in shots using 'framing'' techniques to have everything sharp and in focus from front to back. To accomplish this, I selected a small aperture of f-16 and verified on my len's depth-of-field scale that all would be sharp. A sturdy tripod helped, too.

Watercolorist brushes up

Observerland artists captured first place among their honors in the Palette and Brush Club's spring art exhibit, Point of View, running through June 20 at the Birmingham/Bloomfield Art Association.

Tani Stevens of Plymouth took top honors for "Le'Otis," a watercolor protrait named for the model.

"More than a just a portrait - mysteriousness is achieved by the sheerness of the scarf; the darkness and the placement of the flowers give a sinister look," said juror Mary Aro, a BBAA watercolor instructor and an accomplished painter.

In addition_to a gift certificate, Stevens received from club president Dodi Sikevitiz the Matie Robson Award, a traveling award engraved with first-place winners' names. The late Matie Robson was a past president.

Gwen Tomkow of Farmington Hills took third place for her watercolor, "Shadows." Said Aro: 'Has'energetic brushwork - visually a very exciting picture."

Mary Ehlert of Livonia won an honorable mention for her watercolor, "Deer Isle, Maine."

Plymouth quilter weaves way to spotlight

"Take Time to Smell the Flowers," a brightly colored textile both hand and machine quilted, won Juror's Choice Award honors Saturday in "Celebrate Life 1992,". the 12th annual juried art show of the Congregational Church of Birmingham.

The 47-by-47-inch quilt, designed and executed by Nancy Meyer of Plymouth, was selected from more than 370 works entered . by 100-plus different artists whose works are to hang in the juried show.

The granddaughter of a quilter, Meyer has been working at the craft since 1983 but only recently began to enter her textiles in competition.

"I've spent the last eight years working to develop my own style," she said. "Quilting was something 1 always knew I would do. I just had to find time to do it."

Paintings, drawings, collages, hard and soft sculpture, graphics. photography, ceramics and fiber were entered into the show, open to the public Friday-Sunday, June 12-21. Hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday-Friday, and noon to 4 p.m. Saturday-Sunday.

Lunch will be served between 11:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Tuesday-Thursday, June 16-18, as part of the exhibition. For more information or for luncheon tickets, available at $7, call 646-4511.

The Congregational Church of Birmingham, is at 1000 Cranbrook Road, at the corner of Woodward and Cranbrook Road in Bloomfield Hills. Its members include more than 500 families who live in the three-county metropolitan Detroit area.

Juror from Cranbrook

Juror Greg M. Wittkopp, curator of the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum, narrowed the entries to about 50 eligible for prizes, then singled out the quilt for the $300 Juror's Choice Award and six other works each for $100 Merit Awards.

Two of the Merit Awards, made at the juror's discretion, went to artists for the work they entered in the show, rather than to individual works of art.

Wittkopp is responsible for the preservation and development of Cranbrook's permanent collections as well as the museum's day-to-day operations. He is a former curator of exhibitions at the Saginaw Art Museum, and holds a degree in architecture from the University of Michigan.

Pieced in red, orange, blue and colored textile is quilted in gold thread in an overall flower design. "Take time to smell the flowers. That's a nice dictate for our society," Wittkopp said.

depth."

Variety of media

Merit Awards went to:

• "Chicken Itza," a wood sculpture by Hamtramck artist Eric Mesko. Wittkopp cited the sculp-, ture for its visually abstract quality and use of materials, "It straddles" curator Greg- the edge between found objects and M. Witthopp, ones that are specifically cut and chosen for a purpose."

> • "Dumpster Kid," a cebachrome print by photographer David Allison of Missouri. Wittkopp described the photograph as. "technically masterful."

• Diana Gamerman of Madison Heights, whose oil paintings, "Old Main" and "Roses," were cited for their painterly qualitites and skillful use of paint on paper and canvas.

• "Threads of Memory," a watercolor painting by Connie Lucas of Canton: Wittkopp paid particular attention to the watercolor, a tongue-in-cheek commentary on art and popular culture.

The painting, appearing at first as a near-mosaic of masks, paired great art works from the past with icons of contemporary culture. Almuch to look at that you keep com- most lost among the masks is a rening back to explore its visual dering of the artist's own face reflected in a hand mirror. "This is a nice comment on contemporary culture and the way that it has pervaded all aspects of our life," Wittkopp said.

 Gail Ryder, a Birmingham artist whose abstract pencil drawings, "An Idea of Order" and "Another Idea of Order." were included in the show, Wittkopp noted the architec-'tural sense,' and calligraphic elements within the drawings. "You can see space being divided in a two-dimensional manner," he said

• "Untitled," a collage by Geno Tiseo of Bloomfield Hills. The combination of pressed flowers, hand, made paper, bark, ribbon and a scattering of leaves was a successful combination of natural, found and created items in a work reminiscent of Victorian era shadowboxes, Wittkopp said.

"For me, it was a real pleasure" and treat to juror an exhibiton like this one." Wittkopp said in concluding the daylong judging.

The show demonstrated the successful work of artists, both professional and amateur, who take their craft seriously, he said.

"Their lives are enriched by the act of creating this work. It's very inspiring to see this body of work and the creativity that it represents." This isoespecially important, at-a time when creative expression is coming under increasing attack and regulation."

Artists enjoy a personalized French lesson

By MARY KLEMIC STAFF WRITER

A group of area art students walked in the footsteps of the masters in a trip to southern France last month.

The fruits of the 10 day journey - artwork by the students, including one from Plymouth - are shown in an exhibit through June 22 at the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association, 1516 S. Cranbrook Road in Birmingham.

"It's not a tour, it's a painting trip," said BBAA instructor Leslie Masters, who also teaches at Schoolcraft College in Livonia. "We split our days -- half in the art museums, the other half painting Everyone did a sketch book.'

The 22 participants met for two critiques. They finished up the acrylic, watercolor and pastel works back at the BBAA the end of May.

Before leaving on the trip May 3, the class met once a week for six weeks, each week studying a different painter: Cezanne, Van Gogh, Matisse, Picasso, Bonnard and Vasarely.

"So many painters painted in southern France," Masters said.

Masters, an artist, gave daily painting instruction on location in Vence, Nice, Arles, Aix and southern landscapes. Former BBAA instructor Joyce Nagel, now of South Carolina, gave pastel demonstrations and instruction. Francoise Vernoux, a former student of Masters, was trip guide.

Special highlights of the journey included visits to the Vasarely museum, the outside of which resembles one of his paintings, and to Cezanne's studio in Aix, which featured the artist's cane and backpack.

"It's kept as if he just walked out the door. So we really got a flavor of Cezanne."

Masters, former BBAA assistant director, had gone to Giverny, France, about two years ago to visit Monet's home. She went on the group trip last month both as an artist and a teacher.

"Everybody got very excited about going."

The students had all levels of painting experience. The spouse of one of them who accompanied the group had never painted before but got into trying it. Participants talked enthusiastically about the trip.

"It was very wonderful. It's a wonderful part of the world," said Peggy Lind Klarr of Bloomfield Hills, a watercolor artist. "The flower market was beautiful."

"I think that the old architecture was my favorite thing," said interior designer Andrea Tama of Farmington Hills.

"Just the diversity Everywhere you looked, the variety of texture. Everywhere you turned around, you didn't know what to paint first. The diversity of the group. We could all be standing in one place and see something (different)."

"It was great," said retired art teacher Bill Horning of Waterford."It was really neat to be there."

Patty Tapper of Farmington Hills relished the friendly cafes, where group members could talk for three or four hours at a stretch.

"I never had the opportunity to be by myself and have 24 hours to paint," she said.

"It was heaven, it was inspiring. I liked the marketplace, I liked the colorful, carnival (atmosphere). Everywhere you'looked was something else to capture."

"It was wonderful, a lot of wonderful memories," said retired commercial artist Frank Van Dusen of Livonia. "Everytime I work on something it brings back memories . To see the French countryside, it's very impressive."

Home a high priority despite declining ownership rate

(AP) - Most Americans believe a single-family home with a yard is the ideal place to live, and they're willing to make large sacrifices to achieve that dream, a survey shows.

The survey, conducted, for the Federal National Mortgage Association, or Fannie Mae, suggested that 80 percent of Americans identify the "traditional single-family detached home with a yard as the ideal place to live."

Still, nearly 75 percent of the 1,521 people polled said living in a good neighborhood was more important than living in a good house. Nevertheless, "Americans place so high a value on owning a home that they will make a wide range of tradeoffs in order to achieve it," according to the survey. Among the cans were less likely to own a home findings:

• Four out of five of the respon- were a decade earlier. A study dents said they would rather own a shows 63.9 percent of households home some distance from work than owned their homes in 1989, down rent within easy commuting distance.

• The same number said they would rather own a home than take a better job in a city in which they could afford only to rent.

• Two out of three respondents said they believe owning a home is worth taking a second job if necessary.

• Three out of four said they would rather own a home than retire 10 years early.

The Census Bureau says Ameriat the end of the 1980s than they from 65.6 percent in 1980.

A major reason for the decline in ownership, according to the Fannie Mae survey, is affordability. Seven out of eight respondents identifiedthat as a "serious problem."

The major impediment to achieving the American_dream is the inability to make the down payment and pay the closing costs, the survey showed. It also said income, credit worthiness and job security posed other barriers for prospective homeowners.

Bureau said the median mortgage in 1990 was $737 a month, up 26.9 percent from 1980 when adjusted for inflation. At the same time, the median household income totaled $30,056 B, year in 1989, down 18.5 percent from a decade earlier.

The median means that half of the mortgages cost more and half less, or that half of the households' earned more and half less.

Despite the overwhelming desire to own a home, the Fannie Mae survey found there were some risks that most Americans would not take. . . .

"By a 4-1 margin, Americans say it is not worth it to financially In a recent report, the Census, overextend themselves to own a home," it found. "Only one in three thought it was worth it to place a young child in day care so the mother could work, even if this was a necessary step to become a homeowner."

> For most Americans, home ownership provides a degree of financial, psychological and familial security, the poll found.

"The feeling of financial security stems from the belief that owning a home is financially worthwhile, with 78 percent believing owning a home is a good investment, while only 2 percent consider it a poor one," it showed.

The survey found that 77 percent of homeowners believe could, sell their home for more than they paid for it.

"However, reasons for owning a home extend beyond the financial," Fannie Mae said.

The poll, conducted by Hart-Teetar Research, was weighted to teffect the 64-36 split between homeowners and renters.

Fannie Mae is a congressionally chartered, but shareholder-owned company that finances one in every eight single-family home purchases. It buys mortgages from lenders, holding some in its own portfolio. and packaging others for resale to investors.

Old Glory an exception to rule banning exterior signage

You can place an Observer & Eccentric classified ad 24 hours a day!

Here's how it works: First, you must have a touch-tone telephone.

Then, all you do is call us - remember, it doesn't. make any difference if we're not here - to place an ad, cancel one or change something on one you've placed earlier.

o'clock at night and you've just realized that the cupid on the clock you're selling plays a tin whistle. It's a good selling point, so you punch up our classified number and wait for the operator to guide you through the steps for changing your ad. Have in mind the exact information you want to give us, speak clearly and a bit slower than you usually do. And that's it. If it's after 5:00 p.m. on Tuesday, your changes will be made for the next Monday paper. Or, if it's after 5:00 p.m. on a Friday or the weekend, your changes will hit the Thursday papers.

Pretty neat, huh? Of course, our Classified Ad Takers are here every Monday throught Friday from 8:00 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. But now, if you miss them, you can still do something about your ad - at your convenience.

Houses rate as the main event

As it's never been suggested that I attend an Optimists Anonymous meeting, I'll pass on promoting the notential "rescue" of the city of Detroit based on the construction of a new subdivision along Jefferson.

Yes, it's great to see houses going up instead of being demolished. And what former resident doesn't hold at least a bit of a soft spot in their heart for the old hometown?

But are any of these reasons for suburbanites to cross Eight Mile or Telegraph for a trip to the Detroit Homearama? Perhaps not.

Sentimentality aside, there is one good reason to go. And that's the houses. Perhaps more than any Homearama in recent memory, this parade of homes is one to which the average buyer can relate. Which is not to say that if you've seen one moderately priced house you've seen them all. Don't expect to see Plain Jane bungalows and ranches from the cookie cutter school of design.

Colonials, Victorians, split-levels, contemporaries, traditionals, Cape Cods - all have been custom built, showing that a reduction in size needn't be a limiting factor for creativity. Features such as additional bathrooms, walk-in closets and game rooms that are missing in yesterday's housing stock are micely incorporated in these houses. And extras that once were found only in pricey houses are available in the Homearama models. - Ceramic fireplaces, skylights, master suites, cathedral ceilings, central vacuum systems, tray ceilings and whirlpools are some of the extras in Homearama models that builders say buyers want.

And they should know. Before the first crowds made the turn on Dickerson just about every model was sold. Builders like Janet Compo of Farmington Hills were signing up buyers for the next phase of the subdivision.

So should we expect to see future Homearamas with houses in the more affordable price range? Not necessarily.

Like auto makers, builders make more money on larger houses. But success feeds on success, and if there's anything builders have learned in Detroit, it's that buyers of smaller homes are interested in the whistles and bells found in larger homes. And it's those goodies that can spell profit for a builder.

Buyers who think of "affordable housing" as a euphemism for cracker, box housing should demand more of builders. Innovative design need not be costlier to build than using the same dreary floor plan time after time.

Homearamas have always served as a showcase for the best work of builders, decorators and landscapers. The Detroit Homearama has placed parameters on the professionals in terms of size and expense. But it was those limitations that forced them to be more responsive to the average buyer.

Homearama continues through June 21. Hours are 3-10 p.m. weekdays, noon to 10 p.m. weekends. It is located at Jefferson and Dickerson, about four miles east of I-75.

important."

One restaurant buzzword of the '90s is "casualization" in both food and restaurant decor. Fallen by the wayside are the power lunches that defined the '80s. chic and pretentious dining establish. ments, and the panache of the "celebrity chef."

In addition to food, restaurants mustdraw the public with visual appeal. "You eat with your eyes," says Baltimore restaurant consultant Diane Neas, who believes in identifying one umbrella concept for a restaurant and sticking to it, from the menu right down to the tablecloths on the table.

Baltimore interior designer Rita St: Clair agrees that people have become more interested in visual excitement as a backdrop to the dining experience. "The old ideas of maintaining a quiet.

atmosphere have been all but thrown out," she said. "We're not as concerned with acoustics all we used to be. People want a higher noise and lighting level.

"They want to feel part of a crowd, and they want to see what they're eating. People dop't want pretension . * but to feel comfortable in a relaxed set. ting."

Housing rebound takes a tumble years after helping lead the still-young economic revival.

Analysts suggested it was a temporary setback due to abnormal weather, and higher mortgage, rates.

The Commerce Department 'said housing starts plunged 17 percent from the month before to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.12 million units. The drop was the largest since construction fell 26 percent, in March 1984.

Most analysts still are forecasting an increase in new single-family homes and apartments this year, but they say the pace of the housing recovery will be far slower than those following previous recessions."

Kent Colton, executive vice president of the National Association of Home Builders, forecast

AP — The housing recovery stalled in April as 1.28 million starts this year, up 27 percent from construction suffered its steepest decline in eight 1991. Starts jumped 70 percent during the year in the West and 10.7 percent to a 482,000 rate in after the 1981-82 recession, he said.

Nobody is anticipating the kind of surge in activity in the course of 1992 that we saw in 1983 Richard Peach, an economist with the Mortgage Bankers Association.

"Analysts had expected a slight drop in construction in April after four sizeable monthly advances, including a 6.9 percent gain in March. But the depth of the fall was unexpected.

Housing construction increased 15.8 percent during the first quarter, leading the overall economy to a 2 percent annual rate of growth.

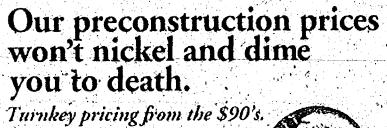

The decline in housing starts, the first since September, was widespread. Construction was off 30.5 percent in the Midwest to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 242,000 units.

Starts were down 16.7 percent to a 265,000 rate the South. They fell 8.7 percent in the Northeast, to a 126,000 rate.

Nationally, construction of single-family houswhen the numbers took off like a rocket," said es fell 10.6 percent to a 963,000 rate after slipping 2.9 percent a month earlier.

Analysts said unseasonably warm weather in January and February apparently prompted builders to begin construction then that they otherwise would not have undertaken until spring...

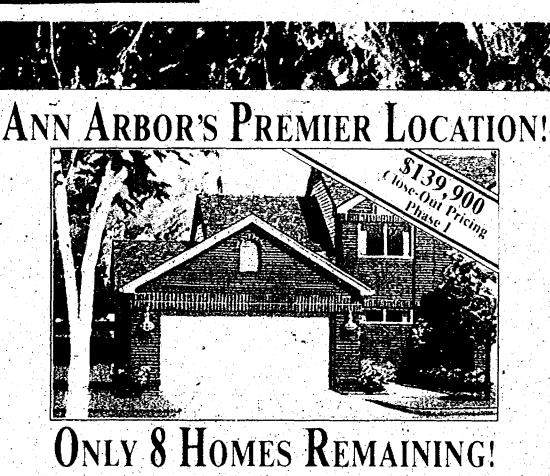

They also noted that Congress was considering a tax credit for some first-time home buyers, leading many builders to boost construction in anticipation of increased demand. The credit was not enacted.

Architecture to a restaurant can be compared but exactly how much is open to individual interpretation,

"A restaurant is like a three-legged stool," said Tom Wilscam, owner of a Sizzler franchise that recently opened in Westland. "You have food, at-mosphere and service. All three are equally important."

"It's difficult to say," said Gary Wright, design project manager for General Mills Restaurant Inc.

"If you consider Walt Disney World and the different restaurant designs there, can you say whether architecture brought people in -- the atmosphere created --- or were they hungry, a captive audience and they had to eat?

'You don't know if it's the food, atmosphere, service to people or location," Wright added. "I think it (architecture) plays a substantial part. For any nationwide restaurant, initial perception is recognition of the building."

Architecture may not be important at the highend of haute cuisine or the low-end, moms-andpops where people go strictly for food, said Ron Rea, a designer and partner with Peterhansrea in Birmingham.

But it does become a factor in the highly competitive middle ground.

"You're trying to give them a dollar value ---good food, reasonably priced, in a good atmosphere," Rea said

"Visuals of the exterior and interior will excite them. They will go in for the way it (building) looks. Then it's up to the operator to make sure they're served well, the food is good."

"I never tell my clients design will make their, business. It will assist them have better business," Rea said.

General Mills owns and operates Olive Garden and Red Lobster restaurants. An Olive Carden recently opened in Novi. Another is under construction in Canton.

"Our buildings have a certain number of square feet, the number of seats is constant and so is the kitchen," Wright said, "The exterior is customized according to the community you go in.

"We can take a base footprint and change the appearance of the footprint and the skin to make it look like many different types of buildings."

Clay tiles can give a Mediterranean appearance, vertical parapets and glazed tiles convey a more modern look and different kinds of bricks and awnings treatments present other images, Wright said.

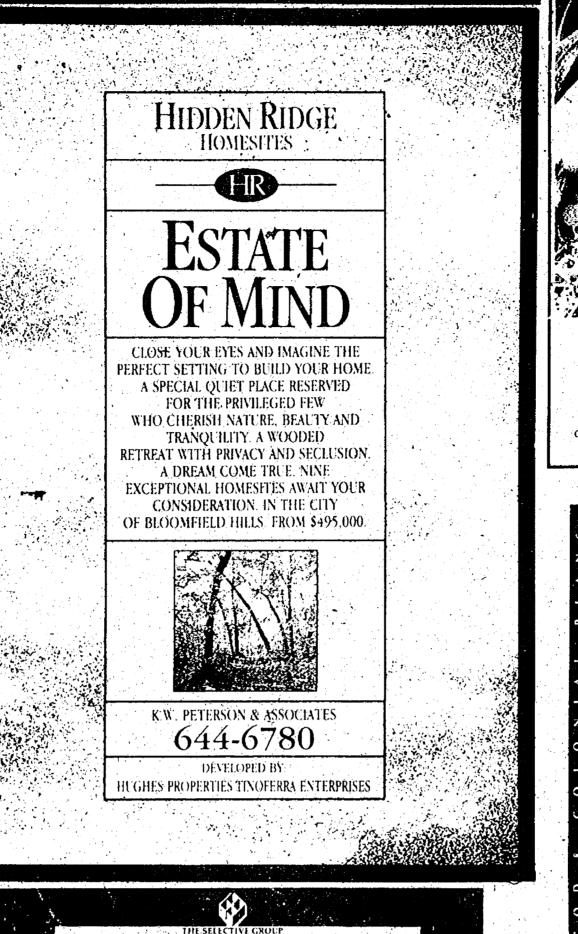

Many municipalities require certain kinds of appearances as far as brick work, roofing colors and lighting fixtures for conformity within a business district.

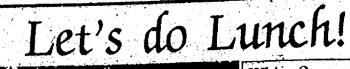

Structural changes will shift according to local building codes and unusual local conditions. Earthquakes are a concern in southern California. Snow piles up on roofs in the Midwest.

Wilscam's Sizzler has a high ceiling, pastel colors and extensive use of glass.

"Most restaurant buildings here, in my opinic are kind of dreary," he said. "They're made of of brick. They're dark. The big thing (about Sizzler) is an openness feeling. Glass in front is designed to make people feel good, just like background music.

"Philosophically, I think people eat out to have needs served. It's an escape. When I go out, I want to relax. It's just not to feed my stomach. I can go home and cook my favorite foods," he said.

Wilscam said he requested the company's newest prototype when selecting a design for his Westland restaurant:

"Architecture is an important function," Wright said. "It gives people the first impression they see" and know of the restaurant. As they go through
