Police chief to retire July 26

Police Chief Michael Frayer said he has been thinking about retirement for some time and wanted to see if there is life after police work. The chief's announcement was a surprise to his boss, Mayor Robert Thomas, who wants Frayer to remain.

By Darrell Clem Staff Writer

Westland Police Chief Michael Frayer said Tuesday that he will quit his job July 26, ending a 25-year career in a sudden move that caught city officials by surprise.

"I still have some hair, I don't have an ulcer, and my blood pressure is OK,' Frayer said, his typical flair for humor intact. "I want to see if there's life after police work."

The 48-year-old police chief's decision to retire from his $56,184-a-year one - to Westland Mayor Robert Thomas. Frayer has been police chief for 14 months.

"I wish he would stay," Thomas told the Observer Tuesday. "I had a lot of faith in Mike, and I wish he hadn't made this decision."

The mayor said he was "surprised and saddened" by Frayer's announced departure.

> "Right at the moment I don't anticipate doing anything else in law enforcement," he said, adding that he had long considered ending his career after 25 years. His departure will coincide with his 25th anniversary in the department.

"It's a decision that I've been toying with for a while," Frayer said. "It's time to go. But I've been very proud and honored to be police chief in Westland."

The three board hopefuls became the first to submit their names to the school board, in hopes of being chosen to fulfill the last year of Spisak's unexpited four-year term.

At least three other candidates have stated that they, too, will seek the post though they hadn't officially submitted their names to the school board office as of Tuesday afternoon. They are former board member Mathew McCusker and former candidates John Albrecht

Mayor zaps Edison over tree 'butchering'

By Darrell Clem Staff Writer

Detroit Edison remained under orders Tuesday to stop trimming trees in Westland, as a dispute with Mayor Robert Thomas entered a second week.

Thomas and Westland police officers told Edison to stop trimming trees near power lines Friday in a north-end neighborhood, amid complaints from residents that the trees were being butchered.

On Monday, Thomas met in his office with an Edison official, but they didn't. Thomas said, after seeing bare tree

"They're not willing to change their tree-trimming policy for us," Thomas said Tuesday.

Thomas was upset when he and other city officials, accompanied by police officers, went to a neighborhood northwest of Merriman and Ann Arbor Trail on Friday and observed that Edison had trimmed virtually all the greenery from 50 to 100 trees.

"They're just butchering the trees,"

> Thomas indicated Tuesday that unless Edison agrees to cooperate, the city may mount a legal challenge to protect trees within city boundaries.

"We don't agree with their policy of trimming the trees," he said.

The mayor noted that city attorney C Charles Bokos has been asked to contact Edison attorneys to try to resolve

Even if the city challenges Edison, Thomas conceded it's possible the city could lose and Edison would return to the tree-trimming practice that sparked a flurry of calls Friday to the mayor's office.

Thomas has conceded that Edison crews have the authority to trim trees away from power lines, but he has said their work has been excessive. He said the crews apparently want to trim the trees drastically to avoid having to return to the same areas for several years.

But Thomas, saying he doesn't want any more trees "butchered," vowed that he won't drop the issue "without a

Man takes up shotgun after pipe bomb blast

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A pipe bomb thrown at a Westland house exploded early Sunday, partially ripping out a storm door and prompting a shotgun-toting homeowner to chase the culprits who got away, city police said.

No injuries were reported as a result of the 1:50 a.m. incident, which occurred in the 5900 block of Harvey Street, northwest of Ford and Wayne

Westland police had no suspects ing the explosion, fell momentarily to Tuesday, and a husband and wife living there told police they couldn't cite a possible motive for the bombing.

The 27-year-old wife had been lying on the living room sofa when she heard the front storm door open — followed five accords later by an explosion that shattered the door's glass, ripped out the screen and dented the aluminum.

The blast also lest marks on the main front door, made of wood.

Chairman takes break before fest work starts again

The holiday meant that Wager had to keep track of scores of volunteers and hundreds of details as chairman of the annual Westland Summer Festival committee. He and his committee members spent most of the past year arranging for a parade, free entertainment, sireworks, arts and crasts exhibitors, food venders and carnival company.

While the festival has been around for 22 years, this summer was the first that Wager served as chairman. Previously, he served on the committee planning the holiday weekend...

An important reason he became chairman this summer is the personal involvement of his wife Sandi and their family of Eddie, 22, Erica, 20,

"The children also help with the festival," he said. "If I need something done, they are very willing to help out."

The family is also involved in other community events and groups, such as the Westland Youth Athletic Association, Ed is also a director of the Westland Historical Commission.

"After the festival, we take one month off," he sald, "Then it all starts again."

During the five day festival itself, Wager works 18 hours a day, sometimes starting at 7 a.m. and continuing until early the next morning.

Zany radio crew tackles leukemia

By SUZANNE PARKER STAFF WRITER

At rock radio station WLLZ in Farmington Hills, things can get a little crazy when J.J. and the Morning Crew are on the air.

With Jim Johnson at the controls and airwaves cohort George Baier switching between his character voices of The Bruiser, Bob Rashbuns, Al Kaline and others faster than you can hit your radio's scan button, even your basic Byron McGregor newscast can become a hilarious episode.

Few topics are hallowed to this raucous cast, but one thing the morning crew is serious about is its fund-raising efforts for the Leukemia Society. They began a month of preparation with a fundraising art show July 8 of the John Lennon Imagine exhibit at the Omni International in Detroit.

But the long haul will begin July 30, when J.J. and The Morning Crew broadcast from the studio for 28 hours straight for the radio station's third annual make a difference. "A lot of groups do research, which is good, but they're not finding any cures," Johnson said. "Leukemia seems to be something they've made great strides in. People with the disease are living-through it now." Being able to see tangible results of their efforts is encouraging as well, Johnson said. In the last few years, the crew at WLLZ has come to know Denny Sims, a young boy with leukemia, pretty well. He became involved with the organization as a poster child and began visiting the station during the radiothon.

"We've been following him for years." Johnson said, "He's cured now and it's great to be able to watch him growing up.

According to Karen Pyle, director of the Michigan chapter of the Leukemia Society, the station's radiothon is the chapter's largest and most lucrative fundraiser. The air wave marathon netted more than $90,000 in its first year, 1990, and more than $100,000 last year, All funds raised go to help pay for treatment of the more than 900 Michigan lukemia patients registered with the organization. A seven-year-old chapter, Pyle said WLLZ's efforts have been integral to the group's growth in recent years.

"It's unheard of that a radio station would virtually shut down business to help out something like this program," Pyle said. "It just blew us away when this started. We couldn't believe that their audience could bring in that much money."

During the morning ruffian's 28 hours on the air, another crew will be answering telephones taking pledges from callers. For a donation of $50 or more, callers may also make a song request, which will be played during the radiothon.

Among the unique items they'll be auctioning off during the show are an autographed Van Halen guitar, a VIP pass at a golf club, a WLLZ T-shirt autographed by Bruce Springsteen and a game day package for the University of Michigan vs lowa game in Ann

An oft-asked question, Johnson said, is how they manage to stay awake for 28 hours straight.

"By drinking about 25 cups of coffee and 10 Cokes," he joked. "But seriously, things do get a little rag tag at 3 a.m. - records running out and missing cues, but it's not had. You get a couple of second winds and hang in there for a good cause."

Board splits on approving extended staff leaves

STAFF WRITER

A school board clampdown appears imminent against Wayne-Westland employees who seek longterm leaves of absence to try out new jobs in other districts.

School officials have strongly indicated they're weary of protecting positions for employees who want to maintain job security here - sometimes for several years - while working in other districts.

themselves for future jobs," Superintendent Larry Thomas said.

The new school chief's strong stance emerged Monday as the board continued an ongoing, philosophical debate about the issue of long-term leaves. Thomas drew applause from the audience for his frank remarks

In a 4:2 vote during Monday's "I have a real problem with peo- meeting, the board approved a second year leave for former Marshall

Junior High School assistant principal Thomas Drummond, who accepted a similar post in the Walled Lake district.

Board members Richard LeBlanc and Fred Warmbier opposed extending Drummond's leave. Warmhier has repeatedly denounced such extensions, and LeBlanc said Monday he opposes leaves beyond one year unless an employee is laid off.

Board members Vicki Welty, Laurel Raisanen, Leonard Posey and Francis "Bud" Winter approved Drummond's leave, but some indicated they would support a tighter policy on job leaves.

Earlier this year, the board denied a fifth-year leave for Thomas Yack, a former employee who's unopposed in his bid for a second term as Canton Township supervi-

School officials said they don't oppose extended job leaves for employees who are pregnant or ill. Moreover, the superintendent said employees should receive special consideration if they are elected to public office or receive an opportunity to teach in a foreign country. "I think that's a good reason," he

But most board members appeared to oppose requests for extended job leaves to work in other districts. Despite voting to extend Drummond's leave, Winter called such requests "absolutely ludi-

Dan Slee, executive director for employee services, warned the board that if it tightens the job leave policy, it should let the personnel office know in advance so that employee unions can be told of the changes.

The board plans to schedule a special study session to consider clamping down on the policy.

"It needs to be changed," Superintendent Thomas said.

One district resident, Cathy Keyes, told the board that she believes employees — especially those who are top-notch - should be given the opportunity to return to Wayne-Westland if they choose.

"I think we should always leave the door open," she said.

Consulting firm to study schools administration

By Darrell Clem Staff Writer

A consulting firm will be paid as much as $23,000 to study and recommend possible changes in the organization of the Wayne-Westland school administration.

In another move, a California consultant will be paid $1,400 plus travel expenses to conduct a workshop in August to help new Superintendent Larry Thomas and the Wayne-Westland school board develop a working relationship.

The two measures were approved unanimously Monday by the school board. The money will come from a $3-million superintendent's contingency fund that the board had carlier set aside.

In a study that will cost $21,000 to $23,000, the consulting firm of Plante Moran will examine the administration's organizational structure and central office staffing lev-

The firm will interview about 70 district employees, including central office administrators and school principals, and survey comparable districts before issuing recommendations for the district's ad-

Noting that most administrators and school board members are relatively new on the job because of a large turnover rate, Thomas suggested that school officials "look for outside expertise."

The 10-week study, in part, is expected to result in a recommended reorganization of the administration. Thomas said.

"We're a little thin," he said. "There are some areas that we need additional help in."

Right now, for example, the district has no deputy superintendent because of the departure of Thomas Svitkovich, who took a new job in the Carman-Ainsworth district.

The study is also expected to focus on cost-efficiency and accountability of the administration, Thomas said.

"I want the people in the community to feel comfortable that we're efficient (and) accountable." he said, adding later, "This is something that I think is needed to improve the school district."

Board President Leonard Posey said Monday that his initial reaction is that "$23,000 is a lot of money," but he joined five other board members in approving the proposal. Posey also suggested that more than one firm should be contacted for any future studies to compare costs

Former board member Andrew

Spisak, who resigned last week, has been critical of the money the board has begun spending on consulting

"I am unable to forget that these same people, under the guise of saving taxpayers money, have spent more money on consultants and new attorneys and reports than you can imagine," Spisak said in a statement July 6 announcing his. immediate resignation.

In a second proposal Monday, the board agreed to hire consultant Dick Foster to visit the district to conduct a workshop on relations between the Thomas administration and the school board.

The workshop will help school officials develop a plan for becoming "effective leaders," Thomas said.

Foster will be paid $1,400 for two days, plus expenses. He has been hired by such districts as Livonia, Taylor and West Bloomfield. Thomas worked in the latter district before being named Wayne-

Westland superintendent. Foster will help the school officials develop a process for improving working relations and improving the district.

"I really do believe this is another step to help move our district forward," Thomas said.

Ribcrackers take to air

By'SUE BUCK STAFF WRITER

Air traffic was high above North Farmington High School last weekend as the Riberackers, a radio control plane group, took over the sky in celebration of the. Farmington Founders Festival.

Members of the group are frequently kidded about their club name and asked whether the club is made up of retired chiropractors.

Not so, say members.

A club member's 9-year old daughter coined the group's name during the 1950s after watching and taking note of the amount of ribs in the plane's airfoil that were broken as a result of flying.

The Riberackers were originally organized as a non-profit model aiplane club under the auspices of the Livonia Department of Parks and Recreation. The group numbers 130 and emphasizes safe sports flying.

Watching a show is addicting. "I came and watched a show," said Dan Wamboldt, the club's current club president and West Bloomfield resident, as he explained how he got started.

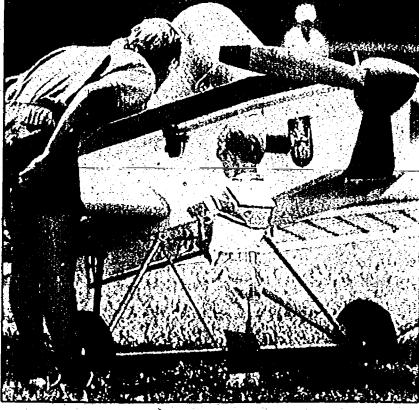

Riberackers members host several events throughout the year including pylon races, timbo contests, balloon bursts and fun fly-

Hilda, the witch, a plane dressed up as a witch atop a broom, is a hit at every air show, Wamboldt said. "Barry Killick, a club member, built the witch seven or eight years ago," Wamboldt said.

Hilda usually sustains some damage after flight but Saturday she completely lost her head when she collided with another plane

When she gets near the ground, her legs actually drag on the ground like she's walking?" said Jac Mosier, club treasurer, who lives in South Lyon.

Dr. Keith Shaw, of Ann Arbor, who Wamboldt termed a "topelectric modeler in the world" was on hand to fly his electric planes (electric motor and battery). One achieved a speed of 140 mph:

Home built: Ken Widerstedt and son, Keith, Bloomfield Hills residents, check out a Fisher ultralite FP-303 plane owned by Don Krzysik of Wixom. Krzysik built the plane with its 28-foot wing span in his second floor apartment, taking up both the living and dining goom.

"Blink and it's in the next county," said the announcer when Shaw's plane buzzed by.

Shaw helped John Buck, 14, of Redford, a first-time flyer, learn to fly a plane via a buddy box training system, which consists of a cord and two transmitters so that the expert can step in whenever there is an error or mistake.

Don Krzysik's Fisher Flying Products 303, an ultralite plane, was displayed but not flown at the airshow, sponsored by the Farmington Area Jaycees. "I planto take the plane to Fowlerville for its maiden flight this summer," said Krzysik, a Wixom resident.

It took Krzysik six years to finish building the plane, which was constructed in his second floor apartment.

Model airscraft klts suitable for beginners are available in hobby shops starting at about $350 and will take about 50-60 hours or "a month of spare time" to build, accoring to club information.

The club also owns an ICOM scanner to check for potential radio interference at flying sites and a library of aircraft video-

Annual club dues are $30 with a one-time initiation fee of $10. Junior members (vounger than 18) may join the club at no cost.

Area Democrats helping to build party's platform

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER &

NEW YORK - Democrats needed 17 days in 1860 and nine in 1920 to pick a presidential candidate. This year they knew weeks ago that. Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton had the nomination sewed up. Why five days of activities?

"A convention touches only the superficial role of the delegates," said Birmingham attorney Don Tucker, attending his sixth con-

"The delegate selection process is part of the realignment of power every four years. That's the principal reason people are here,' said Tucker, a Paul Tsongas supporter.

For the McKnights of Westland, New York is a family vacation.

Dick McKnight, a Livonia school board member and 15th District Clinton delegate, watched a nonpartisan news conference by the Childrens Defense Fund in the media center Ramada Hotel.

"Hillary, Clinton is chair of it. It's interested in Head Start, prenatal care, children born with drug addiction, education, children who go to bed hungry," he said.

"Whoever you send to the Republican convention will see the same event," added wife Gail McKnight, a district judge in Westland, "It's like a Sunday church service with rabbis, ministers, men women, black, white, all denominations."

Dick: 'Campaign magazine has a number of seminars, free - direct mail, raising money. The magazine bought a full-page ad in the party's convention paper listing seminars on opposition research, 'lightning attacks to exploit weakness, 'combating the press,' women candidates, high-donor fund-raising, polling and best campaign commer-

Visiting was son Edward (Ted), an Army private first class stationed at Fort Stevart, Ga. "We haven't seen him in three or four months," said Gail.

By the numbers

Michigan has 159 delegates (73 for Clinton, 38 for Jerry Brown, 20 for Paul Tsongas and 28 unpledged) and 22 alternates (17 Clinton, three Brown, two Tsongas).

"In 1980, they (Coleman Young's forces) froze us out," recalled Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara. "This year we were with Clinton from the beginning. We were very magnanimous and gave them some delegates."

McNamara's tale, underscored how delegates were selected; by the camps of the candidates, based on voter turnout in the March 17 pri-

"We've got to leave here like the Republicans do - unified. They pull together all their divergent groups" said McNamara who as mayor of Livonia for a quarter-century had plenty of time to watch the Grand Old Party ascend.

"I think we've got the guy (Clinton) who can do it," McNamara

Because of his high office holder position, McNamara and wife Lucille will be attending several VIP functions such as a cocktail reception for national chairman Ron Brown and a breakfast hosted by Clinton confidente Jim Blanchard, Michigan's former governor.

Emily's network

"I'm going from event to event to event . . . in a word networking, said state Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor.

Afghan Kilim 6x9 reg $1150

"The business of the convention is essentially completed. There are no battles to be fought. It's not a contentious environment," said the third-term lawmaker who is an addon delegate for Massachusetts Sen. Paul Tsongas.

Unlike Jerry Brown, another rival of Bill Clinton for the presidential nomination, Tsongas quietly folded his effort, endorsed relatively minor changes in the party platform.

Pollack planned to attend an "Emily's List" reception Tuesday, a closed gathering in the New York Hilton Grand Ballroom. The purpose is to raise $750,000 for women Democrats running for the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives this year. (Emily means Early Money Is Like Yeast - it raises the dough.)

Pollack herself benefitted from the Emily fund in her 1988 bid against Republican U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell of Plymouth.

"I'll spend the week meeting people, discussing how we win the November election," Pollack said, admitting Michigan has few interesting races from the point of view of women Democrats.

Local physician voice for Asian-Americans

NEW YORK - If unions are half the Michigan delegation to the Democratic National Convention, Stella Evangelista is the smallest bloc. One.

"I'm the only Asian," said the Bloomfield Hills' pediatrician who practices in Livonia, attending her first national conclave with hus band, Jose, also a pediatrician.

"We are hoping to mobilize the Asian-Pacific group to vote. They are concentrated in the metro Detroit area. There is probably

Her support of Bill Clinton for president is tied directly to the support of former Gov. James Blanchard, whom she backed in 1982. "We helped during the Blanchard compaigns and since then have been active in the Democratic Par-

"Blanchard set up the first Asian Advisory Council in Michigan (of which she was a member). The problems we run into are discrimination, Japan bashing - we tend to be the racial scapegoats for the economic ills of the U.S. In Michigan it's mainly discrimination in em ployment.

, "Asians were considered the 'model minority' in the Reagan Administration. That has hurt rather than helped us.

"In health care, Asians have special problems such as TB and hepatitis."

Born in Cebà, the Philippines, in 1945, Evangelista came with her husband to the United States in 1968, first to Cook County Hospital in Illinois, then to Wayne County and the University of Michigan. Their practice is on Farmington Road in Livonia. They have six children ranging in age from 8 to 24.

Her activities include American Citizens for Justice, which helps Asians with discrimination and immigration problems; the Philippine Medical Association and the Philippine American Community

"Democrats have always - a long time - advocated civil rights, reform and social legislation. I think that's why a lot of Asians look up to that," she said.

In New York: Stella and Jose Evangelista enjoy the convention seated with the Michigan delegation.

Deli elects to bring politics into kitchen

By Suzanne Parker Staff Writer

Nobody really knows what's inside, but everyone seems to like it

No, it's not another presidential candidate, but it is called the H. Ross Perot-gi, the latest culinary concoction of the Deli Unique.

Unveiled and taste tested last week by the morning crews of localradio station, including Dick Purtan on WKQI and J.J. and the Morning Crew on WLLZ, the Polish delectable is now available at the ddi's West Bloomfield and Bingham Farms locations, as well as the Plaza Deli in Southfield.

While all H. Ross Perot-gies look the same on the outside. Keith Schofield, who co-owns the delicatessens with Mathew Prentice, revealed that cheese and mushroom and cabbage fillings are the hidden agendas that delight the tastebuds of faithful followers.

"And of course, we have a Perotgi that is potatoe-filled, that's with an e, that is, in honor of Dan Quayle," Schofield said.

This is not the first time School field and Prentice have given their repast a political twist. Months ago. at the beginning of the primaries, they named five sandwiches after the leading candidates.

"We figured we'd take a straw vote and see whose sandwich was ordered the most," Schofield said...

George Bush won by a landslide, but that might not be saying much ... considering The George Bush was a turkey sandwich, minus the brocoli. Other sandwiches included The Pat Buchanan, which consisted of bologna and American cheese on white bread, and The Jerry Brown, a vegetarian sandwich with lots of bean

While the H. Ross Perot-gi is not officially endorsed. Schofield said the deli has informed Perot's Texas headquarters of the independent's new namesake. They are awaiting a response, he said, but not holding their breath.

Her AIDS battle moves local delegates to tears

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

NEW YORK - "Just a mom" stole the Democratic National Convention's hearts away from Jesse Jackson's oratory.

"Shih-h-h!" the Michiganians hissed as Elizabeth Glaser'stopped the noisy convention in its tracks with the story of how she acquired AIDS through a blood transfusion in 1981, passed it onto a daughter who died and then to a son, and faces death itself.

If Rev. Jackson brought the convention to its feet in prime TV time, Glaser silenced it and sent out her message: "Not just for people who have HIV, but for many, many people - poor people, gay people, people of color, children. A strange spokesperson for such a group - a well-to-do-white woman," she said of herself.

"I 'waş crying," said Eileen DeHart, Westland resident and Clinton delegate. "To lose your children is the most traumatic thing. The though of losing them tears you apart."

"A moving moment. It strikes you like a thunderholt. Unfortunately, she was not on in prime time," said U.S. Rep. Sander Levin of Southfield "For years George Bush wouldn't mention the word AIDS. I was on a subcommittee of Government Operations in 1983 when the undersecretary of Health said there was adequate money for AIDS research and later acknowledged he fibbed through his teeth. As a result, the nation lost valuable

"People identify with someone of the underprivileged and gays. who says "I'm experiencing this," said Keith Geiger, president of the National Education Association -Geiger visited his native state's delegation Wednesday morning.

"The speeches by Mrs. Glaser and Jesse Jackson," moved Walter O. Briggs IV, Democratic hopeful in the 11th congressional District. "She told about the concerns and trial she's been through, relating them to an average family. It makes you realize this is not just a disease

"I'm staying with my parents in Connecticut during the convention. My mother wanted to know about that (speech). My wife, too," said Briggs.

"Only the most heartless would fail to be taken by emotion," said-Don Tucker, Birmingham attorney, Tsongas delegate and Oakland County chair."A middle-class family woman contracted AIDS through a transfusion . . . The link should cause us to recognize this is truly a plague."

"Too bad it wasn't on prime time. It (Glaser's speech) showed the lack of compassion in this government," said Gail Nolin, Clinton delegate from Waterford and MEA official

"Enormously moving," said Mary Rvan Taras, Birmingham teacher, Clinton delegate and an MEA leader. "As a mother - as a parent -the loss of a child has to be the worst experience.

Married to Paul Michael Glaser. a director and former Starsky on the "Starsky and Hutch" television series, Mrs. Glaser, 44, blistered the Reagan and Bush administration for indifference to Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, which attacks the body's immune system and has been spread through body fluids by blood transfusions, use of shared intravenous needles and sexual activity.

Exactly four years ago my daughter died of AIDS. She did not survive the Reagan administration. I am here because my son and I may not survive four more years of leaders who say they care but donothing," she said.

Blanchard: Clinton's old friend is also Gore's pal

NEW YORK -- Everyone knows tight with Democratic presidential nomince Bill Clinton.

Less known is that he's also tight. with running mate Albert Gore Jr.

"He supported the Chrysler package," said Blanchard, who was elected to the U.S. House in 1974 with Gore following in '76.

"Then Rep. Dan) Quayle tried former Gov. James Blauchard is to kill it and Bush was opposed," Blanchard said. The federal underwriting of Chrysler Corp 's loans helped save the No.3 automaker in 1979 and propelled Blanchard into the governor's office in 1982.

"I served on the Science and Technology Committee with Gore. He and I were part of the congressional committee on the house of the future

"The last time he was in Oakland County I introduced him at a Phil Hart dinner and said one day he will be president of the United States. He's close," Blanchard said.

Blanchard turns 50 on Aug. 8 and looks thinner than in his 30s. He and wife Janet had a hectic schedule of speeches and events. Although listed as chair of the Michigan Clinton caucus, Blanchard is staying in Clinton's hotel. A ground-floor Clinton supporter, Blanchard may be due for a presidential appointment if Clinton wins the White House.

"I'm a little upset that both (Clinton and Gore) are younger. than I am,' Blanchard told Michigan delegates at their Mouday morning caucus. Clinton is 43, Gore

The irreverent Blanchard humor was still there: "Clinton was so brilliant a student at Georgetown University that all the Jesuits thought he was Catholic and not Baptist."

Clinton and Blanchard freely borrowed each other's ideas on education and job training as governors.

Veep choice called 'workhorse'

By Tim Richard Staff Writer

NEW YORK - "In Congress there are workhorses and show horses. He has been mostly a workhorse" said U.S. Rep. Bill Ford of vice presidential nominee Albert Gore Jr.

Gore moved from the House to the Senate in 1984, but Ford sees him often anyway;

On the Post Office and Civil Service Committe, I've had to work with the Senate because the Senate would put military stuff in bills in my jurisdiction. I wound up as a conferee (member of the joint House-Senate conference committee)," Ford said.

The 28-year congressional veteran who now calls Ypsilanti home said "Gore helped" resolve those bills. Gore is considered an expert on the armed services.

"In the real world, we had to decide whether scientists would be hired at scientists' wages or pay 'em like civil service. We hired the scientists," Ford said:

"I did not, unfortunately play basketball with him in the House, but he was an avid basketball player," Ford added.

"Albert is one of our graduates," said U.S. Rep. John Dingell of Trenton. A 35-year member of Congress, Dingell heads the Energy and Commerce or Committee, one of the most powesful in Washington. Gore served:

on it during his House tenure. 'Capable. Smart. Strong on engl. vironment and consumer issues. A strong liberal. Very talented," Dingell said of Gore.

Sens. Tim Wirth of Colorado 10 and Phil Gramm of Texas also were on Dingell's panel before !" moving up. "They all brag about the fact that the (House) Commerce Committee was a great education," Dingell said. 'Few inthe Senate would stand up to them."

You'll love how hard you'll work.

We won't kid you. Getting a college education isn't easy - especially if you're not the traditional just-out-of-high-school student.

At Wayne State University, you'll fit right in. The majority of our students are like you. Four out of five of our students work, with two-thirds working at least 20 hours a week, and about 20 percent working full time. The average age of our students is about 28, with many older and many younger. This diversity in our student body, along with their many work and life experiences, helps to make our classroom discussions much more lively and relevant.

At Wayne State University, you'll find classmates who are fighting just as hard as you are for a college education, and who know that ambition, drive and a good university can make all the difference.

A college education at Wayne State University isn't easy. You'll work hard. And in the end, you'll be glad you did.

Mideast peace

Both sides say U.S. should do more

NEW YORK .. Both Jewish and Arab American Democrats say. Republican President George Bush has lost ground with their groups in the Middle East peace process.

- "Bush has done a lot for the peace process, but we are no longer the respected country," said Terry Ahwal, Livonia resident and leader in the American Arab Anti Discrimination League.

Though not a delegate, Ahwal was placed, on the convention credentials committee and sees her group gaining respect in the Democratic Party.

"Arabs were always left out. Things are tremendously improving. For the first time in the history of the convention, we have two delegates from Michigan, four in the U.S. on the credentials committee and one on the platform committee," she said.

"I'm not happy with how they addressed the Arab-Israeli conflict. They're recognizing that Palestinians have human rights because they're human beings. That's a little positive change.

"But we differ on Jerusalem. They (Democratic platform) are taking Jerusalem as the capital of Israel, We say it should be an international city. No one should have exclusive rights to the holy city,'

U.S. Rep. Sander Levin and state Rep. Maxine Berman, both of Southfield, say Bush grievously offended American Jews with press conference remarks about the Israeli lobby.

"He very much offended the Jewish confmunity when he criticized them for lobbying for loan guarantees (for settlements of immigrants)," Levin said.

"All they were doing was exercising an American right. Obviously, the Bush administration will attempt some kind of smoothing over of the relationship -- some kind of loan guarantees. But it will be difficult for Bush to repair the damage." Berman, who attended an Ameriban Israeli PAC meeting, said the mood was calm but echoed Levin's remark that Bush had offended Jews over lobbying. She sees Republicans as losing some of the gains they made with the Jewish vote in past efections.

The mood in the Michigan delegation is far smoother compared to 1988 when the Palestinian intifada (uprising) was starting in Israel. Michigan's Jesse Jackson delegates in 1988 kept to themselves outside the caucus room in Atlanta, and there was ill will over Jackson's "Hymietown" remark about New York. In hotel lobbies, one could see an invisible 4-foot wall between Jackson and other delegates.

Brown supporters few among state delegates

gates aren't joining the emotional the Democratic National Conven-

"Talk to your whips and say, 'Please let Jerry Brown speak,' Southfield attorney Tom Boyd, chair of the 38-member caucus supporting the former California governor, told the Michigan delegation Tuesday morning.

But Boyd acknowledged Michiganians were showing no enthusiasm as other Brown supporters waved signs for the dissident Californian Monday night on the convention floor in Madison Square Garden. Brown got 26 percent in the March 17 primary.

"He (Brown) is kind of a kook," said Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara. "He's had his day in the sun. Others who challenged Clinton and lost came into the fold. Brown relishes the spotlight.

"Brown has 600 delegates to the convention, but there are only about 200 solid supporters. A hel-

NEW YORK - Michigan dele- luva lot of them are UAW people who became Broun delegates just fray to let Jerry Brown address to get to the convention. They're hitchhikers. They should have joined Clinton earlier," McNamara said.

As of Tuesday, convention officials were holding to their position that Brown wouldn't speak before ratification of the platform unless he endorsed nominee Bill Clinton, the way Sens. Bob Kerry, Tom Harkin and ex Sen. Paul Tsongas had.

Shrugged U.S. Rep. Sander Levin of Southfield: "Jerry Brown, in terms of the November elections, is really not a major factor."

State party chair Gary Corbin said most delegates' "eyes are on the prize" rather than Brown. He said convention leaders gave him no instructions to hold down demonstrations for Brown. A party newspaper article was headlined: "Brown Hotline in New York: 1-800-NUISANCE."

Room for everyone?

Gays say delegates ignore them

BY TIM RICHARD

· NEW YORK — Two self-styled 'transplanted queer Michiganders" had little success approaching the Michigan delegation to the Democratic National Convention for changes back home.

"There are no openly gay Democratic delegates from Michigan," said Bill Dobbs, who lived in Birmingham in the '70s and is a law graduate from the University of. Michigan.

Queers are trash in this coun; try," Dobbs said in literature he distributed to Michigan delegates. "Just as Eric (a friend from Birmingham who died in New York City of AIDS) couldn't be frank about his life with his own family, America . . . can't seem to talk about or deal with AIDS or queers. How many more have to die?"

Dobbs and Jon Nalley, a former Grand Haven and East Lansing resident, tried to hop a bus ride with Michigan delegates from the UN Plaza Hotel to a Sunday night reception at the American Museum of the Moving Image. Lacking delegate or preas credentials, they were asked to leave.

"Our being thrown off the bus is a metaphor for how Michigan treats gays," Dobbs said.

They managed to beat the bus to the museum and were passing out literature when five New York police officers stopped them. After five minutes conversation, the police backed away, and the pair went off to work.

"A' classic gambit by the NYPD," Dobbs said later. 'I have a Corrections pass, and I'm a lawyer." The reception they got from Michigan delegatas varied from warm to hostile.

In contrast to their native state. Dobbs said, Texas has 11 gay delegates, California "a couple dozen" New York has some. In his view, political meetings shouldn't be conducted without representation from women, gays and ethnic groups. "They (gays) were frozen out," he said after contacting a Michigan gay lesbian group.

Nalley listed 12 friends from Michigan State University who died of AIDS.

He is 32. And his literature listed "A Queer Dozen" things Michigan Democrats should do back home, including:

• A state law prohibiting nonhiring of gays, as Cracker Barrel announced it would do.

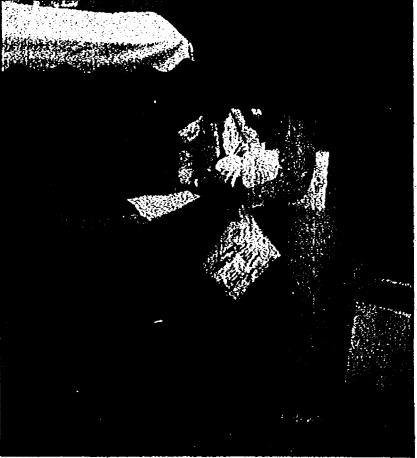

• Repeal of Michigan's sodomy law which police in Adrian used in a park sting operation.

• University board rules at U-M, MSU and Wayne State prohibiting anti-gay discrimination.

• Repeal of Public Act 490 under which Jeffrey Hanlon was extradited from New York State to Michigan for infecting people with HIV positive virus. Dobb worked on Hanton's defense.

• Restore and fund the Michigan Council for the Arts, who boldly stood up for free expres-

• 'Dump (Gov. John) Engler."

Literature: Bill Dobbs, right, formerly of Birmingham. was one of the self-described "transplanted queer Michiganders" passing out literature at the Democratic National Convention, at least until they were hassled by the NYPD.

Teens take to stage for 'Dreamcoat'

"Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" opens at St. Paul Presbyterian Church in Livonia tonight through Saturday.

A group of teenagers will be narrating the story of a young man with a multi-colored coat when "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" opens at St. Paul Presbyterian Church in Livonia tonight through Sat-

The Broadway show was written by Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice.

This cast of "Joseph" is unusual because it is composed of students ranging in age from 15-19 from seven

The students received a letter from Churchill High School, which serves the northwest corner of Westland, and St. Paul director Pat Hutchison saying that she was interested in producing "Joseph" with a group of present and past students and their friends, who were ready for a month of acting and singing experience.

The students responded, paid $250 to offset costume expenses, and as a result, 28 young people take the stage this week.

"Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" first appeared as a 20minute children's cantata. However, a few years later, in 1973, a full-length musical appeared on the London stage. Webber and Rice soon found their production moving to Broadway, back to London, and just this summer, on to

The story of Joseph and his many colored coat comes from Biblical times, but has been tempered by great doses of

Keeping cool

Air-conditioning ratings change

On Jan. 1 of this year "10" became the minimum standard SEER rating for newly manufactured air conditioning units, as mandated by the federal government

Many homeowners this summer will be faced with the decision to repair the old A/C unit or install a new one, and they should be aware of the ratings and new energy-efficient models.

Regulations requiring the higher SEER rating and others controlling the use of Freon-type refrigerants were reviewed this week by Dan Bergstrom of Bergstrom's Inc. in Shoppers will still find some "eight" and "nine" SEER (Seasonat Energy Efficiency Rating) units being sold, but they were manufactured before Jan. 1.

Less costly

The higher the SEER rating, the greater the efficiency; in effect, the less electricity it takes to cool your check you'r air conditioning unit can no longer be allowed to escape Homes

. The typical home central air conditioner that is being replaced today is 15 to 20 years old, and probably rated at 6.5 SEER, said Bergstrom.

*Putting in a new 10 SEER unit can cut your electric bill by some 35 percent, Bergstrom said. That means that savings in electricity costs can pay for the new unit in five to eight years, while reducing pollution from electrical power generating plants in the bargain.

Home owners can even opt for an 11 or 12 SEER rated model available in Michigan. In warmer climates like Florida, SEER ratings of up to 15 can be purchased.

Having the proper level of refrigerant is key to a unit operating at the highest level of efficiency, according to Dan Bergstrom.

"Home repairs may have been cheaper and quicker, but often they were not done correctly," Bergstrom said. "This means less efficiency of the unit.

Having a professional technician and balance the refrigerant level is actually less expensive in the long run, he said. A home service call typically runs only about $53 for minor service needs.

His firm offers to answer questions from the public about the new rules or about air conditioning systems in general.

nia for 34 years, Bergetrom Inc. is years in jail, enforceable by the Enone of the largest air conditioning. heating and plumbing firms serving the western metropolitan area.

Freon controls

Bergstrom also noted that effective July 1, all Freon-type gases and liquids - such as the refrigerant in air conditioners and refrigerators must be captured and properly disposed of, according to the federal Clean Air Act.

Thought to deplete the earth's ozone layer, Freon-type refrigerants - chlorofluorocarbons (CFCS) - into the atmosphere.

Until now, many home and auto owners were able to purchase a can of refrigerant and do their own servicing of auto and home air conditioners and refrigerators. They allowed the old refrigerant to escape into the Bir.

Those who do so now can be sub-Located in the Redford and Livo- ject to a fine of $25,000 and five vironmental Protection Agency (EPA), Bergstrom said.

Board change

Spisak: quitting a good move

ndy Spisak made a wise decision in resigning from the Wayne-Westland Board of Education last week. His resignation, effective immediately, paves the way for the remaining six board members to pick a candidate to fill the vacancy later this Spisak's political retirement was the right thing to do for him and the school district.

In his resignation speech, Spisak admitted publicly what the Observer has felt for many months — that he hasn't accepted the forced retirement last fall of school Superintendent Dennis O'Neill. Since then, Spisak has consistently supported O'Neill and treated him like he was still a candidate for the vacancy filled two months ago.

That attitude prevented Spisak from being an effective school board member who can focus on problems and solutions. He kept harping about the district losing a superintendent, but doing little to look ahead on selecting a successor for O'Neill.

That position virtually eliminated any effectiveness Spisak had as a board member who should be acting as a responsible policy maker and legislative representative for the school community.

Having an undying loyalty to a former school administrator is admirable. But Spisak failed to realize that there are some things that can't be changed. O'Neill, whatever the reasons, has left. Larry Thomas was named in mid-May to replace him, effective two weeks ago.

While standing by a friend is easy to understand, Spisak was unable for many months to realize what happened. But it's time to look Spisak was also one of several board members targeted by a recall campaign committee earlier this year, even though he had only one year to serve in his current four-year term.

He and others were seen by the recall group as a connection to the former superintendent and a board of education which was too cozy with him. Voters agreed and ousted three O'Neill supporters on the board 13 months ago. One of those three, Mathew McCusker, mounted another run for a board seat last month and was again defeated.

It was clear from the political atmosphere that Spisak wouldn't stand a chance of re-election next spring — if he even decided to seek another four-year term.

Maybe Spisak resigned earlier to avoid a political embarrassment next year at the ballot box. Possibly the resignation was based on other reasons.

But the bottom line is that his departure from the board, coming at a time when a new superintendent is taking over the administrative reins of the district, is good news for those who want an effective, problem-solving board of education instead of one fighting old battles.

Stadium sale good for suburbs too he serious competition between Mike II-While the trend in the '70s was to build about as far out of town

itch and Edsel Ford II for the Detroit Tigers means suburban Detroiters can breathe a collective sigh of relief. The latest reports have hockey/pizza magnate llitch edging out Ford as the leading contender to take the Tigers off cash-short Tom Monaghan's hands.

The pending sale — which still needs approval of other American League team owners means no stadium will likely be plunked down in western Wayne or northern Oakland County.

Both men, but particularly Ilitch, are business visionaries who take a long-term, regional approach to major decisions. That's one reason llitch kept the Red Wings on the Detroit River front instead of skating off to Pontiac. The city's revived theater district and moving Little Caesar's corporate headquarters from Farmington Hills to the Fox Theatre building also demonstrate Hitch's gutsy style.

That kind of civic commitment indicates a solid effort will be made to keep the Tigers where they belong - in Detroit.

The sale will hopefully kick-start stalled negotiations with Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara over the site and financing for a new stadium, preferably downtown.

It would be even better, of course, if the Tigers' new playing field was built without public financing. Ilitch of Bloomfield Hills and Ford of Grosse Pointe, like Monaghan, are wealthy enough to sink their own money into the project, or at the very least obtain credit or attract private investors. Wayne County voters could have a chance to as the freeways ran, the newest stadiums in the American League - Minnesota, Chicago and Baltimore - were all built in the center city.

shape the new owner's thinking on that issue as early as this fall with a referendum on a hotel? entertainment tax:

We are not naive. A downtown location, while vibrant and easily accessible, won't be the cureall for Detroit's massive socioeconomic prob-

But that solution would be far better for baseball fans and suburban residents alike than building a $200-million diamond fortress in Plymouth Township, Auburn Hills or some other remote location identified in surveys as "the center of the team's customer base for the 21st century."

A suburban stadium would undoubtedly provide Tigers patrons with a safe environment and ensure the team's profitability.

But it would also contribute heavily to urban sprawl and put the Tigers about 20 years behind the times. While the trend in the '70s was to build about as far out of town as the freeways ran, the newest stadiums in the American League — Minnesota, Chicago and Baltimore - were all built in the center city.

Sylvia praised

have never written to a newspaper before but I am tired of reading the (critical) letters about Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek.

The Friendship Center belongs to all seniors. It's a beautiful building and is that way because Sylvia did not depend on the city alone to make it beautiful. She got many donations for many different things including the park in the back of the center.

The many years I have known Sylvia, her first concern has always been the seniors. She is the most dedicated person I have ever known.

Friendship Center has never been Sylvia's. It has always belonged to the seniors. Her name i on the door like any diretor's name would be. Anything Sylvia has ever done has been for the benefit of the seniors.

There would never have been a Dyer Center Senior Program if it wasn't for Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek who started the Senior Club at John Glenn High School which later moved to the Dyer Center with a new director.

As for the (dispute on the senior) bus, which I donated to, was never intended to be against any handicapped people. We have handicapped people travel with us on trips and we reserve front seats for them. Everything about the bus got twisted by the City Council. There are a few on the council who have big ideas for the future and for power that they accuse Sylvia of having.

They are just jealous of the terrific job Sylvia does in everything she does. She is a hard worker and a high achiever and follows through on everything she does.

As we all know anyone can be replaced, but no one will ever be able to duplicate Sylvia. She is the best friend any senior could ever have.

Lawsuit awards spell tax increase

he state Court of Claims let the other shoe start falling to the floor last month. Just as I told you last year it would. Ingham Circuit Judge James Giddings, sitting as the Court of Claims, ruled state government is obliged to pay the costs of operating trial courts. These are the circuit, probate and district courts in 821/2 counties. All sorts of figures are bouncing around about the cost. I would put it at $400 million per year to the state general fund.

What happened is that in 1980 the state began paying for local courts, starting and stopping with Wayne County and Detroit. The state left out suburban Wayne and the other 82 coun-

Now, most people reading Detroit papers and watching Detroit TV have no idea how bitterly outstaters resent that funneling of their taxes down I-96 to 2 Woodward Avenue. So 76 counties and 56 local units hired Grand Rapids attorney Doug Van Essen to sue.

It took three years. The appeals process will take another three years. But Van Essen's clients are sure to prevail, since many Supreme Court justices are committed to full state funding of trial courts.

Let's put the money into perspective. The state budget currently is in the $7.5 billion ballpark, putting this cost at 5 percent of the

Consider what has happened in the last two punk economic years:

• Gov. John Engler settled the Oakland County mental health suit for several hundred

• The state has whacked the welfare, commerce, regulatory and other budget segments hundreds of millions more, holding education levels but throwing more burdens on universities and out-of-formula school districts.

• Engler's "cut and cap" property tax plan is on the ballot and getting enthusiastic support from most Republican legislative candidates. If approved, it will cost more than $1 billion when phased in over five years.

My prediction has been that if any two of a long list of things happened, Michiganians will face a substantial tax increase. The Oakland suit was first on the list. The court suit is likely to be the second. The money just isn't there, and the economic growth isn't possible.

There was an interesting wrinkle to the Patterson-Anderson tax cut proposal - rememher? The one that didn't get on the ballot. Hidden in the fine print was a section saying the state couldn't raise taxes to pay for lawsuit awards. Brooks Patterson and Patrick Anderson clearly recognized what could happen.

Again: In the next one to eight years, we face a substantial increase in state taxes, whether anyone likes it or not.

The forces are in motion. We can't legislate against them any more than we can legislate against an earthquake or a heat wave.

Meanwhile, we can breathe a sigh of relief that the "KIDS" proposal fell flat on getting signatures for the ballot.

Never mind what the letters K-I-D-S stand for because it's a sham. This Ypsilanti-based group wants to reword the Michigan Constitution to make equitable school funding a constitutional right. In short, they are inviting, asking for, begging for a lawsuit to narrow the gap between rich and poor school districts.

And in these suburbs, our kids' school programs would have been reduced.

Tim Richard reports regularly on the local implications of state and regional events.

Warning! One-issue voters are everywhere this year

hat's your stand on the abortion issue?" It was The Feminist, talking to someone who had rung our front doorbell I was in the kitchen cooking dinner at the time, but I could hear her half of the conversation.

Curious, I joined her at the door. The bell ringer was a candidate for township treasurer, pounding the neighborhood pavements, trying to drum up some votes.

He was a bit taken aback by her question, but after stammering for a few seconds, he answered it. The answer was satisfactory, apparently, but I couldn't keep my mouth shut.

"That's certainly a major issue for the township treasurer's post," I said_ He chuckled.

"It may not be important for this job," The Feminist said. "But people use these positions as stepping stones to higher office. So I want to know where they stand right from the start."

Call her a one-issue voter, right?

Well, maybe. But there's more to it than that, and I've got a feeling there's going to be a lot of "one-issue" voting this year. .

That Supreme Court decision on the Pennsylvania abortion law didn't really satisfy either side, but it did focus attention on an issue that, up until recently, most politicians and public officials have been trying to ignore. Now they're jumping into the debate from all directions - left, right and some all the way from outer space. Consider:

• George Bush has threatened to veto a $252 billion defense bill over a tiny provision that would reverse a four-year-old Reagan policy and allow U.S. servicewomen stationed overseas to have abortions in U.S. military hos-

No federal money would be used. Patients would be required to pay for the procedures, and doctors who objected to abortions could refuse to handle the cases. But Bush says he'll veto the whole bill, if that amendment stays in place. The abortion provision was written by Rep. Les Aucoin, an Oregon Democrat, and Rep. Ronald Machtley, a Republican from Rhode Island.

JACK GLADDEN

Such scenarios are being played out all across the country as the abortion question becomes a part of more political campaigns.

• Last week Raymond Tanter, a political science professor at the University of Michigan and a Republican candidate for the U.S. House from the new 13th Congressional district, said he was invited to speak at a Domino's Farms prayer breakfast on the problems in the Middle East, then disinvited by Tom Monaghan because of his . pro-choice views on abortion.

A' Monaghan spokeswoman denied that the abortion issue was a factor, but did say that Tanter was disinvited because he was a Presbyterian and not a Catholic and that his Mideast talk was not the kind of "spiritual message" that was expected at the prayer breakfast.

• In Oakland County, even Dr. Jack Keyorkian, the so-called suicide doctor, has joined the debate. He's threatened a newspaper advertising blitz against Judge Alice Gilbert, a candidate for Congress in the re-districted 11th District, saying her pro-choice views on abortion are hypocritical since she issued an injunction against him and his "suicide machine" when he was hauled in to her courtroom after helping two women commit suicide.

 Closer to earth a group of Oakland County women legislators -Reps. Jan Dolan, R. Farmington Hills, Maxine Berman, D. Southfield, and Barbara Dobb, R-West Bloomfieldjoined officials from two abortion clinics in a press conference to discuss the Pennsylvania ruling. The legislators, all pro-choice, agreed that the abortion issue is very much on the minds of voters and could be a factor in upcoming elections.

Such scenarios are being played out all across the country as the abortion question becomes a part of more and more political campaigns. So if you're running for dog-catcher or sewer inspector in your local village or township and someone asks for your views on abortion, don't dismiss the questioner as just another individual with a one-issue mentality. There's a lot of them out there this year. And they didn't dream there were still so many of you old track aficionados out there! Several of you hastened to let me know my June 8 column about the sovereign state of Michigan's past and present Olympic prospects overlooked the late "Bullet Billy" Smith from Detroit Northwestern High, Willie Atterberry from old Eastern and Otis Davis from old Miller in my list of international sprinters to come out of Detroit.

Prediction: Local runners will bring home Olympic gold

World indoor hurdles record-holder Smith -- my Wayne State and Detroit Track Club teammate on many victorious relay teams - wasn't included because he never qualified for an international team except once as a relay runner. I left my old Michigan State rival Atterberry out because he never ran anything shorter than 800 meters internationally except as a 400-meter

And I just plain forgot Davie, whom " I probably repressed because he was the first Michigan-bred sprinter to ever beat my 46.5 400 time when he became the first man in history to break 45 seconds. He also won the 1960 Olympic And speaking of the 400-meter race, which I wrote about in a book entitled "The Longest Dash," my old one-lap distance has been prominently in the news with world record-holder Butch Reynolds' well-publicized attempt to make the Olympic team despite being under international suspension for a positive steriod test. He finally finished fifth in the trials for an alternate berth on the 1,600 meter relay team. Two other touches of deja vu for me were Pershing High grad Darnell Hall's sixth-place finish in that-trials race

JOHN TELFORD

Even if Pershing's (Darnell) Hall doesn't get to run, there'll be a touch of Detroit on that team.

and Charles Jenkins Jr.'s seventh place.

I was rooting for Hall, who also made the Olympic team as a relay alternate, because I once coached great Pershing teams in the '60s, featuring a state record-breaking mile relay. Reggie Bradford, who ran in that relay, later became an All-American in the same event for the University of Michigan, and his Pershing All-State teammate John Kitchen now coaches track at Westland John Glenn.

I was rooting for young Jenkins because his father, whom I outran three times in 1957 after he won the 1956 Olympic title in 46.7, was my all-time greatest rival. Fittingly, the junior Jenkins' nickname is "Chip." He'll become an alternate if Butch Reynolds' suspension is upheld. (It is now permissible at the Olympics to use alternates in preliminary relay rounds.) If Reynolds used steroids, he's no model for our youth and doesn't deserve to run the relay at Barcelona. But 1 hope Hall and Jenkins get to run at least in the preliminaries. Then if our first-string team wins in the finals, Hall and Jenkins will get gold medals for their preliminary round running.

Even if Pershing's Hall doesn't get to run, there'll be a touch of Detroit on that team, because NCAA 400-meter champion Quincy Watts. A Detroit native who grew to be a sinewy-fast sixfoot three-inches and 200 pounds in sunny California, Watts was third in the trials and will run the relay as well as compete in the open 400.

I'm going to predict two events I see through Telford's Telescope: Transplanted Detroiter Watts will win Redford Catholic Central basketball coach Bernie Holowicki is seven wins shy of 600 for his career. And during the summer this Bernie makes no bloopers with kids.

After 40 years of coaching, Bernie Holowicki has come up with as many one-liners and sayings as he's had play-

If better is passible, then good is not enough

Holowicki, 60, spends most of the summer coaching camps at CC for both boys and girls. While watching a group of girls dribble during a recent CC girls basketball camp, Helowicki had an interesting way of telling them to keep their heads up.

"Keep your head up, a good-lookingguy might walk in the gym," he said.

Our job is to start a flame in their hearts for basketball. Like coach (Mike) Vagnetti (of Rochester Adams) said yesterday (at camp), 'The gym is a classroom, and I'm the teacher.'

Whether he is directing basketball camps, taking CC's varsity to Team Camp or helping run the Nike Metro Summer League with Detroit Southwestern coach Larry Pierce, there's never a lull in Holowicki's sum-

With the exception of a two-year stint in the Korean War, Holowicki has coached basketball in the Detroit Catholic League every winter since 1953. He coached at St. Hedwig, St. Gregory and DeLaSalle prior to taking over at CC.

Holowicki's teams at St. Gregory won several second division championships, and some of his most memorable moments in coaching came at the school on the west side. He recalls one game being postponed because a fan came out of the stands holding a gun while the score was 42-42 in the middle of overtime.

"One of our cheerleaders said, 'You better take it easy coach, you don't know what they're going to do,'

Holowicki said.

The game was continued a week later at a gym with only the teams, referces and coaches in attendance.

On another occasion, after winning a game on the road, Holowicki and his players were confronted in their car by players from the opposing team.

"Back then there was no such thing as team buses," said Holowicki, a University of Detroit graduate. "We had one car, they had five and they trapped us before we could get out of the parking lot. I noticed the captain of the other team got out of the car, and I said 'What are you going to do about it?'

"I thought we were in for it, but the captain said, 'Boys, let's turn around.'

Macker puts game in perspective

a basketball playing, I knew my called the "Slow-Motion All-Stars," and while I did a great job moving in slow motion (especially on the rain-soaked asphalt late Sunday), I was no all-star.

Normally I play in the media division where it's easy to look good against guys who write about sports rather than play them.

But last weekend's competition was like none I've ever played against. Our team was in an advanced division which included several players with college experience.

The eventual champion, Carlson ± 3, came from Hope Colege and was led by 1991 Division III college All-American Eric Elliott, a guard who has signed a professional contract to play in Sweden. (Rick Laven, a 1990 Livonia Stevenson graduate now playing at Grand Rapids Baptist College, also had a team in the our division.)

When a buddy from college, Mike DeVilling, asked last month if I wanted to play in the Belding tournament - the granddaddy of all Mackers - I jumped (probably not too high) at the chance.

DeVilling said his friends, Ken George and Jerry Royce, also were on the team.

"Ken George - wow," I said. 'Count me in.'

George, a 1986 Farmington Hills Harrison graduate, acored more than 1.100 points while starting four years at guard for Albion Col-

Royce was named Most Valuable Player of Troy Athens' 1984 basketball team and he still has an incredibly accurate turnaround jump shot from 20 feet.

A bad start

When our first game began at 8:30 a.m. Saturday I was driving on I-96 somewhere between Detroit and Lansing. By blowing off my alarm clock I also blew a chance to play against a team that we dominated, 20-6.

We must have won in 12 minutes - record time," DeVilling

"Just my luck," I thought. I arrived in Belding around 10:30 a.m. in plenty of time for our next game which started at 6 p.m. While I spent the afternoon checking out the sights at Mackerville (it seemed like half the girls in western Michigan showed up to watch or play), DeVilling spent time at his in-laws near Grand Ranlds. George was at a friend's house and Royce did his best Michael Jordan impression - golfing nine holes before a game. "I shot a 39," Royce said.

What sport can't this guy play? We won our 6 p.m. game 20-18 on a clutch two point shot (behind the take-back line) by George after an intentional foul.

With our next game scheduled for Il a.m. the next morning against one of the division favorites, it was wise to follow a disciplined training

Unfortunately, DeVilling and I accidentally walked past my car after the tournament and ended up walking another three miles before finding it.

I don't know how much good that did us.

played up to 15 by one and we narrowly won again, 16-13, over the eventual division runner-up Blacktop Players. Again, George buried a two to win the game but the most important shot might have been a two-pointer by DeVilling with a man in his face to put us up 14-13.

DeVilling also made a key coaching move, bringing me in for him as a defensive replacement at crunch as a defensive specialist. After a long rain delay, we lost our last two games to be eliminated but I left at least with the satisfaction of finally scoring a couple of points. We also gained a third-place trophy, which went home with De-Villing.

"If you want to look at it come by the apartment," DeVilling said.

Camaraderie 2nd to none

Belding has hosted the Gus Macker since 1987 when some folks in Lowell, the original site, wanted it out of town because of all the people the tournament drew.

Bad move, Lowell. This year's tourney attracted more than 5,000 teams and about 350,000 people came out to watch. Imagine how much money they all spent in town. Most of the Belding streets are lined with backboards and for one weekend the townles don't mind using their front yards as cheering sections. The best part about this tournament might be running into old friends.

While walking around Mackerville on Saturday I heard a voice from a distance call out an old nickname of mine.

"Caveman." the voice bellowed. It was Michael Travis, an old friend from Central Michigan whom I haven't seen in seven years.

Girls love to come watch their boyfriends play. "This is awesome, they should have it every weekend," said Kristen Dressel, a 16-year-old from Jen-

Walter's Appliance kept itself in the thick of the Livonia Collegiate Buseball League race Sunday by sweeping a twin bill from the Tecumseh Green Giants, winning the opener 7-4 and the nightcap 12. 3 at Ford Field.

Walter's (14-8-1) is clustered near the top of the standings with Little Caesars (14-8) and Hines Park (15-9).

In the first game, Mike Coleman went the first five innings for the win. He struck out two and allowed three runs, two of which were earned. Steve Ross (Redford Catholic Central/Henry Ford Community College) went the final two innings ard recorded the save.

Walter's compiled four runs in the fifth, sparked by Jason Gabel's R31 single. He also slammed a tworun homer in the second and finis red with three hits and three RBI.

Keith Bozyk (Redford CC/Adrian College) was the losing pitcher.

Jason Valente singled, stole second and third, before coming home with the game-winning run on an overthrow.

Delwal broke it open in the sixth when Farmington Harrison product Mike Pesci doubled in two runs. Chad Chapman and Mike Swartzenberger each added RBI singles during the surge.

Tom Krestchmer collected two hits and two RBI for the winners. Valente and Pesci also had two hits

Salah, Fowler pace Chaplin's to victory

Chaplain's Comedy Club of Redford, sparked by Mark Salah's 3-for-4 performance at the plate, improved to 4-1 in the Wyandotte Class A Baseball League with a 7-6 triumph last weekend over CCI.

Salah homered in the opening . inning, while Brian Wilson knocked in the game-winning run later on with a sacrifice fly.

Rick Fowler went 2-for-4 with two RBI for the victors, who stand one game behind league leader Wyandotte Adray during the second half portion of the season. Tim Wilson also added two hits, including a triple.

Tom Berry pitched the first six innings, fanning seven and walking three, to gain the victory. Fowler came on to earn the save, slamming the door on CCI with two runners aboard in the seventh inning.

It wasn't necessary to qualify for the Great Lakes finals in half the sports offered at the games. Qualifying standards, however, did have to be met at the regionals in bowling, diving, soccer, swimming, track and field and volleyball.

The top four finishers at the regionals will advance to the state games, which will be July 31 to Aug. 2 in East Lansing.

Robert Leeds of Plymouth, competing in the 50-59 years old men's division, collected two first-place finishes and tied for first in a third. Leeds won the 100-meter dash (13.1) and the 400 run (1:02.5), and tied for first in the long jump (12feet, 91/4-inches).

Johnston also qualified for the state games with a third in the men's 40-49 100 dash (12.7)-

Robert Block of Livonia and Dirk Schmiedel of Canton, both competing in the 13-14 boys division, have each qualified in two events. Block was third in the 1,600 (6:21.1) and fourth in the 800 (2:53.0); Schmiedel was second in both the 200 (26.0) and 400 (56.7).

Other track and field qualifiers included Kevin Borowski of Can-Other local regional winners in ton, who was second in the 13-14

Lynch of Farmington Hills, who took third in the 50-59 men's long jump (11-10).

Taekwondo, which competed in the regional although qualifying for the state games was not necessary, produced some solid performances from local athletes.

Aaron Sellers of Canton, in the 9-Ian Bedford of Plymouth in the 10 boys and girls category, won the red and black belt in the Forms Division and was third in 11-12 boys and girls black belt sparring.

Jason McNew of Westland placed second in both boys and girls 13-16 yellow, green and blue belt forms and yellow and green belt sparring. Robert Tasnow, also of Westland, took third in the men's 18-35 yellow belt sparring and was second in the yellow, green and blue belt forms. Gary Mann of Livonia placed second in the men's 141-167 pound black belt sparring.

The second-division championship in 1968 against Detroit St. Martin had special meaning for Holowicki and wife Barbara. Their third child was born at 8:15 that morning and it was easy picking a name: Gregory, of course.

"We were going to name him Gree Martin, but my wife said 'I'll go along with Greg, but not Martin," Holowicki said with a laugh. "She had a brother named Robert so we gave him Robert for a middle name.

St. Gregory beat St. Martin that night for the championship.

"The gym was so packed there were people outside on the roof of the gym looking through the windows," Holowicki said.

Besides winning, Holowicki started another tradition at St. Gregory that he still uses today at CC: Having the most ball boys in town. Joe Charnley, currently the Dearborn Divine Child coach, was a ball boy for Holowicki before playing both baseball and basketball at St. Gregory from '66-68.

"He's a great teacher, great motivator and a great, great person, besides being a great coach," said Charnley, "I feel honored to have, had a chance to win some of those games for him. I don't think he's lost any enthusiasm."

St. Gregory closed in 1969 and Holowicki headed to DeLaSalle where he guided the Pilots to a

Class A champions

CC has won 14 district titles and four regionals under Holowicki. His 1976 team won the Class A championship - after beating Lansing Everett and Earvin "Magic"Johnson in the semifinal. The Shamrocks were led by Mike Prince, who went on to Western Kentucky.

"A sports writer asked me who's going to guard Magic and I said 'Who's he,' " remembers Holowicki. "I said 'Who's going to guard Mike Prince?' Stars don't matter to us. We've beaten (Derrick) Coleman. Magic, Chris Webber. The guy we wanted to beat and lost to by one point (in 1983) was (Detroit Southwestern's) Antoine Joubert."

Holowicki also has coached some stars, including Tom LaGarde, a '76 Olympian and NBA player, Tom Zaliagiris (North Carolina), Barry Spencer (Notre Dame), Greg Wendt (University of Detroit), John McIntyre (Missouri) and Rob Gonzalez (Michigan State).

Holowicki is easy going off the court but he's always into a game on the sidelines. He's gotten his share of technicals, like the time he threw a towel in the air and a referee told him "If it comes down, you're getting a 'T.'

"He hasn't lost a step," CC athletic director Bob Santello said. "My office is right next to the gym and in practice he can still rattle the pictures and trophies when getting on a player. But he can go from being a hard guy to saying a joke.

"He still has great knowledge of X's and O's, still goes to clinics, seminars and talks to peers and college coaches about strategy."

Retirement might be years away for Holowicki.

"My coaches tell me I have more energy than some people who are 40." Holowicki said, "As long as you're healthy, you're OK."

While Scott McNeal, alias Gus Macker, appreciates the compliment he's glad there's only one tournament each year in Belding.

"That would be pretty crazy (having one every weekend); I feel like a balloon ready to burst," said McNeal, whose all-world tour is making 53 stops in 1992.

Next year is the 20th anniversary of the Gus Macker and McNeal is planning to make it one to remember in Belding. He'd like to bring the garage from his parents' former home in Lowell to Belding to mark the occasion.

"We have the backboard and rim, we just don't have the garage," he said. "We'd also like to have a 'legends' game for some former players

Since I'm no legend I'll probably go back to playing in the media division. I think that's a better move than any I made all weekend.

The Gus Macker Tournament will be held Aug 22 and 23 at Oakland University in Rochester. Team entree fee is $65 and registration deadline is July 24 Call 1-800 876-HOOP or (616) 794-1500 for more details and application information

Bates Street Cafe simple, elegant fare

BY KEELY WYGONIK STAFF WRITER Tol

Take a mini vacation, have lunch at Bates Street Cafe on the new Van Dusen Terrace on the north side of the Community House at 380 Bates Street in downtown Birmingham.

Made possible by a gift from Helen Van Dusen (Mrs. C. Theron) of Bloomfield Hills in recognition of her family and their involvement in the greater Detroit metro area, the brick terrace seats 125 people, and is landscapped with flowers, shrubbery and 16 tall shade trees. Some of the tables have umbrellas.

Bates Street Cafe is also open 5:30-7:30 p.m. Thursdays. After dinner, walk across the street to Shain Park to listen to the free concert which starts-at 7:30p.m. The Birmingham/Bloomfield Symphony Orchestra is performing tonight, "Blackthorn" & "Kitty Heinzman Celtic Dancers," will take the stage 7:30 p.m. Thursday, July 23. Concerts are scheduled 7:30 p.m. on Thursdays through Aug. 27.

Getting back to the food, it's simple, elegant and eye-appealing. Salads and entrees range in price from $5.95 to $8.95, sandwiches are $5.95-$4.95. Thursday nights menu is heartier for dinnertime appetites. Prices range from $4.95 to $7.95 for dinner entrees, and $3.95 to $6.95 for appetizers.

"All of the food is made from scratch," said Chef Dan Shaughnessy of Farmington Hills, a graduate of the Schoolcraft College Culinary Arts program in Livonia.

Solid acting in Stratford's 'World of Wonders'

The Stratford Theater production of presentation at the Avon Theater is a "World of Wonders" continues through Aug. 9 at the Avon Theater. For ticket information, call the Stratford Festival Detroit box office line, 964-4668

BY HUGH GALLAGHER STAFF WRITER

Small acts often have grave consegences. This is the central theme of Canadian novelist Robertson Davies' Deptford Trilogy, a complex examination of the good, the evil and the banal.

Elliot Hayes has fashioned a new dramatic version of the last novel in this trilogy "World of Wonders." The valiant effort to deal with philosophy through drama by drawing on the horrific and magical in the novel. It is a production blessed by solid acting and some clever effects but is never quite magical enough to overcome murkiness and pedantry.

"World of Wonders" is the story of Magnus Eisengrim, a world famous magician at the end of his days. A television producer has come to persuade the magician to allow a biographical documentary. Magnus' two closest friends recount the true story of Eisengrim's very grim life.

Through dreamlike flashbacks into which the adult characters intrude and offer commentary, we are shown a story of Dickensian horror. Eisengrim's life begins with a thoughtless act that has wide reverberations. Subsequently, heis sexually abused by a carnival illusionist, kidnapped into a freak show. patronized by a grand theatrical couple of the old school and finally elevated to worldwide acclaim. Behind all of this is a mystery involving a misthrown stone and the peculiar death of a friend.

The pluses here are many. Though the characters are not all well defined, they are well played. Stratford stalwart Nicholas Pennell is a flamboyant but haunted Eisengrim. Leon Pownall is forcefully blunt as his friend Ramsay. Pat Galloway is sardonic, intellectual, a character from a German expressionist work as the deformed Liesl. Other fine performances are given by Douglas Chamberlain, Peter Donaldson and Edward Atienza (in two quite dissimlar but related roles as Eisengrim's tormentor and mentor).

Melodrama keeps audience laughing

Performances of Three Guys Productions' first show "Foiled Again" continue through Aug. 1. Shows 8 p.m. Thursday-Saturday, 7 p.m. Sundays at the Magic Bag Theatre Cafe on Woodward north of Nine Mile Road in Ferndale. For ticket information, call 544-3030.

The Birmingham. based Three Guys Productions' first effort, an original work, could very well be re-titled "Talent, Talent, Talent!," but instead carries the appropriate title "Foiled Again!"

The three guys -- Gerry Castle, Mike Vigilant and Dan Castle, have created two sidesplitting musical ettes; each act is a musical within itself. Act 1 is "Curse You. Jack Dalton!" Act 2 is "He Ain't Done Right By-Nell."

The original music by Gerry Castle is lively, and a superb match to the witty lyrics of Mike Vigilant. Tying the musical knot is Wilbur Braun's books which both include a villain, a lady in distress, a hero to save her, and a curmudgeonly old woman. Hilarious dialogue flows smoothly into comic and sometimes bawdy song. The story and music, however, seem an appropriately incidental backdrop for jokes and an absolutely wonderful time.

Director Bill Haycook, Music Director Gerry Castle, Chorcographer Carollee Castle and Vocal Director Sally Castle, squeeze every munnee from the material to provide an uproarious evening of melodramatics farcical entertainment. The fastnaced show never stops the gags, jokes and movement:

Before the show begins, the audience is warned by a flight attendant of several rules, the two most important are, "Do not crinkle irritating, little cellophane wrappers, and "Feel free to boo or hiss at the villain, or cheer for the hero." In other words, audience participation is a must.

Act 1 is unbridled British meolodramatic humor which alternately provides the shenanigans of "Laugh In," Benny Hill, and perhaps, just a twist of Carol Burnett. Onstage chemistry crackles and Cindy Pritchard and Dan Castle dance, sing and joke through Act I as Bertha and Jack, secret lovers who cannot keep their plump hands from dipping into cupcakes. Little Debbies and the like.

Dan Castle as Jack is a combination of Jackie Gleasoln, Bud Costello and John Belushi. He is absolutely hilarious while crooning "Bertha," a song which takes wide poetic license with such wonderfully, mentally abusive lyrics as "Bertha; Bertha, you're the most precious thing on Eartha!"

With exaggerated quivering tips and fluttering eyelashes. Pritchard is the perfect coquette, and has mastered the art of musical melodrama. Her smokey, jazzy song, "Chemistry," is a true entertain ment gem.

Sharon Hendricks and Diana Marie Balsama give marvelous peformances as Mother Dalton and Anna, an opportunistic, money hungry woman who is vying for Mother Dalton's son's affections. Their duet, "Men Are Animals,"> stops the show, and their comic timing is flawless.

Steve Tadevic plays Egbert talso called Egg Yolk, Egg Plant, Egg White, etc., the evil villain ("Booo! Hisss!). Tadevic possesses irrefutable comic timing during his fuhny "The Best Darn Thing My Heart Has Ever Seen" while reluctantly ogling ugly duckling Eloise (Tania L. Velinsky).

Ken Ebaugh portrays Richard, the hero ("Honraay!") who comes to save the day. Ebaugh's performance is polished; he offers a nice equilibrium for the remainder of the cast, Velinsky plays a very energetic and zany Eloise.

*Between the story line, Act I'mterjects from across the century from the "Wizard of Oz" and "Les 'Melodrambles'" (A "Forbidden Broadway" style spoof from "Les Miserables"). Act 2 provides more of the same fun and frolic, but instead of the the British tarce style, Act 2 is "The Rocky Horror Picture Show" meets "Hee Haw."

Three Guys Productions' premiere work, "Foiled Again!," is a wonderful opportunity to laugh

There were even impressive in her virtuoistic solo more empty seats and deserted areas on the lawn than one could witness in previous seasons with the regular heavy duty programs.

Most of the selections, to be sure, are not objectionable in themselves. and could be incorporated into a more substantial program. The one exception is the Stokowski arrangement of Bach's Tocata and Fugue which, in my opinion, is among the worst tasteless monstrosities, and gross desecrations of a work of art. Much as with many elections, however, I am reconciled with the fact that mine is destined to remain a minority view

This is not meant to be a denunciation of fun and entertainment. which I do enjoy as much as anyone else. But an entire summer without any program of more tangible substance is analogous to several months of a steady diet of low calorie ice cream. The menu on that program, in its manner of presentation, could not be analogous even to real, full bodied ice cream.

There were some individual efforts that deserve full credit, to be sure. Among them is that of WQRS announcer Dave Wagner, who hosted the program, and was shedding light on the light subject in a very parts in the "Dance of the Flowers" from Tchaikosky's "Nuteracker Suite." So were assistant trumpet principal Stephen Andersen and concertmaster Emanuelle Boisvert in the arrangement by Moses of Schubert's Ave Maria. The name of the arranger not withstanding, this was not quite the version that came down to us from Mount Sina:

Jarvi attempted to breathe life finto the music by creating some unusual effects. Some of those, howev er, sounded contrived, such as the slowed scales in the "Dance of the Sugar Plum Fairs', Among other movements of this suite, which appeared in a different order than printed on the program, the "Arabi an Dance" was stretched out to the extent that it appeared as long as the Sahara Desert

Among the lew items that sounded credible were Dukas' Sorcerer's Apprentice and Mussorgsky's Night on Bald Mountain. The Dance of the Hour from La Gioconda emerged radiant and entertaining with its popular themes.

Among the noteworthy unscheduled features was some extraordinary virtuoso balalaika playing by Genady Zut, who immigrated here from Russia. His rendition of Liszt's Rhapsody No 2, with piano accompaniment, pushed his instrument far beyond its conventional outer limits. This was followed by some Russia folk themes.

As a partial atonement for the light content of the program, Jarvi presented the Prelude to the third act of Wagner's Lohengrin as an encore. This short piece, has indeed, more substance than the rest of the program combined.

While maintaining artistic integrity may be difficult under present circumstances, this event proves that its compromise can be even more costly. This should be a good reason for restoring artistic content to-Meadow Brook next season.

Baubles and bangles: The Video Shopping Club is a jewelry and gift warehouse that keeps its inventory at the manufacturer and uses the consumer's television as its showroom.

Jewelry offered for sale through video

Borrowing an idea from the home shopping networks, two entrepreneurs are hoping they can sell jewelry via video by selling more conveniently and less expensively than other retailers.

BY GERALD FRAWLEY

Build a hetter mousetrap and the world will beat a path to your door; video tape a jewelry store and you'll get in the customer's door.

That, at least, is the hopes behind a new venture being launched by Birmingham natives Glenn M. Wachler and Jeff Linklater.

The two have formed Video Shopping Club, a jewelry and gift warehouse that keeps its inventory at the manufacturer and uses the consumer's television as its showroom.

life," said Wachler, whose family owns David Wachler & Sons Jewelers. A little more than three years ago, Wachler said he decided to cut out on his own.

That's when he began operating Gem World Co., a shop-at-home and office iewelry service. Linklater joined the firm last year.

"Being able to distribute on video has given us an opportunity to reach people we might not have had," Wachler said. Home jewelry shows have been rewarding, he said, but it was limited in the number of people who could be reached.

Wachler said the two were driving on business trip between Birmingham to them, "It seemed like we could describe something better with video than the written word.

Linklater noted, "I've read through jewelry catalogs and even I can't always tell what exactly I'm buying. On video, you can see how something really looks. You can turn it and twist it in the light and see it how it really is."

The look is classic

The forbearer to the idea, the two admit, is the home video shopping networks that have cropped up on cable television. Linklater noted that the industry earned more than a billion in revenues last year.

"But we didn't want to be like that,"

and Grand Rapids when the idea came ity merchandise at outrageously quoted discounts.

"In America, you can't buy a watch for $200 when the list price is $1,000." Wachler added. "We don't want to slam something down people's throats. Television tries to catch the spur-of-themoment buyer - our videos are not meant to be hard sell."

When they were knocking around ideas on how they could expand their business, their game plan was two-fold: sellmore conveniently and less expensively

The idea, they decided, is to sell "classic" jewelry that never goes out of style, rather than elaborate pieces that few would want, Wachler said. Custom pieces and special occasion, expensive jewelry for the corporate executive wife

Working couple raises financial questions before starting family

and ALAN FERRARA SPECIAL WRITERS

Local financial planning experts reviewed the data of the family profiled here and made general recommendations based on the participants' resources and goals. The information is for educational purposes only; references are not intended as discrimination or endorsements by this newspaper or the advisers.

"This time, like all times, is a very good one if we but know what to do with it." Ralph Waldo Emerson's words are as true today as they were when first spoken in 1837. They certainly apply to this month's profiled couple, Bob and Sara Temple.

Both are 32 and have computerrelated careers. Bob works for EDS and earns $37,000, and Sara is a computer specialist for a smaller manufacturer, earning $35,000. Their higgest concern is making sure they are doing those things necessary to move them toward their long-term and short-term financial goals.

They have been married for three years and are hoping to start a family next year. They would like to start planning for education expenses right after the child is born. At this point, Sara plans to continue working full-time.

They would like to buy a larger home in perhaps five years. When asked about their most important goal, Bob replies, "We feel that it is important to start a long-term savnga plan-while maintaining a comfortable current lifestyle."

Lack master plan

They have not yet started any significant retirement savings because their focus has been saving for the home they bought last year. They have managed to avoid significant debt, borrowing only for their home and cars. With two steady incomes, they have the ability to start a retizement savings plan while still meeting current goals.

As a couple just getting started in planning-their financial future, we would recommend that they read "The Wealthy Barber" by David Chilton. This easy-to-read book is an excellent source of basic financial planning information in an entertaining format.

They ask, "How much should we be putting away toward retirement? What is the best place for these dollars?" Both are fortunate to have a deferred compensation arrangement available through their employer. Under this plan, they agree to reduce their current salaries by a specific amount. These dollars are placed into an account that earns interest until they retire. Both the amount contributed and the interest are not taxable to them until they receive it, so there is a significant tax advantages

Employer plan benefits

We'd suggest that each of them place 10 percent of their salaries into this deferred compensation plan. This is the single most important thing they can do for their financial future. Por individuals in their 30s who are eligible for company pension plans (like Bob and Sara), 10 percent of income placed in retirement savings is frequently sufficient to meet long-term needs.

Because of the longtime horizonfor the investment of these funds. the majority of their deferred compensation should be allocated to growth accounts that invest in stocks.

Bob also has access to an employ. er stock purchase plan, which hilows him to buy EDS stock at a 15 percent discount. He should take advantage of this. Although there may be some risk in the ownership of the stock, the 15 percent bonus significantly reduces this risk. This money might be earmerked for the purchase of their new house in five years. Though the stock has to be held for at least two years before it can be sold, Bob should subsequently watch for a good time to sell his stock and lock in a profit.

They also requested information on the types of insurance they should purchase. They both have excellent health and disability policies though their employers. The only weakness in their auto and homeowners policies are their coverages for liability, currently at ,$100,000 in each policy.

Liability coverage of $100,000 is inadequate in these days of high court judgments. They should increase this amount to $300,000 or $500,000. The cost of this increase would be perhaps $30 per year

Insurance a weakness

They carry only the life insurance provided by their employers at two times their annual salaries or about $75,000 each. They ask, "Is this adequate? How should we change our coverage when we have a child?"

We would recommend that they own a personal policy. Their current insurance would not even cover the mortgage should either of them pass away, and they are dependent on two incomes to support their current lifestyle. At this time, $100,000 of additional personal covcrage would be a minimum. This also gives them insurance protections should they leave their current employers.

At the time they have their child, their situation should be reviewed. They may very well need to increase their coverage again. The point is to plan their insurance program, rather than simply purchasing whatever they feel inclined to buy at any given time. If they just need temporary coverage during the period that their child is growing up. they might check with their employers to find out whether additional optional coverage is available through their employers' group

They have no estate plan. At this time, simple wills that include naming a personal representative for their respective estates and detailing their distribution desires would be adequate. They may also want to create a durable power of attorney that allows them to manage their financial affairs more easi-Ly if one of them becomes incapaci-

This simple estate plan would be fine until they have a child, at which point they should review it with their attorney.

is not their balliwick.

"The trick is getting the jewelry into people's hands who will buy." Wachler said.

Low overhead

The video catalog, which customers can view at their leisure in their homes, fulfilled the convenience aim and it also established the groundwork for selling less expen-

Without the overhead of owning a retail location and hiring a sales staff, the two could offer jewelry at a substantial savings, Wachler said. Which doesn't mean there were no obstacles to setting up the venture.

"We didn't have a tremendous amount of capital to work with so we were fortunate to find several jewelry manufacturers who would work with us.'

The other hurdle, Wachler said. was to find a way to distribute. Obviously, they couldn't go the traditional retail route. They've settle on four basic distribution methods.

Distributor network

The first is a network of independent distributors who purchase memberships at wholesale and then sell them for the suggested price of $20. "Our independent distributor is not a salesperson; they are a channel to the customer," Wachler

"We don't want people misrepresenting what we're seiling and we don't have time to train them," he said, "The video catalog is the Wachler has also made arrange. ments for organizations to sell video club memberships as a fund-raising mechanism. Instead of an individual selling memberships and gaining a commission, the group would be the beneficiary.

Wachler and Linklater are also planning on distributing the video catalog through video rental stores and mass market retail outlets.

"Our target audience is the working, professional woman who shops at the catalog showrooms for jewelry," Linklater said. That market, he said, spends between $200 and $500 on iewelry each year. Merchandise in the video catalog ranges from simple pieces costing $35 to more elaborate items priced as high as $8,500. "There are some people who will never buy this way," he said. "We expect most of our customers will convert from catalog showrooms.

Wachler said some of the best customers so far have been people in small towns who would have to travel miles to find jewelry otherwise. "We've even talked of setting up some of the hair salons and florists in smaller communities as independent distributors," he said. "We feel that may eventually be our niche," Wachler said.

First Step has wishes to fill a list

When when it comes to First Step, the Wostern Wayne County Project on Domestic Assault, the addage about every little helps as apropros.

It's been 13 years since First Step opened its doors to the victims of domestic assault. And sadly, business is booming for its staff and volunteers.

What started with a $25,000 start-up grant and donated office space by the city of Westland has grown to a 24-hour help line, offices in Westland and Southgate, emergency housing, legal and financial assistance and counseling for the victims of domestic violence and sexual assault.

In 1991, the First Step help line received 3,578 calls relating to domestic violence and 1,490 calls because of sexual assault. It helped 2,198 families through its domestic violence program and another 384 through the sexual assault program. Of those numbers, 222 families and two individuals were housed at the First Step shelter.

A non-profit organization, First Step has managed to meet the needs of those people on a limited budget. Last year, the agency made ends meet with the help of more than $45,00 in private donations, $152,441 in in-kind goods and services and 9,600 hours of service from 65 volunteers.

Its major contributors include the Michigan Department of Social Services, United Way of Southeast Michigan, the Plymouth Community United Way and Victims of Crime Act as well as the cities Livonia and Westland and Canton and Plymouth Townships.

Wish list

Considering its service area covers 480 square miles and takes in 1.3 million people, that might explain why the agency has a wish list. As the need for its services continue to grow, so does the need for items to adequately care for clients at its offices and through its shelter.

It's hard to set priorities when the needs is so great, but at the top of the list is several items pillows, glasses, silverware, pots and pans, dishes, diapers (medium and large size only), nail polish remover, personal care items for women of color, toilet paper and paper towels.

And the list doesn't stop there. When it comes to office supplies, First Step needs such things as file folders, large scissors, pens and pencils, 81/2- by 11inch legal pads, copier paper, manilla folders, manilla envelopes and computer paper.

The agency also needs office furniture like desks, including a computer desk, desk chairs, stackable chairs, a long folding table, file cabinets, desk lamps, folding chairs and a 4- by 6-foot bulletin board.

There's also a need tor cleaning supplies -- vacuum cleaner, portable vacuum cleaner, Dustbusters, garbage bags, mops, brooms, laundrey detergent, fabric softener, laundry baskets and disinfectants and linens - non-slip area rugs, plastic twin mattress covers, plastic pillow covers and sleeping bags.

In the realm of equipment, the list includes blank VHS video cassette tapes, VHS tapes with non-violent themes for adults, wall and alarm clocks, cool mist vaporizer, night lights, 60- and 75-watt bulbs, manual can openers, bottle openers and plastic storage containers.

Cupboard stockers include baby formula, distilled water, canned fruit and vegetables, cereals, ready-toeat foods, condiments, spices, paper plates, hot and cold cups, facial tissue and napkins.

And to help its client, First Step could use such personal care items as deodorant, nail clippers, hair spray, mouthwash, conditioner, toothpaste, hair brushes and baby products — shampoo, powder, oil, baby bath, wipes, nasal syringes and pacifiers.

For the kids

The longest portion of the wish list is for children. Frist Step could use new car seats, a volleyball set, non-violent and non-sexist VHS tapes, poster board, stencils, markers, wrapping paper, paint brushes, paint (water and tempora), records and tapes, headphone radios, car and airplane models, snap-together model kits, Paint-by-Number kits, knitting needles and crochet hooks, latch hook kits, crossword puzzle books (needlework and crossword puzzles for women as well), toys designed for children of color, Play-Doh and 60-100-piece floor puzzles.

Because of a lack of storage space, First Step isn't accepting donations of clothing other than women and children's nightwear, slippers, sock, underwear and sweatsuits (small, medium and large).

If you have donations or for more information, call First Step at the Westland office at 525-2230. If you need help, call the 24-hour help line at 459-5900.

■ Considering its service area covers 480 square miles and takes in 1.3 million people, that might explain why the agency has a wish list.

Market mayhem

'Hey, buddy, could ya move that cart?'

■ Next to cleaning the bathroom, grocery shopping rates right up there among the things people hate to do. Why? Maybe it's the assortment of characters you encounter down the aisles. Ever met Shopping Cart Rambo? How about Little Miss Impatience or Heavy-handed Hannah? No? Oh, but someday you might.

By Sue Mason Staff Writer

Above the din of voices, a syrupy sweet one comes out of the PA system loud and clear:

"Hi, this is Eyes on the Aisles with the latest traffic report. Heavy congestion is causing a back up in the snacks aisle and a two-cart collision in laundry products has shut that aisle down for at least the next 20 minutes. Your best beat is to exit at pet care and head over to dairy products until the coupon debris can be cleared."

Wouldn't it be nice to go grocery shopping at a civilized hour and not have the shopping cart mayhem that turns the meek and mild into wild things?"

Wouldn't it be nice to have someone or something to tell where the congestion is during prime shopping hours?

Think about it. Traffic lights, directional signs, even enforcement officers. would go a long way toward getting the stress out of grocery shopping.

Have you ever zipped out of the canned goods aisle, made a sharp right and headed for condiments only to find yourself in a traffic jam at the meat counter as just about every person in the store converges on the whole fryers that are on sale for 59 cents a pound.? It's worse than a blue light special.

It's as if the manners button gets turned to rude as soon as hands touch a shopping cart in a grocery store. You can see the Jekyll/Hyde transformation as they walk through the doors. A polite "Excuse me, could you back up, please; I'd like to go through" somehow comes out sounding like New York cab driver: "Hey, buddy, move that buggy or I'll move you."

If you're a casual shopper, you may get caught up in the vortex of the Whirling Dervish. You know, the shopper who thinks she's the White Tornado and whips through the place faster than Flo Jo runs the 400 meter.

But that one's not quite as dangerous as the guy who mistakes the pop dis-cart like a dragster and heads down the aisle like it's the quarter mile. Move aside. Shirley Muldowney; give it up, Connie Kalitta.

Shopping Cart Rambo. Get in her way and you'll get yours with a stick of hard salami. Thank God, those babies don't come equipped with rocket launchers.

"SWAT team to Aisle Six; barricaded gunman threatening to waste the Puppy Chow. Extreme caution advised."

Maybe there should be certification for shopping cart usage. There could be testing for such things as agility (able to dodge spilled cereal and broken bottles), flexibility (reaching over abandoned carts to get to your brand) and weightlifting's clean and jerk (snatching the 3-pound can of coffee off the bottom shelf and dumping it in the cart in one fluid motion).

Of course, there would have to be a road test to check up on such maneuvers as parallel parking (slipping a cart in between two others to keep an aisle clear), right and left turns and yielding right of way to oncoming carts.

"Eyes on the Aisles" could ride around in the motorized carts and issue citations for offending shoppers. Like traffic tickets, shoppers would accumu-play as the starting lights, revs up his late points. Too many points and shopping cart privileges could be suspended. Too many suspensions and face being banned from the store.

"Hey, Mable, that's a two-pointer for And of course, there's always the angle parking in baked goods: You caused a 10-cart backup into produce.

Yo, Joe, who taught you how to shop. You can't park three abreast in the pop aisle. That's a major infraction. Five

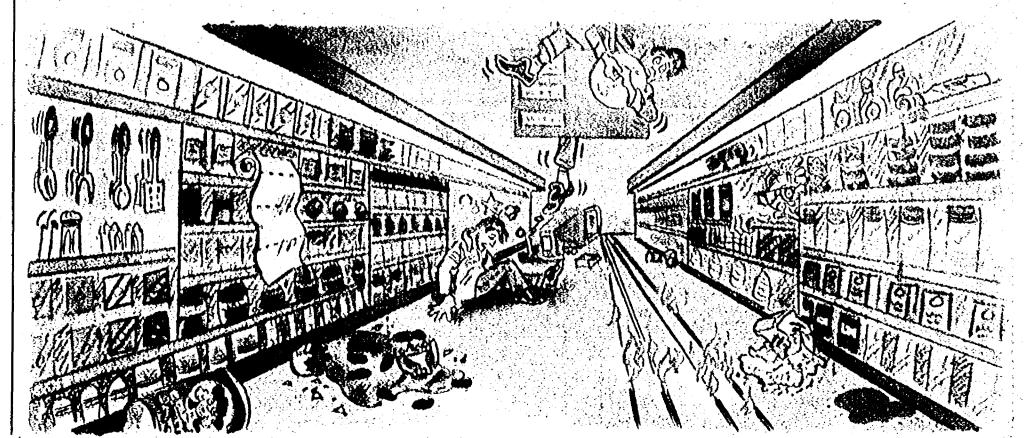

And if you survive the aisles, you still have to face checkout. That's where you'll find the sneaky shoppers. You've scen them, even gotten stuck behind one or two of them.

Those Sneaky Sadies are the ones who try to squeeze through the express lane with more than the 10-item limit - "Those six boxes of tooth picks count as one item. She punches in six and scans the bar code once.' They're also the ones who write a check when the sign clearly says cash only. First, the fumble through the wallet, then that whiny look on their face, just before they say: "I think I'm a little short; can I write a check?" Sirens should go off, alerting shoppers to the offensive behavior.

"Eyes on the Aisles" could make an an-Sec SHOPPING, 2C

"Shoppers, if you look to Express Lane Three, you'll see a can't count. check-writing low life. Let's give her the supermarket salute." Rospberries would echo through the store.

And of course, the checkout line is also where parents wish they had six arms - more if there's several children instead of a child. Two hands are for unloading the cart, two to put back the junk your kid keeps throwing into it and two to tie the little bugger's hands behind his

Actually, Plexigluss panels should drop down as a cart with child enters the checkout to seal off the candy from the groping, grubby little mitts. Have you ever gotten stuck in a slow-moving line to have only the mashed, mushed and halfeaten remains of a candy bar, stashed out of sight of the cashier, to look at?.

"Hey, Louie, is that dog doody?"

"Naw, Benny, just a dead Baby Ruth bar."

Of course, there's also heavyhanded Hannah the cashier to deal with. She has a penchant for bagging groceries the way Hulk Hogan body slams The Ultimate Warrior. You may have picked over every apple in produce to find a perfect pair, but when Hannah gets 'em, it's applesauce. Admit it, there's nothing worse than watching your carefully select. ed produce slamdunked into a bag, the potato chips stuffed in with the cantalope and the bread pressed between the cans of Spaghetti-Os. It wouldn't be so bad, but your sleeves are still damp from the shower you got picking out the lettuce.

And eggs. There seems to be an unwritten rule about breaking at least one egg in the carton between the dairy case and the car.

Hannah seems to get really surly when there's no price on the package. Her "price check on seven" has the snarl of a starving lion and at the wrinkle in her lip turns into a carvern the longer she waits for an answer.

And lo and behold, if you don't have an antsy-pantsy Little Miss Impatience behind you who keeps ramming your calves with her cart because it's taking too long.

If that isn't enough, there's always the indignity of the parking lot and that one yo yo who doesn't understand the meaning of cart corral, leaving his cart and a nice long scratch in your new Escort.

And if you're lucky, you'll get the cart with the elickety wheel that takes off across the lot, groceries and all, hell bent on plowing into somebody's Cadillac. By the time you catch up with it, it's already careened off the Caddy and is bearing down on a slow-moving shopper in the handicap parking space.

Parkinson's treatment is topic

Dr. John J. Nutt, a professor of neurology and pharmacology at Oregon Health Sciences University, will discuss the new approaches to the treatment of Parkinson's Disease at 7 p.m. Thursday, July 23, at Ford World Headquarters in Dearborn.

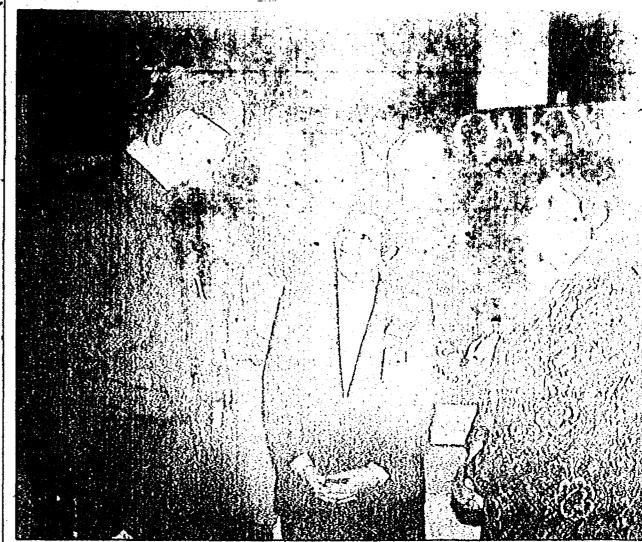

Nutt is an internationally recognized expert in Parkinson's Disease. He received his medical training at Baylor College of Medicine. Following internship training at the University of Oregon Medical School, he worked at the National Institute of Mental Health.

He also worked in the experimental therapeutics branch of the National Institute of Neurological and Communicative Disorders in Mary land, following his neurology residency and before returning to Ore-

In addition to teaching and research, Nutt also directs a Parkinson's clinic at the university.

Persons with Parkinson's Disease, their families, and health professionals will have a rare opportunity to hear about Nutt's research and treatment and ask questions. To register, call the Michigan Parkinson, Foundation office at 745-

'Dutch' Leonard lends a hand

The extremely successful fictionist: Elmore "Dutch" Leonard of Birmingham has created some of the best adventure legends of our time. One of his current works, "Get Shorty," may be his best whodone-it-to-whom to date. Certainly his reader-approval quotient continues to cant up dramatically.

Such an astonishing imagination as he must have stirs my thirst to determine why he never developed a bridge acquisitiveness. I don't want you to conclude that I am one of those people who believes only those who play bridge or polo make the world go round, but a man of such fertile inventivoness certainly qualifies for a high place in our card-playing society. Conceivably he has a playing interest, but it has been masked by his aptitude and chosen style of life.

To get a better fix on this man, I turned one of my snoopers loose to determine his diversion when his quick wit wasn't creating with the help of his quill. Unfortunately, his answering service is only programmed to promote his manuscripts so I have nothing to apprise you of in my sleuth's pursuit.

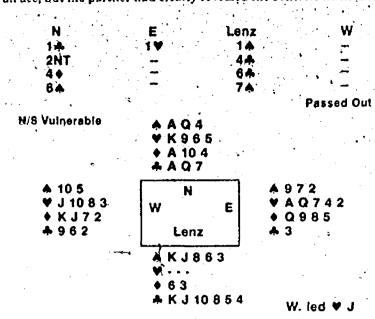

Firm in my determination, I personally tried the back door approach in the guise of the gas company's friendly meter man. This got the novelist by surprise, and I want you to know that Leonard has a keen bridge interest. Didn't his pen give us that best seller "Fifty-Two Pick

He was pleasingly agreeable to be associated with today's vagary if three conditions were carefully pursued. 1: Today's hand had to have been played by one of the greats. 2: It had to keep the reader in suspense till nearly the end. 3: Never darken his door, front or back,

Tall order, but I began to tackle this challenge three moons back: Finally, I found in the ancient archives of the ACBL the perfect hand, as recounted by Charlie Goren.

Sidney Lenz was a sparkling raconteur, a high ranking amateur table tennis player and a bewildering parlor magician. The magic he produced on today's hand had nothing to do with his powers as a prestidigitator even though it may seem so. The auction might suggest that clairvoyance was one of his talents, bidding the grant slam without an ace, but his partner had clearly revealed the controls he needed.

When the most formidable bridge master of his time first saw the dummy, he could count five spades, six clubs and one diamond winner. Where was the illusive 13th trick? How could be dispose of that second little diamond in his hand? He certainly couldn't make it disappear illegitimately or his integrity would be questioned. Nevertheless he did so. Can you?

After ruffing the opening heart lead, he played a diamond to the ace to trump a second heart. Next he cashed the spade king and a spade to durnmys queen. A third heart was now ruffed with his last spade. Dummy was entered with the club ace. On dummy's spade ace he pitched his other low diamond and ran clubs, winning 13 tricks.

Woody Boyd teaches bridge classes and is working toward becoming a life master. He lives in Bloomfield Township.

BY JULIE BROWN

The Rev. Jack Williams most likely won't be interested in starting a major home improvement project anytime soon.

part of Plymouth Township.

Williams is pastor of the Plymouth United Assembly of God. He and other worshipers at the church on North Territorial in Plymouth Township are finishing up an extensive building project.

"We purchased the property a number of years ago," said Williams, 52, of Plymouth Township. The vacant property was bought in the late 1970s, and in 1986 the first phase of the building project was completed. "It took us a little longer than we anticipated." That first phase included a fellowship hall, classrooms and most of the landscaping.

Previously, members had shiped in a building on Ann Arbor Trail in Plymouth Township. That building was sold and now is the Plymouth Baptist Church.

When United Assembly of God worshipers moved to the North Territorial address in the mid-1980s; they met for services in the fellowship hall downstairs, which seats approximately 300. That facility was a bit cramped, but worshipers have more room in the new sanctu-

The second phase of the project included the addition of a sanctuary with seating for approximately 600. Staff offices were added as Worshipers began using the new sanctuary in mid-April, and it was dedicated the final Sunday in May.

Total cost for the project was approximately $2 million. The building sits on 101/2 acres of land.

Williams, who's served as the congregation's pastor for 13 years, is pleased to have the work done. "I would say total jubilation and somewhat relief too because It had been longer than we'd anticipated.'

Growing with community: The United Assembly of God building is on North Territorial, in the fast-growing western

The project was financed through several sources, including the sale of the previous church, fund-raising by members, and local banks. Many church members provided both financial contributions and good oldfashioned elbow grease.

"Our members actually did a good share of the labor up here," Williams said, looking around the sanctuary. Some helped with carpentry. Nearly all of the painting and staining of wood was done by church members.

One member who had experience creating Tiffany lamps did the stained glass windows for the sanctuary. Many pitched in to help with the constant cleanup that goes with construction.

"And of course giving a lot of the money," Williams said.

The church has approximately 350 members. Down the road, worshipers plan to add a gymnasium and expand the educational area "as the growth allows that or dictates it." The educational area now includes 16 classrooms and is laid out in a hexagonal shape.

Plymouth United Assembly of God members have noticed the extensive growth in western Plymouth Township in recent years.

"This is where the growth is coming. We're right in the middle of the growth. Everything is new since we've been out here," Williams said. "This was partly swamp and partly hills.

"The changes have been nothing but progressive, wonderfully progressive. The best community I've ever lived in.'

Now that the project is just about done (there's some work left to do on the kitchen), United Assembly of God members have other goals in mind. Those include community outreach efforts, such as a recent multimedia patriotic presentation at the church.

"Our real desire now is to let the community know we're here to serve them in any positive way we can," Williams said. "Just to be of service to them, that's what we want to be. We're concentrating on really ministering to our community and trying to meet the needs of the community."

How we use language affects our perceptions of God

MORAL PERSPECTIVES

Language reveals a great deal about a person. We seldom are aware of this unless a person's language style is quite different from ours. As I prepare to visit Europe 1 reflect upon this. Americans are typically unwilling to deal with the way that upon life. How we use language also affects our perceptions of God. One Sunday language affects our perspective

a lawyer, who is a man, approached me and observed that I had used a male pronoun for God some 20 times in a worship hour. What difference does this make, I thought? I resisted his suggestion that I change my language regarding God. My mind has changed. It does make a difference how we use language with regard to God.

Words for God are metaphors.

Metaphors matter. We know that God is not an old man up in the sky. Yet we focus upon familiar patterns of words. We will often defend them. Everything else may change in this world but do not ask me to stop referring to God as "he." Yes, words are important.

One day I offered a prayer in a group. At one point I said, "Father, Mother God." An older woman came up to me later and in an angry voice said, "Don't ever do that again or I will leave this church!" Language makes a difference.

It feels more familiar and secure to stick with the old versions. Security lies in sameness. Strong passions are aroused when we start raising questions about how we speak of God. Yet, it is a most important issue.

Changing words

A change of language makes us freshly aware of how God language connects us with other values. For example, if we have any concern about the ecological crisis of the

It feels more familiar and secure to stick with the old versions. Security iles in sameness. Strong passions are aroused when we start raising questions about how we speak of planet, our language may need to expand to phrases like, "Ever creat-

Maybe it doesn't sound as comforting as the word Father. Yet, if we reach for new metaphors for God we might expand our vision of what matters in the dawning of the 21st

Our God language is important. Language points us to ultimate concerns and values. Not only fathere are important to us as a new century dawns. The natural world, ending war and violence, racism, the value of each and every human being - these all need to be connected with our language for God.

Some time ago a film was made with the theme, "If God is Father, then we are all brothers and aisters." This is a new definition of the word which points us to something more than an individualistic identification with God as my parent.

In working with our language for God we must not reduce the experience of God. Expand our words and images and we will expand our sense of God's reality. Multiply the images and reduce our dependence , upon male-dominated words. God must not be kept in the religion and the individualistic box.

If God lives on our neighborhood street then how would we address God? If God reveals God's presence in the whole universe, in the issues of peace and justice, in the midst of human suffering and vulnerability, we will search for additional words. Much of this whole issue has to do with how expanded our world is and how much we are willing to encounter mystery.

Breaking away

.Whatever we do we need to break out of the exclusive male imagery. It is difficult to do this, but if we are unwilling we need to ask whether we are driven by fear to resist new, fuller more inclusive words.

Skilled psychologists can simply listen to a client and can pretty closely determine what is the structure of the person's life which is giving them a pain. It is simply a case of listening to language. So it is with our language with God. If we are stuck with he and Father, then there is a potential rigidity which can collectively cause us pain.

Fear can be the focus of our struggle with language as we encounter God. If there is fear of making changes in our language it should remind us of our lack of love. The poet tells us of the question: "How many ways can I call thee my love?" If a person is afraid of expanding—us pursue the adventure.

language for God they need to ask the question of where fear and love come into this issue?

Language use with God needs to be an adventure. The adventure has to do with meaning and consciousness. Expand your use. God is honored not harmed by such a desire to reflect a larger reality. Get away from the male usage.

There is a final issue of God related to language. It is for many an issue of peace and justice. The word for peace in Hebrew is shalom. It is a particularly inclusive word. It means that each and everyone belongs. It is a wonderful word of hospitality. Peace includes everyone, especially those without power, of ten children and women. How we use words and God tells us something about who is included and who is excluded. Shalom includes everyone.

Words for God are very personal, Yet God does not need to be defended against feminine or child oriented language. Language with regard: to God is not an easy issue, but let

Shortly after arriving on Sunday we attended a small gathering at Carnegie Hall hosted by Verner, Liipfert, Bernhard, McPherson and Hand, former Gov. James Blanchard's Washington law firm. The event honored Sen. Patrick Moynihan of New York and his wife. My husband Michael and I were greeted by the warm hospitality of the principals of the firm and had an opportunity to see my old Michigan friends, Jim and Janet Blanchard, Ralph Gerson, Bob Larson and Bob Smith.

A highlight for me, as an admirer of fine photographs, was seeing Richard Avedon, who photographed so many famous faces so brilliantly.

Our next stop was a reception given for the Michigan delegation by General Motors and hosted by Alan - Convention color Smith. Among the beautifully displayed Saturns and Corvettes in the GM building, the delegates dined on potato-zucchini pancakes, beautifully presented vegetables, chicken tidbits and other hors d'oeuvres.

Among those from our area were Ron and Kitty Thayer, U.S. Rep. John and Debbie Dingell, the Blanchards, Gail Nolin, Steven Yokich, Donald Tucker and his daughter Megan, Mickey Meltzer and Jonathan Grossman.

Delegates discussed the choice of Sen. Al Gore as the vice presiden, tial running mate for Gov. Bill Clinton with a positive tone. Women delegates looked forward to easing their women candidates center

The delegates were looking forward to the next day and the beginning of the convention, I was looking forward to learning from many of the candidates I admire.

Monday morning after a Michigan delegation meeting, I attended an American-Israeli PAC briefing with Mickey Meltzer of Birmingham. U.S. Rep. Lee Hamilton of Indiana spoke of his strong support for Israel and was only cut short when Sen. Gore arrived. After a strong introduction to this group of Israel supporters, Gore impressed the gathering with his strength, sincerity and dynamic style.

As I lest the room, I lighted Thomas Friedman, author of "From Beirut to Lebanon," in hot debate with actor Richard Dreyfus. Somehow I was brought in as arbiter on how much or little foreign policy would mean at this convention. Dreyfus was concerned and inConventiongoers: Zina Kramer, a first-time delegate to the Democratic National Convention, and Sen. Carl Levin were photographed walking out of the Michigan

Plymouth again home for painter in acrylics

e mingled with the arts patrons in Palm Beach and Boca Raton while living in Florida from 1988 to 1991.

But moving back to his hometown of Plymouth, within walking range of Kellogg Park, and showing in the 1991 Art in the Park last summer proved to be something very special.

"It was good to be back in Plymouth," said Tom LeGault, an acrylicist and a 1974 Plymouth Salem High School graduate. "Getting away gave us a new perspective, a new appreciation, for the midwest."

While living in Florida, his family summered in Canton. He described Florida arts patrons as harderedged, less-congenial than midwesterners. "Many were high-intense New Yorkers," he said.

At the 12th annual Art in the Park Saturday-Sunday, July 18-19, LeGault will show 40 original acrylics priced from $100 to $550.

He'll also unveil a line of large, contemporary landscapes — "wet-on-wet acrylics."

"Because they set up quickly, you have to move really fast on these big pieces. It's almost like sculpting the paint," he said. "I've shown some experimental pieces at shows and they were the first to fly out of the booth in the first 20 minutes." --

LeGault works exclusively in acrylics: "I use them in a wide range - treating them like watercolors for traditional pieces, creating a thick buildup with a palette knife for abstract and contemporary pieces.'

Early art start

LeGault got his art start at age 14 when "my sister dragged me to an evening art class in Plymouth.

"As a kid, I always played with clay and sculpted, but I had no idea I'd paint an incredible still life that first night in class. I didn't expect it to happen. It just did. It was just a progression from there.'

At 18, he opened his first art studio. Despite demand for his work from galleries and buyers, LeGault says he's having more fun now than after he caught the eye of a New York gallery and auction network while working in Florida. "Flexibility to get out and about, instead of stick. ing to the studio, has put me in the fun zone," he

Starting in acrylics as a teenager let him hone a distinctive, dividend paying style.

"There's a million artists in Florida," he said. "To have a New York gallery and auction operation pick out my work is a real compliment. I'm breaking and bending the rules, but getting away with it."

His move into contemporary themes over the last three years bridges his traditional landscapes and highly textured floral abstracts.

"I've just done a contemporary tree scene with a real simple, clean look, incorporating all three styles," LeGault said. "People look at my work and think different artists are involved because it's so opposite," he said. "Basically, I'm a jack-of-all-trades.' LeGault is well known on the Midwest art show circuit for traditional water reflection scenes and a penchant for painting right in the booth at rapid-fire speed. "Giving people a chance to watch a painting go from a raw canvas to a finished look adds to the overall interest level," he said. "There's no commercially produced techniques involved. It eliminates skepticism. I actually create some of my best pieces at

To meet demand for his popular lighthouse and harn scenes, he'll soon add a series of signed, limitededition lithographs.

Style now freer

Meanwhile, LeGault continues to loosen his style and tackle contemporary themes. As he sees it, larger contemporary homes have triggered a new market: larger contemporary paintings.

'I've done some contemporary harbor scenes completely with a palette knife," he said. "There's no brushwork involved. It suggests buildings and water but because it'd done with a knife, it has a nice, soft 'wet on wet' look in pastel colors."

The trend toward contemporary has moved bouncing pastels or Sante Fe earth tones into the color scheme.

"Everything has shifted into balanced colors - for example, bouncing greens and lavenders off blues. It's subtle, not an abrupt blend," LeGault said.

"Even dichard traditionalists with barn or lighthouse scenes are seeing this unique use of new colors and not feeling threatened."

LeGault relishes the chance to experiment with technique and fine-tune his work. But he still hits the Midwest art show circuit 35 times a year: "After all, it's a people business I'm involved."

With painting a pastime-turned-profession, Le-Gault says he's busy looking for a new hobby - "one that doesn't have dollars attached to it."

Art to fill downtown Plymouth

Families, food, fun and art are on tap for fair goers this weekend in and around Kellogg Park. Art in the Park celebrates its 12th year by showcasing more than 300 exhibitors, 270 more than at the first fair in 1981.

walks in and around Kellogg Park in the heart of historic Plymouth Saturday-Sunday, July 18-19.

Artists and crafters from New York, North Carolina, California, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin and 110 Michigan communities will offer a bonanza of handmade artwork for browsing and buying. The fair began with 30 artists in 1981. Fair-goers will choose from among hundreds of personal and home decor accents, including paintings, pottery, jewelry, basketry, Chinese brush painting, photography, wearable art, weaving, wood craft, calligraphy, and stained, blown and leaded glass.

"We're real excited about this year's show. There'll be more artists demonstrating and a lot more variety. New to this year's show are silhouette cuttings, weathervanes, big pieces of furniture, beautiful woodwork, fabric batik, marbleizing and jewelry — everything from gold and diamonds to silver and dough," said Dianne Quinn, Art in the Park founder/producer.

Strolling musicians will accent the festivities. Barbry ellen will perform North American folk songs while music by the Mike Burst Dulcimer Ensemble will add a medieval touch. Rochester musician Guy Sferlazza and Chautauqua Express also will perform along with Trilogy, a mime group and clowns with balloons.

"The atmosphere is very festive and we have something for everyone's home, a unique individual piece." Quinn said.

Last year, 14 artists demonstrated their talents on Sunday under "The Gathering" on Penniman. This year, Quinn has asked artists to demonstrate on both days at locations throughout the fair, one of the largest arts and crafts fairs in the state.

Native American jewelry, rugs showcased

By Linda Ann Chomin Special Writer

Navajo artist Sarah Natani has been weaving wool ruga for 40 years.

She'll demonstrate her award-winning skills on a five-foot loom during a Native American jewelry and Navajo rug show Friday-Sunday, July 17-19, at Native West Gallery, 863 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth.

"I think it's exciting that people can see a piece of American history being demonstrated right here in Michigan and that Sarah's so willing to share her culture with us," said Becky Dodson, Native West coowner with husband, Doug.

Two leading New Mexico authorities on jewelry and rugs will accompany Natani. Edmond "Bing" Crosby of Albuquerque Mexico and Tom Wheeler of Waterflow will be on hand to answer questions about the Navajo culture as well as relay its myths and legends.

Crosby, who has more than 35 years' experience as a trader, will bring thousands of pieces of traditional and contemporary jewelry handcrafted from silver and gold by the Navajo, Hopi, Zunl and Santo Domingan. "Bing will have a spectacular selection of jewelry, the old and the new, thousands of pieces from $4 to $4,000, and he's willing to take special orders," said Dodson, a Farmington Hills resident.

Wheeler, fourth-generation owner of Hogback Trading Post established in 1971, will display traditional and contemporary Navajo rugs, old regional trading post patterns like Two Grey Hills, Wild Ruins, Burntwater, Ganado, Storm Pattern, and Teec Nos Pos as well as pictorial weavings of scenes from everyday life in Navajo culture.

To promote beautification, the Garden City Parks and Recreation Department has teamed with Barson's Greenhouse to sponsor the first Garden of the Year contest.

Residential gardens will be honored in four cate. gories: best overall garden, best use of annuals, best use of perennials, best vegetable garden.

Barson's will award the overall winner $100 worth of plants and the other winners $50 worth. Five Wayne County Extension Service master gardenera will judge the nominated gardens the week of Aug. 10.

To be considered, gardens, except vegetable gardens, must be visible from the street. "That's because our intent is to honor gardens that visibly contribute to beautifying the city," says Marie Sather, Maplewood Community Center supervisor.

Demonstrations will run continuously throughout the show, from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday, July 17-18, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, July 19. Natani expects to weave three inches during that time.

"I do very small weaving. Within a hundred years, it might wear out," Natani said in an interview from her home on the Navajo reservation in New Mexico. "I will show how to card wool and bow to spin it. I usually bring some vegetal dye, what we use on the reservation."

Vegetal dyes are made by the Navajo from plants such as lupine, liatris, sunflower, alder bark, snake weed, prickly pear cactus fruit, and elder, choke and black berries. Plants gathered for dye in summer and early fall produce richer colors, while plants gathered in winter and early spring provide colors lighter in shade.

Weaving skills are passed down through the generations of Navajo women. Designs for the rugs are not sketched before hand. Young weavers are taught to plan their pattern and colors in their head, to visualize it in its entirety from the beginning.

"Mom's a weaver. She taught me," Natani said. "Weaving, it relaxes you. You have lot of problems. It makes you forget all but weaving."

Shearing the sheep, washing the wool, gathering plants for the dye and stringing the loom can take the Navajo many days or weeks of work before weaving begins.

"What I find most interesting is the Navajo a" development and their history, the outside influences of the traders encouraging certain designs," said Plymouth resident Lisa Roberts, Native West assistant manager.

Roberts, who will receive her master's degree in art history from Wayne State University in April, spent untold hours researching materials and preparing handouts on the different styles of Navajo rugs in the show.

"Two Grey Hills has come to be known as the finest of all Navajo weaves with 90 to 130 threads per inch. Teec Nos Pos has an Oriental influence, probably from the photographs of Persian rugs that had been circulated among the weavers in the early 1900s by the traders," Rob-

"Even if people aren't interested in buying a rug, they should come and see them. They won't be able to see the rugs if they never go out West. It's a once in a lifetime opportunity."

Everyone who attends the show can enter the drawing for a Navajo rug at 5 p.m. Sunday.

Treasure trove: (Clockwise) Indian jewelry at Native West will include a turquoise necklace ($300), silver bead necklace ($395), fetish necklace ($165), and turgoise and silver bracelet ($132) and pin ($44).

Functional art: Native West coowner Becky Dodson displays a Navajo rug, Teec Nos Pos by Daisy Kee ($1,800). Thrown over the Totonstyle bed behind her is the finest of all Navajo weaves with 90 to 130 threads per inch, Two Grey Hills by James Sherman ($3,600). The Plymouth gallery

Since retiring six years ago from Campbell Ewald after 29 years as an art director, Eddy devotes his energies to sketching and painting watercolors of homes and historic architecture on location. He will offer six different handcolored prints of notable sites in Plymouth, including Kellogg Park, Main Street, the Mayflower Hotel, Plymouth City Hall, Baker House and the gazebo.

doing this (watercolor) since I was in high school," Eddy said. "It's what I'm happiest doing. I'm happiest when I'm painting.

Eddy studied commercial art and painting two years at Society for Arts and Crafts, since renamed Center for Creative Studies. He received a bachelor of art education degree in 1974 from Wayne State University.

"I took the advertising job because it gave me a chance to draw, to keep active in drawing," Eddy said. "I think it's drawing that drew me into advertising."

Eddy taught advertising design at Oakland Community College and Macomb County Community College and art history at William Tyndale College in Farmington Hills.

In the last few years, he has taken watercolor workshops with Fred Graf and Tony Couch because he would "like to be more of a fine artnature, more rivers and more barns.

"I love watercolor, the way it looks, the looseness of the flowing colors and the freshness," Eddy

"Renoir is one of my inspirations, but more importantly, I am an admirer of Monet. Monet's garden paintings appeal to me, the spontaneity, the impressionist style, the fresh approach to painting the quality of light."

Before he puts a stroke of color on paper, Eddy makes a preliminary black and white sketch.

"I try to capture the way sunlight works on the shapes. I get my values down," Eddy said. "I think there's a basic palette I got attached to back in art school: ultramarine "I knew I wanted to do some blue, burnt sienna. Now I find painting after I retired. I've been myself using cobalt blue and, in the landscapes, lemon yellow.

Short on painting time

Eddy admits he doesn't spend as many hours as he would like to painting. Instead, he spends mornings working to develop compositions for paintings. Light and design, he stresses, are important ingredients in his paintings, worth sacrificing painting time.

"The subject matter isn't that important. It's the approach," Eddy

While working for Campbell Ewald, he ran Gordon Eddy Graphic Design on the side, creating brochures and logos for local businesses. Six years ago, he changed the name to Plymouth Art Studio.

"I have a value sketch of a little white water stream up north that I'm going to paint next," Eddy said.

"I'm putting what I see in my paintings. The beauty of the design ist, painting more landscapes, more and play of the light, it's something that's all around us in nature and I would like to share that.'

Visitors to the fair can rest and refresh themselves under the trees in Kellogg Park.

Hours for Art in the Park are: 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday-Sunday. Kellogg Park is at Main Street and Ann Arbor Trail.

It turned out to be an excellent auggestion.

Tomey, 'who'd always enjoyed children's literature, but never written any, sat down and began to nut together a story about a feisty, 9, year-old redhead named Raydeen bor, who Tomey remembers as "a Grimley, whose life is opened when true eccentric." Tomey would even her grandmother dies and her include bits and pieces of herself grandfather comes to live with Ray. and her own mother as she created sleen and her family. Tomey mod. the character of Poppy's mother, a eled the character of the grandfather very closely on her own father she says, and his reaction to her mother's death several years earlier.

Before she had completed "Grandfather's Day," an idea for a second story was already simmering. It would be a slightly less serious tale than "Grandfather's Day" but "Neptune Princess" would again center around a mischievous "And it was also the worst thing. The athletic adolescent, Poppy Field, who early in the story suffers a broken leg, would very much resemble Tomey's real-life daughter, Kristin (now 23).

A secondary character, Cootie, would be based on a former neighpoet. (To understand more about her main character's temporary disability, Tomey hobbled around on a pair of borrowed crutches for several days, interviewed doctors and made friends with a young girl who'd recently broken her leg.)

After finishing the books, she packed them up and, with fingers firmly crossed, sent them off to separate publishers. Although she had no hard-and-fast rules, she says she sent "Neptune Princess" to Bradbury Press because it was a division of Macmillan and "they publish a lot of books." On the other hand, she chose to submit 'Grandfather's Day" to Boyds Mills Press because it was small and new and she hadread that the publisher was looking for new writers.

A third book, "Savage Carrot," is expected to be out next year (yes, there's a redhaired heroine again). And Tomey is working to finish up her fourth, a young adult novel she has titled "Dreamland."

All the "dumb luck" continues. Victoria Diaz of Livonia tracks the books and literary industry.

Local artistry to flavor Ann Arbor Art Fairs

Nearly 1,000 artists and artisans will converge on Ann Arbor Wednesday-Saturday, July 22-25, for the Ann Arbor Art Fairs, one of the largest celebrations of the arts in the country.

Three separate fairs will line the streets of Ann Arbor during the midsummer festival: The Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, the original juried fair; the State Street Area Art Fair and the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans Summer Art Fair.

Media include ceramics, drawing, sculpture, photography, metal/jewelry, printmaking, mixed, painting, fiber, glass and wood. Hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday-Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Children may do supervised art projects whom are new this year. Artists are expectare 10 a.m. to noon and 2-4 p.m.

The Graceful Arch Stage, featuring live entertainment from dance to music, will be set up at the northwest corner of S. University and E. University. There also will be strolling musicians.

Twenty artist demonstrations in a variety of media will take place throughout the

Museum docentsneeded

Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum in Bloomsield Hills is looking for a few more dedicated docents.

Training can be challenging. The pay is nonexistent. But longtime docents say they've been repaid with a better knowledge of 20th century art. Some of them oven do it for love.

The museum's current corps of 32 docents meets every Monday morning from September to June to sharpen their knowledge of current and coming exhibiitions.

Because of the time and effort the museum's staff puts into training the docents, volunteers are asked to make a two-year commitment to the program. New docents must complete a 15-week survey course conducted on Monday afternoons throughout the fall.

Based on the book, "Design in America -The Cranbrook Vision 1925-1950," the course covers a different medium each week. Beginning docents conduct practice tours and hone their public speaking skills. Graduation includes a tour of 15 ebjects in the main gallery.

Members must be lable to give one to twohour tours at least once ta week for a minimum of 10 tours a year.

Unlike other museiums' programs that require docents to repeat the same lecture throughout their tenure, Cranbrook's volunteers need to be flexible enough to handle changing exhibitions.

Instead of giving a lecture, docents learn to engage tour groups in an ongoing conversation about the exhibit. That means incorporating 'visitors' opinions into the tour conversation.

For details about membership in the Docent Concil, call David Rau, associate curator, at 645-3314.

Since retiring six years ago from Campbell Ewald after 29 years as an art director, Eddy devotes his energies to sketching and painting watercolors of homes and historic architecture on location. He will offer six different handcolored prints of notable sites in Plymouth, including Kellogg Park, Main Street, the Mayflower Hotel, Plymouth City Hall, Baker House and the gazebo.

painting after I retired. I've been doing this (watercolor) since I was in high school," Eddy said. "It's what I'm happiest doing, I'm happiest when I'm painting.'

Eddy studied commercial art and painting two years at Society for Arts and Crafts, since renamed Center for Creative Studies. He received a bachelor of art education degree in 1974 from Wayne State University.

"I took the advertising job because it gave me a chance to draw, to keep active in drawing," Eddy said. "I think it's drawing that drew me into advertising.'

Eddy taught advertising design at Oakland Community College and Macomb County Community College and art history at William Tyndale College in Farmington Hills.

In the last few years, he has taken watercolor workshops with Fred Graf and Tony Couch because he would "like to be more of a fine artist, painting more landscapes, more nature, more rivers and more barns.'

Luck helps boost new children's novelist

By way of explaining how she happened recent. ly to sell her very first 'children's novels, "Neptune Princess" and "Grandfather's Day," Ingrid To. mey just shrugs and mumbles something about ''dumb luck.'' 🕡

The modest, 48-year-old West Bloomfield author's "dumb luck," however, looks more like a decade's worth of hard work on closer inspec-

Actually, you might even say her efforts go back farther than that -to the time when she was a youngster growing up in Midland, and striving to emulate her mother, the late Georgena Goff, also a writer.

Woman's Day, all of it returned characters and events, as is much of Tomey's fiction.)

"As far as my writing career goes, that was the best thing that ever happened to me," Tomey said. "And it was also the worst thing. I half ago, a teacher-friend suggested Tomey modeled the character of the grandfather very closely on her own father she says, and his reaction to her mother's death several years earlier.

Before she had completed "Grandfather's Day," an idea for a second story was already simmering. It would be a slightly less serious tale than "Grandfather's Day" but "Neptune Princess", would again center around a mischievous redhead. ("I have a sister who's a redhead," says Tomey.)

The athletic adolescent, Poppy Field, who early in the story'suffers. a broken leg, would very much resemble Tomey's real-life daughter, Kristin (now 23).

A secondary character, Cootle, would be based on a former neighbor, who Tomey remembers as "a true eccentric." Tomey would even include hits and pieces of herself and her own mother as she created the character of Poppy's mother, a poet. (To understand more about her main character's temporary disability, Tomey hobbled around on a pair of borrowed crutches for several days, interviewed doctors and made friends with a young girl who'd recently broken her leg.)

After finishing the books, she packed them up and, with fingers firmly crossed, sent them off to separate publishers. Although she had no hard-and-fast rules, she says she sent "Neptune Princess" to Bradbury Press because it was a division of Macmillan and "they publish a lot of books." On the other hand, she chose to submit 'Grandfather's Day" to Boyds Mills Press because it was small and new and she had read that the publisher was looking for new writers.

Both books sold quickly and, as it happened, within weeks of each

A third book, "Savage Carrot," is expected to be out next year (yes, there's a redhaired heroine again). And Tomey is working to finish up her fourth, a young adult novel she has titled "Dreamland."

All the "dumb luck" continues. Victoria Diaz of Livonia tracks the books and literary industry.

Museum docentsneeded

Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum in Bloomfield Hills is looking for a few more dedicated docents.

Training can be challenging. The pay is nonexistent. But longtime docents say they've been repaid with a better knowledge of 20th century art. Some of them even do it for love.

? The museum's current corps of 32 docents meets every Monday morning from September to June to sharpen their knowledge of current and coming exhibitions. Because of the time and effort the museum's staff puts into training the docents, volunteers are asked to make a two-year commitment to the program. New docents must complete a 15-week survey course conducted on Monday afternoons throughout the fall. Based on the book, "Design in America -The Cranbrook Vision 1925-1950," the course covers a different medium each week. Beginining docents conduct practice tours and hone their public speaking kkills. Graduation includes a tour of 15 objects in the main gal-

Members must be able to give one. to two. hour tours at least once a week for a minimum of 10 tours a year.

Unlike other museums' programs that require docents to repeat the same lecture throughout their tenure, Cranbrook's volunteers need to be Nexible enough to handle changing exhibitions.

instead of giving a lecture, docents learn to engage tour groups in an ongoing conversation about the exhibit. That means, incorporating 'visitors' opinions' into the tour conversation.

For details about membership in the Docent Concil; call David Rau, associate curator, at 645-3314.

Since retiring six years ago from Campbell Ewald after 29 years as an art director, Eddy devotes his energies to sketching and painting watercolors of homes and historic architecture on location. He will offer six different handcolored prints of notable sites in Plymouth, including Kellogg Park, Main Street, the Mayflower Hotel, Plymouth City Hall, Baker House and the gazebo.

"I knew I wanted to do some painting after I retired. I've been loing this (watercolor) since I was in high school," Eddy said. "It's what I'm happiest doing. I'm happiest when I'm painting.'

Eddy studied commercial art and painting two years at Society for Arts and Crafts, since renamed Center for Creative Studies. He received a bachelor of art education degree in 1974 from Wayne State University.

"I took the advertising job because it gave me a chance to draw, to keep active in drawing," Eddy said. "I think it's drawing that drew me into advertising."

Eddy taught advertising design at Oakland Community College and Macomb County Community College and art history at William Tyndale College in Farmington Hills.

In the last few years, he has taken watercolor workshops with Fred Graf and Tony Couch because he would "like to be more of a fine artist, painting more landscapes, more nature, more rivers and more barns.'

"I love watercolor, the way it looks, the looseness of the flowing colors and the freshness," Eddy said.

"Renoir is one of my inspirations, but more importantly, I am an admirer of Monet. Monet's garden paintings appeal to me, the spontaneity, the impressionist style, the fresh approach to painting the quality of light."

Before he puts a stroke of color on paper, Eddy makes a preliminary black and white sketch.

"I try to capture the way sunlight works on the shapes. I get my values down," Eddy said. "I think there's a basic palette I got attached to back in art school: ultramarine blue, burnt sienna. Now I find myself using cobalt blue and, in the landscapes, lemon yellow."

Short on painting time

Eddy admits he doesn't spend as many hours as he would like to painting. Instead, he spends mornings working to develop compositions for paintings. Light and design, he stresses, are important ingredients in his paintings, worth sacrificing painting time.

"The subject matter isn't that important. It's the approach," Eddy

While working for Campbell Ewald, he ran Gordon Eddy Graphic Design on the side, creating brochures and logos for local business. es. Six years ago, he changed the name to Plymouth Art Studio.

"I have a value sketch of a little white water stream up north that I'm going to paint next," Eddy said.

"I'm putting what I see in my paintings. The beauty of the design and play of the light, it's something that's all around us in nature and I would like to share that."

Visitors to the fair can rest and. refresh themselves under the trees in Kellogg Park.

Hours for Art in the Park are: 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday-Sunday, Kellogg Park is at Main Street and Ann Arbor Trail.

Museumdocents needed

Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum in Bloomfield Hills is looking for a few more dedicated docents,

Training can be chal lenging. The pay is nonexistent. But longtime docents say thereve been repaid with a better knowledge of 20th century art. Some of them oven do it for love.

? The museum's current corps of 32 docents meets every Monday morning from September to June to sharpen their knowledge of current and coming exhibitions.

Because of the time and effort the museum's staff puts into training the docents, volunteers are asked to make a two-year commitment to the program. New docents must complete a 15 week survey course vonducted on Monday afternoons throughout the fall.

Based on the book, "Design in America — The Cranbrook Vision 1925-1950," the course covers a different medium each week. Begin ining docents conduct practice tours and hone their public speaking skills. Graduation includes a tour of 15 objects in the main gal · lery.

Members must be (able to give one, to twohour tours at least once a week for a minimum of 10 tours a year.

Unlike other museums' programs that require docents to repeat the same lecture throughout their tenure. Cranbrook's volunteers need to be flexible enough to handle changing exhibitions.

Instead of giving a lecture, docents learn to engage tour groups in an ongoing conversation about the exhibit. That means incorporating visitors' opinions into the tour conversation.

For details about membership in the Docent Concil, call David Rau, associate curator, at 645-3314.

Lensman captures prairie's beauty

By Linda Ann Chomin Special Writer

Fascinated by the growth habits of prairie grasses and flowers, Livonia photographer Max Nemazi fo., cuses on their beauty in a 20-piece collection displayed to July 31 in the Livonia City Hall lobby, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

The collection is on loan from Matthaei Botanical Gardens in Ann Nemazi captures the blooms, seed pods and meadows of perennial wildflowers like the Prairie Blazing Star, Goldenrod, Queen of the Prairie, Purple Coneflower, Big Bluestem, Rattlesnake Master and Butterfly Weed complete with butterflies.

Along with Nemazi's work, the July show, presented by the Livonia Arts Commission, features gouache paintings of Packards, Bentleys, Rolls Royces and Thunderbirds by Westland artist Roger Hardnock, a Center for Creative Studies gradu-Hardnock's artwork publishing credits include Automotive Quarterly, Car Styling, and International Lady (Rolls Royce). He recently exhibited work in a two-person show at Nelson's Gallery in Livonia.

Nemazi, a retired engineer who worked 35 years for General Motors, coordinates the wildflower gardens at Matthaei. He shot many of his first photographs as a youngster with a Kodak box camera.

"I like nature and I like photography," Nemazi said in a telephone interview before embarking on a three-week hiking and biking trip to Alaska in June. "I like the prairie flowers because they're unique unto themselves. Prairies generally don't have trees. It's open land but it's undeveloped.

Early French explorers named the open, treeless, grassy lands of middle North America, prairies. The prairie's ecological system consists of level or slightly rolling grasslands.

Lacking shrubs and trees, the ecosystem is home to plants, insects, birds and animals not found anywhere else. Animals such as prairie chickens, dogs, and squirrels thrive on the prairie's grasses and wildflowers, shying from forests and wetlands.

Prairies have bloomed in late summer for centuries. The purple Kansas coneflower, Echinacea purpurea, was a herb favored by the Plains Indians in illnesses. It's especially popular in Europe. More than 300 published scientific studies illustrate how Echinacea strengthens the immune system.

"The roots of these prairie flowers live for years and years," Nemazi said. "They're perennials if you don't cut or mow or use weed

Ceramics displayed

"Ceramics of the Picurls Pueblo," an exhibit of works by Anthony Durand, will run July 17 to Aug. 29 at Susanne Hilberry Gallery, 555 S. Woodward, Birmingham.

The opening reception to meet the artist is 4-7 p.m. Friday. Hours are 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday-Saturday.

The traditional micaceous pottery of Picuris, situated in the Sangre de Cristo mountain range of northern New Mexico, was first recorded in 1598 shortly after the first Spanish settlements.

Since 1600, this pueblo has been widely known for its beautiful and utilitarian wares.

Although the primary clay source at Picuris has been destroyed by road construction and mining, Durand and his grandmother, Cora, have struggled to keep the Picuris pottery tradition alive on their pue-

Boundary relocation permitted

BY ROBERT MEISNER SPECIAL WRITER

I bought three condominlum units at a campground condominium in northern Michigan. The board of directors is telling me that my traller is too large because it extends beyond the sixments. Is there any way to resolve this problem?

Yes. If your condominium docution of boundaries between adjoining condominium units, then you permit this, and mortgagee approves legal opinion.

may wish to make written request to your board to amend the master deed to relocate your unit boundaries to enlarge the condominium unit to bring you in compliance with the setback restrictions. Typically, campground condominium documents allow for the relocation foot boundary setback require- of boundaraies between adjoining units. The Michigan Condominium Act allows for unit boundary relocation by recording an amendment to ments expressly permit the reloca- the master deed, provided the condominium documents expressly

Michigan Association of Home Builders will host its 42nd annual summer conference July 23.25 at Shanty Creek-Schuss Mountain Resort in Bellaire. Registration for the conference only is $90. Hotel accommodations are available. For information, call MAHB at 517-484-5933.

Eveyone in the pool

Pulte Homes of Michigan has recently opened its new pool and clubhouse at Country Club Village in Northville. It's on Haggerty Road south of Six Mile.

Perfection in safety

R.E. Dailey & Co., Southfield, received the Contractor's Safety Excellence Award for a perfect safety record with a zero incident rate of injury accidents for a company with more than 100,000 manhours worked

The award was given by the Michigan chapter of the Associated General Contractors, a construction trade association with more than 100 member construction firms statewide.

BASM controller

Gerard J. Mellnick, a CPA, has been named controller of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan. He succeeds the retiring Morton Stahl. Mellnick previously was a management consultant with BDO Seidman of Troy.

BASM is the nation's third largest home builders' association, representing more than 1,700 member companies including residential and commercial builders, developers, managers and companies that provide products and services to the building industry. It is an affiliate of the Michigan Association of Home Builders and the National Assocation of Home Builders.

Saddle Club: Holly Osborn, director of operations of the Saddle Club, the private equestrian facility at Berwyck on the Park and Berwyck Place, stands before the newly renovated clubhouse and stables.

City slickers at home on the range

■ Equestrian communities are becoming more popular, but a successful development means building a community around people, not horses.

By Gerald Frawley Staff Writer

It is a small development in size, but not in scope. It is a development of traditionally inspired single family and custom homes, of gentle hills and green pastures, of rural life on the edge of urban reach.

And horses, don't forget the horses. Berwyck on the Park and Berwyck Place, which sit a couple of miles south of the Village of Milford, is a private equestrian community developed by the Farmington Hills-based Irvine Group.

This isn't just another project for the company, according to Norm Finkelstein, vice president.

Both he and Paul Levine, Irvine Group president, were looking to develop something "different."

"We had been looking at the Milford area for some time - we liked the tone of the area and hoped to get ahead of the developing pack."

On one of their scouting trips they stumbled on the parcel. Another developer already had designs on the property, Finkelstein said, but as luck would have it, the plans fell through.

Several months after first seeing the land, the owner called and asked if they were still inter

They were.

"Paul is a longtime horse lover, and I have an appreciation for horses myself," he said. Both have been around horses all of their life, he said, and the property just appealed to them as a special

"I could say it was the stables (the property had once been a horse farm), but it was more than that," he said.

"We just looked at each other and said, 'Boy, if we could just . . .' and we knew we had something.'

Although the idea seemed natural, and the project was built partly because it was something they wanted to do, they didn't charge into the project blindly.

The basic home designs were settled after consulting with area Realtors on what types of houses were popular, Getting all the necessary permit approvals took longer than expected because the idea was something new. Several trips were made to other equestrian communities throughout the country.

"There just wasn't anything like it around here," he said.

"We thought we could bring the whole concept down to earth."

After more than three years of work, the development is taking shape. At the heart of the development is the recently renovated historic stables built in 1941, the centerpiece of the Berwyck Saddle Club, said Holly Osborn director of operations for the Saddle Club.

The Saddle Club is the private equestrian facility that Berwyck members are enrolled in upon purchasing a home. Residents board their horses in the stables and can have Saddle Club employees care for the animals.

"We can do as much or as little as the person wants," she said. Fees vary depending on what horse owners want the club to provide.

Osborn said every effort has been made to make the Saddle Club a topnotch facility.

During the renovation, a clubhouse with fitness room, kitchen and dressing rooms were added. An indoor arena is being refurbished for more stables and new indoor and outdoor arenas are being constructed.

Surrounding the development is a bridle path, pastures and a paddock area. The bridle path leads to horse trails in Kensington Metro Park, Osborn said.

The 58 country contemporary homes in Berwyck on the Park are detached single family homes ranging from 1,760 square feet to 2,800 square feet; priced from $169,00 to $269,000.

Across Milford Road lies Berwyck Place, a 14-site development of custom houses sized 2.800 square feet and up and starting at $300,000, she said.

Takes commitment

Elric S. Pinckney Jr., president of ESP & Associates Inc., a Denver, Col., real estate marketing firm specializing in consulting and feasibility studies for equestrian communities, said the number of these developments has grown steadily in the past decade.

· Equestrian commmunities come in varying sizes. Sometimes they are packaged with other amenities like golf, and sometimes they cater to select horse fanciers.

"An awful lot of whether an equestrian community will work depends on the

The complaint alleges civil rights violations and negligent performance of duty. Unspecified punitive monetary damages have been sought from Fourmidable as well as recovery of legal fees, Douglas Hyman, a lawyer for Fourmidable, declined to comment on specifics of the complaint. But he defended the firm's record.

"Some areas defined as discrimination are so far-fetched, it's unbelievable to me," Hyman said, up card from the rental agent, while the black This company is in the business of renting apart. fester didn't. ments and they rent to anyone regardless of color, a creed or national origin."

One of Fourmidable's complexes identified in the complaint has a minority population of 92 percent, Hyman said.

"My experience with this company is that its minority occupancy rate substantiates its fair

Victoria Roberts, a lawyer representing the Fair

"I believe the testing evidence we have is very compelling," she said. "We're hopeful that if we prove the allegations, Fourmidable will enter an agreement to cease and desist practices."

Pourmidable was targeted due to the number of complaints received by the Fair Housing Center over the years, Roberts sald. Several complexes managed by Fourmidable in O&B communities were mentioned in the filing.

Victorian styling, contemporary flair

Victorian accents combine with country styling in the Grandee, a large two-story house inspired by a sketch from a reader.

A covered front porch stretches across the front and wraps around the left side. Clean, simple lines prevail in the railings and dowels, but turned columns and decorative trim at the top add Victorian flavor as do the arched bay windows above, capped by gazebo-like roof lines.

Inside, nine-foot ceilings throughout harken back to the Victorian era. The rest of the house is contemporary. Family room and lobby are vaulted to the second story ceiling and spanned by a wide balcony that overlooks both rooms. Seven-foot high bookshelves flank the front door and a spacious living room is to the left.

Cooking and eating areas are to the right where choices include a formal dining room, a sunny nook or an extra-long eating bar. The walk-in pantry that separates the kitchen from the dining room has cupboard doors that allow direct kitchen access to some of the shelves.

A large utility room with deep sink and pull-down ironing board is just steps away from the kitchen and adjacent to the garage too.

The octagonal-shaped family room features a fireplace with tiled hearth and French doors that openonto a split level deck.

The swing room is a multi-purpose space that could be used as guest quarters, a home office or hobby room. French doors open onto a private deck,

Although all of the sleeping areas are upstairs, the master suite is separated from the other three bedrooms. Large enough to include a sitting area, this space serves as an adult retreat from the activities in the rest of the house. The bedroom has a raised spa, enclosed lavatory and shower, and twin basins. An additional vanity is just outside the walk-in closet.

For a study plan of the Grandee (332-023), send $7.50 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 23007, Eugene, Or. 97402, including the name and number of the plan.

equestrian facilities," Pinckney said. "It's a disaster when the community isn't planned well." -

The biggest mistake developers make when building an equestrian community is to "over-horse it.

"Everything is horse, horse, horse," Pinckney said. Equestrian communities succeed because they treat projects as developments that incorporate horses, not as stables that incorporate houses.

Pinckney said he has found equestrian communities attract a wide variety of people - a majority, in fact, are not even what one might consider horse people.

"Typically, slightly less than 20 percent of residents will have a hands on interest in horses," he

"These people may want to see a horse trotting by the back door, but they're not likely to actually ride one," he said.

Pinckney said he could not stress enough that a developer who views an equestrian development as a sales gimmick will not be success-

"I would say that probably 90 percent of the time, when I look at a planned equestrian community, I recommend (the developer) not do it," he said.

While equestrian communities typically sell well, other types of developments sell as well or better for developers, he said.

"A lot of developers think they can hang up a shingle, slap up a barn and call it equestrian," he said. "(An equestrian community) takes a real commitment on the nert of the developer "
