Schools to levy full tax rate

Despite a plea for a reduced tax levy to help homeowners, the Wayne-Westland school board approved the full rate of 7.75 mills, an increase endorsed by voters last June. Board member Fred Warmbier wanted the rate reduced a bit to reflect the recession.

By DARRELL CLEM.

Amid concerns about job losses and stagnant family incomes, a Wayne-Westland school board member has suggested easing the burden on school district taxpayers by cutting their property taxes.

...But the board, in a 6-1 vote, balked at board member Fred Warmbier's suggestion and decided to stall any potential tax rate cuts for at least six months. The board chose to give Superintendent-elect Larry Thomas a chance to study the district's finances.

Warmbier warned that family incomes aren't stretching as far as they did in past years and that unemployment will increase if General Motors Corp. closes the Willow Run plant in Ypsilanti.

"There are a lot of people who are just overly burdened with taxes," he said, adding later, "I think we have to show some empathy for these people." But other board members, citing concerns about potential state aid cuts, decided to accept a request from Thomas to postpone any potential tax cuts for six months.

"At this time I feel it's premature for us to decide on the (tax) reduction," Thomas said.

A sometimes-heated dispute arose Monday as the board set a general operating tax rate of 47.1 mills, meaning homeowners would pay $47.10 in school taxes for each $1,000 of state equalized valuation.

The decision came immediately after the board approved an $83.7-million general fund budget that marked a 3.8percent increase over last year's budget.

Warmbier cast the lone dissenting vote against the budget and the tax rate. He had opposed a two-year, 7.75.

mill tax increase that voters approved last June, and he wanted to cut the tax rate Monday.

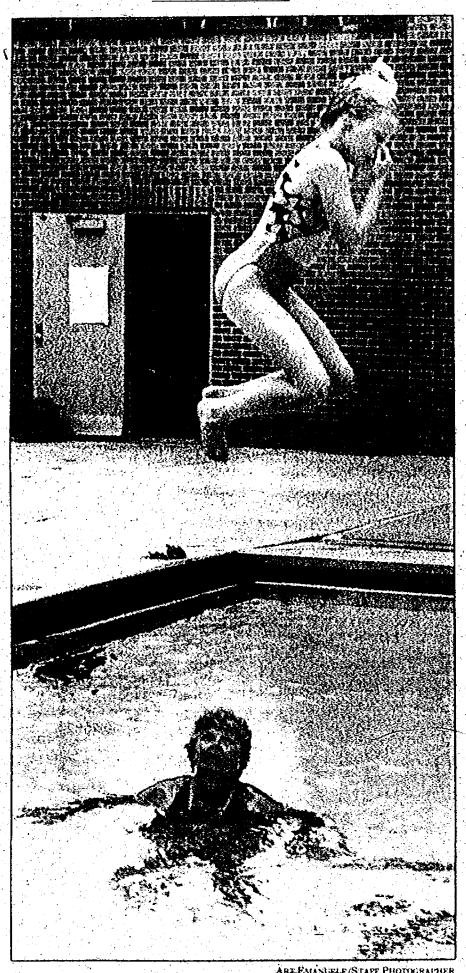

Warmbier suggested the tax increase wasn't needed last year because the district had a general fund balance of $4.4 million. The surplus has increased to about $9.9 million this year, though the board has placed $3 million of that in a special contingency fund for instructional programs and building improvements. That leaves a $6.9-million fund balance.

"If we didn't need it (the 7.75-mill increase) last year, we certainly don't need it this year." Warmbier said.

But other school officials noted that the fund balance is not exorbitant considering that the district has an $83-

3 schools officials bid district farewell

By Darrell Clem Staff Writer

Amid hugs, smiles, tears and applause, two highly controversial Wayne-Westland school board members and a longtime administrator parted ceremoniously Monday from a wounded district bound for new leadership.

The departure of veteran board members Kathleen Chorbagian and Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek and Deputy Superintendent Thomas Svitkovich signaled a crossroads in a district struggling through an era of dramatic change.

They will officially leave their positions at month's end, but Monday marked their last school board meeting. Chorbagian didn't seek re-election, and Kozorosky-Wiacek lost her bid for a new term June 8.

Svitkovich, who rose from the teaching ranks to assume the district's top post, has accepted a new job in Flint.

"I've been battered and bruised a lot, but I really feel that I have done an ethical job," Chorbagian said in her farewell address Monday.

A 10-year board member, she had come under heavy fire for supporting teacher salary increases amid a budget crunch that had threatened deep cuts in school programs for students. But she recently survived a botched recall campaign by her political foes and decided on her own to step down.

Cops: Man broke into house, raped woman

A Westland woman was raped by an intruder who broke into her house in the Henry Ruff-Palmer area early Monday morning, Westland police said.

The incident remained under investigation Tuesday, and few details were available before press time.

No arrest had been made.

The woman, whose age wasn't immediately known, reported that a man broke into her house on Westchester and raped her about 4:45 a.m. Monday, Westland police Sgt. Laura Moore said.

The rape was confirmed by police, the incident this week.

though many details about the incident weren't known, Moore said.

"Everything is so sketchy right now," Moore said. "Until I can investigate it more, that's really all I can say."

Moore talked briefly with the victim. "She's been so upset that I haven't been able to get all of the information (about the incident)," Moore said,

Kozorosky-Wiacek marveled over a path that led her from a small Pennsylvania town to Wayne-Westland, where she became school board president of a 16,000-student district. In what she called "the single biggest highlight" of her board tenure, she recently addressed the graduating classes of the district's two high schools.

Resident: District exaggerated on finances

LUNCH MENU FOR SENIORS

By Darrell Clem

A Wayne-Westland school district resident Monday questioned whether officials exaggerated the district's financial plight last year to win voter approval of a 7.75-mill tax increase.

Jerry Mercier, noting that the district had a $4.4 million surplus last June, accused school officials of earlier predicting the district would be virtually broke.

Mercier, saying the district's financial plight was exaggerated before voters approved the tax increase in June 1991, renewed his concerns Monday as the board decided to levy the 7.75-mill increase for a second year.

The board will have to win voter approval next June to continue to levy the 7.75 mills.

Despite the $4.4-million surplus, the district needed the tax increase to continue a full instructional program, transportation, athletics and other programs and services, Deputy Superintendent Thomas Svitkovich told Mercier.

Board member Leonard Posey also pointed out that the tax increase helped pay for nearly $1 million that the district has spent on new textbooks, "and we still feel there's much to be done in this

But Mercier told school officials they were missing his point. He said he doesn't oppose the instructional program, but merely wanted to point out that he believed the district's financial woes had been exaggerated to win support for the tax increase.

Board member Laurel Raisanen told Mercier she agreed that the public had received some wrong impressions.

But board member Kathleen Chorbagian said she never recalled predictions that the district would be "flat broke" - as Mercier said he had been told. And she indicated that Mercier had misconstrued what officials had said.

That sparked a response from another audience member, Rosemary Miller of Wayne, who said she was Taxes from page 1A million budget.

Board member Kathleen Chorbagian warned Warmbier that his suggestion would hinder Thomas, who wants to thoroughly study the district's finances before recommending any tax cut.

"You voted for him," Chorbagian told Warmbier, referring to Warmbier's support for Thomas for the superintendency. "Now you want to tie his hands behind his back."

Warmbier told Thomas that he could understand his viewpoint, but Warmbier indicated he had to remain consistent in his opposition to the 7.75-mill tax hike.

"appalled" at board members "at tacking" audience members, namely Mercier.

Miller also accused school officials of misleading the public on the tax issue and said "we hope it's going to end tonight."

Board member Laurel Raisanen also had opposed the 7.75-mill plan last year, but she said Monday she could agree to give Thomas six months to study finances.

However, she did note that taxpayers would receive a slight tax break this year because of a 1.2-mill reduction in debt retirement that will come automatically, because the district has retired some of its debt.

A homeowner with a $65,000. house can expect only a $40 tax cut,. school officials said. "It's not huge, but it's something," Raisanen said.

Another district resident Defores Lov , told the board that appayers are hurting.

"Do you people understand that people are up against the wall?" she asked. "They cannot afford these high school taxes."

County air show features aerobatic team

The Italian National Aerobatic Team, Frecce Tricolori, brings a new form of military jet formation demonstration to Willow Run Airport for the July 4-5 Air-Michigan festivities.

It's the world's largest military jet team with 10 Aermacchi MB 339 trainers in formation.

Unlike American jet teams, Italian team members stay on assignment for more than a few years. Current team commander, Col. Alberto Moretti, started as third right wingman in 1981. Team leader Col. Gianluisi Zanovello began his assignment as third left wingman in 1983.

Frecce Tricolori is a descendant of Italy's first aerobatic school, established at Campformide in 1930, linked to Col. Rine Corso Fougier.

Fougier convinced the Italian Air Staff that a military pilot had to first be a sportsman if he was going to fly a plane in war assignments with maximum efficiency. Subsequently, Fougler. started a five man aerobatic formation team.

Italian Air Force Aerobatic Teams achieved maximum fame — and travel — in the '30s, going all over Europe and South America. Its first and only U.S. trip to date was in 1986.

After the war years, two national teams existed, one to participate and one in reserve to plan for demonstrations the following year.

Frecce Tricolori was founded in 1960 as the one and only Italian Aerobatic Team with permanent headquarters at Rivolto del Friuli Airport. The name means Tricolored Arrows after the colors of the Italian flag.

The demonstrations will feature 10 ship formation flying and also solo demonstrations of the Aermacchi, a two seat trainer used for aerobatic flying and operational close air support missions against tanks and helicop-

The formation breaks down into the leader, three left wingmen, three right wingmen, two slot pilots and a solo pilot.

Its support group includes a C - 130 cargo plane from the 46th Air Brigade and Atlantique anti submarine aircraft, plus two spare MB - 339s.

The appearance of Frecce Tricolori highlights a large card of performances and demonstrations at AirMichigan.

Advance tickets are available at the air show office at $9 for adults and $6 for children and reserved box seats are priced at $15. At the gate, general admission tickets are $12 for adults and $9 for children.

For a mail order form, call 482-8888. Advance sales end July 3.

Leaders agree schools of future need retooling

Reactions to Dr. Willard Daggett's speech on changing the school curriculum for the world of work:

Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City: 'We are facing in this state a dropout rate of 24 percent, which is intolerable. We have a lot of our students going out into the world who don't have appreciable technical skills. We are going to have to adjust if we are going to compete, or resign ourselves to the fact we are not going to be a world-class nation."

Rep. Lyn Bankés, R-Livonia: "If you're a youngster in a middle school in the U.S., your parents are going to encourage you to go to college. But if you want to go into vocational education, it's not thought of with the same pride. Only 20 percent of people who start in community colleges finish, and only 40-50 percent in state universities finish."

Dorothy Beardmore, of Rochester, president of the State Board of Education: The Ferndale School District in Oakland County already is making the connection between school and the workplace. "They've focused on a great deal on preparing for the workplace and the needs of the workplace. It's been a long time coming."

Staff writer M.B. Dillon and the Associated Press contributed to this story.

Educator urges curriculum overhaul

By Tim Richard Staff Writer

Michigan schools are teaching better and better - but it's the same old stuff, says an internationally known educator.

And grandpa's curriculum won't help high school graduates in the international economy where "onethird of all new jobs are technological and technological repair," said Willard Daggett, head of the International Center for Leadership in Education.

We're teaching:

- Algebra when we should be teaching statistics, logic, probability and measurement systems.
- · Reading of novels and newspapers — instead of technical manual reading.
- · Biology, chemistry and physic ics - instead of applied physics American educators inflicted the biology-chemistry-physics sequence

"All technology is applied physics, but we teach it last. Only 18 percent of Michigan high school graduates take any physics. The others fall off the science ladder before they get there," Daggett said.

Most European and Asian na tions require two to four years of physics, but "Michigan doesn't require'a day of physics," he said.

"Japan decides what skills will be needed in the year 2000 - that becomes non-negotiable -- and builds back from that," said Daggett, who served on national commissions for both Japan and Rus-

"The U.S. is fixated on the present institutional boxes. You make very slow, gradual, incremental improvements, but societal changes are occurring four or five times as

Declaring "I hope I have made in 1912 by following alphabetical you very, very uncomfortable," Daggett almost mocked President Bush's boast that the U.S. would be first in math and science by the

Humble origins

A one-time typing teacher, Daggett rose to head New York State's occupational education office before taking his international job last August.

Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, chair of the House Education Committee, brought him to Lansing June 10. In the audience were educators, lawmakers and Acting Gov. Connie Binsfeld.

Keith and Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-

Livonia, are among lawmakers who have traveled to Germany to study its vocational high schools, where students spend half their time on jobs and must command a foreign language to graduate. House leaders also are pushing a drastic revision of Michigan's adult education system, because present workers will provide 80 percent of the year 2000's workforce.

Keith ran into much suburban flak at a public hearing last winter when he offered House Bill 4165 to set up a voc-tech system in high schools based on the German model. Chief problem: Suburban parents want their kids to go to college, and educators prefer to protect the existing curriculum.

Hospital gets help

eritage Hospital in Taylor, which serves local persons, recently received a donation of two telephone kits which will be used as a teaching tool for children and adults with speech problems. The kits were invited by Michigan Bell engineer Harold Nowak and were donated by the Pioneers, a group of Bell retirees. "Many speech pathology patients don't have the confidence to use telephones or have decreased ability." said Linda Baxter, the hospital's speech/language pathologist.

"This equipment allows me to evaluate their speech while they practice their telephone skills." The hospital is a member of the Oakwood Health Services Corp., based in Dearborn.

Livonia board studies pay-to-play

If a "pay-to-play" policy is adopted by the Livonia board of education, students and their parents will have to come up with money if the teens want to take part in sports or other extra-curricular activities,

By Marie Chestney

A "share the pain" philosophy emerged Monday as Livonia school district officials wrestled with restoring sports and other high school activities cut from its 1992-93 budget.

Instead of keeping some high school sports and activities and cutting others, as the new budget now does, some Livonia board of education members want to restore all cut sports programs and charge all students who participate in extracurricular activities a fee.

The activity fee, if adopted by the school board which serves the northern section of Westland, also would apply to students playing football and basketball - varsity sports not cut in the new

The pay-to-participate plan passed the scrunity of the board's finance committee Monday, but still faces a vote of the full board.

The trustees asked Ken Watson, director of secondary education, to determine what the across-the-board activity fee would be. It could run as high as $130 per activity, Watson said Monday. A decision must be made soon so that teams get scheduled for fall games. Numerous parents appeared before the trustees to ask that a fee system be launched to save their child's sport or activity. "I have no problem paying," said Donna Miller. "Parents will bend over backwards to pay that fee."

High school sports cut in the 1992-93 budget include varsity baseball and and golf. Besides football and basketball, high school sports spared in the budget include wrestling, swimming, track and

To lower the cost of a fee, trustees briefly considered spreading it across all high school students, but then discarded the idea.

Under this plan, each student would pay a fee of about $40, considerably less than the higher fee imposed on sports participants.

Parents and school officials alike said it might be tough collecting a fee from students who don't participate in afterschool sports and activities.

Watson called it a bookkeeping nightmare. "We'd have no leverage to collect this money."

John Rennels, assistant superintendent for personnel and an attorney, said levying a fee is legal as long as it's not levied for a required class or for a class where credit is given, and as long as.

softball, tennis, cheerleading, hockey families who can't pay the fee are treated in a confidential manner.

The trustees also asked Watson to recommend how middle school sports cut in the new budget can also be brought back. The trustees said they will consider both programs separately.

The fee would keep sports and such other activities as debate and stage band intact at least for another year.

"This gives us time," said trustee Patricia Sari. "By then we will know what happens at the state level, and have time to see how this works."

If the fee program doesn't work, warned Sari and trustee-elect Kenneth Timmons, the district might not have sports programs in 1993-94.

"We must make that point, so that residents continue to write their lawmakers." Sari said.

Because of a loss of money due mainly to state school aid policy, the district recently chopped $7.2 million from its 1992-93 budget of $101 million.

3 school unions say no to contract reopeners

By Marie Chestney

Livonia school district officials didn't get far in asking three unions to make concessions to help solve the district's financial crisis.

Because there was no reopener clause in their contracts, none of the three unions were under any obligation to talk about a possible wage freeze or give-backs.

But, while struggling to balance its budget earlier this year, the board of education, which serves the northern section of Westland, decided to take the step and ask the unions to see what their response would be.

As was probably expected, the answer came back a resounding no.

burner for now, but I fully expect that These are: Supervisory Employees' Asthe issue won't go away," said board president Richard McKnight. "The bottom line is, they didn't have to do this if they didn't want to. And they don't want to. But we'll look at it again next year, if we have to pursue another round of cuts.'

The three unions without reopener clauses are the teachers' union, the Livonia Education Association (LEA); the administrators' union, the Livonia Educational Administrators and Supervisors (LEAdS); and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees-AFL-CIO (AFSCME).

Concession talks with three other unions that do have reopener clauses are still underway, said John Rennels, sociation (SEALS); Livonia Secretarial Association (LSA); and the Livonia Paraprofessionals Association (LPA).

Joan Renie, spokeswoman for the LPA, recently came before the board to ask if administrators also will be asked to make concessions.

"If we ask for sacrifice, it will be across the board and apply to all employees," McKnight said. "The administrators will step up to the line."

The "whole area of benefits" will be looked at when contracts expire for the three unions that don't have a reopener clause, Rennels said. The LEAdS contract expires in 1993; the LEA and AFSCME contracts expire in 1994.

Rose Williams, AFSCME president. We'll have to put this on the back assistant superintendent for personnel. said the only way her union would consider concessions if it is "100 percent across the board, including administra tors.

"It has to come from the top down," Williams said.

Steve Smith, LEAdS president, said his union will take its cue from what the teachers' union does.

Steve Naumcheff, LEA president, said the teachers already made a sacrifice earlier this year by linking their pay raise to the number of teachers who retire this year with a $20,000 one-timeonly retirement bonus.

The teachers got a 6.41 percent pay increase in 1992-1993 and 1993-1994.

The district will be able to replace the 70 retirees with entry-level teachers who earn substantially less, Naumcheff

IV drains imagination from kids' summer play

The raging controversy over the recent spate of drive by super soakings may not seem to have much to do with the auto business,. but somehow a conversation that started out with DAN how the super squirt guns got banned in Boston quickly drifted to the broader issue of what kids do with their time to-

I hate to admit it, but I spent a considerable portion of my childhand before TV - well, not exactly before the invention of the tube, but at a time when only one family on the block had a television set, and it wasn't mine.

This meant that there were lots of kids running around all summer with an average of five and a half hours a day (now devoted to watching television) with nothing much to do but figure out ways to get into . The tank was the ultimate - a troub . . . er, I mean, seek out creative activities.

kids on the next block. (Creative activities always seemed to end up with a war with the kids on the next block.)

We had started with squirt guns and had escalated to water balloons, then buckets of water, and finally had taken up defensive positions with a garden hose. In this seemed like a mild case of the fast.

fully canvas-covered monstrosity built of scrap lumber, with numer-Which is how we got the idea to ous gun ports and hatches for water build the tank. The tank was the pistols and water balloons - the logical extension of the war with the idea being a way of attacking without getting wet. Nobody had told us about the Maginot line.

The tank ended up brutally heavy, with no wheels, so we had to carry it around the block to launch the assault. When we got there, the other kids spent about a half hour dumping water on the idiots trapped inside, who never got a shot carnage, a super soaker would have off and couldn't run or move it very

> Anyway, the tank was followed by a series of scooters made from peach crates, perched on top of your sister's roller skates - the kind made of metal that could be taken apart, a thoughtful piece of engineering that obviously was meant to let you use you sister's roller skate wheels for higher purposes.

Like the tank, pushing the scooters around was a lot tougher than walking, but it seemed like a good idea at the time. In fact, I remember a considerable portion of my childhood spent sitting around with other mildly demented types scheming up another fort, scooter, or raft to be built out of some box or packing crate dragged home to be used as raw materials.

For some reason, adults seemed tolerant of all that junk, although maybe they mainly appreciated the silence when we were plotting, It seemed like most of these projects never got finished, or when they were they really didn't work very Still, at least a few of us went on to make more stuff, and a few even ended up as engineers making cars. I figure the guys who worked on the tank ended up at Cadillac.

Anyway, with store-bought toys and television, where are the kids today scheming and dreaming about the ultimate machine?

I get the odd feeling that today's kid looks at an old pair of roller skates, and all that comes to mind is to throw them away.

Council feud

Cable-TV panel overreaching

he Westland City Council missed the point in its debate last week over the number of members on the cable-TV commission.

Based on the city ordinance creating the commission nearly 12 years ago, the power of the commission is fairly limited to a few non-policy areas — and all in an advisory capacity.

But the real problem seems to be that the commissioners have a wider view of their powers than what's written in the ordinance.

The larger problem may be that the commission seems to see itself as the immediate supervisor and overall lord of the city's cable-TV contractor and programming services.

But the reality is that Diane Abbott of Abbott Productions is a private contractor whose duties are spelled out in a contract reviewed and approved by the city council and administered by the mayor and/or his representative.

Under the ordinance, the commission's powers are largely limited to handling subscribers complaints and advising the city council on policies related to the cable services and the use of public channels to ensure diverse programs and services to subscribers.

The commission is also required to hold publie hearings on rate increases and conduct evaluations of the systems every two years.

The ordinance concludes that the commission may get into other areas as directed by the mayor or the city council.

But the commission seems to be more interested in being involved with the cable contractor, either Abbott or her predecessor, Dennis Fassett, than in what the ordinance directs it to

For example, the commission has been reviewing the cable contractor's budget for many years - an area that is clearly up to the contractor and the city administration during budget preparations early every year and up to the city council in the spring when it sets the spending priorities.

The commission was also quiet each year when Continental Cablevision Co. announced its annual rate increases for subscribers, Most public opposition was from the mayor's office or council members. In any case, the city has no control over rates, anyway, with or without commission input.

The Observer suggests that the commission go back to the ordinance to find out what its powers are and avoid getting into areas which are off base.

Like all other commissions, the cable panel is purely an advisory group with no powers of any kind under the ordinance.

Let's keep it that way.

What to do: The state Legislature is kicking around a series of bills that would aid in prosecuting spouse abuse and offer training to government officials. For an editorial on the subject, see the lower left column on this page.

Aid in curtailing spouse abuse

ost police officers will tell you that spouse abuse, or "family trouble" calls, are among the most common and the most dangerously unpredictable they handle. Conversely, arrests and full-scale prosecution in such cases are about as rare as the calls

That paradox isn't just a "women's issue." and the state Legislature may be about to recognize it, none too soon.

A series of bills on domestic violence is winding its way through the Legislature. Taken as a whole, the proposed legislation places greater responsibility on police departments, prosecutors and judges in pursuing spouse abuse cases.

The bills propose these major changes: • Easier arrest warrants, requiring a judge or magistrate to act on information from police --with or without the victim's consent to press, charges.

• Stricter sentencing guidelines - cutting the number of "second chances" for a convicted spouse abuser from two to one before jail time could be assigned:

• Mandatory sharing of information between police and judges on previous assault convictions before sentencing.

 Allowing probate courts to order an adult out of a home where a child has been abused.

One of the bills even addresses the money needed to pay for the changes by bumping marriage license fees from $20 to $30 and allocating the difference to domestic violence shelters. That still leaves unanswered, however, where funding will come from for training of police. prosecutors and judges that should be a part of the package.

■ The bills would go a long way toward shifting the burden for pursuing these crimes away from the helpless victim and onto more socially aware and trained government agencies where it rightfully belongs.

And additional time spent on pursuing these cases will increase costs even further, but that's money well spent in a humane society.

We are uneasy over increasing unilateral power of government agencies and would prefer to see changes in this package that would make it easier for battered spouses to press charges.

Still, the new bills would go a long way toward shifting the burden for pursuing with these crimes away from the helpless victim and onto more socially aware and trained government agencies where it rightfully belongs.

The built-in disadvantages in the current system put victims, particularly women, at a loss. Many legitimate cases never see the light of a courtroom due to threats of additional violence. Many victims learn to "live with it" because removing a bread-winner from the home just isn't practical for financial reasons, or even possible because there is no place to go.

Spouse abuse crosses all racial, ethnic and economic strata. It could involve your neighbor; it could involve you. Remember, there are times when it is appropriate to be your brother's keep-

On No. 1, man and woman have no absolute right to do as one pleases with the body. God alone has this right and God clearly teaches the limits to all who are open to hear.

On No. 3, mandatory education on how to avoid pregnancy and diseases lacks motive. For real education to take effect, one must know what one must do, when one must do it and do it whether one likes it or not. Here again God who is seldom mentioned in these discussions - clearly teaches not only negatives but positives for a happy, if not always pleasant, life.

Please avoid the term pro choice; it is a misnomer while sounding good. The issue is abortion, not choice. While we still must make a choice, the natural choice is life.

Kmart's attitude wrongs kids

ensorship under any guise is a danger to our communities.

In the case of Kmart's decision to ban Earvin "Magic" Johnson's book "What you can do to avoid AIDS," the outcome could be fatal for teenagers.

Kmart, along with Walgreen drugstores, has decided the book is inappropriate for their shoppers. A Kmart spokesman cited the graphic nature of the book as the reason for the ban.

"We're not a bookstore," said the spokesman. Kmart shelves are often lined with cheap Victorian paperbacks, decorated with covers of masculine rogues in the process of deflowering some innocent maiden.

Most refer to that as trash - trash without an ounce of socially redeeming value, trash written to titillate, trash which portrays a total ly false image of relationships between men and women - but one which sells.

Apparently Troy-based Kmart, a leader in the American retail industry, thinks it's appro priate to mislead children but not so good to inform them about a disease which kills.

For years Johnson was a sports hero of monu mental proportions. Corporate America paid him millions to hawk their products, mainly to children.

But all that changed when Johnson announced that he tested HIV positive - the precursor to a fully developed case of AIDS.

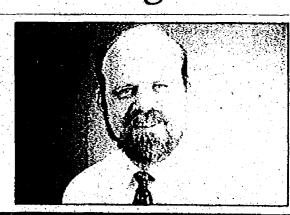

Young people around our nation were crushed. Johnson, more than anyone else, represented hope to millions of youngsters who otherwise had none. They admired and listened to Johnson because he had defied the odds, overcome racial and class barriers.

He was the American dream.

Now, short of a miracle cure, which all experts agree isn't even pecking over the horizon, Johnson will die of AIDS.

All the money, fame and fortune won't save

But kids still listen to Magic Johnson, and now it's corporate America's obligation to carry his very important and lifesaving message.

This message may not be as colorful or as profitable, but it is more important than any other Johnson has ever carried to his fans.

Johnson's book has been endorsed by several very credible organizations, including the American Medical Association, the Children's Defense Fund and the Pediatric AIDS Foundation, among others.

Other retail outlets, including Kmart's Waldenbooks subsidiary, carry the book.

Kmart executives need to remove their eyes from the bottom line and take a look at all the children in their stores. They, and their parents, deserve to have the message made available to them.

AIDS is a disease out of control. The number of victims increase and the only way, absolutely the only way to stem the tide of this modernday plague, is education.

Kmart and other retailers who have decided to yank Johnson's book from their shelves should give it another chance. It could be one of their children who are saved from the death sentence offered up by AIDS.

POINTS OF VIEW

State maps improving but are still found lacking

at Nowak wasn't just trumpeting bureaucratic air when he said Michigan's 1992 transportation map is improved.

The boss of the state Department of Transportation said there are more than 300 changes, and pointed out a few. But his press release didn't point out the biggest change of all:

No picture of the governor. For the first time in a generation, at least, MDOT's map has no color photo of the chief executive. The Great Lake State is rare if not alone in the nation in that regard.

John Engler often accused his predecessor, Jim Blanchard, of using state publications to trumpet himself. There's a puffy message about our 11,000 lakes and 3,200 miles of shoreline with Engler's scrawl, and that's

The big news is that Michigan has turned the corner in admitting we have a treasure in our 2.7 million acres of National Forests.

Until 1962, our maps showed the National Forests in a green tint; then they mysteriously disappeared. For a dozen years I griped about it. The bureaurcracy gave conflicting reasons for eliminating them.

Nearly all states I have visited and studied show National Forests on their maps. Colorado would be nothing without them, Even Indiana and Illinois show them.

Michigan's four National Forests -Ottawa and Hiawatha in the UP, Manistee and Huron in the northern lower - have 80 campgrounds that are, on average, better maintained than State Forest campgrounds. But for 30 years, state government has refused to admit the existence of National Forests. Our freeway welcome centers at Monroe, Quincy and New Buffalo carry no literature about National Forests.

TIM RICHARD

Nowak's regime has made a partial improvement. The map text has two paragraphs on the forests and where to write for information.

I still want them shown on the map. There would be no "clutter," as the bureaucracy says - just a green tint. The map is, in Nowak's own words, "the mainstay of the travel industry."

For the first time, MDOT's map shows the locations of nine sunken ships off our coastlines. Nice touch. But I'll warrant thousands more families visit the National Forest campgrounds than dive to see sunken ships.

MDOT's chart of state parks - locations and facilities — is improved by slightly larger type.

A major change is more inset maps of cities. Mount Pleasant, Adrian and Traverse City appear for the first time.

And there's an inset map of downtown Detroit showing streets, convention halls and the People Mover route.

That's understandable. Before ascending to his lofty post in Lansing, the cherubic Nowak was deputy Oakland County executive and chair of the suburban public transit board. Unlike traditional highway men, Nowak appreciates non-auto transportation

MDOT's new map also shows the route of car ferry across Lake Michigan from Ludington to Manitowoc.

Unlike maps you buy in the gas station, MDOT's map is distributed free. Some two million copies have been printed for $430,000, equal to the salaries of 10 state legislators and a much.

better deal. Average cost is 21.5 cents apiece. For the first time, MDOT's map is printed on recycled paper.

I've come across travel books and calendars about Michigan that were printed on other continents. Not the MDOT map. Once again, the printer is Michigan Litho Inc., of Grand Rapids.

Want a nice new map? Try MDOT welcome centers, local chambers of commerce, the Michigan Travel Bureau, MDOT district offices or your friendly state legislator. Or send a post card with your full address to: MAPS, MDOT, PO Box 30050, Lansing 48909. And ask 'em to show the National Forests next time. Tim Richard reports regularly on the local implications of state and regional

Super foods' may just be a government cover-up

'm keeping a real close eye on my vegetable garden this year. And I'd advise all of you other home gardeners to do the same.

You see, I've been reading about these new "super foods," the ones that are "genetically engineered." And I'm starting to get just a little bit nervous about what might be growing behind the garage.

When I read the first story about tomatoes that could be ripened on the vine and still shipped out to supermarkets without any danger of rotting, I thought that was pretty neat.

And I thought all the worrywarts who were babbling about the lack of government testing and controls were just doomsayers who had nothing better to do. After all, hybridization splicing a piece of one plant onto another to produce a variety that is tastier or sturdier or prettier than the originals — has been around for a long time. So what is so different about genetic engineering?

"We have turned off the gene responsible for rotting."

That's how a spokesman for Calgene Inc., the California biotechnology company that got government approval to market the super tomato (called Flavr Savr), explained the process that is supposed to get red, juicy, tasty tomatoes from the vine to the dinner table — even in the middle of winter without spoiling or rotting.

Turned off the gene. That's how it works. Scientists have found a way to get into the chromosomes of plants and manipulate the genes (the basic stuff of life) to produce varieties that won't spoil, that will resist disease and that will even kill insects?

And what's really bizarre about this whole process is that they're combining plant genes with animal genes to produce strange new species.

Monsanto has taken a gene from a bacterium and inserted it into corn, potato and cotton plants to produce varieties that can kill insects but — so the geneticists say — cause no harm to humans or animals. Other cross-species breeding includes potatoes containing silk moth genes, corn with firefly genes and tomatoes with flounder genes.

If all this isn't weird enough, scientists at Michigan State University and James Madison University in Virginia have developed a plant that can produce plastic. And others in Princeton, N.J., are trying to develop a low-cholesterol pig.

(If they really used their imagination, they could combine pig genes with genes from chickens and potatoes and come up with a creature that would produce bacon and eggs with hashbrowns on the side.)

All of this conjures up images of bearded scientists working in dark laboratories pouring bubbling potions from one test tube to another with the help of assistants named Igor.

While some people worry about the medical and religious implications of such experiments, I keep wondering if that movie about "The Attack of the Killer Tomatoes" or the song about "The Eggplant That Ate Chicago" were as far-fetched as they seemed at the Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds," maybe he was trying to tell us something. And anyone who saw Charlton Heston in "Soylent Green" knows that the futuristic foodstuff in that tale wasn't really made from soybeans and lentils. That was just a government cover sto-

So what happens when those ears of corn with the firefly genes start flashing at me as I'm about to plop them into a pot of boiling water?

Are the tomatoes with the flounder genes going to swim away instead of cooking down into spagnetti sauce? Will those potatoes with the silk moth genes sprout wings and flutter off as soon as I dig them up?

When plants can fight off disease and insects without the help of dusts and sprays, how can I be sure that what's growing behind the garage doesn't turn out to be some kind of RoboCrop?

I don't know, but I'm keeping a close eye on my garden this year . . . from my kitchen window ... through binoculars.

Judge orders state to pay cost of trial court operation

State government may have to Ray local units hundreds of millions to operate trial courts if the Michigan Supreme Court upholds a lower court ruling.

Ingham Circuit Judge James Giddings, sitting as the court of claims, ruled last week the state must pay the costs of circuit, probate and district courts - estimated at $1 billion by winning attorney Douglas Van Essen of Grand Rap-

"We'd love to have the state pay the whole thing," said Larry Crake, R-Waterford, chairman of the Oakland County Board of Commissioners. "The attorneys will negotiate. It will not be $1 billion, and it will not be zero," he predicted.

The city of Northville, the two Plymouths and Canton Township opted out of the case. They see their 35th District Court as a moneymaker, not a cost burden.

Judges have estimated the cost of running trial courts statewide at $250 million to $400 million. That cost, on top of Michigan's $800 million in budget cuts over the last two

Van Essen's initial claim said the state owes Oakland County $16 million and Ann Arbor $1.1 million. Van Essen has pursued the case

Pay-to-play plan schools' last resort

If all goes as planned, Livonia Stevenson athletic director Roger Frayer can start searching for a new baseball and hockey coach July 9.

A month ago, baseball coach Dick DeVries retired and hockey coach Paul Ferguson resigned - and at the time no replacements were necessary. Not only were the Spartans losing coaches, they were losing baseball, hockey, tennis, golf, junior varsity soccer and cheerleading because of budget cuts in the Livonia school system.

But on Monday night, a pay-to-play policy passed the scrutiny of the Livonia Board of Education's finance committee and now faces a vote of the full

The board will vote July 8 on the pay-to-play plan. If the plan is ratified, Frayer, an avid golfer, will begin looking for coaches instead of trying to find his golf ball (in the woods?) the next afternoon.

Frayer is willing to sacrifice vacation time as long as it means Livonia schools can keep a full slate of athletics and other extracurricular activities. If payto-play is adopted, Frayer said, each student will have to pay an estimated $100 per sport at both the middle- and high-school levels.

"I truly believe that the tenor of everybody is we don't want pay-to-play, but as a last resort, to save athletics, it's worth a shot," said Frayer after attending a meeting with school officials Wednesday. "I think at this point in time, there is greater odds they will accept it than reject it. If we don't move and do something it'll be too late.

"I've had a lot of kids inquire to see if their sport was going to go. Cheerleaders asking if they're going to cheer, hockey players asking, 'What are we going to do?' I've even had parents from other school districts wanting to move to the Stevenson district because of. the soccer program but wondering if we're going to have JV soccerd Frayer has been involved in Livonia schools as a student, teacher, coach and administrator since 1955. After graduating from Franklin in 1965 and from Alma College in '69, Frayer coached at taught at Churchill from 1969 to 1978. He has been Stevenson's AD since '78.

Most of those years money and extracurricular programs have been ahundant. So it's hard to comprehend the changes.

"Gosh, in my career, every school I went to was new that fall and now we have to cut things," Frayer said. "It's the most difficult time I've seen in Livonia in my life. Everybody's kind of got a long face."

Stevenson has a strong booster club and in the future such clubs will be more important then ever. predicted Frayer. He has modeled the Stevenson booster club after the ones run by friend Bob Atkins, a former Redford Union athletic director who is now in the same capacity in the Walled Lake schools.

"Like Atkins once told me, 'You do what you have to do," Frayer said. "He got involved in so many pancake breakfast fund-raisers, I'm sure he got sore wrists."

Stevenson draws students from wealthier communities than Churchill and Franklin, but that doesn't mean the Spartans will get more athletes in the pay-to-play plan, according to Frayer.

"You've got to remember, I grew up in the south end and those people are just as concerned as those in the north about their kids," Frayer said. "Parents in all of Livonia will do whatever is in their power to give their kids the best."

Payne wins Jr. heavyweight belt

Craig Payne found out at mid-week his fight with Conroy Nelson would go on, then two days later Payne knocked out the Canadian champion to win the World Heavyweight Championship in London, Ontario.

By Steve Kowalski STAFF WRITER

Craig Payne still weighs more than he'd like but for the time being he owns a belt that fits just right.

Payne won the World Junior Heavyweight Championship Friday with a six-round knockout of Canadian champion Conroy Nelson in London, Ontario. Payne, who weighed in at 284 pounds, came home to Livonia wearing the new belt and fashioning a 6-1-1 record as a professional.

"I wanted to get the belt," said Payne, 30, "It's really nice looking," field or any well-knowns like Larry Holmes or George Foreman, but the new belt has some meaning.

Payne's professional comeback, which began last year after nearly a five-year layoff, is well ahead of sched-

"It's the next step up before I get Holyfield," said Payne, who beat Mike Tyson when the two were amateurs in the early '80s, "When the time comes I'm going to get it, but I'm not going to rush. You have to crawl before you can walk. Right now I'm still crwaling.

"(Trainer) Paul (Soucy) has been more impressive was he didn't know the fight would go on until two days prior when promoter Brandon Dunlop called Soucy and said the Canadian Boxing Commission would sanction the bout.

There was talk the Canadian commission wouldn't sanction the fight because none of Payne's previous professional fights lasted longer than four

The fight was scheduled for 10 rounds but Payne needed only three before he knocked Nelson down to one knee with a shot to the body.

Payne knocked Nelson down for the eight-count in Round 4 and finished the veteran fighter off in the sixth with a right hook. Nelson, who in 1985 was KO'd in two rounds by Tyson, fell to 20-18 as a professional.

What made Payne's knockout even Craig picked it up, stalked him and waited for the (time to throw the) hook. Craig hit him with a beautiful shot.'

> Payne, who lost his only professional fight last month to Chicago's Ty Evans in a decision at the Palace, said he was in good shape for Friday's bout.

"They told me (the week before) the fight was off (canceled) but I was still ready," Payne said. "I just took the fight like I was supposed to. I kept the heat on and hit him with everything I had. I fought like 'The old Craig Payne.'

Soucy said Payne might have to defend the World Junior Heavyweight title every three months but up next is a tournament put on by Pay Per View Television which starts in late July. If Payne wins all four boutstbigger paydays are guaranteed.

Pats' Warner $named\ MVP$ of all-stars

By Steve Kowalski Staff Writer

Livonia Franklin guard Dawn Warner showed last weekend why she was deserving of the 1991 Miss Basketball award.

Warner, who finished runnerup to Flint Powers' center Lisa Negri in the Miss Basketball voting last fall, was named Most Valuable Player for team Michigan in a two-game all-star series against Ohio.

Warner, headed to Western Kentucky on a scholarship, made a record five three-point shots and scored 27 points with five rebounds, six assists and three steals in a 90-79 loss Saturday at Grand Rapids' Welsh Arena.

Warner scored 18 points the night before in a 94-90 loss at Dayton, Ohio. Warner watched Negri pick up the Miss Basketball award at halftime of Saturday's game but winning the MVP award made some of the pain of not winning Miss Basketball go away.

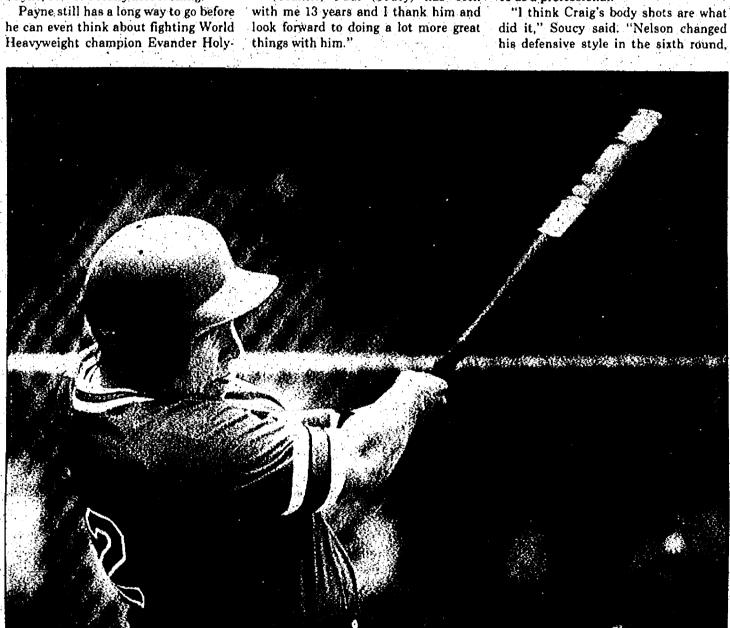

Plymouth Salem's Darcie Miller was on the Michigan roster but was unable to play because she was suffering from mononucleosis.

"Lisa got what she deserved, that's what people thought, they voted for her-(for Miss Basketball)," said Warner, Franklin's all-time leading scorer. "I'd rather have had that presentation at halftime - it made me kind of down - : but we're friends and I clapped for her. It will always be a nightmare in the back of my mind because I wanted to be Miss Basketball.

"But I'm happy I put on a good show. I came to play that day. It was fun to meet the all-stars. It was worth it, something to cap off my career." Warner's mother, Barbara, who is undergoing treatment for Hodgkins cancer, watched from the stands and that served as special motivation for the younger Warner.

Holmes, Garden City catcher Jenny Horosko, Mortiere, Brenny and Berrigan.

Canton's Jim Arnold was selected Coach of the Year after guiding the sixth-ranked Chiefs to a 32-4 record. Canton is 52.9 in two years under Arnold and won the Western Lakes Activities Association championship this year.

"I thought last year's team was equal in talent, but the togetherness of this team made the difference," Arnold said. "It was very much like a family."

ALL-AREA FIRST TEAM

Kelly Holmes, Junior, Canton: Holmes has played a major role in the Chiefs being 76-13 during the last three seasons. She has a 53-9 career record with 635 strikeouts and will add to those numbers next year.

In leading Canton to its best season. Holmes was 23-3 with 289 strikeouts as opposed to 47 walks in 1783/3 innings. Only nine of the 35 runs charged to her were earned, giving her an earned-run average of 0.35. Holmes allowed 48 hits and also had one save.

"A big reason for our success was Kelty Holmes," Canton coach Jim Arnold said. "I can't find any fault with her. She has an excellent attitude and a tremendous amount of desire.

"This kid can throw the softball. I tell other coaches they have to see our pitcher because she throws over 60 miles per hour. They can't believe anyone can throw that fast underhand."

Sherry Harper, senior, Garden City: Harper represented one half of Garden City's outstanding battery, stepping intothe role of lead pitcher and guiding the Cougars to another fine season.

She was 26-4 with 209 strikeouts and 54 walks in 171 innings. She posted a 0.98 ERA, with about half the 45 runs opponents scored being earned. Harper also was one of Garden City's top hitters, batting 421 with 40 hits in 95 plate appearances. She had six doubles, three triples, two homers and 38 RBI. Harper scored 40 runs

We were 29-4 as a team, and we wouldn't have been over .500 without Sherry," coach Barry Patterson said. She not only was our No. 1 pitcher but also our top run producer."

Jenny Horosko, senior, Garden City: Horosko was on the receiving end of the Garden City battery and was known for her hitting prowess as well as her defensive ability.

She batted .429 with 48 hits in 112 chances. Horosko drove in 33 runs and had eight doubles, eight triples and two home runs. She also walked 17 times. scored 40 runs and had a .696 slugging percentage.

Carrie Rachwal, senior, Glenn: Rachwal, who received a scholarship to play for Saginaw Valley State University, was a standout shortstop for the Rockets.

She batted 325, scored 27 runs and had 18 RBI. Rachwal had 28 hits and led the team with 25 singles. She also made 29 putouts and had 53 assists on defense. Her career batting average is .371.

'She's a base hit/fine drive hitter,' Glenn coach Linda Jimenez said. "She's a hard worker and a smart player. She has great range at shortstop and can get to the ground balls that most girls can't."

Vicki Lucas, senior, Churchill: Lucas, who will continue playing at Central Michigan University next year, played a key role. in the resurgent Chargers winning a district title and finishing 17-5.

'She's the best player to come out of Thurston, coach Tracy Lectka said. 'She' has a real strong, accurate arm. Her stepping in as our pitcher is an excellent example of that.

Sarah Schimmelpfenneg, senior, Canton: Schimme, as she is known to her coaches and teammates; roamed center field and solidified the center of the Canton defense with a .955 fielding percentage.

Schimmelpfenneg batted .337 and had 28 hits (three triples and one home run) and 28 RBI. She also walked 34 times, was 30 of 30 stealing bases and scored 37 runs.

Schimme is going to be missed in the outfield," Arnold said, adding she accepted and adjusted to a move from right to Karen Olack, senior, Glenn: Olack starred behind the plate for the Rockets and was an impressive hitter. She batted 384 with five doubles, five triples and one home run.

Olack also led the team with 29 RBI and scored 20 runs. She had 20 assists as the Glenn catcher.

We haven't had a hitter like Karen in a iong time." Jimenez said, adding Olack holds all the Glenn records, "She has been an asset in this program for three

Kathleen Berrigan, senior, Mercy: Berngan excelled at finding ways to get on base and score runs. Her on base percentage was 712 and she scored 47

Berrigan, a four-year starter in center field who plans to walk on at the University of Michigan, batted .593 (64-for-108), walked 17 times, stole 44 bases (including home eight times) and had 19 RBI.

"She wasn't feeling good Saturday but she came and I really love her support," Dawn said. "She says she loves watching me play and that's an inspiration in Itself. I just hope she stays healthy and well when I leave for school."

Warner leaves today with the Western Wayne Wildcats AAU team to play in New Mexico for the Junior Olympic 18-Under national championship. In late August she leaves town for good, starting school at Western Kentucky, which last year reached the NCAA Division I final game before losing to champion Stanford.

"I'm so excited for college," she said. "I'm getting all my bags packed, thinking what I have to buy - a refrigerator, iron, new clothes."

One thing she won't need is a new jump shoot.

Varga's play limited

Redford Catholic Central forward Chad Varga didn't have as many fond memories playing for team Michigan in the boys all-star series against Ohio.

Instead of dividing time evenly among the 10 players, Michigan coach Chuck Turner (Battle Creek Central) played Varga about seven minutes in Saturday's 101-99 win and about the same amount of time in Friday's 123-117 win in Dayton.

He failed to score each game. What made Varga's lack of playing time so puzzling was that in the spring he was named MVP of an AAU tournament in Toronto, playing on a team of similar all-stars.

Varga is headed to the University of Richmond. He is taking classes this summer at Richmond, as well as playing in a college summer league, and was unavailable for comment. But Richmond coach Dick Tarrant was eager to talk about Varga's progress.

"Whether Chad played seven minutes or 17 minutes (in the allstar game) makes no difference to me," said Tarrant, who has taken Richmond to the NCAA tournament in five of his 11 years. "I'm happy he was selected to the team. He's athletic as anything, he's very good around the basket and he's competitive. I just think he's going to be fine once he fits in with our chemistry."

'Albertine in Five Times' marvelous

Don't miss this story about a woman during five times in her life.

Performances of the Theatre Guild production of "Albertine in Five Times," continue weekends through July 12 at the Theatre Guild playhouse, 15138 Beech Daly, Redford. For ticket information call the box office at 538-5678.

By Bob Weibel Staff Writer

Characters in the Livonia-Redford Theatre Guild's "Albertine in Five-Times" remind one of a fine crystal that has fractured into ugly deformed pieces of glass.

As we learn about each piece, their rough edges seem softer. Indeed, the crystal slowly appears to become whole again. Not perfect to be sure. Stress cracks remain permanently etched. There is, however, beauty in understanding the life of a woman who has endured more than her share of pain. It is a show not to be missed.

Five actresses play Albertine at five different times in her life. Director, Jeffrey Nahan, does a fine job of staging playwright, Michael Tremblay's, challenging script. His cast interacts naturally as five visions of one personality. We see them as Albertine's memories, just after she enters a home for the eld-

Shirley Hulet is marvelous as Albertine at 70. One moment she's a wise, smiling silvery-haired woman; the next she's conflicted with tearful, painful memories. At long last she has reached the age of understanding.

As crises develop, she tries to advise those playing herself in earlier years. As has been the case for centuries, they never listen.

Barbara Coven scores as a youthful Albertine of 30, whose natural optimism has been tempered by a wayward high-quality, uniquely seasoned steaks, prime rib, chicken, WYGONIK ribs, fish, chops and pasta. The famed

"Bloomin' Onion," a colossal onion, dipped in batter, specially cooked and served with a spicy sauce, is a house specialty.

Located in a former Pier One, Outback Steakhouse has a comfortable Australian theme with blond woods, large booths and tables, Aussie memorabilia such as boomerangs, surfboards, maps and flags. Mark Wibel, formerly of Birmingham, Outback's joint venture partner for the Detroit area, said a second restaurant is scheduled to open at 15 Mile and Orchard Lake in West Bloomfield in the beginning of Septemin Novi, Rochester and Ann Arbor.

According to Nancy Schneid Swensson, vice president-marketing, the key to their success is "It's not just a steakhouse. We offer quality food and moderate prices." Outback Steakhouse with 28 locations, is based in Tampa, Fla. The Canton restaurant is their first in Michigan.

Attentive, friendly, upbeat servers take your orders. "If a customer wants the seasonings adjusted, no problem," said Swensson. "We test our staff for team spirit. They work well with others. They know how to get the job done."

Outback Steakhouse welcomes children. There's a special Joey's Menu for kids under 12 which features Boomerang Burgers, $2.45, Kookaburra Chicken Fingers, $2.45, Grilled Cheese-A-Roo, $2, Junior Ribs, $3.75 and Spotted Dog Sundae, $1.75.

At their grand opening on June 22, I tried a little bit of almost everything on the menu. The "Bloomin' Onion," $4.95, will appeal to crispy onion ring fans. They sell over a million pounds of them a year. Walkabout Soup, a thick creamy blend of onion, potatoes, and yellow cheese, $2.95 bowl, $1.95 cup, was delicious.

Try the Gold Coast Coconut Shrimp, six huge shrimp, dipped in beer batter, rolled in coconut, deep fried to a golden brown and served with orange marmalade sauce, $5.95 or the Grilled Shrimp On the Barbie, $5.95.

I tried the Chicken on The Barbie, seasoned grilled chicken breast served with barbecue sauce and fresh steamed vegetables, $7.95, The Outback Special, a 12-ounce center-cut sirloin, $10.95 and the Ribs on The Barbie, Danish baby back ribs, smoked and grilled, $10.95.

All were fabulous. If you don't like spicy food, ask them to adjust the seasoning. The steak, which was cooked medium rare, had a peppery taste.

Entrees are served with choice of house or Caesar salad, bread and choice of jacket (baked) potato, Aussie chips, or fresh steamed vegetables.

Leave room for dessert. Sydney's Sinfal Sundae, vanilla ice cream rolled in toasted coconut, covered in chocolate sauce and topped with whipped cream, $2.95, cheesecake with raspberry sauce. $2.75 or Chocolate Thunder From Down Under, fresh-baked brownie, vanilla ice cream, hot chocolate sauce, and chocolate shavings, $3.95.

Drink offerings include The Wallaby Darned, a frozen wonder of Peachtree schnapps, champagne, rum and secret mixers, $3.95, Australian beer, wine, as well as, local favorites.

Outback Steakhouse is open for dinner only, 4-10 p.m. Monday-Thursday, 4-11:30 p.m. Friday-Saturday, 3:30-10 p.m. Sundays. Credit cards - American Express, Diners Club, MasterCard and Visa.

Passion, raw energy in Stratford's 'Romeo and Juliet'

Performances of "Romeo and Juliet" presented at the Stratford Festival Stage through November 15. For ticket information, call the Festival Box Office at 964-4668.

BY HUGH GALLAGHER Staff Writer

· The Stratford Festival's production of "Romeo and Juliet" has all the youth, passion and raw energy that Shakespeare intended and the stage rarely delivers.

This production, which runs in repertory through Nov. 15 at the has two lovers who actually look the part of giddy teenagers and yet handle the magic of Shakespeare's lanaguage with insight, intelligence and clarity. Here are two leads that bring the youth of Franco Zefirelli's famous film version but handle the language with more vitality and understanding.

Megan Porter Follows, star of television's "Anne of Green Gables," is a young woman in her 20s who easily passes for the 14year-old Juliet. She brings to the Ontario theater's Festival Stage, part the flushed look of a girl enraptured by the latest pop star, which is exactly the intensity Shakespeare had in mind for a love that is more girlish rapture than profound attraction. Follows moves comfortably and speaks the lilting verse with ease. She is Juliet and is well matched by her Romeo.

Antoni Cimolino has the larger role and has more opportunity to lose the thread, but he rarely does. Here is the perfect Romeo, not a wimpy, love-struck sap but a boisterous young man looking for love and adventure wherever he can find it. Cimolino handles the language with skill and gives vibrance to the impassioned speeches, but he is equally believeable carousing and jesting with his buddies.

"Romeo and Juliet" is not so much about the triumph of love over death as it is about the foolishness of adults who allow the young to suffer for their quarrels. The "love" of Romeo and Juliet is an ardent but superficial passion brought to boiling by the rivalry of their families.

Directon Richard Monette suggests this theme by doing the props and costumes in the style of 1930s' fascist Italy. The idea of political tension and impending war is made but never forced and Monette doesn't make the mistake of altering the text or making obvious references to that period. Debra Hanson's props and costumes are brilliant from the playboy whites to the brown shirt uniforms to Juliet's soft girlish fashion. The clothes and props are close enough to our own. time to emphasize the timelessness of Shakespeare's poetry and wis-

As always Stratford surrounds its leads with superb supporting actors. Barbara Bryne is funny as Juliet's garrulous and doting nurse, making every comment hilariously clear. Colm Feore, who a few years back played Romeo on the Stratford thrust stage, is an approriately rowdy and bitter Mercutio, Romeo's. "ill-fated friend. Lorne Kennedy is a tempetuous Tybalt proudly strutting in his Mussolini garb. Bernard Hopkins as Friar Lawrence brings sympathy to his role of a peacemaker who sees his plan go tragically they overlook potential income sources, he said.

The best thing about this production is that it offers a perfect introduction to Shakespeare for young and old alike.

The National Governors Association estimates that allowing states to collect sales taxes on goods bought via direct mail would raise more than $70 million a year for Michigan.Industry shakeout.

Steve Simons, president of Group SAA Limited, a Farmington Hillsbased company specializing in the production and distribution of mail-order catalogs, said those who argue for new legislation may be missing a more subtle point.

"A lot of Michigan retailers are non-mail order and could care less if the industry succeeds or not," he said. Everyone should be concerned, however, because most mail order companies are small businesses, and it is the small business that truly drives the economy.

The level playing field traditional retailers are calling for would be a less populated one, he argued.

"What it will do is shrink the industry by 40 to 50 percent," he said. While that might please larger mail-order companies that can cope with the new requirements and the traditional retailers, it would be bad news for consumers and entrepreneurs.

As corporate America continues to downsize, the government should encourage, not discourage entrepreneurs. Much of the mail-order industry's growth can be attributed to the ability of entrepreneurs to start and maintain businesses with low overhead.

"This means less competition and higher prices for the consumer," he said. Not a windfall.

Chet Dalzell, spokesman for the national Direct Marketing Association, said the notion that mail order companies collecting taxes would result in substantial revenues for states is just wrong.

Most of the figures he has heard $70 million in additional tax revenues to the states - are from a 1987 update of a 1984 study by the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations.

Those figures are unadjusted and actually include revenue that is already being collected by direct marketers who have a presence in the

The figures are also wrong because they fail to factor in that a large segment of the direct-marketing industry is tax exempt (sales of insurance and investments) or largely exempt (sales of magazines, foods and pharmaceuticals), he

Dalzell said mail-order companies already collect taxes in states where they have a physical presence, but asking companies - the vast majority of which are small businesses - to keep track of 46 sales taxes and an untold number of local taxing districts is unfair.

Catalog merchants confident of a win

So begins the legislative tussle. Just because the Supreme Court has tossed the political football to Congress doesn't mean that bodies, he said. lawmakers will choose to run with

In one corner, retail associations and some state governments have already begun lobbying legislators to enact laws to amend the interstate commerce laws. In the other corner, direct marketers are already making plans to bombard the Congressmen should a proposal be

Chet Dalzell, spokesman for the Direct Marketing Association, said he believes the prospect that Congress will change the law and ask mail order companies to begin collecting and forwarding taxes to states and taxing bodies is remote.

"A bill proposing that was killed on its lack of merit two years ago," Dalzell said.

In 1989, Congress reviewed interstate commerce regulations and decided against any changes at the time, he said. "Any legislation is likely to be defeated until we have a uniform tax code — which isn't very likely.

If all states collected the same sales tax, then mail order companies would be able to collect sales taxes more easily, he said. Mail order companies would still be burdened by the task of transmitting the taxes to the respective taxing

Steven Simons, president of Group SAA Limited, a Farmington Hills-based company specializing in the production and distribution of mail order catalogues, said those who argue for the tax collection as a way to tap new revenue sources might be surprised.

In order to collect the taxes, those same governments that see a potential windfall would be forced to set up an elaborate system to audit and monitor' thousands of mail order companies.

"Most of those companies are probably making revenues of $1 million to $10 million," he said. Any revenues gained by the states would likely be eaten away by the bureaucratic system created to monitor it, he said.

"If they were to pass the law tomorrow, it would be better (to focus) on the larger companies."

Simons suggested that an exemption should be made for smaller companies. The government already distinguishes between small and large companies for other purposes, such as employment regulation and taxes.

Direct marketers face tax challenge

Individual states can't compel mail-order companies to collect sales tax from customers and forward the money to the various capitals, the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled. But Congress can. The battle lines are drawn and consumers are in the middle.

By Gerald Frawley

For anyone who's ever bought something from a mail-order company, take notice - conventional retailers hope to set into motion legislation that would hamper direct marketers' way of doing business.

Recently, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled 8-1 in the case of Quill Corporation vs. North Dakota Department of Revenue that state laws charging mail order companies with the responsibility of collecting state taxes on merchandise sold and then transferring those taxes to the buyer's state are unconstitution-

What sounds like a victory for mailorder companies, however, holds serious overtones for the industry. In its decision, the court advised that Congress, if it chooses to do so, can pass legislation requiring the collection.

Retailers and some state governments are lining up behind proposals to urge Congress to do just that.

Direct marketers are urging Congress to maintain existing laws.

Jeff Freedman, president of the Canton Township-based mail-order electronics distributor Planet Electronics, said requiring companies like his to collect taxes would be a burden - perhaps not an insurmountable burden; but it would surely create a hardship.

With the right computer equipment and software - and with constant updates - a mail order company could conceivably collect taxes from each of its customers and transmit them back to the respective state, but the result could mean some companies that are unable to cope with the changes would be forced out of business, he said.

Freedman said it's common practice for mail-order firms to inform customers they still have an obligation to pay a use tax — which is equivalent to a sales tax - to their state. "The consumer has the chance to tell the truth or not (on the yearly tax form).'

Regardless of the legalities of the issue. Freedman said the argument for a level playing field just doesn't stand up. "People don't buy from us because they hope to avoid paying sales tax; they buy because we sell products you can't get from a local store.

People also buy from mail-order houses for convenience' sake, he said. "It (avoiding sales tax) may be an added plus, but it's not the reason mailorder businesses succeed,"Level playing field.

James P. Hallan, president and chief operating officer of the Michigan Association of Retailers, said the association of more than 3,400 small retailers is merely seeking a more level playing Related story, previous page field."This is an issue of equity, of pari-

"If you have a small businessman in Michigan who has invested in the community and he is competing with a company advertising heavily in this area, why should (the small business) have to (collect) a sales tax and not the other guy?"

Calling the lack of sales tax for catalog and other direct-market merchandisers a "$3 billion a year tax loophole which enables out-of-state catalog and other direct-marketing firms to avoid collecting state taxes on the goods they sell," the Michigan Association of Retailers is urging Michigan's congressional delegation to enact and support legislation compelling mail-order houses to collect sales taxes.

Hallan said it is also an issue of revenue. In a time when many states are strapped for cash, they are remiss if

Restaurant chain competes for part of breakfast market

By R.J. King Special Writer

As the backbone of a new campaign to generate more revenues at its non-mall restaurants, Troybased Olga's Kitchen, Inc. has opened its doors to the highly competitive morning crowd.

Olga's breakfast menu is geared to heart-smart diners: smoked turkey hash, fresh fruit platters, natural granola cereal, a yogurt cooler with protein powder and three-egg omelettes prepared with a non-cholesterol alternative.

"Since we were traditionally open for lunch and dinner, the morning represented idle time for us, so it was a natural evolution to open for breakfast," said Michael Sadofsky, vice president of marketing and advertising for Olga's, which opened its first restaurant in 1970 in downtown Birmingham.

"But knowing the level of competition out there, from fast food to sit-down diners, we felt the only way to compete was to offer something different. That means fresh ingredients cooked to order in under five minutes."

Strategy questioned

Still, even healthy food served in a wisp of time doesn't guarantee success.

Jeff Gabriel, a chef and instructor within the culinary arts program at Schoolcraft College in Livonia, said if given a choice, he would never go into the breakfast market.

"A restaurant which opens for breakfast is basically breaking even," said Gabriel. "How many dollars can you bring in when the average customer spends only $3 or $4? If you have 100 customers each morning, that's $300 to $400.

"If you have six or seven employees making $5 to $6 an hour, you may make a little bit of money. Personally, I would never go into the breakfast market. The dinner market is where you make your money, because there people are spending $18 to $20 apiece:"

Because Olga's already has an established lunch and dinner crowd, make or break the company. Last year, Olga's reported $50 million in revenues from 53 restaurants across the nation, 20 of which are in Metro Detroit.

What's more, since the morning represents idle time at Olga's, a break-even breakfast campaign could help boost its profit margin if the new money coming in is enough to pay the respective share of rent and utilities, which are costs generated whether a restaurant is open or

But Olga's doesn't plan on breaking even. To lead the breakfast campaign, which began in February, the chain brought aboard William Pickett, former executive chef and co-founder of the Beverly Hills Grill as well as executive chef at the Richard & Reiss Restaurant, both of which are located in Birming-

The game plan

"We didn't want to do just an omelette wrapped in a piece of Olga bread and call it breakfast," said Pickett, who left the former restaurants last December due to time constraints. "Knowing the level of competition we were up against, we had to make a statement and set ourselves apart from fast food and the $1.99 breakfast served at places like Denny's."

Enter the smoked turkey hash, which Pickett said was a healthler alternative to corned beef hash, which is often prepared from the fatty portion of a brisket. The chef also created a cinnamon coffee, fritters, mustins, french toast, Belgian waffles and a yogurt cooler made with honey, bananas, orange juice and strawberries.

Still, there are deep pockets to outlets over the next few years.

offering breakfast isn't likely to challenge. From the beginning, fastfood competitors like McDonald's and Burger King have offered breakfast with convenience and taste in mind, with little thought for nutritional value. The strategy has worked out well.

Breakfast brings in about 20 cents of every dollar McDonald's cash registers ring up, even as a recent issue of Consumer Reports found that fast-food egg sandwiches with cheese and meat like McDonald's Egg McMuffin and Burger King's Croissan'wich pack between 700 to 850 calories per serving. The Croissan'wich contains 40 grams of fat, close to twothirds of a day's fat quota.

While convenience has always been high on the list of breakfast eaters on the go, only recently, with the advent of healthier diets, has nutrition been a consideration.

Pickett said his biggest challenges in bringing breakfast to Olga's was creating a healthier menu while working out time, logistic and training factors. Prices were also kept low.

"In preparing the menu, most of my time was spent measuring how long it took to prepare, cook and serve an item," said Pickett.

While Sadofsky declined to reveal how much Olga's spent bringing the breakfast campaign up to speed, he said the company hired over two dozen new employees to complement existing staffs, To date, breakfast is available 7 to 11 a.m. every day except Sunday, when hours are 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Only the Birmingham, Lathrup Village and West Bloomfield restaurants serve breakfast, though Sadofsky said the chain will expand portions of the menu to most of its

FLAP takes on scales of justice

The legal system can be a scary proposition, if you've never had contact with it. But attorneys from throughout the metropolitan area are making it user friendly for the victims of domestic violence through a new program offered by First Step, western Wayne's domestic violence program.

By Sue Mason Staff Writer

Judy Ellis doesn't mind creating a FLAP. Neither does Gerard Mantese. In fact, they've found a number of attorneys in the metropolitan area that are of the same opinion.

FLAP, according to Noah Webster, is to become excited or confused. Ellis. Mantese and company are excited, but forget the confusion. There's none of that when it comes to the First Step Legal Advocacy Program, better known as Ellis is executive director of First Step, First Step, western Wayne County's project on domestic violence; Mantese is an attorney with the firm of Honigman, Miller, Schwarz and Cohn. Together with Kelly Machado, an attorney and president of First Step's board of directors, and advocate Kisa Kunitz, they came up with a three-phase program to provide legal assistance for battered women.

The program addresses an issue that surfaced in study by the Michigan Supreme Court two years ago. Women don't have equal representation in the

"And let's face it, the criminal justice system is frightening in and of itself."

By placing ads in several legal journals, including the Michigan Bar Journal, Mantese, as the FLAP coordinator, lined up 53 attorneys from 33 law firms throughout Wayne and Oakland counties to provide pro bono (free) services to clients of First Step.

"The response was overwhelming," Mantese said. "Attorneys from small and large firms signed up. Most don't practice in the area, but wanted to

An expertise in family law wasn't a requirement to join the program; in fact, the attorneys' backgrounds are as varied as the areas they come from. Mantese, for example, specializes on commercial litigation, Machado in immigration and labor law.

Working with attorneys Rosanne Less and David Brown who are experts in family law, Mantese developed a training seminar for the volunteer attorneys to prepare them for the work. There also are 3-4 family law practitioners available to serve as mentors for the volunteers.

Gift worth singing about

By Sue Mason Staff Writer

It's not hard to tell that Brenda Key is proud of her daughter. It shows up in her words and gestures, in the way she talks about the good times and the bad times that weave a fine thread through their lives,

And it's not hard to tell the Redford Township family is a strong believer in God's goodness. The mention of God surfaces many times in her talk about Lorra who just graduated from Thurston High School.

As Key sees it, God deserves the credit for Lorra's "wonderful gift." You see Lorra's gift is her voice, a voice that doctors some 18 years ago said might never sound right. Lorra was born with a cleft palate involving both the hard and soft palates of her mouth.

"It was like taking my heart out, throwing it on the ground and stomping on it," said Key of being told by doctors of her daughter's problems. "But the Lord has taken something so painful and turned it into such a wonderful gift.

"The end result is what we look at and it far outweighs what we went through."

Lorra underwent six major operations to slowly close the gaping hole in the roof of her mouth and a like number of operations to close a hole in her eardrum. Much of her early childhood was spent recuperating from operations or receiving speech therapy.

Today, without the benefit of voice lessons, Lorra sings Christian music in a middle to alto soprano

On the road: Lorra Key of Redford will have a chance to see what a Christian music ministry is like when she spends three months with The Continentals, a Christion singing troupe.

An early start

She started sing at age 8 at Bethel Missionary Assembly of God Church in Livonia and has gone on to perform in musicals and at school. She has collected a variety of singing awards, including recent first places in district and state competition for a duet she did with her cousin Jaci Reid.

And it is her voice that Lorra wants to use to bring God's message to others. It's her goal to pursue a Christian music ministry - to be a Christian gospel singer, music teacher and choir director.

She'll get a chance to experience the life of a Christian singer this fall. She has been picked to tour with The Continentals, a traveling Christian music troupe.

"Lorra is totally motivated to singing," her mother said. "She told me that 'I want to sing first to the Lord and through the Lord to the people."

It was through her church that Lorra heard about The Continentals. The minister's son suggested she audition for the troupe.

Lorra sent in an application, a tape of her singing "I'll Talk to My Father for You" and "Via de la Rosa' and a testimonial as to why she wanted to be in The Continentals. Within two weeks' time, she got word that she had been picked to perform for three months

"We never tried to push Lorra; she just developed and blossomed with people's help," her mother said. "Even though she won a lot of awards at school, it was the church that brought her along more than anything else. I believe the church recognized her real gift."

The Continentals is a non-denominational Christian group that began touring 17 years ago. Specializing in upbeat contemporary Christian music, the group has grown to 14 troupes of 25 singers and 12-14 musicians that tour throughout the United States and the world.

On the road

Lorra will receive a copy of the group's music in August to begin rehearsing at home. She will leave Sept. 14 for Denver. Colo., where she will go immediately to a two-week rehearsal camp before the troupe does the first of more than 30 concerts in the United States, Switzerland, Germany and Holland.

The concert schedule includes four stops in Michigan - Ypsilanti, Lansing, Newberry and Ann Arbor --Oct. 11-14 and the Keys are planning to take in as many of the ones closest to their Redford Township home as possible.

According to Key, the group members stay in private homes, affording the opportunity to meet a lot of new people. However, the trip still will cost Lorra $5,000. She has gotten "an overwhelming response" financially from church people and family members in raising

"It's so neat that so many people who were a part of out lives since she was a baby have so much joy and are excited for her," Key said. "Many of the well-known Christian artists started out with The Continentals, like Wayne Watson, Sandi Patti and Scott Wesley

Crouse is a gregarious guy with a big voice to match his size. He said, "I have been playing bridge since my mother taught me in 1935, and I've been playing seriously for the last 15 years."

'At various times, Crouse has written bridge columns for the Oakland Press, Royal Oak Daily Tribune, Grosse Pointe News and the Macomb Daily. In his column for the O&E, he will concentrate on local players, talking primarily about games he has played with them.

Teaches bridge classes

Besides writing about bridge, Crouse teaches classes for beginner. basic, intermediate and advanced players throughout the year at the West Bloomfield Community Education Department. He has been teaching there for the last three years. Crouse spends three days a week teaching bridge, not only for community education but also privately, usually to groups of up to eight people.

Now working to be a life master, bridge's highest category of expertise, Crouse is active on the area bridge circuit. He said, "I play club tournaments and then go off to regionals two or three times a year."

He said he had never played a lot of duplicate bridge but because he decided to teach and write about bridge, he wanted to become a life master. "The master rating is a very important factor în bridge," he acknowledged.

During his working years, he traveled a lot on his job, especially to New York. "I joined the Regency Whist Club in New York City in 1959," he said. "It was 'the' bridge club - the premiere bridge club in the world. I got to know a lot of the great players and played with them.'

To Crouse, greats of the bridge world such as the late Oswald Jacoby and the late Charles Goren are "Ozzie" and "Charlie." "Ozzie took me aside and really taught me how to play the game of bridge," he said.

Purposes of his new column are threefold: "To have fun, to teach bridge and to relate to good players who play the game. Two-thirds of the columns are personalized, to just your readership players."

5 tapped for Oaks Fashion Guild

Five women from Livonia and Westland have been selected as members of the Twleve Oaks Fashion Guild, a popular volunteer organization that aids fundraising events throughout the area.

The new guild members are Karen Leupold, Mary Kris Stanchina and Betty Wells of Livonia. The Westland members are Shawna Farthing and Kim Hla-

A varied group of 42 women from throughout the metro area were chosen for the Fashion Guild. Many are married, have children and busy careers. They range in age from 21 to 69 and wear petite to large dress sizes.

"We look for a representation of the community we serve," said Barbara Carey, Twelve Oaks fash. ion coordinator ..

During their stint on the guild, the threesome will appear in fashions shows for the Novi mall and fund-raisers for clubs and charities like the Salvation Army, Project Hope and the Sarah Fisher Home.

"The Fashion Guild reflects the contemporary fashion image of Twelve Oaks," said marketing director Elaine Kah. "But at the same time, the guild serves the community directly through its participation in a wide range of fund-raising events."

For the three women, the Fashion Guild offers an opportunity to take part in community events., make new friends and further develop their fashion sense, Carey added.

Kim Hladun

Leupold, who enjoys fashions because she likes to look her best, said the guild offers he a chance "to visit some beautiful places in the area and feel good about myself." She has four children.

Stanchina said fashion offers the opportunity to "be what you want to be." She hopes to acquire "more experience and knowledge as a local model." An office administrator for IDS Financial Services, she keeps fit playing volleyball and softball.

Searching for lively fashions for older women was what sparked Wells' interest in the guild. It creates " a climate conducive to experimenting with fashions," she

Slant of handwriting shows she is a poised person

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

Ms. Green, I am 40 years. old and righthanded. I am a senior at Eastern Michigan University, studying to become an elemenschool teacher. I read column vour every week and am very interested to see what my handwriting might reveal about my personality. I hope that you will choose my sample to analyze. Thank you.

We will begin our graphology study today with the slant of this handwriting. Slant speaks to us about the writer's emotional makeup. This young woman writes with a vertical slant which is a deviation from American copybook. It suggests one who is poised and outwardly controlled. In addition, she is cautious and rarely impulsive. She will take time to assess a situation and how it is going to affect her personally before becoming in-

People who have a desire to express their individuality and hunger for freedom often break away from copybook and develop their own unique style. This suggests the courage of an independent mind Livonia and is certainly true of our writer.

We are analyzing an intelligent thinking type young woman. Augmenting this is a controlled, but inquiring mentality that thrives on facts. She tends to mistrust mental embroidery and subjective thinking.

Self-reliant with inner resources of strength, she has a need for status as well as stroking.

Seemingly, she has a built-in sense of order. Her daily routine is well organized. She is time-aware and does not waste hers on nonessentials. Efficiency is her hallmark. She also has a special ability for unique and creative problem solving. At times a little intuition furnishes some answer, I suspect.

Will power, determination and drive, all qualities for success, are much in evidence in this handwriting. She is realistic, practical and Pervasive in this handwriting are signs of irritation. Her patience is easily strained. Without seeing samples of handwriting done at other times, I am unable to say if this is a temporary condition or a life style. I can only hope it is temporary as young children need a teacher who has a great patience and strong empathy. I also detect some dissatisfaction with present conditions.

Our writer appears to be more goal oriented than social. Although at times she can be quite charming. She needs her time and space and does not like others intruding on

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. "We want the attorneys to identify with First Step; we want them to know our goals and believe what we doing and what the staff is doing." Ellis added.

Volunteers are asked to work a minimum of 10 hours a year. Cases are assigned on a rotating basis and volunteers work one case at a time.

In phases

In anticipation of a flood of requests from First Step clients for legal assistance, FLAP is being phased in. The first phase involved. the set-up of walk-in clinics the. first and third Thursdays of the month at the Church of the Holy Spirit in Livonia and First Step's office in Southgate.

Currently, the attorney provide legal counseling and help clients obtain restraining orders, injunctions and simple divorces - no children. Saturday they will be meet to discuss the start of the second phase - handling more complicated divorces, custody cases and related matters. Mantese would like to be in the position to assign more complex cases beginning in July.

The third phase is to work on changing the institutions and systems which deal with batterings: and rape to increase the effectiveness of the criminal justice system's response to those crimes.

Anywhere from 5-10 women show up at the clinics on a given evening and the questions they field are "extremely varied," Mantese said.

"They point out the basic lack of information women have about their rights," he said. "They come in feeling powerless, but with the clinics they can ask questions with-

"The attorneys are sensitive to is- out fear. They get solid information, "And the legal knowledge they get from the clinic carries over into their lives. They feel more in control of their destiny.

Ellis and Mantese agree that husiness will boom with the start of the second phase and are hoping to attract more attorneys and financial support for FLAP. Currently, the program is absorbing the costs of such things and court filings and depositions.

Support needed

First Step has written some grant requests and the amount of money FLAP attracts will "determine how quickly and heavily we jump into the more complex cases," Ellis said. Ideally, she would like to have enough money to hire a staffer to schedule the clinics, track cases and recruit even more attorneys.

A step in that direction is coming from the State Bar, which has provided plenty of advice and guidance. The Bar is looking at FLAP as a model for similar programs inthe state and is about to certify it as a pro bono association, Ellis said.

"This can be exciting for an attorney because you can help change a person's life and broaden your knowledge," Mantese said. "It's a way of having an impact, especially if you're looking for important litigation where you can get involved.

"I handle my first restraining order for the program and for me, it was very rewarding."

Attorneys interested in helping the First Step Legal Advocacy Program can call Ellis at 525-2230 or Mantese at 256-7705; And they'll get something in return.

"We can promise them a rewarding experience," Ellis said,

Taking God's word door-to-door

By Taylor Lincoln

When door-to-door salespeople are bluntly told "we're not interested," they probably avoid returning to that house.

But Jehovah's Witnesses are not dissuaded by a polite "nothanks," or even by a door in the

"A lot of people who aren't interested always wonder why we keep coming back to the door," said Lisa Barton, a Jehovah's Witness from Westland.

"We come back because the situation might have changed. Somebody might have died or somebody might have lost their job - that affects the way people respond," she said. Then there's another possibility. New people might live at the address.

Witnesses might even approach a house with a sign requesting that proselyters stay away.

"I would probably knock on the door and ask if the sign is directed towards a particular religion," said Tom Kayfes, the presiding overseeer of the Plymouth congre-

Jehovah's Witnesses make up a religious order which derives its philosophy from biblical prophecies that the world will one day become a single kingdom ruled by

"God's kingdom is going to doaway with all earthly kingdoms," said Ernie DeCarlo, an elder in the West Livonia congregation.

'We don't solicit membership, but what we try to do is encourage people to learn about the Bible.

Glenn Wilson

Garden City

'Yes, there are some forms of government that are better than others but there are a lot of shortcomings."

Bearing witness

According to DeCarlo, the Jehovah's Witnesses religion was formed in the 1890s in Pittsburgh. The world headquarters have since moved to Brooklyn, N.Y., and the membership has grown to about 4.5 million people worldwide, about two million of whom live in the United States.

Jehovah's Witnesses are forbidden from heavy-drinking, smoking, promiscuity and using profanity.

They participate in five meetings per week, which take place on three different days. Four of the meetings occur entirely in the Jehovah's Witnesses' place of worship, the Kingdom Hall. Members break into small groups for the fifth meeting.

None of the members of the order are paid, and all must participate in "door-to-door ministry," in which Jehovah's Witnesses attempt to educate people about the Bible.

Although gaining converts is a possible long-term result of the visitations, Witnesses insist that their goals are purely educational. "We don't solicit membership, but what we try to do is encourage people to learn about the Bible," said Glenn Wilson of the Garden City congregation. "It's because we follow the acts of the apostles - they all went door-to-door."

Some opposition

Witnesses frequently meet people who are unwilling to listen, and occasionally encounter outright opposition.

"Some of them are very abrupt" and rude. All we can do is go to the next door," said Wilson.

Barton has even experienced physical confrontation though not while going door-to-door,

"Sometimes we'll (approach) people when they are coming out of the grocery store and they will intentionally hit us with their carts or their bags," she said.

Despite the opposition, Witnesses report meeting a lot of willing listeners.

"You need to involve them in a conversation and find out what they think the (world's) problems are, and see if they think that man will be able to solve the problems or whether there will have to be divine intervention," said Kales. "When you go with that kind of a message to the people, they are willing to talk."

Barton reports finding more attentive listeners in poorer neighborhoods than in wealthier ones.

"If you are working in an affluent town, some people may not be as interested because they already have what they need in life," she said. "They don't have to worry about violence, or drug dealers; or some of the other atrocities."

Although Witnesses are persistent in returning to houses, they say that they do not pressure people to listen to their message.

A Westland resident, who asked not to be identified and who has had numerous experiences with Witnesses knocking on her door. agreed "I'd prefer they didn't keep coming back," she said. "They are very polite, they are not difficult, but they just do this."

According to local community representatives, Jehovah's Witnesses are allowed to go door-todoor as long as they are not soliciting money, and as long as they heed residents' requests to leave when asked.

event in 1492.

Books and arti-

As children, we learned about Columbus. He was a man of adventure. He was the one, we were told, who made it possible for us to be here in this land of opportunity and plenty. Only now is the whole truth being revealed.

In reality, it was a very nasty business. Today's parallel would be a story of space invaders who came to this planet and said "We have arrived. Everything belongs to us, including all you earth beings. The laws of our empire allow us to do anything we wish with you on the planet earth.".

Let's face it, 1492 was a business venture. It was also a desire for empire. The two went together. Money was invested in Columbus' voyage and the investors expected a large

Gold and silver were discovered among the peoples of the Americas. Soon African slaves were brought from Spain and north Africa to work in the mines. This was especially significant because Africans were resistant to several fatal diseases of European origin. These diseases, such as smallpox, killed a majority of the native peoples of the Americas.

As we know, slaves of color were brought to the sugar industry, and later to cotton production. The Portuguese, Spanish and English were the main benefactors of the slave trade. According to one account, the · profit was often more than 100 percent on each trip of the slave ships.

The state churches paid no attention to this evil. First Quakers and then Mennonites opposed slavery. One hundred years later, in 1780, American Methodists opposed all forms of slavery as "contrary to the laws of God, of man, and of nature." John Wesley's anti-slavery manifesto of 1774, "Thoughts Upon Slavery," was inspired by a Quaker, Anthony Benezet.

What is our moral perspective upon the 500th anniversary of Columbus' arrival in the Americas? We must reflect upon this terrible chapter in our history. It is a story of slavery extending from 1500 until the 1830s and 1860s. We must ask ourselves what is the continued impact of this long and terrible history upon our society? What is its impact upon the lives of Native Americans and blacks? Asking this question connects us with the current struggles we see among blacks and Native Americans in our society. We must speak the truth about 1492 and the agony that followed. We must be thankful for those who in the past and in the present speak and act on behalf of those who experience this injustice. Today there are persons who would claim high office in our na- of Detroit.

tion. They speak in high moral tones. Yet morality has no truth unless it addresses the contradictions of economics and justice. We must seek this truth in our leaders. Observing the awful results of slavery, John Wesley stated "Better. no trade than trade procured by villainy. It is far better to have no wealth than to gain wealth at the expense of virtue. Better is honest poverty, than all the riches bought by the tears, and sweat, and blood of our fellow creatures." This must be the truth today.

We must listen to the struggles of our brothers and sisters who are still seen as secondary to economics. They still live out the sad results of the Europeans who claimed to own the lands and peoples of the Americas.

The celebration of 1492 will be a sham unless there is a sensitive, critical reflection upon justice and the sins of the past. Above all, we: must not trust those who would want to make our society an economic machine, disrobed of its moral justice and mercy.

Area golfers shine at camp fund-raiser

There were as many laughs as golf strokes at the 5th Annual Camp Sancta Maria Alumni Association Golf Outing at Bogie Lake Golf Club in Union Lake last week.

The annual fund-raiser reunites campers, counselors and supporters of the Christian boys camp, founded in 1933 near Gaylord. This year's event drew participants from as far away as St. Louis, Mo.

While the tourney's emphasis is on camaraderie and raising money to keep the camp afloat, it also sparks competitiveness.

Winners of the four-man scramble with a score of 61 were Father Michael Molnar of St. Theodore Church in Westland; Father Tim Babcock of St. Andrew Church in Rochester; and Mark Gable and Dave Thieman, both of Rochester.

Teaming up for the win with a score of 66 in the women's division were Gayle Smith of Bloomfield Hills; Ardath Huard of Orchard Lake; Jan Dillon of Redford Township; and Cathy Dinan-Dillon of Livonia.

Winning closest-to-the-pin honors were Father Ed Muir of Dearborn St. Clement and Gayle Smith. Winners of the longest drive contest were Mark Gable and Smith.

Chaired by Greg Campbell and Jeff Egan of Blooomfield Hills, the event drew 85 golfers and raised $4,000. The funds will go to the building fund and camp scholarships for low-income youngsters. Attended over the years by 23,000 boys, Camp Sancta Maria offers. swimming, horseback riding, baseball and numerous other sports and activities in a Christian environment.

Honored with the Thomas Bean award recognizing outstanding achievement was Father Karl Hubble. Hubble, who worked at several metropolitan Detroit parishes before his retirement, served at Camp Sancta Maria as chaplain, director, board member and head counselor. Founder of Sancta Maria, Bean served as camp director for 50 years. The outing celebrated the camp's 59th year.

Anyone wishing to donate to Sancta Maria may send contributions to the Camp Sancta Maria Alumni Association, 2127 Bacon, Berkley 48072.

BOB SKLAR

He finds new career doing scenic artistry

e never met star Jack Nicholson. But no matter. Livonia artist David Messing relished the scenic art he did over eight weeks during Detroit filming for the Danny DeVito flick, "Hoffa." A fine artist and sculptor for 25 years, Messing teamed with Aaron Dytyniak of Wayne about a year ago in a new venture: scenic art. They create sets for fashion shows, art shows, special exhibits and TV commercials. "Hoffa" was their first movie. "Scenic art's a lot of fun. It's real creative," says Messing, who owns and teaches at Art Store & More in the Pierson Professional Center on Seven Mile. For example, scenic artists buy inexpensive wood, then paint it to look like walnut. To age fake brick, they dirty it. To age a warehouse door, they add rust stains. To age fresh paint, they work in cracks. Much of what Messing and Dytyniak did in "Hoffa" involved making objects look older so they reflect a desired time period.

Messing headed a crew of artists that helped create two key sets: the U.S. Senate chamber in the Detroit Public Library and the Hoffa residence in Indian Village, both 1930s vintage.

In Indian Village, the crew focused on four rooms in a large, old house - wood-graining the stairways, archways and hearth as well as furniture bought at the Salvation Army. "We had to make things look a deep, rich cherry wood," Messing said.

The crew made fake leaded windows by staining rope caulking on regular glass.

Outside, Messing said, they "dressed or dirtied up anything that might otherwise look funny on cam-

Just before filming, the powers that be decided to give the fake blacktop driveway, created from painted plywood laid over the lawn, a cement look, "We basically had one hour to match the tones on the nearby cement walk," Messing said, "but we managed to pull it off."

Crowning moment

Messing was proudest of the recreated U.S. Senate chamber on the third floor of the Detroit Public Library. Commercial artist Dino Polisena of Utica provided a big boost.

In the hallway, Messing's crew painted masonite panels to look like marble, then stapled them over the archways and wall murals. They wood-grained the two huge doors leading to the chamber to look like aged oak.

Inside the chamber, sculptor David Kozlowski of Redford Township plastered over the archways and wall murals and scored joint seams on the plaster. Scenic artists stained the plaster to look like the existing limestone and marble walls.

"Matching the limestone and marble was very difficult," Messing said. "But during teardown, the workers had a hard time finding the fake walls from the real walls. I found that a real compliment."

Scenic artists also helped design the Senate chair. 'We carved two big eagles out of Styrofoam, attached them at either end and wood-grained them to look like dark cherry wood," Messing said.

Along the side of the chair, they scrolled ornate leaf patterns. In the middle, they attached a big, woodstrained Styrofoam crest.

Met Danny DeVito

Watch for "Hoffa" next winter. Messing said he saw a lot of Danny DeVito "checking out the sets before the camera rolled. But we never saw Jack Nicholson because we were always working a scene ahead of him."

Messing likes movies, but he's more into commercials - designing backgrounds, making props, creating special effects.

"In commercials, you paint just what the camera will see." he said. "But in movies, you paint everything because you don't know until he gets there if the director will change the scene."

In May, Messing and Dytyniak considered an offer from Disney's Fall Line Productions to do scenic art for the new movie, "Aspen." But they were working on an Elias Brothers Big Boy commercial so had to

Says Messing: "I was glad they approached us. I can't believe we turned down Disney!" Meanwhile, the Detroit Historical Museum has hired the duo to do background scenes and set aging for a major new exhibit, "Outpost Industry," tracing industry development in Detroit since 1701. "A lot of stuff I do gets destroyed within days of filming," Messing said. "This is a 10-year display so we'll have something up a long, long time." Messing stills enjoys teaching at Art Store & More, but scenic art definitely has captured his fancy. "I'm the happiest I've ever been," he said."There's plenty of work. It's never boring. I'm just having a ball."

Fine art to color Canton community fest

By Linda Ann Chomin Special Writer

Canton Township will host its first fine arts show Saturday and Sunday, June 27-28, as part of Liberty Fest '92, a new community festival on the grounds of the newly expanded Heritage Park, 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

Oil and acrylic paintings, watercolors, pastels, clay, precious stone jewelry, marbling, handcarved wood and graphite sketches by nearly 50 artists will be exhibited in two lighted 60-by-90-foot

"It's a real exciting venture for Canton. I think everyone who attends will be pleasantly surprised that we have so much talent in our own back yard," said Canton artist Sharon Dillenbeck.

Co-sponsored by the Canton Parks and Recreation Department, the show was jurored and produced by Dillenbeck, owner of D & M Art Studio and Gallery in Plymouth, and Julie Giordano of J. Giordano Studio in Northville.

The homegrown artwork will range in

WILDLIFE ART

· In case you weren't able to make wildlife artist David Bollman's one person show in May at Livenia City Hall, he's still offering a signed, limitededition print of the painting, "Resplendent Duet," for a $150 donation to a Michigan public broadcasting station through Sept. 1.

The print spotlights a pair of loons swimming on a lake in the rose-colored light of dawn. Bollman's oil and acrylic paintings of nature were hosted by the city of Livonia and the Livonia Arts

Commission. If you'd like to support the Public Broadcasting Service, call Bollman at his Southpaw Studio in St. Clair Shores: 778-3707

Moore has worked as a technician for Michigan Bell 28 years. She paints to relax. "When I paint, time just stops totally. I'm having fun with it and that's what it's all about."

After working in oil for 15 years, Moore, switched to watercolor four years ago. "I like the softness, the transparency of watercolor. I like how they merge when you put the pink next to the blue," Moore said.

"With watercolor, there's always surprises." You never know what's going to happen.'

During the last 19 years, Moore has taken adult education classes in art and studied with Farmington Hills watercolorists Edee Joppich and Nita Engles.

"My morning glories, even though they're real, it's fantasy. I don't want them to be photographic. In art, you can be just as factual as you want or as imaginary as you like," Moore said.

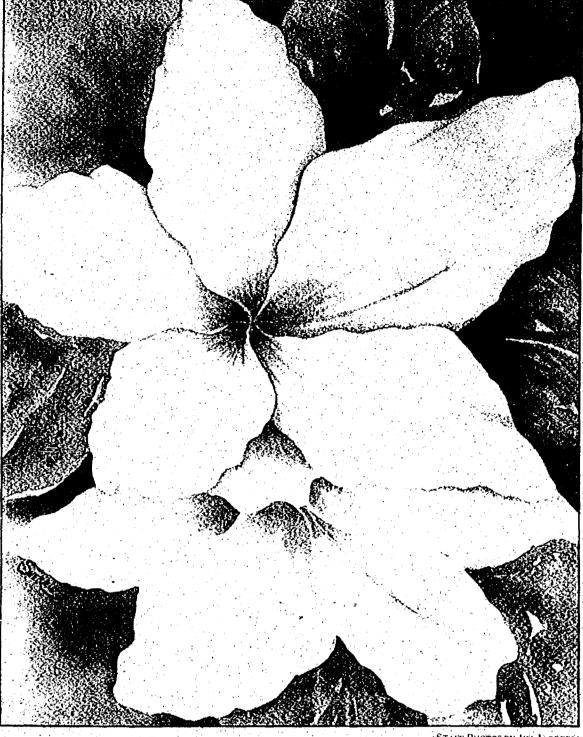

A pair of white blooming hibiscus, their throats colored violet and gray, capture the viewer's attention in Moore's one-person show that began in April at D & M.

"I really like Georgia O'Keefe for her flowers and Monet for his colors," Moore said.

Moore's watercolors, priced between $35 and $110, are matted, framed and ready to hang, "I just paint what I like," Moore said. "I like flowers."

Dillenbeck and Giordano have designed Tshirts as part of Liberty Fest '92. A limited edition of 200 will be sold during the art show alongside a display spotlighting the original. The shirts are created with a flag design in red, white and blue. The words on the shirt read, "One

Greenmead Historical Village, Saturday, June 27. Proceeds will be earmarked for the Alexander Blue House restoration.

From 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, ticket holders will be treated to Dr. Hardie's woodland sights and sounds along with six other gardens in Livonia, including the gardens at Greenmead.

iviounds of pink, white and red impatiens in Dr. Hardie's garden add color to the miniature forest, more than two decades in the making.

"It's an evolving design. In the last 22 years, I've re-landscaped it three or four times," said Dr. Hardie, principal of Dearborn's Snow Elementary. "I'm trying to pattern it after a forest, so there's different sizes of trees at various stages of development."

Dr. Hardie worked 21/2 days this spring planting 65 flats of annuals and half a dozen pink and white dogwood trees. Annuals compose % of the garden, perennials 1/s.

"It's a tamed wilderness because it's a combination of woods and suburban garden - a mixture of evergreens, annuals, wildflowers, red bud, ferns as well as perennials," Dr. Hardie said. At the entrance, a cement rabbit greets guests to the forest in the city. The focal point, a solitary red Japanese maple, accents the green-blue spruce drawing the visitors attention. "It's nice at 5 a.m. in the morning," Dr. Hardie said. "There's a lot of birds and a decoy in the pool on occasion attracts wild ducks."

Goldfish swim in a pond built by Dr. Hardie. A smaller pool above it provides a springlike waterfall into the pond. "I've had lake fish, blue gills and minnows swimming in there," he said.

"I'm trying to move toward a Victorian look with the goldfish pond, Victorian lamp post and lattice railing."

The forest is constantly evolving. In April, dirt was trucked in to create a hillside covered with flowers and rocks.

"He changes it all the time. The neighbors say they know it's apring when they see the truck hauling dirt go down the street," said Lois Hardy, a second grade teacher at Howard Elementary in Dearborn.

Pots of pink impatiens, Lois' handiwork, hang from the gazebo's framework. Lois' planted all of the pots and redwood boxes gracing the deck and gazebo.

"We eat breakfast out here a lot; it's so peaceful. It gives me an on-vacation feeling like I'm away but I'm still home," Lois said.

Snow-on-the-Mountain, Pachysandra and Vinca Vines cover the grounds alongside woodland favorites like May Apples, Trillium and Jack-in-the-Pulpit.

"Once it's all growing after the end of June, there's very little maintenance because the plants are very thick," Dr. Hardie said.

Six of the seven gardens on the walk are new this summer.

Highlights include a weeping Siberian pea tree, herb and vegetable gardens, roses and old-fashioned hollyhocks, canterbury bells, foxglove, lupine, honeysuckle, hibiscus, a dahlia garden, terraced gardens on Bell Creek, decks, gazebos, fish ponds and fountains.

"A lot of people go on the walk to get ideas for their gardens," said Jan Bennett, Friends of Greenmend president.

Rudy Fedus' rock gardens will delight visitors again with more than 100 ornamental trees, 40 varieties of Illac, 35 different hosta and many varieties of iris and daylily as well as exotic plants.

Fedus is a volunteer gardener at Greenmead where he created the formal herb garden. He also gardened at Cranbrook 17 years. "Rudy is just a perennial. He has plants from all over the world," Bennett said. "He's so knowledgeable about plants. If people want to know about botany or the Latin name of a plant, they just have to ask Rudy."

Last year, 700 tickets were sold for the garden walk. Proceeds from the sales were used to buy a new furnace and make other improvements at the Alexander Blue House.

The 142-year-old Blue House was once home to a Livonia civic leader and is Greenmead's only example of Italianate architecture. The Livonia Historical Society hopes to see the Blue House used not only as a conference and meeting center but also a reception hall for Newburg Church at Greenmead.

Garden tour tickets are available at Greenmead's Cronson-Hinbern House, Eight and Newburgh; Livonia City Hall Community Resources Department, Farmington Road and Five Mile, and all Livonia libraries. Tickets. are $5 in advance. They will sell for $6 at Greenmead only the day of the walk, Breath of summer: Sherrie Moore of Canton uses transparent watercolor to paint delicate daylilies and irises. Along with exhibiting at the Liberty Fest '92 fine arts show, Moore will demonstrate watercolor technique.

angle? Or did you just return from Europe to find that your tour guide had the jitters and all of the pictures he took of the two of you in front of the famous landmarks are blurry?

There's a lesson to be learned here. You can't always trust that eager-to-help stranger or your tour guide to get the shots you want.

Solution: Take the pictures your-

Did you get self by using your camera's selftimer.

> You'll need a tripod or solid ledge to do the trick. Just mount your camera on the tripod or set it firmly on a lèdge or wall. Place your spouse in the viewfinder and allow room in the picture for yourself. If you're tall, give plenty of room at the top so that you don't "lose your head" when you see the final re-

As in all good photography, check your backgrounds to include subjects you want and to eliminate things you don't.

If the distant mountain makes a fine backdrop, make sure your aperture is small enough to capture it in the depth-of-field. Or if you want to zero in on just the two of you, use a wide aperture to blur an unwanted background.

Once your exposure and composition are set, you're ready to go. Set your self-timer, trip the shutter and start moving into position. You'll Hills.

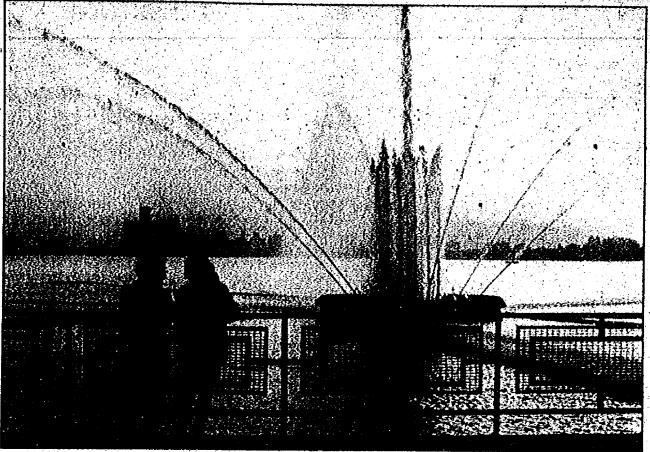

usually have 10 seconds to get yourself situated. Count down the seconds silently so you'll know just when to spread that smile across your face. You'll hear and see the shutter trip so you'll know when the shot is over.

Another use for a camera's selftimer is when you forgot to bring your cable release for that scenic picture you're steadying on a tripod. The self-timer will assure a sharp, crisp picture.

Also, many new cameras don't have provisions for a cable release. Here, again, your self-timer will get you the shot.

Don't always trust your photography to the potential errors of a stranger or to a camera that may not have a cable release. Proper use of your camera's self-timer will guarantee you'll bring home the photographs you want.

OCCUPANCY WITHIN 30 DAYS

Artists sought for Our Town exhibit

Artists across the state are invited to submit their work for jurying for the seventh annual Our Town Art Exhibition and Sale, to take place Oct. 21-25 at The Community House in Birmingham.

Artists who haven't already received a Call to Entry Form may ask for one by calling The Community House at 644-5832, or writing The Community House, 380. S. Bates, Birmingham 48009.

Last year, 344 works of art from 219 Michigan artists were selected from almost 1,000 entries. Sixty-five of these works were bought by some of the 3,000 people who attended the four-day exhibition. At the artists' award ceremony Sunday, Oct. 25, $10,000 in prizes will be awarded to selected artists.

Artists may submit their interpretations of "Our Town," any hometown, and its meaning to them. Works may pertain to, but aren't limited to, the following: Michigan landmarks, architecture/city, hature/landscape; people/por traits and still life.

Art work may be two- or threedimensional, prepared in any medium, ready for presentation, and must not have been previously shown in Our. Town exhibitions.

Glen Michaels will be the 1992 Our Town juror. He is a nationally recognized artist and instructor and has his work displayed in many municipal, corporate and private collections throughout the country,

The Our Town Art Exhibition and Sale opens with a gala benefit Wednesday, Oct. 21. It is open to the public Thursday-Sunday, Oct. 22-25. Admission is free.

All works of art must be marked for sale. The artists receive 65 percent of the selling cost, with the rest benefiting The Community House, a not-for-profit center that provides a variety of educational, social and cultural programs and services.

The Southfield-based Franklin Bank is the sponsor of the 1992 event.

Down payment biggest obstacle to home ownership

(AP) - For many Americans. owning their own home is so important they'd commute an extra hour a day. Or take a second job. Or even put off retirement. .

By a 3-1 margin, Americans would rather own a home than retire 10 years early, according to a survey conducted for the Federal National Mortgage Association, or Fannie Mae.

By a 4-1 margin they would rather own a home some distance from work than rent within easy commuting distance.

By a 4-1 margin they would rather own a home than take a better job in a city in which they could afford only to rent, the poll found. And, by a greater than 2-1 margin, they believe owning a home is worth taking a second job, if that's what's necessary.

Still, the Census Bureau says Americans were less likely to own a home at the end of the 1980s than they were a decade ago. A study shows 63.9 percent of households owned their homes in 1989, down from 65.6 percent in 1980.

In fact, the survey added, by a 3-1 margin they identify it as one of the two or three most serious problems" facing the United States.

The major stumbling block is the inability to make the down payment and pay the closing costs, the survey showed. And that stumbling block was higher for minorities than for whites,

The Census Bureau said that the median mortgage in 1990 was $737 a month, up 26.9 percent from 1980, when adjusted for inflation. At the same time, the median household income totaled $30,056 a year in 1989, down 18.5 percent from a decade earlier.

The median means that half of the mortgages cost more and half less, or that half of the households earned more and half less.

the board is reluctant to do anything because we are "weekend friends." What do you suggest?

If you have a professional management company, have the management company write a letter. presumably in accordance with the bylaw enforcement policy, which the association has implemented, with respect to this violation. Have the management company advise the co-owner that he is not only violating the documents, but infringing upon the rights of his neighbors, which can only create ill will for him and the rest of the community.

Advise him of the association's legal remedies and remind him that the association will turn the matter over to legal counsel should that become necessary. If you do not have a management company, either have the board sign the letter or run it over to your attorney immediately. You should not allow this coowner to continue to impinge upon the rights of other co-owners because it will undermine the ability of the board to effectively administer the condominium project.

We just bought a home that was inspected by FHA and have found a number of electrical and other problems. Do we have any recourse?

You may have recourse against the seller, the real estate agent and the FHA inspector, depending on who it was. In the event that these defects were known or should have been known by the seller or were covered up, I would suggest that you contact an attorney to advise you of your rights.

Refinancing trims late house payments

(AP) - The percentage of ments was a seasonally adjusted Americans falling behind in their mortgage payments fell from January through March for the third straight quarter as homeowners found more jobs and income and lower interest rates, according to a new survey.

The Mortgage Bankers Association of America said that the proportion of homeowners at least 30 days late on their pay4.52 percent in the first quarter, down from 4.78 percent in the final three months of 1991.

The decline resulted from an improved "job and income picture," and to the incredible refinancing boom" and lower adjustable mortgage rates that pushed monthly payments down, said Warren Lasko, executive vice president of the association.

Check every single detail, victim urges

By Gerald Frawley Staff Writer

e've all heard the horror stories. Dr. Leonard Martin has lived one. In 1985, he and his wife, Dr. Ruth S.

"Martin, contracted to have a home built in suburban Cleveland, Ohio. More than a year later, the two moved in. That's when the trouble began.

Their story was related in the book he researched and co-authored with his wife, "And They Built A "Crooked House."

Problems resulted in a lawsuit that wasn't heard until October 1988. The judgment? The court ordered the builder to buy the home back for the price the couple paid — a rare phenomenon, he said.

That was the good news. The bad news was "twofold; the price paid for the home could no longer buy a similar home in a market where housing prices Thad climbed, meaning they would have had to buy a smaller house; and legal fees rose above $100,000.

The response to their book has been an eye opener, Martin said - so much so they are writing a second book "Crumbling Dreams: What You Must Know Before Building or Buying a New House or Condo."

"Ours is not a unique experience," Leonard Martin said, adding that he and his wife have become a veritable clearing house for home-buying horror stories from all over the country.

That led them to review protections for home buyers. They found that although the house buyer is afforded the normal protections of contract law, with the exception of North Carolina, protections specifi-E-cally for homebuyers do not exist.

In the new book, the Martins explain ways for Thome buyers to protect themselves. It begins with the Cautionary preamble, "Unless you protect yourself ahead of time you can only lose if your house is built · defectively.'

In brief, those rules are:

Broken Welcome.

• Check out everyone: builder, developer, archi-"Itect. Inspect, don't look at, other houses and property Ideveloped, built, or designed by anyone involved in your proposed construction. Talk to people living in the houses. If the builder balks, walk.

 Make sure they are insured; they are anyone who signs a contract - the builder, architect or developer. The insurance should cover defects after the house buyer moves in.

 Hire a good real estate lawyer and inform him or ther you want to be fully protected from the worst: totally defective construction.

• Insist on the tightest contract feasible for your circumstances. Every contract should be written as if you will end up in court. Never accept a standard contract offered by the builder. Include a statement involving financial solvency signers. Make the title transfer contingent on satisfactory and independent review by an architect and/or engineer hired by you.

Monster digs haunt buyers

The great majority of purchasers are delighted with their new houses. Occasionally, however, problems develop and battles rage between owners and builders. It may surprise people to learn that builders are just as concerned about shoddy building as house

By GERALD FRAWLEY

The American dream shattered. Owning a house. People spend their lives saving money, planning, and dreaming about the day they can afford a new house. Thousands of people every year buy houses and find their happily ever

But sometimes, something goes

Buyers do all the right things. When they walk into that new house, it's not the American dream, but a nightmare.

Problems arise. Sometimes large problems, sometimes small - but, then, all problems are large if you've invested your life savings into a house that's poorly built.

A cursory glance at disciplinary reports of the state board of licensing and regulation, a division of the Michigan Department of Commerce, shows that there are a lot of unhappy buyers out there.

Royce Wills, acting director of enforcement for the department, said complaints against builders far outnumber complaints against other professionals. "We (investigators) will carry upwards of 500 open complaints a year - half of them are against builders."

The state board of licensing and regulation investigates complaints against builders and other professionals who are licensed by he state. Valid complaints can result in fines, restitution orders and even the revocation of a builder's license.

Builders are quick to point out that despite the horror stories that people hear, the number of houses that are defective compared to the number of houses built is actually very small.

Which isn't to say that even good builders with good reputations won't have problems. Any number of things can go wrong with a project as complicated as building a house.

Mike Garfalo, a partner at Cornerstone Building Inc. in Novi, said it's an inescapable fact of life that people make mistakes.

"In an imperfect world, you are going to have problems," Garfalo said. "If he comes back and fixes the house, then he's a stand-up guy and a good businessman."

Most builders, he said, are good people who are genuinely concerned about doing a good job. "What's important is that the builder returns to fix any problems."

Every builder has had his share of problems, and most people have heard stories about houses with serious problems, he said.

Building a house is a complex task. There are hundreds of things that can go wrong with a house, he said.

"It's not always that clear cut," Garfalo said. "We are a product of our subcontractors."

By that. Garfalo means that sometimes the people hired by the builder - or even the people hired by the people hired by the builder - are the underlying cause of many problems.

Garfalo said he advises patience and practicality. He has had buyers complain about things they requested, but later decided they didn't like, and then blamed it on the builder.

Recourse available through state board

By Gerald Frawley. Staff Writer

People who have bought a defective house can bypass the courtroom to get justice. The state board of licensing and regulation, a division of the Michigan Department of Commerce, can sometimes assist an unhappy buyer.

The procedure for filing a complaint is fairly straightforward, said Royce Wills, acting director of enforcement for the department.

First, the home must have been built in the last 18 months and it must have been built by a licensed builder. Call 1-517-373-0678 to verify that a builder is licensed.

The 18-month limit is necessary to determine that for which a builder is responsible and what is wear and tear created by the owner.

The licensing requirement is necessary because revoking a builder's license is the state's biggest hammer.

After determining licensing and the structure's age, Wills said, a homeowner needs to call the local municipal building department for a complaint form and a building inspection report. and fill them out.

The state requires a building official report to verify a complaint, he said.

"Then we'll ask for a copy of closing statement, building contract, (and other relevant documentation like the owner's pre-walk through punch list) - these reports are helpful in determining what the builder promised to provide and what he didn't," Wills said.

The homeowner, he continued, must do most of the leg work because the complaints. state lacks sufficient staff to investigate complaints.

Once all the documents have been collected, the complaint can take one of two courses - mediation or a hearing before the builders board of the licensing and regulation department.

Mediation is the preferred course because it's quicker and has been found to the builder attempts to resolve the matwork better, Wills said, "If a case is mediated, it could be resolved in 30 to 60 days.'

Getting the builder and homeowner together with a professional mediator is successful because a third, neutral person can objectively view all the circumstances of a case and help resolve any conflicts, Wills said.

The department has actually used mediation for many years, he said, but the practice had dropped off until four years ago. Mediation cases have increased because cuts in state government have slowed the processing of

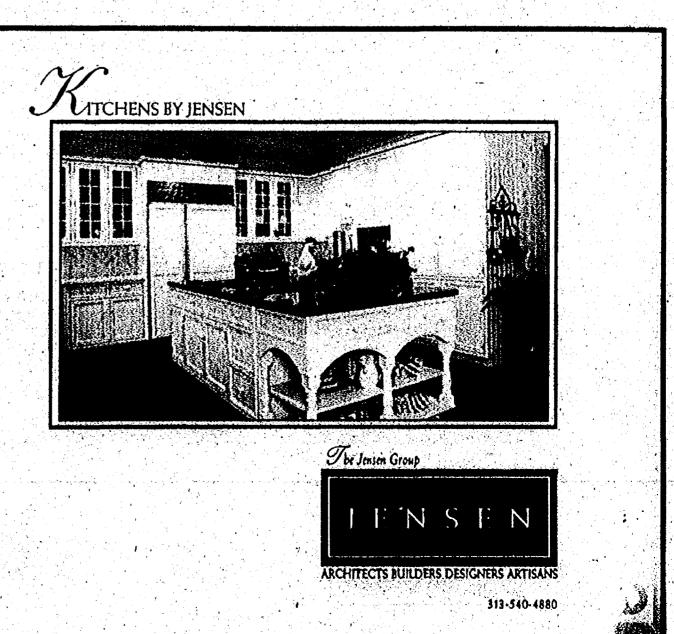

If mediation fails — or if the parties elect not to pursue mediation — the builder will be formally charged. "Then we're in for the long haul - it can take up to two years," Wills said.

At this point the builder has several options:

- A settlement conference in which ter with a licensing department investi-
- A compliance conference in which the builder tries to convince an investigator that no violation exists.
 - · A formal hearing before an admin-

(AP) - It's fun to daydream about how a vintage home will look after the remodeling is finished. Be careful, though, not to overlook hidden problems that can make costs skyrocket.

• Jump in the centers of the rooms to check structural soundness. Springy floors may indicate sagging beams and joists. They can be strengthened, but the job can be expensive.

 Poke exposed joists and sills with a screwdriver or penknife to detect possible termite troubles. If extensive termite infestation is discovered, forget the house.

Damage caused by carpenter ants and powder-post beetles is usually less serious. An expert can determine the seriousness of the problem, whether insects are currently chewing away at the wood, and whether it's worth the money to exterminate them and make repairs.

· Check all surfaces for stains, peeling paint, and falling plaster. If moisture has ravaged large parts of the house, only extensive and expensive measures will repair the damage.

• Assess plumbing carefully. Older homes often have an array of patched-on pipes. Remodeling can involve replacing all the supply lines. Compared with other repairs, this is usually neither expensive nor difficult to do. But replacing drains can put a big dent in your budget. For a quick check, open faucets and flush

Check the water pressure and observe how fast the water drains. With one clogged drain, the location of the clog can be pinpointed. If only one fixture doesn't drain, the problem is near that fixture. If two or more fixtures won't drain, something is blocking a main drain.

Wiring causes concern

(AP) Q. - We bought a 13-year-old house that has aluminum wiring throughout. Can you tell me if the wiring is safe? We've read a number of horror stories about fires caused by electrical problems with it.

A. - The safety of aluminum wiring depends on whether corrective measures were taken by the previous owner. The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission says that houses with aluminum wiring are a potential fire hazard. During the period between 1965 and 1973, because of the shortage of copper and its high cost, aluminum was used to wire about 1.5 million houses. Although aluminum wiring was approved by the National Electrical Code, it was later found that there was dangerous overheating in 15- and 20amp branch circuits at some of the connections between the aluminum wires and outlet receptacles, switches, fixtures and appliances. Anyone who has aluminum wiring should be alert for the following trouble signs: cover plates on outlets or switches that feel warm to the touch; sparks, arcing or smoke at outlets or switches; strange odors, especially the smell of burning plastic around outlets and switches; outlets, lights or entire circuits that don't work.

Even though you may not find any of these trouble signs, the potential for a fire may exist. It can occur at an outlet that has nothing plugged

Correcting the problem does not require rewiring the entire house. The method recommended by the Consumer Product Safety Commission requires connecting a short piece of copper wire to the end of the aluminum wire by using a special compression-type crimp connector. The copper wire is then used for the connection to the outlets, switches, fixtures and appliances. The special connectors, called Copalum Compression Connectors, and the crimping tool are manufactured by AMP Special Industries, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

The corrections described should be made by a licensed electrician who has this equipment. Connecting the copper pigtail to the aluminum wire using a wire nut is not an approved method. You can check your outlets and switches to see if the wire terminations were pigtailed prior to your purchasing the house.

House belies appearances

From outside, the Duchess looks like a basic country-style home, a little on the large side. But a closer look at the exterior, and a glance inside the lofty skylit foyer, tells you that this is no old-fashioned farmhouse.

The wrap-around front porch is country, but the wide custom door isn't. It's flanked by sidelights and crowned on the the second floor level by a huge half-round window.

This wealth of glass increases street appeal and combines with skylights to create a strikingly bright entry area. Add a few potted trees and you've got an atrium.

At the back of the fover, a graceful polished wood balustrade curves up to reach the three bedrooms on the second floor, where a landing overlooks the foyer. Two bedrooms have walk-in closets. Linen storage is in the hallway, and the skylit bathroom has two basins in an extra-long vanity.

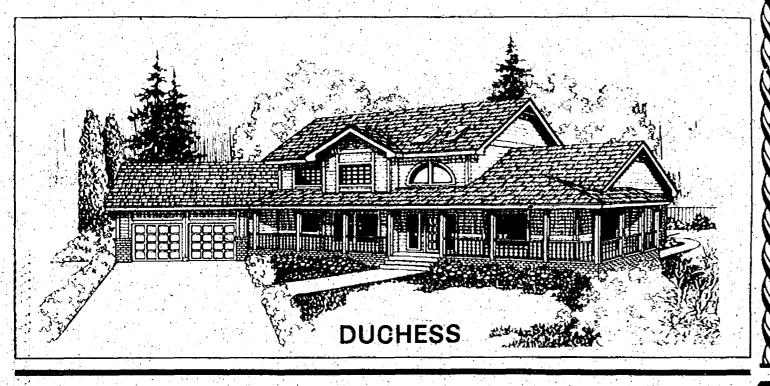

Following tradition, the formal dining room is on one side of the foyer and the living room, or parlor, is on the other. But the rest of the lower level is contemporary. A small bathroom and a long closet are close to both the entrance and the kitchen.

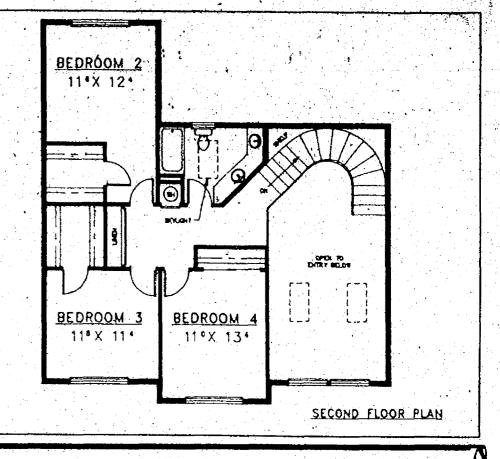

The kitchen is huge, expanded by a garden window and a sun-brightened nook with a sliding door that opens onto the deck. A raised eating bar wraps around three sides of an extended work island with a centrally located . cooktop.

The utility room has everything - a deep sink, fold-down ironing board, closet, counters for folding clothes and space enough to handle a sewing machine. Its location between the garage and kitchen is handy for hauling groceries in from the car or shucking off messy footgear to avoid tracking car-

Skylights brighten the vaulted family room. A fireplace or woodstove nesles in the back corner. The master suite has a huge walk-in closet, two pasins in the bathroom and another anity in the dressing area.

Garfalo suggested that people who have questions should seek a second opinion if they are unhappy or have concerns.

Garfalo said he doesn't want to imply that all builders are good builders - indeed, some builders may even be bad builders. "It's incumbent upon the home-builder (the customer) to make sure the builder is qualified to build a home," he said.

Is the builder well-established?

Does he have a place of business? Does he have a track record? A license? These are all questions the buyer should ask.

"I tell everyone who buys a home:

If something goes wrong, people are naturally going to be upset about it, he said.

The key for any person who has a problem with a house, he said, is to remain calm.

Builders have systems in place to deal with construction problems. Pre-closing walk-throughs, followup visits, post-sale questionnaires - "we're asking people to be criti-

Above all, Glieberman said, try not to become hostile. He has had people come in screaming at the top of their lungs without even giving him a chance to fix any problems.

"If a person bought a bad house, the first thing they should do is send a letter explaining the problem." he said. With most builders. that's all it takes.

Too often, the first response of some people is to threaten a lawsuit - that leads to hostilities between

There's been a lot of talk lately about family values in America.

At Volvo, we have our own way of defining them: extraordinary lease and purchase terms on all new 1992 family sedans and wagons-each one complete with anti-lock brakes, driver's side supplemental restraint system including an airbag.

Program available on all 940 sedans / 960 sedans and wagons. Car shown 944CLS energy absorbing structures, and reinforced steel passenger cages. And all backed by our 3 year/ 50.000 mile limited warranty" and 24 hour Roadside Assistance plan.

Well. Mr. Vice President. How does that sound to you? Drive safely. VOLVO'S FAMILY VALUES PROGRAM NOW UNTIL JULY 3157
